House panel sets Teton Dam visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee on water and power resources will visit the collapsed Teton Dam in southeastern Idaho Friday and Saturday, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said today.

It is the committee that approved the construction of the dam in 1961, Hansen said.

Hansen said the committee members will visit claims centers in addition to making on-site inspections.

Oneda storms generate flooding

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — Severe thunderstorms in Oneda County Sunday night caused flash flooding which blocked roads in the Elkhorn and Pahsimero areas northwest of Malad.

Mud and rock from flash floods had to be removed from roads by county road crews before travel was restored.

Officials also reported some crop damage from a hailstorm in the same area.

Hearnes choice

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Former Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes returned to the political arena Saturday with the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

He replaces the late Rep. Jerry L. Linton, who defeated Hearnes in the Aug. 3 primary but died in an airplane crash the same day. Hearnes was elected by party officials to fill the vacancy.

S. Africa riot squads fire on blacks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African riot squads opened fire today on gangs of club-swinging blacks who forced thousands of fellow blacks in Soweto township to stay away from their jobs in Johannesburg in a "general strike."

At least one black rioter was killed by gunfire and unconfirmed reports said others suffered gunshot wounds. More than 250 persons have been killed and over 1,200 injured in nine weeks of anti-government demonstrations.

Guadeloupe volcano spews stones

POINTE A PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI) — Authorities lifted a storm alert today for this French Caribbean island but La Soufriere volcano spewed baseball-sized stones and ash and the earth trembled along its slopes.

Authorities said Tropical Storm Emmy, which had been heading for Guadeloupe, had veered northwest and would miss the island. However, storm alerts were maintained for St. Martin and St. Bartholomew 100 miles to the north.

Crash victim

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Former President Juscelino Kubitschek, 73, whose administration planned and built the futuristic inland capital of Brasilia, was killed Sunday night in an auto accident.

A simple burial without official ceremonies was planned at Brasilia today. Police said Kubitschek and his chauffeur were killed when their car swerved across a median, hit a truck, and burned.

Fire damages TF mobile home

TWIN FALLS — Six firemen and two trucks huddled a one-alarm fire which caused over $10,000 to $24,000 damage to a mobile home at 1515 Kimberly Road Sunday.

Responding to a call at 4:31 p.m., firemen extinguished a blaze at the Pioneer Trailer Court 1 1/2 hours later.

Wayne Grubman, owner of the home, was driving clothes in a washer and dryer room connected to the mobile home when the fire broke out there, a fire official said.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Schools open Tuesday, facing the potential bedlam of double shifts for high school and many junior high students.

School officials admit they won't know how much disruption the unprecedented multiple shifting will cause, but are remaining cool and collected.

Beginning Tuesday, students who formerly attended O'Leary Junior High School which has been temporarily closed as a fire hazard will attend classes in the afternoons at the Twin Falls High School building.

Once the high school schedule begins on Friday there will be five separate school schedules in operation in Twin Falls.

High school students will attend classes in the morning. O'Leary Junior High School students will go to the high school in the afternoons. Elementary and Robert Stuart Junior High School students will attend a normal school day in the morning and afternoon. And kindergarten students will attend half-day sessions in either the morning or afternoon.

Beliequered school buses will carry students to each of these shifts.

The most disruptive effects are expected to fall on parents who have children at two, three or even four grade levels. These homes will be turned into bus stations — for arriving and departing students, with parents expected to have difficulty scheduling their own activities around those of their children.

Deck Kirkman, owner of Kirkman Brothers School Transportation, said today he has talked to parents who have students in all four grade levels from kindergarten to high school.

But while the parents are "leaving their hair out," Kirkman said, they are also being unusually cooperative.

"People are accepting it in fine shape," he said. "I haven't talked to one mad parent. They're realizing it's an emergency, and they're accepting it."

Kirkman said the school buses are set to run tomorrow morning for elementary and Robert Stuart Junior High students, who will be picked up along their regular routes beginning at 7:30 a.m.

Buses also have been routed for O'Leary students and afternoon kindergarten students, who will be picked up beginning at 12:05 p.m. The O'Leary students will be taken home from the high school at 6 p.m., while the kindergartners will be taken home along with the elementary and Stuart kids beginning at 7:20 p.m.

Kirkman's carefully worked out schedules for school's starting will have to be scrapped next week, however, when high schoolers start riding the buses. The high schoolers will be picked up beginning at 6 a.m.

Kirkman said current schedules will have to be reworked over the weekend to accommodate the high schoolers.

"I have no idea where the high school students live," he said.

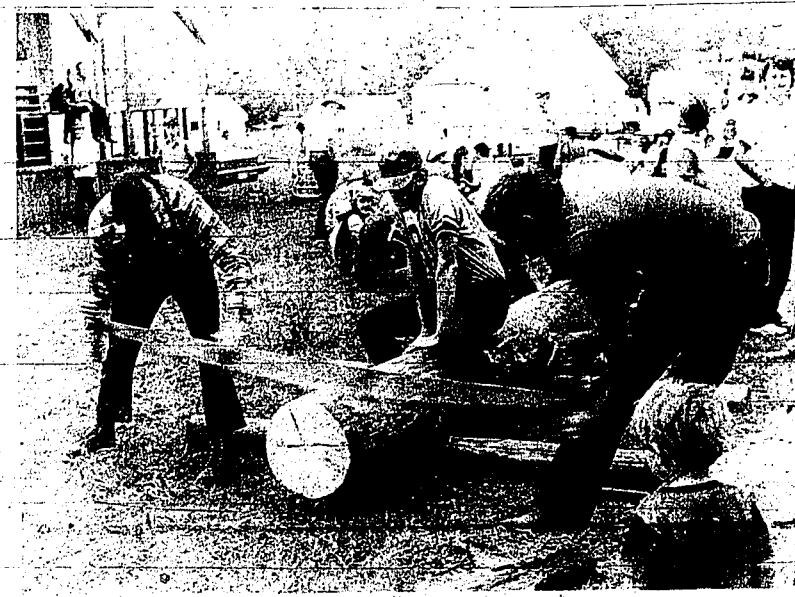

While the high school officially starts classes Friday, Kirkman will not bus the high school students until Monday, leaving them on one day to get to school on their own.

The high school students will be completing registration prior to Friday. They will then attend classes from 6:50 a.m. to noon and try to clear the building before the O'Leary students start classes at 12:30 p.m.

The double-shifting will throw the school district's O'Leary and high school programs out of whack, but according to Superintendent George Staudacher and administrators are in good spirits about the whole thing.

"The teachers met today for orientation, and after the meeting Staudacher was optimistic."

"The teachers are happy and cooperative," he said. "And I really think they're going to try to do the best they can. They were in good spirits this morning."

Fairfield cut-ups

GEORGE HARRISON, left, and Bob Mullerberg put their all into the big sawing contest at Fairfield Sunday. Other contestants, using both his cross-cut and chain saws, were undaunted by heavy showers throughout the afternoon. The contests were held in conjunction with the Camas County fair. Brent Van Sikke sits on the log.

N. Korea flays US moves

TOKYO (UPI) — A leading North Korean newspaper called President Ford a "boss of war" today and denounced the dispatch of a U.S. naval task force into North Korean waters as a "criminal act" threatening peace in Korea.

The Reding Simman commentary was carried by the Korean Central News Agency, North Korea's official news agency. In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

The North Korean broadcast came after a Seoul government spokesman said South Korea agreed with the United States that a message by North Korean President Kim Il sung expressing regret for the slaying of two U.S. officers by North Koreans was unacceptable.

Military authorities said the United States and South Korea kept their troops on a high state of alert today despite the North Korean president's message.

The North Korean news agency quoted the newspaper as saying:

"Ford, boss of war, sent a U.S. naval task force with the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Midway carrying some 100 planes and guided missiles as the axe into the waters of the northern half of the republic and proclaimed an emergency alert order in the whole waters of Korea."

"This cannot but seriously affect developments."

The commentary denounced the naval move as an "adventurous military action." It said the move, combined with the ordering of U.S. and South Korean ground forces on alert, "displayed in perfect combat posture at the attacking positions along the military demarcation line."

It has a clear bearing on the present tension.

(In a separate dispatch KCNA said officers and common soldiers of the (North) Korean Peoples Army stand ready to annihilate the U.S. imperialists if they touch off a new war.

Military officials said 42,000 U.S. troops in South Korea and the 600,000-man South Korean armed forces maintained increased alert status.

"Our forces remain on an increased alert status," said a spokesman for the American military command. Other than that, U.S. officials kept a security blackout of information on all U.S. military activities in and around Korea.

Officials declined to disclose the location of a U.S. 7th Fleet force consisting of the aircraft carrier Midway, one guided-missile cruiser and four frigates which was reported to be somewhere in the Japan Sea off Korea.

Protests continued in South Korea against the incident that occurred last Wednesday and in which North Korean guards at the fence village of Panmunjom attacked American personnel with axes in a dispute over the trimming of a tree and killed two U.S. officers and injured four other Americans and five South Korean soldiers.

The United States and South Korea rejected as unacceptable the message from Kim received Saturday when U.S. Navy Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudren and North Korean Army Maj. Gen. Han Ju kyong met in a private session at Panmunjom. They are senior delegates of the Korean Military Armistice Commission.

Kim's message did not offer any apologies for the assault — it simply said: "... It is regretful that an incident occurred in the joint security area at Panmunjom this time. An effort must be made so that such incidents may not recur in the future. For this purpose both sides should make efforts."

Landing orders for Viking II

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Commands were shot across more than 225 million miles of space today to Viking 2 for its Sept. 3 landing on a frozen Martian plain called Utopia.

Viking 2 will duplicate the life-seeking experiments of its sister ship which has been in a more southerly area of the red planet for 33 Martian days.

Viking 2 will have less time for the first sequence of experiments. The corona of the sun, the outer layer of gases, will come between the planets about mid-November and stop communications between Earth and Mars.

Project scientists said some of the communications have already shown "degrading" as the sun approaches conjunction between the planets.

The computer commands beamed to Viking 2 today are for its separation from the orbiter and its touchdown. The orbiter will continue to circle and photograph the planet.

An orbit trim to "purge the spacecraft" to the correct position over its landing site is scheduled for Wednesday. On Friday, Sept. 3, on command from the stored data, the lander will fire a quik rocket burst and move slowly away from the orbiter, ascend across the red skyline of Mars and use a parachute and retro rockets to land.

Gem vied boom looming

TWIN FALLS — Within five years, four out of five Idaho high school students will be in vocational, instead of academic, college prep programs, state vocational education officials predict.

According to Idaho Vocational Education Director Roy Irons, about 44 per cent of the state's high school students today are enrolled in some sort of vocational training program. By 1981, he says he expects that figure to climb to 80 per cent.

Irons is not speaking of students who take an occasional sewing or typing class. He is speaking of those students who are or will be pursuing a defined vocational objective. He is talking about those high schoolers studying to become practical nurses, auto mechanics, welders and food technicians.

The emphasis on vocational education is not taking place just in the high schools — offices on the college level, he says, the percentages are less impressive, but demand for classes far exceeds available training slots.

As a "rule of thumb," Irons points out, the demand for college classes in vocational fields is about double the available space. He expects the 12 per cent of college students now taking vocational programs in the state to double in the next five years as facilities and staff are added. The amount of money spent on vocational education has already almost doubled in the last three years, and nobody expects a turnaround.

In the 1973-74 academic year, the state budgeted just over $7 million for vocational programs — not to mention the amounts spent by local school districts. The state's vocational budget for next year is projected at just over $12 million.

While these funds sound impressive, they don't go too far. Vocational education, or vied as it is tagged, is expensive, often much more expensive than traditional academic programs.

One reason is that classes must be kept small. Voc-ed students work with tools and specialized machinery — and the instructors must work individually with each student. The vied-as-of-teacher can't lecture to large groups of students as some academic instructors can.

Equipment and space are expensive too. Diesel engine analyzers and welding kits cost money, and most of the students can't work at a desk.

At the College of Southern Idaho — where the state just concluded its annual vocational conference, a new vocational building is nearly complete. But that building cost almost $2.5 million, and its 100,000 feet of floor space will serve only about 300 students and staff. Triple that much floor space could serve many more academic students and teachers.

Still, the high cost is not likely to stem the rash tide of vocational programs. And for a very simple reason — they work and cost less.

According to Irons, a 1974 follow-up study of college students who had completed vocational training showed 90 per cent of the students were employed in the field for which they were trained or a related field.

Of the 20 per cent who were not employed, Irons said, 15 per cent were continuing with full-time education, 3 per cent were unemployed, 4 per cent were not available for employment because of marriage, military service or some other reason. The status of 5 per cent was unknown.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Two American diplomats met with Lebanese resident Suleiman Franjeh today, reopening U.S. contacts with the country's militant Christian leadership, a rightist radio station said.

First steps on campaign trail for Ford, Carter

By United Press International
 The race is on. President Ford and Jimmy Carter, two men almost no one would have picked four years ago as candidates for the White House, have begun their three-month march into history.
 Debates—often mentioned but seldom used by presidential candidates, eluded much of the early planning time by both camps during the week-end.
 While broad outlines for the fall campaign were sketched, Ford and Carter named emissaries to work out details for the face-off expected to begin Sept. 28 in St. Louis under the

Await signal
 MODERATE and progressive Republicans are awaiting a "signal from Yale" to join the presidential campaign of President Ford, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland said in a television interview Sunday. Mathias is a member of the party's liberal wing (UPI) auspices of the League of Women Voters.

 Ford, vacationing in Yali, Colo., is sending an aide to Washington Thursday and Carter will send his press secretary, Jeff Powell, to meet with him and the League's representatives in preparation for the encounter.
 The President opens political strategy planning today in meetings with top aides Rogers C.B. Morton and Stuart Spencer. Carter is in a area where we didn't campaign as extensively during the primaries," aides said.
 The outline of Carter's fall strategy appeared to call for major efforts in California, the industrial midlands and the Northeast, a reflection of Carter's confidence that he can return his native South to the Democratic column this year.

His aides said Carter's concerted, post-Label Day effort will begin with an appearance at Warm Springs, Ga. because of its famed connection to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and its role as a polio treatment center "in healing and a mission of compassion," a favorite Carter theme.
 In a speech at Town Hall Forum today in Los Angeles, Carter was expected to further discuss points he will be stressing throughout the campaign.
 Briefing reporters Sunday, Powell said "battleground" areas for the Democratic nominee will be California, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, stretching through New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts.
 "We'll be hitting almost every area of the country every week with some member of the campaign team," he said, adding that Carter's polls show him leading Ford in all parts of the country.
 The President spent the weekend playing golf and tennis and Press Secretary Don Nessen said he plans to "take it easy for one more day."
 Sources said Ford would be briefing up his campaign team during the week ahead.
 Vice presidential nominee Robert Dole, in an interview with Time magazine, saw the Ford campaign team as a problem.
 "I haven't met a person in the campaign yet that has a broad view," he told Time. "Jerry Ford is a very decent, honest, open President. He just isn't the type of guy to go around knocking heads together. But the President's got to do it."

Candidate
 LESTER Maddox, the Atlanta restaurant owner and former Georgia governor, planned to announce his candidacy for a third party presidential nomination today. He says he will be elected "if the people really want the truth." (UPI)

Bus drivers OK package

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A second shutdown of the city's bus, trolley and cable car service in four months has been averted with ratification of a $5.4 million salary package by union drivers.
 Larry Martin, president of Local 250 A of the Transport Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, said Sunday night that the vote was 790 to 564.
 The 1,900 drivers had been set to strike Friday, but postponed the action to vote on a package offered by the city Board of Supervisors only minutes before the 12:01 a.m. deadline.
 The pact, to be in effect for a year, boosted the hourly rate 57 cents to $7.46. The board made a $100,000 contribution to the union's cost of living fund, and a seventh paid holiday was given the drivers.

Dole could bridge party chasm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russell, Kansas: The town where the GOP vice presidential nominee, Sen. Bob Dole, grew up is seven miles south of the 39th degree latitude and anyone who marches directly east will run into the White House.
 But there's half a continent between the brick-paved Main Street and the White House.
 There seems to be as wide a gap between the humble, teary-eyed native son who last Friday sobbed in the courthouse square at the generosity of his neighbors 29 years ago and the wisecracking 16-year veteran of "Capitol Hill whose wit deprecates both Democrats and himself."
 Bob Dole is the one who said of President Ford two years ago while fighting for reelection to the Senate, that "I was struggling and he threw me an anchor."
 Bob Dole is also the man plucked from the lower reaches of the vice-presidential-guessing list by the same President Ford, who made it possible for Dole to return to Russell and weep without shame when he recalled, "When I needed help, the people of Russell helped."
 As a freshman senator, he defended President Nixon at every opportunity and, as head of the Republican National Committee, issued press releases in 1972 accusing George McGovern of campaign finance violations.
 A Ford partisan at the convention, Dole also was close to Ronald Reagan. An old friend, Lynn Nofziger, was Reagan's convention manager. He jokingly offered Dole the No. 2 spot on a Reagan ticket.

 "I have a good conservative philosophy," he said last week after his selection as Ford's running mate. "But not so conservative as (former GOP) liberals."
 — Face the Nation
 "If I bring anything to the ticket, it's my close identification with agriculture, small towns, rural America, and that would appeal to those areas to Democrats and independents."
 — Referring to the GOP convention: "It was sort of a frightening thing in a way because there was so much genuine enthusiasm. How do you bridge the gap between those who were strongly for Ford and those who felt strongly about Reagan? And I would guess that those who had a part in the selection process said, 'Well, maybe Bob Dole could be the bridge.' I would hope that it was a positive thing, not a negative thing — who would do us the least harm?" But I understand that may be a construction.
 "I've been aggressive in a partisan sense now and then selectively. But one criticism I've had of the Republican Party (is) we need more spokesmen out on the front lines. I found myself even more concerned that I wanted to be in an effort to defend an administration position or to take on a Democratic position, not the candidate."

Cuban agents suspected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A lawyer for slain underworld figure John Roselli told the FBI in 1967 his client, who said he was recruited by the CIA to kill Fidel Castro, believed agents of the Cuban leader were involved in the murder of President Kennedy, an FBI memo shows.
 The "blind memorandum" on an interview with Edward Morgan, Roselli's former lawyer, was included in last June's Senate Intelligence Committee report on the role of the intelligence community in the John F. Kennedy assassination investigation, that it did not identify Morgan at the interview.
 Contents of the memo were learned Sunday, Morgan told the FBI, according to the summary, that Roselli and another client were called on to participate in a government approved project aimed at assassinating Castro.

He said Castro employed "teams of individuals who were dispatched to the United States for the purpose of assassinating President Kennedy."
 Two weeks ago, the body of Roselli was found stuffed in a chain weighted, 55-gallon drum floating in a bay near Miami, Roselli had testified last year before the Senate Intelligence Committee that he and Chicago gangster Sam Giancana were hired by the CIA to recruit Cubans to kill Castro.
 Giancana was murdered in his home outside Chicago last year just before he was to testify before a Washington panel.
 In a related development, closed door testimony released by a Senate subcommittee Sunday, said teams of militant pro- and anti-Castro Cuban groups in the Miami, Fla., area are engaged in terrorist activities both in and outside the United States.

Foreign tie evidence not found

© N.Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — Justice Department prosecutors have seen "no evidence" that the Federal Bureau of Investigation's search for fugitive members of the Weathermen, an underground organization, was motivated by the group's purported links to hostile foreign governments, sources close to the department's investigation of the bureau said Sunday.
 The issue of whether the fugitive group has been directed or supported by foreign governments has been raised by Jack B. Solorwitz, a lawyer for about 20 FBI agents who have become subjects of a Justice Department investigation into burglaries they carried out against friends and relatives of the fugitives over the last three years.
 Solorwitz asserted last week that such connections had existed between the Weathermen fugitives and "foreign hostile governments."
 Other FBI sources have said that the bureau was "not jumping to gather evidence of those links as a prelude to demonstrating, under statutes and court decisions in force at the time, that the break-ins were legal."
 But one source familiar with the prosecutors' thinking said Sunday that none of the FBI documents requesting or granting permission for the burglaries, which occurred in the New York City area between 1970 and 1973, had suggested or alluded to such foreign connections to the Weathermen's fall rationale for their commission.

Arab summit gains support

CAIRO — Half of the member nations of the Arab League have agreed to attend a summit conference of Arab leaders on Lebanon. Only one more assent is needed for the meeting to be called.

An Arab League spokesman said Sunday that Bahrain and North Yemen had joined eight other countries in supporting the summit.

Not since the Rabat conference of 1974 have the sheiks, kings and presidents who rule the Arab world assembled at a summit. At Rabat, the Palestinian Liberation Organization was recognized as the only representative of the Palestinian people.

Soviets' robot returns

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet scientists guided a robot rocket carrying lunar samples in a successful landing in Siberia Sunday after a three-day journey from the moon, Tass announced today.

A six-foot core of soil and rock contained in a sealed box aboard the Luna 24 rocket was the first lunar soil to reach the Soviet Union since the Luna 20 mission in February, 1972. The last Soviet rocket gathering mission failed when Luna 23 crashed into the moon's surface.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, described the Luna 24 mission as "a new success for Soviet science and technology in exploration of the moon."

It was the eighth Soviet moon landing. The Soviets have never put men on the moon — in contrast to the six American manned missions — saying they think robot exploration is cheaper and safer.

But the two Soviet cosmonauts today spent their 48th day in Earth orbit aboard the Salyut 5 space station. Western experts believe they are seeking to break the 63-day Soviet record for a stay in space and possibly the American record of 84 days.

Tass said the Luna 24 mission "has been fulfilled completely" and the moon samples will be turned over to the USSR Academy of Sciences for research.

Luna 24 was launched Aug. 9 and soft landed onto the moon's Sea of Crises nine days later.

After the station's landing, the soil-scooping device, at the command from the ground, drilled lunar soil to a depth of about two meters," Tass said. "Samples were put in a hermetic container of the return craft."

It touched down at 8:35 p.m. Moscow time, 11:55 a.m. MDT Sunday, parachutes braking its descent from nine miles, at a point 120 miles southeast of the Siberian town of Surgut. Surgut is 1,300 miles east of Moscow.

The mission indicated continuing Soviet interest in moon research, which the United States virtually abandoned after its manned landings

World's end not at hand, scientists say

By United Press International

The death toll from the wave of earthquakes — volcanic eruptions and other natural calamities around earth this year is the highest since 1970, but scientists don't think it is a sign of the end of the world is near.

Sismologists, among them experts at renowned institutes in Sweden, the United States, Japan, Italy and the Philippines, disagree as to whether the activity is unusual or if one cataclysm triggers another.

Mix in some strange weather patterns and one could be forgiven for thinking all is not well. Japan is having cool spells in midsummer, normally damp Britain is in a severe drought which has hit Western Europe to a lesser degree and in East Europe temperatures are lower and rain higher than normal.

The London Meteorological Office says there's up cause for alarm because projections show no significant change in global weather conditions. And the Japan Meteorological Agency says the possibility it may be cooler than usual in Europe for the next 10 or 20 years shouldn't worry anyone too much.

What most scientists agree on is that more people have felt the shuddering and bursting of the earth's crust in recent weeks than is usually the case thus causing more attention.

"As many as 30,000 lives have been lost in quakes this year, three times higher than the average. The agency lists 67,000 deaths from quakes in Peru and Turkey in 1970.

According to the U.S. Geological Survey, the toll this year includes 23,000 killed in Guatemala Feb. 4, 900 deaths in northeastern Italy May 6, 600 deaths in Bali, Indonesia, July 14 and more than 3,750 in the Philippines last week.

Not included are victims of China's July 27-28 and May 17 major quakes. There also has been no confirmation of accounts of 9,000 killed in western New Guinea after a June 25 quake in the so-called "Ring of Fire," which has the highest level of volcanic and quake activity.

The survey said there have been 37 "significant" earthquakes registering 6.5 or stronger on the open-ended Richter scale in 1976. Of that number, 10 were labeled "major" quakes measuring 7.0 to 7.9 and three were "great" earthquakes of 8.0 or higher.

The long-term average is about 16 to 18 major earthquakes and one great quake per year.

A survey official said the number of major and great quakes reported this year has doubled since June, but not enough is known to determine whether the changing pace in worldwide earthquake activity is significant.

Prof. Markku Båth, head of Sweden's Uppsala University's Geological Institute, said, "The quakes so far this year are not above the long-term average. What has happened is that the tremors have struck highly populated areas and the death tolls are higher than usual."

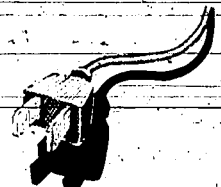

Båth said the movement in one of what scientists call "tectonic plates" — there are about a half-dozen of them covering the earth's surface — may create a release of tension, along earthquake in another distant area.

Prof. Romolo Romano of the International Institute of Volcanology in Catania, Sicily, at the foot of Mt. Etna, goes further.

"It seems certain," he said, "that the earthquake in the Philippines and the volcanic eruption in Guatemala (in the Caribbean air phenomena connected with the recent earthquakes in China."

Shigeo Suyehiro, chief of Japan's Meteorological Agency earthquake section, and Wellington Mousa, chief of the Philippines' Geophysical

Thai students triumph

Chicago Daily News

BANGKOK, Thailand — Cheers thundered across the soccer field as clenched fists were raised in a tribute to student power.

The voice of Thailand's students rang loud and clear on the campus of Thammasat University Sunday after learning that former military strongman Prapass Charusa Phien had left the country to return to exile in Taiwan.

The cheers erupted from more than 4,000 student demonstrators at the rally site surrounded by a picket of armed policemen. Once again the students had stood their ground — and won.

But as usual, the victory was costly: 2 dead and 60 wounded.

Saturday's rally of 7,000 students to protest the presence of the 64-year-old former deputy prime minister exploded into a pistol-and-grenade battle between left-wing students and those right-wing students who supported the return of Prapass.

The anti-Prapass demonstrators were backed by the National Student Center of Thailand (NSCT), the same group that spearheaded the so-called "Black Sunday" uprising of October 14, 1973, that overthrew the military regime headed by Thanom Kittikachorn and Prapass. Both men fled, along with other key leaders, into exile.

His return was a reminder of the old days and ways that have since been replaced by a democratic form of government.

Duralon Steel Radials

The name "Duralon" — The name, Duralon, on any tire means its been inspected, tested, checked and double checked time and time again. It means craftsmanship with a tradition of excellence.

A deep, tough tread
Deep? Yes. The tread's at least 25% deeper than our former radial tire (which was generally under-treaded). And tough? Well, our engineers have come through with a tread compounding formula that's so tough it's top secret.

Special radial tread design
A radial tire is something special. So we give it a special tread design—one that has all the grooves and curves this radial needs to perform its utmost. It's been tested not only for traction but for such things as "rolling resistance" and quietness—shhh.

Tax settlement set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gloria Swanson, 77, who acted in her first silent movie in 1913, has agreed to pay 35 cents on the dollar to settle a dispute with the Internal Revenue Service over alleged discrimination against single taxpayers.

Miss Swanson's lawyer, David H. Shelton, said Sunday that U.S. Tax Court Judge Howard A. Dawson last week accepted a settlement in which she will pay $3,067.13 to settle alleged income tax deficiencies from 1969 and 1970. The IRS said she owed $14,447.27.

He said Miss Swanson wanted to prove that federal income tax laws and the penalty assessed against her discriminated against unmarried persons.

The tax law has since been changed.

Canadian visitors

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his wife, Margaret, are spending three days in Jordan as the private guests of King Hussein.

Hussein, Queen Alia and members of the Jordanian government greeted the couple at the airport Sunday.

During his stay, Trudeau will review Canadian and Jordanian economic relations and discuss with Hussein ways of further strengthening relations between the two countries.

Royal pardon

WEARE, N.H. (UPI) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II apparently is willing to forgive a little act of rebellion 201 years ago.

On April 14, 1772, a fine of 20 shillings was levied against eight Weare men for beating a royal sheriff and his deputy.

The so-called Pine Tree Riot occurred after one of the woodsmen was arrested for illegally cutting trees in a white pine forest owned by King George III.

The fine remained unpaid until recently when the Weare Historical Society sent a check for $1,000. The current value of 20 shillings is 10 pence.

The Queen returned the check "with much appreciation."

Industrialist Komsuke Matsushita, 81, founder of and adviser to Matsushita Electric Corp., came from Japan to be honorary Grand Marshal.

Treatment halt slated

VALE, Colo. (UPI) — The best cancer treatments Betty Ford has been taking for the past two years will end in October, her doctor said Sunday.

William Lukish, the White House physician, said there has been no recurrence of cancer and so doctors will stop the chemotherapy at the First Lady's underground since her breast cancer surgery on Sept. 20, 1974.

Mr. Ford learned she had cancer a little more than a month after President Ford took office. She had her right breast removed in an operation at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

However, Mrs. Ford has been showing the effects of a severe flareup of the chronic osteoarthritis neck ailment since she arrived in White House.

Friday, Mrs. Ford had a recurrence of her 45-year-old pinched nerve condition which was aggravated at the GOP National Convention, where she was constantly in the spotlight, waving and smiling.

She has been walking stiffly and appears to be wearing a neck collar.

Bus driver 'humble hero'

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (UPI) — Ed Ray couldn't even finish his lunch at the big barbecue in his honor.

The townspeople kept stepping up to him, slapping him on the back and saying: "Thank you," "Good going," "Congratulations."

And, as a humble hero, he took time out to acknowledge each accolade as he sat at his table in the Modern County Fairgrounds. His roast beef and beans got cold.

"Ed Ray and Children's Day."

The celebration, which included a parade down the main street of this small San Joaquin County farm community and an awards ceremony, was to honor bus driver Ray who safely led 26 children from an underground prison in which they had been placed by kidnappers.

On July 15, they were abducted by Ray, 55, drove them home in his Danville School District bus after a summer session. They were placed in a buried van in Livermore, 100 miles north of here.

There are three suspects in custody, and their case will be presented to the Modern County Grand Jury this week. There could be indictments by Wednesday.

"It's different than anything that's happened to me before," the soft-spoken veteran bus driver said after the festivities. "I didn't really know how to react to all the attention, but it sure felt good."

Some 5,000 persons paid $1 each for the barbecue which consisted of roast beef, beans, peach halves and tortilla chips.

"We know it would have ended differently if Ed had not been with the kids," the father of one victim said. "I guess we can thank God and Ed for their safe return."

Ray was given nine awards and citations during an hour-long awards ceremony. And there was thundering applause after each presentation.

Twenty-four of the children, who ranged in age from five to 14, were on the speakers' stand with Ray. The other two children were away on vacation.

And the kids squirmed in their seats, giggled and whispered to each other. There was even an occasional spit-ball.

Ray accepted each award with a quiet "Thank you." Even the reading of a letter from President Ford failed to change his humble demeanor.

However, he did break into a wide grin when he received a hand-written scroll from the 26 children themselves.

The scroll contained a hand-drawn picture of a bus and the signatures of each child.

And it said simply: "Thank you, Mr. Ray."

Mother, tots die in apartment fire

CHICAGO (UPI) — A mother and six small children died in a burning West Side apartment building early Sunday.

One child was slightly injured while trying to escape.

About nine other occupants in the three-story brick building escaped, some by leaping from second-floor windows.

Authorities said the blaze broke out in the front second floor apartment and spread through an open door to two third floor apartments. The cause of the fire was undetermined and fire officials ordered a routine arson investigation.

Catherine Owens, 33, and her three children, Michael, 5, Darnell, 4, and Shannille, 2, were pronounced dead on arrival at Mt. Sinai hospital. Another son, Dwayne, 6, was transferred to the county hospital burn unit in critical condition.

Wheat growers ask Ford to double support floor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wheat growers urged President Ford Friday to double the government's price support floor for their crop to cope with surplus problems which they blame in part on Ford's temporary 1975 grain export embargo.

The National Association of Wheat Growers, in a telegram to the White House, urged Ford to instruct Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to raise the support floor for the next-record 1976 wheat crop from the present $1.50 a bushel to a new level of $3.

The plea was made public while Ford and GDP vice presidential nominee Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., were in Dole's wheat-growing home area.

National average wheat prices at the farm level in July were $3.33 a bushel, unchanged from a year earlier. But a grower spokesman said that with production currently estimated at only 2 percent below last year's record and prospective export sales for the coming year down from last season, prices in some areas are now at or below the $3 level.

This is less than it costs to produce the wheat, one farmer spokesman protested.

Don Woodward, president of the wheat group, told Ford the support hike is needed "to provide needed relief against further economic damage resulting from last year's government-imposed export restraints."

Woodward said Ford's temporary grain export embargo last year forced prices down more than $1 a bushel.

"It is a gross injustice to continue to penalize producers for these government actions...no one can reasonably expect producers to market current supplies at prices below the cost of production," he said.

Under the support loan program, farmers can get a loan from the government at the support rate to furnish harvest-time income and can store the crop. Later, the grower can repay the loan and redeem the grain for sale to commercial buyers, or he can elect to keep the loan money and give title to the grain to the government.

Grower leaders pointed out the Agriculture Department has estimated that surplus wheat stocks are expected to rise to over 900 million bushels by the end of the current marketing season next spring, the highest level since the early 1960's.

A spokesman said Butz will be asked to continue the proposed $3 support for the 1977 crop and to reactivate a land retirement program to cut production next season. He said the proposals made to Ford were approved at a wheat growers' executive committee meeting which ended Thursday in Denver.

Dairymen block housing project

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Six dairy farmers and their cows are holding up a new housing project a few blocks from Mexico City's stylish main avenue, Paseo de la Reforma.

Nobody seems able to explain how the cows got into the urban area — surrounded by skyscrapers — in the first place.

But architect Raul Octavio Mariscal has called them a nuisance. He said all but about 20 owners in the city's Tepic district have accepted the developers' offer of $40 a square yard to move off.

Among those who haven't are the six stable owners.

"They are physically supported by gangs of dairy workers, who have stopped a lot of work from being started," Mariscal complained.

Tree decay role called key

MOSCOW — A University of Idaho graduate student says the Whitebark pine's studies of decay organisms and the mountain pine beetle tend to show trees attacked by decay may be more susceptible to disease and insect attack.

David Kullavey, doctoral degree candidate in forest entomology, thinks a better understanding of decay organisms and their role in tree health is essential to improving tree crops in Idaho.

"Decay organisms may linger in the roots of dead trees for as long as 50 years, and may be distributed in the forest for long periods of time," the Whitebark pine fellow said. "Management of decay organisms distribution is not known."

Weed, flower preference reduces predators' help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Biological control of insect pests would be easier if bugs that destroy dangerous pests didn't like weeds better than field crops, a University of Idaho entomologist said Saturday.

Donald R. Scott told an audience at the 15th International Congress of Entomology, meeting in Washington, D. C., that the insect parasites and predators that feed on the destructive lygus bugs often ignore field crops because they find weeds and wildflowers more attractive as dining areas.

He said beneficial parasites pass up lygus nymphs invading alfalfa plants to eat those on weeds. Scott said the odor of certain weeds attracts the parasites.

Scott said lygus bugs attack important field crops and in the Pacific Northwest cause large economic losses to producers of seed crops.

Yet, the destructive lygus bug may help scientists find a new growth-regulator that stimulates crops to give bigger yields.

Scott said that by studying seeds damaged by lygus bugs, scientists may find a new growth-regulator which stimulates crops to give higher yields.

Farm aid pushed

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church has asked Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to "expedite aid and assistance" to Idaho farmers who suffered severe losses due to recent storms in Idaho.

In a telegram to Butz, Church said "in Latah County in North Idaho alone, 300 of the total of 600 farmers were in one way or another affected."

"He said of the 250,000 acres of farm land in the county, 100,000 acres were damaged with one-third of the total crop, 15,000 acres, being destroyed or damaged."

Church said wheat and barley damage is estimated to exceed $2.5 million.

Church told Butz, "In light of these shocking figures, I ask you to expedite aid and assistance to the affected areas of my state."

Although the chemistry of the growth-regulator is still unknown, Scott said seeds damaged by lygus bugs have been shown to produce greater yields, and the effects have been noted on beans and carrots.

Big gains in carrot yields have been obtained from planting seeds that were subjected to lygus feeding during development, Scott said.

He said much of the insect-damaged carrot seed failed to germinate but the plants which did grow produced "significant heavier roots."

Scott said his research at the Parma Research and Extension Center showed that lygus-punctured bean seed was also stimulated to give high yields, up to twice the size of crops grown from undamaged seed.

Research is now underway at the University of Idaho to attempt to "isolate the growth-regulator, and determine how it affects the seeds attacked by lygus bugs."

Sugar industry troubled

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico's sugar industry, already troubled by declining production and what producers call unrealistically low prices, has been hit by a new crisis.

Hundreds of sandals and shoes, most of them wearing straw hats, have been floating near the offices of the semi-official sugar commission office demanding wages allegedly owed them for the latest harvest.

"People are dying of hunger in the villages," one sugar cane worker told UPI near the offices of the National Sugar Industry Commission (CNIA).

He claimed he and thousands of other in sugar-growing states such as Vera Cruz, Michoacan, Morelos, Jalisco and Tamaulipas had not been paid for the 1975-76 harvest.

Yet in 1974, the country's sugar exports reportedly reached a record $240 million. Mexico was finding moves to establish a Latin American sugar cartel to establish prices on the world market. That idea apparently has been shelved at least temporarily.

The trouble seems to be a sharp drop in prices resulting from declining production.

In 1971, Mexico had a sugar reserve of 342,000 tons after exporting 533,000 tons and satisfying internal needs, according to Cristobal Perdomo, president of the National Sugar Chamber.

Last year the reserve had dropped to 103,000 tons. Only 137,000 tons were exported this year. "Exports will be nil because production will be barely enough for the country's needs," he claimed.

Explanations for the changing fortune have been varied.

Sugar mill operators have complained guarantee prices for their refined products have been too low. At about 8 cents U.S. a pound refined Mexican sugar is among the cheapest retailed anywhere in the world.

The millers have complained also that sugar cane growers are producing less to the acre. The growers are producing less to the acre. The growers have said they've had insufficient money to buy fertilizers.

Jose Miria Martinez, sugar industry union leader, said that between 1951 and 1958 production grew at an average of 7.5 per cent a year. In the past six years it had slumped to 0.9 per cent annually.

At the same time he claimed that national consumption had increased rapidly, helped by an approximately 3.5 per cent annual population increase.

Then last November, John D. Jacobs, agricultural attaché in the U.S. embassy, advised Washington that sugar was being smuggled into the U.S. from Mexico in "commercial quantities."

"The widespread disparity between controlled Mexican prices and the U.S. prices," Jacobs told the Department of Agriculture in 1974, "was responsible for the increased movement — both legally and illegally — of Mexican refined sugar into the United States."

Art forger claims clear conscience

LONDON (UPI) — Art forger Tom Keating, a white-bearded recluse of 52, said Friday his last 13 paintings were taken as genuine old masters. One sold for $42,000, and he said anybody who bought them for big money is a fool.

He said he left all the clues he could. "Under old paintings I have written my own name or the word 'fake' or even a rude remark if I felt the work would reach the target I was aiming for," he said in a letter to the London Times. Keating's forgeries have created a considerable stir since a Times correspondent linked him with 13 paintings supposed to be by the early 19th Century English artist Samuel Palmer.

One of these sold at Sotheby Parke Bernet, the world's top fine art auction firm, for $42,000 three years ago. Sotheby's accepted it as genuine and trumped the price as a new world auction record for a Palmer.

The British Antique Dealers' association set up a committee this week to investigate the authenticity, or lack of it, of the 13 paintings. Keating said many are his.

Furthermore, he said anyone taken in by "the crude daubs being marketed" as originals is a fool.

Used 20th Century paper for a 19th Century drawing, 18th Century paper for a Rembrandt, etc. This was to ensure that the work could not possibly long be taken for "the master" in question.

Keating wrote the Times from somewhere in western England, where he's vacationing on a motorized bicycle. "I do not deny these allegations," he said. "In fact, I openly confess to having done them—I flooded the market with the work of Palmer and many others, not for gain but simply as a protest."

He said he never sold his work as an original, and never "made any secret of my motivations."

His purpose, he said, was to fake paintings "simply as a protest against merchants who make capital out of those I feel proud to call by brother artists both living and dead."

"If my slight efforts have awoken the consciences of some, my own conscience is clear."

'Old hog caller' read GOP roll call

By MIKE FEINSLBER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Now that the Republican convention is over, Joe Bartlett admits there was a moment when he felt heat behind his shirt collar.

New Jersey demanded a poll of the delegation, and he had to call out each delegate's name—J. Aldrich, Couzart, Axwites, Crockett, Ammann, Platts, O'Della, Brunsinger, Kneiser, among them.

As he has at every GOP convention since 1960, Bartlett served as the "reading clerk."

He is the balding man with glasses who recites hours of many votes each delegation has cast for each candidate.

He does it in a voice so loud, so clear, so precise, so even, so unemotional, so lacking in inflection or variation that people stop him on the street to express astonishment.

"It is important to do it without inflection," he said. "Just coming up or going down at the end of a name is going to create a suggestion of sentiment so you have to be careful."

The New Jersey challenge turned out to be easy. "When I saw all those difficult names, I got a little hot under the collar," he said. "But we got through it."

He had prepared by studying the name of every delegate before the convention started. He is a perfectionist.

Stipend awarded to Mitchell

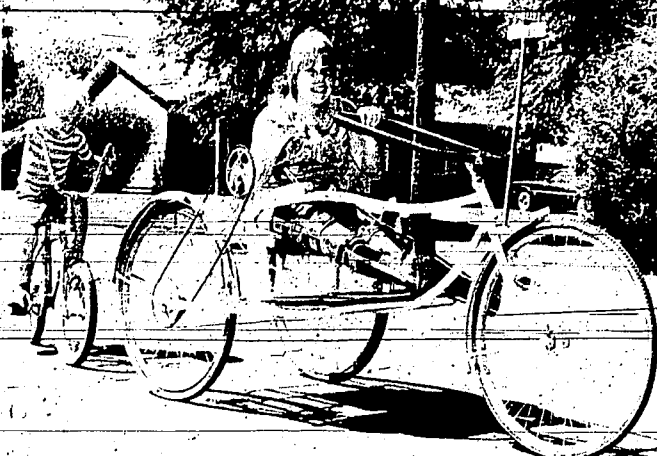

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls branch of the American Association of University Women has announced the awarding of a $200 scholarship to Kathy Mitchell.

Miss Mitchell has been selected to receive the Elizabeth Peasey scholarship given each year by the local organization. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Mitchell, Twin Falls, and plans to continue her education at the Idaho State University, Pocatello.

Miss Mitchell is majoring in elementary education. AAUW selects a sophomore from the College of Southern Idaho each year to receive the scholarship to continue her education.

The scholarship honors Mrs. Peasey, Twin Falls, a charter member of the Twin Falls AAUW branch.

Bears increase at Grand Teton

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — Readily available food at the end of the hibernation period and a regular four-year cycle of larger populations caused the increase in the number of grizzly and black bears at Grand Teton National Park, a park spokesman said.

Joe Shellenbarger, Grand Teton public information officer, said the park has a larger number of bears every three to four years.

In addition, a bear dispersal program in neighboring Yellowstone National Park has driven bears into Grand Teton Park and Bridger-Teton National Forest, Shellenbarger said.

The reports of grizzly bears this summer are the most frequent sightings in recent years, he said.

A bumper crop of white bark pine nuts were available as their bears, came out of hibernation and kept the bears in the area, said Shellenbarger.

"They simply gorged themselves on the pine seeds," he said, until the arrival of campers and hikers. The bears then developed a taste for camp foods.

"The result was a confrontation between black bears and people," Shellenbarger said.

A camp at Surprise Lake has been designated as a bear area because bears raided the camp earlier in the season and treed several campers. Other areas also have been designated bear areas and travelers in the areas are given warnings to watch for the animals.

Signs of grizzly bears have been reported throughout the park, but the main area of concentration is the Hockett-Parkway between Grand Teton and Yellowstone Parks.

Grizzlies, which are larger than black bears, are also more shy so less sightings have been reported, Shellenbarger said.

Funeral urns, jewelry, coins, statues and other art objects were stolen from Forest Lawn, Glendale and Cypress and Hollywood Memorial Parks, Mitchell has only been charged with the Glendale thefts.

Funeral art theft brings charge

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Danny Harwood Mitchell, 22, has been charged with stealing $20,000 worth of art objects from three cemeteries.

Mitchell, who surrendered to police Monday, was charged with two counts of grand theft. Police, who revealed his identity Friday, said he was being held in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Funeral urns, jewelry, coins, statues and other art objects were stolen from Forest Lawn, Glendale and Cypress and Hollywood Memorial Parks, Mitchell has only been charged with the Glendale thefts.

California finances counseling program

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — Bartenders, hairdressers and cab drivers—who hear a lot about other people's problems—will be trained as counselors in an experiment financed with a $53,000 grant from the State of California.

The Crisis House, a family counseling center, is seeking 100 bartenders, hairdressers and cabs drivers to take a twoday crash course in counseling so they can better handle the problems that routinely come to them.

"The whole idea is to have people already hearing problems of the public trained to more effectively handle them," said Andy Thompson, program director.

The trainees will spend two days and one night learning about the theoretical framework for human behavior, effective listening and communication and the responsibility and role of a helper.

By LAWRENCE E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
My father is 88 years old. He lives in Wisconsin with my 86-year-old mother. He has been healthy and happy and able to do all his chores until the last two or three months. He walked to the barn a couple of times a day, about four blocks to the mail-box every day and even cleared the sidewalk of snow.

His ankles and feet have been swelling. His doctor says it's his heart and gave him pills for his heart and for the swelling. I don't think he has high blood pressure. He has also taken water pills before.

He doesn't eat much salt. The pills don't help the swelling and he feels weak. My brother said he didn't go to church last Sunday—I haven't been able to find out exactly what kind of pills he takes, since I live in Utah.

Heart fails, ankles swell

My dad is 140 to 145 pounds and 5 feet 5. I wonder if you could give some suggestions as to what you think might be causing his legs to swell and if there is anything that might help him at his age.

The doctor told my brother that changing my dad's diet wouldn't help now. Dad could eat anything. Last Thanksgiving when I was in Wisconsin he was so spry, did all the chores, fed two steers in the barn, went to church, visited by brothers' homes and went out to dinner with us. He felt good and enjoyed all of it.

Dear Reader—

It is hard to produce miracles and yet all of us hope for them or hope some doctor will provide one. Your father has done remarkably well and seems to have enjoyed all of his 88 years. I presume that he has swelling of the feet and ankles from heart failure. Many things can cause it but since your doctor has been giving him heart pills that is the most like problem at his age.

Heart failure is not the same thing as a heart attack. It is caused by a weakening of the heart muscle that can occur from many different causes. Commonly the arteries to the heart muscle become diseased and gradually the heart muscle is damaged, rather than the sudden change you see with an acute heart attack. Inflammation of the heart muscle or overwork from valvular disease can cause it, too, but I would expect it to be related to your father's arteries at his age.

There is a limited amount that can be done. Medicines to eliminate salt and water are helpful. The use of heart medicines (the digitalis group) to strengthen the heart muscle sometimes work like a miracle earlier in the course of the illness. Eventually the patient has to strictly limit physical activity.

The one area that can often be improved is in limiting salt intake. I note you say your father doesn't use much salt. In such problems any salt is too much. Moreover, it is better to limit the foods that contain lots of salt (sodium). That means limiting the meat group and particularly avoiding cured meats and cold cuts. Milk has to be limited or you must find low salt milk products. Strict adherence to a low salt diet may be helpful but it isn't much fun.

Those who want information on the aging process can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, with 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Send your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10013.

Southwick, Smith wed in Buhl rites

BUHL — An afternoon garden wedding Aug. 7 at the home of the bride's parents united Susan Southwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Southwick of Buhl and Don Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Smith, Nampa, in marriage.

The double-ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. David Turnmire of the First Presbyterian Church, Homedale a long time friend of the bride's family.

The bride given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of candlelight lace and net that was worn by her Grandmother Vina Conrad Kaecher the day she married William Kaecher in 1912.

The handmade gown was designed with petite tucks from neckline to waist, high lace collar, and an over-the-shoulder pinafore of net with lace edging.

The three-quarter-length sleeves had tucks and lace inserts as did the long gathered skirt.

The bride's veil was held in place by a tiera of lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, blue and pink carnations and white daisies.

The bride wore a gold cross necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried a silk embroidered handkerchief of her grandmother's.

Sal Southwick, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Jane Hopkins, Salt Lake City, sister of the bride and Julie Bopp, Twin Falls, sorority sister of the bride, served as bride's maids.

The flower girl was Marlene Jo Hopkins and Cammy South-wick passed pastel colored bags of rice to the guests. Both are the bride's nieces. Brandon Southwick, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Best man was Gene Enrico, Greenleaf. Groomsmen were Bill Southwick, brother of bride, and Keith Hopkins, brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Ron Smith, brother of groom, and Tom and Kelly Hopkins, nephews of the bride.

Wedding music was provided by Kathy Lyda, Ohlavo, Wash., cousin of the bride, Carolyn Jessor, Twin Falls, accompanied by LaAnn Howard, Buhl, on the guitar sang.

All corsages and flowers were from the bride's father's garden.

At the reception, held on the lawn of the bride's parents' home, the bride's table was decorated in pale blue with a white hand-embroidered lace tablecloth. The guests were seated at round tables covered with blue and yellow tablecloths.

Aunt of the bride, Jean Lyda, cousin of the bride, Kathy Lyda, and Joyce Tapfer, served at the reception table. Lois Henderson, cousin of the bride, arranged the reception.

Jean Southwick, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest book and Sharon Lyda the gift table.

Special guests were the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Ella Henry of Palmer, Alaska, and others from Boise, Nampa, Caldwell, Utah, Washington and Oregon.

After a short wedding trip, the couple is at home at No. 42, 2023 S. Indiana, Caldwell. Both will continue their college education.

Here's how Idaho First's MONEY MANAGER can eliminate checking account service charges:

Money Manager makes your savings account do double duty for you... it earns interest as it works with your checking account to save expenses.

With the Money Manager Plan you simply add the minimum balance of your checking account to one-third of the minimum balance of your savings. If the sum of the combined accounts is $300, or more, you pay no service charge, regardless of the number of checks you write. Should your balance come to less than $300, there will only be a $3.00 per month charge.

And remember, Money Manager ties five banking services together, showing your monthly financial picture in a combined statement:

- 1.-Checking*
- 2.-Savings*
- 3.-Line-O-Credit
- 4.-E-Z Balance, and
- 5.-Telephone Transfers of Money from savings to checking (or vice versa).

Come in and switch to Money Manager today!

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I see in the news that American taxpayers are paying up to $26,000 annually to provide its elected officials with the "female companionship" around the clock.

I am a widowed veteran. I draw only $8,340 a year and can't afford a mistress, so I have to sleep with my own wife. Sign me.

LACKING BENEFITS

DEAR LACKING: Let's hear it from a homemaker who has another view of the news:

Sex and DC secretaries

DEAR ABBY: That buxom blonde Washington secretary who can't type or answer the phone but drew $14,000 a year for entertaining her boss has made my day! I am a housewife whose job doesn't pay a salary, but it's comforting to know that I'm worth $14,000 a year just for entertaining my husband twice a week.

When I add that to what I must be worth for cleaning, cooking, doing the laundry and raising the kids, it makes me feel terrific.

WORTH MILLIONS

DEAR WORTH: And now a word from a secretary who works "on the hill."

DEAR ABBY: I'm a hard-working, well-paid, Washington secretary hired to do office work, and that's all I'm expected to do. I resent all those "ladies-in-waiting" who have brought us government gals a bad name. In self-defense I paid a dollar for a badge that says, "I CAN TYPE!"

FOR THE RECORD

DEAR ABBY: Should a dinner guest (whether it be a friend or relative) offer to help the hostess clear the table between courses and when dinner is finished?

I am referring to homes where there are no paid domestic employees.

BLUE ISLAND, ILLINOIS

DEAR BLUE: If it's obvious that your hostess could use a little help, offer. But if she declines, take her at her word and don't insist.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is 60 years old. She was married 10 years ago by the justice of the peace and now she wants a church wedding with all the trimmings. She's having her four young nieces as bridesmaids, and her "maid" of honor is an old maid of 70 who was her childhood friend. The "bride" is wearing a long white (it goes on for days) to a large reception in a rented hall.

I say getting married in church is fine, but at her age and after 10 years of marriage, she should have a quiet religious ceremony and a dinner afterward in someone's home or in a nice restaurant. I also think a white gown is in poor taste.

Everyone is laughing at her. What is your opinion?

N.J. FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I think it's a beautiful idea, and I, for one, see nothing to laugh about. It's her first religious ceremony, so why shouldn't she have the kind of wedding she wants?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opening lead — Q 4

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "One of the interesting things about bidding seems to be that it goes through cycles. In the very first days of contract there were no forcing bids at all, so the jump to game became a very strong bid. Then the pendulum swung back and it became a preempt-or-stop bid."

Jim: "Today, it has all sorts of meanings. Thus, the jump response of three notrump to partner's opening suit bid is supposed to show an opening notrump of 16-18 balanced points."

Oswald: "We don't use the bid often. When we do we won't have 18, but will have from a good 15 up to 17 and every reason to let notrump played from our seat as the right limit contract.

Jim: "South was very bitter about his bad luck. West opened the queen of clubs and the defense had five tricks in before South could gain the lead.

Oswald: "It was bad luck, but he brought it on himself. He bid sixteen balanced points, but he really did not want to be declarer. Had he just responded with two of a red suit, North would have bid two notrump, played at game and made at least ten tricks."

Infertility by immunization sought

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A University of Nebraska researcher is attempting to develop a contraceptive method for women by immunizing them against sperm.

Dr. James McClurg, a research instructor in the center's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, said Friday he has induced infertility in female test animals by giving them a chemical containing sperm antibodies.

"In the past decade," McClurg said, "it has been found that for an unknown reason, some females develop an immune reaction to sperm."

"When a woman's infertility results from natural causes without adverse physiological effects, other than the infertility, one wonders if these mechanisms could be induced in other women as a form of contraception."

McClurg said the goal of his research is to develop a contraceptive method which is easy for the user to administer, does not interfere with normal sexual function and minimizes the side effects encountered with some of the current methods of birth control.

"The preliminary research is an indicator," he said, "the immune approach will fulfill these characteristics."

As with other immune reactions, the body forms antibodies to combat the substance which causes the reaction, McClurg said.

"As a result of these antibodies, a woman will not become pregnant because they will incapacitate the sperm before it can fertilize the egg," McClurg said.

To determine if a woman has antibodies, McClurg said his department will perform a series of tests where the woman's blood serum and cervical mucus are mixed with sperm.

"If the antibodies are present, he said, the sperm will become inactive or die."

"The department has found a significant number of Nebraska women who have these antibodies," McClurg said.

Since the only way to lower the level of antibodies is to avoid the substance that triggers them, McClurg said a sperm-immune woman must abstain from sexual relations or avoid any contact with sperm for a period of time to regain her fertility.

He said this procedure has worked in about 30 to 50 percent of the cases.

GASOLINE ALLEY

what's what

L.M. Boyd

Our Love and War man has studied the history of kissing. His findings are too extensive to report in their entirety here at once. Noteworthy, though, were the wedding ceremony kisses of Scotland. Traditionally there, the bride with her maiden's was expected to run around the room, kissing every man in attendance. A big dish was then put out on the table, and all of those fellows kissed were supposed to toss a little money into it. If that sort-of-thing were customary anywhere else besides Scotland, the record at hand does not show here.

While you sleep, your body grows bigger and your brain grows smaller... Quick, how many locks are in your car? At least five, no doubt... A woman tends to sunburn more readily when she's pregnant.

BAY RUM

Q. "What's bay rum and why do barbers use it as an after-shave?"
 A. It's rum distilled with bay leaves added. It tends to disinfect minor shaving nicks. It gives a cooling sensation. And it overrides the smell of alcohol with an even stronger smell of alcohol. No, dear, I stopped off not at the bar, but at the barber.

The French were unamiculously dubbed by the English as "frogs" because of the widely known French fondness for frogs. Incidentally, you are aware that even the French themselves now admit that the world's best frogs come out of Louisiana?

When the Empress Elizabeth of Imperial Russia died in 1761, the tallcoppers counted 16,000 dresses in her closet.

KIPPED

Kipped herring is another of those several foods recommended by the medicos for people without their own teeth. It's digestible without chewing, that's why. To "kipper" is to "split, salt and smoke," says the big book at hand. Odd word, that one. Everybody knows a lot of herring is kipped, but hardly anybody knows just what kipped is.

Among chimpanzees, it's the female of the species that's the most dangerous. In captivity, at any rate. If you look at the medical records of injuries that caretakers get from chimps, you'll note that females inflict 95 out of 100.

An honorary posthumous membership in our Proper Job Club has been awarded to the late J. E. Graves who founded in Miles City, Mont., a funeral home that still bears his name.

Claim is that tall women in general do not suffer as much in childbirth as do short women.
