National health insurance proposal slated next year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will ask Congress early next year for a phased-in mandatory health insurance program, HEW Secretary Joseph Califano said today.

National health insurance is a "long overdue" reform that could be the most important piece of domestic legislation of the 1970s, said Califano, head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"It will be a program that will, at long last, give the American people the equal access to health care that millions of people in Western Europe and Eastern Europe have to health care," Califano said in opening the first meeting of an administration advisory committee on national health insurance.

"But it will be a uniquely American plan," he told an audience of persons who have worked on health reform since the Roosevelt administration, congressional aides and representatives of major health organizations.

Califano said Carter's plan will have five principles:

- A commitment to preventive health care, particularly for children.
- Equality in health care, and that health insurance must therefore be universal and mandatory.
- Management efficiency in controlling costs.
- Improved quality of health care.

The panel includes more than 30 doctors, insurers, hospital, labor, business and legal representatives.

Citizen participation in developing a health insurance proposal.

A recent reorganization of HEW and the administration's proposed 9 per cent a year ceiling on hospital revenues are "first steps" the administration has taken toward national health insurance, Califano told the advisory panel.

"It is likely that whatever national health insurance proposal is adopted by the administration, it will be a phased plan," he said.

Califano asked the advisers, including several persons who had been considered for HEW's top health job, to advise the administration on how to pay for national health insurance and what benefits it should cover.

Consumer prices increase for fourth straight month

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer prices jumped 0.8 per cent in April, the fourth straight month that food and energy costs have caused a strong inflationary surge, the Labor Department reported today.

The increase reflected an annual rate of 9.6 per cent, consistent with a trend that began in January.

Food prices soared 1.5 per cent — more than twice the March rate. Other commodities rose 0.4 per cent and services climbed 0.8 per cent — exactly duplicating their performance in March.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 179.6 in April, reflecting a 6.8 per cent increase over the past year. This means that goods and services costing $100 a decade ago, now cost $179.60.

Maynard Comler, Commerce Department economist, acknowledged the pace of inflation over the past four months has posed "some concern" to administration officials.

He predicted inflation would continue at this accelerated rate through the next few months, primarily because of continuing price increases for food items like coffee, beef, soybeans and vegetables.

"We may see some easing in the second half of the year as the bumper crops begin to appear," he added. But he also acknowledged that the effects of the West Coast drought has not yet been felt by consumers.

Excluding food and energy costs, April's inflation rate was a more moderate 0.6 per cent. Food and energy have been "blighted out" as the culprits since the first of the year.

This strong price surge since the start of 1977 has generated fears among administration officials, who are hoping to contain the nation's inflation rate to about 6 per cent this year.

But the President's top economic adviser suggested earlier this week there "was still some reason to believe food costs would decline in the later months of 1977."

Over the past three months, food prices have risen at a compound annual rate of about 17.4 per cent. This compares with an annual rate of 1.8 per cent between last August and October.

Among April energy costs, fuel oil rose 0.4 per cent, coal was up 0.9 per cent and gasoline and motor oil prices jumped 0.6 per cent.

April's food price increase was smaller than the 2 per cent jump registered in February, when the nation was suffering the worst effects of the severe winter weather on southern farms.

Famous landing redescribed

Editors Note: Fifty years ago today, United Press reporter A.L. Bradford was in Paris to cover the arrival of Capt. Charles Lindbergh. Here is his report, as it appeared in the following day's editions of the Sacramento (Calif.) Bee, under the headline: "Lindbergh Lands Safely in Paris."

Troops On Guard
Troops tried to clear the field of the thousands who sought to assist in the triumphal march from the far side of the open space to the bright lights. The crowd refused to budge. Twenty minutes were required for Lindbergh to cross the field.

again. But I am sorry I did not land before dark. I never was in doubt as to the outcome, but the hardest part was during the last few miles. Tears streamed down the cheeks of the flying airman. Finally he found his tongue. "Somebody—cable—moller," he explained.

"They are kind to me," he said. Wild Scene
The scene at Le Bourget was almost indescribable. The wild enthusiasm of the crowd was commensurate with the wild daring of the flyer. Barriers cascaded to restrain the crowd simply disappeared when thousands of people beheld them suddenly and simultaneously decided that now was the time to go out and on the field and welcome the flying mailman.

Hustled To Paris
Lindbergh was hustled into an automobile and started for Paris with a procession of 1,000 automobiles strung along behind. The streets were lined with thousands of people cheering.

Before leaving the field Lindbergh was handed a sheaf of 200 congratulatory cables, many of them from the United States. He stuck them in his pocket.

Troops assigned to guard the field and keep it clear of people made every effort to send the crowd back behind the smashed barriers. It was feared that another plane might land and crash into the thousands of people.

LE BOURGET FIELD.
PARIS — Captain Charles Lindbergh arrived here today from New York by air, collapsed at the controls of his craft a moment after it stopped and recovered in time to say to the crowd which lifted man and machine to their shoulders: "So this is Paris. I did it."

His time was thirty-three hours and thirty minutes. He arrived at 5:21 p.m. Eastern daylight time without a light on his plane and with his energy fast ebbing.

Nationally was forgotten.
This was no American who had flown across the Atlantic: This was just a brave airman, brought here in spirit to the brave airman of other countries, and the crowd welcomed him as such.

Of the anti-Americanism of which there was much unfounded talk when Nungesser and Coll were in the air, there was no hint today.

The crowd was as one man in greeting Lindbergh. Splendid Flight
"It was a splendid flight," said Lindbergh would do it

Student Brigade

DEMONSTRATORS, calling themselves the Revolutionary Students Brigade disrupted a meeting of the Univ. of Calif. Board of Regents Thursday at the U.C. Extension's Richardson Hall in San Francisco. The students protested the university's investments in South Africa. The regents agreed to meet with the group on Monday. Here, a member of the group shouts at the President of the Board of Regents as others look on. (UPI)

Africans remain skeptical

MAPUTO, Mozambique (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young conceded today that despite his wedding campaign of personal diplomacy, black African leaders remain skeptical of President Carter's African policies. Young also admitted the United States probably will not support a strongly worded statement criticizing South Africa and Rhodesia, expected to be adopted at the weeklong U.N. conference Young is attending. Carter's African policies were "being received with a healthy mixture of hope and appreciation on the one hand and skepticism on the other," Young told reporters at a news conference. He spoke at length about a credibility gap in U.S. foreign policy, which he has been trying to "crase" with scores of informal meetings during the conference with black leaders. Angolan and Cuban representatives. Young also reviewed the results of the U.N. Conference on South West Africa (Namibia) and Rhodesia (Zimbabwe), which ends Saturday with the expected adoption of a "program of action for the liberation of Zimbabwe and Namibia." Though the headline tone of the final documents was dramatically softened from an initial working paper—Young said the United States and other Western nations probably will not support it. U.N. sources have said the document, submitted by the headline nations among the 87 delegations attending the meeting, will call for a total economic and arms boycott against South Africa, which controls Namibia.

Soviets respond

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The Soviet Union responded today to strategic arms limitation proposals made by the United States earlier this week, a U.S. spokesman said. He said the Soviet response consisted of "a number of ideas," not a comprehensive plan.

Disclosure of the Soviet move came after a "crucial" new round of negotiations that U.S. officials said were "moving toward agreement on a framework" for an accord. Holding Carter III, spokesman for Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, said, "the Soviet side made a presentation, which we agreed to study and will respond to."

Carter said the American response will be given at a second meeting late this afternoon.

The Soviet response, Carter said, was given Friday morning by Soviet foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and comprised "a number of ideas, not a comprehensive plan." U.S. officials described the Friday sessions as crucial. They said the Vance-Gromyko talks, which began Wednesday, are for continued Strategic Arms Limitation negotiations. The U.S. and Soviet negotiators met this morning for the fourth session of their talks that started Wednesday. A Pentagon representative joined Vance's team for the first time in the meeting that was unexpectedly brief — one hour and 10 minutes.

Oilfield blaze damage told

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — The giant oilfield fire in Saudi Arabia's eastern desert last week caused an estimated $100-million in damage, a vice president of the Arabian American Oil Co. says. Aramco Vice President George Larsen, chairman of a committee investigating the three-day fire, made the damage estimate in an interview published Thursday by the newspaper Al Riyadh. U.S. oil companies operating in Saudi Arabia told customers their supplies of crude oil from that country will be cut temporarily by up to 30 per cent because of damage to pipelines in the Abqaiq oilfield. Exxon, one of four U.S. companies that own Aramco in partnership with the Saudi government, emphasized the production losses were temporary and "should not present any significant problems to worldwide refiners" resulting in shortages of petroleum products. "There won't be any worldwide shortage of oil,"

Exxon Chairman Clifford C. Garvin said in Houston Thursday. Larsen said the damaged pipelines, which serve the world's largest oilfield, would be pumping 90 per cent of their capacity by the end of May. He denied reports the fire might have been the result of sabotage. "The fire was caused by an accidental explosion in a pipeline situated under storage tank number five at the Abqaiq field pumping station," Larsen told the newspaper.

Remembers Lindbergh

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Wilbur H. "Pete" Hill, 67, Idaho Falls, remembers very well Charles Lindbergh. Rightly, he should. Hill was Lindbergh's flight instructor.

Recalling his first meeting with the Lone Eagle on the 50th anniversary of Lindbergh's historic transatlantic flight, Hill said Lindbergh just walked in and "laid his money down and said he wanted to learn how to fly."

It was 1922 and Hill was manager of Lincoln Standard Aircraft Co., Lincoln, Neb.

Hill took Lindbergh up for lessons, but a short time later the president of the company decided he wanted bond posted on the airplane and Lindbergh left soon after that.

"I never thought he'd be famous," Hill said. "I just thought he was a kid overenthusiastic about an aircraft."

Miners' families win one

KEELOGG, Idaho (UPI) — The families of 37 miners who died in the Sunshine Mine fire May 2, 1972, will split a $35,000 out-of-court settlement from the state of Idaho.

Originally, the miners' widows and children had sought $37 million.

The suit, filed under the Idaho Wrongful Death Act, had charged the state with negligence in inspection of safety facilities in the mine and enforcement of safety standards.

A total of 91 hard-rock miners died in the Sunshine fire, the worst mining disaster in Idaho history.

George Greenfield, Boise, an attorney representing the families, said the $35,000 is "a token settlement against the State of Idaho — a small part" of the total recovery effort.

Panel's help said needed

BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, says Gov. John V. Evans should meet with the Legislative Council if he wants legislative help in financing state drought activities.

Evans told a news conference last Friday that three agencies are short of money because of drought-related activities and that he will ask the legislature for supplemental appropriations in January.

Batt, president pro tem of the Senate, told the Idaho Press Club Thursday that if Evans is depending on the legislature to come through with solutions "he certainly should meet with legislative leaders."

He said the best and least expensive way of doing that would be to meet with the Legislative Council which includes leaders from both parties and both houses of the legislature.

Batt questioned whether some of the governor's actions were necessary and whether efforts to deal with the drought may result in expanded state government.

He said the drought is not conducive to government solutions and Evans "may be spending money seeking government solutions where there aren't any."

Brutality charged

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise business man has filed a $95,000 civil suit in U. S. District Court, charging three Boise police officers — including the only woman officer on the force — with brutality.

Stanley D. Huskey accuses Officers Donna Mann, Rod Butters and Ronald Dodd of throwing him to the ground, choking him into unconsciousness and handcuffing him during a dispute over a traffic citation Sept. 19, 1975.

He said Officer Mann pulled his car over to the side of the road and told him he did not have a current registration sticker on his license plate. He said he asked her to follow him to his nearby business where he said he had the sticker.

Officer Mann followed in her patrol car and then placed him under arrest and said he would be taken to jail, he said, adding that he drove off while at no time under arrest or restrained from leaving.

Huskey said the woman handcuffed him by the arm to grab him and then summoned the other two officers by radio. He said the three of them then attacked him.

Later, Huskey was convicted of resisting arrest and falling to yield to an emergency vehicle and was fined $100.

His suit also names Police Chief John Church and unnamed police supervisors as defendants for allegedly inadequately training the officers.

Sentence upheld

BOISE (UPI) — A Canyon County District Court sentencing of Johnny Thacker to a term up to 19 years in prison for involuntary manslaughter of Josephine Fremo was upheld Thursday by the Idaho Supreme Court.

The woman died after Thacker, while he was intoxicated, shoved her causing her to fall and strike her head.

Thacker appealed his sentencing, objecting on grounds of the presentence investigation.

He contended the presentence investigation report was inadequate because it did not contain his psychological evaluation. It incompletely described the facts surrounding the crime and it did not contain either a positive plan of rehabilitation or rehabilitation alternatives.

Thacker also contended he was not received for enough in advance of the sentencing hearing to allow him a reasonable opportunity to review it and to respond to its contents.

The Supreme Court said Thacker should have raised his objections to the report during the sentencing hearing. It noted Thacker and his attorney told the trial judge at the beginning of his hearing they had read the report and were satisfied with it.

Kidnaper to be tested

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Michael Andrew Olds, 34, Walls, Wash., charged with the slaying of a Washington cab driver and the kidnaping of a Washington ranch worker and a Hazelton woman, arrived at the Oregon State Hospital Thursday to begin psychiatric tests, a hospital spokesman said.

Olds was lodged in the maximum security ward of the hospital's psychiatric unit—Umatilla County Sheriff Bill McPherson said Olds left Pendleton about 5 a.m. and arrived in Salem shortly before noon.

Last week, Olds was ordered to receive psychiatric examination at the hospital for a period of not more than 30 days. Olds is charged in connection with the April death of Stephen Schmeier, 23, a College Place, Wash., taxi driver, and the kidnaping of Marion Riley, 73, Pendleton, Ore.

BOISE (UPI) — Authorities have put an inmate into maximum security as part of the investigation into a stabbing at the state prison, Warden Richard Anderson says.

Anderson said Ray A. Wood was separated from the other prisoners in his cellblock where Timothy P. Baldwin, 23, was Wednesday with a stolen table knife. Wood stated he had no charges have been filed as yet.

Wood is serving time for involuntary manslaughter in the December, 1974 shooting death of Fred Boyenger, 31, Boise.

Baldwin is reported in fair condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Carter lends face to peanuts

ATLANTA (UPI) — Billy Carter has signed a one-year contract lending his name and face to a peanut gift package with his picture on the cover.

Carter will get 5 percent of the profits from "Billy Carter's Original Peanut Gift Box from Plains," being marketed by the Plain Ole Food Co., a new firm which also plans to package grits.

The gift packages include jars of peanut butter and bags of roasted peanuts grown in the Plains area.

Friendship survives pipe break

NEW YORK (UPI) — A broken water pipe will not alter all, break up the friendship between former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and Gulf & Western Corp. Board Chairman Charles Bluhdorn.

When a pipe burst in Rockefeller's Fifth Avenue apartment last Jan. 23, the first to know was Bluhdorn, who lives downstairs. Bluhdorn's insurance company then sued Rockefeller for $27,558.73 for damages.

"It was all a mistake," Donald Oresman, a lawyer for Bluhdorn, said Thursday.

He said Rockefeller and Bluhdorn are "really good friends."

Loren un.masks for first time

CANNES, France (UPI) — With 72 films to her credit, Italian film actress Sophia Loren is finally presenting herself for the first time on the screen without makeup.

Commenting on the new look, Miss Loren said, "Although a woman has certain vanities, she must surmount these difficulties by putting trust in the director."

The film, "Una Giornata Particolare," ("A Special Day"), was screened Thursday.

Haley returns to small town

KENNING, Tenn. (UPI) — Alex Haley, author of "Roots," is back at the site of his American roots for a three-day statewide festival, saying he's proud of his small-town heritage.

Arriving by motorcade in this West Tennessee town where he was born, Haley, 55, said, "Little towns are what I think are the fundamental strength of this country. It's from those little towns that come so many people of strength — people with a sense of identity and a sense of faith."

Around 2,000 persons attended the town of 605 to greet the black author who was presented with the "key to the city."

It happened at right time

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Olympic star Bruce Jenner was grateful for last weekend's motorcycle accident that broke his right leg.

grateful for the timing, that is.

Jenner, whose gold medal in the decathlon in last year's Olympic games won him lucrative television and other contracts, learned from his doctor Thursday that he will be in a cast for six weeks to recover from knee reconstruction surgery.

"Thank goodness this didn't happen last year," Jenner said. "Everyone would have been saying 'Bruce who?'"

'Fly' plans show

MONTREAL (UPI) — He's a genuine comic book hero — a daredevil man of steel. And "The Human Fly" plans to show the world this summer why he's the greatest daredevil of them all.

"Compared to Evel Knievel, I'm the space-age daredevil of them all," the 29-year-old Fly modestly told reporters Thursday while announcing plans to jump 36 buses on a rocket-powered motorcycle.

The 306-foot jump will be made this summer in the Olympic Stadium — if the stuntman can raise the rent money. A successful jump would almost triple Knievel's $100-foot record leap over 13 buses.

"Then nobody, but nobody, will be able to say that I'm not the greatest daredevil of them all," said The Fly, who keeps his identity concealed behind a rhinestone-studded scarlet jumpsuit and face mask.

"I want to make all other daredevils obsolete."

The Montreal-born Fly, 6-foot-3 and 190 pounds, has SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Australians vote Saturday on four constitutional issues and a more emotional one — whether to adopt a ballad about a drifter who steals sheep as the country's national anthem.

Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser and Labor opposition leader Gough Whitlam both are in favor of the nostalgic "Whispering Matilda" as the national song.

In the minds of most Aussies it is "God Save the Queen."

And regardless of the outcome of Saturday's vote they'll continue singing about a "Jolly Swagman" (drifter) stealing a jumbuck (sheep) from a squatter (rancher) who jumps into a billabong (creek) trying to escape from state troopers and drunks.

Saturday's challengers to "Matilda" are "God Save the Queen," which will remain the national anthem for regal occasions, the somber "Advance Australia Fair" and the equally solemn "Song of Australia."

Polls show voters divided between "Matilda" and "Advance Australia Fair," the latter sometimes criticized as being too expansionist.

The nation's 8.2 million voters will also be asked for a to give electors in the Northern Territory and the Australian capital territory (Canberra) a vote in future referendums.

Fraser and Whitlam have called for a yes vote on the constitutional issues.

But for most voters what should be the national song is the main question and "Matilda" has a strong emotional pull on Australians.

It was sung "Aussie Diggers" in World War I and II, and in the Korean and Vietnam wars.

It has enthralled listeners from Barle Court in London (known as Kangaroo Valley) to wherever Aussies down their drinks in international bars.

Buck Owens seeks bride with Idaho ad campaign

BOISE (UPI) — Country-western singer Buck Owens has put an ad in The Statesman and 17 California newspapers in an effort to win back his bride of three days, a former Idaho woman.

Owens, 47, married Jana Joe Grefl, 33, formerly of Fruitland, in Las Vegas May 2. It was his third marriage and her second. She was the fiddler in his band at the time.

But, said his public relations agent, Sandy Friedman, Los Angeles, three days later

Owens became concerned about losing his bride, left his bride and served her with annulment papers.

Since then, he said, Owens had been depressed about leaving his bride, has stopped the annulment proceedings and wants to get back with her. The trouble is, he said, Owens can't find her.

So the singer has begun a $10,000 advertising campaign. At the very least, his agent said, he wants "Jana" to rejoin the band. He has placed black-bordered ads reading "JANA JOE OWENS Only love can heal the hurt. BUCK Friedman said Jana Jacobs believed to be somewhere in California. But her mother, Bette Hopper, Fruitland, would say where she is.

DEAR ABBY: After years of reading your column you finally pushed the "write" button. To PUZZLED IN FLORIDA who can't find anyone to do her repairs or remodeling, here are some reasons for the shortage of good professional craftsmen.

People who ask for estimates on remodeling or repair jobs are sometimes slow to make up their minds. They think my time should be free, but they gladly pay $80 to $90 per hour to talk to a doctor, lawyer or accountant.

When people learn to treat professionals in work clothes with as much respect as they treat professionals in suits and ties, good craftsmen will be easier to find.

TIRE OF PEANUTS DEAR TIRE D: Hooray for your side. I couldn't agree more.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's widowed mother has made her home with us for the past 22 years. She was not a built-in babysitter for our children or a servant. (Fortunately we have always had help.)

Lately my mother-in-law has become difficult to live with, and even violent. Her health is falling fast, and she constantly accuses us of trying to do away with her for her money. (She doesn't have any.)

She has made such a madhouse out of our home that our teenage children can no longer have their friends over. My wife and I have discussed putting her mother in a fine rest home, but my wife's only worry is, "What will people say if I send my own mother away to be cared for by strangers?" If you have a comment on this, I would like to see it in print.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR N: Elderly people who pose such problems in the homes of their children should be cared for in a rest home, if possible, for their own sakes and those of their children. Of all the reasons for refusing to send her, "What will people say?" is by far the poorest.

DEAR ABBY: I am tall, handsome, intelligent, sincere, divorced, 48 and broke.

I would like to remarry. The woman's age, shape or looks are of no consequence...as long as she's rich.

I hope you'll agree to play matchmaker. And you may publish my real name and address because I am on the level.

HONOLULU

DEAR TOM: Sorry but you'll have to find another way to find a rich woman who would marry a man with your qualifications and desire to sell himself to the highest bidder.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Leaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped ($4) envelope.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: My mother recently died at age 64 from hypertensive arteriosclerotic cardiovascular disease. Could you please explain this condition?

As far as we know she had no symptoms. Would this disease have taken a long time to develop? What caused it? What could have been done to prevent it?

Dear Reader: It is always a shock to lose a loved one. If it has to happen, a sudden demise during sleep with no symptoms or disability before that is the best way. You have the satisfaction of knowing that your mother was spared prolonged anxiety and pain that might have accompanied a stroke.

Your mother died of a stroke. High blood pressure increases the speed of changes in the arteries. These changes are the fatty-cholesterol deposits that may suddenly obstruct an artery. If the heart is involved it causes a heart attack and if the artery is to the brain it causes a stroke.

Such events are quite common in our population. As I explain in "The Health Letter" number 3-5 on strokes, there are about 300,000 such deaths in the United States each year. I am sending you that issue so you can better understand the problem. Others who want more information on strokes and what to do about them can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue.

I want to emphasize to my other readers that this is one reason why there has been a national campaign to find people with high blood pressure and to treat it. Adequate treatment of high blood pressure helps delay or prevent strokes. Even despite treatment the stroke can still occur.

High blood pressure and the changes in the arteries usually do not cause any symptoms. It is a silent disease. Often the first symptom is a complication such as a heart attack or a stroke.

Diet, weight control, not smoking cigarettes and a sensible exercise program are all important in preventing these common diseases.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I was shocked to learn that a baking company is now putting wood cellulose in its bread to increase the fiber content. I had just bought a loaf of the bread before I heard what they were using. I threw the whole loaf in the garbage. I'll be darned if I'll eat wood!

Does wood cellulose have any nutrients? Would prolonged use of such bulk be as irritant to the intestines?

Dear Reader: There are several indigestible fiber sources being used now to make low-calorie bread. It won't hurt you. There are lots of indigestible fibers in some of nature's best unadorned foods.

There are two reasons for doing this. The fiber decreases the calories for those who need to decrease the calorie intake and the fiber may actually help the function of the intestines.

This is really an outgrowth of the observation that cereal fiber found in whole wheat before it is milled and converted to white flour improves bowel function. The colon needs a minimal amount of indigestible fiber to contract and relax normally in performing its function.

There are no nutrients in any of the fibers that we can eat. Our body does not break down cellulose, but some animals are able to do this. Cellulose is really a form of carbohydrate and animals who can break it down use it as carbohydrate, just as we use starch.

Two sides to coin

Dolly brings country to NY

By BOBBY RAY MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a maxim among singers: Don't bring country music to New York; the people won't like it.

Dolly Parton proved the maxim wrong. A recent three-night stand at The Bottom Line in Greenwich Village was the hottest ticket in town with fans and the media. There was not even a standing room.

I'm not surprised. I remember Dolly Parton before she was a star. We went to the same high school back in Sevier County, Tenn. She was already strumming a guitar and singing on local radio.

The first time I saw her was at a high school football game in the early '60s. Her figure and yellow curls, even then, attracted attention.

Some of the boys snickered: Why'd she want to carry that silly old guitar around with her? They stopped laughing long ago.

Until last weekend in New York, I had not seen her, except for a few brief glimpses on television, since she got out of high school in 1964. At a champagne breakfast after a midnight performance, I got to chat with her.

"I graduated from high school on Friday night," she said. "I left early the next morning on a Greyhound bus for Nashville. I went there because that's where my music could come to life. I left home because the mountains couldn't hold the dreams I had."

Her appearance is outrageous. Blonde wigs pile atop her head. Flashy, light-tinting clothes emphasize a Mae West-type body. She kids about it.

"I once tried to be fashionable," she said. "But only once. It was back when women's liberation was a big thing, and I was one of the first to burn my bra. It took the fire department four days to put it out."

How does she play the guitar with all that heavy jewelry and long fingernails? "Pretty good," she said. "But occasionally one of the nails get in the way as I play and I'll tear it out by the glue."

Seriously, she explains. "I have always wanted to shine and glitter. I always thought when I got rich I would have lots of loud colors, flashy clothes and fancy jewelry because I didn't have any of that when I was growing up."

"When I was just getting started I decided that I would dress in gaudy, outrageous clothes because that fit my outgoing personality. Since I already had other parts of my body that were extreme, I figured I might as well be totally extreme. Now if I want to wear two wigs at a time piled 40 feet high on my head I feel free to."

"I graduated from high school on Friday night. I left early the next morning on a Greyhound bus for Nashville."

She writes the music herself and it has a new sound: A new back-up group called Gypsy Fever has broadened her appeal to rock audiences.

Now, Dolly Parton is off in Europe. On Tuesday, she was visited backstage at the Kings Theater in Glasgow, Scotland by Prince Philip.

The current tour is designed to give her greater exposure in the rock market.

"I have already been to all the places where country fans are—and I'll be going back. But now I get a chance to meet the more contemporary audience on their own turf. It has been exciting to see that I can touch all kinds of different people with my music."

New York loves Dolly

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Grant Thomas didn't think his dog Layla should be put behind bars for her first offense, so he joined her in her cage at the pound.

Girl picks mother over inheritance

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Meghan Kathleen Wilger, a fair-haired, pixie-like 6-year-old, snapped off the answers to the judge's questions, winning the jurists regard and the right to live with her real mother.

It was a decision that cost the child $15 million.

Meghan told District Judge Samuel Caniglia she would rather live with her real mother than be an heiress.

"The money made no impression on her," Caniglia said Wednesday. "She could have cared less."

Caniglia granted the child's wishes and ordered her returned to her natural mother, Mrs. Tony Cox, formerly Mary Wilger. He denied the adoption request of the child's aunt and uncle, Timothy and Isabel Wilger of Omaha.

Isabel Wilger's great aunt, Mabel Shaw Walker of New York, had left a trust estate worth an estimated $15 million. She stipulated that Mrs. Wilger could benefit from the proceeds of the trust but could not touch the principal, which was to go to Mrs. Wilger's heir.

Meghan would have been the sole heir if the Wilgers were allowed to adopt her.

When Meghan was 18 months old, Mrs. Cox, then single, signed a handwritten document giving her brother, Timothy, "complete legal and total custody of my minor child, Meghan Kathleen Wilger."

But Caniglia noted Mrs. Cox visited her daughter often at the Wilgers and helped support the child.

"I felt the document was not an abandonment or relinquishment and since she did give custody and nothing else, she could revoke it at any time, she wanted to," he said.

Mrs. Cox told Caniglia she had lived in a commune, taken a variety of illegal drugs and could not say for sure who Meghan's father is. But she said her life was changed since she married Cox, a golf pro from Council Bluffs, Iowa, and that she wanted her daughter back.

Court papers said that on Oct. 24, 1975, Mrs. Cox "seized and secreted away" Meghan. The Wilgers filed a suit demanding Meghan's return, but Caniglia ruled against them.

"Every child is entitled to the love, affection and care of her natural mother," Caniglia said.

"The mother, in my opinion, had done nothing to forfeit that right. She was not unfit morally or physically to have her care and custody. I just felt a mother's love is worth more than the money involved, more than any amount of money."

Caniglia said he will review the case in six months to determine if Meghan is getting proper care. If so, the Coxes will be awarded permanent custody.

Unwed mother faces child abuse charge

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The unwed mother of a 7-week-old infant, born a heroin addict because of the mother's drug habit, has been charged with child abuse for using heroin during pregnancy.

Authorities said Wednesday the child abuse charges were filed on the ground the mother — an admitted heroin addict — continued to take the drug during her pregnancy in the full knowledge her baby would be born an addict.

"This is a precedent-setting case," said Oakland Probate Judge John J. O'Brien, who is reviewing the charge. "It raises questions about the rights of the mother, the state and the unborn child — something like the abortion issue."

He acknowledged that his ultimate decision in the case could have widespread ramifications for expectant mothers who are heavy drinkers or dependent on tranquilizers.

The baby, who recovered from his heroin addiction, was taken from his mother at birth by Oakland County court officials and placed in the temporary custody of his grandmother.

"Our position is that the state has a stake in the child's development," said the county prosecutor, L. Brooks Patterson.

Patterson seeks to have the baby permanently taken from the mother or placed under careful court scrutiny on the ground the mother's willful use of heroin during pregnancy constituted willful abuse of the child.

But Evelyn F. Forrest, attorney for the mother, contends there is little case law on the books to justify taking the baby from his mother.

"Under the existing law, a fetus is not a person," Mrs. Forrest said in reference to laws regulating abortion.

"Since they took the baby away at birth, never allowing her to have control, she couldn't possibly be guilty of abuse under the existing law. If the juvenile code was intended to cover the unborn, it should say so."

O'Brien has rejected a motion by Mrs. Forrest seeking dismissal of the child abuse charge and return of the infant to his mother.

Another hearing was set for May 31.

Capture protested
GRANT Thomas, Austin, Tex., didn't take kindly to his dog, Layla, being snatched up by the dogcatcher. To protest the capture and resulting $10 fine, Thomas joined his pet behind bars for several hours, finally relenting and paying the fine. (UPI)

South knew that West had started with five spades. Then South cashed the hearts while everyone followed. That accounted for three more of West's cards. Now South cashed the king and ace of diamonds and saw West follow to both. West was now known to hold five spades, three hearts and two diamonds. Ten cards were known.

South led his last diamond and when West followed the play of the diamond queen was sure fire. If East didn't follow, West could not hold more than one club and the second-round club finesse against East's queen would be a certainty.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"You were lucky," commented North. "After East dropped the ten on the second diamond lead, you should have finessed against West's jack in accordance with the principle of restricted choice. Instead you had to depend on the club finesse after the jack of diamonds failed to drop."

"You talk like a gas case," retorted South. "Can't you see that my play was a sure thing?"

South's play had been a sure thing and he had used perfect technique.

He won the spade in dummy and promptly cashed a second spade. East showed out and

A Georgia reader says, "I am told that when you hold nine trumps you try to drop the queen. I am also told that the suit breaks 3-1 about 50 percent of the time and 5-0 only 40 percent. Is this consistent?"

It is because when both opponents follow small to the first lead of the suit, all 5-1 breaks that include the singleton-queen have been eliminated.

Special Olympics set

BOISE — The eighth Idaho Special Olympics games will be held May 22-24 at Boise State University, according to Toby Collinsworth, state games director. Pre-registration indicates that some 1,200 individuals from over 100 Idaho, Eastern Oregon, and Washington communities will be in attendance, stated Collinsworth. Competition will be held in track and field, swimming, gymnastics, wrestling, senior sports, sports for multiple-handicapped, and bicycling. A new program which will highlight the games will be the "Very Special Arts Festival," which will coincide with the sporting events. "This new experience will allow mentally retarded individuals an opportunity to display individual and group talent in the various arts," stated Diane Walker, chairperson of the event. The schedule for the 1977 Idaho games will begin on Sunday with registration and the opening ceremonies. The opening ceremonies will be at 7:30 p.m. in Bronco Stadium with the public invited. The parade will be highlighted by the Meridian High School band and the lighting of the Olympic torch. Competition will be held on Monday and Tuesday. Final events will be on Tuesday along with the closing ceremonies and the victory dance.

Cleanup postponed

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Grange activities for Johnny Horizon cleanup day were curtailed because of bad weather, but will be completed when conditions are more favorable. Clark Kleinkopf, master, said this week the time and date will be announced. Velda Lawrence, Forest Service employe, showed a film on Alaska, followed by a question period at the last Grange meeting. Bertha Gliek, home economics chairman, reported that sewing exhibits for the National Grange sewing contests had been taken to the local judging committee at the Pomona level. State judging was May 17 in Gooding. The agriculture and fair committee reminded members that those now planting gardens should be aware of the Twin Falls County fair exhibit requirements. Pete Creed announced that more household furnishings and furniture items are, desperately needed by the residents of the Twin Falls Rehabilitation Centers. He delivered pillows and other items made by Grange women. It was reported a "Mother's Day" banquet was served by the men of the Grange with Ann Cover, Twin Falls County commissioner, giving the Mothers' Day address. Kleinkopf read poems and welcomed guests. Tapes of musical programs presented by Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Farrar recently were played by Clifford Davis. Lillian Sullivan sang and Dorothy Custer also gave readings during the program.

TE council denies meter fine raise

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has denied a request by city police for stiffer parking meter fines.

Police Chief Frank Barnett earlier requested the steeper penalties for persons who park too long at parking meters in an effort to get parking meter violators to pay their fines quicker.

Under the plan designed by City Atty. Charles Brumbach, motorists would pay $1 for each violation if they pay within 24 hours. After that, motorists would be charged $5 for each violation if they pay within seven days. After that, motorists would face a maximum penalty of 30 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Currently, police charge parking violators $1 if they pay within the first week and $3 after that.

At its regular meeting Monday, the council voted 5-2 to deny the request after several downtown merchants voiced disappointment with the plan.

"I'd go along with 48 hours, but 24 hours is kind of tough," Earl Faulkner, president of

The Paris, a downtown clothing store, said of the time limit before fines go up.

He said motorists probably should have three days to pay the $1 fine.

"Twenty-four hours is a little swift," agreed John Roper, owner of Roper's, another downtown store.

Councilman H.E. Cheney, who voted for the higher fines, said the idea behind the stiffer penalties is "to encourage people to pay the ticket when they get it instead of taking it home and forgetting about it later."

Police Chief Frank Barnett said earlier the department faced a "backlog of hundreds" of tickets. Police officers must spend time calling up violators and reminding them their fines are due, he said.

"For 30 per cent of the tickets it is costing us $2 to $3 to collect $1," Barnett said.

City Manager Jean Millar said Wednesday there was "the possibility" the council would take the matter up again at a later council working lunch.

FFA heads elected

TWIN FALLS — Brett Lampe, Twin Falls, has been selected president of the West Magic Valley District of the Idaho Association of Future Farmers of America.

Others elected at Tuesday night meeting at Twin Falls High School are Kent Thibault, Jerome, vice-president; Connie Swanson, Twin Falls, secretary; Curtis Stockton, Jerome, reporter; Marty Short, Gooding, treasurer; and Joe Campos, Hagerman, sentinel.

'Hopper, Mormon cricket find Gem drought ideal

BOISE (UPI) — Drought may not be the only headache for Idaho farmers this summer.

The drought conditions are ideal for the grasshopper and the Mormon cricket.

But an authority on the insects told United Press International in a telephone interview today it was still too early to really tell whether there will be an infestation of the grasshopper and cricket this summer.

Polgard, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Service in Twin Falls, said right now the weather wasn't conducive to finding even the insects.

Polgard said the grasshopper crickets emerged early. They have been slowed by the cold, damp weather.

"I'll have to wait until the weather is a little better in the situation," he said. Insects hide and seek cover in cold, rainy type weather.

Presently, Polgard said, it appears that "we don't have the situation of the past two years."

"Mormon crickets the last two years have infested areas of Power, Oneida and Washington counties," Polgard said this year there probably would be numerous small bands of crickets moving around in some of the rougher country, which will give persons the idea there are several bands.

Polgard said insect infestation "seems to fall hand in glove with drought conditions."

"Weather is the greatest controller of all living things and this includes the insect world," he said. "Unfavorable conditions do a far better job than man would do to control insects."

Polgard said chemicals were a good standby, but "Mother Nature has her own way to either eliminate entire insect populations or bring them to such tremendous numbers that man has deep trouble dealing with them."

The agriculture official said several areas were known to have crickets, but the cool weather made it difficult to really ascertain the population.

"Mid-morning could be good survey conditions, but a change in the weather and by noon the bugs seek cover and a man could walk around trying to find something he can't find because they are under cover," Polgard said.

Polgard said the first crickets emerged in Elmore County in February and "we have been trying to get a handle on it since."

He said cricket control was "extremely expensive because of the manpower and chemical costs."

"We just can't stay in the game at this price," Polgard added.

Polgard said the grasshopper was not considered a threat at this stage of the game. He said they really didn't become a threat until they reached the adult stage.

But, he added, control was usually based on "getting in and treating them before they become adults so they are easy to control."

Polgard said timing was important "but it always doesn't work in our favor."

He said the crickets were back in Power County and some areas of the Boise National Forest.

"They're still out there," he said, "but it's just up to us to get there when the weather is good to make an assessment and then get approval of land managers to put on control treatment."

"Our whole program hinges on land management agency approval that we do something or request that we do something," Polgard said.

Valley FFA installs new officers, confers honors

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Special awards and new officers for the Valley chapter of Future Farmers of America were announced at the annual dinner Tuesday.

Tony DeLeon was presented the "Star Chapter Farmer" award. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio DeLeon, were recipients of the "Honorary Chapter Farmer" award.

The "Star Chapter Greenhand" award went to Robert Winkle.

New officers named for the coming year include Dan Pangburn, president; Bret Dixon and Richard Day, vice-presidents; Curt McEwen, secretary; Robert Winkle, parliamentarian; and Melinda Pangburn, reporter.

DeLeon, chapter president, noted that three members had received their State Farmer Awards earlier in the year. They were Dan Gardner, Chad Dixon and Tony DeLeon. Gardner was named "Star District Farmer."

The following letter awards were presented by Ron Melcalf — first-year awards: Andy Morris, Verlig Lohnes, Melinda Pangburn and Robert Winkle; second year — Kelly Stigler, Curt McEwen, Dan Gardner and Tony DeLeon; and third year — Bryan Human and Dan Pangburn.

Dan Pangburn reported on the year's activities. A group of members presented a parliamentary procedure demonstration.

Grain support fight set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defying the threat of a veto, three grain bill congressmen say they'll go to the House floor this summer to fight for "rock-bottom" wheat and corn supports above levels proposed this week by the Agriculture Committee.

Two of the lawmakers, Reps. Richard Nolan, D-Minn., and Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, also told Wednesday news conference the committee — by trying to fashion the bill within cost limits set by President Carter — had treated southern crops such as cotton, rice and peanuts more favorably than grains.

Carter kept his campaign promises for rice, peanuts, cotton and tobacco, but we still have a lousy program for wheat and corn," Nolan protested.

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okl., joining the midwesterners at the news conference, criticized the basically, wheat, facing odds of 9 to 1 approved a package tentatively priced at about $1.8 billion, well below the $3.8 billion price tag on a version adopted earlier by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Carter hasn't said how he would react to the House bill, but has threatened to veto the Senate version. Senate aides said that measure may be debated on the Senate floor as early as next week.

English, Harkin and Nolan were the only three Democratic members of the House committee to vote against the bill when the panel approved it 40-6 Monday.

English said he plans to propose raising wheat supports to the level approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee, including a $310

Middle East war rumor tests US foreign policy

By WALTER LOGAN
UPI Foreign Editor

Barely two days after the upset victory by the hardline Likud party in the Israeli elections there was open talk of the possibility of a fifth Middle East War. The deteriorating situation faced President Carter with a grave foreign policy challenge.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, a man usually given to cautious statements, told a news conference Thursday in Geneva that "we cannot exclude a new military confrontation" in the Middle East. He spoke of the "dramatic deterioration" of the situation, and half a dozen Arab nations predicted a new war.

Leader of the Likud party and Israel's next Prime Minister, Menachem Begin, 63, a former Israeli guerrilla leader described by the Arabs as a superhawk, a war criminal, and a terrorist whose Irgun-Zvai Leumi guerrilla army killed 250 Arab villagers in "the Deir Yassin Massacre."

The Irgun also tortured British agents to death in the days before Israel's independence and blew up the King David Hotel in Jerusalem, killing 95 British soldiers.

Begin is a fierce Zionist implacably opposed to returning any of the territory Israel captured in the past four Middle East wars, and to the creation of any homeland for the thousands of Palestinian refugees displaced by the 1948 Israeli-Arab war. Both views place him in direct confrontation with the Arab world — and the policies enunciated by President Carter.

Carter has called for Israeli withdrawal from occupied areas and for formation of a Palestinian state. The Times of London said Arabs must be saying with satisfaction, "What more suicidal folly could the gods inflict on Israel than that of choosing leaders committed to holding on at any price to territories which their neighbors will not renounce. In that case, the United States, on whom they depend for weapons, for financial aid and for diplomatic support?"

Even the formation of Begin's new coalition government was causing concern in the Arab world. He was bringing in to it the National Religious party whose members include the ultranationalist Gushi Emunim bloc that created the settlement of Camp Kadum on the occupied West Bank of Jordan near troubled Nablus — "1967" is the Arab world of Israel's intention to keep territory it captured in war.

In statements to newsmen in Tel-Aviv, Begin cautioned Carter against trying to impose a Middle-East peace settlement on Israel. The United States has reacted enthusiastically so far and a presidential spokesman said Carter has "no concerns" over the change of government in Israel.

But Carter's hopes for a Middle East peace settlement call for reconvening of a Middle East peace conference in Geneva by the end of the year and Waldheim told the Geneva news conference Thursday he believes there is little chance the conference can be resumed this year.

Waldheim gave his pessimistic assessment after conferences with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, co-chairmen of the Geneva conference. Vance and Gromyko took up the new Middle East crisis in afternoon talks.

The Israeli developments also came under urgent discussions in the Saudi Arabian capital of Riyadh, Thursday.

Reclamation head resigns

DENVER (UPI) — The Bureau of Reclamation's director of design and construction today said Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus ordered him to resign because of the collapse of Idaho's Teton Dam last June which killed nine persons.

Harold G. Arthur said Andrus' decision was unfair. He said he agreed to retire after learning Andrus would try to fire him if he didn't step down.

Arthur said he told Andrus he had "nothing to do with the design of the Teton Dam. I had absolutely nothing to do with the design. Through channels, I got a response (from Andrus). My resignation was still desired."

The dam collapsed June 5 and caused an estimated $100 million in damage. An Interior Department committee last month said faulty design may have caused cracking of both the dam's embankment and a layer of mortar on its foundation.

Arthur, 62, said Andrus, former governor of Idaho, had "tarnished my reputation" and said he was "asked to resign without cause." He said he would leave his job on July 1, three years before he had planned to retire.

Arthur said he was told through government channels Andrus wanted him to resign and "that if I did not, steps would be taken to force my retirement. That would take quite a bit of doing. I've got almost 40 years of service."

According to Arthur, he was in a staff job with the Reclamation Bureau at the time the Teton Dam was designed. He said construction on the dam was underway when he became director of the agency's design branch in 1972.

He said it was not his job to review all dam designs and said Andrus' decision to force his retirement "gives the impression I had some direct personal responsibility for design errors (in the Teton Dam)."

Taxi service dies

BURLEY — Burley Taxi Co. had no cabs on the street Thursday.

Anyone calling 678-8068 since then heard: "I'm sorry. You have reached a number that has been disconnected or is no longer in service."

Owner Gale Bailey closed down the taxi service after the insurance became due Wednesday.

The business closure leaves Burley and the other three towns in the central Mtn-Cassia triangle without intracity public transportation.

Bailey had announced his intention earlier this month to close the business, although he said he would try to sell the company. He also contacted Burley officials about the possibility of a subsidy, but the city felt that could not be done.

Bailey said today he was unable to find a buyer. "I'm just going to dispose of the equipment and let 'er go," he said.

Burley Taxi Co. had three vehicles. Normally only one cab was in service at a time, but a second cab could be called up during heavy traffic and the third was in reserve.

Bailey has owned the taxi company seven out of the last eight years, having sold it and repurchased the company in 1972.

He blamed higher costs, including a 50 per cent jump in insurance rates, and a diminishing demand for taxi service for bringing an end to the Mtn-Cassia area's only local public transportation.

Ketchum snuffs lights

KETCHUM — It's lights out for Ketchum.

This resort town has decided to extinguish 63 of 90 street lights in an effort to save energy.

The Ketchum city council passed a resolution this week to conserve electrical energy by turning off street lights in areas of the city where they are not felt to be absolutely necessary.

The 27 street lights which remain in service are located on the main traffic arterials of Ketchum where lighting is needed for traffic and pedestrian safety. Mayor Jerry Selfert said today.

"By selling an example for electric energy conservation, the city council hopes to stimulate similar conservation measures by Ketchum businesses and residents," Selfert said about the action.

Although the action will save the city only about $1156 a year, Ketchum city administrator Jim Jacques figures the city will be saving over 1,200,000 gallons of water per day that would have been used to produce hydro electric energy to light the streets.

Selfert said a recent survey in Ketchum shows no correlation between incidents of crime and street lighting so the energy conserving action should be safe as well as prudent.

"The energy we save now will allow water storage in reservoirs to increase, thereby providing for generation of electricity later on this year," Selfert said.

Crisis center opens

TWIN FALLS — The Women's Crisis Center for Magic Valley which will provide assistance with alcohol-related problems opened in Twin Falls this week.

The community-based, residential care center will have inpatient and out-patient programs, and community information on alcoholism. The men's center, Magic Valley Alcohol Rehabilitation Center, Inc., has been open five years.

Jim Taylor, men's and women's centers director, says "Any woman who feels a need to discuss problems in her life that may be influenced by alcohol can give us a call. She can then determine which part of the program can benefit her needs."

Taylor may be reached at 734-5186. Any person who has an alcoholic friend or family member is also welcome to call for information or assistance in helping the alcoholic.

Both centers are funded by alcohol tax monies and share a citizens governing board chaired by Dr. Don Keith.

A woman can make the decision to enter the program, the family can urge a woman to enter, or the courts can use the center as an alternative.

Programs will be conducted in conjunction with Alcoholics Anonymous, Substance Abuse, and the Magic Valley Alcohol Rehabilitation Center for Men.

The center has received donated furniture and household items from individuals and businesses. But Carol McNamee, resident manager, says office furniture, filing cabinets, blankets, lawn maintenance equipment, a vacuum, sewing machine, and craft items are still needed. Those wishing to donate items may call Mrs. McNamee at 734-7080.

Baldy runs lift tickets will cost $13 next year

SUN VALLEY — Lift tickets will be more expensive next year at Sun Valley Resorts Inc. will be raising its Baldy Mountain lift ticket price to $13 a day, a $2 increase from the originally scheduled 1976-77 season day rate.

New U.S. Forest Service regulations allow ski resorts throughout the West except California, to set their own lift rate prices for the 1977-78 season.

Sun Valley quickly took advantage of the new rules, jumping its day-pass rate up 18 per cent over what the rates would have been this season if the mountain had ever fully opened.

The Forest Service, which owns Baldy Mountain and leases it to Sun Valley Resorts Inc., previously set strict guidelines limiting the amount of lift rate increases.

According to Ketchum District Ranger Tom Farr, price hike proposals were evaluated in view of the cost of living and an 8.5 per cent increase, equal to the 1974-75 inflationary rate, was set as the top increase limit.

But this year, the Forest Service made a study of competition and pricing procedures and determined sufficient competition exists in all regions except California to allow prices to float competitively next season, Farr said.

Half-day passes on Baldy will also increase from $7.50, originally scheduled for the past season, to $9 next season.

Next year on Dollar Mountain, a full day lift ticket will cost $15, up from this season's scheduled $9.

In early February, when the Forest Service's former pricing procedures were still in effect, Sun Valley requested and was granted lift rate increases. Then the full day ticket price jumped only $1 — from $11 to $12 a day on Baldy. Half day tickets on Baldy increased from $2.50 to $8.10 and no price changes were announced on Dollar Mountain.

Farr said other western ski resorts, notably Aspen and Vail, Colorado, also have raised their full day lift prices to $13.

Officials at both Pomorelle and Soldier Mountain resorts said no lift rate is now scheduled but the possibility is being studied at both resorts.

Pomorelle charges $6.50 for a full day and $5 half day. Soldier's rates are $6.50 and $3.50.

The prices for other Sun Valley lift tickets — all full day, season pass, and discount card passes — will all increase next season, and one or two new lift ticket options will be introduced.

No announcement relating to the rate increases was issued by Sun Valley Resorts Inc.

Hospital costs may rise by 9%

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Patients at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital will be facing increased costs in the near future if a plan to expand emergency room and outpatient facilities is implemented.

The proposed expansion calls for the spending of about $5.6 million to add treatment stations in the cramped emergency room and add an outpatient center at the hospital.

The money would be borrowed from the state Health Facilities Authority and then repaid from hospital income.

The MVMH board Thursday night directed its auditor to perform a feasibility study to detail costs and repayment of the project.

The hospital administrator, James Rosenbaum, estimated the expansion might raise all patient fees at the hospital by about 3 per cent.

With present patient care costs at the hospital now close to $160, the increase would put per-day costs close to $175.

The increase would also apply to laboratory and X-ray charges and other hospital services.

The board directed the feasibility study after a presentation by Boise State University statistician Pat Shannon — showed that emergency room visits had grown from about 1,600 in 1960 to about 10,000 last year and could reach 14,500 by 1983.

The emergency rooms' three treatment stations are incapable of handling the projected increase, Shannon said, and should be expanded to cut down present waiting time for some patients. About 10 per cent of the emergency-patients now have to wait up to 20 minutes for treatment, he said.

Shannon also said that outpatient visits have increased from about 10,000 annually in 1960 to about 36,000 last year, with the projection for 1983 at 60,000 or more.

"The need for facilities is going to increase at a very significant rate," he said.

According to Fred Decker, who is chairman of the state's Health Facilities Authority (HFA) as well as being MVMH's attorney, the state agency would issue revenue bonds to cover the cost of the hospital expansion and then loan the money obtained through the bonds to the hospital "at very little cost."

Decker said the HFA had been loaning money to health facilities for about 2½ years but had not before loaned money to MVMH.

He said the hospital would have to show it could pay off the bonds through its "own operating revenues."

"It's a very simple operation and the money is available," Decker told the board.

In directing the feasibility study, the board instructed Rosenbaum to clear the way for the HFA loans through necessary federal and state paperwork and to alert the hospital's architect to be ready to go on expansion design.

Decker told the board they would have to start HFA application immediately to meet a September of October deadline for funding.

A previous public bond election called by the hospital to fund the expansion was defeated at the polls.

The HFA issuance of revenue bonds requires no public election.

Multi-county drug arrests pinch 12

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Authorities arrested 12 persons and confiscated about 200 pounds of marijuana and a half pound of cocaine — valued at close to $30,000 on the street — narcotics agents reported today.

The Twin Falls area narcotics bureau agent, who asked not to be identified, said four Twin Falls residents, four Jerome residents, and men from Bellevue, Halley, Rupert and Salt Lake City were arrested Wednesday and Thursday on charges stemming from a five-month investigation by Boise and other agents.

The agent said authorities confiscated more marijuana and cocaine than has ever been confiscated as a result of an investigation here.

In Twin Falls, police arrested Raymond Jeff, Rick Kuhn, Dan Parrott and Diane Parrott, at their residences.

Police charged Jeff with two counts of delivering cocaine, Dan Parrott with four counts of delivering amphetamines, marijuana, phenylethylamine and morphine, Diane Parrott with delivery of marijuana and cocaine, and Rick Kuhn with delivery of more than a pound of marijuana.

Jeff was being held in Blaine County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond, Dan Parrott in Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $3,000 bond, Diane Parrott and Kuhn were released on $1,500 bond each.

At a Ketchum motel Wednesday night, police arrested Frank Cianelli, Bellevue, and Paul O'Connell, Halley. Police charged Cianelli with four counts of delivering cocaine (three in Blaine County and one in Twin Falls County) — and O'Connell with aiding in the sale of cocaine. Cianelli was being held in Blaine County Jail in lieu of $30,000. O'Connell was freed on $2,500 bond.

In Jerome County, police arrested Kelly Emerson, Jerome, Wilford William Steinman, and Douglas Suter, all Jerome. In Boise, police also arrested a Jerome woman, Bertha Jean Brown, 27.

Police charged Emerson and Steinman with delivery of amphetamines. Suter with frequenting places where drugs are being sold, (a misdemeanor) and Brown with delivery of more than a pound of marijuana and more than an ounce of cocaine.

Emerson was being held in Jerome County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond and Steinman in lieu of $10,000 bond. Brown was being held in Ada County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond. Police said other charges are pending against her. Suter was released on $150 bond.

The large bust began early Wednesday morning when police arrested John C. Smith V, 30, Salt Lake City, and Ronald O. Moller, 29, Rupert, after stopping their car in Boise. Police said they confiscated 168 pounds of "hybrid" marijuana and small amounts of cocaine and LSD.

Both were charged with delivery of a controlled substance and possession with intent to deliver marijuana.

Smith and Moller were released on $5,000 bond each.

The case began about five months ago as an investigation in Jerome County later spreading to Blaine and Twin Falls counties' the Twin Falls chief agent said.

Sheriff deputies and city police from Twin Falls, Jerome, Ketchum and Halley assisted in the investigation, he said. Two more arrests are expected, he added.

Teachers reject decision tying salary hike to tax

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls teachers Thursday rejected a school board proposal tying salary increases to the fate of a special tax election.

At a special meeting at the high school Thursday afternoon, teachers voted by a margin of about 57 per cent to reject the board's proposal for an override levy election to increase district income by about $315,000.

The board's proposal, which was firm up only minutes before the teachers' meeting began, called for the board and the Twin Falls Education Association (TFEA), the teachers' bargaining agent, to work together to pass a seven-mill override levy to increase salaries for district employees and add about $67,500 to the district's deficit-stidden general fund.

The override levy had originally been proposed at six mills, with the stipulation that it would go for salaries only.

The district added the seventh-mill when teachers objected to the override levy election being painted as necessary only for salary increases.

Teachers were not responsible for the estimated $100,000 deficit this year which was keeping the district from granting greater salary increases without an override. TFEA negotiators argued.

The proposal voted down by teachers Thursday would have increased base pay from its present $8,400 to $9,000 next year if the override election passed.

If the election failed, however, the teachers would receive only the $8,600 base pay the district has already offered.

At least the TFEA negotiator thought the rejection of the $9,000 base in the event the override failed was what caused teachers to vote down the proposal.

"I interpret the vote as the teachers being dissatisfied with the $8,600 option," said TFEA chief negotiator Nick Nicholson. "The vote does not reject the concept of overrides, but rejects the $8,600 base if the override fails."

"We'll go back into negotiations and try to get the board to reconsider the $8,600 base," he added.

He said the TFEA had proposed a base of $8,800 if the override election failed.

Acting school superintendent Carl Snow said this morning, however, the district could not afford more than the $8,600 base if a successful override election was not held.

"If (the money) is not there, period," he said.

Governor calls for wildlife plan meet

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans said Thursday he will call regional conferences throughout Idaho to plan the future of the state's wildlife resource.

Evans asked the Wildlife Tomorrow Committee to work with his office to initiate the meetings.

The governor said he is calling the gatherings because "our natural habitat and our wildlife resource is important to all Idahoans and they deserve the opportunity to plan with us, Idaho's wildlife tomorrow."

Some 125 persons returned from the Wildlife Tomorrow Conference April 18-19 in Boise.

The results showed the respondents generally felt they were not well informed about the state's wildlife and they were concerned about funding for management programs.

Forty-three persons listed better funding for fish and wildlife as one of their top five priorities.

- Close behind funding was a recommendation for more cooperation between governmental agencies and the public on programs that would benefit wildlife.
- Recommendations that came out of the statewide conference last month included:
- Maintain public ownership of small parcels of land interspersed in privately-owned areas to provide cover for upland game birds.
 - Regulate grazing on critical wildlife areas.
 - Enhance upland game habitat on all public lands.
 - Urge the adoption of a constitutional amendment to emphasize use of endowed land to protect wildlife.
 - Develop land use plans that protect and improve wildlife values and habitat.
 - Manipulate vegetation to preserve and enhance big game habitat.
 - Support a state stream bank protection act.
 - Develop a nongame-wildlife policy.

Habitat destruction

A PAIR of Canada geese are shown flushing from their charred home on Hagerman Wildlife Area. This recent fire, which burned about half of the main marsh area on the refuge, was thought to have been started by a carelessly thrown cigarette. It resulted in destruction of a significant proportion of the waterfowl nests on the refuge and set back the captive goose flock program.

Man-caused blaze blackens nesting habitat on Hagerman wildlife refuge

By STUMURRELL
Regional Conservation Educator

A man-caused fire recently burned about half of the developed marsh on the east side of Highway 30 on the Hagerman Wildlife Management Area and resulted in a serious loss of both game and non-game species. One of the largest recorded nesting concentrations of both geese and ducks was utilizing the Refuge because of the lack of water in other areas and the fire occurred at the height of the nesting period. It started near the highway on the west side and was thought to have been caused by someone throwing a lighted cigarette or other burning material from a car. The old burhus and cattail growth was tinder-dry and a high wind spread the fire rapidly. It was a hot fire and burned an estimated 80-100 acres of prime nesting habitat. Examination of the burned area showed numerous mallard, teal, diving ducks, several Canada geese and many non-game species such as marsh wrens, blackbirds, owls, and shorebirds had their nests destroyed even though a number of them were situated in the flooded portion of the marsh.

What happens when a fire burns rapidly through such an area? The time of year is critical for nesting species. If a nest of a Canada goose is destroyed, it rarely, if ever, re-nests that year. Therefore, the expanding population resulting from the captive goose flock on the Management Area had a setback with this fire. Species such as mallards may re-nest if the fire occurs during the first week or two of incubation. If it is near the end of incubation then most ducks will not attempt another clutch. It appears the fire occurred during the latter stages so almost the entire production of waterfowl on the burned area was lost.

Pheasants and other small birds are active renesters if their nests are destroyed and many species may try again on the refuge. The main problem is locating suitable nesting sites since the available habitat nearby is already occupied and territories set up by the males. The disruption caused by a fire can result in more intense competition among the established and displaced pairs.

Small mammals have a difficult time outrunning a rapid wildfire in dense cover, and the charred remains of such animals as cottontail rabbits were found in the ashes.

The marsh vegetation in the moist areas will rapidly sprout, but the upland shrubs and trees affected by the burn may take a considerable period to return since many of them were killed by the fire.

This is one small example of the wildlife loss that can be caused by a carelessly thrown cigarette or unattended fire. Mike Green, U.S. Bureau of Land Management in Shoshone, stated their district has an average of 85 fires per year which burn about 30,000 acres. He stated more than 50 per cent are man-caused and the man-caused fires are more serious, resulting in 80-85 per cent of the acreage burned. Their worst fire season, in recent years saw 190,000 acres consumed in 1971. Much of this was sagebrush which supported populations of sage grouse, pheasants, and some antelope and deer. One of the reasons for the recent decline in the sage grouse population has been the widespread incidence of wildfire.

So, if you're concerned about our wildlife, then watch that match or cigarette—particularly in this drought year.

Late snows may hamper mountain travel

TWIN FALLS — Mountain hikers will encounter continuous snowpack at approximately the 7,000-foot level.

Campgrounds that are open at the present time include: North Fork in the Kootenai area, Smokey Bear at Alurus, Outlet, at Redfish Lake, and Inlet A&B at the head of Stanley Lake. Along the Salmon River below Stanley all campgrounds are open except Riverside and Upper and Lower O'Brien. North of Fairfield and in the South Hills area, all campsites are open but not maintained. South of Burley, Lake Fork, Sublett, Clear Creek, Bennett Springs and Village campgrounds are open.

Central refuse containers are now in use in most campgrounds, replacing individual unit trash cans. Campers will find it convenient to have a small personal trash can for immediate use and for carrying trash to the central container.

The road from Big Smokey to the bottom of Couch summit is now open for travel. Trail Creek summit is very rough but passable for passenger-type vehicles. It is not recommended for travel trailers.

Side roads still closed because of soft roadbeds include: Big Creek and Porcupine Springs to Telephone Springs in the South Hills, roads in the Lake Cleveland area south of Burley, Warm Springs Road beyond Washed Creek out of Ketchum and Elk Meadows-Fisher Creek, Mays Creek, Fourth of July Creek and Pole Creek in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

Visitors to the Sawtooth should be sure and take plenty of warm clothing and rain gear as more rainy weather is expected this weekend and temperatures continue to dip below the freezing level at night.

So, if you're concerned about our wildlife, then watch that match or cigarette—particularly in this drought year.

Judge okays Kuhn's right to suspend Atlanta owner

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal Judge Newell Edenfield Thursday upheld Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's one-year suspension of Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner.

"I cannot say anything about the ruling until I have talked with my attorney," said Turner. "I have taken my little boy to school, my cap and my tennis shoes and packed them all away."

The U.S. District Judge ruled in Kuhn's favor against an injunction Turner sought to halt the suspension, but gave the Braves one break by ruling that Kuhn could not also deprive the Atlanta team of its first-round choice in the June baseball draft.

Edenfield held arguments on the case several weeks ago and took it under advisement after final written briefs were presented to him on May 9.

"The commissioner's decision to deprive the plaintiffs of their first-round draft choice in the June 1977 amateur draft is hereby held to be ultra vires and therefore void," said the judge in his summary. "With respect to the balance of the plaintiff's (Turner) claims, the court concludes the commissioner acted within the scope of his authority and hereby awards judgment in favor of defendant (Kuhn)."

White Edenfield ruled that Kuhn had the authority to suspend Turner for "tampering" with free agent Gary Matthews last October, he made it clear he felt Kuhn's punishment was too harsh.

He said Kuhn did some "inexplicable things," both at the hearing he held for Turner and afterwards. "He approved Atlanta's signing of Matthews, apparently the only tangible mischief resulting from Turner's remarks, but having approved the act of signing, he then punished Turner for publicly suggesting in advance he intended to do it."

"He also forbade the right of Turner to manage his business or even to go on his own property. The baseball club is called the Atlanta Braves; and considering the severity of this punishment, the same casual observer might call this an Indian massacre in reverse."

"In their encounter with the commissioner, the Braves took many a scalp (except, of course, the Matthews contract) but lived to see their own dangling from the legpole of the commissioner, apparently only as a grisly warning to others."

"At about the same time and for an identical offense, but not perhaps as flagrant, the venerable owner of the St. Louis Cardinals was fined $5,000."

But the judge said he felt the major league agreement gave the commissioner power to investigate any rules violations, determine action needed, to give a hearing and to lay down procedures for enforcing the rules.

"To the extent this case involves a violation of the Major League Agreement, the court has no hesitation in saying the defendant commissioner had ample authority to punish plaintiffs in this case for acts considered not in the best interest of baseball," Edenfield held.

He said that Kuhn has "general authority" to punish clubs and personnel for conduct not in the best interests of baseball.

"What conduct is 'not in the best interest of baseball' is, of course, a question which addresses itself to the commissioner, not this court," Edenfield said. "He has made his findings that Turner's conduct was of that character."

"The court therefore concludes, with some misgivings, that under this provision the commissioner did have the authority to punish plaintiffs."

Shinguard row wanes

SEATTLE (UPI) — The great shinguard protest appears to be over.

"I don't believe we'll follow through on it," Hank Peters, Baltimore Orioles general manager, told The Seattle Times Thursday when asked about manager Earl Weaver's complaint that a Seattle Mariner was out of uniform Tuesday night.

"Weaver said he would protest the 10-2 Oriole defeat because Seattle outfielder Carlos Lopez wore a shinguard under a white sock while batting. All the other Mariners had blue socks."

"We agreed we don't want a game decided on that basis," Peters added after a talk with American League President Lee MacPhail.

"I discussed the incident with MacPhail and we agreed it was a technicality. And I don't know if it was really a contributing factor in the ball game."

Weaver based his complaint on a baseball rule stating all players on one team shall have uniforms "identical in color, trim and style."

Hamilton posts top Thunder Bluff time

TWIN FALLS — Gene Hamilton, Twin Falls, clocked the day's fastest time in the open wheels division at the Thunder Bluff Raceway Saturday with an elapsed time of 24.9 seconds on the three-eighths mile oval course.

Rick Combs, Twin Falls, took the super stock class with a time of 26.2 and Stan Combs, Eden, took the J stock class. JR Miller took the superstock race, and Jan Jones, TF, won the ladies event.

In addition to his open wheels win, Hamilton also took the sprints and the sprints heat events.

The Burley contingent dominated the Heat J stock event, as Dean Jones took first, Roger Dinker, second, and Gary Jones third. JR Miller, Gene Hamilton and Rick Combs walked off with the top three places in the Heat superstock class.

In the 1 1/2 mile event, Dean Jones, Roger Dinker, Chuck Gose and Bob Powers, Twin Falls, took the top spots, while Jim Hyde, Mountain Home, Rick Combs, and Gene Hamilton captured the top places in the superstock main event.

The next day of racing will be held Saturday, May 21.

Busby hopes to win job back in majors

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Former major league pitcher Steve Busby, who threw a couple of no-hitters in the big leagues, is hurrying for a minor league club these days while trying to come back after surgery on his shoulder.

The former Kansas City Royals ace is with the Royals' Class A team in the Florida State League, the Daytona Beach Islanders, trying to restore his arm to the form that won 22 games in 1974 and 18 in 1975.

In his first action Tuesday night, Busby hurled 3 1/3 innings, giving up five runs and 11 hits against Cocoa in a 5-3 loss.

"I was shaky at best," Busby said later, "but at least I showed. I can still throw. I didn't have any pain in my shoulder." He threw mostly straight balls without much zip.

"I threw a few fastballs, but this game was more like the first time out in the spring," he said after throwing 60 pitches. "Overall, I was satisfied tonight."

Busby also said he thinks he should be able to contribute something to Kansas City in about six weeks. "It would be very difficult if I didn't think that."

Busby, a 6-2, 190-pounder out of Burbank, Calif., knows Cincinnati's Gary Nolan also had rotator cuff surgery and came back. But Nolan's problem was different. He had a bone spur that punctured the rotator cuff. Busby's was pinched.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't allow yourself the luxury of feeling you are abused or being put upon or you can irritate or upset others, or even start to develop a martyr complex. Take time to attend to the little basic conditions of everyday life and you turn a potentially difficult day to your advantage.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some condition at home may require much tact or it could turn into a battle royal. Pay more attention to fundamental affairs, also.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Drive with utmost care and avoid costly trouble. Use a smile and turn away wrath in others. You can talk yourself out of difficulties.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Do not spend or invest more than it is possible for you to do and safeguard savings. Get the advice of those with financial know-how.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal time to be objective and not let emotions get the better of you. Steer clear of social functions where arguments are apt to occur. Stay close to home.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate on the opportunities around you to advance and forget problems for the time being. Avoid arguing with a loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look for more ways to add to income. Don't approach a friend for cooperation since this person is under pressure of some kind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get involved with a civic project that means much to you. Ignore a bigwig who does not understand your views. Spend money wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Look on the bright side of an unimproving situation. A new contact has ideas that are best disregarded now. Stand fast on money matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you meet the expectations of others who have power over your affairs and are right. Show you are most efficient. Don't argue with mate or loved one as it could lead to dire results.

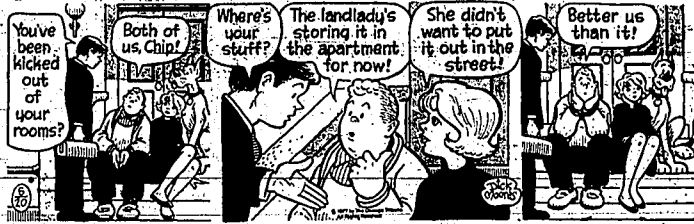

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show friends you can be relied upon and gain their goodwill. Avoid an arguing a civic matter you disagree with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find a new system that can make work more efficient and lucrative in the future. Do not overdo and mar your health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although fun is on your mind, you may find that there are argumentative, so enjoy pleasures by yourself. Your timing improves.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful persons with a naturally sweet disposition; be sure to teach art, of self-defense early, and then elicit education along lines of trouble shooting and solving difficult problems.

This beef cow has become pregnant. An animal surgeon removes her newly fertilized egg in a simple operation and transfers it into the body of a rabbit. Just for warm storage. That rabbit is shipped to a different country. An animal surgeon there retransplants the cow's egg into the body of a local cow wherein it grows to be a healthy calf. The foregoing procedure was devised by zoologists at the Animal Research Center in Cambridge, England. Its purpose: To breed up better quality cattle in places where the best supplies are dwindling. As for that courier rabbit, the little rascal isn't hurt a bit.

Murders among Eskimos have doubled in the last 15 years and suicides have tripled.

MALPRACTICE
Q. "Understand the number of medical malpractice suits in Illinois has dropped by 35 per cent since last Spring. What explains it?"
A. Probably the fact that a doctor there a year ago won $8,000 in a malpractice countersuit. What lawyers know that laymen sometimes don't is anybody who files a lawsuit is immediately opened up to a possible countersuit. It can be a dangerous thing to start litigation.

Q. "Oklahoma City, the capital of Oklahoma State, is in Oklahoma County. Is there any other capital town with the same name as its county and state?"
A. Not a one.

Q. "How much does it actually cost the distillers to produce a fifth of whiskey?"
A. From 50 to 80 cents, depending on the quality.

CRIME
Did this strand of hair or that spot of blood found at the scene of the crime come from the suspect in custody? "At ABIE URIGUEN, OLDSMOBILE/BUICK, we seem to be in quite a situation. At the present time, we're overstocked with over 90 new Oldsmobiles and Buicks in all models and colors, and we're under stocked in our Used Car department. My many years in the automobile business tells me I have but one thing to do: REDUCE the prices on new cars and give the highest trade-in allowance possible on your used car! So, for the balance of May all new Oldsmobiles and Buicks, will be DRastically REDUCED! If you plan on buying a new car in the near future, may I suggest you do it now! Your trade-in will never be higher and the price of a new Oldsmobile or Buick will never be lower!"

Sea treaty nears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Over 150 nations will try again to write a Law of the Sea treaty which the administration feels must come soon and be comprehensive to avoid anarchy on and under the world's oceans.

Exploitation and mining of seabed mineral wealth will be crucial issues at the U.N.-sponsored Law of the Sea Conference beginning in New York Monday.

The U.S. delegation will be headed by Ambassador Elliot Richardson who told reporters Wednesday that "rarely has any generation had so clear a choice to make between order and anarchy."

"The United States is proceeding on the assumption that there is an emerging consensus in favor of order and is determined to support it," said the former Nixon and Ford administration cabinet officer and diplomat.

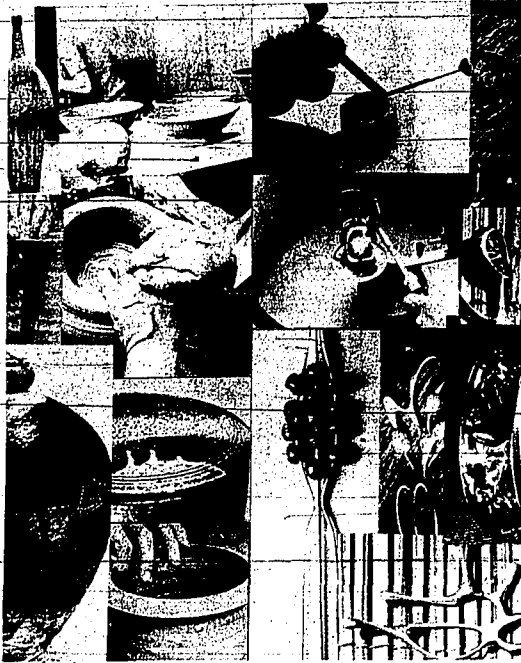

General agreement has been reached in past such meetings on establishing 200-mile fishing or "economic" zones in the United States did last March 1. "A serious attempt to resolve the remaining barriers on a regime for mining deep seabeds" will dominate this conference, Richardson said.

The Carter administration is opposed, as some have suggested, to a treaty based on the agreements reached so far, leaving for later the more thorny issues related to seabed mining.

Rather, Richardson said, the United States wants "a comprehensive treaty" which to be "acceptable to the American government and the American people" must include the following four elements:

- "It must encourage, not prevent, the use of the mineral wealth of the seabeds.
- "It must support, not stifle, free scientific inquiry.
- "It must preserve, not destroy, freedom of navigation.
- "It must enhance, not frustrate, our ability to protect the oceans and its living resources against pollution and other forms of degradation."

CSI sponsors workshops

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will sponsor jewelry and pottery workshops from June 6 to June 30.

The jewelry workshop will meet Monday through Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m. Cost for the course will be $20 plus materials.

The class will include carving and modeling wax jewelry forms and casting them in sterling silver by the lost wax method. Fabricating various jewelry forms incorporating stones, wood and seeds will also be taught.

The pottery workshop will meet Monday through Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. The cost for the class is $25 which includes tools and materials. Throwing a pot and salt firing the finished ware will be taught. Reservations for the workshops may be made by calling the records office, 733-9554, extension 230.

Local IARC hosts state convention

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls chapter of the Idaho Association for Retarded Citizens is hosting the state convention — and — annual meeting here today, Saturday and Sunday.

Fred Baugh is president of the local chapter and has a son who is mentally retarded. Baugh says, "There are a lot of people who aren't members of our association who should be. The meeting gives them a chance to come and find out what it's all about."

Registration will take place at the Rogerson Hotel today from 2 to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 8 to 9 a.m. Many workshops will be presented in addition to the annual business of the IARC. One is a workshop on early intervention.

Baugh says it is important that mental retardation be identified at an early age, because then a person can be helped much more than when he is older.

Another workshop topic, which has recently become prominent, is "Legal Rights for Retarded Citizens." Robert S. Moore, IARC Advocacy Coordinator, will lead this workshop Saturday.

"This is another area we'll be getting across to our members and others," Baugh says. "Both nationally and locally there has been a lot of work recently on the legal rights of the mentally retarded, which have been grossly neglected."

Baugh says the Twin Falls chapter will be working with local police, lawyers, doctors and parents of mentally retarded children to inform them of the rights and the legal aspects of the mentally retarded in such areas as education, guardianship and shelterhomes.

The local chapter also makes donations of equipment and money to Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, Inc., the Child Development Center and special education classes in the Twin Falls schools. It also helps sponsor the Special Olympics each year.

Francis Hitchcock, rehabilitation coordinator at Rehabilitation Services, will lead a workshop on "Jobs and Dignity" Saturday. Chuck Tiller, also from Rehabilitation Services, who specializes in work adjustment, will participate along with other specialists from around the state.
