County sent bill for Bigfoot hunt

EUREKA (UPI) — The Humboldt County Board of Supervisors voted 4-0 Tuesday to bill Shasta County the $9,631.72 in costs for a search in July for Bigfoot.

The search for the legendary half-man-half-animal occurred after two men, reported that Bigfoot had kidnaped a female companion, Sherry Darvel, Redding. She turned up two days later, but officials expressed doubt about her story.

The board voted 4-0 to bill Shasta County under a seldom-invoked law permitting the billing of the home county of a victim for charges incurred in any search or rescue operation.

Ford nears GOP nomination

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford, steadily building new support on the heels of his initial victory over Ronald Reagan, rolled toward a first-ballot nomination tonight at the Republican National Convention.

Ford supporters all but broke the back of Reagan's presidential challenge late Tuesday night, rejecting his bid to force Ford to reveal his running mate this morning.

That selection appeared to be the only item of suspense left at this 31st national convocation of the GOP.

Reagan, although continuing his forays among the delegations today, signaled resignation to defeat by pledging "my support to the ticket whichever way it turns out tonight."

And one of his aides said privately, "I didn't see any hope. But we're hoping for a miracle."

Reagan's pledge seemed to assure party unity in the race against Jimmy Carter this fall. The Democratic candidate himself, talking to reporters in Plains, Ga., predicted Republicans would be "substantially united" by general election time.

Ford's triumph in his initial convention floor showdown with Reagan drew a small but steady stream of fresh support from the uncommitted ranks.

UPI's latest count at mid-day showed Ford with 1,148 delegate votes—88 more than needed for nomination. Reagan had 1,043 and the uncommitted divided to 62.

After voting down Reagan's rules change proposal during a stormy third session, the convention early today shrouded approval of a conservative platform. It contained a "morality in foreign policy" provision, sponsored by Reagan and unopposed by Ford, and a strong anti-abortion plank.

With televised balloting for the nomination due at 7:30 p.m. EDT, Ford paid a morning "thank you" visit to campaign workers at the Crown Center Hotel where he is staying and told them: "We're going to win in November."

"I feel great," the President told reporters a bit later. "I'll feel better tonight."

Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller, ruffled out of the running for the ticket early in Ford's campaign, said on NBC-TV's Today program this morning he expected the President to win nomination by an even greater margin than the 1,180 to 1,069 registered on the rules vote.

"But I have to feel that you got to stay right in there right up to the end," Rockefeller said. "I wouldn't relax. I'd work on every delegate to stay right where you think you are and add."

During the stormy third session of the convention, Rockefeller yanked away a placard held in his face by a North Carolina delegate, and a pro-Reagan Utah delegate tore the New York delegation's telephone out by the roots.

FBI entries had Felt OK

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON—A Twin Falls native who is a former associate director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said Tuesday he had approved in 1972 the commission of two burglaries by bureau agents engaged in domestic-intelligence investigation.

The acknowledgment by W. Mark Felt, who retired from the FBI in 1973, was the first instance in which a top executive at bureau headquarters has taken responsibility for authorizing any of the burglaries that are currently the subject of a criminal inquiry by the Department of Justice.

Felt first said in a telephone interview that he had given his approval for the two burglaries on the strength of an assurance by L. Patrick Gray 3D, then the acting FBI director, that he would countenance the use of "surrogate" entries to gather evidence in sensitive intelligence investigation.

Felt, 63, is a native of Twin Falls who retired from the FBI in 1973 because of what he termed "manipulation" of the agency by a superior. He joined the FBI in 1948 and served in various offices as a special agent and later in supervisory assignments in Washington, D.C., Salt Lake City, Kansas City and Los Angeles.

He was appointed deputy associate director in July, 1971.

Felt initially recalled that Gray, who took over the bureau after the death of J. Edgar Hoover, in May, 1972, had told a Washington conference of the heads of the bureau's 58 field offices that "he would approve these things," but cautioned the agents to "be damn sure you get bureau approval" before carrying them out.

Through his lawyer, Gray, who now lives in Stonington, Conn., denied "condoning or approving, directly or indirectly, any illegal act" by the FBI.

Told of Gray's denial, Felt conceded that his recollection of the circumstances of Gray's approval was "hazy," and that in any event his authorization was predicated on "the belief that that was what he (Gray) wanted."

Idahoans contained emotions

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN Times-News writer

KANSAS CITY—Among the cheers, boos and heated debate of the Republican national convention Tuesday night, the Idaho delegation apparently remained cool.

Last night marked the delegates' debates and voting. There were sharp disputes throughout the night. Several signs were ripped down by angry delegates and at one point a phone was ripped out of the hands of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and then pulled from the wall.

But the Idaho delegation wasn't involved in any of these overly emotional demonstrations, members said today.

"We are a very calm deliberate body," Idaho State Rep. Tom Silvers, a Reagan delegate from Twin Falls, said.

Idaho State Rep. Gordon Hollifield, an alternate for Reagan from Jerome, said there was lots of shouting from the Idaho delegation but not any booing.

"The Idaho delegates were quite energetic in cheering for their side but they just don't seem to be the kind of people who like to boo," Hollifield said.

Temper flared among some Republicans last night but the general feeling seems to be just part of the convention and will not split the party after the candidate is picked tonight.

"It was just good spirited and healthy conflict," Idaho Secretary of State and Reagan delegate from Boise Peter Cennarus said.

"I think it is spirited and healthy contest and because of the contest it will make a stronger and more united party," Cennarus added.

"When the standard bearer is elected, the convention is going to unite behind that standard bearer," Cennarus said. "I think that seems to be the mood."

Silvers said he didn't believe he heated debates last night would have "a bit of effect" upon the unity of the party after the convention.

"There's no fracture in the party," he said.

"This is a minor skirmish in terms of dividing the party. There's no way it's going to divide the party."

Much of the commotion last night was over rule 16C which, if it had been adopted, would have forced President Ford to announce his vice presidential running mate before the balloting tonight.

Trophy of clash

Regional airport 'feasible'

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer

JEROME—The proposed South Idaho Regional Airport is economically feasible, even with only the present five counties, according to the master plan.

Highlights of the master plan were reported Tuesday night in the Jerome county courthouse. An estimated 75 persons attended the informational gathering.

According to officials from TAP, Inc., Bozeman, Mont., the prime consultant for the master plan, the feasibility picture would "improve materially with the addition of Twin Falls and/or Blaine County into the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority" (SIRRA).

But Rich Seor, consulting economist who spoke on the financial aspects of the proposed facility, emphasized "the present five counties (Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding, Minidoka and Cassia) can pay for it."

The major points of the economic report were the recommendation of a one mill tax to be levied throughout the area in the authority and passage of a revenue bond to obtain the local share of the construction costs.

Seor said the facility will cost $19.8 million, with the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) to provide $14.6 million which would have to be borrowed.

He predicted the possibility of 7 per cent interest on a 20-year loan.

Under current legislation, a two-thirds majority would be needed, authority-wide, for passage of the revenue bond election but the planners said there is some indication that this legal requirement may be changed. Revenue bonds are paid by funds.

The money raised from the one mill levy plus the operational revenue is estimated to provide enough funds to make payments on the $5.2 million bond. Seor said. He urged immediate investment of the bonds in time certificates until the money is needed for construction.

The one mill levy would cost the owner of a $10,000 home $8 per year. Seor said. Or $16 per year for an $80,000 market value property.

Bill McKnight, Burley, one of the SIRRA trustees, suggested if there were seven counties in the authority (district) the mill could be cut to a half mill. But the economist recommended the one mill should be retained to provide operating costs in the first years of the airport.

"Later, when operating revenues increase, it could be feasible to eliminate the mill levy," he said.

The remaining revenue needed for debt retirement and operational costs is to come from airport operational income, and Seor said he had figured this "conservatively."

He used $8 to $10 fee per square foot as a reasonable lease to users and listed landing fees, rent from office space, restaurant and other concessions as other potential revenue which would increase in future years.

Estimated cost for operating and maintaining the proposed regional airport is $240,000 per year, he said.

The engineers urged revenue bonds be sold at least two years before the airport is ready for use and said they had not included potential income from industrial development surrounding the airport.

The planners urged immediate action to launch the master plan. George Forscher, chairman, said the trustees will meet again soon, probably next week, and are expected to formally adopt the plan. Copies of the master plan now are available from board members and will be available at community libraries.

The "ideal" timetable calls for possible voting this fall on whether Twin Falls and Blaine counties want to be included in the district, voting on the revenue bond in early 1977, letting the bids for January, 1978, starting construction later that year. Under ideal conditions the facility could be ready for use in mid-1980s.

Peter Snow, Burley, SIRRA attorney, said the law is unclear on provisions for voting on the question of enlarging the district to the two additional counties.

State office enters Corder probe

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho attorney general's office has agreed to assist in an investigation of "irregularities" in the use of public monies by the Twin Falls County sheriff.

The AG's office agreed to step into the case after Twin Falls County Prosecutor William Hollifield told the state agency he is representing Sheriff Paul Corder in several civil cases and therefore faces possible conflict of interest in pursuing the investigation of the sheriff.

Senior Deputy Attorney General Gordon Nielson said Tuesday he has agreed to assist in the investigation launched by Hollifield July 27.

Nielson said he didn't know if the AG's office would take over the complete investigation or only assist in it.

That decision will depend in part, Nielson said, on what is uncovered in an audit of the sheriff's books which is currently underway.

"I can't say," Nielson said.

"I can't see what the audit is. I don't want to comment on what will happen from there. I can't say," Nielson said.

The investigation came on the heels of allegations by sheriff's candidate Ivan "Ike" Kistler, that Corder was running a sloppy office. Corder defeated Kistler in the Aug. 3 Republican primary by about 400 votes.

Hollifield said Tuesday he had made the request of the AG's office because in his role as prosecuting attorney he defends Sheriff Corder in civil cases.

Hollifield has refused to comment on the content of the investigation, but at least part of the probe concerns a $1,256 fund apparently kept by the sheriff from unknown sources.

According to Chief Deputy County Clerk Helen Porterfield—Corder's daughter—but amount of money over for deposit with "no idea where it came from and so forth."

Mrs. Porterfield said the money was deposited by her on July 30. She said she thought that was the day Corder had turned the money over to the Clerk's office, but she added, "I might have held it a day or two" before depositing the money—added that amount of money over for deposit with "no idea where it came from and so forth."

Nielson said the attorney general's office joined the investigation out of "no political motivation."

"It isn't political at all in any manner," he said. "Whatever the facts produce, we'll go from there."

Koreans kill 2 Americans

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — About 30 availing North Korean soldiers killed two U.S. army officers at the trace village of Panmunjom today in one of the most brutal incidents along the shaky Korean truce front since 1970. Four other American soldiers and five South Koreans were injured.

The United Nations command said the North Korean army guards staged an unprovoked attack on the Americans who were on a work detail trimming trees in the demilitarized area separating North and South Korea. A Pentagon spokesman said a North Korean officer ordered his men to "kill" the U.N. personnel.

It was the first time that personnel of either side had been killed in a clash in the Joint Security Area at the truce village where free access and movement are guaranteed for both sides.

A South Korean government spokesman condemned North Korea for the "unimaginable, barbarous and inhuman acts of murder." North Korea blamed the Americans for the attack, saying the wire-cutting down trees in an area under North Korean jurisdiction and ignored orders to leave.

UNC called a meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission for Thursday to protest the incident.

The bloody incident occurred just a day after North Korean Premier Park Sung-chul, speaking at the Nonaligned Summit conference in Santiago, demanded the withdrawal of the 42,000 American troops from South Korea and offered anew to sign a bilateral peace treaty with the United States without South Korea's participation.

Acid burns sinks, imperils bay

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — A barge loaded with 250,000 gallons of acid capsized near the mouth of the York River early today and the Coast Guard declared an emergency in the Chesapeake Bay.

The spokesman said the highly corrosive, colorless acid would be deadly to any marine life coming in contact with it.

He said preliminary information indicated the acid would disperse after sinking to the bottom of the bay, "so there won't be any long term effects."

"Any marine life in the area would be killed immediately by the acid," he said.

Soviets land unmanned Lana ship

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union successfully landed an unmanned spacecraft on the moon today, its eighth landing in six years, to carry out new lunar exploration.

"According to telemetry data, all onboard systems are functioning normally and the planned program of work on the surface of the moon has begun," Tass said.

The success of Luna 24 made up for the failure of its predecessor, Luna 23, which landed on the moon Nov. 8, 1974, but because of damage sustained on landing failed to carry out its risk-testing mission.

Andrus, Summers plan Salmon float

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — Gov. Cecil Andrus and Sen. H. Dean Summers leave Thursday on a five-day float-trip down the Salmon River.

Andrus' daughters, Tracy and Kelly, and Summers' son will accompany them on the trip.

The party will fly into the Salmon area and begin the trip at Indian Creek on the Upper Middle Fork of the Salmon River.

"Norman Guth, boatman for the party, said a group from New York will travel with the Andrus' party on two float pontoons.

Carter says GOP will unite by fall

FLAINES, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter today predicted the Republican Party would be "substantially united" by fall, despite the current in-fighting between supporters of President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Carter also said Ford would make a "formidable opponent" if he wins the Republican presidential nomination. But the Democratic presidential candidate said he still has a good chance of carrying the South even if Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee is named as Ford's vice presidential nominee.

Carter also disclosed that he had refused an invitation to speak at the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Wearing jeans, work boots and a work shirt, Carter talked to reporters at the Southwest Georgia Agricultural Experimental Station near his hometown.

"The Republican Party will be substantially united immediately after coming out of the convention. I think the disharmonies will be alleviated very quickly after the candidate is chosen," Carter said.

"This is an election that still has to be decided. Although I'm ahead in opinion polls," Carter said, "I think there'll be a great deal of equalizing in the polls a week or two after the Republican convention."

Kidnaping charged to 3 Boise youths

BOISE (UPI) — Three Boise youths have been charged with second-degree kidnaping in the Friday night abduction of two girls and the rape of one of them.

Detective Bob Sobha said Dennis Johnson, 18, Boise, and two juveniles, one 15 and the other 17, were arrested Tuesday afternoon in connection with the kidnaping and rape of an 18-year-old Boise girl and the abduction of her 19-year-old companion.

The girls stopped for a stop sign in the Highlands area of Boise Friday night when two armed youths forced their way into their stationwagon and ordered the girls to drive to a dirt road in the foothills.

When they stopped on the dirt road, one of the girls was told to get into a red car driven by the third man, who drove her back to Boise, where she called officers.

Police said the girl left behind told officers she was raped by the two juveniles, who blindfolded her with a shirt.

Sobha said the arrests were the result of a joint investigation by Boise and Ada County detectives, who he said had worked almost around the clock on the case since Friday night. He said one of the juveniles was already in detention on another charge and the second was arrested shortly after. A few hours later Johnson was apprehended. Sobha added.

Ford forces concede second point on platform

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A confident President Ford refused to be drawn into a divisive platform fight with Ronald Reagan early today, and allowed the Republican National Convention to adopt a statement originally intended to slur his foreign policy.

The statement entitled "morality in foreign policy" was amended to the platform by voice vote after Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska announced he "decided not to object" in the interest of party unity and harmony.

Relieved by the outcome, party leaders almost let delegates leave the hall in the wee hours of the morning without voting on the whole platform. The document was approved by voice vote after a reporter reminded them of the near-brawl.

Republicans expressed confidence the conservative platform — which opposes busing, abortion, gun control and deficit spending — would give them more voter appeal in November than the liberal positions of Democrat Jimmy Carter.

The anti-abortion plank was upheld by an overwhelming vote of the convention against a feminist challenge that was doomed from the start.

Reagan's platform amendment implied criticism of the policies of Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger by warning against the evils of the basis of Ford policy.

Reagan forces claimed it as a victory. "We weren't going to accept any compromise," said Reagan aide, David Keene. "It's a loss for Ford. I don't think the Ford people are very anxious to fight us on the floor on this issue."

But the victory was too easy for Reagan's most conservative supporters. A few of them in the North Carolina delegation were left standing on chairs, still demanding a roll call vote, as the session ended.

"Railroad, railroad," they shouted. "Hurrah for Jimmy Carter!"

Ford acquiesced to it only after backroom negotiations with Reagan aides failed to produce a compromise. The President thus avoided the risk of a roll call that might have spoiled his victory over Reagan on convention rules.

"Ninety per cent of it's fine," said Sen. Robert Griffin, Ford's floor manager. "And 10 per cent of this wording isn't worth fighting over."

Hruska insisted the statement already provides

Those who spoke in favor of the foreign policy amendment referred vaguely to concessions that had weakened the U.S. position in the world and abandoned the principle of human freedom.

Consultation over VP choice slated

© Newhouse News Service
KANSAS CITY — President Ford, believed heading toward a first ballot nomination, plans to meet with challenger Ronald Reagan late tonight "to consult" on Ford's selection of a vice presidential running mate.

This was announced Tuesday by White House Chief of Staff Richard Cheney, who said the President would defer a final selection until he discusses it with Reagan.

The conversation, which will take place in Gov. Reagan's hotel, will be in the nature of a consultation, Cheney told a meeting of reporters here. "The President does not plan to simply tell Gov. Reagan whom he is selecting as his running mate; rather, he wants to discuss it and receive the governor's input."

The Reagan forces, claiming they will win the nomination either on the first or second ballot, say there will be no need for such a meeting.

"The governor sees no reason to have a meeting with President Ford on Wednesday night," said John Sears, campaign manager for Reagan. "As for Thursday morning, let's wait and see who wins the nomination."

Disruptions prolong GOP session

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Frequent disruptions, topped by an incident sparked when Vice President Nelson Rockefeller yanked a Ronald Reagan sign away from a delegate, plagued and prolonged the second night Republican convention session that adjourned early today.

Rollcall formality remains

By ARNOLD SAWESLAK
UPI Senior Editor
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — John Sears' closet turned out to be empty. The covert delegate support Ronald Reagan's campaign manager boasted about was washed out by defections from his own ranks, and President Ford appeared to have the Republican presidential nomination today.

The formality of the rollcall remains, but the feisty Reagan delegations at Kemper Arena sagged like punctured sandbags Tuesday night when the GOP convention rejected their all-out effort to beat Ford on an issue of procedure.

The Reagan people won a small point on the party platform, but even there they had to accept less than a triumph. The President's camp simply conceded the foreign policy point and left the California challenger without the satisfaction of a rollcall victory.

analysis

Now the question is, how will the Reagan delegates take defeat? Will they, as some Republicans at the opposite end of the party spectrum did in 1964, bug out on their candidate? Or will they close ranks, at least publicly, and start the nomination on the campaign without stab wounds in the back?

The temptation, from witnessing the first two nights of the convention, is to guess the losers will take the "surrender, dear, hell," route.

How close the struggle approached to violence was demonstrated Tuesday night when Vice President Nelson Rockefeller snatched a Reagan sign from someone who waved it in his face, and Utah co-chairman Douglas Bischoff retaliated by yanking New York state's telephone out of its socket.

When the Ford group tried to match the opposition sign for sign and cheer for cheer, it was the Reaganites who were still whistling and stomping when the long session ended.

The session, which lasted for more than seven hours, bared the tensions which have mounted between the backers of President Ford and Reagan. There were frequent shouting matches between the two sides that sometimes led to hot tempers as the heat rose both literally and figuratively on the floor.

The strangest scene of the night, however, involved the vice president of the United States and a state senator from Utah.

Rockefeller, who was returning to his seat in the New York delegation, grabbed from the taunting hands of a North Carolina delegate a blue and yellow sign proclaiming "Reagan Country."

Dressed in shirt sleeves and grinning broadly, Rockefeller rolled up the sign and threw it on the floor near his chair. The roll call filled with the cheers of Ford backers, and stunned by stares of those in Reagan's camp.

When Rockefeller ignored the delegate's efforts to retrieve the sign, Utah Sen. Douglas Bischoff, also a delegate, became enraged and pulled out the New York telephone to Ford headquarters.

"I saw red and pulled the telephone out," Bischoff said later. "It was a very impetuous and immature thing that I did, but it was impetuous and immature of the vice president, too."

The Utah delegate ripped the phone from his fixture and ran away, with New York GOP Chairman Richard Rosenbaum in hot pursuit. Security forces stopped the delegate.

Rockefeller stirred the crowd, already on its feet and yelling, by repeatedly raising the broken equipment over his head. He told reporters, "Somebody came by who none of us knew and told Dick Rosenbaum that if he didn't get that sign... he was going to rip out the phone."

The mood of the convention had turned ugly shortly before the incident as Reagan-Ford forces locked horns on a key vote on naming a vice president, a battle eventually won by Ford.

Earlier, some supporters of both candidates booed and shouted at each other during a demonstration for Betty Ford's arrival into the arena, and again when Nancy Reagan entered.

A tussle began during the demonstration when a crowd of mostly Illinois and Ohio alternates began surging and jostling from the hall's permanent seats one level above to the wooden stairways leading to the floor below. Guards had to lock arms to push them back.

Tempers also flared at various spots on the floor when one side would rip down the other's posters or banners.

By NEA/London Economist News Service WASHINGTON — (LENS) — Jimmy Carter, in accepting the Democratic presidential nomination, said of the existing federal income tax system, "It's a disgrace to the human race."

Radical politics of convention boos

The tests of strength between supporters of President Ford and Ronald Reagan last night could be expected to be lively and hard fought.

The crucial vote on Reagan's suggestion that presidential candidates reveal their vice presidential choices before the nomination was the kind of issue sure to spark enthusiastic give and take on the energized convention floor in Kansas City.

Enthusiasm is one thing. Boos and taunts are another. Again and again speakers were drowned out and prevented from speaking by the boos and shouts of their ideological opponents.

The turmoil became particularly disruptive during the speeches on the vice presidential proposal.

It is impossible to judge with any certainty, but it appeared from televised coverage that most of the disorderly conduct came from Reagan supporters who were attempting to shut off pro-Ford speakers.

Frankly, we felt the Reagan position on naming vice presidential preferences before presidential balloting made sense. The question asked again and again by Reagan supporters, "Why not tell us who President Ford wants as his vice president before we nominate him on Wednesday?" was never satisfactorily answered by the Ford supporters.

But after watching speaker after speaker endure the taunts of the Reagan supporters, enthusiasm for the Reagan position began to decline.

The vote on vice presidential selection surely was a test vote of Ford-Reagan strength, but it also may have been something of a test vote on taste. Surely some delegates must have shifted their votes to record their distaste for the tactics of disruption.

Those tactics are not much appreciated by most Americans. They were not appreciated when losing presidential candidate Rockefeller was booted in 1964. They were not appreciated when even corrupt Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago was booted in Chicago in 1968.

And they certainly are not appreciated today. Most Americans expect a candidate and his supporters to stick by their issues, but also to show traits of character such as tolerance, restraint and dignity.

Many Americans become wary when hot debate shades over into overzealous disruption, the latter-day strong arm tactics of preventing an opponent from even having his say.

We and other Idahoans expect the Idaho delegates to refrain from the tactics of disruption while at Kansas City. The comparatively sober people of our communities do not much like the radical politics of boos.

TAX REFORM

is easier talked about on the campaign trail than maneuvered through a Congress where the pressures of special interests, legitimate or otherwise, on members are usually greater than the public interest. Which in large part explains why the tax reform bill now in the congressional works has taken on the dimensions of an elephant and the strength of a mouse. A LENS report from Washington.

promises of tax reform which never came true, but now "We are going to make it happen and you can depend upon it."

The advocates of tax reform needed that reassurance. Years of effort by them, months of struggle in the House of Representatives last year and more months of struggle in the Senate this year, have produced little better than nothing.

A tax-reform bill with the dimensions of an elephant and the strength of a mouse is about to emerge from the Senate and disappear for a time into a conference of the two chambers. The experience seems to show that, as the committees of Congress work, pressure to close a tax loophole is regularly less effective than pressure to open one or keep it open.

As Congressman Joseph Karth of Minnesota has often pointed out, the intent of his own narrow tax privileges allowed to the exporting firm known as DISCS (Domestic International sales corporations) failed last December.

Under Long's guidance as chairman, the tax reform bill is giving a soothing talk to a gathering of important businessmen in New York. What he had to say sounded different.

Here's how it looks to a 'Republican fat cat'

By BOB GREENE Chicago Sun-Times KANSAS CITY—When you hear the term "Republican fat cat," your mind's eye immediately envisions a sleek, well-fed man in a double-breasted suit who smokes a big cigar, wears a pencil thin mustache, and has a money-mad look that indicates he just might be annoyed at being a few minutes late for an appointment to foreclose the mortgage on an alling widow's bungalow.

"If you're going to change the world, you've got to communicate. I do it several ways. I do it through my books. I do it through the schools. I do it through the prisons. I do it through political contributions. Right now, I'm looking into the field of television and videotape. Why, over the course of one weekend, I could theoretically reach the entire world."

Message? Stone said Sunday, leaning forward with evangelical fervor in his eyes. "The brain, the nervous system—those are the tools we will use."

When a visitor expressed less than absolute comprehension of Stone's plan, Stone raised his voice and said, "Do you understand? What is it that every man and woman on this Earth have in common? A brain and a nervous system!"

And the question that raises is: If Stone can no longer cough up the cash, will politicians continue to honor him with their attention and their time?

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Wednesday, Aug. 18, the 231st day of 1978 with 132 to follow. The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars, and Mercury.

By PATICK A. MALONE KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Consider the predicament of a celebrity reporter like Walter Cronkite at the Republican convention.

Chancellor, Cronkite and Harry Reasoner of ABC did little else but what was expected of them and poked up everybody — from the stockyards, where Reagan perched on a fence for one on-camera report; to the downtown streets, where Cronkite conducted interviews; to the platform bleachers, where Chancellor kept watch in the mornings.

Chancellor said "not yet" and rapped his wooden desk top twice at the question of whether he has ever found himself with absolutely nothing to say.

Cronkite, 59, (whose office door is labeled "Honcho, 59") said he would give up his job offer, although he has been interviewed by a number of news organizations.

Fame hampers anchor men at work

But having one of the best-known faces at the convention does have its advantages, as John Chancellor explained.

Chancellor, boyish but graying at 39, is covering his 12th national political convention. And even though his presence in a room can upstage just about any politician, he still likes to poke around during the day — at news and hearing rooms, picking up tidbits of color and gossip.

Chancellor said "not yet" and rapped his wooden desk top twice at the question of whether he has ever found himself with absolutely nothing to say.

Chancellor said he had trouble with blank moments occasionally.

Philippine quake deaths hit 3,000; more missing

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — The death toll from Tuesday's earthquake on the island of Mindanao soared above 3,000 today, with thousands more reported missing.

There was no word on the fate of 400 "missionaries" including at least 14 missionaries working in the southern Philippines.

The National Disaster Coordinating Center in Manila listed 3,105 persons dead, 2,282 missing, 688 injured and 28,716 homeless in the devastated Mindanao-Sulu region, 500 miles south of Manila. Officials said the death toll was expected to go higher.

There was no report on the fate of American Roman Catholic missionaries who were working at schools and churches on Mindanao, the second largest island in the Philippines.

Eight American members of the Order of Oblates of Mary Immaculate were working in Cotabato City at the time of the quake and three members of the Marist Order were living in Marbel, according to the Rev. Sergio Morales at the Oblates' headquarters in Hong Kong.

Four more members of the Order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate were reportedly working on the island of Jolo, southwest of Mindanao.

President Ferdinand Marcos, who reportedly planned to fly over the area to assess the damage, has placed the region under a state of calamity and ordered government agencies, including military units, mobilized for emergency work.

Officials said food, medicine, clothing and rescue equipment, including jackhammers and axes, torches, were sent from Manila to the disaster zone.

The quake rocked the southern Philippines shortly after midnight Tuesday, spawning 10-foot tidal waves that lashed the coastal towns and accounted for most of the deaths, according to rescue workers.

The National Earthquake Center at Golden, Colo., said the quake registered 8.0 on the open-ended Richter scale. Last month's earthquake in China — the strongest recorded in the world in 12 years — measured 8.2. Dr. Mariano Beltran, director of the Red Cross Disaster Preparedness Services, called it "the worst earthquake since time immemorial" in the Philippines.

The death toll already has surpassed the 1,386 deaths caused by the eruption of Taal Volcano, 40 miles south of Manila, in 1911.

The three areas hardest hit by the disaster were the provinces of Maguindanao, Zamboanga del Sur and Cotabato City where more than 1,800 fatalities were reported.

Manila's geophysical observatory said 15 aftershocks were recorded following the main tremor, including one that registered 6.9 on the Richter scale, according to the Colorado earthquake center.

Canals blocked

VENICE, Italy (UPI) — More than 40 gondoliers blocked traffic on the Grand Canal for half an hour Tuesday to protest the problem of waves generated by motorboats on the Venice's main waterway.

The gondoliers said the waves damage the foundations of ancient buildings on the canal and make travel difficult for the narrow gondolas.

US files protests

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The United States, from seaman to State Department officials, is unhappy about the Soviet Union's alleged refusal to live up to a bilateral shipping agreement between the two countries.

To demonstrate their unhappiness, seamen in a dozen cities, supported by the AFL-CIO and the Committee of U.S. Flag Shipping Companies took to the streets Tuesday to inform the public about the Soviet Union's refusal to use American-flag ships for delivery of U.S. grain.

The protesting seamen leafleted the public for two hours in cities from Galveston, Tex., to Chicago and from Baltimore to San Francisco.

The State Department has sent a formal protest to the Soviets.

The agreement says one-third of the cargoes involved in the 1972 Trade Agreement between the Soviet Union and the United States would be carried in American ships.

Stand cited

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafi told the Fifth Summit Conference of Nonaligned Nations today that Libya will continue to back "just causes" despite charges that it supports terrorism. "If terrorism is the struggle of the people of Zimbabwe (Rhodesia), then we support terrorism," the Libyan president shouted. "Zionists are terrorists. It is they who attack schools in the Middle East."

Deceptive calm settling over Guadeloupe volcano

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI) — French scientists say a deceptive calm has settled over cloud-curtained La Soufriere, but enough pressure is building up inside the volcano to tear off its top in a giant explosion of cinders and gas.

Volcano expert Michel Feuillard said Tuesday. La Soufriere had "10 times as much energy as it had in 1962."

He said the pressure was multiplying daily. Feuillard said seismographs recorded more than 1,000 separate earth tremors after the Monday night explosion that sent boulders and mud raining down the sides of the 4,900-foot mountain in a blast that could be felt in Pointe-A-Pitre, 12 miles away.

But he described the volcano as "quite stable" Tuesday with almost no tremors. Guadeloupe Prefect Jean-Claude Arouousseau, the island's top administrative official, said authorities would take advantage of the calm to stage a "commando-style" operation to remove livestock left behind when authorities evacuated more than 70,000 persons from the volcano's "death zone."

Arouousseau said the animals, particularly some 4,000 penned up cattle, would soon begin dying unless they were rescued.

Scientist Pierre Brousse, whose warning of a cataclysmic eruption "within 12 hours" sparked the evacuation of the volcano region Sunday, said he thought the pressure and the pattern of the earth tremors indicated La Soufriere would eventually blow its top in a giant explosion of gas and cinders.

"Before it blows, there is a reddish glow above the crater and a projection of magma (molten rock) into the atmosphere in a vertical column."

"It is expected we will have a few hours before the blast after that starts."

Brousse said he did not expect the explosion to destroy Guadeloupe because the mountain is too high. Instead, he said, the blast will probably tear off the top of La Soufriere and leave most of the island intact.

La Soufriere, on the western half of this butterfly-shaped pair of French islands, has been shrouded in mist and clouds for days, preventing scientists in helicopters from observing the effects of Monday's explosion.

B. U. I. UEL Correspondent James Cuchiaro, who climbed 2,000 feet up the mountain Tuesday, found hundreds of boulders from the explosion that destroyed long stretches of the scenic road winding up the side of the volcano.

He reported large new streams filled with rainwater and a mixture of volcanic ash along with poisonous sulphur dioxide gas that reached down 3,000 feet below the summit.

Big oil firms lead pack

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three of the world's biggest oil companies led the pack Tuesday in buying up plots of land at the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean. Experts say the land may contain more than $30 billion worth of oil and natural gas.

But two New York counties bordering on the Atlantic were unhappy because of what they said was a threat to the environment, and a New Jersey conservation official said his state may bring antitrust charges that could void the sale.

It was an unprecedented sale of federally owned Atlantic bottomland for energy exploration.

Enron, Chevron and Shell topped the list on the more than $1-billion-worth of winning bids submitted to the federal government. They captured the lion's share of rights to drill for oil 50 miles off the coast of New Jersey and 70 miles from New York. The possible returns were handsome. The area in the continental shelf — 876,750 acres — is said to contain 400 million to 1.4 billion barrels of oil, worth from $5 billion to $17 billion, and 2.6 trillion to 9.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas worth $4 billion to $14 billion.

The Interior Department's auction of 101 tracts in the ocean bottom of Delaware Canyon was delayed by eight hours Tuesday while New York's Suffolk and Nassau counties made an emergency appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court to try to stop the sale.

Their legal challenge was in vain. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, upholding a lower court decision, said oil companies could sink drilling rigs into the ocean floor without immediate detrimental impact on the environment of nearby shore communities.

N. Koreans kill 2 Yanks

The two U.S. army officers died from massive head injuries and stab wounds inflicted by an estimated 30 North Korean guards who attacked a small United Nations Command work party with axes, metal pipes and hand-axes, the UNC said.

The UNC said the incident occurred about 10:45 a.m. today (7:45 p.m. Tuesday MDT) in the Jassauli in the North Koreans damaged three American vehicles, according to the officials.

The identities of the two victims were not immediately disclosed, pending notification of next of kin.

The two slain Americans were serving with UNC. The extent of the injuries to the four other American soldiers and five South Koreans was not immediately disclosed.

They were the first American casualties along the Korean border in six years. Since early 1971 South Korean forces have been manning the entire 151-mile South-North border, and most of the 42,000 U.S. troops in Korea, except the Panmunjom Security Force, stay well south of the truce front.

addition. The two American officers and a South Korean officer were escorting a work force to a routine tree-trimming job in the Panmunjom area and they had some discussions with North Koreans who at first did not raise any objections, UNC said.

After a while, the North Koreans suddenly changed signals and demanded the work be stopped. A North Korean vehicle brought additional guards and a North Korean officer was heard ordering them to "kill" the UNC personnel, UNC officials said.

In the assault the North Koreans damaged three American vehicles, according to the officials.

A U.S. Army officer was seriously injured last year in a similar attack. Maj. William D. Henderson, then acting commander of the Panmunjom Security Force, was knocked down during an argument with a dozen North Korean guards and newsmen while a meeting of the Armistice Commission was underway.

The North Koreans trampled on Henderson as he lay unconscious. Henderson suffered a fractured tibia and had to be evacuated to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for treatment. UNC officials said the work site was about 35 to 40 yards from a UNC checkpoint located south of the "bridge of no return," north of which is North-Korean territory.

Silent patient

A TWO-year-old, badly wounded Palestinian girl is in Beirut's makeshift International Red Cross field hospital. No one knows her name or whether her parents are dead or alive. She has not spoken a word since she was evacuated from the fallen refugee camp of Tal Zaatar last week. (UPI)

'She doesn't even cry'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — On a cranking metal framebed in a corner of a dank, dimly lit basement that serves as the makeshift field hospital of the International Red Cross lies a commonplace tragedy of the Lebanese civil war. She is about 2 years old. She has no name, no identity, and apparently no parents or other living relatives. Two visitors have come to see her since she was evacuated from the Palestinian camp of Tal Zaatar nearly two weeks ago and she hasn't spoken a word to anyone since. The Red Cross doesn't know what to do with her. "What can we do? We don't even know her name," said one Red Cross doctor. Even so, the little girl's plight is unusual.

Not is it particularly tragic when measured against the predicament of thousands like her left orphaned, homeless and maimed by Lebanon's 16-month civil war. She was one of about 7,000 persons trapped under the constant artillery fire of Christian gunners besieging Tal Zaatar. Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat said Tuesday night about 2,500 persons inside the camp in suburban Beirut were killed during the 56-day siege. Arafat told reporters he considered Tal Zaatar's fall a "moral victory" rather than a military defeat. "Militarily, I could not have asked my boys for more than 55 days of battle at a time when, for them, a drop of water was worth more than a cup of blood," he said. The fall of Tal Zaatar last Thursday was a major turning point in the war. A right-wing radio broadcast today reported fresh advances in the mountain region northeast of Beirut and claimed that Christian forces had encircled the village of Metel. Early leftist broadcasts spoke only of clashes along the "traditional fronts in Beirut and the suburbs." Political developments appeared stalled. Leftists rejected militant Christian President Sleiman Franjeh's weekend offer of truce talks, saying Tal Zaatar's fall "closed the door" to any peace settlements.

In the Red Cross hospital, the little girl is prevented from moving by her bandaged right leg, which is stiffly suspended by a crude rope sling strung from the ceiling. Instead she moves her eyes — big brown ones that search through the groups of visitors coming to see other patients and stare intently at the doctors vainly trying to get a word out of her. "What scares me," said a doctor, "is that she doesn't even cry." For the time being, she will remain in the hospital. What will happen if no one comes to claim her is one of the minor unanswered questions of Lebanon's still unresolved civil war.

Music appointment

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Thomas Schippers, music director of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed music director of the world's oldest musical conservatory — the Santa Cecilia Academy Orchestra in Rome. Schippers' appointment is for the 1977-78 season and is to be concurrent with his Cincinnati duties. Schippers will be the first American to hold the post. The academy traces its origins back to 1566 when it was approved by Pope Gregory XIII. Its registers have included such famous musical names as Palestrina, Monteverdi, Wagner, Ravel, Debussy, Mahler, and Verdi.

Famous grads

ST ANDREW'S, Scotland (UPI) — U.S. ambassador Anne Armstrong is a graduate of the President Eisenhower school at St. Andrew's University, Tyneside. She presented the painting by American artist Don Peasant at a Bicentennial dinner marking the fact that three university graduates — Benjamin Franklin, James Wilson and John Witherspoon — signed the Declaration of Independence.

Loretta sues

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music star Loretta Lynn is suing two companies and a pair of magazines for using her picture to promote, advertise and sell products. The suit names Conneticut's Charlton Publications, Inc., publishers of the magazine "Country Song Roundup," and "Country Cousins T-Shirts of Sherman Oaks, Calif. The other party of defendants are KBO Publishers, Inc. of New York, which publishes Country Music Magazine, and Thurston Moore Country of New York.

Vet raps Carter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thomas C. Walker, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, says Jimmy Carter's failure to appear at the group's convention is further proof of the candidate's "realistic disregard" of veterans' interests. Walker told Carter the VFW "is aware of your controversial stand on pardoning those who ran from their obligations during the Vietnam war." He also said "you have issued no public utterance on veterans programs" even after being asked to address the convention. Former Texas Gov. John Connally will address the convention today.

Leniency refused

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge has refused to reduce the bank fraud jail sentence of William H. Rentschler, the 1968 Illinois campaign manager for President Nixon. Rentschler, 50, was indicted in 1973 for fraud in taking $1.4 million from 20 financial institutions. He pleaded guilty to one of the 23 counts at his trial in April. He was sentenced earlier to 90 days in a work-release program for fraud in time billing scheme in Malaysia.

Fund mix-up brings audit

BOISE (UPI) — Albertson's President Warren McCain said Tuesday $1,600 would not be an off base estimate of the money missing after an apparent embezzlement at Mountain States Wholesale Co. was reported to the Boise City Police. McCain said, "I certainly know there's a mix-up in the money at Mountain States and company auditors are trying to find out what's behind it. The wholesale firm is a subsidiary of Albertson's." McCain verified the money is missing from the Mountain States warehouse safe where James T. Cole and Gary L. Anchustegal, who are involved in a possible kidnap-extortion case, worked. He said, "We don't even know the money has been embezzled — it could be a misapplication of funds." "That's why we're running the audit," McCain said. He said Albertson's conducts audits on its subsidiary "as we feel it is necessary." McCain said "one of our people recommended — although he declined to name the employee. Boise Police Sgt. Frank Richardson said he received a call about 10 a.m. Tuesday from Chuck Titus, Albertson's director of corporate security, reporting an "embezzlement — at least that's what he indicated to me." Richardson said the amount of money missing was "unspecified" by Titus but McCain, when asked if $1,600 was an off base estimate said, "no." "Bill Donovan, Ada County prosecuting attorney in charge of the major crimes division, said Tuesday it was "very specialize" that the apparent embezzlement reported at the warehouse is connected with the possible kidnaping extortion incident. Donovan said no charges have been drawn or warrants for arrest issued "and I don't foresee any at this time." "The investigation is ongoing and the police are just trying to gather all the facts," Donovan said. He said a meeting Tuesday morning between the city police and the prosecutor's office was held "to begin to coordinate efforts" between the two offices and to discuss the "progress of the investigation." Earlier Tuesday Titus denied making "any report to the police about any embezzlement." But Richardson said, "I know Chuck Titus. I know he made the call." Boise police are investigating the kidnaping and extortion aspects of the incident. A representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Butte, Mont., said the FBI is cooperating with Boise police on extortion aspects of the case because Mountain States Wholesale Co. is involved in interstate commerce. Cole allegedly was kidnaped last Thursday and Anchustegal said he received an anonymous phone call demanding $200,000 for Cole's safety. The call was received at an unlisted telephone at Mountain States shortly after Cole disappeared while walking back to the warehouse after making a delivery to a produce house about four blocks away.

Cole was released from a Nampa apartment when his abductors were frightened away by a police investigation of another complaint in the building. "Bill Taylor, manager of Gem State Honda in Boise, identified Anchustegal as the person who bought a motorcycle that was later found by the police outside the apartment building where Cole was held.

The motorcycle was sold to Anchustegal the day before Cole was found missing. Taylor said he notarized the signature of Gary L. Anchustegal on the application for a certificate of title on the motorcycle purchase. The address on the application was the same apartment number, and building in Nampa where Cole was held.

'Sitter' charged with teen vice

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A 23-year-old babysitter arrested for allegedly turning a teen-age girl into a prostitute from parents led the pair to motel bars where the boy dressed as a woman, their mother said today. The mother said her son, 15, and daughter, 14, were willing participants. Babysitter Linda Kovzell of Seymour was arrested Monday and charged with five counts of risk of injury to a minor and one count of sexual assault. She was held on $15,000 bail. The mother, a 39-year-old divorcee who requested anonymity, said other adults helped lead her children astray. She told UPI her children allegedly were taken to motels and served liquor while taking part in and observing group sex. She said some participants were married men in their 30s. "The children were paid an amount of money for their alleged sexual favors, the mother said. Miss Kovzell's father, Stephen Kovzell, said, "My daughter says some of the charges are not true about sexual intercourse. The kids are minors and their mother put a lot of words in their mouth." "It's really a nightmare, I'll tell you. I look at those kids and all I can think of is just what are they thinking," the mother said. The boy wore a wig and dressed and used the alias "Debbie LaRoco," while he accompanied Miss Kovzell to bars with his sister, who used the alias "Marcie Mendik," the mother said.

Deputies probe puzzling imprint

LANCASTER, Ohio (UPI) — Fairfield County sheriff's deputies are investigating a puzzling imprint found in a corn field which residents claim was made by a UFO. Deputy Sheriff Steve Greiner said Tuesday officers found the imprints of three disks pressed about two inches into the soil of a garden owned by Charles Altex. The disk shaped imprints form a perfectly symmetrical triangle, and Greiner said about 27 square feet of corn inside the triangular disk shapes has been mashed down. According to deputies, reports of unidentified flying objects in the Fairfield County area began coming in last week. Some residents of the area claimed to have seen numerous strange flying objects above their homes in the past few years. "We're going on the assumption it was a UFO," Greiner said.

Rollover claims one

SIDNEY, Neb. (UPI) — Hazel Garn, the wife of Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, was killed in a one-car rollover near this western Nebraska town, Tuesday. Her three children were not seriously hurt. Nebraska Highway Patrol Trooper Thomas Parker said the Garn station wagon, with the children asleep in the back, went off a 140-foot, 12-mile east of Sidney about 12:50 a.m. Witnesses said the east-bound car traveled about 300 feet through the treewdy median, came back on the road, went another 200 feet and then flipped over twice, landing in the westbound passing lane. Mrs. Garn was thrown out of the car and was pronounced dead of head injuries at the scene. The children, Susan, 16, Ellen, 13, and Jeff, 10, were treated and released from Memorial Hospital in Sidney, and were staying with a local doctor until relatives arrived to pick them up from Denver. A fourth child, Jacol, was not with the family. Sen. Garn, Utah's junior senator, was flying to his children.

Client described as 'bedbug crazy'

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — William A.H. Williams was described by his attorney as "crazy as a bed bug" in an opening statement today at Williams' second trial on charges stemming from the 1974 abduction of newspaper editor Reg Murphy.

A jury of six women and six men with two male alternates was seated Monday to hear the trial.

Williams is charged with extorting money from a company involved in interstate commerce, using the mails to extort and using a firearm in the commission of a crime. He was convicted of the charges in August 1974 but an appellate court overturned the conviction.

Defense counsel Bruce Kirwan said he would show that Williams lacked the mental capability to commit the crimes with which he was charged. "He is crazy as a bed bug," Kirwan told jurors.

Prosecutor Steven Ludwick said that Williams had "calculated a very careful plan" to extort $700,000 from Cox Enterprises Inc., publisher of the Atlanta Constitution. Murphy was editor of the newspaper at the time of his abduction in February, 1974.

He was released unharmed two days later after Cox Enterprises Inc., owners of the Constitution, paid a $700,000 ransom.

U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley denied Kirwan's motion for a mistrial based on a defense objection to a remark made by Ludwick. The prosecutor told jurors. "The charge in this case is not kidnapping as such."

Kirwan said the mention of kidnapping would "inflame this jury and I would ask the court for a mistrial." Although the judge denied the motion, he cautioned jurors that Williams was not on trial for kidnapping.

James McIntyre of Atlanta testified that in early 1974 Williams had told him of financial problems. Mrs. Mary B. Hinman of Lilburn, Ga., an Atlanta suburb where Williams lived, said he told her on Christmas Eve, 1973, that his wife had just inherited $500,000 from a distant relative.

The judge told the jurors they would not be sequestered but instructed them not to read, watch or listen to news accounts of the trial.

O'Kelley also denied a defense motion Monday to reconsider the change of venue that moved the trial from Atlanta to Key West.

Australia budget 'bitter medicine'

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) — The Australian government tonight introduced a tough budget designed to administer some bitter economic medicine to a country still suffering from a bad bout of inflation.

Treasurer Phillip Lynch, presenting his first budget since his government was elected last Dec. 13, bluntly told the House of Representatives that the government's aim is to bring the inflation rate, currently running at about 13 per cent, down to a single digit level in one year.

However, Lynch asked for an increase in spending on defense, particularly on American-built ships and aircraft.

Lynch said defense spending will reach $2.83 billion for the 1976-77 financial year — an increase of 17.6 per cent over the last financial year.

The details of the equipment program, which the government is now completing, will be revealed in about one month in a special white paper. They will include, commentators say, more U.S.-built patrol frigates and Lockheed Orion P-3C maritime reconnaissance aircraft.

Pointing to even bigger programs getting under way, Lynch said the government is determined to restore and maintain an adequate Australian defense capability. "This will require increases in defense expenditure over the years ahead."

Overall, the budget represents a reaction against the heavy social service expenditure of the previous Labor government, which sent the overall deficit rocketing up to $4.6 billion last year.

Spending cuts planned and planned will trim some $1.3 billion off this figure, even though no significant increase in direct or indirect taxes were announced.

In addition, Lynch said only a modest rise in money supply of 12 per cent is planned, as against last year's damped down 14 per cent.

The result will be that unemployment, which is historically the highest for Australia at around 5.5 per cent, will show little improvement in the coming year.

Prevents mishaps

THIS photo illustrates the Idaho Transportation Department's use of a new barrier called the Port-o-Rail. Several lives had been lost on this curve but since the installation of the barrier there have been no reported accidents, say department spokesmen.

Martha Circle will meet at 9 a.m. Thursday at the church and then will ride to the Ramsey cabin on Smiley Creek where Mrs. Lucy Ramsey will be hostess for the special meeting. Rev. Otis Harden will present the lesson.

Wisconsin teen-ager gets brain pacemaker

STAR PRAIRIE, Wis. (UPI) — A 13-year-old Wisconsin boy is going to have a pacemaker attached to his brain at a New York hospital in an effort to regulate uncontrollable seizures he has suffered for 10 years.

Jimmy Engh, son of Robin and Gerry Engh, has been through a long fight to be normal, visiting a series of specialists around the country.

The latest specialist is Dr. Irving Cooper, director of neurologic surgery at New York's St. Barnabas Hospital. He has devised a cerebellar electrical stimulator, more commonly known as a brain pacemaker.

Since stories about the boy appeared in newspapers earlier this month, the family has received $22,000 in contributions to pay for the pacemaker.

Mrs. Engh said, "What do you say? You have hope but you have little money. And then people help, and you have both hope... and you no longer have the awful worry that you cannot afford that hope."

In the operation scheduled for Monday two tiny electrodes will be installed at the base of Jimmy's skull.

Concrete barriers prevent accidents

BOISE — Idaho has actively accepted the use of concrete barriers for special safety applications.

In 1971-72, the northern part of the state developed a design in ten-foot sections which they called Port-o-Rail.

Port-o-Rail has been used as a median barrier and in lieu of guardrails on Interstate 90, as a guard rail on special detour roads, as barriers through transition areas, and all types of quick portable installations for traffic control.

It is felt that the concrete barrier offers some distinct advantages over the metal beam rail, department officials say.

The Idaho Division of Highways uses a white curing compound or temporary reflective striping tape to add to this type of delineation.

Night driving characteristics of either the white rail or the striped rail are impressive to view.

In the northern part of the state, Port-o-Rail has been produced at prices cheaper than metal beam rail installations. In the southern part of Idaho, use of the rail has not been as extensive. However, its characteristics are known and for special safety applications it is used. Lack of suppliers in the southern part of the state is basically the reason for its non-use.

Port-o-Rail has been used as a rock retaining wall on the outer shoulder in a cut section that is subject to slope ravel. The barrier prevents falling rocks from rolling onto the roadway and the portable characteristics allow the area behind the rail to be readily cleaned by maintenance personnel after a report.

Socialist Workers investigation denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has denied reports that the bureau will continue its investigation of the Socialist Workers Party under guidelines applying to groups with foreign connections.

Monday's New York Times quoted Justice Department sources as saying the party would continue to be treated by the FBI as a counterintelligence case rather than as a domestic security case.

"To reiterate, as I mentioned in my news conference (Aug. 11), I intend to transfer all domestic intelligence investigations into the general investigative division, where they will be managed like all other criminal cases in that division," Kelley said in a statement issued Monday afternoon shortly before the undersecretary in Kansas City to correct a back problem. "This will include our investigations of both the Communist Party U.S.A. and the Socialist Workers Party and all other domestic security investigations," he said.

Howe case studied

SMIT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Judge Bryant Croft says publicly surrounding the arrest of Rep. Allan Howe on a misdemeanor charge of sodomy sex has surpassed media coverage of Utah's most famous recent murder case.

But Croft said Monday he would have to study stacks of stories, films and tapes subpoenaed from Utah news agencies before ruling on a defense motion to dismiss the charge against Howe because of pretrial publicity. He took the motion under advisement.

"Publicity in the Lance and Kelbach murder case did not match what occurred in this case," the Third District Court judge said.

Myron Lance and Walter Kelbach were convicted of murder following a killing spree in 1966 in which six persons died.

Croft said that it still might be possible to find an "untainted" jury for the first-term Democrat if the venire were carefully selected. He noted that of the 90 potential jurors called for the Lance and Kelbach trial, six had never heard of the pair despite weeks of intense radio, television and newspaper coverage.

"Not as many people are reached by the news as one would think," said the judge.

Pantry classes listed for TF fair

PILER — Best of Class will be named from blue ribbon winners for breads, cakes and cookies in the kitchen and pantry department of the Twin Falls County Fair.

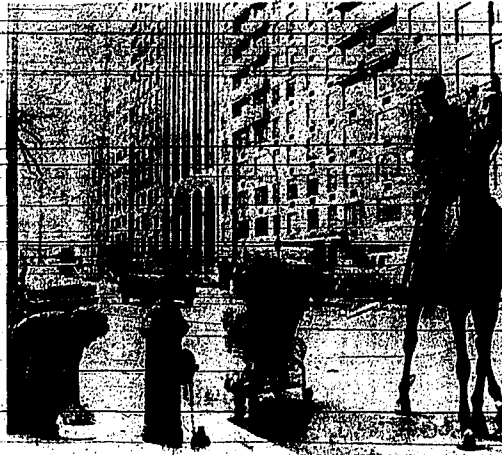

The bread and rolls division lists 19 classes for which premiums will be paid in three places, according to Mrs. Clinton Dougherty, superintendent. Seed cakes have 20 divisions and cookies 15.

There is also a large candy class and first place winners in each of them will receive ten pounds of sugar from the Amalgamated Sugar Company, and second place winners, five pounds; in addition to the cash premiums and ribbons.

Exhibitors of canned products are advised to use pint jars which make the most attractive displays. Jars must have rings and lids on them. Prizes for canned foods are available for fruits, vegetables, meats, canned specialties, specialties which include dried and smoked fruits and vegetables, jellies, jams, preserves, marmalades, conserves, pickles, relishes and sauces.

No mixes are to be used in the pie division, and no cream pies will be accepted.

The department has a class for men only in which men cooks can compete for breads, cakes, candy, cookies and pies.

Son's return sought

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — A physician and his wife claim their 22 year old son is being held against his will by a Catholic Monastery in Oklahoma that practices brainwashing. And they want him deprogrammed and returned.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor contend their son, Walter Robert Taylor, who now goes by the name of Father Philaret Taylor, is being held by members of the Church of the Holy Protection of the Blessed Virgin Mary of Oklahoma City. The son claims it's a legitimate religious order; that he's an adult and should be allowed to do as he wishes; without any more interference from his parents.

His parents have doubts about the authenticity of the monastery, claiming it was a Hindu order three years ago. They say they fear for their son's health and safety and claim he has been brainwashed.

"It's been eating us up inside," said Mrs. Taylor.

"My parents made it look like I'm trapped here against my will but the truth is I don't want anything to do with them anymore," said Father Taylor.

The matter came to a head last Friday when an Oklahoma City district court dismissed a July 15 court order granting the parents temporary custody of their son.

Father Taylor said the case was dismissed because his parents could not prove he was mentally incompetent. The issue of guardianship is still up in the air and he fears he will be "kidnaped again."

While in the temporary custody of his parents, Father Taylor was put through a professional "deprogramming" similar to that written about in Ted Patrick's book "Let Our Children Go," which deals with children being swept up by religious cults.

TF hospital unit remains closed

TWIN FALLS — The short-term care unit at Magie Valley Memorial Hospital, will remain closed until patient demand forces its reopening.

The wing was closed by the hospital board as an emergency measure early in July to ease a nursing staff shortage at the hospital complicated by summer vacation schedules.

"Although most summer vacations for nurses will have been completed by the end of the month, the hospital intends to keep the wing closed until it has to reopen it."

The wing was originally opened last year without increasing the hospital nursing staff, and that opening was blamed in part for the unrest among overworked nurses which surfaced in June.

Although the hospital has since increased nurses' wages, it is still having trouble recruiting registered nurses and therefore won't reopen the closed wing until necessary.

According to Director of Nursing Nancy Churchman, the hospital has been running just below full capacity for the last two years without having to cancel surgeries.

When the number of surgeries increases, the short-term care unit will be reopened, she said; but not until then.

"We will reopen Second West (the unit) when we have to," she concluded.

According to registered nurse Sue Magel, chairman of the new Nursing Service Advisory Committee at the hospital, the closure of the unit has eased staff pressure and has helped nursing morale.

Minico school board tables re-roof bid

RUPERT — The Minidoka County School Board Monday tabled a re-roofing bid, voted to advertise for sale of buses again and gave its nod to checking cost of remodeling a workshop.

The remodeling job is at the Minico High School industrial arts room.

Superintendent of Schools Darrell Hatfield said he wanted to install a wall in the old workshop and cut another door to facilitate traffic of the sandblasting in the lunch program.

He also asked permission to install sinks, possibly a kiln and some other features to accommodate the crafts program in the workshop.

Re-roofing of the Acequia Elementary School was tabled because the single legal bid offered by Intermountain Plastics of Boise was $8,752, about $2,000 over the estimate.

Architect James Smallwood, who drew up the specifications, was instructed to find out why the bid was so far over estimate.

Preventive Maintenance of Yakima, Wash., also submitted a bid, but they puzzled the board. The bid was merely a copy of a bid submitted on a Washington school.

The board decided to re-advertise the sale of four regular school buses, possibly adding one small bus. Early bids failed to elicit response.

The bids are to be opened at 8 p.m. Sept. 20.

Burley City Council sets zoning hearing

BURLEY — Zoning of a single block along South Overland Avenue will go to public hearing before the Burley City Council on Sept. 9.

The council Monday set the hearing on a proposed zoning change from residential to commercial. It encompasses the land between 20th and 21st streets from Overland Avenue west to the alley.

The Burley Planning and Zoning Commission last week recommended the zoning change from R-2 to C-1 after a public hearing that drew opposition from one couple living in the adjacent block.

The zoning switch was requested by Alvin and Vadna Holmbeck. They have indicated a desire to sell their property for commercial use.

Mr. and Mrs. Wes Parr argued that commercial zoning could raise tax assessments, make home sales more difficult and residential living less enjoyable.

Salt Lake City attorney Keith Sohin, the Holmbecks' son-in-law, represented them at the hearing. He argued that only two people in the entire block refuse to sign a petition for the change.

He contended the block would be ideal for commercial enterprises and cited the difficulty of pulling from residential driveways onto a busy street, such as Overland.

School lunch cook's request considered

RUPERT — School lunch cooks paychecks may go back to 12 a year, instead of the 10 checks they received this past year.

The Minidoka County School Board took under advisement here, that the cooks' pay be pro-rated over 12 months.

The board, with two members' insistence, did not want to act on the year-old 10-month payment policy based on time cards.

The cooks prefer to have their pay spread out and also object that they lose two months toward their retirement.

Superintendent of Schools Darrell Hatfield pointed out that the law now exempts political subdivisions from the wage-and-hour regulations and could lead to improved administration without the time cards.

Idahoan cleared entries

One of the burglaries, Felt said, was carried out by agents searching the Arab Information Center in Dallas in the fall of 1972 for clues to the operation of Palestinian terrorists in the United States. The second, he said, was intended to uncover leads to the whereabouts of members of the Weather Underground, a guerrilla group that has taken credit for several bombings in this country.

A number of burglaries of friends and associates of the Weather fugitives were carried out by FBI agents in the New York City area in 1972 and 1973, and are now the focus of an investigation by the Justice Department's civil rights division.

J. Stanley Pottinger, who heads that division, was in New York Tuesday for the empanelling of a federal grand jury that will begin hearing evidence in the case next week.

Pottinger's office, which is trying to trace knowledge and approval of the illegal burglaries up through Gray's chain of command, is understood to be investigating, in addition to Felt's assertion, Gray's attendance at a second meeting at the bureau's Quantico, Va., training facility in the summer of 1972.

According to FBI sources present on that occasion, a number of bureau agents from around the country participated in a discussion of the hunt for the Weather fugitives that included mention of the use of burglaries as an investigative technique.

Gray and other top FBI executives, including Edward S. Miller, then the head of the FBI's intelligence division, attended the conference, and Justice lawyers have received some indications that they were present during the discussion.

Pottinger's investigation is known to be proceeding on the assumption that the break-ins, none of which were accompanied by search warrants, constitute a violation of the Federal civil rights statutes in cases where the targets had no foreign intelligence connections.

The burglary of the Arab Information Center, for example, is not understood to be a subject of the Justice Department's inquiry. The New York Times has reported that Gray himself disapproved that operation, and he reportedly has told friends that he believed it to be legal because a foreign espionage matter was involved.

"He may have really thought that he was limiting it (this approval) to foreign-type operations," Felt responded Tuesday, "but it's pretty obvious that he knew what he was talking about."

Although Felt, Tuesday, took responsibility for having authorized the burglary, he said in the interview that he believed he had later advised Gray of his action in that case and also in connection with his approval of the Weather fugitive burglary.

But he noted that Gray, who was interested in the FBI's Wallergrass investigation and, later, in his own abortive confirmation hearings, "didn't even know what was being said to him, he was so busy."

Gray, who left the bureau in April of 1973, has until now not commented publicly on his year-long tenure there. But he said Tuesday, through Stephen H. Sachs, his attorney, that he had never approved "surprilious entries in the bureau's investigations of Weathermen fugitives."

Petition withdrawn

BOISE (UPI)—International Paper Co. has withdrawn its petition to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to reconsider a commission order disallowing purchase of an oil exploration firm in Rangely, Colo. Company President R. D. Grimm said Tuesday the timing was wrong to bring up the Twin Arrow, Inc. acquisition issue again. "The most important thing to us right now is the rate increase," he said. "We thought we'd be in a better position if you reintroduced evidence of the potential earnings of that company at a later time."

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb:
I read a column of yours about hiatal hernia. It's my husband who has the hernia, and I have a very difficult time getting him to take better care of himself. Is it always necessary for an operation to be performed or will the hernia mend itself with proper diet and exercise?

of the stomach," many people complain about.
Surgery is very rarely indicated. In fact, repairing the hernia so the stomach cannot slide through the hole in the diaphragm may not correct the faulty closure mechanism and the leakage problem (called esophageal reflux) may continue.
The whole trick in managing the problem is to minimize the

Hernia problems

What I am interested in mostly is a diet to put my husband on. Being not so fussy about what he eats I thought perhaps I could improve the way he feels a little and maybe this would encourage him to get more exercise and perhaps rest better.

Could you give me an idea of what type of foods he should eat? Maybe you even have a pamphlet of some sort.
A lot of the time my husband is congested with what he says is sinus and constantly sniffing and coughing. Does this have anything to do with the hernia? Is there any type of medication that would break this up? Many times at night he wakes up coughing and almost choking.

We've joined a health club and I'm sure I could start a better diet for him. It would improve his outlook a lot. Please send me any information you have on the subject. I will be very grateful.

Dear Reader:
As you know a hiatal hernia is a hernia of part of the stomach through the diaphragm into the chest. This is a very common condition and some figures suggest that it occurs in about half of adults.

In many people the hernia causes no symptoms at all, but in others it affects the closure mechanism — between the esophagus (food tube) and the top of the stomach. This permits the contents of the stomach to leak backward into the lower esophagus and causes that "burning in the pit chances for the acid contents of the stomach to leak backward into the lower esophagus. For that reason you need to keep the bed elevated and you need to plan your meals so that you never lie down until at least a couple of hours after eating, to give the stomach contents a chance to empty. Of course you need to avoid things that increase the acid content of the stomach, such as coffee, tea, citrus and alcohol.

There is a lot you can do about the diet, more than I can discuss here, so I am sending you The Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux, for more complete information.

Others who want information on managing this problem can send a long stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The coughing problem may be related to his hiatal hernia. If it occurs after lying down. A reflux of stomach contents into the throat while sleeping could cause a choking episode or near strangulation. That is one reason for the elevated head of the bed. It helps to prevent overweight. Weight reduction will also help. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Thrill seekers come in all types

By ERMA BOMBECK

The world is full of thrill seekers. There are the people who endure the isolation and physical discomforts to climb mountains. There are the people who challenge the rapids in small rubber boats. There are those courageous men and women who jump over cars on bikes, and anyone in human rockets.

Me? I ride in taxicabs. I've been doing it for more than 30 years and have had more than my share of adventure. Do I have a death wish? Of course not. So, why do I do it? Because they're there. I rode my first cab in Chicago back in 1943. As a teenager, I had won a summer scholarship to Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern. I climbed into a cab at the depot and as it lurched away from the curb, the force threw my suitcase into my kidney, causing me great pain. During my entire trip, my feet never once hit the floor. I knew then I would never have to question or prove my courage again.

The odd thing about people who ride in cabs is they are never given the honor that other heroes are afforded. No one appreciates the fact that you are only mortal. You bleed. You perspire. You experience fear. You have a will to live. Looking back, I have had some memorable moments in taxicabs. There was the time a driver in Philadelphia was tailgating the car ahead of us at 55 mph while reading his resume to me hoping I could get him a job in advertising somewhere. I'm rather proud of that one because when the car in front of us slowed down and my glasses landed on the dashboard, not once did I try out.

There was a cab ride in Los Angeles I shared with a businessman whom I had never met before. We were helplessly tossed together so intimately in the back seat, we discussed our china pattern.

I have also endured the Grand Prix of taxi riding: a ride from the center of New York to Kennedy airport — in 20 minutes.

In Chicago recently, I climbed into a cab and immediately my throat closed up and I couldn't breathe for coughing. When I tapped on the glass, the driver informed me the battery was leaking acid.

Actually, it was a more humane way to travel in a cab... but I missed the adventure.

Favorite barmaid

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Customers in Ginger's Bar don't mind if barmaid Frances Smith doesn't wear hot pants — they still think she's great and refer to her as "the spirit of '76."

Frances happens to be 76 years old and has endeared herself to many in the suburban community of Spring Valley since she became a barmaid six years ago.

"The men try not to cuss in front of me," she explains, "and if they do they always apologize. I don't like dirty jokes so they don't tell them to me. They treat me like a lady, you know, and I try to act like one."

Frances came to the bar looking for a clean-up job, was hired, and spent only four days sweeping up before she started dispensing beer.

One customer acknowledged "we wouldn't buy any more beer even if there was a young, sexy girl behind the bar."

Frances wears her nice dresses to work. "I don't wear any uniform and certainly not one of those short uniforms that most barmoids wear. They would all leave if I came to work in a short skirt, I just don't have the legs I used to."

DEAR ABBY: So a teacher was upset because a student skipped school and her mother lied to protect her. Well, listen to this.

When my son was 16, he skipped school and I was called at work and asked if he was home sick. I said, "No, if he's not at school, he's playing hooky."

I was then informed that because he had skipped school three times before, he was kicked out of school for the remainder of the semester.

After trying for two and one half months to get him back in, I found out it was against the law to suspend a student for that long, but by then, he was so far behind, he couldn't catch up, so he lost a whole semester.

I always thought honesty was the best policy, but that's the thanks I got for being honest.

"If I had known then what I know now, I'd have lied to protect my son and punished him in my own way."

UPSET PARENT IN HELENA, MONTANA

Don't lie for child

DEAR UPSET: Although I think suspension is a most inappropriate punishment for skipping school, I can't condone lying to cover up a child's truancy.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the husband and wife who allowed their small son into the bedroom during their most intimate moments interested me. This is a far cry from the way I was raised.

I was taught that sex was invented by the devil and was dirty, disgusting and sinful.

Now, at middle age, after two marriages and two children, I still haven't been able to think of sex as anything else.

Perhaps if my parents had invited me into their bedroom, I would have been less frustrated, self-conscious and guilt-ridden where sex is concerned.

JUST JOHN

DEAR JOHN: Sex education was and is taught to include an honest explanation without live demonstrations.

DEAR ABBY: Why don't they proclaim a national Daughter-in-Law Day to honor all those daughters-in-law who do things for their mothers-in-law because their own daughters are too busy to bother with them?

I have just had another one of those Mother's Days, and I don't think I could face another one. I invited my mother-in-law to my home for dinner when she let me know that her own daughters hadn't planned anything "special."

I was raised to respect my elders and to honor my parents (my own mother is deceased), so I was glad to have her.

Well, behind my back she invited her own children to come to MY home for dinner. They all "laughed" me for their fat faces, told Mom how "wonderful" she looked, and then left. Not one of them lifted a finger to help me, and nobody even said thanks.

To top it off, my mother-in-law is always bragging about

TF woman wins honor

TWIN FALLS — Mary Akkerman, Twin Falls, returned from the International Toastmistress Clubs speech contest in Los Angeles with a third-place honor.

She represented the Magic Toastmistress Club, Twin Falls, in the international competition held in connection with the annual convention of Toastmistress Clubs.

Contestants from clubs throughout the United States as well as Canada, Australia and New Zealand competed in the event.

Mrs. Akkerman, a real estate appraiser, said she has had no speech training except what she has acquired through her Toastmistress Club experiences.

She is the second winner from this club to take an international trophy. In 1965, Eliza Vaughn won the first-place humorous speech award. This was the first humorous speech division EVER held in the international contest.

The Magic Toastmistress Club was organized in Twin Falls 28 years ago by Alda Strong. The two Twin Falls women are the only international winners ever to come from Idaho.

Medicine, related fields top career choices for seniors

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Medicine and related fields — therapy, nursing, pharmacy, and medical technology — are the leading career choices of some of the nation's best and brightest high school seniors.

Of approximately 1,000 students queried in a poll, 18.4 said they plan a medicine-related career.

The largest number of these, 8.8 per cent, plan to study medicine itself. Nursing was second choice with 3.7 per cent, then medical technology, 3.2 per cent, and pharmacy, 1.6 per cent, and various therapy specialties accounted for the remainder.

Results of the poll were announced by General Mills, sponsor of the General Mills Search-for-Leadership-in-Family Living, a national educational scholarship program.

The students graduated last spring. They were the finalists from 735,551 seniors in 13,788 high schools enrolled to take the written knowledge and attitude test on which the scholarships are based.

Second career choice was science — biological, biochemical, chemistry, physics and computer — 15.1 per cent.

While 10.5 per cent of the high school seniors were undecided on their careers, 10.6 per cent plan to be engineers and 10.1 per cent intend to enter business and marketing. Communications — journalism, advertising and public relations — attract 9.7 per cent of the seniors; political science and public service, 7.6 per cent, and home economics — food preparation, nutrition, dietetics — 7.5 per cent. Only 6.8 per cent plan careers in education.

Low on the high school seniors list of planned careers is the law, choice of 4.8 per cent. The church and religious-oriented occupations were favored by 0.4 per cent.

The other 99.4 per cent were scattered among such diverse fields as environmental sciences, performing arts, agriculture and various liberal arts studies.

what "terrific" children she has, and she doesn't even like them.

In case you're wondering how I managed to feed a flock of unexpected company, I sent out, for six buckets of chicken.

SV Ice Carnival slated Saturday

SUN VALLEY — A trio of British champions, including a male figure skater, star in Sun Valley's Ice Carnival Saturday at the Idaho resort.

John Curry, British-European world and Olympic champion, will display the grace and style that earned these titles on the outdoor rink adjacent to Sun Valley Lodge at 9:30 p.m.

Current British National Dance champions Hilary Green and Glyn Watts join Curry in a well-choreographed program. Curry's skating style combines outstanding athletic and artistic abilities. With his ballet and modern dance training, he has been called "the Rudolf Nureyev of skating." Prior to his 1975 Olympic victory, he trained with Carlo Bassi in Denver, also America's gold medalist, Dorothy Hamill's coach.

Ice Carnivals can be enjoyed from rinkside on the Lodge Terrace complete with buffet dinner at 7 p.m. or general admission seating is available on three stages of the 90 by 100-foot rink.

Advance tickets are on sale at the Sun Valley Sports Center. Sun Valley Ice Carnivals are sponsored by the Sun Valley Figure Skating Club and sanctioned by the United States Figure Skating Association.

Miss Robinett, James Skinner exchange vows in home rites

TWIN FALLS — Terry Ann Robinett and James Edward Skinner were united in marriage on July 31 at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinett and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Skinner, all Twin Falls.

Reverend Thompson, minister of the First Methodist Church, performed the garden ceremony before a floral background composed of two tall baskets of large pumpkin and coral colored pom poms and leather fern.

The bride's gown was fashioned of off-white tulle with chamilly lace sleeves and tulle set off by a matching embroidered with seed pearls. She wore a garden hat of lace and ruffles styled by her mother.

The bride carried a colonial essence bouquet of pumpkin and coral colored carnations, baby breath and leather fern centered with a green bumble bee.

Bridesmaids were Chris Williams and Jenny Skinner, sister of the bridegroom. Debby Robinett served her sister as maid of honor.

Best man was Terry Lancaster and ushers were Jeff Williams and Dave Skinner.

Flower girl was Amanda Holland, cousin of the bride, and ring bearer was Scott Lee, Mrs. Herman Quintana.

Mr. Roger Tracy, Vonnie McClain and Mrs. Grava Sharp were in charge of a buffet dinner served immediately after the ceremony.

The two-tiered white frosted cake was covered with daisies with coral colored centers.

Supported by four long columns, the top layer of the cake featured live flowers, including pumpkin colored miniature carnations, coral pom poms, emerald green ribbons and baby breath.

The cake was served by Mrs. Robert Brinkman, Salt Lake City, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Edythe Carlton, aunt of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Ruby Jacobs, aunt of the bridegroom, served punch and Mrs. Gary Eldridge was in charge of the guest book.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES SKINNER

Gifts were received by Jackie Brinkman and Angie Holland, cousins of the bride. Special guests included Mrs. Nellie Culbert, Boise, great aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Edith Skinner, Haegeman, grandmother of the bridegroom.

A shower for the bride was given by Debby Robinett and one for the bridegroom by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Rex Williams.

Following a honeymoon to Wyoming and Montana, the newlyweds are at home in Kimberly.

briefs

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Gem Club will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday at the home of Maurice and Myrtle Pughon, 2023 Falls Ave. E. Members are requested to bring their own chair and a sweater. Hal and Vena Wagner will play music for the meeting.

BUIH. — James Hadley Barker, BUIH, recently earned his M.S. degree in education from Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind. He was one of the university's 1,910 summer degree candidates.

Club holds rehearsal

TWIN FALLS — The Berger Barnyard Bunch 4-H Club held its annual education Day program Sunday in a down-pour of rain.

The event serves as a rehearsal for young club members who will be exhibiting their stock in the county fair.

Animals were led into a "show ring" and shown, followed by suggestions on improving techniques for pleasing the judges.

The Berger Barnyard Bunch Club was organized six years ago and this year was divided into two clubs because of the large membership.

The parent club is primarily a beef club. The new club is known as the Park Raisers Unlimited and is for members with swine projects.

The final meeting of the year will be held Sept. 23 at the home of Dick Cristobal.

Point proved by hard work

TAPLOW, England (UPI) — Laborer Max Quarterman drove to the building site Monday in his new $33,100 Rolls Royce — a luxury he earned through hard work.

The automobile, a present to himself on his 35th birthday, should go well with his $30,000 house — complete with circular bath and gold bath taps — on an exclusive housing estate in Buckinghamshire.

Quarterman works up to 70 hours a week and uses a large homemade "superbed" to carry extra materials and boost his wages to pay for his expensive lifestyle.

"I think I've proved my point," he said. "Anyone can live like a film star if they are prepared to get down to some real hard work."

this line of play he will wind up two tricks short at three notrump.

What happens if South ducks that diamond lead in both hands? If West holds a six-card suit, South is sure of nine tricks. He will get five clubs, one diamond, one spade and two hearts. It must be worth while to give himself this extra chance to win the rubber, so he plays low and collects his nine tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

With 40 high-card points and just 13 tricks each, three points represents one trick yet an ace is valued at four points. The reason is that you expect your ace both to take one trick and in addition help promote a second trick.

Similarly, a king counts three points or one trick even though it may fall to an adverse ace. In their initial point count, the Jacobys and experts in general recognize that a hand such as:

♠ A K x x x ♥ A x x x x ♦ K x x ♣ A x is better than:

♠ A x x x ♥ A x x x ♦ A K x ♣ A x

although each has the same high-card points and same three probable quick tricks.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

By Oswald & James Jacoby
"Second-hand low" is one of the old bridge adages. It is generally correct. But as with all adages, there are plenty of exceptions.
One holding that generally calls for second-hand high is when dummy holds queen and one small of the suit led. Most of the time the only way you can get any value out of that queen is to rise with it at trick one.
Today's hand shows an exception. West opens the right of diamonds against South's three-notrump contract.
If West holds the king of clubs, South can get a lot of tricks by rising with dummy's queen of diamonds, coming to his hand with the ace of hearts and taking the club finesse.
Suppose East holds that king? He just happens to hold it this time and if South takes

Birth status eyed

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — A United Nations commission agreed today on the first international principles giving illegitimate children the same rights and status as those born in wedlock.
The draft principles, adopted by the 26-nation commission on the Prevention of Discrimination, aims at giving every person born out of wedlock, whether adult or child, the same status as a person born in wedlock.
The proposed international principles go to the U.N.

Commission on Human Rights for approval at its meeting next year.
"Every person born out of wedlock shall be entitled to legal recognition by his or her maternal and paternal filiation and have the right to bear a surname determined as in the case of a person born in wedlock," the draft says.
According to the proposed international legislation, the first step to be outlined, the fact of birth of a child shall be established by the mother and every person, once filiation has been established, would have the same legal status as a person born in wedlock.

CAMPERS in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area were forced into tents and campers this week as rain buffeted the campgrounds north of Ketchum. Early August snow in the Sawtooths made some high mountain camping even more miserable this week.

Hearing begins on phone listings

BOISE — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission (IPUC) was to hear arguments today on a proposed change to include first names of both husband and wife in telephone book listings. The Idaho Commission on Women's Programs, under the leadership of Flora F. Spencer, Idaho Falls, is sponsoring the effort to obtain the double listing.

"We think it's reasonable to ask that if a couple, in effect, buys a line in a telephone book, they should be able to list both of their names on it," she said. The proposal, if adopted by the IPUC, would permit a husband and wife to list both their first names or initials, their common last name, address and phone number, provided they need only one line for this information. If the names are too long for one line, the proposal suggests the individual initials could be used such as J/M/A Jones for John T. and Mary A. Jones.

Musicians to open fair

BURLEY — Country music star Freddie Fender promises it won't be a wasted night at the Cassia County fairgrounds this evening. Freddie, Hank Williams Jr. and Jim Ed Brown highlight the 8 p.m. country music jamboree at the fairgrounds grandstand. The festive part of the Cassia County Fair was to kick off at 3 p.m. today with Clarence "Furr" Matthews, Oakley, and Walter Amende, Albion, riding as grand marshals.

Vo-ed building will boost CSI

By KEN HODGE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — At least 300 students and faculty will move to the College of Southern Idaho campus this fall to occupy the newly completed vocational-technical center there. The new building is "very nearly completed," according to Bob McManaman, superintendent of buildings and grounds at the college.

food service, the study skills center and parts counter person will also move to the new facility vacating space in the Shields Academic Building for other uses. New programs will include farm equipment repair, recreational vehicle repair and a medical-sonar course. The new building has been constructed at a cost of $2.5 million by Spindler Construction, Co., Logan, Utah.

Ranchers upset, 'vow' no hunting

By BART QUESNELL Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — Dove and sagebrush hunters going into Camas county this fall should expect to see "No Hunting," signs scattered on many private ranches. Lee Tucker, a lifelong Camas Prairie rancher who has led a strong campaign for a two-year moratorium on sagebrush hunting in Camas County, said Monday nearly every section of private land will be posted by Sept. 1 because the Idaho Fish and Game Commission decided to open up sagebrush hunting this year.

would put pressure on other (hunting) grounds as well but admitted a moratorium on hunting would "leave a few more birds to start with next year." Homingway said he was checking into the allegation by Tucker that Department Director Joe Greenley and information specialist Stu Murrell had promised to meet with Fairfield ranchers in Camas County before the most recent commission meeting. Fairfield ranchers promised to meet with the ranchers and present the spring hatch counts before the August commission meeting.

Kirkman 'up a tree' over buses

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The operator of Twin Falls school buses says reworking for O'Leary and high school students for double-shifting is "driving me up a tree." But surprisingly, the extra costs for the double-shift service may not run much beyond the cushion the school district had already worked into its budgeting.

that Kirkman said, "has me climbing the walls." He plans to deliver the high school students, who will be leaving their morning classes, and pick up kindergartners and O'Leary students, who will be going to school. The school district has set up its split kindergarten sessions so that in-town preschoolers go to the morning and there is no morning kindergarten bus run.

property to prevent complaints from private property owners. In two additional routes required for the double-shifting, high school students will be picked up at 6 a.m., and O'Leary students taken home at 6 p.m. Kirkman said he buses about 850 elementary students, 300 junior-high students, 300 high schoolers and 170 kindergartners.

Stranded driver looked like escaped Manson girl

HEYBURN — A Heyburn farmer says he may have assisted two escapees from a California federal prison, including Susan Murphy, a Charles Manson cultist.

M.T. Evans, Route 1, Heyburn, said he was getting mail at about 8 p.m. Sunday from his mailbox in front of his farm, five miles west of Burley beside Interstate 84. Evans said two women traveling in a faded red Volkswagen and headed west on the freeway called to him to ask if he had any extra gasoline.

He said he believed she was one of the two women he assisted. Susan Murphy, 34, was convicted with another Manson cultist, Sandra Goode, of conspiring to send death threat letters to business executives and politicians. She was serving a five-year sentence on the conviction when she and Diane Ellis overpowered a female guard at the federal prison on Terminal Island, near Long Beach, Calif., Saturday night.

Chicago Daily News
TOKYO — Two-way trade between Japan and the United States will reach a record $22 billion this year, U.S. officials have predicted. This is nearly double the boom year 1971 that established the two countries as the greatest overseas trading partners in the history of mankind.

Japanese exports to the United States during the first six months of this year amounted to $7,207 billion, with Japan's auto industry leading the field with sales of $1,465 billion, up from 50 percent from the same period last year.

But U.S. sales to Japan declined, leaving the United States with a $2.5 billion trade deficit by the end of June. U.S. trade officials were concerned but not worried. Five years ago the United States ran up a $1.7 billion deficit in its trade with Japan and it became a major source of friction between the two countries.

The present situation is different, however, officials said. For one thing, many Japanese exports to the United States have been out of inventories built up during a two-year recession. As inventories run low and the Japanese need more raw materials, imports from the United States are expected to pick up during the second half of 1976. Another difference is that the deficit is more manageable because the overall trade volume is so much bigger. Still another is a flexible exchange rate that places the United States in a better competitive position. Despite all this, American officials conceded that some U.S. industries are hurting because of Japanese competition.

Japanese manufacturers have captured 37 percent of the U.S. television set market. Even by manufacturing in the United States, Japanese find it hard to compete with Japanese-made TV sets. Two years ago, Motorola Corp. sold its television division to the Japanese electronics giant, Naisushita, including its plant at Quincy, Ill. But TV imports from Japan, South Korea and Taiwan forced the Quincy plant to close. Officials here said, leaving 1,200 people jobless.

trade for their own account as well as "retail" clients and are subject to the same fortunes of the marketplace. Unlike their clients, however, it is the brokerage houses that are responsible for making good on all trades on each exchange. In cases where the client can't or won't pay his obligation, the broker must clear his accounts with the exchanges each day — and then go after the delinquent customer.

Although the Future Industry Association, formerly known as the Association of Commodity Exchange Firms, never interprets its monthly statistics, the increases and decreases in the trading volume last month of several commodities provoked widespread interest in the trade. Specifically, the fact that the largest increase in trading in any commodity last month was in soybean meal, up 127,733 contracts, occurred as corn, down 67,254, showed the second biggest decrease.

The unusual interest in soybean meal was interpreted by Middle-Western grain

Futures volume up, cheer fades

NEW YORK — The continuing surge in commodity futures trading volume this year is bringing less cheer to brokerage houses than it has been the case in the past, because negotiated commission rates are gradually lowering fees paid by traders.

Last month soybean meal contracts, while the 1975 level to 3,576,000 contracts, while the top for the first seven months jumped 20 per cent to 20,925,799 contracts.

Suspect in death sketched

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard Tuesday issued a sketch of a "swaggering bully" they believe was the ringleader of a trio who killed a defenseless boy at a swimming pool before 1,000 witnesses who ignored his screams for help.

It was the first major development in the nearly six-week-old murder of Enrico Sidoli, a friendly, talkative 15-year-old with a nervous tic who was beaten and held under water while a crowd limited at about 1,000 persons watched.

For a month, Scotland Yard detectives could not get a single witness to talk about the July 8 attack which resulted in young Enrico's death.

Then, a newspaper offer of a reward brought forth a flood of information which enabled detectives to issue the drawing of their chief suspect whom they described as a "swaggering bully" in his late teens.

Their description is complete even to the kind of badges the 17 or 18-year-old suspect wears on his T-shirts and the boots he wears.

Less detailed descriptions have been obtained of the other two youths involved in the attack, Scotland Yard sources said all three youths were believed to be still in the Kentish Town "cystere" the slaying took place.

"At long last we are reaching them. Detective Chief Inspector Harry Clements said Tuesday, referring to the sudden surge of witnesses coming forward to talk about the killing.

"Groups of youngsters are now coming to his senses," Clements, who for 37 days had met what he called a "wall of silence" on the case, said.

"They are coming into the police station at Kentish Town and asking, 'What can we do to help?' They are stopping in front of the police station for details of the youths we want to interview and then going off to look for them.

Actually, each contract represents a purchase and sale and thus two commissions and the Future Industry Association, which compiles the futures, points out that the number of contracts are double the volume reported.

"Not only are negotiable rates cutting our profits, but also the increasing number of day trades and spreads," a leading New York broker explained Monday.

A day trade is the purchase and sale for vice versa that is completed in one trading day, while spreads involve the purchase and sale of the same commodity deliverable in two different months.

In any case, the broker's fee is half the normal rate.

"We used to clear trades for perhaps a dozen small commodity houses and picked up a nice bit of profit as a result," another big broker observed. "Today everyone is doing their own clearing because business is growing. But we aren't getting much in clearing fees."

Commodity brokerage profits do not reflect trading volume. Most houses traders as a reaction to the drought in Europe, where the protein-rich livestock feed supplement is in great demand. Earlier this year many traders had assumed Europeans would be importing corn to replace rations lost because of parched pastures.

It has also been assumed that the Europeans would prefer the soybeans to the meal because of increased processing capacity there. (A 60-pound bushel of soybeans yields 48 pounds of meal and 11 of oil.) A soybean contract is 5,000 bushels. For meal it is 100 tons.) The second largest increase last month was in silver bullion on the New York Commodity Exchange, up 117,926 contracts of 58,000 troy ounces each. Brokers attributed the rise in silver futures volume to its volatility and frequent use as a tax spread.

Because silver is not a seasonal commodity, people trying to establish paper losses for tax purposes often believe it lends itself to such operations.

Late success

PROSSER, Wash. (UPI) — It didn't sell well enough on the shelf to keep it going, but Beorly Vineyard's wine label is a booming success at the company's "going out of business sale."

Officials of Seneca Foods, owner of the winery which began in 1971, said more than 100 cases of red and white wines have been sold.

The going price is as low as $6.50 a case or about 55 cents a bottle.

Retail prices said misleading

NEZ PERCE, Idaho (UPI) — Despite predictions of record harvests, Idaho wheat growers are receiving lower prices for their produce than a year ago and a spokesman for the farmers said retail prices don't reflect the situation.

Wynn Henderson, Nez Perce, Idaho Wheat Commission chairman, said farmers are selling wheat at 90 cents to 91 cent bushel less than they were a year ago. "Yet, consumers are not seeing any drop in the price of bread," he said.

Henderson said farmers have a large carryover of 1975 year's grain crop because of abated Russian wheat sales.

He said farmers are being used by politicians and bureaucrats "who promise free marketing while asking for allot production" and then "give the markets away to Canada and Australia" when production has increased.

Henderson said wheat represents less than 15 per cent of the total cost of a loaf of bread and predictions that bread would cost $1 a loaf because of Russian wheat sales were inaccurate.

"The end result is the farmer loses, the consumer gets nothing and the politician gets a few extra votes," he said.

Gem spud testing to aid crop info

BOISE (UPI) — A cross section testing of fall potato fields across Idaho and the 11 other major producing states will play a significant role in determining the 1976 yields and production, officials announced today.

Richard Max, statistician in charge of the Idaho crop and livestock reporting service, said 350 sample fields were selected at random in Idaho.

The fields will be visited before harvest to collect the best information about plant populations per acre in potato yields.

Similar work will be done in 2,100 fall potato fields in the other major potato-growing states.

Max said the information gathered in the fields will provide an objective evaluation of potential growth yields and production. Max said potato estimates combined with facts provided by producers will be released by his office Oct. 12 and Nov. 10.

Rite slated for clinic

MOSCOW — Ground-breaking ceremonies at 11 a.m. Friday at Caldwell will begin construction of the $1.1 million Veterinary Medical Clinic of the Washington State University/Northeast College of Veterinary Medicine.

"This facility will represent one of Idaho's major contributions to the regional veterinary medical education program," remarked Dr. Floyd W. Frank, dean of Idaho facility, in the college. The 16,000-square-foot clinic will benefit Idahoans through service, teaching and research geared to the state's food animal industry, Frank noted.

Expected to attend the ceremonies at the northeast corner of the Caldwell Agricultural, Research and Extension Center, Montana St. and Homedale Rd., are Idaho Lt. Gov. Evans and U.S. President Dr. Ernest W. Hartung.

THE CENTER PIVOT CENTER

CORNER CATCHER

The only center pivot in the world that hits the corners.

In a typical quarter-section where a regular center pivot is irrigating 132 acres, you can now do about 150 acres. But the new Valley Corner System isn't limited to squares. Irrigate both ends of a rectangle. Irrigate odd shaped pieces of land too. It's the answer to getting valuable productive land that's been wasted; back under center pivot irrigation.

For flood irrigators, it's also the answer to automatic water and labor saving center pivot, without wasting valuable acres; No monitoring, no labor problems, no night work, but you have all the advantages of precise irrigation and fertilizer application through the system, that produces higher yields than ever before. It's a simple concept, precise in operation and engineered with quality of all Valley-built Center Pivots.

'Normal' coming

KIMBERLY — Near normal temperatures and precipitation. That's the outlook for the next 30 days, according to meteorologists at the National Weather Service Office for Magic Valley.

For the period from mid-August to mid-September, temperatures in the Magic Valley should average near normal. Slightly sub normal readings are expected in southwestern Idaho valleys. Precipitation should be near normal over most of Idaho, except for slightly below normal near the Montana border.

Maurice Faubus of the weather service office said statistics from past years show there is less than 25 per cent chance of a killing frost before Sept. 15 in the Magic Valley.

Average dates for the first 32 degree readings in late summer or early autumn include Twin Falls, Sept. 23; Burley, Oct. 3, and Rupert, Sept. 24. Other averages include Ashton, Sept. 4, Coeur d'Alene, Sept. 25; Lewiston, Oct. 17; and Moscow, Sept. 6.

Harvest hindered

BOISE (UPI) — Poor weather has hindered harvesting of crops in some areas of the state and slowed growth and maturation of other crops, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports.

"Warm open weather is needed to bring crops to maturity, and to move the small grain harvest forward, the service said.

Statewide, 25 per cent of the winter wheat crop has been harvested and combining is continuing when weather permits. The service said spring wheat is 15 per cent harvested statewide, with harvesting complete in 40 per cent range in the southwest to practically none in the north.

The service said some early dying of potato vines has been reported and warm weather will help the crop growth.

The second cutting alfalfa hay is progressing but some rain damage has occurred to downed hay.

Rain and hail storms, have hurt the dry pea harvest in some areas, and reports indicate that some fields will be completely lost, the service said. Harvest is 55 per cent done.

Poison traces turn up in fish found on market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency reported Tuesday finding bluefish and other seafood in the heavily fished waters of the Chesapeake Bay contaminated with an 10 times the acceptable level of the pesticide Kepone.

EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said fish have been found in the bay containing up to one part per million of the insecticide. The federal safety level for the poison is one-tenth ppm.

The Food and Drug Administration set the safety level, the point at which it will take action to halt interstate sales based on recommendations from the EPA. That level is one one-thousandth of the amount of Kepone considered to be actually dangerous.

Train's announcement varied somewhat from the FDA's own findings that traces of Kepone in Chesapeake Bay and Atlantic Ocean commercial fish were below — although in some cases only barely so — the safety limits. EPA and FDA officials said the conflict in the findings resulted from different ways of measuring the contamination. The FDA measures composite readings using 10 fish at a time, while the EPA figures were based on the levels in individual fish.

Train, in a news conference held just hours after the FDA findings were released, gave no indication EPA would seek to block sales of the contaminated fish.

"The continuing serious nature of this problem illustrates how dangerous chemical contaminants can be when introduced into the environment without adequate control," Train said.

Kepone, a roach and ant killer, poisoned about 30 workers at a Hopewell, Va., pesticide plant and seeped into the James River and the Bay.

'Crime pays,' agency told

© Washington Star

WASHINGTON — A member of the Interstate Commerce Commission has told his fellow commissioners in a private report that the agency's enforcement program is so poor that regulated companies have found that "crime does pay."

The report, a copy of which The Washington Star has obtained, places the blame for the poor compliance program — one that focuses on large numbers of insignificant cases and presumably avoids those that involve major economic matters — on agency leadership, the commissioners themselves.

The report, by Vice Chairman Charles L. Clapp, says commission employees are frustrated "because of the absence at the commission of clearly defined priorities and goals and because of divided authority and leadership."

Echoing an as-yet-unpublished General Accounting Office study, and two earlier ICC staff studies, Clapp said punishments meted to offending truckers and railroads don't fit the crimes.

Rhodesian atrocities charged

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania

(UPI) — The Mozambique Information Agency claimed Tuesday that Rhodesian troops, masquerading in black face as Mozambican soldiers, machinegunned civilians, including women and children, and burned their bodies during a raid into Mozambique nine days ago. The Agency said that up to 1,000 persons may have been killed in the raid and that more bodies were still being found

Fund use warning out

BOISE (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service says Teton flood victims who use disaster assistance for purposes other than replacing damaged property may be asked to return the money to the government.

Teton victims have until the end of the tax year 1978 to decide how to spend their reconstruction dollars, and then may ask for a one-year tax extension, Martin said. In any case, the IRS must be notified in the 1976 tax year how or when the victim will make his decision.

Dallas still mulling quarterback's fate

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboy coach Tom Landry said Tuesday he had recently talked to wayward quarterback Clint Longley and that Longley was embarrassed by the trouble he had caused the club. He was not apologetic for slugging Roger Staubach.

Landry also said he had made no final decision about trading Longley or attempting to talk him into staying with the Cowboys.

"I will do what I feel is in the best interests of the team," Landry said. "Right now nothing is changed. I still have the feeling Clint wants to be traded."

"I'm leaning a certain way in the matter. But it would not be fair to those concerned to say which way that is."

Longley, who was starting his third season as a Cowboy, ended a running feud with Staubach last week by hitting Staubach in the head as Staubach was putting on his shoulder pads.

The incident came on the eve of the Cowboys' departure from their Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp and when the team flew back to Dallas Longley was not with it.

Longley was suspended without pay until the incident is resolved.

"He called me from Albuquerque," Landry said. "He didn't exactly apologize. But he said he felt bad about what it had done to the club."

"After all, it's a blow to try to develop a quarterback for a few years and then have him suddenly be gone and not have gained anything from it. All of this surprised me quite a bit. It surprised everybody."

"It was so out of character for these people involved. I have some feelings about what led up to it. Now we can only try to resolve things and hopefully we can have them resolved within a week."

"The absence of Longley leaves Dallas with only two quarterbacks, and one of them — Danny White — will also double as a punter this season."

"It's always a gamble to go through the season with just two quarterbacks," said Landry. "But we did it last year."

"We're not sure if we will try to get a third one. It sort of depends on what the final squad limit is going to be. If the league decides to let us have 43 players on a squad, we might well try to have three."

"When it was pointed out that the rival Washington Redskins had plenty of quarterbacks on their squad and could be open for a trade, Landry replied:

"I'm sure George Allen would be delighted to send us a quarterback — if he was bad."

Volleyball officials meet

TWIN FALLS — Persons wishing to officiate high school volleyball matches should attend a rules meeting in Twin Falls Thursday night.

District commissioner Ed Peterson, Jerome, said the meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at Twin Falls high school.

Peterson also asked all coaches to attend and bring their school's schedule to facilitate assigning of officials.

Celtics enter camp with full roster

BOSTON (UPI) — What could the Red Auerbach be looking for when he greets recruits and free agents later this week at his rookie camp?

The Celtics are coming off their 13th NBA title and expect to have everyone back except Don Nelson, who announced his retirement last January and has been reconsidering since. Since it is doubtful the Celtics want the 36-year-old forward back, one roster spot at most is open.

Auerbach, however, looks at the situation differently.

"There are so many free agents around" because of the ABA's demise and the outpouring of undrafted but hopeful collegians "that all the training camps should be more competitive this year. After the first five or six players on your team, you will have lots and lots of players who could fill out a roster."

Let's see how Auerbach's remark applies to the Celtics. The players assured of jobs are Dave Cowens, Paul Silas, Jo Jo White, Charlie Scott and John Havlicek — provided he is healthy and still determined to play another season.

Kuberski, who returned from Buffalo via New Orleans and Milwaukee, abandoned his "I want-to-be-an-NBA-star" style of play and proved a valuable bound blitzer off the bench last season. He will stay unless some rookie or free agent simply beats him with superior talent.

The enigma is Tom Boswell, last year's top draft choice. Heinsohn swears Boswell is not another Steve Downing, that he does have special talent and that he will round into a tough cornerman.

However, the Celtics picked up many of the same qualities in 1976 top choice Norm Cook of Kansas. He comes recommended by White, a former star at Kansas who has seen him several times, and by Providence Coach Dave Gavitt, who called Cook the best player in the 1975 Pan American Games. Heinsohn also has seen Cook twice and liked him very much.

With three other prospects, Jarrell O'Quinn, who also comes well recommended out of the University of Nebraska, and six other picks, the Celtics seem overlaid with potential players. Yet Auerbach said he expects to see free agents at camp, including second-tymer Ed Searey and Freddy Saunders, Phoenix' second round choice in 1974. "Saunders is looking good out on the West Coast," said Auerbach of the 67 forward from Syracuse.

Soviet reneges on defection

MONTREAL (UPI) — After a brief fling with Canada, 17-year-old USSR diver Sergei Nemtsanov, who defected during the Olympics and stirred up a political hornet's nest, is back in the Soviet bosom.

Nemtsanov's bid for "freedom" began during the politically-troubled Olympics and ended Tuesday in a hotel coffee shop as the youth voluntarily turned himself over to two Soviet consular officials.

Immigration officials said the decision was strictly and totally voluntary. His lawyers said the youth was returning out of concern for his aged and ailing grandmother.

Rene Pappone, an immigration spokesman, said in Ottawa "there has been no pressure on the part of any individuals on Mr. Nemtsanov to have him come to any kind of decision."

He said Soviets had been in touch with the youth on only one supervised occasion and could not have pressured.

Nemtsanov, Canada had also made it clear he was free to stay.

It was not known when Nemtsanov would be returned to the USSR, but the next Aeroflot flight from Montreal to Moscow was scheduled for Thursday.

The diver's defection prompted two stiff Soviet diplomatic notes to Ottawa and a threat to cut off sports relations with this country. The ban would have included the International Canada Cup hockey series to begin Sept. 2, Soviets said.

Conservation bill okayed

WASHINGTON — Environmental legislation that would sharply increase federal spending for outdoor recreation to $300 million annually under the Land and Water Conservation Fund has been approved by a congressional panel.

House and Senate conferees voted the record sum despite the threat of a Presidential veto. The conferees were confident they could override a veto, but said they doubted Ford would reject the measure.

After two seasons, the management is still puzzled about the inconsistency of Glenn McDonald, Jim Ard and Kevin Stacom. It says here McDonald certainly will be around for another season and that Ard, whose best performance as a Celtic came in the 1976 playoffs, will stay unless an unknown 7-footer materializes in training camp.

Stacom could be in trouble following a woeful shooting display and just adequate defense last spring. Tommie Heinsohn is close-mouthed about Stacom but confines to heap praise upon reserve Jerome Anderson, who could bump the former Providence guard off the squad. "In another year or two, he's going to be a real good ballplayer; he's got the potential," Heinsohn said recently.

The remaining veteran is Steve Kuberski, whom the Celtics let go once before. But the new the guess is that eight Celtics are secure — including McDonald, Kuberski and Boswell — and that Cook will fill Nelson's forward spot.

The young talent will be gaining to unseat Stacom, Anderson and/or Ard.

Maybe the guessing is bit premature, but in just two months the Celtics will have to open defense of their NBA crown against the threats from Golden State, Phoenix, Cleveland and Washington, in addition to the New York Nets and Denver Nuggets. The season will be a fascinating one.

Pro slowpitch set up

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The American Professional SloPitch League announced Tuesday it will hold its first professional slow pitch softball season next year with eight franchises.

The team will be Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Detroit, Los Angeles, Washington, Virginia, Milwaukee and Louisville, Ky.

Franchises for each franchise have paid a $25,000 fee to enter their teams in the $46 game schedule.

Tom Rardia, Lexington, Ky., head of the league, said remaining problems include finding playing facilities capable of seating 10 to 18,000 spectators and "developing a nationwide marketing formula."

Stacom could be in trouble following a woeful shooting display and just adequate defense last spring. Tommie Heinsohn is close-mouthed about Stacom but confines to heap praise upon reserve Jerome Anderson, who could bump the former Providence guard off the squad. # Ex-man wants to be accepted as woman 'in every field'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dr. Renee Richards, transsexual tennis player who has been accepted as a woman in this week's Tennis Week Open in South Orange, N.J., Lut, who may have to pass an "impossible" sex test to play in the U.S. Open, is fighting for a principle.

"She doesn't want to play at Forest Hills just to play tennis," her attorney, Greg Bautzer, said Tuesday. "She wants to be acknowledged as a woman in every field of endeavor that she takes part in."

Dr. Richards, who has been beset by an amazing amount of calls to the answering service of her ophthalmology practice in nearby Orange in recent days, will finally tell her side of the story at a news conference Wednesday morning at the John Wayne Tennis Club in Newport Beach.

"She's no recluse," said her business agent, Dave Buffum. "She'll be very free in telling her story."

Dr. Richards is the former Richard Raskind, a 41-year-old eye doctor who specializes in eye surgery for children. Raskind underwent a sex-change operation a year ago. Before the operation, he was ranked nationally as a singles player and competed in the Junior veterans division at Forest Hills two years ago.

"As a woman, she applied this year to play in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y. Officials of the U.S. Tennis Association, however, ruled last week that all women competing must pass a chromosome test, the same as the one given to female Olympic athletes."

Dr. Richards, who recently passed a gynecological exam for acceptance to the $60,000 New Jersey tournament, would probably fail, however, to pass the "karyotype" test which distinguishes "male from female chromosomes carried from birth."

"There is a possibility that legal action could be taken on the basis of discrimination," Bautzer said. "There are two points of view. There is a gynecologist who has made a determination that she is a woman and there is the chromosome test, which might say otherwise."

"It will be up to Dr. Richards to determine what she wants to do."

Tough NBA debut

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers said Tuesday the team will open its first season as a National Basketball Association expansion team Oct. 21 against the defending league champion Boston Celtics.

The Pacers, who open training camp at Rose-Hulman University in Terre Haute on Sept. 18, also will meet the Denver Nuggets at home the next night.

Two Olympic medals hang on new tests

LONDON (UPI) — The International Weightlifting Federation disclosed Tuesday that Dr. Arnold Beckett, head of the International Olympic Committee's medical commission, will carry out a second series of doping tests next week to determine if two division winners will lose their Olympic gold medals.

The champions who face disqualification if urine samples prove positive a second time in tests to be conducted in Montreal on Aug. 22-23, are Bulgarian heavyweight Valentin Khrisiov and Polish light heavyweight Zbigniew Kacmarek. A similar fate awaits Bulgarian lightweight silver medalist Blagov Blijagiev.

Oscar State, president of the IWF, said tests also will be made on two other weightlifters whose preliminary samples were positive — middle heavyweight Philip Grigipaldi of Belleville, N.J., and Swedish featherweight Arne Narbrack.

Grigipaldi was runner-up in the jerk in the unofficial world championships held in conjunction with the Olympics and will have to return his medal if his test proves positive.

Before the teams left Montreal earlier this month, heavyweight Mark Cameron of Midlandtown, N.J., was disqualified for taking steroids.

The most celebrated case involving doping in recent years occurred at Munich in 1972 when 16-year-old swimmer Riek Dumont of the United States was deprived of a gold medal in the 400-meters individual medley when it was discovered the medication he took to relieve an asthma condition was on the IOC's list of banned drugs.

The news of the possible disqualification of the weightlifters was announced from IOC headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland.

A spokesman said "the procedure has not yet been completed and a final report from the medical commission is still outstanding. When this report is completed it will go to the IOC's Executive Commission."

"The final decision rests with the Executive Committee."

Kacmarek won the welterweight gold medal when he lifted an Olympic record total of 676.5 pounds in the snatch and clean and jerk.

Plat Korol of Russia finished second in that class. Daniel Senet of France was third and Kazimierz Czarniecki of Poland had a fourth best total. Should Kacmarek lose his medal, Korol will move up as the gold medalist, Senet the silver and Czarniecki, the bronze.

Khrisiov won the heavyweight gold medal with an Olympic record 890 pounds. Yuri Zaitsev of Russia finished second and Kraslto Semerdiev of Bulgaria was third. Dobrusz Rutkowski of Poland finished to gain the bronze medal if Khrisiov is disqualified.

Trendafil Stolechev of Bulgaria will replace Blagiev as light heavyweight silver medalist, if his countryman is penalized in light of the doping report. Peter Bazako of Hungary then would move up as bronze medalist.

Eagles to use veterans

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles will start veteran running backs Tom Sullivan and Art Malone Monday night in their NFL preseason game against the Cleveland Browns, coach Dick Vermeil said Tuesday.

Sullivan, the Eagles' leading rusher the past three seasons, and Malone have been limited action so far this season. Vermeil has been taking a long look at James McAllister and rookies Mike Hogan and Herb Lusk, but now feels it's time for the incumbents to get some more work in preparation for the regular season.

"I know quite a bit about Tom Sullivan from watching him on film," Vermeil said. "I know he's a pretty good football player, but he has to get ready. Art has to get ready, too."

Berra sidelined

PLASANTVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — The New York Giants announced Tuesday they have placed wide receiver Tim Berra on the injured reserve list and added wide receiver Dave Smith.

Berra suffered a separated left-shoulder in the Giants' first exhibition game a week ago against the New York Jets.

Smith, 62 and 210 pounds, is in his fifth national football league season. The 29-year-old Indiana State (Pa.) product was the Pittsburgh Steelers' eighth pick in 1972 and he played in Pittsburgh through 1972. In 1973 he was with the Houston Oilers and went to the Kansas City Chiefs' camp in 1974. He then spent two years in the World Football League.

The Giants also announced quarterback Craig Morton missed part of Tuesday's workout with a back problem, but he was able to play by the afternoon session.

Bengals cut pair

WILMINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — The Cincinnati Bengals trimmed their training camp roster to 54 Tuesday by cutting rookie punter Greg Coleman of Florida A&M and defensive tackle Richard Bishop, a former Canadian Football League player from the University of Louisville.

Coleman did all the punting in the Bengals' last pre-season game — seven punts for a 37 yard average — and coaches were unimpressed.

For Bishop, it was the second time he had been cut by the Bengals. The 6-foot, 210-pound native of Cleveland, Ohio, also was dropped by Cincinnati in 1974 when he was a rookie and the club's fifth round draft choice.

Streaking Athletics edge Brewers 5-4

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bert Campaneris and Cesar Tovar drove in two runs apiece to lead the streaking Oakland A's to their 10th win in their last 11 games, a 5-4 win over the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night.

Milwaukee had won four in a row.

Tovar drove in the A's first two runs in the fourth with a two-out single after Billy Williams and Sal Bando led off the inning with singles. Campaneris' sacrifice fly scored Phil Garner, who had doubled, to give Oakland a 3-0 lead in the fourth and with the score tied at 4-4 in the seventh, Campaneris singled in Bill North with the winning run.

Shula-Scott feud boiling again

MIAMI (UPI)—The feud between Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula and safety Jake Scott, thought calmed after the two had a press conference to talk, has exploded again.

Shula announced Monday night he had suspended Scott indefinitely without pay because the 31-year-old, five-time All-Pro refused to play in Saturday night's 24-16 Dolphins' win over Philadelphia.

Scott, who incurred Shula's wrath late last season by saying he would like to be traded, had a long talk with the coach before the summer training camp opened and reportedly resolved their differences.

After his suspension, Scott was not immediately available for comment and was reportedly conferring with his attorneys about a possible lawsuit.

Shula ordered Scott, who injured his shoulder in a Dolphins' Family Day scrimmage July 23, to play the second half against the Eagles because he felt Scott needed the work to prepare for the regular season.

Scott, however, complained his shoulder was still hurting. Shula said he checked with the team physician, Dr. Herbert Virgin, and Virgin told him he felt Scott was able to play.

"The opinion that Scott was capable of playing was corroborated by Dr. Fred Altman (of Atlanta), the player's personal physician," the Dolphins' management said.

"Both doctors felt that if Scott complained of pain, that this discomfort could be relieved by administration of medication with no significant risk of further injury," the Dolphins management said.

Scott allegedly told Shula he didn't mind taking pain-killing medication, to play in regular season games, but objected to such medication to play in an exhibition game.

"Scott then threatened the team physician, saying that if he were ordered to play—with or without the medication—and sustained further damage to his shoulder, that under the advice of his lawyer, whom he had already consulted, he would sue the team physician," the club's management said.

Scott, a 6-foot, 198-pounder, played for 80 minutes with a broken hand in the 1971 AFC playoff against Kansas City and was named the most valuable player in Super Bowl VII.

He has a long term contract with the Dolphins, reportedly at a six-figure salary, and has three years remaining on that contract.

Ganakas philosophic about cage oyster

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Deposed Michigan State basketball coach Gus Ganakas has taken an enthusiastic view of his new job with the Spartans—and a philosophic view of the old one.

"Who was it, Norm Sloan, I believe, who said when every coach signs a contract to be hired, he signs a contract to be fired—he just doesn't know the date?" Ganakas said Tuesday.

"The national average is seven years and I was here seven years, so I guess that was 'so bad'."

Ganakas, fired last March in an athletic department purge that also toppled football coach Denny Stolz, was given the job of assistant to athletic director Joe Kearney in charge of departmental and high school relations.

Ganakas had tenure with the university so, unlike Stolz, he was given a new job rather than being fired out entirely. His new duties are in the area of public relations and, possibly later, some fund raising.

"I'm very pleased with it," Ganakas said. "I think the job will be very advantageous to a career in athletic administration. But the important advantage is that I'll be able to work with Joe and hopefully establish closer relationships with alumni and schools—the type of people we want to rally round our program."

"There was a time he (Stolz) was expected to remain in coaching."

"I had thought that something might turn up, but the coaching jobs are so few, it will probably be hard for a while, but I expect through this before and most it's safe to say the coaching is over."

Attack super bass readied for anglers

By HARVEY DECK
@ Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO—Imagine a "Super Bass" so big and bold that it will attack humans, so ferocious that it will leap free of the water to snap at animals wading in shallow water.

Don't sneaker.

The era of such a "Super Bass" is rapidly approaching.

The Bros. Research Foundation—a national non-profit organization devoted to preserving and improving bass fishing, thinks that it's likely.

So does Dr. William F. Childers, aquatic biologist with the Illinois Natural History survey, who is widely respected for his work in the field of fish genetics.

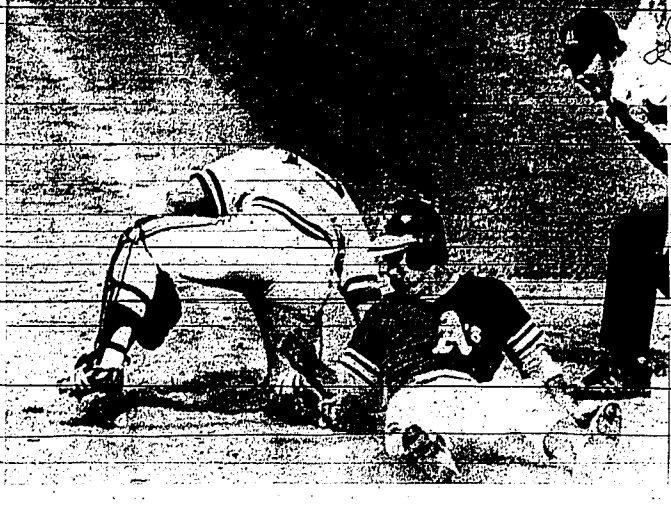

Dr. Childers has successfully created a hybrid bass by cross-breeding largemouth and smallmouth bass over a seven-year period. The fish are raised in a 22 pond complex near the University of Illinois campus in Urbana, and are "extremely aggressive and show little, if any, fear of man or other animals," he reports.

"I have personally observed such incidents as hybrid bass attacking a girl wearing a bright multi-colored bathing suit who was swimming in one of the experimental ponds. The bass leaped from the water and struck her on the head and chest, driving her from the pond."

When she re-entered the pond an hour later, the bass attacked again. Other swimmers in the pond were nipped by the hybrids.

"On another occasion the hybrids savagely attacked a dog which had entered a shallow area of the pond. The dog snapped back at the leaping bass but never caught one."

"A third incident involved a male hybrid guarding a nest. When I attempted to inspect the eggs, I was bitten several times on the legs. I tried to drive the male away by jabbing at it and beating the water above the nest with the pumping rod, but to no avail. The male bass would not leave the nest."

NEW YORK—When the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers were moving to California, Toos Shor read in a newspaper that the per capita consumption of alcohol was higher in San Francisco than in any other city in the country.

"Jimmy Crickets!" he said. "And now they're getting Horace!"

Toos knew from merry experience that the arrival of his friend Horace Stoneham, then owner of the Giants, would not diminish San Francisco's preeminence. Horace no longer owns the Giants but his enthusiasm for gracious living seems to have rubbed off on the organization, for the team is sponsoring a bill to permit the sale of wine in Candelstick Park.

The California State Senate has approved the measure, which defines a professional ballpark, stadium or coliseum seating 40,000 customers as a "bona fide public eating place" eligible for a retail wine license. If the state assembly passes, popping of corks in Candelstick may soon be as loud as the rattapan of enemy bats.

The traditional beverage at ballparks is beer, preferably accompanied by a hot dog oozing mustard; and this serves the purpose well enough on a summer day or night in New York, St. Louis or Chicago. It takes something stronger to sustain life on a foggy evening in Candelstick when the wind comes whipping in off the bay and the home team is blowing another lead.

Omar Khayyam refers affectionately to "the cup that clears today of past regrets and future fears." Nobody needs it more than a Giant fan.

Some of the Jastried grapes grown in this country are cultivated and crushed in the Napa Valley, which is San Francisco's backyard. If the Giants can get their bill adopted, it is bound to win them friends in the vineyards, and Lord knows they need all the friends they can get.

If the vintners have ever found something to buy one-half so precious as the stuff they sell, that something hasn't yet to now, been tickled to the ballparks.

In cities like Philadelphia or Cincinnati, the ballparks might hesitate to see anything stronger than beer on the theory that alcohol tends to inflame passions and might lead to mob violence. It has been years, however, since the Giants had any problems with crowd control. They could attract every wine in Haight-Ashbury and still have the smallest, quietest and saddest crowds in baseball.

Meanwhile, things have been happening across the bay that conjure up dirtier dreams than you could get out of an 18-ounce bottle of chianti. The Oakland A's, dismantled by their owner in the spring and partially reassembled by Bowie Kuhn, took off on a nine-game winning streak and temporarily reduced Kansas City's lead in the American League West to seven games.

Milwaukee ended Oakland's string Monday night while the Hoosiers were beating Cleveland, but the A's had picked up five games on the leaders in one week, remaining in one game ahead of a half-game advantage on Oct. 1 is better than a 10-game margin in August.

Not that any such reminders should be needed by anybody old enough to remember the Giants' stretch run in 1951, the Mets of 1973 or the Phillies of 1961, who needed only seven days to blow a lead of six and a half games and the pennant. The Royals have 46 games left.

If a race should develop in the American League West, chances are that popular sentiment would favor the Royals, because Kansas City has never had a team in the playoffs. Still, there would be a temptation to root for the A's just for the opportunity of seeing Bowie Kuhn throw out the first ball in a World Series featuring Charley Fingers' team.

That's the team Charley is suing Bowie, but because Charley says he sold it away last June and the commissioner says he did nothing of the kind.

For the last five years the A's dominated their division because they had players of the caliber of Reggie Jackson, Ken Holtzman, Joe Judge, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers. Last winter those five decided to play out their option and become free agents, so they refused to sign 1976 contracts.

Rather than lose all that valuable talent without remuneration, Fingers traded Jackson and Holtzman to Baltimore and sold Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and Rudi and Fingers to Boston for $1 million each.

Kuhn said that was naughty. He didn't object when Charley dumped Jackson and Holtzman and he wasn't disturbed when Cal Griffith got $300,000 in a deal that took Bob Blye away from Minnesota, but he said selling Rudi and Fingers for $3.5 million was bad for Oakland and bad for baseball and he wouldn't allow it.

Now he faces the possibility of the A's winning without Jackson and Holtzman but with players who, Fingers says, belong to the Red Sox and the Yankees.

Rudi and Fingers—did not mention Jackson and Gene Tenace—are among the 31 players in the majors who are still unsigned. Even if Rudi and Fingers ran at him brandishing hallpats, Fingers probably would refuse to sign them because he says they are Boston properties and to give them contracts might jeopardize his damages suit against Kuhn.

If they walk off on him in October, he will be in a position to show a court $2 million in damage caused by the commissioner's abuse of power.

The value of Rudi and Fingers has been established at $1 million each. If they do walk out of Oakland, which it seems will be permitted to talk business with? Can Boston hire them? If they can't sell themselves for $1 million, will the commissioner's office make up the difference?

NL prexy says he won't quit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Chub Feeney said Tuesday he thinks he has "done a good job" as president of the National League and indicated he has no intention of quitting.

In his first response to criticism leveled by August A. Busch, Jr., after the league meeting in Phoenix, Feeney called for "cooler heads" to prevail if the league owners take up the issue of his tenure at their next meeting.

Busch, apparently speaking on behalf of a number of owners, declared after last week's meeting that "the time has come for new ideas and new leadership" in the league.

"I can't comment on what was on Mr. Busch's mind," Feeney said.

But the league president did respond to criticism of the handling of the proposed move of the San Francisco Giants to Toronto.

"It's obvious that I was in a position where I had to keep the league apprised of any developments," he said. "We had a temporary restraining order here which kept us from discussing Toronto, and San Francisco was trying to get local buyers. The owners were told everything that was happening."

In response to Busch's comment that the American League was becoming more influential than the National League, Feeney said:

"Our attendance is up again this year and we're outdrawing the American League by more than a million fans."

He said, "The reason the designated hitter will be used in alternate World Series is because Bowie Kuhn had his mind made up to go along with the American League. We raised our objections during the meetings."

Stockton vaults 30 spots on cash list

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI)—Dave Stockton's PGA Championship not only earned him a place in the World Series of Golf but his winning purse of $45,000 boosted him from 51st to 21st place on the tour money-winning list, the PGA said Tuesday.

Stockton now has accumulated $89,262 this season after his win at Bethesda's Congressional Country Club. He will participate in the World Series Sept. 25 at Akron, Ohio's Firestone Country Club.

Ben Crenshaw, who led for eight in the PGA, remained the money leader with earnings of $29,201. Ray Floyd and Don January split $40,000 for their co-runnerup spots at the PGA and each climbed several places on the money list. Floyd, the Masters champion, just made the top-10—from 17th—with $118,746, while January, over the $100,000 mark for the first time in his 20 years on the tour, jumped from ninth to sixth with $139,380.

Behind Crenshaw in the top 10 are Hubert Green, $190,404; Hale Irwin, $189,227; Al Geiberger, $162,759; Jack Nicklaus, $161,769; January; Jerry Pate, $138,232; J.C. Snead, $125,457; Mark Hayes, $123,523; and Floyd.

Oilers not worried

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Houston Oilers' coach Bum Phillips Tuesday said he will institute no drastic changes in training camp or in preseason game strategy despite three previous losses.

"No reason to change things," said Phillips, before he watched his Oilers' pre-opening and afternoon practices.

His film study of the latest loss convinced him the Oilers were working hard.

"I thought lack of effort was holding us back Saturday night, but I've changed my mind after seeing the films," he said. "We are getting good effort at the point of attack."

Phillips pointed out that the New York Giants, who beat Houston 30-14 last Saturday, gained an average of 3 1/2 yards per rush.

"We led the league last year with 1.8," he said.

The team sustained no serious injuries in the Giants game, and trainers said two starters who were held out of that game, running back Ronnie Coleman and middle guard Curly Culp, could play this Saturday night against the New York Jets.

Sparky cons way to NL titles

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sparky Anderson tells you straight out he's a "cons man." One of the best, he says. Go up to some other manager and call him that and he's liable to punch you in the nose. Not Sparky Anderson. He admits he's one, but he can't be all bad because when it comes to winning ball games, which still is the chief way they judge people in his business, he now stands as the most successful manager ever to set foot in the National League.

His approach to his job is what makes Sparky Anderson so good at it. To him, there are no better ballplayers anywhere than his own ballplayers, the Cincinnati Reds. He's always, pumping them up, never telling you what he contributes. He ignores himself so much when he talks about his ball club, he sometimes sounds like an outsider, and maybe that's where the "cons" in him comes in.

Some ballplayers can go for weeks on one pat on the back. A guy like Sparky Anderson realizes that and makes the most of it. The big reason most of the California Angels turned on Dick Williams before he was paid all a couple weeks ago was because he stripped them of their confidence, telling them right to their face they had no business calling themselves big leaguers. The Angels came close to revolting.

Sparky Anderson never runs down his players. He always builds them up, sometimes loudly.

"It's gotten me into a lotta trouble," he confesses. "I honestly believe we have the best ball club and have said that right along. When you say that before the season even begins, in effect, you're saying you gotta win. You're putting your head on the block as to what you're doing. Truthfully, though, isn't that what the fun of life is all about? What are you supposed to do, go around worrying about being fired all the time? To me, the worst word I keep hearing is 'security.' Wouldn't it be awful to go to the office every day and have you have complete security? You're your own best security. You hire yourself and you fire yourself."

"Nobody could put it any better. Baseball is an elimination contest, which makes it similar to life itself. A ballplayer or manager eliminates himself by what he does in his job. It is that different from a President or Vice President of the United States—eliminating himself by what he does?"

Not so long ago, Sparky Anderson became involved in a discussion about his ball club with Jerry Coleman, the former second baseman for the Yankees now doing the play-by-play for the Padres. They talked about how strong the Reds were and so forth they were comparing them with some of the Yankee pennant-winners Coleman was with in the '50's.

"Behind the plate, they agreed it was a loss-up where Tony Berra and Johnny Bench. Berra is in the Hall of Fame already and Bench will join him there some day," said Anderson.

There was another push at first base between Bill Skowron and Tony Perez, but at second base, Coleman laughingly told Anderson, "the difference there is like day and night, and I know you'll take Joe Morgan over me."

They could come to no clear-cut agreement of Shortstop where Anderson wouldn't concede Phil Rizzuto over Dave Concepcion. Over at third base Coleman couldn't possibly argue for anybody with the Yankees over Pete Rose. Anderson feels Rose will go into the Hall of Fame on the first ballot and he's probably right.

"We gotta get (Mickey) Mantle in somewhere," the Reds' manager made his first concession to Coleman in the outfield. He didn't give him anything else, though.

Bank Bauer played right field all the time Coleman was with the Yankees and Gene Woodling, Irv Noren, Elston Howard and Enos Slaughter were among those in left, and while Sparky Anderson agreed they were good ballplayers, he said he'd have to take George Foster over anyone "this year" and Ken Griffey as well "because of his speed and all the other things he can do."

Finally, Coleman and Anderson got to the pitching—Vic Raschi, Alie Reynolds and Ed Lopat for the Yankees; Don Gilllett, Gary Nolan and Fred Norman for the Reds.

"There's no way to compare the pitchers then with the pitchers now," said Sparky Anderson. "How can you honestly compare pitchers in two different eras? You can't do it."

Sure you can, but you have to consider that was Sparky Anderson, self-confessed cons man, doing the talking.

SAGITARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You think that by changing plans you have made with a partner you will be ahead of the game, but this is not so. Study how to have a better image with the public in general.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to go off somewhere instead of taking care of obligations. Be wise and carry through instead. A co-worker could prove to be difficult, but smile and placate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Delve into that recreation that will not tax your pocketbook so much and which is tried and true. Show more kindness toward loved one for satisfying results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do not antagonize those at home. Make an effort to ease the tension that might arise there. Not a good day for starting new projects.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

—Praise be to the Belgian inventor Jacob Perleberger. He's the savvy fellow who figured out how the shipbuilders can prevent seasickness aboard Ships—simply by suspending all the seats, beds and deck chairs with special rigging from the overhead. Occupants in his special furniture don't swing and sway no matter how rough the sea. They just hang there, bright-eyed and serene, of digestion, befuddled by gravity.

Just about 88.8 percent of this country's population today is white with only 13.2 percent non-white. The ratio was quite different 200 years ago. About 80.7 percent of the population was white then with 19.3 percent non-white.

KANGAROO WORDS
Q. "What's a kangaroo word?"
A. A big word that has within it a smaller word that means the same thing. Take "destruction," for instance. In it is "ruin." Or try "prematurely." In it is "early." And "contaminated"—in it is "tainted." Or "barbaric"—in it is "barred." Note the spelling of the little words within the big words comes in natural order. Kangaroo words are easy to catch when you see them written down in front of you, but they're hard to figure out in your head while waiting at stop lights, for me, anyhow.

Q. "Everybody knows that the fabled jackalope is supposed to be a cross between a jackrabbit and an antelope, but what's a jackaroo?"
A. That's what the Australians call a greenhand cowboy.

Q. "Younger people generally tend to drink more than older people, right?"
A. More, yes. More frequently, no.

LOVE AND WAR
When a woman falls in business, she tends to blame herself. When a man falls in business, he's more likely to blame causes elsewhere. But when a woman falls in romance, she's apt to blame anything except herself. And when a man falls in romance, he's impelled to blame himself first, however secretly. This generality with all its exceptions, too, is in our Love and War man's special file labeled "When They Don't Make It."

Do you believe in life after death? So do 73 percent of this country's citizens, according to a recent poll. Sorry, it would be inappropriate to nominate Dr. Stasick of Hammond, Ind., for membership in the Proper Job Club... Median age of that professional lady listed on the Department of Labor rosters as "a household domestic" is 48.

WHEN YOUR FREEZER STOPS... WHAT THEN?

Consumer and Customer Advisor to the Presidential Smith's Food King

What to check to find your freezer door has been left open, accidentally for a number of hours... or that someone has opened the door to check on the contents. Occasionally there is an unexpected power failure, a little and things can happen to cause foods in a home freezer to thaw. The question is, what can and cannot be saved?

The "thaw" the freezer is, the longer the foods will keep frozen when the power goes off.

If you find the power off for some reason, try to get the freezer door closed and start the power. In an emergency you may be able to keep the food sufficiently chilled for up to two days if the freezer is full. It might help to cover the freezer with newspapers and blankets (completely for a night or two).

Here are some precautions for specific foods:

- Meat: If left unfrozen, meats, fruits, bakes and acid type foods may be reheated. Meats may be cooked when refrozen and thawed. If desired, make pan.
- Vegetables: If left unfrozen, avoid using poultry, seafood, vegetables, cream soups or desserts etc.

In case your individual power may sometime be off for more than 2 to 3 days, be prepared. Ask now into a nearby frozen food locker. You may want to make a quick transfer. (Dry ice on top of food in freezer will also prolong freezer storage life up to 3 days in emergency.)

Be careful of your freezer during this big freezing season - please don't take chances. If you have other questions, call me on the Red Phone. We really want to be your favorite store.
