Eye on supply

DAIRYMAN Roland Bingham, Twin Falls, milks one of his herd of cows. The milk will be sold at his store. A petition by three large dairies seeks to restrict sale of raw milk in grocery stores and restaurants, which could cut into his business in the future.

Blast, fire cut Saudi oil

RIYADH—Saudi—Arabia—(UPI)—Oil freighters Thursday contained a raging blaze in one of the world's biggest oil fields. Saudi Arabia stopped pumping from the Abqaiq field, choking off two-thirds of its oil flow to the world's industry.

An explosion Wednesday touched off the fire at a pumping facility in the Abqaiq field; about 20 miles north of Riyadh and 80 miles southeast of the Persian Gulf pipeline terminals at Ras Tanura, killing one person and injuring 25 others.

An official of the Arabian-American Oil Company (Aramco) said the fire was "still going, but is under control". However, he declined comment on reports from U.S. Embassy sources that an oil "tank farm" nearby was threatened by the blaze.

It was not known what caused the fire, but there was no evidence of sabotage despite suggestions by some Japanese oil industry sources of the possibility.

Abqaiq is the second largest onshore field in Saudi Arabia. It is dwarfed only by the late-of-black-oil field, the Ghawar, the south of the nearby Ghawar field—generally believed to be not only Saudi Arabia's, but also the world's largest oilfield.

Closure of the pipeline, which carries oil from both Abqaiq and Ghawar to the terminals at Ras Tanura and the great tankers, which ferry petroleum to the world's industry, cut off up to 6 million barrels of oil a day.

Aramco officials were generally tight-lipped about the fire and neither the official Saudi News Agency nor Riyadh Radio made any mention of it.

Although there was no indication how long the oil flow would be choked off, the prospect of such a dramatic setback in the availability of Saudi oil was widely expected to have a major impact on the world's economy, especially in Japan, a nation with the third largest industrial economy in the world and virtually all of its own oil.

Thirty per cent of its oil imports come from Saudi Arabia. The news sent the Tokyo stock market tumbling and triggered a sharp rise in the dollar against the Japanese Yen.

In 1976 Saudi production averaged 8.34 million barrels a day, with the lion's share coming from Ghawar and Abqaiq.

Current production is estimated at about 10 million barrels and the Saudis have set a target of 11.6 million barrels a day by the end of 1977.

The drive to boost output stems from the price war Saudi Arabia is locked in together with the United Arab Emirates against the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The Saudis move to hold prices down by increasing the availability of lower-priced fuel has created a two-tier worldwide oil-price system and undermined the unity of the powerful OPEC oil cartel.

Raw milk producers facing market loss

By KEN HODGE
Times News writer

BUHL — Dairyman Tom Stoker makes his living by packaging and selling unpasteurized milk from his dairy northeast of Buhl.

To sell milk to area stores, Stoker follows guidelines set by the Idaho Board of Health. But on May 20 the health board may cut out three-fourths of Stoker's sales by banning the distribution of raw milk to grocery stores and restaurants.

Three large Idaho and Utah milk packaging companies are pressing for a change in health regulations concerning the sale of raw milk. Since 1966, raw milk has been sold under the Idaho Grade A milk regulations adopted by the state.

The big dairies think raw milk poses a health hazard. Western General Dairies, Associated Dairies and Western Cold Dairies are asking the state to outlaw the retail sale of unpasteurized milk.

Stoker doesn't think that's fair. "Not only do we think our product is safe, but also we feel it is better than cooked milk," Stoker says. "Raw foods are considered to be better than cooked because certain nutrients are lost in the cooking process."

Stoker and other small dairymen in Idaho have formed an association of raw milk producers to defend themselves against a recent petition asking for an amendment to Idaho's Grade A pasteurized milk regulations.

"We have several approaches we are still working on," Larry C. Walker, Welser attorney representing the raw milk producers, says. "We don't find any statistics on disease related to certified raw milk."

"As to the raw milk sold in Idaho, the law requires the cows be tested annually and also before they come into the dairy herd," Walker explains. "The law requires the milk itself to be tested four times a year."

Walker says he thinks the real intent of the larger dairies is to put the small producer out of business.

"If the issue at hand were because of a scare or threat to public health, they could have sought to discontinue the sale of raw milk totally in all aspects," Walker claims.

"That shows that their intent is really nothing more than an effort to do away with the competition that the raw milk people are presenting to them," Walker adds.

Pat Tate, general manager of Associated Dairies in Boise, disagrees. "It's been illegal to sell raw milk in grocery stores for years," Tate asserted. "There's a health danger with raw milk."

Tate said the health danger in the sale of raw milk often falls on the entire dairy industry and hurts the sales of processed milk producers.

"We feel that the raw milk should be picked up at the farm where it's produced," Tate says. "Then the people can see where it comes from."

He said that if people know raw milk can transmit disease, they might think that pasteurized milk can, too.

"When their (raw) milk sits in the dairy case next to ours, I think the customers might think it has had the same treatment ours has," Tate adds. "We're not trying to squeeze out their business, we're just asking that they be regulated."

Walker, however, says there are sufficient regulations on the sale of raw milk already.

"The production of raw milk has greatly increased in recent years," he says. "It has been of very high quality."

He said incidents of disease transmission related to raw milk in the nation have been practically non-existent in recent years.

US won't abandon Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today assured congressional leaders he is not abandoning Israel despite the administration's policy to restrain overseas transfer of U.S. arms and weapons technology.

At an hour-long White House meeting, he also reported to the lawmakers on his recent summit trip to Europe.

After the meeting involving Speaker Thomas O'Neill and members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the White House said Carter "discussed how it could be made clear that our policy will not affect our historic relationship with Israel and our support for its security."

The committee is considering a controversial amendment that would commit the United States to give Israel arms technology beyond that proposed by Carter.

Illegal FBI acts 'known'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Central Intelligence Agency counterintelligence chief James Angleton claims that Justice Department officials knew of and condoned the FBI's use of illegal mail openings, wiretappings and other techniques to track down radical fugitives in the early 1970s.

Angleton asserted Wednesday that he personally briefed former Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert Hoover in the summer of 1970 on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's activities. Angleton also had discussions with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell about a questionable domestic CIA mail-opening operation Mardian headed.

"The department was condoning the (FBI) and all these matters were fully exposed in White House meetings," Angleton told a group of reporters. Angleton is a critic of the recent indictment of former FBI official accused of supervising illegal mail openings and wiretappings in pursuit of the radicals.

"There's no question that Mardian was aware, absolutely aware," Angleton declared, that the FBI was using illegal investigative techniques in its effort to apprehend President Anwar Sadat called for sending U.S. and Soviet troops into the area to impose a cease-fire. Nixon reportedly called the idea "sheer madness" at the time.

Mardian, now on private business in Phoenix, Ariz., denied through his secretary Wednesday that he ever received briefings about FBI activities from Angleton.

Hoopla not for Lindbergh

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The late Charles A. Lindbergh might have appreciated the observances of the 50th anniversary of his transatlantic flight, but he wouldn't have taken part in all the hoopla, his widow said Wednesday.

Anne Morrow Lindbergh, widow of the aviator hero, told reporters Wednesday she appreciates the Lindbergh observances planned later this month in various parts of the country. But she doubted whether the "Lone Eagle" would have been part of the celebration had he lived to see it.

"I think he would not be celebrating the past, but where the past has led us," she said. "His accomplishment moved aviation forward to space flights and astronauts."

Mrs. Lindbergh was asked if she thought her husband would have attended the anniversary festivities this year.

"I feel pretty sure he wouldn't," she said. "He didn't look back at past accomplishments. He believed in the future. He would probably be out doing something for the whites or threatened species (rather than participating in ceremonies)."

ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH
... filer looked ahead

Lindbergh, who lived in seclusion in Hawaii in the years prior to his death in 1974, completed his New York-to-Paris flight in the "Spirit of St. Louis" on May 20, 1927.

Mrs. Lindbergh said despite the problems that came with fame, she did not think her husband regretted having made the pioneering flight.

"It cost him something," she said. "It cost him a lot in privacy. But these things balance." Mrs. Lindbergh was in St. Louis to dedicate the Missouri Historical Society's Lindbergh gallery in the Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park.

"I think of all the places, I wanted to come here," Mrs. Lindbergh said. "My husband felt this city was his home."

"Before he was known, lots of people backed him here. They had faith in him." Lindbergh had named his plane after the city because of the financial support he received from local businessmen.

Second Nixon interview on

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon is expected to describe tonight a proposal to end the 1973 Middle East war in the second of his series of televised interviews.

The proposal by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat called for sending U.S. and Soviet troops into the area to impose a cease-fire. Nixon reportedly called the idea "sheer madness" at the time.

The interview with David Frost will be carried over Channel 11 from Twin Falls between 8:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

The subject is expected to be foreign policy and Nixon's relations with then Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

According to preliminary reports about tonight's interview, Nixon will claim he wanted the Soviets not to carry out their part of the Sadat proposal. And to back up the warning, he ordered the much-criticized global alert of U.S. forces.

Repay subsidy, FEC orders Shapp

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal election commission today ordered Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp to repay the entire $299,066 he received in federal subsidies for his 1976 presidential campaign.

The FEC ruled the Shapp campaign submitted improper contributions from five states and that the millionaire governor never really qualified for federal matching funds in his abortive bid for the Democratic nomination.

But the six-member bipartisan FEC refused to say whether legal action would be taken against Shapp or any of his staff. It said the investigation will continue.

Many of the Shapp contributions listed from the five states involved Nevada, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina and Texas — never actually came from these contributors, the FEC charged.

The FEC said it had entered into agreements with 16 people involved in the case. The agreements are, in effect, an admission by the 16 that their contributions to the Shapp campaign were improper.

"I find this case shocking," said Thomas Harris, who minutes earlier had been elected the new chairman of the FEC.

"What distresses me is the rather casual and cavalier manner in which these people entered into this scheme to extract a large amount of money from the federal treasury."

The commission voted 5 to 0 to direct Shapp to pay the U.S. Treasury $299,066. Commissioner Joan Alkens of Pennsylvania abstained.

Election commission investigators presented the evidence to a special FEC meeting today and the commission quickly ruled on it.

The investigators revealed what they called a coordinated pattern of illegal campaign contributions in each of the five states.

The most frequent pattern was for a business executive to give company funds to several employees who in turn gave the money to the campaign.

It is illegal for a corporation to donate to a political campaign. To qualify for federal funds, Shapp had to raise $5,000 — and he fell below that level in those states when the questionable contributions were subtracted.

The FEC investigation so far has only detailed the questionable contributions and today's meeting did not deal with the role of any Shapp campaign workers.

"This action is only a request for repayment of the money involved and it is not an admission of guilt," said William G. Oldaker, general counsel for the FEC.

But Oldaker noted that under the law, "the candidate is responsible" for the legality of the contributions he submits in seeking to qualify for federal funds.

Judge retires

CHIEF JUDGE of the Tenth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, David H. Lewis, Salt Lake City, announced Wednesday he will retire as soon as President Carter can name a replacement. Lewis has served 21 years as a federal circuit judge, the past seven as chief judge. (UPI)

Fine, term imposed

BOISE (UPI) — A Rupert businessman was sentenced to one year in jail and a $300 fine on tax charges, the U.S. attorney's office said Tuesday.

Irene H. Santos was convicted April 6 after a two-day trial. Of failure to deposit trust fund taxes withheld from salaries of employees of S and S Trucking, a firm owned by Mrs. Santos and her husband.

The one-year jail sentence was suspended and Mrs. Santos was placed on probation for one year.

Pay increase sought

PAYETTE, Idaho (UPI) — Payette teachers are asking for a 10 per cent pay increase next year as well as written policies on several issues, including staff evaluation.

Their proposal would boost the base pay for a first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree to $9,428 a year from $8,571. It would hike the top pay for a teacher with 12 years' experience, a master's degree and 15 credits, to $13,113 from $11,921.

Pocatello layoff set

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Pocatello's Bucyrus-Erie plant will lay off 65 employees, effective May 23.

Plant manager Chuck Berg said the layoff, caused by Congressional inaction, will affect both salaried and hourly paid workers.

Berg said several customers have deferred mining projects which has cut down on the plant's production. The plant will be able to meet production for the next 12-15 months despite the layoff.

Satellites aloft

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Two "Triple-T" satellites, equipped with sophisticated anti-jamming equipment were launched today as part of a program to rebuild the U.S. military's global communications network.

The satellites roared into space at 8:27 a.m. EDT atop an Atlas Titan rocket. Minutes after the launch, an Air Force spokesman said that "everything seems to be going perfectly."

The $68 million satellites, equipped with devices that will protect military communications from jamming or pseudopropaganda, will be placed in orbit over the Atlantic and Pacific oceans later today. If all goes well, they will become operational early this summer.

Friends may call at Payne Chapel Sunday evening from 6 to 8 and prior to services Monday.

N. Gem aid asked

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans asked the U.S. Agriculture Department Wednesday to designate seven more counties emergency drought impact areas and that associated aid programs be made available.

Earlier, the department designated the other 37 counties in the state as emergency drought impact areas.

"The lack of winter moisture continues to impact Idaho's industry and communities," Evans said, in a telegram to the chairman of the inter-agency drought-emergency coordinating committee. "Our assessment indicates that all counties in the state will require assistance through the coordinating committee."

He asked the department to extend the emergency designation to Benewah, Bonner, Boundary, Clearwater, Idaho, Latah and Shoshone counties. All are in northern Idaho.

Gunman takes own life

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — A lone gunman who kept Bonneville County sheriff's officers at bay all day Wednesday apparently shot and killed himself about 11:30 p.m. that night.

When Sheriff Blaine Skinner heard a gunshot about 11:30 p.m. he ordered tear gas fired into the trailer before deputies entered to find Weaver the victim of an apparent suicide.

News of record

Twin Falls City Police
THEFT — Dave Waldon, 186 Van Buren, Twin Falls, told city police someone broke into a refrigerator truck trailer recently and took a refrigerator unit valued at $650. Waldon said the unit was owned by K and D Sales Inc., Boise, and was parked at 2080 Fourth Ave. E. at the time of the theft. He said the trailer had been used April 29 and he had not checked it again until Tuesday.

Rosary devotions will be recited at 8 tonight at the Thompson-Sears Funeral Chapel, Gooding. Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church by Father James Shinnick. Burial will be in the Elmwood Cemetery.

Idahoans' release sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several Idahoans are being held without charge in foreign jails, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Wednesday and he has offered legislation to seek their early release.

Church said the measure was adopted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as an amendment to the pending 1977 Foreign Relations Authorization Act.

The legislation expresses the "sense of the Senate that the Secretary of State shall make every effort to seek the early release of American citizens unjustifiably held in foreign jails and that he shall direct the appropriate consular officers to redouble their efforts for the protection and welfare of imprisoned American citizens abroad."

The amendment would require the Secretary of State to make an annual accounting to the committee on the number of Americans in foreign jails, the charges against them and what steps have been taken to assist them.

Church said scores of American citizens are being held without charge or evidence that would be acceptable in American courts.

"Several Idahoans are being held without charge in jails in Mexico and Latin America," Church said.

Comedian indicted

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Comedian George Kirby, indicted on charges of trying to sell more than one pound of Mexican heroin to an undercover agent — was free on $10,000 bond today pending a court appearance.

Kirby, arrested April 29 with eight other persons in a narcotics raid which police seized more than $500,000 in illegal drugs, was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday on charges of distributing heroin and aiding and abetting distribution.

Mary Clay, 42, who also went by the alias "Mary Christmas," was named on the same charges.

Police raided four separate locations in Las Vegas on April 29 and confiscated drugs, including heroin, cocaine and marijuana, estimated to have a street value of $500,000.

NATO turns to details

LONDON (UPI) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which ended its two-day council session with an endorsement of President Carter's proposals to streamline the alliance, turns next week to a more detailed examination of the measures. Carter urged NATO to adopt both short- and long-term plans to improve cooperation and efficiency. He offered the possibility of a "two-way street" in arms development, manufacture and procurement.

and suggested the 15 member nations jointly conduct a review of their relations with the Soviet bloc. All these suggestions were accepted by the NATO leaders at their closing session Wednesday. An examination of measures to strengthen the alliance while at the same time trimming down its fat will begin in Brussels next week at a two-day meeting of NATO defense ministers. Carter said he has instructed

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown to start looking into possibilities of obtaining European military equipment when advantageous to correct an arms sales trade imbalance that runs 10-to-one in America's favor. Brown will be at the Brussels meeting with detailed proposals on improving NATO capabilities — both over the coming year and over the next 10 or 15 years. A long-range plan was considered desirable because of the long lead time needed to get modern weapons from the drawing board to military units, and the need to make budget provisions long in advance. It also was aimed at saving money and increasing efficiency by cutting waste and overlapping. Diplomatic sources said the short-range plan would be aimed primarily at immediately increasing European stocks of such items as artillery shells, envoys posted in Africa. (UPI) President Carter map out the administration's new policy on the continent. He was scheduled to complete those talks in the luxurious Hotel Pivoire today, and then fly Friday to Accra, Ghana, on his way to Lisbon, Portugal where he will meet Vice President Walter Mondale this weekend.

Bonn soft-pedaling

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt apparently has begun to soft-pedal on West Germany's nuclear program in response to objections raised by President Carter. In a move that could meet Carter's objections halfway, the government Wednesday decided to "freeze" new funding for fast breeder reactors that use plutonium — an integral part of atomic bombs. The decision to freeze $66 million appropriated for continued development of fast breeders was disclosed on Schmidt's return from the London economic summit. During the summit, Carter and Schmidt reportedly mended their fences, broken by friction over the nuclear non-proliferation issue. West Germany, however, still refuses to budge from its hard line on the sale of nuclear technology to Brazil, a spokesman said. Carter strongly opposes the agreement — West Germany's largest-ever sales contract.

Plan gains nod

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A senior member of Prime Minister Ian Smith's cabinet says the new Anglo-American peace plan offers Rhodesia the best chance for a majority rule settlement it has had in nearly 25 years. British Foreign Secretary David Owen announced in London Wednesday that Britain and the United States would begin a series of "intensive consultations" next week aimed at bringing black majority rule to Rhodesia by late 1978. Rhodesian Deputy Prime Minister and Finance Minister David Smith said Owen appeared to be "sincere and genuine in his approach."

Victims mourned

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Grief-stricken Israel staged a daylong series of funerals today for 54 paratroopers and airmen killed in a military helicopter crash. Newspaper reports speculated that technical or human error might have caused the crash of the Sikorsky CH-53 during night maneuvers in the wilderness near biblical Jericho. There were no survivors in Israel's worst military air disaster. But the military command declined to comment pending the report of a high-ranking committee of investigation. The funerals took place at hometowns from Haifa in northern Israel to Yerucham in the Negev Desert. At the Mt. Herzl military cemetery in Jerusalem, six blue-bereted air force enlisted men and officers carried the coffin of Lt. Uri Stark, a trainee pilot who had just returned to active duty after surviving an auto crash. Relatives said he recently attended at the same cemetery the funerals of two fellow pilots killed in the same car crash. In rites repeated at 40 ceremonies, honor guards fired three volleys in the air and military chaplains recited a chapter from Psalms and the traditional kaddish prayer for the dead. Flags were lowered to halfstaff at army bases.

Vance visits Madrid

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met today with King Juan Carlos and Premier Adolfo Suarez to discuss Spain's progress toward democracy and to fill them in on two Western summit meetings. Vance came to Madrid for a meeting of the U.S.-Spanish Council, which oversees relations between the two countries. Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also arrived today to attend the meeting. Vance first met with the King at Zarzuela Palace; then was driven to Monteleon Palace for the talk with Suarez.

Zaire rail town falls

KINSHASA (UPI) — Zaire said today that government forces recaptured another crucial railroad town in their second major victory over invading rebels in southern Shaba province in a week. The official news agency

AZAP said Zaire troops, backed by 1,500 Moroccan soldiers, staged a "triumphant entry" into the Junction town today after recapturing Wednesday. It is about 80 miles from the Angolan border.

A small gold star award

Residential and business electricity users in the cities of Twin Falls, Filer, Murtaugh, Kimberly, and Hansen managed a one per cent decrease in their electrical appetites in April.

That's like leaving the last cookie in the bag after gobbling up a full batch, but at least it's a start. Idaho Power Company district manager Don Jensen optimistically predicts the one per cent decline in electrical use compared to April, 1976, means people are getting the message on energy conservation. They realize this is the year to turn down the lights and fix the leaky faucets.

In the business sector, this seems to be true. Twin Falls automobile dealer John Christoffersen plans to meet with area auto dealers to draft a plan to reduce electrical consumption in the showrooms.

Newton's Sporting Goods owner Jim Newton has put his business hours and turned off some lights to reduce his electrical hunger.

K mart, one of the largest retail stores in Magic Valley, managed a 50 per cent cut in their power bill simply by removing every other light in the store and pushing the "off" button on the bank of color TVs in the home entertainment department. These efforts deserve a gold star.

But they aren't enough to avoid mandatory cutbacks or power rationing this summer.

Cost of education rapidly rising

The number of students enrolled in the nation's public elementary and secondary schools has been going down little by little ever year since 1971, when enrollment reached a peak of more than 46 million. This year, it is 43,721,000.

Population forecasts indicate that the decline will continue to 1983, down to about 40 million; then a gradual rise will begin.

Interestingly, despite this 2 per cent decline in public school enrollment, total expenditures for public elementary and secondary schools in the same period have soared — from $40.7 billion in 1969-70 to $67.1 billion in 1975-76. This represents an increase of 65 per cent.

Something else has been going up — the state and federal share of the education dollar. Before World War II, local governments provided over two-thirds of all support for public schools, the states furnished less than one-third and federal support was negligible.

By 1975-76, reports the Tax Foundation, the state share had risen to 44 per cent and the federal contribution was 8 per cent, but the share financed by local governments had fallen to 48 per cent. The figures are national averages; there are wide variations from state to state.

In New Hampshire and North Dakota, for example, the state governments provide less than 15 per cent of total school funds, contrasted with Hawaii, which finances 93 per cent, with the federal government supplying the remainder.

Expenditures per pupil are also vastly different from state to state. New York, which spends $2,179 per pupil, is at the top of the scale. Arkansas, which spends $881, is at the bottom. Tennessee, Missouri and Louisiana also spend less than $1,000 per pupil.

No matter how the statistics are sliced, however, Americans, through their state, local and federal taxes, are spending more and more to educate fewer and fewer children. Even the states on the bottom of the scale have registered increases of from 55 to 71 per cent since 1969.

Congress responsible for welfare mess

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Despite all the impatient finger-pointing by firebrands in Congress, the major obstacle to welfare reform has not been a slow-moving Department of Health, Education and Welfare but — Congress itself.

No president in recent history has ever vetoed a comprehensive welfare reform bill sent to him by Congress. No recent Congress has ever sent such a bill to the White House.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan (D-N.Y.) has used every trick but an electric cattle prod on HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. to speed up delivery of the Carter administration's welfare proposals, not because Moynihan fears a deliberate stall but because he knows the bill — whatever its contents — will face a long, uphill battle.

Califano made the rounds last week on Capitol Hill discussing the problems and possibilities of welfare reform with the concerned committees in the House and Senate. He promised to send them specific legislation — in early August.

Legislative leaders agree this schedule will not permit a final vote on welfare reform until early in the election year. But if past patterns and attitudes mean anything, Congress is unlikely — in an election year — to vote for any generous increase in public assistance to the poor unless the program is studded with new work requirements for those able to work.

Chairman Russell Long (D-La.) of the Senate Finance Committee, hammered repeatedly on the work requirement issue last week, and Moynihan, who heads Long's subcommittee on public assistance, cautioned Califano to make it a strong feature of the administration's program.

"Remember, the key word you heard here today is — work," Moynihan told Califano at a hearing last Thursday. "And the second word is jobs."

That idea already seems firmly fixed in the planning approach of the Carter administration. Six of the twelve goals for welfare reform spelled out by Carter on May 2 relate to increasing employment among welfare recipients.

Congressional insiders say Labor Department officials contributing to the Carter program are insisting on strengthened work requirements for welfare mothers with dependent children. But the key test, as Moynihan acknowledges, will come after the Carter proposals reach Congress.

Moynihan, who has studied the American government which has seen more than one case in which a president of the United States has sent a finely-crafted Swiss watch up to the Hill, and we take it apart and drop a few parts, and replace a few parts, and change a few parts, and then we put it back together, and the damn thing somehow doesn't tick right!

By now, as Moynihan noted, those most involved in Congress and the federal bureaucracy should already know a lot about the ins and outs of welfare reform.

In 1967, HEW Secretary Wilbur Cohen submitted a reform plan to President Lyndon Johnson, who passed it on for study to his special counsel — Joseph Califano.

In 1969, Johnson's Commission on Income Maintenance drafted a plan. Also in 1969, the Nixon administration proposed to Congress a Family Assistance Plan authored by Moynihan.

In 1971 the Ways and Means Committee devised an alternative Family Assistance Plan, with a separate program for employable recipients.

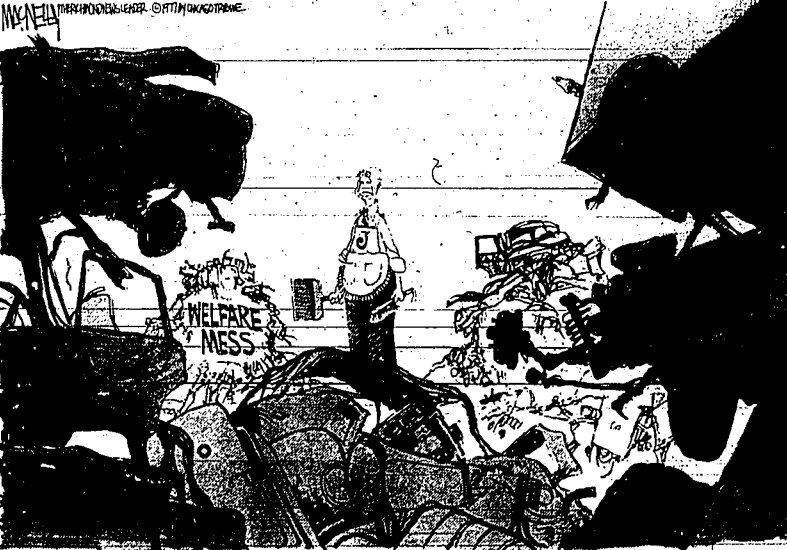

In 1972, "Welfare" was proposed to Congress by Chairman Long of the Senate Finance Committee.

In 1973, the Joint Economic Committee proposed an income maintenance plan, sponsored in Congress by then-Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.).

In 1976, the U.S. Governors Conference recommended a comprehensive welfare reform plan.

All failed. But Carter's plan, Moynihan suggests, may succeed.

"We have a moment of social peace in our country in which we can perhaps be a little more thoughtful, a little more considerate of one another."

Feelgooders swarm US, threatening our happiness!

By RUSSELL BAKER N.Y. Times Service

The latest aberration in the American pursuit of happiness is the feelgood movement. The country is swarming with swarms from Asta-Quacks from California and evangelists of sexual-joy, narcotic paradise, communal contentment and dining ecstasy. Psychologists who can whip off a quick volume of lips on how to feel good 24 hours a day adorn the best-seller lists. In the warm baths surrounding Disneyland West, gurus of feelgood preside over group gropes aimed at squeezing the nasty wrinkles out of psyches yearning for a peace ineffable.

Do Americans really feel as rotten as the boom in the feelgood business suggests? I doubt it. My reservations may, of course, reflect my own biased suspicions of the feelgood movement. The truth is that I don't feel good most of the time and don't want to.

Moreover, I do not comprehend why anyone else should want to. I know a few rare souls who feel good as much as 20 per cent of the day, and while it does not seem to make them unhappy, it does make their company somewhat trying by constantly reminding you that you cannot feel as good as they do.

This is not to be held against them. They can no more help feel good for longer periods than the average person than Rubinstein can help excelling at the piano. It is a matter of genes. They were born to feel good. Most people are not.

It is perfectly normal not to feel good. This does not mean it is normal to feel rotten all the time, or even to feel bad too steadily. All things in moderation, said the Greeks, and that is the rule for feeling good and bad. A person who feels bad with reasonable regularity will enjoy the occasional period of feeling good far more than somebody who feels good so often that he is bored by it.

misgivings about feelgoodness are heightened by the origins of its preachers. The chief exponents of psychic feelgood tend to come from Asta-California and the psychological sciences, no one of which has an impressive record at making people feel good.

In Asia nobody has felt good for centuries. As Edith Hamilton noted, Asian religions have always urged people not to spend themselves fretting on the problems of this world for the obvious reason that the Asian world has mostly been a world of misery. As for California, on the other hand, while almost everybody claims to feel good about having outdoor tennis 12 months per annum, they also seem to spend most of their lives in automobiles. It is hard to believe anybody can really feel good about having hands permanently warped into the shape of steering-wheel claws.

As for what psychologists can teach the masses about feeling good, suffice it to say that their principal contribution to society so far has been the creation of those testing systems used by corporations, government and universities to dredge out the individual's most interesting secrets for use as bludgeons against him.

If I wanted to feel good, Asta, California and psychologists would stay at the bottom of my list of tutors. It is hard to imagine any trio more likely to spoil a pleasant evening. When we toss the apostles of hedonism — the champions of utter consumption, the proponents of total sexual wiggling — we have a stew to turn Christmas at Dingley Dell into a party that would make even a sociologist beg for mercy.

What the entire gang has in common is a faith in the individual serving himself first. In his essay "The Me Generation," Tom Wolfe observes that feelgoodism rests on an obsessive passion for No. 1, with each acolyte assuming that the world begins with his birth, ends with his death and can be endured only by dwelling in the nucleus of his own ego, pondering and pondering to his Me.

The feelgoodists are heretics who have turned the pursuit of happiness into a search for the endless smile, the total serenity, the complete fulfillment of self, the supreme orgasm and the perfect doughnut. Society becomes a service station to supply fuel and spark plugs for easy motoring from womb to tomb.

Just thinking about it makes you feel bad. Poor Jefferson would have felt terrible had he suspected that the pursuit of happiness would come to this. I feel rather bad myself, but I try I shall feel good for a while. Provided I don't try too hard.

Islanders don't like going home

Thirty years ago the residents of the Eniwetok atoll — then known as Eniwetok — in the western Pacific, were summarily moved away so that the area could be used for the first post-World War II atom explosion tests.

Now, they're back. But there's a bit of a hang-up. The older folk, who remember the place from before, say it isn't the way, it used to be. And the youngsters find that it's right dull after living on larger islands.

Sort of makes the whole world kin, doesn't it?

Editor Times-News:

The report on Coal-Fired Plants are as follows: The Coal-Fired plant in New Mexico is a plant coal-fired. The Audubon Magazine in an article by A.M. Joseph, Jr., describes the plant as the greatest single public polluter in the United States.

The promises to clean up the operators were made but it is still seriously degrading the quality of the air.

It affects people, animals, crops and vegetation. Sheep owned by the Navajo Indians on a reservation near the Giant Plant of Page are starting to bleed from the nose.

A modern power plant may burn thousands of tons of coal a day. Sulfur, an impurity in coal is changed to sulfur dioxide. A single large power plant will produce several hundreds of tons of sulfur dioxide each day, as reported in the U.S. Agricultural Report on effects. It states that this will affect crops, value and productivity. Plants such as alfalfa, beans, barley, wheat and cotton develop detrimental to potatoes, tomatoes and many other plants and will kill white pine. Nitrate is also developed and affects grasses, plant beans, corn, wheat and other crops.

Thousands of acre feet of water is needed a year in a generating plant and carries away waste detrimental to fish, wild life and crops. The trace elements emitted from such plants are arsenic, mercury, lead, molybdenum, cadmium and fluorine.

In spite of the terrible smog at the 4 Corners Plant in New Mexico a plant was built at Page, on Lake Powell in Arizona, and three more Power plants in the Canyon country, piling pollution on pollution, smothering the region in smog, obscuring the beautiful scenic wonder of the mountains, canyons and lakes.

The Agriculture Year Book states that sulfur dioxide has been causing trouble since the first use of coal as fuel. It was so severe around smelters that practically all plant life was killed for miles downward from the source. Though some improvements have been made to control this pollution, it still remains a problem.

The plants in New Mexico and Arizona have been unable to control it. We cannot expect it to be controlled here either.

Do we want a blanket of dirty smog covering our land, forever blotting out the view of our beautiful mountains and blue skies?

Visibility from these plants is reduced to ten miles or 20 miles. Do we want this dirty blanket of smog covering our beautiful letters Nuclear better than coal power

Idaho? Drifting for hundreds of miles and 1000 feet high? We have an alternative. It is Nuclear energy. I believe it is better. I have a clipping which was released some time ago about the safety of this form of energy.

A total of 67 Idaho Safety Awards have been earned by the Atomic Energy Commission's National Reactor testing Station in East Idaho in the past 18 years.

Over 100,000 man-hours represented at least one million man hours of work without disabling injuries. In all, 174 safety awards have been given to these industries since 1952 when the program started.

As this is from an old-clipping, I know they have many more now.

A recent article states that a Nuclear Reactor in Idaho will be called upon to help alleviate power shortage by having enough power for electricity for Rigby, Rexburg, Arco and Shelley.

The plant at Idaho Falls will maintain full operational capacity this summer to assure residents and industries of Idaho's major potato growing area of adequate electrical power.

Dick Blackledge of the U.S. E.R.D.A. in speaking of radioactive materials, states that it's an old wives tale that plutonium in one of the most toxic substances in the world. In the 1940s 25 people were exposed to Plutonium and none of them have died of cancer yet.

There are now Nuclear Plants all over the United States, yet they have had no serious accidents. They are cleaner and safer than coal fired ones and more dependable and economical.

Our ships now have Atomic powered plants. The U.S. Enterprise is an example. Why not have our skilled technicians at Idaho Falls enlarge their reactor plant and furnish the needed power for Idaho?

In 1976 almost 1,500 fuel and other experiments were conducted at the Reactor, providing valuable information on the fast breeder reactor development program.

Since the Reactor began operation in 1964, 13 years ago, it has produced more than 800 million kilowatt-hours of electricity.

During this summer the reactor is expected to operate more than 70 per cent of the time, thus supplying needed electricity while helping to further advance energy concepts for the future.

We are justly proud of our Plant at Idaho Falls.

Lewiston editorial chided

Editor Times-News:

Someone has handed to me the editorial you carried on Thursday, April 28, which appeared in the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

I can understand your concern about professional environmentalists but I am also interested in flaws in logic as stated in that particular editorial. I really can't put my thoughts together any better than the material which was carried in the Kansas City Times of May 3 from their Washington Bureau as they comment on some of the waterway projects that are being considered in our nation.

We just happen to agree with Secretary Adams viewpoint.

To draw an analogy... I am sure that you as a businessman trying to serve your area and stay in business would be greatly concerned. If the Federal government would build a building and give it to a private company, it is not free in order to compete against your operation.

We feel somewhat the same way. ED SCHAFER Omaha, Neb.

Coal-fired power plant opponents speaking out

Editor, Times-News: In regard to the proposed coal-fired power plant, I would like to express a few thoughts as well as make a plea to the people of this state to please not panic and be stampeded into something we — and generations to come — may regret.

Newspapers reported recently that at a meeting in Boise the coal-fired plant was unanimously endorsed by about 60 "prominent citizens." It seems that the "prominent citizens" that were notified were those known to be in favor of the plant. The rest of us, including the important people were not invited.

This endorsement, flashed all over the front pages of the newspapers, might make it seem as if we all agree. Not so! There are still many of us here concerned with the quality of life.

Think about it. The drought is what has frightened many people into considering this plant. If we have adequate water, we also have the potential for adequate hydro power. This drought can't last forever, and even if it does, what good is power without water. In this predominantly farming state? The "scarce" water seems to be working beautifully with the drought helping them along.

We all don't have millions of dollars for "white-washing" campaigns or television plugs, or silver-tongued public relations people who tell us how this plant is the best thing for us. Maybe if we would cut some of the government red tape involved with developing hydro-electric power, it would alleviate the problem.

Could it be that we will be putting a large monster in our midst with far-reaching tentacles of power-transferring lines? Could this California-style monster serve only to furnish California and neighboring states with power, furnish us with rate increases and pollution — while it furnishes the power company promoters and a few money-hungry businessmen with money?

People say — give us industry and population growth for our state. What for? Do we really want more people littering, crowding and polluting our state? Do we want increased property and school taxes? Talk to some people in Rock Springs, Wyo., about the problems that construction crews — and increased population will bring. How about law enforcement to cover the increased drug traffic and crime?

We can't go to our mountains now without falling over campers and motorcycles behind every tree. I should like to know how some of these prominent citizens think they are — inviting this plant to locate in our midst. They certainly don't — and can't — speak for all of us. Are they going to divide the environment up in pieces and say — you take this piece of air and I'll take this one?

How do YOU feel about the mercury — laden coal that will be burned? Doctors have testified in the past as to the danger for respiratory patients. The Idaho PUC turned down the plant in Boise because of danger to the people and environment.

Would the temporary drought condition, or the fact that we are fewer in number here in the Magic Valley, alter this conviction?

I hope we are all ready when this invisible cloud of toxic gases settles down upon us, especially the bad air inversion areas, such as Twin Falls, Boise, Hagerman Valley, etc.

A power company official has been quoted as saying that "Idaho would be brought to her knees." Well, Mr. Eastern Owned-Corporation — most of us old Idaho farmers still have our feet firmly planted on the ground and can still smell and recognize a skunk when we see one.

Apparently, the only ones who stand to gain in this endeavor are the promoters, some of whom are big city businessmen and Idaho Power itself. When they double or even triple our rates, how are we going to run those big sprinklers — or even our households, for that matter. I don't see farm commodity prices rising with our power rates.

This power they say we need is on a projected growth basis. How do you existing customers feel about subsidizing new sprinkler — irrigated land?

Industry is bound to come in and take over. If that is what you really want, then sit back and relax. If you want to maintain our beautiful state, as well as your checkbook — ORGANIZE! Get the facts. Then write to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, State House, Boise, 83720, your legislators and your governor. Petitions are being circulated. For more information call 934-5387, or 934-5109. Petitions may be signed and/or picked up at Strout TV, 229 Main, Gooding. A public meeting concerning a coal-fired plant will be held at the Gooding County Courthouse May 13 at 7:30 p.m. KAREN (MRS. ## Salmon project will be costly

Editor, Times-News: I wonder how many people took a hard look at the tentatively approved Salmon Falls Water Project.

As I first read I thought how can the landowners pay $2,000 an acre for water but I found it reads further that it's a deal hung mostly on the American taxpayer.

As we all should know, our government will borrow the money. I do not know what average interest is paid but let's assume it's seven per cent. Seven per cent of $2000 is $140. The paper states that the landowner will pay from $13 to $22, therefore let us assume again that the average is $22.50.

Subtracting that amount from $140 means the taxpayers are stuck for $117.50 per acre per year with never one cent going to the principal.

If the outlook wasn't for a continuation of surpluses of most farm commodities for many years to come the situation might be different but at that price, I doubt it.

Project director Richard Woodard as printed in the Times-News states "the cost-benefit ratio of the project is favorable." Might I ask, for whom?

I believe the only chance we have stopping this wild government spending is to start at home and this is a home project.

Field made Walkathon success

Editor, Times-News: Magic Valley communities which took part in Saturday's Walkathon got pleasure in doing something together for a useful purpose — helping the unfortunate with birth defects. The March of Dimes raised thousands.

Of course, to take part in a Walkathon one has to have good feet so it's a coincidence that Foot Health Week follows on May 9-15, sponsored by The American Podiatry Association.

Podiatry is a specialized sector of health care. Its professional members awarded degrees as Doctors of Podiatry Medicine after four years of post-baccalaureate training. They are licensed by state authorities. Including the Idaho Board of Podiatry, and are required to continue their education and research of foot care. There are three in Twin Falls.

Desmond Morris in his book "The Naked Ape" remarks on this prolific species but fails to note that without good feet homo sapiens would have never gotten underway. Podiatrists look after the underpinnings of mankind.

Foot Health Week should be 52.

Drought now, '34 about same

Editor, Times-News: I have an old June 1934 Pathfinder magazine and from what I read, the drought was about the same as today. It states that 1893 was a bad year also, about 40 years apart each time.

If city folks were wise they would use their garbage for hog feed and not waste it. During the time Germany controlled France the people in the suburbs raised gardens, had rabbits and goats and did OK.

People down south could take over tobacco fields and raise corn and livestock feed. Which would you prefer — milk or cigars?

Every place we can raise gardens, and do like the Mormons did, raise carrots for both human and animal feed. They will produce 20 to 30 tons on an acre. That's one way to make good use of the water. If I wanted to save my herd that's what I'd do.

Time to be aware

Editor, Times-News: May 1 through May 8 was National Music Week, a week when we needed to be aware of the pleasures music gives us.

We are especially fortunate in Twin Falls County to have many fine musical organizations which perform for us. Hoping not to omit any, these come quickly to mind: Sweet Adelines, Barber Shop groups, Twin Falls Symphony, Magic Valley Chorus, country music groups, Twin Falls Symphony, Magic Valley Chorale, country music groups, Old Fiddlers association, Northwest Opera company, Dilettantes, CSI and public schools faculties, good dance orchestras, and numerous high quality private music teachers and teachers of dance. We have many outstanding soloists — vocal, instrumental, and piano — who give willingly of their talents.

The Twin Falls Music Club, an affiliate of the National Federation of Music Clubs, does much to encourage excellence in young musicians through its spring festival and scholarship program.

The Community Concert Association has done a terrific job in bringing top professional talent to the area. I am confident I speak for many when I say "Thank you so much!" to all of these for their contribution to a beautiful way of life in our valley and thank you, Times-News, for the publicity you give these groups to enable all of us to know what is going on, what is available in the way of entertainment in our college fine arts auditorium, in our schools, and in the fellowship halls of our churches.

People true jury

Editor, Times-News: Watergate and all its scandal has been in the minds of most people in the past, and the enemies of Richard Nixon have almost succeeded in convincing most of the people without quite saying it, that former president Nixon was the Watergate burglar and that he planned and instigated it.

The record is clear that he was guilty of neither of these things. His ruthless, power hungry enemies, "the Democratic congress" set out to destroy him, and John Dean the Third, the Judas Escariot of the Nixon Cabinet, for a reward, betrayed his President who entrusted him to the high post that he held. After all, he committed a wrong. It was not a crime. He only hid back for a few days the information that would have hurt the cause of his men who had done wrong and whose careers and all that they had were at stake. He let his heart perhaps rule over his mind because he was a man of compassion. Certainly Watergate was the worst single embarrassment that this country has ever faced, but the blame for it is still not clear to millions of us whether it should lie on the head of a President who feetered on the brink of indecision for a few days in declaring to the world that his closest friend had committed a "crime," or whether the blame should lie on the heads of the powerful group who with no compassion or adherence to the Golden Rule set out like hungry beasts to persecute and prosecute him, and kill by bile and limb by limb, pulled and tore him down to disgrace.

The facts are mostly available and in due time the American people, not the politicians, will make the only meaningful decision. They will decide whether the people who heard the proceedings of the Watergate trial and acted as jurors were really impartial and without slanted views or whether most of them, in the name of decency, should have disqualified themselves the same as they would have been forced to do in any other court. The people alone will determine whether former President Nixon would have had a better chance in a kangaroo court. HOWARD BUHLER Twin Falls

Soviets reject bid

MOSCOW (UPI) — Another bid to release Rudolph Hess from Berlin's Spandau prison where he is the only inmate, failed Wednesday when the Soviet Union turned down a request to free the 57-year-old former deputy to Adolf Hitler.

"We remember everything about the past," the weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

Hess flew to Britain on May 10, 1951, and parachuted into Scotland in a wild attempt to negotiate a separate peace with Britain.

Browning may seek post

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr., the man who successfully prosecuted Patricia Hearst for bank robbery last year, says he is considering running for Attorney General of California.

"I'm not putting a campaign together, but I have been asked by a number of friends to think about it," Browning said Tuesday. "If I do decide to run, the first thing I will do is resign as United States attorney. What I've been trying to do is assess whether my candidacy is a viable possibility."

Hunt sells nine paintings

MIAMI-BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Despite critical disdian and snubs from guests, Watergate burglar Howard Hunt pocketed $7,500 from selling nine of his paintings on display at his one-man show.

Hunt painted the pictures while at the federal prison at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. His two-day show closed Wednesday.

Poetess receives honor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Poetess Muriel Rukeyser, author of "The Gates," has been named winner of the Copernicus Award of the Academy of American Poets.

The citation along with $1,000 she received Wednesday notes that "throughout her life she has been sensitive to encroachments on the freedom of individuals or peoples. She has responded in actions of which poetry was only the highest form."

Totle has eye surgery

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Comedienne Stan Field is resting comfortably at Stanford Medical Center following eye surgery.

Miss Field, 47, underwent surgery Monday to remove some of the residue which fills the eye after a hemorrhage caused impaired vision.

A spokesman said the eye problem was related to the diabetic condition which forced the amputation of one of Miss Field's legs last year.

Marshall's daughter arrested

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Jill Ann Marshall, daughter of Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall, was among the 291 persons arrested during a sit-in this week at Stanford University.

It was disclosed Wednesday that the 19-year-old freshman signed a citation accusing her of four misdemeanor counts.

Fifty-eight other demonstrators who were arrested early Tuesday also signed the citation and were released. No further action was expected against them.

The students were protesting Stanford's alleged complicity in racial discrimination by investing in companies doing business with South Africa.

Pair greeted by First Lady

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Marilyn Crafts of Ridgewood, N.J., and David Jackson of Moundsville, W.Va., the National Multiple Sclerosis Society's mother and father of the year, were greeted at a brief White House ceremony by First Lady Rosalynn Carter Wednesday.

The pair was chosen as part of the society's annual MS Hope Chest Campaign, which runs from Mother's Day to Father's Day.

Mrs. Crafts has three children and Jackson has two.

In the chips

JACK Binlon, left, trades chips for hundred dollar bills after pro gambler Boyle (Dolly) Brunson, Fort Worth, Texas, won $940,000 in the "World Series of Poker" at Binlon's Horseshoe in Las Vegas by defeating Gary (Bones) Berland of Los Angeles. Brunson won the final pot with a full house — tens and twos. (UPI)

'Full house' wins

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Once again the world poker championship went to a flinty-eyed old pro from the Lone Star state — defending champ Doyle "Texas Dolly" Brunson.

He won $340,000 on the luck of a deal that gave him exactly the same hand with which he took the championship last year.

The rising young newcomers and amateurs mounted a surprising challenge. A retired businessman from South Dakota came within three hands of the finale. But Brunson upheld the traditions of the veteran professional gamblers from Texas who have dominated the event since it began eight years ago.

The end came Wednesday night, after three days of play — 10 hours on and eight hours off, since Monday — had eliminated 32 other contestants in the Horseshoe Casino.

Under the rules, the 34 contestants put $18,000 each on the table and were not allowed to put up more money nor take partial winnings away. They played hold'em, a variety of seven card stud, until 53 went broke one by one and the survivor collected all $340,000.

The last two hands were a faceoff between Brunson and Gary "Bones" Berland, who bet his entire $60,000 pile on a pair of eights and a pair of fives. He lost it to Brunson, who drew a full house — three 10s and two deuces.

The hand was identical, card for card, right down to the suits, to the one Brunson drew in winning the series last year.

Binlon, a native of Los Angeles nicknamed "Bones" because he is so skinny, celebrated his 27th birthday as play started Monday. With his wire rimmed glasses and moustache, he represented a new generation of professional gamblers. He placed eighth in the series last year.

Brunson and Berland were the only players remaining after elimination of Milo Jacobson, a retired restaurant owner from Sioux Falls, S.D., who astonished observers by playing his way into the final minutes.

Jacobson ran his winnings to $38,000 before folding, although he said his only experience was "the weekly game down at the Elks Club in Sioux Falls, and a lot of the time, I lose there."

Coming back next year with a bundle from home," said Jacobson, who outplayed and outlasted scores of big name professional gamblers, such as Jack "Treepot" Strauss of Houston, "Salior" Roberts of San Angelo, Tex., "Amorillo Slim" Preston and "Fuzzy Wuggsy" Pearson of Nashville.

"I was just getting the experience this year that a young fellow like me needs," said Brunson.

Veteran observers were surprised not only at Jacobson's showing, but that he drank during play.

"These professional gamblers, with $340,000 at stake, they don't touch anything stronger than milk or soft drinks at the table," a casino worker said. "Here was this guy from South Dakota who looked like he walked in off the street and he's chomping on cigars and betting down whiskey and taking their money away."

It makes you wonder about the weekly games at the Sioux Falls Elks Club, doesn't it?"

Karen Ann Quinlan shows slight change

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Karen Ann Quinlan, in a coma since April, 1975, is showing signs of change for the first time since she was taken off a respirator nearly a year ago, according to her family priest.

Rev. Thomas Trapasso, speaking Wednesday at a symposium on "Issues Surrounding Continuous Life Support," said Miss Quinlan's mother has noticed the changes in recent visits to Morris View Nursing Home, where the 23-year-old woman is being kept.

"Julia Quinlan said that the last few times she's been there she seems to feel that Karen is holding her head and neck a little stiffer in the bed," Rev. Trapasso said.

He said he didn't know "what the change was an indication of," but noted it was the first time there has been any difference in Miss Quinlan since she was removed from a respirator last May 17.

Miss Quinlan, of Landing, N.J., lapsed into a coma April 14, 1975, after inhaling tranquilizers with alcohol.

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled in March, 1976, that her parents could remove her from the life support system despite efforts by the state to prevent the action.

Rev. Trapasso said since she was removed from the respirator, Miss Quinlan has been living on a humidifier "to keep her breathing properly, but she is breathing on her own."

"Her reflexes are the same as they've always been," he said. "You touch her hand and she reacts the same as when she first went into the coma."

Rev. Trapasso said Miss Quinlan's parents are "accepting their situation."

"They're getting back into a social life," he said. "They're more involved with the church again. They're beginning to accept their situation as best as can be expected, as best as any parent with a very ill child can do."

He said Miss Quinlan's father, Joseph, visits the nursing home in Morris Township, N.J., daily while her mother comes two or three times a week.

Rev. Trapasso told the group that "American society is coming to grips with death."

Money returned

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A zipper, an 11-year-old boy and a conscientious mother combined to save an automobile salesman $500 Monday.

Auto salesman John Gonda, 69, was robbed Tuesday evening by a man in his mid 20s who "fled" with Gonda's billfold.

A few minutes later, 11-year-old Lee Buderlian found the billfold and raced home to his mother, shouting he had just found a wallet "with $500 in it."

The mother, Judith Ellis, called Gonda, then got on her bicycle and returned the billfold to him.

The thief had taken from $70 to $300 from the "wallet" but missed the $500 in a zippered compartment.

CASTLEFORD — Sandra Cox, Castleford High School senior, has been awarded a room scholarship at Idaho State University, Pocatello. She also received a $250 freshman honor scholarship. Miss Cox is editor of the school paper, participates in volleyball, basketball, band, VOA, FHA, is drill team captain and past district secretary for Future Homemakers of America. She served as statistician in the boys athletic program and completed eight years in 4-H work. The Elks Lodge, Twin Falls, named her as teen-ager of the month for February. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cox, Castleford.

Pearce still looking

BOISE (UPI) — Director of Law Enforcement Kelly Pearce said today he is interviewing candidates to replace the head of the Idaho State Police but he would not oppose keeping Kenneth DeYoung in the job until he can retire at the end of the year. "We're in a holding pattern right now until I have the opportunity to familiarize myself with the whole department and interview officers throughout the state," Pearce said. Pearce said he visited the northern Idaho regional office last week and will continue his tour throughout the state "to discuss everything from automobiles to Colonel DeYoung."

The new director, who replaced John Bender May 1, said he felt he could continue to work with DeYoung and he has received favorable comment on the superintendent's leadership from throughout the state. Asked why he would consider replacing DeYoung if he could get along with him and the state patrolmen were behind him, Pearce said, "they are supportive of the Idaho State Police and are pleased with Colonel DeYoung as their commander but they realize there has been a change in administration."

Gov. John V. Evans told a press conference when he announced Pearce's appointment, that he would ask DeYoung to "step aside" for the sake of good law enforcement. Evans cited as a reason for the decision the fact that state policemen were lobbying against his administration's programs during the past legislative session. The governor said it was not their duty to lobby but to patrol the state.

Pearce said Evans left the replacement of DeYoung, "up to me." "It is understood he will be replaced. But, retirement is coming for him and that's a consideration. He has sufficient time built up to retire at the end of this year," Pearce said. Asked if he would oppose DeYoung staying in the position until the end of the year, Pearce said, "No, it wouldn't go against my grain." Pearce said he is interviewing persons to take the job but he was "not at liberty" to disclose their names.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Steel producers Wednesday fell in line with the 6 per cent price increase announced earlier by U.S. Steel Corp. as steel used in making automobiles and home appliances.

Republic Steel Corp. joined Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. in rolling back its 7 1/2 per cent increase on flat rolled and bar steel produced while Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. announced a price increase in line with U.S. Steel's. No. 3 ranked National Steel Corp. followed U.S. Steel's lead Tuesday. Bethlehem Steel Corp., the second largest producer, has not yet made an announcement.

Noon siren blows again in Salmon

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — The once-familiar noon siren at Salmon is again being heard by local residents. When the Salmon Volunteer Fire Department instituted a radio communications system for alerting firemen to fires, the siren, which had been abandoned by telephone operator both on fires and at noon each day except Sunday, was discontinued. Because of numerous complaints received at city hall, the siren is once more sounding at noon and for fires. Frank Barsalon, fire chief, said a new automatic timing device sounds the siren at noon. The siren is sounded manually on fires, mainly to clear traffic for the fire trucks.

MV weather pattern remains same

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert area: Increasing cloudiness this afternoon, leading to a 50 percent chance of rain over the area tonight, decreasing again on Friday. Overnight lows tonight near 40, high temperatures Friday 60 to 65. Saturday's outlook, little change. Spraying and dusting conditions will generally be fair to poor during the afternoon and evening hours due to winds to 15 miles an hour and periods of rain. Halley, Camas Prairie, lower

Wood River Valley: Increasing clouds this afternoon with chance of rain tonight decreasing on Friday. Overnight lows near 30, high temperatures Friday near 60. Saturday's outlook, little change. Synopsis: Very little change in the weather pattern is taking place today. The ridge of high pressure continues to dominate the Midwest which in turn is keeping the upper level low pressure area along the West

Coast: Minor storms moving around this low pressure, continue to bring unstable moist air into the Magic Valley. Rainfall amounts Wednesday range from just a trace at Buhl to 1 of an inch at the weather service office at Kimberly. This morning a new storm was crossing the Sierra Mountains with some fairly large amounts of rainfall over the northern California area. This storm will be spreading cloudiness into the Magic Valley over the afternoon with more rain expected tonight and Friday morning. The extended outlook for Saturday through Monday calls for very little change in the overall weather pattern.

Diesels for GM by '85

CHICAGO (UPI) — General Motors hopes to install diesel engines in up to one fourth of its cars by 1985 to provide customers with six-passenger vehicles that meet fuel efficiency standards, GM President Elliott M. Estes said. Estes, addressing petroleum industry officials Wednesday, said light trucks, which he said have not been showing the fuel efficiency improvements of GM passenger cars, also are prime targets for diesel engines.

Holding up full use of the diesel engine is a clean air law which will force automakers to reach a level of no more than 0.4 grams per mile of oxides of nitrogen emissions. The current limit is 1.5 grams and Congress currently is debating new limits that would not go as low as 0.4 grams. Estes said GM's diesel engine, the first by a U.S. automaker, was developed from the company's 350-cubic inch V8 gasoline engine, and will make its debut in the 1978 model Oldsmobile and in some light trucks.

Mercedes-Benz and Peugeot have offered diesel engines on their larger cars for several years and Volkswagen this year introduced a diesel-powered Rabbit that the Environmental Protection Agency rates at 52 m.p.g. on the highway. Estes told a meeting of the American Petroleum Institute that the use of diesels in about 1.5 million GM cars would allow the industry to achieve a fuel savings of about 13 percent between 1977 and 1985.

Town water aid clears US Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved a $225 million program of grants and loans Wednesday to help communities hit by drought, augment their water supplies. The bill was approved by voice vote and sent to the House. The legislation would authorize $150 million for percent loans and $75 million for 50-50 matching grants. Congress has already appropriated $150 of the amount authorized by the bill. Grants or loans could be used to improve or expand existing water supply systems, construction of new ones, well digging, or impoundment of water. The money could also be used for transporting water into the communities and for the purchase of water if it is the most economic method.

TV violence complaints bombard Senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Complaints about almost everything on television and especially violence broadcast into American living rooms have commanded the attention of a Senate subcommittee for three days. The recent attack on TV violence by the National Parent Teachers Association and other groups has heightened congressional attention. Testimony before the communications subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee ended Wednesday. Despite calls to legislate violence out, no such action is considered. But Chairman Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said new members had to learn about broadcasting. The hearings went into deceptive advertising, children's TV, the Fairness Doctrine, the First Amendment, minority access and other issues. But most of the talk and questions dealt with about violence. Earlier network witnesses said there will be less violence on TV next fall. Wednesday, Van Gordon Sauter, vice president for program practices, showed CBS' way of making programs suitable for broadcast. The other networks have similar practices. Sauter said his department last year read and screened 1,500 scripts for series episodes, pilots and special programs for prime time; read scripts and watched more than 1,000 soap opera episodes, and reviewed more than 200 films. It's not easy, he said, because "there is no village in the Midwest, nor any block in the urban sprawl, which provides an accurate sample of what America considers good taste or bad taste." But to show that CBS tries, Sauter showed "program practices editing notes" carrying the following instructions to producers: "Please avoid having Karen torture Doris while the latter is in the pool," from the "Barnaby Jones" episode

"The Killer on Campus." "Bodies should not be shaking... Please avoid open staring eyes or, contorted facial features." From "Hunter" episode "The Back-up" or "The Nights are Cold and the Good Die Young." "Delete 'excessive' use of 'hells' and 'damns' from the same Hunter episode. "Please delete 'scumbag' from Gilmore's speech," from "The Blue Knight" episode "Two to Make Deadly."

"Cindy should not raise the ice pick to the top of her reach in preparation for a savage downward thrust," from "Switch" episode "The Four Horsemen." Robert Choate, president of the Council on Children, Media and Merchandising, said the National Association of Broadcasters code review meetings should be open. He said the code benefits broadcasters, not the public.

Too many 'Gate worries led Ford to pardon Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gerald Ford told a group of 200 political science students Wednesday that he pardoned President Nixon because he found himself spending too much time worrying about Watergate and needed to get on with the job of being president.

The former president, beginning a three-day lecture tour at the University of Southern California, walked around the tree-shaded campus with a small Secret Service contingent and paused occasionally to make small talk with passing students.

Gerald Ford takes question

At the point he was grabbed good-naturedly by several members of the Skull and Dagger honor society, dressed in costumes for their annual initiation—who serenaded him with a rendition of the Michigan Fight Song on kazoo and gave him a bottle of Mexican beer. He walked off with the bottle unopened.

Ford told reporters he would meet with 13 classes in a variety of disciplines in an effort to give the students "a practical appraisal of how some of the decisions" were made during his tenure in the White House.

During the first class, a 50-minute question-and-answer session with 200 political science undergraduates, Ford said crime, defense spending and the energy crisis were the three main problems he faced in office.

He also expressed general agreement with President Carter's energy and electoral college proposals and said a two-party system is vital to the nation's "political and economic security."

One student asked Ford what he thought about Nixon's televised interviews with David Frost and whether he had second thoughts about giving Nixon a pardon.

Ford replied that he would let Nixon's words in the interviews "speak for themselves" and then explained why he had pardoned his predecessor.

"I as President" was spending 25 per cent of my time meeting with lawyers in the White House and lawyers in the Department of Justice," he recalled, "and getting their advice on what we should do with his tapes, with his documents — and at the same time we were fighting inflation of over 12 per cent and we were on the brink of the worst recession in 40 years.

"I felt that in the national interest," said Ford, "I had to concentrate 100 per cent on the economic problems this country had instead of spending 25 per cent of my time worrying about what we should do with tapes and the like."

"So in order to spend the time that was necessary on the serious problems both domestically and internationally, I thought we ought to clear the decks so I could do the job that was required for 250 million Americans.

"If we had precisely the circumstances today that we had in August and September of 1974, I would make the same decision."

When another student asked Ford if he thought Nixon chose him as vice president because he had a reputation as a "dominating Congressman," Ford said he was in fact "the best-informed member of Congress on appropriations and expenditures and defense."

"I had the respect and admiration of both Democrats and Republicans," he added, "and I think that was the major factor in my selection."

Ford said his knowledge of individual congressmen and the workings of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives helped him serve as President and suggested that President Carter might be at a disadvantage in that regard.

He pointed to Carter's energy proposals, saying they were similar in goals to the program he had suggested but differed in some specific areas, such as the gasoline tax.

Ford said he had rejected advice to impose a gasoline tax even though it "looked like a good idea on paper" because he was "absolutely convinced" Congress would never approve it.

"What we tried to do," he explained, "was to increase the price by a tax on all imports of crude oil or products and a tax at the refineries on domestic crude oil."

"The net result would have been the same, but I believe it would have a much better chance of getting Congressional approval."

McClure seeks Nez Perce park funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Sen. James McClure said today he was seeking additional funding for the Nez Perce National Historical Park near Lewiston.

McClure said he has been "continuously frustrated and concerned over the lack of funding for construction of a visitors' center."

"Since the creation of the park over 12 years ago, Congress has neglected to adequately fund development of the unique historic sites, including the construction of a central visitors' center planned near Spaulding," the senator said.

McClure contacted the Senate Appropriations Committee requesting additional funding for the park in the fiscal 1978 budget.

"It is particularly appropriate during this year, the commemoration of the 1877 Nez Perce War, that the United States take some definitive action to preserve and most important exhibit and explain the culture and history surrounding the Nez Perce people and this tragic conflict of 100 years ago," McClure said.

He said he also was distressed that the National Park Service did not request the visitors' center construction money in its fiscal 1978 funding.

TF Chamber of Commerce issues voluntary plan

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Chamber of Commerce officials in Twin Falls are backing a totally voluntary energy conservation program they hope will eliminate the need for mandatory energy-saving measures later in the year.

James Newton, Chamber board member, officially announced the plan Wednesday morning, asking all businessmen, residents and the media look for ways in their own homes and businesses to reduce electrical energy and water use by 15 percent.

To help call public attention to the need for energy saving, he said, the Chamber is sponsoring a poster contest for all school children.

"This will make the youngsters conscious of the need to save power and it will also take the matter into their homes, making parents more aware of the need. We will then display not only the winning posters but all of the posters in businesses throughout the town to bring public attention," Newton said.

Newton said he would like to see Twin Falls establish a city-wide voluntary program which would "set the pace" for the state and nation.

"If we can voluntarily reduce our power consumption by 15 per cent we can set an example that other communities will follow," he said.

Newton said in his own business he is shortening store hours by thirty minutes each day and closing Friday nights at the regular time. He said he has also cut out lights not directly over counters, desks or other important areas and has cut off the water heater.

He urged all residents to look for ways to save power and water and "put the practices into use immediately."

Water bottles in the flush toilet tanks can save water, Newton said, and not pouring a glass of water unless it is going to be used either at home or in the restaurants can add up to more water in the reservoirs for later use.

"Unless we do something now we will be faced with actual black out periods later in the year," he warned.

Newton and Chamber Manager Ray Reston said there is nothing mandatory and there is no personal contact of businesses planned, and no follow up. It is just an appeal to the residents of the community to help out in the energy crisis, he said.

Funds for camp

GRIZZLY BEAR Restaurant manager Ted Dalrymple presents a check for $485.00 to Chuck Upton, YMCA Director as the YMCA's profits from the recent Summer Camp Work Day held at the Grizzly Bear. Upton said the funds from the work day would be used to help poor youngsters pay for a trip to the YMCA's summer resident camp in July and to purchase summer camping equipment.

YMCA gains funds

TWIN FALLS — The Mountain Valley YMCA has received a check for $485 from the Grizzly Bear Pizza Restaurant.

Ted Dalrymple, manager of the restaurant, made the presentation to Chuck Upton, YMCA director.

Dalrymple said the funds were a result of the recent work day held at the Grizzly Bear on behalf of the YMCA.

Upton said the funds would be used in several ways. First, to help youngsters attend the YMCA's summer camp who could not afford the fee.

Second, if funds were available, the money would be used to purchase a canoe for camp, some craft equipment, and some overnight camping equipment for the older campers.

No arrests in plant threat

DENVER (UPI) — Federal and local officials said today they had made no arrests in a nuclear explosion threat against the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant last month.

Telephone threats and a letter were sent to Boulder County Attorney Alex Hunter April 28 by someone who called himself "The Black Cat." The writer threatened to destroy the plant with a nuclear weapon unless the money were paid and operations at the plant ended.

Although FBI officials treated the matter seriously, they said an analysis of the language, typewritten letter showed they were dealing with an "unsophisticated, political, unrealistic and non-violent" person.

Three independent technical review teams also studied the letter — which Hunter picked up at the Boulder Public Library — and came to the conclusion that the writer did not have the necessary scientific background to create and explode such a device.

The writer demanded that the plant, nine miles south of Boulder, cease its operations of manufacturing plutonium triggers for nuclear bombs, that the nuclear powers of the world meet within two years to disarm themselves, and that $10 million be deposited in a San Francisco bank.

A spokesman for Rockwell International, which operates the plant for the federal government, said there have been two or three other bomb threats since they began operating the facility in July, 1975.

"You know they're a hoax, but you take them seriously," the spokesman said.

Coors signs agreement after suit

DENVER (UPI) — Officials of the Adolph Coors Co. have signed an agreement in federal court promising not to use discriminatory employment practices, according to records on file in U.S. District Court Tuesday.

The agreement was the result of a suit filed against the brewery by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Sept. 19, 1975. The commission charged the brewery had "intentionally engaged in unlawful employment practices" since July 9, 1965.

The alleged unlawful practices involved firing, firing compensation and working conditions. The brewery was accused of maintaining a recruitment system that perpetuated a "non-minority male work force" and using job tests that gave unfair measurements of the capabilities of minorities and women.

Although Coors officials signed the agreement, they did not admit they had shown bias in the past against black, Chicano and female workers.

The agreement said Coors would continue a program of recruiting employees through minority job agencies, colleges and professional societies and does not and will not require high school diplomas for clerical, craft, semi-skilled, unskilled and service jobs.

The agreement was signed April 22 by Coors and commission officials, and signed by U.S. District Judge Fred M. Winner Monday. It was to have been kept secret until a news release was prepared by both sides, but the agreement was placed in the open court records Tuesday.

Reno site affected

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The U.S. Air Racing Association has asked the city council of Merced, Calif., for permission to stage the national championship air races there during the Labor Day weekend.

It could affect the status of the Reno National Championship Air Races, scheduled to begin Sept. 16. Without the sanction of USARA, they cannot run as the national championship event.

In recent years, the only national championship races have been conducted in Reno and Mojave, Calif. An association official says Reno is risking loss of the chamampionship events unless it restores the biplane and Formula oneless races.

Greyhound adopts ad guides

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Greyhound Corp. has adopted guidelines prohibiting the firm and its subsidiaries from advertising on television programs featuring excessive violence or anti-social behavior.

Gerald H. Trautman, board chairman, told the annual shareholders' meeting Tuesday there was growing concern among the general public about TV violence and explicit sexual behavior.

"The burden of proof that TV violence does not have a harmful effect, particularly on the young, lies with those who support violence on TV," Trautman said.

He said the guidelines state that the company will not knowingly schedule commercials on television programs which involve excessive violence, explicit sex or anti-social behavior; involve an inflammatory, prejudicial or controversial treatment of political, religious, life-style or other positions.

The firm also will not air its commercials in connection with movies or programs carrying "the mature audience" or "parental guidance" disclaimer, unless the programs have been pre-screened by the company or its advertising agency and found to be acceptable.

Among Greyhound subsidiaries affected by the guidelines are Armour and Co., Armour Food Co., Armour-Dial Co. and Armour Pharmaceutical Co.

State may end ad laws

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Legislature has taken a first step toward abolishing many state and local restrictions against advertising, the price of professional goods and services.

On a voice vote, without debate, the House Tuesday initially approved a bill in effect making it legal for dentists, funeral home operators and many other professionals to advertise.

The bill forbids imposition of regulations which now prohibit most professionals from advertising. The measure requires an additional House vote and Senate action before it is sent to Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

The bill does not permit advertising of most medical services and does not address the issue of legal service advertising, permitted by state law but prohibited by the bar association.

But the legislation does remove current state restrictions on advertising of dental services and equipment.

Also eliminated in the bill are prohibitions against advertising by podiatrists, chiropractors, electrologists, barbers, funeral homes and embalmers.

Sugar pact may stabilize markets

GENEVA (UPI) — Officials at the 80-nation sugar conference said Wednesday there is a 50-50 chance of getting a new International Sugar Agreement to stabilize world markets and prices.

They said the conference, a six-week session, is being flooded with proposals from all sides, but there has as yet been no discussion of the basic issue of minimum and maximum prices.

"Because of this it may be likely that a second session will have to be held in August or September," one official said. The current negotiations are scheduled to end May 27.

One of the latest proposals came from the United States, which is playing a major role in the conference.

U.S. negotiators outlined their plan for a special "Sugar Stabilization Fund" to help exporting countries meet their stocking obligations.

The U.S. proposal called for importing countries with net capital gross national product of $600 or more to contribute the dollar equivalent of 500,000 tons of sugar to such a fund with another 500,000 tons coming from exporting countries signing any agreement.

"Loans from the fund shall be made available only for the purpose of assisting exporting members to finance special stocks on proportion to their special stocking obligations," the proposal said.

"The rate of interest charged on loans from the Fund shall be such as to assure that the Fund is self-sustaining without additional contributions," it said.

The European Economic Community meanwhile outlined its proposal for a simple stockpile mechanism without any system of export quotas.

The Community is alone in refusing any form of export quotas. While the United States also favors a stocking arrangement to stabilize prices, it is prepared to agree to export quotas as well.

The Community's proposal said a stabilizing stock should be allocated equally between exporting and importing countries. It did not mention any specific amount of sugar to be held in stocks.

The Community position was bitterly attacked by Latin American countries-Brazil in particular.

African countries exporting sugar privately attack the Community stand but are being careful in the conference because of their guaranteed sugar exports to the Community under the Rome Convention.

House bans ocean for sewage dump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ignoring a warning that some cities might have to dump their sewage "in the streets," the House Merchant Marine Committee May 10 voted 22 to 12 to ban the dumping of sewage into the oceans after Dec. 31, 1981.

After heated debate, the committee agreed to an amendment by Rep. William Hughes, D-N.J., that would require the ocean dumping of sewage sludge to be ended "as soon as possible," but in any event by the end of 1981.

Rep. John Breaux, D-Or., objected that this would leave some communities with no place to dump their sewage.

"I don't want to be put in the position of telling the cities they have to put it in the streets," Breaux said.

EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle said in a letter sent to Chairman John Murphy, D-N.Y., shortly before the committee met that the Hughes amendment would create too much "rigidity" in dealing with the problem.

Costle said financing and other problems faced by some cities would "justify short extensions" of the 1981 deadline in some cases.

"We strongly believe it is in the public interest to have the administrative flexibility to deal with such delays. If they should develop and if they are unavoidable and not the result of bad-faith effort," Costle said.

Breaux, in arguing against the Hughes amendment, said it urged his colleagues to vote on the basis of "common sense rather than emotion."

Hughes said the amendment was needed to "protect the health and safety" of people who live along the seashores and those who might eat fish pointed by the dumping of wastes.

He said many cities were dragging their feet on finding alternatives to ocean dumping of sewage because it was the cheapest way to dispose of it.

"We have to serve notice on the polluters that the cheap way is no longer going to be accepted," Hughes said.

Birds repeat old Hitchcock movie

ANDERSON, Calif. (UPI) — Dotty Sherlock thought she was living through a scene of Alfred Hitchcock's horror movie, "The Birds."

Mrs. Sherlock, her husband and 11-year-old son were watching television Monday night when hundreds of birds mysteriously flew into the chimney of their home. It was the second such occurrence in the area of this Northern California town in four days.

"I saw it in the Hitchcock movie several years ago and all I could think was they were going to attack us," Mrs. Sherlock said Tuesday as firemen used buckets and large plastic bags to remove several hundred carcasses from her fireplace chimney.

State Department of Fish and Game officials were at a loss to explain the behavior of the birds, identified as vau's swifts. They nest in Northern California and spend the winter in Central and South America.

An official of the Audubon Society speculated that the birds could have been searching for a nesting habitat.

In the first incident last week, the birds flew down a chimney of a home at Redding, about 10 miles from here. They entered the residence and damaged the interior.

But a closed fireplace damper at the Sherlock home prevented the birds from getting into the rest of the house.

"They acted like they wanted to attack you," Mrs. Sherlock said. "It was just weird. That only happens in the movies."

The Hitchcock movie was filmed at Bodega Bay, Calif., on the northern coast southwest of Anderson. It depicted a town being taken over by birds.

Detective convicted

LONDON (UPI) — The former chief of Scotland Yard's obscene publications squad was found guilty today of accepting bribes from a pornography peddler.

Alfred W. Moody, a former detective chief superintendent, was convicted on three charges in a marathon Old Bailey trial.

The jury was still considering 27 other charges against Moody, 51, and five other former detectives of the Yard's obscenity team. Moody was acquitted on one further charge.

During the trial, which began Feb. 23, prosecutor David Tudor-Preece charged that Moody was "the principal architect" of a ring of corruption within the Yard's pornography-fighting squad.

Ronald Mason, a dealer in pornographic material, told the court he paid Moody $23,800 on one occasion and smaller sums on two others as a bribe to let Mason ply his trade. The jury convicted Moody today on all three bribery allegations.

Savings and loan firms file for Ketchum offices

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News Writer

KETCHUM — The First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls and a new state-chartered savings and loan association have filed with federal banking authorities to open branches in Ketchum.

However, the state-chartered association, Home State Savings and Loan Association, incorporated by seven Ketchum area residents, argues that the area can support only one savings and loan association.

Home State, which applied first, has filed a protest with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Seattle against First Federal's branch application.

The federal bank, which oversees savings and loan associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC), announced Monday it judged Home State's protest, as well as a similar protest lodged against First Federal's application by the Idaho Dept. of Finance, to "be substantial."

Copies of the two protests were mailed to First Federal in Twin Falls Monday. It has 15 days to answer them, according to Cheryl Lee, a senior analyst working on new applications with Federal Home Loan Bank of Seattle.

If no answer is made or no hearing requested, Lee said, the applications will be decided upon by banking officials in Washington, D.C.

First Federal's president, James Sinclair, said Monday he had not yet received copies of the protests. He said his firm did not mind if Home State had a branch in Ketchum, just as long as First Federal could also.

However, it might be difficult for Home State, a new institution, to survive in an area with a competing association because it would initially begin with limited lending capital.

"Due to the fact that we have so many loans in that area, we thought we should have a branch there," Sinclair said. "Having a branch up here would generate a lot in savings. Right now there is only $1 million (in Blaine) savings and $12 million in loans."

Home State filed application with the Idaho Dept. of Finance on Jan. 14, seeking permission to operate a state-chartered savings and loan association in Ketchum.

Shortly after a public hearing on the application was held in Boise on March 7, First Federal applied to open a branch in the same area.

Roy Leventhal, a Sun Valley resident who is "wife" of the organization of Home State, said the idea for the new association "came about out of my trying to buy a home in Sun Valley last winter and out of frustration in dealing with the lenders here."

There are no local savings and loans operating in Blaine County.

To date, there are no local savings and loans operating in Blaine County.

Leventhal and his wife began researching the feasibility of establishing a savings-and-loan and found there was a need for one. They said demographic and economic studies were highly encouraging too, revealing an area underserved by any savings and loan and with a growing population of relative wealth.

The idea of a domestic savings and loan to be incorporated by community members was then conceived. It would be organized on a capital stock basis with at least $500,000 paid in capital stock to start and with $250,000 paid in surplus on deposit in a bank.

Home State argues that, as an institution created by local residents, specifically to serve the local community, and with stock sold to community members, it would be more sensitive to community needs than a federally chartered association and as a wholly new institution it would encourage competition.

As John Harker, president of Elk Horn at Sun Valley and one of Home State's seven incorporators, put it, "We live here, we work here, we earn our money here. We want to be able to save here and provide a continuing source of funds for home-owning and building. And let's face it, to date, we've been totally subject to outside institutions and their availability of funds and their discretion as to what rates and to what rate refunds would be available."

"Basically, the grounds (of protest) are that a new institution such as ours is at a great disadvantage," Leventhal stated. "We've made a great investment into research and as soon as we filed, it is public record, and any competing association has access and insight into all we've done, and we feel this is not a realistic business situation."

"I think the strongest point we have to make is that this association is going to be owned and maintained by the people of Blaine County. The board of directors is made up of local residents, and the stockholders will be from the community. We feel First Federal had years and years to apply and did not. Then suddenly, they become interested after some private individuals have applied," Leventhal said.

The State Dept. of Finance is supporting Home State in the matter.

"Our protest essentially boiled down to the fact that there was no need for another savings and loan office in the same area," Mike Brassy, the department's deputy director, stated. "... As a general rule, our department favors the establishment of new savings and loans to the establishment of branches of existing savings and loan. The existence of new savings and loans creates competition."

Hospital costs to double in 5 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average hospital bill, $350 in 1965, now costs $1,300 and in five years will double to $2,600 — a "gargantuan ... galloping ... intolerable" increase, HEW Secretary Joseph Califano testified today.

Califano, presenting the administration's first congressional testimony on the proposed 9 percent-a-year ceiling on hospital costs, said taxpayers daily pay $48 million for hospital care provided under Medicare and Medicaid.

The cost of health insurance added $119 to the cost of each Ford automobile sold during 1975, he said.

"America simply cannot tolerate hospital costs that are rising at two-and-a-half-times the rate of inflation," the secretary-of-health, education and welfare told a joint hearing of two House health subcommittees.

"If unchecked, hospital costs will double within five years," he testified. "The time has come to firmly reign in these galloping increases."

He said that "gargantuan...intolerable" increases in hospital costs have made the public more concerned about health care costs than about interest.

Califano presented a hospital "fat list" from which, he said, more than $5 billion could be eliminated.

His proposal encountered opposition as the hearing began from Rep. Tim Wainwright, R-Ky., who said he feared its effects on small hospitals.

Califano said admission to hospitals on Fridays and Saturdays should be eliminated if laboratory and operating facilities are closed on weekends.

He said at least 100,000 unnecessary hospital beds are included on the "fat list."

Almost 16 percent of the 700,000 people now receiving care in acute care hospitals could be better cared for at home, in nursing homes, or as outpatients.

"These patients are generating excess charges of $7 million per day just for operating costs, or $2.6 billion per year," Califano said.

Energy conservation could save hospitals $332 million next year and nearly $500 million the following year, he said.

MV school rolls decline

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD — The biggest problem facing small schools in Magic Valley is falling enrollment, according to Neil Anderson, who resigned as Richfield superintendent after five years.

He will assume the superintendency at Mackay, effective July 1. Mackay High School has a student body of 200, compared to 55 in the Richfield secondary.

Richfield's enrollment has fallen by 20 per cent this past year, Anderson said, because several families with a large number of children moved away and "no one has moved in to place them."

This drop in enrollment has meant a loss of $15,000 to $17,000 in the amount the district received in state support through the average daily attendance (ADA) funding, Anderson said.

While Richfield has not yet had to drop any of its curriculum and gave teachers a small salary raise this past year, "things are getting real tight" with the district finances, the official said.

He said he did not see any trend of people moving from the area, but since no newcomers are moving in to "pick up the slack," the fact that several large families moved has made a considerable dent in the school financial situation.

Last year there were 70 students in Richfield High School and before that when the enrollment was between 80 and 85, it was easier to offer a wider curriculum.

No courses have been dropped, but "we're being financially strapped to continue," Anderson said. District cannot drop courses required by the state for graduation, but such things as music and home economics could be eliminated if the financial situation should make it necessary.

"Or we might not teach as many social studies classes as we do now," Anderson said.

Despite the negative financial aspect of a small school, the educator said he believes the small school "has some pluses to offer kids."

One is the closer student contact with teachers and the individual attention they receive.

"Students get an excellent opportunity to become involved in all types of extra curricular activity in a small school," he said.

Asked what possible effect he could foresee if the proposed coal-fired power plant should locate in Lincoln County, the superintendent said he would prefer to have the student enrollment increase from "more agriculturally oriented or agri-business than such an industry."

"If we could increase our enrollment through an agriculture-related population, it would be much more stable than a temporary large influx of people. If Lincoln County were to be chosen for the site," he said.

While Anderson said he was not prepared to comment on the effect of such a project as the power plant on the area, he said, "Obviously the tax base would rise, your ADA funding would go up, but the question would be if those factors would offset the cost of extra teachers and facilities needed."

Buhl approves subdivision, annexes school property

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

BUHL - Ordinances annexing 14.8 acres of Buhl School district land at the north edge of the city and creating a new subdivision were approved Tuesday night by Buhl City Council members.

The city annexed school property at the city's north boundary where the new $3.5 million high school will be erected. Dan Mabe, school superintendent, met with the council to discuss building plans and agree street easements would be provided.

The new subdivision is the Rainbow No. 2, which has previously been approved by the council.

Mayor Dale Christensen asked the council to decide if the city-wide sidewalk, curb and gutter program of last year should be continued. He said the effort resulted in a number of sidewalk replacements but it stopped last fall.

Council members agreed to continue urging downtown businesses to replace broken and worn walks, curbs and gutters in front of their property and to require new businesses to install walks.

Although residential property owners are also asked to cooperate in the effort city officials agreed to concentrate on the business district first.

Lawrence Fawcett, public works director, told the council the city's wells are now in full operation and is appears by doing the three main wells the reservoir will refill at night. He said not only is the city saving energy by having upgraded pumping equipment but is saving money. He said the No. 3 well which has pumped continuously for 30 years had been improved and the efficiency gain is considerable. Where the electric pump equipment was producing only about 550 gallons per minute, the production is now 700 to 800 gallons per minute with the same electrical energy consumption. Well No. 1 has also been improved and pumping speeded up to increase production.

Some additional larger water pipe is also being installed in several areas of the city to improve pressure in areas where residents have had difficulty during summer months. Most of these pressure areas will be improving as the lines are installed, he said.

Buhl City Council members agreed not to cut out street lights in the energy conservation effort but discussed reducing use of the baseball field lights by starting games a half hour early during summer months and turning the lights off after the last game, rather than leaving them on for practice.

Don Wolford and Westley Friesen met with the council to ask what steps should be taken to annex property west of town between Floral Avenue and U.S. 30 where they plan to develop a subdivision. They plan to make application for annexation when the property can comply with all requirements.

Postcard perfect

THIS SWEEPING panorama of the Snake River Canyon, cliffs, sky and canyon floor, looks like something one might find on an Idaho postcard. The shot, captured by Times-News photographer Lou Freeman earlier this week, is just another example of the pleasing sights around the Magic Valley.

The low-water level in the Snake River this year, also shown in this picture, is just another example of what the drought has done to the Magic Valley. Reservoirs, including Salmon Dam, near Hollister, have rings around their banks, land which used to be submerged.

IP offer declined

GOODING — A Gooding housewife who is spearheading opposition to location of the proposed coal-fired plant in Magic Valley has been invited to visit the Jim Bridge plant in Rock Springs, Wyo.

Karen Arkoosh said she had been invited by Idaho Power officials to fly to the Wyoming site, but had declined the offer, both because she has small children and because she felt it would be "improper to accept when I'm against their locating here."

Jesse Burns, manager of the Gooding office, said he had no comment on the invitation.

"People are being invited to visit the Jim Bridge plant all the time," he said. "I have nothing to do with who's invited or who goes."

Mrs. Arkoosh said a delegation of concerned residents from the Paul-Rupert area is expected to attend a public meeting to discuss opposition to the proposed plant, scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday in the Gooding County courtroom.

No weekly series

SUN VALLEY — The television pilot movie "Steadman," filmed here during the winter, will not be made into a weekly series as was hoped.

But NBC television executives reportedly liked the actors and location shots well enough that they have requested Columbia Pictures Television, the company which wrote and produced the pilot, to send its writers back to the drawing boards and come up with another series idea using this area as its location.

"Steadman," newly entitled "The Deadly Triangle," will be aired on national television for the first time at 8 p.m. next Thursday, as an NBC movie of the week.

"All we know is that they liked the actors, and they liked the concept, and at the moment, we're talking about the possibility of another pilot," Columbia Pictures Television's vice-president, Seymour Friedman, said about why the movie didn't make it as a series.

TF man asks hearing

TWIN FALLS — Randy Gee, 20, Twin Falls, requested a preliminary hearing when arraigned Wednesday before Magistrate Paul Smith on charges of extortion.

Band of $10,000 was continued and Gee remains in custody in the county jail, pending preliminary hearing.

He is charged with extortion in connection with an attempt to obtain $75,000 from a Twin Falls County resident. Officers said Gee was arrested at a remote area near Castletford where the victim had been ordered to leave the money. Officers said threats of bodily harm were made by the extortionist.

Counter offer made

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school board Wednesday night made a counter offer on salary to Twin Falls teachers, but neither side would say what the proposal was.

Both sides emphasized, however, that the withholding of information was not a return to the gag rule imposed on negotiations last year. Both promised release of the proposal following negotiations Monday night, no matter what the outcome of the session.

"We're both very much aware that the gag rule is not in effect," said Nick Nicholson, chief negotiator for the Twin Falls Education Association (TFEA), "but there are certain conversations in negotiations that must remain confidential for a short period of time."

"I think it's imperative that the TFEA and the board have a cooperative release on this for the benefit of both," said district superintendent Carl Snow.

Floating farms cause concern

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Construction of floating trout farms in the Snake River may hurt fishing, and upset bird nesting and traveling habits, state fish and game department officials here said this week.

Responding to recently disclosed plans by Valley Trout Farms, Inc., to build 13 floating hatcheries near the mouths of spring-fed streams along the Snake River, the officials voiced tentative reservations, saying they were unsure how bad problems could become.

"We're a little concerned over blocking off the mouths of these springs for fishing," said Bob Bell, fish and game department regional fisheries biologist. "The main thing we're concerned about is the lack of fisherman access."

The mouths of spring-fed streams on the Snake "are real popular," Bell said. "Some of the best fishing (on the Snake) is in this clear water."

In response, Valley Trout production manager Otto Lynn said fishermen would still have access to areas near the mouths of the streams. In addition, trout escaping from the farms would significantly improve the river fishing, he said.

Another possible problem, human activity on and near the floating farms, could disturb birds, upsetting their nesting and traveling habits, according to Gary Will, fish and game department regional manager. Banks along streams feeding into the Snake are prime brood rearing areas.

"The farms' impact on birds will depend on the kinds of human activity and how close the farms are to river banks, Will said.

Valley Trout will not put floating farms, consisting of cages for trout growing, closer than 100 yards from any major stream mouth, Lynn said.

"The farms, ranging up to 92,000 square feet in area, will consume surface water space that would otherwise be available to resting ducks and geese," Will added.

About 500,000 mallards winter along the Snake River from Lake Walcott to the CJ Strike Reservoir, resting along almost all the river as they travel in the river canyon.

"Often times the spring areas are the warmer areas in the dead of winter, and birds concentrate there," Will said. "At other times, they are the most productive areas for duck food (including aquatic insects and crustaceans)."

Valley Trout officials said, however, they don't think the farms will have a bad effect on ducks and other birds.

"Fish hatcheries are not a deterrent to duck nesting and rearing," Lynn said.

He noted the Hagerman federal hatchery is right next to the Hagerman Bird Refuge and on each floating platform would be a shed. Human activity around the platforms would be less than that at a more conventional hatchery because most feeding would be conducted through automatic feeders triggered by the river current. Ellis added.

Traffic to and from the platforms would only occur when a farm watchman needed to leave, and during stocking harvestings.

Farmer vs. farmer: irrigation water

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUIBERT — The order to cut back irrigation water in rural Minidoka County has turned neighbor against neighbor.

One "war" has already been averted. Two weeks ago the Minidoka Irrigation District ordered water cut off on all supplemental "water rights" and directed a cutback on primary rights to 50 per cent of the historical use on each canal.

But some farmers charge their neighbors with wholesale violations of the cutback order.

They say that while the MID shut off water to some supplemental water right holders, nearby farms continued to irrigate surplus water, because a "war" was not available to them.

Chairman Reuben Ketterling told the MID board of directors Tuesday that the MID "stopped a war" in one neighborhood north of Rupert.

Two watermasters and the district's ditch riders told the board in a closed session that they cannot maintain irrigation at half of historical use because they do not know what that historical use has been.

MID Manager Leonard Scheer said Tuesday the only way to manage the water is at the Minidoka Dam, where all the storage water for the district is taken from the Snake River.

He proposed monthly allotments for the district as a whole, shutting off the canal whenever that allotment has been used.

Lawrence Duffin, attorney for the district, supported that method as the ultimate control to assure that the district will not run out of irrigation water long before crops have matured.

"I have not pumped anywhere near as much as any one of my neighbors."

MID has never installed weirs and measuring devices to enable the district to measure the amount of water used by each farmer. The only accurate figures available are those furnished by the Bureau of Reclamation on the amount of water delivered to the district.

Several farmers have leveled charges that ditch riders are not administering the cutbacks equitably, either along the laterals or in the supplemental water shut-offs.

The MID board spent much of Tuesday trying to establish a method of equal enforcement of its temporary regulations while seeking a solution to a water shortage that their land once and are still using supplemental water "the last 2-3 days." He said some farmers are jockeyed off supplemental water and others not, while some have been off and are now turned back onto water.

Howard Corless, former member of the board, was called before the board on the charge that he was irrigating supplemental land. Corless told the board he irrigated part of his land from a sump hole with approval of his ditch rider.

"If you run out in July, he is going to be in a position to twist somebody's tail."

He said neighbors have already irrigated that land once and are still using supplemental water.

"I have not pumped anywhere near as much as any one of my neighbors," Corless said.

Don Kester, real estate agent and farmer north of Rupert, said some farmers have fertilized and have been irrigating with supplemental water "the last 2-3 days." He said some farmers are jockeyed off supplemental water and others not, while some have been off and are now turned back onto water.

Kester, who holds primary water rights on all his property, also questioned the district's authority to sell supplemental water at any time to anyone without a primary right. He also questioned the sale of supplemental water at the same price as for a primary right, since the supplemental water right holder paid nothing toward construction of facilities for the original irrigation project.

Also Kester warned the board, "If you run out in July, he (the farmer) is going to be in a position to twist somebody's tail."

That was the essence of the warning repeated several times by Duffin.

Ernest Handy-Heyburn, area farmer, proposed the district return to rotation irrigation.

"It worked for 40 years," he said. Scheer suggested that water from the drain ditch be used to irrigate supplemental acreage. He said he discussed the subject with Minidoka Project Superintendent Carlos Randolph, of the Bureau of Reclamation Monday and Randolph said the district had enough water to do it.

AGs take opposite sides in OSHA case

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Attorneys general from several states are clambering into opposite sides of the ring in a fight an Idaho businessman is waging against warrantless searches by the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

Idaho, Hawaii and Nevada attorneys general have decided to join the fight as "friends of the court" in support of Pocatello plumbing contractor Ferrol G. "Bill" Barlow's challenge to be heard in the U.S. Supreme Court in the fall.

Barlow won the first round late last year when a three-judge federal court in Idaho ruled warrantless searches of businesses by OSHA are unconstitutional.

On the other side, Minnesota's attorney general has been made by the attorneys general of Wyoming and Vermont and Pennsylvania's top law officer is said to be a pretty definite supporter.

However, Wyoming's attorney general now is wavering and may step aside to neutral ground, according to Larry Bobbitt, an assistant attorney general for that state.

Several states still on the sidelines are expected to enter the ring.

Leading towards Barlow's side are attorneys general of Mississippi, Puerto Rico, Indiana and North Dakota. Likely to enter the OSHA corner are attorneys general from New Jersey, the Carolinas and New Mexico.

As friends of the court, the attorneys general would join in written argument supporting either Barlow or OSHA. Only the main contestants — Barlow and OSHA — would be likely to give oral argument before the court.

All these parties agree on the issue to be argued — whether warrantless inspections by OSHA violate the Constitution's Fourth Amendment which provides against unreasonable searches.

"This is a classic case to test what the Fourth Amendment means and how far it extends," Idaho's Attorney General Wayne Kidwell said.

Under the law that created OSHA, he said, agency inspectors do not have to have warrants or to show "probable cause" to enter a business. "It's up to the particular whim of the inspector whether to go in."

Kidwell argued long legal precedent has established that the government cannot enter a private place of business without either a warrant or a reasonable belief that harm could be done if it did not take quick action.

"Allowing a federal administrative agency to conduct warrantless searches upon whim and without probable cause represents one more crevice in the crumbling dam holding our constitutional freedoms," Kidwell argued in a letter last month to the National Association of Attorneys General.

If the Supreme Court upholds Barlow, he said, warrantless inspection powers of some federal agencies besides OSHA, such as the Environmental Protection Agency, will be eliminated.

However, businesses, such as restaurants, which need a license to operate could be inspected without warrant by the licensing body, he said.

On OSHA's side, Minnesota Assistant Attorney General Steve Gunn said that elimination of the warrantless searches would create "a very large enforcement problem" in providing for workers' safety.

As an example, he said, on a large construction site any one of several contractors could stop a warrantless inspection and "endanger all employees at the site."

The purpose of the Fourth Amendment, Gunn said, is to protect people's privacy.

Businesses, "have no expectation of privacy," he said. "There's everybody in the world on that job site who has any reason to be there. It's not at all like going into somebody's home" when OSHA inspectors visit businesses to check safety conditions.

Slight gains for wheat; spuds, meats slip again

(Courtesy Sinclair & Co.) CHICAGO — Thanks to a lower winter wheat crop estimate, wheat futures were up only the only grain in Wednesday trading. Other grains and meats were generally lower as were potatoes.

The May 7th delivery of Western russet potato futures led 4 cents, closing at 9.21 per hundredweight. Commodity News Service said Maine spuds declined in order manner, losing 8 to 16 points on 58 lbs. A major factor in the decline was a federal spring production estimate of 22.7 million cwt., slightly above April's estimate of 21.4 million and last year's 21.8 million. Other constructive fundamentals were absent. Scale down trade buying of March-November spread was the dominant factor in the market.

The smaller federal wheat crop estimate of 1.477 billion bushels — below trader estimates and 6 per cent under 1976 production — joined farmer Gulf premiums and a reactivating export market in producing a costly performance by wheat. The finish was 1 to 2 cents higher. Japan bought 97,000 tons of U.S. wheat and more from Canada and Australia, while Chile, Algeria, Zambia and Yemen are other prospective customers.

Livestock

OMAHA (UPI) — Livestock prices were mixed but mostly lower. The carcass trade weakened further, to 64 cents a pound. Feeder-cattle closed lower after a moderate trade, with liquidation the main factor. At the end, May was down in September down 27 and distant April down 40. Volume was 396 contracts.

Live hogs settled in the lower end of trading ranges on a late break. Limit declines in beans pressured hogs and profit taking sparked the break with the close off 5 to 6 points. Volume was 5,844 contracts. Pork bellies broke sharply prompted some commission house selling. New York Sugar 11 closed 3 points lower to 6 higher in sparse trading of about 3,000 lots. Futures held in a narrow range, drifting near the close on speculative liquidation. New York Cornex silver-copper and soybeans crashed, with final values down 400 to 380 points on 12,700 contracts traded.

New York Cornes gold, wound up with losses of 30 to 50 points as only light support was forthcoming in the face of late selling after slight gains earlier. Volume was 1,368 lots.

DEARBORN, Mich., gas station owner Lee Johnson, the only independent Black businessman operating in the mostly white Detroit suburb, said Tuesday that he is closing up shop because of racial harassment. "I'm not the right complexion to make it in this city," he

Helicopter story denied

KUWAIT (UPI) — Kuwait has denied suggestions that a lost 1975 shipment of 13 helicopters ended up in Israel, the Kuwait Times said today. The newspaper said some of the helicopters might have gone to PLO guerrillas. Interior and Defense Minister Sheikh Saad al-Abdulla said a report which suggested that Israeli agents had stolen 13 helicopters in Beirut and enroute to Kuwait, was "misleading and completely contrary to the truth." The Jordanian newspaper Ad Dstour published the report Tuesday.

However, the Kuwait Times quoted Palestine Liberation Organization sources as saying some of the helicopters might have gone to PLO guerrillas and others ended up in Israel. The sources said in 1969 the PLO acquired about 10 helicopters, "possibly Italian," in a bid to beef up resupply operations to guerrillas. "Until then, the PLO had been using camels, to ferry goods, but these were easily spotted by Israeli aircraft and readily attacked," they said. "To operate the choppers, the PLO had trained pilots in Algeria, Morocco and Libya." The sources also said the PLO purchased more helicopters in 1975; at the same time as the 13 helicopters disappeared. "They said the plane arrived Beirut's port, then controlled by Christian Phalangists, adversaries of the PLO."

Product safety studied

Chicago Daily News CHICAGO — About 30,000 Americans lose their lives and another 20 million suffer injuries yearly from products in the home.

Product safety increasingly worries manufacturers and their insurers because of a national trend toward large damage awards by juries in product liability suits. What to do? The safety of consumer products should be passed on by informal, but professional, investigative groups, said Alvin Weinstein, professor of mechanical engineering and public policy at Carnegie-Mellon University. He'd like to see such panels evaluate both new and existing products.

Weinstein is in Chicago for a conference on product safety that's part of the Design Engineering Show. The review panel he has in mind would evaluate products both on its own initiative and upon presentation by the manufacturer.

PLO linked to US auto insurance fraud

WASHINGTON Star When police in suburban Fairfax County, Va., responded on a child, clear night last December to a report of an auto accident they found nothing out of the ordinary. The car had slammed into the rear of another on a stretch of well-lighted, dry highway near the Alexandria city limits.

It was a seemingly routine mishap. No injuries, just the usual mangled front and rear ends of two late-model cars. The police report estimated the damage to be $1,300.

Injections OK'd for execution

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Oklahoma has become the first state to approve using lethal injections to execute condemned criminals.

Gov. David Boren Tuesday signed the bill to replace the electric chair with lethal drug injection. Sponsors of the measure said lethal drugs are more humane than the electric chair and called the latter a "violent" method that would encourage more violence.

Opponents contended lethal drugs would not provide as much deterrence to crime as electrocution.

Boren signed the lethal drug execution bill less than 24 hours after the legislature had given final approval. The new law will take effect 90 days after legislative adjournment, expected in early June.

Several other states have been considering drug injections for executions. The bill provides for execution of a criminal by a dual injection of drugs — one to put the victim to sleep and the second to kill.

The bill states if the courts should hold the drug method unconstitutional, the state would revert to the old method of executions in the electric chair. If both methods are ruled unconstitutional, the bill provides a new alternative — the firing squad.

The bill provides for execution by a "continuous, intravenous administration of a lethal quantity of an ultra-short-acting barbiturate in combination with a chemical paralytic agent" until death is pronounced. Sponsors said the method would result in death in less than five minutes.

The bill was authored by Sen. Bill Dawson, D-Seminole, and Rep. Bill Wiseman, R-Tulsa. Oklahoma was also the first state to reinstate the death penalty after the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the capital punishment laws of Oklahoma and several other states last summer.

It appeared to be only coincidental that both drivers identified themselves as "students" from the Middle East. One had tags on his car from a Midwestern state, the other local plates. The drivers didn't appear to know each other, even though their suburban Washington addresses were nearby.

But today that routine accident figures in a nationwide insurance investigation with international implications. It is the first incident in the Washington area to be linked to an alleged fraud scheme with a security connection to the Palestine Liberation Organization. Insurance investigators claim they have evidence that several hundred accidents, including the one in Fairfax, involving young Middle Easterners were allegedly rigged to defraud their companies out of millions of dollars. And there are strong suspicions that the money from settlements of some of the claims were sent out of the country to finance Arab nationalist groups such as the PLO.

The national investigation, in progress for about a year, is being headed by James McMullen, the Los Angeles-based director of security for the Farmers Insurance Group. According to McMullen, alleged fraudulent claims totaling $5 million have been made since 1971 to about two dozen insurance companies by a loose-knit group of young Middle Easterners, mostly exchange students. He said the number of persons involved in the scheme "exceeds 125 or 150."

McMullen said the $3,500 claim involved by the Fairfax accident had been sent to him by a "suspicious" agent as a result of an "invest" he conducted within the industry. Insurance agents were told to watch for claims by persons "with certain ethnic names and origins," McMullen said.

"When the claim reached my desk," the insurance investigator added, "we requested a background investigation. It showed a lot of things about these people that I can't disclose." But McMullen indicated that criminal charges may be sought in the case.

"The evidence is circumstantial, but strong," he said, adding that the insurance claim already had been denied. Based on information from informants, McMullen said, "We have evidence that some of the money paid out by the companies has left the U.S." and was sent to nationalist organizations in the Middle East.

Experts axe nuclear bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four experts in the commercial nuclear field today warned Congress that President Carter's proposed nuclear nonproliferation bill is unworkable because "the genie is pretty well out of the bottle."

The committee is discussing an administration bill to control the spread of nuclear weapons capability by restricting the supply of plutonium and nuclear fuel reprocessing in general.

But Vice Chairman Alonzo C. Trowbridge of Allied Chemical Corp. said, "With six foreign countries now having reprocessing facilities—and an additional eight having the capability of building reprocessing facilities—the genie is pretty well out of the bottle."

Trowbridge and other experts told a Senate subcommittee on Energy and Nuclear Proliferation that Carter's plan was laudatory, but impractical.

But the witnesses—who said they were for nonproliferation of nuclear weapons—saw flaws, weaknesses and loopholes in the proposed law which they said could also result in serious damage to U.S. credibility and prestige abroad.

Trowbridge said Congress and previous administrations had encouraged private industry to enter the reprocessing business, but is now reversing that trend.

If the United States does not provide reprocessing, he said, "other nations may step into the breach to the detriment of this country, its nuclear industry and the goal of nonproliferation."

Carl Walske, president of the Atomic Industrial Forum Inc., said he had recently talked to nuclear industrial experts in Europe and Japan and "in all these countries there is general dismay with U.S. civil nuclear policy. Both industry and government officials consider President Carter's policy to be unfair and, worse still, counterproductive to its objectives."

Joseph R. Dietrich, chief scientist of the Nuclear Power Systems of Combustion Engineering Inc., said he did not believe the United States could fulfill obligations under the proposed legislation to assure nuclear fuel supplies indefinitely to all nations which conform to its policy.

Louis M. Favret, vice president of Nuclear Divisions of Babcock and Wilcox Co., said the restrictive approaches in the new bill "would not only fail to accomplish their intended purpose, but may result in the loss by this country of the opportunity that it now has to influence world nuclear policy."

Talks may settle Rhodesian dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Britain announced Wednesday they will resume "intensive consultations" with all parties to the Rhodesian dispute in hopes of achieving a transition to black majority rule in 1978.

Joint announcements in Washington and London said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Britain's Foreign Secretary David Owen agreed in London last week to send a special Anglo-American mission to Africa for fresh negotiation of the Rhodesian crisis.

In identically worded statements, the two governments restated "their determination to work for the independence of Rhodesia (under black majority rule) in 1978."

"They have been encouraged by their contacts so far to believe that detailed consultations about an independence constitution and the necessary transitional arrangements could be a satisfactory way to achieve this."

"They have, therefore, agreed that Britain and the United States should now enter into a phase of intensive consultations with the parties."

To carry out that mission, the statements said, Vance and Owen agreed to establish "a consultative group to make contact with the parties which will visit the area as necessary, including Salisbury," Rhodesia's capital.

In London, Owen said the group, headed by a senior Foreign Office official, will leave for Africa next week. He said Vance will name a senior U.S. official to work with the British group.

Earlier Wednesday, U.S. diplomatic sources in London outlined a purported new Anglo-American plan for a Rhodesian settlement that calls for a transition to black majority rule by late 1978.

They said the plan had the full support of the U.S. government, which was prepared to provide guarantees to back up the transition proposals.

"Press reports from Rhodesia monitored at the State Department Wednesday said that 'whatever the truth' about the Owen plan, 'nothing has happened since the statement of Prime Minister Ian Smith last week warning Rhodesians against a rising mood of euphoria.'"

The London sources said the Owen plan concentrates on drawing up a constitution for Rhodesia only after independence has been achieved in late 1978, rather than making a constitutional conference part of the transition process.

Military told to act strictly within law

N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has told the members of the various military intelligence agencies that their operations should be conducted "strictly within the law," and that he expects them to report "without hesitation" any abuses, improprieties, or illegalities which occur.

The order, which was contained in a memorandum obtained by The New York Times, also affirms the broad power of the recently established Inspector General for Defense Intelligence to investigate all "regardless of security classification."

The order by the new secretary comes at a time when both the White House and the Congress are insisting that they intend to exert stronger oversight, in the wake of widely-publicized abuses by the intelligence community,

According to one military intelligence official, the purpose of the Feb. 8 memorandum was both to give Brown's backing to the inspector general and to try to insure that he won't have to spend time "mired in the intelligence nightmares of past administrations."

The memorandum, which was addressed to the heads of the National Security Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, and the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, said that Brown was aware of the crucial role of defense intelligence, and intended to give it a high priority during his tenure.

But it also said that he would "not condone... activities which violate or infringe on the constitutional rights of United States citizens," and added that he expected any such abuses to be reported immediately.

Camas High loses TV ed programs

FAIRFIELD — The large dish-shaped antenna which beamed educational TV programs to the Camas High School for the past several years is gone—but the school is still benefitting—from—the federally funded project.

Supt. Harold Stroud said Wednesday the satellite which transmitted educational-TV programs originating in Denver throughout the western states has been taken to India. The satellite is now floating above that country so educational programs can be beamed to residents there.

Fairfield was the only school in Magic Valley participating in the program which was paid for by special funding under a federal Satellite TV Education Program.

Stroud said Camas High School teachers taped the programs which dealt with different professions and occupations and "we have built up quite a library." The tapes are still being put to good use, he said.

The programs which were originated in Denver were picked up by the satellite and any school district having the large antenna could receive them, Stroud said. He said schools in Nevada, Challis, McCall and Vallivue High School in Treasure Valley also participated in the project.

The Camas School Board is holding an auction of surplus equipment sometime in June. One of the items is a black and white TV set, but it is not the one used in the educational TV project, Stroud said.

Other items to be sold include typewriters, desks, a welder, pickup truck, electric sewing machine and record players.

In other business at the monthly trustee meeting, the board hired Martin Bellamy to replace Shirley Hansen as home economics teacher.

The board will work on the budget the evening of May 17 after canvassing results of that day's trustee election.

Family transit cost up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty per cent of the money an average American family spends now goes to transportation. The Labor Department says.

A department survey said Tuesday transportation spending increased more between the 1960s and 1970s than food or housing expenditures. And the percentage of income spent on food actually declined from 24.4 per cent to 20.1 per cent based in a comparison of spending patterns in 1960-61 and 1972-73.

The survey showed a single family spent an average of $5,054 in the early 1960s, compared to $8,282 in the early 1970s. More than 50 per cent of those surveyed were one and two-person families.

Average spending for transportation increased from 15 per cent to 20 per cent of total family expenditures between the two decades, the survey showed. The increase to $1,768 in the early 1970s was attributed to higher prices for cars, finance charges, maintenance and gasoline.

They described Alfred as the "priesthood" leader of a band of excommunicated Mormons — which they said had more than 1,000 members — who still practice polygamy.

The naturopathic surgeon, who owned three large homes in the Salt Lake area, including a $100,000 apartment that housed part of his family, had in the past claimed more than six wives and 40 children. One of his followers said he had 18 wives.

There are several thousand polygamists — estimates run as high as 30,000 — still practicing plural marriage in this region.

The Mormon Church gave up the practice in the 1890s as the price of obtaining statehood for Utah and now excommunicates polygamists.

Sect queried about slaying

MURRAY, Utah (UPI) — Authorities questioned members of a polygamist sect Wednesday about the slaying of their elderly leader by two young women who walked into his office and opened fire with pistols.

Police Sgt. Paul Forbes said investigators were starting "in-depth interviews" with followers of Dr. Rulon C. Allred, 71, Taylorsville, a naturopathic surgeon who claimed at least a half dozen wives and 40 children.

Officers were looking for a motive in the killing of Allred, who was hit at least seven times Tuesday by bullets from two different handguns and was pronounced dead at his office in this Salt Lake City suburb.

In a television interview two years ago, the victim said he might be the target of rival polygamist sects, but did not say which ones.

Two slim women in their early 20s, clad in tee-shirts, jeans and light jackets, walked into Allred's laboratory-office and opened fire in full view of patients sitting in a waiting room. The killers ran from the building on foot.

Allred served five months in Utah State Prison in 1945 for practicing polygamy, was the leader of one of the many "fundamentalist Mormon" sects which dot this region.

Forbes said he was still winnowing "information on the polygamist sect volunteered to us by all kinds of people" as well as evidence gathered at the doctor's office.

"We have no one in custody and haven't narrowed down our investigation," he said.

As word of the killing spread late Tuesday, some of the wealthy polygamist's weeping followers lined the street in front of the office building.

Government spokesman Armin Grünwald, asked if Schmidt had informed Carter of the planned freeze, said, "Not that I am aware of."

Breeder reactor fund cut planned

ANN, West Germany (UPI) — The West German government, in a step that could meet some of President Carter's objections to its nuclear program, is planning cutting off new funds for the controversial fast breeder reactor, a spokesman said Wednesday.

A move to limit research in the further development of the reactor which uses plutonium, the key ingredient of atomic bombs, came to light after Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's return from the London summit conference.

At the conference, Carter, who has halted work in the United States on a fast breeder nuclear reactor, discussed with Schmidt the nuclear proliferation issue, which troubled American-German relations.

There was no sign, however, that West Germany was considering backing away from its controversial agreement to supply Brazil with nuclear technology, an agreement opposed by Carter. Government spokesmen told reporters members of the ruling Social Democrats in the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, have approved a proposal to the budget committee to freeze an appropriation of $5.6 million for the continued development of fast breeder reactors until questions concerning security and the problems involved with plutonium are answered.

Government spokesman Armin Grünwald, asked if Schmidt had informed Carter of the planned freeze, said, "Not that I am aware of."

New law involves landowner

BOISE (UPI) — It will be a misdemeanor after July 1 for a property owner to permit the existence of traffic hazards at intersections that interfere with the vision of motorists.

Hedges, shrubbery, fences, walls, signs and other obstructions must be removed under a new section of the Idaho Vehicle Code "if they are located in the intersection sight triangle and constitute a traffic hazard," the Transportation Department said today.

Buildings and trees are excluded under the law.

The new section will apply to state highways and local roads or streets. Intersections are classed as junctions of two roadways or a roadway and a railroad.

The intersection sight triangle is determined by measuring back 40 feet along the edges of the two intersecting roadways then connecting the two extreme points. No obstructions are permitted that extend three feet above the roadway elevation.

US winter wheat crop drops 6%

Snake flow checked

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1977 winter wheat crop, threatened by drought until recent spring rains, will be 6 per cent smaller than last year's harvest, the Agriculture Department says.

In spite of the decline, the harvest still could be more than enough to keep grower prices depressed for another year, and it could force the Agriculture Department into serious consideration of production controls for the 1978 crop.

The department's Crop Reporting Board Tuesday estimated the 1977 winter wheat crop on the basis of May 1 conditions at 1.5 billion bushels, down 89 million bushels from 1976, but 3 per cent above the last forecast of this year's crop.

The previous 1977 forecast was issued in December at a time when drought threatened wide areas of the Plains. The new report said in the wake of recent rains, wheat conditions were good except in the still drought-ridden areas of California and the Pacific Northwest.

The 6 per cent decline from last year's winter wheat production was due partly to the fact that farmers in some regions where conditions allow planting of other crops switched away from wheat this season because prices were low. The total acreage of winter wheat for harvest was estimated at 47.8 million compared to 49.5 million in 1976.

Per-acre yields were estimated at 30.9 bushels compared with 31.6 bushels last season.

For consumers, the prospect of a big wheat supply — part of which can be fed to livestock as a supplement to traditional "feed" grains like corn — should help restrain future retail food price increases. But it is not likely to mean any substantial cuts in bread prices.

Wheat makes up only a small fraction of the consumer price of bread. In March, for example, consumers were paying an average of 35.2 cents a loaf for bread, unchanged from a year earlier. The farmer's return for wheat in the loaf in March was 2.8 cents — down 38 per cent from a year earlier.

Department records showed the sharp decline in the value of wheat in bread was offset during the year by increases in processing, distributing and other marketing costs.

The May 1 wheat estimate did not include any forecast of the spring wheat crop. If it reaches 500 million bushels — which experts say it could with continued good weather — the total 1977 harvest could be near 2 billion bushels.

A crop of 1.4 billion bushels below the 1976 record of 2.14 billion bushels, would be substantially above current forecasts of demand for the 1977-78 marketing season. This would virtually guarantee a continued increase in the large carryover (reserve), expected to stand at 1.12 billion bushels next month before the 1977 crop begins moving to market.

With prospects that the reserve could be several hundred million bushels higher in mid-1978 — because this year's crop will exceed probable domestic and export sales unless weather conditions turn unexpectedly bad abroad — Agriculture Secretary Bob Berglund has already indicated there is a chance he would have to impose "set aside" regulations on the 1978 wheat crop.

Under these standby regulations, which have not been used since 1973, growers who want to qualify for price support aid are required to set aside, or idle, part of their cropland.

In Kansas, the leading winter wheat state, the 1977 crop was estimated on the basis of May 1 conditions at 384 million bushels, compared with 354.4 million forecast in December and last year's crop of 339 million bushels.

Prospects in other leading states compared with last year, in bushels, included:

- Nebraska: 105.7 million (194.4 million)
- Oklahoma: 162.5 million (151.2 million)
- Texas: 101.2 million (103.4 million)
- Washington: 94.5 million (132.7 million)
- Colorado: 54.96 million (47.3 million)
- California: 42.63 million (53.32 million)
- Illinois: 21.23 million (17.15 million)
- Ohio: 63 million (66 million)
- Oregon: 39.6 million (56.12 million)
- Indiana: 47.5 million (57.6 million)
- Montana: 75.6 million (98.56 million)

Wheat outlook dim

BOISE (UPI) — Dry weather has dimmed the prospects of winter wheat by 23 per cent, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

This year's crop is expected to be 23 per cent less than the 1976 crop, the service said.

The agency reported the lack of precipitation last fall was the prime cause of the decline in prospects.

Fewer acres harvested and yields lowered by seven bushels per acre this year accounted for the reduction.

Hot streaks on May 1 were substantially above last year's stocks by more than 200,000 tons, according to the service, since feed demands were high due to open weather.

Loan applications open

BOISE (UPI) — Drought-stricken Idaho farmers can apply for emergency loans through the Farmers Home Administration, L. Ray Peterson, acting state director, said.

Peterson said the national Inter-Agency Drought Emergency Coordinating Committee had declared 37 Idaho counties eligible for federal assistance.

Heat finally fades from coffee market

By N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — The heat has finally gone out of the coffee market.

For the last four weeks, prices of green (unroasted) beans deliverable this month have dropped by 64 cents a pound. Last week alone the drop was 22 cents.

Does this mean that coffee lovers can expect lower prices at the supermarket soon? Not necessarily, according to coffee traders. All it means at the moment is that the year-long rise in coffee prices may be leveling off.

The recent prices paid by roasters before the market decline still will run through the processing and marketing pipeline, they noted. Normally, the time lag between picking up green beans from the dock in New York and placing the tins and jars on the store shelves is 50 to 90 days.

However, the traders, who do not like to be identified because their comments may reveal their stance in the marketplace, said that many roasters tended to average out costs before pricing their brands. This factor may take some of the edge off retail prices in the coming weeks.

Generally, roasters, such as the big food companies, keep a 14-week supply of the green beans on hand. But most traders hold that their stocks today may be far greater and still mounting.

The reason is that many consumers hoarded coffee during the height of the price rises, while those who did not heard have cut their consumption of the beverage since last winter. Indeed one of the major debates in the market today centers on the magnitude of the decline in consumption.

One thing the roasters know is that they are heading into their slowest sales season — summer — thus they have even less incentive to build inventories now.

What the roasters have been doing of late, particularly since the market began to break a month ago, is to buy supplies from the "pools" that result from "limit down" days on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. The system works as follows:

When coffee futures prices drop the daily permissible limit of 6 cents a pound on all but the immediate monthly delivery, which has no such restrictions, sales at lower prices are permitted.

This creates pools of unsatisfied sell orders at the close of trading.

Last Friday, for example, the July, 1977, contract dropped the limit to close at $2.84 a pound. Interested roasters and others were thus able to buy July deliveries from the pool at that price. The contracts in the sell pool are selected by lot each trading day in which there is a limit decline.

Because there were limit declines most days last week, roasters were able to pick up relatively cheap beans after each session. The pool buying also helped distressed traders eager to sell out.

How distressed the unlucky traders were may be gauged from the fact that each one-cent decline in the price of a coffee contract represents $375 because every contract consists of 37,500 pounds.

Aside from the "bargains" obtained by roasters in recent weeks, consumers may also benefit from the practice used by the big food companies to buy in bulk in supermarkets. Should green coffee prices continue to decline, the food companies are expected to increasingly offer the beverage at concessionary prices to the chains.

Cuban sugar dump eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Normalization of trade relations with Cuba could open the door to dumping Cuban sugar on the U.S. market where farmers are "already hard-pressed because of a glut of foreign imports," Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Wednesday.

Church objected to an amendment to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee authorizing full trade between the two countries, saying "It is much too big a unilateral step for the United States to take."

The committee adopted a compromise amendment authorizing one-way trade only — allowing U.S. agricultural commodities and medical supplies to be sold to Cuba but continuing a prohibition on Cuban imports to this country.

"Such a step would allow Cuban purchases of American agricultural products if they choose to buy, without allowing the Cubans to inundate the American market with sugar," Church said.

He said it should "not be taken until Cuba has indicated it is willing to make concessions which would warrant normalization of trade relations on both sides," Church said.

Further steps toward normalizing trade relations with Cuba should await "positive signs that Cuba is willing to make concessions important to the United States."

The compromise amendment was added to the pending Foreign Relations Authorization Act of 1977.

Satellite use clouded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A pair of U.S. satellites circling Earth 14 times a day could help underdeveloped countries locate valuable natural resources, according to a committee of the National Academy of Sciences.

But underdeveloped nations' concern with sovereignty, national security and economic vulnerability pose a hurdle for using U.S. satellites as a mapping tool, said the report to the Agency for International Development.

International control of the satellite system may overcome the anxiety, it said.

Brazilian coffee output rebounding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Coffee production in Brazil, the world's biggest coffee supplier, is rebounding sharply this year but remains well below normal, the Agriculture Department said today.

Increased coffee production is expected to eventually reduce skyrocketing coffee prices.

Department officials estimated the upcoming crop at 17 million bags, up 79 per cent from last year. It was their first forecast of the 1977-78 Brazilian harvest.

But the officials noted the new forecast is still well below the 25.2 million bags production level in the two years before a 1975 freeze cut production sharply last season.

Experts said production is not expected to return to pre-freeze levels until the 1979-80 crop year — two years from now.

claim of the Crow Indian Tribe in Montana to the bed of the Big Horn River where it passes through their reservation.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals recently decided in the Indians' favor and Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota are "appealing" as friends of the court.

Idaho park solution proposed

BOISE (UPI) — State officials believe they have found a way for Idaho to accept the gift of Harriman State Park in eastern Idaho.

The Harriman family gave the state title March 31 to some 16,000 acres of land through their Island Park Land and Cattle Co., a firm incorporated in Utah.

The gift included four shares of stock in the company, one of which already belonged to the Idaho Parks Foundation. But the Idaho Constitution prohibits — the state — from owning stock and this created a cloud on the state's acceptance of the gift.

Now, however, the state believes it can resolve the problem. M. Karl Shurtliff, staff legal adviser to Gov. John V. Evans, said attorney Robert E. Smylie, Boise, has suggested dissolving the corporation so the state can secure the $8 million gift.

PACE SETTING Brian Ochsner of Filer won the two-mile in 9:53.5 in the A-3 district meet and set a pace that drew good 12 others under the state qualifying mark Wednesday evening.

Ochsner leads 13 two-milers to state; Swan, McAnulty set A-3 district marks

TWIN FALLS — Filer sophomore Brian Ochsner led a parade of "let's go to state" in the two-mile Wednesday night to kick off the district A-3 track championships.

Ochsner won the finals of the two-mile, one of six finals slated for the night, but basically, the session was set aside to establish the finalists for the semifinals Saturday at Twin Falls, Brin Stadium.

Filer took a good edge in both the boys and girls divisions and the Wildcats are expected to win both titles in their first appearance in the A-3 classification.

The A-3 sit back now until the day-long session Saturday while the A-1 and A-2 track teams move into the stadium Thursday to begin qualifying for the state finals in Boise the following weekend.

Ochsner lapped some of the field by two laps as he romped to a 9:53.5 clock in his second attempt at the long distance this spring.

But the most obvious point of that race was the A-3 two-milers haven't been giving maximum efforts — until Ochsner set the rabbit-like pace. With a state qualifying time of a modest 10:55 to beat, no less than 13 A-3 two-milers came across in time to clinch a trip to state.

While the qualifying time was not prestigious by any means, the result of the race should have been a little embarrassing to the participants. Very few of the A-3 two-mile runs in various meets this spring in Magic Valley have been clocked at the 10:55 mark.

Ochsner took it out well, turning a 64-second first lap and those capable stayed on his heels. But after about 600 yards, Ochsner started moving away and his victory edge was perhaps 150 yards. Even then, the race for second through fifth was nothing less than a 220-yard sprint duel which indicated there was something left in those athletes.

Ochsner, who is an odds-on favorite to win the mile Saturday and very probably will double in state in the long distances, led three Filer men across the line in the top six.

Blastock finished fifth in a photo finish while Moody was sixth. The two-mile meant 13th points for the Wildcats in their bid for the title.

Meanwhile, Beth Ruprecht added the other track championship to the Filer girls side of the ledger when she won the mile. She and Friedland and Ainsworth of Hagerman and Viner of Glens Ferry ran a four-girl race throughout the final three, quarters with Ruprecht coming through in the stretch to win in 5:46.7.

A pair of district records were set in the four field finals conducted Wednesday.

Defending state champion Matt Swan went 44-11 in the triple jump to set one mark and the other came when McAnulty of Glens Ferry won the girls' discus at 115-1.

Swan, who is interested in pursuing distance jumping collegiately, had a near two-foot edge over runner-up Bryan Human of Valley Hills. Willis of Glens Ferry was third at 41-11, and all three will advance to state.

In the girls' discus, McAnulty was all alone at 115-1. Jensen of Hagerman finished second well back at 97-11 but just five inches ahead of Glens Ferry's Wertz. Again the top three qualified for state.

Love of Shoshone took the shotput championship at 47-4, to turn back the double pronged attack of Filer's Silvester and Jerry Shaffer, who went 46.5 and 44.9, respectively. The disappointment there was Goringe of Oakley who had an early season mark of just over 50 feet but staggered home fifth at 42.6 Wednesday.

Johnson of Filer took the girls' high jump at 5-04 1/4, a scant quarter inch ahead of Bates of Murtaugh. Also qualifying for state through the predetermined standards were Hancock of Hansen and Anderson of Richfield at 4-10 and C. Gough, Hagerman, and Ivie, Shoshone, and C. Thompson, Kimberly, at 4-8.

The rest of the A-3 athletes going to state and the team titles will be decided Saturday again at Brin Stadium. Things open at 9 a.m. with the pole vault and boys' long jump. Most of the other field events will be settled between 10 a.m. and noon.

Wednesday night and Saturday morning winners will receive their ribbons at a special awards presentation at 12:30 p.m. Saturday with the running finals set for 1 p.m.

Girls discus — McAnulty, Glens Ferry; Jensen, Hagerman; Willis, Glens Ferry; Anderson, Richfield; Norman, Richfield; Hoke, Filer; 115-1 (New record); Ivie, Shoshone; Wertz, Glens Ferry; 97-11 (New record); Shoshone; and C. Thompson, Kimberly; 4-8 (New record); Johnson, Filer; Friedland, Hagerman; Viner, GF; Ainsworth, Hagerman.

Swan, Hager; Ruprecht, Filer; 44-11 (New record); Human, Valley Hills; 41-11; Wertz, Glens Ferry; 39-11; Ivie, Shoshone; Gough, Hagerman; 4-8 (New record); Johnson, Filer; Friedland, Hagerman; Viner, GF; Ainsworth, Hagerman.

STRETCH WINNER Beth Ruprecht of Filer leads Hagerman's Friedland across the tape to win the A-3 girls' mile run championship Wednesday night.

Weather delays baseball outcome

TWIN FALLS — Rain postponed a decision in the district baseball playoffs Wednesday. The moonsons came with Twin Falls leading the Minto Spartans 2-0 after one and one-half innings of play. The game was immediately rescheduled to pick up at that point at 3:15 p.m. Thursday at Jaycee Park.

Matlack still wants Mets to trade him

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pitcher Jon Matlack reaffirmed his desire to be traded from the New York Mets Wednesday, one day after telling Mets General Manager Joe McDonald he could no longer tolerate playing for the team in its present condition.

Matlack said Mets Chairman of the Board M. Donald Grant called him Wednesday morning to ask the left-hander if his request to be traded was an ultimatum.

Matlack said he resented for Grant what he had told McDonald, but refused to discuss Grant's reply.

Jets ordered to play in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jets must play all 1977 season home games at Shea Stadium and schedule them around home games of the New York Mets baseball team, a Manhattan Supreme Court Justice ruled Wednesday.

The ruling was issued by Justice Harold Baer, who also declared the National Football League's fall schedule for the Jets "null and void."

Baer's ruling came in a suit by New York City to keep the football team from playing its first two home games at the Meadowlands Sports Complex in East Rutherford, N.J.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who filed the suit to keep the Jets at Shea, termed the decision "a victory for the people."

District champion

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Notre Dame Football Coach Dan Devine said Wednesday a newly formed College Football Association poses no threat to the NCAA but is a discussion group where major schools can try to deal with common problems.

New grid loop set up for 'discussion'

Neither publicly nor privately has the University of Notre Dame taken a position of bolting the NCAA, Devine said. He said the NCAA is so much better than what might be offered as an alternative that even with its problems it is in no danger of breaking up.

District champion

Devine and Michigan Basketball Coach Johnny Orr were major participants in an NCAA seminar for sports writers and broadcasters, held at Gaitlingburg earlier this week and moved to Knoxville for its final session.

Willis, Keyes win free trip

TWIN FALLS — Bessie Willis and Jim Keyes picked up trips to Hawaii when they won the fifth annual Hawaii Bowl roll-off at Bowladrome Ltd.

A total of 24 women and 22 men competed for the prize with Willis coming out on top with a 218-game which was 94 pins over her 125 average.

Keyes fired a 308 which was 59 pins over his 149 norm.

Larry Rambo placed second for the men with a 222 game, which was 53 pins over his 169 average.

The two champions and a guest of their choosing will spend a week in Hawaii compliments of the Bowladrome.

Malone-led Rockets cut into 76ers' playoff edge

HOUSTON (UPI) — Moses Malone dominated the backboards and helped the Houston Rockets tighten up their NBA playoff series against the Philadelphia 76ers with a physical 118-94 victory Wednesday night.

Houston outmuscled the stronger 76ers to a 20-point lead in the first half and was threatened only once in cutting the 76ers' series lead to 2-1. The fourth game in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference championship series is Friday night in Houston.

Malone led all scorers with 30 points and grabbed a game-high 24 rebounds. Rudy Tomjanovich added 24 points and rookie guard John Lucas, who was held to eight points in the two previous games, slipped in 20.

The 76ers, who were led by the 26 points of Julius Erving, closed a big Houston lead to six points early in the third quarter by running off 15 points to the Rockets' three in a four-minute span.

Philadelphia was hurt by an injury to substitute guard Lloyd Free in the second period. Free, who suffered a severe bruise of the ribs in a collision with Mike Newlin, was carried off the court and taken to a hospital.

As the 76ers pulled back in the game, their top rebounding forward, Darryl Dawkins, was getting his fourth and fifth fouls. Dawkins and the man he replaced in the starting lineup, Caldwell Jones, both fouled out in the first five minutes of the fourth quarter.

The hot-shooting Rockets refused to allow the 76ers to move closer than six points in the second half and Philadelphia's early third quarter drive was defused when Calvin Murphy led the Rockets back to a 74-60 lead.

Houston fired a 611 percentage in the third quarter. For the game, Houston shot 47.9 per cent compared to the 76ers 43.6.

Philadelphia showed none of the devastating run-and-gun offense which it had used in the first two games. In the first half alone, the 76ers missed 26 field shots and committed 12 turnovers to fall behind by 18 points.

Malone, the 6-11 forward who played in the ABA last season, began with 11 points in the first quarter and then kept the heat on by grabbing eight rebounds in the second period.

Erving was the 76ers' only consistent offense and he scored on 10 of 17 field shots. George McGinnis got 15 points but they came on only six of 18 shots from the field. Guard Doug Collins could hit only four of 12 shots and Free, before he left the game, had only one basket in seven attempts.

Celtics eye new coliseum

QUINCY, Mass. (UPI) — A 21,000-seat sports arena modeled after the Coliseum in Richfield, Ohio, is under serious consideration by Boston Celtics owner, Irving Levin and city officials, the Patriot Ledger said Wednesday.

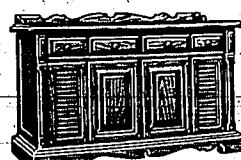

Serious negotiations have taken place and are still underway," Levin told the newspaper. "I'm very confident a deal will take place and I would not be at all surprised if a major announcement was made in about 30 days."

Pirates send Braves to 17th loss in row

Thursday, May 12, 1977 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dave Parker strangled the batting streak to 22 games with a solo homer in the third inning and John Cantafuria won his fourth straight game Wednesday night when he streaking Pittsburgh Braves scored a 2-1 victory and spoiled the debut of Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner as acting manager.

The victory was the 11th straight for the Pirates. The Braves' losing streak, meanwhile, reached 17 games despite Turner's decision to temporarily send manager Frank Robinson to his special assignment away from the team and take Bristol's place.

Padres drop Mets twice

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Winfield knocked in a total of four runs Wednesday night to power the San Diego Padres to a 5-4, 4-3 doubleheader sweep of the slump-ridden New York Mets.

Winfield hit a two-run homer off Tom Seaver in the first inning of the opener and his fifth inning single gave San Diego its eventual winning run in the second game. The unimpaired Padres' right fielder has now driven home 22 runs in his last 17 games.

Dodgers trim Expos 5-1

MONTREAL (UPI) — Bill Russell's two-run single highlighted a five-run rally in the seventh inning Wednesday night which propelled the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-1 triumph over the Montreal Expos.

Oakland power sinks Boston

OAKLAND (UPI) — Home runs by Mitchell Page, Wayne Gross and Earl Williams provided Doc Medich with all the help he needed Wednesday to pitch his first complete game this season, a 3-1 victory for the Oakland A's over the Boston Red Sox.

Giants beat Phillies 4-2

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Bill Madock's two-run homer in the fourth inning Wednesday night carried the San Francisco Giants to a 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Garland gets first victory

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Paul Dade's sacrifice fly scored Frank Duffy with the winning run in the eighth inning Wednesday night to give Wayne Garland, Cleveland's $2.3-million pitcher, his first victory of the season in a 4-3 decision for the Indians over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Chicago nips Texas in 10th

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Chet Lemon's one-out, bases-loaded single in the tenth inning Wednesday night lifted the Chicago White Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Lemon's single scored Richie Zisk, who started the winning rally with a single. Chris Knapp, 4-1, gave up six hits in a route-going performance to pick up the win. Paul Lindblad, 1-2, was the loser in relief of Doyle Alexander.

Tigers end Twins streak

DETROIT (UPI) — Phil Mankowski and Mark Wagner hit three career home runs between them, connected back-to-back Wednesday night to lead the Detroit Tigers to an 8-3 victory over Minnesota, snapping a four-game Twins' winning streak.

Cubs lose to Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — J.R. Richard pitched a five-hitter and delivered a run-scoring single in a five-run third-inning outburst to lead the Houston Astros past Chicago 8-2 Wednesday night and snap the Cubs' six-game winning streak.

Ray Burris, 4-4, who shut out the Astros in Chicago May 3, was the starter and loser for the Cubs. He was tagged for seven runs, six earned, and seven hits in 2-13 innings.

Seattle tops Yankees 5-2

SEATTLE (UPI) — Rookie Jose Baez doubled home a pair of runs and the Seattle Mariners took advantage of two New York misplays to break a seven-game losing streak Wednesday night with a 5-2 victory over the Yankees.

Redlegs beat Cardinals 5-1

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Joe Morgan singled across Ken Griffey with the go-ahead run in the third inning Wednesday night to give Jack Billingham and the Cincinnati Reds a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Billingham, 4-2, gave up nine hits and struck out four before being relieved by Mike Caldwell with one out and the bases loaded in the seventh. Caldwell, who recorded his first save, got pinch hitter Mike Anderson to hit into a double play which ended the threat.

Pete Rose singled with one out and the score tied in the third inning, but was caught trying to make it to third on Griffey's single. Griffey went to second on the play when Morgan singled to right center.

Mike Quarry loses and retires

NEW YORK (UPI) — Light heavyweight Mike Quarry tearfully retired from boxing Wednesday night after Mike Rossman raked his face with rights and stopped him on a deep eye cut in the sixth round of their scheduled 11-rounder.

Quarry's brother, Jerry, a heavyweight contender who quit the ring in an emotional scene just two years ago also in Madison Square Garden when he absorbed a fierce beating from Ken Norton, signalled the end of the fight after the sixth and led his weeping 26-year-old brother to the dressing room.

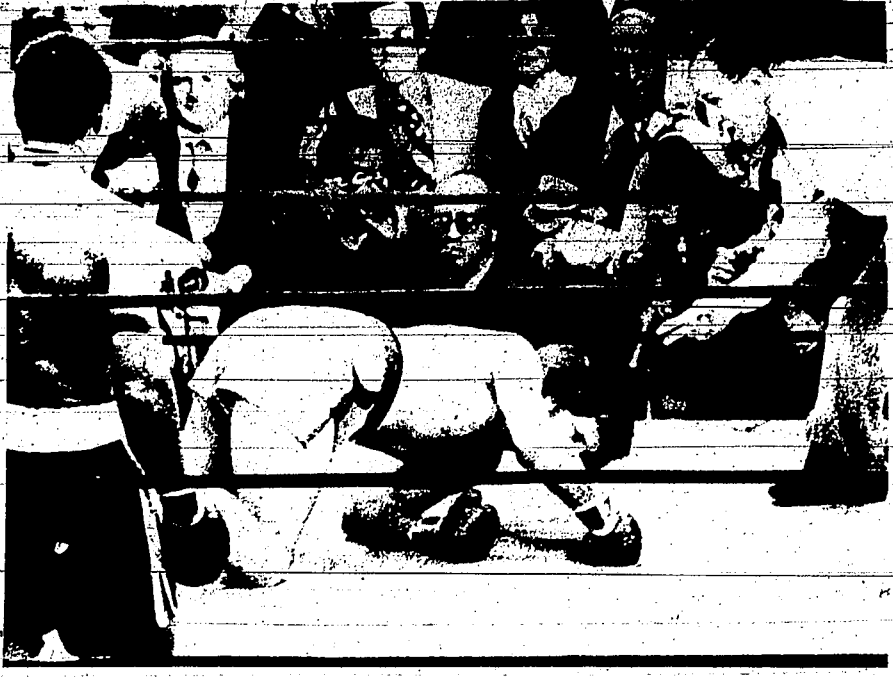

Rossman, now 30-3-3 with 18 knockouts, said he wanted himself a little shot with his impressive performance. After a slow start, Rossman took command in the third round and dominated the rest of the way.

Quarry, 28-4, said he was hurt by a shot to his right eye in the first round and had trouble seeing.

"I went through hell to get ready for this fight," Quarry said. "In the first round I got hit in the eye and I couldn't see after that."

"He's gonna quit. I'll make him quit," Jerry Quarry said. "Mike Quarry started his career in 1969 and won the North American light heavyweight title two years later. He lost a shot at the world championship on June 27, 1972 when he was 24 by Bob Foster in Las Vegas. He was hoping to use a victory over Rossman to gain another title shot.

Quarry defeated Rossman in the first of their three encounters with a 10-round decision in 1975.

Norton breaks Bobick's undefeated record with first-round knockout

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-ranked heavyweight contender Ken Norton's $500,000 gamble paid off spectacularly Wednesday night when he dealt Duane Bobick his first loss in 39 fights with a barrage of rights that flattened the young redhead and ended the fight at 58 seconds of the first round.

Norton, screaming for a rematch with Muhammad Ali, stood to lose several million dollars if he had been beaten by the fourth-ranked Bobick but came out furiously and triggered the 26-year-old with three rights only seconds into the fight.

Bobick seemed ready to go down but held his balance momentarily, only to be swept away by three more wild right hand shots to the head.

Bobick managed to get to his feet at the count of 10 on his bewildered look on his face, and referee Pete Dells initially signalled the fight to continue, but as Norton came on again Dells stopped the fight.

Norton, nearly 32, was introduced as the "uncrowned champion" because of the controversial decision he lost to Ali last September and he fought like a man possessed in gain what he believed was rightfully his. "I am the champion and I want to beat Ali again to prove it," Norton said in the ring.

Bobick earned $300,000 for the 58 seconds he spent in the ring before an estimated viewing audience of 40 million. NBC T.V., which charged about $65,000 per commercial minute for the scheduled 12-round, must have been sorely disappointed by the outcome. The Garden was nearly half-empty with just about 10,000 in the stands for a gate of $250,000.

Mike Rossman (30-3-1), stopped Mike Quarry (28-4-1) on cuts in the sixth round of their 11-round light-heavyweight battle prior to the main event, and Quarry immediately retired at the insistence of his older brother, Jerry. In another prelim, Olympic light-weight Gold Medalist, Howard Davis Jr., 3-0, scored a unanimous decision over Carlos Gonzalez.

Norton, now 38-4 with 31 KO's, weighed 222 1/2, four more than he weighed for All last fall. Norton's mental attitude had been questioned going into the fight but he showed only a single-mindedness to end the bout quickly. It was the shortest fight of Norton's career and only his second first-round knockout.

"I got hit in the throat," Bobick said with a raspy voice. "I couldn't do anything. I got hit with an overhead right."

"I'm a slow starter, and he came out trying to get me. There will be another day. I want him again."

The official timekeeper marked the end of the fight in 58 seconds but the clock used by NBC erroneously had the fight ending after 1:12.

"I expected him to come out and try to get me," Bobick repeated. "but I didn't expect a job in the throat."

Throat shot finished Bobick

NEW YORK (UPI) — His critics said Duane Bobick never had fought anybody, and he still hasn't.

"I got hit in the throat and I just couldn't do anything," Bobick said after he was stopped by Ken Norton in 58 seconds of their scheduled 12-round heavyweight bout Wednesday night.

"I'm a slow starter anyway. I expected him to come out like that but I didn't expect the shot in the throat. It just brought tears to my eyes."

Norton, who claims to have a signed contract for a fourth fight against heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali in September, landed the only punches.

"He (Bobick) had talked about applying a lot of pressure," Norton said. "But he wasn't that aggressive so I decided to initiate the action."

"I figured I might get some good shots in but I didn't think I would hurt Bobick that soon. I thought he might absorb some damage and I'd wear him down."

"Whenever I saw him come I just hit him. I trained very hard for this fight. Once I got in there it was like unwinding a spring. I just swung right out."

Bobick had built up a 39-0 record with 32 knockouts against a series of nobodies and bristled at suggestions he was overmatched with Norton.

"Out of 38, there ought to have been one live body in the crowd," Bobick said. "I was

Cleveland peddles unsigned reliever

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians traded ace reliever Dave LaRoche, playing out his option after failing to agree to contract terms, to the California Angels Wednesday.

In exchange for LaRoche, who had a club record 21 saves last season, and minor-league pitcher Dave Schuler, the Tribe received first baseman outfielder Bruce Bochte, left-handed pitcher Sid Monge, and cash, estimated at about $250,000.

General Manager Phil Seghi and LaRoche were unable to agree on a new contract for LaRoche, who has a 2-2 record with four saves this season, and had reportedly held out for a multi-year, million-dollar pact.

Seghi obtained him from the Chicago Cubs. In exchange for Phil Wilcox in February, 1975.

In his Indians career, LaRoche, who will be 29 on Saturday, has an 8-9 record with 42 saves and a 2.51 earned runs average, striking out 216 in 197 innings.

Bochte, 26, is hitting .293 to date and last year, in 146 games, hit .258 with two home runs and 49 runs batted-in. He became available when the Angels acquired Joe Rudi and Don Baylor in the free agent Monge, also 26, is 6-9 with a 3.39 earned run average in his two-year major league career and is 0-1, 2-93, in three relief appearances totaling nine innings this year.

Schuler, 23, is 1-2 at the Indians' Waterloo farm club. He was their 15th selection in the June 1975 draft.

"I feel he's very young, he has a good record, he'll come back," Norton said. "I don't think we've heard the last of Bobick at all."

Norton, who earned $500,000, said, "I proved that I'm number one in the world at the present time. I proved that Ali and I should have another fight."

All has won two of three previous decisions from Norton, including a highly debated one last September 28 in Norton's last fight before Wednesday night.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The problem is not with me but with some people I know. First, I am a boy. Why do they think it's "unmasculine" for a boy to babysit?

I'm a senior in high school, and I've been babysitting since junior high. I have sat with children as young as four days old and some waiters and eleven years old. I don't say this in a bragging way, but some of the people who have hired me say I'm better than most girl babysitters my age.

Like children, and I really enjoy babysitting. Besides I think it's good practice for fatherhood. (Not to mention the money I'm saving for college.)

I hope this makes your column. A lot of us boy sitters who get teased for doing "sissy" work would appreciate it.
BOY BABYSITTER

'Sissy' work?

DEAR BOY: My hat is off to you and to all the other boys who enjoy babysitting and regard it as good training for fatherhood. And what a compliment to be left in charge of parents' most precious possessions—their children!

DEAR ABBY: Recently I drove through a small "ant-colony" village in Pennsylvania, which is normally frequented by tourists.

I got the shock of my life when I saw about 76 young people all dressed exactly alike—in blue denim! I wondered if there had been a prison-break, or an invasion of the Union Army.

What is it with our young people? They have about as much individuality as connected sausage links. They all look alike. Same dress, same jeans, same long straight hair—it's hard to tell one from the other. Go anywhere young people gather—high schools, colleges, social affairs, it's the same story. Why are they afraid to be different? It wasn't like that 20 years ago. Kids looked and acted like individuals and enjoyed it.

WONDERING WANDERER

DEAR WANDERER: The young people who dress uniformly today do so because they want to identify with each other. There is comfort and security in "belonging" to a gang, group or band. And if it makes them happier, what's the harm?

DEAR ABBY: Please help me! I am pregnant, but I never went all the way. I know that's hard to believe, but it is true, so help me God!

I'm 17 (so is he) and we have gone steady for a year and five months, during which time we did a lot of very heavy petting, but I swear to you that I am a virgin. We came close, but never actually went all the way.

How can I get my parents to believe me? They will think I am lying for sure. Have you ever heard of this ever happening to anyone else? Please help me. We love each other very much, are graduating in June and plan to be married.

NEEDING HELP

DEAR NEEDING: Yes, I have heard of such cases. It is indeed possible for a girl to become pregnant and remain a virgin. Girls who do everything "but" qualify only as technical virgins, but virgins they are.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 152 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a 10¢ self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb, I am an 18-year-old girl with hair that just about reaches my waist.

In the last three weeks large amounts of it come out whenever I brush it or wash it. It has never done this before and has always been beautifully thick and it has never been cut shorter than mid-back length. I'm 5 feet 5 and I try to maintain my weight between 112 and 115. I eat toast for breakfast, some type of fruit for lunch and a large green salad with cheese and several kinds of raw vegetables for dinner. I also drink a couple of cups of coffee a day. I eat some type of meat usually once a week.

I gain weight very easily so I diet pretty severely. Is there some type of vitamin or mineral that I'm lacking? I take a multi-vitamin tablet.

I am very upset about what's happening and I would appreciate it if you could tell me what is wrong or what type of doctor I should see. Can you suggest a low calorie food I can use to replace whatever I am lacking?

Dear Reader,

This may be a temporary problem for you. The most important feature of your story is your terrible diet. If you have given the true facts you have a protein deficiency. Protein deficient diets will lead to loss of hair, as will semi-starvation crash diets or prolonged illnesses associated with inadequate intake of calories and particularly protein. Dieting and hair loss have a well known cause and effect relationship.

What low calorie food can you eat? I would suggest at least seven ounces and preferably 14 ounces of lean meat every day. Actually 14 ounces of lean beef with the fat removed before cooking contains less than 600 calories and will provide the protein you need. You need calcium which you should get from milk.

There are two other possibilities—you may have an iron deficiency which will cause loss of hair even if you do not have an anemia or if you are overdosing hi-potency vitamins you may be getting too much vitamin A which can cause a loss of hair. About 85 per cent of the hair-follicles have normal hair growth while the remaining follicles rest. The resting follicles are not dead, just sleeping. Since the scalp hair has a life cycle between two and six years this usually doesn't affect the abundance of scalp hair.

During the last part of pregnancy more than 90 per cent of the hair follicles are active. Because of the natural life cycle for hair about two or three months after delivery a large amount of normal out and in is immediately replaced with a new growth of hair. The woman is frantic if she doesn't know about this. She is not losing her hair or going bald but is simply readjusting to the normal ratio of resting and active hair follicles. In a few months time her normal hair growth pattern will be reestablished.

Many diseases can cause a loss of hair. If a person has unexplained loss of hair it is a good idea to see a dermatologist. In your case I am sure he will suggest that a better diet will help your hair growth regardless of what other factors may be involved.

Rainbow colors

MORE than one million flower lovers each year come to Holland by plane, train, bus and car to view the colorful displays of tulips of "booh" and "ooh" at the hundreds of varieties of all the colors of the rainbow.

Holland's tulips big lure to tourists

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Springtime is lit up here as the tulips flame in Holland.

In fact, viewing the colorful displays in the gardens, hothouses and fields is one of the sightseeing highlights of a visit to the tiny country, I know, because I did it last year.

It is almost like a pilgrimage to many of the more than one million foreign flower lovers who come each year by plane, train, bus and car. This past Easter weekend alone, an estimated 950,000 came to "booh" and "ooh" at the hundreds of varieties of all the colors of the rainbow.

— and more — and ranging in size nearly up to that of a World War II helmet, showing a visitor through a Dutch haven cultivating tulips since the early 1600s. Although not represented in the flag or coat of arms, the tulip is part of Holland's national tourism logo — two stylized, modern ones — and represents as big a lure for some visitors as the dikes, canals and windmills.

Holland is one of the smaller countries on the continent — about 16,000-square miles or about half the size of South Carolina — and yet almost 70 per cent of the land is devoted to agriculture. Pastures, orchards and flower growing. That figure becomes even more impressive when you realize that about half of the land has been reclaimed from the sea.

— But while the tulip may be king until mid-May, there is a royal court of other flowers that help make a visit worthwhile during the summer and fall.

The ritual visit is a drive by car or bus (train connections are possible, too) from nearby Amsterdam, Leyden or The Hague through miles and miles of tulip fields of all colors — like giant crazy quilts — blooming along the North coast to the world famous Keukenhof Gardens in Lisse.

The name means Kitchen Garden and was so called for the herb and vegetable garden of the Countess Jacoba van Beieren who had a castle on the wooded estate known for its beautiful tall trees.

Today Keukenhof is the showcase of Holland's horticultural industry, where in a sylvan park setting of winding paths and swans swimming in pools, we walked for hours, admiring the incredible beauty of hundreds of different species of tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and crocuses, among others.

There also are huge greenhouses with row on row of selected tulips of every size and hue: each identified by small green signs according to specie, name (there's a Churchill) and a Elizabeth Taylor) and the name of the grower. Orders for late summer shipment are taken on the spot.

Driving back to your hotel via one of a number of clearly marked Bulb Routes, you might come across a flower parade, or see mosaics made of flowers and petals on front lawns or municipal parks and roadstands selling garlands of flower petals for motorists and cyclists.

There are dozens of open-air flower markets — some on canal boats — in Amsterdam and other major cities. Also worth visiting is Aalsmeer, about 20 minutes by car from Amsterdam, for the world's largest enclosed flower auction. Some four million cut flowers are auctioned off each day in the huge modern halls located close to Schiphol International Airport and shipped by air and hand to all corners of the globe.

— It can all be enjoyed by taking an overhead-guided-tour-and-viewing-literally acres of moving tracked wagons of flowers.

Roses and carnations are the big sellers, but orchids and other exotic blooms also can be seen scattered throughout the cavernous halls. Tour buses visit Aalsmeer each week day throughout the year.

April, August and September are floral parade months in Holland. The most popular are the Sassenheim to Hartem parade on the fourth Saturday in April, and the round trip Aalsmeer to Amsterdam parade the first Saturday in September.

Builder says extras need not be costly

CHINO, Calif. (UPI) — Homebuilder Fred Gilder says it costs perhaps $45 more than normal to build a house with conveniences for the handicapped.

"Some builders say they can't do things to help the handicapped — too expensive. That's just a cop out," Gilder said, showing a visitor through a model home here. "They don't want to be bothered."

Gilder is a partner in a construction firm in nearby Ontario, Calif., whose houses provide built-in conveniences for paraplegics and others who have trouble getting around.

He and his partners, George Shanks, Lee Alves and Tony Freitas, also build fast food restaurants that have ramps for wheelchairs and grab bars in restrooms to help handicapped patrons maneuver.

"In California, there are laws requiring some of these features for the handicapped in public places," said Shanks, "but the restaurant company has always been very cooperative about installing them."

"The biggest single problem for a person in a wheelchair is getting through doorways, so we made them wider," said Gilder.

Their Turnkey Associates' houses have light switches at lower places on walls, plywood ramps and hard surfaced floors instead of rugs. Linoleum is favored because it makes rolling a wheelchair easier.

Bud Taylor, whose mother-in-law uses a wheelchair, is a satisfied buyer. He says the conveniences make for better family relationships.

"My wife's mother is able to get in and out of the bathroom with ease," Taylor said. "Those wider doors make everything completely accessible for her."

Many families without a handicapped member have bought the houses. Linda and Kevin Wolfswinkel, a young couple with two children and a love for horses, moved in recently. Mrs. Wolfswinkel, who is only 5 feet tall, likes the convenience of light switches with easy reach. "Everything being lower is really fantastic. Even the cupboards are lower, although this was not done for paraplegics, Fred says. I can reach cupboards I could never reach before."

The wider doorways are great. Moving furniture around is a pleasure, and I'm still doing that. With the wider doors, the rooms seem much larger than they really are if you measure. It all gives you an open feeling."

The Chino model home sells for $56,000 with a half-acre of land already fenced for horses.

The bedroom and bathroom doors have lever locks instead of doorknobs because people with hand problems find the doors easy to open by pushing the levers down.

Bathroom washbasins are adjacent to toilets and at a convenient level so a person in a wheelchair can use the wide ledge as a lever to get on and off the toilet room.

Bathroom doors range in width from 2 feet 10 inches to 3 feet.

Cupboard doors under kitchen sinks are knobless because a wheelchair or the hand of a person rolling one might be snagged on them. Cupboard doors are spring-loaded to close automatically.

Light switches and intercom mikes are about three feet off the floor, easily reached by a person in a wheelchair.

Radio-controlled garage doors can be opened from the car. A plywood ramp covers a low step in the garage, allowing wheelchairs to move easily into the family room.

Gilder and Shanks object to one federal building regulation that requires two four-inch increments or steps at the front door, supposedly to protect against flooding.

"This is ridiculous," said Shanks. "We could ramp the front just as well and it wouldn't cost an extra dime. The floor of the house would still be eight inches above the ground level."

Both the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration require the eight-inch uplift on houses with loans they guarantee.

HOMEBUILDER Fred Gilder, right, and one of his partners, Lee Alves, use ruler to make sure doorway of home under construction is 34 inches wide. Their firm, Turnkey Associates, in Ontario, Calif., also builds fast-food restaurants that have ramps for wheelchairs and grab bars in restrooms to help handicapped persons. (UPI)

Lady Bird gives feelings on Viet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lady Bird Johnson said Wednesday her life was "strained and rent" by Vietnam just like her husband's, but they both were "committed" to this country and to live up to its commitments.

Lyndon Johnson's widow also said her husband enjoyed his job as Senate majority leader better than he did the presidency.

Mrs. Johnson spoke to a turnout audience at the Kennedy Center's weekly "National Town Meeting." She said her feelings about Vietnam, which ultimately cost her husband the presidency, were the same as Johnson's.

"I was just as sorry, just as strained, just as rent as he was by not knowing the answers," she said, "but just as convinced this country had to live up to its commitments."

"He was extremely pained because he couldn't find an honorable way to end that war. He wanted peace for this country."

Mrs. Johnson was asked which her husband liked better — the Senate or the White House.

"He was a Senate man, he loved that life and that job, and I would have to say he enjoyed it more," she replied. But he realized the chance "to do things for your country is exhilarating — you get a sense of satisfaction that you could 'attain' only 'in' that place" — the White House.

healthily, Mrs. Johnson gave these answers during the hour-long questioning.

—Her husband's spot in history, from her "subjective" viewpoint, will be "a high place, what he did in education and civil rights will loom larger" as time passes.

—She still pursues her goal of helping beautify America.

—"It's not the business of garden clubs any more. It's the business of politicians and civic leaders. I believe it is here to stay and is in the hearts of people all across the nation."

—She supports integration but says busing is "too often a painful — and — divisive" — and wishes someone more "wise" than she could figure how to achieve desegregation without rending the community.

—"Because I am of a different generation," she said, she was cool to the Equal Rights Amendment. She strongly supports it now, convinced "by my daughters, their friends, their very strong feelings."

—"The assassination of John Kennedy that elevated her husband to the presidency was a nightmare. You held on tight and you prayed and you were determined your nation was not going to be that sort of a country. It was a frightening time."

Altrusans welcome three new members

TWIN FALLS — Three new members were initiated during the Twin Falls Altrusa Club's dinner meeting Tuesday evening at the Colonial House.

New members are Carol Ann White, Betty Hyder and Eleanor Stammerjohn, with Dottie Rowe, Evelyn Myers and Marie as sponsors. Jean Hovey was in charge of the initiation services, assisted by Joan Perkins, Con Peterson and June Brown.

Mrs. Rowe was in charge of the business meeting with reports given by Virginia Lee, finance chairman; Gloria Hamilton, community service; Adele Stoddard, international relations; and June Brown, vocational service.

It was announced a special party is being planned to observe the Twin Falls group's 20th anniversary. The event will be held June 13, with more plans announced later.

Rose Marie White and Mrs. Rowe will be attending the District 12 conference to be held May 20, 21 and 22 in Corvallis, Ore. Reports of this conference will be given during the May 26 meeting at the home of Mrs. Stoddard.

It was announced a board meeting is planned for 7:15 p.m. May 26.

Auditions set

ANNOUNCING plans for the Dilettantes of Magic Valley scholarships auditions are Don Hall, treasurer, and Beth Smith, scholarship chairman. The auditions are set for 1 p.m. May 28 at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Scholarships audition set May 28

TWIN FALLS — Auditions for Dilettantes of Magic Valley scholarships amounting to $1,000 will be held at 1 p.m. May 28 at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

At least five scholarships will be awarded. Dance scholarships totaling $250 will be offered to students planning to attend the Ballet Folk Summer Workshop at the University of Idaho June 19 to July 2 or June 19 to July 16. Students aged 12 or above are eligible.

Music scholarships totaling $250 will also be awarded for the Performing Arts Camp in Moscow June 12 to June 25. The camp is open to high school students who have completed the eighth grade and who have the recommendation of their music teacher. All eligible Magic Valley students are invited to audition for these awards.

A college scholarship amounting to $500 will be awarded to a student from the Magic Valley majoring in any of the performing arts. Any student who plans to enroll in college or graduate school in the fall is eligible. The scholarship will be given in two installments, or $250 each semester. All scholarships will be awarded on the basis of talent, financial need and academic ability.

Applicants should select their presentations for auditions based on what they feel best demonstrates the full range of their talents. A five-minute time limit is requested. Students may bring their own accompanist and a tape recorder and record player will be available.

If the applicant needs an accompanist provided by the Dilettantes, or has any questions regarding auditions, please call Beth Smith, 734-4846, or Ted Hadley, 733-1075, for further information.

Don Hall, treasurer of Dilettantes of Magic Valley, presented a check for $1,000 to Beth Smith, scholarship chairman. Auditions for scholarships will be at 1 p.m. May 28 at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

"No, you made an unsafe play. Your play would have succeeded against a singleton ace of trumps, it would not have helped against any other four-one break and as you have just seen it cost you your contract when trumps broke 3-2."

The essence of a safety play is that it guards you against something, while not exposing you to a greater danger somewhere else. The student had guarded against one danger, but exposed himself to a greater one.

A British Columbia reader asks if there is such a system as Canadian Acol. Yes, there is. It is used by Kehela and Murray and some other top Canadian pairs. Strangely enough, it is based largely on 1931 Cubertson, but it is very effective in the hands of Murray and Kehela.

English, Russian cities visited by TF Mayor Ostyn

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Even in a country where the government owns and controls all of the land there are problems in planning and zoning and even about pollution. Twin Falls Mayor Paul Ostyn says.

Ostyn was one of 73 municipal officials who visited Russia in a tour sponsored by the National League of Cities. Delegates represented all areas of the country and while each paid his or her own expenses, the national association was able to obtain a package price.

Ostyn said the group visited England and Russia, including a number of large and small cities.

The mayor said he drew some interesting comparisons between municipal administration in the United States and Russia.

"While our systems differ greatly, many of the 'people problems' are the same," he said.

A city council in Moscow, like other large Russian cities will consist of several hundred council members. This is where part of the problem in planning and zoning arises. It is difficult to reach an agreement among 400 council members, he said.

On the other hand, council members in Moscow, an executive committee of 13 meets weekly to make all but the final decisions, he said. In addition each district of the city has its own mini-government in the form of a district board.

"All of these people are appointed by the government, but, he said, government officials explain they would be the selection of the people if they were to vote because they are the most qualified and the most popular following a sort of campaigning for the offices.

Many problems in Moscow are much different than those in the larger cities of this country, Ostyn said. Right now Moscow has a shortage of 150,000 laborers and other workers.

"More and more exposure to the western world through tourism and better forms of communication are changing the goals of the Russian people," he said.

"I came away with a number of conclusions. One is that we could learn a great deal about public transportation from the Russians.

"Their mass transportation systems are extremely efficient. Their subways are 20 miles long and underground, much deeper than any of those in our large cities. The efficiency of these systems reduces traffic problems, pollution and fuel consumption. Still, they seem to adequately meet the needs of the people," Mayor Ostyn said.

Crime is extremely low in Russia, Ostyn said, and the Russians say it is because of the absolute control of firearms. Nobody in Russia owns a gun and the hunters must obtain permission to hunt, are loaned a gun for the hunt and must return the weapon immediately after the hunt.

Penalty for anyone convicted of carrying arms, concealed or otherwise is two to five years in prison and rarely are sentences commuted or reduced, Ostyn said. Russia has the death penalty, but like this country, seldom uses it.

"I asked about their crime rate and was told in Moscow with about 4.5 million people there is an average of no more than eight murders a year and 800 to 1,000 thefts which would rank as grand larceny in this country.

"In New York the crime rate has now reached 75 major crimes per hour or more than one crime per minute," Ostyn said.

"I don't know, maybe it's fear, but the people of the country are very law abiding. They are also litter-conscious and never do you see a piece of trash on the city streets. Of course, it does not have the quick food services and vast amount of paper and plastic containers used by our drive-in restaurants and other quick service dispensing establishments.

"I think we may someday have to make these establishments responsible for the littering containers they send out," he said.

Ostyn said he has been asked many times if the Russian people are happy. They are not laughing and having fun, but they are probably satisfied, he said. By their own statements, Russia is a socialist country, not a communist one.

"They are fond of culture and while they maintain everyone is equal, Ostyn said he questioned why the street sweeper gets 15 rubles and the ballet dancer 100 rubles. He was told everyone is paid on a basis of what he or she contributes to the country's welfare.

Ostyn said the mayor told him, "Nobody wants to sweep streets anymore," referring to the shortage of day laborers.

"If an individual is born in Moscow, his chances of spending his life there are about 90 per cent. To move to another community, he must make an application and if there is a shortage of his profession or type of work he may be approved for the new location, otherwise, he will be turned down.

Housing in Russia is government owned, and most families live in giant apartment complexes. Each contains everything the families need such as grocery stores, clothing stores and recreation facilities, Ostyn said. Zoning is based on convenience and economic factors.

A commercial enterprise, again, owned by the government, is located in the center of residential areas to be convenient for the public and minimize transportation needs.

Mrs. Ostyn said most of the stores handle identical merchandise so there is no need to shop from store to store. The government stocks them all.

With the exception of party clothes and luxury items, prices are extremely reasonable, she said.

With more western world influence, Ostyn said, Russian children are all interested in bettering themselves and instead of becoming laborers as their fathers are, they are attending colleges and qualifying for better jobs.

He said this probably accounts for the many labor-type shortages in the labor market.

MAYOR Paul Ostyn, Twin Falls, left, during a National Association of Cities tour in Russia, visits with the mayor of Moscow. The United States group of 73 city officials had an opportunity to compare government problems and programs.

BYU plans workshop

TWIN FALLS — A graduate education workshop for Brigham Young University will be held this summer at Twin Falls High School.

The class will be E. Psy 514R, Behavior Modification, and will review and develop practical approaches for improving teacher-student relationships.

The workshop is scheduled to begin on June 6 and end on June 14 and will be from 8 to 12:15 a.m. daily (except Saturday and Sunday). Ronald Dent, a school psychologist from the Meridian School District, will instruct this two-semester-hour workshop.

The maximum enrollment for this course will be 24.

McKinney, Baker married in Elko, Nev., ceremony

TWIN FALLS — Larayne W. McKinney and Russell L. Baker were united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony May 1 in Elko, Nev., by Judge Edward T. Lunsford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.D. McKinney and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Baker, all Twin Falls.

The bride wore a street-length, aqua dress with long full sleeves gathered into a cuff. For sentiment, she wore birthstone earrings given to her by the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of spring blossoms.

A reception and wedding dinner was hosted by the bride's parents at the Holiday Inn Twin Falls, following the ceremony.

The table was centered with a white wedding cake decorated with yellow roses and a bride and bridegroom under a daisy arch and wedding bell. The couple's names were written on the cake in front of the bride and groom.

Mrs. James Baker, mother of the bridegroom, cut and served the cake.

Special guests were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Haskins; the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Baker, and fiancée of the bridegroom's sister, Kathy, Patrick Jones.

The newlyweds are both graduates of Twin Falls High School. The bridegroom is employed at John Chris Motors. They are making their home in Kimberly.

CHAIRMAN of the Toastmistress speech contest, Veronica Detweller, left, presents a certificate to speech winner Flo Harper of the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club. She will represent the area in regional contest in Boise next month.

MV car club presents check to YMCA

TWIN FALLS — Jim Bolton, president of the Magic Valley Early Iron Car Club, has presented a $150 check to Chuck Upton, director of the Magic Valley YMCA.

Bolton said the donation was made possible by financial success of the club's recent car show.

After the presentation Upton indicated that the YMCA would use the funds to help sustain the Y's program for fatherless boys called Y-Pals and to help youngsters participate in the Y programs who could not afford to do so.

Toastmistress talk contest won by Twin Falls woman

TWIN FALLS — Flo Harper, member of the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club, will represent the area in a regional speech contest June 18, 11 and 12 in Boise.

She was judged winner from five other entries in the Magic Valley area during the past week. Veronica Detweller, chairman of the speech contest, announced the winner Friday during the regular meeting of the club.

Last year's winner from the Twin Falls club went on to finish third in the International Toastmistress contest: Mary Akkermann was the 1976 winner from this area.

Mrs. Harper received a certificate during the Friday meeting of the club. The group met in the Golden Griddle with Nita Nelson, vice president, presiding. Welcome was given by Jean George and an educational lesson was offered by Mrs. Detweller on how to conduct elections.

Donna Scott led table topics and presented red pencils to Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Detweller for the best impromptu speeches.

Virginia Bitzenburg and Frances Hesselholt reported on international officers.

Speakers gave talks on "The Big Band Sound" as part of the continuing theme for the year on Music, the International Language, Toastmistress was Martha Beck who introduced speakers and awarded blue pencils to Mrs. Hesselholt and Mrs. Detweller. Evaluators were Donna Bach, Donna Scott and Mrs. Bitzenburg.

The traveling trophy was presented to Martha Beck for the outstanding performance of the day.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1977.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to think about what you want to do in the future that is new and different. Take the time and make the effort to enrich your attitude so that you have much that delights you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Engage in a challenging venture you enjoy and make much progress. Enjoy the company of friends at pleasurable activities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You could add new activities to your regular routines that could prove profitable. Don't be so contented.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have a new plan that requires the help of good friends, so be sure to contact them early. Get rid of that discontented feeling.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Become more active in public matters and add considerably to your prestige. Be clever in handling credit.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you make plans now for improving your position in life, you can easily add to your abundance. Stay on the constructive side of life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study carefully how to handle responsibilities more intelligently in the future. Try a new tack with mate and get better results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to talk over your finest ambitions and ideas with associates and get good results. Show that you have wisdom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Become more enthused about the work you have to do. Make new plans for the future that are satisfying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans for the amusements you enjoy with congenials. Do whatever will bring you closer to the one you love.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Showing true loyalty at home can bring about the harmony that is needed there. Stop being so unsure of yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan just how to produce more and increase your income in the future. Sidestep one who could get you in trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have fine ideas for getting ahead so jot them down today so you won't forget them. Take time for improving your posture.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be extremely alert and can pioneer with success in various avenues of expression. Give the right kind of education, stressing modern ways of doing things. Don't neglect spiritual training early in life.

LIFE EXPECTANCY

Q. "Is there any way to estimate one's own life expectancy?"

A. Several ways, none reliable. But maybe the most accepted goes like this: Add up the number of years your mother and father lived plus the years lived by your two grandfathers and two grandmothers, and then divide by six. That's it.

Q. "Isn't the 21-gun salute this country's longest?"

A. No, the traditional non Salute to the Union on the Fourth of July at most Army posts is now a 50-gun salute, one round for each state.

Q. "What's 'bill counter's thumb'?"

A. A malady that bank clerks get from the manual counting of paper money.

Certain orchids change their fragrance throughout the day, from heliotrope in the morning to carnation about noon to violet at night. Odd.

SOFT DRINKS

If those supermarket moguls were just a mile brighter, they'd get the grocery cart manufacturers to weld little soft-drink bottle holders onto those wheels. It's been known that at average shopping browsers round the store at greater length—thus buying more than she's planned to—if she's permitted to sip on a cola or whatever as she goes. But she's reluctant to carry such a bottle because she doesn't have any place to put it down.

Now, the scientific vegetable growers say they're about to produce a tearless onion and an odorless cabbage. I tell you they can't do that without draining from those two dandy commodities some of their zest. They ought to keep their hands off our onions and cabbages.

Yellowstone conduct clamp set

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK (UPI) — The message from officials of the nation's largest national park is clear: no more nude bathing and sex acts in areas frequented by the general public.

Problems have arisen in the past in a place called Bolling Springs, a warm-water area near a highway in the north end of the park where a spring joins the Gardner River, said John Townsley, park superintendent. Visitors have complained about persons swimming naked and engaging in sex acts, he said.

"For a long time, occasionally people went swimming," Townsley said. "Toward the middle of last summer, it was extensively used."

"We needed to try to do that which would preclude any offensive conduct. At the same time, we're not closing the area totally."

Townsley said the park's attitude will be to legally enforce sanctions against those engaging in acts that might offend other visitors.

"It's not a major thing, but it has just gotten to be a thing of continuing concern," he said.

Bolling Springs is a place where families often bring children to enjoy the thermal features of the park, the superintendent said. "It can be just a nice clean place for people to be together," he said.

In addition to issuing legal threats to potential violators, Townsley said parking will be prohibited on the corners where visitors traditionally left their cars to bathe in the spring.

"I'm very hopeful the people are going to respect their fellow visitor," he said.

Idaho due funds for public jobs

MERIDIAN, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho will receive federal funds to create about 700 temporary special project public service jobs for the state's hard core unemployed in fiscal 1978, Gov. John V. Evans announced today.

Evans said the state will get $17.8 million in CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) funds. Of that, he said, about $5 million will be available for the temporary public services jobs.

"These funds are a result of President Carter's economic stimulus program and are to be used to create temporary jobs in government and private nonprofit agencies which provide public services," the governor said.

Unemployed Idahoans hired for these special project positions will be designated as temporary employees in manpower programs to distinguish them from regular full-time employees, he said.

"This project will not swell the ranks of government employees but will offer temporary employment to people who have been out of work for 15 weeks or longer, people who have exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits and those who are drawing welfare," he said.

Evans said he is encouraging the approved project employers to modify their temporary employment proposals, wherever possible, to drought-related employment programs.

Two of the temporary employees will be hired by the Meridian Free Library, where Evans held an afternoon news conference to create a new card catalog file, the governor said.

Air base plans May 21 events

MOUNTAIN HOME — The 366th Tactical Fighter Wing will observe Armed Forces Day May 21 with a public open house at Mountain Home Air Force Base.

Scheduled flying events include a paratrooper helicopter demonstration, a demonstration for the Idaho Air National Guard's RF-4C Phantom II reconnaissance aircraft and the final public demonstration of the F-111F swing-wing fighter-bombers of the 366th Tactical Fighter Wing before their reassignment to England.

In addition to the flying show, there will be static displays of aircraft current in use by the air force, the army and the navy. The army is also planning to bring out a tank and an armored personnel carrier for static displays.

There will be booths selling food and drink throughout the day. Gates are scheduled to open at 10 a.m. and close at 4 p.m. The public is invited.

Jury acquits man in kidnap case

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Former Pocatello businessman Robert Berchold was acquitted Tuesday of first-degree kidnaping in district court by reason of "mental disease or defect."

Judge Arnold Beebe said, "the court finds that Berchold suffered from mental disease or defect which impaired his capacity to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law."

Berchold is to be committed to the custody of the Department of Health and Welfare to be placed in "an appropriate institution for custody, care and treatment."

First he will be admitted to the Idaho Security Medical Facility at the Idaho State Penitentiary "for a psychosocial diagnosis," then returned to the Bannock County Jail after testing under the judge's order.

Beebe said he expected the examination to move quickly "perhaps sooner than the standard 60 days."

Asked if Berchold might stand trial for arson charges stemming from his alleged involvement in the fire at Atkin Florist in Pocatello, Beebe said he would be able to do so.

Berchold was accused of kidnaping Jan. Broberg, 14, Pocatello, last fall. She is the daughter of Robert Broberg, the owner of Atkin Florist.

Miss Broberg was returned to her parents after she was found at a Catholic girls school in California.

Tax case term given

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Federal Judge Ray McNichols has sentenced Myron C. Ragan, owner and operator of a real estate brokerage in St. Maries, to 30 days in jail for failure to file income tax returns.

Ragan pleaded no contest to charges of failing to file returns for the years 1970, 1971 and 1972. McNichols sentenced him to 30 days on each count but ordered the sentences to run concurrently.

The judge also fined Ragan a total of $750.

Meantime, he arraigned Keith W. Arnold, a Lewiston optometrist, on five counts of failure to file income tax returns.

Challis area snow pack at low record

SALMON — Snow measurements taken on Mill apt Morgan creek summits April 27 showed the 1976-77 snow pack to be the lowest on record, according to Glen Hunt, Soil Conservation Service, Challis.

Survey on Mill Creek showed 10.4 inches of snow containing 37 inches of water. This amount is about 14 per cent of normal.

Last year there were 79.6 inches of snow which contained 29.7 inches of water.

The next lowest reading was in 1941 when there were 9.7 inches of water.

The highest reading recorded in 1955 had 78 inches of snow and 39.2 inches of water. Snow survey records date back to 1937.

Morgan Creek snow course had no measurable snow. There was some melting occurring but no runoff was observed. The soil was generally very dry.

At the same time last year there was 54 inches of snow with 17.7 inches of water. Lowest snow pack on record for this snow course, which was established in 1963, was in 1966 when there was 7 inches of snow and 2.8 inches of water.

Can recycling up

TWIN FALLS — Nationwide and in Twin Falls, millions more aluminum cans are being turned in this year than last, one recycling company reports.

The company says it would like even more.

Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Co., a subsidiary of Reynolds Metals Co., reports that its Twin Falls recycling center has collected over 95,000 pounds of aluminum in the first three months of 1977, compared with about 85,000 during the same period last year. This is an increase of more than 10 per cent.

Nationally, Reynolds collected almost 26 million pounds for the first quarter of 1977, an increase of about 2 million pounds, or 8 per cent, over the same period last year.

In an announcement last week Reynolds reported first quarter collections of 1.9 million pounds at its nine permanent recycling plants in Idaho, Washington and Utah. The company paid out $324,000 in return.

The company's general manager, Richard N. Bolling said that Reynolds is "working toward the day we'll be recycling 100 per cent," and is now recycling at a rate equal to 50 per cent of the cans it manufactures.

The price paid for aluminum beverage cans and "other clean household aluminum" was raised to 17 cents per pound in early January of this year by Reynolds.

Almanac

United Press International
Today is Thursday, May 12, the 132nd day of 1977 with 233 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date in history are under the sign of Taurus.

Florence Nightingale, the British nurse who founded modern nursing, was born May 12, 1820.

On this day in history:
In 1912, "the" magazine "Radio Broadcast" commented: "...the rate of increase in the number who spend at least part of an evening listening to radio is almost incomprehensible."

In 1837, George VI was crowned king of England, succeeding his brother Edward, who abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

In 1949, Soviet authorities announced the end of a land blockade of Berlin that had lasted 328 days and whose effects had been neutralized by the famed "Berlin Airlift."

In 1976, the White House disclosed that a Cambodian gunboat had fired upon the U.S. cargo ship "Mayaguez" in the Gulf of Siam and forced it into a Cambodian port.
