

Each debater claims prize

© Chicago Daily News
SAN FRANCISCO — President Ford and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter tangled on foreign affairs in Great Debate No. 2 and each walked away believing he had won.

"Yeah, I think we did," Carter told newsmen quietly.

Ford didn't say as much outright but he said, "I feel better than last time," after the Philadelphia debate, the first in the three-part series.

"I think I got my message across."

Late, at a reception in the St. Francis hotel — the same hotel outside of which he was nearly shot by Sara Jane Moore — he happily asked his Republican audience, "Who do you think won the debate?"

They cheered and applauded and shouted "Ford" and the President didn't appear to disagree.

Carter, however, said he felt "it was important for us to show we have a grasp of American foreign policy, and we did." He added, "Mr. Ford has a horrible administration to try to defend."

Carter opened up on Ford right from the first question, trying to get the President on the defensive and keep him there. He declared, "The Republican administration has been almost all style and spectacular and not substance" and he rapped at Ford head-on.

"As far as foreign policy goes," Carter said, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "has been the President of this country."

"Mr. Ford has shown an absence of leadership and absence of a grasp of what this country is and what it ought to be."

He also accused the administration of "being fearful to compete with the Soviet Union on an equal basis" and of letting Russia get what it wants out of détente at the expense of the United States.

Ford retorted that Carter was "again talking in broad generalities," and that while he talks about a strong defense now, he was all for cutting the defense budget by $15 billion a year ago, although he has trimmed that to $5 to $7 billion.

"There is no way you can be strong militarily and have those kinds of reductions in our military appropriations," Ford said. He added that, "straight from the shoulder, I don't negotiate with Mr. Brezhnev from weakness, and the kind of a defense program r. Carter wants will mean a weaker defense and a poorer negotiating position."

Wholesale prices leap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices jumped 0.9 per cent in September, returning to a double-digit annual rate for the first time in nearly a year, the Labor Department reported today.

The inflationary surge, reflecting a 10.8 per cent annual rate, was a drastic reversal of a recent cooling trend that saw wholesale costs decline 0.1 per cent in August. Not since last October have these prices risen as sharply.

Farm prices jumped 1.9 per cent in September following substantial declines in the past two months. Food prices rose 0.5 per cent, also a reversal of recent trends.

Industrial prices rose 0.9 per cent — the biggest increase in nearly a year. This compared to average monthly increases of 0.6 per cent over the past three months, and an average increase of 0.2 per cent in each of the first five months of the year.

Except for a slight surge last spring, wholesale price increases have been relatively cool since the last big monthly increase of 1.1 per cent in October, 1975. Wholesale prices have even declined in three months during the past year.

The Wholesale Price Index stood at 184.7 in September, an increase of 3.9 per cent over a year ago. This meant that wholesale goods costing $100 in 1967, now cost $184.70.

The large increase in industrial prices was more alarming to economists, because these prices are less volatile and make up about 70 per cent of the index.

Sheep farmer Swedish premier

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Parliament today approved Thorbjorn Faellin as Sweden's first non-socialist premier in 44 years. The vote was 174 to 160 with 15 members counted as absent from the Chamber.

Faellin, 50, a sheep farmer, is leader of the Center party which holds 86 parliamentary seats. The other two members of the coalition are the Conservatives with 55 seats and the Liberals with 39.

Boycott listing delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford promised the American public Wednesday night that the Commerce Department would identify U.S. companies which aided in the Arab boycott of Israel.

But a Commerce spokesman, admitting his agency was caught off guard by Ford's announcement, said today it would not release those names of firms which honored the boycott in the past — only those who do so "in the future."

"What is uncertain is the date when we shall begin disclosure," the spokesman said. That date will have to be determined by the President, he said.

In Wednesday night's presidential debate in San Francisco, Ford said that "because the Congress failed to act, I'm going to announce tomorrow that the Department of Commerce will disclose those companies that have participated in the Arab boycott. This is something that we can do; the Congress failed to do it and we intend to do it."

But the Commerce spokesman said it was the department's understanding that Ford did not mean he would release the names of companies that "have participated in the boycott in the past — only those companies that do so in the future."

The spokesman also said the Ford pledge came as a surprise to the department.

Ponderosa sale halted

RUPERT — A restraining order to block a forced sale of the Ponderosa Inn in North of Burley was served here Wednesday.

The sale was ordered to satisfy a mortgage of about $1 million held on the property by First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Twin Falls.

The facility was to have been sold to the highest bidder at 10 a.m. today by Minidoka County Sheriff Thea Johnson at the Minidoka County courthouse.

The sheriff's sale of the motel-convention center complex north of Burley had been ordered for this morning by Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood following a decree of foreclosure.

Claude Rowe served notice of the restraining order to Sheriff Johnson Wednesday afternoon.

the east-west oiled road. She was alone in her 1966 truck.

Her vehicle collided with the 1946 pickup truck driven by Thomas Burgess, 66, Twin Falls, in which Mr. and Mrs. Buck and their four children were riding.

The sheriff said the force of the impact spun both vehicles around. Sheriff's deputies were still at the scene this morning, completing their investigation.

Hailey said when he arrived at the scene, "bodies were lying all over the place," and he was so busy helping them he "did not even glance at the location of the trucks."

The sheriff was scheduled to confer later this morning with Prosecuting Atty. Gene Fredericksen over what charges to file against Mrs. Moudy. He said she could be charged either with manslaughter or failure to yield at a stop sign causing an accident.

The sheriff said he understood the Buck family and Burgess had been to Buck's brother's place, south of Wendell, where they had picked potatoes. They left another child, a 7-year-old boy, at his uncle's.

Four staff doctors were called to the hospital to care for the injured persons — the administrator said.

Both drivers, Burgess and Moudy, were listed in serious condition today by Felder.

Albert Buck Sr., 33, was listed in good condition, and his wife, Lavern Buck, 37, as fair. Albert Buck Sr. was in good condition and the youngest child, Wendy 1, was reported as "stable," Felder said. She has skull injuries.

Sheriff's officers said neither of the vehicles was overturned when they arrived, but they were unable to piece together details of the crash until they could talk with the injured persons.

Jerome crash kills TF girls

JEROME — Two Twin Falls children from the same family were killed and six other persons hospitalized Wednesday night when two pickup trucks collided at a rural intersection southwest of Jerome.

Sheriff Buck, who would have been 3 years old Sunday, was dead on arrival at St. Benedict's Hospital and her sister, Lorna Lee 6, died about five minutes after arrival, according to hospital administrator Leon Felder.

Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall said the children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Buck, Twin Falls, and two other family members are among those hospitalized.

The crash occurred about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, three miles south and three miles west of Jerome. The sheriff said Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Moudy, 22, Jerome was driving south on a gravel road and failed to stop at the stop sign on

Wood River fine $1,000

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Wood River High School will have to find $1,000 in its student association fund to pay off five schools which have leveled fines against the local school for cancelling football games this year.

Bull, Jerome and Salmon school districts have levied $300 fines each against Wood River High School.

Glenns Ferry invoked a $100 fine while Filer school officials asked for mileage expenses for the district superintendent's trip to the State Board of Control's September meeting in Boise.

Wood River High School cancelled its varsity football program this year when fewer than 20 young athletes showed up for practice.

Under a state contract among the schools, a district high school may be fined up to $300 for cancellation of scheduled games. Wood River was scheduled to play 9 games this fall.

American Falls, Gooding, Mountain Home and Wendell waived the fine.

Bull officials told Dick Sikeck, secretary of the Idaho High School Activities Association Board of Control that $350 had to be paid to Snake River High School to fill the cancelled spot.

Jerome was unable to schedule another game. Salmon's cancellation "worked a hardship" in the district, plus loss of revenue from the home game. "Glenns Ferry was able to reschedule but fell the game receipts would be lower than if they had played Wood River."

The fines have not set particularly well with Blaine County school officials.

Superintendent Wayne Fagg said today, "If a school could reschedule, I don't know how it could get back."

Jerome had a legitimate complaint, Fagg said, because of the inability to reschedule after a late cancellation.

Bull, however, offered Wood River a percentage of the game receipts last year to play at Bull instead of the regularly scheduled Hailey home game, Fagg said.

Fagg said Bill Bowman, dean of boys at Wood River High School, said a percentage offered last year would have been much greater than the $350 Bull paid Snake River to play this fall.

"I think we have a different picture of the situation now," Fagg said. "If some school cancelled on us, I think maybe we would want the $300 back."

Debate winner, speakers' pick

Pressed on the issue of U.S. dealings with Russia and the Helsinki agreement that virtually sanctions Russian "dominance in Eastern Europe," Ford surprised some listeners by bringing in the name of the Pope and approvingly denying the Soviets control of the nations behind the Iron Curtain.

"In the case of Helsinki, 35 nations signed an agreement, including the secretary of state for the Vatican," Ford said. "I can't under any circumstances believe that His Holiness the Pope would agree by signing that agreement that the nations have turned over to the Warsaw Pact nations the domination of Eastern Europe. It just is not true."

"And if Mr. Carter alleges that His Holiness by signing that has done it he is totally inaccurate. There is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and there never will be under the Helsinki agreement."

Questioned again by Max Frankel, associate editor of the New York Times, one of the panel of three reporters, the President added:

"I don't believe that the Yugoslavians consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union. I don't believe the Romanians consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union."

He said the same thing was true with Poland.

Carter responded that "in the first place, I am not criticizing His Holiness. The Pope I was talking about Mr. Ford."

"I would like to see Mr. Ford convince the Polish-Americans and the Czech-Americans and the Hungarian-Americans in this country that those countries don't live under the domination and supervision of the Soviet Union behind the Iron Curtain," he said.

Presidential aides said later that what the President really was saying was that this country doesn't "accept" the idea of Soviet domination of Eastern Europe. They added that it was quite clear to them that that's what Ford meant and that the television public would see it that way.

An estimated 10 million viewers saw the debate, broadcast by the three commercial networks. There was a live audience of 572, including 23 newsmen and members and guests of the sponsoring League of Women Voters.

The debate took place in the newly rebuilt Palace of Fine Arts Theater in the posh Marina District of San Francisco. Hundreds of picketers demonstrated peacefully for a number of different causes, ranging from birth control to amnesty, two blocks away, the closest police would allow them to get to the heavily guarded Palace.

The final debate between the presidential contenders will be at the College of William and Mary in historic Williamsburg, Va. In an open subject format, "The San Francisco debate was focused on foreign affairs and defense, although Carter managed to bring up an old sore wound or two on another subject."

"We have been hurt in recent years in this country, in Afghanistan, in Vietnam, Cambodia, Chile, Pakistan, Angola, Watergate, CIA," he said, in his windy statement. "I want to see our nation returned to a posture and image and a standard to make us proud once again."

He warned that there could be "catastrophic" would threaten the world, the proliferation of atomic bombs: "If the nation doesn't have the right leadership, 'Can we become a breadbasket of the world instead of the world's merchant of the world?'" he said.

Ford summed up that foreign and defense policies were complicated and can be debated but "there are two things—experience and results."

"I think in my two years as President I have made decisions daily 'not only as President of the United States but as the leader of the free world."

"What is the result of that leadership?"

"America is strong. America is respected. Not a single young American today is fighting or dying on any foreign battlefield. America is at peace with freedom."

affirmative action. He noted his administration has begun antitrust action against firms cooperating in the boycott and that the new tax bill he has just signed would stop such companies from taking tax deductions.

He added that because Congress failed to act he was "going to announce tomorrow" that the Department of Commerce will disclose the names of those companies that have taken part in the Arab boycott.

"The Congress failed to do it, and we intend to do it," he said.

Carter, asked what he would do in case of a new Arab oil embargo, "I would consider it a military but an economic declaration of war and I would respond instantly and in kind."

"I would not ship that Arab country anything. No weapons, no spare parts for weapons, no oil-drilling rigs, no oil pipe, no nothing."

"On relations with the People's Republic of China, Mr. Ford said he would 'not let down, not eliminate or forget our obligation to the people of Taiwan.' He said he would insist that differences between the People's Republic and Taiwan be settled peacefully.

"On the Panama Canal, the debaters agreed that the United States must maintain control of the waterway, but that negotiations should continue on subjects such as the Panama Canal. Panamaans are paid for its use."

On the Mayaguez incident, the President disputed the conclusions of a new report which said he overreacted in ordering the rescue of the crew of the ship, which had been grabbed by Cambodia. He noted that Capt. Charles Miller of the ship had called him. "Furious because he told me that it was the action of me, President Ford, that saved the lives of the crew of the Mayaguez."

"And I can assure you that if we had not taken the strong military action that we did, we would have been criticized severely for sitting back and not moving."

Carter said he hadn't read the report and was "reluctant to comment" but he thought all the facts people have been given since the incident, 18 months ago. He also said when something happens that endangers national security, or the lives of men like the sailors on the Mayaguez, "we obviously have to move aggressively and quickly to rescue them."

South Idaho power line brings foes' testimony

BOISE (UPI) — Five persons testified Wednesday against a draft environmental impact statement drawn up by the Bureau of Land Management on a proposed power line across southern Idaho and Oregon.

Pacific Power and Light Co. has applied for authority to erect a 291-mile-long, 500,000-volt power line across public lands to transfer electricity from its Wyoming power plants to the southern Oregon coastal area.

Nobuko testified in favor of the line during a public hearing.

Janet Ward, Boise, asked why the people of Idaho should "sacrifice their land and their beauty for the transmission of power to Oregon."

Calling the BLM environmental impact statement "tedious, repetitive and full of an amazing amount of gobble-de-gook," she said the powerline would violate the BLM's own management framework plan for the West Owyhees of southwestern Idaho.

She said the proposed powerline would violate a basic tenet of land-use planning that things be grouped together. Instead of grouping powerlines into corridors, she said, the proposal would provide "a cackling, glittering powerline flanked by a temporary road through the back country."

In addition she said, the proposed line would affect visually three state parks — Malad Gorge, Three Island and Bruneau Sand Dunes.

Dick Hunsman, Boise, a spokesman for the Wilderness Society, said the public is being asked to give up something of irreplaceable value in order to provide a straight, cheap transmission line which will offer significant benefits to only a small portion of Oregon and California.

David E. Orfanos, Seattle, a spokesman for friends of the Earth, urged the BLM to reject the proposed powerline and require Pacific Power to utilize existing corridors for its line.

Former State Parks Director Steven Bly, Boise, and Parks Board member Ernest Day, Boise, speaking as a private citizen, also spoke out against the proposed line.

Gem planes in 'Kangaroo'

HICKAM AIR FORCE BASE, Hawaii (UPI) — Air crews from Mountain Home Air Force Base are participating in the largest peacetime exercise in peacetime since World War II.

Six F-111's with air crews and support personnel from the Mountain Home base arrived at the Amberley Royal Australian Air Force Base to take part in the three-nation "Exercise Kangaroo II" exercise.

Kangaroo II, the largest peacetime military exercise held in Australia, includes the armed forces of the ANZUS nations of Australia, New Zealand and the U.S.

The Idaho-based aircraft were part of a squadron deployed to the Taegu airbase in Korea in August in response to heightened tensions there, the spokesman said.

During the exercise the U.S. Air Force F-111's will team with Royal Australian aircraft in maritime surveillance of the Tasman and Coral Seas area and simulate strike missions against fleet task group units and simulated land strike interdiction missions.

Troops, ships and aircraft from the three services of each country are taking part in the 17-day exercise.

Nearly 11,000 ANZUS troops, 40 ships and nearly 250 fixed-wing and rotary wing aircraft are participating.

Fete cost $1,000

BOISE (UPI) — Businesses and banks spent more than $1,000 on a luncheon, liquor and coffee for the Idaho Association of Commissioners and Clerks' meeting in Lewiston last week; the Idaho Statesman said today.

City-county reporter Rod Gramer reported that three coffee breaks and two social hours, with liquor, cost about $500. He said Don Huntsman, executive director of the association, told him they were provided by 12 businesses and banks during the three-day session.

In addition, the story said, Western Equipment, Inc., a company from which most counties purchase equipment, spent about $500 on a Wednesday luncheon. Huntsman was quoted as saying the company sponsors the luncheon each year.

Additionally, the Tri-Tracer Bar, Lines, Portland, provided a free booze trip down the Snake River Thursday night.

Registration fees ultimately paid by county treasurers, paid for a fee.

becue dinner, refreshments and an orchestra on the barge trip, the newspaper quoted Huntsman. That cost about $1,000 more.

Cuban airliner blast kills 73

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (UPI) — A mysterious explosion that sent a Cuban jetliner crashing into the sea Wednesday was the third airline-related blast in the Caribbean in the past three months.

The crash killed all 73 persons aboard.

The two earlier explosions were believed the work of an anti-Castro Cuban group in Miami that warned in August of new airplane attacks if certain countries continued trading with Cuba.

There was no immediate indication that sabotage was involved in Wednesday's crash.

The Havana-bound flight was en route to a scheduled stopover in Kingston, Jamaica, when it nosedived into the ocean, flipped over and sank three miles off the Barbados coast.

The plane carried 50 passengers and a crew of 23, according to British West Indian Airways, agent for Cuban Airlines.

No Americans were believed aboard.

U.S. Navy Lt. Cmdr. Joseph Phelan said only 15 bodies had been recovered by nightfall and most were still entombed in the sunken wreckage.

Prime Minister J.M.G. Adams sent a message of condolence to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and ordered an investigation.

A control tower source said the captain of the DC8 radioed that there had been an explosion and was trying to return to Bridgetown when the plane crashed.

In Washington, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman confirmed that an "inflight explosion" occurred before the plane went down.

Paul Forster, a travel agent, said he was standing outside his hotel "when someone shouted, 'Look! Look!' and pointed up in the air."

"I could see it was a jet, coming out of a cloud at about a 75 degree angle. It just seemed to hang there about 200 feet above the water, just on the horizon."

Thai military leaders strengthen grip

BANGKOK Thailand (UPI) — Military leaders moved quickly today to consolidate a bloodless coup and replace the only remaining democracy in Indochina with a law and order regime.

Soldiers built bunkers in front of the vacant parliament building and tanks took up position at strategic posts in Bangkok. But the capital was calm and there was no outward sign of resistance anywhere in the nation of 44 million.

The fate of most democratic politicians could not be learned. But Prime Minister Seni Pramot and Puey Ungpakorn, left-of-center rector of Thammasat University, were known to be under detention.

A fierce gunbattle between police, leftist students and rightist counter-demonstrators at the university Wednesday killed at least 27 persons and gave the military its opportunity to seize power.

The new government was headed by former defense minister and armed forces commander Adm. Sangad Chalorayoon.

There were no statements of support for the military regime except from the Thai boyscouts.

But Sangad's announced pledge that a return to law and order would be a priority item clearly appealed to many Thais weary of the continual student demonstrations and labor unrest of three years of democratic rule.

The coup was swift and bloodless. At 6 p.m. the military moved. An hour later, Radio Thailand announced the takeover and declared martial law.

The self-styled ruling National Evolutionary Administration Council issued a series of communiques dissolving the constitution, cabinet and parliament.

All parties and political activity "especially Communist activity" were banned and stores were ordered to surrender copies of "subversive literature." A midnight to 5 a.m. curfew was imposed in Bangkok.

Newspapers were closed, but editors were told they might apply to reopen within three days under strict new censorship guidelines.

The foreign press was unaffected.

The new regime ousted the only democratic regime left in Indochina since the fall of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia to the Communists last year.

Air talks resume

© N.Y. Times Service

TOKYO — Japanese and American diplomats met again behind closed doors Wednesday in the latest bargaining session designed to develop new civil aviation agreements.

At stake are the lucrative trans-Pacific passenger and cargo air routes linking Asia and North America and beyond. The prize is more than $800 million in sales a year.

The American side seeks fuller utilization of existing agreements plus a strong aviation foothold here for the expected future air links into mainland China.

PARIS (UPI) — A 24-hour general strike called by French trade unions and left-wing political parties to protest the government's austerity program failed to completely shut shops and factories today.

Train, bus and subway services were spotty. Mail went undelivered and garbage uncollected.

But most shops and factories were open despite high absentee rates and the threatened electricity and gas cuts did not materialize.

Absenteeism canceled out expected traffic jams in Paris. Commuters driving into the sun-drenched capital reported traffic lighter than normal.

The strike, billed in advance by one union leader as the worst since the six weeks of worker and student demonstrations in 1968, also affected banking and the national press.

CHEVY BISON

The Magnificent Beast. Charley Hatch

NATIONWIDE NEWS RELEASE: "Ace Hansen Chevrolet, Twin Falls, Idaho, Receives Chevrolet's First Brand New Bison off The Assembly Line . . ."

It's with a great deal of pride that we at Ace Hansen Chevrolet have been chosen from among more than 6000 Chevrolet dealers nationwide to introduce the first brand new Chevrolet Bison. It's a totally new heavy-duty conventional with scores of important innovations for the trucking industry. We call it "The Magnificent Beast," — when you drive it, you'll know why.

This new Bison is the product of over 50 years in truck design and manufacturing. It was developed to meet the precise needs of today's owner-operator market. The result is a tough, light-weight, high-performance vehicle that's easy to service and maintain. Some of Bison's special features include a welded aluminum cab, 5-piece fiberglass hood and fender assembly, all-steel doors, hinges, and a simplified electrical wiring system.

Two basic Bison models are available. A 108" BBC model was developed mainly for construction and off-road use. A 116" BBC is offered for straight truck and highway tractor applications. Both models can be adapted, however, for specialized vocational applications. There is a broad line of engines, suspensions, frames and other available options to match the Bison to specific job functions.

We hope some lucky Magic Valley person will enjoy the unique experience of owning the first Chevy Bison offered anywhere. In 20 years of trucking experience, I've personally never driven a finer truck. I believe it's a truck that will set new standards for strength, quality and serviceability for many years to come. It will be a pleasure to see this superb truck in Magic Valley.

See and drive it for yourself. I'm sure you'll agree it's the finest truck anywhere on or off the road.

Price boost due on oil?

MANILA, the Philippines (UPI) — Saying "oil today is at a bargain price," Iranian Minister of State Mohammad Yeganeh today strongly implied that oil prices were in for another hefty hike.

Yeganeh, chief of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' governing committee, said the cartel would adjust oil prices to the current rate of world inflation, which he said is now running at 25 to 30 percent.

"The U.S. wanted to be independent, to cut out their oil imports, but what happened to the independence program? They have increased their oil imports by 20 percent," he told a news conference. "This shows that today oil is a bargain price."

"The U.S. has to make the adjustments in their economy. After all we financed the rapid expansion of the developed countries."

OPEC has scheduled a meeting Dec. 15 in the oil state of Qatar to discuss raising oil prices in 1977. Iran has traditionally advocated oil price increases at the OPEC meetings.

The Iranian minister also attacked Treasury Secretary William Simon for telling the joint annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank here this week that the OPEC countries will have a $50 million surplus this year.

Lebanese bracing for new attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The apparent failure of a trio of peace strategies for Lebanon raised fears today of a new Syrian military offensive.

Travelers reported clashes Wednesday between Syrian troops at Herjira, 31 miles southeast of Beirut, and Lebanese in the nearby town of Baam.

The fighting increased speculation the Syrians, who last week cleaned out Palestinian redoubts in the mountains east of Beirut, will strike next in the south.

The leftist Beirut radio announced Wednesday that preparatory talks between Syrian and Palestinian negotiators in Damascus had failed to produce a truce agreement or set a date for a summit between Syrian President Hafez Assad and guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat.

"This means that the Assad-Arafat meeting will not take place and the Syrians will proceed with their military ambitions in Lebanon," the radio said.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Syria had rejected an Egyptian call for an Arab mini-summit on Lebanon, insisting that if Arafat attended, Jordan's King Hussein also be present.

Blast drops span

By JACQUES CLAFIN
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A blast believed set by black nationalist guerrillas wrecked a key river bridge Wednesday and sent 11 railroad cars tumbling into the water, Rhodesia Railways said today.

Railroad officials said they had launched an investigation into the explosion on a bridge spanning the Matetsi River in western Rhodesia, about 22 miles south of the Zambian border. There were no casualties.

"I don't think there's any doubt the explosion was set by the terrorists (black nationalist guerrillas)," one official said.

Hanoi assails US

MANILA, the Philippines (UPI) — Newly unified Vietnam accused the United States today of shirking its responsibilities in healing the wounds of war and asked the world's financial leaders for more assistance to rebuild itself.

Vietnam's attack marked the second day that politics punctuated the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, which is normally devoted to purely economic and monetary matters.

It was the first time Vietnam had spoken as a member of both organizations.

On Wednesday, Arab delegates walked out when Israel spoke to the conference and several countries demanded Taiwan's ouster from the two groups and the seating of China. Delegates called the style of the Arab walkout "smooth" and even "polite."

Vice Minister Tran Duong, an official of the State Bank of Vietnam, said his nation deserved special consideration from the bank and the IMF.

Boundary dispute may be near end

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer
A long-standing Heyburn concern about Burley encroachment in Mindoka County may end with the designation of areas of city impact.

Heyburn councilman said Tuesday night that Heyburn is not dissenting against areas of impact area attentions toward the small strip of unincorporated territory that separates it on the west from Burley. The smaller city is content with its western boundary 600 West Road.

Burley Planning and Zoning members voted to recommend that city's area of impact reach east to 600 West Road in Mindoka County. They also voted in favor of stretching westward to 850 West Road at the Emerson School.

Both cities eye Interstate 80 as the northern boundary for their areas of city impact.

David Aho, Mindoka County Planning Coordinator, said the highway is a logical northern line.

Those points were made Tuesday night at the Burley Planning and Zoning Commission meeting. Heyburn and Mindoka County officials were invited in order to discuss views on impact areas.

Mindoka County officials remained quiet through most of the meeting. Mindoka County Planning Commission Chairman George Ealkner explained that his commission has not studied that portion of the county on area of impact, but is awaiting proposals from the cities.

He added, "We'll go along with your city recommendations."

Fisher said he was most interested in hearing the Burley proposal for a western boundary. He remarked that 750 West Road would be a good boundary, but conceded Burley's interest in reaching a mile further.

Ed Elliot made the motion on the boundaries. In support of the western boundary, he said, "I think the next bridge over the Snake River should be at 850 West to eliminate all the truck traffic through downtown Burley."

He pointed out that such a route would take trucks directly to the 1,000 processing plants from 140 along a road about two miles west of the city's main street. The proposed bridge would be a mile east of Star's Ferry Road.

Charges to be filed against Elko press

ELKO, Nev. (UPI) — District Attorney Robert Manley said Wednesday criminal complaints will be filed against local newspapers and radio stations which refused to submit campaign spending reports of candidates for the Nevada Legislature.

But Mel Stenger, publisher of the Elko Daily Free Press, said the law is unconstitutional because it violates the freedom of the press and the freedom of speech of private citizens.

A 1975 law requires newspapers, radio and television stations, and billboard companies which accept advertising from candidates for the Legislature to report the amounts to the secretary of state's office within 20 days after the election. The law also requires a private citizen who wants to place an advertisement for a candidate to first secure written permission from the candidate.

Secretary of State William Swackhamer last week notified the district attorney's office here three Elko newspapers and one radio station failed to submit the reports. Swackhamer named the Elko Independent, the Free Press, a shopper's guide and Radio Station KELK in his letter to Manley.

Manley said Swackhamer was willing to sign criminal complaints in the cases. Willful violation of the law is a gross misdemeanor carrying a $1,000 fine and a year in county jail.

Stenger said a similar law in 1973 was declared unconstitutional by a district judge in Clark County, but the Nevada Legislature reenacted the same provisions. He said the new law also is invalid.

"The best response a citizen has is just to get stubborn and to wait and see what the state does to enforce it," he said.

GOP gubernatorial chances improving

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Republicans appear to have a better than even chance of ending a six-year decline in control of state governments...

With 14 gubernatorial contests under way, political professionals in both major parties expect the Republicans to come out with a new gain of at least two governorships...

The Democrats currently have 36 governors, only three less than the record 39 they had prior to the 1938 elections...

As recently as 1970, Republicans held 32 of the 50 state governorships.

Six of the current governors in states with elections this year are not seeking re-election.

Gov. Phillip W. Noel of Rhode Island and Gov. Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont close to run for the Senate; they are both Democrats.

Political observers in both parties expect the presidential race to have little impact on any of the gubernatorial contests.

In Arkansas, incumbent Democrat David H. Pryor, who easily won re-nomination...

His Democratic opponent is Secretary of State Larry Combs of Missouri.

Officials of both national parties here consider Bowen's office the safest in the country for the Republicans this year.

In Missouri, the contest is much closer. Republican incumbent Christopher S. (Kit) Bond is in a tight race with Kansas City attorney Joe Testadele.

Bond is young, popular and a good campaigner but has to run hard in this traditionally Democratic state.

Montana is a state that in theory the Republicans should win, but a lockstep campaign is hurting State Attorney General Robert Woodliff's effort.

Incumbent Democrat Thomas L. Judge has faced one controversy after another for the past four years and his reputation in the state...

Illinois is rated as the second best chance for Republicans to pick up a state now controlled by the Democrats.

GOP candidate James Thompson is a former U.S. District attorney from Chicago who has successfully prosecuted some of Mayor Richard J. Daley's Democratic friends.

Daley's hand-picked candidate, Michael J. Howlett, ousted incumbent Democrat Daniel Walker in the primary and the bitterness of that fight has not been smoothed over.

State polls have shown Thompson as much as 30 points up in the highly Democratic Party official Howlett is favored by only 7 in 10 voters in some areas of downstate Illinois.

Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen, a Republican, is in the same shape as his Democratic counterpart in Arkansas, Pryor, Bowen constantly receives approval ratings of 60 per cent or more in state polls.

His Democratic opponent is Secretary of State Larry Combs of Missouri.

Officials of both national parties here consider Bowen's office the safest in the country for the Republicans this year.

Carter exploits national mood

Jimmy Carter lost the first presidential debate on domestic issues last month, despite the Ford Administration's history of high unemployment, inflation and continuing economic uncertainty.

Domestic issues should have been Carter's strong point, but a consensus of Americans is that Ford upset Carter on his own turf.

Well, the tables were turned last night. President Ford, fresh from diplomatic victory in Africa, should have carried the day in discussion of foreign affairs. He failed to do so.

Carter managed to keep Ford on the defensive throughout the debate, sniping at the Nixon-Ford-Kissinger foreign policy. President Ford fell for the bait by entering into a detailed defense of the specifics of his foreign record.

Meanwhile Carter occupied the high ground by talk of national purpose, idealism and leadership.

Carter successfully exploited the widespread American feeling that the United States was defeated and humiliated in Vietnam by a second-string backward nation.

Most Americans attribute that defeat to poor national leadership — either through stupidity in getting into the quagmire in the first place, or through lack of resolve in seriously fighting the battle.

That sense of national uneasiness is understandable. As schoolchildren, most of us were taught that America was the world's strongest nation, partly because we were the world's "best" nation.

So we deserved to be strong because of our moral quality, and in turn, our strength proved our moral worth.

But with the humiliation of Vietnam, followed by the disgrace of Watergate, many Americans began to wonder whether we really were either the strongest or the best.

Jimmy Carter spoke directly to that concern again and again last night.

He insisted that America's moral worth and its strength at home are what makes it strong abroad. America's people, he said, are strong and good. Only their leadership is weak, making America weak abroad. All Ford could do was glower.

It was a perfect political opportunity, and Carter exploited it masterfully. His solution: strong moral leadership under Carter will return America to its rightful position of world strength and respect.

While we may not agree with Carter's solution to the problem, we do think he has touched a raw nerve. He may have stumbled onto the truth.

The fact is that America has been drained by Vietnam and by a sense of failed leadership. In turn, Johnson, Nixon and Ford left most Americans feeling without a leader in the White House.

While many people could support specific programs or policies crafted in the White House during that post-assassination period, they always suspected their president was a politician, not a leader.

Ironically, the Nixon-Ford period has been one of almost incredible foreign diplomatic success for the United States. Under Kissinger's tutelage, Nixon and Ford managed to virtually end the cold war, open the doors to China, normalize relations with Russia through detente, cool down the Middle East by building bridges to the Arabs and pressuring Israel into peace and face saving negotiations and achieving first steps toward limiting the nuclear arms race through the Salt I treaty.

Most recently, Kissinger seemingly capped his career by somehow talking or pressuring the white supremacist regime of Rhodesia to agree to turn power over to that country's black majority — a remarkable if tenuous feat of diplomacy.

Despite these successes, the sense of American defeat-and-humiliation in Vietnam and weakness and betrayal of leadership in Vietnam and Watergate, still remains with most Americans.

Carter has tapped the American mood. Despite his and Nixon's unparalleled diplomatic record, President Ford has got to come to grips with this American slump of the spirit.

In the final analysis, Carter is right. America never will be truly strong and secure while its spirit is weak and the White House occupied by a politician instead of a leader.

But after two debates, we still haven't seen that leader.

Soaring pensions stagger Oakland, San Francisco

By NEA/London Economist News Service SAN FRANCISCO — (LENS) — San Francisco and Oakland have not escaped the day of reckoning over extravagant pensions for their employees that now confronts many cities and some of the states.

But they are among the first to do something about it. Oakland, a city of 336,000, now spends 51 per cent of its budget on wages and pensions for its policemen and firemen alone. San Francisco, a city twice Oakland's size, spends 13 per cent of its income on pensions.

Up to now neither city has set aside money, year by year, to meet its future liabilities for pensions. Oakland was staggered in June to discover that its unfunded liability for policemen's and firemen's pensions was close to $500 million. The city's annual budget is about $80 million and even this has its taxpayers protesting.

By comparison, New York City's liability for unfunded pensions is put officially at around $6 billion though it is probably a good deal higher while that of Massachusetts is said to be around $7 billion.

In November San Francisco will ask the voters to let it provide a less generous system of benefits for all new city employees. Oakland has already done so. In June it placed new employees under the state's less expensive and less generous retirement fund. Oakland is paying 71 cents a year for each dollar of pension benefits.

The scaling-back of pensions applies, of course, only to newly hired workers. Present employees and those who have already retired have contractual rights to the benefits they were promised. Some experts in retirement problems foresee the day when the discrepancy between the two levels of pensions in public employment — pre 1976 and post-1976 — will create new problems.

San Francisco and Oakland have been known for their generosity to their employees. But for two decades pension commitments have been rising at all levels of American government. Generous pension settlements were a popular way for politicians to avoid strikes; their immediate cost was low, and the voters' approval was easy to obtain.

The political muscle of the trade unions ensured that in a period of inflation the wages and pensions of public employees were not allowed to lag behind. Indeed many little extras were tucked in.

For instance, San Francisco's system at first based retirement pay on the average of a worker's five highest paid years; then on the three highest; and eventually on pay in his final year.

Overtime pay was counted as part of the earnings on which the pension was calculated. So it became common practice to give heavy overtime to a worker who was about to retire, in order to increase his pension.

A court clerk, for example, who normally earned $20,000 a year, retired recently on a pension based on earnings of $40,000 because he worked so many hours of overtime in his last year.

Pensions for workers who chose to retire early have also been generous and so have those for the (suspectly large) number who pleaded that they had become disabled on the job. For many industries who could argue that, in these days of urban violence, keeping order had become a young man's profession, early retirement opened the door to a prosperous late middle-age.

They could retire and go into a second career providing security guards for private industry. California, which had 44,500 policemen in local communities three years ago and about an equal number in private guard duty, today has far more, almost 65,000 privately hired as guards.

This has drained off trained policemen and has accelerated retirement at an unforeseen rate. Unfunded pension liabilities are

Don't discard O'Leary

Editor Times-News: Should O'Leary be torn down? NO! I'm not against spending money for necessary things, but I am certainly against waste whether it be tax money or private capital.

O'Leary is structurally sound. The $320,000 from the sale of Washington would bring the building up to meet the latest safety standard. The sale of Washington School was also a great waste.

The big argument about O'Leary is that it is a fire trap. If it is, how is it that it has stood sixty-five years without having a fire?

In answer to the lady who insisted she would never let her children go to school in O'Leary again, I want to suit that her children are not in times as safe in this building as they are at home in bed. How many homes have fire extinguishers at strategic points? How many have fire escapes of any kind? How many have crash bars on the doors? How many have doors opening out? How many have definite plans of escape or fire drills so every one knows what to do in case of fire?

To the gentleman who told about the fires in the east where 50 and 60 bodies were piled against the doors, the escape techniques must not have been practiced, or the crash bars were not kept in order. These are scare tactics and are not sensible thinking.

Another thing, how about the removal of the school from this location? The city was planned around the park. The buildings there add to the attractiveness of the city. Businesses in this location would destroy the effect. All over America there is a movement to preserve old buildings. We should have pride in preserving and using them. Not here. Here the thing is to make as much work as possible if it can be paid for with tax money.

And speaking of taxes, who pays the bulk of the school taxes, and who pays off the bond issues floated in the county? Not the teachers who may be pushing for a new school, or the construction workers who are drawing from $8 per hour and up. Not the trades, who are getting from $10 to $20 per hour. Not the professional people who earn from $20,000 to $50,000 per year. Not the persons who will carry the bulk of the load for people who can get 10 cents to 12 cents a pound for their $275 a basket for wheat, 37 cents per pound for fat cattle, etc.

When they support the schools, the county offices, the hospital, the airport, the colleges, etc. by some other method except property taxes, and everyone who votes helps to pay, his or her share we may see a lot less eagerness to tear down good, serviceable buildings! And by the way, if you think you pay taxes on your house, you do, so do farmers, and pay on all their land besides, which is grossly unfair.

All the rate of growth of Twin Falls we will probably need another school in 10 years or less. How then will it be financed if we reach our bonded indebtedness limit now? The sensible thing would be to bring O'Leary up to standard and in a few years we could build a new building to accommodate the increase of students. Let's not discard O'Leary!

By United Press International Today is Thursday, Oct. 7, the 281st day of 1978 with 101 days to follow.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus. These born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

American poet James Whitcomb Riley was born Oct. 7, 1849. In 1916, in the most staggering football defeat on record, Georgia Tech humbled Cumberland University, 222-0. In 1961, a British airliner crashed in the French Pyrenees and 37 persons were killed.

In 1963, Bobby Baker resigned as Senate Democratic secretary after being charged, in a $300,000 civil suit, with using his influence for personal monetary gains.

In 1971, President Nixon announced an economic control system to follow the 30-day wage-price freeze he imposed in mid-August.

A thought for the day: American poet James Whitcomb Riley said, "The ripest peach is lightest on the tree."

American Motors prices climb about $167 per car

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. has posted the smallest price increase among the four U.S. auto companies on 1977 models — an average 4.8 per cent boost, or $167 a car.

AMC's announcement Wednesday was the last from the four U.S. automakers on the 1977 model cars.

AMC's price increase over 1976 models compares with a 5.9 per cent, or $238, increase by General Motors on cars equipped with the options most people choose. Chrysler Corp. also raised prices by 5.9 per cent, or $336, while Ford Motor Co. said its increase averaged 5.1 per cent, or $310, over comparable 1976 models.

AMC sales have been slipping this year, largely because of its concentration on small cars whose popularity waned in the past year as gasoline prices remained steady.

Its September sales were down 47 per cent from a year ago and its year-to-date pace is off 25 per cent. Its share of the domestic car market through September is a small 2.9 per cent, compared with 4.8 per cent last year when its small cars were in great demand.

Despite the relatively small price increase,

AMC will not enjoy any price advantages over its larger competitors' small cars except with its new Fiber wagon model which is priced at $3,799. The only comparable sized station wagon is the Plymouth Volare at $3,541.

AMC's lowest-priced car is the subcompact Gremlin at $3,248, a $166 increase over comparably equipped 1976 model.

The base prices of competitive makes are $3,225 for the Chevrolet Chevette, $3,248 on the Chevrolet Vega and $3,227 for the Ford Pinto.

The average passenger vehicle price for AMC is $3,676. That compares with a $6,100 price on the average GM car, $6,146 at Ford and $5,785 at Chrysler.

In the compact car segment, AMC's 2-door Hornet sedan now carries a base sticker price of $3,399. Chrysler's lowest-priced model is the Plymouth Volare 2-door coupe at $3,570, the Ford Maverick 2-door sedan is priced at $3,322, and GM's Chevrolet Nova 2-door coupe is $3,482.

At the same time, AMC said its Jeep vehicle suggested retail prices were increased 7.7 per cent, or $276, over 1976 models.

Ford's terms worrying GM chief

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors President E. M. "Pete" Estes says a key time-off provision of the United Auto Workers' tentative pact with the Ford Motor Co. is "very disturbing" and will result in higher car prices.

Estes also said he doubts the increased time-off provision marked a trend toward a four-day work week, as some industry observers believe it will.

The tentative contract covering 170,000 Ford workers — on strike for 23 days — was "unanimously approved" late Wednesday by the 26-member International Executive Board, which met for three hours to consider the agreement.

The UAW's 175-member National Ford Council was asked today to give its approval to the tentative $1 billion-plus agreement.

Consideration of the pact by the two groups were required to start the ratification process. Ford's 12 facilities in 22 states probably will remain closed for another week.

Estes was critical of the key element his firm will have to match in the new settlement (Ford agreement) — 13 more days off the job with no loss in pay.

"It has to be very disturbing to us," Estes told reporters.

"I doubt if many people are dissatisfied with the time off allowed under our current contract," Estes said in Grand Rapids, Mich. "Everybody enjoys time off. We just don't want it to be excessive."

Estes said it will lead to increased costs that are reflected in higher car prices, but disagreed with observers who said it will lead to the four-day work week.

The union has refused to make any details of the agreement public until after the National Ford Council meeting today.

But it was learned that the UAW won an additional 13 days off the job in addition to 21 1/2 days Ford workers now receive in holidays and vacations and up to a $600 cash payment to aid retirees whose pensions have been shrunken by inflation.

Law, disorder

ABOUT a thousand chanting, whistle-tooting off-duty policemen are confronted by ranking officers and uniformed police outside a midtown New York station house Wednesday night. They were protesting the arrest of four off-duty officers picketing in the city's police pay dispute. (UPI)

New York mayor won't negotiate

NEW YORK (UPI) — An enraged Mayor Beame today refused to "negotiate at the point of a gun" with police union leaders who hinted the entire 26,000-member force may strike as a result of the arrest of four off-duty police pickets.

The four, two of whom were suspended without pay, were arrested at a demonstration outside Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. They were later released after being issued summonses.

The arrests were the first since off-duty officers began holding noisy demonstrations Sept. 24 to protest a new work schedule and to demand immediate payment of a 6 per cent raise that was deferred because of the city's fiscal crisis.

Some 1,500 whistle-blowing, chanting demonstrators marched from the Garden to the East Side police station where the four arrested cops were taken. They were joined by another 1,500 officers coming off duty at midnight Wednesday.

Patrolman's Benevolent Association President Douglas Weaving said in a letter to Beame following the arrests: "I sincerely believe that, despite our best efforts to prevent it, we may be confronting a general police strike within the hour."

At a hastily-called news conference early today, Beame called the letter "a veiled threat" and angrily declared, "I won't negotiate at the point of a gun — won't stand for it and the people of the city won't stand for it."

About 150 demonstrators later left the stationhouse and marched to Grace Mansion, Beame's official residence on the elegant East Side. The scene of several roasty late night demonstrations in the last two weeks.

Brooklyn's Jews argue vote ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the Supreme Court ruled 15 years ago that legislative districts may not be arranged along racial bounds to dilute minority voting strength, the justices probably didn't have the Hasidic Jews of Brooklyn in mind.

Rather they were examining an awkward 11-sided legislative district in Birmingham, Ala., putting much of the city's black population in a single district. Consciously diluting minority participation in the electoral process in this manner is unconstitutional, the court said.

Wednesday, a lawyer for the Hasidic in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn told the court the Constitution also forbids diluting white votes in an attempt to provide blacks more political power.

The case is another in a recent series promoting the argument that "reverse discrimination" is just as illegal as traditional forms of discrimination against minorities.

But for the most part, the justices seemed unimpressed with the argument presented by Nathan Lewin, the lawyer for the Williamsburg Jews.

Brooklyn is a county which falls under the Voting Rights Act of 1965 because prior to 1970 New York State used a literacy test and fewer than 50 per cent of those eligible in Brooklyn voted in the 1968 presidential election.

Proposal to ban pipes aired

WASHINGTON — The Civil Aeronautics Board has proposed new regulations that would bar totally the smoking of pipes or cigars on commercial aircraft.

At the same time, the board said that judging from public reaction its existing regulations that require separate smoking and non-smoking sections on planes must be strengthened although a board announcement didn't say to what extent.

The proposal to ban pipe and cigar smoking is just that — a proposal — and the board announcement issued Wednesday said the agency wants to hear from the public between now and Nov. 8 concerning the plan.

The CAB proposal results from a petition filed March 5 by Action on Smoking and Health, a Washington, D.C.

based group headed by John F. Banzhaf III, a law professor at George Washington University.

In an interview Tuesday night, Banzhaf said he went after pipes and cigars because they "create much more of a problem for nonsmokers and they are much more objectionable." He noted that there are far fewer people who smoke cigars and pipes than cigarettes.

The major problems, he said, result from some airlines denying nonsmokers seats, saying that the no-smoking section is filled.

Amy hangs tough

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — When the Secret Service put her out of business Amy Carter went to the man in the big house and demanded justice.

According to brother Chip, Amy was knocking down $20 a day profit lemonade sales to tourists who dropped by Plains, Ga., and forked over $10 a day to Dad, Jimmy, for his campaign. But when Dad got the Democratic nomination, the Secret Service closed the street in front of the Carter home.

"So Amy's lemonade stand went bankrupt and she asked for her $10 back," Chip told local Democrats.

Waylon waives

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music singer Waylon Jennings, calling "personal and private reasons," says he doesn't want to be considered for Country Music Association awards this year. But he may get them anyway because he withdrew after balloting was over.

In the past, Jennings has called the awards a rigged, popularity contest.

Pele back

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — New York Cosmos star, Pele, whose dazzling scoring took Brazil to World Cup victories in 1958, 1962, and 1970, was back in Maracana Stadium Wednesday, wearing his No. 10 green and yellow Brazil team jersey for the first time in five years.

Pele, 35, who scored 124 goals in 125 games during his 17-year career with Santos Soccer Club, played the first 45-minute half, but did not score any goals.

Sahlsues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comedian Mort Sahl sued Hilton Hotels Wednesday, charging he was beaten by an employee of the Las Vegas Hilton.

Sahl gave no details of the incident, other than that he was assaulted Oct. 8, 1975. He asked for damages, the amount to be determined later.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Sid Caesar plays a wheelchair-tied character in his latest movie, "Fire Sale." A good thing, too.

The motorized wheelchair he was using ran over his foot, breaking a bone and putting him in the chair for real.

Common name

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The most common name on the Virginia election rolls is not Jones or Smith, but Carter by a long shot.

A board spokesman said Wednesday that if all the Carters in Virginia were in to presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, the Democrat could sweep the state in November.

The second most common name in the state is Johnson, the spokesman said.

Lyndon B. Johnson was the last Democrat to carry the state in a presidential election.

Suspect 'pinched'

VERCELLI, Italy (UPI) — Angelo Antero was breathing heavily and making a strange "whistling" noise, so a policeman reached over and pinched his nose.

Out popped a diamond.

Police in this northern Italian city said they took Antero, 37, to the police station for questioning about the $4,800 he was flashing about town.

When police asked him to empty his pockets, he discreetly stuck the diamond up his nose — into what he thought would be a safe hiding place.

"He was panting and making such a whistling noise that I pinched his nose," said one officer.

Antero and two other men were charged with illegal possession of valuable property, but were released and sent home to Naples.

Balloonist finds early leg of Europe trip a gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Edward Yost cruised eastward off the coast of Newfoundland today aboard a helium balloon with no apparent problems in the third day of his attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

"He's in pretty good shape," reported one of Yost's associates Wednesday night at a listening station here in radio contact with the ball-balloonist.

The associate said Yost was about 80 miles north of the center of Newfoundland and a little bit east" about 11 p.m. EDT Wednesday, and was moving in an easterly direction on his attempt to be the first to cross the Atlantic by balloon.

Yost said at last report, "It was clear — there were no clouds — but a little cool," the associate said.

He said the 57-year-old balloonist from Sioux Falls, S.D., "has got everything you could have" in preparation for all types of weather conditions.

The two-ton balloon carries food, fuel, clothing as well as sophisticated communications and navigation equipment.

Yost's crew launched his balloon, the "Silver Fox," from a grassy field in Milbridge, Maine, Tuesday after waiting for several weeks for favorable weather conditions.

A TWA pilot, Harry Repak, 36, of Hidgefield, Conn., who also is a balloonist, has set up an inflight monitoring system and plans to make two transatlantic flights daily during the course of Yost's trip and keep in touch with him by radio.

Repak's communications and those set up at a private residence in Washington, communications center has been set up in London at Heathrow Airport.

Chicago Daily News CHICAGO — Custom vans, which have been riding the crest of the youth market, swing open their doors today for a "Chicago On Wheels" show.

Gaily painted vans with cozy interiors of fake fur, shag rugs and stereo bells will star with custom fad cycles.

More than 300 of the vehicles are on display in the four-day show.

Van popularity spurred a decade ago among the youth culture of the California coast and spread rapidly eastward. Now there is a newer, older market.

"Vans are the fastest growing form of leisure time activity," said Robert Boch, general manager of Mr. Van Inc. of Elk Grove, Ill.

Criminal situation blamed for deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — An elderly German couple robbed once too often, committed suicide because "they couldn't put up with the criminal situation," authorities say.

Police said the bodies of Hans Kabel, 78, and his 70-year-old wife, Emma, were found Wednesday in their Bronx apartment, hanged and with their wrists slashed. A letter in German lying nearby gave instructions for burial.

A homicide detective said the Kabels' friends told him the couple was distraught over being mugged twice.

"They killed themselves because they couldn't stand to be 'robbed again,'" he said. "They couldn't put up with the criminal situation in the Bronx anymore."

Edward Seimer, a neighbor who said he knew the Kabels for 40 years, said, "They figured that when you get old and you have to live in fear — it wasn't worth it anymore."

Friends said the couple had told them they were con-

Second presidential debate called 'tossup'

MAGIC VALLEY — Viewers of last night's presidential debate between Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford generally thought the event a tossup between the two candidates, with Carter possibly having a slight edge.

The results of a Magic Valley telephone poll this morning found voters in the traditionally Republican counties of southern Idaho saying the debate did not produce a clear-cut winner. Voter reaction to the most recent debate was different from the reaction after the first debate two weeks ago when most voters polled thought Ford was the clear winner.

However, voters in the San Francisco debate last night seemed somewhat lower.

About half of those people contacted by the Times-News had not watched the debates. Two weeks ago, more than 60 percent of those contacted had watched the debates.

Carter's strong showing last night was offset to some degree by the feeling among Magic Valley voters that Carter came down too hard on Ford's personal leadership and that Carter was not tough enough on specific Republican issues.

Gene Reinbold, Twin Falls, felt Jimmy Carter had the slight edge in last night's presidential candidate debate.

Reinbold said, "I think Carter had a slight edge on him in some points. I think there was a point or two where of course he didn't, but there seemed a slight edge for him. He was perhaps a little more decisive in his presentation than in his previous debate. I also think Ford came along from in his previous debate too."

Sam Thomas, Twin Falls, gave the advantage to President Ford.

Thomas said, "I figured Ford had the advantage really. I give him a slight edge."

Jerry Dellinger, Twin Falls, felt Carter scored a little better than Ford.

"Based on Mr. Ford's seeming error in the Eastern European nations," Jack Rasmussen, Twin Falls, said; "I think Jimmy Carter won. Ford indicated that he was not willing to admit that Eastern European nations are dominated by Russia, when most people think they are. I question whether or not the debates will change my vote. Debates do not change these stands."

"I would say with me it was a tie between Carter and Ford. Probably not, though, I couldn't see a clear-cut winner," Ed McCollough, Twin Falls, added.

"No one won the debate last night. I'm not too impressed with either of these guys. I don't see how they're going to win. I don't think it will affect my vote either way," Larry Woolstenhulme, Twin Falls, said.

John Gentry saw Carter the winner.

"I think that Carter had him on the defensive. I question Ford's remarks about Russia not having any influence in Eastern Europe. I don't know what he was thinking. I don't think he wanted to correct himself during the debate. Both were more well prepared than they were for the first debate. I don't think it will affect people's voting. It won't affect mine. I'm going to vote for the lesser of two evils," Gentry of Twin Falls, said.

Five or eight people surveyed in the Hamley-Ketchum area this morning watched or listened to the debates last night.

Four others were at work or out of their homes during the debates. The four people who watched the debates seemed to have decided to vote for President Ford this fall.

None of those polled seemed to feel either Carter or Ford was the victor in last night's debate.

Mrs. Verbin Murphree, Halley, said Ford was "impressive."

Mrs. Annette Melmon, Halley, said she felt "Ford had his own but I don't know as though I would call him a winner."

Annette Melmon, Halley, said Ford seemed to be the stronger candidate in last night's debate. But she termed the debate a "tossup."

Four out of 10 Blinn-Cassia area residents polled said they had watched. One had a broken television set.

Don Courtright, Rupert, said, "I think Carter had the edge. I don't think the debates are influencing many."

Arvin Hansen, Rupert, commented, "I think that Carter had the edge last night. He had a little easier flow of voice and had a little more public appeal than Ford. Ford was a little rough."

"The debates didn't influence me, but I think they are influencing those that are on the fence. Personally, I don't know if I'd vote for either one of them, but I guess you have to vote for someone. My choice would have been Harry Goldwater or Ronald Reagan," he added.

Mrs. Vincent Brown, Burley, said, "I like President Ford. I think he had the edge. It didn't influence my vote. I don't know what it might influence others."

Mrs. Dale Dammron, Burley, commented, "I kind of go for Ford. I didn't enjoy it last night as much as the first debate. I think it was a tossup. I'd made up my mind so neither debate really did too much. There are some they're influencing."

Buhl school bond vote Oct. 12

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer

BUHL — Approval of the $2.5 million bond issue Oct. 12 by voters in the Buhl school district would give the district a new three-year high school and provide space for a three-year junior high school.

School board members say the district presently owns property on which the new high school building would be located. It was purchased through a five-mill levy which was authorized in the district in January 1975.

The site is the former Wilson property, just north of the elementary school. School trustees, working with the school administration and faculty and a 15-member citizens' advisory committee, determined the need for a new high school building last year. A bond issue asked at that time failed to reach the necessary two-thirds majority by only a few hundred votes.

Essentially the same plan is being proposed for the Oct. 12 bond issue this year. If the issue passes, sophomores, juniors and seniors would have to move into the high school building.

The present high school building would be converted to a junior high for grades seven, eight and nine. This would permit the district to abandon the old P.H. Buhl school which has been in use since 1908.

Officials in the district have been advised the building is no longer safe or adequate for school use and that renovation costs would exceed the cost of new construction.

If a new building is built, future plans have been made for the old school. Trustees say it will probably not be demolished.

None of the bond money would be used for school construction or improvements, school board members say. It would be used exclusively for the new high school building.

Addition of the new high school would make additional curriculum and educational facilities possible for the junior high grades as well as for the senior high school. Dan Mabe, school superintendent, said,

Junior high school students, including all instrumental and vocal music classes, girls' physical education, seventh grade reading and some eighth grade reading classes as well as all art classes must now walk to the high school building for these classes.

Under the new plan, Mabe said, only music students may have to return to the old high school building.

He said some residents in Buhl feel the new building should be for junior high school students but others feel it should be a high school building. Mabe said it was the recommendation of the citizens' committee, after much study, that the district build a new high school.

"We feel they had some good recommendations and the board decided to accept these recommendations in full," Mabe said.

He said the addition of a home economics department to the new building and a return to square instead of triangular shaped classrooms are the only changes in building plans approved a year ago.

The proposed new building would have 11 classrooms, two science labs and preparation room, an agriculture and industrial arts classroom and shop, a speech and drama classroom and lab, home economics department, business education classes, library or media center, physical education facilities to include basketball floor and multi-purpose room and administrative offices.

Demos plan hoedown

PLAZA — Idaho Democrats will sponsor an old-fashioned hoedown as a political fund raiser Friday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Fler.

The event, which begins at 7 p.m. and is planned to raise money for the campaign of Second District congressional candidate Stan Kress, will feature speeches by Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Lt. Gov. John Evans, State Treasurer Majorie Ruth Moon and State Auditor Joe Williams, according to Twin Falls County Democratic Chairman Steve Moon.

The evening will also include music, square dancing and an auction. The music will be provided by three area musical groups, the Buhl Swingband, "Hodge and Robinette" and a group of fiddlers.

The auction will be run by an auctioneer, with Gov. Andrus assisting. Anyone wishing to donate any type of commodities or baked goods is asked to do so, according to Carter.

Kress will also speak at the event. Admission will be by donation, and the entire public is invited.

Kress will also appear Thursday night at the opening of Democratic Headquarters in Twin Falls.

Kress, as well as Democratic legislative candidates George Anthony and Rex Reed, will attend the opening at 7 p.m., 239 Main Ave. W., to answer questions and talk with constituents.

Unconfirmed reports circulated earlier that Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter might appear at the fund raiser.

Carter campaigned in Salt Lake City today and Idaho Democrats attempted to contact Carter's tour and see whether he could swing through Idaho. However, Carter apparently could not make the connection.

Swine flu clinics set

TWIN FALLS — Swine flu vaccinations in Magic Valley will be administered over the coming two months in regular immunization clinics and in special mass clinics in all eight counties of the area, by the South Central Health District.

Mass clinics in Twin Falls County will be the last to be scheduled because of larger populations here. A Times-News story Wednesday said the "Twin Falls Clinic" would be the last to receive vaccine. It should have read the Twin Falls clinic would be the last. Information does not refer to the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital or medical clinic operated under the trade name of Twin Falls Clinic. The Twin Falls Clinic has swine flu vaccine and has been giving immunization to customers for some time.

SV sets November opening

SUN VALLEY — Bald Mountain skiing opens Nov. 19 this year as Sun Valley Co. prepares for its longest winter season ever.

The resort will remain open until April 17, which gives nearly five months of skiing to winter enthusiasts.

Sun Valley Co. has named two new ski runs after the first U.S. woman to win an Olympic gold medal and the well-known ski instructor who apparently drowned in the Salmon River this summer.

Gretchen's Gold, the run that follows the new Seattle Ridge lift, has been named after Gretchen Fraser, the first woman to win gold and silver medals for the United States in the Switzerland Olympics in 1948.

Mrs. Fraser lives in Sun Valley. The intermediate 3,000-foot run drops 1,000 vertical feet from the Seattle Ridge summit to the narrows.

This fall, Mrs. Fraser will be honored in New York and Philadelphia at two Bicentennial banquets sponsored by the U.S. Olympic Ski Team.

Another intermediate run, between Silver Fox and Southern Comfort, has been named Byron's Park after Byron Cady, a Sun Valley ski instructor who apparently drowned while working for a float trip company on the Salmon River this summer.

Other new names for ski runs this year include Gun Tower Lane and Hour Glass.

Auditorium excluded from plans

By GEORGE WILEY

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite community support for a public auditorium, full-scale, fixed-seat facility was not included in the plans for the proposed new junior high school.

The proposed junior high does include plans for a multi-use facility which can be used for stage performances but which can be partitioned for classroom instruction as well.

A fixed-seat auditorium comparable to the Fine Arts Center at the College of Southern Idaho, which could be used both by the public and the school district may be the object of a future bond issue.

The auditorium question arose last spring when the school district began laying plans for its bond election for the new junior high, which is scheduled Tuesday.

Through a series of Citizens' Bond Committee meetings the pros and cons of including a full-fledged auditorium were explored. While many participants favored a full-scale facility, disputes arose over where the facility should go.

Some favored making the auditorium a part of the new junior high, others favored placing it at the high school where the performing arts receive more emphasis and where community access would be greater.

But the Citizens' Committee also had to consider the question of cost. School district architect Jim Smallwood estimated a fixed-seat facility for about 500 persons would cost from $1.5 to $1.8 million.

With the cost of the new school itself at that time estimated at $3 million to $4 million, a full-scale auditorium did not seem financially feasible.

On Aug. 10 Citizens' Committee co-chairmen Daniel Slavin and Robert King submitted the committee's recommendation to the school board — build a multi-use auditorium basically for school district use.

Working from that recommendation, Smallwood arrived at the current proposal. That proposal calls for a sloped floor facility with a raised stage but without fixed seats. Instead, the stage will be slanted and equipped with flat concrete pads to hold movable chairs.

While it will not have the technical capacity for stage shows nor the creature comforts of a full-scale auditorium, the proposed facility will be versatile for school use.

With partitions capable of dividing the facility into three separate sections, band, drama, speech and orchestra activities can take place simultaneously. Since the auditorium can also be used for stage plays and in the evening for civic activities, Smallwood maintains it will almost never sit vacant. It will, he says, "be used 150 percent of the time."

The cost of the proposed multi-use auditorium, which will comprise one of three building complexes at the new school, has been isolated.

The arts center is projected to contain about 15,000 square feet of floor space, however, and based on a square footage cost for the school area of about $28.40, the multi-use auditorium should cost about $576,000, a figure well below the projected cost of a full-scale community facility.

The irony with the proposed multi-use facility is that the public would apparently prefer a full-scale auditorium.

After the Citizens' Committee made its recommendation for the multi-use, school-oriented facility, it conducted a poll which asked 300 Twin Falls householders what they wanted in the way of an auditorium.

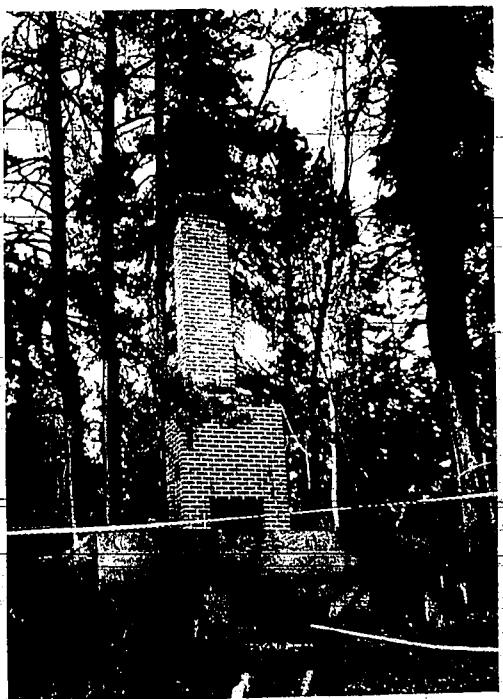

Response to that poll showed 63 percent of all respondents preferred a facility for community use. Only 20.7 percent of the respondents favored a facility primarily for school district use, while another 11 percent favored a facility for use of the junior high only.

To add to the irony of the poll, it now appears that the school district's bonding capacity is sufficient to fund a full-scale auditorium.

While the bonding capacity of the district was earlier estimated at about $5.3 million, increases in assessed valuation on this year have raised that capacity to about $6.7 million. With the bond issue set at $4.9 million that would leave the district with $1.8 million it could ask from voters in bonds, just about the amount a full-scale auditorium has been estimated to cost.

Despite the public support for a full scale auditorium and the increase in bonding capacity which might fund the facility, the school board is going ahead with its current proposal and saving the question of a full-scale auditorium until later.

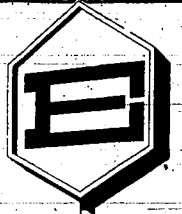

Home destroyed

ONLY the fireplace and chimney remain of the summer home owned by W. B. Savage, Kimberly. Fire destroyed the building Tuesday afternoon. Sawtooth National Forest officials say cause of the fire in the South Hills home is undetermined but an investigation is underway. The cabin is located in the Deadline summer home area in Southern Twin Falls County, near Magic Mountain. No estimate of loss was available.

Church still owes funds for campaign

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church told a news conference Wednesday that he still owes $50,000 from his unsuccessful presidential campaign but hopes to pay the debts by the end of the year.

Church said he will travel around the country to fund-raising events to get the money, once the election campaign has ended. He stressed that he will seek the funds from outside Idaho, saying he felt Idahoans had contributed enough support to the "late, late strategy" that failed to win him the Democratic nomination.

He said he called the news conference to discuss three measures passed by this session of the Congress: one by the Forest Management Act of 1976, the BLM Organic Act and an in-leave payments bill designed to compensate local units of government in states with large federal land holdings for lost tax revenues.

When Church opened the news conference, First District congressional candidate Ken Pursley was at his side. In response to a question Pursley said members of the Congress should be prohibited by law at all times from accepting corporate favors and not just during an election year.

Church said this session of the Congress was the most productive for public land states such as Idaho that he can remember. He disagreed with the Idaho Environmental Council that the Forest Management Act would open the national forests to overcutting of timber.

He said a conference committee wrote a modified bill which is flexible enough to permit harvest of mature forests which need to be cut more rapidly.

"I'm satisfied it's a well-balanced bill," Church said. Grazing fees posed a serious problem to passage of the BLM Organic Act, he said, and nearly scuttled the legislation. He said a compromise was worked out whereby the fees would be frozen at least a year while the agencies involved studied the problem and worked out recommendations to the Congress.

Under the in-leave payments bill, he said, Idaho counties stand to get $3 million more in federal revenues than they have in the past. All counties will share in the funds, he added.

A national energy policy still is needed, Church said, but probably will be enacted only if the voters pick a president willing to stand up to the oil companies.

He said that since the Nixon declaration of his "Project Independence" three years ago the United States has gone from depending on foreign sources for one-third of its oil to one-half of its oil.

On other matters, he said: — President Ford should have fired Earl Butz as agriculture secretary when he heard about Butz's racial remarks about blacks and not wait until he assessed their political impact.

— Insofar as it reflects unequal administration of justice, he believes Ford's pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon is a legitimate campaign issue. He contrasted the pardon with the criminal trials which confronted Nixon lieutenant.

— He would do all he can to try to keep open Boise Cascade Corporation's McCull Sawmill but said the issue is complicated one, adding that the mill remained in small, independent ownership there would have been plenty of timber under legislation setting it aside for small businesses.

Committee unable to pinpoint source

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ethics Committee Wednesday said it was "represen- sible" that David Schorr, a pass on a source House intelligence committee report for publication but admitted it had been unable to pinpoint who leaked the report.

It concluded someone "on, or very close" to the staff of the defunct House intelligence committee gave Schorr the report, and neither the White House nor government agencies apparently were involved.

The ethics panel castigated Schorr, the news media and the intelligence committee staff in the final report on its $300,000, four-month investigation into the leak of papers outlining covert CIA activities.

"It called the intelligence committee staff 'inexperienced, overly aggressive and threatening in their approach.'"

The committee also lectured media reporters on their First Amendment responsibilities, and proposed a corps of professional security officers to control all classified material coming before House committees.

The committee voted earlier not to seek a contempt of Congress citation against Schorr, the former CBS newsmen, for giving the report to the Village Voice newspaper for publication. Its final report added the committee "does consider his actions in causing publication of the report to be reprehensible."

"The report said 'The committee... concludes that the original leak was someone on or very close to the select committee on intelligence' staff."

Some committee members earlier said privately they knew who did the actual leaking but they would never be able to prove it without Schorr's testimony and therefore would not reveal the name.

Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., a member of the committee, immediately criticized the proposal for security officers and the committee's "lecture to the press."

Four other members of the committee — Chairman John Flynt, D-Ga., Floyd Spence, R-S.C., Olin Teague, D-Tex., and Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich. — said in separate views in the report that failure to act against Schorr made little sense.

The report noted the intelligence committee headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., had difficulty with intelligence agencies and administration officials in getting documents it sought.

But, it said, intelligence officials also were concerned over the Pike committee because they felt "the committee staff members were basically young, inexperienced, overly aggressive and threatening in their approach. An attitude of distrust resulted."

As for the press, the ethics panel said "self-policing of the profession certainly will reduce the potential for a constitutional confrontation on the 1st amendment (violation of the press). A wider adherence by journalists to their canons and ethics also would help."

SHOULD Mayor Paul Ostyn's home burn, he and his family will have an excellent chance of escaping injury or death. Twin Falls Fire Chief Bobby Bopp, left, and Fire Marshal Fred Higgins, present Ostyn with a smoke detector. The mayor says he has an escape plan in the event of fire and will use an early warning device in meeting fire department recommendations.

Smoke detector may save life

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Half of the 12,000 deaths and 300,000 serious injuries in the country each year from fires result in home fires.

Fire Chief Bobby Bopp, Twin Falls, said this is one of the reasons this year's Fire Prevention Week program here is concentrating on early warning systems and home evacuation plans.

Chief Bopp and Fire Marshal Fred Higgins say every home should have a smoke detector for early warning in case of a house fire during the night. All members of the family, he said, should be aware of an escape route from the building. There should be a designated meeting place outside to make certain everyone is out of the home.

To call attention to this, Mayor Paul Ostyn was presented a smoke detector Wednesday by Chief Bopp and Higgins. Chief Bopp said all new homes are now required to have smoke detectors before being approved by the building inspector.

"It is equally important, or possibly more important, for older homes," he said. "These smoke detectors, placed near the central bedroom area, will not put out a fire, but they will give warning at the first sign of smoke, which will nearly always give the family time to evacuate the home and call the fire department in time to save the building."

In accepting the gift, Ostyn said while he had no smoke detector in his home, his family has long maintained an escape plan. He said his older daughter was in grade school, the firemen visited her school for a fire prevention week program as they do all schools in the city each year.

"She informed us we were going to have a plan for escape in case of a fire. It sounded like a good idea to me and we prepared a plan at that time. About once a year we meet together and go over the plan so we know what to do in case we have a fire," the mayor said.

In Woburn, Mass., Fire Chief Bopp said a news report in the Fire Journal said that a family's part in the Elm Journal fire had a new item related to the account of a house fire, saying the family had just moved into a new home. They had not yet installed the smoke detector, but left it on a kitchen shelf pending installation. During the night, the homeowner heard it sounding an alarm. Thinking it was malfunctioning, he started for the kitchen to shut it off, but when he neared the kitchen doorway, he smelled smoke.

The man removed the family from the home, called the fire department and was able to save the family and home with the exception of some fire and smoke damage in the basement.

"They do work," Chief Bopp said. Firemen urge families to prepare their home evacuation plan now, to draw it out on paper and keep it where every member of the family can review it and be reminded of their own part in the plan.

Members should help awaken others in the family by pounding on walls if the fire cuts off their room. Doors should be kept closed to prevent fire spreading, but if it is necessary to open the door to check for heat, they should be tested by reaching for heat or leaking smoke around the edges.

Bopp said a window in the bedroom, or other area of the house where the family members are located, can be broken out with any chair or other heavy item, a blanket used to cover sharp edges of broken glass and an escape made.

Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am aware that you find pornography offensive but feel that adults should be free to take it or leave it. How about children?

I recently found pictures in my 14-year-old son's room that would make Sodom and Gomorrah look like a Sunday school picnic!

While hard-core pornography is supposedly available only to adults, like drugs, it's available in abundance to kids of all ages on every street corner in America.

Our enemies suppress pornography and drugs in their own countries because they know that the way to destroy a nation is first to corrupt the morals of its youth. Corny, you think? I disagree with you and others who say that censorship violates our freedom.

If this constitutes freedom, you can have it! Believe me, a country that outlaws the ancient profession of prostitution but condones pornography is sick, sick, sick!

A FATHER

Censorship wanted

DEAR ABBY: If hard-core pornography is "available in abundance" to kids of all ages on every street corner in America (and I doubt that it is), I think the peddlers should be pinched and prosecuted.

I remind you that "our enemies" suppress many things besides pornography allegedly to avoid "moral corruption" of their youth. And if I read you right, we'd gain little by legalizing prostitution but denying adults the freedom to choose their own reading material.

DEAR ABBY: I've gone with this guy for over a year and I love him very much. He says he loves me, too, but listen to this: The other night my girlfriend and I were together changing from our regular clothes into our swimsuits in a little beach house.

My boyfriend later told me that he was "amazed" that I would show my naked body to another girl, and he actually accused me of being a lesbian! Abby, nothing could be further from the truth, but that's the way this guy had it figured out.

I did my best to assure him that he was mistaken, but he wouldn't believe me. Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous? I swear, in today's society a woman can't even kiss her own sister without someone thinking she's gay. Help me!

STRAIGHT & HURT

DEAR STRAIGHT: Your boyfriend is jumping to some rather strange conclusions. His apparent hangup needs professional counseling. If he can't see it that way, you'd better look elsewhere for a boyfriend.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked why he should tip a waiter when the chef cooked the excellent meal. Having been in the restaurant business for nearly 50 years, I think I can answer that question.

The chef (or cook) draws the highest salary in the place, and most chefs get "tipped" from the waiters and waitresses "in appreciation" for getting their orders out quickly.

You could call it "blackmail" for want of a better name, but that's the way it's done in the better restaurants. And there is no use going to the boss because a good chef is hard to find, but waiters can be had by the dozens.

Talk about your prima donna! Artists could learn a lot about temperament from these kings of the kitchen!

Visitor hires jet to take trinkets home

By ROGER SIMON
Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — A tourist came to the United States this week and stopped off in Chicago to buy a few trinkets to remind him of his visit.

Funny thing, though, he didn't buy any satin pillows that said "My Kind of Town!" or ceramic ashtrays in the shape of Mayor Richard J. Daley's head. And he didn't take the things home in a J.C. Penney's shopping bag, either.

Instead, this particular visitor stocked up on a few items, went to the Circle-Airflight Corp. near O'Hare Airport and had to hire a Boeing 747 cargo jet for $194,500.

The tourist is the Sultan of Oman, Qabus bin Said (he thinks your name sounds funny, too) and, to be fair, he needed a Boeing 747 for his shopping spree. The knickknacks he purchased included:

- Six Cadillac DeVilles
- A Cadillac Eldorado
- Six Mercedes-Benz sedans.
- A 25-foot, cigar-shaped speedboat.
- A Chevy truck.
- A Targa Porsche.
- A Porsche 911S.
- A hundred women's Samsonte suitcases.
- Sixteen refrigerators.
- A garage.
- Twenty-four thousand pounds of automotive tools.
- Three grapefruit trees.
- Two Lazy Boy reclining chairs.

The people who own the 747, Seaboard World

Airlines, told me that Qabus' purchases ran to $1.5 million. That seemed a little high to me and since I don't want to see a foreign visitor gypged on our shores, I called the place where Qabus bought the cars.

Tom Ogara answered the phone at Maloney Coach Builders in northwest suburban Rolling Meadows and I confronted him immediately.

"It says on the cargo manifest that these cars are covered inside with mountain lamb," I said. "Where did you get mountains in Rolling Meadows?"

Mr. Ogara was very polite. "That is not mountain lamb," he said.

"That is moulin lamb. It means baby lamb."

"Ok," I shut back. "Where did you get the baby lamb?"

"From very small lambs, I assume," Mr. Ogara said.

Mr. Ogara convinced me that everything was legitimate. "These cars come with special bodies, special beverage sets, walnut writing desks and velvet interiors. And, after all, they are armored."

Armored?

"Well, certainly," he said. "Certain, uh, governments would prefer to have their cars armored. We also do cars for Elvis Presley and Liberace."

There was only one thing troubling me. "What does the Sultan need a Chevy truck for?" I asked. "I bet there's not a drive-in movie in all of Oman."

'Child Find' plan launched

BOISE (UPI) — The search for handicapped children who are not in school will begin this month as the third year of "Idaho Child Find" is launched by the Department of Education.

The program is aimed at making sure all school-age children in Idaho take advantage of a free public education in programs that fit their needs.

Some 800 children were located through the project in the past two years ranging in age from birth to 20 years old.

School and pre-school programs and services were arranged.

Brochures and posters are being distributed by Idaho Child Find with coupons that can be filled out and returned identifying children who may not be getting the services they need.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Blue denim tuxedos may become the new fashion in men's formal wear if Jimmy Carter is elected president, according to the head of a clothing firm.

Benjamin J. Gingsiss, head of what he says is the world's largest company specializing in formal wear, designed the new line of denim evening wear with the Georgia Democrat in mind.

"We haven't had anybody in the White House with fair in clothing since the Kennedys, and if Gov. Carter is elected, I think the denim tuxedo I designed will be just the thing he wants. I think he'll love it, even if he isn't elected," said Gingsiss, who has sold formal wear to Carter in the past.

Although Gingsiss originally planned to give Carter the tuxedo, the candidate has a strict policy about not accepting gifts.

"Of course, I'll sell it to him for about $150," Gingsiss said.

He says if he designed a tuxedo for President Ford it would be the traditional version, possibly with a cutaway jacket.

The formal wear manufacturer began his company in 1936 when he borrowed $500 and now he boasts over 130 stores across the country.

Blue denim tuxedo, anyone?

"You see, Gov. Carter has done a lot of business with our Atlanta stores and we already had his size (30-40 reg. reg.) when we conceived the idea of a denim tux," Gingsiss said.

The Atlanta stores sold formal wear to Carter and his family for his two sons' weddings and business between Gingsiss and the Plains penum farmer has continued to be brisk, he said.

The denim design doesn't look like a pair of bibbed overalls — it's a three-piece outfit with a vest and navy satin trim on the slacks, buttons and around the collar. The fabric can be worn year-round, Gingsiss said.

"National leaders have a profound influence on the way people live, act and dress. President Kennedy showed this with his clothing, even creating a new knot in the 11-11-11-11-11 even equation," he said.

"Fashion's reflected the history of the country and the different moods we've seen. And the formal wear business is the same; People are becoming more relaxed and still want to preserve an elegant touch for the evening," Gingsiss said.

Poll selects 10 winners

Blonde and boyish, raven-haired and violet-eyed, and charmingly candid proved to be "beautiful" assets to celebrities of films, television and politics who were voted winners in the First Annual Earth Born Baby Beauty Contest.

Ranking at the top of the ten-winners circle were Robert Redford, Hollywood's current "golden boy" and Elizabeth Taylor whose reputation as one of the most beautiful women in the world dates back to 1946 when she sprung out of her diapers and onto the American screen in "National Velvet."

Proving that beauty is more than skin deep is close-third winner Betty Ford whose warmth, wit and personality could enhance her husband's own chances as a winner in November.

The 10 winners were selected by a poll of experts on the subject, fashion and beauty editors of major newspapers across America. Judges were asked to use their professional expertise and perhaps a crystal ball to determine from a list of well-known personalities "Guess Who Must've Been a Beautiful Baby — Cause Baby, Look at Them Now."

When contacted with the results of the balloting the "star" toddlers mercifully declined but declined to release photographs of themselves as actual tots with the excuse of "too shy." The reaction could attest to the fact that, indeed, the best "formula" for raising a grown-up beauty from a one-year-old depends on a little padding, some tucks, orthopedics and a streak or two of hair rise.

Whatever — the 1976 Earth Born Baby Beauties are (in alphabetical order): Ann-Margret, Harry Belafonte, Candice Bergen, Betty Ford, George Hamilton, Valerie Harper, Mary Tyler Moore, Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds and Elizabeth Taylor.

Rated tops

WINNERS in the First Annual Earth Born Baby Beauty Contest sponsored by Gillette include, clockwise from left, Betty Ford, George Hamilton, Burt Reynolds, Harry Belafonte, Valeria Harper, Liz Taylor, Candice Bergen, Robert Redford, Ann Margret and Mary Tyler Moore.

Great average

TOM Churchill, a 15-year-old high school student, has a better forecasting average than the national weather bureau of at least in the Dubuque, Iowa, area. He wants to be a TV weatherman (he is currently being considered by ABC officials for a weekly slot) and parlayed his knowledge into $16,000 on a television game show aired last week. He is shown at right in his forecasting station which doubles as his bedroom at home. (UPI)

CSI plans series of film showings

TWIN FALLS — Another series of film showings has been announced by the College of Southern Idaho and the Twin Falls Public Library.

"The Search for the Nile," the story of the explorers who sought for the headwaters of Africa's mighty Nile River, will be shown in six episodes beginning Oct. 12 and continuing through Nov. 17.

The films are part of the CSI and library-sponsored Films Plus program, and are funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The first episode will be shown at CSI Oct. 12 at 8 p.m. and Oct. 13 in the library at 7:30 p.m.; episode 2 will be shown Oct. 19 at 8 p.m. at CSI and Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the library; episode 3 will be shown Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. at CSI and Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the library; episode 4, Nov. 2 at 8 p.m. in CSI and Nov. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the library; episode 5, Nov. 9 at 8 p.m. in CSI and Nov. 10 in the library at 7:30 p.m. and the final episode Nov. 16 at 8 p.m. at CSI and Nov. 17 in the library at 7:30 p.m.

The series is produced by the British Broadcasting Corp. BBC team which traveled thousands of miles through Africa over a five-month period to reconstruct and film expeditions of six men and one woman who had many differences and little in common but the Nile itself. The film is based on history of the Victorian age and a true story of the adventures of those who searched for the beginning of the river.

Filming officials say the explorers were all compulsive writers and excellent recorders of the explorations were left behind. In filming the story, the BBC followed as closely as possible the locations and plain, unvarnished facts of the explorations.

The film showings are open to the public. Each episode lasts 92 minutes.

Student honored

GLYNIS PARRY, Revyn Keck, Glenns Ferry High School senior, has been named a "commended" student in the National Merit Scholarship Corporation NMSC program, according to Principal Gordon Brown, Glenns Ferry.

Keck is one of 45,000 commended students nationwide who are being recognized for their outstanding performance on the 1975 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude test National Merit Scholarship Qualifying test.

Edward C. Smith, president of the NMSC, said "The high standing of Commended students in the Merit program shows their great promise, and their attainment in this nationwide corporation deserves public recognition."

To increase their college opportunities NMSC makes it possible for regionally accredited U.S. colleges to admit, on a cost basis, the names and addresses of commended students.

Over-the-covers cuisine

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Ahhh. Breakfast in bed. Fun — if you're not the one who has to stir from the sack.

Martha Shulman has a method of offering fun for everyone — over-the-covers cuisine catered to your bedroom.

Give her 24 hour's notice and she will bring omelets and crepes on trays into your bedroom. Make the arrangements for her to get into your home and you won't even have to get out of bed.

"One thing I don't do is walk in on people. I don't think they would do it if they were squeamish about it," the 26-year-old owner of Moodream Catering, said.

Ms. Shulman and her partner, Terry Tannen, prepare all of the meal before — except the omelet which is cooked in the customer's kitchen. The breakfast — which costs $7 for one person and $10 for two — consists of a choice of fruit and spice crepes or a vegetarian omelet.

Customers must provide their own beverages and silverware, cups and plates on the kitchen counter.

"It's pretty simple," she said. "We come in with the food and our pans and just sort of present it. It takes about 15 minutes. We then leave and don't stay."

The breakfast-in-bed usually is a gift, mainly anniversaries, birthdays and weddings, Ms. Shulman said.

East let it hold. South led a second diamond and agonized for a while in an effort to decide if he should play the queen or 10 from dummy. It made no difference. East held both the ace and jack and the slam had disappeared in the blue.

South complained about bad luck, but North was not impressed. He pointed out that if South had bid six notrump instead of six spades, North would have had no worries. He would be sure of 12 tricks, since the club lead would be up to and not through his ace-queen.

North's worries were justified. North played and made six notrump at the other table and won the match.

In IMP scoring honors are not counted and a win by just 10 points on a hand is not counted. A 20-point win is worth one IMP.

Here is a hand that decided a recent match. South studied the opening lead for some time and finally decided that East held the king of clubs and that he had a mighty good chance to make his slam anyway.

He went up with dummy's ace, led a trump to his ace, cashed the ace and king of hearts, led a trump to dummy's queen, discarded his last club on one high heart,

Chairman announced

TWIN FALLS - Mrs. John Thiebes succeeds Ivan Rood as chairman of the Twin Falls Red Cross Blood Drive.

As chairman, Mrs. Thiebes will direct committees that coordinate volunteer nurses for the drive, recruit donors and handle publicity.

Blood drives are held six times a year with a quota of 200 pints per drive. This quota must be met to take care of high blood demands resulting from sporting accidents in nearby recreational areas. Red Cross needs citizen support to meet the quota.

Donated blood is given free of charge to anyone who needs it in local hospitals. Occasional blood crises occur when the Red Cross does not have enough blood stored.

The next blood drive will be held Nov. 1 at St. Edward's Parish hall, 2667th Ave. E. Mrs. Thiebes volunteered for the position of blood drive chairman after a recent meeting on the 21st.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
I have read many articles on how to lose weight with 50 varying opinions. Not once have I seen an article on how to gain weight.
I am 5 feet and 3 and I weigh 85 pounds. It is embarrassing to wear shorts and a nightgown to wear swimming trunks. I wear long gloves until the weather makes it unbearable. To sum it up I need to gain 20 pounds or more.
Everyone has been telling me that I will fill out. Well it's been a long time and I haven't yet. I eat a normal sized dinner and lunch and a small breakfast. I will not take any miracle pills or hormone shots because I think they're stupid and it's against my religion. I appreciate any help you can give.

Weight gain desired

Dear Reader—
Hormone shots are not stupid for those who need them. You may or may not need them. Growth hormone therapy is not used just because a person is on the short side; but is reserved for those with definite growth problems that have no chance to be corrected with the tincture of time and good living. You should certainly be seen and followed by an endocrinologist. He may decide you are perfectly normal and have a slow development.

Meanwhile I would suggest that you enroll in a weight training program. That will help you develop muscles. You do not need to put on fat. That is unhealthy. A good set of strong muscles should give you a well shaped body even if you are tall.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 54. Weight Training for Emergency and Weight Control. It will give you some basic information on what works and what doesn't. It may help you avoid some of the profit making practices that sometimes go along with some of the professional bodybuilding type programs. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send you letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
Why doesn't the Surgeon General put a caution on all alcoholic beverages and also some foods that are manufactured through chemicals? Chemicals not only kill people but also kill animals and most all our fishing industry.

Dear Reader—
I like your suggestion that a warning should be put on all alcoholic beverages. Certainly they are in the same ballpark with cigarettes.

While I agree with the intent of your remarks I am forced to comment that the term chemicals is misused. All the things we eat and use are chemicals. All your food is made up of combinations of chemical elements. And some chemical additives to food are beneficial. Some of the preservatives in prepared breakfast food may even protect against stomach cancer. I do agree that we need to exercise more caution and should avoid the unnecessary or non-beneficial use of additives.

As far as other pollutants are concerned I do agree rather stupid that an adobe test is used by our freely polluting the waters and then spends millions and perhaps billions removing the pollution. Prevention is important and economical in this area as well as other areas of treatment and measure.

Optimistic attitudes not conducive to 'self pity'

By ERMA BOMBECK

If there's anything I can't stand it's being around people who are optimistic about everything.

When I'm ready to drown in a pool of self-pity, I don't want anyone throwing me a sanctimonious line.

As I told a well-meaning friend the other day, "I walked by the mirror today and said, 'Mirror, mirror on the wall, who's the fairest of them all?'"

"What did it say?" Esther asked.
"I don't have to listen to language like that."
"At least you've got your health," said Esther.

"No one should be this healthy. Do you realize I've only got two dresses I can squeeze into?"
"You can only wear one dress at a time," she smiled stately.

"That's the point, turkey. I may have to start wearing both of them at the same time."
"Waste not, want not," she said.

"You know the trouble with me? I'm too cheap to throw anything away. I clean up the kids' plates like a suction nozzle on the sweeper. I don't have a mouth. I have a trunk."

"A woman never stands so tall as when she stoops to eat a crumbled cookie."
"Where did you hear that?"
"In the Bible, I think."

"Maybe said the other day I wasn't obese. I just had a lot of fat that didn't fit."

"Consider the source."

"I am considering the source, Esther. The mouth of the Nile should have such a source. Does it bother you the way Mary Tyler Moore stands around with both hands on her hips? You just know they can span her waist."

"Yes, but is she happy?"
"If she isn't, I never want to smile again. I could be a size 5 if I wanted to. If I could just stop rewarding myself for answering the phone and bringing in the milk."

"Rome wasn't built in a day," she smiled charitably.

"It's your fault I'm fat!" I charged. "You and your platitudes."

"Well, maybe you can lose a few pounds."

"Boy Esther, I never figured you for a mean mouth."

Quarterly news dark from peso

NEW YORK — Shareholders in companies that Mexican subsidiaries should be looking for some sad news when third-quarter earnings are published in a few weeks because of the 40 per cent devaluation of the peso last Aug. 31.

In many cases, the writedowns against earnings will be far larger, proportionally, than the particular company's stake in Mexico would lead one to assume.

One reason is that many foreign concerns operating in Mexico, including most of the big multinational corporations, commonly have holdings of pesos when the currency was allowed to float on the world's money markets.

Another reason, which many accountants also explained recently, was the inability of United States companies to smooth out their losses over several reporting quarters because of a relatively new accounting rule.

"Why were we caught with so many pesos?" the chief financial writer of a large international company asked rhetorically the other day. "Because we were completely surprised that's why."

On the one hand, the Mexican government created a severe credit squeeze in the two months leading up to the devaluation. You couldn't borrow a peso from a bank there.

But New York bankers, meanwhile, steadfastly dismissed the year-long talk about a peso devaluation and said they would be happy to advance us as many dollars as we needed.

"So we borrowed dollars for operating purposes and, naturally, converted them into the then scarce peso at rates that now seem criminal. That's how we were caught with so many pesos."

To the international accounting specialists at Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company, the experience of the multinational concern could have been largely avoided by following two fundamental rules.

The first company operating abroad should try to hedge as much as its local currency as it can, particularly in these days of floating rates," one Peat, Marwick accountant noted.

This can be done by selling derivatives forward in New York, Chicago or in several other major money markets.

"In the case of the peso, the forward rates were below the official 8-cent rate before the floating, but certainly above today's level of 4.5 cents."

IMF sets gold auction

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The International Monetary Fund today announced it will hold its fourth major auction of gold on Oct. 27 to help developing nations.

An IMF spokesman said terms and conditions for the auction will closely follow those of the third, at which the average bid received for an ounce of gold was $109.40.

At the fourth auction, the fund will offer 780,000 ounces of gold on a bid basis — the same quantity sold at the three preceding auctions, the spokesman said.

Women claim bias in political realm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Incumbents and two newcomers. The only woman Senate candidate to survive the primaries is Gloria Schaffer, current Connecticut secretary of state. But experts at the Women's Caucus describe her campaign against Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker as "a very long shot at this point."

Three current congresswomen retire next January. Two of them, Reps. Bella Abzug, D.N.Y., and Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, were among a number of women defeated in primary contests for the Senate.

Among the remaining 15 women incumbents, at least three — Reps. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., Gladys Spellman, D-Md., and Martha Keys, D-Kan. — are embroiled in very tough races.

On the other hand, two Democratic newcomers — Barbara Mikulski of Baltimore and Mary Rose Oskar of Cleveland, both of them now city councilwomen — are considered to be "shoo-ins."

"I think we will maintain our numbers," remarked Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass. "I think we may make some gains, but I don't think they'll be overwhelming."

Utah League seeks study of two dams

PROVO (UPI) — Citing the Teton Dam collapse in neighboring Idaho, the League of Women Voters of Provo-Utah County has asked for congressional help in forcing an independent geologic review of two Utah dams.

League President Florence Lechly wrote the state's senators and congressmen asking for their aid in getting dam inspections of Current Creek Dam and the Upper Stillwater Dam.

Current Creek is under construction and the Upper Stillwater is still in the planning and design stages.

"We noted at the conclusion of the Teton Dam investigation that the recommendation was made to investigate all dams in the design stages and those under construction," Mrs.

Lechly wrote. "We are writing in support of an independent geologic review of these two dams."

She said no public hearing was specifically held on the Current Creek Dam prior to the beginning of construction and no hearing is planned on the Upper Stillwater.

"We believe there should have been an opportunity for the citizens to make comments and to hear the reports of the Bureau of Reclamation geologists concerning the feasibility of building these dams," she said.

Mrs. Lechly added that several unsuccessful attempts had been made to obtain the feasibility report on the Upper Stillwater. She said the 1966 report "indicated the dam should not be built."

Lechly wrote the state's senators and congressmen asking for their aid in getting dam inspections of Current Creek Dam and the Upper Stillwater Dam.

Current Creek is under construction and the Upper Stillwater is still in the planning and design stages.

"We noted at the conclusion of the Teton Dam investigation that the recommendation was made to investigate all dams in the design stages and those under construction," Mrs.

Lechly wrote. "We are writing in support of an independent geologic review of these two dams."

She said no public hearing was specifically held on the Current Creek Dam prior to the beginning of construction and no hearing is planned on the Upper Stillwater.

400 register

BOISE (UPI) — Over 400 persons have registered for the White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals, scheduled at Boise State University Friday and Saturday.

Bart Brown, conference director, said Wednesday two thirds of the participants will be handicapped persons and the rest will be observers.

"This is the first time the handicapped individuals themselves will have direct input," Brown said.

"They will speak to the social, health, economic, educational and special concerns they have," he said.

Topics to be dealt with in those areas include, architectural and transportation barriers, civil rights of the handicapped and effects of an accident that leaves a person handicapped.

Brown said handicapped delegates to the White House Conference in Washington D. C. will be elected at the Boise conference.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office says it did not time the release of its controversial report on the Mayaguez incident to coincide with Wednesday's foreign policy debate, between President Ford and Jimmy Carter.

The 162-page GAO report was critical of the White House decision to send in the Marines to recapture the Mayaguez by force when the new Cambodia Communist government had already decided to turn it loose.

In last year's three-day incident, 41 U.S. servicemen died fighting over the American merchant ship and 39 crewmen seized by Cambodia.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Wednesday said the GAO report was based on "inadequate materials."

Timing of release coincidental?

Witnesses can testify in Arizona bomb trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A Superior Court judge has ruled that two prosecution witnesses will be allowed to testify if called to the stand during the trial of John Harvey Adamson, charged with the bombing death of reporter Don Bolles.

But in denying a defense request to bar the two witnesses from testifying, Judge Frederic Heineman said Adamson's attorneys could raise their objections again during the trial.

The defense attorneys argued that Clifford Mattox, and Phoenix contractor Max Dunlap had changed their stories during police interviews and had failed police lie detector tests.

Heineman also took under advisement defense motions to dismiss the murder charge and to delay the start of Adamson's trial 60 days. The judge said he would hear additional pre-trial motions Thursday.

Bolles was injured June 2 by a bomb that exploded under his car as he backed out of a parking lot at the Hotel Clarendon. He had gone to the hotel, reportedly to meet Adamson, but Adamson failed to show up. Bolles died 11 days later.

During Tuesday's hearing, the prosecution and the defense agreed as a matter of record that Mattox failed a lie detector test administered by Phoenix police Aug. 25.

In that test, Mattox was asked whether he had told "the whole truth about this matter," whether he was walking by the parking lot the day the bomb went off, and whether he was "withholding information about this matter."

Heineman said it is impossible to predict what a witness will say on the stand and he agreed with the prosecution that it is up to a jury to decide whether a witness is telling the truth.

Mattox is expected to testify that he saw Adamson in the hotel parking lot a short time before the explosion. Dunlap told police he delivered a sack of money, brought to his home by an unidentified man, to Adamson for legal expenses before Adamson was charged with the murder.

Wills rejoins Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Maury Wills rejoined the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday as an instructor in base-stealing, hitting and fielding.

Dodgers president Peter O'Malley announced that the former star shortstop still will be able to take assignments as a baseball announcer for NBC-TV on weekends.

Wills, 44, had been reported among the candidates for manager of the San Francisco Giants, who are scheduled to announce a successor to Bill Rigney Thursday.

O'Malley said Wills would begin his duties as "organizational instructor" immediately.

He will work with the Dodger team in the Arizona Instructional League and also be involved in winter workouts at Dodger Stadium. Wills will be on hand also for spring training with the major league club at Vero Beach, Fla.

Pats' sales surge

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New-England Patriots, handling a crush of ticket requests in the aftermath of a three-game winning streak, Wednesday announced expanded box office hours at Schaefer Stadium.

The club said many tickets are available for the four remaining home games: Monday night Oct. 18 against the New York Jets, Nov. 7 against Buffalo, Nov. 28 against Denver and Dec. 5 against New Orleans.

Orioles sign five

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Before the Orioles dispersed for the winter, General Manager Hank Peters signed five more players, bringing to eight the number under contract for 1977, the team announced Wednesday.

The newly signed players include 126 May, voted the most valuable Oriole for 1976, and catcher Ritek Dempsey, both of whom agreed to terms for 1977 and 1978, and the veteran gold glove shortstop Mark Brenner, who signed a three-year pact extending through 1979.

In addition, outfielder Andres Mora from Mexico and pitcher Dennis Martinez signed for 1977.

Cards cut Uphaw

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Defensive tackle Marvin Uphaw, unable to provide the St. Louis Cardinals with the needed pass rush, was placed on waivers by the team Wednesday.

The Cardinals also said they again had signed free agent Les Brooks, who apparently had been beaten out of a job by Uphaw in the preseason and was released Sept. 7 after three years with St. Louis.

Uphaw was acquired last April with safety Mike Sensibaugh in a trade which sent promising young defensive back Tim Gray to the Kansas City Chiefs. Uphaw started five years for the Chiefs but missed most of last season with a knee injury.

Jazz trims Bucks

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Rich Kelley scored 20 points Wednesday night to lead the New Orleans Jazz to a 108-97 National Basketball Association exhibition win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The 7-foot center from Stanford was aided by forward Nate Williams with 17 points and guard Louie Nelson with 15 as the Jazz ran their exhibition record to 4-0.

The Bucks, now 1-3 in preseason play, were led by center Elmore Smith, with 24 points. Guard Brian Winters had 12 points and forward Bob Dandridge 10.

Bullets waive rookie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Tallent, a rookie from George Washington University, was put on waivers late Wednesday by the Washington Bullets, reducing the squad to 14 players.

Tallent, a 6-foot-3 guard, was the sixth-round draft choice of the Bullets.

The squad must be cut to 12 players by Oct. 22, the opening of the National Basketball Association season.

The Bullets were left with three rookies, Larry Wright, Mitch Kupchak and Joe Pace.

Dodger players cited

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "Digger" Don Sutton has been named Pitcher of the Month and teammate Steve Garvey Player of the Month for September by the National League, it was announced Wednesday.

This was the first time in the six-year history of the awards that two players from the same team have been honored in the same month.

During the month Sutton reeled off five consecutive victories on the way to his first 20-win season. He allowed only three earned runs in 56 innings for an earned run average of 0.49.

The veteran right-hander finished the season with a 21-10 record and a 3.06 ERA.

Monday game hits peak

NEW YORK (UPI) — More viewers tuned into this week's Minnesota-Pittsburgh NFL game than any Monday night broadcast since ABC-TV started Monday Night Football.

The veteran right-hander finished the season with a 21-10 record and a 3.06 ERA.

Tanner not on Buc list

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Pirates General Manager Harding-Peterson said Wednesday that Oakland A's manager Chuck Tanner was not under consideration to replace retiring Danny Murtagh as Pirate manager.

"I've put Tanner out of my mind," Peterson said. "I have not talked to Tanner. He's definitely not one of the candidates because he's under contract."

Somebody's got

Navy's goat

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Someone has navy's goat and suspicions point towards Colorado Springs, Colo.

Tom Bates, Navy sports information director, said Wednesday that Billy XX was stolen last weekend from the Academy's Dairy Farm near Annapolis. The Angus Goat is the school's mascot and stands on the sidelines during middle home football games.

Navy plays Air Force Saturday and it is thought the Cadets may have goat-naped Billy.

Gura draws Royals' starting assignment

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Larry Gura, a left-hander with a personal vendetta against the New York Yankees, Wednesday, was named to pitch for the Kansas City Royals against the Yankees in the Saturday's opening game of the American League playoffs.

Royals manager Whitey Herzog said right-hander Dennis Leonard, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., would start Sunday's second game at Royals' Stadium. Herzog made no starting assignments for the third game of the series, next Tuesday at New York, but inferred he would use left-hander Andy Hassler.

Gura finished the season with a 4-0 record, having made only two starts and 18 relief appearances. Leonard has been the big man in the Royals' starting rotation, posting a 17-10 record. But he has lost four of his last five decisions.

Hassler was acquired by the Royals in July after having lost 17 games in a row over two years with the California Angels. He lost his first decision at Kansas City but then won four straight games and finished at Kansas City with a 5-4 record and a 2.89 earned run average.

Hassler has been bothered with back spasms since a free-for-all broke out 10 days ago during the Royals game at Oakland but pitched good in Wednesday's intrasquad game and Herzog said he was ready for playoff action. Had Hassler not been able to pitch, Herzog would have started right-hander Doug Rief in the second game and Leonard in the third game.

Gura has a long-time grievance with Yankees Manager Billy Martin over what he considers unfair treatment. It stems back to his days with Martin at Texas. Gura was with the Yankees at the start of this season and after failing to make an appearance was traded to Kansas City for catcher Fran Healy on May 16.

"I wish I could start all three games," said Gura. "I just hope I don't throw the ball through the screen."

Herzog said the starting assignment for Gura had nothing to do with his feelings about the Yankees.

"I'm not starting him because of any incentive," said Herzog. "I am starting him because he is the best I've got. And it looks like he can stand the pressure."

Gura pitched 62.3 innings for the Royals this year and made only two starts, but the second one was a big game. The Royals had lost four games in a row and held a 2-1-2 game lead over the Oakland A's just a week ago when Gura was given the starting assignment. He responded with a four-hitter and the Royals won 4-0.

That was when Herzog, whose team has been plagued with pitching injuries since the opening day, decided to let him pitch.

"It makes me feel a lot better to know they (the Royals' coaching staff) have confidence in me," said Gura. "I always had the confidence in myself it was just a matter of pitching."

Gura said pressure was no concern of his but he did worry a bit about being overexposed to do well against the Yankees, whom he one-hit over 72.3 innings of relief in Kansas City Sept. 11.

"Pressure is when you are not sure you can do something and I know I can pitch," said Gura. "If I was out playing golf, I'd feel pressure because I'd have doubts about what I can do but not pitching."

As for going against the Yankees, he said: "I remember when I pitched against them earlier I couldn't get a ball over when I was warming up but then I got in the game and settled down," said Gura. "I just hope I don't throw the ball over the stadium or something."

Hassler never even had dreams of being in the playoffs a year ago this time, when he was a mop-up relief pitcher for the Angels and wondering if he would ever win another game.

"Having been through that really makes this all a lot easier," said the left-hander. "I've had the worst pressure of all (coming within one loss of setting a major league record for consecutive defeats) so things will be easier."

Kapstein finds free agent market booming

WARWICK, R.I. (UPI) — There's less than a month to the Nov. 4 free agent draft of unsigned major leaguers and the closeness of the date isn't bothering player bargainer Tom Kapstein one bit.

"I have been conducting intensive talks this week with many major league clubs about those players who are free agents, and all discussions have been under the guide lines set down by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn," Kapstein said Wednesday.

"I'm extremely satisfied with the tone of the discussion. I can't identify the talkers, but I can say they are going by the rules."

Pitchers Don Gullett of Cincinnati, infielder Dave Cash of Philadelphia and pitcher Doyle Alexander of the New York Yankees are excluded from talks because their clubs are involved in the playoffs. Kapstein has been discussing with clubs his other eight clients — infielders Sam Rice and Gene Tenace, outfielders Joe Rudi and Don Baylor and pitcher Rolfe Fingers of Oakland, infielder Bobby Grich and pitcher Wayne Garand of Baltimore and outfielder Steve Brye of Minnesota.

"I'm close to completing negotiations for one of the eight," said Kapstein. "We're hoping we can reach an agreement soon with Calvin Griffith on Brye. I haven't talked to Finley about his people."

Kapstein said he was "pledged to confidentiality" as to which clubs are after which players. After the Nov. 4 deadline, he can begin financial negotiations with the teams.

Rose wouldn't mind fomenting some dissension among Phils

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "If I thought it would help," chuckled Pete Rose, "I'd go over there and knock somebody in the nose."

Rose's tongue-in-cheek remark was his way of saying he wouldn't mind if the Philadelphia Phillies continued to be caught up in the "dissension," that reportedly surfaced among some players.

Rose figured a little infighting among the Phils could help the Reds when the National League playoffs begin Saturday night in Philadelphia.

Although Rose agreed reports of dissension involving the Phils' Dick Allen probably were overplayed, he said dissension could definitely hinder a club.

"It would hurt a team like ours, because we're so close knit," he said. "But yet, the Oakland Athletics won three world championships and they were always fighting among themselves."

Rose, the oldest man on the team at age 35 who still plays like he's the youngest, also was taking this week's workouts seriously. The third baseman fielded as many ground balls as he could get coach Ted Kluszewski to hit to him and made sure he got plenty of time in the batting cage.

"You can be a .400 hitter and still get in a rut going into the playoffs," he said of the five-day layoff between the regular season and the playoffs. "That's why it's mandatory to work out hard this week."

"Work hard and play hard," he said, "and it'll all take care of itself."

Rose said he looks forward to playing in Philadelphia.

"It's a good ballpark to hit in. The turf's hard, extra hard. The ball goes over the fence for base hits. I'd like to get some of my favorite ballparks to go to."

Joe Morgan stepped into the batting cage and rapped a long line.

"Not outta here," ribbed teammate Dan Dreessen. But the ball sailed over the fence. "What'd ya think," retorted the 5-foot-7 Morgan, "a little guy hit it!"

Although Morgan is extremely strong for his size, it's his speed that's worrying Philadelphia.

"I can get on base. I can steal off anybody," boasted Morgan. "The one big thing we have that they don't is base stealing ability. It separates us from the rest of the others."

"It's got to be an advantage to be able to steal runs" rather than have to get hits," he said. "In a dozen regular season games, the Reds stole 14 bases against the Phils. Philadelphia managed only two steals off the Reds."

Theismann may get big chance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Joe Theismann would like to stop being typecast as a perpetual Student Prince in pro football and take on a more robust role as starting quarterback for the Washington Redskins against the Kansas City Chiefs this weekend.

With veteran Bill Kilmer suffering from a sore arm and physically battered after the first four games of the season, the former Notre Dame star may be chosen by coach George Allen to open for the 3-1 Redskins against the winless Chiefs Sunday in the first of a four-game home stand for Washington.

Kilmer, forced to the sidelines at Baltimore in the 3-7 rout by the Chicago Bears last Sunday, returned from a West Coast visit with his father, who is recuperating from surgery. But he did not work out with the team at the Wednesday drill. Theismann got most of the work with the first unit.

The 27-year-old Theismann, a runner-up to Jim Plunkett as Heismann Trophy winner in 1971, is trying to keep his eagerness for a starling assignment from showing. Assigned for home after a workout with game films under his arm, he commented: "Obviously, I'd like to get a chance to start. I have confidence in what I can do and I think the team does, too."

"I want to make sure I know everything I can about the Club. If my opportunity comes, I don't want to make a fool of myself."

Now in his third year in the National Football League after a stint in Canadian pro football, Theismann quarterbacked the Redskins for the final two periods of the dismal defeat by the Bears and was unable to do much in the face of a 20-0 halftime disadvantage.

Further physical problems surfaced for the Redskins last Wednesday's practice.

Foremost among them was the possible loss of starting tight end Jean Fague because of a sprained knee, which was encased in a cast at the workout. Veteran Jerry Smith was set, however, to step back into his starting job.

Hunter says he's over arm trouble

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — New York Yankee Manager Billy Martin said Wednesday right-hander Jim "Catfish" Hunter had recovered from tendonitis which bothered him during the regular season and was his "old self" again as he prepares to open the American League playoffs against the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

"I've been holding back on you guys all year about Catfish," said Martin, who had blamed Hunter's missing a start at Cleveland Sept. 14 on a pulled muscle. "He missed that turn when he got a shot and has come back to pitch like himself again." He wasn't throwing with the velocity he normally had," said Martin. "but now he is the Catfish of old."

Hunter finished the season with a 17-15 record and 353 earned run average but in his three appearances after getting the shot, he pitched 21 innings, giving up five earned runs and winning two of three decisions.

"I couldn't get the ball down when I was having the arm trouble," said Hunter, who gave up 28 home runs. "It all started right after the all-star break."

With the arm trouble out of the way, Hunter's concern now is the trouble he seems to have pitching at Royals Stadium, where he has a 1-4 lifetime record. Hunter said his problems in Kansas City were due to the artificial surface and the fact groundskeeper George Toma, who Hunter knows from his days as a Kansas City A's player, keeps the mound hard.

"I don't blame him for doing it," said Hunter, who has a 7-2 lifetime record in the playoffs and World Series with the Oakland A's. "He is just fixing it the way his pitchers want the mound to be and that's what my groundskeeper should do."

Hunter figures the fact that six of the Yankees pitchers have seen playoff action will give them an advantage over the Royals, whose only pitcher with playoff experience is seldom-used left-hander reliever Tom Hall.

"They say pitching is the name of the game," said Hunter. "If a guy has never been there before, he is going to be a little more nervous. Everybody is psychologically up when they go to pitch in a playoffs but I think you are a little more settled the second time."

Hunter should know. The first year he was in the playoffs with Oakland, the A's were swept by Baltimore in three games in 1971 and he made one start, giving up five earned runs in eight innings. Since they he is 7-1 in championship competition, having given up 20 runs in 80 1-3 innings.

"The playoffs are more important than anything else we've been through," said Hunter, who signed with New York before the 1975 season after his Oakland contract was declared void. "After you win your division you haven't done anything until you win the championship and then you are in the World Series."

"No one can take the World Series away from you."

Yankees second baseman Willie Randolph hopes his team will overcome Kansas City's advantage of having played on the artificial surface by beginning workouts Wednesday.

"All it takes is getting used to the way the ball goes," said Randolph, who played on an artificial surface at Pittsburgh last year. "You just have to keep fielding balls and get so you feel comfortable."

"The big thing on the turf is knowing the hitters and positioning them right," said Randolph. "You have to be in the right place when the ball is hit because you don't have time to react."

Ali's retirement 'flexible'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The manager of world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali says Ali's decision last week to retire from the ring was not "definite," but he will urge Ali not to sign any fight contracts.

After retaining his crown in a 15-round decision over Ken Norton, Ali announced in Istanbul, Turkey, last week his retirement from the ring.

Ali's manager, Herbert Muhammad, Wednesday said, "Ali has made no definite decision concerning his retirement from boxing."

Later Herbert Muhammad amplified his statement to add:

"I join with my brother, Chief Minister Wallace D. Muhammad, of the Nation of Islam in urging and wanting to see Muhammad Ali pick up the banner of truth and fight for truth."

"I told my brother I will not attempt to influence or persuade Ali to sign any fight contracts as I would rather see Muhammad Ali in the fight ring of truth than in lists."

"Mr. Ali currently is making a motion picture on his life, which will require his presence for the balance of this year," Herbert Muhammad's statement read.

"After the completion of the motion picture, the World Boxing Association of his intentions and these organizations will be authorized to inform the public and to take any appropriate action, if any action is required to be taken."

Ali returned to Chicago after his statement of retirement last week and had been scheduled for a press conference Sunday. But he failed to appear. Later he avoided all comment on his retirement announcement and curbed his week held for Florida for his own commitment.

Wallace Muhammad, the head of the Muslim group to which Ali belongs, spoke Sunday of Ali's decision and indicated clearly he wanted the champion to retire and devote his future to business and religious interests.

Ozark dislikes delay

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies Manager Danny Ozark criticized the five-day period between the end of the regular season and the start of the major league baseball playoffs.

"It's too long a period," said Ozark, whose national league east champs meet the Cincinnati Reds at Veterans Stadium Saturday night for the first of the best of five series.

"It's difficult to find something to do," Ozark said. "You have five days to think about a lot of things, but they (the Reds) have got the same thing."

Ozark said all the layoff does is "reset your pitching staff. It's like spring training. You try to refresh somebody's memory, hope they continue good reflexes, like a refresher course."

"This time of year, the guys think: 'We've done it once, why do it again?'" Ozark said.

IOC to review nightmare

LONDON, (UPI) — The inquest over what went wrong at the Montreal Olympics will begin next week in Barcelona when the Executive Board of the International Olympic Committee gathers for a week-long post mortem.

The controversy about the Canadian government's refusal to allow Taiwan to compete and the event-of-Games boycott by all but two Black African nations will be the most important items on the IOC agenda when the nine-man board meets with representatives of major amateur sports federations.

The IOC is not anxious to dig up and breathe life into the disputes which marred the Summer Games but at the same time it wants to be certain there is no recurrence at the 1976 Olympics in Moscow.

"We are going to have to study our position very carefully so that the situation created by the Canadian government does not arise again, and also to see what should happen to nations should they withdraw after they had formally entered," said Lord Killanin, the IOC president.

The Canadian government's stand on refusing Taiwan to compete set a worrying precedent for many IOC members who said they feared the Soviet Union could take a similar stand against nations with which it had no diplomatic relations, such as Israel or Chile.

Soviet authorities stated categorically at Montreal that all nations would be allowed to compete in 1980 but the IOC meeting was expected to ask for renewed and written guarantees.

The possibility of sanctions against both Canada and Black African countries for disrupting the Olympics will be raised but neither Killanin nor Charles Palmer, secretary general of the General Assembly of International Federations, would predict what measures could be taken.

"Personally, I would like to see all major international amateur sport in Canada banned for five years but that is a personal view," said Palmer, who is president of the International Judo Federation.

The IOC executive will meet with organizers of the Moscow Games and the Lake Placid, N.Y., Winter Olympics-Killanin said. Lake Placid would be questioned about the $9 million ceiling in U.S. federal aid which President Ford has clamped on the 1980 Winter Games, which, given a four-year span of inflation may not be enough for the small New York State resort.

Hanratty, Tampa differ on signing

PITTSBURGH (PI) — Quarterback Terry Hanratty, cut by the Pittsburgh Steelers after a seven-year career, says he will join Tampa Bay, but the Buccaneers say they have not signed him and do not plan to "in the next few days."

Hanratty, 27, said Wednesday he will go to Tampa Sunday. "Everything is set," he said.

Asked when he would be available for duty, Hanratty said: "I'll have to play it by ear. It should be pretty quick, though. I don't think the system will be that difficult to learn."

Ron Wolfe, player personnel director for the Bucs, said Hanratty got word to Tampa Bay he would like to play for the expansion team.

"But no one here has talked to Hanratty," Wolfe said. "I have talked to his attorney about a completely unrelated matter, during which his wish to play with Tampa Bay was mentioned to me."

"I agreed to meet next week with his representative to talk about it. We have no present intention to sign Hanratty in the next few days."

The Bucs have failed to generate a consistent offense with Steve Spurrier at quarterback and earlier this year released former Oakland backup Larry Lawrence. A third quarterback, rookie Parnell Dickinson from Mississippi Valley State, saw action behind Spurrier in last Sunday's 42-17 loss to Baltimore.

Hanratty practiced Tuesday with the Detroit Lions, but the tryout ended abruptly when coach Rick Feldman resigned under pressure and was replaced by Tommy Hudspeth.

"The new coach, Hudspeth told me he couldn't make a decision on me for another week," Hanratty said. "I told him I already had another offer."

SF pick ready?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants will hire a new manager today and the betting is it will be Vern Rapp, a minor league known to few outside baseball circles.

Rapp's minor league teams, including the 1976 Denver Bears of the American association, have won championships in six of the last 12 years.

Giants co-owner Bob Lurie said he was impressed with Rapp's reputation as a winner, a no-nonsense field leader and a man able to relate to today's younger players.

Rapp and San Diego Padres Coach Joe Amalfitano were believed to be the front-runners for the job as Tuesday, but by Wednesday Lurie had made up his mind.

As a result, the Giants will hold a news conference at 3 p.m. pdt today to introduce their "man."

Soccer team goes on strike

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Players on the U.S. National Soccer Team, fighting for a "matter of principle" and $100 a game, went on strike Wednesday against the U.S. Soccer Federation.

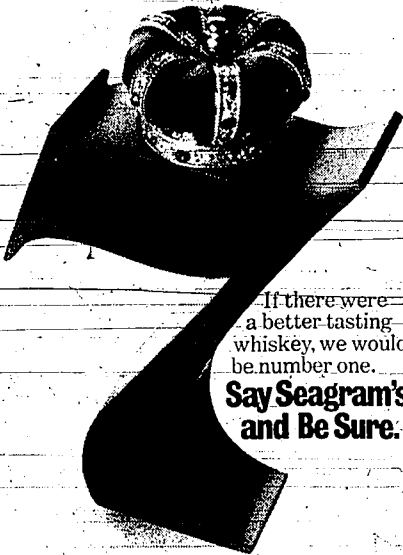

The 20-man team, which is training here for the qualifying games leading to the 1978 World Cup, has been receiving $250 per man per week, according to team spokesman Bobby Smith.

"We're so tired of being mistreated that we feel it's time to put our foot down," said Smith, a member of the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League. "We're getting less now than we did two years ago."

Smith said the players asked for $350 per week, $100 a game and $50 a point. Two years ago, he said, they received $50 per week and $100 a game. But Smith quickly added that the players would settle for $250 and $100.

"That is our absolute minimum but they rejected it," Smith said. "And it was hard getting all the players to accept even that. But it's not even money anymore, it's a question of principle. They chose us because we are the 20 best soccer players in the country and we're supposed to represent the U.S. in an international competition."

SEC seeks changes in scholarship limit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The Southeastern Conference Executive Committee voted Wednesday to ask the NCAA to amend rules governing the number of football scholarships colleges may offer and to alter several other regulations designed to cut the costs of college athletics.

Under the proposals, the NCAA would raise from 55 to 105 the number of football players a member institution may have on scholarship. The limit of 20 new scholarships per year would not be changed.

The panel, during a two-day meeting, also gave its approval to a move to alter a new NCAA regulation limiting the size of football coaching staffs to one head coach, eight assistants and two part-time assistants. The proposal would allow colleges one head coach and 10 assistants, all of whom would be permitted to participate in off-campus recruiting activities.

The proposals were developed at a special meeting of SEC athletic directors last month and will be presented by the conference during the NCAA meeting Jan. 10-12 in Miami Beach.

Other SEC-backed proposals would:

- Eliminate the ban on scouting of football games and permit a school to send one scout to one game of each opponent.
- Allow schools to provide travel uniforms for athletes.

Permit athletes who have been injured, with eligibility remaining to serve as student assistant coaches if they agree to forfeit their remaining eligibility.

- Eliminate the rule limiting the number of contacts recruiters may make with a prospective athlete to three and setting a June 15 deadline for the final contact.
- Abolish free meals for prospects on unofficial visits to campus.

Undefeated Buhl and Hagerman turn their attention to conference races

Buhl and Hagerman, two of Magic Valley's three undefeated teams, move against top conference contenders to highlight an abbreviated mid-season football weekend.

Buhl will travel to Mountain Home where the South Central Idaho Conference lead is at stake while Hagerman will come to the Oakley Hornets, currently second in the Magic Valley Conference. The third undefeated team, Camas County, hosts Richfield in a rematch of the season opener with this one counting in the Snake River eight-man conference.

The Indians will be looking at probably the toughest defense they've seen this far, although Coach Jon Jund was impressed with the hitting of Blackfoot.

Comparative scores are spotty since Mountain Home holds two loop wins and Buhl one and all have come at the expense of Filer and/or Gooding. Mountain Home defeated Gooding 52-0 and Filer 34-0.

It is far certain that Mountain Home hasn't seen the speed it faces in Buhl, although the Tigers did a good job of corraling Burley three weeks ago. The Tigers have four backs who have been over 100 yards at least once this year. Their top ground gainer, Stan Franks, didn't play against Gooding last week but Thomas picked up 161 yards.

Oakley brings a 2-1 record to Hagerman and the Hornets can ill afford a loss. To Coach Ron Knowles' unbeaten Pirates. The conference race is still young but two losses seem more than a team could stand since the loop doesn't appear to have the balance it usually does.

Camas County, its offense starting to click like its defense has all year, topped Richfield 20-0 in the season opener as the defense did the job until the offense came up with three fourth-quarter touchdowns to clinch it.

Jerome also takes to the bus, traveling to Caldwell where the Cougars apparently feel revitalized after dropping from the SIC to join the Cross State Conference. In fact, it is reported Caldwell had its first pep assembly in four years this fall.

The whole student body is spirited again and the Cougars, helped by knocking of arch-rivals Nampa and Ontario.

Coach Duane Alexander and his Tigers will see about as many offensive sets in this game as it will in the other 10 combined. Jerome currently has to be regarded the Cinderella club in the league and a win over the Cougars would clinch the title. In other words, the Tigers aren't favored.

Filer will travel to Gooding with the loser being left in sole possession of the SCIC cellar. Gooding probably enters the thing at a low mental ebb since the handling by Buhl and Mountain Home in the past three weeks.

Filer, meanwhile, is sky high, coming off three straight wins and running impressively with Brian McGregor and Tom Williamson.

Kimberly travels to Rafi River where the Trojans came up with a slam-bang win over Hansen last week, indicating Coach Keith Wilson's prediction of "jelling" may have happened.

Valley, which saw its unbeaten streak ended by Hagerman last week, now works on its unbeaten Big Six Conference mark. The Shoshone Indians will be at Eden Friday night to see if the Vikings have suffered any letdown. It is Shoshone's first loop outing while Valley is gunning for its third league win.

Of note here, Valley will put its conference lapses on the line twice in five days, coming back next Wednesday at Filer against the co-leading Wildcats.

In Magic Valley Conference play, Hansen, which stunned its coaching staff in being labeled by Rafi River, moves to Murtaugh where the Red Devils are the only winless loop team. This one pits probably the two youngest lines in the league — maybe the valley.

Castelford, fresh from its first victory at Murtaugh, will be at Deeds where the Hornets still are regarded as dangerous despite a surprise loss at Hansen.

The other eight-man action of Friday will find the Bliss Bears traveling to Carey where the Panthers still probably are smarting from last week's key loss to Camas County.

TF defense meets Idaho Falls run test

TWIN FALLS — Most of the time, Twin Falls looks forward to playing Idaho Falls. But this Friday night, the traveling Bruins may find the Tigers not the usual "good old Idaho Falls" bunch.

Twin Falls has enjoyed great success over the years against the Tigers, winning six in a row since the Tigers rejoined the Southern Idaho Conference. There were three years the teams didn't play but since the SIC was formed Twin Falls holds a 25-10 series advantage — including three non-conference games.

Coach Dennis Almqvist flatly states, however, that this time around the Bruins will be facing the best offensive team they've played against this year.

"They have better speed than anyone we've played so far and use a lot of backs in every game," he says. "At quarterback they have (Don) Baldwin who is a gifted athlete and runs their wishbone very well. They don't throw much and they don't have much preference about which back carries the ball. But they run outside well."

As engineer of the wishbone, Baldwin carries the ball most. It is his decision to keep or run. So far he's kept 46 times and picked up 371 yards in three conference games. He has 468 for four games.

"The key to stopping the wishbone is stopping the dive play," Coach Almqvist continued. "They have to worry about the keeper or the option pitch. We have four or five ways we're going to try to defend it but we'll have to play well defensively."

Right now Idaho Falls is far away the best rushing team in the SIC with 1,035 team yards in three games, almost twice the amount of the Bruins who are comfortably in fourth place with 629 yards rushing.

Idaho Falls does give up a considerable amount of points defensively and Coach Almqvist believes his Bruins will have to score three or four times even if his defense does an overall good job. Idaho Falls has scored 81 points and allowed 50 so far. Twin Falls has scored just 47.

Helping will be the return of Bob Latham, who missed last week's Capital loss with a shoulder injury. Latham doubles as a running back and corner back.

Statistically, Bruin Scott McFarland remains in third place in rushing with 321 yards while Ken Smaec is fourth in passing with 364 yards. Kenny King ranks fifth in receiving with 107 catches for 162 yards and Latham, despite missing last week's game, is still first in punt returns and interceptions. Lawrence Pfeiffer is averaging 36.3 yards per punt.

Minor, tide this week, has Kody Thurston fourth in both punt returns and kickoff returns.

Economy lag may slow Soviet military spending

© N.Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency predicts that the Soviet Union will continue its long-term growth in military spending, although perhaps at a more moderate pace because of its lagging economy.
 In testimony given to Congress last May and made public Tuesday, the CIA said that a balanced development of the Soviet economy had clearly been impeded by the high rate of defense spending, thus presenting the Soviet leadership with a "contentious" and "painful" issue.

At the same time, however, the CIA, which last spring substantially increased its estimate of Soviet defense spending, said "it is clear that the Soviets are far more willing than we had thought to forego growth in the civilian sector (and consumer satisfaction) in favor of expanding military capabilities."
 The testimony was by the director of Central Intelligence, George Bush, and other agency specialists on the Soviet Union before a joint economic subcommittee headed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.
 Bush saw "many signs that the Soviet economy has entered a period of slower growth at a time when all major sectors — defense, industrial growth and consumption — are demanding increases."

 Largely because of agricultural crop failures, he said, the Soviet economy last year "suffered its most serious setback" since the Communist Party leader, Leonid I. Brezhnev, came to power in 1964.
 "We are getting reports of food shortages, particularly in meat, as well as stories of work slowdowns and vandalisms in the markets, as the people vent their ire," he said. Bush added that there were no indications that the leadership has seriously considered diverting resources from military to civilian use in response to consumer demands.

 Largely because of a conclusion that Soviet military equipment is higher priced than had been presumed, the CIA nearly doubled its estimate of the share of Soviet gross national product going into defense. Its current estimate — which some in the Pentagon think is still too low — is about 11 per cent to 13 per cent.

Carter's program could bring cuts

© Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's tax reform program could cut the top tax rate from 70 to 50 per cent and the bottom rate from 14 to 10 per cent, according to one of the Democratic presidential candidate's key advisers.

Despite the sharp rate cuts, most wealthy individuals would pay higher taxes and average taxpayers would save only small sums. That's because the new, lower rates would be levied on a much broader income base, without many of the deductions and exclusions the law now allows.

Present rates seem steep, but they give a false picture of what high-income individuals actually pay. The new rates would be lower, but they would be real.

Carter has hinted at this approach to what he calls "comprehensive tax reform," without providing much detail. Joseph A. Peelman of the Brookings Institution, co-chairman of the candidate's task force on taxes, outlined his understanding of Carter's ideas in an interview.
 Peelman emphasized that he was relying to a considerable degree on inferences drawn from general discussions with Carter, who has not yet decided exactly what he would propose if elected.

The taxation task force, headed jointly by Peelman and Stanley S. Surrey of Harvard University, has prepared background papers for Carter laying out tax problems and possible alternative solutions. While these papers are not a program "blueprint," they presumably will influence Carter, Peelman said.

Peelman, director of economic studies at Brookings, has advised Democratic presidential candidates on taxes in past campaigns. Surrey was assistant secretary of the Treasury for tax policy in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Both have been leaders of the liberal tax reform movement for many years.

Carter would follow three main paths to tax reform, Peelman said.
 The first priority, he said, is elimination of "abuses" that were not adequately handled by this year's Tax Reform Act. For example, Carter wants to crack down on deductions by business executives for "marital lunches" and other excessive expenses.

He also would try to repeal laws allowing U.S. companies to reduce taxes on export earnings by setting up Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISCs), and deferring taxes on foreign profits that are reinvested abroad. But Carter favors retaining the law that permits companies to credit their foreign tax payments against their U.S. taxes.

Carter also would recommend tighter curbs on tax shelters, which provide investors with deductions to offset taxable income from other sources, although Surrey and Peelman acknowledge that this year's tax reform legislation curtailed shelter abuses substantially.

This phase of Carter's program — which is what most people have in mind when they talk about tax reform — would be the overture to the main act, "comprehensive tax reform." Beyond tinkering with such abuses as excessive expense deductions, real reform requires fundamental restructuring of the tax system, he has told his advisers.

The idea is to "broaden the base" of taxable income and reduce tax rates across the board, Peelman said.

Ford eases sugar duty

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — President Ford Tuesday modified his sugar import duty increase to exempt imports on route to the United States or withdrawn from a warehouse prior to Sept. 21.

The British navy was probably stronger than the British army, yet it did not try very hard to blockade the American coast. It was obliged to transport 400,000 tons of supplies to keep them provisioned from home. It too had captains who preferred to take commercial prizes rather than fight warships.

Contest winner

GRAND champion honors for the outstanding beef carcass in the Open-to-the World carcass contest are presented to Harold Brooks, Hazelton, left, by Dick Howard, Butte, of the Idaho Angus Association. The bull, also a grand champion in the Filer fair, sired the carcass steer. Second place winner was Sidney Howard, Butte.

Agriculture Department ranked 3rd lowest in minority workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department vehemently denies that it discriminates against blacks, but its own figures show it is the third-lowest minority employer in the U.S. government, behind the space agency and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Statistics released by the department also show that the percentage of minority employment is the lowest it has been since November, 1973, and the total numbers decreased in the last six months reported, from 8,732 last December to 8,612 in June.

J. Paul Bolduc, the assistant secretary with responsibility for minority hiring, presents a good case for USDA, saying that a history of long-term employees, a cutback in staff in the past few years and the lack of blacks getting agriculture-related college educations has led to the problem.

But if a department's black-white ratio reflects the population it is responsible for in the federal government — and nobody in USDA is claiming it should — then it has about the right percentage.

Livestock industry troubles outlined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Cliff Hansen, R-Wyo., warned President Ford Tuesday, the American livestock industry is in trouble and the federal government should take immediate action.

Hansen recommended the President order increased purchases of U.S. beef by federal agencies, invoke the Beef Meat Import Quota Law to better regulate beef imports, and transfer the authority for negotiating beef import agreements from the State Department to the Agriculture Department.

India harvest excels

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — India has had a bumper harvest of food grains and will not repeat as the best customer for Northwest grain exporters this year, according to an Indian consular official.

Parjan's visit to Portland was to call attention to the first trade fair his nation has planned for the West Coast, to be held Oct. 21-23 at Los Angeles.

At about the same time that reports were being issued questioning USDA's commitment to minority hiring standards, the department and the U.S. Census Bureau released its annual study of the farm population.

In addition to concluding that the farm population as a whole declined by 400,000 it said the number of blacks living on farms declined by a rate nearly four times as great.

The count showed 611,000 blacks on farms in 1975, or about 7 percent of the farm population of 8.9 million.

And what blacks there are, it said, still are made up primarily of cotton and tobacco tenant farmers. Much of the decline is in their area where mechanization and modernization of such farming has reduced the need for tenant labor.

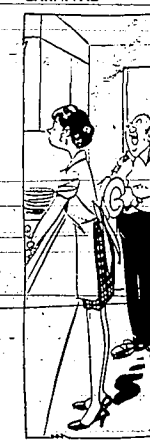

With such a heavy ratio of whites to blacks in farming, it could be expected that few blacks would be attracted to agriculture as a career.

Bolduc didn't mention the census report, but he did say the lack of black interest in undergraduate agriculture work presents a very small pool of blacks for USDA to hire.

He said the department, as part of its upward mobility project to ready minorities for higher level positions when they open, has 500 participants in a program providing college-level courses on government time, leading to undergraduate degrees and higher job qualifications.

The Agriculture Department's employment since Butz took over in 1971 has decreased from 83,813 to 80,065.

Amtrak adds Swedish 'engine that could'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a latter day version of the little engine that could, a light-weight, Swedish electric locomotive is in service on Amtrak passenger trains.

The locomotive, about half the size of American electric locomotives, produces the same horsepower — replaces a locomotive of the high-speed New York to Washington Metroliner next week in a test to determine if European locomotives can compete on the American market.

Already the 180,000-pound, 6,000-horsepower locomotive has handled test runs up to 120 mph.

The test amounts to a head-to-head contest between ASEA of Sweden affiliated with General Motors in this country, and General Electric which was traditionally dominated the U.S. electric locomotive market.

All stakes is millions of dollars in future locomotive contracts. The ASEA engine made its first revenue run from Washington to Boston Tuesday with a regular Amtrak train, the Statesman. In addition to regular passengers, it carried two special cars of guests who were served a constant flow of champagne, caviar, cheese and various Swedish treats.

"We're working to prove that this locomotive can perform regularly at high speeds," said Amtrak president Paul Reistrup in a ceremony before departure. "If so, it may foster a new generation of locomotives in America."

Most of the guests who had not seen the locomotive expressed surprise at its comparatively small size.

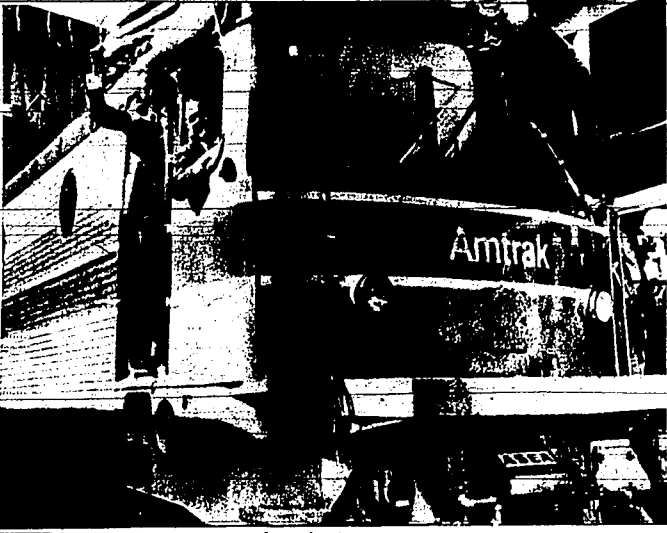

Beginning next week, Monday through Friday, the ASEA locomotive will handle the 10 a.m. EDT Metroliner from Washington and the 2:30 p.m. EDT Metroliner returning from New York. However, Amtrak officials said there are no current plans to replace the Metroliner units. Amtrak's electrified lines run from Washington to New York, and from Philadelphia to Harrisburg, Pa., on the line to Chicago. Although Amtrak operates a nationwide system, the majority of its passengers travel in this densely populated corridor.

The ASEA locomotive weighs 180,000 pounds as compared with 375,000 pounds for the GE's. Both develop exactly the same large power — 6,000 continuous and 10,000 for brief periods.

The GE locomotives cost $750,000 each, but it is not possible to determine a cost for the ASEA engine because that would depend on how many are ordered, how much specialized equipment is required, and whether they are built in Sweden or through a General Motors franchise in the United States.

The one being tested now is a regular production-line model which is being leased by Amtrak for six months after which it will be returned to Swedish railways.

First run for engine

ELECTRIC locomotive built in Sweden leaves Washington, D.C. Tuesday on inaugural run, hauling a passenger train bound for New York. Test runs on the Metroliner between these cities are scheduled to start next week. This is the first time a foreign high-speed locomotive has been used in this nation. In the cab are Dr. Curt Nicolin, left, chairman of their firm which built the locomotive, and Paul H. Reistrup, Amtrak president. (UPI) what's what

Thursday, October 7, 1978 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 29

It has long been claimed that children tend to bind together a shaky marriage. Our Love and War-man; too, over the years has supported the contention. Recent research, however, contradicts it. Analysts now say a lot of people ballyhooed that notion as justification for their babies before the Pill. In fact, they aver, a romance between married lovers tends to cool somewhat as the youngsters arrive.

There's a fine difference in the definitions of the words "remorse" and "regret." The dictionary does say so, exactly, but it's for things you've done that you feel remorse while it's for things you've not done that you feel regret. Or so says gets our Language Man.

JEFFERSON
Q: What state was once named Territory?
A: Part of the Colorado Territory was so-called by some miners around Pike's Peak in 1859. They even sent a representative to Congress. Couple years later, though, the boundaries were extended and the area was renamed Colorado.

Billy the Kid supposedly killed 21 men. That's widely known. Less well reported is the fact that he shot down almost all of them either from ambush or after tampering with their guns. It's written that the Kid was exceedingly slow on the draw.

A study of the records indicates that person who signs up with a computer dating service usually has an education considerably better than that of the general population.

SHOCK
Remarkable trick of nature, that thing called shock. When a wounded person suffers a sea, said party's blood vessels close down. In the event is minor, shock slows the blood flow to allow for clotting. If the wound is grievous, shock permits a painless death. That was good, once. Now it's not always good. Sophisticated medical treatment can save injured people whose wounds once would have been mortal. But that remarkable trick of nature hasn't made the adjustment. Shock continues to kill.

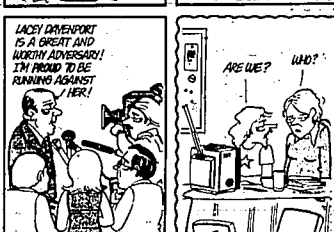

Taste is detected only by the taste buds in the mouth. Flavor, however, is recognized both by the taste buds and by the aroma sensors in the nose. That's why the taste of dehydrated foods is identical to that of fresh foods; even though the flavor is lacking, it's the aroma that dehydration destroys.

Most recent studies indicate the average working man puts in one hour three minutes on the job every day just to pay for his housing.

NEW VOCATIONAL TECHNICAL BUILDING PROJECT - PHASE I
BOISE, IDAHO
STATE OF IDAHO PROJECT NO. 76-08

Vo-tech ed class enrollments vary

BOISE — Enrollment projections in vo-tech education at Boise State University show an increase of nearly the same percentage as last fall's enrollment figures.

The number of students has increased slowly over the last five years with these unofficial figures: Fall 1972, 493; fall 1973, 608; fall 1974, 623; fall 1975, 672; and fall 1976, 700.

"We had quite a few additions to our staff this fall, making possible the additional enrollment. A third instructor in electronics was needed to offer another option in studies," said Dan Miller, vo-tech director.

Not all vo-tech programs have taken an upswing in enrollment, however. Business machine repair, which had a name change this year, reports a smaller group of students.

"I don't know why this program is low. It has good potential, the pay is good and the job offerings are there. We will take a good hard look at the program this year," Miller said.

"You never know, maybe just the name of a program attracts some students, and some of the classes suffer that don't have a magical title," he added.

"Another program, industrial plant maintenance, which we started last year, also shows a low enrollment. We will be sure and study the reasons why before we get too much money tied up in the course," Miller said.

AF Dam trial to resume Nov. 8

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Fourth Judicial Court Judge Alfred C. Hagan, Boise, has set dates for continuation of the American Falls confirmation trial.

Tom Nelson, Twin Falls attorney, said he was notified this morning that the trial will resume Nov. 8 and 9, three days reserved by Judge Hagan for the remaining testimony.

The trial opened last month in Fifth Judicial Court and covered approximately five days of testimony when Judge Theron W. Ward disqualified himself.

Judge Ward announced he had just recalled owning 100 shares of Idaho Power Co. stock, which he said would prevent him from making a proper judgment in the matter.

Judge Ward said attorneys for both sides agreed he should remain on the case, but feared he would either unintentionally be influenced in favor of the Idaho Power Co. side of the issue or would, also unintentionally, lean over backwards to avoid favor to the Idaho Power side, and therefore be unfair to that side of the issue.

Idaho Power is joining the American Falls Reservoir District in plans to reconstruct the dam. A group of individual water users and space holding companies are opposing the reconstruction plan, contending the dam should be rebuilt by the Bureau of Reclamation at taxpayer costs rather than by the district at the expense of water users and Idaho Power Co. patrons.

Confirmation of the building plan is necessary for permanent financing. Construction is already underway on interim financing through loans from local banks in the district.

Permanent financing will be through bonds voted by water users of the district. A total bond issue of $31 million has been approved if necessary for the reconstruction project although American Falls Reservoir District officials say they expect only about $15 to $20 million will be needed for the reconstruction.

A bid of just over $19 million for the basic construction has been received and contract awarded.
