

today in brief NATO panel toughens stand

Utah convict Gilmore hospitalized

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Convicted killer Gary Gilmore and his fiancée Nicole Barrett were found unconscious today of drug overdoses, apparently after attempting to carry out a "suicide pact."

Gilmore, 35, who wanted to die Monday before a firing squad, was found in his cell at Utah State Prison "not breathing properly." He was given resuscitation and rushed to a Salt Lake City hospital by paramedics.

"We suspect a possible drug overdose," said Warden Sam Smith, who said Gilmore was still breathing when put in the ambulance for the 25-mile drive to University of Utah Medical Center.

At about the same time Miss Barrett, 20, was discovered by a neighbor at her apartment in Springville, about 30 miles south of the prison, with two empty sleeping pill vials beside her. She was taken by ambulance to a Provo hospital, where she was in critical condition.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — In a move described as unprecedented, the political committee of NATO today rejected a report by its own secretary because it was not tough enough on Communism and growing Soviet global power.

Assembly aides said that Dutch parliamentarian Pieter Dankert, secretary of the North Atlantic Assembly, was expected to issue the report, which differed sharply with the view of the Soviet threat portrayed Monday by NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns, as his own personal statement. The aides said the committee probably would not issue any report at all.

The action came only hours before Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was to address the assembly on the political problems of the alliance. The appearance was Kissinger's first in public since the presidential election.

Dankert's report, which took a year to prepare, caused heated debate in the committee meeting, which was closed to the press in accordance with long standing assembly procedure.

Aides who witnessed part of the meeting said, however, that Dankert's report was strongly attacked by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., head of the U.S. delegation, and Canadian Liberal Party Sen. A. Hamilton McDonald.

He also said such discussion was unprecedented in the 22 years that the assembly has been meeting.

In his report, Dankert said the recent U.S. presidential election campaign had distorted the real nature of Soviet global power. He called for a more balanced approach to developments based on objective analysis rather than pathological suspicions and emotional rhetoric.

"The tendency to overreact to Soviet power has had many unfortunate consequences, frequently regarding events in other parts of the world," Dankert said.

On Monday, Javits bluntly told the delegates the United States would not share military secrets with any European government that had a significant number of Communists in its ranks.

First choice

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said the Parti Quebecois, the winners in Monday's provincial elections, had been granted a mandate to govern in Quebec, "not to separate that province from the rest of Canada."

The separatist Parti Quebecois, headed by Rene Lesvesque, ousted the Liberal Party government of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Ford, Carter plan White House meet

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter and President Ford will meet at the White House Monday or Tuesday, their first face-to-face meeting since Carter won the race for the White House. It was announced today.

The exact time and date have not yet been set. Carter's office said in a brief announcement.

The meeting was arranged when the president-elect called Ford Monday night. Ford returned the call later that night and the two arranged to meet during a planned visit to Washington by Carter, the announcement said.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — The great floods to hit East Java in 20 years left at least 119 persons dead during the past weekend, reports reaching here today said.

According to the reports, the worst hit areas were around the villages of Sambervaluah and Jigupal on the Rojoli river. Hundreds of homes were reported destroyed.

Food relief plan set in Lebanon

ROME (UPI) — The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization announced an emergency program today to provide food relief for four months for 350,000 victims of the Lebanese civil war.

FAO Director General Edouard Saïed, himself a Lebanese, announced the decision after several days of meetings with a Lebanese government delegation led by Labor and Social Affairs Minister Ghassan Tuani.

Mandate cited

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jody Powell was named press secretary in the first appointment by President-elect Jimmy Carter Monday.

Carter made the announcement at a news conference here. Powell, 32, is a long-time Carter aide. The selection process is "slow and methodical," Carter said, inviting interested citizens to suggest prospects for other posts.

Rhodesia blacks reject compromise

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Black-nationalist leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo today rejected a British compromise (unable for black majority rule in Rhodesia, forcing early adjournment of the Geneva peace talks.

Mugabe and Nkomo, partners in a "Patriotic Front," also said Britain's failure to set a binding date for independence meant it had "no intention to transfer power to the true representatives of the people."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-six nursing home officials, food and services vendors face charges today of participating in a $1 million Medicaid kinkback scheme that may involve half the nursing homes in the New York metropolitan area.

"The number of homes involved in the arrangement... could approach 50 per cent (125) of the nursing homes in the metropolitan area," Charles Hynes, special prosecutor for nursing homes, said Monday.

Wreck kills Buhl man

FILER — A Buhl man was killed and another critically injured in a one-car rollover on U.S. 30, one and a half miles west of here Monday night, state police reported.

Felip Hernandez, about 30, Buhl, was killed when he was ejected from and crushed by a car rolling over. The driver, Ronald Selix, 24, Buhl, was thrown almost 50 feet when the car rolled.

He was taken to Magie Valley Memorial Hospital where he is listed in critical condition with "multiple fractures" and "internal injuries," according to a hospital spokesman.

The car was traveling more than 80 miles per hour around a curve when it went off on the left, rolled some 300 feet and was airborne some 150 feet, state police said.

No citations have been issued. The car was demolished.

Burley drops parking fee

By SHANE O'NEILL Times-News writer

BURLEY — Motorists, parking on Burley's downtown streets will not plug nickels into parking meters after Feb. 1.

A split City Council passed an ordinance Monday night to eliminate parking meters and establish hourly provisions on downtown parking.

The ordinance was passed under suspension of the rule requiring three full readings. Councilmen James Hooper and Clay Taylor voted against both the rules suspension and the ordinance.

The ordinance does not establish the method of enforcement against overtime parking, but the council anticipates the police department will set up a fine-marking system.

The new parking control law is written as a permanent ordinance; however, councilmen have indicated they want to review it in six months, with the chance of returning to meters.

SYRIAN TANK of the Arab League peace-keeping force rumbles into the shattered commercial district of Beirut Monday as the force seized positions of the Christian and Muslim militias, disarmed them and took control of the city. The tank is a Soviet-made T-54. The force moved into other Lebanese cities today. (Related story, p. 8.) (UPI)

Contract near?

TWIN FALLS — A tentative agreement has been reached by negotiators for members of the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association and Hughes Aircraft.

As a result, airline service in Twin Falls and more than 50 cities on Alwest routes is expected to continue.

Paul Shoaff, Alwest manager in Twin Falls, said a threatened strike by the mechanics and aircraft cleaners is not likely to materialize in view of the agreement. He said the only possibility of a strike now would be if one side or the other found something unacceptable in the tentative agreement and failed to ratify it.

Terms of the agreement are being withheld pending a ratification meeting of the approximately 580 union members. Alwest officials said.

The aircraft mechanics and cleaners have been working under terms of their old contract, which expired in September of 1975.

Negotiating for a new contract has been underway since that time.

Union members had set a strike for midnight Sunday and some picketlines went up at that time, but workers returned to their jobs after 30 minutes when it was reported progress was being made in negotiations in Washington, D. C.

Hearing Dec. 14

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A Senate subcommittee hearing is scheduled Dec. 14 in Burley on legislation to create a City of Rocks National Monument.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, are co-sponsors of the proposed legislation.

Church and McClure said the legislation is "designed to preserve for the benefit of present and future generations this area of outstanding geological formations and unique historical values."

All Valley feels farm price slumps

By KEN HODGE Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Slumps in farm commodity prices will be felt by nearly everyone who lives in Magic Valley.

Put simply, "If the farmer does well, everyone else does, too," these words were voiced by Gary Hubsmith, assistant manager of Idaho Bank and Trust in Burley.

"In Twin Falls, Curtis Eaton, president of Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co., said, 'The farmer is really going to have to tighten his belt and live under the dictates of present commodity prices.'" He said, "Farmers are not going to make any money, and if they don't, no one else will."

Last of Series

Rising costs of production versus abysmally low prices of nearly every commodity grown in the Magic Valley have created a bleak situation, for farm profits in the near future.

"Comparing income versus expenses, the prognosis is not that great," Hubsmith said about the plight of farmers. "It looks like we're in for a rough time until farm prices increase."

Bankers are already beginning to feel the effects of the economic situation in the valley, according to Hubsmith.

"Anybody in the lending business doing business with farmers and merchants is in for trouble," Hubsmith warned. "Although it isn't serious yet, we don't know what the first best payment is going to be."

Eaton, however, did not express as much concern for the banker's position.

"We are not optimistic," he said. "But we are conservatively optimistic in the short term and middle term and optimistic on the long term that a turnaround will take place."

And Robert Stuart, general manager of the Twin Falls Production Credit Association, expressed an optimistic viewpoint in spite of current depressed prices.

"We can't be too pessimistic or we wouldn't be doing this," he said. "Hopefully livestock prices will improve in the not too distant future."

"Prices of commodities and crops are not very strong," Stuart said. "Very few of them are on a break-even basis."

Stuart said high yields this year may soften the blow of low prices to farmers.

"Some people have been over extended from higher prices two years ago," Stuart explained. "But they survived the sixties and they're still surviving this. I feel more optimistic now than 30 days ago. We have had some very good yields."

All Valley feels price slumps

In any event, bankers should continue to back farmers during this period of low returns and help them weather the storm.
"In some there will be a few farms that some banks will have to foreclose on," Hubbard said. "But everybody had better go along with them and get in the bank with them. They are our bread and butter."
Smith said costs for farm loans have been higher, too, in recent years, contributing to the rising costs for growers.
"When you have a market like you have now. It makes the income rather slim," he added. "We're going to do all we can to help the farmer."

Businessmen who rely on sales to farmers are already feeling the limit of sagging markets and must say they have been experiencing a period of decreased sales of their products.
"Our fall work is probably down 50 percent," Steve Sass, plant manager of Farm Service, Inc., said about his company's fertilizer sales.
The decrease in fertilizer work is just one outgrowth of belt tightening among valley farmers.

"They can't afford it unless you want to carry them," Sass said. "And the industry has been trying to get away from it."
A spokesman for another fertilizer company said his company's fall work is down about 50 percent, too.
"I think spring work will be good," said the spokesman. "But fall work is down by half, all types of fertilizer."
And implement dealers are experiencing a reduction of business in varying degrees due to the current commodity market situation.
"We have fewer sales due to commodity prices," Ed Ljelich, Twin Falls farm equipment dealer, said. "It's that way pretty much throughout the Magic Valley."
Another implement dealer, Dale Johnson, Gem Equipment, Twin Falls, suggested sales are down, but are merely returning to a more normal volume after higher volumes experienced in recent times when farm prices were unusually high.
"We are getting back to more normal times," Johnson said. "We have had some real good years since the farmers had some. But we still can't get enough tractors." Johnson said he expects the Joint farm efforts eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho wheat farmers were told Monday the importance of a merger between the Western Wheat Association and the Great Plains Wheat Association.
"Working together is the only way for us to convince the people of this country that nothing means more to America than her farms, her farming people, her ability to produce the food and fiber that we all must have," the luncheon speaker at the annual session in Boise of the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association stressed.
Gene Taylor, vice president of agriculture products for the Velsicol Chemical Corp., Chicago, said "Nothing means more to America than her farms, her farming people, her ability to produce the food and fiber that we all must have."
Shortly after, Wynne Henderson stressed for an afternoon session the importance of a merger between the Western Wheat Association and the Great Plains Wheat Association.
"With one marketing organization there would be much more opportunity to utilize personnel in areas to which their particular talents and expertise is most suited," Henderson said. "One well qualified person could do this work more comprehensively and provide resource information that is fundamental to the effective operation of a joint foreign marketing organization," he said. "Economic analysis of trade barriers has become increasingly important and intensified effort in this area is mandatory."
Taylor told his audience farming is the "heartbeat of America." He said one-fourth of the entire gross national product — $347 billion — results from farming.
"Not even the government, in an era of big government, accounts for this much," he added.

Church proposes accord on firms

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Idaho Sen. Frank Church Monday suggested that President-elect Jimmy Carter call a convention of industrial nations to formulate an international agreement dealing with multinational corporations.
Church, chairman of a Senate subcommittee on regulating multinational corporations, said "I hope we'll be able to obtain a law to make it a criminal offense to make bribes overseas... and also a regulation forcing disclosure of fees and commissions paid to foreign agencies."
Appearing at Cornell University, Church told a news conference that because laws passed by Congress can only affect American-based companies, there was also a need for an international agreement on bribes paid by multinational corporations.
Church also said that effort should not be made early in his Carter's administration. Church added as chairman of the Select Senate Committee on Intelligence, also predicted Carter "would attempt to maintain much greater scrutiny over the intelligence agencies, and particularly, the CIA and FBI."
"If there's the will to control the agencies, and an effort is made by both the White House and Congress, these agencies can be kept under effective control. I believe we'll have that cooperation between the executive and legislative branches in the new administration," Church added.

Quebec separatists sweep Liberals from power

MONTREAL (UPI) — The separatist Parti Quebecois swept into power in Quebec Monday, crushing the ruling Liberal party in an historic election that could open the way for the province to secede from Canada.

The victory by the PQ in the primarily French-speaking province was widely greeted in Montreal. Thousands of pedestrians, some bearing Quebec's blue and white fleur-de-lis flag, joined impromptu parades and dances through city streets.

PQ party leader and premier-elect Rene Levesque, weeping as he addressed 8,000 jubilant supporters shouting "Quebec for Quebecers," said he would lead the province to independence "only when an adult society has proven itself with a clear majority in a referendum."

The chain-smoking, 54-year-old former member pledged during the campaign to hold a referendum on separatism within three years.

Constitutional experts said the numerous legalities involved would make secession very difficult.

Defeated Premier Robert Bourassa, a 43-year-old lawyer-economist, failed to hold even his own district in Montreal.

Pre-election polls showed voters were highly dissatisfied with his six years in office and appeared to be casting votes more against the Liberals' economic policies than in favor of separatism.

In fact, the polls showed, less than half of those planning to vote for the PQ favored separatism.

... party chief speaks

Final but unofficial results gave the PQ 70 of the 10 seats in the provincial legislature. The PQ won only only five in the last election in 1973. Bourassa saw his solid Liberal majority of 102 elected in 1973 slashed to only 27 seats.

The Union National, which ruled Quebec for 49 years but was all but wiped out in 1973, took 11 seats, and two smaller parties one apiece.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, whose federal Liberal government has its power base in Quebec and who himself represents a Montreal district, showed bitter disappointment at the PQ victory.

"Mr. Levesque and his party have been granted a mandate to form a provincial government, not to separate that province from the rest of Canada," he said.

Constitutional experts said that for Quebec legally to become a politically sovereign state would require the approval of the federal government, the other nine provinces and the British Parliament, which controls Canada's Constitution. Such approval, they said, would be almost impossible to attain.

Levesque, an articulate politician who speaks fluent English as well as French, told supporters the PQ victory was "the best and perhaps the most important night in the history of Quebec."

But he also sought to reassure opponents, saying, "I tell all those who may have been afraid of a Parti Quebecois victory that we will work with all our might to turn Quebec into a nation for all Quebecers — a country they will love."

Robbers sentenced

LONDON (UPI) — Eight men convicted of pulling the world's biggest bank robbery were sentenced by an Old Bailey judge today to a total of 100 years in prison.

Today's sentencing wrapped up one of the longest criminal trials in British history. It lasted 93 days.

Church groups ask broad amnesty

Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Leaders of a dozen church groups have asked President-elect Jimmy Carter to give general amnesty to more than a million Vietnam War resisters and veterans.

Ronald Freund, Midwest regional co-ordinator of Clergy and Laity Concerned, said Carter is so far considering only a pardon — not amnesty — for about 4,400 Vietnam War draft evaders.

Religious leaders who signed the statement issued at a press conference instead asked Carter for amnesty for:

- 750,000 Vietnam-era veterans with "bad" discharges.
 - 500,000 men who failed to register for the draft.
 - 8,000 at-large deserters (and)
 - "Thousands of civilian resisters."
- The amnesty statement was signed by representatives of: Chicago Federation, Union of American Hebrew Congregations; Clergy and Laity — Concerned; National

- Assembly of Religious Women; Christ United Church of Chicago; Episcopal Diocese of Chicago; Board of Church and Society, United Methodist Church, North Illinois Conference; Unitarian-Universalist Assn. of Chicago; Ethical Humanist Society of Illinois; National Federation of Priests Councils; Church Federation of Greater Chicago; National Board, National Council of Jewish women, and United Church of Christ of Metropolitan Chicago.

Freund said the groups want amnesty "rather than pardon because amnesty implies no guilt."

The view from North of the border

The cellophane border

By JAMES EAYRS

What must surely strike a European, an Asian, a West Indian visiting North America most forcibly is how unnatural is the border that bisects the continent, how remarkably the interests of the two peoples converge, how identical their development, how united are their actions, how parallel run their policies. What, after all — other than 300 or 400 miles, a day's drive at most, an hour's flight at most — separates the citizens of North Bay, Ontario from the citizens of Green Bay, Wisconsin?

The question is rhetorical, but here is the answer of professor of government David A. Baldwin, who sees the question in another sense: "An American can associate with a Canadian for several weeks or even months and never realize that he is a foreigner. Canadians are probably the only nationality in the world of whom this is true. In fact, many people from Chicago, Minneapolis, Seattle, New York, Boston and Detroit would probably feel more at ease with Canadians than with countrymen from Hawaii, Louisiana, Alabama, or Mississippi. The people of no other nation are as much like Americans as the Canadians."

No Canadian need be told that was written by an American.

A Canadian cannot bring himself to believe that Canada is merely the United States with a colder climate, a lower standard of living and a lesser propensity to riot in the street. He feels neither delight nor reassurance on reading a late-Sixties guide for U.S. travelers that his country's currency uses the "same denominations as in the States, and U.S. currency is everywhere acceptable," that his country's flora consists of "the same flowers and trees as in our northern States," that of all that "common" courtesies and customs are likewise "the same as in the States, except that Canada is a very religious country, and Sunday is a quiet day."

A Canadian wants to know what may be said to be uniquely Canadian in North America. A Canadian feels that unless his people are making some contribution to the world, the continent demonstrably and recognizably their own, they have little reason to go on paying the price of being Canadian.

Canadians in real life are ambivalent about Americans, erratic in their attitudes. It wavers between the two polarities around which Canadian history revolves. Not between love and hate for the United States. That's too dramatic, extreme. But between admiration and envy, between cooperation and conflict, between wanting to imitate the product and wanting to differentiate the product.

Throughout the century and nine years of the Canadian Confederation, mood and therefore policy in Canada has oscillated in alternating currents between the poles of nationalism and continentalism. At times the pole of continentalism pulls powerfully. Canadians are ready to pool their resources, welcome U.S. capital, pretend the border isn't there.

Sooner or later a reaction sets in. The mood turns from continentalist to nationalist, the policy from free trade to "No truck nor trade." Then Canadians hoard resources, patrol capital, and the border looms large in their imagination.

A commentator from Britain, whose country is sliding down the slippery pole of power and prestige, has written of "the declining self-confidence of the super powers." That decline is most apparent in the United States.

The U.S. descent from the dizzy heights of power and responsibility, which under successive U.S. administrations it has occupied since the era of the Marshall Plan, offers Canadians a chance to stand with more assurance in the light.

The chance is here and waiting. "We live in a century," said the prime minister of Canada in the presence of the late premier of China, "where, increasingly, 'national greatness' is measured, not in terms of martial grandeur or even economic accomplishment, but in terms of individual welfare and human dignity. No longer is military might or political hegemony the yardstick of achievement. The true test of a government is found in its ability to provide its people with a sense of worth, of accomplishment, of fulfillment."

In 1976, for the first time since 1867, it has become plausible to argue that Canada's chance of passing such a test is just as good as that of the United States — maybe even better.

Gilmore should face the firing squad

Gary Gilmore wants to die in front of a firing squad.

He's a convicted murderer, a loser who has spent 18 of his 35 years in prison or in detention homes.

Last week Gilmore asked the Utah Supreme Court to allow him to be executed without an appeal.

The court agreed.

But Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton stayed the execution and ordered the state board of parole to consider Gilmore's case tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Gary Gilmore, a man who killed a motel clerk for $40 in cash, gets front page coverage.

Gilmore's lawyer, getting no fee for defending the death row inmate, plans to take up a career in freelance writing after his client eventually is shot.

Gilmore's girlfriend, hoping for a bit of national attention, announced the couple's engagement Monday.

The American Civil Liberties Union, bent on defending everybody's right not to die, has filed a federal motion to have Gilmore's death sentence overturned.

Why all the fuss over Gary Gilmore?

The United States Supreme Court already has ruled capital punishment legal if state law is written carefully. Utah's death penalty statute hasn't been declared unconstitutional.

Under Utah law, a death row inmate doesn't have to appeal his sentence. Gary Gilmore, for once in his life, acted within the law by not appealing his date with the firing squad.

Gilmore won't ever get out of prison. He's already convicted of one murder and a second death attributed to him is waiting to come to trial.

Utah officials shouldn't continue the maneuvering to keep Gilmore from dying. The Utah Supreme Court, the state legislature and the courts have sealed Gilmore's fate.

The convicted killer agrees with the decision of the judicial process.

Continued juggling of Gilmore's case only disturbs the legal system which fairly and accurately found Gary Gilmore guilty of murder.

Capital punishment isn't a tasteless part of the judicial process. But sentencing a man to die for crimes is legal, and perhaps ultimately justified.

Gary Gilmore has received far more national attention than he deserves.

He isn't a hero, not a falsely charged man.

He isn't a victim of an unfair legal system.

Instead, Gary Gilmore is a convicted murderer who has asked that he not spend his remaining years in prison.

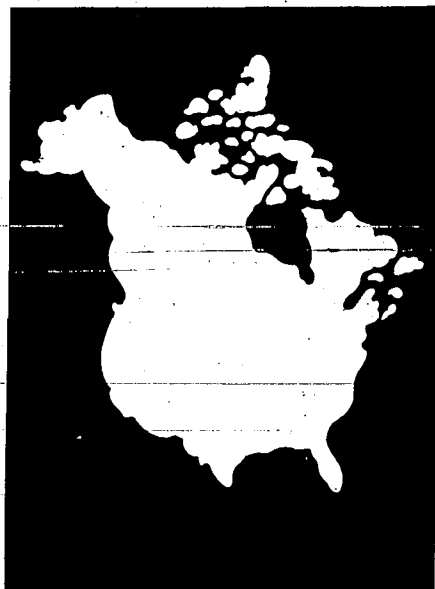

His request to meet the firing squad should be honored. Those who work to save Gilmore's life aren't working for his interests nor the best interests of the American judicial system.

"Lamb duck"

The political line dividing the United States and Canada is celebrated as the world's longest unfortified border, a legal technically barely slowing travelers between parts of what is basically the same culture with similar interests and attitudes. That is an American view. The Canadian version, not quite so simple.

When should America use nuclear weapons?

"When Should America Use Nuclear Weapons?" is argued by Rep. Pat Schroeder (D-Colo.), member of the House Armed Services

SAYS WHO!

Committee, and retired Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, former Chief of Naval Operations. This article is adapted from the National Town Meeting which is held each Wednesday at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., where public figures debate and answer questions on current issues.

First, Top Schroeder:

When should America use nuclear weapons? Why aren't we making sure our conventional forces are much stronger so we don't get in a corner and have to say we're going to lose this war unless we suddenly go to tactical nuclear weapons? When you talk about tactical nuclear weapons, you're making a distinction between tactical and strategic. Tactical usually means something you're going to win a battle with, not something you're going to hit the enemy's homeland with. (But) isn't it foreseeable that Russia would not just come back at us on an equal basis but escalate a little more? The Russians have never told us they would engage in a mini-nuke war. They've always said once really asking ourselves is can we survive our own technology? I think if we had a much stronger conventional force, we wouldn't have to be worrying. We should be doing everything we can to lower the fire break between conventional and strategic weapons rather than blurring the line between the two and hoping that everyone remains reasonable. There really is no way we could knock out all the nuclear weapons in Russia so they could not retaliate on the first strike, nor is there any way they could knock us out on the first strike. And so both could inflict incredible damage in the second strike so that the whole thing is really almost insanity.

Should NATO forces have tactical nuclear weapons?

I would question whether in NATO we should have tactical nuclear weapons deployed close to the border. I'm not sure how you get everybody together and make quick decisions. If they were suddenly about to be overrun, my understanding is that if one nuclear weapon ever goes off, you have incredible problems with radar and your command and control. I think we should be much firmer about getting a better command system in NATO.

Are the SALT talks useful?

Until we get on site inspection. I'm not sure any of it is worth the paper I'm written on. When we talk about tactical nuclear weapons and we look at SALT, I think we would agree we don't know exactly what kind of tactical nuclear weapons the Russians have. The talks have been more political hoop than arms control and if anything, they probably cause us to fly off in many other directions and allow the Soviets to rise to where we were before we started. If we're really serious about arms control, we'd start trying to bring down the numbers rather than allow both sides to build up to a certain number.

Should we spend more on defense?

There's an incredible amount of waste in the defense budget. We're spending an incredible amount and getting very little defense for it. We've got weapons that can do everything in the world. The only problem is that you only need them, maybe, one per cent of the time and the cost is phenomenal. It seems to me we should build up the conventional force and emphasize morale. I also think we have to tell our allies that we cannot do it all. Our European allies cannot spend nearly the amount of their gross national product for defense as we do. They're able to take their tax dollars and give people better housing, medical care and all sorts of things because we're picking up part of their defense bill.

by Stan Lee

When should America use nuclear weapons?

The only reason the issue will ever arise is because we have let our conventional forces down. The Soviet leadership would clearly consider war, and explicitly the use of nuclear weapons by either side, as a miscalculation. The purpose of their recently achieved strategic nuclear superiority and the purpose of their superiority in conventional military forces is to prevent war and insure that the United States accommodates slowly and carefully to Soviet objectives. Regrettably, the major cuts in defense budgets by Congress over the past six or seven years have made it possible for the Soviet Union to outstrip the United States in the strategic field by 60 per cent and in the conventional field by from 20 to 25 per cent. And, regrettably, somewhere down the road, a president of the United States will face the awful choice of making a major accommodation to Soviet demands or of considering the use of nuclear weapons. (To take an example) as the Israelis surrounded the Egyptian Third Army in the last Mideast War, the Soviets sent a brutal ultimatum to the United States, making it clear we were to order the Israelis to release the Egyptian Third Army or the Soviets would go in. And I know of no one in government at the time who believed that we had the (conventional) military capability to do anything except what we did — go on an alert and immediately accommodate. Should NATO forces have tactical nuclear weapons?

The basic problem — that I think most Americans are not yet aware of — is that we no longer have the conventional power in the free world to withstand a Soviet invasion of Europe. We no longer have the power ourselves to come to the assistance of Europe in a purely conventional context. This is why we (Schroeder and Zumwalt) have expressed great concern about the tragic reduction in conventional military power.

Are the SALT talks useful?

In my judgment, the SALT negotiations have not been arms control negotiations. We merely put a limit on the Soviet plan, gave them the right to build everything that they could possibly have built during the five years of the interim agreement. We, on the other hand, did not even try to match the right, through negotiation, to have a nuclear arms race superiority and further the Congress has never been informed that the Soviet Union is cheating on the basic deal. Should we spend more on defense?

I would strongly support an effort to reduce the total size of strategic nuclear forces by half or more if we could get the Soviets to do so in a deal that would give the parity in the free world what they demand — nuclear superiority for use in political blackmail. We would be much better off if we were reporting accurately the extent of Soviet cheating, and demanding that our grain sales, technology and trade relationships were used as part of our bargaining power. We should realize that the Soviet Union, which has only half our gross national product but is spending more than we are for military capability, greatly reduce its expenditures.

Jobless rate may hold same range

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter has informed the American public that it must endure unemployment of 5 to 7 per cent for at least another three years.

During his campaign, Carter repeatedly said that his administration's top priority would be putting eight million unemployed persons back to work. He did not say Monday that he had changed his mind, but he said no one should expect him to do so overnight or to ignore the possibility of inflation.

When asked whether he expected unemployment to remain in the range of 5 to 7 per cent, Carter said: "The question was raised because Carter said at several points that his goal was to get unemployment down to 4.5 per cent by the end of his four-year term and to balance the federal budget."

Within that framework, he said, inflation could be brought down to the 4 to 5 per cent level.

The news conference was held in an auditorium of an agriculture experiment station, just a couple of miles from Carter's home in Plains.

With Carter was longtime aide Jody Powell who he said would be his White House press secretary, the first appointment of the Carter administration. Powell had also served as Carter's press secretary when he was

Ford puts budget atop work slate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford gave the new federal budget top priority as he went back to work today, with aides saying he came home from a vacation in California's warmth prepared to face the cold realities of his last weeks in office.

"He is relaxed and rested and ready to complete the duties of his presidency," Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Monday aboard Air Force One as Ford flew to Washington after eight consecutive days of golf in Palm Springs, Calif.

Ford arranged a round of meetings this morning with top aides and a three-hour session with Congress in January and aides said he could be expected to spend the bulk of his time on them. They said a "farewell address" to the nation also was under consideration.

Several presidential advisers said Ford was in "excellent spirits" once again after the letdown that followed his defeat. They said he intended to plunge into "a normal busy schedule" at the White House until he joining his family for an annual Christmas skiing holiday in Vall, Colo.

But as Ford began the lame duck phase of his stewardship of the nation, he was also said to be giving increasing thought to his post-presidential days and to have decided on a prompt departure from Washington after Jimmy Carter's Jan. 20 inauguration.

While Ford himself repeatedly ducked questions about his future plans, Nessen said the President had not made a final decision on the site for his "base of operations." In private life but that "the Fords will spend some time in Palm Springs as they have in the last 10 or 12 years."

Not enough

JOHN D. deButts, board chairman of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., said in Detroit Monday the company's profits aren't high enough. He said earnings and profits are both far below the levels regulatory commissions have said they should be despite a $1 billion third quarter profit. (UPI)

Carter outlines appointment plan

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, stepping up his transition process, says he is sifting through his campaign promises to get cost estimates and arrange them by priority.

Carter also said Monday that under his administration the White House staff would not dictate "to the rest of the executive branch. He did not mention names, but it was clear he had the Nixon White House in mind.

"I don't see my White House staff trying to administer the affairs of any major federal department," Carter said at his second news conference since his election.

Carter said the director of the National Security Council, filled during much of the Nixon administration by Henry Kissinger, would serve in a staff capacity only.

"I would look to the secretary of state to represent both me and the nation in foreign affairs decisions, and be a spokesman for our country in foreign affairs," Carter said.

"We are now in the process of assessing the promises that I have made to the American people, trying to arrange them in an order of sequence or priority, getting cost estimates on them year by year, correlating them with the possible amendments to the budget Mr. Ford will recommend to Congress," Carter said.

Carter also announced a busy calendar for the next few days. It includes: Tonight — Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale arrives for discussions. Wednesday — a meeting with Democratic congressional leaders at the Georgia home of Sen. Herman E. Talmadge.

Friday — A CIA briefing for Carter and Mondale.

Monday and Tuesday — A trip to Washington to meet with Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and members of President Ford's cabinet.

Before the end of November — a meeting with Ford. At unspecified times soon — A meeting with Kissinger, and a meeting with business leaders arranged by Paul Austin, chairman of Coca-Cola.

Carter made his first formal appointment — that of Press Secretary Jody Powell — and said he will use the same "careful, thorough and deliberate process" in choosing other officials of his administration as he did in selecting Mondale to be his running mate.

Carter said he was seeking recommendations "from all interested citizens" for his administration. He said he already has a list of 6,000 to 7,000 names now being computerized.

He and Mondale will consult with "distinguished Americans," congressional leaders as well as business and labor leaders, Carter said.

FBI enters death probe

Chicago Sun-Times WASHINGTON — At the request of a committee that may soon reopen the Senate inquiry into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has stepped into the investigation of the murder of mobster John Roselli.

The Roselli investigation could lead to a new look at the slaying of Chicago gang boss Sam Giancana and the two possible connections between their deaths and a Central Intelligence Agency plot to kill Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Senate sources, who made those disclosures Monday, said the Roselli investigation was ordered by Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi despite the FBI's reluctance to get involved.

Condor revival due?

N.Y. Times Service WASHINGTON — The Navy is seeking to revive its Condor missile program that was cancelled earlier this year by Congress after the weapon became entangled in technical difficulties and suggestions of conflict of interest on the part of Pentagon officials.

Each of the television-guided missiles, designed to be launched by a plane from outside the enemy's missile defenses, will cost about $400,000.

proposed a Navy request that funds be included in next year's defense budget to resume work on the costly air-to-surface missile, which has been described by the Pentagon as "a silver bullet."

4 mental patients deliver newborn

SAPA, Calif. (UPI) — A mental patient was delivered of a baby by four other patients in her acute treatment ward at a state hospital while the staff and the rest of the unit were at dinner, it was disclosed Monday.

The mother and child were taken to a medical hospital after Saturday night's birth at the Sapa State Hospital. Their condition was reported as good. The new mother's identity was not disclosed.

Dr. Abraham S. Linn, medical officer at the state hospital, confirmed the birth.

A male patient who was one of the four in attendance at the birth was quoted as saying, "It was just us nuts who delivered."

A woman patient who helped complained that hospital personnel refused to get medical help although the woman was moaning and crying before the others went to dinner.

"From the meager information I have, the staff examined the lady and she was not going into labor in their opinion," Linn said. "I don't believe there was any breakdown in procedure."

One of the woman patients who was in the ward said she soothed the mother and told her how to breathe during the birth and what to expect.

The four patients in attendance were reportedly crying before the birth. "It was a good feeling, I'm on top of the world," one said.

Skyjacker still missing

THE FBI thinks America's "Thanksgiving Eve skyjacker" is dead. But if alive, "D.B. Cooper," who bailed out of a Boeing 727 five years ago with $200,000 in $20 bills, can still be prosecuted since there is no statute of limitations in capital crimes, and air piracy or aerial hijack was a crime punishable by death in November of 1971 and still is. Neither "Cooper" nor the ransom has been found. Shown here is a composite of the hijacker. (UPI)

Burned up customer files suit

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — John S. Ervin got so burned up — literally — by some thermal underwear he bought at Sears, Roebuck & Co. he sued the department store for negligence.

But the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday his claim has no foundation.

Ervin, a welder from Alton, Ill., was wearing a pair of Sears' thermal underwear when a spark from his torch dropped down his coveralls and lodged in plaintiff's groin area," according to the court's opinion.

New book features baboon, tipsy worm

LONDON (UPI) — The only baboon decorated for bravery in World War I, a tipsy worm and a bird that stays in flight for three years are featured in the new second edition of the Guinness Book of Animal Facts and Feats.

Jackie the baboon went to war with a South African farmer, who befriended him. He was made regimental mascot and was issued ration, a pay book and a specially designed uniform.

He always saluted officers, lit cigarettes for the men at arms and proved an invaluable guard by sniffing out the enemy, the book says.

Jackie lost a leg in Flanders, was promoted to corporal and awarded a medal for valor.

Kelley on crime

ATLANTA (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley says increased emphasis must be placed on public awareness to prevent crime from establishing "permanent rule over our lives."

Today, the question is not whether we will become victimized by crime, but when," Kelley told an Atlanta civic club Monday.

Kelley said the FBI had joined with police departments in Wilmington, Del., Norfolk, Va., DeKalb County, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., in four pilot projects to demonstrate citizens can help reduce crime through low-cost, self-help measures.

'Dead' man found alive

SEDALIA, Mo. (UPI) — Friends and relatives thought Harry A. Goldberg was dead, and a body identified as that of the elderly restaurant owner was buried under Goldberg's name.

But an old friend recently spotted Goldberg working in another town and Goldberg was reunited with his family after more than two years.

Goldberg, who blames the mixup on amnesia, disappeared in January 1974 while returning home from a business trip. He says the last thing he remembers clearly is pulling over to the side of a highway to take a nap.

But authorities said the 67-year-old man was several thousand dollars in debt when he vanished and indicated they were not entirely satisfied with his amnesia explanation.

"It's not all clear. I'd put it that way," Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Falfox said Monday of Goldberg's story.

Goldberg faces problems besides debts from his 33 month absence: He must remarry his wife who divorced him after she thought he abandoned her, process papers to revoke his legal death and return about $2,000 in life insurance money.

An old acquaintance spotted Goldberg working in a lakeside lodge at Forsyth, Mo., and the man — who called himself Harold Alexander Gordon — wrote Irene Goldberg saying he wanted to find out who he really was. They were reunited Nov. 7 and returned to their home in the central Missouri town of Sedalia that day.

"We've been busy with getting these legal things straightened out," she said. "We haven't had time yet to think about the future." She said Goldberg's health is too poor to start another restaurant.

Goldberg's son, Bill, 22, said he believes hardening of the arteries, which can decrease blood flow to the brain, may be responsible for his father's spotty memory.

Da Fonz likes kids

LYWON (UPI) — "Da Fonz" as a kiddie shrink? So says Henry Winkler, who plays the ducktailed Milwaukee teacher in the '60s.

Winkler was at a luncheon Monday as national chairman of the Marine Corps Reserve's annual "Toys for Tots" campaign, which collects Christmas toys for poor children.

He said he likes children and if he was not an actor would like to work with them, possibly as a child psychologist. He also said he wants to quit playing Arthur Fonzarelli after one more season.

Gov. Brown guests

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — When singer Helen Reddy and her husband, Jeff Wald, decided to repeat their marriage vows to mark their 10th anniversary, they invited only married couples as guests, except for Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Brown, a close friend, read the vows Miss Reddy wrote for herself and Wald and "was quite moved about it," Wald said. "For a bachelor he was surprised that he was as moved about marriage."

Mating scene cut

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — Censors have cut a mating scene from a short science-fiction film on the life of a pair of budgerigars, small Australian parrots, made by 10-year-old students at a primary school.

The film is to be shown at an international science and technology exhibition in Cairo without the explicit sex scene, which was deleted by the British Council on grounds that it might offend Islamic customs and law.

Also not in the film are the three little budgies born of the censored mating.

Supreme Court will study religion question

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court Monday agreed to take another look at federal law requiring employers to accommodate religious needs of employees, and signaled it may re-examine minority quotas for admission to colleges and professional schools.

The justices seem anxious to rule on both issues. They have attempted to do so before, but tied 4-4 on the religion problem two weeks ago in another case, and were blocked on the quota problem two years ago when the plaintiff, a white law student, graduated before a decision was reached, thus ending that case.

The newest religion appeal was brought by Trans World Airlines after a lower federal court held the airline violated 1962 amendments to the Civil Rights Act by firing an employee for refusing to work Saturdays on religious grounds. The law requires employers make "reasonable accommodation" for the religious needs of employees.

TWA claimed granting the employee special privileges would violate an obligation under its union contract to enforce seniority, scheduling, rights for other employees. The court also could rule that the 1972 law violates the First Amendment's ban on establishment of religion.

The quota case was brought by Allan Bakke, 36, a twice-rejected white applicant at the University of California-Davis medical school. Although otherwise qualified, Bakke was turned down because 16 per cent of the school's freshman class seats are reserved for minorities.

The California Supreme Court struck down the quota on grounds it violated the 14th Amendment's right to "equal protection of the laws." The state asked the Supreme Court to stay the ruling, leaving the quotas in force. The justices did so and gave the state 30 days to file a formal appeal for full review. The court could still reject a formal appeal, but granting a stay offers signals a willingness to resolve the issues presented.

In other action today, the justices: Rejected a challenge by the American Civil Liberties Union against a Middletown, Pa., curfew for minors. It was the first such case to reach the high court. The ACLU said 3,000 cities and towns have similar curfews.

— Refused to interfere with the 16-month trial period for Concorde supersonic airliners to provide service between the United States and Europe.

— Agreed to decide if Michigan can be required to spend $5.8 million as its share of the cost of expanding reading and other special programs in the Detroit school system as part of the city's desegregation plan.

— Let stand the convictions of the president of a militant black nationalist group and four co-defendants in connection with the 1971 slaying of a Jackson, Miss., policeman.

Seranton casts US vote

US vetoes Hanoi bid for UN seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United States Monday vetoed the admission of Vietnam to the United Nations on the ground that Hanoi had failed so far to give an accounting of the 800 American servicemen who are still officially listed as missing in action in the Vietnam war.

It was the 16th American veto. All the 14 other Security Council members voted for admission. William W. Seranton, the chief United States delegate, denounced the Vietnamese for failing to hand over information he said they possessed. He said: "We cannot help but conclude from the Vietnamese refusal to provide a fuller accounting that the Socialist Republic of Vietnam persists in its attempts to play upon the deep anguish and the uncertainty of the families of these men in order to obtain economic and political advantage."

The United States delegate said that the American position regarding Vietnam's entry would be reconsidered if Hanoi was to provide information.

Oil price hike appears probable

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — U.S. efforts to avert an increase in the world oil price have little chance of success, according to sources close to the world's major oil producers.

The sources said economic experts of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will recommend an oil price increase to OPEC's ministerial meeting Dec. 15 at Qatar.

OPEC's Economic Commission convened Monday for a one-week conference to prepare a report for the oil ministers.

"They can only make recommendations," an OPEC source said. "The decisions will be taken by the ministers."

There was little doubt among oil experts that the Economic Commission of the 13-member organization will recommend an increase in the oil price that has remained frozen in the last two ministerial meetings.

"The price of oil must be maintained by linking it to the price of manufactured goods," one source said.

OPEC hardliners, led by Iran, said the price of goods they import from the West has risen 35 per cent during the past three years.

In Washington, U.S. officials said last week the United States is using world opinion and an appeal to the oil producers' own financial interests to try to avert a world oil price increase.

The U.S. efforts, the sources said, have little chance of success.

Unofficial reports from the Middle East have said a price increase of as much as 10 to 20 per cent may be ordered by the oil ministers next month.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, has been mainly responsible for the oil price freezes at the last two ministerial meetings. This time, however, the atmosphere is different.

Red chiefs confer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Tito held their second round of talks today against a backdrop of assurances by Brezhnev that the Soviet Union has no intention of attacking Yugoslavia.

But the two Communist leaders cut their session short by 45 minutes and Brezhnev went to nearby Friendship Park to plant a "Tree of Peace" in a 10-minute ceremony witnessed only by a Russian television crew.

Arab forces move out from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Arab League peacekeeping force today readied its troops to move north to Tripoli and south to Sidon to consolidate its control of Lebanon further by reopening the major north-south roads.

The Syrian dominated peacekeeping force moved into Beirut Monday with virtually no opposition, bringing silence to the guns that have blasted the ravaged capital for 19 months.

The independent newspaper An Nahar said the pre-down operation Monday involved the deployment of about 11,000 men in and around the city.

Beirut residents today awoke from the quietest night they had enjoyed in 581 days, following the peaceful sweep through the city that banished rival gunmen from their battle sites.

Even though most Christian, Muslim and Moslem leftist fighters kept their weapons, putting them out of sight at their respective headquarters, the presence of the Arab army led to the immediate cessation of fighting in Beirut.

"Most of us couldn't sleep last night," joked one west

Beirut resident. "We had gotten used to the noise."

On its first full day of occupation in the war ravaged capital, the Arab force will consolidate its positions, especially in the scenes of the heaviest fighting along the confrontation lines between east and west Beirut. It also was expected that the airport south of the city would open soon.

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat presided over a three-hour meeting of the Palestinian guerrilla leadership Monday night to review the entry of Arab peacekeeping troops into Beirut, Palestinian sources said today.

As the Arab peace force of some 6,000 men marched through the city, bystanders applauded the advancing column and decorated their tanks and artillery with flowers.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian troops killed 29 guerrillas in the past 24 hours, raising to 40 the number slain in the past three days, security forces headquarters said today.

The latest slayings — one of the highest number in such a time span — came four days after a senior military spokesman told reporters that black nationalist guerrillas were waging an all-out offensive with up to 2,000 men already infiltrated into the country.

1 day SERVICE AND DELIVERY!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have raised 14 children, eight daughters and six sons, here in the coal fields of the Southeast. All were raised in the church. (My husband teaches a Bible class.)

Seven years ago one of my daughters, then 15, became pregnant. I couldn't believe it and was heartbroken. My husband insisted that she be sent away, and her baby left wherever it was born. I defied him, saw my daughter through the birth and an now raising her little boy. My once tenderhearted, precious daughter has become a lesbian and has fallen into the use of alcohol and drugs.

Six weeks ago she revealed to me that her own father is the baby's father, too! I also learned that he had molested our other daughters as they were growing up. No one would tell me, but immediately after high school graduation they would leave home to work. Now I know why!

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: If ever a mother of 14 children deserved their understanding and help, you do. They can help make life bearable again. Go to them.

Your husband is a very sick man, and unless he goes for treatment and recovers completely (which I doubt he will), the Lord will forgive you for not being a wife to him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an ordained minister who doesn't charge a fee to officiate at weddings for families in his congregation.

Last summer he performed six ceremonies. They were all lovely church affairs followed by receptions and dinners, and the night before, there were rehearsal dinners. Abby, my husband and I never got one invitation to any of these festivities!

One bride's mother said to my husband after the ceremony, "Oh, please stay for the reception and dinner, and phone your wife and tell her to come over right away!" (He politely declines.)

"Another bride told him, 'We didn't invite you and your wife to our wedding reception because we figured you'd be too busy to come.'"

The other four brides didn't even ask my husband to stay after the ceremony, but one saw him on the street a few months later and said, "How come you didn't stay for the dinner? We had a place set for you!"

My husband's brother is a minister in Illinois, and he and his wife are invited to all the affairs related to the wedding. And he is paid a fee, too. What's the matter with the people in California, Abby?

LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: California is a large state. Pinpoint the place, and I'll give them the needle.

DEAR ABBY: To those who write you about problems with relatives, may I submit what I call Einstein's Second or Revised Law on Relativity: Your chances of getting along with your relatives increases directly in proportion with the distance you keep away from them.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb, I am now 46 and 10 years ago I had a thyroid operation. My parathyroid glands were also removed by mistake.

I went through my menopause immediately with cramping of my hands and legs and muscle spasms and also convulsions. The doctor put me on calcium and phosphorus but kept increasing it until I was on 35 pills a day which is hard to swallow.

Lately I have been taking chewable pills which contain 750 milligrams of calcium and 580 milligrams of phosphorus. Could you tell me what would be the right amount of these to take?

I hadn't had a convulsion in almost two years but. In the last two months I have had three of them. I live alone and it is very frightening since I have no idea when I will have one. I have been on five doctors and they just put me on more pills. I cannot drink or eat eggs.

I wake up all bruised and with black eyes. Is there any way this can be controlled?

Calcium problem

Dear Reader,

Presuming that you are correct in your interpretation that the convulsions are secondary to low parathyroid function, the problem should be solvable.

The parathyroid glands, on each side of the thyroid gland, are sometimes damaged during surgery. This is often temporary but your 10-year history means that the damage in your case is permanent.

These tiny glands help regulate the level of calcium in your blood. When they are gone or damaged the blood calcium falls. The low blood calcium, not the menopause, causes the muscle cramps, tetany and convulsions that you have experienced. Usually these symptoms can be controlled if the blood calcium can be maintained at sufficiently high levels. In your case this, must have been uncommonly difficult.

The blood calcium is elevated by giving calcium and vitamin D. The vitamin D is very important in the absence of parathyroid glands and it is given in very large doses. This is not the kind of vitamin therapy you should try to regulate yourself but needs to be part of your treatment program. Some doctors prefer to use crystalline dihydroxycholesterol called simply A.T. 10 rather than vitamin D because it can be much more rapidly eliminated from the body if you get into trouble with too large a dose.

Anyone who has had as much trouble in regulation as you have had and who is now having convulsions that are not controlled should have an evaluation by an endocrinology clinic or specialist in endocrinology. Ask your doctor to send you to the nearest university medical center endocrinology section for a more complete evaluation.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, so you can see the difference between this condition and the one you are experiencing. Menopause does not cause your symptoms. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Artists find 'shelter' in co-ops

Joellen Bard, 34, displays paintings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Critics disagree on the quality, but young artists who cannot get their work exhibited in established galleries are finding "shelter from the cold" in co-ops.

The trend toward cooperative galleries, where artists also can sell their work cheaper by cutting out the middleman, was born in New York about 1920 and is now spreading around the United States and Canada.

"I think it's the Greenwich Village outdoor art show moved indoors," sniffs Mona Da Vinci, 35, art critic from the Soho Weekly News in Manhattan who feels the co-ops will spoil Soho. "They've found shelter from the cold."

But Lawrence Alloway, 50, art critic from The Nation magazine, disagrees. "I think the work in co-ops is first rate," said Alloway, a professor of art and history at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. "I wouldn't fool around with it otherwise."

Traditional commercial galleries, naturally, want established artists whose work can be expected to sell, earning money for the gallery as well as the artist.

But many artists who have been rejected, or who do not choose to show their work in commercial galleries, are investing in their own galleries.

In the cooperative gallery each artist pays a fee of $250 to $1,200 and thus becomes a part-owner of the gallery with the privilege of displaying his work on a regular basis.

Because they set their own policy the member artists are free from the financial pressures and restrictions—often imposed—by commercial galleries.

"I can do what I want — I'm totally not bound," said Joellen Bard, 34, an artist active in a co-op gallery.

In the 1960s art schools were pouring out students, but commercial galleries were not expanding. "We're the ones having to speak of the art world," said Mrs. Bard.

Mrs. Bard admits, "We're not selling as well as we could. We have to go to art fairs."

But co-op art sells for less than commercial gallery art, partly because the gallery doesn't rake off a sales commission.

Many of the co-ops, such as those in Soho, specialize in different kinds of art. For example, the Prince Street, First Street and Bovey galleries, in rebellion against abstraction, specialize in realistic art.

"We don't turn up our noses at the way people worked in the past," said David Klass, 35, of the First Street Gallery.

A co-op called 14 Sculptors art. A.I.R. Artists in Residence and Soho 20 are women's galleries.

"We wanted to display the idea there weren't enough good women artists around," said Doty Addie, 38, of A.I.R., which opened in 1972.

Others, like the West Broadway gallery, are eclectic. "We have a pretty big cross-section," said director Robert Ehrlich, 35. "The only criteria for admission is that the artist is good."

Name Gallery in Chicago consists of only six persons. In contrast, Gallery Signal in Montreal has 250 artists who sometime exhibit in public places such as the city center.

Washington's Woman's Art Center, like many other co-ops, gives classes to non-members in such areas as silk screen, dance, leather and watercolor, and offers tours of artists' studios.

San Francisco's 63 Bluxome, whose artists are largely inexperienced, is located in a warehouse building.

"The purpose of the shows here are publicity and exposure," said John Behanna of the gallery. "We help give them exposure."

Many co-op artists complain that art critics do not give them fair coverage.

Miss Da Vinci is no friend of the co-ops. She argues that many of the co-op artists are teachers and points out "in order for a teacher to gain tenure at a university he has to put a show."

"I hesitate to review such shows," she said. "I do feel suspicious because it's not my job to do someone else a favor."

Miss Da Vinci also said co-op artists, by distributing statements at their exhibitions, often alienate critics.

"It's pointless, irrelevant and turns off the critic," she added. "To expect to sway the critic on that level is an insult."

Alloway acknowledges that many co-op artists teach, but points out that many commercial gallery artists also teach.

"Because of my interest in feminism and realism I go into co-ops," he said.

Alloway ranks the A.I.R. as "absolutely great — one of the most important galleries in the city" and Soho 20 as "first rate."

Four New York co-ops banded together to form the Association of Artist Run Galleries AARG in January, 1975. Their purpose was to attract critical attention, publicity and government grants to co-ops and to coordinate exchange shows between member galleries.

Recently AARG, with about 20 to 25 member galleries nationwide, started a letter in which co-op artists review each other's work and publishes a map showing the location of its member galleries in New York.

In June, AARG threw an outdoor festival in Soho. Artists created work in the streets, musician played, poets read verse and dancers danced. Artists and critics participated in an art symposium at the Pielades Gallery.

Miss Da Vinci thinks such activities, with the influx of teacher-artists, will spoil Soho.

"It will drive the good artists out," she said. "Some of them already are moving."

To join a co-op, an artist's work must be approved by a selection committee. Once accepted, may stage an average of one three-week show every 18 months.

"Galleries that have the top fee do a lot more for the artist," Mrs. Bard said.

Gunny sack beautiful, claims designer

By GAY PAULEY UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A gunny sack gone glamorous. Yes, in the hands of an Egyptian born designer now creating in America.

Razallah, originally from Cairo and trained in Paris, believes that burlap is beautiful, even though it's a rough textured cloth usually meant for more rugged uses such as bagging and wrapping other than female forms.

My supply of fireplace logs comes in burlap, and after seeing what Razallah does with the material, I promise not to discard a single empty sack henceforth. Instead, stich into copies of what Razallah does.

For example, there are the "rich" peasant dresses for evening, their dirndl-skirted hemlines bordered in horizontal bands of orange velvet and gold piping. The dresses are worn with big white eyelet and lace blouses. But the natural burlap color remains.

Or there is the burlap coat, dyed royal blue, lined in brilliant orange, worn over a gold matte jersey dress of classic lines, and a gold lurex coat over a burlap skirt.

"This is the first season I've used burlap," said the 42-year-old designer at his preview of spring and summer fashions.

Razallah apprenticed in Paris in the salons of Pierre Balmain and Jacques Griffe, returned to Egypt to design for his homeland's best dressed, then came to New York in 1952 to work with Malcolm Starr. Last year, he and Don Friese opened their own firm. The retail price range is $140 to $400, from daytime dresses to the more elaborate evening costumes.

It was quite a contrast from the glamorized burlap to men's wear, but worth the snow to see a new line designed for the nonaverage size man.

Sportswear designer John Paul Goebel unveiled what he said was the first designer line for the big and the tall. The manufacturer is Gale Sobel of St. Louis and the retail price range is $50 to $100 for shirt and pants sets and $90 to $150 for three-piece suits.

Goebel hardly could hire professional models for his assignment, so recruited such as the florist tall and heavy, two weightlifters bulging muscle topside, and actor Sturgis Warner, 6-foot-9 and a string bean.

Goebel designs are sized to men from 6 feet, 1 inch to 7 feet, 3 inches and who weigh from 175 to 450 pounds.

"The big men, the tall men have been neglected," said Goebel, who takes credit for the "quilted look" for ski wear, the body line trousers for men, the tunic sports shirt, among other men's wear innovations.

"Athletes, like football players and such, have had to have their clothes made to order."

Now, he figures, all that will not be necessary. He works on the idea of proportion and illusion. For instance, jackets for the tall thin man have broader lapels than those for the big, broad type, and the jacket torso is elongated. Fabrics for the big man are less bulky, less textured, than those for the tall.

All tailored slacks in the collection feature his "Comfort Trak," which will permit as much as a 6 inch waist adjustment.

Said Goebel, "After a heavy meal, a big man can change as much as 2 inches in the waist."

Some antidotes harmful

DENVER (UPI) — Antidotes suggested on the labels of some household products may cause more harm to a child who has ingested toxic material, according to the director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Center.

Dr. Barry Rumack, clinical toxicologist and director of the poison center, also said the Red Cross handbook on first aid also is wrong in some recommended antidotes. The handbook is distributed by the American Medical Association and the Reader's Digest "guide to First Aid."

For one thing, the Digest says to administer the antidote recommended on the container which held the poison," said Rumack. "The AMA chart recommends water or milk for alkali poisons such as Drano, but it also mentions vinegar or citrus juices as options. The Red Cross handbook says much the same."

Rumack said a 2-year-old boy who swallowed Drano spent two years in the hospital because his mother followed the directions on the label and gave him vinegar as an antidote.

"Drano has lye in it," Rumack said. "It is wrong to use vinegar, lemon or grape fruit juice with any product containing lye, because it sets up a chemical reaction causing heat. Our lab tests show it produces a heat almost as great as boiling. The patient can suffer a severely burned esophagus."

"In the case of the little boy whose mother gave him vinegar, he eventually had to have his esophagus removed."

Rumack fought by letter for more than a year with the manufacturers of Drano, trying to persuade them to change the label. Last December, the label was changed to include water or milk.

"But it's still wrong," said Rumack. "They added 'Drink milk or water,' but didn't remove the advice to use vinegar. I'm trying now to get that changed."

The toxicologist said other products suggest giving salt as an antidote to cause vomiting. He called giving salt as an emetic "worse than doing nothing."

Combs, Urie wed Oct. 30

HAZELTON — Samantha Combs, daughter of Mrs. Louise Barton, Hazelton, became the "bride" of Larry Urie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Urie, Eden, in a double-ring ceremony Oct. 30 at 4 at the Assembly of God Church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wesley Johnson.

The bride was given in marriage by her maternal grandfather, A.F. "Buck" Stephenson, Ponca City, Okla.

The bride chose a floor-length wedding gown made of white muslin gauze trimmed in white lace and tiny blue satin ribbon. Her veil was waist-length and fashioned from white lace with nylon organza carnations accented with blue organza rosettes.

She wore her great-grandmother's crystal necklace and carried a blue Bible with matching organza carnations and tiny blue rosettes.

The bride's gown was designed and made by her mother.

Mrs. Glenn Brooks, Hazelton, twin sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Vicki Urie, sister of the bridegroom, and Sherry Barton, sister of the bride.

The best man was Milo Kaster of Bellevue and the groomsmen were Norman Worsham and David Stone, both Eden. The ringbearer was Spokell Barton, sister of the bride. Flower girl was Sara-Dawn Barton, sister of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the wedding ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with white lace over blue, centered by a seven-tiered wedding cake decorated in white with tiny blue flowers and blue bells topped with a bride and bridegroom surrounded by white doves.

The cake was made and decorated by the bride's mother.

The cake was cut and served by Joene Johnson, Hazelton. The punch was served by Debbie Stone, Eden, Lois Hite of Eden registered the guests. Wedding music was played by Yernel Ferrari of Hazelton. Sidney Brooks of Twin Falls sang.

After a short honeymoon trip to Sun Valley, the couple will live in Eden — where the farming is engaged in farming for Hank Schutte.

Out-of-town guests were from Ponca City, Okla., Wells, Kan., Twin Falls, Bellevue and Shoshone.

score four club tricks. One way to get four club tricks is to bang down his ace. If that drops a singleton queen he is home. Otherwise the lead of the ace will not give him a chance for more than three tricks in the suit.

However, there is a reasonable chance to score four club tricks if he leads toward his hand and finesse the 10. If the finesse works, he continues by playing his ace and will be home safely if East started with either queen and one or queen and two clubs. This represents a total probability of about 31 per cent.

Ask the Jacobys

A North Dakota reader wants to know if we ever open notrump with a singleton. Never seldom applies in bridge but this is one time that it does. We never open notrump with a singleton because such hands are so likely to play better in a suit than in notrump.

Weak cold front brings rain to MV

Twin Falls, North Side, Burley-Rupert area: Mostly cloudy tonight through Wednesday. Thirty per cent chance of light rain tonight and Wednesday. Highs in the 50s Wednesday and overnight lows near 40. Thursday's outlook: rain likely. Halley, Camas Prairie, Lower Wood River Valley: Considerable cloudiness with a little rain likely tonight and Wednesday. High temperatures Wednesday in the 50s and overnight lows in the 30s. Thursday's outlook: rain or snow likely. Synopsis: Considerable cloudiness with light rain at times occurred over much of southern Idaho Monday. The cause of this moist weather is a series of weak cold fronts moving into the intermountain region from the Pacific. Another Pacific front will be moving into Idaho Wednesday and should bring widespread precipitation into the area. While a little snow is still possible off and on in the mountains, precipitation will generally be in the form of light rain. The extended outlook for Thursday through Saturday calls for more rain or snow. Thursday, turning dry but a little cooler by Saturday. Highs by Saturday will be in the 40s with overnight lows near 20.

Wheat gains, other futures decline

(Courtesy Sinclair & Co.) CHICAGO — Wheat advanced, but most other segments of the commodity futures market sagged Monday. Commodity News Service said wheat shrugged off negative influences from the soybean complex, acted independently and closed 4 1/2 to 6 1/2 cents higher. Active buy wheat-sell corn spreading by local speculators followed trade opinions that the market has bottomed out but many observers remain doubtful. Corn showed evidence of waning seasonal decline, but effects of the soybean decline brought corn to a close half a cent to 2 1/2 cents lower. An early tumble by oil turned soybeans and meal to a defensive performance, and at the close beans were off 15 1/2 cents to 23 1/2 cents, meal was down 2.00 to 3.00 for current crop and 1.60 to 1.70 on distant months, with oil 100 points down except for September which was off 98. Live cattle broke to new lows in the closing minutes, settling on or near the low. February and April showed the greatest weakness from forward spreading, December was down 65 points, February off 112 and other months 40 to 35 lower. Pork bellies faltered after late attempts to gain ground. The closing prices were down 122 to 155 points. New York Sugar 11 traded daily, within volume, and closed 4 to 96 points higher except for March, which was off a point to a point higher, and spot January. Sugar 12 was mixed, off 18 points to 7 points higher. The world spot price is off .15 cents at 7.9 cents a pound and the domestic spot price is off .15 cent at 10.5 cents a pound.

Acreage of wheat due check

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho farmers will be asked this month and next the number of acres planned to winter wheat this fall. Richard C. Max, statistician in charge for the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said today it was part of a major nationwide survey of wheat farmers. Max explained a substantially large harvest in 1976 followed by dry planting conditions in many areas of the nation this fall have clouded the acreage-and-production prospects for the 1977-winter wheat crop. The survey will assist wheat producers, processors, exporters, government farm planners and others in managing output, storage and marketing operations to maintain an orderly agricultural situation. Max said a cross section of Idaho farmers will be contacted in person, by telephone and through the mails in an effort to develop wheat acreage estimates that are as accurate as possible. The survey also will collect information about the number of cattle, hogs and chickens on farms and the size of the pig and calf crops producers expected to raise in early 1977. Max said the survey was voluntary and that all answers provided by producers would be kept confidential and only state and national summaries would be issued. The Idaho agency will publish the state and national estimates for wheat, Dec. 22, poultry facts, Jan. 23, and cattle data, Feb. 2.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Tuesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was about 0.32 to 935.81 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 262 to 138, among the 67 issues crossing the tape.

Investors were encouraged by indications that President-elect Jimmy Carter would try to avoid wage-price controls through voluntary measures and that he might retain Arthur F. Burns as the head of the Federal Reserve Board.

Busted development swells Hailey funds

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News Writer

HAILEY — After controversy three years ago about the Woodside Project at the City of Hailey, it now appears the project has done more good for Hailey than it has for the project's developers.

The Woodside Developments in Hailey's southern city limits have turned out to be a giant bust for the project's developers, McCulloch Properties, Inc.

Last week the Hailey City Council accepted a letter from the senior vice-president of McCulloch Properties, Charles T. Thompson, announcing the completion of the company's building and financial obligations to the city.

McCulloch also issued an official release saying the company is getting out of the land development business. The decision is expected to result in an estimated loss of $20 million to the company for discontinued operations throughout the country. The loss at Woodside is expected to be at least $2.5 million.

The Woodside project, which caused controversy among Hailey citizens when first proposed in 1973, is now generally accepted. Most citizens seem to feel it has been acceptable because it provided for the city.

McCulloch gave the city $30,000 for a new fire station, $20,000 for sewer studies, 20 acres for Blaine County on which to build a new high school and $2.0 million for the Woodside sewage crossover line.

In 1973 many Hailey citizens feared the Woodside Project would cause a wild rush of land development in the area and a sudden population growth in the quiet city. This fear proved to be unfounded in terms of the Woodside Developments and for the time being is gone.

"I have no complaints personally about Woodside," Hailey Planning and Zoning Board member Joan Davies said. "They certainly have lived up to their obligations as far as the city is concerned. People felt at first there would be a large influx of population, which has not happened. It hasn't been as bad as they feared."

TF city, school officials praise Life Safety Code

TWIN FALLS — City and school district officials told state legislators here the state Life Safety Code adopted recently should not be repealed.

State Representatives T. W. Stivers, Ralph Olmstead, Bob R-Twin Falls, and Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, and State Senators John Barker, R-Buhl, and Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, listened to comments from school district representatives Fred Decker and James Smallwood, and City Atty. Charles Brumbach, Fire Chief Robert Bopp and City Councilman Henry Woodall.

The opinion of city officials is the code is a good law which contains necessary provisions to work out enforcement problems.

Decker called the code a "useful tool" for cities to have in enforcing non-complying buildings to meet standards.

Brumbach said city officials were handling non-complying buildings around the city in much the same way as they had with the school district. The city is notifying building owners their structures do not conform to the code and then working out schedules for improvement with the owner, Brumbach said.

Smallwood estimated it would take more than $700,000 to bring all buildings up to par immediately. He said "If that's what the state wants, you'll have to provide alternate means of funding."

Stivers said the legislators realized cities could not comply with the standards immediately. "My attitude is this thing has already gone too far, too fast," he said, referring in part to the closure of O'Leary Junior High School in June.

Bopp said city officials are not antipathetic to the closing of any other city buildings to comply with the standards.

CSI election on Dec. 21 will fill two trustee seats

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will hold elections Dec. 21 to fill two seats on its five-man board of trustees.

The final filing date for candidates seeking six-year slots is Dec. 3. Candidates must submit nominating petitions signed by at least five qualified junior college district electors.

The petitions must be submitted to CSI Board Secretary Karl Black.

Details of the election were outlined Monday by CSI Attorney Robert Alexander at the trustees' regular monthly meeting.

The two seats coming open are now held by Robert Blaseck, Jr., and William Babcock. Babcock, who was appointed last spring to the seat left vacant when trustee Eldon Evans resigned, filed his petition for candidacy Monday night. Blaseck had not filed Monday but indicated he would do so.

Both Blaseck and Babcock will be seeking six-year terms.

CSI President James L. Taylor said Monday he didn't think other petitions of candidacy had been filed, but added he wasn't sure.

The election will be held from noon to 4 p.m. at 11 selected polling places in Jerome and Twin Falls counties. Two judges and one clerk at each polling place will oversee the casting of ballots.

In order to cast a vote, an elector must sign an oath declaring himself or herself to be of legal age (18+) and residing in the college district (Twin Falls and Jerome counties).

Polling places will include the Bull Moose Hall, the Castleford Grange Hall, Filer High School, Hansen City Hall, Hazelton Grade School, Hollister Grade School, Jerome City Hall, Kimberly High School, Murtaugh Elementary School, Twin Falls Courthouse, and the Administration Building on the CSI campus.

Absentee ballots must be requested in writing at least 10 days prior to the election. They will be sent out by registered mail.

In other action at its meeting Monday, the CSI board heard a report on a recent convention of the American Association of Community College Trustees. Trustee Charles Lehman, who attended the convention in St. Louis, told other board members the experience was valuable and urged them to attend future conventions.

Conservation leader speaks at TF meeting

TWIN FALLS — Farmers and ranchers involved with soil conservation have a commendable past but should continue to look to the future for better conservation methods, according to Harold Bell, president of the Idaho Association of Soil Conservation Districts.

Bell delivered his president's message at the association's annual meeting at the Holiday Inn today during the first of three days of the meeting.

Mrs. Bell, speaking for the ladies auxiliary, stressed the importance of a woman's role in supporting a man engaged in farming.

She said sometimes women make the difference between the success and failure of a farming operation.

Howard Fleusa, chairman of the Soil Conservation Commission, related the role of his commission in conservation.

LI Gov. John V. Evans was scheduled to speak on "Conservation for a Better Tomorrow" at a luncheon gathering of the group.

Flammable building names withheld

TWIN FALLS — Fire Chief Robert Bopp has refused to name the five buildings in Twin Falls that are insulated with dangerously flammable poly-urethane foam.

City fire officials have warned the building owners that state law requires the fire hazard to be corrected by Jan. 1, 1978.

Bopp said "that is between those people and us. It's not that I'm trying to dodge the question, but a release of their names could adversely affect their business."

What could be the worst fire in Twin Falls history caused an estimated $850,000 late last month to the Ace Hansen Chevrolet building. The fire was able to spread the entire 52,400-square feet of the building in less than a couple minutes because the building was insulated with poly-urethane foam, fire officials said.

Fire Marshal Fred Higgins, the day after the fire, said he was mailing letters to six other owners of buildings insulated with poly-urethane foam, warning them of the dangers.

He said at the time he did not think it was appropriate to release the names before the owners had received the letters.

When asked if the public had a right to know what buildings are dangerous and what buildings are not, Bopp said, "That argument has some validity, but what's important is the degree of danger."

He said he did not feel the danger was great enough in those six buildings to warrant disclosure of their owners' names.

He said "one of the buildings was a storage warehouse which no one worked in and that the public didn't use."

Higgins earlier disclosed one of the buildings was the Everton Mattress Factory, hit by fire last June. Higgins said foam in the mattress factory warehouse did not ignite in that fire.

Power firm rejects proposal

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company is considering a number of proposals for new production facilities but a spokesman says a proposed joint-venture by Washington Water Power Co. isn't one of them.

Washington Water Power Company announced last week that it has hired an engineering firm to find a site in northern Idaho or eastern Washington for a proposed coal-fired plant. To be completed in the late 1980s, it would cost $20 million to $1 billion, depending on generating capacity.

"We are considering a number of things but that isn't one of them," Robert Brown, Idaho Power public relations director, said, adding he was not allowed to say what the utility might be considering.

Idaho Power had proposed a coal-fired generating plant near Boise but was turned down earlier this year by the Public Utilities Commission.

Ketchum worker burned

KETCHUM — A worker for Idaho Power Co. received slight burns on the fingers of both hands Monday when he was shocked while working on an underground pad mount transformer on Warm Springs Road.

Frank Hodge, Twin Falls, was taken to Sun Valley Hospital for treatment of the burns from the 7,200-volt shock.

Hodge was released from the hospital Monday and is reportedly back to work.

Shifts rotation must at hospital

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Board Monday night approved a policy change making it mandatory for day-shift nurses to rotate to other shifts.

The board also gave informal sanction to the partial reopening of the hospital's closed, short-term care wing.

The nursing policy change, which had the support of the hospital's nursing committee, will require nurses requesting to work the 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. day shift to agree to rotate to either the 3 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. swing shift or the 11 p.m. to 7:30 a.m. night shift, as deemed necessary by the nursing director.

Personnel requesting to work either the swing or the night shift won't be required to rotate.

The policy change, which will apply to part-time nurses working in excess of 24 hours weekly as well as full-time day nurses, is designed to give a more equitable distribution of the hospital's nursing staff.

According to Director of Nursing Nancy Churchman, MVMH now has more nurses than minimally required for the day shift but not enough for the other two shifts.

The policy will make rotation mandatory as a part of nurses' contracts and failure to comply with rotation will be considered cause for dismissal.

The amount of rotation to swing and night shifts "will be left to the discretion of the department head and the rotating employees," according to the policy's wording.

Nursing schedules will be posted the third week of each month. Nurses requesting special shifting must present those requests by the second week of each month.

The partial reopening of the hospital's second floor, short-term care unit will be undertaken, according to Mrs. Churchman, as soon as possible.

The unit will be opened 16 hours a day for the care of minor surgery patients.

The unit, which was closed last summer because of MVMH's nursing shortage, will open at 6 a.m. and close at 10 p.m. Patients will be cleared by 8:30 p.m. each day, however, to leave time for ward clean up.

Patients who must spend more than part of a day in the hospital will be transferred to other wards.

The partial reopening is being undertaken to ease a backlog of mostly minor surgery, Mrs. Churchman said.

She added that the partial hours will act as an incentive to prevent unnecessary retention of patients in the hospital and will accomplish a "savings to the patient and also a cash inflow to us, which we need."

Mrs. Churchman said the reopening could come next week. The wing will be reopened on a 24-hour basis when and if staffing permits, she added.

Ponderosa lawyer lectures TF panel

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A lawyer for Ponderosa Inns, Inc., stood up before the City Council here Monday night and gave what one councilman described as "a lecture" on the controversy between the firm and the city on an airport land lease agreement.

The agreement reached between the city and Ponderosa in 1975 called for the firm to lease city land at the airport until 1983. Ponderosa was to provide a rental car service on the land.

Last month, under City Council guidance, City Atty. Charles Brumbach sent the letter to Ponderosa, giving them 30 days notice of a cancellation of the agreement.

Brumbach earlier gave two reasons why the city was cancelling the agreement with the firm.

First, he noted the firm was subleasing the land to Budget Rent-A-Car for five per cent of the operating profits. Brumbach said the agreement between the city and Ponderosa called for the rental car service at the airport, to be "owner-operated." Because it was not owner-operated, the city was abrogating the agreement, he said.

Second, Brumbach said the agreement allows the city to cancel the agreement if the firm files a petition in bankruptcy court.

The firm filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act several months ago. Two months ago, a judge approved a bankruptcy repayment schedule to creditors proposed by the firm.

Because of the filing of the petition, Brumbach said the city can end its contract with Ponderosa.

Mike Redman, a Ponderosa attorney, told the council Monday it was cancelling the agreement on "no legal basis" and leaving the city open to a later lawsuit by the firm.

Responding to Brumbach's first argument, Redman said the alleged necessity of a "owner-operator" was irrelevant because city officials knew earlier of the sublease arrangement.

Redman argued City Manager Jean Millar had known of the sublease agreement and therefore, had approved it. The Ponderosa attorney said a letter informing the city of the sublease arrangement had been mailed in December, 1975.

"You can't approve of a sublease and then get rid of the contract," Redman said, appealing to what he termed the council's "business sense."

Millar, after the meeting, responded that a sublease arrangement cannot be allowed without written consent from both parties in the original lease, something the city never gave.

Against Brumbach's second argument, Redman said the original lease agreement contained "a provision that on the filing of any bankruptcy, a party has 30 days to give notice of termination of the agreement."

Redman said Ponderosa filed its petition in January, and the city did not give notice within the required 30 days.

The Ponderosa "has a right until 1983" to the land under the lease agreement "so you can't imagine the amount of damage," the council could be sued for, Redman said.

The attorney suggested the reason the city has cut its lease agreement with Ponderosa is because Budget came to the city and asked for help. Redman said Ponderosa has notified Budget it would end the sublease within a year and open its own car rental service later.

"Budget, trying to protect themselves, came to the city and told them it might be to the city's advantage to dump Ponderosa," Redman said. He suggested the city might arrange a more profitable lease agreement with Budget directly.

After a roughly 30-minute discussion, Councilman Chris Talkington told Redman he did not "appreciate being lectured to."

Councilman Steve Lincoln said, "Oh, I don't know, I kind of enjoyed the whole thing."

Magic Valley Memorial X-ray fees may increase

The fees range from a low of $3.50 for simple procedures to a high of $300 for more complex X-ray studies.

According to hospital figures, the radiologists' fees averaged about $10.52 per exam in the first nine months of 1975 and about $9.54 per exam during the first nine months of this year.

Under the new billing schedule the fees of about 45 procedures will be at or below the average rates under the contracts for this year and last, but the contract averages will be exceeded by about 170 of the procedures on the new list.

The radiologists argue that, under separate billing they will have professional autonomy, being able to bill patients outright on their own, just as other doctors do.

The separate billing procedure will have the added effect, however, of keeping secret the doctors' income so that the hospital will no longer know how much the specialists are making, even though the hospital will continue to supply virtually all the radiologists' equipment and staff, including machinery, office space, technicians and, in the words of the new agreement, "janitor, in-house messenger, telephone, laundry, electricity, gas, water and heat services."

The radiologists argue that their income should not be public, that the public has no business knowing what they make even though they are housed and supplied by the hospital.

"We do not think our incomes are any business of the community simply because we utilize hospital facilities," Dr. Davis, said earlier. "Every physician utilizes hospital facilities.

Their income fees averages from last year to this occurred after the hospital revised its contract following a Times-News story last January reporting that radiologists and pathologists at MVMH were budgeted to average $100,000 or more each year in personal income.

According to hospital figures supplied last month, however, the change in the contract, while it dropped the average doctor's fees for an average of $10.52 to $9.54, had little effect on the doctors' yearly income, which through projections of the hospital's figures will rise slightly due to a 9.5 per cent increase in the number of exams.

According to the MVMH figures, radiologists in the first nine months of last year completed a total of 15,526 exams for which they received fees totaling $164,836.

In the first nine months of this year the doctors completed 17,271 exams for which they received fees totaling $164,836.

Projecting these figures for a full year, the doctors last year would have averaged about $91,915 in annual income. This year they will make about $91,575 if the hospital figures are correct, an increase this year in annual income of about two-tenths (1.75) of a per cent.

Under the new fee schedule and the separate billing procedure, the doctors' income won't be known, by either the hospital or the public.

In addition to the above income, the doctors receive income from the department of nuclear medicine, which will add about $1,000 to two of the radiologists' income this year. The third radiologist is not qualified in nuclear medicine and receives none of these fees.

Gem wheat growers press curtailed Idaho spending

BOISE (UPI) — The president of the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association called upon the State Legislature to curtail its spending because of the depressed prices for all commodities.

Bob Stach, Nezperce, said the legislature should not be allowed to let the structure be increased on those already paying the maximum.

Speaking at the association's annual meeting in Boise, Stach said taxable income "is going to be questioned where the legislature was going to get the money to spend. He said the projected income for Idaho was seven per cent above last year and public education was seeking a 19 per cent increase.

"Who is going to pay the bill for the rest of higher education and inflation in the state?" Stach also told association members that while the plight of the farmer at the present, with prices way down and surplus crops, was not what "we like to look forward to, we're not going to quit."

"But we saw some changes would have to be made for the farmer to survive."

"We are no longer in a farmer oriented country," Stach said. "This is a consumer-united nation and we will have to fight to retain our little mistake."

He said maybe the farmer should throw out some of the tested policies and gentlemen agreements of the past.

"Why should I more white wheat be sold to Africa? How about more research to find alternate uses of wheat such as was found in the grain alcohol program?"

Stach said the wheat industry must find new uses instead of convincing the consumer to eat more bread.

"We have to find a complete new use for 'this stuff,'" he added. Stach also noted that "we just haven't been aggressive enough as farmers in the disposal of our products after we raise them."

"We need someone to speak out for the farmer the way George Meany (president of the AFL-CIO) speaks for labor," Stach said.

New hard wheat offered

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Colorado State University has released a new hard red winter wheat that could increase production by 10 per cent over standard varieties, according to university wheat experts.

The new wheat, a semi-dwarf named Vona, was developed by Dr. J.R. Welsh, CSU agronomist.

The wheat is the result of a three-way cross between two experimental winter wheats and a semi-dwarf spring wheat from the International Corn and Wheat Improvement

Center in Mexico.

"If half of Colorado's wheat acreage were planted to Vona, it also could increase on-farm income by $6 million to $7 million and provide enough grain to satisfy the wheat consumption needs of 1.5 million more people," said Welsh.

The new wheat topped the university's three-year, dryland winter wheat variety trials in Colorado, and placed first and second among 30 winter wheats in regional tests in 1975 and 1976.

Regional tests were located in nine states throughout the hard red winter wheat growing area. Because of these test results, Welsh predicted that Vona should have "a significant impact outside Colorado as well as in the state."

In 1976, Vona averaged 34.5 bushels per acre at 10 dryland locations in Colorado—this compares with Centurk, the highest yielding standard variety. In the test, which averaged 31.4 bushels per acre.

Welsh said another favorable trait of Vona is its adaptability to irrigation because of the straw strength, semi-dwarf characteristics and yield potential.

Jimmy C. winner

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A 1,200-pound Simmental and Angus crossbred named Jimmy C. was selected Grand Champion Steer of the American Royal during the weekend.

The steer, named for President-elect Jimmy Carter, is owned by Jody Martz, 16, of Lanark, Ill.

Martz cried as she accepted the award Saturday. She and Jimmy C. will part Tuesday when the steer goes on auction block.

"740 years ago her brother, Mike Martz, also showed the grand champion steer at the American Royal. He was in Kansas City during the weekend to watch his sister pick up the top honors.

Jimmy C. won the highest steer award by beating out the champion 4-H steer, a Maine-Anjou and Angus crossbred owned by Martho Graber, 17, of Mineral Point, Wis.

Miss Graber's steer was named reserve grand champion steer of the American Royal. Although the steer does not have a name, Miss Graber said she often calls him Mr. Terrific.

Figures up

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — The Amalgamated Sugar Co. reported a net income of $10,705,000, or $5.29 per common share, and sales totaling more than $135 million for fiscal 1976.

The company reported earnings of $23,392,000 or $11.56 per common share in 1975, with total sales of $175.8 million.

Farm loans available

BOISE (UPI) — Farmers and ranchers are now eligible for loans from the Small Business Administration, Verle Leighton, acting Boise district director, said.

Long-term loans for land, improvements, equipment and operating capital may be guaranteed by the agency and short-term loans for operating expenses may also be available, Leighton said.

"Leighton said the expanded lending program is not expected to replace, duplicate or conflict with the programs of the Farmers Home Administration or other federal assistance agencies."

The programs will work in cooperation with each other, Leighton said.

Court rejects appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today refused to interfere with the 16-month trial period authorized by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. for the Concordes SST to use U.S. airports for passenger service.

In a brief order, the court rejected without comment an appeal by Nassau County, N.Y., and Fairfax County, Va., which have objected to the faster-than-sound aircraft because of their noise.

The counties sought Supreme Court review after the U.S. Court of Appeals here upheld Coleman.

The appeal said evidence made available by a congressional subcommittee showed the decision to let the British and French Concordes serve the two airports was attributable in large part to officials' fear that "Concordes" and that in any event he should not have acted when the Federal Aviation Administration had issued no regulations for supersonic aircraft.

The British-French service has been available from Dulles International Airport in Fairfax County, Va., just outside Washington, since May.

Landings at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York have been banned for six months by the New York and New Jersey Port Authority pending a study of the Dulles experience.

Flows released

BURLEY — The Bureau of Reclamation reports that the concrete core drilling at Island Park Dam has been finished and normal flows are now being released from the reservoir.

The reservoir is approximately three-fourths full with release of 500 cubic feet per second. This approximate flow is expected to remain for the rest of the fall and into the winter.

Flows in the South Fork of the Snake River will be reduced Sunday night at Palisades to enable Jefferson County to do necessary repair work on Howe Bridge Monday.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (UPI) — An American engineer working in Southeast Asia has reported the existence of about 250 Americans missing in action in Saigon, some of whom do not want to return home, a copyrighted story in the Macomb Daily said today.

The newspaper said it learned of the report from local Veterans of Foreign War official Nelson Amsdill, who met with Vietnamese officials in Paris earlier this year to demand information about Americans still unaccounted for in that country.

Amsdill provided the newspaper with letters written by the unidentified engineer, copies of which also have been forwarded to a special congressional committee investigating the fate of MIAs.

The newspaper quoted one letter to the committee in which the engineer reported on the existence of MIAs and prisoners of war in Saigon soon after the war there ended.

"We've talked to reliable men who were the last to leave Saigon after the U.S. evacuation in 1975," the newspaper quoted the letter.

"Immediately... the Communists moved some American POWs and MIAs into Saigon to work at the abandoned American air bases."

The source, writing from Indonesia, also reportedly said, "This information on MIAs in Saigon is common knowledge out here, but it's kept hush for obvious reasons."

"They (MIAs) do not want to come home because they have families in Vietnam. What I'm trying to say is that most of the MIAs aren't missing. They are working in Hanoi and other cities close to the Chinese border."

Amsdill said portions of the letters from the engineer confirmed earlier testimony from Vietnam veterans before the congressional committee.

The newspaper said the source was not identified to protect his job status.

Federal rebates urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three economists urged Monday that the federal government give at least $8 billion worth of rebates to American taxpayers early next year to spur a new economic recovery.

The economists, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, did not spell out the amount the rebates would be worth to each taxpayer, but $17 billion worth of rebates in 1975 amounted to $200 per person in the lower brackets.

The recommendations ranged from a "one shot tax rebate... in the magnitude of $8 billion" urged by one economist to a permanent $10 billion to $12 billion by another and more than $12 billion by a third.

All agreed the rebates were needed as a stimulus to encourage business expectations and consumer sentiment and increase the spending power of the lower and middle income groups.

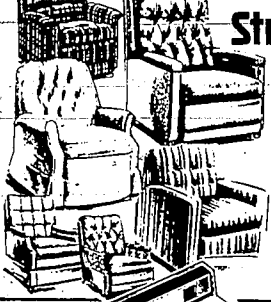

The recommendation came from Henry Kaufman, a partner in Salomon Brothers of New York; Allan H. Meltzer, economics professor at Carnegie Mellon University; and Benjamin M. Friedman, Harvard University economics professor.

Hot Goetz leads CSI by NW Colorado

TWIN FALLS — Sophomore Kim Goetz slugs one of his all-time shooting exhibitions Monday in scoring 38 points when CSI opened its season by drubbing Northwestern Colorado 107-64.

Goetz had 30 points at halftime — missing two shots — and was four for five in playing the first 10-49 of the second half. By that time CSI was out by 40 points and Coach Boyd Grant retired the night.

Goetz said "I didn't think it was an especially hot shooting night." Reminded he only missed once in the second half, Goetz smiled "and that was the easiest shot I had. I didn't really lay on it." That was a follow shot, a loose ball coming off the rim to him about eight feet off to the left of the key. The Eagles now await a Saturday night visit from Western Wyoming. Coach Grant anticipates Western Wyoming being a strong club with good quickness at both guard positions and one forward.

Western Wyoming, along with Casper JC, and CSI are the three Intermountain schools that often appear on the national rankings. Northwestern Colorado, despite the torrid shooting of Goetz, stayed in contention through the first 13 minutes of the game largely on offensive rebouncing. "We didn't get one board, not one board, in the whole half." Coach Grant moaned in exaggeration at intermission. Twice the Eagles spurred out to 10-point leads with NWC coming back. They pulled to within four with 8:28 left and to within six two minutes later.

Art Williams picked up buckets on the offensive glass and fast breaks. Goetz, with four points up to then, got a tip for his 38th points with 11:29 to play and added a layup on a break with 9:56. He came out 43 seconds later to a standing ovation.

Pate, Stockton picked

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate and PGA champion Dave Stockton have been selected to represent the United States in the 24th World Cup Golf Championship to be played at Mission Hills Country Club, Dec. 8-12.

Selection of Pate and Stockton followed the formula set up by the PGA tour which stipulates the current U.S. Open and PGA championships be the automatic invitees. It will be Pate's first World Cup experience while Stockton, who teamed with Lee Trevino in 1970, will be making his second appearance. The U.S. team of Johnny Miller and Lou Graham won the World Cup a year ago at Bangkok.

A total of 48 countries will be represented in the 1976 Cup competition.

Connors advances

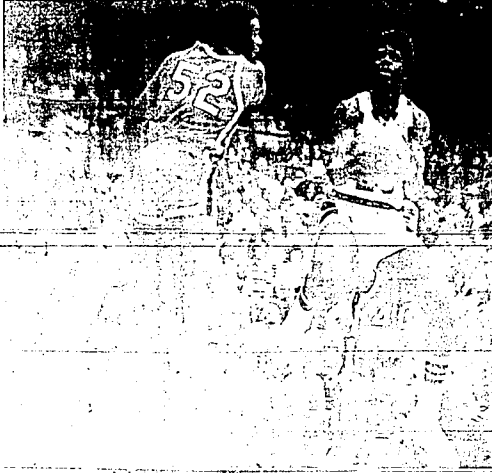

LONDON (UPI) — Topped Jimmy Connors crushed Texan Mike Estep 6-3 for a one-sided victory Monday in the first round of the $100,000 Benson and Hedges tennis tournament.

Connors, who decided to enter the tournament at the last moment and was immediately made first seed, had no problems against his fellow countryman who appeared to have taken the court with a psychological disadvantage.

Estep was in awe of Connors in the first set which the Forest Hills champion won in just 20 minutes on the fast indoor court of the Wembley indoor stadium.

Estep played his best tennis when he was doomed to defeat, but throughout made the mistake of trying to trade Connors stroke for stroke and inevitably failed.

In other first round matches, Ove Bengtson of Sweden came back to defeat New Zealand's Onny Parun 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 and Balocs Taroczy of Hungary downed Bryon Bertram of South Africa 6-3, 3-6, 6-0.

DOUBLE PUMP by CSI's Oscar Sprull evaded the defensive efforts of a Northwestern Colorado player and netted an easy bucket for the Eagle sophomore Monday night. CSI won its season opener 107-62.

Final meeting

The final meeting of the City League Outlaw Basketball teams will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 at the City Hall. Plans for the season will round out and all players and teams are encouraged to attend.

Bullets add player

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Washington Bullets, seeking healthy ball-handling help, signed 11-year National Basketball Association veteran Bob Weiss Monday and placed Jimmy Jones on the injured list.

The 34-year-old Weiss, a 6-foot-3 guard, was cut before the season by the Buffalo Braves. He played six seasons in Chicago for Dick Motta, now the Bullets' coach.

Weiss has an 8.1 point per game career scoring average. He averaged 32 points per game in 66 games with Buffalo last season.

Jones, hampered by a chronic knee injury, has played little for the Bullets, off to their worst start in several years with a 5-7 record. He must stay on the injured list at least five games before he can be reactivated.

Emerson joins WTT

BOSTON (UPI) — Roy Emerson, 30, replaces Ian Tiriac as player-coach for the World Team Tennis Boston Lobsters for the 1977 season. It was announced Monday.

Emerson, who holds more titles than any player, has won every major singles and doubles tournament at least once and every Grand Slam tournament at least twice. He began his career at the age of 18.

The native Australian now spends most of his time teaching and playing in selected tournaments. "As player-coach for the Lobsters, I plan to stress physical fitness and team spirit," said Emerson.

In 1974, the inaugural season of WTT, he was player-coach for the San Francisco Golden Gate.

Alitz wins IC4A meet

NEW YORK (UPI) — Curt Alitz of Army ran his undefeated streak to eight Monday by winning the individual crown in the 68th annual IC4A cross country championships, while Harvard took the team title.

Alitz, a Junior, crossed the finish line 20 yards ahead of John Flora of Northeastern in 23:58.1 for the five-mile run at Van Cortlandt Park, the second fastest performance ever run on the course. Dave Merrick of Penn ran 23:51 to beat Alitz last year.

The 20-year-old Alitz was involved in a deadlock with Flora and Jim Petersen of Georgetown after three miles. Shortly after that Alitz, winner of the Heptagonal title 10 days ago, broke in front by 100 yards and then held off Flora, who wound up in 24:02. Petersen followed with a 24:08. Bruce Blackford of Northeastern was fourth in 24:08 and Harvard's Jim Campbell was fifth in 24:28.

The team title was the first for Harvard since 1921.

Secretarial mate sold

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Castle Hyde, an 8-year-old mare in foal to 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat, sold for $385,000 Monday night at the November Breeding Stock Sale at Keeneland Race Course.

Consigned by Gainesway Farm near here and Swettenham Stud, the mare was purchased by Dogwood Farm, Inc., Atlanta. Doing the actual bidding for Dogwood Farm was Coltran "Cot" Campbell, of Atlanta.

The price paid for Castle Hyde, by Tulyar out of Bold Irish, equaled the second high price ever paid for a broodmare at Keeneland. It was only $10,000 under the record $395,000 paid for Princess Gem here in 1970.

Campbell said the mare probably would be divided into six or seven shares.

Argentina cancels

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Argentine national basketball team was supposed to open a six-game exhibition tour against St. John's University (N.Y.) Tuesday night, has canceled out of its trip because of internal problems.

In addition to St. John's, the team was also scheduled to play games against Auburn, Duke, Oral Roberts, Kentucky and Louisville. Bill Esposito, a spokesman for St. John's, said the school would furnish refunds immediately.

Dallas Cowboys hold off tough Bills

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Roger Staubach, bothered all night by a withering Buffalo blitz, hooked up with his favorite receiver, Drew Pearson, to score one touchdown and set up a fourth-quarter field goal Monday night that allowed Dallas to hold off the Bills 17-10 in the nationally televised game of the week.

The victory was the ninth of the year for the Cowboys and if helped them maintain a onegame lead over the St. Louis Cardinals in the NFC East. But the decision did not come easy as the Bills' improved defense harassed Staubach into one of his poorest games of the year and shut down the Dallas running attack as well.

Pearson, a combination that hooked up nine times for 135 yards. The two most important catches of the night for Pearson came on back-to-back completions of 40 and 21 yards seconds before the end of the first half.

COWBOYS wide receiver Drew Pearson (88) grabs this pass in the endzone over the arms of Bills Doug Jones' (24) in the first half of action Monday night. The score put the Cowboys ahead to stay and they won the game 17-10. (UPI tele).

The 21-yarder resulted in a touchdown that gave Dallas a 14-7 lead, and the Cowboys could not improve on that advantage until Efren Herrera kicked a 43-yard field goal with 11:37 left in the game. A 16-yard Staubach to Pearson pass set up that field goal.

Buffalo cut the score to 17-10 when George Jakowenko kicked a 22-yard field goal with 1:57 remaining in the game, but quarterback Gary Marangi threw an interception when the Bills got their hands on the ball with 25 seconds left and they thus suffered their sixth loss in a row and fell to 2-4.

Dallas, after making only one first down in the first period, scored early in the second period on a two-yard run by Preston Pearson. But Buffalo capitalized on a fumbled punt moments later and led the game on a 27-yard pass from Gary Marangi to Reuben Gant.

Staubach, who had suffered an attack of the flu earlier in the week, had hit only four of his first 12 passes before he and Pearson combined for their two key plays at the end of the first half.

With less than 30 seconds left in the first half, Buffalo missed an excellent opportunity to take the lead when wide receiver Bob Chandler failed to hold on to a Marangi pass that would have resulted in a 65-yard touchdown play.

The Bills punted on the next play and Dallas took over at its own 44 with 25 seconds remaining. Instead of running out the clock, Staubach threw deep and hit Pearson across the middle for 40 yards to the Bills' 21. Then he lobbed the ball over Buffalo safety Doug Jones and Pearson caught it four yards deep in the end zone for the go-ahead score.

Dallas constantly threatened to break open the game in the third period but was stopped by a series of controversial penalties. Meanwhile, the Cowboys limited Marangi to only one completion in seven attempts during the third period and trapped him twice for 16 yards in losses.

Staubach completed only 15 of 34 passes for 202 yards.

Packers down to one healthy quarterback

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Starting quarterback Lynn Diekey of the Green Bay Packers has a dislocated shoulder. X-rays showed today, and is lost to the team for the season.

Bart Starr, coach and general manager of the Packers, said Diekey would undergo surgery Wednesday. The injury occurred in Sunday's 24-13 loss to the Chicago Bears.

Starr said backup quarterback Carlos Brown would be the starter next Sunday against Minnesota. Brown is the only healthy quarterback on the Green Bay roster. Another receiver, Don Milan, was placed on the injured reserve list Aug. 6.

Starr said Diekey's place on the roster would be filled and he said Green Bay had "a couple of people (quarterbacks) in mind. One of them probably will be brought in to help Carlos."

Anthony Davis bound for Tampa Bay?

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers officials said Monday an agent for running back Anthony Davis was en route for contract talks that could reunite the former Southern California star with his old coach, John McKay.

Davis was walled from the Canadian Football League Sunday by the Toronto Argonauts. He gained 415 yards on 104 carries, caught 37 passes for 468 yards, and returned 27 kickoffs for 721 yards, a club record, for the Argonauts this season.

game at USC and more than 20 a game with the Southern California State of the World Football League. Davis averaged only eight carries a game with Toronto.

It was believed that Davis bought up the 1977 portion of his five-year contract with the Argonauts in order to secure his freedom and negotiating rights with National Football League clubs. Ron Wolf, operations director for the expansion Tampa Bay club, said he got a call from Davis' agent, Mike Trope, Monday to arrange a conference.

In the final game of the season, when the Argonauts lost to Hamilton and were eliminated from the CFL playoffs, Davis played as a wide receiver and carried the ball only once for three yards.

Wolf indicated that Davis' five-year pact with Toronto allowed him to pass up the options in the last three years of the agreement but it was necessary for him to get a waiver of his services for next season.

Under NFL rules, Davis cannot play for the purchase Buccaneers this season. Tampa Bay is 6-10 for the year. But he could begin play next year.

After the game, Jackson said Davis' "attitude" contributed to the loss and the failure of the club to make playoffs. Davis, in turn, said Jackson was trying to make him a "scapegoat" for the club's failures.

You'll recall it was in honor of Helen of Troy, the face that launched 1,000 ships, that engineering students at the University of Michigan devised the renowned millHelen scale to rate feminine beauty. One millHelen is equal to that amount of pelchritone needed to launch one ship. Angie Dickinson has been rated at 600 millHelens, Katharine Ross at 700, Farrah Fawcette-Majors at 800 with an extra 100 each for hair and figure. Client asks the millHelen rating of Rosslyn Carter. Would be beneath the dignity of the next First Lady to enter her into a whimsical beauty contest, no doubt. Can report, however, that the millHelen rating of the Carters' daughter Amy is an exact 1,000 in the toy boat category.

MALE AND FEMALE

When a man washes his hands, washes a car, or runs a vacuum cleaner, he tends to use a straight, piston-like, back-and-forth motion. But when a woman does these things, she's inclined to use a curved, cam-like, spherical motion. Or so the students of human behavior contend. Interesting, if true. And if true, how do you account for this difference?

It's remarkable that teenage girls buy 20 per cent of all the women's clothing, isn't it? But consider the fact that teenage boys buy 40 per cent of all the men's sportswear.

Certainly not every man, woman and child nationwide each spends $8 a year on golfballs, but that's what the national golfball costs break down to.

You'll spend 2½ years of your life waiting for meals, sir, probably. That's an average.

TOMATOES

List tomatoes, too, among those various fruits and vegetables that people finically were persuaded to eat with the claim that said comestibles were sex stimulants. Before 1834 in this country, hardly anybody would even consider eating a tomato. But some bright boy, who knew a market when he saw one, referred to tomatoes as "love apples," and sneaky citizens tried them out behind closed doors. Incidentally, the footnotes indicate that savvy seller was an immigrant from Italy where the merchandisers long had known how to work up romantic appeal to peddle their wares.

Medical investigators have checked out enough blood pressures by now to claim they've proved that a man who loses his temper is far more likely than a woman who does it to die to suffer as a result thereof either a stroke or heart attack. But they don't explain the why of it.

Pretty little, those Japanese Inventors. They've come forth with a little rig that will jack up your car in 30 seconds when you attach one end of it to your exhaust pipe.
