Judge's ruling favors teachers

By SHANE O'NEILL Times-News writer RUPERT — Minidoka teachers won a significant victory last week when a district court judge ruled in favor of fact-finding in stalled negotiations with the school board.

Fifth District Court Judge Sherman Bellwood ruled in favor of the Minidoka County Education Association (MCEA) in ordering the Minidoka school board and the bargaining agent for the teachers to proceed with the fact-finding elements of a procedural agreement signed by the two parties in 1974.

The ruling will not affect contracts for this school year, however. Bellwood ruled that any issues settled between the two parties during the fact-finding will not pertain to contracts already signed.

The key victory won by teachers was Bellwood's decision that the May 1 deadline set out in the procedural agreement for conclusion of negotiations does not include processes designated to follow a declaration of impasse.

The MCEA contended the May 1 deadline should apply only to direct negotiations and not to the mediation and fact-finding steps.

The district argued that all steps were part of the entire negotiating process upon which the May 1 deadline was set and that the district's budget-making deadline of July 1 would be disrupted by extending the post-impasse steps beyond that date.

In issuing "substantial findings of fact and conclusions of law," Bellwood ruled that neither party had negotiated in bad faith, a charge leveled by both sides in the court action brought by the MCEA.

That ruling came despite Bellwood's finding that the teachers had insisted on negotiating on non-negotiable items and that the school district had unilaterally set salaries, contrary to the procedural agreement, after the MCEA declared an impasse.

Teacher negotiations in the Minidoka district ended on May 3, two days after the deadline, as the MCEA team issued a formal notice of impasse during a session mutually agreed upon for the sole purpose of discussing salaries.

The school board met the following day and adopted a salary schedule with basically a 6 per cent increase over the 1975-76 figures, as compared with a hike of about 14 per cent sought by teachers.

The MCEA filed suit seeking to have the post-impasse procedures brought into play.

However, both parties later stipulated that mediation would be fruitless and the MCEA pressed for a court order to begin fact-finding.

Teachers now are working under the salary schedule adopted by the board on May 4.

Many returned signed contracts to the district only through an MCEA representative on the final day of an already-extended deadline.

Accompanying those contracts was a cover letter stating that the signatures did not waive any items that might be included by subsequent negotiation procedures.

Bellwood's order apparently eliminates that reservation on this year's contracts.

"It will not be declared that the individual teacher contracts heretofore issued and returned to (the school district) will be deemed superseded or modified to include the terms of any master-agreement resulting from complete compliance with the proceedings under the procedural agreement and the professional-negotiation-statutes," Bellwood ruled.

Bellwood's order directed MCEA attorney Robert Huntley W. Pocatello, to prepare a judgment for the court's signature.

Either party could appeal the ruling.

Wives foil extortion

DETROIT (UPI) — Three cool ladies subdued a moment of fear long enough to make a telephone call and foil extortion attempts by callers claiming to have kidnapped their husbands, police said Saturday.

Police said three unidentified women received calls Friday from a man who said he wanted $3,000 in small denomination bills from each for the safe return of their husbands. Each of the women called her husband and learned he was safely at work.

"An obscene phone call, you know what to do," said one woman, "but this was not the kind of thing I expected. I was ready to get nasty and hang up. But I had the feeling he might know us and that there was a possibility, so I listened. When I found out my husband was at work, I just got angry that someone was trying to do this to us."

Another woman said she ran to a neighbor's house to call her husband and then police to prevent abduction of her entire family.

Investigators said they weren't sure how many men were involved in the scheme, but in each case the women said an articulate man claimed that four others were involved in the nonexistent abductions.

The women lived in different parts of the city. But each last name begins with a "C," leading police to believe the names were selected from a telephone directory. All three calls were placed within a span of 30 minutes.

Two of the women, however, said the caller seemed to know details about their husbands' cars or the family's daily routine.

Sophisticates join Reds

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Sophisticated Thai urbanites have joined the antigovernment Communist movement, giving an impetus to the previously all-rural insurgency.

Former Army Col. Khaisang Sukai, a Socialist-party member and one of Thailand's legislators, announced that he and three other Socialists are joining the movement to overthrow the new government of Thailand.

This announcement Friday came on the Voice of the People of Thailand radio, the official Communist station headquartered along the border with China, and was made available Saturday.

He referred to the government of Prime Minister Thanin Kraivichien, installed Friday, as "the puppet clique" of the military.

Mourners fired on

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South African riot squads Saturday opened fire on black mourners who turned a schoolgirl's funeral in the black ghetto of Soweto into a demonstration, killing one black demonstrator and wounding another.

Assistant police commissioner in charge of nationwide riot control, Maj. Gen. David Kriel, said the police "acted in self defense" to ward off a crowd of about 1,000 demonstrators who refused to disperse during the wake of the black girl's funeral.

Kriel said the incident, in the heart of the all-black suburb of Soweto 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg, was the worst since mid-September when police last reported killing rioters during sustained anti-government unrest sweeping South Africa.

Cease-fire endangered

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian militiamen using Israeli tanks and armored cars captured two more Moslem villages in south Lebanon Saturday in an offensive that could scuttle the 55th cease-fire in the civil war.

Witnesses said Christians using armored vehicles with Hebrew markings stormed the villages of Al Khiyam and Ebel El Sakis, about three miles southeast of the strategic town of Marjayoun near the Israeli border.

Irish marchers clash

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Peace marchers and supporters of the Irish Republican Army clashed Saturday in a bloody hour-long melee in which scores were injured.

At one point supporters of the militant Provisional wing of the IRA trapped a large number of peace marchers — most of them women and children — inside a garage. When the melee ended, the littered pavement outside the garage was streaked with blood.

Perhaps 9,000 persons were involved in the fighting. For most of it police and British army forces made no attempt to intervene.

Price hike protested

ROME (UPI) — Police Saturday battled demonstrators in Rome and in the industrial centers of Milan and Turin to break up the latest series of protests against price increases imposed by the government to counter inflation.

Young rightists protesting the austerity measures swarmed throughout downtown Rome, frightening tourists and causing traffic jams.

Two boys, TF woman hurt in collision at Hansen

HANSEN — Two young boys and a Twin Falls woman were seriously injured in a two-car accident north of here Saturday afternoon.

Idaho State Police officer, Frank Mogensen, said the injured include the driver, Jerry Kalas, 15, and his young brother, Chris Kalas, 13, both of Twin Falls, and Frances Andersen, 43, Twin Falls, all with serious injuries.

Driver of the second vehicle, Maurice Whitmore, Twin Falls, 35, was treated at the hospital for less serious injuries.

Officer Mogensen said the vehicle driven by young Kalas was traveling east on a county road and the Whitmore vehicle was southbound on another county road. Mogensen said Kalas told him he stopped at a stop sign and then pulled into the through road without seeing the approaching vehicle. The accident occurred shortly after 3 p.m. one mile north of Hansen.

The impact threw the Kalas vehicle into a nearby field after the two vehicles crashed into a utility pole following the initial impact. The officer said power lines snapped and were lying across the two vehicles, but somehow occupants escaped being electrocuted.

Mogensen said the young driver had no license and the vehicle he was driving was improperly licensed. He said no citations have been issued but investigation is continuing.

State officer Jerry Altherton assisted with the accident investigation. Magie Valley Memorial Hospital officials said Chris Kalas was admitted and a fractured jaw and cuts and bruises. Others were still under examination late Saturday.

Ms. Anderson was a passenger in the Whitmore vehicle. They were returning from Burley, where they are both employed in a potato processing plant.

Kress tells tax returns

TWIN FALLS — In a gesture of openness, Democratic candidate for second district Congressman Stan Kress released his federal income tax returns for the past nine years Thursday.

The matter of income tax has become controversial issue in the second district race when it was reported that Kress' opponent, Rep. George Hansen, filed his income tax late eight out of the past 10 years and only filed his 1975 tax this last week.

Kress' income tax returns from 1967 to 1975 have been made public.

For the most recent tax year, 1975, Kress paid $1,051 taxes on his income of $29,229.

For the other years, Kress' income and taxes are: 1967, $6,786; 1970, $8,815; 1964, 1969, $10,430; 1939; 1970, $10,266; 1982; 1971, $12,100; 1950; 1972, $12,926; 1984; 1973, $15,224; 1974, $17,818; 1983.

Late filing said criminal violation

By KEN HODGE Times-News writer

BOISE — An Internal Revenue Service (IRS) official Friday asserted willful failure to file income tax returns on time is a criminal violation of IRS code no matter how much tax refund is due the filer.

The statement came in connection with the reported late filing of income tax returns by Cong. George Hansen and statements made by several persons about the controversial situation.

"No matter how much of a refund a taxpayer has coming, he must file a return annually," IRS District Director Howard T. Martin said.

"And on or before the prescribed date," Martin's statement was apparently intended to refute a previous statement by another IRS employee, Paul Des Fosses, who said taxpayers had three years to file tax returns if they had a refund coming.

Des Fosses, at a Thursday night debate in Pocatello between Democratic candidate Stan Kress and incumbent Republican Hansen, said taxpayers have up to three years to file tax returns if they have a refund coming.

Statements made during the controversial discussion of Hansen's failure to file returns are now being investigated, according to Martin.

In a news release from the Boise office of the IRS, Martin pointed an accusing finger at "other misleading and unfounded statements relating to federal income tax filing requirements and IRS policies" and said they are being investigated for possible federal violation.

At the Thursday night debates, Stan Kress cited an Idaho State Journal editorial which demanded Hansen answer 7 questions about his income tax returns, according to Lyle Olson, managing editor of the Journal.

Olson said a group of Hansen supporters picketed the Journal offices Friday afternoon to protest the editorial which they called too liberal.

"They said there should either be another paper in town or the Journal should carry a conservative person on its editorial staff," Olson said.

According to Olson, Dean Funk, a Hansen supporter and leader of the picketers, claimed the Journal had been unfair to Hansen.

Olson said the editorial, Kress referred to Thursday night was based on an early story by the Lewiston Morning Tribune which reported Hansen had filed 1966-71 tax returns late and as of Oct. 15, the Congressman had not yet filed a 1975 return.

Hansen claimed the Tribune lacked credibility.

In return, the publisher of the Tribune issued a rebuttal to Hansen's statement saying the Congressman had destroyed his own credibility.

It also reported Hansen had filed his 1975 income tax returns by Thursday.

Woman's appearance indicate own self appraisal

By NANCY KELLEHER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "As Christian women it is your responsibility to look good. You are the world's Bible," says Carol Brockway to the women attending her Image of Loveliness class.

Through the Image of Loveliness course, a woman is taught to develop her physical characteristics, walking posture, wardrobe and hairstyles along with the art of conversation and etiquette.

All this is accomplished through lectures and demonstrations in Mrs. Brockway's home. A former model and graduate of John Robert Powers' modeling school, Denver, Mrs. Brockway began teaching Image of Loveliness in Twin Falls one year ago. She took a teachers' class in order to qualify to teach the course.

The name of the course is derived from a passage in Genesis. We are made "in the image of God," thus, as the advertising literature for the course explains, "We should be as lovely as possible — the Image of Loveliness."

Underlying all the fashion facts is the theme of glamor mandated by Christian teachings, justifying to enrolls a preoccupation with self-image.

Mrs. Brockway tells the women, "A woman's appearance is her introduction to the world. Your appearance is the strongest evidence of your appraisal of yourself. Present yourself in a way that makes the world believe in you, and you will believe in yourself."

Emphasis is placed on "always presenting one's best appearance, because once a woman has convinced in her everyday mode of grooming she can put aside self-consciousness.

"You must try to get self confidence," urges Mrs. Brockway, "then you can concentrate on others instead of on yourself."

The improvement course, open to women of all ages, includes both day and night classes so that women may fit the course into their personal schedules.

Initially Mrs. Brockway advertised her class through the media. Now she depends mostly on referrals for students. She began a recent class by telling the group:

"Bring in the names of those interested in the class, please."

A free class on posture and body movement serves as an introduction to the course.

If the women present are interested in continuing the course, they may enroll at the conclusion of this free lesson. In its entirety, the course consists of eight lessons, ranging in subject from diet and exercise to conversation and hands. A professional in the field is brought in for the lesson on hair styling and care, and for the makeup and skin care class. (Continued on p. 6)

Abortion unconstitutional

NEW YORK (UPI) — A law barring the use of federal Medicaid money for abortions is unconstitutional because it discriminates against women who cannot afford the full cost of the operation, a U.S. District Court judge has ruled.

A spokeswoman for New York Right-to-Life said the anti-abortion group would probably appeal Dooling's ruling.

The decision by Judge John F. Dooling Friday struck down the restriction Congress had tacked on to a $56.6 billion appropriation for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

But Dooling said, "It is idle to suggest that the withdrawal of federal support and the lead the federal government has sought to take will not result in renewed efforts by the states to deny the needed medical assistance in these cases."

Scientists petition against Nuke ballot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly 50,000 engineers and scientists have signed a statement urging voters turn down proposals appearing on the Nov. 2 ballot in six states that would limit the growth of nuclear energy.

The National Society of Professional Engineers said Friday that it initiated the signature drive "to demonstrate the confidence engineers and scientists have in nuclear energy as an essential source of power."

Edward E. Slawter of Columbus, Ohio, said the statement was aimed at proposals appearing on the state ballot in Arizona, Colorado, Montana, Ohio, Oregon and Washington.

the six anti-nuclear proposals are similar to, but less stringent than, an initiative that was rejected by California voters in that state's June primary election. They generally would require safety certification and insurance steps that the nuclear industry fears would prevent new atomic power installations.

"Every day our country becomes more and more dependent on foreign nations for our energy resources," said the statement, which was signed by 49,777 engineers and scientists.

Teenagers smash, burn albums of rock music

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — A small group of teenagers stood around a bonfire, singing and praying Friday night and then smashed and burned hundreds of dollars worth of record albums by rock music stars because they contained lyrics about sex, drugs and rebellion.

"Most Christians are not aware that secular music is poison," said the Rev. Darryl Faulk, youth pastor of the Capital Assembly of God, Rev. Faulk, 21, told the group. "I have met few people who are willing to give up their music for the Lord."

As the fire burned in a trash can in the parking lot of the church, the jackets of record albums were tossed into the flames by one youngster. After the prayer, the record albums themselves were tossed to the asphalt, stomped on by some of these present white other youngsters twisted and broke the records with their hands.

"There were about 60 records turned in by the junior high and high school students which featured such artists as the Elton John, Alice Cooper, Blood, Sweat and Tears, Elvis Presley and comedians Bill Cosby and Flip Wilson.

On the Cosby record, The Rev. Faulk said, "He (Cosby) tells dirty jokes and we don't like dirty jokes." He called Alice Cooper a "freak" and his statement was greeted with applause from the youngsters.

The minister complained Comedian Flip (The Devil Made Me Do It) Wilson, gives too much publicity to the devil.

Rev. Faulk has been conducting a seminar on turning the youngsters to Christian music which he says is positive. Kids listen an average of three hours a day to records and it is one of the hardest things to turn the youth away from these to the Lord, the minister said.

He said Satan influenced the secular rock music and the artists displayed a "sinful life style."

Dressed in jeans and a plaid jacket, Rev. Faulk praised the youngsters for surrendering their record collections, then directed the group of about 20 to stand around the fire and hold hands. He led them in two hymns and then in a prayer in which he said these record stars, who sang about dope, and sex and rebellion, would be signing the praises for Christ, if they could only find peace.

"People work and follow after them and I think it is sad," he said.

Lee Hicks, a 17-year-old high school junior, had turned in about $100 worth of Elvis Presley records whose lyrics he called sinful. He said he purchased them over a several year period but then realized they were non-Christian.

Steve Hayes, 19, unemployed who wants to go into the ministry, says music played a big part in his high school days but when he got the call to the Lord, he had to surrender his secular music.

The Rev. Faulk agreed the ceremony was like book burning. "But I would do the same thing with sex books and books about the occult."

This is the second year he has taught a class on switching to Christian music and it has been more successful.

"Next year I hope we will be able to burn $2,000 worth of records," he said, as the fire buzzed and the records were smashed into small pieces.

Arizona eyed for solar plant

PHOENIX (UPI) — Arizona is one of three states being considered as the construction site of the nation's first solar electric power plant, it was announced Friday.

California and Texas also are being considered for the experimental, 10,000 kilowatt plant.

If Arizona is chosen, the plant will be built by the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, in cooperation with the Arizona Solar Power Project. Gila Bend has been recommended as the plant site.

Arizona Public Service Co., the Salt River Project and Tucson Gas & Electric Co., formed the Arizona Solar Power Project in an effort to accelerate development of solar electric generation in Arizona.

Joining the three utilities in the proposal as potential subcontractors are the Westinghouse Electric Corp., and the architectural and engineering firm of Gibbs and Hill, Inc.

"ERDA's selection of Arizona as a finalist in the project further confirms our belief in Arizona's potential to lead the nation in solar energy development," said Keith Tierley, APS president.

"We feel one step closer to developing an energy source that is one of our state's most vital natural resources," he said.

ERDA officials plan to inspect the suggested Gila Bend site next month. The state chosen for the plant will be announced in January, and construction is expected to begin in mid-September.

The leaders of the 3.6-million member church let their opposition to ratification be known in 1975 while ERA was under consideration in many state legislatures.

But their statement, made 11 days before the Nov. 2 general election, was the first public stand taken by Church President Spencer Kimball, 81, and his two counselors — the only Mormons who can officially commit the church to a policy position.

"There have been injustices to women before the law and in society generally," they said. "These we deplore. There are additional rights to which women are entitled."

"However, we firmly believe that the Equal Rights Amendment is not the answer."

Trampoline sale cited by writer

Editor, Times-News: Do you know that the Twin Falls School District has sold the school's trampolines? The students are not going to have the motor coordination and physical fitness gained from trampoline exercises. They say the insurance companies won't insure the school. There has never been an injury on the trampolines in the Twin Falls Schools. There have been lots of injuries in football. They still play football, but the students are denied the opportunity to develop physical coordination and the awareness of space because someone sitting behind a desk says I isn't safe. The insurance companies are throwing our kids out of school and now telling them what they can learn in school. Why? Why don't the boys have competitive gymnastics? The girls have it, but it isn't offered to the boys in junior high school. This is the time the boys are beginning to grow and they need all the coordination exercises they can get. The Olympics demonstrated the great body building and physical development that gymnastics gives young people. We can have gladiator sports, but we can't offer our young people training that really helps motor coordination and physical strength. There is something wrong! What can be done about it? Find out! Corder supporter recollects

Editor, Times-News: I recently signed a published petition supporting Sheriff Paul Corder. I have never met Paul Corder, but when a friend of mine came to my house and asked if I would care to sign a petition in his favor, I did not hesitate. I had already formed the opinion that some element of the society had decided that Sheriff Paul Corder had to go. The first job I held when I was discharged from the Air Force following World War II was Deputy Sheriff in Twin Falls County. I served under a newly elected Sheriff that was as honest and dedicated as any person that has ever held the position. However, this man was neither a diplomat nor a politician. He ran for election on a platform that he would enforce all of the laws in all of Twin Falls County. He construed that the County included even the sacred ground surrounded by the boundaries of the City of Twin Falls. The Sheriff warned the well entrenched Twin Falls Police Department that they would close down the flourishing illegal punch bars, public poker games, and liquor by the drink bars or he would close the bars himself. They didn't and he did. Needless to say, he created some instant and influential enemies, not the least of which was the Editor of the local newspaper. All accounts of the Sheriff's activities from that day forward were reported in a negative manner. Block ads were run in the local paper not naming but directed at the Sheriff questioning his integrity. The Sheriff's enemies prevailed and he was defeated for re-election in a close race. I don't know if Sheriff Corder's problems are in any way comparable to the facts I have just stated. I do want to point out, however, that an honest and dedicated man can be ruined by insinuation and false information even in Twin Falls County for it has happened here before. DWIGHT SHAW Twin Falls

Kress support from labor hit

Editor, Times-News: Does Idaho want a representative who is beholden to big labor unions for his congressional seat? About half of Stan Kress' contributions have come from organized labor. Only $5,123 of the $33,362 in his campaign check have come from individual contributions. The average size contribution is about $250. I would say that is a deplorable scoundrel to the people of Idaho. Only 14,000 union members live in the second congressional district, so union leaders can't think that member's dues can bring a return on their investment. It is for no other reason than to defeat our conservative Congressman George Hansen, whose votes cannot be bought, and who opposes the powerful monopolistic unions. They always contribute to the candidate they have good reason to believe they can control. George Hansen's average contribution is $25, and they come from thousands of individuals and small private businesses. Naturally, these thousands of people, contributing to his election, who do not have to be reported or named, have the Kress supporters and big unions in a dither, as they try to find a flaw in Congressman Hansen's activities. Just as unions' big money doesn't buy Congressman Hansen's vote, it must not influence our vote. His 100 per cent constitutional voting average in Congress should speak for itself and also guide us in our voting at the polls.

Hansen tax charges hit

Editor, Times-News: The vast majority of the Idaho electorate are mature, well-informed citizens who are for the most part, reluctant to dignify the cheap, slanted editorials of the leading Idaho newspapers by written reply or verbal response. However, your latest ludicrous attempt to injure the credibility of Rep. George Hansen with regards to his personal income tax filing, cries out for clear and factual reply. The facts are: (a) Mr. Hansen's federal income taxes are paid current even to last month. (b) At filing time he submitted the IRS approved "Automatic Extension" documents which were entirely acceptable by the IRS, a perfectly legal consideration available to any taxpayer. (c) The Internal Revenue Service has no claim against Congressman Hansen for non-payment of taxes. I have been an income tax consultant for the past 12 years having filed returns for businessmen, public employees, professional men and women, farmers, and general laborers, and I have found that the IRS "Automatic Extension" provision has been used in all categories. On Nov. 2, Congressman Hansen will be re-elected to the United States Congress by the responsible citizens of this great state in spite of all other prejudiced and irresponsible allegations by those opposed to the basic freedom philosophy of Congressman Hansen.

Writers say George good for Idaho

MRS. MABEL DORAMUS Jerome.

Writer says marijuana Communist plot

Editor, Times-News: Yes, as expected -- the next step in tearing down the morale of the American people so there can be a Communist takeover. At first, the cry by the Mafia was "Legalize marijuana" and they are now trying their hand at doing the same thing to the hard hat -- heroin. I am referring to the article in the Sunday-Oct-17, Times-News entitled: "Easter Heroin Penalty" in which it stated that some soft-headed advisers to both presidential candidates are advocating legalizing this brain destroyer. The theme seems to be "protect the poor user." I wonder how many people realize that without the consumer, there would be no traffickers? No consumers -- no market -- no business. It's as simple as that -- dope traffic is a business and without the consumer, there would be no business. Why then protect this illegal source of revenue? For my part, I have no sympathy for the addict. Most of them got that way by choice and have no intention of changing their habit. I know a lot of them might want to quit, but no one will ever convince me that deep down these people really want to kick the habit. At least, in 99 per cent of the cases. There is an old saying -- "Once a junkie, always a junkie." I say: "Lock the junkie up where he can't buy the stuff, and when a trafficker is caught, make the penalty so severe that the pushers and traffickers will do a lot of thinking before getting into the business -- like a minimum of a 20-year sentence for the first offense and death for the second offense. If these penalties seem a little steep, consider that these people (the drug traffickers) are either knowingly or unknowingly undermining the will of the American people to protect our government and way of life. We can't afford to have Moscow or Peking take over in the position. Let it be: "People might ask: "What do you know about communism and the way of life behind the Iron Curtain?" The answer is: "Not much, but I did spend the greater part of 41 years of my life sailing all over the world; including one trip behind the Iron Curtain. I spent nearly a month running all over the Black Sea. I realize that a month is not much time for one to draw a conclusion on any form of government, but in my opinion, my time there was more than ample for anybody to draw a conclusion of life in that area. My evaluation was: "The Soviet Union is a great place to live if you think you would like life in the penitentiary." I've never been in the penitentiary, but if it is anything like the Soviet Union, I have no desire to go there. Getting back to the subject of dope, one wonders when our lawmakers will get around to making laws for the protection of the honest citizen instead of the criminal. I have been told that the way most criminal laws are now set up, one can be caught red-handed committing a crime and a smart lawyer can have him back on the street in a very short time. If this is true, one has to assume that the Mafia lobby must be pretty strong among our lawmakers. If our government and way of life is to survive, the American people are going to have to awaken and correct this flaw. How? We might begin by going to the polls and voting. I hope the Times-News will do me the courtesy of printing this letter.

RALPH W. CRONER Fairfield

Editor, Times-News: In reply to the question, "Is George good for Idaho?" we would emphatically reply, "Yes. George Hansen is good for Idaho," and following are a few reasons why he represents Idaho well in Congress. Congressman Hansen will not compromise correct principles for expedient political gains. George is a statesman and not a politician. He realizes that to compromise with unconstitutional bills and issues like EPA, OSLA and gun controls he would be contributing to the ultimate destruction of our Constitutional government. Compromise has resulted in 4/5 of the world's population to now live in slavery under some form of socialist dictatorship. He opposes more federal spending because the budget deficits are causing the inflationary pressures that effect every American especially those on fixed retirement incomes. Congressman Hansen and a group of Americanist Congressmen exert much more influence on the rest of Congress than their numbers would suggest. This is why organized labor is so anxious to have George removed. They will use any kind of witch-hunt tactic to get their liberal elected. George Meany wants a veto-proof Congress. George Hansen will not play ball. Apparently, George's opponent has already committed himself to help Meany as the labor unions are contributing heavily to Hansen's opponent. Congressman Hansen has rightly opposed the bureaucratic monsters proposed by the Consumer Federation of America, Ralph Nader, the father of EPA and such energy wasting devices as the smog control system, is on the board of Consumer Reports magazine, and it is his group that largely makes proposals for further ridiculous controls of our personal freedoms and makes everything more costly to buy. Idaho citizens are ahead of the nation in realizing that big government controls and deficit spending must be stopped. When other states elect a majority of statesmen like George Hansen to Congress then and only then will the principles of free enterprise return to our Constitutional Republic. Congressman Hansen has worked hard for those citizens that appreciate retaining and preserving their individual liberty. He deserves our continued support and votes during the upcoming election. MR. AND MRS. ADRIAN L. AARP Twin Falls

Hansen inlaw hits issue avoidance

Dear Editor: In all these personal attacks assailing George Hansen's (my brother-in-law) finances and tax problems -- perhaps we overlook the bulk of them are associated with his own contribution to his elections and the conservative cause. An editorial out of Twin Falls printed here (Idaho State Journal 10/10/76) about his being prosecuted for late filing -- perhaps it should have been mentioned that George was the only candidate prosecuted of many who had similarly late-filed. As Mr. Meany seeks a "veto-proof" congress it might be noted, though Jon didn't, that he is secretary of the Building Trades Council and President of the Pocatello Electricians Union. Mr. Kress says he doesn't buy all the welfare stations, gun control, abortion on demand, etc., of the Democratic Platform -- labeled "their contract with the people." I am reminded of the Democratic counsel to the effect that to get along in Washington, you must go along. One must assume those "moderate" Republicans supporting Kress also effectively endorse his liberal platform. The more personal the attacks become in this election, the more obvious it is that the major issues are being avoided. R. D. YESSERT Pocatello

Late tax talk amazes

Editor, Times-News: I have been very amazed at the publicity that has been given to the late income tax filings of our Rep. George Hansen. I will agree that late filings are not the best examples a congressman can give to the public, but on the other hand it is truly a personal matter for Rep. Hansen. It has absolutely nothing to do with his performance as a congressman. When it comes to discussing something as important as our legislators I wish the Times-News would employ unbiased reporters. It is possible for any reporter to get an adverse reaction out of the public by asking the proper questions. This is especially true if the public bases their replies on a poorly reported subject and they have not yet taken the time to find out the whole story or to think the whole situation through. I am sure that Chris Peck must be wearing a paper sack over his head because of his obviously stunted suggestions. I am also surprised that he thinks the public is so dumb as not to see these one-sided implications. Now, I would like to ask the voting public to please take the time to objectively and seriously think through what is happening. Remember, "tax filings" may represent tax payments but it also may represent tax refunds. Please judge Rep. Hansen by his (me common sense voting record and not by some off-beat issue. MRS. G. ## Ali threatens to tell his side

CHICAGO (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali Saturday threatened to "take the other side" of the story of his marital problems with his wife Khalilah Ali because of what he described as the "onesided and distorted" publicity he has received.

Khalilah Ali, who has been married to Ali for nine years sued him for divorce earlier this year on grounds of adultery.

All has admitted that he is the father of a child born by another woman, Veronica Porsche.

In a long, rambling press release, Ali said, "Now I think it is time for me to let you know, my public and my fans, that there are two sides to the story."

But he didn't elaborate on his version of the controversy beyond saying that "like myself" his wife, who is also a Black Muslim, "makes mistakes. She's not perfect, but we can all be forgiven by man and God."

He said the publicity his wife had "gained (in filing her divorce suit) ... has been so distorted and so one-sided."

But he praised her for "doing so much for the black woman in America and the cause of Islam. I have great respect for her as a sister in religion and as the mother of my beautiful children."

All said, "I have deliberately remained silent because I know that she has to rear my children, she must maintain the good image she has built up in the public."

But he said, "Again my heart goes out to Veronica who has suffered so much ridicule and slander."

"I pray to God that I will not be forced to tell the other side because after all, there are two sides to every controversy," All said. "I do not want to engage in mud slinging and garbage dropping but the world must know that there is another side in the marital dispute of Muhammad Ali and Khalilah Ali."

New bomber flown

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — Secretary of the Air Force Thomas C. Reed took a flight on the new B1 bomber Saturday, observing operational capabilities and flying characteristics as the aircraft accelerated to 1.4 mach or about 975 miles an hour.

The B1, one of three prototypes undergoing flight testing at this Krome Desert base, reached a top altitude of 45,000 feet and skinned down to 400 feet in automatic terrain following maneuvers.

The flight, lasting three hours and twelve minutes, also included simulated weapons releases and aerial refueling.

Reed said he went along to make an "intensive personal review" of the B1 program before a final production decision is made. There has been some opposition in Congress to a go-ahead for production.

Tycoon faces trial

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek shipping and banking tycoon Stratis Andreadis, father-in-law of heiress Christina Onassis, will face trial on charges of fraud and violation of Greek banking laws, a legal spokesman said Saturday.

The indictment called for Andreadis to be tried on six counts of fraud against companies he directed, involving a total of $38 million, and also on three counts of violating banking laws by improper financing of privately owned companies by the banks he directed, a judicial board ruled.

Andreadis is charged with selling shares belonging to the banks he controlled to holding companies personally owned by him at prices below their real value.

In one case, the indictment said, the 70-year-old former professor of economics sold 47,500 shares in the Bank of Piraeus to the commercial bank of the Near East Ltd. and N.E.B. nominees Ltd. for $5.88 per share instead of $12.5 per share.

"On another occasion, he sold 38,000 shares of the company owning the Athens Hilton Hotel $13.30 per share instead of $74.50 per share, their market value," the indictment said.

Catholic aides meet

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński, primate of Poland, met with Pope Paul VI for nearly an hour Saturday to discuss church-state relations in the Communist country and his own possible retirement.

As usual for private audiences, Vatican officials had no comment on what the two men said. Polish church sources said both the Vatican and the Warsaw regime would like the cardinal to stay on because of the time and effort it would take to agree on a successor.

Wyszyński, who has steered a middle course during his 28 years as primate of Poland's 30 million Catholics, offered his resignation to the Pope when he turned 75 on Aug. 3.

Employer gives bonus for voting

DALLAS (UPI) — L.G. Klein's employees grumbled about the federal government so he suggested they be certain to vote Nov. 6.

He didn't get much response so he offered them a half-day off if they would vote. That didn't bring much enthusiasm either.

"Then I said I'd give them a $25 bonus if they'd vote and they said, 'Yes sir!'"

Klein, 56, a dealer in liquidated petroleum gas equipment, said he had grown disgusted with apathy.

"I told them I don't care who they vote for — just, black, Chinese or orange — while quit complaining about the way the government get out and do something about it."

Peking Square rally set today

HONG KONG (UPI) — China Saturday announced a major rally for Sunday in Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace Square at which Hua Kuo-feng, new chairman of the Communist Party, is expected to outline China's policy for the rest of the year.

Diplomatic sources in Peking also said China's new leadership lineup was expected to be announced at the mass demonstration.

Massive demonstrations throughout the country in support of Hua's appointment and the purge of party radicals, headed by Mao Tse-tung's widow of paved the way for the climactic rally diplomats said was set for Sunday in Tien An Men.

The Chinese Communist Party newspaper devoted much of its Saturday edition to rallies held in the nation's three largest cities—Shanghai, Peking and Tientsin—in support of Hua and the purge of the "gang of four."

Demonstrators in Shanghai described Madame Mao and her three radical cohorts as "something filthy and contemptible like dog's dung," according to a report by the official New China News Agency Saturday.

NCNA quoted demonstrators in Shanghai as saying that the purge of Madame Mao, or Chiang Ching-ling, and Chang Chunchao, Wang Hung-wen and Yao Wen-yuan "has removed this time bomb and liquidated a big base inside our party."

Several other NCNA dispatches and many Peking Radio broadcasts cited the liquidation of the radical elements. But it was not clear whether the use of the term "liquidated" meant the four had been killed or not.

BULGARIAN merchant skipper George Georgiev poses beside his 30-foot sloop Cor Caroli (Small Star). He set sail Saturday in an effort to go around the world in a planned 11-month venture. (UPI)

Ready to sail

Bulgarian begins around-world sail

NEW YORK (UPI) — A centuries-old Bulgarian tradition has it that bad weather at big events brings good luck.

If it's true, Captain George Georgiev should have clear sailing.

The 46-year-old Bulgarian merchant skipper was to begin a round-the-world trip in his 30-foot sloop last Thursday, but the trip was delayed by a daylong downpour.

But Georgiev finally got under way beneath sunny skies Saturday, confidently telling onlookers he would see them again.

As he set sail, word came from the Coast Guard that Robert Galner of Hillsdale, N.J., who left New York on Oct. 2 in an around-the-world sailing bid, had been missing in the Atlantic for 10 days. When last heard from, Galner reported minor damage to his hull and said he planned to cut short his trip.

Georgiev put a lot of time into plotting his course, and making sure all the equipment works properly aboard the Cor Caroli (Small Star), his American-designed, Polish-made and Bulgarian-registered sloop.

In fact, he designed and built many of the nautical gadgets he'll use during the 11-month venture.

"Actually the rain was a good thing," said Alexander Yanikov, Bulgarian ambassador to the United Nations and an unofficial promoter for the shy Georgiev. "There's an old legend about rain at important events like ships departing and kings being crowned. The rain is supposed to wash away any trace of bad luck. When I went to meet the Queen of England at Buckingham Palace, a Bulgarian woman threw water on the coach in which I was to ride. Good luck," she said.

"So when it rains here, it's just nature giving us a wish for good fortune."

The first leg of Georgiev's trip, from New York to Cuba, will be completed in a few weeks. Then he will cross the Panama Canal, head for Fiji, and across to Australia, New Zealand, Capetown, the Canary Islands and to Gibraltar, he will end his journey in Plymouth, England.

What will he miss most during the lonely sojourn?

"No misses, just my wife," he said, hoping the true meaning of his little joke transcended the language barrier.

And what is the greatest danger of such a long trip in small vessels?

"Bigger vessels," said the skipper.

Animals howl in total eclipse

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — The century's last total solar eclipse visible from land swept across central Africa and parts of Australia Saturday, sending animals into frenzy of howling and baying. Africans, who believe the disappearance of the sun is an omen of death and famine, watched calmly.

In southeastern Australia dogs howled, cows moaned and began walking home and chickens went to coops as the sun vanished behind the moon and plunged a 320-mile wide band into darkness shortly after noon.

Millions of superstitious Africans, fearful that eclipses forshadow death, famine and plague, and who once covered in their homes during daytime darkness, watched the eclipse calmly after massive government media efforts to convince them the event was harmless.

An estimated 400 scientists from the United States, Europe and Africa hauled tons of equipment to Zanzibar Island off the African coast to watch the eclipse which, they said, would be the last this century visible from land.

"The corona was brilliantly visible," British scientist David Magee of the Liverpool Astronomical Society said.

After early-morning clouds threatened to negate many scientific experiments, the weather cleared and experts had a "crystal clear view."

'Big Ben' studied

LONDON (UPI) — Big Ben ticked to a stop at noon Saturday so scientists could attack it with ultrasonic detectors, radioactive isotopes, and all the equipment of atomic science.

The clock, perhaps the most famous in the world, will be stilled for 36 hours.

During that time scientists from the British atomic energy research center at Harwell will be studying the 125-year-old cast iron mechanism for invisible cracks, flaws and metal fatigue.

One such fault brought Big Ben to a grinding halt Aug. 5,

The clock was out of action then for 11 days in its first real breakdown ever. Its quarter-hour chimes still do not work.

The "current tests" were ordered to pinpoint any more potential trouble spots. Already some estimates have said it will take a year to make parts to replace those broken in the August breakdown.

'Big Ben' is technically the nickname for the great bell in the Palace of Westminster clock tower. But the name is popularly applied to the Houses of Parliament clock and the tower itself, one of London's most famous landmarks.

Jews jailed in demonstration

MOSCOW (UPI) — Four Soviet Jews who joined weeklong demonstrations against the government's refusal to grant exit visas to Israel have been jailed for 15 days, an activist spokesman said Saturday.

Vladimir Slepak said Jewish leaders would meet during the weekend to decide whether to resume their sit-in at the reception hall of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) administration office next week.

Groups of Jews ranging from 12 to 50 occupied the building daily between Monday and Friday, demanding written reasons for the refusal to grant the visas and action

A Message from Bob Vawser

Independent Candidate for Sheriff

Bob Vawser has had to conduct his campaign with very limited financial help, but still is not so badly scared as to consider quitting. We still have confidence that most voters are capable of thinking for themselves. With only a short time before the coming election it is hoped that you will consider the issues involved and my attempt to present them in a true and impartial manner.

To friends and voters who are members of the Democratic Party, we are offering you an opportunity which you have not had in the recent past, where your only choice was not to vote or vote for a Republican candidate. You may have given up hopes in trying to fight the Court House regime, and we know the feeling of frustration which this can cause.

Fortunately, Bob Vawser has not had the benefit of front page headlines intended to create public sympathy even though the incumbent Sheriff has been accused of actions, yet pending, which are claimed to be persecution for political reasons. Neither has Bob Vawser, his friends, and campaign workers accused anyone of dishonesty. The question of ability is an entirely different matter than what has been termed as character assassination.

Sheriff Cordor claims twenty six years of law enforcement, no doubt this may sound impressive, but it could also suggest that this length of service might cause one to become too complacent. Surely any Sheriff could be expected to know and be aware of the laws governing the conduct of his office. If so he should not have to plead that ignorance of such laws should be a reason for his being excused for errors now involved in a contested legal controversy.

Bob Vawser has been accused of conducting a low keyed campaign but the fact is that Sheriff Cordor has been interviewed at his office regularly while no attempt has been made to give Bob Vawser a personal interview by a news writer. The only contact which has been made with him has been a couple of phone calls by some budding or amateur journalist, which only resulted in garbled statements being published.

We had anticipated the publishing of lists claiming that most voters and dignitaries were endorsing Sheriff Cordor. But we were surprised that it would seem that a copy of the same list of supporters used in the primary election was re-ran to represent present support. At least we have had voluntary statements from persons whose names were used, stating they had not signed any such lists, other than during the past highly contested Republican primary election contest. Also the voting records from this primary election would hardly indicate such an unanimous percent of preference for Sheriff Cordor.

Sheriff Cordor's workers apparently intend to hold community meetings to try to promote the idea that everyone should go into mass sympathy for him as one who may have made some mistakes, but should not be accused or criticized for any errors which may have occurred. The first known such meeting held in cooperation with the Times-News and sponsored by Arnold's Hardware in Kimberly was publicized in the October 15th issue. As a hint to merchants in other communities, you should be able to appreciate the value of the free advertising which might be available to you similar to that gotten by Arnolds. This is no minor item since the same amount of space given in that case would cost an individual quite a sum in paid for advertising.

Also everyone must understand that the largest source of printed news media is in Twin Falls and that the Times-News generally takes a very definite stand in maintaining that no issue can have two sides. But that there can be only one (their) side worthy of print or consideration.

Bob Vawser, while not rated in some purported personality polls, does offer the voters a candidate qualified through training and experience to be a capable official, able to organize his staff of personnel in the proper handling of the work and details which is caused by its being one of the larger Sheriff's Offices.

Carter son's visit, Kidwell's politicking, Hansen's taxes top Gem week

By United Press International
Political activity topped the news again this week as the son of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter visited Idaho. Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell decided to end political activity in his office during business hours, and Rep. George Hansen was challenged to make public his income tax returns.

ter's eldest son, told a Boise rally this week his father has the charisma of John F. Kennedy and the technical skills of the nation's more outstanding presidents. "The biggest difference between my father and Gerald Ford is that Ford cannot give us that spark to carry the future," Carter said.

state time came after United Press-International raised questions about the practice after receiving a telephone call from a Kidwell staffer about news dispatches concerning Gov. Cecil Andrus' campaign trip to South Carolina. Kidwell later said a news release issued during the day criticizing remarks Andrus was reported to have made about President Ford had been typed in his office. Kidwell said his staff would make up the time and "any political work done in the future will be done outside staff hours."

George Hansen accused the news media and the Democratic Party of invading his personal privacy with questions about the alleged late filings of his income tax returns in seven of the last 10 years.

Wayne L. Kidwell says he does not consider it a trespass on state land. Company spokesman said the firm has paid for the timber and will pay the state what the timber was worth at the time of the cutting. But the company balked at paying double for it, the penalty the State Land Board told Kidwell to impose.

—A survey by the Boise State University Center for Business and Economic Research said retail food prices in Treasure Valley have dropped 1.2 per cent in the last three months. The survey covered the period from June to September.

—The Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers voted to sue the Idaho Legislature and other parties as necessary to correct unequal funding of Idaho schools. The action passed with only two dissenting votes.

PTA may sue legislature over unequal funding

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers voted Friday to sue possibly the Idaho Legislature and other parties as necessary to correct unequal funding of Idaho schools.

A resolution, brought to the state PTA meeting in Coeur d'Alene by a Pocatello PEA group, passed by only two dissenting votes.

The resolution said: "Be it resolved that the Idaho Congress of the Parents and Teachers join together with other groups supportive of equalized funding of public schools and institute legal action to equalize funding of public schools as required by the Constitution."

Concern was expressed over the PTA paying for the legal cost of such a suit. But delegates who spoke to the issue said a small amount of cost could be covered by fund raising in each school district without depleting PTA coffers.

The resolution came out of concern over unequal tax assessment procedures in each county and the disparities in distribution of wealth from district to district.

Earlier in the day, state PTA president Ellen Munson, Sandpoint, criticized educators and education bureaucracy for shutting out PTAs in Idaho.

"The only time the PTA is really needed is when it is time to get out the vote for a bond issue or an override levy," she said. "School personnel are not supportive and restrain leadership involvement — why does the PTA function at the pleasure of the local school principal," she asked.

Mrs. Munson said local school boards have lost control of education because local voters generally failed to vote for taxes to improve schools, opening the doors to use of state and federal money and thus state and federal control.

Also, she said, for at least the last 25 years the IEA was responsible for most of the educational gains in the state.

But Mrs. Munson predicted this will change. She said she sees the IEA "moving" toward becoming a statewide unit which will negotiate directly with the legislature for more money and better conditions.

As education becomes centralized in state and federal government, Mrs. Munson said "your board of trustees will become an advisory council with little or no power and your teachers will become 40-hour a week blue collar workers and shall forget the claim of being professionals."

She criticized the state department of education and the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare for creeping on local control.

Woman heads health council

BOISE (UPI) — Norma Buchanan, Iona, was elected chairman of Idaho's statewide health coordinating council Friday at a meeting in Boise.

The council appointed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus coordinates health activities of the state and approves the state's health plans.

Sister Helen Francis, Lewiston, was elected vice chairman. Both officers will serve for two years.

The council was established through provisions of the national Health and Resource Development Act Public Law 93-641.

The council must approve all health plans developed in the state before they are submitted to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for approval and funding.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare has been designated the "state agency" for purposes of the act and in that capacity provides staff support for the council.

Friday's meeting was the second one held by the newly established 30-member council.

Flood destroyed evidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The collapse of the Teton Dam in Idaho probably destroyed all direct evidence of what caused the disaster that took 11 lives, an Interior Department review panel said today.

From the beginning of this investigation, the group has felt that the Teton Dam failure probably destroyed all direct evidence of its cause," the review group said in an interim report to Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe.

"As field investigations have proceeded, this feeling has deepened. It is now likely that any final conclusion as to the cause of the failure necessarily will be based on indirect evidence" obtained from silted remnants of the dam, it said.

At best, the indirect evidence thus obtained will not provide rigorous proof of the cause of failure of Teton Dam is so great that the group sees no case to proceeding with the investigations outlined.

The review panel, which includes representatives from several federal agencies, is investigating the June 5, 1976, collapse near Rexburg, Idaho, separately from an independent panel of engineers and geologists appointed by Kleppe and Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The interim report evaluated six possible causes, and said cracking or hydraulic fracturing of the dam's core material tops the list.

"Investigations to date have revealed several specific conditions that support this possible cause of failure," it said.

Second on the list of possible causes is internal erosion along the interface between the core material and the rock abutment of the dam, the review group said.

Ford, Carter head out on campaign trails

FIRST Lady Betty Ford and her husband's Democratic opponent Jimmy Carter both wear big smiles following the third and final debate between Carter and President Ford at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. (UPI)

By United Press International
President Ford headed south and Jimmy Carter north Saturday after their final campaign debate in Williamsburg, Va.

Ford began his last 11 days of campaigning with a swing through the Carolinas, and Carter spoke in Industrial New Jersey and suburban Virginia, home of many of the federal workers he has promised to reorganize.

Each was hitting states the other was given a good shot at winning.

The President's press staff issued a rebuttal to some of Carter's statements in the Friday night debate, particularly his drawing the line against defending Yugoslavia against a Soviet invasion.

A White House statement said Carter gave the Russians a "completely free hand against us," Carter, asked about his views again Saturday, said, "I think it was the right way" to answer the question.

Ford's campaign schedule will keep him on the road until Election Day, Nov. 2, with many of the stops to be determined by his organization's polls. A major part of his eleven hour drive will be a $4 million television and radio advertising campaign.

Carter had one of his poorest turnouts of the campaign at a rally in North Bergen, N.J., an old industrial city with high unemployment.

The crowd was only a couple of thousand and much of what Carter said was drowned out by demonstrators chanting slogans such as "Democrats, Republicans, We Don't Care; We Want Jobs, Not Hot Air." Two persons were arrested following a scuffle in the audience.

But Carter drew a more impressive turnout of about 12,000 in Alexandria, Va., where Ford lived for 25 years.

The President, while campaigning in Richmond earlier in the day, emphasized his ties to the state known as "the mother of presidents," signing the "Alexandria" home was the White House for a brief time after he took office.

Carter used his standard lines about reorganizing the bureaucracy and making it more efficient, a philosophy of more than passing concern among Washington-area voters. He also said Ford is a "decent man" but, "He's continuing the same policies here (in Washington) that failed when Herbert Hoover was president and he's following the same policies that failed here when Richard Nixon was president."

Ford addressed about 2,500 persons on the state house steps in Richmond and then went to the state fair in Raleigh, N.C., a football game between South Carolina and Notre Dame and the state capitol in Columbia, S.C., before heading to California.

"My administration has been open, candid and forthright," he said in Richmond. "Give me your mandate for four years... and God helping me, I won't let you down."

Carter said debate winner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Carter won the third presidential debate over President Ford, according to a poll released Saturday by Time magazine.

The poll, conducted by the firm of Yankelovich, Skelly and White, said 33 per cent of those questioned believed Carter was more effective in Friday night's debate, 26 per cent believed Ford won and 41 per cent said it was a draw.

The poll sampled the opinions of 668 persons.

Among those persons who previously said they supported Carter, 56 per cent said the Democratic candidate won the third debate, 4 per cent said Ford was more effective and 40 per cent said it was a draw.

Among Ford supporters, 49 per cent said the President won, 10 per cent said Carter was the winner and 41 per cent said the third debate was a draw.

Among undecided voters, 27 per cent said Carter won, 23 per cent said Ford was more effective and 50 per cent said there was no difference between the two candidates.

Asked which candidate would do more for the U.S. economy, 47 per cent favored Carter, 38 supported Ford, 8 per cent said both would do the job, 7 per cent said neither candidate and 1 per cent was undecided.

Asked which candidate would be more effective in foreign affairs, 56 per cent favored Ford, 26 per cent supported Carter, 11 per cent said both candidates, 5 per cent said neither man and 2 per cent said they were not sure.

Moynihan may win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barring any major gaffe in the waning days of his campaign, Daniel Patrick Moynihan is a good bet to add a seat in the U.S. Senate to his already extensive political resume.

Most polls give the flamboyant former U.N. ambassador a 10-point lead over incumbent James L. Buckley in a race that began as an urbane discussion of ideologies between two brilliant speakers but rapidly descended to political name-calling.

Party workers combat voter apathy Nov. 2

By United Press International
Voter apathy is high in this biennial election year, a nationwide survey shows, but a Democratic registration drive and a Republican telephone bank get-out-the-voter effort may prevent a record low turnout.

Party officials surveyed nationwide by UPI said voters have been turned off by Watergate and other scandals. They said there is lack of enthusiasm for either President Ford or Jimmy Carter — along with the lack of emotional issues like Vietnam. Democrats and Republicans alike fear the turnout may fall below the 55 per cent mark of 1972 — and perhaps for the first time fall below a majority of those voting age.

Countering these fears are voter registration figures near or higher than 1972 levels in nearly every major state — with a few exceptions, California and New York. In those two states 1.5 million voters — many of them 18 to 21 year olds eligible for their first presidential election in 1972 — have been stricken from the rolls. The Democrats have made a major push — for voter registration this year — figuring 90 per cent of newly registered voters come out on election day and the vast majority of them vote Democratic. The party drive has signed up 3 million new voters.

They point to California, where they've signed up 416,000 new voters — a margin greater than that which John Kennedy and Hubert H. Humphrey lost the state to Richard Nixon in 1960 and 1968. Republicans say their 6,000 telephone calls nationwide will make 10 million calls by election day — a $3 million effort to reach voters targeted as favorable to their party.

A record 92 million Americans registered to vote in 1972, but that dropped to 86 million by the start of the primary season this year. But both parties believe a record number will be eligible by Election Day.

There are an estimated 150 million Americans of voting age, compared with 140 million four years ago. The only states showing a decline in voter registration were New York and California and to a small extent, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Nebraska and the District of Columbia.

Apathy does not seem to be a major problem in every state. Election and party officials in 20 states — most of them small or medium sized — said they expected a good turnout, often spurred by hot local contests, those states where apathy was not reported a problem were: Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Kansas (Robert Dole's home state), Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan (Ford's home state), Minnesota (Walter Mondale's home state), Montana, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Oddly it does seem to be a problem in Jimmy Carter's home state of Georgia, where the turnout was predicted to be only about 50 per cent, compared with the 68 per cent who turned out in 1972 to vote heavily for Barry Goldwater. "The people are turned off, fed up with politics and politicians. Tired of voting and being 'disappointed,'" said Herb Harmon, Florida's GOP executive director.

"I've seen more apathy this year than ever before," said Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa.

Delegates haggle at Catholic meet

DETROIT (UPI) — Delegates to an unprecedented U.S. Roman Catholic conference Saturday endorsed a repeal of "right-to-work" laws and other social and economic proposals that one bishop denounced as "pure socialism."

The 1,340 delegates at the conference, including many women church members for the first time, sparked serious controversy on the final day of voting even before tackling such issues as abortion, marriage for priests and admitting women to the priesthood.

They go to Argentina

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — Old timers at the mission liked to think the Swallows left on St. Juan's Day, Oct. 23, to fly to the Holy Land, where they spent the winter.

community held the traditional festival that marked their leaving. The birds, celebrated in the 1930's song "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano," traditionally arrive at the old adobe mission March 19, the Feast of St. Joseph.

But scientists say the much-celebrated birds really fly to Argentina.

Fr. Paul Martin, of the Mission San Juan Capistrano, said Saturday most of the birds seemed to have gone already on their 6,000-mile journey. Mass was celebrated in honor of St. Juan's Day and the townspeople of this seaside

BLM considers leases

SALMON — The Salmon District of the Bureau of Land Management reportedly has begun processing approximately 65 oil and gas lease applications.

The applications were filed early this spring and cover most of the National Resource Lands in the Glenrose Planning Unit, which stretches from Leadore south to the Clark County line.

Harry Finlayson, district manager, noted some of the lease applications cover federal lands which are under the administration of either the Salmon or Targhee National Forests.

Some private lands where oil and gas mineral rights were retained by the United States government also are under application, he said.

A resource team consisting of district specialists in wildlife, range, forestry, recreation, fisheries and archeology will be gathering resource information to properly assess the environment impact of oil and gas exploration and development, Finlayson said.

The team will be working in the Leadore area for the next two or three weeks, he said.

HAW officials approve monthly meetings

TWIN FALLS — Advisory board members for Region V of the Department of Health and Welfare (HAW) have voted to hold monthly meetings in various facilities around the region.

The Nov. 17 meeting will be held in the Alcohol Rehabilitation Center in Gooding. This new facility is privately funded and operated, but a contract was approved this week with the center to serve HAW clients in need of this type of treatment.

In December, the board will meet in the Child Development Center, Twin Falls, and other sites will be scheduled for 1977 meetings.

Members agreed to meet the third Wednesday of each month to discuss Health and Welfare programs and to provide advisory services to regional director Dennis McDermott and other division heads.

Naomi Brown, in charge of medical and financial services in the region, told the advisory board Wednesday the WIN program is showing good results. This is the program to train welfare recipients to skills which will help them maintain employment and become self sufficient. She said 29 persons have had their assistance reduced, and 10 cases have been closed out as a result of the program. She also reported the rate of welfare claims with the department has reduced this fall.

She said there are a number of mothers returning to work since children have returned to school. She said the department has seen a 60-case drop since July.

Tajuana Cochnauer, administrative teacher of the adult and child development center, told board members the adult program is now in the spotlight with a number of good programs to help handicapped adults. She said the Country Music Association of Magic Valley will donate proceeds from their coming jamboree to the program for the purchase of a television projector.

Machine 'breathes' for lung patient

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A 23-year-old Layton, Utah mother who is the first successful lung bypass patient of an experimental project at LDS Hospital, is recuperating at home following a special treatment in which an artificial heart-lung-machine "breathed" for her for three days.

Delra Anthon was transferred to the Intermountain Respiratory Intensive Care Unit at LDS Hospital, July 19, in critical condition with adult respiratory distress syndrome.

The disease results in the lungs not adequately transferring oxygen to the blood and resembles hyaline membrane disease, which is common in premature infants.

She developed the syndrome after a Caesarean section delivery of her son, Forrest, July 15. Mrs. Anthon was placed on the IRICU heart-lung machine, July 23, where a portion of her blood was diverted through the artificial lung for the addition of oxygen and removal of carbon dioxide.

Mrs. Anthon said she was not fully aware of what was happening to her. "I faded out that next evening after I had (Forrest)," she said. "I could remember little things from the next days which I put together as all one day."

Her husband, Jeff, a heavy equipment operator at Hill Air Force Base, agreed to allow his wife to undergo the treatment after consultations with chief investigator Dr. Alan Morris and a woman whose son died last year while undergoing the procedure.

"Dr. Morris told us if we were gambling people the odds were against us," Anthon said.

"If we did or didn't, she had about a 10 percent chance to live, no matter what."

Mrs. Anthon was in the hospital another three weeks following the treatment and is now recuperating at home and taking care of her 3-month-old son.

She said she feels well now, but the couple has run up a huge hospital bill and has no insurance.

The experimental project, one of nine in the country, operates under a three-year contract with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute of the "National Institutes of Health and is a joint project of IRICU, the University of Utah College of Medicine and the Utah Biomedical Test Laboratory.

Funds sought

MUSCULAR dystrophy canisters will be appearing in Twin Falls this month at the Twin Falls Firefighters Association begins a year-long effort to raise money for the muscular dystrophy program. Ron Clark, left, and Bob Veatch, will be among some 20 firemen working on the project.

Firemen launch drive

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Firefighters Association will launch a year-long campaign Monday to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

"We will be passing out canisters for fund collecting to local merchants," Ron Clark, chairman of the fund drive, said. "We will be holding special events throughout the year."

Clark said all funds collected will go toward the fight against muscular dystrophy through the national organization of which comedian Jerry Lewis is national chairman.

The fire fighters have about 400 canisters to be distributed to merchants for collecting contributions, Clark said. He said firemen and interested civilians will donate their time in taking canisters to businesses in the Twin Falls area.

The first prize to be given away is a family season pass to all College of Southern Idaho basketball games and was donated by the CSI basketball coach. Other donated prizes will be offered later, he said.

The first prize to be given away is a family season pass to all College of Southern Idaho basketball games and was donated by the CSI basketball coach. Other donated prizes will be offered later, he said.

About 20 fighters are expected to help with the campaign, Clark said. "This is the first year fire fighters have ever put this much effort into the campaign," Clark said. "I am hoping we can get the canisters put out in one week."

Clark said the men would wear uniforms with identifying name tags when they visit local merchants. Firemen said about $200 in prizes will be awarded during a special event Nov. 12 at the fire department. In addition to the CSI, merchants in Twin Falls have donated merchandise.

In the early 1700s, the average annual price of an ounce of silver in Boston ranged from seven paper shillings in 1709-1711 to 69 in 1749.

Nobel laureate Bellow looks for 'dream space'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Author Saul Bellow is out there, looking for "dream space" today, so he can resume writing the novels that won him the Nobel Prize for literature.

At a news conference conducted with wit and charm, the white-haired Bellow, 61, a University of Chicago English professor, acknowledged he feared the fame that goes with being a Nobel laureate.

"The child in me is delighted," he said, "the adult in me is skeptical."

Relaxed in a light green turtleneck shirt and dark green suit, Bellow said he hoped the award would not change him as it did author John Steinbeck.

"I knew Steinbeck quite well and I remember how burdened he was by the Nobel prize. He felt that he had to give a better account of himself than he had done."

"I remember feeling rather sorry for him. I felt it lay all too heavily on him ... and I think it made him quite wretched. I hope it isn't going to make me wretched, but then I'm a more cynical character."

"Being a writer is a rather dreary thing. And nobody likes to have the diaphanous tissues torn ... One has to protect one's dream space."

Bellow turned aside a chance to talk about politics but did aim one barb at President Ford that because I don't think he would have discerned it for himself."

Bellow said he was glad to win the prize "but I would have survived very well without it."

Later he said, "For one reason or another, perhaps political, an American got the prize this year and it happened to be me."

There were other literary figures who were worthy of

SAUL BELLOW

Nobel prizes including Christina Stad, Andre Malraux, R.K. Narayan and D.S. Majumdar, Bellow said.

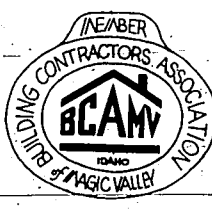

Bellow turned aside most questions about his novels and attempts to classify him as a particular type of writer. "I am a fish," he said, "not an ichthyologist."

Bellow said he disliked being called a Chicago writer or a Jewish writer. "I am a modern writer," he said. Still, he added, "I've lived in Chicago a long time and I don't mind giving a boost to the old town."

He did admit a friend once called him "a bureaucratic writer, you get up in the morning, you drink coffee and you write." Bellow said he did get up and write to keep his sanity. Otherwise, he said, he would be overcome by "all the evil forces within me."

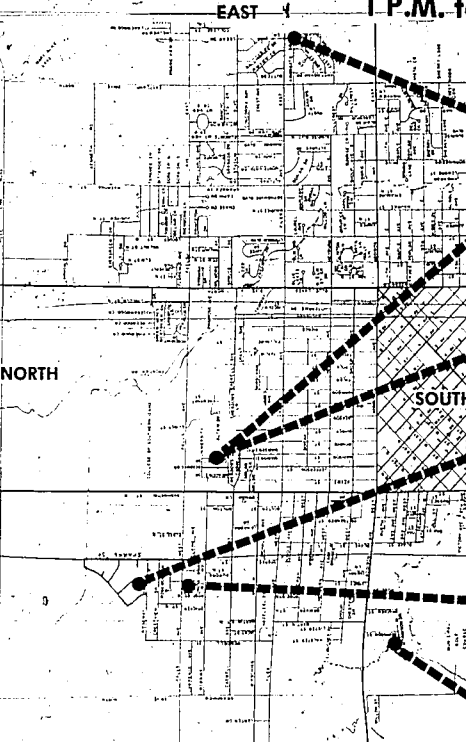

He suggested the novel would survive at least for a while because people like to tell stories. The author of Humboldt's Gift, Herzog, the Adventures of Augie March and other novels said he intended to write at least one more nonfiction book but divulged no other plans, not even how he would spend his $55,000 award.

"I don't have any plans for the money. At this rate (considering the publicity and attention), my heirs will get the money in a day or two."

Debate rules change

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — The ground rules have changed since the first debate was staged in this pre-revolutionary colonial capital. The first rules imposed a penalty of 10 shillings on any debater who couldn't stay sober.

Those debates were in Raleigh Tavern. Five students from the College of William and Mary gathered in the midst of revolutionary warfare in 1776 to argue over what kind of nation to make.

William and Mary, second oldest college in America, junior only to Harvard, had been founded 89 years earlier. What kind of nation to make was still the topic when Gerald R. Ford of Michigan territory and Jimmy Carter of the former colony of Georgia argued for their third and final debate Friday.

The five earliest debaters, sons of plantation owners, formed a fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, on Dec. 5, 1776, to dispel "the clouds of falsehood."

The site for the 1976 presidential debate was the modern Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, constructed in 1956 to replace an older building by that name which had been gutted by fire.

Phi Beta Kappa evolved into a nationwide organization honoring scholarship. Thomas Jefferson enrolled at the college too early to join. Instead, he helped form a group called the Flat Hat Club. It has not survived.

The Phi Beta Kappa members met once a month or so to debate and drink ale. One early debate topic was the defense issue — "whether anything is more dangerous to civil liberty in a free state in time of peace."

Three presidents, Jefferson, Monroe and Tyler, stood at William and Mary. George Washington received his surveyors' license at the college, and among those who enrolled over the years were 16 members of the Continental Congress, four signers of the Declaration of Independence, four justices of the Supreme Court, more than 30 senators, 60 House members, eight Cabinet members and 27 governors of 10 states.

If all that weren't enough to make Carter and Ford think they were participating in a historic process, they had only to look around.

Williamsburg was the capital of colonial Virginia from 1699 to 1789 and money donated by John D. Rockefeller Jr. starting in 1936 has restored the old town. Visitors see a small 18th century city much as it appeared in Washington's time.

DDT use ok'd for rabid bats

REHOBOTH, Mass. (UPI) — The Federal Disease Control Center in Atlanta has authorized use of DDT to rid a local family of a colony of rabid bats living in the walls of its house.

The authorization ended an eight-month juggling act that tossed Stephen and Dorothy Haskell back and forth from local to state to federal agencies as they tried to find out who had the authority to get rid of the bats.

Last August, one of the flying rodents was found in a crib with the Haskell's 16-month-old baby, Meredith. "They told us...that if we could catch a bat that had rabies and bring it in to testing and prove that it had rabies then they could use the DDT to exterminate them," Mrs. Haskell said this week.

The family was unsuccessful in getting official action until the office of Rep. Margaret Heckler, D-Mass., intervened.

Ireland leader resigns

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — President Cearbhall Ó Dálaigh resigned as Ireland's Head of State today, four days after a government minister publicly called him a "thundering disgrace".

O Dálaigh, 65, had refused to accept a personal apology from Defense Minister Patrick Donaghy who Monday publicly criticized O Dálaigh at the Supreme Court rule on the government's news anti-terrorist laws before he would sign them into effect.

O Dálaigh, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was unanimously selected for the non-political presidency in November, 1974, to succeed the late President Erskine Childers who died in office. His resignation climaxed a week-long political row over Donaghy's remarks to a ceremonial dinner of high ranking army officers in the midland town of Mullingar.

Donaghy immediately announced he "regretted" his remarks and said he would apologize to O Dálaigh at the "first opportunity."

He left a cabinet meeting Tuesday and went to the presidential residence in Dublin's Phoenix Park, but O Dálaigh sent word he would not receive him.

Donaghy then sent a letter of apology to the president which Premier Liam Cosgrave described as a "sincere, unreserved and full apology". Opposition deputies led by former Premier Jack Lynch demanded Donaghy's resignation or dismissal because of his "gross insult" to O Dálaigh.

An attempt to pass a motion calling for the defense minister's dismissal was beaten in Parliament Thursday by 53 votes to 52.

Cosgrave said then he hoped that would be "the end of the matter."

Old gun vs. butter argument resurfaces in Gallup survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The old argument of guns vs. butter flared up again the other day in an international survey conducted by pollster George Gallup.

Gallup's findings, as interpreted by Sen. Dick Clark D-Iowa, indicated that whereas the people of the world regard getting enough food as their main problem, their governments consider the most pressing need to be arms.

Clark said America's own export figures showed which view prevailed.

United States sent 18 million tons of food abroad, as compared to 5 million tons this year. In contrast, arms shipments have increased from $1 billion in 1970 to more than $10 billion currently.

Those figures may be somewhat misleading. It's possible you could have gotten more arms for $1 billion in 1970 than you could get for $10 billion today.

Assuming, however, that an aspiration gap between people and government does exist, it might be helpful to try to put it in historical perspective.

If Marie Antoinette were alive today and she were told the people were rioting in the streets because they had no bread, would she still say "Then let them eat cake?" Probably not.

It is more likely the snappy Antoinette rejoinder would be "Then let them bite the bullet." And therein may lie the best hope for bridging the aspiration gap.

We live, after all, in an age of technological marvels. Just this month the Agricultural Research Center announced it had developed a process for extracting high grade protein from tobacco leaves.

"It's as good for you as milk," one scientist said, holding out the possibility that tobacco protein could help alleviate world hunger.

Now tobacco and bullets have something in common. Both, under certain conditions, can be harmful to your health.

If scientists can transform a hazardous substance like tobacco into a source of nutrition, they ought to be able to do the same with bullets.

Once protein has been extracted from tobacco leaves, it could be compressed into lead-like consistency and shaped like a bullet.

Citing 'enormous' economic impact, judge calls halt to fishing ban

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Saying the economic consequences "would be enormous," a federal judge has ordered the National Fisheries Service and Coast Guard not to enforce a tuna fishing ban scheduled to go into effect Friday and meant to save porpoises from death in fishermen's nets.

The 10-day restraining order was issued Thursday in response to pleas from fishermen that it would wreck their industry.

The government fought the request, saying the tuna fisheries could afford to suspend fishing for the rest of the year and Congress meant to take such steps to protect porpoises and other marine mammals.

U.S. District Court Judge William B. Enright ruled for the fishermen, issuing the restraining order and scheduling a hearing Nov. 1 on whether it should be made permanent.

"I'm satisfied the economic consequences of the (Fisheries Service) order would be enormous," the judge declared.

The conflict was triggered by a ruling by the director of the Fisheries Service, Robert W. Schoning, in 1975 that the yearly limit on the number of porpoises that can be accidentally killed in tuna fishing at 78,000 and declared the limit had been reached.

Consequently, he ruled, all fishing for yellowfin tuna — which inevitably kills some porpoises — by boats under U.S. jurisdiction must cease today.

Attorneys for the American Tunaboat Association argued that the ruling would bar the fishermen from making a living, shut down canneries and boatyards from San Diego to Puerto Rico, "unemploy

2,000 men at sea and bankrupt the industry."

A government attorney countered that "it is the porpoise who will suffer irreparable injury" and the industry could afford to lose about 6,500 tons of fish.

The heart of the problem is the association at sea, for unclear reasons, between porpoises and yellowfin tuna.

Senator examines relationship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just back from a month-long trip to China, Senate Democrat leader Mike Mansfield said Friday he expects U.S.-China relations "to continue on the same basis."

Mansfield, in an interview, declined to comment on the current power struggle in Peking and offered no comment on reports by the New China News Agency that Mao Tse-tung's widow and other leading leftists had been "liquidated."

"Events in China," he said, "are purely an internal matter. Something they must decide."

Similarly, Mansfield said he did not discuss the U.S. election campaign during his meeting with Chinese Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien in Peking.

"They're interested. But that's an American internal affair," he said.

BYU's passing attack batters Utah State 45-14

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Brigham Young University rode Gifford Nielsen's passing arm to a 45-14 win over Utah State Saturday.

Nielsen had the best passing yardage day for a major college quarterback last week with 445 yards and he surpassed that total in three quarters against USU Saturday with 28 completions for 468 yards and five touchdowns.

The junior signalcaller used 10 receivers, but favored flanker Mike Chronister, who had nine catches for 182 yards and one of the 6's.

The Cougar defense held the Aggies to a measly eight yards on the ground and sacked opposing quarterbacks eight times, produced four interceptions and three fumble recoveries.

Nielsen passed for 66 yards of a BYU 99-yard drive in the first quarter that ended with fullback Jeff Blane plunging in from the eight. Blane's td was his 28th career score and 168th point — both career school records.

In the second quarter, BYU took advantage of a fumble recovery and a short punt to score three touchdowns in less than five minutes. Nielsen passed 19 yards to John VanDerWoude, 6 yards to Chronister after a fumbled kickoff return, and 22 yards to Roger Gantley to take a 28-0 lead.

The Aggies got on the board with two minutes left in the half on Keith Myers' 17-yard toss to Kory Coles on fourth down.

Nielsen's other two td passes, in the second half, went 23 yards to fullback Todd Christensen and 8 yards to fullback Dave Lowry after an interception.

Dave Taylor kicked all six extra points, giving him 22 without a miss this season and tying a school record. Taylor also booted a 29-yard field goal following a fourth quarter interception.

USU's only other score came in the third quarter on Paul Tidwell's short punt. BYU is now 5-2 while USU drops to 1-7.

Knicks rip Spurs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spencer Haywood scored 22 points, including seven which keyed a 19-point first-quarter spurt Saturday night, to lead the New York Knicks to an easy 117-98 victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

The Knicks led by 20 points in the first 13 minutes of play as Haywood, Earl Monroe, John Gianelli and Jim McMillan each had registered 10 or more points. They led 63-42 at halftime.

Walt Frazier, the Knicks captain, did not play because of the death of his sister. He was in Atlanta with the family.

George Gervin topped the Spurs with 20 points while Gianelli grabbed 20 rebounds, a career high.

Bulls down Pacers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mickey Johnson scored 30 points and Artis Gilmore sparked a third-quarter rally with 17 of his 25 points Saturday night to bring the Chicago Bulls a 102-97 victory over the Indiana Pacers.

Gilmore, who played only four minutes of the first half because of three fouls, led a Chicago surge that saw the Bulls outscore the Pacers 22-4 in an eight-minute flurry.

Braves trim 76ers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Reserve guard Bird Averitt's second play with four seconds left gave the Buffalo Braves a 108-105 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Saturday night.

Averitt, who came to the Braves in the American Basketball Association dispersal draft, hit a driving left-handed layup from the right side and was fouled by George McGinnis on the play. The former Popovich star calmly sank the free throw for Buffalo's second win without a loss. The defeat was the second in two games for the 76ers.

Bullets outlast Piston

DETROIT (UPI) — Elvin Hayes' turnaround jumper with 33 seconds to go climaxed a fourth-period comeback that brought the Washington Bullets a 98-97 National Basketball Association victory over the Detroit Pistons Saturday night.

The Bullets had trailed 89-72 going into the closing period when Nick Weatherspoon came off the bench and connected for six baskets to enable Washington to grab a 90-86 lead midway in the quarter.

The lead then changed hands seven times before Hayes hit on his winning shot to even the Bullets record at 1-1. Detroit also is 1-1.

CSU thumps UTEP

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Quarterback Dan Graham ran for two touchdowns and Ron Harris and Keith King scored one each Saturday to give Colorado State University a 28-7 Western Athletic Conference victory over Texas-El Paso.

The Rams used the big play, including two long punt returns by Harry Washington, en route to their third straight win and their best offensive output of the year.

Two minutes after UTEP took the lead 7-0, CSU running back Ron Harris broke loose on a 59-yard run to the UTEP eight yard line, setting up the five-yard scoring run by Graham.

Easy let down

FLIPPED David Jones of Burley goes down softly in the grasp of Logan's Kurt Facer after a 25-yard rollout run Friday afternoon. Burley downed the Utah team 31-7.

Houston hopes luck lasts into Sunday

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Executive Sports Editor

Luck seems to have been on the Houston Oilers' side all week and they hope the Oilers will hold through today.

That's when the Oilers play host to the Cincinnati Bengals at the Astrodome for first place in the American Football Conference's Central Division. Both clubs are 4-2.

The Oilers came very close to losing both their quarterback and their head coach this past week and feel lucky to have them available today.

"I'm damn lucky to be here," said quarterback Dan Pastorini after he spent 24 hours in a hospital following an auto accident.

Pastorini lost control of his four-wheel-drive camper early Tuesday, swerving over a curb, bouncing off a number of trees and suffering multiple cuts and bruises.

"I saw my whole life during the accident," Pastorini said. "There were a lot of fourth-down-and-goals all the way."

Pastorini was half-jokingly referring to the critical game last October against Cincinnati when the Oilers, with four tries from the Bengal one, couldn't score and lost 21-19. Houston finished 10-4, while Cincinnati ended 11-3 and the Bengals earned the AFC wild card bid runner-up entry into the playoffs.

Coach Bum Phillips also narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday. Phillips was on an observation tower at an Oiler practice and climbed down to talk to an assistant. No sooner had he touched ground than a gust of wind blew down the tower.

"I hadn't gone 10 steps when the damn thing fell," Phillips said. "Then they told me there was nothing seriously wrong with Danny. Maybe we're living right or something, but it could have been a real disaster for both of us."

Both clubs are coming off upset losses and both could be looking back to the division cellar where the Pittsburgh Steelers finally have begun to play like two-time NFL champions. Pittsburgh, which won only one of its first five games, came back to beat Cincinnati last Sunday to move back into contention.

The Bengals' offense, which had averaged 28 points in each of the first five games, managed only two field goals in losing to Pittsburgh, 23-6. Houston's strong defense fell apart against San Diego in a 30-27 loss.

"This is a big game for both clubs," said Bengal Coach Bill Johnson. "With the way the clubs are bounced up now, every game within the division becomes that more important."

In other games today, Minnesota is at Philadelphia, Chicago at Dallas, Los Angeles at New Orleans, Green Bay at Oakland, New England at Buffalo, Baltimore at the New York Jets, San Diego at Cleveland, Denver at Kansas City, Detroit at Seattle, Pittsburgh at the New York Giants and Miami at Tampa Bay.

Atlanta met San Francisco Saturday and St. Louis is at Washington Monday night.

Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton, who last week became the first NFL quarterback to hit the 3,000 mark in career pass completions, needs 100 yards against the Eagles to become the first player to reach 40,000 yards passing. The Vikings, now 5-0-1, hold a comfortable lead in the NFC Central.

Dallas, which suffered its first loss last week against St. Louis to drop into a tie for first in the NFC East, goes against one of the toughest defenses in the league when the Cowboys face Chicago. The Bears have dropped opposing passers 20 times. The game matches the NFL's No. 1 passer, Roger Staubach of Dallas, against the No. 1 rusher, Chicago's Walter Payton, who has 694 yards.

Mike Kruczek, the rookie from Boston College who directed the Bengals' attack against Cincinnati, will be at the controls again when Pittsburgh takes on the winless New York Giants. Regular quarterback Terry Bradshaw worked out this week, but still isn't ready to return after a neck injury.

Another of the NFL's banged up quarterbacks, Joe Namath, is expected back when the Jets entertain Baltimore.

Fumbles help Ga. beat Kentucky 31-7

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Tenth-ranked Georgia took advantage of Kentucky's fumbles to score early in both halves Saturday night and broke the game open on an 87-yard touchdown pass from Ray Goff to Gene Washington to post a 31-7 Southeastern Conference victory over the Wildcats.

Georgia, 6-1 overall and 3-1 in the SEC, scored first after it recovered a fumble by Kentucky's Chris Hill as he fielded a punt on the Kentucky 14-yard line early in the game.

The Bulldogs' Willie McClelland scored three plays later on the two.

Georgia led 10-7 at the half, but pushed their margin to 17-7 after another Kentucky turnover on the Wildcat 23. Seven plays later Georgia quarterback Matt Robinson scored from the two.

After stopping a Kentucky drive, Georgia was backed up to its own one-yard line. Goff carried the ball three straight times to the 12, then passed over the middle to the fleet Washington, who outpaced Kentucky's Mike Figgins into the end zone.

Colorado beats Iowa St.

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Jeff Knapp came off the bench to direct four second-period touchdowns, two of them by fullback Tony Reed, and lead Colorado to a 33-14 Big Eight Conference win over error-prone Iowa State Saturday.

Colorado scored on drives engineered by Knapp of 56, 30, 30 and 69 yards in the second quarter.

Iowa State's first score came on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Wayne Stanley to split end Luther Blue in the third period.

Quarterback Jeff Austin, who started the game, scored Colorado's last touchdown on a nine-yard run on the first play of the final quarter. On the last play of the game, Iowa State reserve quarterback Buddy Hardeman passed to slotback Ray Hardee for a touchdown.

Florida rallies to tip Tennessee 20-18

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Quarterback Jimmy Fisher rallied 11th-ranked Florida from a 10-0 first quarter deficit to a 20-18 Southeastern Conference victory over Tennessee Saturday, giving the Gators sole possession of first place in the SEC race.

Fisher scored on a two-yard fourth down run in the second period after the Gators fell behind 10-0 early in the game. David Posey kicked two field goals and fullback Willie Wilder scored on a seven-yard run for Florida.

Tennessee scored on a 23-yard field goal by Jim Gaylor and two touchdowns runs by fullback Stanley Morgan. The Vols lost some of their offensive effectiveness when quarterback Randy Wallace received a sprained left wrist and finally had to leave the game in the third quarter.

Tennessee grabbed a 10-0 lead in the first two possessions. After the Vols stalled at the Florida 11 on their kickoff drive, Gaylor hit 29 yards out.

Then Tennessee went 70 yards in five plays on its next possession. Wallace passed 14 yards to end Larry Seivers and 21 yards to end Billy Arbo to key the drive.

Purdue falls to Ohio State 24-3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Tailback Jeff Logan ran for 175 yards and two second-half touchdowns Saturday to lead eighth-ranked Ohio State to a 24-3 Big Ten victory over Purdue.

The triumph was the fifth against one loss and a tie for the Buckeyes, who led on standing sophomore quarterback Rod Gerald for the season when he suffered three broken ribs late in the first period.

Senior Jim Pacenta, who took over for Gerald, had trouble getting the Ohio State offense rolling during most of the second three quarters.

But, paced by the running of the 5-10, 182-pound Logan, the Buckeyes scored three touchdowns in just over six minutes against the Hoosiers.

Logan ran 11 yards up the middle to cap an 80-yard Ohio State drive for the Buckeyes' first TD. After fullback Pete Johnson scored his 12th touchdown of the year from the two to make it 17-3, Logan ran 29 yards to score his second touchdown set up by a pass interception by defensive end Bob Brudinski, his second of the day.

Supan's field goal came after the Boilermakers, now 3-4 overall and 2-2 in the Big Ten, recovered Ron Spring's fumble of the opening second-half kickoff on the Ohio State 19. And another fumble by Logan which Purdue recovered on the Ohio State 11 nearly proved disastrous to the Buckeyes. But the defense held and Supan missed a 27-yard field goal try.

Gerald, Ohio State's third-leading rusher and No. 2 scorer, with six touchdowns, was injured on an on-pylon run when he was tackled from behind.

Area deer hunters show 19 percent success ratio

By STU MURRELL
Regional Staff Conservationist

Results of big game check stations in region four showed an overall success ratio for deer hunters of 19 percent as compared to 10 percent last year.

The Department of Fish and Game ran seven stations and checked a total of 3,103 hunters who had bagged 983 deer. In 1975, there were 3,211 hunters checked with 1,033 deer. Five of the stations were run on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday instead of the full five days as compared to last year. This resulted in lesser numbers of hunters being checked although it appeared there was more pressure in the general hunt areas in the northern part of region four.

The following is a rundown on the results at each check station: Albion, 481 hunters with 95 deer; Oakley, 371 hunters with 111 deer; Shoshone Basin, 413 hunters with 130 deer; Rock Creek, 810 hunters with 228 deer; Rogerson, 112 hunters with 14 deer; Gooding, 354 hunters with 68 deer; Timmerman Hill, 1,518 hunters with 193 deer; and Carey, 844 hunters with 144 deer.

Most of the hunters were satisfied with their hunts in the controlled hunt units, but many of those in the north felt it was poor hunting with success ratios varying from 12 to 18 percent. These success ratios for all stations are for the five opening days only and by the end of hunting season should be considerably higher because many people will return to hunt again.

For example, a post-season telephone survey of hunters in Unit 54 last year revealed they finished the season with a 50 percent success as compared to the first five days through Rock Creek check station which was 28 percent.

I ran the Albion check station and there were a number of differences in hunter attitudes as compared to Carey, which I ran in 1974 and 1975. They are more oriented toward buck hunting at Albion and many hunters said they had passed up groups of does and fawns. There were 44 adult bucks in the 95 deer brought through the Albion check station.

This ratio was probably a reflection of the number of deer available in Unit 55 as compared to the northern general hunt units from which the Carey check station obtains the hunter samples.

Another situation which surprised me somewhat was the large numbers of hunters that indicated they had missed several shots at deer. It appears sportsmen are not sighting-in and practicing with their rifles sufficiently before going hunting. This lack of familiarity with their firearms also leads to a greater crippling loss and shooting at ranges beyond the capability of their rifles.

Southern Cal rips Oregon State 56-0

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Heisman Trophy candidate Ricky Bell got the University of Southern California started Saturday, but his understudy, freshman Charles White, dazzled the crowd by scoring four touchdowns as the Trojans easily bested Oregon State 56-0 in a Pacific-8 football game.

Bell, who went into the game leading the nation in rushing with 1,068 yards, carried the ball only six times for 64 yards before leaving at the end of the first period with a slight hip injury.

White then tallied twice in the first half and added two more touchdowns in the third period for his biggest day as a Trojan.

The Beavers, led by freshman quarterback Scott Richardson, could not get outside their own territory for the first three periods and were intercepted five times.

The victory was the third conference win for the Trojans and their fifth against one defeat this season.

Bell's solo performance gave the Trojans their first score as he made all the yardage on a 58-yard drive, scoring from the one yard line in four minutes of play.

White stepped up next two USC scores. White took over for Bell midway through the opening period and raced 35 yards to a touchdown. Just before the period ended, Jerry Jeter recovered a Beaver fumble to set up Glen Walker's 36-yard field goal at the start of the second quarter.

The Trojans tallied twice more within six minutes, the first coming on a 33-yard reverse by flanker Shelton Biggs and the second coming when White raced 34 yards on a swing pass. Reserve quarterback Rob Hertel then took over and passed 11 yards to Bill Gay for the final touchdown of the first half to give the Trojans a 27-0 lead.

Dankworth-led UCLA topples Cal 35-19

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Jeff Dankworth ran for one touchdown, passed for a second and set up two others with quick running plays Saturday while leading fourth-ranked and undefeated UCLA to a 35-19 victory over California.

Dankworth ran 18 yards and passed 27 to Wally Henry to give the 38-point favorite Bruins a 14-0 lead, then went to the bench with hip pointer but came back to set up two other late-game touchdowns that pulled UCLA comfortably ahead for its sixth victory against a rival.

Wendell Tyler scored two of the Bruins' touchdowns on runs of 23 and 15 yards while Theotis Brown accounted for the fifth UCLA touchdown as the Bruins rolled to their third victory without a loss in Pacific-8 Conference play.

Cal scored 13 of its points on a one-yard run by quarterback Fred Besana and pair of 41-yard field goals by Jim Breece, all the points coming on turnovers while Dankworth was on the bench in the second quarter.

In all, the Bruins recovered four UCLA fumbles and used three to score their points and trailed by only a point at the intermission, 14-13.

Anthony Green recovered four fumbles, two by Tyler, to help the Bruins get back into the game, but Dankworth, a 6-foot 200-pounder from Reno, Nev., came out to play again in the third quarter and the Bruins quickly moved ahead and never were in serious trouble again.

A-M beats Rice in record-setting tilt

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A&M turned brilliant fullback George Woodard loose for four touchdown runs and romped for a school record 625 total yards to outgun the aerial circus of the Rice Owls Saturday, 57-34, in an offensive slugfest.

It was the most points for Texas A&M in 60 years.

The Aggies' Tony Franklin, who last week kicked 61 and 65 yards field goals to set an NCAA record, broke a Southwest Conference mark by booting five field goals for A&M.

By the time the nation's leading passer completed 24 of 39 passes to 376 yards, he threw first half touchdowns of 45 and 15 yards and scored twice on one yard quarterback sneaks to keep the Owls close for much of the game.

Despite the Aggies scoring rush they needed the outstager for their second Southwest Conference victory in four games. Rice, 2-4 for the season, dropped its conference record to 1-1.

Woodard's 15-yard touchdown run on A&M's first possession started the scoring, and the 245-pound sophomore added scoring bursts of one, five and nine yards.

Quarterback David Walker added a two-yard touchdown, fullback Curtis Dieker ran over from four yards out and Franklin, who kicks barefooted, produced field goals of 39, 38, 32, 29 and 35 yards.

Carey overpowers North Gem 30-6

CAREY — Carey remained firmly entrenched in second place Friday afternoon by beating the North Gem Cowboys 30-6.

The winning Panthers, one game behind Camas County in the Snake River eight-man Conference, never trailed the fifth district crew.

Carey opened with a 53-yard scoring pass from Mike Bame to Wayne Parke but the Panthers missed the extra point. They got enough to assure the victory when they blocked a punt and Brett Peterson fell on it in the end zone for six points.

Bame scored in the third period on a one-yard plunge, North Gem replying with a 25-yard bomb. The Panthers later added a safety and capped scoring on a 10-yard pass from Bame to Parke.

Unbeaten Maryland trounces Duke 30-3

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Quarterback Mark Manges threw two touchdowns passes to tight end Bob Raba and scored another on a one-yard keeper Saturday to pace seven-troubled Maryland in a 30-3 thrashing of Duke in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Maryland, undefeated in seven games and 3-0 in the ACC, was aided by Blue Devil mistakes, converting a pass interception and a Duke fumble into two of its three first-half scores.

Duke, 3-1 overall and 1-1 in the conference, scored only on a first half field goal. Three Blue Devil drives in the second half ended with Maryland interceptions.

The Terrapins have now won 18 consecutive ACC games and are in a solid position to repeat as conference champions.

Maryland scored on its first possession, marching 79 yards in 14 plays with Manges completing four key passes. Tailback George Scott dived in from the one-yard line for the touchdown with 5:36 gone in the first period.

The second Terps' touchdown drive began after a fumble by Duke fullback Tony Benjamin was recovered by Maryland linebacker Mike Miller on the Duke 29. Five plays later, early in the second quarter, Manges threw a five-yard scoring pass to Raba.

Boise State thumps Nevada-Reno 26-8

Scoreboard

BOISE — Boise State's Broncos returned to the win column Saturday night by overpowering outmanned Nevada-Reno 26-8.

The Broncos looked a little helpless in the opening minutes when Reno drove 45 yards for a touchdown immediately after the opening kickoff. But Nevada was dominated after that.

Reno's opening march was highlighted by an interesting stat: Not once did Dale Tisdale, Reno quarterback, have to make a third-down call. The payoff came with 10:36 left in the first quarter on a short pass from Tisdale to Stan Loftus.

But Nevada's jubilation was short lived. Gary Resolovich caught the ensuing kickoff at his own seven yard line and sprinted 93 yards to make things even. Avi Rote's extra-point kick sent the Broncos ahead to stay.

On its next possession Boise State rolled 92 yards to score, taking a punt on its own eight-yard line. The big play was a 40-yard sprint by Brianman and the drive ended when Fred Goode went over from the seven. The extra point was missed.

Before the end of the first quarter, Rote booted a 38-yard field goal that made it 16-6.

Reno managed its last points midway through the second period when it trapped quarterback Greg Stearn in the end zone for a safety. After the kick, Resolovich intercepted at the 49 and returned it to the Reno 40. A pass to Mike Holton carried to the five but a clip and two sacks of Stearn took the ball back to where on fourth down Rote booted a 42-yard field goal. He had a 45-yard try in the closing seconds but it was well short.

Reno made two marches in the second half, the first midway through the third quarter. It carried to the BSU 14 before an interception ended that and the Broncos went driving again. Shawn Beeson culminated that with a one-yard plunge with 12:51 left in the game.

Reno replied with a drive to the 15 before the Broncos defense stiffened again and the offense rolled to the Reno 23. Arles was short with a field goal attempt there.

The win may have cost the Broncos since sophomore starting quarterback Dee Pickett sustained a suspected concussion in the second half and was taken to a hospital for precautionary examination.

Shoshone nabs volleyball title

WENDELL — The Shoshone Indians marched to victory in the northside district class B volleyball tournament Saturday night by defeating Camas County.

The Indians took the decisive game 15-13, 15-12 to wind up undefeated.

The result sends Shoshone against Hagerman in a seeding playoff Monday night. The game probably — although not definitely — will be played at Wendell about 7:30 p.m. Both coaches had indicated a preference for the Wendell site.

Monday's playoff decides only which goes as the top seed to the state playoffs in Pocatello next Saturday.

Camas County fought back into the finals Saturday by defeating Wendell 14-16, 15-13, 16-10. The Musers had sustained their first setback in the semi-finals Thursday night when Shoshone won in three games. Wendell won twice, Thursday night, ousting Carey and Richfield in the loser bracket to move against Camas County in Saturday's semi-final.

In the favorite portion, Wendell played four times Saturday and wound up with the title. Wendell was dropped 15-7, 15-9 by Carey in the winner bracket semifinals and after Shoshone ousted Richfield, the Trojans came

Arizona St. wins

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Dennis Sproull's passing, good for a pair of touchdowns, and long kick returns by Ron Washington and John Harris boosted Arizona State to a 31-15 Western Athletic Conference victory over New Mexico Saturday night.

The Sun Devils, 2-1 in conference play and 2-4 overall, showed a consistent offense for the first time this season despite a field muddled by earlier rains.

The Sun Devils wasted no time, scoring on their first possession after Washington returned the opening kickoff-65 yards to the New Mexico 25. Sproull hit John Jefferson for an 8-yard TD.

Four Sproull aerials accounted for 71 yards of a 75-yard drive later in the opening period with Sproull getting the final yard on a quarterback sneak.

After Brad Kilbuck recovered a fumble by UNM's Mike Williams on the Lobo 47, Sproull threw a 21-yard scoring pass to Mark Lovett on the first play of the second period.

49ers blank Atlanta

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers converted three Atlanta mistakes into a safety, field goal and one-yard touchdown smash by Kermit Johnson Saturday night for a 15-0 shutout over the Falcons and their sixth victory in seven games.

As in the last three games, the 49ers' defense dominated play. The defenders had eight more quarterback sacks for a season total of 37, held the Falcons to only one first down in the first half and now have not allowed a touchdown in three games.

The shutout was the second in the last three games for San Francisco and kept the 49ers in first place in the NFC West with a 6-1 record. The victory was the 49ers' fifth in a row while the Falcons, Houston underdogs, took their fourth consecutive loss and slipped to 1-6.

Steve Mike-Mayer booted a 20-yard field goal in the second quarter after an Atlanta penalty set up San Francisco at the Falcon 34 and Johnson wound up a five-play, 36-yard drive with San Francisco's only touchdown with 1:08 left in the third.

Montana St. offense buries Idaho 29-14

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — Montana State's Bobcats piled up 477 yards in total offense Saturday in registering a crucial, 29-14 Big Sky Conference victory over the Idaho Vandals.

Led by a fleet of handrunning backs, the Bobcats rushed for 339 yards in maintaining their first place in NCAA Division II rushing. Tailback Tom Kostuba ground out 413 yards and bolted for one 40-yard touchdown to lead the Bobcat ground game.

MSU quarterbacks Paul Dennehy and Keith Swenson riddled the Vandal defense with pinpoint passes, three of them to senior split end Bryan Flaig for 89 yards and one second-quarter touchdown.

MSU jumped to a 14-0 lead on a one-yard run by Dennehy and a 16-yard scoring pass from Dennehy to Flaig before Idaho drove 91 yards midway in the second period to narrow the gap to 14-7. Place-kicker Jeff Murl hit a 25-yard field goal to give MSU a 17-7 halftime edge.

Winless Weber rips ISU 34-7

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Quarterback Rod Backwaldt ran for three touchdowns and passed for 135 yards Saturday to pace the Weber State Wildcats to a 34-7 Big Sky Conference win over Idaho State.

The Wildcats won their first game of the year after Tuesday's announcement that coach Dick Gwinn is quitting at the end of the season. It was Gwinn's third win since coming to Weber.

Backwaldt, a senior from Layton, Utah, scored on an eight yard sweep and a one yard plunge in the first period and scampered 60 yards up the middle in the second quarter to give WSC a 21-0 lead.

The Bengals got on the scoreboard in the second period as quarterback Steve Helzer scored on a one yard keeper. With two minutes to play in the half, Wildcat fullback Mark Whitire ran in from 12 yards out to make 28-7 at intermission.

After a scoreless third period, Weber got a pair of fourth quarter field goals from Mike Korvas of 38 and 28 yards.

Backwaldt ran the ball eight times for 80 yards and completed 11 of 16 passes for 135 yards. Idaho State's Kevin Wellard rushed 21 times from his fullback slot for 170 yards. WSC is now 1-0 on the season and 1-3 in Big Sky action. ISU drops to 1-6 and 1-2.

Idaho to get four anadromous fish plants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four fish hatcheries will be built on the Snake River in Idaho and a second outlet will be installed at Lucky Peak Dam as a result of a bill signed into law Friday by President Ford.

The hatcheries, part of an eight-hatchery system on the Snake River, designed to rebuild depleted steelhead and salmon runs, will supply enough fingerlings to insure an annual return of more than 130,000 adult fish.

The hatcheries are planned to mitigate the effects of four federal dams on the lower Snake. Cost of the program is estimated at $54.4 million.

Funds for the projects will probably not be appropriated until at least 1977.

The Water Resources Development Act also authorized the second outlet at Lucky Peak Dam to control river flow and allow repairs on the first outlet. Other projects include building a $432 million powerhouse at McNary on the Columbia River; building a new four-lane Lewiston-Clarkston bridge across the Snake River; authorization to lower the reservoir level behind the Upper Baker Dam to provide additional flood protection during the winter; and removal of the Lake Coeur d'Alene shoreline from control of the Corps of Engineers, placing control with the State of Idaho.

Stanford tops WSU

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Running back Gary Lynn plunged one yard to break a 16-16 tie in the second quarter and led Stanford to a 22-16 Pacific Eight Conference victory over a scrappy, game Washington State University Saturday. Ryan's winning run capped a 74 yard, 14 play scoring drive which ate up most of the last six minutes of the game, leaving Washington State on the short side of the clock in a seessaw battle.

Huskies drop Oregon

SEATTLE (UPI) — Freshman tailback Joe Steele ran 72 yards for one touchdown and scored another on a two-yard jaunt to lead Washington to a 14-7 victory over Oregon in Pacific-8 Conference play Saturday.

Steele's 72-yarder came late in the third quarter, right after Oregon had tied the game when Webfoot quarterback Jack Henderson passed 56 yards to flanker Tom Cafferly.

This brand new siding from Johns-Manville doesn't do what other sidings do. (And that's why it's so much better.)

Doesn't show scratches. Driftgrain's color goes all the way through, so scrapes don't show.

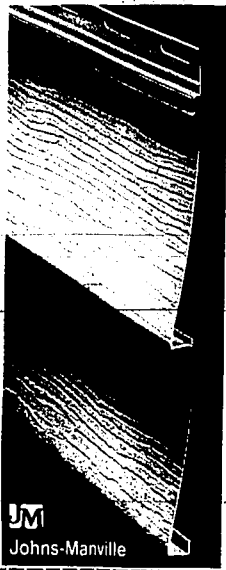

Doesn't rust or corrode. Unlike metal siding, vinyl siding is resistant to weather.

Doesn't dent. Hail and baseballs make their marks on metal siding, but not on vinyl.

Doesn't peel, blister, chip or crack. The color in Driftgrain is 40 times as thick as the color on painted siding.

Doesn't ever need repainting. Maintenance-free vinyl is the only siding that never needs repainting.

Doesn't rot. Vinyl is totally resistant to water.

Doesn't show its age. All siding looks good when it's new. Driftgrain stays that way.

Doesn't sound like a drum when it hails. Vinyl siding is much quieter than metal siding in a hailstorm.

Doesn't interfere with your TV. Metal siding can adversely affect your TV reception. Not vinyl.

Doesn't conduct electricity. Vinyl siding is safe during electrical storms.

Doesn't support combustion. Protecting your family and belongings is always important.

Refugee accuses U. S. of torture

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A Chilean refugee has accused the U.S. State Department of lying in a report released this week on alleged torture of political prisoners in Chile by the rightist junta.

"There are many prisoners now living in this country who could testify to what has happened in the prisons and that there were many North Americans involved," Thursday said Juan Carlos Cuevas Jimenez, 36, through an interpreter.

Cuevas, who now lives in Rhode Island, last spring released an 11-page document outlining alleged torture of political prisoners.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., requested a State Department investigation into the allegations and Tuesday said he was not satisfied with the department report.

Pell said he had not received an answer to his request for information on what the department was doing to protest torture and other violations of human rights in the South American country.

The report said the Cuevas document contained "a mixture of truth, exaggerations, lies and speculations."

Cuevas said the State Department wanted to discredit the document because it charged that American armed forces supervised interrogation and torture of political prisoners in Chile in 1973 and 1974.

He said the document was written by 70 prisoners in the Tres Alamos prison in Santiago and smuggled out of Chile last February in the shoes of a former prisoner.

"In general, the document reflects a great deal of political motivation intended to attract attention to the drafters and to discredit the Chilean government," the State Department report said. "It does not strike one as an objective, investigatory paper written from a humanitarian viewpoint."

Highway department sets safety check

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Transportation Department, Bureau of Highway Safety, will conduct a study to determine the mechanical condition of randomly selected vehicles in the Twin Falls area today through Wednesday.

The study will entail roadside motor vehicle inspections using a mobile motor vehicle inspection facility. Local Law enforcement officers are assisting in coordinating the study while the team conducts inspections.

Vehicle drivers participating in the roadside study will be given a copy of their vehicle's inspection report form. Drivers will be urged to correct any defects which are found but no citations for vehicle defects will be given at the study location.

Tree sales clarified

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — An official of Idaho Forest Industries says he doesn't think last week's U.S. Forest Service order halting timber sales on U.S. Forest property will cause any major problems.

"I think the language came out a little bit strong in the order but we'd be expecting the action," said Mike Welling, forestry resource manager for IFI.

"This doesn't mean actual logging will be shut down and I don't really see any major problems."

"It comes as a result of language in the new Forest Management Act requiring sealed bids and the reworking of some regulations in the 1957 Organic Act. I think the effect will be very short term."

Bad spring weather brings fall green

TWIN FALLS — Businesses in Twin Falls, Elmore and Lincoln counties are eligible for special financial assistance from the Small Business Administration (SBA) as a result of weather damage last spring and summer.

The SBA has announced five counties, including the three Magic Valley areas, have been declared natural disaster areas as a result of late spring freezes, severe wind and hail storms which damaged crops and other property late last spring and during the summer.

The business losses may make owners eligible for assistance under the Economic Injury Disaster Loan Program.

Verne Leighton, acting district director for the SBA, Boise, said businesses which were adversely affected by the weather conditions have until July 8, 1977, to apply with the Boise SBA office for special working capital assistance to restore or continue their businesses.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has declared disastrous the damage from the hail and high winds July 18 in Elmore County, freezes June 12 and 26 in Lincoln County, and the hailstorms of July 18, Aug. 2 and Aug. 4 in Twin Falls County.

Flood claims rapped

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — The release of names and amounts of claims paid to Teton Disaster victims by the Bureau of Reclamation attracted Friday the criticism of Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho. McClure said the continuous disclosure of the individual claimants' names and the amount paid leaves the flood victims wide open for every salesman in the area and places flood victims in the position of having their personal affairs made public. "The Church-McClure Teton Dam Compensation bill does not require continuous, periodic disclosure of the claimants and the amount of the claims," McClure said. McClure said the bill, "does require that the claims and some information be reported to the Congress at the end of the year."

That is so that we might keep tabs on the Bureau of Reclamation claims process," he said.

"Surely the taxpayers have a right to know where their money is being spent but we are dealing with these people's lives," McClure said.

He said, "I sincerely hope that area newspapers will show enough responsibility and not publish column after column of claimants' names and the amount of their claims."

Beef promotion

Seniors benefit from promotion

FILER — Senior citizens in Twin Falls County are benefiting from the Desert Gold CowBelle's beef promotion program. Carla Linder, member of the CowBelle senior citizen committee, presented a gift certificate in the amount of $25 each to the Filer Senior Citizens Center Thursday.

The certificates are for the purchase of beef by the centers to be served during the semi-weekly meals at the center and to add nutritional values to these meals. Other certificates have been presented by the committee to senior citizen centers in Kimberly, Twin Falls and Buhl.

Mrs. Leslie Holm, chairman of the committee presented the gifts to the Ageless Senior Citizens in Kimberly and Hansen and to the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center.

Marjorie Anderson presented a $25 beef certificate to the West End Senior Citizen Center, Buhl for the Buhl and Castleford area residents and Mrs. Linder made the presentation in Filer. She said the gift certificates can be used anywhere beef is sold.

GIFT certificates to provide beef for weekly meals at the Filer Senior Citizens Center are presented by Carla Linder, Deseret Gold CowBelle member to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thomas and Marian Vincent, all from left. The program is part of a beef promotion project of the cattlemen's organization.

Not new

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Campaign dirty tricks and lavish promises are nothing new, according to a University of Idaho professor who has found 2,000-year-old political strategy books.

Dr. Cecelia Luschnig said she sees similarities between then and now.

Luschnig said Cicero may have been involved in campaign dirty tricks during his bid for the Roman Consulate in 65 B.C. Shades of Donald Segrell.

"The chief dirty tricks of Roman times were bribery, graft and collusion."

In a book attributed to Quintus, Cicero's younger brother, he suggests that if a candidate can't do something for someone, refusal should be gracious, but it is best never to refuse at all.

"Life rather than refuse," Quintus recommended. "People want promises, especially that are lavishly made."

Insurance

NEW YORK (UPI) — More and more people are beginning their insurance programs at an earlier age, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. A council survey showed that whereas 21 per cent of those under 25 bought their own life insurance four years ago, by this year the percentage had risen to 24 per cent.

Teen girls smoke more than ever

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The teen-aged girl smoker is the newest target of the American Cancer Society's anti-smoking campaign. Dr. Robert W. Jampilis, a chest surgeon from Palo Alto, told reporters Thursday that California will take the lead in a nationwide education program aimed at reversing the trend. "Smoking seems to be turning into an epidemic habit," Jampilis said. "What this shows is that we're not getting the job done properly."

Board studies survey

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education's Post-secondary Education Advisory Council will meet in Boise Monday to discuss results of legislative and educational surveys and to plan future activities.

Dr. Helen Werner, associate state superintendent of public instruction for federal programs, will outline findings of the 1976 survey of all post-secondary offerings not include in higher education institutional curriculum.

The advisory council undertook the study as part of postsecondary planning.

The initial response indicated:

- Religious institutions offer 94 per cent of post-secondary programs.
- There were 116,792 Idahoans served by programs, outside of the regular curriculum of colleges and universities.
- That 44 per cent of those served were persons with high school educations while 27 per cent had college educations.
- The social sciences and humanities, home economics and home arts and religion had the most intensive coverage.
- The advisory council, which assists the board in its capacity as Idaho's Post-secondary Education Commission, also asked legislators to identify information they think they need to make decisions on higher education.
- Survey results will be presented by council member Dr. Patricia Dorman, chairman of the Boise State University Department of Social and Urban Studies.

Nader scores firms

LONDON (UPI) — American consumer activist Ralph Nader said Friday that Britain should determine if its economic system "encourages innovation — or just—shuffles power from public to private or private to public hands."

Speaking at a London news conference, Nader and colleague Mark Green called for an international consumer network like that of multinational corporations.

Multinational corporations are the target of Nader and Green's latest book, "Taming the Giant Corporation." They advocate the rewriting of U.S. corporate laws which they say affect the entire world.

New laws are needed, Nader said, because U.S. regulatory agencies are not enforcing present laws.

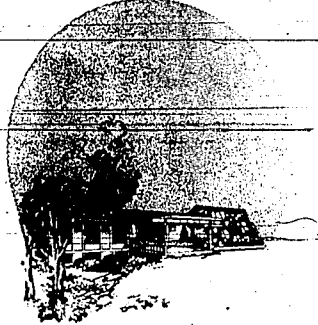

"They are often indentured to the industry they're supposed to regulate," he said.

Nader and Green charged that multinational corporations "crimes" include polluting, neglecting worker health and safety, not paying sufficient tax coercion of entire communities and monopolistic practices like consumer fraud and price fixing.

They advocate new law that would force multinationals to make full disclosures of operations and to decentralize. It would allow citizens government-subsidized access to the courts against the corporations and would give shareholders greater rights in running companies.

Nader criticized the monopolistic nature of Britain's nationalized industries, saying they stifle innovation and a free market place.

Gem pay proposal explained

BOISE (UPI) — The executive secretary of the Idaho Public Employees Association said Tuesday a proposed pay plan for state employees would result in some employees receiving large salary increases with others receiving little if any increase.

Steve Swadley, the executive secretary, said the association will ask the Idaho Personnel Commission to adopt a plan which guarantees every employee at least five per cent unless their salary currently leads prevailing rate.

He said the Personnel Commission will receive Friday a modified pay compensation plan proposed by a committee of legislators and department heads created as a result of legislative action last winter.

Swadley said the proposal will include recommendations for salary adjustments totaling over $7 million for state employees to be submitted to the legislature for approval.

But Swadley said this would be an injustice to some employees because they would come out on the short end while others are receiving big increases.

Swadley also said the association had requested the Personnel Commission to hold a public hearing and receive oral and written testimony prior to adopting the pay plan as the overall compensation plan required by law for state employees.

New national beef cattle group under formation to provide clout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new single national beef cattle organization is being formed to give cattlemen more clout in government and political affairs.

Although talks toward consolidation of the American National Cattlemen's Association and the National Livestock Feeders Association have been underway for almost a year, the joint venture took a giant step this week in Kansas City with announcement of preliminary plans for the merger.

If the final plans are approved by the boards and membership of both groups, the nation's beef cattle industry will be represented by a single national spokesman — the National Cattlemen's Association — beginning next September.

It would represent approximately 275,000 professional cattlemen in all segments and areas of the beef cattle industry, which alone represents about one-fifth of all farm marketing cash receipts.

The respective ANCA and NLFAs boards of directors met just before the Kansas City announcement, and while they did not formally approve the consolidation, reaction was generally favorable.

Playing key roles in the formulation of initial merger plans were ANCA president Wray Finney of Ft. Cobb, Okla.; NLFAs president Don Hunter of Centerville, S.D.; Gordon Van Vleet of Plymouth, Calif.; and Milton Brown of Mt. Pleasant, Mich. Van Vleet and Brown are immediate past presidents of the ANCA and NLFAs respectively.

The ANCA currently has individual members and 46 affiliated state, cattle and 14 national breed associations. Founded in 1894 with a largely western membership, ANCA spread nationwide over the years as a result of industry developments. ANCA is now headquartered in Denver.

The NLFAs, organized in 1916, represents livestock producers and feeders in 20 states, with primary concentration in the north central region on area with 65 percent of the fed cattle marketed annually.

Based in Omaha, the group has nine state-affiliated associations.

Under the consolidation, the new association would have 52 affiliated state associations and the 14 national breed associations.

A 10-member study committee recommended the new headquarters be based in Denver, with offices in Omaha and Washington. The president and first vice president of the new group would continue to be working cattlemen.

In a joint statement, the two groups said the purpose of the new organization would be to:

- Represent and speak for all cattlemen nationally on public and economic affairs.
- Create and maintain the economic and political climate that "will" give individual members the opportunity to earn optimum returns on their investments within the free enterprise system.
- Provide members with economic information and other services that can help them improve their management decisions.

In particular, the groups said they both "favor freedom from government intervention with the livestock industry's competitive market system."

"With increasing pressures on the industry, it is imperative that cattlemen have more clout in government and political affairs," they said.

"There is a need for a stronger, more unified representation of cattlemen as a commodity group."

Final consolidation plans are scheduled to be presented to the ANCA and NLFAs boards about Jan. 1, and if approved, would be submitted to the membership of each association in February.

Although the merger would not occur formally until September, both groups plan to maintain a close working relationship in the meantime.

Gem pinto beans down this week

TWIN FALLS — California bean markets show Idaho pinto beans selling for $14.50 at this time last year.

Great northern beans were down slightly from a week ago at $15.75 to $16.50 compared to last week's $16 to $16.50. Last year at this time they sold for $21 to $22.

Small reds remained steady at $16 to $17 while a year ago, they sold for $24 to $25.

"Pinks" sold from $14.75 to $15.50 compared to a slightly higher figure of $13.25 to $15.50 last week. A year ago, they sold for $22.50 to $23.

In California, baby lima beans held steady at $17 to $17.50. Large limas held steady around $16.

Blackeye prices in California were sharply higher at $30.50 to $31.50.

California pinks remained steady at $15.50 while light trading in small whites ranged at $22 to $22.50. And light red kidney beans were slightly lower at $21 to $21.50.

Fewer cattle in feedlots

BOISE (UPI) — There were fewer cattle and calves in Idaho feedlots Oct. 1 than July 1 but well ahead of a year ago, the State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Thursday.

The agency reported 187,000 in feedlots Oct. 1, which was 3,000 below July 1 but 9,000 above Oct. 1, 1975.

The service noted the number on feed Oct. 1 was not strictly comparable with the July 1 number as one feedlot changed operation from a starting or warm-up type to a finishing lot. It noted warm-up cattle are not included in the Cattle on Feed report.

Despite persistent pockets of drought that damaged bumper crops, particularly in the upper Great Plains, the USDA estimated the year's wheat crop at 2.1 billion bushels, the second highest in the nation's history.

Soybeans, another important ingredient in animal feed, didn't fare so well. A victim of both bad weather and fewer acres, the soybean harvest was estimated at 1.25 billion bushels, down 2 per cent from September estimates and 18 per cent below the 1975 mark.

Hefty carryover stocks at the end of last year have kept the soybean supply adequate but tight according to USDA analysts.

Farmers win in weather battle

CHICAGO (UPI) — American farmers apparently have scored another victory in their never-ending battle with the weather.

But it didn't come without casualties. Wintering droughts in many areas trimmed millions of bushels off potential supplies of grain.

Nevertheless, the Agriculture Department now estimates that based on Oct. 1 field conditions, the nation's corn crop will be a record 5.87 billion bushels. Although this is one-half of 1 per cent below the 5.89 billion bushels predicted in September, it would be 2 per cent greater than last year's 5.77 billion bushels.

The corn harvest is a key barometer of future food prices since it is the primary feed used in the production of beef, poultry and dairy products. Abundant supplies should mean good news at the supermarket.

But a panel of grain experts, who reviewed the department's forecast for reporters at the Chicago Board of Trade, said the soybean estimate was less than the trade had expected.

As a result, they predicted soybean futures prices would continue to be bullish.

They agreed with the USDA, however, that the over-all crop report won't send real food prices spiraling.

Dawson Ahall, the USDA's top staff economist, said the October report calls for no major changes in the department's previous outlook for food prices.

That forecast calls for this year's food prices to average about 3 per cent above 1975 and those for the first half of 1977 to be about 2 per cent to 4 per cent above the levels of this year's first half.

Farmers can get lower interest on loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers and ranchers can now borrow more money at lower emergency interest rates to cover losses caused by natural disasters.

Acting Agriculture Secretary John Knebel has issued revised rules to govern such loans handled by the Farmers Home Administration.

Farm emergency loans are made to cover the actual loss in a disaster and are repayable at a five per cent interest rate.

If additional funds are necessary to restore production on a farm or ranch to pre-disaster levels, it is extended at the higher rates prevailing in the private market for comparable credit.

Losses normally are determined by measuring actual production on a disaster-damaged farm against average yield of the farm.

Knebel said under the new provisions a farm's production of crops or livestock will be figured as the average of its four high years out of the five years immediately preceding the disaster, instead of all five years as previously. That will allow a farmer or rancher to throw out the worst year of the five.

In addition, a farmer may use the county's Crop Reporting Service average for four out of the five years immediately preceding the disaster in establishing his expected annual production of a crop not sold for cash.

That allows a farmer to establish a farm for feed production even if he has not kept records on his farm because he used his feed crop to feed his own livestock.

A farmer who keeps such records, however, may base this production average on his data if it would exceed that for the county as a whole.

For any year within the five preceding the disaster that a farmer lacks crop or livestock production records, he may substitute the figure for the lowest production year for which he does have records. If he has no record for the five years, he may use the county average.

Lastly, farmers who have applications pending or have received loans covering disaster losses that occurred during the 1976 crop year may have their losses reconsidered under the new provisions.

disaster losses that occurred during the 1976 crop year may have their losses reconsidered under the new provisions.

Farmers view

WARREN GROSSCOTT, Muncie, Ind., who works 15 hours a day getting in his harvest, when asked that he thinks of the Ford-Carter debates, said he thought President Ford's decision to ask for the resignation of Earl Butz "may have hurt Ford in some places among the farmers because everybody thought a lot of him." (UPI)

Bird repellent devised

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Fruit growers take heart. Those birds that eat your cherries every year soon may find the berries distasteful.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has developed a chemical to use as a bird repellent for a variety of soft-fleshed fruit crops — like cherries, apples, pears and peaches.

The chemical, methiocarb, has been tested by the service at its Denver research center where scientists found it successful. It now must pass tests by the Environmental Protection Agency.

If the chemical passes the EPA tests, it could be placed on the market for use by farmers and even homeowners with a few trees, according to service spokesman Tom Smylie.

"The EPA will see if there are any effects on other species and if there is any contamination of people or animals," Smylie said. "We don't anticipate any because we have done all the tests already."

The chemical, when applied to the fruit, makes the birds briefly ill. The only lasting effect on the birds is to train them not to eat the fruit, Smylie said.

"This way we can keep the birds out of those fields until they are ready to be harvested," he said. "We don't want to kill these birds and we haven't had any mortality."

Smylie said the same principle was attempted to keep coyotes from attacking sheep, by spraying the sheep with a chemical that made the predators ill. But he said the tests have not yet been successful.

Food rationing talk scored

LONDON (UPI) — Talk of food rationing being introduced in Britain in the not-too-distant future is "unnecessarily alarmist," the leader of National Farmers Union said Friday.

But Sir Henry Plumb, farmers' union president, wanted to warn that present policies would in the end produce severe food shortages unless swift action were taken to stimulate production. He said it was time that farmers told the people what was happening.

"We know how perilous our position has become," Sir Henry said. "The people should be told how serious things are in agriculture, and we must do it if the government is unwilling to face the facts."

Sir Henry, speaking in Pembroke, added "We are now dealing with ministers, trade union leaders and others who continue to believe that unless food prices are kept down, the social contract is in peril."

In fact, he said, the exact opposite is the case. "If present policies are not changed, very quickly, farm output will be cut just when imported food is becoming increasingly expensive," he said.

Sir Henry wondered how long it would be before the government realized that it was speeding — "ever more quickly" — down a slippery slope that would lead to agricultural and national disaster.

"If production falls, then we shall pay through the nose with a weak pound for butter, bacon, beef and other products when the common market gets fed up with subsidizing us to the tune of 1.5 million pounds ($2.55 million) a day, he said.

Extermination suspected

SACMÓN, Idaho (UPI) — A spokesman for the Humane Society says Challis-area residents may be planning to exterminate wild horses during the hunting season and wants the Bureau of Land Management to increase security.

F.L. Dantzer, director of field services and investigations for the society, sent the warning in a letter to the state BLM office. He asked for greater protection for the horses.

Lincoln, Cassia teams winners

BURLEY — Land judging teams from Lincoln and Cassia County won honors in the statewide contest for 4-H and Future Farmers of America here Thursday.

The contest, sponsored by the University of Idaho Extension Service, was open to 4-H and FFA teams from throughout the state with some 160 young students participating. Judging involved not only land and soil quality, but determining the best and most productive use to which the land can be put. Charles A. Painter, extension soil specialist, said.

The top FFA team from Shoshone was under the direction of Gall Serr, adviser. Students included David Kener, Martin Kidner, Dwin Scott and Curt Kidner.

Second place team was the West Minico team with DeVere Burton as adviser. Members include Doug Scott, Jerry Schuch, Larry Abo and Mike Cano.

In third place was the Parma team under the direction of Fred Faulk, adviser, with members Vicki Casper, Brian Faulk, Dale Warren and Mike Thomas.

Top individuals in the FFA category were Larry Abo, west Minico; Mike Thomas, Parma, and Dwin Scott, Shoshone.

Winning Cassia County 4-H team members included Scott Fowles, Allen Klor, Phillip George and Steve Sargent. Top individual was Steve Sargent.

Top FFA advisers included Allen Stastny, Valley High School, Eden, and Dean Langley, Meridian High School.

Painter said the Soil Conservation District of Cassia County assisted in the contest and the Burley Chamber of Commerce provided trophies to the winners.

Lake algae kill animals

SPOKANE (UPI) — That algae bloom that killed several farm animals and forced closure of Long Lake Oct. 2 is still present in the water.

Spokane County Public Health Officials predicted the bloom would go away with cooler temperatures and rain.

However, the cooler temperatures alone have not rid the foamy substance from the shores of the Lake northwest of the city and contamination warnings remain posted.

Health officials said a good rainfall would probably disperse the problem. But no rain is expected.

Scientists from Eastern Washington State College, meanwhile, continue to test samples of the water in an attempt to isolate the cause.

Dairy farms 'Inefficient'

ALBUQUERQUE, Calif. (UPI) — Edward Fiez, University of Idaho extension dairy specialist, told the California Dairy Industry Association this week that high-priced dairy cows and expensive milking equipment are not being managed efficiently on many dairy farms.

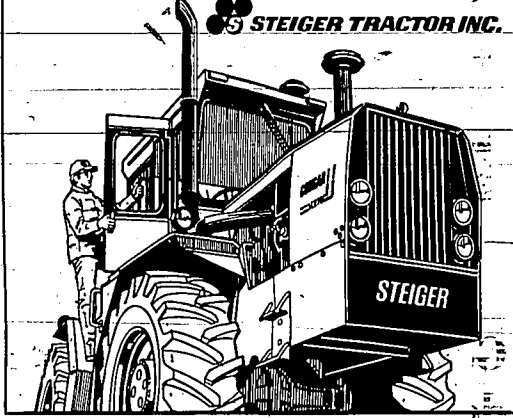

"A new approach to milking management is needed. Mistakes in milking management become very costly when we are dealing with high-priced cows and equipment that perform well only when they are handled carefully and intelligently."

Long trip faces couple of voters

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ascena live in a political no-man's-land. Their farm home is only three miles from Bliss and they have a Bliss telephone number. But since their farm is on the south side of the Snake River, they reside in Twin Falls County. So the Ascenas will vote for Twin Falls County candidates, but for a state legislative representative from District 22, which is primarily aligned to Elmore County, an area with which they and their neighbors have absolutely no contact.

"We're in a funny situation," Ascena says. "We don't know many people in Twin Falls and don't know anyone at all in Elmore. We do know a few people in Gooding County, but we can't vote there."

Instead, the Ascenas, along with an estimated 12 to 15 families in the farthest northwest tip of Twin Falls County, vote at the Deep Creek Grange Hall west of Buhl, which is 35 miles from their homes. They are part of the 25-mile-long Deep Creek Precinct.

But while having to travel that distance to the precinct polling place is inconvenient, it sometimes can't be helped, given the geography of Twin Falls County, according to Helen Warberg, deputy clerk in charge of voting and registration in the Twin Falls County clerk's office.

She says voters residing on the south edge of Twin Falls County have at least 15 miles to go to vote at Hansen, since the Rock Creek Precinct was dissolved because there were so few people "it was silly" to continue it.

What both Mrs. Warberg, candidates of Legislative District 22 and most of the voters involved agree is "really stupid" is that the Deep Creek Precinct has been summarily divided into two legislative districts by an imaginary line running westward from Silgar's Resort in Hagerman Valley.

Everything to the south of the line is in District 21, which contains the westward half of Twin Falls County, while the northwestern tip of the precinct including the new Bell Rapids development, was put in District 22. The division occurred two years ago to fulfill the federal mandate of one-man, one-vote.

Mrs. Warberg says Twin Falls County election officials have to take an extra voting machine to the Deep Creek polling site programmed for Legislative District 22.

The politically "estranged" situation has concerned Aldrich Bowler, Bliss, the one legislative candidate in District 22 who is not from Mountain Home or Hammett. He has obtained permission for the "orphaned" voters in the far tip of Deep Creek precinct to both register and vote by mail.

If they will write the Twin Falls County clerk's office and request a registration form they can fill it out and get an absentee ballot by return mail.

But they must do so by Oct. 26, according to Mrs. Bowler, the candidate's wife. She said Mrs. Pete Weir, a former Hagerman resident who with her husband has just moved to a new home four miles south of Bliss, is now phoning her far flung neighbors to inform them they can vote by absentee ballot.

The Bowlers feel that since these voters live so far from their own precinct polling place they should be given special permission to use the absentee voting procedure.

The Deep Creek precinct is bounded along the north and east by the winding Snake River which forms the boundary between Twin Falls and Gooding counties.

Last-minute registration lasts through Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — Registration books closed Friday night at the homes of county registrars.

But citizens can still register through Wednesday at the county clerk's office.

Helen Warberg, deputy county clerk, said registration has been extremely heavy for the coming Nov. 2 general election. "Deadline for registration is Wednesday."

"I can't believe there are that many people in our county who were not registered, she said.

Although a tabulation has not been made on new registrations, Mrs. Warberg said there were about 200 new registrations on her desk Friday, representing those who registered in the past two days only.

She said persons who have moved and will be voting in a new precinct must register by Monday if they are to be on the books in their new precinct by election day.

Registration listings are now handled by computer, she said, and new registrations are fed into the computers and classified according to correct precincts.

"This takes a little time," she said. "We need to have our registrations to the computer early in the week to begin the process, but the law allows prospective voters to register through Oct. 27 which will give us time to get the late ones on the books."

This year registration closes Wednesday night and some of the late forms will go to the computers Thursday, giving only Friday to be completed.

Election supplies including registration books will go to the election workers and polling places on Monday for the Tuesday election.

She said there is a good chance the clerk's staff may have to work through the weekend to handle the last-minute rush if there is heavy registration at the clerk's office.

Previous election laws called for registration closure at 10 days prior to election which gave workers an opportunity to make up registration books and get supplies to election workers several days in advance of the election.

HS students miss curve

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls high school students escaped serious injuries Friday afternoon when a late model vehicle in which they were riding plunged from the Shoshone Falls Road into rocks near the foot of the grade.

Twin Falls county sheriff's officers said the vehicle was driven by Mark Thomas Brooks, 17, who suffered a slight face cut. His passengers included Shannon DeWald, 17, and Dennis Clifford, 17.

Officers said the vehicle was traveling down the grade and the driver failed to negotiate a curve just above a pond near the foot of the grade. The vehicle traveled about 25 feet down the embankment and came to rest suspended on a large rock at the edge of the pond.

A wrecker was able to pull it back up the embankment to the roadway, but the canyon road was blocked for about an hour during the recovery of the vehicle.

The driver told officers he was talking to the passengers and took his eyes from the road briefly and the car dropped over the edge of the roadway.

Elderly TF man hurt in crash

TWIN FALLS — John Hied, 61, Twin Falls, suffered head cuts Saturday morning in a two-car accident at the intersection of Martin Street and Borch Avenue.

City police reported Hied stopped at a stop sign at the intersection and then drove into the path of a northbound vehicle driven by Glenda C. Braga, 54, Twin Falls. Mrs. Braga was not injured.

Officers said Hied was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of face and head cuts and shock. His condition was not serious, officers said.

Taxes set right

TWIN FALLS — The $8.6 million Twin Falls County will raise this year in local property taxes represents a 10.7 per cent increase over last year.

The city of Twin Falls requested $1.7 million in property tax revenue this year and residents will pay $26.72 per $10,000 market value of their real property.

Buhl residents will pay $27.68 per $10,000 market value of their real property to fulfill the city's request for $163,000 in property tax revenue this year.

The city of Kimberly's request for $57,000 in property tax revenue this year and residents will pay $17.31 per $10,000 market value of their real property. Hansen residents will share a tax load of $173.24 per $10,000 market value of their real property to raise the city's request for $18,600 in property tax revenue. And Castleford residents will pay $154 per $10,000 market value of their real property while Filer residents will pay $222.43 this year.

An earlier story in the Times-News mistakenly stated residents of various cities would pay the taxes based on $10,000 assessed valuation of their property, rather than market value. The Times-News regrets the error.

Albertson's sets opening for new TF store

TWIN FALLS — The new Albertson's Inc. store on the old Washington School property at north five-points in Twin Falls will officially open its doors for business Wednesday.

The store, covering 18,000 square feet of space includes all departments such as an in-store bakery, meat, produce and a full line of all grocery and sundry merchandise handled by the Albertson's chain. A large frozen foods section and a separate area featuring wine are part of the design.

The store will also feature a take out delicatessen and a plant department. The building is constructed of cinder block with tinted glass and stone facing.

Sleepy thief gets nabbed

TWIN FALLS — A Filer youth was arrested early Saturday morning on charges of auto theft when officers spotted him asleep in a pickup truck near the Hansen bridge.

State Patrolman Frank Angenson said he had just received a report on a stolen pickup truck out of Twin Falls and about four minutes later spotted a vehicle fitting the description. He found a 17 year old youth asleep behind the wheel.

The vehicle was reported stolen from the Charles Matice service station in Twin Falls about 6:30 a.m. Officers had a suspect in custody by about 7 a.m. Officers said a pistol was also found in the vehicle which did not belong to the vehicle owner.

The store will operate as part of the firm's Idaho Division headed by Dustin Moulton, company vice president. Doug Cahillies will be general store manager with Stan Snares as assistant manager; Scott Lamb, market manager; Dave Pfefferle, produce manager and Bill DeWald bakery manager.

In announcing opening of the new store, Warren McCain, president of Albertson's Inc., said the new Twin Falls facility is designed to provide the best service possible for the total food needs of Albertson's customers.

"We find our customers really appreciate the unique service such as the in-store bakeries and takeout delis," he said.

The Albertson's firm is a regional supermarket chain operating 252 stores in 11 western states. The company also participates as an equal partner with Skaggs Co. Inc. in the Skaggs-Albertson's partnership operating 41 super-drug stores and food drug combination stores in five southern and southeastern states.

Under law, the appeal cannot be set on calendar until bond is set at a hearing and the bond is filed by the corporation.

Transactional analyst plans classes in MV

SUN VALLEY — Most of us are playing out life scripts developed from childhood without realizing it, according to transactional analyst Karen Robertson.

Each of our personalities are "playing games" with one another, seldom communicating honestly with our friends, relations and loved ones, Mrs. Robertson said.

New of us are "taking charge and leading our own lives," she said during an interview here Friday.

"It is important, she said, "to recognize that we always have a choice, that there are always opportunities arising."

Life is a matter of priorities, she said, and individuals should be free to choose which opportunities to take at the appropriate time.

People must recognize, however, they are "playing games" with their life, in many cases holding back each other from achievement.

A basic understanding of the daily transactions in all our lives ideally should be discovered early. Unfortunately, most of us keep the games covered in our unconscious mind to the grave, she added.

She is setting up Transactional Analysis (TA) workshops in Twin Falls and offering classes at the YMCA in effective parenting, assertiveness training, and starting her own private counseling practice there.

She is offering a basic TA workshop in Sun Valley Nov. 5 to 7 at the Kelchum-Sun Valley community school library for $20 per person.

The Friday evening class and the Saturday and Sunday all-day classes will gear toward personality structure, analysis of transactions, games and scripts.

Mrs. Robertson warned that psychological terms will be explained in everyday language.

"We get people to communicate without tearing away at their life histories," she laughed.

Her purpose will be to get people to see how we are all "like movie characters," programmed since childhood to follow a life course designed by parents.

Opening due

WORKERS are putting merchandise on shelves and in cases in the new Albertson's Inc. store on Addison Avenue East in preparation for opening of the supermarket Wednesday. The store features the latest in building design and customer service with 18,000 square feet of floor space.

Synopsis:
Smoky hazy conditions prevailed over the gem state Saturday with many stations reporting reduced visibilities during the afternoon hours. High pressure at the surface and light winds for the most part continue to trap air pollutants and natural smokes and dust near the ground. These conditions are expected to improve slightly today as a weak Pacific storm system will be moving through Idaho, stirring the winds and improving the low-level mixing. A northwesterly flow of wind aloft prevails over the state, moving storm systems through fairly rapidly for the next few days. One system will be moving through today and another is expected again Monday. The Pacific front over the area today will produce very little in the way of clouds or active weather but the front Monday appears to hold some promise of rain in the northern portions of the state. The extended outlook for Southern Idaho Tuesday through Thursday shows unsettled with a threat of showers Tuesday then dry again Highs in the 50s Tuesday.

Growth slows

Auto industry fighting plan to boost gas mileage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The automobile industry is fighting a proposed government requirement that would force it to boost average gasoline mileage to 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985.

Led by General Motors, the giant of the industry, officials call the mandatory fuel economy proposals "misleading," "irresponsible," "reckless," "contrived" and too costly.

meeting the 27.5 mph standard would be so small, so lightweight and so devoid of accessories that the public would drive old cars longer rather than buy the new ones.

"There is no prospect that the fuel savings projected in the study could be realized by computation," Duncombe said. "Mandating fuel efficiency... is fruitless if the customers refuse to buy it."

Industry officials said the study should have considered boosting the price of gasoline as an alternative to imposing efficiency standards.

"All that can be said at this time is that it is very hard to understand how members of an industry can invest $5 to $10 billion in extra capital, can introduce cars with radically new features, can develop and produce totally new engines... and still sell these new products at lower prices than are charged today," Shaekson said.

TWIN FALLS — An Oregonian has moved to Twin Falls to take over duties as news and public affairs director at radio stations KEFP and KEZZ.

Jody Hotka, 26, has worked in radio at The Dalles, Pendleton, and Portland. Since January, 1975, Hotka has been traveling in Europe and the United States.

Hotka graduated cum laude from Lewis and Clark College in Portland with a double major in political science and English literature and has won various writing awards.

Hotka replaces Kelly Klaus in the news position at KEFP. Klaus's duties have expanded to chief engineer for both stations plus air work on KEFP and increased commercial production on both stations.

Mortgage disclosure act won't make desert bloom

By ERNEST HOLENDORPH
N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Home Loan Mortgage Disclosure Act of 1975, as currently administered by the government, is not likely to make urban deserts bloom immediately with credit for house purchases and rehabilitation.

The measure, enacted a year ago, requires that banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions and other mortgage lenders disclose publicly where in each urban metropolitan area they make loans.

Gale Cincotta, head of a coalition of Chicago neighborhood groups that lobbied for the act, and other community activists hoped that such disclosures might be a dramatic weapon against neighborhood redlining.

Recent evidence indicates it may take a while.

They hoped that the federal government, through its agencies that regulate banking and credit, might take the lead in ferreting out redlining — even though the law does not specifically require them to do so.

At a tense meeting earlier this month, some of the activists confronted urban specialists of the Federal Deposit-Insurance-Corp. and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in an office here.

The FDIC regulates thousands of federally insured state-chartered banks. The bank board monitors federal savings and loan associations which in all regions but the northeast provide the vast majority of mortgages for home purchases.

In three hours of haranguing, the neighborhood people tried to get the regulators to promise to collect, collate and publish the information disclosed by the banks and other lenders.

Paul Horvitz, assistant to the chairman of the FDIC, promised to urge his board to collect information from member banks and accept information from other agencies' commitment in a single computer bank. It was hoped that this task could be taken up in short order.

Last week, in an interview, Horvitz said he failed to persuade the board to make a special survey of banks to obtain mortgage information. "We'll collect it over the next 12-months as part of our regular bank examinations," he said. The Home Loan Bank Board does not plan to collect it all at all. And the Federal Reserve Board will not even discuss the issue.

For a number of reasons, the regulators are not very enthusiastic about the disclosure act. "We think that the information disclosed under the act indicates less than it appears to indicate," Horvitz said.

"In this first year under the law, lenders must list mortgages by zip code in each metropolitan area. Later the loans must be listed by census tract, a smaller and more distinct geographic area."

It is presumed that the absence of loans in certain areas will indicate that bankers have redlined or written off certain deteriorating neighborhoods in favor of privileged and "safer" neighborhoods, thus contributing to the decline of the old communities.

Loan information by geographic area does not tell one that, Horvitz said. "You would need to know how many loans were turned down in various areas, as well as information on the physical condition of the neighborhood and the nature of the real estate."

He said most mortgage loan activity was in communities where new houses are being constructed. "Comfortable old neighborhoods may have few mortgage loans simply because nobody is moving," he said, "and that is certainly not a redline situation."

So, would Horvitz have Congress require more information to be disclosed to get at redlining?

"Well, not necessarily," he said. He indicated that if a more involved reporting system were required, the "fragile" mortgage market might be upset. "Many banks, such as your mutual savings banks in New York, might be pushed into other uses of their money — such as the purchase of corporate bonds — if mortgage servicing costs increase too greatly," he said.

A better way to study redlining, Horvitz said, is to pick certain localities where the reported information appears to be most useful for analysis.

Expansion pause termed blessing

WASHINGTON — The current, prolonged pause in the business expansion has made government economists nervous, but some now wonder whether it won't turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

To be sure, as long as total output of goods and services is growing at the sub-par 4 per cent annual rate of the third quarter, there is always a danger that the expansion will lose momentum and stay in the doldrums. The economy has to move ahead at more than 4 per cent if it is to absorb new job seekers and if unemployment is to come down even a little.

But the forecasters are now fairly confident that the pace of business activity will pick up again — after the start of 1977, if not before. They expect stronger retail sales, a step-up in spending for new plant and equipment, and further gains in housing starts to lead the way. During the second half of next year, the economy could be perking along at a healthy clip again.

But this forecast is in sharp contrast to the expectations that were prevailing in the economic community only two or three months ago. And that is the silver lining many would like to find, not before. It had been feared that the brisk upturn that began in the spring of 1975 would have developed such zip that it would be overheating by the end of next year, with numerous shortages and an accelerating inflation. The boom would then top out, and the economy would go into a recession in 1978 — perhaps a severe one.

The scenario has now changed, though, and the pause gets much of the credit. The slower pace of recent months has taken the steam out of the inflationary rise that was beginning to materialize. As a result of the reduced tempo, the rate of inflation has fallen to the lowest level in several years.

Some analysts feel that some of the excesses that crept into the economy in the early 1970s have been substantially reduced. Inflationary psychology has subsided. Badly battered business and consumer confidence is slowly being restored.

Legality of water plan questioned

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — University of Idaho law professor Douglas Grant says the state's Water Plan appears to be headed toward legal stumbling blocks.

Grant told the Idaho Water Resources Research Institute the first major question is whether the state legislature has to act on the plan to put it to work.

Grant said another problem could be the act lacks teeth. "In order to put teeth into it, there must be a system which could prohibit water uses inconsistent with the plan. The plan may have much effect unless steps are taken to assure this."

Germans call man 'super honest American'

IN THE TINY Bavarian village of Lochhausen, near Nuernberg, Germany, banker Ray Bellis (left), Monmouth, Ill., really is a hero. The townspeople and grateful members of the German Oak Gun Club sent him the stien for returning a priceless gold and silver necklace "liberated" by an American soldier after World War II.

MONMOUTH, Ill. (UPI) — In the tiny Bavarian village of Lochhausen, Monmouth banker Ray Bellis is a hero.

"The super honest American," they call him in German Bavaria's newspaper headlines when he returned a priceless gold-and-silver necklace belonging to the town's Oak Rifle Club.

The necklace — a traveling trophy for the club's leading marksmen — disappeared as World War II army units swept through the little village in the Alps near Nuernberg. No one in Lochhausen thought it would ever be seen again.

But then they didn't know what sort of man Ray Bellis is.

"Ever since I picked it up more than 30 years ago, I knew that I would return it to the proper owners sooner or later," said Bellis. "I had many offers from coin collectors who wanted to pay upwards of a few thousand dollars."

"But I always turned them down. In the back of my mind I knew I was going to return it to the friend."

A 60-year-old vice president and cashier of the Monmouth Trust and Savings Bank today, Bellis was a young GI in the 208th Field Artillery — supporting the U.S. division that overran Munich in the dying days of the war — when he came upon the necklace in 1945.

"I bought it off an Infantryman who got tired of carrying it around," he said. "I honestly can't remember what I paid ... but it was a nominal sum."

The necklace is made of rare and valuable German gold and silver coins and medallions — some dating back to the 14th century — on silver chains. It is richly engraved with animal heads and hunting symbols and weighs more than eight pounds.

the war ended and thought off and on about trying to trace the proper owners.

A German woman, who married another GI and settled in Illinois, took a look at the necklace and identified it as an emblem of a hunting or rifle club.

"We went back to Europe four years ago as tourists, and that's when I made up my mind to really try and find the owners. But of course that was easier said than done," said Bellis.

When he returned home he wrote the West German

Embassy in Washington and sent pictures about. Within three months, the embassy traced the necklace to Lochhausen.

Bellis began to correspond with the Oak Rifle Club and shipped the necklace back earlier this year.

Ford signs bill on inspections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Friday signed another batch of legislation, including bills creating a federal-grain-inspection agency, expanding medical care for military veterans and providing new authority to control disposal of hazardous waste.

The bill, among the last Congress passed before adjourning early in October, were approved by Ford as he sought to clear his desk of business before leaving on a final election campaign trip.

In signing the 1976 U.S. Grain Standards Act, Ford said it "fills a real need" to assure domestic and foreign consumers the quality and quantity ordered. In view of evidence that past grain inspection procedures either were improper or inadequate.

He noted recent investigations by the Department of Agriculture and Justice, the FBI and some congressional committees "identified numerous irregularities and instances of malfeasance in our grain inspection and weighing system."

The new bill established the Federal Grain Inspection Service as an arm of the Agriculture Department and will require direct federal involvement in original inspection operations, especially for export sales. Criminal violations will carry a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

In signing the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act, Ford said it "significantly improves the scope of medical care services available" by providing total Veterans Administration benefits for any servicemen with at least a 50 per cent service-connected disability.

Among other provisions, the bill also offered families of disabled veterans a new series of mental health services and Ford said the legislation would help to deliver "high quality medical care for our nation's veterans."

A third bill, the "Resource Conservation and Recovery Act," authorized the Environmental Protection Agency to regulate the flow of hazardous wastes to prevent contamination of ground water and empowered the EPA to issue federal guidelines for state programs for getting rid of solid waste.

In a statement, Ford said disposal of hazardous wastes is "one of the highest priority environmental problems confronting the nation."

Dietrich school modernized

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer
DIETRICH — Supt. Wayne Perron says the 40-year-old Dietrich School building is a good example of how an old structure can be modernized. And he says the remodeling is much cheaper than new construction.

Perron estimated the entire project, which is not yet completed, has cost the district about $2,000. The work has been done over the past several years, so the same project would undoubtedly cost more at today's prices.

The district also realized substantial savings in labor costs since much of the work was done by two persons already on the district payroll — the superintendent and Janitor Cliff Davis. These men have spent a good share of the past several summers on the school remodeling project.

Perron says he believes the individual cost per room would average about $1,000. Remodeling of three former storage areas cost much less, while the classrooms on the first floor, which is about two feet below ground level and had to have additional concrete on the floors, cost more than $1,000.

The sturdy two-level brick and rock structure, which houses all 105 students from kindergarten through high school, was built back in the 1930s.

Perron says he understands the building was constructed during the Works Project Administration (WPA) era of the Roosevelt administration. The school building has withstood time well, but some sections of the interior never had been painted and termites were making themselves at home on the lower floor.

So the "reconstruction" project was launched several years ago with the removal of the flooring downstairs. Solid concrete was found underneath so all that had to be done was to pour a small thickness of new concrete to bring the floor up to its original level and paint it.

Level gradually over the past summers the rooms in the lower level were modernized under the direction of Dale Southwick, farmer and former contractor, assisted by Perron and Davis.

Ceilings were lowered, new modern lighting installed and the old plaster walls covered with wood paneling Perron says he believes paneling is cheaper than painting and does not require as much upkeep. Five of the larger classrooms have been completed as well as three smaller rooms formerly used for storage.

There are still five classrooms left to finish and Perron expects "we will get two or three" rooms completed this next summer.

One former dark, unused storage room has been converted into a well lighted restroom, with attractive washable wall paneling and a large mirror.

Another room on the upper floor has been paneled and wardrobes installed along with the latest audio-visual learning equipment made available by Title I funds. The remodeled room serves as the reading resource room.

Meantime, the 30 some high school and junior high students still study in rooms where the old steam heat registers remain uncovered, but even here bright colors on walls contribute a cheerful touch.

New front doors have been installed with crash bars, the steep stairways have been carpeted and the upstairs floor tiled. The high school students even have a photo lab, made from one of the unused areas. Students also have gained an attractive small meeting room and lunchroom "hangout" from another unused storage area. Corridors have been built where copiers for language and other individual audio studying can be used.

Future work includes changing the lighting and lowering the ceiling in the hallways as well as completing the remodeling of the remaining five rooms. Some minor work has been done in each of the upstairs rooms.

Perron says it "probably will be three or four years" before the last room is paneled and "by that time it probably will be time to start over."

The remodeling costs have come primarily from the plant facilities levy which patrons have approved for some years.

Perron started his teaching career in Dietrich 20 years ago. After spending four years in Aberdeen he returned here about 10 years ago.

Face lifting

GIRLS' Restroom at the Dietrich School, paneled in attractive light blue water resistant wall covering, features a large mirror donated by a school board member. Supt. Wayne Perron estimates the remodeling cost for the restrooms at about $350.

Digitizer machine

DIETRICH Supt. Wayne Perron displays a new digitizer machine which tells the student if his math problem answer is right or wrong. This and other modern learning equipment were purchased with Title I funds.

Remodeled room

FIRST grade room in the basement, or first floor which is only about two feet below ground level in the Dietrich School, has been attractively remodeled. Charlotte Jauregui, teacher, left, and Paj Voloshan, aide, work with students.

Built in 1930s

THE Dietrich School, built in the 1930s by WPA crews, remains sturdy in its basic structure. An attractive lawn and picnic table often are used by residents of the small Lincoln County community. All 105 students attend classes in the two-story brick and rock building.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—

I noticed in one of your columns you mentioned that prednisone causes the body to convert amino acids that make up protein to glucose and raises the level of blood sugar.

Five years ago I went into a diabetic coma because of high blood sugar. The doctors discovered I wasn't diabetic but I did have acromegaly. They removed my pituitary gland two years ago. I was on an 800-calorie diabetic diet, thyroid, cortisone acetate and Premarin. Three months ago they found I was returning blind. I wasn't losing weight. I'm 28, 5 feet 5 and weigh 250 pounds.

My blood pressure jumped from 110 over 90 to 150 over 120. They couldn't find anything else to give me. They left all other medicines and gave me the 10 mg. of prednisone. I had a few more tests done and the doctor said I was in danger of my health by taking the prednisone? Could it be keeping me from losing weight?

Weight problem

Dear Reader—

I'm sure you realize you are a very rare case. Acromegaly is a disease caused by over-production of growth hormone from the pituitary gland under the brain. There are only about 300 new cases a year in the whole United States. In many of these people a form of diabetes is present.

When the problem begins after usual growth is achieved, the hands and feet enlarge, as do other parts of the body but, of course, you cannot grow in height. High blood pressure often goes along with the problem.

Treatment often involves destroying at least part of the pituitary gland by surgery or radiation. Of course, I have no way of knowing how much of your gland was removed.

You needn't worry about the prednisone. It does the same thing the cortisone acetate did for you but it has less of a tendency to cause your body to retain fluid. Both have the action of converting protein to glucose. That will not cause you to have trouble with your weight. The important question is how many calories you eat and how many you use.

Normally the pituitary gland stimulates the thyroid gland, the adrenal cortex (outer shell) and ovaries. I presume you are getting those hormones because your pituitary has been removed and without them you would not be getting enough thyroid hormone or adrenal cortex hormone. It is important that you stay with your program.

All normal people have the capacity to convert amino acids in protein to glucose. So giving you hormones just makes you normal. A case such as yours is often complicated and difficult to manage as I am sure you know from your own experience.

Part of your weight may be related to the increased growth phase you undoubtedly had before you had Isabella coma from your acromegaly. Managing your weight may be a difficult problem regardless of your medications.

To give you a better idea about blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8 on the subject. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Couple marries in formal rites

HANSEN — Ritsuko Suzuki, daughter of Mrs. Kiwa Suzuki Yamagata, Japan, and Dennis Pollard were married Oct. 18 in a formal ceremony in Fall Assembly of God Church.

Rev. Jim Pollard performed the ceremony. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Pollard, Hansen.

The bride was given in-marriage by her father-in-law. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin with a full-length veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and red roses.

Attending the bride was Sherry Phillips, sister of the bridegroom.

Larry Pollard was best man and Beverly Riboades provided music.

The bridegroom, a sergeant in the Marines, had been detached to the Department of State to serve as a Marine security guard in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, in West Africa, and in Tokyo, Japan, where he met Miss Suzuki.

After a short stay with family and friends here, they will travel to Camp Lejeune, N.C., where they will live until he is discharged from the Marines.

Cancer 'bra' designed

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Breast cancer in women soon might be able to be detected through a so-called "super brassiere" designed by a Seattle pathologist.

The bra designer is Dr. Hugh Simpson, pathology consultant at the Royal Infirmary of Glasgow, who is now visiting the University of Minnesota to describe his revolutionary device.

"It offers an exciting prospective," he said "in a telephone interview.

The brassiere resembles a standard bra but each side — or cup — has five thermometers which measure the temperature of the surface of the breasts.

The temperatures are recorded on a memory device not unlike that used in pocket calculators.

"There is, said Simpson, a rhythm in the daily, monthly, yearly and lifetime cycles. Surface temperatures can rise and fall.

"With this device," Simpson said, "we hope to record when the breasts fail to express these rhythms in the normal manner."

"The temperature readings of the bra would be analyzed by computers and when the rhythms do not come through in the normal way, it could show signs of a cancerous tumor," he said.

"It looks esthetically normal, and that's very important," the Scotsman said. "Very little can go wrong with it and it doesn't have any side effects."

Simpson said 6 per cent of American women develop breast cancer.

"It's much higher in Scotland," he said. "In Japan it is 6 per cent lower."

He said the prototype of the brassiere is being developed at a cost of $20,000. A company has agreed to manufacture the bra which, once in mass production, could be sold for about $200.

Linda Kohl, a writer for the St. Paul Dispatch, dubbed the new device "The Blonk Bra."

MV musicians represent Gem in 1976 parade of states

MAGIC VALLEY — Several musicians from the Magic Valley were among those representing Idaho in the 1976 Bicentennial Parade of States held in Washington, D.C. and Philadelphia, Penn. this year.
The group of 174 professional musicians left Boise Sept. 17 after a series of four concerts in the state. The group performed to near capacity audiences in Independence Square, Philadelphia, and at the Kennedy Performance Center for the Fine Arts in Washington, D.C.
Before their return to Boise on Sept. 22, the musicians were treated to a special luncheon commemorating Idaho at the Ryburn Senate Building, and a buffet reception at the Kennedy Arts Center sponsored by Exxon Corp., which appropriated funds for the trip in cooperation with the Idaho State Legislature.
The group spent time sightseeing in the two cities as well as in the Virginia countryside and the Amish country of Pennsylvania.
Before boarding their chartered jet, the musicians had rehearsed in Boise Sept. 12 and 13. They performed at the University of Idaho, Moscow; at the College of Southern Idaho, Twin Falls; in Idaho Falls and in Boise.

Representing Idaho were a chamber symphony orchestra directed by Dr. Floyd Peterson, chairman of the music department at the University of Idaho, Moscow; a chorus directed by Wilbur Elliot, chairman of the music department at Boise State University, and a student marching band directed by William Schink, superintendent of music in the Caldwell school system. The folk ballet of the University at Moscow also performed.
All music played by the state's representatives was written by Idaho composers.
Mrs. Ralph Comstock, Bert Burda, state supervisor for music, and Mrs. Margaret Vincent, Flier, State Federation of Music Clubs president, were instrumental in getting the program organized. They spent five years planning the trip and program.
Magic Valley residents who auditioned and were accepted for the program included Susan Olsen, Clare Gibbs, Ernest Moss and Ted Hadley, symphony; and Dolores Smith, Carol Barsness, John Van Buren, Deborah Stasny and Aileen Hale, chorus.
A TV crew from KUTV, the public television station in Salt Lake City, made a complete program about the trip.

Study shows prudes respond to porno

©Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Pornography produces more passion in prudes than it does in sexual swingers, according to a study of 21 married couples by two Purdue University psychologists.

After a battery of tests and questionnaires had determined their sexual attitudes and behavior, the couples were shown a 10-minute blue movie depicting a man and a woman making love.

The couples who had the most negative attitudes toward sex — reporting fear, guilt and religious proscriptions against sex in their upbringing — also had the most negative reactions to the film.

But although they said they would favor legal restrictions against showing the movie and that they felt the actors were abnormal, immoral and bad — it was the prudes who reported the greatest increase in sexual activity during the two days following viewing of the film.

The behavior of sexual liberals in the study — those who said they were sexually uninhibited — that sex was important, and that they approved of premarital sex and opposed legal restrictions on erotica — apparently were not influenced by the movie.

The sexual conservatives — eroticophobes as the psychologists branded them — were no more aroused during the movie than the eroticophiles, but they carried over their feelings, increasing their level of sexual activity and reaching the same level of activity as the more liberated couples in the sample.

The psychologists who conducted the experiment — William A. Fisher and Donn Byrne — theorized that the differences in behavior may have been the result of a self-fulfilling prophecy.

The eroticophobes believed that pornography is harmful because it can influence behavior — and so for them, seeing a blue movie did indeed result in a higher incidence of intercourse or at least provided the excuse.

Those with the most open and relaxed attitudes toward sexuality are the least likely to be aroused to action by pornography, while those with negative attitudes, are the most likely to channel their feelings of "excitement" from "erotica" into action.

with his ace and try the spade finesse. If it worked he would make his contract; if it lost he would be down at least two tricks. Or he could let the king of diamonds hold and hope to find the hearts 2-2 in which case his third heart would be an entry to his ace of diamonds.

South knew that the chance of a 2-2 break was just 40 percent and a successful finesse 50 percent but he did not want to be two down, so he let the king of diamonds hold and was down one when the heart failed to break.

Boris Shapiro points out that his play was wrong because, if East held the king of spades, he surely would have asked for a spade lead and he had not done that.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The game was match-point duplicate and like many match-point bidders, South tried three notrump rather than a raise to four hearts.

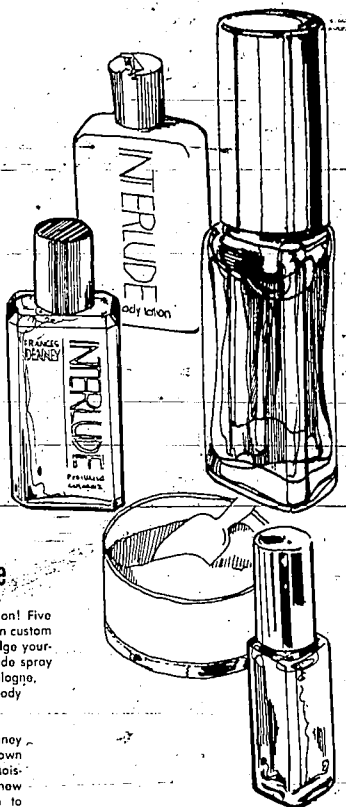

This time it was a good idea, since four hearts was not going to make unless the defense really fouled things up.

West led his fourth-best club against the three notrump contract and the defense had four tricks in before you could say "Jack Robinson."

East dropped the six of diamonds on the fourth club after the three of spades was discarded from dummy. West led the three of diamonds and it was up to South to make a decision. He could overtake dummy's king of diamonds

Gas chamber stills unwanted strays

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's 5 p.m. Wednesday. Rick G. Hundley, animal control officer, walks down a long row of mostly empty cages in the antiseptic, brick dog pound, 139 6th Ave. W.

When he reaches the end of the concrete walkway, he opens a door to one of the cages. Inside is a cute, black miniature poodle.

Hundley, who says he doesn't particularly like his job but does it anyway because "someone's got to," coaxes the nervous dog out of the cage. He picks the poodle up and gives it a playful kiss. Three dogs in nearby cages start to whine.

As with the rest of the dogs at the pound, Hundley says, he hasn't given the poodle a name because he "doesn't want to get emotionally involved."

He puts the little dog under his arm and carries it into the next room, placing the animal into a five-foot-wide by three-foot-high box. Through the glass doors on the box, Hundley sees the dog sitting up and eagerly wagging his tail.

That's when Hundley sticks a hose in the side of the box and turns on the gas. Nitrogen at an estimated 60 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit floods invisibly into the box.

During the first three minutes, the dog only shivers and innocently looks out the glass. Then, the animal becomes drowsy and staggers.

In the other room, the other dogs continue to whine. At four minutes, the poodle falls on its back and starts squirming. At five minutes, the poodle is writhing helplessly out of control, yelping as it bangs its head against the chamber wall.

At six minutes, the dog urinates on the chamber floor, stops squirming and stops yelping. "It's still alive," Hundley says. "You can see it breathing."

At seven minutes, the poodle pulls its paws in toward its body and dies. Hundley turns off the gas.

The miniature poodle is one of more than 100 dogs destroyed at the pound each month in the gas chamber, technically called "euthanasia cabinet."

"Because usually more than one dog is put in the chamber, the process normally takes about three minutes," Hundley says.

Controversy raze this week on whether killing the dogs in the chamber is the most humane way of ridding the community of the nuisance of unwanted dogs: Both Hundley and fellow animal control officer Keith L. Saville say killing dogs by giving them a shot would be a more humane method of destroying them.

"Using the gas chamber causes the dogs pain," they say.

"When you see the dog wabbling back and forth, and start yelping, you know they have to be suffering," Hundley says. "It'd be like a doctor letting you breathe once every three or four minutes."

Saville calls the process suffocation.

But the city manager, police chief and at least two local veterinarians say the dogs apparently don't feel a thing when killed.

"It's a different process than suffocation," according to Dr. William L. Strobel, veterinarian at the Green Acres Pet Hospital. The oxygen in a dog's system is "exchanged" for nitrogen, he says.

"The dog becomes unconscious," Strobel says. "As far as pain is concerned, apparently there is none."

Strobel admits there's no way of proving a dog suffers no pain without experiencing the process himself. "The only evidence exists which suggests the dogs don't suffer, he says.

When an animal or a person is given an anesthetic, goes through four stages of anesthesia, according to Dr. Charles Donnelly, a veterinarian and former Humane Society official. One of these is the "excitation" stage in which the person or animal squirms, and, in the case of an animal, eyes on whites or howls, he says.

These reactions are likely simple reflexes to the drug, Donnelly says, adding, persons who come out of these states remember suffering no pain.

Doctors believe the same thing happens when a dog is killed using nitrogen gas, he says.

City Manager Jean Milar and Police Chief Frank Barnett agree. "When you use the word suffocate that implies the dog's breathing is impaired," Milar says.

"But that's not the case in the pound gas chamber. The animal experiences no difficulty in breathing. It's simply a denial of oxygen to brain cells. The first thing that happens is his brain dies. This can not be considered a policy of choking animals to death."

Milar says use of the euthanasia cabinet may even be more humane than destroying an animal with an injection. He says when a dog is given a shot, its heart dies before its brain.

Because of this, the dog may suffer some pain before death, he says.

Donnelly and Strobel disagree, saying animals given shots experience no more pain than those killed in the gas chamber.

If anything, the difference between death of the brain and heart is "only a few seconds," Strobel says.

Officials agree that using a shot is probably the method thought of as most humane by the public because it involves destroying a dog quietly and relatively quickly (in 10 to 30 seconds).

But the gas treatment is less costly.

According to the police chief, one tank of nitrogen kills about 130 dogs at a cost of roughly $130. The gas chamber originally cost the city $2,750, according to city records.

According to the veterinarians, who often destroy animals at their animal hospitals using shots, the cost of giving 130 average-sized dogs the death shots would be $290 to $160, depending on which drug is used and how many syringes and needles are needed.

Hiring someone skilled to give the shots would be an additional cost, the veterinarians say, though they add a veterinarian might be willing to donate some time to the city for shot giving.

Officials also say the shot method may take longer because only one dog can be killed at a time that way. (Animal control officers kill as many dogs at one time that they can comfortably get into the gas chamber; three medium-sized dogs, or more if puppies are destroyed.)

Officials agree that which method is most humane is not the most important issue.

The real problem, Milar says, is persons who don't take the responsibility of caring for an animal once it comes into their possession. The solution is to make dog owners aware of their responsibility, he adds.

"And maybe making them aware of what happens if they don't accept the responsibility," Hundley says.

"The city does not purport to operate a program affiliated with the Humane Society," Milar says. "or to be in the business of finding homes for animals. Our job is animal control."

Persons may drop off their dogs at the pound, expecting the animals to be given away, but "unfortunately we destroy more than 80 per cent of the dogs we round up," Milar says.

Hundley opens the gas chamber door and picks up the dead poodle by the scruff of its neck. He holds the carcass against his ear to make sure the dog's heart has stopped beating.

"It's worse with a smaller dog, because it's so cute," he says, putting the body in a plastic sack and dropping the sack in a trash can containing several other bagged animals. A sanitation official every night takes the bags to the sanitation fill, according to Hundley.

While he washed the urine out of the gas chamber and down a drain with a water hose, he says. "Let's face it, is there any humane way of killing anything?"

The front door of the pound opens, and a fat man and his son, each carrying a long-haired dog, step in. Hundley goes to greet them.

"I've gotta single dogs I want to give away," the fat man says with a chuckle. "Sure," Hundley says.

The man and his son take the dogs into the room of cages. When he drops the animal he's carrying into the cage, the fat man wipes his hands. The man tells Hundley he has to get rid of the two dogs because they are ruining his hunting dog.

Hundley tells the man that before he can leave he must sign a euthanasia slip. "This is so if we can't find another owner for them, we can put 'em to sleep," Hundley says.

The man fills out the form, puts his arm around his son and, without further comment, walks out of the pound.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune. H. H. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 24 years to a man who has always been faithful and devoted. He's a good father, too, but I am ready to leave him.

...We were talking about women getting their breasts removed because of cancer, and my husband said a guy would have to be nuts to stay with a woman that happened to if they were young and married only a short time. I asked him what he would do if that happened to me right now, and he said he'd have to think about it a while.

Abby, that did it! Who needs an S.O.B. like him? I told him if he wasn't sure he'd stick with me if I lost a breast, he had touched me for the last time. I will never sleep with that animal again! Furthermore, if he should get sick, he shouldn't expect me to take care of him. He will die alone like the dog that he is.

Abby, am I unreasonable or overly sensitive? Or could I be jumping to conclusions?

M.G.

P.S. I have a 30 bust, a 25 waist and 36 hips.

Wife calls hubby 'dog'

DEAR M.G.: Simmer down, dear. I'm sure that a man who's been a devoted and faithful husband for 24 years wouldn't consider leaving you if you were to lose a breast. I hope by now your temper has cooled, and you realize that he didn't mean what he said.

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and is his own boss. I've never called him at work because he has always called me at least twice a day. And it certainly never occurred to me to call to see if he was actually at his office.

One day last week, several hours after I saw my husband off to work, I decided to do some grocery shopping. To avoid the lunch hour traffic, I took a different route.

While driving down the street, I noticed a woman driving a car that looked exactly like my husband's. I looked at the license plates, and sure enough it was his! Curious as to what this woman was doing in my husband's car, I followed her. About seven blocks later she pulled into a driveway, stopped and tooted the horn. That's when my husband came out, dressed in a bathrobe and slippers! He opened the door for her, took the sack of groceries, swatted her rump and kissed her cheek. And all this in broad daylight!

Heartbroken, I drove off, unnoted. I haven't mentioned this to him for fear of what I might say or do. What do you suggest?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Tell your husband that you're on to the double life he's been leading and ask him which one he prefers. Since you now know where the other woman lives, and caught your man with his hand in the cookie jar, he can't very well deny it.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you that confession might be good for the soul but that some things are better left unsaid.

As a naive, 20-year-old bride, I confessed to my fiancé that there had been another man in my life before I met him, and I foolishly told him, who he was.

Thirty years and four adult children later, my husband still throws this man in my face periodically even though I have been a devoted and faithful wife.

How much better off we both would have been had I never made that confession. Silence is indeed golden, Abby.

FOOLISH CONFESSION

DEAR FOOLISH: Silence is not always golden. It is sometimes "gullit."

QUESTION: Are you familiar with the two Idaho constitutional amendments to be voted on in the Nov. 2 election and if so, are you in favor of or opposed to the amendments?

Dianne Henley, Wendell:

No. Well, I did hear something about the legislative salaries, but I am not really familiar with them. I usually try to find out about anything on the ballot before the election so I can vote intelligently.

Richard Cook, Twin Falls:

No. I didn't even know there were any amendments to vote on in November. I probably will try to get some information on them, now that I know.

Linda Ford, Twin Falls:

No. I just don't remember what they are all about. I'll probably vote on them though. I always try to find out about any questions on the ballot and who they will affect before I get to the voting booth.

Ron Wallace, Twin Falls:

No. I've only lived in Idaho the past three months and I just registered yesterday so I can vote here. I would like to know more about the amendments before election, however.

Sharon Federico, Twin Falls:

No. I will look into the amendments, though, and I would want to take a good, hard look at any amendment from the taxpayer's standpoint. I don't want any more expenses for the taxpayers of the state.

Gary Roddy, Twin Falls:

No. In fact, I don't recall reading anything about amendments this year. There should be some information available to the public about this.

Joseph Smith, Twin Falls:

No. I'm not familiar with them and no, I'm not even interested in the amendments. I'm not old enough to vote so I don't care. I guess when I'm old enough, I'll try to find out more about these things.

Sterling Larson, Twin Falls:

No. I'm afraid I don't know anything about the amendments. Why doesn't your newspaper put out some information to the voters on what the amendments are and what effect they would have on the voters and taxpayers?

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The former United States Embassy compound in Saigon has been declared a "great historical relic" and thousands have fanned the six-story chancery in recent months, the official Vietnam News Agency said today.

Another historical relic is the American-financed, Vietnamese-built Independence Palace, two blocks from the embassy, which housed Vietnamese presidents during the last 10 years of the war.

VNA said both the embassy and the palace were declared historical relics last August, when a civilian "revolutionary committee" took over the government of Saigon from the military.

Cheerleaders: fighting the image

By NANCY KELLEHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Cheerleaders are snobbish. Some girls may be nice before they become cheerleaders, but they change as soon as they make the team. They will do anything to get a boyfriend; why else do you think they're on the team?

Like many minorities, cheerleaders, a small group in most high schools, are often faced with unfair prejudice. Generalizations usually place cheerleaders in the category of two-faced individuals who will stoop to anything in the competition to find a man.

In some cases, of course, the poor estimation of the cheerleader may be justified, but more often than not it appears to be the product of jealousy. The loudest critic of the cheerleader is her female peer, often the one who tried but did not make the cheerleading team.

Twin Falls High School varsity cheerleaders, seven-friendly-looking girls, fall prey to this feeling among fellow students.

Many of the other girls, so-called like us some of your closest friends turn into backstabbers. They try to make you feel guilty for being a cheerleader," says one.

Some of this jealousy is understandable; the cheerleaders have the definite advantage of knowing, and being known by, more people than most other girls in the school.

After rejection by some former friends, the cheerleaders appreciate the ones who do not abandon them.

"You get a lot closer to your best friends," says Denise Mueller. "You get closer to the other cheerleaders, too."

"It's like a big family," claims Shelly Nielsen, "when we have meetings, we have a hall."

The girls also become friendly with team members.

"The guys accept you better than the girls. They like the stuff you try to do for them," says team captain Stephanie Webb. "Sometimes they make fun of us though. Some cheer you have to be a cheerleader to appreciate."

If these girls are not the boy-crazy individuals generalizations label them, why do they want to work as cheerleaders for the Twin Falls High School teams? What do they get out of it? "It's one way of showing school support," says Shelly. "You get a lot closer to people on the team, and you meet people from other schools."

Some of the girls say they enjoy traveling to various schools, meeting people and making friends in towns across the state. The feeling that they are playing their part in promoting school spirit is an additional personal reward.

"I feel like I'm part of something, like I'm doing something that's important," explains Anna Wagner.

The girls also learn a lot in their experience as cheerleaders. Some were interested in and knew quite a bit about sports when they tried out for the team. Others find their interest and knowledge growing, partly out of necessity. They don't want to make the embarrassing mistake of shouting "back that punt" when their team is going for an extra point.

Besides cheering for the football and basketball teams, the girls encourage the wrestling and cross country track teams with their chants. Girls' basketball is covered as well as boys'.

This makes for a busy winter schedule. Often the team must split to cheer at coinciding events. They feel that they should be present at all sports events, even when not cheering.

"We cheer for specific sports, but we support every sport," explains Stephanie. "Just so they know you're there," adds Tammy.

This puts a heavy load on the girls, especially those involved in other clubs and sports.

"You have to work studying in, too," says Tammy, who also likes to play volleyball.

Hard work is not limited to the winter season, or even to the school year. After they were chosen in the spring, the girls began practicing two mornings a week during the first half of the summer. From mid-July until the end of August, they met at 7 a.m. every day to practice for an hour. Sometimes they practiced evenings, too.

Even with all this conditioning, "we could tell we were out of shape when we went to camp," groaned Denise.

The girls attended a cheerleading clinic in Spokane, Wash., for a week in mid-August. They raised money through car washes, and by operating concession stands at Harmon Park and at the Jerome horse show, to pay for camp and uniforms.

At the camp, sponsored by the International Cheerleaders Foundation, they learned new cheers and routines popular in other parts of the country. They enjoyed the experience and are proud to show pictures and awards received this summer.

Now, with school responsibilities and games, claiming their time, the cheerleaders only practice once a week.

"Not as much as we should," complains Stephanie.

"But we do see one another all of the time," adds one of the other girls. Thus they can take care of necessary business involved with organization of their activities.

Along with their responsibilities of cheering at games, the girls must plan the assemblies held prior to the games. At these pep rallies, they must present skits and otherwise, attempt to infect the entire student body with their enthusiasm. They say that the overall school spirit is good, but could be better.

As a tribute to their efforts on the behalf of their school, the Twin Falls High School has won the sportsmanship award for the Southern Idaho Conference during the past two basketball seasons.

Triouts for cheerleading are held every spring. In order to try out, girls must present a petition with 25 signatures. Before the junior and sophomore classes in the gym, each delivers a speech, performs a uniform pom-pom routine, and does an original cheer. The students return to their classrooms and vote for the cheerleading squad.

The team mascot, who wears a brown costume, tries out specifically for that position. He greets each team member, shaking his hand as he is introduced before every game. Her other duties are the same as the other cheerleaders...Denise, the current mascot, says she tried out for that position because she "wanted to cheer and to wear the bear suit."

Most of the varsity cheerleaders have cheered either in Junior high or for sophomore teams. They feel that this prior experience helped them when they tried out for varsity cheerleading.

Twin Falls High School cheerleaders are backed by a 60-member pep club. A marching band and drill team perform during half time. The girls feel that their greatest support during the games comes from the drill team, which joins them wholeheartedly in cheering on their team.

Twin Falls cheerleaders are working hard to promote school spirit among their fellow students. They deserve to be judged as individuals; not on the basis of a "backyarded" stereotype.

"People don't stop to think about the work we put in," says Stephanie Webb.

"It's hard to get out in front of a bunch of people and try to make them respond," adds Anna.

Leaping for joy

KAROL CASPERSON, one of the seven vivacious cheerleaders at Twin Falls High School, shouts encouragement to the team.

Cheerleaders and football team members become good friends as they work together through the course of the season. Doug Smith is the center of attention here.

By ROBIN ADAMS ELGAN

Q: I was just amazed to read about all the superstars in that upcoming movie, "A Bridge Too Far." Won't the salaries add up to something astronomical or are all those actors working for peanuts? — C.O., Columbus, O.

A: None of those stars, including Ryan O'Neal, Robert Redford, Gene Hackman, James Caan, Laurence Olivier, Sean Connery and Michael Caine would consider working for peanuts. Many of them are making a million dollars each for about a month's work, except for Redford. He's getting even more. One star was turned down, however — Audrey Hepburn, who asked for $750,000 for a week's work.

LESLIE CARON

... writing under another name

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: What is Leslie Caron doing besides acting with Nureyev in the movie "Valentino"? Leslie has written two screenplays under a pseudonym and one will be put into production soon. Leslie says she'll admit authorship only if the movie is a big hit. So we'll all have to just wait and see.

Q: Since Nancy Kissinger has celebrity status these days does she get any special security protection from the State Department? — S.U., Chicago

A: Often she does, and it has paid off more than once. During last month's All-Northern prize fight at Yankee Stadium, Nancy needed a phalanx of State Department security guards to clear a path into her ringside seat. Then, after the fight there were some terrifying moments when a huge crowd surged down toward the ring, collapsing the wooden chairs and nearly drowning Nancy, who was finally encircled by guards. One security guard said he had his pocket picked — twice, by the same youngster.

Q: Whatever happened to that Hungarian artist who stunned the art world a few years ago when it became known he had faked many of the best-known paintings by Matise, Renoir and other impressionists? — W.R., Washington, D.C.

KIM STANLEY

A: Well, for one thing, Elmyr de Hory is in Madrid, still successfully fighting efforts by French authorities to extradite him. For another, he is rebuilding his own career and has just signed a lucrative contract giving a Madrid gallery exclusive rights to his output.

Q: Does the New York Telephone Co. make any money out of those dial-a-joke things where you dial a number and hear a joke? Is it all just for publicity? — D.D., Brooklyn.

A: The telephone company won't say but guesses are that the idea is a little gold mine netting about $1.5 million a year. The company gets about 8 cents a call and guess who pays a big share of the tab? Most of the calls are made on office phones. Not every funny fringe benefit — for employer, anyway.

GET READY TO GO APE: When the new version of the movie "King Kong" arrives at Christmas time, the old monster will be associated with the biggest saturation-of-commercial product he's ever seen for an American film. Well he's having King Kong cocktails, a King Kong peanut butter bar, a Kong stereo picture packet and a key chain containing hair from King himself. And, ladies and gentlemen, that's just the beginning.

Q: What's the word on this so-called "blonde bra" that's supposed to detect breast cancer cells? — R.F.M., Chicago.

A: A senior pathologist at Glasgow Royal Infirmary has invented a bra that has five sensors which record temperature changes in the breast. It looks like a normal bra and a woman would wear it for about two weeks. Then the data would be fed into a computer. The information provided might mean a patient could be treated with drugs instead of by surgery.

LOVE, SWEET LOVE TIME: Candy Bergen has a new man in her life? Gussy Bergsen seems to be serious, as they say, about a fellow named Warren Hoge, who is on the cultural staff of The New York Times. The name probably doesn't mean much to you, but Warren has quite a reputation as a ladies' man, having romanced many socially prominent (read rich) beauties. Sally Quinn, the Washington Post reporter, used to live with Warren but ditched him for her boss, Ben Bradlee.

Q: I just adored that actress Kim Stanley. She seems to have disappeared. What can you tell me? — E.O., Cody, Wyo.

A: Called one of the great actresses of her generation, Kim suffered serious emotional problems in the 1960s. She has overcome some of her difficulties and is now teaching theater courses at the University of New Mexico. Most of her show-biz pals have deserted her except for a few loyal friends, including Maureen Stapleton, who has stood by through thick and thin.

LIZ TORRES

... singing with her clothes on

Q: Do you know whether actress Liz Torres made pornographic movies before she scored her TV success on the "Phyllis" show? — H.H., Pasadena, Calif.

A: While a struggling young singer-comedienne in New York, Liz made her film debut singing a song in a porno feature called "It Happened in Hollywood." But her sequence was strictly a fully clothed comic solo. In case you haven't been watching, Liz is out of "Phyllis" and will be a featured regular on "All in the Family."

Q: What about actress Hope Lange — is she married now? — E.L., Greenport, N.Y.

A: Hope was seen a lot in Nantucket this summer with writer David Halberstam and they seem to be what you might call an item. Halberstam has left his Polish actress wife, who's now resuming her professional career.

A SPECIAL AMERICAN: Why is Milos Forman, the Oscar-winning "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" director, getting special clearance from Congress to become an American citizen? A bill is in the works to give Forman, a Czech citizen, the right to become an American after four years of residency instead of the customary five-year minimum requirement. Forman desperately wants to visit his two sons in Czechoslovakia without fear that Prague authorities will try to grab him. The Czechs will be less likely to do this if he's a U.S. citizen.

Q: Recently you told us about the slapping match Rudolph Nureyev had with his movie co-star Michelle Phillips. However, you neglected to tell us who Michelle's involved with now that she and Warren Beatty have broken up. — M.M., Aurora, Ill.

A: Who said they've broken up? Sure, there was that little fit when Warren rekindled his old romance with singer Joni Mitchell, but that was only a brief flack.

Beatty and Michelle were pretty inseparable at that recent party Diane von Furstenberg gave for producer Robert Evans to celebrate the opening of "Marathon Man." Some party, too. Everyone, including Henry Kissinger and his wife Nancy, was there.

Q: Is Elton John worried about the furor he created when he admitted publicly that he was a bisexual? — G.K., Amarillo, Tex.

A: Elton is totally surprised by the fuss. He says he thinks everyone is bisexual. He isn't worried because, as he says, "It didn't hurt David Bowie, why should it hurt me?" Elton's father, who hasn't seen his son in three years, is shattered by the news. "I can't believe he is bisexual," he says. "He's always been a great joker."

FOXY LADY: As we told you recently, Elizabeth Harris, ex-wife of Richard Harris and Rex Harrison, has written her autobiography. Smart girl that she is, she has dedicated it to R.H. Now who could that be?

Q: What's behind the rumors that movie obscenity laws will be interpreted more leniently in the future? — C.M.J., Portland, Ore.

A: Hollywood's standards on this have traditionally been set by California's seven-man state supreme court. And the three most conservative blue-nosed members of this court are about to retire. The men Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is expected to replace them with take-a-more relaxed view and should shift the balance toward greater leniency.

Q: I loved Shirley MacLaine's TV special last season. Why chance she'll do another one this year? — D.L., Dover, Del.

A: Right now Shirley is busy making a new movie, "Turning Point," with Anne Bancroft, and then plans a long nightclub tour. However, she is scheduled to do another TV special next spring. Shirley hopes she won't have to dig into her own pocket to pay off over-budget expenses as she did last year. Being an ardent feminist, she had insisted on being the producer as well as the star of that special, and it's the producer who pays the bills. So that one cost Shirley $40,000 of her own money.

Artist produces smileless Carter

WOODBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Artist Robert Templeton smiles when he thinks of a portrait he painted of Jimmy Carter because the Democratic presidential candidate did not. Templeton likes it that way.

"We've had so much of the smile, I thought, 'Let's give the smile a chance to rest. There's more to this man than the smile and the smile sometimes almost verges on the clown which I don't like,'" Templeton said.

Templeton has painted portraits of Lyndon Johnson, Hubert Humphrey, George Romney, Ralph Abernathy and former Connecticut Gov. John Dempsey.

He went to Elkins, Ga., to draw two pastels each of Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, during a sitting held after church on a Sunday at the Carters' home. The portraits were commissioned by a national magazine, which plans to publish them in January.

"Carter was completely relaxed. Amy came in with a large bowl of blueberries and she passed these around. I expected C. J. to be a little more Southern folksy, but there isn't a lot of that 'y'all business. He's an executive. He's very effective, very articulate and he was businesslike."

Templeton said he tried to portray Carter as a potential president. "He reminds me more of John Kennedy than of anyone else — not because of his looks — but because of his control. He has that cool, quiet, self-possessed control that Kennedy had."

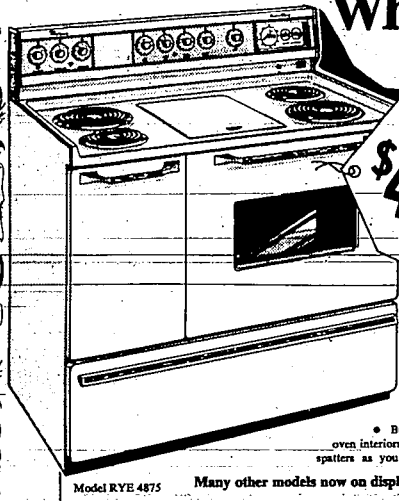

When Templeton painted Humphrey's portrait, he had to make a similar decision about the Minnesota senator's famous smile.

"I let him smile because I tried to do him without the smile and something just died in him. He's a performer and a very good one. The smile is part of his performance. If you take the smile away, you get less than you expect."

As a portrait artist, Templeton tries to make a statement on canvas instead of painting a mask. He draws the subject in a sitting and then completes the portrait in his studio, nestled in the rolling Litchfield Hills.

Actress becomes Amelia Earhart

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Susan Clark won the Emmy last season for best actress playing Babe Didrikson and stands a chance to win another for portraying Amelia Earhart in a television movie Monday night.

Susan took up golf for her role as Babe.

She learned to fly to play Amelia.

God forbid she's never cast as Polly Adler.

Susan is a first rate actress who prepares for her roles with singular thoroughness. She leaves as little to chance as possible. And no wonder. Each of these biographical roles has consumed 10 months of her life.

She devotes three months to research — reading books, watching newsreel footage and meeting people who actually knew the characters. Then there's pre-production preparation, rehearsals, filming, post-production pickups and finally traveling to publicize the product.

Before filming began on the Didrikson film she camped at UCLA's athletic fields to learn to run, hurdle, throw the javelin. She also was taught to play basketball. She became a passably good golfer.

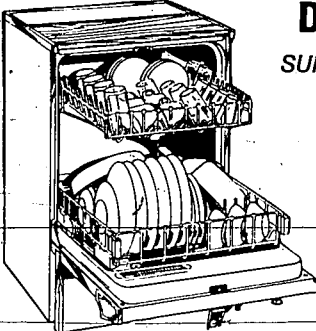

"Indeed, Susan was so impressed with the conditioning program demanded for the Didrikson part, she still jogs two miles every day.

"I've spent 18 hours flying a single engine plane for my role as Amelia," Susan said. "I haven't soloed yet, but I certainly plan to.

"The bonus to my acting career is the study that goes into these parts. I've read 12 books on Amelia's life, including three she wrote herself. And I've talked to people who knew her.

"It's really an education. I read everything I could find about Babe, too. The two women are altogether different. "Amelia was a marvellously elegant tomboy. She was more complex than Babe. More introverted and articulate."

From her own research and lengthy discussions with people who knew the dauntless woman flyer, Susan concludes nobody really knows whether Earhart was on a spy mission when she and her aircraft disappeared in the Pacific in 1937.
