Changes kill 'work' bill

By CHRIS PECK

Times News writer

BOISE—Gooding rancher John Brooks spent most of the first session of the 44th Idaho Legislature trying to get a Right-to-Work Bill passed.

Today, two days before the legislature is expected to adjourn, Brooks admitted his effort has been defeated.

As a result of a special conference committee vote Wednesday, an amended Right-to-Work Bill sponsored by Brooks but significantly changed by the Idaho Senate, died without passing the House.

The House still has before it a bill which would put the issue before the voters at municipal elections next fall but Brooks is not optimistic about passage of this bill.

Wednesday, the principal Right-to-Work Bill was killed after a Senate and House Conference Committee refused on a tie vote to compromise on amendments attached to the measure by the Senate.

Brooks' Right-to-Work Bill, after passing the House, was amended in the Senate March 10. One amendment tacked on the bill made it unacceptable to many agricultural interests in the House.

Sen. Vernon K. Brassey, R-Boise, committee chairman, joined with two Democratic committee members—House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, Pocatello, and Assistant Senate Majority Leader Robert Kinghorn, also Pocatello, against a motion that the group recommend the Senate—Revised—from the proposed agriculture and timber amendment.

Voting in favor of the motion were three Republicans—House Majority Leader Walter Little, New Plymouth; Rep. John Brooks, Gooding, and Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, Wendell.

The vote came after the committee agreed to take on a new amendment which would give the director of labor the investigative powers instead of the attorney general as called for in the Right-to-Work Bill.

A clause broadening the Right-to-Work Bill which would have prohibited various commodity commissions from collecting fees from Idaho farmers was added to the Brooks bill by the Senate.

Commodity commissions help Idaho farmers and ranchers promote and market their crops and livestock.

Brooks feels Republican leaders in the Senate knew the addition of the commodity commission amendment would kill his Right-to-Work Bill.

"I didn't appreciate the Senate playing games on this," Brooks fumed this morning.

"Some of the Senate leadership was trying to defeat this bill. They knew the commodity amendment would kill it," Brooks added.

Senate President Pro Tem E. Bill Batt, R-Willard, was one supporter of the commodity commission amendment. Brooks said.

Twin Falls County Senators Richard High and John Barker also voted for the commodity commission amendment in the Senate.

Right-to-work proponents spent an estimated $75,000 in Idaho to get the Brooks legislation passed. Labor forces added another $4 to $5,000 to the controversy in opposing the bill.

An organized state-wide letter-writing campaign flooded legislators' desks with pro right-to-work mail in February.

Even so, a poll commissioned by the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee revealed most Idahoans had no strong feelings one way or another about right-to-work.

Still, a poll suggested state residents mildly support the concept of right to work.

Brooks' Right-to-Work Bill would have declared illegal any attempt by unions to extract dues from workers as a condition of employment.

No worker could have been forced to join a union to keep his job under the Brooks bill.

Hanoi hints price tag on MIA search

HANOI, Vietnam (UPI)—Premier Pham Van Dong of Communist Vietnam told White House emissaries today the "new spirit" of President Carter can solve all problems between his country and the United States.

Dong marched from his palace and down a red carpet to greet the White House delegation led by United Auto Workers union leader Leonard Woodcock. He seated the delegation under a six-foot-high bust of Ho Chi Minh and smiled.

"I am indeed very pleased to meet you today because you come to us with good will and as I understand President Carter's wish to solve our problems in a new spirit," said Ho's successor as leader of Vietnam.

Woodcock leaned forward and nodded agreement.

"And if so, I see no obstacle to our resolving the problems," Dong said.

Woodcock, heading a five-member commission sent by Carter to press for more data on 2,550 Americans still listed as missing in the Indochina war, said his opening talks with Dong's lieutenants indicated progress was being made toward the United States and Vietnam burying the hatchet.

"We believe that if everything continues as our talks have gone so far, we will have a constructive report to submit to our President," Woodcock said.

Dong smiled and pressed his fingers together.

"Too long have tragic events kept our countries apart," Woodcock said.

Earlier today Vietnam pledged to trace Americans still listed as missing in the Indochina war.

"But said the United States has a commitment of national honor to aid Vietnam's post-war reconstruction.

"Regarding Americans missing in action, we have set up a special organization, from the central to the lower levels to seek information on not only Vietnamese but also Americans missing in action," Deputy Foreign Minister Ngo Dien told reporters. "This work will continue."

Dien leaned over tea cups in a foreign ministry conference room and said that in the Paris peace accords of 1973, the United States committed itself to aiding Hanoi's reconstruction program.

"This is not just a question of money but of national responsibility and honor," he said.

Asked if he meant the United States should carry out a $32 billion aid commitment reportedly made by former President Richard Nixon in a letter to Hanoi, Dien replied: "The question does not relate to Mr. Nixon but to the United States."

The Woodcock commission came with instructions to discuss only the missing Americans and to do no more than listen if—as has happened, in the past—the Vietnamese bring up the question of U.S. aid.

There was no immediate word on whether the Vietnamese were preparing to hand over to the delegation the remains of 12 missing Americans whose deaths were reported by Radio Hanoi in September.

But in his meeting with reporters, Dien indicated the remains would be forthcoming.

Asked if the remains were being handed over, he said the Woodcock group had "no answer."

They were meeting "will be seeking ways to solve that."

"We do not turn toward the past but look to the future," Dien repeatedly told reporters.

"In our relations with the United States we turn our eyes toward the future."

Asked if he meant Hanoi was putting into the past any alleged U.S. commitment to give Hanoi financial aid, Dien shook his head.

"This is a commitment which is the result of the past. It is a commitment made by the United States. We did not bind the United States by it."

The United States said that "it is a matter of the U.S. Vietnamese talks." The Americans took seats on the west side of a conference table in the Canary yellow government house.

Drunk driving up, TF drug use down

By BOB ZUCKERMAN

Times News writer

BOISE—Idaho court statistics show the number of 1976 complaints filed against persons for driving while under the influence of alcohol rose five times faster in Twin Falls County than in the state.

But drug-abuse cases in Twin Falls County dropped sharply during the year, while the number of such cases rose sharply statewide.

State alcohol-related court cases rose 5.7 percent in 1976 compared to those in 1975, from 6,711 to 7,047. Meanwhile, in Twin Falls County, alcohol-related cases rose 28 percent from 583 in 1975 to 752 in 1976.

Local officials say they aren't sure why the rates have increased so dramatically in Twin Falls.

State Police Sgt. Vance Ricks, Twin Falls, head of the state's Alcohol Safety Emphasis Program, said perhaps "a little bit better enforcement effort is occurring in this area than in the state."

He said he does not think the county had a worse drunken driver problem than other parts of the state.

Other statistics released by the state court system show the number of drug abuse complaints, including those petitions filed against juveniles, in the state rising about 30 percent during 1976, from 2,345 to 3,053.

In Twin Falls, however, the number of drug abuse complaints dropped 31 percent from 127 in 1975 to 87 in 1976. Again, local officials aren't sure why.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder said perhaps part of the reason is a drug education program instituted by his office. Upon request, sheriff's deputies visit schools and churches in the area, giving instruction on what drugs do, the sheriff said.

Because more children are aware of the problems of drugs, maybe less children are becoming involved, he said.

Statistics for the Magic Valley Fifth Judicial District show area courts following the Twin Falls County trend. Cases involving persons charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol rose from 1,185 in 1975 to 1,343 in 1976.

According to other statistics, caseloads in the trial courts rose to an all-time high during 1976, primarily due to large gains in the magistrate division, an increase of 4.9 percent from the 1975 total, court officials reported here.

Between 1970 and 1975, the state population and magistrate divisions were created, case filings have increased by 104 percent.

Officials said the primary reason for the increase was two factors: Increases in state population and increases in number of attorneys being allowed to practice law here.

Between 1970 and 1975, the state population has increased by 107,785. The number of attorneys has risen from 762 in 1970 to 1,172 by the end of 1976.

Storms maul, aid California

By United Press International
Storms battered southern California with damaging winds and spread welcome rains and snow over drought-stricken portions of northern California.

"Severe winds, described by police and residents as a tornado, ripped off roofs, smashed windows and lifted cars into the air during a rainstorm Wednesday night in Fullerton, Calif., a Los Angeles suburb."

Three persons suffered minor injuries at the Hunt-Wesson Foods corporate headquarters, where the winds also set off a minor fire.

Southern California Edison officials said downed lines and transformers temporarily cut power to 10,000 customers.

A fireman said the winds "picked up autos as high as 15 or 20 feet in the air."

Residents said a swirling funnel "moved" diagonally across the town. Authorities said the "tornado-like winds" damaged some 20 homes.

A National Weather Service spokesman described the storm only as "high winds," but several residents insisted they actually had seen a tornado.

The best rains of the winter fell on drought-dry northern California Wednesday and more than three feet of snow piled up in the High Sierra.

"About two inches of rain fell in the San Francisco Bay area and some other coastal areas of northern California received heavier rainfalls. But the drought-parched Central Valley measured less."

Some mountain areas were belted by up to 40 inches of snow.

The rain and snow fell short of ending the Western drought and experts said that even if northern California gets normal precipitation the rest of the season 1977 will wind up as the driest year in the area's history.

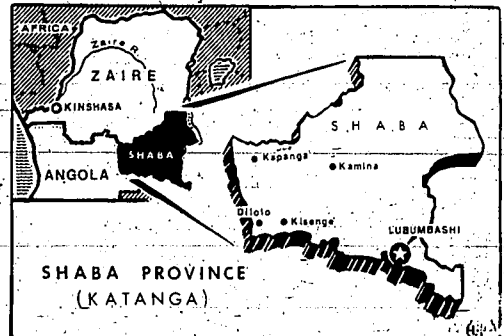

But it was a long-awaited break in the West's dry weather pattern and the National Weather Service said another storm may arrive in California by Friday.

"Scattered showers, accompanied by gusty winds, dotted the Southwest today and snow fell at higher elevations."

A winter storm warning was in effect today for the higher elevations of northern Arizona and a winter storm watch was posted for the mountains and high valleys of Colorado.

Farmers in Franklin County, Mass., had another weather problem — temperatures high in the day but dropping to freezing by the end of this week, they said, they may produce only 15 to 20 per cent of their normal annual output of maple syrup.

Shaba copper belt invaders' goal?

Byrd backs down on ethics passage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, backing down from an earlier forecast, declined today to predict Senate passage of a new code of ethics with a restriction on outside earnings.

Moments later, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., joined an expanding bipartisan group of opponents to the proposed code — declaring that "laws do not create morality, laws do not create honesty and, with that, I will cast my vote against this bill."

Congress got a $129,900 pay raise last month and that presidential recommendations for that increase were tied to promises of ethical reform.

Byrd pointed out that senators still could earn $66,125 a year if the new code passes.

The House passed an almost identical income restriction rule three weeks ago. Opponents said it unfairly would hurt members who need extra money but barely touch millionaires with big investments.

Zaire situation worsens

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — Zaire today was bolstered by a U.S. aid and Belgian military supplies against a widening eight-day-old invasion it has suggested is led by Soviet-backed Cuban mercenaries. A U.S. Embassy official said the situation is deteriorating.

"The situation is deteriorating," the American official said. "From what we can piece together, the invading forces are moving toward the eastern part of Shaba province, in the general direction of the city of Kolwezi."

He said the Constructors

Inga-Shaba, a construction firm that is a subsidiary of Morrison-Knudsen International Company of Boise, Idaho, had ordered the evacuation of 26 dependents of U.S. construction workers in Kolwezi.

The official said there had been 85 Americans at Kolwezi, dependents and construction workers working on the Inga-Shaba electric transmission line.

Little word was filtering back to Kinshasa about the fighting itself and the official said the embassy had no plans at the moment to send in an American observer.

An editorial by the national news agency A.Z.A.P. said "all the occupied areas have been transformed into minefields and the mercenaries are avoiding any direct confrontation with the regular Zaire army. They are launching rockets and missiles to avoid any engagement. They disappear at the approach of reconnaissance planes and never appear during the day."

'Indecent' language ban lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has voided the Federal Communications Commission's ban on broadcast seven-letter "indecent" words during times when children are likely to be in the audience.

The words were said to depict "sexual or excretory activities and organs." In a 2-1 decision the court held the FCC order was "overbroad and vague" and a violation of the regulatory agency's "duty to avoid censorship."

We should continue to trust the broadcasters' exercise of judgment, responsibility and sensitivity to the community's needs and tastes," Judge Edward Tamm said in the majority opinion. Chief Judge David Bazelon concurred.

Judge Harold Leventhal, in a lengthy dissent, argued that a ban applying only to times when children are likely to be listening is not a prohibited form of censorship. He said children need the protection.

The FCC issued the ban in 1973 after radio station WBAI in New York broadcast a comedian's 15-minute monologue, originally presented on stage, in which the seven-letter words were used repeatedly.

Tamm pointed out the station warned listeners the broadcast would contain "sensitive language."

Jimmy McGovern?

Wall Street Journal

Our usual feeling is that Presidents ought to have the officials they choose, and that the Senate should reject presidential appointees only for clear cause. But the hearings starting today on the nomination of Paul C. Warnke as head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency are quite appropriately the occasion for a debate on the drift of President Carter's appointments to foreign policy and defense posts.

For Mr. Warnke is best understood as George McGovern's defense secretary. During the 1972 presidential campaign he was chief apologist for Mr. McGovern's plan to top $30 billion off the Pentagon budget, along with the way killing most American strategic programs without a nod toward curbing the Soviet buildup. More recently, Mr. Warnke has been an advocate of unilateral disarmament initiatives — stopping U.S. programs merely on the hope that the Soviets would follow suit.

The appointment is symbolic of what is happening with key second-tier appointments in State, Defense and the National Security Council. The top figures of Cyrus Vance, Harold Brown and Zbigniew Brzezinski bridge the middle to left to the foreign policy establishment. But Anthony Lake and Leslie Gelb at State, David Aaron at the NSC, as well as the names being floated for yet unfilled policy and research posts at the Pentagon, these are the names of the new politics. While some appointments are better and some worse, some posts are still unfilled and some lower-level officials are relative unknowns. It's difficult to avoid the impression that on foreign and defense matters we are getting a McGovernite administration.

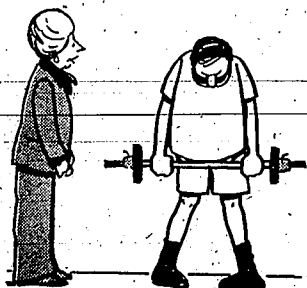

That the nomination of Theodore Sorensen as head of the CIA fit this pattern, of course, was the underlying reason the appointment collapsed. With controversy now swirling around Mr. Warnke as well, Mr. Carter probably feels the Senate is treating him unfairly in comparison with previous incoming Presidents. But if he intended to follow the foreign and defense policies so roundly rejected by the voters four years ago, it would have been nice if he had told us so during the campaign. Since his appointments are the first real sign of a McGovernite drift in foreign policy, they naturally are the first occasion for the inevitable controversy.

Now, with regard to Mr. Warnke specifically: We doubt that his nomination is in much real danger. If this were an isolated appointment rather than part of a pattern, we doubt that it would stir controversy at all. Even many Senators who would have opposed Mr. Sorensen for the CIA will see nothing at all wrong with having an outspoken arms controller as head of ACDA. But there is one point within the responsibilities of that post on which the Senate ought to go to great lengths to reassure itself.

This is the matter of verification, or in plain English, the ability to detect Soviet cheating on any arms control agreement. That we are an open society and the Soviets a Gulag one creates an automatic imbalance in disarmament treaties. With the present treaty the Soviets have played shyster with every conceivable loophole, and in fact have been forced to admit and correct one unmistakable violation of the terms. Unless treaty language is designed to insure verification its limits will apply to the U.S. and not to the Soviet Union. Under Fred C. Ikle, verification was a principal preoccupation of ACDA.

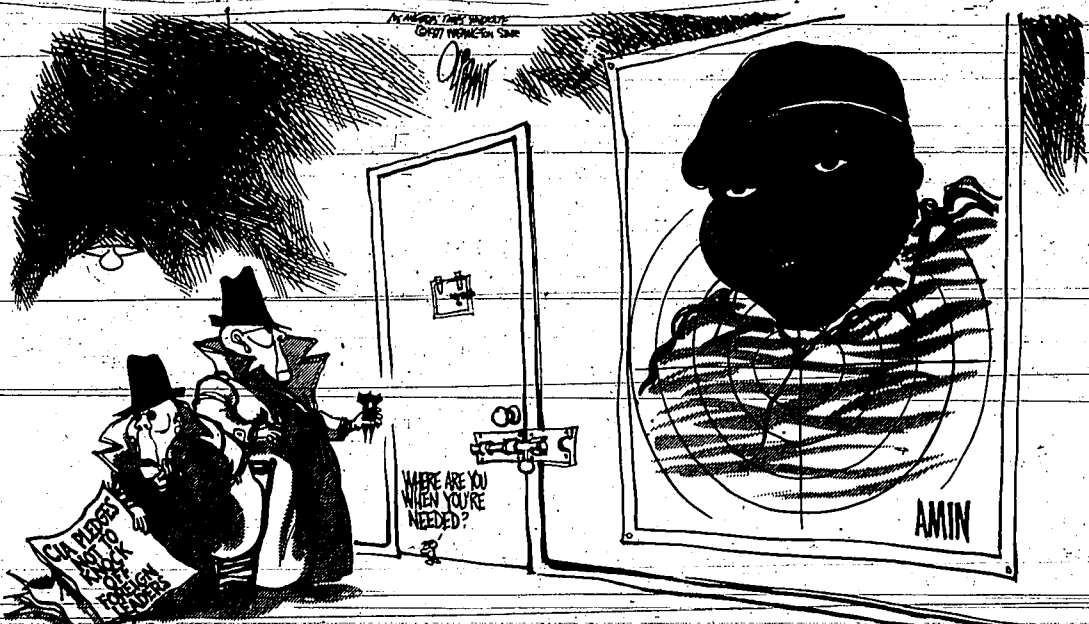

It is greatly to be doubted that this emphasis will be continued by someone who believes in unilateral initiatives — disarmament without any treaty at all. Let alone a light one. Yet surely verification is the absolute key to any truly sound arms control agreement. And with the mounting evidence that the Soviets are doing nothing to slow their monumental buildup, verification of any arms control treaty will also be a key to U.S. national security. The Senate ought, at the very least, to make this concern unmistakable to Mr. Warnke.

Water: people everywhere struggle to manage a precious resource

By BOYCE RENSBERGER

© 1977 N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — Drought-stricken or snow-bound, inundated by rampaging floods or sickened by contaminated reservoirs, people in almost every region of the world have long struggled against the caprices and crises of water.

In recent years, however, a growing number of experts have warned that a water crisis of global proportions is developing because of changes in both man and nature.

Burgeoning human numbers, demanding more food and more living space, are being forced into arid lands that require new technologies for survival. And many climatologists fear that the planet is moving into an era of unstable weather patterns that could deprive established agricultural regions of once reliable rainfall.

In this view, last summer's drought in Western Europe and the current drought in the American West, for example, could represent the early phase of a major climate shift that persists for years or it could be a short-term phenomenon that recurs more frequently than in past decades.

To address the problem on a global scale, the United Nations World Conference is to convene Monday in Mar del Plata, Argentina. United Nations officials hope that the two-week meeting similar to recent world conferences on the environment, food and population, will stimulate greater determination by national governments to provide and maintain adequate supplies of clean water for their citizens, their farms and their industries.

Although the conference will cover such topics as flood control, water transportation and hydroelectric power, the major emphasis, apparent from a survey of the more than 200 papers scheduled for delivery, will be the need for more irrigation water, more safe drinking water and on broad-scale planning and policies needed to develop sources of water.

According to United Nations experts, the two uses of water where shortages are doing the most to cause and aggravate human misery are in food production and in public drinking water supplies.

Eighty per cent of the world's people have no access to tap water. They depend on streams and wells that are often contaminated with human wastes. The United Nations Children's Fund estimates that one billion rural people in Latin America, Asia and Africa and 200 million dwellers in urban shantytowns, such as those of Mexico City and Lagos, Nigeria, must use unsafe water sources. It is estimated that five million people die every year of water-borne diseases.

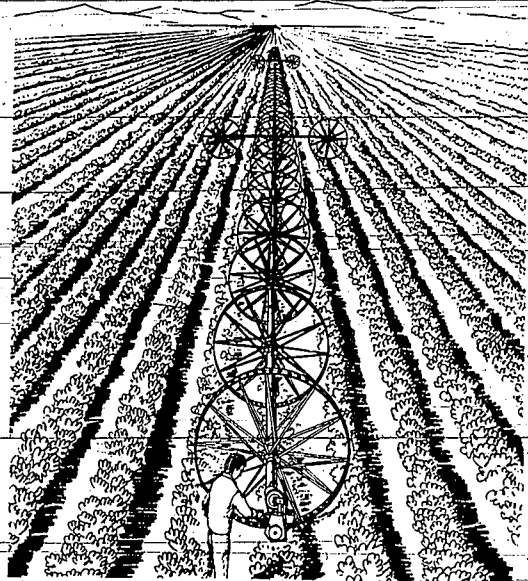

Public health experts have long maintained that the single most effective measure that could be taken to improve human health in developing countries would be to provide safe sources of drinking water. In some rural areas of Japan and India where these pests have been taken recently, the illness rates dropped by 70 to 80 per cent.

Agriculture, the other major area where shortages are critical, currently accounts for 80 to 90 per cent of all the water used by humanity, not counting rain. Virtually all that amount goes for irrigation. Although only 15 per cent of the world's cropland is irrigated, it produces from 30 to 40 per cent of the world's food.

Because nearly all the usable land that gets good rainfall is already under the plow, agricultural experts say that much of the increased food production that an expanding world population needs must come from irrigating more land. Many of the new high-yielding varieties of seeds require irrigation to perform at their best. According to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, to feed all those who will be alive in 2000 will require a virtual doubling of the amount of water now used for irrigation.

A third significant and growing demand for clean water comes from industry. Producing a ton of steel requires the use of 150 tons, or 40,000 gallons, of water. Refining a ton of oil uses 100 tons of water. Making a ton of paper consumes 250 tons of water.

Because industries have traditionally dumped the waste water back into lakes or rivers without cleaning it, many of the natural waterways used by industry are no longer able to meet the need for clean water.

Problems of water pollution are familiar enough in heavily industrialized countries, but they are new to many developing countries where pollution control systems are sometimes regarded as a luxury that can wait. In many developing countries waterways are so few and so small, especially during the dry season, that relatively small amounts of pollution cause great damage.

One of the major ways of meeting the industrial needs is to clean the waste water and recycle it through the factory. Although this is a relatively new practice in the United States, Japan has been one of the leaders in waste water recycling for two decades. In 1958, according to a paper prepared by the Japanese government for the water conference, that country's industries obtained nearly 20 per cent of their water by cleaning their own wastes and reusing them. By 1973 the proportion had grown to 62 per cent.

Over that 15-year period, Japan has been able to quintuple its industrial use of water while having to increase its consumption of "virgin" water by a factor of only 2.3.

Although water is one of the most abundant materials on earth, well over 99 per cent of it is presently inaccessible for direct human use. Of the 333 million cubic miles of water estimated to be on the planet, more than 97 per cent is in the oceans.

Another 2 per cent is locked in ice, most of it at the poles and in Greenland. Of the 0.65 per cent of the world's water that is not in oceans or ice, nearly half lies more than half a mile underground, beyond the reach of conventional drilling methods. An equivalent amount, estimated at a million cubic miles, is ground water but not as deep. This is the water that is already being tapped in regions where sand and rock is suitably porous to hold sufficient quantities of water. The world's lakes and rivers contain about 0.01 per cent of the planet's water, or about 33,000 cubic miles.

The water upon which the vast majority of the world's farmers, who till 85 per cent of the farmland, depends is that stored in clouds and delivered as rain. At any given time it amounts to 0.001 per cent of the world's water and most of it falls on the oceans.

However large the total water supply in much of the world, it is seldom consistently available in adequate amounts from any usable source. Droughts can parch the soil, dry up rivers, and lower the water table below well bottoms. Industrial pollution and human wastes can contaminate rivers, lakes and even ground water, making them unfit as water sources. Human settlements can expand into arid regions where there never is enough water obtainable by conventional methods.

Yet, according to United Nations agencies and other experts, the growth of the needs for water over the next 25 years will compel hydrologists, agronomists, meteorologists, water supply engineers, pollution control specialists and others to find or make twice as much clean, fresh water as the world already uses.

Because many of the most readily available water sources are already being tapped, extracting and transporting, if necessary, the additional water needed will demand new and often more expensive technologies.

Desalting seawater, once one of the most widely touted methods, is now regarded as offering only marginal opportunities in the near future.

Although new and improved desalting methods using membranes and ion exchange have been developed, no method can yet promise a truly low-cost fresh water, a report by the National Academy of Sciences has concluded.

Wise stewardship needed

Editor, Times-News:

Mr. Brannan you are beautiful! Mr. Buhler you did not read in your dictionary. Under stewardship number 2 "The employment or use of one's time, talents and possessions" (Reader's Digest Great Encyclopedia Dictionary).

If you were a Bible-studying Christian you would know stewardship is one phase of the Christian life that is emphasized. "The Lord God saw everything that he had made and behold, it was very good." (Genesis 1:31) And he gave man dominion over it all (Genesis 1:26-30) to use wisely, not exploit.

I belonged to the Tax Equality Association as a charter member and the first time I heard a speaker advocate "land use" I was up-tight. Then I remembered the abuses I have seen in California where I was raised. I have seen that theory of "It's mine and I'll do as I damn well please" has done to the land.

I am Idaho born and Californian raised and it sickens me when I see land that will be needed to feed people ruined. I've seen too much of promoters turning a fast buck with no thought of the environment or the world our children and grandchildren will have to cope with.

Mr. Buhler no one will change your thinking but I do hope that a far-thinking majority prevails and we will have planning commissions and laws that keep prime land for farms and marginal land for other uses.

Also to that lady from California that objected to Idahoans putting down people from California. Lady stick around a few years. You will find that out-of-staters, particularly Californians, come here to get away from crowded conditions, drug use by young people, want friendly neighbors, etc. The just as soon as they arrive and get settled down they start trying to change things.

If they would only come, settle down and blend into the background, but no, they want to Californianize my beloved Idaho. We all realize there are changes and growth coming but let us make it a planned orderly growth.

I have lived in Idaho since 1945 and want to see it kept the beautiful state it has been and can continue to be with wise stewardship.

CLARA WOOD — Gooding

Editor, Times-News:

Since September or October of last year, I have written many articles about this prison and the administration. I am pretty disappointed in the news media, TV news and newspapers.

I feel that the taxpayers should be better informed about how their tax dollars are being wasted and they should be informed by the news media.

Granted, some of my articles have been published, but not enough of them to really keep the public up-to-date on where their dollars are going. Seems they should be interested.

The inmates here have kept their cool, waiting to see what results we got from the people outside; about the articles I wrote. I received very little response.

By the time you receive this letter, this place may have already gone up in dust and smoke.

In the last two days, I have observed a growing number of inmates talking about ripping this prison apart.

It is a sad situation when no one outside would answer the inmates' pleas for help. Looking back, there must have been 500 inmates writing to the news media about this administration.

If there is a riot or any kind of destruction done to this prison, it will be the fault of the news media and, yes, you taxpayers.

After all, we are human too, and we are not all animals, as most of you seem to think.

Drive-thru problems real enough

Editor, Times-News:

It was an ominous day when McDonald's, the champion of fast food, fast talk and the fast buck, raised their golden-arched fantasyland in Twin Falls.

With their supply manufacturers elsewhere, they began to manufacture their demand locally with advertising dollars. To create an illusion of goodwill back then, the owners pretended to promise not to build a drive-thru window.

Now, with a few councilmen in their hip pocket, the "restaurant" is pushing hard for such a window. If they get it, they should at least be forced to pay for the stoplight we will need at that intersection.

But even with a stoplight, we would still have the very real problems of real traffic congestion, real car accidents and real exhaust fumes from "engines."

Only the "food" is "make-believe."

Inmate offers 14 points

Editor, Times-News:

Mr. Warden, director, and all concerned:

Nobody has asked or appointed me to speak—but I believe I speak for everyone living within this penitentiary. I ask the support of all.

Since we all have to live here, there's still no reason for us to have to put up with being manipulated like puppets just because we're here!

Former warden of San Quentin, Clinton T. Duffy once said publicly, "A man is not sent to prison for punishment, but he's sent to prison as punishment."

We're all miserable enough just having to be here, removed from our families and the "free world," without having to cope with the additional hardships or injustices, such as undue harassment, denials of rights we possess simply because we exist, and the constant threat of violence invoked by the wrongly conceived sanctimonious idea of superiority of administration.

Since this place has to be: it can operate a lot more smoothly with a little more effort from both sides.

I've made a list of 14 grievances, requests, and/or demands, which are all reasonable and possible with cooperation between administration and inmates.

1. Absolutely no retaliation toward anyone as a result of this meeting.

2. An Inmate Advisory Council with one representative from each and every tier.

3. Penalty for guards issuing petty write-ups as a means of harassment.

4. No more attempts to strip-search visitors.

5. Free access to the Law Library for everyone during its present open hours.

6. State-paid postage—three letters per week per inmate.

7. Mail to be delivered and picked up in the present procedure by the present selected inmates on Saturdays.

8. Freedom for everyone to grow their beard.

9. Nullification of proposed uniform cell arrangement.

10. Chow hall to remain open for 20 minutes after the last man has gone through the line.

11. More chairs and tables in the housing units.

12. Commissary to be open two days every week—Saturdays and Wednesday afternoons and evenings.

13. Cell-house doors to remain open during the daytime on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

14. That all proposals listed herein be granted.

Officials retained

ELKHART, Idaho (UPI)—This small north central Idaho community has retained its mayor and city council.

Mayor Richard Coomer received 15-62 votes Tuesday. The city council was retained by roughly the same margin.

The recall efforts came after the mayor and city council fired City Marshal Robert Pfeister. They said the action was taken because Pfeister had two jobs and was not devoting enough time to his law enforcement duties.

Rumsfeld accepts post

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Donald Rumsfeld, former secretary of defense in the Ford administration, has accepted a teaching post at Northwestern University, the university announced Wednesday.

Rumsfeld, a native of Illinois, will teach at the university's Graduate School of Management beginning with the start of the spring quarter March 28. His specialty will be in the general field of management in the federal government, said Donald P. Jacobs, dean of the school.

TV cop urges pot laws

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Blake, who plays undercover cop "Baretta" on television, urged a congressional committee Wednesday not to decriminalize marijuana possession.

Blake said he is "concerned about America's teen-agers as well as children under 12 — too many of whom already are addicted to marijuana." Legal possession is "paving the way in another illegal act — the various acts of selling," Blake said in a telegram read into the record at the committee hearing in Washington.

Douglas honored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Wednesday signed a bill dedicating the C&O Canal to former Justice William O. Douglas in recognition of his leadership in preserving and protecting the canal and towpaths from encroaching development.

"The bill authorizes the secretary of interior to commemorate the contributions of Douglas to the park."

Hughes estate value termed 'ludicrous'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Harold Rhoden, the attorney backing the validity of Howard Hughes' "Mormon will," said Wednesday an audit showing the estate worth only about $168 million "is so ludicrous you couldn't print my comment in a family newspaper."

Former Hughes' lieutenant Ngali, Dietrich was named executor of that will naming Utah filling station operator Melvin Dummer one of the beneficiaries. "It's not likely to be tested in a court trial in Las Vegas, Nev."

Rhoden is representing Dietrich in the case. "I told Noah about the $168 million figure and he hasn't stopped laughing yet," Rhoden said.

The lawyer said that in sworn testimony in a court case in 1974 an official of Summa Corp., the umbrella holding company for Hughes' various enterprises, estimated the worth of Summa alone at $335 million.

"Well, where has a couple hundred million gone to?" Rhoden said. "Did it go for hotel bills?"

Rhoden said Hughes got a profit of about $500 million in the 1960s when he sold his stock in Transworld Airlines. He also netted $140 million from sale of the Hughes Tool Co. in the early 1970s.

"I think the only conclusion one could draw is that the estimate of Hughes' estate is something on the conservative side," he said.

The profitable Hughes Aircraft Co., 1st Culver City, Calif., is owned by the Hughes Medical Institute of Miami, Fla., a non-profit foundation.

"It is interesting to note that three directors of Summa are trustees of the medical foundation," Rhoden said. "What does the Institute do anyway in the field of medical research? For all we know it's a telephone and a secretary."

Haley sues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Author Alex Haley Wednesday sued Doubleday and Co. for $5 million, saying the publishing house is not properly promoting his best-seller "Roots."

Many bookstores ran out of the $12.50 hard cover edition of the book when sales boomed from the eight-night television dramatization, losing his 15 per cent royalty, the millionaire author complained. He is promoting the book himself, he contended, without the help the publishing house is obligated by contract to give him.

Mutual liking at town meet

CLINTON, Mass. (UPI) — President Carter, in his first face-to-face meeting with the public since moving into the White House, said Palestinians must have a homeland in order to relieve Middle East troubles.

He obviously was pleased by his enthusiastic reception Wednesday night at a special town meeting in this once thriving, but now economically struggling community of 13,000 citizens.

The 50 lucky ones able to get seats in the Town Hall auditorium applauded loudly after every response, including Carter's answers to such controversial topics as abortion.

Carter himself observed it was "the first time I've ever given an answer on abortion and got applause."

He also continued a recent trend of offering specifics on ways of reaching a possible peace accord in the Middle East. "There has to be a homeland provided for the Palestinians, refugees who have suffered for many, many years," he said.

But, he said, "The Palestinians claim ... that Israel has no right to be there, that the land belongs to the Palestinians, and they have never yet given up their publicly professed commitment to destroy Israel. That has to be overcome."

Much of the meeting resembled a rally with the people of Clinton overjoyed to have a president come to talk with them.

"Your visit to our beloved town has created a spirit of civic pride equalled very few times since the incorporation of this town in 1850," said

Board of Selectmen Chairman Alan D. Jewett to thunderous applause.

At least three-quarters of those in town hall wore something green, reflecting on the eve of St. Patrick's Day that the populations of the town is 75 per cent of Irish descent.

Carter kept the enthusiasm alive. He immediately told Clinton citizens their town is "extraordinary," a statement that also brought a thunderous response.

Carter, in discussing the issue of abortion, said that "under the new and revised welfare system ... we will try to give families a chance to make sure that they can avoid unwanted pregnancy with adequate instruction, to provide birth control opportunities for those who believe in them."

He said the government will work "to discourage abortions as much as possible."

Louisiana cuts gas

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards has ordered a slight cut in natural gas production on nine state-owned leases in an apparent attempt to prod the federal government into its favorable energy policy.

Gas production could be reduced by up to 200 million cubic feet per day, under the order, or about 2 per cent of Louisiana's total output of 9.8 billion cubic feet per day.

The cut is one of four steps Edwards recommended to his Natural Resources Study Committee Wednesday.

Morals charge

ARRESTED in Dallas, Tex., for the second time in nine months on a charge of public lewdness is retired Army Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, 67. He is accused of trying to fondle a platoon of officers in a park restroom. He is still awaiting trial on the earlier charge, filed last June. (UPI)

US ties to canal pledged by pair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will remain actively involved in the Panama Canal long after expiration of a new treaty currently being negotiated, according to American negotiators, Elsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz.

The two diplomats met privately for more than two hours with the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee Wednesday. Congressional sources said they indicated the new treaty probably will run out by the end of the century, but that the United States will continue to play an active role long thereafter.

In fact, the sources quoted Linowitz as telling the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee Wednesday, "we are going to be there (in the Panama Canal) in perpetuity."

Spokesmen for the negotiators' office at the State Department declined to confirm or deny that statement, on the grounds they could not comment on the content of an executive hearing.

UPI learned that Linowitz also told the committee he resigned from the board of the Marine Midland Bank of New York.

Linowitz, former ambassador to the Organization of American States, had been criticized for negotiating a canal treaty while on the board of a bank which made loans to Panama and was on the Federal Reserve System's list of "problem" banks.

Tax package adds Business credits

© Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee, trying to finish work on the tax reduction part of the Carter economic stimulus package, has adopted an expanded investment tax credit and a new job tax credit option for business.

The 13-16 vote, on a proposal by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., struck a compromise between the administration's desire for an investment tax credit as a signal to business that it is concerned about capital formation, and the House decision to jettison the expanded investment credit in favor of the new jobs credit to stimulate employment.

At the session, an administration spokesman, Laurence Woodworth, assistant Treasury secretary for tax policy, spoke up for the expanded investment tax credit and disclosed, for the first time publicly, that President Carter plans to propose major incentives to stimulate capital formation in the big tax reform program to be sent to Congress next fall.

"It's very likely that the administration will come up with a substantial method of aiding capital formation and investment," Woodworth told the committee.

Might talk

© Washington Star
WASHINGTON — James Earl Ray says he would testify before the House Assassinations Committee only in a public session and that he would not consider appearing in any kind of executive session which might lead to leaks by committee staffers.

In what amounts to his first public declarations about the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., Ray denied on national television Tuesday night that he killed the civil rights leader in Memphis, Tenn., in April 1968.

System Arizona probe focus

By United Press International
Robert Greene, director of the investigative team which probed crime and corruption in Arizona, said Wednesday the real reason of the project is "to demonstrate to criminals everywhere that killing a reporter is never a solution."

"We agreed we would not focus on the Bolles murder; we would concentrate on the system that killed Bolles. And the best way to do that was to carry on his investigative work," Greene said at a meeting of the Overseas Press Club in New York City.

Greene is the task force leader of Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., a group of nearly 40 journalists from 26 news organizations who spent six months investigating crime in Arizona following the bombing murder in Phoenix last June of Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles.

The IRE has published articles charging that Sen. Barry

Goldwater, R-Ariz., has "condoned organized crime" in Arizona and that his brother, Robert Goldwater, has maintained friendships and business relationships with reputed underworld figures.

The Goldwaters have said the IRE team's reports are "ridiculous and untrue."

Greene said that although Senator Goldwater did not "commit a crime," his association with underworld figures is the same thing as "condoning organized crime."

"And if our public officials can do that, then God help America," Greene said.

Greene spoke sharply about journalists who have criticized the IRE and the team reports.

"We're proud of the investigative report. It will have its critics to be sure. It did even before it got off the ground," he said.

"Ben Bradlee, the executive editor of the Washington Post, the self-appointed spokesman for American journalism, criticized the team, saying that it was arrogant for out-owners to come in and think they can do better than the local papers. Well, Bradlee's elitist ideas were proven wrong," Greene said.

There has been dissension within the IRE itself, Greene admits, but he said, "There's dissension in any group that involves media people."

"We're the most democratic people in the world and we all think we know how to run it," he said.

Responding to questions concerning financing of the six-month project, he said the IRE "spent about $72,000 on expenses, excluding about $50,000 which the news organizations had to pay out for staffers' salaries. Only one journalist left the group during the investigation, because he had wanted to write a book about the investigations for personal profit and this was prohibited by the IRE, Greene said.

"I personally turned down four book offers, even before I went to Phoenix. I do not want to make money off the dead body of a fellow reporter," Greene said.

Several participating news organizations have decided not to publish the IRE reports, according to Greene. Among them is Bolles' own newspaper, the Arizona Republic.

"The Arizona Republic is an interesting case, a sad case. There are many fine people at the Republic, but the Arizona Republic has been protective to a 'small local clique,'" Greene said.

Greene related an incident in which the Arizona Republic allegedly withheld former Republican state chairman Harry Rosenzweig's name from an investigative report.

"The Arizona Star, however, used Rosenzweig's name," he said.

The difference between the Arizona Republic and the Arizona Star is the name of the man who runs the Star—Pulitzer," Greene said.

Other IRE news organizations who have not yet run the IRE series are: the Chicago Tribune, the St. Louis Globe Democrat, the Washington Star, and KGUN-TV in Tucson, Ariz.

United Press International has carried four of the articles made available by Investigative Reporters and Editors Inc. A UPI spokesman said Wednesday that UPI felt a story "summarizing the highlights of the fifth article would be sufficient."

The spokesman said other articles in the IRE series would be carried more fully as the news agency felt warranted.

Pardon rapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost two months after the fact, the House came out against President Carter's pardon of Vietnam draft resisters.

The surprise vote of 230 to 186 came Wednesday in an amendment to a $27.7 billion supplemental appropriations bill, which later was passed and sent to the Senate.

Check eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department wants the Environmental Protection Agency to require car owners to get periodic pollution checkups, like the safety checks now required in many states.

Witness sticks to single reply

SANTO TRAFFICANTE
... monotonous reply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The dapper, gray-haired witness in the expensively tailored light gray suit had his replies written out on the small piece of paper on the table before him, and referred to it constantly.

But the answers given Wednesday by crime figure Santo Trafficante, a pre-Castro gambling czar in Cuba, to Chief Counsel Richard Sprague had a monotonous ring.

In a voice that got huskier as the hearing in the House Assassinations Committee wore on, he droned: "I refuse to answer ... I decline to answer ... I respectfully refuse ... under my constitutional rights ... under the Fifth Amendment" and other constitutional guarantees protecting witnesses against self-incrimination.

The panel then went into a closed meeting, scheduled to continue today, to work out a budget and a report to justify its continued existence to the House after the temporary mandate expires March 31.

In the public hearing Wednesday, the committee apparently was trying to determine whether there was any relationship between CIA use of the organized crime in plots in the 1960s to kill Fidel Castro and the assassination of John Kennedy, during whose administration many of the abortive plans were hatched.

Sprague fired questions, receiving polite but firm refusals to:

Had he ever worked for the CIA or had any connection with that agency? Did he know Russell or Giancana? Did he know Robert Maheu? (a former FBI agent who became a top aide of the late Howard Hughes and once testified that he was recruited by the CIA in plots to kill Castro). Did he have any advance information that Kennedy was to be assassinated? Did he know Jack Ruby, who killed Lee Harvey Oswald two days after Kennedy died?

Trafficante still declined to answer when Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, warned him he was leaving himself open to contempt of Congress charges.

'Taxing' situation

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to a professional man for 20 years. (I'll call him Joe.) We have a beautiful family, and I always thought we had a good marriage. Now I find out, quite by accident, that Joe has been having an affair with his secretary for more than two years.

I've had this girl in my home, and I really liked her. Joe says that he doesn't "love" her—he loves ME—but that all professional men "fool around." Then he went on to list all his colleagues who were friendly with, saying they all have girlfriends on the side.

Joe says it's all over between him and his secretary, but she practically runs his office and he "needs" her, so he's keeping her on.

He always told me what a super wife, mother and bed partner I was. Now he says I wasn't really all that great, but he didn't want to hurt my feelings or make me feel insecure.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Does the Internal Revenue Code discourage marriage? Would two people really live together instead of marrying, just because of the tax law? Can anything be done about it?

Stay tuned to the Senate Finance Committee for the latest episode in a continuing tax battle between singles and marrieds.

Although the solution may grow complicated, the problem is simple: two single persons living together may claim two separate standard deductions. If they marry, they can claim only the deduction for couples, which now is $1,300 to $2,000 less.

The committee is seeking solutions, and having a little fun with the subject along the way.

"What would prevent us from saying that two people who live at the same address are considered married?" suggested Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., as the committee struggled with the question.

"You" would have a number of administrative problems with the... answered chief tax staffer Bobby Shapiro as laughter drowned out the end of his sentence.

"Two men included?" asked Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore.

"No," answered Curtis.

The committee is drafting economic stimulus legislation in which it must grapple with the "marriage penalty" in the standard deduction, as well as business tax cuts and Carter's proposed "50-per" person rate.

The "marriage penalty" is the amount of standard deduction two single persons can claim if they marry and claim the standard deduction for couples.

Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., favored appling to give married couples a slightly larger tax cut than either Carter's bill or House-passed legislation, while raising taxes an average of $25 a year on some 1.8 million single persons who make more than $14,375 and use the standard deduction.

Under Carter's proposal, single persons could claim a flat standard deduction of $2,200 rather than the current range from $1,700 to $2,400, and couples could claim a flat $3,000 instead of the range from $2,100 to $2,800. The House then changed Carter's single figure to $2,400 to prevent some singles from being hit with a tax increase.

The "marriage penalty" in the Carter package would be $1,400 and in the House bill $1,800. Long's proposal would involve a penalty of $1,500.

Curtis said those who talk of a "marriage penalty" in the tax code "have a different set of values. I was never penalized by being married. I was blessed."

Answered Long: "It depends on how the marriage goes."

Hubby cheats

Meanwhile, I can't look his secretary in the face, and I don't want to be in the company of his colleagues and their wives, knowing the men are cheating and their wives are deceived.

Here's an answer to this nightmare?

DISILLUSIONED AND HEARTBROKEN

DEAR DIS: Your husband has behaved like a prize heel. I don't disregard the possibility that he implicated innocent colleagues to make his transgressions appear more commonplace.

All professional men do not cheat on their wives. If he loves you as he says he does, he will get rid of his secretary. And with the reference he can give her, one of his colleagues might be glad to hire her.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 and am engaged to marry a man 40. This will be my first (and, I hope, my ONLY) marriage.

I started to plan a big, formal church wedding with all the trimmings—the kind every girl dreams about—but in having second thoughts.

I see, my fiancé is a divorced man with teenage children. He and his first wife were hastily married by a priest so this would be his first church wedding, too. He wants to go along with my decision.

A few of my friends have expressed surprise that I don't have a big flashy wedding even though my fiancé is a big, flashy married, and his first family lives in a rather small town.

What do the etiquette books say? And how do you feel about it?

SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR SECOND: The etiquette books say that since this is YOUR first marriage, there are no restrictions on the kind of wedding you may have—providing your clergyman approves. I think, considering the circumstances, a less "showy" wedding would be in better taste.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear friend who is a sweet, kind and intelligent. She is such a fine person and everyone loves her, and I would really like to help her.

She has one fault. Body odor. I don't know whether she is a deodorant person, it's caused by her taking so much vitamins. In any case, the odor even permeates her clothing.

I want so much to help her. Is there anything I can do about losing her friendship?

A FRIEND IN FLORIDA

DEAR FRIEND: Tell her in a very gentle and loving way it would be a kindness.

Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," is available to Abigail Van Buren, 332 LaSalle Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

your health

By LAWRENCE A. LAMB, M.D.

I've been reading your column for some time now and I also read your book, "Metabolism."

It was very interesting and I sure learned a lot about losing weight. You have finally convinced me that the way to lose weight is to take in fewer calories than your body uses.

I am 25 years old, 5 feet 2, and weigh 115 pounds. I only want to lose 5 pounds. It is very hard for me to lose when I eat only 800 calories a day, so I cut my intake to only 500. For the last few days I have also been running a mile in the morning and the last night I played tennis for an hour. The other morning when I got on the scale after all the exercise I've been getting and the scales told me I had gained a pound.

I have to switch everything I eat so I don't get back to 120 pounds like I was. My husband can eat anything and everything and wants without putting on a pound. He tells me if I would get more exercise I could do the same thing. But how much more exercise do I need to get?

As you can tell I am very discouraged. I've been trying to get rid of last five pounds off for the last four months. Do you have any suggestions? And can you tell me why I might have gained when all that exercise? I need some advice quickly.

Dear Reader,

Congratulations on getting rid of the 15 pounds of fat. Not everyone has enough will power to do that.

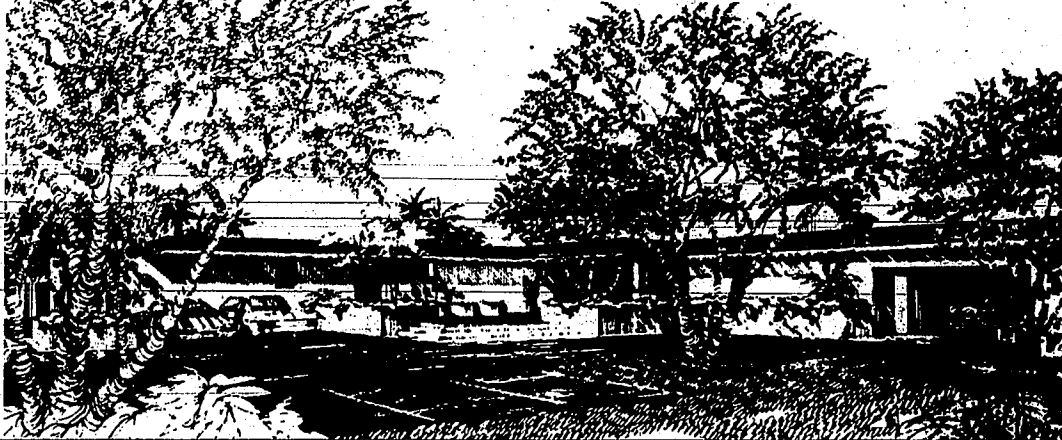

I don't like you to restrict your calories that much. I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Loss Diet. This will give you a plan you can follow and still have a balanced diet. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents for it in a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing.

Exercise helps a person lose weight but it does so slowly. That is why you need to be consistent with your exercise program.

That mile you ran probably used an additional 100 calories at most — probably less considering your size. The hour of tennis perhaps only 350 calories, depending on how vigorous the game was. There are 3500 calories in a pound of body fat or 17,500 in the five pounds you want to lose. If you walked three miles a day, in four months time you would use the calories in five pounds of body fat.

The other problem you have is that pounds on the scale are a poor indication of body fat loss. As fat is metabolized it breaks down into carbon dioxide and water. The body may retain the water. As you retain four or five pounds of water it looks like you are not making progress. After three or four weeks, suddenly there will be a washout of water and your weight will drop.

Another aspect is the difference in calories in a pound of muscle and a pound of fat. If you increase your muscle mass from healthy exercise, you build a pound of muscle with only 600 calories. So you can be losing calories and gain weight as you lose fat (3500 calories per pound) and gain muscles (600 calories per pound). That is healthy and you shouldn't be discouraged about that. Exercise may also stimulate your body to retain some fluid — to expand your blood volume — that is a limited affair, too.

Teeth care brings brush with opinions

NEW YORK — We Americans just naturally love teeth. Nice, shining white ones with the luster of a pearl. And many of us will do just about anything to maintain them.

With this kind of thinking, it's no wonder that Americans spend at least $425 million a year on toothpaste, choosing from at least 22 kinds, not counting house brands or expensive imports.

Yet all that's really needed to keep our smiles resplendent is salt and baking soda on equal parts on a wet toothbrush. That is, if we're adults and aren't restricted to a no-sodium diet.

The 50-50 combination causes an alkaline reaction that's all to the good, say authorities in preventive dentistry, and the mild abrasiveness can handle slight stains.

The reason it's not for children is that they need fluorides to prevent their teeth from decaying.

At least on authority, Dr. Howard L. Ward, chairman of New York University's Dental Center's Department of Preventive Dentistry, thinks adults should go kosher with the salt since the magnesium sulfate, which makes ordinary table salt flow freely, dries the gums.

But another authority, Dr. Gordon H.

Schrotenboer, secretary of the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics, thinks there wouldn't be enough magnesium sulfate to matter.

One certainty is that there are many differences of opinion among the top men in preventive dentistry — each one has his own ideas.

Women in the news

Swoozle Kurtz has been signed for an important role in "First Love" for Paramount Pictures. The film about a bitter-sweet love affair between two college students will be directed by Joan Darling.

Jean Marsh, 42, who became famous playing Rose Buck in the indomitable lady's maid in "Upstairs, Downstairs," said she felt "just terrible" when the end came to that series. Now on the stage in Los Angeles in Tom Stoppard's "Travesties," she admitted having a man in her life — movie director Michael Lindsay-Hogg.

Turned down for parole in December, Jean Little, 22, will begin working as a clerk typist next week in a daily work-release program in Raleigh, N.C. She is serving a 7-10 year sentence for breaking and entering. Ms. Little was acquitted 18 months ago of first degree murder in connection with the keepick stabbing death of an elderly white feller she said had tried to assault her.

Lea Rabin, the prime minister's wife, accused she had violated Israeli foreign currency regulations by maintaining a personal account containing $2,000 in the National Bank of Washington, D.C. She said she had ordered Tuesday that the money be transferred to an Israeli bank in accordance with the law.

Anne Armstrong, 40, made an excellent impression on the British while serving as ambassador. The weekly Spectator magazine has nominated Mrs. Armstrong as the first woman president of the United States. Mrs. Armstrong is now back in her native Texas.

Now in her forties, Bibi Anderson says she doesn't "mind being an adult woman. I find it interesting. . . anyway, I find more and more people are turning 60." Bibi will star in Arthur Miller's new play, "The Bishop's Ceiling."

The slam failed to make. The late Louis Watson, whose death at the age of 29 just two years later deprived bridge of one of its very best and versatile players, happened to sit West.

Louis was noted as a sound steady player. He could have made the normal lead of the queen of diamonds. If he had done this South would have found out about the 5-1 diamond break before having to do anything about hearts and taken the heart finesse. But Louis knew it was time for something brilliant. He opened the deuce of hearts. Poor South thought a while, called for dummy's ace of hearts and had to go one down.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's three-spade response to North's two-diamond opening showed seven-card suit and denoted possession of an ace or king anywhere with two or more cards in his partner's suit.

North was able to count sure winners at notrump: spades. At notrump the 1-1 winner would only come from a successful heart finesse.

Spades it could also come from. North's diamond could set up. This made the spade slam a very good one.

North bid it.

This hand helped decide national knockout team championship of 1933 because it bid at one table while at other table stopped at a marginally good contract.

We keep getting questions about the new revoke penalty. The confusion is due to the fact that the new laws for duplicate make the penalty for an established revoke just one trick, while in rubber bridge where there are no new laws as yet. The penalty is still two tricks.

Public hearing on steel bridge may be held at Ketchum

SIRAA meeting set

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Transportation Board decided Tuesday to "consider conducting a public hearing on construction of a steel bridge on I-93 south of Ketchum."

Blaine County Commissioner Ivan Gustafson, Ketchum, appeared before the board to ask the possible replacement of the bridge and construction of a bike path between Halley and Ketchum on US-93.

Harry Day, board secretary said the public hearing would be conducted "on the possibility of constructing a new two-lane bridge which would require obtaining easements and rights-of-way."

Day said testimony at public hearings in 1974 opposed a four-lane highway on US-93.

He said in order to get federal funds to construct the bridge the highway would have to be developed to accommodate future traffic needs which would require a four-lane highway.

"The only alternative is to use state funds which are in very short supply," Day said.

The present bridge is located "on a hnd curve" about two-and-a-half miles south of Ketchum, Day said, adding that a new bridge, if approved, would be constructed at a different location for safety reasons.

"Turning to the bike path, the board" asked Gustafson to come back with a design plan, an official request from the recreation district and approval of the Blaine County Commissioners.

Gustafson asked the board to apply for Bureau of Outdoor Recreation funds to cover the construction.

In further action, the board scheduled a open hearing May 11 in Coeur D'Alene on the Coeur D'Alene east section of 190 to get public reaction to several alternatives for its alignment proposed in the revised environmental impact statement.

GOODING — A general meeting of the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at the Gooding County Courthouse, Gooding. The public is invited to attend.

AF Dam one-half complete

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Engineers say the American Falls Dam replacement project is half completed, the dam should be holding water in November and the work virtually will be finished by December.

Jack Allen, superintendent for Bechtel Corp., engineers for the project, said work is on schedule and the mild winter has helped.

Approved by spaceholders Jan. 12, 1976, the project was begun after the Reclamation Bureau restricted capacity of the reservoir due to the deteriorating condition of the 49-year-old structure.

Because of the time it might take the federal government to finance such a project, the spaceholders pursued the project with their own funds after special state and congressional action was taken.

Originally expected to cost more than $44 million, the project now is estimated at $38 million because of favorable interest rates, Idaho Power Company will contribute more than $20 million toward it.

Just the dam itself will cost $19 million. There also will be a three-unit powerhouse with a capacity of about 100 megawatts.

When finished, the dam will hold 60,000 additional acre-feet of water — the same capacity as the old dam before the restriction was ordered. Total capacity will be 1,700,000 acre-feet.

Romanian dissidents confined

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — A leading Romanian dissident says the government has sent persons it views as disloyal to the Communist regime to mental institutions, a practice thought to be carried out only in the Soviet Union.

Novelist Paul Goma, the acknowledged leader of Romanian human rights activists, said in an exclusive interview, he knew of at least four persons who have been sent to such institutions for periods of up to six months at a time. He said there were four mental hospitals used for the purpose, two of them in Bucharest.

Goma did not know the total number of persons sent to the institutions. Western diplomats said the practice has been rumored for some time and estimated the number to be at least 100.

"It is shocking," Goma said. "I'm finding out for the first time that people are sent to mental hospitals. I heard of this but I never heard of a concrete case. I heard of concrete cases in the Soviet Union, but it was only rumored to have happened here."

"Now I see that this is part of the system in all Socialist (Communist) countries."

Goma, 41, said the four sent to the hospitals were Paul Stolan, a mechanical engineer; George Bravocanu, an economist who spoke out on religious issues; Paulina Citanescu, a chemical engineer; and Vasile Paraschiv, an elderly worker, member of the pre-World War II Socialist party.

All four signed statements for Goma testifying to their incarceration.

"None of these people are crazy," Goma said.

The four were rounded up during sensitive periods and were sent to the institutions on written police orders, he said. The periods included the Warsaw Pact meeting in Bucharest in November and the visit to Romania in August, 1975, of former President Ford.

Local irrigation water turned in early

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Local irrigation districts have taken the suggestion of the Bureau of Reclamation to divert Snake River flow at Milner Dam earlier than normal this year to ready their canal systems and pre-irrigate some fields.

"We're just trying to utilize some of the water that would otherwise go past Milner and on downstream," Leo Busch, Burley Bureau of Reclamation, explained.

The water, about 1,000 cubic feet per second

(cfs) was diverted early this month at a rate of about 300 cfs for each of the three local canal companies "to soak up their canals and carriage systems," according to Carlos Randolph, head of the Minidoka Project with the bureau.

Busch said, "We encouraged it (early water diversion) but we want to caution the irrigators at the same time to spread this water out and avoid getting into using storage too early."

"We have water in our main canals now clear through the system and we're turning it down for farmers who want it," Floyd Maddocks, Twin Falls Canal Co. watermaster, said.

Maddocks said the water is coming down through the Twin Falls system about two weeks to a month earlier than usual and the early flow has created a few difficulties.

"We've had quite a few complications," Maddocks said. "It's too cold for the farmers to irrigate and the ditches are froze up so it's hard to clean them or do anything with them."

Maddocks said many farmers on the tract requested earlier water this year because of dry conditions prevailing in the area.

"We're kind of in a quandary about it," John Morris, researcher at Rogers Bros. Seed Co., who said he will need early water this year for peas.

"It's a touchy thing," he continued. "We must get moisture for the peas before planting and if we pre-irrigate, too, then it will be too wet to get in the field to plant."

Morris said he would either have to pre-irrigate or plant in the dry soil and water the peas up this spring.

"We've had some poor results watering peas up," Morris said. "It looks like we're going to have to pre-irrigate unless we get some rain real soon and have some significant moisture in the ground."

He said starting time is indefinite because of possible freezing conditions.

When asked if the pre-season irrigation, to moisten ground would mean using more water than normal this year, he said, "It depends upon how much moisture we get from here on. It could well mean one extra irrigation."

Del Glens, who farms southeast of Twin Falls, will also pre-irrigate his fields with early water coming down the system.

"I'm figuring on watering the ground to plant wheat," Glenn said. "Most of it will need water to plant. There was no moisture last winter."

Sandpiper license OK

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Acting Fifth District Judge Charles Scoggin has ruled the state liquor department was correct when it issued a controversial liquor license to James Koutnik, Twin Falls.

The decision means the liquor license currently being used at the Sandpiper Restaurant here will not be revoked.

In a letter to the parties concerned, the judge said he felt "that it was legally permissible to issue the license herein upon the census figures provided by the U.S. Bureau of Census."

The case surfaced almost four months ago when Koutnik, a local realtor, applied for a city liquor license.

At a City Council meeting in November, attorney Fred Plankey argued the state's liquor license, which had been issued earlier, was invalid, and therefore, the council should not issue the license.

Both are necessary to sell liquor here. The council delayed its decision but then decided to issue the license.

Local residents Eugene Kopp, owner of The Cove, a bar and restaurant, and Venita Begian, Twin Falls, later filed a complaint in Fifth District Court here against Koutnik, claiming Koutnik's liquor license, leased to the recently opened Sandpiper Restaurant, should not have been issued because population requirements were not met.

In Idaho cities, liquor licenses are issued as population increases. For every 1,500 persons, one additional license can be granted.

In his closing argument, William L. Mauk, who represented the Sandpiper owners, argued all population requirements were met.

Before issuing its license, the state received a letter from the Twin Falls city manager estimating the population at 24,392. Mauk said

Planning repealer backed

BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls County Property Owners Association Wednesday night called on the county joint planning commission to abolish planning and zoning commissions and repeal all zoning laws that infringe on any rights of a property owner.

The property owners organization spent the two-hour session of the joint planning commission Wednesday night outlining their opposition to the proposed Twin Falls County Comprehensive Plan.

Carmen Truscott, spokesman for the property owners, asked the commission not to refer to the comprehensive plan as a "plan," but rather to call it what it is — restrictions.

She presented the commission with a list of seven resolutions the property owners have approved as guidelines for establishing a plan in the county.

This list, in addition to calling for abolishing the county's planning and zoning boards and repealing all restrictive laws, asked public planning laws be restricted to property owned or used by the public; turning all planning over to the elected officials in cities, districts and counties; repeal the state Land Use Act, provide better enforcement of public nuisance laws; handle all land use regulations by consent of property owners and by land use covenants drawn between adjacent property owners, and refrain from making any law which would prohibit any ordinary use of private property.

Mrs. Truscott also passed out a short list of questions to each commission member asking they be answered by marking a "yes" or "no" blank, signed and returned to her group.

Ann Cover, chairman of the planning commission, said the questions such as the one asking for a determination on minimum acreage restrictions could not be answered.

Mrs. Cover said this is only the second meeting of the commission to review all commission received in four public meetings held around the county last month. No decisions will be made, pending careful study of these comments, Mrs. Cover said.

Other questions were answered and the sheets returned to association members.

Peter Link, Hansen, said like the planning commission, he is anxious to protect prime agricultural land, but believes this can be done by agreement among adjacent farm owners. He said a farmer should not be restricted from selling off a small parcel of land, less than five acres, for construction of a "home in the country."

Virgil Pace, rancher and construction business operator, said he is interested only in protecting his rights and the rights of all other property owners.

"You may tell some property owners what to do with their land, but you won't tell me," he said, referring to the county's plan, which favors the property owner over zoning boards in other areas of the county.

Asked by a commission member if he favored restricting building along the canyon rim to a 50-foot setback, Pace said he does not favor any setback restriction if it is just for the safety of the builder and because of possible canyon wall sluffing.

"If it is for environmental purposes, that's a different matter," he said. He and other delegates at the meeting urged the planners to restrict their planning to location of roads, power and water lines and allow development to fall into line with improvements and utilities as they are located.

'Man' opens last nights

TWIN FALLS — Tickets are on sale for the Dillettante production of "Man of La Mancha."

The final performances of the show will be tonight, Friday and Saturday at 8:15 at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

Tickets can be purchased at the Boy Scout office in Twin Falls, at Sav-Mor Drug in Butte or by calling 734-8116 for reservations. Tickets are on sale at the door all three nights.

"Man of La Mancha" is a hit Broadway musical based on the novel "Don Quixote" by Don Miguel de Cervantes, a 16th century poet and playwright. The story takes place in a dungeon during the Spanish Inquisition.

Arthur Franz plays Cervantes and Don Quixote, the mad knight, while Lynnda Dunn plays Aldonza, Kitchan maid turned lady. Edward Britt plays Quixote's faithful servant Sancho.

Wilson Labor Camp open, search continues

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Wilson Farm Labor Camp will be kept open this year.

Meanwhile a search is being conducted for possible relocation of the camp near Rupert.

The Wilson Camp is now near Norland, ten miles north of Rupert.

The camp has run into federal funding rejections for renovation because of its distance from a city. Norland is an unincorporated community consisting of a grocery store, bar and some agriculturally-related business operations.

Vernon Kinner, president of the Wilson Farm Labor Sponsoring Association, said Wednesday that the association is looking into the possibility of relocating near Rupert. The investigation is being conducted through the Minidoka County Housing Authority.

One possibility being discussed is the old Rupert dump site north of the city along Meridian Road. The dump has been closed for several years, with part of the acreage being leased for farming and the City Council has discussed filling the site for utilization.

The association had considered closing the camp and selling the buildings because of governmental restrictions and lack of interest.

"The association voted last week to keep the camp open at least this year and continue as long as it can."

"In the interim," Kinner said, "if the housing authority board can come up with a location, something might be done to obtain funding for relocation of the camp."

Kinner said the buildings at the old labor camp have reached the end of their life expectancy and the association cannot economically sink more money into them.

He said the association has tried three times to rebuild the camp under Farmers Home Administration funding.

FHA wanted the farmers in the sponsoring group to assume the obligations under the loan the first time, Kinner said. The Wilson application was rejected the last two times because of the camp distance from town.

The federal government wants labor camps located within five miles of a city. The association has contended that the camp should be close to the fields where the migrant labor force is needed.

Kinner also pointed out that relocation of the camp might face problems with county zoning laws. He said property owners adjacent to a new location probably would protest siting a labor camp near their homes.

FHA has no grant money available for migrant labor housing in the current fiscal year. Indications are that funds will be available for the 1978 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Kinner said the association plans to negotiate further with FHA for grant funds that might become available in the latter part of this year, and will keep the camp open as long as possible.

"But you never know when OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health—Administration) might be back snooping around," Kinner commented.

HAW board denies food stamp request

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Department of Health and Welfare Region 5 Advisory Board have turned down a request from the Citizens for Justice for increased food stamp eligibility for college students.

Rita Hoag, Hailey, chairman of the advisory board, said she had polled members after last month's meeting and found only one voting for the proposed memorial from the Citizens for Justice.

The organization, including a number of welfare recipients, asked the board to support a legislative measure which would allow welfare recipients full food stamp benefits while attending college or technical schools.

Board members said Wednesday they felt, because of the wording of the memorial, it would include all students attending college on grants and would, therefore, open the door to expansion of a program already under fire and due for revamping.

Roy Slotten, Department of Employment, supported the Citizens for Justice in their request. He said in the February meeting a family head who is attending college must count his grant as income when being considered for food stamp benefits. The individual is encouraged to attend school and acquire a trade so he can eventually leave the welfare rolls but without food stamp assistance, he finds his family income reduced, leaves school and remains on welfare.

Advisory board members Wednesday approved new bylaws for their organization including selection of members. The bylaws call for board members to be selected by the regional director, with recommendations from county commissioners and legislators. Each county in the region is to have at least one representative.

Consideration is to be given minority and consumer groups (welfare program patrons) but persons serving on the board must declare their conflicting interests and refrain from voting on matters connected with these interests.

The revised bylaws provide for a 16-member board, each member to serve a one-year term, but be eligible for reappointment up to six years.

Mrs. Hoag told the board and regional director Dennis McDermott it is important board membership include minority and consumer representatives.

"You can gain so much from having representation from these factions during policy making meetings. I think we should make a special effort to encourage their membership," she said.

Jerome council ponders center backing request

JEROME — Jerome City Council members have taken under advisement a request to continue their financial support for the Jerome Youth Center.

Audrey Roller, with the Community Action Agency in Jerome, asked the council to continue its support. The city gave $500 last year and councilmen indicated they probably will do so again.

Miss Roller said youth center board of directors have applied for a $17,000 Law Enforcement Planning Commission grant but they must raise $2,500 either in cash or "in kind" donations on the local level as matching funds.

In other business Tuesday night, the council heard the second reading of an ordinance to increase city water rates 25 cents. It was reported that water rates in Jerome have risen only $1.25 since Feb. 29, 1933. About three years ago rates were lifted $1 to cover cost of improvements to the city water system.

The first reading was given on an ordinance requiring curbs and gutters be installed on any new residential construction, including mobile homes, throughout the city limits.

The council also had the first reading of an ordinance forbidding overnight truck parking at the city park because of numerous complaints from nearby residents about the noise of refrigeration units which run all night.

Sherlock in Burley?

BURLEY — A Burley man is being held in Cassia County jail today on a charge of grand larceny after a Sherlock Holmes style investigation.

Randy D. Nelson, 23, was arraigned before Cassia County Magistrate Judge Roy Holloway Wednesday. He is being held on $5,000 bond. Holloway's reduction from a preliminary $10,000 bond.

Nelson was arrested by Cassia County sheriff's deputies Tuesday, following an investigation that would match that of most fictional detectives.

Chief Deputy Don Taylor described the solution to the case as the result of "luck" and "persevering investigation."

He said a set of car keys was found at the scene and deputies traced the keys to a particular make and model, narrowing the year to within a four-year span.

A witness had seen a white foreign car that fit the description at the scene. Taylor said deputies checked ownerships of those cars and eventually narrowed the investigation to Nelson who was arrested at his home about 2 p.m. Tuesday.

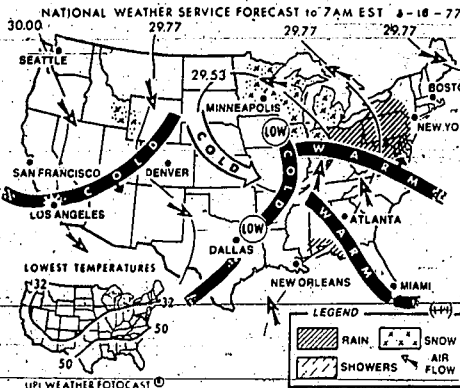

Nelson is charged with the March 11 burglary of the home of Bob Hilliard southeast of Burley. Reported missing after the burglary were TV sets, guns, rings and a tape player.

Taylor said today that deputies have achieved 75 per cent recovery of the missing items.

Welfare hearing in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — A public hearing scheduled Friday in Boise on welfare reform will give Idahoans a chance to express their opinions on the subject, Health and Welfare Department Director Milton G. Klein said Tuesday.

The 12-hour hearing will start at 9 a.m. in the State Office Building west conference room with 15-minute allotments for testimony per speaker.

Persons who have not yet scheduled time will be heard from 10:30 to 11 a.m., 2:15-3 p.m., and 5-6 p.m. on a first-come, first-served basis.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, other government agencies, private organizations and consumers will present testimony, Klein said.

Written testimony may be submitted at the hearing or mailed to Lou Weissman, Region 10 Welfare Reform Coordinator, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Arcade Plaza Building, 1221 Second Ave., Seattle, Wash. 98101.

The Boise meeting is one of many being held throughout the country in keeping with President Carter's intention to revamp the welfare system.

cloudy Friday. Overnight lows in the teens. High temperatures Friday near 40. Saturday's outlook: cool with a chance of a few snow flurries.

Synopsis:
The low pressure system off the California Coast moved inland Wednesday. This storm caused heavy thunder shower activity and substantial rainfall over Southern California.

As this storm moved eastward, it caused some light snow to fall in the Magic Valley but amounts were disappointing. High pressure is building back over the Pacific Northwest today.

This will keep a strong northwesterly flow of cool air over the valley for the next few days. Temperatures will rise only slowly during the day, with highs much below normal.

The extended outlook for Saturday through Monday calls for mostly dry weather with below normal temperatures. High temperatures will generally be in the 40s and overnight lows, in the 20s.

Eagle soars anew

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UPI) — Murphy, a 3-year-old bald eagle, has flown back into the wilderness near the Oregon-California border after spending two months in captivity recovering from metal poisoning.

Alberto Fallero, who rehabilitates injured birds, fed Murphy a couple of turkey necks last week and then tossed him from a high bluff overlooking the Lower Klamath National Wildlife Refuge.

Evaluation asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, called today for more public evaluation of the cancer risks of saccharin consumption.

Hansen said the Food and Drug Administration should report every phase of research and share its findings with several university laboratories as the U.S. Surgeon General did with cancer findings in tobacco.

"If the top researchers in the country find saccharin intolerable for all human consumption then let appropriate action be taken."

"If it is found intolerable for only certain persons let them be advised. In other words, we want to know what real choices there are in the use of saccharin which isn't at all certain from the FDA's report," he said.

Plans drawn

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company has advised shareholders it will spend $121 million on construction projects this year, including $82 million on generating facilities.

President James E. Bruce and Board Chairman Albert Carlsen wrote the shareholders that $51 million of the necessary funds will be generated through sale of pollution control bonds.

Hansen man named leader of property owners group

TWIN FALLS — Virgil Pace, Hansen, has been named temporary chairman of a state-wide organization of property owners working to protect individual rights in connection with land use planning.

An organizational meeting of the Idaho State Property Owners Association was held in Boise Monday. Membership in the state organization will be made up of representatives from county organizations from throughout the state.

Carmen Truscott, Twin Falls, was selected secretary and like Pace, will serve through the organizational period.

Mrs. Truscott said the group is now concentrating its effort on the next legislative session as it appears it is too late to gain any favorable planning legislation in the present session.

"The purpose of our organization," she said, "is to restore and preserve the property owner's rights."

About 20 persons attended the Boise meeting, she said, with strong support from Coeur d'Alene and other northern Idaho areas.

Howard Hughes no billionaire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Howard Hughes was not a billionaire or even close, according to a court-ordered tally of his wealth that is filled with puzzling entries reducing the size of his fortune.

It pictures Hughes as a corrupt-of-the-millennaire eccentric who had only $168.8 million, less than 10 per cent of the $2.5 billion or more he was reputed to be worth.

By comparison, the estate of Jann Paul Getty, a contemporary often mentioned with him as among the world's richest men, runs to more than $3 billion, 20 times the reputed size of Hughes' fortune.

The day Hughes died, April

5, the cash on hand, $1,799, would not have bought a Volkswagen, but he did have more than $671,000 in bank accounts.

The first public accounting of the Hughes fortune, filed Tuesday with the Clark County Clerk's Office for use in settling his estate, was made by the investment banking division of the prominent brokerage, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

A final report is expected in three or four weeks, but the total is not expected to change much, said attorney William Morse, who filed the appraisal on behalf of the administrators of the estate — its caretakers until a Probate Court decides who inherits it.

The complicated appraisal does not reveal what happened to the $546 million Hughes received for his interest in Trans World Airline in the mid-1960s and $142 million for the oil tool division of Hughes Tool Co., which alone would be more than four times the total given.

It values his personal 22 per cent of Hughes Air West airline at $550,000, appraising the whole airline as worth $3.8 million — a fraction of the $41-million Hughes paid for it.

The Silver Slipper Casino in Las Vegas, for which Hughes paid $5.5 million, was listed as worth one dollar.

The value of the Summa Corp. — the corporate umbrella which held much of his ownings — was lumped with the Hughes Television Network at $110.7 million. Summa lawyers have told Nevada courts within the past year that corporation alone was worth more than $450 million.

Summa and the television firm between them control six Nevada hotel-casinos, the Hughes Helicopter Co., the other 78 per cent of Hughes Airwest and vast land holdings including most of the undeveloped land on the prosperous Las Vegas hotel "strip" and 40 square miles west of the city.

The Hughes Aircraft Corp., estimated to be worth $300 million, was not included. The accounting said it is owned by the Howard Hughes Medical Institute of Miami, a nonprofit institution.

Ban leads to law change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FDA's ban on saccharin will result in a quick revision of the law which keeps cancer-causing materials out of the food supply, a former chief of the Food and Drug Administration predicted Wednesday.

Herbert Ley suggested Congress will revise the so-called Delany Clause so that saccharin or some other artificial sweetener such as cyclamates can be put on supermarket shelves in the coming months.

The FDA recently announced banning of saccharin, a decision which has drawn fire from diet groups.

The Delany Clause as currently written allows no amount of a cancer-causing substance to be present in food. Critics of the provision have argued that since it was written in the early 1960s, detection methods have become more sophisticated and it is now almost impossible to find a zero level for some suspect chemicals or food additives.

Ley, appearing at a news conference sponsored by the Grocery Manufacturers of America, said the Delany Clause may not be consistent with more recent laws such as the Clean Air Act and the Toxic Substances law. Both of the laws allow certain levels of harmful substance — rather than no level at all — to be present in the environment.

Where sweeteners are concerned, he said, a modification of the law would allow the FDA to look at the substantial body of research information that has been done on saccharin, cyclamates, and a third sweetener, aspartame — which has never been allowed on the market — and choose which one that has the lowest risk.

"I don't think Congress is likely to repeal the Delany Clause as it now stands," Ley said. But he predicted there would be "additions" made to the law.

"It's a matter of comparative risks," he said, adding that changes are likely in the law within "the next several months."

Surgeons use unique technique

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A rare, tangled mass of blood vessels compressing his spinal cord slowly was choking the life from a 34-year-old Rochester, N. Y., school teacher two weeks ago.

Surgeons at George Washington University Medical Center decided the only choice was surgery. But complicating the problem was an abnormal cluster of vessels that had grown through the spinal cord. Standard surgical procedures would not work.

So doctors combined the latest techniques of neurosurgery and cardiovascular surgery and lowered the body temperature of Donald Hauck to 67 degrees Fahrenheit. At that point his circulation stopped and doctors drained most of the blood from his body.

This gave Dr. Ayub Ommaya an opportunity to remove the malformed vessels from the back of the neck just below the lowermost portion of the brain without causing fatal bleeding.

The 14-hour operation was performed by a 17-member team March 3 and 4. It was the first time such a procedure had been carried out and doctors reported Tuesday that Hauck was alert and could move an arm and both legs that had been paralyzed.

"Prior to surgery, the prognosis was not good," said Dr. Ayub Ommaya, professor of neurosurgery at George Washington. "We felt that he would die in the course of the next few weeks, essentially due to failure of respiration. We could see every day he was weakening further. His chest was growing tight and he was beginning to gasp for breath."

"I'm fairly certain now that he's going to live. The prognosis for recovery is still guarded, because we don't know exactly how much damage has been done but we're encouraged by the fact that every day we see a little improvement."

The body cooling technique that made the operation possible is called hypothermia. Ice baths and blood cooling drops the body temperature to a point where the heart, lungs, kidneys and brain stop working.

The cold slows the function of body cells, enabling them to utilize the oxygen and other nutrients they already have to remain alive for up to an hour. Dr. Paul Corso, thoracic surgeon in charge of that aspect of the operation, likened Hauck's condition at the time to the suspended animation of science fiction.

Ommaya and coworkers were able to complete the removal of the malformation quickly and Hauck's body was rewarmed and circulation restarted after a period of 35 minutes.

Hypothermia has been used in the last few years in open heart surgery of infants but Ommaya said it has been used in adults only infrequently in brain surgery.

Foreman vs. Young

SAN JUAN (UPI) — Heavyweight contenders George Foreman and Jimmy Young fight Thursday night for what they call "a championship showdown" — a bout that either give them the title or, more likely, a second chance to take it from the semiretired Muhammad Ali.

"I'm the champion and the champions always win," Foreman said Wednesday after the weigh-in.

Foreman is generally considered the number one contender to Ali, who threw the rankings into confusion by retiring last year after defeating Ken Norton. He is expected to come out of retirement to fight again but until he formally does so Foreman is claiming the title.

Young, calling the fight Thursday "a championship showdown," said, "Ali is just good for one more fight. He's over the hill. Beat him."

Young, the No. 3 ranked challenger, lost to Ali but claimed victory after a controversial decision in their bout nearly a year ago.

Kuhn lets Turner return to Braves

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yachting enthusiast Ted Turner sailed into temporary calm waters Wednesday in the wake of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn heeding a suggested order by the courts and staying his previous suspension of the Atlanta Braves' owner for at least two months.

Turner had his attorneys file suit in federal court charging Kuhn with meeting out "arbitrary and excessive" penalties in the Jan. 25 suspension when the commissioner charged the Atlanta sportsman with "conduct not in the best interests of baseball."

Kuhn specifically accused the Braves' owner of "tampering" with former San Francisco Giants outfielder Gary Matthews last fall during Turner's efforts to obtain hitting support for his club.

Turner allegedly said at a baseball meeting cocktail party he would top any bid for Matthews, whom he later signed as a free agent. Kuhn said the remark, coming before the open season on free agents, was "not in the best interest of baseball."

The Turner suit to overthrow the resulting suspension was scheduled for trial April 23 and Federal Judge Newell Edenfield suggested that Kuhn temporarily lift the suspension until that date or the court would do it.

Kuhn complied, stating he would stay the suspension "until May 15 or such later date as the court, after a hearing, may direct."

Edenfield had met with attorneys for both sides in his chambers Tuesday and told the commissioner's lawyers he expected some kind of temporary lifting of the sanctions on a voluntary basis.

"He's going to have to do it, or I'm going to do it for him," the judge told the lawyers, who then conferred with Kuhn by telephone.

"You've got a man enjoined from looking after his business right at a time when it needs looking after the most," Edenfield told Kuhn's attorneys.

Kuhn, in the midst of another court action involving Oakland owner Charles O. Finley, said in a prepared statement that it was in his authority to suspend Turner and that the suit by the Braves' owner was in violation of the Major League Agreement by which the Atlanta Club agreed "to be bound by the decisions of the commissioner, and the discipline imposed by him under the provisions of this Agreement, and to waive such right of recourse to the courts as would otherwise have existed."

"The Court has suggested that Mr. Turner's suspension be stayed by the court until the trial date, thereby mooted any need to hold a Preliminary Injunction Hearing in addition to a final hearing on the merits. It is my judgement that a stay is appropriate in these circumstances."

"A stay will make it unnecessary for there to be two hearings on this matter and will allow the Court and the Parties to focus solely upon the merits of plaintiffs' legal claims and the scope of the authority conferred upon the Commissioner by the Major League Agreement."

Turner, a former Yachtsman of the Year, is said to be preparing a 12-meter craft to challenge for the right to defend the America's Cup off Newport, R.I., beginning Sept. 13. But where yachting was his primary sporting interest for most of his life, Turner found other avenues to spend his money. He acquired the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association and made "the big plunge into baseball with the purchase of the Braves. Having to miss the club's Florida training camp rankled the cigar-smoking Turner and he took measures to correct his missing person's status in baseball."

Kuhn said that if he wins the suit, the time between March 16 and the date on which the suspension resumes shall not be counted as a part of Turner's one-year suspension.

Atlanta's Ted Turner

BASEBALL Commissioner Bowie Kuhn temporarily lifted the suspension of Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner following the suggestion of a federal judge.

Seagren wins Superstars meet

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — American pole vaulter Bob Seagren, who at one point collapsed from exhaustion after a bicycling event, went on to win the World Superstars Title Wednesday for the second time, collecting $37,000 in prize money.

Sweden's 29-year-old pole vaulter Kjell Isaksson placed second and received $24,000, while New Zealand's 38-year-old middle-distance runner Peter Snell came in third, to collect $19,000.

Seagren, 30, held the Superstars title in 1973. In the two-day competition, he racked up 40 points, winning 17 of the first 24 events. The Olympian pole vaulter won the half-mile, came in second in the obstacle course, fourth in the bicycle race, fourth in the 100-yard dash and fourth in the rowing.

"Because of a mix-up in the biking event, Seagren raced around five laps, rather than the required four. He collapsed from exhaustion, but was revived and continued to participate."

Women's volleyball tourney opens

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls YWCA Women's Volleyball League Championships opened Wednesday night and all three of the top-rated teams got through the first night of the tournament without a loss.

Wuthrich Concrete Forming, Pepsi Cola Bottling Co., and Walt's Tavern, the teams who lead the league going into the championships, all scored victories Wednesday night.

Wuthrich defeated the YWCA and later downed Klenway. Pepsi downed MVM and Ace Printing, and Walt's Tavern stopped McKenna's and Barger Mattson.

In tonight's other game, Idaho First defeated Otis. The tournament will continue next Wednesday at the Presbyterian Gym at 209 5th Avenue North.

Last night's winners will continue in the championship bracket and the losers will enter into the loser's bracket of the double elimination tournament.

Filer gains finals

TWIN FALLS — Filer advanced to the finals of the Magic Valley 9th Grade Basketball Championships by downing the East Minico Pirates 46-36 Wednesday night.

Filer's victory set up a showdown with Burley tonight at 7:30 for the title.

Jay Decker led the Wildcats with 21 points and Scott Maggard earned 13 for the Pirates.

The Pirates will face Robert Stuart tonight at 6 p.m. to decide the consolation champion.

Stuart earned the right to play East Minico for the consolation bracket title by thumping Filer 52-40 Wednesday night.

Jim Crandall hit for 12 points in a balanced rear attack in which three other Bears tallied eight points.

Dana Brizee topped the Cubs with 11.

Even Nicklaus whiffs sometimes

By J. PAUL WYATT
PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, golf's winningest player, missing the ball?

"I've whiffed the ball three or four times since I've been out here (on the PGA tour)," Nicklaus confessed to a big crowd of newsmen at the Tournament Players Championship (TPC) Wednesday.

"Like when I'm under a tree or something, I've hit a limb on the backswing and swung over the top of the ball," he said.

"When I finished the hole the guy who was keeping score asked me if I had a four and I told him, 'No. It was a five.' He didn't believe me and told me, 'No, you had a four.'"

Nicklaus remarks were in reply to a question about whether he ever slanked the ball during his 15 years on the PGA tour.

The "Golden Bear," one of golf's best shot-makers, recalled that the worst slank he ever hit came on a drive on the 12th hole of the last round of the 1951 Masters at Augusta, Ga.

"I almost hit Bobby Jones and Cliff Roberts (founders of the Masters) who were sitting in a golf cart off to the right side," Nicklaus said.

But Nicklaus said he managed to bounce back and par the hole with good second and third shots.

Another golf, however, proved to be more costly and this time it was Nicklaus' fault.

"It was my first year on the tour, and I was playing down at Houston, at Memorial Park. I was putting on the eighth hole. When my caddy lifted the pin out he lifted the cup with it and my ball hit the cup, like this, and went plunk," he said.

"My ball was in. I'm not sure if I didn't get a penalty. But I tied for the tournament and lost the playoff. I got rid of that caddy."

Nicklaus, who has won two TPC's already and figures as one of the favorites to win this week's event, said golf is never so much fun for him as when he is competing.

"I don't like practice rounds at all," he said. "Practice rounds are only preparation for what I'm going to do."

Asked if he ever played a round of golf just for the fun of it, Nicklaus replied, "Yes, about 20 times a year, Thursdays through Sundays."

He said he enjoys playing a round occasionally with his sons "because it's fun to be with them" but added, "The real fun for me? That's tournament golf."

Ellsworth and Pensacola grab NCJAA victories

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Larry Knight and Jeff Miller combined for 45 points to lift Ellsworth (Iowa) to an 83-76 victory over Sheridan (Wyo.) Wednesday night in a quarterfinal game of the NJCAA Basketball Tournament.

Knight finished with a gamehigh 23 points while Miller had 22. Ellsworth, the first team to move into the semifinals bracket, will take its 26-4 record into play again Friday.

Jim Michaels poured in 22 points to lead Sheridan, 24-10. The Wyoming team plays again Friday and can still finish as high as fifth.

The game was tied at 18 early in the first half but then Ellsworth scored six straight points in less than a minute to go on top 24-18 and had a seven-point halftime margin, 43-36.

Ellsworth built leads of up to 12 points, 57-45, in the second half. Sheridan hit eight straight points to pull within three points with 4:22 left in the game. But then Miller and Knight each grabbed a basket to put the game away for good.

Fleml Crook scored 21 points and grabbed seven rebounds to lead Pensacola (Fla.) to an easy 95-61 win over Westark (Ark.) in a winners' bracket game.

The win advanced Pensacola to a 29-4 record and a quarterfinal game against Lawson (Ala.) State Thursday night.

Westark took an early 4-0 lead, but then Pensacola scored nine straight points to go on top for good. The Florida team had a 12-point halftime advantage, 43-31.

Art Cook scored 16 points and a game-high 13 rebounds to pace Westark. The Arkansas team plays again Thursday against Normandale (Minn.).

Keith McIntosh, Johnny High and Danny Fenecher scored 20 points apiece to lead Lawson to a 113-91 victory over Normandale in an earlier winners' bracket game.

The win boosted Lawson's record to 32-3 and marked the 23rd time it has scored more than 100 points in a game. Lawson, which now has 250 points for two tournament games, Monday night broke the NJCAA record for the most points scored in a single game: Lawson moves into a quarterfinal game Thursday.

Normandale was led by Tom Krusschall with a gamehigh 26 points while Chris Evans had 24. The Minnesota team's 23-4 plays again Thursday and could still finish as high as sixth place.

Normandale led only once, 20-8, with 8:40 left in the first half. But then Lawson won on a three-minute shooting spree to take a 48-31 advantage with 3:46 left in the first half. The Arkansas team built leads of up to 24 points in the second half and hit the century mark with 5:53 left in the game.

Vincennes (Ind.), led by Keith Oglesby's 30 points, smashed Fulton-Montgomery (N.Y.) 92-72 in a consolation bracket game.

Vincennes grabbed an early lead with a full-court press that forced numerous turnovers by the Cardinals and took a key 8-4 lead. At one point Independence, behind the scoring of Renee Kelley with 13 and James Patrick with 12, boosted its lead to 22-6.

Independence earned the right to play defending champion College of Southern Idaho at 7:15 p.m. Thursday. Mineral Area next plays Lincoln Trail at 11 a.m. Thursday in the consolation bracket.

Western Texas, helped by Darryl Smith's 17 points and game-high nine rebounds, grabbed an early lead and coasted to victory. The Texas team, 32-4, will play again Friday for either sixth or ninth place.

Arizona Western, 29-6, was led by Kevin Blakeley with 20 points.

The two won their titles at the third annual Cuervo National Para-Ski Championships which ended today at Sun Valley.

Kingery, a ski patrolman at Snowbird, and Sleeper, a real estate agent in Anchorage, topped a field of 46 contestants from throughout the country in the unique event which combines accuracy parachuting and slalom ski racing.

Kingery, finished third in both men's skiing and parachuting, giving him the best overall score.

Sleeper finished second in both events to capture the women's championship.

First places in today's slalom competition were taken by Brett Pendleton, 18, Salt Lake City, and Joy Burtis, 22, Salt Lake City. In the women's division.

Early fishing season openings, higher bag limits possible

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The possibility of late-summer fish kills due to low water has prompted the Fish and Game Department to consider opening the fishing season early in certain areas this summer, fisheries biologist Robert Bell said Tuesday.

Bag limits may also be raised "much higher than the six-fish limit," Bell added, to allow anglers to harvest allow anglers to harvest doomed fish. Every coin has two sides, however, and Bell added that early closures are also possible to protect fish which have been densely concentrated by low water but are expected to survive the summer from overfishing.

Bell said the F&G is considering the early openings to allow fishermen to take fish which will probably die anyway either from high water temperatures or lack of oxygen in the water.

rough guess might be around April 16." The limits on number of trout which may be taken from certain waters will be raised only if the F&G determines that the fish in these waters are being overfished.

Women's sports different in TF

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — What's the difference between men's and women's volleyball in Twin Falls?

It's not the quality of play. There are teams in the women's volleyball league who set more often and spike more often than any of the men's teams.

In fact, the top teams in the women's volleyball league could probably defeat all but the top teams in the men's league.

It's not the attitude of the players toward the game. The Times-News interviewed several women during Wednesday's first round of the Twin Falls YWCA Women's Volleyball League Championship tournament, and the overwhelming sentiment of all those questioned was enjoyment of both the game and the competition.

The myth that women don't like to compete as much as men was disproven once again as everyone who was asked if they enjoyed the competitive aspect of the game answered with an emphatic "Yes!"

But — not all the women players are gun-ho athletes. Laurel Anderson of the Pepsi-Cola team.

Anderson, and many of the other players would like to practice or play more often, but the only time a gym is available to them is Tuesday morning.

Not only would the women like more available gym time, but they would like to see better playing conditions. Members of the Wutrich Concrete Forming team commented, "The nets and some of the referees are bad."

"And for a while, we even had to bring our own ball to play with," they added. The organization of the league is apparently not much better than the equipment. The Wutrich players complained that often games would be cancelled but none of the teams scheduled to play would be informed of the change.

Naturally absent from this equipment assembled for the games was a stepladder for the referee to sit on in order to make the close calls at the net. A stepladder is always present at men's games.

One of the Wutrich players observed that the reason the conditions are different for men and women is that "People don't take women's athletics as seriously as men's." The Wutrich players, who also compete in the women's softball league, said the disparity in men's and women's playing conditions also exists in the softball league.

In years past, they said, women were only allowed to play on diamond number three at Harmon Park (no bleachers or lights) or at South Park (it's just like a cow pasture, one Wutrich player commented) during the regular season, although they were allowed to use diamonds one and two at Harmon for tournament play.

The women were optimistic about the upcoming softball season, however, as they have been told they will be able to play some games on the better diamonds.

If conditions continue to improve, someday women in Twin Falls may even be able to play volleyball with a net without holes in it.

Who knows? Someday that might not even sag in the middle.

Old boxing great feted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Pep, who has lost the fame, money and youth in which he once glided, will glow next Thursday night he has friends.

The boxing guys always knew they'd throw a benefit for Willie. They just didn't know the date. They're a callous bunch in many ways but they share the common bond of a life of pain. They're good to their own. And Willie is one of their own.

Willie was a high roller. The former featherweight champion of the world made more than $500,000 during a 22-year career in which he won 224 fights, lost 10 and drew one but it's all gone. Most of it rolled away across dice tables.

Willie just couldn't resist the clinkety-clink of those dice. It's said he'd pick up a $20,000 or $30,000 purse at Madison Square Garden in the afternoon and roll it away before nightfall.

Steelheading improves on Salmon

SALMON — Steelhead fishermen on the Salmon River are catching steelhead at the rate of one on each 30 hours fishing time, a good average by Idaho steelhead standards, according to Fish and Game biologist Mel Reinhold.

Reinhold got his figures from fishermen checked Saturday and Sunday at a F&G check station below North Fork on the Main-Salmon River.

Most of the fish being caught appear to be Snake River steelhead, mostly 4-6 pounds, a strain which was transplanted to the Palisadero River, Reinhold said.

The Clearwater steelhead strain which was also transplanted to the Palisadero and is scheduled to return to spawn this year has apparently not yet reached the upper Salmon.

The Clearwater steelhead generally average 12-15 pounds.

UNLV players want win 100

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — When Eddie Owens, Glen Gondrezick and Lew Brown came to Nevada-Las Vegas in 1972-73 they set the lofty goal of winning at least 100 basketball games in their collegiate careers.

And going into tonight's NCAA Western Regional semifinal game against Utah State, the Rebels under Owens, Gondrezick and Brown have a 99-1 record — one win away from their "impossible dream."

"We're very concerned about playing Utah," said Tarkanian, "not so much because they're the WAC champion, but because they beat us 100-96 earlier this year."

"When we lost in Salt Lake City, their passing game created serious problems for us. They have very good talent at the forwards, and Jeff Jonas is as good as any point guard in the nation."

"We're telling the players that game against Utah last December really has no bearing this time," Tarkanian added. "We've both played a lot of games since then, and it almost seems like it was last season when they beat us."

The 262 Rebels hit their peak last weekend, demolishing second-ranked San Francisco 121-95 in the NCAA first-round at Tucson, Ariz., to advance to Provo, Utah — edged SL — John's at Tucson 72-68, while UCLA beat 13th-ranked Louisville 87-79 and Idaho State downed Long Beach State 83-72 at Pocatello, Idaho.

UCLA will pit its NCAA tradition against tall Idaho State — both teams with 24-4 records. The Bruins have won the West Little 13 times on their way to 10 national crowns. While the Bengals made it beyond the NCAA opening round this year for the first time since the mid 1950s.

Willie, 56, could do something else almost as well as spend money — box. He was a consummate boxer who invented moves, both clean and

Has Johnny Miller lost the will to win?

PONTEVEDRA, Fla. (UPI) — Is 29-year-old Johnny Miller, the talk of the pro golf circuit only two years ago, already over the hill in a game whose heroes change often from week to week?

Maybe not, but even Johnny Miller, suffering through one of his worst starts in years, has given some thought to withdrawing from the grinding PGA tour.

"I don't know how long I can go this way on the tour," Miller said Wednesday on the eve of the Tournament Players Championship (TPC) at Sawgrass golf course.

"I've got a lot of kids (four) who keep crying every time I leave and I don't like leaving them," he said. "One of the big changes I've gone through lately is that my wife and kids can't follow me on the tour. The oldest, Johnny, is in school."

Miller, whose best year was in 1974 when he won $33,021, added, "I've done so well financially that sometimes I say to myself, 'Do I need this any more?' I really don't need the money. It's a matter of pride."

Later Miller indicated his ambivalence on the subject when he said, "I really wouldn't leave the tour. I have too many contractual obligations to do that. I'd have to let a lot of people down and I couldn't do that."

"I guess it's just that the grass always seems greener in the other guy's backyard and right now I'm just not playing good. I think last week I won $500 ... I don't know how much I won ... I didn't even look to see."

Miller said his current troubles began when he bought a ranch near Napa, Calif., and did a lot of work during the winter months, including chopping wood, that developed some non-painful muscles he hadn't used before.

"I soared to 193 pounds and I lost my touch. It just wasn't me out there anymore. And if you can believe this: I've gone on a diet and lost 10 pounds — I never had to diet before. I'm also running a lot."

Miller said he doesn't expect to win the TPC and that what he's really shooting for is the April 7-10 Masters at Augusta, Ga.

"I'd like to have a good tournament here — I finish in the top 10 to 25 — and a good one at Greensboro before going on to Augusta."

Miller denied that he has lost his desire to win and he said that he's now "in the best (physical) shape I've ever been since I turned pro." The problem, as he sees it, is just

"a question of tempo." "My backswing is twice as fast as it was because I'm stronger. My timing and tempo have changed."

Miller expressed admiration for Jack Nicklaus' ability to pace himself, noting that "I almost got the feeling that he (Nicklaus) didn't want to win last week because he would have been peaking too soon."

"He acts as if he were prearranged," Miller said. "Miller has slowed down and learned to pace himself. After playing in 39 tournaments his first year on the tour 'because no one told me that you get tired', he played in only 17 last year."

Oregon combines men's and women's athletics

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Separate men's and women's intercollegiate athletic programs will be merged into a single Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at the University of Oregon effective Wednesday.

"Obviously, there will be several technical changes needed before a merged program can be considered to be fully achieved," UO President William Boyd said in a letter to the school's intercollegiate athletic committee.

"However, it is my understanding that the men's and women's programs are already cooperating to solve common problems, and that process will continue," Boyd told the committee, which had recommended the consolidation and will direct the merger.

Boyd said the new department will be headed by John Caine, currently men's athletic director. He said Caine will serve as top administrator of the merged department, while continuing to serve as men's athletic director.

Becky Sisley, women's athletic director, will report to Caine in the new organizational structure. Boyd said Caine and Sisley will continue to be responsible for operation of their respective units, and will "cooperate in the coordination of the support services to insure that both programs are equally served."

Boyd said coaches who presently are assigned teaching duties in the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation will continue those duties, and will "retain their present academic designation."

For the present, Boyd said, there will be no changes in budgets, state allocations or use of facilities at the university.

Utes top WAC stats

DENVER (UPI) — The Utah Utes, still alive in the NCAA Tournament, captured the Western Athletic Conference title by becoming the best offensive team in the league's history.

Ute finished the year with a field goal percentage mark of .541, the best ever in conference. The Utes also led the country and the league in shooting from the free throw line with a percentage of .784.

The final league statistics also gave Utah forward Jeff Judkins the scoring title for the second year in a row. The 6-6 junior won the scoring race with a 20.5 game average.

Forwards Herman Harjts of Arizona and Marvin Johnson of New Mexico followed Judkins with 20.1 and 19.8 averages. Colorado State's Alan Cunningham at 19.0 and Arizona State's Mark Landsberger, with a 17.2 scoring average, rounded out the top five scorers.

Utah also had the league's three top field goal percentage shooters in Greg Deane, 58.0; Buster Matheney, .582; and Judkins, 56.5. Utah guard Jeff Jonas led in free throw shooting, hitting on 112 of 124 free throws for a percentage of .903.

New Mexico ranked first in scoring with an average of 86.6 points per game.

Collins leads 76ers victory

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Doug Collins scored 12 of his 23 points in the final quarter Wednesday night to help the Philadelphia 76ers to a 109-100 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

A basket by Atlanta's Len Robinson tied the game at 95-95 with 4:25 left. But the 76ers pulled the game away by reeling off 10 straight points, six by Julius Erving, two by Collins and two by George McGinnis.

The game was tied 77-77 after three quarters. Atlanta led 89-85 before a Collins' basket and two free throws by Steve Mix tied the game 89-89 at 6:52.

Atlanta then went ahead 93-89 on baskets by Mike

Sejourner and Armand Hill. But Philadelphia came back to tie with six straight points on a field goal by Mix, two foul shots by Henry Bibby and another basket by Collins.

McGinnis led Philadelphia with 24 points—Erving added 20, Bibby 19, and Mix 15. Robinson scored 32 for Atlanta and John Drew added 20.

Streaking Sonics nip Bullets

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Bob Wilkerson's tip-in basket and Tom Burleson's three-point play with less than 30 seconds remaining gave the Seattle SuperSonics a 100-96 victory over the Washington Bullets Wednesday night.

Wilkerson scored his only two points of the game on the rebound of a missed shot by Slyk Watts to give Seattle a 97-94 lead. After Tom Henderson scored for the Bullets to cut the margin to 97-96, Burleson added his points to wrap up the game.

The Sonics broke open the game in the fourth quarter behind the play of reserve center Mike Green and Watts, who finished with 20 points and 11 assists. Teammate Nick Watherspoon added 20 points and 13 rebounds. Phil Chenier scored a game high 22 points for Washington.

The Bullets have lost five in a row, the longest losing streak of the season, while Seattle has won four of its last five, all on the road.

Evert and Casals score Slims wins

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Top-seeded Chris Evert defeated Carrie Meyer, 6-1, 6-1 Wednesday night to advance to the second round of the $100,000 Virginia Slims of Philadelphia tennis tournament.

Evert put her opponent under pressure with strong, steady hitting, winning the first four games. She lost service for the only time of the match on four errors but regained control and took the next two games to win the set.

Meyer took the first game of the second set but was then overwhelmed by Evert, who won the next six games.

Fourth-seeded Virginia Wade beat Czechoslovakian Renata Tomanova, 6-2, 6-2.

Earlier Wednesday, eighth-seeded Rosie Casals advanced to the second round with an impressive 6-2, 6-4 win over Mary Hamlin.

Casals, of San Francisco, turned the match her way by winning six straight games after trailing 3-2 in the first set. Hamlin, of Mt. Pleasant, Ill., made a strong comeback later, closing the gap in the second set from 2-5 to 4-5, fighting off two match points in the eighth game and one more in the ninth.

In other first-round action Wednesday, Australian Dianne Fromholtz defeated Terry Holladay of La Jolla, Calif., 6-7, 6-3, 6-4.

But Fromholtz won the contest on the fourth match point of the 10th game as she served her opponent returned out of court.

Garden sues Ali

NEW YORK (UPI) — Officials of Madison Square Garden, reacting to the announcement that Muhammad Ali intends to defend his world heavyweight championship against an unknown Italian in Seoul, Korea, said Wednesday it has initiated legal action against Ali.

All previously had signed a contract to meet Duane Bobick in New York, and as a result the Garden boxing division has instructed its lawyers to file a complaint in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois against Ali to recover damages for breach of the contract.

The complaint also seeks injunctive relief barring Ali from participating in any future boxing match until he has fulfilled his obligations to the Garden.

Originally, Ken Norton and Bobick contracted for a fight and Ali then said he wanted to fight Bobick. Norton backed out, and Ali and Bobick signed a contract. Then Ali backed out and Norton came back into the picture.

Norton and Bobick now are scheduled to meet in the Garden May 11. On Tuesday, it was announced that Ali was prepared to defend his title against Lorenzo Zanon in Seoul May 10.

Bulls top Pistons

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls blew an early fourth period 10-point lead, then exploded in the final 3 1/2 minutes Wednesday night to rip the Detroit Pistons, 104-97, and score their 10th victory in their last 11 starts.

After Detroit had rallied on the hot shooting of Marvin Barnes to the game at 87-87 with 3:52 remaining, the Bulls went on a 9-0 outburst as Artis Gilmore hit a three-pointer. Mickey Johnson followed with a basket and Scott May and Wilbur Holland hit two free throws each.

The Pistons, with Barnes

hitting another basket and Kevin Porter two free throws, pulled back to within five points of a tie with just under two minutes remaining before four consecutive free throws by May put the game out of reach.

The victory was also the fifth in a row for the Bulls, who still have an outside chance of making the Western Conference playoffs. The loss snapped a three-game Detroit winning streak and left the Pistons trailing Denver by three games in the Midwest Division.

Suns bomb Knicks

PHOENIX (UPI) — The Phoenix Suns, with six men scoring in double figures, defeated the New York Knicks 134-91 Wednesday night to break a 12-game losing streak and avoid the longest skid in the history of the franchise.

Guards Paul Westphal with 23 points and Ricky Sobers with 21 led the Suns, who never trailed and took the lead in the first quarter. Blanchett went onto the court to protest some shoving between McAdoo and Westphal.

Ron Lee had 12 each and Dick Van Arsdale 10 in substitution roles. Bob McAdoo with 25 and Earl Monroe with 18 were the only Knicks in double figures.

The game was marred by six technical fouls, including that sent Phoenix assistant coach Al Bianchi to the locker room with 18 seconds left in the first quarter. Bianchi went onto the court to protest some shoving between McAdoo and Westphal.

The Suns boosted their lead to 59-40 at halftime and led by 34 late in the third quarter. The Knicks closed the gap to 90-70 early in the fourth and that was the closest they came.

Ira Terrell had 18, for Phoenix. Kelli Erickson and

Borg wins in Volvo net

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bjorn Borg made his first tennis appearance in the nation's capital Wednesday and scored a brisk 6-2, 6-0 opening round victory over Hank Pfister in the Volvo Tennis Classic.

The Swedish star needed only 44 minutes to dispatch his opponent from Bakersfield, Calif.

The tenor of the match was set when Pfister double faulted on the first serve of the match to lose service and eventually drop the first set as Borg steadily out-manuevered him.

In the second set, the first-seeded Borg took advantage of frequent errors by Pfister and closed out the match with an ace.

Borg showed no signs of any jet lag after his trip from Johannesburg, South Africa last weekend for the match.

His easy win was in contrast to a flurry of upsets in afternoon play.

Tom Gorman tied the up-set minders by fighting off five match points to win a prolonged tie-breaker over seventh-seeded Cliff Richey 4-6, 7-6, 7-6.

Up and coming Sandy Mayer also advanced to the final eight by surprising No. 8 Brian Panatta with a relatively easy 6-3, 6-1 win over the New Zealander.

In another upset, all but unknown Chico Hagey eliminated veteran Charlie Pasarell 6-3, 5-7, 6-2 in a first round match.

Hagey, from La Jolla, Calif., is ranked only 56th in the United States, while Pasarell is 16th-rated in the Grand Prix computer point standings this year.

Fifth-seeded Stan Smith, a strong sentimental favorite, advanced by defeating Victor Amaya 6-3, 7-6.

Gorman trailed 2-6 in the 12-point tie-breaker of the third set of his budding struggle with Richey but with the help of a double fault squared the score at 6-6.

Richey, fuming throughout much of the match, after decisions by linesmen and the umpire, won the next point but couldn't score the decisive point he needed.

He held off two match points himself but finally bowed out by hitting a shot into the net off a volley attempt.

"How much money do those people get for addressing envelopes in their homes?" So inquires a client. Depends. Decent handwriting, 10 cents per envelope. Fancy scripting called calligraphy, as much as $3 per envelope. That's the report of the district experts. Don't know who's thinking, though. The demand for calligraphists isn't that great. The opposite of calligraphy, incidentally, is caccography, bad handwriting. The demand for caccographers isn't that great, either.

Takes a salmon a little more than four months to travel 3,750 miles. Why 3,750 miles, specifically? Because that's how far some of them have been known to swim to get back to the spawning creek.

The only two known billionaires in the United States—John D. MacArthur and Daniel K. Ludwig—both dropped out of classes before high school.

BED ATTIRE

Q. "What percentage of the wives in this country wear nightgowns to bed each night?"

A. Our Love and War man's figures on this matter no doubt are outdated: They are weeks old, and you know how things change. But at last report, 71 per cent wore nightgowns, 24 per cent wore pajamas, and 5 per cent wore nothing.

Q. "What's a 'slipper bath'?"

A. That antiquated, French-designed bathtub-in-the-shape of a high-heeled shoe. Had a spigot in the toe to drain it and a place in the heel to heat the water. Old Ben Franklin brought one home from France and it said to have whittled away many an hour reading in the thing.

Q. "Why was 'Britain' called 'Great Britain'?"

A. To distinguish it from France's smaller Brittany.

FIRST HAMBURGER

It was in A.D. 780 that Italian physicians first prescribed chopped beef fried with onions as a cure for the common cold, but a good many years went by before that prescription came to be known as the hamburger.

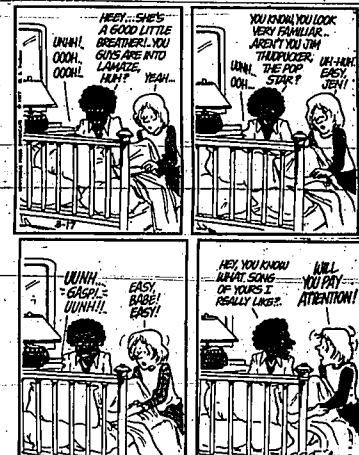

New Jersey law prohibits only the slurring but not the slipping of soup... The more its keeper fondles a laboratory rat, the bigger said rat grows, within reason... Jailhouse rocks again as Bo Diddley sings CRANSTON, R.I. (UPI) — Raw, primal sounds of rock and roll rattled Rhode Island's maximum security prison as Bo Diddley took his music behind bars.

"We've got to get our heads together and remember these cats are people," Diddley said Tuesday at the Adult Correctional Institution. "These are my brothers."

Dressed in a black seersucker leisure suit and jewel-embellished, ten-gallon hat, Diddley talked like he had been there before. In a way, he was.

"I could have gone the other way," he said. "I had this little, uh, mislap. In Chicago when I was 17 or 18. When I saw the inside of one of these places, it changed my mind. Like when your mother gives you a whuppin' to tune you up when you get out of tune."

Then he slung his square, orange guitar over his shoulder and let it hang down around his knees.

About half of the prison's 408 inmates, convicted felons and prisoners awaiting trial, drifted into the concert in a dingy gymnasium, guzzling cream soda as they listened to the clunk-a-clunk beat.

They laughed when Diddley made bathroom noises with his guitar, and shared choice morsels of "the real lyrics, before I had to change them so they could be played in a church."

Unveiling cuts from an upcoming album and playing new versions of his 1950s hits, Diddley said: "It's because of you I have remained in this business 21 beautiful years."

"Let's get it on," somebody yelled. Diddley started with little, scat steps, then slid into long boogie strides. Sweat streamed down his cheeks. Before long, the inmates were clapping, swaying and smiling.

"My songs have nothing to do with death or confinement," said Diddley of the prison concerts he has done from Australia to Alabama. "I'm here to do my thing so the people will have something new to talk about when I leave."

Diddley, 48, was a moving force in the 1950s birth of rock and roll music. He is former light-heavyweight boxer, a New Mexico deputy sheriff and father of four.

"He's just like (late 1960s rock guitarist) Jimi Hendrix in some ways," said David Murtha of Central Falls, 19, serving time for eight breaking-and-entering incidents.

"Just like Jimi Hendrix, Bo Diddley is a legend in his own time," Murtha said. He bounced instinctively to the music of a man who made hit records before he was born. "He's even left-handed, just like Jimi Hendrix and me."

Police charge pastor in theft

JEFFERSON, Tex. (UPI) — The Rev. Craig Dwayne Lacy neatly placed the collection of antiques, rare books and valuable paintings in boxes and labeled each one. Then, officials said, he waited for authorities to come retrieve the stolen art objects.

The man had the stuff all boxed up, "Capt. Davis Britt of the Marion County Sheriff's department said Tuesday. "He made a statement to me at that time that he was relieved to be getting rid of it."

Lacy, 31, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Big Sandy, Tex., has been charged with stealing the items from 108 libraries, museums and shops across the Southwest. Officials initially placed the value of the items at $75,000 but now believe the total will exceed that. Lacy posted bond of $10,000 and was released pending trial.

"I've got about 3,000 books and antique items," Britt said.

"They were recovered at his house. He claims they've been taken over a six-year period with the vast majority in the last three years."

"He called in and said he had the stuff and wanted to surrender and turn back in the stuff to us. That was on the 10th."

"On the 12th at about 1 a.m. he called the chief of police at Big Sandy and advised he had a whole lot more stuff he wanted to turn in and the police chief called me and advised me that I'd need a small van to receive it."

Britt drove a station wagon to Lacy's home to retrieve the stolen goods. He was accompanied by Lucille Ballard, curator of the Jefferson Historical Society Museum, from which some of the items were taken.

Mrs. Ballard initiated the search for and the eventual arrest of Lacy. She said an inventory of the museum indicated several rare volumes, paintings and artifacts were missing and she circulated "flyers" describing "the materials."

She received telephone calls from persons in Dallas and Austin tipping her to the identity of a man trying to sell some of the items listed. She filed the complaint which led to the charges.

Aides say many dams in unsafe locations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 20,000 U.S. dams are so located that their collapse could cause death and heavy property damage, yet no one knows how safe they are, Army officials testified Tuesday.

The Army Corps of Engineers provided the estimate at House government operations subcommittee hearings aimed at determining why the Corps never carried out a 1972 congressional order to inspect nonfederal dams.

Acting Assistant Army Secretary Charles Ford, testifying under oath, said the Corps collected data on dams, but did not carry out the inspections because White House budget officials regarded inspection of nonfederal dams as a state responsibility.

"Briefly, the Corps study found that approximately 20,000 of the 49,000 dams of the nation are so located that failure of the dam or misoperation of the discharge facilities could result in loss of human life and appreciable property damage," Ford said. "It was found, also, that dam safety programs in most states and some federal agencies are either nonexistent or inadequate to protect the public from hazards created by dams."

Henry Eschwege, an official of Congress' General Accounting Office, testified that the Army Engineers originally intended to make the inspections, but the Office of Management and Budget refused to ask Congress for the needed funds.

Eschwege said the Corps told GAO investigators it would cost about $73.5 million a year to inspect all dams.

Many wait for final peek at King Tut's tomb, gold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — King Tut's tomb closed again, this time in Washington, and about 80,000 visitors had waited for as long as nine hours to catch a glimpse of all that glitter.

Tuesday was the final day of the 17-week National Gallery of Art exhibit of the treasures from the tomb of King Tutankhamun, who died young and rich 3,329 years ago.

For once, procrastinators triumphed. Those who waited until the last day had to stand in line no more than two hours.

The last one admitted was Mrs. Geoeve Knowles of Washington, coordinator of after-school activities for the D.C. Department of Recreation.

She said she'd been discouraged many times by the sight of the waiting line, and decided to swing by the gallery this one last time. Just in case.

She arrived at 8:31 p.m., shook hands with gallery director Carter Brown and was whisked in, after waiting only 10 minutes.

From the start, the exhibit of jeweled and golden relics of Tut, lent by Egypt for a two-year tour of the United States, was a hit.

Viewers with stoicism and sleeping bags gathered through an icy winter as early as 14 m. Even last week, after Hannu Muslims seized City Hall, three blocks away, and two other buildings, the crowds barely diminished.

The show opens in Chicago April 15, then goes to New Orleans, Los Angeles, and Seattle and winds up in New York Dec. 15, 1978.

Gallery administrator Joseph English, his face lined with weariness, said he was irked by "snippy" letters castigating the gallery for not staying open 24 hours a day.

"Seventy-one people are needed here whenever this is open," English said. "Where do they think we get guards? You don't just hire them off the street!"

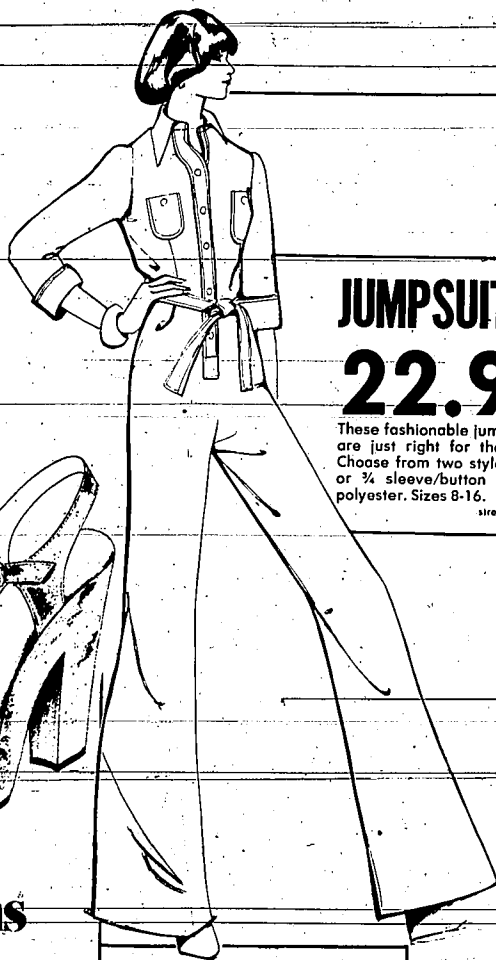

Among last-day visitors, Mrs. Ann Powell, having seen the show two weeks ago with friends from Pittsburgh, dragged in her husband, Mal, a section chief with the IRS, after work.

Joe Collins, 29, a gardener at the White House, still wearing his Park Service uniform, came after spending the day taking core samples to test soil acidity.

Yes, he confided, the White House's azaleas had been browned and burned by the harsh winter. "They're going to take extensive pruning," he said.

Nevada park bonds can aid development

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — When Nevadaans approved a $10 million bond issue last November to preserve the state's natural resources, many thought most of the money would buy new park and recreation lands.

But a newly-discovered legal opinion says the money can be used for development and construction, at existing recreational areas in addition to expanding the park systems.

This has led to questioning whether any of the $10 million will be used for purchase of additional park and recreation property in Nevada.

"I was flabbergasted when I read Frank Daykin's legal opinion that the money could be used for development," said Sen. Cliff Young, R-Reno who sponsored the resolution for the $10 million bond issue in 1975.

Young said his purpose was to get money to buy new recreation lands, not spend it on development of already existing properties.

The question on the ballot asked voters if they wanted to issue the $10 million in bonds "for the purposes of protecting, preserving and obtaining the benefits of natural resources by the acquisition of real or personal property for park purposes and outdoor recreation, by the acquisition and development of bicycle paths, by historic preservation projects and by the acquisition of fish and game habitat."

Under the proposal approved by the voters, $3 million would go to the state park division for acquisition of lands; $5 million to cities and counties on a matching basis; $1 million to the state fish and game department for acquisition of fish and game habitat; $500,000 for historic preservation projects.

Daykin, director of the legal division, told the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday that the bill putting the bond issue question on the ballot referred to the State securities law. The 1975 bill said if Nevadaans approved the bonds would be issued in conformance with the securities law.

Daykin said the securities law provides for purchase and development, the said the legislature has the full power to provide the "monies" for development if it wants to.

But Young said the word "development" was not used when referring to park land purchases. Young said it was used only in the second on bicycle paths where the funds could be used for development.

Daykin's legal opinion was issued earlier to Sen. Carl Dodge, R-Fallon who wanted to know if the counties could use the money for improvements in their park systems and not just for purchase of new lands.

The issue arose in the finance committee over Tule Springs recreation area which the city of Las Vegas will donate to the State Park system. There is a bill which provides for $1.4 million of the bond money to be used for upgrading the facilities at Tule Springs.

That $1.4 million would be nearly half of the $3 million given the state park system from the bond issue.

Young complained earlier that the state would lose $5-$6 million in federal matching funds if the bond money was used for park improvements and not for land purchases.

Sen. Norman Hillbrecht, D-Las Vegas, however, said he felt the Tule Springs acquisition was more like a purchase since the state is guaranteeing to upgrade the facilities in return for the property.

Gov. Mike O'Callaghan, in his budget, recommended that the bond money be used for property acquisition and not for improvements to already existing park lands.
