At last — Valley covered by snow

Storm blows into SV area

FRONT END loader is pressed into service to help clear some of the foot or more of snow which blanketed Blaine County today as the winter's first storm swept across Idaho, Utah and Nevada. The heavy fall was welcomed by skiers and agricultural interests as well.

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer
SUN VALLEY — A foot of desperately needed dry powder snow welcomed skiers this morning on Sun Valley's Baldy Mountain, ending the worst winter drought on record.
The snow began to fall late last night and continued through this morning.
The Weather Bureau in Kimberly reported snow depths at 8 a.m. today varied from no snow in Twin Falls to 5 inches at Gooding and Fairfield and 6 inches at Halley. Light snow was reported in the Mini-Cassia area.

The prediction for a "partial" clearing by Tuesday evening with the snow storm across the northern part of Magic Valley, to end sometime Tuesday. Sunshine is predicted for Wednesday.
According to meteorologist Harry Elser at the National Weather Service office in Boise, the storm should continue until late this afternoon and the Sun Valley area can probably expect between 12 and 18 inches of snow.

More importantly, Elser said this looks like it might be the first storm of the year to break up the high pressure ridge that has been hanging over this area for the past three months.

Early this morning Elser commented, "I think the important thing is that this is the first breakdown of the high pressure area. I think this particular storm will last another 12 hours. It should taper off this afternoon. Then it doesn't look like there's another storm upstream from this one for another day or two and a half."

"This series of storms looks like it's bringing things back to a normal storm track," Elser went on. "I think it has weakened the high pressure ridge enough to let the storms come through further south. Now the question is will the high pressure ridge lift or will it shift back to the old dry pattern again?"

"It seems to me from what I can see that things are breaking down somewhat," Elser said. "I think we'll see an accumulation of snow from a series of storms in January."

According to Sun Valley publicity director Shannon Besoyan, the skiing on Baldy Mountain is "excellent" on light, dry powder. "A total of 43" of snow now covers the upper and lower

Storm belts West

By United Press International
A "desperately wanted" winter storm battered the West today, bringing mixed grief and joy. A nice storm in the South closed major highways, triggered a rash of automobile accidents and gave thousands of children an extended winter holiday.

The storm in the West dumped up to two feet of snow in the California and Nevada Sierras to the joy of skiers and resort operators. It also dropped several inches of rain on Southern California, flooding homes, uprooting trees and knocking down power lines.

Motorists were forced to abandon stalled automobiles in flooded intersections. Those who managed to get on, avoided freeways found traffic crawling around spinnouts and fender-bender crash scenes.

Warm Springs runs.
"Warm Springs No. 1 and Flying Squirrel lifts are running to give skiers a mile and one-half of skiing," she said. "The temperature is ranging between 20 and 25 degrees today."

Besoyan described the mood of people at Sun Valley as "hopeful and happy."

"We're hopeful it will continue," she said. "And we're very happy with the snow we've received so far."

Sun Valley Co. decided this morning to reopen the Sun Valley Lodge on Jan. 3. The lodge is temporarily closed this week because of low guest counts.

"I can see the skiers from my window getting on the bus right now," Besoyan said this morning. "And it's jammed. From my window it looks like everybody is going to go out there and try the snow. Those who are here can take advantage of the first powder skiing of the year."

Pizza Hut on Baldy will open Tuesday, according to Besoyan. That will be the fourth major run to open on the mountain. Also Sun Valley's number one beginners hill, Half Dollar, will open for skiers Tuesday.

"That means skiers who are just beginning will now have a place to ski over there," Besoyan said.

With the 12 inches that have fallen there is now about half of the required snow on the mountain to open all the lifts, according to Besoyan.

"If we could just have this much again, we could open everything," she said.
Elser warned that, "I suspect this is not a big enough storm to be the cure-all for everything."

Normal schedules for TF students

By GEORGE WELBY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Classes and students headed as usual today as Twin Falls school classes resumed without double shifting.
While the rest of Twin Falls students returned to the classroom, O'Leary students relaxed with an extra day of Christmas vacation as their teachers got ready to welcome them back to their old building.

O'Leary students will start classes tomorrow at their regularly scheduled time of 8:35 a.m. An orientation assembly will precede their return to the classroom.

The extra day of vacation for O'Leary was scheduled to give O'Leary teachers their own orientation session today and to allow them to complete the move back to their old classrooms. The reopening of the school, which was built in 1911, was made possible by the installation of a fire sprinkling system. The city had closed the school as a fire trap at that time but agreed to allow its interim use for up to five years once the $30,000 sprinkler system was installed.

The end of the double shifting will mean high school students and their parents won't have to get up at the crack of dawn anymore to prepare for classes which started at 6:50 a.m. It will also mean O'Leary students won't have to trudge home in the dark as they did when their classes ended at 2 p.m.

High school students, who also will now begin classes at their regularly scheduled 8:35 a.m., will also pick up an extra 10 minutes of study in each class. That time was cut earlier to allow the double shifting.

Both O'Leary students and high schoolers will go back to their regular intramural programs and other activities which were shortened by the necessity of running two schools' out of one building.

The Twin Falls School District won't have to pay out the $22,000 in extra busing costs the double shifting entailed. The financially troubled district will also be able to give up its use of churches, the YM-YWCA and the College of Southern Idaho as emergency space in which to hold activities not possible in the crowded high school.

The old O'Leary building will remain in use until a new junior high school can be built. By a paper thin margin of four votes, voters last fall approved a $4.9 million bond issue to construct a new school. That building is expected to be ready for use sometime in the 1979-79 school year.

CLAUDINE LONGET
Aspen trial opens

Longet jury pick starts

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — French-born singer Claudine Longet, walking into the courthouse hand-in-hand with ex-husband Andy Williams, today went on trial for the shooting death of her 16-year-old son, March of Sabich, 32, who was shot once and died in the $250,000 stone chalet the couple shared in the resort for more than a year.

Williams drove Miss Longet to the court from her home. She said nothing while entering the courthouse or in the corridor where she and Williams had to walk through a crowd of reporters and local residents buying 1977 license plates.

The courthouse was built in 1890.
"It's in a big envelope," he said proudly.
"My kids tell me it's an honor to receive this," Burgess said.

He moved to Jerome about eight years ago after farming near Twin Falls and Piler. Burgess also worked at beanhouses in Piler and during World War II worked in the shipyards.

He's a Texan and "proud of it," he said. The dust bowl drove him out of his native state when the dust was so thick you couldn't see the cap on the radiator while driving.

"We had to stop along side the road and wait for the dust to lighten up so we could see where we were going," he recalls.

Charges unlikely in FBI case

By N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Justice Department prosecutors investigating alleged corruption in the Federal Bureau of Investigation have reportedly decided that they cannot bring major criminal charges against anyone.
One department source said that, although the prosecutors had uncovered a pattern of improperly and maladministration reaching back many years, the problem of whether to seek indictments was characterized by the "de minimus" or negligible amounts of money involved; by questions of "fairness" to those under investigation and by the fact that the five-year statute of limitations on federal prosecutions had run out in many of the cases.

Teddy raps EPA's failures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says the Environmental Protection Agency has "largely failed in its duty to assure the safe use of pesticides."
The Massachusetts Democrat released a Senate staff report saying the manufacturer-of-Leptophos, which attacks the nervous system like snake venom, ignored a warning by his medical consultant to "seriously consider" halting production.
The report also said EPA granted tolerances for use of the pesticide on tomatoes and lettuce in 1974 despite warnings dating back to 1971 that it could cause paralysis and other neurotoxic symptoms.

Grounded tanker lost power

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The docking pilot of a tanker that ran around last week spilling 133,000 gallons of oil into the Delaware River testified today at a Coast Guard hearing that the vessel lost power shortly before the spill occurred.
Capt. Curtis Chamberlain said he was maneuvering the Liberian-registry tanker Olympic Rabin today to ask him to form a caretaker government that would rule until elections expected in the spring.

Woman dies, unhooking effort ends

BOISE (UPI) — A 19-year-old Boise woman died Saturday as a result of injuries suffered Dec. 27 when doctors could find no sign of life from her brain waves or nervous system.
Ms. Lloyd was kept alive by respirators and intravenous feeding.

The woman's mother, Phyllis Wheeler, a few days ago, asked Boise doctors to disconnect the medical equipment keeping her daughter alive.

Officials at St. Luke's began investigating the ethical questions involved in unhooking the woman from the life-support system. Doctors agreed the woman could not recover from her injuries. The hospital planned to review the case in an in-house ethics committee and discuss the possibility of unhooking the patient from the life support machinery.

The case was never reviewed by the St. Luke's ethics committee however, because Ms. Lloyd died while still attached to the life support systems Saturday night.

Now, hospital spokesmen say they won't continue work on procedures to allow patients to be unhooked from life sustaining systems because there is no one who currently has requested a patient to be disconnected from the machines.

Mrs. Wheeler said today she was relieved her daughter had died.
"It is a relief because she was being kept alive by the hand of man and not the hand of God which I don't think was proper," the mother said.

Bus overturns, 5 hurt

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer
BUHL — A Greyhound bus with 39 persons aboard, making a curve on U.S. 30 about five miles northwest of Buhl early Sunday night, overturned, injuring five persons.

The westbound bus skidded about 140 feet before rolling on its side at about 8:30 p.m. Sunday, state police said.

The driver, William Cooney, 48, Boise, reportedly forgot a curve was there until it was too late, state police officer Stan Haynes said. Several patches of black ice were on the road when the accident occurred, Haynes said.

Two passengers, both Washington residents, were admitted at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls for treatment of facial cuts and bruised ribs, a hospital spokesman said. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Booth, Graham, Wash., were listed in good condition today.

Three others were treated and released.
The accident forced the hospital to implement its emergency disaster plan. About 20 extra staff members were called to the hospital, including emergency room staff, administration representatives, department heads and lab workers.

Dr. Randall Slickers, Twin Falls, examined the injured at the scene; police said. Passengers not seriously injured were taken to the Buhl police station in a Buhl school bus, police said. Dr. Slickers continued examinations there.

The bus driver was cited for failure to maintain control of a vehicle.
Haynes said the driver told him this was the first accident he had ever been involved in during his 17 years of driving for Greyhound. A Greyhound spokesman could not be reached for comment.

Those treated at the hospital and released were Christine Fankratz, Portland, Ore., Dave Chaitman, Boise, and Geri Stove, Caldwell.
Magic Valley residents, who were passengers on the bus but not injured, are Robin Rogers, Richard Rose, Anita Shultz and Len Hansen, all Twin Falls; Timothy Severa, Buhl; Theron Ficus, Terina Henderson and Joe Baker, all Jerome; Billy Bell, Heyburn, and Jerry Dorsey and Arlene Atmip, both Rupert.

Carter invites Jerome man

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer
JEROME — Ernest Burgess, a 92-year-old retired Jerome farmer, has received a surprise invitation to attend President Jimmy Carter's inauguration ceremony.
But the retired farmer won't be able to accept the invitation to the historic event in the nation's capital.

"I don't see how I can go," Burgess said this morning. "There will be such a big crowd and it would cost probably $400 for a round trip plane fare and no-telling how much more after I got there."

Burgess said he "had voted the Democratic ticket all my life" but he believes the invitation resulted from a letter he wrote to Carter earlier this fall in which he wished the Democratic candidate luck on Nov. 2. He said he has not Burgess also said he had urged Carter to select Idaho Sen. Frank Church as his vice-presidential running mate.

"I would have liked to see Frank get it," Burgess said. "I've known him all my life."

Burgess also said Carter he would be 92 on Oct. 30 and that he'd always been interested in politics "ever since I was old enough to vote."

Burgess said the invitation came from the inaugural committee and was postmarked

Washington, D.C.
"It's in a big envelope," he said proudly.
"My kids tell me it's an honor to receive this," Burgess said.

He moved to Jerome about eight years ago after farming near Twin Falls and Piler. Burgess also worked at beanhouses in Piler and during World War II worked in the shipyards.

Briton confers with S. African

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — British negotiator Ivor Richard held four hours of talks in Rhodesia with the African Prime Minister John Vorster today and said the meeting was "useful, helpful and constructive."

Richard met with the South African leader, who has a strong influence over Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, in a bid to win Vorster's support for new British proposals to reach a Rhodesian settlement.

Standing beside Richard before the envoy departed, Vorster said the talks were "friendly." But he had nothing to add.

Richard said he probably would return to South Africa for a second meeting with Vorster toward the end of his mission, southern Africa shuttle.

Vorster's approval of the latest British plans, which diverge from the Anglo-American formula Smith agreed on with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in September, is crucial if Smith is to budgo.

Although Vorster wants a speedy end to the guerrilla war in Rhodesia, he currently is known to sympathize with the Smith stand that the Kissinger proposals should be effected.

A Smith-Richard encounter during the weekend ended with the normally cool Richard fuming as Smith termed "unrealistic" the British proposals to install a British presence in Rhodesia during a two-year interim administration before a majority rule and independence.

Richard spent Sunday night at the southern city of Port Elizabeth, near Vorster's seaside vacation home. With four fellow diplomats, Richard was down to the Prime Minister's retreat by a South African air force helicopter.

China army takes over rail lines

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Chinese army has taken over railway operations in one of the country's key rail junctions, according to a provincial radio report spotlighted here.

Kuo Wei-cheng, a deputy commander of the army's railway corps for more than 20 years, has been put in charge of the Chengchow Railway Bureau, the Honan Radio broadcast said Sunday.

Two other army leaders, including a high-ranking officer of the army engineering corps, also were appointed to the bureau and Peking authorities sent troops to help "in accordance" with requirements, the broadcast said.

The report on the railway situation came at almost the same time as a statement by one of China's top leaders that an "excited" situation of "united struggle" prevailed throughout the country.

Vice Premier Li Hsiencien, speaking at a banquet in Peking's Great Hall of the People Sunday night, also said those who had hoped for violent disturbances following the death of Mao Tse-tung have been disappointed.

The provincial broadcast gave no details of the troubles in the Chengchow Railway Bureau nor was it specific about how long they have been going on.

FIRST LADY BETTY FORD ... she's opposed to amnesty

First Lady states view

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford may not yet have made up his mind on blanket amnesty for Vietnam era draft evaders and deserters, but first lady Betty Ford has. She's opposed. "I feel that those mothers who lost their sons in the war would feel very upset over the fact that these people just took off," she told reporters aboard Air Force One enroute home from Vail, Colo., where the family spent a two-week Christmas vacation. Ford has 17 days remaining of his White House term, and a number of chores to do — present — the 1968 — budget, deliver a State of the Union message to Congress, participate in the inaugural ceremonies of his successor, Jimmy Carter, among others. One of those others involves a decision on amnesty, which she is considering at the request of Mrs. Jane Fonda, widow of the late Sen. Philip Hart of Michigan. A hours-voiced Mrs. Ford, who said she had a slight cold, was asked her views on the amnesty proposal when she came back to talk to reporters on the President's plane. She noted that a blanket amnesty "would upset" the mothers whose sons were killed in the Vietnam fighting. Did that mean she opposed amnesty? "I guess that's the way it sounds," she said. Question: "You mean you

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 95th Congress, which convenes Tuesday, anticipates at least a period of peaceful coexistence with President-elect Jimmy Carter after eight years of war by veto with the Nixon-Ford Republican administration. But the long-term outlook will be shaped largely by the state of the economy and Carter's commitment to balance the budget by the end of his first term, which will have a major effect on programs many of the Democrats — including Carter — would like to see enacted. At noon MST Tuesday, the lawmakers convene with traditional pomp as all 535 House members and 93 new and reelected senators take their oaths of office — the galleries of the two chambers jammed with visitors. Democrats will choose Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia or Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota as their new leader to succeed Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, who retired. At the same time, Republicans will pick a successor to Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, also retiring, as GOP leader. Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan is a prohibitive favorite although he may be challenged by Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee. The House picked its new leaders in December — Jim Wright of Texas for the Democrats and John Rhodes of Arizona for the Republicans. Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, hand-picked by the Democrats, will be elected speaker on a party-line vote shortly after the House meets, completing the massive shakeup in the congressional leadership. Congress is expected to do little before Carter is inaugurated Jan. 20, but could break with tradition this year to begin work before then on a package — to stimulate the economy. Carter plans to meet with congressional leaders soon to outline his plans for the economy and although he cannot formally submit legislation until he becomes president, there is nothing to prevent Congress from beginning hearings. Two long-sought goals — national health insurance and major welfare reform — find little chance because of the lack of funds. But some other programs, bitterly fought by Republicans, stand a good chance with Carter in the White House. They include federal standards on strip mining of coal, creation of a Consumer Protection Agency, and tough new restrictions on lobbying, financial disclosure and returns stemming from Watergate. Housing programs, help for urban areas, a possible increase in minimum wages, plecting of contractors at construction sites, postcard voter registration, and possibly an increase in price supports for some crops could pass. Carter and Congress must act rapidly in two areas — Carter has a Feb. 1 deadline on deciding whether to go into production on the controversial B-1 bomber, and Congress is expected to act quickly on revisions in the Clean Air Act which died in controversy at the end of the 94th Congress. Inevitably, the 95th Congress will have its share of investigations into the assassinations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King and into the political activities of congressmen by South Korea. And — stung by last year's sex and money scandals — the House may write a tough code of ethics for its members and begin cracking down on errant legislators.

Billion for US

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government expects to collect nearly $1 billion in royalties from oil, gas, coal and other minerals produced on federal lands during 1977. The U.S. Geological Survey said Sunday it anticipates a $900 million for the year despite a drop in production of crude oil. Most of the royalties collected last year — $665 million or more than 66 per cent — came from offshore oil and gas production, mainly in the Gulf of Mexico. The money earned from U.S. mineral leases goes to the states. Indians on whose reservations some are located, the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund used for parkland acquisition, a federal reclamation fund and the U.S. Treasury. The Geological Survey also expects royalties of $39.4 million from minerals mined from leased federal and Indian lands during the year.

Georgian may get tap for VA post

LITHONIA, Ga. (UPI) — A former Georgia legislator, who lost both legs and an arm in the Vietnam War, is being considered "by President-elect Jimmy Carter" to head the Veterans Administration. "I understand that my name is being considered," said Max Cleland, now a staff member of the Senate, Committee on Veterans Affairs. "I really have had no firm word of any kind," he said. "It has not gone beyond the stage of initial discussion." Cleland's legs and right arm were amputated after a grenade explosion at the siege of the Sanh in 1968. In 1970, he was elected to the Georgia Senate after his retirement as an Army captain. He left the legislature to run unsuccessfully in the 1974 Democratic primary for Economy to front

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Marshaling black support for his choice of Griffin Bell to be attorney general, President-elect Jimmy Carter turned his attention today to pressing problems of the economy and government reorganization. Carter invited Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, and budget director-designate Bert Lance to Plains to discuss his hope that Congress will give him wide-ranging authority to streamline the bureaucracy. He also arranged an interview with James King, an executive with the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority and a Carter adviser, who is running the campaign, apparently to offer him a position. After a visit to the Americus-Sumter County Hospital to see his ailing mother, "Miss Lillian," Carter told reporters he has begun work on his inaugural address. Obviously conscious of the historical impact of the speech, Carter has read most of the inaugural addresses in modern times.

Vote hits milestone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board plans a dinner March 2 to mark a new milestone — 300 million votes cast by American workers in elections to select unions as collective bargaining agents. Betty Southard Murphy, who chairs the NLRB, said Sunday the board has conducted about 300,000 employee elections since the first paper ballots were marked by employees of a Fort Wayne, Ind., knitting mill in 1935 to choose the American Federation of Hosiery Workers as their collective bargaining representative. She said the 300 million vote milestone will be celebrated with dinner in Washington in which leaders of industry, labor and government will join. The labor election system was set up by Congress to implement the National Labor Relations Act passed 41 years ago and the NLRB was created as the independent agency to administer it. Since then NLRB-supervised elections have been held in many locations and circumstances. One was once held for two grave diggers, enough to cause a bargaining group under NLRB rules. The largest single plant election in 1941 was conducted at the Ford Motor Co.'s River Rouge manufacturing installation.

Astrologer looks at 1977

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Editor's Note — Bernice Bede Osol, whose Astro-Graph and This Week in Astrology appear in more than 500 daily and Sunday newspapers, today looks at 1977, a year she feels will see many changes throughout the world. Because of the time with which they come, these changes will lack permanence. Bernice feels that other previous predictions have been the mounting of Jimmy Carter and Jerry Ford, the deaths of Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai, the past recessionary trend, the illness and fall of Richard Nixon and the opening of relations with China.

better economic conditions and to help the poor, though measurable success in this area may not come as quickly as his campaign promises predicted. If he is to attain his purposes, he must have strong, competent economic advisers at his side.

An president, Jimmy Carter will attempt to pay off the political debts that enabled him to gain the office. The payments may not come in the coin his debtors envisioned, however. His appointments to high level posts will show an interesting balance and in some instances Jimmy Carter may turn out to be more conservative than he first appeared. When he names a person to an important post, Jimmy Carter will have a tendency to continually look over his or her shoulder, although he maintains a low profile in doing so. There is never any question who pulls the strings. Although a supporter of labor, as president he will favor conservative elements as well, for as an astute politician he knows he must broaden his base of support.

In his approach to foreign affairs, the President-elect is capable of an imaginative outlook. It is likely he will set up early summit meetings with the heads of other important world governments. He is a quick learner, a person highly conscious of details and already knowledgeable in the use of politics domestically. He is a man who understands power and leverage and is not afraid to use it.

Toward the end of his first year, he is apt to become less tolerant of those who criticize him and although a fair and just man he is not prone to forget slights readily.

Some time ago I predicted that the administration in power in 1977 would look good because of a change in the fiscal cycle of the United States would bring about a slight upturn in the economy. This will begin to happen in the first year of Jimmy Carter's term of office and would be more exciting if it were the start of a major trend. Unfortunately, it is not and more serious problems with foreign oil in 1978 as well as continuing inflation will head us for another recessionary slide by 1980.

We can expect major transformations in government agencies, but efforts to curb bureaucratic expenditures are not likely to succeed this coming year. There is a slim possibility of an immediate tax break, although there could be some slight relief early next year. The Gross National Product will be up as we go into 1977, but not dramatically.

The boys of super salaries for superstars are wanting and humiliations in the glamor fields of sports and entertainment may see some trimming of their big paychecks in late 1977.

In a meteoric rise to national political prominence, Libran Jimmy Carter won the highest office in the land by a frail mandate. The President-elect is an enigma to many Americans and so he may remain; for although he will be the most publicized figure in the world, he is still a very private person. He is a man who asks the advice of many, but makes the decisions himself and he may not be as accessible as people thought he would be when he was campaigning as the folksy, downhome country boy. A person who arouses strong feelings in others, he will be loved or hated with very few emotions in between.

An idealist, but also a pragmatic individual, Jimmy Carter is highly desirous of making transformations he feels will be good for the country. Only history can bear out the wisdom of his choices. He will be sincere in his efforts to Unstable is the word that best characterizes world conditions in the coming year. A night in Tehran

By DICK KLEINER

TEHRAN, Iran — (NEA) — It's probably apocryphal, but in Tehran they tell you, with a straight face, that a dozen years ago there were serious soundings down Embassy Street.

"No more carnage. In fact, Tehran is today so modern and up-to-date that the big problems are traffic and smog. It's gotten so bad that the Iranians are writing poetry about traffic and smog — and, in Iran, that means it's serious.

Tehran has the worst traffic jams you'll ever see. At intersections, the cars are always bused in, because the Tehran drivers don't seem to care about what color the traffic light is. They just go, and pretty soon the intersection is a mess.

The city is ringed with brown mountains, but you have to peer through a dense cloud of smog to see them. The Iranians seem almost proud of their pollution problem, because it's a positive sign of progress — it means their capital is totally modern.

Being modern is a big thing with the Iranians. They want to be part of today's world, and that's the big reason they recently staged a whopper of a film festival.

The idea was, according to Hajr Daryoush, the festival's secretary general and guiding light, to show the world how modern Tehran is by inviting stars and film-makers from all over the world to the festival. After all, any nation that has a film festival must have gone beyond carnage.

Six there were movie people from the U.S., England, Italy, Germany, France — all over, even Australia and New Zealand. And, for a couple of weeks, they showed their films to a panel of judges representing most of the major film-making nations.

In between, Iranian films were shown, too, because part of being modern is having your own film industry. A film showing just that, the history of Iran's film industry, was the big event at the opening night festivities.

"That was supposed to be 'glittering,'" in fact, that adjective was used in all the local Tehran reports about it. But one nation's "glittering" is another nation's "ho-hum."

Nobody recognized our stars. It's only lately that American films have begun to be shown in Iran. Sally Kellerman, shivering in her bedless gown, tried to get a car to go back to the hotel, but there were no cars. Only the bus.

Hajr Daryoush, the secretary general of the festival, made a welcoming speech. He spoke, naturally, in Persian, the language of Iran. There was no translation. Then they showed the film about Iran's film industry. Some of the excerpts looked interesting. John Simon, the New York Magazine film critic, said he didn't like any of them.

Going back to the hotel, director Paul Mazursky muttered, "This whole city is one big Polish joke." That was when we were once again mired in traffic.

One night, a bunch of us had dinner together. Otto Preminger offered to treat us to caviar — Iranian caviar is justifiably famous — and drinks before dinner. He carefully explained to the waiter what he was paying for and that the dinner list was to be separate checks.

But when the check came, everything was on Preminger's bill. He tore it up. It took an hour to straighten that out, and we almost had another oil embargo before it was done.

Preminger, like everybody, was also being careful about what he ate. We had been warned about the water, about fresh fruits and vegetables. Despite the warnings, Arthur Hill became ill. But the rest of us thrived. Preminger was careful not to have any ice in his vodka.

Americans seem confident new year will be good

WASHINGTON — Looking ahead to 1977, the American people have a high level of confidence in themselves and in the American system as a whole — but they are far from satisfied with the way things are working now.

That conclusion emerges from a remarkable study recently released by Pollman Associates, a Washington think tank. The figures tend to confirm a bleak picture reported by other polls. When it comes to particular institutions, public confidence is lamentably low. But the picture is not wholly bleak. The study finds substantial grounds for encouragement also.

Data for the Pollman Associates' findings were collected by the Gallup Organization according to familiar statistical requirements. Give or take a couple of points, the figures may be regarded as a reasonably accurate reflection of public opinion. As such, the confidence ratings justify deserved concern.

Labor leaders ought to be especially concerned. In a comparable study two years ago, the unions ranked third from the bottom. The 1976 survey finds them dead last in terms of public trust and confidence. Authors of the study speculate that the darkening of labor's image may be partly owing to the widely held assumption that labor's demands have helped to fuel inflation. "Possibly even more critical have been strikes by teachers, policemen and firemen, and the actions of various public employees."

The business community fares better in the public view, but the composite rating is nothing to brag about: Business and industry rank 13th among the 18 institutions examined. The image at least is stable. The business image is neither better nor worse than it was in 1972 and in 1974. The Chamber of Commerce still has a monumental task on its hands.

For those of us in the news business, it is mildly comforting to learn that the mass media are fairly well perceived. Newspapers, television and radio rank fourth among the 18. It appears that 19 percent of the people have "a great deal" of confidence in the media, and 55 percent have "a fair amount." But it is not comforting at all to note that 22 percent have "not very much" trust and confidence in the media, and 4 percent have "not at all." We, too, have a job to do.

The greatest dissatisfaction involves the public sector. Confidence in — the federal government's ability to perform its functions remains pathetically low. Both the executive and the legislative branches continue to be poorly perceived. State and local governments are a little better, and the federal judiciary remains in relatively high regard. Oddly enough, "politicians" enjoy a better rating than the particular institutions in which they serve. Military leadership, surprisingly, ranks at the very top of the public service.

Taken as a whole, the figures provide useful

More people reach 50th

Young couples tying the matrimonial knot today have a better than 3 out of 10 chance of living long enough to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

According to the American Council of Life Insurance, the odds for a 23-year-old man and 21-year-old woman (the current median ages for first marriage) surviving 50 years of marriage have climbed from 140 per 1,000 marriages 75 years ago to 304 today.

The not-so-good news is that more and more people are divorcing long before they reach the golden landmark. The national divorce rate has tripled during the past 50 years.

Yet because most people who divorce marry again — 75 per cent of the women and 80 per cent of the men do — the prospects of reaching less distant marital milestones have also improved.

For example, the chances of a 35-year-old bridegroom and 30-year-old bride celebrating a silver wedding anniversary age about 7 out of 10, which are better odds than those for even a very young couple at the turn of the century. And a couple marrying at age 45 today can look forward to their tin anniversary, or at least 10 years of marriage.

documentation for the "alienation" or the "discontent" that many observers of the American scene have reported. The study suggests one reason for Jimmy Carter's success at the polls: Mr. Carter was able to voice this discontent and to identify with it. Now he and his party have four years to demonstrate what effectively they can do about it.

A brighter note for the New Year is sounded in the upbeat findings of a general nature. This was the question asked in the poll: "How much trust and confidence do you have in the American people as a whole when it comes to making judgments under our democratic system about the issues facing our country?" Twenty-four per cent of the respondents had "a great deal" of confidence and 61 per cent reported "a fair amount."

For my part, I find that response both heartening and touching. Despite the terrible disappointments of recent years — Vietnam, Watergate, inflation, unemployment, high levels of crime — the people have not given up on the system. They still believe in themselves, and in the fundamental precepts of a free society. They have confidence in the nation's young people. Looking to the future, they perceive both their own fortunes and the country's fortunes on the way up. Given that attitude, Americans may exchange the seasonal watchword with new meaning: Happy New Year!

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmys Carter says his mother, "Miss Lillian," is feeling better and may be released soon from the hospital where she is being treated for a muscle ailment in her leg.

"She's feeling really good today — the best I've seen her," Carter told reporters who buttonholed him at the Amaretus-Sumner County Hospital after he visited his mother Sunday evening.

LONDON (UPI) — A British astrologer has predicted that Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, will marry this year.

The new princess of Wales could be Caroline Longman, 23, daughter of one of Queen Elizabeth's bridesmaids, astrologer Roger Elliot said.

Though Charles' current girlfriend is Davina Sheffield, Elliot said Miss Longman was the best possibility because "her Mars is precisely in line with his Venus, making it a very sweetly sexy liaison as well."

Charles has taken Miss Longman, daughter of Lady Elizabeth Longman, skiing and out to dinner. She has been his guest at the Ascot races and at Balmoral, his mother's castle in Scotland.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Most American Indians who graduate from UCLA's School of Law practice the profession to help their people, says a university law professor.

Mano Price said that until the late 1960s, the number of American-Indian attorneys in the late 1960s was at an all-time low.

"A generation of lawyers had to be trained," Price said. "Most of the Indians who have attended the UCLA School of Law now hold jobs directly related to Indian problems."

Adamson trial will start 6-day-a-week sessions

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The trial of John Adamson, accused of murdering reporter Don Bolles, is starting six-day-a-week sessions with the judge carefully trying to choose a jury unaided by publicity.

From now on there will be Saturday sessions.

Seven persons — six women and a man — were chosen last week for a panel of 37 from which 12 jurors — and five alternates will be selected.

Superior Judge Ben Birdsall meticulously questioned the prospective jurors in the trial's first week about their knowledge of the case from the media.

Pundits thus far have said they were familiar with the case but could give a fair trial to Adamson, accused in the June 2 car-bomb slaying of Bolles, 47, an award-winning investigative newsmen for the Arizona Republic.

Birdsall's questioning also focuses on a list given prospective jurors, of possible witnesses and persons who may be mentioned in evidence.

Before the New Year recess, a name that came out was that of John Stubbs, a bank teller who told police he changed about $3,000 in large bills June 10 for a man familiar with key figures in the case.

The bank customer, a prominent land developer and building contractor, told investigators a man he didn't know came to his driveway that morning gave him $3,000 or $6,000 and told him to deliver it to a lawyer's office for Adamson's defense. He said he changed some large bills and delivered the money.

He also said he borrowed $5,000 the previous day from a wealthy longtime friend for machinery repairs.

5 die in Chicago apartment fire

By United Press International

There was little cheer in Chicago's Pilsen neighborhood as the Christmas holidays drew to a close.

For the second time in little more than a week, the people of the poor Latino community were preparing to bury their dead.

Five persons — four of them, children — died Sunday in a fire that ripped a four-story apartment building in Pilsen. The fire was a block away from the scene of a Christmas Eve apartment building fire that claimed 12 lives.

A flurry of New Year's weekend fires left more than 80 persons dead — many of them children — and included a hotel fire that claimed nine lives in Pennsylvania's coal country.

Two of the worst were in Chicago — where 27 persons were killed in residential building fires in nine days.

Asking Chicago Fire Chief William Foley blamed the language barrier for part of the problem in the Pilsen neighborhood.

Foley said firemen arriving at the scene Sunday found the victims "so upset that they couldn't make any effort to communicate," even through sign language, costing precious minutes for firemen trying to find trapped residents.

Raquel Guerrero, president of the Pilsen Neighbors Community Council, charged that the police and fire departments were "racist" because they did not know enough Latinos who were "fluent in Spanish and English."

In Sunday's blaze, firemen using ladders rescued a number of the 45 residents of the four-story building. But five persons — four children and one adult — died.

Investigators said the blaze was started by gasoline left lying in cans after being used by the building's owner to wash walls.

Another fire in Chicago's Northwest Side claimed nine lives Saturday. Five persons injured in that blaze remained hospitalized in fair condition today. Officials were investigating the cause of that fire. Arson was suspected.

Another fire ripped through a five-story hotel in Shamokin, Pa., early Sunday, killing eight persons. Fire Chief John Lukens, who was trapped in an elevator between two floors while the building burned, Fire Chief David Reed said the blaze broke out on the second floor of the newly-remodeled, 100-room Walnut Towers Hotel.

In the little town of Dushan, La., two fire engines ferried back and forth to get water from a fire hydrant more than 2 miles away, firefighters were unable to contain a blaze that engulfed a small frame house, killing four members of the Richard Creuder family.

The charred bodies of Creuder and three of his daughters, ages 2 to 13 were found in a bedroom.

Fire investigators in Grand Rapids, Mich., probed through the rubble of a southeast side home, trying to determine the cause of a New Year's Day fire that killed six children.

In New York, authorities said a fifth body was found Sunday in the charred debris of a commercial building gutted by a Dec. 22 fire in downtown Brooklyn.

And in Los Angeles, a Christmas-week apartment fire claimed the lives of Alvin Pelayo, 46, died during the New Year's weekend, becoming the 10th victim of the Dec. 20th blaze. The victims included two unborn infants.

800 invited to exclusive reception at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, "the perfect house guest," made his own bed, carried his own luggage, and issued return invitations — to a once-in-a-lifetime party at the White House.

The latter courtesy is causing considerable excitement among some 800 Americans who opened their homes to Carter's family members during his 22-month campaign for the presidency.

They have been invited to an exclusive "morning-after" reception at the White House the day following Carter's inauguration.

Maclin Gross, a Concord, N.H., lawyer who was host to Carter in February, said he and his Republican wife are looking forward to the reception.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," he said.

Gross, like other hosts, called Carter "a perfect house guest," who said he "slept soundly for a hour after a routine traffic check," police said Sunday.

Sharon P. Smith, 37, Portland, was hospitalized in critical condition.

Police arrested the driver, Kenneth G. Williams, on charges of attempted murder and kidnapping. Bail was set at $70,000.

A juvenile passenger was also arrested for kidnapping.

William Schreiber, former Democratic chairman of Marion County in Indianapolis, Ind., was host to Carter May 2 and said he is still exultant that Jimmy Carter slept at my house.

He said the president-elect preferred cold cuts and milk for dinner, carried his own bags, made his own bed and spent part of the evening in private conversation with Sen. Birch Bayh.

George and Margie Collins of Asheville, N.C., were hosts to Carter while he was campaigning for the state March 22 and both plan to attend the reception.

"I was so confident that he was going to be president that I just for fun, I made a little Jimmy Carter sign here, poster and left it for him to sign," Mrs. Collins said. "It amused him and he signed it and addressed it to our daughter."

Mrs. Henry Howell of Norfolk, Va., said when Carter stayed at her house he was a relaxed guest who walked "back and forth to the kitchen" while she fixed a light breakfast of fry and rolls.

"When he has something to do, he's like Henry," she said. "He doesn't think much about eating a big meal."

Col Ruth of Park Ridge, Ill.,

whose home Carter stayed in during the Illinois primary, said he wasn't too excited when he got an invitation to the inaugural parade and reception, since the festivities cost $25 per person.

"But then we got an invitation only to those who were invited to the Carter's," he said. "I was going to invite ourselves to the inaugural and to the party and parade."

"This could be something to tell your grandchildren about," he said.

When the critical plan to attend the inauguration is finally set, I really don't like this kind of thing," said Pittsburgh area furrier Howard Lupowitz, who is journeying to Washington with his wife and three children for the inauguration and the special reception.

"Who wants to watch a stupid parade in 10 degree weather?" he said. But then he added, "I'm sure I'll have fun."

US lofts 16 spacecraft during 1976

O.N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — The United States had a perfect record of 16 successful civilian space launches in 1976 and plans about 18 to 20 attempts in 1977, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reports.

The only other year in which the space agency had a perfect record was 1972, with 18 launches. Earlier in the 19-year history of the space age, a 50 per cent success rate was considered more than adequate.

In addition, the Defense Department lofted nine spacecraft, primarily as communication relays and surveillance systems. Because of the Pentagon's policy of secrecy, the exact nature and success rate of the vehicles is never reported.

The Soviet Union has launched 96 spacecraft so far this year, surpassing its own record of 89 in 1975. These included military as well as civilian missions, but it is not known how many of these were failures.

The American emphasis in 1976 was on weather monitoring and communications satellites, all of which NASA launched for other agencies of the government, private industry or foreign governments. There were no manned missions during the year and no new launchings of planetary probes. The two Vikings that landed on Mars had been launched in 1975.

Space agency officials said last week that the 1977 schedule would be somewhat more varied, though the communications satellites would again predominate.

The most important scientific missions planned for next year include the High Energy Astronomy Observatory (HEAO), scheduled for launching from Cape Canaveral, Fla. in April and the two Mariner-type spacecraft aimed for photographic reconnaissance on flights past Jupiter and Saturn. The two Mariners are to be launched from Florida in August and September. The second of these craft, if all goes well, may be directed to continue beyond Saturn to obtain the first close-up look at Uranus.

The Mariners are expected to fly by Jupiter in 1979 and Saturn in 1981.

Other scientific missions involve Explorer-class spacecraft. The International Sun-Earth Explorer (ISEE) involves a single launching, in October, designed to loft two satellites into orbit.

Join the people eliminating checking account service charges while making their savings account earn more.

Idaho First's Money Manager plan makes your savings account do double duty — it earns daily interest as it works with your checking account to help eliminate service charges.

With the Money Manager plan you can make all deposits directly to your savings account where your dollars earn daily interest. Then by merely phoning the bank you can transfer from savings to checking only the amount needed to write checks.

That's real earnings potential.

The Money Manager formula for eliminating service charges on checking is to simply add the minimum balance of your checking account to one-third of the minimum balance of your savings. If these combined balances amount to $300 or more, you pay no service charge regardless of the number of checks you write. In any month that your balance is less than $300, only a $3.00 charge is made.

That's real savings potential and real convenience!

Money Manager gives you other advantages, too. You receive a combined statement each month showing your financial activity in these areas:

1. Checking* 2. Savings* 3. Telephone Transfers of money 4. E-Z Balance for faster check reconciliation and,
5. Line-O-Credit, your own personal loan system.

Earn more dollars and save on expenses — Money Manager — at Idaho First . . . see us today.

US birth rate hit record low in 1975

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The national birth rate fell to a record low in 1975, the National Center for Health Statistics said Friday.

And by at least one statistical measurement, the declining fertility rate continued a long-range trend toward zero population growth in the next century.

White rates and numbers of births were falling, especially among teen-agers. The center said in a report.

"Illegitimate births last year represented 14.2 per cent of all births, the highest ever, in part a result of the declining overall birth rate.

The U.S. birth rate declined to a record low 14.4 births per 1,000 persons, continuing a trend since 1972 when the birth rate was 15.6 per 1,000 persons. Before 1972, the lowest rate was 15.6 in 1968.

"Declining fertility is reflected in lower birth rates for almost all age groups of women in the child-bearing years.

The only increase in birth rate last year was for girls aged 15-14, who accounted for 12,642 births, or only 0.4 per cent of births that year. A center spokeswoman said an estimated 67 per cent of these births were illegitimate.

The birth rate for women aged 45-49 remained unchanged.

Actual numbers of births also declined in 1975, according to final statistics based on surveys of birth certificates. Information for the first 10 months this year shows a further decline, the center said.

The 2,144,183 registered live births in 1975 represented a 0.5 per cent decline from 1974. In previous years, more boys than girls were born.

Several states' measurements show a continuing fall in the fertility rate among women aged 15-44.

At current rates, each woman of child-bearing age could be expected to have just under 1.5 children during her fertile years, center statistics showed.

This is down from 3.6 births per woman in 1960; 2.9 in 1965; 2.4 in 1970, and 1.8 in 1974. Provisional data through October show a further decline in fertility.

The center said a 7 per cent increase in illegitimate births in 1975 resulted mainly from an increase of 31 per cent in such births to white mothers. Out-of-wedlock births to black women increased about 5 per cent.

Yankees wish for peace

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New Year's resolutions of Americans reflect hopes ranging from peace for mankind to making more money, according to a Harris poll.

Louis Harris Associates surveyed 1,510 adults around the country on their thoughts and wishes for 1977 and said the results "added up to a deep-seated desire on the part of most Americans to better themselves" and the larger society around them.

Nine per cent of those surveyed volunteered a "hope for peace on earth, an end to wars, and negotiation of further peace settlements."

Eight per cent wished to "be more tolerant and understanding of other people's sentiment" Harris said evolved from the divisiveness of the Watergate era. Another eight per cent said they would resolve to "help other people."

Two per cent said they wanted to "be a better citizen" and "care more about where I live."

Another 2 per cent mentioned getting "better informed about politics," and Harris said most of these did not vote in November and "tend to feel guilty about it."

Of the more personal resolutions, 8 per cent expressed a desire to "make myself a better person, to do better in all ways."

The next largest number — 6 per cent — felt they should be "more active" in their church. Five per cent said they wanted to be better parents and "get closer to my family."

Resolutions to stop smoking, make more money, and cut down on wasteful spending were each cited by four per cent.

Soviet plant comes to life

NEW YORK (UPI) — The newest Soviet industrial plant, an immense truck plant armed with complex American and West-European technology, is slowly coming to life on a vast, desolate plain beside the Kama River.

After seven years of construction, in which an entire city of factories, highways and high-rises has been carved out of a small town and a rural landscape, the assembly line is now producing a more-or-less regular flow of 30 to 40 trucks a day, according to official figures.

This is barely a trickle in what the Russians plan as a flood of trucks to number 150,000 annually by 1981. The target, originally set for 1980, had been "pushed back" by construction delays and logistical problems. But the whole effort is already being hailed by both sides as a huge monument to the power of Soviet and American economic cooperation.

The Kama plant embodies the Soviet passion for bigness and the American aptitude for automation. But its sheer size, the huge complex, which covers more than 38 square miles and will employ 20,000 workers, is as bold as the thunder of a propaganda poster, embodying the industrial might and heroism that constitute much of the Soviet definition of progress and patriotism. The brute force of the project is varnished with the sheen of technology.

Of the plant's $4 billion total cost, $1 billion has gone for the purchase of foreign equipment, and $300 million of that for American machinery from 250 companies in the United States, according to George S. Schukin, chairman of the Kama Purchasing Commission, which maintains an office in New York.

Among the most prominent American participants are the Swindell-Dressler Company of Pittsburgh, a subsidiary of Pittman Inc., which designed and equipped a large, fully automated foundry; International Business Machines, which provided computers for the plant; Westinghouse, which sold electrical equipment; Ingersoll-Rand and others. Lev B. Vasilyev, the plant director, told a planeload of American businessmen visiting the complex that 23 per cent of the plant's equipment was from the United States.

"I could have been much sold," Soviet officials have said, were it not for trade barriers. Under American

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this suggestion for people who spend more money in bars than they can afford.

Since you cannot refrain from drinking, why not start a saloon in your own home? Be the only customer and you will not have to buy a license.

Give your wife $55 to buy a case of whiskey. There are 240 drinks in a case. Buy all your drinks from your wife at 60 cents a drink, and in 12 days (when the case is gone) your wife will have $89 to put in the bank and $56 to buy another case.

If you live 10 years and continue to buy all your whiskey from your wife and then die in your boots, your widow will have $27,085.47 on deposit—enough to bring up your children, pay-off the mortgage-on-the-house, marry a decent man and forget she ever knew a bum like you.

THINKING MAN

Home business?

DEAR THINKING: You sound more like a "drinking" man than a thinking man. What man is going to give his wife $55 to buy a case of whiskey, and then pay her 60 cents for a drink?

The way I figure it, the man will be out $55 every 12 days and will never see a real drink. He will either die of starvation or cirrhosis of the liver—whichever comes first.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male who has just read an article written by a woman who uses the word "macho" to describe men who have an exaggerated sense of male pride.

What would you call a female who has an exaggerated sense of female pride and delights in making men feel like little boys?

In other words, Abby, what word can be used to describe the female counterpart of the "macho" male?

AROUSED

DEAR AROUSED: How about "machete"? (An ideal weapon for castration.)

DEAR ABBY: I swore, like everyone else, that a grown man writing to a woman who uses the word "macho" to describe men who have an exaggerated sense of male pride.

I head a department where I work, and a coworker of mine who has an eye for the ladies is my problem. He's having an affair with one of the secretaries, and not only is this guy married, she is, too. Plus, she is one of his wife's best friends.

He has had other affairs, but I've always looked the other way, figuring it was none of my business. But this time, the work in my department is affected. He cuts his working hours short and makes excuses to be around her instead of tending to his business.

I like this guy, but I am responsible to my higher-ups. Do I look the other way again, talk to him, blast to the boss or blow up the wife?

WHAT NOW?

DEAR WHAT: Tell your friend that his lapses on the job are beginning to show. If he doesn't shape up he's likely to be shipped out.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I am 59, female, married and have high blood pressure around 175.

I am worried about strokes or a heart attack, but my faith believes only "God" is the greatest of all physicians. I wonder if you can buy something over the counter at a drug store?

Dear Reader: If you belong to the faith I think you might, you may be interested to know the faith who founded the faith wears glasses but I don't know where she bought them.

You should be concerned about your blood pressures as it does increase the chances that you could have either a stroke or heart attack or other disorders associated with diseased arteries.

I usually prefer to see a person with high blood pressure improve his or her living patterns first if that can be done. If you have any amount of fat at all under your skin, go on a sensible diet and exercise daily. At least try to walk 30 minutes an hour a day. We in two sessions if you need to, in order to not be uncomfortable.

The weight loss often lowers a person's blood pressure, and when it is successful it is far better for you than any medicines available for moderate elevations of blood pressure.

Also you should avoid coffee, tea and colas, as well as cigarettes.

None of these measures should conflict with your faith. I know of no Christian religion that is against a good healthy diet program, exercise and avoiding cigarettes, coffee and tea.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 14, Blood Pressure. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb: Do you have any information pertaining to appendicitis and how to prevent it? Also I would like to know if operation is the only answer if a person has an appendicitis attack?

Dear Reader: We have no definite information on how to prevent attacks of appendicitis. Dr. Burkitt and others who have studied the effects of cereal fiber bulk in the diet believe that appendicitis is rare in people who have sufficient cereal fiber in their diet. These investigators believe appendicitis is just one of many diseases that we suffer because of our modern bulkless diet that leads to poor colon function.

Appendicitis may be confused with several other medical conditions. These include the pain a girl may have related to ovulation, or inflammation of large lymph nodes inside the abdomen in either sex.

Once a case of appendicitis is definitely diagnosed, most doctors agree that the only treatment is surgical. If the patient is severely ill for any reason, a period of patient preparation may be required. This can be required if the appendix has already ruptured. Otherwise, one of the few conditions for delaying surgery would be a very recent heart attack or similar serious illness.

In general doctors do not think trying to abort the attack with antibiotics is acceptable. The risks are too great.

Valley Living 'Compact' living has advantages

By BONNIE RAIRD JONES Times-News writer TWIN FALLS — Jay and Doris Lazarus are getting used to all the space in their three-bedroom home again, but it isn't easy. For the past three years a 24-foot-long travel trailer has been their home, containing all the things a couple and one small dog need for comfortable living. One might think three years in such small quarters would be hard to cope with. Not so, says Doris. "I wouldn't trade anything for the past three years, and yes, I would do it again without any hesitation if the situation presented itself," she said. In September, 1973, the couple purchased the compact trailer and headed for Arizona where Jay, a pilot, has been hired to fly for Jeco, Inc. The company had contracted to install a power line from Farmington, N.M., to near Tucson, Ariz.

"We bought a small trailer, thinking we might spend six months a year or even three years in it, and as things turned out it was three years," she said. The couple lived in Springville, Ariz., the first nine months. The area, located in the White Mountains of Arizona, has snow and cold weather. As luck would have it, they lived there during the winter. With the coming of hot Arizona summer weather, they moved to Tucson. As for travel trailer living, Doris says it has many advantages. "In 30 minutes every morning I could have my housework finished and be ready to play and enjoy new friends and new things. Every day was a new adventure throughout the three years," she said. "I learned to play tennis, and even took up motorcycle riding through the Arizona deserts." Mrs. Lazarus said, "Whenever she could, she flew with her husband from one of the construction areas in another in the company six-passenger Cessna. Helicopters were used to pull the line and set the poles on the construction project. Lazarus flew parts, equipment, executives and other cargo from one area of the project to another. "Like," the couple's people probably has more air hours than most people and be loved trailer living. "We met lots of interesting people in the trailer parks where we lived and had a chance to really get to know the desert country. I don't think you find the real beauty in a place until you have spent about four months there," she said. Mrs. Lazarus said her husband purchased a motorcycle for her, took her out to the runway and gave her some brief instruction. They then headed for the desert and many exploring tours. "I was scared to death and knew I wasn't going to be able to do it, but it wasn't that hard."

THREE years in a 24-foot travel trailer and she is ready to go back. Doris Lazarus, Twin Falls, brews a cup of coffee in the compact kitchen, where she prepared meals for she and her husband, Jay, during their three years away from their house in which they lived in the travel trailer.

Ready to go back FTC probes 'idea promotion' business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission for the past two years has been investigating the "idea promotion" business, companies that promise to merchandise inventions. The following letter from Brigantine, N.J., indicates why: "Just a little more than a year ago, I contacted the company on the enclosed clipping. I am a barber, and I made a slight improvement to the barber's comb, and I thought it might be a good idea to see if the modification would amount to anything. "So I wrote to the address on the ad, and I made an appointment with Mr. Miller. He gave me a tremendous build-up on this idea, my hopes were really high, and then he told me or his company would put up $200 to get an Evaluation Analysis Report on the potential of this idea. "The report came back about four months later, and only after I had written to them to ask about any progress, etc. "This time a Mr. Swanko discussed what action his company would take to get my idea introduced to the market, but I would have to invest another $1,200 to accomplish this. At this time I began to get a little wary. "I did not have a patent, and Mr. Miller never mentioned anything about a patent search at my first appointment, but Mr. Swanko did say that when I gave or would give him $1,200 then they would have a patent search and if the comb was not patentable I would lose all that I had invested. Since I haven't seen anything such as this type of comb on the market, I thought my chances were pretty good, but I decided that I needed some time to think about it. "In the meantime, I was telling my situation to a lawyer friend of mine, and he advised me to contact a patent lawyer that he knew, which I did and was told that if I really wanted to find out whether this idea was ever patented, it would cost me $150 for a patent search and $25 for the attorney's fee. Well I was so sure I thought I had something I put out the $175. About two months later I received the sad news — my idea had been patented way back in 1968, another in 1913, another in 1914, 1922, 1940, 1916. "I really like me to think that I was taken for $300 at this day and age of my life. I'm 48 and I was that gullible to fall for something like this, plus my wife keeps throwing it up to me, which hurts even more. "I don't suppose there's anything I can do except chalk it up to experience and education. I have yet to hear from the company since I told them I didn't have the $1,200 to give them."

The FTC has settled a couple of cases against such firms, mostly by requiring them to be more specific in their promises so a consumer knows what he's receiving for his money. But the commission has no plans at this point for a general rule covering the conduct of the industry. Meanwhile, your letter should serve as adequate warning to others trying to merchandise inventions. We have turned your complaint over to the FTC, in case they can take action against the firm with which you dealt. As for getting your money back, as you say, you may have to chalk that up to experience. Buyer's Billboard will try to answer your consumer questions or complaints. Direct them to UPI, 315 National Press Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20045. We cannot make personal replies, but will try to respond as time permits.

Teen pregnancies termed 'epidemic'

Washington Star — The federal government and most state and city governments are not yet attacking teen-age pregnancy the way they would say, an epidemic of polio or a threatened outbreak of swine flu. Pressure is rising, however, from specialists in problems of minors. Federal officials, members of Congress, legislatures and the courts — state and federal — are being pushed for action. Teen-agers are bringing some pressure of their own. One tactic being tried in the Washington area is to write stories in school newspapers about teen-agers' sex habits, with suggestions about using birth control devices. Banning of an article like that in newspapers at Hayfield High School in Fairfax County, Va., and Fairmont Heights, Md., High School only produced more publicity about teenage sexuality. "Mary Moe, the Boston girl, is another teenager who found a solution. She got an abortion, without her parents knowing about it. Her story is fairly typical, even though she has become a special figure. Her case, now in Massachusetts' Supreme Judicial Court, may be the most significant test now going on of the legal problems associated with teenage pregnancies. "A friend of Mary's had become pregnant, and Mary talked about that with her father. He told her that, if that happened to her, he would throw her out of the house and kill her boyfriend. When she was a 10th grader, Mary herself got pregnant. She had had no sex education at school, and she could not get contraceptives because she was under age 18. "She went to Parents Aid Society in Boston, paid a $25 fee and had about two hours of counseling and obtained an abortion. Under Massachusetts law, she was not supposed to be able to get an abortion without her parents' consent. "However, a court gave her permission after Mary had gone to court to challenge the consent requirement. Her case worked its way up to the U.S. Supreme Court, which last summer sent it back to Massachusetts for a ruling by the state's highest court on whether some teenagers are mature enough to make their own decisions to have abortions. "The justices had ruled that states could not require parental consent in all teen-age abortion situations, but that ruling did not say how far states could go. That is the issue in Mary's case now awaiting a ruling in the state court. Doctors, sociologists, educators and others generally rely on abortions as the answer, but many of them do insist that it be kept available if a minor woman wants it and a doctor agrees. The Massachusetts case of Mary Moe and others like it also are considered significant as tests of the rights of teenagers to obtain other forms of advice or medical care related to sexuality and pregnancy. That would include the right — without parental consent or even knowledge — to buy contraceptives, to obtain sex and pregnancy counseling, and to arrange for pregnancy-related care. The Supreme Court also will be drawn into that issue on Jan. 29 when it holds a hearing on the power of states to forbid teens under age 16 to buy birth control devices. At issue in that case is whether teen-agers have a constitutional right of privacy that justifies assuring them access to contraceptives and to sex counseling.

Idaho plans strict minimum flow rules

By CHRIS PECK
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although the continued growth of state government worries Republican leaders in the Idaho legislature, "sunset laws" designed to force state agencies to justify their existence aren't likely to be adopted by the legislature this year.

At least that's the word from the co-chairmen of the powerful joint finance-appropriations committee, Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. Larry Jackson, R-Boise.

Each year the finance-appropriations committee, a joint committee of the House of Representatives and the Senate, reviews the budgets of Idaho's state agencies and approves appropriations for these agencies.

A number of states have adopted sunset laws in recent years as a means of controlling the growth of state government.

Under sunset legislation government agencies are asked every few years to justify their existence before a state legislature and show why programs run by the agencies should be funded.

In 1976 Colorado became the first western state to adopt a sunset law. Federal sunset legislation is under consideration in Congress.

First of series

In Idaho, Sen. High says the sunset laws aren't needed because the laws are "95 per cent rhetoric."

"We're getting the goal of the sunset laws now," High added, "because we do a periodic evaluation of every program (in state government) from the shoestrings up."

Rep. Jackson agreed with High's evaluation of sunset laws.

"I'm inclined to agree with High," Jackson said.

But Jackson, who assumed co-chairmanship of the finance-appropriations committee just this year, said he likes the idea of "zero-based budgeting" which often is adopted as part of a sunset law legislative package.

"Zero-based budgeting might help," Jackson said. "Under this concept our committee wouldn't assume anything from the previous year should be automatically budgeted the following year."

Currently, the budgets of Idaho state agencies are reviewed from year to year on what Jackson calls an accrual budgeting procedure.

"When we analyze a budget now we assume that the services supplied in a previous year will apply this year," Jackson said.

"Zero-based budgeting doesn't assume anything from the previous year," Jackson said.

"I think the switch to zero-based budgeting is going to occur," Jackson added, "but not this year. But it should be considered. The transition from accrual budgeting to zero-based budgeting wouldn't be a difficult transition to make."

High noted the legislature already has two different methods of keeping tabs on the growth of state agencies and the budgets of these agencies.

The governor's office funds a professional audit team which works year round to increase the efficiency of state government.

And, the Joint Finance-Appropriations committee has its own audit staff of 22 people who regularly conduct fiscal audits of all state agencies and report to the finance-appropriations committee.

While High feels the present legislative audit staff is doing a good job, the Twin Falls senator thinks the staff should be beefed up. With a larger legislative audit staff, High says the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee could conduct comprehensive performance audits on more state agencies.

These audits would show how well particular agencies were performing the jobs which they were designed to do.

"They (the legislative audit staff) have been short-handed in the past," High said, "and this year I think we can get those additional people to help perform these comprehensive performance audits."

If additional staff are added to the legislative audit team, High wants to conduct a continuing performance check on the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, the state's largest agency.

In addition, the expanded legislative audit staff could begin looking into the operations of Idaho's six separate health districts, High said.

These health districts currently are not audited nor are they subject to performance checks.

TF teen reports rape

TWIN FALLS — A 16-year-old Twin Falls woman told city police she was raped by four men at an undisclosed location in the county early New Year's Day.

Details of the incident were not available.

The woman had apparently attended a New Year's eve party earlier in the night, police reports said. She said she did not remember what happened before the rape because she had been drinking earlier.

No one has been arrested.

Barley man arrested

BURLEY — A New Year's Eve "good time" landed a Burley man in jail for discharging a firearm.

Jose Chairez was booked for exhibiting and displaying a weapon, discharging a firearm and malicious injury to property.

Police said Chairez fired some shots that struck the back of a Hansen Drive residence. Some of the shots went through a window.

The residents were watching television at the time but no one was injured.

Whiskey taken in break-in RUPERT — Two cases of whiskey were taken by intruder burglars in one of two break-ins reported in Rupert over the weekend.

The state liquor dispensary reported New Year's Day that the whiskey was taken some time during the night.

Snake River Seed Company also suffered a burglary Friday.

Police said the burglars entered through a hole in the roof and took various items of equipment.

Icy roads cause 1-car rollover

JEROME — State police were called to two accidents in nearby the same place early this morning as icy roads caused a one-car rollover and a truck jackknifing.

Joseph S. Ferris, 25, Portland, Ore., received a broken arm and lacerations at 4:45 a.m. today when the 1975 Dodge he was driving slid off the road at milepost 173 on I-80 in Jerome County and rolled over one and a half times, according to Corporal Richard Wright, Idaho State Police.

A passenger in the vehicle, Patricia K. Powers, 22, also Portland, received a bruised hip and a bump on the head.

Wright issued no citations.

Sleepy 'burglar'

BURLEY — Sleep overtook a Burley man early New Year's Day and resulted in his arrest on a charge of first degree burglary.

Eddie Contreras, 30, was arrested at a Hansen Drive residence at 3:04 a.m. Saturday. He was charged with residing arrest as well as burglary.

Burley police said Contreras and three unidentified males entered the Maria Martinez residence, where two youngsters were watching T.V.

Police said the intruders tore up the house.

Contreras then lay down in bed and the other three left the establishment.

The youngsters then called police.

Big move

TWIN FALLS — Under the new Idaho Water Plan, the state plans strict enforcement of minimum flow in the Snake River.

According to Idaho Department of Water Resources Director Keith Higginson, new water diversions for farming will be cut off if necessary to preserve the minimum flow.

Higginson said permits for diversion of Snake River water between Milner Dam and the Murphy gage south of Boise will be issued on a conditional basis.

The condition is that water will not be diverted from the Snake River if the diversion will reduce Snake River flows below 3,300 cubic feet per second at the Murphy gage, Higginson said this morning.

During most years, Higginson said, there would still be plenty of water in the Snake for new farmland development. But, he said, during especially dry years holders of new, conditional permits would have to seek water from other sources.

The water board's setting the 3,300 cfs standard at the Murphy gage, Higginson said, does not need legislative approval since the purpose is to protect Idaho Power Company's existing water right at Murphy.

Since it is for the purpose of protecting an existing right, he said, the water plan's low flow standard for the Murphy gage is very different from setting "aside" minimum flows for recreation, "protection of wildlife or other purposes."

The Idaho Legislature, Higginson said, will have to pass legislation authorizing establishment of minimum flows for these purposes. But, he said, since the water board has decided to protect an existing water right, no such legislation will be necessary to implement the 3,300 cfs flow standard at Murphy.

The 3,300 cfs standard, Higginson maintained, will not affect any existing water rights on the Snake River.

Higginson cited a chart showing that if all the water permits issued by the Idaho Department of Water Resources are developed, average summertime flow during the "most dry year" will still average 3,300 cfs.

"In an average year, he said, there would be 6,300 cfs to 6,500 cfs flow at Murphy.

To insure that during dry years the 3,300 cfs standard is maintained, new permits to farmland developers will stipulate that anytime the flow at Murphy is less than 3,300 cfs, water may not be diverted.

Higginson said it is a "reasonable assumption" that all such new permits will be issued with this condition, although he said the Water Resource Board will have to consider the matter.

Diversions of Snake River water for farmland development, he said, already has cut into Idaho Power's water right at its Swan Falls Dam near Murphy.

"I have never heard any objection voiced by the power company," he said, "to the diversions. Higginson said.

He said he does not know if a lawsuit would be likely to develop over the issuance of a permit on condition that the minimum flow of 3,300 cfs at Murphy be met.

The State Water Plan, which was adopted by the Water Resource Board last week, notes that the 3,300 cfs minimum flow represents only about one-third of Idaho Power's 9,450 cfs right at Swan Falls Dam and is "also less than the amount identified as needed for fish, wildlife and recreation purposes."

"Our conclusion... is that depletion of flows below that currently available in the low flow months to maintain water for production of hydropower and other mainstem water uses is not in the public interest," the plan states.

It notes that with water conservation and new dams, there should be 4.2 million acre feet of Murphy for appropriation during average water years.

The plan calls for a minimum "protected" flow of "0" at Milner Dam. It notes there should be 1.4 million acre feet available for appropriation at Milner during an average water year.

Minidoka traffic mishap on weekend claims horse

RUPERT — A traffic mishap in Minidoka County caused the death of a race horse owned by Billy Vaughn and trained by Norman Baker.

Vernon Steven Hansen, 22, Rupert, told police he was headed east on 700 North road north of Rupert about 3:25 a.m. Saturday. He said he saw a horse alongside the road and, as he approached, it ran into the road in front of the car.

The horse leg caught under the front bumper and the horse was flipped up into the air, landing on top of the car.

Hansen was given first-aid and taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital by a private party. He was treated and released.

In other mishaps, a child was injured in an accident at Rupert as a car broadsided a parked car and struck a house.

Minidoka County Sheriff's deputies said Delbert Wright, 28, Heyburn, was traveling west on 15th Drive in Rupert, about 8 a.m. Saturday. They said Wright apparently had a seizure.

The car swerved across the road and broadsided a parked car, still picking up speed, the car went over the sidewalk and struck a house.

Wright was cited for driving while his license was suspended. A passenger, 18-year-old Ronald Wallace, was treated for cuts and bruises and released at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Melvin L. Hanes, 52, Rupert, told deputies he could not remember the details of an accident about 9 p.m. New Year's Eve when his car rolled in a barrow pit.

Deputies said Hanes was headed north on 200 East Road in the Norland area north of Rupert when the car went off the west side of the road, traveled about 50 feet further and rolled in the barrow pit.

Hanes suffered cuts and bruises and the car was declared a total loss.

Hanes told deputies he was knocked out for a while.

James A. Clark, Rupert, also told deputies he could not remember much about his pickup rolling over on Idaho 21 south of Rupert Thursday.

The accident occurred about 1 p.m. Thursday on 300 south road at the highway.

A witness said Clark ran a stop sign and crossed the road, where his pickup rolled over.

Clark was treated at Minidoka Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises. A deputy said citations are pending.

Gooding views sought

GOODING — Gooding residents will be asked to offer suggestions about operation of the Gooding-Municipal Airport.

John Erlester, of the Hamilton and Voelter Engineering Firm, Twin Falls, says public input is an important part of the feasibility study which the city has hired his firm to conduct.

The city of Gooding has been awarded a grant of $11,700 to develop a master plan which will outline future needs and set priorities for improvements and long range planning at the facility.

Priester said engineers in his firm are now collecting data and the ideas from the public will be an important part of the "raw material" upon which the future plans will be based.

Priester said he anticipates the public hearing may be scheduled in February or March.

Information will be sought from the public about the land use priorities, flying facilities and how much use they anticipate giving the municipal facility.

General use airports, such as the Gooding one, should generate its own support through aviation use, Priester said.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed Monday — the first session of the new year — in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which gained 19.03 points last week, including 5.56 Friday was off 0.58 points to 1,064.24 — shortly after the opening.

Advances led declines 156 to 90 among the 377 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

Analysts said investors this week will be waiting for President-elect Carter to outline his initial economic plan, which is supposed to stimulate and guide the nation this year.

The stock market closed out its busiest year ever Friday as a rally and many observers believe the blue-chip average will make an assault on its summit this year on Jan. 11, 1974. Its 1976 high was 1,174.00.

Analysts noted the Dow failed on 12 attempts last year to hold above the 1,000 level because of profit taking. Most expect those pressures to be evident this week.

MacArthur Bowl

NEW YORK (UPI) — Undeclared and top-ranked Pittsburgh, which closed out a 120-season Saturday with a 21-9 triumph over U.C. Georgia in the Sugar Bowl, Sunday was named the recipient of the MacArthur Bowl as the nation's best college football team.

The award is given annually by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

The university will be presented with the trophy in an on-campus ceremony early this year.

Texas A&M claims Sun Bowl over Gators

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Cannon-footed Tony Franklin kicked a national bowl record 63-yard field goal and bullish George Woodard rushed for two touchdowns and caught a pass for a third to lead top-ranked Texas A&M to a 37-14 Sun Bowl win over Florida Sunday.

Franklin, who during the regular season broke the NCAA record twice in one game with field goals of 64 and 65 yards, also found the range from 39 and 33 yards Sunday while Woodard scored on touchdown runs of one and three yards and caught a 15-yard scoring toss from quarterback David Walker.

Franklin, who now has kicked 11 field goals from more than 50 yards, broke the previous bowl record of 55 yards set in last season's Astro-Bucannon Bowl by Texas' Russell Erskine. Franklin, the nation's leading field goal kicker this season with 23, is only a sophomore.

Aided by a 15-mile-per-hour wind, Franklin's long boot had plenty of room as it crossed the uprights to give the Aggies a 13-0 lead at that point midway in the second period.

A&M's other scorers came in a 10-minute flurry by Walker. An awesome Aggie defense, ranked fourth nationally, came up with five Florida turnovers and dominated the normally explosive Gator offense in the opening half.

The Gators, who led the Southeastern Conference in total offense in running up an 83 record, scored on a 29-yard end around by wide receiver Wes Chandler and a one-yard plunge by junior Terry LeCompte.

Jim Thorpe named "greatest player"

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Legendary Indian athlete Jim Thorpe Sunday was named winner of a national poll conducted by "Sport" magazine to select the "Greatest American Football Player in History."

The selection was announced during halftime of the American Bowl all-star college football game. Thorpe's son, John, and daughters, Gail and Grace, were present for the announcement. At a ceremony later this month in Washington, they will receive a 55-pound trophy, symbolic of the honor from President Ford. The trophy is being crafted in New York by the Cartier jewelry firm.

Thorpe starred for the Carlisle (Pa.) Indians, then coached by the equally legendary Pop Warner, in football victories over some of the top college teams of the pre-World War I era. He played professional football with the Canton Bulldogs and professional baseball briefly with the New York Giants.

Thorpe was a multiple gold medal winner for the United States in the 1912 Olympic Games but was later forced to return his medals when it was disclosed he had accepted money for playing semi-pro baseball with a Rocky Mount, N.C., team. Unsuccessful efforts have been underway ever since for return of Thorpe's Olympic medals.

TONY FRANKLIN, holder of the NCAA record for field goals, claimed another mark Sunday when he kicked a 63 yarder in the Sun Bowl and matched the longest boot kick on record. Franklin's NCAA record kick is 66 yards. (UPI tele)

Michigan handles SC

COLUMBUS, S.C. (UPI) — Rickey Green hit 30 points, 10 of them on consecutive free throws in the final three minutes Sunday to help top-ranked Michigan rebound from its first loss of the season with a 90-86 nationally televised victory over South Carolina.

The Wolverines, now 7-1 on the year, led by as many as 15 points midway through the second half, but needed Green's accuracy from the free throw line to cut short a furious Gamecock rally. South Carolina fell to 4-4 for the season.

The Gamecocks were led by captain Nate Davis, who hit for 28 points, including five straight field goals midway through the first half. The Gamecocks' effort was aided by Jackie Gilson's 27 points, including five free throws in the second half.

Trailing 86-70 with three minutes remaining, the Gamecocks were forced to play a reckless defense in an attempt to get the ball. Unfortunately, for Frank McGuire's S-C team, it was Green they were fouling and the 6-2 senior from Chicago could not miss from the free throw line.

Joe Thompson had 17 points and Phil Hubbard had 16 points for Michigan. Hubbard and South Carolina's Karlton Hilton were ejected from the game with 6:23 to go when they squared off at the South Carolina end of the court after a Hilton shot was batted down.

Jazz clips Hawks

ATLANTA (UPI) — Pete Maravich fired in 38 points and the New Orleans Jazz staved off a second-half rally by the Atlanta Hawks to take a 93-88 National Basketball Association victory Sunday.

Gail Goodrich added 14 points to help seal the Hawks' eighth consecutive defeat.

Lois Hudson led Atlanta with 30 points and Tom Barker added 19.

New Orleans jumped off to a big first quarter lead, outscoring the Hawks 12-4 midway through the period. The Hawks trailed 56-43 at the half.

Then in the third quarter, Atlanta came back strong as Barker came off the bench to score 12 of his 19 points.

The Hawks closed the margin to 82-81 with 6:24 left in the final period on a pair of free throws by Ken Charles. But then the Jazz scored eight unanswered points with Maravich and Goodrich leading the way and sealed the victory.

Archibald sidelined

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Nate Archibald, the New York Nets' floor leader and second leading scorer, suffered a fractured left foot in Sunday's 139-110 loss to the Philadelphia 76ers and will be out a minimum of three weeks.

Archibald, who was averaging 21 points a game, landed on the side of Harvey Catchings' foot late in the first quarter. He was taken to Hempstead General Hospital where X-rays revealed the fracture of the fifth metatarsal bone.

Dr. Irving Glick, who attended to Archibald, said the Nets' All-Star will be sidelined for up to six weeks.

Pacers defeat Bucks

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dave Robisch, Wil Jones and Billy Knight combined to score 73 points to lead the Indiana Pacers to a 116-109 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Sunday afternoon.

Indiana, which led at the half 59-48, had a 25-point lead at 81-56 midway in the third period but the Bucks, behind balanced scoring, moved to within eight points at 90-82 with 10:39 left.

Robisch led both teams with 27 points, got seven in a row and Don Buse six as Indiana pulled away in a 106-91 lead with just minutes remaining.

Jones and Knight each had 23 points for the Pacers and Jones pulled down 15 rebounds during the game. Elmore Smith of Milwaukee scored 17.

Indiana was leading 19-18 early in the game when they outscored the Bucks 17-4, four each by Robisch, Knight and Jones, to go ahead 36-24. Midway through the second quarter, with Indiana leading by nine, Mel Bennett had six points as Indiana outscored the Bucks 10-2 to take a 17-point lead, 52-35.

The loss ended a two-game Milwaukee winning streak.

North-nips South in American Bowl

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Purdue quarterback Mark Vitall passed for two touchdowns and Washington's Robin Earl ran for another in the first half, then the North held on for a 21-20 victory against the South in the American Bowl Sunday.

Glenn Carano of Nevada almost pulled the game out for the South in the final period. Earl, the North's most valuable player, scored his team's first touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the first period.

Rich Rosenwie, a club player from Little St. Leo College, kicked all three extra points.

Carano got the South moving when he plunged over from one yard out on a keeper in the fourth quarter, but Kinney Jordan's kick for the extra point failed.

Carano then hit Billy Rickman, the South's most valuable player, with a 49-yard touchdown pass and went right back to the Louisiana Tech receiver for the two-point conversion.

Carano closed out the scoring in a last-minute drive, hitting Tony Benjamin of Duke with an eight-yard pass and setting the stage for Carano's futility extra point attempt.

The victory gave the North a 7-2 edge in the series.

Earl was the game's leading rusher with 78 yards on 18 carries, while Rickman led the pass receivers with seven catches for 111 yards.

One year suspension for Braves' Turner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Flamboyant Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner was suspended for one year by major league baseball Sunday for violating directives regarding the free agent re-entry draft — in particular, the signing of outfielder Gary Matthews.

Turner, 36, who was reached at an Atlanta Hawks' basketball game, said he had also been notified that the Braves must forfeit their first-round choice in the June baseball draft.

Asked what the suspension means, Turner said, "I don't know. I've never been suspended before. I'm supposed to get in touch with the Commissioner this week."

"Losing a draft choice is a heavy penalty right there, because we would have drafted in third place," said Turner, who told reporters he was informed of his suspension Friday.

Bob Hope, a spokesman for the Braves, said Turner will not be able to participate in professional baseball or the management and operation of the National League team for a year.

The power-hitting Matthews, 26, was signed by the Braves for a reported $1.25 million. Turner, who promised to bring a championship to Atlanta when he purchased the club last year, became president of the Braves when National League owners unanimously approved the sale of the team for a reported $12 million to Turner Communications Corporation.

Turner becomes the second major league baseball owner to be suspended by the commissioner in three years, joining George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees who was banished for a two-year period for illegal contributions to Richard Nixon's presidential campaign in 1972.

Steinbrenner's suspension was lifted after less than 12 months by Kuhn, allowing him to again take an active part in running the Yankees prior to the 1976 season.

An official for Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office said no date has been set for the beginning of the suspension and that the fate of the Braves' signing of Matthews has been left in the hands of National League President Charles "Chub" Feeney to either approve or overrule.

Matthews was Atlanta's first pick in the re-entry draft Nov. 4 and was signed amidst great fanfare a short time after his selection by the club.

The source said the league issued directives stating that teams could contact players and their agents at the end of the regular season regarding possible employment and what the free agents were looking for as far as location. But, the official said, the teams were not allowed to discuss money.

Turner had some statements attributed to him at the World Series pertaining to Matthews and what the Braves would be willing to pay for his services.

Charges were filed against Turner, based on those statements by the Giants at the time of the draft. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn instigated an investigation at that time and notified the Braves that he had asked Feeney not to approve the signing of Matthews pending completion of the investigation.

Those charges apparently stemmed from a cocktail party Turner threw for Matthews before the draft to introduce him to 240 of Atlanta's most prominent citizens.

The charges also are related to a remark Turner reportedly made to Giants owner Bob Lurie during the World Series, an Atlanta club official said.

"All we did was throw him a cocktail party. He was already a free agent then," Turner said Sunday.

In the confrontation between Turner and Lurie, Turner reportedly said, "I don't care how much you pay Matthews, I'll pay him more."

The Braves were fined a reported $10,000 during the regular season for allegedly tampering with Matthews, who had already made it public he was playing out his option.

UCLA drops Houston

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Forward David Greenwood and center Brett Vrombon combined for 50 points Sunday to lead eighth-ranked UCLA to a 96-83 victory over Houston in a nationally televised game at Pauley Pavilion.

Greenwood, a 6-9 sophomore, scored 26 points and the 7-foot Vrombon got 24 although he fouled out with 6:30 remaining.

UCLA's team performance was overshadowed, however, by the play of Houston's 8-4 senior guard Otis Birdsong, who hit a season high of 42 points. Junior guard Mark Trammell added 12 points for the Cougars.

Birdsong, who entered the game averaging 29.1 points per game, was 18-for-29 from the floor and 6-for-9 from the free throw line although he picked up his fourth personal foul just five minutes into the second half.

UCLA All-American forward Marques Johnson had his poorest shooting half of the season, hitting only one of seven shots and scoring three points in the first half. He made 5-of-11 in the second half, however, and finished with a total of 17.

UCLA jumped to a 5-0 lead and had a 20-10 edge after 11 minutes. Houston closed to 29-28 with 2:34 left in the first half but then was outscored 8-2 as the Bruins moved to a 37-30 halftime edge.

UCLA led by as many as 21 in the second half although Houston narrowed it to 76-66 with 5:35 left and 86-76 with 3:20 remaining.

The Cougars, whose only previous losses were to undefeated University of San Francisco (15-0) are now 9-3. The Bruins, loser only to Notre Dame, are 10-1. The victory was UCLA's fourth in six meetings with Houston.

Providence survives Seton Hall in OT

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Bruce Campbell scored four of his 29 points in overtime Sunday as Providence College survived its first half scare from Seton Hall College before posting its eighth win of the year, 76-68.

Greg Tynes led Seton Hall, now 7-3, to a 46-35 halftime lead, scoring 22 of his game-high 28 points.

But the Friars, who knocked off No. 1 ranked Michigan in their last outing, chipped away at the lead in the second half, helped by the shooting Joe Hascett and Bob Mischewich who each wound up with 14 points.

Mischewich tied it at 62-62 with 2:56 remaining and Campbell put the Friars ahead for the first time with 1:48 left. But Seton Hall's Mark Coleman tied it again at 1:29 to send the game into overtime.

Providence is now 8-2.

Baseball's antitrust immunity shaken

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major league baseball's court-ordered antitrust immunity will be subject to legislative jeopardy for the first time in more than half a century Monday when a special House committee on Professional Sports meets to approve a series of final recommendations to Congress.

Only one member of the panel, Rep. Ronald L. Mottl, D-Ohio, is openly opposed to ending the antitrust immunity but Sisk and the other members of the committee are ready to urge the incoming Congress to remove baseball's exemption set forth by the Supreme Court in 1922.

The House leadership has been consulted on continuing the committee and is reportedly favorably to the idea. Baseball has used its antitrust exemption until this year to maintain a reserve clause system hindering a player to a club unless he was traded or sold; to preserve territorial rights of the existing teams; to block new franchisees and set up lucrative network contracts for the World Series, the All-Star games and regular season game-of-the-week television broadcasts.

The successor committee should consider some modifications of existing federal laws as applied to professional sports in general. "It was not possible to compile sufficient information to determine what need, if any, professional sports have for special antitrust modifications or treatment," the report consideration of unfair labor practice cases brought by professional athletes in view of the sharpness of their playing careers.

Problems of player and spectator violence, particularly in pro hockey, be studied with possible legislation suggested for a later date.

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration should do more to provide information on hazardous conditions in sports and that the Consumer Product Safety Commission begin collection data on injuries involved by pro football's use of artificial turf.

Philadelphia thumps NY Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Steve Mix came off the bench to score 10 of his season-high 21 points Sunday in sparking the Philadelphia 76ers to a 43-point second-quarter and a 138-110 victory over the New York Nets in a nationally televised game.

Mix replaced Julius Erving, who was making his first appearance in the Nassau Coliseum since being traded to Philadelphia in October, and hit all six of his second quarter shots and four of five free throws as the 76ers dominated the backboards and extended a 29-25 first quarter lead into a quarter and the Nets ahead 20-19. Archibald will be out for up to six weeks.

Cavaliers blast Rockets

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Campy Russell tossed in 23 points and a tough Cleveland defense held Houston to 12 fourth-period points Sunday night as the Cavaliers whipped the Rockets 104-80 and took over first place in the NBA's Central Division.

After Calvin Murphy moved the Rockets to within six points, 78-72, early in the fourth period, the Cavs reeled off 18 unanswered points, and the Rockets dropped one-half game behind Cleveland.

Vikings' workout 'physical'

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (UPI) — Coach Bud Grant sent his Minnesota Vikings through a full-scale practice Sunday in the St. Olaf College fieldhouse, their final workout in Minnesota before they leave for California where the Vikings meet the Oakland Raiders in Super Bowl X.

Grant described the session as "much more physical" than the workout Friday in Northfield, the Vikings' first workout since Dec. 24-13 National Football Conference victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

Friday's session wasn't much of a workout, Grant said, but was a matter of coming together, being a little working, a little running, psyching everyone.

You've heard all about the cattle drives of the Old West, but what do you know about the hog drives? During the first half of the 19th Century, hog farmers west of the Appalachians wanted to get the best prices in the eastern towns. So they organized drives over the National Trail which is now U.S. 40. Toll gate records indicate millions of hogs were so driven.

Theatrical performances on Thanksgiving Day almost invariably have failed, primarily because most people have preferred to stay home to dinner rather than go to a show. Our Language man has been informed by Chet Switell that the entire of the dinner, therefore, came to be used as the descriptive term for such a performance. Namely, a turkey.

STONED

Q. "Where'd we get the slang term 'stoned' to mean 'drunk'?"
A. From a mixture of rum and hard cider which the colonial folk called "Stonewall."

Item 1406B in our Love and War man's file labeled "Flirtation" is a short note from a young lady who claims to be an expert on the subject. Her key sentence reads: "Before going to parties, I always take the flint-out-of-my-cigarette lighter, then flick it like mad."

Men used-to be taught that a cold shower would suppress their romantic urges. Theories change, what? More and more medical specialists now claim the cold shower more often than not stimulates amorous arousal.

A first-class postage stamp in Sweden costs 23 cents, please note.

ATHLETES

You have to overlook the extraordinary trophy winners when you consider this. The average college athlete two years after graduation earns an annual salary of $7,600. The average nonathlete two years after graduation earns $11,000. Or so indicate the most recent statistics at hand. If true, the figures suggest there's a hole in that widely held belief that collegiate sport makes a dandy ladder to success.

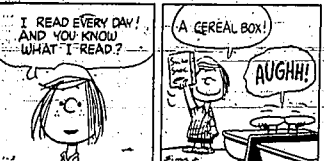

A salesman who deals in new typewriters says he has kept during the last several years of what his prospective customers write the first when testing the machines. In descending order, they type out: 1. Their own names. 2. Now is the time for all good men... 3. The quick brown fox... Clearly, he says, his findings prove beyond doubt that people are more interested in themselves than in all good men or quick brown foxes.

Next time you eat a lamb chop or wear a woolen sweater, try to figure out which sort of domesticated animal was the first to be mentioned in the Bible.
