TF 'disaster' label sought

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An emergency board of U.S. Department of Agriculture officials in Twin Falls County is preparing to ask that the county be declared a disaster area.

The request, however, may be made unnecessary by an emergency declaration President Carter is expected to make Monday. "We anticipate we will be filing a formal request within a few days" with the USDA's state emergency board, said Kent Kirk, chairman of the county emergency board and local director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"We've been studying it for months really. But it's just a matter of coming to the conclusion that we felt the farmers are going to need some financial assistance," Kirk said. Specific data on the situation is being compiled, he said, and is not available yet. "The livestock producers are probably the hardest hit in the county along with the farmers in irrigation tracts other than the Twin Falls Canal Co. tract," he said.

Under a disaster designation, he said, funds from an emergency livestock feed program and low-interest loans from the Farmers Home Administration would be available.

President Carter on Monday is planning to issue a limited drought disaster area designation which would apply to 37 out of Idaho's 14 counties, according to an aide for Sen. Frank Church.

This designation would make Twin Falls and other counties eligible for several types of disaster relief, the aide said. But he said he was not sure whether the emergency livestock feed aid would be available under the limited disaster area designation being considered by the President.

Kirk said he met with the county emergency board on Monday and the consensus was that the disaster designation would be necessary for Twin Falls County.

"We support this action," Twin Falls County Commissioner Merl Leonard said. He said that the commission will help in any way it can to seek the disaster status for the county.

According to Lloyd Brown, program specialist for the ASCS who assists the chairman of the state emergency board, once a request is made by a county board, the state board works with the governor to pass on the disaster designation proposal.

If the Secretary of Agriculture declares the county a disaster area, he said, it will be eligible for the Farmers Home Administration five percent interest loans. These loans can equal the amount of money expected to be lost on crops due to drought.

However, Brown said, actual losses would have to be shown in order to be eligible for the livestock feed program. Under this program, he said, the government pays half the cost of emergency feed brought in to replace feed lost due to drought.

If feed crops are not planted due to lack of water, he said, the emergency feed aid can only be made available when the crops would be harvested.

If the Bureau of Land Management cuts back on the acreage, he said, the aid can be given immediately to make up for the lost grazing.

However, before any such emergency feed can be made available, Brown said, the President has to declare a disaster area.

Remains found

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The remains of one more American listed as missing in action have been located through exchange of information between the United States and Vietnam, the State Department reported Friday.

"Vietnam has informed us they have found the remains of an American aviator lost over North Vietnam," said department spokesman Hodding Carter III. "We have notified the family and until the identification is positive, the name of the man will not be made public."

TF sheriff draws short probation

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder was sentenced Thursday to just a few seconds of probation after pleading guilty to a misdemeanor charge of failure to keep proper financial records for a sheriff's office copying machine.

After Corder pleaded guilty in Fifth District Court and waived his right to a pre-sentence investigation, Sixth District Judge Arthur Oliver sentenced the sheriff to an indefinite period of probation.

After pausing a moment, the judge said, "That indefinite period of time has passed." Corder faced a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $300 fine on the misdemeanor charge.

The special prosecutor and defense attorney earlier agreed Corder would plead guilty to the misdemeanor charge if an earlier charge, felony failure to keep and pay over public funds on a quarterly basis, was dropped.

Corder faced a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $5,000 fine on the felony charge.

The court hearing took only seven minutes.

After court adjourned, Corder's friends and office workers congratulated him. Mrs. Flora Wagner, civil deputy in the sheriff's office for more than 20 years, walked up to Corder and gave him a big hug.

"During a preliminary hearing on the felony charge, the prosecution called Mrs. Wagner and forced her to admit on the stand that sheriff's office copying machine funds were not reported on a quarterly basis or contained in quarterly reports.

"I'm glad that's over with," Corder said shortly after the hearing. "I'm sure my conscience is clearer than the people who brought the action to begin with."

William Hofffield, former county prosecutor who originally filed the felony charge against the sheriff last October, said this morning, "I have no regrets about filing the charge. I still feel it was my duty to get the thing heard in the courts."

When asked if he was satisfied with the judge's ruling, Hofffield said, "That was the judge's decision, and I'll live by it, just as I'll live by those decisions every day."

'Gate review balked

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court was reported Thursday to have voted 5 to 2 last Friday to refuse to review the convictions of John N. Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman in the Watergate cover-up case. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger was reported by Court sources to have postponed a final disposition of the case, however, and to have scheduled the matter for reconsideration at the justices' regular private session Friday, in hopes of getting a change in the vote so that the appeals by the three former Nixon administration officials could be heard.

The justices take their votes in private sessions at which no outsiders are present. The justices consider the secrecy of their sessions highly important — both because decisions are traditionally subject to change up until the last minute before public announcement and because of the effects that premature disclosure might have.

The justices who voted to refuse to review the Watergate cover-up convictions were reportedly William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall, Potter Stewart, Byron R. White, and John Paul Stevens.

The justices who voted to hear the case were reportedly the chief justice and Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Lewis F. Powell Jr., who, along with Justice William H. Rehnquist, are the Nixon appointees to the court. Rehnquist, according to the sources, decided not to participate in deciding the case because of his "friendship" with Mitchell.

The fact that those who voted to hear the appeals were all Nixon appointees does not in itself indicate any predisposition of those Justices to favor the Nixon aides in their appeals. — All joined in the Court's 1974 decision ordering then President Nixon to turn over his Watergate tapes, in response to a subpoena by the Watergate prosecution; the chief justice, moreover, wrote the Court's opinion in that case.

Disclosure of the voting breakdown may prompt renewed public perceptions of those justices as being part of a "Nixon bloc," however.

Only four votes are needed to gain review of a case; a majority of the nine-man court is not needed. Thus, only one of the five justices who voted against hearing the Watergate appeals need change his mind.

Mitchell, the former attorney general, and Haldeman and Ehrlichman, who were Nixon's top White House aides, were convicted along with former assistant attorney general Robert C. Mardian by the jury in the cover-up case on Jan. 1, 1975.

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia last fall affirmed the convictions of the first three, while reversing the conviction of Mardian, saying he was entitled to a new trial. The prosecution decided not to pursue its case against him.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman all face sentences of from two to a half to eight years in prison for the cover-up cases. Ehrlichman was also convicted in the so-called "Plumbers" case on charges arising from the break-in at the office of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The Court subsequently declined to review Ehrlichman's Plumbers conviction.

Set 'em up Saturday night

TWIN FALLS — "Spring forward" time is here again.

Daylight savings time returns for a six month stint, starting at 2 a.m. Sunday.

But in order to avoid a middle-of-the-night time change, most Magic Valley residents will set their clocks and watches ahead an hour before going to bed on Saturday night. The penalty on Sunday will be late arrival for church or other appointments.

The hour lost by the shift to daylight time will be regained the last Sunday in October, when standard time returns. And Idahoans will join most other Americans in the "fall back" procedure.

Born May 11, 1908, in Rich Hill, Mo., he came to Buhl from Missouri at the age of 7. He graduated from the University of Idaho at Moscow and married Nellie C. White June 2, 1933.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Gault lived in Shoshone seven years where he was county agent for the weed bureau. While he was in the service during World War II the family lived in Buhl.

No tanks to Zaire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said today he has not decided to send tanks to Zaire and it is "highly unlikely" he would order such a move.

Carter also told his news conference he does not expect to make a trip to mainland China this year, and does not think Chinese leaders will visit the United States although "I would certainly welcome the Chinese leaders to come to Washington to meet with me."

Carter said reports that he has decided to send tanks to help Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko ward off an invasion by Katanga rebels are erroneous and were based on a study done before he took office.

"I've made no decision about sending tanks to Zaire and I think it's highly unlikely," Carter said.

He also said the United States has no proof that Cuban troops accompanied Katanga rebels from Angola into Zaire's Shaba Province.

"I can't certify to this," he said. "Our best information is that the Katangans have been trained by Cuban instructors in Cuba. We have no direct evidence at all that there are Cubans in Zaire."

Carter said he had sent a message of "friendship and good will" to Chinese leaders with his son, Chip, and a congressional delegation which visited Peking earlier this month.

Elizabeth Herr

RUPERT — Elizabeth Herr, 87, Rupert, died this morning at the Mindoka Memorial Hospital of a long illness. Funeral services will be announced by Walk-Hansen Mortuary.

Murtaugh levy OK

MURTAUGH — Voters in the Murtaugh School District approved an 18-mill override levy in a special election here Tuesday.

Florin Hulse, district superintendent, said the vote was 80 for and 4 against. The funds will go for district maintenance and operation, making a total of 45 mill levy for operation of the district.

Hulse said Murtaugh has a slightly lower total enrollment this year which means less money from the state level. At the same time insurance costs have about doubled, fuel and other costs have also risen in the past year.

Mobile home destroyed in Blaine

BELLEVUE — A fire believed started by a faulty electrical heater destroyed a trailer home six miles south of here Thursday morning.

The Blaine County Rural Fire Department answered a call at about 1:15 a.m. that a trailer home belonging to Virginia Reed was ablaze on Baseline Road.

According to Jack Shipman, captain, the blaze was under control by about 1:45 p.m. but the trailer and its contents were completely destroyed.

The trailer's resident, whose name was not disclosed, escaped unharmed. The trailer was valued at $7,500 but no estimate laid yet been made on the other damaged properties, according to Shipman.

The fire is pending investigation. The fire chief said.

Vehicle damage high

TWIN FALLS — A truck and trailer traveling faster than the speed limit slid into a pickup and trailer headed the opposite direction on a curve 18 miles south of here, state police reported Tuesday.

Truck driver James Hamm, 36, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, was cited for driving 60 miles per hour in a 40 m.p.h. zone on the Nat-500-Pak Road about 10 miles south of the East Five Points intersection about 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

Hamm and persons in the pickup, including driver Gordon Helmer, 37; Linda Helmer, 30; Todd Helmer, 13, and Sheila Helmer, a girl, Twin Falls, were treated for minor cuts and bruises and released at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Police estimated damage to the truck and trailer at $10,000 and to the pickup and trailer at $1,400.

TF Corder case closes

"I don't know if you can say it was the right decision or the wrong decision," Hoffield said. "It was a tough issue all along the way... Personally I would still like to have seen the case go to a jury and be tried by 12 ordinary people looking at the facts."

Special Prosecutor Leon Smith, who was called in to prosecute the case by county commissioners, said this morning Corder's sentence "was no surprise to me."

"The judge knew the gravity of the charge, and this is what he did," Smith said. "He was probably saying, the sheriff didn't deserve any further punishment than he has already gone through."

County Commissioner Merl Leonard said, "The decision went quiet and smooth and I wish the Corder family well. I'm glad it's over with."

Last October, Hoffield charged the sheriff with failing to keep and turn over on a quarterly basis about $1,700 as is required by state law. The money was collected as fees for use of sheriff's office copying machines during Corder's nine years as sheriff.

County auditors' records show about $1,200 in copying machine funds were turned in for the first time in July, 1976.

"The defense argued Corder had never been instructed by the county auditor or anyone else that the money should be turned in quarterly, and that Corder had never done anything wrong on purpose."

During a preliminary hearing in the case last December, Hoffield added the charge that the sheriff falsely signed oaths saying he'd turned in all fees from his office at the end of five different quarters.

The prosecutor presented sworn written statements signed by the sheriff which said all fees collected in the sheriff's office for the five quarters were turned in.

The defense attorney argued "everyone well knew" the statements did not refer to sheriff's office copying machine funds.

Later, the five perjury counts were dismissed.

TF woman wins

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. DeVere Briggs, Twin Falls, presenting a humorous reading, won first place in the Magic Valley Senior Citizens district talent contest.

She and Edie Mills, Jerome, harmonica player, will be eligible to represent the district in state competition in May at Hicks College, Reznburg.

Alternate state entry and third place winners here Tuesday night are Barcia and Bert Beam, Gooding, who play a piano and washboard duet. Names of the winners were inadvertently left out of a story on the contest in the Thursday issue of the Times-News.

Pay claim upheld

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court said Thursday Zane Jackson was only entitled to a claim for lost vacation pay in a claim against the Minidoka Irrigation District for wrongful discharge after being forced to resign.

She sought damages for loss of wages, retirement benefits and accrued vacation time, which was rejected by Fifth District Court. The Supreme Court agreed with the lower court except for dismissal of the vacation entitlement.

The high court held that since the woman had not been employed for a definite period of time, she could be discharged without cause by her employer so long as the reasons for the firing did not contravene public policy.

In its opinion, the Supreme Court also held the former employee presented no claim for loss of retirement benefits because she had not yet participated in the retirement program for the required period.

Citizenship for Jeff Davis?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks to Congress, Robert E. Lee is a U.S. citizen again and George Washington has his proper rank. Now comes Jeff Davis, unpardoned Confederate president, man without a country.

Vice Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., has proposed legislation restoring Jefferson Davis of Mississippi posthumously to American citizenship.

And Sen. James Eastland, another Mississippian, whisked that bill through committee Thursday smooth as a sundown julep.

Just as his Judiciary Committee was winding up a hard day's work on a judgeship bill, committee chairman Eastland noted the panel also had this piece of legislation sponsored by Hatfield.

"We restored Robert Lee's citizenship last time," Eastland noted. True.

And so, said Eastland, as far as the Jeff Davis bill goes, any objections? None.

The bill now moves on for consideration by the full Senate, which last year, in a burst of bicentennial spirit, restored the citizenship Lee lost as an unpardoned officer of the Confederacy. It also promoted Lt. Gen. George Washington to General of the Army, a rank so lofty Pentagon experts say no one knows how many stars it carries.

Those bills drew some grouching from hard-hearts who considered it unseemly for Congress to try to tidy up history. The Davis proposal likely will, too, but Hatfield-Eastland and cosponsors Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, seem to have anticipated that.

The bill argues Davis' case.

"Whereas Jefferson Davis served honorably and well as an officer in the U.S. Army," it says, "and earned a hero's reputation for his part in the battle of Buena Vista in the Mexican war;

"And whereas Jefferson Davis was both a U.S. Representative and a U.S. Senator from Mississippi prior to the War between the States and was generally recognized as one of the outstanding men in Congress;"

And — whereas — he served in President Franklin Pierce's cabinet, the resolution continues, the victorious North did him wrong after the war.

It says Davis was imprisoned for two years "under the most inhumane conditions" and was denied full U.S. citizenship rights thereafter "despite his never being convicted of any crime or even brought to trial for any crime."

The bill recommends he be restored to "full rights of citizenship effective Dec. 5, 1868."

Davis, a hard man, took a dim view of Lee's decision to hand his sword to Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Courthouse, Va., in 1865. Lee surrendered without permission.

JEFFERSON DAVIS
... to regain rights?

Business incentives gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Business-tax incentives are proving to be almost as popular in the Senate as President Carter's $30 per person individual rebate was unpopular.

Three days ago, the Senate readily agreed with Carter to drop the rebate. But Carter's request to forget his business-tax cuts not only was flipped aside 74 to 20 Thursday, but the size of the cuts was furthering raised on a vote 73 to 11. Businesses would gain $1.1 billion over the next two years under the Senate bill, which would give industry a choice of two tax breaks: an extra 2 percent investment tax credit or a credit of 30 percent of the first $4,200 of wages for each extra employee hired above a base figure. No one firm could get more than $100,000.

That 30 percent credit is double the original Senate Finance Committee proposal — an $80 million increase over two years.

Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., moved to double the credit shortly after the Senate voted against a motion by Sens. Dan Bumpers, D-Ark., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to accede to Carter's request to delete the cuts.

FDA ponders ban on drug for diabetics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration may ban an allegedly dangerous drug used by a quarter million diabetics, and Ralph Nader's health researchers say they will go to court to force such action unless the agency moves right away.

The drug involved, called

Phenformin, is sold under the trade names of "DBI" and "Mellrol."

Nader's Health Research Group said Thursday it has obtained records showing an FDA advisory panel recommended the drug be banned last October. The group also contended FDA's records showed 93 confirmed deaths among Phenformin patients and said hundreds more probably were not recorded.

Dr. J. Richard Crout, head of the FDA's Bureau of Drugs, said the FDA and the medical profession were aware of a serious and sometimes fatal side effect of the drug, called lactic acidosis. He said steps have been taken to have doctors exercise caution and "let the FDA continue to monitor the situation and is considering additional action including possible removal of the drug from the market."

But he added: "Patients on Phenformin should not abruptly discontinue therapy on the basis of unwarranted publicity about this drug."

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Nader group, learned the response inadequate and said Crout had been saying the same thing for two years. "More people will die if this isn't banned," he said, adding that the IRG will go to federal court to request the drug be removed from the market unless the FDA acts.

Geigy Pharmaceuticals, which makes "DBI," said "there are many thousands of patients currently being treated with Phenformin who cannot be successfully treated with other oral therapy."

GOP solons draft own energy plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican answer to President Carter's energy program is likely to be price-and-production in contrast to his tax-and-regulation.

The Senate Republican Policy Committee has before it a suggested draft of the GOP program. In many ways, it is like the Carter program, chiefly in concern for conservation. But in many sensitive areas, it is 180 degrees different.

The full policy group met Thursday without taking action on the energy proposal, and did not schedule a date to vote on it.

The House voted earlier Thursday to approve formation of the committee. The GOP draft proposal includes:

- Freeing new natural gas production from price controls. (Carter would allow the price to go up, but not beyond $1.75 per thousand cubic feet.)
- Letting oil prices free gradually from the controls toward the world price. (Carter would also lead for the world price, but through taxes rather than increased prices.)

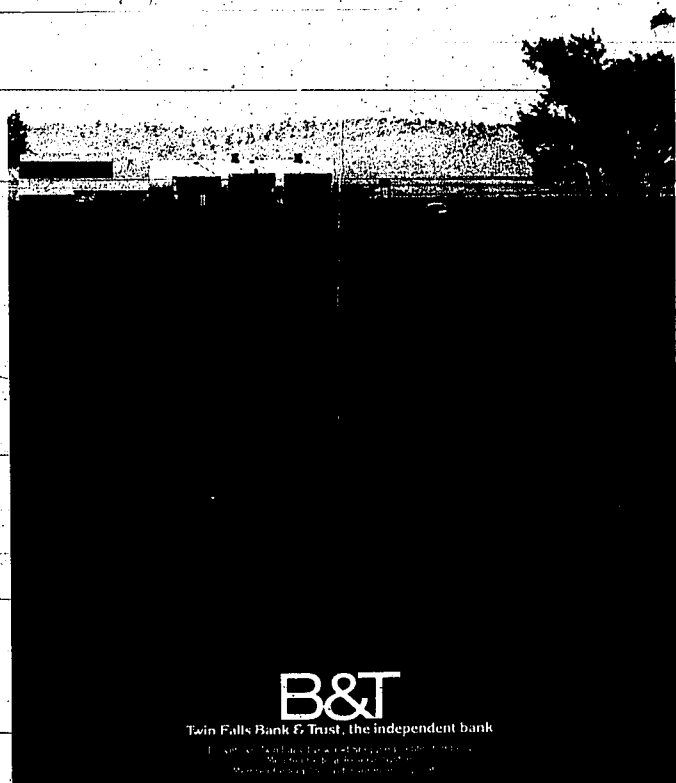

- Require gas- and oil-using utilities and industries to switch to coal "whenever practical." (The Carter plan is tougher, with few exemptions to required switchovers.)
- Across-the-board fuel use conservation, including some tax incentives. (Carter stressed conservation also but with some mandatory steps, rather than just incentives.)

Plutonium ban must be sought with diplomacy

It may be too late for the United States to reverse the world's relentless move toward dependence on deadly plutonium as a prime energy source.

But the attempt must be made. Conventional nuclear power plants are fueled by uranium which is first "enriched" by a special, expensive process.

The plutonium can then be used to fashion nuclear weapons. For many years public policy supported development of a new generation of power plants, known as fast breeder reactors.

President Jimmy Carter, enlarging on a basic policy reversal initiated by President Gerald Ford, last week renounced "indefinitely" the use of plutonium as a nuclear fuel in the United States.

The President's position has worldwide implications since it makes little sense to reject plutonium as a fuel in this country while aiding or even condoning its production in other nations.

Spain responded by voicing concern for the future of eight nuclear power plants purchased from the United States. Spain is worried by American insistence on control over plutonium.

Plutonium control is but one of many complex challenges spawned by the shift to nuclear power in an energy deficient world.

Ironically, the president's blunt effort to control plutonium produced in foreign reactors could speed the scary proliferation he rightly seeks to avoid.

Although the United States remains dominant in nuclear power technology and still has a virtual monopoly on enriched uranium fuel.

It is this stark reality which undermines the President's insistence on control over plutonium produced in Spanish and other foreign nuclear power plants.

International "hard ball" gets results when only one nation owns the ball and bat. That is not the case in the nuclear power game.

Spain's "concern" for the future of its eight plants is ominous. It tends to confirm what is becoming increasingly obvious — diplomacy, upon which so much depends, is not yet President Carter's strong suit.

Delighted with job

"You're not going to believe this," Vice President Walter Mondale in Washington says as he proclaims he's delighted in the Vice Presidency but has not given a moment's thought to running some day for President.

Veep still has time to read history

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter Mondale says even though he's delighted in the vice presidency, he hasn't given a moment's thought to running some day for president.

Mondale says the fishbowl aspect of his new life "takes a little adjusting to" but he and the family love the gracious hilltop house on Massachusetts Avenue which comes with the job.

"It's much better than anything I've ever had before and we really like it," he says of the official residence. "It's a lovely place with a nice big lawn."

And, although every evening he must tote home an hour and a half's worth of "official reading" — memos, reports and the like — Mondale still is able to pursue his lifelong interest in history.

Every few months, he calls up Barbara Tuchman, the famous historian and writer, for a new reading list, he says.

Relishing a long cigar — rolling it in his hand, waving it to make a point, chewing on it, relighting it — Mondale discussed his new life in an interview in his high-ceilinged, chandeliered

White House office, 25 steps from the Oval Office. Sun, streamed through the floor-to-ceiling windows.

On every wall hang pictures of bodies of water. One photograph shows the fjord in the Norwegian village of Munde — which his great-grandfather left to come to America. Mondale took the photograph on a visit 12 years ago.

Mondale appears fully relaxed. The dark pockets under his eyes are less noticeable lately.

He says he finds himself a bit hemmed in by prominence.

"I used to be able to just disappear — fishing, or walking in the woods or just going home and walking around the block," he says. "Now, of course, I have the Secret Service. In addition, I'm much better known. It is a difference in my life. It's something that takes a little adjusting to."

Briefly in 1971 Mondale was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. He dropped out, saying a year's nonstop campaigning would take too much out of him.

Might he want to seek the presidency in 1984 if Carter is re-elected in 1980?

"You're not going to believe this," he says. "but I don't have any thoughts about 1984."

"I have always tried to do my job well on the theory that's the best politics and on the theory that it may be the last public job you're going to have and that it is important that you do it properly."

"I have one goal right now — to the extent I can, I want to help President Carter be the best president we can possibly have."

"If he succeeds that's my success. I have no plans, I've given no thoughts to what happens after that."

Mondale remains a hungry reader with a taste for history. He is reading four books at the moment — "The Art of War," written by Sun-Tzu, a Chinese general 26 centuries ago; a biography of Giuseppe Garibaldi, the 19th century Italian patriot and soldier; "The Story of a Life," an autobiography of Konstantin Paustovskii, the Russian novelist; and Alex Haley's "Roots."

He says a year ago he got the idea of turning to Barbara Tuchman, author of "The Guns of August," for reading suggestions.

"I just call her and ask, 'What's good?' She knows all the best things to read," Mondale says. "It occurred to me that when you read on your own many times you'll pick up a book that you just don't like or doesn't read well or in fact you'll find about page 170 that it is just not a good book. Every book that Barbara Tuchman's ever written I've loved. So I got her on the phone and asked her."

This activist vice president — perhaps the most influential in U.S. history — thinks President Carter has managed to build "phenomenal" popularity which will harden and endure even after the President's decisions arouse opposition.

Carter's energy proposals will, extract sacrifice from every American, Mondale says, but he thinks the public will rally around "on the grounds we've finally got a leader that will stand up to this issue."

"I think the public — likes him, and that's astounding dramatically in the polls," he says.

"If a president is providing good leadership, I think maybe the nature of his strength changes to a more entrenched kind of strength."

Mondale says he spends three or four hours a day with Carter and, he says, he sees the same man the public sees.

"He's remarkably without guile," he says.

Probably no one's interested

WASHINGTON — I have decided to write a column today that probably no one is interested in. It is on the subject of lust.

After what many people have called the worst winter in our country, spring has finally come. People have discarded their heavy coats and boots and the voice of lust can be heard throughout the land.

I was walking through Lafayette Park with Bradley just the other day, and I said to him as our eyes darted from one beautiful woman to another, "Let me ask you something, Bradley. Do you have lust in your heart at this time of the year?"

Bradley said, "That's a dumb question. Of course I do. What else would you have in your heart in the spring?"

"I do, too," I admitted. "I think I have more lust in my heart at this very moment than I had during the months of November, December and January combined."

"Do you think they know we have lust in our hearts?" I asked Bradley. "Who is they?" he asked.

"All of them," I said, sweeping my hand out to indicate everyone who was wearing a miniskirt, a tight sweater or a see-through blouse. "The question is are they provoking our lust or purpose?"

"I think so," Bradley said. "I believe that when they get up in the morning and select their outfits for the day they say to themselves, 'I hope this will make someone lust after me.'"

"I don't think it's that planned," I said. "I believe it's a subconscious thing, having to do with the mating instinct. They automatically pick out an item that they believe will cause lust in our hearts."

"But if this is true," Bradley said, "why do they call us male chauvinist pigs when we think about lust?"

"They have to call us something," I told Bradley. "By calling us pigs it gives them a reason to wear anything they damn well please."

"I don't think that's nice," he said. "They stir up all these repressed feelings and then when we react to them they call us names."

"It's true. Look at that lovely bird walking toward us. She isn't wearing a bra. We know she isn't wearing a bra and she knows she isn't wearing a bra. But if we stare at her she'll think we're dirty old men."

"Or worse," said Bradley, "she'll pretend she thinks we're dirty old men, but in her heart she'll feel very pleased that we would bother to notice."

"They're more devious in the springtime, aren't they?" I said.

"Spring is the most cruel time of all," Bradley said. "There are days when I don't even want to leave the house because I know I'm going to lust all day."

"I'm like that, too," I admitted. "I don't want to get out of bed in the morning because I know it's going to be tough on my heart."

"Do you think women lust after men in their hearts the way we lust after women?" I asked my friend.

"I'm sure of it," he said. "The only difference is we don't provoke them by wearing skimpy clothes. It's a different kind of lust — but it's still lust."

"That cheered me up," he told me. "I'll bet they are lusty right now as much as we are. I think the whole park is full of lust. You can feel it everywhere."

"The only difference is," I said, "if they come up to us and admitted they lust in their hearts for us we wouldn't call them pigs."

"That's right," he said. "And you know why?"

"Why?" I wanted to know. "Because our sex is made up of gentlemen."

Possibilities seem almost endless

By HAROLD M. SCHMECK, Jr. © N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The term "genetic engineering" seems straight out of science fiction, but currently it is a subject of real and heated debate among scientists, environmentalists and some of the leaders of the Congress.

The debate is hottest over the question of industrial applications that may emerge from the brave new world of genetics experiments. Indeed, it is "specifically" because of the industrial possibilities that Congress is preparing to pass a law regulating one important field of genetics research.

This is the field called recombinant DNA research. That term means recombining the genetic material of living things to give them important characteristics not found in nature. The techniques of recombinant DNA work allow scientists to splice into the genes of bacteria, other genes from far different species, including plants and mammals to give them characteristics they don't normally have.

The theoretical possibilities seem almost endless — bacteria to gobble up oil spills, bacteria to manufacture important biological products including disease-fighting antibodies, scarce hormones such as human growth hormone, antibiotic drugs, even metal-hungry microbes that might be used to mine valuable trace metals from ocean water.

It is easy to see why industry might be interested in the technology of recombinant DNA research. But some scientists are worried about the possibilities. One concern is that these genetic engineering techniques may be providing fallible human beings with increasingly powerful means of short-cutting evolution — in ways alien to nature.

This human intervention, the argument runs, could lead mankind into ecological disasters that would make our current problems look like a picnic.

Caveatly such experiments might accidentally produce and let loose on the world germs that might cause cancer or upset the necessary equilibrium of bacterial growth in every human digestive tract. Plants, genetically engineered for food, poison, or spread destructively across the face of the earth.

The hopes and fears for recombinant DNA research are almost exclusively theoretical at present. So far as anyone knows, no super-germ has been produced nor is it clear that such a disaster is even possible. No revolutionary microbial benefactor of mankind has been produced either.

The scientists have been proceeding with great caution. A few years ago they organized a moratorium on some of the most potentially hazardous types of experiments. Their private, although virtually worldwide, agreement has since been codified by a set of guidelines developed by the National Institutes of Health in this country.

Comparable, although not identical, rules have been established in Europe.

Congress is expected to pass legislation soon, primarily because no government guidelines at present cover private industry.

Some critics see this lack of control over industrial research as a hazard, particularly because of the large scale on which a manufacturer would have to operate to make any practical use of recombinant DNA technology.

Hearings have been held and several bills introduced in Congress in recent months, including one by the administration itself. The result promises to be something virtually unprecedented — a federal law regulating an area of biological research.

Meanwhile, the Congress has also been trying to find out what industry is doing in the field of recombinant DNA studies. Under the leadership of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a Senate health subcommittee has sent a questionnaire to about 90 companies. The returns show that only a few firms are doing recombinant DNA research now and that only a few others are preparing to do so in the reasonably near future.

Most of those doing some research in the field are drug manufacturers. Among them, according to their responses to the health subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, are Eli Lilly and Co.; the Upjohn Co.; Hoffman-LaRoche, Inc.; two others, G. D. Searle & Co. and SmithKline Corp. England is involved in research abroad — sold they are in Sweden's case, Belgium, for SmithKline.

Among chemical companies, Monsanto said they are supporting some recombinant DNA research through grants and DuPont said they may start doing some research in the field in the next year.

Auction info bias hit

Editor, Times-News:
To clear up what I feel is a biased representation of the facts in regard to my land auction, I would like to state that the parcels which are within the nine-hundred-foot moratorium and are restricted in regards to building permits are clearly being presented to the public this way: There is only one parcel under five acres and this parcel is definitely not being represented as a building site. Parcels of five acres or more that are not affected by the nine-hundred-foot moratorium are not under the jurisdiction of the Gooding County Planning and Zoning Committee. I have nine parcels that do not touch within the nine-hundred-foot moratorium, and are more than five acres. The Health Department has participated with me in doing the work necessary for approval of septic tanks and drain fields. Permits for septic tanks are issued on an individual basis. Percolation tests were conducted by the Twin Falls Engineering Firm of Edwards and Howard, in accordance with the Health Department specifications, and there is no indication that any of these parcels will not support a septic tank and drain field. Media reports indicating there are problems with the proposed sale have no basis in fact. We encourage all interested parties to contact us prior to the sale for any particulars that may concern you. JACK TEATER Kimberly

Editor, Times-News:
I thought I would write and share my thoughts with you in regard to the decision of whether or not to require another year of English to receive an Idaho high school diploma. The first thought that comes to my mind is that you can better learn the mechanics of English after you have learned another language, which in my case was Spanish. Learning the mechanics of Spanish made me aware of the many different tenses of a language and how parts of speech such as subjects and predicates have to agree with each other to be correct. Also whether they are in the nominative or objective case. In Spanish you even have to worry about gender in regard to adjectives. "The flower" would be la flor since flower is feminine word. El toro the bull because bull is masculine so we have to use "el," the masculine form of "the." Now, another thought that comes to my mind is the importance my mother always placed on Latin. I've never studied Latin but believe this is true and that it would benefit a person all his life in regard to deriving the meaning of words. Another thought that comes to my mind is that teachers make so much of perfect penmanship, perfect spelling and perfect word usage that they thwart people from wanting to write articles or letters for fear others will ridicule them for their efforts. To me the thought portrayed, no matter how poorly stated, is the real breakthrough sometimes. The insights that come flashing into the mind are the real counters. Out in life it's the person who can't adjust a machine and make it work right so parts will not wear out unnecessarily who "grabs it." Just having four years of English won't "get it." Reasoning classes would be more meaningful, I think. How to find a means to an end is how my educational psychology book says it. We would do better to lead students or share with them our past failures and successes. MYRA L. LEAQUI Bliss

Rioters crackdown target

ROME (UPI) — Premier Giulio Andreotti called an emergency cabinet session today to discuss new law and order measures following bloody student rioting at Rome University in which a policeman was killed. "Demonstrations in which hand grenades are used and there is continuous recourse to firearms can no longer be considered student protests," Interior Minister Francesco Cossiga told reporters in announcing the meeting. "Such manifestations, from now on, will be considered as armed aggressions against the state and I will instruct police to react the way one must react to armed aggressions." Meanwhile, riot police swept through student housing blocks around the university today, searching for instigators of the rioting. Cossiga said Andreotti called the law and order meeting of some senior ministers after a regular cabinet session. He said it was to consider measures that had been under study for some time. He did not specify what measures had been discussed. One suggestion repeatedly made by members of Andreotti's Christian Democratic party has been to empower police to detain any persons they suspect may be about to commit a crime. The suggestion has been strongly opposed by the Communists and Socialists, on whose parliamentary abstentions Andreotti's minority government depends. Rome University was sealed off and closed indefinitely after angry students attacked a police unit with pistols Thursday, killing one officer and seriously wounding two others.

Disadvantaged has advantages

Editor, Times-News:
For years, the greatest fear in a man's life is to be poor. Gradually that's changing. In fact, now you can get subsidized housing, health and dental care, university scholarships and various other welfare benefits, provided you're poor enough. All you need to enjoy many of the advantages of life is proof that you are disadvantaged. Nobody can complain about that. It's humane and kind. However, in curing poverty, society has created another problem group. That's the middle class. They have an awkward amount of money — too much to be eligible to live as well as the poor, too little to live as well as the rich. The middle class wage earner is caught in-between. Instead of living downtown (like the poor and rich), the poor has to buy a lot 35 miles out of town because that's all he can afford. He spends the rest of his life trying to pay bills, educate his kids and meet the mortgage because nobody will help him out. If poverty becomes more attractive, this is what could develop within the company. "Mr. Hall, I wonder if I could speak with you for a moment?" "What is it, Smedley? I'm busy." "It's about my salary. I wonder if you could give me a decrease?" "You had a decrease less than a year ago, Smedley!" "I know sir, I wouldn't ask it if it wasn't important, but I sure could use less money." "What size decrease did you have in mind?" "If I made $25 less we would be eligible for an apartment in the city's new development, the one downtown with a pool, a sauna and tennis court. Besides, my son would qualify for a government scholarship, and we could get his teeth fixed." "You drive a hard bargain, Smedley. But you win. You get your decrease on one condition... if your work slips, you get a 310 raise, no questions asked." "Bless you Mr. Hall." "And, Smedley, will you invite me over for tennis and a swim when you move into the new place?" "Certainly, sir. I believe the poor should share with the less fortunate." DANNY DANIELS Pocatello

Utah firm low bidder

BOISE (UPI) — A bid of almost $7 million was the apparent low proposal submitted for a final segment of Interstate Highway between the East Hammett Interchange and the East Glenns Ferry Interchange, the Idaho Transportation Department said today. LeGrand Johnson Construction Co., Logan, Utah, was named the apparent low bidder at $6,965,022.10. The department said the project includes grading almost six miles between the two interchanges on I-80. The interstate will replace U.S. Highway 30 through the Hammett-Glenns Ferry area. A frontage road is under construction to carry traffic through the construction site without interruption. Apparent low bidders on other projects were: Quinn Robbins Co., Inc.

Boise, with an apparent low bid of $294,576.40 for a job placing plant mix overlay on nine miles of SH 51 south of Mountain Home.

ANDREW YOUNG LILLIAN CARTER

Lillian denies comment
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young is not a windbag, says "Miss Lillian" Carter, and she denies she ever said he was.
 "Andy knows I didn't call him that," she told reporters Thursday.
 She said the subject of long-winded speakers came up during a television interview, but what she really said was: "Andy Young talks a lot, but I've known Andy for 20 years and there's nobody I'd rather listen to."

Billy eyes federal citation

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Billy Carter says he feels "rotten as hell" over a federal citation for leaving trash piled up around his gas station, but contends it never would have happened were he not the President's brother.

'Unknown' Marx dies at age 84

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Gummo Marx, cheerfully acknowledged his status as the Marx brother most people had never heard of, died Thursday at age 84.
 Gummo, whose real name was Milton, played straight man to his cutup brothers — Groucho, Chico and Harpo — in vaudeville for some years but left the family comedy act for the Army in World War I and never went back.
 Replaced by Zeppo, he did not appear in the zany movies such as "Monkey Business," and "A Night at the Opera" that made the Marx brothers popular from the 1920s to the 1940s. After going into dress manufacturing, he returned to show business as an actor's agent.

A spokesman for Eisenhower Medical Center, where Marx was admitted Sunday for an unrevealed ailment, would say only that Marx died of "natural causes."
 His death came during an emotional guardianship hearing in Santa Monica, Calif., for his older brother, Groucho, 86.
 Gummo had kidded about his status as the least famous Marx brother, telling friends that when his son Robert was 6 he came home from school excited one day.
 "I told my wife school was going just fine, that he had told everybody his father was Harpo Marx. My wife asked why he said that since it wasn't true."

"He said, 'Well, who's ever heard of Gummo Marx?'"
 His death left Groucho and Zeppo as the only surviving brothers. Chico died in 1961 and Harpo in 1964.
 According to one story, Gummo was given his name by Groucho because he always wore rubber, or gum, soled shoes.

Hughes Chrysler on auction block

CHICAGO (UPI) — A piece of the Howard Hughes legend is sitting in Lewis Lazarus' garage in Forreston, Ill. If the price is right this weekend, it can be yours.
 Lazarus has a vintage 1954 Chrysler New Yorker four-door sedan that belonged to the reclusive tycoon, as inconspicuous and eccentric as its onetime owner. He will offer it for sale at a public auction.
 "The car has 1,300 actual miles on it," said the antique car buff who parlayed his hobby into a profitable business. "Most Hughes cars were low mileage cars. He rarely used them. He was so germ-conscious, they were only for his own use."
 The Hughes car and between 400 and 500 others, whose former owners ranged from Jack Benny to Adolph Hitler, will be auctioned Saturday and Sunday at Lazarus' Motor Museum at Pleasanton, Ill.
 "We've heard speculation that it (the Hughes car) will go for up to $40,000. But I haven't decided what I want for it," said Lazarus.
 To combat his fetidly against germs, Hughes installed a $15,000 air filtration system in his car, designed to "push dirty air out of the car every 30 seconds."

Hanoi demands US help

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam today repeated its demands for U.S. postwar aid and brought the annual meeting of the U.N. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific into its third day of political confrontation.

The Vietnamese also said that "in spite of the ravages of a year's war," North Vietnam's level of production during the two years since the Communist victory in the south has been restored to the 1964 level, the year before the American bombings began.

"As far as the United States of America is concerned," chief Vietnamese delegate Dinh Ba Thi told the meeting, "we believe that they should honor their commitment for contributions to heal the wounds of war and to reconstruct Vietnam."

"It is a matter of responsibility, honor, conscience and morality which the United States cannot escape."

Thi earlier in his 30-minute address told the delegates from three dozen countries that Vietnam supported Laos' criticism of Thailand Wednesday for alleged interference in its internal affairs.

Vietnam made no reference to China's attack on the Soviet Union Thursday.

S. Lebanon battles rage on

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy fighting with artillery, mortars, machine guns and ground-to-ground missiles raged in southern Lebanon today between Christian militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas, shattering four days of calm on the tense southern border.

There was no immediate report of casualties in the clashes between the Christian rightists, entrenched in their hilltop strongholds at Marjayoun and Kfela, and the Palestinians in nearby Khiam and Ebel es Saqi.

All the positions are within sight of Israel.

Reports from the scene said the two sides had been girding themselves for battle during the past four days of calm and the artillery bombardments were particularly intense when they started late Thursday.

The action came as rightist leaders intensified their calls for the Arabs to bring the Palestinian guerrillas under control in Lebanon.

It also followed clashes between rival guerrilla factions in another southern town, Nabatiyeh, nine miles northwest of the embattled ridgetowns held by the rightists.

President Elias Sarkis and Lebanese rightist leaders have called for strict observation by the Palestinians of the 1969 Cairo accord regulating their activities in Lebanon.

Lutheran women meet in Filer

FILER—Mrs. Don Egbert presented the opening devotional service on the topic "Let's Get Going, Lord" to peace Lutheran Missionary League members at the April meeting in the fellowship hall.

Mrs. Inez Schlange gave the topic study on "Feminine Factors," reading notes on a number of famous biblical women. Mrs. Reuben Lierman, president, welcomed Mrs. Brent Reimke as guest. Mrs. Bonnie Pien volunteered to represent the group in the next cookout. A letter was read from the Lutheran Church Women Inviting the group to a meeting April 28.

The May 12 meeting will feature a mother-daughter evening with mothers and their women as special guests. The group set date 2 for the annual supper and bazaar. The sum of $100 was donated to the church tree and shrub fund.

Members were urged to take articles to the Good Shepherd sale to be held April 30 at the Twin Falls Immanuel Church. Mrs. Schlange and Mrs. Del Butterfield served refreshments.

CSI choir performs Sunday

TWIN FALLS—The College of Southern Idaho Concert Choir will perform at 11 a.m. Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church.

The choir will present the cantata "Whatsoever Ye Do" under the direction of Patrick Walker.

Soloists include Matthew Hardin, tenor, and Joyce Crawford, alto.

The instrumental ensemble will consist of Ernest Moss, first violin; Susan Olsen, second violin; David Hamilton, viola; Helen Connolly, cello; Jamie Griff, oboe, and Phyllis VanNest, organ.

Sunday's worship will include the sacrament of infant baptism and Glideons International will make a presentation.

Worship in the chapel will be at 8:30 a.m., an adult study will be held in the pastor's office and Sunday church school for all ages is scheduled.

Church officials say everyone is invited to attend any of the events.

Film showing set at Elrst Assembly

TWIN FALLS—A color full-length film, "Corrie: Behind the Scenes with the Hiding Place," will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at the First Assembly of God Church, 189 W. Locust.

Rev. James Hicks, pastor of the church, says the movie is a true story filmed in Holland and other European locations. It is based on the experiences of Corrie ten Boom who with her father, sister and brother received refuge for countless Jewish families.

A secret room was constructed in their home as a hiding place for use during Gestapo raids. The Ten Booms' activities were discovered and they were sent to prisons and concentration camps.

Hicks says the movie is open to the public free of charge.

Jerome church schedules revival

JEROME—The Church of God (Full Gospel) of Jerome will hold a revival in its new location at 235 E. Sixth.

The revival begins Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and will continue daily through May 1.

Guest speaker for the revival will be Charles LaFoy, youth and Christian education director for the states of Idaho and Oregon.

Rev. LaFoy is living in Boise but is originally from South Carolina and his wife Marie has two children.

Rev. R.L. Clegg extends a personal invitation to all to come and hear LaFoy preach and sing each night. Clegg says, "Our doors are always open to anyone who wishes to worship the God of the fashioned way."

Presbyterians view travel slides

TWIN FALLS—Mr. and Mrs. Dick Stafford spoke to the Teenager Class at the First Presbyterian Church following the monthly dinner meeting Monday night.

They showed slides of their recent trip to France, Spain, Portugal and Africa. Stafford displayed a Spanish sword and Moroccan jewelry. Mrs. Stafford modeled a Spanish shawl and served several Spanish foods, "paella" and "empanadas."

Rupert pastor visits Holy Land

RUPERT—Rev. Edwin F. Hall, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Rupert, will make his sixth visit to the Holy Land in September.

Hall will escort a small group of Magic Valley residents on the 26-day trip. The tour is planned for persons interested in becoming more knowledgeable of the places and events recorded in the Old and New Testaments.

Flea market planned April 30

TWIN FALLS—The Idaho mill of the Good Shepherd Auxiliary will hold a flea market at Immanuel Lutheran Parish Hall on Filer Avenue East from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 30.

Free coffee will be served and home baked goods will be for sale.

Proceeds of the flea market will go to the home for the mentally retarded. Everyone is welcome, according to sponsoring board members.

Minister exchange, potluck slated

KING HILL—Rev. James Moore of Gardena will be the exchange minister on Sunday at the King Hill United Presbyterian and the First United Methodist Church in Gloms Ferry.

Following the services a fellowship dinner will be held at the King Hill church to visit with Rev. and Mrs. Moore. Moore was the minister for these churches for several years.

Lesson sermon topic announced

TWIN FALLS—The title of the lesson-sermon Sunday, at the Christian Science Church will be "Proliferation after Death."

Sunday school begins at 9:15 a.m., and church services are at 11 a.m. Sunday and 8 p.m. Wednesday at the church, 160 Ninth Ave. E.

The Reading Room, 382 Main Ave. S., is open from noon to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Kimberly church hosts Glideons

KIMBERLY—The First Baptist Church in Kimberly will host a Glideons service Sunday.

Lyman Mueller, Twin Falls, will be the guest speaker. The public is invited.

The First Baptist Church is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention.

Pastor Pietz assumes Twin Falls post

Carolayne and Lothar Pietz in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS—The installation service for Rev. Lothar Pietz, newly elected pastor of Our Saviour Lutheran Church, 1708 Heyburn Ave. E., will be held this Sunday evening at 7:30 in the church.

Rev. Eugene Tharks, former pastor of the church, will be the officiant and Rev. Karl Ufer, eastern region assistant to the bishop of the north Pacific district of The American Lutheran Church, will perform the rite of installation. Area pastors will also participate in the service.

Born in New Guinea of parents who were missionaries, Pastor Pietz has received all of his undergraduate education and professional experience in the United States.

Pietz received a bachelor of arts in literature from Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma, Wash., in 1959. He received a bachelor of divinity degree in 1963 from Wartburg Theological Seminary, Dubuque, Iowa. He was ordered at the American Lutheran Church at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, Aberdeen, Wash., on June 9, 1963. He received a master of arts in English at Northern Michigan University in 1960.

Pietz served 21st Lutheran Church, Philo, Ill., from 1963 to 1967 and served as campus pastor at Northern Michigan University, Marquette, for over five years under the auspices of the National Lutheran Campus Ministry. He has been the campus pastor at Dana College, Blair, Neb., since 1972. Dana College is a liberal arts college of the American Lutheran Church.

Pietz married Carolyn Link on June 1, 1960. The Pietzes have three children: Kaarin 10, Sarah, 7, and Eric, 5.

A potluck supper will be held at Our Saviour at 5:30 p.m. this Sunday, and the installation service will follow at 7:30 p.m. The community is invited to attend the service, says Pietz.

Soviet citizens drawn to Christianity

© N.Y. Times Service

MOSCOW—Some months ago a 16-year-old Armenian walked from the gray streets of Baku into the gold and candlelight of a church. She crossed herself, lit a candle and bowed her head in a brief prayer.

All was not as it appeared. Both her parents are Communist party members and she belongs to Komsomol, the Young Communist League. She said her visits to the church, made frequently after school, were kept secret from her mother and father. She has no difficulty reconciling her Communist affiliation with her religious faith, she explained, adding: "It's easy. When they ask at the Komsomol committee if I believe in God, I say no."

Throughout the Soviet Union, from rural villages in the Caucasus to industrial cities in Russia, Christianity and communists have attained an uneasy coexistence. Neither the tenets of Marxism-Leninism nor the periodic crackdowns on believers have effected the eradication of the church as an important dimension of Soviet life.

While religious freedom is guaranteed by the Constitution, religious activity is severely circumscribed by law, and it is limited even further by the uncensored practices of employers, teachers, party officials and others in a position to exert informal pressure on and discrimination against believers. Yet the society is pervaded by those who call themselves Christians. Their numbers in the population of 230 million are uncensored officially. Western churchmen, making the best calculations they can, estimate that there are at least 30 million members of the Orthodox Church—double the size of the Roman Catholic and five million Roman Catholics and Lutheran and perhaps two million Baptists. Pentecostals, Seventh-day Adventists and other Protestants. Some are open dissenters, but many are well-integrated citizens, perhaps party members, who are drawn to the church by strong currents of tradition, nationalism, esthetics, fashion and, not least, a search for a set of purposes and a sense of life's purpose beyond what Communist ideology provides.

"Some wear crosses and till the officially sanctioned churches on holidays. Others read Bible stories at home and hope that their children will move closer to the church than they. Still others defy the law by establishing secret Sunday schools and holding services in their apartments. A large group of underground Baptists operates a clandestine printing shop where professional-looking magazines and bulletins are produced. Religious improvisation abounds. Leonid N. Polivanov, a 31-year-old Baptist with merry eyes and a gray beard, said he was baptized seven years ago in a huge municipal swimming pool on the bank of the Moscow River by an American Baptist here as a tourist. "There were only two of us," he said. "We prayed and dunked."

His 18-year-old daughter was baptized in the bathtub of their three-room Moscow apartment, and she in turn describes having baptized Russians and foreigners in the tub and the pool. One was a 12-year-old neighbor to whom she gave religious instruction, contrary to his mother's wishes but with his grandmother's assent.

Other baptisms take place officially in established churches.

The reasons for the curious overlap of Communist and Christian affiliations are the subject of debate. Those in the church tend to minimize the ideological clash between Marxism-Leninism and Christianity, arguing that they hold compatible humanitarian precepts.

The Rev. Dmitri Dudko, an outspoken Russian Orthodox priest with a parish outside Moscow, said the phenomenon of Communists being baptized "signifies a paradox—that they are real believers and real Communists." He contended no real line can be drawn between believers and nonbelievers in this society. At some middle ground, their divergent impulses merge and blur, and it is common to encounter Russians whose personal ethics and values are not contrary to either communism or Christianity.

On the other hand, many outside the church think the current "interest" in religion reflects the low ideological content of modern Soviet communism. A Communist utopia, in which religion is no longer needed, has faded as a vision of the future. Membership in the party, and especially in the much less exclusive Komsomol, to which a vast majority of those from 14 to 28 belong, is often pursued mainly to advance careers.

"There is a real religious renaissance now," said a writer whose wife is in the party. "A search for an ideal, a search for a sense of life. We have lost our ideals."

"The sense of vacuum worries some parents. One engineer, who has been rather nonreligious in his adult life, hopes that his children will be closer to the church, "so they are stronger than synopsists, so they have an inner stability as a base." For some, then, a step toward the church becomes an effort to gain some subtle measure of personal philosophical independence.

"Official religion," a mathematician explained, "is the only permissible outlook other than Marxism-Leninism."

On another level, the church is a community, providing a feeling of belonging. Lev Koplev, a Jew and a writer who spent 10 years in a labor camp with Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn, explains why the Russian word "sobor," which means congregation, cathedral, council, synod. "The party is also a sobor," Koplev said, "but the church is the meekest one. The church does not make demands or press too much."

For some minorities in the Soviet Union—Latvian, Roman Catholics, Georgians, Armenians—organized religion can be a repository of minority culture and ethnic heritage held fast against the dominant Russians.

Speaker compares numbers of words

LONDON (UPI)—A speaker at a London conference on food pointed out Wednesday that the Lord's Prayer contains 50 words, the Ten Commandments 27 words, the American Declaration of Independence 300 words and the European Common Market directive on the export of duck eggs 26,911 words.

Dedication slated

Jehovah's Witnesses will dedicate the newly remodeled Kingdom Hall, 440 Madison St., Twin Falls, this weekend. Open house will be held from 1 to 8 p.m. Saturday and the dedication program will begin at 7 p.m. Billy Ford, Watchtower Society representative, will deliver the dedication address. Vern Shaw, city overseer for the Jehovah's Witnesses, says all work on the building was done by volunteers. Besides local members who helped, other volunteers came from as far away as Boise and Idaho Falls. Shaw says all interested persons are invited to visit the hall and attend the dedication program.

Man combines karate, evangelism

DEAN JEROME — Evangelist Dean Blakeney, Kung Fu karate expert, will make several appearances in Jerome this weekend. He will appear at a statewide youth rally tonight at 7:30 at the Bible Baptist Church, 136

Second Ave. E. Sunday he will perform at all services at the church and Monday will be at the Jerome High School for a morning assembly. Blakeney holds a black belt in Kung Fu karate. In an expert in weaponry, including the Japanese Samurai sword, the Turkish Kukrie knife, the Filipino bolo knife and a Vietnamese sword. According to his news release, he has broken 1,000 pounds of ice with one blow using an open hand technique known as the "iron palm," and has performed on national television. He says he will, while blindfolded, sever a watermelon from a man's stomach with the razor-sharp Samurai sword, break a foot of concrete with a blow of his hand, slice a banana from a man's neck and have 50 pounds of concrete smashed from his stomach with a sledge hammer while lying on a bed of spikes. Blakeney says karate is an "attention getter" for the message he is presenting and compares his sword to the Bible.

Performs in Jerome

DEAN Blakeney, evangelist and Kung Fu karate expert, demonstrates his skill by breaking several concrete blocks with a blow of his hand. He will make several appearances in Jerome this weekend. He will perform at 7:30 tonight at the Bible Baptist Church, 136 Second Ave. E., at all services of the church Sunday and at an assembly at the Jerome High School Monday morning.

Hagerman woman elected

HAGERMAN — Mrs. Robert (Irene) Adolf, Hagerman, has been elected by the Good Shepherd Lutheran Home of the West to serve a three-year term on its 20-member board of directors. Mrs. Adolf previously served two terms on the board (1970-1976) with one term as secretary. Volunteer service is second nature to Mrs. Adolf. As a member of Christ Lutheran Church, Wendell, she has served as Sunday School teacher, member of the choir and organist. Locally Mrs. Adolf has held offices in Lady Lions and the PTA, including its area council. In addition, she has done volunteer work for the American Cancer Society and Red Cross Mobile. Good Shepherd Lutheran Home, a not-for-profit organization which provides Christian residential care and training for persons who are mentally retarded, began its operation in 1956 at Terra Bella, Calif., with nine residents. Since then the home has expanded its services to 484 residents who reside at three, California and one Oregon, facility.

Shoshone residents discuss problems of the small town

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — The possibility of using the former McFall Hotel, now on the state's historical district register, as a depot when Amtrak railroad service begins here in June was one idea discussed in sessions here Wednesday on the future of the small town.

Afternoon and evening public meetings arranged by the Idaho Heritage Magazine with a panel of experts in historical, preservation, municipal, housing and humanist fields were conducted in Shoshone under sponsorship of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce.

Using the now unused hotel, a Shoshone landmark, as a depot would give the town a real tourist attraction and help promote the uniqueness of the community, Ron Hatzenmehler, history teacher at Idaho State University, Pocatello, said during the afternoon session.

Mayor Elwood Werry said the hotel is owned by Dr. Wally Pond, a Boise psychiatrist, who had told the mayor earlier, "he needs the hotel like he needs a hole in his head."

Arthur Hart, Boise, director of the Idaho State Historical Society, and Alan Minskoff, editor of Idaho Heritage, who conducted the afternoon workshop, both said they felt it would be "exciting" to arouse citizen interest in utilizing either the historic hotel or the present Union Pacific depot.

Werry said that since Amtrak is a federal agency operating separately from the UP, the old depot here will not be used. Amtrak reportedly plans some sort of shelter along the tracks, when railroad service is reinstated about June 6.

Hart said since the depot also is on the national register for historical preservation, it is protected from destruction by a federal agency, but the designation does not protect it from whatever the UP wants to do with the structure.

"It seems incredible to have such a unique depot here and not use it," Minskoff said. In Canada, the editor said, all trains depots are in old, interesting buildings.

Both Hart and Ernest Lombard, Boise architect who is an Idaho representative to the National Trust for Historic Preservation, showed films of old buildings which have been rejuvenated, some for "adaptive use."

Lombard said it makes "dollars and sense" to rejuvenate sturdy old structures rather than build new ones at today's inflationary costs.

During the town meeting the guest panelists asked what the citizens want for their town. More facilities to serve both senior citizens and youth were mentioned.

Toastmistresses hold contest

TWIN FALLS — Flo Harper won first place in the Council of Seven speech contest at the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club meeting.

Nita Nelson, vice-president of the club, presided and acted as toastmistress.

The welcome was given by Donna Bach and Marguerite Hartley led the invocation and the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Donna Scott's education lesson was an voice quality. Following the musical theme of "The Blues," Harper led table topics. Bach, who served as timer, received the red pencil for best extemporaneous speech.

An ice-breaker speech was given by Charlotte Evans and Charlotte Jones spoke on "Impressions." Blue pencils were won by both speakers.

Martha Beck gave the grammarian's report and general evaluations were by Virginia Bitzenburg and Frances Hesselholt.

The traveling trophy for best performance of the day was won by Scott. The closing thought was given by Nelson.

Flower club hears tips on patio plants

TWIN FALLS — Patio gardening was the topic presented by Mrs. Victor Nelson during the April meeting of the Countryside Flower Club held at the home of Mrs. Dwight Shaw.

Mrs. Nelson suggested using pots of succulents on the patio as they require little water and little care. She said hanging baskets can be lined with peat moss and filled with blooming plants for patio decorations. Some vegetables such as eggplants, tomatoes and herbs do well in pots. Mrs. Nelson said heavy pots can be put on platforms with rollers and moved from palace to place around the patio.

A garden tour planned by Mrs. Pete Sande will be held following a May meeting of the club.

king. Then South reviewed the bidding and saw that it was likely that West would hold both high clubs.

Then South worked out a squeeze end play against West. He trumped his queen and small diamond and ran out his trumps. South finally led his ace of diamonds, leaving himself with four cards — the seven of hearts and king-jack-three of clubs. Dummy held three hearts and two clubs in back of West and poor West had to throw the queen of clubs in order to hold on to the heart. South just discarded the low heart from dummy, led a club and claimed.

Baseball registry for kids May 3

TWIN FALLS — Registration forms for first grade boys and fourth grade girls who will be starting Knottville and Sleepy Hollow this summer will be available at all Twin Falls grade schools and at Harmon Park May 3.

Chad Browning, city recreation director, said youngsters wishing to start registration forms at the schools and turn them in to their teachers and principals. Those who cannot sign up at the schools may register at the Harmon Park Buildings. He said there is also a need for parents and other volunteers who will be willing to serve as coaches.

Registration forms will be sent home with school children April 27 and 28. Browning said about 5,000 of these are being distributed to the schools to advise parents of the available programs.

He said youngsters who played on teams last year should contact their coach to let them know they are registered again this year. Those wishing to change teams must re-register with the school or recreation department and will then be drafted for teams needing new players. Browning said the players cannot choose their own new teams.

Deadline for sign up is May 31 and play will begin for the various leagues June 14. Browning said the boys' teams will be to play knottville baseball when they reach first grade. Girls' slow pitch softball is open to fourth grade girls and older.

Forms will be made up according to school and home addresses where possible for the convenience of the coaches. Excess players will be made up into separate teams. Browning said there were 63 boys' teams and 35 girls' teams last year.

He said girls below the fourth grade age bracket may play the boys' knottville teams if they wish but girls in the fourth grade and above will be placed on softball teams.

Brochures about the summer recreation program including the baseball and softball man hunt.

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was listed in critical condition in a hospital here after falling to negotiate a turn on rolling his car several times on State 59.

Dennis Kuhlman was driving a 1975 Porsche around a turn near the intersection of the highway and North Pleasant Road, when it skidded off the road at 7:50 p.m. Tuesday and tumbled several times, state police said.

Kuhlman was taken to Power County Hospital. The car was totaled.

Youths charged

WENDELL — Charges of disturbing the peace have been filed against four Wendell youths after an altercation Tuesday afternoon in front of the Wendell High School.

Will Spalding, high school principal, said several boys who are out of school and frequently loiter around the building got into a "scuffle" with some of the students.

Teachers soon broke up the fight, he said. Asked if anyone was hurt, the principal said "some of them were scuffed up." He said unofficial reports that one of the participants had a loaded gun was "strictly rumor."

The principal said he believed action can be taken against the offenders under a new law passed by the legislature making it a misdemeanor for non-students to loiter around a school and interfere in the educational process.

Spalding said some of the youths involved in the fight were juveniles and some were not.

Wendell Police Dale Egan said he could find no evidence of a gun being involved in the incident, and labeled reports which he had received about the alleged weapon as "unfounded."

$2.5 million Rupert storm sewer asked

RUPERT — The city commission working on Rupert's comprehensive plan Wednesday night prodded the City Council toward a $2.5 million storm drain construction project.

The Rupert Traffic Safety Committee, acting as a sub-committee for transportation on the comprehensive plan, included a recommendation for a storm drain study in its proposed element for the plan.

The city's new planning commission will meet next Thursday to review proposals for inclusion in the comprehensive plan. The city plan will include revised elements from the city-county plan now in the hands of Minidoka County commissioners.

Commissioners have not yet acted upon the proposed plan presented to them by the Minidoka County Planning Commission. Robert Nielsen, legal counsel for commissioners, said a proposed new zoning ordinance will be ready within the next month or two for commissioners' consideration in light of the new plan's elements.

The traffic safety committee's push for a storm drain system in the city came 24 hours after the Rupert City Council withdrew a curb and gutter requirement from a subdivision agreement and indicated curbs and gutters will not be required of developers until the city can provide storm drainage.

Steve Selow, chairman of the traffic safety committee, said that the storm drains are a "definite safety aspect" for motorists.

Don Courtwright, city engineer, agreed. He said the city now paves a 24-foot street without curb and gutter. The street with curb and gutter would be 30 feet.

Courtwright said the city has a problem with pavement edges breaking as gravel is pushed away from the pavement by traffic. He said a curb traveling on the edge of the pavement is "hard to control," and the broken edges on the narrower streets are "a lack of hazard."

The City Council withdrew its requirement for curb and gutter Tuesday in the Cave subdivision, a 20-acre parcel in south Rupert being developed by C.C. McKenna.

Mayor Wendell Johnson had raised the issue of eliminating curbs and gutter requirements several times, saying that the curbing was funneling water runoff to designated areas, but the city had no storm drain to remove the water.

The result has been considerable flooding of city streets.

The removal of the curb and gutter requirement will allow subdividers to leave the area alongside street pavement open for water to seep away into the soil.

Courtwright said the city will require that streets be sloped so that water drains from them and would continue to do so after installation of curbs and gutters.

The council indicated it would require a subdivider to designate on his plat that curbs and gutters will be the responsibility of the land purchaser when the city does install a storm sewer system.

Levy vote set

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly school trustee election and six mill override levy election will be held May 17.

A story in the Times-News April 19 erroneously stated the election would be held May 19. Deadline for candidate applications for the two trustee positions to be filled is April 29.

Blaine letter stresses 'disaster' urgency

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Blaine County Commission sent a letter Thursday to Gov. Jimmie Carter urging him to act quickly on Gov. Evans' request to declare Blaine County a disaster area.

According to officials with the Blaine County Drought Emergency Board, the purpose of the letter to the president is to stress the urgency of the disaster designation.

Blaine County will not be eligible for federal relief until the state-declared disaster designation is federally approved.

Contained in the commission's letter were drought-related facts and figures delivered by Blaine County Commissioner Ray Sweet in testimony at water hearings held in Boise last week.

The letter says Blaine County, the first Idaho county to request and receive a disaster designation because of drought conditions here, faces an estimated $15 million loss this year in its recreation-tourism and agriculture industries.

"The recreation-tourism industry has already suffered a loss in revenue of over $8 million and the agricultural industry is mounting daily with estimates of loss in revenues over $7 million," the letter to the president says.

The $7 million loss to local agriculture represents only estimated crop losses. In addition, officials anticipate between 50 and 60 percent of the country's cattle herds will be liquidated before the summer's end.

The prospect is equally as grim for county sheep ranchers, according to Drought Emergency Board officials. Ranchers are turning only their ewes out to graze and they do not expect grazing land to last through the summer in the county, which is the third largest sheep producer in the state.

Last week, Governor Evans wrote letters to President Carter, the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the administrator of the Small Business Administration asking that the county's disaster designation be federally approved so it could receive federal assistance to help local farmers, ranchers and businessmen facing large losses because of the drought.

No response to the governor's request has yet been received.

Officials assert a $15 million loss in Blaine County cannot be absorbed by the county's economy alone, and so they have asked for the disaster declaration to make available long-term, low-interest loans and other federal disaster assistance.

An interagency drought emergency coordinating committee may be established on a federal level next week, officials say. Such a committee would cut through red tape involved in becoming eligible for federal drought assistance.

Until such a committee is established state officials say they will pursue federal approval of a disaster designation in Blaine County so that assistance for the drought-stricken area can be obtained.

Roll hike feared due

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Assistance to migrant workers may strain the welfare budgets this year with drought conditions reducing farm work in many other western states and Magic Valley counties, Health and Welfare Region 5 Advisory Board members were told Wednesday.

Judy Brooks, acting manager of medical and financial assistance, told the board in the April meeting that estimates run from 300 to 1,100 migrant families in Magic Valley this spring with the peak influx from mid-May through mid-June.

She said because lack of water for crops in many high labor areas will be reducing farm jobs, some members of the Migrant Council feel more workers will be seeking jobs here. Members of the Migrant Council have circulated word that jobs will also be short in this area and Magic Valley farm work will not be available for additional migrants.

"We don't know how much effect this will have and at this point we don't know if we will have a few, a moderate amount or a heavy influx of these families in our region," she said.

"We will be working closely with the Migrant Council and other agencies. We hope to be able to recruit some volunteers, preferably Spanish speaking, to help through the summer migrant season," she said.

Fred Schloss, Cassia Memorial Hospital administrator and board member, said his hospital is now feeling an economic pinch from a migrant clinic in Burley. He said the clinic offers free medical services to those needing it but when hospitalization is required, the patient is placed in the Cassia hospital where the doctor can continue his services.

There are funds for clinical services and the doctor, but none for hospitalization, Schloss said. Cassia County will not pick up the tab on migrants who may be living in Twin Falls or Jerome counties at the time. The other counties will not pay the bill because it originated in Cassia County, he said.

"We are writing these services off, but how long we can continue to do so is the question," he said.

Anne McNevin, social services division, reported on progress in obtaining some financial support from parents when children must be placed in special homes.

She said the plan not only helps reduce department costs, but gives the parent a greater interest in the foster home or special facility where the child is placed.

Parents pay a portion of the cost, based on their financial means. Some of the homes are now charging as much as $1,000 per month per child where therapy and other treatment is required, she said. There are 148 youngsters from the region in homes, including 98 in individual foster homes.

While collections are not high, she said, $2,000 was collected in January, $2,450 in February and $2,800 in March. She said this plan originated in region 5 with social services director Kent Henderson and regional director Dennis McDermott and is now being adopted in other regions.

Kimberly Allen, substance abuse, said her department has been contacting schools to assist with substance abuse problems.

Scout-O-Rama set Saturday

FILER — The outdoorsman who thinks he can keep up with the younger generation will have a chance to prove it Saturday at the annual Falls District Scout-O-Rama at the Filer Fairgrounds.

This year the Scouts program will include a number of booths especially for public participation. Interested persons may try their hand at starting a fire without matches or running a race.

The Scout-O-Rama is an annual display of Boy Scout programs to educate the public and explain scouting in this area.

Booths and displays will range from pet rock displays, or maybe pet rock acts, to aerospace demonstrations.

The program will open to the public at 2 p.m. and continue until 8 p.m. A food concession by the Order of the Arrow and indoor and outdoor displays will be featured. Several hundred Scouts in the Falls district, covering all of Twin Falls county, will participate.

STABBED during a riot aboard the HMS Indomitable, an officer falls from the bridge during rehearsals of the Bull-Head School production of "Billy Budd" which the high school drama class will present Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The show is under the direction of Brent Blackburn, high school drama teacher.

Play set in Buhl

Guidelines set for canyon rim land sale

HAGERMAN — A land auction near the canyon rim northeast of Hagerman Saturday will start under guidelines agreed to by seller Jack Teater and the Idaho attorney general.

Potential buyers will be informed of a Gooding County building moratorium on some of the property which lies 900 feet within the canyon rim. They also will be informed that even though tests indicate that septic tanks would be possible, there is no guarantee that septic tank permits will be issued, according to Idaho Deputy Atty. Gen. Rudy Barclaus.

The attorney general's office had become involved "because somebody felt that the promotional materials did not make a sufficiently adequate disclosure of potential problem areas," Barclaus said.

However, he maintained that under the current agreement "the people will be better informed at this sale than they would be at most."

An original brochure on the property advertised "building sites overlooking the Beautiful Hagerman Valley." This brochure also mentioned that "septic tank permits and approximately well depths are available at the auction company's office."

After these portions of the brochure were brought into question it was amended to cite "mini-ranches" instead of "building sites" and to strike out reference to septic tank permits.

Teater said Thursday that 88 acres out of the 123 acres up for sale is not subject to the rimland moratorium. Nine of the 15 lots, he said, would not be affected at all.

He said health department officials "aren't" going to say that they can accept a septic tank, but there is no reason for them not to "since percolation tests were favorable."

Undersheriff named for Cassia County

BURLEY — Billy Crystal has been named undersheriff in Cassia County.

Sheriff Roy Mitchell announced the promotion Wednesday.

Mitchell said Crystal will have complete charge when the sheriff is absent. His permanent duties include being in charge of the main office and the responsibility for seeing that warrants and civil papers are served.

The promotion is part of a reorganization within the sheriff's department triggered by two sexual assaults in the Cassia County Jail earlier this year.

Mitchell said Crystal's new duties will allow the sheriff to spend more time overseeing operation of the city-county jail.

Since a 13-year-old girl tried to commit suicide in the jail last month, alleging she had been raped by a male prisoner, Sheriff Mitchell had replaced the single jailer with two new men from the Burley Police Department.

Ken Carlson is jail supervisor, also handling patrol duties. Tim Little is full-time jailer. Crystal has been a Cassia County deputy sheriff for two years. He was a police officer on the Burley force for one and a half years.

Other deputies in Cassia County are chief investigator Don Taylor, civil deputy Don Green, Terry Bingham, who patrols the mountain areas, and Bob Ward, part-time deputy for the Almo-Elba area.

Blaine parents fear good teachers may be lost

HAILEY — An emotionally charged Blaine County School Board hearing Thursday brought forth concerned testimony from both teachers and parents that the new teachers salary schedule may discourage many good teachers from working in the district.

Conducted in the manner of a courtroom hearing, the hearing was held to consider the merits of the district's policy regarding the teachers' salary schedule.

Attorneys for the school board and for Jacklyn Thomas, a Blaine County Junior High School teacher, and Leslie Wilde, a Hemingway Elementary School teacher, presented arguments for the different positions in the matter, which officials say could well have statewide implications.

At issue is the district's salary schedule as recently interpreted by the school board. Presently, the schedule places a teacher in a pay category according to the number of years spent in the district and according to advanced education credits received after teacher certification.

This policy may seem equitable for most teachers educated in Idaho and other states where certification can be obtained at the completion of four years of college and in conjunction with the bachelor's degree.

However, teachers educated in some other states, notably California, are not at all happy with the district's salary schedule. California and other states require that a teacher must first receive a bachelor's degree and then take a fifth-year of education courses in order to be certified. This is the case with both Thomas and Wilde, who were educated and certified in California.

These teachers feel they have earned valuable advanced education credits received after their fifth year of school, but prior to actual certification which will not be financially recognized under the school district's salary schedule.

In the cases of Thomas and Wilde, both teachers have taught in Blaine County since 1970 and 1969 respectively and both have been paid for their advanced credits received after their B.A. degrees but before certification.

But this year the school board, acting on the advice of its attorney, Robert Bushnell, adopted a policy trying to eliminate salary discrimination and which put everyone on a salary schedule gauged by experience and credits after certification regardless of the extent of a teacher's education before then.

This policy negatively affects the two teachers who feel they were originally hired under the agreement that they would be paid for advanced credits received after their B.A. degrees but before certification. They were previously being paid above the point where the newly enforced salary schedule now places them, and so the school board decided to freeze their salaries where they are until the salary schedule catches up with their present salaries. This means for a period of years they will not receive yearly raises or salary increments.

But the attorneys for the two teachers, argued that the school board has a contractual obligation to pay the teachers for their advanced credits above a B.A. degree and that to freeze their salaries is in fact to reduce their salaries because they will not receive the yearly salary increments they are entitled to by contract.

Bushnell in turn stated the board's position, saying that if the salary schedule is to be adopted, then all must be treated equally by it, and since some were receiving more or less than they should have by the schedule, it became the board's duty to adjust teacher salaries to the proper point on the schedule. Thomas's and Wilde's salaries were therefore frozen, rather than immediately reduced, to bring them eventually into conformance with the schedule.

"We felt this was the fairest approach and the least dangerous approach from a legal standpoint," Bushnell stated at the hearing.

The teachers argued against this and parents ultimately act as a deterrent to attracting good teachers educated in California and other states, to the school district.

The school board will take the matter under consideration, officials said. It is empowered to change the present policy but only after negotiations with teachers.

No foul play seen in woman's death

TWIN FALLS — Police said Thursday they still haven't determined why a 39-year-old Twin Falls woman apparently committed suicide Wednesday.

But police did release additional details:

The woman, Mrs. Sylvia Eichelberger, was spotted Wednesday night driving near the College of Southern Idaho. An unidentified couple called the police station on a citizens band radio to report, "the car was acting 'suspiciously' and should be checked out."

The Eichelberger car reportedly then drove south down Blue Lakes Boulevard where a city police car pulled in behind it and pulled it over into the Red Steer drive-in restaurant parking lot.

As the officer stepped out of the police car, the Eichelberger car drove across Blue Lakes, ran up the curb and onto the grass at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, 210 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

When the officer walked across the street to the car, he found the car doors locked and Mrs. Eichelberger shot in the side of the head. A .38 caliber revolver, apparently the weapon used, was found in the car.

She died about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, shortly after being transported to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Police said they did not hear the gun fired. Nor were they sure whether the car coated out of the parking lot or was driven across the street by Mrs. Eichelberger.

Mrs. Eichelberger reportedly was divorced from her husband, Dr. W.J. Eichelberger, late last year.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said a thorough investigation indicated no foul play in the woman's death.

He said there was no possibility she had been shot prior to the time her vehicle came to rest on the church lawn, because of the nature of the wound.

Blaine aide awaits Bannock decision

HAILEY — The Blaine County prosecutor will have to wait until proceedings are completed in Bannock County before he can press charges against a man believed to have kidnaped a Ketchum police officer.

Arden Nallion, 36, Caldwell, who eluded law enforcement officers in Blaine and Bannock counties last week, was captured Tuesday by Pocatello city police.

He is wanted in Blaine County on charges of second-degree kidnapping, grand larceny, resisting an officer and assault with a deadly weapon.

Bond was set Thursday at $100,000 for Nallion in Bannock County.

Nallion was captured Tuesday night at a Pocatello hotel.

The suspect was arraigned Wednesday morning in Pocatello on two counts of robbery and three counts of second-degree kidnapping. The robbery charges were made in connection with the taking of $268 from the Grizzly Bear Pizza Parlor in Pocatello and $40 from an employee there.

Kidnaping charges were leveled against Nallion in connection with the abduction of three Grizzly Bear employees.

"Although 'Bannock County' does not have jurisdiction over charges against Nallion in Blaine County and so cannot include charges against a man from here, Blaine County Prosecutor Maurice Ellsworth said copies of Blaine's complaints and arrest warrants for Nallion have been sent to Bannock County."

The bond here, $50,000 on each of two warrants, can be set in addition to the $100,000 bond set in Bannock County, Ellsworth said.

"We have sent copies of our warrants and complaints down there so they are formally apprised that we have these charges on him here and the magistrate bond here would be set in addition to the bond down there," Ellsworth said.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — News about a nation's money supply and President Carter's reelection that he meant what he said about his energy conservation program combined to send stocks skidding during the first two hours of trading Friday. Turnover was active.

The Federal Reserve Board reported after the close Thursday that the money supply jumped $500 million in the latest reporting week. This was up from a $3 billion shrink in the supply the previous week.

Carter, in a nationally televised news conference, insisted that he would push for his conservation program to the end. He said that if the nation is importers by doubling gasoline supplies, rationing may be the next step.

With these developments, The Dow Jones industrial average was off 5.51 to 930.21, its lowest before noon EST. It dipped 6.79 points in the previous session. Declines led advances, 912 to 316, with 450 issues unchanged among the 1,886 on the tape.

Volume came to about 8,000,000 shares compared to 11,670,000 in the first two hours Thursday.

Former amateur champ takes lead in rain-shortened New Orleans tourney

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Former U.S. Amateur champion Craig Stadler birdied four of the first six holes Thursday, then let the wind and showers take care of his competitors to grab a two-stroke lead in the rain-abbreviated first round of the $175,000 New Orleans Open.

The 25-year-old Stadler, winner of only $23,000 since joining the pro tour in 1975, had a six-under-par 64, one stroke off the tournament's opening round record.

He posted his score early before an afternoon rainstorm forced suspension of play at 3:22 p.m. CST.

More than two hours later tournament officials decided to stop play altogether, but allowed the scores posted by the 81 players who had completed play to stand.

The rest of the field will complete their rounds Friday and the second round will not be played until Saturday. The final 36 holes will be played Sunday.

PGA officials said they hoped that by noon Friday the waterlogged Lakewood Country Club course would be able to dry out from the torrential rains that flooded several southern Louisiana towns.

Stadler's 66 gave him a two-stroke lead over Masters champion Tom Watson and four rookie Keith Fergus. Another shot back at 69 was a group of five players, including Ben Crenshaw, who dropped a birdie putt on the final hole shortly before the rains hit. Joining Crenshaw at 69 were Steve Melnyk, Stan Lee, Phil Hancock and Gordon Waldespuhl, who made the tournament field by qualifying on Monday.

Among those who were left on the course when the showers struck were six golfers at three under par. They were Don January, Dave Marr, Gary Wintz, Grier Jones, Jim Colbert and Vincente Fernandez.

Stadler appeared to have a promising pro career ahead of him after a fine amateur showing, but his three years on the tour have been less than fruitful.

On Thursday, however, he birdied the second, fourth, fifth and sixth holes and then played steady golf through a light, intermittent drizzle. "This is the first time in a long time I've had a good time," said Stadler. "Last year I tried to score better than I could play and I overextended too much."

Watson, who suffered a letdown last week following his emotional Masters victory and finished well back in the pack at the Tournament of Champions, said he had trouble with his irons all day.

"My legs were very dead today," said Watson, the tour's leading money winner this year. "I was using too much shoulders; I didn't play very well. I feel pretty tired and mentally."

Fergus, who led qualifying at the PGA school last winter, bogeyed the first hole. "After that first hole I just had to forget about it," said Fergus. "You just have to get it and keep going. Despite the rain the greens were perfect."

Red Sox put on market

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox, the sole property of the late Thomas A. Yawkey for 43 years, are up for sale by the trust that now runs the ball club, it was announced Thursday.

General Manager Dick O'Connell read a statement from Mrs. Yawkey, who has headed the trust since her husband's death last July, that said in part:

"Consideration will be given to offers to buy the Red Sox. Offers are not being sought; nor will they be sought. A time limit is not in mind; nor will one be fixed."

The announcement came minutes after the Red Sox had dropped an 8-0 decision to the Detroit Tigers.

O'Connell said no serious offer had been received although several parties have inquired into purchase of the Red Sox over the past year.

"As far as any serious offers being made, I would say no," said O'Connell, who denied that he would be interested in joining a group to purchase the club. "We've had inquiries from certain people but these people have never seen our books. They don't know anything about the income or the expenditures of this club."

Support pledged for Olympic site

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — Pledging his father's total support for the games, Chip Carter Thursday broke the first ground for the 1980 Winter Olympics in this tiny Adirondack Mountain village.

Carter, at the controls of a backhoe, ripped up a large chunk of soil on the site of a speed-skating rink for the games.

"We offer you all the support you desire," the President's son said. He pledged to "do everything you want me to do to help you achieve your goal."

Helen Carey, 17-year-old daughter of Gov. Hugh Carey, also spoke briefly at the ceremonies marking the return of the Olympic competition to the village which was host to the 1932 games.

A half dozen high school bands, hundreds of local residents and school children, politicians and local Olympic leaders circled Carter as the machine ripped up the earth.

Ronald MacKenzie, local Olympic committee president, told the crowd the construction would "provide the United States the finest winter sports training facilities in the world and will bring a brighter economic future to this region."

Carey, who had a speaking engagement in Ireland, sent prepared remarks pledging "to do everything possible to help in the preparation for the Olympic games."

The construction means more to the tiny village than a return to the glory of 1932, however, for the depressed region will benefit greatly from the estimated 450 jobs the Olympic construction will provide at its peak.

Bids already have been let for about $2 million of the $58 million in federally funded construction and officials expect the first actual work to begin by May 1. Other bids will be let within a month, they said.

Rocket tip Bullets 124-118 in overtime

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rudy Tomjanovich, Mike Newlin and Calvin Murphy each connected on long-range jumpers in overtime Thursday night to help the Houston Rockets defeat the Washington Bullets 124-118 and even their best of seven NBA quarter-final playoff series at one game apiece.

Elvin Hayes' six points led the Bullets to a furious comeback in the final four minutes which earned them a 108-108 tie at the end of regulation.

With five seconds left in regulation, Tom Henderson missed a difficult driving layup which would have sent the Bullets home for the next two games in the series with a two-game lead.

The Rockets, who trailed by as much as 12 points in the first half, played near flawless offensive basketball in the fourth quarter as Moses Malone scored 12 points and swept the defensive boards. But Washington's Phil Chenier scored 18 of his 27 points to keep the Bullets close until Hayes and Mitch Kupchak closed the margin in the final minute.

Malone led Houston scorers with 31 points, rookie guard John Lucas scored 21 and Tomjanovich added 20. Kupchak, who scored 22 points in the Bullets' 111-101 win in Houston Tuesday, had another strong game coming off the bench with 21 points. His two free throws with 35 seconds remaining in regulation tied the game.

Houston then allowed most of that time to waste away before Murphy drove the lane. He was called for an offensive charge and the Bullets had the ball and a chance to win with nine seconds remaining. Henderson took a pass and shook free on the left baseline. But his underhanded layup fell short and a jump ball was called between Kupchak and Dwight Jones.

Jones tipped the ball but Hayes and Henderson fumbled it out of bounds. Houston got a shot with two seconds left, but Newlin's long arching hook bounced off the rim.

In overtime Newlin's basket broke Houston out on top, but the Bullets tied it at 114-114 on Wes Unseld's drive.

Newlin's 25-footer gave Houston the lead for good at 116-114 and in the final minute, Murphy scored twice — once on a 20-footer.

Seattle nixes Tarkanian talks

SEATTLE (UPI) — Seattle SuperSonics owner Sam Schulman Thursday denied published reports that his club is conducting contact negotiations with Jerry Tarkanian or his agent.

In a conversation with the Seattle Times from his Palm Springs, Calif., vacation home, Schulman admitted talking with the University of Nevada-Las Vegas coach, but he also said he has made an offer to Seattle Coach and General Manager Bill Russell which would allow him to remain with the Sonics.

Tarkanian was quoted in Las Vegas and Long Beach, Calif., newspapers as saying he met with Schulman and Sonics Executive Vice President Zoltie Volchok last Tuesday.

"We just had exploratory conversations," Tarkanian was quoted.

The UNLV coach, whose team is under investigation by the NCAA, also reportedly said his friend and agent, Vic Weiss, told him of money talks with Seattle.

"The money is about twice what the Lakers talked about," Tarkanian said in reference to an offer from the Los Angeles franchise that he turned down last year.

"The Schulman hasn't said me that," Tarkanian continued. "That's what Vic told me. Their position is much stronger financially than the Lakers. I'm not saying how much, just more."

Schulman called reports of any money talks "absolutely untrue."

"The reality situation," he added, "I haven't talked to anyone associated with Tarkanian and I haven't spoken to Tarkanian but once in my life. That is a definite, unequivocal fact."

Schulman said that because there is still a year remaining on Russell's contract, "no way in the world I would talk with anyone about coaching."

He said such action would be unethical and would "put me in a poor bargaining position" with Russell.

The Sonics owner, unhappy with Russell's dual capacity and the sliding fortunes of the team, said he talked with Russell this week and presented him with an "alternative situation in which he conceivably could remain."

"There's options involved," he added. "I'm just waiting to hear from Bill and his attorneys."

Volchok said Schulman and Russell are "discussing a settlement now. Nothing can be done until that's resolved."

Boxing 'caretakers' put sport in gutter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boxing is back in the gutter today, kicked, stomped on and left bleeding by the very individuals who promised to better it and now are piously putting their hands out in a ludicrous attempt to prove they are clean.

Don King, who was given $1.5 million by ABC-TV to find the best fighters in the country and employ them in what would be called the U.S. Boxing Championships, stoutly insists he's innocent of any wrong doing.

"World Ratings" in Ring Magazine were used by King and then proven to have doctored. ABC-TV disclaims any knowledge of what was going on, and avoidance of its good faith, has suspended King's tournament and hired Michael Armatrong, former chief counsel of the Knapp Commission, to investigate the mess. Everybody's innocent, nobody's to blame. The evidence strongly suggests otherwise, however.

For example: Fact: Of the eight heavyweights who participated in King's tournament, seven of them — Larry Holmes, Johnny Bowdreaux, Leroy Jones, Stan Ward, Dino Dennis, Kevin Isaacs and Scott LeDoux — were either managed or advised by King or members of his staff. Fact: Braverman and Flood called themselves "boxing agents" for King, but acted as matchmakers and managers at the same time, a practice specifically prohibited in every able commission charter in this country.

As Dennis' manager, Braverman had him fight LeDoux, for whom he served as "boxing agent." Dennis won the decision and Braverman then booked LeDoux against Foreman. Fact: Braverman and Flood called themselves "boxing agents" for King, but acted as matchmakers and managers at the same time, a practice specifically prohibited in every able commission charter in this country.

MAGIC VALLEY — The Fish and Game Commission will meet May 4 and 5 to make final decisions on the 1977 big game and upland bird hunting seasons, and the fourth district may not be represented at that meeting.

Governor John Evans has not yet chosen a successor to former fourth district commissioner Jack Hemminger, whose term expires April 1, and according to Evans' press secretary Steve Leroy, Evans is not yet ready to make his decision.

Leroy said Wednesday the governor hopes to make the appointment "as quickly as possible", but first wants to meet with the candidates personally to find out their philosophies concerning fish and game issues before making his selection.

Leroy said Evans met with some of the candidates when he was in the Magic Valley earlier this week, but as of Wednesday many of the leading candidates for the position had not been contacted by the governor.

While Evans ponders the situation, the crucial July 4-5 meeting approaches rapidly.

At that meeting the Fish and Game Commission will set closing dates for big game seasons and opening dates for upland game bird seasons and will determine the number of permits which will be issued in controlled hunts.

"We definitely need a commissioner at the May 4 and 5 meeting," commented Milton Davidson, Rupert, president of the Fourth District Wildlife Federation.

"We feel that the governor has made a mistake in so much as we should have had a commissioner from the fourth district at the Burley and Twin Falls meetings," Davidson added. Those meetings were held to collect public opinion from Magic Valley sportsmen concerning the upcoming hunting seasons and the Fish and Game Department's long-term management plans for wildlife in the state.

Davidson felt the fourth district commissioner should have been present at the meetings because "our regional (F&G) office hears it (public opinion) and writes it down, but it hasn't got the impact of hearing it personally as far as the commissioner goes."

Marsipat Everheart, Jerome, who has received the support of the Fourth District Wildlife Federation for the post, observed that whoever is appointed commissioner should have some time prior to the May 4 & 5 meeting to familiarize himself with the available information necessary to making knowledgeable decisions.

Hockey trio has new career

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —

Someday the story of how three young, aspiring hockey players, who also happen to be very funny guys, became Hollywood comedians might make a better movie than the film that gave them their start.

But that depends on whether Dave Hanson and Jeff and Steve Carlson decide to follow through on the offers they have received since their hilarious film debut in Paul Newman's latest movie, "Slap Shot."

In "Slap Shot," they played immature, nearsighted brothers who turned around a losing minor league hockey team with their violent play.

Now, the three said, they have been offered seven-year contracts from Universal, the film studio that gave them their break in "Slap Shot" last year, when they were playing minor league hockey in Johnstown, Pa.

According to Steve Carlson, who broke into the world's hockey galleries, purses, and media coverage continue to grow, Laura Baugh sees the day the tour will reach parity with the men's.

"We're growing at a rate much faster than they are now," said the pretty, 21-year-old, whose earnings through commercials, modeling and product endorsements make her one of the biggest moneymakers among professional "lady golfers."

"How much higher can they go?" Baugh recalled Friday the enormous growth in the women's tour she has seen in her three and a half years as a pro.

The total purse on the tour this year is $3 million, compared to $2.4 million in 1976 and $1.2 million in 1975. In addition, network television coverage this year includes five tournaments, compared to two last year. The galleries, according to LPGA spokesman Jeff Adams, "grows substantially" each year.

Baugh said she thinks there is sufficient interest to make the tour thrive alongside the men's.

"A man who is a high handicapper can come out here and identify with us much more than with the men pros," she said.

Baugh was among a field of 87 top professionals and three amateurs entered in Friday's first round of the $50,000 American Defender Classic.

While one of the top name players on the tour, Baugh has never won a tournament although her career earnings amount to $106,124.

In six tournaments this year, she has ended up in the top 10 twice. She had 13 top 10 finishes in 1974, and her best finish last year was a tie for fourth in the Jordan Classic.

It is a small frustration for Baugh her money earnings off the course by far outweigh her earnings on the tour. Last year she took in $150,000, but only $29,000 in official money.

"There's been some pressure put on me to win," she said. "But, I want to win for myself."

The field for this year's American Defender includes this year's leading money winner Sandra Palmer, as well as Kathy Whitworth, Jan Stephenson, Judy Rankin, Hollis Stacy, and three-time champion Carol Mann, and defending champion Sue Roberts.

The $100,000 tournament will be played over the 6,123-yard Forest Ridge Country club course.

Putting tuneup
YOUNG Laura Baugh, who probably earned more off the course through commercials, modeling and product endorsements than the $29,000 she earned on the tour in 1976, balances her ball on the end of her putter as she leaves the putting green after practicing for the American Defender golf classic. Baugh says she believes the women's tour is rapidly approaching par with the men's. (UPI)

Baugh expects LPGA growth to reach parity with men soon

BALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — As the LPGA's galleries, purses, and media coverage continue to grow, Laura Baugh sees the day the tour will reach parity with the men's. "We're growing at a rate much faster than they are now," said the pretty, 21-year-old, whose earnings through commercials, modeling and product endorsements make her one of the biggest moneymakers among professional "lady golfers."

"How much higher can they go?" Baugh recalled Friday the enormous growth in the women's tour she has seen in her three and a half years as a pro. The total purse on the tour this year is $3 million, compared to $2.4 million in 1976 and $1.2 million in 1975. In addition, network television coverage this year includes five tournaments, compared to two last year. The galleries, according to LPGA spokesman Jeff Adams, "grows substantially" each year.

Baugh said she thinks there is sufficient interest to make the tour thrive alongside the men's.

"A man who is a high handicapper can come out here and identify with us much more than with the men pros," she said.

Baugh was among a field of 87 top professionals and three amateurs entered in Friday's first round of the $50,000 American Defender Classic.

While one of the top name players on the tour, Baugh has never won a tournament although her career earnings amount to $106,124.

In six tournaments this year, she has ended up in the top 10 twice. She had 13 top 10 finishes in 1974, and her best finish last year was a tie for fourth in the Jordan Classic.

It is a small frustration for Baugh her money earnings off the course by far outweigh her earnings on the tour. Last year she took in $150,000, but only $29,000 in official money.

"There's been some pressure put on me to win," she said. "But, I want to win for myself."

Ring slur didn't hurt Roone Arledge

NEW YORK (UPI) — The president of ABC Television Thursday dismissed as "totally without foundation" reports the U.S. Boxing Championships scandals have knocked out plans to promote the head of ABC Sports to a more comprehensive news job.

Frederick S. Pierce, president of ABC Television, denied "recent irresponsible speculation by the press" the scandal involving kickbacks and falsified boxing records in the televised tournament had forced the network to at least delay rumored plans to promote Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, to a newly created presidency of current affairs. The job would include sports, news and documentaries.

The new post for Arledge was rumored before the scandals broke. The betting in the television industry is the network will announce it soon.

Mittlieder slates student net clinic

TWIN FALLS — A free tennis clinic will be held Saturday at the CSL gym for junior high and high school students.

Separate sessions are scheduled for junior high and high school students. The junior high class will run from 10 a.m. to noon, and the high school class will run from 1-3 p.m.

Jan Mittlieder, Twin Falls Tennis Association clinic director, will conduct the clinic. She will be assisted by several of the Magic Valley's top tennis players.

Students can sign up at their school or by calling 734-6322.

McCarthy has time for baseball talk

TONAWANDA, N.Y. (UPI) — He sits in a chair in the corner of a sitting room, looking old but spry. With the ever-present cigar in one hand, he greets visitors with a smile and a handshake.

Life is quiet now for Marse Joe McCarthy, the Hall of Fame manager who piloted the Chicago Cubs, New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox from 1925 to 1959. He celebrated his 80th birthday Thursday on a spread of land he calls the "Yankee Farm" in the Town of Tonawanda, just north of Buffalo.

The baseball mind is still there, although the body is a little weaker now. He says his memory is going, but the baseball stories still abound.

"There was a story going around that I didn't like pipe smokers," McCarthy recalls. "Someone asked me 'don't you like pipe smokers, Joe?' And I said, no, they are too contented and I don't like contented halflayers."

"Well," McCarthy added, "one of my third-basemen was a pipe smoker and somebody would say, 'here comes Joe' and the guy would dose the pipe. But it was all in fun."

McCarthy does a lot of reading and still watches baseball on television. He is cared for by another couple that lives with him on the "Yankee Farm." His wife, Elizabeth, died in 1971 at the age of 64.

"They all like to hit, don't they," McCarthy says of the modern-day baseball players. "With those artificial lifelines, the ball sure travels, a lot faster."

McCarthy receives a lot of mail, especially when his birthday nears. He needed his eyeglasses to read all the birthday cards.

"I got a lot of cards," he says as he picks up a stack which were lying on his reading table. "I get cards from all over the country—from every state in the union."

"Kids write and ask me for my autograph and I send them these Hall of Fame postcards that I autograph for them," he adds.

"Joseph Vincent McCarthy," one of the postcards read. "Outstanding manager who never played in the major leagues. The major-league teams managed by him during 24 years never finished out of the first division." Worn pennants, Chicago, N.L., 1929; New York, A.L., 1932-67; 89-41-

2-3. Won seven World-Championships with New York Yankees — four of them, consecutively, 1936-7-8-9."

The peppy Irishman then turns the conversation to the question which visitors still ask him the most.

"They always ask me about the big salaries in baseball," he says sharply. "Well, I was in the game for 20 years before I got a big salary. I guess they don't play any of these games for the incentive anymore."

Then it was time for another story, Joe McCarthy style.

"I was in a hotel lobby in Cooperstown years ago and a young kid had a camera and was taking pictures of everyone," McCarthy said as he kidded with a photographer who was photographing him.

"He yelled at me and pointed that he wanted my picture." "But I gave the kid a hard time and asked him 'what the hell do you want?' McCarthy said laughing. "The kid thought that because he had a camera, he was important."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An important bigwig is aware of your capabilities and talents now and is willing to extend you the help you need to be successful. Add to your present vitality and physical well-being by taking necessary health treatments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 18) You have a pet project that needs backing so approach a higher-up for advice. A tauntful attitude toward friends creates more goodwill.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A secret admirer can show you the way to add to present abundance, but you must trust his judgment, go along with ideas. Try to understand a loved one more and get better results right now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find a better method for gaining personal aims and get quick and proper results. Social affairs and lovemaking are stressed at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more efficient and command a bigger income through honest effort. Buy a gift for a loved one and gain added affection you desire.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Create an atmosphere where you can show a loved one your finest talents. Think along logical lines.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you are to maintain harmony at home be sure to take care of matters expected of you. Avoid an acquaintance with the jealous streak.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 18) Do what you can to improve your appearance and you make fine headway in dealing with others. You put over a big business deal with ease.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A family tie is able to help you add appreciably to present income. Invite persons of means to your home and get good results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be inclined to be a bookworm and very eager to learn about everything possible. Send to college for best results. The latter part of life will be a philosophical one, a contented one with family and friends.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

Consider fans of football, basketball, hockey and baseball. Which of these tends to spend the most on food and drink at the games? If you say baseball, you've got it right. Those kill-the-impire onlookers have been pleased for years at the low-keyed crowd among sports spectators. But cheap there are not. Oddly, it is the football fans who spend the least, yet they're generally considered to be a little better off financially than any of the others. As for hockey fans, I don't want to talk about them. They stuff popcorn in Coke bottles, and throw wads of wet chewing gum, and ring cowbells in your ear.

A study of ex-convicts shows that the enormous majority of them change their names as many as a dozen times as they move from place to place.

Am. advised it's against the law in California to peel an orange in a hotel room.

WALL STREET

Q. How did New York City's Wall Street get its name? A. Seventeenth century settlers built a wooden fence across that corner of Manhattan to hold in the livestock and block out the Indians. It marked the northern boundary of New Amsterdam. Eventually, it was bulwarked by a mud wall. Wall Street started out as the lane that ran parallel to that wall.

Q. How big is a walrus at birth? A. About four feet long, weighing from 100 to 200 pounds. Even though it can swim immediately, it doesn't usually go into the water alone until it's about a year old.

Q. How many eyes in a scallop? A. Between 30 and 40.

HAIR

A portion of the men worldwide always have worn mustaches, beards and long hair, but it was only about six years ago that the portion jumped to a big majority. In the summer of 1970, Rutgers University researchers determined that 21 per cent of the American men between 16 and 45 wore "aspects of long hair." In 1971, they learned that 78 per cent of the men could be so described. Sir, did you get into the act before or after the big hair boom of 1971?

Among grownup grizzly bears, there are more females than males. But among grizzly bear cubs, there are twice as many males as females. So what kills off all those little male bears? Strug.

No other country makes as much wine as does Italy. Mosquito repellent for some mysterious reason seems to retain its effectiveness longer on women than on men.
