Patty Hearst transferred

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst has been returned to the federal jail here at her own request for unexplained "security reasons." Without an advance word, federal marshals whisked Miss Hearst out of the campus like federal prison at Pleasanton, in the San Francisco Bay area, at 4 a.m. Tuesday to drive her 400 miles to the Metropolitan Correctional Center here. "It was at her request," said Pleasanton Warden William Garrison.

Third daughter found

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — The third of Margo Davies' three baby daughters has been found — as were her sisters last week — bound, stuffed into a plastic bag and apparently suffocated. Mounted Delaware County Sheriff's deputies found the body of Tonya Davies, 3, in a tangle of weeds in a frozen cornfield Tuesday. The girl was tied up and wrapped in a plastic bag. Bags containing the remains of Christine, 2, and Laurie, 18 months, had been dumped in trash cans at two local parks. The suspect in the triple killing is the girls' mother, Mrs. Davies, 20, a high school senior in suburban Columbus.

No change in draft policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department says it hasn't changed its policy toward Vietnam War draft evaders since Jimmy Carter was elected president. NBC News reported the department had advised U.S. attorneys to hold off on prosecuting cases against accused Vietnam draft evaders until Carter's attitude toward them had been determined. He has stated he intended to grant a universal pardon to them. However, Justice spokesman Robert J. Havel said Tuesday night there has been no change in policy since the election. "He said draft dodger cases have never been given high priority and the policy toward them since the election has been 'business as usual.'"

Train, bus crash kills 10

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — A passenger train rrammed into a bus crowded with rush hour commuters at a rail crossing today, killing 10 persons and injuring 20 others, police said. They said the gate guarding the level rail crossing at Brezovkana, near the northwest Yugo-Slav city of Zagreb, had been raised when the bus started across and was hit by the Rijeka-to-Zagreb train.

Rays eliminated dinosaurs?

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — A Romanian radiobiologist has conducted experiments on heredity he says confirms a theory that cosmic rays caused the disappearance of dinosaurs about 70 million years ago, the official news agency Agerpres said today. "There have been several theories about why the huge reptiles vanished but no definitive reason. The most famous theory was put forth by Charles Darwin — they were unfit to survive."

Farmer mangles hand

BLISS — Michael "Mick" Matthews, 22, Bliss farmer, was listed in satisfactory condition today at St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise, with a mangled hand received in a farm accident Monday morning. Matthews reportedly was unloading corn from a spud truck bed. He was pulling the pulley by hand to get it started when it began spinning and mangled his hand. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Matthews and works for his father-in-law, LaVerne Schroeder, Bliss.

Salvage try fails again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A third attempt to bring the Navy's F4 "jet-fighter-to-the-surface-from-the-bottom-of-the-North Atlantic was unsuccessful and salvage vessels are now preparing for another try, Navy spokesmen said today. A spokesman said that the plane settled to the bottom Tuesday when its landing gear, to which a line from the civilian salvage ship Taurus had been attached, broke off.

Breakout avoided

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — A locked steel door that couldn't be opened with the right key led curious San Quentin Prison guards to a 77-foot long escape tunnel. Three convicts who were working in the tunnel at the time of its discovery Tuesday gave themselves up, ending what one guard praised as "a good escape attempt."

Shovels, hoses, lock-picking kits, electric lights, an intercom system and a water pump for drainage were also found. Prison authorities were alerted to the scheme by rumors of an imminent mass breakout. Suspecting a tunnel, Lt. Jerry Copus and a detail of guards began to explore the prison's underground areas several days ago. The search took them to a locked steel door in the North block utility alley. "I had the right key but it wouldn't work," Copus said. "We figured something was wrong."

A locksmith also failed to open the door, and Copus ordered it cut with a hacksaw. At that point, he said he heard a voice from the other side of the door. "Lieutenant Copus," a man reportedly shouted, "this is inmate Lucas. There are three of us in here. We got no weapons and we don't want no trouble."

Inmates Norman Lucas, 26, Lawrence Saffels, 29, and Richard Lee, 27, slipped a key under the door and were found standing in the tunnel, covered with mud. Lucas had successfully escaped from the Alameda County jail and the San Francisco-Hall-of-Justice before being sent to San Quentin.

No light at the end of the tunnel.

A LOCKED steel door which couldn't be opened with the right key led curious San Quentin prison guards to a 77-foot breakout tunnel. Prison authorities were alerted to the massive project by persistent rumors of an imminent mass breakout.

Veterans day on Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Tomorrow Armistice Day will be celebrated for the second time this year. The federal celebration of this holiday falls on the last Monday of October each year. The state of Idaho celebrates Armistice Day, also known as Veterans Day, on the traditional date, November 11. It was on this date in 1918 that an armistice was signed between the Allies and Central Powers to end World War I.

Financial problems plague co-op

By JEFF SHER and NANCY KELLEHER Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS — Despite federal grants of $20,000 and thousands of hours of volunteer labor, the Magic Valley Consumer's Co-op is in serious financial trouble. Food sales reportedly have fallen to less than one-fifth the level needed for the operation to break even and members agree the co-op soon will go out of business if it continues to operate in the red.

During October, the co-op's sales total fell to only about $500. Sales from $25,000 to $3,000 per month are needed to cover the operational costs of about $130 per to $150 per month. Officials say they make a return of about five percent on their sales before paying operating expenses.

In theory, there are 300 families listed as members of the co-operative. But at a recent membership meeting, fewer than 15 were present. Only 63 individuals purchased food in October.

The co-op was formed in August of 1973 by a "united group that was largely concerned with raising the quality and lowering the cost of food for the lower-income population of Magic Valley," according to Michele Markiewicz, chairman of the board of directors of the co-op.

The idea was that through lowering or eliminating the cost of location, packaging and labor food could be made available at a lower price at a lower cost. This is only possible, however, if co-op members volunteer some time and labor.

Michele Markiewicz says a few members carry the bulk of the work load for the entire organization. She maintains the co-op could operate efficiently with only about 100 man-hours contributed per month. This much work would be sufficient to perform all essential services.

With the current level of commitment, however, the co-op has only been able to keep its doors open three days a week (Wednesday through Friday) for a few hours per day.

The food co-op has received two federal grants of $10,000 each. Part of the first grant went towards financing a farm two years ago. "The idea," says Michele, "was to make the store self-sufficient. The co-oply funded the labor for the farm, but we just managed to pull through for the year."

Another segment of the grant was invested more successfully in an egg farm, according to Markiewicz. The co-op spent $5,000 on chickens, feed, housing, labor and advice. A co-op member had begun operation of the egg farm prior to the co-op's investment. A just return on the invested money was received by co-op members for two years in the form of fresh eggs at a reasonable price.

The second grant went towards starting a new store in Burley. The Burley store is no longer in operation.

"The grants," she continued, "gave an illusion of well-being to members and lead to a lack of commitment. It's difficult for people to readjust to the non-convenience and non-luxury of labor replacing cash, limited hours of operation, and leaving no diet changes."

"The co-op," she continued, "is only successful in proportion to the amount of active interest shown in it. Its success is not measured by the store's appearance or by the large number of name-only members."

Y directors seek more income

By NANCY KELLEHER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Wrestling with a $700 a month operating deficit the Twin Falls YMCA and YWCA boards of directors decided Tuesday to work for new members and will probably institute higher fees for old members.

According to a report by a special fiscal investigation committee, the Y must generate at least 60 percent more income by next year to solve its financial problems. An aggressive search for new members plus a hike in the cost of existing membership fees were recommended as ways of generating at least $20,000 more for the Y in 1977.

Another recommendation, the elimination of the aquatic director, caused considerable debate and eventually was postponed.

According to the Fiscal Investigating Committee's report, Pete Blumenthal, the aquatic director, is paid $770 per month. Savings on his wages would alleviate the $700 per month deficit on the Service Center, according to Dave Cooper, a YMCA board member.

About 30 people attended the meeting to protest elimination of the Aquatics Director's position. Most were parents of swim team members.

Swim team parents fear that the aquatic director will be unable to continue as swim team coach. They said that if the other swim programs suffer through lack of a full time director, the swim team program will also lose strength.

After lengthy discussion, the Y directors challenged the swim team parents to raise $2,000 to pay the Aquatic Director. The parents agreed to try to raise some money to help fund the job.

Donna Stalley, chairman of fundraising committee for the swim team, said she knows neither how nor when this amount will be raised.

In the meantime, the aquatic director will be paid by the YM-YWCA. The $2,000 will go to refund the two organizations when the swim team parents raise the money.

Blumenthal will remain at the Y, either full or part time, but the boards of the two organizations will evaluate his work to decide whether he will remain as director, according to Chuck Upton.

They have set 2 weeks as the time period for this decision. In addition to asking parents to raise $2,000 to help finance an aquatic director, the Y directors made a number of other money-raising and money saving suggestions. (Continued on p. 19)

First of firings announced by Sheriff Corder

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Sheriff Paul Corder Tuesday fired seven-year deputy Richard Haynes in what the sheriff hinted may be the first of a number of post-election firings. Corder said the termination had nothing to do with the recent election campaign but was because of "departmental problems."

Corder would not say what the "departmental problems" were. The sheriff said he has no other announcements of personnel changes to make at this time, but hinted there may be additional changes in the future.

Before the election, Corder reportedly hinted he expected to fire deputies. He fell silent during the heated three-day sheriff's election race.

Corder was re-elected on Nov. 2 with a 74 percent majority of the vote.

Corder said he asked Haynes to take his vacation time and the time he has coming for working overtime hours, effective immediately, until he belongs to Plains Corp. President John P. McGoff, but a ninth person drowned, the Coast Guard reported.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard station at Elizabeth City said the agency received a Mayday call from the Lady Margaret off the North Carolina shore at 1:35 a.m. The vessel reported it was taking water and in danger of sinking 25 miles off Cape Fear.

CAPE FEAR, N.C. (UPI) — Eight persons were rescued today from a burning 100-foot yacht belonging to Plains Corp. President John P. McGoff, but a ninth person drowned, the Coast Guard reported.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard station at Elizabeth City said the agency received a Mayday call from the Lady Margaret off the North Carolina shore at 1:35 a.m. The vessel reported it was taking water and in danger of sinking 25 miles off Cape Fear.

Pioneer may hike Idaho Power expenses

By BOB ZUCKERMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Co. will "in all probability" ask customers to pay expenses already incurred on the deferred coal-fired Pioneer plant project, a utility company lawyer said today.

If so, a rate increase could be requested, he said.

Other Idaho Power officials have estimated those expenses could run as high as $16.5 million.

Fred Decker, Idaho Power lawyer, said utility officials have not yet determined whether shareholders or customers will pay those costs, but "in all probability they will ask customers" to pay.

The company is not sure what expenses have been incurred, Decker emphasized. The $16.5 million estimate includes roughly $9.8 million in cancellation charges for plant equipment Idaho Power earlier ordered. The utility had to cancel the orders when the state Public Utilities Commission (PUC) denied in September the company's request to begin building the Pioneer plant near Orchard.

Decker said cancellation charges are still subject to negotiation and could fall significantly.

Expeditious also include about $6.7 million already spent on design engineering and environmental studies for the Pioneer project, Decker said. But it has not been determined whether this work will be a loss either, because some engineering and environmental studies may be usable if the utility decides to build a Pioneer plant somewhere else, Decker said.

"What is crucial is what is ultimately the liability for cancelled orders and what part of the engineering can be recovered if the plant is put at another site," Decker said.

Other Idaho Power officials presented the $16.5 million estimate to the PUC at a hearing on accounting procedures Monday. At the hearing, Idaho Power officials requested the company be allowed to amortize the expenditures over a 10-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1977. The commission took no action on the request.

If Idaho Power determines that Pioneer expenses already incurred should be covered, PUC information officer Gary Andrews said today he heard from Idaho Power officials the utility may present a rate case to the commission "within two or three months."

Asked for arguments supporting a rate increase to cover Pioneer costs, Decker said,

"Engineering and site selection work is all part of normal procedures. You have to develop this information before you can even apply for a license."

Asked if he thought Idaho Power should have waited before ordering Pioneer equipment, including boilers and turbine generators, until the PUC granted site approval, Decker said, "No."

The utility had to order the equipment "in an effort to meet deadlines for plant completion," Decker said. "If you don't get in line for the equipment, then you won't ever get a plant built on time," he said.

Idaho Power had hoped to complete the plant near Orchard by the early 1980s, when company officials say alternate sources of energy will be needed to meet consumer needs.

Even if Idaho Power were to apply tomorrow, "it's problematical whether they can meet that deadline now," Decker said.

Cassia to send drivers to Arkansas for buses

BURLEY — The Cassia County School District will send drivers to Arkansas to move five new school buses to Burley. The school board made the decision at the urging of Leon Robinson, transportation director for the district. The decision allowed the board to choose low bids by two Mini-Cassia area dealers on chassis and body for the five buses.

Frank Motors, Burley, was awarded the contract for chassis delivery to the Arkansas body plant. L & L Sales, Rupert, got the contract on the bodies.

Frank bid $8,177.62 per chassis for delivery to the plant. Gem International had a lower initial bid of $8,144.76, but tacked on shipping charges.

L & L Sales bid $5,350 per body, only $15 less than Blue Bird Coach Sales, Pocatello. Blue Bird listed another $350 for delivery in Burley, while L & L would have charged $500 per bus for delivery here.

Two other bidders listed base prices higher than the delivered price quoted by Blue Bird. Robinson told the board that he figured the district saved an average of $100 per bus last year (based on $500 delivery charges) by picking the buses up at the Arkansas plant.

He said the plant pick-up also gives the district the opportunity to catch any omissions before accepting the buses and to avoid possible motor damage to the buses on the trip to Burley.

Legion writes Carter

RICHFIELD — American Legion members in the fourth district have asked President-elect Jimmy Carter to reconsider his support for blanket amnesty of Vietnam veterans.

Instead, members attending the district convention Saturday in Richfield, urged Carter to consider each case on an individual basis.

Six units of Legion posts and auxiliaries were represented at the meeting, which included a banquet and dance following separate business meetings.

State officers attending included Charles Aggen, Mountain Home, department commander; Lynn Kearsley, Victor, department commander; and Herb Shiroaki, Blackfoot, department chaplain.

Condemned killer pleads for firing squad death

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Condemned killer Gary Gilmore today personally took to the justices of the Utah Supreme Court his plea to die before a firing squad next Monday.

Gilmore, 35, his wrists and ankles shackled by chains, was driven 20 miles from Utah State Prison to the State Capitol to appear with his new attorney at a hearing on a motion for reconsideration of a stay of execution.

The Death Row inmate, who was sentenced to die for murdering a Provo motel clerk, stared vacantly at reporters and cameramen as prison guards and Highway Patrol troopers escorted him into an anteroom near the court chambers.

Gilmore, whose two handwritten letters asking the high court to let him die as scheduled were spurned by the justices, wore prison-issued white pants, a white shirt with the number "13871" stenciled in inch-high on the back, and red, white and blue jogging shoes. His hair was cut short and he was clean shaven — in contrast to his long-haired, bearded mein at past court appearances. "We are representing his legal interests rather than his wishes," said Esplin, adding that he and attorney Craig Snyder have become the target of crank calls in Provo, where they practice and where motel clerk Bennie Bushnell was shot to death during a robbery last July 20. "The consensus is that we're doing something improper," he said. "The community as a whole is in favor of capital punishment, at least Utah County."

The court agreed to let Gilmore make his personal plea after state officials requested a hearing on a motion for reconsideration of the stay of execution.

Syrians roll to Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian peacekeeping troops rolled through Christian and Moslem territory to the outskirts of Beirut today, reportedly coming under fire once but meeting no major resistance.

In a lightning three-pronged push, two Syrian brigades of about 2,000 men each moved onto Lebanon's last mountain battlefield, seized the strategic Beirut-Damascus highway and rolled to the gates of the capital.

They made no immediate move to enter Beirut itself. Arab League spokesman said the force would first consolidate its positions around the city.

A rightist broadcast reported that the Syrians briefly came under leftist sniper fire as they took over Christian positions at Galerie Simaan, a southeastern suburb. There was no immediate confirmation of the report. But the rightist said the Syrians did not shoot back, and the apparently random shooting soon halted.

Christian rightist officers who Monday threatened to open fire on the Syrians backed down when Christian political chiefs ordered the rebellious commanders to aid the peace force's entry.

The Syrians, acting as part of the Arab League's peacekeeping force, moved before dawn.

One armored column with an estimated 50 tanks and 100 troop carriers rolled from the mountain town of Ainourah, 20 miles east of Beirut, into the heart of Christian territory northeast of the capital and took up strategic positions.

One Syrian brigade reached the Mediterranean seacoast north of the capital, shortly before noon — cutting the Christian zone in two. At the same time, two Syrian columns swept through rightist and leftist territory southeast of Beirut.

Other columns took control of the Christian stronghold of Kabbalah.

Teeth might save accused

WHEATON, Ill. (UPI) — A chance encounter between a prosecutor and a dentist may be the key to freedom for a man jailed for a murder he says he never committed.

A deep bite mark on the thigh of a 14-year-old girl found murdered in a cornfield near her suburban Chicago home was key evidence in the trial of Richard Milone.

Now a dental expert who examined the bite says he has found a matching bite in another suburban Chicago murder case and that the two bites had to be inflicted by the same person. That person could not have been Milone. He was in jail at the time of the second murder.

Three dentists testified for the prosecution that casts of Milone's teeth matched the bite on the body of Sally Kandel, who was pulled from her bicycle and bludgeoned to death in a cornfield near her Carol Stream home in 1972. Four defense dental experts said Milone could not have inflicted the wound. But Circuit Court Judge John Unverzagt, after hearing the conflicting expert testimony at the bench trial, found Milone guilty.

On Aug. 2, 1973, Milone was sentenced to 90 to 175 years in prison.

Nazis appear again in West Germany

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — An American neo-Nazi organization has marked the 38th anniversary of anti-Jewish riots by Adolf Hitler's brownshirts by handing out swastika-adorned posters saying, "Don't buy Jewish."

The hand-sized posters, in German, appeared Tuesday in Frankfurt and were signed by the National Socialist German Workers Party, Foreign Organization, Lincoln, Box 614, Nebraska.

The National Socialist German Workers Party was the official name of Hitler's Nazi party.

The leaflets, with a swastika in the left corner, said: "We are here again. Buy Front perish. Don't buy Jewish."

It was exactly 38 years ago Tuesday that Nazi German mobs went on an anti-Jewish rampage, setting fire to synagogues, smashing windows of Jewish shops, looting Jewish factories and beating up Jews in Frankfurt and other German cities.

It became known as "The Crystal Night," from the gleam of the moonlight shining on the shattered glass in the streets, and was a first step in Hitler's anti-Jewish pogrom that ended in the extermination of millions.

Kissinger's reign nearly over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Kissinger era of U.S. foreign policy, now drawing to a close, can be split neatly in two parts: three years when the Secretary of State was a global fireman, and those when he tried to become an architect.

The fireman phase — crisis management — can be assessed now.

The later effort at foreign policy architecture — trying to adjust the aims and limits of American power — can be judged only by historians; one of whom doubtless will be Henry Kissinger.

During the first five years of his stewardship, Kissinger primarily reacted to problems. Vietnam was the principal and most controversial.

Kissinger negotiated what he hoped would be a politically honorable U.S. withdrawal, but was unable to "save" Vietnam.

The uneasy cease-fire resulting from his negotiations collapsed in April 1975. But U.S. departure and Communist victory were separated by what some called "a reasonable interval," and withdrawal was accomplished without tearing the United States apart politically or destroying its credibility as an ally.

Kissinger's reputation was bruised but not destroyed.

Another crisis arose in October, 1973, with the Soviet threat to intervene in the Yom Kippur war. It was Kissinger's closest brush with his ultimate nightmare — military confrontation between the superpowers that might escalate into a nuclear war and destroy civilization.

Kissinger deftly — some would say callously — used the Middle East crisis to reassert U.S. influence in the Arab world, the principal source of energy for industrialized democracies.

In the process, Soviet power declined in the Middle East. But it was difficult for Moscow to object for the Russians were hooked on U.S. wheat and had a stake in detente, including a mutually beneficial strategic arms agreement.

During Watergate and its aftermath Kissinger became, in terms of foreign policy, the unelected president.

Richard Nixon was distracted — obsessed — by his 1974 fight for political survival. Gerald R. Ford followed Nixon into office and in public dealt more with the economy at home than the rest of the world.

Kissinger, frequently in the cabin of a jet shuttling between Middle East capitals, was both symbol and substance of U.S. foreign policy.

Architect replaced fireman as Kissinger tried to lay the framework for a new world order and the U.S. "place in it." It was a less spectacular role, but more complex.

He summed it up in a speech last summer: "We must learn to conduct foreign policy as other nations throughout history have had to conduct it — with persistence, sensitivity, flexibility, nuance and perseverance; with the knowledge that what can be achieved at any one point will always fall short of the ideal; but that without ideals the search for merely practical becomes stultifying."

Foreign policy, he domestic, must not be conducted as a response to hostile passions, or to international crises, but as a long term enterprise of building a better and safer world.

Kissinger has tried to find a responsible role for the United States in world economic relationships and in such matters as the Law of the Sea conference, which has been a failure.

He has tried to build a working partnership between the United States and the developing world, particularly in Latin America and Africa.

He has tried, with some success, to lure China out of revolutionary isolation and into a quasi-alliance.

Kissinger considers Dean Acheson the greatest secretary of state this century because Acheson used a "decisive flame of turbulence and creativity" to give a permanent new dimension to American foreign policy.

History, said Kissinger, has given Acheson its highest compliment: "It proved him right."

It will take another few years for history to judge Kissinger.

Citizens' arrests a risky business

Growth real issue in Hagerman feud

In small towns like Hagerman, where only 650 people live, two people getting into an argument might be considered a major controversy.

This week — more than 75 people in the small Gooding County town confronted Mayor Dean Holt with the out-of-city residents helps defer the cost of maintaining the city water system.

Hagerman Mayor Dean Holt thinks the city's old policy is a sound one because the $7.50 paid by the out-of-city residents helps defer the cost of maintaining the city water system.

Opponents of the hookups claim the small $7.50 fee allows people to get an essential city service (water) without paying city taxes. In addition, they claim the value of property in town goes down if people can get water outside the city for about the same cost as inside.

Both viewpoints have merit in this mini-dispute. Mayor Holt speaks a truism when he says out-of-city water users are helping maintain the city system. Every $7.50 which comes into city hall helps.

At the same time, opponents of the out-of-city hookups have a point by claiming the city is virtually giving away water to non-city residents.

The key issue in the feud, however, isn't $7.50 water hookups. Nobody has complained about the hookups in 30 years.

Growth, and how to handle it, is the issue which Hagerman residents are really arguing about.

Nobody would have been concerned about the out-of-city water hookups if there had not been more than two dozen new hookups this year alone.

Hagerman, although unlikely to become a major metropolis, clearly faces a series of growth problems. The city has no sewage system, has few paved streets, lacks many other city services.

At the same time, many retired people are coming to the small town near the Snake River. Land prices have shot up in recent years, a mish-mash of the outdoors, new houses and old has sprung up on the outskirts of Hagerman.

Some organizers of the petition to stop the out of city water hookups also oppose a new city sewage treatment plant. Some of the same people fought unsuccessfully against the construction of a new apartment building in town.

In short, some Hagerman residents have tried to stop the growth of their small town, a task which can only prove futile.

Instead of stopping growth, the residents can only hope to channel the growth and keep it from scorching their town. Some would argue the growth actually can help Hagerman establish a better tax base for city services.

Mayor Holt certainly shouldn't ignore the petition which asks a halt to the out-of-city water hookups. Perhaps the city should institute a new policy charging the out-of-city residents for more of the services.

The city absolutely must find out exactly how much water is available for expansion in Hagerman and make sure new residents inside town and outside the city limits can get water.

What Hagerman cannot afford is to ignore the growth which is currently changing their town. They cannot simply oppose the growth through superficial means because outsiders will simply trample over the feeble efforts to keep the town unchanged.

Instead, residents must try to stay a jump ahead of their town's expansion, anticipate the problems which will face the town and then try to do some preventative planning.

By TOMTIEDE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While shopping on the Lower West Side of New York recently, a young man was alerted to a crime by the cries of a salesclerk. Spotting the thief, the youth gave chase, tackled him in the street and sat on him until a patrol car arrived. That was the end of his involvement, however. "I won't give you my name, or anything else," the young man told police. "I did what I had to do but I don't want to get tied up any further."

The lad's logic was as unassailable as his courage. The area of citizen's arrest is fraught with complexities and risks. Had the youngster been identified, in fact, he might have been liable to criminal prosecution himself. The law permits a citizen to make an arrest only for a felony committed in his or her presence. Since the apprehending youth did not personally witness the crime, and since the amount of goods stolen constituted merely a misdemeanor, the alleged thief could very well have sued for false arrest and perhaps assault.

The citizen's arrest historically has been risky activity in America, but until this century it was also quite common. Dr. William McDonald, research director of the Georgetown Law Center, says that until the 1800s virtually all arrests were of a private nature.

Lacking sufficient police protection, colonists had to either make arrests themselves or pay a constable to do it for them. Not surprisingly, many early Americans skipped the formalities altogether and punished thugs instead with a thrashing or a shot between the eyes.

The urbanization of the 19th century brought severe changes in this kind of law enforcement. McDonald says the more people clustered the less neighborly and personally responsible they became. When officials found people would no longer pick up buckets to save a neighbor's burning house, the fire department was created. When it was apparent people no longer wished to be their brothers' keepers, formal police forces were formed.

Soon evolved that the citizens abdicated all but occasional responsibility for the protection of the community, that is to say the leftover citizen's arrest.

Today the private arrest is a rare occurrence, perhaps because it is so legally ambiguous and physically chaotic. Pat Murphy of the Police Foundation points out that in some states citizens are forced by law to involve themselves in the apprehension of criminals. If called on by police authorities, but otherwise the matter rests with the individual conscience. "Most police do not advise it," says Murphy. "They encourage citizens to help crime control in other ways, but they can't very well ask people to endanger themselves."

Actually, police often worry as much about the risks to the suspect's lives as those of the activist citizens. Enthusiasm by citizen-ops can get out of hand. Last year a retired Army colonel in Virginia made the ultimate citizen's arrest by shooting two youths who broke into his home, and authorities agonized over how to handle the incident.

"We couldn't take him to court," recalls an involved prosecutor, "because the community would have howled. At the same time we couldn't condone it for fear of encouraging others to do the same thing." In the end the matter was quietly, unobtrusively, left to atrophy.

Still, few responsible police officers from on the concept of citizen's arrest, particularly when no one gets hurt. Major J.F. Owens of the Norfolk, Va., police department says his force does not recommend it, but on the other hand rewards it with the presentation of official certificates of appreciation. "You don't want people forming posses," says a Chicago police captain, "but other than that it is very nice to know you've got friends in the neighborhoods."

And so what is the practical advice concerning the citizen's arrest? The employment of reason and restraint for those who may opt for the occasion. Where weapons are involved, police say citizens should limit their intervention in crime to that of observation, get descriptions, license numbers, etc., for eventual police reference.

Otherwise the advice can only be that the right is there for those who wish to make use of it — and a few still do, indicating there still are Americans who want to do more about crime than be victims.

Carter cabinet shaping up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It didn't take long after Jimmy Carter sewed up the presidency for the capital to begin armchair speculation on who will be in the new cabinet.

It is a game played essentially in the dark. Carter and his aides have given no clues who will be selected.

And Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, once suggested in an interview that the Carter administration will be staffed at the top by persons not known nationally. If well-known figures are named, he said, the Carter drive will have failed.

Nonetheless, familiar Democrats from past administration figured in the first wave of speculation.

Jack Watson, an Atlanta attorney who has been working since August on transition plans, said in an interview last week that Carter will "personally choose his cabinet secretaries and some of the major agency heads."

Then there are about 200 "key policy positions in the government" to be filled, and Watson said a substantial number of these would be "selected in a collaborative way between the president-elect and the cabinet."

He indicated an early selection will be a director for the Office of Management and Budget. Very soon after his inauguration Carter will face major economic decisions in connection with the fiscal 1979 budget, which Congress begins considering early in the year. His staff already is working on budget proposals.

Ford will submit a budget proposal, but Carter will be free to recommend his own modifications.

As to the cabinet, here is some of the early speculation:

Secretary of state — Maybe Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's foreign affairs adviser for the campaign and an expert on communism, or James Schlesinger, dismissed by Ford as defense secretary and one of those with whom Carter has conferred. Perhaps someone whose ideas were shaped under previous Democratic administrations, like George Ball, Cyrus Vance or Paul Warnke.

Defense secretary — AFL-CIO President George Meany, according to aides, would be pleased to see Schlesinger get this job back, and Carter had Meany's unqualified support in the campaign. Others have suggested perhaps Vance, a former Army secretary, or Harold Brown, former Air Force secretary.

Labor secretary — Meany thinks an "obvious" choice would be John Dunlop, who resigned from that post nearly a year ago after President Ford vetoed a construction industry picketing bill he had promised Dunlop he would sign. Other labor sources considered Dunlop a likely choice.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare — These same labor sources predicted Carter would tap United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, who is known to be interested.

Agriculture secretary — R.R. "Bobby" Smith, who managed Carter's farm policy campaign; Reps. Bob Bergland, D-Minn., and Neal Smith, D-Iowa, or some state farm official from the Midwest or Great Plains. One Democratic source predicted "a fresh face, not a rebrand" from a previous administration.

Attorney General — Judge Griffin B. Bell of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, who is close to Carter's friend and political adviser, Charles Kirbo. Robert M. Morgenthau Jr., son of the late U.S. treasury secretary and a former U.S. attorney in New York City is another possibility.

Gooding center director reports

Editor, Times-News:

For over one and a half years I have been involved with the Idaho Regional Training Center in Gooding and because of the interest manifested by the media, I would like to give this progress report:

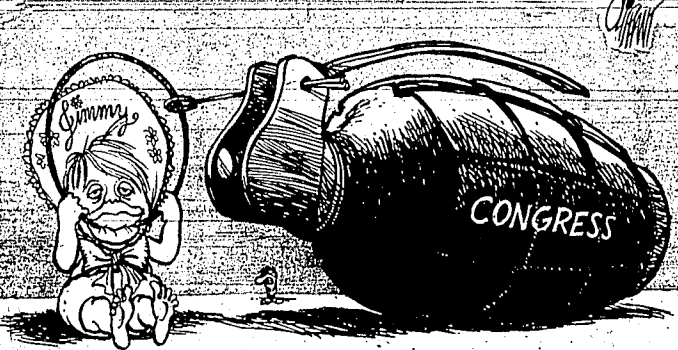

"The Center" has been open for two months and we have patients who are seeking help and getting well. Because of a generous lease by the Land Board, we were able to open with a minimum of financial pressure. Our goal was $30,000 based on our best estimate of expenses and outlay but because the need was great, we opened with much less than our original goal. We have been perturbed by the delay in our fund raising but more disturbed by the lack of interest in this regard. (85 per cent of our funds have come from out of state.)

Ours is a society where one is more conspicuous by abstaining than by consuming to excess. It is no wonder that many of all ages become victims of addiction. Our society condones but has no acceptable alternatives. Society equates with total destruction. That is "skid row" now. Until one has come to this state of destruction, his peers cover for and protect him, but he has laid the disease for a long time and could have come to grips with it had he known how. Alcoholism is a disease which is predictable, identifiable and treatable and without treatment, deadly. Our lack of support is a lack of involvement and a manifestation that no problem exists — "If we don't look, it might just go away."

"The Center" uses the program of Alcoholics Anonymous as its main thrust and does not promote prohibition except for those who have the disease. We believe that an intelligent choice based on a positive value system is the only way to deal with the problem. We hope to be able to interest and expose people to this approach, especially young people before peer group pressures make the decision for them. We need community involvement to be successful and supporting. Supporting a program to alleviate the disease of alcoholism does not mean one has the problem any more than the use of Christmas Seals is indicative of lung disease.

It is time we remove the double standards and remove our community heads from the sand. Let's face up to the immediate and deep problem which is upon us. Programs like the one at "The Center" have been outstanding in other areas of the country. Why does Idaho have to wait?

He will live in nightmare

CELLINA, Ohio (UPI) — John Kremer, charged with vehicular homicide in the deaths of eight high school students last March, is free today to live "in his own jail" of "nightmares and grief."

Kremer, 22, was the driver of a car that ran into the eight teen-agers who were on their way to a school basketball victory celebration.

He was charged with eight counts of vehicular homicide and other traffic violations, including failure to obey a stop sign.

Kremer was allowed to plead no contest to one count of vehicular homicide at a tense 20 minute hearing at the Cellina Municipal Court attended by his family and few spectators. He was fined $300 in court costs and had his driver's license suspended for a year.

"John has created his own jail," Judge James Myers said.

"It is something he is going to have to live with the rest of his life."

"No fine or penalty could compensate for the deaths," lawyer David Shuffleton had argued. "Equally unfortunate is the court's inability to eliminate the nightmares and grief and horror of John Kremer, who will suffer throughout his life."

The Rev. Gregory Moorman, Kremer's pastor at St. John's Catholic Church in Maria Stein and the uncle of one 15-year-old accident victim, said, "I'm convinced this will end it. The boy has a tremendous family, good friends. He is well-loved and respected. This is something he will have to live with, yes, but I don't anticipate any problems."

But not all the victims' parents were willing to forgive. Mrs. Mark Brandewie, whose 14-year-old daughter, Joy, was one of the eight, said she was "very bitter."

"My son saw him out drinking beer the other night," she said in a telephone interview. "Does that sound like he's suffering?"

Leroy Westerhelde, whose 15-year-old son, Scott, also was killed, said, "When you look at what they get for junk that doesn't hurt anybody... The law is the same for everyone, I don't believe it."

But Mrs. Virgil Moorman, whose daughter, Rebecca, 15, was another accident victim, said, "I'm so glad it's over. He's suffering enough."

Life on Mars still sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Are there life oases on Mars, does Mars harbor cannibalistic microbes, does Mars have bugs enclosed in hard shells?

These are some of the highly speculative life situations that scientists have come up with in efforts to account for the findings from America's two Viking Mars robots.

Other scientists are devising nonlife chemical theories that also could explain the white sent back from the Vikings during the past three months.

It still is not known from the spacecraft whether the red planet has or ever had life. But the Viking findings have been interesting enough to prompt all kinds of speculation.

The two Vikings have interrupted their scientific work for a month because the sun is moving between Mars and Earth and disrupting radio communications. This is giving scientists a chance to think about the information they have been receiving.

Project scientists discussed the biological findings Tuesday at a news briefing, and Dr. Harold Klein, chief Viking biologist, summed up the results.

Dr. Carl Sagan, a project scientist and Cornell University astronomer, said there are at least three hypothetical situations that could explain life on Mars—and still account for the Viking findings showing possible life processes but no evidence of organic debris.

Soviets armed with toxic gas, intelligence agency reveals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The former chief of the Defense Intelligence Agency says a large proportion of Soviet weapons in Eastern Europe carry toxic gas.

Lt. General Daniel O. Graham, who retired as director of the DIA when James Schlesinger was fired as secretary of defense, said in an interview that until the early 1960s, while the Russians had trouble manufacturing enough nuclear warheads for their tactical missiles, "as much as one-half of all their bombs and missiles carried poison gases."

He said "large properties" of the Soviet stockpiles are still charged with toxic gas.

The Soviets, he said, have stockpiled two principal kinds of gases:

— Mustard gas, which would be sprayed over NATO ammunition depots, for example, denying their use to western forces. Mustard gas is extremely persistent, Graham said: gas manufactured in World War I is still active and poisonous.

— "V gas", a new and potent nerve gas which, Graham says, "works on men the way DDT works on insects." An antidote is available, although it is not in general supply among NATO forces. The formula was learned, said Graham, when western intelligence stole a sample from Soviet forces in eastern Europe.

He said the Warsaw pact forces normally conduct military maneuvers with troops wearing gas-proof clothing and their vehicles are invariably equipped with filters so troops can operate in a toxic gas environment.

NATO troops, he said, "would mutiny if we tried to make them wear gas-proof outfits and western military vehicles are not sealed against poison gas."

Feminists claim ERA outlook good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the proportion of women in state legislatures increased only 1 per cent in the 1976 election, feminists claim the outcome improved chances for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

"It now looks like the ERA slate may be over," declared Sheila Greenwald of ERAmerica Tuesday as she tallied final results of state legislative elections last week.

She noted that ERA supporters won state referenda in Massachusetts and Colorado, and suggested the prospects for ratifying the national ERA were improved in Indiana, Florida, North Carolina and possibly Illinois.

"We definitely increased the chances of passage of ERA during this election," added Fredi Wechsler of the National Women's Political Caucus.

Phyllis Schlafly, the nation's leading spokeswoman against ERA, likewise issued a statement noting specific legislative races where her followers won. "In state after state," she said, "some of the noisiest and most prominent women's lib legislators were defeated."

But Mrs. Schlafly made no mention of the Massachusetts and Colorado referenda on state ERAs, nor did she claim the situation had shifted in her favor.

The stalemate between these two sides began in 1975 when an early rush to ratify ERA subsided with the approval of only 31 state legislatures. The amendment will die in March, 1979, unless it has been ratified by 38 states.

Thus, the legislators elected last Tuesday may be the final arbiters of the issue, and ERA became a factor in a number of legislative races.

Because ERA figured in the election of both men and women, feminists insisted the relatively small gain made by women candidates running for state legislative seats was no measure of support for the amendment.

An accounting by the National Women's Education Fund showed 65 women will be serving in state legislatures next year, or 9.1 per cent of the total membership. This represented an increase from 615, or 8.1 per cent.

Women now hold 27 per cent of the seats in the New Hampshire legislature, and more than 15 per cent in four other states.

Tests ordered

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — A Superior Court Judge Tuesday ordered 90 days of presentence psychiatric testing for Robert "Bucky" Waterfield, 20, son of actress Jane Russell and her ex-husband, former football star Bob Waterfield, convicted of involuntary manslaughter for shooting a farm worker.

Waterfield "appears to have a serious drinking problem" and should undergo observation at the state prison at Chino, said Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler.

Waterfield, a farm laborer, said he had dined 24 curbs before he began "target shooting" at the sign on a rural tavern with a pistol, and did not remember what followed. Oscar Hernandez was killed by a bullet that hit him in the head as he danced in the tavern.

TV series eyed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Historian Will Durant received a birthday present a few days late -- he and his wife sold what may be the longest television script.

Tuesday, only four days after Durant, turned 91. Paramount Television announced it plans to make a television series of "The Story of Civilization," the 11-volume work by Durant and his wife, Ariel.

The purchase price was not announced.

Columnist to speak

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Columnist James Jackson Kilpatrick will be the keynote speaker at the opening Thursday of the national convention of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

Kilpatrick has been widely seen as the conservative half of the ideological, debating team, opposing liberal Shana Alexander, featured on the weekly television news show "60 Minutes."

More than 1,000 delegates are expected to attend the three-day convention.

Scott won't run

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Spurned and criticized by his own Republican party leaders, Virginia Sen. William Scott has decided not to seek a second term in 1978.

"I think 12 years of serving in the minority is long enough," Scott said. "Certainly I have no fear of re-election."

Scott, who served one Senate and three House terms, had invoked the wrath of several party leaders for his support of Ronald Reagan's presidential challenge this year.

Scott said he will return to law practice.

He's sober now

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Terty Joe Stuart has filed for a divorce from the former Sue S. Taylor on grounds of sobriety.

Stuart maintained in his divorce petition that when they married Nov. 3, he was too drunk to know what he was doing, and he realized as soon as he sobered up that he did not want to be married.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Idaho Fish and Game Commission will hold a regular quarterly meeting at its office, 626 South Walnut Street, Boise, Idaho, beginning at 9:00 a.m. on December 7, 1978. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the proposed opening dates for certain big game hunting seasons for 1979, and to consider other business which may properly come before the Commission at that time. The Commission will hold public hearing between the hours of 1:30 p.m. and 5:00 p.m., December 7, 1978, at its Boise office to hear testimony and consider evidence with respect to opening dates of the hunting season, and for related matters which may be brought before the Commission at that time.

Hirohito honored, denounced

TOKYO (UPI) — Thousands of Japanese shouted "Long live the Emperor" today in a discordant ceremony commemorating the 50th anniversary of Emperor Hirohito's ascension to the throne.

About 9,000 persons attended the 50-minute rite organized by the conservative regime of Prime Minister Takeo Miki, who led the participants in shouting "Tenno Heika Banzai" (long live the emperor).

It was held amid stringent police protection while thousands of radical students held rallies and demonstrations to protest the function. More than 10,000 uniformed policemen and plainclothesmen stood guard.

Members of Japan's two largest opposition parties, the Socialist and Communist parties, boycotted the ceremony because of Hirohito's position in the army-dominated government that ruled Japan until the end of World War II.

Denver doctors attempt to save 'unborn' child

DENVER (UPI) — Linda Cubertson, critically injured in an automobile accident, is being kept alive by mechanical means in an attempt to save her unborn baby.

Ted Wren, director of public information at Colorado General Hospital, said Mrs. Cubertson, 29, was placed on life-sustaining equipment in an attempt to save her 15-week-old fetus. Wren said the condition Mrs. Cubertson had not changed since Tuesday when she was in "very critical condition."

"But she has not yet been pronounced dead, although there is no neurological (brain) activity," Wren said. "She is being kept alive by means of respirators, heart machines, and intravenous injections."

Mrs. Cubertson suffered a broken neck and multiple internal injuries in an automobile accident Monday and was taken by helicopter to St. Anthony Hospital, where doctors at first pronounced her dead.

With a view toward using Mrs. Cubertson as a possible transplant donor, she was transferred to CGH, where an examination revealed her pregnancy.

"Her status was determined by an examination team completely separate from the transplant team," Wren said. "They felt she could be kept alive mechanically and that there was a chance of saving the baby. The fetus is still at this time."

Wren said the hospital's chief of obstetrics believed the baby could be taken safely from the mother by Caesarean section when it is about 20 weeks old and weighs 20 grams (slightly more than 17 ounces). He said the possibility of a transplant was abandoned because of the woman's pregnancy.

"It's difficult to speculate at this time what we will do for the future," Wren said. "We're simply doing all we can to save the child."

Mrs. Cubertson's 6-month-old daughter, Shannon, was in stable condition at St. Anthony's Tuesday with head injuries suffered in the accident.

Father sentenced for false claims

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A father of nine was sentenced to 90 days in jail for fraudulently receiving $52,328 from the state to pay medical bills for two of his children who have since died from a rare blood disease.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Malone Jr. Tuesday also ordered Farah Ammani to make restitution to the state Medi-Cal system.

"It goes without saying that I have great sympathy for Mr. Ammani's family problems," Judge Malone said. "But he did what he did out of desperation but as a calculated move to defraud."

Ammani, a Jordanian immigrant, earlier admitted violating the state Welfare and Institutions Code by falsely claiming he was unemployed and had no assets.

State Health Department investigator Ronald Feitka said Ammani received $53,358 until it was learned he was not indigent but instead had "a lot of assets."

Feitka said the assets included a liquor store, a hillside home he had built and a new car. It was also learned Ammani co-owned a building with his father and that he receives a small pension from the Jordanian army.

Both of the children who died within the last two years were teen-agers.

Weeds cover Buhl nature study area

—BUHL— An environmental study area in Buhl won a state community beautification award for the City of Buhl last year, but city and school officials say the site is not exactly a thing of beauty.

The environmental site, adjacent to the Buhl Elementary School, is full of weeds and trees, planted last spring by small children, are dying for lack of water, School Board Chairman George Atkins told school trustees Monday night.

"We have to get water on the area if we carry it in buckets, use a ditch or a hose," he said.

"Approximately two acres of land were converted to a nature study area under the direction of Charles Humphreys, science teacher of the Buhl School. It was designed to give students of all ages an area where they could observe nature in its true state.

Board chairman Atkins said the area is getting too much "back to nature."

School Supt. Dan Mabe said it appears the effort proved more than was anticipated when Humphreys undertook the project. He said some work parties and other efforts can be arranged.

Atkins said Buhl Mayor Dale Christensen has contacted him, asking what can be done to rid the area of weeds and otherwise improve the appearance.

It was suggested, somewhat in jest, that the area might be given to the city.

A motion was passed to have the board chairman, the science teacher and Supt. Mabe meet with the mayor to see what can be done to beautify the beautification project.

School board members agreed the open air classroom is a good idea but said it requires more effort and time for upkeep than had been anticipated.

In other business Monday night, Buhl High School Principal Dale Thomsberry announced the school's district drama festival winners will go to Welser Saturday.

He said five students will participate in the regional contest this weekend. Winners there will go to state competition in Boise later.

Thomsberry said the school's undefeated football team will play the Bishop Kelley squad this weekend in Boise. He said a large number of Buhl residents will go to Boise to support the home-town team and hopefully bring home the championship title.

Arrangements are being made for buses to take fans to Boise for the event. The Buhl team has won all 10 games it has played this year and had a similar record last year.

'Thief' summons police

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Hickey Varecha took his butcher knife and his steel rod into the grocery and put them on the counter. He told the manager to call police — because he didn't really want to commit robbery.

Varecha, 18, of Brownsville, Tex., told police he hadn't eaten in four days and was hitchhiking through the area when two men offered him a ride, then told him to rob a bank or they would kill him.

"I told them to start killin', because I wasn't gonna rob no bank," he said. But the men then told him to rob a grocery instead. They gave him the knife, the rod and a rubber glove and instructed him to pull the knife on the manager, then hit the man on the head when he turned toward the cash register.

While Varecha went into the store, the two men waited outside. They were later arrested and charged with attempted armed robbery. Varecha, who was held as a material witness, said he knew the situation was awkward.

Ecologists defend Alaskan wolves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ecologists are going to have the state ecologists as well as the wolves to deal with this winter if it carries out its plan to kill hundreds of wolves.

The Defenders of Wildlife organization wrote to Gov. Jay Hammond Sunday to say that

Tutor hired at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Linda Panitz has been hired to complete the duties of a kindergarten teacher at Shoshone.

She was hired at the monthly meeting here Monday night, according to Supt. Kenneth Crothers. She will replace Mrs. Carol Stark who is quitting because of pregnancy.

Board members decided to increase pay for substitute teachers from $15 to $20 per day.

J. Clements, high school principal, discussed hiring a full-time secretary for his school. No action was taken by the board, but trustees agreed to let him a $50 monthly car allowance.

plans to shoot most of the wolves living on 141,000 acres of the Brooks Range, would wipe out some 80 per cent of a subspecies of wolves that lives in Northwest Alaska.

The state says the wolf population must be reduced to help stop a decline in the number of caribou. Restrictions on caribou hunting were ordered this year for the first time.

Efforts by the environmental group to permanently halt state-run wolf kills in Alaska failed in court last year.

Salesmen arrested

BURLEY — Burley police arrested two people Friday evening on charges of violating the city's Green River ordinance.

Candice K. Sholes, 20, Carson, N.D., and Bryan Marten Taber, 19, East Salem, Ore., were arrested after several residents complained about door-to-door sales attempts.

The arrests were made shortly after 5 p.m. Friday on West Main Street. Both have been released on bond.

'Ruler pigeons' fascinate watcher

UVALDE, Tex. (UPI) — For a quarter of a century Dr. J.W. Stewart has found watching the graceful spirals of his flock of "ruler pigeons" provides him with the calm that others derive from tranquilizers, analysts or meditation.

Stewart watches the birds daily and it renews his spirit. The fascination has everything to do with the birds' unique circus-act style of flying.

They fly instinctively in formation in a circular pattern and at a certain point in their upward spiral, the pigeons vault themselves into a backward-somersault and tumble downward.

"There is not a more beautiful sight to me than to see those birds circling against a backdrop of a cloudy sky flipping into a roll downward," said Stewart, who is a Texas A&M University extension entomologist for a 19-county area in southwest Texas.

Stewart started raising pigeons as a hobby when he was 40 years old and recem-

Egyptian mummy shifted to Paris

PARIS (UPI) — Experts at the Paris Museum of Man denied today that the 3,000-year-old Egyptian mummy of Pharaoh Ramses II was suffering from a "diplomatic illness."

Museum administrator Lionel Balout said press reports that the mummy was in no need of restoration and had been brought to Paris in a diplomatic move to improve relations between Egypt and France, were false.

The mummy has been in Paris since the end of September for a complete facelift.

"The mummy shows physical deformities," Balout said. "It is infected with a proliferation of fungi and shows traces of insects and bacteria."

Balout added that the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization issued a report on the alarming state of Egyptian mummies long before Ramses was brought to Paris.

The agreement between France and Egypt to ship Ramses to Paris for beauty treatment was made personally between French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Experts are analyzing the mummy to find the ideal treatment for the ancient face.

Bliss aides hire Hagerman teacher

BLISS — Jim Mechem, Hagerman teacher and librarian, has been hired to conduct driver's training class in Bliss starting in February.

Bliss Supt. Burton Lenker said Mechem will continue in his Hagerman position but "will help us out" in conducting the driver's ed class next semester. He said the two districts have worked together on this project for several years.

Trustees at Monday night's board meeting approved Lenker's attendance at the Northwest Accreditation Association conference in Portland early in December.

A small charge was approved in the school bus route to include some children in town.

Horse's owner sues stable in $2,500 'paternity' suit

WALLED LAKE, Mich. (UPI) — Martha Carleton has filed a $2,500 "paternity" suit against the riding stables where her horse was rendered in a family way by a stallion.

The suit, filed in Walled Lake District Court, cites an 1867 law that holds stable owners responsible for such unplanned romantic interludes.

Miss Carleton, 18, a pre-veterinary student at Michigan State University, alleges that a registered quarter horse, Rocket Tag, got out of its stall at the Colonial Acres Hunt Club in South Lyon and impregnated her horse, Pegasus.

Pegasus, named for a mythical Greek horse with impressive jumping abilities, gave birth four months ago to a palomino colt christened Independent Spirit.

In her suit, Miss Carleton is seeking to recover the fee paid the veterinarian who delivered the colt and punitive damages for the four months she was unable to ride her pet.

"I used to pay $35 a month to keep Pegasus, but now I'm paying $75 a month for the bigger stall to keep them together," Miss Carleton said. "And starting next month, the colt gets its own stall and the cost for both goes to $130 a month."

But despite the increased expense, Miss Carleton wants to keep Independent Spirit. "I don't want to get rid of the colt," she said. "It's very friendly around people."

James Pelky, owner of Colonial Acres, said he had to file a counter suit in the case.

"The suit is improper because I was leasing the place to another stable at the time," Pelky said. "It didn't become Colonial Acres until September of 1975."

"We believe the suit will get thrown out of court. We've worked hard to build a good reputation."

Picnic weather continues in Idaho

Twin Falls, North Side, Burley-Rupert area:
Fair tonight through Thursday. High temperatures Thursday in the mid 50s. Overnight lows tonight in the mid 20s.
Friday's outlook is for dry and mild.

Calhoun Prairie, Halley, lower Snake River Valley:
Fair tonight through Thursday. Patches of night and morning fog. High temperatures in mid 50s Thursday. Overnight lows in the teens.
Friday's outlook — dry, and mild.

Synopsis: Maximum temperatures Tuesday were generally in the 60s across the Magic Valley. Fairfield was the warmest reporting station with 69 degrees. Under high thin clouds and light wind, temperatures were generally in the 20s.

After several days of almost constant weather over southern Idaho, high pressure is continuing to dominate the weather pattern.

There is some rain falling on the northern California coast, associated with a Pacific storm, but only an increasing cloudiness is expected over the Magic Valley from this storm.

Extended outlook for Friday through Sunday: continued dry with mild temperatures. Highs mostly in the upper 50s and overnight lows in the mid 20s.

Parents, teachers confer at Valley

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Parent-teacher conferences for Valley School District No. 262 have been set for Thursday and Friday, according to Supt. Arlyn Bodily.

School in the Eden and Hazelton grade schools and the Valley High School will be dismissed at noon and buses will run at that time. Lunches will be served the students before they leave.

This will leave teachers free to meet with parents both afternoons to discuss student progress and any problem that may have arisen during the past nine week grading period.

Teachers will also be in their rooms from 7:15 p.m. Thursday to meet with parents.

Bodily explained that appointments will not have to be made through the school office or specific appointments, as has been the case in the past. Parents are asked to come to the school at their own convenience during this time and to pick up their child's report card at the office before visiting with the teachers.

Accident victim remains 'serious'

GOODING — A California man remains in serious condition after being struck by a pickup truck while crossing Interstate 80 in Gooding County.

John Hensen, 40, was treated in the Gooding County hospital and transferred to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he was in critical condition Monday but slightly improved Tuesday. He is being treated in the intensive care unit.

He suffered severe injuries to the left side of his body and the left arm was almost torn from his body at the shoulder, hospital officials and sheriff's officers reported.

Gooding County Deputy Sheriff Bill Bunn said the accident occurred on the Interstate 80 three miles west of Bliss at about 10:20 p.m. Sunday. He said the man was reportedly walking in the west bound lane against the oncoming traffic.

A pickup truck, driven by Ivan Rayworth, 36, Washington state, was traveling west. The driver told officers by the time he saw the figure in the traffic lane it was too late to avoid striking him. The driver swerved but could not avoid striking the pedestrian on the left side. Officers said the driver was not injured.

Home ec or vo ag offered at Hagerman

HAGERMAN — Hagerman High School students of both sexes may take either home economics or vocational agriculture.

Supt. Ken Black told trustees Monday night it is necessary for the school district to publicize this fact in order to comply with the anti-discrimination requirements under Title IX.

Some boys have taken home ec in the past, he said, but it was just a boys' class. Now all classes in both subjects must be offered to either sex.

"On other business at the monthly board meeting trustees decided to issue season passes for the high school basketball season at a 20 per cent discount.

Bill Gakley, of the accounting firm of Carrico and Oakley, Gooding, presented the audit, showing the school district's to be in good financial shape.

A land blockade of Berlin's Allied-occupied western sectors began April 1, 1948, when Soviet military authorities refused to permit U.S. and British supply trains to pass through the Soviet zone of Germany. The Allied governments responded by establishing an airlift to supply their garrisons and West Berlin's civilian population. The blockade was lifted Sept. 30, 1949, after British and U.S. planes had airlifted 2,343,315 tons of food and coal.

Gem State's minerals
Settlement of Idaho was spurred by the discovery of silver at Coeur d'Alene in 1884. The state still leads the nation in production of that metal. It also ranks high in production of antimony, lead, cobalt, garnet, phosphate rock, vanadium, zinc and mercury. Total mineral production in 1974 was some $196 million.

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune & Tribune Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: CHICAGO CHICKEN said he was afraid he'd feel like less of a man if he had a vasectomy, and you said, "If you're afraid you'll feel that way, the chances are you WILL." You then suggested that he place the burden of birth control on his wife!

- Abby, you blew it on a number of counts:
- 1. Since when is being a father the ultimate sign of manhood? What does that make males who desert their children?
- 2. Since when should women bear the full responsibility for birth control so the male can feel like a "man"?
- 3. Using your logic and his, does his wife become less of a woman after she loses her ability to bear children?

Abby, how could you?

D. K.

Abby scored

DEAR D. K.: It was easy. Old attitudes die hard. Having been taught by a sewing mother that "Papa comes first," my response was automatic—and admittedly sexist and thoughtless. My apologies to women everywhere who are striving for equality with men.

I'll take 20 lashes with a copy of the Equal Rights Amendment.

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter recently from a well-intentioned woman who suggested that volunteers occasionally take occupants in nursing homes for an "outing" instead of visiting them amid the same four walls they stare at day after day.

My own mother went into a nursing home at age 91, and remained there until she died at 98.

Every Sunday when I took her for a long ride, I'd fill up the car with other residents. Then one day, a nurse asked me if I realized that I would be vulnerable to a lawsuit were I to have an accident with one of the old folks in my car, or if one fell getting in or out of it.

After that, even though my heart went out to the old people, I stopped taking them for rides, but I did visit with them as often as possible.

There is just no good answer to the problem of loneliness there. Mama used to sit outside the door in a rocker, and once when I drove up, I said, "Mother, what are you doing out here? It's cold!"

She answered, "I'm just waiting for you." I kissed her and asked, "How did you know it was Sunday?" She answered, "I didn't. I wait for you every day."

G. W.

DEAR G. W.: Volunteers who visit nursing homes if only to talk with the residents there are offered places of honor in my pantheon of heroes.

DEAR ABBY: Somewhere in a modest home is the luckiest woman alive, and I'm sure she isn't even aware of it.

The OTHER WOMAN usually writes a tale of woe. I am the OTHER WOMAN but I have no "tale of woe" because of a decision I have just made. This wife I speak of is lucky because her children are healthy and well-behaved. They have a pleasant, middle-class home, with good food, good clothes and a good car.

Their lives are great. Her husband is with her and he always will be. If I could tell his wife one thing, it would be to LOVE her husband and let him know it.

He wanted me, and I wanted him, and only God knew how much. But when people are basically good, they refuse to hurt innocent people, especially children. He's the man I've been searching for all my life. I love him and he knows it. But he is HER husband, and THEIR father. And he has integrity. I wish he were mine. But he's not and he never will be.

Thank you, Abby, for letting me say this. I feel better now.

TOOK AN OATH

Dear Dr. Lamb—
My husband died in November of last year of prostate cancer. Previous to his death in three visits to the doctor he didn't receive a prostate examination until the last examination— one out of three and that one too late.

Doctors don't like doing the exam. Men don't like getting the exam. If someone could get the doctors to insist I am sure the fatalities would drop.

Dear Reader—
At the risk of irritating some of my colleagues I must say that if prostates were breasts they would be examined more often. You are absolutely right that many doctors neglect to do a rectal examination. In view of the high rate of cancer of the prostate (third most common cause of cancer death in men) and rectal and colon cancer in both men and women (second most common cause of all cancer deaths) such an omission is inexcusable.

Medical schools have long tried to teach this. A common teaching expression was that "if you don't put your finger in it you put your foot in it." The efforts have been only partially successful.

When the doctor doesn't do a complete examination the only recourse is to ask him why not. Then if he still does not do a rectal examination you should think about getting a different doctor.

It is not all the doctor's fault. Many patients simply do not want the examination. Many men in particular avoid any medical examination at all. Here is where wives can really help. By insisting that the man have an annual checkup and that it be a complete examination she can help avoid disaster. I know it should not be necessary for a mature individual to be reminded that he needs to take steps to look after his own health but when a man does not act in a responsible way such measures are about all that are left.

A man with the responsibility of loved ones and a family also has the responsibility to his loved ones to look after his health and regard it as one of the family's most important investments.

The simple truth remains that more than half of the deaths from cancer of the prostate can be prevented by early detection and proper treatment.

Those who want more information on the Prostate Gland can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
I just wanted to comment on your article about split fingernails and nail polish. I used to have problems with split fingernails but now my nails are long and healthy since I quit using nail polish. I stopped using nail polish last year because the remover made my skin break out in eczema. When I went back to using the polish again for a short while my nails started splitting so I decided that either the polish or remover was causing my nails to split. When I use nothing at all they grow long and seldom break.

Dear Reader—
Thank you and all the other readers who have written in to comment on how their nails have done after eliminating nail polish. While this will not solve everyone's problems with splitting nails it is the first step. So if any more of you out there are having nail problems stop the polish for a while and you may be surprised how your nails improve.

Amy's new school

IF AMY Carter's parents keep their word and send her to public school, the neighborhood school she is most likely to attend is Stevens, this blue and buff-colored brick building five and a half blocks from the White House. Of the 215 pupils, about 10 per cent are black and 30 per cent are Oriental or Hispanic.

Students ready for Amy Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If Amy Carter's parents keep their word and send her to public school, the neighborhood school she is most likely to attend is Stevens, a blue and buff-colored brick building five and a half blocks from the White House.

Stevens was built in 1868 as Washington's first school for "children of color," and integrated after the 1954 Supreme Court desegregation decision. A handsome building surrounded by high-rise offices and apartments, it has been designated a District of Columbia landmark.

It is named after Thaddeus Stevens, a crusading anti-slavery congressman who badgered presidents for "equality of man before his Creator."

Of the 215 pupils, about 10 per cent are white. About 60 per cent are black and 30 per cent are Oriental or Hispanic.

Most of the pupils are poor enough to qualify for free or reduced price breakfasts and lunches, but one pre-kindergarten pupil lives in the Watergate.

Youngsters from 26 countries — children of embassy staffs — are enrolled.

For generations, the school served black families living in Foggy Bottom — the area near the Potomac which got its name from the miasma of the former gas works in the area.

Enrollment fell as real estate prices rose and the blacks' homes were bought for renovation and resale or replaced by office buildings and luxury apartments.

"Mrs. Lydia Williams, the principal at Stevens for 11 years, says the school's children are ready for Amy Carter."

Mrs. Lydia Williams, the principal at Stevens for 11 years, says the school's children are ready for Amy Carter, who attends a predominantly black school in Plains, Ga.

Mrs. Williams says the eighth graders think Amy's classes ought to be held in the White House — and they ought to be invited to attend there.

During the election campaign — and again last week — Carter said Amy would attend public school in Washington if security conditions permit.

Amy would be the first president's child in Washington public schools since Theodore Roosevelt's son, Quentin.

Washington public schools since Theodore Roosevelt's son, Quentin.

Mrs. Jane Harley, school counselor, says the kids have taken in stride the attention they've received in recent days from local television newsmen. She thinks they would adapt easily to the presence of Secret Service men.

Mrs. Harley helps direct an imaginative "extended day" program which keeps the children of working parents in school until 6 p.m., when their parents can pick them up.

With funds from a federal youth program, children as young as 3 are trained in ballet, gymnastics, sewing, carpentry, photography, music and drama. High school and college students teach these activities.

"A handsome building surrounded by high rise offices and apartments, it has been designated a District of Columbia landmark."

The extended day program means children are in school for nearly 11 hours. Nevertheless, the children thrive on it with time out for nap for the youngest. The program is attractive to parents who work in the neighborhood. A few from Virginia and Maryland pay tuition so their children can participate.

"Otherwise they'd be paying babysitters — and paying for ballet lessons besides," says Mrs. Harley. "And at least the parents get a chance to be with their children during the drive to and from school."

In the school's seven high-ceilinged and carpeted class rooms, fifth and sixth graders study together as do third, fourth and fifth graders, second and third graders, and first and second graders, with the older children helping their juniors.

"It started out of necessity — out of budget considerations," says Mrs. Williams. "But it has worked out so well we prefer it that way."

She says some of the teachers are excited by the prospect of the President of the United States learning first-hand the problems of an urban school system — and Washington is one of the most troubled in the country.

Can the boss legally make a pass?

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A federal judge says a boss can make a pass at a female employee without breaking the law, but his company may be liable for sex discrimination if the woman is fired for complaining.

U.S. District Court Judge Herbert J. Stern said Monday Public Service Electric and Gas Co. did not violate federal sex discrimination laws even though a company supervisor allegedly demanded sexual favors from Adrienne E. Tomkins, a former clerk.

But Stern ordered a trial on Ms. Tomkins' complaint that the company fired her in retaliation for her complaint that Herbert D. Reppin, her supervisor, allegedly pressured her to have sex with him to keep her job.

"This court simply cannot view this kind of action as sexual discrimination although it certainly is sexual assault," said Stern who ruled against the company's motion to dismiss the entire suit.

Stern said the federal civil rights act was designed to eliminate discrimination but not deal with sexual assault. He said state courts are the appropriate place to challenge sexual solicitations by employers.

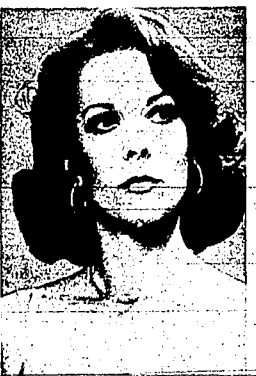

Ms. Tomkins, 31, said she was transferred to another department after she complained. But she said company officials continued to harass her until she was fired 16 months later.

"The situation in which a person is asked to exchange sexual service for continued employment or advancement is uniquely disturbing to women," said Nadine Taub, Ms. Tomkins' attorney. "It is a reminder of the servile status she suffered in former societies."

The state's largest utility argued that Ms. Tomkins was fired because of high absenteeism, the mental and physical anguish she suffered after the incident.

Ms. Taub said that the company's alleged policy leaves a woman with a choice of acceding to a boss's demands or risking the loss of her job.

To make her advancement on the job depend on her sexual performance is to resurrect her former status as man's property or plaything," Ms. Taub said.

Women in the news

Natalie Wood plays "Maggie" in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," the first in a series of major drama "specials" being produced in London under an agreement between Sir Laurence Olivier, Granada Television of Great Britain and the National Broadcasting Corporation of the U.S.A.

A 36-year-old Leningrad-born mezzo-soprano from the Bolshoi Opera Company, Elena Obraztsova, is the sensation of the current Metropolitan Opera season in New York. Singing Amneris in "Aida," she is provoking all kinds of praise from the critics. "Don't miss the Russian!" is the cry in music circles.

President-elect Jimmy Carter, who is pledged to name women to key jobs in his administration, reportedly is considering Alice M. Rivlin, now director of the Congressional Budget Office, to head the Office of Management and Budget.

Jack Watson, who heads Carter's transition team, has already had talks with Miss Rivlin. UPI considers her a strong possibility for the post.

Faye Dunaway stars as the controversial evangelist Althea Simple McPherson in a two-hour drama titled "The Disappearance of Althea" on NBC-TV Wednesday, Nov. 11.

Former ballet star and actress Vera Zorina, 59, will become the artistic director of the Norwegian Opera Company in Oslo next August.

Filming began in Paris Monday on the 20th Century-Fox film of Sidney Sheldon's runaway best-selling novel, "The Other Side of Midnight." Marie-France Pisier will star in the film set against a backdrop of World War II and the post-war period.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Grange will meet at 8 p.m. tonight. The lecturer has a planned program.

BURLEY — The Desert Art Guild of Burley-Rupert will sponsor an art show and sale at the Overland Shopping Center Mall from noon to 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. Artists throughout the Magic Valley will display their work for sale. Sponsors hope to put together one of the winter shows in the Southern Idaho area.

JEROME — The Falls City Civic Club will meet at the home of Alva Williamson at 2 p.m. Thursday. Co-hostess will be Flossie Bell and program leader will be Grace Houston.

The first stewardesses were put on airplanes by Boeing Air Transport, a predecessor of United Air Lines, which assigned eight registered nurses to its flights in 1930.

spades. South took his ace and, after a brief period of study and silent prayer, led a trump to dummy's king. He then finessed for East's queen on the way back, picked it up and claimed his grand slam, since he could check his last spade on the king of diamonds.

"What a silly bid and silly play," said West. "Who ever heard of bidding a grand slam when you've got a finesse." Actually, seven hearts was the right bid. South would make seven if he picked up the queen of trumps. He would only make five if he didn't. Furthermore, West's jump overcall had indicated great length in spades and shortness somewhere else so South was correct in playing for a trump finesse rather than trying for a trump.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand that proves nothing except that bridge is a remarkable game.

South thought of opening with a forcing two bid, but decided his hand was just a trifle too weak for that action. So he settled for one heart. West stuck in one of those preemptive jump overcalls and North decided to jump to four hearts.

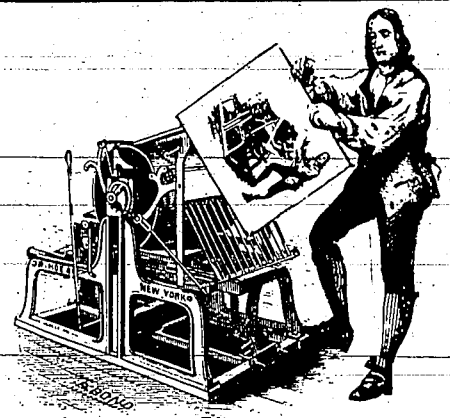

This gave South a chance to move into high gear. He Blackwooded to four and five notrump and went to seven when North showed one ace and two kings. Somehow the other he had forgotten about the queen of trumps when he bid the grand slam.

West opened his king of

She is a member of the Salmon Tract Homemakers Club and her winning entry was a pumpkin cake roll.

Workshops were presented by Linda Blommer on original paintings, prints and framing; Mary Schill, full-line crafts from macrame to sand art, and Nancy Attix, on needlecraft.

During the business meeting conducted by Virginia Eldridge, reports were given on the state convention held in Pocatello in October. Shirley Patterson reported on safety; Helen-Molton, citizenship and family life; Tina Boss, speakers, and Mrs. Eldridge on clothing and nutrition classes.

Lillian Dougherty was appointed secretary to succeed Carole Kassel, who has resigned.

Our Motherland and Other Ventures in Russian Reportage by George Feiler.

For all the intense glare bent by the West on Russia in the years since World War II, it is remarkable how obscure the texture of Russian life remains to all of us who have not seen and experienced it for ourselves.

There seems to be a well-substituted censorship and more "opaque" than "slate" that keeps us less well informed of the quality of ordinary Russian life.

practical jokes, which culminate in murder.

Peter Dickinson has created a world so convincing that one feels it ought to be real, as he blends detail with the fantastic.

The Great Rasca! by Jay Monaghan.

The amazing Ned Buntline, adventurer extraordinary and creator of the dime novel, lived a life more fantastic than that of any of his imaginary heroes.

If he hadn't actually existed and thus become the subject of this lively biography, it is

UN passes resolutions against apartheid policy

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. General Assembly passed 10 resolutions against South Africa's apartheid policy of racial discrimination by landslide margins Tuesday, including demands for arms, trade and sports bans against the white regime.

One of the strongest resolutions, adopted by a vote of 108-11 with 22 abstentions, proclaims "that the racist regime of South Africa is illegitimate and has no right to represent the people of South Africa."

The United States voted against five of the resolutions and abstained on three. The two others were passed by consensus without a vote.

South Africa did not participate in the debate on the resolutions and was not present during the voting.

Among the measures were resolutions calling for an arms, trade and sports embargo against the white minority regime, including a ban on further foreign investments in South Africa.

Another declared that the two liberation movements in South Africa "are the authentic representatives of the majority of the South African people."

Before the vote, Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog strongly objected to one resolution singling out and condemning Israel as a special collaborator with South Africa. Although receiving the smallest vote, the resolution still passed 91-20, with 23 abstentions.

The arms embargo resolution, passed 110-8 with 20 abstentions, asked the Security Council to make a new attempt to impose a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa, Britain, France and the United States killed such proposal last month with a triple veto.

An appeal for a total economic embargo was approved 110-6 with 24 abstentions. It included a condemnation of countries and transnational corporations still trading with South Africa and a request to the International Monetary Fund to stop the extension of further credits to Pretoria.

Cold War easing?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some foreign policy experts believe the Carter administration will face a development that never existed during the Kissinger years — ending or easing of the cold war between China and the Soviet Union.

The experts are reading and analyzing such signals as reduction in the Soviet propaganda campaign against the Chinese and the fact that the Chinese ambassador did not make his customary walkout from the Soviet October Day ceremonies in Moscow.

Ray Cline, former director of intelligence for the State Department and now director of the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies, said the death of Mao Tse-tung was the crucial event.

"It seems plausible to me," he said, "that the disappearance of such a nationalistic and ideological figure will lead to a reduction in the intensity of the conflict. It would be reduced from the theological and ideological level, to a normal dispute between nations."

IRS fails to collect taxes from American Telephone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service, handcuffed by staff and funding limits, has failed to collect nearly $3 billion in taxes from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. since 1966, a former IRS official says.

ATT has used a variety of repair and depreciation loopholes to avoid paying the taxes, Lawrence Sloan says in an article due to be published next Monday in Tax Notes, a tax analysis journal.

But a spokesman for ATT, one of the world's largest corporations, charged Sloan is "completely wrong," and said he apparently misunderstands the complexities of phone company tax regulations.

Sloan said the IRS, because of limited staff, resources and a $593 million budget for auditing all tax returns, is unable to fully audit returns of large companies such as ATT, which has revenues of $26 billion.

As a result, he said, IRS has failed to collect at least $2.940 billion from the telephone corporation since 1966. And he called that "a conservative estimate."

Sloan worked as acting chief engineer of the Manhattan IRS District for nine years, and now is a consulting engineer in Orlando, Fla.

He said it is probable other phone companies also are benefitting from the tax-collecting agency's inability to conduct thorough audits.

Sloan said ATT has escaped paying part of the taxes by claiming improvements in equipment as repairs.

Under law, a corporation may write off repair and maintenance expenses during a year. But Sloan said the phone company in some instances actually was "upgrading" equipment and thus should be taxed.

ATT denied the charge.

"We keep the records the way they tell us to," an ATT spokesman said. "We're following all the laws."

The IRS declined comment, because the agency is prevented by law from discussing the tax status of any individual or corporation.

State legislatures still low on women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment at stake, the proportion of women in state legislatures increased only 1 per cent during the 1976 election, according to figures announced Tuesday.

ERA was a central issue in many state legislative races. The overall outcome was claimed as a victory by both opponents and supporters of the proposed 27th amendment to the Constitution.

The National Women's Education Fund, which compiled the outcome of all elections involving women, reported that 635 women will be serving in state legislatures next year, or 9.1 per cent of the total membership. This represented an increase from 615, or 8.1 per cent.

The number of women increased from 91 to 102 in the state senates and from 523 to 583 in the houses of representatives. Forty-three states elected legislators last week.

Women now hold 27 per cent of the seats in the New Hampshire legislature, the largest percentage in the nation. Connecticut and Washington, which also have elected women governors, are among five states where women comprise over 15 per cent of the legislature.

The ERA survived the state referendum process in Massachusetts and Colorado,

FTC rules souvenirs not misrepresented

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing such oddities as ossified moose excrement and "highly prized" bones from walrus reproductive organs, the Federal Trade Commission ruled Tuesday Alaskan souvenirs are not misrepresented even though they may be made by machines elsewhere.

Commissioner Paul R. Dixon, in the opinion adopted by the commission, decreed that trinkets who buy trinkets in the northernmost state are not being deceived by facsimiles of native artifacts.

The commission dismissed a complaint its staff had brought against six manufacturers and distributors of statuettes and other trinkets for allegedly misrepresenting the products as the work of Alaskan Indians and Eskimos.

The agency said a hearing on the case produced evidence that genuine native Alaskan art costs so much more than the imitations that consumers should be able to tell the difference.

Trade Triumph Despite the rocketing price of petroleum imports, the U.S. experienced a record $11 billion trade surplus last year, the Conference Board observes. The reasons: The inflated price tag on foreign oil reduced U.S. demand to less than 3 per cent over 1974, while commodity imports were slowed by the recession. At the same time, exports were spurred by higher sales to Canada, the undeveloped countries and the "third nations. In 1976, a much lower surplus, or even a deficit, is expected, as the U.S. recovery stimulates demand for imports, while slower-comes-back-abroad muffle exports.

Diet pills criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A panel of medical doctors Tuesday challenged the effectiveness of amphetamine-related pills in reducing weight, and recommended physicians not be allowed to prescribe them for obesity.

The doctors appeared as a Senate small business subcommittee opened a five-day hearing on anti-obesity drugs.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., subcommittee chairman, said in 1975, about 5.5 million prescriptions were written for amphetamines, and 19.9 million for amphetamine-related drugs for obesity. Nelson cited Preludin, fenamine, Tenuate and Voranil as examples of amphetamine-related obesity pills.

Dr. Thaddeus E. Prot, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University, called "a disgrace" the current influence of pharmaceutical companies on physicians.

"If we do not rescue postgraduate and continuing medical education of our physicians from the pharmaceutical houses, our citizens will be even more medicated and undertreated than is true today," Prot said.

Cancer exams may be dangerous

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government should begin warning women they may be exposed to excessive radiation when they undergo X-ray examination for breast cancer, Ralph Nader's health researchers said Tuesday.

Most women under age 50 also should be told the benefits of such examinations, called mammographies, may outweigh the risks, the Health Research Group said in a letter to Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant HEW secretary for health.

The group said the government should revise the "informed consent sheet" which women must sign before undergoing mammographies at 28 federally sponsored screening centers across the country.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the group, said the present form "falls to warn about either the increased risks for women under 50 or the existence of mammography machines which are emitting enough excessive radiation so that the absorbed tissue dose is more than one rad per exam, a danger even to women over 50."

A researcher at the National Cancer Institute told UPI, however, that the "under 50" question no longer is of concern because NCI on Aug. 23 told the centers not to screen women under 50 except in special circumstances. He said the agency is revising the form and will address some of the points Wolfe raised.

As for Wolfe's allegations of excessive radiation doses, the NCI official said "that's uncertain. There just isn't enough information to quantify the risk that much."

Wolfe said the consent form should state:

"I am aware that the X-rays used in mammography increase my risk of developing breast cancer in the future, and I also understand that one study showed no benefit of mammography to women under 50."

The form, Wolfe said, should spell out the conditions when mammography is indicated for women under 50 — previous personal or family history of breast cancer or specific symptoms.

The chief medical officer of the American Medical Society, in the current issue of the society's magazine, said the benefits far outweigh the risks for women between the ages of 35 and 50.

"Mammography is the only means available today to detect cancer at such an early stage before a lump can be felt," said Dr. Arthur I. Hollib, "The theoretical risk of getting breast cancer from the radiation is extremely small, and the advantages of detecting early curable breast cancer very great."

Spelling Them Before Noah Webster compiled his dictionary, he produced one of the most useful volumes ever printed in English, the Blue-Back Speller. Unscrupulous publishers pirated the Speller and reprinted it without payment or credit. This led Webster to devise and champion the federal copyright law, which Congress enacted in 1790 to protect the rights of authors. An 1870 law made the Library of Congress the first central agency for the registration and custody of copyright deposits in the U.S.

Co-op trouble

NEARLY DESERTED Magic Valley Consumer Co-op has suffered financial difficulties despite its use of federal funds and donated labor. Co-op officials are considering restructuring the operation.

TF food co-op faces problems

Members are asked to work only two hours per month, but, according to Markiewicz, there are many exploiters.

The members of the co-op who are still dedicated to the concept of wholesome, cheap foods are currently attempting to deal with the situation.

At a meeting in early October, it was decided by members attending that the co-op should move from present location to a more inexpensive one because of the tight financial situation. Before Nov. 22 the co-op hopes to find a facility costing $50 or less per month for rent and electricity.

At a new facility the co-op plans to deal only in goods bought at bulk rates. Only those goods that afford members savings at a worthwhile markup for the co-op will be bought, according to a newsletter dated Oct. 6. Goods will be individually ordered, unless buyers happen upon a special worth investing in.

All orders will be paid for in advance and a minimum amount of purchase will be necessary to buy at wholesale rates. Thus, members will have to arrange with each other in advance to pay for portions of the minimum allowable purchase.

To facilitate this type of operation, two committees have been formed. A fiscal committee will take care of bookkeeping and finance, and a communications committee will handle notifying members about the new operation and coordinating orders.

Under this system, no goods will be purchased which have not been paid for, no cash flow problems will occur as a result of unpurchased goods sitting on the shelf for long periods of time, and overhead costs will be reduced.

Some co-op members feel, however, that the community service role of the co-op will be impossible to perform under the new system.

Maggi Seipel feels that without a store to operate out of, the number of people using the co-op's purchasing power will be further reduced. The inconvenience of having to order in advance and coordinate with other members to make large purchases and then wait for delivery may drive many of the remaining members out of the co-op, Seipel says.

Man pleads guilty

BURLEY — A Burley man accused of murder received a suspended sentence this week when he pleaded guilty to a reduced charge.

Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood gave Abel DeVilla, 28, a two-year prison sentence, suspended it and placed DeVilla on probation for that period.

DeVilla and Richard Lopez, 20, Burley, had been charged with first degree murder in connection with the July 27 shooting of Evaristo Comacho, 23, Paul. The incident occurred in front of a downtown tavern across from East Park.

Irrigators get edict on AF Dam payments

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Cecil D. Hobbey, attorney for American Falls Reservoir District 2, told the court here Tuesday water users who do not help pay for the reconstruction of the American Falls Dam will be dried water.

Under questioning by attorney James Annest, representing opposing water users, Hobbey said legislation called for the replacement of the deteriorating dam plainly states those water users who decline to help pay the cost and default on payments for one year will be denied water for that year.

Hobbey was one of two attorneys who spent most of Tuesday on the stand in the confirmation hearings for the American Falls dam project. Annest represents a group of individual water users and space holder districts opposing the reconstruction on the basis of costs being paid by water users and Idaho Power Co. Included in the opposing spaceholder districts are the A and B Irrigation District, Mindoka Irrigation district, and the Burley Irrigation District.

Hobbey was a member of the negotiating committee which helped draft the enabling legislation for the dam and prepare contracts which were voted on by individual irrigation districts and companies in January. He explained the agreement with Idaho Power Co.

Should the power company totally default, he said the additional cost would go to the remaining water users. Idaho Power Co. has agreed to pay up to $20 million toward the dam construction in exchange for falling water rights for power production.

Annest represents water users who feel the power company is gaining major benefits at a bargain price and who feel it is the responsibility of the Bureau of Reclamation to replace the dam at no cost to the water users, who are still paying for the original construction costs.

Hobbey said the Committee of Eight, the advisory group on water matters involving the Snake River, felt construction should be started as soon as possible. He said he felt it constituted an urgency that could not wait the 10 to 12 years it would take under government procedure.

Hobbey said there is no security such as a lien on Idaho Power Co. property to assure space holders the power company will meet its obligations.

Roger Ling, Rupert attorney, and a member of the Committee of Eight and negotiations group, explained information which was presented on the contracts prior to the January elections.

He said, "No to Annest's questions about water users having to rely on the news media to obtain information about what the contracts contained and said he explained the contracts step by step in public meetings. Questioned as to the date and specific information given, Ling said he could not recall all the details.

Ling represented the A and B Irrigation District as legal counsel. He said if opposing water users did not have water from American Falls, it would hurt them. But, he said, they have other sources.

"If it needed it and didn't get it, it would hurt," he said, but added they have Fallsades, Jackson Lake and Snake River flow sources as well as American Falls storage.

Annest told the court he has about four additional witnesses to be heard. The confirmation hearings are being conducted before Judge Alfred Hagen, Fourth Judicial District, Boise.

Judge Hagen said three days were set for completion of the hearing but if testimony is not finished by today the hearing will have to be continued at another time.

TF school board criticized by new Citizens Committee

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Citizens' Committee organized to oversee the bond issue to build a new junior high school criticized the Twin Falls School Board last week for an "apparent lack of clear and consistent school district policy."

In an Oct. 25 letter to School Board Chairman Howard Bonk, Citizens' Committee co-chairman Dan Slavin and Bob King began by praising the school district administration for hard work resulting in the passage of the $4.9 million bond issue for a junior high to replace the aging O'Leary school.

Slavin and King also praised district teachers for their support and gave "special tribute" to Twin Falls businessman Earl Falkner for his work on behalf of the bond issue, which passed by about four votes out of more than 5,000 on Oct. 12.

"Tribute to those persons mentioned above is guarded, because to mention a few is to exclude those many persons who did their work in the unglamorous but laborious ways that allow bond issues to pass," the letter continued. "It was the support of the individual within the community that allowed for the passage of that bond issue, and those of us who worked on the issue were the mere instruments of their desire for a new school facility."

The compliments out of the way, the letter

then took the school district to task for lack of a content policy and long-range goals.

Citing the large number of negative votes on the bond issue, Slavin and King wrote, "A substantial number of persons within the community were critical of the proposal, manner of its promotion, the justification for it and the overall prospects for the District over the next several decades."

"The apparent lack of a clear and consistent school district policy seems to summarize the essence of public objection," the co-chairmen continued. "It would be of great value to the community if each board could establish and review long-range plans for plant development and curriculum development."

Slavin and King also suggested the school board "establish and use a standing citizens' committee, established to assist the board in the formulation of school district policy."

"Although contrary to the theory of representative government, selected representatives are often times the last to hear the grievances of the persons upon whom its policies have been imposed," King and Slavin added. "A standing citizens' committee could well serve as an intermediate body to which the public, the teachers, and the board could appeal for a current expression of public opinion."

The co-chairmen then announced the disbanding of the citizens' committee "until again called together at the request of the Board of Trustees."

King said this morning the suggestions for long-range policy and public input were made because of "a lot of distrust or something encountered by citizens' committee members while campaigning for the bond issue."

"It seemed like a lot of people felt the board was trying to pull the wool over their eyes," King added.

"Even among the people who were for the bond issue there were some deep concerns about what's going on in the school district," he said. "The interest is good, but the negative feelings aren't good."

King said the public seemed confused about the course the school district is taking.

"I really think it was a lack of knowledge," he said. "People wanted to know what was the next step. Are they (the board) going to be asking for more? There seemed to be a concern over what our school district holds for the future, not just the buildings but the curriculum, too."

At its regular meeting Tuesday, the board accepted the citizens' committee letter and praised the committee for its work in support of the bond issue. The board took no action on the criticism raised in the letter or the suggestion for a permanent committee.

Buhl delays action on water rate hike

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

BUHL — An ordinance which would increase Buhl city water rates by about 30 percent was tabled Tuesday night until specific monthly charges for two mobile home parks in the city can be computed.

Owners of the parks met with the Buhl City Council to discuss proposed rates. Bruce Foster, owner of one of the parks, said his accounting indicates his rate would be increased about 100 percent instead of 30 percent.

He said if the city needs more money and if everyone is paying 30 percent, he could accept the increase.

"I just think a 100 percent increase is a little too high when the rest of us are having trouble meeting expenses, too," he told the council.

Pooler said he has 36 units in his mobile home court and three water meters. The size of the meters would give him a commercial rating, he said. The individual mobile home residents do not pay for city water. The court owners pay for it, he said.

Rates proposed in the new ordinance, Mayor Dale Christensen said, would bring in about $16,000 additional revenue a year to the city. New sanitation rates would bring in about another $12,000, the mayor said.

"Last year we had about $32,000 deficit spending and except for revenue sharing funds we were able to use in some necessary areas, we would be in the red," the mayor explained.

Proposed water rates would remain at $4 for the minimum usage of 4,000 gallons or less per month. There would be a $2.88 charge for the next 1,000 gallons, a charge of 20 cents for each 1,000 gallons for the next 10,000 gallons, 15 cents per 1,000 for the next 20,000, and 5 and 10 cents per 1,000 gallons over that.

Presently residents pay eight cents per 1,000 for the first 10,000 gallons over the minimum, 10 cents for the next 10,000, and 5 cents above that.

Proposed sanitation increases would go from $2 to $2.50 per month for the residential services. Commercial rates would be charged on the amount of new scale based on the amount of the pick-up and frequency of the collections.

Proposals call for 45¢ per month on light commercial collections, $15 for heavy pickups and $20 for extra heavy loads. This would be for a basic five-day week collection service. The rates would decrease if the commercial user wanted only one, two or four stops per week.

The city sanitation crews would be allowed to determine if the commercial customer was a light or heavy user. Mobile home owners were told if collections were made at each individual mobile home, the cost would be more than if collections could be made at a central point in the court or even at two central points.

Council members will take up the fee question again next week. Christensen said it will be necessary for the council to meet each week now through completion of the 1977 city budget.

The city water rates have not been increased in 12 years, council members said. An average homeowner (the council used the mayor's water billing record for the computation) showed the bill was $62 on 56,000 gallons of water for the past summer. Under the new rates schedule it would increase to $81 per year.

In other business, the council set public hearings for Nov. 30 on the proposed annexation of several parcels of land and the granting of a conditional use permit to Luke's Building Center, Buhl.

The firm has asked for annexation of property at the Burley Corner on U.S. Highway 30 for construction of a new building supply center. Buhl Planning and Zoning Commission members recommended the annexation with a special use permit.

The City Council approved John Priestler, Buhl, associated with the engineering firm of Hamilton and Veeter Inc., Boise, to handle city engineering services on a retainer basis for the coming year.

TF Canal Co. sued by land developers

By KEN HODGE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Developers proposing to transport water to desert lands west of Salmon Falls Creek have filed suit against several shareholders in the Twin Falls Canal Co. (TFCC), charging them with interfering with the group's survey crew.

Canyon View Irrigation, Inc., which plans to transport water through TFCC waterways to a siphon across Salmon Falls Creek, is seeking $75,000 in general and punitive damages plus lawyer's fees for the alleged interference. The suit names Bob Schaer and Ernest

Griggs, both Castleford; W.E. McCoy, Buhl, and others not yet named, charging they "interfered with and refused to allow" a J-U-B Engineers survey crew to "go upon the high-line canal system."

Canyon View, previously denied the right to survey along the canal system, obtained a court order in late July to allow its crew to complete surveys of the canal, but alleges the defendants "have continuously and unobstantially interfered with and obstructed with the attempts" to survey.

The suit also alleges Canyon View was forced to obtain a sheriff's writ of assistance to aid its crew in gaining access to the banks of the canal. According to Bill Block, J-U-B Engineers, the interference included obliterating some of the firm's set control points along the canal banks.

"That costs additional time," Block said about replacing the obliterated marks. "We told the client (Canyon View) and they decided to take legal action."

Block said his crews have now regained access to the banks of the canal system and should finish surveying "within two or three weeks."

Canyon View, proceeding on rights it believes were originally provided for in the TFCC contract, alleges it has right of way to transport its water through the TFCC system.

From the end of the existing system, the corporation plans to siphon its water, about 300 cubic feet per second, across Salmon Falls Creek to its 20,000 acres of desert land for farming purposes.

The plan, under discussion for more than two years, has "brought" emotionally charged arguments from TFCC board members and shareholders who say changes in the canal which may be necessary for transporting the additional water would be detrimental to their water shares as they now stand.

DOCENT volunteer Linda Mickl cradles Samara, a baby female orangutan born at the San Francisco Zoo, as she feeds the youngster in the zoo's nursery. Just a little over three months old, Samara weighs five pounds, 14 ounces. She won't stay at that weight very long, judging from her bulging belly and the way she's reaching for the bottle.

Office will sponsor crime reducing test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Office of Education plans a $3.2 million experiment in using students to help fight rising crime and violence in public schools. It was announced today. The one year project will be financed by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, based on a report earlier this year that vandalism and assaults on pupils and teachers had become a "serious and costly national problem."

The education office will use $1.2 million to form and train teams consisting of seven adults and one student in each of 60 schools to develop strategies for reducing crime. The schools are to be selected later.

Other members of each team will be a school administrator, a teacher, a counselor, a school security officer, a representative of the local juvenile justice system and two community members, and LFAA said.

The teams will receive instruction on such topics as the causes of delinquency, general problem solving techniques, and school security.

The office will administer a second project through its Teacher Corps to involve students, school personnel and community members in reducing crime in high schools in 10 low income areas to be selected later.

LFAA Administrator Richard W. Velde said both programs will deal with alcoholism, drug abuse, violence and disruption in schools. If successful, they will be continued and expanded, he said.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — How is Gerald Ford taking it? Easy, and oh so privately, down at the end of Sand Dunes Road, behind high walls, in great comfort.

He's taking it Southern California style, like a man of comfortable means and secure future who knows that, suddenly, he really doesn't have to answer personal questions or fret about image anymore.

Tucked away for the week in a sun-baked resort called Rancho Mirage, Ford keeps the counsel of his family and a few golfing cronies who might figure in his future plans. He breezes "just" reporters on and off constantly with a smile and a joke, enroute to the links or back to his secluded villa.

And people close to him say he just isn't ready to talk publicly yet about his painful election defeat, or what might have been, or what might be after Jan. 20.

The emblem of this personal recovery period might be the sign that adorns the filligree gates of the clubs around this stunning resort spa: P-R-I-V-A-T-E. And that mood seems to have affected the aides who a few days ago were scrambling to make Gerald Ford the most visible man in America.

When he golfed Monday at a private club where reporters are barred, an irritated reporter — tired of covering an invisible man — asked a press aide whether the club also bars women and minorities. Ford's home club in Washington prohibits women, and that sort of question used to strike sparks.

"I don't know," the aide replied coolly. "And nobody really cares anymore."

The daily press briefings on presidential doings, a matter of course at the White House even on vacation trips, have not so far occurred in Palm Springs. Reporters get pieces of paper announcing tiny scraps of itinerary two or three times a day instead.

It's all part of the mellow wind-up of a presidency, and some parts of it are quite outside Ford's control — little touches here and there, along the vacation path.

The brass band that greeted him Sunday was the Palm Springs High School outfit playing such pop tunes as "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever."

The ranking official there to pump his hand was Palm Springs Mayor Bill Foster.

The crowd, several thousand strong, cheered and waved hand-lettered campaign style signs all right — but they bore such messages as, "Enjoy the Sun."

An aide said Ford in Palm Springs would begin, just begin, to sort out his future in private life: where he might settle, what profession or avocation he might take up, as the "obit" statesman of his party and of his nation.

Generous pension benefits assure that he'll have few money worries. If he decides to settle in Palm Springs — a favored Ford vacation spot — he'll be welcomed by old friends among its elite citizenry, including the men he is golfing with right now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make a stronger effort to improve your career activities and get excellent results. Strive to be more efficient at your work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Fine day to study advanced ideas that will help you become more successful in the future. Don't be too extravagant today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to carry through in fine style with new obligations you have assumed. Express true devotion to mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discuss future business plans with associates and come to the right decisions. Try to reconcile with one who has opposed you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make constructive plans that will add to your income. Avoid one who is not thinking straight and could get you into trouble.

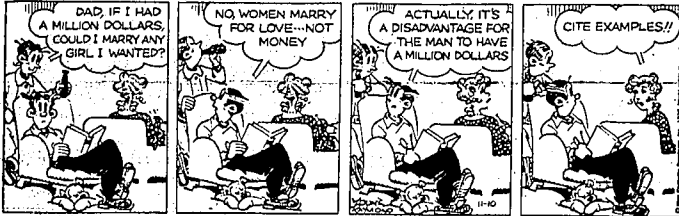

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Express your creative ideas in the morning. Show more affection for your favorite way of one who is jealous of you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will be one who easily comprehends the emotions of others. The field of sailing is very fine here, and the practical side of life should be stressed. Give good religious training and the benefit of healthful sports early in life.

Maybe you've read about the Japanese undersea tunnel that stretches two and a quarter miles between the islands of Honshu and Kyushu. Overhead, there's a six-lane suspension bridge there now, too. But do you know why the Japanese built the tunnel first instead of the bridge? Because back in the 1930s, the Imperial Navy realized the Emperor might be aboard one or another of the ships that moved through the passageway, and officers decided it would be unseemly for commoners to be permitted to achieve altitude over the Emperor's head. About 27 years after World War II reduced the Emperor to human dimensions, the bridge was finally built to relieve the traffic bottleneck that the tunnel had become.

WHY DOGS BARK

Q. "How do you account for the fact that nobody has ever explained why tame dogs bark but wild dogs don't?"
A. What's so mysterious about that? Barking is a good way for a dog to attract attention to itself. Tame dogs sort of enjoy it. But wild dogs are afraid of it. Suppose the characteristic has been bred over the generations as a result of that thing called genetic memory. Take the more recently domesticated dog, for instance. Like the African basenji and Australian dingoes, they still don't bark, even though they could, if so inclined.

If you don't like the smell of mothballs, try sprinkling whole cloves around wherever in storage you want to beat the bugs. They work, too.

Up to about 300 years ago in China, according to the historical footnotes, marijuana had been used only as a remedy for dysentery.

GLASSES

The original drinking glasses in England were hand-blown into spherical shapes without flat bottoms. They couldn't be set down without spilling whatever was in them. This suited a lot of drinkers, presumably, because they didn't want to put those glasses down anyhow. But it also gave large drinking glasses a tag that stuck to this day, namely tumblers.

Researchers now name The Netherlands, where more than 50 per cent of all babies are born at home, as the place with the lowest infant mortality rate worldwide. In the United States, where more than 95 per cent of the newborn infants arrive at hospitals, that death rate is said to be highest worldwide.

When the surveytakers asked parents nationwide if they derived any pleasure out of guiding their offspring through adolescence, about 7 per cent said no, none, not a bit.

Contrary to previous report, the name "Mata Hari" in Indonesian means "eye of the day." I'm informed by one who should know.

North-South grid playoff planned

JEROME — The Cross State Conference has entered into a playoff agreement with the Inland Empire League.

Under the agreement, reached today by telephone, each league will send its champion and runner-up to Moscow for a playoff in the Kibbedome.

There had been a chance of the playoffs reaching fruition this year with Jerome having a shot at one of the spots. But the Inland Empire representatives said Tuesday that due to a three-way tie this year, they had opted for an intra-conference game.

Denver stays unbeaten

DENVER (UPI) — Center Dan Issel scored a season-high 34 points and teammate David Thompson added 25 as the undefeated Denver Nuggets struggled to 123-117 victory over the Golden State Warriors Tuesday night, boosting their NBA win streak to eight games.

Their combined performances were needed to offset the play of guard Phil Smith, who scored 43 points for the Warriors, whose record slipped to 9-5. Smith scored 23 of his points in the second half.

The Nuggets, playing before a sellout crowd of 17,577, trailed by as many as 14 points in the first quarter. They outscored Golden State 37-22 in the second period, and dominated the backboards with a 21-6 rebound margin to hold a 61-57 halftime lead which they never lost.

Spurs belt Seattle

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Forwards George Gervin and Larry Kenon combined for 47 points and San Antonio overpowered Seattle 138-114 in a NBA game Tuesday night.

Gervin hit 24 points and Kenon scored 23 as the Spurs took the lead on their second possession and never trailed, leading by 18 points near the end of the first quarter and by 30 points in the third quarter.

San Antonio shot 57 per cent from the floor and capitalized on 40 of 48 free throws, although they were out rebounded 52-44.

Cavs trim Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Campy Russell scored 25 points and Austin Carr 22 Tuesday night to lead the Cleveland Cavaliers to their ninth win in ten games, 111-90 over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Bucks, playing without injured Bob Dandridge, lost their fourth straight and have only two wins in 11 games.

Cleveland led 61-43 at the half but led by just eight at 60-52 midway through the third quarter. But Jim Chones and Jim Brewer then combined for 10 straight points while the Bucks scored just two for a 70-54 lead.

Jazz whips Nets

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Guards Pete Maravich and Gall Goodrich combined for 32 points and sparked a fourth-quarter rally Tuesday night to give the New Orleans Jazz a 110-99 win over the New York Nets.

Trailing by one point at the start of the fourth quarter, the Jazz outscored New York 36-24 to move their record to 6-5.

Maravich finished with 24 points, 18 of them in the second half and Goodrich has 28 points, 15 of them in the fourth quarter.

New York's Nate "Tiny" Archibald had 29 points, but managed only eight of them in the second half as the Nets dropped their seventh game in 11 starts. Larry McNeill added 21 points for the Nets.

Rockets beat Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mike Newlan scored 25 points to lead the Houston Rockets to a 111-92 National Basketball Association victory over the Chicago Bulls Tuesday night.

"It was Chicago's fifth straight loss. The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for the Rockets.

Houston held a 61-51 lead at the half and receded after four straight points in the closing minutes of the third quarter to build an 84-70 lead going into the final period.

In the final quarter Houston outscored Chicago 27-22 to win going away.

Knicks drop Bullets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ho Layton and Walt Frazier led a drive midway through the second half Tuesday night which enabled the New York Knicks to break away from a 65-60 tie and go on to a 106-77 victory over the Washington Bullets.

Layton scored eight of his 14 points and Frazier six of his game-high 23 as the Knicks outscored the Bullets 20-10 to go ahead 88-78 with 8:25 to go. The Bullets never got closer than six points after that.

Sharing honors with Layton and Frazier was 6-foot-8 23-year-old rookie Lonnie Shelton, who outplayed veteran Walt Unsell by a wide margin and scored 14 points for the Knicks. The Knicks played without Spencer Haywood, who is out at least five games with a leg injury, and Bill Bradley, suffering tendinitis in his right knee.

Prater TKOs Ortiz

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Tom Prater of Indianapolis scored a technical knockout over Mongol Ortiz in the third round of a scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight Tuesday night.

Prater, who weighed in at 203½ pounds, took charge from the opening bell, throwing punches to Ortiz's head and body, and bloodied the 225½-pounder's nose early in the fight.

The referee stopped the fight when Prater cornered the defenseless Ortiz against the ropes in the third round.

Howes eye New England

HOUSTON (UPI) — George Bolin, chairman of the board of the Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, said Tuesday he has given permission to the Howe family to talk to the New England Whalers of the National Hockey League about a possible contract.

The Howes—Gordie, Mark and Marty—have a no-trade clause written into their contract with the Aeros and could not be traded or sold without permission.

Simionescu seeks asylum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Romanian tennis player Mariana Simionescu, who says she is engaged to wed Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, said Tuesday she is seeking political asylum in the United States "because I want to be free."

"Life is very difficult in Romania," Simionescu, 20, said in a telephone interview. "I want to be free to talk about the government, which I cannot do in Romania."

Ducks Unlimited banquet slated Friday

TWIN FALLS — Another go at a record is planned Friday night when the annual Magic Valley Ducks Unlimited banquet is held at the Holiday Inn.

It is the fifth annual affair and the records have fallen each year. This time around it may be a little more difficult since last year's banquet netted over $24,000. All the money, excluding the expense of the meal, is used for the preservation and production of North America's migratory waterfowl population.

Friday's night shindig will start at 6:30 p.m. with a no-host cocktail hour and the meal will be served at 8 p.m., reports Dick Capps, publicly chairman.

Capps said the banquet committee has rounded up 75 raffle items that have an average value of $40. All have been contributed by area businessmen.

The door prize will be a television electronic game, provided by Jensen's Jewelers of Twin Falls.

Highlighting the auction will be a Super X model 10 Winchester 12-gauge shotgun, a special production number made by that company for Ducks Unlimited. The serial number of the shotgun to be auctioned off here Friday night is 142. A total of 950 of the special numbers will be made and the gun will not be reproduced in the future, making it a collector's item.

In addition, some waterfowl paintings, from some of the best known artists in the world, will be auctioned off.

Ducks Unlimited is a 35-year-old organization of duck hunters from throughout the continent. The sportsmen have contributed many millions of dollars to preserve and restore habitat and wetlands or "duck factories" as the group likes to call them.

Most of the money is spent in the prime waterfowl production areas of Canada.

DUCKS Unlimited

Auction highlight — DUCK PAINTINGS, similar to the cover of the Ducks Unlimited quarterly magazine, will be among the highlights of an auction Friday night at the annual DU banquet at the Holiday Inn.

Oakley, Hagerman face fifth district tests

POCATELLO — Oakley and Hagerman carry the Magic Valley Conference banner into the midnight tonight for a football doubleheader.

In the traditional winter playoff between the Magic Valley league and the two-division fifth district alignment.

Hagerman, which has the No. 2 designation although it tied with Oakley in the final standings, will take on Aberdeen about 6:15 p.m. Wednesday. Oakley takes on Westside in the nightcap.

Aberdeen takes a 27 record against Hagerman but that is misleading because the fifth district conference, excluding Westside, is made up of schools all considerably larger than the Magic Valley Conference.

"We understand they'll be considerably bigger than us. They have one man about 240 pounds and we don't have anyone nearly that size," Coach Ron Knowles said. "I'm also told they prefer to run the ball and don't press much."

The Pirates' offense may be down a little with running back Guy Peterson nursing a badly bruised elbow. "He'll play," Coach Knowles said, "but with that elbow he's had a little trouble hanging onto the football in practice this week."

Other than that Coach Knowles calls his team about as healthy as could be expected after a full season.

Oakley figures to have a tough battle against Westside, Magic Valley Conference coaches recall last year the Pirates played to within 18 points of Murtaugh, which was the undefeated champion, and returns most of the players from that squad.

"If they are as good as Murtaugh was last year, they'll really be tough," Coach Knowles said.

TF fish hatchery plan still in limbo

TWIN FALLS — Possibility of Twin Falls fish hatchery becoming a CSI vo-tech classroom still remains unsettled.

Orval Bradley, director of CSI's vo-tech program, met Tuesday night with the Twin Falls Fish and Wildlife Conservation Corporation and said he was unable at that time to confirm use of the corporation-owned facility to teach fish culturing to students.

Bradley said as yet the new program has not been funded, but he added the cost from the college's point of view does not seem prohibitive. He said projections indicated funding may occur early in the next calendar year, but he didn't know for sure.

"We definitely are going to have a training program," Bradley stated. "We (college officials) have inspected the site. But right now I can't give you a firm commitment because there are some intangibles left on our side. We need to come up with a little more solid groundwork."

Bradley said he was hopeful of arriving at the point whereby a workable agreement could be discussed in December.

Later Bradley said the training program has the blessing and full cooperation with the large fish-raising industry in Magic Valley. He noted commercial growers have been helpful in all aspects of planning and committed themselves to strong support if the project got off the ground.

He said this support had been manifested by offers of turning over certain facilities for use by the class.

"This (the Twin Falls hatchery) would be ideal because of its location and proximity to the college," he said.

Concerning the matter of perhaps selling the fish to help offset the cost of the project, Bradley said, "That could be done, but that would be putting us in direct competition with the same people who have gone out of their way to help us. Putting them in a stream somewhere for residents to catch seems a much better solution to us."

He added he had no idea of how many fish would be raised for classroom purposes.

The sportsmen reaffirmed their position of maintaining ownership of the hatchery, mixing rumors that is possibly might be sold. They're primary fear was an interim period when the Idaho Fish and Game Department leaves the hatchery until supervision is restored by some other group.

"They noted it couldn't be shut down because winter frost heave could destroy the raceways. There also was a fear of immediate and heavy vandalism once any caretaking type presence was gone."

Don Zuck reported on public hearings conducted on agricultural claims for federal land in the Burley division. He noted the organic law now has passed Congress. The new enactment giving recreational and environmental aspects billing equal to that of agriculture, mining or grazing. He said the law provides guidelines on matters which heretofore had been governed by bureaucratic directives.

Filer's Shaffer tops SCIC ballot

Buhl provided most of the backfield and Jerry Shaffer of Filer was the only man named to go both ways in the All-South Central Idaho conference football team Tuesday.

The coaches selected the players during a meeting.

Shaffer, a three-year starter for the Wildcats, was named as an offensive tackle and a down lineman defensively by the league coaches.

Buhl contributed quarterback Cary Schmeckpeper and runningbacks Chris Bell and Keith Meltzer to the backfield. The coaches also named Steve Gause of Jerome and Stan Franks of Mountain Home to the backfield.

The offensive line includes, center, Bryan Ford, Jerome; guards Roger Shaddy, Buhl, and Solomon Taylor, Mountain Home; tackles, Jerry Shaffer, Filer; Ken Robinette, Jerome, and Bruce Grass, Mountain Home, and ends, Jim Buelter and Kirk Hall, both Gooding, and Ken Hulce, Buhl.

Offensive honorable mentions went to Craig Bell, and Greg Stowe, Buhl; Randy Andrus and Dave Hove, Jerome, and Jim Thomas, Mountain Home.

Defensive unit includes down linemen, Jerry Shaffer, Filer; Greg Callen, Jerome; Ron Peterson, Buhl, and Mike Thomas, Mountain Home; ends, Dale Butterworth, Buhl, and Steve Rlsner, Mountain Home, and linebackers, Craig Lincoln and Brian McGregor, both Filer; Dave Graves, Gooding, and Lynn Knudsen, Mountain Home.

Halfbacks, Greg Thibault, Jerome; Allyn Reynolds, Buhl, and Tim Hickman, Mountain Home. Placement kicker, Penj Berriochio, Mountain Home, and punter, Richard Sturgeon, Jerome.

Honorable mentions went to Jeff Mantey, and Bob Parke, both Mountain Home; Brice Berry, Jerome, and Jeff Hepworth, Buhl.

SCIC's future will be settled Tuesday

BLISS — The future of the South Central Idaho Conference will be decided Tuesday.

That's when officials from the member schools get together to complete a discussion about an alignment that netted Little Tuesday. Chances of the conference appear bleak for several reasons.

Not the least was the dictum set down by the Filer School Board that the Wildcats would not be allowed to schedule Mountain Home in the future. Gooding also indicated during the meeting it may not re-schedule the Tigers. In addition, Jerome officials quoted Filer officials as saying Filer probably would not have Jerome on its schedule anymore.

Tuesday also will be the day that Wood River will say if it is going to have a football varsity next year. The Wolverines had to cancel this year's season due to a poor turnout and with most of that crop being graduated.

A matter of varsity next fall still isn't certain.

That would leave only Buhl, Mountain Home and Jerome apparently capable and willing to play a full conference schedule.

Filer Principal and Athletic Director Ed Marshall explain the Wildcats' position Tuesday night. "We have our 233 students and they have over 1200 now. I asked (Coach Dick) Pease if this announced change at the six base was going to affect their enrollment one way or the other next year and he said he didn't know. Our board doesn't feel we can compete with schools that size."

"We're playing in a playoff game" this Saturday (against Homedale as a representative of the Big Six Conference) and this is the first time Filer has won a championship in football since 1948. And it was a three-way tie," Marshall continued.

"It would be nice to have something arranged, something like an SCIC, because it's difficult to schedule games. We have to get a decision one way or another now because all schools are lining up next year's game right now," he said.

Meanwhile, it appeared the Buhl Indians were not ready to jump into the Cross State League as might be expected. That would be barring expansion, although the league is rife with growth rumors now.

If the Cross State remained the same size, the possibility of enticing Bishop Kelly and Vallivue out of the SRVA league and into the SCIC is being explored.

Membership in the Cross State was enhanced Tuesday with the announcement of a playoff agreement between the alignment and the Inland Empire Conference of Northern Idaho. The two will send their champions and runners-up to a doubleheader in the University of Idaho's Kibbedome starting next year. The Inland Empire indicated the southern teams could anticipate something in the area of a $1500 guarantee (apiece) if projections worked out.

Agase relishes victory over Michigan with coaching award

WEST LAFAYETTE, IND. (UPI) — Alex Agase was grinning from ear to ear.

His Purdue Bollmakers had just stunned the football world with the upset of the season, a 16-14 victory over No. 1 Michigan.

For Agase and his outfit, it was vindication. A week earlier they were humiliated at Michigan State, 45-13.

For Saturday's shocker against Michigan, Agase was named UPI's "Coach of the Week."

"This is a wonderful honor," he said, "but this award is simply a tribute to the entire Purdue organization. It was a great team effort, a truly magnificent effort by both offense and defense."

After the Michigan State game, Agase took his players to task.

"We were lousy," he said. "It was embarrassing. I promised them we would play much better against Michigan."

Purdue had respect to regain.

"Our kids regained it tonight," he said in retrospect.

Purdue, which had lost its last three games, made no special preparations for the Wolverines, Agase said.

"I knew it would be a tough football game," he said. "In a game like that, ball control is most important. Michigan's defense is so potent."

Purdue, led by Scott Dierking's pair of touchdowns, took a 13-7 halftime lead and a lot of confidence into the locker room.

"They were quite exuberant. They acted like they wanted to keep on playing," Agase said. And they did.

The defense ruse and hammered Michigan's Bob Lytle and Hank Hockley on pileouts. Purdue threw up a goal line stand on the one yard line and forced quarterback Rick Leach to fumble the ball and lose 14 yards on fourth down.

And Rock Suptan, who became a kicking specialist by necessity rather than by design, booted the game-winning field goal with 4:20 left to play.

How to avoid Viks?

SEATTLE (UPI) — Bob Lurtsema, the defensive lineman who made the nickname "Benchwarmer Bob" a household word when he was a Minnesota reserve, was telling the Seattle Seahawks how to prepare for their Sunday game with the Vikings in Bloomington.

"The only thing I can suggest is to pull a hamstring in practice this week," he said with a straight face to rookie defensive tackle Steve Nelhaus.

Nelhaus will face Ed White, a 290-pound guard rated by Lurtsema as the best offensive lineman in the NFL. And the other Seahawks will meet nearly as much trouble.

"It's not fair to compare our team with an established team like Minnesota," said Seahawk Coach Jack Patra. "When you look back on some of the teams we've played Los Angeles, Dallas, St. Louis and San Francisco, they've just used us for practice."

Patra said it would only be "by some miracle maybe we can be in contention throughout the whole game."

Six southern teams given chance to land college football bowl bids

ATLANTA (UPI) — College football's post-season bowl picture is beginning to come into focus with at least a half-dozen Southern teams in contention.

Sixth-ranked Georgia, 7th-ranked Maryland, 12th-ranked Alabama, 15th-ranked Florida, North Carolina and East Carolina are all solid candidates and you have to figure that Louisiana State will probably be added to that list if the Bengals beat Mississippi State this weekend.

The four top bowls shape up this way:

Rose Bowl — The winner of the game between 2nd-ranked UCLA and 3rd-ranked Southern California will play the winner of the game between 4th-ranked Michigan and 8th-ranked Ohio State.

Orange Bowl — 9th-ranked Nebraska still must wait for a bid while Iowa State and 14th-ranked Oklahoma bid to win the Big Eight and play a top-ranked Pittsburg State this weekend.

Sugar Bowl — Georgia is expected to represent the Southeastern Conference with probable Atlantic Coast champion Maryland the most likely foe.

Cotton Bowl — The winner of the game between 5th-ranked Texas Tech and 14th-ranked Arkansas is expected to represent the Southwest Conference against Alabama, if the Crimson Tide beats Notre Dame Saturday.

Except for the automatic invitations which go to conference champions, none of the bowl berths are supposed to be announced until Nov. 20.

Any delay in firming up the big four could hold up action on the other eight certified by the NCAA for this year — Gator, Astro-Bluonnet, Liberty, Sun, Fiesta, Peach, Independence, and Tangerine.

But, look for a wild scramble after the top four are firming up.

Florida, which could wind up 9-2, now looks like the leading candidate for the Gator Bowl and figures to face the Big Eight runner-up. And you can look for 11th-ranked Houston and the Arkansas-Texas Tech loser to host the Astro-Bluonnet and Sun Bowls.

You've got to allow berths for the UCLA-Southern Cal and Michigan-Ohio State losers, and reevaluate Notre Dame if the Fighting Irish, who barely beat Navy and lost to Georgia Tech the past two weeks, should bounce back against Alabama. But any decline on the Irish, if they beat Alabama, probably will limit the outcome of their visit to Southern Cal on Nov. 27.

The Orange Bowl figures it has the inside track to Pitt, but the way the upsets have been happening in the Big Eight, Nebraska's lead is shaky, at best. Six of the Big Eight teams are still in the running for the other berth in Miami since Nebraska, with two conference games to play, has a 4-1 league record and the other five are all 3-2.

Georgia (at Auburn) and Florida (at Kentucky) are favored to win Saturday. But, if both should be upset, Alabama would back into the Sugar Bowl picture and force the Cotton Bowl to change its plans.

The Peach Bowl would like to get North Carolina, expected to wind up 9-2, but is ready to settle for South Carolina, expected to be 8-3, especially since the independent Gamecocks have always brought pretty good crowds to Atlanta. The Peach Bowl also would like LSU, if the Bengals keep winning and are available.

Some of the smaller bowls annually wind up with teams that suffer late-season losses and wind up with less favorable records because of an unwillingness to delay bids until the end of the regular season.

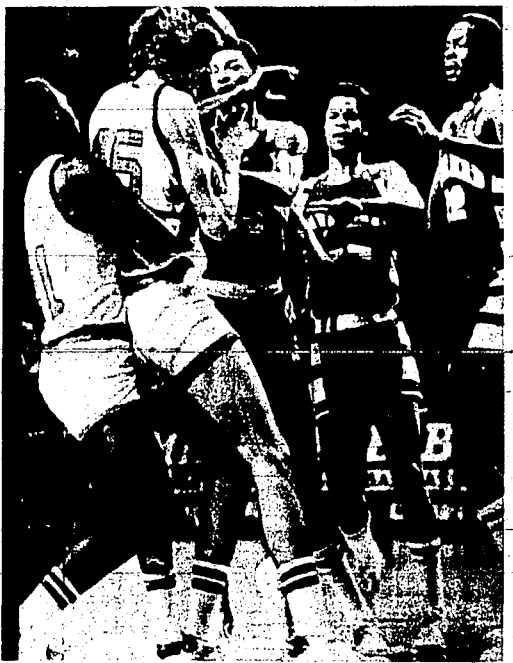

These bowls fear that any such delay would cost them any chance at the teams they'd like to have, so they gamble, and hope.

There have been previous efforts to hold the bowl rush to a deadline. But they've never been successful. A few years ago, all the bowls except the Rose Bowl — locked in with the Big Ten and Pac 8 champs — made such an agreement at an island meeting off the Georgia coast.

One bowl allegedly jumped the gun — and the others quickly followed.

There also have been efforts to change the bowl format, to use the bowls as a post-season playoff such as the NCAA has for basketball. It has been suggested that the top eight college teams be included with four bowls, or quarter-finals, in mid-December; two bowls, or semi-finals, a week later; and a final bowl on New Year's Day to decide the national college championship.

The bowl people have led opposition to that idea. So, the scramble goes on.

Dorsett assumes rushing lead

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett has moved into the NCAA division I rushing lead for the first time this season and the senior halfback is now closing in on the major college career scoring record as well.

Dorsett, whose 212 yards against Army last Saturday gave him a 169.4 yard per game average and the national rushing lead, needs 29 points in his last two games to break Army's Glenn Davis' career scoring total of 354 points.

Dorsett, who holds a 4.5 yard per game lead over defending rushing champion Ricky Bell of Southern Cal, can set three records and reach two other goals if he has outstanding days in remaining games against West Virginia and Penn State.

Hockey ban appealed

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The executive director of an amateur hockey organization Tuesday appealed a western collegiate hockey association order preventing athletes in 10 universities from competing in international games in Czechoslovakia.

Hal Trumble, director of the amateur hockey association of the United States, said he asked the executive committee of the WCHA to review its decision.

That ruling prevents junior-aged hockey players at the 10 WCHA schools from competing in the 1977 international Ice Hockey Federation world championship for juniors beginning Dec. 22, 1978, in Czechoslovakia.

Schools in the WCHA are Michigan Tech, Michigan State, Minnesota, Michigan, Notre-Dame, Colorado, Colorado College, Wisconsin, Denver, Minnesota-Duluth and North Dakota.

Helping wrong guy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Third-ranked University of Southern California, which suffered its only loss to Missouri 46-25 in the season opener, feels its remarkable climb back to the top could lead to a national championship.

"We have a tremendous opportunity to become the No. 1 team in the nation," first-year coach John Robinson declared at his weekly news conference Tuesday.

"If we beat the teams ahead of us, Washington, UCLA and Notre Dame, and with a possible bowl game ahead, we have an opportunity to be No. 1."

Right now, there is no great team in the nation. But one may emerge with the big games coming up.

The Trojans, who have recorded shutout wins over Oregon, Iowa and Oregon State on route to their 7-1 mark, host the Washington Huskies Saturday at the Coliseum. The Huskies beat USC 8-7 at Seattle last season.

"Washington is a good football team," Robinson said. "They remind me a lot of Purdue, (which lost to USC 31-13). They can run and they're very physical. They are one of the teams capable of pulling off a major upset because they can control the ball with the run and come up

USC sees chance to become No. 1 team

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Defending champion and top-ranked University of Northern Michigan was selected Tuesday to participate in the 1976 national collegiate division II football championship by members of the NCAA Division II football committee.

Northern Michigan (10-0) faces Grand Valley state this Saturday to close its regular-season schedule. Coah G.H. Kwevack's team has an 18-game victory streak after winning its final eight games en route to the National Championship in 1975. The Wildcats have been ranked first in the NCAA division II poll all season long.

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Giants, nine games deep into the worst losing streak in club history, may be without starting quarterback Craig Morton when they take on the Washington Redskins Sunday.

Morton suffered a severe rug burn on his right elbow on the artificial turf at Texas stadium in the Giants' 9-3 loss Sunday to the Dallas Cowboys. The elbow was drained of about a pint of fluid that night, and New York coach John McVay said it will probably have to be drained again sometime later in the week.

Morton did not practice Tuesday and was not expected to take part in any passing drills Wednesday. He was listed as questionable for the game against the Redskins.

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders announced Tuesday night end Ted Kwalick has undergone knee surgery in Los Angeles and is finished for the 1976 season.

Kwalick was operated on the left knee by Raiders club doctor Robert Rosenfeld, who said the surgery was successful and that Kwalick will not be able to play until next season.

Kwalick suffered ligament damage in Sunday's 22-27 victory over the Chicago Bears. He was hurt in the third quarter when the Raiders had three tight ends in at the same time in a short yardage

Lack of hands doesn't bother Speckman

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Twice in his football career, Mark Speckman has been called for holding. On both occasions, he says, the officials made mistakes.

"Don't get me wrong," he explains. "Every offensive lineman is guilty of holding occasionally. Sure, I've been guilty when I've been on offense. I just wasn't caught when I was guilty."

"There was this one time in high school. The defensive player was swinging at me and I was pushing him away. They called me for illegal use of the hands. I thought it was a terrible call."

Speckman, a two-year starting linebacker at Azusa Pacific, was born 21 years ago in Belmont, Calif., without hands.

"The doctors had no explanation for my parents."

But Speckman says the only thing he can't do in football is tie his shoes.

"I was lucky to be born this way," Speckman said. "I never got used to having hands, so I don't miss them. A lot of Vietnam veterans who are amputees are having problems adjusting. I've never had any problems playing sports. My dad and my brothers were always positive about it. It's just something that I didn't think twice about."

"For you and me," Azusa Pacific Head Coach Jerry Sorce said, "Mark is unique because he has no hands and plays football. Well, I've never met as neat a guy as he is. He's a fine gentleman who's extremely well adjusted."

"I remember the first day Mark came to practice with us last season. He got dressed and sat on the steps. Well, the first kid by kind of looked at him and his shoes, and Mark said, 'How do you think I'm going to tie them?'"

Azusa Pacific lists itself as a Christian college of liberal arts and the Bible. Located 15 miles east of Pasadena, site of the Rose Bowl, the school has an enrollment of 1,300 and faces a schedule of NAIA Division III opponents.

Speckman is deeply religious.

"I could always relate pretty well with my peers," he said. "During high school, I did have a little trouble with the way I felt about myself. It was just a little social hangup. That's a pretty tough stage to go through anyway.

"Then I became a Christian. I accepted Jesus Christ into my heart. I realized that God had a plan for me."

A 6-foot, 185-pounder, Speckman began playing football in a Pop Warner program in Belmont when he was 11.

He played football all four years and was a starter for two seasons at Carlinwood High School in Belmont. After that, he played football for two years at Menlo College in Menlo Park, Calif., before transferring to Azusa Pacific.

Speckman led Azusa in tackles last season as the Cougars posted a 7-3 record. He's the team's No. 1 tackler again this season, but the Cougars have lost four of their first seven starts.

An accomplished trombone player, he moved from northern to southern California on a music and academic scholarship.

Engaged to Melanie Baugh, an Azusa Pacific junior, Speckman wants to become a high school teacher.

After Azusa's last two games, his football career will be over. But not because of his hands.

"Since I'd like to play in the NFL," Speckman said, "but I'm just too small. Otherwise, I don't see any problems. In a lot of ways, having no hands has helped me in football."

"A lot of players just hand tackle, especially in high school. I never could do that, of course. So I had to develop quicker feet so I could get in front of the guy I was going to tackle."

Of his impending marriage, he says:

"I've been told by several doctors that it's not hereditary. We have faith that they're right and we plan to have children. But I feel if God wants another child to be born like I was, that's fine. That would be his plan. The girl I intend to marry could handle it better than I could."

"The other kids used to kid me all the time," he recalled. "They'd call me things like Capt. Hook. You know, hook kids and they can tease you pretty bad and they can be awfully cruel. In high school, other players have said things, too, but that didn't bother me and I don't remember what they said."

"People still stare at me but I'm used to it now. When you go to hand somebody something, they always look a little shocked. But I guess I stare, too."

"I don't use the word handicap any more. There are a lot of people with better physical builds — bigger, stronger and faster — that are more handicapped than I am because of something inside of them."

Neumann waived

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Braves waived guard Johnny Neumann Tuesday after placing him on indefinite suspension a day earlier.

The Braves said Neumann was suspended for "repeated misconduct detrimental to the club."

The team announced the waiver without comment.

DEFENSIVE CAPTAIN Mark Speckman, Azusa Pacific College, is shown as he lines up his teammates. Speckman says he's been called twice for holding but the officials made mistakes both times. Speckman has no hands, he was born that way. (UPI Telephoto)

U.S. could test Europe's ski domination

VIENNA (UPI) — European skiers, who have ruled the World Alpine Ski Cup for the past six years, will have their domination challenged from the United States this season, according to Ingemar Stenmark, the reigning World Cup holder.

"Everybody talks about the Italians, the Austrians and the Swiss," said the Swede, "but for my part, I will have to watch the Americans. They have the most promising alpine ski team this winter."

Stenmark singled out Phil and Steve Mahre, the 10-year-old twin brothers from White Pass, Wash., and Greg Jones of Lake Tahoe, Calif., the Olympic bronze medalist in the combined, as his most dangerous rivals from the United States.

"All of them can win World Cup races," he said. "Any one of them can make one of the top three spots in the World Cup this winter."

The new season will open Dec. 8 in Val D'Isere, France, as usual. The one major change in the rules is that the International Ski Federation has created a class of B-license racers who can take part in all races except Olympics and are allowed to sign advertising contracts, directly with ski manufacturers.

Austria's Anemarie Moser-Proell has announced she is coming out of a one-year retirement and many fans will be interested to see whether she can pick up where she left off — with five straight World Cups.

The race schedule follows a familiar pattern with early races in France, Italy and Yugoslavia. Then the skiers switch to Switzerland, Austria and West Germany before crossing to Japan and the United States. The windup will be in Europe at resorts in Norway, Sweden and Spain.

The complicated points scoring system has been retained whereby the season is divided into two sections and only a certain number of results from each section count towards the cup standings.

A team-by-team rundown:
 United States
 Hank Tauber, the U.S. ski team alpine program director, says, "Our young skiers are very hungry for a good season. They see success coming."

Tauber said the Mahres and Cary Adgate, 23, are in the top seed groups in both slalom and giant slalom this season. "The United States is strong in the slalom and giant slalom. But we have trouble cracking the downhill standings," Tauber said.

Other members of the U.S. Alpine ski team include Jones, Andy Mill, 23, of Aspen, Colo.; Karl Anderson, 23, of Greene, Maine, and Pete Patterson, 19, of Sun Valley, Idaho.

The U.S. women's team is led by 1976 Olympic downhill bronze medalist Cindy Nelson, 20, of Lutsen, Minn., who is ranked in the first seed in all three alpine events. It also includes Lindy Cochran, 23, of Richmond, Va.; Abbie Fisher, 19, of South Conway, N.H.; Jaymie Kurlander, 18, of McAfee, N.J., and Susie Patterson, Pete's sister.
 Austria

Austria enters the new season with new leadership. Toni Sailer, the 1964 triple gold medalist, was replaced by former downhill coach Karl Kahr after an unsuccessful Olympics.

Franz Klammer, the Olympic downhill champion, will enter all three alpine events — despite his weakness in slalom — to increase his chances for the World Cup crown. On a comeback is Moser-Proell, 23, who retired two winters ago saying she had "enough of ski racing." She later told reporters at her coffee house in the Austrian village of Kitzbühel she had "rediscovered" her joy of ski racing. Another reason, it was believed, was lack of money for the completion of her coffee house.

Gustavo Thoeni, 25, former World Cup champion who failed to regain his crown in the past two winters and also missed gold at the Innsbruck Olympics, is expected to come back strongly this winter.

Team manager Frances Catelli, under whose leadership Italy won three World Cups out of four, said he also believes that Piero Gros has a good chance to regain the Cup he won in 1975.

"Gros was handicapped last season by being sidelined for a month by an accident," Catelli said. "But he pulled himself together to win the slalom at Innsbruck. I think this is typical of an ace, a leader, a skiing superman."

The women's team will be led by Claudia Giordani, the 1976 Olympic slalom silver medalist, and includes Wilma Galta, Marie Plank and Wanda Bellet, Switzerland.

Bernhard Russi, the 1972 Olympic downhill champion, and Heini Hemmi, the 1976 Olympic giant slalom champion, are the only two skiers so far this season to take advantage of the B-license.

They are still working out with the national team but have to pay 25,000 Swiss francs ($10,000) plus five per cent of their advertising income to the Swiss Ski Federation. The new status of the two Olympic champions has already caused some bad blood in the Swiss team. Other skiers, like Walter Tresch, Ernst Good and Philippe Roux also looked into the possibility of a B-license but did not find enough sponsors.

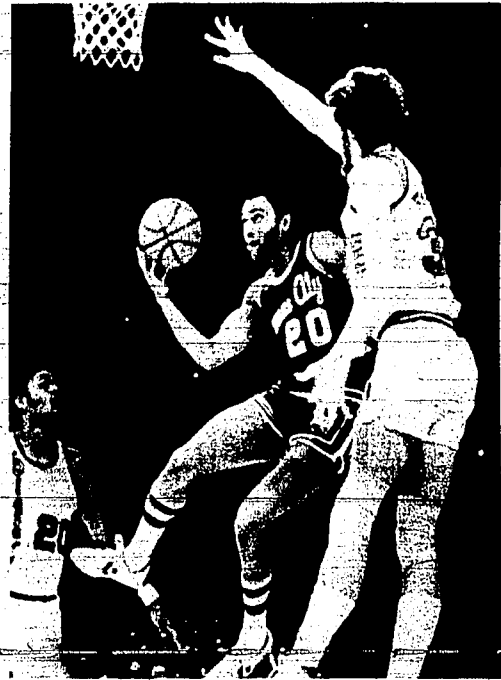

Roland Collombin, injured in the Val D'Isere downhill at the start of last season, has announced his retirement on medical advice.

Lise-Marie Morerod will carry the Swiss women's colors.

France
 Walter Trilling, the French alpine ski team director, is pinning his main hopes on the French women team this season. "Danielle Debernard is our top hope," Trilling said. "She is strong in all three events but especially in the downhill and giant slalom. We are counting on her to win one or two races this winter."

Other races are Fabienne Serrat, the slalom specialist, and Patricia Emonet, Jacqueline Rouvier and Michèle Jacquet have retired.

In the men's team, Patrice Pellat-Finlet is the best downhiller but still a far cry away from the reputation of former French downhillers.

Maryland upset over snub by poll

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne admitted Tuesday he's upset that his undefeated team is winning football games and respect but still losing in the national "trailing game."

"You get upset when you play a pretty good football game, win, and then drop in the rankings," Claiborne told his weekly media luncheon. "Perhaps some of you guys (reporters) are doing a better job — publicizing our weak schedule than some of the other teams are."

The Terps beat Cincinnati, 21-0, Saturday to become 9-0, but still dropped a notch in the UPI coaches' ratings, from sixth to seventh, behind Georgia, which beat Florida convincingly.

compiled by his wife, Nancy, to support his contention that the Terp schedule, drawn in 1964-67, is being picked on unfairly.

According to her figures, the opponents of top-ranked Pittsburgh have won 43 per cent of their games. Second-ranked UCLA's opponents have won 43 per cent, third-ranked Southern California's 39 per cent, fourth-ranked Michigan's 35 per cent, fifth-ranked Texas Tech's 46 per cent and sixth-ranked Georgia's 55 per cent.

Maryland's opponents have won 45 per cent of their games, fitting somewhere comfortably into the "Top Five" pack, according to Claiborne.

Kentucky and Texas Tech beat Texas, Texas Tech went ahead of us. Then Texas was beaten by Houston and they had lost to Boston College, which was beaten by Villanova, one of our "palates."

"North Carolina State, which has had trouble winning in its own conference, tied Michigan State, which beat Purdue, which beat Michigan last week. I think Maryland is one of the best teams in the country when you start comparing teams."

Maryland will risk two long streaks Saturday when it hosts Clemson in a regionally televised game.

Fertilizer use questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service plans an effort to determine the social and economic impact of illegal aliens in this country.

The service announced Monday it has awarded a $750,000 contract to the Mexican-American consulting firm, J.A. Reyes Associates Inc., to conduct house to house surveys in areas of 12 states where illegal aliens are known to be concentrated.

The job is expected to take a year and the purpose is to determine more accurately than is now known how many illegal aliens there are and just what their social and economic impact is, the service said.

The survey teams will ask aliens — Europeans and Asians as well as Latin American — how they entered the country, how many children they have, their wages, the taxes they pay and the social and welfare services they receive.

Only the firm's statistical results will be sent to the service, not the personal information about individual illegal aliens. All names and records of individual aliens will be destroyed, INS said.

Reyes Associates teams will make house to house surveys in areas of California, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, New Jersey, Florida, Massachusetts, Indiana and North Carolina.

Commoner said organic farmers suffer a gradual loss of calcium and phosphorus in the soil. He said the loss could be overcome by using small amounts of fertilizer to replenish the soil. Fertilizer use would push up production costs 4 per cent but would increase crop yield by 12 per cent, he said.

Farm experts participating with Commoner in a symposium on food production said solar technology can be used to increase farm output by great amounts.

Sylvan H. Wittwer, an agricultural scientist at Michigan State University, said the federal government's current annual outlay of $15 million for photosynthetic plant research is too small in view of the potential benefits from expanded food production.

"Agriculture is a solar energy processing machine," Wittwer said.

"Proper use of the sun's energy can increase crop output many times over. The same is true for animal productivity. We should be sparing rather than demanding on non-renewable resources like oil and natural gas in feedstocks."

According to Princeton University Prof. Theodore B. Taylor, the United States is fast approaching the day when enclosed systems for growing crops will be profitable. Such glass enclosures are modeled after greenhouses and control temperature, humidity and water. They produce crop yields that are more than 10 times those of conventional farms, while using half as much water. Environmental greenhouses protect crops from air pollution, while eliminating agricultural runoff of chemical fertilizer.

Wayne Decker, chief of the Department of Atmospheric Science at the University of Missouri, forecast major farm production gains in future years resulting from genetic research and weather modification.

Recent experiments in the Midwest's Corn Belt show that rainmaking during the growing season increased corn and soybean production by 10 per cent, Decker said.

Andrus aids Idaho spuds

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus flew to New York City to promote Idaho potatoes.

Andrus will luncheon with 50 leading food editors today as well as be taped for a segment on ABC television's "Good Morning America," scheduled for showing Friday.

Andrus will discuss his commitments in New York City. Andrus will fly to Pinhurst, N.C. Thursday for a biennial National Governors Conference seminar.

Water level on river 32 miles of the Red River was below the nine-foot authorized channel depth — when local government officials asked the corps to take action. Kasser said the level was raised by increasing the discharge from Millwood Lake in Arkansas for one week last month.

"I took some water out a little bit faster and sooner than they otherwise would have done, but this was only for about a week so it's not a crippling thing. The whole concept is to keep things in balance, a systemwide program rather than local."

"Things went okay," Kasser said. "We're about at normal seasonal levels on the river right now, so we're not getting any help from anybody."

At home on the range

SOME MEMBERS of the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge herd, the nation's largest with 350 animals, make their way across the range.

"measures up quite well with Herefords and Angus," he said.

The longhorns weigh from 1,800 pounds to one ton when they are 10 years old. The steers have great, curving horns and bulls the shortest horns of the three.

A 14-year-old steer in the refuge herd has the longest set of horns ever measured there — 6 feet, 3 inches from tip to tip.

"That's a very good measurement," Bartnicki said. "If you get a steer with horn measurements of 6 feet

Old West' roams on Texas range

CACHE, Okla. (UPI) — Roaming across the range of the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge, the nation's largest public herd of Texas longhorns is a reminder of the Old West and lives much as its forebears did.

Refuge biologist Gene Bartnicki said the cattle live on dried grass in the winter and find shelter for themselves.

"Here on the range the only thing we give them is a trace of mineral salt. Other than that, they shift for themselves all winter long," he said.

"In a snowstorm they seek a ravine, a draw or a place on the south side of a slope, maybe a little grove of trees that will shelter them a couple of days — when the storm passes — they're back out grazing."

The herd is made up of about 350 animals with 110 to 120 sold each September at an auction. Many of the buyers have their own longhorn herds.

"For some it's a hobby, but it's more of a money-making proposition," Bartnicki said. "A pure-bred animal is in demand for that reason and for crossbreeding as well."

Siphoning stops flooding

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Army Engineers control the flow of millions of gallons of water across thousands of square miles.

The corps' ability to prevent flooding by siphoning floodwater from the Mississippi River through its spillway system is well known to those living in Louisiana. But this year the corps demonstrated its skill in another way — by pulling more water into the Mississippi and Red Rivers to keep commerce moving.

Both rivers are used by large companies to transport large shipments of grain from farm fields to exporters. But drought in the Midwest caused water levels to fall sharply and threatened to stop barge traffic.

"To prevent a shutdown of barge traffic on the Mississippi the corps released extra water into the river from all its major tributaries except the Missouri River. The engineers also took water from a lake in Arkansas to raise the Red River in Central Louisiana, where the dual problem of upstream drought and repairs to the Old River Low Sill Structure cut the flow from the Mississippi.

"The thing about it is the engineers know that if they release a certain amount of water, let's say from the lakes in the Red River basin, they know what the flow will be down where the Red joins the Atchafalaya River," said corps spokesman Herb Kasser.

"Our engineers also know what the flow through the low sill structure would be with all the gates open. It's really not

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 10, the 315th day of 1976 with 51 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

Martha Luther, founder of Episcopalianism, was born Nov. 10, 1483. This is actor Richard Burton's 51st birthday.

On this day in history:

In 1871, journalist Henry Stanley found missing Scottish missionary David Livingstone.

In 1888, a small African village was asked: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?"

In 1917, 41 women from 15 states were arrested outside the White House for suffragette demonstrations.

An American woman won the right to vote three years later.

In 1919, the American Legion held its first national convention in Minneapolis.

In 1975, despite strong U.S. opposition, the United Nations' General Assembly adopted an "anti-apartheid" resolution defining Zionism in the Middle East as a form of racism.

A thought for the day: German-American politician Carl Schurz said, "Our country is right or wrong, when right, to be kept right; when wrong, to be put right."

Food for cattle eyed in health problems

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Tests on persons who ate food tainted by a chemical accidentally mixed with cattle feed are nearly over but it may take months to find out if the chemical is to blame for a rash of health problems.

Traces of the toxic chemical, a fine retardant called PBB, have turned up in the milk of nursing mothers, prompting Dr. Irving Selikoff, head of the medical testing team, to advise against breast feeding until results of the study are completed.

Selikoff said tests on some 1,100 Michigan residents who ate food contaminated by PBB or were otherwise exposed to the chemical will be completed Wednesday but that it may take two or three months to analyze the findings.

"There are a number of such complaints but the question is whether or not they are related

Water level on river 32 miles of the Red River was below the nine-foot authorized channel depth — when local government officials asked the corps to take action. Kasser said the level was raised by increasing the discharge from Millwood Lake in Arkansas for one week last month.

"I took some water out a little bit faster and sooner than they otherwise would have done, but this was only for about a week so it's not a crippling thing. The whole concept is to keep things in balance, a systemwide program rather than local."

"Things went okay," Kasser said. "We're about at normal seasonal levels on the river right now, so we're not getting any help from anybody."

NEW STORE DIRECTORIES AT SMITH'S
 No matter how well-marked and labeled products are at the supermarket, all at once and easily, without searching every aisle of the store. Every store is organized a little differently — and there are some products that could be located in several different departments. There's often just no way of knowing without asking or hunting for the store directory. It can be frustrating — especially when you're in a hurry!
 To make it easier for you, our Smith's customers to find what you're looking for quickly and easily, we've installed a store directory inside the front of each shopping cart in all our stores. Now, no matter where you are in the store, a directory is handy. It's right there with you, and the product you're looking for is only steps away.
 Of course, every product in the store can't be included in the directory, but all major items and departments are listed alphabetically, along with the aisle number and location. This should make shopping Smith's easier and more convenient, not to mention all the time it will save!
 We hope you'll like our new directories — and put them to good use! It's just another way of saying "we want to be your favorite store."
