

Ford cleared of fund misuse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford did not misuse campaign funds while he was a Michigan congressman and a federal investigation into the matter has been ended. Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff said today.

"The matter has now been closed and counsel for the President has been so advised," said Ruff in a written statement.

Ruff's announcement that Ford had been cleared in a probe into 1972 campaign financing in his home district removed a major problem for the President in his battle with Democrat Jimmy Carter for the White House.

As Ruff broke silence in the case with his statement to reporters at the Justice Department, sources said he had sent a letter to Ford late Wednesday informing him of the good news.

Ford did not comment immediately, although he earlier denied any personal use of campaign funds in connection with the investigation, which allegedly looked into money from a maritime union.

In his statement, Ruff did not mention a demand by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., that he investigate Ford in connection with another matter — allegations by John Dean that Ford tried to help block the Watergate investigation as House Republican leader in 1973.

But Ruff was clear on the campaign finances matter.

Ruff referred to a report by an FBI informant alleging Ford misused political contributions from 1964 to early 1974 while he was a House member and Republican leader.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley turned the report over to Attorney General Edward H. Levi who, in turn, asked Ruff to assume jurisdiction.

Ruff said he agreed to investigate and received a formal assignment dated last July 16.

"The information furnished to the attorney general by the FBI concerned a previously unreported allegation that political contributions from certain named unions had been transmitted to the political committees in Kent County, Mich., with the understanding that they would be passed on to Mr. Ford for his personal use," Ruff said in a statement issued to reporters.

Ford, who was informed of the decision to drop the investigation Wednesday night, had earlier urged that the matter be quickly cleared up to clear the political air in his race against Democrat Jimmy Carter for the White House.

A footnote to the statement said Ford's counsel made no objection when he told the prosecutor's office of the nature of the investigation and the underlying allegations.

The "named unions" the statement referred to apparently included the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, which has been widely reported to have been involved in an investigation of its political contribution in Michigan.

Union President Jesse N. Calhoun has publicly said he was called to testify before a federal grand jury in Washington recently about contributions to Ford's House re-election campaign.

"I was not present when the statement was handed out at the Justice Department, said that the White House had complied fully with the investigation."

"Counsel for the President complied with the request and, also at the special prosecutor's request, authorized the Internal Revenue Service to make available the 'work product' of its 1973 audit of President Ford's income tax returns for the years 1967-1972," the statement said.

Reporter 'shot down'

WHEN CONNECTICUT Gov. Ella Grasso received the state's first swine flu shot Wednesday, above, UPI reporter Peter A. Brown fainted. He was taken on a stretcher to a telephone to call in his story after doctors refused to let him walk for fear of another collapse. Brown wrote later that he has fainted before when he received a shot and watched the governor's face and not the "gun" administering the shot. (UPI)

Snow gains full school job powers

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS. — The Twin Falls School Board has granted superintendent's power to firing School Supt. Carl Snow.

The move returned to Snow the jurisdiction over teachers and faculty which the board had stripped from former Supt. George Staudaher in 1975.

After the unanimous board decision, board chairman Howard Runk said of Snow, "He's head honcho. He'll have supervision of all of it, in essence."

The board had slipped Staudaher of responsibility for certified personnel in November, 1975, claiming that by transferring faculty responsibility to Assistant Supt. Camden Meyer, the administrative staff was being made more efficient.

While that was the official line, the 1975 action followed two incidents which had brought Staudaher heavy criticism — one a remark about strikers "flaunting" themselves and another an alleged, series of disparaging remarks about a Twin Falls school's athletic opponent.

The reinstatement of the full superintendent's duties to Snow came just short of a month after Snow was named acting superintendent when Staudaher was relieved of all duties due to "sudden illness" Sept. 11.

That illness turned out to be short-lived, however, and when Staudaher announced two days later he would show up for work, a meeting between the board, Staudaher and his attorneys was arranged.

After a lengthy closed session, Staudaher's resignation was announced and the board accepted it on Sept. 17.

Staudaher was given the salary for about nine months remaining on a two-year contract. The salary remaining amounted to less than $10,000.

MILTON FRIEDMAN
... wins economics Nobel

3 Americans win Nobels

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Three Americans won the Nobel Prizes in Medicine and Economics today in a clean sweep of the first 1976 awards of the world's most honored prizes.

The Nobel Prize for Economics went to Prof. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago. The Medicine Prize was shared by Prof. Baruch S. Blumberg of the Institute for Cancer Research, Philadelphia, and D. Carleton Gajdusek, of the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md.

The 1976 prizes have a cash value of $150,000, eight per cent more than last year due to inflation.

The Swedish Academy of Sciences elected Friedman for his "independence and brilliance," and said he wielded a rare influence on government policies as well as scientific research.

It said the Brooklyn-born Friedman, 64, won the honor "for his achievements in the fields of consumption analysis, monetary history and theory, and for his demonstration of the complexity of stabilization policy," the Academy said.

Blimberg, 51, and Gajdusek shared the Medicine award for "their discoveries concerning new mechanisms for the origin and dissemination of infectious diseases," the Karolinska Institute announced.

The awards were the first of the 1976 Nobel Season. They will be followed Friday by the scheduled announcement of the prestigious Peace Prize.

In awarding the Medicine prize, the Institute said Gajdusek, who lives in Chevy Chase, Md., has studied "a unique type of brain diseases" that occur without fever or inflammatory reaction in the brain and may arise in man decades after exposure to the infectious agent.

The Institute said Blimberg, "has discovered a way of indicating the presence of hepatitis B virus in blood," and also, "made it possible to produce gamma globulin and vaccine, which protects against this type of infection."

Sunshine offenses get eye

By CHRIS PECK
Times-News writer

BOISE — Between 10 and 20 candidates for state office in Idaho will be charged Friday with violation of the state "Sunshine Law."

Three from Magic Valley may be on the list. The Sunshine Law for Political Funds and Lobbyist Activity Disclosure requires all candidates file regular reports documenting their campaign financing and income.

Less than 10 per cent of the candidates seeking office in Idaho failed to comply with the law. The few offenders will be taken to court Friday in Boise and charged with violation of the Sunshine Act.

In Magic Valley, three candidates may be charged with violating the Sunshine Law. They are:

— Rex Reed, Filer, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives in District 24.

— Ralph Olmstead, Twin Falls, Republican candidate of the House of Representatives in District 25.

— L.D. Baker, Albion, American Party candidate for the House of Representatives in District 26.

In addition, a number of county Republican and Democratic committees in Idaho failed to file campaign financial reports.

Both the Minidoka County Democratic committee and the Blaine County Democratic committee failed to file before Oct. 4, according to the attorney general's office.

The actions taken against these candidates and committees are the first prosecutions for violations of the Idaho Sunshine Law.

Under the amended provisions of the sunshine law, violators of the law could face fines of $250 per day after the October 4 deadline.

The attorney general's office doesn't know yet exactly how many candidates will be charged with violations or if any Magic Valley candidates will be charged.

Neither Olmstead nor Baker could be reached this morning for comment on whether they filed their financial reports after October 5, and therefore face prosecution.

Reed said he couldn't remember for sure if he sent his report to Boise on October 5. Reed did send his report to Boise, however, and says he endorses the concept of financial disclosure by candidates.

A total of 24 candidates, out of an estimated 300 statewide office seekers, failed to file financial reports.

The three politicians could face at least one count of violating the sunshine law if they did not file their financial reports prior to Oct. 5.

The legal deadline for filing statements with the Idaho secretary of state was Oct. 4. However, candidates who had their statements in Boise by Oct. 5 will not be charged with violations, according to assistant attorney general David High.

High said the attorney general will not prosecute candidates who file one day late because the secretary of state's office was not open until midnight of October 4, the technical deadline for filing the reports.

Cracks studied for link to Teton Dam collapse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A review panel said Wednesday an excavation has uncovered cracks in the Teton Dam embankment, and investigators are trying to determine whether they caused the dam to collapse June 5 or developed later.

Eleven persons died in the dam collapse near Rexburg, Idaho, and congressional investigators have criticized the federal Bureau of Reclamation for building the dam despite warnings from U.S. Geological Survey employees.

"As exploratory excavations on the right abutment have progressed to lower elevations in recent weeks, signs of distress have appeared in the dam embankment in the form of cracks and general distortion," the Independent Panel to Review the Cause of Teton Dam Failure said in an interim report to Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe and Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"This evidence is being carefully studied by the panel in an attempt to ascertain whether it relates to the cause of failure, or is a post-failure condition resulting from collapse of the adjoining dam mass," it said.

The panel's report said 92 samples have been taken from soil along the length and depth of the excavation, and they will be tested by four laboratories.

The panel of nine engineers and geologists, headed by Wallace I. Chadwick of Los Angeles, is due to complete its work by the end of the year.

Chadwick said two other analyses of transverse sections of the dam embankment are being done.

Inspection was made of the full length of an auxiliary outlet works tunnel, and "it was found to be in good condition, with no visible evidence of distress that could be related to the failure of the dam," he said in the interim report.

Nine holes now have been drilled into the foundation of the spillway, he said, and "water pressure testing so far has indicated the grouted rock under this structure to be reasonably permeable, within generally accepted standards."

Israeli arms deal review set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said today it will give Congress a full opportunity to review and possibly block the sale of two new weapons systems to Israel.

Informed sources disclosed Wednesday that President Ford decided to sell Israel "concession bombs" and a supersophisticated infrared weapons control system without consulting either the Defense or State Department.

Some opposition has developed to the sale, both in Congress and within the State department and Pentagon.

"We have no plans to send any notification of letters of offer for these items to Congress before Congress returns in January, 1977," a State Department statement said today.

The administration has the option of sending such sales offers to Congress — which is in recess — immediately. By law, Congress must either refuse such moves within 30 calendar days after receiving them, or they are automatically approved.

Not really all mine

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California boaters have been told not to worry — even if a grim grey ball studded with spike-like sensors comes bobbing toward their pleasure craft in the Pacific.

Odds are they are not about to be blown up by a leftover mine from World War II.

They probably are about to pick up a souvenir of the making of the movie "MacArthur," according to Universal Studios.

The moviemakers warned boaters Monday that four realistic-looking mines, actually plastic replicas, had drifted away from the shooting location at Catalina Island off the coast of Los Angeles and were somewhere at sea.

Whoever comes across one can claim it as a souvenir, the studio said.

Coffee prices leap upward

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's largest coffee wholesaler raised prices more than 100 per cent because of the tight worldwide bean supply, produced in part by a frost that destroyed 70 per cent of Brazil's 1976 coffee crop.

General Foods Corp. increased ground coffee prices by 15 cents a pound Tuesday, reflecting the Brazilian frost and disruptions in other major producing countries. Green coffee bean prices have jumped 170 per cent since July 1975.

The latest General Foods price rise was its fifth this year and probably will be matched by other coffee makers.

Ford calls news conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will hold a news conference tonight and, at his request, the three major television networks agreed to broadcast his remarks nationwide.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford would meet reporters at 5:30 p.m. MDT and wanted the air time to make important comments on several matters, including news that Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff's investigation of Michigan campaign finances had cleared the President of any wrongdoing.

Flu shot produces Ford smile

By United Press International

A smiling President Ford, seeking to stem fears created by the deaths of nearly 30 persons inoculated with flu vaccine, rolled up his left shirt sleeve today, received a 50-cent swine flu shot and said, "I didn't feel a thing."

Rear Adm. William L. Lukash, Ford's personal physician, gave the President half an ounce centimeter of bivalent swine flu and A-Victoria serum with a needle five inches below the chief executive's left shoulder line. "You mean it's all over?" Ford said.

Before getting the injection, the President looked at photographers waiting for the needle movement and said with a smile, "Should I wince?"

The President's decision to try to boost his administration's $135 million immunization was made while campaigning in New York Wednesday. Ford stressed the need for Americans to be inoculated to avert a possible swine flu outbreak this winter.

"I strongly believe that it's necessary for every one of 215 million Americans" to be inoculated, Ford said.

The President said he had discussed the deaths with experts and didn't believe the victims, mostly elderly and afflicted with heart disease, died because of the vaccine.

Health officials in Pittsburgh, where three deaths earlier this week started the stir over the flu shots, were expected to announce today whether 11 neighborhood centers would resume vaccine programs.

DEATHS of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh, Pa., were not related to swine flu shots they received, according to these two doctors from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Robert Craven, right, reviews consent forms for those inoculated while Dr. Philip Graitcer talks on the telephone. (UPI)

Bear River plan wording wins OK

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Bear River Commissions from Utah and Wyoming Wednesday approved the wording of a draft proposal to amend the 18-year-old, Bear River Compact.

The planned changes had been agreed to by the governors of the three states at the annual Western Governors' Conference in Jackson, Wyo., last month.

The commissions from the three states also called for November public hearings to help create the final draft expanding water right allocations from the Bear River drainage for each of the member states, and providing for expansions to the Woodruff Narrows and the Stegari reservoirs.

Idaho has already scheduled "an informational hearing" for next week. The first public hearing to gain citizen input will be Nov. 22 at Logan, Utah, followed by hearings Nov. 23 at Preston, Idaho, and Nov. 24 at Evanston, Wyo.

Following the three hearings, the commissions will meet again Nov. 29 to prepare the final draft of the proposal to be presented to each of the state legislatures next year. Then, if approved, the draft must go to Congress and to the President.

Seoul guns fire

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI)—Anti-aircraft ground batteries opened fire twice today when an American commercial cargo plane strayed into the restricted air space over Seoul, government officials said.

Police said more than 10 persons were injured, one seriously, by shrapnel.

Government officials said Northwest Airlines Boeing 707 cargo flight No. 902, which took off from Kinpo International Airport shortly for Tokyo, strayed into the restricted air zone of the capital.

Ground batteries opened fire for about three minutes starting at 6:12 p.m. local time. Thirty-five minutes later, the batteries fired again for another three minutes.

The air space over Seoul is off-limits to all airplanes. In the past, military and commercial airplanes had violated the restricted air zone several times, drawing ground fire.

Angola due Soviet aid

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union and Angola said today in a communique marking the end of a six-day visit by President Agostinho Neto that the West African nation would receive more Soviet military aid.

Neto flew to Bulgaria Wednesday after meeting Soviet leaders, including Communist party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, and signing a treaty of friendship and cooperation.

The treaty provided for the provision of military aid to the recently independent West African nation and Western diplomats said the visit clearly cemented links between the two countries and strengthened Soviet influence in Africa.

Auto sales up 7% in early October

DETROIT (UPI) — The month-long Ford Motor Co. strike cost the automaker approximately 25,000 sales but didn't stop the U.S. industry from opening the 1977-model year with a 7 per cent jump over a year ago.

Ford was still attempting today to put its negotiating operations into some semblance of normalcy, with the reopening of four more assembly plants but the majority of the 170,000 workers who went on strike at midnight, Sept. 14, awaited callbacks.

The Wixom, Mich., assembly plant reopened Wednesday and the first car built by the No. 2 automaker since the walkout began was a four-door Lincoln Continental. "It's going to take us some time to get these plants up to full operations," a Ford spokesman said. "All we're doing now is recalling maintenance and start-up crews at most of the plants."

As Ford continued working to resume normal operations today, the UAW resumed contract talks with the Chrysler Corp. Union officials said a date for the resumption of talks with the giant General Motors Corp. had not been set but that negotiations would begin again in the near future.

FFRS at both the companies were rejected when Ford was named the industry strike target in August. Chrysler and GM continued building cars during the strike against Ford.

The Ford workers approved a new, $1 billion-plus contract Tuesday. But unsettled local issues at 27 of 99 local bargaining units threaten to hold it full return to normal production for several more weeks. Still without local pacts were six assembly plants and 13 of 43 manufacturing plants. But even the five assembly plants that are now building cars, are helping Ford replenish its depleted stock of 1977 models.

Despite the strike Ford said sales of 67,321 cars — more than half of them '77s — were down just 8 per cent from last year's Oct. 1-10 period, the traditional start of the new model year. Ford analysts said the 26,000 sales lost during the strike would be made up in about three months once the assembly lines are back to full capacity.

With the Ford decline, the four U.S. automakers sold 232,105 cars in the early October period, up 7 per cent on a daily sales basis.

General Motors was up 13 per cent, Chrysler jumped 27 per cent and American Motors said it topped last year by 10 per cent, the first period since early May that the smallest company has been on the plus side.

The strong sales marked the 37th consecutive 10-day period, dating back to the start of October last year, that the industry has topped a year-earlier figure.

The $1 billion-plus Ford contract was approved by a 30-2 margin by the 145,000 production workers and by a slim 485-vote margin by the 25,000 skilled tradesmen who could have forced the agreement back into negotiations had they turned it down.

One dissident skilled trades group, the International Skilled Trades Council, demanded a recount of the vote Wednesday and threatened legal action against the UAW leadership.

MEMBERS of the panel which will question vice presidential candidates Sen. Robert Dole and Sen. Walter Mondale Friday evening in Houston, Tex., are, from left, Marilyn Berger of NBC News, Bal Bruno, Newsweek political correspondent, and Walter Means, Associated Press special correspondent. Moderator will be Jim Hoge, editor of the Chicago Sun-Times. (UPI)

Carter carries campaign into New York, Midwest

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Refreshed by two days of rest, Jimmy Carter is turning to vote-rich New York, Michigan, Missouri and Ohio in a three-day bid for support.

Carter planned to leave at mid-morning today for upper New York State with stops in Rochester and Syracuse before campaign appearances in New York City tonight.

He also scheduled campaign stops Friday and Saturday in Detroit, Kansas City, Mo.; Cincinnati, Youngstown and Columbus, Ohio, before again returning home late Saturday night.

Both New York and Ohio are considered crucial in Carter's campaign to beat President Ford, and the trip to Detroit underscored the fact the former Georgia governor is unwilling to concede even the President's home state.

Confident that he scored a decisive victory over Ford in their second debate a week ago and that his decline in the polls has been reversed, Carter spent two days in virtual seclusion at his rural Georgia home.

His only outing Wednesday was a trip to the dented and nearby Americas, where he had an inlay replaced. The old one fell out about 10 days ago and it was Carter's first chance to have the tooth fixed.

While Carter relaxed with his family, the Democratic presidential candidate's high command remained in Atlanta. An anticipated briefing for the media by pollster Pat Cadden was scrubbed.

Carter issued a statement saying he was pleased Ford had signed a $23.6 billion revenue sharing bill but he said the administration hadn't done enough for cities.

"I only regret that so little else has been done by the administration to ease the fiscal plight of our cities and to help restore a true federalism in our system of government," Carter said.

Shot, bills in Ford day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today attacked a desk full of leftover bills from Congress and volunteered for the swine flu inoculation for himself despite concerns over the death of some persons taking the shot.

Ford was scheduled to receive his inoculation from his physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash, at 8 a.m. EDT in the White House.

Lukash told reporters his own check Wednesday night into the deaths of a number of elderly persons who had received the shots led him to the judgment that Ford faces no danger.

"I think it is a safe vaccine," he said. "In my judgment there is no ethical or laboratory evidence that flu vaccine was in any way responsible for those deaths."

Ford had some 120 bills requiring his approval or veto, the remnant of the Congress that vacated Washington a week ago for the campaign.

Although he also wanted time to prepare himself for the showdown debate with Jimmy Carter next week, especially to rebut his Democratic opponent on statements Carter made in the first two confrontations.

So busy was Ford, aides said, that he left campaign only Friday and Saturday — when he tours Illinois, Iowa and Missouri — before the third debate Oct. 22 in Williamsburg.

But they indicated Ford will travel almost continuously between the final debate and the Nov. 2 election date.

Ford's plan to sharpen his attacks on Carter showed itself during his campaigning in New York City and in New York and New Jersey suburbs for the past two days.

He told a meeting of news executives in Manhattan Tuesday night he wished the debate provided longer than two minutes for one candidate to rebut statements by the other.

In a pool day of friendly crowds Wednesday — with none of the hostility evidenced at some stops in the city the day before — Ford again and again did what he has rarely done previously: spoke of his opponent by name and in something approaching anger.

He said Carter takes "both sides of about every issue."

He said Carter "wants to undercut your defense budget by $15 billion."

He said Carter has contracted himself on inflation, government spending and tax cutting.

"I want to cut your taxes, he wants to increase your income taxes," Ford said.

He used such words as "hoax" to describe Carter's statements on issues. Ford did not mention Carter's controversial Playboy magazine interview, but in Paramus, N.Y., he grinned and waved to acknowledge a sign saying "Ford is no Playboy."

Wallace settles rebel flag fight

ONTARIO, Times Service

MONTEGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. George C. Wallace has quietly made a symbolic gesture to end a 15-year battle of the Civil War in Alabama, but produced a compromise that left Confederate sympathizers' streets angry.

With no advance announcement, Wallace Tuesday ordered the United States flag to be flown over the Alabama capitol dome once again, replacing the Confederate battle flag.

The Confederate battle flag was given the top spot in 1961 by former Gov. John Patterson, who said he intended to keep it there only for a year or so during observance of the Civil War centennial.

After Wallace became governor in 1963, however, he chose to keep the Confederate flag atop the capitol and relegated the American flag to the shorter flagpole on the south side of the State government building.

The presence of the Confederate flag there has long drawn sharp criticism from black groups in Alabama, and in recent weeks Rep. Alvin Holmes, a black Montgomery lawmaker, sought a federal court order to force the governor to display the American flag atop the capitol.

After a federal court ruled against Holmes, however, the governor took the step of his own accord.

Larger US merchant fleet asked

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Two members of Congress joined maritime industry and union leaders Wednesday in calling for a bigger U.S. merchant marine.

"The U.S. flag merchant marine is currently not only inadequate for the requirements of the military during periods of national emergency, but continues to transport only about 6 per cent of our foreign commerce," said Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Va.

Downing, chairman of the House subcommittee on the merchant marine, spoke to the Merchant Marine Conference and Propeller Club Convention.

He said the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 no longer goes far enough to protect U.S. shippers from lower priced foreign competitors and new laws should be passed restricting enough business to U.S. flag ships to maintain the fleet required in peacetime and during periods of national emergency.

Nuke dust back again

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — "Nukes" containing radioactive materials from a nuclear device exploded Sept. 26 by China apparently are making their second pass over California, according to a state health official.

Irving Goldberg, a senior health physicist with the Department of Health, Wednesday requested monitoring devices throughout the state have been registered higher than normal, radioactive readings indicating the winds are traveling from north to south.

But Goldberg stressed the highest readings were the winds on their second trip around the world were "not cause for alarm" in California.

This brand new siding from Johns-Manville doesn't do what other sidings do. (And that's why it's so much better.)

- Doesn't show scratches. Driftgrain's color goes all the way through, so scratches don't show.
- Doesn't rust or corrode. Unlike metal siding vinyl siding is resistant to weather.
- Doesn't dent. Nail and hoseballs make their marks on metal siding, not on vinyl.
- Doesn't peel, blister, chip or crack. The color in Driftgrain is 40 times as thick as the color on painted siding.
- Doesn't ever need repainting. Maintenance-free vinyl is the only siding that never needs repainting.
- Doesn't rot. Vinyl is totally resistant to water.
- Doesn't show its age. All siding looks good when it's new. Driftgrain stays that way.
- Doesn't sound like a drum when it hails. Vinyl siding is much quieter than metal siding in a hailstorm.
- Doesn't interfere with your TV. Metal siding can adversely affect your TV reception. Not vinyl.
- Doesn't conduct electricity. Vinyl siding is safe during electrical storms.
- Doesn't support combustion. Protecting your family and belongings is always important.

When casting a vote makes a difference

Tuesday's vote on whether to build a new Twin Falls junior high school shows how one man's vote can be important.

In a record turnout of 5,302 residents the outcome of the election eventually came down to the votes of four people. If four supporters of the bond had stayed home or not stopped at the polls after work, the bond would have failed.

Or, if four more opponents of the new school construction had come to the polls, the vote would have gone down.

Even with the record turnout, fewer than half the eligible voters participated in the school vote.

Each time an election or bond vote is decided by a handful of votes those people who stayed away from the polls release the very real power exerted through participation in the democratic system.

Yet going into the national election for President, many voters seem to have lost confidence in the power of their vote.

For some reason the public thinks their vote doesn't make any difference. How wrong they are.

Idahoans particularly should see the very real choice offered between Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter. The two men offer differing approaches on many agricultural issues, foreign policy and domestic priorities.

In addition, Idahoans this year have congressional races, pitting candidates of two distinctive political persuasions. And, the Idaho state senate could swing to the Democratic Party for the first time in more than a decade.

Idahoans have a choice Nov. 2. They can help keep the political process alive by participating in the election or they can once again sit back and moan about the outcome of the election without ever trying to change the system.

Sitting out the election does affect the democratic process. By not voting, residents are saying they do not have faith in democracy.

If Americans will vote they can again begin to feel part of the political process. Without voting, everyone simply reinforces the idea that we are all outsiders. But the outsiders forget that somebody voted to put politicians in office.

Without voting, without choosing a candidate, without exercising the voting rights granted in a democratic system, the continued malaise which grips our nation can't help but continue.

And, in a close election, whether for a new school, a new congressman or a new President, your vote just might make the difference.

"Optimism cannot survive if one has no chance to fight for them" - Thomas Mann, German philosopher.

"Man's destiny for many millions of years to come lies, so far as our present knowledge shows, in his own hands. It rests with him to decide whether he will plunge into disaster or climb to undreamed-of heights." - Bertrand Russell, English philosopher.

"Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things which are God's. One would like to add: Give unto man things which are man's, give man his freedom and personality, his rights and religion." - Pope Pius XII

Carter's LBJ insult could hurt

WASHINGTON - Sudden enthusiasm by John B. Connally in President Ford's behalf helps confirm the new consensus in Texas. Jimmy Carter actually can lose that critically important state thanks to his inexplicable remarks about Lyndon B. Johnson.

Connally, who in private has been none too optimistic about his role as Texas state chairman for Mr. Ford, told an old Texas Democratic "friend" in Washington last Wednesday that everything has changed. Connally said he was returning to Texas to spread around the now notorious Playboy magazine interview's lethal last paragraph in which Carter linked former President Johnson with Richard M. Nixon as "lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

The Democrat privately agreed with Connally that Carter's LBJ gaffe gives Mr. Ford his first chance to carry Texas. "Giving this to the John," another Texas Democratic politician told us, "is like handing a Strydomycin to Heifetz." Accordingly, Carter insiders fear the Playboy interview's lasting political damage may come not from Carter's musings on sex but his gratuitous remarks about Johnson.

Whether or not Connally actually stirs many Texans over the dead President, Carter's conduct has turned off Democratic candidates in Texas who had wanted to face their opponents closely to his. Even anti-candidate politicians, including Gov. Dolph Briseno, may be less enthusiastic.

One former Johnson intimate who has been privately advising Carter was at first incensed by the Playboy comments, then cooled off enough to suggest that Carter quickly telephone Lath Bird Johnson in Texas. The apology was made Tuesday, but did not keep Mr. Johnson from describing "herself" Thursday as "distressed, hurt and perplexed." Old LBJ loyalists describe her true feelings as vastly more intense than that.

Since Carter often has expressed admiration for Johnson - and in his acceptance speech, the conspiracy of silence on LBJ at the Democratic national convention, why did he assail him in the very last moments following hours of interviewing Playboy?

The answer may be Carter's irresistible impulse to show the left his understanding and sympathy. Playboy's interviewer was Robert Scheer, an extreme left journalist and old anti-Vietnam activist. "That's what burns me up," one ex-LBJ aide said. "Jimmy was using old left-wing code words - Johnson lying and cheating - and I know he was using them."

A footnote: A counterattack showing Connally himself as betraying Johnson is being readied by state Land Commissioner Bob Landis Armstrong, an early Carter supporter in Texas. Armstrong says, Johnson in 1972 expressed regrets to him that Connally, after accepting all honors the Democratic party could give him, cut and ran to Mexico.

FORD'S STRANGE APPOINTMENT - Suspicion that the bureaucratic establishment is calling the shots at the White House has been strengthened by President Ford's appointment of a veteran Democratic bureaucrat to end Republican control over the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC).

Mr. Ford's selection, typically after five months of inaction of George P. Murphy Jr. ran counter to recommendations of senior national security advisors and conservative Republican Senators. The reason, Murphy, longtime staff director for the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, was the candidate of the bureaucracy's old boss network.

Dr. Fred Rie, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), early this year recommended ACDA general counsel

James L. Malone for the NRC vacancy - the first and only appointive recommendation by the self-effacing Rie. Deeply concerned about worldwide nuclear proliferation, Rie left at least one NRC member ought to have interests beyond those of the nuclear energy industry.

An unusual coalition emerged in support of Malone. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger backed him. So did conservative Republican Sen. James Buckley of New York, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, Carl Curtis of Nebraska, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Peter Domenici of New Mexico. On March 24, those five Senators wrote Mr. Ford urging the appointment of Malone, a Republican.

But the network of past and present staffers at the old Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) - professorial agency to the NRC? neither shared nor approved of Malone's concerns about nuclear proliferation. Besides, as a longtime joint committee staffer, Murphy was a kindred spirit. The key role for him was played by Dr. James Connors, Mr. Ford's secretary of the cabinet who worked at the AEC before coming to the White House.

Connors is credited with attempting to get Mr. Ford, in what could be his final weeks in office, to consciously reduce Republicans to a minority (two out of five members) on the NRC by appointing a Democrat.

ROBERT NOVAK

A footnote: White House personnel chief Doug Bennett told us he does not know whether Murphy is a Democrat or an independent but had the idea he is an independent. In truth, supporters of Malone had sent Bennett information showing that Murphy is a registered Democrat in Maryland.

A SWEDISH

CONNECTION?

How much should be read into the Swedish electorate's turning out of the long-established Socialists? Is it a clear signal of a turn to the right throughout the western world? Or is it merely a local changing of the political guard for nothingly Swedish reasons? A LENS Commentary.

Sweden's tilt right

By NEA/London Economist News Service One of the most familiar and enduring pieces in the pattern of Europe, and indeed of the world, has vanished. For the first time since 1932, the Social Democrats are no longer in power in Sweden.

The Swedish switch has been widely taken to be a clear signal of a turn to the right now impelling the electorates of the whole Western world. Helmut Kohl, the Christian Democrats' leader trying to win power in Germany, has urged other Europeans to follow the Swedish lead. On the other side of the fence, the Dutch Labour prime minister, Joop den Uyl, regrettably acknowledges that Europe is experiencing a rightward trend.

Sweden is a small nation of only 11 million people, but it has made itself conspicuous not only by emerging as the world's richest country, but also by virtue of its unimpaired political stability. Not even among the other Scandinavian states has one party enjoyed such a long uninterupted dominance.

Example is powerful. After the fall of (Old) Palmé following the fall of Labour governments in Australia and New Zealand last year, there is no longer any major government in the democratic world whose civil servants are encouraged to translate disunity of their center of power into disunity of their country.

But the psychological impact is something else, the detail of what has happened in Sweden is another. The voting in the general election did not produce a landslide. The Social Democrats' share of the vote was only 3 per cent less than in the previous election in 1973. The combined shares of the Center Liberal and Moderate (conservative) parties increased by 2 1/2 per cent.

It was enough to fill what had been an almost exact balance in 1973, but it was not a radical change. The only thing that is at all clear about the new coalition government is that it is going to have a painful time deciding what to do about nuclear energy.

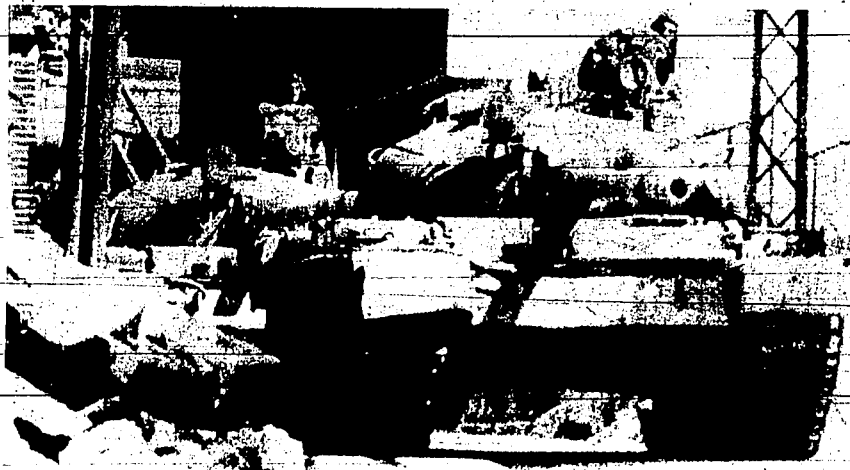

Thorbjorn Fallin, as leader of the Center party - the largest of the three but the only one to decrease in this election from 1973, will be the new prime minister, but he flatly disagrees with his Moderate and Liberal allies who unlike him are in favor of nuclear power.

After 41 years, the change from social democracy in Sweden may appear sudden but it can hardly appear surprising. It is a fair bet that the Swedes would have given the Social Democrats a salutary spell in opposition long ago, if a more coherent alternative had presented itself.

In Sweden, as elsewhere, parties long in office are liable to become arrogant and inefficient while parties long in opposition are in danger of becoming atrophied and silly. To turn them out and put the one in whom you can see that the only hope in a general program is a bit clumsy.

The Swedes have, in fact, started the search without really voting for any decisive change. But what, then, have they voted against? Not mainly, it would seem, any strikingly left-wing record by the Social Democrats in past governments.

Syrian tanks enter town of Shanay near Beirut

Syrian armor rolling ahead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian tanks rolled down the highway toward Beirut today, capturing one key Palestinian position and threatening to move in a bid to route the guerrillas from the mountains southeast of the capital.

Palestinian sources conceded the fall of Shanay, a village about 12 miles southeast of Beirut between the Syrian field headquarters at Sofar and the beleaguered Palestinian bastions of Bhamdoun and Aley on the Beirut-Damascus highway. Palestinian military spokesmen estimated the attacking force included about 2,000 Syrian infantry supported by tanks, artillery and rocket launchers.

Christian militants participating in the shelling of Aley from nearby Kahlilieh predicted Bhamdoun's fall within hours. The Palestine Liberation Organization, quoted by the Middle East News agency in Cairo, said Syrian warplanes attacked Palestinian and Lebanese leftist positions in a new offensive launched in southern Lebanon early today. The PLO statement said the new Syrian thrust began at 2 a.m. "along three axes in the area of Jezine," and more than two hours after the fighting continued "with unprecedented ferocity."

In Beirut, heavy overnight fighting between militants and leftists with rockets, mortars, artillery and machine guns claimed at least 50 dead, according to hospital counts. Arab League mediator Hassan Sabry El Kholy, who came close to achieving a truce agreement only three days ago, was in Cairo today for consultations with the League's secretary general, Mahmoud Khalil, who was to already dwindling foodstocks of stores in Moslem west Beirut and panicky shoppers sought to stock up in expectation of a siege being clamped on the leftist-held half of the capital. The new Syrian drive, launched Wednesday, forced the cancellation of scheduled truce talks and came one day after Syrian forces assaulted Palestinian positions near the leftist-held southern port of Sidon.

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Aviation authorities say as many as 100 persons may have died in the crash of a Miami-based cargo plane that careened into an elementary school and a soccer field shortly after takeoff Wednesday.

The plane smashed through 300 yards of housing and crashed into a school, one witness said. "The fuel tanks exploded, setting off fires over a wide area and knocking down telephone poles and power lines."

The authorities said between 80 and 100 persons were killed, including the Boeing 707's three U.S. crew members. Bolivia radio put the death toll at 90.

By nightfall, the morgue at the city hospital had 65 bodies, most of them burned beyond recognition. Two more bodies were at another hospital and an undetermined number were still buried under wreckage at the crash site.

Most of the victims were either children playing in the elementary school or soccer field or shoppers lined up at a nearby store to buy kerosene.

The crash destroyed the school, which had been emptied minutes earlier for the lunch recess.

The crew members of the Boeing 707 were tentatively identified as pilot Charles Baldwin, captain Lew March and engineer Leslie Bennett, all believed to be from the Miami area.

The plane, owned by Air Tower Inc. of Miami, was leased to Lloyd Aero Boliviano, which flies cargo between Florida and Bolivia through Rold Enterprises of Miami. It flew to Santa Cruz from Houston, Tex., arriving Wednesday morning. It unloaded its cargo and had just taken off when it plunged to the ground and exploded 200 yards from the El Tirolito Airport runway.

Control tower personnel watched the plane take off and said it plummeted after trying to gain altitude. They said the crew had not reported any problems on takeoff.

Madrid rally set

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The 500,000-member Confederation of Civil War Veterans said today it will stage a mass rights rally in Madrid to mark the first anniversary of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's death.

The confederation said the Nov. 20 demonstration will be held in the Plaza de Oriente, a 20-acre square in front of the Royal Palace, from where the late dictator used to address his followers in times of national crisis.

It will be "an act of faith in the heritage of Francisco Franco," who, he said, has become "the object of ingratitude, repression and defamation."

The appeal was the first official confirmation of reports that right-wing organizations have started mobilizing Spanish loyalists throughout Spain for what some of them have referred to as a "March on Madrid."

It was seen as part of a fighting effort to win back the Initiative from the democratic opposition and the government of Premier Adolfo Suarez which is pledged to far-reaching political reforms.

Led by Falangist leader Jose Antonio Giron, the war veterans said the funeral acts planned by the government for the anniversary will not be enough.

The appeal was the first official confirmation of reports that right-wing organizations have started mobilizing Spanish loyalists throughout Spain for what some of them have referred to as a "March on Madrid."

BELFAST (UPI) — A sniper ambushed and killed a 41-year-old shopkeeper today in what police said could mean the resumption of random religious killings in Northern Ireland.

The victim was the third in three days in the County Tyrone-Armagh "murder triangle" area, 60 miles west of Belfast.

A Roman Catholic farmer was shot and killed by Protestant extremists Tuesday night and a Protestant housewife was seriously hurt by a boobytrap bomb attached to her kitchen door.

UN study sees narrowing gap

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The gap between the world's have and have-not nations can be narrowed by the year 2000 if the rich countries are willing to work harder and consume less, according to a United Nations study.

But the report, issued Wednesday, added that poor nations will have to make far-reaching social, political and economic changes to carry their half of the bargain.

Thai democracy 12 years off

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thailand's military junta has ruled out a return to democracy for 12 years and today ordered revivification classes for "anyone who signs up trouble."

In an address to the nation Wednesday night, newly named Prime Minister Thanin Kraivichien said the restoration of democracy will take place in three stages with the first elections held in 1989. An elected assembly will be given full power in 1992.

Blacks set to talk

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Black nationalists say they are ready to negotiate the formation of an interim government in Rhodesia, but sources in the white government predict talks beginning next week will be short- and unsuccessful.

Two factions of the African National Council said Wednesday they had established the leadership and composition of their delegations to the British-sponsored conference in Geneva, which has a preliminary round of talks next Thursday. The parley is scheduled to open officially Oct. 25.

Joshua Nkomo, leader of the moderate ANC wing, said he will lead a 10-man delegation in cooperation with Robert Mugabe, the left-wing, Mozambique-based nationalist leader. The two have formed what they call the "patriotic front."

Bishop Abel Muzorewa said he will head a second ANC faction group composed of 42 delegates.

The nationalists apparently have dropped demands that Britain delay the meeting by two weeks.

"Rhodesian" government sources said Wednesday they were pessimistic about reaching agreement on an interim government and expected the talks to last "no more than a day or so."

Country awards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music artists and songwriters, including film star Gene Autry, were honored Wednesday at the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers annual banquet. Society President Stanley Adams said the music licensing association had a record-breaking 81 songs on the country music chart this year, compared to 74 major chart songs last year. Adams also could not attend the banquet because of ill health. He was honored with a special award for "outstanding contributions to American music." The Western movie and television star wrote the well-known theme song of his show, "Back in the Saddle Again." Superstar John Denver won three songwriting awards for writing "Fly Away," "I'm Sorry" and "Looking for Space" and another three plaques as an artist.

Maddox' pitch

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Lester Maddox, the American Party's presidential candidate, took advantage of Cincinnati's baseball fever Wednesday, saying he wants to be "the Johnny Bench of Cincinnati."

"Somebody needs to do at the White House just what that Beach fellow did — hit a home run for the people," said the former Georgia governor. He returned to the city's dramatic ninth-inning home run Tuesday which helped the Cincinnati Reds win the National League pennant.

Boss angry

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, during a ceremony Wednesday honoring a slain Chicago policeman, turned his anger toward Congress for not passing strict federal handgun laws.

"Why in the name of God can't Congress pass a handgun law to prevent guns from falling into the hands of 11 or 12 year olds?" Daley asked. "Too many young people have handguns. A handgun is not a hunting weapon for animals or birds. It hunts human beings." The ceremony was for Patrick J. Crowley, killed during a drug raid last month with a .357 caliber magnum.

Mayor honored

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association said Wednesday it will bestow its highest honor, the Theodore Roosevelt award, on Mayor Tom Bradley, a former UCLA track star.

Other former athletes turned politicians who received the award include Presidents Eisenhower and Ford and Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White.

Hamiltons split

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor George Hamilton was divorced Wednesday, ending five years of marriage to actress and model Alana Collins. The divorce agreement gave Miss Collins $1 million, a 1965 Rolls-Royce auto, $10,000, and monthly payments of $2,000 in 20th anniversary $200 in support for their two-year-old son, Ashley Hamilton, 37. Both Hamiltons have rights to his films. It was the first marriage for both.

Airlines in violation

CHICAGO (UPI) — Trans World Airlines violated the civil rights of 340 stewardesses it refused to rehire after they became mothers, according to a federal judge.

U.S. District Court Judge Frankel Meador issued his ruling Wednesday without a written opinion, but said one will follow later.

McGar said he will also rule later on the stewardesses' request for back pay. Their suit charged discrimination in violation of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. TWA ended its no-marriage policy in 1970.

McGar has already ruled American Airlines violated the civil rights of 300 of its stewardesses because of a similar policy. The judge said it is reasonable to require pregnancy leaves of absent, but unreasonable to refuse to rehire stewardesses who have children.

Miss Ray leaves audience cold

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (UPI) — Elizabeth Ray, one-time mistress of former Rep. Wayne Hayes, launched an acting career this week with a shoddy performance that neatly ruined the show.

Miss Ray's debut comedy Tuesday in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" and even in varying states of disarray, failed to turn on a half-filled house at the Pheasant Run Theater in this far Chicago suburb.

Trying to parlay her notoriety from the Washington sex scandal into stage success

— Miss Ray appeared early in the first act wrapped in a hard-to-keep-in-place towel.

Sprawled on a massage table, she lay there in a blunder typical of her clumsy performance, announced to one in particular: "Come in the door's open." The doorbell rang 10 seconds later.

She drew her best response — a few snickers — in that scene with the line: "I'm just terrible in bed. Well, everyone says so." Otherwise, her performance, at best, detracted from the more professional performances of the rest of the cast.

"She was wonderful until she got off the rubbing table," said one theatergoer.

The play never has been considered difficult for the female lead and was the stepping stone to stardom for Jayne Mansfield, but a squeaky voice and first-night jitters made it impossible for Miss Ray.

Miss Ray's clumsiness was offset by a strong performance by Ramon Powell, playing the male lead as a magazine writer who is selling his soul to the devil in 10 per cent shares. Other capable performances were turned in by Sidney Eden as the devil's agent and Bernie Friedkin as the movie producer.

There were no curtain calls except for the planned cast call following the final scene. Applause was only polite and Miss Ray, clutching the traditional roses of the leading lady, stared into the audience for acceptance she never got.

"She doesn't project. No voice," a member of the audience said. The complaint was echoed by many others. Her lack of talent led one critic at the dinner-theater premiere to advise theatergoers against eating before watching her performance.

Walter Cronkite gets equal time

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) — It seems equal time is as important in the news business as in politics.

At least it was for Walter Cronkite, star of the "CBS Evening News." Cronkite made sure he got equal time with President Ford Wednesday even though Ford's aides had promised an exclusive interview to one of Cronkite's news-rivals—Barbara Walters.

Miss Walters, co-star of the "ABC Evening News," got an interview with the President in New York City Tuesday night and planned to broadcast it Wednesday night as an exclusive.

Cronkite appeared in the press corps covering Ford's suburban New York campaign on Wednesday and at the local hotel and County Courthouse, asked if he could interview the President.

"Write it up," Press Secretary Ron Nessen said. Miss Walters had been assured she also would be able to interview a Wednesday night Ford interview.

Cronkite then asked if he could be filmed — without sound — chatting with the President and was ushered into Ford's presence.

Moments later, Nessen said his aides noticed the CBS camera crew had turned on their sound equipment, giving Cronkite a filmed interview with the President.

Cronkite had simply asked the President: "Do you mind if I ask you a few questions?" Ford said he would be happy to comply.

An ABC correspondent went to a telephone and called Miss Walters' producer. The correspondent said the producer, on hearing of the Cronkite interview, was not pleased.

Survivor wants alarm clock back

KEA, Greece (UPI) — Sheila MITCHELL, an 18-year-old British woman who survived the sinking of the ocean liner Britannic 60 years ago, wants to give down to the wreck to search for her alarm clock.

Mrs. Mitchell was a nurse aboard the Britannic, a transatlantic liner converted into a World War I hospital ship, when it hit a German mine and sank three miles off the Aegean Sea island of Kea in November 1916.

When the ship went down she had hurriedly abandoned all her possessions, including a very precious alarm clock which I hope to find," she told reporters Wednesday.

Now, French underwater explorer Jacques Cousteau plans to explore the wreck in a miniature submarine.

Mrs. Mitchell was flown to Greece after answering an advertisement by Cousteau asking for survivors of the Council announces campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Council of Churches plans an extensive campaign to oppose resumption of death penalty executions.

While most churches oppose the death penalty, the NCC's Governing Board said in a statement Wednesday, churches "have not been articulate about the issue over the past few years."

The plan adopted by the interfaith Protestant and Orthodox agency includes a proposed "day of protest and mourning" whenever and wherever an execution is scheduled, "especially the first one."

"It seems only a question of time until some states will execute one of its citizens, break the moratorium and open an avalanche of legal slaughter," the statement said.

There has not been a legal execution in the United States in 10 years.

Unique hot line available

BOSTON (UPI) — John Doe of Massachusetts doesn't need to pay — or a high-priced psychiatrist to cure his sexual problems. Help is as close as a telephone.

A "Sex Hot Line" has been set up by the New England Institute for Human Sexuality. "There are many types of hot lines, but this one is unique in the sense that this one is strictly for sex," Dr. Peter A. Wish, executive director of the institute, said Wednesday.

"We are here to talk just about sex, and believe me, many people have lots of questions," he said. It is designed to aid persons who are not prepared to pay high-priced psychiatrists or psychologists.

Dr. Wish, a psychologist, said the hot line was spurred by hundreds of calls received by the institute from people with questions ranging from how to tell their children about the "birds and the bees" to sexually related marital problems.

"We've gotten a lot of calls since the institute was established in 1972," Dr. Wish said.

"The institute was established to treat problems in sexuality. We treat a wide range of both individual and marital problems, and we thought a hot line would be a way to help those people who may be hesitant of a face-to-face confrontation to talk about their problems," he said.

Dr. Wish said that on the basis of calls received during the last four years, he would have to say more men than women call with questions.

Food stamp card thefts grow

Thursday, October 14, 1976 • Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

© N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Thousands of cards authorizing citizens to buy federal food stamps are being diverted from the mails into an illicit market, but officials of several cities are refusing to help postal inspectors halt the thefts, a postal official has reported.

At least 10,000 authorization cards are lost or stolen in New York City alone, the chief postal inspector told Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar in a memorandum last week. He charged that the city would not help by providing a list of the stolen cards.

In his memorandum, C. Neil Benson complained that the food stamp disbursing office of New York City contended that he "did not have the manpower or financial resources to report the mail losses."

Food stamp authorization cards are issued twice a month in New York to low-income persons to enable them to receive stamps for obtaining specified amounts of food at authorized stores. The stores deposit the stamps in their accounts, and the government pays the banks the face value of the stamps.

The Postal Service memorandum was dated Oct. 7, just six days after a ring of 12 men and women were charged in Manhattan with having participated in a $2 million food stamp fraud. A copy of the memo was obtained by The New York Times, but postal officials here refused to comment except to confirm that it was valid.

The memo asserted that a study of 21 cities and some states had disclosed that several jurisdictions "would not furnish the inspection services with mail loss reports."

Included with New York City as among those places said to have been unwilling to cooperate were Atlanta, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and the states of Illinois and Massachusetts.

The federal government pays the cost of food stamps not covered by matching sums supplied by recipients, but the local governments, on a matching basis, share with the Department of Agriculture the "administration" costs of the program, which would increase if the cities tried to start a surveillance campaign.

Although advised of the problem in August, the memo said, the Department of Agriculture had not yet done anything about the problem.

Calls to the Agriculture Department Tuesday and Wednesday resulted in officials pointing to other officials, when asked who was responsible for the security of the food stamp system.

A spokesman for the department's Office of Investigations said any such investigation must be initiated by the Food and Nutrition Service. That service said any investigation would be by the food stamp auditors, and the Office of Audit referred to a reporter's inquiries back to the Office of Investigations.

Sam Elmer, the spokesman for the food stamp office of the New York City Department of Social Services, said "we would need a whole separate police department to deal with missing or stolen cards."

The chief postal inspector, in the memo, said that his bureau and Department of Agriculture inspectors in New York have been "engaged in several investigations of firms processing or redeeming an inordinate number of cards or food stamps."

One investigation had focused on Jose Rosado, an egg wholesaler in New York who allegedly had redeemed over $2 million in food stamps in 14 months ending in July, 1976.

Rosado and 11 other people were charged Oct. 4 in federal district court in Manhattan with illegally obtaining food stamp cards, converting them to stamps and redeeming them for cash at the government's expense.

Nuclear plant licenses gain green light

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is revising upward its estimates of the environmental impact of atomic fuel reprocessing and waste disposal, but it says the licensing of nuclear power plants should proceed.

The agency said hazards of reprocessing and waste management "even considering new, tougher standards 'continue to be small' and are outweighed by the economic and societal damages a delay in building new atomic power plants would cause."

Responding to a federal court order that temporarily blocked the licensing of new power plant construction and operation, the NRC issued a revised environmental impact estimate Wednesday and proposed interim guidelines to allow a resumption of licensing using the revised estimates.

Commission officials said they hope the proposal can be adapted within three months, allowing the licensing of 49 reactors during the next 18 months while a final analysis is prepared.

Officials said delaying the licensing until final guidelines are ready could cost up to $3.6 billion in construction delays, further deplete coal or oil fuels and possibly cause up to 2,300 premature deaths by extra coal smoke pollution.

The new findings included minor revisions to many impact estimates made by the now defunct Atomic Energy Commission in 1972, but offered "significant" changes in only five areas.

The major changes included:

- A 54.3 per cent increase in the amount of land permanently committed to waste disposal, from 4.5 to 7.1 acres per year, and similar increases in the land for reprocessing plant operations.
- The addition as a pollutant of hydrogen chloride gas from burned plastics. But it said "amounts emitted are small and no significant impacts are expected."

Probe choice due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressman says special prosecutor Charles Hufsch should decide this week whether to investigate President Ford's role in the blocking of a 1973 Watergate investigation by the House Banking Committee.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., demanded the investigation in a letter to Hufsch last week. He said Wednesday that Hufsch indicated the decision will be made by the weekend.

John Dean, a former aide to Richard Nixon, said Ford was contacted by Richard Cook of the White House staff about using his influence to stave off the probe — a claim Cook vigorously denied.

Conyers said some 200 unhard White House tapes can show whether Ford, the House GOP leader in 1974, conspired with Nixon to block the committee investigation and whether Ford committed perjury in assuring House and Senate committees during confirmation hearings that he didn't discuss the matter with the White House.

"Somebody must listen to those tapes before Nov. 2," Conyers told a news conference.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., asked that the White House tapes be released to Ford so the President can "refresh his recollection as to precisely what happened."

"Until he gives an explanation, I think he's on the hook," Reuss said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hua

Kuo-feng, the Chinese Communist party's new chairman, has accomplished in 33 days what it took the late Soviet dictator Josef Stalin 17 years to consolidate total power.

China's former top police official rose to supreme leadership of one-quarter of the world's population by following the gut rule of power struggles in Communist party disciplines—survival of the fittest.

A successful candidate for Communist power must gain control of the party and through it the government, army and secret police and then invoke party unity in the name of his predecessor to crush any opposition.

Both Hua and Stalin took over from leaders who founded their country's Communist parties and Communist states and with their two hallowed predecessors—Mao Tse-Tung and Vladimir I. Lenin—conspired to enshrine them in museums.

Stalin, then party general secretary, succeeded Lenin in 1924 but did not assume Lenin's government post as chairman of the Council of People's Commissars until after the introduction of the Five-Year plan to industrialize the nation in 1928. Stalin did not become "generalissimo" of the Soviet armies until World War II, 17 years after he took power.

But Hua needed a little more than a month after the death of the legendary Mao Sept. 9 to vault to supreme leadership taking the posts of party chairman, premier of the state council and chairman of the ruling central committee's military commission.

Like Stalin, Hua initially faced opposition on Communist ideology and the speed of the nation's economic growth.

But once named as official party chairman Hua crushed the challenge of the "Shanghai Mafia" led by Mao's widow Chiao Ching who sought to continue radical class struggle even at the expense of economic progress.

Some reports say Madame

HUA KUO-FENG
... consolidates power

Mao and three of the Shanghai group—all Politburo members—plus up to 40 other far-leftists have been arrested.

Stalin required continual purges to rid himself of the leaders of factions—real and imagined. Although the fronted Stalin eventually liquidated most of the members of the Politburo he inherited from Lenin, he never arrested Lenin's widow, Krupskaya.

Hua and Stalin rose to the fore ahead of those thought favored for succession. Lenin's "last testament" leaned to Russian revolutionary Leon Trotsky as Russia's new ruler.

And China's late premier Chou En-lai appears to have groomed moderate Teng Hsiao-ping for Mao's mantle.

Stalin branded his first contestants for power, who included Trotsky, the "leftist opposition" for favoring rapid industrialization, collectivization of agriculture and extension of the Communist state beyond Russia.

After stripping the leftists of influence, Stalin adopted part of their program which he called "Socialism in One Country" and labeled his new foes led by party theoretician Nikolai Bukharin the "rightist opposition" for stressing a slower economic growth rate.

China analysts in Hong Kong say Hua is expected to blend Mao's theory of continuing revolution and class struggle with Chou's program of development and modernization—a policy advocated by Teng.

some locally gusty winds but no precipitation is expected. Friday will continue sunny but daytime temperatures will drop 10 to 15 degrees along with locally gusty winds. High pressure is expected to rebuild over the Pacific Northwest which should mean fair skies again for Magic Valley but temperatures are expected to remain on the cool side.

Ford signs health bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has signed a $1.5 billion health education bill aimed at filling an "alarming" void of doctors in rural and inner-city areas and shoring up a nationwide decline in general practitioners, the White House said today.

In a statement, Ford complained about the high cost. But he also praised the three-year bill, saying it "virtually assures that no individual will be denied a medical education for financial reasons."

The Health Professions Education Assistance Act creates a new health professions student loan guarantee program and a loan insurance fund through fiscal 1978.

It also continues and expands a current medical scholarship program which will provide individuals with financial assistance to attend medical school. In return, each recipient will be required to serve in a health manpower shortage area for a period of at least two years.

In a statement released with the signing announcement, Ford said a government study had shown "there were alarming signs that this country was facing two problems:

"Not enough doctors in rural and inner city areas."

"A continuing decline in the number of doctors practicing primary care" because too many medical students are specializing instead of becoming general practitioners.

The bill also requires medical schools receiving government grants to provide annually an increasing percentage of residency positions for individuals in primary care specialties such as internal medicine, pediatrics and family medicine.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from HIS WIFE who wrote an open letter to all women who were in love with a married man. I hope you will give me equal space to respond.

DEAR WIFE: He has never told me you are a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) or that you have neglected him sexually. Instead he speaks only in glowing terms of you, how you stood by him in rough years, through all the difficult times.

There is no talk of divorce. I know I will never see him on Sundays or holidays. I don't call him at home. We meet at hotels since there are teenagers at my place. Yes, I sometimes spend more on him—on transportation, gas for the car, whatever. But we do not measure our relationship in money. And I insist he not buy me gifts.

Other woman tells her side

I know how you feel about social status, financial security and retirement income. I ended my loveless, unhappy marriage without regard to such things. I love your husband; and we share a need for each other that has nothing to do with your set of values. But because your husband is a good man and would never hurt you, I know we will probably never be together.

I never went after your husband; he pursued me, because I recognized his pain and bewilderment, his triumphs and delights, in a way you have forgotten or belittled. He needed to be actively loved, or I would not be a part of his life.

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: I beg to differ with you when you state that a girl can't tell if a man is married because she never sees him on weekends or holidays.

I went with Rob for 14 months and he was with me morning, noon and night every day of the week. And last Christmas he came to my house at 9 in the evening and stayed until 10 the next morning until after the kids had opened their gifts. Then he left, saying he had to go to a family dinner. He came back again at 7 that evening and left at 6 the next morning.

When my little boy had an operation, Rob stayed at the hospital with me all day and night. Finally, on New Year's Eve, I knew he was married when we ran into some people who I learned his wife.

He confessed it was true, and said he and his wife didn't sleep together but she didn't believe in divorce. I figured if he treated her that way, he'd eventually treat me that way, too, so I kicked him out. Why would a woman want to hang on to a louse like that?

STILL SINGLE AND LOOKING

DEAR STILL LOOKING: Because she probably figures she'll be better off with him than without him, I think he showed his "foulness" more by lying to you about his marital status than by seeking satisfaction outside marriage to a woman who refused to sleep with him but refused to divorce him.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb:

I have had Meniere's disease for 26 years. The hearing in my right ear deteriorated first. After about 15 years my left ear started to go.

I no longer have the serious vertigo I had the first 15 years, only occasional slight dizziness, particularly when I roll over in bed, rarely when I am upright.

I wear hearing aids on both ears. The sound distortion, however, is becoming more serious and I am concerned about being able to continue working which requires talking to others and on the phone.

Last year I heard about a doctor who had some success in restoring hearing in Meniere's patients using a low cholesterol diet.

My other health is fine. I am 54 and weigh 130 pounds and am 5 feet 2. I would certainly try a diet if it would help my hearing. Thank you for any advice you can give.

Dear Reader:

Your case is unusual because it involves both ears and began at such an early age. Meniere's disease more often begins in middle life.

The benefit of other readers the disease is characterized by dizziness (vertigo) that makes a person have a sensation of motion, loss of hearing and ringing or buzzing in the ears. Unless there is an associated hearing loss it is not true Meniere's disease.

A person with this disease may feel fine except during attacks. The attacks may be associated with nausea and rarely vomiting, somewhat like motion sickness. During the attack the eyes may be seen to move back and forth in jerky movements called nystagmus.

As the hearing is lost dizziness disappears as it has in your case. Hearing loss is progressive so the dizziness sensation seems to burn itself out in time. The attacks are treated with medicines used to treat motion sickness.

The cause of the disease is unknown. Some authorities think it is caused by an accumulation of excess fluid in the delicate balance apparatus inside the ear. These canals are somewhat like a carpenter's level and send signals to the brain about the position of the head.

When they are inflamed or accumulate fluid or are otherwise damaged they send false information to the brain, just as a faulty carpenter's level could give misinformation. The brain then is confused, causing sensations of motion.

You can have the sensation of dizziness or vertigo from other medical problems, including inflammation resulting from a recent viral respiratory infection and, of course, some people get it from motion sickness.

A diet that restricts salt is used in some patients with Meniere's disease to try to prevent any accumulation of fluid in the balance canals. And circulation can be a factor—I am doubtful that you will get much benefit from a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet but it is worth trying. I am sending you The Health Letter number 13. Diet. Preventing Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Fatty cholesterol deposits can affect any arteries and impair circulation. Some people do get improvement in hearing and ear function if they are able to reverse the circulation problems so you might as well try it.

Grand-Mummy

AFTER almost 80 years of detective work, archaeologists have finally found the Grand-Mummy of crusty old King Tut. University of Michigan scientists announced Wednesday they have identified the remains of Queen Tiy, left, originally

3,000-year-old mystery solved

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — After almost 80 years of detective work, archaeologists have finally found the grandmummy of crusty old King Tut.

University of Michigan scientists announced Wednesday they have identified the remains of Queen Tiy originally uncovered in Egypt's Valley of the Kings in 1898.

The queen, who played a major role in shaping ancient Egypt's society, lived about 1300 B.C. She was the grandmother of King Tutankhamen, whose mummified remains were discovered in 1922 in the same area.

Dr. James E. Harris, who headed the team that identified the mummy in Cairo, said Queen Tiy is considered the missing link in the royal Egyptian lineage.

She was the mother of King Akenaten, the first pharaoh to adopt monotheism by establishing sun worship as the official religion.

Her identification was determined after years of classic investigation. Her body was found in a tomb with other Egyptian royalty in 1898, but grave robbers had stripped all identification.

Scientists of the time quickly decided they didn't know who she was.

The queen and several other unidentified mummies, listed as "Jane Does," were placed in a sealed chamber in Cairo, but the location of the chamber was later lost. An Egyptian museum curator accidentally found the mummies two years ago, and he asked Harris to seek an identification.

Harris said the big break in the case came when scientists started using a 3,000-year-old strand of hair encased in a small gold casket that was found in King Tut's tomb in 1922.

Using sophisticated computer analysis, scientists patiently eliminated all other possibilities among numerous unidentified mummies in Egypt to verify the queen's identity.

Harris said that in addition to the historic importance of the find, the methods used should open a new era in archeology.

"This means you can take modern scientific technology and for the first time use it to solve much of the mystery that has existed for 3,000 years," Harris said.

Couple avoids tax bit by divorcing

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (UPI) — An Ellicott City couple plans to get a second divorce soon — not because of disaffection, but to protect the "integrity of the tax laws."

H. David Boyter, 36, and his wife Angela, 31, got their first divorce last December, remarried Jan. 9 and now say they will go through the same process this year.

Federal tax laws require a married couple to pay higher income taxes than two single unmarried adults living together.

To avoid the tax bite, the Boyters will be flying off to the Dominican Republic in November for a vacation and a $30 divorce in Santo Domingo. They will be married for the third time in January.

Even with the expense of the divorce and the vacation, the Boyters figure they will still come out ahead.

"We take the trip for a vacation," Mrs. Boyter said. "People spend over $1,000 just to do what we are going to do — swim and get a suntan on the beaches. Only we are also getting a divorce and expect to pay at least that much less income tax as single adults."

The Boyters — both Department of Defense employees — will be meeting a New York couple, Christopher and Anita Murray, who also are getting a second divorce to avoid steeper tax payments.

According to Boyter, "They (the Internal Revenue Service) have not bothered us, even though we filed as single adults, paying $1,200 less than a married couple would."

The IRS issued a ruling earlier this year "not recognizing divorces like ours," he said.

"But until that ruling is upheld in court, we have no plans to stop getting annual divorces until the tax law is made equitable," he said.

Despite the divorces, Boyter said he and his wife still have an enduring relationship.

"Our marriage is sound," he said.

Desert raincoats sell like hotcakes

LONDON (UPI) — A rainwear firm has gone one up on the super-salesman — who sold refrigerators to Eskimos.

They sell raincoats by the truckload in parched areas like the Gulf States — average rainfall very often nil.

Now the company, A. Grantham Ltd., of Brighton, is to receive a Queens Award to industry for outstanding export achievement.

They specialize in uniforms for police, armed forces, airlines, and fire brigades — and raincoats are part of the kit.

Last year, Arab States like by Dhahbi, Bahrain Sales director Peter Edwards said, "It may be worth nearly $5.1 million worth.

sales director Peter Edwards said, "It may seem odd selling raincoats to places where there is hardly anything but desert."

"But those who wear the uniforms have to be prepared for any weather, and go anywhere at any time. So their kits must be complete."

"And the raincoats need to be of good quality. It doesn't rain is rare. It can be torrential when it does come," Edwards said.

"He anticipates selling even more raincoats to other Middle Eastern countries."

"The potential market is still enormous," Edwards said.

"Unrealistic? I don't think they would sell," he said.

Tax laws protested

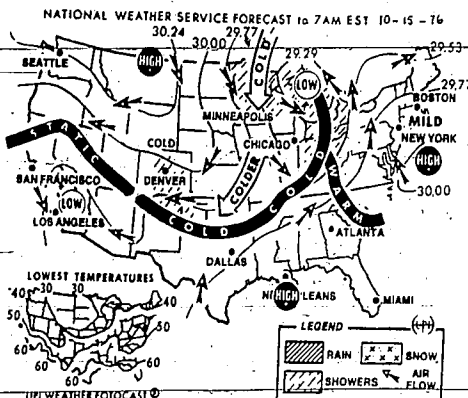

DAVID Boyter and his wife Angela, Ellicott City, Md., plan to get divorced for the second time next month and then marry for the third time in early January. The couple divorce and marry to protest the tax laws which require a married couple to pay higher federal taxes than two unmarried adults living together. (UPI)

DEAR ABBY: I beg to differ with you when you state that a girl can tell if a man is married because she never sees him on weekends or holidays.

I went with Rob for 14 months and he was with me morning, noon and night every day of the week. And last Christmas he came to my house at 9 in the evening and stayed until 10 the next morning until after the kids had opened their gifts. Then he left, saying he had to go to a family dinner. He came back again at 7 that evening and left at 6 the next morning.

When my little boy had an operation, Rob stayed at the hospital with me all day and night. Finally, on New Year's Eve, I learned he was married when we ran into some people who knew his wife.

He confessed it was true, and said he and his wife didn't sleep together but she didn't believe in divorce. I figured if he treated her that way, he'd eventually treat me that way, too, so I kicked him out. Why would a woman want to hang on to a louse like that?

STILL SINGLE AND LOOKING

DEAR STILL LOOKING: Because she probably figures she's better off with him than without him. I think he showed his "looseness" more by lying to you about his marital status than by seeking satisfaction outside marriage to a woman who refused to sleep with him but refused to divorce him.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb:

I have had Meniere's disease for 26 years. The hearing in my right ear deteriorated first. After about 15 years my left ear started to go.

I no longer have the serious vertigo I had the first 15 years, only occasional slight dizziness, particularly when I roll over in bed, rarely when I am upright.

I wear hearing aids on both ears. The sound distortion, however, is becoming more serious and I am concerned about being able to continue working which requires talking to others and on the phone.

Last year I heard about a doctor who had some success in restoring hearing in Meniere's patients using a low cholesterol diet.

My other health is fine: I am 54 and weigh 130 pounds and am 5 feet 2. I would certainly try a diet if it would help my hearing. Thank you for any advice you can give.

Dear Reader:

Your case is unusual because it involves both ears and began at such an early age. Meniere's disease more often begins in middle life. For the benefit of other readers the disease is characterized by dizziness (vertigo) that makes a person have a sensation of motion, loss of hearing and ringing or buzzing in the ears. Unless there is an associated hearing loss it is not true Meniere's disease.

A person with this disease may feel fine except during attacks. The attacks may be associated with nausea and rarely vomiting, somewhat like motion sickness. During the attack the eyes may be seen to move back and forth in jerky movements called nystagmus.

As the hearing is lost dizziness disappears as it has in your case. Hearing loss is progressive so the dizziness sensation seems to last itself out in time. The attacks are treated with medicines used to treat motion sickness.

The cause of the disease is unknown. Some authorities think it is caused by an accumulation of excess fluid in the delicate balance apparatus inside the ear. These canals are somewhat like a carpenter's level and send signals to the brain about the position of the head.

When they are inflamed or accumulate fluid or are otherwise damaged they send false information to the brain, just as a faulty carpenter's level could give misinformation. The brain then is confused, causing sensations of motion.

You can have the sensation of dizziness or vertigo from other medical problems, including inflammation resulting from a recent viral respiratory infection and, of course, some people get it from motion sickness.

A diet that restricts salt is used in some patients with Meniere's disease to try to prevent any accumulation of fluid in the balance canals. And circulation can be a factor. I am doubtful that you will get much benefit from a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet but it is worth trying. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-3. Diet. Preventing Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1351, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Early industrial deposits can affect your arteries and impair circulation. Some people do get improvement in hearing and ear function if they are able to reverse these circulation problems so you might as well try it.

Grand-Mummy

3,000-year-old mystery solved

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — After almost 80 years of detective work, archeologists have finally found the grandmummy of crusty old King Tut.

University of Michigan scientists announced Wednesday they have identified the remains of Queen Tiy originally uncovered in Egypt's Valley of the Kings in 1898. The queen, who played a major role in shaping ancient Egypt's society, lived about 1300 B.C. She was the grandmother of King Tutankhamen, whose mummified remains were discovered in 1922 in the same area. Dr. James E. Harris, who headed the team that identified the mummy in Cairo, said Queen Tiy is considered the missing link in the royal Egyptian lineage.

She was the mother of King Akhenaten, the first pharaoh to adopt monotheism by establishing sun worship as the official religion. Her identification was determined after years of classic investigation. Her body was found in a tomb with other Egyptian royalty in 1898, but grave robbers had stripped all identification.

Scientists of the time quickly decided they didn't know who she was. The queen and several other unidentified mummies, listed as "Jane Dues," were placed in a sealed chamber in Cairo, but the location of the chamber was later lost. An Egyptian museum curator accidentally found the mummies two years ago and he asked Harris to seek an identification.

Harris said the big break in the case came when scientists started using a 3,000-year-old strand of hair encased in a small gold casket that was found in King Tut's tomb in 1922. Using sophisticated computer analysis, scientists patiently eliminated all other possibilities among numerous unidentified mummies in Egypt to verify the queen's identity.

Harris said that in addition to the historic importance of the find, the methods used should open a new era in archeology. "This means you can take modern scientific technology and use the first time used to solve much of the mystery that has existed for 3,000 years," Harris said.

Couple avoids tax bit by divorcing

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (UPI) — An Ellicott City couple plans to get a second divorce soon — not because of dissatisfaction, but to protest the "absurdity of the tax laws."

H. David Boyter, 36, and his wife Angela, 31, got their first divorce last December, remarried Jan. 9 and now say they will go through the same process this year.

Federal tax laws require a married couple to pay higher income taxes than two single unmarried adults living together.

To avoid the tax bite, the Boyters will be flying off to the Dominican Republic in November for a vacation and a $350 divorce in Santo Domingo. They will be married for the third time in January.

Even with the expense of the divorce and the vacation, the Boyters figure they will still come out ahead.

"We take the trip for a vacation," Mrs. Boyter said. "People spend over $1,000 just to do what we are going to do — swim and get a suntan on the beaches. Only we are also getting a divorce and expect to pay at least that much less income tax as single adults."

The Boyters — both Department of Defense employees — will be meeting a New York couple, Christopher and Anita Murray, who also are getting a second divorce to avoid steeper tax payments.

According to Boyter, "They (the Internal Revenue Service) have not bothered us, even though we filed as single adults paying $1,300 less than a married couple would."

The IRS issued a ruling earlier this year "not recognizing divorces like ours," he said.

"But until that ruling is upheld in court, we have no plans to stop getting annual divorces until the tax law is made equitable," he said.

Despite the divorces, Boyter said he and his wife still have an enduring relationship.

"Our marriage is sound," he said.

Tax laws protested

DAVID Boyter and his wife, Angela, Ellicott City, Md., plan to get divorced for the second time next month and then marry for the third time in early January. The couple divorce and marry to protest the tax laws which require a married couple to pay higher federal taxes than two unmarried adults living together. (UPI)

Desert raincoats sell like hotcakes

LONDON (UPI) — A rainwear firm has gone one up on the super-salesman who sold refrigerators to Eskimos.

They sell raincoats by the truckload in parched areas like the Gulf States — average rainfall very often nil.

Now the company, A. Grantham Ltd., of Brighton, is to receive a Queens Award to industry for outstanding export achievement. They specialize in uniforms for police, armed forces, airlines, and fire brigades — and raincoats are part of the kit.

Last year, Arab States like by Dubai, Bahrain Sales director Peter Edwards said, "It may have brought nearly $5.1 million worth.

Sales director Peter Edwards said, "It may seem odd selling raincoats to places where there is hardly anything but desert."

"But these who wear their uniforms have to be prepared for any weather, and go anywhere at any time. So their kits must be complete."

And raincoats need to be of good quality. "Although rain is rare, it can be torrential when it does come," Edwards said.

He anticipates selling even more raincoats to the Middle Eastern countries.

"The potential market is still enormous," Edwards said. "Umbrellas? I don't think they would sell," he said.

TF miss, McNitt exchange promises

TWIN FALLS — Denise Bolton became the bride of Don McNitt Sept. 25 in an afternoon ceremony in the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Lorna Bolton, Twin Falls, and Dennis Bolton, Burley. The parents of the bridegroom are deceased.

For her wedding, the bride chose a "traditional empire style gown of sheer organza and chantilly tulle lace. The gown featured shepherdess sleeves, sweetheart neckline, standup collar and long train. A ballerina veil of bridal illusion was held by a crown of miniature fleur-de-lis and bow accented with pearls.

The altar was decorated in white mums and daisies with royal blue bows. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and blue daisies.

Attendees included Ellen Anderson, Twin Falls, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Sandra Moss and Mrs. Phil Hochhalter, both of Twin Falls and both sisters of the bride.

Jim Smith served as best man and the ushers were Jim Erickson and Joe Fortier, both Twin Falls.

A reception followed the wedding in the fraternal room of the church. Assisting with the reception were Mary Ann Gillespie, in charge of the guest book; Kathy McNitt, sister of the bridegroom; and Kay Cooper, Maureen Brierley; Debbie Laley; Lisa Grandall and Lynn Culbertson.

Following a wedding trip to Sun Valley, the couple will make their home in Twin Falls.

worked he would draw trumps, discard one club on a high diamond and repeat the club finesse.

The second line was to cash the ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond, enter dummy with the seven of trumps and, assuming trumps broke 2-2, hope to be able to run the diamonds.

South decided on a third line of play that didn't offer quite as good a chance mathematically, but gave him an opportunity for lots of thought at the end of the play.

Neither of the first two lines would work. His line did. He simply ran off all his trumps while discarding down to four diamonds and a club in dummy. Then he went after diamonds and since the queen was kind enough to drop he was home with the slam.

Unfriendly jogger shoots at officer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Policeman Gregory Beatty rolled down his patrol car window and said to a passing jogger, on picturesque Twin Peaks, "Nice day isn't it?"

"Yeah, man," came the reply, followed by a barrage of shots from a small black revolver.

"He emptied his gun on me," Beatty said later Tuesday from a bed at San Francisco General Hospital, where he was reported in stable condition with wounds to his chest, right arm, right hand and right leg.

At least 40 police cars converged on the Twin Peaks area but were unable to apprehend the suspect, identified as a lanky 6-foot-2, 220-pound black man dressed in a white T-shirt and green sweat pants.

Beatty, 32, a 10-year veteran, was wearing a bullet-proof vest, which the slugs missed.

Health plan now available for dogs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A prepaid health plan now is available for the nation's dogs and cats.

It is called Medi-Pet.

Formation of the plan was announced Tuesday by Paul E. Murray Jr., a lifetime business and medical executive, who is president of National Pet Care Inc., parent firm of Medi-Pet.

Murray said the plan is the first of its kind and will be administered through designated veterinary hospitals.

It will "enable every pet owner in America to keep his dog or cat in beautiful shape," Murray said.

Pet owners should "look after their Tabby or Flido just like a member of the family when it comes to giving them the best continuous health care," he said.

Murray said Medi-Pet is based in the San Francisco suburb of Los Altos and professional services to patients will be performed by facilities of the American Veterinary Health Medical Association.

"A Medi-Pet facility accredited by the AVMA should have departments of medicine, surgery, radiology, anesthesiology and supportive care," a brochure for the health plan says.

Those qualified to be Medi-Pet patients are "all dogs and cats — if they are between the ages of 16 weeks and seven years, fully vaccinated, healthy and have no pre-existing health problems — congenital or otherwise."

"Once qualified, dogs and cats are covered for life as long as the pet owner continues payment of annual premiums," the brochure says.

A Medi-Pet spokesman said the plan will cut "the costs of veterinary treatment (that) have soared in recent years."

In addition, said Murray, member pets have access to a computerized identification system called "ANIMALKIT," in which a 10-digit number is placed in the ear of a dog or cat to help find them if they are lost.

Phone number of the center is (415) "YOUR PET."

"Loyalty, affection, amusement, comfort, companionship and most of all love are lavishly bestowed by the pet on its owner," the brochure says. "What does it ask in return?"

"Food, water, exercise, a place to sleep and an occasional pat on the head."

Club has 1 rule — no rules

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Stafford Davis spends much of his time in a three-piece suit as an advertising and public relations man.

But on occasions he dons his deerstalker hat to become a "true perceiver" of the Afghanistan Perceivers — an unusual social club.

Members of the Afghanistan Perceivers include housewives, lawyers, a pathologist and a sportswriter. The only rule is that there can be no rules.

What all members have in common is an interest in a fictional British detective whose address is Holmes as well known as his name: Sherlock Holmes of 221, Baker Street.

The Afghanistan Perceivers is the only "seem society" of the Baker Street Irregulars in Oklahoma. Its members call themselves Sherlockians, to distinguish themselves from the Britons who are members of that nation's Sherlock Holmes Society. They call themselves Holmesians.

"It's really a marvelous social club," said Davis. "You find Sherlock Holmes buffs everywhere."

"Being an Irregular Society, we have only one firm rule — that there be no rules," he said.

The organization meets occasionally for cocktails and to trade Holmes paraphernalia and once a year holds a grand meeting to celebrate Holmes' birthday. The world's first consulting detective is now 122, according to his fans.

There has been a rebirth of interest in Sherlock Holmes in recent years.

Davis said the organization took its name from the Holmes' short story, "A Study in Scarlet," in which Holmes and his companion, Dr. John H. Watson, first met. Upon meeting Watson, Holmes immediately deduced the doctor had recently returned from the war in Afghanistan and "from that historic occasion, we've taken that name," Davis said.

The less said about the bidding of today's hand, the better. Not that six hearts isn't a reasonable contract, but there must be as many ways of bidding those North-South cards as there are bridge players.

South went up with dummy's ace of spades, led the 10 of trumps and finessed. West took his king and laid down the queen of spades. South ruffed and went into executive session. There were three ways to play. One was to lead a trump to dummy's seven and take the club finesse. If that

Caffeine tolerance studied

BOSTON (UPI) — A researcher says children who drink a large amount of cola and cocoa might be consuming too much caffeine.

"Children naturally have a lower caffeine tolerance than adults," Mary Louise Bunker of the University of California in Los Angeles told the American Dietetic Association convention Tuesday. "If a child has been drinking a lot of cola or cocoa, he may become nervous or hyperactive."

Ms. Bunker said she did a study of caffeine levels for the UCLA nutrition department. She said while there is disagreement on the effects of caffeine, there is evidence it might speed up the heart, elevate blood-cholesterol levels and irritate sensitive stomachs.

"It would be very difficult, though, to establish safety levels because caffeine tolerance will vary from person to person," she said.

Planning a wedding?

Your wedding may be the most important event in your life. We wish you every happiness.

In order to obtain the best possible news and picture coverage of your engagement and marriage a few newspaper rules should be kept in mind.

Time deadlines are important. Engagement stories and pictures must be run in the paper before the wedding. Space is short, and engagement stories take some time to process, so it helps to bring in or mail the information as early as possible.

Pictures of the wedding must be received by the Times-News within two weeks after the event. Beyond two weeks, wedding pictures will not be printed. Remind your photographer of the deadline.

After the two-week deadline, wedding stories will be printed, but often in shortened form as space permits. After three months, wedding stories will no longer be printed.

There is no charge for printing wedding and engagement pictures and stories.

MAKING caramel apples is still an activity family, friends and especially the kids will find fun. Fix them plain or doll them up with candy corn, shredded coconut or chopped peanuts.

It's time for caramel apples

Falling leaves, football and apple picking time are signs to remind us that autumn is here. And while the advent of the apple season triggers thoughts of homemade pies, cobblers, apple sauce and cider — for many it's the crisp, juicy eating apple tucked inside some chewy caramel that calls to mind the fondest memories. No too many years ago, making caramel apples from fruit picked in the family orchard was an annual ritual looked forward to by everyone — grandparents, parents, aunts, uncles and children of all ages. After the fruit was handpicked, the bushes were culled for the best apples while the kids unwrapped the caramels. Melling, stirring, dunking and cooling followed. Finally, it was time for munching and crunching. Although Times have changed — today, family orchards are few and far between — making caramel apples is still an activity family, friends and especially the kids will find fun. Many "pick-your-own" orchards dot the countryside. Most places welcome children and are open on weekends. The less adventurous will find apple varieties now at their prime at farm stands and grocery stores.

CARAMEL APPLES
 39 1/4 oz. bag Kraft caramels
 2 tablespoons water
 4 or 5 medium-sized apples, washed, dried

Dip into hot caramel sauce; turn until coated. Scrape off excess sauce from bottom of apples. Place on greased waxed paper; chill until firm. Keep in a cool place.
 Variation: Before chilling apples, decorate with candy corn or roll in shredded coconut or chopped peanuts.

DAR tours museum

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will host for a tour of Herrett's Museum Nov. 13. The tour will constitute the November program for the chapter. During the October meeting Saturday at the "Dinner Inn" members honored Elma Gockley, immediate past state regent, and Garetta Reynolds, state corresponding secretary, both Boise, as special guests. Mrs. Gerald Ridgeway, regent, conducted the meeting, introducing Mrs. Roseann Stevens, national defense chairman, who presented an article on "How Dark is the Dark Continent?"

Miss Gockley gave a talk on "Proclaim Liberty Throughout the Land." This covered a history of the Declaration of Independence, the statue of Liberty, Liberty Bell and the pledge of allegiance to the flag. She also read an article by Red Skelton on the pledge of allegiance. Two poems were read and a closing prayer given by Mrs. Ridgeway.

Supreme Way investment in jeopardy

By JEFF SHER Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Idaho members of the Supreme Food Co. distribution plan may be losing their investments in the discount food plan because of a decision reached in a Denver district court.

Denver District Court Judge Henry Santo Tuesday found that Western Food Plan, Inc. has no right of ownership to the assets of the Supreme Food Company.

Gene Lucero, Colorado assistant attorney general assigned to the case, said Western Food Plan had sought an injunction to restrain the State of Colorado from enforcing a writ of attachment against Western Food Plan, Inc.

Lucero says his office will now attempt to enforce the writ and attach the assets of the Supreme Food Co.

Lucero said it is not certain that Colorado will be able to attach the assets of the Supreme Food Co., but he added that the judge's finding in favor of Colorado indicated that the case for attachment is strong.

Lucero said the same judge who refused to grant the injunction will hear the case for enforcement of the writ of attachment.

Supreme Food Co., a discount food distribution operation which promised reduced prices and home delivery and which sold memberships to approximately 7,000 Idahans, went out of business in early August after the State of Colorado filed suit against them charging misrepresentation in sales practices.

Supreme folded because Hussell, Inc., a West German corporation which held the controlling interest in both Supreme and its parent company, Micron Corp., declared its assets in jeopardy and called in its security interest.

Hussell then transferred Supreme's assets to Western Food Plan, Inc., another of its wholly owned subsidiaries. Western announced on Aug. 4 it was taking over the Supreme operation.

Lucero indicated that Colorado will go to court with a motion to attach the assets of Western as soon as they can prepare their case.

McClure blasts economic policies

BURLEY — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, blasted Democratic economic policies Wednesday and warned that further fast-rising inflation and high unemployment rates are ahead for 1978 and 1979 if the Democrats control the purse strings.

He said the Democrats are "laying the groundwork now" for a recession less than two years from now.

McClure was honored Wednesday at a no-host breakfast here. The senator warned that Democrats are leaning on the false concept of spending to cure current economic woes, but said that can only cause more inflation.

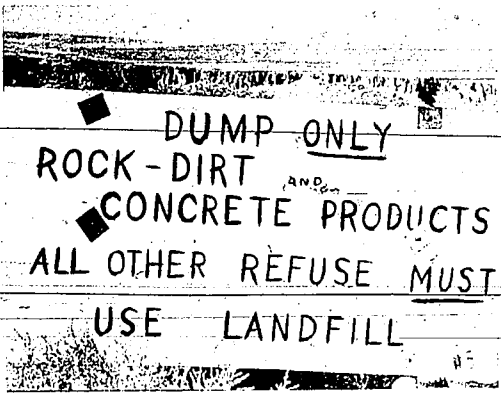

McClure praised the Ford administration for cutting $1.1 billion off Democratic spending plans through votes. He said economic figures indicate "solid recovery is on its way" if government spending can be curtailed to avoid new increases in the inflationary rates.

But he opposes further government control of production, despite the depressed farm market, but urged more exporting of farm products. He said President Ford has boasted the import tariff on sugar and imposed beef import quotas to help farmers.

He charged that the GOP President and the Democratic Congress have a "balance of opposition," rather than a "balance of cooperation."

McClure said the new budgeting should be required of all federal programs every four years to justify all appropriations. He said that method might have uncovered the Social Security financial problem long before it became a crisis.

McClure said the program is steadily deteriorating, with the number of elderly people receiving benefits increasing faster than the income of taxpayers. He said the Social Security payments are expected to overtake income and existing funds by 1982.

BLM district makes plans to close Buhl rock dump

BURLEY — The Burley District of the Bureau of Land Management plans to close the Buhl rock dump July 1.

The dump, located six miles west of Buhl on BLM land along Salmon Falls Creek, is leased by Twin Falls County as an approved dumping site intended only for rock and cement.

County Commissioner Merl Leonard said the dump will be closed for environmental reasons.

Leonard said the decision was made in an attempt to protect "aesthetic and environmental values" in the area.

Don Lovett, the BLM district manager, said dumping of unauthorized materials, conflict with recreational uses of the area and aesthetic and safety factors prompted the decision to close and relocate the Buhl dump.

The dump site was leased by the county from the BLM in 1973, according to Lovett. At that time the area had been used for many years as an authorized dump and the BLM granted the lease for a 29-year period.

Lovett said the dump originally was to be limited to rock only and later cement was allowed.

"The idea was that rock would cover up the old material," Lovett says, "and if it was rock only, it would not have too much effect aesthetically."

Unfortunately, people continue to dump many other kinds of garbage and junk at the site, according to Lovett. He says it is the dead animal carcasses, wire, old home appliances and lumber which make the dump an eyesore.

In addition to the aesthetic considerations, Lovett says the dump presents a safety hazard. Materials are dumped over the canyon rim close to a trail which leads down to Bighull Lake, according to Lovett. The area beyond the dump in the canyon is used for recreational purposes and dumping presents a hazard to anyone who uses the area for hunting or fishing.

The BLM and the county are in the process of identifying alternative sites in which to relocate the rock dump site.

The BLM has presently located three possible sites, two of which are in Buhl and one in Casterton.

The county will evaluate these sites and make its own recommendations by early December, according to Lovett.

Hansen stresses value of private enterprise

BURLEY — Private enterprise is the only answer for the country's economic woes, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said Wednesday night.

"Government generates no wealth," the congressman told an audience gathered in Burley for a Hansen appreciation dinner.

He blasted Democratic legislation that would make the federal government the "employer of last resort." He said a dollar spent in private enterprise turns over nine times, while a government dollar turns over less than once by the time expenses are taken out of it.

Hansen called for support of President Gerald Ford in the upcoming election and urged a change in Congress. He said Republicans now face committee alignments of "21 plus one" with Democrats having more than two-thirds of the membership.

"Let's get the Congress turned over," he urged.

Hansen claimed the issues are "crystal clear" in the coming election, with the same differences existing between himself and his opponent, Stan Kress, as exist between the GOP standard-bearer and Democrat Jimmy Carter.

He said the choice is between a free agriculture and a controlled one; more OSHA, less OSHA or no OSHA; no gun controls or some gun controls.

He said there is a choice between the concept that "abortion is generally out and totally unacceptable and we're going to stop this slaughter in our hospitals; or it is in to some degree."

Hansen said he does not want to "play the numbers game" when a person becomes ill.

The congressman said the GOP platform calls for cutting spending as much as possible and the nation still has a $490 billion budget. Carter's proposals, he said, would nearly double that budget, adding $300 billion to the deficit.

Hansen said the national debt is $70 billion now and increasing at a rate of $50 to $60 billion annually, with a trillion-dollar debt in the offing. He blasted the Humphrey-Hawkins bill that would make government the "employer of last resort" and federal medical care proposals. "Government can't even pay for the Medicare program now!" he said "pie-in-the-sky ideas."

Sheriff solved funds problem, attorney says

By BOB ZUCKERMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder first learned he might be mishandling a sheriff's office photo-copying machine fund, he immediately turned over the money to the county auditor's office—the sheriff's defense attorney said today.

Corder is charged with the felony offense of failure to keep and turn over public moneys. The complaint, filed last week, alleges Corder failed to keep and turn over on a quarterly basis $1,699 received as fees from a photo-copying service between December, 1973 and July 27, 1976.

According to county auditor's office records, the sheriff's office turned in $1,256.01 in miscellaneous funds July 30, 1976. This was the first time money was turned in labeled miscellaneous funds, according to a county auditor's office worker, who asked not to be identified.

The sheriff's attorney, Lloyd Webb, said today this money was what was left of fees collected during the years the sheriff's office charged for copying services.

Webb said Corder turned in the money as soon as he learned from a county-fired accountant this fund might be illegal.

The accountant, Donald Rahe, retained by the county for auditing purposes, said today he first told the sheriff about the possible illegality of the fund July 7, more than three weeks before the money was turned over to the county auditor's office.

When asked if he thought the three weeks was a reasonable time for the sheriff to take in turning over the money, Rahe said it could take more or less "depending on how his records were kept."

Webb said the $432.96 difference between the amount Corder is charged with mishandling and the amount turned over to the auditor will be one of the main issues in the case.

"Our position is that the money was lost over a period of 10 years," and that the sheriff is not responsible for the loss, Webb said.

Because there was never an accounting of that money before this year, Webb said it would be difficult to prove the money was lost during Corder's terms as sheriff. Corder was sheriff about eight of the 10 years during which the money was lost, Webb said.

Webb said it was his understanding County Prosecutor William Hollifield, the prosecution in the Corder case, came up with the $1,699 figure from information gained through an independent audit of the sheriff's books.

Hollifield could not be reached for comment this morning.

County commissioners called for the audit late in August after a preliminary police investigation uncovered irregularities in sheriff's bookkeeping practices.

The audit revealed "money was missing from the sheriff's office," Hollifield said after the audit.

Webb said Corder first learned the copying machine money should be turned over to the auditor on a quarterly basis when Rahe told the sheriff of possible mishandling of another sheriff's office revolving fund.

This fund of $1,000 was used to pay for the use of sheriff's deputies to serve lawyers, papers, money from this fund to the auditor's office and the lawyers would be billed later for the serving of papers.

This method of operation apparently saved the sheriff's office time in bookkeeping.

On July 7, Rahe said County Clerk Harold Lancaster told him that this fund might not be proper. Rahe said he immediately told Corder.

Corder immediately turned the $1,000 fund into the auditor's office, Webb said.

Rahe said he could not remember whether he had first talked with Corder about the copying machine fund or the other revolving fund.

In other developments, Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell said he expected to turn over to the prosecutor a detailed report on his office's investigation of the sheriff's case either today or tomorrow.

The prosecutor will have the final say on whether the report will be released to the press. Kidwell said. Hollifield said earlier he had no intention of releasing the report.

Mrs. Dorothy Gruber, Kimberly, said today she and several other Twin Falls County residents have collected more than 150 signatures on a petition supporting the sheriff and expressing a strong belief in his honesty.

Wendell accident victim identified

WENDELL — Gooding Sheriff Earl V. Brown Wednesday afternoon identified the victim of an accident in a Wendell potato storage cellar as Lawrence Oliver, 40, Heyburn.

Officers had delayed identifying the man until relatives could be located, according to Wendell Police Chief Dale Bunn. Mr. Oliver had resided in Heyburn with his mother the past few years.

The sheriff said he understood Mr. Oliver had been using a front end loader to set a pole in a hole in the cellar. When the pole would not fit, he apparently reached up through the arms on the loader to lower it and was crushed when the boom came completely down to the loader.

Center asks zone change

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Living Center has petitioned the Twin Falls County Zoning Board for a conditional use zoning ordinance to allow the Living Center to expand its facilities.

Public protest against the petition is expected at a public hearing scheduled for 6 p.m. tonight at the county zoning board meeting in the Twin Falls Judicial Building.

The state-licensed shelter, which provides care and housing for handicapped individuals, was first involved in a controversy in August, 1974, when one of the boarders stabbed to death a Twin Falls woman.

Residents in the area southwest of Twin Falls near the Living Center have expressed concern about the expansion but say they want to hear more about the proposed arrangements before making any public statement.

Duff Brown, the owner and manager of the center, has petitioned the county zoning board for a conditional use zoning ordinance to allow the Living Center to build a recreational building, a new dormitory containing 16 additional beds and a utilities room with laundry facilities and a hair care room for the men and women.

"I don't want to expand my facilities," Brown says. "I want to complete my facilities as in the original plan."

Brown says that in 1972 when the Living Center first started he bought five building permits from the county. Two of the permits expired before funds were raised to construct all of the buildings, Brown says. Those two buildings were the additional dormitory and the recreation building.

The Living Center now houses 29 people, according to Brown.

He says there is now a waiting list of people to live at the center. The new dormitory would provide 16 additional beds and bring the facilities' rooming capacity up to 45, which is close to Brown's original plan of a shelter for 48 people.

Open house set

FILER — The Filer Senior Haven will be open for public inspection during an open house from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday. The center is located at 222 Main Ave., Filer. Refreshments will be served and all friends and interested persons are invited.

Motorists gather spuds

JEROME — Highway 93 just south of the Junction of Highway 25 was the scene of a "potato jam." Wednesday night as motorists scrambled to retrieve potatoes scattered over the highway when a spud truck bed overturned.

State Patrolman George Blackburn, investigating officer, said he had a hard time keeping people and cars off the highway after the "word got around" that a potato truck had lost its load.

A truck owned by Santos Ranches, Route 2, Gooding, and driven by Gumaro Orozco, 19, was headed west on Highway 25. As he came off the buttie east of the intersection the brakes failed. The driver turned into the parking area in the southeast corner at the intersection in an attempt to avoid rolling across the busy Highway 93.

But he was unable to get his vehicle stopped and as it reentered Highway 93 south of the intersection the bed turned over, spewing the potatoes. The truck finally came to rest in a borrow pit on the west side of Highway 93, heading toward Twin Falls. Orozco was uninjured.

Employees at the Simplot storage cellar at the site brought a tractor with blade and pushed the spuds off the highway as a courtesy, Blackburn said. He said since many of the spuds were bruised, the owner said they couldn't be salvaged and whoever wanted them could keep them.

Crop report spurs gains by grain, spud futures

CHICAGO — Spurred by Tuesday's crop report, potato and grain futures advanced Wednesday.

Meats, however, declined sharply.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds rallied on the best volume in many weeks, with prices 1 to 2 cents higher on 1.70 to 1.80 bushels to cover short positions. Besides the bullish interpretation of the production figures was a report from Paris that France would import another 150,000 tons of United States potatoes.

Wheat gathered strength from limit up soybeans, scoring gains of 1/16 to 1/4 cents. Late pickup extended except in October which ended 30 higher. The close was as much as 122 points of earlier highs.

Feeder cattle held modest gains but most months ended near the day's lows. October settled 75 higher with backs 5

Quarterly figures disclosed

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. reported its capital spending will reach $300 million in 1976, the company's third quarter net income was estimated at $25.5 million.

Fery said the $300 million expenditure is part of the company's five-year capital program which recently passed the halfway point.

He said company earnings in 1977 and beyond are expected to benefit from the program.

The $25.5 net income, calculated as of Sept. 30, compared with $19.6 million for the same quarter a year ago.

Chicago cash basis was unchanged at 15 cents under Chicago December for hard winter and 17 under for soft red.

Spillover short covering from the lockup on the complex, produced a contraseasonal strength in corn, which opened sharply higher and bid for limit gains before heavy selling thwarted that aim. Closing gains were 7 1/2 to 8 1/2 cents. Chicago cash basis was nominally unchanged for boxcars at 17 cents under December with hoppers a cent higher, 14 under December.

higher to 5 lower on a trade of 49¢ contracts.

Live hogs closed with sharp losses. February's feeding limit down briefly and December settling there. Faltering bellies pressured hogs, as weaker markets and lower cash brought the heavy losses amounting to 22 to 25¢ points on a trade of 4.20 contracts.

Pork bellies dropped the limit in a morning break, then edged higher only to succumb to late pressure and close limit down in all but the most distant months. Volume was 2,687 contracts. Heavy meat production is a negative factor.

The company said the improvement in the 1976 earnings over the previous year reflected a gradually strengthening economy resulting in increased demand for the company's building materials and paper-related products.

"Third quarter results did not measure up to the 94 cents a share earned in the second quarter of this year," John B. Fery, president and chief executive officer, said.

Fery attributed the decline in profits between the second and third quarter mainly to a strike which idled several of the company's paper mills. "Equipment downtime necessitated by a major capital program and market conditions for certain grades of paper was another factor, he said.

Live cattle may have set a volume record for one month, with an estimated 12,700 contracts traded in December. Prices were mixed in the No. 12 domestic contract from 7 points higher in July to 12 to 20 points down in other months. The world spot price is off .15 cent a 1.8 cents a pound and the domestic spot is off .1 cent at 11.15 cents a pound.

New York Sugar 11 slipped 20 to 30 points early in the basis of the F. O. Licht estimate of world production at about 6 million tons over the first 1975 estimate. The market steadied late and traded quietly in a narrow range.

Gem politicians exchange jabs

BOISE (UPI) — State political leaders have entered the ring-to-exchange-jabs about the financing of their parties' candidates for the Second District Congressional seat.

Republican Chairman Vern Ravnescroft said the campaign waged by Stan Kress, the Democratic contender, is "dominated by thousands of dollars in out-of-state labor unions."

This was in return for a charge by Democratic Chairman Dickie Rice that Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, had used Congressional mailing privileges to send out campaign literature.

Ravnescroft said, "To date 6,000 people have contributed an average of approximately $24 each in response to George's requests for help."

Hansen has served three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives. Kress is making his first bid for the congressional seat.

Kress' campaign is approximately $240 per contributor and is dominated by thousands of dollars in out-of-state labor unions," Ravnescroft said.

Mrs. Rice said Tuesday a recent mailing by Hansen is "a political stunt costing the taxpayers at least $6,000 and exposing the congressman's true feelings of contempt toward many Idahoans."

"When a political piece arrives in a franked official business envelope the voters know that their congressman has just made a raid of the U.S. Treasury for political purposes," she said.

Mrs. Rice said she was referring to a reprinted article from the Petroleum Independent mailed under Hansen's free congressional mailing privilege to all Second District postal patrons.

She said the mailing "means the taxpayer just shelled out $16,000 to promote the Congressman's election."

Ravnescroft said records in the secretary of state's office show Kress has received more than $20,000 from such unions as the Garment Workers of America, United Paperworkers of America, United Autoworkers of America, United Steelworkers Union and the U.M.W. political action fund.

"None of which have major memberships or activities other than trying to buy the Democratic candidate a seat in Congress in Idaho," Ravnescroft said.

Gas firm seeks price increase

BOISE (UPI) — A vice president of Intermountain Gas Co. told the Public Utilities Commission Wednesday the firm needs an additional $15.9 million per year to cover increases in the cost of natural gas it buys for its Idaho customers.

Edward Penning, who manages Intermountain's natural gas purchases, testified at a public hearing in Boise that as a result of Federal Power Commission rate settlements, Northwest Pipeline Corporation, Intermountain's sole supplier, is raising its prices.

The net result of the action, brought on in part by Canadian gas price increases, will be a boost of 4.375 cents per therm of gas sold to Intermountain's customers.

Intermountain is asking the commission to allow the company to pass that increase to its customers beginning Oct. 20.

Military strength 'must be maintained'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig, commander of allied troops in Europe, said Wednesday that he expects confrontations with the Soviet Union in the near future would probably be in the Third World — but, nevertheless, military strength in Europe must be maintained.

In a speech at a meeting of the Association of the United States Army, Haig stressed the latest series of military exercises in Europe, the threat from the Soviet Union and its allies, and what the West must do to counter it.

"What was once an essentially continental Soviet military capability confined largely to Europe has today become a global capability providing the Soviets the potential for an imperialist phase in their foreign policy," he said.

Haig said the job of standing up to the Russians will depend on regional balances of power and pointed out that Soviet priorities still rank Europe high on the list.

Personal income increases in 1976

Total personal income will experience a sharp rise in Idaho in 1976 according to the quarterly First Security Bank News Letter, being distributed this week, says Kenneth J. Newman, Vice President & Manager.

Dr. Kelly K. Matthews, vice president and economist, is the editor of the News Letter.

Total personal income in Idaho in 1976 is estimated to reach $785 million, an increase of $55 million, or 13 per cent above the 1975 total reported by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

This forecast is based on data available through the first nine months of the year plus an estimate for the last three months.

After correction for inflation and the decreased purchasing power of the dollar, real personal income in Idaho in 1976 will have increased approximately 7 1/2 per cent.

Wages and salaries and other labor income are expected to total nearly $1 billion in 1976, an increase of 13 1/2 per cent. This growth rate represents an employment increase of 4 to 5 per cent and an average increase in wages of 7 1/2 per cent.

At this level, total wages, salaries and other labor income in 1976 would represent 62 per cent of total personal income.

Net farm income is expected to show a moderate increase following the sharp reduction experienced in 1975.

Nationally, economic activity, after a sluggish summer, began to improve near the end of the third quarter. Retail sales and residential construction showed market improvement, while production and employment continued to expand at a respectable rate.

Real Gross National Product, the value of all final goods and services purchased, after the impact of inflation has been removed, increased at an estimated annual rate of 4 1/2 per cent in the third quarter.

Other business indicators reported in the News Letter include industrial production, which increased at a moderate pace in the third quarter. Consumer and business spending have experienced a pause, although consumer spending began to rise again in August, the lackluster trend in business spending has not followed suit.

The basic rate of inflation at the retail level remained generally stable in the third quarter, increasing about 6 per cent at an annual rate. Little change in the current inflationary pattern is anticipated in the fourth quarter or into the early months of 1977.

Wholesale prices slipped downward in August, as sharply declining food prices continued to check relatively big gains in the wholesale price of industrial commodities.

Mardian Watergate verdict reversed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert C. Mardian, the unhappy lawyer who came to serve in Richard Nixon's Washington in 1969 at the summation of friends, insisted all along it was only the role of a lawyer that he learned the secrets of Watergate early on.

From the start, he said, he could not go to the authorities: the lawyer-client relationship had sealed his lips.

Three or four days after the break-in at Democratic headquarters on June 17, 1974, Mardian was told about it in a confidential chat with G. Gordon Liddy in the apartment of a third Nixon administration figure, Fred R. LaRue.

Liddy turned on a radio fullblast to preclude eavesdropping and presented what Mardian later called "the most shocking experience in my entire legal career."

Tuesday, the U.S. Court of Appeals overturned Mardian's conviction for conspiring to obstruct justice in the original criminal investigation of Watergate. The seven judges separated him from defendants John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Holtzman, and his former close friend, John N. Mitchell, whose convictions were upheld.

"The court did not rule on Mardian's contention that the privacy between lawyer and client bound him to keep the secrets of Watergate," but it said Mardian should have been tried alone since his lawyer became sick early in the trial, and because his role in Watergate lasted only a month and was a relatively minor one.

How minor is still unclear. In one taped White House conversation Ehrlichman and Nixon discussed what Mardian and John Dean had done to protect the White House from troubling grand jury testimony.

Ehrlichman, He (Dean) had information on who was going to be called as witnesses so that apparently Mardian was able to get around and coach witnesses.

Nixon: Did Mardian coach them?

M: In some cases Mardian, I guess, was very heavy-handed about it, and - N: Well, is there anything wrong with that?

M: Yeah, well, there's something wrong with - N: He was on their attorney, is the problem?

M: Well, no, the problem - the problem is he asked them to say things that weren't true.

N: Oh.

M: When I say coach I used the word loosely.

The special Watergate prosecutor must now decide whether to appeal the decision to the Supreme Court, to try Mardian again or to free him. He had been sentenced to serve 10 to 20 months.

Late Tuesday, the prosecutor's office said it would take time to decide. Mardian, who will be 51 on Oct. 21, was unavailable for comment.

Shortly after Nixon's reelection in 1972, Mardian returned to Phoenix, where he works in his brother's construction business.

A devoutly anti-Communist, the son of an Armenian refugee, Mardian was brought here by Richard Kleinfelder, a law school friend, to help plan Nixon's administration.

As counsel in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Mardian tried to slow the pace of school desegregation in political conformity with Mitchell's "Southern strategy."

Later he became head of the Justice Department's new delinquent Internal Security Division, investigating radicals and prosecuting draft evasion cases, with such vigor government lawyers complained he showed no discretion, cluttering the courts with unimportant cases.

Mardian later followed Mitchell to the Committee to Re-elect the President, where he played a trouble-shooting role. He says he was assigned as the committee's counsel when the Watergate break-in occurred, sealing his lips.

Midwestern farmers seem uncertain

Seasonal crop

PRIME CANDIDATE for a huge jack-o-lantern is chosen from a southern Indiana field of pumpkins by Denise Armstrong, a college student at Evansville, Ind. (UPI)

© N.Y. Times Service
CHICAGO — With little discernible enthusiasm for either major party's presidential nominee, Middle Western farmers and the small town voters whose livelihood depends on prosperous farmers appear to be divided and uncertain about their intentions Nov. 2.

The resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz after it was learned he had made a racial joke in gaffer terms was having little or no effect on farmers' attitudes toward President Ford. But the continuing decline in farm earnings was, and the degree to which this will damage Ford appears to vary in direct proportion to how much a farmer gets for what he raises.

Furthermore, considering the substantial number of Middle Western farmers whose forebears came from Eastern Europe, the President's statement last week that those countries were "not" secret immigrants could have more effect in this region than did the resignation of Butz.

The aim appeared to be to improve Ford's standing in the rural areas more than either of these issues were the decline in grain prices, which had been soaring the break-even level for many farmers, and a shipping livestock market that has meant even larger losses for cattle and hog raisers.

Max Naylor, a grain and livestock farmer near Jefferson, Iowa, who admires Butz's ability, thought the secretary's resignation would not change any minds in his area but that the slipping price of corn and livestock might.

Grain farmers, particularly wheat farmers, still resent the temporary embargo Ford imposed on grain sales to the Soviet Union last year, though most of them did not blame Butz, the champion of free markets for it.

"There's still going to be a protest vote registered against Ford by some farmers," Naylor said. "But he assured it's not against a vote. There's no real enthusiasm for Carter around here that I can detect, even if he's a farmer who should understand our problems better than a professional politician."

Wheat farmers in the normally Republican prairies of Kansas and Nebraska are also growing more dissatisfied with the level of loan-support rates, which Butz had refused to raise.

The old price-support system on feed grains has been replaced by a target-price system that provides a supplemental payment when the free market falls below these target levels. But farmers can still borrow money from the government at a per bushel support rate with their crop as security if they choose not to repay the loan.

Many wheat farmers now want to borrow operating money and hold their wheat in storage in hopes the market will rise before they have to sell their wheat to the government to repay the loan.

But they complain that the grain loan-support levels have been set far below break-even levels and that they would lose badly now if they took a crop loan.

"This doesn't bother us as much as the wheat farmers but if the corn market goes on down much further, we'll be just as unhappy about the support-loan level as they are," Naylor said.

Ford has the authority to raise support-loan levels, without any action by Congress. He is also empowered to reduce loan supports, which cattlemen have been urging him to do. He thus has the opportunity to lure back to the Republican side those farmers who were wavering. In states such as Kansas a swing by the farmers could determine the outcome.

Before Butz resigned he raised the support on milk by 33 cents a hundred-weight. This action pleased many dairy farmers in Wisconsin and Minnesota who have been hurt badly by last summer's drought.

Gov. Patrick J. Lumley of Wisconsin, a Democrat who has been energetically supporting Jimmy Carter, his party's nominee, said Friday that he thought many blacks who would not have voted might "come out and vote for Carter," but that, on the other hand, a lot of Republican farmers in Wisconsin who admired Butz might not be "annoyed enough to switch to Carter."

The Farmers Union and the National Farmers Organization, both with large memberships among Wisconsin and Minnesota farmers, have been highly critical of Butz and Ford. Their leaders welcomed the Butz resignation, though political observers doubted that it would move any of their members to leave Ford.

In Indiana, where the farmers have been the Republican's professional political observers thought the Butz resignation might be "a slight, very slight," plus for Carter, but "not among the independent voters in the cities, some of whom thought the President had been too indecisive in firing Butz. And the blacks in Indiana are very angry and more of them may vote now."

In Illinois, where the presidential race has appeared close, the President's remarks on the domination of Eastern Europe have had far greater impact than the Butz matter.
Most of this has been expressed in the cities, several of which have large communities of ethnic Eastern Europeans. Most Illinois farmers are conservative Republicans. Many of them were enthusiastic supporters of Butz and most were expected to stay Republican.

Farm vote key, FB president says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the American Farm Bureau Federation said today he expects farmers to vote for President Ford in the November election and feels the farm ballots will be the "swing vote" in the election.

AFB president Allan Grant said the federation would not make a formal endorsement in the presidential contest, but left no doubt where he and his organization stood.

During a news conference at the National Press Club, Grant continually assailed positions on agriculture of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and had little criticism of Ford, saying the federation was "basically in agreement with most of the Republican Party platform."

"The federation has about 2.5 million member-families in 49 states."

"I think the farm vote will be the swing vote in this election," Grant said under questioning, adding that it would be particularly critical in California, Illinois, Iowa, Florida and most other southern states.

"I think they'll vote for Mr. Ford, generally speaking," Grant added.

He specifically criticized Carter for his plan to have a storehouse for food and feed grain, favoring international agreements on foodstuffs and feed grains, and the fact Carter "is in line with Labor and he supports Proposition 13 in California."

Proposition 13 would enable union officials to go onto private property in California to try to organize workers into a union.

Grant said the resignation of former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz "will have no appreciable effect" on the campaign, although acknowledging Butz was popular with farmers. The farm leaders added he has "high admiration for Earl Butz."

On another issue, Grant said he did not know whether President Ford plans to increase the loan rate for wheat farmers, adding the federation was neither opposing nor advocating an increase.

Disease sweeps Africa

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — The death toll from a mysterious fever sweeping northern Zaire in central Africa reached 253 Wednesday but doctors reported no new cases in the past six days and hope the epidemic is under control.

However, local officials said many Africans may have died in the bush from the mystery disease in addition to the registered deaths.

The Belgian foreign ministry said the new death figure was reported by the doctor-in-charge of a Belgian medical mission in the stricken area centered near the Congo river town of Bumba, for more than a month.

The dead include a Belgian Roman Catholic missionary priest and three nuns in Zaire, the former Belgian Congo.

The ministry spokesman said no new cases have been reported since Oct. 7, raising hopes that the outbreak is under control.

The mystery disease causes high fever and loss of blood and other body fluids through intense vomiting and diarrhea.

An outbreak of fever with symptoms similar to that of the Zaire epidemic has been reported from the southern Sudan, 500 miles from the trouble center in Zaire. More than 100 victims have died in Sudan, but it is not yet known if the outbreaks in Sudan and Zaire are related.

For the past week, a Belgian medical team has been disinfecting all planes arriving in Brussels from Zaire and examining passengers for possible symptoms. So far, four passengers with suspect symptoms have undergone further tests at the Antwerp Institute. Rijl none of them had the disease.

Tropical fever experts at the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., the Pasteur Institute in Paris and a medical research center in Salisbury, England, and the Institute of Tropical Medicine in Antwerp, Belgium have been trying to identify the fever since it broke out.

Last week the Antwerp Institute announced it had succeeded in isolating the virus, but had not identified it. A spokesman for the institute said Wednesday they hoped to identify the virus by the end of the week.

The Antwerp institute said, however, it had established that the virus was not the one that causes Lassa fever, a deadly disease common in the west African republic of Nigeria, which erupted briefly in England earlier this year.

Brazilian cop shoots priest

GOIANIA, Brazil (UPI) — A military policeman shot and killed a Catholic priest in front of his bishop in an argument about what the churchman said was police torture of two Indian women, a missionary organization said Wednesday.

The Indian Missionary Council said the Rev. Bosco Penido Burhier, 58, was shot Monday while arguing with police in their barracks in Ribelrao Bonito, in Mato Grosso state 600 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro.

A police official promised an investigation of the incident.

The council said that Penido and Bishop Pedro Casaldaliga stopped at the barracks to protest the torture of the sister and daughter-in-law of a man suspected of killing a military policeman.

The council said police stuck wires down the women's throats and under their fingernails and forced them to kneel on bottle caps for days at a time.

The priest received a punch and a pistol butt smash in the face and a bullet in the right forehead which hit the brain," the missionary council said.

The statement said the military policeman shouted at the bishop: "You, no matter who you are, and where you are, are going to get it, too."

The statement was signed by Roman Catholic Bishop Thomaz Balduino, president of the council.

The newspaper Journal do Brasil said Col. Geraldo de Oliveira, commander of the Mato Grosso military police, promised an investigation and said he would try to determine whether the policeman had cause to fire his weapon.

Oliveira said he regretted "yet another sad case" of a murdered priest in Indian areas of the state.

Supreme Court considers sex discrimination case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A company's refusal to provide medical disability insurance for pregnancy is "straight sex stereotyping right down the line" and violates the Civil Rights Act, the Supreme Court was told Wednesday.

Washington lawyer Ruth Weyand argued on behalf of women employees at the General Electric Co. who contend GE's refusal to provide insurance coverage for pregnancy is sex discrimination.

GE's lawyer, Theophil C. Kammholz of Chicago, said the company had valid financial reasons for excluding pregnancy disability: He said 60 percent of women employees at GE fail to return to work after giving birth, and paying disability "would be nothing more than a form of severance pay."

Kammholz also contended that women would receive over 200 percent more in benefits than men if 26 weeks of pregnancy disability, the same as afforded for covered illnesses, were awarded.

Miss Weyand countered that GE's figures assumed women would stay away from work the full 26 weeks, whereas most whose pregnancies are normal can return after two weeks.

"If you knew these women you'd know they want to get back to work," she told the justices. "They need that paycheck." She said one in 10 children are born to single, divorced or widowed women who "are the poorest people in the country."

She said GE's attitude was "straight sex stereotyping right down the line that exists to the way of life that exists in this country today."

Kammholz said disability insurance is for involuntary illnesses, and that widespread use of contraceptives means most pregnancies are planned. He said if the court ruled against excluding pregnancy, the cost to industry nationwide would be $1.35 billion.

Questions from the bench did not indicate which way the court might go on the matter. Kammholz and Miss Weyand argued the case last term, but the justices ordered additional arguments, indicating they may be closely divided on the issue.

Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Pottinger also argued on behalf of GE's female employees.

Shoplift queen found guilty

MIAMI (UPI) — The Chicago police commander and a Miami-Dade County metro detective described Annie Branch as a queen of shoplifters and sneak thieves.

She rode in a Rolls Royce, owned and operated a Chicago restaurant, and every day, they said, she sent out 40 to 50 girls to the downtown Chicago shopping area to shoplift and rob.

She had been arrested more than 50 times, said Metro detective Herb Evans, adding that "Annie had over the years developed a 'reputation' for shoplifting and robbing victims."

Chicago Police Commander Thomas Hughes said Chicago wasn't the only place that attracted Annie. He said she had boasted to him of "stealing" heavily at such events as the Kentucky Derby.

"The terms that she used was that she really got fat," Hughes said.

The two officers were among several witnesses testifying in Circuit Court here Tuesday before Judge Richard Fuller passed sentence.

Annie was convicted last month of lifting close to $27,000 worth of jewelry from the handbag of a wealthy woman, while the two were in a warehouse at Miami International Airport in 1974.

Annie had fought extradition to Miami for 23 months to avoid her trial.

Dressed in a fashionable pants suit and silk shirt, Annie, 31, finally stood before Judge Fuller. He sentenced her to 10 years in prison.

Ordinarily, without such testimony about her life of crime, she might have expected a five-year sentence.

Can money buy happiness? Yanks find out tonight in showdown with Royals

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner finds out today if money can buy happiness—and the American League pennant.

It didn't do a whole lot for him Wednesday as $3 million pitcher Catfish Hunter was knocked out of the game by the Royals in the fourth inning of Kansas City's 7-4 victory, which evened the best-of-five American League championship series for two games apiece.

The Royals, who trotted through September to the Western Division title and twice have had to come from a game down to square the AL playoff, again refused to go down for the count.

"It's a hard way, we'll find it," pitcher Paul Splittorf said of the Royals' penchant for continually teetering on the brink of disaster.

But now they're feeling cocky. "We beat the big guy, which is Hunter," said Hal McRae, after rediscovering his batting touch with a double and a triple Wednesday.

However, Splittorf said his 10-minute warm-up in the bullpen was little more than his daily workout and his strong second game performance, plus the fact he is lefthanded, may sway Herzog's decision in his favor.

The Royals, whose hitting slumped drastically late in the season, finally got some help from McRae and received an unexpected extra-base bonanza from 5-foot-4 Fred Patek, who doubled twice to drive home three runs.

Jamie Quirk, a 21-year-old making his first start of the playoffs as the Royals' designated hitter, drove in two runs with a triple and a sacrifice fly and second baseman Vucko Rojas also made Herzog appear a wizard with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly in his first start.

The Yankees' offense was composed almost solely of American League home run leader Graig Nettles, who drove home three runs with a pair of homers despite playing with a right ankle swollen to almost twice its normal size by foul tips.

Hunter is the most celebrated of Steinbrenner's acquisitions, but the Yankees also picked up Ken Holtzman and Doyle Alexander, because the Yankees' owner was not scared off by their money demands.

the game, was not sharp Wednesday, working with three days rest instead of his accustomed four.

"I just didn't have anything," Hunter said. "My arm didn't hurt or anything. I don't think my arm was used to it. All year long we went with a four- and five-man rotation and my arm just didn't pop back that fast."

Figueroa was the Yankees' top winner this season and when Martin was asked his reasons for giving the righthander the crucial start, he retorted: "How's 19 wins for a reason?"

However, Figueroa has not won since Sept. 17, losing two attempts at becoming the first Puerto Rican to win 20 games and the second game of the championship series.

"I'm not going to worry about the game until it starts tomorrow," Figueroa said. "I don't want to put no pressure on myself. I went against Boston and Baltimore when I did for 20 and I didn't win."

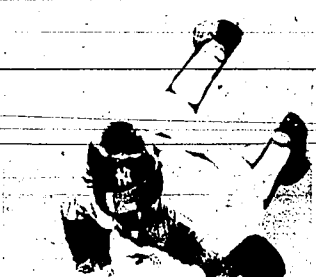

Leonard, a native of Brooklyn, has said it was terribly important to him to lead the Yankees in the championship series because they represent the opportunity to sign him.

Several members of the Yankees, who have had far less success against southpaws this season than right-handers, said there were not impressed by Splittorf in the second game. But he countered: "I wasn't particularly overwhelmed by them."

The Royals jumped to a 3-0 lead in the second inning Wednesday on Patek's two-run double and Buck Martinez' single.

The Yankees closed the deficit to 3-2 in their half of the inning as Nettles' two-run homer into the upper deck.

Kansas City boosted its lead back to three runs, 3-2, on McRae's double, Quirk's triple and Rojas' sacrifice fly in the fourth. The Royals increased it to 6-2 in the sixth on McRae's triple and Quirk's sacrifice fly.

Patek just happy to be in majors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Patek, the little sparkling in Kansas City's victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday, considers himself lucky to still be in the major leagues after 10 seasons.

Royals figure it's Yanks turn to fret

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The shoe is on the other foot," said Kansas City's Hal McRae after the Royals beat the New York Yankees 7-4 Wednesday to send their best-of-five American League playoff to a decisive game Thursday night.

Series foe doesn't matter to Redlegs

CINCINNATI (UPI) — New York, Kansas City, or Timbuktu. It really doesn't matter.

The Cincinnati Reds will beat anybody in the World Series, according to their all-star second baseman Joe Morgan.

"Frankly, I don't see anyone beating us. Not the way we're playing now. We're playing great," said Morgan. "One of these days we're going to be acclaimed as one of the best teams ever to play the game."

"With a different kind of pitching staff we might not do those things. A Tom Seaver might win 30 games here, but we might play the same way behind Seaver as we do with our guys."

So strong are the Reds that they managed to beat the Phillies in the playoffs without Morgan getting a hit. Morgan went 0 for 7 yet still managed to reach base six times.

"The strength of our club is that I don't always have to hit for us to win," said Morgan, who batted .320 and drove in 111 runs this season.

"Every guy on our team has a job. (Peter Rose and) Ken Griffey's job is to get on base. My job, (Tony) Perez's job, (George) Foster's job and (John) Bench's job is to drive in runs. You'll notice a lot of times when the Phillies

HUSTLING Jamie Quirk slides into third on run-scoring triple Wednesday. Yankee third baseman Craig Nettles awaits the late throw. (UPI telephoto)

BARCELONA (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee is not planning to take any sanctions against African countries who walked out of the Montreal Olympics on the eve of the Games, a highly-placed source on the IOC said Wednesday.

Wicks, Celts agree their records speak for them

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics and their newly acquired All-Star forward Sidney Wicks agree on at least one thing — they each have records that speak for themselves. The next thing they have to agree on is a contract.

"I think my record speaks for itself," said the 6-foot-9 veteran, who has made the NBA All-Star team four times while averaging 22.3 points and 10.3 rebounds a game with the Portland Trail Blazers.

"This guy's a winner. He would give anything to have a ring like this," said Celtics' President Red Auerbach, holding out one of the nine NBA championship rings he earned as the coach.

The Celtics now have 13 NBA All-Star players hanging from the aged rafters of Boston Garden and Wicks' acquisition gives them a running start on No. 14, even if negotiations with power forward Paul Silas, a holdout in a money dispute, do not work out.

Wicks, who was introduced to the Boston media at a news conference Wednesday, said he has not reached a contract agreement with the Celtics but anticipated no problems.

"I think things will work out smoothly," said the 27-year-old Wicks, who is being represented by agent Sam Gilbert.

"We haven't sat down yet," said Auerbach. "We're satisfied he's with us and we just want him to be happy."

Wicks said he didn't anticipate trouble adapting to the Celtics' fastbreak style.

"Intelligent players can come here and fit in. I think I will be able to adjust to their style. My style is geared for the team concept and I don't think it will change much," said Wicks.

"He is made to order for us," said Auerbach. "If ever a guy was a natural forward, Sidney Wicks is it. He has height, speed and a good shooting touch. He is a Celtics-type player in that he likes to run. There are a lot of things he can do to help us continue what we can do here."

"I feel that Sidney Wicks brings to the Celtics everything we need and can use," said Celtics owner Irv Levin, who came up from New York, where he is negotiating with Larry Fleisher, Silas' agent. "He can do it."

Wicks, who is in the option year of a five-year contract, hopes to make his first appearance as a Celtic in tonight's exhibition contest against Philadelphia at New York's Madison Square Garden.

"I have a groin injury, so we'll see how it responds to treatment," Wicks said.

Title showdown

HANSEN — The Hansen Huskies and Hagerman Pirates vie for the Magic Valley Conference girls volleyball championship tonight.

The teams enter the contest, starting at 7 p.m. in the Hansen gymnasium, with undefeated league records. Hansen maintained that boast by dropping Oakley 15-11, 15-3 Tuesday night.

The teams will begin district playoffs next week.

NHL issues fines

ARONTHAL (UPI) — National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell Wednesday announced fines totaling $77,700 against the Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles Kings for two bench-clearing incidents in a game Sunday.

In addition to the fines, Campbell also suspended the Flyers' Bob Kelly and Andre Dupont from Philadelphia's game Thursday against the Montreal Canadiens for leading the bench-clearing incidents.

Campbell fined Kings coach Bob Pulford $350 for stepping onto the ice in the first period of the game and grabbing linesman John Brown. Pulford was ejected from the game for the incident, becoming the first coach in nine years to be ordered from a game.

The Flyers were assessed team fines totalling $4,000. The first $1,000 was for the initial bench-clearing incident, started when Dupont left the bench. The club was fined a further $3,000 for a second bench-clearing incident started by Kelly.

Navy hasn't panicked

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Navy Coach George Welsh said Wednesday his football team is discouraged by three straight losses, but has not panicked.

"It's been a struggle, but there are no signs of inner panic," Welsh said. "We're not going to give up. We're not that desperate."

Navy, 1-4, meets William and Mary for a homecoming game at Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium Saturday. Although acknowledging that the Indians are not in the same league as such Navy opponents as Michigan or Pitt, Welsh said they cannot be taken lightly.

"They are not a bubble," Welsh said. "They are as good as Air Force and in some ways better."

Laver named top rookie

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 37-year-old rookie of the Year and a 24-year-old Most Valuable Player.

Sound plausible? It is.

World Team Tennis Wednesday named Rod Laver of the San Diego Friars as the male Rookie of the Year and Sandy Mayer of the New York Jets the male MVP.

Laver's choice was unanimous as he beat Ilie Nastase of Seattle-Portland (Hawaii), Haroon Rahim of Cleveland, and Bernie Milton of Pittsburgh.

"It's hard for anyone to consider Laver a rookie," said WTT Commissioner Butch Buchholz. "But it was his first year in WTT. He was a rookie, and the best of the field."

Warriors sign Ray

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors have signed Clifford Ray to a new contract, giving them three centers under contract.

Terms of the new pact were not announced Wednesday but it was believed to provide the 6-9 Ray with a six-figure salary over three years.

The Warriors also have signed pivot men George Johnson and Robert Parish.

Meanwhile, it is reported that the Warriors are interested in bidding for unsigned Boston Celtics star Paul Silas. The Celtics obtained Sidney Wicks from Portland and may be interested in Silas.

Phoenix keeps Bucks winless

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The NBA Western Division champion Phoenix Suns, led by five players hitting in double figures, Wednesday night routed to a 102-94 exhibition victory over the winless Milwaukee Bucks.

The Suns, 43, got balanced scoring from Al Adam with 16 points, Garfield Heard and Ricky Sobers, 15 apiece, Paul Westphal, 12, and rookie Ron Lee from Oregon with 10.

The Bucks were paced by Elmore Smith with 18 points and Alex English with 17. Smith injured his finger in the third period and sat out most of the second half.

Steelers get good news

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers were buoyant Wednesday when team physicians reported offensive guard Jim Clark, wide receiver John Stallworth and running back Reggie Harrison would probably be able to play against the Cincinnati Bengals here Sunday.

All three had missed the game against the Cleveland Browns in which regular starter quarterback Terry Bradshaw suffered severe back and neck injuries. Bradshaw will remain hospitalized for at least three more days.

Contract row may take Erving to LA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Superstar Julius Erving could be coming to Los Angeles this season if the New York Nets are unable to resolve a contract dispute with him and if the Lakers are out-bid the Philadelphia 76ers and the Milwaukee Bucks.

Erving, perhaps basketball's most exciting player, has refused to report to the Nets for exhibition play, claiming Net owner Roy Boe reneged on promises to renegotiate his $1.9 million, seven-year contract. Boe insists "we have broken no promises, either verbal or written, with Julius," and the dispute has been stalemated for two weeks.

"We're certainly interested in Julius Erving and we're discussing his situation with Roy Boe," Cooke said. "However, we're still a long way from making any deal."

Cooke's lawyer, Alan Rothenberg, said the Lakers are ready to move on Erving as soon as possible.

"We are ready to make a deal and pay the Nets handsomely," Rothenberg said.

Boe gave three NBA teams — Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Philadelphia — permission to talk to Erving. The New York Knicks also expressed interest but were turned down by Boe.

Boe is reported in deep financial difficulty. He was required to pay $3.8 million to the NBA as one of the four teams entering the league this season. Boe had to borrow at least $1 million from a cable television station to meet his payments.

Several owners have offered to help Boe meet Erving's money demands by forming a pool, as was done in the case of several other high-price players. Boe tentatively turned down the offer and said "we will pay our own bills."

The Milwaukee Bucks said they also were interested in Erving but said his demands make it too stiff for them.

"He (Boe) told us to try and find out what Erving's demands were," said Bucks president Bill Alerton. "Something we have been unable to do. We are interested in Dr. J, but it has to be reasonable and on that basis. I'm not optimistic. Based on some of the ball park figures I have heard, it no way makes economic sense."

Erving, a 6-6 forward, is considered by many, including Boston Celtics president Red Auerbach, to be the best all-around player in the game today. Few will argue that he is the most exciting. But even with his great ability the won three ABA Most Valuable Player awards and led the Nets to two ABA championships in three years. The Nets have been unable to draw well in the NASDAQ Coliseum.

The Nets also recently acquired one of the league's premier guards, Nate Archibald, who reportedly earns over $400,000 annually. These factors, plus the money the Nets owe the NBA, may lead Boe to seriously consider a good offer from the Lakers or another team for Erving.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Dino Dennis and his handlers are complaining that nobody knows much about the Boston-born-heavyweight and what's more, nobody has bothered to ask.

"But that's okay, because we're going to show the people who he is Friday night," says Al Braverman, Dennis' trainer.

Friday night the undefeated ninth-ranked "heavyweight" takes on former champion George Foreman in a nationally televised bout. Also on the card is a lightweight title bout between champion Roberto Duran of Panama and Alvaro Rojas of Costa Rica.

Dennis is a 6-3, 235-pounder whose fight plan calls for him to jab and run early in the fight and then take control in the middle rounds.

He has won 20 fights, with one draw. Half his wins have been by knockout and he has gone 10 rounds nine times, a factor he figures could give him an edge over Foreman.

"He's had more fights than I have, but I figure I've fought 30 more rounds than he has. I'm a distance fighter," says the Attleboro, Mass., resident.

Maybe, but many experts agree with Foreman when he says, "I really don't think I'll ring with Foreman. That won't happen to me," he said.

Dennis ready to show world and Foreman what he can do

Both fighters' last fight was against Minnesota's Scott LeDoux. Dennis defeated him in 10 rounds, but it took Foreman only three rounds to put him down for the count.

"I know he knocked out LeDoux, but I beat him easily too. Also, I think LeDoux was scared when he got into the ring with Foreman. That won't happen to me," he said.

The Nets also recently acquired one of the league's premier guards, Nate Archibald, who reportedly earns over $400,000 annually. These factors, plus the money the Nets owe the NBA, may lead Boe to seriously consider a good offer from the Lakers or another team for Erving.

Combining forces

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Dino Dennis and his handlers are complaining that nobody knows much about the Boston-born-heavyweight and what's more, nobody has bothered to ask.

"But that's okay, because we're going to show the people who he is Friday night," says Al Braverman, Dennis' trainer.

Friday night the undefeated ninth-ranked "heavyweight" takes on former champion George Foreman in a nationally televised bout. Also on the card is a lightweight title bout between champion Roberto Duran of Panama and Alvaro Rojas of Costa Rica.

Dennis is a 6-3, 235-pounder whose fight plan calls for him to jab and run early in the fight and then take control in the middle rounds.

He has won 20 fights, with one draw. Half his wins have been by knockout and he has gone 10 rounds nine times, a factor he figures could give him an edge over Foreman.

"He's had more fights than I have, but I figure I've fought 30 more rounds than he has. I'm a distance fighter," says the Attleboro, Mass., resident.

Maybe, but many experts agree with Foreman when he says, "I really don't think I'll

Valley drops Filer 20-6 to clinch at least tie for Big Six loop title

FILER — Valley's Vikings dropped the Filer Wildcats 20-6 Wednesday night to nail down at least a share of the Big Six Conference football championship.

Coach Forrest Fomesbeck's crew, behind the running of Bryan Human, now needs a win over Glens Ferry in the season finale to clinch the title outright — unless Shoshone cooperates by knocking off the Wildcats Oct. 29.

But this conference, which has a proclivity for ties, has other ramifications, such as Glens Ferry still in contention with just one defeat although it has three games left in the league.

Valley used the pass sparingly but tellying against the Wildcats, two aerials proving integral in the Vikings' first touchdowns in the opening half. The Viking defense also arose on two occasions to turn back deep Filer thrusts.

It probably was a battle of No. 22 with Human doing most of the ball carrying for Valley and playing linebacker and Filer's Craig Lincoln getting the big runs for Filer and playing very well at linebacker.

In the end it was Valley's ability to control the ball and the clock better than expected that swung the game to them. Filer's fleet backfield didn't have the ball nearly as much and despite some solid gainers, the Wildcats never broke the log one.

Valley moved for a touchdown on its first possession, forcing a punt and taking over at its own 22 yard line. Two plays netted little but then Chad Dixon hit McBride on a long pass that covered 43 yards to the Filer nine. Four plays later English belted in from the one. The kick attempt failed.

Filer replied with a drive to the Valley 38. Lincoln's 13-yard gallop getting most of it, but English threw a Filer ball carrier for a seven-yard loss and Valley took over on the 25.

From there the Vikings marched again, this time a 23-yard play-action pass getting the critical first third down situation. Valley beat a fourth and one at the two on English's run and from there the Vikings moved to the seven. Human took it over on a quick pitch.

The point-after run was stopped.

Late in the half Filer drove to a fourth and three at the Valley to but a mishandled handoff stopped that effort.

Filer showed some offensive spark in the third period as Tom Williamson and Lincoln picked up good yardage to spark a drive. Lincoln culminated that by diving for the last yard but Valley stopped the two-point run.

Hopes for a Filer rally were squelched immediately as Valley came back with a time-consuming, point-getting drive. Human picked up that tackle power plays that smacked mightily of single-wing power. On the first play of the fourth period that play put Human in the end zone from the four. Kelly Human added the two-pointer on a counter play.

A freak play ended Filer's comeback dreams. It started when Filer quarterback nearly to the other side. He hit Williamson with a pass that would have had the first down but when hit from behind Williamson saw the ball bounce out well ahead of him.

Human picked trip at about the 20 and started back upfield. He was hit at midfield, tumbling to the Filer 45, where teammate Bailey fell on it. That happened with 5:34 left in the game and Valley, getting two first downs, didn't let Filer have the ball back until 1:17 remained.

DIVING Tracy English of Valley gets into the end zone for the opening drive touchdown that started the Vikings to a 20-6 decision over Filer Thursday night. The win clinched at least a tie for the Big Six Conference title.

Scoring for Valley

Jerome hosts Gooding in SCIC play tonight

Jerome takes on Gooding Thursday night to continue the four-day stand of high school football in Magic Valley this week.

The game, starting at 8 p.m. in Jerome, will be the Tigers' first appearance in the South Central Idaho Conference but they will stay in that alignment for the remainder of the year. A couple of the games, however, also will count in the Cross State league.

Come Friday night the spotlight switches to the Magic Valley Conference where four of the contenders in the still tight eight-standings will be battling.

Co-leaders Oakley and the Huskies will meet at Hansen in the Pacific, another of the four-way leaders, will travel to Itan River, which is one game off the pace.

In the other conference affair, the Harrison Pirates, who lost their undefeated record last week, will be home to the Castleford Wolves.

Minico and Burley return to conference wars after a week off. The Spartans will be home to the Boise Braves, who boast the Dilolo brothers — Paul and Fabian — in a backfield that is bigger than Minico's defensive tackles.

Burley, which has lost two straight after opening with three victories, will try to get back on the win track when it travels to Caldwell. Not an easy chore as the Cougars are running well with a 4-1 record.

Twin Falls goes to Pocatello, which must be the enigma of the league. Pocatello has played all the pace-setters to within a couple-three points. It lost 10-7 to Burah and 17-15 to Capital. Pocatello's problem has been turnovers, particularly fumbles.

The Indians have fumbled 20 times and lost possession 14 times in four league games and tossed in six interceptions. Still they are averaging just under 300 yards in total offense per game.

Twin Falls is trying to end a three-game loss spell during which the Bruins have played excellently in one half — but not so well in the other.

With Valley having taken over the Big Six loop lead with its Wednesday decision over Filer, the rest of the league is playing for position. Glens Ferry has the most at stake, the Pilots carrying a 1-1 record against Kimberly in a home game. That gives Glens Ferry a share for second in the lost column, although the Pilots have the most league games left. They can't afford a loss since both Valley and Filer have only one loop affair remaining.

Two more Glens Ferry wins would set up a title showdown with Valley in the season finale Nov. 5.

Meanwhile, Kimberly Coach Gordon Hogan has been stunned by the number of points opponents have rung up on his defense in the past two games. "Injuries?" he answers a question. "I looked out there tonight on the practice field and we don't have anyone left."

Shoshone, sharing the same position with Glens Ferry in having one loop loss and three games remaining, has to beat win Wendell at Wendell to stay alive. The best Shoshone can hope for is a tie.

In eighth-man action, the undefeated Camas County Musters travel to Bancroft Friday night to take on North Green. A victory would clinch a tie for the league crown for the Musters.

Biss will be at Richfield in an afternoon game while Carey plays host to Clark County, also starting at 1:30 p.m.

Saturday night the undefeated Buhl Indians, last of the area's 11-man unbeaten clubs, will host Snake River. This is a pickup game added when Wood River was unable to fulfill its commitment.

"They're not very big but they're quick," says Coach Jon Jund. "They throw halfback screens, fullback screens, end screens and even quarterback screens. We walked in to scout them last week with about four minutes gone in the game. First play we saw was a double reverse with a forward pass."

Near tragedy ends speed record run

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI) — A test run by the rocket-powered "SMI Motivator" ended in near disaster Wednesday when the racer suddenly veered off the course at a speed in excess of 350 miles per hour.

Test driver John Paxton was piloting the cigar-shaped car during a late morning run on the 10-mile-long course. "I was approaching 350 miles per hour when it suddenly veered to the right."

Paxton, who was testing the hydrogen-peroxide-powered racer for drivers Filly O'Neil and Hal Swetnam, popped his drag parachute and jammed on the brakes, stopping the car about 200 feet off the course.

Bill Fredrick, builder of the streamliner, said additional afternoon tests showed that the aluminum cast wheels were causing the directional problem.

Fredrick said his crews will need at least two days to "take down the front wheel assembly," replacing the grooved front wheel with a smooth one.

Oil man reject Royals' spy story, suggests coach quits

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — An oil company employee said Wednesday that spying charges against him by Texas Football Coach Darrell Royal are "lies" and suggested Royal give up coaching.

Lennie Williams, a former tight end at Brigham Young, said he should be working for the CIA if he's the spy Royal claims he is. Williams was named by several sources as a shadowy figure who snuggled on at least four schools, two of them by peeping behind restroom windows.

"I've got trying to figure him out," Williams said of Royal. "It's time he gave it up. That's the way I look at it, time for him to get out."

Royal last week offered $10,000 to Williams favorite charity if he could pass a lie detector test proving he did not provide information to Oklahoma's Texas practices. He also offered $10,000 to Sooner Coach Harry Switzer's favorite charity if Switzer could prove him wrong.

Williams called the offer "ridiculous," as he did the various accusations.

"It's a bunch of junk, all a bunch of lies," he said. "It's getting to be a joke."

Williams, 34, said he had no contact with Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Nebraska.

"If a guy can be all over the place at one time, the CIA needs him," he said.

He said he was particularly pestered by a report from Oklahoma State Coach Jim Stanley that he had been told of Williams posing as a painter and spying on the Cowboys from a women's rest room.

"That's the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of," he said. "I haven't even been to Stillwater."

A similar story about spying on Nebraska was also ridiculous, of course," he said.

"I have no idea where they'd get a story like that.

He would not say whether he has contacted an attorney about a possible lawsuit.

"No comment," he said.

Royal had said he was not concerned about a lawsuit but hoped he could make Sooner coaches angry enough to go to court. Lying in court, Royal noted, is a penitentiary offense.

Williams, reached at the Cullpepper Oil Co. in Oklahoma City, said he had talked "a couple of times" to Sooner Defensive Coordinator Larry Laceywell, whom Royal accused of receiving the information, since the furor erupted. He said they are old friends, having coached together at Kilgore Junior College in Texas and at Wichita State.

Laceywell said last weekend he would take a polygraph test for $300 and Royal replied that was Laceywell's price to get out of coaching. Laceywell later said he was only joking. But Laceywell's comment was made to several newsmen after the Texas-Oklahoma game and at the time he was neither smiling nor laughing and did not say he was joking.

Williams said it made no sense to suggest he had spied for Arkansas. The only person he knows on the Razorback staff is former Sooner assistant Jimmy Johnson, he said.

Williams said Tony Herry of Houston, a former business associate who named him as the spy, is a radio announcer who has pictures of Texas football players around his office.

"The guy just needs some publicity, I guess," he said.

Williams said he had not tried to evade anyone last weekend, but was in Dallas attending the Texas-Oklahoma game with his wife and four children. He has bought a house in Moore, Okla., and is moving his family from Dallas, he said.

FILER — Filer school trustees have accepted the resignation of home economics teacher Arlene Sommers.

Rhea Lanning and Cynthia Brown were interviewed for the position but no decision was made by the trustees.

Church defends contribution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church said today that he has no intention of taking back the $250 he contributed to Stan Kress' campaign for congressman from Idaho's second district.

Church said that Rep. George Hansen's accusation that Kress accepted an illegal campaign contribution from him is "an accusation of George Hansen's underhanded methods."

"It is well known that federal employees, including elected officials, may make voluntary contributions to political parties or candidates of their choice," Church said.

"In a written opinion, the Justice Department makes it clear that the law prohibits only those contributions from federal employees that are solicited or coerced."

Army will review discharges

The Army announced today that a hearing examiner from the Army Discharge Review Board (ADRB) will be in Boise from October 21 to 23 to conduct video tape hearings for former soldiers with less than honorable discharges.

Hearings will be held at the Federal Building (Room 728), 550 W. Fort Street for individuals who have already requested an ADRB review by initiating appropriate applications.

An ADRB examiner is scheduled to visit Boise every October as long as there are sufficient applicants and contingent upon the availability of Army funds and manpower. In order to have a case heard in Boise during October, an application must be initiated no later than the preceding April 30. Former soldiers desiring to apply for review of their discharges may obtain information on how to initiate discharge procedures from the local Veterans Administration Office or Commander, US Army Reserve Components Personnel and Administration Center (USARCPAC), 9706 Page Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo 63132.

Many seek living will

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Californians who "fear living as a human vegetable" more than death are seeking to draw up "living wills" under the state's new right to die law.

More than 600 letters to the author of the law, the first in the nation, have sought information about making the so-called "living will" that allows terminally ill adults to choose to die rather than be kept alive as long as possible by medical treatment.

"Death I do not fear, but I do fear living as a human vegetable," said one of letters received by Assemblyman Harry Keener, D-Eureka, who was prompted to draw up the act by the case of comatose Karen Ann Quinlan in New Jersey.

"I am 77 years old, and like many of my peers, dread being kept alive in some nursing home for part of the time when God would like me to be left alone," wrote another.

One nurse wrote: "I have seen so many human beings suffer in a state of near-death and it is ghastly."

The law, signed Sept. 30 by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., takes effect Jan. 1.

Specifically, the law will allow persons over 18 to order doctors to withdraw life sustaining procedures if they face "imminent death" and artificial techniques serve no purpose but to postpone it.

The directive, if witnessed by two other persons, could be revoked either orally or in writing. Physicians will be immune from civil or criminal prosecution if they follow the order.

State officials plan to meet with lawyers and doctors to draw up precise directions for completion of the law.

Lawyers, nurses, legislators from other states and nations also sent Keener letters asking for copies of the new law.

Legislative analysts said that under the new California law the respirator that aided Miss Quinlan, 22, in breathing for 13 months could not have been removed because her death was not considered imminent by her doctors.

Miss Quinlan is now breathing unaided in a Morris Plains, N.J. nursing home following a lengthy court battle by her parents to disconnect the machine.

Local man wins medal

MINOT, N.D. — Meritorious service as an air operations staff officer at Offutt AFB, Neb., has earned the second award of the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal for Captain David M. Stuart, son of Mrs. Carolyn Stuart of 600 E. Main, Jerome, Idaho.

Captain Stuart was presented the medal at Minot AFB, N.D., where he now serves as a missile combat crew commander with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

A 1962 graduate of Jerome High School, the captain received his BS degree in 1965 from the University of Idaho and was commissioned in 1962 upon completion of Lackland Air Force School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Captain Stuart's wife, Doty, is the daughter of W. A. Taylor of Rte. 2, Russellville, Ala.

If Norwegian apples in Idaho sound strange, consider the fact that they were completely grown by transplanted Norwegians (AKLANDS) and are being exclusively sold by other displaced Norwegians (SWENSEN'S). So technically, they aren't from Norway, but who cares where these delicious apples were grown when they're SO BIG, SO SWEET, SO DELICIOUS, SO CRISP AND SNAPPY AND SO LOW IN PRICE!! Swensen's are sure that all the Scandinavians, Arabians, Armenians, Slovaks, Polynesians, or anybody else would be proud to say these American grown Norwegian apples were from their own country and would love to buy them at Swensen's price. But alas, there's only enough Norwegian apples for Swensen's customers.

Supreme Court may change ruling on confessions

WASHINGTON — The case of a man who claimed he was too drunk to understand what police told him about his constitutional rights may lead the Supreme Court to a sweeping new ruling on criminal law.

A Florida case accepted for review by the justices Tuesday could take the court another major step toward curbing federal judges' power to free state prisoners.

Already it is clear that a court majority is prepared to insulate some state cases from second-guessing — on constitutional grounds — by federal courts.

The new test case will show whether the justices want to do that for cases involving confessions to crime.

Just three months ago, the justices all but closed federal courthouses to state prisoners' challenges to evidence taken during unconstitutional searches by police.

Those challenges have been based upon the Constitution's Fourth Amendment protection against unlawful searches.

If a state prisoner has had a fair chance in state court to challenge the search, the court declared in its July 6 ruling, he could not then raise the issue anew in a federal court "habeas corpus" plea.

Confessions, however, have been challenged under the Fifth Amendment, rather than the Fourth. The Fifth protects a person against being forced to give evidence against himself.

It is quite common for state prisoners to complain to federal courts that they have been convicted on the basis of involuntary confessions.

That is exactly what John Sykes did after his Florida conviction for a third-degree murder had become final.

When his case was awaiting trial, during the trial, and during his appeal in state courts, neither he nor his lawyer challenged the use of a damaging statement he had made to police.

Police had warned him of his constitutional right to remain silent, but he had made the statement anyway.

After the case was over, Sykes went to federal court, contending that he was too drunk at the time police had given him the warning, and thus his statement was coerced and could not be used against him.

The 5th U. S. Court of Appeals ruled last February that Sykes could press his challenge in federal court even though neither he nor his lawyer had objected to the confession in state court.

Florida officials took the case to the Supreme Court, asking the justices to rule that once a state prisoner or his lawyer waives his right to test a confession in state courts, the matter is closed.

The justices agreed to hold a hearing on the appeal. A ruling is expected early next year.

The justices also agreed Tuesday, in a separate case, to decide the scope of federal judges' power to dismiss criminal charges because of a prosecutor's delay in filing them.

In an appeal in that case, the Justice Department urged the court to rule that prosecutors should be able to proceed at their own pace to prepare criminal charges, so long as they are not deliberately wasting time to gain a tactical advantage over defense lawyers.

Carter's policy adviser says USSR needs detente

By WILLIAM J. EATON
© 1976 Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has major internal problems and "needs very much" detente with the United States, according to a top foreign policy adviser to Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

"I think we can pursue detente creatively," said Zbigniew Brzezinski, a professor of government at Columbia University who has been briefing Carter on world affairs.

Brzezinski, who has a reputation as a hard-line anti-Communist, has been assailed by Carter as "very important" if Carter becomes President. He is a prospect for secretary of state in a Democratic administration.

So his remarks on detente to the woman's national Democratic club were taken as a clue to Carter's approach to the Kremlin if he wins his race for the White House.

Brzezinski foresaw "cooperation and competition" between the United States and the Soviet Union in the near future.

"The American people are prepared to sustain and support an accommodation with the Soviet Union which, one hopes, in the future will become all-encompassing," he said.

"The Soviet Union needs detente as much as we do. The Soviet Union has very major internal difficulties of a political and economic type," he added.

"As a consequence, it needs detente very much."

Soviet-American summit conferences between the President and the top man in the Kremlin "are desirable and useful and should be held on a regular basis," Brzezinski added.

But he proposed a separation of summit talks and arms reduction negotiations, in contrast to the 1974 meeting at Vladivostok involving President Ford and the 1972 session in Moscow with President Nixon.

The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in both cases were overly influenced by the presidential interest in getting an agreement.

"The result was ambiguities that would have been preferable to avoid," he said.

Brzezinski's major theme was that the United States must proceed by patient consultation rather than trying to impose its will upon the world.

He warned against a "siege mentality" in reaction to demands of the developing "third world" nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Possible overdose

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — Authorities said Wednesday an autopsy in the death of two young men found at a remote Santa Mountain campsite was not complete but it appeared they might have died of a drug overdose.

The two bodies were found by hikers Sunday and no identification papers were found except for a business card with a Denver lawyer's name on it, authorities said. There were no signs of violence at the scene.

Sheriff's Detective Ernie Marable said several white and blue pills were found scattered around the body of one of the men. A young woman from Denver telephoned the sheriff's department from Denver, Marable said. "She said she thought one of the dead men was her husband and the other her brother. She described the two men in detail ... which matched the victims."

The woman said the two men left Denver about two weeks ago in a car, Marable said, but no automobiles traceable to the two victims has been found.

Both men appeared to be in their 20s, the detective said. The man who appeared to be older, a man with a red beard, was possibly the husband of the Denver woman, Marable said.

A picture of a girl inscribed with the name Cindy was found in the shirt pocket of the other man. The Denver woman said her brother "had been going with a girl named Cindy, who had given him a picture," Marable said.

Soviet skipper convicted

CORK, Ireland (UPI) — A magistrate convicted a Soviet trawler skipper today of illegal fishing in Irish waters but acquitted him of obstructing arrest by the Irish navy.

Justice Bernard Carroll ordered the confiscation of the fishing gear of the 2,500-ton Belmore and court officials boarded the vessel tied up in harbor to evaluate the equipment.

The nine-day trial of Capt. Nikolai Shinkaruk, 34, was the longest in Ireland's enforcement of its 12-mile fishing limits.

Shinkaruk, who pleaded innocent to three charges of obstructing arrest and three of illegal fishing, was taken to court after the Irish minesweeper Galunne fired a series of warning shots across the Belmore's bows in a chase.

The Irish put two parties of sailors and a contingent of 50 armed soldiers aboard the Belmore—before Shinkaruk agreed to take his vessel into port to face trial.

The Belmore's fish catch already had been confiscated pending the outcome of the hearing.

Bulgaria was recently ordered to pay $173,400 in fines and forfeits in a similar case.

Dean claims Ford knew of coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Dean said Wednesday that Gerald Ford, while House Republican leader, was contacted by the White House in 1972 on blocking the first congressional Watergate investigation. Ford has testified that he recalled no such discussion.

Shortly after Dean made his statement, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., told reporters that special prosecutor Charles Haff indicated he will decide by the end of this week whether to investigate Ford's role in heading off a 1972 Watergate inquiry by the House Banking Committee.

Dean, the former Nixon aide whose testimony to the Senate Watergate committee helped lead to Nixon's resignation as president, said on NBC-TV's Today show that Richard Cook of Nixon's staff talked with Ford more than a half dozen times about using his influence to stave off the investigation.

Dean said Ford at one point indicated he would tell Republican members of the banking committee "what they should do on the day of the vote" when the panel decided whether to look into the Watergate burglary.

Cook denied Dean's allegations, accusing him of "vicious lies and clever distortions."

"There is no question in my mind that the President told the truth," said Cook, now employed by an aircraft company. He said he did not contact Ford "despite John Dean's repeated and frantic requests" that he do so.

Ford testified at hearings on his confirmation as vice president in 1973 that "to the best of my recollection" he did not talk with any of Nixon's staff about blocking the inquiry.

Dean said, "Cook was the man who did the leg work and dealt with Mr. Ford and the other members of the committee."

"I can recall Dick (Cook) coming back and telling, for example, how Jerry was going to call a meeting of the minority members...and really tell them what they should do on the day of the vote and how they should hold together and things of this nature."

Asked if that meant the Republicans were to try blocking the hearings, Dean replied: "That's correct."

Civil Rights Commission urges aid to Puerto Rico

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Rights Commission urged the government today to increase jobs and education programs to stem the worsening economic plight of Puerto Ricans living in the United States.

In a 170-page report, "Puerto Ricans in the Continental United States: An Uncertain Future," the commission said the President "should assign the director of the Domestic Council to coordinate interagency research, planning and action to improve the effectiveness of federal and federally assisted programs designed to aid Puerto Ricans."

It also suggested that the Domestic Council director create an advisory body to counsel the government on matters affecting Puerto Ricans who have recently migrated from the commonwealth.

The report is based on studies and regional hearings in the East and Midwest dating back to 1971, including a 1972 hearing in New York disrupted by advocates of independence.

It said the 1.5 million Puerto Ricans, estimated in the 1970 census to be living in the states rank economically below other Spanish-origin groups in this country.

Despite net migration to the island since 1970, "thousands of newcomers from Puerto Rico settle on the mainland each year," it said, adding that the newcomers "suffer particularly acute problems of linguistic and cultural adjustment."

"Puerto Ricans are limited largely by lack of skills and language difficulties but those who are qualified for better jobs are victims of discrimination—both individual and institutional basis and in both the private and public sectors," the report said.

Effective government action, such as bilingual training programs, is blocked by the lack of current and reliable data, it added.

Court says TWS's liable

© 1976 Washington Star

WASHINGTON — An attempt by U.S. airlines to avoid payment for some of the injuries or deaths caused by international terrorists, failed in the Supreme Court Tuesday.

Without comment, the justices turned down an appeal by Trans World Airlines in a major test case over legal liability for terrorism.

The Second United States Court of Appeals in New York had ruled in December that the airlines had an absolute duty to pay for injuries or deaths that occur to passengers in air terminals awaiting flights on those airlines.

That decision came in a test case arising from a Palestinian terrorist attack on passengers who were waiting to board a TWA flight in Athens, Greece, in 1972. Terrorists threw three hand grenades and fired small weapons, three persons were killed and more than 40 were injured at Hellinikon Airport on Aug. 5, 1972.

Jersey shoemaker convicted of murder

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — Joseph Kallinger, the Philadelphia shoemaker whose attorney claimed he was insane, Tuesday was convicted of murdering a nurse during an armed robbery at Levonia, N.J., home.

A jury of five women and seven men found Kallinger guilty of fatally stabbing Maria Fasching during a robbery of the DeWitt Romaine home, armed robbery, contributing to the delinquency of his son, Michael, and possession of a deadly weapon.

The jury deliberated for one hour and 40 minutes before returning the verdict. They also said Kallinger was legally sane on Jan. 8, 1975, the day the murder occurred.

The shoemaker stood motionless and showed no emotion when the verdict was announced. Kallinger's attorney, Paul Giblin, said he did not know whether he would appeal the verdict.

Judge Thomas Dalton said Kallinger would be sentenced Thursday to a mandatory life term. The shoemaker is currently serving a 30-90 year sentence for his conviction on robbery charges in Pennsylvania.

During the four-week trial, five people identified Kallinger as the man who broke into the Romaine home, where Miss Fasching, 21, a practical nurse, was stabbed to death.

In final summations, Giblin told the jury that Kallinger is a man with a "malignant mind." Two psychiatrists testified for the defense that Kallinger is a paranoid schizophrenic and was legally insane.

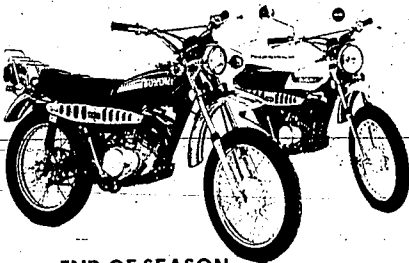

But Larry McClure, the prosecutor, said Kallinger's actions were sane and he knew exactly what he was doing when he barged into the home, tied up seven hostages and stabbed Miss Fasching to death.

"He's a fraud, and he's a faker. He came right into this courtroom and tried to fool you," McClure said.

McClure said Kallinger knew he had done something wrong, fled the scene of the crime and tried to get rid of any evidence that would link him to the Levonia home. He asked the jury to "give Maria Fasching justice."

Kallinger was arrested after authorities traced a bloodied shirt found near the murder scene to him. During the trial, he first chirped like a bird, sat listlessly most of the time, and once tried to cut his wrist with a piece of broken glass.

Robbery-murder trial ends with jury unable to decide

BOSTON (UPI) — A mistrial was declared Wednesday in the robbery-murder trial of Susan Saxe, 27-year-old, former honor student at Regeneris University who turned to revolutionary politics because of a hung jury.

The jury quit in a deadlock after deliberating five days without reaching a verdict on the case in which Ms. Saxe, once on the FBI's most wanted list, was accused of two counts of armed robbery and one count of felony murder in connection with a 1970 bank holdup which resulted in the death of a policeman.

Superior Court Judge Walter McLaughlin ordered each juror to discuss the specifics of his deliberations or to reveal why he could not reach a verdict.

"These indictments are still five indictments," the judge said. "This means there could be a retrial."

The six-man, six-woman panel reported Tuesday it was "hopelessly deadlocked," but on the judge's instructions continued attempts to decide the case.

Earlier Wednesday, the jury was refreshed on testimony from star witness Robert J. Valeri about the role of the robbery team's lookout man, testimony from the motorcycle policeman who found the getaway car, and testimony from the partner of slain Patrolman Walter Schroeder.

Jury Foreman Dennis Lee Milford reported Tuesday the panel was deadlocked on all three counts. At the urging of defense lawyer Nancy A. Gertner and with the consent of prosecutor John T. Gaffney, McLaughlin Wednesday reminded the jury each indictment should be judged separately.

Jury foreman Dennis Lee Milford wrote a note to the judge saying "We are hung from this discussion."

McLaughlin said details of the deliberations should be kept secret because "it was apparent" that if the "hung and agonizing deliberations were to become public, it would be even more difficult to obtain a fair and impartial trial in the future."

There was no immediate reaction from Ms. Saxe, 27, who sat in the court suffering from a head cold, or from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eliaz Saxe of Albany, N.Y., seated some 15 feet behind her.

The jury's questions indicated it was puzzled over the felony murder charge and the time between the getaway and the arrival of Schroeder and his partner, Francis Callahan. Under state law, a participant in a felony during which a person is killed by another accomplice is liable for the murder.

The judge told the jury Valeri testified the role of lookout man William A. "Lefty" Gilday was "to facilitate the escape from the bank in the event they the robbers were caught inside the bank."

Callahan's testimony indicated the getaway car and the robbers was not in the bank parking lot when the two policemen arrived and Gilday opened fire as they approached the bank.

Callahan said he and Schroeder were a mile from the bank when they received the call of a robbery. He said it took two or three minutes to reach the bank and said he did not see either the car or the bank parking lot or the blue Chevrolet used by the robbers.

The motorcycle policeman said he discovered the abandoned getaway car approximately two or three minutes after his description was radioed soon after the robbery. He said he did not see the car into which the robbers switched.

New England oil spill expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There's a 61 per cent chance that one or more major oil spills will reach land during offshore drilling near the New England coast, according to a new governmental study.

Two big spills — 1,000 barrels or more — are expected during the 20-year life of the oil field, according to a "risk analysis" prepared by the U. S. Geological Survey.

It predicts there will be about 1,000 spills of between 20 and 1,000 barrels and about 1,800 small spills of less than 20 barrels. The analysis was released Tuesday as part of a draft environmental study on proposed federal leasing of offshore drilling tracts at Georges Bank.

Even if no major spills occur, it predicts all the oil from smaller ones, according to Nantucket, Mass., over two decades would add up to somewhere between 3.5 inches to 2.2 pounds per yard of beach.

The study was prepared to help Interior Secretary Thomas K. Kleppe decide whether to hold a proposed lease sale off New England next year. The first Atlantic Coast sale — off New Jersey and Delaware — was held earlier this year in the face of continuing legal challenges.

Since the closest North Atlantic tract is 140 miles offshore, experts say it would take the average spill a month to reach shore. Thus most of the oil would disperse and reach beaches as "sticky residues" or "spongy masses of oil and water."

But, under some circumstances, an oil slick could reach Nantucket inside six days.

The study's findings were based on computer models

Boise senior appointed

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise man was named the chairman of the Idaho Carter-Mondale Committee on Seniors, State Coordinator Carol Humphrey announced Tuesday.

Jerry Evans, who was appointed to the position, is a retired Boise businessman and newspaperman who is the chairman of the Senior Council of Boise Community Education and is president of the Boise Club of the National Council of Senior Citizens.

The National Committee on Seniors supporting Carter's candidacy is co-chaired by six persons including Mrs. Lillian Carter, the candidate's mother, and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Evans is a retired Boise businessman and newspaperman who is the chairman of the Senior Council of Boise Community Education and is president of the Boise Club of the National Council of Senior Citizens.
