

West Point cadets to be readmitted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffman announced today that cadets who have been dismissed or resigned from West Point in a cheating scandal will be readmitted to school.

And he told a news conference he has decided to accept most recommendations of a special study panel to reform the honor system at the U.S. Military Academy.

Hoffman also announced that West Point's present superintendent, Lt. Gen. Sidney B. Basy, will be removed in the next few months and replaced by another officer who will undergo special orientation for the post and serve from four to eight years.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An independent panel investigating collapse of Idaho's Teton Dam says the Reclamation Bureau failed to design the dam adequately to cope with unusual site conditions, the Los Angeles Times said today.

Quoting sources familiar with a report the panel plans to issue Thursday in Idaho Falls, the Times Washington bureau said Reclamation is criticized for failure to design the dam for the narrow canyon and its fissure and crack-riddled rock walls.

"It was a design problem pure and simple," the Times quoted one source.

The newspaper said investigators pinpointed design problems in the section where the earthen core of the dam contacted the steep slope of

The newly-completed, earth-filled dam's reservoir was nearly full when the 305-foot structure gave away last June 5, sending 80 billion gallons of water into the valley below, ultimately taking 11 lives and causing an estimated $1 billion damage.

"After the dam broke Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe and Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, who will succeed Kleppe as Interior secretary later this month, appointed an independent panel to investigate the cause of the collapse.

Panel Chairman Wallace Chadwick, a Los Angeles consulting engineer, planned to present Kleppe and Andrus with the panel's final report today and the panel planned to issue it publicly at Idaho Falls Thursday. Andrus is in Washington.

The Times said the 400-page report raises by implication serious questions about procedures routinely followed by the Reclamation Bureau.

The Times said the federal government quietly is instituting major changes in the way it builds, inspects and operates dams and reservoirs as a result of the findings.

Among other things, the newspaper said, these changes are or soon will be made:

- High-ranking Interior officials are negotiating with representatives of the National Academy of Sciences to begin an independent evaluation of a list of existing "problem dams."
- Reclamation Commissioner Gilbert G. Stamm has decided to hire outside engineering consultants to review technical designs of all future bureau dams.

- Strict and conservative criteria will be followed in filling reservoirs behind five new dams in Colorado, New Mexico and Oklahoma this spring. When it collapsed Teton was being filled at a rate four times that specified because of a heavy spring runoff, a fact unknown to Washington officials at the time.
- During dam construction Reclamation personnel have been ordered to report immediately by telephone any geologic or other conditions that might affect safety.
- The Interior Department plans to initiate an outside, year-long study of whether government dambuilders are assessing safety, cost and other factors adequately.

Soviets to buy US grain

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union harvested a record 223.8 million metric tons of grain in 1976 but will keep its commitment to buy additional U.S. corn and wheat, Agriculture Minister Valentin Mesyats said Wednesday.

Mesyats told an unusual news conference for Soviet and foreign reporters that the Soviet Union has rebuilt its grain stocks since the drought which cut the 1975 harvest to a disastrous 138 million tons. He said gains also were made in meat production.

Only potatoes and sugar beet crops fell below target, because of an unexpected October frost, Mesyats said.

"The year was very difficult. There was a lot of worry about the fate of the harvest," Mesyats said. "However, we can say today that the agriculture workers did their job successfully."

"We've been able to build up our grain stocks in history — 223.8 million tons," he said. This compared to the previous record of 222.5 million tons in 1973.

The 45-year-old minister, who was raised from an obscure party post less than a year ago to replace Dmitry S. Polyansky, ousted after the 1975 harvest said, "According to the figures that have been released, we have laid in stock enough grain to satisfy all of our needs."

"However," he said, "what has been foreseen by agreement — we'll take it all."

A five-year agreement signed last year provides for the Soviet Union to purchase a minimum of 6 million tons of grain from the United States each year, evenly divided between wheat and corn. U.S. Agriculture Department officials reported last month Soviet purchases totaled 6.6 million tons in 1976.

The Soviets bought 28 to 29 million tons of grain from the West after the 1975 harvest disaster, and had been expected to import about 15 million tons last year.

Crews pump oil off grounded tanker

By United Press International

Barge crews today pumped millions of gallons of oil from the grounded Liberian tanker Universe in an effort to refloat the vessel and keep its 21 million-gallon cargo from polluting the Delaware River.

It was the sixth Liberian flag tanker accident in or near U.S. waters since mid-December. The 824-foot ship went aground Tuesday night trying to avoid a collision with another vessel.

The Coast Guard said no oil was spilled as crews worked to pump enough oil out of the tanker so it could be refloated at high tide, 11:06 a.m.

Longest jury questioning goes on

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Claudine Longet's defense attorney today said he probably wouldn't use all challenges allowed him to disqualify jurors possibly prejudiced against the singer, accused of slaying her lover, pop skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

"I don't anticipate it but it's hard to know," said Charles Weedman before District Judge George Lahr began the third day of jury selection.

He said he wasn't surprised that "so many jurors that have been called knew details of Mrs. Williams' life because there has been so much publicity in the case."

Saboteurs blow up US fuel tank

GIESSEN, West Germany (UPI) — Saboteurs cut through a fence at the U.S. Army supply depot here and blew up a gasoline storage tank Tuesday night, police reported today.

An army spokesman said 8,000 gallons of gasoline went up in smoke and damage was estimated at $5,000.

It was the fifth explosive attack in four years on American military installations in West Germany.

The army spokesman said "sabotage was the possible cause" but German police, who investigated the incident with American military police, said there is no doubt saboteurs were responsible.

Vandalism led to power loss

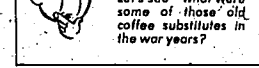

JEROME — Vandalism done earlier to insulators on power lines reportedly was a major cause of the power outage which left more than 4,000 Jerome area residents without electricity for up to two hours Monday.

J.B. Packwood, division electrical superintendent, said as Monday's snow storm swept through the area, intermittent problems were encountered throughout the night before transmission lines serving the area went down at 9:08 a.m.

He estimated property damage about $2,000. It took eight men about six hours to repair the lines, the official said.

Residents north of Jerome and the majority of the city area were without power for up to two hours, Packwood said.

Students were sent home Monday afternoon because of electrical and furnace problems.

Chilly outlook

KIMBERLY — Sunny skies and cold is the outlook through the weekend, according to the U.S. Weather Service station.

Increasing cloudiness and light snow flurries may hit Twin Falls and the Burley-Rupert area this afternoon, but the weather should turn fair again tonight and stay fair through the weekend.

The outlook is essentially the same for Sun Valley where snow flurries and clouds should decrease this afternoon, leaving a clear sky by night.

Dry, cold weather should stay through Sunday, with high temperatures in the 20's and overnight lows going down to zero.

Blind licensed

CHIETI, Italy (UPI) — The provincial traffic inspector found today it has issued driving licenses to 22 persons of legally listed as blind.

The authorities made a name-by-name check of their records after police discovered three men who were drawing pensions for the blind held driving licenses. It found 19 more such cases.

Oil boost set

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Abu Dhabi has decided to raise its oil production this year, following the lead of Saudi Arabia, in an attempt to undersell other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, oil industry sources said today.

The sources said Abu Dhabi had lifted its "production ceiling" of 1.5 million barrels of crude oil a day and would produce between 1.8 and 2 million barrels a day in 1977, an increase of at least 20 percent.

Heat wave

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — Shoppers went bare-headed and without gloves Tuesday as Fairbanks recorded a record high 98 degrees for Jan. 4.

Two years ago the city was shivering at 56 below zero. The record low for the day is minus 66 set in 1934.

Meteorologists said the 4th, 5th and 6th days of January usually are the coldest of the year.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Brazilian coffee growers earned record profits last year and apparently are unconcerned over American attempts to fight high prices with a boycott.

The Brazilian Coffee Institute was expected to release official figures for 1976 in a few days and sources told UPI Tuesday the year's gross sales will be in excess of $2.3 billion.

This is more than double the $900 million gross export sales of 1975 and $1 billion more than Brazil's previous record of $1.243 billion in 1973.

Attempts at launching a coffee boycott to push down the current price in the United States of nearly $3 a pound have been spearheaded by New York City's consumer affairs commissioner.

A spokesman said Coffee Institute President Camilo Calazans had notified a small group that attempts at boycotting Brazilian coffee "could be good for Brazil."

The spokesman said Calazans told the group: "The fact is the Brazilian government isn't interested in having Brazil continue being responsible for the drastic part of international coffee demand. We cannot continue exporting or we will exhaust our stocks in a few months."

The Brazilian boom is being enjoyed by both producers and exporters. Only the coffee drinker and migrant picker are suffering.

Before the July 1975 frost that destroyed or damaged 71 per cent of Brazil's coffee trees, the price of coffee for domestic consumption in Brazil was about 70 cents a pound. The price now is about $1.90 a pound.

The price the farmer receives for a 132-pound sack has gone up from $33 to $44 to $200 registered this week.

"The reason there just isn't any coffee around," said a coffee specialist. "Before, they had 'too much.' You couldn't sell it—and the buyers told the farmers what they were going to pay and that was that."

For the same reason, the migrant worker is suffering since there is little coffee to pick. It will take three years for the new trees planted this year to bear fruit and provide work for the nearly 500,000 pickers who depend on the harvest for seasonal work.

MV counties, cities support agency

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Five counties and several cities have indicated plans to lend financial support to the Region 4 Development Association during 1977. Blaine, Minidoka, Lincoln, Camas and Gooding counties indicated support for the region-wide organization in a workshop meeting in Twin Falls Monday afternoon...

organization. At that time it was operating as the Council of Governors. Dr. James Taylor, president of CSI, addressed the group regarding federal funding and proper methods of applying for money as it is made available. Taylor said the regional organization is currently administering the Housing and Urban Renewal "701" funds, as well as state money and outreach programs and working with the Health Planning Agency. He said efforts are being made to form an Economic Development Area for the eight-Magic Valley counties as a basis for additional federal assistance for water projects, recreation development and other programs which would provide employment and improve economic conditions. Through a regional association, communities and counties would gain a 10 percent increase in federal funding for such projects, he said. The next meeting of the Region 4 Development Association will be at 2 p.m. Jan. 27 in the Wendell office of the organization. Under the 1977 membership fee schedule, counties with a population up to 500 pay $25 with an additional $25 for every 500 above that figure. Counties would pay a basic $300 fee with an additional five cents per capita. This would reduce the amount for larger counties but give each county a fair charge on the basis of tax revenue, Taylor said.

655,237 killed in China quake

HONG KONG (UPI) — The strongest earthquake recorded in the world in more than a dozen years killed at least 655,237 and injured more than 779,000 when it struck northern China last summer, according to a report attributed to Chinese leaders in the affected province. The July 28 temblor was centered at Tangshan, about 100 miles southeast of Peking, and was one of six major earthquakes to hit China during 1976. If the figures on the Tangshan quake are correct, it would be the second deadliest in history. It also could mean...

that a million or more persons may have died in all the quakes in China last year. Chinese officials have not made public any precise figures on casualties and property damage in any of the six quakes. The report giving the casualty figures was issued by the Hopedi Provincial Committee of the party and the Hopedi Revolutionary Committee last Aug. 6, according to Nationalist Chinese sources who obtained a text and made it available. Intelligence sources familiar with such documents said they had no reason to doubt its authenticity. "According to preliminary statistics," the report said, "in such seriously stricken areas as Tangshan municipality, and Fengning and Fengyung, there were 655,237 persons dead."

Aircraft, newborns land safely

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — An airborne ambulance, carrying three newborn babies to hospitals in Idaho, circled Salt Lake City International Airport for an hour Tuesday before making a safe emergency landing. George Bowman, pilot of the Key Airlines twin-engine prop. crew, said he and two crew members took off Tuesday evening to transfer the infants from University of Utah—Medical Center's newborn intensive care unit. One baby was enroute to Lewiston and a set of twins to Pocatello. Bowman said emergency lights flashed on when the plane was about 100 miles north of Ogden, Utah. The pilot said it decided to return to Salt Lake City rather than chance continuing the flight with possible malfunctions in the landing gear. Emergency crews lined the runway as Bowman circled to burn up excess fuel and reduce the danger of explosion. Bowman discovered the landing gear was down as the lights indicated when he tried to lower it, the electrical equipment failed.

Convention funds generate frowns

BOISE (UPI) — During the second day of the legislature's finance committee hearings, Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Dist. 19, called for a "screaming halt" to appropriation requests for professional conventions held in the state.

The remark was precipitated by a $10,000 supplemental request from the secretary of state's office to cover costs of hosting the executive committee of the National Secretaries of State organization in Sun Valley.

Yarbrough said such requests should be "called to a screaming halt" suggesting that participants pay costs of their conventions rather than going back to the taxpayers to pay these costs.

Secretary of State Fela Cenarrusa agreed with the statement. Cenarrusa said 18 to 25 state secretaries are planning to meet in Sun Valley in May for three to four days for a planning session of their organization's national convention.

The secretary of state also asked for a $112,000 supplemental appropriation to cover the costs of the state's presidential primary.

Idaho anti-crime board seeks to keep directors

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the Law Enforcement Planning Commission will ask the legislature to authorize the directors of the three LEPC regions to remain on contract instead of becoming state employees.

Last year, the state said the three directors should be state employees and the Personnel Commission said the three $18,000 a year jobs should be $11,400 a year posts under the merit system. The directors administer federal anti-crime grants. At a meeting Tuesday, the commission voted to propose legislation to keep the directors as independent contractors.

Life guard amendment proposed

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — State Sen. Diane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, says he will ask the Idaho Legislature to recommend a constitutional amendment reaffirming the right of the state to protect life.

Watkins' memorial asks that the Constitution be amended to allow the Congress and the several states to pass laws "to protect life from the beginning of new life and at every stage of biological development irrespective of age, health or condition of physical dependency."

It says that the Supreme Court's decisions "have removed from the people, through their elected representatives, the control and jurisdiction of matters relating to the right to life and have specifically and severely restricted regulations of the terms and conditions of abortions."

Building study funds sought

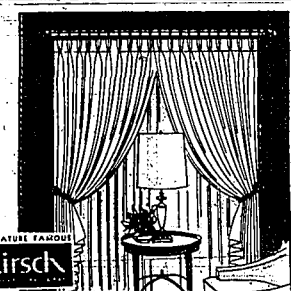

BOISE (UPI) — The acting state director of Administration, asked Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell Tuesday whether Permanent Building Contingency Funds can be used for building programming and space analysis for buildings proposed by the State Building Authority.

Neumayer said a legislative audit on the new State Office Building concluded the state should conduct building programming and analyses on all future state office buildings prior to design and construction.

The State Building Authority has been moving rapidly since August to prepare for construction of new office buildings in Lewiston, Idaho Falls and Boise, he said.

A different kind of prejudice

You've heard of sexism, racism, ageism and other prejudicial "isms." To the list add "heightism," a term coined some time ago by sociologist Saul Feldman to describe discrimination against short people.

While it may never become a vogue word, "heightism" is nevertheless an unhappy fact of life for countless men and women, even in this supposedly enlightened age, says Robert Half, president of a nationwide chain of personnel agencies.

He cites a study of University of Pittsburgh graduates which revealed that men 6'2" and taller received starting salaries 12 per cent higher than equally qualified men who stood 6' or less. Short women received similarly short shrift.

Short people are often stereotyped as being easily, stubborn, cocky or overaggressive, says Half, who cannot be accused of bias in favor of "shortism" since he is 5'10" himself.

"When short people reach the top of the corporate ladder, their well-deserved success is almost invariably attributed to a 'Napoleon complex,'" he notes. "Six-foot executives, on the other hand, are simply credited with drive, skill, ambition and intelligence."

He further notes that in every presidential election from 1900 to 1968, the taller of the two candidates always won. Not until 1968 was the pattern broken by Richard Nixon, who was half an inch shorter than George McGovern.

Unfortunately, certain other shortcomings about the winner were later revealed. Even so, Half is encouraged to believe that the victory of 5'9 1/2" Jimmy Carter over 6'1" Gerald Ford may indicate a healthy change in the way we evaluate and choose our national leaders.

In any event, and in short, "heightism" doesn't make sense, he says. "Prejudice against shorter people, no matter how subtle, is both absurd and intolerable."

A bad idea from the IRS

The Internal Revenue Service would be well advised to forget its proposal to treat as taxable income the free or reduced-tuition grants by many colleges and universities to their employees and their families.

The IRS contends that tuition waivers — which not all schools make available by any means — are not tax-free scholarships, as they have traditionally been considered, but are taxable fringe benefits because eligibility depends upon employment.

As a hearing in Washington the other day made clear, this could be opening a real can of worms, if not stirring up a hornet's nest. Both metaphors are appropriate.

If tuition waivers are a taxable fringe benefit, a host of other benefits enjoyed by millions of workers would certainly seem to qualify. Fully paid or partially paid hospitalization insurance negotiated under labor union contracts, or voluntarily extended by employers, must alone represent billions of dollars in indirect wages.

In any event, according to college and university administrators, the people who would be hardest hit by a change in IRS policy would be low-income employees, who would either have to forget about a college education for their children — or turn around and apply for tuition subsidies from the same government that took them away in the first place.

Who cares about a few gallons of oil?

By RUSSELL BAKER
O.N.Y. Times Service

NANTUCKET, Mass. — The 7.5-million gallons of oil sloshing around in the ocean to the southeast of here remind us that places like Nantucket are endurable in the modern world.

If the island is to be soaked in oil or, as will more probably happen, be covered in asphalt, it will surely be a pity, but it will be, after all, merely another one of those "trade-offs" we accept in return for the modern condition. Nantucketers themselves understand and accept the necessity of these "trade-offs." For years now they have been trading off the fragile beauty of their island for spending money, and it would be a hard-hearted and unsympathetic argument in per capita income: The island stands near the bottom of Massachusetts communities. And when the rich are paying for beauty, it is only natural that the poor should sell.

It is a sucker's deal for the rich, of course, and Nantucketers know it. When the real estate crowd has finished turning the island into another typical American suburb, the beauty will have turned into an eyesore. Too bad for the buyer. Not so bad for the seller if he uses his profit to get out, go south to the subtropical sunshine where he is not bound to a three-month season of waiting until next year.

I do not say it is every Nantucketer's dream to dump the place and move to Florida, although many do. It is a fact, nonetheless, that when January sets in and the annual return of the tourist is still five months off, and there is little to do but listen to the wind and stare at the calendar, there is a powerful temptation to dream of killings in real estate, year-round work, and trade winds in Barbados.

The economics of the place is against it. The well-heeled summer people, having acquired their own piece of the island, form conservation groups to stop others from cutting themselves a piece, and thus become political enemies of the islanders who see their prospects of profit threatened.

In the past few years, the conservationists have shown growing muscle. They have even stepped or hindered a few of the more grandiose projects for trimming the island moors and ponds with summer housing of the suburban-development variety. These victories have been won on the coast, however, in the local Nantucket political arena, the advocates of "growth" usually prevail.

RUSSELL BAKER

Earlier this year, elections in which the summer people do not participate put Nantucketers on record in favor of an ocean-side Holiday Inn motel designed principally to cater to oil drillers working off Georges Bank. In another test of Nantucket attitudes toward conservation, the islanders voted against endorsing the so-called Kennedy bill, which would create a joint federal-local partnership to prevent unchecked real estate development throughout the island.

Obviously, Nantucketers take much the same attitude toward "growth" that is commonly taken by people who stand to profit from it. They may not be well disposed to growth-enhancing oil-tankers and their shovels and threaten their tourist business, but they are not above making another "trade-off" — nature for subdivisions — when it promises to boost the local economy.

This is not to suggest that they should be more high minded than anybody else. Their economic need is certainly more pressing than; the oil industry's. The point is that economics seems to compel us all, the poor and the rich alike, to turn things into slums.

The oil compulsion is now turning the Atlantic south of here into a marine slum, and the real estate compulsion promises to turn places like Nantucket into island slums. And we accept both as "trade-offs" to keep us moving along the road to better life.

There is still no oil on the beaches of Nantucket, and dead birds are few. On the roads to the beaches, however, one sees once beautiful moors scarred by dozens and dozens of real-estate speculators — newly erected summer houses, each placed to create a "view," and woods already cut for new developments. Ten years ago all these lands were empty except for wildlife. Twenty years from now, at the present growth rate, the island will look like Co-Op City.

And although it will be too bad, it will be substantially justifiable. An economic necessity. An inevitable development toward a more modern human condition. Another step down the ladder to Paradise.

Presidential cabinet: ho-hum

WASHINGTON — The past few weeks have provided lean pickings for the political pundits. In the absence of any news of large consequences, which is to say, on Mr. Carter's Cabinet choices.

Only five of these positions truly matter: The rest of the jobs are as worthless as bull calves something in official Washington are State, Treasury, Defense, Attorney General and Budget Director. In a separate and vital classification is the Director of Central Intelligence.

The remaining Cabinet posts are entirely forgettable. It is perhaps more ingenuous to be named Secretary of Housing than it is to be chosen Vice-President, but the job share the same anonymity. Who, quickly, can name the past four Secretaries of Labor? Of Transportation? Of Commerce? Of Agriculture?

The old-line departments of government, with few exceptions, are concerned mostly with the gathering of facts and the shuffling of papers. Now and then a secretary rises above the bureaucratic sens and makes a little news. Such surfacings are rare. In the outgoing Cabinet, Earl Butz is remembered for a stupid joke and John Dunlop because he quit. Skip the rest.

The secretaries have declined in importance because the action has moved somewhere else. Businessmen, for example, can live with Juanita Krebs as Secretary of Commerce; they could live with anyone as Secretary of Commerce. They are far more concerned with appointments to the Federal Trade Commission, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. A couple of other agencies, technically a part of old-line departments, actually operate as independent principalities, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Food and Drug Administration.

Add to this list the specialized agencies that control tariffs, trucks, routes, rail rates, air fares, power licenses, TV and radio stations, environmental protection and labor relations. Add the names of the Federal Reserve Board and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. This is where the action is. The old-line secretaries are little more than mannequins in a window.

Even the vice that matter are not likely to matter greatly in Mr. Carter's administration. Cyrus Vance, as Secretary of State, is no Kissinger and was not meant to be. Harold Brown, who will serve as Secretary of Defense, will make no remarkable waves. Griffin Bell, the incoming Attorney General, is Mr. Carter's old and dear friend. So is Bert Lance, the Budget Director. The one question mark, the Michael Blumenthal in Treasury, he is a certified liberal; he has a large intellect; and he will have large powers.

As a member of the loyal opposition, I vote

Time magazine cover subject of debate

BY RANDY SUE COBURN
1977 Washington Star

WASHINGTON — A lot of people think the Jamie Wyeth painting on the cover of Time magazine last week is interesting, only because it names the President-elect as Time's Man of the Year and because it doesn't show his teeth.

Now it develops that the people at The New Republic think it's interesting, for another reason: They think the painting belongs in their magazine. They say they thought they were getting it for their inaugural issue.

It is, by their light, a clear-cut case of media art-napping. They are mad about it.

"We originated the Wyeth portrait," says the managing editor of The New Republic, Michael Kinley, 36. "There was no question as to assignment for us. Marty Petetz suggested the idea to him and arranged things with Carter's assistant press secretary, and John Osborne got him a hotel room in America's," Marty Petetz is the owner of The New Republic; John Osborne is his senior editor. America's is in Georgia, a short distance from Plains, and that's where Wyeth stayed while he worked on his portrait of Jimmy Carter for four days this month, following Carter around: highly visible at news conferences.

Jamie Wyeth labels the flap "a misunderstanding." There is, he says, "a bit of confusion."

"The basic problem is that I am not an illustrator or commercial artist. I don't do commission stuff. I went to Plains on my own, really, with no obligation to anyone."

"New Republic had called two months ago and said I did something there, they'd be interested. But numerous people, including Chip Carter, called about my coming down."

"During his time there, Wyeth reports, he was badgered by reporters who wanted to reproduce some of his sketches. I finished the pack, he said. Time had other leads out, too. The magazine commissioned 'many' artists for this cover painting, assistant art director Wade Hancock says.

Hancock, the only Time official involved who could be reached, said Wednesday, "He (Wyeth) was a life saver, but he was like the best."

The issue was off to the press before The New Republic people learned what had happened. Kinley says Petetz then met with Time managing editor Henry Grunwald, but there was nothing to be done.

And all this meant a lot to The New Republic, one of the country's oldest political journals, because it has been updating its image lately; Wyeth's watercolor portrait was planned to showcase a snappy new cover style, as opposed to the old black and white drawings; or no art at all.

The New Republic does not plan a lawsuit, but Kinley, who is new to the magazine and was a Harvard law student before coming here last fall, says, "There is quite possibly enough of an oral agreement to constitute what lawyers call a contract."

How much money is involved in all of this is unclear.

John Sheppard, spokesman for the Brandywine River Museum in Chadds Ford, Pa., says the going price for a Wyeth watercolor landscape is around $8,000, but a portrait would be more expensive. An oil portrait of the artist did of Andy Warhol recently went for $15,000.

Wyeth says Time also tried to buy a second watercolor of Carter that he did during the Plains trip — presumably, he speculates, to assure the value of the one they used. Finally the two sides agreed the second painting would be donated to a museum.

The cover painting joins Time's private collection, which includes Man of the Year covers dating back to Charles Lindbergh, the "First choice, in 1927."

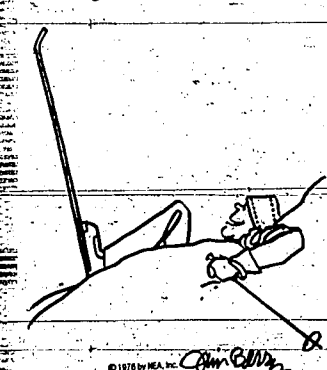

"Wyeth said 'the Carter project' ownership question aside, was not without a number of problems.

"He has a difficult subject," Wyeth says, "since at times, he looked very young — around 35 — and at others he looked almost twice as old. And I wanted to stay away from his smile, although it's a very nice smile." Wyeth says, "I hope that's not one of the problems of reproduction, but his eyes have an absence of color, rather than a brightness."

Time, too, had its problems. After the watercolor was flown to Chicago for deadline, engraving someone realized Wyeth had not signed it. "I have a terrible habit," the artist says, of never signing anything."

So a frantic search had to be made among Chicago collectors to find a Wyeth painting from which a signature could be copied. Alton Wyeth has offered The New Republic what a half dozen black-and-white Carter drawings, for use on their cover.

Fishing priorities wrong

NEW YORK — Too much pandering to the "big-game" fashions of the angling world (the salmon, trout and bass) and too little concern for the non-game or less-popular sport varieties of fish are among the reasons for a widespread decline in native species of North American freshwater fish, according to an article in the January issue of AUDUBON, magazine of the National Audubon Society.

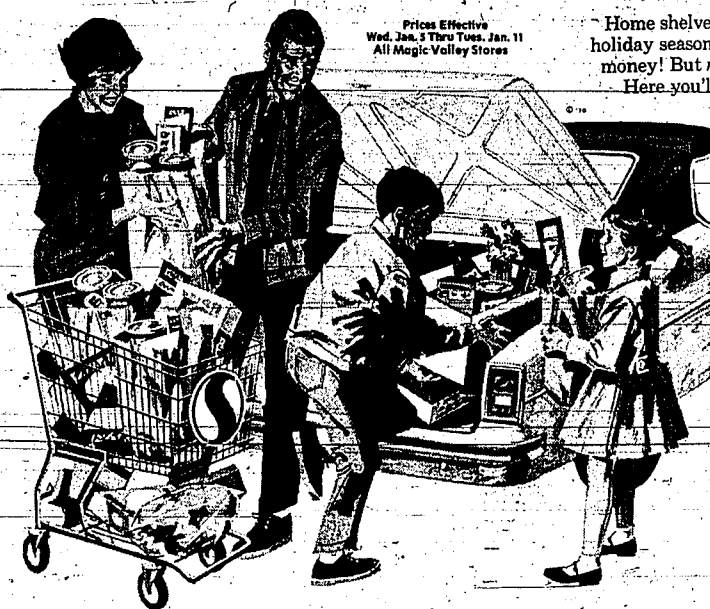

But the writer, AUDUBON Washington editor George Reiger, puts only a small share of the blame on the sporting world, and he gives angler credit for some recent advances toward reversing the trend.

The article, with illustrations by famed wildlife painter George Luther Schelling, reports on a wide spectrum of problems threatening native varieties of fish, from the tiny darters to the huge white sturgeon which in years past were believed to grow as large as 2,000 pounds.

More important factors in the decline, Reiger says, have been the effects of dams and other irrigation and flood control construction, pollution, and short-sighted commercial exploitation. And perhaps most important of all, he declares, is simply that most people can't see below the surface of the Big Muddy, the Colorado, the Hudson and other river waterways, and they don't realize that the changes brought by civilization are killing off native species, bringing homogeneity where there once was diversity, and destroying valuable wildlife resources.

Bob Newhart quits

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comedian Bob Newhart is quitting his hit television series, "The Bob Newhart Show," at the end of the current season. "This is no ploy, no device for negotiation," Newhart said Tuesday. "I am absolutely sincere about leaving the series at the end of production this year and CBS has been notified."

Body found in refrigerator

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — John Czekanski, 59, was found dead Tuesday in a refrigerator in the basement of his home. The coroner's office said Czekanski, of nearby Homestead, apparently removed the shelves of the refrigerator and crawled inside. The coroner's office did not rule immediately if the death was accidental or suicide.

Simon to display gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rather than place them in a government "warehouse," Treasury Secretary William Simon will put on public display a shotgun, a set of matched pistols and two other gifts he received from foreign dignitaries but "cannot keep" under a 1964 law. Simon, an avid gun collector, tried last month to pay the government the value of the gifts so he could keep them. He was turned down by Shirley Temple Black, the State Department's protocol chief.

Dial exceedingly fast

ROME (UPI) — If you dial 16 on a Rome telephone, a tape recording advises you the number to call to get the exact time has been changed to 161. If you dial 161, unless you do it exceedingly fast, the same recording interrupts you again after the first two digits.

Agnew not invited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew isn't invited to Jimmy Carter's inauguration. The Inaugural Committee said earlier this week that Richard Nixon and his family had been invited because protocol and tradition required it. Asked Tuesday if Agnew also had been invited, co-chairman Bardi Tirana said firmly "no."

California buys Volvo

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California inaugurated its gleaming, plush and virtually emission-free 1977 Swedish Volvo sedans into the government motor pool Tuesday, hoping to goad Detroit into producing a smogless American car. Air Resources Board Chairman Tom Quinn described the Model 244 Volvo, priced at $6,785 each and available only in California, as the "cleanest cars in the world," emitting one-tenth the pollution of similar sized 1977 U.S. automobiles sold in the state. It was the first time in the memory of state officials California has purchased foreign passenger cars in any number.

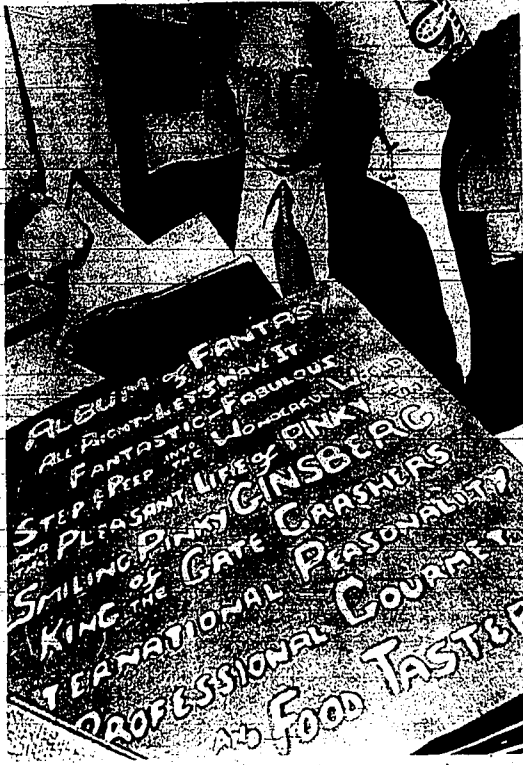

East German family escapes

LUEBECK, West Germany (UPI) — An East German family of three spent 17 hours in a rubber boat on the frigid waters of the Baltic Sea to escape to the West. West German border police reported Tuesday.

A couple and their five-year-old son were picked up by a West German vessel, transferred to a ship of the border police and brought to the Baltic port of Luebeck. Police said family members to leave the East German coast in the rubber boat without being seen by East German patrol boats.

Gunmen leave empty-handed

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — The four masked gunmen had timed the bank robbery to perfection and carried out their plan with precision. With pistols drawn, they disarmed the guard Tuesday at the Bank of Catania and rushed in just before closing time. They demanded that the safe be emptied. One problem: bank hours are not too rigid in Catania and the cashier had gone home early. He took the keys to the safe with him. The enraged bandits tied up several covering employees and fired a shot into the ceiling in frustration. They stormed out of the bank empty-handed.

Officially retires

PINKY Ginsberg leaps through small scriptbook in front of his "Album of Fantasy," which includes souvenirs of his gate-crashing days. In his modest apartment in the French Quarter, New Orleans, Ginsberg, known as the world's greatest gatecrasher, has officially retired but that didn't stop him from attending the PMA-Georgia Sugar Bowl game dressed as an armed guard. (UPI)

Security methods force gatecrasher to retire

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Hijackings, terrorist bombings and assassinations have forced Pinky Ginsberg, the world's greatest gatecrasher, to retire. "Right now, the only event I'll ever crash is the Olympics and they're getting hard," said Ginsberg, an uninvited guest at countless Superbowls, world fairs, inaugurations, coronations—and diplomatic receptions. Hyman "Pinky" Ginsberg, 72, surrounded in his dingy French Quarter flat by proclamations naming him honorary citizen of a dozen his successful crashes, said elaborate security procedures—particularly identity cards with photographs—have put an end to his gatecrashing days. "I've stopped crashing inaugurations because now they have orders to shoot to kill. That's not for me," he said.

Armed with a "press" sign he swiped from a soda machine and a camera slung around his neck, Ginsberg horned in on Richard Nixon's inauguration. "I was right up there with all of them," he said. "And I can prove what I say." Ginsberg, a balding man with fringes of gray hair, said he learned early he needed proof of his exploits and he always asked for a letter proving his crash after being exposed. He said he once bribed a Nazi officer to let him into a Berlin building in the early thirties for a chance to get Adolf Hitler's autograph. "Hitler asked me in German what I wanted and I said I wanted his autograph," Ginsberg said. "He started pushing bells and buzzers and the captain of the guards I bribed came in. I never got the autograph. I was happy to get out of Germany with my head on my shoulders." Despite tightened security, Ginsberg said gate-crashing is still relatively easy. "If I was 20 years younger I would still dress up as a fireman. That's one game they'll never stop," he said. "It's the most important gimmick. No one stops a fireman." Ginsberg said he crashes Sugar Bowl games at the Louisiana Superdome by dressing as a guard with a toy pistol strapped to his belt and carrying a sack full of rocks. "I tell them I have emergency change for the concession stands," he said. "Though retired, he said he did it again this past New Year's Day, using the same gimmick."

Lawyers to see Gilmore

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Lawyers armed with a copy of a deposing transcript in the Slater, Prison and Labor case under two gag orders prepared to question Gary Gilmore today about a killing for which he has not been tried, and about which he is unlikely to say a word. "Attorneys representing Utah insurance companies and the family of Max Jensen, whom Gilmore has admitted killing last July during a service-station robbery, obtained a court order directing prison officials to allow them to take depositions from the 36-year-old murderer." But the judge said content of any statements could not be made public. Another judge has ordered Gilmore's attorneys to say nothing about the Jensen case, including the depositions. But sources close to the case say Gilmore will probably not even say hello. "To the lawyers with their lists of questions," Gilmore admitted killing Jensen in letters to his fiancée and in an open letter asking opponents of the death penalty not to block his execution, scheduled at sunrise Jan. 17. But the sources said since Jensen has not been tried for killing his fiancée, Gilmore would be "foolish" to allow Gilmore to say anything about the case under oath, and would probably not even let the convict see the other lawyers.

Congress picks leaders, begins committee setup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 95th Congress is officially in business, and lawmakers started the nitty-gritty work today of organizing committees in time to start immediate work on Jimmy Carter's proposals after he becomes president Jan. 20.

A new set of leaders took over amid the traditional pomp and ceremony of opening day Tuesday that saw one surprise in the hierarchy.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee nudged the favorite, Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, by one vote — 19 to 18 — to "win" the Senate Republican leader's spot vacated by Hugh Scott.

Thomas "Tip" O'Neill was elected Speaker of the House and Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia was named Democratic leader in that body, and with families and friends looking down from the galleries, all 435 members of the House and 31 new or re-elected members of the Senate took the oath.

Opening day business out of the way, the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee went behind closed doors to start making assignments to the 21 standing committees of the House.

The 292-member Democratic caucus will take up its recommendations on Jan. 18, including the election of committee chairmen and certain subcommittee chairmen.

The Senate Rules Committee scheduled hearings today on a controversial proposal to reduce the 31 Senate Committees to 15, and also were to consider a proposal making it easier to cut off filibusters.

The organizing business took on added importance for Democrats with their heavy majorities as they geared for Carter's legislative program — mainly the jobs-creating proposal the president-elect promised would come to Congress before he takes office in two weeks.

Opening day saw introduction of a $4 billion bill for production works projects, designed to open up some 300,000 new jobs. The measure introduced in the House, has leadership backing and is expected to be worked into Carter's job plan which he will outline in a meeting in Plains, Ga., with Congressional leaders this week.

O'Neill told the House "our

SEN. HOWARD BAKER named GOP leader

the House floor, O'Neill also said "we must bolster public confidence in Congress by adopting and living by a tough code of ethics," an unspoken but obvious reference to the sex-scandals that rocked the House last year.

Byrd, who was picked by acclamation by the Democratic caucus after Sen. Hubert Humphrey withdrew at the last moment, pledged cooperation with Carter, but said the Senate also had its own responsibility to the nation.

"For the first time in eight years, the American government will not be a divided government," he said. "In some ways our task as Senate Democrats will be easier. In some ways it will be more difficult."

President Ford timed the start of the new Congress to propose individual and business tax cuts, a plan he said earlier he would submit before leaving office, but which is expected to be shelved by the Democrats until they get Carter's tax proposals.

Other opening day business included announcement that Ford would be received at a joint session Jan. 19 for his final State of the Union message, and that another joint session would be held Thursday, to go through the formality of counting electoral votes that certify Carter's victory in the Nov. 2 election.

CIA pick opposed

ONLY Times Service WASHINGTON — The leadership of the AFL-CIO attempted to dissuade President-elect Carter from appointing Theodore C. Sorenson as director of central intelligence last month, union officials and others familiar with the matter said Tuesday.

Asked to confirm that the trade union leadership opposed the appointment, Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the group, the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, said: "It is fair to say we weren't happy about it." He declined to elaborate.

However, according to other sources, Kirkland carried this message to Carter at his Plains, Ga., home on Dec. 17. They quoted Carter as saying: "I am in a bind. I had no options" other than to name Sorenson.

The president-elect reportedly went on to say that Sorenson, former special adviser to President Kennedy and now a New York lawyer, had been "the first to raise money for me in New York and the first to come out for me."

Sorenson's selection as the Carter choice for director of central intelligence was announced by the president-elect on Dec. 23.

Probe info leaked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Election Commission report to the Justice Department says FEC chairman Vernon W. Thomson may have illegally disclosed confidential information about a Tennessee campaign finance investigation.

John W. Murphy, a former general counsel of the FEC, submitted the report to the FEC on Dec. 21, and the five commissioners other than Thomson agreed to forward it without recommendation Tuesday to the Justice Department.

Murphy, who had announced his resignation earlier, left the FEC on Dec. 31.

A letter to Attorney General Edward Levi from FEC Vice Chairman Thomas Harris said Thomson "may have been involved—among others—in 'apparent violations' of the law forbidding disclosure of complaints to the FEC."

Thomson "categorically" denied any wrongdoing in the matter, saying he had cooperated fully with the investigation.

Fewer deliveries or 25¢ mail may be alternatives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The postal commission wants to know if you would rather make do with three mail deliveries a week instead of six, or pay 25 cents per stamp within the next eight years.

The new Commission on Postal Service must advise Congress by a. March 25 deadline on what it should do to drive the drastic changes suggested by the commission.

"Probably 40 per cent of the first class mail is going to disappear in the next decade," Executive Director David Blanks said in an interview.

Blanks now move money between each other electronically.

The big question is whether the public will pay the higher costs this volume loss will bring about, and whether they prefer to pay it in taxes, increased postage rates, or both, or prefer to make it up, with loss of some current services, Minton said.

The nine-member commission plans hearings in coming weeks in Washington and 17 other cities to hear from big mail users and small ones alike.

Congress also wants answers to immediate problems — whether to increase subsidies to meet Postal Service deficits — or resume setting mail rates by law instead of leaving it to a commission.

The rate problem became an immediate concern when a Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the Postal Service violated congressional intent by requiring first class mail to pay more than its share of postal costs.

The Postal Service Board of Governors, which will appeal, believes Congress intended to give favored rates to lower classes of mail because of such factors as the public's interest in low-cost distribution of newspapers and magazines and even advertising.

The board warned that higher rates would drive away first class mailers with an even greater burden in supporting the Postal Service — the opposite of the effect the court intended.

Minton shared the board's view.

Unlike first-class mail users, users of lower class mail have alternate ways to reach their customers. Magazines are now experimenting with private delivery systems, he said.

first priority must be to pull Americans back to work," and added that "in partnership with the new president, this new Congress faces a long agenda."

Ullman favors creating jobs

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee this week will urge President-elect Jimmy Carter to forego massive tax cuts and instead adopt a plan for creating jobs through multi-billion-dollar payroll supplements and investment incentives.

Committee Chairman Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., is among the congressional leaders scheduled to huddle with Carter in Plains, Ga., Friday to discuss Carter's program for bolstering the economy.

Ullman is opposed to a plan being pushed by some Carter advisers for a one-time, $15-billion tax rebate to stimulate the economy.

Ullman said Tuesday that he believes his job-creating plan "ought to come first" in any economy package.

Ullman said Carter and Congress ought to consider general tax cuts only if other proposals fail to provide sufficient stimulation.

subcommittee assignments from an average of 18 to 30 more than eight consolidate committee jurisdictions and equalize senators' workloads.

For example, the proposed energy committee would assume responsibilities now spread among 14 committees, one select committee, two joint committees and more than 40 subcommittees.

Stevenson said the reorganization plan is more far-reaching than the Senate's last restructuring of its committee system, which was undertaken in 1946.

A possible roadblock to approval of the plan began to take form when some freshman senators objected to being forced to wait until the Senate acted on the proposal before being given committee assignments.

Stevenson pushes changes

Chicago Sun-Times WASHINGTON — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., has moved forward his plan to make sweeping changes in the United States system of government, which he said would reorganize the executive branch of government, the plan authored by Stevenson and the Senate Select Committee on Committees, which he heads, would reorganize the way the Senate conducts its business.

The Stevenson plan even proposes a new committee on energy — just as Carter plans to create a new energy department.

The Senate gave its unanimous consent yesterday to have the plan — formally called Senate Resolution 589 — referred to the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, which instructions to report back by Jan. 19.

Stevenson was to be the lead-off witness at the Rules Committee's first hearing today and his presence at the hearing will dramatize one of the problems the reorganization plan is intended to combat.

That problem is overlapping committee duties. Stevenson has a simultaneous date in a banking committee hearing.

The reorganization plan would cut the number of committees from 21 to 15, reduce the number of senator's committee and subcommittee assignments from an average of 18 to 30 more than eight consolidate committee jurisdictions and equalize senators' workloads.

Jet control deal studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — British government plans to sell the Soviet Union a control system for engines that has apparent applications to the Russian Backfire bomber, according to Air Force sources.

The proposal involves a $17 million contract between British Aerospace, a British company, and the Soviet government, to design and develop an electronic control system — for the Kuznetsov NK144 turbofan-jet engine used on the twin-engine Backfire.

The Soviet bomber is seen by U.S. military authorities as a strategic threat. It has been missile now under development, the major obstacle to conclusion of a SALT II agreement with Russia, according to U.S. government sources.

Foreign spokesmen said they would have no immediate comment on the British proposal until they receive official notification.

The Lucas contract is ready to be placed before the International Coordinating Committee, otherwise known as COCOM, by Britain's delegate, according to embassy officials here.

Burley garbage collection rates for homes go up Feb. 1

BURLEY — Residential garbage collection rates in Burley are set to go up Feb. 1 with commercial rate increases to follow.

The Burley City Council Monday instructed the city attorney to draft an ordinance to raise the higher rates structure.

The residential increase is to go into effect with the first billing in February. The commercial rate is to be effective April 1 or when the new service becomes available, whichever comes first.

The new residential rate will be $3.50 per month, compared to the current $2.50.

The new commercial rates begin with a $13.10 per month for a single container picked up once a week. The current base rate is $12 per month.

The rate increases follow in the wake of the council's decision to meet the burden of garbage pickups with a new "rapid rail" system of collection.

The system involves specially equipped trucks and special plastic containers of 90 and 300-gallon.

The 90-gallon containers are designed for use where alleys are not feasible and can be rolled to curbside. In residential use, the 300-gallon containers are placed in alleys to be shared by two to four families.

Both have already been distributed in residential neighborhoods and collections are now being made with a leased truck.

The city has purchased two trucks, but they have not yet arrived. City Clerk E.E. "Bud" Bringer said commercial collections will be made under the new system once the city has two of the special trucks.

The city moved into garbage collections again after its contract collector, Teal

Sanitation Service, declared bankruptcy in October.

The new commercial rates to be set by ordinance set rates of $13.10 to $56.90 for one a week collection on one to five pick-upers. The range for two pick-upers for the same numbers goes from $21.60 to $91, while five collections would run from $47.10 to $193.

The council set a minimum change of 57 on all commercial establishments, even those sharing a single container.

In presenting the new schedule, Councilman James Henderson said, "It will bring us a nice little sum, which we need to maintain" the service and set aside funds for replacement in five years.

The $7 minimum for businesses sharing a container was decided on after Councilman Cloyd Taylor protested the $6.50 figure worked out by Bringer and presented by Henderson.

Taylor objected that two businesses sharing a container would pay a total of $13, while a business with a single container paid a dime more. He maintained those sharing a container should not pay less than half the single price.

"I want two shares,"

Councilman Garth Payne said in concurrence.

Taylor maintained that the shared price should be at least $7.50 each and continued to object when Henderson proposed $6.55. He argued that a widow in a residential area still had to pay full price for a container, though she might share it with several families, and it would be unfair to cut the commercial price in half for sharing.

Councilman James Roper proposed the $7 minimum and the council voted agreement, although the ordinance still must be drafted.

Taylor also questioned the use of the 300-gallon plastic containers for businesses, commenting that they were not part of the original plan.

City officials had said that metal containers would be used for many businesses, but Mayor Chuck Shaduck said he had the extra expense for replacing or modifying existing containers and the additional truck equipment were unnecessary expenses.

Taylor said he doubted that the plastic containers would hold up under use for heavy metal parts or the weight of a full load of raw garbage. As the owner of Price's Cafe,

Taylor added, he would "have to go to a compactor."

The new containers, round instead of square, hold 2 1/2 cubic yards. The existing metal ones hold either one yard or two yards, depending on the business requirements.

Henderson told the council that commercial establishments now bring in $83,063 per year. He said 2,400 residences pay $84,000.

Adding the new city billings will come up with more, Henderson said. "There are a lot of chiselers that we've come up with that aren't on here."

Bolles case writers to report soon

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A nationwide team of investigative reporters who came to Arizona after the carbon bombing of newsmen Don Bolles has grown in number and effort about crime in the state completed by March.

The original 18-member team has increased in size to "22 or 23" persons, according to Pulitzer Prize winner Bob Greene of Newsday, Long Island, N.Y., director of the task force of the Investigative Reporters and Editors Association.

Bolles, 47, an award-winning investigative reporter who was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize and specialized in exposures of questionable land deals, crime and political wrongdoing, was wounded fatally June 2 when his car blew up.

John Adamson, 33, a dog breeder, has been charged with murder in the case and jury selection is under way in Tucson in the second attempt to try him. The first attempt ended in a mistrial in Phoenix Oct. 21 when a judge ruled there was excessive publicity. The case was in recess Tuesday.

Greene, who has said "We're not working on the Bolles case — we're working on the total fabric," commented on the case in a telephone interview from Phoenix, where the team has set up headquarters in a hotel.

"It is fair to say the report should be controversial," he said. "Bolles was doing a lot of work on organized crime, possible relationships in the power structure, and political corruption, and those are the areas we are working on."

Greene said the team has received no threats during its investigation.

"We have been treated with incredible courtesy," he said. "There has been a consistent, friendly response from just about everybody we've run into."

"We have had superb cooperation from three or four of the best law enforcement agencies in the state to the extent that we have asked for their assistance. The various departments of city and state have been most helpful and cooperative."

There have been no threats, no nasty comments, no nasty letters."

The report originally was scheduled for completion this month, but Greene said he hopes the writing can begin in February and be finished early in March. He said the report will be "a series of stories, at least 20 articles" but that an abridged version is planned for distribution to news organizations that want it in that form.

Originally, the team represented 15 news organizations. But Greene said the group working for the investigative association, which has an estimated 200 members, has been increased by members from such areas as Mississippi, Oklahoma and Colorado.

"One reporter from New Mexico quit his job, said he didn't want to go and is working here," he said. Some of the reporters are working full-time on the investigation. Some are on assignment from their newspapers, and others are working on their vacation time.

Greene, a member of the association's Board of Directors, said the team also includes reporters from California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington, D.C., the state of Washington, Detroit, Arizona, Indianapolis, Boston, New York, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Ohio, Milwaukee, Reno and the Jackson Anderson group."

Fog-caused
POLICE dig for bodies of victims through the wreckage of a 19-vehicle pileup near Frostone, Italy, Tuesday. Hours after the crash, caused by this fog, the known death toll stood at 11 dead and 30 injured, 5 of them seriously. (UPI)

Heavy truck runs into stalled cars

FROSINONE, Italy (UPI) — A heavy truck smashed into a pileup of 19 stalled cars on the Rome-Naples Superhighway of the Sun Tuesday, killing 11 persons including 5 members of one family on their way to a Rome relative's funeral.

Police said at least another 25 others were injured, 5 seriously in the worst accident on Italy's superhighway that runs from one end of the nation to the other.

The deaths and injuries resulted from a heavy truck "crashing into 19 already stalled cars, including the one carrying four men and a woman into the funeral, turning them into a bloody mass of twisted metal and broken bodies."

The crash came on the fogshrouded Naples-Rome stretch of what is deceptively called the "Autostrada del Sole" ("Superhighway of the Sun"), where accidents are frequent.

Police said it all started with a minor collision between two cars.

Their owners were reviewing the damage when a third car smashed into theirs.

A fourth automobile broke and was hit by a truck. Moments later, a total of 14 automobiles, 4 trucks and a van had piled up.

The big truck that came last did the most damage, witnesses said.

"The impact was terrible," said Giuseppe Giaccone, driver of another truck. "Pieces of iron were flying everywhere. My first instinct was to run away."

It took police more than two hours to recover all bodies and rescue the injured.

A policeman said he took to a hospital one little girl, her eyes closed and her face disfigured, who clutched a doll in her arms.

The site of the crash, halfway between Rome and Naples, is in an Apennine valley notorious for its fog and lined with a smoke-belching small factories. Witnesses said they ran into a fog bank looking like "a big dark spot."

Police said 10 vehicles involved included one West German and one Dutch automobile.

The dead were not immediately identified, but all were in Italian-licensed vehicles — five in one car, three in another, one in a third, plus the truck driver and one man who died in a hospital.

The Homesteaders
On the same day that Abraham Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation — Jan. 1, 1863 — another landmark act took effect. It was the Homestead Act, under which settlers could acquire up to 160 acres of America's public domain for $1.25 an acre after six months' residence, or after five years' residence for a $15 filing fee. Under the act, more than 10 million families received 450 to over 248 million acres of public land in the western plains, prairies and mountains.

10% of Blue Cross groups' rates raised

BOISE (UPI) — In the last six months, Blue Cross of Idaho has raised rates in only approximately 10 percent of its enrolled groups. Dan L. Duncan, senior vice president, said today.

"One association group, operating on its own income and claims experience, had a 40 percent rate increase due to its unusually high claims-to-income ratio," Duncan said. "All other groups' rates that were raised during the last six months have averaged less than a 25 percent increase," he said.

Blue Cross of Idaho year-end reports show an increase in reserves for subscribers' future claims, he said.

"Recent news releases and television announcements have led some of our subscribers to believe that rates are being raised on a general basis and that the plan lost money in 1976," Duncan said. "This is not the case."

Mailmen file suit against dog owner

SPOKANE (UPI) — Two Spokane mailmen have filed suit against the owner of a dog they say viciously attacked them on the city's northeast side last summer.

Plaintiffs in the suit are John Kowzan and Edward Buck.

Both contend a dog owned by Michael Palley, Spokane, attacked them as they were attempting to deliver mail on two different occasions.

The plaintiffs said the dog would hide and then attack without warning. The suit seeks unspecified damages.

Snow machine users told roads 'taboo'

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Snow machine operators were reminded today to stay off public roadways.

Bonneville County Sheriff Blaine Skinner advised snowmobilers that by law they cannot operate their vehicles on a public road right of way.

Skinner said the machines pose a traffic hazard especially at night.

When riding across private lands snowmobilers should get the landowner's permission, he said.

Skinner said Bonneville County Sheriff's officers are ticketing snowmobilers for traffic offenses and for not displaying proper vehicle registration stickers.

TF planners table zone change bid

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night voted to table a zoning change application to allow a racketball facility on Falls Avenue.

After hearing support for construction of a racketball facility from eight residents here, the commission voted 3-2 to table the application of William Perkins and Lewis Rowland for a rezoning of the land from Residential-Low Density (R-L) to Residential-Professional (R-P).

However, Commission Chairman James Smallwood noted that even if the council allowed the zone change, there was a question as to whether a racketball facility would be allowed in such a zone.

A racketball facility is not mentioned as a permitted or conditional use in a R-P zone, so a zoning change would not help the residents anyway, Smallwood said.

Before the vote, Lewis Rowland, Twin Falls, told the commission he had received the support of the College of Southern Idaho for construction of the six-court facility across the street from the college at Quibby Street and Falls Avenue.

Eight persons voted their support for the facility, including Twin Falls Mayor Rick Knight and Twin Falls lawyers William Hollifield, Donald Roanyns and Greg Fuller.

Commission members discussed the possibility of allowing a profit-making recreational facility in a R-L zone. Commission members pointed out non-profit making recreational facilities are allowed in R-L and Residential-Medium (R-M) zones.

Commissioners voted 3-2 to recommend to the City Council that a "racketball-handball" facility be allowed as a conditional use in an R-M zone.

This apparently means the developers will need to request the council to change the zoning ordinance, and then comply with the zoning commission to change the zone of the 90,000 square feet of land from R-L to R-M. Next, the developers would apparently have to apply for the racketball facility to be allowed as a conditional use in an R-M zone.

TF council eyes wage proposal

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council discussed a proposed pay plan for city employees which is apparently less than the $100 per month "across the board" increase an employees' committee requested earlier.

The proposed pay plan, submitted for council discussion during a working lunch Monday, called for an average salary increase of from $20 to $50 per month for close to 200 city employees, City Councilman Steven Lincoln said. If adopted for 12 months, the proposed plan would increase the $2.5 million the city paid last year in wages and benefits by about 11 per cent. City Manager Jean Millar estimated.

However, he noted the council is only obligated to come up with a pay plan for the first nine months of this year. Beginning this fall, the city will switch to an October-to-October budget as is required by a recently adopted state law.

The proposed plan calls for the highest raises in the waste water treatment department. Lincoln said. These proposed raises range from about $30 to $175, according to Millar.

Lincoln called for the higher raises in the waste water treatment department to bring department salaries in line with those in other cities.

The reason for raising salaries of persons in the waste water treatment department is "to create incentive for them to stay with us," Councilman Christopher Falkington said.

Because of its highly sophisticated waste water treatment system, Twin Falls has become a training ground for jobs in larger cities where the pay is higher, Councilman H.E. Cheney said. In a study of salaries throughout the state, a council subcommittee found the largest discrepancies — in some cases as much as $200 — in the salaries of superintendents and assistant department heads, Lincoln said.

Therefore, the subcommittee recommended that the council change an "unwritten policy" of paying some department heads the same salary, Lincoln said.

Last year the fire marshal and police chief made the same salary, Millar said. The head of the parks, water distribution, water supply, street, airport and waste water department also made the same salary last year, he added.

Councilmen refused to release the proposed plan to the press, saying changes still had to be made.

The council is expected to take action before the end of the month, when new salaries will have to be paid.

Two months ago, a city employees' committee asked the council for a $100 per month "across the board" increase.

Marvin Morrison, chairman of the committee, said "employees are generally satisfied with the benefits they're getting," but not with their salaries.

The group is not seeking a percentage increase because "those on the low end of the pay scale aren't affected that well by percentage increases," he said.

The employees also requested an "incentive pay" — an increase in monthly pay of $25 after an employee works five years.

Fire destroys trailer home

BUIH — Fire destroyed a Melon Valley trailer home Tuesday morning. No one was injured in the blaze.

Bull Fire Department officials say the fire, which began near the stove in the kitchen of the Larry O. Smith home, had an "electrical cause."

Mrs. Bobbie Smith left the trailer with her baby and called the fire department from a neighbor's home at about 10 a.m. Smith was at work at the time and other children were in school.

Bull and Castelford trucks reached the fire 13 minutes after Mrs. Smith's call. Fire department officials say.

Oregon man joins TF staff

TWIN FALLS — Robert Lyle has joined the staff at the Magic Valley Alcoholism Rehabilitation Center as resident manager and counselor.

Lyle, who has been senior alcoholism counselor at the Buckley House in Eugene, Ore., for the past three years, replaces former resident manager, Dave Evans.

Evans resigned from his position at the rehabilitation center two weeks ago, giving no definite reason, according to Jim Taylor, the center's director.

He said Evans' resignation came before and had nothing to do with a protest last month by Synanon, a California-based rehabilitation program, alleging use of the name Synanon by the Magic Valley center.

Lyle joined the center's staff Sunday, Taylor said.

No law breaking intended: Truby

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — State School Supt. of Public Instruction Roy Truby said Tuesday he was not advising state school district administrators to break the law when he told them to delay filing civil rights forms.

Truby told Minidoka County school principals meeting in Twin Falls the Feb. 1 filing date required by the federal Office of Civil Rights (OCR) for new school sex and race report forms was a "totally unrealistic deadline."

He advised the principals to complete the forms "with deliberate speed and as soon as you possibly can," but he promised his office would take the brunt of any pressure from OCR over late filings.

Truby said his office had just received the forms and added, "by the time we get them out, it would be physically impossible to get them back" in time to meet the deadline.

Truby was also critical of the forms themselves, calling many of the 400 or more responses "a bunch of guff."

"Perhaps in the name of conservation we could throw the whole thing away and come out ahead," he said.

He noted the forms had been criticized by the national Council of Chief State School Officers and other educational groups and added that he was not alone among state superintendents in advising that the Feb. 1 deadline date be ignored if necessary.

Burgess at home Jan. 20

JEROME — J. Ernest Burgess, the 92-year-old Democrat who was invited to Jimmy Carter's inauguration, has decided to follow his daughter's advice and not make the journey to Washington, D.C.

When the retired farmer first received the invitation last Friday, he said he couldn't go, but by Monday he was "thinking it over." He said he knew it would cost a lot of money and he was "short of cash" but said also he "could raise the money."

But this morning, Burgess said his daughter has told him the trip would be too hard on him. He said he had received several telephone calls since the story was carried about his invitation.

The new openness promised in Carter's administration is being promoted even through invitations to his inauguration.

A printed card enclosed in Burgess' invitation goes into detail about the "new spirit." The invitation invites him to take part in two of the major events, the inaugural ceremony at 11:30 a.m. and the parade at 1:30 p.m., Jan. 20. The message on the accompanying card states, "You're going to see a new openness and a new spirit in Washington."

"We hope after you visit, you will take that spirit back to your home and help make it grow throughout this great country of ours," it says.

The communique also says a special inaugural guide will be sent to "help you plan your visit." The message said there are some inaugural events which will require special tickets for admission.

"We deeply regret that due to limitation of space this invitation cannot be honored at those events. We would like more than anything to be able to invite everybody to every inaugural event, but we know that you will understand and hope you will take advantage of the hundreds of things to see and do in Washington during Inaugural Week," the card said.

Burgess has six living children, including Keith Burgess, Twin Falls, and Majuel Burgess, Jerome.

New Idaho farms to get water from three sources

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Conservation, ground-water pumping and water storage projects would play equal roles in development of new Idaho farmland in the next 43 years under the State Water Plan.

The plan, adopted last week by the Idaho Water Resources Board, calls for development of a minimum 850,000 acres in the Snake River Basin by the year 2020.

Part of a series According to Warren Reynolds, chief water planner for the Department of Water Resources, about one-third of the new farmland would be developed through conservation, one-third through pump irrigation and one-third through new reservoir projects.

Of the 850,000 acres planned for new farmland development, 166,000 acres would be in the Magic Valley, mostly running east from Salmon Falls Creek into the Ruff River drainage, Reynolds said.

He said about three million acre feet of water will be needed to irrigate the new farmland, but only about 17 million acre feet will be lost in the process. The rest, he said, will go back into the river through return flow.

"The water plan foresees that conservation will lead to the savings of about one million acre feet of water, Reynolds said.

Most of this water, he said, would be saved through a switch by farmers from gravity irrigation to sprinkler irrigation.

It takes on the average about six acre feet to irrigate an acre of land by gravity, but only three acre feet to irrigate by sprinklers.

Savings of labor and water will make it economically beneficial for many farmers to switch to sprinklers, Reynolds said. Also, federal pressure for "water quality" and a growing sprinkler sales force will bring increased use of sprinklers, he said.

A water plan proponent for establishment of a state "water bank" is one means to encourage switching to sprinklers, Reynolds said. "The water bank could buy water from farmers which is no longer being used and sell the water either for new farmland development or other purposes. Water rights, he said, would have to be appraised, with age and storage being among the factors that would determine the market value.

Farmers could still sell their water privately, Reynolds said. He said the water bank essentially would serve as a "brokerage house." The water bank would keep a small portion of the sale and eventually become self-financing.

Besides sprinkler irrigation, concrete lining of irrigation canals and use of gated pipe in irrigation laterals are expected to help bring about the savings of one million acre feet of water, he said.

Development of both on-stream and off-stream reservoirs, Reynolds said, is expected to save another million acre feet which now flows down the Snake River during the spring.

On the Bruneau plateau, the plan foresees development of about 250,000 acres of land through off-stream storage projects.

The Department of Water Resources is looking at "as many as five or six" possible reservoir sites on the plateau, Reynolds said. During spring flood times, he said, water would be pumped out of the Snake River into the reservoirs for storage for summer irrigation.

Outside of the Bruneau, Reynolds said, the department is not planning other off-stream storage projects due to a lack of potential reservoir sites.

The department is looking at one dam on the Snake River to store water both for new farmland and to maintain power generation.

The "Shoestring" dam would be where Interstate 84 bridge crosses the Snake River at King Hill.

A reservoir at this location would store anywhere between 250,000 acre feet and one million acre feet of water, depending upon both geographical and economic considerations, Reynolds said.

One consideration, he said, is if the dam stored as much as one million acre feet, the Idaho Power dams at Bliss and Lower Salmon Falls would be "wiped out" by the water backup.

Reynolds said the department has had the Army Corp of Engineers drill core samples at the site to determine if the area is suited for a dam. By spring the results should be in and if they are positive the department can begin to look at other questions for the project, such as who pays, Reynolds said.

Reynolds said the department is not "actively looking" at any other storage projects on the Snake River or its tributaries at this time.

Groundwater pumping, also, would produce about one-third of the water for new land development, Reynolds said.

Any land lying over aquifers, particularly the Snake River Plain Aquifer, would be developed by ground water pumping, he said.

In its draft plan, Reynolds said, the Water Resources Board had planned a drop in the aquifer water tables from 150 to 200 feet in the eastern part of the state.

But, after substantial protests from pump irrigators in the area, he said, "the board decided to not advocate quite so much ground water development."

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices of stocks traded in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was off 0.57 to 887.20 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 155 to 72, among the 382 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

The market has been gripped by blue-chip profit taking the past two sessions. The Dow average now has fallen 13 1/2 points in the past year to about the 1,000 level.

The market's action indicated a change of investors lumped the gain in December on a major market thrust for the new year. The Dow average climbed 57 points last month in the third heaviest trading month in NYSE history.

Economic news has been good lately. The Commerce Department Tuesday reported a 1.1 per cent rise in factory orders, a 1.5 per cent jump in durable goods orders and a 2.8 per cent increase in factory shipments, along with a leveling off of investor accumulation.

Those reports indicated further the recent economic lull has ended.

Spuds, pork, grains up; late break drops cattle

(Country Stocker & Co.) CHICAGO — Mainline potatoes, grains and pork futures all closed higher Tuesday.

Live cattle, however, broke lower in the day and closed lower.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds closed 8 to 11 cents higher in a dull session with only 1,044 trades. A full opening was followed by 14-cent climb, back to new May. Then "trade selling" turned prices into a downward drift. But short covering and trade buying near the close reversed the market and boosted prices for the day's high. A slightly stronger cash market was the only fundamental news affecting the session.

Live cattle broke late in the day, hitting stops under chart support lines. A close below 39.50 basis February brought negative sentiment from technical analysts. The break came after futures failed to sustain an advance past 40.00, which "convinced" some price-showed February down 17 points. April of 15 and distant October down 30. Volume was estimated at 7,591 contracts.

Feeder cattle lost 10 to 55 points in more active trading, with 259 contracts exchanged. Sluggish demand at the cash level was construed negatively. Long liquidation was noted. Final prices were near the day's lows.

Live hogs scored slight gains but trade was in a narrow range, with nearby slightly higher and autumn months registering losses of 10 to 20 points. The back market closed near the day's lows on forward spreads and outside selling. Ranges were narrow; most active February recording only a 70-point spread. Volume was 3,658.

fresh selling in the final hour produced pressure and a close near the low end of trading ranges. Closing quotes were at 110 cents higher, distant February the leader. Volume was 4,513 contracts.

Recovery in wheat began when commission house and commercial support lines reached the day's highs late, at a quarter to a half cent above Monday's close. Some traders attributed to the late buying to a bean rally; others noted by which "convinced" some price-showed February down 17 points. April of 15 and distant October down 30. Chicago Board of Trade silver drew late support from soybeans, and closed from 1.4 to 2 cents higher. The bean rally halted a slight slide in the late minutes of the session after silver held the ground produced by early gains.

New York Sugar 11 lost about 25 points, May closing at 27 1/2, down from 28 1/2. The No. 12 domestic contract traded 54 lots. The world spot price was off 35 points at 7.3 cents a pound, with the domestic spot price down 35 points at 10.4 cents a pound.

New York Cattle futures were enthusiastic during the morning, then saw the metal drop to a third of its best advance when silver values sagged. The close was 40 points up on an estimated 45,496 lots.

Companies drop liability insurance as rates rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some consumers injured by the stimulus of a liability-to-cash-damage because a number of companies have dropped their liability insurance rather than pay increasing liability rates, a task force reported Tuesday.

A crisis does not yet exist but government action including legislation may be necessary, said preliminary findings published by the industry task force on Product Liability.

The study was ordered by President Ford's Economic Policy Board to advise Congress and the administration on what steps should be taken on the problem.

Initial findings were that the rates manufacturers must pay for liability insurance have risen "substantially" — approximately 50 percent in the last 18 months of the session after silver held the ground produced by early gains.

"The facts available suggest that the so-called product liability crisis is not a crisis in the sense that a large sector of industry cannot obtain product liability insurance or that the increased cost of such insurance has made a substantial impact on the price of many products."

"On the other hand it does seem clear that a number of smaller businesses are facing a difficult choice as to whether to go without product liability insurance or to purchase it at a sharply increased premium. This situation could become more severe in the future."

Undersecretary of Commerce Edward O. Hetter told a news conference, "I think that some legislation will be appropriate."

Filer matmen edge Solons in last bout

FILER — The Filer Wildcats won the last two matches by pins to nip the Gooding Senators 27-26 Tuesday night in a wrestling dual.

Making things even lighter was the fact that Gooding heavyweight Reed had an 80-pound on Filer's Williams in the third round — until Williams came up with a cowboy and pinned the Senator. Hill then placed on a team point.

Both teams advance to a one-day tournament in Buhl Thursday when they will compete with Buhl, Valley, Wendell, American Falls, Kimberly and Wood River.

Results of the matches, Filer men listed first, include 100 pounds, Laker defeated Pearson 13-0; 127, Olson defeated by B. Johnson 9-7; 141, Dill pinned Fredericksen 12:1. Metcalf won by Lloyd 7:4; 128, Schmalz defeated Short 12:9; 134, Blass defeated by Johnson 6-0; 140, Gines pinned by Reed; 147, Williams defeated Wilson 6-0; 157, Kaster defeated Paoli 9-6; 169, Crown defeated by Wolfe 12-0; 186, Silver pinned Edwards, and heavyweight, Williams pinned Reever.

Shoshone girls top Kimberly by 32-23

KIMBERLY — The Shoshone Indians came up with their best scoring effort in the final period Tuesday to down the Kimberly girls 32-23 Tuesday night.

Shoshone was consistent at eight points per period but that wasn't providing much breathing space and Kimberly was only four down going into the final eight minutes.

But while Shoshone was managing 10 points, Kimberly could pick up only three.

Kimberly's Jayvees remained undefeated in the preliminary 19-9.

Buhl's wrestlers beat Valley 40-24

EDEN-HAZELTON — Buhl's wrestling Indians won everything from 112 pounds through 155 Tuesday night in defeating Valley 40-24.

The teams have rematch slated at Buhl Thursday night.

Results of the matches, Valley men listed first, include 98 pounds, Harrol pinned Lauda; 105, Stewart won by torkle; 112, Hensley pinned by Wolf; 119, Childers pinned by Bartlett; 126, Silmette defeated by Fullerton; 132, Cryder defeated by Hopkins; 138, Black defeated by Stutzman; 145, J. Sorenson pinned by Wagner; 155, B. Dixon defeated by Monroe; 167, C. Dixon pinned Roberts; 185, Sorenson pinned Eckert, and heavyweight, Day pinned by Cottrell.

Gooding girls topple Bliss 32-15

GOODING — Gooding took an edge in a free-throw shooting contest in the first half and then zipped away in the third period to defeat Bliss girls 32-15 Tuesday night.

Both teams showed the effects of the holidays, playing raggedly and committing a lot of fouls. Gooding hit 40 per cent from the line while Bliss managed a meager 20 per cent — and that helped the Senators into an 11-5 intermission edge.

Pope and Arriga teamed up for 10 points early in the third quarter to settle things.

Gooding remains home Thursday night, entertaining the Twin Falls Jayvees at 7 p.m.

Unbeaten Indians drop Filer 36-22

BUHL — Karla Meier scored 13 of Buhl's 15 first-half points and sparked the Indians to a 36-22 decision over Filer Tuesday night.

In taking their 11th straight victory, the undefeated Indians locked with Filer, now 9-3. In a good defensive battle in the first half, but Buhl held away 15-8 in intermission and Filer never got closer than seven as Meier ended the night with 24 points.

Filer took the preliminary 16-17.

Buhl travels to Burley Thursday and invades Mountain Home Friday.

Time seems ripe for Rams and Namath to merge goals

LOS ANGELES — Joe Namath justified the Super Bowl nearly a decade ago and he'll always be part of the montage. But the best he can do this week is appear here on "The Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World of the Super Bowl." A TV show on the NBC network Saturday night, his teammates will be Jaclyn Smith and Kate Jackson, the two brunettes from "Charlie's Angels." But even Joe Namath would prefer to have other teammates Saturday night. He would prefer to be playing in the Super Bowl itself Sunday, perhaps the only sane spectacle of a mad, mad, mad, mad week, and maybe next year he will be playing in the Super Bowl — if he and the Los Angeles Rams can negotiate an understanding.

Over the last two years, Joe Namath and the Rams have been linked by Hollywood gossip as if they were an "item." But the "item" never materialized. Now they appear to be an "item" whose time has come. Joe Namath no longer needs the New York Jets and the Jets no longer need him.

"We'll be talking to the Rams," says Al Ward, the Jets' general manager. "And maybe we can do something this time."

Both the Rams and Joe Namath also sound as if they want to do something — the Rams because they have lost three consecutive National Conference championship games. Joe Namath because he wants to prove he is still Joe Namath.

"After every season," says Don Klosterman, the Rams' general manager, "we evaluate our team to see where we can improve."

Throughout the National Football League, many critics believe that the Rams need improvement at quarterback. They have three quarterbacks this season — Pat Haden, James Harris and Ron Jaworski — but when a team has three quarterbacks, it usually has none. Pat Haden, the semirookie from Oxford and the World Football League, is still a prospect; James Harris is still a risk. Ron Jaworski is still ... aged.

"People that I've talked to," Klosterman says, "think that all Joe Namath needs is a good supporting cast."

That's what Joe Namath thinks. To prove it, he might be willing to accept a salary somewhat less than the $500,000 to which he has become accustomed. During the final weeks of the season, he was talking about his future.

"There are certain things," he said, "I do for less money because I want to do them."

Wanting to play with a Super Bowl team is one of those certain things. Not that Joe Namath would play for free. But by agreeing to accept substantially less than his Jets' salary, he would endear himself to both fans and teammates. Here is one

Tarkenton, Stabler pronounce themselves physically fit for Sunday's super bowl

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton and his counterpart, Ken Stabler of the Oakland Raiders, sounded like carbon copies of each other Tuesday as they pronounced themselves physically fit after injuries and predicted victory in Sunday's Super Bowl XI at the Rose Bowl.

"My leg is 100 per cent fine," said Tarkenton, who had problems passing against Los Angeles in the NFC title game a week ago. "I could have used another week's rest before the Los Angeles game, but at this time of year you have to play with the little hurts. I have no restrictions in my leg. I had some stretched tendons and hyper-extension and it was throwing off my passing, but the cartilage and ligaments are all right and I'm 100 per cent fit."

"I have little pain in my ribs," said Stabler, who had to be helped from the field late in the Raiders' upset of Pittsburgh in the AFC title game when he was racked up by Steeler linebacker Jack Ham.

"I threw last week a couple of days but not real hard. I didn't have the usual zip on the ball but I'm not worried about it. There's still a little bit of a twinge in the rib area but I don't expect any problems Sunday. I expect it to clear up completely in the next couple of days."

"Tarkenton, who has been the losing quarterback in two of the Vikings' record three Super Bowls losses, predicted things would go differently this time.

"The only pressure is in the press," he said testily. "They're more concerned than we are. Let's face it — the national press has overlooked us. We have been in three of the last four Super Bowls and the one we missed was on a controversial play."

"We don't have an Al Davis (Oakland managing general partner) telling people what a dynamic organization we have. We don't have a Carroll Rosenbloom (Los Angeles owner) going around telling how dynamic his team is. We have Bud Grant, who is a low key person. We have a good organization."

Stabler also said the Raiders, the most successful team in the National Football League over the past decade but never a Super Bowl winner, would emerge victorious on Sunday.

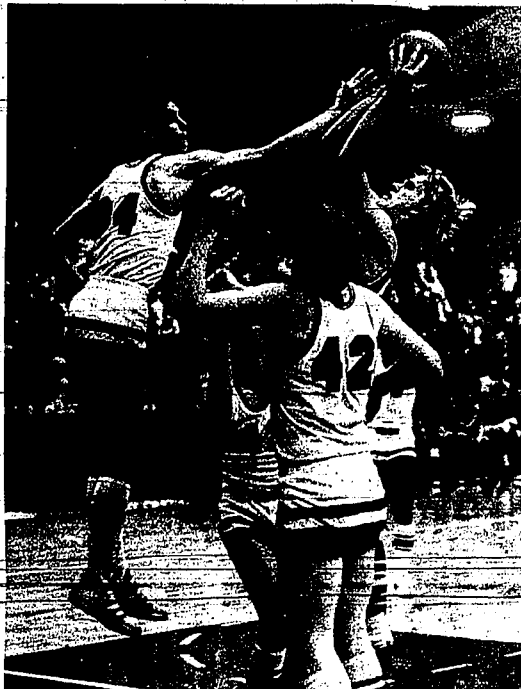

"We've got the monkey on our back again," he explained. "Last week we got it off but it's here again. The only way to get it off for good is to win Sunday and that's exactly what we intend to do. I like this team. We're capable of winning the whole thing and I honestly believe we will win it."

"Of course, we can't turn the ball over, we can't have penalties, we can't have mistakes. All year long we've made adjustments during the game. I can't predict whether we'll run a lot or throw a lot. We'll just see what they're doing and then do what we have to do to win."

Both clubs appeared loose as they met the press for the first time. The Minnesota players, who have been generally restrained in preparing for their three previous Super Bowls, joked and clowned for photographers at their Long Beach practice site as did the Raiders, who were working out at the University of California at Irvine.

"We have this mystery image," said Raider guard George Buchter. "A lot of people consider Al Davis the Howard Hughes of pro football. Actually, we're a good group of guys who like to have fun. I think people will find that out this week."

Gorringe, Swan spark Oakley past Hansen

HANSEN — Smooth Greg Gorringe and Bill Swan combined to pace the Oakley Hornets past Hansen 55-43 in the Magic Valley Conference opener for both teams Tuesday.

Gorringe's 12 points helped but his assist passing, particularly to Swan, and Swan's backboard dominance and 17 points give the Hornets the edge.

Oakley, heavily favored, found a different Hansen team than seen before — Christmas waiting for them. The Hornets slowed the ball down and worked deliberately — handling the slowdown.

The change kept them in the game through the first three quarters — when they trailed only by six — and only the rebounding of Swan prevented them from actually leading. But Swan, who has averaged the fourth part, keeping the ball alive on the offensive boards to account for several Oakley buckets and seldom giving Hansen more than a shot per downcourt trip.

Hansen collected the opening bucket but that was his only shot. Greg Gorringe immediately for Oakley and Hansen then went to its deliberate game. A missed shot resulted, however and Rory G connected for the Hornets.

Smith's field goal a little later gave Oakley a 6-3 lead and Coach Morganthal was planning a complete offensive stop, the lead was too far away to at least not try for a bucket.

Immediately Oakley went into a zone defense to counteract the slowdown play and that set the stage for the first half. Oakley had one and three-point leads over the rest of the first quarter and three times in the second period moved up by six. Twice Hansen gunned back to within two and was four down at intermission.

Hansen switched to a press in the third quarter and got an even break. Twice it stole the ball for crumples and twice Oakley broke it for easy points by Swan.

The "big" break of the night came late in the third quarter when Swan hit a field goal, which fouled and missed the free throw. Oakley rebounded and Gorringe connected on a jumper that netted a four-point play and a 38-30 advantage.

Gorringe opened the fourth period with four points and his first 10-point saved in the game. Jerry Lockwood pulled Hansen back to within six but Lance McIntosh then shook loose for six straight Oakley points — four on the back end of the press — and that closed out the upset bid.

Hansen took the preliminary 48-40.

Looming obstacle

BOTTLED UP, Hansen's Jerry Lockwood finds a lot of defense in front of him, in the form of Oakley's Swan, as he tries for a short jumper Tuesday night. Hale of Oakley is in foreground.

Judge vetoes dismissal motion

CHICAGO (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr denied a motion for dismissal of Charles O. Finley's damage suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Tuesday and ordered the defense to proceed with its case.

Presentation of evidence on behalf of Finley ended. Peter Bleakley, Kuhn's attorney, ruled for dismissal and was denied.

Finley's suit rests on his contention Kuhn was abusing his authority in halting the sale of outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rolfie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $2 million, and of pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

At one point in the afternoon proceedings McGarr indicated that it might be within the power of the commissioner to decide whether the sales would have been in best interests of baseball.

He added, "The commissioner, I suppose, probably has the power to decide what is or is not in the best interests of baseball, so it becomes a legal issue only if there is a capricious abuse of his discretion in any area where he has authority."

Woodward Livingston, attorney for the Boston Red Sox, also moved for dismissal of the one-count-in-Finley's suit which sought $2 million damages from the Red Sox because Kuhn overruled the sale of Rudi and Fingers to Boston.

McGarr also denied that motion, although he indicated there was no chance that Finley would receive an award of damages against the Red Sox.

Another part of Finley's suit, filed for $1.5 million from the New York Yankees in return for pitcher Vida Blue, McGarr commented it appeared that deal could go through. However, Livingston pointed out that Finley no longer had proper rights to Rudi and Fingers and hence could not sell their contracts to the Red Sox.

In earlier testimony, Finley's attorney, Neil Papiano, read depositions from general manager Dick O'Connell of the Red Sox and Jerold Hoffberger, chairman of the board of the Baltimore Orioles.

Both said they did not believe that Kuhn had the authority to veto the sale of the "three" players. O'Connell said he believed the Red Sox were obligated to pay the $2 million even though the players did not report.

O'Connell said he thought the purchase was "in the best interests of the Boston club and that was all I was worried about. I had qualms, but I thought other people should have qualms too about letting those players go."

It was at that point that McGarr made his observation about the authority of the commissioner.

McGarr added that whatever authority is held by the commissioner, "all of it revolves around, the (major league) agreement, the interpretation of it, the context in which it was drafted, what people thought it meant, what the users actually do mean."

"That's the legal issue in the case."

Selection of Jet coach 'easy'

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Never was the selection of a coach more simple. Walt Michaels was simply everybody's choice to become the coach of the New York Jets.

"It was a strange selection of a head coach," said Jets' General Manager Al Ward Tuesday after naming the 47-year-old Michaels the team's seventh head coach. "It was as much an election as a selection. And I'm not just talking about the board of directors, but also the players, the people in the organization, the media and the fans. There is no question that he was a nearly unanimous choice."

Thus Michaels, the Jets' defensive coordinator last season, achieved the position he had sought twice before without success. He succeeds Lou Holtz, who resigned one week before the season ended to accept the head coaching position at the University of Arkansas.

Michaels, an assistant coach with the Jets from 1963 through 1972, takes over a team that suffered its second straight 3-11 season. He becomes the team's fifth head coach in the past two seasons, although two of his predecessors (Ken Shipp and Mike Holovak) handled the position on an interim basis.

The Jets signed Michaels to a three-year contract estimated to be worth about $60,000 a year. They also gave Ward a new three-year contract and expanded his duties to include the overall operation of the team. In a third move, the club's board of directors appointed Leon Hess as acting president, succeeding Phil Iselin, who died last Tuesday.

"I accept the challenge of being head coach and expect our staff and players to be equally prepared for the task," Michaels said at a press conference at the Jets' training complex at Hofstra University. "I've known the owners a long time. They know what it takes to produce a winner and they are with Al Ward and me in this challenge."

Ward said he had about 40 hours of discussion with Michaels about the job and did not talk to any other candidates. The announcement was delayed by Iselin's death last week, Ward added.

"I would say," says Walsi, "that Joe would be worth at least what the Rams paid their three quarterbacks this season."

Surprisingly the cost of the Rams quarterbacks this season was less than $200,000 — $55,000 to Hayden with his bonuses, $100,000 to Harris, $27,000 to Jaworski with a 10 per cent cut for exercising his option clause. Of the three, Hayden is the only one likely to remain. Jaworski apparently hopes to sell his services as a free agent after his May 1 liberation. Co-existing with Hayden would not be a problem for Joe Namath. He co-existed with Richard Todd on the Jets this season.

Joe Namath's transition to the Rams also would be eased by the presence of Chuck Knox, the Rams' coach who was once the Jets' offensive line coach, and Ken Meyer, the Rams' offensive coordinator who was once the Jets' offensive coach.

Emotionally, playing for the Rams would provide a rebirth for Joe Namath after seven seasons in the Jets' dilemma. Not since the Jets qualified for the American Football League playoffs in 1969, the season after their Super Bowl III conquest, have the Jets been in contention for the playoffs. Usually they've been virtually eliminated before their Shea Stadium opener after three or four road losses. As a result, Joe Namath hasn't had any reason to get excited by football. When the Jets were winning, he used to kick the air when he missed a receiver or jump up and down when he completed a touchdown pass. But in recent seasons, those emotional reactions never surfaced. Joe Namath needs a reason to care about winning again. And the Rams would provide a reason.

Namath's ego also needs to be stimulated. O.J. Simpson has surpassed him as a pro football's most popular personality. Bert Jones surpassed him as pro football's most exciting quarterback.

Only the Rams can provide that ego stimulation. Joe Namath doesn't belong in Denver or Houston or New Orleans; he belongs in New York or Los Angeles where the scene suits his style.

College women coaches cut costly recruitment

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women voted Tuesday to sharply limit, costly, high-pressure recruiting of women high school athletes.

The move was described by supporters as an effort to shield prospective women college athletes from "pressure," but opponents warned the action could run afoul of federal antidiscrimination laws.

The 50-member AIAW, formed in 1971, governs women's athletic programs across the country much like the National Collegiate Athletic Association does for men's athletes.

The 206-145 vote altered current procedures which restrict formal, high-cost recruiting but permit individual women's coaches to undertake travel and recruitment at their own expense — in contrast to men's recruitment programs, which in most cases are funded.

Christine Grant, women's athletic director at the University of Iowa and a backer of the recruitment limitations, said there were scattered complaints around the country that some women's coaches were being required to recruit on their own time and with their own money, possibly in violation of federal equal pay protections.

"There are quite a few coaches in women's athletics who are being pressured," she said.

USE doesn't fear top ranking

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — "I don't think being No. 1 will affect our players from an overconfidence standpoint," said University of San Francisco basketball coach Bob Galliard, "but it will make a difference to our opponents."

Galliard's top-ranked and 15-0 Dons open West Coast Athletic Conference — at Portland University — Thursday night and at Seattle University Saturday.

Players judging super bowl teams reach opposite winner conclusions

By BILL GLEASON
Chicago Sun-Times

LOS ANGELES — There have been 10 Super Bowls played for the record books.

Not one bit of these 10 captured the imagination of the knowledgeable football fan as Super Bowl XI has. The game to be played Sunday in Pasadena's Rose Bowl has what is being over-the-decade — intrigue.

Some people might argue that Super Bowl III, Jets vs. Baltimore, was as intriguing as a Hitchcock movie. If you think that way, your memory is strictly post-game. Before the game Joe Namath was one of 117 persons in the nation who dared to talk about the possibility of a Jets' victory.

There are two assumptions that Oakland vs. Minnesota that have the buffs studying statistics as assiduously as horse players pore over the racing form: These are the assumptions: — Oakland's 3-man defensive front will not be adequate to stop the running of Minnesota's Chuck Foreman.

— Oakland, which ran successfully against Pitt-Spencer's mighty defense, will run all day against Minnesota because every team runs on Minnesota.

— Oakland's 3-man defensive front will not be adequate to stop the running of Minnesota's Chuck Foreman.

— Oakland, which ran successfully against Pitt-Spencer's mighty defense, will run all day against Minnesota because every team runs on Minnesota.

Shreveport, La. Nobody in the National Football League knows more about Raiders and Vikings than do middle linebacker Rives, fullback Harper and their teammates with the Chicago Bears.

This is how the Super Bowl contestants are seen by two men who know that Oakland and Minnesota are tough to beat: Rives on Oakland's 3-man front — "Those three guys did a pretty good job all year. If they hadn't they wouldn't be in the Super Bowl. Obviously, the weakest part of the Oakland defense, especially against the run, is not having the fourth man on the line. If the four linebackers don't have a good game, the Raiders will have a hard time stopping Foreman. The linebackers are the key to the 3-man front."

Rives on Minnesota's defense — "If Oakland doesn't get its running game going, the Raiders are going to have a long afternoon. Everybody who played against the Vikings, including us, has proven that they can be run against. But it remains to be seen if Oakland has the type of running backs who will be effective. The Raiders backs are good but not great."

Rives on Oakland's double-zone — "If the Raiders double-cover Foreman and White on long passes, that puts a linebacker on Foreman. You have to stop Foreman to stop the Vikings."

Foreman on Oakland's 3-man front — "I'd hate to be the linebacker to cover Foreman man-to-man. Another question is whether the 3-man front can get to Tarkenton. I don't see how any team could get to him with three men rushing."

Foreman on Oakland's defense — "I'd love to be calling defenses against him. I'd have to blitz him once in a while. We blitzed with a four-man front. Harper on Oakland's 3-man front — "Minnesota has a tremendous running game, but that 3-man front is strong and quick. They have the linebackers ranging all over the place. I think Chuck will have a tough time running against Oakland."

Foreman on Oakland's 3-man front — "The 3-man front presents unusual problems. Basically, I had trouble learning to read the linebackers. On almost every play one of the Oakland linebackers will be coming. Harper on Minnesota's defense — "My opinion is that the Raiders will have a good day running. You can run the Vikings if you run straight at 'em. I did well against Minnesota — about 160 yards in two games. Walter Payton must have had 260 yards against them."

Foreman on Oakland's double-zone — "We call it double twin safety coverage. We had such good runs against them, they only used the double twin a couple of times."

Patriot rookie will pull for Oakland win — but only 'sorta'

BOSTON (UPI) — New England Patriots cornerback Mike Haynes, back in the region to receive his fourth major rookie of the year award, said Tuesday he will be rooting half heartedly for the Oakland Raiders in Sunday's Super Bowl.

Honored previously by UPI and two national sports weeklies, Haynes received the Bert Bell Trophy in a joint news conference sponsored by the Newspaper Enterprise Association and Shulton Inc.

The 23-year-old former All America from Arizona State said he "really would have enjoyed going against (Minnesota's) NFC Rookie of the Year) Sammie White — you know, like rookie of the year against rookie of the year.

"Now, I don't know who's going to win the Super Bowl but I'm going with Oakland just because they're from our conference. Yeah, I still do have some resentment against the Raiders, but I'm rooting for the AFC, more or less."

The "more or less" was the upshot. Haynes declined to say his team would have beaten Minnesota in the Super Bowl but implied the Patriots would have been the Vikings' opponent if they had beaten the Raiders in the opening round of the playoffs.

Without discussing the officiating that helped Oakland trip the Patriots, 24-21, Haynes said, "I don't think Oakland should be there. We should be there. Once I saw that Pittsburgh played the AFC championship game without Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier, I felt we should be in the Super Bowl.

But there always is next year for the finest cornerback, who was second in the AFC with eight interceptions and 45 punt returns in his first pro season. He felt the Patriots, 11-4 this season, "will be in the Super Bowl next year."

"I thought we had a chance even before the start of the season, as long as we got a few more good players and some breaks. Next year we won't need breaks."

"I don't think next year's going to be any tougher for me personally because I will have had a year's experience. And the best of the guys will have been together one more year. I know we have a chance for the Super Bowl."

Haynes, the fifth choice in the 1976 National Football League draft, led a shoe-in for the NEA-Shulton award, outdistancing Cincinnati running back Archie Griffin by a 2-1 margin.

Brewers sign relief hurler

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday signed reliever Ken Sanders, a pitcher who had his greatest years with the Brewers in the early 70s.

The Brewer's top reliever last season, Danny Fricella, died during the holiday weekend in a dune buggy accident in Phoenix.

Sanders, 35, spent last season with the New York Mets and Kansas City Royals. He pitched only three innings for the Royals after being sold to them Sept. 17 but for the Mets he appeared in 31 games. For his 47 innings of relief work for the Mets he had a 1-2 record, a 2.87-ERA and gave up 16 runs.

Five revelers arrested in Burley

BURLEY — Burley police arrested five people for involvement in fights over New Year's Eve.

Four of them were arrested about 11 p.m. Friday after an altercation in the street at the intersection of 23rd Street and Almo Avenue. All were listed from Rupert.

Ronald Lewis, 24, and Dincer Lewis, 24, were charged with disturbing the peace. Morris Maier and Dorothy E. Morrison, 31, were charged with disturbing the peace, resisting arrest and assault on police officers.

Burley police officers Stuart, Robinson and Paul Hanson were struck while breaking up the fight and were treated for minor injuries.

John Dirksen, no address listed, was arrested shortly after midnight at the Ponderosa Inn on a charge of disturbing the peace. Police said Dirksen was involved in a fight in the lounge area.

Boy, 15, held in California family murder

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — The 15-year-old son of a prominent orthodontist shot his father and two sisters to death and critically wounded his mother, the San Joaquin County sheriff's office reported today.

Matthew Opdahl, a sophomore on the water polo team at Tokay High School, Lodi, was held by juvenile authorities on three charges of murder and one of attempted murder.

Authorities said they were not yet able to determine what touched off the shooting at the home of Dr. M. Darril Opdahl, who has a successful dental practice in Stockton. They said the youth apparently went berserk.

The boy called Stockton police shortly before midnight Monday, reporting a shooting at the home. Police related the information to the sheriff's office which has jurisdiction in the community of Moraga north of the city, which lies in California's central valley.

Deputies found the bodies of Susan, 19, and Carol, 18, in an upstairs bedroom.

Dr. Opdahl, 43, and his wife, Patricia, also 43, were lying critically wounded in a bedroom downstairs. They were rushed to a hospital, where Opdahl died early today. Mrs. Opdahl was in critical condition from bullet wounds.

Opdahl was known as a devoted father to his children. He was past president of the North Stockton Rotary Club.

Susan Opdahl graduated last June from Tokay High School where she was a member of the honors band. Her sister, Carol, was a senior this year.

The two girls and the parents had all been shot with a handgun which was found at the scene when Matthew surrendered. There was no evidence of a struggle, according to Sheriff's detective commander Arch Sheffield.

2 bombs defused in Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Police said Tuesday they found and defused two time bombs 15 minutes before they were set to go off at the ROTC building at Puerto Rico University but refused to link them to the statehood controversy.

One police official who asked not to be identified said the bombing attempts appeared to be the work of "several persons (who) are bent on creating problems for the new government and the problem of the bombs has begun already."

On Sunday, Carlos Romero Barcelo was sworn in as Puerto Rico's new governor and anonymous telephone callers threatened a bomb campaign to coincide with his new administration.

President Ford's surprise announcement he would ask Congress to make Puerto Rico the 51st state in the union divided the island and Romero Barcelo, although a pro-statehood advocate, avoided mentioning the subject in his inaugural address. But he said afterwards the issue would have to be taken to a plebiscite.

Police sources declined to link the bombing attempts directly with the statehood issue. There is a strong feeling for independence on the island and another faction wants the island to retain its commonwealth status.

The explosives division of the San Juan Police Department declined to talk about the investigation into the bombings and refused to allow photographers to take pictures of the devices.

However, Wilbur Santiago, chief of the explosives division, said the bombs were set to go off at about 8:45 a.m. Monday when the ROTC cadets were to start classes. A security guard noticed them and called in bomb experts, who defused them 15 minutes before they were set to go off.

"Our agents who intervened in the operation risked their lives, but everything came off okay," Santiago said.

Police spokesman said the bombs, each 20 inches long, contained a powerful commercial explosive and were connected to a battery and a timing device with an 80-foot cable.

The ROTC building is across the street from the University of Puerto Rico's main campus in the Rio Piedras section of San Juan.

Hailey home entered, robbed

HAILEY — The owner of a home in the Butters Subdivision north of Hailey reported burglars recently took about $1,000 in goods from the house.

Irving Steers was away from his home for about a week during the Christmas and New Year's holiday, according to Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler. When he returned, he discovered burglars had broken into his home through the front door and stolen six rifles and handguns, some cameras and a pottery vase.

The case is now under investigation, Drexler said.

"Thank You" SALE

Clip out the $5 Cash Rebate Coupon and bring it to Smith's this week. If your purchase totals $50 or more, we'll give you $5 cash in exchange for the coupon. It's our way of saying "Thank you for shopping Smith's Food King".

Thank You for shopping our MEAT DEPT.

A message from Dee Smith

A year ago, we announced "The New Smith's Food King" supermarkets without trading stamps, but with lower prices on a storewide basis.

Then we introduced a number of customer-oriented services including:

1. A Customer Advisor Department, headed by Carolyn Dunn, to provide meaningful information, recipes and follow-up on customer suggestions and make us more responsive to your needs.
2. Customer Centers in every store for your convenience.
3. Store Directories in your shopping cart, and
4. Coupon Exchanges, to save you money.

Smith's is the only locally-owned major food chain left in this area. Our company is still a family business, which depends on the support of friends and neighbors to make it successful. Your response to our new program has been enthusiastic, and I want you to know how much we appreciate your support.

The best way I know to say "Thank You" is to have a "Thank You Sale" with unusually good values throughout the store, and something more: a $5 cash rebate if your bill totals $50 or more. That's a discount on top of a discount, so I hope you'll be able to take advantage of our Thank You Sale this week.

We really do want to be your favorite store.

TF teen old hand at show biz

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS - Ron Piercey, 17 years of age, is an old hand at show business. When he was 13 he began making public appearances as a ventriloquist with his "dummy," Danny. He won a number of awards and has been in demand for programs before service and social organizations, has appeared in many school assemblies and won awards in various contests.

for young talent. At the age of 14 he won first place in a Twin Falls County Fair talent contest sponsored by a local radio station. Ron has just finished making a new member of his family, a happy version of King Kong named Tyrook. It will join Danny, a larger mannequin named Winchell and Pinkie, a female clown and the marionette clown Ron uses in his various dialogues.

His services are generally in high demand during the holiday season, although he said this has been a slow season for him. His services are generally in high demand during the holiday season, although he said this has been a slow season for him. Ron says there really is no "throwing of the voice" in ventriloquism.

"I think people are surprised that I can do it with so little lip movement and I usually get a lot of good response from the audience," he said. Young Piercey wants to go into television when he finishes school but said he will probably need lots of time to achieve his goal.

SENSITIVE AND SAD

Teen grieves

DEAR SENSITIVE: If more people would identify as you have with the cruelties and injustices of the minorities among us, we would be a better society. You don't have to become an "actress" to express charity and love. Don't be sad, dear. I think your sensitivity is beautiful.

DEAR ABBY: I was in my big brother's room looking for something when I found some contraceptives. Should I tell my Mom or not? My brother and I are very close and I don't want to see him get into any trouble.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: If you are old enough to recognize contraceptives, you are old enough to know that he is obviously sexually active, but doing his best to stay out of trouble. Keep your mouth shut.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to love a man but not be able to live with him? We've been married for six years, and in that time we've had an average of one fight a week. And I don't mean squabbles. I mean real fights. Our personalities clash. I seem to bring out the worst in him, and before I know it, he's yelling at me, besting me and threatening to leave me. I've tried everything. I've even gone to a marriage counselor. (He won't go.) I've tried keeping quiet and refusing to fight back, but that only makes him madder.

DEAR MISERABLE: Yes, it's possible to "love" a man you're not able to live with. But it's my opinion that a kind of "love" that keeps you coming back for more punishment is a poor trade-off and a miserable way to "live." But it's your life and your decision.

RONNIE Piercey, 17-year-old ventriloquist, and his "family" perform regularly for Magic Valley audiences. Newest member of the family, Tyrook, a friendly

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. Dear Dr. Lamb, Is it true that starch has the same effect on your body as sugar? Is it equally as dangerous? Dear Reader, There really isn't much difference. Starch is made up of many molecules of glucose. Digestive enzymes break starch down to glucose which is absorbed into the circulation.

Family research skyrockets as hobby

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Mrs. Joseph Van Sicker of Cape Coral, Fla., peering at a screen, found something she had been seeking for 14 years - a trace of her father's mother's parents.

another was a printer, that all the children except Gustav, 9, were born in Germany, that an apartment in the house was rented to a married daughter, whose mother-in-law lived there, too, and that the mother-in-law had had five children.

Fillmore, 13th U.S. president. His mother's maiden name was Millard. Also working in the archives' research room was Joseph Coulter, a bearded retired Army colonel who traces other peoples' ancestors for a fee. He works by the hour.

Of his 12 steady clients, one is a Civil War buff in Alabama; who collects old uniforms and likes to know the war records of the men in blue or grey whose names are attached to the uniforms.

Differences explained

A gram of white flour contains 3.64 calories (12 per cent of its weight is water), and a gram of sugar contains 3.85 calories (essentially water free). So they're comparable in caloric content. Sugar is a double molecule, one of fructose and one of glucose. It is broken into the two single sugars in the intestine. The fructose is converted to glucose in the body for energy use. Thus, a molecule of table sugar ends up as two molecules of glucose, and a molecule of maltose from starch also ends up as two molecules of glucose.

"I found them in Chicago, in the 1900 census," she said. "It showed they'd been living in the United States for 15 years. Once I had that, it was easy to go to ship passenger lists from 1885 until I found where they'd all come over."

When she located her husband's immigrant great grandparents in the Chicago census, she learned much: that they owned a house with a mortgage, that they had 11 children, one of whom died at sea, that one son-peddler-meats and another was a printer, that all the children except Gustav, 9, were born in Germany, that an apartment in the house was rented to a married daughter, whose mother-in-law lived there, too, and that the mother-in-law had had five children.

Archivist Linder says most Americans because of intermarriage can find ancestors from colonial or revolutionary war days. Only relative newcomers, or persons whose families married only within their own ethnic groups, are unlikely to have such a link to the nation's past, he says.

I have angina pectoris. I take nitroglycerine for chest pains. The druggist told my husband to make sure I replace the nitroglycerine pills every two months for they become weak and are not fresh. My question is: once I open the bottle, how long are they usable? Why are they dated on the bottle for over a year if they are only good two months?

At the National Archives, where amateur genealogists are called "geanles," the number of research passes issued to visitors has doubled in 10 years, and is no longer the avocation of those seeking to qualify for membership in some blueblood organization.

Her reaction was unusual, but many of the thousands who use the genealogy division at Fifth Ave. and 42nd St. each year become so excited about their findings that they confide in the librarians, says Timothy Beard. He is one of three full-timers on the staff of Gunther E. Pohl, chief of the Local History and Genealogy divisions.

Washington to dig into their pasts. Census records and in many state archives. Courthouse are a storehouse of deeds, marriage records, wills and court records - all fertile territory. Church records shed much light. Most localities have historical and genealogical societies.

The Mormon Church, with the biggest genealogical library in the world and a microfilming program that even reaches behind the Iron Curtain, maintains records in branches in large cities across the country.

This is an important point. Many heart patients are walking around with useless nitroglycerine tablets on their person. Nitroglycerine tablets remain effective only if they are kept stored in a tightly sealed amber glass - not plastic - bottle in the refrigerator. Take out pills only for one week's supply, or even for the day if you use a lot of them. Never use pills that have been out of the refrigerated pill bottle more than a week. Replace the entire opened bottle in the refrigerator within three months.

A staff of 60 is required to handle the 4,000 letters that arrive every week seeking help. If the writer can fill out a form to pinpoint what he needs, he can obtain photocopied records for $3 a sheet.

He credits "the definite climate of nostalgia" with expanding Americans' interest in the subject.

"We had one woman here doing genealogy from postcards. She had met her husband in a railroad station in Wisconsin or Minnesota. She was looking for and found postcards of that station and other places that figured in their life together; where they'd married, honeymooned, vacationed and lived."

"I think the label on the date of usefulness of nitroglycerine tablets should definitely be a lot more specific than it is to avoid the confusion many people face. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

We watched today's hand played in a free-wheeling rubber bridge game. At least it was free wheeling as far as South was concerned when he went on to four spades with his minimum hand.

The play started off happily. He ruffed the third heart, took a club finesse, drew trumps with three leads and took a second club finesse. It worked beautifully but unfortunately for South East showed out. Now South was going to be able to take only three tricks.

Three clubs plus five trumps plus one ace of diamonds only came to nine. South had one last chance for a job trick. He led a diamond and played his jack, but West produced the queen and eventually the defense scored 100 points.

South had a safety play at his disposal. When he led the second club he could have played low from dummy. This would cost him an overtrick if clubs had broken 3-2, but would have given him the contract against the actual break.

Incidentally, this is the sort of safety play an expert match-point player would take on the theory that his four-spade contract was an abnormal one and just making it would give him good match-point score.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know if North's three-diamond bid was correct. He bid: ▲KQJx ♠Jxx ▲AJxxx

North doubled a one-club opening by West. East bid a heart, South a spade, West two hearts and North three diamonds.

The answer is a decided "No." North should have either bid an optimistic three spades or a conservative two spades. When you have found a spade fit, why bid other suits?

Couple marries in temple

HANSEN — Susan Parkison, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. Spencer Parkison, Logan, Utah, and Carl Edwin Crockett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Crockett, Tinsan, were united in marriage solemnized in the Ogden LDS Temple Dec. 17.

Following the ceremony the bridegroom's parents hosted a wedding luncheon at the Utah State University. Faculty Lounge in Logan for members of the wedding party.

The following evening the couple was honored at a reception at the Kimberly LDS Church.

The wedding party greeted guests in the Cultural Hall which was decorated in red and white. Red poinsettias flanked the receiving line.

The bride wore a traditional silhouette gown of polyester crepe and lace heavily beaded with seed pearls. The full ruffled skirt tapered into a cathedral train. Her veil of bridal illusion was held by a lace headpiece. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses and baby's breath.

Nancy Parkison, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Patricia Parkison, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Ellvert Hines and Judy Crockett, sisters of the bridegroom. Edwin Stacker served as best man with David and Paul Crockett, brothers of the bridegroom, as groomsmen.

Spencer K. and Robert Parkison, brothers of the bride, served as ushers. Guests were registered by Sharie Stout and girls were displayed under a white-flocked Christmas tree, decorated with red balls, by Mrs. Raymond Sudecks and Mrs. Russell Jensen. Gift bearers were Steven, Shelley and Christine Hines, nephew and niece of the bridegroom.

The bride's table was skirted in white with red ribbon bows and a white pine cone tree, decorated with red flowers, centered the table. Hot cranberry punch and Christmas breads and cookies were served by Mrs. David Crockett and Mrs. Paul Crockett, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom.

Guests were seated at quarter tables covered with white net over red and centered with white pine cones and red balls arranged by Mrs. David Crockett.

The couple will make their home in Logan where they will continue their studies at Utah State University.

Firm's policy draws sentence

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — A judge Monday gave an electrical firm personnel director a one-month suspended jail sentence for making a prospective woman employee if she was married, engaged or "had a boyfriend." Milan magistrate Michele Di Lecce said the questions were "reactionary" in passing sentence on Luigi Serge Gorcy, 33. The firm's policy "tended to discriminate against the woman and particularly against a mother, to which the law accords a special status," the judge said. The employee, Maria Santilippo, denied all male attachments when she applied for the job, but in fact was pregnant at the time. The company fired her when it discovered her pregnancy. Gorcy's firm plans to appeal the sentence.

Unmarrieds' agreement ruled valid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Couples who live together without getting married can have valid agreements as to sharing of property, the California Supreme Court ruled recently. The decision involved actor Lee Marvin, who lived with Michelle Marvin without marrying her. The high court said that either party to such a non-marital relationship may enforce an express or implied agreement after the couple has stopped cohabiting. "The fact that a man and woman live together without marriage and engage in a sexual relationship, does not in itself invalidate agreements between them relating to their earnings, property, or expenses," the court said. "Neither is such an agreement invalid merely because the parties may have contemplated the creation or continuation of a non-marital relationship when they entered into it." Michelle Marvin filed suit in Los Angeles superior court, alleging that in October, 1964, she and Marvin agreed verbally to share their earnings while living together with Michelle abandoning her singing career to become a full-time homemaker. They lived together until May, 1970.

Michelle contended she was entitled to half the property acquired during this time, including motion picture rights worth more than $1 million. The superior court found for Lee Marvin before the case came to trial, and Michelle appealed. The recent decision reversed the lower court judgment and returned the case to superior court for trial.

Band members' confidence pays off

BROOKSVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Members of the Hernando High School band were so sure Jimmy Carter was going to become president they officially asked to be invited to his inauguration last June, even before he got the Democratic party nomination. Last month, their faith was rewarded when the "Golden Band From Leopardland" was invited to be the Florida representative in the Inaugural parade Jan. 20. Now all the band members must do is come up with $45,000 to finance the trip. It's a big job to accomplish before the scheduled Jan. 18 departure, but with the confidence they showed last summer, the 200-band members are moving ahead.

During the Christmas and New Year's school holiday they worked at whatever jobs they could find, conducted car washes and had bake sales. Many of them were hired as temporary fruit pickers at an orange grove. As of Monday morning $10,000 of the needed money was in hand, primarily from donations from citizens and local concerns. Wednesday, each band member must show up with $100 to kick into the fund, and Friday radio station WWJB and the local McDonald's Restaurant will join in a 24-hour marathon fund drive. A pony and a used car are among items donated to be auctioned off during the fund drive.

And almost four out of five—71 per cent, to be exact—said they were in love at the time of the survey. Most everybody experiences that thing called love or something like it, so these statistics about college findings was the fact they indicated more curiosity about love feelings was the fact they indicated. Women do not seem to be as concerned as do men with physical appearances. Fewer than half the girls in this poll could specify certain physical traits they preferred in their men. The men themselves were far more sure of what they wanted, their girlfriends to look like. The foregoing comes from the same research, previously noted here, which purports to prove the average person falls in love seven times before marriage.

Q. "Years ago I read how many times I'd have to stroke cats' fur on a cold day to generate enough electricity to light a 75-watt bulb, but I forget..."
A. Approximately 9,200,000 times.

Electronic tests indicate the better violinists rarely play on true pitch more than 40 per cent of the time. And the most gifted professional singers, this research reveals, do not often hold exact pitch longer than a tenth of a second.

Jukeboxes came into existence the same year that Franklin D. Roosevelt first took the presidential oath of office, although he wasn't to blame, I don't mean that.

You may be relieved to know that if your skull is average, you can depress its width in a vice by about 10 per cent before it cracks.

GOTHAM

You've heard New York City referred to as Gotham; but do you know why? Washington Irving wrote a short story about a town so called, noted particularly for its follies. The name's early application to New York City was sardonic.

Horse experts talk about bloodlines as though there were a difference between the blood of thoroughbreds and ordinary horses. Do you know what? There is a difference. In the thoroughbred's blood, the red corpuscles contain more hemoglobin; are smaller, and are far more numerous.

When compiling the membership list of the "My Name Is a Poem" Club, let us not overlook those Californians known as Alister McAlister and Monte LaBonte.

In early baseball parlance, a "bonehead" was a runner who failed to touch second base. From that, says our Language man, comes the word "boner."

An expert who ought to know contends the only big game animal that has never been hunted successfully with bow and arrow is the rhinoceros.

Judge opens Texas executions to full coverage

DALLAS (UPI) — A federal judge has ruled reporters can attend Texas executions, and the executions also may be filmed and broadcast.

District Judge William Taylor ruled on the news media's right to attend the executions, despite a Texas Department of Corrections interpretation of a law that said reporters would be barred.

"I don't think we can distinguish between the print media and the television media," Taylor said. "How can you say we will let someone in with a pencil and notebook but not a camera or a tape recorder?"

"The right of the news media to do its function — its bound duty — is what is at question here."

The TDC's interpretation of state law was challenged by Dallas television newsmen Tony Garrett and the American Civil Liberties Union. They filed suit to overturn a TDC directive which barred all death row interviews.

Taylor said TDC director W.J. Estelle's action barring interviews and witnesses to executions was unconstitutional.

He said the execution reporting could be carried out by "pool staffers" — one radio or television newsmen representing the electronic media and one reporter each from United Press International and Associated Press representing the print media.

Estelle said he opposed filming executions because it would create "a circus atmosphere" and that a condemned man "regardless of the crime he has committed, is due the dignity and respect of a human being in a death situation."

He also said filmed executions would punish the families of the condemned.

Prior to Estelle's interview ban in December, reporters generally had free access to all inmates on death row, including convicted murderer Robert Earl White whose execution date had been set for early December.

death row interviews and from any future executions. Estelle based his decision on Texas' new penal code, which he said named those who legally could attend executions and visit with death row inmates. He said the news media was not specifically included and, therefore, he would give a "strict interpretation" and "stick to the letter of the law."

Yanks' blood counts abnormal

MOSCOW (UPI) — Blood tests carried out over the past eight months on American diplomats and their families living in Moscow have shown that one third of those tested have abnormal blood counts, U.S. officials said today.

An administrative notice circulated among embassy personnel said doctors had not yet been able to determine the cause of the abnormalities, but they ruled out microwave radiation beamed at the U.S. embassy building.

An "in-depth review" of the cases failed to turn up any adverse consequences from the condition, the notice said.

The abnormalities involve a higher than average count of lymphocytes, a type of white corpuscle present in every person's blood to a certain degree. The lymphocyte count often goes up briefly when the body puts up resistance to infection.

But the notice said doctors had observed the higher count in some individuals over "recent months," which they considered too long a period.

"At present it can only be said that there may be a factor in the Moscow environment which produces a benign temporary increase in the circulating blood lymphocytes in some people," the notice said.

"There is no connection with microwave radiation directed at the American embassy.

A State department medical technician was sent to Moscow early last year to conduct blood tests on the 145 U.S. diplomats and their families after it was revealed that the Soviets were bombarding the building with microwave radiation.

US agency calls in devices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is renewing its warning about a fire extinguisher it said may rupture, causing injuries.

The agency said Model FE151UL disposable fire extinguishers made by the Bernomatic Corp., Rochester, N.Y., in 1970, the agency said Monday.

The company had issued recall notices for the devices and that a third now was necessary.

"As the solution in the devices ages, the extinguisher tanks may corrode and there is an increased likelihood of rupture leading to possible injury," the agency said.

The commission said consumers possessing one of the units should discharge the contents, and obtain a free replacement by sending the empty one to Bernomatic, 740 Driving Park Ave., Rochester, N.Y., 14613, giving the owner's name and address.

The models involved are 1-1/2 inches in diameter and 7-1/2 inches long, with the model number appearing in the center of the label along with the date "1970" imprinted in the upper left hand corner.

Judge opens Texas executions to full coverage

DALLAS (UPI) — A federal judge has ruled reporters can attend Texas executions, and the executions also may be filmed and broadcast.

District Judge William Taylor Jr. ruled Monday the news media has a right to attend the executions, despite a Texas Department of Corrections interpretation of a law that said reporters would be banned.

"I don't think we can distinguish between the print media and the television media," Taylor said. "How can you say we will let someone in with a pencil and notebook but not a camera or a tape recorder?"

"The right of the news media to do its function — its bound duty — is what is at question here."

The TDC's interpretation of state law was challenged by Dallas television newsmen Tony Garret and the American-Civil Liberties Union. They filed suit to overturn a TDC directive which barred all death row interviews.

Taylor said TDC director W.J. Estelle's action barring interviews and witnesses to executions was unconstitutional. He said the execution reporting could be carried out by "pool staffers" — one radio or television newsmen representing the electronic media and one reporter each from United Press International and Associated Press representing the print media.

Estelle said he opposed filming executions because it would create "a circus atmosphere" and that a condemned man "regardless of the crime he has committed, is due the dignity and respect of a human being in a death situation." He also said filmed executions would punish the families of the condemned.

Prior to Estelle's interview ban in December, reporters generally had free access to all inmates on death row, including convicted murderer Robert "Excell" White whose execution date had been set for early December.

death row interviews and from any future executions.

Estelle based his decision on Texas' new penal code, which he said named those who "strictly interpret" and "stick to the letter of the law."

He said the news media was not specifically included and, therefore, he would give a "strict interpretation" and "stick to the letter of the law."

Yanks' blood counts abnormal

MOSCOW (UPI) — Blood tests carried out over the past eight months on American diplomats and their families living in Moscow have shown that one third of those tested have abnormal blood counts, U.S. officials said today.

An administrative notice circulated among embassy personnel said doctors had not yet been able to determine the cause of the abnormalities, but they ruled out microwave radiation beamed at the U.S. embassy building.

An "in-depth review" of the cases failed to turn up any adverse consequences from the condition, the notice said. The abnormalities involve a higher than average count of lymphocytes, a type of white corpuscle present in every person's blood to a certain degree. The lymphocyte count often goes up briefly when the body puts up resistance to infection.

But the notice said doctors had observed the higher count in some individuals over "recent months" which they considered too long a period.

"At present it can only be said that there may be a factor in the Moscow environment which produces a benign temporary increase in the circulating blood lymphocytes in some people," the notice said. "There is no connection with microwave radiation directed at the American embassy."

A State department medical technician was sent to Moscow early last year to conduct blood tests on the 195 U.S. diplomats and their families after it was revealed that the Soviets were bombarding the building with microwave radiation.

US agency calls in devices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is renewing its warning about a fire extinguisher it said may rupture, causing injuries.

Involved are Model FE81BL disposable fire extinguishers made by the Bernomatic Corp., Rochester, N.Y., in 1970. The agency said Monday the company had issued two previous recall notices for the devices and that a third now was necessary.

"As the solution in the devices ages, the extinguisher tanks may corrode and there is an increased likelihood of rupture leading to possible injury," the agency said. "The company changed the formula in subsequent models."

The commission said consumers possessing one of the units should discharge the contents, and obtain a free replacement by sending the empty one to Bernomatic, 740 Irving Park, Rochester, N.Y. 14613, giving the owner's name and address.

The models involved are 1-1/2 inches in diameter and 7-1/2 inches long, with the model number appearing in the center of the rear label along with the date "1970" imprinted in the upper left hand corner.
