Chrysler plants hit by walkout

DETROIT (UPI) — About 9,000 wildcat strikers forced the closing of three key Chrysler Corp. manufacturing plants Saturday despite agreement a day earlier on a new national contract for 109,000 U.S. and Canadian production workers.

Chrysler and United Auto Workers negotiators continued to meet Saturday in an attempt to wrap up a separate agreement for 9,000 salaried workers whose strike-deadline was extended indefinitely.

Also plaguing the firm's attempt to maintain normal operations were the lack of local agreements at 158 of 205 bargaining units.

With the Chrysler negotiations nearly behind it, the UAW plans early next week to set a strike deadline at giant General Motors for a new contract for its 590,000 U.S. workers. Separate negotiations also will continue to wrap up pacts for 26,000 GM of Canada workers and 12,000 employees of American Motors.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Friday that he expects GM to match both the wage and fringe benefits packages worked out at Ford during a 28-day strike and matched at Chrysler with some improvements job-protecting issues. Asked if he thought GM would follow the pattern, Woodcock said:

"I have no reason to believe they will not. On the other hand, since they have done nothing I have no positive assurance they will."

The union has never called two nationwide strikes in any year since it began its "target" bargaining strategy in 1955.

Anti-gun defeat pleases the NRA

By United Press International

The executives and lobbyists at the National Rifle Association headquarters in Washington are relieved. The Smith-Wesson Co. of Springfield, Mass., is relieved. The NRA and Smith-Wesson, the nation's largest manufacturer of handguns, are relieved because voters in Massachusetts, one of the most liberal states in the nation, resoundingly rejected a referendum last Tuesday to ban private possession of handguns.

The two groups contributed more than $20,000 to the advertising effort that helped defeat the proposal. The Gun Owners Action League, an organization favored by both, funneled another $60,000 into the campaign of Taxpayers. Against Question 5, a euphemistically titled parent group for antigun control groups.

"This has a very large meaning to us," said Richard Corrigan, the NRA's chief Washington lobbyist. "For many years, the nation's antigun organizations have talked about a paper tiger."

Massachusetts was targeted for special attention by the NRA, which claims to speak for 50 million law abiding gun owners in the U.S. The Bay State proposal went far beyond the "foot in the door" efforts to outlaw cheap handguns. Saturday Night Specials which the NRA also opposes. Corrigan said had the Massachusetts referendum carried, the U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National Task Force on Handguns planned to make it a model for similar efforts in California, Michigan and Ohio.

California state Sen. H.L. Richardson, founder and chairman of Gun Owners of America, channeled more than $30,000 into 154 political campaigns around the country of pro gun politicians. Gun Owners of California spent $146,000 on 82 state legislative races in California.

ROTC student stabbed, then dies in hazing

LINDENHURST, N.Y. (UPI) — A pledge for the St. John's University ROTC fraternity was stabbed to death with a bayonet as he was being "interrogated," apparently as part of illegal hazing, authorities said Saturday.

Suffolk County Police said 20-year-old Thomas Fitzgerald of New York City, a pledge for the Pershing Rifles, was submitting to mock interrogation late Friday night in order to be admitted to the national ROTC fraternity. Police said Fitzgerald, a student at St. John's, was stabbed once in the chest by a bayonet and died shortly afterward.

James Savino, 21, of New York City, a member of the fraternity, was charged Saturday morning with second-degree murder in the stabbing, police said. Savino is a student at Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, N.J., but is a member of the St. John's ROTC.

Marlin Healy, a spokesman for St. John's, said in the New York City borough of Queens, a group of about 20 members and pledges of the Pershing Rifles went to the Indian Island camp in suburban Long Island for the training in "interrogation techniques," in which members played the part of "interrogators" and the pledges were "prisoners of war."

"At one point they got into the area of intimidation," Healy said, in which an interrogator jabs at a POW with a bayonet. The POW is protected by a block of wood hanging from his neck.

"In this case," Healy said, "the block of wood apparently slipped."

Healy said the youths told their ROTC supervisors they were going to a friend's house for a party, not to Indian Island for training. No ROTC training is allowed to take place without an Army officer and an enlisted man present, he said.

Healy also said all forms of fraternity hazing are outlawed not only by the school but also by state law. "If they really were hazing, all the students who took part could be expelled," Healy said. "I understand that state law makes it a misdemeanor."

Professional gamblers now play backgammon

N.Y. Times Service
MANZANILLO, Mexico — The casual players sat around the pool, a fierce sun beating down on their necks as they cleaned over their backgammon boards throwing dice and exchanging stories of obsessions with the game. "I used to play for money 13 hours a day," said Steve Whipple, a 25-year-old real estate broker from Houston, "but now that I have a job, I only have time for six hours every night."

In the nearby air-conditioned Princess Room, no such concessions were made. The rattling of dice and the clink of glasses could be heard around the clock as the full-timers determinedly ignored the fun of the tropics beyond their hideaway.

"I've been here three days and I'm pale as a ghost," Paul Magrieh, a 39-year-old backgammon professional from New York, said proudly.

"People tend to get hooked on the game and they just play for hours and hours, forgetting food, forgetting their jobs and families, forgetting everything."

Oswald Jacoby, a 72-year-old former chess champion from Dallas, sat playing in his pajamas. "At home, I play with my wife for half an hour before we go to bed just to relax," he said. "My son is also very good, my grandchildren play, we all enjoy it. It's such good fun."

social respect ability of the event, it was presided over by Prince Alexis Obolensky, the 62-year-old Russian exile who has helped convert backgammon into an international fad by lending his name and title to innumerable tournaments.

"We ran from Russia because we were aristocrats and then in London we were friends of the royal family," recalled the prince, who is not beyond name-dropping himself. "Then, after I ran the first tournament in the Bahamas in 1963, people would come and say 'Prince, you've got a lot of rich friends, so help us win a tournament.' And that got the ball rolling."

"We started teaching famous people — Princess Grace, 'Baby Doc' Duvalier and so on. And if there's one thin that Americans like it if famous or wealthy people take up a game or a fad, then they do so, too." One secret of the success of these tournaments is that participants can keep on playing — in consolation and "last chance" competitions — once they have been knocked out of the main event.

And playing seems to be as important as winning.

On this occasion, there were three events — an international grandmasters tournament, although Lucille Ball was the only celebrity to show, and the 13th annual Obolensky Cup in which all guests participated.

But outside these competitions, spontaneous games for stakes, ranging from $5 to $500, would be constantly starting up in the hotel lobby, in private suites, in restaurants, on the beach, on almost any flat surface.

Teenagers set sights too high

Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — The nation's teen-agers have unrealistically high career aspirations, given the structure of the existing job market, according to a national survey of work skills and knowledge.

Almost half — 44 per cent — of the 17-year-olds in the representative sample of 2,500 wanted careers as professionals or managerial.

Moreover, a four-year college degree is usually the minimum requirement for professional careers, and only about 20 per cent of the population graduates from college, according to a report on the survey from the National Assessment of Educational Progress conducted by the Education Commission of the States.

"Career education can help students avoid disillusionment to the working world by providing them with decision-making tools and information about the range of jobs available," said Roy Forbes, director of the assessment.

Career education, a more comprehensive program than the traditional vocational courses offered by schools, is intended to help students decide what field they want to pursue and determine what training they need to meet their goals.

It was launched on a national level in 1971 by former U.S. Commissioner of Education Sidney P. Marland, at least in part in response to the growing unemployment of college graduates working as cab drivers or receptionists.

The program has been sharply criticized as an exercise in getting students to lower their job expectations and as a dodge for avoiding creation of broader social programs to reduce unemployment and improve job conditions by turning out a docile generation of workers willing to accept whatever job they can get.

However, the assessment endorsed the concept of career education, based on its findings that a substantial proportion of high school students lack the most fundamental skills needed to obtain a job.

The assessment also found that it was those bearing the brunt of unemployment — blacks, the poor, and those whose parents had less than a high school education — who had the lowest level of job skills and knowledge.

The assessment tested a national sample of 9-year-olds, 12-year-olds, 17-year-olds and young adults with written tests to determine such things as their ability to gauge their own skills and interests, their general and specific job knowledge and their ability on basic computation and writing.

It found that a third of the teen-agers and young adults tested wrote inadequate letters for job applications, failing to include information on how they could be contacted.

Better than 30 per cent of the teen-agers reported that they had never discussed their future job plans with any adult — their parents, teachers or school career counselors.

Only 40 per cent of the 17-year-olds "had" ever taken aptitude test and only 16 per cent had discussed the results of the test with a counselor.

At age 17, only 59 per cent of the black teen-agers had discussed their future plans with an adult, compared with 71 per cent of the whites.

On questions designed to explore specific job knowledge — such as the salaries of different jobs, the training needed and the duties a job entailed — only 54 per cent of the teen-agers could answer all five correctly.

The questions asked students to determine which of four jobs required the most training: manicurist, plumber, assembly line worker or truck driver. Only 63 per cent answered correctly: plumber. In terms of general job knowledge, only 64 per cent of the teen-agers were able to answer all the items correctly.

Carter begins study for new job

SAINT SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) — Taking his first trip aboard a presidential jet, Jimmy Carter flew Saturday to a working island vacation off the Georgia coast and said he plans no foreign travel for the first few months of his administration.

Carter, talking to reporters aboard a Boeing 707 that normally serves as one of President Ford's back-up planes, said the first aim of his administration will be to work with Congress on his legislative program.

"I think that when I have some successful and unsuccessful encounters with the Congress, then that will be a good time to restore my prestige by making a trip overseas," Carter said.

The blue-and-white plane that carried Carter and his family from Albany, Ga., to Glynnco Naval Air Station near this resort was used for years as the main presidential jet. It is the same one that bore John Kennedy's body home from Dallas and that carried Richard Nixon on his first trip to China.

Accompanying Carter were his wife, Rosalynn, their son Chip and Chip's wife Caron, and a small terrier, J.B. The Carter's settled easily into the plush surroundings of the specially equipped plane. Carter said it was "more beautiful than I thought it would be."

"I felt like going home and getting my three piece black suit," said the president-elect, who wore a brown sweater.

Carter and his family are staying at Musgrove Plantation owned by Smith Bagley, a Washington socialite and heir to the R.J. Reynolds tobacco fortune.

The spacious, moss covered estate lies on 483 acres of "high ground" and 900 acres of marsh land. It is on an island off the Georgia coast.

Carter said he planned to catch up on his reading of transition documents but also wanted a rest after the long campaign.

"I've got a lot to read but I think today I'm going to be catching up on my sleep. We've been working pretty hard since we got home."

Carter also said he would meet with Ford this month and would be briefed "quite early" by the CIA.

Ford subdued over loss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, described as "subdued" after his election defeat, met with top aides Saturday to clear the decks for a vacation in Palm Springs, Calif.

The President, still suffering from the hoarseness that plagued him during final days of the campaign, plans to fly to the desert resort Sunday afternoon with his wife and three children after attending church services.

His mood was described as "subdued" by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said Ford met with aides Saturday to clear up any problems before beginning the trip — which will give the outgoing president some much-needed rest and time to plan his future.

Aides said Ford intends to remain active in public life — possibly making speeches, writing his memoirs and playing a role in the Republican Party as its most recent standard bearer — after leaving the White House.

He expects to carry on his own policies over the remaining 10 weeks. But Ford also has directed administration officials to make the transfer of power as smooth as possible.

Jack Watson, Jimmy Carter's liaison with the White House, during the transition period, had his initial briefing Friday. Ford and President-elect Carter may meet later this month. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, also has been in touch with Nessen, and they will get together in a week or so.

Since his election defeat, Ford has received hundreds of telegrams and calls from well wishers, aides said. But he has not heard from Richard Nixon, whose pardon by Ford turned into an election issue.

Nixon telephoned GOP vice presidential candidate Robert Dole after Tuesday's election to express sympathy and to comment that "it's always hard to lose the close ones..."

Ford's top aides have been going home earlier since Tuesday, and seeing more of their families.

The scene at the White House remains somber. Suddenly it appears all the action is somewhere else.

"Suddenly there is 'nothing to do,'" said Nessen, whose telephone calls and file of homework have dropped sharply.

While others on the staff already are looking for jobs, Nessen said he would take time out in Palm Springs to contemplate his future.

The President has made it clear to Cabinet and top agency heads that his administration has total responsibility for running government until inauguration day, Jan. 20.

While relaxing at the Palm Springs estate of former Ambassador to Belgium Leonard Firestone, Ford will spend a few hours each day working on his State of the Union message. He also must submit a new federal budget by mid-January.

Light reading?

PRESIDENT-elect Jimmy Carter carries a stack of reading material toward his plane as for use on his working vacation off the coast of Georgia this weekend. (UPI)

Betty's cancer gone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford has made a complete recovery from her bout with breast cancer, despite the burdens of the White House and a strenuous presidential campaign, her doctor said Saturday.

"At this point, there is no evidence of any cancer recurrence," White House physician William Lukasik said. "She's made a complete recovery, physically and psychologically."

The doctor said chemotherapy treatments undertaken for two years after her breast cancer surgery are now completed and Mrs. Ford will undergo a physical "evaluation" later this month at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

He also said her arm is "completely mobile," while many breast cancer patients suffer severe arm pain following surgery.

But Mrs. Ford continues to have recurring bouts of painful arthritis in the neck, an ailment she has had for 12 years.

French ambassador shot on Yugoslavian trip

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The French ambassador to Yugoslavia accidentally was shot to death in the lower back during a hunting trip for diplomats in woods north of this capital Saturday, French and Yugoslav officials said.

Ambassador Pierre Sebilliau, 61, the father of four daughters living in Paris, was shot in the loins from six feet away and died on the operating table at nearby Zrenjanin hospital two hours later, a hospital spokesman said.

Diplomatic sources said Austrian Ambassador Alexander Oita was standing behind Sebilliau trying to adjust something in his double-barreled shotgun when the gun discharged.

Mostly ambassadors were in the hunting party. No Americans were in the party.

The incident occurred near Zrenjanin, 40 miles north of the capital, during the traditional annual hunting outing for the diplomatic corps hosted by Foreign Minister Milos Jinic.

Sebilliau was the dean of the diplomatic corps in Belgrade and was to end his tour of duty in December when French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing was to visit Yugoslavia. He has been here since June 2, 1970.

Sebilliau was shot in the Novi Becej woods and was given first aid at the spot before he arrived in a car at the hospital one hour and 20 minutes later, a hospital spokesman said.

"He was unconscious, in shock with no blood pressure and no pulse," a Yugoslav official said by telephone from the hospital.

"Doctors tried to revive him and started surgery. He died on the surgical table at 12:45 p.m. (7:45 a.m. EDT). He had injuries of abdominal organs in the loins area."

Minic, who went to the hospital, cabled his condolences to the French foreign ministry in Paris, a Yugoslav official said.

"Ambassador Sebilliau, whom I highly respected and with whom by chance I spent the last moments of his life, will remain in our lasting memory because of his extraordinary human qualities and precious contribution towards deepening friendship between Yugoslavia and France," the official quoted the cable as saying.

Worldwide media control resolution voted down

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Western nations Sunday dealt a major setback to a Soviet-backed resolution calling for state regulation of news media, but the U.S. editor who led the charge against the resolution warned that "the contest is not over."

The working commission of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization voted 78-15, with 6 abstentions, to reject the resolution on the mass media to a special drafting and negotiating committee for further study and revision.

Raymond Kirkpatrick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, said after the vote that although the U.S. Congress would probably find it surprising...the contest is not over. It has just moved to a new scene.

The Saturday vote followed an intense campaign by the United States, the 9-member European Common Market and five Nordic countries to block immediate consideration of the issue which threatened to tear UNESCO itself apart.

A Soviet spokesman said the resolution would "protect" the flow of news.

The Western nations, however, launched an all out attack on the resolution, claiming it would eliminate press freedoms.

Western delegates said after the vote they were confident that the special negotiating committee, with instructions to reach a broad consensus between East and West, would not be able to present any compromise document until the next UNESCO general conference in two years time.

"We hope that future decisions of the conference will avoid any implication of state control," said Chairman George Beebe of the Miami Herald. "Such restrictions would be contrary to the charter of UNESCO and would tarnish the well deserved reputation of UNESCO itself."

"The committee feels, however, this is only the first of many challenges by those nations who wish to use UNESCO for their own political ends."

While the United States, Britain, Germany, France and the Scandinavians all opposed the resolution, they agreed to help developing countries improve their own mass media and balance the flow of worldwide information.

Nut chewers mad at US

SAIPAN, Micronesia (UPI) — The betel nut chewers of Micronesia are spitting mad at Washington for a proposed ban on the export of the nuts which have been chewed for centuries by the Pacific Islanders.

Palau District Administrator Thomas O. Remengesau said the "dangerous" label was placed on betel nut chewing by "the sm crazed officials" at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Micronesian News Service said Guam Congressman Antonio Won Pat had joined the fight to have the ban removed. HEW has stopped importation of the nuts into the U.S. mainland because they contain substances that could be dangerous or poisonous.

"The nuts have been chewed all over the world for hundreds of years," said reporter Valentine Sengebau who says he has chewed betel for half of his 75 years.

"It's better than hard liquor and the only danger involved is that you're liable to get your own white shirt stained when spitting," he said.

The ground nuts, when mixed with lime juice give off a red juice that stains the teeth. The ingredients are carried in over the shoulder bags by the Pacific Islanders who would feel undressed without their betel nut bags.

Remengesau said that despite warnings from the surgeon general's office that cigarette smoking is dangerous to the health, HEW officials are allowing tobacco manufacturers to continue their shipments of their commodities over state lines and on to foreign countries.

YOUR BODY HAS A LOT OF COMMON SENSE

The body is a lot smarter than most people think. It knows how to stay well — if allowed to do so. It has been proved in many thousands of cases that often the difference between good health and poor health is a vertebra out of place (from a twist or a fall or a bump). The nerves that reach out from between vertebrae to serve the body organs are then kept from doing their job properly. To permit the body to regain its natural health, the "offending" vertebra must be returned to its normal position. And that's what chiropractic is all about. It's a matter of common sense.

Environmentalists hail Carter election

— N. Y. Times Service
 — NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter's election is viewed by conservationists as presaging a new era in the nation's quest for environmental quality.
 The Ford Administration, like the Nixon Administration before it, has had a reputation among conservationists for inaction and obstruction on environmental matters. Carter, by contrast, won their support with his record as governor of Georgia and his subsequent policy positions.
 Little attention was paid to environmental problems in the Ford Campaign, and the President was rated by the nonpartisan League of Conservation Voters as "hopeless."
 Carter, who drew a league rating of "outstanding," had on his campaign staff of about 300 a score of specialists assigned to environmental and natural resource questions.
 His campaign declarations called for a wide and varied array of changes in federal environmental policies and organizational structures.

— the last few years:
 — National Forests: "Environmental abuses from timber harvesting cannot be continued."
 — Endangered Species: "The 1973 law to protect them has been implemented at a snail's pace."
 — Solid Waste: "The federal government should establish national goals and provide research and other assistance to the states."
 The Carter administration will be confronted at the outset with a lot of unfinished congressional business or environmental matters.
 Prolonged debate and maneuvering in the last session failed to produce agreement on "mid-course" amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1953, which prescribes the terms for federal offshore oil leases.
 The Pesticide Control Act of 1972 will expire in March, and its extension in some form is on the agenda.
 Measures to regulate surface mining and provide for the restoration of strip-mined land are expected to be introduced again.

 It is also considered likely that renewed proposals will be made to encourage land use planning at the state level, and to establish a nationwide system of mandatory deposits on beverage cans and bottles to encourage recycling.
 In addition, to the post of secretary of the Interior, the Carter administration will have some important environmental positions to be filled.
 One of these is administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, the largest federal regulatory unit. It's head, Russell E. Train, a Republican, plans to resign in January.
 A vacancy exists in the directorship of the Council on Environmental Quality, which advises the President and Congress on policy and conducts studies on major environmental problems.
 The council's chairman, Dr. Russell W. Peterson, resigned last month, and the other two members of the panel, John Bistard and Dr. Beatrice Willard, are reported to be considering leaving.

— For most among these was his declared intention to overhaul the nation's diffuse and fragmented management of energy, centralizing it in a new cabinet-level department.
 — "I intend," Carter said, "to abolish the Federal Energy Administration, the Federal Power Commission, the Energy Research and Development Administration and the Energy Resources Council."
 While any such sweeping realignment would probably encounter congressional resistance, Carter has projected early basic administrative changes.

— As governor, he battled the Army Corps of Engineers and the Agriculture Department's Soil Conservation Service over dam-building and stream channelization projects, vowing to curb these activities if he got the chance.
 In his campaign he said, "A great reduction must be made in these activities," adding, "The federal government's dam-building era is coming to an end."
 — On the controversial question of nuclear power development, Carter differed sharply with the Nixon and Ford policies.
 He recommended the subordination of nuclear power to other energy sources, such as coal, and increased emphasis on more advanced technologies, such as the harnessing of solar energy.
 The most fundamental difference between Carter and President Ford is in their over-all philosophies.
 Ford's expressed attitude has been that there is an intrinsic conflict between environmental improvement and economic development, calling for a relaxation of tension between the two.

— Carter has said repeatedly, "There is no incompatibility between careful planning and economic progress on the one hand and environmental quality on the other."
 Promising to "renew the nation's commitment to clean air," Carter "has charged" that automobile manufacturers "have degraded their feet" in reducing car emissions.
 He said that, in contrast to Ford Administration positions, he would press for preservation of air quality in areas where it now surpassed federal requirements.

— On water pollution, too, Carter differs with the Ford policies.
 President Ford recently hinted that budgetary considerations might necessitate cutoffs in federal grants to communities seeking to improve their sewage systems.
 Carter, in a letter a week ago to David Bardin, New Jersey's environmental chief, said he would urge quick congressional action early next year to augment the federal grants program, all of the original $18 billion of which has been allocated. This has left New Jersey and other states with federally encouraged improvement programs that might have to be suspended for lack of cooperative financing.

— Ford's two voices of strip-mining control legislation were described by Carter as "serious environmental insults." Other Carter criticisms of Ford environmental policies include the following:
 — Public Lands: "Major problems have not been addressed in

Execution delayed

— N. Y. Times News
NEW YORK — A 26-year-old convicted murderer who had been scheduled to become the first person executed in the United States in nine years was granted a stay of execution Friday in Atlanta.
 The murderer, Timothy McCorquodale, convicted two years ago in the slaying of a girl friend, had been scheduled to die in the electric chair next Wednesday.
 In Salt Lake City, meanwhile, the Utah Supreme Court decided that it would accept briefs calling for a stay of execution in a bizarre murder case in which the defendant insists that he wants to face the firing squad as scheduled on Nov. 15.
 "It's my own decision," Gilmore said at an earlier hearing on his case. "I was not influenced by anything but the fact that I don't want to spend the rest of my life in jail."

Man rides bicycle around the world in two years

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK—Grand Teflon was biohacking, Missoula's women were out of sight, Hernandez, Miss., was the place for coffee and tall tales. But it was "Easy Rider" all over again in Idaho, he was run off the road by truckers in Kansas and run over by a woman driver in Maryland.
 Small wonder then that Robert Morris will be relieved to reach home Saturday, two years and three months after pedaling his bicycle around the world.
 Sometime between 3 and 3:30 p.m. during halftime of the Randolph-Waldwick high school football game in Randolph Township, N.J., the 22-year-old Morris will pedal his 15-speed bike into his hometown stadium for an official welcome from Mayor Stephen B. Richer, the high school band, local residents and his parents.
 A plaque, a proclamation, a key to the town and a party with friends will be the celebration. But the real reception for Morris than the last leg of his 30-country, 32,000-mile journey — a frustrating, often lonely two-month trek across the United States.
 "It was a lot different than traveling across Europe or through some other countries," Morris said a few days ago, during an interview in Harrisburg, Pa., where he had stopped for minor repairs on his bike. "I really thought people in the U.S. would be friendlier than they were. But they're not as receptive at first. You can be riding along and people will just play with you. They have no respect for you."
 In Europe, they have respect for cyclists, because bikes are a major transportation vehicle. In the U.S., people are afraid of something they're not used to. What they can't describe or consider threatening, they kick out of town."
 After pedaling through parts of Europe, Africa, Asia and Australia, Morris began the U.S. portion of his trip from California in late August. He had little money and no preconceived notions about what to expect on his journey eastward but was quickly jarred into reality in Orofino, Idaho.
 "I was biking through on the first full day of the logging festival," Morris recalled. "It was a Saturday and all of the people had been drinking there since Friday and had the day off. I was minding my own business on the road when these guys drove up alongside in a pickup-truck, put the barrel of a shotgun out the window and pulled the trigger."
 Unlike the movie, "Easy Rider," this guy was not loaded. But the "pulling and scalding from the truck led to a striking impression on Morris for the remainder of his trip.
 "I really didn't think things still went on in the world like that," he said.
 "It would be hard to think truckers took delight in playing games with cyclists, like passing on the shoulder of a road, blowing horns or bragging on their C.B. radios.
 "I had trouble with truckers all across the Midwest," Morris related. "And I didn't know it was intentional until a driver told me about it on Highway 33 in Kansas. He pulled up alongside and said, 'Those guys are out to get you. I couldn't believe it, until he said he had been listening to them on his C.B. and they were saying things like what watch I do with this guy.'"
 Morris camped out about 75 percent of his U.S. trip and had the benefit of what he termed "fantastic weather." His survival kit, one pair of pants, one pair of socks, two riding shirts, one raincoat, one towel, one swim suit, a sleeping bag, raincoat, warmup pants, tool kit, toiletry kit, a light mountaineering hammock, one tube tent and insulated underwear.
 He averaged about 140 miles a day in the United States and suffered only one blowout.
 Often, while traveling alone, Morris's thoughts fell into a pattern: where am I going, what will I see, who will I meet, where will I sleep? He managed a stop in Lawton, Okla., to renew his ties with friends he had met in Ethiopia; he also spent two weeks visiting and working for his brother-in-law in Hernandez, Miss.
 "Drastic changes" in scenery and the diverse character of Small-Town U.S.A. provided "the most poignant memories for Morris, who filled three diaries throughout his travels and hopes to write a book on his experiences.
 At Penny's restaurant in Hernandez, Miss. (pop. 2,499), the coffee break was more than the 15-minute stop in Interstate. It was the social ritual throughout the day, where everyone gabbed and departed, returned and departed, rolling dice to see who picked up each tab.
 Gaining acceptance among strangers or "cracking the coast" became a daily experience for Morris, especially trying to explain his round the world pursuit.
 "Oh, my goodness," exclaimed two co-eds in the student lounge at Kentucky Christian College in Grayson,

Ky. (pop. 2,184). "How did you get around the water?"
 "Falth," Morris replied.
 Morris figures he fell in love four or five different times during his trip. A nurse he met on a ship from Capetown, South Africa, to Perth, Australia, remains No. 1 despite attractive, bike-conscious co-eds at the University of Montana.
 "I never knew there could be so many good-looking girls in Montana," he said.
 Morris covered 21 states, including Hawaii. What he saw has convinced him that America can be even more beautiful with a smile and some sincere concern for its travel-minded citizens.
 "The U.S. has a lot of travelers, but some people can't go because there's no place for them to stay for reasonable rates," he said, citing the relatively inexpensive hostels throughout Europe and Japan as inducements for youthful travelers.
 "With all of the Rotary and Lion clubs around the country looking for projects, why not let them buy old buildings in their towns and set up youth hostels for travelers?"
 Morris estimates the total cost of his trip at $4,000, some of which he defrayed with odd jobs. In Harrisburg last Wednesday night, he had $19 left, the best reason in the world, he said, why job-hunting would be an early priority after weekend celebrations. Competitive cycling also continues to arouse his curiosity, Morris said.
 "I've been asked by a lot of people 'would you do it again?'" he said, by now so keyed up for his homecoming that he had fallen four days behind in his diary. "Given the chance, I might. There's a lot more world to see — South America, China, Russia. I've only seen a chunk." What would he do differently, the second time around?
 "I'm not sure," Morris said. "I might travel with a girl friend, ride slower, take more time to see places. I might even settle down somewhere, well, maybe for a month or two."

Dogs not color blind

By LINDA MERRY DVM
 Question: Are dogs really color-blind? I've heard they are but my dog (a border collie) seems to know red. He can tell his red food dish from a blue one I use for his water. They are just alike otherwise. Do you think he can see the difference in color?

Answer: More likely he can smell the difference. Dogs are color-blind. They see the difference between a red and pink collar, for example, as shades of gray.

There are cells in the retina (the deep image gathering layer of the eye) which are sensitive to light. These cells are called "cones" and "rods." Nocturnal, or night-time hunters like the cat and owl, have retinas with many more rods than cones. Day light hunters, like the dog, have predominately cones. Since it is the rods that also perceive color—the dog is short-changed in the color department. Cats can see some color, though not nearly so vividly as people.

In general, the dog is supplied with the type of vision most suited to his needs. He sees form, brightness, depth, and is best at following moving objects.

Question: I know that puppies do not open their eyes for awhile after they're born. My question is how long after the eyes open are the dogs blind? It seems like they don't really see anything for about another week. Am I right?

Answer: Right and wrong. The basic structures of the eye are developed by the time the puppy is born. Most puppies get their first peep at the world about 10 days after they enter it—when the "lid" junctions disappear.

Happily enough, the time of lid opening, and differentiation of the rods and cones (the light cells of the retina come at the same time. So, a puppy sees light, dark, and movement as soon as he bats his eye.

We can only guess when he's first able to focus and perceive depth. Based on an age comparison with man, a puppy first sees the world in proper perspective—when he's six weeks old.

Question: This may not be a question you will want to answer in the paper, but I would like to know why "blinders" are used on horses. Isn't it cruel to keep them from seeing that way?

Answer: Using blinders can be the kindest thing to do for a horse. You see, Mother Nature was in a weird way the day she gave the horse his eyes. She fixed it so the horse can see almost all the way to his rear, sees things on both sides of him at once, but can barely focus on objects directly in front of him. (and then only with the utmost concentration). He can't focus closer than four feet and if he's looking forward, he's practically blind in any other direction.

This kind of strange outlook is probably what saved him from the dinosaurs. He could see anybody who snuck up on him from behind quickly detected movement, and was equipped for a racing start. But in today's world, the horse's vision has a lot to be detected. If he's trotting down the road watching everybody on both sides and behind him, he's pretty foggy about where he's going. That explains how "blinders" came into use when the horse was our main mode of transportation.

Blinders just make it easier for the animal to pay attention to where he's going. They're still used on race horses and I suppose they'd be a real comfort if watching somebody gaining from behind worried you.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet in care of the Times-News.

No. 907 - Most powerful fence on the market today. Solid state. Here's the unit that's been used by cherry electric fences when the fence wire is stretched directly to wood posts that are free of metallic shunts. That alone the power you'll have using the regular steel post and plastic insulators we recommend. The Super Charger works what others don't because it stores up with more power than the others. It's a solid state breakthrough to a high level of dependability and performance. The most lasting better under all conditions.

News of record

Twin Falls City Police ACCIDENT — A car driven by William Carl Pulsipher, 19, Kimberly and a car driven by Hal Reynolds Chapman, 23, Kimberly, collided at the intersection of Trade Street and Floral Avenue Wednesday, police said. Pulsipher suffered a bruised knee and was treated and released at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Chapman, who suffered a cut lip, was treated and released at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital. Police estimated damage to Chapman's car at $400 and to Pulsipher's car, $700. No other damage or injuries were reported.

ARREST — Russell Lee Baker, 20, Twin Falls, has been arrested on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of a citizen's band radio earlier this week, police said. He was released on his own recognizance.

ARREST — Charles W. Jensen, 30, Portland, Ore., has been arrested on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of a pistol belonging to Clair Bryant, police said. Bryant reported the gun was taken from his car parked on the 200 block of Addison Avenue West Wednesday night. He estimated the gun's value at $275. Jensen was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

ARREST — Charles Edward Brannon, 19, Twin Falls, has been arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct in connection with an argument at the Pioneer Club, 4316 Kimberly Road, Wednesday night, police said. Brannon would not leave the bar when asked to police said. He was being held Thursday in the city jail pending arraignment.

THEFT — Glen Sutherland, 28, Monroe, Ill., told police someone stole a shotgun from his home Monday night. He estimated the loss at $300.

THEFT — Carol Knudson, 60, Monte Vista Dr., told police someone took about $400 from her home two weeks ago. Police said about $200 was recovered from a juvenile girl with cooperation from Robert Stuart Junior High School officials.

Idaho State Police ARREST — Samuel John Knight, 25, Twin Falls, was arrested on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon early Thursday morning, state police said. He was being held Thursday in county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Valley plans carnival

VALLEY SCHOOLS — The annual Valley SDS School Carnival will be held from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday in the Valley High School gym. There will be many booths at the carnival providing activities such as a dart throw, pop bottle toss, cake-walk and bingo. There will also be lots of goodies, such as popcorn and punch. The "hot" booth will feature nutritious, homemade food for dinner.

Raffle tickets will be sold at the door, and the drawing for several exciting prizes will be held at 8 p.m. All proceeds from the carnival will go to Hazelton Grade School to purchase school equipment. Last year the money went to Eden Elementary School and was used to purchase two new playground pieces. Next year the proceeds will go to Valley High School.

Tickets for each booth will be sold at 20-cent-per ticket. There will be a carnival meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the music room, to discuss last minute details.

GI benefits expire

TWIN FALLS — Existing education benefits for individuals entering the military after Dec. 31 will expire, officials at Twin Falls Navy Recruiting office report.

This does not affect men and women who have discharged, and educational benefits are the only benefit valued.

According to Lt. Denver James, people currently serving who join the Navy or enlist in the Navy's delayed entry program before Jan. 1, 1977, will be eligible for the present educational bill.

On Jan. 1, 1977, persons who join the military will be eligible for educational aid if they elect to take part in a contract program. Service members would contribute between $75-$75 a month up to a total of $2,700. These funds would be matched by the Veteran's Administration on a two-to-one basis. People can also get educational aid while on active duty.

Prize winners

Freedom keeps stardom away

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (UPI) — Country singer Ken Findlay figures he'll never make it big as a law-abiding citizen. He needs to go to jail.

But all he gets for his efforts to polish up his outlaw image is continued freedom.

He turned rowdy at the famed Terlingua chili cooking contest upon learning the ghost town's new owner hired extra security guards to keep peace among brawling cowboys.

No luck. He just couldn't get busted.

Findlay, a song writer and co-owner of an old warehouse converted to a dance hall, complains his lack of a prison record is keeping him from becoming a star.

Findlay, a former school teacher with a master's degree in educational administration, said he is so concerned about his clean record he even wrote a song about it:

"I've never hustled goats, got on dope or stole a car,
"I've never been in jail so I'll never be a star."

Findlay noted that country singer Johnny Rodriguez, a native of Sabin, Tex., was jailed for goat rustling, that Austin's Jerry Jeff Walker got the idea to write "Bojangles" while held in a drunk tank and that many other big country stars have jail records.

"I've grown a beard and wear a big hat, but I still can't get arrested," Findlay lamented. "Until I do nobody will believe I can be a star."

Findlay said he had hopes his 5 rpm recording, "The Plastic Girl," might help get him jailed, but it failed, too, because radio stations won't play the bleached side of the record.

One side of the recording has all the words of the song which goes into the troubles Findlay has with a "lille sene, wife size, blown up plastic girl." The other side is a cleaned up version of the same song.

Findlay said he would continue roaming the Hill Country playing dates with his six piece High Cotton Express band and at his warehouse.

He said his plans for the future are simple. He'll go on taking his guitar out of its cotton sack cover and playing his music in the semidarkness of the warehouse, hoping some day someone will tap him on the shoulder and say, "Come along with me, boy. You're under arrest."

Poster child and volunteers

BOB HECKER, chairman of the Twin Falls March of Dimes, appears with Bobbie Zastavny, the national March of Dimes poster child, along with Kathleen Hayden, Twin Falls, who will head up the mother's march fund drive locally in January.

Ford will live in dandy style

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford may be joining the unemployed in January, but his benefits will be higher than most of the jobless you know.

Ex presidents — whether they served two years or eight years, whether elected or appointed whether heroes or forced to resign under fire — get an annual pension of $23,000 plus $20,000 a year for staff and office expenses.

By law, past Presidents are paid the same amount as current cabinet members, so their pensions go up if cabinet members get a raise.

They have constant Secret Service protection for the rest of their life, suitable office space, furnished and equipped in a Federal building; and free mail privileges.

Ford, in addition, is due a government retirement pension based on his 25 years in Congress and four years in the Navy. The amount is not known but on the basis of his service would be more than $30,000.

At the Civil Service Commission, Adan Muzik told UPI she would not disclose the figure on Ford's congressional pension "because it's nobody else's business . . . under the privacy act."

Boise plans suburban park lots

BOISE (UPI) — Suburban parking lots soon will be used in the greater Boise area as a further aid to carpools and a proposed experimental express bus hauling people to work.

The Carpool Boise Program has reached an agreement with the owners of the Lake Hazel Shopping Center at Five Mile and Lake Hazel roads for its program, coordinator Paul Joos said.

"This lot will permit ride sharing by commuters who do not close neighbors but work in the same areas," Joos said.

"Rather than drive long distances to pick up riders, the members of a carpool can meet at the park-and-ride lot, park free and then continue to work in a single vehicle."

Carriers face crackdown

BOISE (UPI) — The Public Utilities Commission today announced plans for a crackdown on private motor carriers who have failed to pay a regulatory fee as required by state law.

Beginning next week, the PUC said, it will launch an intensive statewide enforcement program. It estimates several thousand private carriers throughout Idaho have failed to pay the $7 annual regulatory fee per vehicle.

Failure to comply is a misdemeanor offense and citations issued by enforcement personnel will carry a $25 bond.

State law defines a private carrier as any person other than a common or contract carrier who transports in common by motor vehicle property of which such person is the owner, lessee or bailee when such property is for the purpose of sale, lease, rent or bailment in the furtherance of any commercial enterprise.

Included are delivery and/or service vehicles used by such enterprises as department and specialty stores, electricians, plumbers and repair services.

Exceptions noted in the law are school buses operated by school districts, taxicabs seating no more than seven persons, hold-owned vehicles to transport patients to common carrier stations, vehicles owned and controlled by resident farmers for transportation of agricultural commodities or related supplies to and from storage or market, vehicles used to distribute newspapers, federal property or products of the forest or mine and vehicles for transportation of persons and/or property entirely within a city.

Vegas rallies past BSU in second half

LAS VEGAS - The Las Vegas Rebels shrugged off a 17-7 halftime deficit Saturday night to defeat the Boise State Broncos 31-26.

That picked up Las Vegas' defense and it quickly forced Boise State to punt. Greg Carana quickly hit three passes for 11 to 19 yards and a draw play run by Moore picked up more.

On Carana's one-yard sneak, Boise came back with a 43-yard pass to Hunt and Pickett scored two plays later on a six-yard burst. But the Broncos, looking at a five-point deficit with 7:38 to play, had to try for the two-pointer and Pickett, forced out of the pocket, was dropped trying to scramble in.

Las Vegas replied immediately with a drive that twice saw them beat fourth down and two-yard situations. A pass interference call in the end zone put the ball on the one and Greg Carana sneaked in from there.

Purdue shocks top-ranked Michigan 16-14

Headed for six

EPTOMIZING THE GAME, this picture shows Purdue's Scott Pierking (25) eluding Michigan's Calvin O'Neil and head heading for a touchdown Saturday, Purdue upset the top-ranked Wolverines 16-14, (UPI/telephoto)

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) - All Purdue's Bolle-makers wanted Saturday was to regain their respectability. Instead, they shocked the college football world with the biggest upset of the season—a 16-14 thriller over No. 1 ranked Michigan on Rock Sopotnik's 29-yard field goal with 4:20 left to play.

A week ago, Purdue was blasted at Michigan State, 45-13 for its third consecutive loss in what Coach Alex Agase called a "lousy" performance.

This past Monday the MSU embarrassment had been forgotten. "We won't have any problems getting our players 'up' for Michigan," Agase said Monday. "We're out to regain our respectability."

The "intensity" which was missing in the Michigan State game was apparent from the opening whistle Saturday and even when Michigan grabbed a 14-13 lead in the third period, none of the more than 57,000 fans went home.

Although he refused to single out any one player, Agase called veteran fullback Scott Pierking, who scored Purdue's two touchdowns, "still the best back in this Big Ten Conference," one of the best in the country.

"We came to get our respect back," Agase said. "We took a step backward last week but went 99 steps forward Saturday. Thank God our guys believed in themselves and the things they're doing. I wouldn't trade this win for anything."

Pierking said Purdue "had to win the game for Coach Agase. He's the greatest guy I've ever been associated with." Sapan said he didn't have time to get nervous before his game-winning field goal, his fifth of the season.

The loss wrecked Michigan's bid for an unbeaten season and the 5-1 Wolverines now may have to beat Ohio State in their season finale Nov. 20 to qualify for the Rose Bowl.

"I knew it was going to be a tough one, even before the season started," said Michigan Coach Bob Schembecher. "It was one of the four games we were shooting for. After Purdue looked so bad against Michigan State, maybe we didn't shoot for it hard enough. We knew we were going to have a tough time."

Dierking, who missed the last two and one-half games with a sprained ankle, scored two touchdowns and gained 162 yards in a school record 38 carries. Quarterback Mark Vitall connected on 10 of 44 passes for 109 yards but had two picked off.

Maryland stays undefeated

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) - Quarterback Mark Manges threw a pair of touchdown passes and engineered a 52-yard scoring drive to push sixth-ranked Maryland past Cincinnati, 21-0, Saturday, ending the Terrapins to remain unbeaten and untied.

The victory raised Maryland's record to 4-0 and boosted its overall winning streak to 13 while Cincinnati dropped to 6-2.

The Atlantic Coast Conference leaders, playing for the fourth straight week without gimpy-kneed Steve Atkins, their leading ground gainer, went to the air on second possession as Manges drove them 52 yards in 14 plays. The junior quarterback hit on passes of 12, 10 and nine yards and fullback Alvin Maddipati capped the drive with a one-yard scoring plunge.

Manges' first touchdown pass — a 21-yarder — capped an 81-yard, nine-play drive keyed by passes of 18 and 33 yards and the quarterback scrambled for 11 more.

He completed a 53-yard screen pass on the Bearcat 15 to Vince Kinney, who picked up a wall of blockers and scooted down the left sideline for the score.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pounder hit wingback Dean Richards with a 20-yard pass in the fourth quarter to finish the scoring, climaxing a 47-yard, six-play drive.

Manges completed 11 of 19 passes for 151 yards and rushed 72 yards in 11 carries before leaving the game midway through the fourth quarter.

Cincinnati was unable to move on the ground or in the air as the Terps held them to only four first downs and late in the fourth quarter. The Bearcats staged a late fourth-quarter drive but stalled on the Terrapin 18-yard line.

Archibald trade rumors continue

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) - Rumors of dissension and a possible trade involving Nate Archibald continued Saturday but the New York Nets guard continues to do his thing.

"Whether I am traded or not, I am going to do my job and play my game," said Archibald, who slipped in 26 points Saturday night as the Nets became the eighth straight victim of the Cleveland Cavaliers, 101-83.

Archibald is averaging 20.4 points per game, has 43 assists and is hitting at a 44 per cent clip from the field this season.

"Guys get trained all the time. Let's face it, it is a business," said Archibald. "You have to like your job and be eager in what you are doing. It's the principle of the thing."

The 6-1 player, who came to the Nets in an off-season trade with Kansas City, is not unhappy being with the Nets but is unhappy with the current New York record.

CSI opens on exhibitions in Twin Falls and Burley

TWIN FALLS - College of Southern Idaho unveils its new basketball corps in two exhibition games this week.

The Golden Eagles will go against Mountain Home Air Base at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the CSI gymnasium while Tuesday night they'll battle an AAU team from the Mini-Cassia area at the Burley High school gymnasium.

The Eagles finished the second of two scrimmages against Northwest Nazarene Christian College of Nampa Saturday. They were whipped at NNC and Saturday held their own or better.

"It looks like the kind of year where we'll have to play very conservatively to have a chance of winning on the road," Coach Royd Grant said afterward, using the results of those scrimmages to substantiate his feeling.

It wasn't that there isn't talent on the club. It's just that the preponderance of it is still fresh out of high school.

"I would anticipate some problems in December... losing some games and having some squeakers, but after Christmas this team could come together well. It has the talent to do that," Coach Grant said.

"But it's not like last year when we had a Ken Davis who'd been at Cincinnati, a Gene Bowen from Gardner Webb, an Eric Hovey from Gonzaga and an Ed Nichols from Texas Tech plus Andre Wakefield and Dwight Williams," he continued. "That was an awful lot of talent and most of it had NCAA experience behind it. Things got tough on the road they just started grinding harder. They'd see it before and didn't lose their poise. This team will get that, but it will take time."

The two other major differences between this team and last year's national champion club loomed up during the scrimmages were (1) this team can't shoot with last year's and (2) overall team speed and quickness is down.

While that seems to make these sound bleak for the Eagles fortunes, fans shouldn't dig out the ashes and sack cloth. This will improve as soon as the team itself decides it has a leader.

Fresh Air Williams has improved immeasurably since he first began working out for the Pan American team and guard Vinnie Gayle may be very close to turning the corner now.

"And you have to remember that this is the first competition we've had and this is the first time our kids have played in front of the home fans (a couple hundred maybe showed up Saturday afternoon). They were bound to be a little tight with a little stage fright," Coach Grant points out.

Monday night's exhibition opponent is always a unknown quantity. Sometimes the air base Phalanxmen have excellent talent. In the past few years, however, they've been quite small.

"Their coach told us they have some men who have had college basketball experience and they have a few guys in the 6-5 area," Coach Grant said. "They said they've been working out almost daily for the past month so they could be in pretty good condition. Generally a college team does well against a team like these simply because they are in better shape and can dominate the final quarter or so."

Jay Hall is handling the coaching chores of the Honda Center AAU team. The players on that team will include Bruce Draper, Brad Dandy, Terry Vaughn and Bob Lyons, former Burley preppers, and Kent, Conde and Rulon Barlow who played for Minico. Several high school coaches will also participate. These are Bruce Cole, ex-Moscow star, Dean Satterfield, all-starter from Aberdeen and Garth Williams, former Burley.

Both sessions will be preceded by pre-game festivities.

ASU beats Falcons

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) - Freshman-quarterback Dave Ziebart passed 22 yards to Paul Williams with 10 seconds remaining to give Air Force a 31-30 come-from-behind win over Arizona State Saturday night.

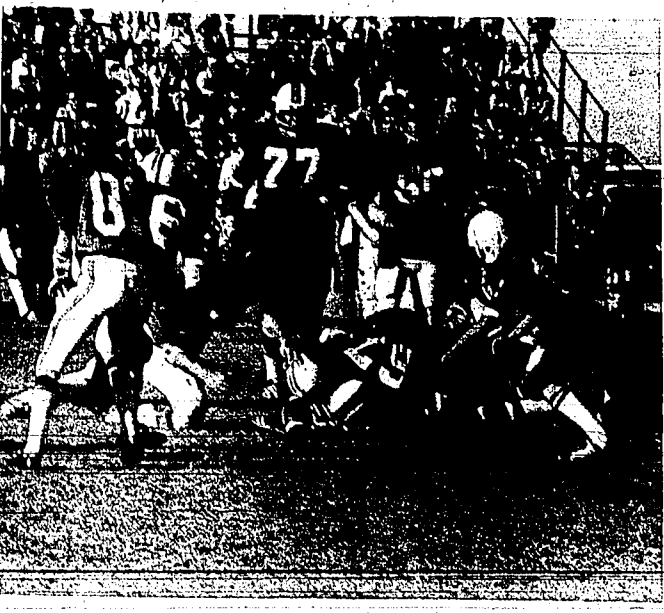

The pass topped a 71-yard drive in five plays after a 47-yard field goal by Mark Jones had given the Sun Devils a 30-25 lead with 1:23 remaining.

The Falcons fought back a 140 deficit at the end of the first quarter, when they were held to only one first down, and from a 21-12 disadvantage at halftime, the Sun Devils managed only two field goals in the final half.

Camas County drops Cambridge for state eight-man grid crown

BOISE — Camas County's defense controlled the game Saturday when the Musers beat Cambridge 18-6 to claim the state eight-man football championship.

Cambridge, which humiliated the Musers 72-18 in this one last year and had the whole county waiting for today, gave a good account of itself. But in the end the Muser defense yielded only once.

"We feel a lot better," Coach Lou Andersen admitted. "That 72-18 score was with us all last year. In fact, everytime I saw one of the local fans it kinda flashed across my mind. It will be a lot happier winter."

Coach Andersen felt the turning point came in the third quarter just when Cambridge looked like it might be getting something going. The circumstance came when Camas County fumbled the kickoff at its own 25 after Cambridge had just tied it up at 6-6. Again the defense came through, taking the ball back in four downs at the 20.

The Muser offense then uncorked an 80-yard drive to ice things.

"That stand by the defense kinda let us turn the corner," Coach Andersen said. "After that it seemed to me we had things pretty much our own way. But they were really tough up to that point. We never did run especially well against them, although Mickey Cockerham had a good day for us, I felt. We didn't pass much but we passed effectively (hitting five of seven)."

Camas County took the lead in the second quarter after a false start. The Musers saw a long pass play from Dave Ivie to Cockerham reach the end zone only to be nullified by a penalty. Four plays later the Musers used the same play again, this time collecting six points on a 30-yard gain. The conversion failed.

Camas County lost another deep penetration late in the half.

Cambridge marched for its touchdown with the opening kickoff. With the Camas defense four times chipping in with encouragement calls that gave the leasers a lift and five. Ward belted in for the last couple yards but the Musers stopped the conversion run.

Then came the fumbled kickoff and the finest moment for the defense. The offense rolled for 78 yards to the two-and-gave the ball to Cockerham. It appeared to Muser fans he got in before he fumbled, but the officials ruled he didn't. No matter. Muser Bob Stroud pounced on the ball to preserve the six points.

On its next possession, Camas County picked up the coup de grace. Cambridge tried some trickery out of punt formation that backfired and gave Camas the ball on the 40. A couple plays later Jack Datta, who had a pair of 50-yard punt returns during the game, broke loose on a 30-yard scoring punt.

Ricks wins regional; Kaufman places fourth

ALBANY — Rick's College ended a seven-year reign of Lane College in the region 18 junior college cross country championships Saturday.

Rick's, headed by the one-two finish of his Norwegian imports, Roud and Lindgren, scored 34 points against 37 for Lane. The difference came when College of Southern Idaho's Steve Kaufman placed third and split up a three-man Lane pack.

CSI, with Mammel Montoya and Paul Pilkington III with fit, had its poorest showing in a long while at sixth with 164 points.

Following Ricks' Norwegians across were Martin of Lane; Kaufman; Harter of Lane; McGriff of Lane; Parker of Ricks; Winchester of Central Oregon, Martin of Lane and Jimenez of North Idaho.

The fourth-place finish qualified Kaufman to run in the national finals in Farmingdale, N.Y., next weekend. Coach Jim Blaisdell and Kaufman will fly to New York City in midweek to prepare for the run.

"It will be tough competition but we feel certain that Steve can earn all-American honors back there," Coach Blaisdell said.

Utes nips N.M.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Dan Hagemann passed for two touchdowns, ran for two more and set an individual total offense record for Utah, but it was a last-minute field goal which gave the Utes a 24-21 Western Athletic Conference victory over New Mexico.

The score was locked at 21-21 when, with 59 seconds left, Craig Buchl barely cleared the crossbar, with a 45-yard field goal which gave Utah its second victory of the season.

Hagemann kept the Utes in contention with touchdown passes of 57 and 38 yards to flanker Jack Steptoe, and with scoring runs of 13 and one yards. His 389-yard performance was a Utah record for individual offense.

Buchl's game winning threepointer was his second field goal of the game. He hit from 41 yards in the second quarter.

Idaho Falls belts Minico

RUPERT — Idaho Falls stayed in the thick of the Southern Idaho Conference title race Friday night by whipping Minico's Spartans 43-9.

The game was only three and one-half minutes old when the Tiger punt machine cashed in on Minico fumble end Idaho Falls had the lead all night.

That fumble came on Minico's first offensive play at the 24-yard line and soon after Steve Perry belted in from the eight. Rowberry converted.

The Tigers added another first-quarter score and then moved completely out of reach early in the second period on a 15-yard run by Jamie Fielding.

Minico bounced back with a good drive that bogged down deep in Idaho Falls' territory and Tony Wilson dropped back to hit a 25-yard field goal. But on the last play of the half, Rowberry nullified that with a 27-yard field goal.

Idaho Falls added one third quarter score on a nine-yard run by Don Baldwin and the final two tallies came on long plays. Fielding broke an 82-yard romp and Bryan Cambo hooked up with Kirk Zorn on a 62-yard pass for the final Idaho Falls points.

The Spartans' touchdown came with 4:34 left in the game when Kody Thurston plunged in from the one.

Idaho Falls thus remained tied with Borah and Highland for the SIC lead with 7-1 records while Minico absorbed its eighth straight loop loss.

Gun safety course set

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Rifle and Pistol Club will hold a junior hunter safety class for shooters 11-19 years of age.

The first session will be Nov. 11 at 7 p.m. at the clubhouse, one quarter miles west of the end of N. Washington St.

The class will consist of three sessions (all on Thursday nights) of at least one hour each.

Larry Culver, an NRA qualified instructor, will lead the class.

Students will be able to shoot at least one night, and maybe two. Rifles and ammunition will be furnished by the club.

The class is free and open to the public.

Sun Valley ski swap scheduled

SUN VALLEY — The Sun Valley Ski Foundation Swap has been set for Nov. 13 and 14 in the Divide Room of the Sun Valley Inn from 9 to 5:30 each day.

The days of the mass stampede may be over, however. In past years, people were allowed to inspect the available merchandise the day before the sale began, and all merchandise was out on the floor on the first day of the sale.

This year there will be an advance inspection of merchandise, according to Gerry Dibble general manager of the Sun Valley Ski Foundation, and some of the merchandise will be held off the floor until the second day of the sale so good bargains will be available both days.

Those who want to sell their gear in the swap should bring it to the Divide Room on Nov. 12 from 9 to 5:30. Ski foundation coaches will be on hand to help sellers price their items.

US alone can't feed hungry world

SPOKANE (UPI) — House Agriculture Chairman Tom Foley, D-Wash., said no matter what the desires of the people of the United States, we and other developed countries cannot feed the hungry of the world indefinitely.

Foley addressed a meeting of the eastern Washington Hunger Task Force Thursday. He said one-eighth of the world's population is suffering from malnutrition.

He said rather than continuing food production and aid, developed countries should encourage agricultural development in these countries.

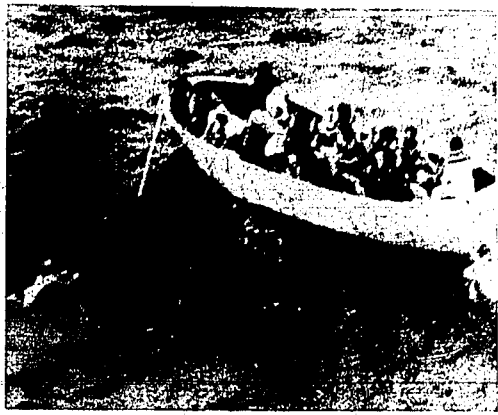

To continue escalating aid in the form of food and nothing else would only compound the problem, according to Foley. "One brutal solution now being suggested by some serious scholars is based on the 'lifeboat theory.' If applied, it would mean that those safely in the lifeboat of the food-producing countries would not assist the hungry by taking them into the boat and risking swamping the boat," he said.

Foley also noted several "non-solutions" which have been offered to solve the world's food crisis.

Among those is an increase in the food production in developed countries to provide more food aid and a reduction in food consumption by people of developed countries.

"To increase food production for food aid is counterproductive. All this would do would be to create more and more dependency in those countries receiving the aid on the gratuity of the providers," Foley said while many reasons may be expounded to reduce food consumption in North America, reduced consumption does the world's hungry no good unless the resources saved by it are donated to aid the hungry.

He said in fact, a general reduction in food consumption in the U.S. could result in a food surplus which would depress the agricultural market and cut into the incentive of farmers to produce. "What is needed critically is capital investment in agricultural production in the developing Third World countries. Instead, what has happened more often than not is that money has gone into such as national airlines and steel mills."

Woman rescued
THE 'lifeboat' from the passenger liner "Windsor Castle" approaches Mrs. Elizabeth Fuller, left, Port Elizabeth, South Africa, to rescue her Monday. She fell off the boat, enroute from Great Britain to Cape Town. Mrs. Fuller, who spent about three hours in the sea, kept herself afloat by swimming the breast-stroke and floating on her back.

Trail of floating beer cans leads to rescue of woman

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — A trail of floating beer cans, pinpoint navigation and "a great deal of luck" combined to help the crew of the "Windsor Castle" recover a 66-year-old woman who fell overboard.

Captain Patrick St. Quentin Beardon said today Margaret Fuller fell overboard early Monday while the passenger liner was enroute from Britain to Cape Town and was about 250 miles off the Angolan coast.

He said as soon as she was confirmed missing, he turned the vessel around. "One tries to follow the track," Beardon said. "Initially empty beer cans and so forth on the water show up the track but after a while these begin to disappear."

Beardon said Mrs. Fuller kept herself afloat in the 65-degree water by floating on her back and swimming breaststroke occasionally. There was a moderate swell and a light wind blowing. "She certainly was very tired but not in a poor condition. She had no lifejacket, so it was quite a good effort," Beardon said.

Her husband said it was "a miracle she was found" and praised the captain and crew for their seamanship. "He added 'It was a nightmare, I don't want to talk about it.'"

Minico planners ask meet to discuss impact areas

RUPERT — The Minidoka County Planning Commission is seeking a meeting with the Minidoka County commissioners and Burley city officials to discuss a proposed impact area for Burley in Minidoka County.

The planning commission this week decided to ask for the meeting and to send a liaison representative to Burley Planning and Zoning Commission meetings during which the north Burley impact area is to be discussed.

Planning Commission Chairman George Falkner said the Burley commission's proposal to extend its impact area west to 850

West Road is a tentative one, but Ron Kiebe, a member of the Minidoka commission, argued that the Cassia County city is reaching too far in determining its area of urban impact.

Kiebe contended that the state-mandated impact area should include only the immediate vicinity adjacent to city limits. He said a planning area could later be identified, but only for planning purposes and not encompassing city jurisdiction.

He suggested that city jurisdiction over land use and the collection of building permit fees be limited to 1,300 feet beyond the city limits.

Secret Service may know author of Legionnaire letter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional sources said Friday the Secret Service knows who wrote the anonymous letter that prompted speculation a killer using poison gas might have caused the mysterious fatal Legionnaires Disease.

One source described the anonymous letter writer as "your average crackpot," but declined to identify him.

An aide to Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., whose subcommittee begins hearings into the causes of the mysterious disease the week of Nov. 22, said the Secret Service traced the anonymous letter to a New York City man. "We know who he is, but we are not going to identify him," the aide said. "At this point, no action is being taken against him."

Asked whether the man had a scientific background, the aide said, "No, he's just your average crackpot." Dr. William Sunderman Jr., a University of Connecticut expert in various types of poisons, got the anonymous letter July 23, four days after the conclusion of the American Legion Convention in Philadelphia.

At that time, the first complaints of high fever and chest pains were being received from conventioners. Eventually, about 180 of them contracted the so-called Legionnaires Disease and 29 died. The ailment has never been identified.

Official investigators at first pursued the possibility the Philadelphia sickness was an outbreak of swine flu.

But Sunderman's tests found high concentrations of a poison, nickel carbonyl, in the tissues of swine victims, and the anonymous letter mentioned that poison in the course of a rambling attack on the "authorities and military-type" leaders of the nation.

Sunderman said it was possible the poison found in the Philadelphia victims was "willfully introduced" at the convention hotel, perhaps by releasing a gas concocted of dry ice and nickel carbonyl through the air ducts. He gave the letter to the FBI, but Murphy's aide said the "Secret Service" joined the inquiry because the letter

Peanut coincidence

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (UPI) — Mrs. Nida Frullo says peanut seeds she received as a gift the day Jimmy Carter was nominated for president bloomed on the day Carter won election to the White House.

Mrs. Frullo, chairman of the Berkeley Township Democratic Committee, Thursday proudly displayed the peanut blossoms to co-workers at the Ocean County Courthouse.

Mrs. Frullo said the plant was given to her by her boss, Freeholder Robert Gasser, when Carter won the Democratic Party's nomination in July.

She said the plant first bloomed early Wednesday when Carter's victory was confirmed.

Traffic interference to continue at bridge

MAGIC VALLEY — There will continue to be some traffic interference at Perrine Memorial Bridge as highway crews finish paving the roadway, painting traffic lanes and adding final touches to a project which started eight years ago.

Officials of the Idaho Transportation Department said the finishing project involves the bridge and 2.4 miles of highway on the north and south side of the bridge.

The bridge was dedicated and opened several months ago and now many workmen are involved with taking the old structure down.

Motorists will be advised in advance of major traffic interference, and flagmen will be at the scene.

The target date for completion of work on the new bridge is next summer.

In other Magic Valley projects, the Transportation Department notes construction will end soon in the Glenn Ferry area, where major work on Interstate 80N has been going on since the first of the year.

Construction on 3.2 miles on Interstate 80N at Tuttle will continue into next year.

And paving work on Main Street in Buhl is nearly finished, officials said.

Spring-flowering bulbs grow in plain tap water

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
GROW BULBS IN WATER

Ever trying growing spring-flowering bulbs in plain tap water? It's a simple thing to do, but there's some confusion as to what can be grown without special treatment.

Let's start with the easiest — the so-called paper white narcissus. This is different from the outdoor narcissus, being a native of warm areas.

It does not need a cold treatment, as do hyacinths. You simply place a bulb in a bowl three inches deep, then add washed sand, or pea gravel. Let the top or neck stick out and add water to just below surface of the gravel. Add water as needed.

Grow in a cool window, about 60 degrees. Takes about six to eight weeks for flowering. If you want a succession of blooms later, store bulbs in refrigerator and plant as needed. After blooming, the bulbs can be set outdoors and left there permanently.

Hyacinth bulbs are handled differently. You can buy "pre-cooled" or specially prepared bulbs ready for forcing. If they have not been pre-cooled you can do this by taking a hyacinth bulb, place it in a hyacinth glass. Add water so that it comes up to the base of the bulb. Place in a refrigerator for about eight weeks, until root growth takes place.

After roots are well formed, move the glasses to a dark location where the temperature is around 50 degrees, making sure the water level is constant.

In short, it takes about 12 weeks for root development during the cool period. After that, bring to a well-lighted room, 65 to 70 degrees, and they'll flower in three weeks. Some people put their bulbs in a plastic bag with a little moist peat, and store it in a refrigerator before forcing. Same works for tulips and hardy daffodils.

Don't try to force the hardy bulbs without giving them the cool period because they need it to form roots and break a natural dormancy period.

AFRICAN VIOLETS

Prefers soon you'll be wondering why your African violets are drooping, after being so nice all summer. If your plants are near a window don't forget that glass on a cold night can be colder than the air right room, causing chilling and drooping.

People who live in chilly areas should remember that on a cold night, taking care to account the wind chill factor, a 49 degree temperature outside can bring the temperature inside next to a window down to almost the freezing mark. Even a temperature below 40 degrees can be harmful to tropical foliage and flowering plants such as African violets.

Overnight nights move plants back away from windows or put sheets of plastic between them and the glass panes. Drawing your drapes saves on fuel and will protect your plants. Window greenhouses will need extra heat from small heaters when nights are cold.

DANCING MOTH BALLS

A reader writes: "Your recipe for making a 'cool miner's garden'—we like that term better than 'depression plant!'—brought back a lot of memories. We had them in every glass dish we could find and they were beautiful. We are glad to know you can substitute charcoal instead of hard or soft coal.

I have a recipe for "dancing moth balls," great around the holidays for the kids: 1 cup vinegar in 1 cup of water. Add 2 teaspoons of baking soda. Mix in a large container (big brandy snifters are perfect) add moth balls.

They dance for hours, but here is the catch—the moth balls on the market today aren't as porous (or are covered with something) and they won't dance like they used to. I'd like to know where I could get some good old-fashioned moth balls. Your column is great!

FEED LAWS NOW

It's smart business to feed your lawn now. Why? Because the natural growth cycle of the grass allows for more efficient use of nutrients now. Leaf production has slowed down and carbohydrates are moved to the root system for winter storage.

Fall feeding provides better fall and winter color, and better early spring greenup. These food reserves will be on tap early in spring to provide a healthy, vigorous turf and allow grass to get the jump on weeds.

Don't forget to give your lawn a final mowing before winter sets in. The last mowing can be shorter, and it's a good idea to use a good, sharp mower. Tall grass over the winter will bring on matting and plenty of disease problems which will show up in spring.

Burley property paying not needed

BURLEY — Street paving and improvements will not be necessary now on a 20-acre parcel along Hiland Avenue one-half mile from Burley.

Larry Wortle, one of the owners, appeared before the Burley City Council this week to seek an exception to the street-improvement provisions of the city's new subdivision ordinance. His property is about one-third mile south of 27th Street.

It was told that, as long as the land was not platted under state legal requirements, the city has no jurisdiction.

City Attorney William Parsons warned, however, that "an appeal might be a problem."

Wortle told the council he and his partner each planned to keep a five-acre parcel for their homes and had the approval of Cassia County officials to sell about six acres in lots.

He said they have commitments on four lots — two of one acre and two of one-half acre, and they plan to sell off two more of each size.

He expressed concern about the subdivision ordinance, which requires developers to be responsible for street parking and installing curbs, gutters, storm drains and sidewalks.

Wortle said it would cost about $100,000 to do the paving. He explained that all the people concerned want country homes that would be in the $10,000 to $20,000 range.

"I don't think we have jurisdiction," Parsons said, when assured that Wortle is not filing a surveyed plat.

MV students win state 4-H awards

TWIN FALLS — Projects in electric energy, dairy foods, achievement and conservation of natural resources have brought 1976 state 4-H awards to four Magic Valley students.

All will attend the 55th National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 28-Dec. 2.

They are among 30 winners statewide selected for recognition by the Cooperative Extension Service, which supervises 4-H work.

Eighteen-year-old Christine M. Britt of Twin Falls spent five years on her award-winning electric energy project.

The Twin Falls County resident, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britt, is a freshman at the University of Idaho and is majoring in psychology.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. is financing Miss Britt's trip to Congress.

Jerome County winner Connie Stepp, 16, achieved top honors in dairy foods. Her trip to Congress is sponsored by the Carnation Co.

Miss Stepp is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Stepp of Paul and has been a 4-H member for six years.

University of Idaho freshman J. Scott Fehrenbacher, 18, of Buhl won top honors in achievement for his over-all 4-H activities during the last seven years. Ford Motor Co. funded donating his trip to Congress.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fehrenbacher of Twin Falls County plans a law career. In addition to attending the 1976 National 4-H Conference this year.

Patty Thomas, 17, of Gooding captured top state honors in conservation of natural resources, a project she has worked on for four years.

The Gooding County High School senior, daughter of M. and Mrs. Will Thomas, will attend Congress under the auspices of John Deere.

The awards program is arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

Urban to rural migration expected to decrease jobs

MOSCOW — Agricultural employment, while presently increasing, will probably decline as the urban to rural migration pattern reasserts itself in Idaho, according to a University of Idaho publication.

In "Centerpoint," a newsletter published by the College of Business and Economics at the University of Idaho here, officials report agricultural employment steadily decreased from 1960 to 1973, but started rising again in 1974.

The recent increase can be attributed to a rise in agricultural prices, the publication says. "In addition, the return of many part-time farmers to full-time farming as well as a greater number of teenagers staying on their parents' farms, have caused a short-term increase in farm employment," the newsletter adds.

A chart in the publication shows that agricultural employment fell from a high of about 61,500 in 1960 to a low of about 40,000 in 1973.

In comparison, wholesale and retail employment has increased from about 39,000 to 65,400 from 1960 to 1974, according to the publication. This increase is "a reflection of earned income growth in the state," the newsletter says.

In other matters, the letter says:

- Manufacturing employment has risen from 28,900 to 48,100 between 1960 and 1974, and, if current trends continue, should be about 53,000 by 1980.
- Mining employment, which has experienced some "rather extreme fluctuations" according to the publication, rose from 2,500 in 1960 to about 3,700 in 1974.
- Employment in tourism rose from about 21,500 in 1960 to about 43,000 in 1974. The publication predicts employment in this area should rise to 47,000 by 1980.

England remembers Guy Fawkes

LONDON (UPI) — A pigtailed 10-year-old and her red-haired friend propped against the side of a building.

"Penny for the Guy?" I asked, as a newcomer to Britain.

"What's your doll for?"

They giggled and rolled their eyes. "Stupid grownup," whispered the redhead.

Another grownup — a British grownup — supplied me with an explanation of this strange childhood ritual: "It's for Guy Fawkes' Day."

Today is the day.

Guy Fawkes was convicted and hanged in 1605 for conspiring to blow up the British Parliament in the "Gunpowder Plot."

He was one of many involved and one of the few to be caught.

Although historians now agree that he was a scapgoat — the new Roman Catholic in days of religious intolerance — the popular acclaim that greeted the felling of the conspiracy is still remembered each Nov. 5.

"Remember, remember, the fifth of November, Gunpowder, treason and plot," sing British children. In what is now a nursery rhyme. With bonfires blazing and "Guys" burning in backyards and hillside and fireworks displays up and down the country, it is the nearest the British get to a July 4th carnival.

The children begging for pennies at nearly every British bus and subway terminal area collecting pennies for their Nov. 5 fireworks.

It's a colorful celebration — and a uniquely British one.

But it has come under criticism from government safety officials.

The National Campaign for Firework Reform charges that over 4,000 people are injured by the incendiaries each Guy Fawkes Day — and most of them are under 13.

Although its campaign to ban fireworks from general public sale has not been successful, it has pushed through a law that sets a minimum purchasing age of 16.

Killer asks for firing squad death

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Convicted killer Gary Gilmore asked the Utah Supreme Court Friday to allow him to die before a firing squad in 10 days.

A letter from Gilmore asking the court to grant his wish to die Nov. 15 was hand-carried to the Utah Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Henri Hendrod said the court would not open the letter or consider Gilmore's request that it reject an appeal by his fired lawyers until all five justices were at the capital.

Two of them attended a judicial conference in downtown Salt Lake City Friday, and Hendrod said it might be Monday before the letter was opened.

The court's consideration of the 35-year-old condemned player's request was delayed earlier when his letter got lost in the mail. Hendrod then ordered the prison to hand-deliver a copy.

At the prison, Warden Sam Smith—who is also the state's official executioner — said preparations to carry out the sentence had been started.

Smith must select a five-man firing squad from a long list of volunteers.

The Supreme Court had before it an appeal of the death sentence filed by two lawyers first earlier this week by Gilmore, who was convicted last month of killing a Provo, Utah, motel clerk during a June 20 robbery.

"I don't want to spend the rest of my life in jail," Gilmore told Fourth District Judge Robert Bullock on Monday. "You sentenced me to die. Unless it's a joke" or something, I want to go ahead and do it."

The judge set the execution of Gilmore, who has been in trouble with the law since age 14 and has spent most of his adult life behind bars, for sunrise on Nov. 15. The defendant said he preferred to be shot rather than hanged—the choice given him under Utah law.

The court's decision on whether his former attorneys can bring an appeal won't end legal efforts on behalf of Gilmore.

His fired lawyers, Craig Snyder and Mike Espino of Provo, said they hadn't decided what course to follow if the Supreme Court rules they can't act for Gilmore against his will.

But other attorneys opposed to the death penalty moved to intervene in the case.

Robert Van Sciver of Salt Lake City, who represents four of the seven other men on Utah's Death Row, said he was filing a petition to intervene on behalf of Gilmore because an execution might endanger his clients.

Both the American Civil Liberties Union of Utah and the Salt Lake Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were conferring with their national offices about intervening, but neither had made a decision, Gilmore's wife said.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund in New York said it was not directly involved in the case, but had offered its support and services to Snyder and Espino.

Century farm pair honored

SUMNERVILLE, Ore. (UPI) — Harley McDonald's farm on Pumpkin Ridge has been in his family for over a century, but he isn't too sure about how the next 100 years will affect his 920-acre spread. "I'd like to think that this place would be farmed by my descendants for years to come," McDonald said.

"But with the high cost of farm machinery, high wages for interior help, high cost of workmen's compensation and Social Security, plus the fact that labor leaders seem to be able to get what farmers are entitled to for their crops, makes me wonder how long the small farm can survive."

On Aug. 31, Harley and Lottie McDonald were recognized at the state fair in Salem, with a parchment certificate designating their farm as a Century Farm.

The major requirement of a Century Farm is that it be actively farmed by the same family continuously for 100 years. The award is presented jointly by the Oregon State Department of Agriculture and the Oregon Historical Society.

Harley and Lottie McDonald are the third generation to farm on Pumpkin Ridge. McDonald's grandfather, Hilcom McDonald, staked out his homestead here in 1873.

The original 100-acre homestead has increased to 292 acres. Most of that is pasture and timber land; only 300 acres is used for farming.

"It has not always been a prosperous living in monetary values," Mrs. McDonald said. "The best product of the farm has been the children. Up here they have room to grow and to learn the value of work and responsibility."

The McDonalds' youngest son, George, has rented the farmland since 1968 and is the fourth generation McDonald to carry on the farming tradition.

Although tractors didn't come to the farm until the 1930s and electricity until 1951, the view from the kitchen door of the McDonalds' 80-year-old house hasn't changed much.

"It's so beautiful and peaceful up here," Mrs. McDonald said. "Even in times when we've had to tighten our belts, we've always had a roof over our heads and food to eat."

"It's a satisfying life. If we had a hundred years to do it all over again, we would stay right here."

Sugar imports cutback urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Representatives of American sugar growers said Thursday they are losing money at current prices and urged the U.S. International Trade Commission to recommend a cutback in sugar imports.

"We're nearly every price in this country is losing money on every ton of sugar produced," Hawaii Gov. George Ariyoshi testified as the commission opened hearings on the issue.

Frank Ford, who earlier had urged sugar import tariffs as a first response when sugar prices dropped this summer, had asked the commission to rapidly investigate the industry's problems.

"This situation, in a free enterprise system where profits are essential for survival, cannot long be tolerated if this country is to retain a domestic sugar industry," Ariyoshi said.

Ariyoshi and Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked the panel to recommend two steps:

The White House should administratively restrict sugar imports and raise tariffs.

Congress should revive the Sugar Act, which expired in 1974, to provide a continuing structure in which import and domestic sales quotas control market supplies to insure the financial survival of domestic growers who traditionally produce about 60 per cent of the nation's sugar supply.

Rep. Eligio de la Garza, D-Tex., added in an earlier statement that unless imports are limited, "the entire domestic industry is subject to disastrous destruction."

James E. Mack, president of the National Confectioners Association, opposed administrative steps against imports because, he said, there is no evidence that current low prices — following a record boom in sugar prices two years ago — can be blamed on imports.

While imports this year are up from 1975, they are below the level of most Mack said, adding that confectioners would support legislation reviving the old sugar control law.

A spokesman for Costa Rica urged the commission to recommend a federal sugar control law. Spokesmen for other exporters including El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua said current low prices are a threat to their farmers and urged the United States — if it develops a new sugar quota program — to take account of their increased production in recent years.

Unified image needed

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Agriculture must put forward a more unified image to get the public support it needs, University of Idaho president Ernest Hartung told the University's Agriculture Consulting Council Thursday.

Hartung said major obstacles stand in front of funding agricultural programs at the institution.

"We talk commonly about the agribusiness industry and I think that's a fair basis for discussion. But I find among our citizens — generally — that there isn't much of a feel for the centralized agricultural industry in the state."

"People talk about agriculture in a broad based way. And they admit without question it is the most important economic factor in the state of Idaho."

"But when you begin to talk in greater depth one begins to wonder if there's a real centrality in the agriculture industry in the sense that we find it in the forest products industry or in mining — for example."

"I think this is very important especially as we begin to try and marshal what support we can for programs at the university and try to get assistance from the legislature and the governor's office."

ANCA President Wray Finney said Thursday price conditions would result in a "high cow slaughter rate during the balance of 1976" and said if market conditions didn't change "cow heads may be cut back further in size during 1977."

Finney said the domestic cow slaughter through September totaled 7.7 million head, down 1 per cent from a year earlier.

Recycled wastewater used on Florida greens

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Recycled wastewater will soon begin flowing through a special 14-mile distribution system, irrigating a number of green areas including two golf courses.

Lloyd A. Dove, manager of the project for the engineering firm of Black, Crow and Eldness, said the system is believed to be the first of its kind in the nation.

He said the recycled wastewater will enable the city to cut sharply into its use of potable fresh water now being piped in from 50 miles away.

"Up to 40 per cent of the water brought into St. Petersburg has been used to keep areas green during the dry season and the dry season can be long," Dove said.

Three years of research on treatment of wastewater has resulted in a process in which the wastewater can be recycled in a state that is safe for use in urban areas and which can also be used to build up underground water tables through the use of deep injection wells, Dove said.

He said the recycled water has no odor, is free of virus, and will be treated almost to the point of potability. But it will retain its nitrogen and phosphorus content, which will lessen the need for application of fertilizers to the green areas involved.

In simplified terms, the wastewater is treated much the same way as in the past. But then instead of being discharged into surface waters, the treated wastewater is then put through a water purification process, similar to that used for ordinary surface water being processed for human consumption.

The city are probably the first in the country to treat wastewater as safely," Dove said.

One waste treatment plant on the southwest side of town has been converted to the new process and will provide 20 million gallons of recycled water which will be pumped over a special distribution system.

City officials said water is scheduled to begin flowing this month or early December.

Work is scheduled to begin soon on converting a second waste treatment plant to the process.

The dual distribution system enables the recycled water to be piped to the big users who have contracted for the water, without affecting the ordinary water distribution system.

Although the dual distribution system means added additional cost, Dove said that expense is negated by the lower cost of water. He said the recycled water will cost about 10 cents per 100 gallons to the customer, while potable water is about 70 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Evangelist Billy Graham was born on this date.

On this day in history:

In 1805, the Lewis and Clark Expedition sighted the Pacific Ocean at the mouth of the Columbia River.

In 1874, the first cartoon depicting the elephant as the symbol of the Republican Party was printed in Harper's weekly.

In 1916, Republican Jeanette Rankin of Montana became the first woman elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

In 1972, President Richard Nixon was re-elected to a second term by a landslide vote, defeating Democrat George McGovern.

A poet for the day: American poet Ella Wheeler said, "No question is ever settled until it is settled right."

- INDUSTRIAL HARD CHROME FINISH — eliminates corrosion and pitting
- PRESSURE-TYPE WIPER SEALS are located out of harmful sun rays so they last indefinitely
- FREE WATER FLOW — because there are no brackets or other obstructions inside

Olson Electric Flex Irrigator

The biggest mainlines (7") in the business just became the longest lasting too! COR-TEN steel is a high-strength chrome-copper-nickel alloy that has 3 to 8 times the corrosion resistance of ordinary carbon steel (the type used in other center pivot irrigators). COR-TEN steel gives you maximum durability with minimum weight.

After the COR-TEN steel is formed into a 7" pipe in Olson's modern, efficient tube mill, it is thoroughly coated inside and out with high quality epoxy enamel to assure you of far longer maintenance free life.

It has been proven that paint applied to COR-TEN will last 1 1/2 to 2 times as long as paint applied to ordinary carbon steel.

When galvanized or ordinary painted pipe is chipped or scratched it starts to rust immediately. When COR-TEN is chipped or scratched it forms a tightly adherent oxide that prevents further corrosion and retards undercutting. Thus COR-TEN "heals" itself to protect the metal. Also important, the oxide will not "creep" under surrounding surfaces to cause further flaking.

Las Vegas worried

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada, gambling capitol of the United States, is worried about legal casinos in Atlantic City — not as a challenge to its lucrative position as chief dealer to the nation's money-fingers, but as potential embarrassment.

The worry here: New Jersey's experienced gangsters might get the jump on its inexperienced state government.

Nevada officials and gambling operators say they have little to fear financially from establishment of legal gambling on the East Coast.

But they worry about criminals getting into New Jersey's gambling operations—which a top Nevada official described as "pretty hairy" now—and tainting the entire industry, possibly provoking a federal crackdown that would engulf Nevada too.

That possibility appeared to have occurred to New Jersey officials too, who say they are going to ask for advice from some experienced hands Nevada's.

The concern voiced by Nevada gambling regulators was only one reaction to the passage by New Jersey voters of an initiative to legalize casinos in the faded resort on the Atlantic.

Others included joy in such widely separated places as Wall Street (stock in slot machine companies took off) and Hollywood (Atlantic City will be a new market for the many entertainers who make most of their money playing Las Vegas).

The National Commission on Gambling gave Nevada's closely-regulated industry "a triple-A report card," noted Peter Echeverria, chairman of the Nevada Gaming Commission. But, he added, "If some other state goes into it half baked they can cause a lot of adverse publicity and they may bring the national authorities into the picture."

In Trenton, the New Jersey Commission of Investigation, at the urging of Gov. Brendan Byrne, said Thursday it has already begun investigating organized crime figures that may try to move into Atlantic City, and intends to consult both Nevada and foreign authorities for advice on how to police legal gambling.

"New Jersey has to assume a tremendous responsibility now," Echeverria said. "I don't think they should be operating for some time until they get some kind of control."

"From everything I read and hear about it the operators are moving faster than the state of New Jersey... They've apparently got people buying hotels and things like that and I'm not aware of any investigations going on. It looks pretty hairy to me."

Hotel and casino operators doubted Atlantic City would hurt their business, noting that only 12 per cent of gamblers arriving in Las Vegas last year were from the east coast. California alone provides 55 per cent of Las Vegas' tourists.

Accord needed on fishing

TOKYO (UPI) — Foreign vessels will not be able to fish in American waters unless their governments reach agreement with the United States before its 200-mile economic zone goes into effect March 1, a high-ranking U.S. official said today.

Ambassador Rozanne L. Ridgway, head of the American delegation to the U.S.-Japan bilateral fisheries negotiations, said she is optimistic the two countries can agree on principles governing Japan's fishing in U.S. waters before the March 1 deadline.

But Miss Ridgway, who arrived in Japan Tuesday, said she believes negotiations with the Japanese scheduled to begin next week will be more difficult than those she conducted with Poland, Taiwan and the German Democratic Republic.

"After March 1, foreign fishing in the U.S. 200-mile economic zone will be pursuant to international agreement only," she told reporters. "The law establishing the zone does provide for enforcement action against unauthorized foreign fishing vessels after that date."

Japan and the United States held fishery talks in June and August but failed to reach agreement on terms for Japanese fishing in U.S. waters after the new law goes into effect.

Japan, whose fishing industry would be vitally affected by such regulation, is opposed to establishment of coastal economic zones by all countries until consensus is reached by the U.N. Law of the Sea Conference.

"The principal inspiration for extending our jurisdiction was the realization that our fishery resources had suffered damage and restoration of stocks was essential: it was done for fishery conservation and management only. Our territorial limit remains three miles," the ambassador said.

She said the U.S. law is "consistent with emerging national law."

Asked if Japan and the United States might conclude an administrative agreement to bypass the apparent conflict in their views, she replied, "There is no dearth of ways to get around it, but we are persuaded that we must find a solution on the fundamental issue."

Miss Ridgway said the law does make provision to accommodate interests of nations, which have traditionally fished off U.S. coasts and allows fishing at sea on the margin category.

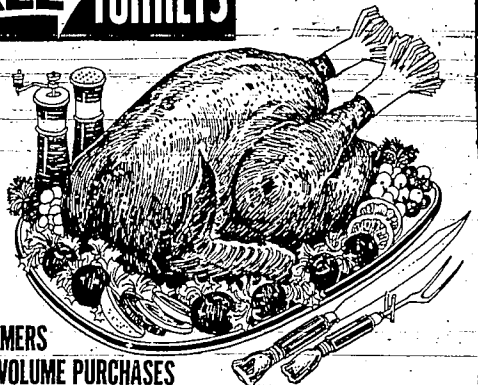

She said allowable catches will be lower and fees will be levied on foreign vessels exploiting U.S. fishery resources after March 1 but gave no details.

Idaho's First Lady stays 'one of a kind'

By IRENE LINK

For the Times-News

BOISE — From the first time I talked with Carol Andrus on the telephone I liked her.

For one thing, she answered the telephone herself. And I was impressed when she told me she handles all her affairs personally, even though she is Idaho's first lady.

For another, she is warm and friendly. Perhaps we all have "traditional" visions of what any "first lady" should be like. Although Betty Ford has helped dispel some of the myths, Pat Nixon seldom ever revealed any of her personal feelings or thoughts. Mrs. Ford and others have been more open.

Mrs. Andrus is a happy mixture of both extremes. She is open and accessible, and yet has the good judgment to know where to draw the line and exercise discretion.

The political life is not a new way of life for the Andrus family. Cecil Andrus was first elected to the Idaho Senate at the age of 29 and served four terms. In 1971 he was inaugurated Idaho's 23rd governor and now is well into his second term.

However, Mrs. Andrus says, "being the wife of a state senator does not prepare you for being the wife of the governor. It is much different. When my husband was a state senator, it only disrupted our lives for two or three months every other year. It was a short-lived adventure, not a total way of life. The rest of the time, we had a rather normal existence."

Of course, we're all curious about how any one woman can manage to juggle the many roles and responsibilities of a "first lady." We also assume she does it only with a great deal of domestic and outside help. Carol Andrus is the surprising exception. While they have always had a live-in housekeeper since living in the governor's residence, the Andruses now function without one. The only domestic help consists of a woman who works three to four days a week; Mrs. Andrus does all of her own shopping and cooking. She says, "Have to cook. However, I enjoy it most when I have enough time to do it rather leisurely."

There is nearly always someone to cook for besides herself. Tracy, 20, a junior at Boise State University in marketing, lives at home and works part time. Kelly, 16, and a sophomore at Boise High School. Both girls are busy with their own activities and don't have much time to help at home. Tana, 25, the oldest Andrus daughter, lives in Boise, too, but not at home.

Managing all Mrs. Andrus' activities is not easy. She says, "You have to sort of decide where to draw the line. There just isn't time to do everything, so you have to set your priorities. I feel that one parent should be home as much as possible, and since Dec. has to be gone often, I like to be at home with the girls."

In addition to that, it takes immense stamina to be all things to all people. Even for a healthy person like Mrs. Andrus, there still has to be a stopping point. This is one reason she likes to handle her own appointments. She then has the option of accepting or turning down requests for appearances or other official activities. However, once a commitment is made, she feels honor-bound to keep it.

I've had to cancel only two appointments in the last six years," she says. This is a remarkable record, especially for someone as busy and in as much demand as the governor's wife.

The governor's residence has been decorated to some extent by Mrs. Andrus.

The big, old white house in Boise has been the official residence since 1947, although it was built long before that. Most of the furniture is just a collection of things gathered and left by previous governors' wives. Very little information is available on even the few unusual pieces which came with the house. There are not many rare or unique items among the furnishings. Unlike the governors' "mansions" in other states, Idaho's "first house" has few state treasures or icons.

Busy life

READY for the occasion, Carol Andrus is dressed for one of the many formal functions she must attend as wife of Idaho's governor.

Shows gift

CAROL Andrus displays a silver punch bowl, at left, used at social functions in the governor's residence. The punch bowl was a gift from the Twentieth Century Club of Lewiston in 1969. At right, Mrs. Andrus takes a few minutes out for herself. Managing all of Mrs. Andrus' activities is not an easy task, but she handles it with ease. "There just isn't time to do everything you want," she said, "so you have to set your priorities."

DEAR ABBY: I know the libraries are full of books on the subjects, but you seem able to put so much into a few words. What makes some kids good and some bad? In other words, is there a formula for raising good kids? Is it heredity or environment?

TRYING HARD

DEAR TRYING: That battle has been going on for a long time, but I'm inclined to be on the side of environment.

All kids need discipline. ("Discipline" does not mean punishment; it means "teaching.") Kids need to know how far they can go. And they don't really want everything they ask for.

Reward them when they're good, and deprive them of something they enjoy when they misbehave.

I don't believe in hitting a child. A little slap on the wrist (just enough to hurt his dignity) is all right. However, hitting a child hard enough to hurt him physically may rid you of YOUR hostilities, but it will only teach the child that violence is the answer to all conflicts.

Don't ever tell a child he's "bad." If he misbehaves, tell him you do not like what he DID; don't tell him you don't like HIM.

Give a child lots of love, and when he comes to you with a confession, don't be too hard on him.

MR. AND MRS. EARL BICKFORD

50th anniversary open house slated

TWIN FALLS — An open house will be held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. EARL BICKFORD in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary in the Pomerelle Room at the Holiday Inn Saturday, Nov. 13, from 4 to 8 p.m.

The event will be hosted by the couple's children, Vicki Bickford and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman (Barbara) Brewster and grandchildren, Connie and Jeff Brewster.

Earl and Lucy Bickford were married Nov. 14, 1926, in Shoshone. They made their home in Twin Falls where he worked for Van Engelen Department Store, Idaho Department Store, farmed and was manager of Hudson's Shoes in the Lywood Shopping Center. He retired in 1973.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend the open house. The couple requests no gifts.

Abby's rules

DEAR ABBY: Another guy and I have shared an apartment for three years. (I'll call him Bob.) We're both adults and don't depend on our parents for financial aid, but Bob is still afraid of his mother. Or maybe I should say he's afraid of hurting her feelings, so he lies to her.

She's very religious, and so was Bob until he left home, but he hardly ever goes to church anymore.

What should I say when Bob's mother calls here on Sunday morning and asks me if her son is home from church yet?

Sometimes he doesn't even come home to sleep on Saturday night, but I can't tell his mother that.

I wish Bob would tell his mother the truth and get it over with, but he can't seem to do it. In the meantime I have to lie for him. So what's the solution?

HATES TO LIE

DEAR HATES: You don't HAVE to lie. You're not obligated to give Bob's mother any information. When she phones, tell her her son is out and you'll ask him to return her call when he returns.

DEAR ABBY: I am not a vain man, but I'm only 29 and I'm rapidly losing my hair. I suppose I could consider a hairpiece, but I'd rather keep what hair I have if it's at all possible.

I've heard that taking female hormones can prevent baldness in men. It makes sense to me because you never see any bald women.

Have you ever heard of men taking female hormones to prevent baldness? Can it be dangerous? If it's okay, will I need a prescription to get it?

GOING BALD

DEAR GOING: Baldness is hereditary. And my consultants tell me that if men start monkeying around with female hormones, they'll have to start making brasieres in men's sizes. And yes, you DO need a prescription for it, so the word from here is to forget it.

'Man of LaMancha' tryouts scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Tryouts for the Dilettante's 1977 production, "Man of LaMancha," have been set for Nov. 17, 18 and 19 at Twin Falls High School Chorus Wing at 7 p.m. each night.

On Nov. 17 vocal numbers will be auditioned. Reading of parts will be Nov. 18 and Nov. 19 for call backs. Anyone auditioning for a part will be required to come on Nov. 18 as well as Nov. 17. Those auditioning for leads or chorus will be required to sing. Anyone trying out for the leads of Cervantes and Aldonza should be prepared to sing a song from that particular principal's part in the play. This musical play has 26 male parts and 11 female parts plus chorus and dancers.

Scores for the show can be obtained by calling Alice Reed, 733-4482; Terri Wood, 733-8659, or Dixie Fournier, 733-2951.

The show will be directed-choreographed by Fred Schiebe. Ted Hadley will conduct the orchestra and Russell Bennett is choral director.

Persons not interested in performing but would like to help backstage or other phases of production, can call one of the above numbers or can sign up on the nights of auditions. Rehearsals for the show will not begin until January, 1977.

EX-TF woman writes 4th book of poetry

TWIN FALLS — Frances P. Bellis, a long-time Twin Falls resident now living in Boise, has published her fourth volume of poetry.

"In the Lee Of Mountains," her latest volume, deals with the beauties of earth, the relationship of man to nature and the touching and stirring of his humorous memories of such events as a first balloon ascension, circus parades, cloud-watching, and kite-flying.

One of the book's four sections tells of unusual personalities such as a "water witch," while others cover religious themes and mysteries of nature.

The collection includes a number of Mrs. Bellis's award-winning poems which have also been published in various magazines.

Mrs. Bellis and her husband, Garth, resided in Twin Falls for many years while he served as an elementary junior high and senior high school principal and teacher.

She is a former member and officer of the Idaho Writers League chapter in the Magic Valley. After moving to Boise, she taught creative writing and Asian and world literature classes at Borah High School.

Her new book is available by writing Mrs. Reed, 6117 Lubkin, Boise, 83761.

Auditions set

Program set Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — A special introductory lecture exploring the role of transcendental meditation in public education will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the College of Southern Idaho, Shields Building, Room 118.

The program will feature a film entitled "The Transcendental Meditation Program in Education: Berkshire County, Massachusetts," which presents the opinions of school superintendents and administrators, teachers, students and parents regarding the value of TM and the Science of Creative Intelligence in secondary and rehabilitative education.

Boise attorney Peter C. Jenkins will host the presentation.

Breast cancer clinic slated

GOODING — A breast cancer clinic for women in Gooding, Carnas and Lincoln Counties will be held Nov. 16 in Gooding.

All interested women, regardless of age, are invited to participate in the free program. Appointments must be made in advance, however, by contacting Louise Skidmore, 934-4004 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Nov. 8 through 12.

TF miss, McCall say vows

TWIN FALLS — Amy Dane, daughter of Mrs. Virginia Dane and the late Dudley Dane, Twin Falls, and Michael McCall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newman, were married Oct. 1.

The double ring ceremony was performed at St. Edward's Catholic Church by the Rev. Father Perry Dodds.

The bride was escorted to the service by her brother, Chris, who presented her in marriage. She wore her mother's gown of embroidered white organdy with satin cap and lace veil.

Maid of honor was Toni Gillette and bridesmaid was Mrs. Bill Erighnam.

Best man was John Brown and Jeff Dailey and Carl Harris were ushers.

A three-tiered, heart-shaped cake was a centerpiece at the reception which followed the ceremony.

Workshop slated Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — A world hunger workshop will be held from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the United Methodist Church, Twin Falls. All interested persons are welcome.

The workshop is sponsored by the Hunger Task Force of Oregon and Idaho. Harold West, Boise, Idaho, Wheat Commission chairman, will address the workshop on the public law providing food assistance to starvation countries.

Two films dealing with hunger programs, "Potluck Hunger" and "Charley Cheddar," will be shown.

Introductions to the "Wheat Program" and "Bread for the World" program and information on "Impact" will be presented during the workshop.

Appointed

MAGIC VALLEY — Several Magic Valley students at the University of Idaho were recently appointed to committee positions by the Senate of the Associated Students.

Mike Campos, son of Trillo Campos, Hagerman, was named election board chairman.

Todd Clalborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clalborn, Kimberly, was named to the programs board.

Student honored

TWIN FALLS — Kenneth Erickson, Twin Falls High School student, has been cited for outstanding performance in writing by the National Council of Teachers of English.

Freeman is one of 850 winners from a field of more than 7,000 students across the nation. He has also been selected to appear in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

MV Symphony Orchestra to begin concert season

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra will present its first concerts of the year on Nov. 15 and 16.

The group made up of adult and student volunteers musicians from most of the towns of Magic Valley, is conducted by Lawrence Curtis, head of the music department at the College of Southern Idaho.

The symphony will play at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 15 at the new auditorium at Wood River High School in Halley. The Nov. 16 concert at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium will begin at 8 p.m.

Curtis, who became director last year, started the traveling concerts on the evening preceding the traditional two yearly performances at CSI. Last fall the group played in Burley and the February concert was scheduled for Gooding, but had to be cancelled because of bad weather.

Having the symphony present concerts in other valley towns not only makes the group better known, but is a recognition of the contribution of many players who travel considerable distance to attend weekly rehearsals, Curtis said.

Many of the players are school or private music teachers, but personnel also includes farmers, businessmen, housewives as well as college and high school students.

The symphony has been in existence since 1959 when it was formed under the direction of Richard Smith. The group has given concerts each November and February since. It owes its beginnings to a Broadway musical pit orchestra which lasted after the first Dilettante production, according to Jean Sutcliffe, business manager.

The orchestra was directed for many years by Del Slaughter, Twin Falls High School music director, after Smith moved to California. The group now is part of the CSI music program and some members receive college credits.

The program for the Halley and Twin Falls concerts will feature Madeleine Hsu, Boise, pianist, performing Beethoven's "Fifth Piano Concerto." She has soloed with orchestras throughout the world, including Paris, and is now associate professor of piano at Boise State University.

Other orchestra numbers will include "Academic Festival Overture" by Brahms and the Sibelius "Second Symphony."

Tickets are available at the door and families will be admitted on patron tickets.

PRACTICING for the first concerts of the year for the Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra are, from left, Ted Hadley, Ted Pollarson and Dave Moss. The symphony will play at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 15 at Wood River High School, Halley, and at 8 p.m. Nov. 16 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Wrap and tie yourself into new fashions

N.Y. Times Service

PARIS — After the shocker of the return of the mink, the big fashion news in Paris involves clothes that you wrap, and tie yourself into. Even the Missions have gotten into the act.

Knitted clothes have a natural give, so they adjust to different body shapes, and Restia Missot has taken advantage of this built-in principle. She uses a series of drawstrings to change the shape of her clothes, sometimes dramatically. Necklines open or close. Sleeves are drawn up or left to flutter. Halters turn into one-shoulder designs.

"I did it so people could play with their clothes," Mrs. Missot explained. "Women should enjoy what they buy."

She expects that women will devise even more ways to wear the clothes than she imagined. Her husband, Ottavio, has made the job cheerful by providing a gay and lively color palette for the distinctive stripes and geometric patterns that are the couple's signature. It is, of course, a spring and summer collection, and the colors are a lovely medley of greens, mauves, and slate blues. Silk, cotton, rayon and wool are among the yarns used alone and in combination to provide a variety of textures. Among the other versatile notions the couple has devised are "briars" that can be bloused over the knees or pulled down to the ankles and swimsuit tops that can be worn with skirts or bloomers.

The new skirts are a special boon to Missot fans who found themselves too broad in the beam to wear them previously. Knits have a habit of clinging indiscreetly. Now the skirts are positively voluminous, but so diaphanous they're no burden to carry around.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES VanHOOSEN

Illinois miss weds James VanHoosen

JEROME — Anna LaFée Taylor became the bride of James Neal VanHoosen at the First Baptist Church in Jerome on Oct. 16.

The bride is the daughter of Ms. Elda Taylor, Waukegan, Ill., and Robert Taylor, Jerome. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Van Lyndegraf, Jerome.

Vernon Kendall officiated at the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Tom Larsen was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Lisa Brooks and Janie Hancock, all Jerome. Chris Fuller was best man and ushers included Clyde Gassert, Duffy Hove, Dirk Felder and Robert H. Taylor Jr.

All Alfred and Shari Van Lyndegraf were flower girls and Smokey Taylor was ringbearer.

The bride wore a gown of crystalene with an A-line silhouette skirt with lace trim and lace at the waist. The bodice was a half moon yoke of crystalene, and the neckline was of matching lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli and baby's breath.

A reception was held after the ceremony with Wendy Latta and Brenda Strout in charge of arrangements. Following a trip to Sun Valley the newlyweds will reside in Jerome.

League to discuss education progress

TWIN FALLS — Unit meetings of the Twin Falls League of Women Voters Monday and Tuesday are intended to bring members up to date on recent local educational developments. League officers announced Friday.

Future directions in primary and secondary education will also be discussed.

Speakers for the meetings will include Sue Pack, discussing the kindergarten programs; Ingrid Stroppe, speaking on school financing and distribution of state funds; and Tara Desmond, discussing special education programs in the Twin Falls school district.

Camden Meyer, assistant school superintendent here, will speak on the future of programs in three areas.

Unit meetings will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Tara Desmond 824 Alturas Dr., and Tuesday at 9 a.m. in the St. Benedict's Priory, 630 Falls Ave.

Our engineers have come up with their own highway improvement program. All new VWs have rack and pinion steering front-wheel drive and unique rear axle designs for superior handling.

So if you're tired of high gas prices but don't like cramped space and poor performance, we suggest you put your feet down on the gas pedal of a new Volkswagen.

Although all of the new Volkswagen have a great many engineering features in common, each car has its own individual personality. See your Volkswagen dealer for more information.

WRAP UP CHRISTMAS EARLY

Be a smart Santa.
Shop where values are the very brightest!

Why do local merchants begin Christmas promotions before Thanksgiving?

Remember how crowded our stores are the final two or three weeks before Christmas?

Now imagine how impossibly jammed they would be if no one did his Christmas shopping early. Imagine how difficult it would be to select that gift for a far-off friend and get it mailed on time.

People sometimes wonder why merchants start Christmas shopping promotions before Thanksgiving. But suppose they didn't? It would not only pose many problems for the merchant, but for YOU, the customer.

Any business has a responsibility to all its customers. Many people prefer to do their Christmas shopping in the pre-Thanksgiving period when stores aren't quite so crowded.

What if all Christmas shopping was postponed until after Thanksgiving? An impossible problem would be created because most stores even now are strained to capacity to provide the type of service you've come to expect, even during the peak of the season.

If no one was able to do his Christmas shopping early, the problem would be compounded many times. Thousands of children who wanted to visit Santa would be unable to because it would be physically impossible for him to see them all.

Early Christmas shopping promotions also make it easier for the merchant to stock and display the goods he needs, and also easier for his employees, who would be even busier during the peak season than they are traditionally.

The reason merchants start Christmas before Thanksgiving can really be summed up in two words—"Public Service"—the kind you've come to expect from progressive stores.

QUESTION: Do you think the drug Laetrile, which is legal in many countries for the treatment and prevention of cancer, should be legal in the United States?

Dennis Florke, 24, Twin Falls:

If it would help, I think it should be. I'm not that familiar with it. If I had cancer and something would help me, I'd want to be helped.

Harold Putzier, 52, Twin Falls:

If there's a potential to it, then definitely they should further research it.

James Edward Flynn, 54, Twin Falls:

If the people that use it have confidence in it—then yes, I think it would be good. There is always that element of uncertainty though. I think the answer is to do more research.

Robert Moldenhauer, 54, Twin Falls:

I think I'd like to leave that "up" to the medical profession to judge.

James Koutnik, 53, Twin Falls:

I don't see anything wrong with it at all. Let the people who have cancer want to try it out, let them try it out. The medical profession hasn't had too much success themselves. I'm not so sure I consider the AMA qualified to make any decisions in anything of importance, considering their history.

Stan Allen, 16, Twin Falls:

I think they should research it and then see.

Joe Lyon, 31, Twin Falls:

I feel that if other countries have studied its effects, and come to the conclusion that it is safe for their people—then we should, at the very least, do further research into it.

Hal Christensen, 17, Twin Falls:

I think they ought to have more research done and then if it turns out to be pretty good, they should use it. A cure for cancer would be really good and so I think they should do more research.

What a job!

Joanna Frazier has one of the "sweetest" jobs in Magic Valley. She tastes candy and likes her work. She is an employe at Conover's Candies in Buhl, where sweets are made for fun, not for work. See pages 8 and 9.

Noel Coward

Sex life bared

"The Life of Noel Coward," written by his secretary and close friend, Cole Lesley, will reveal Coward's sexual proclivities. Coward had admitted to Lesley that he (Coward) was a homosexual and had been deeply in love five times. The last time, at the age of 58, he fell in love with a man half his age, an event Coward had always dreaded.

Candy plant . . .

By NANCY KELLEHER

Times-News writer

BUHL — If, while traveling west of Buhl, one follows the sweet scent of chocolate wafting through the air, it will lead him to John Conover's "candy kitchen."

"After awhile, you don't even smell it anymore," says Conover, an imposing figure in his white cook's coat... with "Candyman" embroidered on his pocket.

He started his candy business on his farm in Buhl because he thought it would be fun.

"I grew up on the East Coast," says Conover, "and I was always fascinated by the salt water taffy at the beach."

Now Conover has his own taffy pulling machine, as well as equipment and know-how to make 85 different kinds of candy.

"We hired a candy technologist from back East," he says. "He told us the formulas and taught us how to make the candy."

The business started in 1968. Jeannene Frazier, secretary-treasurer of Conover-Candies, is a stockholder and has worked with Conover since the business was started in 1968. The two work year-long making candy, but are helped, during the busiest months, October through December, by Millie Richmond and Pearl Beames.

Pearl started working at Conover Candies because "It sounded like fun — and it is. I really enjoyed it and wish the job lasted year-round."

Indeed, the sense of having fun while working is stressed by all the candy makers. All four workers are constantly talking and joking while they work. An aura of friendliness prevails among the workers and goes out to the visiting stranger.

"People can come and buy candy here," says Jeannene Frazier. "This is what we like. They can see how the candy is made, and they can sample it."

Conover is generous about allowing sampling of his goods. "He only has one rule around here," says Millie. "Eat all you can."

"All of us sample the candy," adds Jeannene. "A lot! Some people think we would get tired of it, but we never do."

At this point one could easily envision four rotund candy makers, fingers and mouths sticky with chocolate. Their hands may be covered because of the nature of their work, but the Buhl confectioners, in their clean, white work coats, are all of average size.

Very good on the job

TASTING Conover's homemade candy is part of the job that Jeannene Frazier enjoys.

Make certain it's all three

IN an assorted box of Conover candies, maple walnut will be easily discernible because of the "M" hand-drawn.

Ahhh . . . the final touch

JOHN Conover's huge mixer blends the ingredients used in his candy. Here he adds the final touches to a batch of orange flavored candy.

... sweet place to visit

Although Pearl Beames works with the tasty finished product all day long in her job packing candy and ensuring quality control, she curbs her eating.

"I know I'm around it so I just have to control myself," she says. "Along with enjoying their work and its results, the candy makers take great pride in the candy they produce."

"We're a small business interested only in making the finest quality candy," says Conover. "We use only pure milk chocolate and dark sweet vanilla; no preservatives or artificial ingredients. As a result, we produce excellent quality candy which is a little more expensive than the ordinary."

A regional allegiance is also maintained by Conover.

"We use all Idaho products," he says. "All we buy in Idaho we do, with as-sugar and cream. We're Idaho people and we like to use Idaho products in making our candies."

"Prices of most ingredients are down from very high prices of the last couple of years, but they're still expensive," he continued. "Chocolate has seen a sudden jump in the last three weeks. The chocolate I received today was the highest priced I ever bought in my life."

Major customers of Conover candies are businesses which give boxes of candy to customers and employees at Christmas. Conover wholesales his goods to some local stores, and sets up a trailer annually in the Twin Falls County Fair. Many people who become familiar with the candy travel to the farm to sample Conover's goods and renew their supplies.

At one time Conover's market extended all the way to Hawaii. He made salt water taffy in such exotic flavors as papaya and mango. A few people still request these flavors, so he keeps them on hand.

His connection in Hawaii, a friend whose wife owned a gift shop, has since moved to American-Samoa. Perhaps that will be the next destination of Conover home-made candies.

Conover really enjoys his work. He does all the cooking to ensure continuity in the batches of candy, and because he feels the kettles used in cooking are too heavy for the women to lift.

Sunlight streams through the window lighting up these gleaming copper kettles as Conover details the process of making difficult candies and the necessary tools for each.

"Primitive appearing, black cast iron kettles provide a dull contrast to the shiny kettles. They also provide the cauldrons with sufficient heat to cook their sweet contents."

A polished marble table is next to the kettles. Its hard, cold surface is used to form English-butter toffee, peanut brittle and hard candies. "Marble lends itself to use for a candy table," explains Conover. "It stays cold and has low porosity when polished."

The marble table has been marvelous for making candy canes. John explained: but the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) packaging requirements were difficult to follow on such a small scale. "FDA requirements call for individual wrapping of each candy cane, a process considered too time-consuming by Conover."

"We used to make four variations of candy canes," said John. "The smallest size we made was two feet long, but we once made one six feet long. We've made six-foot candy bars, too — just for fun!"

Below the marble table

are two shelves crowded with brightly labeled bottles containing flavorings for Conover's candies.

The term "home-made" is used for Conover candies, even though much of the work is done with the use of machines.

"It's more sanitary to use machines to coat the candy with chocolate," says Jeanene Frazier. "We still feel that the candy is home-made because of how the candy is cooked and because it is something extra special, of fine quality."

Conover settled on his farm 23 years ago. He grows wheat and beans even though a dairy farm or "silage" best crop would lend themselves more to his candy business.

"The candy business keeps me off the street. In the season when the farm is not too busy, we spend time making candy."

As well as occupying his time, candy making is a source of enjoyment to Conover.

"It's a nice clean business. A little sticky," he adds with a chuckle. "I'm not a candy fanatic though as a lot of my friends are. I eat just a little bit all the time."

Coating process

MILLIE works during the busiest part of the year, October through December, and is in the process of coating candy centers.

Marks chocolate

JEANENE marks each chocolate with a letter to designate the flavor.

Good batch

CONOVER makes the candy himself, to ensure continuity in everything that comes out of the Bush plant.

Several flavors

MACHINES provide a more sanitary means of coating candy centers with chocolate than hand-dipping. Here Jeanene and Millie Richmond supervise the process to ensure all candy is coated evenly.

gossip column

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: We read so many mean stories about Barbra Streisand and her boy friend Don Peters. Why does she stay with him? — T.J., Chicago.

A: Because, Hollywood insiders say, she really loves him and those stories aren't true. They say Barbra has never been happier and that Peters has shaped up and learned all about the movie business.

Best of all, his new fame and fortune apparently have not gone to his head.

Q: We've heard that there will be a biography of the late Noel Coward and wondered whether Coward's homosexuality will be mentioned. — W.P., Detroit.

JOAN BENNETT

...she refuses to fade

A: Yes, indeed. The book, "The Life of Noel Coward," was written by Cole Lesley, Noel's close friend and confidant and private secretary for 37 years.

The biography, to be published in London soon, will deal candidly with Coward's sexual proclivities. Lesley said recently that Coward had admitted he was a homosexual and had been deeply in love five times.

The last time, at the age of 58, he fell in love with a man half his age, which was something Coward had always dreaded.

Q: How do you suppose that defected British diplomat, Kim Philby, feels now that they're making a movie showing just how he betrayed his compatriots and handed top-secret Western plans to the Russians? — R.T., Cleveland.

A: Our man in Moscow tells us Philby isn't so much bothered by the fact that the film's being made. What infuriates him is something else — that he'll be portrayed by Cockney-born actor Michael Caine.

The still-snobbish Philby feels the part should go to an actor better fitted to convey his Cambridge-polished background.

Q: Is Jerry Lewis washed up in movies? — C.T., Philadelphia.

A: Alas, Jerry's last film, made in Sweden several years ago, has never been released in this country. But at age 50, Jerry's not about to throw in the towel yet. He's never stopped working, keeping busy in Las Vegas and doing his charity telethons.

Next February, Jerry will debut on Broadway in a new, updated version of the comedy revue, "Hellszapoppin!," which he will open as a whole new career for him in the theater.

Q: Is it true that the lovely little Soviet gymnast Olga Korbut has been dreaming dreams of becoming a Russian film star? And could that be why she did so badly in the Olympics, and, as you recently told us, was snubbed when she got back to Moscow? — J.W., Tucson, Ariz.

A: All this was true last summer. But the inside word is that there's a new Olga now. She's forsaking her film star ambitions and is training hard again, determined to return to the top at the Moscow Olympics in 1980.

Q: Can it be true that Bette Midler and Mick Jagger are going to tour together? — R.W., Mason, Ga.

A: They won't be performing together, live or otherwise, unless big money can be worked out for them to co-star in a television adaptation of "The Threeppy Opera." Neither is known to work for the kind of money paid for TV specials.

Q: What about this unlikely rumor that some prospective and prominent Germans are using sex films as tax shelters? — H.R., Greenwich, Conn.

A: It may sound unlikely, but it's what's happening. Ads appearing in West Germany's most prestigious newspapers are advising investors "to profit on the boom in this special market."

In backing porno films, they're eligible for big tax write-offs. It's the law of the land.

Q: Is Zsa Zsa going to tell all in her forthcoming memoirs? — R.B., Bethesda, Md.

A: Despite her dizzy appearances on TV talk shows, and the long list of husbands — the latest is number seven, 33-year-old Los Angeles attorney Michael O'Hara — Zsa Zsa is a rather proper woman who believes in a certain amount of discretion.

She's also told so many different tales (what year was it now, she was Miss Hungary — 1927 1934? 1936?) that Zsa Zsa herself mixes fact with fiction. Whatever the results with her memoirs, entitled (tentatively) "I Can Resist Anything But Temptation," the bids from publishers are flying — with figures reaching up to the million mark.

One thing is certain: Zsa Zsa has one of the keenest business brains in the entertainment world and her autobiography will fetch a top price.

Q: Are Liza Minnelli and Desi Arnaz, Jr. friendly since she married Jack Haley Jr.?

ZSA ZSA GABOR

hook bids flying high

— C.L.W., Austin, Tex.

A: Yes. They're still friends and Desi has been at the Haley home for social gatherings. But his friends admit he has never gotten over Liza, and Lucy Ball has been known to admit privately that her son had a rough time when his two-year live-in with Liza ended.

LOUISE LASSER

...another MH on the way?

Q: What happened to Joan Bennett? — M.J.M., Princeton, N.J.

A: The last of the famed Bennett sisters and the last acting member of the famous Bennett theatrical clan, Joan recently finished a cheapie Italian horror film made in Monaco.

Like all former stars in her age group — she's 65 — Joan says she wishes she could find decent roles. Financially well-off, she doesn't have to work but she refuses to fade totally from the limelight by doing summer and winter stock stage roles.

Q: Now that the election's over, I'd like to unload something that's been sucking in my craw. I heard during the closing days of the campaign that Jimmy Carter had been having a lot of fancy and expensive suits made for him — in London, of all places! — B.J., Atlanta.

A: You can relax, B.J. The only suit tailored in London to fit Carter was never meant for him or anyone else to wear. It was made to adorn a model of Carter in that celebrated house of wax, Madame Tussaud's.

The museum already had one on hand to fill an image of Gerald Ford.

The way it works is that the actor's body is recycled and his head sent to the Tussaud storeroom — sharing the real life fate of Marie Antoinette.

Q: Laurence Olivier has been in the news lately with his comeback in "Marathon Man," but where's his fine actress-wife, Joan Plowright, these days? — G.R.A., Tulsa.

A: Right now she is in Canada playing the mother of Peter Firth in the film version of "Equus," which stars Richard Burton.

Lady Olivier has made few movies in recent years but is still one of London's biggest and best stage actresses, while maintaining a rather middle-class home life for Olivier and their three children in England.

Q: First there was all that hoopla about that movie, "Gore Vidal's Calligula," and then the next thing is he wants out of the project. Did Vidal get cold feet about being associated with this big porno film? — J.K., The Bronx.

A: We think the fuss was just in fact even more interest than that movie, which will star Peter O'Toole and Malcolm McDowell.

Incidentally, Gore owns 10 per cent of the picture. So if it's a winner, he'll be rich, rich, rich.

Q: How do reviewers know in advance when a certain episode in a TV series is going to be worth watching about? They obviously can't watch them all. — M.S., St. Paul, Minn.

A: Oh, the word gets around — often carefully spread by the show's producer. Just now, the producer of NBC's "Police Story" is letting the nation's TV reviewers know that they shouldn't miss the episode just before Thanksgiving. They say it's a "leap into realism which even 'Police Story' has seldom dared to attempt." We'll see.

Q: I agree with everybody that Woody Allen's far and away our best comic actor and director, but don't you think it's about time he did something a little heavier? Maybe weave in a message of some kind? — P.R., Adelaide, Tex.

A: Woody has reached the same conclusion. He says films he has directed may have been "too trivial." His next one, due out in February, will be "much more threatening than anything I've done before."

What his message is he doesn't say, but he contemplates that "I don't want to reinforce middle-class values." We're sure Woody will reinforce something worth seeing.

DESI ARNAZ JR.

...tough time after Liza

Q: Why is "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" the only game in town? I don't understand why other TV people aren't trying for a successful sexy, susp. opera, too. — L.L., Chicago.

A: They are, they are. So far, the most viable is rumored to be coming up — of all places, CBS, which has a show in the works to compete with "Mary." It's called "Sex and Other Curiousities."

JERRY LEWIS

Mr. Immy Tater pays a visit

TWIN FALLS — Joe Wallis entered his office at the Twin Falls Christian Academy, Thursday, Oct. 14 to find this potato man awaiting him.

Under the potato man was a note addressed to Mr. Wallis:

"Dear Mr. Wallis, "I would like to introduce myself. I am Mr. Immy Tater. — that's because I am like all the other Taters in the patch. My wife, Hezzy Tater; and I have just recently moved to this area, and hoped we might be of service to you. She was hesitant to make the move at first, but is now happy we came.

"We brought our daughter, Sweet Tater, with us. We hope the change will open her eyes.

She has such a crush on Paul Harvey's son, and we just can't have her marrying him, after all, he's just the son of a common tater. I guess there are worse things, though, she could marry an Idaho Tater, and they could get a job with Clover and Hod Sanders and they could really get up in the chips, but then they would end up down in the mouth and that would be bad.

"Our reason for leaving our former hill was my brother Dick Tater. He was so know-it-all and bossy and his wife Aggy Tater was always keeping us Taters whipped up or, totally mashed.

"My uncle could give me references, since he's important enough to be in foreign service. He's inspector for French Fries. With his glasses always perched on his nose, looking into everything, no wonder they call him Spec Tater. He's really a big wheel there. (But he's not to be confused with my cousin who runs the center pivot irrigation circular, he is Bo Tater.)

I would not make a very good teacher for your school since I am not cut out to be a good tater and working with Tater

Tater is just not my line. I am willing though to start on a shoe-string.)

If you should deem me better than half-baked, maybe you would like to butter me up and have me for dinner some evening. You might like me and a job with you just might be my bag and you could pick me for your partner.

Your devoted friend
IMMY TATER

Mr. Wallis suspects that Immy Tater was left in his office by his sister, Doris Moore.
