Brezhnev takes tough line

MOSCOW (UPI) — In a display of toughness toward the Carter administration, Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev has accused the United States of taking an "unconstructive line" on a new strategic arms limitation treaty.

Brezhnev's charge in a television address Sunday night contrasted with President Carter's statement during the weekend.

Carter said the SALT talks "have been going very well lately," though there are still "wide and very significant" differences between the United States and the Soviet Union in arms limitation talks.

"No serious forward movement has been so far achieved in view of the unconstructive line of the U.S.," Brezhnev said.

Brezhnev issued a veiled warning to Carter that pressing the human rights issue at next month's Belgrade talks on European security and cooperation would harm détente.

The Soviet leader, speaking to Soviet and French audiences in connection with his visit to Paris in three weeks, reiterated established Soviet policy on both questions.

But the timing — and the fact it was Brezhnev himself talking — heightened the significance of what he said.

The 20-minute address left no doubt Brezhnev was in full command and that whatever realignments may be under way inside the Kremlin, Soviet policy remained firm toward the United States.

Sitting at a desk in front of two microphones, a glass of tea at his right hand, the 70-year-old Soviet leader spoke slowly and without notes.

"Frankly speaking," he said, "our concern about the continued arms race, including the strategic arms race, has grown because of the line taken on these questions by the new American administration.

"It is patently geared to obtain unilateral advantages for the U.S.," he said.

Brezhnev acknowledged that the meeting in Geneva earlier this month between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was more productive than Vance's first visit to Moscow last month.

Kidnapers grab Latin ambassador

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — El Salvador's ambassador to Guatemala was kidnaped from his automobile at gunpoint Sunday, the second high official of that Central American nation to be abducted this year.

Officials at El Salvador's embassy said the kidnapers of Ambassador Col. Eduardo Casanova had not been in contact or made any ransom demands.

"We have had no telephone calls, radio messages, nothing," Minister Counselor Roberto Trigueros said.

Casanova, 58, was kidnaped as he and his wife, Meny, were driving home along La Avenida de Las Americas near the city's airport, where tight security was in effect for the arrival of delegates on the eve of a meeting of the Inter-American Development Bank.

Interior Minister Donaldo Alvarez Ruiz said the identity of the kidnapers was not known, but he suspected they were guerrillas.

"We don't know if they were Guatemalans or Salvadoreans," he said.

Turk escapes again

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Opposition leader Bulent Ecevit escaped a fifth assassination attempt Sunday, but two airport bomb blasts killed five persons and injured some 30 others a week before the national elections.

Hospital officials today revised the death count in the separate explosions from the three reported Sunday to five.

Rhodesians push raids

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian troops raided guerrilla bases in Mozambique for the second straight day today, killing eight terrorists and destroying large quantities of military equipment, a military communiqué said.

Rhodesia Sunday announced its first incursion into Mozambique in six months, saying it overran a black nationalist base and killed 20 terrorists.

One of today's targets was a headquarters and supply center 59 miles inside neighboring Mozambique, near Mappi, where large quantities of weapons, ammunition, explosives and equipment was destroyed, the communiqué said.

March sparks violence

NARITA, Japan (UPI) — A memorial march by opponents of Tokyo's new international airport at Narita erupted in violence Sunday, but no serious injuries were reported in the fire bomb, rock and tear gas exchange.

The latest clash in the 11-year fight against the Narita International Airport began as a rally in honor of a 27-year-old taxi driver who died from injuries in a May 8 battle with police.

Begin stands by Dayan

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prospective Israeli prime minister Menachem Begin is sticking by his nomination of Moshe Dayan to be foreign minister despite angry demonstrations and grumbling within his victorious Likud party.

Likud leader Zalman Shoval said Begin would continue to back Dayan for the sensitive post when he puts together Israel's coalition government in June.

The Likud executive committee Sunday issued a statement saying Begin was empowered to name whomever he liked to cabinet positions.

Begin was released from the hospital Sunday, a week after he entered for treatment of chest pains related to the heart attack he suffered two months ago. His doctor said he would be able to carry out the duties of prime minister.

The executive committee issued the carefully phrased statement on the Dayan nomination in an effort to lure back the Democratic Movement for Change, a new party that dropped out of coalition talks because its leaders were not consulted about the move.

"If there was a misunderstanding, we take the fault upon ourselves," Shoval said.

Dayan and leaders of the DMC would not comment on the decision, which came as some 500 protesters demonstrated outside Likud headquarters.

"We are not against Dayan the man, but Dayan the symbol," said Motti Ashkenazi, a former army officer who headed the protest movement that helped force Dayan and the rest of Golda Meir's cabinet out of power after the 1973 Middle East war.

Many Israelis blame Dayan for intelligence failures that led to Israel's setbacks at the beginning of that war. The resentment lingers despite an inquiry that cleared him of responsibility.

A crowd of counter-demonstrators numbering less than 200 congregated on the opposite sidewalk to show their support for Dayan.

Parents and relatives of soldiers slain in the 1973 war gathered outside Begin's apartment to protest the nomination. Begin met privately with three of them.

The appointment caused rumbles within the liberal faction of the Likud itself, but Arye Dolezin, who thought he would be named foreign minister, voted to endorse the final statement.

"It satisfies me," he declared in a hoarse voice.

Likud received a plurality of 43 seats in the 120-member parliament in the March 17 elections.

Soviets hassle Spain on NATO move

By ROLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MADRID—Intimidating tactics by the Soviet Union against Spain at its ends 41 years of totalitarian rule by military dictatorship and seeks admission to the Western community reached a momentary peak late last year when a low-ranking Soviet commercial attaché (telephoned Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez and demanded an audience—at 3 a.m.
 Although warned in advance that such an untimely demand on the Spanish head of government would constitute a diplomatic offense, the Soviet diplomat—Sergio Bogomolov—refused to back off. He had his instructions in him and the note was left with an underling, but its impact was profound: Spain's dedicated and firm but successful drive toward genuine democratic reform after four decades of fascist is being perceived in Moscow as both a threat—and an opportunity.

 Indeed, the intimidating rudeness of Bogomolov—established here—as an ambassador following restoration of full Spanish-Soviet diplomatic relations is only the tip of the iceberg of Soviet machinations to block Spain's two external objectives: joining NATO and the European Common Market.
 Yet, under present conditions, the Kremlin is unlikely to have any more impact on these two goals of the new Spain than Bogomolov had in his attempt to barge in on Prime Minister Suarez at 3 a.m. But conditions in Western Europe are in a dangerous state of flux. Spain particularly not excepted. The mere fact that Moscow is making such an effort has prospective importance.

A defense system designed by a committee a cable from Moscow, he said, and he would carry them out.

 The instructions were forthwith to Inform Suarez that the November meeting of the Warsaw Pact in Bucharest had adopted a three-point political doctrine, the third point of which had incited both the telegram and Bogomolov's rudeness: that no new members were to join either the Warsaw Pact (which would have to search for any new participants) or NATO (which Spain, aid of France and moving toward free elections, very much wishes to join).
 In the prime minister's house early that post-midnight hour an aide angrily informed Bogomolov that his diplomatic note would have to wait till morning. At 8 a.m. Bogomolov arrived at Suarez's residence with his message from Moscow. The prime minister refused to see him and the note was left with an underling, but its impact was profound: Spain's dedicated and firm but successful drive toward genuine democratic reform after four decades of fascist is being perceived in Moscow as both a threat—and an opportunity.

 Indeed, the intimidating rudeness of Bogomolov—established here—as an ambassador following restoration of full Spanish-Soviet diplomatic relations is only the tip of the iceberg of Soviet machinations to block Spain's two external objectives: joining NATO and the European Common Market.
 Yet, under present conditions, the Kremlin is unlikely to have any more impact on these two goals of the new Spain than Bogomolov had in his attempt to barge in on Prime Minister Suarez at 3 a.m. But conditions in Western Europe are in a dangerous state of flux. Spain particularly not excepted. The mere fact that Moscow is making such an effort has prospective importance.

The first Soviet scheme is to block Spain's entry into NATO. With three of NATO's Mediterranean members—Turkey, Greece and Italy—presenting varying states of political jeopardy to the alliance, the importance of Spain's future membership is brutally obvious.
 Even without Gibraltar (under British sovereignty despite rising pressures here) Spain holds a key to the door from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean Sea, and the Mediterranean is home to the U.S. Sixth Fleet and the link to Greece, Turkey and the Middle East.
 For now, Moscow's stick of intimidation of Spain over NATO is having no effect whatsoever, except as a possible inducement for more favored treatment by Washington. Less certain in the future, however, is the effect of Moscow's carrot to seduce Spain out of the Common Market.

France and Italy have shouted their intention to veto Spain's entry, partly for fear of Spain's earlier harvest dates of spring citrus and vegetable crops, partly to exploit the rising nationalism within Western Europe for narrow political gains.
 As for Spain, Common Market membership would expose its fragile industrial structure to competition from Europe's highly industrialized societies, but that is a risk Spain is prepared to accept.
 Moscow is trying to take advantage of this. Using non-government commercial and banking channels, the Soviet Union is wooing Spanish businessmen against the market by promising all the oil Spain can use, to be paid for not in scarce foreign currency but in hard currency. The Soviet's desperately need new light industries, textile plants, hotels and other consumer industries which Spain, now running a $4 billion trade deficit, can supply. The Soviet approach is skillful and without subtlety: Soviet agents are reminding Spanish businessmen that they are ready to reduce the import of Spanish goods, but the Common Market is trying to block a variety of Spanish agriculture. Try us for a while, they plead, because we need what you have and we are serious people on the matter. The Soviet and Western Europe are in the end.

 Such siren songs are being repeated here. Yet Spain is in tenuous transition and Spain has not been part of "Europe" for many generations—in an island outpost behind the towering Pyrenees pointing south to Africa. Thus, the Soviet campaign holds a potential threat for the West which, given the speed of political change these days, is not frivolous.

Solar energy field veritably booming

By DON OAKLEY
 The future of solar energy is now.
 Contrary to the popular impression that harnessing the heat of the sun is one of those "exotic" energy sources whose development is many years away, a veritable boom is taking place in the solar energy field.
 A recent estimate by the federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) indicates that some 5,000 homes in the United States are now heated completely or in part by solar energy units. Two years ago, there were just 183 such homes.
 In addition, approximately 5,000 new solar hot water heaters are in operation, plus uncounted thousands of solar swimming pools.
 The boom is barely beginning. According to one expert, the number of buildings heated by solar is doubling every six or eight months. "It's exploding."
 In his energy message, President Carter expressed hope that the number of solar homes would jump to 2.5 million in the near future spurred by his proposed tax credit to homeowners and businesses converting to solar.
 Last year, the Department of Housing and Urban Development spent $4 million to encourage construction of nearly 1,500 solar homes. Lending institutions are also financing an increasing number of solar homes, not afraid their money will be lost by any means.
 Typical homeowner on Long Island, for example, can save his hot water heating bill by 50 per cent with a solar system.
 Hundreds of companies are becoming active in the field, ranging from giants like Grumman, General Motors and General Electric to small ones like Mor-Flo Industries of Cleveland and Universal Solar Energy of Miami.
 A spokesman for Mor-Flo, which also makes gas and electric water heaters, predicts that solar water heaters will have sales of $883 million within five years, $2.4 billion within 10 years and $4.1 billion in 15 years.
 This is only a small part of the action. Nationally, says the founder of Universal Solar Energy, solar heating and cooling will become a $50 billion industry in the foreseeable future.
 With so many different solar collectors now available, costing from several hundred to a couple thousand dollars—in investments that can be recovered in a few years even if the prices of conventional fuels don't continue to rise—the question is why the still think of solar energy as "sometime in the future."
 One reason, suggests Joseph G. Gavin, president of Grumman Corp., may be the name. Solar energy sounds like space technology, something exotic, complicated and expensive. Actually, anyone reasonably handy with tools can build a solar collector from materials readily available from a local lumber yard.
 Another reason for the misperception, he says, is the most publicity about solar energy has to do with future-oriented research projects being conducted by such agencies as ERDA and NASA. Solar energy is also wrapped up in the idea of "energy independence," which is asking more of it than it will ever be able to deliver.
 But while more research is certainly needed, and while solar energy will never account for more than a small, though significant, percentage of our total energy needs, the country is overlooking the opportunity to use what we have right now, says Gavin.
 Solar energy requires no invention, no new government agencies, no new installation or servicing skills, no new manufacturing or distribution methods.
 All it requires is for individual homeowners who are fed up with the rising cost of fuel to realize that they can become not just energy consumers but energy producers—now.

No differences yet

What's been happening with the children of the "counter-culture"—the offspring of those young Americans who broke away from the traditional marriage system in the late 1960s and went in for communal living and other unorthodox family styles?
 A tentative answer has been reported by the Family Lifestyles Project of the University of California, which for the past four years has been gathering data on 150 "alternative" families and living groups and comparing them with 50 traditional families.
 The researchers have so far found almost no differences between the children of traditional and various forms of non-traditional families. Furthermore, parental upbringing during the first year of the children's lives did not vary appreciably, despite the philosophical and ideological differences between the parents. Indeed, it was discovered that in most cases, it was the child's presence that molded the parents' behavior.
 Even in supposedly egalitarian "social-contract" marriages, the mother was the primary caretaker of the child in 95 per cent of the families. The results were the same in communal situations, even though the child was exposed to more adults. Also, surprisingly, the "alternative" mothers wanted to be at home more with the kids than did the traditional mothers.
 The researchers suggest that one reason for this is that traditional mothers have been more affected by the women's movement because they already have the support of a family and have yet to break with accepted practices in some way.

Boise women's meet ignited spark

By LORAYNE B. SMITH
TWIN FALLS—The Idaho Women's Conference in Boise last weekend has been widely covered throughout the state news media, but like a many splendorous thing, the meeting was so broad, drew such a large spectrum of women and interests that it is impossible for any one person attending to have the entire view, let alone those criticizing from the sidelines.
 I certainly make no such claim, but am reminded of the old saying about the blind man's idea of an elephant being limited to that small portion of the huge animal which he could feel.
 That there were differences of opinion on some of the major social issues in American life today should surprise no one. It would have been an insult to the intelligence of those attending had there been no controversy on such vital issues as abortion, sex education and equal rights for women. Women, just as men, can honestly differ on these and many other social questions in good faith on both sides.
 Criticism has been leveled against the method of nominating delegates to the national Women's Conference in Houston, Tex., Nov. 18-21, but could 1,000 persons of either sex get together without criticism or something?
 Voting hours were moved up two hours to accommodate the Idaho Falls delegation, which needed to leave the conference early because of high school graduation exercises back home. Provisions were announced for the filing of dissenting opinions. No absentee balloting was allowed under federal rules, despite comments to the contrary.

 As a veteran of several conventions throughout my years, I felt the plenary sessions were handled fairly. Janet Hay performed an excellent feat of balancing the right of everyone to be heard against efforts by the dissidents to hog down the entire conference.
 What is significant is that so many women of all backgrounds and ages could mingle to discuss and examine such critical issues with us much dignity and graciousness, as I saw exhibited throughout the two-day convalescence.
 Even more important was the sense of love and concern for each other—call it support if you will—evidenced as the underlying emotion of the conference. This was beautifully exemplified by a moving worship service in the ballroom of Boise State University's Student Union building last Sunday morning.
 Often the worship service at a weekend women's gathering, even church related, is relegated to the "ho-hum" department or thrown together hastily. But the entire service of song and praise through the Litany for Womanhood, which paid tribute to the dignity and importance of womanhood from Mother Teresa of Calcutta to the "billions of nameless women through the ages who have borne, nurtured, raised, fed, heated and buried their children in thanksgiving and love," was a vibrant experience of women sharing God's love.

 When bread (homemade, too) I presume for the interest of the anti-ERA followers) was broken and passed to the person sitting next, there was many a damp eye. A skeptic could call this mere "female emotionalism," except for the fact that this feeling of mutual support permeated even the "secular" workshops I attended.
 The belief that it is vitally important for us women to show the same support toward each other, as we struggle to find our role in the American scene in 1977 as we have, and continue to show, to our husbands, fathers and sons took spark in me during the weekend experience.
 As Valerie Harper, well known as TV's "Rhonda," said in an interview with Lucy Hovinden, for Radio Station KEEB in Twin Falls, the important thing is for every woman to have a choice in whatever lifestyle she chooses.

Korea plans stir debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Washington-based research group says U.S. ground forces no longer are needed in South Korea because the South government has the capacity to defend itself. But former U.S. commander in Korea Richard C. Stilwell says U.S. troops there "are the key to security and well-being of 36 million human beings" and their removal will increase the risk of war.

South Korea. Carter has voiced much the same argument. The American presence, the study added, has been to serve as a "tripwire," setting off U.S. involvement in case of a n invasion. "However, the tripwire function does not require one division or any fixed number of U.S. troops," it said. Stilwell said "the withdrawal of ground forces from Korea, without major countervailing concessions on the Communist side, will increase the risk of armed conflict."

These differing viewpoints highlight the debate over President Carter's plan to phase out 33,000 of the 46,000 American forces remaining on the Korean peninsula ever since the end of the Korean war in 1953.

The debate received widespread attention last week when Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, chief of staff of Army headquarters in Seoul, was reassigned for publicly criticizing the President's policy.

McGovern and Stilwell, who was in charge of the U.N. command in South Korea from 1973 to 1976, gave their views in a written debate sponsored by the American Enterprise Institute.

The research group supporting the President was the Center for Defense Information. It said in a report Sunday that "the North Koreans could not discount massive American support for South Korea no matter how few Americans were left in BRUNSWICK, Ga. (UPI) — Rosalynn Carter, who campaigned extensively for her husband last year but has stayed out of the political picture since he took office, moved back into the limelight today for the start of a two-week Latin American tour. Mrs. Carter spent a long Memorial Day weekend with her family at St. Simons Island off the Georgia coast before embarking on her diplomatic debut. President Carter planned to give his wife a personal sendoff from the Brunswick, Ga., airport this morning.

Her first stop was Jamaica, largest of the English-speaking Caribbean nations. Prime Minister Michael Manley's left-leaning government has stressed closer ties with third world nations, especially neighboring Cuba. Officials hope her talks with Manley will continue the warming trend in U.S.-Jamaican relations and offset the growing Cuban influence. Traveling with Mrs. Carter are Mrs. Cyrus Vance, wife of the secretary of state; Terence Todman, assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs; Robert Pastor, senior staff member of the National Security Council, and Kit Dobeles, wife of the chief of protocol.

Before returning June 12, Mrs. Carter visits four democracies — Jamaica, Costa Rica, Colombia and Venezuela — and three nations run by military junta — Ecuador, Peru and Brazil. Although Mrs. Carter says she cannot and will not negotiate on behalf of the United States, she hopes to hold substantive talks and provide insight into Carter's foreign policy. She obviously has the President's ear, and Carter will get a full report on the trip. Pastor said Carter wants to know what Latin American leaders say about U.S. foreign policy — which objectives "they would like us to follow through on which they would like us to forget about."

Pastor, an expert on Latin American and Caribbean affairs, said Mrs. Carter is interested in "serious discussions," but "all she can commit to is a fair hearing." But he thinks the soft-spoken First Lady has some advantages over the traditional male policy talkers. Her very presence will "spread goodwill," Pastor said. Also, he said the Latin American countries "will not don't have a very good sense of what Jimmy Carter is all about," and Mrs. Carter can convey the goals and policies of the administration. The area Mrs. Carter is visiting has a deeply ingrained tradition of male leadership, and the reaction to a woman policy talker has prompted the administration to put more stress on "goodwill" than substantive discussions. But Mrs. Carter thinks she can "develop a personal relationship between the leaders of those countries and my family and Jimmy. And I also think I can convey to these leaders a sense of Jimmy's goals and priorities."

Meany's retirement urged

NEW president of the United Auto Workers union, Douglas A. Fraser, said in a television interview Sunday that George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, should retire. Fraser also said his union should reaffirm with the AFL-CIO out of duty to the labor movement. (UPI)

JFK term 'inspiration'

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — U.S. Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., said the three years of John F. Kennedy's presidency should serve as "an inspirational model" for those in public life.

He spoke at a brief ceremony at Kennedy's birthplace Sunday, commemorating what would have been the 60th birthday of the late President. David Kennedy, son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, represented the family at the gathering on Beals Street, a quiet residential neighborhood west of Boston. "Today, on what would have been John F. Kennedy's birthday, we can look back on the three years of his presidency as a model for those of us in public life today," Drinan said.

Tactical nuclear weapon use implied by Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tactical nuclear weapons located in Europe and Asia would be used "if necessary" to protect allies such as South Korea from invasion, President Carter said in an interview.

Carter, in comments published Sunday in U.S. News & World Report, said South Korea enjoys "adequate protection from our forces and U.S. air and naval forces." Asked if the United States would use tactical nuclear weapons to defend the nation, Carter noted the first to use nuclear weapons would face international condemnation and be added.

"However, in areas where nuclear weapons are deployed in the western Pacific and also in Europe and to defend our own homeland, their very deployment implies a possibility of their use, if necessary," Carter said. "I think the combination of our overwhelming strategic cover with atomic weapons, plus the conventional military alliance that I've described to you, is adequate" for South Korea's defense. Carter also touched on continuing negotiations with Panama to reach agreement on future control and security of the Panama Canal. Panamanians might start sabotaging the canal if the United States fails to negotiate an acceptable treaty, Carter said. "I think there is a potential threat to the canal if we don't act in good faith concerning the demands for increased control over the Canal Zone by the Panamanians," he said. "We have obviously had no threat from the Panamanian government of attacks on the canal. If we don't work out an agreement, but I would really hate to see sabotage result from any lack of sensitivity on our part in the desire to work out this question in a peaceful way."

Welfare plan given push

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says the Carter administration welfare plan could yield 2 million public service jobs, but the administration wants the level of taxpayer-financed jobs kept "as low as possible."

Under President Carter's welfare proposal, some welfare recipients will be required to seek work. Marshall said the administration wants the conventional military alliance that I've described to you, is adequate" for South Korea's defense. Carter also touched on continuing negotiations with Panama to reach agreement on future control and security of the Panama Canal. Panamanians might start number as low as possible," he said. "It could be as few as a million, which is not so many more than the 725,000 already approved." Two million jobs, he said, "is the upper limit we contemplate under the welfare-report recently outlined." If the unemployment rate is low, he said, fewer jobs will be needed.

Clean-up fight due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The auto industry may have won weakened and delayed air pollution standards in the House, but the Carter administration vows an all out fight for tighter standards in the Senate.

"We're going to apply counter lobbying pressure," he said, adding, "the real key is Congress' sense of what the people want." The House was "very intensively lobbied by industry, and I'm not sure they've heard from the public yet." "We're still a long way from the end of this debate," Costle said in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program.

McGovern wrote that the American troops actually increase the risk of a Vietnam-type involvement, and their presence is contrary to the U.S. commitment to human rights. He argued that the government of Park Chung-hee is growing increasingly repressive. "Copying the example of President Thieu of South Vietnam almost to the letter." "We have relations with other repressive governments," McGovern said. "I but nowhere in the world are we aligned so closely with one so bad." (President Park) has established a pervasive reign of fear.

Margaret Trudeau Pierre Trudeau

Separate ways chosen

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau spent a quiet weekend with his three sons while there was new speculation on the future plans of his wife Margaret. The couple announced their official separation last Friday.

A report Sunday in a British newspaper, the News of the World, quoted the free-spirited Mrs. Trudeau as saying she may attend drama school to become an actress.

Liz draws crowd

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — The stock cars are usually the big attraction at the World 600 auto race, but actress Elizabeth Taylor — playing the role of politician's wife — drew some attention away from the racers Sunday.

A special security contingent was needed to keep her fans from crushing Miss Taylor and her husband, former Navy Secretary John Warner.

Honeymoon in Hawaii

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Television's "Wonder Woman," Lynda Carter, and her new husband, Ron Samuels, will spend a week honeymooning in Hawaii before Miss Carter returns to start shooting her new series, a spokesman said.

The 25-year-old actress married her personal manager Saturday in the parlor of Jack Litt's Bel Air home. Litt was best man and Pam Cole, the bride's sister, was maid of honor.

'Contract' probed

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise man shot to death early Friday outside his home may have been murdered in a contract killing, Inspector Myron Gilbert of the Ada County Sheriff's Department said.

The victim, Hayden Goodrich, 52, was allegedly involved in the control of two Boise massage parlors. Police said his ties with the underworld had led to his death.

They are investigating the possibility that it's a contract killing, Gilbert said.

Goodrich was shot once in the chest about 2:30 a.m. outside his mobile home a mile southwest of Overland and Colorado.

Police said Goodrich was shot by two unidentified men some two months ago but he refused to cooperate with police in apprehending them.

Goodrich's wife and another woman were with him when he was shot.

Can animals predict quakes?

TOKYO (UPI) — For those who worry about earthquakes a Japanese scientist offers this advice: keep a pet yak.

Any time the yak refuses to eat, begin earthquake countermeasures. A yak on a hunger strike is a sign that a quake may be only a few hours off.

Animals often do odd things before earthquakes, says Tsunoi Rikitake, a scientist at the Tokyo Institute of Technology.

He has just finished compiling 157 case histories of strange behavior of animals before big quakes in Japan, China and Europe during the last 300 years.

The yak, a Tibetan ox, is only one of several animals that may be able to anticipate quakes, Rikitake says.

Cats, mice, caged birds and even tigers in zoos all have histories of acting up before the ground begins to tremble.

In China, local governments keep several types of animals under observation as an earthquake forecasting measure, Rikitake says. Detection of strange animal behavior is credited with saving lives

In a 1976 quake in China's Fukien province.

Rikitake theorizes that some animals may have a built-in ability to detect slight changes in the earth's magnetism.

Unusual movements of fish also have been a tip-off of an approaching quake. Rikitake says that just before the temblor that devastated Tokyo and Yokohama in 1923, catfish were seen leaping from rivers like trout, something they normally don't do.

He notes several cases in which mice and birds disappeared from a locality just before a major earthquake. Cats deserted a number of villages in northern Italy two or three hours before they were hit by a severe quake in 1975.

In other cases, caged birds begin flying violently and beating against the bars of their cages.

Rikitake said he so far has no systematic way of using animals for earthquake warning. He said his completion of case histories was made to show the need for more research on the subject.

Gay supporters promote cause

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — In front of the Alamo demonstrators carried signs reading "Help Homos Find Jesus."

West's church sent three busloads of demonstrators to the rally, which attracted about 1,000 persons.

Those attending were mostly family groups. One young boy carried a sign reading, "Help Homos Find Jesus." Another had a placard which said: "Homos Need Help."

The gay rights supporters gathered at a gay discotheque to raise funds. The money will be used to fight the effort to rescind the ordinance, spokeswoman Belle Naylor said.

Naylor said more than 1,000 people jammed into the club in the first 1 1/2 hours it was open.

"This is going to go for a long time yet," she said. "It's an expression by gay people and supporters of gay rights. They are having an opportunity to express their feelings," she said.

West said he was not disappointed at the Alamo turnout, which was only one-tenth of the attendance he predicted. "We only had three days to prepare and I think we proved our point," he said.

Gene Leggett, a defrocked Methodist minister and a leader in the city's gay movement, said he attended the gathering at the Alamo to judge the crowd's attitude. "I just wanted to get a feel for the crowd, I'm grateful I didn't see any of my friends here," Leggett said.

"It's not a Christian issue. It's a political issue," he said.

Moose import plan rapped

DENVER (UPI) — State Rep. A.J. "Mick" Spano figures a full grown moose is big enough to go any distance he wants, the wishes of the Colorado Division of Wildlife notwithstanding.

Spano, R-Arva, is a major opponent of a proposal to import a dozen moose into the state and temporarily keep them in a large corral.

"I've heard of stupid ideas, but this is the stupidest," said Spano. "They probably leave anyway. There's no way to keep moose in Colorado if they don't want to be here."

"If the moose wants to come to Colorado, he can come on his own," said Rep. James Lillpop, R-Alamosa. Lillpop also said some ranchers fear the animals will tear down their fences. "They're big and strong, and they've got that bunch of horns," he said.

The wildlife division has proposed transporting the moose from the Uintah Wilderness Area in Utah to Colorado and putting them in a two-acre area enclosed by a Man of the year

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The Rev. Edward Mollitt, founder of Mercy Hospital in Seoul, has been named recipient of the 1977 American Medical Association's Man of the Year Award. It was reported Sunday.

The Maryknoll father has spent more than three decades in medical relief work in Asia. He is now administrator of the newly opened Medical Center of the Marianas.

The priest does not know who submitted his name for consideration.

Hughes aides lose posts

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Three longtime Howard Hughes associates including Chester Davis have lost their posts on the Summa Corporation Board of Directors.

Summa announced Saturday that Davis was cut from the board along with Lavar B. Tyler and John M. Holmes.

The shakeup was described as a move to better coordinate Summa's operations with the reorganization of the Hughes estate.

Davis, a 67-year-old New York attorney, will retain his position as Summa's chief legal counsel.

Recently elected Board Chairman William R. Lummis emerged as head of the Summa operation, becoming its chief executive officer. Lummis, cousin of the late Hughes, is also temporary administrator of all Summa stock under a Delaware court order and is a co-administrator of the vast estate.

The company named Elmer R. Vachina senior vice president of First National Bank of Nevada and V.C. Olson, Summa's vice president and controller, were named to replace the ousted officials on the board of directors.

The announcement said the changes are effective immediately. Frank Gray will remain as president and chief operating officer of Summa.

Corporation officials have been unavailable for comment on the reorganization. The announcement said it was designed to "more closely coordinate the operation of the company with the administration of the estate of the late Howard R. Hughes, Jr."

Bugs mean trouble

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — "Be sure to get it into cracks, crevices and joints," she advises. "That's where the enemy lurks and breeds."

When using any insecticide, says Ms. Crawford, always cover food, dishes, pots and pans or remove them from the area to avoid contamination.

When the insecticide has dried, she suggests, line shelves and drawers with paper before returning the contents to the now orderly and bug-free pantry.

Putting as many vulnerable products as possible into jars, instant coffee and Mason jars and citrus juice bottles work fine — not only will it prevent re-infestation but will also preserve the freshness of some foodstuffs better than paper or plastic packaging.

Ms. Crawford suggests removing everything and washing shelves, walls and drawers with a disinfectant cleaner. Then treat walls and shelves with a residual insecticide such as Raid Ant and Roach Killer.

Murtaugh girl to exchange temple vows

MURTAUGH — Mr. and Mrs. Florin H. Hulse, Murtaugh, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Kevin Anderson.

Miss Hulse is a graduate of Murtaugh High School and is now a senior at Utah State University, Logan.

Anderson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Anderson, Logan, Utah, is a graduate of Utah State University. He completed a two-year mission for the LDS Church in Australia.

The couple plans to be married on June 23 in the Ogden LDS Temple. They will continue their education at the University of Indiana, Bloomington, Ind.

Heart play saves contract

Oswald: "South didn't have that good hand and passed at three clubs. The defense started with three ruffs of diamonds. South ruffed the third lead in dummy and decided to attack hearts. He cashed his ace and king and ruffed a third heart with the ten of clubs. East overruled and shifted to the king of spades. South won in dummy. Play continued and South's hearts conceded a heart and scored his three-club contract."

Jim: "Two hearts would have been made, or maybe even three. If the defense fouled up, but North's bid was still correct."

Ask the Jacobys

Our reader rehid two spades to show his five-card suit. South passed and two spades went down. He wanted to know if his bid was correct.

"No, answer is a decided 'No.' A five-card suit is rebiddable, but only as a last resort. Two hearts, three clubs (the correct bid), or even the very poor call of 'Pass' would have been better action.

Jerome pair wed in LDS Temple

JEROME — Gwendolyn Perkins and Bruce Ford exchanged wedding vows May 12 in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple with Elder Edward L. Clissold officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Perkins, Jerome. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Ford, Jerome.

The bride wore a white gown of sheer organza and re-embroidered lace. The fitted bodice and mandarin collar were trimmed with re-embroidered lace and pearls.

The gown featured sheer organza bishop sleeves with wide lace cuffs and tiny covered buttons. The lace cummerbund flowed from the bodice into a full sheer organza skirt trimmed with narrow vertical lines of re-embroidered lace and fell into a cathedral train trimmed with matching wide scalloped lace.

The bride wore a chapel-length and full skirt of illusion net edged in matching lace and held in place by a tilara and lace pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnation, white roses and pink ribbons.

LeAnn Peterson, Jerome, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Other bride attendants were Mrs. Brent Horn, Hazelton; Mrs. Mike Parrott, Chehalis, Wash.; and Staci Parrott, Chehalis, niece of the bride.

Brad Johnson, Colorado Springs, Colo., friend of the bridegroom, served as best man. Bryan Ford, Jerome, brother of the bridegroom, was usher.

Mrs. Curtis Perkins, Jerome, sister-in-law of the bride, supervised the guestbook.

A reception was held May 13 at the LDS Church in Jerome. The receiving line stood in front of a sheer white over pink Austrian backdrop with darker pink swagged valances and satin bows. Matching baskets of pink gladioli, white mums and pink pompons were placed at the sides.

The bride's table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake over a lighted pink fountain and encircled with pink daisies and greenery. The cake was laid in white with pink roses and green leaves and topped with pink satin bells.

The table was illuminated and skirted to the floor with sheer, white nylon over pink with white lace swagging and pink bows.

Guests were seated at quartet tables covered with sheer white cloths edged with lace over pink and centered with carts of pink and white flowers.

While aisle posts topped with pink and white daisies and trailing greenery separated the receiving line from the serving area.

Reception assistants were Mrs. Don Daw, Mrs. Dwight Thompson, Mrs. Lee Hendrickson, Scott and Heather Ford, nephew and niece of the bridegroom; Sandy Perkins, niece of the bride; Mrs. Tom Ford and Mrs. Gordon Ford, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom; all Jerome; Mrs. Duane Perkins, Boise, cousin of the bride; and women from the First and Third Ward Relief Societies.

The couple will reside southeast of Jerome after a wedding trip through Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and Mexico. The bridegroom is engaged in farming with his father.

Conserve water, shower

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — An average household uses about 80 gallons of water daily for bathing, but a university of Wyoming Home Management Specialist Wednesday said changing methods of taking showers could conserve water.

Heleen G. Miller said two minutes in the shower would provide sufficient time for a person to get clean and save water during the drought.

"A water-saving way to shower is to get wet, turn off the water, lather up and wash, and then turn the water on to rinse," she said.

Ms. Miller also suggested using a water flow restrictor to cut down on the 5-10 gallons per minute flow from conventional shower heads.

"For the tourists," said Fearing, "Don't really need them for ourselves. Old Doc W. B. Fearing came in 1880 and wrote back to his brother that Roanoke Island is very delightful because not many people are sick. Still true today," he said.

"Why, old A. W. Drinkwater, at one of his regular New Year's Eve parties, saw the guests included the island's six lawyers and one doctor and said, 'It goes to show you how much hell a lot of well people can raise.'"

Fearing said. Weather also can raise trouble on the Outer Banks.

Isolated island has intermarriage

NAGS HEAD, N. C. (UPI) — The Outer Banks woman explained why she married the Coast Guardsman from Brooklyn.

"It was either, him or marrying one of my cousins," she said.

Five decades later the Outer Banks swallowed up Sir Walter Raleigh's "Lost Colony" including baby Virginia Dare.

That was an exception to the island's hospitality.

Hispanically is more than sentiment. Aside from fishing, tourism is what puts money into the Outer Banks.

On any summer day the 8,000 year-round residents will be hosting 10 times that number of tourists. In Nag's Head, mile upon mile of beach houses on stilts, motels, restaurants and souvenir shops which sell conch shells imported from Australia — form a deserted village until the tourists come.

Altrusa receives awards

Reports of the conference were given by Rose Marie White, president-elect, and Dorothy Rowe, president, during a meeting Thursday evening at the home of Adole Stoddard.

Twin Falls took third place in the ongoing project publicly second place for monthly publicity, and first place for its yearbook.

New district officers were announced along with committee heads. The next district conference will be held in Pasco, Wash.

Discussion was held on the club's 20th anniversary party set for June 14.

Marty Overstreet and Doris Ryall were co-hostesses.

Altrusa information committee members are in charge of the Jan. 23 meeting when officers will be installed. The event is planned at the home of Mrs. White. Hostesses will be Ann McCullough, Lillian Jacobsen and Flora Wagner.

Shearer, Dayley hold May wedding

TWIN FALLS — Sheryl Dayley and Harlan Shearer were united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony May 14 at the Carillon Reception Center, Twin Falls, with Rev. J. L. Chandelier officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dayley, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Wanda Carter, Twin Falls, and Fred Shearer, Phoenix, Ariz.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a floor-length gown made of chantilly lace with a full lace bodice and long train. The veil was topped with a tilara with lace and pearls.

The bride's attendants were Karlan Anderson, maid of honor, and Susan and Mary Henson, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom's attendants were Gene Haslow, best man, and Terry Shearer, nephew of the bridegroom, and Ferrell Frestone, nephew of the bride, ushers.

Ranell Dayley, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Derek Don Moleworth, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. Sally Dayley, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest book.

All the bouquets were of miniature white roses and miniature blue carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony. A two-tier wedding cake sat over a flowing fountain and there were matching sheet cakes.

PHOTOGRAPH through telescope shows shell times larger than the Earth's solar system. Betelgeuse in constellation Orion, which scientists at Los Alamos, N.M., say may be 400 times larger than the Earth's solar system. Bright center image is the star. Streaks extending from it are artificially caused. (UPI)

Star 'shell' covers vast region

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (UPI) — A bright star in the constellation Orion is surrounded by a shell of matter that covers the entire solar system containing the Earth, according to scientists at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. Recent photographs of Betelgeuse, which forms Orion's shoulder, confirmed the existence of the shell, which is formed by matter ejected out from the star. The pictures were made possible by several recent technical developments, including a camera sensitive to images in the near infrared segment of the spectrum and a filter to block most of the intense light from the star itself. "With these devices, we were able to take 30-minute exposures of the shell and also pictures of the star itself as a control," LASL astrophysicist Maxwell Sandford said Thursday. "Comparison of the pictures leaves no doubt about the enormous size of the envelope of matter surrounding this star. "The latest observations reveal the shell diameter to be about 5,000 times that of the star, or about 400 times larger than the diameter of the outermost planet's (Pluto) orbit around the sun (seven billion miles)," Sandford said. Betelgeuse, which even without its shell has an average diameter of several hundred million miles, is classified as a "red giant," a relatively young type of star that emits matter to relieve internal pressures caused by the consumption of nuclear fuel. Sandford said the new photographs show the loss of matter is much more extensive than previously believed and supports a theory that the dispersed matter is the principal source of raw materials for the creation of new "second generation" stars like the sun, rather than the explosions of supernovae. The photographs of the shell surrounding Betelgeuse were taken through the 107-inch telescope of the McDonald Observatory in West Texas.

Egypt opens Sinai to US oil hunters

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt awarded an American petroleum company today the first exploration concession in the Sinai peninsula area regained from Israel following the 1973 Arab-Israeli war. The concession, covering 937 square miles along the east bank of the Suez Canal, was granted by the Gulf Oil Corp. of Pennsylvania. The area stretches from a point just south of the Mediterranean city of Port Said to the northern tip of the Great Bitter Lakes in the south, about 190 miles wide. It is part of the territory Egypt recovered from Israel in military operations during the 1973 war and then under the terms of two military disengagement accords concluded in 1974 and 1975.

The exploration agreement was signed by Oil Minister Ahmed, Ezzeddin Hilal and Melvin J. Hill, Vice President of the Gulf Oil Corp. It is the 30th agreement Egypt has signed with a foreign firm since the country stepped up oil exploration in May 1973. It is also Gulf's first venture in Egypt. The agreement runs for eight years during which Gulf is committed to spend at least $20.2 million. The company has paid a signature premium of $1 million. Once oil is found in commercial quantities, production will be shared on the basis of 80 per cent for Egypt's General Petroleum Corporation and 20 per cent for Gulf.

Sabotage suggested in Saudi oil fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Investigators have determined that the explosion and fire that devastated Saudi Arabia's second largest oilfield May 11 was the work of foreign saboteurs, the newspaper Al Anwar said today. The newspaper, which is frequently well-informed on Saudi affairs, quoted "informed and reliable sources" as saying that "the explosion was the result of an intentional act of sabotage." Secret reports submitted to high-ranking officials blame a foreign country for the incident. "The newspaper said, it did not say what country was responsible."

Both Saudi officials and executives of the Arabian American Oil Co., which runs the field, had publicly ruled out the possibility of sabotage. Al Anwar said because of uncertainty about the cause of the fire at Saudi Arabia's Abqaiq field, American companies building a 900-mile natural gas pipeline from Duhuran on the Persian Gulf across the Arabian peninsula to Jeddah on the Red Sea have insisted the pipe be built below ground. This will boost the estimated cost of the pipeline from $1.5 billion to $8 billion. The companies involved in the project were not identified.

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Monday, May 30, the 150th day of 1977 with 215 to follow. This is Memorial Day. The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn. These born on this date are under the sign of Gemini. American actress Cornelia OBs Skinger was born May 30, 1901. This is actor Clint Walker's 50th birthday. On this day in history: 1731, Joan of Arc, Maid of Orleans, was burned at the stake in Rouen, France, at the age of 19. She had been found guilty of sorcery. In 1937, 10 persons were killed and 90 wounded in a battle between police and strikers at the Republic Steel Corp. plant in South Chicago. In 1972, three Japanese terrorists killed 21 persons at the airport in Tel Aviv, Israel, with automatic gunfire. In 1973, President Nixon arrived in Iceland for a conference with French President Georges Pompidou. A thought for the day: French actor Jean Baptiste Moliere said, "A woman always has her revenge ready."

Gas industry enters 'Aquarius' age

QUINCY, Mass. (UPI) — The age of Aquarius has dawned for the liquefied natural gas industry. The largest liquefied natural gas tanker ever built in the United States was christened the "LNG Aquarius" Friday during ceremonies at the General Dynamics shipyard. The 936-foot long, 95,000 ton vessel is the first of a dozen to be built by General Dynamics. The gas will be carried in five 120-foot diameter spherical aluminum cargo tanks at a temperature of minus 265 degrees Fahrenheit.

Five of the ships will be used to transport LNG from Algeria to U.S. east coast and Gulf coast ports. The rest will haul LNG from Indonesia to Japan. All the ships will operate under U.S. registry and will be manned by 30-member American trained crews.

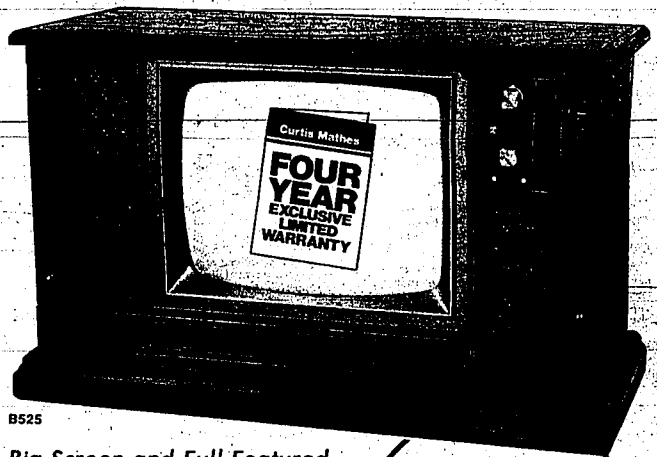

The tanker will be able to carry 125,000 cubic meters of LNG on each trip — enough gas to serve an American city of 500,000 population for one month. SHOP in the busiest market place in town — today's Classified Ads.

North Sea mishap may aid oil hunt

FRANK C. King, Twin Falls, has been promoted to trust officer in the Twin Falls office of the Idaho First National Bank. King joined the bank in 1971 and became property officer for trusts at Twin Falls in 1973. He held that office at the time of his advancement.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lessons learned in developing the North Sea Ekofisk petroleum field could be of vast help in finding gas or oil in the American waters of the North Atlantic, says W.A. Roberts, an executive vice president of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Roberts has played a considerable role in the development of Ekofisk, which lies 180 miles off the Norwegian coast. The field, the largest in western Europe, was discovered by Phillips after everyone had given up on the North Sea.

"Actually, we had given up too," Roberts said. "The only reason we still were drilling there was that we had the rig under contract and had to pay for it anyway."

Even the somber lessons from the recent well blowout in the field may be valuable in the long run, Roberts said. The cause of the blowout, he said, may take some time to analyze satisfactorily.

Roberts said he personally believes, and some other good petroleum engineers agree with him, that the North Atlantic is much more likely to yield substantial amounts of gas than oil.

"I think that is because of the geochemistry involved in the area," he said. He is a chemical engineer. He emphasized that, although the potential reserves of the North Atlantic appear to be large, there is absolutely no way except by drilling to be certain whether either gas or oil lies under the waters in commercial quantities. Phillips presently has no leases in the North Atlantic.

"We bid what we thought the prospects justified but others bid higher."

That doesn't mean Phillips won't get into the North Atlantic in the future either by buying into existing leases or bidding on new leases, he explained.

The eastern states of the Union need gas more desperately than they need oil and extracting gas from under the ocean and bringing it ashore by ocean bed pipeline present fewer ecological hazards than transporting oil. It is proved that geologic structures under this side of the North Atlantic contain much more gas than oil that might greatly diminish the fears of residents of New England, New York and New Jersey that their beaches would be contaminated by oil seepage from the wells and pipelines.

New hotel under study

SEATTLE (UPI) — A spokesman for Alaska Airlines said Wednesday the airline and the Marriott Corp. are studying the possibility of constructing a new hotel on a 9.2-acre site near the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport.

The spokesman said the airline already has purchased the land for about $1.1 million. Tentative plans call for construction of 300 rooms in the first phase and a later addition of 600 rooms.

Sunshine and warm weather drifts in Twin Falls, North Side, and Tuesday. Warmer, with highs Tuesday in the 70's, and overnight lows in the lower 30's. Wednesday's outlook partly cloudy. Synopsi: High pressure that has been located in the eastern midwest is now drifting very slowly westward. The forecasts call for it to join up with a much smaller high pressure area just now building along the Pacific coast. These two will begin forming a large high pressure system over the Intermountain region by late Tuesday.

This then will shut Pacific storms northward into British Columbia with only the fringes crossing and causing some weather in northern Idaho. As this system forms, temperatures will start a slow but relentless climb upward, with readings in the 60's to be widespread over Idaho by mid-week. Summer appears at last to be just around the corner.

Some variable higher clouds will at times cross the Gem state through the week, but mostly sunny skies and warmer temperatures will be on tap as June makes its annual appearance.

Coffee exports up

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Brazilian coffee exports for the first third of 1977 increased 89 per cent in value and 73.6 per cent in volume over the same period in 1976.

The Bank of Brazil said Tuesday the 4.676 tons of coffee worth $12 billion in the first third of 1977. In the previous year, the figures were 159,854 tons and $333 million.

April building posts record

NEW YORK — Double-digit gains in April for all three major categories of construction catapulted contracts for future building 20 per cent to a record $12.07 billion, it was reported by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

The seasonally adjusted Dodge Index (1967 equals 100) soared to 250 as a result of April's surge of new projects. It had been on a plateau of 206 throughout the first quarter.

"All of a sudden, construction markets seem to be responding to the recent positive developments taking place throughout the economy," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F. W. Dodge.

Boise Cascade sued

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. said Thursday it is being sued for $1.8 billion by two lot purchasers at a two of the company's former recreation communities in northern California.

Also named as defendants in the action were the California attorney general and a number of California law firms and lawyers who represented more than 42,000 lot purchasers in several class action suits brought against the company in 1971 and 1972.

The suit alleges the defendants conspired in arriving at the 1973 settlement and that it should be invalidated.

"The action is a blatant attempt to reopen issues resolved in the 1973 court approved settlement after extensive court proceedings and public hearings," said John Chute, Boise Cascade senior vice president and general counsel.

Communists startle Western diplomats

MOSCOW (UPI) — Western diplomatic analysts Saturday expressed surprise at the dispatch and apparent ruthlessness with which President Nikolai Podgorny was consigned to obscurity by his former colleagues in the Communist party.

The 74-year-old Podgorny has vanished from Soviet public life in the four days since his ouster from the ruling Politburo, virtually assuring his removal as president of the Soviet Union and rapid political banishment.

The manner of his removal left little doubt that he had lost out in a struggle with party general secretary Leonid Brezhnev, the analysts said.

Speculation in Moscow is that Brezhnev will himself assume the job as head of state and retain the role of party leader, perhaps to permit a peaceful transfer of power.

Since Podgorny's abrupt removal from the Politburo Tuesday, the analysts have noted:

- The president of the Supreme Soviet (parliament), which Podgorny chairs and from which he derives his nominal power as president, met Friday to approve a new draft constitution. Brezhnev was mentioned in official statements about the meeting. Podgorny was not.

Many analysts said they were struck by the lack of any qualifying phrases to soften the blow of Podgorny's ouster.

An announcement of the Central Committee of the party Tuesday simply said he had been "relieved of his duties."

Even the late Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who was ousted in 1964, was said publicly to be suffering the effects of old age and ill health.

In recent years, other figures who have lost their seats on the Politburo have "been retired," which could easily have been used as a rationale for removing Podgorny, considering his age.

Some diplomats believe Brezhnev demanded the presidential job for himself and Podgorny simply refused to quit.

The diplomats believe Podgorny will probably lose his presidential job at the meeting of the Supreme Soviet slated for mid-June.

Coal plant battle continues in Gooding

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Time-News writer

GOODING — Concern over the possible location of Idaho Power Co. proposed coal-fired steam generating plant in Gooding County continued last week in two separate developments.

The chairman of the county planning commission, Thelma Ferguson, called for officials of the county schools, hospital, law enforcement to closely examine the impact if the plant is located north of Bliss.

Opponents to the proposed facility have organized themselves into a group entitled "Citizens for Alternatives to Coal Power" (CACAP) and will work in local communities through the direction of a central committee, according to Karen Arkoosh, who spearheaded a public meeting held in Gooding May 13.

Mrs. Arkoosh said petitions against the plant are being circulated and anyone interested in helping this citizen group is invited to call her at 934-5387 or write CACAP, Box 134, Bliss, Idaho 83314.

The planning commission chairman said, "We cannot make a definite commitment on the proposed plant until all the elements have been considered."

She said a "hastily made decision can have a serious effect on all our lives." The planning board has not received any written statements or guarantee as to the size of the plant from anyone, the chairman said.

"How can we as a planning body, responsible for the well being of our people, know what this impact will be on our hospitals, medical service, schools, law enforcement, land value and housing?" Ferguson said Friday.

Gooding county commissioners, as well as the Chamber of Commerce in Bliss and Gooding all have publically endorsed the proposed plant.

Senators short-tempered, impatient

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Warren Magnuson and Edmund Muskie are a pair of Capitol Hill powerhouses with short tempers and an inclination to impatience.

When Magnuson, the round one from Washington, and Muskie, the angular one from Maine, square off, it is a battle of the giants — no matter the topic.

They had a little fight last week that got overlooked in the crush of larger issues and animosities.

What set them off was no earthshaking legislation, merely a deep disagreement whether the Commerce Committee (Magnuson) or the Public Works and Environment Committee (Muskie) has jurisdiction over ocean pollution research and monitoring.

Magnuson claimed it was his committee and attached the program to an oil tanker safety bill.

Muskie claimed it was his committee, and demanded the program be severed from the bill.

After much arguing and arm-waving, after coming together and moving back in the aisles, after much ruffling through pages and exchanges of glares during a quorum call,

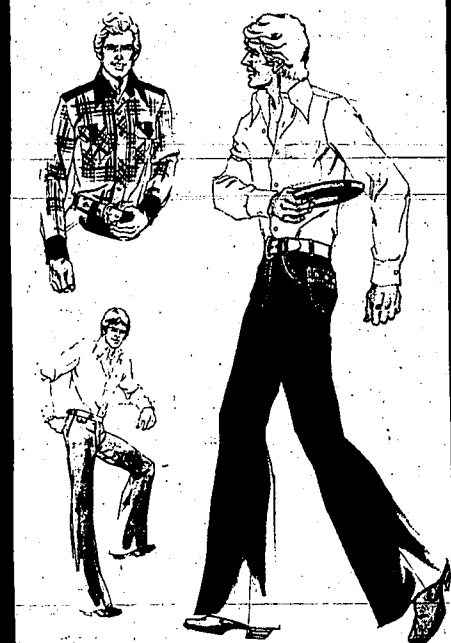

Magnuson and Muskie turned on their microphones.

Magnuson (looking straight at Muskie): "... apparently there are a lot of people around here who want to look around for more jurisdiction."

"Senators know who I am talking about, too. I do not like to have a contest between, for instance, the senator from Maine and myself over who has some jurisdiction because it ends up being some kind of contest between who has the most influence on senators..."

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 31, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It may be necessary to consider making adjustments in your personal affairs. You need assurance from loved ones. Put more credence in action than in promises.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A business associate provides you with valuable information, so make the most of it. Some good news may be in the offing.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to accomplish much now, but don't bite off more than you can chew. Think along more practical lines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Consider a trip or change of scenery in the near future, but first check budget and available cash.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Settle important issues without further ado. Then turn to new plans and ideas. Forget about the past.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Financial snarls can be straightened out if you finish what you start. Avoid unnecessary spending until you know where you stand moneywise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't be lured by the easy way out of a dilemma facing you. Give careful thought to the problem before you act. Don't discard recollections.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Heed the advice of a bigwig and avoid loss of cash and prestige. Take no chances where health matters are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Improve and modernize your life as far as practical. Have the sense to turn down something you do not like or want. Be wise.

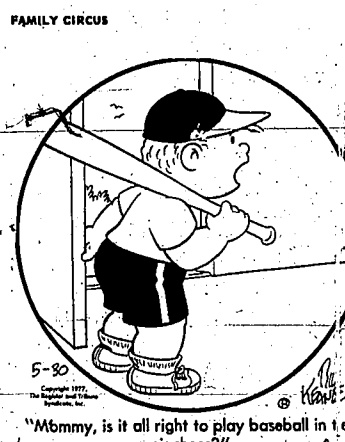

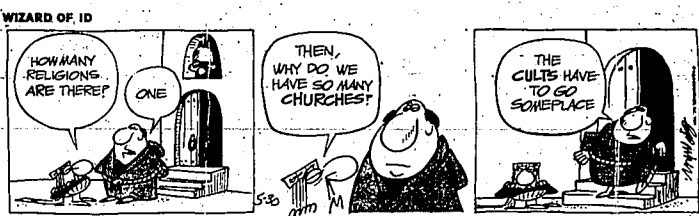

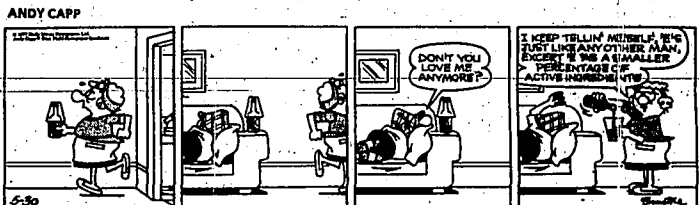

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Cooperation works both ways, so try to get along better with coworkers. Don't make decisions on the spur of the moment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new friend you might be a deterrent to you in business. Think carefully before you decide to deepen this relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give more time to loved ones and increase happiness. Keep your cool with one who annoys you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show your gratitude in tangible ways to those who have helped you in the past. Take a new project with assurance that it will succeed.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will be a go-getter, provided you send to schools where the most progressive type of education is given. Stress religious and ethical training. Also the appreciation of music and the cultural.

BALD BIRD
Q. "Does any bird, besides the bald eagle, get bald?"
A. The bald eagle doesn't get bald. Just looks that way because of the white feathers on the top of the head. In reply, though, yes, male wattled starlings get bald naturally, but the females don't.

BALD BIRD
Q. "If you set a gallon jug of water ever so gently down on a hen's egg, will it break that egg?"
A. Should. Takes eight pounds of pressure of break an ordinary egg. A gallon of water weighs eight and a third pounds, not counting the jug.

BALD BIRD
Q. How can you call yourself a first-class philatelist if you don't recall how many U. S. postage stamps have featured pictures of Abe Lincoln? So far, 22.

Q. You've heard of that most famous of all hotels known as The Waldorf-Astoria. Swiss genius named Charles Ritz is deservedly credited with its opening success. But there are those who say King Edward VII of England deserves a little recognition in this matter, too. He reportedly gave Ritz the formula when he said: "Make me a little hotel with French food, American plumbing and English service."

Special hospital team planned

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An ambulance and special emergency medical team at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital is being considered in Twin Falls County.

County Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said several meetings have been held by hospital, ambulance and county representatives to discuss feasibility of such a plan.

Leonard said the crew could be trained by staff members at the hospital and the Emergency Medical Training (EMT) instructors from the Idaho Dept. of Health and Welfare. The crew would be available to assist at the time of arrival of injured or critically ill patients at the hospital.

"When an emergency call is received, the ambulance would also be available to answer the call with the EMT crew available to operate it," he said.

Cloyce Edwards of Magic Valley Ambulance Service, would furnish the ambulance, one of his regular fleet.

Leonard said he proposed to improve and speed up emergency service and to assist the hospital emergency room staff and nursing personnel.

Many times a number of injuries or heart attacks arrive at the emergency room at the same time, he said. The specially-trained ambulance crew would be able to assist in moving the patients into the emergency room and giving immediate assistance to the patient.

"We haven't taken any action yet," Leonard said, "but it is one of the things being considered as an improved service in the emergency room, one of the busiest areas of the hospital."

Judgment may lower taxes

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HALLS — Two Blaine County men will have their property taxes lowered after winning a court decision here to get their land reclassified from "residential" to "agricultural."

Fifth District Judge Douglas Kramer recently overruled an Idaho State Tax Board decision and declared that two residents were discriminated against by the county when their property was assessed for taxation.

Kramer ruled land south of Bellevue owned by Steve Bolter and Edward Stricker was improperly assessed as "rural residential" for tax purposes in 1976.

The judge ordered the land be reclassified as "agricultural" and the property tax for 1976 be recomputed with any difference refunded.

Blaine County assessor, Del Nicholson, fears the judge's decision will allow many county residents to have their land reclassified from residential to agricultural and so pay lower property taxes, which he says is likely to drive up other people's taxes.

Nicholson says the decision could affect "hundreds" of people and he says there are now no clear guidelines for determining what constitutes a farm for assessment purposes.

Kramer's decision overruled an earlier decision of the Idaho State Tax Commission which had denied Bolter's and Stricker's appeal concerning the assessment of their land in 1976 and which split Blaine County assessor Del Nicholson had assessed the land property.

Although Bolter is a lawyer by profession and Stricker is a carpenter, both men farm portions of their land south of Bellevue as well as live on the property. Bolter owns a 9-acre tract of land there and Stricker owns a 9-acre tract in the same area.

Because property taxes are derived from the assessed market value of land, Bolter and Stricker would have to pay much higher property taxes on land classified as residential than agricultural.

The market value of residential land is $1,000 per acre while the market value of agricultural land ranges from $150 to $250 per acre.

Bolter and Stricker argued because they raised horses and calves and grew alfalfa for sale on their land, it should be classified as agricultural.

Nicholson, on the other hand, contended that in view of the residential prices being paid for nearby land and in view of the low amount of return that can be expected from investments through activities considered as agricultural, the functional use of the property was residential and other activities were incidental.

News of record

Twin Falls City Police BURGLARY CHARGE — Brad Carey Reed, 19, Kimberly, was arrested last week on a burglary charge in connection with the theft of $500 worth of merchandise from a residence at 1742 Fourth Avenue East, May 19, police reported Thursday. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond in the Twin Falls County jail.

Boy jailed after four-car crash

TWIN FALLS — Terry Eugene Williams, 16, Jerome, was arrested by Twin Falls city police Friday night and charged with leaving the scene of an accident and driving while intoxicated.

He was arrested following an accident in which four automobiles, a telephone pole, a telephone booth and some guard rail were extensively damaged.

City police said the accident occurred at 11:20 p.m. on Kimberly Road near the Ground Round Bar.

Police said three vehicles parked on Kimberly Road, and Williams' vehicle were damaged when Williams' vehicle struck a high rate of speed, swerved to the south side of the road, striking a telephone pole, then colliding with the parked vehicles, and the arrest by a number of citizens in the nearby bar.

Police said witnesses to the accident alleged Williams left his vehicle and took off on foot, but when police arrived he was being held under arrest by a number of citizens in the nearby bar.

Bond was set at $1,000 by Judge Dan Meehl, pending court arraignment following the holiday weekend.
