Andrus heads back to Washington

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus headed back to Washington, D. C., today for more transition briefings and confirmation hearings on his appointment as Interior secretary. Andrus plans to remain in the capital until after Jimmy Carter's inauguration as president, planning to return to Boise Jan. 22. But there is a possibility he will not return to Idaho until after his Senate confirmation.

He will be briefed this Friday and Saturday by Carter's transition team and the Interior staff. His confirmation hearings are scheduled Monday and Tuesday before the Senate Interior Committee.

Longer back on witness stand

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Vladimir "Spider" Sabich whispered "Claudine" as he lay dying on the bathroom floor, and his lover, Claudine Longel, knelt beside him holding the .22-caliber pistol that fatally wounded him.

Defense attorney Charles Weedman said he would introduce three more witnesses today and expected the case to go to the jury by Friday. Prosecuting attorney Ashley Anderson said he hadn't decided about possible rebuttal witnesses.

AMA outlines insurance proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new American Medical Association proposal for national health insurance, unveiled at a news conference today, would provide insurance benefits for workers, poor persons and those without jobs. The AMA described its plan as an expanded version of proposals by organized medicine in previous sessions of Congress.

McGovern wants B-1 production end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., urged President-elect Jimmy Carter Thursday to halt production of the B-1 bomber, claiming that expenditure of $92 billion for its production would "starve other areas vital to our national well-being."

Joined by representatives of 38 private anti-B-1 organizations, McGovern told a press conference that "halting the B-1 bomber is the essential first step toward rational military planning and sensible national priorities."

Bell gains Jaworski endorsement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski told the Senate Judiciary Committee today that Griffin Bell is "thoroughly qualified" to become attorney general.

"I would be shocked if this man ever yielded to pressure," Jaworski testified.

"He is just not built that way. He seeks the best advice he could get. He is not an arrogant, opinionated individual."

Carter confers with joint chiefs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter and his national security team today met with the Joint Chiefs of Staff to discuss U.S. defense capabilities and strategic arms negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Carter and the beribboned service chiefs were joined at an oval table at Blair House by Vice President-elect Walter Mondale, Cabinet appointees and other senior national security aides for the four-hour session.

Aides to the president-elect said the meeting was being divided into two parts:

— U.S. military capabilities and arms deployment.
— Military information which bears on negotiations with the Soviet Union for a limitation on strategic nuclear arms. Carter has promised to give top priority to such negotiations and has said he favors a "freeze" on development of further nuclear weapons systems by both sides.

O'Neill pushes ethics code action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Thomas O'Neill called today for speedy action on a new code of ethics for House members to "go all the way" in erasing the taint left by last year's scandals.

O'Neill was the first witness before the Commission on Administrative Review which opened two days of hearings to help draft a new ethical code it hopes to recommend to the House by Feb. 8.

O'Neill said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., commission chairman, asked him for his thoughts on ethics reform and "I told him that if you want to make recommendations for us, you should go all the way. I still mean that."

France protests criticism by US

PARIS (UPI) — France protested to the United States today over Washington's criticism of the French release of Palestinian guerrilla leader Abu Daoud, the foreign minister said.

France rejected the U.S. criticism of the French action in freeing the man accused of masterminding the 1972 Munich Olympics massacre as "an inadmissible appreciation of acts of French justice," the foreign minister said.

BOISE (UPI) — Although Idaho students were at the national average or above in reading, language and math skills last year fourth graders lagged in spelling and computation on a standardized test given by the state.

That was the report from State Superintendent of Public Instruction Roy Truby Wednesday to the State Board of Education.

Truby told the board the results of a standardized test administered to almost 10,000 students in the fourth, eighth and eleventh grades from randomly selected Idaho school districts.

Fourth graders ranked below the national grade equivalent in spelling and computation but achieved the national standard at the eighth and eleventh grades.

The superintendent said the tests, administered in September, were valuable as a benchmark to measure future progress. He said they could be used to establish an Idaho norm, to compare Idaho with national norms and to provide schools with information.

"The tests did not determine the cause of the rankings or evaluate teachers."

In reference to the low computation scores but high math concept ratings achieved by fourth graders, Truby said, "They may say two plus two is five but they have great concepts."

Truby said the low scores may be due to the adoption of modern math programs in the state. He said low spelling scores also were reported in Washington and Montana, adding that students in the Northwest usually excel in science skills, which he said "seems to be a Northwest phenomenon."

Asked what the department has done to improve the two low scoring areas, Truby said, "We are using the information to begin to examine the problem. We haven't come up with solutions but we have more information than we had."

In further action the board accepted the resignation of Edward Ray after 20 years of service as the administrator of the Idaho State School of the Deaf and the Blind.

The board instructed the superintendent to announce the opening and present the names of a screening committee to accept applications by the next board meeting.

The Idaho Historical Society and the Department of Education presented its Idaho history kit for teachers and explained the results of more than a year of planning for the curriculum aid.

'Idaho Potato' loses identity

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

BOISE — The "Idaho Potato" has lost its identity. Idaho potato growers were staggered Tuesday by the decision of the federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission to expand the Idaho potato futures contract to include non-Idaho potatoes.

"We don't think the contract is viable," Gordon Randall of the Idaho Potato Commission said. "We don't think the grower uses it."

The CFTC approved modification of the contract to be called the "Western russet Burbank" potato instead of the former Idaho russet Burbank, Randall said.

Idaho potato growers protested broadening the contract at hearings in Boise because they do not want to lose the "Idaho" potato image built up in past years, and the premium price Idaho potatoes traditionally receive, Randall said.

"We are going to watch the market differentials in prices closely," Randall said about the traditional premium paid for Idaho potatoes. "And if we find there is any erosion in our traditional price spreads, we are going to go directly to the commissioner of the CFTC and ask for redress."

"We don't think the CFTC has analyzed the ability of growers to physically deliver on the contract," Randall said about new points-of-delivery included in the revised contract. "Shippers cannot suddenly take care of contract deliveries. They have their own business to take care of."

Other grower organizations, including the Potato Growers of Idaho (PGI) and the National Potato Council (NPC) have passed resolutions to work to eliminate all potato futures trading. The NPC resolved to work with all appropriate agencies and the public to achieve complete elimination of potato futures trading in December and the PGI later seconded that move at its annual meeting in Boise.

And Idaho Sen. Frank Church called the revision of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange contract "very disturbing."

Church said its introduction leaves him "no choice but to introduce legislation to prohibit the trading of potato futures on the commodity exchanges."

TF County spending up on 9 months

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The former Twin Falls County budget for the first nine months of 1977 has been set by county commissioners at $9.63 million, about 21 per cent more than the 1976 spending rate.

The tentative budget will open for public hearings the second Monday in February and will be adopted by the end of March.

The 1976 budget totaled $10.32 million for a full 12-month period. Since the county budget must include the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital budget, it reflects the increases in hospital and regular county spending.

Without the hospital budget of $6.58 million, the county revenue for the first three-quarters of the year was $11.5 million, compared to three-fourths of the 1976 budget at $2.62 million, or about a 16 per cent increase.

The hospital increased to 6.5 million, an increase of about 27 per cent after 1976 spending rates.

County Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said it is difficult to make comparison on this basis because of some revenues such as the $125,000 anticipated anti-recession money and the $1.02 million in revenue sharing are totally included in the nine-month budget. These are the full anticipated revenue for the year, but they will be received during the first nine months, Leonard said, and must be included in the short period budget.

Public hearings on the tentative budget will begin Feb. 14 and continue for a full week, Leonard said. He's said one day, probably Feb. 14, will be set aside for a review with department heads of each portion of the budget. Residents will be asked to come in to ask questions about any portion of the budget.

The total county salary budget this year is $4.2 million compared to $4.4 for the full year of 1976. This year's revenue budget has been divided. It will be set aside for the airport, $20,185 for capital outlay and administration, $230,000 for transportation, and $30,000 for social services.

The transportation portion will cover costs of the new Snake River Bridge near Bliss and the capital outlay portion is largely undecided at this time except for completion goals on the courthouse expansion and remodeling.

Budgets by departments listing this year's nine-month figure and last year's 12-month figure include: assessor, $148,005 and $172,050; auditor, $131,953 and $167,689; commissioners, $29,257 and $109,712; coroner, $5,412 and $7,250; county agent, $22,610 and $24,890; district court, $69,145 and $66,400 with increases due to a legislative ruling removing court expenses from the general expense budget; elections, $24,145 and $40,000; janitor, $106,252 and $150,716; prosecuting attorney, $65,372 and $71,250; sheriff, $277,311 and $224,944; treasurer, $61,914 and $72,634; zoning, $32,790 and $33,360; general, $21,050 and $20,300; public defense, $24,125 and $45,000; ad valorem, $46,195 and $60,000; poor fund, $46,733 and $138,500; weed eradication, $37,750 and $107,833; public health, $102,218 and $106,607; parks and recreation, $67,718 and $70,900; solid waste, $132,352 and $109,376; hospital, $6.5 million and $6.8 million; county fair, $194,102 and $219,800; airport $70,000 — all revenue sharing money; and $40,000 and total revenue, $13.2 million and $11.05 million.

Dykas off hook in Corder case

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Prosecuting Atty. Frank Dykas has been relieved of his duty to prosecute Sheriff Paul Corder on felony charges.

Fifth District Judge Theron W. Ward, appointed Leon Smith, a Twin Falls attorney, special prosecutor, at a cost to the county of $50 an hour.

Corder is charged with failure to turn in a quarterly basis $1,699 collected for use of a copying machine. He is also charged with signing false oaths.

County Prosecutor Frank Dykas said today he requested Smith to be appointed to handle the case to "take this case out of the administration of county government."

"Both the sheriff's office and the prosecuting attorney's office have to work together for effective law enforcement," Dykas said in a brief statement issued this morning. "Right now, there is too much conflict and suspicion between these offices."

Dykas's request came shortly after he took the oath of office this week replacing outgoing prosecutor William Hoffstedt.

At the maximum, Smith would be allowed to charge $4,500 to $4,800 if the case is not appealed, Dykas said.

Corder should be convicted and he appeals. Smith would be allowed to charge a maximum of $6,500, Dykas said.

Damp eye at close

AT THE END of his State of the Union message Wednesday evening, President Ford wipes a tear from his eye as Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and a joint session of Congress applaud. (UPI)

'Prudence' advised

By N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford, in his third and final State of the Union Message, urged Wednesday night that Congress and the new administration adopt "prudent" policies at home, warned that the nation must never be "second in defense" and said that he was returning to private life "with gladness and gratitude."

In his last official appearance before Congress, where he served for 25 years before becoming President, Nixon's Vice President and then successor, Ford made no specific legislative proposals. President-elect Carter, he said, will be outlining his own priorities in a few days and added, "Tonight, I will not infringe on that responsibility but rather wish him the very best and all that is good for our country."

The President looked back on the record of his brief administration and outlined in broad strokes his vision of the path that the nation must follow. Characteristically, that vision was modest and restrained. His message contained no surprises.

"The President told the joint session of Congress, "Taken in sum, I can report that the State of the Union is good."

"There is room for improvement as always, but today we have a more perfect Union than when my stewardship began," Ford said. He stated particular pride in what he called his part "in rebuilding confidence in the Presidency, confidence in our free system and confidence in our future."

He said he was proud that America was at peace, and that it had "strong defenses, strong alliances and a sound and courageous foreign policy."

The President added, however, that while "America must remain first in keeping peace in the world, we can remain first in peace only if we are never second in defense."

Mysterious object sought

WAKEFIELD, N.H. (UPI) — New Hampshire National Guardsmen today began cutting holes in an ice-covered pond to recover a mysterious object lodged on the bottom for three days.

"Right now they are cutting holes in the ice," said Col. Leon Parks, adjutant general's office. "We know some object dropped into the former's pond," he said. The pond is on the property of William and Dorothy McCarthy.

"We have nothing definite that it is radioactive. Anything other than that is conjecture until we can do a reading on it."

Gov. Meldrim Thompson confirmed early today the state was investigating the object, which witnesses said fell from the sky Monday night. In a statement from his office, Thomson said he had known of the incident for the last 24 hours. "But I did not want to comment on it unless we knew exactly what we are talking about."

New Hampshire Deputy Attorney General, Thomas Rath said Gregory Smith, head of the Criminal Division, was at the scene and would be working on the case for most of the day.

"I can say we do have a man down at the scene investigating and I expect to have something later today," Rath said in a telephone interview from his Concord office. "But that's all I can say now."

Residents of this southeastern township of 1,400 have been ordered to keep what little they know about the object to themselves. Persons who did not want to be identified said instruments detected a high level of radioactivity from the object.

Mr. T-N says
Look quick — the Blonic Man may be snooping around in that New Hampshire pond.

Chain becomes evidence

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News Staff Writer

RUPERT — A six-foot chain allegedly used to restrain the late Anna Marie Rufener was introduced into evidence Wednesday in the first degree preliminary hearing against her son and daughter-in-law.

Rupert Police Officer Ron Hamlet said the defendant, Ernest Rufener took the chain from a drawer in the upstairs Rupert bedroom where his mother died.

Hamlet testified Rufener said "this was the chain he had used to confine his mother."

The 77-year-old Anna Marie Rufener was found dead alongside her bed in the room on Easter Sunday, 1975. A pathologist testified earlier that she died of strangulation.

Ernest Rufener and his wife, Griselda, are facing a second preliminary hearing on charges of first degree and second degree kidnapping.

Hamlet was the last witness before Jerome County Magistrate Judge Russell Shaud, sitting on the Idaho County bench to hear the case, continued the hearing until 9:30 a.m. Feb. 7.

Mimidoka County Prosecutor H. Bill Manning estimated remaining testimony in the hearing will take three to five days.

The continuance was granted because defense attorney James J. May has been subpoenaed to appear as a witness in Twin Falls today in an Insurance lawsuit involving the Eye-Knevel attempt to soar across the Snake River Canyon. May represented Knevel in preparations for the eye jump.

Hamlet said Rufener produced the chain after Police Capt. Paul Fries had sent the "Mimidoka County assistant coroner downstairs from the death room to ask Rufener if his mother had been wearing a necklace to produce the vivid marks around her throat.

The witness said Rufener explained that he had removed the chain because "he didn't feel it would look good to police."

Rufener then took a bolt from a drawigan another bolt and said it had been used in chaining his mother. (A second bolt was found under the body.)

Under cross-examination, Hamlet testified that he testified on Friday later the same night that the other end of the chain had been fastened to the head of the bed. He recalled Rufener saying he had chained his mother there.

Hamlet testified that he testified three months before because she wandered and would "get into things."

Hamlet was used by prosecution to identify numerous items of possible evidence in the hearing.

Among them was a white porcelain pot the said was handed to him by fellow officer Chon Garcia.

At the earlier hearing, the pot was identified as one the elderly woman was trying to use for toilet purposes when she strangled on the short-twisted chain. Hamlet followed Chon Garcia's testimony.

In describing the body, he said infant pulled down around the knees.

Hamlet and Garcia were the first officers on the scene after the victim died.

Hamlet's description of the scene supported earlier testimony about a strong odor in the house.

The officer said it was "like a strong odor of a place being closed up, urine mixed in there." He said the odor was noticeable upon entry to the house but was much stronger in the death room.

Under cross-examination, Hamlet agreed the odor was similar to that he found characteristic of rest homes, but, at Manning's prodding, stated the odor at the house was stronger. He said Garcia left the room feeling ill because of the smell.

Hamlet said the room was cluttered with beds and other furniture. He said two beds appeared to be used for sleeping and that he learned Ernest and Griselda Rufener slept there.

Manning's questions emphasized that two television sets in the room were turned so the chained woman could not watch them and Hamlet saw no radio, record or tape player, or other means "to occupy one's time."

Under May's cross-examination, Hamlet insisted that the victim's bed was not as clean as the other bed that appeared to be used. Among the items he identified were sheets from the victim's bed; he said the top one was stained yellowish and the bottom was soiled and had "fairly fresh" footprints on it.

Hamlet also testified to arresting Anna Marie Rufener in mid-April, 1974, when she was found walking down Idaho 225 toward Heburn a few blocks from her house about 3 a.m.

He said she was barefoot and clad only in a heavy material nightgown and he took her into custody, over her objections, "to protect her from herself."

He later explained the night was chilly and she feared the possibility she could be abducted.

Hamlet insisted the woman appeared rational while telling him in a loud voice to leave her alone. He said she informed him she was just walking.

He added that she would only say her name was Rufener and she took her statement that she did not know where she lived as a refusal to reveal her residence. Three youths were walking with her at the time, Hamlet said, one of them Douglas Miller, who died last year of a bullet wound.

The officer said he noted an odor he thought to be an "injection or medicine, but no odor similar to that in the death house. He also said that her clothing then was cleaner than that worn at her death.

He testified he saw no indications that the woman was pregnant. The woman gave no indications she was cold, either verbally or through shivering or "goose bumps."

Among the possible evidence identified by Hamlet was an orange jump rope he said was removed from the head of the victim's bed. He said he learned later that it had also been used to restrain the victim.

"Other items included 15 photographs and nine color slides, two civil rights files, two files and the arrest card on the deceased, including a continuation sheet on her from Seattle; the autopsy report on her death and the estate file of her husband, Henry Rufener."

May objected strongly, but the estate file was admitted into evidence. May argued that an initial charge of embezzlement in connection with Henry Rufener's estate had been dismissed by Fifth District Court Judge Sherman Belyea and the issue was no longer material to the case.

Manning argued that Ernest Rufener had control of the estate left to his mother, in excess of $60,000, and "it probably should have been used to care for her."

May replied that the money has disappeared in unwise investments in five or six houses and a bar in Seattle.

Under his administration, he asserted, the nation was able to reverse what he described as a "dangerous decline" in the resources that it had been devoting to national defense.

He said "the evidence was unmistakable" that the Soviet Union had steadily increased its military strength.

At home, Ford said, he is encouraged by the recovery from the recession "and a steady return to sound economic growth," which he reported was continuing after the nation's most pressing need was the creation of productive and permanent jobs and asserted that in his term more than 4 million new jobs were created. But he conceded that too many people were still out of work. "This is my greatest regret as I leave office," he said.

Nevertheless, he added: "All of the basic trends are good; we are not on the brink of another recession or economic disaster. If we encourage prudent policies that encourage productive investment and discourage destructive inflation, we will come out on top."

He "urgently" asked Congress and the new administration to move quickly to effect a broad range of programs that would encourage conservation and production of energy to end the nation's vulnerability to foreign suppliers.

Ford also said that he was disappointed by his inability to complete many meaningful organizational reforms in the federal government and to reduce the size of government.

On another issue, Ford urged members of his party to "give the new President loyal support" on foreign policy, an appeal that was consistent with his frequent calls for bipartisanship in foreign affairs.

Ford asks reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford launched a bid today to reform the transportation industry, urging Congress to ease federal controls on air routes and fares and to end the government's self-imposed obligation to promote the airline industry.

Ford's proposed Federal Aviation Act of 1977 revised a modified form a 1975 measure that stirred major controversy last year and died when Congress adjourned in October.

The aviation proposal is the first of several transportation reforms Ford may call for during his final seven days in office. Others include major revision of interstate trucking regulations and a system to finance federally required aircraft noise reduction efforts.

US party setup may be changing

TWIN FALLS — It's possible the "traditional" two-party system may be at an end. Twin Falls attorney Lloyd J. Walker told a group of Magic Valley Democrats Wednesday night.

The Democrats held a dinner meeting at the Rogerson to arrange ticket sales and promotional work for the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Boise Feb. 19.

"The Republicans are badly divided. The Reagan wing demands to lead and bury President Ford and Vice President Rockefeller. The Republicans lost strength in the Senate and Congress and in the election of governors," Walker told the group.

"The party, he said, "has as one of its leaders in Idaho the likes of Congressman George Hansen who has not only been ineffective—but whose conduct cannot be held up to anyone, much less our youth, as a proud example to be followed."

Walker said that soon-to-be governor John Evans "certainly has never been tainted by adherence to his own personality cult."

He said he hopes that Evans will "get more than negative obstruction from the Republican Party."

Marge Summerfield, mistress of ceremonies, introduced Walker.

He said the disappearance of the strong two-party system worries him since, with his loss has come a "personality cult of political leaders."

Walker said that soon-to-be governor John Evans "certainly has never been tainted by adherence to his own personality cult."

He said he hopes that Evans will "get more than negative obstruction from the Republican Party."

Keeping common touch good idea

The story is told that the famed Caliph of legendary Baghdad, Harun al-Rashid, used to regularly put on clothing similar to those worn by the common people, and thus disguised go out at night around the city to find out, first hand, what the people were thinking and talking about, so that he might rule them more wisely.

President-elect Jimmy Carter's proposed swings around the country to meet with the people to find out what their views are, and what they expect of government, can not be conducted in the secrecy and disguise of the Caliph, but they might produce the same results.

And we think it might be healthy move, if it can be so done that he gets down below the governmental echelon and really can see common citizens.

One of the great defects of the "imperial presidency" was that it made the President a remote figure, surrounded by aides and spokesmen and he rarely saw the plain people, nor did they see their President.

Carter is already reportedly chafing at the way he is being waited in by aides, Secret Service men, etc. Of course he will always have to have bodyguards with him to protect him from the occasional lunatic.

It is interesting that while governor of Georgia he had what was called "people's day" once a month. On that day anyone could come to his office starting at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, put their name on a list, and see the governor in the order in which they had come.

It will be much more difficult now that he is President to maintain the common touch. But it is heartening that he still wants to.

Thoughts for today

"Only be strong and very courageous, being careful to do according to all the law which Moses my servant commanded you; turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that you may have good success wherever you go." - Joshua 1:7.

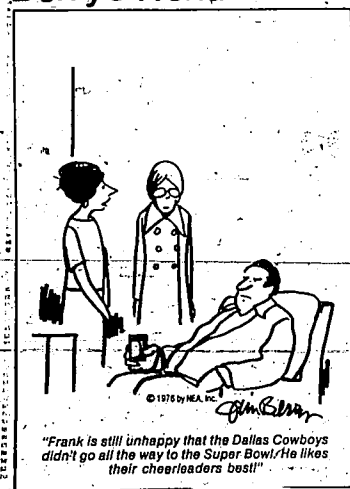

"I believe the true road to pre-eminent success in any line is to make yourself master of that line." - Andrew Carnegie, American philanthropist.

"Then his lord summoned him and said to him, 'You wicked servant! I forgave you all that debt because you brought me, and should not you have had mercy on your fellow servant, as I had mercy on you?'" - Matthew 18:32,33.

"Human affairs inspire in noble hearts only two feelings - admiration or pity." - Anatole France, French novelist.

"And behold, I have appointed with him Obadiah, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan; and I have given to all able men ability, that they may make all that I have commanded you." - Exodus 3:6.

Soviets growing might worries Europe

WASHINGTON - Sudden European worry about the Warsaw Pact's phenomenal growth in conventional military power has given Jimmy Carter more leverage to strengthen NATO than any President since John F. Kennedy.

Western Europe's mood of concern bordering on outright fear over growing Soviet superiority in central Europe is shown in NATO's about-face on a proposed multi-billion-dollar airborne radar warning system. Pentagon officials now believe that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) will approve the system early in 1977. The major reason for the shift: fear of surprise attack.

Even more significant than NATO's changing its mind on the sophisticated warning system, European political leaders are going public to express alarm over gaping holes in NATO's defense.

The most pointed questions about NATO's vulnerability are being raised by Henri Simonet, a brilliant politician in Belgium's Socialist party (scarcely a hotbed of cold warriors). Simonet, outgoing vice-president of the European Community Commission and former economics minister of Belgium, is pointing up some of the thorniest defense problems ever mentioned by any European socialist, as follows:

Communist military improvements in central Europe are developing a massive offensive force; the strategic concept on which NATO was founded has become obsolete because the Soviet Union has reached at least nuclear parity with the West; demands by Democratic Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia and Republican Sen. Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma for fundamental changes in NATO which Europe must be prepared to support.

Simonet's questioning of NATO today will appear as a lengthy preface to a meticulously researched, deeply critical book by Belgian Brig. Gen. Robert Close, former director of studies at the NATO defense college in Rome.

A short version of Gen. Close's still unpublished book appeared earlier this year as a memoir with a grim warning. He suggested the ripening possibility of a Soviet surprise attack against NATO sweeping across the northern plains of Germany to the Rhine in a matter of hours.

That possibility is publicly discounted by Gen. Alexander Haig, NATO supreme commander. But it is gaining affirmation among many students of Soviet military potential, some of whom claim that Haig himself privately agrees but is unwilling to say so publicly.

Close's book, updating and fleshing out his earlier memoir, will portray a darkly pessimistic future for the West unless European members of NATO cease what he calls "the demobilization of the minds." By that he means Western Europe's refusal to face the facts of growing Soviet superiority.

That superiority is spelled out by Close in frightening detail. He estimates a Warsaw Pact grand total of 62 satellite divisions and 160 Soviet divisions and claims each Soviet division is either mechanized or airborne. Although Pentagon aides told us the general slightly exaggerated his estimate of Warsaw Pact strength, there is no doubt about the relative weakness of NATO forces.

He reveals the Warsaw Pact could put 39 divisions into the front line "in a first offensive wave" within 48 hours; a second wave of 60 Soviet divisions augmented by major Czech forces could be in action within six days.

Views differ on Soviet military power

By DAVID BINDER N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON - President-elect Jimmy Carter will receive an intelligence estimate of long-range Soviet strategic intentions next month that raises the question whether the Russians are stilling their objectives from rough parity with United States military forces to superiority.

In reporting this, high-ranking officials of the Central Intelligence Agency said their annual so-called national estimate of Soviet strategic objectives over the next 10 years, just completed, was more somber than any in more than a decade. A top-level military intelligence officer who has seen the estimate commented: "It was more than somber - it was very grim. It flatly states the judgment that the Soviet Union is seeking superiority over United States forces. The flat judgment that that is the aim of the Soviet Union is a majorly view in the estimate. The questions begin on when they will achieve it."

Previous national estimates of Soviet aims - the supreme products of the intelligence community since 1950 - had concluded that the objective was rough parity with United States strategic capabilities.

"There are some worrisome signs," George Bush, director of Central Intelligence, said in an interview in characterizing the latest estimate, "and the viewpoints, interpretations and comments on these will be adequately reflected in the estimate."

He said the shift in assessment developed from evidence gathered in the past year and from new interpretations of older evidence that had resulted from "a competitive analysis" in which, for the first time, a team of outsiders analyzed and challenged estimates prepared by the regular intelligence community. As a result some of the governmental analysts changed their assessments.

While Bush declined to discuss the substance of the estimate, it can be authoritatively reported that the worrisome signs included newly developed guided missiles, a vast program of underground shelters and a continuing buildup of air defenses.

He acknowledged that the 1976 estimate had been prepared amid controversy in the intelligence community, partly induced by the deliberate introduction of the team of outsiders, who were supplied with the same raw material as the estimate team headed by Howard Stieritz, the Central Intelligence Agency's national intelligence officer on the Soviet Union.

Bush, who said the final estimate contained "a full explication of the views of the principals," asserted that he had promised to uphold the right of dissent at the outset of his tenure 11 months ago. "I feel I have made good on that," he added.

There have always been officials in the intelligence community who took a grim view of Soviet strategic objectives, but until this year, according to insiders, they constituted a small minority. In the interview Bush spoke of changed perceptions. "Another high-ranking CIA official who participated in the latest estimate asserted that pessimistic assessments were being heard even from analysts who have taken a rosier attitude toward Soviet goals.

"The consensus is breaking up," the source continued. "Maybe it will be a different consensus next year. A great many analysts are disturbed increasingly by what they see on the Soviet side - more and more Soviet weapons programs. The Soviets are developing across the board. That is bothering people. ICBM's everywhere you look, a continual steady program."

The long-range estimate provides guidance for the size and shape of the United States defense budget, the government's policy approach to East-West relations, including strategic arms negotiations, civil-defense planning and, ultimately, the entire concept of strategic deterrence, based for two decades on nuclear-tipped intercontinental missiles and antimissile defenses. The estimate also influences the annual "secret posture statement" sent to Congress by the Secretary of defense as guidance for the protection of the United States.

Months of research, collation of photo-reconnaissance, monitoring of signals and of Soviet documents underlie the estimate. It is summarized, dissented against and reviewed at ever-higher levels and is finally argued out before the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, comprising the heads of the intelligence agencies and intelligence-oriented departments.

The more somber view represented - "more somber" being the phraseology of the CIA - developed in an unusual fashion, according to a number of participants. They said it came about primarily through continuing dissents by a long-term maverick in the intelligence community, Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan Jr. whose voice was strengthened this year by like-minded outsiders. Keegan, who is retiring Jan. 1 as Air Force chief of intelligence, describes himself as "the eye of controversy" in the intelligence community and has been contesting the estimates of Soviet intentions for 20 years.

On the basis of photo-reconnaissance of construction of underground shelters for protection against nuclear attack and new missile systems, Keegan became convinced that the Soviet Union was preparing for offensive war against the United States. This prompted him to oppose a 1972 treaty with the Russians, restricting antiballistic-missile programs and another 1972 treaty curbing offensive nuclear weapons.

In 1974 his dissents to the national estimate - relating to the significance of the Soviet civil-defense program and new guided missiles provoked such a storm that he was called to the White House to make his case before the advisory board. Out of those dissents and others a belief grew among members of the board that the annual estimates of Soviet capabilities and aims might be too soft.

Last June Bush and William G. Hyland, Ford's deputy assistant for national security, selected a panel of seven outsiders to join, experimentally, in drafting the next long-range estimate. The conditions were that the outsiders be mutually agreeable to the advisory board and to Bush and that they hold more pessimistic views of Soviet plans than those entertained by the advocates of the rough parity thesis.

Those selected were Richard Pipes, professor of Russian history at Harvard; Thomas W. Wolfe, of the RAND Corporation; Lieut. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, ret., former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency; Paul D. Wolfowitz of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency; Paul H. Nitze, former deputy secretary of defense; John Vogt, a retired Air Force general, and Prof. William Van Cleave of the University of Southern California, formerly a delegate to the strategic arms talks.

The two groups, which began work late in August, were assigned three topics: the accuracy of Soviet guided missiles, the penetrability of Soviet air defense by low-level bombers, and overall Soviet strategic capabilities and objectives. There was a debate on whether to do estimates on Soviet capabilities in antisubmarine warfare, but the issue was dropped because of violent opposition by the Navy on security grounds. As related by participants in both the team headed by Pipes and the team headed by Stieritz, controversy boiled on immediately, not only on interpretation of less easily defined strategic objectives but also with regard to missile accuracy.

There is a prospect that the Carter administration might look further into the somber side of the estimates because Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President-elect's designated national security adviser, recently received a briefing on Soviet military programs from Keegan.

The Pipes team is expected to submit a separate proposal to the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board late this month recommending that the estimates procedure be revised and that outsiders be brought into the process.

Bush was said to feel that the exercise had been useful, although he regretted publicly about it.

Ford speech liked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Old colleagues in Congress had a bipartisan and common reaction to President Ford's farewell address Wednesday — it was a moving talk by a good man.

Some lawmakers, like Sen. Barry Goldwater and Strom Thurmond, both Republicans, and Rep. Joe Waggoner, a Democrat, said if Ford had given the same speech in the same manner during the campaign he would have won.

Rep. Robert McClary, R-Fl., compared it to Washington's farewell address in the sense that it was "historic."

Speaker Thomas O'Neill, Ford's best friend among Democrats, all but embraced the President at the end of the speech and said later: "It was a lame duck President who is a close personal friend. It is a safe conclusion to say he was the right man at the right time."

Most lawmakers used the word "moving" in their reaction, referring mainly to Ford's closing prayer for the nation.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said, "It was inspiring to the nation. It had breadth, humanity and compassion."

House Democratic Leader Jim Wright said, "It was an appropriate and well spoken valedictory by a thoughtful, good and decent man. The spirit of it was big and good."

Gen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said, "It was a noble speech by a noble man, and newly elected Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., called it "very moving." Another freshman, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said "it was a lovely speech. He is a great man. It is a time to be happy."

Sen. Edmund Muskie called it "warm and human." Sen. Hubert Humphrey said it was "splendid and upbeat," while Sen. Henry Jackson said Ford was "at his best magnanimous and thoughtful."

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., said, "It was a good evaluation of his record and it was done graciously" and House Republican Leader John Rhodes thought it was great."

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., said "it was a very good speech," but he also had some second thoughts. "I don't know that everything is as bright as he said."

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., said "it probably was an expression of some sincere feeling of unrealized aspirations on his part."

N-waste leaks minimized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new report says radioactivity has not escaped from buried contaminated waste at "most" federally run nuclear laboratories — but if there was leakage, it would be hard to tell.

"The amount of escaped, radioactive material is an important number that needs to be known, even if it is zero," the National Academy of Sciences research branch said Wednesday. "It is not now readily available at most burial sites."

"At present, no radioactive material is lost from most burial sites," the National Research Council said.

Gerald Daly, an Energy Research and Development Administration radioactive waste specialist, said the agency long has monitored "the general impact of a site on the environment."

But close monitoring of radioactivity escaping from shallow-burial pits only recently has been conducted.

"We have not always had monitoring projects immediately contiguous to the burial grounds," Daly acknowledged.

The recommendations of the 150-page report requested by ERDA were "realistic," Daly said.

The report suggested ERDA drop plans to dig up and rebury low level radioactive waste — from the early days of the atomic age.

Concern heightened recently that some radioactive material including small amounts of plutonium has leaked from burial sites. The government, too, has discovered several unmarked sites in populated areas where waste was buried during the 1940s.

"We advise against exhumation except where there is a credible reason to believe that a real radiation hazard could arise from leaving the waste where it is," the panel said.

ERDA's 16 nuclear laboratories and plants across the country annually generate low level contaminated waste such as paper, rags, wood, carcasses, protective clothing and small pieces of contaminated equipment roughly equal to the garbage output of a city of 55,000.

Betty has no regrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Talking with reporters Wednesday after a reception at the American Newspaper Women's Club, First Lady Betty Ford was asked whether she would do anything differently, given another chance.

"No," she said. "I don't believe I would have because I actually said to my husband, 'Well if we are put in this position where we have to assume this responsibility, the public will have to accept me as I am because I am too old to change.'

Britain's poverty eyed

LONDON (UPI) — Nearly 10 per cent of Britain's 55 million population is trapped in "exceptional concentrations of poverty and deprivation." In decaying center city areas, according to a four-year government investigation.

The report on dying inner areas of the major English cities of London, Liverpool and Birmingham, says inhabitants caught in such pockets of poverty are the ones with the least chance of moving out.

Tape sale possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — District Judge John J. Sirica is considering a plan, under which Richard Nixon's White House tapes used in the Watergate trial would be sold to the public.

At Sirica's request, the proposal was filed by lawyers for the three major television networks, the Public Broadcasting Service, the radio-television news directors organization, and a record firm, Warner Communications Inc.

From peach to peanut

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia would be called "The Peanut State" — a tribute to President-elect Jimmy Carter's crop — under a resolution introduced in the state Senate Wednesday.

The proposal would replace the label "Peach State" and name Georgia after the peanut, which sponsors of the bill noted is the state's most prolific crop.

The resolution says Georgia leads the nation in production of peanuts and many Georgians are actively engaged in their production.

"The nation is looking at Georgia," said Sen. Frank Sutton, one of the measure's sponsors, "and a great part of his (Carter's) publicity is built around the fact that he is a peanut farmer."

Researcher 'lucky'

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A laser beam accidentally was reflected off a mirror into the eye of a researcher, but he was not injured, officials disclosed Wednesday.

They said David Decker, 31, Los Altos, Calif., was testing a new laser at a GTE Sylvania laboratory in Mountain View when the accident occurred. They said he will not lose his sight but may permanently see a spot before his left eye.

A Sylvania spokesman said the beam bounced off a mirror and Decker felt a "zap" through his eyeglasses but no pain. He said the researcher was checked at Stanford Hospital.

No singing in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois House has voted to abolish the resolutions, singing and general merriment that usually mark representatives' birthdays.

The House, on a voice vote Wednesday, adopted a resolution sponsored by Rep. Joseph Ebozeno to end birthday resolutions and "the other frivolous activities which accompany the adoption of this type of resolution and which interrupt the proceedings of this House."

The resolution also put the House on record as congratulating "the vast majority of representatives who will have birthdays during the two years of the 80th General Assembly and as paying its respects to those members who will not have birthdays during this two years."

Police still lack clues

BERKLEY, Mich. (UPI) — Police officers pleading for help in the disappearance of a 10-year-old girl two weeks ago have been barraged with obscene telephone calls instead.

"We've gotten a rash of obscene calls every time the news or television have something on the case," Sgt. David Piche said. "All the sickles call up to get their two cents in. They either yell obscenities or say they hope we never find the girl."

They said Thursday they are still without any solid clues in the case.

Ever since Kristine Mihelich vanished from a busy street in the northern Detroit suburb of Berkley Jan. 2, investigators have encountered nothing but frustration and downright harassment.

"The girl's mother, Deborah Asheroff, and her three other children generally have been spared the torment.

But Piche said area newspaper and broadcast reports featuring the sixth-grader's picture and the father's telephone number seem to trigger the weird responses.

"It's a conglomeration of kids and adults," Piche said. "We get them all the time. But when the phone number is flashed on television, we get more. I'd say 50 to 60 per cent are that way, right after the newscasts."

The sergeant said there was little the department can do to stop the calls other than not to answer the telephone. He called this idea "not too cool."

"We can't even prove she was abducted," Piche said. "We can't prove that she ran away either. We're supposed to be able to put a conclusion on some of these capers. But we're running out of leads and we're not getting very far."

Police said some of the 25,000 city residents have started taking precautions to protect their children, keeping them home at night and waking them to school. Citizens have volunteered to help in a search, and more than $13,000 has been raised in reward money.

But Piche said hope for the girl is fading.

'Lost will' hint in Hughes action

© N.Y. Times Service
SAN FRANCISCO — What may be the first move in an attempt to probate a "lost will" that Howard R. Hughes is believed to have signed in 1938 took place Wednesday in the Nevada District Court in Las Vegas.

Incomplete descriptions of the putative 1938 will have circulated among Hughes' former associates since a few weeks after his death on April 5. Soon after his death, managers of his companies and their lawyers said privately that no signed will had been found.

In the absence of a will, probate courts have worked over a purported will found in Salt Lake City, which now has been discredited. Hughes' surviving relatives, all cousins except for the 27-year-old aunt, have agreed on division of what would be left after the Internal Revenue Service took 77 per cent of the estate, with no will found.

The document filed Wednesday in Las Vegas was supported by an affidavit from Nadine Henley, senior vice-president of Sunima Corp., the Hughes holding company. Miss Henley said she was secretary of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute and either knew herself, or believed, that the statements in the attached petition were true.

Mining hazards eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government scientist says more of the United States will sink as coal production is stepped up in the next quarter century.

Richard Dunrud, a Geological Survey geologist in Denver, said in a report that underground mining may set in motion an "inter-related chain-of-environmental-and-mining hazards that can affect the ecology, reduce usable coal reserves and decrease mine safety."

Dunrud said land commonly sinks within many years after mining is abandoned.

"Subsidence damage resulting from underground coal mining will become a greater problem in the United States as our population increases along with our demand for more energy," the geologist said.

Power shut off, man found dead

MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — The Ohio Edison Co. said Wednesday a Mansfield man who froze to death in his home after it turned off the electricity owed the company $18.58 for six months.

Police said when the body of Eugene Kuhn, 74, was found Monday the temperature inside his home was nine degrees.

Earl Carey, Ohio Edison superintendent of accounting credit and collection, said Kuhn's power was turned off three times in the past 12 months. He said written notices were given each time, the last posted on Kuhn's door Dec. 28.

Carey said the electricity was turned off Jan. 3 after there was no response to the notice.

Kimberly link sought

KIMBERLY — A request for annexation of a 40-acre piece of property south of the city, which will include 156 building lots, has been presented to the Kimberly City Council.

Council members referred the matter to the city's planning and zoning commission for public hearing and recommendation.

Jim Bowden, owner of the 40 acres, requested the annexation for city services on the new subdivision. He proposed developing the land to provide 156 new houses for Kimberly. A public hearing will also be held before the city council before a vote is taken on the request.

It was also announced Tuesday night the city's new $150,000 water system is now complete and water will be put into the storage tank and lines next Tuesday. The final portion of the project is the new 250,000-gallon storage tank which will be filled on Tuesday.

This will be used in addition to the existing 70,000-gallon tank and is expected to meet the growth of the community for the foreseeable future. Residents of the community approved a $150,000 general obligation bond issue in December, 1975, for the needed water system. Construction has been underway since early 1976.

In other business the city approved an interim budget to cover city costs until the 1977 budget is adopted in March. The amount is the same as last year and includes $30,500 for the general fund and $24,300 in other revenue.

Idaho energy plan available Feb. 15

BURLEY — Idaho's proposed energy conservation plan probably will be ready for review in another month.

Earl Adams, director of the Idaho Office of Energy, told Mini-Cassia city and county officials that the plan should be available for review by mid-February. The plan will then be submitted to the federal government in an effort to implement funds for recommendations it contains.

The meeting was called to discuss the energy problem and urged the local communities to become involved in energy conservation and development of energy resources. The meeting was arranged by the Association of Idaho Cities.

Scholtz was accompanied by Joel Adams, Salem, Ore., and two Boise architects who specialize in energy conserving construction. Scholtz is a member of the Institute of Applied Energetics.

Scholtz predicted a strong shift toward energy conservation under the administration of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

He said changes in public attitude have far exceeded the hopes of three years ago, as evidenced by such meetings as the one in Burley Monday. He said the conservation policy would stem from an understanding that "it costs less to save than it costs to make more."

Scholtz warned that estimates of the nation's energy reserves and the length of time they will serve have failed to recognize that more energy is now required to produce additional energy resources. He added that it now takes more energy to produce the same goods as was produced in the past.

Costs of producing and transporting energy sources also are increasing alarmingly, Scholtz said. He cited the Alaska pipeline, now expected to cost $9 billion instead of the $900 million estimated in 1967.

Scholtz said he expects the federal government to emphasize development of solar power as an economical source of limitless energy. He said Saudi Arabia and Iran have committed themselves to developing solar energy systems for export, although they now are major exporters of oil so they can retain power stability when their oil wells run dry.

Scholtz said energy policy throughout the world has been to utilize the easily accessible resources until the current decade. That depleted the most accessible sources without developing new sources among those materials less attractive as resources.

The impact of that policy now has made energy production increasingly expensive and prices have skyrocketed, he said.

Adams said the state energy plan will stress energy conservation and tax breaks may be given homeowners improving energy efficiency in their homes. He said more than 60 percent of the state's housing should be better insulated.

Adams also proposed that individual communities look toward development of local energy sources, such as low-head dams on waterways and geothermal possibilities.

Burley eyes classroom construction

OAKLEY — Dworshak Elementary School apparently will be the site for four new classrooms in Burley.

The Cassia County School Board, meeting in Oakley, instructed Superintendent of Schools Harold Blauer to contact an architect for sketches and a cost estimate on building the four classrooms at Dworshak.

The board asked that the information be ready for a special meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 23 in the district's central office at Burley.

Some concern was expressed that maintenance needs should be met before moving into the construction project.

Blauer had proposed building the four new classrooms at Dworshak. When he presented the proposal last month, board members delayed action until they could inspect both Dworshak and the Mountain View school.

Four classrooms had been cut from the original construction plans at Mountain View Elementary school.

The new classrooms are needed, Blauer said, for fourth grade students and a special education room to keep students in the Dworshak section of the school.

Currently, about half the third graders moving into the fourth grade are shifted to Mountain View, creating two additional fourth grade classes. That has left Mountain View without enough classrooms for all the fifth and sixth graders, Blauer said.

The proposal is to build the new classrooms with money from the $25,000 sale of the old Miller School property, $70,000 from inventory tax phase-out, the district's 2 1/2 mill plant facilities levy and sale of the old junior high school property.

Blauer estimated those sources would total about $195,000.

The board's consensus preference of Dworshak as a site for the new classrooms came after it had completed a tour of district facilities Friday and Monday.

The four placed particular emphasis on vocational programs and maintenance problems at the schools.

Blauer said board members were particularly interested in business and agricultural programs in the district, as well as the new vocational program in Burley.

Specific problems were discussed with secondary principals. Blauer said similar discussions are planned with each elementary principal.

The board toured Earl River high and elementary schools in Malta Friday, as well as Burley Junior High and the schools at Alma, Albion, Declo and Springdale.

Vandalism investigated

RUPERT — Police are investigating two reports of vandalism in Rupert this week.

One involved a pickup truck driven onto a sidewalk.

Norma Knight told police someone drove a yellow pickup up onto the sidewalk and broke two porch windows in her Fifth Street house shortly after 10 p.m. Monday.

Someone shot out the wing window of Robert Jameson's pickup while it was parked at his E Street home over the weekend.

Andrus seeks welfare boost

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus asked the Idaho Legislature to provide $4 million more in general fund monies for welfare programs in the next fiscal year.

He urged the 44th Idaho Legislature to appropriate $3 million to match federal funds for Medicaid and public assistance programs and $1 million to provide for increases in the number of eligible recipients in the Medical Assistance and Adult and Aid to Dependent Children assistance programs.

Andrus noted that federal matching funds for these programs have been reduced because of Idaho's expanding economy. He said the reduction was from 68 to 64 per cent.

The governor recommended the level of assistance for the Aid to Dependent Children program be raised from 75.6 per cent of the April 1976 standard of need to 80 per cent and the level of assistance for adults be hike from 89 to 90 per cent.

Andrus also urged continuation of the state-funded Cancer-Control program which operated in 1976-77.

"The program should continue to emphasize public education and screening programs, and it should not become a program for providing continuing education for the health profession," Andrus said.

"The purpose of the program is to reduce the number of deaths due to cancer through early detection and treatment."

Farm aid funds eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Noting the "health of Idaho's agriculture is linked closely with research," Gov. Cecil D. Andrus today for eight additional support personnel to improve the productivity of existing programs in agricultural research.

In his budget message,

Andrus also recommended an additional $735,000 in the current fiscal year surplus and fiscal 1978 revenue to purchase 120 acres of land near Aberdeen for expansion of potato research and development of an irrigated pasture and forage research program in southwestern Idaho.

Ranch funds sought

BOISE (UPI) — A supplemental appropriation of $22,200 was requested by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus today for "minimum custodial" management of the Harriman ranch in eastern Idaho until fiscal plans for development of the ranch as a state park are finalized.

E. Roland Harriman and W.

Averill Harriman made the state a gift of the land in 1961 and it will be added to the State Park System on April 1.

Andrus said he was asking for the supplemental as well as urged funding for fiscal 1978 "to insure that this valuable property will be protected and managed until plans for development are finalized."

Andrus draws applause

BOISE (UPI) — Republicans and Democrats alike applauded Gov. Cecil D. Andrus today for christening school districts that use money intended for teacher-salary increases to hire additional staff.

Andrus told a joint session of the legislature in his budget address that during the current fiscal year teacher salaries increased only 7.5 percent instead of the 8.5 intended by the last legislature.

An estimated 950 new employees — cover and above those anticipated and funded in the current budget — were added to school districts, he said, taking the revenue intended for classroom teachers.

His remarks about the salaries marked the only time in his 36-minute speech the governor was interrupted by applause.

"I was pleased to see he's finally developed some concern for the tendency of some school districts to take money appropriated for teacher salaries and spend it on additional staff," House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said.

"I was grateful he mentioned that," House Speaker Allan F. Larsen, R-Blackfoot, said.

Most legislative leaders viewed the budget as a conservative one but they said they will have to study the executive budget book to ascertain exactly what Andrus' budget details really are.

"It was like the State of the State — essentially a transition speech," Miss McDermott said. "Really, it was more of an accounting of his stewardship."

"You're going to have to look in the budget book to see what he said," Larsen agreed. "I think we're going to have to look in the executive budget very carefully to see what is there."

Republican leaders said they want to study Andrus' figures and recommendations on state employee salary increases more carefully before commenting fully on them. Some said they felt implementation of the Hay Plan — which sets up salary classifications by jobs — is essential in some form.

Many lawmakers also expressed concern that Andrus did not mention the four-mill reduction in the eight-mill county school levy granted by the legislature with surplus funds the past three years. Unless that is continued there will be an $8 million property tax increase at the local level.

Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, said that omission will be "disturbing to some people." He said he believes this legislature will try to make the four-mill reduction permanent.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Andrus' priorities were education, health and welfare but that his figures do not substantiate that.

"The $98 million support he asks for public education is a blow to the public schools," High said. "That's a very minimal increase — and represents a decrease in priorities from the last budget."

Senate Minority Leader F.C. Chase, D-St. Maries, cited the budget "realistic, conservative and lower than what the revenue projections will come up with." He said the education budget is "as much as we can go with what we have."

Other legislative comment on the budget: Senate President Pro Tem Phil Batt, R-Idaho Falls, said: "The budget is close to what we can fund. The priorities are somewhat the same as ours. I didn't sense any great disagreement with the budget. I want to examine his figures on the Hay Plan closer."

House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said: "I think it was a pretty good, overall presentation. The fact that he didn't mention the four-mill property tax means a tax increase at the local level of $8 million."

State board seeking $108 million

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education asked the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee Wednesday for $108 million in state aid to public schools — more than $9 million above the governor's recommendation.

Board President Edward L. Benoit, a Twin Falls attorney, said this was a "bare bones budget." He said the figure was "realistic" and "we did not take the attitude of asking for twice as much as we felt we needed, anticipating that you would cut our budget request by half."

The board's request was nearly $13 million over the $95.3 million appropriated by the legislature last year. For higher education, the board requested $54.5 million compared to $40 million allocated this fiscal year.

"I assure you this is about as honest a budget as we can make," Benoit told the committee.

He said the budget did not include any request for salary increases to cover cost-of-living expenses because the board expected the problem would be addressed on a statewide basis.

The education budget did, however, ask for $264,900 to cover longevity bonuses authorized by the last session. Benoit said although the budget requests included a number of program expansions and additions, current programs were scrutinized for possible cuts or reorganizations.

"In other words, we didn't accept the base budget just because it happened to be there," Benoit said. "We wanted justification for the current program before we even looked at new or expanded programs — and we think we got it."

Firing sought

BOISE (UPI) — More than 100 regional citizens' groups from four Northwest states are urging President-elect Jimmy Carter and Interior secretary designate Cecil Andrus to fire the head of the Bonneville Power Administration.

In a letter to Andrus, the citizens' groups say that new, more public-spirited leadership is needed in the BPA and that a more conservation-minded person than incumbent Donald Rodel should be appointed.

A spokesman for Andrus said he has not yet received the letter.

Idaho roads slick

BOISE (UPI) — Black ice and snow floor made driving conditions hazardous in Idaho today.

By road, this was the report from the state departments of Transportation and Law Enforcement:

- State Highway 55 — Boise to New Meadows, icy spots, broken snow floor.
- Interstate 90, U. S. 10 — Fourth of July Canyon to Lookout Pass, snow floor, snowing.
- U. S. 12 — Orofino to Lelo

- Pass, icy, snow floor.
- State Highway 21 — Boise to Lowman — icy spots, broken snow floor.
- Interstate 80N — Caldwell to Utah line, icy spots, broken snow floor.
- State Highway 68, U. S. 20-26 — Fairfield to Idaho Falls, broken snow floor.
- U. S. 33 — Shoshone to Lost Trail Pass, broken snow floor, snowing.
- Interstate 15W — Raft River to Pocatello, icy spots, snowing.
- Interstate 15 — Malad to Montida Pass, icy spots, broken snow floor.
- U. S. 20 — Idaho Falls to Yellowstone — broken snow floor.

Laxalt 'reassured'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., says he discussed western states' problems by telephone Wednesday with Secretary of the Interior designate Gov. Cecil Andrus and found the governor's statements "reassuring."

Laxalt said that during the conversation he called the recent Bureau of Land Management mining regulations to Andrus' attention. Laxalt said those regulations could severely restrict miners' activities and told the governor he was "totally unsatisfied with this situation." Laxalt said he told Andrus he wants to see the situation "rectified by the incoming administration as soon as possible."

The senator said he discussed some of the problems Nevada has been having with the Interior Department.

"I mentioned that the Organic Act passed by the last Congress appears to be developing into a real monster and he'd probably be hearing from a lot of unhappy westerners on that one," Laxalt said. He said Andrus told him that, being from Idaho himself, he felt he understood what some of the difficulties were.

Laxalt also said he told Andrus he'd be introducing and pushing hard for legislation in the 95th Congress which would require all government agencies including Interior to submit their regulatory proposals to Congress "prior to implementation for review and possible veto."

Laxalt said he came away from the conversation with the feeling Andrus understands what Nevada and the other western states need and expect in the way of cooperation from him.

Remember now, 'Y'all' is plural

DEAR ABBY: Reading about the father who molested his daughter has given me the courage to write. A couple a few years ago, when my daughter was 12, I learned that her father had been bothering her. (She finally got scared and told me.) It happened over several months. It was only serious foreplay, but I felt it would lead to the final act sooner or later.

I confronted her father, and he admitted it. I told him he was sick, and he had to either see a doctor or leave. He refused to see a doctor, so needless to say, he is not with us any longer.

I should have realized something was wrong sooner because my daughter never wanted to be left alone with him. She begged to go with me everywhere I went.

Get help — or get out

My daughter feels that I did the right thing in giving her an ultimatum. However, my doctor told me I handled it badly. He said that sort of thing is quite common and I let it go. It probably would not have gone any better. He said most mothers just put a lock on the girl's door.

I would like your comments on this.
NO NAME, NO CITY

DEAR NO: I think you handled it exactly right. I disagree with your doctor. Your husband is SICK! And for you to have "let it go," or simply put a lock on your daughter's door, instead of insisting that your husband get help or get out, would have made you as guilty as he had his molesting continued.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just returned from Las Vegas, where we married off our 17-year-old daughter to her boyfriend of two years. (No, she's not pregnant.) The daughter had been the ward of the court for two years because she had repeatedly run away from home. I had been placed in I don't know how many places, but I managed to escape from all of them.

The court released her to marry because they ran out of places to put her.

My question: Should I give her a reception, send out marriage announcements or just forget it?
MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: Disregard her hectic record and treat her as you would a loving daughter who had just married. Consult her first.

DEAR ABBY: How would you define old age?
GETTING THERE

DEAR GETTING: To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder. I don't know what I would say that you've reached it when you need your glasses to find your glasses.

You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for.

You begin to start telling you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking.

You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dr. Lamb: Can you tell me something about a disease called pellagra? Does it cause the mouth to be sore? What causes it? Is there any cure?

Reader: Pellagra is a rare disease in our society. It is a good example of how our nutrition has improved over the past 50 years.

Pellagra was widespread among the poor in the United States in the 1800s, particularly in the South. It is a vitamin deficiency caused by lack of niacin in the diet. People who subsist on a corn diet are particularly apt to get it. Much of the world escapes pellagra because the people eat corn and beans in combination. The beans provide sufficient niacin and protein to prevent pellagra.

Vitamin deficiency

Pellagra has been known to exist for at least 250 years. An old medical book from my library refers to it as a disease from fermented maize (corn), and notes it was especially common in the Southern States. It is a vitamin deficiency disease because of the pellagra. The text goes on to state that in 25 cases in the Peoria State Hospital, 50 per cent died. We now know that pellagra is caused by a lack of niacin. Niacin and other vitamins were not even known to exist when the text was written in 1922.

Pellagra causes a wide variety of symptoms, including skin changes, usually of the parts exposed to the sun, inflammation of the mouth and entire digestive system — which leads to diarrhea and weight loss. It can cause psychic and physical disorders including hallucinations. It is, an outstanding example of how nutrition can be a factor in mental diseases.

Niacin is essential in forming enzymes that the cells use in complex chemical reactions to metabolize your food. The disease is still found in some parts of the world where the people eat corn and corn products and have a protein deficient diet. You can cure or prevent the disease by eating a healthy diet. A diet with enough "good" proteins is important. Niacin is in enriched flour and bread making it almost impossible for anyone who eats bread to become deficient in niacin and develop pellagra. Niacin is found in lean meats, poultry, liver, whole wheat cereals, peanuts and mature bean seeds. Anyone who eats a standard daily vitamin preparation which you can buy in most grocery stores will not have pellagra.

Enriched diets certainly are important to your health and well-being. If you are interested in this, you can get more information on this by writing to: "Miss Gaudreau," P.O. Box 1000, Health Resources, Inc., 46, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA).

DENVER (UPI) — Lighthearted students of such things say people north of the Mason-Dixon Line may suffer a touch of culture shock when Jimmy Carter becomes the first Southern president since the 19th century.

There was Lyndon Johnson, they say, but Texas isn't really the South. And while Woodrow Wilson was born in Virginia, he was governor of New Jersey when he was elected president.

So, for the first time since Andrew Johnson left office March 4, 1869, the United States has a president from the deep South of soft drawing speech, agrarian culture, grits and black-eyed peas.

Two displaced Southerners in Denver believe the rest of America may need some assistance getting used to the change, so they've decided to offer a class in cultural preparation for the Jimmy Carter administration.

Nan Campbell, 30, is a director of the Dynver Free School, a free-wheeling community group offering adult education courses.

She grew up in Columbus, Ga., on the Catahouchee River about 30 miles from Jimmy Carter's farm in Plains. Her husband, Steve, 28, comes from Birmingham, Ala.

With those credentials, the couple dreamed up a class starting Feb. 3 which they call The South: Preparations for a Perplexing Presidency.

- The class will cover:
- How to prepare grits, black-eyed peas, cornbread, fried okra and turnip greens.
  - A glimpse of Southern politics and society.
  - A short lesson in understanding the Southern drawl, the differences between the Louisiana and Tennessee accent, and learning the word "y'all" is never used in the singular.
  - Listening to Mrs. Campbell read passages from novelist William Faulkner's work in her soft Georgian accent.
  - Anything else the Campbells think up.

"Sure it's mostly in fun," said Mrs. Campbell. "But we'd like people to understand just where Jimmy Carter is coming from."

Where the new president "is coming from," according to Mrs. Campbell, is the classic South of Georgia, the Carolinas, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, most of Virginia, some of West Virginia and perhaps some northern portions of Florida.

"Maryland is not the South," she said. "North Virginia and Arkansas are not the South, and most of Florida is not the South. The influx of Northerners to Florida completely ruined its Southern complexion."

Carter's appointments of deep Southerners to his Cabinet have Mrs. Campbell worried their heavy Southern accents will fall hard on the ears of a public she claims has always associated the tone with being an "unsophisticated boob."

"If anything gets to anybody during the Jimmy Carter Administration, it will be listening to all the Southern accents—in his Cabinet," she said. "It's offensive to many people. They immediately feel a need to retaliate. It goes deeper than not respecting the Southern intellect."

To Mrs. Campbell, the Southern accent is a "gross generalization."

"It differs with the regions," she said. "There is no similarity between the Louisiana accent and the Tennessee accent. Those differences are very prominent in the minds of Southerners."

— And to those who could never take the word "y'all" seriously, Mrs. Campbell says y'all better get used to it. It'll be around for at least four years.

"It's a really good word," she said. "It's every bit as practical as the word 'you.'"

"But you have to remember 'y'all' is always plural," said Mrs. Campbell. "You can pick out an imitation Southerner every time if they use it to mean just one person. It's just not done."

Real estate agent buys Ford's home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Maryland realtor has bought President Ford's Alexandria, Va., home for $137,000 in cash, the White House announced Tuesday.

The buyer, Moussa Moadeel, lives in Rockville, Md., and works for the real estate firm of Shannon and Luchs.

The White House announcement said Ford, who plans to settle in Palm Springs, Calif., after leaving office, is not acquainted with Moadeel and did not meet him while the sale was being arranged.

But Ford said he hoped the Moadeel family will enjoy the five-bedroom colonial brick home and its backyard swimming pool, the announcement said.

The house — purchased by the Fords in 1955 for $34,000 — has been on the market since December.

Moadeel's contract does not include the security equipment installed at the house when Ford became vice president.

The White House said the General Services Administration appraised the security equipment at $7,500 and Moadeel said he did not want any of the items. So Ford is having everything removed "with the exception of a brick wall in front of the garage which cannot practically be removed."

"The house was listed with a Washington realty firm and the sale was handled by Mrs. Susan Goldwater, wife of California Rep. Barry M. Goldwater."

She said she received inquiries on the house from all over the nation and handled them on a "first come, first serve" basis.

While House sources said the Fords will take up residence in the Palm Springs area right after Inauguration Day, deciding to rent a house there for a year rather than buy one immediately.

FDA orders repair plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Electric has agreed to repair a potential radiation leakage problem in 36,000 microwave ovens already installed in homes across the country.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Tuesday it was requiring the repair program — its largest ever involving microwave ovens — because the door seals on these ovens can deteriorate with use, resulting in a leakage of microwave radiation above that permitted by FDA's strict safety standard.

The ovens involved are GE and Hotpoint "Versatronic" and "Cook Center" combination thermal-microwave units made from November, 1973, through October, 1975.

"The repair program is designed to assure that the door seals will meet our safety standard for the entire life of the ovens," the FDA said. "We see no danger from consumer use of the ovens during the time it will take to repair them under this precautionary program."

The FDA said GE will begin notifying owners of the ovens in February that they will be visited by a repairman, giving the party involved about two weeks notice of the visit.

The government has ruled governing microwave radiation because excessive amounts can cause problems ranging from burns to interference with electronic heart pacemakers.

Rare $1 bill costs Deborah her job

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. (UPI) — Finding a rare $1 bill cost Deborah J. Gaudreau her job as a bank teller.

Miss Gaudreau, 21, of North Adams, was working as a teller at the Berkshire Bank & Trust Co. last month when she spotted a misprinted dollar bill in a customer's deposit. Its federal seals and serial numbers were reversed so that the numbers were printed upside down.

Several hundred bills were printed that way about two months ago and spread throughout the country, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Miss Gaudreau said Tuesday she told the customer about the inverted printing "after I noticed the unusual dollar bill."

"My first impulse was that it was counterfeit, but I checked and it wasn't. Then I assumed that it was a rare bill because it was so unusual. I told the customer, but she made no attempt to get it back."

So Miss Gaudreau gave the woman a receipt for her money, took the bill to another teller and bought the dollar from the bank.

"The next day I went to work and the depositor called to claim it. But the bank told me the dollar was legally mine and I could keep it if I wanted to. So I called the customer and said I was going to keep it," she said.

But the customer telephoned the bank and "half an hour later they told me I had to return it to keep the customer happy."

She said the bank offered her $150 for the bill so they could return it to the customer, "but I just decided I wasn't going to return the bill. First of all, the customer didn't even know it was there until I pointed it out. And besides that, there's the principle of the whole thing. Everything I did was perfectly legal and I did not violate bank rules."

The federal printing office spokesman said the value of the bill is probably between $50 and $400.

When she chose to keep the dollar, the bank fired Miss Gaudreau, who had been working there nine months since graduating from college.

"The customer told us he wanted it back and it was his money, as far as the bank was concerned," said bank manager Robert T. Gable. "Miss Gaudreau had the choice of returning the money or I'd have to terminate her employment. She's the one who made the choice."

She currently has a temporary bookkeeping job with a Vermont firm, but she is having problems finding a permanent job and is considering legal action against the bank.

Lisa Ann Wagner weds Denie Mason

MURTAUGH — Lisa Ann Wagner became the bride of Denie Jacob Mason in a ceremony performed Dec. 28 at the Redeemer Lutheran Church, Kimberly.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Betty Wilmitte Wagner, Murtaugh, and Erwin J. Wagner, Mission Viejo, Calif. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ted J. Mason, Murtaugh.

Rev. R. J. Scholz officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Arnold Wagner.

Shauna Mason, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Gayla Ellis was bridesmaid. Brad Perkins, cousin of the bride, was best man. Groomsman was Byron Slanger.

Wanda Slevers was organist and Sonia Denton and Becky Lutz sang duets.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory chantilly lace over ivory tulle. The long fitted sleeves of lace were finished with wide ruffled lace cuffs. The skirt featured a chapel-length train of chantilly lace. The chapel-length ivory veil was held in place by a lace bouc.

Her bouquet was of red carnations and white daisies. Ushers were Rod Slanger, Dave Pendergraft and Kent Bates. Toni and Ike Thomas were candlelighters. Tracy Thomas was flower girl and Brad Thomas was ringbearer.

All are cousins of the bridegroom from Ketchum. A reception and dance were held at the Elks Lodge following the ceremony. The bride's table, featured a four-tiered wedding cake topped by red and white flowers and wedding bells.

Sue Pendergraft cut the cake. Ethel Christensen served it and Carolyn Cornie poured coffee. Joyce Mason and Cathy Howard served punch. Julie Stasny, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Julie Turner, cousin of the bride, and Doug Self were in charge of gifts.

The bride's mother hosted a bridal luncheon at the Holiday Inn. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents. A bachelorette party was given by Shauna Mason and a bachelor party by Byron Slanger.

Pre-nuptial showers were given by Shauna Mason, Ethel Christensen and Eve Braun. Out-of-town guests attended from Missoula, Mont., Salt Lake City and Newport Beach, Costa Mesa and Santa Maria, Calif.

The bride will graduate from the College of Southern Idaho in May. The bridegroom attended Murtaugh schools. Following a trip to California, Stanley and Missoula, the couple will live in Murtaugh where the bridegroom is engaged in farming and ranching with his father.

MR. AND MRS. DENIE MASON

TF miss to compete

TWIN FALLS — Robin Baun, Twin Falls, will represent Magic Valley in the Idaho Miss Universe Pageant to be held Saturday at North Shore Lodge in Coeur d'Alene.

She is the daughter of Richard Baun and Mary Baun. Both of Twin Falls. A 1976 graduate of Twin Falls High School, she is an engineering major at Idaho State University, Pocatello. She is sponsored by the Mayfair, Twin Falls.

There are 16 Idaho girls competing for the state title, eight from southern Idaho. The state winners will compete at Niagara Falls for the Miss USA contest and that winner will go to the Miss Universe Pageant.

Christine Kendall, Phelan exchange nuptial promises

JEROME — The Candell all of the Jerome First Baptist Church was the setting for the exchange of wedding vows between Christine Elaine Kendall and Ricky Ray Phelan.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Vernon Kendall, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Phelan, all of Jerome.

The bride's father officiated at the 7 p.m. services Dec. 28 before an altar decorated with pink carnations and burgundy roses, flanked with matching scabera.

The bride wore a white floor-length gown of organza with chapel-length train. Her bouffant veil was attached to a lace embroidered cap with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of burgundy roses and white carnations.

Marie Bruce, Idaho Falls, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Lorna Droegemeier, Hyde Park, Utah, sister of the bride, and Shelley Phelan, sister of the bridegroom.

Ricky Phelan was best man and Ron Phelan and Dave Kendall were groomsman. Ushers were Ron Bentzinger and Mark Turner.

Mrs. Walt Bentzinger was organist and Larry Peterson, soloist.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall after the ceremony. Hester Fort was hostess, assisted by women of the church.

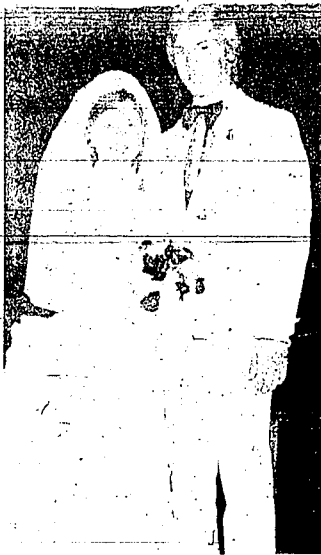

Wanda Pond presided at the guest book and gifts were arranged by Kathleen Shropshire and Lisa Stuhlberg.

The bride's table featured a special tall wedding candle decorated with white embroidered flowers. Mrs. Warren Borge served the cake and Mrs. Gerald Phelan and Mrs. Charles Pond, aunts of the bridegroom, poured.

Following a trip to Sun Valley, the newlyweds will live in Boise where he attends Boise State University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Jerome High School and the bride graduated from high school in Spokane and attended the University of Idaho.

Special guest at the wedding was Myra Ferris, Aberdeen, grandmother of the bride.

A shower was given for the bride by Mrs. Bill Barnes and Mrs. Mike Facer.

DAR hears program on Japan

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met at 2 p.m. Saturday for lunch at the Outlook Inn.

Marilyn Stevens, who teaches in Japan, told the group of her work experiences there.

The national defense report entitled "Our Sacred Honor" by John Rockefeller was presented by Lucille Stevens.

Delegates elected to the state conference were Ada Raybore, Mildred Neumann, Lucille Scott, Betty Hyder and Margaret Miller. Alternates are Stevens and Ruth Senten.

Hyder announced there are six good citizen awards to be presented at the February meeting. Winners and their mothers will be honored. Miller, Neumann and Stevens were appointed to the nominating committee.

Scott introduced Mrs. George Hartley who gave a talk about the American flag. She explained how to display the flag and said many do's and don'ts were violated during the Bicentennial year. She concluded with "If Our Flag Could Speak."

The next meeting will be Feb. 12 and will feature Dr. Marvin Jensen speaking on his trip to Russia.

Club elects

TWIN FALLS — The South Side Mavericks 3-H Club elected officers at its first meeting of the year.

They are Frankie Tuma, vice president; Kenneth Tuma, president; and Michelle Williams, secretary-reporter.

Steve Green was named activities chairman and K.C. Williams was named sergeant-at-arms.

The club members discussed money-making projects.

clubs. West played low and East was in with the king. East led his last spade to clear the suit and declarer could only come to eight tricks.

At the other table South led his jack of hearts to dummy's queen and played the deuce of clubs. East played low and South's queen took care of West's ace. This left West with his king of clubs when his last two spades. South ran off with his game contract with three diamonds and two tricks in each of the other suits.

East criticized his partner's opening lead and it is quite true that if West had opened any suit except spades South's contract would almost surely have wound up in the ashcan, but East was the real culprit.

All he had to do was to hop up with his king of clubs when the suit was led and knock out the ace of spades while West was still in control of the club suit.

Ask the Jacobys

Here is another question about a revoke. This reader wants to know if the penalty must be claimed at the first opportunity.

The answer is that it may be claimed at any time before the score for the hand has been agreed on. On the other hand, it is best to establish your claim immediately since otherwise there may be an argument about whether or not a revoke has actually been committed.

Murtaugh board approves contract

MURTAUGH — Trustees of the Murtaugh School District have approved a contract with Florin Hulse, superintendent, for the coming year.

Hulse has served as superintendent for the past 15 years. The board also delayed any action on salaries and other school expenditures for the year until information is available from the Legislature on state allocations.

Hulse said the board must hold an annual meeting on the second Monday of June at which time the budget must be ready for review. He said this gives the board until May to decide on expenditures. Trustees also discussed the many extra curricular activities of the school which includes a number of girls' teams and boys' teams each week traveling to basketball, other sports events, and drill and theatrical activities. Hulse said the past two weeks have been easy as most events were held in Murtaugh, but the teams and students will have to "take to the road" in the near future which means long hours away from home for the students and bus drivers.

Patty Olsen, home economics teacher and Deloy Graham, English teacher, met with the board Monday night to discuss their departments' operations and special programs.

Hagerman trustees approve new policy

HAGERMAN — Hagerman School Trustees have adopted a stricter policy on eligibility for students participating in extra-curricular activities.

The board decided Monday night a student must have passing grades in all classes to be able to participate in extra activities. Students will have a week to get their grades up to the required level.

The board offered to renew the contract with Supl. Ken Black. Trustees also approved a field trip to the Idaho Legislature for eighth grade students of Mrs. Glorianna Cortabarrute and the government class of Tim Ross.

Blaine's new ordinance stirs hassle

HAILEY — The first subdivision proposed in Blaine County since the adoption of the county's new zoning and subdivision ordinance in mid-December stirred lively debate during a public hearing Tuesday.

A "kick-off" for the new ordinance, the subdivision caused heated discussion between the project's developer and county planning and zoning board members.

This debate made it clear that not everyone agreed with the aims of the new ordinance. Ketchum developer Brooks Tester said he had been working for nine months on the planning of the Aspen Hollow subdivision located just south of the Gimlet Airport Road east of U.S. 93 when the preliminary plan for the project was presented for public hearing Tuesday.

The subdivision is planned for 2 1/2 acres of land about five miles south of Ketchum. Nineteen lots for single family homes are proposed. Each lot is a minimum of one acre, while the largest and most controversial lot in the subdivision is 3 1/2 acres.

Blaine County Planner Alan Reynolds said in some background remarks about the project that the findings of impact reports and studies were "generally very favorable."

"No negative impact is expected," Reynolds said. However, debate began on the point that the subdivision seems to ignore the development aim for the county as embodied in the new ordinance.

Specifically, the new ordinance encourages cluster developments or planned unit developments (PUD), in order to conserve open space. Also the new ordinance tries to minimize access roads to developments in an effort to protect land. The Aspen Hollow subdivision seemed to disregard these goals in varying degrees.

Nick Purdy, county planning and zoning chairman, began comments on the subdivision, saying, "Here we are in our new ordinance and already I home from view, he said. This zoning ordinance and ought to be done right."

Tester responded to these comments, saying, "It's my own opinion that people who come into the area would want an acre of their own rather than being flustered."

Tester said his intention in designing the subdivision was to make as few houses as possible visible from the highway which runs by the property.

But on at least one lot, the 3 1/2-acre lot which lies at the top of an 18 to 20-foot bench, it was impossible to conceal a home from view, he said. This point was disputed. Purdy felt a PUD or another lot design for the subdivision could avoid this problem.

Also, the only access to this controversial 3 1/2-acre lot came from the highway. This was objectionable to most planning and zoning board members.

Ketchum architect and chairman of the Ketchum Planning Commission Jim McLaughlin commented that because of the pressure to develop in the Gimlet area the board's decision was especially important.

"I think this is an important decision," McLaughlin said.

After much discussion, a decision on the preliminary plan for the project was tabled for two weeks until the access problem can be solved and members of the planning and zoning board can inspect the property to determine if there is any way to avoid the 3 1/2-acre lot on top of the bench near the highway.

Buhl City Council sets budget planning meeting

By BONNIE BARR JONES
Times-News writer

BUHL City Council members met on Feb. 2 at 7 p.m. as the time for obtaining public input on spending of the city's 1977 revenue sharing money.

A separate revenue sharing budget will be made up at the Feb. 2 meeting. The first such budget planning meeting. Buhl expects to receive about $58,000.

alloy maintenance, water, sewer lagoon and sewers, Fehrenbacher and Jerry Hawkins with Childs in charge of the McCollum Sub-Division street problems, and fire department, land fill and sanitation collections, Hawkins and Kostecha.

Christensen said he is the only one on each committee this year to give a back-up in the event one is not able to attend to a specific matter because of duplicating assignments or other commitments.

The Mayor called on all council members to keep informed on city Planning and Zoning activities and to report any building construction, remodeling or other work requiring building permits to the city supervisor so permits can be ordered. He said violators should be brought to city attention immediately.

William Aldrich and Frank Squires of the city's seven member Planning and Zoning Commission have asked not to be re-appointed. The council approved Glen Buckendorf, Sr. and Max Horner to fill the vacancies.

City officials also approved the hiring of John Pfister as city engineer. He is a resident of Buhl and will be paid a retainer fee of $1,200 per year for routine assistance and will then bill the city for time required on special projects.

He told the city he has already filed an application with Economic Development Agency officials for a grant for replacement of the 71-year-old city hall. This is one of the priority projects in the city for the future.

He said he is also investigating federal funding available for water system improvements. He said he has been informed by EDA of details—the outlook for funds later in the year is good.

TF land hearings slated

TWIN FALLS—The first of several public meetings covering the proposed Twin Falls County Comprehensive Land Use Plan will be held Feb. 2 in the Hansen High School at 8 p.m.

Ann Cover, chairman of the Twin Falls County Joint Planning Council, said the meeting is primarily for residents of Murtaugh, Kimberly and Hansen.

She said residents of those areas are asked to attend as the council members would like to hear comments from county residents on the proposed plan.

City Clerk Peggy McArthur told the council the new law governing revenue sharing allocation requires the recipients hold public meetings for input from the people as to needed projects and improvements in their communities.

City officials hope to be able to complete the budget in one night's session. Mayor Dale Christensen said the Senior Citizens group has asked for some revenue sharing assistance. He urged Buhl residents to give the matter some thought and express their views to the council during the special meeting.

Bids were received for a new police car which the city planned to purchase with revenue sharing money. At the suggestion of Councilman Jerry Hawkins, the Council delayed awarding the bid until after the revenue sharing public meeting.

"I don't think it would be wise to earmark the money for a specific need until the public has had an opportunity to express their views. They would probably ask us why we called a public meeting if we've already decided how to spend it," he said.

Councilman Joe Fehrenbacher said the city knows where it needs to spend the money and probably has more insight in the matter than the public. Delaying the acceptance of the car bid will probably cost the city about $200 because of increasing steel prices. Councilman Ted Kostecha said, He said there were two bids received, the one on a Ford was low but he recommended purchase of the Chevrolet which he said is a special police unit and would save the city money in the long run. The bids were $3,851.98 for the Chevrolet and $3,698 for the Ford, with credit for the trade-in unit included.

Mayor Dale Christensen announced assignments for council duty during the coming year with the assignments unanimously approved by the council.

Fehrenbacher was elected council chairman and all department heads were reappointed.

These include Peggy McArthur, city clerk; Lewis Henderson, city treasurer; Dub Farmer, fire chief; Ben Ekkrat, police chief; Lawrence Fawcett, city supervisor and Elmer Wilson, auditor.

Council assignments include: Airport and agriculture, Jerry Hawkins; building maintenance and storehouse including responsibility for all city buildings, Cecil Childs and Jerry Hawkins; Chamber of Commerce representatives and city betterment projects, Joe Fehrenbacher and Ted Kostecha; library, Kostecha and Childs; Parks, environmental, nature grounds, recreation and city celebrations, Childs and Fehrenbacher; law enforcement, Kostecha and Childs; streets, sidewalks,

Adequate water supply bureau's goal

By KEN HODGE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In hopes of assuring adequate supplies of irrigation water for 1977, Bureau of Reclamation officials say they are operating dams on the upper Snake River as if this were the poorest water year on record.

"We are restricting the flow in all our reservoirs to a certain release rate to insure fill," Bush told a meeting of the Twin Falls Canal Co. stockholders. "There is a high probability that they will all be full except Ririe Dam."

the end of August." In a normal water year, irrigators have water in their ditches until Oct. 15, according to Bush.

Sierra can sell in New Mexico

TWIN FALLS — Sierra Life Insurance Co. is selling insurance in New Mexico, according to New Mexico Acting Sup. of Insurance Kenneth Moore.

Signup set

TWIN FALLS — Applications for summer jobs with the U.S. Forest Service in Twin Falls and other Intermountain areas are now being accepted for 1977.

There is no one pregnant on the faculty, Muscat said, so the policy was not changed under pressure.

Last month Moore told the Times-News he had issued insurance licenses to Sierra and its wholly-owned New Mexico subsidiary Sandia Life Insurance Co. But he said that both Sierra and Sandia had agreed to not sell new policies in the state.

The temporary and seasonal jobs may be applied for by obtaining application forms from any forest service office in the region.

W. L. Bade, high school principal, and Lois Durfee, junior high principal, discussed evaluative criteria for their respective schools in connection with the review conducted each 10 years for national accreditation.

Tuesday, however, Moore said he had given the "strong information" regarding Sierra. He said only Sierra's subsidiary Sandia had agreed to not sell new insurance policies and that "Sierra is not prohibited (from selling new policies) and records indicate very very few sales."

Cassia approves new contracts

OAKLEY — The Cassia County School District's top administrators have received new contracts.

Eugene Gibbons, elementary principal, reported on the Title I program and trustees approved the hiring of Teresa Gunning as a math consultant under the Title I program in the grade school.

Moore said he had hoped the examination report would be completed by Jan. 1, but now it looks like it won't be finished until Feb. 1.

Health district budget may hike 26.3%

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The South Central Health District (SCHD) budget will rise by about 26.3 per cent in 1978, if projections presented to the legislature hold true.

County tax levy funds to be matched 67 per cent by the state for an additional $241,200. The per capita tax assessment of about $2.98 still will leave the SCHD with the second lowest tax levy among health districts in the state.

Corte recommended the participation so the health districts could eliminate red-tape-in hiring and employment procedures through the Idaho Personnel Commission and save costs for personnel services now paid to the state.

counties dominated. This would force the small counties not to participate, they said.

Officials back tough sentences

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Local law-enforcement officials generally support the idea of mandatory prison sentences without possibility of early parole when firearms are used in commission of a crime.

ferent from an armed robbery," Ronayne said. Also, he said, "the facts of every case are different."

Don Ronayne, an attorney with a firm involved with public defender work for Twin Falls County, however, maintained such a system would be too rigid.

Magistrate Judge Daniel Mehl also said that mandatory criminal sentences "probably would not in all cases be good."

In his state-of-the-state address, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus noted the increase in violent crimes in Idaho and endorsed legislation providing for mandatory prison sentences "without the possibility of quick parole" when firearms were used in the commission of a crime.

"But I do feel that judges should have more authority to limit the availability of parole where firearms are used, he said.

"I think that's the method of gun control that should be used," Twin Falls Police Chief Frank Barnett said.

According to R.J. Bruning, special assistant to Andrus, the governor has not presented the legislature with a specific bill which would limit parole and mandate a prison sentence when guns are used. He said the governor simply endorsed the general concept.

He said there should be "a special method" of sentencing when guns are used or with "certain types of crimes of violence."

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Frank Dykas said, "In general, too many people are getting out early who should be getting out early."

Parole, Barnett maintained, should be available to persons who have committed most types of crimes, but not when guns are used.

He said he believes there should be no possibility of "quick parole" when guns are used in the commission of a crime.

Attorney Ronayne, however, said his personal opinion is that mandatory prison sentences with limits on parole would not "permit the necessary discretion and flexibility which is necessary for the judiciary to carry out its proper function."

Dykas maintained the parole system would be further restricted but said he is not yet prepared to recommend legislation.

Special Corder prosecutor will be costly for county

Lloyd Webb, Corder's defense attorney, said he did not think the appointment of a special prosecutor would affect the case.

Leonard said he had heard through the prosecutor's office that the amount of money Hofffield would have asked for as a fee was "completely out of this world."

"However, I would be reluctant to prosecute because they don't think they can win," Webb said. "The only legitimate reason I can think of for a special prosecutor is because Mr. Dykas doesn't want to prosecute someone he works with. Maybe they should have thought of that a long time ago."

Hofffield said this morning he probably wouldn't have accepted the job anyway if it had been offered. "I'm through with prosecuting," he said.

Smith said he would not comment on the evidence or "merits of the case."

He said he was not pulling himself out of the case because of the amount of money he could win. "I wouldn't have filed it if I didn't think I could win," he said.

"That's unethical," he said. In response to Webb's criticism, Smith added, "I think his comments are improper and unethical because he's commenting on the merits of the case, and he's trying to try the case in the newspaper."

Last October Hofffield filed a complaint in Twin Falls Magistrate Court charging the sheriff with mistandaring public funds.

Smith, a Twin Falls city councilman, said he did not think prosecuting the county sheriff would affect Smith's political career, even though a large percentage of county residents voted support for the sheriff in an election last November.

Hofffield added the charge that Corder falsely signed vats saying he turned in 311 office fees on Jan. 11, 1974; April 5, 1974; July 5, 1974; Oct. 11, 1974; and Jan. 10, 1975.

Smith's second term ends in three years, he said. Smith also served as county prosecutor from 1970 to 1972.

During the hearing, Hofffield presented affidavits for the warrants preceding those dates. The affidavits showed how much money was turned into the county auditors on those dates. On each affidavit was an oath, signed by the sheriff, saying the affidavits were "the true, correct and complete statement of all fees" collected in the sheriff's office.

Smith, county zoning commissioner, said he would not call for a delay in the case to study the preliminary hearing transcripts and evidence already presented.

But Hofffield later argued the sheriff never turned in copying machine funds collected from his office during these quarters.

County Commissioner Merl Leonard said the state attorney general's office declined to take up the case because of a conflict of interest. Officials from the attorney general's office have Fourth District Magistrate Judge Robert G. Newhouse, who presided over the preliminary hearing, last month ordered the sheriff to face the felony charges in district court. Sixth District Judge Arthur J. Silver, Pocatello, has been appointed by the Idaho Supreme Court to hear district court proceedings.

Light snows expected in Valley

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and Northdale areas: Considerable cloudiness through Friday. Chance of light snow this afternoon through Friday with light snow by this afternoon, tapering off by tonight. High temperatures Friday in the 20s and overnight lows zero to 10.

Snow fell over the Magic Valley Wednesday with amounts very light. Temperatures through the early morning hours were much higher than Wednesday morning. At 8 a.m., most temperatures had climbed into the 20s in Magic Valley. General cloudiness over the valley is being caused by a series of weak weather disturbances moving over Idaho. Another weak disturbance will keep cloudiness over the area today through Friday. More snow can be expected during the night. Amounts will generally be on the light side. The extended outlook Friday through Saturday. Mostly dry with high temperatures 25 to 35 and overnight lows 5 to 10.

Concrete in new AF Dam designed to last century

TWIN FALLS — The new replacement dam at American Falls will not have the same deterioration problems as the old dam and should last 100 years or more, according to engineering representatives.

"We are confident we are doing the best possible job with the concrete," Twin Falls engineer Thomas Schafer told the stockholders at their annual meeting at the College of Southern Idaho Tuesday.

THOMAS SCHAFER reports on dam

Schafer, one of the authorized representatives who keeps close tabs on the progress at the new dam site for the speculators building it, said the dam is designed to last at least 100 years and "we hope it will last forever."

He said a great effort was made by the contractors to find exactly the right aggregate which will make the proper concrete for the new dam to avoid chemical reactions and resulting similar to that which resulted in condemnation of the old dam.

According to Schafer, the dam is now 40 per cent complete and Gordon Ball Construction Co. has earned about $8 million of the total $22.94 million bid on the dam construction.

Only about $30,000 of that $8 million has been paid for extra work not foreseen in the contract, according to Schafer. And the parts of the dam where extra work is most likely to be necessary have been completed. He said it appears the dam will not exceed expected costs by any appreciable amount.

The contractors have taken advantage of fair weather during the early winter to do

California dry threat worsening

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The state's top water officials say California could be headed for its worst drought year on record in 1977 unless it gets some "substantial storms" soon.

Water Resources Director Ronald B. Robie told the Assembly Water Committee Tuesday California needs 80 per cent of normal rainfall.

Tradition falters

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Old style tradition has no place in the nation's third century as Richard Panza discovered when he attempted to clear $51 in back taxes by offering a snorting sow in payment.

Harmar Township District Magistrate Arthur Sabusky was not amused when Panza, a bearded 37-year-old farmer, offered Sarah, a 70-pound sow worth about $70 on the hoof, in payment for his back taxes.

Sabusky sent Panza to the Allegheny County Jail but ordered his release six hours later when informed Panza's wife, who was not feeling well,

Olympic panel backs money for amateurs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special White House Olympics commission, which is a powerful but non-governmental Central Sports Organization created and U.S. amateurs are expected to enjoy embroiled and any other activities except actual athletic competition.

These were the most revolutionary recommendations among a series of wide-ranging proposals in a final report of the President's Commission on Olympic Sports submitted to President Ford and President-elect Jimmy Carter.

The suggested new Central Sports Organization (CSO) would supplant the U.S. Olympic Committee as the national supervisory body for competition at the Olympic Games and water down control of amateur athletics by the AAU and the NCAA.

The recommendation to allow payments to U.S. athletes without costing them their eligibility was contained in a section on amateurism. The report, which will be unveiled Thursday at news conferences in New York and Los Angeles, declared: "The commission believes that an amateur athlete should be able to accept all sports-related revenues except those offered for competition itself."

The 22-member commission including such Olympic stars as Micki King Hogue, Donna de Varona, Rafer Johnson, Bill Tomiko, Ernest Vandeweghe and Willie White conducted a two-year study of the feud-ridden U.S. amateur situation at the behest of Ford.

The 600-page report, including hearings on each of 30 Olympic committee sports, said: "In international sport... American performances are deteriorating. Against athletes from nations for whom Olympic medals are as precious as moon rocks, U.S. competitors seem to have steadily diminishing chances of success."

The panel, headed by Gerald B. Zornow, chairman of the board of Eastman-Kodak, urged an array of government and private enterprise programs to get the United States on a winning track for the upcoming 1980 winter and summer Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y., and Moscow.

This included:

- A system of sport-by-sport national governing bodies, representative of everything from luge to basketball which would provide the underpinning of the Central Sports Organization. The report said "autonomy for each sport is the intent of the commission, based on the premise that wrestlers can best decide what is good for wrestling, track and field participants for track and field."
- A congressionally legislated bill of rights for athletes to prevent their being unfairly disqualified for Olympic or U.S. competition by such ruling bodies as the AAU or the NCAA. Impartial arbitration or federal court action would be provided to protect individual athletes from suffering from jurisdictional feuds. "All organizations, it seems, are capable of unreasonably violating an athlete's right to participate in unrestricted competition," the commission said. "It is also clear that, regardless of promises to reform, abuses continue."
- Government programs to help finance and encourage amateur sports. These could consist of raising revenues from the sale of commemorative Olympic coins and special stamps; an excise tax on pro sports tickets with the revenues earmarked for amateurs; a special tax checkoff for contributions to amateur athletics; special tax credits for parents or athletes to partially cover training and travel expenses; permission for government agencies to allow "broketime" payments for employees to train for the Olympics as the military services do now; a modified state lottery system to help build training facilities; more leeway for the armed services to enable their athletes to participate for the United States in international events; more funding by federal agencies for building training facilities throughout the country.

The commission estimated it would cost $215 million initially to set up the new Central Sports Organization and $20 million a year to keep it going thereafter. The final report also urged more to be done in encouraging world class athletes in a number of sports through national teams and training centers; better research in sports medicine; greater promotion of women in sports and special programs to help the handicapped become part of the sports effort.

The report cited the virtually unopposed state subsidies of Olympic and other athletes in other countries and the lack of any uniform international sports definition of amateurism in asserting the bars should be let down in this country.

"Either amateur rules should be altered or abolished so that our professional athletes can be unleashed on the rest of the world or the rules should be enforced equally, eliminating the opposition's full-time paid athletes," the panel said.

In addition to permitting endorsements, the group recommended that American amateurs be allowed to be employed by firms involved in their sports, that payment for public appearances be sanctioned, that a professional in one sport be able to participate as an amateur in another, that both categories be eligible to compete against each other, and that an amateur, unsigned to a contract, be allowed to try out for a professional team.

The commission said the Central Sports Organization—required to hold an annual congress of delegates from the individual sports bodies—should be empowered to end jurisdictional conflicts.

The report commented: "The President's Commission on Olympic Sports finds that the rivalries and contentions among American sports organizations do not need to exist; they represent no inherent conflicts in the interests of the athletes or the people of the United States."

"The men and women who administer the various sports organizations are almost invariably sincere and self-sacrificing and have only the best interests of their sport at heart. Both they and the athletes are the victims of a gawky, uncoordinated collection of programs unworthy of being called a system."

The report concluded: "The commission fears that in the absence of responsible self-regulation, American sports organizations will inevitably be regulated by federal law. The commission believes American sports organizations are capable of responsible self-regulation, given the proper alterations in structure and the installation of the appropriate checks and balances. The commission's organizational recommendations are a mechanism to achieve this end, toward a gratifying vision of unified American sport."

What's important, success or ideals?

By JEFF SHEER
Times-News writer

The US showing in the last two Olympics has prompted quite a bit of hysteria about our tarnished national pride, and one of the results has been a government study on what can be done to improve our Olympic performance.

The recommendations of the Special White House Olympics Commission are now being studied, and if those recommendations are followed they will probably result in the desired end, more US medals at the next Olympics.

However, those recommendations also raise good doubts about the future of the Olympic ideal in America.

The commission would make it easier for our standard bearers to compete with the year-round, essentially professional, often government subsidized athletes of other countries by allowing them to accept money for endorsements or salaries from sports equipment manufacturers.

But what type of athlete will this approach produce in the US? Will our runners be representing the US or the company that makes the shoes they wear?

Will the typical American athlete of the future be a combination competitor-salesman, and will there still be any chance for the athlete who competes just for the joy his sport brings him?

Will this system of subsidized training result in our best possible effort, or will runners be forced to use inferior equipment in competition because of contractual agreements with their sponsors?

The commission would also like to protect athletes from being the victims of rival athletic organizations scrambling for power by establishing a Central Sports Organization as a supervisory body for Olympic competition.

Will this result in a more equitable qualifying process for the athletes, or will this organization, which the commission recommends should be non-governmental but which will require $215 million to establish and $83 million a year to run, be more responsive to the political demands of success than the problem of athletes?

The fact that a governmental commission was established to deal with our Olympic problem (if you can call it that) is a total medals-won problem and the fact that the commission recommended that we establish a huge centralized organization to manage our Olympic effort raise some question about the motivation behind the effort.

Is this the solution to the problems our athletes face, or is it an attempt to bolster our national image with more medals and soothe our damaged national pride?

Can a political institution, even in the pristine realm of amateur athletics, serve ends other than political ones? Do our athletes even have a problem?

The Olympic ideal assumes athletes dedicate themselves to the goal of excellence for its own sake in their chosen field of competition. The struggle or process is supposed to be its own reward, and victory merely the icing on the cake.

Are our athletes dissatisfied with themselves for doing the best they can? Is the joy gone from the competition because they do not always win?

The Olympics are without a doubt the most important "amateur" athletic event in the world, but haven't we missed the point behind the Olympic movement if we value success more highly than the thrill and joy of competition?

76ers edge Rockets

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Lloyd Free scored 20 points, including four key foul shots in the last two minutes, to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 107-97 win over the Houston Rockets at the Spectrum Wednesday.

Houston, losing its sixth straight road game, pulled away to an early 16-4 lead in the first quarter, hitting the first eight shots of the game. However, the 76ers shot 50 percent in the second period to come within two points at 51-49.

The Sixers took their biggest lead at the end of the third quarter at 78-67, but had to hold on as the Rockets rallied in the last five minutes of the game.

Rudy Tomjanovich kept the Rockets in contention with his season high and game high 40 points, including 18 in the first half.

Julius Erving sank seven points in the last six minutes of the game to help Philadelphia maintain its lead. He finished second high scorer for the winners with 26 points.

Carey routs Mackay

CAREY — A hot-shooting Carey team routed Mackay 88-59 Tuesday night.

Carey shot 53 per cent from the field on the night, and outscored Mackay 56-42. Carey led from wire to wire, and in the process got a 20-point performance from Royal, 21 from Bame and 16 from Iwce.

Jim McKevey, 22 points, and his brother Jack, 15, packed most of the scoring punch for Mackay.

Denver Nuggets, employing a swarming defense and fast-break offense led by Dan Issel, ran to a 110-99 victory over the New Orleans Jazz Wednesday, despite a 27-point performance by Pete Maravich, the NBA's most prolific scorer.

Issel, a 6-9 center, scored 24 points, including 15 in the second half, and teammate David Thompson had 16 as the Nuggets scored their 20th home win against one loss. Denver, leader of the Midwest Division with a 27-12 mark, hit 45 of 95 free throw attempts in the game.

Painful break

BOSTON lost more than a basketball game Wednesday night as Celtic guard Charlie Scott hit his left forearm on the backboard and broke it in two places as Boston dropped a 113-101 decision to Indiana.

Celtics lose game and Scott

BOSTON (UPI) — Hot shooting Billy Knight pumped in 15 of his game high 35 points in the fourth period Wednesday night to help the Indiana Pacers to their sixth straight victory, a 112-101 win over the Boston Celtics.

The loss, coming on the eve of Dave Cowens' return, cost the Celtics the services of guard Charlie Scott — who broke his left forearm in two places in the first quarter.

The victory put the Pacers over the 500 mark for the first time since early November.

Dan Roundfield added 18 points while Wil-

Jones and Dave Robisch had 13 points each for the Pacers. Jo Jo White led Boston with 30 and Tom Baswell added 22 for the Celtics, who dropped back to the 500 mark.

Knight, who has scored at least 30 points in six of the past 10 games, got 19 in the first half as the Pacers took a 56-49 lead at intermission.

Boston, in foul trouble throughout the game, closed the gap to six points, 83-77, early in the fourth quarter. But Knight hit two three-point plays and accounted for nine points in an 11-2 Indiana spurt to put the Pacers ahead, 94-79.

MV teams prepare for powerful foes

MAGIC VALLEY — Minico and Twin Falls remain in the Southern Idaho Conference while Burley entertains a pair of Eastern Idaho Conference foes in area A action this weekend.

Minico plays host to powerful Highland Friday and Bonneville Saturday while Twin Falls, which will contend without two usual starters, will entertain Meridian Friday and travel to Boise Saturday. Burley will entertain Blackfoot and Rigby.

Twin Falls prospects dimmed a little Wednesday when 6-4 junior forward Dave Nutting showed up at school on a pair of crutches due to a badly sprained ankle in a P.E. class. The Bruins' top gun, junior guard Dave Weller, has been felled by the flu and while Coach Ben Watson anticipates the youngster returning by the weekend, only then will he know how much action Weller will see.

In addition, Bob Latham, the other starting guard, had flu early in the week but should be close to healthy by game time Friday.

With Nutting gone, Coach Watson said he'll try 6-5 senior Todd Corder at the vacated forward spot.

Despite the rash of bad news, Coach Watson felt there was some good news.

"I think the Bruins are starting to pull away from the mental mistakes... that have been killing us," he said. "I think we're starting to come around in that department."

Height will be a problem for both Twin Falls and Minico this time out, although in varying degrees. Twin Falls should be as tall or taller than Meridian with the key there being to stop guard Doug Kirk; Saturday night Twin Falls will see two men in the 6-5 area at Boise plus a couple of good scoring guards.

Minico will be seeing the tallest average team and the tallest man, Highland has the sky scrapers with 6-9 Mark Stroud, 6-4 Larry Tobler and a 6-7 Junior. Saturday night, Bonneville brings the SIC's leading scorer, Bradton into Burley. He is averaging 26 points per game in the SIC. But after Brugli's 6-10, Bonneville has little backup height.

A-4 cage leads up for grabs

The early-leads in both of Magic Valley's A-4 conferences plus a "rumsit" battle in the Big Six league highlight this week's basketball action.

Oakley will be at Murtaugh in the Magic Valley league while Carey is home to Camas County in the Northside alignment and the two Friday night winners will have a good leg up toward a title. At least, action thus far indicates, they should be the teams coming closest to filling "championship" potential in the league.

Meanwhile, Kimberly returns a trip to Glenns Ferry with the loser of that one falling two games behind pace-setter Filer. Kimberly won the first meeting 49-47 but this time around may be looking at senior Dan Sims, the 6-5 Pilot center who has been out of action almost all this year due to an ankle problem.

How much Sims can play remains to be seen. His ankle was casted and rested for three weeks and given a medical green light Dec. 30. Coach Gordon Brown elected to hold him out of last week's action as a further healing hedge.

The South Central Idaho Conference has a couple of games slated. One takes Bull to Gooding and both currently are undefeated in league action. The other finds Mountain Home coming to Jerome. Jerome still is waiting for its underclassmen to "start shooting like they do in practice" but in the meantime, Rick Hillier, the senior guard, isn't shooting enough and Jerome isn't getting enough points to become a consistent winner.

In another place, the Hansen Huskies will be at Declo where the Hornets are 1-0 in the league while Hansen is 0-2. Hagerman, knocked off in the closing seconds by Murtaugh, will be at Raft, River, which lost an overtime decision to Declo. The loser will fall two games off the pace.

On the Northside, Carey has a good head advantage on Camas County plus the advantage of playing at home. The Mustangs' work is cut out for them.

Dierich, takes its point potential to Bliss and things should be about even in the height department. Gooding State will be at Richfield for the other league game.

Filer, which is undefeated in the Big Six, is currently winless (0-2) in the SCIC. Wood River, similarly hasn't won in the league. So the cellar-dweller battle lines thus far in a season are drawn.

Saturday night, the Big Six has a full slate. Wendell will be at Shoshone while Kimberly travels to Filer. Valley will be home to Glenns, Ferry.

Richfield will be at Camas County in the lone Northside league game.

In the SCIC, Wood River entertains Gooding.

Renee Richards drafted high

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dr. Renee Richards, the transsexual female tennis player who was barred from playing as a woman in the U.S. Open, was selected Wednesday in the first round of the 1977 World Team Tennis player draft by the Pennsylvania Keystone.

Richards, a 42-year-old ophthalmologist from Newport Beach, Calif., has indicated, however, that she will not play in the WTT unless the Women's Tennis Association sanctions her to play on its tournament schedule.

Although Pennsylvania holds the rights to Richards for WTT, it was not immediately known whether she will compete in the season which begins in April.

Wendy Turnbull, a 23-year-old Australian, was chosen by the San Diego Friars as the first player picked in the draft.

Nancy McNeil from Chevy Chase, Md., who teamed with Sherwood Stewart to win the Grand Prix Masters Doubles title last month, was drafted by the Sea-Port Cascades.

Nuggets top Maravich & Co.

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Nuggets, employing a swarming defense and fast-break offense led by Dan Issel, ran to a 110-99 victory over the New Orleans Jazz Wednesday, despite a 27-point performance by Pete Maravich, the NBA's most prolific scorer.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are likely to have some delay in putting in motion a creative plan of importance. Later in the day you have an unusually beneficial afternoon and evening, for which unexpected circumstances arise giving you a chance to plan a campaign of action which will be very beneficial.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) After a frustrating morning you can trust your hunches later and get ahead faster in your career. Handle responsibilities intelligently. Placate the one you love who is in a poor humor.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to exercise patience at home and elsewhere because nothing seems to be working out well during the day. By evening everything clears up. Happiness is possible then.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Wait until afternoon to keep an appointment or have business dealings since the morning would yield you little. Get busy at statements and correspondence. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't be depressed over finances in the morning since you see how to improve them easily in the afternoon and on into the evening. You can consult a good adviser before the sun goes down. Be clever.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you do not argue at home during the day, you find that all goes well and that you can entertain there happily in the evening. Study into new projects that can be lucrative for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of worrying about any problems you have, get busy and do something constructive about them. Late afternoon is best for visiting with others. Avoid work that is too strenuous for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Late afternoon is best for searching out the data you need. Take time to visit with friends in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to make those changes that will help you have a smoother turning life in the future. Steer clear of irate persons in the morning and then the afternoon can be a happy one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may feel stymied in the morning, but don't get impatient or you will lose out on fine benefits that favorable planets can bring you. Solve some problem early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Any new beginnings are best handled in the morning. Evening is best time to make needed changes. You may find a friend very trying early but later all works out fine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You tend to be confused during the morning hours, so get hold of yourself. Later, you can make up for lost time. Be sure to use tact in handling a credit matter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen carefully to what new contacts say and later you can use your own good judgment, too. Seek out the information you need regarding a new venture and then it can become successful. Take no chances with your reputation.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

Almost 50 years ago, a story appeared in one of the more sensational Sunday supplements about a little girl who was rescued from drowning by a dolphin-after she fell out of a boat off the coast of Australia. The deesse animal reportedly bumped her along the surface all the way to shore. Most sophisticated readers regarded it just another one of those ridiculous tales that originated at the time from exotic places where the facts could not be checked out. Another such yarn came along about 25 years ago. In this one, dolphins conveyed a strong swimmer through shark-infested waters to safety on Chile's shore. More recently, correspondents in South Africa say two dolphins turned up alongside a woman whose boat capsized in the Indian Ocean. She allegedly swam with their help, likewise as sharks circled, about 25 miles to a buoy. Can you buy any of these amazing accounts?

TWINS

Q. "How do you account for the fact that the percentage of twins worldwide is rising?"
A. A lot of premature twins, who previously might not have survived, are being saved now. And the surviving twins breed more twins.

Q. "You know what a dyspeptic is. Somebody who doesn't digest food readily. So what do you call somebody who's just the opposite?"
A. A eupptic, says our Language man.

Q. "Where does Japan's Hirohito rank down the line on that lengthy list of the country's emperors?"
A. He's 124th in an unbroken dynasty that dates all the way back to 600 B. C.

GLANDS

Your stomach contains 35 million glands. Remember that, young lady, I don't want to have to tell you more than once. Or even think about it again, for that matter.

Contrary to previous reports, deaths at railroad-highway crossings have been fewer and fewer in recent years. In 1966, there were 1,780. In 1975, down to 610. This data comes from a seasoned railroad man who points out that the lowering fatalities are particularly significant in light of the fact that so many more cars are on the road now.

What, you say you can't read without your glasses? Poke a pinhole in a piece of cardboard. Look through it as you raise the print to within an inch or two of your eye. You'll see, the letters will stand out quite clearly.

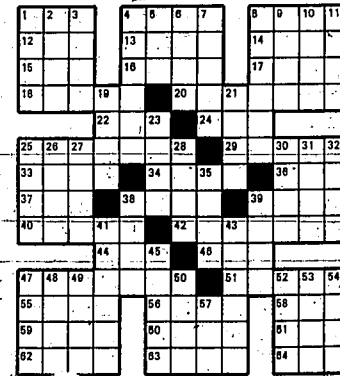

It's technically possible right now to rig a new house electronically so it will never need to be dusted, mopped, vacuumed or whatever.
