ATLANTA, S.C. (UPI) — Archaeologists raised a pre-revolutionary War merchant sailing ship from the Black River Saturday, the oldest vessel ever salvaged intact in the western hemisphere.

The 60-foot-long, 10-foot beam, apparently remarkably well preserved for its age, the scientists said.

"It is much better than I ever expected," said diver Dr. Newell Wright of the University of South Carolina's Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology.

"It will tell us about colonial ship construction techniques and what early settlers needed and used," he said.

Wright said the vessel was "well constructed by fine craftsmen."

Several thousand persons lined both shores and watched as the boat emerged slowly from the murky swamp waters of the river.

Divers had removed about three feet of the hull on the port side several days earlier to facilitate salvage operations; but the pieces will be replaced when work to permanently preserve the vessel begins later.

The starboard side, its edge jagged from collisions with tree stumps and branches, showed evidence of a dynamite blast — to create a boat landing — which authorities said sunk the ship sometime in the second quarter of the 18th Century.

Artifacts taken from the vessel during the seven weeks the divers have been working at the site allowed authorities to date it back to 1740, but they said their date could be off 20 years either way.

The gun boat Philadelphia, now on exhibit in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, is of 1770-1772 vintage and had been the oldest ship recovered.

Since July 13, divers have removed hundreds of artifacts from the ship, which was discovered by diver Hampton Shaping of Myrtle Beach in 1974.

'Ranger' Ford honored in Yellowstone Park

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — Forty years ago in the summer of 1936, Ranger Wayne Replogle, dangled precariously above the Yellowstone River with his life literally in the hands of a college kid named Gerald R. Ford.

"There never was an assignment he didn't take on, especially if it was dangerous," Replogle said of the young football player from the University of Michigan.

"He was the first to volunteer if it had danger," Replogle said of the "back ranger" who tolled that summer at Yellowstone Park.

The blond college kid now is President of the United States.

And in ceremonies Sunday at Old Faithful — the heart of the nation's oldest and largest park, President Ford will return to the site of "one of the greatest summers of my life." Waiting for him will be the 72-year-old Replogle and retired ranger John Thaine, the only rangers left from the Canyon River station contingent of 1936.

Replogle, who has worked at Yellowstone for almost half the time the park has been in existence, hasn't had a face-to-face meeting with Ford since that summer 40 years ago, but he has kept in touch through letters and remembers that President is "a gentleman of high quality."

"He was very, very fearless," he said.

Since he was an athlete, Ford got many of the rescue assignments in the deep, rugged Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone River, a tempting place to climbers and hikers and almost as famous as Old Faithful because of 200-foot Yellowstone Falls.

Replogle remembers the rescue in particular, involving a young man who had climbed down 100 feet into the canyon.

"He began sliding and latched onto a tree," Replogle said. "Jerry handled the ropes while I got down to the man. He dragged the man out and then me."

Ford was a young man of few words, "a background which I got down to the man. He dragged the man out and then me."

Replogle said in those days there were few automobiles and "little recreation" for the summer rangers.

Zulu chief labels Vorster 'flippant'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Zulu tribes chief Gashka Buthelesi Saturday accused Premier John Vorster of being "flippant" about race rioting sweeping South Africa.

"He warned that unless concessions were made to blacks, there would be more bloodshed," Buthelesi, leader of the Zulu nation, visited the segregated enclave of Soweto where blacks fought blacks in four days of street battles which left 35 dead and said he had heard reports of white police giving Zulus marijuana and telling them to "kill all."

The Zulus, armed with spears and long jungle knives, went on a rampage when black militants trying to enforce a work boycott burned a Zulu hostel and threatened to set fire to homes of blacks who went to their jobs. The 35 dead this week brought to 285 the number killed in racial riots since mid-June.

Buthelesi said the hatred engendered "in the hearts of Soweto leaders by seeing policemen shooting and killing children was not just hatred between them and policemen, but has created a stirring hatred of all whites. I fear for my country when I think of this hatred."

The worst racial riots in South African history began June 21 when police fired on a group of school children protesting the forced use of the Africans language in schools — a requirement since reinstated.

Buthelesi accused premier John Vorster of treating the violence that has swept through the country in a "flippant manner," and said the government's handling of the situation seemed to have created "chasm between black and white which no concession can breach."

"Again, I shudder for my country and I shudder for my people," the Zulu leader said.

"If the government does not make it possible soon for representatives... from all shades of political opinion to resolve this serious political bog-jam, made more complex by these tragedies, then God help us," Buthelesi said.

Buthelesi said he had been told that police supported this week's Soweto violence when thousands of tribesmen rampaged through the streets of the segregated enclave of one million about 15 miles south of Johannesburg, seeking revenge against black militants.

Police spokesmen have described reports that they stood by while the tribesmen attacked the militants as "utter nonsense."

The Zulu leader said he had heard allegations police had given some of the armed hostel residents "dagaga" (marijuana).

"Then some white policemen were alleged to have urged this armed group of men to 'Bulaka Zonke skill all' or words to that effect."

"An Africans this whole show appears as incidents which were exploited by the police to create strife between black and black," he said.

"This has the effect of creating envy between African brothers who are engaged in the struggle for liberation."

Dead man a brother

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (UPI) — Rescue squad worker Perry Moon pulled out the wallet of a decapitated traffic accident victim Saturday and gasped. The dead man was his brother.

Moon, a member of the Chesapeake Rescue Squad, was one of the first rescue workers on the scene of an early morning two car crash in which his brother and a woman were killed and another man was slightly injured.

"He broke down and started crying," said his wife, Marie Moon. "He didn't know until after reading the identification that it was his brother."

Police said the brother, Kirk Moon, 26 and Deborah Whiteside, 25, both of Virginia Beach, were killed in the collision of their small car and another vehicle which had veered out of control, jumped a median and became airborne before striking the victims' car.

Tuna Twist pulled off US market

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The National Biscuit Co. has halted sales of Tuna Twist, an extender used in making tuna salads and other dishes, because of reports of illness among consumers.

Nabisco requested Friday that the Post Office halt delivery of free samples of the product so it could complete its investigation into the circumstances.

Bennett Ward, assistant food and drug chief for the California Health Department in Sacramento, Calif., said his agency was checking reports persons became ill after using the Nabisco product.

Ward said six persons in Los Angeles reported they became ill after using Tuna Twist. Their symptoms, he said, were nausea, stomach cramps and dizziness.

Ward said there were similar reports in San Francisco and other northern California communities.

He said he would urge the department to issue a "caution" until this is better defined. He pointed out that the Federal Food and Drug Administration conducted preliminary tests and found nothing wrong.

Legionnaires' disease study goes on

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — State and federal health officials, still stumped by the mysterious "Legionnaires' Disease" that has claimed 28 lives, hope a special panel of 12 pathologists can come up with some answers.

The panel was appointed by the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Department of Health, to review selected medical cases connected with the illness, which swept through the state American Legion convention July 21-24.

"They'll be doing their own independent controlled testing," state Health Department spokesman Bob Costello said Saturday. "They will be presented with blind tissue samples in a controlled way so they don't know who it was from or whether they attended the convention."

"When the tests are completed, they'll get together to see if they can come up with anything," he said.

Costello did not place a time limit on the panel's tests, but said the examinations will be ongoing and will "probably take some time."

The panel includes three Pennsylvania pathologists, three forensic medicine experts, three representatives from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology and three experts for biological studies in lung, liver and kidneys. It will be under the direction of Dr. Martin Hicklin of the CDC.

Medical experts have been conducting an intensive search for the cause of the malady since the first cases of the disease were reported. They have ruled out some possibilities without coming up with any solid clues.

Dr. F. William Sunderman, head of the Laboratory Science Department at the University of Connecticut Health Center, said last Thursday nickel carbonyl, a toxic industrial gas, may have been the cause of the disease.

85 mph dial asked

Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is proposing that motor vehicles manufactured after Sept. 1, 1979, have speedometers with a maximum reading of 85 miles per hour.

The agency has been considering such a requirement in various forms for nine years and expects several safety benefits to accrue if the proposal is adopted.

"First, whatever temptation present speedometers provide immature drivers to test the top speed of their vehicles will be diminished," says the agency, which will publish the proposed standard Monday.

Second, shifting the indication for 50 or 60 m.p.h. will allow the speedometer dials to be more precisely calibrated and more easily read.

The same proposal also would require vehicles weighing less than 4,000 pounds to have odometers designed so their mileage indication cannot be turned back.

The 100,000-mile odometer turn-over also would have to be indicated on model vehicles made after Sept. 1, 1979 — the 1980 models.

Two of Detroit's big four auto makers, Ford and General Motors, already have begun equipping some models with speedometers having an upper reading of 85 m.p.h.

Pope lives simple life

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pope Paul VI lives a simple, frugal life, administering the spiritual lives of nearly 700 million Roman Catholics in much the same way as an industrialist, would run his factory, Town & Country Magazine reported Sunday.

In an article in its September edition, the magazine publishes an inside look at the daily life of the Roman Catholic pontiff, including his daily work schedule and the modern appointments of the papal apartments.

The article said that the Pope's personality is far from "the lofty intellectual tone, the distant coldness of which Paul VI has been accused. Instead emerged a warm, communicative personality."

Inside the Vatican, the Pope lives alone on the fourth floor in an apartment with windows overlooking St. Peter's Square. The apartment includes a bedroom with a simple brass bed, a tiny dressing room, a living room which doubles as a study and a small separate dining room "furnished with items that could have come from a department store."

His valet-chauffeur, Franco Ghezzi, who has been with him since Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini was archbishop of Milan, lives in a small room near the pontiff. Ghezzi wears a black jacket to drive the Pope's car and a white one to serve his meals.

A group of five nuns cook the Pope's meals, clean his apartment and do his laundry, the article said.

The article said the Pope "got rid of the memorabilia of former popes, took up his old carpets and put in storage the 18 marble busts" that once lined the chambers of his official library-study where he meets VIPs and has his official office.

"It is now furnished more like the drawing room of a well-to-do middle class professional than like the study of a Pope," the article said. "The Pope's desk is at the far end of the room. The desk, always in order, is a typical tidy workshop of a serious industrialist."

The article said the Pope arises at 6:30 for his prayers. He then shaves with an electric razor and celebrates mass before breakfast. Afterwards he goes over the day's schedule with his secretary.

Hughes will still debated

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — An agreement reached among 20 blood relatives to the late Howard Hughes on how to split up his estimated $2.5 billion estate is "nothing but a piece of paper," attorney Harold Rhoden said Friday.

Rhoden represents former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich in a court battle to prove the authenticity of a will discovered in the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City last April.

Terms of the agreement among the relatives were filed with the Nevada court Friday prior to a pre-probate hearing on the so-called Mormon Will. District Judge Keith Hayes set a trial date of Jan. 10, 1977, at which time a jury will be impaneled to decide whether or not the Mormon will is genuine.

"The agreement of the relatives is nothing but a piece of paper because it is based on the premise there is no valid will," said Rhoden. Dietrich is named executor of the Hughes estate in the Mormon will which names only one blood relative of Hughes as a beneficiary—William Lummis, a first cousin who recently was named chairman of the board of Summa Corp.

Rhoden said he had more than a half dozen European handwriting experts ready to testify that the Mormon will is genuine. Attorneys for the relatives and Summa Corp., the holding company which controls the Hughes financial empire, contend the will of Howard Hughes has never been found.

Relatives have agreed, according to documents filed with the court, to allocate one fourth of the Hughes estate to the paternal heirs and three quarters to the maternal heirs.

Amelia Gale Lummis of Houston, Tex., the closest living relative of Hughes and the mother of William Lummis, also is to receive all of the late billionaire's personal mementos.

Three sisters — Barbara Cameron of Los Angeles, Elsie Bell DePaul of Cleveland and Agnes Roberts of Cleveland — are the paternal heirs. The maternal heirs of Hughes include Mrs. Lummis and 16 other persons — all first cousins or first cousins once removed.

Lummis is special administrator of the Hughes estate in Delaware and contemporary administrator with his mother in Texas.

USSR busts US drug smugglers

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials say there is virtually no narcotics problem in Russia and the trial of three Americans on heroin smuggling charges made it clear they intend to keep it that way.

The defendants, Gerald Amster, 33, of New York; Dennis Robert Burn, 26, of Whitesboro, N.Y.; and Paul Braver, 31, of Las Vegas, Nev., pleaded guilty to bringing just over 62 pounds of "brown sugar" heroin worth about $2 million into the country.

They testified they were couriers for a ring of Chinese narcotics dealers running heroin from Malaysia to Amsterdam for distribution in Western Europe.

Under "Soviet law," detailed evidence backing the charges had to be presented to the court to be described to the guilty pleas. The trial lasted four days, ending Saturday night with the judge sentencing Amster to eight years in a labor camp, Burn to seven and Braver to five.

The crime was unusual for a socialist society, but very, very usual for the capitalist world. Prosecutor Gregory F. Visentin told the court.

The fact that the Soviet Union figured only incidentally in the smuggling operation, as a transit stop on a flight from Kuala Lumpur to Paris, did nothing to detract from the seriousness of the case, the

The article said the Pope lunches with up to five guests follows lunch with a nap and stroll in his private garden on the roof of his apartment.

In the afternoon, the Pope goes over his correspondence which averages 40,000 letters a month from all over the world and ranging from religious fanatics to pleas for money or help getting a job.

Dinner is usually at 9 p.m. The Pope may serve drinks before dinner but has given up his own occasional Scotch and water because of his arthritis, the article said.

Before retiring, the Pope may read alone—anything from religious works to modern novels—or work on speeches. He usually listens to music on what is purported to be one of the finest stereo sets in the world. His taste ranges from Vivaldi or Mozart to "Jesus Christ Superstar," the article said.

Cultists arrested

TWO FUGITIVES FROM Federal Prison in Terminal Island, California, were arrested Friday in Portland. The women, Louise Ellis, 41, and Susan Murphy, 38, are followers of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson. A Burley man last week said he thought "the two women had been in Idaho and had run out of gas on I-80N." (UPI)

Emergency bill dies in Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After 43 years, an end is in sight for the national state of emergency Franklin D. Roosevelt declared to deal with the Great Depression.

The Senate quietly passed a bill Friday to end the 1933 emergency and all other states of emergency declared by presidents over the years which nobody ever bothered to undo.

There are four such emergencies still on the books, including Harry S. Truman's Korean War emergency of 1950, the emergency declared by Richard M. Nixon to deal with a postal strike in 1970, and one declared by Nixon in 1971 to deal with an international balance of payments crisis.

The House passed a similar bill in 1975. After differences between the House bill and the Senate bill are ironed out, the legislation is expected to be signed by President Ford.

The emergency term would last two, more years, then would expire, giving federal agencies time to seek legislation for some programs they now run under emergency powers.

It isn't until the country gets out of a state of emergency

5 murdered by ex-convict

FORT MORGAN, Colo. (UPI) — Law officers Saturday said a Colorado convict, free from prison for a day to load hay, murdered five persons and raped four women, including three teenage girls, in a 24-hour, 200-mile flight that ended with his suicide.

Richard J. Turner, 23, who had been sent to prison two years ago for raping two other teen-age girls, shot himself in the head Friday as he was surrounded by officers on a rural gravel road in northeast Colorado.

"There wasn't a ghost of a chance of him being talked out of there. He knew he was cornered," said Morgan County Sheriff Howard Mann.

"I was as sure as a homing pigeon he was going to come back here. He used to cowboy in this area and knew all the backroads so probably figured he could hide."

Turner's odyssey began Thursday afternoon in southern Colorado when prison guard John Hardin, 37, his wife, Toni, 35, two teen-age daughters, Laurie and Carol, and a son, James, 3, were murdered in their Penrose, Colo., ranch home.

A local coroner said the mother and her two girls had been raped.

Colorado Bureau of Investigation director Carl Whiteside said Turner had been on a work release program from the Fremont County Jail and had worked at the Hardin ranch a dozen times.

He had been sentenced to the Colorado State Penitentiary in 1974 for the rape of two Michigan teen-agers, but was transferred to protective custody in the county jail after witnessing a murder at the prison.

On the day of the murders Turner had been freed to load hay.

Mann said he received the first report that the inmate was in northeast Colorado shortly after noon Friday.

"I got a call from a rancher that his wife had just talked to Turner," the sheriff said. "He told her he used to own part of the ranch and he wanted to go in."

The woman refused and Turner left. A short while later he arrived at Sterling, Colo., ranch.

"There was an elderly woman and two teen-age sisters doing chores at the farmhouse," said Logan County sheriff deputy Gary Cure. "He held a gun on them for about an hour and sexually assaulted one of the girls before he left."

Less than an hour later, Turner was dead.

Mann said the four-wheel drive truck stolen from Hardin's home broke down on the gravel county road. An area rancher was helping fix the truck when officers arrived.

"The deputies couldn't see anyone in the truck because the hood was up," Mann said. "Burlley Sogake was under the hood and the deputies told him to come out with his hands up. He did, and was walking to the patrol car when he heard a shot."

The sheriff said if Turner had not committed suicide, "I'm sure he would have killed someone else."

Hurricane shifts toward US

MIAMI (UPI) — Erratic Hurricane Emmy shifted the aim of its 110 mile-an-hour winds more toward the United States again Saturday, but forecasters said they don't expect it to reach land.

"I think it will turn northward again before it gets to the east coast," said Joe Pelissier, forecaster at the National Hurricane Center.

Emmy's course across the Atlantic, from northeast of Puerto Rico to northeast of Bermuda, looked like the path of a snake. It made another slight twist Saturday, starting the day on a northwest course, then shifting to west-northwest.

"I think the swing to a more westerly course is temporary—say 24 hours or so—then it should curve back to the north," Pelissier predicted.

At noon EDT, the hurricane was centered about 1,200 miles east of North Carolina, near latitude 34.0 north.

Maddox fights Carter in run for presidential victory

By United Press International
There are now two former Georgia governors running for President.

Lester Maddox, who gained fame a decade ago chasing blacks from his Atlanta restaurant with pick handles was nominated in Chicago Friday night as the presidential candidate of the conservative American Independent Party.

Maddox actually has been on and off the campaign trail for months, claiming his successor as governor.

Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, is disloyal.

A recent addition to the menu at Maddox' Atlanta eatery was a "Jimmy Carter sandwich" — two pieces of bread, a dab of peanut butter, and a lot of baloney.

On the Republican side, President Ford disagreed with those who claim his GOP running mate, Sen. Robert Dole, is functioning as a "hatchet man" against Carter.

"We are just going to lay the record down against the flip flops of Carter," Ford told reporters at his mountain retreat in Vail, Colo.

But Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, suggested to an elderly audience in Milwaukee that Ford and Dole had been inconsistent. Mondale said the GOP candidates had promised to improve Medicare benefits but, he said, both Ford and Dole voted in 1965 against establishing the program.

"If they would have had their way, there would be no Medicare today," Mondale said. He vowed that more would be done for the aged with Carter in the White House.

Merchants building opens at Minidoka

RUPERT — The merchants building at the Minidoka County Fairgrounds will be open Monday for decorating for the 1976 fair.

The building has 10-by-10-foot booths. There also is commercial display space outside on the grounds. The building will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. for merchants to set up their displays.

Activity will pick up Tuesday afternoon as livestock and all 4-H, FFA and open class exhibits begin entering at 1 p.m. Exhibit entries close at 6 p.m.; but the livestock deadline for entry and weigh-in is 8 p.m.

The first event of the week will be the variety show at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the fairgrounds arena. It is sponsored by the LDS Quorum of the 70s.

Some competitions already have been held. The county demonstration was two weeks ago, and the home economics judging contest a week later. The 4-H Style Revue and the 4-H Dog Show were held over the weekend.

But Wednesday will see the competition intensely as the Minidoka County Fair opens officially for its three-day session. That will be followed by three days of horse racing over the Labor Day weekend.

The merchants building will be closed to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday to allow judging of the many exhibits there. They include all 4-H home economics, crops and produce projects, FFA crops and projects and open class home arts, ceramics and community produce exhibits.

The building will be open at 5 p.m. and will be open between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. for the rest of the fair.

Goats, horses and cattle will also begin their competition at 9 a.m. for both 4-H and FFA members.

The morning competition will include beef quality market and breeding judging and horse quality, fitting and showing and performance judging.

Fitting and showing, as well as quality, will be judged on goats. Open class goat judging also is scheduled.

Open beef judging and the 4-H and FFA beef fitting and showing will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The flower show will open in the National Guard Armory at 1 p.m. Wednesday and remain open until 10 p.m. each day. Flowers are to be entered between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Judging of 4-H and FFA rabbits will begin at 1 p.m., with open class rabbit judging scheduled at 7 p.m. Poultry and pocket pets will be judged at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The livestock judging competition will be at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Dairy, swine and sheep provide most of the excitement Thursday.

Quality, as well as fitting and showing, will be judged on both swine and dairy cattle of 4-H and FFA members, beginning at 9 a.m. Open class competition on swine will follow, but open class dairy judging will be at 9 a.m. Friday.

Open class beef judging is scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday. Judging of 4-H and FFA sheep is set for 6 p.m. Thursday, with open class sheep to follow.

The tractor driving contest, beginning at 1 p.m., highlights Friday afternoon.

Mini-Cassia area schools open Monday

BURLEY — Schools open Monday in the Mini-Cassia area.

Students registered in Minidoka County during the past week and classes will begin Monday at both the public and parochial schools.

St. Nicholas School, offering the first six grades in Rupert, will follow the same schedule as public elementary schools in the Minidoka County School District. That includes observance of Labor Day the following Monday, with the schools closed for that day.

Minidoka district officials said hot lunches will be served beginning with the opening day and at the same price as last year.

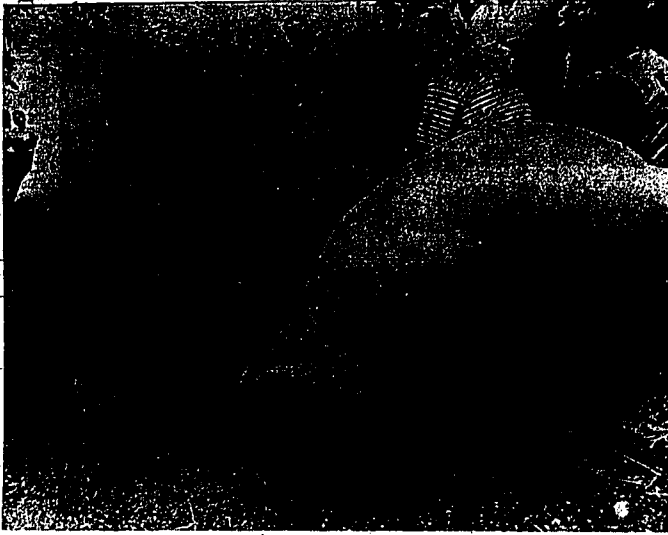

Cassia County School District students will register for classes Monday.

Elementary students have been instructed to register at the same schools they attended last year. That is particularly important for new fourth graders, who will be transferred by bus to Mountain View School later in the day.

Burley High School students will register in shifts. Seniors register from 8:45 a.m. to 10:15 a.m., juniors from 10:15 a.m. to noon, and sophomores from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Kindergarten classes will be held at Springdale, Oatley, Albion and Malia, but will start two weeks later. Teachers will make home visitations to all kindergarten students' homes this week and will conduct a testing program next week before opening classes.

Minidoka County does not have a public kindergarten program.

Salmon air search fails

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — An air search for a lightweight aircraft that disappeared Wednesday night has covered an area 60 miles wide and about 200 miles long and still found no sign of the missing plane.

"We've almost come to a blank wall — we've had no luck at all," search coordinator Larry Lundin said Saturday.

Eighteen planes, most flown by volunteers, searched Saturday for the Cessna 200 that disappeared after pilot Louis Meeks left Salmon and apparently encountered bad weather.

Meeks was alone in the plane and was apparently taking a load of grain into the float

Ranch in the Chamberlain Basin when his plane disappeared.

Lundin said the search has covered the area from Salmon to Elk City without turning up anything.

"Meeks had 'a lot' of flying experience," Lundin said, and "I'm sure the weather in the area is a factor in this case."

Lundin said the weather was apparently fairly good when Meeks left Salmon, but a thunder storm with rain and high winds soon developed in the backcountry.

Lundin discounted the possibility that Meeks had intentionally disappeared as "an awfully remote chance."

"There is no indication he would have taken off — it's been almost three days now and he never gave anyone any indication he would consider that," Lundin said.

"Now, I think it is just a matter of finding him, but we're looking in a rugged area, as rugged as anywhere in the world," Lundin said.

Lundin said the search was difficult because no one knows exactly what route Meeks intended to take to the ranch.

"We have people who say they heard an aircraft going over their places so we can assume what his route is, but we have no proof. And an assumption can sometimes get you into grave trouble so we're looking into all possibilities," Lundin said.

Friday searchers heard an emergency locator transmitter signal but Lundin said Saturday they had "pretty well discounted" the possibility that the radio signals were connected with Meeks' plane.

Lundin said the signal was picked up at 41,000 feet in Cold Meadows, an area two or three miles from the ranch where the plane was supposed to land, and could have come from anywhere within 200 miles.

"We're fairly certain reports of the signals are not related to what we're doing," Lundin said.

Lundin said the search would continue Sunday and "until people get too tired to fly anymore."

Songwriter sues magazine for misuse of Evel Knievel jump song

BOISE (UPI) — A New York songwriter who wrote a song about Evel Knievel's unsuccessful attempt to jump the Snake River Gorge on a motorcycle is suing a national magazine for $1.5 million for unlawful use of his composition.

John W. McCurdy, Katonah, N. Y., has filed a complaint in U. S. District Court asking $1.5 million in general and punitive damages from Time, Inc., publishers of Sports Illustrated, for the alleged unlawful use of his musical composition "The Evel Jump."

McCurdy claims the publication of his song in the Sept. 2, 1974 issue of Sports Illustrated was "without license, authority or permission."

In the suit McCurdy alleges that Time claimed copyright on his song with full knowledge they were infringing on his copyright.

He said Sports Illustrated senior writer Robert F. Jones approached him about using the lyrics in the September article about Evel Knievel's unsuccessful jump near Twin Falls Sept. 8, 1974.

McCurdy agreed to allow the writer to use his work, provided he was given appropriate credit and payment, the suit said.

McCurdy alleges Time Inc. and Jones breached that contract, and he said he was given fraudulent representations that he would receive the credit and money the suit alleges.

McCurdy has asked $1 for each of the more than 2,331,000 copies of the magazine issue.

Shock physical, not mental state

By LINDA MERRY, D.V.M.
Question: Our friends' dog was hit by a car and died at an animal hospital. The vet said it died of shock. I don't see how that could be since animals don't think like people, do they?

Answer: That's debatable, but the dog didn't think himself into shock. In medical terms shock describes a physical, not mental, condition. There are many definitions of shock that I'm reluctant to give you any one.

Basically, in shock the heart and blood vessels are unable to keep the animal supplied with oxygen — the minimum blood flow necessary for life. This failure first threatens life at the cellular level and then, as the cells die, so do the organs.

As the organs are snuffed out, shock becomes irreversible and the animal dies.

There are several types of shock and various causes such as trauma, hemorrhage, poisoning, heart failure, allergic reaction and severe bacterial infection. The important things to remember about shock are: It's a killer, and it always requires fast professional treatment.

Shock is sneaky, too. It's hard for an owner to realize that his dog is slipping into shock until he's well on his way to unconsciousness and still being way from a veterinarian. Because there's so little an owner can do to treat shock I'd like to tell you a few things you can do to prevent its becoming irreversible.

Your dog is hit by a car: he is not unconscious but is shaken, you don't know if any bones are broken. Please don't wait to see if he'll be okay or anything is fractured. Muzzle him or use other restraint (so the veterinarian doesn't have to worry about you) and either carry him in your arms or on an improvised stretcher to your car. Wrap him securely in a blanket, then call your veterinarian. This one step may save your dog's life.

Do NOT drive madly around from clinic to clinic hoping to find someone in, especially at night. Call ahead, tell the veterinarian what has happened, and save that precious time you might spend waiting or running around.

If the veterinarian then tells you that he's worried about shock, believe him. I have seen owners become almost hysterical because a veterinarian didn't fix a broken leg instead of treating shock. A beautifully bred dog on a dead shock victim doesn't make a hero.

If there is any question of shock it should be treated FIRST and surgery, X-rays or fixation will have to come afterward.

Shock treatment may include intravenous fluids or blood, anti-inflammatory agents, oxygen therapy, antibiotics, pain killers, sedatives, temperature control, blood pressure elevators, anti-coagulants or coagulants, digitalization, and alkalinizing agents, all used with skill after careful monitoring of the animal's condition.

Probably the difference between reversible and irreversible shock is time. Almost any case of shock will proceed from the highway to the cemetery if it is not treated. Sometimes the animal's system simply cannot be made to respond to therapy in time. But if an owner realizes there is such a thing as "shock" and rapidly seeks help, he's one jump up on an assassin.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet Column, Box 431, Pocatello 83201.

'Gypsy' actions rattle clerks

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — About 15 "gypsy" women swarmed into Cas Walker's store, jabbering in a strange tongue and completely rattling the clerks. One of the women whipped her dress up over her head.

"As I understand it, she had nothing on underneath," said employe Calvin Sizemore.

She also quickly discovered that about $8,000 was missing from the store's office.

Sizemore, who describes the women as "gypsies," said they came into the store in a group Thursday and spread out through the aisles. "They were all over the store, asking for help in finding things," he explained.

While the store employes were trying to deal with the situation, one of the women got into the office. She was spotted by an employe and later it was discovered that the money was missing.

The group fled in two vehicles, one an old Greyhound bus with painted windows and the other an old model car.

WW2 POWs to revisit River Kwai Bridge

STONING, Australia (UPI) — On Oct. 25, Lance Corporal will ride the Burma railway featured in the movie "The Bridge on the River Kwai." The last time he saw it was as an emaciated shell and his fellow prisoners of war were dying.

Lowe, 53, and three other Australians who survived the infamous "death railway," built at a cost of 40,000 lives, are returning at the invitation of one of their Japanese captors, translator Takashi Nijase, "to bury more than 20 years of hatred and animosity."

Because bitterness endures over the deaths by brutality, starvation and sickness of 2,800 Australian prisoners of war, Lowe refuses to identify his traveling companions.

Lowe can never forget what happened along the railway to 1,000 men of P Force, half of them Australian, half British who began work in April, 1943. Less than half were alive seven months later.

"I'm lucky to be alive," he said.

They will meet at Kanburi, 63 miles from Bangkok, site of the bridge, where the men will assemble for a ceremony at the huge cemetery. They will return by boat down the River Kwai.

Ford seeks Democrat help

© Washington Star

White House President Ford wants former Rep. Edith Green of Oregon to head a Democrats for Ford organization in his campaign against Jimmy Carter.

According to campaign aides, Ford contacted Mrs. Green by telephone Wednesday to see if she would direct the kind of cross-party operation that John B. Connelly Jr. then a Democrat, ran for President Richard M. Nixon in 1972.

She's willing to endorse Ford, but the question is whether she will lead Democrats for Ford, a campaign aide of the President said. Mrs. Green, regarded as a moderate, served with Ford in Congress for years before she retired in 1971.

Should she accept Ford's offer, the President's campaign organizers would like her to set up a Democrats for Ford headquarters in Washington. Where the President's formal campaign apparatus is located, the Democrats for Ford set is one of two that is still open after the President announced a series of appointments Wednesday to his campaign staff in the race against Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee.

The other vacant position is that of director for young blocs, such as ethnic groups and blacks. Ely Peterson handled this job for Ford before the Republican National Convention, but she reportedly does not want to continue this during the fall campaign.

The President, who has been vacationing in this resort town since Aug. 20, emerged from a campaign strategy session Wednesday to announce the major figures in his election effort against Carter.

Not surprisingly, he appointed James Baker, a

Houston attorney, as his campaign chairman. Baker will replace Rogers C.B. Morton, who was bumped upstairs to head an amorphous strategy committee.

Baker, who was Ford's chief delegate hunter in the quest for the Republican presidential nomination, will direct the daily operations of the Ford campaign, and there was no indication that Morton's committee will provide more than window dressing.

Though Baker has no experience in a national campaign, Ford aides expressed confidence that he will be able to handle his new position. Stewart Spencer, the chief Ford campaign strategist, was said to be pleased over Baker's elevation to the top spot.

Spencer was known to be disenchanted with Morton's performance as campaign chairman. Morton took over after Howard (Bo) Callaway quit in April because of a conflict-of-interest controversy.

Ford, who appeared before newsmen outside his resort residence in casual dress, said that "we have the team, we have the organization" to win the election against Carter.

Diseased

A-bomb secrets sharing tree dies

CHICAGO (UPI) — Thirty-four years ago, Prof. Herbert L. Anderson and his colleagues would gather under the towering elm in front of Eckhart Hall at the University of Chicago to discuss their work.

In the shade of the tree, Anderson and other physicists, including the late Enrico Fermi, exchanged theories or discussed their project — the Manhattan Project — and a stunned world would later learn about the first atom bomb.

Though atomic power has spread around the world — in reactors, medicine, energy — the elm tree is gone, to be replaced by a commemorative bench made from its trunk.

Anderson, a physics professor at the University of Chicago, died Monday and Thursday as the mighty elm was felled, the victim of Dutch Elm disease.

A small crowd of students and faculty gathered around the tree in front of the hall where the scientists had conducted secret wartime experiments through the summer of 1942. "We needed an opportunity for informal talk. Sitting under this tree gave us that chance," Anderson recalled. He watched sadly as the Elm — estimated to be some 75 years old — tottered and crashed to the ground. The bells of Rockefeller Chapel tolled what sounded like a funeral dirge. "But it was only sounding the hour — 11 a.m." "In nice weather it was a duty affair to sit under the tree after lunch and sometimes in the evening," the physicist said. Students and faculty members carried away branches. What is left of the trunk is to be saved into boards and made into a commemorative bench to be placed where the tree had stood, university officials said. "Is the tree being killed?" a young woman with a British accent asked. She was told it had Dutch Elm disease. "So it is a mercy killing," she replied and walked on.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN ARRESTED?

If you have ever filled out an employment application, or you ever plan to, you will be asked that question. Chances are you will stand a very good chance of not getting the job if you have a shoplifting arrest record.

Shoplifting is a crime, a serious crime that you can be arrested for. Although you may go free after an apprehension, once arrested, the charge will follow you around demanding explanation and causing embarrassment the rest of your life.

Think Twice. Shoplifting is like playing Russian Roulette with your future.

Tricks hasten tomato ripening

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
TOMATOES SLOW TO RIPEN?

Many gardeners tell us their tomatoes are set well but are slow to ripen. Can anything be done to hasten ripening?

There are some tricks to try: Removing some foliage may hasten ripening by three or four days.

Ripening and coloring of tomatoes depends upon fruit temperature, not light. Removing some of the foliage allows more direct sunshine to reach the fruit, raises the temperature, thus hastens maturity.

Once a tomato has reached the "mature green" stage (full development except for red color) the most desirable color develops at temperatures from 75 to 80 degrees F. Tomatoes do not color up well at temperatures below 65 degrees or over 85 degrees.

Putting green tomatoes in a bright window does not hasten coloring, since light has little effect on ripening. Perhaps heat from the sun could be trapped by the glass and hasten ripening.

Here are some advantages of removing foliage now, to hasten ripening:

(1) Picklings in cooler, especially in gardens with heavy vines.

(2) Fruits and soil under the vines may dry off faster in the morning, or after rains. Thus reducing the development of rot and mold.

(3) The amount of cracking may be reduced, but not always.

(4) Disadvantages of removing some leaves:

(1)-Exposed fruits may sunburn if a hot spell follows treatment.

(2) More fruits will be exposed to damage by early light frosts that normally would not harm fruits protected by leaves.

(3) Defoliation could cause an increase of anthracnose on the fruits.

(4) Also, exposing the fruit may cause poor shoulder ripening of green-shouldered varieties.

STUNTED CUCUMBERS

Are any of your cucumber vines infested by a disease which causes dwarfed leaves, mottled and sometimes distorted? Infected fruits are mottled green and yellow and may have a "wart" appearance due to raised yellow areas on a green background.

This mosaic disease also affects summer squash and pumpkins.

Control: Pull up affected plants, stuff them into a plastic bag and dump into a trash can. By the way, if you've got a good pickle crop, perhaps you'd like a copy of our 32-page Pickling Guide. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope for your booklet. It makes a worthwhile addition to your kitchen library.

AFRICAN VIOLET

An African violet grower sends us a good tip: "Use a discarded violet leaf to brush off and clean up the other violet leaves. The leaf has tiny hairs which act like a miniature brush and it works better than a camel's hair brush for removing dust particles, etc."

RUBBER PLANT

We're not stretching it, when we say that the rubber plant does not like wet feet. Poor drainage or too much water will cause the lower leaves to turn yellow or brown and drop off.

Place pieces of crocks or pebbles in the bottom of the pot for extra drainage. Also use a loose, well drained mixture such as one part each of sand, peat, perlite and loam.

The Ficus or rubber plant does not like full sun, so do not put it outdoors where it gets direct sun. Give the plant a light, semi-sunny to shady spot and it will do best. A good rule of thumb is to keep the soil uniformly moist, or slightly on the dry side. It does better this way than if you keep it soaked.

The most common rubber plant, Ficus elastica decora, has large, bold-textured leaves, dark green and glossy. There is a variegated type which is not as easily grown as the green leaved Ficus. Take a sponge and wash the leaves of your rubber plant, using soapy water or detergent.

If you get too tall, cut the tip off and root it in a jug of plain tap water. Take about two months or so for roots to form. You can also propagate the plant by air layering.

APRICOTS

Many people feel that apricots are not hardy, but actually some varieties will take 25 degrees below zero. Hardiness is not the problem with apricots. Their main fault is that they bloom very early, and the blossoms are hit by early spring frosts.

You can fool Jack Frost by planting the trees on north or west exposures to minimize spring frost injury. Better still, plant the trees close to a building or next to a black top. Heat from these often is enough to protect the trees from frost damage.

Two new varieties we are growing are Moonlight and Sundog. Most apricots have the ability to pollinate themselves, but the Moonlight and Sundog varieties are self-fruitful and should be planted together for cross-pollination.

GARDENIA FLOWERS

Getting the gardenia to flower indoors is quite a trick for most gardeners. A reader writes: "Gardenias are easy to grow and flower! I have a little syringe with a plunger. When I press a trigger, a fine cloud of mist shoots out. I do this every morning while I am getting my breakfast."

"The extra humidity works fine, and we always have a crop of blossoms."

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D.F. of Twin Falls: "Last spring we started tomatoes, geraniums and other plants in these pellets that come enclosed in a five pack of some sort. These pellets look like a chocolate cookie. But after you put them in water they expand. We've noticed that the roots had a hard time growing through the netting and wonder if you have had the same experience?"

Yes, we have. What you are referring to is the peat pellets called Jiffy 7's compressed into thin wafers and enclosed in a plastic netting. When soaked in water the pellets expand to about one and three-fourths inches in diameter by two inches in height.

The peat pellets are very handy, being the pot, soil and nutrients - all in one. Whenever we plant these pellets, we always take a sharp knife or razor blade and make several slits on the sides.

One mistake people make when planting the Jiffy pellet is this: They either let the pellet dry out before they plant, or they don't take time to completely bury the Jiffy soil ball.

Just as with a peat pot, unless the ball is completely buried, the peat acts as a wick and dries out quickly the area between the outside soil and in the inner ball of soil and roots.

When we discussed the problem with the manufacturer, they agreed that many people complained about the net on the pellet. So they decided to come out with a pellet without the net.

Frankly, we do not like this one as well as the net for two reasons: They are not as durable as the one with a plastic netting.

They cannot be handled roughly because they fall apart, even though they contain a binder to hold the peat together. They are cheaper than the netted pellets, however. If you get the netted pellets, slash the sides at transplanting time and you won't have to worry about the roots getting tangled in the plastic net.

SPINAL NERVE INVOLVEMENT CAUSES MANY CONDITIONS

The spinal chart shown above is directed especially to those people who have tried to regain their health through methods other than chiropractic, and have failed. THAT FAILURE SHOULD NOT LEAD TO DISCOURAGEMENT, but to greater determination to discover the fundamental cause of all disease.

Since the discovery of chiropractic, no one needs to feel that he or she is destined to be sick all their life. Remember, "Where there is life there is hope and he who has hope has power."

If your condition is not described in the above chart, contact your participating doctor for a consultation, examination and x-rays - if necessary. He will determine by his analysis of your spinal condition what you can expect from chiropractic care. Remember, there is a friend to disease!

Dublin marchers

AN ESTIMATED 50,000 placard-carrying women marched through the streets of Dublin Saturday, protesting the seven years of violence in Northern Ireland. The demonstration was the largest ever held in Dublin. (UPI)

50,000 women march in Ireland, protesting continued violence

By United Press International
An estimated 50,000 women, children and a scattering of men marched and sang hymns in unprecedented demonstrations in Dublin and Belfast Saturday, urging an end to seven years of violence in Northern Ireland.

It was the patriots, and not the British, who were the first to use Indians in the Revolutionary War. The Massachusetts Provincial Congress, in March, 1775, allowed Stockbridge Indians to form a company of minutemen, and Congress, in May, 1775 instructed Indian commissioners to try to keep the savages neutral, or else enlist them. Departments were created to administer to Indian affairs, and The World Almanac notes that an appropriation of $17,000 was voted for rum and gifts.

A senior Dublin police officer called the march of 25,000 persons behind two simple black and white banners emblazoned with the word "Peace" the largest demonstration we have ever seen in the city.

In Belfast, correspondent Frank Johnston reported thousands of Roman Catholic women crossed the "Peace Line" into Protestant territory for the first time in seven years and were received with tears and embraces from their Protestant counterparts.

Only one minor scuffle, quickly broken up by British troops, marred the Belfast march. The women's peace movement sprang into life following the killing of three Roman Catholic children in Belfast, run over by a car driven by a wounded Irish Republican Army gunman three weeks ago. The Belfast march was the third following the children's deaths.

Protestant church bells rang out over Belfast's Shankill Road area as the two groups of women met at an intersection before heading in a 25,000-strong procession to a peace rally in a nearby park.

The Protestant women reserved the warmest welcomes for a group of nuns who came in with the Catholics, led by march organizers Betty Williams and Mairead Corrigan, and of the three Maguire children who were killed.

Several ran forward and threw their arms around the Catholic leaders. "You are quite an explosion which I assume was the petrol gas tanks bursting," he said.

great, said one through-tears. "People don't know what they would have done without you."

Correspondent Donal O'Higgins reported that marchers in Dublin came from working class districts, from plush residential areas and from scattered farmsteads. Some pushed prams and carried children. Some came on wheelchairs and at least three were carried on stretchers.

"It has completely surpassed all our expectations," one of the organizers said.

A sprinkling of men accompanied the women on both sides in Belfast. One Protestant man who brought his two children said, "This is a great condemnation of all the people who take up the bomb and the bullet. It is a great hope for the future."

"I never thought I'd see the day when Catholics would march up the Shankill. It is great to see it in my country, and it is their country."

In Dublin, the silent march was broken only by hymns and the reading of a "declaration of peace" which rejected "the use of the bomb and bullet and all the techniques of violence."

Other demonstrations in the Irish republic were held in Cork, Galway, Carlow and Castlebar to coincide with the Dublin and Belfast marches.

Twin crashes kill airmen

By United Press International
Two giant U.S. Air Force Starliner transports, both attached to a New Jersey airlift wing, crashed in separate, unrelated accidents while trying to land in Britain and Greenland Saturday. At least 34 of the 44 persons aboard were killed.

Seventeen were killed in one crash and at least 21 in the other.

The first plane was carrying a group of 17 Americans from New Jersey back to the U.S. air base at Mildenhall, England. The second was on a flight down the western coast of Greenland from Thule air base to Sondrestrom and carried 27 Americans and Danes.

Both planes belonged to the 438th Military Airlift Wing headquartered at McGuire Air Force Base, N.J.

U.S. Air Force spokesmen at the Pentagon and in New Jersey said there survivors from the crash in Greenland but they did not know how many.

A Danish liaison officer at the Sondrestrom air base said 21 of the 19 passengers and eight crew on board the Starliner in Greenland died in that crash. Danish sources said the passengers included both Americans and Danes and that three of them were children.

The liaison officer said seven persons were rescued from the fiery crash, but one of them died later in a hospital.

Greenland radio said the Starliner appeared to stall during landing at Sondrestrom, fell tail first on the runway and exploded.

Lt. Col. John P. Richmond, spokesman for McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., said "there are survivors in the Greenland crash, but the number is unknown at this time."

"The circumstances of these accidents are entirely different and it is believed there is no connection between them," Richmond said.

Both the British Defense Ministry in London and the Pentagon in Washington said there were no survivors among the crew of 11 and four passengers, apparently civilians, in the other Starliner crash in a field alongside a major highway as it approached Mildenhall for a landing.

The names of victims in both crashes were withheld pending notification of relatives.

A witness to the crash near Peterborough, England, said the plane, a four jet, long range freighter and troop carrier may have been struck by lightning.

"Heavy thunder and lightning swept the crash area, near Peterborough, 80 miles north of London, as the Starliner approached for a landing at Mildenhall Air Base.

Witness David Taylor, 53, said, he believed the aircraft was hit by lightning at about 2,000 feet.

"It came down very slowly covered in flames. It seemed to come apart in the air. When it hit the ground there was quite an explosion which I assume was the petrol gas tanks bursting," he said.

Several ran forward and threw their arms around the Catholic leaders. "You are quite an explosion which I assume was the petrol gas tanks bursting," he said.

Rhodesian troops kill 36 black guerrillas

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia Saturday said its troops killed 36 black nationalist guerrillas and lost one dead in the past 48 hours — the highest death toll this year in the guerrilla war.

The government also presented what it said was "conclusive evidence" a camp it attacked inside Mozambique was a guerrilla base.

Junior government minister Ted Sutton-Pryce produced captured hand-written manuals on the use of hand grenades as evidence that the camp Rhodesian troops at-lacked 30 miles inside Mozambique on Aug. 8 was a guerrilla base, and not a refugee camp as claimed by both Mozambique and the United Nations Commission for Refugees.

Sutton-Pryce dismissed as "trumped-up charges" statements that the camp was a refugee camp. Rhodesia said it killed 36 guerrillas in the raid. Mozambique and the U.N. Commission said nearly 1,000 persons were killed.

The evidence included military training papers which Sutton-Pryce said were brought back from the raid on the camp.

"The evidence showed conclusively that the camp housed up to 3,000 guerrillas," Sutton-Pryce said.

He produced a register containing more than 2,200 names of guerrillas whose ages ranged from 14 to 29. Sutton-Pryce said security forces estimated the camp held up to 3,000 men formed in three full battalions.

Besides the real names listed in the register were such names as "Blatter," "Fichter," "Crusader" and "Ebis."

Venezuela will tax US firms

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The comptroller-general's office Saturday it will press tax claims of more than $500 million against 36 foreign oil companies whose properties were nationalized Jan. 1.

Companies affected include such U.S. giants as Exxon, Mobil Gulf and Texaco and Shell and Dutch firms.

A number of the companies said earlier this year that in some cases the tax claims were greater than the indemnity payments awarded by the government for the state takeover of their properties.

The tax claims are known to be privately opposed by the government of President Carlos Andres Perez, which is said to be reluctant to interfere with the autonomous activities of the comptroller-general, charged with overseeing state income expenditures and properties.

Venezuela's most prominent oil exports, including former claims on agreements between the Venezuelan government and the international oil companies, now are marketing the nation's oil and assisting technological development.

The claims now go before Venezuelan tax courts.

Sometimes silent horn is best horn

Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — This was the scene. Mark Nielson, 18, sat behind the wheel of a car. His girl was next to him. They were all dressed up, on their way to his senior prom.

The traffic wasn't moving on Sheridan Road. Somebody else was waiting to pull into a crowded driveway and was blocking Mark's car.

So he did a little thing. He touched his horn and it went "beep."

Just a small gesture. The touch of a finger, a sound: Beep.

But it's a bad idea. I don't know if anyone has ever compiled data on the subject, but I believe that people who never touch their car horns live longer than people who do. They reduce their chances of being punched, hit on the head, shot, threatened, chased or murdered.

On the other hand, maybe I'm wrong. People who use their car horns might reduce their tensions and suffer fewer heart attacks or not grind their teeth in their sleep.

But in this case, it was a bad idea. The other driver, shouting something at Nielson, Nielson said something back, the other driver walked over and said something more. Nielson said something back and the other driver reached into Nielson's car and seized him by the throat.

"That's right. He suddenly was choking Nielson. Isn't that terrible?"

Actually, no. It is a learning process. And what better time to begin learning than on the night of your senior prom, when you are stepping from boyhood into the real world?

And what could be a better lesson about what it is like in the real world than to suddenly have a stranger grab you by the throat?

Fortunately, Nielson's car has power windows. So he touched a button and the stranger had to release Nielson and get his arms out of the way. (Consumers reports say power windows are an unnecessary luxury. They've never been choked by a stranger.)

The other guy got back in his car and drove off, but not before Nielson got the license number.

Then Nielson did the wrong thing. He reported it to the police. She should have dragged it off and gone to the prom.

But he is only 18, so it didn't occur to him that the short-tempered "stranger" might have troubles. That his new boss at work is 10 years younger than he is, and despises him. That his wife has just read a book on self-fulfillment and has taken up with a bartender. That his teen-age son is on his way to Mexico to begin his own drug ring. I don't know the man, so I don't know if any of these things happened to him. But obviously, something was troubling him and these are common problems.

So Nielson reported him, the police traced the license and the man was charged with battery. And after one continuance, the trial came up.

Nielson walked into court expecting what everybody expects the first time. Something like they see on TV. Dogged prosecutors, spectators ready to ooh and aah at the surprising revelations from witnesses, a judge making reasoned and wise rulings.

His education continued. It was a neighborhood police court, crammed with people who steal hubcaps, shoplift, punch a neighborhood, beat their wives; choke a stranger like a neighborhood dog.

When his case was called, Nielson pushed to the front of the crowded courtroom and asked the prosecutor if they would have time to confer, so he could explain the case and prepare his testimony.

The prosecutor blinked his tired eyes. He had just finished with three wife beaters, two shoplifters, six hubcap thieves, a 12-man tavern brawl and two flightline ladies who spit at each other across their fence and filed cross complaints.

Waiting were three more wife beaters, two bicycle thieves, a seven-man tavern brawl and a fellow who smiled at the woman next door through her bedroom window at 3 a.m.

"No," the prosecutor said. "There is no time."

And in a few seconds, Nielson had been sworn in and was telling the story of how he had been choked by a stranger. When he finished, the prosecutor rested the case.

Nielson interrupted. He thought they should do more.

The prosecutor flung his pencil down, spluttered angrily and stomped out of the courtroom.

"I'm in," the judge said. "He's not feeling well today and he's had a heavy schedule."

Without a prosecutor, the case was weaker. So the judge said the short-tempered man was not guilty.

As Nielson was leaving the nervous prosecutor came back in and Nielson asked him: "Can I appeal?"

"Don't ask me," the prosecutor snapped, and the court clerk pointed Nielson toward the door.

Later, Nielson complained to me about his experience. He felt he had not been treated fairly.

Of course he hadn't. But who was treated fairly?

Was it fair for the prosecutor, after all these years in law school, to have exist in a blur of drunken husbands, hubcap thieves and dog kickers?

The judge, after years of working his precinct, opening doors for his ward-committee man and buying tickets for all the political dog outings, was it so he could determine who, out of 11 defendants, threw the ashtray at the bartender's head?

Life, Nielson has learned, is not a prom. And sometimes the silent horn is the best horn.

Didn't know I was a philosopher, hey?

Hughes kin agree to divide estate

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Twenty heirs of the late Howard Hughes filed agreements with the Nevada court Friday to divide his $2.5 billion estate, assuming the billionaire reclusive died without leaving a will.

The agreements were placed in public record shortly before probate proceedings on a so-called "Mormon Will" opened in district court.

A spokesman for Summit Corp., the holding company for Hughes' financial empire, said similar documents will be filed in the near future in Texas, California and Delaware courts.

Under terms of the agreement, one quarter of Hughes' estate will go to three paternal heirs and three quarters of it will be divided among three branches of maternal heirs.

Three sisters — Barbara Cameron, Los Angeles, Elspeth Depaul, Cleveland, and Agnes Roberts, also of Cleveland — are the paternal heirs. The maternal side of the family consists of 16 cousins who are the nieces and nephews of Hughes' closest living relative, Anneite Gann Lummis, 85, of Houston.

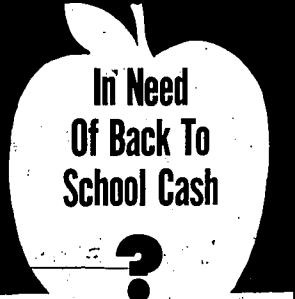

The agreement was filed in Nevada court at the request of Mrs. Cameron and William Lummis, Hughes' first cousin and newly-named chairman of the board of Summit Corp.

Mrs. Cameron said the filings were requested to dispel various efforts to attach "sinister significance" to the accord. Relatives said the settlement was reached to avoid costly and extensive litigation among various branches of family.

The agreement, contingent on the assumption Hughes died without leaving a will, was filed before hearings began on the "Mormon Will," the most believable of 33 documents which have surfaced since Hughes died April 5 on an emergency medical flight from Acapulco to Houston.

The store is located at Blue Lakes Boulevard and Falls Avenue. Regular store hours will be from 9 to 9 Monday through Friday, 9 to 6 Saturday and 10 to 6 on Sunday. A week-long sale will begin with ribbon-cutting ceremonies featuring local dignitaries and company executives. The festivities will begin at 10 a.m.

Doug Carroll has been named to manage the new store. He previously was assistant manager of the Ernest Yanking store in Washington and, most recently, the Ernest Center store in Utah.

Gary Thornton has been named assistant manager of the new store. Department heads are Steve Wissalek, sporting goods; Lonnie Thomson, lumber and John Fellows, nursery. The Ernest Home Center will offer the do-it-yourselfer thousands of products for home remodeling and repair, and will continue its policy of providing information by trained employees to customers to assist them with their home projects, Erickson said.

The 36,900-square-foot outlet will stock more than 45,000 items, including plumbing and electrical supplies, hardware, paint, pre-cut lumber and building materials, arts and crafts, housewares and recreational equipment.

An additional 7,000 square feet of outdoor space will house a complete nursery featuring both shrubs and trees, gardening supplies and equipment, indoor and outdoor plants.

The building is trimmed in stucco and features split concrete block walls with a stained cedar fascia and a mansard roof over the main canopy area. The project architect was Charles D Peterson of Salt Lake City. John Price and Associates of Salt Lake City served as the developer and contractor.

The interior is an innovative design using warm wood tones and earth colors. Store designers were Dean Lewis of Harper's Art Graphics of Costa Mesa, Calif., and the assignment architect was Arthur J. Ivata of Berkeley, Calif.

The Twin Falls store is the second Ernest Home Center to open in Idaho. The company has a store in Pocatello and is planning to open outlets in Idaho Falls and Nampa this fall.

The Pay 'n Save Corp. operates Pay 'n Save drug stores, Bi-Mart drug stores, Lamons Apparel, Yard Birds general merchandising stores, Sportland and Sportswest stores. In addition to Ernest Home Centers in 150 locations in the western United States and Canada.

Mt. Everest camp established by Yankees

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — The 12-member American bicentennial expedition to Mt. Everest has established its base camp on schedule at 18,000 feet, the Nepalese Foreign Ministry said today.

Officials said a radio message from the expedition challenging the world's highest mountain said the camp was set up Thursday as planned in its timetable.

The message was the first direct radio contact between Katmandu and the climbers, who are attempting the 29,028-foot mountain in the autumn climbing season.

The team, led by 39-year-old Phillip R. Trimble, a State Department lawyer, is the smallest ever to attempt to climb the world's tallest peak, which was first conquered in 1953 by a British expedition. Trimble hopes to place all the members of the team on the summit.

The Americans are taking the traditional southeast ridge route which was pioneered in 1952 by New Zealand's Sir Edmund Hillary, who was the first man to conquer the peak as a member of the 1953 British expedition.

Foreign 'students' enter US illegally

BOSTON (UPI) — Two New England colleges — three in Massachusetts and one in Maine — are issuing blank forms to foreigners, allowing them to enter the United States as students when in fact they are not attending school, according to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The Boston Herald American said today that several other schools in Colorado, Illinois and Tennessee also have issued hundreds of the blank, 120 forms which allow persons to obtain student visas even though they don't attend college in this country.

"This agency has learned schools are issuing these blank, signed certificates to recruiters working abroad, who will use them in an effort to 'enroll' students in the schools," said the INS.

"However, many of the forms are simply being purchased by aliens to obtain student visas when there is no intention to attend schools after arrival in the U.S.," the agency added.

Patrick F. Cooney, district director in Boston for the INS, said the Massachusetts schools "are not try to get colleges or what I would call principal schools."

"One of the Massachusetts schools is a smaller college and the other is rather big and rather well known," said Cooney.

Another INS source told the newspaper "a couple of Middle Eastern countries" were involved.

Cooney said "we have had notice of the form before, but not on this scale. These forms have quite a value when you realize how desperately some people want to come into this country."

The agency said action against the schools could include withdrawal of their authorization to enroll alien students or "in extreme cases there could be prosecution of those issuing blank certificates."

SNRA status not likely

By BART QUESNELL Times-News Writer

SUN VALLEY — National Park Service status for any park in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area is several years in the future if ever, according to an Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

Stanhel Reed, assistant secretary for fish, wildlife and parks, said during an interview here Friday, the Middle Fork-Salmon River Breaks primitive area controversy will be a much more pressing problem in 1977 and 1978.

Currently the SNRA is administered by the Forest Service which is under the Department of Agriculture. In the act creating the SNRA, the Department of Interior which directs the Park Service, was mandated by Congress to prepare its own report and recommendation.

The regional office of the Park Service recommended over a 1-million-acre park including all of the SNRA and adjoining acreage. However, the Department of Interior sent a "no-park" recommendation at least for the present time. In the Office of Management and Budget.

The OMB is the last federal agency to review the recommendation before it goes to Congress. Although only a 30-day waiting and review period is necessary, Reed said, the final document may stay in OMB until Congress wants it released.

Reed said OMB could overturn the Interior Department recommendation, but Interior and Park Service sources say it will be unlikely if the recommendation is reversed.

With the upcoming Presidential election and Congress nearing recess, the report will certainly not go to the Hill this year, Reed said.

Reed said the delay in releasing the SNRA park report was partially because of a controversial Hells Canyon recreation area debate concerning several thousand acres in western Idaho.

Now with the upcoming struggle to save the heartland of the Idaho-Primmity Area, the SNRA park question likely will be stowed on the back burner, Reed said.

In addition, he said there are no serious attempts by logging, mining or other multi-use interests which will destroy the beauty of the area.

The Sawtooth, White Cloud, Boulder Mountain region "qualifies in every way as an addition to the national park system," Reed said.

He said it is so "substantially different from any other Rocky Mountain park" that it deserves park status.

There are many other regions in the U.S., however, which need considerable and quick attention, Reed said. There is also a substantial backlog of park designated areas which have not been funded for acquisition.

Reed dispelled the idea the Park Service would never have the money needed to buy out over $1 billion of the estimated molybdenum claims owned by American Smelting and Refining Co. in the White Clouds.

He said ASARCO approached the Interior Department as early as 1971 with an offer to seal the claims "as a tiny fraction of that price."

Reed said he believes ASARCO will never mine the White Clouds.

"Mineral extraction there is not available, never was available, and without a major revolution in Idaho the area will be left the way it is," Reed said.

He did say happenings in 1977 and 1978 "may make the White Clouds interesting politically. Everybody will have to take a side," Reed said of political action.

"They're either going to have to fish or cut bait. There is not a hell of a lot of room for compromise," he said.

The SNRA controversy will wait, Reed said, until Congress decides what to do about two wilderness areas in Idaho.

There is more than 2.5 million acres of wilderness in central Idaho, including 1.4 million acres in the existing Idaho and Salmon River Breaks Primitive Areas.

Most of the public hearings in Idaho in 1973 favored a 2.3 million acre River of No Return Wilderness, taking in most of the drainage of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River.

Hansen personality intrudes on Kress

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Democratic Congressional candidate Stan Kress says he wants to wage a campaign without personal attacks on his opponent, Second District incumbent Rep. George Hansen.

But Kress is running into problems. So many Republicans have pledged support for the Kress campaign, says the red-haired Fifth educator, that he is having a hard time keeping Hansen's personality out of his campaign.

According to Kress, voters are saying they will vote for him because they will not vote for Hansen.

"I've had a number of people come up to me and say, 'This is Republican country, and I normally consider myself to be a Republican, but I can't support George Hansen,'" Kress said. "A statement of that type is very often made."

The Democratic candidate says these voters have different reasons for their disenchantment with the incumbent.

"Some say they happen to be more moderate Republicans of the Drval Hansen vintage, and they are now disappointed," Kress went on. "And others are disappointed because of his Hansen's campaign violation, and some others because of the way he attempts to use the church vote."

The result of this anti-Hansen response among voters has confused Kress. He says he tried to focus his campaign on political issues, but the voters seem to indicate personalities are the issue.

"To some degree that presents a problem to us," Kress said, "because we would like to keep our campaign above board and clean, and not one of personal attack."

Kress also says Hansen's own actions are making it difficult to refrain from assaults on Hansen's personality in political self-defense.

"He makes it a little difficult for us when right after the primaries he begins to blast our contributions and where we have got our contributions when he knows since the first of January we have collected $27,000 and carefully accounted for it," Kress said. "He criticizes some of the people who contributed to our campaign, when during the same period of time he has collected $160,000 and over $140,000 he lists as unitemized contributions."

"I think it a little ironic that he should criticize my contributors when he has no intention of telling the people of Idaho where he got that money," Kress states flatly.

Kress also commented that "a source high in the Republican Party who has asked not to be named" told him "90 to 93 per cent" of Hansen's unitemized campaign contributions came from contributors outside of Idaho.

Although he will still try to avoid personal attacks on Hansen in the upcoming campaign, Kress says he will "call on him to present full and open information to the people of Idaho."

This evidently will include a challenge to disclose personal finances.

Asked what "radical" dangers might exist at the hospital, he said, "I haven't the wildest idea."

Schloss said he's been "in the hospital business for 15 years and never heard of this type of problem before."

He said he could not comment further until he investigates the problem on Monday.

Mrs. Frances Whorton, administrator for Gooding County Memorial Hospital, said the hospital was not affected because it doesn't have automatic blood counters.

Leon Felder, administrator of St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome, and Ed Richardson, administrator for "Midnight Memorial Hospital in Rupert, could not be reached for comment.

The CDC, in its weekly morbidity and mortality report, said the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health recently learned of violent sodium azide-related explosions associated with automatic blood cell counters in a number of hospitals in the U.S. and Canada.

The CDC said one violent explosion occurred while a constant temperature water bath — in which sodium azide had been used as a preservative — was being repaired.

The CDC said the accumulation of lead and copper azides in plumbing systems can be retarded by thoroughly flushing with large amounts of water several times a day.

The use of copper-free and lead-free lines between the point of discharge of azide and the nearest pipe in which there is a good stream of water, or using azide-free products, will prevent future accumulation of explosive azides, the CDC said.

But the CDC warned these measures will not decontaminate plumbing already containing explosive compounds.

Hailey FAA grant may hurt SIRAA

By BART QUESNELL Times-News writer

HAILEY — Federal Aeronautics Administration (FAA) support for Hailey's Fredman Memorial Airport may cast a pall on boosters of a Magic Valley regional air facility near Jerome.

The FAA has awarded Fredman $300,000 to overlay its runway. The grant is the second for the airport in two years.

The FAA awarded Fredman $220,000 last year for construction of an access road, land purchase and the redirection of an irrigation system.

This year's grant will allow a three-to-four inch oil mat to be laid in a 30-foot swath the complete length of the airport's 6,000-foot runway.

In addition a turn around section at the south end of the runway will be constructed.

More money will be needed in the future for improvements at the airport, according to Hailey Mayor L. F. Heagle and airport manager Mord Stocking, to care for a tremendous jump in air traffic to Hailey.

Key Airlines estimates 40,000 passengers will fly into the airport this year, according to Stocking.

Heagle said the oil mat job on the runway will be the first in 10 years. Bids for the job will be opened Monday.

A new terminal building on the west side of the runway is scheduled for completion this year as well. Bids will be opened Sept. 14 on the 50 by 75-foot terminal building estimated to cost around $175,000.

The terminal will be financed through the Blaine County Airport Commission.

The terminal is needed to provide room for passengers and to provide a turn-around for planes.

A parking lot near the terminal, midway on the west side of the runway, is also needed, according to Stocking.

Funding for the terminal building will come from county tax money plus lease payments from Key Airlines, Western Sky Aviation, the Sun Valley Aero Center and other sources.

With the apparent setback of the FAA with the Hailey airport and the expected traffic increase, there appears to be an ever-expanding trend between Blaine County and the South Idaho Regional Airport Association (SIRAA).

The SIRAA wants to construct a huge regional facility in Jerome County. Much of that agency's passenger traffic figures revolve around the tourist trade into Hailey and the Sun Valley resort area.

SIRAA planners predict by 1980 that 71,700 passengers will take off from the regional airport, with 40,000 coming directly from Sun Valley.

Stocking said long distance passengers flying into the airport facility will not be satisfied with "it's just too far to drive," he said.

Cadets will fight dismissal

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — A federal court suit will be filed against the Secretary of the Army to prevent him from dismissing any West Point cadets convicted of honor code violations, an attorney for accused cadets said Saturday.

“We are going to sue to be filing a federal court action to enjoin the Secretary of the Army from dismissing any accused cadets from West Point because the secretary lacks the legal authority to readmit any cadet,” lawyer Michael Rose said.

Secretary of the Army Martin J. Hoffmann announced last Monday that cadets expelled for cheating on a basic home examination would be allowed to reapply to the academy after one year.

“I expect that most cadets expelled in West Point’s worst cheating scandal will be allowed readmission next year,” said Friday by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Personnel Subcommittee.

“I find it probable that the term ‘black mail’ would be used by Sen. Nunn.”

ADA backs Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The “board” of the Americans for Democratic Action endorsed Jimmy Carter for President Saturday and asked liberals not to support former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, a liberal running as an independent.

Rock concert turns nasty

WARREN, Ohio (UPI) — Two teen-aged boys were hospitalized with slit throats and 22 other young people were treated for cuts and bruises after a rock and bottle throwing melee broke out at a concert near here.

Americans killed in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Three American civilians working on a super-secret intelligence-gathering project for the Iranian Air Force were ambushed and shot to death Saturday as they were being driven to work during the morning rush hour.

Without this authority the secretary “cannot make good the promise that a cadet may be reinstated to the academy,” the civilian attorney said in an interview.

He added, “The slits (positions) identified by the secretary for readmitting the cadets were intended by Congress to admit to West Point as freshmen new cadets from the enlisted ranks of the Army” and not intended for discharged cadets.

Rose charged the West Point command “ignorant” evidence of mass rape cheating at the academy while the Secretary of the Army’s “black acknowledged” massive honor code violations at the institution.

“I find the evidence in his affidavit locked in his safe, said, ‘I find it probable that the term ‘black mail’ would be used by Sen. Nunn.”

“I said the cadets gave the affidavits in his ‘to preserve the confidentiality of the evidence, I was asked to act as intermediary because they trusted me and thought I would be credible to academy officials.”

The board voted 20 to 7 in its closed meeting to endorse Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale.

A crowd of about 25,000, apparently angered by the curtailment of entertainment, began throwing rocks and debris at police cruisers patrolling the area about 7 p.m.

Richard Glaser, Pittsburgh, and Darrell Saunders, Bellevue, Pa., were reported in serious condition with slit throats after Memorial Hospital. Officials said their attacker was unidentified.

A hospital spokesman said six or seven other young people had been treated for minor injuries. A spokesman at St. Joseph’s Hospital said 15 persons had been brought in.

“The exchange proposes to discontinue its futures contract which limits deliverable potatoes to only Idaho potatoes and offer a contract calling for the delivery of ‘Idaho, Midwestern and Western Russet Burbank’ potatoes.

RUPERT — Steve Buck is the new president of the newly formed Rupert Associated Merchants.

20 persons plan Boise testimony

WASHINGTON — Twenty persons have indicated their intention to testify before the Commodity Futures Trading Commission at its hearing in Boise, Monday.

“It would be irresponsible indeed for liberals to cast their votes for McCarthy and thus make possible the reelection of Ford and Dole,” the board said.

Buck, who is manager of J. C. Penney’s store, edged out Jerry Grace, manager of Hirsch’s Value Center, for the presidency. Grace was named vice president.

The hearing will be in the Allurus Room of the Holiday Inn, 20th Street and Chinden Boulevard, Boise, commencing at 9:30 a.m. CFTC Vice Chairman John V. Rainholz II and Commissioners Gary L. Severs and Robert L. Martin will conduct the hearing.

Wendell Herrell, commodity analyst, U and I, Inc., Salt Lake City; Jay Arund, general manager, Central Sands Sales, Inc., Bancroft, Wis.; Byard B. Sloumb, Oregon Potato, J.N.C., Boardman, Ore.; L. Keith Stuecker, secretary-treasurer, Bruce Farms, Inc., Othello, Wash.; and Mel Anderson, Idaho Growers and Shippers Association, Idaho Falls.

“The ADA board said McCarthy’s candidacy could hurt Carter in close election,” he said.

Don Redfield was elected secretary-treasurer. The group agreed to meet at 10 a.m. every first Thursday of the month at city hall.

Members plan to contact other merchants in the downtown area and urge them to join. The association has been formed to develop business promotions in Rupert.

“Practical capacity is broadly defined as the greatest level of output an industrial plant can achieve within a realistic work pattern. Although the percentage of capacity utilized by all U.S. industrial plants was about the same for the last quarter of both years, there were considerable changes in the durable and nondurable industry groups which tended to offset each other.

“Governor Carter shares liberal values and he has the ability and energy to translate these values into effective action,” said a resolution adopted by the ADA board.

“The decline in the durable goods industries was led by the primary metals industries (SIC 33), which fell 15 points from 34 to 19 per cent.

“Plants in the nondurable industry groups operated at 80 per cent of capacity in the first quarter of 1975 as against 77 per cent during the same period in 1974.

Pepper works cattle at Hooper farm east of Bliss

Australian cattle dogs prize possessions of two MV women

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BLISS — Cattle dogs are common on many Magic Valley farms, but there are only about six purebred Australian Cattle Dogs in Idaho, according to two Gooding County women.

Mrs. Graham Hooper, who lives between Tuttle and Bliss, and Mrs. Amy Barry, Wendell, each are the enthusiastic owners of one of these dogs which have the registered name of Australian Cattle Dog, although they are more commonly referred to as the Queensland Blue Heeler.

Unlike the much more common Australian Shepherd, which is used for both cattle and sheep, these "blue heeler" are recommended mainly for cattle as they can be a little rough on sheep, Mrs. Hooper says.

The Hoopers, who own 600 acres east of Bliss, with about 200 acres under cultivation, recently purchased a male pup of the breed, importing him from Bargo, New South Wales, Australia.

Now nearly 3 months old with the impressive build of Wootton's Blue Javelin—the pup already goes with Mrs. Hooper when she moves her cattle, but he's not old enough to work yet.

However, Javelin, who hasn't acquired a firm call name yet, has an excellent teacher in another Hooper farm dog, Pepper, a McNiven heeler, whose ancestry also stems from the continent "downunder."

Mrs. Hooper said there is much confusion today about purebred cattle dogs, with many of the "McNiven" heeler's in this country, she said many years ago a Dr. McNiven in Australia instigated a crossbreeding program which ultimately led to his dogs being barred from the Australian registry.

Many of these dogs were imported to the U.S. by a Dr. Wadley in California. These animals were then registered with the National Stock Dog Registry in Indiana, thus creating the confusion as to which dogs are the true purebred dogs.

She said the Australian Cattle Dog Club of America, currently is trying to gather information on enough true purebred dogs so they may be granted full recognition by the American Kennel Club. The AKC will recognize those breeds which have valid ancestry in the country of the dog's origin.

But while the new pup in the Hooper yard may have the edge when it comes to pedigree, Pepper currently has the upper hand in experience and wisdom. The mother of two pups which command considerable attention from 22-month-old Cindy Hooper, Pepper is an excellent cattle dog, according to her mistress.

The Hoopers run about 100 head of cattle to fatten on their feedlots, and Pepper is her constant shadow, nipping the heels of any lagging animals and guiding the herd into the proper corral instantly upon command.

Patty Hooper said she had always heard of the Queensland Blue Heeler, and when she learned it was possible to import a pup she was eager to own one. Javelin sold for $150 in his native land, but with the current exchange rate, the cost was $407 of U.S. money, plus $230 to ship him by air to Boise.

"With the cost of telephone calls—he's a $425 dog," Mrs. Hooper said. She and her husband went to Boise to get their pup. He was flown there after arriving in Los Angeles late in July.

Although there still is some disagreement as to the actual breeds used, it is generally believed that the Australian Cattle Dog developed chiefly from the crossbreeding between a Dingo and a Blue Merle Collie, with a later injection of bull terrier blood.

These dogs come in two colors, blue or red. The puppies are born white and sometimes have black head markings. As they mature, the dogs change colors. Most puppies will have tan appear on their legs and across the chest. The main portion of their short, dense coat will darken, forming a mixture of black and white hair giving a blue appearance. Red dogs will have a mixture of reddish tan and white hair.

Their desire to work cattle is innate in their breeding and is obvious even when the dog is up to his chest in muck, Mrs. Hooper says. The natural instinct to heel also has given these registered Australian Cattle Dogs considerable recognition as watchdogs.

Many a stranger will wait in his car when one of these dogs appears, Mrs. Hooper said. But the blue heeler on the Hooper and Barry farms appear to be contented members of the family.

Imported dog

PATTY Hooper, Bliss, restrains her newly imported Australian Cattle Dog, Wootton's Blue Javelin, who at 3 months is already holding a privileged spot in the Hooper household. The breed, registered as Australian Cattle Dog, is commonly referred to as the Queensland Blue Heeler.

Good combination

KIDS AND pumps make a good combination and 22-month-old Cindy Hooper enjoys the two pups from Pepper, the McNiven heeler who currently is the top dog when it comes to working cattle on the Hooper farm east of Bliss.

Pepper nips heels of lagging heifer.

Proud owner

MRS. Amy Barry, Wendell farmwife, is proud of her Australian cattle dog, Conley's Blue Jessica, called Jassie for short. The dog is one of six of her breed in Idaho.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a tough one for you: Some friends came to visit my husband and me the other afternoon, and they brought their 13-year-old son along to play with our son, who's about the same age. After they left, our son discovered that a $5 bill was missing from his desk drawer. He said he was sure it was there that morning. We are almost positive this visiting boy took it, but of course we can't be sure unless he confesses.

Should we mention this to the boy's parents? There's more than just the $5 loss involved here. If the boy is a thief, I think his parents ought to know, don't you? What should we do?

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: If he were your son, wouldn't you want to know that he was suspect? After a thorough search for the $5 has been made to preclude the possibility of a false accusation, I think the boy should be questioned. Absent the absence of any real proof that he is guilty, he should be presumed innocent.

Did guest steal $5?

DEAR ABBY: I have a son-in-law who is so money-hungry it's positively disgusting! Two days after my husband died, he went to our lawyer and asked, "How much is there in it for me? Every time my daughter comes to visit me, she asks if I've decided what I'm going to do with my jewelry when I die, and if I have put it in writing. My daughter changed completely after she married this nut. He's a schoolteacher, and he either hypnotized her or brainwashed her. She never lacked for a thing before she was married. What on earth causes such greed? I hardly know-how-to-handle-it."

DISGUSTED IN ARIZONA

DEAR DISGUSTED: In your daughter's case, it obviously wasn't poverty. And if I were you, I wouldn't go boating or mountain-climbing with this pair. And if they invite you over for dinner, better take a food-taster along.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a widow who makes a practice of calling on bereaved families every evening when close friends and relatives come to pay their respects? This woman has little more than a nodding acquaintance with most of these people, but she shows up right after night as long as others come.

She probably figures it's a good way to get into homes where she'd never be invited. Also, there are always plenty of good eats and people to socialize with, and she likes to talk.

Since it's kind of an open house for a week after the funeral, I don't suppose anybody can keep her out, but it seems to me that there should be some way to keep people like her from taking advantage of other people's sorrow. This is a small town, so please don't say where this letter is from.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

DEAR FRIEND: I know of no way to turn away even a nodding acquaintance who comes to pay a condolence call, but anyone who is so desperate for company and a cup of tea has my sympathy.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Important use for CB radios

By ERMA BOMBECK

There has to be some future for CB radios other than flushing out the hiding places of Smokey (the police) and broadcasting to a breathless audience that you're on the way to Grandma's for pork chops.

As usual, I've thought deeply about the possibilities and it occurs to me CB conversations could be an absolute godsend for families trapped in a car with a driver who says, "Tell me when you see a place to stop and eat."

Wit's End

Some men are wonderful about pulling off the road every three or four miles; half some of us are married to robots. They require no food. No liquids. No breathers. Their stomachs never bloat. Their vision never becomes blurred from hunger. Their legs never cramp. They consider a key in a gas station as a wall accessory.

CB radio communication might just be the answer if women all over the country would seize control of the Speakers.

Casual appeal in accessories

Chicago Sun-Times—An accessory puts an accent on a look. It can be the thing that gives an outfit that extra special fillip.

This fall the casual dash in clothes is added and abetted by accessories in the same mood. In millinery, that can mean jaunty caps worn at a rakish angle over one eye, soft tams and berets, tweed country hats or man-tailored fedoras.

Items such as belt bags in leather or canvas have casual feeling that jibes with sweaters and skirts or pants. The small pouch or envelope around your waist and your hands are free. Soft, squishy push shoulderbags and envelope clutches also continued to be chic means of totting your necessities.

In footwear the rustles are tops in boots. The rugged Frye in cowhide set on a low or medium heel has been copied like mad. It's great for those who like to tuck in pant legs. Riding-type boots set on medium heels are also a big look. Footwear in general is inclined toward lower heels for daytime. The flange trim (fringed flap on the vamp of the shoe) is an important casual look in shoes for pants and skirts.

Poster child

THE 1976 poster child for the Twin Falls Cystic-Fibrosis-Foundation's-Breath-of-Life Campaign, Sept. 19 to 25, is two-year-old Willie Harbison. Mrs. Ralph Milton is the chairman of the second annual Twin Falls drive, which will raise funds to finance research on the lung disease and treatment for children suffering from it.

Little Willie Harbison, 2, chosen 1976 poster child

By PAIGE CHERNO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Willie Harbison is bright, bubbly and, he'll show you with his fingers, just two.

He has a 50-50 chance of living past age 18. Willie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harbison, Wendell, is the 1976 poster child for the Twin Falls Cystic Fibrosis Foundation's (CFF) Breath of Life Campaign, Sept. 19 to 25.

"Cystic fibrosis is the number one genetic killer of children," according to Mrs. Ralph Milton, chairman of the Twin Falls Breath of Life Campaign.

About 500 Idaho children suffer from the incurable lung disease, says Mrs. Milton, whose own daughter died of cystic fibrosis in 1960.

"One out of every 1,500 infants is born with it," she says. "And one out of 20 adults is a carrier."

A child must receive the recessive gene from each parent in order to inherit the disease. Willie's First Breath of Life Campaign last year raised about $3,000. Mrs. Milton reports. About 300 persons will collect door-to-door this year, and the foundation will also place collection centers throughout the city.

Over 80 per cent of the contributions to the CFF finance educational programs, research and medical care for children with cystic fibrosis and other lung-damaging illness; the rest goes to fund raising and administration.

Medical care for a child like Willie is expensive. His mother, Terri Harbison, estimates his medicine, doctor visits and hospital stays total about $7,000 to $8,000 per year.

Willie visits a pediatrician about four times per month and is hospitalized almost every three months with pneumonia.

Willie's parents also treat him at home. Mrs. Harbison says he undergoes a kind of chest therapy four times a day, breathes air from a mist machine to help dislodge mucus in his lungs and takes lots of antibiotics. "The only thing they know for sure helps treat the symptoms."

The Harbisons moved to Idaho from California just three weeks ago. Mrs. Harbison says they plan to take Willie to the cystic fibrosis clinic in Tampa, one of four clinics in the state and one of the 100 clinics throughout the country.

Unlike California, Idaho does little to help families with their huge medical bills, according to Mrs. Roger McGinnis, executive director of the Idaho CFF.

Willie's illness was diagnosed at the Stanford Medical Center, Stanford, Calif., when he was three months old. What doctors called his "failure to thrive" first concerned his parents.

"He had a huge appetite and would drink 48 to 50 ounces of milk a day as an infant," without gaining weight. His mother recalls.

Excessive appetite accompanied by poor weight gain can be a sign of a lung-damaging disease. The CFF advises parents' other signs are:

- Recurrent wheezing.
- Persistent coughing, with excessive mucus.
- Clubbing, or enlargement of fingertips.

Cystic fibrosis is difficult to diagnose because it resembles other respiratory problems. Signs of cystic fibrosis in particular are a salty taste of the skin, nasal polyps and persistent, bulky diarrhea. Cystic fibrosis can affect the digestive system as well as the respiratory system.

Willie Willie is not particularly thin and does not have enlarged fingertips, he coughs occasionally as he plays and has the tell-tale salty skin. He also has to take enzymes to help him digest his food.

Even though there is no cure yet for cystic fibrosis, research has produced treatment which now keeps about 50 per cent of the patients alive into their 20s. The average life span is currently 14 years.

A few years ago, Mrs. Milton points out, a child like Willie would not have been expected to survive infancy.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Here is another hand from the May, 1940, Bridge World. It was submitted by a reader as an example of interesting dummy play.
 South rose with dummy's ace of spades, entered his hand with the king-of-hearts, ruffed a diamond, entered his hand with the king of clubs, ruffed his last diamond, cashed dummy's ace and queen of hearts, ruffed the last heart and threw West in with his high trump after West discarded.
 West had to either lead a club or give South a ruff and discard for his contract.

 The Bridge World's comment was well played, but that North should have merely bid five spades, not six; whereupon South could realize that he had magic cards and bid the slam.

ASK THE EXPERTS
 A Kansas reader wants to know what we bid with:
 ▲ K K x K x x ▲ A x x x ▲ K x x in response to partner's one-heart opening bid.
 We simply raise to two hearts. Our hand has no ruffing value, but with an ace and two kings we want to try a more-encouraging bid than one no trump.

That was 1940 bidding. Moderns would find all sorts of possible sequences including such action as a repeated diamond cue bid by North.
 Our own opinion is that it is a cinch to reach six when you look at all the cards, but at the table any pair that got there by any method would be proud of their bidding.

Peanut prices up

© Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — There's bad news for peanut butter and jelly fans. No matter who becomes President, the price of peanuts — and of peanut butter — is sure to rise by Christmas.

That's the industry consensus in the wake of an announcement by Shippy Peanut Butter that it is increasing its wholesale prices by 25 cents a pound.

Mrs. Rose Musso, president of Georgia nut, a nut distributor, said, "We bought our Christmas peanuts already because we expected the prices to be higher. If we have to replace those supplies in four or five months, the price is sure to rise."

The reason for the price increases is the popularity of peanuts. Mrs. Musso says, with health-food stores booming and peanut recipes becoming popular.

Four valley cooks win recipe contest

TWIN FALLS — Four Magic Valley people have been declared winners in the Idaho "Big Little" recipe contest, main dish category, sponsored by National Oats Co., Inc.

Main dish recipes are all important. The dishes they produce star at dinners, luncheons, breakfasts and brunches. One such recipe, Pizza Pazaz, created by R.A. Jeff, Twin Falls, was a $25 winner in the contest.

Other Magic Valley winners included Mrs. Frank Brown, Kimberly; Mrs. R. Thackeray, Jerome, and Sherry Watts, Twin Falls, all $10.

The company, manufacturers of 3-Minute Brand Oats and popcorn, has held the contest for three consecutive years.

Recipes were judged for creativity, economical use of ingredients and general goodness of the finished product. The main dish submitted by Jeff appealed to the judges. Perhaps other Magic Valley residents would like to try it.

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb, I am an arrested alcoholic. I'm 66 years old. When I used to drink sometimes I would have to be hospitalized and my doctor would put me on Valium for the withdrawal symptoms. I know (think) God that I'll never drink anymore as I've been through so many trials in the last two years. My brother died with cancer, my husband had two light strokes and already had a colostomy for cancer and my mother-in-law died. I didn't drink but I did take Valium and now I am addicted to it. I used to quit taking Valium anytime I wanted to, but can't seem to cope with it now. I'm working on it, taking only one a day, but my nerves and my stomach are so weak I can hardly make it. I'm planning to cut them to one-half a day soon.

That probably had a lot to do with your original alcohol problem. Rather I would like to see you get some good psychiatric help. You are not too old to benefit at all. If you can get your life situations under control or improve your ability to cope with them you may not need a crutch at all. I hope you will never again get back on alcohol. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer for more information on how damaging this can be. Since you have licked the problem maybe you can help others to quit.

Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb, I had chicken pox as a child and it left quite a few marks on my face. I would like to do something about it and am wondering who I should see - a dermatologist or a plastic surgeon. Please let me know if you have heard of any treatment.

Dear Reader, you have marks that are sufficiently important to correct I would suggest that you see a plastic surgeon, preferably one who does cosmetic surgery.

For superficial scars of the face from any cause, including old acne scars, a process called sanding can be done. It literally removes the superficial layer of the skin and in that way removes the marks. It is not suited to dark pigmented people because it may decrease the pigmentation of the skin. In any case, a consultation with a plastic surgeon will tell you if you are a candidate for such a procedure. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Revlon agrees to FTC order

© Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Revlon Inc. has agreed to a Federal Trade Commission (FTC) order requiring the cosmetics firm to stop advertising its hair straighteners as safe and healthy.

Revlon also consented to include in all future advertising and labeling of its straighteners a warning to users that improper use of the products may cause scalp burns or eye damage. The consent agreement was made after FTC charges of misrepresentation were leveled at Revlon and two of its subsidiaries, Revlon-Realistic Professional Products Inc., makers of Revlon Realistic Perm Permanent Creme Relaxer, and Helvot Laboratories Inc., makers of French Perm Creme Hair Relaxer.

The companies had made advertising claims that the straighteners are "safe, gentle and mild" and have ingredients that strengthen the hair during the "relaxing process."

Plaids popular choice

© N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — Plaids, authentic tartans or otherwise, regularly surface in the fall to spice the usual earth tones of fashion with a dash of bold color. In the days when college-bound women searched for a serious wardrobe to take to school with them, something plaid was as much a basic as something borrowed to the bride.

Usually the plaid something was a kilt to be worn with standard cashmere or steffand sweaters. Well, the kilt is back today, but not just for college women, and not just with sweaters.

Another constant companion is the silk shirt, and beyond that, there are scarves, vests and jackets. When the plaids match, top and bottom, call the pairing a suit.

Besides the wrapped, pleated and fringed kilt, there are many other plaid skirts that can be gathered at the waistline and hence belong to the dirndl family, gently flared in the A-line. These can serve as an alternative to pants or can pair up with plaid-lined slicker, velvet vest or sweater and blazer.

Panel to study alcohol woes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Congressional subcommittee will hold hearings next month on the problems of alcoholic women.

Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, and chairman of the subcommittee on alcohol and narcotics, made the announcement Thursday at a news conference at which Dr. Susan B. Anthony, a recovered alcoholic for the past 30 years, said there was a correlation between drinking and the increased pressures on women by society.

"As women come into the dominant culture of the white male," she said, "we take on the anesthetics of that culture, the drugs, the alcohol, etc."

Dr. Anthony called female drunks "the poorest of the poor, the lowest of the low" and said they were always subject to "the implication that she (the woman alcoholic) does other things than drink ... and I don't have to spell that out."

Dr. Anthony, 60, is the grandniece and namesake of the famous suffragette. During her drinking days she was a New York radio commentator and later a Washington reporter.

Hathaway said he expects to hold his hearings during September.

In a related development, Polly Mills, wife of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., publicly admitted that she, like her husband, is an alcoholic.

Mrs. Mills made the disclosure in an interview on the "Dinah!" television program. She was accompanied by her husband.

Mrs. Mills said she started drinking socially with her husband and "in later years we drank together." She said she stopped drinking in 1973 after going to a hospital for treatment.

Mills, then chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and acknowledged as one of the most powerful men in Congress, lost his chairmanship and this year decided not to run for reelection. He spends much of his time now in working in an alcohol rehabilitation program.

All-American futurity filled

RUIDOSO' DOWNS, N.M. (UPI)—The 10-horse field for the $1 million All-American Futurity was completed Saturday with the addition of Comin' Easy and Pass Your Glass to the eight horses that qualified in the trials.

Comin' Easy, Pass Your Glass and Shawnee Bug had tied for the last two positions at Friday's trials and a "drawing" was held to determine which one of them would be eliminated. The loser, Shawnee Bug, was placed in the first consolation race.

The top qualifier at the trials was Mr. Glory Oh, owned by Ernest W. Carrigan Jr. of Pasadena, Tex.

Mr. Glory Oh, who has won all three of his starts this season, covered the 440 yards in 21.73 seconds to lead the record field of 219 2-year-old quarterhorses seeking a place in the world's richest horse race.

The young horse could increase his total earnings of $3,500 by a factor of nearly 100 with a win in the All-American, which carries a first-place purse of $300,000.

Qualifying second with a time of 21.78 seconds was Real Wild, an unbeaten filly who earlier this month won the $368,700 Rainbow Futurity. Lord Winslow, winner of the $413,000 Kansas Futurity in June, finished third at 21.77.

The All-American, which will be run on Labor Day, combines with Rainbow and Kansas Futurities to make up the Triple Crown of quarterhorse racing.

Other qualifiers for the All-American were Coming Fort, Topless Dancer, Divine Liz, Megabertz and Louton's Angel.

Rain suspends play in golf classic with Graham, Floyd and McGee sharing lead

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A thunderstorm, the second of the day to strike the Firestone Country Club, forced suspension of the third round of the $200,000 American Golf Classic Saturday with David Graham, Ray Floyd and Jerry McGee tied for the lead at nine under par.

The second storm came just after the leaders had made the turn. The first, which dumped more than half an inch of rain on the 7,105-yard par 72 North Course, forced suspension of play for nearly three hours.

Tournament Director Clyde Mangum announced shortly after play was halted for the second time that the 26 players still on the course would finish the third round beginning at 6:30 a.m. Sunday.

Mangum said final round play would begin at approximately 12:30 p.m. with players going off in two tees.

"We anticipate finishing at 6 p.m.," said Mangum.

Despite the weather, the battle for the $40,000 first prize and, for some, a chance to get into next week's World Series of Golf on the Firestone South Course, turned into a real dogfight.

There were ten players within two shots of the lead when play was called.

One shot behind the three leaders at nine under came Bob E. Smith, Jim Simons and Ed Sneed, while another shot back were first round leader Dan Sikes, Wally Armstrong, Rik Massengale and Tom Jenkins.

Graham, who began the day one shot up on Floyd, was one under for the day when play was called. It had just lit his tee shot on the 12th hole.

Floyd, who had hit his drive on the 13th, had just birdied two of the last three holes, while McGee, who had played 14 holes, was in the middle of a birdie binge which saw him drop from four to nine under par in a matter of 10 holes.

Smith, like McGee, started the day at four under par, but was four under for the day after 15 holes when play was stopped.

Jenkins and Sneed were both three under through 12. Sikes and Jenkins one under after 11. Armstrong two under through 12 and Massengale four under after 12.

Among those who finished their rounds, Lou Graham turned in a course record seven under 65 to pull into contention. He and Tom Watson, who had a 68, were the clubhouse leaders with six under 210 scores.

"I was a little surprised they kept us on the course as long as they did," said Graham, who birdied the 53rd-year, par five fifth hole and parred the rest.

"I think it's better we continue—play."

Rams, Bills owners meet but can't decide on Simpson swap

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Los Angeles Rams, and Buffalo Bills' owner Ralph Wilson sat on the visitors' bench and talked for about an hour, presumably about O.J. Simpson, before the Rams-Bills exhibition game Saturday night.

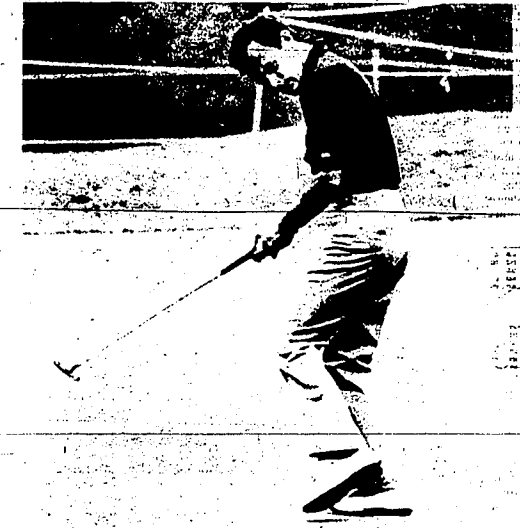

"Not a thing," Rosenbloom replied when asked if anything had developed about Simpson during the talk.

"We had a pleasant conversation but the situation is unchanged. That's the honest truth," Wilson told the Los Angeles Times Friday night that a trade could be made if he could sit down and negotiate face to face with Rosenbloom. Simpson says he wants to be traded to a West Coast team and considers himself retired.

Wilson said he talked to Rams' general manager Don Klosterman last Tuesday and told him he wanted to talk to Rosenbloom. "In my lifetime," Wilson said, "many important transactions I've made have always been face to face with the principal, not through an intermediary."

Rosenbloom revealed that Klosterman, who underwent open heart surgery before the NFL exhibition schedule began, was taken to Daniel Freeman Hospital in Inglewood, Calif., Friday night after complaining of chest pains.

However, the Rams' owner said the hospitalization was merely precautionary and he expected Klosterman to be back at his desk Monday.

Ramirez surprises Connors in U.S. pro tennis championships

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Mexican Raul Ramirez, a loser to Jimmy Connors in their last four meetings, upset the topseeded American 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 Saturday to vault into the semifinals of the $125,000 U.S. Professional tennis championships.

Also advancing was No. 8 seed Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., with a 7-6, 6-2 win over Italian Paolo Bertolucci and Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., who beat Argentina's Guillermo Vilas 2-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Sunday afternoon, Dibbs plays Sweden's Wimbledon champ Bjorn Borg, the No. 2 seed, with Ramirez meeting Solomon in the nightcap. Finals will be Monday night.

Without stunning Connors since his stunning victory in the 1975 Davis Cup semi-finals, Ramirez broke the match open in the eighth game of the final set by winning the final three points after trailing 30-15. Ramirez won that game when Connors hit a forehand passed the baseline.

Blocked punt lifts Miami past Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Safety Tim Foley blocked a Dan Pastorini punt and defensive tackle Randy Crowder ran seven yards with the loss ball early in the fourth quarter Saturday night to spark the Miami Dolphins to a hard fought 10-6 win over the Houston Oilers who suffered their fifth straight preseason loss.

The Dolphins, unbeaten in five preseason games, were in danger of being shutout for the first time in 105 games as the final quarter began. Oilers' placekicker Skip Butler's field goals of 27 and 41 yards was the only scoring in the first three quarters.

During that time, Houston forced three Miami turnovers and two short punts to take possession of the football in Miami territory five times.

But on the second play of the fourth quarter, Houston faced fourth down at its own 24 yard line. The Dolphins rushed punter Pastorini and Foley easily blocked the kick.

The ball arched high in the air. Crowder caught it and ran into the end zone untouched.

Until that time, Miami was unable to score under the direction of quarterback Don Strock. He was replaced with 13:05 by play by Jim Del Gaizo. The replacement moved his team 60 yards and into position for Garo Yepremian's 24-yard field goal.

In the closing minutes, Pastorini broke out of the passing pocket and scrambled 38 yards to the Miami 10. But Miami pushed the Oilers back to the 21 and Butler's long field goal attempt was wide to the left.

Rams batter Bills

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ron Jesse caught a 60-yard touchdown pass and set up another Jesse with a 46-yard touch-down to highlight a 31-17 Los Angeles Rams exhibition football victory over the Buffalo Bills Saturday night.

The win gave the Rams a 4-0 record in preseason play. It was the fourth loss against one victory for the Bills.

Jesse caught the 46-yard pass from Ron Jaworski in the second period to set up an 18-yard TD pass to Harold Jackson and his 60-yard TD bomb came on a pass from James Harris in the third period.

Jaworski and Harris were scheduled to divide the Rams' quarterbacking duties but Harris suffered a jammed knuckle on his right thumb in the third period and Jaworski took over in the fourth quarter.

Harris' thumb was scheduled to be X-rayed after the game. The injury was not thought to be serious.

The Bills outscored the Rams 10-7 in the second period. Quarterback Joe Ferguson drove the Bills to the Los Angeles six where on fourth down Ian Sumter kicked a 23-yard field goal.

Later in the period, the Bills drove 62 yards with Darrell Powell scoring from the four.

A touch-down in each of the first two periods gave the Rams a 14-10 lead. In the opening quarter, Lawrence McCutcheon tallied on a 12-yard run and in the second period Jaworski connected on his TD toss to Jackson

U.S. women to meet Aussies in finals

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Billie Jean King, applying ice packs to her painful knees and digging deep into her reserves of stamina, Saturday, teamed with Rosie Casals to lead the United States into the Federation Cup tennis finals against Australia.

In a remarkable display of physical staying power, the 25-year-old King, who has-ast played tournament singles since she won the sixth of her Wimbledon singles titles in 1975, played in four matches against Switzerland and Holland.

Australia, seeking its eighth victory in the competition, defeated Britain 3-0 to gain the final for the 11th time in 14 attempts.

King was forced to undertake the grueling schedule because Chris Evert, the other member of the three-woman team, is sidelined with an injury to her right hand which may prevent her from defending her U.S. Open title at Forest Hills, N.Y., next week.

The U.S. was obliged to play twice Saturday because King was contracted to play for the New York Jets Friday night in the World Team Tennis championship series where the Sets downed the San Francisco Golden Gators 3-1 to clinch the WTT crown.

Britain's Virginia Wade, King's teammate on the Sets, and Betty Stove, the No. 1 woman on the Dutch team, also played in the WTT series, but they received a longer rest before being called on to play their Cup semifinal matches.

King appeared on court Sunday, Switzerland being given four hours sleep — she arrived back in Philadelphia at 4 a.m. EDT and got to bed an hour later — but there was nothing lethargic in her performance as she defeated Petra Delhees, 6-2, 6-1, and then teamed with Casals to beat Monika Simmen, 6-0, 6-1 in the doubles. Casals had put the U.S. ahead by defeating Simpson, 6-

Young line dampens Hansen's prospects

HANSEN—Hansen's football season will revolve around the line, offensively and defensively, this fall.

The Huskies, coached by Russ Reed and Dutch Sherman, have most of last year's backfield returning. But with only two veteran linemen, the Huskies will be going with underclassmen in the trenches.

"We have most of the backfield back, led by quarterback Ray Denney, halfback Jerry Lockwood and fullback Tim Pollard," Coach Reed says. "We have only two returning starting linemen, guard Carl Gee and tackle Gail Mort. The remainder of the line will be filled by sophomores and freshmen."

"We'll be counting on a good running attack. Our defense will be the offensive, weak in the line and strong at the linebacker and deep back positions," he continued.

Denney will be seeking his fourth varsity letter. He stands 6 feet and weighs 185. Lockwood, another three-time letterman, is 5-2 and weighs 170 while Pollard is 5-8 and 165.

Gee is 5-6 and 150 while Mort is 6-0 and 170 and, unfortunately for the Huskies, they are about the biggest linemen.

Other veterans returning are Bret Stacey, 5-10, 160-pound middle linebacker; Doug Long, 6-1, 150-pound center; Brad Bailey, 6-1, 150-pound split end; Carl Bailey 5-8, 155-pound guard; Chris Daw, 5-8, 145-pound wingback; Denny Exon, 5-8, 155-pound wingback; Dick Yawser, 5-6, 135-pound halfback; and Ray Higgins, 5-8, 95-pound halfback.

Newcomers counted on for help are junior Mike Clark, 6-2, 175-pound tight end; sophomore Mark Clark, 5-6, 155-pound guard; frosh Randy Galusha, 5-7, 155-pound tackle; frosh Steve King, 5-7, 165-pound tackle; frosh Virgil Adams, 6-0, 155-pound quarterback, and soph. Jeff Ross, 5-11, 155-pound tackle.

The Hansen schedule includes Sept. 10, Valley at Hansen; Sept. 17, Declo at Hansen; Oct. 1, Raft River at Hansen; Oct. 8, Hansen at Murtaugh; Oct. 15, Oakley at Hansen; Oct. 22, Hansen at Castledale; Oct. 29, Hansen at Hagerman, and Nov. 5, Mackay at Hansen (1:30 p.m.).

Perennial powerhouses to rule NCAA again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two things are dead certain about the college football season which opens next weekend with 13 games scattered through every section but the east.

Firstly, Archie Griffin will not win the Heisman Trophy this year and secondly, the same teams that have ruled the sport for the past decade will continue to dominate despite legislation passed three years ago by the NCAA to equalize the balance of power.

Griffin, the only two-time winner of the Heisman Trophy, finally has graduated from Ohio State, and the battle for this year's award promises to be one of the more interesting things about the season.

But, if you're hoping for a "Cinderella" team to sneak in and give the big boys a fight for the national championship, forget it. The schools that figure to battle it out for the No. 1 spot are the same ones that fought it out for No. 1 last year — and the year before that — and for many years running.

Their names are Ohio State, Michigan, Texas, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Southern California, Nebraska, Alabama, Arkansas, Penn State and Arizona State.

Three years ago the NCAA passed legislation limiting to 20 the number of scholarships a school could give out each year. The object was to save money, but there were some coaches who were hoping the limitations might curb the imbalance between teams which was developing.

It isn't quite working that way, though. The rich are getting richer while the poor, while increasing their talent pool somewhat, are still light years behind the powerhouses.

Still, there are some, like Big Ten commissioner Wayne Duke, who believe the scholarship plan will work in the future.

"This is only the third year of the plan," reminds Duke. "I do think this is the single most important piece of legislation the NCAA has passed in that direction in a long time. I realize you can't legislate complete equality, but I do believe the 20 limit will be a big help on the national scene."

The best team in the land a year ago, by a vote of the United Press International Board of Coaches, was Oklahoma, which earned that rating after beating Michigan in the Orange Bowl while season long leader Ohio State was being beaten in the Rose Bowl by UCLA.

This year, however, most football followers are predicting either Ohio State or Nebraska. Oklahoma's arch enemy in the Big Eight Conference, will surpass the Sooners as national champion.

Ohio State has lost Griffin and quarterback Cornelius Greene, but the Buckeyes still have Eric Johnson, the nation's leading scorer a year ago, plus four other starters who are top ten selections. Coach Woody Hayes also returns seven members of a defensive unit that ranked second in the NCAA in defense against scoring and has recruited a standout freshman squad.

We'll find out early in the season how good the Buckeyes are. On successive Saturdays beginning Sept. 13 they will play Penn State, Missouri and UCLA, all of whom were ranked in the top 20 a year ago. Then there is the usual Nov. 20 battle with Michigan which once again should decide the Big Ten title.

With Oklahoma having graduated a wealth of talent that included five all-Americans, Nebraska is being picked to win the Big Eight title outright. The Cornhuskers went 10-2 a year ago and return 13 starters, including quarterback Vince Ferragamo. The Big Eight, however, is one of the nation's strongest conferences and Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma State and Colorado all could have a bearing on the league championship.

The race for the Heisman Trophy may be close. Two of the leading vote-getters behind Griffin last year, Tony Danese of Pittsburgh and Huey Bell of Southern California, returned to their clubs. But there are also talented individuals like Tate Johnson of Ohio State, Nolan Cromwell of Kansas, Joe Taylor of California, Wendell Tyler of UCLA and Mike Voight of North Carolina who should offer stiff challenges for the award to the outstanding player of the year.

Of the team level, it should be a do-or-die fight again between Penn State and Pittsburgh for Lambert Trophy honors in the east; Alabama is once again the strongest team in the South, and Texas, Arkansas and Texas A&M should stage another exciting race for kingpin of the Southwest.

Arizona State, unbeaten a year ago, has another strong club and will battle it out with state rival Arizona for supremacy of the Rocky Mountain area while on the West Coast, Southern California and UCLA, as usual, have the strongest entries.

Oddly, Southern Cal and UCLA both will have new head coaches this season. At USC — John Robinson replaces John McKay, who has gone to the Tampa Bay Bucs of the National Football League, and Terry Donahue was elevated from assistant status to replace Dick Vermeil at UCLA. Vermeil also joined the pro ranks as the head man with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Other head coaching changes this year include Doug Barfield at Auburn, Bobby Bowden at Florida State, Darryl Rogers at Michigan State, Robert Rein at North Carolina State, Craig Fertig at Oregon State, Bruce Snyder at Utah State, Dick Bestwick at Virginia, Jackie Sherrill at Washington State, Jim Sweeney at Fresno State and Frank Gignetti at West Virginia.

This is also the year college football "goes to the movies."

Scouting has been outlawed by the NCAA and the only way coaches will be able to find out about their opponents' strengths and weaknesses is through an exchange of game films. That could create specific problems.

Doe-fawn ratio indicates stable antelope numbers

By STU MURRELL
Regional Staff Conservationist

The Fish and Game Department has classified 3,216 antelope with an average of 53 fawns per 100 does in southern Idaho according to Bob Autenrieth, research biologist at Jerome.

Autenrieth feels these figures generally indicate a stable antelope population in Idaho. This is the fourth year antelope doe-fawn ratios have been obtained on a large scale and the information has been valuable in setting numbers of permits and showing trends in each unit.

There was a new permit area added this year in all of Unit 53 except that portion in Cassia County which is closed. Ten permits were allotted in this area and a trend count showed 82 animals with a good ratio of 62 fawns per 100 does.

There were also some nice bucks in the herd which is located between Gooding, Shoshone and Dietrich.

The areas with the best production were Birch Creek, Little Lost, Owyhee and McAdams. Doe-fawn ratios of 61, 82 and 81, respectively. Fish Creek, Unit 49, was also good with 95 animals classified for a ratio of 87 fawns per 100 does.

The technique used in this census involves use of a helicopter. The average fly time required to classify each group is only 30 seconds to one minute. There is very little harassment involved and checks with aerial photos taken at the same time show less than a one percent error in fawn classification. Ground counts involve as much as 10 to 15 per cent error because the animals will not allow an observer close enough to accurately classify the animals.

One extremely low production area was found near Challis where a problem with an expanding wild horse population had contributed to range deterioration. The ratio was only 13 fawns per 100 does which was the lowest recorded in any unit during the past four years of census.

The Bureau of Land Management estimates a herd of about 500 doe deer in Unit 43A along the East Fork of the Salmon River. The BLM has scheduled a roundup of some of these animals to reduce their population to a reasonable level but the American Horse Protection Association and Humane Society of the United States have filed an injunction to stop it, saying it's inhumane.

Horses are competing directly with antelope, deer and sage grouse on the few meadow areas in Unit 3A and are creating problems on key elk, deer and big horn sheep summer and winter ranges. The Department of Fish and Game is concerned that native wildlife species, which should have priority on public ranges, will be displaced by wild horses which are not truly wild animals but come from domestic stock.

ISU coach pleased by first scrimmage

POCATELLO—Idaho State has now been holding football practice for over a week, and the team held its first game-type scrimmage on Wednesday.

Coach Joe Pascale, after studying film of the two-hour hitting session, was able to evaluate his Bengals' progress toward the September 11th opener at Flagstaff against Northern Arizona.

"I'm much more pleased with the offensive and defensive players after seeing the film," Pascale said. "On offense a breakdown by one man here and there caused our plays to be stopped. It was not a wholesale breakdown."

ISU's defense, especially the front seven dominated the line of scrimmage. The offense did not mount a consistent drive until its final possession, when Art Ashton went 15 yards up the middle for a TD on the final play.

"Tony McCright, Rick Riedel, and Ashton did a fine job running and blocking," Pascale observed. "Riedel is a 5-4, 155-lb. frosh from China, Calif., and he scored our first TD, outrunning the defense on our goal line offense."

Comparing quarterbacks Leo Cook, the veteran, and Steve Holzer, the sophomore challenger, Pascale said, "Holzer ran the ball better, and he does have good running ability. However, both quarterbacks have not caught up with the reads and responsibilities that would enable them to run our new option offense meticulously."

One veteran and two frosh sparked in the offensive line. "Rick Schirmer does a solid performance, and two freshmen, David Day and Charles Buckingham, showed they have the desire, but lack experience in techniques and assignments. Veteran guard Jim Jones was good at times, but generally lacked consistency."

The receivers and tight ends played well, but one starter will miss some action with a solid performance. "Wally Kelly made several fine catches and did a good job returning punts, but a shoulder bruise will sideline him a few days. Zoltan Horvath, who redshirted last year with a knee injury, has re-established himself and earned a spot on the travel squad. Four-year starter Craig Norby has been very consistent. Al Light and Dave Phlips did a good job, but Larry Jacobs is closing the gap after recovering from an ankle injury."

Defensively there wasn't anything to really perturb Pascale. "The front seven still seems to be the strength of our football team. Ray Allred and Joe Juseen have been excellent at noseguard, although Allred isn't quite as disciplined as Joe. Otis Taborn, a three-year starter, and Joe Moreno are battling to start at one tackle and neither helped himself in the last scrimmage. At defensive end Greg Taylor is doing his usual good job, Mark Tuson is still making sophomore mistakes, but he hustles and gets to the ball, and shows promise for this season."

Pascale singled out linebacker Joe Reed for having "the finest scrimmage since he's been at ISU," and also was impressed by sophomore Neal Richardson's play.

Pascale continues to be pleased with the secondary. Three who were question marks because of knee operations all were impressive. "Wade Wilker had a fine scrimmage at strong safety, and Dave Banks and Randy Mitchell were fine at free safety, showing the form of past years when they were starters at ISU. Ken Parks did a decent job at one corner. Because of the number of people tried at the other corner we did not have enough of a look at anybody to do much evaluating. The secondary was not challenged because of the fine pass rush. I hope this carries over to our line game schedule."

"The kicking game was a real plus," with Ricardo Restrepo toting 50, 42, and 24-yard field goals with no misses, and Jeff Fillmore hitting a 40-yarder. Holzer looks like the most consistent punter.

ISU players have undergone a rigorous conditioning program stressing many sprints after practice. Of this Pascale says, "They're working into fine condition. We've worked them hard and they've accepted it as a necessity. The conditioning program continues through September 4th, then we'll level off and rest them somewhat in preparation for our opener at Northern Arizona."

McKay doesn't plan to lose

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — John McKay thinks you should be able to win every time you step on the field and, if you don't think the same thing, he has no room for you on his infant Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"If you don't think you can win, there is no way you can win, and if any of the players don't think they can win every time they go on the field, they can pack their bags," the outspoken McKay said before an exhibition game.

"He also is a stickler for effort, even in practice, and has made it clear to players seeking to make it with the expansion club he will accept nothing less than their best all the time."

"I can assure you that if they don't do the job, they will be gone," McKay said. "If you can't do it in practice, there's no way you can do it in a game."

Through the first four games of the exhibition schedule, it appears McKay has made believers out of his Bucs. After dropping the first game to Los Angeles, 26-3, they lost a close 10-6 game to Green Bay, upset the Atlanta Falcons, 17-9, and dropped a 28-21 decision to Miami.

McKay has said since the beginning of practice in early July the Bucs will surprise some NFL teams and has worked the club hard with twice-daily practices, stressing ball control.

McKay says the extra conditioning will pay off in regular season games when the games will be played in the hot afternoon Florida sun.

"We're going to build a football team and we're going to do it our way," McKay said. "If you have the ball more than the other team and don't punt, you'll win. That's it. By God, is it a truth. It's not going to change."

The Bucs are going with a blend of veterans obtained through the allocation, trades and waivers and young college talent in its first season.

Steve Spurrier, a nine-year veteran obtained from San Francisco, is the nucleus of the offense. Against Miami, he hit 20 of 36 passes for 241 yards and two touchdowns. His backup in the early going has been rookie Parnell Dickinson of Mississippi Valley State and there could be a strong challenge from Larry Lawrence, obtained from Oakland.

The Bucs' backfield will be strong. If it stays healthy, Tampa obtained Essex Johnson from Cincinnati and will play with veteran Harold Hart and Louis Carter, obtained from Oakland, Vince Kendrick, obtained from Atlanta, and rookie fullback Jimmy Dobson from Florida.

At wide receiver are McKay's son, John Lee McGriff and Joe Wylie, while veteran Bob Moore, obtained from the Raiders, is the starting tight end.

The biggest weakness so far has been in linebackers. McKay has tried several players at the key middle spot, but has expressed disappointment in that area after each game.

Kilmer, McLinton spark 'Skins past Jets 38-7

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Kilmer threw his first touchdown pass of the preseason and linebacker Harold McLinton set up two scores with interceptions Saturday to lead the Washington Redskins to a 38-7 rout of the New York Jets.

Kilmer, held without a TD pass in the Redskins' first four exhibitions, threw 17 yards to Jay Jefferson in the second period with Washington ahead for good and then Bill Jean Fugett from 13 yards out in the third quarter.

McLinton's 16-yard interception return on Joe Namath's first pass of the game set up Mike Thomas' three-yard TD run and his 27-yard return set up Kilmer's TD pass to Fugett.

The victory was Washington's second in five pre-season games while New York fell to 1-4 before only 13,132 fans at Yankee Stadium.

The Redskins took a 14-7 lead with just 67 seconds left in the first half when Kilmer marched them 66 yards in 12 plays and threw 17 yards to Jefferson for the score.

Washington took a 7-0 lead on its first possession when McLinton intercepted and returned to the Jets 32 and Thomas hurried over from the three-six plays late in the first half. The Jets tied the game in the second period on an 89-yard drive as Namath completed passes of 18 yards to James Scott, 21 yards to Clark Gaines and 15 to Dan Buckley to set up a three-yard TD pass to Jerome Barkum.

Kilmer's pass to Fugett gave Washington a 21-7 lead and Barkum crashed over from the one late in the third period to make the score 28-7. Mark Moseley added a 20-yard field goal in the fourth quarter and reserve quarterback Joe Theismann completed the scoring with a 28-yard pass to rookie Howard Spalterwhite.

Detroit outlasts Kansas City 23-21

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Dexter Bussy slammed two yards for a touchdown to cap a 75-yard drive on Detroit's first possession Saturday night and the Lions never trailed while posting a 23-21 preseason victory over Kansas City.

The Lions, 2-1, added touchdowns on a five-yard run by Lawrence Gaines and a 52-yard field goal return by Charlie West. Errol Mann tackled on a 30-yard field goal.

Kansas City, 2-3, made a futile attempt to pull out the game in the fourth quarter after falling behind 23-7. Tony Adams pitched an 18-yard touchdown pass to Henry Marshall and Glenn Harrison scored on a 62-yard punt return. The only other Chiefs' touchdown was a two-yard plunge by Pat McNeil that cut Detroit's lead to 10-7 in the second quarter.

Harrison's punt return, hitting the Chiefs to within 23-11, came with 1:33 left to play. The Chiefs forced a Detroit punt with slightly more than a minute remaining but turned the ball over on downs when Larry Hand sacked Adams on fourth down at the Kansas City three-yard line.

The Lions broke it open in the third quarter with a pair of touchdowns. Gaines' run came after Joe Fiedt completed three passes for 57 yards on a 78-yard march.

Less than three minutes later, West stole a Mike Livingston pass from Chiefs' tight end Billy Masters and raced down the sideline to put Detroit ahead 23-7.

Cowboys overpower Pittsburgh 20-10

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Roger Staubach, playing the entire game, connected on two touchdown passes Saturday night and the Dallas pass rush put on its best performance of the exhibition season to send the Cowboys 20-10 victory over Pittsburgh in a watered-down rematch of Super Bowl X.

Staubach put Dallas in front late in the first half with a 16-yard touchdown throw to Drew Pearson, set up by a Steeler kickoff return fumble, and then directed a 73-yard drive to start the second half which ended in a two-yard scoring tip to Billy Joe DuPree.

Bent on revenge from their 21-17 loss to the Steelers in the Super Bowl last January, Dallas played its regulars for much of the game while the Steelers rested their first unit periodically in the sapping heat.

The temperature was 88 degrees at kickoff, 10 degrees cooler than it had been 24 hours earlier. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who planned to play three quarters, sat out the first second half after complaining of the heat.

Other than Staubach's two touchdown throws, the Cowboys scored on a 26-yard field goal in the second quarter by Toni Fritsch, which brought Dallas back from a three-point deficit and a 17-yarder by Elfen Herrera midway through the final period.

Pittsburgh's Roy Gerela kicked a 30-yard field goal and Pittsburgh temporarily moved within seven points in the third quarter on a three-yard touchdown pass from rookie Mike Kruczek to Theo Bell. Bell had started in place of the injured Lynn Swann, the hero of last season's championship victory.

Bradshaw and Kruczek were harassed all night by a Cowboy pass rush which recorded six traps. End Harvey Martin personally accounted for four sacks.

It was the second straight exhibition setback for the Steelers, who after four straight preseason wins had been shut out by the New York Giants. It was the second straight win for the Cowboys, who's exhibition record now is 2-3.

The game turned in the final three minutes of the opening half. Dallas climaxed a short drive with Fritsch's field goal and on the ensuing kickoff Steelers' return man Mike Collier fumbled at his own 16 and Cowboys' Pat Donovan fell on it to set up Staubach's touchdown throw to Pearson.

Saints pin 13-10 defeat on Bengals

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Roddie Raining led Chuck Muncie passed 27 yards to Dan Hermann and Bobby Howard kicked a 30-yard field goal Saturday night to lead the New Orleans Saints to a 13-10 triumph over the Cincinnati Bengals for their fourth consecutive preseason win.

Muncie, the Saints' first-round draft choice, hit Hermann in the end zone 1:54 before halftime to put New Orleans ahead 10-7. It was the first touchdown the Saints had scored against Cincinnati in four games.

The Bengals tied the second half on an 18-yard field goal by rookie Chris Bahi. It was set up by rookie Willie Shelby, who returned the second-half kickoff 81 yards to the new Orleans four-yard line.

Cincinnati's lone touchdown came with 3:47 remaining in the second quarter when running back Ed Williams broke off a tackle for two yards to cap a 64-yard, nine-play drive.

Howard, who once kicked six field goals in a single game for the New York Jets to beat New Orleans, provided the winning margin at the end of the third quarter on his first

Bears edge Tampa on late field goal

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Bob Thomas kicked a 43-yard field goal with 1:43 left to play Saturday night to give the Chicago Bears a 10-7 preseason victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers before a crowd of 47,592.

The Bears had driven to the Tampa 17-yard line, but then were sent back by a holding penalty, setting the stage for Thomas' kick.

Thomas had missed earlier on a 48-yard field goal attempt. The Bears' and Bucs traded touchdowns early in the second half on a pass interception and a kickoff return.

Chicago's Virgil Livers intercepted a Steve Spurrier pass and took it in from 45-yards out with 45 seconds gone in the third period. Rick Danmeyer kicked the extra point.

But on the ensuing kickoff, Isaac Hagins fielded Dan Myers' kickoff on Tampa Bay's eight and, after breaking through the first wave of tacklers, outran the Bears' secondary on a 92-yard touchdown.

Pete Rajcecki kicked the extra point.

Hagins had only joined the Bucs Thursday after being picked up on waivers from the Minnesota Vikings, where he had been a ninth-round draft choice from Southern Illinois.

Tampa blew three opportunities to score on a key penalty, a fumble and a pass interception.

Defensive back Joe Hlabak intercepted a Bob Avellini pass on the Bears' 31 and carried it to the four-yard line, but Tampa was penalized for a personal foul on the play, and the Bears retained possession.

Later, with time running out in the second quarter and the Bucs driving, Waynemond Bryant intercepted a Spurrier pass on the Bears' 10. A third drive was killed when Mike Hartenstein recovered a Vince Kendrick fumble on the Bears' six with less than 10 minutes to play.

The victory gives the Bears a 4-1 record, one of their best starts in years. The expansion team, Bucs, are now 1-1.

Bird remembers his L.A. fans

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Mark Fidrych, the colorful rookie sensation of the Detroit Tigers, has asked the California Angels for an autograph party and the Angels are going to accommodate him, the club said Saturday.

Fidrych, who has a 15-4 record with a 2.11 ERA, is scheduled to pitch at Oakland Sunday and won't pitch here when Detroit faces the Angels Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

LETTY Randy Jones of San Diego is shown Friday night picking up his 20th victory of the season. He shutout the Montreal Expos 2-0 to become the first 20-game winner in the majors this year and the first since 1971-72 to win 20 games back-to-back. He's now 29-9. (UPI telephoto)

Falcons stun Colts for first decision

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hard-throwing Steve Bartkowski threw for three touchdowns and 222 yards Saturday night to lead the Atlanta Falcons to their first preseason victory, 21-7, over the Baltimore Colts.

The Colts had taken the ball on Atlanta's 48 when Jackie Wallace intercepted a Bartkowski pass and Jones moved Baltimore to the touchdown in 12 plays for the Colts' only sustained offensive drive.

Mitchell gained 85 yards in four receptions for Atlanta.

Bill Troupe was the quarterback for Baltimore in the second half. In the fourth quarter, he moved the Colts 49 yards to the one, but the threat was broken up when a third-down pass by Troupe was intercepted in the end zone by Atlanta rookie Frank Reul.

Atlanta showed a new defensive alignment, often playing with two defensive ends and a tackle and four linebackers.

In the first quarter, Bartkowski moved Atlanta 73 yards in five plays, capped by a 41-yard touchdown pass to split end Alford Jenkins. A 23-yard pass from Bartkowski to tight end Jim Mitchell was the big play before the touchdown throw.

In the second quarter, Bartkowski moved Atlanta 27 yards in seven plays and threw a 173-yard touchdown pass to running back Haskell Staubach. On that mark, Bartkowski had passes of 41 and 32 yards to Mitchell and a 17-yard pass to Staubach.

Bartkowski moved the Falcons 93 yards in 15 plays in the third quarter, scoring on a

Broncs edge Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Oils Armstrong scored on runs of 81 and two yards, finishing with a total of 118 yards in 12 carries, to lead the Denver Broncos to a 21-17 come-from-behind preseason victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

Denver took the lead for the first time in the game on a two-yard touchdown run by Arms' long-time running mate in the final quarter. Bronco linebacker Elmer Redkey had intercepted a San Wyche pass to give Denver the ball at the St. Louis 29 and fullback John Keyworth picked up 17 yards on an endrun.

Armstrong brought Denver to within 17-14 on an 81-yard touchdown run late in the third quarter, breaking through the Cardinal line and outracing the secondary down the left sideline.

Terry Metcalf had given St. Louis a 17-7 edge earlier in the quarter on a six-second scoring run up the middle.

With about six minutes remaining in the first half, the Broncos capped the gap to 10-7 on an 11-yard touchdown run by Keyworth, capping a 13-play 89-yard drive. Keyworth finished with 93 yards and 16 carries.

St. Louis took a 10-0 lead in the first quarter on Jim Bakken's 25-yard field goal and nine-yard touchdown pass from Jim Hart to tight end Jackie Smith.

Yastrzemski's career starting to reach peak

BOSTON (UPI) — While most baseball players are winding down at age 37, Carl Yastrzemski is heading toward a crescendo.

The man who carried the onus of being Ted Williams' successor has overcome a concerto of catcalls, survived nine managerial changes and finally gained fan approval in his 16th season with the Red Sox.

More amazing is the fact that Yastrzemski is having one of his most productive years while the rest of the defending American League champions are suffering through a disappointing season.

Although the Red Sox trailed the New York Yankees by 15 games last week and had virtually no chance of upsetting the AL East leader, Yastrzemski chose to make a face-first dive into the plate in the second inning of a game against California. The hustling play gave the Red Sox a run and earned Yastrzemski a fourth home run.

While many stars would use the opportunity to take a late-season rest, Yastrzemski wanted to play the next day. He was ordered to rest by convinced manager Don Zimmerman to insert him in the lineup the following evening — not as a designated hitter but in left field.

He is setting an example on a club eroded by contractual difficulties and self-interest.

"He has been the complete ballplayer," said first base coach John Pesky, who found Yastrzemski a "surely kid" when he managed Boston in 1964. "He realizes this year that the ball club needs him and he's doing all he can to help. He's played first base and left field this year and has been good at both positions."

For some reason—maybe because he has never quibbled over contracts while younger players have held out for more money this season—Yastrzemski, at last, has become a crowd favorite. Yet, a hard core of Yaz-haters can be heard even now when the lifetime .290 hitter steps to the plate.

"What I think it comes down to is that the fans in Boston expect a lot of the team as individual players," said the perfectly-conditioned Yastrzemski, who hopes to play three more seasons and reach 3,000 hits. "Whenever the team had a bad year, the fans took it out on me."

Yastrzemski became the target of fan frustration in his rookie year of 1961. Williams, the only bright spot on a team that had been out of pennant contention for 10 years; retired in 1960. The following spring, Yastrzemski, also a left-handed hitting left fielder, showed up in Fenway Park with impressive minor league credentials.

"So the comparisons were inevitable, but I really don't know why," said Yastrzemski, who is shooting for 100 RBIs for the fourth time. "I never had the strength or size Ted Williams had. He was a far superior hitter, there's no doubt about that at all."

"And I never made the comparisons. I know my thing has been to play pretty good all-around baseball."

The native of Southampton, L.I., had won one batting title and had hit over .300 twice in his first six seasons. The fans of course, still weren't satisfied because they remembered Williams and his .344 lifetime mark and 523 home runs.

Then, in 1967, the still-unaccepted left fielder had a season that gave Boston fans the term "Yastrzemski Year"—used to describe a player who performed to fit his utmost for 162 games. Yastrzemski, as Williams had done 25 years earlier, won the triple crown. In the process, he led Boston to its first pennant since 1916, hit 44 home runs — one more than Williams' top seasonal mark — and was awarded one of his six golden gloves.

But the fans expected a triple crown performance and a Yastrzemski-led pennant every year thereafter. Three more .300 seasons, including a third hitting title, and two 40 home years weren't good enough.

Williams' past deeds bedogged Yastrzemski's every move.

"It's pretty true that I was haunted by the thing with Williams," admitted the 5-foot-11, 165-lb. pounder.

These fans, however, projected No. 8 into the role of his predecessor who wore No. 9. A shift in feeling began, however, in the early 70s as the old Williams watchers were replaced by younger Fenway fans who never saw "the Splendid Splinter."

The turnaround was nearly completed in 1975 when Yastrzemski returned to left field from first base in the playoffs and World Series and nearly brought Boston its first Series title in 58 years. Even the diehard Williams fans had to admit that Yastrzemski was the better left fielder and was more of a team player — willing to hit to left while Ted would not.

On Aug. 22, 1976, in his 2398th game with the Red Sox, Yastrzemski received a raucous standing ovation when he approached the plate in the first inning. The Fenway faithful had picked his 27th birthday to say, "We love ya' Yaz."

"I'd doffed his cap—one gesture Williams never made in 18 seasons before the roaring crowd—and was plainly embarrassed."

Carl Yastrzemski's class had paid off at last.

Fishing hints: by Swen Back to the basics

During his past week Swen has again visited with what I like to call the "town chair crowd."

Again I am rapped in my faith in the concept of fishing. My visits were with Russ and Edna Herrick, Kimberly; Mr. Frank Marritt, Wendell; and Mr. Botz, of Buhl.

All are retired, all love to fish, perhaps for different reasons. These are the true fishermen.

It was during my visit with Russ and Edna Herrick that I and wife, caught about 35 perch at Salmon Dam all about 6 to 10 inches long.

What prompted this switch in my search for trout? — An article in the Idaho Wildlife Review pointed out the many merits of warmwater fish. And among these merits of course, was the good eating. And, along with the article were some recipes for preparing perch.

One look: my eye right away, and I suggest you try it. It was delicious and this comes from a guy who ate his first fish in 20 years, because of these recipes.

IMITATION CRAB COCKTAIL by Dick Morell
1 cup perch or crappie fillets
1/2 tsp. sugar
2 tbsp. salt
Hot cocktail sauce

Dip fillets into 1 quart of rapidly boiling water to which salt and sugar have been added. Boil 3 minutes. Chill cooked fish rapidly on plate in cooler compartment for 15-20 minutes. Mix cooked fish fillets with cocktail sauce and serve.

Take it from Swen, this is like downtown.

Hot spots: Swen did do real well fishing for perch at Salmon Reservoir, and caught a nice trout while doing it. Also... Fish creek reservoir is low and the fishing has been very good. One report by way of local nurses says at least 1-2 lb. trout was the reward of a local doctor. Couldn't stay away from the Snake river in the Hagerman valley and found that my fishing buddy (9 years old) and I had a nice mess for him and family. They then wanted the fish smoked. OK, but just this once.

*****

Another sad note was added for the sportsman of Idaho. Joseph C. Greenley announced that publication of the IDAHO WILDLIFE REVIEW is being suspended with the Summer 1976 issue. Mr. Greenley states:

"It was a most difficult decision to make, but the Fish and Game Commission could find no practical means to continue the funding of the magazine. We hope that at some future date it will be possible to resume publication, perhaps on a paid subscription basis."

Anderson will urge pact ratification

Houston (UPI) — Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins, president of the National Football League Players Association, said Saturday the group's 26 players representatives will meet in Chicago Tuesday to vote on a proposed new contract and he will urge its approval.

"I feel the proposal is worthy enough for the players to vote on and accept. The economic benefits are substantial," Anderson said in a special statement preceding the Miami-Houston preseason football game.

NFL players have been without a contract for the last two seasons.

Anderson, who appeared in the Astrodom in street clothes and did not play because of an injury, did not reveal details of the contract, which was submitted by the club owners Thursday.

Field set for golf series

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — The field for the new World Series of Golf, with its strict and complicated rules for qualifying, is almost set.

So far, there are 18 players in the 72-hole event which starts Thursday on the Firestone Country Club South course with at least one and possibly two more entries qualifying from the American Golf Classic that winds up Sunday on the Firestone North Course.

The AGC is the final chance for a dozen or so players, including eight previous winners on the tour this year, to get into the $300,000 series. Multiple tour winners automatically qualify.

It marks the 15th time Firestone has hosted the World Series but this year's event, which offers a $100,000 first prize, is drastically changed.

The first 14 series brought together only the winners of the four "major" professional championships, the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

Created by PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman and PGA Executive Director Marc Cox, the new series is designed to bring together the top players from all over the world.

The field, originally estimated to be somewhere between 20 and 25 players, will include four international golfers who qualified by winning their country's Order of Merit.

They are Japan's Takashi Murakami, Hsu Sheng-san of Taiwan, Billy Duff of Australia and Allan Henning of South Africa.

The first golfer to qualify was Tom Watson, the winner of the 1975 World Series, while Fred Ridley, the U.S. Amateur champion, and Johnny Miller, the individual winner in the 1975 World Cup, were the next to make the list.

Ridley, however, along with British amateur champ Dick Siderow, who also qualified, decided to play in the conflicting U.S. Open instead.

- The rest of the field and how they qualified:
- Ben Crenshaw — a multiple winner
  - Jack Nicklaus — winner of the 1976 Tournament Players Championship
  - Hale Irwin — a multiple winner
  - J.C. Snead — first eligible player from the Winter Tour Standings
  - Hubert Green — a multiple winner
  - Raymond Floyd — winner of the 1976 Masters
  - Don January — a multiple winner
  - Lee Trevino — first eligible player from the Spring Tour Standings
  - Jerry Pate — winner of the U.S. Open
  - Al Geiberger — winner of the Western Open
  - Dave Hill — a multiple winner
  - Dave Stockton — winner of the PGA Championship

The eight players who could qualify as a multiple winner by winning the American Golf Classic are Bob Gilder, Mark Hayes, Roger Maltbie, Tom Kite, John Ulster, David Graham, Bob Wynn and Rick Massengale.

Late TD lets N.Y. edge Packers 20-16

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Gordon Bell scored on an 11-yard run with just 43 seconds left Saturday night, giving the New York Giants a 20-16 victory over the Green Bay Packers in the 16th annual Bishop's Charity game.

Bell's touchdown spoiled the return of Packer quarterback Lynn Diekey, who turned in a sharp performance before being replaced in the fourth quarter by Carlos Brown.

Diekey, who missed the last three games with a pulled chest muscle, completed 12 of 18 passes for 137 yards and a touchdown. The Packers, recovering from a 37-0 defeat to Buffalo, pulled ahead 13-6 in the third quarter on Diekey's 24-yard pass to Steve Odum. Moments later, a 43-yard field goal by Joe Dague gave Green Bay a 16-6 lead.

But the Giants' George Martin scored on a 15-yard interception late in the fourth quarter, cutting the deficit to 16-13. And, after the Packer offense stalled, quarterback Craig Morton coolly led the Giants 31 yards to the Packer 11, where Bell scored.

The exciting ending was a dramatic change from the first half, which had little action and ended 6-6. The Giants scored in the first half on George Hunt's field goals of 37 and 31 yards, while Packer Chester Marco connected from 36 and 27 yards.

The victory gave the Giants a 11 preseason record. The Packers are 2-3.

Vikings slug past Philadelphia 20-16

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Willie Spencer and Mark Kellar both ran for one-yard touchdowns following long drives to lead the Minnesota Vikings to a 20-16 exhibition victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Saturday night.

Spencer and Kellar, recruits from the defunct World Football League, equipped with Robert Miller to give the Vikings a solid rushing attack to complement the passing of quarterbacks Bob Lee and Fran Tarkenton.

Miller led the Viking rushers with 43 yards in 11 carries, and Kellar gained 41 in nine as Minnesota ran its preseason record to 3-2, while Philadelphia remained winless after five games.

Eagle quarterback Mike Borsja, who completed 16 of 31 passes for 144 yards, hit tight

Steel replaces lead shot

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Selected "hot spots" along the Atlantic Flyway this fall will be subject to federal regulations requiring duck hunters to use conventional steel instead of lead shot.

It's Phase 1 of a program by the Department of Interior aimed at curbing waterfowl lead poisoning. Actual magnitude of lead poisoning by birds who ingest shot into their gizzards is a subject of considerable controversy, but the government is moving ahead and the regulations will be mandated across the country within two years.

Now ammunition and firearms manufacturers are racing to meet the new demands for steel shot and guns capable of safely firing the harder metal projectiles.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service estimates that up to two million shotshells loaded with steel pellets will be required in this first year alone of mandatory muzzle shot.

An Interior notice published earlier said, in part, "Steel shot ammunition will be used for waterfowl hunting on selected areas in the Atlantic Flyway starting in 1976.

"The use of steel or other nontoxic shot will be extended to selected areas in the Mississippi Flyway in 1977, and the Central and Pacific Flyways in 1978."

The fish and wildlife service is currently attempting to finalize agreement with Atlantic Flyway states concerning the exact boundaries of areas where steel shot will be mandatory this fall. Under loosely drawn guidelines, at least nine counties in many states are expected to have the all-steel regulations.

Selection is based largely upon pinpointing areas where a minimum duck fall of 12,000 birds occurred within a square mile last year. Areas where fewer than 25 birds were harvested per square mile will be eliminated for the present from the steel requirements.

Official reasoning here is based on estimates that hunters blasting away at enough birds to harvest a total of 12,000 are laying down a minimum of three tons of lead into the marshes.

"The purpose of the steel shot requirement is to stop the accumulation of spent lead pellets in areas where they cause lead poisoning problems," the Interior notice said. "Waterfowl frequently ingest these pellets and subsequently die from lead poisoning. While steel shot is the only available substitute for lead at the present time, other types of shot are being investigated and may be available in the future."

Currently commercial steel shot loads are available only in 12 gauge, which will put a crimp in the style of devotees of the 16 gauge and those who favor the smaller 20 gauge for youngsters and waxes getting acquainted with the duck blinds.

The hardness of steel shot results in faster barrel wear. Most manufacturers also advise against using steel loads in such duck standards as double-barrel and munters,

Australian assumes LPGA-tourney lead

DENVER (UPI)—Penny Pulz, a 21-year-old Australian golfer in her second year on the pro tour, shot the best competitive round of her career Saturday, a five-under-par 67, to take the second round lead in the $50,000 LPGA National Jewish Open.

The Melbourne golfer had five birdies and no bogies over the 6,206-yard Green Gables Country Club course.

Her two-round score of 137 was two strokes better than veteran golfer Sandra Palmer who shot a 70 for a 139 total. Bunched at 111 going into Sunday's 18-hole final were Pat Bradley, Sandra Post, Kathy Whitworth, Sue Roberts, M.J. Smith, and Hollis Stacy.

Tour rookie June Hemer, who shot a 68 Friday to lead the pack after the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association meet, collapsed to a 79 and was far back with a 147.

Veteran Sandra Haynie, who had been among the pre-tournament favorites, withdrew prior to play because of a wrist problem. She had a 74 for her first round score.

The top 60 players and ties went into Sunday's final round.

After Miss Pulz finished as the second round leader, she told onlookers it was the first time on the pro circuit she had led a tournament. Her best previous competitive round was a 68.

"Guts is the difference between being a great player and not a great player," she said. "That's what it takes."

When someone asked her if she had guts, she replied: "We'll find out tomorrow."

Miss Pulz said she planned to play a wide-open game in the final round.

play conservatively against the others here," she said. "They're too good."

Transplant successful

DR. JOHN S. NAJARIAN, head of the Department of Surgery at the University of Minnesota Medical School, described the first successful tissue transplant to combat diabetes. He said he performed the operation on 25-year-old diabetic patient Joanne Storor. (UPI)

Diabetes victim transplant '1st'

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Joanne Stoehr, the first person ever to receive a successful tissue transplant to combat diabetes, is working at her full capacity, her mother said Thursday.

Miss Stoehr, 25, St. Paul, received the islet cell transplant from a three-month-old baby 18 months ago. On Thursday Dr. John S. Najarian, head of the Department of Surgery at the University of Minnesota Hospitals, described the operation.

Najarian told the Sixth International Congress of the Transplant Society his patient now gets two-thirds of her insulin needs from the transplanted tissue which he placed in her liver 18 months ago.

"She has done an awful long way," said Joanne's mother, Mrs. Richard Stoehr Sr., 43, in an interview. Joanne had been a very active girl, even though she had diabetes, her mother said, until 1972 when she had to have a kidney transplant.

"Our son donated one of his kidneys to save her life," Mrs. Stoehr said. The kidney now is "functioning absolutely perfect," Mrs. Stoehr said.

But there were other difficulties. Joanne Stoehr suffered a stroke which left her without feeling on part of the right side and that, Mrs. Stoehr said, probably will never return. A detached retina also cannot be repaired.

"But we did get her walking with therapy" after the stroke, Mrs. Stoehr said. Then 18 months ago, her daughter's name came up for the islet cell transplant.

Najarian said in the islet transplantation the donated insulin producing factories took root in the liver and started working. Now Joanne is able to go shopping and to work around the house. She also knits a lot, her mother said.

Mrs. Stoehr said that if her daughter has a chance to get another islet cell transplant "she'll be the first in line to get there."

The Stoehrs have five daughters and one son. The family has a history of diabetes and another daughter, now 16, also has diabetes.

"We are very dedicated to the University of Minnesota and very thankful that they have the doctors that could help Joanne," Mrs. Stoehr said.

Insulin 'cells' transplanted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cells that make insulin for the first time have been successfully transplanted into a human afflicted with diabetes — reducing by two-thirds that patient's need for injected insulin.

The development that opens the door to a possible cure for diabetes was reported Thursday in New York by Dr. John S. Najarian, head of the department of surgery at the University of Minnesota Medical School in Minneapolis.

Joanne Storor, 25, of St. Paul, is the recipient.

Najarian told of the development at the Sixth International Congress of the Transplantation Society in an interview he said seven patients participated in the first clinical trial of the therapy which had been proved successful in four kinds of animals over the last nine years.

He said the therapy has cured diabetes in rats, rabbits, mice and dogs.

Tiny islets of Langerhans cells were mixed with about two teaspoons of salt water and injected into the portal vein, a liver blood pipeline. Then the cells nested there and started turning out insulin.

In a normal pancreas the islets produce insulin which helps a person to convert sugar to energy. In diabetes the insulin-producing capacity is impaired — usually a genetic fault — and diabetes results.

The injected material was extracted from a donated pancreas. The mature pancreas is shaped like a cow's hump and about seven inches long.

Najarian said his team has had the best results with pancreatic material from young humans.

The search is supported by the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases and the American Diabetes Association.

The humans participating in the trials each had been the recipient of a kidney transplant — to correct kidney failure, a common complication of diabetes. They were on immunosuppressive therapy and less likely to reject the islet transplants, according to the surgeon.

Bean beetle survey program ends

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Department of Agriculture's Mexican bean beetle survey program has been terminated for the season, state entomologist, Robert Saunders, Boise, said Friday.

However, efforts to control the pest through the release of parasitic wasps will continue until the end of the growing season, he added.

The agriculture official said the team of backyard vegetable garden inspectors hired for the summer project has completed its work of checking bean plants for the beetles—considered a major threat to Idaho's multi-million dollar bean industry.

"We've apparently been successful at keeping the Mexican bean beetle from spreading to the commercial fields located east of Boise and in the Magic Valley," Saunders pointed out.

The entomologist said the strategy used by the agriculture department this year differed considerably from previous years. He explained that the survey-spray program was used in the West Basin suburbs only this year.

"We intensified our efforts in this particular area because of its proximity to the commercial bean fields. By doing so, we created a 'buffer zone,' gaining immediate control of infestations through spraying," he noted. "In the remainder of Boise, we introduced a new control method, releasing parasitic wasps which attack bean beetles only," Saunders said.

"Control through this means will take longer, but we are confident that the use of both the chemical sprays and the parasites will bring about the elimination of this pest."

The entomologist suggested that vegetable gardeners remove and dispose of all bean plants at the end of the season.

"Burn the plants at least ten inches deep or place them in a plastic bag and seal it," Saunders urged. He said reducing the overwintering population will help achieve control of this pest.

The state agriculture department said a total of 4,898 gardens were surveyed in Boise this year and another 2,969 in other communities bordering bean production areas in southern Idaho. A total of 504 infestations were found, all of which were in Boise gardens.

Politicos agreed farmers fed up with temporary grain export embargoes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Top Democratic and Republican campaigners agree that farmers are fed up with temporary grain export embargoes imposed by the GOP administration during the last three years—but neither side will unconditionally promise that it won't ever happen again.

Both President Ford and Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter issued what appeared to be "no embargo" pledges—Ford in a speech on the evening of his nomination, and Carter in a speech at the Iowa State Fair this week.

But both sides, while each claims its policies offer more hope of avoiding restraints on grain exports, are now scaling down their language to make it clear that unforeseen supply shortages could make export restraints necessary in the future.

Sen. Bob Dole, D-Kan., the GOP vice presidential candidate, told reporters at the Iowa fair Thursday that any future restraint exports he is able to prohibit must have the ability to prevent exports if a severe shortage or national emergency develops.

"Everybody knows that anyone who stands up and says there will be no more grain embargoes under any circumstances is not being realistic," Dole said. An aide said Dole was confident President Ford—who had publicly made similar statements earlier in the year—would not repeat this view.

"I think anyone who says no more embargoes should add it, 'except in case of national emergency,'" Dole added.

Carter, meanwhile, said he shared the view that embargoes might be necessary if unforeseen and extremely unlikely emergency crop shortages develop. He added that he couldn't imagine a shortage that would require an embargo.

Both parties apparently feel farmer irritation over temporary 1973 soybean export embargo, and temporary grain export embargo covering Russia in 1974-75 and Poland in 1975, as a potentially important factor in swaying farm votes.

Farm organizations covering all shades of political opinion had denounced the 1975 embargoes and some farm leaders had charged—through Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has denied it—that the temporary export ban cost farmers heavily in lost sales and lower prices.

One group, the National Association of Wheat Growers, has been assembling a fund which leaders say would be used for a legal contest if a future embargo is imposed.

Carter, in his low appearance this week, said "every time Nixon, Ford and Butz have imposed a new export embargo, it has caused permanent damage to export markets."

But his party platform, like the candidate, stops short of pledging there would never be another embargo.

The Democratic platform promised to continue efforts to "expand agriculture's" longer markets abroad. But at the same time it added that "we must prevent irresponsible and inflationary sales from the American granary to foreign purchasers."

On the GOP side, administration officials defended last year's Soviet embargo as a necessary lever to win Soviet acceptance of a long-range grain trade deal which was signed last fall. Butz said total sales to the Soviets last year were not affected by the temporary halt in shipments and asserted that the long-range deal will benefit American farmers by giving them an assured future market to count on in future production planning.

But Butz, like Ford, has said since that the administration will take all possible steps to avoid future embargoes and does not believe they will be needed in the future.

Dole has been a strong opponent of embargoes and was sharply critical of his own party's administration during the Polish action last year.

Dole said last September that Kansas wheat farmers complied with government requests to raise a record 1975 crop and then found their prices declining when the State Department instructed Poland to temporarily suspend shipments.

"The farmers of this nation are being suspended like puppets on a string by the administration's on again, off again export controls," he protested.

More recently, Dole has sought to picture the Democrats as more likely than the GOP to revive export controls.

In a statement July 31, Dole said AFL-CIO chief George Meany had been the "real force" compelling Ford to embargo grain shipments. With threats to refuse to load Soviet ships, and the Kansas classed Meany as a "chief farm adviser" of Democratic vice presidential candidate Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn.

Farms decline in Ada county

BOISE (UPI)—Farms are on the decline in Ada County, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

In a preliminary report issued by the agency, there were 1,433 farms in Ada County in 1974, which was a decline from the 1,523 reported in the 1969 agriculture census.

However, the average price of farm property was up. The price of an acre of farmland rose from $303 in 1969 to $633 in 1974.

The agency said the value of average farm rose from $89,700 to $113,600 in the five-year period, but the average size of the farm dropped from 211 acres to 165 acres.

The report also showed the value of agricultural products sold by the average farm rose from $15,622 to $24,306 per year with total sales of agricultural products in the county increasing from $22 million to $35 million.

Livestock accounted for the biggest share of sales—$19.9 million. Crops, including nursery products and hays, totaled $12.3 million, poultry and poultry products, $2.8 million and forest products, $50,000. The sale of forest products in 1969 accounted for only $1,000 in sales.

Processing of potatoes decreases

BOISE (UPI) — Potato processing in Idaho and Malheur County, Oregon was down 10 percent in 1975.

The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said 46,147,000 cwt. of potatoes were processed, compared with 51,382,000 cwt. processed in 1974.

Processors used about 60 percent of the state's potato production, compared with 63 percent in 1974 and 65 percent in 1973.

The service said all sales from the 1975 crop amounted to 69,005,000 cwt.

Odors draw static

BOISE (UPI) — A complaint was filed in Seventh District Court Wednesday against the CUI (Colorado, Utah, Idaho) International Company of Idaho Falls, citing the company for creating obnoxious odors and unhealthy conditions.

CUI operates a deboning plant where the viscera and hides of dead animal are removed before the carcasses are shipped for processing.

The legal action followed a lengthy investigation by the environmental division of the Department of Health and Welfare and the Attorney General's office and citizen complaints.

Contract signed for project

EPHRATA, Wash. (UPI) — Representatives of two Columbia Basin Project irrigation districts, the Bureau of Reclamation and the State of Washington today signed a contract calling for construction of the $42.2 million Second Bacon Siphon and Tunnel.

A third irrigation district has declined to approve the contract until after it holds a landowner meeting next month.

With the formal signing of the contract, it was expected that the Bureau of Reclamation office in Denver would soon announce the official awarding of a $32 million construction contract to Guy F. Adkinson, Co., San Francisco.

Under terms of the contract signed at Ephrata, farmers using water from the Second Bacon will be required to pay about $12 per acre per year to help finance construction.

As for the initial construction expenditures, the state will provide up to $15 million and the federal government the rest.

L.M. Boyd

Three out of every 100 husbands tell their wives that they, the husbands, should've married other women. And six out of every 100 husbands take some pleasure in talking to their wives about the smart attractive women down at the job. Or such be the indications of one of those most recent husbands-wives surveys, according to our Love and War man.

Young lady, did you love your baby at first sight? When the mothers put the foregoing query to a sizable sampling of new mothers, three out of four said yes, immediately. But the rest said no, not really, love developed gradually.

If "uncopyrightable" isn't the longest English-language word that doesn't repeat a letter, what is?

UNCHARTED

The chartmakers say there are still portions of the oceans where ships have never sailed with reefs and islands that have never been mapped.

It's quite true that people tend to shrink a little less than half an inch per decade after the age of 40.

Remember, an apple with a stem in it doesn't go bad as quickly as an apple without a stem.

Statistically, the safest transportation system known to man, even including walking, is the elevator, I'm told.

BEDWETTING

Good many of those merchandisers who market bedwetting cures rely on the fact that even though one out of every five youngsters continues to dampen down the environment beyond the age of 7, almost all outgrow the thing by the age of 12.

This is true: The old girl went boiling into the corset shop at Wanamaker's in New York City, waving a girdle. The department head, a distinguished looking fellow, stepped up, and said "You wish to hold it, madam? What's wrong? Doesn't it fit?" She yelled, "Fit! How could it possibly fit!" She pointed to the label: "Made expressly for John Wanamaker."

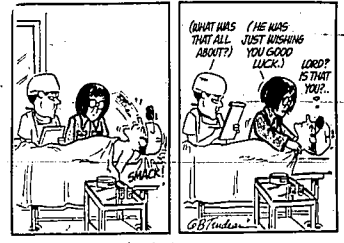

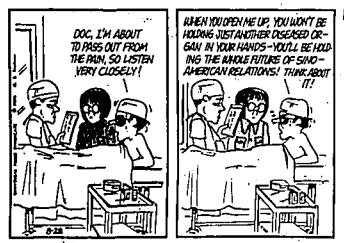

Quick, what's "enervating" mean? Put that query to any 10 citizens and nine will say it "strengthening." Why is a mystery. Actually means "weakening."

Tests have shown that a sentence of eight words is very easy to read, of 11 words, easy; of 14 words, fairly easy; 17 words, standard; of 21 words, fairly difficult; of 25 words, difficult; of 28 or more words, very difficult. This means the foregoing sentence of 43 words is just about impossible. Sorry.

New meat rules hit

WASHINGTON — What do the following popular supermarket and delicatessen items have in common?
Canned corned beef, whole-hog sausage, braunschweiger, luncheon meat, scrapple, chili, hash, corned-beef hash, tamales, spaghetti and meatballs, chop suey, and deviled ham?
 What they have in common, a Ralph Nader organization says, is one potential failing: Every one of them could be made and marketed under proposed Agriculture Department regulations without containing a speck of what the average consumer commonly considers meat.
 Gristle, ground-up bone and practically pure fat could replace choicer meat cuts in these and other popular food products if the new rules take effect. Nader's Health Research Group said in a document filed with the Agriculture Department.
 Not only would the proposal permit use of less wholesome and nutritious ingredients than are allowed, HRG said, but they also would expose the door to use of unsanitary, bacteria-laden byproducts without even the disclosure that such byproducts were included.
 The "garbage" — HRG's word — that would be permitted in processed meats would be concealed, in the description on the label, under the term "beef" or "pork," the Nader group declared.
 "These proposed regulations should be seen for what they are... and rejected," HRG said. What they are, it asserted, are "rules by turning garbage into money."

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — It won't play at your local movie theater, but a new film practically takes the viewer on a journey into the human brain.
 The film, resulting from the blending of photography and computer techniques, has been hailed by its developers as one of the most innovative research procedures developed for neuroscience.
 For years Dr. Robert B. Livingston, neuroscientist at the University of California, San Diego, has been able to convert to movie film a step-by-step analysis of micro-slices of the human brain. But only recently has he teamed with Kent R. Wilson, of the UCSD chemistry department, to reduce the anatomy of a brain to three-dimensional computer models, which provide a new precision for display, measurement and comparison of human brain structure.

 In a process known as cinematography, the human brain is embedded in solid plastic, then placed on a giant micrometer, which slices the brain at precise intervals, into pieces 25 microns (a micron is one-millionth of a meter). As each piece is sliced — about 10,000 of them — the remaining brain is precisely photographed. The series of photos are then put on movie film, and the result is a smooth flowing examination of the brain.
 As Livingston described at a recent public showing of the film, "the delicate structure of the cerebellum opens like the petals of a flower."
 Through electronic means, the individual photos have been converted to computer storage, to be retrieved as three-dimensional computer "models." When projected they look much like intricate line drawings. Each of the 24 parts of the brain, which have been converted, is in a different color.

 Researchers can study any part of the brain from any angle, and then can "fit" it together with other parts to see their relationship.
 While the new system is a boon to students — because it will enable them to better understand the sizes, shapes, and interrelationships of various parts of the brain.
 Livingston sees even greater potential in research.
 He says the motion picture is merely a "side-show to quantitative" neurology. "We wanted to have some means to get the absolutely accurate and precise organization and relationships."

 Once a "normal" brain is so graphically displayed it can be used as a base against which to compare "abnormal" brains to determine how they differ, Livingston admitted that he's now looking for a "pedigreed brain" — that of someone of great intellectual achievement — to make comparison.

Blood irradiator patented

SEATTLE (UPI) — Scientists are working on a portable blood irradiator that that may be used in the treatment of leukemia or to counteract the rejection of organ transplants.
 The device, recently patented, is being developed at Battelle's Pacific Northwest Laboratories under a federal contract.
 Currently, it is being used to study the effects of constant, low-level irradiation in the blood of goats and other animals.
 Scientists at the laboratory in Richland believe this may be a more effective method of controlling blood disease than the current therapy involving the use of repetitive doses of high radiation.
 Radiation lowers blood levels of lymphocytes, the white blood cells which fight infections or foreign materials in the body. Lymphocytes cause rejection of transplanted organs and immature white blood cells multiply uncontrollably in leukemia.
 In its present form, the irradiator is attached to the body. On the goats, it is placed around the neck. Blood flows in flexible tubing through the device and back into the body. The tubing is surgically connected to selected blood vessels.
 A Battelle spokesman said that although extensive animal research has been promising, use of the irradiator on humans may be years away.
 But if it does reach its expected potential, inexpensive units could effectively complement drugs now used in organ transplant patients to combat rejection of the transplants and also be added to the arsenal in the battle against blood diseases such as leukemia.
 To keep the device fully portable as well as inexpensive, researchers use isotopes of the element thulium. First they mix nonradioactive thulium oxide in a glass-like form of carbin and wrap that in a layer of carbon shielding.
 The thulium then is "turned on" by exposing the device to neutrons which make the element radioactive. Neutron activation has no significant effect on the outer shielding of carbon. The activated device then is wrapped in another shielding layer of metal. The package weighs about one pound.
 The irradiator can be recharged several times. Radioactivity in the device decays within a few years if it isn't recharged. This permits safe disposal of the irradiator.
 The irradiator was developed by Battelle scientists Dr. Frank P. Hungate, William F. Rembaum and I. Roy Bunnell under a contract with the U.S. Research and Development Administration.
 Battelle Memorial Institute operates ERDA's Pacific Northwest Laboratory in Richland and also performs research and development services for other government agencies as well as private sponsors at its facilities in Richland and in Seattle, Columbus, Ohio; Frankfurt, West Germany, and Geneva, Switzerland.

QUESTION: Do you feel there is a better method of selecting the vice presidential candidates than the present one?

Bob Patterson, San Jose, Calif.:

No I don't. I think the presidential candidate should be able to choose his running mate. They will be working together closely for the next four months, and he must select someone he has confidence in. I think Ford (President Ford) did the right thing in waiting until he was nominated to make the selection. In this way, there was no political pressure from vice presidential supporters for the selection of the presidential nominee.

Irene Eggleston, Buhl:
I don't know. I think the present system seems to be working O.K. Right of hand. I couldn't think of a better method, but I don't know too much about it.

Chet Hillman, Twin Falls:

I thought 16-C (Republican Convention Rule 16-C which failed) had good merit, but I think it should have been adopted for future conventions, not for the one in which it was introduced. President Ford made a good selection. I was impressed with Senator Dole during convention activities.

Ron Vanek, Burley:
I think the present method is good. I think the selections the nominees have made are good. I like it this way.

Marie DeWitt, Twin Falls:

Yes, I think there could be some improvements. I agreed with the rule they wanted to pass (Rule 16-C in the Republican Convention) but I think it should not be enforced until 1980. It would not be fair to go into a convention with a new rule the presidential nominee would have to comply with on the spot. I do think the delegates have a right to know the running mate before nominating the candidate, though.

Richard Summerfield, Twin Falls:

I feel the presidential candidate should select the vice presidential candidate. I'm not too sold on the whole convention idea, however. I'm not so sure I don't feel the primary election route might not be the best in the long run for both candidates.

John Hepworth, Buhl

Certainly. There should be some other method than the process used. There must be better ways rather than relying on political experience.

Kathie Pinther, Kimberly:
I don't know a lot about it, but I personally feel the vice president candidate should be selected beforehand. The delegates should be able to know the whole story when they vote for the nomination of a team of candidates.

Memories

Bob Johnson, Twin Falls, still remembers World War II which ended in 1945. Recently he completed an essay account of his participation in the war for the Times-News. That account plus pictures taken during the war appear on pages 8 and 9. During the war, Johnson was a sailor on the USS Nicholas, lovingly called the "Nick" by crew members.

Waltons to end?

The Waltons, popular TV series, may end this season and rumor has it the reason for its demise is that the network, producers and actors on the show cannot stand working with Richard Thomas who plays John-Boy. See p. 15.

The first responsibility of the American Red Cross is to help people in trouble. And over the past 12 months we've given emergency aid (food, housing, clothing or medical care) to over a quarter of a million people. As a result, we face the balance of this year millions of dollars short of disaster relief funds. So we're asking you for help, to pass along to someone who needs it. People are seldom ready for disaster. But we have to be.

WWII veteran tells it like it was

By BOB JOHNSON

Special to the Times-News
Thirty-one years ago, September 2nd the war ended with Japan.

While most recall the signing of surrender documents on the Missouri on that date, some who were there recall much of the small things that were important only to a 21-year-old sailor aboard a destroyer named the USS Nicholas.

The Nicholas was awarded the honor of having a part in the final segment of the peace because of action that brought the Presidential Unit citation for the ship during the battle of Kula Gulf in July of 1943. The award is the most coveted of all decorations in the navy, and is the mark, not of individual bravery, but of fighting ability, courage, and the teamwork of all members of the crew. Here is that story:

Early in July, the "Nick" joined a group of destroyers who together with tankers, ammunition ships, and cargo vessels would act as a replenishing force for Task Force 38. For 40 days we steamed through the waters of the western Pacific some 300 miles from the Japanese homeland while the powerful task force shattered Japanese installations and destroyed the remnants of the once powerful navy. On August 11 the Nicholas with two other ships of her squadron received orders to join the fleet carriers.

The Nicholas made her first strike with Take Force 38 on August 13. The carrier planes took off just after dawn and roared in toward Japan. Our fighter cover kept vigilant watch and during the day broke up concentrated attacks of enemy planes. By the morning of the fifteenth we heard that the Japanese radio had broadcast their surrender but as no official word had reached us, our strikes prepared to carry out their assignments. Several hours after our planes had taken off, we received word of the surrender, and our aircraft were recalled. However, the Japanese were still fighting and we remained alert as our planes were shooting down snooper's most of the day.

The Nicholas was assigned to escort the Missouri into Japanese home waters and receive emissaries from a Japanese destroyer.

On August 27, the "Nick" went to general quarters just before daybreak and steamed in toward Sagami Wan to rendezvous with a Japanese destroyer. The signal we were to have was that if the Japanese destroyer had its guns pointing at her deck then the surrender was official, if the guns were pointing in the air, the war was to continue.

A two-stacked Japanese destroyer was soon sighted and many of us strained our eyes to see if the ship had its guns up or down. Soon the ship came within sight range and we saw the Japanese ship with her guns pointing down to her deck.

The Japanese sailors were dressed in olive green uniforms resembling our marine fatigues. Officers dressed much the same but wore black boots. We lay to, about 75 yards from the enemy ship and lowered a whaleboat which picked up two naval officers, 13 pilots and six interpreters. When the emissaries and party came aboard the Nicholas they saluted at the quarter deck and were taken into the wardroom where they were relieved of their swords and a thorough search was made for arms.

We then went alongside the Missouri and Admiral Halsey appeared on deck while the Japanese were transferred to the battleship in a very bright red boatswain's chair.

Pilots were sent to other ships, and we began to enter Sagami Wan, south of Tokyo Bay. The "Nick" steamed close by the Missouri, and as we entered the bay we could see the coastline dotted with buildings.

On August 29 the Nicholas with two other destroyers escorted the Missouri into Tokyo Bay. Later on that date, the "Nick" went to a customs house pier in Yokohama. It was during the next two days that many of the sailors of the "Nick" were assigned to duty guarding the ship.

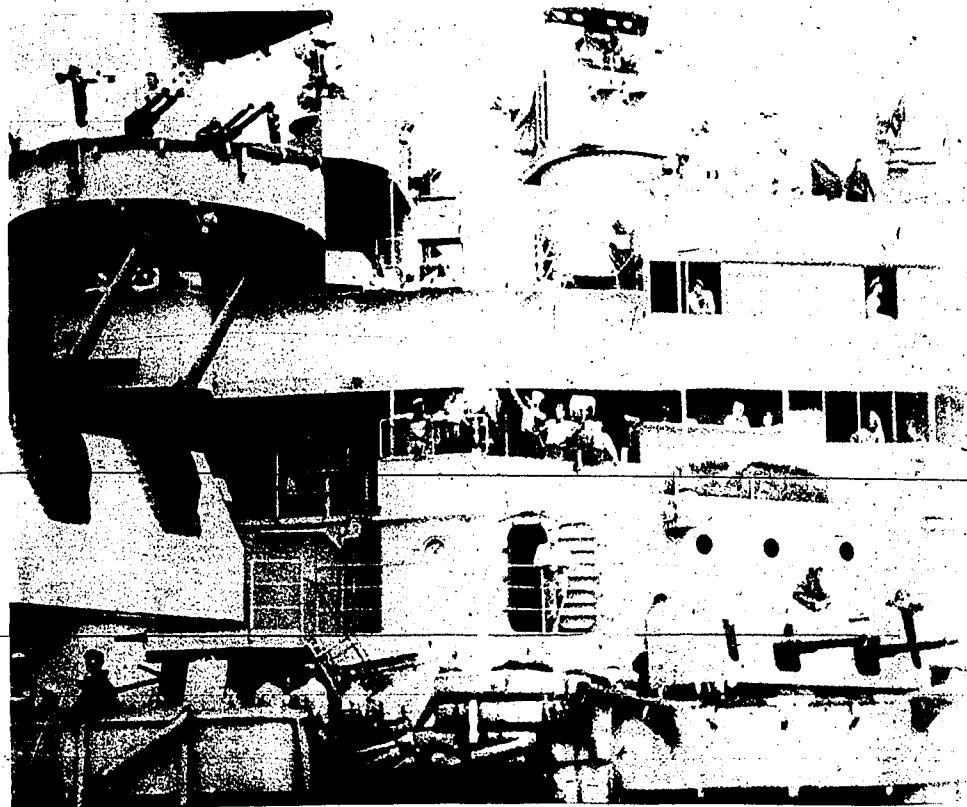

During the two days in Yokohama we failed to see another person, other than the sailors from the "Nick."

We found that the people living in Yokohama had been ordered to clear the city and to find a large city with no living persons in it gave many a weird feeling.

On Sunday, September 2nd, the Nicholas left the dock at Yokohama to take the allied representatives to the Missouri for the signing of the formal surrender documents. It was a proud day for the crew members.

Many of us younger sailors could not understand the importance of having been a witness to such an event and only in recent years have I become fully aware of the once in a lifetime event.

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Ex-Beatle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, seem happy now that he can stay in the U.S. but what about John's former wife, Cynthia? — A.L., Princeton, N.J.
A: Cynthia, who is the mother of John's 14-year-old son Julian, has just remarried.

TINY TIM

... full circle to Brooklyn

After she and Lennon split in 1969, she married and divorced an Italian. Husband number three is John Twist, a 30-year-old Irish engineer. John, Cynthia, and her son are now living in the wilds of Wales.
Q: What happened to Tiny Tim, who used to sing "Tiptoe Through the Tulips" and married Miss Vicki on television? — G.G., Sacramento, Calif.

A: Tiny Tim seems to have come full circle and now is back where he began — in his mother's Brooklyn apartment. His life hit a high when he got married on TV. After that, his career started slipping and he was back in the small clubs where he got his start. His wife divorced him and after that an automobile accident put him out of commission. Varying the show biz newspaper suggests that if Tiny Tim can hang on long enough there'll be a nostalgia boom for the 60's and he'll be in vogue again.

Q: We are just comparing our Olympic champ Bruce Jenner and Nadia Comaneci, who won three gold medals for Romania. Do you think she is going to reap anywhere near the rewards that Jenner will? — B.Y., Albany, N.Y.

A: Nadia will probably not be able to capitalize on her win the way Jenner can. Nevertheless, her parents got a brand new Mercedes from their grateful government.
Q: Has actor James Stacy ever collected any money for that horrible accident a few years ago in which he lost an arm and leg? — S.B., Akron, Ohio.*

A: Stacy won a judgment of $1.9 million from the bar which served drinks to the driver who hit him, but he hasn't collected yet. Meantime Stacy's ex-wife, Kim Darby, sued for overdue child support payments of $275 a week. Stacy got a 115-day suspended sentence on the promise that he will start making support payments for his daughter.

Q: What is Italian film maker, Linda Wertmuller, who did "Sweet Away" and "Seven Beauties," made a fortune from her movies? — T.S., Bronx, N.Y.

A: Hardly. In fact she is quoted in an upcoming article in Town & Country magazine as saying she does "secret things to earn extra money, like Westerns and TV commercials — naturally signed with another name, generally something like Hank Waller or Jimmy Steel, because Italians believe an English name makes the product better."

Q: Have you heard that there is trouble in actress Charlotte Rampling's household? — T.T., Milwaukee, Wis.

A: Trouble is putting it mildly. When Charlotte was in Cannes for the film festival she took up with Jean Michel Jarre, the son of the composer. The two have been inseparable ever since, with Jean Michel keeping Charlotte company while she was on a film location in Nova Scotia. Meanwhile her husband, Brian Southgate, who is also her business manager, was baby-sitting their 3-year-old son in St. Tropez. Jarre will work with Charlotte in Ireland too, where she'll join Fred Astaire and Peter Ustinov for her next movie, "Taxi Mauve."

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why did award-winning actress Valerie Perrine contemplate giving up movies after only doing four pictures? Valerie hated working on "W.C. Fields and Me" so much that she thought she'd quit the business. Valerie won't exactly blame it on the notoriously tough Rod Steiger. What she says is, "Let me put it this way: throughout the making of the movie he [Steiger] was W.C. Fields... and I feverishly W.C. Fields."

Q: I read that Princess Grace of Monaco has accepted a seat on the board of directors of Twentieth Century-Fox. Will she have any say in the movie company's film-making policies? H.A., Pittsburgh.

A: We would have said no but now we hear that Princess Grace made a strong speech at her first board meeting demanding that Twentieth confine itself to clean, wholesome, family-type films only. She and the Prince are very picky about what movies get shown in their little country. Does Fox have a frown by the tail?
Q: I read that dear old Johnnie Ray was appearing in London. How did he do? — T.L., Los Angeles.*

A: England has been bitten by the nostalgia bug, too, and so Ray is a smash hit. What started out as a two-week engagement for the singer has now been stretched to a one-month stand at London's Palladium.

Q: I don't know if it's fall-out from women's lib or what, but it seems to me that the men in celebrity divorces are collecting the way women used to. — R.L., Seattle, Wash.
A: It used to be that only Barbara Hutton sent her ex-husbands off with large consolation prizes but now the practice is getting more common. Goldie Hawn spent about $75,000 for her divorce and then there's Dianne Warwicke, who turned over a Rolls-Royce to her ex, Bill Elliott, as part of the split deal.

Q: With all this talk about a possible new marriage for Jacqueline Onassis, we were wondering what a new husband would do to her personal finances? — T.O., Reston, Va.

A: Jackie would have to relinquish the $25,000 a year she gets under the terms of her late husband's will. So unless a husband number three is, marriage could be an expensive proposition for her.

Q: They make movies so fast now, like three major features on the Israeli rescue at Entebbe. What about a film based on the Chowchilla school kidnapping? — A.H., Rockport, Me.

A: How about three films based on the kidnapping? One is ready to go into production. And incredibly enough, two other scripts that had been gathering dust in the files have found which parallel the true story.

SCANDAL TIME: A very hot film director could find in court any day with a paternity suit. The director discovered his live-in girl friend was pregnant, threw her out of the apartment and changed all the locks. He told her repeatedly that he didn't want a baby but nevertheless...
Q: I know Shelley Winters' daughter graduated from Radcliffe. Does she live in New York with her mother or in Italy with her father, Vittorio Gassman? — V.O., Boston.*

A: Neither. She lives in Manhattan in her own apartment. Tony is pretty independent since her father gave her $100,000 a year. Copyright, 1976, by King Features Syndicate

Q: What do you know about Shirley, the star of that great ABC show "LaVerne and Shirley," playing in a porno movie? — J.B., Chicago.

A: Well, first of all, the movie, "The First Nude Musical," has an R rating and isn't a porno film. Cindy Williams doesn't appear nude nor does she do anything even slightly shocking in the movie. The picture played briefly in a few cities and then was withdrawn. Some insiders wonder if ABC was worried about their hit series, put pressure on Paramount to recall the film. It certainly wasn't Cindy's idea. She was all for a big publicity campaign promoting the movie and herself.

Q: Somebody told me the Walltons is going off the air. Is this true? It's my favorite show — B.P., Camden, Ohio.

A: We hear that the series will end this season. Rumor has it the main reason is that the network, the producers, and the actors on the show cannot stand working with Richard Thomas, who plays John-Boy.

Q: Do you think Jack Nicholson will marry his girl friend, Anjelica Huston? — A.L., New Haven, Conn.

A: It doesn't look that way right now. Anjelica has taken up with Ryan O'Neal again — something she did once before to spite Nicholson. Jack has been seen all over St. Tropez with a little sweetie named Winny-Loo Harlowe. Doesn't bode well.

Q: Is there any truth to the rumor that the Smothers Brothers are breaking up? — G.H., Sarasota, Fla.

A: A lot of truth. Dick doesn't want to do TV anymore and despite Tommy's protests is going to quit and concentrate on the vineyard he owns in Northern California. This isn't Tommy's year, obviously. His second marriage to his old-high school sweetheart (Izabel and Rochelle has filed for a divorce.
