Toll rising in ferry-tanker crash

DESTREHAN, La. (UPI) — A commuter ferry carrying more than 80 oil and chemical plant employees to work collided with a tanker in predawn darkness today, capsized and sank in the Mississippi River. Nine bodies were recovered and 50 persons were missing and presumed dead, authorities said.

Harris poll shows Ford gaining

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Lou Harris-ABC News poll taken after the second presidential debate shows President Ford trailing Jimmy Carter by only four points. According to a survey of 1,503 voters made jointly by the Harris organization and ABC News, between Oct. 7 and 11, Carter had 44 per cent of the vote, Ford 40 per cent and third party candidate Eugene McCarthy 6 per cent. The other 10 per cent were undecided. Harris said the results of the survey show the momentum is "going Ford's way" and said "make no mistake about it, this election is up for grabs."

Author Bellow said Nobel winner

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Swedish newspapers said today that American author Saul Bellow has been selected for the 1976 Nobel prize for literature that will be announced Thursday. The report that the 61-year-old Bellow, known to have been a candidate for many years, had won the award appeared first in a National Swedish television news broadcast Tuesday.

Rhodesia war claims 16 in 2 days

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Authorities said today 15 persons have been killed in Rhodesia's guerrilla war in the past 48 hours, including an Australian-born white woman. A security forces headquarters communique said Wayne Neale Palmer was killed Tuesday night in a "surprise encounter" with black nationalist guerrillas. Her husband, driving the car that the guerrillas attacked, was seriously wounded, the communique said.

Snow stepping down as TF school chief

TWIN FALLS — Shortly after reaching a career pinnacle as chief of Magic Valley's largest school district, Carl Snow has decided he wants to be closer to Twin Falls students. Snow was appointed acting superintendent Sept. 14 to replace George Staudaher. Last week the school board returned to Snow the full duties of the superintendency, some of which had earlier stripped from Staudaher. But with the district's top job firmly in hand, Snow told the board in an executive session Tuesday night what he really wants is to return to being principal of O'Leary Junior High School. "My strongest job is working with kids, and that's what I enjoy," Snow said, after the closed session with trustees. "I have a long time in education. I don't want to spend it all as superintendent." Snow, who is 37, took over for Staudaher in the midst of the tension preceding the teachers' strike and with a school bond election less than a month away. The teachers' strike was settled Oct. 1, and the $1.8 million bond issue to build a replacement for the old O'Leary building passed by four votes Oct. 12. After Snow's decision Tuesday to step down as superintendent, the school board approved a notice of vacancy for the $25,000 per year job. The post will first be opened to qualified applicants among district employees, and if that does not result in a hiring the job will be advertised throughout several western and mid-western states. Snow indicated Tuesday he is willing to stay with the post until a successor is named, a step which might take until July.

... back to teaching

"My family and I have stayed awake many nights considering this," Snow said after the announcement. "The reason I took this job over was we had a crisis situation, and I tried to help." With a new building in the works by 1979, Snow said he is eager to get back to work as O'Leary principal. "I want to work with the kids," he said. He thanked the board for the confidence shown in him and called the trustees' cooperation "exceptional." Snow joined the Twin Falls school district as a high school biology teacher and sophomore football coach in 1965. Prior to that he had worked for several years as an elementary and junior high teacher and coach in Alamosa, Colo. A Colorado native, Snow attended schools in Cortez and Durango before receiving his BA and MA from Adams State College in Alamosa. Snow's wife, Teddy, is an elementary music teacher in the Twin Falls district. "I take pride in Carl's ability to get along with people and to administer," Mrs. Snow said this morning. "I'm proud to be his wife. But he needs to be happy doing what he knows is his best function." That function, she added, is working in direct contact with parents and students. The Snows have two children of their own, a daughter, Rhoyan, 15, and a son, Ryan, 11.

Thermal lease sale set

BOISE (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management announced today it would open Nov. 17 a thermal lease bids on over 4,000 acres of national resource lands in Cassia County. Vincent Strobel, BLM's chief of Lands and Minerals, said leasing rights on two units of land will be offered for sealed bids with the highest bidder receiving the leasing rights. One unit contains 1,620 acres and the other 2,081 acres. Both units lie approximately 10 miles south of Malta within the Raft River Known Geothermal Resource Area. Strobel said the area involved in the two units has been identified as critical habitat for mating, nesting, brood rearing and winter range of sage grouse and various species of raptors. For that reason, he added, special restrictive stipulations have been included in the lease contracts to protect the birds. He said sealed bids must be submitted to the BLM before 10:30 a.m., Nov. 17, and would be opened at 11 a.m.

US workers undermined ban battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson said today some Commerce Department employees may have aided the Arab boycott of Israel. Richardson did not identify the federal workers involved, but told the House Government-Operations subcommittee he was taking action to prevent such activity. Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., the panel chairman, asked, "In the rhetoric of the street, are you shipping them into the street?" "I would say yes," Chief Clerk Richardson, smiling and pouring water into a paper cup. Rosenthal's panel had previously charged that the Commerce Department "has consciously undermined the government's policy to discourage banks and other U.S. firms from complying with Arab boycott restrictions of an economic nature." Richardson offered no details today of how the Commerce Department employees might have assisted the boycott, which began in 1952 and intensified in 1974 during the Arab oil embargo. Rosenthal, who chaired the unusual hearing held after the 94th Congress had adjourned, did not press Richardson for immediate disclosure of the facts. But he said information on the employees should be supplied to the subcommittee for consideration when the new Congress convenes in January. Rosenthal said he learned that a Commerce Department employee had informed two New York banks that they did not have to comply with administration policy on the boycott. Richardson said he had heard such reports and had investigated them when it was believed that employees had taken actions that "had not been in full accord" with administration policy. Richardson cautioned there were various ways to comply with the boycott without negatively impacting Israel. American Jews father U.S. corporations that deal with Israel. He said boycott compliance by most corporations involved little more than a "simple acknowledgment" that goods or components of goods shipped to Arab countries do not originate in Israel.

Farm worker dies, dozen hurt as truck overturns

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times News writer
WENDELL — A pickup camper stuffed with about 24 Mexican national farm workers overturned south of Wendell Tuesday night, killing one man and hospitalizing 12 others. All the men are employees of Anderson-Natiger Farms. "Futile" — They were being brought home after working in the firm's potato harvest. Deputy Sheriff Bill Bunn said Gooding sheriff's officers today are investigating how many of the men have work permits or are in the country illegally. Jim Natiger, owner of the large farming enterprise which hires some 350 season workers, said he "had no idea" of the legal status of the workers. "We advertise for workers, they come in and we hire them," he said. "We have no way of knowing where they are from." Deputy Bunn said that Fidal Vega was dead on arrival at Gooding Memorial Hospital where 12 other nationals are hospitalized, some in serious condition. The names of the injured were not released yet by officials. Sheriff Earl Brown and all the Gooding county deputies were called to the scene six and one-half miles west of Wendell on the Hagerman-Wendell Highway when a 1976 half-ton pickup truck with camper, driven by Eusebio Goyangana, 32, Gooding, went out of control. The truck was demolished, Bunn said. The driver reported 15 of the men were injured. He said one was transferred to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, Twin Falls, and two were released. The Magic Valley hospital patient was under a doctor's care. Bunn said three men were riding in the cab of the truck, leaving "about 20" in the camper. Both Gooding county ambulances and other pickups from Anderson-Natiger farms were used to transport the injured men to the hospital. Bunn said he could not determine why the driver lost control of the truck, but that the number of persons in the vehicle may have been a factor. No other vehicle was involved.

Gooding Memorial Hospital personnel said the hospital's mass disaster procedure was put into effect and it "worked beautifully." All four doctors on the staff were in town and were called when the hospital was notified of the accident. Natiger said the men were employed driving tractors, plows and other equipment used in the potato harvest. A representative at the US Border patrol office in Twin Falls said they had not been notified of the accident.

Another blank

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Viking 2 has not found life under a rock on Mars but scientists aren't ready to say it can be found under another rock. "This question of life on Mars has not been answered," Viking mission director Thomas Young told a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory Tuesday. Viking 2, primed with a sample of soil scooped up at some trouble from beneath a rock, could find no indication of the presence of organic compounds. Such compounds — combinations of hydrogen, carbon and other elements — were indispensable in the development of life on Earth and presumably would be just as important elsewhere. None were found in earlier tests of Martian soil and scientists theorized that they may have been bleached out by strong solar rays, bombarding the planet's surface through the thin atmosphere for millions of years. Filer school straw poll votes favor Kress, Ford

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times News Writer
FILER — Democrat Stan Kress upset Ernie Hansen for president from the American Civil Liberties Union in New York seeking to enjoin the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from implementing the so-called Hyde amendment. According to law and chemistry teacher Jerry Kuykendall, students at Filer High School voted on county-owned voting machines to express a narrow preference for Kress as Idaho's next Second District congressman. Of the 164 students who voted in the congressional race, 85 students, or 51.8 per cent of the total vote, cast their ballots for Kress. About 79 students, or 48 per cent, voted for Hansen. "This is a real surprise," Kuykendall said. Filer students also voted on the candidates running for president. In this poll 167 students voted and Ernie Ford won in a landslide victory over Jimmy Carter.

114 students, or 69.3 per cent of the total vote, picked Ford in the presidential election while 53 votes, or 31.7 per cent, were cast for Carter. Kuykendall said there are 311 students enrolled in Filer High School and 209, or 67.3 per cent of them, registered to vote in the mock election. In the actual non-time voting period 171 students, or 53.4 per cent of those registered, actually voted. But not all of them voted on both races. The county allowed the school to use its voting machines for the straw poll and the school's law class took charge of registering all students who wanted to vote. "We made the students register," Kuykendall says. "If they didn't register, they couldn't vote." The polls were opened for the duration of the lunch hour according to Kuykendall. If students weren't interested, they couldn't vote, he says.

Stay of execution granted

ATLANTA (UPI) — Gov. George Busbee said today he will grant a 90-day stay of execution for a convicted double-murderer scheduled to become the first person to be executed in the United States since 1967.

Busbee said he does not intend to commute the sentence of John Eldon Smith, who had been scheduled to go to the electric chair next Wednesday.

Smith, also known as Anthony Marchetti, was convicted of murdering a Macon, Ga., couple to obtain insurance money in August, 1974. He is the first defendant scheduled for execution since the Supreme Court upheld Georgia's capital punishment law.

Smith would become the first person to be executed in the United States since Luis Monga died in the Colorado state chamber June 2, 1967. The last execution in Georgia occurred in 1964.

"I intend to grant this stay of up to 90 days for final review as provided by the Constitution in all instances once all appeals have been exhausted and the case has been remitted to the trial court for the setting of a new execution date," said Busbee.

There will be no extension of the standard 99-day stay unless necessary to carry out the final review.

Opponents of the death penalty appealed to Busbee this week to permanently stay Smith's execution. The governor said he has no legal authority to do so.

"If the drafters of the 1945 state Constitution had intended for the governor to exercise full and total discretion over pardons, paroles and clemency, they would not have created the state Board of Pardons and Paroles," Busbee said.

In creating the state Board of Pardons and Paroles, the drafters of the Constitution, the legislature and the people wisely took the fate of convicted criminals out of politics and placed these decisions in the breast of a deliberative, quasi-judicial body," said Busbee.

He said anyone with information about Smith's case during the review period should direct such information to the pardons and paroles board, not the governor's office.

Ford Motor, glass workers agree

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. today announced agreement on a new contract with the Auto Workers Local 757 was the 92nd and left just seven bargaining units without local contracts.

Workers at its Nashville, Tenn., glass plant whose operations are critical to Ford's continued operations.

The settlement at the union won't select either General Motors or Chrysler Corp. as its next contract target until "the situation clarifies at Ford." He said settlement of the two key plants and progress toward a contract for 14,000 Canadian Ford workers would be enough to proceed to the other auto companies.

Fraser, who heads the union's bargaining team at Chrysler, said it would take just six or seven days to get a new contract from Chrysler once a deadline is set. He did not rule out the possibility the UAW would take on Chrysler and GM at the same time to get national contracts for more than 500,000 workers.

Twelve of Ford's 18 assembly plants were in operation today, trying to build up a depleted inventory of 1977 model cars. The latest to return to work were the Wayne, Mich., auto assembly plant that builds Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch models and the Michigan truck plant.

Carter, Ford swap hot words

By United Press International
President Ford says Jimmy Carter's policies could cripple the nation's defense, and Carter says the President is disgracing the nation by tolerating the Arab boycott.

The two candidates swapped harsh words Tuesday while Ford tended to White House matters and Carter campaigned along the Eastern Seaboard, from Miami to Winston-Salem, N.C., to New York City.

Ford told a delegation of Annet leaders that Carter would "cut billions and billions" from defense spending and this would send America into global diplomacy, "with one hand tied behind her back."

If this happened, Ford said, America "will return on her knees, not her feet."

Ford said America cannot afford to cut military forces by billions in order to "pay for a galaxy of new social programs."

Carter, addressing voters in Miami Beach, denounced what he described as Ford's tolerance of the Arab boycott of U.S. firms that trade with Israel.

"This is a horrible travesty, a disgrace on our country," Carter said. "We need to get President Ford out of the White House."

"We'll do away with the Arab boycott," Carter promised.

Carter told the American

Public Health Association in Miami Beach that he backs a health insurance program that would pay the medical expenses of every American — but only when the government can afford it.

Carter said his insurance program would be phased in "as rapidly as revenues permit." He said coverage of catastrophic health bills and pre-natal and infant care would come first.

Outlining his health care philosophy, Carter said: "The basic need is to care about people and prevent disease and injury before it happens. Prevention is both cheaper and better than hospital care."

Carter stressed jobs, education and drug abuse control in a rally in the Harlem section of New York City. He said he was the first major party presidential candidate to campaign in Harlem in eight years.

Sen. Robert Dole, the GOP vice presidential nominee, told an outdoor rally in Oklahoma City that, as a Kansan, he was a neighbor "but, more importantly, I am your philosophical neighbor — I represent the conservative to moderate view in this country."

Sen. Walter Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, told the California League of Cities at San Diego that Carter has asked him to serve as an ombudsman for city government.

"A high priority of the Carter-Mondale administration will be to end the policies which have abandoned the cities and to pursue a course which recognizes the necessity of federal support and the system in solving

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists, who have been saying favorable things about Jimmy Carter, assailed President Ford's record today on more than 20 issues ranging from parks to clean air to "unprecedented" "insensitivity."

A coalition of 250 conservationists called a news conference to issue a "critique" of Ford's environmentally related policies.

Ford has "consistently supported industry attempts to weaken environmental laws," they said, and the proconservations bills which he has signed were initiated by Congress and passed over administration opposition.

The conservationists listed more than 20 areas in which they faulted Ford's policies. These included his "two consecutive years" of legislation to force strip miners to reclaim land, amendments to weaken the proposed clean air act this year, and "his failure to produce an energy policy that is clean, safe and emphasizes conservation."

The coalition also criticized

Ford for "his opposition to toxic substances control legislation which he reversed recently to sign congressionally passed legislation; his refusal to fund expensive, environmentally damaging park projects; ... and his refusal to adequately staff or fund national parks — a policy reversed, again, in the last two months."

Earlier this year, the environmentalist League of Conservation Voters, a leading political activist organization in the environmental field, rated the Democratic presidential candidate as "most disappointing" and Ford as "hopeless."

Carter supported as 'pet red-neck'

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Independent presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy said Tuesday what some liberals are supporting Democrat Jimmy Carter because he gives them "a pet red-neck."

McCarthy, on the ballot in some 30 states this fall and campaigning in Washington State, commented on the liberal acceptance of Carter.

"Part of the problem," McCarthy said, "is this is the first time these liberals have had a pet red-neck. They like to prove how broad-minded they are."

"I was their pet Catholic for awhile. Most Catholics are had, but McCarthy is OK because he thinks the way we do. They've had a few pet southern writers, but never a pet red-neck."

On other issues, McCarthy said he agreed with former Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Dixie Lee Ray — now the Democratic gubernatorial candidate in Washington State — on the safety of nuclear power plants.

"She says there's no point in being panicky in having over 100 nuclear generators when we've got 30,000 nuclear bombs lying around. I think that makes sense."

"I would stop the production of nuclear bombs and watch the production of nuclear plants," McCarthy said.

US oil storage centers in Gulf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For security, cost, and environmental reasons, the government's huge oil storage program is apt to concentrate in the Gulf Coast region, according to the head of the program.

Thomas E. Noel, assistant administrator of the Federal Energy Administration, outlined the program's progress Tuesday for reporters.

The strategic oil reserve was approved by Congress to furnish oil if U.S. supplies are interrupted by a foreign oil embargo, natural catastrophe, or widespread strike.

The law authorizes storing up to 1 billion barrels of crude oil and petroleum products and requires half of that to be stored by December, 1982.

Of that, 150 million barrels should be in storage by Dec. 22, 1978, a goal Noel said the FEA will meet "but it will make an odd man of me."

The oil will be stored aboveground in tanks or underground in mines or salt domes, which are structures that could be leached out into oil-holding chambers.

Noel said the FEA has studied eight possible sites so far, in Louisiana, Texas, Kentucky and Florida.

"We have concluded the bulk of this program is going to be underground storage on the Gulf of Mexico," he said.

The Gulf Coast sites are more attractive because they are near oil refining and transportation, and using salt domes with existing cavities is far cheaper than digging new mines or building surface tanks, he said.

Change party's goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Socialist Worker Party presidential candidate Peter Camejo says the United States needs "revolution, a social, fundamental change" but without the use of violence.

"We do not use violence," the 36-year-old Camejo said in a Public Broadcasting Service interview. "The only way you can make a revolution is by winning over the majority of the people."

Camejo said the campaigns of both President Ford and Jimmy Carter were "putting profit ahead of human need."

The SWP, an outgrowth of the Trotskyist movement in the United States, is on the ballot in some 28 states and is the largest organized political party on the U.S. Left.

Oil drill ban dropped

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey has asked State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz to end New York State's efforts to prevent offshore oil drilling in the Atlantic Ocean.

Carey's action Tuesday is believed to have been based on the expectation that a major oil strike off the coast would mean jobs for thousands of New Yorkers.

Israel said asset

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told a Jewish audience Tuesday night Israel was a strong asset and not a "burden" to the United States.

Kissinger's speech, in which he also defended U.S. policy on human rights as a marriage of morality and realism, was briefly interrupted by about 15 militant Jewish demonstrators who shouted that the secretary had betrayed Israel by forcing it to accept a "prematrimonial cease-fire" in the 1973 Middle East war.

After the protesters — chanting "Kissinger Must Go" — were ejected from the banquet hall, the secretary said, "This sounded like one of my Harvard seminars."

Minutes later, the again departed from his prepared text and rejected a statement by the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that Israel's defense was "a burden" on the United States.

Without directly mentioning Gen. George S. Brown or his controversial remark in an interview this week, Kissinger said: "In our joint efforts, we consider Israel not as a burden, but as a strong asset. Not as a liability, but as a staunch bastion of democracy."

Social reform lag rapped by Ohioan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major social reforms such as welfare for the aged, blind and disabled require more than 11 months between enactment and the date they take effect, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, said today.

Supplemental Security Income, the first fully federalized welfare program, had 11 months of delay and "was marred by confusion and chaos" from its beginning in January, 1974, Vanik said.

"After nearly three years of operation, it is still plagued with problems," he said in a statement prepared for a hearing of a House Ways and Means subcommittee.

The subcommittee probe is not intended to hash over past mistakes or cast blame, but to learn how to plan for the administration of major new social programs like welfare reform or national health insurance, Vanik said.

"The subcommittee believes the 11-month lead time for SSI was inadequate, he said. But the four years recommended by an IRS task force for putting welfare reform into effect seems inordinately long.

"The Congress seems too often to create new programs and order their almost immediate implementation without appreciating the administrative problems involved," said Vanik.

The result is often chaos, waste of millions of taxpayer dollars, public disappointment with social programs, and encouragement of a cynical and unproductive Washington mood, he said.

Idaho labor lists recipients

BOISE (UPI) — Organized labor has filed retroactively as a political committee and made reports of campaign expenditures on behalf of legislators, records of the secretary of state's office showed Tuesday.

With State AFL-CIO President Robert Blane Partridge listed as chairman, the labor organization filed under COPE Legislative Fund.

James E. Kerns was listed as treasurer. The papers, retroactive to July 1, were filed Monday.

To date, the reports said, the committee has spent a total of $8,559 — including $200 in legal fees last July to John Green field, Boise, and $59 to the Royal Restaurant, Boise, on entertainment.

COPE reported giving two legislators $1,000 apiece for their campaigns. These were Sen. Robert Kinghorn and Rep. Patricia McDermott, both D-Pocatello. The committee said it gave $500 to the campaign of Sen. Charles Bliley, D-Pocatello.

Donations of $300 were made to Reps. Wendell Miller, D-Idaho Falls; Russell Westerberg, D-Soda Springs; and Bill Onweiler, D-Boise, now a Senate candidate; and Senate candidate Patricia Dorman, D-Boise.

The committee said it has donated $250 to the campaigns of Larry Reynolds, D-Moore; David Slocum, D-Pollack, and Forrest E. Scouten, D-Moore.

It reported donations of $200 apiece to the campaigns of James Potter, D-Nampa; Woodrow Bean, D-Cascade; Rep. Dorothy Reynolds, D-Caldwell; Susan Liverette, D-Boise; Rep. Beverly Blittine, D-Pocatello; Rep. Lester Clemm, D-Troy, and Kay Pell, D-Boise.

Donations of $150 went to the campaigns of Rep. Don Maynard, D-Clark Fork; Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Mallard; Rep. Dorothy McCann, D-Wallace, and Glenn E.

Kidwell halts aides' politicking on job

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell acknowledged Tuesday that his staff sometimes engages in political activity on state time and, after news reports of it, ordered an end to the practice.

Later that day Kidwell issued a news release criticizing statements Andrus was reported to have made about President Ford. The governor contended later that he was taken out of context, that his remarks were aimed at former President Richard M. Nixon.

Because of the timing of the news release, UPI asked Kidwell whether the statement was typed in his office or in Republican headquarters.

"I would imagine it was typed in this office," Kidwell said.

He said he did not have a press secretary, as some elected officials do, and occasionally utilized his administrative aide to assist him with his political chores.

Later Tuesday, Kidwell said he had second thoughts about the matter and decided to order an end to political activity during state working hours. He said he has ordered the employees involved in the Monday incident to make up the time they spent on it.

"I do not blame my staff," Kidwell said. "It's my fault in not communicating to my staff. Any political work done (in the future) will be done outside staff hours."

"We've taken steps to make certain we do not have deviations like that in the future," he said.

Kidwell said he normally is careful about making certain his employees are not on state time when attending political meetings and conventions and indicated it did not occur to him this other type of activity also could be questioned.

"It had not occurred to me before," he said.

"I asked the staff member to verify the information and he went immediately to make the phone call," Kidwell said. "I think it's a valid point: we should not have partisan political-activity-taking place during staff hours."

"I have asked them to make up the time."

Church believes Simon view errs

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, says he thinks Treasury Secretary William Simon is wrong in claiming that a slowdown in the economic growth rate is "desirable" to prevent inflation.

"It's indicative of an economy that is still very sick," Church said Tuesday when he visited Utah to campaign for Democratic candidates.

Simon was in the state earlier in the day stumping for President Ford and Utah Republicans. The secretary said Americans shouldn't be alarmed by government figures showing that the Gross National Product grew only four per cent in the third quarter of this year, the lowest growth rate since the fourth quarter 1975.

"This slowdown, a pause as we call it, is natural and desirable," Simon said. Otherwise, he predicted there would be a new round of inflation and higher unemployment.

Church disagreed and told a news conference, "I would expect him to say that because that's all there is left for him to say."

"But I would think, however, that people would not be content with the highest unemployment rate since the depression and inflation that is twice as high as it ought to be," said the Idaho Democrat.

"I think it's going to be a Democratic year."

Church came to Utah to stump for the reelection of Sen. Frank E. Moss and to speak at the University of Utah.

"I can't imagine how this state would do better served than by the re-election of Sen. Moss," he said. "I know how effectively and successfully he has worked for the people of Utah. I know how well regarded he is in the Senate."

Drug suspects freed

BOISE (UPI) — All but one of the eight persons arrested on federal narcotics charges last Friday have been released on bond.

Gary Lynn, 27, Boise, was arraigned Monday and bond was set. He was held in the Canyon County jail in lieu of bond.

Those released on bond were Mark Mattoni, 20, Tenar (Idaho); Gary Padgett, 26, all Boise; Joe Oropeza, 27, Homedale; George Helmer, 23, Twin Falls; Lana Dylam, 22, and Mike Liplam, 27, both Kuna.

Mike Ulgam was released on bond Monday and then rearrested on state charges of possession of a narcotic and intent to deliver narcotics. He then was released on bond again.

Federal charges against the eight are possession of narcotics with intent to deliver.

Arco body identified

ARCO (UPI) — Authorities have identified the body of a man found dead near Arco Oct. 13 as that of Gary Dean Turner, 21, Boise.

Sheriff Richard Loris said Turner was identified by the FBI in Washington, D. C., through fingerprints.

Turner's body was found by hunters in steep terrain on Buck Cliff Mountain eight miles northeast of Arco. Loris said the cause of death remains under investigation, although he has ruled out murder as a possibility.

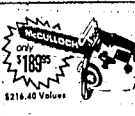

Water bonds approved

IDAHO CITY, Idaho (UPI) — Residents of Idaho City have approved a $75,000 bond issue for a new water system 86-26.

Mayor John Brogan said the city already has a federal Housing and Urban Development grant of $50,491, and now needs $25,000 from the Environmental Protection Agency for the water system.

Autopsy report won't show 'loneliness' causes death

A friend of Langguth's, the owner of a tavern, told Mrs. Woods that Langguth seemed to be getting increasingly dazed and absent-minded, wandering around without money or purpose.
"After arguing for days with a reluctant Langguth, I finally was decided he would enter the Lake Villa Nursing Home, not far from Mrs. Woods' home."
Said John Stokovich, administrator of the home, "He was 80-bed former two-story frame hotel. He was shy at first. But after the second week he seemed to be adjusting. But then he started missing his wife."
Mrs. Woods visited him regularly, but her health was none too good.
"He had his two bottles of beer a day, which he loved. But it wasn't enough."
"He missed his pals from the old neighborhood, the companionship of the tavern. I guess," she said. "He was very depressed, very lonely."
At 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 28, a nurse's aide looked in his first floor room and saw him lying on his bed, dressed, studying the ceiling.

Less than five minutes later, when she passed his room again, he was gone. She heard water gushing from a tap in the bathroom down the hall, and went in.
Langguth was in the tub, fully clothed, half lying, half kneeling with scalding hot water rising in the tub over his leg, arms and lower trunk.
He was rushed to a hospital, but died from the burns early Monday.
Police said the pain as the steaming hot water rose around him would have made most people cry out involuntarily — and perhaps would have brought rescuers sooner.
But Langguth could not cry out — and perhaps he didn't want to.
Later, Mrs. Woods wept as she recalled her longtime good friend. "We thought it would be good for him there. But in the end, he was so very, very lonely."

Court denies media plea to publish youth's name

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The possible rehabilitation of an 11-year-old accused of murder outweighs the news media's constitutional right to publish or broadcast his name, the Oklahoma Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.
The court's ruling rejected a plea by the media to lift a lower court's ban on broadcasting or publishing the name and photograph of the 11-year-old boy.

No snakes allowed

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Sheriff Krohn, 26, cannot bring her snake into restaurants, a ruling handed down by a Superior Court judge ruled Tuesday.
Miss Krohn, a snake dancer, complained that she could perform in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Sacramento and once was given a six-month permit to appear in San Diego.
"Recently, however, police have been preventing her appearances locally, citing laws against bringing animals into restaurants."
Although her attorney pointed out that animals and restaurants coexist at the San Diego Zoo, Judge Joseph Kilpatrick rejected the argument.

Official search ends for small-mute boy

TEN SLEEP, Wyo. (UPI) — The official search for a mute, nearly blind 4-year-old boy lost for nine days in snowy, rugged foothills is over today because authorities say the child probably is dead.
"So much time has gone by that there just about isn't any way he is alive," said George Nyskog, Washakie County deputy sheriff. "It's just gotten too cold up there, too much moisture, there's just no way."
Trained German shepherds completed three days of fruitless searching Tuesday near the northern Wyoming farm home of Ronnie Rea, who wandered off Oct. 11. The dogs since the boy disappeared, have uncovered no clues, authorities said.
"Everybody's out of ideas," said Edith Rea, the boy's mother. "I don't know what else we can possibly do."

Jury pick goes into 3rd day

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A prosecutor says he is close to bringing murder charges against six persons, including members of "the country club set" — for the car-bomb-killing of reporter Don Bolles.
John Admison, 32, is charged with the slaying, but police believe there was a conspiracy to kill the award-winning investigative newsman whose stories often attacked those with vested business interests.

Jury selection in the Admison trial goes into its third day today.
Maricopa County District Attorney Donald Harris said Tuesday he is "close to bringing charges" against a half dozen more persons in the murder of the Arizona Republican reporter.

"All we need is one person to talk to — say they were there when it was discussed," said Harris. "We've had the names of the people for a long time."
He said that since moving closer to bringing first-degree murder charges against other suspects, he has received threats that his car also would be blown up.

Harris said a conspiracy by "the country club set" was more likely than Mafia involvement in the June 2 bombing that fatally wounded Bolles, a Pulitzer Prize nominee who died 11 days later.
"Organized crime doesn't have to be the Mafia," the district attorney said. "It can be the kind of people who are named Smith and Jones."
He added: "The mob doesn't kill cops and reporters. This is not a Mafia case."
Harris, head of the government team for which a special prosecutor, William Schaefer, has been appointed, said persons with special business interests may well have been responsible for the murder.

Frigid temperatures and a weekend snowfall slowed the tedious work of searching the pot marked — lands a pe. Rescuers checked and rechecked the rolling terrain and rock holes large enough to conceal the boy.
Mrs. Rea and her husband Buster said efforts to find their son would continue among friends and family despite the end of the formal search.
As time passed and officials began to doubt whether the boy could still be alive, the Reas maintained their hope, spurred on by new search plans and occasional interest in the fate of their son.

Mrs. Rea said she had seen Ronnie playing in their front yard. He was wearing only a short sleeved shirt and green pants, she said. The boy is legally blind without his thick glasses.
At one point searchers checked out a call from a Kansas City woman who claimed to be a mystic. She said Ronnie was still alive, trapped under a rock. Other calls from psychics were also checked, Mrs. Rea said.

Early in the search, bonfires were maintained through the night in an attempt to attract the boy who could make sounds only by crying or screaming.
"Later searchers became convinced he had fallen into Spring Creek. Water was diverted and the stream thoroughly checked — to no avail."

US, allies veto arms embargo

© N.Y. Times Service
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Britain, France and the United States on Tuesday vetoed a resolution in the Security Council that would have imposed an embargo on arms shipments to South Africa in an effort to force the government there to relinquish control of South-West Africa and accede to free elections in that territory.

The three countries that blocked the council action objected on the ground that it could upset the diplomatic efforts by Secretary of State

Henry A. Kissinger to induce South Africa to accept terms for a conference on independence for Namibia. Namibia is the name used here for South-West Africa.

Speaking for the United States, William W. Scrantom told the council that "such a hasty step would be a setback in negotiations between Kissinger and Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa."

He declared that "for the first time there are prospects for results."

This was the second triple veto cast by the Western powers to block a resolution calling for an arms embargo against South Africa. They took the same action in June 1975 on a similar resolution that had also been pressed by third-world countries. They had used their veto power earlier to prevent expansion of South Africa from the United Nations.

Ten countries voted for the embargo resolution Tuesday. They were the Soviet Union, China, Sweden and the seven sponsors — Guyana, Benin (formerly Dahomey), Libya, Pakistan, Panama, Romania and Tanzania. Japan and Italy abstained.

South Africa's delegation has not participated in the debates, but representatives of that country have been seen in the council hall from time to time.

The defeated resolution would have required governments of nations belonging to the United Nations to prohibit the transfer to South Africa of arms, ammunition, aircraft, vehicles or other equipment for military use, also spare parts and any information relating to such supplies.

The "triple veto" was denounced by Salim A. Salim of Tanzania, who charged that the Western powers had "insensitivity to the African sentiments, given comfort to the South African government and enabled Pretoria authorities to continue repressive actions."

"They have laid the grounds for more bloodshed in Africa and in Southern Africa," he said.

Shanghai posters assail 'pack'

HONG KONG (UPI)

Shanghai radio said today the residents of China's largest city had "let out their hate like the eruption of a volcano" against the Widow of Mao Tse-tung and three other radical leaders of the Chinese Communist party.

The broadcast referred to wall posters put up throughout the city during four days of demonstrations that began last Friday, but it did not mention others by name as the posters have done.

It called the four, who include the three top leaders in Shanghai, "a pack of Marxist imposters who seek self interest in the name of revolution."

The "retines," it said, are "unforgivable and they are 100 per cent bourgeoisie in the party."

In addition to Madame Mao, reported to have been purged are Chang Chung-chiao, Wang Hung-wen and Yao Wen-xuan. All are members of the politburo of the party central committee.

"The people of Shanghai have let out their hate like the eruption of a volcano against those who have betrayed Marxism-Leninism-Mao Tse-tung thought, tamper with Chairman Mao's directives, practice revisionism, split the party and state power," the broadcast said.

Wall posters during the past week have accused the four of a long list of crimes, including plots to seize power and commit murder.

The radio said "big character posters" were plastered on walls of universities and middle schools throughout the city declaring support for this Kuoteng as new party leader.

Israeli foray charged

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)

A Palestinian communique broadcast today said Israeli infantry backed by 60 armored vehicles attacked and occupied the leftist-held village of Yaroun, less than a mile from the Israeli border in south Lebanon.

In Beirut, on the eve of a scheduled new truce, Lebanese Christian and Muslim factions pounded each other's residential areas today in one of the heaviest shellfire barrages of the 18-month-old civil war.

The heaviest rain in the eastern western half of the city all morning at the rate of at least three per minute, according to Beirut radio. The estimated death toll since the weekend, when the current round of shelling began, rose to more than 200.

The Palestinian communique said the Israeli infantry unit with 60 armored vehicles "captured Yaroun after fierce clashes." Yaroun, in the extreme south of Lebanon, was frequently the target of Israeli raids even before the Lebanese civil war erupted 18 months ago.

The communique said Israeli heavy artillery also shelled the area of the village of Acheh, 10 miles north of the Israeli border. Acheh, a Christian village northwest of the strategic market town of Marjayoun, has been reported under siege by Palestinian leftist forces since Saturday night.

Independent reporters in the southern region were not able to confirm Israelis were involved in the attacks. In recent weeks Christian forces using Israeli-supplied equipment have been battling Palestinian-leftists in several parts of the border region.

US uses Thai base again

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — U.S. technicians are using a previously abandoned Chinese war airbase to refuel and repair American aircraft based in the Philippines and the Indian Ocean, a U.S. spokesman said today.

Takhlai airbase, 90 miles north of Bangkok, "is being used for transit purposes" by the U.S. planes, the spokesman said.

He spoke in response to reports from Thai air force sources Tuesday that a team of American technicians in civilian clothes was preparing the base for use by U.S. planes.

"There are several American civilians who assist the necessary arrangements for the transit flights," the American source said. Other sources said "about five of 10" Americans were stationed fulltime at Takhlai.

As many as 30 or more Americans might be at Takhlai at any given time, he said, when planes are on the ground at the base.

Diplomatic sources said no U.S. planes were actually based at Takhlai.

A photographer who visited Takhlai today was told by Thai sources the American planes landed only at night. Military police would permit no photographs of the base.

Takhlai was used by U.S. warplanes, including F4U fighters, during the Indochina war. It was closed and abandoned by the Americans in 1974.

Thai sources said Americans in civilian clothes began work at Takhlai immediately after the closing of the last U. S. base and the withdrawal of American forces July 20.

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE FORECAST TO 7AM EST 10-21-76

Dry, cool air remains in Idaho

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and North side areas:
Clear and cold tonight. Sunny and slightly warmer Thursday. Highs near 60. Thursday and overnight lows mid 20s.
Friday's outlook: Dry but a little cooler.
Camas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley:
Clear and cold tonight. Sunny and a little warmer Thursday. Highs near 60. Thursday and overnight lows in the teens.
Friday's outlook: Dry and a little cooler.

Synopsis:
High pressure over the Pacific Northwest continues to dominate the weather pattern over the Intermountain region. This high pressure will maintain sunny skies that have prevailed over the Magic Valley for the last several days, but very little day to day temperature change is expected.
Under clear skies and light winds, early morning temperatures will remain cold but generally above the minimums of the last few days. Agricultural conditions will be good for harvest operations. However, potato diggers should note at the Kimberly Key Station soil temperatures have been rising to the lower 50s and dropping to the mid-30s during the morning hours.
The extended outlook Friday through Sunday: Mostly dry but unseasonably cool. Highs in the 50s, lows in the 20s.

Anti-Castro agents mapped terrorist acts in U.S.

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Venezuelan security police have uncovered plans by anti-Castro agents to carry out terrorist acts in the United States and six other countries in the hemisphere, the newspaper El Nacional said Tuesday.

A raid on a private home in Caracas produced documentation of plans "to execute a series of terrorist attacks in the United States, Venezuela, Trinidad and Tobago, Barbados, Guyana, Panama and Colombia," the newspaper said.

The raid came as the result of an investigation into the activities of Cuban exiles in Venezuela following the implication of two Venezuelan nationals in the bombing of a Cuban plane that crashed off Barbados Oct. 6, taking 73 lives.

El Nacional said that the Venezuelan police had found a link between the airplane crash and the Sept. 21 bombing in Washington of former Chilean Foreign Minister Orlando Letelier and other attacks.

The newspaper report said that police "found in their investigations that the criminal attack against the former Chilean foreign minister, the bombing attack on the Consulate of Guyana in Trinidad and Tobago and the criminal action against a Cuban de Aviazione DC-8 in which 73 persons lost their lives — form part of a vast terrorist plan" organized by anti-Castro Cubans.

Venezuelan security agents last week arrested fugitive Cuban underground leader Orlando Bosch who had entered the country with a Costa Rican passport under an assumed identity. At least 12 other persons have been arrested and police have called "in some 30 exiled Cubans living in Caracas for questioning."

Bunker resumes Panamanian talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker left quietly Tuesday — after months of political charges and countercharges at home — to resume the controversial negotiations with Panama for a new Panama Canal treaty.

The veteran negotiator slipped out of town without making a statement.

But State Department officials confirmed his departure for the talks on Contadora Island beginning today. The last session was in May.

Resumption of the talks was agreed earlier this month in conversations at the United Nations between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd.

During the Republican primary season, President Ford was sharply criticized by his GOP challenger Ronald Reagan for negotiating what Reagan called "a surrender" of the canal to Panama.

Burley planners meet tonight

BURLEY — The Burley Planning and Zoning Commission will turn its attention to Cassia County today in its study of a potential area of urban impact.

Cassia County commissioners and Burley city councilmen have been invited to a meeting at 8 p.m. today in city hall to discuss the city's impact area south of the Snake River.

The invitations were sent by Marjorie Stollen, Twin Falls, planning consultant for the planning and zoning commission on the city impact area.

Mayor Chuck Shaddock Monday urged councilmen to attend the meeting.

"We're going to have to convince the county we want to control that impact area," he said.

The Burley planners met two weeks ago with representatives of Heyburn and the Minidoka County planning and zoning commissions.

The Burley commission proposed an impact area that would be bounded by the Heyburn city limits at 650 West Road on the east and 850 West Road on the west from Interstate 80 south to the Snake River.

"Succedeedly, it's agreeable to Minidoka commissioners," Mayor Shaddock said. Monday, though admitting there has been no formal presentation.

Since that meeting, however, Minidoka Planning Chairman George Falkner and Zoning Chairman Roy Honinger, both present at the Burley session, have revised some reservations about the 650 West Road boundary.

So have Minidoka County commissioners. County Commissioner Elmer Ketterling last week termed that boundary "ridiculous."

Burley water tank, park studied

BURLEY — A recreation site atop a water storage tank remains a possibility for Burley.

The council agreed Monday night to call for two bids on construction of the two million gallon storage tank slated for southeast Burley.

One bid would be for a stress figure of 100 pounds per square foot to accommodate a recreation site atop it. The other would be for only 30 pounds per square foot.

The storage tank is part of a city water system improvement project of nearly $2 million to boost water pressure and increase storage for fire protection, particularly in South Burley.

Mayor Chuck Shaddock said J-U-B Engineers, Twin Falls, consultants on the project, estimated that the tank can be built to accommodate a recreation site for about $300,000 to $325,000 (compared with the original estimate of $400,000). He said the weaker structure probably would cost $29,000-$30,000 less.

The mayor added that Idaho Falls has roller skating on top of its facility.

Headquarters open

BURLEY — Grand opening of the Cassia County Democratic campaign headquarters is being held today at the Overland Shopping Center here.

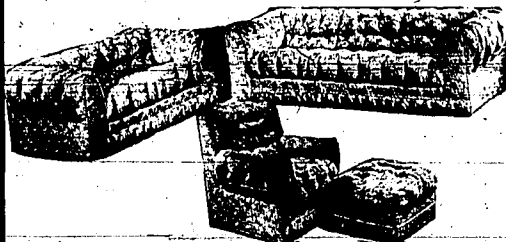

State Auditor Joe Williams is the special guest for the event, which kicks off an open house at 8 p.m. today.

Street paving cut ordinance revived

BURLEY — A draft ordinance once considered too tough on repairing street paving cuts has been revived here.

City Attorney William Parsons presented the draft to the council again Monday night at the request of Mayor Chuck Shaddock. The mayor asked councilmen to review it for the next council meeting Nov. 1.

Parsons had drafted the ordinance more than a year ago at council request, but the matter was shelved.

The city attorney said he believed the reason was that it was "too tough."

He said recent council comments concerning problems with street cuts made the draft seem feasible again.

"It has some teeth in it," Parsons said, while other sample ordinances the council considered previously "didn't have enough teeth."

James H. Burley, manager for Mountain States Telephone Co., suggested a committee similar to the planning and zoning commission to review the proposal.

He asked councilmen to give a chance to provide input for council consideration.

Vegwert added that it is difficult to lay paving at certain times of the year and lack of proper compaction can create a problem.

Mayor Shaddock said he favored paving beyond the actual ground cut, so that the edges of new paving would be on compacted ground.

The proposed ordinance calls for paving to go six inches beyond the ditch cut.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I have always been very close. She has a fine husband with whom she has a most happy marriage. I, a widow, 60, my sister is 63 and her husband is 62.

For the last two years, I have felt that my heart was breaking for lack of love from a man. My nerves are terribly strained, and the doctor has advised me to get a man.

My sister says she cannot stand by and do nothing to help me, so she has agreed to lend me her husband, who is most agreeable to cooperating with us.

My sister says she would share her food to keep me from starving, and sees little difference in this instance.

The only man that bothers me is wondering if God would sympathize with my plight and condone such a plan. We are all good Christians and attend church regularly. Please base your answer on a practical basis as well as a religious one. Yours in Christ.

NEEDS A MAN

By NANCY KELLEHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A national media campaign will be carried on by the National Institute on Drug Abuse during Drug Abuse Prevention Week, which began last Sunday and continues through Saturday to inform the public of the ongoing work to check the drug abuse problem.

According to Kimberly Berg, local supervisor of the Substance Abuse Program at the Department of Health and Welfare, alcohol poses the biggest drug problem in the Twin Falls community.

"There is a bigger drug problem here than people want to face," she states.

Approximately 120 cases, some of them continuing cases, are dealt with by the department per month. Of the people receiving care, approximately 45 per cent are male, and 50 per cent are between the ages of 16 and 30.

Berg says the current emphasis of social service agencies is more on prevention than cure of drug abuse.

Twin Falls Department of Health and Welfare provides outpatient treatment for drug addiction. This program includes individual and group counseling, assertiveness training and parent effectiveness training.

Through the counseling sessions, drug abusers learn to deal with the problems of their lives, so that they will not use drugs as a crutch to help them cope.

Kimberly Berg regrets that the parents' groups do not draw much response. She feels that drug abuse prevention must start when the child is young, and parents of both young children and teenagers must be aware of problems leading to drug abuse.

Heroin, according to Berg, is the hard drug most used by young adults in the area. Those who come to Health and Welfare seeking help in escaping their heroin addiction are referred to State Hospital South for medical attention during withdrawal.

Referrals are made by Health and Welfare to residential treatment centers in this area. The Gooding Training Center deals mainly with alcohol abusers. The Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services is a halfway house for male alcohol abusers.

A community action meeting will be held today at 7 p.m. at the Department of Health and Welfare to discuss the possibilities of establishing a women's halfway house in Twin Falls. The house would also serve as a crisis shelter home for women.

There is no live-in center in the Magic Valley to aid abusers of drugs other than alcohol.

Referrals are made to the Department of Health and Welfare's programs through the courts, social service agencies and parents. Some drug abusers come in themselves for help.

Many alcohol abusers just beginning to come for self-help are women, generally older widows and divorcees having problems in coping with the changes brought about by loss of a partner.

Many younger women who come in for help are addicted to prescriptive drugs.

Health and Welfare substance abuse workers will consult with community organizers and school groups, seeking to educate people on the subject of drug abuse prevention.

A weekly Alcohol Abuse seminar is held at the Magic Valley Rehabilitation House on Wednesday evenings. The sessions stress the need of alcohol abusers to gain control over their entire life and are open to the public. Individuals planning to attend must call the Department of Health and Welfare before attending.

Teachers at Twin Falls High School are also conducting a program for students concerning substance abuse.

Sharing 'no therapy'

DEAR NEEDS: As a church-going Christian, surely you know that borrowing another woman's husband [even for therapeutic reasons] is inconsistent with God's laws. Since you so desperately want a man, find your own. Sharing a husband might provide short-term relief but long-term disaster.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column a while back from a woman who said every time she got pregnant, her husband started drinking. My problem is just the opposite. Every time my husband starts drinking, I get pregnant.

I love kids, but we've got just about all I can handle right now.

Don't tell me to use birth control. I've tried several methods, and they don't work for me.

You keep saying that a wife shouldn't turn her husband away when he wants sex because that gives him an excuse to find another woman. So what do you recommend?

ENOUGH KIDS

DEAR ENOUGH: Planned Parenthood for YOU, Alcoholics Anonymous for HIM and self-control for both of you!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a policeman, so I'd like to comment on the letter from the Passaic policeman who said she hated her husband's work.

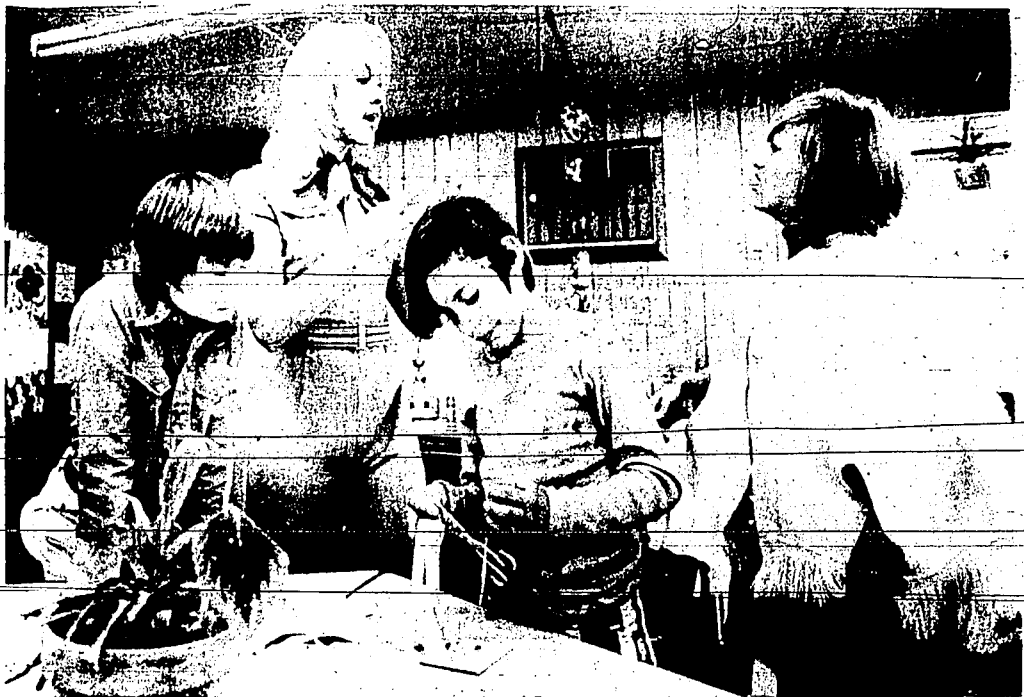

Being a policeman's wife is not easy. I worry about him being killed in the line of duty. There are lonely nights when I wish he were at home with me and the baby. He works hard and has very little time off. After duty hours, he's in court, on the telephone or examining those arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

But my husband is happy in his work even though policemen are sometimes called "fuzz," "the heat" or "pigs." And TV, too, has pictured them as super-cops, trigger-happy fools or even robots.

I'm proud to be the wife of a policeman. When someone calls my husband a "pig," I take it as a compliment because in our family "pig" is short for "Professional Integrity and Guts." My policeman needs love, patience and support from his wife and family—and from society. Sign me,

"MRS. PIG"

DEAR MRS. PIG: ALL policemen do.

your health

Dear Dr. Lamb — The enclosed advertisement appeared in our daily paper. Do you know anything about the "New Supercharged" vitamin E pill?

Would it be worth one's time and money to invest in some or do you think it is a will scheme to "bitch the public"?

Dear Reader — The advertisement you sent me proclaims in headline form "Sexual potency quickly improves with new E-Pill." The rest of the ad is equally as misleading.

The truth is that vitamin E does not improve sexual performance in human beings in any way. It is useful in improving fertility in rats. If you want to increase the rat population, it also helps in some animals with metabolic systems entirely different from man.

Skepticism best bet

In fact I have received several letters recently from wives who complained that their husbands became impotent after starting vitamin E pills.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 432, Vitamin E: Miracle or Myth, to give you some facts to go along with your healthy skepticism. Others who want facts on vitamin E can send 50 cents, and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Also I am sending the ad you included to the Federal Trade Commission with a request that they look into it on the basis of false claims.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I think you have an obligation to comment on your statement in one of your columns about the ratio of unsaturated to saturated fats. You seem to say it doesn't really matter. That seems strange in view of the amount of space you devote to informing the reader about the nature of various fats in various foods.

Is one to conclude that it makes no difference whether, one consumes a piece of hard, safflower oil or olive oil?

Dear Reader — You have certainly taken liberties with the actual statement in my column and I hope others have not. The statement you underlined says: "The general thinking today is that significantly increasing the polyunsaturated fat level above the 10 per cent of the total calorie intake probably doesn't help at all, but you do need a small amount."

The statement means exactly what it says. The principle is, that you should restrict ALL fat — saturated, monoun-saturated and polyunsaturated fat — to no more than 35 per cent of your total calorie intake. Increasing the amount of polyunsaturated fat above 10 per cent of your calories without increasing the amount of saturated fat is a greater portion of your 35 per cent calories as polyunsaturated fat either helps or hurts you. The amount of SATURATED FAT SHOULD BE RESTRICTED to no more than 10 per cent of your total calories.

Having gathered around a table were pulling the final touches to Halloween witches that would hang from the classroom ceiling.

The chorus of voices was typical of eager students their age. But the chatter was incomprehensible — moans and grunts accompanied by an occasional shriek.

Only days before these five cheerful kids had not known what Halloween was — nor what "Trick or Treat" meant.

— Doug, Joe, Rudy, Sherry and Beverly are deaf. Before they entered at Lee Britain Elementary School few people, if any, could communicate with them.

Now they have a special teacher — Patti Cole, who knows their agonies because she too is deaf.

Ms. Cole, a pretty blonde who is reigning queen of the American Athletic Association of the Deaf, was not born deaf, but lost her hearing by the time she was 4.

Soon after she became deaf Ms. Cole learned to speak at Sunshine Cottage, a school for the deaf in San Antonio, Tex., where she was taught. That was the only "special" school she attended and for the rest of her childhood went to regular classes in public schools.

Ms. Cole had no thoughts of teaching the deaf when she enrolled at the University of Texas at Austin. She planned to pursue a career in home economics or perhaps nursing. She changed her mind at the suggestion of a counselor.

"Five years ago I couldn't communicate in sign language, all I knew was lip reading," she said. "But I really enjoy teaching these kids. I know how they feel because I felt the same way when I was their age."

But loneliness can linger deep in a deaf child. "Most of these kids usually don't have anyone to communicate with them, aside from school, and they become lonely. It's difficult for them not to be dependent."

Ms. Cole hopes her students can overcome their loneliness and interact in two worlds. "I grew up doing the things all normal children do," she said. "But my deafness did not keep me from participating. I liked belonging to two worlds. I still do."

Students learn to belong to 2 worlds

Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — As more couples continue to live together without being married, some are discovering they have the same problems as married persons — but not the same solutions. The law does not exist for these unmarried couples.

"There are two types of people under the law, single and married," said lawyer Barbara Hirsch. "The law just isn't there for unmarried couples."

In addition, many of society's benefits, such as insurance and survivors' rights, are denied to cohabitants whose relationship is still viewed as conservative institutions as suspect.

Wells and Lynn had been living together for two years when they decided to buy a three-flat as their own, income-producing, home. The lawyer they hired to handle the intricacies of that one piece of advice: Get married.

"We had always planned to get married. I sort of... and it was kind of a hassle with the mortgage, insurance and that stuff. So, we got married," Wells shrugged.

Ms. Hirsch, a vigorous lawyer, had "getting married" listed the way to preserve property. She contended that any good lawyer can draw up a contract for unmarried couples, treating their investments like a business arrangement.

but she admitted that takes an extra effort that isn't required for married couples.

Sally wishes she had thought of a contract — but it was too late. She and Jim split up after seven years together and, just like married couples, they started haggling over who was entitled to what.

"At first we kept everything separate, recording who bought what. But as you come to know and trust and love, you start throwing the money in the pot," Sally recalled. Their commitment to each other grew to the point that she and Jim each drew up a will leaving their worldly goods to the other.

After their breakup, Sally was especially bitter about several valuable antiques. She was the one who liked antiques and had browsed for them. But in the beginning Jim was owning furniture what she was, so he bought the 18th Century grandfather clock, the breakfast, the old French bed.

Sally, in the meantime, was buying the wallpaper, carpeting and bookcases for their apartment. The apartment that had only Jim's name on the lease. When they split up, he kept the apartment with her wallpaper. Her car, of course, she had thought all along that these purchases were theirs.

When Sally and Jim started living together, she didn't want her name on the lease because it was more than she could afford alone and, she reasoned, she might want to split. It never occurred to her as time went on and both her income and purchases increased, to add her name to the lease.

"I think it's that old thing that women think they'll find someone to take care of them. We deliberately stay naive," Sally complained.

If they had been married, she added, "I would have had a fair fight over what I thought I should have." As it was, she confessed, she got nasty with Jim and threatened to embarrass him.

Lawyers and courts are seeing more instances of unwed couples trying to get legal redress when their relationship ends, although the total is still small. But the legal experts are hard-pressed to find solutions.

An Illinois judge said, "I use any law I can lay my hands on" to settle such disputes. Donald C. Schiller, a Chicago divorce attorney, said his advice to complaining parties who want their

The Washington State Supreme Court ruled last year on a woman's claim to a rancher's estate. They had lived together a number of years and had children, even though he also had a wife. When the rancher died, the woman he had lived with contended she was partner in the ranching and was entitled to half the property. The wife insisted the other woman was just that and deserved nothing. A lower court agreed with the widow, but the supreme court sent the case back, saying that the personal and sexual relationship was irrelevant. The lower court was ordered to consider only evidence about a business relationship in determining the woman's claim.

Chicago's small claims court, where persons sue as their own lawyers, is getting more cases of non-disputes when unwed couples go their separate ways. Recent cases were included:

— A young man paid a $300 deposit on an apartment because he and his girl friend planned to move in together and share expenses. She contended that when they visited the apartment he was "crabby" and complained about all sorts of things, so she backed out of the arrangement. He wanted $150, her share of the security deposit. The court ruled that in the absence of a written agreement with the girl friend, he was stuck for the full amount.

— A couple had split up and he contended she hadn't repaid a $200 loan. She said it wasn't a loan — he gave her the money to buy bedroom furniture. She bought the furniture on Halloween. The woman testified, and they lived together until Valentine's Day. Judge Emanuel Rissman ruled the man got 20 months use of the bedroom furniture and was entitled to nothing.

Open house set Sunday

TWIN FALLS — An open house is planned for Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. at the Happy Acres day care center, and school. The center is designed for pre-school youngsters ages three to six. It is located three-quarters of a mile west of Washington Street on Pole Line Road, near the College of Southern Idaho.

The open house will include an introduction to the new facility and the qualified instructor staff. The school will operate on a two-, three- or five-day enrollment plan, depending on the needs of the individual. Full day care classes in basic instruction and a hot lunch will be provided. Classes will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 11:30 a.m. for the morning session, 1 to 3:30 p.m. in the afternoon. Included in the class program will be individualized learning, creative arts, music and special field trips. There is an Acre Playland area, and nutritious snacks will be provided.

Filer unit names 'fireman'

FILER — Roy Rytting was named "Fireman of the Month" for September by members of the Filer Fire Department.

Bytting attended five fires during the month, according to Gerald Mullen, fire chief.

Fires to which the group responded during the month included a controlled burn at a field at the John Born residence, Twin Falls, Sept. 5, and a car-on-fire north of Garry Sept. 11.

September 12 a hay stack one mile west of Rogerson belonging to Ralph Schnell caught on fire. There were 13 hay stacks in the vicinity, but only a half of one stack (approximately 100 tons of hay) was burned.

September 22 a trash fire behind the Twin Falls County Hospital was responded to by Filer firemen. Sept. 27 a fire at the Boyd-Taylor residence required the department's attention. A truck caught fire inside a garage but was removed, and the fire was extinguished.

"Firemen were on hand Sept. 23 for a controlled burn at the Filer High School for a bonfire for the homecoming festivities.

Doctor suggests mask replacement

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Dr. Brian Klingler thinks Halloween masks are frightening for what they hide, not for what they show.

Klingler, president of the New Hampshire Ophthalmic Association, thinks most masks obstruct a child's view and pose a serious threat to the wearers. And he recommended replacing traditional masks with makeup.

"I'm not trying to take the fun out of it by any matter of means. The problem with the masks is the visibility, especially with smaller children.

"They just don't have a good mask to fit them. By and large, a makeup situation is safer and a lot more fun," said the father of two Halloween-aged children.

Klingler also warned parents who use makeup to beware of any cosmetic to which their children might be allergic.

"The best thing to do is to have your mother find a little patch of skin and dab on the makeup. Children's skin can be very sensitive.

"If they react, there are plenty of cosmetics designed not to be irritating to the skin. In short, mother should take the same precautions on her kids as she does on herself," he said.

Klingler also recommended the use of reflective tape to make the trick or treaters more easily seen by motorists. He also says parents should accompany the young trick or treaters.

Demo urges vote turnout

JEROME — Patricia McPernot, state legislator from Percutello, urged fellow Democrats to take at least 10 other persons to the polls Nov. 2 in her address at a dinner here Saturday night.

The Legislative District 23 Democratic rally drew about 200 persons, and featured a southern-style dinner in honor of President-elect Jimmy Carter. The dinner was under the direction of Marjorie Titus, Jerome.

McPernot urged area Democrats to work especially hard to get voters to the polls so "we can get rid of old what's-his-name, referring to U.S. Rep. George Hansen who, she said, is an embarrassment to the state.

"Idaho needs a congressman who represents the people

Instead of special interest groups," she said. She praised Stan Kress, the Democratic candidate for Hansen's congressional seat, for his work in the Idaho State legislature.

Mrs. Kress spoke for her husband, who was not able to attend the rally.

Alex Echeburra, Gooding district chairman, introduced Chris Talkington, Twin Falls, who served as master of ceremonies.

McDermott congratulated district 23 for having such "excellent" candidates running for the state legislature and urged her audience to support them.

The District 23 Democratic candidates, who were introduced, include Wallace McCain, Wendell, running for state senator, and Vic Bozula, Shoshone, and William Kersey, Jerome, both running for state representative seats.

Filer students save coupons

FILER — Children and parents in the Filer area will probably be eating more cereals than usual this winter. The Filer Elementary School is participating in the Post cereal "Fun 'n' Fitness" equipment for schools contest and each child in the school

MICHELLE Kovar places two cereal coupons in a decorated box which will be placed in Max's Foodland Store in Filer by Mrs. Bruce Holderreed, coupon chairman. Coupons will be saved and redeemed to buy playground equipment for the Filer Elementary School. Michelle Kovar holds the box as Tiffany Kovar watches.

Equipment needed will be trying to collect two coupons a week toward new equipment for the school. Mrs. Lols Cammack, teacher at the school, is coordinator of the program to update the playground at the school. She said she has felt concern about the safety of the playground as much of the present equipment is old, no longer safe and needs repairing or replacing.

The school has no equipment for kindergarten or primary students, she said. Mrs. Cammack said her aim is to create a new personality for the playground by installing equipment much like the Harrison School in Twin Falls.

A committee is to be formed to repair that equipment can be salvaged or will be supplemented by equipment donated through the Post cereal plan. The committee hopes to be able to get a new slide set and perhaps a jungle gym and swing set through redemption of the coupons.

Mrs. Bruce Holderreed is coupon chairman, assisted by Mrs. Joe Kovar and Shirley Hanning. They are placing receptacles for the coupons in most of the stores in Filer as well as several in Buhl. If each child could bring to the school two coupons a week they would be able to collect 30,000 by March, 1977 when the contest closes, Mrs. Holderreed said.

People in the community are urged to save the coupons for the children and also to watch the newspapers for announcements of bonus coupons.

A community meeting to discuss the project will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Elementary school.

ASK THE GADBOYS

An Illinois reader wants to know if there is any difference between a trick awarded because of a revoke and a trick taken normally. The answer is a decided "No". As an example, let's take a four-spade contract. Declarer makes nine tricks, but an opponent has revoked. He is deemed to have made an over-trick at his four-spade contract. If declarer revoked, he is three down.

Building, paper goods aid Boise Cascade sales

BOISE (UPI) — Continued demand for Boise Cascade Corporation's building materials and paper-related products resulted in a good third quarter for the firm, the company announced Monday.

Boise Cascade reported net income of $25,300,000, or 88 cents a share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1976.

The net income compared with $19,670,000, or 67 cents per share, for the same quarter a year ago. Sales for the third quarter were $518,420,000, up from $386,890,000 in the same period of 1975.

For the first nine months of 1976, the company reported earnings of $29,840,000, or $2.27 per share, compared with $20,180,000, or $1.70 per share last year. Sales in the first nine months of this year increased to $1,427,880,000 from $1,081,350,000 in the comparable period of 1975.

Earlier this month, the company said in a preliminary statement, the improvement in earnings in the third quarter in a large measure would reflect a gradually strengthening economy, which would result in increased demand for building materials and related paper products.

John B. Fery, president and chief executive officer, said the outlook for the company's wood products and building materials business for the remainder of the year is difficult to predict.

He said if the recent momentum in housing and industrial building is able to offset the normal seasonal downturn, fourth-quarter results in good products could be quite similar to the third quarter excluding the impact of a final payment received for a timberland sale.

Boise Cascade received a final payment in the third quarter for sale of timberland in northern Minnesota to the National Park Service. The payments were equivalent to 14 cents per share.

Fery also noted Boise Cascade's paper manufacturing operations should perform better for the balance of the year, although there could be further production curtailments because of market conditions.

"If sold price increases for some coated paper grades took effect Oct. 1 and an increase in newspaper prices is scheduled for Dec. 1 in the Midwest and South.

Seasonal factors should favorably impact the company's packaging and office products business in the fourth quarter, Fery said.

Boise parking unit OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — Preliminary plans for a $2.6 million six-level parking structure were approved today by the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council but the director of the Department of Administration said the structure will not solve the parking problem in the capital mall.

Director of the Department of Administration George Neumayer said even with the construction of the new parking facility the parking problem would not be solved.

Neumayer said the facility "will only ease the pain — it won't solve the problem," he said.

"We don't really want to solve the problem. Providing a parking place for each employee is a pretty expensive proposition.

Neumayer recommended approval of the plans pointing out state employees presently drive some 2,500 registered cars to the mall area and the number of employees is expected to increase by another 1,000 in the future.

The proposed facility would provide parking spaces for 700 vehicles in front of the Len B. Jordan office building in addition to the 650 spaces already available in the mall area.

Sen. Vernon K. Brassey, R-Boise, said fees recommended by the legislature, which are to be instituted for all spaces used by state employees Jan. 1, would "see if people will walk a couple of blocks or pay $15 a month" to park in the mall area.

Visitors and handicapped persons would not be charged for parking spaces.

Neumayer said parking fees, proposed at a rate from $85-15 per month, would not pay for the structure.

"I don't believe income from employee fees parking fees recommended by the legislature, which are to be instituted for all spaces used by state employees Jan. 1, would "see if people will walk a couple of blocks or pay $15 a month" to park in the mall area.

Little comfort to Delta in signs of fall

© N.Y. Times Service
 AUGUSTA, Ark. — Ordinarily it would be a comforting reminder of fall, that trace of wood smoke from a fire on a hillside across the yellow field.
 But today the trace of smoke brings a trace of alarm. Does it mean comfort or is it a signal of more bad luck in the weather, one last perverse turn in the worst growing season ever in Arkansas for soybeans?
 More bad weather could put some farmers out of business. They are beginning to be talkative about government disaster loans, as some farmers in Mississippi and by three consecutive crop failures, already are doing.
 Grafting and pruning Richard T. Conner stood in one of his soybean fields and told why had happened and what was in of stake.
 "The spring was far too wet. Farmers planted their soybeans and cotton with difficulty. The crops grew slowly because the weather was too cool and wet.

 Territorial rains early in the spring washed out thousands of acres of the new plants across the Arkansas delta, from the White River that runs past Augusta to the Mississippi 80 miles to the east.
 Then with the washed-out acres replanted, the rain stopped. The worst drought in years struck most of the state's richest farming region, and all through the summer the crops burned and shriveled under temperatures of 93, 96, 97 degrees.
 In a good year, Conner said, the field he was standing in produces 40 bushels an acre.
 He needed a good year. He farms 700 acres — small by east Arkansas standards — and a poor year could cause trouble getting a loan for next year's crop. "I think I'll average about 15 bushels an acre this year," he said. Then he added, "If it's not hurt by frost."

 The last blow from providence this year would be an early frost or, calamity of calamities, a hard freeze that would stop all growth. Much of the poor soybean crop is already mature. But about 40 per cent of the beans are still green and need 10 days to three weeks more to ripen and harden.
 A cold front came down from the north this weekend. Conner had gone to the field in short sleeves Friday and the temperature had gone above 80 degrees. Saturday was cloudy and cool. The temperature never rose beyond the 60s.
 He and half a dozen friends came in from the chill to drink coffee at the Augusta Inn, where they gather daily.
 "A freeze would completely annihilate all of us," Bob Brannon said. The others nodded.

One of them recalled hearing that the jetstream had moved 200 miles south of its usual course and might bring an early, hard winter to this area.
 "That's heavy for on the animals," C. Jones Montague said. "That's a sign of a hard winter." Montague was a farmer and then a policeman before he retired to hunt and fish. He had killed five squirrels in the river bottom the day before.
 The corn sheeks are thick, too," Lindy McAlexander, a young farmer, said from the end of the table. "They say that's another sign of a bad winter."
 Buck Hollingsworth, who retired from farming 10 years ago, nodded and said they could depend on it.
 Early freeze or not, the farmers around here are resigned to a bad year. Julie L. Ellis, president of the Cache River Production-Credit Association, which lends money for crops each spring, said this year's combination of bad weather, poor yields and lagging prices for soybeans and rice could squeeze out as many as 4 per cent of the area's farmers.

 They cannot fall back on cotton, he said, because the same bad weather that affected the soybeans has damaged the cotton. And this in a year when cotton prices are extraordinarily high.
 Rice, the other big crop here, is the final irony. The weather pattern has been good for rice, and yields will be near record levels at many farms. But the price has fallen so low since the government removed acreage restrictions two years ago that farmers will barely be able to recover the cost of producing it, Ellis said.
 He said his institution would do everything possible to help the worst-hit farmers.
 The Production-Credit Association is accustomed to acts of God," he said. "But I think we will see some farmers — some who have been in the business all their lives — this might well be their last year."

US honors wheat developer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington State University scientist Orville Vogel, who developed the Gaines and Nugaine wheat varieties, was among 15 scientists receiving National Medal of Science Awards from President Ford Monday.
 Vogel, who retired from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1973, developed semi-dwarf wheat varieties and supplied the germ plasma that went into wheat breeding.
 His effort helped launch the "green revolution" for feeding the world's hungry.
 Through plantings of the Gaines and Nugaines varieties, it was estimated in 1974 that Washington State farmers realized $274 million in increased production from 1964-72.

Replacement farm land pledged

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — U.S. Sen. James McClure said Monday President Ford has promised to seek suitable farmland for those eastern Idaho farmers who lost their farms to the Teton Dam flood disaster.
 He said he received the assurance while making several appearances in northern Idaho.
 McClure said President Ford responded to his request to explore the possibility of transferring some Energy

Research and Development Administration land in East Idaho for agricultural use.
 A number of possibilities are being explored, McClure said, including the availability of private land. The first meetings are scheduled for Friday in East Idaho on the matter.
 In a communication to McClure, President Ford said, "The administration stands ready to work with you in achieving this objective."
 McClure said President Ford has directed the Department of Interior to undertake a survey of available private land which might be purchased by victims whose farms were destroyed but who want to continue farming.

 Ford told McClure if private land is unavailable, "ERDA is prepared to make some land available to flood victims for farming if we can find a way to accomplish this objective."
 McClure said he would introduce the necessary legislation if it is required and the President assured him of his cooperation.

 He said the President also told him he would direct the Department of Interior to make some land available on a temporary-use permit basis if time is needed to secure congressional approval of the proposed legislation.
 McClure said the meetings later this week in East Idaho would explore all of the various alternatives.

Giant pumpkins abound

FILER — Evidently this is the year of the large pumpkin. Gardners' nationwide have reported raising mammoth pumpkins in the patch and a pair of "twins" which are growing up a fence and now being about

Frank Ridley, Filer, planted a single hill in pumpkins last spring but the plants have taken over his entire garden and are even climbing up his back fence. One of his seven giant pumpkins measured more than 70 inches several weeks ago and was still growing.

Besides the giants, Ridley has a number of small pumpkins in the patch and a pair of "twins" which are growing up a fence and now being about four feet from the ground.

Ridley said one of his pumpkins will go to a nursing home for the patients to enjoy in pies and other desserts, and the rest will go to friends and neighbors.

Harvest progresses

BOISE (UPI) — Favorable weather allowed for rapid progress in the harvest of Idaho crops last week, the State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

The service said harvest of small grains was in the cleanup stage and onion and dry bean harvest was making good progress, although sugar beet harvest was slowed some because it was too warm to pile beets.

The agency also reported livestock continue to be moved from summer range to fall pastures and feedlots, and range conditions continue about normal for this time of year.

Idahoan endorses beef plan

BLISS, Idaho (UPI) — The proposed Beef Market Development Plan is "vital to stabilization of the cattle industry in Idaho" and the nation, the chairman of the Idaho task force for the plan said today.

"We are undertaking an educational program to make every producer in Idaho aware of the details and the importance of total industry participation in the national referendum," said Jim Faulkner of Bliss.

Faulkner said he was convinced it was a positive step which will help give some production, price and marketing stability to one of Idaho's major agricultural components.

He said the plan will provide for consumer education, research, marketing and foreign market development. It would be financed by a voluntary 3 per cent value-added contribution on all cattle transactions.

A national referendum on the plan will take place sometime in the last spring and will be preceded by a registration at local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices. Under terms of the enabling legislation passed by Congress, 50 per cent of those registering must return to vote and two-thirds of those voting must approve the program in order to place it in operation.

Faulkner said he just returned from a westwide regional U.S. Department of Agriculture informational hearing — on the plan and speakers emphasized that "the research and marketing development program is a self-help effort by the industry."

"Our industry has never asked for any favors and it is not asking for any today," he added. "We just want a structure which will allow us to help ourselves."

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Wednesday, Oct. 20, the 241st day of 1976 with 72 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Jupiter, Mercury and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Libra.

American educator John Dewey was born Oct. 20, 1859.

On this day in history: In 1918, Germany accepted American President Woodrow Wilson's terms to end World War I.

In 1944, American troops began a campaign to recapture the island of Leyte in the Philippines.

In 1964, Herbert Hoover, 31st president of the United States, died at the age of 90.

In 1973, President Nixon fired special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox; Attorney General Elliott Richardson and Deputy William French Smith, refusing to dismiss Cox, resigned their posts.

As thought for this day, Herbert Hoover said, "Older men declare war. But it is the youth that must fight and die."

Housewife sues munitions companies

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — A Sweet housewife is suing two munitions firms for $25,121 in damages because a rifle allegedly blew up in her face while she was shooting at a deer.

Stuzanne Longstreet brought the suit in Third District Court against Olin Corp., manufacturer of Winchester firearms, and the Federal Cartridge Corp.

She claims the chamber of a 243 Winchester Model 70 exploded when she fired at a buck in Owyhee County south of Jordan Valley on Oct. 19, 1974 — 19 days after she bought the rifle and cartridge. She alleges negligence on the part of the rifle maker and the maker of the ammunition.

Reds put Yanks in danger of being swept

NEW YORK (UPI) — Using a weapon that Manager Sparky Anderson deplores... The Reds, seeking to become the first National League team since the 1921-22 New York Giants to win back-to-back world titles...

voting its use in the Series and Anderson was so vehemently opposed... "I have not changed my mind," he said. "The DH rule has no place in the game of baseball..."

In the second inning to start out, an infield hit to trigger a three-run rally... Even his starring role, however, left Driessen unimpressed with the designated hitter.

After Mason's homer Zachry was touched for a walk and a single and Anderson went to his bullpen and brought in Will McEnaney... The Yankees' collapse began in the second inning when the Reds' starter Dock Ellis for three runs... John Bench then hit a soft grounder to the right side which kicked off Chambliss' glove...

Embarrassing moment

Martin shows confidence — selects fifth-game starter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yankees Manager Billy Martin was so sure the Cincinnati Reds would not close out the World Series Wednesday night... "I don't think their speed is hurting us that much, it's just their hits are falling in," he said.

"That was the key play," Martin said. "We're not in a very good position, but we've been here before and handled it back... "He was the best on the staff," a substitute Martin said. "I was impressed with his change-up, his control."

CAUGHT LEANING, Mickey Rivers of the Yankees, who started his pro baseball career with the now defunct Magic Valley Cowboys, is picked off first base during world series play Tuesday night.

Weather forecast imperils fourth game

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pair of right-handers, Gary Nolan for the Cincinnati Reds and Ed Figueroa of the New York Yankees, have been named to pitch the fourth game of the World Series at Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

Morgan says Reds don't need sweep to prove themselves

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds took three straight games from the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League playoffs and three in a row from the New York Yankees in the World Series... Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan feels it's a little ridiculous to talk about the Reds needing a four-game sweep to prove themselves.

Morgan is confident Cincinnati will win the series but he doesn't predict it will end Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium... "I really don't think there's any way we're going to lose the series now," he said.

Bold interim coach scraps Detroit's top scorer-kicker

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Tommy Hudspeth, acting with more boldness than the typical interim coach, shook up the Detroit Lions Tuesday by dropping the club's all-time leading scorer, kicker Errol Mann... "I have a great deal of confidence in Benny Ricardo," said the interim coach.

and that helps," Hudspeth said. "I'm surprised we haven't had one blocked this season." Ricardo, 22, beat the Bills, 2017, with a 33-yard field goal in the last three minutes of an exhibition game... "The thing we need is consistency," Hudspeth said.

Massachusetts eyes rowdiness

BOSTON (UPI) — Representatives of the Boston Red Sox, the Boston Celtics, the Boston Bruins and the New England Patriots Tuesday were invited by a state senator for a Friday meeting to discuss ways to curb spectator violence.

Representatives of state, Boston and Northern police were invited to attend the State House meeting... Officials said a police officer was beaten Monday night in one of the parking lots at Schaefer Stadium and his gun was taken away from him.

Powderpuff grid battle Thursday

TWIN FALLS — The annual Twin Falls girls powderpuff-football game will be played at 8 p.m. Thursday at Bruin Stadium... The game is the annual homecoming week festivity, the powderpuff battle pits the junior girls against the senior girls.

TF stays unbeaten in volleyball meet

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls called Tuesday night to trip Buhi and became the only unbeaten team in the district A volleyball tournament... Twin Falls appeared headed for the losers bracket when Buhi took the opening game 15-13 and there were four match-point saves in the second before Twin Falls edged out a 21-25 decision.

Filer vs. Kimberly in 'B' semi-finals

ELEN HAZELTON — Pre-tourney favored Filer and Kimberly gain the championship semi-finals in the southside B valley district tournament Tuesday night... The two favorites will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday night in the windy of a four-game sessions slated for the Valley High school gymnasium.

TWIN FALLS — A double feature is in store for Idaho football fans Thursday night... Due to a snafu in mailing the wrong film here last week, the New Mexico State victory was not shown.

Delaware finds grid lottery less financial boon than anticipated

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Almost half way through its first season, the nation's only legal, state-operated football lottery is falling far below revenue projections.

When the Delaware Football Lottery was based on the optimism of professional football games, managers weeks ago, Delaware officials predicted it would raise an average $109,000 weekly during the 14-week football season, or about $6 million.

But revenues have averaged only $35,000 in the first six weeks. At that rate, the lottery will register total sales of about $700,000, about 70 per cent below projections. The state keeps 27 per cent of the revenue.

"I'm not discouraged about the low volume, but obviously I'd like more," said Lottery Director Peter Simmons.

The lottery has been plagued from the start. The National Football League, claiming the lottery would damage the sport, tried to defeat it in court. An NFL request for a temporary restraining order was denied last August, allowing tickets to go on sale Sept. 1 for the season opener on Sept. 12. Simmons cites several reasons for the low revenue:

—People who are only casual football fans do not have sufficient football expertise to bet. They understand how to play the lottery, but they don't feel they have sufficient knowledge of football to play, said Simmons. "In essence I'm saying they think it is too hard to win."

—Often low payouts. Winnings are determined on a parimutuel basis, depending on the amount of money bet and the number of winners. If the favored teams win, many people collect prizes but the amounts are low. This week, for example, one lottery game paid $4 for every winning $1 bet.

—Limited market. Simmons noted that lotteries usually get about half their income from women, who often are not avid football fans. Many men also do not have great interest in the sport. "Not everybody likes football," said Simmons.

The attractiveness of the illegal sports betting system, Simmons noted that the winnings from the illegal operations are not taxed while state winnings are.

—The NFL suit. "The legal bantering back and forth has kept some people from playing," said Simmons. "There's a fear it may be illegal or that they won't get paid because it is in the courts." Legal questions also hampered lottery advertising in the opening weeks.

The trial on the NFL's lawsuit against the lottery begins Nov. 1.

In an effort to boost the game, Simmons said changes will soon be made that "will make it easier to win."

Players can bet in several versions of the lottery. In one, called the "Touchdown Game," spot spreads must be picked in three, four or five games. In another game, called the "Football Bonus Game," players must pick seven winning teams. Another version, the "All-game Bonus," requires picking 14 winners.

If revenue does not pick up, the state may face a financial pinch. Budget officials anticipated $2 million dollars from the lottery this year but at current rates it may only get about $250,000.

Tiger stadium deal hanging

DETROIT (UPI) — The sale of Tiger Stadium to the city of Detroit for $1 and its subsequently leasing it back to the baseball team for $1 a season may hinge on a government grant of $5 million to renovate the facility.

The city has the request as part of a list of projects totaling $120 million it plans to deliver to federal officials in Chicago next Monday.

The Economic Development Administration then has two months to decide which of the Detroit public works projects to grant federal funds to.

Stuart, O'Leary play

TWIN FALLS — O'Leary will take on Robert Stuart in football at 7 p.m. today at Bruni Stadium in the coveted "victory bell."

Robert Stuart won the first game between the two clubs this year and currently holds the victory bell trophy.

The lightweight will play first, followed by the heavyweight clash for the bell.

Vikings obtain halfback

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings Tuesday acquired one running back in a trade with San Francisco, signed another free agent and put two players on the injured reserve list.

The Vikings acquired running back Sammy Johnson from San Francisco in exchange for wide receiver Jim Lash and signed Ron Groce, a rookie running back from McCalister College, who was cut earlier.

Placed on the injured reserve list were center-guard Scott Anderson and running back Mark Kellar. Anderson had knee surgery last week and Kellar continues to be bothered by an ankle injury.

Kilmer may play

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quarterback Bill Kilmer and four other Washington Redskins were listed Tuesday as probable for action in next Monday night's showdown with the St. Louis Cardinals.

However, coach George Allen was reserving his decision on whether Kilmer, out for two games with a sore shoulder, or his younger backup, Joe Theismann, will be the starter in what Allen termed a "must win" game.

The Redskins, 4-2 and a game behind, confront the co-leaders of their division, the Cardinals and the Dallas Cowboys, in successive games at home. Victories over both would insure Washington at least a three-way tie for the lead in two weeks.

NHL official injured

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — National Hockey League referee Tom Wicks was admitted to Doctors Hospital in Lanham, Md., Tuesday night after being hit in the right eye while officiating a game between the Washington Capitals and the Montreal Canadiens.

"He's got a serious problem," said Capitals' team physician Dr. Vincent Palumbo, "but there's so much swelling it's impossible to tell how bad the injury is. It could be a fracture or a corneal tear. There's bleeding behind the eye."

Wicks, 36, an official with the NHL for 10 years, was hit by Washington's Harvey Bennett with 2:04 to play in the second period as the left wing was vying for a loose puck on Washington ice with Montreal's Doug Risebrough.

Spurs bring 'X' factor into NBA's weak central division

By TOM WHITFIELD
UPI Sports Writer

The Cleveland Cavaliers have found they can win. The Washington Bullets have learned they don't necessarily win because they show up.

And therein lies the groundwork for an interesting season in the Central Division, probably the National Basketball Association's weakest. Most of the quantities are known, but the "X" factor is the San Antonio Spurs, who bring raucous crowds and a freelance offense from the defunct American Basketball Association.

Last season, Cleveland edged the Bullets by one game to win the division, then polished off the Bullets, four games to three, in the first round of the playoffs. Houston, New Orleans and Atlanta finished well down in the pack.

"I hate history," said Washington's Dick Motta, one of four new coaches in the division. "You get paid for what you're going to do tomorrow, not what you did today or what you did yesterday."

Cleveland's Bill Fitch, who publicly feuded with owner Nick Mileti all his desire to switch to Los Angeles, is apparently happy again and glad to be a winner after, some horrendous seasons.

Winners have a challenge and will pay that extra price to improve themselves and to continue winning," he said.

Both teams face that challenge with mostly the same casts. The Bullets are led by center Wes Unseld and forward Elvin Hayes, plus the strong backcourt combination of Phil Chenier and Dave Bing. The major rookie addition is 6-foot-10 center Mitch Kupchak from North Carolina.

Cleveland has a healthy Austin Carr, Jim Cleamons and 10-year veteran Dick Snyder in the backcourt, with Bobby "Bingo" Smith and Jim Brewer at forwards. Six-foot-11 center Jim Chones is still hampered by a swollen foot, sufered in the playoffs, which means that veteran Nate Thurmond will have to log more time in the lineup.

Tom Nissalke, who succeeded John Egan at the helm of the Houston Rockets, promises he won't let friendships get in the way of winning.

"We'll have to be more physical, so we don't get pushed around," he said. "You can't be a consistent winner on the road unless you have hard-nosed guys."

The Rockets have Mike Newlin, a tough and underrated guard, and speedy Calvin Murphy in the backcourt, with Rudy Tomjanovich and John Johnson at forward and 7-footer Kevin Kunnert at center. Top draft choice John Lucas from Maryland, a guard, also fits in Nissalke's plans.

New Atlanta coach Hubie Brown passed up impressive collegiate centers Leon Douglas and Robert Parish in the draft, but acquired 6-foot-10 Randy Denton from the New York Knicks for a draft choice. Other additions are forward Joe Meriwether from Houston and guard Geoff Petrie from Portland, who will miss the first two or three weeks of the season recovering from knee surgery.

Top holdovers are former all-pro Lou Hudson and small forward John Drew.

The New Orleans Jazz center Bill Van Breda Kolff, are expecting big improvement in the club's third season with the addition of guard Gail Goodrich. The only stumbling block could be a stretch midway through the season where they are forced to play 19 of 23 games on the road.

Of course, the Jazz employ "Pistol" Pete Maravich, who has a 23.9 point per game average was the best in the division last year.

The Spurs, who boast that their arena is the noisiest in the league, are led by a pair of quality forwards who could play in any league—George Gervin and Larry Kennen. Gervin,

Reds favored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder has listed game four of the World Series Wednesday night as even between the Cincinnati Reds and the home team New York Yankees, but lists the odds as 2-1 against New York winning the next four games to capture the Series.

Buff coach starts Big 8 row by locking media out

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — University of Colorado football coach Bill Mallory believes in a free press—free of anything that he does not want reported.

Ever since he arrived at the Boulder, Colo., campus almost three years ago, he has tried to tell the media what it could say. If a writer or broadcaster ignored Mallory's directions and published something about a player who quit the team, Mallory would lecture the journalist about "being part of our team." He would order them to "write about the good things, not the bad things, or don't come around." Mallory has excluded members of the media from football functions because of what they have written.

But his favorite play is to bar the media from talking with players on his football team following a defeat—a move which the seven other Big Eight coaches, along with the media, feel is wrong.

The hub on talking to players actually began with the last game of the 1974 season—Mallory's first year. But it was a subtle move until Colorado's 24-12 loss to Nebraska Oct. 2.

After the season-ending loss at Kansas State in 1974 and Colorado's defeats at Oklahoma and Nebraska last year as well as a season-opening loss at Texas Tech this year, Mallory kept the locker room shut until his players had time to shower and get on the team bus.

But the lockout went on home after and while Mallory kept the locker room shut for 25 minutes after the game, most of the players were still around when the doors were opened. Having never been told the locker room was off limits, several reporters chose to talk to players instead of listening to Mallory's postmortem and that was where the trouble started.

One of Mallory's assistants grabbed a notebook out of a writer's hands and ripped it up. The coach later threatened to hit another writer.

"After a loss I feel I will do the talking for my players because I feel I can handle the situation better than they can," said Mallory, who has been known to throw temper tantrums when he was asked questions he did not like. "It is tough enough for me to talk after a loss, and I'm 23 years older than most of them."

While other Big Eight coaches say they can sympathize with Mallory none of them will agree with his policy.

"Personally I'd rather not have anybody in the locker room but I know I'm not in a position to do that," said Iowa State coach Earle Bruce, a former assistant with Mallory to Woody Hayes at Ohio State. "We need the publicity. If you are going to take the slaps on the back you are going to have to take the kicks in the rear."

Kansas State coach Ellis Rainsberger, whose team is 1-5 this year and did not win a Big Eight game last year, agreed with Bruce.

"You are taking something away from the rights of most fans by doing that," said Rainsberger. "That is the opportunity of reporters to cover the game and relay the feelings of people involved in the game."

Kansas' Bud Moore and Missouri's Al Onofrio said they would never consider closing their locker room to the media.

"We realize the press has a job to do and we want to try and cooperate with them," said Moore. "It's not just a few bull-games, but you haven't closed our locker room. It is part of our job. The players are going to accept good publicity so they are going to have to take it when things go bad."

And Onofrio added: "There have been times when I wished I didn't let anyone in but over the years I am sure the pluses outweigh the minuses. We talk to the press ahead of time and we talk to them after. Either your locker room has to be open all the time or closed all the time."

Buffalo purchases Malone

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Braves, in a move which they hope will strengthen their rebounding Tuesday acquired 6-11 forward Moses Malone from the Portland Trail Blazers.

Malone will join Bob McAdoo, last season's leading scorer in the National Basketball Association. John Shumate and rookie Adrian Dantley, Buffalo's top draft choice, on the Braves' front line.

"He's one of the great young centers in the game today," Braves General Manager Bob MacKinnon said after the deal was announced.

The Braves will give the Trail Blazers their top selection in the 1976 college draft and will make $200,000 payments to Portland totaling $232,000.

The 215-pound Malone, who played forward for the New York Stars of the now-defunct American Basketball Association last season, is expected to report to the Braves for a physical examination Wednesday and is expected to be in uniform when the Braves open their regular season Thursday night at Milwaukee.

"He's very strong on the offensive boards," MacKinnon said, adding that Malone can play either forward or center. "He's a potential NBA super star and should be pushing for starting position."

Malone could also provide the Braves with immediate help. McAdoo is suffering from a strained back and is listed as "questionable" for the Milwaukee game.

Malone, 22, who went straight from high school to the pros when he joined Utah in 1974, was picked by the Trail Blazers in the NBA dispersal draft. He was having trouble breaking into the starting lineup against veterans Bill Walton and Maurice Lucas.

The Braves scooped Portland's last pre-season game against Seattle when Malone, playing only 26 minutes, scored 24 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Buffalo reportedly renegotiated Malone's contract.

A Braves spokesman said negotiations for Malone "lasted three months" and added that other teams bidding for Malone were the New York Knicks, the Houston Rockets and the Denver Nuggets.

The spokesman said the Braves would pay Portland in two cash installments. The Trail Blazers' draft $350,000 for Malone in the dispersal draft and already have made one payment to the league.

Carolyn Dunn
Consumer and Customer Advocate with the P-R-Idental Smith's Food King

A top quality expert for a major canned foods company maintains that without the presence of the obvious warning signals such as a leaky or bulging can, customers can be generally assured that any brand of canned fruits and vegetables is safe and wholesome. The difference is in the eating quality and the great range of flavor, color, aroma, texture that comes from produce in different stages of ripeness individually selected.

When you first open the can, take a good deep sniff. The aroma should be fresh and smell like the food in the can. Newly opened, the canel food should appear well-filled with product and packing liquid. Cramping loads in can only damage the food. The best guide is your own experienced eye. Liquid should be one-fourth to one-half inches away from the top.

Each individual must make his or her own taste test, and the old advice on using the liquid from canned vegetables in souces and gravies still applies. It's nutritious. If you have any questions call me on the roof phone. We want to be your favorite store.
