WASHINGTON, D.C. — Acting under a mandate from Congress, the Amtrak Board of Directors voted Wednesday to establish rail passenger service to southern Idaho with a stop in Magic Valley.

Voting 9-1 in favor of a two-year experimental passenger train route through Idaho, the Amtrak board already has been criticized for approving a route which can't possibly succeed.

The new route will link Salt Lake City, Boise, and Portland with an interim stop in Shoshone. The passenger trains will begin operation in the spring of 1977.

Sen. Frank Church said Wednesday the six-year battle to bring rail passenger service to southern Idaho had finally been won.

It has been fighting to bring trains back to Idaho for almost six years and now the struggle is over. Church said after notification of the Amtrak board's vote to establish the new route.

Still, many questions concerning the terms of the route remain.

The train has tentatively been scheduled by Amtrak to depart Seattle, in early morning, arriving in Portland about noon, arriving in Boise about midnight, arriving in Boise in early morning in time to connect with the eastbound Kio Grande Zephyr at 7 a.m.

On the return trip, the trains leave Salt Lake City about midnight, arriving in Boise in early morning, arriving in Portland in early evening and reaching Seattle late that night.

The entire trip is scheduled to take about 21 hours.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said, "It would appear that with this scheduling they (Amtrak officials) have succumbed to the pressure for a train, but made it come through Idaho when people would normally not be wanting to board a train."

Another point of concern for Idaho officials is the train is anticipated to run the first year with about a $2 million deficit.

Amtrak has estimated during the first year of operation the train will cost about $5.2 million to run. It is expected the service will earn $2.6 million in revenue, leaving a $2.6 million loss to be met by federal subsidies.

These figures are based on a predicted average of 150 passengers per trip or 87 thousand passengers carried the first year, Sen. Stevens, an Amtrak official says.

"I'll be interested to see if they can make it pay," Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said today. "I've felt for a long time we shouldn't put all our transportation eggs in too specific of a basket."

Hansen commented further, "I've always felt the railroads didn't do too much to try to upgrade and hold on to passenger service."

"Amtrak officials said the route, which is scheduled to begin service in the spring of 1977, will also make stops in the Oregon cities of Hood River, The Dalles, Pendleton, La Grande, Baker and Ontario; the Idaho cities of Nampa, Mountain Home, Shoshone and Pocatello; and Brigham City and Ogden in Utah.

The route allows a passenger to make transfers in Ogden to the San Francisco-Chicago train and in Salt Lake City to the Rio Grande Zephyr eastbound to Denver.

The Amtrak board recommended use of Amtrak service in the daily route between Salt Lake City and Seattle. The Amtrak cars are the most modern and reliable in the Amtrak fleet, Amtrak officials say.

"The Amtrak cars are stainless steel passenger coaches with air conditioning and seating similar to the seating in an airplane. All trains will include two long-distance for foot coaches and an Amtrak car with space for 22 coach passengers and 18 first class passengers.

The ticket rates have not yet been determined, Amtrak officials say. Nor has the precise timetable for the stops other than Salt Lake City, Boise, Portland, and Seattle been established.

Stevens indicated Amtrak is still negotiating with the Union Pacific Railroad on this.

"They have to go out on the track and do test runs," she said. "It is still extremely tentative."

N. Koreans squawk again

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — North Korea charged today that American B52 bombers were circling over South Korea in "very grave and provocative" preparations for a strike against the North.

The radio broadcast by North Korea's Central News Agency, monitored in Tokyo, was one of a series of biting attacks against South Korea and American "imperialists" by the North. Koreans who had taken a mildly conciliatory posture at a meeting the day before.

The news agency carried portions of a commentary from Rodong Simnun, official newspaper of North Korea's Communist party. Saying: "The large scale bombing exercise runs by B52 bombers designed for nuclear missions are a very grave and provocative military action

"The bombing practice runs conducted by the U.S. imperialists above South Korea with the mobilization of B52 bombers... are nothing but a war adventure aimed at hastening the application of the so-called tactics of 'forestalling attack' and 'win-the-war-quick' operations directed against the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea (North Korea)," it said.

In another broadcast, North Korea said Americans intended to use the Panmunjom incident, in which two American officers were backed to death by North Korean guards, as an excuse for direct military confrontation with the north.

The 12,000 American troops, backed up in the past week by a 7th Fleet task force and extra squadrons of warplanes, remained on alert status.

Lockheed downs Holland prince

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI) — Prime Minister Joopden Uyl today told a hushed parliament that Prince Bernhard will step down from all his public offices and end his business activities as a result of an investigation into allegations he accepted illegal payoffs from the Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Den Uyl said the three member Commission of Inquiry found Bernhard's "light hearted" business practices left the impression he was open to offers.

Den Uyl said Bernhard's dealings with Lockheed had been "risky" but he did not refer to the allegation the prince had received $1.1 million from the corporation.

Gooding drops tuition

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding trustees have decided to allow any out-of-district students to attend school here tuition free.

In a major policy change, the school board reversed their long-standing decision to charge tuition fees — an students attending Gooding schools from other districts. About 20 students, ranging from grade through high school, had attended from other districts last year.

Seven of them reportedly lived elsewhere, but listed Gooding residents as guardians. The policy decision is a major victory for a group of Bliss parents who have fought for years to obtain tuition-free schooling in Gooding for their children.

The Bliss parents have traveled about 40 miles daily to drive their children to Gooding the past two years, and refused to pay the tuition charge.

But the Gooding trustees, acting under their interpretation of existing state law, maintained they had no choice but to bill the parents, according to earlier statements by Supt. James Muscett.

Bob Erkins, one of the Bliss parents said, "We went to Boise and got the law clarified." He said the actual law is proposed by the parents' attorney was not the one finally passed. But a State Board of Education proposal to clarify the intent of the legislation covering out-of-district student exchange was passed this year.

Bill approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Teton Dam Compensation Bill received final congressional approval Wednesday and is on its way to the White House for President Ford's signature.

The revised bill was approved by the U. S. House Tuesday, and the Senate Wednesday morning.

Sensators Jim McClure and Frank Church, co-sponsors of the bill, said "We now have the mechanism which guarantees continued full compensation for victims of the Teton disaster."

McClure said he had been in contact with the White House and "I have been assured that we will have no problems in obtaining the president's signature on our bill."

Sherlock would love Viking mystery

PASADENA, Calif. — It could be called the "Curious Incident of the Biology Experiment On Mars." Sherlock Holmes would have loved it.

As every Holmes fan knows, the famed sleuth solved one mystery because a dog did nothing — especially bark — in the night.

Scientists were looking for just that sort of clue. A Viking biology test on Mars showed, almost nothing — and scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory were excited about it.

It proved, he said, that activity in an earlier experiment may have indicated some form of life on the red planet.

"Everybody, even our chemistry-oriented skeptics, were going to call them flat — are excited about the results," Dr. Harold Klein, head of the biology team, said.

The pyrolytic release experiment looks for carbon assimilation by micro-organisms which have absorbed radioactive carbon 14 in the test. The first time the test was performed by the robot on Mars, there was a high radioactive count.

and the test was performed again. There was a very low count.

"That was the curious incident, and scientists say they could not explain it.

But if it had happened in an earth laboratory, Horowitz says, they would label the results evidence of life.

how we interpret these numbers.

Another test, which seeks organic matter in the form of carbon molecules, will be needed to verify life. The organic molecule analyzer does not look for life itself, but the building blocks of all life forms as known on Earth.

If the carbon compounds are not found, scientists say, other indications from the biology experiments must be regarded as doubtful.

Teachers expected in class

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (UPI) — All Blackfoot district schools will open Monday as scheduled in spite of the Blackfoot Education Association vote Tuesday night for a teacher's strike.

Teachers are expected to honor their contracts and return to the classroom, Supt. Spence Gardner said.

Gardner was meeting with teachers this morning and a negotiations session between the education association and the district negotiation team was set for this afternoon.

Under the terms of the contract and procedural agreement between the teachers' association and the district an impasse will be declared if the negotiations session does not result in agreement. The district will request mediation by a mediator agreed upon by both sides.

If the teachers ignore the negotiations agreement and strike, the board intends to file a legal petition for injunctions against both the teachers' union and individual teachers who do not honor their contracts, Gardner said.

According to the teachers' contract, they must go through procedural processes and mediation before calling a strike.

The key question seems to be BEA demand that extra-curricular pay for coaches be negotiated by the teachers' association and board members. Currently coaches negotiate privately with their principals for the pay.

The district has offered the teachers a 13.5 per cent wage increase over 1975-76 and Blackfoot teachers' salaries are equal to or as much as $1,500 a year higher than many surrounding districts.

Students will attend school Monday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and the rest of the week from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Supt. Spence Gardner said.

Teamsters may end walkout

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — A tentative agreement has been reached with Teamsters Union warehouse workers at the Idaho National Engineering Lab, but another strike involving some 700 employees is entering its ninth day.

Aerofjet Co. and E.G. & G. officials report a tentative agreement has been reached with Teamsters Local 983 but terms of the agreement are being withheld, pending ratification of the membership at a Thursday night meeting.

The current two-year contract expired July 19 but the 25 employees involved have been working under a contract extension that was to expire Sunday.

The strike against the INEL by Aerofjet Nuclear and Allied Chemical is in its sixth day and officials say no progress is being made and no talks have been scheduled.

The strike involves some 700 employees working at the INEL.

Ada trial postponed

BOISE (UPI) — The trial of New York Times reporter Grace H. Lichtenstein, 33, Denver, who was charged with illegal cocaine possession, has been postponed until Nov. 24.

The 32-year-old defendant was to have gone on trial in Fourth District Court in Boise Friday, but the trial was delayed because her out-of-town attorney could not be present.

Ada County Prosecutor David Leroy said.

The woman was arrested after her handbag was searched at the Boise airport in June, 1975.

Utah's Howe sentenced; seeks voters' response

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Congressman Allan Howe was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence Wednesday for soliciting sex from two decoy prostitutes and said he wants the people of his district to tell him whether he should stay in his race for reelection.

Howe told a news conference he will announce a decision on his political future by Sept. 3. He also named his defense attorney Dean Mitchell as campaign director to replace Tim Allan, who was arrested Tuesday night on a drug charge.

Howe met with reporters in his Salt Lake office a few hours after Third District Judge Bryant-Critt gave the freshman Democrat 60 days to pay the cost of his two-day appeals trial as a condition of suspension of the jail term.

City prosecutor Philip Palmer estimated the bill could go as high as $500.

The congressman asked the people of his district for their views on whether he should stay in the race.

"Before I make that decision I need to hear from you, the people of the Second Congressional District. I want the people to tell me what they want me to do," he said.

In naming Mitchell, a personal friend of 25 years, campaign director, Howe said Allan had been a temporary chairman who was going to serve only until he started law classes at the University of Utah Friday.

Howe repeated his contention that he had been set up by the police and that publicity surrounding his arrest and conviction constituted "tremendous exaggeration of reality what is right in our system of fair play and our system of justice."

"Frankly I was appalled that the jury deliberated only 22 or 23 minutes. As a lawyer and as defendant in this case I had expected more careful deliberation."

He accused the prosecution witnesses of giving "false testimony" at his trial and said that in their efforts to frame prosecutors planned to put additional "false witnesses to testify against me" on the stand.

The congressman said police originally testified that his arrest was made an hour later than it actually was so they could put on the stand a bartender at a red-light district tavern to "testify falsely" that he was in the establishment earlier that night. He said they also planned to call a massage parlor employee.

"I wish was to give some false testimony about some involvement with me in the past, which is absolutely false," he said.

Mitchell described the woman, who had been identified as Sharon Lary, as a "known drug addict, known prostitute and she was willing to give false testimony."

The defense lawyer said in return for Lary's proposed testimony a felony robbery charge against her had been reduced to a misdemeanor and she had been given probation and ordered to undergo drug treatment.

Howe also said pre-trial publicity had tainted the jury that convicted him.

"For them to come in as prospective jurors and ask them to put aside all that they had heard is next to impossible."

Yet, Howe said, "I don't want the press or the people of this state to think I'm a crybaby."

He said he understood the importance of the guilty verdict and "I'm willing to do what I have to do as a result of that verdict."

The Utah State Democratic Executive Committee will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday to consider the political effects of Howe's conviction. The congressman said he planned to be there.

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Two burglars fled with Antonio Molin's set of false teeth when he told them he didn't have any money in his house.

Molin, a 78-year-old farmer, estimated the value of the dentures at about $600, police said.

Drought parches northern Midwest

By United Press International

Flames swept over thousands of acres of woodlands today and crops withered as a drought parched the northern Midwest.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken declared a state of emergency in the fire-ravaged Upper Peninsula as officials sought to force the federal government to pay the costs of fighting a raging fire that threatens 100 square miles of forest land.

Nebbraska Gov. J.J. Exon prepared to declare 25 counties drought disaster areas.

Exon said he would meet with advisers Friday and "based on the information I have now, I will be declaring a disaster area in some 25 counties."

Drought conditions cut into crops yield projections in several Midwestern states and there was no sign of a let-up.

Hundreds of firefighters fought their way through the swampy Sovey National Wildlife Refuge in Michigan's Upper Peninsula to battle a raging forest fire.

Controversy also was raging — over a federal policy which intentionally allowed the blaze to burn at the start to benefit wildlife.

The blaze was touched off by lightning in a peat bog last month, and was intentionally allowed to burn because, one federal official said, "an occasional fire is beneficial to the habitat. . . . But the wind changed early this week and the fire began to spread rapidly."

Officials of the state Department of Natural Resources, angered over the policy, vowed Wednesday to bill the federal government an estimated $900,000 for seven state expenses in fighting the blaze, recalled the worst in the state in nearly 40 years. Officials said they may go court to collect.

Officials fear the blaze, which already has blackened 19,000 acres, could destroy 100 square miles of forest land.

Rep. Philip Ruppe, R-Mich., called on Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe to send more firefighting aircraft and pilots.

Milliken proclaimed the state of emergency for Schoelleret County — the scene of the fire — so he could call up a limited number of Michigan National Guardsmen to man a mobile field kitchen and feed the hundreds of workers battling the blaze.

Carter's Vietnam pardon draws quick GOP attack

By United Press International
Sen. Robert Dole's waning no time attacking Jimmy Carter's promise to issue a blanket pardon to Vietnam War draft resisters.

"Let there be no confusion as to President Ford's position on this issue," the Republican vice presidential nominee told the American Legion national convention in Seattle Wednesday.

"It is unequivocal — and applies equally to draft evaders and deserters — no blanket pardon, no blanket amnesty," Dole said.

The Legionnaires applauded Dole's remarks for 20 seconds. Many of them had booed Carter for three minutes the previous day when he made his blanket pardon vow.

But there was plenty of applause for Carter at the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines when he said Republican farm policies had "built a wall" between farmers and consumers. He said Ford, Richard Nixon and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz had placed the farmer on the "public enemy list."

"What is best for the family farmer in the long run is exactly what is best for the consumer," Carter said. But, he added, GOP policies have made consumers distrust farmers.

Carter said he wouldn't ban shipments of grain to Russia as the Ford administration did in 1974.

"Every time Nixon, Ford and I have imposed a new export embargo, it has caused permanent damage to export markets," Carter said.

The Ford camp was heartened by a new Gallup Poll completed Monday, showing Carter's lead shrinking by 13 percentage points in the wake of Ford's nomination at last week's GOP national convention.

Gallup's latest interviews with 1,016 registered voters found Carter preferred by 30 per cent and Ford by 30 per cent, with 12 per cent undecided. The previous Gallup Poll in early August, following the Democratic convention, had Carter preferred over Ford 56 per cent to 33 per cent.

Ford reorganized his campaign staff for a third time, shifting campaign manager Rogers Morton to a new position as head of a steering committee, and replacing him with Houston lawyer James Baker, his chief delegate hunter during his bid for the nomination.

Ford scheduled meetings at his vacation retreat in Yali, Colo., today with Dole, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and former Treasury Secretary John Connally.

In Chicago, Sen. Walter Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, told a news conference that Carter's plan to pardon Vietnam draft evaders will "contribute to the health of American society."

"At some point America has to come back together again, reunify itself, try to end the bitterness that remains and bring families back together again," Mondale said.

DANIEL SCHORR ordered to appear

House panel calls Schorr on leak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr, who says he will go to jail rather than divulge his sources, is faced with a subpoena from a House committee held on learning who leaked him an intelligence report on the CIA eventually published in a New York weekly.

Rep. John J. Flynn, chairman of the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, said the panel voted Tuesday Wednesday "after considerable discussion" to subpoena Schorr. A hearing was set for Sept. 16.

The committee has been trying without success for three months to determine who gave a copy of a House intelligence report to Schorr. It was published in early February in the New York Village Voice.

despite a full House vote that the document not be released on grounds it contained classified material. CBS released Schorr, 39, of his job as a Washington correspondent and said he would be suspended with pay pending outcome of the House investigation.

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for the E1 di Pont Co., Richard B. Ward, says man-made fluorocarbons are affecting the world's protective ozone layer so slowly that the United States can afford to wait for two more years of research before deciding whether to restrict use of the chemicals in aerosols and refrigerators.

Mrs. Carroll Leslie Bastian of the National Science Foundation replies that steps toward restrictions should begin promptly because the "government process" is so time-consuming, and because the effects of fluorocarbons on the stratosphere are so long-lasting "it will be a long time before all problems are solved," she said.

Ward and Mrs. Bastian spoke Wednesday at the Fifteenth International Congress on Entomology, which had particular interest in the use of fluorocarbons in insecticides.

Georgia weekend ahead for Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, home from the "non-political" trip to the West Coast and Midwest, is spending a final long weekend at his southwest Georgia farm before opening his presidential campaign in full force.

While Carter, who flew home from Des Moines Wednesday, visits his friends and family, his aides are in Washington to arrange the first Carter-Ford debates to be held sometime in September.

In an address at the Iowa State Fair, Carter accused President Ford and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz of conducting farm policies that damaged sales of U.S. farm products to foreign nations and created a bad image among U.S. consumers.

"We have got to take the American farmer off the public enemy list," Carter said.

In Seattle, Carter reacted coolly to Ford's suggestion of four 90-minute debates on national issues, economics, international affairs and domestic policy, to be televised shortly after Labor Day.

In Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle, Carter repeated the theme he sounded for Iowa farmers, claiming his trip was just an informal warmup for the traditional Labor Day launch of Democratic campaigns.

Senate, House set abort fund battle

WASHINGTON — The Senate, in continuing its support for the funding of abortions under Medicaid, has intensified an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with the House in a conference committee.

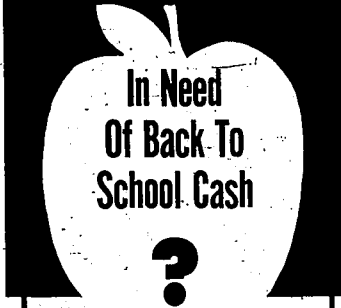

The Senate Tuesday rejected an abortion funds cut-off amendment, a rider to the mammoth Labor-Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill, for the second time this summer. The vote was 53 to 45.

The fate of the appropriations bill now hangs on the conference committee's ability to break the impasse over House language that would cut off Medicaid money for abortions for the poor and near-poor served by the state-federal health care program.

By reaffirming its June 29 vote (57 to 29) against the cut-off, the Senate in effect said to the House, "Let's see who blinks first."

Whatever the outcome of the conference committee's debate over the abortion provision, President Ford is expected to veto the appropriations bill as a budget buster.

Opponents of the cut-off have argued that the abortion rider will make it more difficult to garner the liberal, votes crucial to an override of the anticipated veto.

Amtrak for Sleepyheads

Amtrak, the government-run passenger train service, apparently is going to give something less than service to Magic Valley travelers.

After years of prodding and pleading, Amtrak's board approved Wednesday a rail route through Southern Idaho, including a stop at Shoshone.

Ordinarily rail passengers would cheer such a move.

But in this case, they'll be too sleepy to do much cheering.

In order to catch the train, Magic Valley travelers will have to be at Shoshone in the wee hours of the morning.

Preliminary schedules show local passengers arriving and leaving Shoshone at about 2 a.m. and about 4 a.m., depending on which way they are going.

That is the kiss of death for the route. Few people will be willing to get up at those hours, make the drive to Shoshone to catch or greet the train.

It almost certainly dooms short-run traffic of the Shoshone to Boise or Shoshone to Salt Lake City variety.

And the late hours will discourage many long-distance travelers who can catch the plane at a competitive cost at reasonable hours.

Even the nostalgia buffs who might ride the train occasionally just for the fun of it will see all the fun drained out of the night-time ride.

The Amtrak route appears doomed to fail, not because people here don't need a train, but because the train doesn't seem to need the people.

Surely Amtrak can do better.

Straight talk on war pardons

New York Times

It took the kind of forthrightness that is in short supply in contemporary American politics for Jimmy Carter to tell an American Legion audience in Seattle that, if elected, he would grant a blanket pardon to Vietnam draft evaders.

Quite predictably, he was booed for saying what simple decency dictates — that "it is time for the damage, hatred and divisiveness of the Vietnam War to be over."

Carter took pains to make it clear that support of a pardon was not equivalent to approval of the act covered by the pardon. He expressed admiration for those who answered their country's call even though many of them "thought it was a bad war."

And yet, Carter rightly asked the nation at last to forgive those who interpreted their duty differently.

Pardons have a long and honorable history in the American past. But the Legionnaires who reacted with such hostility to Carter's pledge of mercy need only look back to September, 1974, when President Ford, in first proposing his clemency program, spoke — how similar the words! of the need to "heal the scars of divisiveness."

Ford's promise soon sank into an unforgiving administrative morass that made a mockery of true clemency and for many left the issue unresolved.

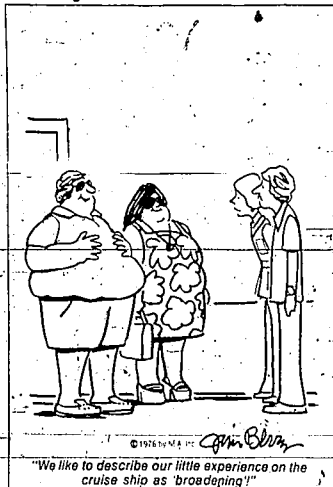

Perhaps as important as Carter's pledge itself was his choice of the Legion meeting as the platform from which to make it. That choice, too, is not without precedent. On Aug. 27, 1952 — 21 years ago — J. Edgar Hoover, amidst scolding sugar patriotism, chose an American Legion convention in New York City to speak out on "The Nature of Patriotism."

While there are those who use patriotism "as a club for attacking other Americans," Stevenson told a similarly critical audience, "True patriotism... is based on tolerance and a large measure of humility."

Carter's stand on the issue of amnesty coincides with our views. What matters more, however, in anticipation of the presidential election campaign, is the clear implication that Carter intends to speak out on controversial issues, even at the risk of displeasing special interests in direct confrontation.

If Ford is prepared to adopt a similar course, the campaign could become a reaffirmation of democracy in action.

Not yet. If, in a few years' time, an A-bomb becomes almost as normal an item in everybody's armories as a grenade or a sub-machinegun, the condition of mankind will be drastically changed.

How could this happen? Too easily. You-or, at least, your fairly average MIT student—can design a bomb in five weeks, using only the information that is obtainable in libraries. You need only a dozen pounds of plutonium, and all over the world there are reactors literally creating the stuff as a mere by-product of electric power, at a rate already nearing 25 tons a year.

India demonstrated two years ago just how easy it is to evade controls and use the by-product to make a bomb. And this week Henry Kissinger admitted the "high probability" that some heavy water which the Americans supplied to India for its nuclear power plants had been instrumental in producing the plutonium for India's 1974 nuclear explosion.

This revelation, along with the American decision last month to sell still more uranium to India, was clearly one reason why Pakistan's All India would not be persuaded by Kissinger this week not to buy a nuclear processing plant from France.

Plans are now being considered in America and Britain for reducing the risk of plutonium being stolen by mixing it with uranium before stockpiling. A further idea, which the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) in Washington would like to pursue, is that the used fuel rods from enriched-uranium reactors should be promptly recycled in natural-uranium units of the Canadian type. This "candium cycle" could reduce the rods' plutonium content to a less alarming level before they lose their protective radioactivity.

Good, but not good enough. Some potential plutonium thieves may be baffled by these devices. If and when and where they are adopted, but the pickings could still be good elsewhere, with power plants in many different countries churning out the deadly stuff and frightening quantities of it being moved around.

Such a world is not far away. President Ford gave warning on July 25, when he assayed the ADF's latest annual report, that by 1985 there will probably be nearly 40 countries whose reactors have created enough plutonium to make bombs, in addition to the six existing members of the "nuclear club."

The "near-nuclear" 40 include, by most reckonings, about 25 states that have ratified the non-proliferation treaty...

But there are at least a dozen countries that have not ratified the treaty and are thought to have the option to go nuclear by 1985 at the latest. They include Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Cuba, Egypt, Indonesia, Israel, Pakistan, South Africa, Spain, Switzerland and Turkey.

It cannot be assumed that the option is renounced forever merely by ratification of the NPT—because the treaty permits withdrawal under the pressure of "extraordinary events."

Up to now, however, the mechanism has been worked halfheartedly and hypocritically by too many of the NPT parties—including the United States, which in Lyndon Johnson's day was the treaty's foremost champion.

Under the treaty, a party should not supply nuclear equipment and material to another state unless that state lets the IAEA apply its safeguards to all of the nuclear material in its possession...

The Germans and French have undertaken to sell, respectively to Brazil and Pakistan (which are not NPT parties)... nuclear fuel cycles... not just reactors but processing plants for uranium enrichment and plutonium separation...

Feathers are ruffled and the roost resounds with agitated clucking. American protests at the French and German moves might, however, carry more conviction if the Americans had not recently competed—unsuccessfully—against the French for a contract to supply two big reactors to South Africa (not a treaty party), and agreed to sell a big reactor to Spain (not a treaty party)...

At least, when the campaign is over, few Americans should confuse Senator Dole with the pineapple farmers' guild.

Startled senator

Hall a dozen years ago. If you mentioned Bob Dole of Kansas the reaction was likely to be, "Bob who?"

Even as recently as a week ago, the reaction to mention of Dole's name would probably be similar. Unless someone happened to recall the senator had been a former Republican national chairman...

Well, Senator Dole—who is now President Ford's running mate on the Republican ticket—is now receiving a good bit of attention from the national news media...

Our first encounter with Dole came back in the late 1960's when he was a newly elected senator, a year or so after he upset a Kansas governor whose second term was ending and who had ideas of starting a career in the U.S. Senate.

Dole came to town to address the Farm Bureau. Ahead of time, he boned up on his biography, including his war record. We were armed with a couple of questions...

The replies, as we recall, were short, to the point, but given in a firm, open manner that impressed us favorably. And at a pace enabling even had a chance to ask our questions.

Individual residing in an industrialized nation. The Census Bureau said that since 1950, death rates in less developed areas have fallen faster than birth rates.

Over the past 25 years, it said Wednesday, the total population of the world increased by 57 per cent, or 1.5 billion persons, and stood last year at about four billion.

About four-fifths of the increase has been in underdeveloped regions of Latin America, Africa and Asia. If present trends continue, the Census Bureau said, the world's population will double in the next 39 years.

The International Monetary Fund's July report on gold holdings, monetary reserves and gross national products said, however, the underdeveloped countries control only about one-third of the world's aggregate wealth.

The Fund's report said the average per capita income of a person living in an underdeveloped country is $20, compared with $3,670 for an individual residing in an industrialized nation.

The Census Bureau said that since 1950, death rates in less developed areas have fallen faster than birth rates. As a result, population growth of underdeveloped countries has jumped from 1.8 per cent in the early 1950's to 2.2 per cent in the early 1970's.

Population growth rate of more developed countries declined from 1.3 per cent to 0.8 per cent.

Latin America's population doubled between 1950 and 1975. Africa and Asia also had substantial growth.

China remains the most populous nation in the world with 812.5 million persons. India is next with 613.4 million.

The Soviet Union and the United States are a distant third and fourth, with 254.3 million and 213.6 million persons respectively.

Nuclear club could soon reach 40

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of nations in the nuclear club could reach 40 by the end of the decade, according to a report by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA).

The report, which was prepared by the ACDA's Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Study Group, says that by 1985, about 40 nations will have the capability to produce nuclear weapons.

The report also says that the number of nations in the nuclear club has increased from six in 1965 to 18 in 1975. The six original members are the United States, the Soviet Union, Great Britain, France, Canada and the People's Republic of China.

The report says that the number of nations in the nuclear club is expected to increase to 25 by 1985. This increase is based on the assumption that all nations that have the capability to produce nuclear weapons will do so.

us to write them down. Most memorable, however, was that left-hand hamstrake. We saw that Dole always carried a pen or some other object in his right hand — the result of his war wounds.

A couple of years or so later, when we returned to Idaho, we had an opportunity to attend a press conference in Boise where Senator Dole was addressing a state-wide Republican gathering. It's not often that a U.S. Senator can be caught off balance, but Dole was momentarily.

"When I sold him, he was just a playful pup..."

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. may have triggered a new round of auto price hikes with an average $209 increase on the base price of its 1977-model cars. But GM Chairman Thomas Murphy does not think it will hurt new car sales.

Shortly after the industry leader posted the new prices Wednesday, Murphy predicted car and truck sales in 1977 will reach a record 11.7 million, topping the 11.6 million sold in 1973.

GM's increase was the first by the company in more than a year and is expected to be followed by Ford, Chrysler and American Motors when they raise their '77s on sale.

Base prices were increased 5.8 per cent and the cost of optional equipment was boosted 6.2 per cent. GM said it expects the average equipped vehicle in 1977, including options most people buy, will cost $338, or 5.9 per cent, more than the equivalent 1976 model.

Wall Street analysts said the increase was justified because of higher material prices, particularly a 12 per cent jump in steel prices since June, and higher labor costs.

Experts said prices may climb even further after contracts covering 680,000 auto workers are negotiated this fall.

David Healy, research vice president at the Wall Street firm of Drexel Burnham & Co., said the increase should not trigger a slump similar to the downturn two years ago, when automakers raised prices on 1975 models by more than $400.

"The real problem two years ago wasn't so much the increase but the collapse in real income because of the decline in the economy," Healy said.

"About the only thing the publicity on the price hikes will do is push more people into the leftover '76 models."

Murphy said GM was backing its sales projections with plans to spend a record $3 billion on capital improvements in 1977, replacing the $2.6 billion of 1974 and an expected $2.3 billion this year.

The announcement included all of GM's cars, but the automaker did not disclose prices of its new smaller "standard-sized" cars. On the rest of its lineup, the pricing changes range from a $23 increase on the Oldsmobile Starfire to $700 on the Cadillac Seville, raising the price tag of GM's premier model to $13,359.

The announcement followed by several weeks GM's financial report for the second quarter of 1976 in which it earned a record $969 million.

GM's 5.8 per cent boost was the first price change by the company since an average $206, or 4.4 per cent, increase when it introduced the 1976-model cars last year.

Murphy said in a prepared statement, "The costs of both materials and labor have risen substantially, and we have been notified of further increases which will affect the cost of 1977-model production."

Murphy said further pricing action would depend on the outcome of contract talks with the United Auto Workers and "a moderation of future increases in our material costs."

New French government due Friday

PARIS (UPI) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, brushing aside reports his dismissal of Prime Minister Jacques Chirac may lead to early general elections, says a new Prime Minister Raymond Barre will form a government by Friday night.

Giscard Wednesday appointed Barre — an economic expert with no political affiliations — to form a cabinet that the left has condemned in advance and the right may not support.

Barre, 52, is respected as a monetary wizard in Western financial circles but is an unknown element to most Frenchmen.

Chicago Chief of the Gaullist party, technically resigned. But he made it clear he left Giscard had forced him out by not giving him enough power to grapple with the country's major problems.

Treaty hit

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Mexico and other Latin American nations assailed the United States and Soviet Union today for failing to produce any significant steps toward disarmament.

Mexican Foreign Minister Alfonso Garcia Robles told the Disarmament Conference at its 22th session the two major powers have ignored calls by the U.N. General Assembly for a ban on all nuclear testing and the prohibition of chemical weapons.

Black principals sought in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Black parents have asked for immediate appointment of three black principals in Boston public schools.

In a 14-page brief submitted to U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. Wednesday, the parents said the Boston School Committee acted in a capricious manner, in blatant disregard of court orders by not appointing the blacks. Garrity scheduled a hearing Friday on the matter.

The parents brought the suit which led to Garrity's 1974 order let desegregate Boston schools. Later orders concerning desegregation ordered the committee — the board elected to run the city's schools — to hire blacks on a one-to-one basis with whites until 20 per cent of the school system's permanent administrators are black.

The committee told Garrity two weeks ago it was unable to find enough qualified blacks to fill the positions. The parents said all five black candidates were found to be qualified by community screening councils, the board of associate superintendents, school Supt. Marlon Falley and the state Department of Education.

"The School Committee voted not to accept these candidates without making any written statement of reasons," the parents, represented by attorney Eric VanLoon, said.

"The school committee has violated the clear provisions of the order by unilaterally and arbitrarily setting aside court-mandated procedures," VanLoon said.

"Their blatant disregard of judicial procedures must not be allowed to stand," he said.

In a different matter relating to the desegregation case, Garrity ordered the committee to produce details of their school staffing plans.

Released

NEW evidence indicating a policeman may have shot himself accidentally with an illegal pen gun led to release of James Dixon, 24, Chicago, who spent a year in jail. He had been accused of shooting the officer. (UPI)

FTC scraps plan to ban kid toys

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission has scrapped its widely publicized plan to ban the advertising of free toys, games and other prizes in TV ads directed at children. It was learned today.

Instead, agency sources said, the FTC will concentrate on checking ads with premiums or other send-in the coupon pitches as they come up to make sure such gimmicks aren't used in an abusive way.

The proposal, unveiled with a flourish in June of 1974 by former FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman, was opposed by some advertisers, particularly the cereal industry, as well as by some broadcasters.

Engman had said: "I am now prepared to conclude, as a matter of law, that the inclusion of premium offers in children's television advertising has no place in American marketing and — as I read the law — in a violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act."

At the time it looked like the proposal would bring an end to a long history of broadcast give-aways going back to the days of Captain Video decoders and Lone Ranger silver bullets.

But Engman resigned earlier this year to make a losing race for the Senate, from Michigan, and his replacement, Calvin Collier, reportedly made the motion, which the commission adopted, to drop the subject.

Peggy Charron, head of the Boston-based Action on Children's Television, told UPI it appeared "the children's TV issue is being lost in a bureaucratic shell game in Washington."

Soviets say mission 'tiring'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts who returned to earth more than a month short of the U.S.-held space endurance record say their mission was difficult and tiring.

Although the cosmonauts are reported to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev that "the Leonid Brezhnev to the crowd of the orbital Salyut 5 station has been fulfilled." Western experts said it was possible the 49-day flight ended prematurely.

Appearing on television Wednesday night less than 24 hours after they landed in a grain field in the Caspian Sea republic of Kazakhstan, both men appeared relaxed and smiling.

But Col. Boris Volynov, 41, the flight commander and veteran of a previous space journey, said "the flight was difficult."

"The task was an interesting one but rather complex," he said. "By the end of the day we got very tired. We got very, very tired."

Good news

SMILE by San Francisco editor Reg Murphy greets news that a jury found William A.H. Williams guilty of three charges in connection with Murphy's 1974 kidnaping. Murphy was editor of the Atlanta Constitution then. (UPI)

Hearing bid hits delay

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Supreme Court has postponed a request for a hearing by the four Fresno Bee newsmen who face indefinite jail sentences for refusing to reveal the source from which the newspaper obtained sealed grand jury transcripts.

The high court Wednesday took the matter off its calendar, which meant the decision probably will not be made at least until the court's next regular session on Sept. 1.

Under state law the court must issue a ruling by Sept. 2 unless it specifically continues the matter for one month.

Attorneys for the managing editor George Gruener, former city editor Jim Borj, who currently is the newspaper's ombudsman; and reporters Joe Rosato and William Patterson sought the hearing on grounds that the indefinite jail sentences ordered in Fresno County Superior Court were punitive.

Aid sought

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers union wants Ford Motor Co. to increase contributions to a supplemental fund that paid laid-off workers up to 65 per cent of regular take home pay during the recent recession.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock made the request to Ford Wednesday, one day after the union chose the No. 2 automaker as this year's "strike target."

"What is done structurally and in the way of reform of SUB (Supplemental Unemployment Benefits fund) has to be done at Ford," Woodcock told a news conference.

Manson makes death list

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—Charles Manson has made a death list of persons he would like to see killed in retaliation for what they have done to California's redwoods.

Manson is currently in Vacaville Prison for his role in murdering the Tate-LaBianca murders in the Los Angeles area.

The names on the list were not released and there was no indication how the list got out of prison.

A prison spokesman said that "his letters to lawyers and legitimate reporters are not censored, or the list might have come out in code to some extent."

"I sent a list of people out to be murdered," Manson was reported to have boasted.

A local newsman is known to have received the list.

Tim needs a hit

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (UPI)—Tiny Tim, the singer who married "Miss Vicki" in a nationally televised ceremony, says he needs a new hit record, but not a divorce.

"I've been in a career slump for seven straight years, but I think I see a clearance in the woods," he said Wednesday prior to a county fair appearance. "But I desperately need a hit record or maybe star in a movie."

Tim Tim stroked his golden wedding band and said he would never divorce his wife, who now is a go-go dancer at Miami's Lounge in Camden, N.J.

"Don't believe in divorce," he said. "I'll always be married to Miss Vicki. She wants a divorce but I'm not going to give it to her."

Trudeau tour

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and his wife, Margaret, Wednesday spent the last day of their three-day private visit touring the Roman city of Kerak and the biblical site of Petra.

The Trudeau's, guests of King Hussein, were accompanied on their 150 miles south of Amman by Tourism Minister Ghaleb Bakkat.

Bennett promoted

VAIL, Colo. (UPI)—President Ford has promoted Pentagon specialist John J. Bennett to be assistant secretary of the Navy for installation and logistics.

Bennett, 52, of Camden, N.J., is to succeed Jack L. Bowers, who resigned.

Bennett has been principal deputy for installation and logistics since January, 1975.

Allen arraigned

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Tim Allen, interim campaign manager for Rep. Allan Howe, has been arraigned on charges of selling drugs.

Allen, 24, appeared before City Court Judge Paul Grant Wednesday on the charge he sold "a lid" of marijuana a month ago to undercover agents. Grant set the preliminary hearing for Sept. 28. Allen remained free on $1,500 bail.

The warrant against Allen had been issued one week ago, nearly three weeks after the alleged incident.

Allen was about to leave Howe's campaign after two months as manager to enter the University of Utah Law School.

Martin pleked

VAIL, Colo. (UPI)—Graham Martin, the last US ambassador to South Vietnam, has a new job.

President Ford Wednesday announced he was appointing Martin to serve as his personal representative in conducting negotiations on the future political status of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

Martin has been serving as a special assistant to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger since 1975.

3 indicted in kidnap case

MADERA, Calif. (UPI)—A grand jury took only 20 minutes to decide on indictments against three suspects from wealthy families in the kidnaping of 26 Chowchilla, Calif. children and their school bus driver.

Fred N. Woods, 24, of Portola Valley, Calif., and brothers James and Richard Schoenfeld, 21 and 22 respectively, sons of an attorney, were indicted Wednesday night on 45 charges each of kidnap, kidnap with bodily harm, and robbery.

Madera Superior Court Judge Jack Hanigberg continued trial on the suspects at $1 million each.

The grand jury held three days of closed hearings that included 20 hours of testimony from more than 60 witnesses before issuing the indictments.

Among witnesses testifying were 23 of the 26 children kidnaped July 15 while riding a school bus, and the bus driver, Ed Roy, 55.

Woods and the Schoenfeld brothers, all members of wealthy San Francisco Peninsula families, were brought to this central California town from Alameda County under heavy security.

Authorities declined to confirm reports the three would be arraigned today.

Chief prosecutor Richard Brugner said each suspect had been charged with 27 kidnap counts, including five with bodily harm, and 18 robbery counts.

The five counts of bodily harm involved Ray and four female victims.

The suspects were arrested within two weeks after three musked-gummen-bijacked-the-bus and forced Ray and the children into two vans.

The victims then were driven to a quarry owned by Woods' father and placed in a buried moving van.

They eluded their way to freedom after some 20 hours of entombment.

Woods was arrested in Vancouver, Canada, and the older Schoenfeld was picked up in Menlo Park, a few miles from his home. The younger Schoenfeld surrendered to authorities with his attorney.

Women victims of prank

CROWN POINT, Ind. (UPI)—At least five women have lost their hair because a man who identifies himself as a doctor instructs them to shave their heads to avoid a contagious disease.

A Lake County sheriff's spokesman said. "He calls up and says that somebody is in the hospital—a relative or husband or somebody—and says the relatives have to shave their heads to avoid a contagious disease."

A Lake County sheriff's spokesman said. "He calls up and says that somebody is in the hospital—a relative or husband or somebody—and says the relatives have to shave their heads to avoid a contagious disease."

fallen victim to the prank. Valparaiso police say they have had "three or four other" similar incidents.

The latest hoax occurred Wednesday. A 32-year-old Crown Point housewife received a call from a man who said he was a doctor at a large hospital in the area, police said.

The prankster told the woman her husband had just been admitted to the hospital and was suffering from a parasite. The hospital would need to test samples of her hair, he said, to find out if she also was infected.

The woman was told to part her hair down the middle and cut a half-dollar-size circle of hair, down to the scalp, on each side of the part near the front.

Further back, she was to cut an area 2 inches in diameter. Then she was to cut a 3-inch-square section from the crown.

She was told to put the hair from the different sections of her head in separate bags and wait for someone to pick them up.

She complied with the man's instructions and waited. After checking with the hospital later, she called police.

Expert continues 'Mormon will' study

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Derek Davis, a British handwriting expert hired to examine the so-called "Mormon will" of the late Howard Hughes, said Wednesday either the document is authentic or else written by someone familiar with Hughes' writing.

Davis examined two of the more than 20 so-called Hughes wills Wednesday and immediately discounted a document which leaves the estate to Richard Richard Hughes, a federal fugitive and self-proclaimed illegitimate son of the late billionaire.

The handwritten will found in the headquarters of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City last April is similar to Hughes' handwriting, said Davis. He did not discount the possibility the document was authentic and said he would examine it further Thursday.

"If it is a forgery it had to be done by someone who knows Hughes' writing. There are definite similarities," said Davis. He was hired by former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich to examine the document. Dietrich is named executor of the estimated $2.5 billion Hughes estate in the "Mormon will."

Attorney Harold Bladen, Dietrich's attorney, said more than a half dozen European experts had studied photographs of the will and were ready to testify, if necessary, that it is authentic.

District Judge Keith Hayes will conduct a private hearing on the will Friday. Attorneys are expected to ask that a jury decide whether or not the will is genuine.

Meanwhile, Texas Attorney General John Hill is pressing on various court fronts to have the Hughes estate probated in Texas which could collect some $300 million in inheritance taxes. Nevada has no such tax.

Victims describe burglar

MIAMI (UPI) — A tidy silver cat burglar, who befriended guard dogs and then steals only the best silver service from homeowners while they sleep, has yet to be seen — but his victims feel they know a lot about him.

"He just takes the silver — not silver plate," according to Coral Gables resident Norma Croft who has been targeted with area homeowners to defend their family silver against the thief.

The group, including a retired psychologist and another with a Ph.D. in psychology, has drawn up a profile of the burglar on their own, because the police do nothing but pat us on the head.

They believe he's a white male homosexual, between 30 to 34 years old, with a strong desire to be caught.

"That's their opinion," Coral Gables Police Capt. Kenneth Bucher said. His description of the silver burglar is "an expert who knows his job really well and sets these things up. He checks the houses out during the day and comes back. Evidently he also gets along quite well with dogs."

At one home, a family stashed their two dogs outside their sliding glass door — the silver cat burglar's favorite point of entry.

The sleepy homeowners awakened when the dogs bounded into their bedroom and licked their faces. The sliding door was standing open and the family silver was gone.

"He is potentially dangerous," Mrs. Croft said. "He left a two foot length of steel pipe on the dining room table at one house. If anyone interrupted him — he'd bash their skull in."

At one home he took a cheesecake from the refrigerator, cut a slice, ate it, returned the cake to the refrigerator and carefully placed his dish in the sink.

Hearst's treatment compared

NEW YORK (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's treatment at the hands of the Symbionese Liberation Army is comparable to that of Cardinal Josef Mindzeny, the Hungarian prelate who in 1948 was tortured into confessing to treason charges, according to F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst's attorney.

Bailey revealed details of a psychological report on Miss Hearst for the first time in an article in the Ladies' Home Journal, the first of two excerpts from his forthcoming book, "The Trial of Patty Hearst."

Dr. Louis Jolynn West, head of UCLA's psychiatry department, and Dr. Margaret Thaler Singer, a psychologist at the University of California, authors of the 200 page report, were among the experts appointed by the court to examine Miss Hearst.

The report said Mindzeny confessed in public to "spying and criminal behavior eventually repudiated after exactly 35 days of pressure." Donald "Cinque" DeFrance of the SLA, took "exactly 35 days to give his first full-fledged propaganda statement out of Patricia Hearst, a college sophomore, kidnapped at the age of 19 ... and 60 days to produce the first "Tanla" speech."

Miss Hearst was also compared by Dr. Singer to prisoners of war.

Bailey quoted Dr. Singer's Appreciation Test given to Hearst in which pictures were shown to her and she was asked to describe what they meant to her.

Slavery alive in Latin America

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Slavery is still widespread with flagrant examples existing in Latin America and Africa, a United Nations report said Wednesday.
The report, drawn up by the Working Group on Slavery of the U.N. Commission on Human Rights, said children of the Ache Indians of Paraguay were being sold for the equivalent of $2.

Forced labor exists in Equatorial Guinea and "the virtual enslavement of many peasants for agricultural labor" prevails in four Central American countries, the report said.
These countries were named by officials of the Working Group as El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Nicaragua.

The report said the system of apartheid in South Africa amounts to the practice of slavery while in Rhodesia there is even a law legalizing slavery-like practices.
This law, dating from 1901 and called the "Masters and Servants Act," covers all employees in domestic service, agriculture, forestry, mining and quarrying.

It stipulates punishment for absence without leave, intoxication, careless or improper performance of work, disobedience, abusive or insulting language, or leaving a "masters' service without lawful cause."

"On discharge from prison, if the employee fails to resume his service he can be sentenced to successive sentences of one month imprisonment under similar conditions until he consents to and does resume his service," the report said.

Fireball explodes over California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A single brilliant fireball that exploded over northern California Monday night was a meteor possibly the size of a football and weighing 200 pounds, says a lecturer in astronomy at Griffith Park Observatory.

But it was not a meteor shower as was first reported. Ronald Ortil, who has specialized in meteors and meteoroids for 20 years, said Tuesday.

The fireball was seen over California, Nevada and as far south as Arizona, Ortil said. It exploded and broke into hundreds of pieces when it hit Earth's atmosphere.

"It wasn't a multitude of meteoroids that was seen, but one giant meteor," he said.

Ortil said there was no way of estimating the size of the fireball, but it could have weighed a couple of hundred pounds and possibly was the size of a football or as much as four to five feet wide.

He said it was big enough that there was a possibility some of its meteoritic fragments could have survived the fiery plunge to earth — a rarity among fireballs — and been sprinkled over northern or central California.

"Fireballs aren't that rare. If you spend the summer in the outdoors, you could see three or four every summer. But a fireball that drops fragments is very rare."

As opposed to a fireball, Ortil said, "a meteor shower results when many meteors are seen, like meteors pouring out of the sky like salt coming out of a shaker," he said.

"The Perseid (meteor) shower occurs every year around Aug. 10-13, and for three or four days the shower is pretty bright."

"But this is too late for the Perseid shower and I don't know of any other meteor shower at this time of year."

Ortil hoped fragments of the fireball might be found.

"It would be of great interest to scientists to get a hold of a freshly fallen meteorite," he said.

Ortil appealed to persons who saw the fireball directly overhead to contact Griffith Observatory, which has the largest collection of meteorites on display on the West Coast.

"We don't want people to call to tell us they saw the fireball on the horizon," he said. "That would mean it was very far from them."

"We want those people who see it at high overhead as possible. We'd like to find someone who may have heard some rattling on their roofs. There's quite an area that will have to be looked over."

Of the two million men who sailed to France during World War I, 53,000 died in combat and 2,044,000 were wounded, according to "We Americans," the National Geographic's informal history of the United States.

TF man named to post

TWIN FALLS — David L. Humphrey, Caldwell, former program manager of community services in the Twin Falls area, will become executive assistant to the director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare (IDHW), Sept. 1. Director Milton G. Klein said Monday.

Humphrey, 31, currently director of IDHW's six-county Region III, replaces Gary Calton, who will leave the department to become a special assistant in the office of Cecil D. Andrus.

The new executive assistant has directed health and welfare services in Canyon, Payette, Washington, Adams, Gem and Owyhee counties for the past 14 months.

As executive assistant to the director, Humphrey will manage other things, current director programs of IDHW's seven regions.

Humphrey has served with the department and its predecessor agencies for the past 16 years. He started in 1962 in Twin Falls as a child protection caseworker. He served as county director for the Idaho Department of Public Assistance in Twin Falls, Cassia, and Boundary counties and was acting regional director of the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services in Twin Falls for two years.

"Dave Humphrey's experience in human services from caseworker to administrator will be invaluable to the department in managing our services to meet the needs of people," Klein said.

Humphrey is a native of Twin Falls and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Humphrey. He and his wife, Pamela, have two sons.

Woman frightened by undercover cop

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Pearl A. Sanford says she hasn't been alone since midnight Aug. 6 when a bearded man with long hair drove up next to her car on Interstate 84 and fired two shots. He was an undercover policeman.

Dennis M. McQueeny was assigned as a plainclothes narcotics policeman when he fired from his yellow Pinto in an effort to stop her for speeding.

She demanded he confirm his identity at Hartford police headquarters. After he had, he told her she was stopped for questioning about an individual whom Mrs. Sanford said she barely knew.

She has seen a psychiatrist three times since the incident. "Nightmare is a good word for it," she said.

"I'm constantly afraid. I haven't been alone since. I have someone with me when I go to the store or when I walk the dog," Mrs. Sanford said. Someone now drives her to work and picks her up.

McQueeny, a member of the East Hartford Police Department on loan to the Capital Region Drug Squad, was removed from the unit immediately after the incident and returned to the department.

He was suspended Tuesday for five days without pay by East Hartford Police Chief Clarence A. Drumm who said McQueeny had exercised "poor judgment."

Drumm told McQueeny in a letter announcing his suspension: "You did exercise poor judgment, whatever your motives, and certainly did not exercise your discretionary powers in a manner fulfilling your mission."

Drumm said McQueeny was a "good officer" and said he doubted the officer had fired at Mrs. Sanford.

"I'd bet my life he fired straight up in the air," Drumm said.

Original charges were not filed because of an apparently faulty affidavit, which was rejected by Common Pleas Court Judge Joseph Murelli.

They said the criminal case is closed, and because the affidavit is not part of a court record they would not allow newsmen to examine it.

Mrs. Sanford and her husband Peter, a mechanic, said, however, in an interview Tuesday at their home in suburban Newington, they intend to file a civil suit to recover mounting psychiatric costs and attorney's fees.

McQueeny was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Government Gains

State and local governments have been the biggest source of new jobs during the early 1970s. The Conference Board reports. Employment in this area rose by about 2.5 million between 1969 and 1975, out of a total increase of some 7 million. Even in 1975 — when over-all employment fell off — state and local governments added a half million to their work forces.

'Doggie decoys' studied in SLC

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — City Animal Control Director Douglas Sorenson says the use of "doggie decoys" to control stray dogs might amount to entrapment.

City County Health Director Harry Gibbons suggested using female dogs in heat as a means of attracting and rounding up strays.

But Sorenson told city and county commissioners Monday the use of decoys would not be fair because the mating urge would encourage even well-mannered dogs to stray from home.

"The call of the wild is stronger than backyard fences, screen doors and leashes," he said.

The commissioners are still studying the decoy plan.

Sunspots, dry weather coincide

CHICAGO — Think of the sun as having measles. Then look around at dry lawns or brown corn fields around the Midwest.

The spotted sun and the droughtlike August may be connected, a world-famous climatologist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration at Silver Spring, Md., says.

Murray J. Mitchell said the sun looks as if it has measles, covered with dark spots. Sunspots occur about every 11 years and in every second cycle, about every 22 years, the nation has a drought.

"It may be," says Mitchell, "that when spots are on the sun, it, like a measles patient, has a fever and may be putting out more energy than other times. We really don't know how sun spottedness affects climate. We know drought revisits us about every 20 years with the sunspots."

The sun is making Midwest crops sick, too. The National Weather Service points out that the region is 2.5 inches short of its average 3.14 inch August rainfall.

The 31-day forecast doesn't show rain, just normal temperatures with highs in the 80s and lows in the 50s for the Midwest states with corn, wheat and soybean crops — Minnesota, Iowa, and the Dakotas as well as Illinois.

Unusual summer weather has cropped up in other sections of the nation, too. The northern plains states have been scared by temperatures near or above 100 degrees for the past two weeks and cool, damp conditions have persisted in the Rocky Mountain states for the past month.

Mitchell is hopeful, though. "I have a feeling the drought we are witnessing in the Midwest plains is relatively limited. It is not the kind of mammoth drought of the '30s and '50s."

Dr. William Ackerman, director of the Illinois State Water Survey, says the water supply is adequate throughout the state this year so long as there are no breakdowns in equipment to distribute water.

Ackerman said the Midwest had more than average rainfall in the first months of 1976. The annual rain is 32 to 33 inches, he noted, and Illinois already has had 28 inches.

Mitchell said only some sunspots affect weather. "The spots are growing weaker."

for four spades. As it was he merely bid three spades to set the suit. South didn't know if North had a good hand or a very bad one so he merely bid four spades. North bid five hearts to show that ace. Whereupon South decided there just might be a grand slam, so he bid six diamonds to show second-round diamond control and grand-slam interest.

This was enough for North. He bid the grand slam.

There was nothing to the play since trumps broke 3-2 and declarer could set up either the fifth diamond or fifth club for his 13th trick.

ASK THE GOODEYS

An Illinois reader wants to know the significance of the double in the sequence two spades (forcing), four hearts, by the next bidder and double by the partner of the opener.

The double is both a penalty double of the four-heart bid and a warning to partner that you really don't have help for him.

Forecast contains hint of fall

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley — High temperature winds and cool tonight. Continued fair and a little warmer Friday. High temperatures Friday mid 70s. Overnight lows near 40, mid-50s in the colder spots.

Saturday's outlook: fair and cool.

Halley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley — Decreasing winds tonight, and cold. Fair and a little warmer Friday. Highs Friday near 70 overnight low temperatures near 30.

Saturday's outlook: partly cloudy and cool.

A few thundershowers developed along the Pacific coast front that moved across Idaho Wednesday. Most of the moisture associated with this front moved into northern Idaho. However, strong winds kicked up dust and reduced visibility over much of southern Idaho during the night. Warm air preceded this front and daytime temperatures climbed into the 90s in low spots over much of the Magic Valley.

Except for the winds, expect to diminish tonight. Cool, dry air will be flowing into the Magic Valley area, creating good drying conditions for hay and small grain harvesting.

Overnight low temperatures will be on the chilly side tonight. Temperatures will be dropping to near 40 in most areas, and in the mid-50s in the colder spots, with no damaging frost expected.

Extended outlook for Saturday through Tuesday calls for mostly dry conditions with slowly moderating temperatures. Highs will be 75 to 85 with overnight lows mostly in the 40s.

MESA develops mine profile rating system

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Interior Department's Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA) has developed a new mine profile rating system to determine "problem mines" in the nation's coal mining industry.

MESA Administrator Robert E. Barrett announced today.

The mine profile system, developed under a contract with the International Safety Academy of Moscow, Ga., will attempt to identify the problem mines under a rating system based on three major factors: disabling injury frequency rate, record of compliance with mandatory Federal health and safety standards and the health and safety management system of the rated mine.

"This system does not rate mine against mine," Barrett said. "It rates each mine on an individual basis for its performance over the preceding 12 months. We will then make a determination on several courses of action, among them the type and frequency of inspection for that particular mine."

Barrett noted the first two factors — disabling injury frequency rate and record of compliance — would be available in MESA records before the inspection of the mine begins.

"The third factor — The health and safety management system — would be determined by a study of 14 components: safety management, management training, accident investigation, inspection, job safety analysis, job observation, work place design, personnel protection, maintenance, employee placement, employee training, rules, safety communication and promotion.

Each of these components is subdivided further. MESA inspectors are being trained to make the component studies.

Under the mine profile rating system, a mine will be rated on a scale up to 1000 points which will then be converted readily into a percentage. The first 200 points will cover the disabling injury frequency rate; 300 points will be allotted to the rate of compliance with mandatory health and safety standards. The remaining 500 points will be determined by the rating of the health and safety management system at the mine.

Antique cobblestones stolen

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Walter Abell is battling both man and nature to preserve the estimated one million cobblestones ordered placed on the Mississippi River levee in downtown St. Louis by Lt. Robert E. Lee.

The stones are being carried off by wild man patio builders, souvenir hunters and Old Man River himself.

Abell, the city's assistant streets director, said replacing cobblestones is difficult and costly.

"The big problem is finding cobblestones," Abell said.

"About the only source is old streets undergoing excavation, and the labor cost in replacing them is extremely high."

"To Abell the cost is worth it."

"These stones have a tremendous historical value," Abell said. "They go back to Robert E. Lee, who ordered them placed on the riverfront when he was a lieutenant in the Army."

A few years ago Abell successfully fought off attempts to pave the levee with asphalt. Concrete and asphalt now cover virtually all the old cobblestone streets from 12th Boulevard to the riverfront.

Mondale diet lacks 'grits'

APTON, Minn. (UPI) — Grits, as in "Grits and Fritz in '76," may have its place in politics, but it's doubtful Joan Mondale ever tasted grits, even when she went on a simulated welfare diet.

The nitty-gritty was reported by Peg Meier in Wednesday's edition of the Minneapolis-Tribune. She recalled that in 1969, the wife of the 1976 Democratic vice presidential candidate and her family on a welfare diet to dramatize the plight of the poor.

Each meal was limited to 23 cents per person.

The 1969 Tribune story said Mrs. Mondale, whose parents live in this beautiful St. Croix river community, got a lot of advice from welfare mothers, and bought a supply of hot dogs, biscuit mix, spaghetti, tuna and rice — "but drea the line at the 'com' recommended hominy grits."

Wednesday, Mrs. J. Maxwell Adams, Joan's mother, said, "I don't know how that welfare story got all mixed up in this. But I doubt if Joan ever tasted grits in her life. At least at home."

"We had some dear black friends who sent us some grits from Selma, N.C., many years ago, but I don't think Joan was home at the time."

"I don't think she knows a thing about grits, but we liked them."

The senator is said to have eaten grits on visits to Jimmy Carter's home in Plains, Ga.

Most Yankees confuse hominy and hominy grits. Hominy is the full husked kernel of corn and to many tastes is like the lysine. It is processed in lye. Grits is ground hominy and has a taste like corn meal or a ground breakfast cereal.

DEAR ABBY: My mother died 13 years ago, leaving two young daughters, ages 5 and 10. At the time, I was a young widow with two small children, but I took my little sisters into my home to love and raise with my own. Raising four children alone was a hard struggle, but somehow I managed it.

When my sisters were 18 and 23, I married a fantastic bachelor and we moved to another state. I left all my belongings in care of my sisters, instead of putting them in storage.

In the three years that I lived out of town, my Christmas gifts to my sisters were not acknowledged with as much as a "thank you" or a "Merry Christmas."

Sister angry

When I returned to get my belongings, my brother informed me that the girls had SOLD them, pocketed the money and spent it! I was so hurt and disillusioned I became physically ill.

Now that enough time has passed for me to "forgive and forget," the girls have begun sending me notes and cards. I'm still too hurt to answer.

My husband says if I respond, he'll divorce me. (He won't, of course; he just wants me to know how strongly he feels about this matter.) I hate family feuds, Abby, but I'm not ready to face them after what they did. Should I continue to ignore their letters? What should I expect of the girls if they try to make amends? I honestly don't know the answer to this one.

WHAT TO DO

DEAR WHAT: Apparently, you have not talked frankly with your sisters. If you are certain that the girls understood that your belongings were not to be sold, the only way they can make amends is to reimburse you for their full value. I think you will be happier in the long run if you don't close the door on them forever.

DEAR ABBY: Why would an impotent man hang around a grey-haired waitress who works at a truckstop when he has a faithful, nice-looking wife who's a good cook and still enjoys sex?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: You've ruled out food and sex, so he must like her conversation.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "B in Bosenam": When a man tells you're too good for him, believe him. He knows himself better than you know him.

4-H club holds meet

FILED — The Six-to-One 4-H Club met Monday night at the home of Brenda and Cindy Baxter, Twin Falls.

The meeting was conducted by president Scott Nuss. John Winkle, leader, handed out to the group forms to enter sheep open class in the Twin Falls County Fair.

The group discussed decorations to put on the sheep stalls at the fair. John Winkle told the group to start washing the sheep.

The next meeting will be at the home of Julie Arms, Monday at 8 p.m.; Filer.

Chicago Sun-Times — They called her Betty Gable. She had great legs and a curly poof of hair and looked great on the inside door of a locker.

Back in the days of World War II, soldiers loved Gable. They ogled her teasing little pimp photos and pretended that someone who looked just like her was waiting back in the States. But no one looked just like her. Same tried.

Some are trying again. Chicago hairstylist — Paul Glick has always been a fan of Betty Gable. Glick reasoned: People are full of nostalgia these days, and the Gable look was positively loaded with nostalgia.

"It's also a classy look," Glick added. So he set out to update Gable. He uses hair, just as the original did with her curly top. But he has updated the look with day and night makeups and something Gable might never have dared to wear in her famous photos — glasses.

"Glasses can be an asset," Glick said.

The first problem in re-creating the Gable look in the midst of the '70s is the hair. But Glick does not think this has to be a problem.

"While the hair might look complicated," he explained, "it is relatively simple. Gable had it all right."

Glick has compiled a guide to the complete creation of the Betty Gable look for both evening and daytime-business moments.

The Gable hair can be any length on the sides. No need to cut away those long strands. But the top must be permanent waved into a pile of curls that can be either fluffed up or combed forward. The very top of the curls should be highlighted, to create a halo effect. The long sides can be pulled back into a classic French twist. If the hair is cut and waved correctly in the beginning, it should be easy to arrange with nothing more than a brush.

Next, the glamor look for evening.

First, the hair is clustered softly around the eyes with the long strands on the side in a tight twist. The makeup is a white-on-white look to create a shimmering pearl effect. The eyelashes are a hard black. A silver liner is applied inside the lower lid.

"This gives us the diamond eye," Glick said. Cheeks are dusted in a shade of cinnamon that can be further accented with a dusting of glisten.

The eyeglasses (even for those with perfect vision) for evening consist of oversized, rimless lenses that create a picture-window framing effect. The glasses seem to magnify the eyes. Glick added an expensive touch by connecting diamond clips to the upper edge of each glass.

Betty might have done that. The result is an ultrafeminine American look for the evening with a Betty Gable quality," Glick said.

During the daytime hours,

the Gable look becomes more businesslike. Still sexy, but

The glasses are more important. I have had the edges of the lenses tinted a magnificent royal blue," Glick said. "The frames are chocolate brown, with sides designed to follow the cheekbones and highlight them."

Dear Dr. Lamb:
I have read that the hardened oils in margarine are just as high in cholesterol as the animal fat in butter.
What is your opinion of beating vegetable oil into butter to make a soft spread? Would this cut down on the cholesterol problem?

Cholesterol problem

Dear Reader:
Cholesterol is not fat-and-fat-is-not-cholesterol. There is no cholesterol in any margarine made only with vegetable products. Hardening vegetable oils by adding hydrogen to the unsaturated fats converts them to saturated fats.
One of the purposes of using a vegetable margarine is to decrease the saturated fat intake. A high saturated fat intake may cause the body to produce excess amounts of cholesterol whether the saturated fats come from animal or vegetable products.
You can improve both butter and vegetable margarine by beating in a polyunsaturated fat. I use one of the corn oil margarines mixed with safflower oil. Two small tubs of margarine are mixed with one tub of safflower oil.
You can improve its butter flavor then by seasoning to your taste with imitation butter-flavored salt. You can usually find that with the spices at the supermarket. If you want it to be more solid like ordinary margarine you can keep it stored in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator.
To help you clarify the difference between cholesterol and fats I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radley City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb:
Since I was a small child I have had those ugly white patches of skin on my body—a pigment problem. Also my hair is white in places. My mother said that I was not born that way but developed it when I was 6 years old and started school. I have always been told to just live with it, but I wish those people had it.
If there is something for it I really would like to know—a special diet—a vitamin—shots or anything. Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

Dear Reader:
You probably have vitiligo which means a failure of the skin to form pigment in spots. This results in lard-white spots that are particularly noticeable in dark complexioned people. It is not dangerous and is important only from a cosmetic point of view.
Treatment certainly leaves something to be desired, but some people with this condition get help from treatment with a medicine called Oxoralon (methoxsalen). After taking the medicine by mouth the patient is exposed to sunlight or to artificial light sources that induce the same effect in shorter periods.
It can be applied locally and then a light source used but this should be done under a doctor's supervision and not by the patient. The combination of the stimulation of the light plus the medicine will sometimes help to eliminate the problem but treatment is not always successful. A dermatologist could help you with the problem.

Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Routine traffic infractions can turn into nightmares of misunderstanding for the deaf.
When stopped by police, many deaf persons reach for their wallets and a card explaining they can not hear, observed professor B. J. George, director of the center for administration of justice at Wayne State University in Detroit.
"The gesture is misinterpreted as going for a weapon," George said. "The driver is making high-pitched or grunting noises common to deaf persons."
"The cop thinks the man's speech is slurred and hauls him to the slammer as a drunk. Somewhere along the line the police officer reads him the Miranda warning — advice of his rights — unaware the person he is reading to can not hear him."

To help end this silent torment, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) is producing two videotapes. One will be aimed at police and the other at the judiciary.
Both will be designed to tell law enforcement officers, judges, prosecutors and defense lawyers of the special problems that face the deaf.
In addition, LEAA was funded a project that produced a dictionary for legal interpretation for the deaf. The American — American sign language — dictionary contains 650 common language symbols for legal terms.

"It is one step closer to guaranteeing due process for deaf persons charged with crimes," George noted. "These are essentially shorthand signs that will convey conceptual ideas and phrases."
LEAA administrator Richard W. Velde pointed out that there are an estimated 500,000 deaf persons and perhaps another million who are nearly deaf.
"This project was funded because due process of law is guaranteed all persons — not just those with the gift of hearing and speech," Velde said.

George said LEAA has contributed $165,000 to the legal interpreters program, which has graduated 30 persons so far. Another 40 will graduate this fall.

George said there is a "desperate" need for qualified legal interpreters.
"We have reasons to believe that a higher percentage of deaf persons become involved with the judicial system than from a population sampling of people with normal hearing," he added.

"The deaf person often becomes a more vulnerable victim because he can not cry for help."

Super Snooper mounted inside a private automobile

Speeder's best pal may be a 'Snooper'

By BOB ZUCKERMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "There are dangers on the road ahead... and one of them may be a patrol car with a radar gun. It's pointed straight at you. If you're going over 55 m.p.h., you're about to get a ticket."

So begins an ad for an electronic device that can detect radar transmissions on the road ahead and thereby tell a driver he is being monitored by law enforcement personnel.

Idaho high court adopts new ways

BOISE—The Idaho Supreme Court will adopt new procedures Sept. 21 to speed up the processing of cases appealed to the court.

Chief Justice Joseph J. McFadden, speaking for the court, indicated the new procedures would do with the handling of cases concerned with single issues.

"In this way we hope to decide and issue opinions on some 50 to 75 more cases a year than could be disposed of under the usual process," McFadden said.

Motorists reminded to renew license

BOISE — Idaho motorists with license plates on the staggered system ending in eight displaying red and white or blue and white stickers are reminded their registration card says "License Expires Last Day of August, 1976" or "License Expires August 31, 1976" and must be renewed.

Idahoans who own and operate passenger cars and pickups are still required by law to continuously have automobile liability insurance.

Mix-up found in health funds

TWIN FALLS — An audit of Idaho's seven state health districts found $18,000 paid by the city of Twin Falls to the South Central Health District generated matching funds which probably weren't justified.

The mix-up was uncovered by a recent legislative audit of the state's seven health districts and the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare (HAW), which not only pays the districts matching funds but keeps their books as well.

The legislative audit discovered that about $18,000 paid to the SCHD by the City of Twin Falls during 1972 and 1973 may have been matched by HAW mistakenly.

HAW is required by law to match 67 per cent of the money the health district collects through county property taxes in its eight-county region.

However, no one is sure yet if the funds were matched. According to Allen Korhonen, administrator of HAW's Division of Management, HAW is still trying to determine if the funds were matched.

Tourist trade up for SV summer season

By BART QUENNEL Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The number of tourists spending the night in Sun Valley has increased nearly 20 per cent over last year's summer season, according to the new vice-president of marketing and sales.

John Sturney, hired by Sun Valley Co. in July, said Tuesday advanced winter reservations are 41 per cent better than last year at this time.

148,000 guest nights for the summer season, May 21 through Oct. 3, Sturney said. Last year's totals were 131,000 for the same period. This winter, Sun Valley Co. expects to handle 214,000 guest nights from Nov. 19 to April 16. Last year's winter season had 176,000 guest nights.

Poll to check O'Leary views

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Junior High School Citizens' Committee is set to conduct a poll Sept. 2 to find out what the public wants in the way of a replacement for the aging Vera C. O'Leary school.

Using service club volunteers, the committee will conduct the poll door-to-door, interviewing 500 households in districts which correspond to the city's 27 political precincts.

According to committee co-chairman Dan Slavin, the poll will be conducted with professional assistance and will attempt to make random contact with householders in each of the districts.

In those districts lying both in and outside of the city, Slavin said, an effort will be made to contact an equal number of in-city and out-of-city respondents.

The poll was suggested earlier this month by Slavin and committee co-chairman Robert King. The District 411 School Board agreed to provide polling forms for use by volunteers.

GOODING — Edward Koester, Gooding County extension agent, has been elected president of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

He served as Vice-president during this past year and was elected to the president's post at this year's 61st annual meeting in Richmond, Va., last week.

More than 900 of the persons registered were county agricultural agents throughout the United States with wives and children making up the rest of the participants.

The association has membership in every state and Puerto Rico. Koester, who has been Gooding County agent since December, 1952, said there was representation from California for the first time.

Koester, who grew up in Idaho Falls, served as Western regional director for the national group from 1972 to 1974 and during that time visited eight member western states.

He said there will be considerable traveling in connection with the president's position and the "big deal" is the national convention which will be held in Boise in August, 1978.

This year's president is Robert Jones, Westminster, Md. Koester said 30 professional papers were presented by outstanding agents throughout the convention at Richmond last week.

Educational agricultural tours were also held with speakers including the president of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and the head of the Farm Bureau, Allen Grant.

He said the time of poll-taking will be left up to the pollsters so long as it is sometime on Sept. 2. Once the polls have been completed, the results will be tabulated and rebased, he said. He guessed the results would be available by Sept. 7.

"Going over the answers to the poll is going to be the only thing that's interesting out of this whole business — that'll really be fun," Slavin said.

the school board. Respondents will also be asked whether the new junior high school include an auditorium.

Slavin said this morning about 47 persons have already volunteered to conduct the poll. But the committee hopes to have at least 60 poll-takers by the time the polling gets underway.

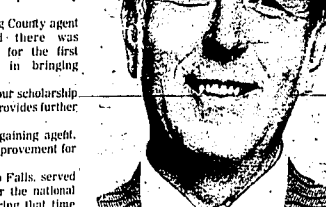

The committee will hold an organizational meeting Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 9 p.m. at Sawtooth Elementary School, and Slavin invited persons interested in giving the poll to attend.

Pollsters, Slavin said, will be given maps of the districts and asked to hold interviews with families only in their assigned area.

He said the time of poll-taking will be left up to the pollsters so long as it is sometime on Sept. 2. Once the polls have been completed, the results will be tabulated and rebased, he said. He guessed the results would be available by Sept. 7.

In an effort at objectivity, the committee has accepted the volunteer help of a professional pollster from Utah, Slavin said, adding that the pollster will travel to Twin Falls at his own expense on the day of the poll.

"We're lucky. All we have to do is promise him a steak dinner and a good night's sleep," Slavin said, "but at no cost to the district."

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.25 point to 70.58 shortly after the opening. Advances and declines, 215 to 86, among the 37 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

General Motors paced Wednesday's rally with a prediction the industry would have record sales in 1977. This was the kind of favorable news the market was ready to react to after its sharp recent loss.

Analysts investors were impressed not only with the prediction of record sales, but also with GM's statement that it expects capital expenditures for 1977 to approach a record $3 billion.

Observers said the news came at a time when Wall Street was showing anxiety over government reports that the economy had grown a larger slow-down in the third quarter than an expected.

Firm hikes auto prices

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. touched off a new round of auto price hikes Wednesday with an average $200 increase on the base price of the 1977 model cars already showing up in dealer showrooms.

It was the first time in more than a year that the industry leader has boosted sticker prices. GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy said the 5.8 percent price increase was justified. He added he hoped it would hurt sales.

Wall Street analysts who keep a close watch on the auto companies also said the increase was justified and should have little effect on the industry's recovery from a two-year slump. The governments, General, and Price Stability has already asked U.S. automakers for data on their prices.

There was no immediate word from GM's main competitors — Ford, Chrysler and American Motors — on their pricing plans. But all have already told dealers that prices will not rise by more than 6 percent on the new models which are already going on sale in dealer showrooms.

While the pricing announcement included all of GM's cars, the automaker did not reveal the actual prices of its new, smaller "standardized" cars. On the rest of its lineup, the pricing

FTC forces firm to make good on Florida promise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday it has compelled a 93,000-acre Florida land developer to provide a wide range of facilities to make good its claim that buying sites there was a good investment.

The commission said International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and its wholly owned subsidiary, ITT Community Development Corp., have signed a consent order agreeing to halt allegedly unfair and deceptive practices at the Palm Coast development. The 93,000 acres are in eastern Florida between Daytona Beach and St. Augustine.

Among other things, the FTC said, the developers have been telling potential buyers all over the country that the lots would be a good investment when in reality most had virtually no resale value because of limited commercial changes range from a $23 increase on the Oldsmobile Starfire to $700 on the Cadillac Seville, raising the price tag of GM's premier model to $13,300.

The announcement followed by several weeks GM's financial report for the second quarter of 1976 in which it earned a record $99 million. On Tuesday, GM President E. M. Estes said GM's 1977 model cars should achieve an average 18.2 miles per gallon, a 10 percent jump over the average of current 1976 models.

GM's 5.8 percent cost boost was the first price change by the No. 1 auto company since an average $200 14.4 percent increase when it introduced the 1976 model cars. Last year, Murphy said there were several major factors in the auto firm's pricing decisions.

"The costs of both materials and labor have risen substantially, and we have not notified of further increases which will affect the cost of 1977 model production," Murphy said in a prepared statement, adding, "We hope that no additional increases in these introductory 1977 prices will be necessary."

Murphy said sticker prices have risen by more than 12 percent in July since June and labor costs have risen by more than 9 percent in the past year.

Governors hit inefficiency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal-red tape is reducing government efficiency at both the national and state levels, a report prepared by the National Governors Conference said today.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, who directed preparation of the 42-page report, called it "a catalog of federal requirements that impose unreasonable administrative burdens on the states."

He told the Senate Finance Committee the report showed the need to continue the federal revenue sharing program, under which state and local governments are given a share of federal tax funds with few strings attached and with wide discretion on how to spend it.

Among examples cited in the report:

— Federal agencies require states to supply more data on "affirmative action" policies to hire minorities, women, the handicapped and veterans than could ever be analyzed. At one point in 1975, the Office of Civil Rights required 14 separate analyses of every action involving an individual employee. That would amount to 100,000 separate analyses for the Madison campus of the University of Wisconsin alone.

— States must file annual reports with many federal agencies even though nothing changes. Pennsylvania estimated its submissions to the Environmental Protection Agency between April 15 and Oct. 1, 1976, will amount to a stack of paper five feet high.

— Different agencies dealing with the same subject have conflicting regulations. For example applications for various student loan programs, must be made at different times, go to different places, and make it difficult for students or colleges to plan ahead.

New displays

Smithsonian unit opens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new facility, has opened at the Smithsonian Institution, but not without difficulty. Some of the inhabitants ate some of the others.

At first count, there were 5,000 specimens of 100 species of arthropods on display when the "insect zoo" opened this week in the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History, zookeeper Bruce Daniels said.

The mortality rate has been high. A praying mantis killed a katydid over the weekend. The moths and butterflies tend to die in the glass or screen walls, head for the lights or get caught up in spiders' webs. Replacements are kept in an insect-rearing room.

The insects live in isolation in glass cases or in a 60 foot area behind glass which recreates three environments—forest, grassland and pond—and which is full of crawling, swimming or flying arthropods.

In some cases are familiar bugs—ants, roaches and a hive of bees with access to the world through a tube through the walls.

But some rare "exotic cockroaches" from Madagascar, which hiss when handled, and the walking stick from Trinidad, which sits so still during the daylight and looks so much like a twig that hungry predators walk right over it.

A sign on the terrarium cases tries to put termites in the best possible light.

"Most termite species are important in helping to recycle dead wood and plant litter in forests into soil nutrients," it says. "Some termite species have adapted to recycling houses and other wooden structures while people still live in them."

Daniels, an invertebrate zoologist with a master's degree from the University of Toronto, said one of his worries is cleanliness.

Gene could hurt Demos

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Eugene McCarthy, who in 1968 Democratic residential campaign said the Vietnam War could kill the party's White House hopes, doesn't care if he destroys those prospects in 1976.

McCarthy, now running as an independent candidate for president, said Tuesday he doesn't care if his candidacy—which appeals mainly to Democrats unhappy with Jimmy Carter—allows President Ford to squeak in.

"I can't think of a recent election in which I'd be less concerned as to whether I would swing the election than I am in this one," he said at a news conference during a campaign tour of Hartford. "We have no great burden of conscience at all as we face that prospect," he said.

"Public opinion polls which show Carter leading Ford by a sizeable margin claim McCarthy would get from six to 10 per cent of the vote—two thirds of which would come from registered Democrats.

McCarthy concedes his chances of victory are slim.

Most observers rate them as non-existent.

Ford is expected to close the gap Carter has built up.

Eye drops recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration today announced the recall of 5,796 bottles of eye drops which it said may be contaminated with bacteria.

The product involved is called "Eyecool," which was described as a "sterile, decongestant for tired, itching or burning red eyes." It was manufactured by Milroy Laboratories Division of Milton Roy Co., Tellegen, Fla.

The FDA said the 22 milliliter bottles, which were distributed nationwide, may have suffered from a bacterial contamination.

Woman sues over adoption record

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A woman told by her adoptive parents that she was part American Indian has filed suit to open sealed records of her adoption. If successful, she may get a share of a multimillion dollar tribal settlement.

When Mrs. McKain was adopted, a new birth certificate was made up leaving the correct birth date, but the names and pertinent data of the adopting parents were placed on the certificate.

Bonnie Egan McKain, 25, filed suit in Douglas County District Court. She was adopted by a Sarpy County couple when she was less than a year old. Mrs. McKain's lawsuit notes she has been told by her adoptive parents she has one-quarter Blackfoot Indian blood. As a result of that, she may be entitled to part of a recent $5.6 million government settlement with the tribe.

Mrs. McKain's attorney, Steven Greenberg, of Omaha, said the suit seeks to open the record only for the adopted adult, not for the biological or adoptive parents or the public. It asks the Nebraska law on sealing adoption records be declared unconstitutional on grounds the adopted person is denied due process because the person never is consulted.

Greenberg said Mrs. McKain's case was the first filed in the United States, although a New York City group plans a similar suit. The state has refused to open the records for her.

Under the current statutes on adoption, the suit contends a child placed up for adoption is treated "like a Negro slave on the auction block of a Southern city before 1865."

Newspaper clippings entered as evidence in the suit noted a recent case in the East about a 23-year-old man who unknowingly married his 41-year-old mother, and the relationship was unknown to both until the woman gave birth.

Greenberg said the right to the adoption records "begins with birth, continues with the adoption, and that the later adult should not have to go into court to see the record."

Kills his killer?

CORRY, England (UPI) — Police have a special reason for finding the man who murdered Alan Thompson.

In death, Thompson may be killing his killer.

Thompson, 22, was stabbed to death last week, blood pouring from his wounds. A post mortem showed he was suffering from a deadly liver disease transmitted through the blood.

"Anyone who came in contact with his blood could have picked it up," said Dr. Francis Lynch, the area medical officer.

"The disease could prove fatal."

Middlemen blamed for beef prices

Pumpkins, big and little, at Cassia Fair

USDA meat residue plan criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A proposed Agriculture Department regulation would allow "meat" in sausage, hot dogs, chili and other foods to consist only of residues from fat scraps and ground up bone, a Health Research Group says.

"These proposed regulations should be seen for what they are — rules for turning garbage into money — and rejected," added the Health Research Group headed by Sidney Wynn.

The comments were among the public responses to the regulation announced April 27.

Agriculture Department officials say this is one effort to use modern processing methods to save protein which would otherwise be wasted. It rejected a challenge to another one Tuesday, keeping in effect another temporary regulation permitting mechanical deboning of beef and pork.

Nader's group said that not only would there be lower quality foods, but also processors would be able to label the ingredients "beef" and "pork."

"USDA and its friends say patrons in the meat industry have their way, we will have seen the last of what was called meat in their patties, canned corn beef, sausage, frankfurters, chili, meat loaf, pizza and other products, and instead, fat, rendered fat and matted bone will be the sole "meat" ingredients," the group said.

In a separate decision Tuesday, the Agriculture Department rejected a plea by a group of consumer organizations, the Maryland attorney general and a member of Congress to suspend the temporary deboning regulation on grounds it was adopted without public review.

Spokesmen for the coalition said they would challenge the temporary rule in court, but the Agriculture Department said it will issue final decisions on at least the labeling phases of the regulations by Oct. 15.

"The proposal would define 15 different classes of 'meat' ranging from the 'skeletal' cuts like those consumers buy in stores to 'rendered meat' which is produced by heating fat scraps to get rid of most of the fat, leaving a protein residue.

Mechanically deboned meat would also be in the new listing of products which could be used in most processed foods and labeled simply as meat without any note showing specifically what was included.

The Health Research Group said it was most concerned with the provisions allowing use of "low quality" meat residues left after melting fat.

It said the protein quality of such products is often low and the bacterial count in items made with a low-temperature rendering process can be high.

"Allowing fat and bones at meat prices will surely win votes (and campaign contributions) for the administration," the group added.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beef prices would have been cheaper by about 9 cents a pound last month if middlemen's charges for processing and marketing hadn't risen substantially the preceding year, an Agriculture Department report says.

The report, a monthly calculation of the spread between farm and retail food prices for a typical farm food market basket, appeared Tuesday on the heels of renewed government forecasts that most retail food price increases in 1976 and early 1977 will come from rising middlemen's margins rather than increased returns to farmers.

Agriculture Department analysts said in one report earlier this week that retail food prices during the first six months of 1977 may average 3 to 4 per cent above a year earlier, "with most of the rise due to wider marketing spreads and higher prices for fish, coffee and away from home eating."

In the monthly report on farm-to-retail price spreads, meanwhile, officials estimated that farmers' returns on a typical food market basket in July were 8.5 per cent below a year earlier while the middleman's share was up 4.5 per cent.

The report showed retail beef prices last month were down 2.6 cents a pound from June to $1.38 a pound, a decline of 14.2 per cent from the record $1.61 posted in July, 1975.

But the detailed breakdown also showed that if all of the drop of nearly 30 per cent in farmers' prices for beef cattle between July, 1975, and last month had been passed on to consumers, the retail price would have fallen to $1.29 a pound, 19.6 per cent below a year earlier, instead of holding at $1.38.

According to the report, farm returns for the 2.25 pounds of live cattle needed to produce one retail pound of beef fell from $1.06 a pound in July, 1975, to 74 cents last month, a decline of 31.6 cents a pound.

At the same time, middlemen's charges for the combined costs and profits involved in slaughtering, handling and retailing beef rose from 55.2 cents a pound in July, 1975, to 64 cents last month — an increase of 8.8 cents.

Subtracting the 8.8 cent-a-pound increase in middlemen's charges from the 31.6 cents a pound farm decline left a 22.8 cent a pound drop to be passed on to consumers.

Officials also noted in the report that retail pork prices rose 0.7 cents from June to July but were still 1.1 per cent below a year earlier. A 14.7 per cent increase in returns to farmers compared with a year ago was almost offset by a 30.9 per cent increase in middlemen's spreads.

The report also showed that bread-like beef and pork, was cheaper in July than it was a year ago. Retail prices averaged 0.6 per cent below a year earlier because a 1 per cent increase in middlemen's spreads did not quite offset a 7.7 per cent decline in the farm value of wheat and other ingredients.

Sugar prices to stay low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department economists predicted today that sugar prices, which have slumped 30 per cent since early July, are likely to remain low until analysts get firm indications of the 1977 crop.

A report said the price of raw sugar, which stood at 16.6

cents a pound on July 6, declined to 9.38 cents a pound Monday — "a significant decline from the relatively stable price levels of recent months."

Prices from January through July had averaged 15.35 cents a pound compared with 22.47 cents last year.

Analysts said the declines were due to indications that 1976 production, which will be marketed during the 1976-77 season, will exceed world demand.

The Health Research Group said it was most concerned with the provisions allowing use of "low quality" meat residues left after melting fat.

It said the protein quality of such products is often low and the bacterial count in items made with a low-temperature rendering process can be high.

"Allowing fat and bones at meat prices will surely win votes (and campaign contributions) for the administration," the group added.

U.S. meets Brazil for Pan-Am junior title

SÃO PAULO, BRAZIL — The United States meets Brazil for the championship of the Junior Pan-American basketball tournament Wednesday night following two preliminary victories.

Coach Boyd Grant's all-stars dropped highly-regarded Puerto Rico 66-61 Wednesday night after taking a measure of revenge for an earlier defeat by defeating the Dominican Republic 92-82.

Coach Grant, saying his team is becoming "ill, peaked and homesick," said the victory over Puerto Rico resulted from "definitely our best performance of the tournament."

"But he cautioned that Brazil will be tough...and they get all the calls."

"They have three Olympic team members on this team and the country still is upset, it didn't get into the final round of the Olympics. They want to do well against the U.S. for a prestige thing," he said.

"I think they were taking us pretty lightly until tonight. But we look impressive tonight and I think they now know that we could beat them. It should be a great game. They've got that Marcel King from Bradley who was named most valuable player in the Missouri Valley Conference last year. And they've got a 6-6 black kid who is very good. They're big, strong and very quick. They've been playing together for three months and look like

"They are the best team by far we've seen down here. They can shoot very well and I can see that on a good night they could shoot us right out of the gym."

"They would do well in the U.S. I don't know if they could play against the powerful major NCAA teams but they could do very well against most of the good American teams."

On comparative scoring, Coach Grant's opinion of a rough finale seems logical. It beat the Dominican Republic 112-87 but Wednesday night, frittered away a 17-point lead early in the second half against Puerto Rico and had to score at the buzzer to win by one, 9-92. They had defeated Puerto Rico by about 25 points earlier in the tourney and Coach Grant believes they had taken the second game too lightly.

"Our kids are really getting tired now. Antonin (Martin) isn't feeling well and Coach Grant, (Eric) Hovey and (Dennis) Boyer have sore throats and are coming down with something. We're giving all our medicine to the players so I don't know if Coach Grant is going to be back there," he laughed.

Against Puerto Rico, Larry McGee of East Texas State was the top gun with 16 points while CSI players contributed 33. Martin had 15, Hovey 8 and Kim Goetz and Art Williams six each.

In the grudge rematch with the Dominican Republic, Martin scored 27, Goetz 13, Hovey 11, Craig Everett 5 and Art Williams two.

The move from Baura to Sao Paulo improved the team's lot considerably. The hotel accommodations are considerably better — with the exception they allow no collect telephone calls — to be placed to the United States.

The gymnasium, while still chilly compared to U.S. arenas, seats 15,000 and it was packed Wednesday night and should be again Thursday.

"The boys have been very good about helping us take care of them," Coach Grant said. "We've gotten them to bed but there just hasn't been any chance for concentration on anything. They've been good about giving us practice time but there's always 30 to 35 people running around the gym at the same time so there are always a lot of distractions."

"I thought tonight (Wednesday) we played our best game. We ran the offense for about 10 minutes, really well and got up to a 19-point lead at one. But we tired toward the end and they (Dominican Republic) came back to within 10."

"We found out early down here that we can't stop anyone in a man-to-man defense so we've been going with a 2-3 zone and a 1-1 trap most of the time. We still aren't getting back well on defense and that's something we'll have to do against Brazil. I think it's because our kids have to concentrate so much on the offense that it is new to them."

Following Thursday night's championship game, the U.S. team will travel about 90 minutes toward the coast to play an exhibition game in another gymnasium.

"They're trying to line up another game for us Saturday or Sunday," Coach Grant said. "We'll be a better team than before (Ed) Waters (Eastern Washington guard who was released to play in the Pan-Am tournament) can play. Our guards have really had to work. We're getting backcourt pressure now which makes them work bringing the ball up the floor and the 1-3-1 trap requires them to move the most. Everyone fastbreaks here and so they have to get back. We need the extra guard badly to keep fresh guards in the game."

In a social note, Coach Grant said Dennis Boyer, Twin Falls, is the major attraction for the distasteful set. Boyer, a blonde, worked outside installing solar systems this summer and his sun bleached his light hair almost to white.

"The girls like Dennis with that blonde hair and blue eyes," Coach Grant reported. "At Baura they were asking me if they could take him to the dance."

Caldwell golfer awarded $1,500

TWIN FALLS — Caldwell graduate Joe Lodge, who dominated high school and junior golf events in Southern Idaho this spring, has been awarded the $1,500 Larry Malone Memorial Scholarship.

Lodge will use the money to further his education at University of Washington.

He was selected by a committee from the Idaho Chapter Rocky Mountain Section, PGA and the award presented at a luncheon meeting at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

The stipend was presented by Earl Simpson, Burley professional and president of the chapter which sponsors the event.

The scholarship money was raised through the second annual Larry Malone pro-am which was held in Burley in June. Professionals and amateurs from throughout the state participated in the one-day event with the proceeds going toward the scholarship.

In addition to the $1,500 scholarship, Simpson said a check for $150 has been presented to the American Cancer Society.

The scholarship is named for Twin Falls golfer Larry Malone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Webb Malone, who had an outstanding junior golf career but died of cancer.

Lodge is the second recipient of the scholarship. Pocatello's Dee Schwartz having received the first one and using it to attend Idaho State University.

Lodge's selection was based on his record in golf over the past three years plus reports on his academics and citizenship.

"He really fits our idea of what a candidate should be," enthused Clyde Thomsen, one of the scholarship's originators. "He's an excellent golfer with a good future in the game, he has had academic marks (3.875 as a senior and 3.2 overall), a good personality and a need."

Bliss faces grid year with 3 subs

BLISS — With only 11 men out for the eight-man team, it's easy to understand why new coach Jerry Couch lists depth as the biggest problem for his Bliss Bears' first year.

Couch takes over a year after Bliss' best football season in 20 years, when the Bears posted an 8-1 record. That one loss came in the famous "week battery" dual at Camas County in the conference opener. The game started at 1:30 p.m. and ended at 5 p.m., with Bliss leading all but the last couple of minutes.

From the juggernaut has come quarterback Jay Lenker and fullback Rod Hess, who between them piled up about 3,000 yards in total offense. In fact, graduation left the Bears devoid of starters.

Coach Couch has seven lettermen in the 11-man turnout. Fudsy Hess, 5'11, 160-pound three-year veteran will move to quarterback while two-year junior Mike Conarussa, 5-11, 160, is slated for the tailback slot.

Larry Hollowell, 5-11, 150, has lettered twice at split-end and guard Jim Goodsky, 5-8, 140, has three letters. The other guard is the biggest man on the team, 5-10, 230-pound Bart Patterson, a two-time letterman and a junior.

A pair of sophomores, Brian Kinney and Art Brown, lettered last year. Kinney, 5-8, 130-pound, at end, and Brown, 5-7, 160-pound, at center.

Coach Couch is counting on help from four newcomers, three Juniors and a freshman. The Juniors are Sam Davis, 5-8, 140-pound guard; Doug Griffith, 5-8, 140-pound tailback; Brad Manning, 6-0, 130-pound end, and the fresh is Louis Wilkins, 6-0, 130-pound guard.

"We do have some experience in our backfield and line but overall we are smaller and slower than last year," Coach Couch assessed.

"Basically, our attack will be a balance between running and passing, depending on the strengths and weaknesses of our opponents."

Looking at the Snake River eight-man conference, Coach Couch said "the top contenders are Camas County and North Gem, although Carey is much improved and Hildfield is always very tough."

The Bliss schedule includes Sept. 17, Bliss at Dietrich; Sept. 24, Camas County at Bliss; Oct. 1, Bliss at North Gem; Oct. 8, Bliss at Carey; Oct. 15, Bliss at Hildfield; Oct. 22, Rockland at Bliss, and Oct. 29, Clark County at Bliss.

Stockton trying to overcome victory

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — It has been a strange and hectic two weeks for Dave Stockton.

The 34-year-old Californian started it off by winning his second PGA championship at the Congressional Country Club in Bethesda, Md., when he sank a clutch 10-foot par putt on the final hole. He then went on to the greater Hartford open and won the Pro-Am Wednesday, shooting a 61.

Then the next day he had to live over par 76 in the opening round and ended up missing the cut.

That brought him to Akron a couple days early to get his family settled for the two weeks of the American golf classic and world series of golf at the Firestone Country Club and then it was back to Rochester and Syracuse, N.Y. for a couple of exhibitions Monday and Tuesday.

"I'm a little drained," Stockton said before his Pro-Am round Wednesday over the 7,105-yard, par 72 Firestone North Course, which is getting its first major assault from the touring professionals.

Stockton, who never say the North layout before a practice round Sunday, liked what he saw.

"I think it's great," he said of the 73-year-old course which was redrawn from a municipal court by Robert Trent Jones.

Unlike the famous Firestone South Course, which nearly ranks as a television celebrity, the North is close to being water logged.

Ten of the 18 holes on the North have water coming into play with no fewer than 13 water shots required to finish a round on the picturesque layout.

Grid interference of Blanda's life over

By RICK GOSSELIN
UPI Sports writer

It's just a matter of hours now before football quits interfering with George Blanda's life.

Blanda, the oldest player in the National Football League at 48, has confirmed he has been placed on waivers by the Oakland Raiders. If Blanda is not claimed Thursday by one of the 27 other teams, he will become a free agent and can pick his own offer. But Blanda says he does not expect any more offers to come his way.

"They'd be crazy if they do," said the 26-year veteran. "Who wants a 48-year-old place kicker with a $90,000 contract?"

"As soon as I get the word, I'll be packed so fast... I'll say goodbye to four or five of my friends on the team and then get out of here. I expect to be playing golf at Medinah No. 3 in Chicago by Friday morning."

Blanda, who will be 49 on Sept. 17, holds the NFL's all-time scoring record with 2,002 points, and has played in 221 consecutive regular season games and 340 games overall, both NFL records.

Blanda did not see any action for the Raiders during the preseason as he lost his kicking job to rookie Fred Steinfort of Boston College.

As Blanda was making his exit, linebacker Nick Buoniconti was making another entrance by unreeling to rejoin the Miami Dolphins. The 35-year-old Notre Dame alum, who quit the Dolphins one month ago, returned to Miami at the request of coach Don Shula after injuries stripped him of two linebackers.

Shula also said he had no idea when safety Bryant Salter, who was acquired Tuesday in a trade with the Washington Redskins for Jake Scott, would report. Salter has expressed his intention of playing out his option this year and has indicated he is unhappy with the trade.

On other fronts, the Detroit Lions suspended star defensive tackle Herb Orvis indefinitely for a dispute he had with coach Rick Forzano at a team meeting; the New Orleans Saints signed place-kicker Bobby Howfield; and the New York Giants waived their dean of players, tackle Willie Young.

Orvis, the 30-year-old anchor of the Lions defensive line, was suspended after allegedly "challenging the authority of the head coach" during the meeting in preparation for the game Saturday against the Chiefs, according to general manager Russ Thomas.

Orvis reportedly asked to be traded Tuesday, but did not mention a specific team. He brought up the subject at the team meeting, the spokesman said, and the incident led to the suspension.

The New Orleans Saints signed Bobby Howfield to give regular kicker Rich Szaro a challenge for that spot on the roster. Szaro has converted just two of five field goal attempts and eight of nine extra point attempts this summer.

Howfield, 39, handled the place-kicking for the Denver Broncos and the New York Jets during his seven NFL seasons, 1969-1972. Howfield kicked six field goals to give the Jets an 18-7 win over the Saints.

Young was one of just two holdovers from the days Althe Sherman coached the Giants. His departure leaves the team's other starting tackle, Doug Van Horn, as the lone survivor of the Sherman regime.

Kimberly to stress defense

KIMBERLY — To the surprise of no one, the Kimberly Bulldogs will be putting emphasis on defense this football season.

Defense long has been the long suit of a Gordon Hogan-coached club, seven years at Hansen before taking Kimberly to a 7-2 record last season.

"The Bulldogs weren't a strong offensive team last season but its defense scored a bunch of points and set up a lot of opportunities for short drives. That's the plan this year because Coach Hogan, who likes to throw the football more than most coaches, doesn't believe the Bulldog passing attack will be very potent this time around."

"Defensively we would be very sound," he says. "Tackle Norman Bennett and linebacker Shane Surgeon should provide good spots to fill around. The squad is fairly experienced and defensively oriented."

Offensively, Coach Hogan says "we like to be a combination offense team with a balance of pass-puss. We are working to establish this. But our weakness is offensive passing game — that and the loss of some excellent seniors in the line."

Concerning the Little Five Conference, Hogan said "Glenns Ferry will probably be tops but everyone in the league will be tough."

The other problem facing Kimberly is an abbreviated eight-game schedule. "We need a game either Oct. 8 or Nov. 5. If anyone is interested in playing us, I'd like to have them call me either at home or at the school," he said.

Graduation took 10 off last year's 29 letters but the Bulldogs return 14 veterans at just about all positions.

Eight of the 14 have lettered twice. These include Bennett, a 6-4, 180-pound tackle; Curtis Crafters, 6-2, 160-pound guard; Anthony Koren, 6-1, 160-pound tackle; Todd Landy, 5-9, 130-pound quarterback; Dan Nelson, 6-1, 180-pound center; Doug Self, 5-9, 155-pound tailback; Shane Surgeon, 6-0, 160-pound fullback; and Ted Wascko, 5-8, 170-pound guard.

Seeking their second letters will be Tony Collins, 6-4, 165-pound fullback; Vera Exner, 5-9, 155-pound split-end; Don Lattin, 6-0, 180-pound tackle; Tracy Stanger, 6-2, 180-pound tailback; Brian Jensen, 6-5, 200-pound tackle, and Steve Pratt, 5-11, 160-pound end.

Coach Hogan sees help coming from four seniors, three Juniors and a sophomore, all pointed for their first year on the varsity.

The seniors include Lynn Beard, 5-7, 150-pound guard; Craig Egan, 5-8, 140-pound end; Perry Kruliger, 6-1, 160-pound guard; Ted McKinley, 5-10, 140-pound back, and Clark Crawford, 6-1, 150-pound end, and the sophomore is Roger Cline, 6-1, 175-pound tackle.

The Kimberly schedule includes Sept. 3, Oakley at Kimberly; Sept. 10, Murtaugh at Kimberly; Sept. 17, Valley at Kimberly; Sept. 24, Kimberly at Grice; Oct. 1, Kimberly at Shoshone; Oct. 15, Kimberly at Glenns Ferry; Oct. 22, Wendell at Kimberly; and Oct. 29, Kimberly at DeBo.

Judge will rule on state grid lottery

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — A federal judge promises to rule on a request by the National Football League for a temporary restraining order to prevent Delaware from starting a lottery based on NFL games.

U.S. District Judge Walter Stapleton made the comment Wednesday after two hours of arguments from attorneys representing the NFL and the state, which plans to start the lottery during the first week of the NFL season. Lottery director Peter Simmons has said the state would net about $2 million during the 14-week NFL season.

The game, called "scoreboard," would enable a bettor to pay as little as $1 to pick both the winning team and the point spread of one game or to pick all seven winning teams.

Bets would be placed on multiples of $1, $2, $3, $5, and $10, with winning determined on a parimutuel basis.

During the hearing, NFL attorney Richard J. Abrams argued that the lottery would hurt the league's image and associate the NFL in many minds with gambling itself.

"A missed pass in the end zone will be questioned as to whether that player, his wife, or a friend placed the bet in Delaware," Abrams said. "People will be in better than the NFL has sponsored this. The public image will change from the sport to the bet, from the scoreboard to the toteboard. We are forced into an association with gambling."

James Mulligan, special attorney for the state whose "droll comments sparked frequent laughter in the packed courtroom, contended the league's fears were unfounded.

"Even after the first lottery game, the NFL will still be alive, well and prospering come Super Bowl time," said Mulligan. "We'll still be spellbound by Howard Cosell Monday night. The Super Bowl will still be as anti-climactic as usual."

"For over 25 years, the Nevada Legislature has allowed gambling. We are not condoning illegal betting, but the relevant market is so prevalent that Delaware's little $2 million net is minuscule by comparison of illegal football betting.

Michigan State players ask court to reject suspensions

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Six Michigan State University football players suspended from the Spartan roster in the wake of a recruiting scandal asked a federal court Wednesday to overturn their suspensions.

An attorney for the players filed suit in U.S. District Court charging MSU, the school's athletic council, the NCAA and the Big Ten denied the players' constitutional rights to due process.

Attorney Frederic S. Abood indicated he will ask U.S. District Court Judge Noel P. Fox to compare the case with a similar suit filed by senior defensive back Joe Hunt, who was suspended from the squad for one year for alleged recruiting violations.

Abood is representing offensive and defensive back Ted Bell, defensive linemen Larry Bethoa and Melvin Land, linebacker Jim Epollito, quarterback Eddie Smith and tight end Michael Cobb.

WBA stops action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Boxing Association dropped its plans Tuesday to suspend junior welterweight champion Wilfredo Benitez after the Puerto Rican fighter agreed to defend his title against Columbia's Antonio Cervantes before Dec. 5.

WBA President Elias Codova Jr. announced the decision at the association's 55th annual convention in Washington.

He told a news conference that the WBA had been set to urge all affiliates to honor the suspension invoked against Benitez by Venezuela's boxing authorities on grounds he had failed to fulfill a contract.

Cobb was suspended for the Spartan's first five games, which include Ohio State, the University of Michigan and Notre Dame. The other five players were each suspended for the season quarter against the Buckeyes.

The suspensions followed a lengthy NCAA investigation of MSU's recruiting practices that ended with the University being placed on three years probation.

Charges against the players involve alleged use of credit cards, automobiles and other favors offered by MSU football boosters, also according to the NCAA, were "representative of the University's athletic interests." The action, according to the NCAA, amounted to a recruiting violation.

The suit contends the players were not given an opportunity to defend themselves before NCAA or Big Ten officials meeting in Denver earlier this year.

It charges that the suspensions amount to an "arbitrary and capricious" penalty causing "irreparable harm and injury" to the player's "chances of advancing to professional football careers."

"(The players) were not advised of their right to explain or otherwise defend themselves against the alleged violations being charged by the NCAA," the suit said.

"The penalties themselves are both arbitrary and capricious and without foundation and are the direct result of the players being denied their rights to a hearing and to confront and examine witnesses.

"Such deprivation of their right to display their athletic abilities will cause irreparable harm and injury to them in the present and to their future opportunities for the professional football draft."

Back for one more season

Buoniconti rejoins Dolphins

MIAMI (UPI) — Former Pro Bowl middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti ended a one-month retirement Wednesday, reporting to the Miami Dolphins training camp for a physical examination and his first workout.

Buoniconti had announced his retirement July 29. In the wake of statements by Dolphins Coach Don Shula that if he played this year it would be only as a backup.

But injuries in rapid succession to sophomore pro Earnie Rhome and rookie Kim Bokamper and the failure so far of Mike Kolen to recover from last year's knee injury badly depleted the linebacking corps and resulted in a call from Shula to Buoniconti, asking him to change his mind.

"Now, he'll have to get caught up on everything we've done so far this summer—both mentally and physically," Shula said.

Shula said two-a-day drills are just about over for the Dolphins for another year, at least "for everyone but Buoniconti." He also said there was a chance Buoniconti could see limited action in the Dolphins' preseason game Saturday night in the Astrodome against the Houston Oilers.

He indicated Buoniconti would be used as the second middle linebacker along with second year man Steve Towle in the Dolphins' "54" defense, which includes three down linemen and four linebackers.

The Dolphins are expected to use the "53" most of the time this season.

On another subject, Shula said there was no indication when safety Bryant Salter, acquired Tuesday, left a trade with Washington for safety Jake Scott and a draft choice, would report.

"We want him to report first, and then we'll talk about his contract," Shula said.

Salter has expressed his intention of playing out his option this year and has indicated he is unhappy with the trade.

Hungary drops out of tennis tourney

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The field of competitors in the Federation Cup Tennis Championship continues to narrow, not because of stiff competition but because of politics.

Hungary joined the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia Wednesday in pulling out of the tournament because of the presence of the apartheid nations of South Africa and Rhodesia in the tournament.

Hungarian Captain Gyongy Skabonxi notified tournament Director Eddy McGooldrick Wednesday evening that her team had been advised to withdraw by a representative of Foreign Minister Stephen Pinter because of the participation of South Africa and Rhodesia. The two southern African nations do not permit interracial sports among their citizens.

The Philippines also announced it would withdraw because of the presence of South Africa and Rhodesia.

In competition, Diane Fromholtz and Kiyome Goolagong led Australia to a 2-0 victory over Belgium to advance to today's quarterfinal rounds.

Fromholtz scored a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Muntque Van Haver.

LA cuts five

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Five players, including veteran receiver Earl McCulloch and linebacker Al Rogers, have been released on waivers by the Los Angeles Rams, the NFL club announced Wednesday.

The Rams made the cuts Tuesday to trim the roster to the 49-player limit, with three all-star exemptions, but the names of the players were not released until Wednesday.

McCulloch, former University of Southern California star, played for seven years with the Detroit Lions, New Orleans Saints.

Contention is that certain habitual TV watchers when their television sets break down suffer some sort of withdrawal pains. Moodiness in them. They spank their youngsters, maybe. Even cases of wife-beating have been attributed to such. Or so reports the Society for Rational Psychology in Munich.

Green beans are 89 percent water. Milk is 87 percent water. Studies at Michigan State prove that. They do not explain, however, why we can't pour ourselves a glass of green beans and eat milk with a fork. Research goes on.

FOOTBALL DEATHS

Q—"How many athletes, as far as we know, have died from football injuries in this country?"
A—"In the last 43 years—that's how far back the records go—football deaths have numbered 806, most of them as a result of injuries in high school games."

Q—"How do you account for the fact that Las Vegas claims more churches per capita than any other city in the world?"
A—"Imagine it's because any room that's called a chapel wherein couples can get married is likewise listed in some places as a church."

Q—"How many animals can you name, besides the cow, that give milk consumed by people?"
A—"Canal water buffalo, reindeer, mare, llama, yak, goat and goat. Any others? There was some talk a few years back about milking great blue whales, using the Navy yard in Bremerton, Wash., as a barn with the drydocks there as stanchions, but I don't think anybody came up with the appropriate milking machines."

GOSSIP

What men know together without ladies discuss most is that male gossip known as shop talk. What women without men discuss most is that female shop talk known as gossip. So reports a survey team which undertook a study of the matter. Men's shop talk really has to do with hirings and firings, who makes how much money, what so-and-so does wrong or right. Female gossip is more neighborly. Has to do with pregnancies, overeating and the management of personal relationships by friends and relatives. According to these surveytakers, men chatter along these lines at much greater length than do women.

Any idea during what decade of their lives inventors tend to develop the most patents? In their 60s.

Death reports bother Willie 'Actor' Sutton

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willie "The Actor" Sutton, bank robber, was found hanged in a hotel hard by Rockefeller Center, "getting about a procedure television reporter and a friend."

He was lying in the dim light, which smelled rich and old. He led the way to a creaky elevator which labored its way toward a tiny room with a kelly green bedspread, blue and white accommodations which one remembers Willie spent 33 years in a cell.

That's where they keep the money," Willie says. "That's cute, but Willie says he didn't say it. 'Why did he rob banks?'"

"Because I loved it," Sutton says. "I was more alive when I was inside a bank robbing it than at any other time in my life."

Born on the Brooklyn water front in 1901, a burglar at age 16, in jail at 17 and in Sing Sing by 1925, Willie has lived in Fort Lauderdale—for almost five years.

He once spent six months digging his way out of the Eastern State Penitentiary in the heart of Philadelphia only to emerge at the feet of two city patrolmen.

"Well, if I was stunned, they were thunderstruck," he recalls.

Willie brags about his beliefs, admitting some were "artistic successes, but commercial disappointments." His "modus operandi" was so distinctive, he says, "I might just as well have been leaving my calling card behind."

Becoming a skillful jailhouse lawyer, and with the help of attorney Katherine Bissler, he won parole in 1969 in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's rewriting the rules of criminal procedure.

The legal spring which came when he still had more than 100 years to go on his sentence, probably was the most brilliant escape of his career, which included flights from three of this country's tightest prisons.

Bigfoot fleet of foot

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—If Bigfoot is real, he is plenty fleet of foot.

An expedition naming the fields of northern British Columbia to film or trap one of the large-footed, hairy creature with great black eyes hasn't found a trace of the legendary Sasquatch.

"But we were not discouraged," said Bob Olson, director of the North American Wildlife Research Organization, a private group in Eugene, Ore., sponsoring the expedition. It has been searching for Bigfoot for more than a month.

"We hope it will take time to locate and track Bigfoot," he said. "That's why we're prepared to spend a year or two in the effort."

Bigfoot's most distinguishing characteristic is the tracks it leaves behind. Most measure 16 to more than 20 inches, according to those who say they have seen the "hairy" creature who moves in an upright position like a man.

These are large tracks, but not superhuman. At least one player in the National Basketball Association is known to wear size 22 shoes.

Sightings of Bigfoot have been commonplace from northern California to British Columbia in the past three or four years. But no one has caught one, or even taken a credible picture of one, leaving a trail of Bigfoot's tracks as much in doubt as flying saucers.

"Rain has made the terrain difficult to track or track back," Olson said on an expedition headed by Roy Lack of Astoria, Ore., to find Bigfoot.

The search is going on near Bella Coola, Canada, close to a 15,000-acre wilderness.

"Lack is checking out the sightings of Bigfoot by the Indians," Olson said. "And if he finds some presentable tracks, he will begin to set up tracking operations."

He said Lack "still believes the Bella Coola surroundings are the best to work during fall and early winter."

"The weather is relatively mild, although it is rainy. Studies show that the bears, moose and elk migrate and travel from higher elevations to lower terrain in winter. We have reports that tracks by the creature have been seen coming down from snowy country rather than going into it."

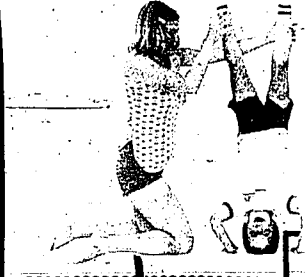

"Our group will stay at the lower elevations during the winter because there is no sense messing around in the snow."

"We also believe we have a better chance of finding one or more in Canada because of the fact that the area is a regular habitat of the creature, and the group also will not be bothered by news media speculation," he said.
