US trade figures stay in red ink

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States in September recorded its second highest trade deficit in 26 months, the government said today. In its monthly report on trade, the Commerce Department said the nation imported $778.9 million more in goods than it exported last month. This represents the third consecutive month the United States has recorded a substantial balance of trade deficit. September's trade deficit was smaller than the $871 million minus figure posted in August of this year. But it is the second largest since August, 1974, when the deficit stood at $887.8 million, the Commerce statistics showed.

Cassia crash kills Deelo man, 55

BURLEY — A security guard at a Burley processing plant was killed in an automobile accident this morning. Joseph Maravilla, 55, Deelo, died instantly when his car broadsided a pickup truck at the intersection of 150 East and 100 South roads near Burley at about 6:55 a.m. today. Ralph Savage, 36, Burley, was the driver of the pickup. He was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital for treatment of multiple cuts and a possible broken arm. A Cassia County deputy sheriff said that Maravilla apparently drove his small foreign car through a stop sign on 100 South road as he was headed toward Burley. Maravilla was a security guard at Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., and was on his way to work.

Off ballot
ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — Continuing a weeks-long seesaw battle, the New York Court of Appeals has reversed a lower court decision and struck independent presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy from the state ballot. A McCarthy spokesman in Washington said lawyers would appeal the $2 decision. A federal court "as soon as possible" in an effort to win a place on Tuesday's ballot.

Carter raps senior citizen neglect

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jimmy Carter today accused President Ford of neglecting the needs of senior citizens and promised, "That won't happen when I'm president." The Democratic nominee addressed two separate gatherings of more than 400 other persons in connection with Carter-Mondale Senior Citizen Day observed by party organizations across the country. "There's been a great demonstration of neglecting the well-being of senior citizens," Carter said before flying to Erie, Pa., in his nationwide blitz for votes in next Tuesday's presidential election. The Georgian, who said Wednesday night his fiscal program would provide for a tax cut in the next four years, arranged to campaign later today in Cleveland, then fly to New York City for handshaking and speechmaking in Brooklyn.

Ford assails Demo spending policy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — President Ford said today Jimmy Carter has suffered a drastic slip in public opinion polls because of Democratic spending policies. He cited Great Britain as an example of the evils of government overspending. "Since his party convention he has relied very, very heavily on the discarded old programs of more and more big spending," Ford told a Republican rally at the Indianapolis Scottish Rite cathedral. "Of all the differences between Mr. Carter and myself, none is more important than the economy," said Ford, polishing a new speaking style as he barnstormed Indiana and headed for Cincinnati and Cleveland. This, Ford said, has caused a "drastic slippage" in Carter's poll standings, which earlier in the race showed a big lead for the Democratic candidate.

Nationalist delay Rhodesia talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Black nationalists forced a delay in the opening of the Rhodesia Conference today with demands for concessions from white Prime Minister Ian Smith. Lord Richard, British chairman of the conference, announced at 3 p.m. (8 a.m. MDT) the original starting time, but there had been a two-hour postponement of the conference, called to negotiate the establishment of black majority rule in white-governed Rhodesia. Only Richard and Smith had turned up at the Palais des Nations, European headquarters of the United Nations and site of the negotiations. The demands which caused the postponement came from nationalist leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, conference officials revealed.

TWIN FALLS — What could be the most costly fire in Twin Falls city history ripped through the Ace Hansen Chevrolet, Inc., building Wednesday afternoon, reportedly causing close to $1 million damage. All three city fire trucks and all 38 fire fighters were called in to extinguish the blaze which began about 4:15 p.m. in the building's auto body shop, 1634 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. No one was injured in the fire. Ace Hansen, owner of the car dealership, estimated the loss at "right under $1 million," including an estimated $500,000 for the building.

$350,000 in parts and close to $400,000 in vehicles. The most costly Twin Falls fire already on record burned the former Northrup King building in October, 1950. That fire caused damages estimated at $850,000, according to fire department reports. Hansen said the building and vehicles will probably be covered by insurance, but the parts probably will not. The cause of the blaze has not been determined. Douglas Cheney, 19, Twin Falls, was in the auto body shop using an electrical welder to do some welding on the back of a car, according to Fire Inspector Clare Harkins. Cheney put the torch down to adjust some equipment nearby, the fire inspector said. "When he turned around, he saw flames coming from under the bottom of the car," Harkins said. Cheney said this morning he reached for a fire extinguisher hanging on a wall not more than 10 feet away as soon as he saw the flames. He said he had just about put out the fire when "I ran out of juice." Cheney ran for another fire extinguisher but the flames were raging out of control when he returned, according to Hansen. The flames spread simultaneously from the body shop to the parts department and several other connected garages, according to the fire inspector. "In just two to three minutes, the whole building was on fire," Harkins said. The blaze spread that rapidly because the walls were insulated with polystyrene foam, a form of insulation now banned from use on new buildings, according to Harkins. "That stuff burns just like gasoline," he said. The 52,400-square-foot building did not have a sprinkler system as is now required on newly constructed city buildings.

SMOKE pours from the Ace Hansen Chevrolet building in Twin Falls Wednesday afternoon (above) during the destructive fire there. About 10 cars were reported removed from the building before the blaze reached the showroom. Another man watches flames creep up a wall inside the shop, below. Fire officials said urethane foam used to insulate the walls contributed to the rapid spread of the fire.

MAGIC VALLEY — A record flood of last-minute voter registration Wednesday was reported by all Magic-Valley county clerks this morning, with most counties estimating an all-time high in the number of registered voters now in the books. Clerks reported as many as 500 voters registered Wednesday alone in some counties. In Twin Falls County, Clerk Harold Lancaster estimated 4,000 new registrations since the primary election — about 1,000 this week — and predicted the county total may reach 29,000. Lancaster said he will not have a total final figure until the first of the week. He said absentee voting is also heavy in the county. Camas County reported about a 9 to 10 percent increase in registration. As of this morning 625 persons, or 72.7 percent of all the citizens, had registered. Blaine County officials estimate more registered voters than ever before. At the beginning of the week, 500 new registrations had been received but no tabulations have been made since then. Cassia County Clerk Harold Hurst said he will probably know by Friday how many new registrations were added in his county, but this morning workers were still struggling with the registration slips. He said this year's registration is "very heavy." Lincoln County also expects to have some definite figures by Friday but reports heavy voter interest with many voters registering at the last minute Wednesday at the clerk's office.

Fire Inspector Harkins said he was not sure if the building would be required to have sprinklers under the Uniform Life Safety Code. The state adopted the life safety code this year, which requires all future buildings and others in certain categories to have sprinklers. The Twin Falls Fire Department has begun a program to improve older buildings to meet the standards. Harkins said he did not know if the Hansen building was covered in this program. On the insulation, Howard said the polystyrene foam is also outlawed by new codes. "We didn't know at first how dangerous it could be, and no provisions were made to control" (Continued on p. 21)

WASHINGTON — President Ford is expected to announce today a comprehensive United States plan to combat the spread of nuclear weapons that appears to contemplate a multimillion dollar government program to test the commercial use of plutonium, the raw material of nuclear weapons. The plan was originally scheduled to be announced Wednesday by Ford in Dayton, Ohio, but was delayed, according to the White House press office, to permit time for a background briefing for reporters. The New York Times obtained a detailed account of Ford's prepared statement, in which he sets forth his plan to prevent a spread of nuclear weapons, and a copy of a 36-page confidential memorandum to the President that served as a principal supporting document for the statement. The question of what the United States can and should do about the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries has become a major political issue that has been raised by Jimmy Carter, the Democratic candidate for President, and House and Senate members of both parties. The background paper that sets forth the foundation of the President's statement concludes that the economic and military pressures for the rapid spread of nuclear power around the world makes the imposition of new international controls "an uphill fight." But the memorandum said the spread of facilities to extract plutonium from used reactor fuel was "undesirable" — even to responsible nations — and "intolerable" when the facilities were obtained by unnamed "sensitive countries," because the equipment "will facilitate the availability of weapons-usable plutonium." The most controversial section of the Ford statement, which is still subject to change, concerned a proposed federal program to evaluate the reprocessing of plutonium. In this section, Ford's statement says he is directing the head of the Energy Research and Development Administration to define immediately a reprocessing and recycling evaluation program consistent with the international objectives of the United States. This section of the statement also calls for the investigation of methods of recovering useful energy from used reactor fuel without separating out the plutonium. (Continued on p. 10)

Saturday tagged Halloween for TF

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls City Council want Halloween on Saturday night instead of Sunday. Jean Millar, city manager, said following a news report earlier this week that the city had taken no action and would let the parents and children decide when to do their trick or treat tours of the city. As a result of that announcement, many calls were received at city hall. "These people want a decision," Millar said. "They don't want to have to decide individually." As a result, Acting Mayor Henry Woodall polls other members of the council and the decision was to recommend that children and the community go out on Saturday night, leaving Sunday open for many church activities planned by various congregations. "We are going to ask that Saturday night be observed in Twin Falls as the official Halloween this year," Millar said. Milo Price, Twin Falls LDS church official, said he made a survey of many churches in the community and found most were in favor of Saturday as most had their own events planned Sunday. Rev. Kenneth Rhoades of the Bible Baptist Church said he is suggesting Saturday night for trick or treat activities and Rev. Darrell E.

Campbell, First Christian Church, also favors Saturday. He said the church is preparing special youth programs for Sunday night. Father Perry Dadds of the Catholic Church said since Halloween originated as the observance of a Catholic holy day, he feels it is quite appropriate for the youngsters to observe the special day on Sunday night. Rev. Tom Young, assistant pastor at the Presbyterian Church, said his church is offering a special party for youngsters on Sunday, but declined to recommend either Saturday or Sunday for Halloween activities. Raymond Thompson, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, said a family night party at his church is planned for Sunday and UNICEF workers will be making collections Saturday night. President Joel Tate of the LDS Twin Falls Stake suggested Saturday for LDS youngsters for Halloween activities and Sunday night for evening sacrament meetings. He said the youngsters could be called on homes on Sunday evening. He said Bible Study and youth activities are planned for Sunday night at the church. Rev. J.L. Parks of the South Park Church also suggested Saturday to avoid conflicts with regular church activities.

Louisiana ferry hearing proceeds

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The captain of a ferryboat involved in a crash that killed more than 70 persons consumed enough alcohol on the job to be considered legally drunk in many states, according to a coroner's report. Capt. Eugene Auletta's ferryboat, the George Prince, capsized after being struck amidships Oct. 20 by the Norwegian tanker Frasta 31 miles off the Mississippi River from New Orleans, killing Auletta, his crew and scores of passengers. "He definitely had to have been drinking while working because alcohol is excreted from our bodies so quickly," coroner Dr. Frank Maynard said Wednesday of his autopsy on Auletta. The coroner's death toll rose to 72 Wednesday with the recovery of a body downstream from the crash site.

Lockheed funds win OK

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Lockheed Aircraft, the nation's No. 1 defense contractor, has received federal approval for reconstruction of its financial program despite its $530 million debt to two dozen banks. Officials announced Wednesday that the plan, revealed last June and authorized by the company's shareholders and creditors, has received a go-ahead from the Federal Loan Board. A spokesman said the plan was designed "to provide a sound base for the company's long-term stability and growth." The approval allows Lockheed to cancel a $75 million credit agreement put together in 1974 when federal intervention saved the firm from bankruptcy. The plan converts $50 million of the company's $400 million in nonsecured bank loans into a new series of preferred stock. It also replaces the remaining $330 million, now in the form of 90-day revolving notes, with a term loan extending into 1981. The program does not affect another $120 million in loans backed by the federal Emergency Loan Guarantee Board. Lockheed has reduced its guaranteed loans by $45 million since June. The restructuring, which increases the plane-maker's equity capital from $190 million to approximately $150 million, was approved by shareholders at a meeting last month.

Board Chairman Robert W. Isaac, head of a new management team, told shareholders at the meeting that the company was investigating allegations that millions of dollars had been spent in foreign payoffs. "We are not going to cover up for anyone," he said. "And if people here behaved illegally, they will be dealt with properly."

Solons straddle fence on smoking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Congress tend to smoke less and express greater concern about smoking than the general public, an anti-smoking organization said today. But the lawmakers are less willing than other adults to endorse a stronger federal suit against public cigarette smoking, according to a survey released by Action on Smoking and Health. They disagree strongly with a view expressed by 56 per cent of adults — that cigarette smoking should be banned. Only 23 per cent of the responding congressmen endorsed that view, said ASH. It listed 57 lawmakers, including 40 Democrats and 17 Republicans, who responded to the survey. This included 11 senators and 46 representatives. ASH said the survey was conducted by the D.C. Interagency Council on Smoking, and the response was slightly over 10 per cent. The lawmakers were questioned on a written questionnaire, with a follow-up telephone call. Their views were compared with results from a government survey of 12,000 adults last summer which was said to be the largest survey ever conducted on smoking behavior and attitudes. The same questions were asked of both groups. Among the general public, 31.5 per cent of the adult males never smoked cigarettes, 29 per cent are former smokers, and 39.3 per cent are currently cigarette smokers. Among the predominantly male responses from legislators, half said they had never smoked, 36 per cent were former smokers and only 14 per cent said they now smoke cigarettes, ASH said. Asked whether "cigarette smoking is enough of a health hazard for something to be done about it," 93 per cent of the lawmakers agreed, compared with 81 per cent of the general public. More congressmen than other adults said they believed that "cigarette smoking frequently causes death and disease," 88 per cent versus 82 per cent. Legislators agreed more often that "it is annoying to be near a person who is smoking cigarettes," ASH said. Nearly 95 per cent of lawmakers agreed that management should have the right to prohibit smoking in their places of business, while 78 per cent of the other adults supported this view.

Skin disease sufferers turn to drink, suicide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One man in his early 20s has psoriasis so bad he has attempted suicide twice in two years. A 29-year-old woman, under treatment for the same disease for 10 years, has tried to kill herself three times. Many others of the up to 8 million Americans who suffer from the disease turn to heavy drinking to flee their problem — red, scaly lesions that can spread over 90 per cent of the body. Dr. Wilma Bergfeld, assistant professor of dermatology at the Cleveland Clinic, told a congressional hearing Wednesday about the two patients who had attempted suicide at her institution. Suicide attempts were not "common," she said. "We see alcoholism more often." She used their cases to illustrate what one Food and Drug Administration scientist called a classic public health dilemma — how to balance the risks and benefits of new medicines. At issue before the House government operations subcommittee hearing was a drug called Triazurone for the treatment of severe psoriasis. It works, government scientists said, but it carries the potential for killing four out of every 1,000 patients who take it. No one seems to know if the risk is worth it. Triazurone was called off the market in August after one year because of two deaths from blood clots among users. Dr. Arnold L. Schroeter, assistant professor of dermatology at the Mayo Clinic, added that while psoriasis is not a "killer disease" like cancer, "in a small percentage of patients it can be lethal." Dr. J. Richard Crout, director of the FDA's Bureau of Drugs, said that despite the severity of the disease, no one can really determine if the drug is valuable despite the risks. "We have found it impossible to achieve a consensus among experts on whether this drug should be allowed to be marketed, either originally or today," he said. The committee was told that the issue has eased somewhat because a new treatment involving both drugs and supervised exposure to ultraviolet light has largely replaced earlier therapy.

Eagles on wing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New American F-15 Eagle fighter planes are going to Germany to bolster outnumbered NATO defenses and contribute to an increase of nearly 18 per cent in the number of U.S. war planes in Europe. The Pentagon announced Wednesday that in addition to 72 of the new fighters being stationed outside the United States for the first time, 41 F-111 fighter bombers also would be sent to England for a NATO role. Both of the moves are to start in January and are expected to be completed by April. The F-15 — a fighter that can fly better than twice the speed of sound — will be an addition to American F-4 fighter planes that will remain in Germany.

Carter declares tax cut 'inevitable' before long

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Responding to President Ford's attack, and faced with narrowing polls, Jimmy Carter says a substantial tax cut in the next four years is inevitable.

Carter unveiled his proposal for a general tax cut during a campaign swing in the Pittsburgh area where he exhorted Democratic party leaders to get out the vote Tuesday.

"It's not going to be easy in the next five days. It's going to be close," he said.

In a prepared address for a gathering of senior citizens in Pittsburgh, Carter elongated the Ford administration has neglected older Americans.

He said a national health care program should be developed to improve services for older people. But he added, "One important reform we can begin immediately would be to shift the focus of our programs away from institutions and toward out-patient and home health services."

He said that currently 72 per cent of all Medicaid payments go for nursing home care while 0.2 per cent is spent for home health alternatives, although experts estimate as many as 40 per cent of nursing home residents could be cared for at a lower cost in their own homes.

Carter had a full day of campaigning ahead with a speech at the Senior Citizens breakfast before flying to Erie. He will also campaign in Cleveland before returning to New York for another round of handshaking and speech making in Brooklyn.

The New York Daily News has published a new poll that shows Carter's nine point lead over Ford has been cut to six per cent, a cause of concern to the Carter camp.

The Democratic presidential contender has been under heavy attack by Ford who maintains the best tax reform is a tax cut. Ford also has charged the Democratic platform would cost billions and would make a tax cut impossible.

But Carter said Wednesday it would be possible to phase in increased revenues that he expects to be about $80 billion over the next four years as a result of a 5 or 6 per cent restored growth rate, which could cover both new programs and a general tax cut.

Campaign observers are beginning to call the election close in most of the states with the biggest electoral votes. But Carter's aides said he remains 4 to 6 points in front, according to their samplings.

Mondale quoting mentor Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter Mondale is proud to be the political protégé of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey — and is starting to quote Humphrey to explain the difference between the economic policies of Republicans and Democrats.

In speeches to enthusiastic crowds in Ohio Thursday, Mondale recalled that Humphrey once told him "the Republicans are trickle-down economists while the Democrats are percolate-up economists."

The Democratic vice presidential nominee said this means that Republicans think if earnings are better for the rich, eventually the benefits will trickle down to the rest of the people. The Democrats he said, hold the opposite view: "If Americans are at work, are at decent jobs with a decent income, things will percolate up and for everyone, even the wealthy, things will get better," Mondale said.

The motto is, "If you want to live like a Republican, vote Democrat," he said. Mondale, obviously tired but optimistic about chances for a Democratic victory, visited West Virginia also Wednesday and spent the night and today at home in Washington, taking a few hours off for some rest.

Dole making swing through West

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI) — Robert Dole worked today for a minimal number of electoral votes in Western territory where the Republican ticket is considered to be in good shape.

said in Lincoln, Neb.

"We are respected by our friends, we are respected by our potential adversaries, we are at peace. Is there anything wrong with being at peace in the west?"

The states in which the GOP vice-presidential candidate campaigns today — New Mexico, Colorado, Montana, Washington and Oregon — have a total of only 39 electoral votes.

Even when Dole visits California Friday with its all important 45 electoral votes, he will concentrate on farm areas rather than stop at major population centers.

With five campaign days left, Dole has settled into a one-man campaign chariot — that President Ford has kept the nation at peace through strong leadership.

"When it's all said and done, when the American people stop to reflect that we are at peace... we're going to ask ourselves 'why change?'" he the Republicans could bring unemployment down to 4 per cent no timetable for that goal.

Dole spent much of Wednesday attempting to regain the momentum of his attacks on Carter, and particularly on Mondale.

At one point, he branded Mondale as the campaign's "hatchet man," a label that has been used to describe Dole during the weeks of campaigning.

"The hatchet man called me the hatchet man," Dole said of Mondale's charge in their nationally televised debate.

Returning again to Mondale, Dole said: "I think Fritiz is getting a little tired. I wish this campaign would end so he could get some rest."

Confident Ford bidding for Ohio, Indiana votes

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Polishing a new speaking style, President Ford targeted Indiana and Ohio for his campaign barnstorming today, confident he is on his way to upsetting Jimmy Carter in the presidential race.

Ford was flying from Philadelphia to Indianapolis for late morning campaigning before going on in the afternoon to Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio.

Throughout his transcontinental journey to election day, the President repeatedly has talked of his feeling that history will show he came from the lower depths of summertime public opinion polls to a Nov. 2 triumph.

"We have the momentum," he said at Atlantic City, N.J. airport Wednesday.

"It reminds me just a bit of the kind of momentum that one of my idols, a Democrat, Harry Truman, experienced in the final days of his 1948 upset victory campaign. We have the momentum going, the people are interested and I think we are going to surprise some folks."

Right to die bill a proper step

California Gov. Jerry Brown recently signed the nation's first "right to die" law for terminally ill patients.

Elderly or terminally ill patients in California now are legally allowed to refuse extraordinary treatments given simply to postpone their moment of death.

Even completely healthy residents can put in writing their desire not to be kept technically alive once all hope is gone for recovery from an illness or injury.

The California law affirms one of the few personal rights not given citizens of this nation — the right to die.

As a safeguard, when a Californian signs the right-to-die papers the document must be witnessed by two people who will not benefit from the patient's death and must be approved by a doctor who is not attending the patient.

The law also frees doctors from any risk of malpractice suits. And, the new bill prevents insurance companies from refusing to pay life insurance benefits to survivors on grounds that a patient's chosen death amounts to suicide.

Right-to-die legislation was supported by a variety of groups, including the California Medical Association and many senior citizen groups.

A not often discussed side benefit of the bill is the de facto manner in which it helps alleviate shortages of specialized medical equipment which often is used as a last attempt to keep terminally ill patients alive.

The California law isn't perfect, because it doesn't define what constitutes extraordinary medical treatment. For example, the law doesn't say whether the right-to-die document can be used to deny patients antibiotics or a feeding tube.

More than likely the California legislature, and other state legislatures, will need to write even more specific right-to-die laws to help clear up questions about what specific medical treatments a patient can ask not to be done to save his or her life.

Still, the California right-to-die legislation is important because the bill extends one final, dignified human choice to citizens.

A free nation which gives people a choice of how to live certainly should give citizens at least a partial choice of how and when they want to die.

JAMES RESTON

N.Y. Times Service WASHINGTON — This is starting out like the presidential election, when troubled voters who are dissatisfied with both President Ford and Governor Carter, seem to be trying to decide on what basis they will make their decision.

For many, it seems a choice between the devil they know and the devil they don't know. Mainly, it seems people will be voting against a man, or against inflation, unemployment, Big Unions, Big Business, busing, abortion, and for what they regard as their own personal interests.

All these are valid, but there are some other considerations, largely ignored or forgotten, that may be worth thinking about before the vote. Two come to mind, both having to do with the imperative need for the reconciliation and unity of the nation.

The first is the present lives and future hopes of our young. Over half of the American people today are 28 or younger. Even the oldest of these, who are conscious of the relationship between politics and their private lives, have no political memories before Vietnam, Watergate, Chappaquiddick, the murders of the Kennedys, the resignation of Lyndon Johnson, the disgrace of Richard Nixon, and the scandals of the Democratic lords of Capitol Hill, Wilbur Mills and Wayne Hays, among others.

Where are they going in the last of the Seventies?

These are our children, the rising generation and hope of the future, but in their own negative idiom, they are turned-off, and dropping out. They are more critical of Ford and Carter than any other segment of our society, and despite the 18-year vote, they have registered less and will vote less than their parents and grandparents, whom they blame for their frustrations.

In a Democratic society, this is an alarming situation. After over a hundred years of the land-grant state and city universities, we have more graduates than jobs to give them. After the most successful progress in racial integration, and the rise of a black middle class in America — unmatched in any other era or nation in the world — we have a black teenage unemployment rate in America of over 40 percent. These are not things to be ignored in any thoughtful vote for the future.

The second consideration that has to be cranked into the vote, among others, or so it seems here, is the long division of the nation between the North and the South. For over a hundred years, we rejected Roman Catholic presidents on religious grounds, until John Kennedy of Massachusetts was elected in 1960.

Since Appomattox, if you forget Woodrow Wilson, who was more Princeton than Virginia, and Lyndon Johnson, who was more western and Washington than southern, we have rejected candidates from the Confederate states, regardless of their character and talents, precisely because they were from the South.

And let's face it, that prejudice still exists. Within the normal Democratic Party constituencies, there are northern liberals who fear Governor Carter's conservative background, southern conservatives who fear his populist liberal philosophy, Roman Catholics who oppose his moderate views on abortion and busing, Protestants who reject his fundamentalist religion, Jews who remember the antisemitic history of some Southern Baptists, and who wonder whether a true Christian believer would ever agree as President to the political sovereignty of Israel over Jerusalem.

All this has to be sorted out in thoughtful minds before the vote, and the chances are that we will get little help in the next two weeks from either the President or the governor in defining the world. That is coming or the major issues for decision. So the voters will have to decide for themselves about the future and some things they know. The next four years will be a time of new and extremely complicated problems, requiring innovative minds and extraordinary energy.

In a divided Western World, they will demand, not merely a wise, reflective and respected President, but a cabinet and ministry of the best talents available, regardless of party. And above all, a more United America between the generations and regions, with a better understanding between the White House and the Congress.

This is clearly an argument for Carter; for the new, the young, the energetic, for change, for bringing the South back into the Union at the pinnacle of the Republic, and for giving the rising generation some hope beyond President Ford's promise of the status quo.

Obviously, there are other arguments. Ford is familiar, predictable, partisan, and conservative. He will defend the integrity of the dollar, which many people think is more important than anything else. What he has been, will almost certainly be in the future, while Carter will clearly be something different, something new, young, energetic, innovative and unpredictable.

So, the voter has many things to consider, before he pulls the lever. Whether he wants more of the same or something different, whether he wants to bet on the young or the old, take a chance on the men who are coming or the men who are going. On Nov. 2, he will have to answer, but for now the problem is to get the questions straight.

Ford hopes for Texas victory

AUSTIN, Tex. — There is somebody who probably could walk away with Texas' 26 electoral votes on Nov. 2.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, however, finished second in the Republican sweepstakes in Kansas City, and his name will not be on the ballot.

So, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter are left to slug it out for the state rich in electoral votes, a state key to the Democrats' victory strategy and vital to the Republicans. Neither is threatening to walk away with the state.

As usually is the case when the crowd wants the champion, the two top contenders are falling to stir much enthusiasm, and whoever eventually wins here may owe his victory to the other.

"To be frank," Fred Agnich, the President's campaign coordinator in Dallas conceded the other day, "our man isn't exciting a whole lot of people. But then, neither is Carter."

"If we win, to a large extent it may be because of an overwhelming concern among Texans about what Jimmy Carter, or any Democrat, would do, coupled with a wild-spending Democratic Congress."

When expressed in private conversation, the Democratic perspective on the two candidates does not differ greatly.

"We're likely to pull it off this time," said Billie Carr, the crusty Democratic national campaign chairman from Texas and a leader of the state party's liberal faction.

"I'm afraid, though, it doesn't have a lot to do with Jimmy Carter. The people just aren't ready for a change."

Reagan, who swamped Ford in the Texas primary last May, winning all 100 of the state's convention delegates, clearly retains his popularity among conservatives in both parties here.

He was trotted around the state last week by Republican leaders who evidently hope that some of his magic with Texas voters will rub off on the national ticket and on local GOP candidates as well.

Reagan, who was paid to make the tour, drew wildly enthusiastic crowds in Dallas, Houston and other parts of the state.

While the two top contenders vie with his criticism of Ford and the Democrats, he evidently still finds it difficult to say anything positive about the man against whom he campaigned for eight months. In speeches in Dallas and Houston, in fact, he mentioned Ford's name a total of once.

With or without Reagan's help, Ford would appear to have little chance to win this state and its important bloc of electoral votes — at least not on paper.

By virtually every standard, Texas is a state totally dominated by the Democratic party. Its top state officials are Democrats and traditionally have been. Of its 24 members of the House, all but three are Democrats.

In three of the past four presidential elections, the Democrats have carried the state. The exception of course, was the McGovern debacle, of 1972.

Texas was, after all, the home of "Cactus Jack" Garner, Sam Rayburn and Lyndon B. Johnson. Even the state's most influential Republican, former Treasury Secretary John Connally, once was a Democrat.

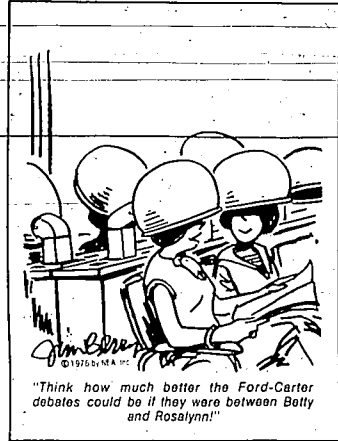

(Texas does have a Republican senator, John Tower, but his recent four-year sabbatical generally is considered a fluke, brought about by then-divided opposition.)

The statistics notwithstanding, Republicans believe Ford can win here, and even the most partisan Democrats do not completely discount that possibility.

"It's very, very close — everybody feels it," says Peter J. O'Donnell, a former state GOP chairman and Ford's deputy campaign manager. "We started behind, no doubt about it, but we've picked up a tremendous amount of ground."

"It's going to come down to a few thousand votes, one way or the other," said Kessler.

WASHINGTON — As the exciting election campaign comes to a close we must come to the following conclusions: Had Genghis Khan checked out on the second debate and walked at the same time, he would have never put his foot in his mouth.

The best time for Israel to get weapons from the United States is during the last three weeks of the presidential campaign.

The best time for American farmers to get increased supports for grain is three weeks before the election.

Jimmy Carter does things in his heart that he could be arrested for if he did them in front of the 50 states' best court.

President Ford can't balance his checkbook. If Ford is elected, he will probably appoint a Polish American to the Supreme Court.

If Carter is elected, he will pardon the editor of Playboy magazine.

Congress is responsible for everything that has gone wrong in the United States since Ford was sworn in as President.

It doesn't pay to play golf in Washington with a lobbyist.

The United States, according to President Ford, is respected throughout the world and anyone who says it isn't is tearing down the United States.

The United States, according to Jimmy Carter, is not respected around the world because Henry Kissinger makes secret promises he never keeps.

The League of Women Voters' is on Eugene McCarthy's enemy list.

When someone apologizes for a goof during a presidential campaign, it's called a "clarification."

If Jimmy Carter gets elected, according to President Ford, it will cost the taxpayers (a) $100 billion; (b) $200 billion; (c) 300 B-1 bombers.

President Ford, according to Jimmy Carter, doesn't care about (a) people out of work; (b) people in need of health care; (c) lunches for schoolchildren.

Walter Mondale loves pizza. Robert Dole is crazy about kosher, salami. Gerry Ford could live on soul food.

Jimmy Carter has a craving for Mexican tamales.

President Ford is for increases in oil and gas prices to provide incentives to private industry to see that the American people don't get cold this winter.

Jimmy Carter is for nuclear energy until we find means of harnessing the sun.

Never, never tell an ethnic story to John Dean on a plane during a presidential campaign.

Betty Ford is more popular with the voters than Gerry Ford.

Rosalynn Carter is more popular with the voters than Jimmy Carter.

If Jimmy Carter is elected to the Presidency, he will never lie to the American people.

Electoral college may be abolished

By NEA/London Economist Service WASHINGTON — (EENS) — One casualty of the presidential campaign of 1976 may turn out to be the electoral college, that shadowy body through which the indirect election of a new president is performed.

The present arrangement has stood unchanged since the 12th amendment to the Constitution was ratified in 1805; on three occasions in the nineteenth century it installed a president who had come second in the popular vote, and several times in this century it has come close enough to that result to give the country a fright.

The last such fright was in 1968 when George Wallace fell not very far short of getting the deciding vote between two close contestants, Nixon and Humphrey, and when, to rub in the imperfection of the system, an elector chose to vote for Nixon in North Carolina while for Wallace.

The next Congress took up a constitutional amendment to substitute direct popular election for the indirect election, but the House and the Senate killed it in 1970.

The opposition had various motives, theoretical and practical, but it could not have prevailed without the southern states, which feared the dilution of States' rights, and other small states unwilling to forgo the privilege of having a larger say in the election of the president than the size of their electorate warrants.

(Each state gets as many electoral votes as it has senators and congressmen together, and since the smallest state has as many senators as the biggest — two, that is — the smaller states are favored.)

Since then, changes in the Senate rules have made a filibuster harder to sustain. Other things have happened in the South. Its minority complex has been lessened somewhat. It has produced a Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter of Georgia, who has a good chance of getting elected. Its motives for obstructing the change to a direct popular vote have therefore been weakened.

Not least, the candidate who might conceivably lose the election in spite of coming first in the popular vote is Carter himself. Admittedly this is not a probable outcome, but political analysts like Kevin Phillips and Neal Peirce are pointing out that it is perfectly possible, and there is nervousness about it in Carter's camp. There will be no change without a fright, not unless people remember in February that they were frightened in October. The theory on which Carter might lose the race in his own way assumes that he gets more votes in the South and in some reliable northern states, than he needs, and that he loses a string of big states — Illinois, New Jersey, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, even perhaps California — by very narrow margins.

Apart from its disproportionate allocation of electoral strength, the chief thing wrong with the existing system is that in any state it gives the leading candidate all that state's votes, without regard to the breadth or narrowness of his margin.

GM profit figures delight union

DETROIT (UPI) — The financial success of General Motors Corp., whose third quarter profits of $397 million set a record, was met with a "torrent of profits" by the United Auto Workers, which is trying to negotiate a new labor pact for 300,000 U.S. workers.

GM's financial statement Wednesday showed profits up 49 per cent from a year ago to eclipse a three-year-old mark by $130 million. Its nine-month profits of $2.1 billion was 68 per cent above all of 1975 and only $100 million short of the full years of 1974 and 1975 combined.

UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone described GM's earnings as a "torrent of profits" and said the automaker "cannot escape its responsibilities at the bargaining table or elsewhere."

The Ford Motor Co. today completes the financial reports from the "Big Three" U.S. automakers, but its 28-day nationwide strike kept it from reaching the record profits attained by GM and Chrysler. Chrysler reported third quarter profits of $76 million.

GM's financial report held the union's spotlight. "Although these mammoth profits show that GM is bursting with financial health, the corporation still has not submitted an economic proposal," Bluestone said.

The company is not expected to present an offer until the UAW completes negotiations with Chrysler, which faces a Nov. 5 strike deadline.

GM's record profits were achieved with 60,000 fewer workers than GM employed when it established the old mark three years ago. Every item on the GM financial sheet was in the record column except the employment figure.

GM said its profit came on record sales of $10.2 billion and amounted to $1.37 a share. In the year-to-year period, GM earned $243 million (84 cents a share) on sales of $8.3 billion.

The $397 million profit, while a record for a third quarter, still is well below the quarterly record of $909 million set in the second quarter of this year.

Every item on the GM financial sheet was in the record column except the employment figure. It employed 734,000 persons worldwide in the July-September quarter compared with 734,000 employees in the same period in 1973.

Air time ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission, in a potentially far-reaching ruling, Wednesday ordered a group of noncommercial television stations in New York to provide access to their facilities for political candidates.

The unanimous ruling marks the first time the agency has ordered noncommercial television stations to give time to candidates. It results from a complaint by Sen. James Buckley, R-Coo-N.Y., who wanted the stations to air a five-minute film he made.

But the FCC said the stations — a group of public TV stations in Upstate New York — did not have to broadcast Buckley's film, although it ordered them to give him some form of uncensored TV time.

Enrollments rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — College enrollment of blacks, American Indians, Asian Americans and Spanish-surnamed minorities increased by 11.7 per cent from 1972 to 1974, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Overall enrollment increased by less than 2 per cent during the same period.

HEW also disclosed Wednesday that it approved waivers for 84 elementary and high school systems to receive $31 million in emergency school desegregation aid during fiscal 1976.

"Each of the 84 districts took specific action to end discriminatory practices in order to assure eligibility for the grants," said HEW's Office for Civil Rights.

It said desegregation aid was denied two school districts — Shelbyville, Tex., and New York City No. 28 — because of unsuccessful attempts to get them to comply with civil rights laws. The nature of the alleged violations was not mentioned.

On college campuses, the greatest minority enrollment increases were at private schools.

Consumer super-aid proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional study today recommended creation of a new super-agency for consumers, regulating everything from prescription drugs to seat belts.

The proposal was contained in the final part of a massive report on regulatory reform released by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., and his oversight subcommittee.

"The conclusions reject the notion that the agencies themselves, as presently constituted, can be counted on to represent the broad interest of the general public, particularly consumers," Moss said.

"Time and time again, our study discloses major decisions in which the agencies simply ignored the consumer's position."

The report recommends that a "Consumer Safety and Health Commission" be established to combine the regulatory functions of three existing agencies — the Food and Drug Administration, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the motor vehicle safety programs of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The study said such an agency would evaluate the status of health and safety regulation; insulate it from political interference by making the commission independent of the executive branch; and reduce overlapping and duplicative efforts in research, rulemaking, data collection and the application of benefit-cost criteria.

It claims that NHTSA's functions have been subverted by political interference from the White House and elsewhere and that FDA is lost in the vast bureaucracy of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

F-14 hoist bid fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy says an initial effort to raise sophisticated F-14 Tomcat jet fighter from the bottom of the North Atlantic failed Tuesday when a cable broke.

The Navy said bad weather in the Atlantic 100 miles northwest of Scotland increased tension on the lifting cable, causing it to snap. It said another attempt to raise the $15 million plane will be made as soon as weather improves.

The aircraft, which had been resting 1,900 feet below the surface, was raised to within 100 feet of the surface, the Navy said, but heavy waves forced the recovery ship to lower it several hundred feet.

Accounting first step

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department says it will ask for an accounting of Americans missing in action before discussing diplomatic recognition of North Vietnam at forthcoming diplomatic talks.

"It is the first thing we intend to raise," a State Department spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman confirmed a report by William J. Rogers, the national commander of the American Legion, who said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger pledged to him that the issue of prisoners of war and missing in action will "be the first item on the agenda next month when the United States opens formal talks with North Vietnam on possible diplomatic recognition."

Kress support from labor hit

Does Idaho want a representative who is beholden to big labor unions for his congressional seat?

About half of Stan Kress' contributions have come from organized labor. Only $5,123 of the $35,362 in his campaign chest have come from individual contributions. The average size contribution is about $250. I would say that is a significant source to the people of Idaho.

Only 14,000 union members live in the second congressional district, so union leaders can't think that members' dues can bring a return on their investment.

It is for no other reason than to defeat our conservative Congressman — George Hansen, whose votes cannot be bought, and who opposes the powerful monopolistic unions. They always contribute to the candidate they have good reason to believe they can control.

George Hansen's average contribution is $25, and they come from thousands of individuals and small private businesses. Naturally, these thousands of people, contributing to his election, who do not have to be reported or named, have the greatest influence on the big labor unions.

Just as unions' big money doesn't buy Congressman Hansen's vote, it must not influence our vote. His 100 per cent constitutional voting average in Congress should speak for itself and also guide us in our voting at the polls.

Ties to labor turn her off

10/5/76

I would like to comment on Ben McKelway's letter regarding our congressman's race. He says the Magic Valley deserves a representative who knows the land, not one who is beholden to business interests.

As for me and my house we don't want one who is beholden to big labor interests. Stan Kress bragged via the news media during his primary campaign that he had accepted financial help for the big labor unions. Labor runs this country, and we have enough of that kind of person in our congress already. Those who vote as labor demands or they'll withdraw their support.

I am quoting from the Los Angeles Times, Saturday, June 19, 1976 "Labor Power In Elections Immense If Not Decisive" is the headline. "Kress had flown into Seattle from a little town of Fruit, Idaho, to seek labor's support in his campaign for Congress. If things went well, if these eight men could be won over, he might be heading for Washington in January."

"Still he was uneasy. He wanted labor's support, but he was troubled by the certainty that if he got it his opponents would denounce him for lining up with labor bosses."

The article goes on to say that the labor bigwig that Kress most wanted to impress was Al Barkin, director of national AFL-CIO political activities. Barkin's approval was essential if Kress hoped to get money from the national AFL-CIO.

He let them know that he wants the help of unions in recruiting his own campaign workers, those banks of telephones, mass mailings of "Kress for Congress" literature and some of the estimated $8 million or more the unions will spend on political candidates this year.

They promised him they would "salvage this district with paid workers by buying them here to campaign for him."

"Kress' counting on this labor backing and the support of the Teacher's Association to make the difference in his election."

Judge for yourself which candidate you want serving the people of this district.

- George Meany's AFL-CIO bankrolls Cesar Chavez, head of the United Farmworker's union. The U.F.W. is now on the way to winning control of all California farms by strike and boycott, including the right to solicit farmworker union membership on privately-owned farms. Chavez has already targeted every Idaho farm, large and small. George Hansen's opponent has publicly stated that he "can't support Chavez at this time". We ask, just when? The day after the election?
- "Meany Agrees to Let Union Lead Grain Ships for Russia" was the headline in the Idaho Statesman Sept. 10, 1975. This demonstrates George Meany's power to control the farm economy. Meany's economic dictatorship is the greatest force today in inflating the farmer's costs and cutting his income. A Meany-controlled Congress means more depressed prices for the farmer. Idaho can't afford to give George Meany another vote in Congress.
- Just a few Congressmen stand between George Meany's present majority in Congress, and total control. Total control would enable Meany to impose his will on the Congress, the President and you, the average citizen. Where, then, is the voice for Idaho?
- Meany wants complete control of you. Control of the construction industry through common-site picketing, thus spiraling building costs and diminishing home ownership, he wants control of your right-to-work without joining a union, he wants to control your right to own guns, and whatever loopholes to your freedom happen to be left, Meany will close by demanding even more OSHA controls.
- George Hansen absolutely opposes Cesar Chavez and the unionization of farm labor. Congressman Hansen will continue to fight control and manipulation of farm prices by big labor bosses, big business and big government. George has been a champion for a free Congress, and a strong voice in Washington for the people of Idaho, Congressman Hansen has been a national leader in the fight against OSHA, against gun controls, against secondary boycotts and for your rights as a worker, farmer or businessman.

Re-elect Congressman GEORGE HANSEN

Veteran honored after 60 years

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Kenneth W. Jones gets his Purple Heart today — for injuries suffered in World War I nearly 60 years ago.

Jones, a retired Portland customs inspector, will receive the award from Gov. Bob Straub for wounds suffered in combat in France Oct. 1, 1918.

Jones, a private first class in the 363rd Ambulance Company, was knocked unconscious and left without hearing in one ear when he was narrowly missed by an artillery shell while leading a dozen infantrymen and three other medics to the front lines to bring in casualties.

He refused hospital treatment and continued his work. No mention of the injury was made in the company report, but after the war Jones spent some time in hospitals for treatment.

When he applied for the Purple Heart, however, the request was rejected. His problems were complicated by a fire which destroyed Army personnel records.

Finally, a friend, E. G. Johnson, Portland, a major in the Oregon National Guard and a member of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, appealed on Jones' behalf to the inspector general. Johnson said the appeal succeeded after "we papered the wall of the inspector general office with copies of his discharge papers."

Johnson said Jones probably will be the last veteran of World War I to receive the Purple Heart.

Discouraged voter finds own solution

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (UPI) — Since Jack Roscoe can't vote for "nons of the above," he is planning to keep away from the voting booth next Tuesday. In fact, he is handing out buttons saying "Don't Vote. It Only Encourages Them."

Roscoe, president of the Shortstop Markets, distributes the buttons at the checkout stands of his stores.

Roscoe, 48, said he would vote if "we could put down none of the above."

"He said he does not like politicians at any level."

"They want to violate us and not have us yell rape," he says of lawmakers.

Asked if he had voted in the past, he said: "I voted for the peace candidate, Lyndon Johnson, in 1964 and I got war. I voted for the law and order candidate in 1968, Richard Nixon, and I got crime and five months after Watergate I voted for Nixon again."

"I'm a three-time loser," he said. "With my record I ought to sign his one out."

Warning ignored

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The man Richard Nixon defeated in his first race for Congress says he tried but failed to warn people about his long-time political foe.

"The real tragedy of Watergate," former Rep. Richard Voorhis said Wednesday, "was that it took Watergate to awaken the country to what was happening."

Voorhis, 75, told a seminar audience he had predicted earlier that Nixon and his close advisers would try to take over the government and create a "presidential dictatorship."

Tote returns

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Comedienne Talc Fields, who lost 64 pounds following the amputation of a leg, plans to resume her stage career in Las Vegas next April.

"People love me for my jokes and humor, not for my fat," Miss Fields, now a svelt 117 pounds, said Wednesday in an announcement of her future plans.

The show business veteran, who underwent surgery for removal of her left leg last April, tried on a prosthetic leg at Cedars-Sinai Hospital for the first time Wednesday.

Off to college

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — This year's Nobel Prize winner in economics, Milton Friedman, is returning to Stanford University as a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution.

Director Glenn Campbell Wednesday confirmed that Friedman had accepted the appointment.

Friedman also will fulfill a promise to serve as a visiting scholar at the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank next year, Campbell said.

Busy day

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI) — Danish Minister of Economic Affairs and Trade, Per Haackkerup, had a busy day Tuesday.

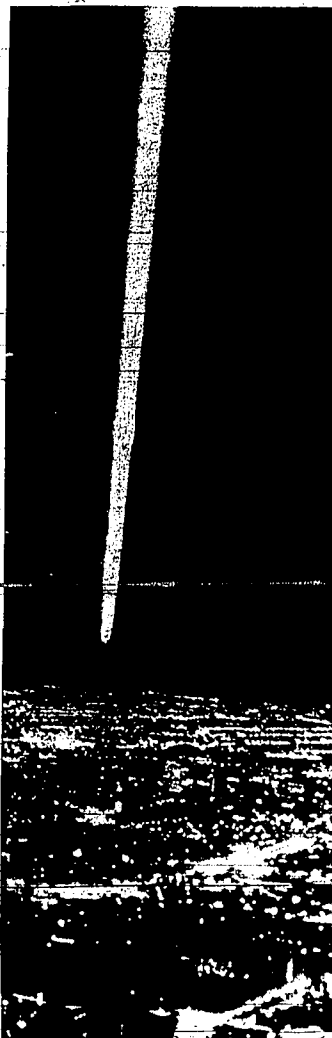

He was acting premier because of Anker Joergensen's visit to Poland, acting foreign minister as Knud Borge Andersen visited Turkey, acting minister of foreign economic affairs since Ivar Nergaard was in India and acting finance minister, for Knud Hellesen, who attended a common market meeting in Luxembourg.

PLO decline hailed

BOSTON (UPI) — Simcha Dinitz, Israeli ambassador to the United States, said Wednesday a decline in power of the Palestine Liberation Organization means a greater possibility for peace in the Middle East now than at anytime in recent history.

"The PLO, which was a disruptive force in any attempt for peace negotiations in the past" has been considerably weakened," he said in an address to the Press Club of Boston.

"He said Israel is not interested in acquiring new land, but only in maintaining 'secure borders.'"

Laser beam

LOOKING something like an advertisement for a science fiction movie, a laser beam is sent some 20 miles across the sky over Los Angeles. The beam, the most powerful ever used for entertainment purposes, was beamed from atop the Los Angeles Griffith Park Observatory dome to celebrate the opening of a laser beam show called "Laserium III" at the observatory. (UPI)

Another problem

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thailand, beset by riots at its largest university three weeks ago, a military coup d'etat and record rainfall and floods, now is threatened by crocodiles.

Police Chief Col. Wuthi Kittasol said Wednesday the creatures appear to have escaped from a crocodile farm, 120 miles northeast of Bangkok.

"There were about 200 crocodiles at the farm before this week's rainstorm," said crocodile farm manager Sak Roemchand. "Then came the floods."

Sak said farm workers searching nearby canals and flooded rice paddies had been unable to round up all of the reptiles.

A record 16 inches of rain fell on the Nakhon Ratchasima "Trainee" during Monday's eight-hour rainstorm.

Roads are impassable and the land is covered with a sheet of water, unable to drain because the land's face is at sea level.

Residents were warned by authorities spreading a "crocodile alert."

Orphan children benefit

DALLAS (UPI) — A shabbily dressed old man often seen walking the downtown streets carrying a brown paper bag may make life a lot easier for two children orphaned by the murder of their parents.

When Ella Gervetch died last year, most people believed the 80-year-old Russian was destitute. He had no family, few friends and lived in a decrepit house near the Trinity River bottoms.

Estate executor Neil O'Brien announced Wednesday that Gervetch wasn't the pauper he appeared to be — and was considerably more generous than anyone thought he could be.

Gervetch, a retired telephone linesman, worked hard, was thrifty, invested wisely and never married. He told bank officials he came to the United States as a teenager because his relatives and friends had been victims of pogroms against Jews in Russia and later in Germany.

O'Brien, an attorney, said the brown paper bag Gervetch often carried was full of stocks, bonds and other investment papers.

"He asked me who would get his money when he died, and I told him the state would," said O'Brien. "He said he wanted it to go to a society to help the blind and to two orphan children, so that's the way we fixed it."

After a year of searching for the children, O'Brien said officials had tentatively decided a quarter of Gervetch's estate would go to Billy and Mary Ann Locklear, whose parents were murdered in their home nine months after Gervetch died.

Billy and Hazel Locklear were tied, beaten and stabbed to death in a $4 robbery last June. Billy, 3, and Mary Ann, 2, lived in the house for three days on bread crumbs with their dead parents tied back-to-back in chairs in the middle of a room.

Since the murders, the two children have lived with Locklear's half-brother, David Basey of Salado, Tex. Basey, a painter, and his wife have six

Study shows costs sky high in Tokyo

ZURICH, Switzerland (UPI) — A survey by the Union Bank of Switzerland has determined that Tokyo is the world's most expensive city and Bogota, Colombia, is the cheapest.

In its survey of 41 major cities, the bank discovered food costs the most in Tokyo, Stockholm, Geneva and Copenhagen and is cheapest in Bogota, Buenos Aires and Dublin.

Manama, the capital of Bahrain, has the world's most expensive clothing, followed by Paris, Hong Kong, Geneva and Caracas. The cheapest clothing is in Bogota, London and Singapore.

Apartment rents are most costly in New York and Panama and the cheapest in Manila and Vienna.

Restaurant and hotel prices are highest in Manama, Paris, Buenos Aires and Geneva and lowest in Bogota, Johannesburg, Madrid and Istanbul.

The Union Bank said it used a computer to collect and analyze the cost of 7,500 individual items in 41 cities.

After Tokyo, the ranking by expense of the other 40 cities was: Manama, Oslo, Stockholm, Zurich, Geneva, Copenhagen, Tel Aviv, New York, Paris, Brussels, Montreal, Toronto, Chicago, Helsinki, Hong Kong, Dusseldorf, Los Angeles, Caracas, San Francisco, Sydney, Mexico City, Amsterdam, Luxembourg, Lisbon, Panama, Vienna, Buenos Aires, Tehran, Athens, Singapore, Dublin, Rio de Janeiro, Johannesburg, London, Madrid, Istanbul, Milan, Sao Paulo, Manila and Bogota.

New law may get court test

BOISE (UPI) — Legal action eventually may be necessary to clear up an ambiguity in Idaho's new "head-to-head" election law for the State House of Representatives, Attorney General Wynne L. Kidwell said today.

Kidwell said that is a provision in the law requiring an incumbent House member seeking re-election to file for the seat he holds. Under the "head-to-head" law, House candidates file for House Seat A or B in their district.

The question arose because Rep. S. Albert Johnson, R-Pocatello, was appointed by the District 35 Democratic Committee to fill a vacancy created when the primary election winner, Steve Guebert, withdrew.

Johnson at present holds Seat A and now is running for Seat B. He did not seek renomination in the primary election.

Kidwell said House Speaker Allan F. Larsen, R-Blackfoot, challenged the validity of Johnson's candidacy for the other seat inasmuch as he is an incumbent serving in Seat A.

He said Larsen contended this forced the Republican candidate for District 35 Seat B, former Rep. Max Stendell, R-Boise, to run against two incumbents — Rep. Ralph Wheeler, R-American Falls, in the primary and Johnson in the general election.

Assistant Attorney General David G. High said he learned of the question 12 days before the election and notified the district's Democratic committee the next day. He said that gave the committee one day before the deadline for changing candidates if the committee chose to do so.

He said the committee did not feel there was any serious problem. Since then, ballots have been printed with Johnson's name as a candidate for Seat B.

Now You Know

By United Press International
Winston Churchill always boasted that he was 1/32 American Indian.

The attorney general said he did not plan to take any action at this time. He said if Johnson is elected he will let the House of Representatives attempt to resolve the question.

Should the House be unable to settle it, he said, he might go to court to seek a declaratory judgment about the rights of the parties involved.

"We're not going to do anything between now and then," Kidwell said. "There's nothing appropriate for us to do."

Secretary of State Pyle T. Cenarrusa, Idaho's chief election officer, said his office is taking the position that Johnson is not running for reelection to the post he now holds — that he was appointed to fill a vacancy that occurred after the primary election. He said Johnson did not seek reelection in the primary so he does not have to succeed himself under the law.

Cenarrusa's office said it had received inquiries about the law both from the speaker's office and from John McAdams, Eagle, chairman of the American Party.

Teton info block sought in suit

BOISE (UPI) — Victims of the Teton Dam disaster have filed a class action suit in federal court to block release of information about federal funds they are receiving from a $400 million disaster-aid program.

The Interior Department earlier ordered release of basic information about the claims and the Bureau of Reclamation plans to release the claimants' names, the amount claimed, the amount paid and the category of claim paid.

Ferron W. Soderregger of Sugar City and 17 other victims brought the action to stop release of the information. They contend more than 1,000 possible claimants would become subject to gossip and contacts by unscrupulous salesmen.

They contend disclosure would violate the federal Privacy Act of 1974 and cause irreparable damage to victims of the June 5 disaster.

No charges in shooting.

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County Prosecuting Attorney Dave Leroy said he would not file criminal charges against Bruce Clark, 24, Garden City, in connection with the shooting death of David Ederger, also 24, from Garden City.

Ralph Snell, Garden City police detective, said Clark was stabbed three times by David Ederger, 24, Garden City, during an argument that evening — triggered — by Ederger's threatened violence to members of the Clark family.

Leroy said charges have been dropped because police investigation showed Clark had been stabbed three times prior to the time of the shooting.

It was reported Clark feared Ederger was "reaching back into his vehicle to get a gun" when he fired a 12 gauge shotgun into Ederger's left shoulder.

Governors push welfare reform

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the National Governors' Conference and the New Coalition said today the groups are organizing to work for welfare reform in the next session of Congress.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Idaho, said a task force of representatives of the five national organizations in the New Coalition plans to present "specific and concrete" welfare reform proposals to Congress early next year.

"All of us who have been involved in welfare reform efforts know how difficult it is to get agreement on the needed improvements, but we think the issue is so important in terms of human needs that it must be the major priority for our country in the coming year," Andrus said.

"Any proposal the task force comes up with is likely to be controversial but we need to get the issues out on the table for discussion," he said.

Organizations in the New Coalition are the National Governors' Conference, National Conference of State Legislatures, National Association of Counties and the National League of Cities — U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Reform areas to be studied include benefit levels, eligibility requirements, general administration of welfare programs, their relationship to other programs and possible addition of work requirements, Andrus said.

The New Coalition was formed in 1973 to increase the influence of local and state elected officials on national policy.

Andrus raps Hansen

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus accused incumbent Republican Congressman George Hansen today of losing sight of the election campaign and not focusing on issues concerning Idaho residents.

Andrus said Hansen was "running against the Lewiston Morning Tribune, running against the Internal Revenue Service, running against the media and now seems to be running against George Meany," president of the AFL-CIO.

"He seems to have forgotten his opponent is Stan Kress," the governor said. "Stan has tried desperately to get the campaign back on the issues, but George Hansen prefers to run against George Meany."

Boisean dies in Spain

BOISE (UPI) — Tony Scott, 20, Boise, grandson of J.A. Albertson, founder of the Albertson's Inc. Food chain and son of the chairman of the board of A&P Foods, died in Spain Tuesday, it was learned in Boise Wednesday.

No details of the death were immediately known. Scott died Tuesday while attending the University of Lorenzo, Ondale, Spain, an exchange school with Boise State University. He had been at the school since Sept. 7.

The youth was the son of J.J. Scott, former president and vice-chairman of the board of Albertson's and presently chairman of the board of A&P Foods. His mother is Barbara Rasmussen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Albertson of Boise.

Church fears apathy

CHEYENNE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Wednesday said only voter apathy could prevent Democrat Jimmy Carter from driving Gerald Ford out of the White House.

The one time seaker of the Democratic presidential nomination predicted the election Tuesday will be close but Carter will win.

The impact of independent candidate Eugene McCarthy will not be as great as some are predicting, the senator said. Many pundits say McCarthy will hurt Carter more than Ford.

Nampa youth wounded

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — John Mattalut, 15, Nampa, was under treatment at Merrey Medical Center today for accidental shotgun wounds in his left calf.

Sheriff's deputies said Mattalut was preparing to go hunting and thought he had emptied all the shells from his 20-gauge shotgun. There was one shell in the chamber, however, and when the boy's dog jumped on him it caused the youth to pull the trigger and shoot himself.

Mattalut underwent surgery late Wednesday.

Wounded man better

BOISE (UPI) — Ray Johnson, 31, Nampa, is on the critical list from gunshot wounds, attendants at St. Alphonsus Hospital reported.

Johnson was shot three times in Boise last Thursday by Stephen E. Tyson, an 18-year-old man, and killed himself. Johnson was taken out of the intensive care unit at the hospital but still is listed in serious condition.

Crash kills Pocatellan

SUGAR CITY, Idaho (UPI) — Alan Dale Turner, 26, Pocatello, has been killed in a one-car accident on U. S. 191 south of Sugar City.

Sheriff's officers said Turner's car was approaching a curve when it went over the center line and down an embankment, hit a roadbed and overturned a number of times. Turner was thrown from the vehicle.

Passersby discovered the body about 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Pipeline builders face transit woes

WASHINGTON — Builders of the controversial Alaska pipeline are facing a new problem: how to get oil to where it's needed in the Midwest and the East.

This is the predicament facing some of the nation's biggest oil companies who own the rich reserves in Alaska's Prudhoe Bay oil fields. The companies now realize that West Coast refineries, for which the crude oil was intended, will be unable to handle almost half the 12 million barrels of oil a day that tankers should start bringing from the southern terminus of the $8-billion Alaska pipeline late next year.

A variety of ways are being considered to get the excess oil to the Midwest and East. Among them are cumbersome and costly plans to ship the oil through the Panama Canal by tanker or to exchange oil with Japan.

According to federal energy officials, the most economical way to deliver the oil would be by pipeline. Three pipeline proposals are in planning stages, but all of them are riddled with problems.

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio (Sohio), which owns slightly more than half of the North Slope oil, is seeking approval for a 1,000-mile pipeline system running across the Southwest from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, Tex. The oil would be refined on the Gulf Coast and then shipped north through existing pipelines to the Midwest and the East.

Sohio's plan has run into major opposition in California where that state's Air Resources Board contends that emission from the unloading of oil tankers in Long Beach harbor would violate state and federal air quality standards.

Another plan calls for shipping the oil by tanker from the Alaska pipeline terminus at Valdez to Fort Angeles, Wash., then delivering the oil by pipeline to Clearbrook, Minn. The pipeline would serve about a dozen refineries in Washington, Montana, Minnesota and North Dakota that currently depend on Canadian oil which is due to be cut off after 1981 under Canada's recently revised energy policy.

NBC reports Levi won't check Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Dept. President Ford's possible role in congressional investigation into Watergate without questioning two key witnesses and without placing a third under oath, NBC News reported today.

The network's legal correspondent, Carl Stern, also said the Justice Department violated its own Freedom of Information guidelines by rejecting a request for documents supporting Levi's statement that the decision was based on a "careful study" of the evidence.

Levi last Wednesday turned down a request by two House members for a review of unpublished Watergate tapes in light of statements by former White House Counsel John Dean that Nixon aides had been blocking the proposed 1972 inquiry.

Levi subsequently told a news conference he stood by his testimony at his vice presidential confirmation hearings when he said he could not recall any specific contacts with the White House about the matter. Dean then repeated his charges in a television interview.

Stern said NBC News subsequently "learned that two of the three most available witnesses in the case were never questioned at all. And a statement of a third man was taken informally without placing him under oath."

He identified them as Dean himself and William Timmons and Richard Cook, both members of the legislative liaison office in the Nixon White House.

Stern said Levi's decision not to investigate "rested heavily on denials by Timmons and Cook, both of whom the Justice Department said it had questioned. But it now turns out Timmons was never interviewed at all. The department relied only on a three-year-old affidavit by Timmons that he hadn't talked to Ford on the matter — a subject that is not in dispute."

"Cook was questioned but not under oath. And the department made no attempt to talk to Dean, who made the charge — nor did it ask to see his records," he says.

The NBC correspondent said Levi was asked about the matter and said he considered such steps unnecessary. He said the network then invoked the Freedom of Information Act in an effort to get "whatever documents supported Levi's decision."

Scout programs tonight

TWIN FALLS — Parents of boys and girls 8 to 14 years of age are invited to participate in a community sampling program of the Boy Scouts of America tonight at various schools in the community.

The program will be held at 7 p.m. at each of the elementary and junior high schools and parents are asked to go to the school their children attend.

The purpose of the program is to determine the amount of community interest in the scouting program.

Young men and women 14 to 21 years of age are eligible for the multipurpose explorer posts to participate in canoeing, white water rafting, back packing, community action, aeronautics and many more special programs for older youth.

Assistant Scouting Executive Mark Kelley, 733-2987 or 733-2029, will provide additional information on the program.

Colorado governor cautious about fuel

1978 Newhouse News Service

DENVER — Voicing support for expanded coal production and oil shale development, Colorado Gov. Richard D. Lamm said his state is committed to providing electricity and fuel for the nation but he wants energy production to be "slow and careful" so as to protect Colorado's environment.

Lamm said in an interview that he would do everything possible to encourage the phased development of Colorado's energy resources under a proposed federal program of loan guarantees and price supports for synthetic fuels.

Lamm, an independent Democrat who was elected governor two years ago with strong support from environmentalists, said environmental groups are making "a serious mistake" in opposing synthetic fuels legislation. Congress narrowly rejected a $4-billion synthetic fuels bill last month, after it was opposed by environmentalists and by conservatives opposed to federal energy subsidies.

Lamm said that unless energy development begins now, Colorado and other energy-rich Western states will face Congress's overriding their interests in "a great crash program" to get every barrel of oil and every ton of coal out of the ground as soon as possible.

"If there's an oil embargo again — and there will be — or if there's an increase in price, all of a sudden Colorado may find itself subjected to an incredible crash program for coal and oil shale," Lamm said.

The Western states want a voice in policy decisions involving coal and oil shale, Lamm said.

"The West isn't seeking to lock up its energy resources," he said. "We want them developed in a thoughtful, careful way. We do not want to be the victims of a hasty, thoughtless program."

He said the Rocky Mountain states have considerable reason to fear being turned into an environmental basket case like Appalachia.

It is not only that a large portion of the energy resources lie within their borders (42 percent of the nation's coal, 95 percent of the uranium, 100 percent of the recoverable oil shale) but the federal government owns a large portion of the land in Colorado, 44 percent in Arizona, 63 percent in Idaho, 66 percent in Utah and 68 percent in Nevada.

Lamm said the impact and development of the resources on federal lands need to be developed over a long period — through direct federal programs and leasing to private firms — is hard to resist.

College head named

CHENEY, Wash. (UPI) — Eastern Washington State College named Dr. H. George Frederickson its new president Wednesday, effective Jan. 1.

Frederickson is dean of the college of Public and Community Service at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri.

Frederickson, 42, was named to the post over two other candidates, including acting president Philip Marshall, following a six-month search.

Frederickson succeeds Dr. Emanuel Snuck who resigned under pressure last December.

The pressure had to do with continuing complaints from the Black Student Union that the school administration was being insensitive to minorities.

Frederickson said he has not studied the problems at Eastern, but he speculated that the problems at Eastern "are not that much different than problems faced by women and minorities elsewhere."

"I'm aware there are tensions," he said.

Meteorites found near South Pole

BETHLEHEM, Pa. — Within a radius of a few miles in Antarctica, Japanese scientists have found 1,000 meteorites of diverse types. The discovery is believed to be without precedent and the Japanese say no ready explanation is known.

In the past, there have been meteorite falls that showed the landscape with fragments, but the Antarctic discovery consists of numerous thousands of meteorites that presumably fell successively over a prolonged period. It is estimated that the entire earth receives about one meteorite a day.

The Japanese find was described in an interview Tuesday by Dr. Masako Shima, whose husband collected some of the specimens. Dr. Shima also discussed the finds at the annual meeting of the Meteorological Society being held here at Leigh University. The society is an international association of specialists in meteorites and related subjects. The meteorites found on three successive Japanese expeditions lie near the Yamato Mountains, inland from the Japanese Showa Base. The first nine specimens were found by Dr. Shima said she has studied four of them, and that all were of different types.

On an expedition in 1974, a rich field was discovered, with 663 specimens, ranging in size up to 12 pounds. Then last year, another 333 were found. The discoveries of all three expeditions lay within two areas, one 100 meters and each 10 miles on side.

According to Dr. Shima, who is with the Max Planck Institute for Chemistry in Mainz, West Germany, only one of the specimens is an iron meteorite. The rest are stones, or other types such as carbonaceous chondrites.

Dr. Edward Olsen, meteorite specialist at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, plans to visit Antarctica this December when summer begins in the southern hemisphere, hoping to find specimens on the side of the continent opposite the Japanese base.

Panel chairmen question Ford's clearance claims

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Congressional committee that recommended Gerald R. Ford's confirmation as vice president in 1973 has raised questions about the President's contention that their committees had cleared him of allegations that he helped block a 1972 House investigation of the Watergate break-in.

In separate telephone interviews Tuesday, Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., who is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., who is chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, said that their committees did not have access to subsequently disclosed information about the incident when they conducted Ford's confirmation hearings in 1973.

They referred to the disclosure in mid-1974 of a Sept. 15, 1972, White House tape in which the then President, Richard M. Nixon, ordered his staff to have Ford, then the House minority leader, take the lead in blocking a Watergate investigation by the House Banking and Currency Committee.

They also mentioned recent statements by John W. Dean 3d, a former White House counsel, that Nixon had directed Richard Cook, then a member of the White House Congressional liaison staff, to talk with Ford in 1972 about stopping a proposed Watergate investigation by the House committee.

However, both Rodino and Cannon said they knew no further action that their committees could take now.

Ford, who has been asked about the matter frequently by reporters in recent weeks, has maintained that he testified fully about the matter to Rodino's and Cannon's committees at his confirmation hearings in 1973.

In the presidential debate with Jimmy Carter last Friday night, Ford said that the two committees, the attorney general and the Watergate special prosecutor "have given me a clean bill of health," and that he regarded the matter as "settled once and for all."

Last Wednesday, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi rejected a request from two Democratic representatives, Elizabeth Holtzman of Brooklyn and John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, for a new investigation of allegations about Ford's role in blocking the 1972 investigation.

Plan to combat nuclear weapon spread unveiled

While the President's statement gives little additional information about the reprocessing evaluation plan, the background paper to Ford prepared by the Nuclear Policy Review Group on Sept. 2 — includes a discussion of what the administration should do about plutonium use in the U.S.

The report said several options had been considered, two of which were rejected completely — the concept of a program of direct government assistance to industry to accelerate domestic reprocessing, and a decision to defer reprocessing commitments for the next five or 10 years "without taking some compensating actions."

The Nuclear Policy Review Group then presented Ford with "two options for your consideration." The first was to "assist industry to gain a license to reprocess," and the second was to develop alternative technologies for utilizing the used reactor fuel without separating out the plutonium.

The two recommended options in the background memorandum appear to parallel the recommendations in Ford's prepared statement, but because the statement said only that the head of energy administration, was being directed to define a reprocessing evaluation program, the question as to when it would be initiated was not answered.

The evaluation of reprocessing was only one of the seven measures that Ford's statement said he would undertake. The six others were:

- The U.S. should no longer regard reprocessing of used nuclear fuel to produce plutonium as a necessary, and inevitable step in the future development of commercial nuclear power.
- The President called upon all nations to join the U.S. in exercising maximum restraint in the exporting of reprocessing technology for at least the next three years.
- Those nations exporting nuclear equipment, such as the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada, West Germany, France and Britain, should unite to provide other nations a guaranteed source of enriched uranium fuel for their reactors.
- The U.S. must remain a leading supplier of reactors and use its position to encourage the development of new international controls to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.
- The U.S. must re-examine its own nuclear export policies.
- The U.S. should take new steps to be sure that facilities are available in the United States and around the world for the long-term storage or disposal of nuclear wastes.

The President's statement said that developing the vast benefits of nuclear energy while at the same time preventing a spread of nuclear weapons was one of the major challenges facing the nations of the world.

Ford's statement further said that if the effort to halt a spread were not successful, the world would face a situation where security of all peoples would be imperiled.

The 36-page background memorandum, analyzing the growing controversy over the problem, said that as the nuclear policy review group continued its study "interest in nuclear policy has escalated."

Seoul OK'd high bids

WASHINGTON — Army investigations have concluded that the South Korean government condoned if not controlled collusive bidding among Korean contractors competing for United States military contracts in South Korea about $20 million a year.

At least until 1973, according to Army investigative reports, the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency controlled all the bidding by South Korean concerns on goods and services purchased by the United States Army in South Korea.

Summaries of two recent Army investigative reports were made public Wednesday by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who protested that "collusive bidding practices backed with strong-arm enforcement by Korean contractors is costing American taxpayers $15 million to $25 million annually."

U.S. industry now invests $37,929* (per employee) to create a job

By investing more than any other nation in the world for sophisticated, efficient equipment, American industry produces more per employee. And by producing more, American labor earns more. We're for labor earning more... and for industry earning the profits necessary to buy the equipment that makes it all possible.

Cricket 'ban' pushed

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Cricket, one of the most popular sports in Sri Lanka, has been described by an influential newspaper as "reactionary" and may be on its way out of the country.

The English language Times newspaper, controlled by Prime Minister Srimavo Bandaranaike's son, Anura Bandaranaike, Tuesday said the government is carrying out a campaign to ban cricket playing because "it is a reactionary game left behind by the British colonialists."

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three Americans who admitted smuggling 62 pounds of heroin into the Soviet Union are believed to have begun serving lengthy labor camp terms after their appeals were rejected.

U.S. officials said Tuesday they presumed the men were transported to a penal colony 250 miles southeast of Moscow, but they had no confirmation from Soviet authorities.

The officials also said they had lodged a verbal protest with authorities over their failure to invite American consular representatives to attend the appeal proceedings, which took place earlier this month.

The officials said it was routine for consular representatives to be present for such hearings.

A consular officer only learned the appeals had been turned down when he made a routine visit about 10 days ago to Gerald Amster, Dennis Robert Burn and Paul Brawer in their cells in a Moscow prison.

All three had been given documents confirming the appeals court had upheld their sentences, the officials said.

The men were described as reasonably clever and in good health.

They are the first Americans to face a Soviet court in eight years and the only Americans currently in Soviet custody.

They were arrested in June at Moscow airport after customs inspectors discovered the heroin concealed in their luggage.

They testified at their four-day trial in August that they were paid couriers for a Chinese drug ring and at the time of their arrest were changing planes in Moscow while en route from Malaysia to Amsterdam.

Western narcotics experts said the "brown sugar" heroin they were carrying could have brought as much as $2 million on the streets of most Western European capitals.

Amster, 33, of New York City, organizer of the smuggling operation, had served an eight-year sentence while Burn, 26, of Whitestone, N.Y., received seven years and Brawer, 31, of Las Vegas, got five.

Family defies order

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A search of the home of Walter and Anna Slavin, accused of kidnapping their daughter Madonna because she was engaged to a Hare Krishna devotee, failed to turn up a trace of the woman.

The family defied an order by Superior Court Judge Harry L. Hupp to bring Madonna, 20, to court and Walter Slavin Tuesday refused under oath to discuss where she might be on grounds he might incriminate himself.

The woman's brother, Clarence, also refused to answer questions about the alleged abduction and her mother, Anna, did not appear in court.

Madonna had gone to the family home in suburban Gardena Saturday after being told by telephone that her grandmother was ill, Edward Walfort, 27, her fiancé and also a member of the Hare Krishna group, said in an affidavit he drove Madonna to her parent's home and saw her pulled screaming into the house.

Slavin said she was "fighting with someone inside closing the door on her... they dragged her back in... I heard her screaming."

Walfort said he was restrained by the brother when he tried to help her.

Hupp ordered the Slavins home searched, but the girl was not found. The hearing was adjourned until Thursday.

The court is going to make further inquiries into this case and intends to get the young lady to this court to find out whether or not she is being held against her will," Hupp said.

The district attorney's office was considering granting the Slavins immunity from prosecution in return for revealing Madonna's whereabouts, Hupp said.

Madonna had been associated with the religious movement for 10 months and her parents were reportedly upset when she decided to marry Walfort.

Walfort, clad in a conventional suit, appeared in court Tuesday with more than a dozen Hare Krishna members wearing flowing orange and white robes.

TF seeks federal funding

TWIN FALLS — The City of Twin Falls will apply for an undetermined amount of money from the federal Economic Development Administration (EDA) for five public work projects within the next two weeks, according to City Manager Jean Miller.

Miller said today the city will use EDA to fund five different projects, including one-half mile road improvement project for the dirt road that leads up from the Twin Falls sewer pumping facility in the Snake River Canyon.

Cost estimates on the five projects are being investigated right now, Miller said.

Approximately $10-million is available to Idaho under the EDA program, according to Miller. He said it had not yet been determined how much would be available to Twin Falls.

Other public works projects the city plans to ask EDA to fund include roughly one-half mile of reconstruction on Washington Street North and Ding Lakes Boulevard South, installation of roughly two miles of sewer water lines south of the city, roughly 1½ mile extension of minor water lines in the western and eastern sections of the city and the construction of a storage building for 12,000 to 13,000 square feet for the city vehicles.

Ag economists slice $2 billion from farm income

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department economists have sliced roughly $2 billion off their previous estimates of 1976 net farm income, a report indicated Wednesday.

Simultaneously, analysts repeated earlier forecasts that retail food prices this year will average only 3 per cent above 1975, far below last year's 8.5 per cent food inflation rate and the 14.5 per cent figures of the past two years.

For the first half of 1977, experts added, they continue to expect food prices to rise at a rate of about 2 to 4 per cent.

The farm income figure of the new report gave no precise figures, but experts say the economic outlook for the last half of 1976 is not as strong as expected earlier, and they now believe that realized net farm income for the full year will be "around 1975 levels."

Terry Barr, a department economic official, said in an interview this means 1976 income may be roughly about the same as last year's $27.7 billion. That is about $2 billion under the estimate of around $25 billion which department experts were using in August.

Analysts blamed the drop on larger than expected livestock supplies for the last two quarters of the year, and lower than expected cattle and hog prices. Prices for cattle and beef are expected to rise next year, but this year's reductions are more than offsetting stronger-than-predicted late season prices for crops, experts said.

If net farm income turns out at the near-$23 billion figure tentatively indicated in the new report, it would fall short of the $27.8 billion reported for 1974 and the record of $29.9 billion set in 1973 — but if it equals last year's $27.7 billion, it would be tying the third best farm income year on record.

The retail food section of the report said the forecast of a 2 to 4 per cent inflation rate in the first half of 1976 depends heavily on what happens to meat supplies and domestic demand.

Experts said consumers are facing only "small" price increases this winter, concentrated mainly in fresh produce and coffee. But by spring, they said, "food prices may increase a little more rapidly if beef production is cut back as expected and fresh produce prices strengthen seasonally."

Officials said foreign demand for American grain will remain strong. But with global grain production up 5 or 6 per cent — as a big Soviet crop more than offsets drought losses in Europe — exports of American grain in the current 1976-77 season may drop about 5 per cent below last season's record 83 million tons.

Knebel sees 'positive' farm trend toward Ford

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Undersecretary of Agriculture John A. Knebel, who has been getting head of his department since Earl Butz was forced to resign as Agriculture Secretary Oct. 4, says he sees a "pretty positive trend" toward President Ford among farm voters in the closing stages of the campaign.

Knebel, 40, who has stepped in to replace Butz in a number of farm belt campaign appearances, said in an interview he thinks wheat growers are "pretty pleased" by the government's recent decision to increase support loan rates for grains.

Earlier, wheat producers had been voicing sharp complaints against the administration because a near-record 1976 harvest had depressed prices for their crop. Growers asked President Ford to raise the old $1.50 a bushel support loan rate to $3, and Knebel announced an increase to $2.25 on Oct. 13 in addition to an increase in corn supports.

Knebel said farmers he talked to during recent campaign swings in parts of wheat states including Nebraska, Colorado and western Kansas appeared satisfied by the action.

"It wasn't all they wanted. But it will give them enough to market their crop in an orderly way instead of having to sell at distress prices," the Undersecretary said.

Under the support program, growers can pledge their crop as collateral for a loan at the support price and hold the commodity while awaiting an improvement in market prices. When they are ready to sell, they can pay back the loan, redeem the grain and sell it to a commercial buyer.

Knebel, who has committed himself to carry on Butz' "business market oriented" approach to farm policy, has no idea how long he will continue to head the Agriculture Department. For the present, he still works in his undersecretary's office, which connects with Butz' old Southeastern office in a small hall like chamber occupied by secretaries.

The big Secretarial office remains empty and dark. Knebel noted that administration attorneys think President Ford may have to take some new step dealing with the running of the Agriculture Department by Nov. 3, the day after next week's election.

Knebel said experts believe the Undersecretary can legally serve as Acting Secretary only for 30 days, which will expire Nov. 3. After that, to avoid the possibility that some official actions could be challenged in court, Ford would have to choose from several options including the designation of another Acting Secretary or the selection of a new Secretary under an "interim" appointment.

Interim appointments can be made when Congress is not in session. Anybody chosen in this fashion would serve until Congress returns and the president submits a new formal, regular nomination.

Knebel said he had no idea what Ford would decide to do. But one GOP Capitol Hill source said it would not be surprising if Ford — win or lose — gives Knebel the interim appointment.

If Ford loses to Jimmy Carter, the source pointed out, Knebel would be a logical man to continue as the caretaker head of the Agriculture Department until the new administration takes over. If Ford wins, giving Knebel the interim post would give the president time for a careful canvassing of potential Agriculture secretaries while he reviews his entire cabinet picture for the new term.

The source said possible permanent nominees if Ford wins might include Clayton Yentler, a Nebraska "now serving as a deputy trade representative in the White House, and Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Bell. But he said Knebel should not be counted out of the running despite his relative youth.

A native of Tulsa, Okla., Knebel is an attorney who has no direct farm experience but who served in 1969 and 1970 on the House Agriculture Committee staff. Later, he alternated stints in private practice

Utah livestock show opens today

OGDEN - The 58th annual Golden Spike National Livestock Show opened today. The show continues through Nov. 6. Beginning with exhibitions of graceful movements in the 6th annual Hunter-Jumper Chase, the million-dollar exhibition will feature the 13th annual All Arabian Horse Show, a special draft horse division, cow cutting, and rugged action by contestants in the Rocky Mountain Hobbies Association. The Friday event is at the Golden Spike Coliseum, now readily accessible via a $5 million viaduct completed in June. Friday will see the Arabian show and rabbit judging with 4-H and Future Farmers of America horse shows set for Saturday. Activities will continue on Halloween with the Appaloosa Horse Division halter classes and youth show. Feeder cattle sifting, weighing and tagging, as well as fat stock stalling, and registration and beef, sheep and swine weighing and tagging are also scheduled on Sunday. Appaloosa performance classes will close out that day's events. Aberdeen Angus judging, an open horse show, Charolais, fat stock and feeder cattle judging will be Nov. 1 and 2, with Draft Horse and Shetland pony halter classes and pulling contests on the evening of the second. Numerous sales are planned during the exhibition, including those for feeder cattle and fat stock on Nov. 3, the Hereford bull sale on Nov. 4, Simmental-cattle and Quarter Horse Futurity on Nov. 5 and the Golden Spike Yearling Quarter Horse Futurity and registered Quarter Horse sales on Nov. 6. Wednesday, Nov. 3 will see the Hereford cattle, breeding sheep, open hog, junior dairy judging, a feeder cattle sale, checkwagon supper at 4:30 p.m. and the fat stock sale at 6:30 p.m.

Quarantine violators face penalties

BOISE (UPI) - Idaho cattlemen were warned today violation of brucellosis quarantines can result in jail sentences and heavy fines. Dr. W. G. Nelson, Kuna, assistant chief of the bureau of animal industries for the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said swift removal of animals under temporary quarantine is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $5,000 and a jail sentence of up to six months.

Brucellosis is a very serious matter and the regulations are not to be taken lightly," he said. "They are for the protection of healthy animals and for livestockmen who maintain clean herds." The disease - often referred to as Bang's disease - is highly contagious among cattle, causing pregnant cows to abort. The disease can be contracted by humans only through drinking unpasteurized milk from an infected cow or through careless handling of an aborted fetus. The human disease is known as undulant fever. Nelson said charges were brought against an eastern Idaho dairyman for removal of five cows from his quarantined premises. He was found guilty and received a 30-day jail sentence and a $500 fine. Nelson said the jail term and half the fine were suspended and the dairyman was placed on probation for two years.

"The dairy farmer still faces charges in another county for selling those cows at an auction," he said. The state official said the state has accelerated its brucellosis testing program.

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Thursday, Oct. 28, the 302nd day of 1976 with 61 to follow. The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter, Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Venus. These born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio. Jonas Salk, American discoverer of the polio vaccine, was born Oct. 28, 1914. On this day in history: In 1936, Harvard University was formed in Massachusetts. In 1826, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor. In 1924, issues on the New York Stock Exchange and curb exchanges ran to more than $10 billion. Some high-priced bank stocks dropped 500 points. In 1968, thousands of Czechs rallied to protest occupation by Soviet troops. The rally was crushed.

Rescued couple on land

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UPI) — Two American survivors of the sunken yacht Spirit, adrift without food or water for 21 days, arrived in Japan today aboard the container ship that rescued them from the Pacific.

"It's good to be alive and I feel strong," said Dural Miller, a 26-year-old professional sailor. Miller and Nancy Perry, 21, both of San Anselmo, Calif., spent 21 days in a life raft before they were rescued Oct. 19 by the 21,203-ton Oriental Financier. The container ship is of Liberian registry but is owned by Orient Shipping of Hong Kong.

Miss Perry was placed on a stretcher because she was having trouble walking and was taken to a hospital.

Miller, Miss Perry and three others originally set sail for California from Honolulu aboard the 42-foot ketch Spirit. "I was looking for some excitement," Miller told reporters. "Our generation had been frustrated because they don't have a goal and many ended up with drugs."

The yacht sank in rough seas Sept. 27. Two of the crew, identified as Jim Ahola, 25, and Camilla Arthur, 20, died, and a third, Bruce Collins, 23, of Walnut Creek, Calif., was rescued last Sunday by the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell.

Collins arrived in San Francisco Tuesday much thinner, but "looking good and in good spirits," according to his father. "Nancy was weak when we started our voyage," Miller said. "We stayed two or three more days at sea, she would not have been alive. She is not in good shape."

Mr. Jorain Perry, Miss Perry's mother, was at Yokohama's Honcho pier and went up to see her daughter as soon as the Oriental Financier dropped anchor.

Miss Perry said her daughter "cried" when they were reunited and "said she loved all of us."

Miller said "I was ready to die every five minutes" during the ordeal but Miss Perry's presence helped him not to give up hope.

He said the main topic of his conversation with Miss Perry was food. "Hunger in the stomach ceased to exist after several days," he said.

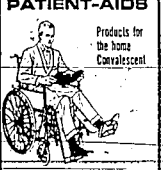

"We saw only one airplane — a passenger plane — very high in the sky."

Collins, who spent 21 days adrift in a separate liferaft, said in San Francisco he never lost hope of being saved.

"Jack no," said Collins when asked by his mother up on being rescued. "I was going to California."

"I always felt he was okay," his father said. "I never lost faith. I just felt sure they would find him."

His mother, Kay, said Collins, who had been trained in lifeboat survival, told her he ran out of water the thirteenth day and had no food at all. She said her son lost a great deal of weight but "looked wonderful."

'Nobody' runs for president

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Nobody spoke at a recent presidential campaign rally on the 40,000-student University of Texas campus but that wasn't surprising.

Only 600 students showed up to greet Nobody cheer and sing Nobody songs, such as "You're Nobody 'Till Somebody Loves You" and "Nobody Loves You When You're Down and Out."

The preposterous campaign of "Nobody for President" concocted by absurdist Curtis Spangler, Wavy Gravy and Doug Guterman (also known as "Nobody's Fool") hopes to compete in cross-country tour in Washington on election day.

Gravy, also known as Hugh Romney, a counterculture stand-up comedian and mid-1960s political activist from San Francisco, said it is not difficult to understand Nobody's appeal to voters because Nobody's been busy working for the people. "Nobody's been working for us at least the last eight years. Look at the things Nobody's done for you! Nobody's balanced your budget; Nobody's cut your taxes; Nobody's fed the poor," he said, spinning the propeller atop his beanie.

Gravy, leader of the Hog Farm commune, also has campaigned for a pig and a rock. The rock's running mate was a dinner roll — hence the slogan "Rock and roll forever." Gravy said the positive reaction to Nobody's campaign from conservatives and liberals indicates voters are questioning whether the office of president is needed in this computerized age.

"I truly think we'd be a lot more democratic country if Congress was to run the country and have Nobody in that office. There would be a lot less war," said Gravy, stylishly dressed in a bright blue track suit, sandals and his propeller-driven beanie.

The concept of "Nobody for president" evolved this summer, Gravy said, and the campaign slogan is "feed the people, stop the killing and have fun" or "world peace through joy and laughter."

Nobody appeared at the first Carter-Ford debates by seizing the 28-minute silent stretch during which Nobody spoke, he said.

Gravy said voters should vote for "Nobody" and dress like clowns. "There's no way anyone will beat up a clown. No one says 'let's go beat up a clown,'" he said.

Agents to stand by election day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department will have FBI agents and U.S. attorneys standing by next Tuesday to quickly handle reports of federal election law violations.

Attorney General Edward H. Levi said the agents and lawyers will be on standby until all polls close Nov. 2.

The department said it is "determined to see that every reasonable step was taken to insure the absolute integrity of the federal electoral process in this year's election."

Another official said states have the primary responsibility for supervising the elections but the revised Federal Elections Campaign Act also provides federal jurisdiction over a broad range of offenses ranging from ballot box stuffing to vote buying.

New Englanders learn oil drilling

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Louisiana Cajuns, who formed the bulk of the first offshore oil drillers 30 years ago, are going to teach their skills to a group of New Englanders.

The city of New Bedford, Mass., will send 12 oilfield trainees to Louisiana offshore oil ports in January 1977, to begin providing the manpower for Atlantic Ocean drilling, according to New Bedford Mayor John Markey.

New Englanders could not have picked a better area to learn the offshore oil business. Louisiana Cajuns have been manning offshore rigs since 1947.

"Today 'Cajun' villages" of Louisiana oilfield workers have developed on the coast of Scotland with the increase of North Sea drilling.

Oil supply companies working in the North Sea have transported dozens of families with such Cajun names as Brecaux, Boudreaux, and Trahan to Scotland to help in offshore oil production.

"The demand for skilled workers and technicians by Louisiana's offshore logistics companies still continues to overwhelm the available supply and has not been filled locally," said Rep. Reilly.

Wife seeks info of captive mate

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — U.S. glass company executive William F. Niehaus spent his eighth month in the hands of Venezuelan ultra-leftist kidnapers today and his wife demanded to know whether he is alive or not.

"I want to know whether Bill is alive and what it is the kidnapers want," Donna Niehaus told the Caracas newspaper El Nacional in a telephone interview from Toledo, Ohio.

Niehaus, 45, was kidnaped Feb. 27 by seven armed men from his Caracas home. The kidnapers later made political demands as well as a ransom that has been unofficially estimated to exceed $3 million.

Mrs. Niehaus returned to Caracas six weeks ago and in a public statement offered a $445,000 reward for information leading to the discovery of the whereabouts of her husband.

Lioness hunted

RINGGOLD, Ga. (UPI) — A team of hunters with tranquilizer darts and rifles Wednesday tracked the last of seven escaped African lions through the densely wooded hills of north Georgia.

"They've taken all precautions to try to tranquilize this last one," said Covetta County sheriff's deputy Robert E. Bowman. "They've got 14 men out there, including the Humane Society and a game warden."

Volunteers and state game officials searched through three counties overnight for the 400-pound lioness, considered extremely dangerous because it may be frightened.

Saudi Arabia to take over Aramco firm

Washington Star

WASHINGTON — The Saudi Arabian government shortly will announce the "negotiated takeover" of the Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), the most important petroleum production company in the world.

Both U.S. and Saudi sources stress, though, that the agreement finally reached after two years of negotiations is not the usual "nationalization" of an American company by a foreign government.

In effect, both sides agree, it will be business as usual with the four major oil companies operating under the Aramco umbrella. The four include Exxon, Texaco, Mobil and Standard of California. The deal will be more financial than anything else, with the Saudis exchanging at least $2 billion in cash for the stock.

Unlike most takeovers, there will be no personnel changes and Americans will remain in management positions. Some 1,600 Americans were employed by the production company at the end of last year, and this number has increased by some 100 this year while the negotiations progressed.

Moreover, the oil companies will get their normal amounts of oil and will be paid about the usual amount for each barrel of crude they take from the ground.

Indicating the theme of the new form of partnership with the government, the new company will be called "Saudi-Aramco." For their part, the oil companies, which will be paid fees for their services, will be called "Stena."

Saudi Arabia has gradually been taking control of Aramco since the early 1970s, but the negotiations for the remaining 30 percent have taken the longest time.

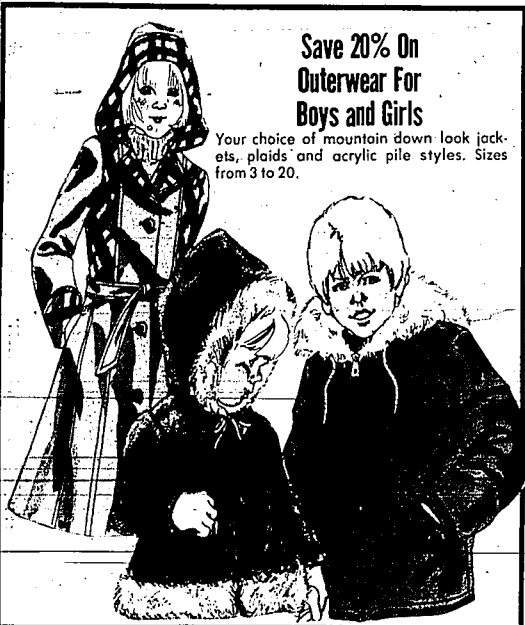

As part of the agreement, the production company will be forced to increase its oil exploration activities. Saudi officials have long maintained that Aramco was not searching hard enough for new sources. But, also under the agreement, the oil-rich Saudi government will pay for the exploration costs.

Another supplementary agreement stipulates that the oil company members of the production company will become even more involved in Saudi development plans, including gasification plants and electricity projects.

Another aspect of the agreement is that surplus oil, or production beyond the needs of the major companies, will be marketed by Saudi Arabia on a government-to-government basis. Some such bilateral arrangements already exist, including those with France and India.

While the "negotiated takeover" agreement has basically been agreed upon, announcement of its specific terms is not expected until final approval by the Saudi Council of Ministers

NFL negotiations will resume Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle and representatives of the league's owners will meet Monday with player union officials to discuss the possibility of renewing long-deadlocked labor negotiations, it was learned Wednesday.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said the meeting at union headquarters was suggested by a Rozelle representative after a federal appeals court upheld a decision striking down the league's "Rozelle Rule" compensation clause as an antitrust violation.

Rozelle is to be accompanied by Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFL Management Council, and possibly Wellington Mara, head of the group and owner of the New York Giants. NFLPA President Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins is expected to join Garvey for the talks.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Oct. 18 a finding by U.S. District Court Judge Earl R. Larson that the "Rozelle Rule" is illegal. The rule allowed the commissioner arbitrarily to set compensation when a player played out the option year of his contract and signed with another team.

However, the appeals court strongly suggested that both sides work out a compromise through renewed collective bargaining.

"It may be that some reasonable restrictions relating to player transfers are necessary for the successful operation of the NFL," the decision said. "The protection of mutual interests of both the players and the clubs may indeed require this."

The court encouraged the parties to resolve this question through collective bargaining. The parties are in a far better situation to agreeably resolve what rules governing player transfers are best suited for their mutual interests than are the courts.

However, the decision left the NFL teams subject to damages from former NFLPA President John Mackey and approximately 20 other players who initiated the antitrust suit. The decision also found that the "Rozelle Rule" was an illegal restraint of trade.

The players and owners have been unable to reach a contract agreement since February, 1974, and the deadlock has provoked one full-scale preseason strike by union members and a shorter-lived walkout by three teams during last season's training camp.

Redskins' coach may have new quarterback turmoil brewing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Allen has another Washington Redskins quarterback tussle on his hands, stemming from a sideline mixup in Monday night's victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The rivalry between veteran Bill Kilmer and his younger understudy, Joe Theismann, is reminiscent of that which existed until last year between Kilmer and Sonny Jurgensen and provoked a Battle of the Bumper Stickers in the nation's capital. Until Jurgensen reluctantly retired, hundreds of Redskins fans demonstrated their allegiance with stickers reading "I like Sonny" or "I like Billy."

The Kilmer-Theismann tug-of-war hasn't reached that fever yet but the conflict surfaced publicly Monday in the fourth quarter when both quarterbacks headed for the Washington huddle, before Theismann trotted back to the sideline with what looked like eyes on his face.

Allen acknowledged the breakdown in communications was probably his fault.

"I told Joe earlier I wanted him to go back in," he explained. "Then I changed my mind and told Billy to go back in and I didn't tell Joe. I thought one of the offensive coaches would tell him but it was my responsibility and my fault that he started to go out."

The 27-year-old Theismann had started the two previous Washington games while Kilmer recuperated from a severely bruised shoulder. But the 37-year-old veteran swung into action when the former Notre Dame star limped off the field with a bruised back in the third quarter.

Theismann said he was ready to return after a momentary breather but in the race to the huddle, Kilmer "gave me the old thumb, so I got off the field."

Allen is putting off a decision on whether to start the scrambling Theismann or the systematic Kilmer against Dallas in a Sunday shootout that could vault the Redskins into a division tie with the Cowboys.

Theismann, who came to the Redskins three seasons ago after a stint in Canadian football, admitted he didn't sleep after the Monday night incident and said, "I've got a lot of thinking to do after the season is over. Right now, my mind is completely on the Cowboys."

In the next breath, he commented: "It's over and done with. What happened happened. I don't want to make a big thing out of this."

NBA's Jazz wooing Louisiana away from football's spell

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Louisiana is football country, but someone forgot to tell the National Basketball Association.

Sports fans laughed when the NBA decided to expand to New Orleans in 1974. They said basketball would never last in an area where football stars like Billy Cannon and Jimmy Taylor were legends and where Bob Pettit was just another good ole boy who went to LSU.

There was a lot of precedent. The American Basketball Association put a championship team in New Orleans for two years, only to move it to Memphis because of poor attendance.

But the old New Orleans Buccaneers were different from the new New Orleans Jazz. A young, aggressive front office has mimicked basketball appealing enough to draw ever-increasing record NBA crowds to the Jazz games.

Four times in the last two years the Jazz have drawn more than 20,000 fans to the Louisiana Superdome. Twice they set the NBA record with 26,511 fans last year and 27,383 this week.

"It's great," said Barry Mendelson, the 33-year-old promoter and Jazz vice president who is most responsible for the growing crowds. "It shows we can continuously draw the big crowds."

Mendelson knows the way to appeal to the New Orleans sports fans. He gives them what they want.

More beer is sold per person at Jazz games than at any other arena in the NBA. Mixed drinks, including Zombies, are hawked from portable bars in the stands. And Bourbon Street is within walking distance of the $1 seats in the upper decks of the Superdome.

Even the coaches and players on the Jazz roster are geared to the flashy, fun-loving attitudes of New Orleans fans.

Team Captain Pete Maravich led the nation in scoring while playing college ball 80 miles up the Mississippi River at LSU. His flashy ball control and arching jump shots make him the most popular player on the squad.

Combine Maravich with Gail Goodrich, the No. 2 active scorer in the NBA, and New Orleans fans feel they are watching the best shooting and passing show in professional basketball.

Another reason the fans turn out in record numbers is Coach Butch Van Breda Kolff. The fiery veteran draws technical fouls regularly for his emotional outbursts at courtside. He once even had to be restrained from going into the stands after an abusive fan.

"But promotions and all the other things will only carry you so far," said Mendelson. "I think you ultimately have to be a big winner to continuously draw the record crowds."

The Jazz are a long way from being a big winner. They have won only 52 of 166 regular season games since joining the NBA, but they are 29-45 since the start of last season.

"We are coming around, and the fans here are responding. This is a great city."

Judge enjoins NCAA suspension

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — District Judge John Gabrieli Wednesday granted a preliminary injunction allowing Ed Jones, star center for the University of Nevada, Reno, to play basketball despite an order from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Gabrieli, granting a request by Jones' attorney, Frank Fahrenkopf, said a trial of Jones' suit against the university will be scheduled, and NCAA officials will be subpoenaed to explain why they placed the university on probation for the year in all sports and suspended Jones from team participation.

"I do not think the university should be the party wearing the black hat in this case," said university attorney Larry Lessly, who did not contest the injunction which will remain until the trial determines whether it should be made permanent.

Fahrenkopf said Jones, a 6-10 center who led the Wolf Pack in scoring and rebounds as a freshman last year, had done nothing to warrant the suspension.

The NCAA said the university violated eligibility rules because it enrolled Jones despite a grade point average below 2.0. The university said it accepted on good faith the "official" transcript from Barringer High School in Newark, N.J., which did not list any failing grades.

Portland tests NBA

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The National Basketball Association season is only a week old, and already the Portland Trail Blazers are showing signs of intimidating Golden State in the Pacific Division.

That's strange for Portland, which finished last in five of the previous six years, but the Blazers virtually are a new team this season.

Golden State is the defending champion in the Pacific Division and considered the team to beat.

Portland almost intimidated the Warriors 110-96 in their first meeting in Portland Tuesday night, and the two teams met again in Oakland Thursday night.

Portland has won its first two games, against the Nets (114-104) and Warriors. Their new look offense, with seven new players on the roster, and tenacious defense, have left the home court crowds roaring and the opponents exhausted.

Part of the new ingredient was reflected by the fans who gave a standing ovation for a castoff whose name hasn't yet been printed in the programs—Corky Calhoun.

He was a key in a third period Blazer spurt against the Warriors which put the contest out of reach. Calhoun got 10 of his 14 points in that burst.

Foxboro cracks down on NFL crowd rowdiness

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The board of selectmen, reacting to violence during the New England Patriots' last home game, have voted to institute personal searches for liquor and to restrict beer sales at Schaefer stadium.

The board approved a proposal Tuesday night to allow security personnel to ask a patron to submit to a search when entering the stadium.

It also approved a measure to abolish the sale of beer in the stands by vendors. Beer will be available at concessions in the stadium's concourse areas.

Before the change in the stadium's liquor license can become law, a public hearing on the proposal must be held. The hearing is scheduled Nov. 4.

In a related matter, police chief Daniel McCarthy resigned.

"I've had 35 years as a policeman but I can't take any more," he told the board.

Two persons attending the Oct. 18 game died, victims of heart attacks. State and local police made 49 arrests on charges of fighting and other disorderly conduct.

Oklahoma squirms under new probe

TULSA (UPI) — A University of Oklahoma investigation into alleged ticket scalping by members of the football team has turned up some discrepancies, the Tulsa Daily World reported Wednesday.

The newspaper reported from Norman, Okla., that a "source close to the internal problem" as saying the extent of the discrepancies could not be determined, but "it is more than we like to think about."

OU officials began the investigation two days ago after the Oklahoma City Times reported the National Collegiate Athletic Association was looking into allegations football players have sold game tickets at inflated prices through coaches to generate a player "payroll."

Coach Barry Switzer has denied the "NCAA" is investigating OU. He said it is NCAA policy to notify the university president in those cases, and that has not been done.

The World quoted some university officials as saying they believe the NCAA is investigating the university, but has not notified Dr. Paul Sharp, OU president, because the investigation is not being done on campus.

"I think they are doing it by talking to former players to find out how it works," one OU official told the World.

"The discrepancies found by the internal investigation apparently are of the same nature as the improprieties being examined by the NCAA," the newspaper said.

Dr. John Morris, vice president for the university community, and Dr. John Dean, vice president for university relations, are conducting the investigation.

They have refused to disclose any of their findings. The investigation is expected to take another week or 10 days.

The World quoted "sources on campus" as saying OU officials have uncovered enough information to establish there is a "problem" with the system of making tickets available to players for resale.

"It is the same problem that you'll find at any major football university where the demand (for tickets) exceeds the supply," the World's source said. "The problem is to find some way to take appropriate action."

The newspaper quoted a source "formerly close to the OU football program" who said ticket scalping activities had occurred in the past. The source said some members of the team were able to acquire extra tickets in addition to the complimentary tickets given each player. He said they were purchased at face value as demand (for tickets) exceeds

"I think most of the players gave them to their friends or families, but some of them made money on them," the source said.

DO YOUR SHOPPING IN CLASSIFIED!

And Finley thought he made a big sale

NEW YORK (UPI) — You be the judge and explain this one. Roy Boe, the New York Nets' boss, sells his star player, Julius Erving, to the Philadelphia 76ers for $3 million and the sale goes off without a hitch along with the NBA Commissioner's blessing. Charlie Finley tries selling three of his players for $3.5 million and he's prevented from doing so by the Baseball Commissioner for the good of the game.

It doesn't make sense. Some may argue the two circumstances were different, but basically they were the same with one team owner being allowed to do what another was not. Whether he realized it or not, NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien gave Charlie Finley's court case against Bowle Kuhn a green boost when he approved the Erving sale. Finley's case, originally set for Nov. 8, now is due to come up in December.

Manager of year

PHILLIE-MANAGER Danny Ozark, shown here in a relaxed mood, was named National League manager of the year in leading his team to the playoffs. It was the Phillies first division title since the 1950 Whiz Kids. (UPI Telephoto).

By Milton Richman

"I didn't expect the NBA Commissioner to block that sale because he's too smart, too knowledgeable, to do something like that," says Finley. "He's a man who appreciates the extent of his authority. Lawrence O'Brien seems to know what he's doing."

San Francisco Giants have gone ahead and filed a second tampering charge against Ted Turner of the Atlanta Braves because "of the party" he threw for Giants' outfielder Gary Matthews in Atlanta a few days ago. Fined $10,000 already on the first charge, Turner says it was worth it. He also says he never talked about any terms with Matthews at the party.... Mets also are interested in Matthews, but they haven't thrown him any parties....

Every morning without fail, ex-champ Joe Frazier gets up at four and does roadwork. Whenever he's here in New York, he does his running on 57th Street, one of the wider thoroughfares not far from Central Park, a favorite with muggers the last few years. "How come you don't run in the Park?" someone asked Frazier. "You think I'm crazy?" he answered. "You're not gonna get me in that park for nothin'...."

Before the press was allowed into the clubhouse, Whitney Herzog had a few words to say to his Kansas City Royals after they lost their final playoff game to the Yankees. Herzog made it short and sweet. "All of you should go home proud," he told his players. "You all know we've been playing with a short deck and we look 'em right down to the last inning. Nobody could ask for much more than that, especially with all the injuries we had. You guys are all winners in my book."

It's early yet, but look who's up there in first place—the New York Knicks! They're unbeaten in three games, and commenting on the difference between this year's team and the one which finished in the cellar last year, general manager Eddie Donovan says, "they're running a lot more now."

One of the best advertisements for clean living is Emilio Griffith, the former middleweight and welterweight champ who's pushing 40 but still has the kind of body that guarantees nobody is going to kick sand in his face on the beach. Beaten in Germany by Eckhard Dage on what many observers felt was a hometown decision only a few weeks ago, Griffith came right back-to-step-Diva-Dot-Ota-in-Columbia, South America last Saturday night. He says he's going to keep fighting until he can't climb up the ring steps anymore. Hello, Floyd Patterson....

Rangers' coach John Ferguson claims his 20-year-old rookie defenseman, Mike McEwen, is the closest thing he has seen to Bobby Orr among the new kids in the NHL. "I'm not saying he's going to be another Bobby Orr, but he's exciting, he shifts both ways and every time you look up, he has the puck down near the other guy's goal," says Ferguson. McEwen originally was headed for the Birmingham Bulls in the WHA, but Ferguson talked him into playing with the Rangers....

Former Yankee boss Mike Burke, now President of Madison Square Garden Center, admits he misses baseball a lot. "When I have time to miss it," he laughs, Burke estimates 25 percent of his time is occupied with professional basketball. Is per cent with professional hockey and the remainder of his time with other Garden events. His comment on Sunday night World Series games: "Dreadful...."

World champion Reds are perfectly satisfied with the team they have. They will be one of the teams that will not participate in the free agent draft next week....

Phillies aren't that upset over the prospect of losing second baseman Dave Cash in that draft. General manager Paul Owens feels the money Cash is asking for can better be used to go after one of the other free agents, Bobby Grieh.

Arnsparger joins Miami coach staff

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins, struggling with one of the weakest defenses in the National Football League, hired Bill Arnsparger Wednesday to serve as the club's top defensive assistant coach.

Arnsparger, fired as New York Giants head coach Monday, will take the same job he left in 1974 when he accepted the Giants' post.

"Arnsparger will be joining the staff as assistant head coach, the same job he had when he left," said head coach Don Shula.

"I'm sorry things didn't work out for Arnsparger in New York," Shula said. "I've always had a high regard for him and he will be an assistant head coach working with the other three defensive coaches."

Arnsparger had just gotten off a plane from New York a few hours before the news conference announcing his new job and said he had not had a chance to assess the Dolphins' situation.

"I'm just glad to get back here with Don and Joe (Robbie, Dolphins president)," Arnsparger said.

Shula said he talked to his new assistant Monday night and told him he could take his time and think about his future. But he said Arnsparger told him he didn't want to wait and wanted to get back into coaching as soon as possible.

"So I got together with Joe, Joe okayed it, and we agreed last night."

Arnsparger joked that he missed "only one day of practice" this week.

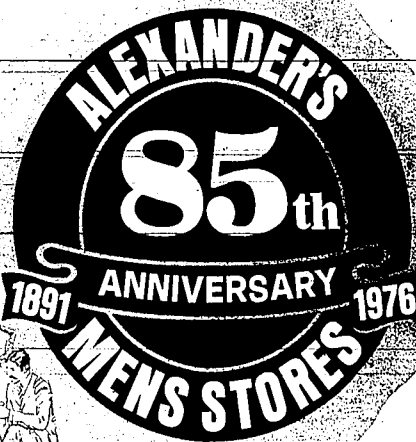

After the news conference, he put on his coaching uniform and headed to the practice field.

Arnsparger, the architect of the Dolphins' famed "no name defense" in his 10 1/2 years here, managed only a 7-28 record in his two and a half years with the Giants. He was 2-12 his first year, 5-9 last year but the Giants were unable to gain a victory in the first seven games this season.

He was replaced in New York by former World Football League Memphis Southmen Coach John McVay.

Shula, despite the addition of Arnsparger, did not release anyone from his staff. No one had held the title of assistant head coach this year.

The award was based on interest in the field of recreation as a career, experience in the field, academic progress, hobbies and other activities in the field or in related fields.

Knigge cards draw criticism

By CHRIS PECK Times-News writer

FILER - When the 20 teachers and school employees of the Filer School District picked up their payroll checks this week a "Happiness is Knigge" campaign card was attached to each check.

Knigge, running for the Idaho State Legislature in district 24, is chairman of the Filer School Board. Rex Reed, Knigge's Democratic opponent in the state legislative race, said he was "highly perturbed" over the incident.

"I was highly perturbed that my opposition's campaigners would use school funds to campaign for him. This was obviously done on school time and handled out in the schools," Reed said. The small two inch by three inch yellow campaign cards were stapled to the teacher's payroll checks by a school secretary last week, according to Filer superintendent of Schools, Roy Baker.

Reed said he thought it was unfair of Knigge to use his position as chairman of the school board to influence the vote of teachers in Filer.

Knigge last week asked Baker to send home some campaign literature with teachers and employees of the Filer elementary school, Filer High School, the Hollister school. The Knigge cards and the payroll checks were distributed last Friday and on Monday. Most teachers apparently were not offended by the campaign literature.

Bill Heaps, Filer elementary school principal said today the 25 teachers in his school have all signed a petition supporting Knigge's candidacy for the state legislature.

"Every teacher in our school has signed a petition in favor of Mr. Knigge," Heaps said, adding that "many teachers are surprised" Reed made an issue of the cards.

Yesterday Knigge drafted a letter, apologizing to teachers who may have been offended by having his campaign card attached to their checks.

The letter was distributed to the teachers by principals and others yesterday.

In his letter Knigge said, "It appears that I have made an error in having the monthly district checks sent out with my card attached. I'm extremely sorry if I have offended anyone in doing so."

"It was not my intention to pressure anyone to vote for me because of my position on the Filer school board ..."

Filer superintendent Baker today invited candidate Reed to bring in some of his campaign literature before the election for distribution to the teachers.

Baker said he would be glad to circulate Reed's campaign cards to the teachers in the same way Knigge's cards were distributed.

Knigge, commenting on the matter, said simply, "I made a mistake. I admit it."

Boise firm offers lowest SNRA bid

By BAIRT QUESNELL Times-News writer

KETCHUM - A Boise firm is the apparent low bidder to complete the interior of the 12,000-square-foot U.S. Forest Service headquarters building at North Fork and finish the landscaping. Robert Brown Construction, Boise, bid a package total Tuesday of $503,813 for the work. This figure includes an additional charge which will be assessed if Sawtooth National Recreation Area employees move into the building before all of the work is completed.

To date the forest service has spent $680,000 on the project site. If the Boise construction firm is awarded the bid, the total cost will be $1,183,813. Hunter Sauerman, Idaho Falls, bid $535,767; Idaho Construction, Twin Falls, $695,200; and Rod Overfield, Sun Valley, $699,902.

The forest service spent $199,000 to complete the sewer and water facilities which include a two-stage drain field. The exterior of the building cost $385,000 and an additional $96,000 was expended for a parking lot, a turnout off U.S. 93 and an access into the building.

The Boise construction bid may not go as high as $503,813 if the forest service decides not to choose the option of moving in before the project is completed.

Brown Construction bid $400,000 to complete the interior and $97,251 to landscape, grade, construct an irrigation system and plant trees and shrubs on the site.

It will cost the forest service an additional $6,500 under the Boise firm's bid to move inside the building before all of the landscaping is complete.

Kinyon Ray, forest service director of administrative services in Ogden, said the federal agency must check out the contractor to see if he is able to perform what he claims in the specifications.

Ray said the contractor who is finally awarded the job has 180 days to complete the interior and 255 days to do all the specified work from the date the forest service approves the bid.

SNRA Supt. Gray Reynolds said recently it would cost nearly $100,000 to set up the visitor information center with needed materials.

Horse killed in accident

PAUL - The color of a horse can mean the difference between life and death.

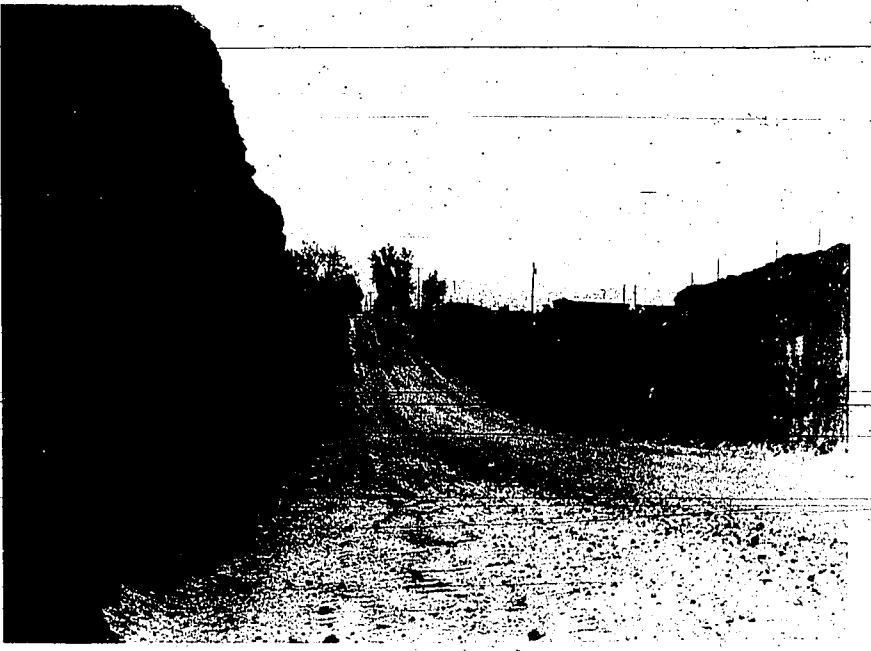

A black horse was destroyed early Wednesday when it was struck by a pickup about two and a half miles west of Paul.

An accompanying white horse escaped injury. Darrell Gene Bomer, 27, Hazelton, told Minidoka County deputies he was driving along Idaho 25 at 7:05 a.m. He said he saw a white horse on the road, but did not see the black horse standing in his traffic lane.

The pickup suffered $1,600 damage when it hit the black horse.

The horses were owned by Russell Lowe, Aequia.

Road project

SOLID rock cut, in the foreground, was made to straighten the county road crossing Rock Creek canyon south of Kimberly. The project is now complete except for paving which will be done next year. The 1,600-foot crossing eliminates several dangerous curves on an old roadway into and out of the canyon.

'Anna' voices identity claim

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 76-year-old Virginia resident whose claim to be Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia is supported by a newly published book on the Imperial Romanovs went on television for the first time Wednesday to deny that her family was massacred in Siberia in 1918.

"I am the daughter of the Czar of Russia," said Mrs. John Manahan of Charlottesville, Va., wife of a retired University of Virginia professor, in a heavily accented interview taped by ABC-TV.

"There was no massacre," she said.

Mrs. Manahan would not discuss the matter further, but it was the first time the woman known as Anna Anderson as well as Grand Duchess Anastasia made her claim in public although she often asserted it in private. She is also quoted in the book, "The File on the Tsar," published Wednesday by Harper and Row, as saying there was no massacre at Ekaterinberg in Siberia on July 16, 1918.

History has accepted this as the execution date of Czar Nicholas II, Czarina Alexandra, their son Alexi and four daughters, Olga, Tatiana, Maria, and Anastasia. "The File on the Tsar" presents impressive evidence that the "massacre" in an Ekaterinberg cellar was staged by the Romanov's Bolshevik captors and that the Czarina and her daughters survived the date by at least six months.

The book is the result of five years of research by British journalists Anthony Summers and Tom Mangold, who believe that Mrs. Manahan is most likely the last Anastasia. They discovered a previously unknown dossier of documents at Harvard University's Houghton Library indicating Nicholas was tried by a "kangaroo" Communist court and executed in a woods near Ekaterinberg and that his son probably met a similar fate.

"I am the daughter of the Czar of Russia."

The documents, gathered by a White Russian investigator in 1919 but suppressed in favor of the Bolshevik's Criminal Investigation Division at Perm, 200 miles northwest of Ekaterinberg, six months after the "massacre." Many witnesses told of seeing the Czarina and her daughters in Perm as late as Christmas 1918.

Mrs. Manahan said there were still witnesses alive who could attest to her royal identity and some others who have met a "strange end." She said she was afraid of being "killed instantly" if she identified some of the people who had helped her, adding that she had a relative that was "very dangerous and would do anything to prevent me from putting my foot on Russian earth."

MRS. JOHN Manahan, Charlottesville, Va., is shown as she appears on her first TV interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" show, Tuesday. A new book by two British journalists asserts that Mrs. Manahan is most probably the Grand Duchess Anastasia, youngest daughter of Czarina Alexandra of Russia. (UPI)

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would please stop sending people to doctors just because they aren't sex maniacs.

My husband, at 68, mind you, started listening to all those sex-crazy men at work and decided that something must be wrong with him because he lost interest in sex. Then he went to his doctor who told him that some sex expert named Kinsoy took a vote and found out that most men NEVER wear out.

Now, really I wonder who he asked? Probably a lot of men who were ashamed to tell the truth.

Well, anyhow, this doctor told my husband if he wanted to get his manhood back, he should imagine that he was in bed with a beautiful young woman he had seen in the movies or on TV. How do you like the nerve of that doctor giving my husband permission to think all those filthy, adulterous thoughts while he was in bed with me!

I'm a God-fearing, church-going woman, Abby, and I think that doctor should lose his license for handing out immoral advice. Your opinion, please.

DISGUSTED IN ATLANTA

Wife objects

DEAR DISGUSTED: Although fantasies are a part of every normal person's life, there is a Biblical injunction against "thinking adulterous thoughts." If such advice were given by a preacher, he might lose his license to preach, but doctors aren't preachers.

DEAR ABBY: A handsome little fellow in our neighborhood has been pretending that he is a dog ever since he was a toddler, and now he is nearly kindergarten age.

He doesn't just "pretend" he's a dog, he actually ACTS like one. He makes barking and whining sounds just like his dog. I think he would eat and sleep with his dog if he were allowed to.

It is not the normal love of a boy for his dog, Abby. I asked him why he likes to pretend he's a dog, and he said, "Because it's more fun to be a dog!" He cannot talk plainly but he seems intelligent otherwise.

Shouldn't his mother be told that her child may need special guidance or treatment? Sometimes parents are so close to a situation they can't see it. How can I tell her? We are just nodding neighbors.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It's awkward to go from a nodding acquaintance with your neighbor to a heart-to-heart discussion about her child's development. If you're truly concerned, initiate a closer friendship with her. (P.S. When the child goes to kindergarten, his teacher will surely recognize the problem, if there is one.)

DEAR ABBY: Seems like many of your female readers are fascinated with silicone. What are they trying to prove?

I live in a city that thinks it needs to be bigger. They put up large, cheap buildings that make the city look bigger. But it's still the same old city—only its troubles are magnified.

In other words, bigger isn't necessarily better. A gentle, modest curve beneath a sweater remains alluring, and realism in personality and everything else is more appealing than affectations.

Ho, ho, ho is no, no, no for Santa Claus

DENVER (UPI) — "Ho, ho, ho" is a no-no for department store Santa Clauses hired by Jennifer Reese. She says it might scare the kiddies away or make them wet on Santa's knee.

"We don't have our Santas do this hearty ho, ho, ho," Mrs. Reese said. "For small children, it is frightening. We say it's no 'ho, ho, ho' unless one of our Santas is hired to appear at an adult party."

Each year, Ms. Reese hires men and an occasional woman for an employment agency, Western Temporary Services, Inc., to act as St. Nick at shopping centers and malls. She said the would-be Santas can be fat or skinny as long as they keep a twinkle in their eye, their beards combed and boots blackened.

She started interviewing early this month.

The Santas hit the streets and stores the day after Thanksgiving.

Last year, stores waited until the last minute before deciding whether to hire Santa Clauses because of the recession. This year, Ms. Reese said things are looking better. Stores began calling orders late in September for St. Nicks.

Ms. Reese said each Santa Clause goes through a four-hour course on how to act and what to avoid, including the spleen of children disappointed because they didn't get what they asked for the year before.

"Santa never promise," she said. "He should try and get around the situation. He says he'll see what he can do."

"We've had a couple of Santas who got hit quite hard on the head with large toys. One child said, 'You didn't bring me what I wanted last year' and bashed Santa on the head with the 'Santa toy. He had to be rushed to the hospital for stitches."

Standing in for Santa Clause is not an easy job. Skinny St. Nicks wear hot inflatable vests or pillows for the required girth, and all must be up on favorite toys, know the jargon of Santa-land, including the names of the reindeers, and when not to promise a new addition in the stocking.

"We've put together guidelines over the years," Ms. Reese said. "We put together a manual on how a Santa should react if, for instance, a child says 'I want a baby brother and a baby sister.' Santa usually says 'I bring the toys and games. You'll have to talk to mom and dad about that.'"

"Our main concern is putting a good Santa in. We want to keep the sparkle and the magic. If a child wets on Santa's knee, which does happen if the child is frightened or excited, then he puts out a sign saying 'Gone to Feed the Reindeer' and quickly puts on another suit."

She said Santa Clause had to know what toys an individual might be pushing so he could recommend one or two if a child asked for help in deciding on a Christmas present. The St. Nicks she furnishes work six hour days and have to stay sharp for children who "nowadays are trying to catch them out."

Ms. Reese said she preferred men as Santa Clause but some women hired for the role have "been successful. We really don't see Santa Claus as a lady but we've had them."

Humor just sad little true stories

© Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — "I'm always a little surprised when people think I'm trying to be funny," said Peg Braeken, author of "The I Hate to Cook Book." "Maybe they don't realize that the things I write aren't jokes — they're just sad little true stories."

She shrugged, sighed, then said in that famous, —seratchy—monotone, "Take the 'Shutemp Cookies' in my new book, for example. A nice lady I met on a lecture tour told me about them. After I wrote down the ingredients, she said, 'Press the dough onto a jellyroll pan and bake it. While it's still warm, cut it into bars. But if you're a big slob like I am, and you forget to cut it, you can always break chunks off later when you want some.'"

"Now I didn't write it that way to be funny. Maybe the fact that I'm very literal makes my books sound funny sometimes."

Still looking puzzled, Ms. Braeken admitted that her special brand of unflinching humor also seems to run through her latest book, "The I Hate to Cook Almanack" (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $1.95).

The smartly dressed, middle-aged woman, who broke into the advertising business by writing bra slogans for swimsuits, is very satisfied with the way things have turned out. She has written six books, has a syndicated column, writes for Family Circle magazine, goes on lecture tours twice a year and often does television commercials. The rest of the time, she lives in Hawaii with her semiretired artist husband, Parker Edwards.

"I left my full-time job as a copywriter when my daughter, Johanna, was born two years ago," she said. "I hired a grandmotherly sitter to come in and care for Jo for six hours, three days a week so I could lock myself into a room and write." Ms. Braeken recalled. "That way, I was able to straddle the career and family fence pretty comfortably. My first book, "The I Hate to Cook Book" came about at the suggestion of a friend."

The idea came up when Ms. Braeken was sitting in the Press Club in Portland, Ore., with her pal, Connie MacCreedy, a reporter for the Portland Oregonian.

"And you know how that is..." Ms. Braeken deadpanned. "You have one drink too many and start moaning. 'What can I fix for supper tonight?' That's when Connie said I should write an I Hate to Cook Book: I thought she was crazy, because I didn't know anything about cooking or housekeeping, but then I started thinking it might be fun."

She wrote a draft of the one chapter, and sent it off to a publisher.

"My husband thought it was a dumb idea," she recalled. "So did the first few publishers I sent it to, because they were all men. They all had the idea that cooking was a sacred area, and that you couldn't have fun with it. Finally a woman editor at Harcourt saw it and exclaimed, 'This is great. It's just what I really need.' And Harcourt published it."

That was in 1958, and Ms. Braeken is still a little amazed at its success.

"I feel cooks read my books for fun and shortcuts, but they still use Julia when they want to make a meal," she said very matter-of-factly.

But she was very serious when she said that the recipes are all accurate. "I test almost all of them myself," she said. "A few times very good friends I didn't trust gave me recipes. But I was sorry I didn't make the dishes myself." Each time, later discovered little things I could have warned the readers about. I like to say, 'Don't worry if the batter turns pink here' or 'Keep calm if the dough seems stickier than you expect.'"

Political look-alikes

Golden year fete slated

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—
 A friend of mine has been suffering from bleeding stomach ulcers for several years. His last attack resulted in a serious loss of blood, about two and a half pints.
 He was hospitalized and given blood. His doctor tells him, "It's your ulcer, you are the only one who can cure it."
 I have read that ulcers are being treated successfully by surgery. Is this true? I would appreciate your opinion.
Dear Reader—
 No doubt the doctor is talking about the effects of stress on ulcers. Peptic ulcers are another disease of this century. They were most uncommon before 1900. The ulcers that did occur were more likely to be in the stomach rather than the more common duodenal ulcers which your friend probably has.
 About one in four men develop peptic ulcers at some time. That's quite high for a disease that was seldom seen 75 years ago.

Ulcer cases increase

The job pressures, efforts required for material success, increased domestic demands related to financing a family and related social pressures all take their toll.
 Sunday, the increased use of coffee, colas, tea and caffeinated drinks, not to mention alcohol and cigarettes.
 Yes, surgery is used in selected cases—usually those which cannot be successfully managed with more conservative methods. It is not without its complications. Surgery will not eliminate stress or correct bad habits such as smoking cigarettes or taking excessive quantities of medicine.
 Sometimes a person is better off to change his lifestyle including changing jobs or career objectives.
 If proper attention to lifestyle changes in habits and adequate medical treatment are not sufficient then recurrent attacks, particularly with complications such as hemorrhage, warrant consideration of surgery.
 To give you more information on ulcers I am sending you The Health Letter number 15, Ulcers: Duodenal, Stomach. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 150, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10101.
Dear Dr. Lamb—
 A few weeks ago my husband had symptoms of venereal disease. After going to a local physician and having a lab test made the results showed positive, according to the physician. This has caused much pain and anguish and a separation. My husband said there was no way he could have acquired this except from me and I could not have acquired it except from him.
 We are totally confused and are seeking answers. Is it possible to get VD any other way except by sexual intercourse, and if so, how?
Dear Reader—
 Such an experience is certainly life shattering. It requires careful mature judgment in such situations to avoid making rash judgments you may both regret later.
 You did not say what kind of a venereal disease doctor tested. However, syphilis can be transmitted without sexual activity. It has to be quick as the germs survive in moisture only at body temperature. But innocent transmission can occur from kissing an infected person and also from a moist infected droplet on a glass.
 And as I have mentioned before in this column, some laboratory tests for syphilis can give positive results in individuals who never have had syphilis.

Miss Mobley, Richard Weight exchange nuptial promises

JEROME — Janell L. Mobley became the bride of Richard Lee Weight Jr. Boise, Oct. 16 at the First Congregation Church, Boise.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill E. Mobley, Jerome. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Daryl Campbell, New Meadows, and Richard Weight Sr., Caldwell.

Rev. Gerald Martin, Boise, performed the afternoon ceremony before an altar decorated with a candelabra with deep maroon candles, and a bouquet of dusty pink carnations and dark red roses.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a floor-length satin ivory gown that was trimmed in embroidered lace. The bodice was made with a high collar lace and a deep lace neckline. Her bridal veil was ivory net, crowned with white mums and deep red rosebuds. The gown was designed by the bride.

She carried a bouquet of dark red roses, white Fuji mums and baby breath. She also carried a handkerchief that her maternal grandmother carried at her wedding.

master's pairs tournament is a case in point. Most North players decided that with 4-3 distribution, they would forget about Stayman and simply raise to three notrump. Some made just the others bought in an overtrick for top-score ties.

Those North players who used Stayman heard their partners play two spades and raised to four spades. The Jack of diamonds was always opened and after winning declarer would knock out the ace of spades.

A couple of West players made the brilliant shift to the king of clubs and continued with a small club to East's ace and a club ruff to set the hand. Others continued diamonds and four spades wheeled in.

Obviously, the notrump bidders score more match points than the Staymanites did this time.

Ask the Jacobys

We get so many questions about honors that we are going to answer one more. If dummy holds honors they are scored for his side. If a declaring player holds honors they are scored for his side.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Special guests were the grandparagys, Mrs. Leota Hill, and Mrs. Frank Mobley, Jerome. Mr. and Mrs. Al Weight, Nampa, and Glen Bernethy, Caldwell.

The bride is a senior at a B.S.U. and employed at Minute Man Printing as an art director. Weight is employed by Big O Tires, Boise, and enrolled at B.S.U. to teach for the spring semester.

Women served the cause of the Revolution, both on the battle front and behind the lines. Besides relieving the tedium and loneliness of long marches and camp life, women performed essential tasks such as cooking, washing and mending. Their most valuable contribution may have been their influence on the soldiers' cleanliness. In a war where disease caused more deaths than battle wounds, the women "at the men upon washing their hands and faces, and keeping themselves neat and clean, The World Almanac reports.

New programs set at 'Y'

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YM-YWCA will begin several new programs for youth and adults in November.

A three-week leather tooling class, intended especially for O'Leary Junior High School students but open to any interested person, will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. beginning Nov. 1 at the "Y," 1751 Elizabeth Blvd., Twin Falls.

The "Y's" fourth annual ski fitness class begins Tuesday, Nov. 9, and will meet regularly from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The table tennis program gets under way Monday. It will be held each Monday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The YMCA-Kiwanis Club's annual Marble Shooting Tournament for all elementary school age boys and girls is set for Saturday, Nov. 13, at the "Y." Registration will be at 9 a.m. and the tournament will begin at 9:30 a.m. For further information, call 733-4384.

Idahoans receive awards

SUN VALLEY — Two Idaho residents have been selected to participate in the second and final round of the Western States Arts Foundation 1976 Training Awards Program. In all, 30 artists and arts administrators from eight western states were selected in this phase of the program.

Marian French, performing arts administrator for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, used her award to attend a Public Events Management Seminar sponsored by the Association of College, University and Community Arts Administrators. The seminar was held in Scottsdale, Ariz. in September.

Beth Sellers, Boise, assistant director of the Boise Gallery of Art, used her award to attend a three-day Exhibition Design Workshop sponsored by the Western Association of Art Museums. The three-day workshop, which was held in July in Olympia, Wash., included such activities as the design by participants of an exhibition called "Found Objects."

This is the third year that the Western States Arts Foundation has conducted the training program. The foundation also has on-going programs in the visual arts, design and information.

When your partner opens one notrump and you want to show a bad hand with a lot of clubs, our Stayman players all have a problem.

The Jacobys have a simple solution. Just forget about it and pass when you have a bad hand with clubs. Of course, if your partner gets doubled, you run out to two clubs to give him the message loud and clear.

One important feature of Stayman is that you don't have to use it when you don't want to.

First Security lists increases

SALT LAKE CITY — Significant increases in resources, deposits, and loans were reported during the quarterly meeting of the First Security Corporation directors.

George S. Eccles, chairman and chief executive officer, said resources of the corporation, its banks and subsidiaries on Sept. 30, totaled $2.28 billion, compared with $1.945 billion a year ago, an increase of 17.4 per cent.

First Security Corporation had earlier reported unaudited consolidated income after securities transactions of $17.9 million, or $3.31 per share, compared with $15.1 million, equal to $2.83 per share for the same period last year.

Third quarter unaudited consolidated income after securities transactions was $6.7 million, or $1.23 per share, compared with $5.5 million or $1.03 per share a year ago, an increase of 16.5 per cent.

Directors voted a dividend of 70 per share to be paid Dec. 10 to shareholders of record on Nov. 26. This represents an increase of 5 cents per share, compared with the earlier dividend paid in June of this year. Thus, total dividends in 1976 on common stock amounted to $1.35 compared with $1.18 last year.

Total deposits of First Security Corporation affiliate banks at the end of September were $1.8 billion, after eliminating $11.6 million in inter-company accounts, compared with $1.59 billion, on Sept. 30, 1975, an increase of $217 million or 13.7 per cent. Average deposits for the year to date were $1.69 billion compared with $1.49 billion for last year, an increase of $194 million or 13 per cent.

Loans outstanding totaled $1.45 billion compared with $1.15 billion a year ago, an increase of $298 million, or 25.7 per cent. In addition to outstanding loan increases, real estate mortgage loans totaling $139.5 million were sold in the mortgage market during the past 12 months, compared with $102.1 million in the preceding 12 months.

The Corporation's banks and two mortgage loan subsidiaries had real estate loans totaling $619.9 million on Sept. 30, and in addition, were servicing real estate loans sold to investors totaling $715.2 million, making a total of real estate loans being handled amounting to $1.3 billion, ranking First Security as one of the largest mortgage banking organizations in the country.

Speaking of the nation's economy, Eccles said economic activity began to improve near the end of the third quarter after a sluggish summer and that favorable business conditions are expected to persist throughout the fourth quarter and into 1977.

UP earnings dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Union-Pacetic Corp., Tuesday announced third-quarter earnings came to $50.1 million, or $2.46 a share, down from $78.3 million, or $3.38 a share.

The 1975 results included an after-tax profit from the sale of Champlin Petroleum Co.'s interest in the British North Sea of $40.6 million, or $1.76 a share. Excluding this after-tax profit, earnings in the latest period increased 31 per cent over the same period last year. Third-quarter sales were up 12 per cent to $503.3 million from $448.8 million in the 1975 third quarter.

For the nine months, the company earned $129.7 million, or $5.56 a share, a gain of 25 per cent over the $103.9 million, of $4.19 a share, reported in the corresponding 1975 period. Sales increased 19 per cent to $1.77 billion from $1.23 billion.

Frank E. Burnett, chairman and chief executive, said the railroad's traffic volume continued to show growth in the third quarter, while transportation revenues gained 13 per cent and revenue ton-miles rose 6 per cent.

Champlin's third-quarter earnings also were substantially higher, reflecting higher crude production and increased investment tax credits, the chairman said. The company's coal mining subsidiary, recorded a 37 per cent advance in third-quarter earnings, he added.

M-K sets record

BOISE (UPI) — Morrison-Knudsen Co., Inc., Boise, announced today record high earnings for the third quarter and nine-months of 1976 ending Sept. 30.

Net income in the third quarter increased 12 per cent to $4.1 million or $1.50 per share on revenue of $281.3 million, compared with restated net income in last year's previous record third-quarter of $3.7 million or $1.33 per share on revenue of $272.7 million.

The company said net income for the first nine months of the year was up seven per cent to $9.3 million or $3.37 per share on revenue of $742.7 million. In the same period last year, restated net income established a previous record high of $8.7 million or $3.23 per share on revenue of $732.9 million.

M-K President William H. McMurren said backlog of uncompleted contracts for the worldwide construction and engineering firm, Sept. 30, totaled nearly $991 million, compared with $912 million on the same date in 1975.

Earnings improve

BOISE (UPI) — The president of Trust Jolt Corporation, headquartered in Boise, said Tuesday sales and earnings in the third quarter of 1976 signaled an improvement in the construction sector of the economy.

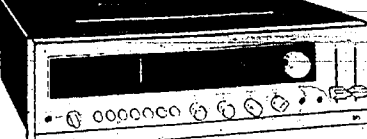

President Peter Johnson said the firm, manufacturer of roof and floor structural components systems for the light construction industry, had sales of $12,145,000 in the third quarter of 1976.

This was $2,315,000, or 24 per cent above the $9,830,000 in sales in the same quarter a year ago. Profits for the latest quarter also increased $251,000, or 40 per cent from $632,000 to $883,000 for the corresponding periods.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices opened higher Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 18.12 points the past two sessions, including 7.98 Wednesday, was ahead 1.16 to 657.28 shortly after the opening.

Advances led declines, 221 to 111, among the 555 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

Early in the day, Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago lowered its prime rate to 6 1/2 per cent from the prevailing 6 3/4 per cent level. It could be the beginning of a trend.

Investors remain uncertain about the economy and the outcome of the presidential election Nov. 2 between President Ford and Jimmy Carter.

Observers said some new issues may have begun buying selected issues for a portfolio or have begun market surge.

In the news background, a Wall Street Journal survey of 510 major corporations showed corporate profits rose 17 per cent in the third quarter from a year ago, down from the 33 per cent gain registered in the second period.

Potatoes, cattle set advance pace

After dips to the day's lows, 6 cents under Tuesday, meat resistance-Oil was strongest in the complex, and closed near the highs, 55 to 89 points up. Meat closed 20 cents to 2 1/2 higher but 3 1/2 and 1 1/2 down in September and October.
New York Sugar 11 recovered from a midday decline, closing 2 to 16 points higher on a turnover of 3,840 lots. The No. 12 domestic contract was mixed from 13 higher to 10 at 175.00.
The world spot price was 5 points higher at 7.65 cents a pound, while the domestic spot was off slightly at 10.25 cents a pound.
Heavy short covering of 200,000 ounces of the International Monetary Fund action boosted International Monetary Fund gold for the third straight day. The close was 1.60 to 2.80 higher on a heavy turnover of 1,143 lots.
New York wheat 11.10 to 1.20 points as gold pit enthusiasm spilled into Comex silver. Heavy short covering and massive trading volume, expected to be over 30,000 lots, were noted. Firmness of recent weeks aided the breakout. Until the boom, silver traded at a level following a soybean maneuvering.

West Point lawyer quits

WEST POINT — Capt. Arthur Lincoln, the military lawyer who successfully challenged the United States Military Academy's handling of what became its biggest cheating scandal, is leaving West Point and the Army under pressure.

Passed over for promotion during the summer, despite what he said was considered to be a good record, and more recently transferred from criminal to civil matters at the academy, he has "accepted my fate," he said, and decided to resign.

"He plans to leave the academy this weekend and to begin work next month on legal management affairs for Action Inc., a Boston-based communications corporation."

Lincoln, a West Point graduate, had served in the Army for 10 years, part of the time in Vietnam and more recently as a member of the Judge Advocate General Corps.

"You can kiss your career goodbye since you've been passed over for promotion," the 33-year-old officer said. "I guess it was his outspokenness on the West Point matter."

He said he could go before a promotion board in another year, "but I was told by a general in Washington that the sole reason I was turned down was because of my comments on the cheating matter."

"It's ironic," he said Monday night in an interview, "that almost everything we asked for has been granted. They can't admit it, of course, nor can they concede publicly that it was a problem of leadership, and discipline, not the honor code."

More than 150 cadets have resigned or are considering doing so, after being charged with complicity in unauthorized collaboration on an engineering examination last March, more than 800 juniors, or almost the entire class, had given, more weeks to complete the test, as a barracks assignment.

Playboy publisher scores Ford's ads

CHICAGO (UPI) — Playboy Publisher Hugh Hefner said Tuesday, President Ford's campaign ads were exploiting for political purposes the magazine's interview with Jimmy Carter.

The Playboy publisher said Ford Election Committee ads featuring the cover of Playboy are "an improper and reprehensible attempt to hijack the Democratic candidate through glib association, as though granting an interview to Playboy were equivalent to posing naked in the center of the magazine."

Hefner also said Ford's legal counsel—Horton R. Hirschfeld—had last week requesting confirmation of a "solid runner" that Playboy paid Carter for the interview.

"Carter wasn't paid a penny," Hefner said. "In an attached statement, G. Barry Golsen, who edited the Carter interview, took issue with Ford's statement that he had turned down an offer to do a Playboy interview. Golsen said Playboy has had several contacts with the White House about articles and last year sought a 20-minute session with the President in conjunction with a profile being written on him. But he said Playboy never asked Ford for a full-Playboy feature interview.

He said the requested 20-minute session was refused, though Press Secretary Ron Nessen told Playboy to contact him again in the future.

Nessen Tuesday released a letter he wrote to a Playboy editor last July which he described as a "firm turnaround" of an interview request.

Nessen, in Chicago with President Ford, said his letter was "intended as a polite excuse but nevertheless is a firm turnaround."

Bolles prosecution intervention sought

PHOENIX (UPI) — Maricopa County Attorney Don Harris asked the state Supreme Court Tuesday to intervene in the prosecution of John Harvey Adams, accused slayer of investigative reporter Dan Bolles, after the case to his office.

Harris filed a special action with the Supreme Court asking that all documents and reports relating to the investigation of the Bolles case be returned to his office.

Adams went on trial Oct. 18 but Superior Court Judge Frederic Heineman declared a mistrial last Thursday before a jury was selected.

The mistrial was declared on grounds of "massive prejudicial publicity," stemming from statements made by Harris to the news media that he was coise to arresting Adams in Bolles' murder.

Gov. Wallace Castro remanded the case from Harris and assigned it to state Attorney General Bruce Babbitt at Babbitt's request. At the same time, police, acting on orders from the attorney general's office, seized the case records and documents from Harris.

In his petition to the Supreme Court, Harris said the seizure of various papers, documents and reports, was an abuse of discretion, and "without precedence in the laws."

He asked the court to prevent the governor and the attorney general from obstructing him in the performance of his duties in the prosecution of Adams "and all other cases arising out of the death of Dan Bolles."

The petition also asked the court to require Babbitt and Phoenix Police Chief Lawrence Wetzel to return all documents and reports that were removed from the county attorney's office.

The Supreme Court has set a hearing for Nov. 16 at 10 a.m. Bolles was injured June 2 when a bomb exploded under his car. He died later.

Officials at St. Alphonsus Hospital reported the two men in fair condition and improving.

Marlboro Lights

The spirit of Marlboro in a low tar cigarette.

Lighter in taste. Lower in tar.
And still offers up the same quality that has made Marlboro famous.
