Sunshine bill okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cozy, informal sessions away from the prying eyes of the public, could become a thing of the past if a bill given final congressional approval Tuesday becomes law.

The Senate, following the House, gave final approval to the so-called "sunshine bill" — forcing major government agencies to conduct their business meetings in public.

The bill was sent to the White House by voice vote. The House had earlier cleared the measure by a 340-8 vote.

Federal agency meetings comprising more than one member, would be open to public, and only certain areas, such as those involving national defense or security, trade secrets, criminally or personal privacy, would be exempt.

Even those attending the exempted meetings would be forced to produce detailed minutes and in some cases transcripts.

The open meetings provisions would apply to approximately 50 federal agencies, the ones already covered by the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act, and which are headed by a commission or body of two or more members subject to Senate confirmation.

They include such as the Federal Power Commission, Federal Communications Commission, Federal Reserve Board and Securities and Exchange Commission.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said the bill "will assure that decisions affecting millions of Americans, which have too often been made at cozy, informal sessions, will no longer be permitted to be made in meetings closed to the press and public."

The bill would require agencies to announce their meetings at least a week in advance and to announce the names and phone numbers of officials the public can call for detailed information about the meetings.

A citizen could challenge any decision for a closed meeting and if a court decided it was improperly held in secret, the court could release the transcript of the meeting.

Senate and House had passed differing versions that were put together in a House-Senate conference committee.

Wood River faces fine on football

By BART QUESNÉL
Times News writer

HAILEY — Wood River High School will find out Sept. 10 if it has to pay an $1,300 fine which could be levied against the school for dropping varsity football this year.

A provision in the Idaho High School Activities Association constitution, says schools can be fined $300 for each game they do not play if the games were scheduled in advance. Wood River had scheduled six varsity football games this fall.

Wood River High School cancelled its varsity football program last week because only a handful of upperclassmen turned out for the team.

The decision on the fine rests with the Idaho High School Association Board of Control composed of representatives from other schools in Idaho, representatives from trustee and coaches associations, and Department of Educational officials.

A meeting Sept. 10 in Boise has been scheduled to investigate the problem,

Dick Sitkle, executive secretary of the Idaho High School Association, said the possible $300 fine, if levied, would go to those individual schools that were scheduled to play Wood River this fall in football.

The South Central Idaho Conference is composed of six teams in football, including Mountain Home, Gooding, Jerome, Buhl, Filer and Wood River.

Ed Marshall, Filer High School principal, who is president of the SCIC, said, "Most coaches in the conference understand the problem and have been able to reschedule the games."

Jerome High School has been unable to reschedule, Marshall said.

An SCIC conference meeting Tuesday resulted in no motions to discipline Wood River.

"There was a good feeling among the teams and the coaches in the conference," Marshall said.

"Most of them understood the problem," he said.

The SCIC has no official capacity to levy fines or take disciplinary action, according to Sitkle.

today in brief

Forces clash in Beirut
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rightists and leftist forces clashed with rockets and mortars today in suburban Beirut and in the mountains northeast of the capital.

Lebanon's warring factions remained comparatively quiet, however, as both sides awaited the results of president-elect Elias Sarkis' brief peace parley in Damascus.

Clashes along the confrontation lines of Beirut's southern suburbs and in the mountains northeast of the capital claimed at least 87 dead over the past 24 hours, according to the combined figures of militia groups.

Demonstration broken
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African forces fired tear gas to break up anti-apartheid demonstrations Tuesday and batoned black youths who demolished a school house.

South African officials declined comment on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's remark in Philadelphia that "South Africa's internal structure is incompatible with any sense of human dignity."

2 remain in center

RICHMOND, Wash. (UPI) — Two men exposed to radioactive substances in a chemical "explosion" at a processing plant remained in a decontamination center today while investigators looked for the cause of the accident.

The explosion occurred early Monday while an operator at the Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co. plant on the Hanford Atomic Reservation was "in the process of separating a radioactive americium from waste."

Soviets 'knew' disease cause

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet newspaper speculated today that "out of control Pentagon experiments with chemical and biological weapons" caused Philadelphia's mysterious "legionnaires disease."

The weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta reported on the outbreak that has killed 28 persons, most of them members of the American Legion who attended a state convention in Philadelphia in July.

It accused the United States of violating the 1925 convention, signed by both the Soviet Union and the United States, banning biological weapons.

Sweeping changes asked

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Indian government asked Parliament today for approval of sweeping changes in the national constitution which weakens the judicial branch and increases the power of the prime minister and Parliament.

Opponents of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said the changes if approved would lead to creation of a "single party dictatorship."

About 30 members from major opposition parties walked out of Parliament to protest the proposed amendments.

Law Minister H.R. Gokhale introduced the package of amendments affecting 59 of the 395 articles in the constitution which dates to 1950 three years after India became independent of Britain.

Amtrak pleases Shoshone

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times News writer

SILVISTONE — Merchants and motorists in Shoshone are pleased with the recent decision to establish an Amtrak passenger train route through southern Idaho, but none of them expects the Shoshone stop to affect business significantly.

The Amtrak Board of Directors voted last week to establish the service which is expected to begin in the spring. The train is due to pass through Shoshone in the early morning, around 2 a.m. and 3 a.m.

D. A. Everett, the Union Pacific agent in Shoshone, says he has had many inquiries about when the train will be coming through. Everett said he doesn't feel the probable early morning stop will discourage people who want to ride the train.

"It's going to be a good thing," Everett said. "We used to run trains through here early morning. The time schedule didn't bother people."

Shoshone Mayor Elwood Werry agrees: "I am pleased with the decision," Werry said. "Some people have been talking about the time of departure. I think if they really want to go, it won't affect them. Everybody can't leave at 8 in the morning. Somebody has got to leave in the early morning."

Bill Blau, owner of the Manitowish Camp in Shoshone, said, "I don't think any difference for us because we will be closed. I don't see any difference in my business. The only places that are open after seven are the bars."

But even the bars will be closed when the Amtrak train is passing through Shoshone. State law requires them to close at 1 a.m.

"I open at 8:30 or 9 in the morning and I stay open until 11 at night," the owner of the Columbia Lounge in Shoshone said.

"I could open and serve coffee and sandwiches at seven."

One possible effect of the train will be on the hotels and motels in Shoshone.

Hurricane Frances heads away

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Frances, in almost the same spot where Hurricane Emily was six days ago, boosted its punch to 100 miles an hour today but headed away from North America.

Hurricane Emily weakened again during the night and raced closer to the Azores and residents were urged to watch for advisories since only a minor course change could take the storm across the islands early Thursday.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Emily was centered near latitude 35.5 degrees north and longitude 35.5 degrees west, 300 miles southwest of the westernmost Azores.

Uruguay gets new heir

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — Aparicio Mendez, the 72-year-old lawyer assuming the presidency today, reportedly hopes to gradually restore some of the democratic rights that have been suspended in Uruguay for the past three years.

But Mendez will not have a free hand in administering the nation — the armed forces still retain behind-the-scenes power.

Hysteria recharged

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Ireland's main opposition party, Fianna Fail, accused the government today of creating hysteria by its demands for a declaration of national emergency and new powers to curb the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Premier James Cosgrave, who recalled parliament from its summer recess for emergency debate, charges the IRA is an "armed conspiracy" threatening the institutions of state.

Nurse's counseling of patient ruled unprofessional

By GEORGE WILEY
Times News writer

TWIN FALLS — A hearing officer for the State Board of Nursing has ruled a Twin Falls nurse was guilty of unprofessional conduct in counseling a dying patient without consulting the patient's doctor.

Attorney William Snyder made the determination in the case of Jolene Tuma, a former CSI nursing instructor who was suspended from her job last March after she allegedly counseled a terminally-ill cancer patient in the use of natural remedies as possible treatment for her illness.

The charge against Mrs. Tuma was that she had violated the physician-patient relationship while employed as a CSI nursing instructor and working at the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital.

Mrs. Tuma was accused of talking twice on Aug. 4 with Mrs. Agnes Wahlstrom, an acutely ill leukemia victim under the care of Dr. Patrick Desmond, about the use of herbs and an illegal cancer drug, laetrile, as a method of alternative treatment to the narcotic chemotherapy Desmond had prescribed.

Mrs. Wahlstrom completed chemotherapy treatments but died soon after the treatments were concluded.

Snyder made the ruling Aug. 24 but the content of the finding was delayed until all parties in the case were notified.

"It is the determination of the hearing officer, that the licensee (Mrs. Tuma) has violated Idaho Code ... by interfering with the physician-patient relationship and thereby constituting unprofessional conduct," Snyder wrote in a terse opinion.

Snyder made no recommendation for disciplinary action in forwarding his finding to the nursing board.

But the finding will probably mean the revocation, permanently or temporarily, of Mrs. Tuma's license to practice nursing in Idaho. The nursing board will formally receive the finding when it meets Sept. 14. It will then have to decide the disciplinary action to be taken.

Eileen Merrill, Executive Director of the nursing board, investigated the allegations against Mrs. Tuma prior to a hearing at which Snyder presided July 8 and petitioned the nursing board to permanently revoke Mrs. Tuma's license.

At the hearing held in July, Mrs. Tuma admitted she had talked to Mrs. Wahlstrom on the morning of March 4 about laetrile.

Mrs. Tuma said the conversation was at Mrs. Wahlstrom's request.

A second conversation, this time with the dying woman's family, took place later that same day.

Mrs. Tuma denied she had advised the patient to leave the care of Dr. Desmond or that she had advised the patient the harsh side-effects of the prescribed chemotherapy would kill her, as had been alleged in the original nursing board petition for license revocation.

Mrs. Tuma maintained she had merely discussed the alternative treatment with the patient and her family without urging them to seek the alternate treatment.

In a section on "Conclusions of Law" accompanying his finding, Snyder gave weight to previous testimony that Mrs. Tuma had told a student nurse and the patient herself that the discussion of herbal remedies was not entirely ethical.

"In the hearing officer's opinion the licensee was aware at the time that what she was doing was in violation of the charges that eventually resulted against her," Snyder wrote.

Mrs. Tuma indicated she will appeal the nursing board's decision if her license is revoked.

Focus now on Viking 2

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Mars probe scientists prepared today to switch the major focus of their attentions from Viking 1 to Viking 2 as the second robot explorer made ready to join the first in the surface of the red planet.

Viking 2's robot laboratory is scheduled to drop from orbit to a landing about 5 p.m. MDT, Friday in an area of deep, wind-blown dunes and sand dunes on Mars' northern latitudes.

Scientists believe there is more water there than elsewhere on Mars, presumably "increasing" the possibility of discovering life "micro-organisms" — in the soil.

Final plans for Viking 2's landing were being made today, and the "go-no-go" decision will be made at a conference Thursday, said project director James Martin.

"Thursday, we complete Viking 1's primary mission activities," Martin said, "and then there will be the reduced mission." He said the first spacecraft will continue its biology experiments in incubation and play back data to Earth each day.

But no commands will be sent to Viking 1 while Viking 2 goes into its primary mission — to answer some of the questions about Martian "chemistry" and search for evidence of life.

Viking 2 will separate from its orbiter at 1:30 p.m. MDT Friday and coast across the Martian skyline for two hours before a drop with a parachute and then retro-rockets to land.

The landing will be at 9:48 a.m. by Mars time. It will be between 5:40 p.m. and 6 p.m. MDT before the first picture is transmitted back to Jet Propulsion Laboratory. The picture will be of the lander's footpad. The second picture will be a panorama.

Kissinger will address UN unit

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In the past two weeks, the fifth session of the U.N. Conference on the Law of the Sea has bogged down mainly over questions of future distribution of marine and mineral resources in the ocean.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, hoping to break the stalemate in the negotiations, planned meetings today with delegations to the conference, which resumed Aug. 26 in 1975 to establish a new legal order for the oceans.

Kissinger's agenda today included meetings with Ambassador Hamilton Shirley Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka, president of the conference, and the 100-member U.S. delegation.

Original plans called for the conference to write a draft of a new code in the current session that ends on Sept. 17, with further refinement planned at another session early next year and final approval by mid-1977.

But diplomatic sources now believe it will be impossible to maintain this schedule unless there is a breakthrough.

The deadlock has grown out of clashes between such opposing groups as industrial and underdeveloped nations, and landlocked and coastal states over rights to the trillions of dollars of minerals in the sea.

The conference is at odds mainly on the establishment of an international seabed Authority that would regulate future deep-sea mining of nickel, chrome and manganese nodules.

The authority, as proposed in the current negotiating texts, may issue exclusive mining permits for certain areas and simultaneously run its own enterprise, with a share of the revenue going to all developing countries.

There also is considerable debate over the rights of coastal states in the projected, 200-mile exclusive economic zone.

Talks about S. Africa

Mexico lets peso 'float'

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico is trying to bolster its heavily indebted economy, let the peso float free today from its 22-year exchange rate of 12.50 pesos to the dollar.

Financial experts said the surprise decision Tuesday by outgoing President Luis Echeverria will not hurt Mexico and probably will bring it immediate benefits.

Bul. Mexican businessmen and government officials — led by Treasury Secretary Mario Ramon Beteta — anxiously awaited reaction from New York and other world money markets.

Beteta announced the decision on the eve of Echeverria's last state of the nation message and Mexican banks will be closed today for the presidential address.

There was speculation among financial observers that the peso, Latin America's most stable currency in recent years, would jump to anywhere between 17 and 30 pesos to the dollar.

"Thousands of Americans who have millions of dollars invested in Mexican high interest time certificates and bonds were expected to lose money."

Mexico's foreign debt stands at more than $3.7 billion.

"It's obvious the peso was overvalued," one American expert said. "It's been overvalued for some time and they (the Mexicans) have done the right thing."

Observers said floating of the peso will make Mexican products more competitive on the world market and should encourage tourism, which was badly hit by a Jewish boycott of Mexico prompted by its anti-Israeli stand.

The decision to float the peso was one of the best-kept secrets of the 5 1/2 year Echeverria administration, which ends Dec. 1. President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo will be sworn in on that date.

Date observed of Sinai accord

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel marked the first anniversary of the Sinai accord with Egypt today with expressions of confidence in the viability of the agreement and the ability of the United States to enforce it impartially.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin set the tone for the official Israel praise of the accord initiated last Sept. 17.

At a special cabinet session Sunday, Rabin said the agreement has strengthened peace prospects in the Middle East, reduced chances for a new flareup and contributed to Israel's military power.

Foreign Minister Yigal Alon, in a broadcast Monday on the armed forces radio station, denied a news report that contradicted Rabin's positive appraisal. The report, in the newspaper Ha'aretz, accused the United States of supplying doctored aerial reconnaissance photographs to Israel to lessen the extent of Egyptian violations of the pact.

Rabin and most Israeli leaders tend to downplay the Egyptian violations allegedly involving the stationing of excess troops in a reduced-force zone east of the Suez Canal.

"The truth is that there has been no disagreement between Israel and the United States," Alon said. "We have not complained to the United States that it has allegedly withheld from us or given us a selective assortment of intelligence reports."

Alon, nonetheless, admitted there was an "accumulation" of Egyptian violations of the accord, saying he intended to take up the matter with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger when the two meet in New York during the forthcoming U.N. General Assembly session.

Guerrillas attack in Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — The white-ruled Rhodesian government says an attack by 100 black nationalists on an army outpost this week was the largest single guerrilla action of the four-year jungle war.

The Rhodesian military command said Tuesday the guerrillas attacked a base near the 700-mile Mozambique border Monday and wounded six soldiers, two critically.

The communales said troops killed 22 guerrillas in the past three days, bringing to 58 the number slain in the past week. It was one of the highest guerrilla death tolls in such a period since the war began in December, 1972.

Less learning, higher marks

The long held suspicion that the nation's schools are losing their ability to impart basic learning skills to pupils would seem to be sustained by a recent educational survey conducted by the Los Angeles Times.

In a three-part series, which the paper published, it narrated a history of declining levels of learning which began in the 1950's and is still continuing.

For about one hundred years, educational accomplishments in the nation's schools were on a steady up-hill climb. However, beginning in the 1950's two related phenomena began to take place.

Levels of learning in basic subjects such as reading, writing and mathematical knowledge began to decline. Yet at the same time the comparative grading of students has undergone inflation with A's and B's being given almost uniformly, whereas the level of accomplishment would have warranted only a C or D in the preceding decades.

Indications of the declining level of learning achievement have been noted in the past twenty years. At the college level it has been often necessary to place high school graduates in remedial classes in both reading and writing.

But, the decline is also noted in professional or graduate schools where students wishing to pursue higher levels of education have been making lower and lower scores.

There are a few bright spots in the educational picture, however. Improvement has been shown in the levels of learning in the first three grades among all students. And today's students' knowledge of science continues on a high level.

However, after the first three grades a decline sets in and continues on all through the educational world.

The decline is found in all ethnic groups and at all levels of economic well-being. It also cuts across the boundaries between public and private schools, being found in both. But in the face of the acknowledged decline students continue to get higher grades than they would have earned in past decades.

Some view the falling rate of skills as another sign of the general permissiveness which has pervaded our society for many years.

No correlation has yet been established between television viewing and the declining rate of language facility. Some educators defensively say that reading and writing ability is not needed as greatly in the modern world as it was before the advent of radio and television broadcasting.

But in another day growing boys and girls were engrossed in many books written for their years and certainly gained reading, spelling and writing skills through devotion to such books as the Horatio Alger series, Tom Swift's science stories, the Frank Merriwell books and others.

Newspaper editors have known for years of the declining ability of people to write. There are few editors who have not had to "clean up" letters to the editor, to save their writers from embarrassment.

Perhaps the most important task facing the educational establishment is to restore the connection between grades and student performance.

Seizing one initiative prohibitive

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The presidential campaign will get more complicated, confused and downright silly in the 10 weeks before the election.

But for starters, the thing to remember is that President Ford has "seized the initiative."

Yes, the word from the Ford vacation retreat in Colorado is as clear as the Rocky Mountain air: by stepping boldly forward and proposing 90-minute debates on specific topics and specific dates, the President had sent Carter rolling in disarray.

In fact, the Georgian Democrat was so disoriented by the Ford initiative that he took his softball hit to Ford's noggin in a manner of speaking, from Los Angeles to Seattle and back to Des Moines, accusing the President of ineffectual links to the administration of his discredited predecessor.

Now, remember, this from a man thrown on the defensive by the President's initiative. It is presumed the Democratic candidate will regain his composure after Labor Day and seek somehow to recover from the Ford initiative, perhaps by swapping the substance but not the substance of a birchmore substantial, say a garrulous scholastic.

Ford's initiative was so stunning that Carter somehow staggered into the farm territory of the Republican vice presidential candidate Robert Dole, the Kansas senator, and had the blatant temerity to criticize Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, and Ford's agricultural policies favoring corporate farm operations.

Dole skinned out Carter at the American Legion convention in Seattle, where the head of a right-wing religious regime would have switched Sudan's allegiance from Egypt to Libya.

This would have revived an old dream of Qaddafi's. He has never forgone President Numeiri - for putting out of the proposed federation of Libya, Egypt and Sudan agreed upon so bilithely in 1963.

But Qaddafi's political animosities take him westward as well as southeast. He detests the prime minister of Tunisia, Hedi Nouria, because Nouria put a stop to the union of Libya and Tunisia which Qaddafi, somehow, managed to sell to Tunisia's President Bourguiba in January, 1974.

In April this year three Libyans arrested in Tunis and charged with plotting to assassinate or kill Nouria, said they had their orders from the Libyan prime minister. Tunisia's leaders are now worried that the Libyan government may be plotting a Sudan-type operation against themselves.

The Tunisian intelligence service claims that Libya has recruited Tunisian dissidents for training in subversion. Tunisia's ambassadors in Western countries were, therefore, instructed to elicit a show of Western support for the Tunisian government which would deter Qaddafi.

On Aug. 3, President Bourguiba's birthday, American, French, Egyptian and Greek warships arrived at Tunisian ports and a squadron of French Mirage fighters took part in the Tunisian air force's fly-past. So far, it seems to have worked.

South, west and east, Qaddafi's relations with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt have now deteriorated to the point of pure mudslinging. The Egyptian government points to several episodes which support its suspicions at Qaddafi, the arrest of a number of Libyans sent to Cairo, the Egyptians say, to assassinate leading Egyptians and to kidnap two of Qaddafi's former colleagues who had fled to Cairo; the discovery in May and June of a number of bombs in Alexandria and Mersa Matruh; the explosions in a government building in the center of Cairo on Aug. 8.

The Egyptian authorities, and the government-controlled press, now blame Qaddafi for virtually any oddity that happens in Egypt. President Sadat calls him, flatly, a madman, as does President Numeiri; and says he is encouraged by the Russians.

And what of all these angry neighbors? The Libyans say that Egypt has massed troops on their frontier, and that President Sadat and President Numeiri worked out a plan to overthrow Qaddafi when they met in Saudi Arabia last month.

But troops may not be needed. Some 200,000 Egyptians are employed in Libya as civil servants, teachers, doctors and lawyers. Libya also gets help from Tunisians. The withdrawal of these people could bring the sort of chaos to Libya which even Colonel Qaddafi might not survive.

Democrat was hooded for saying he would pardon Vietnam draft evaders. The Kansans, who won honors but lost the use of his right hand in World War II, told the Legionnaires that the President would grant a blanket pardon, amnesty or clemency, and got the expected standing ovation. The Legionnaires cling to the proposition that Vietnam was not a dishonorable enterprise and ought not to be treated as such.

The President might actually have unbalanced Carter if his so-called initiative had included a plan to debate this country's urban crisis, to elicit one issue free of such code word implications as Solzhenitsyn, Helsinki, Rhodesia, detente, etc. The plight of American cities is more disgraceful than the tax code. Carter has condemned as disgraceful.

The Georgian, professed to be a considerable foe when he decided not to make the traditional Labor Day speech in Detroit because Michigan is Ford's home state. So he chose Warm Springs, Ga., presumably to evoke a kinship with Franklin D. Roosevelt, who vacationed and died there.

It is no impertinence to suggest, that none of the candidates truly has a feel for the travail of urban America. They were born and raised in small-town America in Andy Hardy's often-misquoted words, Plains, Warm Springs, Ga., presumably to evoke a kinship with Franklin D. Roosevelt, who vacationed and died there.

President was born in Omaha but spent his formative years in the largest of the old, Grand Rapids, Mich., with a population of just under 200,000.

The Democratic running mate, Mondale spent several years as a prosecutor in St. Paul, Minnesota's capital, and he has made sympathetic noises about the urban condition. Whether this is lip service for a commitment shared by Carter remains to be seen. Ford's political lifetime is rooted in a Washington suburb, Alexandria, Va., where he had lived for 25 years until he kind of fell into a more elegant place at 1000 Pennsylvania Ave. One is entitled to wonder if he appreciates what is happening in Detroit, a city trying to obliterate itself with violence, vandalism and a virtual contempt for authority.

Not perhaps since at Smith in 1928 has a presidential candidate come, street-wise and tough, from the urban core of this country. Many have gravitated toward the cities in their adult years, but their values and vision were fashioned in the small towns. Their flight to the suburbs, shared by millions, came largely from an instinct to recapture and preserve their origins.

Some political scientists and sociologists would argue that Suburban America, those who comprise the basic electorate today, have given up on the city. They would treat it as an Indian reservation on a permanent federal take and forget about it. This comes at a time when economist Barbara Ward estimates 1.5 billion people will pour into the world's cities between now and the year 2,000.

The demographic flood is potentially so damaging precisely because it is a flood: in other words, an unmanaged, unintended, disorganized rush, pell mell into the urban order," she writes.

Now there is an initiative to be seized. But the odds that it will be are prohibitive.

Qaddafi's enemies now closing in

By NEIL LONDON, Economist News Service
LONDON - (LENS) - In Colonel Muammar Qaddafi's book the most heinous crime any other Arab leader can commit is to spy upon either of his neighbors.

The presidents of Egypt and Sudan and the prime minister of Tunisia are impediments to Arab unity, in the Libyan colonel's eyes; and must, therefore, be deposed.

Despite Libyan denials, the evidence is piling up that Qaddafi was deeply involved in the attempted assassination of President Gaafar Numeiri of Sudan at the beginning of July. This evidence is now to be considered by a joint commission of the Arab League and the Organization of African Unity.

Ex-Brigadier Mohammed Nour, Sayed, a ring-leader of the deposed coup, admitted before his extradition to the Sudan that he had received assistance from an Arab state, presumably, though he did not name it, Libya.

And the Sudanese government has put on display in Khartoum some of the vehicles and weapons - clearly from Libya - taken from the rebels.

Sadek had reasons of revenge and ambition for wanting to get rid of President Numeiri. After an unsuccessful attempt on Mr. Numeiri's life in March, 1970, the Sudanese leader retaliated savagely against the Ansar sect and its religious leader, the Imam, who was Sadek's uncle.

If last month's coup had succeeded Sadek, at the head of a right-wing religious regime would have switched Sudan's allegiance from Egypt to Libya.

This would have revived an old dream of Qaddafi's. He has never forgone President Numeiri - for putting out of the proposed federation of Libya, Egypt and Sudan agreed upon so bilithely in 1963.

Take nothing along to movie theatre

By RICHARD EDER

NEW YORK - The best thing to take into a movie is nothing.

A sweater for the air-conditioning, glasses if they are needed for seeing, and possibly dark glasses for looking at the screen.

What is of little use, and usually harmful, is anticipation. It has ruined any number of movies for people who have gone depending on enthusiastic reviews, word of mouth, or a previous happy experience with something made by the same director or with the same actor.

If any attitude is to be carried in past the box office, it should be forbearance.

This could be taken simply as saying that most movies are fairly bad and that it is better to be surprised than disappointed. It is true, of course, but I think there's something more. Anticipation and pessimism do different things to the way we register what we are seeing, and by and large pessimism is more likely to put a barrier between the screen and ourselves than gloom.

It could be argued that this is also true of plays and books. But there is something passive about the way we see a movie, much more so than with playing golf, and infinitely more so than with reading a book. When we advance upon a film when we pursue and try to seize it, it recedes from us. A film must invite our infiltration, it says to us. We do not start in with our sense of an triumph; it possible, with a movie, but not emotions in neutral. The half-closed eye opening typifies a good experience at the movies. The expectant eye glazing over is bad.

Identically, the phenomenon sets up a paradox for movie reviewers. To strain in a "little say" it could be that the best service to be done for a good movie would be to write discouragiously about it, thus putting prospective spectators into the best possible frame of mind to appreciate it. The trouble, of course, is that they might not.

Probably the easiest reviews given to "Washington" and to Woody Allen's new and best, contributed to the lull of a great many educated and enthusiastic filmgoers, felt when seeing them. I don't suggest that this was the "main factor" - this column is not Berkeley enough to hold that the only reality of a movie is the viewer's frame of mind - but it played a part. More recently, and more trivially, I'm afraid, that writing about the immaturity of a film has contributed to the immaturity of many a reviewer.

After reading the review, the fact is, movies tend to begin well. Then after five minutes, or 15, or with great luck, 45, most tend to wrinkle around the edges, lose tone, unravel and blow away. It is the opposite of what happens on the stage. There the first thing we are aware of is the artifice and the effort. We play and it takes them a while to move in. It also takes us a while to move in; particularly in those stage pieces that begin in full cry - musicals, Shakespeare and most other classics - while we are just beginning to digest our own presence, the texture of the seats, the distance from the stage, the scenery or the lack of it.

With movies, except for those that experiment with stylized abstraction, we are immediately looking at something. Our eye is curious, jelly, frivolous and unbecome. In the middle of a serious conversation we can't help noticing the odd hat some passer-by is wearing. How many people can resist looking at a film window, even if it's only to see a man drinking a glass of milk? When the film leaves the frame there is a compulsion to look and ask, if it's only the Jerry Seinfeld, go, stop.

The beginning of a movie is exactly like that. Almost anything real the camera shows is compelling, particularly nowadays when directors and cameramen have such skill at setting a scene and a mood. This professional moviegoer can recall all kinds of beginnings of movies that he only had no endings - for all that, could remember, or would not - but no middles either.

Take a nuttily like "The Gumball Rally," dealing with the efforts of a variegated band of speed demons to conduct a madcap car race from New York to California. It begins with one of the maddest movie shots of all time - a panoramic view of Manhattan that gradually zips in on one particular office in one particular skyscraper. It is not even particularly well done, yet the sight of all these familiar buildings, continues to please our under-employed eyes, and the familiarity of the device makes it resemble the "once upon a time" that began so many stories and always aroused hopefulness. Unfortunately, once upon a time, it is not a matter of people who want to see it after reading the review.

Doctor, I'm afraid I'm not prepared to deal with my problem on this level!

Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Wednesday, Sept. 1 the 235th day of 1973 with 121 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Virgo.

Journalist James Gordon Bennett was born Sept. 1, 1841.

On this day in history: In 1897, Aaron Burr, vice president of the United States under Thomas Jefferson, was acquitted of charges of treason, proving out of an alleged plot to set up an independent empire in the nation's South and West.

In 1923, Japan's worst earthquake killed 150,000 persons and injured many thousands of others.

In 1929, meeting in Germany's invaded Poland, Great Britain and France, served ultimatum on Adolf Hitler, but it was ignored and two days later the Allies declared war on Germany.

In 1975, Israel and Egypt initiated an agreement calling for Israeli withdrawal from a small slice of the Sinai Desert. In return, Egyptian political concessions and substantial pledges of financial support from the United States.

Thought for today: A thought for the day: Britain's wartime leader Winston Churchill sent this message to Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler: "We the British will have no truce with you or the grisly gang who work your wicked will. You do your worst and we will do our best."

Taxpayers get break, bill written in open

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Russell B. Long leans back and sends a jet of cigar smoke toward the ceiling. Rep. James Burke chomps on his unlighted cheroot. Sen. Herman Talmadge clasps a long cigar between his teeth. These men are making history as well as smoke.

As far as anyone around Congress can tell, a major tax bill is being written for the first time in open session — with taxpayers, tax lobbyists, tax lawyers and anyone else free to watch.

The setting is ceremonial — a huge, high-ceilinged, green-carpeted chamber in the Longworth building. Four plaster eagles sit atop classic columns. The walls hold enormous oil portraits of 14 past chairmen.

The legislators — 10 from the Senate Finance Committee, seven from the House Ways and Means Committee — meet around a table shaped like an irregular doughnut. Inside the doughnut, a stenographer takes down every word.

Separated by velvet ropes, an audience of about 300 sits on black leather chairs. These are mostly lobbyists and Treasury and IRS experts, mostly men, a few women. They crane to hear what a congressman says.

The session offers civics in the rough for Washington tourists, but few know to look for it. Long of Louisiana presides over the proceedings. At his right is Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, chairman of the House committee. Al Ullman's left is Burke of Massachusetts, quietly clomping his leg.

Across from them sits Laurence Woodworth, director of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation. This is a staff of lawyers, statisticians and economists hired by Congress to provide technical assistance.

Woodworth, who wears a small, neat mustache, has been here 32 years. When the House debates a tax bill, he sits beside Ullman; when the Senate acts, he is beside Long, providing whispered expertise.

When a bill passes both houses, differences between the two versions must be reconciled. This is done by a "conference committee" — a temporary panel of the most senior members of the House and Senate committees which drafted the original bill. The conference is where laws are written.

Woodworth frames and proposes compromises — without jeopardizing his own reputation for neutrality. Larry suggests: "The conference always had been closed. In January 1975 House reformers changed the rules to require open conferences unless a majority of the members votes for closed sessions."

No longer can a lawmaker work a quiet deal behind closed doors, then emerge to announce the fight for purity but had to give in to conflicting soundbites from the other body.

A blue-covered book comparing the House and Senate versions of the tax bill sits 251 items in dispute. One by one, the conference debates them.

To the outsider, the talk is exotic — of "loss carry-forward" and "liquidity positions" and "non-related income." The legislators, accustomed to working in front of audiences, are at ease.

Their talk is conversational, minus the formalities of House or Senate debate.

EMILY AND BILL HARRIS ... get 11 years.

Pair sentenced to 11-year terms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris, again reviling the judge and American justice and scoring clemency as revolutionaries to the last, were sentenced to 11 years to life in prison for a "Symbionese Liberation Army" crime spree with Patricia Hearst.

They still face trial for kidnapping Miss Hearst. The newspaper heiress they helped convert to their cause.

Bringing on the jugglers and the dancing bears and get this clear: over 11 years Harris demanded in a last courtroom attack — Superior Court Judge Mark Bramler before sentence was passed Tuesday.

"I could not stoop so low as to ask Judge Bramler for mercy," Mrs. Harris declared in her final statement.

Mrs. Harris called the judge a "vilest man" and Harris called him "a vain, authoritarian, egotistical, vindictive, prejudiced and crooked old man."

The Harrises turned the traditional opportunity for "last words" before sentence was passed into an opening for 20 minute speeches, turning their backs on the judge to address reporters and spectators.

"We are going to prison, not because we are a threat to people but because our ideas are a threat to the way society is organized," Harris said.

The Harrises were convicted on five counts of kidnapping, auto theft and armed robbery for stealing cars and money of gunpoint as they fled across the city with Miss Hearst after the heiress peppered a sporting goods store with bullets to free Harris from a shopping arrest.

Minor wrongdoings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Results publicly announced so far in a six-month internal investigation of FBI wrongdoings have included only one bird house and two window valances built at government expense for two officials. But one of the officials, it turns out, is the bureau's director.

One career FBI employee was fired in August for using FBI materials to build a bird house at his home. FBI Director Clarence Kelley revealed Tuesday that he voluntarily told investigators of the Joint Justice Department-FBI task force that valances had been installed at FBI expense in his Washington apartment.

School busing gets varied reaction in Kentucky, Ohio

Hopes for a peaceful resumption of school busing in Louisville, Ky., vanished in clouds of tear gas Tuesday night.

An anti-busing protest erupted on the eve of the second year of a busing desegregation program. But Dayton, Ohio, officials moved a public awareness program of busing into high gear hoping to avert similar problems when schools there open Thursday and Cleveland officials prepared an appeal of a school desegregation order.

Today, some 20,000 black and white children, 2,000 more than last year, were bused to better mix their races in the Louisville-Jefferson County area's 165 schools.

Tuesday night, police fired tear gas to disperse anti-busing protesters among the 1,000 persons who marched along Preston Highway near Southern High School. Police said the gas was used only after about 200 persons set bonfires along the highway and refused to disperse after the march.

The crowd retreated to a shopping center across the highway from the school, the scene of similar violence last year.

Some demonstrators picked up cauldrons and tossed them back at the policemen.

Six persons were taken into police custody. Two were later released without charge.

There were 69 arrests between Sept. 4, 1975, beginning the fall term, and Jan. 1, 1976, in connection with anti-busing demonstrations in Louisville, mainly in an area south of the city limits.

Ohio's first court-ordered busing desegregation plan begins Thursday in the 41,000 student Dayton school system. About 13,000 students — most of them in the elementary grades — will be bused.

A citywide, school-sponsored system of visits by volunteers to the homes of students, was designed to answer the questions before school starts on a staggered basis Thursday and Friday. Today, parents were encouraged to visit their children while they attend to meet teachers and administrators.

Latest death from pneumonia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The death of a Bellevue Stratford Hotel bartender, being attributed to pneumonia and not to the mysterious "Legionnaires' Disease," but health officials say they will continue post-mortem tests.

The Bellevue Stratford hosted the state American Legion convention last July and has been considered a possible source of the mysterious ailment which killed 29 persons.

Twenty-six of the dead had attended the legion convention and two had visited the Bellevue Stratford while attending the 41st Eucharistic Congress of the Roman Catholic Church. No hotel employees have come down with the illness.

More food coloring may go

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration, which recently outlawed the nation's most widely used food dye, is considering a ban on two other food colorings — the red used to color maraschino cherries and the black used for licorice and jelly beans.

The action is contemplated as a result of a major review of scores of food colorings and dyes that have never won final safety approval from the FDA.

The two food colors the agency may decide to forbid are Red No. 4 and "Carbon Black." The red coloring is used only in maraschino cherries while the black is used for various food products including candy.

The FDA said studies on dogs "raised some safety questions" as to whether there is a link between Red No. 4 and primary bladder polyps in dogs and "atrophy of adrenals in dogs."

In the case of the black coloring the FDA said it is possible that its manufacture produces a byproduct called "extractable polynuclear aromatics," which is a known cancer cause.

The proposed ban on the red color has disturbed the cherry industry. FDA officials have been meeting with representatives of the industry as well as members of Congress' aide (they) staff, from Michigan, California and Oregon.

'Trick' cried

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — President Idi Amin of Uganda Tuesday said American and British peace efforts in southern Africa were "a trick" black African freedom fighters used to sharing power with white regimes.

Amin told the Organization of African Unity that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, State Department officials William Rogers and William Schaufele and British diplomat Ted Rogers are "out to confuse Africa and blind its leaders to the realities of the liberation struggle."

Ford compromises

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, in a compromise with Congress, is nominating both a Republican and a Democrat to the Federal Communications Commission.

Ford nominated Joseph R. Fogarty of Middletown, Conn., Tuesday for a seven-year FCC term. Fogarty, a Democrat, has been the Senate Commerce Committee's communications counsel since 1965.

Ford nominated for a two-year term Margita E. White of McLean, Va., former director of his White-House Office of Communications.

Without the compromise, political sources said, Ford had slim chances of getting Congress to approve Mrs. White for FCC membership.

Debt cut

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — House minority leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., retiring from the Army Reserve today, as a colonel, has given some thought — and his pension — to the national debt.

Rhodes estimated his pension would be about $600 to $620 a month. He plans to send the checks back to the Treasury to help reduce the national debt, he said.

Compact cars predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average "large sized car" five years from now will be no bigger than current compacts, a Chrysler Corp. executive told Tuesday.

R.D. McLaughlin, vice president for automotive sales, said Tuesday there is no sign Congress might reconsider its mandate that new cars average 20 miles a gallon in 1980 and 25.5 miles in 1985.

"The only way to meet the congressional goal, he said, barring some technological breakthrough, is to reduce the size of cars.

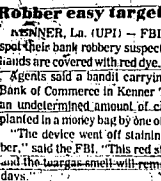

"Within five years, what we now describe as a compact car will be the average large-sized car," he said.

Rudy recalls

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rudy Vallee, singer, actor, musician, composer and publisher, is introducing a nightly program of reminiscences at a Greenwich Village cabaret — "compertiffs" — this week.

The 65-year-old performer, seen most recently on several television talk shows, opened his one-man show at the club on Tuesday night.

Robber easy target

MONTEREY, La. (UPI) — FBI agents say it should be easy to spot their bank robbery suspect. He smells like teargas and his hands are covered with red dye.

Agents said a bandit carrying a pistol entered the National Bank of Commerce in Kenner Tuesday and was escaping with an undetermined amount of cash when a tear-gas canister planted in a money bag by one of the tellers exploded.

"The device went off staining the money and the bank robber," said the FBI. "This red stain is very difficult to wash off, and the teargas smell will remain on the individual for several days."

Crews search for boy

EVERGREEN, Colo. (UPI) — Crews mounted searchlights on jeeps and hunted early today for a 9-year-old boy lost while backpacking in mountainous, heavily wooded terrain.

A spokesman for the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department said about 40 searchers in jeeps and on horseback were looking for Jimmy Leine of Evergreen.

Brando filming

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Two-time Academy Award winning actor Marlon Brando is shooting new scenes and photographers. He flew into Manila last Tuesday to star in a Vietnam war movie, "Apocalypse Now."

Brando, 52, last visited Manila in 1966 immediately went to Pagsanjan, a resort town 40 miles southeast of Manila, where final scenes of the movie were shot.

"Filming of 'Apocalypse Now' started in the Philippines early this year under director Francis Ford Coppola, who with Brando also teamed up in the movie, 'The Godfather'."

Stafford explains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., says he is not a lobbyist supporting a bill to require no-fault auto insurance was in response to a public State opposition and was not because of a $5,000 campaign contribution from a national lobbying group.

"In general, most communications I received from Vermonters this year reflected opposition to the no-fault bill," Stafford said Tuesday.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Elizabeth Ray, former Washington secretary, is a household name. Her book has sold 1 1/2 million copies. She has "some prospects" in movies.

That's a long way for a little blonde girl from North Carolina.

She wishes it had never happened.

The Elizabeth Ray of today is a product of the destruction of a political career — that of Wayne Hays, once-powerful Democratic congressman from Ohio.

The final act of the 14-term political drama of Wayne Hays may be played out this week. A

Railroad offers 1,000 free vans

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Southern Pacific Railroad is offering its commuter passengers 1,000 free vans if they will quit taking the train.

The project would cost the railroad $6 million to get out of the commuter business.

The railroad, which claims it is losing $9 million a year on the commuter run between San Francisco and San Jose, handed out kits explaining its idea to the regular 8,000 commuters this week.

"The project would buy up to 1,000 new eight passenger vans and turn them over to the commuters. Each regular SP commuter would then become one eighth owner of a van. The eight people who get a van would have to share fuel, maintenance and insurance expenses.

"Commuters using vanpools would pay less than they do now for rail fares and save even more in future years," explains SP vice president Alay D. Smith. "They would also save both time and money because vanpools can provide door to door service."

California Public Utilities Commissioner Leonard Ross called it "a very intriguing idea."

NY to begin lottery

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York's lottery, suspended last year because of sloppy management, will start again next week with a new $1 Instant Game and prizes ranging from $2 to $1,000 a week for life.

John D. Quinn, new director of the lottery, announced today that tickets will go on sale at 8,000 locations next Wednesday for the new game called "The Empire Strikes."

Quinn said the goal of the new lottery is to earn $60 million for the state's general fund by the end of next March.

Prizes in the new game start at $2 and progress to $5, $10, $50, $1,000 and $5,000. In addition, "Jackpot" tickets entitle the holders to $5,000 and a chance to compete in a drawing for a prize of $1,000 a week for life with $1 million guaranteed.

Another feature of the game will be a spot at the bottom of the ticket under which will be a letter. Players who collect letters that spell the words "New York" are entitled to $2,500 in groceries.

Washington source says he is about to resign from Congress. That, says Miss Ray, is not at all what she intended last spring when she told the world's $14,000-a-year secretary solely to serve as his mistress.

Asked Tuesday if, given another chance, she would do it again, she replied, "No, I would not." Firmly. In a voice that otherwise tended to falter.

"I didn't realize at that time this would be the outcome," she went on. "I didn't realize what I was doing."

Miss Ray was at lunch when she heard the report of Hays' impending resignation. "I was hoping he could stay in office until the end of the year," she said.

Now the thin, little voice was tremulous. He's suffered enough. He's gone through enough torture.

"His health is being jeopardized," she told UPI. "So is his wife's. So is mine."

She has not seen or talked to Wayne Hays since the disclosure. She does not intend to do so. But she does not see herself as the agent of his political demise, and she believes Hays understands that.

"I think Congressman Hays knows at this time it wasn't me trying to hurt him," she said. "It wasn't anything I could control. It was more the investigators and all."

Then, matter-of-factly: "I don't feel like I'm personally responsible."

Her life has changed dramatically. There is the book, "The Washington Fringe Benefit," now in its fourth printing. ("I didn't know it was through the first printing.")

There is the prospect of realizing a lifelong dream — becoming an actress. "There are some prospects in the acting field," she said, without elaboration.

There are the numerous television appearances and the photographs in Playboy magazine that have made her face — and other physical attributes — famous.

But one senses the mantle of fame rides heavily on Elizabeth Ray's shoulders. "Enough has been done," she said softly, eyes downcast. "I don't see what else can come of this. It's all out."

A sigh. "It's time to call a halt to all this."

She spoke vaguely of "a few business meetings" in New York, and the acting prospects and the various government investigations she wishes would simply stop now. ("For some reason they want to continue on with the investigations — I don't see why.")

Then something of a faraway look in her eyes. "I would like to go home and rest — like I know Mr. Hays would like to do."

Park plan chances poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford's proposed $1.5 billion 10-year program to expand the nation's parklands is being submitted to Congress with little chance of passage this year.

Although recreation and the quality of life are among the centennial issues in Ford's fall campaign against Jimmy Carter, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the parks proposal "is not something that was pulled out of the hat."

Congressional sources said the President's proposal has "zero" chance of being enacted before the current session ends early in October. But sources said "it breaks the ice" and gives Ford an election issue.

A spokesman said Ford decided that during the bicentennial year he would like to emphasize the future and do so by focusing on expansion of the parklands.

Ford unveiled the program during a sentimental return Sunday to Yellowstone National Park where he had served as a ranger during the summer of 1926.

Ford is expected to decide shortly on the time and place to kick off his fall campaign against Jimmy Carter. There were reports he would like to return to his native Michigan for a speaking event on Labor Day.

Carter has passed up Cadillac Square in Detroit, the usual Democratic presidential campaign launching pad, in favor of a nostalgic return to Warm Springs, Ga., where Franklin D. Roosevelt sought a cure for his debilitating polio.

White House assistant Michael R. Duval indicated there is a good chance representatives of Ford and Carter may reach an agreement Wednesday on the timing and format of their future debates.

Cadet feels training 'modified'

DEAR ABBY: I never could understand why it was considered wrong for a girl to ask a guy for a date. I'm a 21-year-old college man who would feel flattered if a girl let me know that she wanted to go out with me. I'm not a creep, and I get my share of dates, but I see nothing wrong with girls being on an equal basis with men when it comes to the dating game.

HIGHPOCKETS

DEAR HIGHPOCKETS: Where have you been? Plenty of girls ask guys out. (More girls ask guys "over" instead because there's no tab to pick up, which takes the pressure off both of them.)

Date status questioned

And many girls ARE the aggressors and don't feel the need to apologize for it. What this world needs is more up-front people who aren't ashamed to say "I like you." It doesn't matter who says it first. Girls are people, and people shouldn't play games. They should express affection honestly, naturally and without embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: For those who are shocked that a non-wedding bride wants to wear white at her wedding. What would they suggest? Tuttlelate gray?

AMUSED IN MURRAY, KY.

DEAR AMUSED—Why not? And she could carry daisies. They don't fell.

DEAR ABBY: I know I'm not perfect when it comes to grammar and pronunciation, but I have this friend who is an absolute disgrace in that department.

She still says "Woolworth" and "I must have corrected her a hundred times. Another mistake she has made for years is saying "Eximio" instead of "Eximio Pie." Abby, in a way you are a teacher, so I'm calling on you to take over my job.

SICK OF TEACHING

DEAR ABBY: Some people don't want to learn, and others are simply "ineducable." Don't sweat it!

CONFIDENTIAL TO PERSEVERING IN LOUISVILLE: Perseverance isn't always the answer. I was recently informed that a young lover in Taiwan wrote over 700 letters in two years to his lady love. The romance ended when she fell in love with the postman!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

By DR. LAWRENCE LAMB

Dear Dr. Lamb: I am a 16-year-old healthy girl. I have been 20 pounds overweight for about five years.

Three years ago I lost 20 pounds but gained it back within the year. I've read that fasting is a good way to change one's attitude about eating. I would like to try a three-day fast, but because of school my mother won't let me. She fears it will endanger my health.

For physical culture I have Yoga so I don't have to worry about rapid movements. Could you give me some information on fasting that could help me and maybe change my mother's mind?

Dear Reader: You have come to the wrong place to get help in your discussion with your mother about fasting. I am inclined to think this is a case of "Mother knows best."

I don't think a healthy person, as you state you are, will come to some bad end by fasting three days. Many people have fasted longer when emergency situations have demanded it.

But it is a poor way to try to lose weight. In three days time of eating nothing you are not likely to lose more than about one and a half pounds of fat. All the rest of the loss will be important muscle mass and lots of water. The water will come right back.

Fasting not advised

Terrance MacSwiney—the 1961 actor in "The Sandlot"—fasted 23 days before he died from it. He was a pilot and his possession survived about six weeks without food.

When you fast or when you eliminate all or almost all of the carbohydrates the kidneys wash out a lot of sodium. With the sodium washed out goes a lot of water. The dieting victim jumps on the scales and says, "Presto! I have lost a few pounds in one day." It might as well have taken a water pill and flushed out normal body water.

The water and salt loss results in weakness if continued. By the middle of the second day, if you fast that long, you will most likely feel tired and may have a headache. The loss of water will make you much more susceptible to fainting. Water loss from anything, including hot or such far out activities as space flight will do this to you also.

The body chemistry will change you and you will lose your appetite in about two days. The chemical change results from the incomplete utilization of fat. The body metabolic machinery is literally overloaded with your own fat and this causes "ketosis" or "acidosis."

I am sending you "The Health Letter" number 2-2, Low Carbohydrate Diet Fads, to give you a better understanding of this problem. I hope this will help you, from doing unhealthy things to your body. Others who read this information can read a long, slanted, self-addressed envelope with 20 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10109.

There is still another reason why a fast will not help you. Most people who lose weight with such gimmicks usually regain it. In your case you admit you regained your fat within a year. Might I suggest a sensible well-balanced diet plan that you can live with the rest of your life coupled with an increase in your physical fitness activity. It would do wonders for you to develop the kind of life style you can live with the rest of your life.

LAKE FREDERICK, N.Y. (UPI) — West Point's top trainee sees a rise in battlefield dead because of women cadets at the U.S. Military Academy.

"I feel we're getting less training and less of a soldier's training because of the women," said Christopher Donald Kilcoyne of Winthrop, N.Y. "The end result will take place on a battlefield and there will be a lot of cad soldiers because of the downgrading of the training."

Some 102 women of the original 119 who entered "beast barracks" eight weeks ago finished field training at Camp Frederick Monday with nearly 1,200 men out of the 1,366 who started.

Cadet Kilcoyne has an unusual perspective on the extent to which the once severely rugged training has been modified.

He has just completed beast barracks, the name for cadet basic training, for the second time. He claims he went through a more rigorous version in the summer of '73.

Cadet Kilcoyne dropped out of the academy last December, went to a civilian school for the spring semester, and "joined platoon and an appreciation of West Point."

So he applied for readmission and was accepted for the second time — a rare occurrence, according to academy officials.

Cadet Patrick St. Pierre, of Hudson, N.H., also objected.

"Why not have a separate academy for girls?" Some of us will die because this training has been changed. We have people here who will crack up in battle.

Some of the girls Monday were observed weeping as they emerged from a grueling obstacle course that simulated battle conditions. Cadets firing machine guns, doing off-yellow and grey smokes, screaming, rushing and challenges from enemy troops in the forest.

One male was observed in the thick of it throwing up.

The major complaint about girls: They can't keep up with the male cadets physically and are nearly exhausted when they fall behind in an exercise. By comparison, the male cadets said they get a "kick in the seat" when they fall behind.

But not all agreed. "Even though some feel women shouldn't be here, we're all classmates, and we've got to help them," said Timothy Rosemore, a new cadet from Pensacola, Fla.

I. A. Col. Ben Crosby, deputy commander for cadet basic training, told reporters the academy is in transition, that the training is designed to be equally stressful to both sexes in the new class.

Crosby said, however, the program is under constant review.

Senior John Cicerelle, cadet regimental executive officer, said the women already have had a positive effect.

"We've cleaned up our act," he said. "No more running in the halls like a bunch of wacked men. No sewer hall robes. And our language has been hauled in."

Crackdown urged on sample offer ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thousands of American consumers are being victimized by advertising campaigns for laxative samples, products which either don't deliver the goods or provide such a small sample that it's worthless, according to a presidential consumer adviser Virginia Krauer.

Citing as an example a cosmetics sample scheme which apparently bilked numerous customers, Mrs. Krauer asked the Federal Trade Commission to "devise some sort of regulations to crack down on the situation."

The cosmetics ad offered a "skin care collection" and free of charge, except for a $1 postage and handling fee. The ad, which appeared in several national magazines, depicted full-size bottles of the cosmetics. What the consumers got for their $1, Mrs. Krauer said, was a set of tiny vials containing no more than one-thirtieth of an ounce of the products, if they got anything at all.

The company that made the cosmetics, but which did not run the ads, Thorne Bell Cosmetics, was so disturbed by the development that it ran ads of its own pointing out that someone else was misrepresenting its product, disclaiming responsibility for the scheme. It urged disgruntled consumers to write Mrs. Krauer.

In a letter to the FTC, Mrs. Krauer said she received nearly 400 responses, over 90 percent of which favored full disclosure in ads of exactly what was being offered.

"All of us are concerned about the American public's loss of faith in its institutions," she said. "Freading through my mail I have concluded that consumers who responded to the counter-ad, many of whom were teen-age girls, have lost far more than money, although the loss was significant."

"They may have a better opinion of business and the media and are, perhaps, also wondering why government allows such abuses to continue."

She said consultations her office had with the U.S. Postal Service and the advertising industry all indicated the FTC was the agency to attack the problem. But she said previous inquiries indicated that the FTC staff didn't view the situation as an across-the-board problem and appeared satisfied to let the Postal Service handle it.

She said that wouldn't be adequate. She urged FTC Chairman Calvin Collier to "take whatever action is necessary to prevent the appearance of similar advertisements in the future."

"I believe that sample offer ads should be judged against a standard of disclosure that is apparently unavailable to the publishing community at this time," she said.

"Further, I believe there is a need to develop disclosure guidelines and incorporate them into public policy. I believe that consumers' producers' publishers' and the advertising community have a common interest in working towards that end."

Clerks still push sex-stereotyped toys

NEW YORK — Toy sellers still behave as though they think girls are made of sugar and spice and boys are made of snakes and snails, according to one expert.

Despite efforts of feminists to revolutionize the toy industry, employees in toy stores continue to make sex distinctions consistent with sex stereotypes, according to a paper prepared for the 73rd American Sociological Association convention that began here Monday.

Co-authors Nancy G. Kutner and Richard Levinson conducted an experiment involving 40 salespersons in 31 commercial establishments in Atlanta, Ga. Students of Kutner and Levinson, acting as customers, were instructed to ask for help in purchasing birthday presents for their twin nieces and nephews, age 5 to 7, given traditional suggestions, such as a doll for the girl and a truck for the boy. The students were told to ask for toys "a little different" or "unusual."

The experiment found that more than half (52.3 percent) of the salespersons recommended sex-stereotyped toys.

Of the sellers who suggested "neutral" toys, such puzzles, paint sets or building blocks, many stipulated who the toy would be particularly appropriate for one sex or the other. For example, a saleswoman in an exclusive department store suggested a "Crayon Kaleidoscope" for the nephew because "all boys like money" and should know how to calculate.

The students found a larger variety of toys marketed for males than females. Salespersons often supported this observation. One remarked: "They (toy manufacturers) seem to like little boys more than little girls because there just aren't too many different types of toys for little girls."

The students also noted that most stores had segregated toy areas clearly labeled "girls" and "boys" and that "sex-appropriate" pictures appeared on many boxes.

Sociologists Kutner and Levinson cited the following student's experience as a good example of the typical customer-salesperson exchange: "The salesman dealt with my niece's gift first. Automatically he suggested a doll of some kind. I questioned him further by stating that my niece was rather active and had quite a number of dolls already, so could he suggest something a little more different?"

He seemed slightly set back by his and, after a long pause, rather annoyingly suggested toys such as china sets, nurse kits and the like.

"It's not that this is about as far as I was able to get with my niece's gift so I proceeded to ask for suggestions for my nephew's toy. He directed me over to six shelves full of little boys' toys. I asked him that my niece and nephew were very close and that they enjoyed playing together; therefore, did we have anything that would suit both children?" His brilliant solution was that I should get my niece a doll family and my nephew a building set so that my niece could play dolls while my nephew built the house in which the dolls would live."

Medical mystery 'solved'

MIAMI (UPI)—A University of Miami scientist believes he can answer the medical mystery of why high cholesterol levels lead to heart attack in some patients and it may lead to drugs lowering the risks.

After four years of research, Dr. S. H. Heston, professor of descriptive pathology and biochemistry, has developed what he calls "serum cholesterol-binding reserve" (SCBR).

The test, first reported recently in the British Medical Journal, the latest and updated before the International Symposium on Atherosclerosis which convened Sunday in Tokyo, measures the capacity of a person's bloodstream to carry cholesterol.

Cholesterol can form fatty deposits on the walls of arteries, partially blocking the flow of blood. Deposits formed in the coronary arteries can result in heart attacks.

A high measure in Heston's SCBR shows the bloodstream has a high capacity for carrying cholesterol, thus the chance of fatty deposit formation and the risk of heart attack is low.

A low score indicates cholesterol is probably leaving the bloodstream to form fatty plaques.

Dr. Harvey Blank, chairman of the university's dermatology department, said Heston and his assistants will now work on a chemical agent that will "trigger" the body's system into dissolving cholesterol.

That would mean a chemical defense against hardening of the arteries and possible heart attack.

Nauman, Clampitt marry

TWIN FALLS — The First Baptist Church, Twin Falls, was the setting of the Aug. 11 wedding of Teresa Nauman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Nauman Jr., Kimberly, and Alan Clampitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Clampitt, Olympia, Wash.

Elder Ardie Saltee, pastor of the Hansen Baptist Church, officiated at the double ring, candlelight service before an altar decorated with baskets of peach-colored gladioli and lighted mint green candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a princess-styled gown of ivory sheer organza and chantilly lace. The bridesmaid wore a lace sateen with high ruffled collar, and long lace sleeves embroidered with seed pearls. Clusters of pearl-embroidered lace flowers were appliqued on the organza skirt and edged with a wide lace ruffle.

Her fingertip veil of ice-creamed illusion was held by a cap of lace and pearls matching her gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of peach-colored roses and stephanotis.

Sue Nauman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridal bridesmaids were Janelle Johnson, Kimberly, and Linda Jackson, Caldwell, sorority sister of the bride.

Candlelighters were Jan Deobald, Kendrick, and Melanie Mordherst, Boise, both sorority sisters of the bride.

Gary Clampitt, Castelford, was best man for his brother. Ushers were Mark Bulchior and Ron Pullmer, both from Kimberly.

Carol Wiley, Boise, presided at the guest book. Giftbearers were Andy Nauman, brother of the bride, and Stephanie Kalin, her niece.

At the reception held in the church fellowship hall the refreshment table was covered with lace and centered with the four-tiered wedding cake. The cake was encircled at the base with fresh flowers and topped with silver wedding bells. Lighted condits in silver candleabra entwined with flowers and greenery completed the table arrangement.

Guests were seated at quartet tables centered with ivory glasses, holding 100

and ruffed with dummy's eight of hearts.

When both opponents followed everything was wine and roses. He cashed dummy's king of trumps, came to his hand with the ace of clubs, played his ace and queen of trumps, conceded a trump trick to West who had been unkind enough to hold four trumps and claimed the balance.

Suppose diamonds had broken badly. South would not have made his contract, but as stated earlier it was not a really good slam.

It isn't hard to get to a slam with today's hand. South has a sound opening bid and North is looking at it for good high-card points.

North wanted to bid six notrump. He had a notrump-type hand and everyone wants to be declarer, but finally North settled for six hearts.

It was a wise decision indeed. Six notrump is doomed to failure. In fact, six notrump might well go down two tricks.

South wasn't too happy with his stop-heart contract. He studied the hand for some time, and then played dummy's king of clubs. He wanted to retain the ace of clubs as an entry to his own hand. Then South went after diamonds. He cashed dummy's ace and his king, led a third diamond

Amnesia victim in limbo

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Despite news stories that have brought in hundreds of phone calls and scores of new leads from around the nation, a woman who is a victim of amnesia still doesn't know who she is. And she still lives in what she calls her "permanent state of limbo." The woman was found at a bus depot in Milwaukee May 25. She told authorities she didn't know who she was or how she got to Milwaukee. Edward Andrzejewski, a Milwaukee County caseworker, has since led the effort to find out who the woman is. Recent checks with the FBI and other official agencies had failed to turn up any leads to her identity and officials are at a dead end. "So far we have received over 220 calls from all over the country and even one from Vancouver," Ebert said. "Our switchboards have been pretty well tied up since the weekend." The woman says she believes her maiden name is Kay Johnson and that she thinks she came here from Anchorage or Fairbanks, Alaska, where she has a husband in the service and four children.

Cumberland Mountain town for sale

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — For sale: small town with road deadends in a large hollow which is the town. Walner and his wife decided they had to drive too much to get to Union Hill, which is 120 miles northwest of Knoxville. So they want to sell it. They have restored the cabins and remodeled the museum built in 1961 by a previous owner who wanted to make the town a tourist attraction. The Wahlers have operated the country store and grist mill themselves, mostly on weekends in the summer. The mill is powered by a small stream that starts as a spring of pure water coming out of the side of a mountain. Walner said he had been able to trace the town's beginnings back to 1820 when a couple of pioneers named Billwey and Mathews set up the grist mill.

Vickie Rudolph, Burnet marry in garden ceremony

TWIN FALLS—A garden wedding at the home of the bride's parents, Twin Falls, was the setting for the Aug. 14 ceremony uniting Vickie Sue Rudolph and David, Michael Burnet.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rudolph and Dr. and Mrs. David Burnet, Idaho Falls, are the parents of the bridegroom. Father Jack Viggers, Idaho Falls, performed the double-ring ceremony on a white velvet podium with a background of large white columns and white lace screens. Large baskets of typical white daisies were centered between the columns.

"Candelabra" with green candles and white bows were placed on each side of the podium to complete the setting.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length white crystalline gown fashioned with a bouffant skirt. The mandarin collar, yoke and wide cuffs were trimmed with alternating daisy chains and miniature flowered lace. A single row of matching daisy lace encircled the empire waistline.

Several rows of vintage lace adorned the hemline. Her single layered fingertip veil of white crystalline, edged with vintage daisy lace, was held by a small tiara, covered with matching lace and sprinkled with clusters of daisy lace. The veil was designed by Mrs. Larry Sackett, Twin Falls.

The bride carried a bouquet of apricot carnations and baby's breath centered with a large white orchid and tied with white satin streamers. She wore a pearl and diamond necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, to complete her outfit. The orchid was clipped from her bridal bouquet for her going-away corsage.

Shannon Rudolph, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Shelia Burnet, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Debbie Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rice, was flower girl. Her gown was designed by Patsy Holman, Ring bearer, was Christopher-Even, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Even, Twin Falls, nephew of the bride. The rings were carried on a white satin lace trimmed pillow.

Candlelighters were Chip Coates, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Coates, Omaha, Neb., cousin of the bride; and Robbie Groves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Cole, Burley, friends of the bride.

Ushers were Pete Even, brother-in-law of the bride, and Darrell Brown, Idaho Falls, friend of the bridegroom. John Nedrow, Ashton, college friend of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsman was Eric Allison, Roslyn, N.Y., brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Mrs. Francis Rider, played traditional wedding music preceding the ceremony. Solist was Burt Huihui, accompanied by Mrs. Rider and her daughter, Roxie, on the flute.

A buffet style reception honoring the newlyweds was held immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with an octagon shaped three-tiered wedding cake decorated with miniature apricot flowers and cross-stitching and topped with apricot bells attached to a base of white hearts and miniature flowers. The center layer was inscribed alternately with the names of the bride and bridegroom.

Silver candle holders with mint green capsules and silver goblets, heirlooms of the bridegroom's family, were placed at each end of the table. Crystal nut and mint dishes completed the bride's table.

Round, quartet tables with mint green satir cloth and overlays of white organdy were placed in the reception area. Each table was centered with a single mint green candle, encircled with multi-colored flower rings.

Cake was cut and served by Mrs. Donna Coates, Omaha, Neb., aunt of the bride. Slush punch was served from a crystal punch bowl by Mrs. James Smith, Pocatello, friend of the bridegroom. Fresh fruit and melon balls were served by Mrs. Harlan Harmon, Emmett, friend of the bride and bridegroom.

The gift table was covered with white lace with floor-length ruffled flounce. A white lace gift cart was placed at the entrance of the garden.

Guests, directed by Bud Batten, entered the garden through a walkway of aisle stanchions lighted by hurricane lanterns. Stanchions were joined by garlands of flowers tied with green satin bows.

A mistletoe shower given by Mrs. Ron Robinson was held in honor of the bride at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Pete Even. A rehearsal dinner hosted by the bridegroom's parents was held at Canyon Springs.

'Leading man look' of 1940s invades male haircut world

By United Press International
Nostalgia has invaded the world of male hairstyles. Just as the Betty Grable "pooft cut" is nesting on the heads of more and more trendy-type females, the co-starring roles on the male side are takeoffs from the leading man look of the '40s.

Like Cary Grant, whose hair seemed to be effortlessly in place. No wind was capable of tossing those magnificent strands. The hair positively glowed with perfection while Cary was changing a tire. Cary Grant's hair—a star's hair.

"The classic male haircut is back," says Chicago hair expert Paul Glick.

"The '50s version of the classic haircut is not necessarily one of those short cuts that bring financially secure smiles to the faces of old-fashioned barbers every couple weeks. During the first 50 years of the century, haircuts tended to be tall and long. It was only during the '60s that the 'white-wall-tire' look became a must. It was also a must to maintain this look with frequent trims. Barbers grew rich.

The classic cut can change for evening. It has very full sides. It can be a little shorter on top.

"It is very important that the haircut taper very neatly at the neckline," Glick says. "This is worn slightly slicked down during the day for the young businessman-executive feeling and looking perfect with a classic blazer and tie."

The classic cut can change for evening. It has very full sides. It can be a little shorter on top.

He recommends oversized rimless glasses for evening, with rose tinting at the bottoms of the lens. This creates a hint of tinting on the cheek area.

"It is a great way to beef up coloring during the winter," Glick says.

During the day, a young man who wants to look more businesslike might wear large tortoise-shell frames with clear glass, for a studious look

Six-foot boa constrictor tests firemen's patience

FLINT, Mich. (UPI)—The traditional willingness of firemen to aid pets in distress was severely tested when Ron Root drove up to Fire Station No. 1.

For almost 24 hours, a six-foot boa constrictor owned by a friend, Pat Sweet, had refused to unwind from under the dashboard of Root's Buick.

Root begged Monday for help. There followed a herculean, three-hour struggle between a five-year-old snake called Toby and a half dozen firemen, several policemen, Root, Sweet, and a family.

A university zoologist and scores of amused spectators at the downtown station.

Toby's predicament started Sunday when Sweet left him on the dashboard of the car during a baseball game. Apparently not liking the perch, Toby slithered onto the floor and cleverly wrapped himself around the paraphernalia under the seat. From then on he wouldn't budge.

Next morning Sweet and Root decided it was a job for the law.

"I went to work," Sweet said, "because I figured they'd have to cut him out. I didn't want to see him killed."

The firemen waded into the task with all the tools of modern technology, including Mace and carbon dioxide from a fire extinguisher.

"We called a zoologist," fireman Eugene Cooper said, "and he said to make the snake uncomfortable. We tried light, we tried dark—we tried heat and cold. We had two guys in the front seat pulling on him. And all this in front of quite a crowd. It was kind of funny."

Root reached in to grab Toby's head. The yellow, black and beige snake bit him on the finger. When Root went to a hospital for a tetanus shot, emergency room personnel refused to believe the cause of the injury.

Toby finally responded in familiar voices.

"My mother-in-law got him most of the way out," Sweet said. "I got the remaining couple of feet out by rubbing him and kind of talking to him."

"He was pretty stunned with all the mace and CO₂, and he pulled a couple of Toby's teeth out when he jerked his hand out of his mouth. A doctor put Toby in an incubator, and he should be all right."

Sweet, however, is now concerned for his buddy, Root, who missed an entire day of work because of the crisis.

"Ron's got one hell of an ability for missing work," Sweet said. "They won't believe it."

Camas County rancher Lee Tucker stands beside one of his "No Hunting" signs

'No Hunting' signs cover Camas

By BART QUESNELL
 Times-News writer
FAIRFIELD — "No hunting" signs cover the Camas Prairie this morning on the first day of Idaho dove hunting season.

Lee Tucker, a Camas County rancher who in past years opened his land to dove hunters, said today over 3,000 no hunting signs have been posted in Camas County and in neighboring Elmore and Blaine counties.

Tucker said the reason for the closure of many thousands acres of private land in central Idaho stemmed from a declining sage grouse population on the prairie. Tucker admits he and other ranchers in Camas County are responsible for the decline as the increasing number of hunters seen each year in the heart of sage grouse country.

Sage grouse season runs from Sept. 18 to Sept. 26. The dove season begins today and runs through Sept. 10. But as far as many Camas County ranchers are concerned, no birds will be taken before hunting season.

Tucker said many hunters who come to shoot doves end up poaching young sage grouse as well. Tucker, along with 1,200 other people signing a petition, wanted the Fish and Game Commission to close Camas County to sage grouse hunting for two years to allow a brood stock to reestablish itself.

Jamboree bond mandatory

By KEN HODGE
 Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A Fifth District Judge Tuesday upheld a Twin Falls County ordinance restricting large gatherings and made it mandatory for organizers of a country music jamboree to pay a $15,000 performance bond.

Judge Theron W. Ward said some personal rights of the organizers are being restricted by the ordinance but insisted the Twin Falls County Commissioners had a right to pass and enforce the ordinance which requires a $15,000 clean-up bond be posted before any large gathering other than fairs, church groups or community concerns.

Tree of Life, a non-profit organization, sponsoring a large jamboree at Nat-Soo Pali, south of Twin Falls Sept. 5, now will post the bonds required, according to Rick Frantz, promoter.

"We are going to come up with the bond, since that was the judge's ruling," Frantz said after his group's attempt to show it had already complied with the requirements of the ordinance failed in court.

The group was challenging the ordinance on the basis of constitutional grounds, according to Jeff Sloker, attorney for Tree of Life.

Valued potato specialist transfer still scheduled

By KEN HODGE
 Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Dr. Richard Olms, valued for many years by the Magic Valley potato industry as a potato specialist, is still scheduled to transfer to Moscow to assume duties not directly related to potato growing in a non-university position by University of Idaho administrators.

The administrators, who spoke to a meeting of the Idaho Potato Commission in July to explain the move, promised to find another man just as well qualified to fill the position after Olms transfers.

Olms said he has been a potato specialist for 19 years. "I have no chance of appeal," Olms said. "If you are getting more money and being moved to the center of things on campus, and not being paid financially by the move, you are not being hurt by it."

A SMASHED car about to be towed away by a wrecker was all that was left this morning at the scene of an accident involving two cars and a pickup. The smashed car was being driven by Elinor Wardell, 64, Sacramento, Calif. After the accident, she was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where she was treated for minor cuts and released. The driver of the other car in the accident, Debra J. Frazier, 23, Piler, was in the emergency room at the hospital this morning being treated for facial bruises, a hospital spokesman said.

Stolen car burned

BURLEY — A stolen car was destroyed by fire Tuesday southwest of Burley. A Cassia County deputy sheriff said the car had a strong smell of gas on the floor boards and apparently had been destroyed to eliminate any evidence that might lead to the thieves.

The fire was discovered about 11 a.m. Tuesday by employees of Gordon Paving Co. at the intersection of 300 West and 200 1/2 South roads. The man tried to put out the fire with the water they had available, then notified authorities.

The deputy said a records check showed the car was reported stolen on August 11 in Burley. Bill Hutchingson, Heyburn, was the owner of the 1971 Dodge Polara two-door.

The deputy said the car had been repainted a light turquoise with a paint brush. He said the license plates had been removed before the car had been set on fire.

The sheriff's department is continuing to investigate.

School poll set Thursday

TWIN FALLS — A poll to be administered tomorrow to 300 Twin Falls households will attempt to determine what the public wants in the way of a new junior high, as well as its satisfaction or dissatisfaction with the school board.

The poll will be conducted in 30 school district subdivisions mapped out for coverage by pollsters. The pollsters will be allowed to pick their own time for administration as long as they conduct the poll sometime tomorrow.

Dr. Daniel Jones, a political scientist at Utah State University, helped King design the poll. The polling will be conducted randomly door-to-door in each of the delineated subdivisions.

King said the results of the poll will probably be published soon after the Labor Day weekend. King and Slavin will not reveal any of the exact questions on the poll so as not to influence results through prior publicity.

Included in the questions, however, will be several asking the respondents to assess the school system and the representation given by the school board. Respondents will also be asked if they favor an auditorium at the proposed new junior high.

Bus route cut for some kids

By GEORGE WILEY
 Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — O'Leary Junior High School students who live in downtown Twin Falls no longer have a bus to take to the high school where they attend classes in the afternoon.

The students had been bused at noon, but noon traffic and a hectic noon busing schedule apparently necessitated a change in bus routes and the school district of fire decided not to pick up the downtown O'Leary students at noon.

Students living in the vicinity of Lincoln and Bickel grade schools were told they would no longer be bused to the high school. Hearing held on meat order

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Government attorneys today urged a federal judge to reject consumer criticism against a temporary Agriculture Department rule that allows processors to blend "mechanically deboned" meat, including ground-up bone, into hot dogs and other foods.

Justice Department attorney Vincent B. Terlep Jr. added, however, that even if the regulation is struck down, meat processors could legally continue marketing the meats including ground bone. Terlep said Agriculture Secretary Earl Butte had earlier used discretionary power to decide that the mechanically deboned meat was not illegally adulterated. If the temporary regulation setting specific limits on how the product is used in processed foods should be knocked out, Terlep contended, production could continue under the previous, looser Agriculture Department approval while officials continue their current consideration of a permanent regulation. Consumer spokesmen termed Terlep's argument "preposterous" and asserted that production of the deboned meat without protection of the regulation would amount to illegal adulteration.

U.S. District Judge William Bryant, after hearing arguments from both sides, said he would rule Wednesday on whether to issue a temporary restraining order against the rule. The complaining coalition included six consumer organizations, Maryland state attorney general Francis Burch and Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass. They asserted the temporary regulation was illegal because it was issued without advance public review.

Agriculture Department officials, who are currently receiving public comment on a proposed permanent version of the regulation, said earlier, the temporary rule was issued under conditions which removed the need for prior public review. The bone used under the rule comes from mechanically deboned meat, produced by crushing bones to recover meat scraps lost in hand deboning and then sieving the product to produce meat which contains up to 4 per cent ground bone.

Agriculture Department officials said the process annually salvages up to 1 billion pounds of healthful protein now going to waste. But critics said much of the protein was low quality and claimed there were unanswered questions. Officials said suspending the temporary rule would result in the loss for human consumption of over 2.6 million pounds of (mechanically deboned meat) currently in storage and the loss of over 1.6 million pounds of protein produced each week.

"This could result in the layoff of about 330 workers and a monetary loss of packers and workers of over $100,000 per day," officials claimed. In a related development, a Ralph Nader research group recently attacked the proposed permanent regulation which, like the temporary rule, also authorizes use of protein from fat scraps in many meat products as a plant to turn "garbage" into profits for the meat industry.

Price cut asked on beef, pork

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The Agriculture Department's chief economist Monday called on retailers to cut retail beef and pork prices by narrowing the current near-record spread between farmers' livestock prices and the prices consumers pay.

"Beef and pork prices at the supermarket are down from last year, but not nearly as much as cattle and hog prices on the farm," Don Paarlberg said in a statement, adding "both farmers and consumers would be better off" if retail prices are pushed down faster. A spokesman for supermarket groups called the farm-to-retail spread estimates "phony," and flatly denied supermarket profiteering during declines in livestock prices.

Agriculture officials noted a preliminary August estimate put the middleman's share of the consumer beef dollar at 47 cents, up from 45 cents in July, and pork at 47 cents, equalling the all-time high reached last March.

"Price spreads between farm and consumer have increased 16 per cent, for beef and 41 per cent for pork since July 1975, while cattlemen are operating at a loss," added Paarlberg, the USDA director of agricultural economics.

Clarence G. Adams, president of the National Association of Food Chains, said, "There's no question that our margins have widened. Part of it is that the cost of doing business is up dramatically because of higher labor costs. But if the presumption is that we are taking more money home, my question is, where the hell is it?"

Root, Astorquia put in 'hall of fame'

TWIN FALLS — Veteran John Root and Jim Astorquia were inducted into the Twin Falls slopfield hall of fame when the association indulged itself with an awards ceremony Sunday.

Root, who has played every year since slopfield originated in Twin Falls, said it definitely does not mean the end of his career. "I'll be playing for some team in some league," the 42-year-old promised.

Astorquia was cited for his playing and managing of team.

The group also selected most valuable players from the three leagues. These include Jim Lindberg, A.C. Houston, C league; Dewey Williams, Wholesale Carpet, B league, and Tony Saras, Union Pacific/Ford Transfer A league.

Top hitters, by league, include C league, Lynn Johnson, Sewer and Water Specialty, and Ken Allison, Regal Homes-Men's Room; B league, Steve Gentry, Wholesale Carpet, and Tony Mannen, Wholesale Carpet, and A league, Saras and Mike McIntyre, First Federal/Windbreak.

Leading home-run hitters by league were C league, Tim Martens, Twin Falls Bank and Trust-Lutheran Church, and Leon Lofgren, George Kay's Sam's Grocery; B league, Paul DeWitt, Wholesale Carpet, and Larry Ward, Idaho Bank and Trust, and A league, Rich Toney, Beyer Paving-Miller Construction, and Tony Saras, UP-Ford.

Sportsmanship plaques went to Olympia Beer, C league; Cain's Furniture, B league, and Maxie's Pizza-Will O'Dell, A league.

Burton, Wignall cop Gooding golf title

GOODING — Frank Burton of Gooding and Gary Wignall of Twin Falls combined to win the first annual Gooding club-in-vitational bestball tournament over the weekend.

The championship was contested a 130 net in the two-day affair.

Second went to Jim Hoffeld of Gooding, and Jim Tate, Twin Falls, at 123½ while a three-way jam developed at 124 for third. Among those tying were Don Simis, Gooding, and Bob Musser, Twin Falls; John LeMoine, Hagerman, and Paul Borchard, Wendell, and Fred Maliz, Wendell, and Gene Huggins, Twin Falls.

Alone in sixth spot were Frank Tenker, Bliss, and Ray Young, Bliss, at 126.

Most of the players enjoyed a Saturday morning brunch and played bridge, while their husbands were on the lines. A dinner dance was the social highlight.

Event chairman Fred Maliz said from all indications the new format of a club member and a guest was well received and anticipated it would be continued next year.

Raft River seeks game for Sept. 11

MALTA — The Raft River Trojans are seeking a football game for Sept. 11, reports new Coach Keith Wilson.

"Everything's set up for homecoming — except for a game," Wilson said, adding a mixup on a tentative agreement with an out-of-district school had resulted in the void.

"If worse comes to worst we can always change homecoming, but that would still leave us a game short," Wilson said. "He asked any school or coach interested in playing on that date to contact him immediately."

Gooding schedules Lyons senior golf

GOODING — The 13th annual Bob Lyons senior golf tournament is slated for Sept. 11 and 12 at Gooding Country Club.

The event is open to male golfers who have attained their 50th birthday and to women, competitors in a separate division, who are 45 or over.

The tournament was originally developed by Bob Lyons and has grown considerably in the past 13 years.

Entries already have been received from all parts of Southern Idaho with some Nevadans also indicating they will be there.

The tournament consists of 18 holes of competition each day, with the social highlight being the annual Saturday night dinner at the new clubhouse.

Seniors interested in participating should contact Ieland Pleimanton at the Gooding Country Club 537-7777. Prizes will be awarded in net and gross divisions.

APPECIATION AWARD is presented to Rudy Williamson, left, member of the Magic Valley Country Music Association, by Slowpitch Softball Association Secretary Tom Coonts. The western music group provided a benefit program for the softballers which defrayed most of the expense in adding a third diamond at Harmon Park.

A first-time award also was presented to Jim Sinclair, First Federal Savings and Loan, as an "outstanding sponsor." The revolving trophy shows the appreciation of the Twin Falls Softball Association for the continuing support by sponsors.

Rudy Williams, representing the Magic Valley Country Music Association, received an award of appreciation for his group's efforts on behalf of softball. The association provided the talent through which funds were generated to build a third diamond and field this year.

Fans also were remembered on the appreciation day. Fred Resch Sr. was recognized as a "dedicated and faithful fan."

Cothorn wins state horse shoe crown

Buhl — Local horseshoe pitcher, John Cothorn, Castleford, captured the state crown this weekend at the Buhl courts.

Cothorn averaged one ringer for every two shoes pitched to become the first champion from the southern Idaho area.

Previous champs have come from the Nampa-Boise area or from north Idaho.

One of the largest tournaments in recent years participated in this annual event sponsored on behalf of the Idaho Horseshoe Pitchers Assn. Men and women from Lewiston, Boise, Nampa, Buhl, Castleford, Gooding, Twin Falls, Eden, Rupert, Idaho Falls and St. Anthony gathered for the two day state tournament.

A special recognition plaque was presented to E.J. Wiley, Nampa, at the state competition for many years.

He won the first tournament held in Idaho in 1952 and continued as champion through 1964. He was not able to recapture the crown after suffering a serious injury to his pitching hand but continued to play horseshoes and until recently maintained a high enough ringer percentage to place him in the Class A division of the tournaments he entered.

The 1977 tournament will be conducted at the Lewiston courts on Saturday and Sunday of Labor Day weekend.

Marvin Grayson and Walter Hastings will serve as vice-president and president respectively. Walter McGarvey, also of Lewiston will continue to serve as permanent state secretary.

Jerry Short, Gooding, won the women's state championship. Teddy Frey, Eden, was runner-up in the women's competition.

In the A class Dean Curry, Lewiston, and Les Reighard, Boise, finished second and third below Cothorn. Winners of the B class which was held Sunday along with the A class and the women's tournament were Bert Bruins, Gooding, first; Con Moser, Twin Falls, second; Floyd Frey, Eden, third.

Nine pitchers were entered in both the C and the D classes Saturday. Top finishers in the C were Bob Mitchell, Idaho Falls; Floyd Fletcher, Boise, second; R.E. Click, Boise, third; Dale Weber, Idaho Falls, topped the D class, followed by Walter McGarvey, Lewiston and Marvin Bartosovsky, Buhl.

Field of over 200 ready for Magic Valley amateur

TWIN FALLS — A field that should total more than 200 by Saturday will take off after defending champion Ken Cromwell, Ogden, in the annual Fred Stone Magic Valley amateur golf tournament.

Cromwell, who blistered Twin Falls many last year despite foul weather on the last day, took that title by seven shots — eight over his closest competitor in the championship flight last year. The "fitter" was first-flight champion Terry Bliton, Ogden, who was one under for the three days and lay back again this year.

By Tuesday night just over 180 had entered the three-day event which signals an end to the Magic Valley amateur golf schedule. All that remains — of a major attraction — will be the Cactus Pete's Open which again will be split between Jackpot and Twin Falls.

The field will have a good representation of past champions. Burley's Glenn Blakely, who has hammered his handicap down to two, and Twin Falls' Kevin Packard, a one, apparently have the lowest handicaps. Also back is Bob Bradford, who last week moved from Ogden to Jackpot. He won it two years ago. Brad Stone, second a year ago, is back with a two and former Twin Falls grad, Dr. Chic Cutler, revisits his old home course with a three.

Gary Duncan, who has the lion's share of the titles for the area this year in winning both the Ida-Gem and Buley amateurs, and Jim Purves provide good contenders for a home-course champion.

The tournament will follow the format it has since 1946. Each night will play 18 holes per day with the field divided into morning and afternoon squads and being sent off from No. 1 and No. 10 tees.

The low ten gross scorers (and ties) of Saturday will meet in the annual 10-man elimination derby about 6 p.m. Sunday.

Filer, Minico win in volleyball meet

FILER — Filer and Minico remained the only undefeated teams Tuesday following the opening sessions of the FJER invitational girls volleyball tournament.

The two are scheduled to meet in the championship semi-finals at 8 p.m. Wednesday, capping a five-game session. The champion will be crowned Tuesday night at the end of the final three-game schedule.

Six games were played Tuesday. In the first round, Buhl defeated Burley 15-12, 15-13; Filer dropped Gooding 15-8, 15-12; Jerome defeated Valley 15-9, 15-11; Minico tipped Kimberly 15-4, 5-3, 15-11; Filer whipped Buhl 15-2, 15-8, and Minico downed Jerome 15-12, 15-11.

Action resumes at 4 p.m. Wednesday with Burley playing. Following at hour intervals will be Valley vs. Kimberly; Jerome vs. winner Burley-Gooding game; Buhl vs. winner Valley-Kimberly game, and 8 p.m. Filer vs. Minico.

The final session will have action at 5, 6, 7:30 and 8:30 (if necessary) p.m. Thursday.

Pirates pin hopes on veteran backs

HAGERMAN — A veteran backfield heads the lists of pluses for the Tipperary Pirates but the lack of numbers and only one player over 165 pounds tends to temper things for Coach Ron Knowles.

Depth, however, bothers the coach most as the turnout is rather light. Except for the backfield, Coach Knowles says the brightest spot is two are fairly quick.

"The Pirates have five men who will be shooting for their third varsity letters."

Probably the best known is quarterback Jeff Brown, 5-10 and 155 pounds. Joining him in the backfield are Guy Peterson, 5-10 and 150 pounds and Dave Tupper, 5-11 and 155 pounds. Rod Baker, 5-8 and 135, will fly off his offense between end and the backfield while Tom White, 5-9, 150, plays at center.

Veterans are available at both ends in the backfield. Veterans are available at both ends in the backfield. Veterans are available at both ends in the backfield. Veterans are available at both ends in the backfield.

5-10, and 145, and Rick Barnett, 5-11 and 160, both are juniors with one letter each. Todd Choules, 5-11 and 160, is the only guard veteran while Doug Bennett, 6-0, and 180 ranks as the team's biggest man and he's picked up two letters at tackle.

Junior Wade Carlisle, 5-10 and 150, is a good backfield prospect while a couple of sophomores, Mark Owsley and Irvin Hall will get considerable varsity experience. Owsley is 5-11 and 160 while Hall is 5-10 and 150.

The Hagerman schedule includes Sept. 3, Wendell at Hagerman; Sept. 10, Rimrock at Hagerman; Sept. 17, Hagerman at Burlington; Sept. 24, Hagerman at Rafi; Rafi; Oct. 1, Hagerman at Valley; Oct. 8, Oakley and Hagerman; Oct. 15, Castleford at Hagerman; Oct. 22, Hagerman at Declo, and Sept. 29, Hansen at Hagerman.

Champions crowned in tennis tourney

TWIN FALLS — Park Johnston, Marco Valdivinos and Mary Hoag, took the singles title in the Olympia-Bear-Muscular Dystrophy tennis tournament.

Johnston defeated Roger Moody 6-4, 6-0 in the men's A singles final while Valdivinos defeated Merlin Whitaker 6-4, 7-6 in the B championship.

Carolyn Matuska was slated to play Jan Mitteldeier for the women's A final as that match was delayed due to rain Sunday. Hoag won the B title when Denis Clayton had to forfeit.

Leon Smith and Jan Mitteldeier combined to win the mixed doubles by defeating Mr. and Mrs. Art Walker 6-0, 6-2. The "B" doubles went to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hoag who dropped Gary Fuenderberg and Carolyn Kemper 6-0, 7-5.

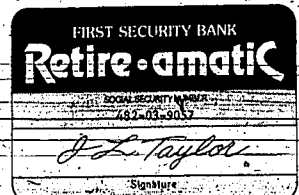

Men's doubles crown went to Park Johnston and Roger Moody on 6-2, 6-4 over Jeff Martin and Bob Hoyden. The women's "B" doubles title went to Donna McKinstry and Marcella Slavin who beat Judy Nosworthy and Bonnie Detweiler 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

Buhl flexes muscles against Kuna Friday

BUHL — Ambivalence probably best describes the feeling of the Buhl coaching room.

The Indians, with all that speed and experience in the backfield, figure to be one of the best in the school's history. Coach Jon Jund sees a dozen big pluses, but he also sees a couple of big questionmarks — like the ability of the line to come on strong and what could well be as good a schedule as the Indians have had.

"Our first goal is a pretty good indication," he says as he prepares his Indians for a home opener Friday against the Mutual Kaverets.

Despite the name, Kuna figures to be one of the better A-2 teams in the state, too. The Kaverets return nine starters off last-year's defense and seven of 11 offensively. Not the least of these is quarterback McCurey, who, Coach Jund says, "we've been told is as good an athlete as there probably is in the (Boise) valley."

Still Coach Jund is going to have trouble getting too many people to feel sorry for him. Like he's got the state A-2 100-yard dash champion — Junior Terry-Clayton — at flanker and like Clayton wasn't the fastest man on earth's Buhl track team, Chris Bell was — and Bell has led the Indians in rushing yardage the past two years. Like Keith Meltzer has been "botted down" in pre-season workout to a mere 202 pounds and, Coach Jund says, "I believe he's quicker."

Meltzer was the team's second leading rusher — and second in the conference behind Bell.

Like Cary Schneckpeper is back at quarterback for, it must seem to opposing coaches, — the 30th straight year. He's 6-4 and goes about 195 — making him bigger than most of the tackles he faces.

And Coach Jund says "Junior Allyn Reynolds is pushing the heck out of him right now."

Then Coach Jund says "I think defensively we could be tougher than we have been in the past few years. By that I mean we're a lot more aggressive defensively. And our juniors are really looking good."

So where is Buhl's problem? "I think it all depends on the line. We replace just about everyone from last year there. The bright spot is that we can put seniors in most of the positions and they have that maturity that helps," Coach Jund says.

The thing we're not going to have this year is we can't unhook the bomb like we did last year. We just don't have the kind-of-guys to get down there and catch it." Jund continues. "We've got receivers with good speed and potential, but you just can't replace guys like (Jerry) Hills and (Brad) Hellwig."

But no matter how little or long Coach Jund talks about this club, he always comes back to the line. "It's probably the most depth we've ever had in the line, with 29 linemen."

and Reynolds ("when he isn't quarterbacking").

The backfield has Clayton, 155, at flanker; Bell, 170 at runningback; Meltzer, 200 at fullback, and Schneckpeper and Reynolds (when he isn't playing split end).

Several of those young men will go both ways. "Not the least of these will be the ubiquitous Reynolds, who started last year at corner. Meltzer goes at linebacker, and Joe Kippes at nose guard. Tackles will be Bob Maxwell, 186, and Kreg Bell. Hulst will go at defensive end and Dale Butterworth will be starting his second season there. Chris Bell and Tim Hendrix will see linebacker action. Jeff Hepworth, a senior, will be at one half and junior Bryan Crawford will play safety.

Coach Jund expects Roger

Schadde, tackle-end; Terry Owen, offensive guard, and junior backs David Grill and Kelly Bartlett to see considerable action.

Buhl's roster includes, first-time opponents in Blackfoot, Salmon and Snake River, the latter replacing Wood River on a Saturday night.

NFL player representatives table management's proposals

CHICAGO (UPI) — Player representatives of National Football League teams voted Tuesday night to table a proposal from management for a new contract.

The vote, which neither Players' Association President Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins or Executive Director Ed Garvey would announce, came at the conclusion of a 10-hour meeting in which the representatives discussed and voted individually on more than 30 articles in the proposed agreement.

Garvey said the vote to table the proposal called for clarification of various points in the agreement.

"What we do will have to be discussed with players around the league," Garvey said. "The representatives felt we needed to continue bargaining."

Anderson, who negotiated the proposal with Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, with the participation of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, said he "favored the proposal. I thought it was something the players could live with and deal with."

"I'm disappointed," Anderson said. "I feel it was the best offer we're going to get. Now we'll have to go further and continue to negotiate."

The executive commission of the association approved the proposal and submitted it to the player representatives and Garvey said one of the player representatives in the meeting said it was the job of the negotiators to "get the best possible offer they can get and if the representatives want to take it, they can."

Garvey and Anderson would not reveal the contents in the 70-page contract proposal and Garvey said, "If we start announcing what's troublesome it may complicate the bargaining process. You have to look at the total package."

Garvey said there was no discussion in the meeting of a possible strike nor was any date set for future negotiations.

The players have not had a contract since 1974 and played without a contract for the last two seasons with a brief strike during training camp preceding the 1974 season.

Failure of the player representatives to take a stand on the contract, which was understood to include limits on the size of team squads, probably meant the owners would have to establish squad size at a meeting scheduled in New York Wednesday.

Soviets drop Americans 5-4

MONTREAL (UPI) — Center Jari Kurvi scored two goals to lead the Soviet Union to a 5-4 win over the United States Tuesday night in an exhibition game leading up to the six-nation Canada Cup hockey tournament beginning Thursday.

The Soviets battled to a 1-1 first period tie with Renney opening the scoring at 10:33 and the United States' Alan Hangesben getting his first of two goals at 11:06.

The Soviets took a commanding 4-1 lead early in the second period, as goals by Vladimir Vitkov at the 18 second mark, Vladimir Kovin at 2:33 and Renney's second goal of the night at 7:33. Alexander Golikov scored the winner at 1:37 of the final period.

The Americans made a determined bid to come back with three goals in the final four minutes of the game. Curt Bennett scored at 16:40, Gary Sargent at 17:03 and Hangesben with only 16 seconds remaining.

Mike Curran kicked out 21 shots on goal, while Soviet netminder, Victor Zinger, handled 20 shots.
