

'Mr. President'

HISTORIC OATH of office is administered to Jimmy Carter, right, by Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger at noon in Washington, D.C. today. Upon repeating the oath, Carter became the nation's 39th President. Mrs. Carter watches the ceremony, which was conducted in chilly weather. Despite the adverse conditions, thousands watched both the rite and the following inaugural parade. Balls and other festivities are scheduled tonight. (UPI)

Carter takes US presidency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter today intoned the solemn oath of the presidency and asked the American people to go forth with him into the nation's third century with "a new beginning... a new dedication... a new spirit."

In a simple ceremony almost as old as the Republic, the Georgia dirt farmer — echoing the populist theme that swept him to victory over an incumbent — acknowledged the awesome burdens he faces as the nation's 39th president.

"You have given me a great responsibility, to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are," he said.

"Let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together — confident that in the end we will triumph together."

Carter, his right hand on a Bible given him a few months ago by his mother, "Miss Lillian," intoned the same 35-word oath of every president since Washington in 1789 — swearing to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The oath was administered by Chief Justice Warren Burger moments after Vice President Walter Mondale was sworn in by Speaker Thomas O'Neill.

Carter's address broke no new ground: It was a philosophical speech, gentle in tone but firm in its commitment to human dignity and the American dream. He urged moderation in striving for that dream — lest the natural resources of a great nation be drained.

"More is not necessarily better," he declared. He rattled no sabers, but said U.S. military strength must be "so sufficient that it need never be proven in combat."

He pledged that America will be "ever vigilant and never vulnerable, and we will fight our wars against poverty, ignorance and injustice — for these are the enemies against which our forces can be honorably marshaled."

Carter, as is his habit, awakened early on his big day. With President Ford at his side, Carter rode in a black limousine up Pennsylvania Avenue, "The Avenue of Presidents," to the U.S. Capitol for the inauguration ceremony.

Yet to come before the rigorous day culminated at last in the White House where the 2½-hour parade back down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House, and the seven gala parties expected to draw 60,000 celebrants.

Ironically, it was two years ago today that Carter launched his million-to-one presidential bid with a speech in Baton Rouge, La.

Then he was "Jimmy Who?"

Now he's "Mr. President."

Farewell ends Ford's tenure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, reserving his final hours in office for those closest to him and his successor, said farewell to senior aides and Cabinet members today with a forecast that history will treat their record "kindly."

"I've enjoyed the White House mainly because of the fine people," Ford told about 75 outgoing officials at a final breakfast gathering. "The days were long, but they were lightened by the people."

"You all contributed to an administration I think was good and which history will treat kindly. I hope to see you all again; I believe the friendships we made here go well beyond Jan. 20."

Ford, speaking in the State Dining Room, then waved as he said, "Goodbye everybody. Thank you all very, very much," and made his way back to the Oval Office to tend to some last-minute business.

His other plans for ending 2½ years in the presidency were simple — welcoming Jimmy Carter in the White House with a cup of coffee at mid-morning and then joining the President-elect in a traditional motorcade to the U.S. Capitol for the noonline inaugural ceremonies.

Admonition?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter took his oath as President today on a Bible his mother gave him a few months ago, opened to what he termed "a timeless admonition from the ancient prophet Micah."

It read: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." (Micah 6:8)

House panel calls Bender on carpet

BOISE (UPI) — The House State Affairs Committee called Law Enforcement Director John Bender on the carpet today for reporting "rumors" of illegal activities on the part of legislators.

Bender told the committee he made the comments to a reporter to show how "ridiculous" it was for legislators to talk of a grand jury investigation because they heard "rumors" of a liquor bootlegging conspiracy in the state.

He said "you have to lower yourself to that level to let them know what you're talking about."

After a 46-minute hearing overflowing with speculators, Chairman John Reardon, R-Boise, said he would turn minutes over to the legislative leadership to determine if they want formal hearings on the question.

Reluctant nod for Bell's approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee, despite the bitter opposition of some blacks, recommended the confirmation of Griffin Bell as attorney general, completing committee action on Jimmy Carter's Cabinet nominees.

Bell, the most controversial new Cabinet appointment, was criticized by black leaders Wednesday for his school desegregation decisions while a judge on the 5th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals.

Nevertheless, the panel voted 10 to 3 shortly afterwards for his confirmation.

Mr. T-N says

'President Carter won't sound so strange in another week.'

Rhodesia eyes end to race bias laws

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — The ruling white Rhodesia Front party is considering a move to abolish all the nation's racially discriminatory laws, government sources said today.

The Front held a parliamentary caucus in Salisbury to discuss sweeping proposals to abolish all race laws, the sources said. Prime Minister Ian Smith, a Front member, was expected to announce what steps will be taken in a nationwide radio and television speech next week.

Cassia youth's death ruled 'accident'

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The death of 17-year-old youth shot between the eyes by his father who testified he was only "trying to show my authority" has been ruled an "accident."

A Cassia County coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that the youth's father, James Paul Tegan, did not handle the .357 magnum revolver in a "reckless, careless or negligent manner."

The six-person jury returned a verdict of death by accident in the shooting of James Leonard Tegan after deliberating one hour and 12 minutes. The verdict was read at 12:55 p.m.

Wednesday.

Cassia County Prosecuting Attorney Alford Barrus said the case is now "dead."

The shooting took place in the family home about six miles southeast of Burley just before 7:30 p.m. Jan. 12.

Paul Tegan said that he had fired the gun over the heads of his son and daughter, Tamara, 19, just minutes before the death "to see how high it'd jump."

He testified that he shoved the boy around while still holding the gun and pulled back his hammer with his thumb.

"To make a big impression, I pulled back the hammer, and dropped it," Tegan told the jury.

"I thought I had it pointed in the air, but I must have cocked it with my hand instead of my thumb," he said. "He just staggered back."

"I caught him before he ever hit the floor," he continued. "I knew he was dead."

The bullet struck the teen-ager, returning an hour later from an LDS Church mutual session, between the inner point of the left eyebrow and the bridge of the nose, according to Cassia County Deputy Sheriff Don Taylor, it was fired from about four feet away and at a slightly upward angle.

Tegan admitted having "a spontaneous temper," but added, "I was just trying to show my authority."

Tegan testified, "I wasn't that upset... I wanted him to think I was."

The .357 magnum six-shooter showed one empty chamber, followed by an empty casing, a full shell and another empty casing (under the hammer), then two more live rounds.

Tegan explained that after firing the shot over his children's heads, he apprehensively checked the single-action revolver again, then released it, automatically advancing the cylinder.

Backlash may slay ERA cause in Boise

By CHRIS PECK
Times-News writer

BOISE — Attacks on the LDS Church by pro-Equal Rights Amendment lobbyists in Boise have caused a backlash which may kill the ERA cause in the Idaho Legislature.

"This is the cruelest piece of lobbying I've ever seen," Sen. Richard High, Republican, Twin Falls, said Wednesday. "It was unbelievably stupid."

Sen. High consistently has supported the ERA in the legislature.

"I thought I could count 18 votes in the senate that would support the ERA. I don't see them now, after this lobbying effort," High added.

Louise Jones, a paid lobbyist for the ERA task force and the women's lobby, began Jan. 11 issuing press releases criticizing the Mormon members of the legislature for following the advice of LDS Church leaders to vote against the ERA.

(Related story, p. 3)

"This appears to be a definite lack of separation of church and state," Jones wrote in her first release. "The Jan. 11 release continued: "For that reason, we are requesting that all legislators who are of the LDS faith step aside when the vote is taken on this issue because of a conflict of interests."

Wednesday the ERA task force filed a complaint with the Secretary of State charging that the LDS Church failed to register as a lobbyist against the ERA.

Ten of the 35 state senators and 23 of the 70 representatives are Mormons.

"No question about it. This has hurt the cause of the ERA in the legislature," Senator High said Wednesday. "This is the very best example I know of dreadful lobbying."

Democratic Assistant Minority Leader Robert Kinghorn agreed today the pro-ERA lobby is doing more harm than good by attacking the LDS Church.

Kinghorn has also been a consistent supporter of the ERA.

"I think this is very distasteful," Kinghorn said. "To try to make a big issue out of this is wrong. Everybody knew the LDS Church's position beforehand. People here don't like this kind of strong criticism against any religious organization."

"I think the criticism of the Church could very well change a vote or two against the ERA," the Pocatello democrat added.

In the house, criticism of the pro ERA lobby was equally strong.

Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, and a member of the LDS Church said, "I'm sure Mrs. Jones has hurt her cause something terrible by this."

Twin Falls Rep. Tom Silvers said, "It's so ridiculous it boggles my mind."

However, leaders in neither the house nor the senate know of any effort so far to get an ERA rescinder into the legislature.

Rep. Gordon Hofffield, R-Jerome, and Silvers, both sponsors of an ERA rescinder two years ago, said they weren't planning similar legislation this year.

"I hope it starts in the senate this year," Hofffield said.

But in the Senate Leon Swenson, R-Boise, a sponsor of a rescinder in the senate last session, said he would not again sponsor such a measure.

Water vapor hints at life in space

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Astronomers have found the presence of water outside the Earth's galaxy for the first time, indicating the possibility of life in outer space, the Max Planck Institute of Astronomy said Wednesday.

The astronomers from the United States, France, and West Germany found rotating molecules of water with the help of the 108-foot Effelsberg radio telescope, the largest portable radio telescope in the world.

The Institute said the water molecules had a density of one for every 10 cubic centimeters and were located on the edge of nebula "IC 133," 2.2 million light years away or about one trillion times further than the Earth from the sun.

The discovery meant the possibility that other solar systems exist with the same physical conditions as our solar system — with planets and stars also formed by the condensation of dust and gas with the same type of life span.

The discovery also extends Copernicus' theory that the Earth is not the center of the solar system by suggesting that our solar system is also not the center of the universe, an institute spokesman said.

"One can expect to find planets which revolve around a sun and that may have developed similar environmental conditions," the spokesman said.

Simon Milton, of the Cambridge, Cavendish Laboratory, said the discovery of water vapor in another galaxy of about the same density as that found within the Milky Way will inspire scientists to look for vapor in more galaxies.

"Although scientists have long searched for evidence of water outside our galaxy, the discovery comes as no surprise, Milton said.

The Institute spokesman said the water molecules produced a laser effect, so named because the process resembles that produced in a laser beam. The molecules, when struck by light, cast off excess energy and like laser beams vibrate in unison giving off radio signals, the spokesman said.

Otto Hachenberg, director of the Bonn Institute for Radio Astronomy, said that there are "certainly conditions at some place which like on earth are suitable for life."

"What is decisive is that we find the same conditions of physical matter one billion light years away from earth as on earth," Hachenberg said. "That means that this matter exists in the same way as here and behaves in the same way."

It's President Carter now

He pledged that under his leadership the United States will move this year—a step toward our ultimate goal—the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth.

“We urge all other people to join us, for success can mean life instead of death.”

Carter pledged the “perseverance and wisdom” of his nation “to limit the world’s armaments to those necessary to defend the nation’s own domestic safety.”

He enumerated what he said were not his goals alone, but the “common hopes” of the nation he will lead into a third century.

Among the things for which he hoped his presidency would be remembered included:

— “A renewed search for humility, mercy and justice.”

— “That we had torn down the barriers, that separated those of different race and where there had been mistrust, built unity with a respect for diversity.”

— “Productive work” for everyone able to perform it.

— “A strengthening of the American family—the basis of our society.”

— “Respect for the law, and equal treatment under the law, for the weak and the powerful, the rich and the poor.”

“And that we had enabled our people to be proud of their own government once again.”

Carter noted that two centuries ago, America’s birth was “a milestone in the long quest for freedom.”

“But the old and brilliant dream which excited the founders of our nation still awaits its consummation. I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream.”

“The American dream endures,” he said. “We must once again have full faith in our country—and in one another.”

“I believe America can be better.”

“The passion for freedom is on the rise,” he said. “Tapping this new faith there can be no nobler nor more ambitious task for America to undertake on this day of a new beginning than to help shape a just and peaceful world—that is truly humane.”

Rupert planning panel gets push — RUPERT — Rupert may soon have a planning commission.

Mayor Wendell Johnson Tuesday night urged the City Council to turn attention to requirements around a comprehensive plan, even though it now is engaged in development of a 21-month budget.

The council authorized the mayor to “handpick and appoint a committee of 10 or 12” members to begin the planning process.

IVA D'AQUINO
... citizen again

'Rose' granted pardon

CHICAGO (UPI) — Iva Toguri D'Aquino, convicted as a “Tokyo Rose” who broadcast treason to U.S. troops during World War II, today is again an American citizen: a “cherished” privilege taken from her 27 years ago.

President Ford pardoned her Wednesday, returning her citizenship in one of his last acts in office.

The 62-year-old clerk at a Chicago Oriental shop thanked Ford “for his compassion and sense of fair play” and told newsmen, “The difference now is that I have regained my American citizenship, a right and a privilege I have always cherished.”

She was the only American among the seven women who were dubbed “Tokyo Rose” by American soldiers listening to the Japanese broadcasts of music and sweet talk in the South Pacific.

Mrs. D'Aquino was convicted Oct. 6, 1949, and sentenced to 10 years imprisonment and fined $10,000. She served 6½ years before being paroled in 1956. She finished paying the fine in 1975.

Upon her parole, she was threatened with deportation, which would have made her a woman without a country.

But she was allowed to stay and fought for 21 years for a pardon, making three separate requests.

“I have maintained my innocence from the very beginning and I consider the pardon to be a measure of vindication,” Mrs. D'Aquino said in a statement.

Mrs. D'Aquino never acknowledged the “Tokyo Rose” title and called herself “Orphan Ann.” She said she was trapped in Japan during the war and described her experiences there as “a living hell.”

“I had no way of getting out,” she said. “I can't swim, the Pacific.”

“I only mouthed the things that were written by the Allied prisoners of war,” she said. “Everything was turned over to the government. If you can find any propaganda material in that, I will give back the citizenship I gained today.”

“When the incident occurred three decades ago people were in fear of coming out in support,” she said. “But now the air has changed. This is due, I think, to the young people who are free thinkers. Little by little they started to separate the myth from fact.”

Death in Cassia ruled 'accident'

The victim had attended an LDS mutual. The father said that two youths—Gary Hodges and Mike Francis—appeared about 9:30 p.m. looking for young James.

The elder Tegan said his son had fought with one of them previously and he feared they would kidnap him. He said he got the gun out of a locked box for his son, but his wife talked him out of it.

Instead, Tegan sent Tamara to look for his son. She located James at the home of his uncle, Blake Tegan, and they returned in two cars.

Tamara said she heard a shot as she was just starting in the front door, with her brother on the steps. Tegan explained he often tried to surprise and startle his children.

Tegan testified that his son was to bring home an “adding machine” from the church mutual. A calculator was found lying on the floor near the body.

The father said he was trying to impress his son that he should have brought the calculator home right after church.

“I was a strict father,” he said. “I wanted him to be a good boy.”

Asked for the calculator, the boy returned to the car and brought it into the house. Mrs. Tegan testified her husband apparently had put the gun in his pocket because his hands were empty, but that she later saw glimpses of it in Tegan’s hand.

Tamara said she had gone to her bedroom and was singing to herself and putting her hair up in pigtails when she heard the fatal shot. Coming into the living area, she saw her brother in her father’s arms and called an ambulance.

“I played with that stupid thing (the gun) a lot,” Tegan said. “I wish I’d never bought it; I didn’t have any use for it.”

Tegan said he had kept the revolver unloaded until a few months ago, after someone told him an empty gun was dangerous because it might be loaded when thought empty.

He said he lived in the gun when he thought it was empty.

Barrus told the jury he and Coroner C. Bruce Young had ruled out first and second degree murder, as well as natural death and suicide.

The jury was left with the choice of accidental death or homicide, without the chore of determining whether the homicide was voluntary or involuntary manslaughter.

Jarvis asked questions about the provision of Idaho Code that sets out involuntary manslaughter for “operation of a firearm... in a reckless, careless or negligent manner.”

But it rejected that finding in favor of accidental death.

Care unit reopening nearing

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital hopes to have its short-term care unit reopened full-time soon.

The wing, which contains 25 beds, was closed at the height of last summer's nursing shortage to free nurses for more pressing tasks.

The wing was later reopened on a daytime basis for recovery use by outpatients undergoing minor surgery.

Nursing Director Nancy Churchman told the hospital board Monday night that the partial reopening had helped outpatient recovery care, but she said the hospital hoped to reopen the wing 24 hours a day within a month.

A hospital administrator James Rosenbaum also advocated the reopening, noting that MVMH had treated more than 100 patients in hallways during 1976.

“We obviously have enough patients to reopen,” Rosenbaum said.

While the board took no action on the reopening, board member Dwight Shaw did suggest that hospital patients receive a $5 reduction on their daily room bill.

Rosenbaum agreed to honor the suggestion but asked the board not to make it official, if the rate cut was official, patients might ask to be placed in the hall, he said.

Assistant administrator John Hayden told the board that outpatients who now use the short-term wing for daytime recovery from minor surgery are billed $25 for the first hour and $5 for each additional quarter-hour of use. This level of billing was enough to more than offset our direct costs,” Hayden said.

Actions studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Senators Frank Church and James McClure said they are becoming “more resigned to the fact that some legislative action” may be necessary to change bidding procedures recognized by the U.S. Forest Service.

The 1976 Forest Management Act provided that sealed bidding be used on most forest service timber sales but allowed flexibility for oral auction, the senators said.

Church and McClure said they are “not satisfied with the manner by which the forest service has chosen to administer this aspect of the law.”

“Although we recognize that the present interim regulation will be in effect only until April 1, the forest service is indicating an unwillingness to comply with the intent of Congress,” they said.

“We are becoming more resigned to the fact that some legislative action may be necessary to resolve this situation.”

The senators also said a report by forest service officials that only two Idaho communities are “dependent” on national forest timber for their economic survival, “simply does not square with the facts.”

Decisions may speed budget setting

BOISE (UPI) — House Republicans and the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee agreed Wednesday which may help clear the way for the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee to begin setting budgets for next year and speed up this legislative session.

After a 2½-hour caucus, the House agreed with the Senate Republicans that the Hay Plan for state employee salary administration should be implemented. House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said the caucus agreed the legislature should spend the $6 million Gov. Cecil D. Andrus budgeted for it but shied away from the term "least cost." He acknowledged, however, that the caucus probably will support Plan Number One, which is the same as the one the Senate referred to as "least cost."

Earlier Wednesday, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee introduced a bill to repeal four mills of the eight-mill county relief levy—answering a tax relief question posed by the joint committee. Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, told the lawmakers he understood at least part of the $8 million lost in local support revenue at the school level would be made up in an increased state appropriation for the public schools under the foundation formula.

Idaho Church lobbying complaint lodged

BOISE (UPI) — A lobbyist for women's rights filed a complaint with the secretary of state Wednesday accusing the LDS Church of violating the Idaho Sunshine law. Louise Jones, a spokesman for the Women's Lobby and the Women's Rights Amendment, said she was asking for clarification of the law as to whether the church is acting as a lobby and, if so, if it is exempt from registration. She said the law exempts representatives of a bona fide church from registering if they lobby "solely for the purpose of protecting the constitutional right to the free exercise of religion."

"We contend that the Equal Rights Amendment in no way threatens or interferes with the freedom of LDS Church members to practice their religion," Ms. Jones said. "We further contend that the LDS Church is engaged in lobbying according to the definition given in...the Idaho Sunshine law." She said it appears to her group that the activities of church leaders publishing statements by the Council of Twelve (a ruling order of the church), appearing at public forums and rallies jointly with some legislators and the promoting or organized letter writing efforts on the part of church members to legislators constitute lobbying. "A church spokesman said a complaint against one of the highest ranking members of the church is 'ridiculous' if the law does not prohibit a person from addressing a public meeting. Filed against Elder Boyd Packard, a member of the Council of Twelve, the complaint accuses him of speaking against the ERA before a group of legislators at a meeting called by the church in Pocatello Jan. 8 without having registered as a lobbyist. Don LeSevre, Salt Lake City, told The Idaho Statesman by telephone that the complaint is ridiculous. "Looking at it on the surface, it seems to me that you ought to be able, and I ought to be able, to speak our minds at a public meeting without having to register," LeSevre said.

Rule eased
BOISE (UPI) — Despite opposition from the State Board of Nursing, the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday voted to introduce legislation granting medical technical assistants at the prison exemption from the Nurse Practice Act. Don Erickson, state director of correction, said the Board of Correction was unaware the MTA's were violating the Nurse Practice Act until the Board of Nursing brought it to their attention. Eileen Merrill, executive director of the Board of Nursing, said this was discovered through reading of a Personnel Commission job description for MTAS. She said it was found they perform duties more properly and legally performed by nurses.

HAW home funds lack draws blast

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Larry Craig, R-Midvale, chastised the Department of Health and Welfare Wednesday for demanding a certain level of care in "shelter homes" but failing to ask for sufficient funding for them. "You are misrepresenting shelter homes," Craig told Welfare Administrator James Wilson, "because you demand certain levels of care in the homes and you come before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee with numbers and committee members' requests for funds." Craig spoke out during a meeting of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee at which a spokesman for the Idaho Shelter Home Association asked for help in getting a general fund increase of $345,000 next year. Apparent conflicts in shelter home information presented by Mel Fields, Lewiston, a spokesman for the association, and Wilson prompted sharp comments from several committee members.

Pound sinks lower, Britons resigned

LONDON — With the planned liquidation of the pound as an international reserve currency...

Britain has given up one more vestige of empire, one more symbol of its role as a world power...

There is less paradox in those statements than meets the eye. Britain has been struggling to become, in the term used by the American political scientist Richard Rosecrance, an "ordinary country..."

of its currency.

For, when foreign nations that are large holders of British pounds threaten to withdraw their funds from Britain, fear that the pound will go on sinking...

With a certain grim satisfaction, British Treasury officials today are saying, "Goodbye to all that."

Actually, the decline of the pound as an international reserve currency has been going on for a very long time.

By 1948, the part played by foreign currencies in official reserves had risen to 30 percent of the total, and of those foreign currency reserves the British pound made up 60 percent.

The decline in the role of the pound since 1947, when British pounds still constituted 16.7 percent of total official foreign exchange holdings...

The liquidation of pound balances by former members of the British Empire but by the explosion of dollars in the world monetary system.

A decade ago, total world foreign exchange reserves amounted to only $29 billion. They have since climbed to $176 billion, with United States dollars accounting for the overwhelming share of the increase.

Wolf arrives on US doorstep

Wall Street Journal

As you could judge from the title, the wolf is scurrying around like mad trying to pretend they have answers for a steadily worsening shortage of energy...

Their efforts would be almost laughable were it not for the economic risks and personal hardships the nation faces.

For example, the Federal Energy Administration is going to "speed action" on requests for allocation of propane to industries whose gas supplies have been curtailed.

And consumers faced with hardships can request allocations of light heating oils or propane from state energy offices. The FEA promises to "help clear up" any distribution problems.

While the FEA is shuffling its allocation papers and inviting shivering consumers to "submit requests," American industry is progressively shutting itself down.

The four major auto companies have closed a dozen plants and idled 56,000 workers in Ohio, Michigan and New York in part because of the gas shortages.

In Pennsylvania, where both consumers and steel mills are hit by the shortage, Governor Shapp has declared a state of "extreme emergency" and ordered natural gas suppliers to divert gas to residences from industrial users.

Some 1,600 families had to be evacuated from homes in West Virginia because of a drop in gas pressure. These are but a few examples of the impacts, and it will get worse before it gets better.

The Federal Power Commission, not to be outdone by the FEA, is also shuffling its papers.

It is "gathering information" about gas shortages through requests to 29 interstate pipelines. It finally acted last Friday to "speed action" on requests for allocation of propane to industries whose gas supplies have been curtailed.

Tanzania tries to make it

By MICHAEL T. KAUFMAN
N.Y. Times Service

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Groups of militant young men and women are running through the hamlets and cities of this country, passing burning torches in preparation for celebrations next month to mark the tenth anniversary of Tanzania's embarkation on its own road to socialism...

In the decade since then the effort has been marked by repeated exhortations by Nyerere to his nation to strive for self-reliance, to defer immediate rewards in favor of long-term payoffs.

The effort has also been marked by huge infusions of aid from China and the West.

Now, with the Tanzanian experiment almost 10 years old, questioning voices of Tanzanians and of foreign supporters are being raised.

Most acknowledge the 10 years is a short time to judge efforts to meet the awesome challenge of transforming Tanzania, one of the world's poorest countries.

They are aware that standards of efficiency suitable for industrialized nations have little application in a country of 16 million largely illiterate people with no significant natural resources save land and available labor.

But even the enthusiastic supporters of President Nyerere's vision, who continue to back it with gifts and loans, are troubled by indications that the gap between theory and practice is wide and perils growing.

They acknowledge that Tanzania has scored an impressive victory in its collectivization policy, in which nine million people, most of whom had been scattered in remote areas, have in the last four years been assembled in villages.

Where there is at least the possibility of consolidating services and encouraging cooperative ventures.

Nyerere would supplant the "man eat man" values of capitalism?
When I first came here I was very enthusiastic about President Nyerere's highly principled views...

African leaders is addressing himself to the future. He wants his nation to feed itself, not build senseless monuments. For him it is the countryside, not the cities, that is important...

Red tape gets 'em in the end

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Over the years I have watched new men come to Washington in one capacity or another in government. They arrive with fresh ideas. Their proposals are sharp and to the point, their words crisp...

I talk to these same men a year or so later. They speak in bureaucratized, find it difficult to come to the point. Their sentences are long and involved, their plans nebulous. They speak pompously of long-term gains and the need for a slow pace in pushing for change.

Some of these appointees come in rip snorting, shifting bureaucrats right and left, yanking officials almost blind, replacing them with others. Soon they find to their sorrow that nothing is different. For the bureaucracy digs in and the next layer takes the place of the old.

Some newcomers become discouraged, convinced that no one can get a handle on the bureaucracy. They go back home and resigning their posts and going back home.

Most newcomers, however, roll with the tide in the end. They become, as suggested above, more like Washingtonians than the bureaucrats Washingtonians and more like the bureaucrats than the bureaucrats themselves.

When a new department secretary and his assistants take over an agency, the established bureaucracy begins by slanting their way a host of perks — privileges, conveniences and special treatment. The newcomers find a variety of doors quietly opened for themselves and their families on a scale never imagined.

They find that officials rush to obey their slightest personal request. They are smothered with everything possible to build their egos, treated with deference. Overwhelmed.

In stage two they're briefed to the gills with endless sophisticated, elaborate briefings, complete with colored slides, charts and what not an every conceivable operation in which the agency is engaged. These briefings, in some agencies, occur daily and are carefully designed to obfuscate anything the briefers and their supervisors don't want brought to light.

The bureaucratic staffs follow through by making certain the newcomers are occupied with a myriad of details on everything imaginable. Every insignificant problem is brought to their attention for decision.

With all this, the time and energy the newcomers have left to deal with reorganization or with key agency problems are minimal. They must perform depend on the subordinates who have been there for years — the established bureaucracy.

When the new department secretary ventures into changes the bureaucracy does not want, he finds something has gone amiss here or there, and what he's requested or ordered doesn't happen. No one refuses to do what he's told: No one defies or argues. But little problems of one sort or another arise one after another — days pass, then weeks and months. Somehow the proposal slips disappeared into the woodwork.

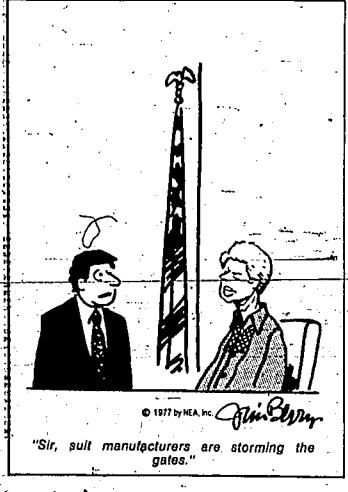

In the end it's changed.

President-elect Jimmy Carter's people may have the exception. But I am compelled in fact to agree with the thoughts expressed by Charles Kirbo, who's probably closer to Mr. Carter than any other man, as they appeared in a recent issue of the Washington Post under the by-line of Henry Mitchell:

"What would be the point of me in Washington? The minute you sit down you become part of it, start thinking the same things everybody else does, start listening to the consensus..."

Better TV movies desired

Editor, Times-News:
Something has been bothering me about national and local television for a long time and since this could be a year of fresh starts, I feel I must express myself now.
Since we live in the country with no cable TV available and quite poor reception of Boise channels, we are a captive audience of KMYT or don't watch any.
I must admit, I'm pleased they offer four good national news programs a day to choose from and the local news and weather is improving. They also air some very good wholesome family shows such as "Little House on the Prairie," "The Waltons," "Walt Disney," "Wide, Wide World of Sports," "Captain and Jackie," "Donny and Marie" and many others.

I'm thankful for these but feel they could offer many more when one counts up the far more numerous morally objectionable shows offered daily; most in prime time.
It seems lately that MOST of the Friday-night and Sunday night movies have had as main themes, violence, the occult or immorality in abundance and often condoned.
Now these are nights children are usually watching TV and why do they have to be shown before 10 p.m.? It seems to us that somehow KMYT could get a stockpile of good oriented movies to show in place of this network garbage, at least during early evening hours and if necessary show the others later.
One more thing bothers me a great deal and that is "network promotion" and previews of morally objectionable movies and excerpts from shows like "Rich Man, Poor Man," often using lurid details of the worst scenes again in prime time.

These previews are sandwiched in between good shows our children watch, sometimes a half dozen times in one evening, several days in advance of the show. Surely this isn't necessary or prudent.
Can't the local TV management work up a brief description of the plot and characters (not explicit) and some of these programs without this network sensationalized, often immoral, preview?
I'd like to hear some comments and suggestions from other Magic Valley viewers on how to get better and more enriching TV programs.

Editor, Times-News:
After just reading the letter in today's paper about the Equal Rights Amendment, I am wondering why these people are against simple justice for women.
There is a very real group putting on an intensive campaign to get the Idaho Legislature to rescind its affirmative vote. What in the world are these people afraid of?
According to this group, women will lose a lot of advantages they now enjoy, such as required support from the men in the family; the right to stay home and keep house and take care of children and the right to alimony or child support. These things are right now all at the discretion of the man concerned.
He "supports" his family as much as he cares to, and child support in a broken home is very hard to come by even when the courts order it.
Equal rights for women will not destroy the family. If parents feel for each other and their children they both do their best to keep it going in the best way possible. An equal rights amendment to our constitution will not change human nature that much.

If the family breaks up for one reason or another and the boy or man withdraws his help, as many, many do, the woman is faced with supporting herself, and if there are children she has quite a difficult time taking care of her children and earning their livelihood.
As she is doing this she is very really hampered by unequal justice, unequal pay, unequal opportunities, and very little help from the courts to correct the situation.
The draft includes women as it set up this date.
The buses and planes have common tolls. There seem to be no change in the status of these facilities in any of our public places.
The need for the ERA would make it much easier to point out or fight injustice. As it is now each little infringement must be argued out in each state which makes the process much more expensive and a great deal more trouble.
Many women say, "I have never had any trouble. I don't need equal rights." They probably are the fortunate ones. Many of us are, but should we close our eyes to these injustices?
Equal rights, simple justice cannot be wrong. If women have any areas of discrimination against men it is only simple justice to get rid of them. Women have been supporting their families as surely as men have.

When men are unable or unwilling to contribute, women have come to the aid of father and children. We must have our eyes closed if we haven't seen as many women being the mainstay of a family as we have men. Ideally both do their best.
Women are now educated and informed. They can plainly see that in many areas discrimination still exists. Our Congress recognized this, and passed this amendment. Some of our state legislators rallied it.
Some of the reactionaries have not, but at least half, if not more of the women in this country hope they will.
If you doubt that I will give you documented proof?
AS for this meeting that has been called to gain support for a rescind vote, is it really the women who are fighting equal rights or are they a front for those who don't want to appear to be against equal rights?
Why is anyone against equal rights?
JOY E. FREDENHAN Twin Falls.

HAW policy scored

Editor, Times-News:
I've been reading the articles about the Moon family in Hollister and I have the same feelings about the Idaho Health and Welfare Department that they have.
Two years ago I was expecting our fourth child and babysitting, which brought in $20 a week. My husband had just gotten out of the hospital and the doctors had told him he couldn't go back to his old job, and it was the middle of December so jobs were very scarce.
We went to HAW for help but all we got was a big run-around. We were able to get food stamps but we had to pay some out of our $20 a week. Finally after over a month or so of getting the run-around I came right out and asked them why we couldn't get any assistance. They told us it was because we were married. That really is great!
It seems that if you're divorced and living together HAW will help you. What do you think this is doing to our children? I think HAW had better start looking at the things they are forcing people to do in order to make it in these hard times.

I know of several people who have had the same thing happen to them.
We weren't asking them to help pay off our mortgage (Although they pay the mortgage for divorcees.) Would it have helped (if we were not buying our house)? All we wanted was help with utilities and a few necessities. I don't remember how we got through those hard times, but if it hadn't been for the grace of God we would have never made it.
I'm not saying that everyone that doesn't work should be able to go on welfare, but I think there are times when a family needs help; not just a divorced woman. Don't get me wrong, I think a divorced woman needs to stay home with her kids until they are in school, but I think they should look at the married person's side, too.
Thank you for listening to me, I'm really sorry the Moons lost their case.
CHRIS LAMP Filer

Rescinder favored

Editor, Times-News:
I just sent the following letter to Sen. Richard High. I am opening this letter to the people of Magic Valley to read.
May they, through study, inspiration and action, help to rescind the ERA. Now is the time for all God-fearing men and women to respond.
Senator High:
Having lived in Idaho the past 25 years and in Twin Falls for 25 years, in your district for 17 years, a family man, father of 8 children, I would like to give you my views on the Equal Rights Amendment.
This Legislation, if passed by the United States of America, will do more harm for women and the family than good. Woman's rights are now protected by the 14th amendment and other bills now on the books.
ERA as written is too open and can be used by these in power to destroy this free country. I am sure you have heard of all the pitfalls by now.

I would only like to mention a few: possible draft into the armed forces, moral deterioration, homosexuals' right to marry and adopt children, complete tie-up of our courts regarding financial responsibilities of children in divorce. (This has happened in states that have a state ERA bill) and finally, the break up of the family.
If you will listen to the people of Idaho and your own district you will vote to rescind. As a concerned citizen of the United States of America, the State of Idaho, I also ask you to vote to rescind the ERA when it comes up for a vote in the Senate.

Quarterbacks to meet again

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Quarterbacks Fran Turkenton of the Minnesota Vikings and Ken Stabler of the Oakland Raiders, who faced each other in the 1977 Super Bowl, will meet one more time on national television.

During the football festivities earlier this month, Turkenton and Stabler taped an appearance on the "Donny and Marie Show" to be broadcast Friday night.

Turkenton has also agreed to serve as the first sports personality host of "NBC's Saturday Night" Jan. 29.

Senator scheduled for surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doctors told Sen. Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla., Wednesday night a spot on his right lung was cancerous, Bartlett's press secretary said.

Bartlett was to undergo surgery for removal of the malignant tumor today at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

He is expected to remain in the hospital for a week to 10 days.

Safety campaign launched

ROSEMead, Calif. (UPI) — A message from "First Mama" Holly Ford and a song by country singer Jerry Jordan Wednesday launched a safety campaign for citizen band radio buds to "look up and look out" while putting up antennas near electric wires.

Mrs. Ford reminded "all CB'ers to look up and look out and watch out for electric wires."

Jordan changed the words in his song, "Don't Call Me, I'll Call You," to add the line, "You may be closer to the Lord than you know if you don't look up and look out."

Carol named in suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Carol Lawrence, who starred in West Side Story, was sued for $125,000 by her former manager Wednesday for money he says she owed him for nearly 13 years.

Harry Romm of Miami Beach, said in papers filed in State Supreme Court in Manhattan that the 42-year-old actress has refused to pay him $75,000, or 15 per cent of her gross income while he was her manager and another $50,000 for his expenses.

Patty gets new 'pep'

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (UPI) — Patty Hearst has acquired an 85-pound German shepherd, trained by a police dog specialist, named Arrow.

Miss Hearst, who said when she was freed on bail that she wanted a pet, brought Arrow home a few days ago after two weeks of training at the home of former San Mateo County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Outman.

Pay hike questioned

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Rep. John Rhodes says he feels kind of "sleazy" about accepting a 20 per cent pay raise and thinks Congress "at least ought to vote on the issue."

"I think it's chicken not to vote on it," Rhodes, R-Ariz., told a citrus growers convention Wednesday.

"If we deserve a pay raise then we ought to vote on it and then go back home and explain why we did it."

"To the people back home, it is like doing something under the table, something sleazy behind people's backs. I kind of feel that way of myself."

The pay boost for Congressmen, federal judges and other top government officials will go into effect automatically unless it is vetoed by either the House or Representatives or the Senate.

Musician raps 'Yankee' party ideas

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country-rock star Charlie Daniels says an organizer's suggestion that he churn out cocktail music for Jimmy Carter's inaugural reception tonight "just goes to show you how stupid Yankees are."

Daniels said he will not change one note of his show, which will end with the hit song "The South's Gonna Do It Again."

"I'm not going to change my act just because Washington folks party with martinis in their hands," he said in a telephone interview. "If they don't like it they can leave."

"I despise stuffy people and there ain't no way I'm going to take any guff," Daniels snapped. "I got a mouthful of insults ready if any of 'em tries to heckle me."

Daniels obviously relishes his barroom-busting, doped-smoking image. He dedicated his last album to "gut-roting whiskey and Saturday night, and pistols and poker and hellacious fights."

He does not say whether Carter approves of that image, but the new president definitely was grateful for the "hundreds of thousands of dollars" that Daniels' benefit performances contributed to his campaign chest.

"Let's just get this straight," Daniels said. "Carter don't owe me and he don't owe anyone. I don't want anything out of what I done except a good president and that's what he's gonna be."

School levy repeal eyed

BOISE (UPI) — House taxwriters Wednesday voted to introduce legislation to repeal permanently four mills of the eight-mill county school levy.

They were not unanimous in voting to introduce the bill, however, when it came up for consideration before the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Rep. Russell Westenberg, D-Soda Springs, recommended the four mills be offset in the public-school appropriation and that local officials be given the decision of whether to levy four or eight mills.

Tax Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee asked for guidance on what the taxwriters planned for the four mills of property tax relief. Antone said the "feeling is the four mills being repealed will be replaced through the foundation program."

The legislature the past three years has reduced the levy temporarily by four mills and replaced the lost revenue with surplus state monies.

Hard liquor stamp asked

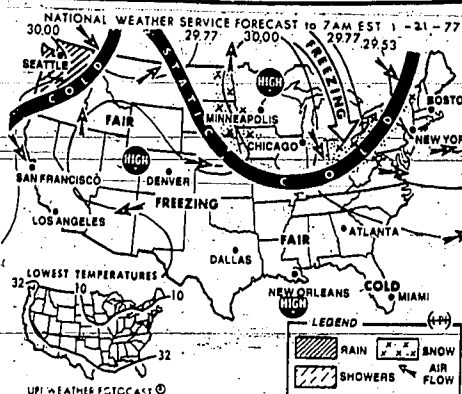

BOISE (UPI) — The House State Affairs Committee agreed 115 today to introduce legislation requiring an Idaho liquor stamp be placed on all bottles of liquor sold in the state.

Rep. James D. Golder, R-Boise, brought the measure before the committee yesterday. He felt it would help to cut down on bootlegging of liquor from neighboring states where it is cheaper.

He said the stamps — once required but later discontinued by executive order of the superintendent of the State Liquor Dispensary — would cost about $150,000 to $200,000. He said he believed this would be made up and profits increased beyond that cost through use of the stamps but gave no figures.

Landlord-tenant bill due

BOISE (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee agreed Wednesday to introduce a new landlord-tenant bill. Its sponsors said it has basic backing from landlords, tenants and others involved.

Rep. James D. Golder, R-Boise, a spokesman for those who drafted the measure, said the bill has been "beat around, shoved around and kicked until basically it meets objections of most of the people involved."

But, he added, "I've never find anybody agreeing 100 per cent with landlord-tenant legislation."

Stanley Samuelson, Boise, a commercial fisherman who has five rental units in Boise, was one of those who disagrees with the sponsors. He said this bill is better than some he has seen in the past seven years but said it still is a "mishmash of laws."

He contended it would throw agricultural rentals into the same category as city rentals, provides for treble damages which seldom are imposed and said it is an attempted "up-peacement" of Western Legal Aid, one of those who helped write it.

Because Western Legal Aid is funded by the federal government, he said, it will try constantly to get a national landlord-tenant act on the Idaho code books.

Pocatellan fights plea

BOISE (UPI) — A Pocatello man sentenced to life in prison Wednesday for killing his wife, pleaded guilty while under the influence of prescription drugs and now wants a trial.

Lloyd C. Cobb, 44, was accused of shooting his estranged wife, Patricia, with a .45-caliber pistol while she sat at her desk as an administrative aide to acting President Charles Kegel of Idaho State University, Oct. 1, 1975.

Mrs. Cobb, 38, had filed for divorce from Cobb, a self-employed horse trainer, after 13 years of marriage.

Seven warm ideas for winter's coldest days

- 1. Insulate. Check your attic insulation first. Be sure that you have at least 6", preferably 10". Then check out your walls and foundation for adequate insulation.
- 2. Weather Strip doors and windows. Cold air might be coming in through the cracks around windows and doors. You can stop it by weather stripping.
- 3. Storm Windows. They will cut in half the heat that is lost through the windows.
- 4. Close your fireplace damper when not in use. Better yet, consider installing glass doors.
- 5. Close draperies at night. A closed drapery will reduce the radiative heat lost through the windows at night. When the sun shines during the day, open them for solar heat.
- 6. Turn down your thermostat at night. There are automatic timer thermostats available that will take the chore out of this energy-saving tip.
- 7. Have your furnace checked for efficient heating. Call us for assistance and service.

Accreditation loss threatens Idaho's law school

Limits pondered

By BILL LAZARUS, Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS—The University of Idaho Law School is likely to lose its accreditation unless it broadens its curriculum and improves its library.

According to Albert Menard, dean of the school, without American Bar Association accreditation, the school's graduates cannot take the examination for the bar nor practice law in Idaho or in the "vast majority" of other states.

More money, he maintained, can solve the school's problems. An accreditation team inspected the law school for three days last fall as part of a normal review which occurs once every seven years.

Frank T. Reed, dean of the University of Tulsa Law School and chairman of the four-man team, said today the team's draft report is confidential. He said he could neither confirm nor deny rumors that the law school may lose its accreditation.

But Menard said that in his personal opinion the law school is not likely to remain accredited unless it beefs up its program.

The team, he said, found the law school's staff and course offerings inadequate.

Also, he said, the library was found to be understaffed and to have an inadequate collection of books. Out of the 164 law libraries in the United States, University of Idaho's is ranked 161st, he said. The team, he said, recommended spending $100,000 to hire two more faculty members and an additional librarian and to build up the library's collection of books. He said the team did not criticize the quality of programs now offered.

"It's not ignorance on our part. We know as well as they do what we ought to be doing," Menard said. He maintained that boosting the law school's current budget of about $500,000 by $100,000 is necessary to solve the school's problems. The American Bar Association's section on legal education is likely to take action on the report, by the accreditation team, when it meets this February in Seattle, Menard said. Or, he said, action might be delayed until mid-summer. He said it's impossible to know what the committee will do. But he predicted the law school would likely be given just a few months to straighten out its program.

"Probably if we haven't done anything this time next year or a little sooner, they'll be hot on our tail," he said. He maintained "it's extremely important for the current session of the legislature" to fund the school adequately. Without accreditation, he said, there is no reason for the law school to exist.

The legislature could always make the "value judgment" that the school is not necessary, Menard said. He said, however, there is considerable demand by students to enter the school and there is demand for its graduates. The school, he said, accepts only 100 out of 650 applicants a year and all its graduates find jobs.

BEHUT (UPI) — An Arab League committee met today to decide in what areas of Lebanon a Palestinian presence will be permitted, the conservative newspaper Al-Bayraq said. The newspaper quoted "reliable" sources as saying the committee, presided over by President Elias Sarkis and grouping representatives from Syria, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, intended to define those areas.

CIA post proposed for Gavin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retired Army Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, former ambassador to France who opposed the U.S. role in the Vietnam War, has been recommended by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to head the Central Intelligence Agency.

O'Neill said Wednesday he recommended Gavin, vice President-elect Walter Mondale in a chat on Tuesday, the day after Jimmy Carter's renounce for the post. Theodore Sorensen, withdrew.

"He's a resident in my district (Cambridge, Mass.) but he is also able and talented and could handle the job," O'Neill said of Gavin. "This isn't a political thing, I'm not going to be upset if Carter nominates someone else; I just recommended him."

Gavin, 69, is a highly decorated World War II veteran who retired from the military in 1958. He is now chairman of the board of Arthur D. Little, Inc., a Cambridge research firm. He was U.S. ambassador to France in 1961 and 1962 and is the author of a book "War and Peace in the Space Age."

Gavin spoke out against U.S. participation in the Vietnam war and U.S. conduct of the war, particularly the bombing of North Vietnam.

Egypt riot toll at 40

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Antigovernment rioting has left more than 40 people dead and forced the government to call out army troops for the first time in 25 years to maintain order.

Police sources said the death toll in two days of rioting rose to 43 Wednesday as the fighting spread from Cairo and Alexandria to five other cities. About 600 people were injured and several hundred were reported under arrest.

Army troops took up positions at key points in the capital and the Mediterranean port of Alexandria to help police quell the outbreak touched off by government-ordered price increases on food and fuel.

It was the first time the army had been used in a civil disturbance since the "Black Saturday" riots of 1952 that preceded the overthrow of King Farouk.

Final calls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford spent part of his last full day in office saying farewell to world leaders by telephone. One such figure was Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, who talked with Ford for 35 minutes. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the calls to Brezhnev and other world leaders were "motivated by a desire to say a personal farewell."

DEAR ABBY: Approximately a year ago you ran an article about a mother who never made her own Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner. Instead, she went to the mother-in-law or mother-in-law's. She wrote to say that she wishes now that she had developed her own holiday celebrations.

That letter was terrific. It could publish it again, it would be a great help to a lot of people. Believe it or not, I am a grandmother who wishes my married children would make their own holiday dinner and invite me as a guest.

DEAR PAID: It wasn't hard to find, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to MY mother's or to MY mother's for Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner?" Your answer has always been: "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year—as our children are ready to strike out on their own—that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself, and then she complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for the dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't.

Abby, please urge young married to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

DOING MY OWN THING

DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to "Do their own thing," too. It makes a lot of sense.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FOR CENSORSHIP": I agree, there is an excess of garbage passing for "literature" these days; but this is what one great American champion of human rights had to say about "censorship" 176 years ago: "I am mortified to hear that the United States of America is a question about the sale of a book can be carried before the civil magistrates. Are we to have a censor whose imprimatur shall say what book may be sold and what we may buy?"

Shall a layman, simple as ourselves, set up his reason as the rule for what we are to read? It is an insult to our citizens to question whether they are rational beings or not."

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
By mixing a decaffeinated ground coffee in half-and-half portions with regular coffee, I tell myself that I'm only getting half the undesirable effects of drinking too much coffee. Am I correct in assuming this?

Also, what is your opinion of the use of hypnosis in quitting smoking? Is there anything a person needs to beware of in allowing himself to be hypnotized?

Dear Reader—
Each cup of coffee that you make from a half-and-half mixture of decaffeinated and regular coffee will only have half as much caffeine as a cup made the same way from regular coffee. Of course, if you drink two cups then instead of just one you are right back where you started.

Ordinary cup of brewed coffee usually contains between 80 and 120 milligrams of caffeine. A cup of instant coffee usually contains less, 66 to 100 milligrams and caffeine-free coffee is caffeine-free for all practical purposes.

About hypnosis, the important thing to be in the hands of a reputable individual. Ask your family doctor for his recommendation for one in your area if you really want to try it. Hypnosis will help some people quit smoking who really want to quit. If the person is not motivated to quit and really doesn't want to do so, the hypnosis may not help very much, if at all.

To give you more information on the caffeine drinks I am sending you The Health Letter number 1:1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
I have a problem that is about to curl my hair. While I understand calories, what is a gram? How many grams are in an ounce and are grams measured in solid as well as liquid measurements?

I have a diet list which says, one bread exchange contains 15 grams of carbohydrates, 2 grams of protein and 70 calories; one fat exchange contains 5 grams of fat and 45 calories, etc. etc. Food packages and cans are listing measurements in grams. Your answer will calm my mind and perhaps lower my blood pressure somewhat.

Dear Reader—
Isn't worth getting your blood pressure elevated over. It is just the system of weights in the metric system and is just like learning to change money into foreign currency.

Everyone is going to need to do this in terms of food because you are right, the information provided to the public will be mostly expressed in grams. That is what we commonly use in nutrition and it is that being passed on to the public. The future cookbooks will one day list all recipes in grams and milliliters.

A convenient benchmark is that 2.2 pounds equals one kilogram. A kilogram is 1000 grams. If you bought meat at the butcher shop in Europe it would be sold to you by the kilogram, or so many grams. It follows that a kilogram is 35.2 ounces. An ounce contains 28 grams. Another convenient transition point is that three-and-a-half ounces—a common measurement for one serving—equals exactly 100 grams.

Grams and kilograms are weight measures and you can use them to express the weight of anything.

RIO DE JANEIRO—Despite the growing threat of a consumer boycott in the United States, coffee experts in Brazil believe that prices will remain high and may even climb higher.

Their assessment is based on the very real shortage in coffee stocks, not only in Brazil—which is the world's largest coffee producer—but elsewhere in the world as well.

Coffee exporters here are also under intense pressure from the Brazilian government to maintain high prices in order to earn sorely needed foreign exchange and help offset the country's balance-of-payments deficit.

The controversy over high coffee prices is taking place against a background of strained economic relations between the United States and Brazil. The Brazilians have run up billion-dollar deficits in their trade with the United States during each of the last three years and feel that Washington has done little to alleviate this situation.

Last week Camilo Calazans, president of the Brazilian government's Coffee Institute, predicted that world coffee prices would continue upward during 1977 despite the boycott campaign in the United States and attempts by U.S. importers to lower prices.

According to Calazans, coffee was "underpriced" in recent years because Brazil maintained huge stocks—as much as 75 million bags. (One bag equals 60 kilos or 132 pounds.) Stocks here have fallen to about 20 million bags, and Calazans warned that Brazil could reach 1978 with practically no stocks.

The origin of current shortages and high prices was a devastating frost in July 1975 that killed or crippled 1.5 billion coffee trees in Southern Brazil. Instead of a harvest of 22 million coffee bags, only six million bags were collected in 1976.

Agrarian experts calculate that it will take at least two more years before Brazil is in a position to produce its usual annual harvests of 22 to 28 million bags of coffee.

Although Brazil accounts for one-third of world production, coffee analysts initially believed that losses elsewhere would have partially made up for the precipitous fall here. But the crop in Angola went virtually uncollected because of the civil war there. In Central America and Colombia, droughts, floods and earthquakes resulted in bad harvests. The Ivory Coast, with four million bags, was the only major producer with no harvest problems last year.

Once the shortages became apparent, all the coffee-producing nations—and especially Brazil—resolved to take advantage of the situation.

The Brazilian Institute has repeatedly told exporters to press for high prices and ignore pressure from consumer associations. Abroad last year, Brazil also bought 730,000 bags of coffee stocks from El Salvador and the Malagasy Republic to prevent them from selling at cheaper prices on the world market.

Before the July 1975 frost—the worst in 50 years—the export price for coffee was less than $70 for the standard 60-kilo (132 pound) bag. The export price today is $220 a bag and rising.

Within Brazil—the second largest consumer in the world after the United States—the domestic price has tripled to about $1.60 a pound. That is still considerably lower than U.S. supermarket prices, but enough to raise a howl of protest here.

Brazilian coffee farmers have been receiving almost three times as much for their harvest today as compared to the pre-frost days. But—the biggest share of the price windfall has gone directly to the government's coffers through export taxes that have jumped from $21 a bag before the 1975 frost to $100 a bag today.

The logic of the export tax is that it prevents hundreds of millions of dollars from going into circulation here and fueling an inflation that reached almost 50 per cent in 1976.

Brazil earned $2.4 billion this year from coffee exports, which accounted for almost one-fourth of the country's total export. These exchange earnings were crucial because Brazil's foreign debt ballooned to $23 billion—the highest in the developing world—in the wake of the petroleum crisis and the recent world recession.

The Brazilian Coffee Institute was hoping to keep exports in 1976 down to 12 million bags. But under pressure from the government to help out on foreign exchange earnings, the coffee institute had to permit the sale of 15.5 million bags. The institute has again targeted 12 million bags for export in 1977.

Brazilian officials have displayed no public sympathy for consumer protests in the United States. A controversy has been raging here over attempts by the U.S. government and Congress to limit Brazilian shoes and other manufactured exports to the U.S. market. Under pressure from Washington, the Brazilian government has removed or promised to remove subsidies on these exports. But the feeling here is that the United States has not done enough to help offset the billion-dollar annual trade deficit that Brazil is suffering in bilateral trade.

This is not the first time that American consumers have been outraged over Brazilian coffee prices. Back in the 1950s, a consumer boycott led to a Congressional investigation and a sharp decline in the purchase of Brazilian coffee, whose prices were far above other producers.

The situation is different today, however. The major coffee-producing nations have been leaping forward each other in prices. And even if there is no outright collusion between producers, the price spread between them is not large enough to single out any one nation in a boycott effort.

Half cup, please

Agencies look toward 4th TV network

NEW YORK (UPI)—Advertising agencies are finding that there isn't enough prime time network television to go around, and two of them are trying to do something about it.

The term "fourth network" has been used to describe what Benton & Bowles and Ogilvy & Mather are planning, although the term really isn't accurate. There would be no network structure, at least not in the foreseeable future.

There would be no new channels for viewers to tune to—the "fourth network" would sign up existing stations in existing markets for its programs, to be sponsored by national advertisers instead of the local advertising usually seen on independent stations.

Both ad agencies are starting their thinking with Metromedia, a broadcast group, which consists of five independent stations and an ABC affiliate.

Metromedia has the technical equipment to supply programs to stations signing up for them, and the willingness to try to sign up stations for the project.

The advertising agencies have quite different plans, but they could dovetail if all goes well.

Benton & Bowles, with General Foods as a major interested party, would like to program two hours on Sunday nights of what Michael Liptner, vice-president and director of broadcast programming, calls "programming in the family dramatic vein, first run and of network quality, supported by budgets comparable to network budgets."

Liptner said the project would require 65-70 per cent station clearance, which would mean signing up just about all the nation's independent stations and a portion of the network affiliates as well.

The Ogilvy & Mather project calls for programming Monday through Saturday, 6-6:30 p.m., mountain time. The plans target an on October air date and would include 78 half-hours of Gothic dramas produced by Dan Curtis Productions, the folks who gave television "Dark Shadows" and, last year, ABC's "Trilogy of Terror" special.

The Gollies would run Monday, Wednesday and Friday, with made-for-television serializations of novels such as "Rebecca" and "Wuthering Heights" set for Tuesday and Thursday. Saturday would be comedy-variety time.

Lepner said, "Most advertisers could meet their needs with the current inventory, but we are looking toward the future. In a growing industrial economy, we will need more than the three networks can offer us."

The 10 top network television programs for the week ending Jan. 16, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co. were:

- 1: "Little Ladies of the Night" (ABC Sunday movie);
- 2: "Happy Days";
- 3: "Laverne and Shirley";
- 4: "Six Million Dollar Man";
- 5: "M-A-S-H";
- 6: "Charlie's Angels";
- 7: "Fantasy Island" (ABC Friday movie);
- 8: "One Day At A Time";
- 9: "The Little House on the Prairie";
- 10: "60 Minutes."

Lola Evans approaches life 'head on'

BOISE (UPI)—Lola Evans, the next First Lady of Idaho, said her approach to life is "head on" and that seems to be the way she will assume her new role as the governor's wife.

Looking forward to the job, she said, "I think I'm going to like it."

Mrs. Evans said she enjoys meeting people but dreads the possibility that she may have to start making speeches.

"Asked what social cause she feels close to, Mrs. Evans said, "I've always been partial to cancer—I'd like to help there."

The future first lady described herself as a person who likes "people and to be around them but sometimes I like to get away from the telephone for a short while—not a long time—to relax without the television and the telephone."

Although she doesn't think of herself as "outdoorsy" she likes to spend time at the family's cabin near Lava Hot Springs and is looking forward to starting downhill skiing with the two children still at home, Stacy, 13, and Tommy, 10.

But life in politics is not new to Mrs. Evans. Her father, Luther Daniels, was the Ononda County chairman of the Democratic Party and her grandfather was the mayor of Malad. A number of uncles were active in politics—county commissioner, legislator and state chairman of the Democratic Party.

To Lola Evans, politics was "never a big deal."

Asked how she feels about being the wife of a politician, she said, "I've been in it for so long—when John became lieutenant governor it broke me in for how much time it would take of him and I know it will be even more when he's governor."

"But we'll just have to roll with the tide—most of the time I like it—I enjoy meeting people," she said.

Mrs. Evans, a native of Malad, was a sophomore cheerleader when she started dating John Evans, a senior and captain of the high school football team. She said she had "no idea back then" that her Friday night date later would become the governor of Idaho.

Mrs. Evans married her high school sweetheart when "he was on furlough just before he went overseas."

Although her first attraction to John Evans, she said, was the fact that he was "a high school player—that really impressed me—since then we've been married 31 years and we've had a real good life together."

"We both respect each other's views and feelings and really enjoy being around each other," she said.

Mrs. Evans described her relationship with her husband as "very liberated—I've never had the feeling that I'm not equal."

"And I've always believed in equal pay for equal ability," she said.

In regard to the women's movement, Mrs. Evans said, "I've always felt like I've been liberated but then I've never been in the position of having to make a living for myself so I don't think my scope is as broad as it could be."

Asked how she looks at her role apart from her husband's, she said, "I think I have a completely different role as mother and a grandmother."

The future governor's wife said her husband likes to discuss politics with her. She said, "He listens to me then he goes ahead and does whatever he was going to do." But Mrs. Evans described her motto as "very diplomatic—he would never say I'm wrong."

Showing her sense of humor, she said she was surprised to find in a tour of the governor's mansion that the infamous $8,000 patio in the backyard was not made of gold bricks.

Mrs. Evans said, "I had heard so much about it I expected the patio to be made of gold bricks, but it's just a patio with a cover."

She described the mansion as "comfortable, very comfortable" and said she has no plans for redecorating it right now.

The Evans have five children. The three oldest are married and live in Idaho.

"David, 27, is starting a law practice in Malad. Mrs. Evans said he and his uncle, Don Evans, will keep the family business going.

John Jr., 25, lives in Salmon with his wife and two children. He works for Idaho First National Bank there. Mrs. Evans said

Andrus assets listed

BOISE (UPI) — Financial disclosure statements filed with the Senate Interior Committee show Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has a net worth of $107.615. The Lewiston Morning Tribune reported in a story for Wednesday editions. The Tribune said documents filed with the committee, which unanimously endorsed him for Interior secretary, show his total assets $127,455 and liabilities of $19,840. Assets include 2,000 shares of Sunshine Mining stock worth $23,000, 6,500 shares of Silver Syndicate worth $13,500, 25,000 shares of Silver Buckle Mines worth $2,250 and 40,000 shares of Placer Creek Mining worth $1,600. All of the mining operations are in northern Idaho.

When the Tribune asked when the stocks were purchased or profits realized, lawyer Leo Krullitz, a longtime political friend who will join Andrus at Interior, advised him not to disclose the information.

"It is my counsel that the governor does not have to disclose it and should not," Krullitz said.

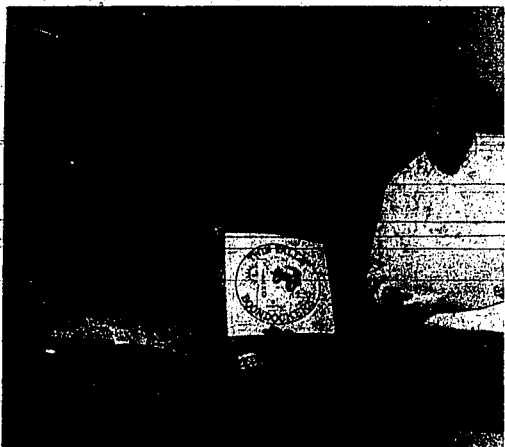

But Earl Rose, a broker at Piper, Jaffrey & Hopwood, told the Tribune that Andrus "has done very well" with his investments.

"He has a good sense of investment," Rose said, declining to disclose details. Andrus told the Interior Committee he will divest himself of all mining stocks "currently depressed because of a strike at the Sunshine Mine" within six months.

Although the governor has disclosed summaries of his personal finances during most of his years as governor the 1974 and 1975 statements filed with the Idaho secretary of state gave no indication of the mining investment.

Andrus' disclosure to the Interior Committee showed:

- Ownership of a lot and summer cabin on Cascade Reservoir in Valley County worth $45,000 and on which $7,800 still is owed.
 - A bank account of $43,500.
 - A margin loan of $10,000 at Piper, Jaffrey & Hopwood secured by the 2,000 shares of Sunshine stock.
 - Personal property worth nearly $21,000.
 - A life insurance cash value of $3,300.
 - A contribution value of $12,850 in Idaho's pension plan.
- As governor, Andrus received annual salaries of between $30,000 and $33,000. As secretary-of-Interior he will get $63,000.

Emblems examined

Northwest triumph lauded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said a major victory was scored Wednesday for the Northwest when the senate interior committee retained jurisdiction over irrigation and water resource legislation.

Church said a vote by the senate rules committee kept the authority in the interior committee — a move he called a major victory for the Northwest in its on-going effort to prevent the possibility of water transfers to California.

The Idaho senator said a proposed reorganization would have moved legislative responsibility for irrigation and reclamation to the senate agriculture committee from the interior committee.

"Retention of jurisdiction over water resources within the interior committee is crucial to the efforts of Northwestern states to prevent periodic efforts of California and the Southwest to obtain approval of proposals to divert water from Idaho and the Columbia River Basin to the South," Church said.

A moratorium on studies of water diversion from the Northwest will expire next year, Church said.

Dual vote opposed

BOISE (UPI) — Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa told the House State Affairs Committee today that combining Idaho's regular and presidential primaries in June would destroy the concept of a regional presidential primary.

Ysursa said that only California would be having a primary election at that time and that he doubted if Idaho would receive much attention. By combining the two the last Tuesday in May, he said, Idaho once again would be conducting a presidential primary the same day as Oregon and Nevada — adding Washington may go to that date, too.

Rep. Joe Wagner, D-Lewisville, introduced the bill which would put the August primary and the May presidential primary elections on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June.

Pay hike ban sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, introduced Wednesday legislation prohibiting Congress from receiving a pay raise until after the general election following a pay increase vote.

The Idaho senator said, "My legislation will give the voters in each state and congressional district the chance to vote for or against those who have given themselves a pay increase."

"This bill does not prohibit Congress from raising its own pay but it does prohibit the Congress from receiving a pay raise until after the next general election," McClure said.

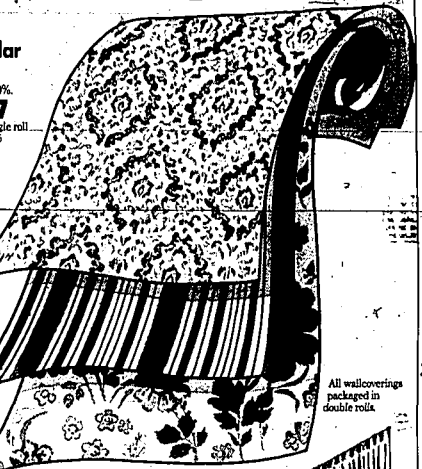

"I believe a policy which allows no member of Congress to receive a pay raise in the Congress in which the pay raise is enacted is clearly critical to the credibility of any pay policy," McClure said.

Burley seeks bridge for trucks

BURLEY — Burley officials will seek a new bridge over the Snake River to handle truck traffic to the industrial area west of the city.

Mayor Shadduck said Monday night at a meeting of the Burley City Council that a meeting can be arranged with the State Highway Commission in March, before the commission shifts its attention to the northern part of the state.

He urged councilmen to give thought to a format for presenting a proposal for construction of a bridge at 850 West Road in Mindoka County.

Mayor Shadduck said the proposed truck route, which would connect with Highway 30 near the industrial area, would relieve traffic on the Overland Avenue bridge.

He said the city would propose this bridge rather than a second bridge at the Overland crossing. State highway officials have plans for a second bridge to serve Overland Avenue traffic, but indicated last fall that construction is several years away.

Shadduck supported the new proposal despite the fact that a traffic-safety study for the city and county will not be completed.

The mayor earlier Monday told the Burley Chamber of Commerce that a truck route designation through Burley would be one of the major considerations in the federally funded study.

Mayor Shadduck also said that time for the study to be completed has been extended to Sept. 30, rather than the earlier deadline of April 30.

Ed Elliot, local civic leader, has proposed the new bridge for several years.

Shadduck supported Elliot's proposal for a bridge west of the city by pointing out that one food processing firm in that area reports 15,000 trucks per year going to and from its plant.

All members at a chamber luncheon Monday favored designation of a truck route.

As Ralph Raamussen Sr. put it, "It depends on where you live and if it goes by your house."

Several supported Elliot's proposal. They included De Nelson, plant manager of Ore-Ida.

Elliot suggested that an interchange with Interstate 80 be made at 650 West Road, where there now is an overpass.

He said the proposed bridge would eliminate half the truck traffic on the Overland bridge. Instead of a second bridge on Overland, he suggested the state take some action to eliminate railroad train blockages of traffic on Overland — just north of downtown Burley.

Building inspector states Rupert plan

RUPERT — Commercial construction plans dominate Rupert building activity this month.

William McClung, city-county building inspector, told the Rupert City Council Tuesday night that only six building permits have been issued this year, but four of them involve extensive construction for commercial enterprises.

The largest of these is the remodeling of two store fronts on the city square to house Sinclair Shelters, which will shift its photographic studios from Fremont Avenue.

McClung Tuesday night has reported that Cenex Soil Services is planning a 10,000-square-foot building for retail, warehousing and shop facilities along Idaho 24 near the intersection with Idaho 25 in the city.

McClung said the site is in an area annexed to the city as an industrial zone, which would include the uses planned for the building. That permit would be the fifth commercial one this year.

Richard Bohle has received a building permit to renovate the former Rupert Iron Works into a hardware store.

The Chicken House obtained a permit for constructing a brick front on its front along Idaho 24-25.

John Simpson is constructing an addition to his offices at Simpson Trailer Court. McClung said Simpson plans to repair mobile homes and campers.

The Cenex facility will involve extension of city water and sewer lines. The council agreed Tuesday night that cost of the extensions should be borne by the property owner.

Burley Commission debates dilemma

BURLEY — The future employment of a Twin Falls woman as consultant on Burley planning lies in the hands of the Burley Planning and Zoning Commission. Mayor Slotten has spent the last six months collecting data and writing a comprehensive plan for the city.

Each task is now two-thirds complete, but the $2,000 authorized by the city council from the 1976 budget has been spent.

Councilman Ray Barlow estimated Monday night that another $1,900 would be needed in 1977 to complete the draft of the plan.

Mayor Chuck Shaddock said the council will leave it to the planning and zoning commission to recommend whether or not Mrs. Slotten should be retained to complete the plan.

Councilman Cloyd Taylor asked if there were materials by which the council would evaluate the work. He also wondered if Building Inspector Keith Bryant could complete the task.

Barlow reported that the city has paid Mrs. Slotten $2,038 from its own funds and another $1,800 has come from a state grant.

Regarding city building inspector Bryant's duties, Mayor Shaddock said his authority may be expanded soon.

He said the county appears ready to hire a fulltime building inspector in order to remove the county from the jurisdiction of the state building inspector. He said the city and county might deputize each other's inspector to work in both territories.

The planning and zoning commission also has before it Bryant's draft of a new fire zone map for the city.

The map was to have been considered by the council Monday. But City Attorney William Parsons told the council that the proposal has been relegated to a three-man committee by the planning commission.

Meet trains county aides

TWIN FALLS — County officials in Twin Falls will be attending several educational sessions this week.

Newly named Assessor William Clark is currently attending a training program in Boise for new assessors.

Assessor Ron Taylor was to join him there today for two days of meetings with other assessors in the state to discuss assessment and tax problems and regulations.

"Is it worth another $2,000 to complete?" he asked.

Barlow replied that the city had an offer from a consultant to do the planning draft for slightly over $20,000.

Barlow said Mrs. Slotten has gone as far as she can on the plan until she receives further input and involvement on the part of the planning and zoning commission.

He said, "There will be work

Proposed Gooding budget shows 21% hike for '77

GOODING — Gooding's proposed city budget for the first nine months of 1977 shows a 21 per cent increase compared to last year's spending. A public hearing on the new budget will be held at 8 p.m. Jan. 27 at the city hall...

Unlike most cities, Gooding also lists in its budget the total expected expenditures for the entire 1977 calendar year, as well as the nine-month figures and a third column for the remaining three months...

The new street department budget is $131,000 compared to $130,000 last year; airport $26,750, up from $16,000; recreation, $30,000, up from $28,000; library, $18,500, up from $16,700; and sanitation $47,000, down from $58,000...

City Clerk George Silva said $42,500 of the $101,700 increase of the new nine-month budget over (three-fourths of) last year's budget represents federal grant money.

The amounts budgeted for the next 12 months show $25,000 in the clerk's fund, up from $25,600 last year; $1,900 for flood control, compared to $1,500 last year; $100,000 for the police department up from $82,000; and $29,200 for the fire department, down from $42,000.

The irrigation budget is $65,575, compared to $58,000 last year; water, $92,300, down from $95,000; and sewer, $81,975, up from $56,000 last year, because of a grant for a preliminary engineering study.

Federal funds have been approved for the city to finance studies of the city's storm water collection system, sewage system and airport.

Last year's fire department budget included $22,800 for a new truck and a radio system. The $38,000 increase in this year's police budget goes for two new employees and a new police car, Silva said.

Now you know By United Press International The largest mushroom farm in the world, which produces about 14 million pounds of mushrooms a year, is located near West Vinfield, Pa., in an old limestone mine.

The 1977 budget includes $34,000 in the building fund, the money coming from revenue sharing. No building fund was included in last year's budget.

TF tot injured TWIN FALLS — A four-year-old child, Tracey Mark Goffinet, Twin Falls, was injured in a car-pedestrian accident at about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. City police reported a vehicle driven by Lewis Munson, 43, Twin Falls, was traveling from an alley in the 300 block of Flier Avenue and the driver did not see the child on the sidewalk until his wife screamed. He stopped, but the child ran into the front fender of the vehicle and was spun around and thrown to the ground. City police said injuries were apparently only minor. No citations were issued.

The hearing Tuesday evening and officers were notified at 3:40 a.m. Wednesday when they failed to return. Deputy Sheriff James Mimm said a ground search unit was standing by pending reports from the CAP search plane when the young men were found about 10:40 a.m.

Jerome budget increases 36%

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer JEROME — The Jerome County budget for the first nine months of 1977 shows a 36 per cent increase over a comparable period in 1976.

The new budget tentatively approved by county commissioners, totals $1,042,868, compared to $765,356, which is three-quarters of last year's total budget of $1,020,488.

Kimberly men found safe

TWIN FALLS — Two young Kimberly men were returned home safely Wednesday after spending a night in the South Hills when their vehicle slid from the roadway and became stuck.

The four-wheel drive vehicle they were traveling in was spotted at about the same time by a Civil Air Patrol plane flown by Lloyd and Kim Stoenmaker of the Twin Falls CAP unit. It was stranded on a road above the Magic Mountain Ski resort, officers said.

The two men left Kimberly Tuesday evening and officers were notified at 3:40 a.m. Wednesday when they failed to return. Deputy Sheriff James Mimm said a ground search unit was standing by pending reports from the CAP search plane when the young men were found about 10:40 a.m.

Federal judge sets aside decision in Hailey ease

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN Times-News writer HAILEY — A U.S. District Court judge in Boise Tuesday set aside a jury's decision to award $46,800 to a former Hailey resident who brought suit against Hailey police for false arrest.

The judge cut the award to $6,600. In post-trial motions for the case, U.S. District Court Judge Marlon Callister determined that the $46,800 a jury awarded Tim Cooke for punitive damages in early December was unwarranted. The judge decided that evidence in the case should not have led the jury to bring in punitive damages, according to U.S. District Court Clerk Steve Douglas.

At issue was a jury's decision on the case in which Cooke, a former mechanic in Hailey, charged that he was falsely arrested, jailed and oppressed by the Hailey chief of police and an investigating patrolman in January, 1976. The jury in the civil suit ruled that Cooke had been arrested without probable cause and charged with the burglary of Broyle's Pharmacy in Hailey on Jan. 5, 1976. The jury awarded Cooke $6,600 in compensatory damages and $40,000 in punitive damages. The hearing Tuesday before Judge Callister was based on three post-trial motions of Defense Attorney Jack Gjording.

Gjording asked first that the jury's judgment in the action be set aside in its entirety and a judgment notwithstanding the verdict be entered in favor of the defendants. If the court was unwilling to enter a judgment notwithstanding the verdict as to the entirety of the judgment previously entered, Gjording asked that the award of $40,000 for punitive damages be set aside. If the court was unwilling to grant either of these motions, Gjording requested a new trial be granted. After hearing arguments from both Gjording and Cooke's attorney, Lee Schliender, Judge Callister set aside the jury's decision to grant punitive damages, according to Court Clerk Douglas. Judge Callister, however, left the $6,600 in compensatory damages, Douglas said. Schliender said Wednesday he would appeal the judge's decision to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Keys presented at dedication

TWIN FALLS — In a brief ceremony, Mayor Paul Ostyn handed the keys of the new Twin Falls City Police Station to Police Chief Frank Barnett. Transfer of the keys symbolized completion of more than two years of work on the $500,000 building.

The ceremony was just one of the highlights of an all-day open house at the new station in which city and county police officers conducted tours for citizens through the building. While he could not estimate how many persons viewed the tour, the building opens 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., City Manager Jean Miller said from 50 to 60 persons attended the dedication. After the key presentation, Richard Heindel, architect for the building, told onlookers about several of the more interesting parts of the new facility, including an electric garage door and the separation of incarceration and public parts of the station. Miller said the city can be proud of its police department.

Expected revenue listed in the 1977 budget is $1,188,898, with $128,900 expected in current taxes, based upon the 1976 levy, and $26,300 in delinquent taxes. These amounts, plus a $491,025 item for revenue other than taxes and a cash balance of $544,673, equal the total amount budgeted of $1,942,663.

These amounts, plus a $491,025 item for revenue other than taxes and a cash balance of $544,673, equal the total amount budgeted of $1,942,663.

The treasurer's new budget is $19,775 compared to $25,015 last year; planning and zoning, $26,945, up from $24,200; and reserve, $10,000 compared to $8,000. The 1977 budget lists $21,245 for the airport, compared to $15,900 in 1976; charity and indigent, $44,000, up from $39,000; district court, $16,425, down from $17,350; fair-agriculture, $99,500, up from $49,500; fair-capital outlay, $18,000, up from $19,000; health, $26,703, down from $21,655; noise disposal, $29,400, up from $25,000; tort insurance, $2,000, up from $1,700; weed eradication, $42,725, down from $109,000.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead 0.91 to 969.58 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 234 to 94, among the 522 issues crossing the table in the early going.

Analysts said while the nation's production schedule might be disrupted by the severe winter weather, speculators have been betting energy companies would profit from fuel shortages.

Ernie Banks voted into hall of fame

NEW YORK (UPI) — He was always "Mr. Sunshine," that rare ballplayer who never complained, saw only good in his fellow team-mates and opponents but proved time and again he was better. Now the youthful enthusiasm for baseball he brought to Chicago for parts of three decades as the mainstay of the often aporibund Cubs, Ernie Banks will take with him to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

The still trim and boyish-looking 46-year-old Banks, who uses the word "beautiful" almost as often as a longshoreman might substitute the four-letter variety of adjective, was typically ebullient Wednesday after becoming one of the eight players since the initial Hall of Fame inductions to be elected in the first year of eligibility.

"The philosophy which my mother taught me has always been 'Do everything with a smile and always have a good thought behind it,'" said Banks, whose 321 votes easily surpassed the 75 per cent (288) necessary for election. "This is the greatest moment of my life. I felt if I made it the first time around; it would be a tremendous thing, but if not, I would just hope to make it the next year."

Banks, the power-hitting shortstop-first baseman for the Chicago Cubs from 1953 through 1971 who won "back-to-back" most valuable player awards in 1958 and '59, was the only player elected in the annual balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Slugging third baseman Eddie Mathews, a home run-hitting contemporary with the Boston-Milwaukee Braves, came the closest to joining Banks in Cooperstown with 239 votes—49 shy of election, while former Brooklyn-Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman Gil Hodges was next in the voting with 231. Other top vote-getters were ex-St. Louis Cardinals outfielder Enos Slaughter with 222 and former Dodger centerfielder great Duke Snider with 212. Although his unashamed enthusiasm ("Let's play three innings") set him apart from 70 many other ballplayers of his era, it was the herculean home run feats which most contributed to Banks' election to the Hall of Fame.

Author of 512 homers—tied with Mathews for ninth on the all-time baseball list—Banks, who derived his power from strong wrists and forearms, also hit more than 40 homers in a season five times and twice led the National League with 47 in 1958 and 41 in 1960.

On four separate occasions Banks hit three homers in a game and in 1955 set a major league record by hitting four grand slams.

Of all his homers, however, Banks recalled two which were most memorable—his first on Sept. 20, 1953 and his 500th in 1970.

"I'll always remember my first," said Banks, grinning. "It was in beautiful Wrigley Field and I hit it at 2:15 in the afternoon off Gerry Staley, a right-handed knuckleballer with the St. Louis Cardinals. I remember running around the bases and saying 'Thank you God for giving me the chance to play in the major leagues.'"

"The other one which meant almost as much as the 500th, I hit it off Pat Jarvis of the Braves. That too was in beautiful Wrigley Field and I think it was at 2:16."

Banks, often called "Mr. Cub," added that he considered himself most fortunate to have played his entire career at Wrigley Field which does not have lights.

"I remember my father used to go work at a grocery warehouse every morning when it was still dark," Banks recalled. "and when he came home, it was usually night. I thought then, I would want to be able to work during the daytime. Beautiful Wrigley Field allowed me to do that."

A lifetime .273 hitter, Banks, who also drove in 1,636 runs while hitting more homers (293) than any other elected in baseball history, said his most memorable moment in baseball came on a day he didn't even play.

"It was in 1967, Cubs versus Cincinnati Reds at beautiful Wrigley Field," he remembered. "I had hurt my ankle and couldn't play, but our Ferguson Jenkins beat Sammy Ellis 4-2 which enabled us to tie for first place—the first time I had been there in my first career. There were 40,026 fans in the park that day and they just stayed there, cheering, long after the game was over. I never saw so much love and enthusiasm."

On a far different occasion, Banks reluctantly admitted having at least one disappointment in his long love affair with baseball.

"That would be 1969 when we led the National League for over 100 days only to lose the pennant to the Mets," he said. "I remember learning that Donn Clendenon had hit a three-run homer for them to beat the Cardinals and eliminate us. That was the most disappointing moment of my career."

Banks singled out former Cubs second baseman Gene Baker, his double play partner in the early 1950s and Buck O'Neil, a manager in the old Negro Leagues and later a Cubs coach, as the two people who most influenced his career.

"Both Gene Baker and Buck O'Neil told me the same thing when I first came up," Banks explained. "They said to try to keep an even balance about things. Don't get so high that you lose touch with the people and never get so low that you feel left out."

But, of course, Ernie Banks didn't quite follow that philosophy to the letter. When it came to baseball, he was always on a "high." He still was Wednesday afternoon while the Hall of Fame honor hadn't yet had time to sink in.

Seven girls games slated tonight

MAGIC VALLEY — Seven girls basketball games will be played in Magic Valley Thursday night. Magic Valley Conference leading Hansen will be at Declo in one of the features while Pler and Shoshone, one-two in the A-3 conference, will provide perhaps a preview of the district tournament finals at Shoshone. In other action, Carey will entertain Richfield while Wood River invades Gooding. Dietrich travels to Murghau, Hagerman will be at Kimberly and undefeated Buhl goes to Jerome.

Burley-Minico, A-4 games top cage slate

MAGIC VALLEY — That four-way tie in the Magic Valley Conference will be split in half Friday and Minico takes on Burley Saturday in the highlights of weekend prep action. The Magic Valley league will send Murghau to Declo and Oakley to Raft River and the two winners will share the conference standings. But, if things go as they have in the past three weeks, only until Tuesday when another round will bring some more shakeups. Technically, Raft River is the leader with a 4-1 record while the other three are 3-1. But in the short 10 game race, the lost column is the most important figuring placement.

The other league game will send Hagerman to Castelford with these two teams currently knotted in fifth place at 1-3.

Burley prepares for its traditional battle with Minico by entering Madison Friday night. The area A-2 teams are conspicuously absent, save for Gooding and Wood River. Both will play at home. Wood River hosts Wendell while Gooding takes on the strong Mountain Home Tigers.

Northside Conference offers only two games. Richfield will invade Bliss while Camas County travels to Dietrich.

Saturday's slate is highlighted by the Burley-Minico tiling. The Bobcats trounced the Spartans just before Christmas and it is doubtful whether the game will be played the same. Minico tried to keep a fast tempo offensively and pressure the Bobcats full court.

Burley scored a lot of points on its anti-press and when it comes to running, Burley just does that better. And, in fact, prefers it. The Spartans may try to tame things down a little this time around. If not now, maybe in February when it counts.

Only seven other games are scheduled for Saturday. Oakley returns home to host Hansen while Declo and Kimberly step out of loop play to meet at Kimberly.

In the Big 5 league, Valley will be at Shoshone while Glenns Ferry and Wendell try non-league games. Glenns Ferry invades Gooding while Wendell travels to Hagerman. Two South Central Idaho Conference battles are on tap. Buhl entertains the Wood River Wolverines while Jerome crosses the river to test Pler.

Nets drop 11th straight

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Johnny Davis and Lionel Hollins, who did not start in Wednesday night's game, combined for 27 points in the second half to lead the Portland Trail Blazers to a 109-94 victory over the New York Nets, their 11th straight loss. Davis scored 13 of his points in the second half and Hollins, playing with a face mask to protect his fractured forehead, had all 14 of his points in the second half. Maurice Lucas led the Trail Blazers with 21 points and Bob Gross added 16. The Nets, playing without John Williamson, were led by Skinner and Dave Wohl, who had 22 points apiece.

Clemson elbuds Terps

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — Wayne "Tree" Rollins pumped in 22 points and grabbed 23 rebounds to lead Clemson past 181-ranked Maryland 93-71 Wednesday night in an Atlantic Coast Conference upset. Clemson led by one point, 109, with just over 16 minutes to play in the first half and then the Tigers exploded past Maryland to a 40-10 lead. Rollins had 10 points and 13 rebounds in the first half, taking the Tigers into intermission with a 44-25 halftime lead. The Tigers built their largest lead of the night, 30 points, at 75-45 in the second half and the Terps never threatened. Behind Rollins, Stan Rome added 15 for the Tigers, while Derrick Johnson had 11, and David Brown had 10. Larry Boston led Maryland with 21 points and added 11 rebounds. Bill Bryant also had 11 points for the Terps.

Louisville tips Clincy

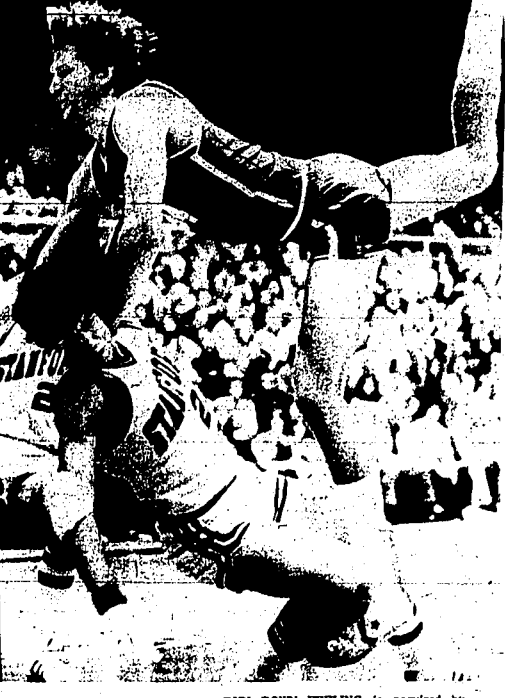

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Sixteenth-ranked Louisville took advantage of Cincinnati's foul trouble Wednesday night and rode Rick Wilson's game-high 22 points to a 83-77 victory over the third-ranked and previously undefeated Bearcats. When Cincinnati center and Louisville native Bob Miller fouled out with 9:57 to play, Cincinnati's hopes of stretching its unbeaten streak to 12 games went to the bench with him as Louisville extended its own winning streak to eight games before a capacity crowd of more than 16,000. Freshman guard Darrell Griffith pumped in a jump shot from the corner, Wilson added two free throws, Griffith made a dunk shot and Wilson converted two more foul shots to expand the Louisville lead to 67-54. Cincinnati was led by senior guard Gary Yoder with 19 points, followed by forwards Mike Jones and Brian Williams with 14 apiece. Wesley Cox tallied 16 points and Griffith 15 for Louisville, now 11-2.

Bullets beat Braves

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Len Robinson scored 11 of his 16 points in the second half Wednesday night to lead the Washington Bullets from a four-point third period deficit to a 91-87 victory over the Buffalo Braves. Elvin Hayes, who finished with 17 points, 15 rebounds and four blocked shots, scored eight points in the final two minutes of the game to thwart a Buffalo comeback.

76ers drill Atlanta

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Forward Steve Mix came off the bench to score 27 points Wednesday night and spark the Atlantic Division-leading Philadelphia 76ers to a 114-94 victory over the cold-shooting Atlanta Hawks. Mix entered the game in the last four minutes of the first quarter and the 76ers went on a 10-2 tear to take a 28-17 lead at the end of the period. The Hawks could never get closer than eight points after that.

Cisco spawning starting

PICKLEVILLE, Utah (UPI) — The mid-winter fishing season for one of the finest game fish in the United States gets into full gear this weekend along the southern shoreline of Bear Lake. The annual spawning run of the Bonneville Cisco began with a dribble at mid-week. And Utah Wildlife Resources Division rangers said, "The cisco run should be at its best by weekend." "We expect the cisco fishing to be good for this Saturday and Sunday," said division spokesman Dexter Pitman. "It usually takes two or three days for the numbers of fish to reach high levels."

Adult cisco generally reach seven inches in length. But with a daily limit of 50 fish, cisco dip-netters can return home with enough for a major meal. The annual run usually lasts from 12 to 16 days, when the fish move into shallow waters at "Cisco Beach" southeast of here to spawn. The season officially ends Feb. 15. Pitman said this year's cisco harvest "should be a good one," since unusually warm conditions have left the lake generally free of ice. Chris Chaffin of the division says the cisco, a member of the white fish family, are

Bruins face potent Capital point crew

TWIN FALLS — If you believe in statistics, Twin Falls will be hard pressed by a three-man scoring team from Capital Friday night.

Of course, three men shouldn't be enough to beat the Bruins but the Eagles, riding along with just one loss thus far, have a triumvirate that is accounting for over one-half of its points.

That isn't anything special, either. Most teams have three men who account for the bulk of their scoring. What makes it impressive is that Capital is averaging 73.3 points per game. The trio is averaging 47.0.

That compares to Twin Falls' average of 50.3 points per outing. The Eagles to watch is Junior Brian Welch who is plunking in points at a 22.5 clip through his first 19 games. In his last three, however, he's gone 33, 25 and 25. Welch, a 6-6 inside man, has hit 79 of 147 attempts from the field and 67 of 78 from the foul line. He's never had more than three fouls per game and is averaging 11 rebounds. In other words, Welch is nothing but help for Coach Charles Henry.

By comparison, the other two seniors, Kipp Bedard and Brett Connor, aren't that impressive. But they are hitting 12.4 and 12.1 per game and are shooting at about 45 per cent. They also are trouble at the foul line.

Capital is Twin Falls' only game this weekend. Coach Ron Watson's crew is struggling through a five game losing streak and currently running with a 9 record. Not totally unexpected, however, considering Juniors are carrying the major part of the load.

Basically it has been those Juniors mistakes that have hurt the Bruins' chances of winning a physical the last three or four games.

"We feel that we've reduced our mental and physical mistakes quite a bit since the season started," he says. "But we've been making them at critical parts of the game. And missing free throws at key times, too. I guess that's all part of being a young team."

Junior guard Dave Welter has been the most consistent performer for the Bruins, only once the youngster having failed to get into double scoring figures. He has picked up 189 points in 12 games.

Center Randy Kolar has picked up his rebounding pace the past few games and now has a total of 129 to go with his 118 points.

Boise State seeks revenge in Bengal rematch Saturday

BOISE (UPI) — The defending Big Sky champs at Boise State University will be out for revenge Saturday as they host Idaho State University in an attempt to break the Bengals' eight-game winning streak.

The match is even more important to Boise State because Idaho State was chosen the coaches' pre-season pick as the conference crown grabbers.

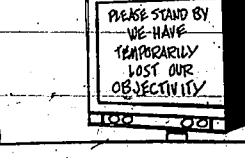

The Boise State Broncos lost to the Bengals last Friday under Idaho State's Mindome by a score of 72-60. Saturday's match will be the Broncos' first home game of the season.

Boise State University is 1-2 in conference play and the Bengals have a 9-0 league record to their credit so far this season. Boise Coach Bob Connor said the back-to-back games with Idaho State University are good. "We get these two games out of the way and then we go from there. I really don't think that one game is pivotal," he said.

"We'll put everything we have into our game here in Boise against the Bengals," Connor said. "We are looking forward to playing them in our home court."

Barbara Schenk, BSU ticket manager, said tickets to the game are going fast. They are available for $3.50 from the varsity center ticket office and at the student union building.

Sun Valley to host Roch cup

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — What could be the last Canadian-American ski race of the season has been moved to Sun Valley from Aspen, Colo., because of inadequate snow conditions at the Colorado resort.

The 31st Roch Cup competition is scheduled for the first week of February on the Warm Springs side of Baldy Mountain, a Sun Valley spokesman said.

If the event concludes the series, the 1976-77 Can-Am championships will be announced after the race.

Nets waive Love

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Veteran forward Bob Love, who was acquired on Dec. 1 by the New York Nets to bolster their sagging offense, was placed on waivers by the club Wednesday.

Love, a 6-foot-8 forward who was picked up from the Chicago Bulls for a second-round draft choice and cash, played in only 13 games for the Nets, averaging 10.1 points per game.

Love, 33, was expected to fill the gap at forward left when the Nets sold Julius Erving to the Philadelphia 76ers on the eve of the season opener. But Nets' Coach Kevin Loughery chose to play those players who he felt were familiar with the Nets' system.

"I'm always ready to play," the Delhi, La., native said recently. "I'm urging the guys on. I know they'd be doing the same for me."

Stanford beats Hawaii

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Senior Mike Bratz and freshman Kimberly Belton combined for 48 points to lead Stanford to an 84-71 victory over the University of Hawaii in a nonleague game Wednesday night.

Bratz scored all 25 of his points in the first half when he connected on nine of 13 shots from the floor and seven of eight free throws.

Astros move fences

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Astros are moving the stadium outfield fences back 10 feet, General Manager Tom Postell said Wednesday.

Slugging first baseman Bob Watson jokingly said Smith, in making the move, was bowing to pressure from pitcher Ken Forsch. But Smith said it was the nature of his Houston Astros team which was the big factor.

"Our team speed both on the base paths and in the outfield pushed us to move them back," Smith said. "Our guys with exceptional speed, it is going to help them get extra base hits. And if our pitchers can keep the ball in the ballpark, (center fielder Cesar Cedeño) will run the ball down."

Cal drops Seattle

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Sophomore center Tom Schneiderjohn scored a career-high 29 points to power California to an 87-69 nonconference victory over Seattle University Wednesday night.

"The victory raised the Bears' record to 4-0 and dropped the Spartans to 6-0."

Schneiderjohn made all eight shots he attempted in the first half and had 17 points as Cal raced to a 42-31 lead.

Guard Gene Ransom scored 10 of his 15 points in the second half and finished with a school-record 12 assists, one better than the mark he set last week against UCLA.

Missouri beats Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Forwards Clay Johnson and Kim Anderson and guard Scott Sims combined for 81 points as Missouri fought off a tough Colorado defense to score a 90-84 Big Eight Conference victory over the Buffaloes Wednesday night.

Johnson, a 6-4 junior who also had a game-high 10 rebounds, led all scorers with 39 points. Sims had 23 and Anderson added 21.

Colorado's Emmitt Lewis had 36 points, but the only other Buffs in double figures were Tony Ellis with 12, Clayton Ballard with 11 and Larry Vaeulik with 10.

Elk, deer harvests show marked decline

The 1976 hunting season saw a reduction in deer take of 37 per cent and a 54 per cent reduction in the elk harvest, a goal of the more restrictive regulations set in 1976.

The Department of Fish and Game released this week its official estimates of the harvest of the two major big game species during the fall season.

Jerry Thissen, big game supervisor, said the figures show "we met our objective of not exceeding the 1976 buck harvest on deer and in reducing the doe harvest."

He said the elk harvest was "considerably below the 5,000 head anticipated when the seasons were set."

Last fall's hunting seasons were more restrictive than they have been in many years with an almost statewide bulls-only season on elk and a much larger portion of the state under bulls-only deer hunting.

"Because of the Game Bureau's reduced funding," Thissen said, "we had to eliminate the tag buyer questionnaire in 1976, a questionnaire that in the past has given us the basis for estimating statewide deer and elk harvests."

He said the harvest estimates were made without the questionnaire but through a more in-depth analysis of hunter report cards returned since 1969.

For deer, Thissen reported the 1976 estimate was 25,427 taken. This compares with 40,102 for the 1975 season. Elk harvest dropped from 5,301 in 1975 to 4,135 in 1976, he said.

Thissen said the more restrictive regulations set for the 1976 season accounted for much of the drop, but "the weather also contributed to the lower harvest."

Thissen said a warmer and drier fall than usual kept big game scattered and on summer range through most of the hunting season, "making it very difficult for hunters to get close to big game."

In a further breakdown of the harvest, Thissen said 67 per cent of the deer harvest was bucks, 33 per cent was does. He said 84 per cent of the elk harvest was bulls and 16 per cent was cows.

What did the hunters think of the 1976 season?

Thissen said field personnel did several surveys at checking stations, in state fair-booths and through personal contracts. They came up with the following opinions:

A question on what kind of cow or calf elk season is preferred should such a season be needed in the future, 61 per cent liked the idea of a short other season coupled with a longer bulls-only season.

Sixty-one per cent said the number of hunters in the field this fall was "satisfactory." Only 23 per cent said the numbers were too high, and 15 per cent said there were too few hunters.

Hunters were about evenly split on separate deer and elk seasons. Fifty-one per cent said they didn't like it, 49 per cent said they did like it.

In the Magic Valley area, 66 per cent said they liked the buck-only deer seasons, and 34 per cent said they did not like bucks-only hunting.

On the same question and also in Magic Valley, 73 per cent said they liked bulls-only hunting for elk, while 22 per cent said "no."

It was a two-thirds to one-third split in favor of the Wednesday opening for deer and elk seasons. This question was put to hunters in Magic Valley and to those in the southeastern corner of the state.

Thissen said there were no significant changes in harvest figures for the trophy species.

"Some figures were up slightly, others down slightly, but it was pretty close to the harvest figures of preceding years," Thissen said.

North Carolina State upsets cross-state rival by 75-73

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Olympian Kenny Carr scored 23 points Wednesday night to lead unranked North Carolina State to a shocking 75-73 Atlantic Coast Conference upset victory over No. 2-ranked North Carolina.

Carr hit only nine points in the first half but ignited the Wolfpack to a second-half rally that gave the Tar Heels their second loss against 12 wins.

North Carolina State, now 9-5, trailed 40-38 at the half and was down by as many as nine points early in the second half.

But Walter Davis, who had scored 11 of his 12 points for North Carolina in the second half, fouled out with 10:39 left in the game. With him out of the lineup, the Tar Heels turned cold.

Phil Ford paced North Carolina with 32 points, but apart from Davis the only other North Carolina player in double figures was Mike O'Koren.

Freshman Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney was next in line for North Carolina State with 17 points, followed by Clyde "The Glide" Austin with 14 and sophomore Tony Warren with 12.

North Carolina State took the lead for good on a 20-footer by Austin that made the score 66-65 with 6:05 left in the game.

Sooners top Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Oklahoma broke a second-half Nebraska rally by outscoring the Huskers 13-6 during the final five minutes Wednesday night to pull out a 65-58 Big Eight victory.

Aaron Curry packed Oklahoma with 14 points. John McCullough added 13 and Carrabine had 12. Nebraska was led by Carl McPipe's game high 17 points and Bob Siegel's 16 points.

Nebraska is now 2-2 in conference play and 19-8 for the season. Oklahoma climbed to 10-6.

Football's best

WINNERS of this year's Maxwell Club's awards are Tony Dorsett, left, University of Pittsburgh; and Oakland Raiders' Ken Stabler. (UPI telephoto)

Dorsett, Stabler cited by Maxwell club

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Both Oakland Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler and Pitt's Tony Dorsett agreed Wednesday that the Helmsman Trophy-winning Dorsett would be ideal for a running team such as the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The two players made the assessment at a luncheon prior to being honored Wednesday night by the Robert W. Maxwell Memorial Football Club.

Dorsett received the Maxwell Club's award as the outstanding college football player and Stabler was given the Bert Bell Award as the outstanding professional player.

Dorsett said he would prefer going with the National Football League rather than the Canadian League because he has "always dreamed of the day I would play NFL football."

He said he was not only interested in the money pro football offered. It was "not the main thing exactly," he said. "I like to play football. It is my whole existence."

Dorsett added he thought the draft was "fair up to this point, although I really can't speak since I'm not a pro."

Stabler said those who call the Super Bowl champion Raiders a dirty team, "don't know what they are talking about. They are remarks from people who are not qualified to speak."

Stabler said he spent five frustrating years before moving in as Oakland's starting quarterback and at one point "dropped out of football for a year.

He said during the leave, he sold insurance, sporting goods, and went back to school. "It all cleared my mind and I was ready to play football again," he said. "I should happen again. I would do the same thing all over again."

Of the controversial pro football draft — still an uncertainty this year — Stabler said "I can't knock it. It worked out for me. I'm happy with the system."

The Maxwell club is named for the late Robert W. (Tiny) Maxwell, a football standout at the turn of the century.

The Bert Bell award is named for the late NFL commissioner.

North Texas State will seek Southwest league membership

DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — The North Texas State University athletic council Wednesday approved a resolution seeking membership in the Southwest Conference and athletic director Hayden Fry said it was not a question of "if" the school would become a member, but merely "when."

"I know definitely that as long as there is a government there are going to be taxes and as long as there are taxes there are going to be tax-supported institutions," said Fry. "And North Texas is a tax-supported institution that has the finances to commit itself to having an athletic program of excellence."

"If (NTSU) joining the (SWC) is going to happen some day, it took Houston 10 years to get into the conference once it started trying. I don't think it is going to take us anywhere near that long."

The resolution is expected to receive approval from the school's vice president and president along the board of regents. North Texas then can begin a lobbying process in an attempt to convince some member of the league to sponsor its application for membership.

It would take a two-thirds vote from the Southwest Conference — six votes — to bring a new school into the league.

"We have not really tried to contact any member of the SWC in this respect as yet," said Fry. "There has been no behind the scenes work at all. We know it is going to take patience and a deep, long look by the Southwest Conference faculty fathers at our program."

"But, obviously, North

Texas would not make this request if we did not think we would make a contribution to the conference."

Fry said pure economics would cause the Southwest Conference to consider North Texas favorably.

"People are going to have to take a strong look at their schedules very soon," said the north Texas athletic director and football coach.

Single farm trade policy coordinating agency advocated

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Ford administration's lack of a single organization to coordinate farm trade policy paved the way for discussion which complicated and delayed the negotiation of a Soviet-American five-year grain deal in 1975, a group of Agriculture Department officials said.

"As a result, the agreement was unnecessarily delayed, permitting other factors to magnify the problem," the report added.
The Young Executives report added that the controversy involving the Soviet deal convinced the Ford administration last year that a single agricultural policy-making body was needed. Ford set up an Agricultural Policy Committee, headed by former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, which also included heads of other administration agencies ranging from the State and Treasury Departments to the Council of Economic Advisors.

"This new committee appears to provide the much-needed mechanism," the report said.
The Young Executives group is a panel of 20 middle-level career bureaucrats from each of the Agriculture Department's agencies. The committee is selected annually to make a study of department operations and policies while the individual members continue their regular jobs.

The committee noted that American consumers had become "cautious and concerned about potential sales of grain to foreign customers—especially the Soviet Union" during the early and mid-1970s because exports were believed to be contributing to higher food prices.

When the Soviet Union came into the American grain market again in mid-1975, the report noted, a voluntary moratorium on sales was adopted Aug. 11 of that year to last until U.S. officials had a better view of prospects for the American 1975 harvest.
At about this point, one Young Executives Committee member said, the State and Treasury Departments and other federal agencies began voicing concerns about potential impact on food prices. The official said the lack-of-a-single-federal-voice opened the way for George Meany, President of the AFL-

CIO, to take a hand in the situation by announcing that longshoremen would not load grain unless steps were taken to protect American consumers and the American shipping industry, which wanted to haul part of the grain.
The committee member said farmers complained they were not brought into the consultations and wound up feeling that their interests—voiced by the agriculture secretary—were not being sufficiently taken into account.

Members of the Young Executives group said they concluded the Soviet-American grain deal which finally evolved was "a good solution to the problem posed by a decade of erratic Soviet grain purchases."
Under the agreement, Soviet officials must buy at least six million tons of American grain annually for the five years, beginning last fall. They may buy another 2 million tons without consultation.

Warning issued on phone deals

BOISE (UPI)— Idaho farmers were warned today to be beware of unknown dealers when ordering supplies of agricultural chemicals for the forthcoming planting and growing season.
Director Wilson Kellogg of the State Department of Agriculture said Idaho farmers are being besieged with long distance telephone calls from chemical salesmen.
"Nearly all of these calls are from out of state and the person and firm are usually unknown to Idaho farmers," Kellogg said. "Too often, sales are made, the products are paid for in advance and delivery is never made. When delivery is made, the product is often of inferior quality, adulterated with inert ingredients or filler material."
"What sounds like a bargain usually turns out to be a ripoff," he said.
Kellogg urged growers to buy from local, reliable chemical dealers who will stand behind their sales and guarantee the quality of their product.
"Such dealers know the local situation—what chemicals are needed, the proper rates and times of application," he said. "They know what products are legal in Idaho and on what crops they may be used."

"This new committee appears to provide the much-needed mechanism," the report said.

Gem vote planned

BOISE (UPI)— The Idaho Beef Council will vote on a national beef development research program that some members think may save the industry from severe economic damage.
Robert M. Henderlider, the Idaho council's administrative secretary, said the industry will vote on the proposal in a nationwide referendum.
"The research would be financed by the beef industry with "small assessments on each animal at each stage of development and marketing," Henderlider said.

James Faulkner, chairman of the task force on the program said the vote will determine whether the industry will invest three cents of every $1 value in a full scale development and research program.

"I shouldn't have taken that second sleeping pill," croaked Rip Van Ribbit as he opened one bleary eye. "I'd better hop over to Lily's pad for a cup of coffee and catch up on what's new."

Halfway across the pond he ran into his old friend, Phil O'Dendron. "Hi Ya, Phil," he rasped. "How's Rhodea? You look terrible. Been sick or something?"

"Rip!" exclaimed Phil. "Where in the bulrushes have you been hiding? And what's with the 'I Like Ike' button?"

"Just overslept," said Rip. "You oughta do something about those wrinkles."

"You sound kinda hoarse, Rip."

"Probably got a person in my throat. Have you seen Lily White?"

"Boy, you HAVE been out of it. Lily moved to the Everglades. Had a big house-cleaning and sold a lot of stuff in the Times-News Classifieds. Real estate fella got her a great price on her house and she also found a good reliable car for the trip. You know, in spite of all the changes, those Classifieds Ads still do the same old great job."

"What changes?" croaked Rip.

Carpenter Says:
There's a young man in our shop who has a great flair for dressing up a Mazda pickup. We gave him-Carte Blanche and said, "have at it!" The result is one of the sportiest jobs I have ever seen. Come over and look at it...
Now, that is only one of the Mazda pickups in stock; we have nine and they are all neat rollers. Nine is more than we need; so, it goes without saying that the price will be right and the trade-in allowance will be the best. Give us a try - we're hungry for the business.
Just the other day this was said to me, "There is more car for the dollar at Carpenters than any place in Idaho." Wasn't that nice of my brother to say that about our efforts to put everyone in a Mazda?
By the way, the buyer of the customized pickup will receive a special Idaho license plate from us. We thought the plate should read FANCY, but the buyer can obiously make the choice. He might want it to read RALPH out of appreciation.
