US pilots' group demands TF airport tower closing

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A national airplane pilots' association has called for elimination of the Twin Falls County-City Airport tower.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA), has asked the Federal Aviation Administration to eliminate the Twin Falls tower because it does not serve enough air traffic to justify its cost.

However, FAA officials say the tower will not be eliminated because it does "serve enough traffic to justify its existence."

But Bob Monroe, AOPA vice president here, said this week under complex criteria developed by the FAA, the Twin Falls tower should be eliminated.

The FAA money used to pay the salaries of those who work at the Twin Falls tower should be used to pay for towers at other airports where the demand is greater, Monroe said.

But FAA spokesman Ted Beckloff, Seattle, said today the criteria Monroe mentioned do not apply to the Twin Falls airport.

Specifically, AOPA called for the elimination of 90 airport towers, including those in Twin Falls and Lewiston because traffic levels computed using a complex formula were not high enough.

But Beckloff, FAA chief of the air traffic division for Washington, Oregon and Idaho, said the complex formula only applied to airport towers not planned or built before Jan. 1, 1977.

Because the Twin Falls tower began operating in March, 1975, the complex formula does not apply, Beckloff said.

Under standards in effect before the complex formula was instituted, the FAA requires an airport to have more than 18,000 itinerant operations per year or face elimination, Beckloff said.

Itinerant operations are all plane takeoffs and landings at an airport except local pleasure and training trips.

Even in 1975, when the Twin Falls airport tower was only opened for 10 months, itinerant operations were 25,220, according to Beckloff.

Monroe argued, however, there are airports in the U.S. with more than 200,000 itinerant operations that as yet have no tower.

"Greater efficiency of federal funds could be realized if they were used elsewhere," said the official from AOPA which lists more than 200,000 private pilots throughout the U.S. as members.

The FAA provided $290,000 for construction of the Twin Falls tower under the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970.

After its completion, FAA general funds paid the salaries of air tower controllers.

Beckloff said nine men, three of them trainees, currently work in the Twin Falls tower. The FAA pays about $126,000 in salaries per year to these men, he said.

Tower Chief William Coontz argued the tower should not be eliminated because the number of takeoffs and landings is increasing rapidly. The tower saw 13,847 takeoffs and landings during the first four months of 1976, but 18,070 takeoffs and landings during the first four months of 1977, he said.

Pill-cancer link unclear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is no clear evidence birth control pills cause cancer, a George Washington University Medical Center research team reported today after a comprehensive review of oral contraceptive studies.

The strongest evidence deals with non-cancerous tumors. The researchers said in the May issue of Population Reports that pill users seem less likely to develop benign breast tumors and more likely to develop benign liver tumors.

The report, written by Ward Rinehart and Judy Fell, said the issue of cancerous and non-cancerous tumors probably is the longest standing and least resolved of all the medical controversies surrounding oral contraceptives.

Scientists have zeroed in on the pill and cancer, because of experimental evidence hormones such as those in the pill can alter tumor incidence in laboratory animals, and because population studies suggest hormones can affect development of tumors of the breast and uterus.

The report, prepared by the university's Population Information Program, said a lack of basic knowledge about the development of tumors and their relationship to hormones discourages predicting results of future research.

"Nonetheless, it is encouraging that over the last 17 years, the use of combined oral contraceptives by hundreds of millions of women in virtually every nation has produced no clear evidence that "the pill" causes cancer," the report said.

It said oral contraceptives "have brought millions of women relief from the burdens of childbearing and the fear of unwanted pregnancy and have contributed to happier family and sexual lives, better health, and an improved standard of living."

"These benefits are clear and large. No known adverse effects on the incidence of neoplasia (tumor development) outweigh these benefits or argue for restricting the availability of oral contraceptives."

The report said oral contraceptives "might be linked to the sequential form of contraceptives which comprised 5 to 10 per cent of birth control pills sold in the United States in recent years led to a withdrawal of those pills in North America. But the report said there is no evidence the widely used combined pills cause cancer of the uterus."

"In discussing benign breast tumors, the report said of nine studies published since 1970, seven concluded that users of pills faced significantly less risk of developing benign tumors than nonusers. The other two found no significant difference."

The report said this might mean pill users might also face less risk of developing cancerous breast tumors, but it said there are several reasons calling for caution in reaching such an assumption. There is no evidence indicating the pill has such a protective effect.

The report said over 100 cases of benign liver tumors have been reported in women using the pill. Although not cancerous, these can be life threatening.

"Despite the apparently much higher risk for long-term users, the actual number of women developing tumors remains quite low," the report said in discussing the liver tumors. It said the risk appears greatest for those who use the pill for over four years.

Idahoan on way

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's chief elections officer leaves Wednesday on a charter flight to Spain where he plans to confer with Basque leaders about that nation's first free elections in 41 years.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Pete T. Centurion, who are traveling at their own expense, will fly to Madrid and then go by train to San Sebastian. Centurion said he will confer with Basque leaders in both cities.

He said he will take copies of Idaho's election laws with him to explain the American election system to the Basques. Where applicable, he plans to show them American campaign techniques to assist them in trying to get representation in the Spanish parliament.

US Court backs seniority plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 today that union seniority systems are lawful even though they may perpetuate racial discrimination forbidden by the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Justice Potter Stewart wrote for the majority that Congress intended this result "even where the employer's strict discrimination resulted in whites having greater existing seniority rights than Negroes."

He said although a seniority system inevitably tends to perpetuate the effects of earlier discrimination, Congress did not wish to "destroy or water down the vested seniority rights of employees simply because their employment and engaged in discrimination prior to the passage of the act."

Justices Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan dissented.

The court's lengthy opinions in the labor field deal primarily with the widespread practice in the trucking industry of not allowing transfers from city to long-haul driving, and the related bar to carrying over seniority if an employee resigns from his city job to apply for long-haul.

An avalanche of cases has developed throughout the industry, including one by the Justice Department.

The Teamsters union and T.H.E.D.C., Inc., opened an adverse ruling by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in a case brought by the Justice Department.

Another suit was won in the same court by complaining minority employees living in San Antonio who sued East Texas Motor Freight, operator of 52 terminals in 19 states, Yellow Freight and Lee Way Motor Freight; Teamsters Local 657; and the Southern Conference of Teamsters, which negotiates separate contracts for city and line drivers with various companies.

The court unanimously held that the government proved T.H.E.D.C., Inc. had engaged in a post-act pattern of discrimination at its Nashville, Tenn., terminal and that retroactive seniority may be awarded to employees who can prove that fact, even if the seniority system makes no provision for relief.

This result is required under earlier Supreme Court opinion that persons who applied for work and were not hired because of race are entitled to seniority back to the time of the refusal.

Stewart said a worker's failure to apply for a job does not necessarily bar all relief, and individual non-applicants must be allowed to undertake the "difficult task" of proving they should have been treated as applicants.

The non-applicant must show he was a potential victim of unlawful discrimination and that he would have applied for a line-driver job had it not been for the company's discriminatory practices.

The Texas minority workers lost out in an unanimous opinion by Stewart, who pointed out they did not claim discrimination when first hired and evidence showed they were not qualified to be line drivers. Stewart said they thus were ineligible to attack the no-transfer rule.

In a similar Chicago case dealing with alleged sex discrimination by United Air Lines, the court ruled 7 to 2 against a cabin attendant discharged in 1969 under the company's policy of not employing married stewardesses.

The woman, Carolyn J. Evans, was rehired as a new employee in 1972 after the courts found the "no marriage" rule a violation of the Act.

Nixon pals facing jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court refused today to stay the jail sentences of former Richard Nixon aides John Mitchell and H.B. Haldeman pending their final effort to win review of their Watergate cover-up convictions.

The court last week rejected appeals by Mitchell, Haldeman and former White House aide John Ehrlichman, who already voluntarily is serving his cover-up sentence.

The court's action opened the way for Mitchell and Haldeman to begin serving their prison terms — 30 months to eight years each.

Lawyers for Mitchell and Haldeman plan to ask the court to reconsider its decision — something the justices almost never do. They asked the justices last week to stay their clients' jail sentences in the meantime.

The court denied that request today in a brief order. Justice William Rehnquist, a Justice Department aide when Mitchell was attorney general, did not take part in the decision.

Now it is up to the trial judge, John Sirica, to hold a hearing and decide when Mitchell and Haldeman are to surrender to begin serving their sentences.

A spokesman for Sirica said no decision would be made about a hearing for Haldeman and Mitchell until formal written notice was received from the Supreme Court.

S. Moluccans want to talk

ASSEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — In their third major concession in nine days, South Moluccan terrorists holding 50 hostages said Tuesday they want to mediate their demands.

"The request is under consideration," a government spokeswoman said in a brief announcement. "The final decision will have to come from the government."

She gave no further details.

It was a reversal for the terrorists who nearly a blue-and-white passenger train and a nearby school nine days ago. In one of their first warnings after the takeovers, the gunmen threatened to kill the hostages if authorities sought mediation.

But their hard-line position began to soften Friday with the release of 104 children at the elementary school in Bovensmidde, 15 miles from the hijacked train, after an apparent viral infection swept through the school.

On Monday, the government announced the gunmen also had dropped a demand that the remaining hostages accompany them out of the country.

Authorities Tuesday delivered more provisions to the hijacked train where an estimated 10 gunmen held 56 hostages, including a pregnant woman said to be urgently in need of medical attention.

Fifteen miles away, another four or five Moluccan gunmen held four teachers.

The South Moluccans, part of the 35,000-strong Moluccan community in Holland, had demanded the release of 21 imprisoned Moluccans and a getaway plan for them, the prisoners and the hostages.

Agency merger 'mistake'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., says it would be a "dreadful mistake" to believe that merging the Drug Enforcement Administration into the FBI would solve all drug enforcement problems.

Nunn, whose government operations subcommittee on oversight procedure has held a number of hearings on drug enforcement, said he is keeping his mind open on the proposal, but has urged Attorney General Griffin Bell to slow on a decision.

One reason, Nunn said in an interview, is that the DEA was itself a product in 1973 of successive reorganizations that left the agency shackled by personal rivalries and other internal problems.

Nunn also cautioned against believing a merger would solve all drug enforcement problems even if things went smoothly.

"It would be a dreadful mistake to think we can solve all drug problems by reorganization," he said. "That has not happened in the past. It is not going to happen in the future."

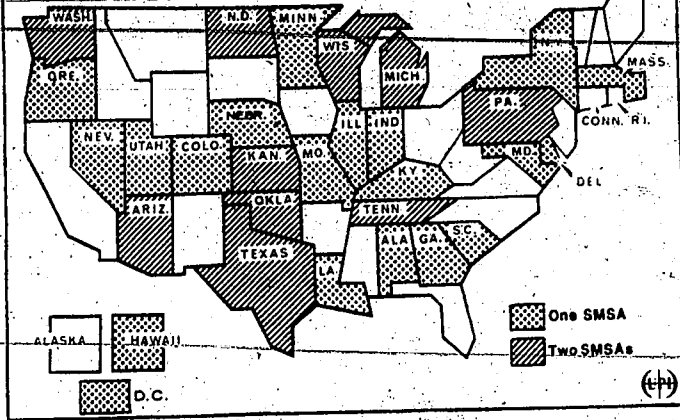

"The last time we reorganized, drug enforcement was set back about a year or a year and a half, maybe two years," Nunn said. "Time before that, the setback was substantial."

Bell has formed an FBI committee to study the feasibility of a merger. It is expected to have a report for Bell by June 30.

The House Interstate and Foreign Relations Committee two weeks ago said this review method does not include sufficient analysis and input from independent outside experts in criminology, economics and business management.

The FBI committee, headed by Assistant Director Richard Ash, began by interviewing officials at DEA headquarters in early April. Then visited major DEA offices in this country.

STATES IN WHICH MORE THAN 70% OF ALL REPORTED ABORTIONS WERE CONCENTRATED IN ONE OR TWO METROPOLITAN AREAS (SMSA)

Abortion mandate ignored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seventy per cent of the nation's nonCatholic general hospitals and most public ones are still ignoring the Supreme Court's three-year-old mandate to provide abortion on demand, a Planned Parenthood Federation of America report shows.

The report, published Monday in New York by the Allen Guttmacher Institute's journal, "Family Planning Perspectives," also said there was an 8 per cent increase in abortions last year for an estimated total of more than 1.1 million.

But if the hospitals had not "defaulted" — making access to abortion limited, especially for the poor — the total would have been even higher, the family planning specialists said.

An estimated "140,000 to 650,000" other women wanted abortions but could not get them last year, according to the research team headed by Joy G. Dryfoos, the institute's planning director.

"Poor, rural and very young women are most likely to be denied abortions because they are least likely to have the funds, the time or the familiarity with the medical system that they need," Ms. Dryfoos said.

Catholic hospitals, which refuse abortion requests for religious reasons, were not included in the study. "Legal Abortion in the United States, 1975 to 1976."

Among other highlights of the report:

— In most states, legal abortion services were available in only one or two metropolitan areas. Many women, as a result, had to travel long distances to obtain services.

— A profile of patients shows more women seeking abortion were young, unmarried and non-white in 1975 than in previous years and that more procedures were performed by vacuum aspiration, the safest method, and were at earlier and safer stages of pregnancy.

— Abortion rates vary from fewer than one abortion per 1,000 women in West Virginia and Mississippi to more than 30 in California, Florida, Hawaii, New York and the District of Columbia.

— Six in 10 abortions are now performed in clinics not associated with any hospital. Dramatic local increases in the abortion rate were attributed to the rise of clinics in Pensacola, Fla., Peoria, Ill., Atlantic City, N.J., Jersey City, N.J., Cleveland and Tallahassee, Fla., among other places.

— Among teen-agers below age 15, abortions, 15,000, exceeded births, 12,642.

— Almost nine in 10 abortions, 88 per cent, were performed during the first trimester. Nearly half were performed at eight weeks or earlier.

— Twenty-six per cent of abortion patients were married.

Auto test program pondered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency is considering a $15 million 500-car testing program to determine whether a new gasoline additive neutralizes auto anti-pollution devices, an environmental newsletter says.

The Environmental Report said Monday the agency has a task force reviewing the additive MMT, put into gasoline by oil companies as a substitute for the lead additives that once killed octane and prevented engine knock.

The newsletter said the EPA is considering a testing program in which the cars would drive 50,000 miles.

The newsletter said that late last month the California Air Resources Board asked all oil companies doing business in the state to stop using MMT.

It said the board based its request on "recent evidence" indicating the additive might reduce sparkplug life, plug up catalytic converter anti-smog devices, reduce fuel economy and cause substantial increases in auto pollution.

DNA research preparations made

SHREWSBURY, Mass. (UPI) — Preparations have begun for controversial recombinant DNA research by the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology, known worldwide for its development of the birth control pill.

Foundation president and director Mahlon B. Hoagland says the research will begin "within a few days" and preliminary bacterial preparations have started for the experiments with recombinant DNA, the basic unit of heredity.

The research, funded by the National Institutes of Health, will be limited to P2 experiments, the second least dangerous of four categories designated by the institutes, Hoagland said.

He said samples of DNA taken from sea urchins will be placed in E coli bacterium, a substance found in human intestines, and will be reproduced on a large scale as they become a part of the bacterium.

Hoagland said the institutes require the samples be "genetically crippled" — meaning they could not exist outside the laboratory.

'Double standard' hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has applied a "double standard" in disciplining top military officers for public comments, Rep. Joshua Ellberg, D-Pa., says.

Carter recalled Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub from South Korea for public criticism of U.S. policy, Ellberg said, but did not discipline Gen. George Brown when the chairman of the Joint Chiefs publicly condoned surveillance on private citizens.

"When General Singlaub challenged the authority of his commander-in-chief he was promptly removed from his command — as he should have been," Ellberg said Monday.

Korea: human rights over strategy?

By C.L. SULZBERGER

PARIS—President Carter has shown himself consistently as a strong leader on two points currently involving South Korea...

But I do wonder if it is logical to encourage Ambassador Young to make public statements... North's forces are stronger than those in the south...

Two symposia on Korean security were held by John U.S. South Korean and Japanese experts last January in Seoul and Tokyo...

Japanese participants warned withdrawal would be militarily and politically...

Carter's thoroughness

President Carter made a decision last week that could signal an important—and healthy—change in the way his Administration approaches the great problems of the nation...

The President's insistence on comprehensiveness and thorough analysis is significant because the first four months of the Carter Administration have been marred by impatience and a tendency to grasp at simplistic answers to complex problems...

The proposal for a $50 tax rebate — based on the assumption that the economy was stalled — had to be withdrawn when business proved to be in a swift upward swing...

To give the same rush treatment to tax reform would be to invite disaster. The U.S. tax system needs rebuilding from the ground up...

If the President's demand for a comprehensive study means that he wants to deal with fundamentals rather than appearances, then he is on the right track.

Even though it costs about seven cents to process a coupon over and above its face value, food companies consider them key strategy in the merchandising battle...

Another factor that contributed to a 20 per cent jump in the number of coupons issued in 1976 compared to 1975 is the growing impact of restaurants and fast food chains...

Youth employment bill at critical stage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is entering the final and critical stage of drafting a youth employment bill, the one major job program it is designing from scratch this year.

All the others — public service and public works jobs and anti-recession aid to local governments — have involved extending, expanding or tinkering with existing programs.

How Congress designed a youth program tells much about the legislative process.

It began with a horse race. During the first weeks after the 95th Congress convened in January, a half dozen competing youth employment bills were introduced. Among these:

— Sen. Henry Jackson and Rep. Lloyd Meeds, Democrats from Washington, proposed hiring youngsters for outdoor conservation work in national parks and forests.

— Sens. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., and Robert Stafford, R-Vt., proposed work in community projects.

— Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.,

and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., introduced a broader bill including outdoor conservation work, community projects, training and job placement in private enterprise, work experience in school, and an expanded Job Corps for disadvantaged youths.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.Mex., and other Republicans introduced another broad proposal allowing localities to design their own programs. The Randolph-Stafford proposal was the best parliamentary position, since they shrewdly attached it to a public works job bill, for which Senate leaders planned quick floor action.

In February, Javits and Domenici warned the Senate the bill reaching the floor first would pass — and might gobble up all the $1.5 billion budgeted for a youth program.

"This is no way to legislate, to leave that race to the swift or to those who might find an opportune moment to press their particular approach," Javits said. "What followed was described later by Javits as a 'triumph of negotiation.'"

All the Senate sponsors agreed to abandon the race. They and their staffs met with administration officials and drafted one youth employment bill, containing something of just about everyone's proposal.

President Carter submitted this agreed package to Congress in a message. It often is called a "Carter proposal," but in fact it is only partly his.

With a few changes, the package was approved by the Senate May 26 by a vote of 80 to 3.

It would provide about 200,000 job and training openings for youngsters, mainly 16 through 23, in the next 1 1/2 years. It would include outdoor conservation work and community projects for youngsters of all economic backgrounds and a range of job and training programs specially targeted at low income youth.

Since many openings would be for less than a year, the total number of youths participating might be about 500,000.

But the authors neglected one thing — House members were not invited to the drafting sessions, and they began putting together their own proposal.

The administration objected, saying it had reached an agreement with Congress.

"Oh, no," replied House staffers, "you reached an agreement with the Senate."

The House bill, passed May 17, contains the same outdoor conservation project. It also provides for "demonstration projects" in which federal money would finance various approaches to the youth unemployment problem around the country.

The next step is to negotiate differences between the two bills in a House-Senate conference, planned for either the week of June 5 or June 12.

While the two versions appear far apart, aides say every kind of youth program proposed could operate under either one. So philosophically they are not far apart. A number of staffers are optimistic that when a youth bill finally is enacted in the next few weeks, it will turn out that the legislative process, in its cumbersome way — and to the surprise of many — has worked pretty well.

What do a fox, a chicken coop and certain members of the Senate ethics committee have in common?

The ethics guardians

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sen. Harrison H. Schmitt believes the Senate's new code of ethics is unenforceable. Sen. John G. Tower says the measure is "a hoax." And Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. calls it "a smelly piece of legislation."

These three men, all Republicans, are members of the small band of 14 senators who thought so little of the Senate's effort to upgrade its ethical standards earlier this year that they either were absent when it was adopted or voted against it.

But Schmitt of New Mexico, Tower of Texas and Weicker of Connecticut have another distinction: They comprise the entire Republican membership of the Senate Ethics Committee, which has full responsibility for implementing and enforcing the new legislation. The fox-guarding-chicken-coop analogy is an overworked cliché, but it certainly seems applicable in this case. Without tough but fair oversight on the part of the committee, the highly touted code of ethics will serve as little more than a paper facade for the questionable practices which Congress has allowed to flourish so long.

Indeed, the recent history of ethics enforcement in both the House and Senate suggests that there is little enthusiasm for consistent, meaningful implementation of the high-toned moral standards which the legislators have rushed to formulate in order to improve their image after every major scandal of the past 15 years.

The influence-peddling controversy surrounding Robert G. (Bobby) Baker during the early 1960s led the Senate to vote on July 24, 1964 to establish a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct.

But it was not until July 9, 1965 — almost one year later — that the Senate got around to naming the committee's members. And it took another three-plus months, until Oct. 21, 1965, for the committee to gather for its first organizational meeting.

In its almost 13 years of existence, that committee has conducted a full-scale investigation of exactly one legislator, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. — Even that probe probably would not have been undertaken were it not for the month-long drumbeat of criticism of Dodd's questionable financial activities.

The House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct was not formed until 1967 — just after the Senate censured Dodd and the House was forced to deal with the scandal involving Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D.N.Y.

comprehensive investigation, involving Rep. Robert L.F. Skiles, D-Fla. That probe probably would not have been undertaken if Common Cause had not pushed the committee into it.

If that record offers little promise for the future, then the hostile attitude of Republicans on the Senate committee is an even more ominous sign.

"The end product of this effort is nothing more than a blatant public relations effort designed to justify the recent pay raise which Congress received," said Tower, one of four senators who weren't present to vote on the measure. "This bill is a hoax."

Weicker, who voted against it, called the proposal "an amalgam of arbitrary restrictions and incomplete regulations." He predicted that if the ethics code ever faces a court test, "it will clearly fall on constitutional grounds."

Schmitt, who also voted in opposition, said: "The proposed resolution assumes that the rules can be enforced by the Senate. Common sense would suggest that nothing could be further from the truth."

Those three men are highly unrepresentative of the rest of the Senate. 86 of whose members voted for the code of ethics. They are not even in step with most of their fellow Republicans because 77 GOP senators voted for the reform. Yet they now cast half of the votes on the Senate Ethics Committee.

Nuke power foes rap cost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists say nuclear power is "a bargain we can't afford," economical only because the utilities it serves pass along to consumers unexpected costs for substitute fuels during shutdowns.

In a new handbook spelling out ways to fight atomic power, the Environmental Action Foundation said citizens can effectively challenge the economics of nuclear reactors as well as such traditional issues as plant safety and siting.

The 98-page handbook, titled "Nuclear Power: The Bargain We Can't Afford," said economic challenges already have slowed reactor development in Maine and Iowa and have provided safeguards for consumers in Pennsylvania and Alabama.

The EAF is a private, nonprofit environmental action group based in Washington.

"We need an honest reassessment of nuclear power's economics before we plunge into an ambitious expansion program," said Richard Morgan, author of the handbook, noting President Carter's energy plan calls for increased reliance on atomic energy.

Morgan, who has written several other books on how consumers can challenge electric utilities, focused criticism on the cost of nuclear plants and provisions that allow utilities to charge consumers extra when they must buy coal or oil for power during times when atomic reactors are shut down.

"When a reactor is shut down or derated unexpectedly, the utility must locate an alternative source of power," Morgan said. "Most utilities can generate their own replacement power at an idle coal or oil-fired plant, but at a substantial increase in fuel costs."

"The fuel clause permits a utility to pass these increased costs to its customers immediately. Without this provision, the cost of replacement fuel would be absorbed by the utility's stockholders—at least until the next rate increase is permitted."

Morgan said nuclear generators are out of service about 40 percent of the time, more than twice the outage rate for coal-fired plants.

He also said atomic power plants have shown average cost overruns of about 100 percent. He cited as one example the Boston Edison Pilgrim reactor near Plymouth Rock, Mass., which had a $65 million price tag when it was announced in 1967 but cost $239 million by the time it was completed five years later.

Utility rates should not be allowed to pass such overruns to consumers, Morgan said.

Beame cites anti-porn moves

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame today told a congressional subcommittee of New York City's efforts to curb the child pornography trade and urged tough laws to deal with the "sick and criminal minds" who run it.

In testimony prepared for delivery before the House Subcommittee on Select Education On the Proposed Child Exploitation Act, Beame said the use of children in pornographic movies "is a sickness in our society that must be healed, a social cancer that must be cut out."

The committee hearings moved to New York today after hearing testimony in Washington, Los Angeles and other cities on a bill that would make interstate transportation of child pornography a federal crime punishable by up to 20 years in jail and $50,000 in fines.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y.

"The city of New York was the first in the country to launch a multi-agency attack on pornography and other sex-oriented businesses some 15 months ago and that included child pornography," Beame said in his testimony.

He cited the work of the Mayor's Midtown Enforcement Project, which in March was responsible for several highly publicized raids on live sex shows and movie houses.

Carter sets Plains side trip

ST. SIMON'S ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) — Convinced he can go home again, President Carter ordered a sidetrip to Plains, Ga., today for a walk down Main Street and a visit with family before returning to Washington.

The President decided to wind up his six-day vacation at this luxurious green island off the coast of Georgia with a stop in Plains, which has become a magnet for tourists since the election.

Carter displays irritation at reports that Plains has become a tourist mecca of souvenir shops and other money-making operations that have changed the lives of his family and the neighbors he grew up with.

But there is no question the changes are there. The Baptist church where he worshipped from childhood to "born again" manhood is split over the question of racial integration and a controversial minister who was ousted.

Carter's brother Billy has moved to a new home 19 miles from Plains to escape the tour buses which were coming into his driveway 30 times a day.

His mother, Miss Lillian, cannot walk down the streets without being besieged and is protected by the Georgia State Patrol.

Scheduling a five hour visit to Plains, Carter planned a stroll down Main Street, a stop by his home to "pick up a few things" and lunch at his mother's "Pond House" with Miss Lillian, Billy and his family.

The President also planned to look over some family estate property with Billy, who has the first option to buy the Carter peanut business now in the hands of trustee Charles Kirbo, an Atlanta attorney. There were indications a decision is forthcoming.

Carter is babysitting with his daughter Amy, 9, while his wife Rosalynn is on a two week Latin American tour.

Seeing her off Monday at the airport at Brunswick, Ga., Carter said, "I'm not accustomed to my wife being gone. I feel lonesome already."

He said she will send back messages daily and "we will stay very close to one another that way."

Carter kept up to date during his brief vacation and told reporters Monday he still hopes to have a summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev later this year if there is progress in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

He also said there are indications that "in the next few weeks" the United States will strengthen diplomatic relations with Cuba, although "in short of recognition."

He apparently referred to a proposed swapping of diplomatic observers as another step toward eventual normalization of relations.

Amy, President go for sea swim

ST. SIMON'S ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) — President Carter, babysitting while his wife is traveling, let his daughter coax him away from an afternoon of work to go ocean swimming on Memorial Day.

Nine-year-old Amy persuaded him to forsake a desk full of papers and go to adjoining Sea Island and the summer home of Budget Director Bert Lance.

When they emerged from the house, Carter wore a "T-shirt and blue dangle trunks, and Amy had on a two-piece swimsuit."

Hand-in-hand, Carter and Amy walked with Lance and his wife, LaBelle, down Montgomery Drive to the beach. Then the father and daughter ran into the water. Lance joined them.

It was a rare sight. Lance, his son, Carter and Amy swimming in a cluster, with chief secret service agent Richard Keiser, and White House physician William Lukaas protectively in the water a few yards away.

Housing bias meet target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal officials, conceding they cannot achieve fair housing with enforcement alone, will try this week to foster voluntary efforts in an unprecedented national meeting of real estate and civil rights leaders.

Officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is sponsoring the three-day conference starting Wednesday, hope industry officials written commitments to make specific fair housing programs.

But they say they doubt that HUD's nationwide enforcement staff of about 400 can bring an end to housing discrimination against blacks and other minorities.

"Let's face it, we're not going to get enough law enforcement troops," said Lloyd

Davis, director of the voluntary compliance office of HUD's Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity section, who planned the conference. "We've got to do it with voluntary programs."

"For the first time the fair housing people are going to get together at a table to negotiate with the industry leaders without all the yelling and screaming by one side against the other," Davis said.

These invited to the conference include heads of the 1.5 million-member National Association of Realtors, the 80,000-member National Association of Home Builders, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and two national appraisers' groups. They will meet with leaders of national and local civil rights groups as well as government officials.

"These are all groups that have not been involved in the fair housing struggle," Davis said. "My job is to get them involved, not just addressing the letter of the law but the spirit of the law. It's not going to come easy."

Housing Secretary Patricia Harris, who has vowed to campaign for fair housing, will address the conference Wednesday.

Today, our son graduated from high school. Now he'll go on to college — we started for him when he was born! He's done a good job in high school; his grades were good and he's mapped out his career plans pretty well. We talked over his college choices, visited several universities and selected the one that offered the program and environment he liked best. Working part-time, he's saved on his own to help pay for his education. But, most of the money will come from that savings account we opened 18 years ago at First Federal. Our boy will get the college education he deserves, because... we've been saving.

Thomas eyes TV news

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Veteran radio and television personality Lowell Thomas, 85, says he thinks the world is "almost ruled by television" when it comes to getting the news.

"I don't think we can measure the impact of television (journalism) on the world," Thomas said. "Sometimes I think we are almost ruled by television. Sometimes I wonder how beneficial that is."

Thomas received an honorary doctorate of humane letters at commencement exercises Friday at the University of Vermont.

Magruder faces youth

CHICAGO (UPI) — Job Stuart Magruder tried to explain the Watergate scandal to students at St. Thomas the Apostle High School. He succeeded only in convincing some of them that he is still lying about the affair.

"He is the whole thing," Angela Hicks, 17, said after she and other students grilled Magruder for more than an hour Monday. "Now I really think there was a cover-up."

Henry to Columbia?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for Columbia University said today former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is expected to announce "very soon" whether he will join the faculty of the Ivy League school.

The spokesman had no comment on published reports that Kissinger was expected to turn down the political science professorship — accompanied by an endowed chair — because of protests by some students who have held rallies protesting Kissinger's policies in Indochina and Chile while he was Secretary of State.

Hudson ends 68-day fast

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Sam Hudson, D-Texas, who vowed not to eat until all of his more than 100 bills were heard in committee, ended his 68-day fast on the last day of the legislature Monday with a bite of apple from a platter of roast pig.

"I admit I am very hungry," said Hudson, who has lost more than 40 pounds since March 23. "I am going to do a lot of eating today."

"I'm going to fix some mustard greens and corn meal dumplings," Hudson said, and he has subsisted on fruit juices and water since he began his fast.

Although the House approved only four of his bills and 18 others failed to receive committee hearings, Hudson said the fast was worth the effort.

"It's not been in vain," he said. "I really don't know how effective it was — I know I wouldn't have gotten all those bills heard."

Every lawmaker should have the opportunity to have his bills heard, Hudson said and to have an opportunity to bring his constituents' problems before the legislature.

Funeral director upset over grandfather's body

CENTER BARNSTEAD, N.H. (UPI) — Anyone would be upset finding out his great-grandfather's body had been stuffed in a receiving vault and left unburied for 56 years.

But Robert G. Davis of Claremont has a double reason for being upset. He is a funeral director.

Davis learned of the strange history of his great-grandfather, Civil War veteran James R.C. Davis, through "newspaper" reports. He rushed over for Memorial Day services attended by most of Center Barnstead — population 1,100.

"I'm going to get to the bottom of this," Davis said, clutching a death report which claimed his great-grandfather was buried here May 15, 1921.

James R.C. Davis actually was not buried until this spring. His body lay forgotten until last August because someone put his coffin in a receiving vault normally used to store bodies during the winter, then forgot about it.

Why it was put in the winter vault was a mystery. Davis men with a collection of antique keys tried them out "for fun" on the old vault last summer, and were flabbergasted to find a rotted coffin with skeletal remains lying inside.

A plaque lying on the floor identified the bones as those of Davis, a Center Barnstead native who served in Company G, 7th New Hampshire Volunteer Regiment, during the Civil War.

He spent much of his life in Ayer, Mass., but a death certificate showed he died in nearby Concord, N.H.

The town spent half its yearly $200 cemetery budget to arrange for Davis' burial and to fix up the old vault — a red brick structure set into the side of a small hill behind the fire station.

Memorial Day services for Davis included music by the Pittsfield High School marching band, prayers, a musket salute by the Gifford Militia, a trumpeter playing "Taps," and two Girl Scouts unveiling the old-fashioned tombstone contributed by the Veterans Administration.

Double dip success

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For most folks, taking one Memorial Day swim in the ocean would be enough.

But Frank Coughlan decided to test the waters on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts Monday with a plunge into New York harbor in the morning followed up with a dip in the Pacific in the afternoon.

Coughlan, a 53-year-old San Francisco insurance salesman, swam the mile-long distance under the Verrazano Narrows Bridge from Staten Island to Brooklyn in 46 minutes, towelled off, and then flew across the country to do two miles of crawl stroke under the Golden Gate Bridge in 55 minutes.

The bridges are the two longest suspension bridges in the world.

"I'm very happy it's all over," Coughlan said, as he emerged from the water at Fort Point under the southern end of the Golden Gate Bridge.

His wife, Carmel, poured champagne on his head. She was in a boat that accompanied her husband during the New York swim, but she waited for him at Fort Point during his Golden Gate effort.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
©1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old liberated woman. I've tried sex and I don't dislike it, but it's not worth all the trouble.

Sex never was a very important part of my life, but most people think there is something wrong with a person who doesn't have a strong sex drive.

I am not frigid; I am very affectionate. I can lie in my lover's arms and enjoy the feeling of closeness, but if it doesn't culminate in the sex act, it's all right with me. Am I weird? Or do you understand what I'm saying?

ABBY: I understand what you're saying, and you are not weird. I think you are an intelligent, honest woman who values love above sex. No need to apologize for it.

DEAR ABBY: I clipped and saved the above from your column because I really like the way CONTENT fell, and I applauded your answer.

I am a woman in my 50s, married 25 years, and I have a happy home and family life with my husband and three college-age children.

Knowing that a 36-year-old woman also felt that sex isn't worth the trouble gave me a great deal of comfort. So much emphasis is placed on sex these days that one gets the feeling that it is the ultimate in a relationship, and that love, understanding and affection are not enough.

How about running a survey, Abby? It would be interesting to find out how many women (and men) feel that sex is not really worth the trouble. Let's hear it from...

THE AFFECTIONATE SILENT MAJORITY

DEAR SILENT: Were I to ask my readers for responses to the question of how men and women feel about the importance of sex, the results would not be conclusive because: (a) those who readily volunteer information about their sex lives tend to be exhibitionists and therefore not typical; (b) I suspect that people lie about their sex lives more than any other subject.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a six-unit apartment house that is small, so we have gotten to know our neighbors.

My next-door neighbor is my problem. It seems that his biggest enjoyment in life is going through the trash barrels that sit on the side of our apartment building. These barrels contain the trash of everyone residing in this building, including my own.

How do I deal with this annoying situation?
N. HOLLYWOOD

DEAR NORTH: I fall to see how your neighbor's fascination with his neighbors' trash barrels presents a "problem" to you. It's a "problem" in life, why not regard it as a weird and somewhat childish pleasure, and let it go at that.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PHILOSOPHY MAJOR": Schopenhauer, the philosopher, said: "It is easy to let the adulation of the Diety make amends for the lack of proper behavior towards men. And so we see that in all times and in all countries, the great majority of mankind find it easier to beg their way into heaven by prayers than to deserve to go there by their actions."

your health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB: A year ago I had open heart surgery (four coronary artery bypasses). A vein was taken from my leg and used to bypass the obstructions in the arteries to my heart.

When I left the hospital I was given a rather rigid fat-free, salt-free diet program which I have followed for a year.

When I had a check up and my cholesterol level was up to 320. For several years before, I had my surgery I was taking Atromid-S three times a day. After surgery I was put on a blood thinner (Coumadin). Now because of my high cholesterol my doctor has put me back on Atromid-S and reduced my Coumadin.

I have reduced my weight by 20 pounds and weigh 140. I'm 5 feet 8 and am 62 years old.

What I need to know from you is will the combination of Atromid-S and Coumadin reduce my serum cholesterol level and is it safe to take these two medications at the same time?

DEAR READER: Atromid-S is often used in patients who do not respond ideally to dietary measures. It does help in some cases. If it does prolong the clotting mechanisms of the blood to some extent. Since Coumadin is used to prolong the clotting mechanisms (thin the blood) there is some caution required in using Coumadin and Atromid-S together. However, your doctor has decreased your dose of Coumadin to compensate for this.

The final word in deciding how much Coumadin is to be given is to use the blood tests as a guide. If the mechanism is too prolonged the medicines have to be reduced. As long as you are followed regularly there is no reason why you can't take both medicines.

Keep in mind that aspirin will increase the bleeding tendency and Tylenol also increases the action of Coumadin. You should be careful about taking any of these medicines on your own.

Single cholesterol determinations often are not too reliable. That is why researchers often like to take more than one test before deciding just what a person's true level is. It can also be affected by stress. Students getting ready for an exam may have a high level which returns to normal after the stress.

I can't say how much benefit you will get from the Atromid-S but it is worth trying. I would also urge you to get rid of every ounce of fat you can. Often the true benefits of eliminating fat are not obtained because people don't lose enough. When there is a clear medical indication for doing so I think a person should get down to the point that there is little or no fat under the skin that you can feel. That is when the real benefits are seen.

To give you more information on cholesterol levels I am sending you The Health Letter number 12, Cholesterol, Triglycerides Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

I presume you do not smoke. It is very important after such heart surgery to lose weight, when necessary, not smoke, and if a person's condition permits start a sensible exercise program specifically walking. Exercise sometimes helps to control these problems.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in this column. Write to him in care of the Times-Herald, P.O. Box 1251, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Christie mystery

AGATHA Christie probably mystified more people than any other woman, and that includes her biographers. Few inquirers have learned much about the woman behind the "Queen of Crime" image, though many tried. Now there's a new attempt—a joint assault on the Christie mystery by 13 of her rivals and critics. (UPI)

Critics probe 'Queen of Crime'

LONDON (UPI) — Agatha Christie probably mystified more people than any other woman, and that includes her biographers. Few inquirers ever learned much about the woman behind the "queen of crime" image, though many tried. Now there's a new attempt — a joint assault on the Christie mystery by 13 of her rivals and critics.

Crime writers like Emma Lathen and Julian Symons and critics like J.C. Trewin and Philip Jenkins, assembled by editor H.F. Keating, collaborate on a new book called "Agatha Christie, First Lady of Crime."

They approach the puzzle from every conceivable angle. Symons analyzes her "complications" and Keating her "simplicity." Celia Franklin reviews the Christie books everyone knows, and Dorothy B. Hughes discusses the Christie books no one knows — the novels Mrs. Christie wrote as "May Westmacott."

There are portraits of Miss Marple and Hercule Poirot, the two most famous Christie characters. There is a chapter on her movies, on her plays, on the staggering statistics of her sales, even an analysis of the way she used music and art in her books.

But in the end these authors, too, are left with the greatest Agatha Christie mystery of all — the puzzle of a gentle English lady pouring tea for her scholar husband and thinking incessantly of murder.

"How did she do it?" Keating asks. "She lived an ordinary enough life. She was not herself a particularly extraordinary person, though she was a more private one than most. Yet she achieved truly extraordinary feats. A mystery!"

Long before Agatha Christie died last year at 85 the basic facts of her life were widely known: Born to a British mother and a wealthy American father in "the golden evening of the Victorian era," educated at home; married at 24 to Archibald Christie, who went straight off to World War I; Her first child, a daughter, in 1919; her first book, "The Mysterious Affair at Styles," in 1920 — it sold 2,000 copies. Then, in 1926, her disappearance. That three-week vanishing act "shook the world," released an astonishing outpouring of publicity," says Michael Gilbert in the new book.

"One is staggered by the importance attached by the press to this event," it marked Agatha Christie forever. From then on she defested publicity. She was photographed comparatively rarely. She was never interviewed. She made public appearances reluctantly but refused to give a speech even at a glittering 80th birthday party which drew the cream of London's literary world.

She divorced Christie, married Max Mallowan — later knighted for his services to archaeology — and accompanied him on his Middle East digs. Between expeditions she was the typical English gentlewoman, but with murder always on her mind.

"In many ways she was what she appeared to be," Symons writes. "A middle-class English lady with highly conventional opinions. But she had something else, both as a novelist and as a considerable knowledge of the working of poisons, a keen interest in motives for and methods of murder."

Despite the book's multifaceted approach, the essential mystery remains — how and why this woman produced books which were "outbid only by the Bible and Shakespeare."

Perhaps her autobiography will solve it. Her own story, the product of 15 years of work, is due for publication in November, and its editor says "it is immensely revealing." Until then, Agatha Christie will be renowned as the author of 83 of the world's most popular books, a playwright with "a Midas gift" — "The Mousetrap" is in its 25th year in London — and the source of blockbuster movies like "Murder on the Orient Express." But she will still be a mystery as puzzling as any she invented.

Janet Guthrie: 'Next year I'll be back'

Autographs helmet

JANET Guthrie, the first and only woman racing in the Indianapolis 500, autographs a racing helmet for fellow crew member Saturday. Janet showed up early for a drivers meeting the day before the race. (UPI)

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Just 30 seconds after starting her first Indianapolis 500 and three hours before A.J. Foyt won his fourth, Janet Guthrie said first hand what it is about the race that separates the men from the boys and the boys from the girls.

In the very first turn, one of the boys played a "little rough" — rougher than Janet felt a gentleman should. Janet's place in auto racing history already was assured Sunday. She was the first woman to compete in the race, guaranteeing her a share of immortality.

She did everything in her power to finish the race, but dropped out after 27 laps because her mechanics couldn't fix the ignition trouble in the white-and-green Bryant Heating and Cooling Special she was driving.

Seven times she was forced to stop in the pits and fell so far behind it appeared she would finish next week. Finally, there was nothing to do but withdraw.

She got out of the car and peeled off her gloves. The crowd gave her a tremendous ovation for the extraordinary patience and persistence she showed, rearing back onto the track after each lengthy delay in the pits.

The 39-year-old physicist heard the cheers and for a moment it seemed she might cry, but she didn't. She took off her helmet, set her lips in a tight line and broke into a smile as the fans showed their appreciation.

"Atta girl, Janet," some called out. "You did the best you could. You have nothing to be ashamed of."

"Next year," she said. "I'll be back again." Janet returned to the garage. There was only one thing she wanted.

"I'd like for some way to get a shower because my skin is killing me," she said to Rodia Volstedt, manager of the Bryant Heating team. Finding a shower presented a problem. She was the first woman ever to shower in Gasoline Alley, as the garage area at the speedway is called.

The only shower in the area had been used only by men. No provision was made for a female to shower. So Janet's crew guarded the entrance so she could use it. Volstedt was annoyed that no official had the presence of mind to think his driver might also like to shower.

"In the process of changing a fitting on the car, we had a big alcohol spill," he said. "It spilled all over Janet, methanol they call it, and it can be terribly uncomfortable."

After her shower, Janet came out in a blue blouse, gray slacks and black sandals.

"I'm very disappointed we were unable to finish," she said. "I'm certain everything possible that could be done to try and correct what was wrong was done."

"You did the best you could. You have nothing to be ashamed of."

She said her chief mechanic, Phil Casey, and his assistant, Chuck Looper, were among the best around. But they appeared baffled from the start. Each time they made a correction, she'd go out again and limp back to the pit after just one around the track.

The oppressive 90-degree heat beat down upon her as she waited patiently each time — once for nearly a half hour. She was more than 50 laps behind at one point, helplessly out of contention. Yet, when someone asked how she felt about continuing, she said, "Well, if they fix the car, I'll get back in the race and run like I never was out of it."

Janet was never a factor in the race, mostly because the mechanics couldn't get her car fixed.

"Our slowing was lousy," Volstedt, grumbled. "Janet was great."

What happened in that first turn didn't help. Someone like Foyt, who never gives an inch, would not have let it happen to him. "There was a lot of monkey business going on in turn one," Janet said. "Some guy dodged right in front of me, got inside and slammed on his brakes. I thought there was going to be trouble." She wasn't discouraged by what happened and said she'd be back in Indy again next year. So did Foyt, the first man to win the 500 four times. "It was dog eat dog out there all day," he said. "Nobody gave anything." Janet Guthrie agreed.

BARBARA UPTON names date

June date planned

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Upton, Twin Falls, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Barbara, to Bruce Turner. Miss Upton is a 1975 graduate of the University of Idaho at Moscow and is currently teaching in Eden. Turner, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Turner, Twin Falls, is a 1977 graduate of the U of I.

The couple plans a June 11 ceremony at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Twin Falls.

Kiter's flight snipped

LONDON (UPI) — Nancy MacFadyen's scissors snipped David Turner's attempt Sunday to soar into the sky hanging in a cradle from five 15-foot black and pink kites.

While he was sending the kites aloft over Hampstead Heath during Britain's first kite festival, Mrs. MacFadyen — who later allowed she had "a large amount of wine with lunch" — whipped out her scissors and snipped the anchor line. The two kites already airborne crashed to the ground before several thousand spectators.

"He was mad," the 50-year-old woman said. "I didn't want to see him go all the way up and then fall to the ground. I'd rather cut the line, dear, and see him alive than dead."

Turner, 27, was not amused. "I would not have been hurt, probably, but the flying kites could have injured people."

Mrs. MacFadyen told him, "I was scared for you, and you were scared for yourself."

"No, I wasn't. You've ruined my afternoon," Turner retorted.

Mrs. MacFadyen was unrepentant. "I saved his face."

Turner said he'd try to make his flight again, but far away from Mrs. MacFadyen's scissors.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD KLINSKY

TF miss, Klinsky say nuptial vows

TWIN FALLS — Julie Waters and Edward L. Klinsky were married May 14 in rites at the Christian Center of Magie Valley.

Performing the ceremony was Rev. Edward L. Klinsky, father of the bridegroom. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Waters, Twin Falls. Parents of the bridegroom, Rev. and Mrs. Edward L. Klinsky, are from Watsonville, Calif.

The bride wore a gown of white qiana and Venise lace. The bodice of qiana was gathered softly at the high waistline. The Queen Ann neckline and the waist line were trimmed with Venise lace.

The Victorian sleeves of qiana had open appliques of Venise lace. The circular skirt flowed into a semi-cathedral train.

The Venise lace Juliet cap had a floor-length veil of English bridal illusion, trimmed with Venise lace.

The bride wore a golden dove necklace made by her brother and carried an heirloom handkerchief made by her grandmother.

Organ music and opening solo were provided by Cheryl Slagel, sister of the bridegroom. Before the vows were made, the bridegroom surprised the bride with a special song, "You and I," followed with a solo by Ralfe Klinsky, brother of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony the couple was honored at a reception in the blue room at Christian Center. The wedding party greeted guests before a deep blue drap.

Best man was Steve Klinsky, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Ralfe Klinsky, Doug Slagel and Jerry Johnson.

Maid of honor was Kim Thomas. Bridesmaids were Christine Jones, Jacqueline Hovey, and Debi Mendolia.

Flower girl was Melissa Humphrey and ring-bearer was Matthew Humphrey, niece and nephew of the bride.

In charge of the gift table was Toni Humphrey. Gifts were carried by Mary and Anna Humphrey, nieces of the bride.

Special guests were Marie Smith Long, grandmother of the bridegroom, Sacramento, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Buehler, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Humphrey, Bellingham, Wash.; and Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Stanfield, Richfield, Wash.

Showers for the bride were given by Kim Thomas, Susan Butler and Janie Moon and by Mrs. Don Silvers. After a wedding trip to California, the couple will reside in Twin Falls.

Top notch advice

DENVER (UPI) — Building businesswoman Angela Valentine learned early to go straight to the top. "Dear Governor Lamm," the third-grader said in a letter to Gov. Richard Lamm. "I am trying to have a lemon stand and popcorn wagon this summer. I am eight years old almost nine. My father tells me I have to collect sales tax and pay it to the state. If this is right? What does the state do with the tax money. What other taxes do I have to pay? Please answer soon."

Lamm telephoned Angela at her home in Fort Collins last week to deliver the reply personally. He followed up with a letter which let Angela off the tax hook. "What I am saying, Angela, is that I do not believe the law requires children to collect sales tax at lemonade stands. There might be some people who disagree with me. If any state officials question you about taxes, you let me know. I am a lawyer, and I would be proud to personally represent you in this matter," he said.

Israel files new protest

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Foreign Minister Yigal Alon summoned the American ambassador today to lodge "the strongest protest yet" against President Carter's recent statements calling for Israeli concessions in a Middle East peace settlement.

"Our concern has deepened because of recent statements that introduced new elements that may only hinder already tough Arab positions," a Foreign Ministry official said.

He said Alon was reacting to statements by Carter and other officials about the need for a Palestinian homeland, payment of compensation to Palestinian refugees and a return to the borders before the 1967 Middle East war.

In Tel Aviv, prospective Prime Minister Menahem Begin said he would put off the nomination of Moshe Dayan to be the next foreign minister and called on a key party to return to talks on setting up a government.

Ambassador Samuel Lewis told Alon that the United States stood by U.N. Security Council resolutions 242 and 338, which call for Israeli withdrawals to secure and recognized boundaries in a general peace agreement.

Spanish speaker resigns

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Parliament speaker Torcuato Fernandez Miranda announced his resignation today, opening up an outside chance that Spain's new parliament may briefly be headed by Communist party chief Dolores Ibaruri when it convenes for the first time next month.

The 81-year-old Mrs. Ibaruri — "La Pasionaria" of the civil war who returned from 40 years of exile in Moscow earlier this month — is the oldest of the candidates running in the June 15 elections for parliament.

Constitutional experts said that if she is elected, she would be the senior member of the new parliament and, as such, become its acting president — unless King Juan Carlos has by then designated a new speaker.

Indian train takes plunge

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The first section of an express train plummeted into a rain-swollen river in eastern India today, killing at least 45 persons. Many more bodies were feared entombed inside the submerged coaches.

The national news agency Samachar quoted railway officials as saying a bridge across the Beti River gave way, sending the train's engine and first two coaches into the swirling river.

Samachar said 45 persons were confirmed dead and at least 100 injured. A newspaper in Gauhati, near the scene of the accident, quoted officials at the scene as saying the death toll could be 120.

Oil 'inevitable' weapon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy said in an interview published today it was "inevitable" that oil would be used as a weapon in the event of a new Arab-Israeli war.

He also told the pro-Syrian daily Al

Sharq that other Arab states besides Egypt and Syria would commit troops to battle.

"The use of oil is inevitable," he said. "The Arab states must use all of their potential."

New US-Havana ties proposed

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Officials traveling with Rosalynn Carter on her two-week Latin American mission say Washington has formally proposed that the United States and Cuba install diplomats — in each other's capitals.

Mrs. Carter, acting as her husband's good will emissary in her diplomatic debut, met for three hours Monday with Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley on topics ranging from U.S. relations with Cuba to Jamaica's rural development.

The officials traveling with her, who declined to be named or quoted, said Monday the U.S. proposal calls for Cuban diplomats to operate from the Czechoslovakian embassy in Washington and for the Americans to be stationed in the Swiss embassy in Havana.

Currently, U.S. affairs in Havana and Cuban affairs in Washington are handled by Swiss- and Czechoslovak diplomats in the two embassies.

They said the United States made the so-called "interest section" proposal in writing to Havana on May 10 and that the two nations are discussing the proposal this week at an undisclosed location in New York.

Although such an arrangement would fall short of full diplomatic relations, it would be a major step toward normalizing relations between Cuba and the United States.

Kingston, she was greeted by hundreds of school children who lined her motorcycle route and waved flags as she passed. She stepped out of her car and greeted the crowd personally at one point.

She was to visit a sugar cane cooperative — and perhaps do some cane cutting herself — then meet again with Manley before leaving for Costa Rica.

Third World wants more assistance money

PARIS (UPI) — Third World nations unanimously condemned the United States and its industrialized partners today for offering allegedly insufficient help to ease their plight and warned that the current economic conference in Paris would succeed only if the West made larger offers.

The warning, described by some Third World delegates in private as a virtual ultimatum, was handed down by the group of 19 developing nations to the Western side at the second day's meeting of the three-day conference on international economic cooperation.

Manuel Perez-Guerrero, Venezuelan minister for international economic relations, said speaking on behalf of the Third World nations. "It is obvious that the announced are not commensurate with the magnitude of the great problems which the developing countries face."

He accused the American-led industrialized bloc of renegeing on most Third World requirements. He said Western offers made Monday by U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and his colleagues "are far below our expectations."

Surprise blow to West by Soviets possible

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviets and their Warsaw Pact allies could launch a surprise attack against the West with little or no warning, U.S. Gen. Richard H. Ellis, commander of Allied air forces in Central Europe, said today.

He said peacetime deployment of NATO land forces does not allow them to hit back immediately in case of an attack.

But, in a paper presented to the 15th annual Anglo-American Aeronautical Conference, Ellis said NATO currently is reorganizing its air forces in the central area of Europe to enable them to retaliate immediately.

"There can be no doubt about the Soviet's offensive capability, particularly in the air," Ellis said. "Her military power now far outweighs any purely defensive needs. Any reasonable assessment of Soviet capability clearly indicates that without apparent preparation the Warsaw Pact could launch a surprise attack with little or no warning." Ellis said. "The peacetime deployment of NATO land forces does not permit an immediate effective counter to a land attack."

Guerrillas slain

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Soldiers and police have killed 15 guerrillas and destroyed at least four of their hideouts, including a clandestine arms factory disguised as a candy store, the army said late Monday.

An army-communicate said "important information" uncovered by the discovery of a records center and library operated by the Communist Peoples Revolutionary Army led to the raids.

The communique did not specify when the raids occurred, saying only they were part of eight separate counter-guerrilla operations in Buenos Aires and its suburbs this month.

The army said the guerrilla library, located in a small house in the southern suburb of Avelaneda, was discovered "this month," but the "criminals in charge of it fled moments before" officials arrived.

An asked who originated that abominable get-together known as the cocktail party. An American-born woman named Mrs. Alfredo de Pena. She lived in London at the time. In the late 1920s, it was. The party was for Oxford undergraduates. They couldn't get to her house in time for tea and she didn't want them there at the later dinner hour. So she picked 5 p.m. to fit the need, and the students themselves turned it into a mild liquor session.

Not a minority but a majority of the men in this country when buying shoes just walk into any store, point to what they have on their feet, and say, "Something like these." Or so reports a shoe salesman of lengthy experience. Sounds about right. It's exactly how I buy shoes, anyhow.

SEA LEVEL

Q. "What point in a city is used to measure its height above sea level?"
A. Depends. In a big city, a busy intersection, usually. In a little town, the courthouse, probably. In a village, the railroad station. There's no standard rule.

Q. "Which of our presidents declared Thanksgiving Day to be unconstitutional?"
A. Thomas Jefferson did. And Andrew Jackson and Zachary Taylor presumably thought so, too, because they refused to appoint an official Thanksgiving Day.

Nobody grows fingernails faster than the Golden eagle. In two and a half months, it's tiny talons turn into meat-hooks four inches long. That bird's wingspread grows up pretty swift, too. From a few inches to almost seven feet, likewise in two and a half months.

Dual objectives outlined in summer fallow plans

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Dryland grain growers can plan their summer fallowing programs with the double objective of conserving moisture and controlling weeds, said Dr. H. R. Guenther, University of Idaho extension agronomist.

"This year, it is important to use every possible way to store additional moisture in the soil," Guenther said.

He said early tillage is an effective way to control weeds and also to establish a loose soil surface which will minimize moisture losses. Guenther says research conducted by Dr. Truman Massee at the Snake River Conservation Center at Kimberly indicates the value of early tillage.

Guenther recommends several fallow practices, based on Massee's research:

—Till the soil early. When summer fallow is initiated in mid-May, seedbed moisture in the fall should be at about the same level as was found when the initial tillage was done.

—Fight weeds, but don't overkill. Tillage operations not needed for weed control can result in big losses of stored soil moisture.

—Prepare for fall. Tillage should be less and less deep as the season progresses. The shallow tillage will firm the seedbed for fall planting.

—Consider subsurface tillage. The big advantage of subsurface tillage is that straw remains on the soil surface. This improves the conservation of summer rainfall by increasing movement of moisture into the soil.

Endrin latest under fire

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Farmers say the pesticide endrin is their only protection against several insects which ravage grain crops. Some scientists contend the pesticide can cause environmental damage.

The Environmental Protection Agency is holding hearings to decide whether to ban or restrict the use of endrin.

An EPA official disclosed two bald eagles died from the effects of the pesticide in states where it never has been used.

Dr. Kyle Barbehenn, director of an EPA team evaluating the chemical, said one of the eagles, which are protected by federal law, died in Wisconsin and the other died in Minnesota.

He said the deaths of the eagles indicate they ate something contaminated by the pesticide while at their winter feeding grounds.

He said the incidents indicate the pesticide can get into the food chain and cause damage months after it has been used.

Solar pump tried

MEAD, Neb. — The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) will experimentally irrigate 50 acres of corn and soybeans this summer using photovoltaic cells which convert sunlight directly into electricity.

Using the 25 kilowatts of electricity produced from 120,000 solar cells, ERDA scientists will operate a 10 horsepower pump on an experimental farm in Mead, to irrigate the project.

The unit will be capable of pumping 1,000 gallons of water a minute from a reservoir into irrigation pipes.

The only drawback to the project is the cost. The experimental system cost an estimated $37,500 or nearly $5,000 an acre. The total cost of the electricity is $15.50 per peak watt. Scientists hope to bring the cost down to competitive levels by 1980. Their goal is 50 cents per peak watt by that year.

New Gem dairying rules set

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Agriculture plans to adopt new regulations governing dairy standards for manufactured milk products in 1978.

Jay Nichols, Boise, chief of the department's bureau of dairying, said "new technology now available permits us to update regulations and improve the quality of milk used for manufactured dairy products such as cheese, ice cream, butter, and powdered milk."

Nichols said the new regulations, as proposed, established the following:

- Set a maximum content of antibiotics and drug content limits for manufacturing milk.
- Establish a program of testing by manufacturers to prevent use of mastitis milk for manufacturing purposes.
- Quality specifications for all raw milk or cream to be used for manufacturing purposes.
- Establishing procedures to determine estimates of bacteria in manufacturing milk and allowable limits of such bacteria.

Nichols said the department is also adopting "new regulations on standards of identity for frozen yogurt dessert, frozen yogurt dessert mix, and dietetic frozen desserts.

Copies of the new regulations are available at the Idaho Department of Agriculture, 4696 Overland Rd., Boise.

Laetrile 'food,' not drug

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Dean Burk, regarded as America's top authority on laetrile, says the concoction of apricot kernels should be treated as a food and vitamin in human field tests.

Burk, who was head of cell chemistry at the National Cancer Institute until he retired three years ago at the mandatory age of 70, told UPI Thursday that tests treating the bitter-tasting substance as a drug, would be "highly suspect."

Trials of laetrile against cancer were proposed this week by Dr. Lewis Thomas, head of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Institute, and Dr. Vincent De Vita, Director of Therapy at the National Cancer Institute.

"Such tests would be highly suspect by laetrile promoters unless and until such institutes stop regarding laetrile as a new drug," Burk said.

The type of field trial where laetrile is accepted as a food or vitamin and not a drug, Burk said.

He explained that scientific standards for evaluating the effectiveness of a drug differ considerably from those for passing judgment on the efficacy of a vitamin or food.

The difference is so great that laetrile would be put to an unfair and improper test if treated as a drug, he said.

"The trials must be conducted along nutritional and metabolic lines," he said.

Burk, a leading proponent of the use of laetrile in the study and treatment of human cancer, said experience has shown that treatment with laetrile must be adjusted to each patient's needs.

Other scientists say Vitamin B17 — their name for laetrile — should be used in a special diet. Also included are massive doses of Vitamins A and C.

The diet calls for avoidance of red meat, dairy products, sugar and many processed foods. It stresses fish, raw or fresh fruits and vegetables and fruit juices. Whole grain breads are preferred to white.

Burk said he advised the National Cancer Institute of his objections to field trials treating laetrile as a drug. He also outlined suggestions for trials acceptable to laetrile scientists.

Two months ago Burk submitted a 159-page report to the Food and Drug Administration "with what he called extensive experimental evidence that laetrile is a vitamin.

Pressure for field trials with laetrile has been building since various state legislatures have taken up moves to legalize the substance banned by the FDA.

An estimated 50,000 Americans take laetrile.

Teacher lets puppets instruct

UNIVERSITY HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — While seeking a way to "spark enthusiasm among students in reading and understanding literature," English teacher Joe M. McCormack found a new twist to the old curriculum — letting puppets teach his class.

"I almost fell like the Pied Piper the way they gathered 'round to watch the puppets work," McCormack, falling back on his life-long interest in puppetry, said of bringing the puppets into his two classes at Wiley Junior High School last December.

McCormack said he built a stage, borrowed a play script — complete with puppets — from the puppet center at the library in nearby South Euclid and became "an instant star in the classroom."

Not much prodding was needed to get the seventh grade students to make their own puppets. Then use them, according to McCormack, who says the youngsters learned the mechanics of a play by writing a script, creating characters and props and rehearsing.

"A real transformation had taken place in my room," he said. "The pupils were more eager to learn and digest the literature that normally held little interest."

Word of McCormack's unique class has spread to other schools. Now he heads a band of traveling puppeteers.

Bag boys on federal payroll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what a congressman calls "the ultimate Catch 22," the Defense Department must put on the federal payroll at a possible cost of $18 million a year the youngsters who bag groceries for tips at military stores.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the situation arose from a recent Civil Service Commission ruling, upheld by the Justice Department, that the baggers are federal employees.

As a result, the youths cannot collect tips and must be paid salaries and fringe benefits like other federal employees.

"It's the ultimate Catch 22," Aspin said, likening the situation to a fictional self-destructive military regulation on discharges.

He said retroactive payments dating to May 1, 1974, will cost $35 million to $53 million, according to Pentagon estimates, and most of the jobs probably will be eliminated because of the extra cost.

"Instead of helping people, the civil service commission will just be wiping out jobs," Aspin said.

Treat as food?

REGARDED AS America's top authority on Laetrile, Dr. Dean Burk says the concoction of apricot kernels should be treated as a food and vitamin in human field tests. Burk, who was head of cell chemistry at the National Cancer Institute until he retired three years ago, is shown at work in his yard in Washington, D. C. (UPI)

Idaho divorces over US average

By BONNIE HAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

BOISE — Unhappily married couples from Idaho and elsewhere are taking advantage of the state's simple divorce law in rapidly increasing numbers.

The 1976 divorce rate in Idaho was more than 25 per cent higher than the national divorce rate for 1975, the latest national figures available.

The 5,699 divorces in Idaho last year represented a rate of 6.9 divorces per 1,000 people in the state.

Nationally, the divorce rate is only 4.8 divorces per 1,000 people.

The increase in the 1976 divorce rate is the sixth consecutive year Idaho's divorce rate has risen.

The increase has been steady since 1970, says Jon Wicks, state registrar for the Bureau of Vital Statistics. In 1970 there were 3,612 divorces in Idaho, with the figure increasing annually to the present 5,699. In 1971 there were 3,664; in 1972, 3,847; in 1973, a big jump to 4,341; in 1974, 4,808 and in 1975, 5,203. The national rate increased from 3.5 in 1970 to 4.6 in 1974 and 4.8 for 1975.

Last year the highest divorce rate per county was in the sparsely populated Boise County which includes Idaho City and where the county seat is Placerville. Here the rate was 15.7, but the population for Placerville, for example, is only 14.

By regions, the area including Ada, Elmore and Valley counties, or Region 4, with a rate of 818 is the highest.

In Magic Valley, region 5, the rate is second lowest in the state at 4.7, with 568 divorces last year. Of these, Twin Falls County accounted for 327. This compares with 200 divorces in 1975.

Wicks said better reporting on divorces has a major influence on the numbers of divorces shown on the annual record.

Gooding County, once the divorce mecca of Idaho, is now about average with a rate of 9.6 of 8.3 per 1,000 population and a total of 91 divorces. This compares to 54 divorces the previous year.

In 1969 Gooding County had 381 divorces, a peak year. In 1970, Gooding County's rate was 37.8 per 1,000 population with 327 divorces.

A change in divorce laws and a change in district judges in the area could have accounted for the decline, Wicks said.

At one time Gooding County was known by attorneys in Idaho and other states, as an area where divorces could be obtained with no public attention.

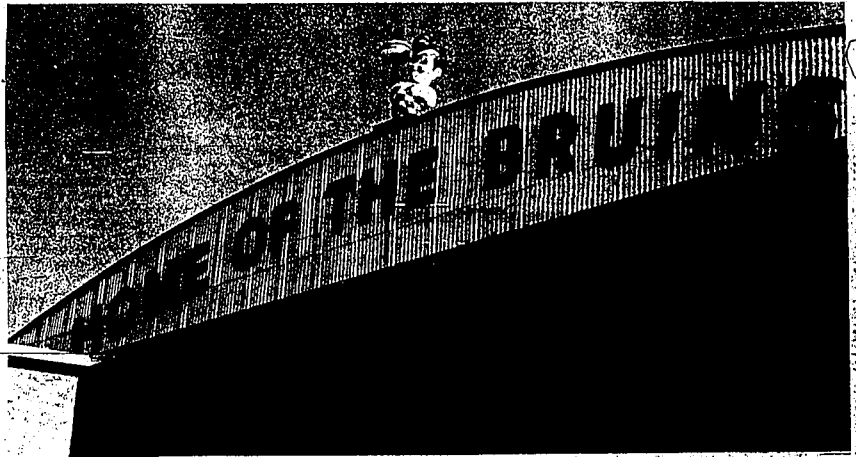

Blaine County has a relatively moderate increase from a 5.4 rate per 1,000 population in 1975 to 9.7 in 1976.

There were 77 divorces in 1976 and 76 in 1975 in Blaine County.

Other area counties include Cassia with 124 divorces and a 6.6 rate for 1976 compared to 98 divorces and 5.3 rate in 1975; Minidoka County, 95 divorces in 1976 and a rate of 5.2, down from 100 divorces and a 5.5 rate for 1975; Jerome County, 52 divorces and 3.8 rate last year and 29 divorces and 2.1 rate for 1975.

Pranksters caught

TWO TWIN FALLS lads were caught by police after they put this mannequin from JB's Big Boy Family Restaurant, 506 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., on top of the Twin Falls High School gymnasium early this morning. When police caught up with them, the unidentified juveniles admitted to another prank, taking two fire extinguishers from the Rogerson Motel, 127 Main Ave. E., and spraying the foam all over a car. The pranksters were not arrested but agreed to retrieve the mannequin, clean up the car and replace the fire extinguishers, police said.

Buhl meeting slated

BUHL — The school board here plans two special meetings next week, including opening bids for construction of the new high school.

Bids will be opened by the board at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, covering the general contract, electrical and mechanical work for the new building.

Last fall, district voters approved a $2.5 million bond issue for construction of the building. Plans call for 11 classrooms to house the 10th through 12 grades. The present high school will become a junior high school building for the seventh through ninth grades. The high school comprises the upper four grades now.

On another matter, board members will also meet Monday night at 8:30 p.m. for a public hearing on the proposed budget for the coming school year.

Superintendent Dan Mabe said public comment is invited on the school's $1.4 million budget which is about a 5.25 per cent over all increase from the 1976-77 budget.

It is estimated 42.5 mills will be needed to raise the revenue needed to meet the budget.

Superintendent Mabe said the board will adopt a budget June 6 following the public hearing.

In addition to the two meetings next week, the regular board meeting will be held June 13 for a review of the bids and other regular business.

Burley men arrested

BURLEY — A 1976 stop for a drunk driving charge early Saturday morning resulted in the arrest of three men on charges of grand larceny and possession of stolen property.

Burley police arrested Clifford Joseph Taylor, 45, Burley, about 1:40 a.m. Saturday in Burley. Also arrested at the same time was Tony Rendon, 20, Burley.

Police later arrested Antonio L. Guzman, 25, Burley, on the same charges.

Police recovered numerous items suspected of being stolen.

Among the items recovered through a warrant search were a stereo and two speakers, a jewel box, sheepskin rug, ceramic vases, camera, clock of brass bells, tape player, piggy bank, alarm clock, dual meter weather instrument and a lighter with the initials B.E. Wiggins.

Other items recovered were a gold watch, a box containing five or six rings, a silver belt, four buffalo nickels, two old dimes, some old pennies and a roll of pennies and a bottle of valium pills.

The case is still under investigation.

SV lawsuit blamed for Disney pullout

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A $32 million lawsuit pending between Sun Valley Co. and Dwight Fenton Co., a California amusement firm, was part of the reason Walt Disney Productions didn't buy the resort, according to a deposition of R. Earl Holding, Sun Valley's new owner.

The April 20 deposition by the Wyoming oil and hotel magnate offers a glimpse into the behind-the-scenes negotiations which finally led to the sale of Sun Valley to Holding earlier this spring.

The deposition indicates Sun Valley Resorts, Inc., owned principally by Holding, paid a base figure of $12 million, as previously reported but unconfirmed by Holding or his company to purchase the primary asset of the former Sun Valley Co.

Holding also says in his recorded testimony that early this year he had dinner with Mrs.

Disney. He says in the testimony about her response to Disney Productions' decision to pull out of any Sun Valley resort purchase discussions that, "I think the feeling I had, I spent a couple of hours with her, that she was disappointed."

At another point Holding comments in the deposition, "My best judgment is that complications of the lawsuit were probably one of the major deterrents of Disney going ahead (with resort purchase discussions)."

Holding's deposition also quotes him saying Sun Valley Resorts, Inc., is not negotiating lease renewals on the Sun Valley Mall and that it is seeking to terminate some leases there.

Holding's deposition came as part of a pre-trial discovery process in the $32 million suit between Dwight-Fenton Co. and the old Sun Valley Co. which was owned principally by Bill Janss.

The suit involves former plans of Dwight Fenton Co. to rent the Sun Valley Mall from the former Sun Valley Co. and to develop a single, architecturally integrated mall area in the style of a European village.

Those plans were aborted and a suit and countersuit were later filed with each party claiming the other was responsible for the broken deal.

Dwight, Fenton Co. last week asked the court to grant an order forcing Holding to answer certain questions he refused to answer at his April 20 deposition, a second order compelling Sun Valley Co. to produce documents which it asserts are privileged, and a third order to prevent Sun Valley Resorts, Inc. from terminating the lease of a woman's apparel shop on the Sun Valley Mall.

The first two orders concern information relating to the value of the Sun Valley resort, which information Dwight, Fenton Co. claims is relevant to their case.

According to the new court documents, Holding refused during his deposition to answer questions about an April 8, 1977, "agreement of purchase and sale" of the Sun Valley Co.

Dwight, Fenton Co. wants questions about the purchase answered, as well as to see the actual documents of sale and a report prepared by Disney in connection with its examination of the resort.

Dwight, Fenton Co. claim these materials constitute evidence or may lead to evidence in their case.

Hydro may become alternative power

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

IDAHO FALLS — If a proposed hydroelectric generating project in the city of Idaho Falls is successful, similar projects could provide an alternative to coal-fired or nuclear power generating facilities in Idaho.

A recent poll of Magic Valley legislators revealed area solons favor development of Idaho's hydroelectric power capabilities before building coal-fired plants in the state.

The project being planned by the city of Idaho Falls takes advantage of "low-head" dams located at three points near the city to generate nearly one-third of the city's annual power needs, according to Steve Harrison, city electrical division manager.

Harrison says the three low-head dams the city built solely for power-generating purposes were damaged by flood waters last year after the Teton Dam collapsed.

Instead of replacing the equipment, the city, with the help of the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) will install turbines used widely in low-head dams in Europe which it hopes will nearly triple the power output of the three dams.

"The turbines we have now are vertical shafts," Harrison says. "They have a total capacity of about seven megawatts altogether."

Harrison says the "bulb" turbines the city will install in the three dams will each have a maximum output capacity of seven megawatts each.

He figures with fluctuating water flow in the river during the year, the city will be able to glean about 15 megawatts annually from the three dams.

"The city load averages 41 megawatts," Harrison says. "So the 15 megawatts would be a third of the city's requirements for a year."

"The bulb turbine is a more efficient unit for a river," he continues. "What we have is run-of-the-river plants, we don't store. And we may get different flows during the year."

Harrison says the price is right, too.

District HS rodeos set

JEROME — The fifth District High School Rodeo, sponsored by the Jerome Kiwanis Club, will be held Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

The Sixth District High School Rodeo, scheduled for the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, also gets underway tomorrow.

The two rodeos for high school girls and boys will feature bareback riding, saddlebronc riding, calf-roping, bulldogging, cow cutting, goat tying, polo bending, barrel racing, and coed team roping.

At the Fifth District Rodeo competition in Jerome, the all round cowboy and cowgirl picked from the ability shown in these events will win each a $450 saddle. First places in the separate events will each win $100 belt buckles.

"The object of this rodeo is to determine the representatives from the fifth district who will go to the state finals," to be held at the Burley Fairgrounds later in June, according to Bob Math, Director of the Fifth District rodeo.

High school boys and girls from Glenn's Ferry, Fairfield, Richfield, Wood River, Hailey, Ketchum, Bliss, Hagerman, Wendell, Jerome, Gooding, Shoshone and Hazelton may enter the fifth district rodeo, he said.

Admission is $5 for families, $2 for adults and $1.25 for students. Tickets will be purchased at the door, from a Jerome Kiwanis Club member or high school radio association member.

Gottfried wins, faces Nastase in French net

PARIS (UPI) — Brian Gottfried reached the quarterfinals of the $300,000-French Tennis Championships in straight sets Monday but Harold Solomon fell to unseeded Spandrad José Higueras to leave only two U.S. players surviving in the men's singles.

Gottfried, current leader of the Grand Prix, showed why he is having the best season of his career by completely outclassing Frenchman Patrice Dominguez 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, with another fine display at the net. "In a best of five set tournament like this, it's always good to win in straight sets but to win like that against a Frenchman on center court here is something else," said Gottfried, who looked as though he was doomed for a fourth when he trailed 0-1 in the first set.

killer instinct. A three-month layoff has robbed him of top match practice because of a mystery virus infection. Higueras will face Phil Dent for a semifinal place. Dent became the first Australian in seven years to reach the last eight when he dumped New Zealander Brian Fairlie 6-0, 6-2, 6-4.

Brodie hits wrong ball to lose in British golf

GANTON, England (UPI) — John Brodie, a former touring pro and one-time star quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers, became the first major American casualty Monday when the British Amateur match play golf championship began on the 6,799-yard, par-72 Ganton club course.

Brodie, who recently reached the semifinals of the French Amateur championships, lost 2 and 1 to Irish international Eddie Dunne as 15 of the first 20 Americans in action were eliminated in the opening round.

Out too went Eric Gleacher, a victim of his own generosity. The New York merchant banker was all square with three to play against Scotland's Steve Martin, one of the eight seeds. Gleacher lost the 16th to go one down and badly cut his tee shot into the rough at the 17th.

Doc operates best under pressure

BY DAVE ANDERSON O.N.Y. Times News NEW YORK — For most of the last eight months, Julius Irving was in disrepute. The Doctor had moved his popularity and his office to Philadelphia — from Long Island for the promise of more expensive fees. But he operated in a manner that confused his new surgical helpers.

starting at the big color TV set in his Long Island home when he saw Julius Irving making a long leap scooping incision that he had never seen before. The Doctor's old surgical adviser came up out of his chair. "That's Doc," yelled Kevin Loughery, waving his cigar. "He's back being Doc again."

When the 76ers eliminated the Boston Celtics not long ago, Lloyd (I Think I'm Always) Free made some big baskets. But by shooting so much himself, he kept Dr. J. out of the offense. Then against the Houston Rockets in the Eastern Conference final, Lloyd-Free suffered a rib injury and the 76ers' strategy changed.

Cousy with wings but Kevin Loughery has a more recent comparsion. "To me, Doc is Earl Monroe with wings," he says. "Doc does in the air what Monroe does on the floor. And he's on a helluva team. Of the 10 best players in the NBA, I think the 76ers have three — Doc, McGinnis and Doug Collins. The other seven would be Kareem, Walton; David Thompson, Cowens, Hovick, Pistol Pete and Bob McAdoo. I know McAdoo didn't have a too great season, but I think he's a competitor. Three out of 10 on one team, that's a lot. But Doc is really something special. Every game he seems to do something you never have seen before."

Hockey player dies in crash

GRAY SUMMIT, Mo. (UPI) — Detachment Bob Cassoff of the St. Louis Blues' "police" who had begun polishing his talents to become an all-around hockey player, died in a motorcycle crash following a holiday barbecue at the farm of teammate Garry Unger.

Authorities said Cassoff's motorcycle crossed the center line of a two-lane blacktop road in Franklin County, about 26 miles southwest of St. Louis, early on the party Sunday night. The motorcycle struck an oncoming car head-on.

Several members of the Blues, including Coach and General Manager Emile Francis, rushed to the St. Francis Hospital in Washington, where Cassoff, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival. The driver of the car involved in the crash, Douglas Kiekamp, 19, Villa Ridge, was not injured.

Highway Patrol officials could give no reason why Cassoff's motorcycle crossed into the oncoming path. Franklin County Coroner Stanley Meyer said routine tests were performed on Cassoff's blood but there was no reason to suspect alcohol was involved.

Porpoises set free

HONOLULU (UPI) — Two 350-pound porpoises used for perception and hearing research were stolen from the Hawaii Institute of Marine Biology, apparently by a group that considered the experiments cruel, and released into the Pacific.

Institute Director John Bardach said Sunday that the theft of Puka and Kea was "a $500,000 to $1 million loss to the University of Hawaii." He called the crime "stupid."

Police were seeking two unidentified institute employees.

A group calling itself "The Undersea Railroad" said in a press statement that the porpoises "will never again know the nets of a captor, or the relentless probing of scientific research." The group added that Puka and Kea had been kept "in total isolation while undergoing remorseless experiments."

Bardach said the charges were groundless. He said the mammals were "eager and anxious to cooperate in our experiments. They were man's best friend." Police said they had never heard of "The Undersea Railroad."

The director said he believed that the two employees along with several other persons lifted the mammals from their tanks and fed them to sea in a kayak.

Rainmaker takes credit for wet Idaho weather

BOISE (UPI) — A Kootenai County rainmaker says he is responsible for the rain that fell on northern Idaho during the month of May.

Jerome Eden, Careywood, a small community north of Coeur d'Alene, told the Lewiston Morning Tribune that his ground-based "Reich Cloudbuster" rainmaker has not only brought the recent 2½ inches of rain to northern Idaho, but has proven effective in reversing drought tendencies in other parts of the United States.

In a letter to State Department of Agriculture Director Wilson Kellogg early this week, Eden said: "It is our intention to continue our operations in order to bring the needed moisture without which, as you know, Idaho, as well as our neighboring state of Washington, will be in deep trouble."

Eden asked Kellogg to spearhead the state development of his weather-modification machine, and he offered to personally train state personnel in the "functions of this apparatus."

Eden said the rainmaker costs from $8,000 to $10,000 to construct, and he warned that the state should assume responsibility for the rainmakers because "it is far too easy for irresponsible individuals to construct and use such apparatus in a harmful way."

Eden told the Tribune, "If a person does not know what he is doing, he can increase the drought instead of reversing it."

The rainmaking machine employs a bank of hollow pipes ground into water. It draws atmospheric charges, gently changing the atmospheric potential, the Tribune reported.

"It builds up clouds and, if you know what you're doing, it will produce rain," Eden said.

Steve Seward, Gov. John V. Evans' representative to the Idaho Drought Committee, told the Tribune that Eden's letter "warrants a review and response from state government." He said he was planning to discuss the matter with Kellogg.

Cultural extravaganza set

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — The marriage of the Spoleto Festival USA and this quiescent port city of 70,000 persons is in the honeymoon stage and thriving.

The cultural extravaganza of the performing arts has been transplanted successfully by Italian-American composer Gian Carlo Menotti, who founded the original festival two decades earlier in the Umbrian hill town of Spoleto, Italy, where local residents at first were suspicious of it.

Scheduled for a 12-day run, the festival moved into its sixth day Monday with plans already underway to continue the $1 million-plus project amid this historic locale next year. By the time it concludes Sunday, 125 separate events involving 600 artists and backstage helpers and hundreds of Charleston volunteers will have been staged.

"I'll bring my festival here as long as Charleston wants it," said Menotti, 65. "I don't see how Charleston can let it get away."

The original version has become Europe's most varied summer festival and is global in its attraction.

Charlestonians have embraced the project. The city provided $820,000 and its performance facilities and hundreds of volunteers are working on the crowded schedule of events. Former President Gerald Ford's daughter Susan has been photographing the festival, which is being covered by some 100 artists and other news personnel.

New York and other East Coast states are well represented at the events, but Charlestonians and other South Carolinians make up the majority of the audiences. Some out-of-state visitors were scared away in the first few days by erroneous rumors accommodations were difficult to obtain.

Despite the snafu, the performances have been well attended, and some have played to standing room only crowds. The most popular event has been the daily chamber music concerts at noon, a carryover from the European Spoleto. They

Gulf Coast hurricane expected, man says

United Press International / The Texas Gulf Coast is five years overdue for a major hurricane and a number of factors—during the June-October season could lead to an unprecedented disaster, according to the director of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council.

Joe Moseley says residents should be aware of the danger created by the growing coastal population, shoddy building practices, a general sinking of escape routes and growing complacency created during seven years without a major hurricane.

"A combination of things could set the stage for something much greater than the 1900 storm (which killed 6,000 to 8,000 and caused more than $30 million damage) in Galveston," he said.

Japanese, Soviets agree to treaty

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the Soviet Union Monday agreed on a five-year extension of their trade and payments treaty, which expired at the end of 1975, the Foreign Ministry reported.

The extension went into force retroactive to Jan. 1, 1976.

Extension of the agreement had been held up because of worsened relations between the two countries, caused by incidents such as the defection of a Soviet Air Force officer in a top-secret MIG25 fighter last September.

Spitting contest injury

BELFORT, France (UPI) — Claude Antoine, 38, an out of work taxi driver, suffered fractures to his skull, both legs and wrists in a spitting contest Sunday.

Trying to prove his boast that "I can spit you all into the ground," Antoine performed his expectation from the second floor balcony of a friend's house by taking a running start from a bedroom inside.

He was unable to stop at the balcony and fell to the street.
