Growing count

THE RISING SUN cast its warming light on the Fish and Game Department's Bill Gorgen as he listens intently for the faint crowing of roosters. Gorgen has been conducting census counts for the last month to gather information needed to establish limits for next pheasant season.

Counting courting ringnecks means keeping an alert ear

By JEFF SHER

Times News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — If you see a strange man standing still and quiet on the edge of your field just before dawn, don't run to grab your scatter gun.

It's just your local fish and game department conservation officer performing one of the most important and most enjoyable duties of his job, counting a game species. In this case the pheasant.

Try and keep your dog from barking and don't fire up your tractor right away because he's listening hard to hear and record the number of rooster crows within a half-mile of his position.

Every spring in late April and May pheasants contract their own brand of spring fever and start to pair off in their annual mating ritual.

And when the pheasants go into their unabashed act, the Fish and Game Department is there, like a chaperone at a high school dance, to record all the action.

F & G conservation officers don't just spend their time running down lawbreakers, they spend about half their time in the field counting the various game species, both birds and big game, at crucial times of the year.

Bill Gorgen, one of the conservation officers who gets up at four in the morning to pursue the elusive pheasants, said the F&G has eight routes throughout the Magic Valley which they will follow at least three times during the mating season to count the number of crowing roosters. This information is later plugged into a formula along with a pheasant sex-ratio count taken in the winter and a brood count taken in August to determine the number of birds which may be taken in the upcoming pheasant season.

Before the pheasants can pair off, though, they have to find each other. There are no pheasant nightclubs or cocktail parties, so the roosters bridge the communications gap by boldly calling out for their prospective mates. Every warm, still morning until all the birds are paired up the air is filled with the plaintive cries of roosters on the make. A rooster's call sounds like a hoarse version of the famous cartoon roadrunner's honk-honk.

According to Gorgen, the pheasants are most active in the period just before sunrise on warm mornings, and are most audible when the wind is blowing less than four miles per hour. On suitable mornings, Fish and Game conservation officers—who spend about half of their time doing counts of this kind on various species—begin their routes through the countryside about an hour before sunrise.

When an officer arrives at his first listening station, he stops his car and gets out. After waiting for a minute to let the noise from his arrival die away and to acclimate his ears, he sets his watch and then records every crow he hears for the next two minutes.

If a barking dog or some other disturbance upsets the pheasants enough to make them stop crowing, the count is started over.

The counts are made for two-minute periods to avoid counting the same bird more than once. Roosters crow about once every three minutes on the average.

After two minutes, it's on to the next station, where the process is repeated. Each route has 15-20 listening posts, about one mile apart, as pheasant crows can be heard for about a half-mile on a still morning.

If a wind comes up with the sun mid-way through the route and makes listening impossible, the whole morning's work must be scrapped and repeated under better conditions. The highest of the three counts obtained during the season is the one which is used in setting the limits for the coming season. Gorgen's highest count this spring came on May 20 and totaled 232 roosters for an average of 15.5 birds per station. The F&G assumes that the highest count is the one which was recorded at the peak of the mating season before many of the birds have actually met their mates and plighted their troth.

Court rejects cop death law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today struck down Louisiana's law making the death penalty mandatory for the killing of an on-duty policeman, but three dissenters did not view it as condemning all such statutes.

The unsigned majority opinion said the fate of Louisiana's mandatory law actually was decided last term when the state death penalty law was struck down, along with that of North Carolina, because juries were not given enough leeway to consider the circumstances of each offense.

The majority today said there are many circumstances that could ease the burden on the murderer of a policeman, serious though the crime is.

But Justice Harry Blackmun said he does not read today's opinion as deciding the constitutionality of a mandatory death sentence for a killer of a peace officer "for all cases and all times."

He said it is possible a state statute would pass constitutional muster if it required the jury to consider, during the guilt phase of the trial, both the aggravating and mitigating circumstances of the case.

Today's ruling said the Louisiana law under which Harry Roberts was sentenced to death for the fatal shooting of New Orleans officer Dennis McNerney during Mardi Gras in 1974 constitutes "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the Constitution.

The majority said it is bound by the court's 1976 opinion striking down Louisiana's capital punishment law, although a majority of the justices did not join it.

Quoting from that opinion, the court said today even narrowly drawn categories of possible offenses are rigid and "afford no meaningful opportunity for consideration of mitigating factors presented by the circumstances of the particular crime or by the attributes of the individual offender."

A footnote to the 1976 opinion noted that only an intentional killing by a person serving a life sentence is "a unique problem that may justify" a mandatory law.

In the Harry Roberts case, the court acknowledged that the fact the murder victim was a peace officer performing his regular duties may be regarded as an aggravating circumstance.

There is a special interest in affording protection to these public servants who regularly must risk their lives in order to guard the safety of other persons and property," the opinion said.

But it suggested there may exist mitigating circumstances such as the age of the offender, the absence of any prior conviction, the influence of drugs, alcohol or "extreme emotional disturbance."

The individual may even have reasonably believed he had a moral justification for his conduct, it said. The court recognized that "the life of a police officer is a dangerous one" by including statistics showing that 57 law enforcement officers were killed in line of duty in 1966, while 129 were killed in 1975.

Last term the court upheld the capital punishment laws of Georgia, Florida and Texas but struck down those in North Carolina and Louisiana.

'Gate cover terms set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Mitchell and H.R. Haldeman today were ordered to prison June 22 for their part in the Watergate cover-up.

U.S. District Judge John Sirica told the two top aides of former President Richard Nixon they had two weeks to clean up their personal affairs before beginning their sentences of 30 months to eight years for obstructing justice, conspiracy and perjury in America's worst political scandal.

In a brief four-minute hearing in the last legal chapter of the Watergate episode that drove Nixon from office, Sirica told Mitchell, the former attorney general, and Haldeman, once the White House chief of staff,

"The court will grant each of Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Haldeman until Wednesday, June 22 to put their personal affairs in order."

"On that date each of you will report to the U.S. marshal in the District of Columbia at 10 a.m. or if a specific institution has been designated you will report there by noon on June 22."

John Ehrlichman, Nixon's chief domestic affairs adviser, also was sentenced in the cover-up, but last summer voluntarily began serving his sentence while awaiting his Supreme Court appeal.

Haldeman has arranged with the U.S. Bureau of Prisons to serve his term at the minimum security federal prison camp at Lompoc, Calif., 100 miles north of his Los Angeles home. No decision has been made for Mitchell, who probably will go to the Alcatraz camp in San Francisco.

The Supreme Court has turned down appeals by Mitchell and Haldeman to review their convictions. The two have until June 17 — the fifth anniversary of the Watergate break-in — to make a final appeal to the high court, but the justices rarely change their minds.

Sitting across the defense table from each other, Mitchell and Haldeman were almost expressionless during the proceeding. Their lawyers made no special requests of the court.

Raft exemption sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has sponsored a bill exempting the white water rafting industry from regulation by the Coast Guard.

The legislation would allow commercial use of foreign-made boats by outfitters on navigable rivers.

Since navigable rivers are under the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard the small vessel inspection act applies to outfitters who float them.

"This act requires all boats meet certain provisions of the Jones Act which prohibits commercial use of foreign-made boats," McClure said.

McClure agreed with Norman Guth, chairman of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association, that the white water rafting industry should be exempt from the Coast Guard's domain.

Guth said the industry wants rivers used exclusively for recreational purposes excluded from the designation as navigable which would remove the outfitter from the requirements of the act and other Coast Guard regulations.

"By getting a non-navigability status on these rivers we would then again be able to buy workmen's compensation insurance from the state," Guth said.

Guth said the industry wants rivers used exclusively for recreational purposes excluded from the designation as navigable which would remove the outfitter from the requirements of the act and other Coast Guard regulations.

"By getting a non-navigability status on these rivers we would then again be able to buy workmen's compensation insurance from the state," Guth said.

"The Coast Guard themselves are recommending that many rivers be eliminated from the navigability status," Guth said. "We can't be sure that this will happen so I am planning to introduce legislation that will solve this problem," McClure said.

Guth and Rex Lanham, Emmett, chairman of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association, met last week with federal officials and the Idaho Congressional delegation to discuss a number of industry grievances.

Crude oil wellhead tax may survive House trip

© Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — President Carter's standby gasoline tax and rebates to purchasers of fuel-efficient cars are dead.

His proposal for a stiff penalty on gas-guzzlers is alive but not healthy. Only the multi-billion dollar wellhead tax on crude oil is in excellent condition.

That's the universal view among members of the House Ways and Means Committee, as the panel embarks today into a month of marathon sessions to rewrite tax portions of Carter's controversial energy package.

Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., predicted the plan to emerge from the committee by the end of June would be significantly different, but just as tough, as the one put forward by Carter.

While writing off any gas-tax hike or reward for buying energy-efficient cars as "almost impossible," Ullman was optimistic that other fundamental elements of the tax package would survive.

"I hope we can pass an even tougher" excise tax on new autos that fail to meet fuel economy standards, he said, and give some of the proceeds to the states, while putting the rest in a trust fund for energy research and development.

The committee also has a different idea than Carter on how revenue from the oil wellhead tax should be used. Instead of returning almost all of it to consumers, Ullman and others would like to funnel a few billion annually into a new mass transit-trust fund, an idea floated by Transportation Sec. Brock Adams and quickly renounced by the White House. The formula for rebating what's left to consumers also is likely to be altered.

The tax-writing Ways and Means has a pivotal role in shaping the nation's energy policy because Carter's program relies so heavily on the tax system to encourage conservation and heavily discourage reliance on oil and natural gas.

The importance of the committee's decisions is further magnified because, as an administration lobbyist said, "What is rejected by Ways and Means, for all practical purposes, is gone for good."

Supreme court won't air single house veto issue

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court today refused to decide the long-simmering issue of whether it is constitutional for a single house of Congress to disapprove actions by the executive branch.

In a brief order, the court affirmed lower court decisions that the lawsuit by former Attorney General Ramsey Clark was premature and that he had no personal stake in the issue.

Clark, a Democrat, had unsuccessfully for the Senate last year in New York, Clark's chief complaint was that a single house may veto the views. Another case will come "soon enough," the department said.

In the interim, Congress has changed the law under which its own members received recommended pay raises when neither house voted to reject them during the 60 days allowed for that action.

The department and Clark argued that the one-house veto impairs the separation of powers doctrine because the president cannot veto a congressional act of that sort and that the practice is constitutionally delegates power to a single house.

Clark told the justices the first one-house veto provision was attached to a law in 1932 and was rarely used for three decades thereafter.

At the grocery store, officers said, someone pushed a shopping cart into a large glass door, causing $200 damage.

Initial pullout planned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States will withdraw 6,000 ground troops from South Korea by the end of 1978, State Department officials said today.

The officials confirmed reports which first appeared in Tokyo that U.S. diplomats had told the Japanese government of the planned pullout. The Department of Defense says 33,500 U.S. ground troops are in South Korea, plus another 8,000 Air Force and Navy personnel.

The decision means President Carter has overruled objections from the South Korean government and U.S. Army commanders, and will move ahead on a program to eventually pull out all ground forces, but leave U.S. Air Force planes and American intelligence-gathering and supply units.

According to the administration plan, the withdrawal of the ground forces will be phased with a build-up and modernization of South Korean forces.

The principal U.S. ground force, the 2nd Division, is poised just south of the 38th Parallel and equipped with tactical nuclear weapons, in addition to its military role, it is intended as a political "tripwire" to bring massive U.S. retaliation in case of an attack by North Korea.

Katherine C. Cunningham

TWIN FALLS — Katherine C. Cunningham, 94, Twin Falls, died Sunday morning at a nursing home after a short illness.

Born July 25, 1882, at Waseca, Minn., she was married to George Cunningham. He died in 1952. Question . .

Morticians as a rule never advertise prices. Is there any reason why the cost of a funeral should not be publicized?

Answer . .

As far as we are concerned at the White Mortuary there is no secret about funeral service costs. Every service we have is plainly marked. People are always welcome to come to our mortuary and compare our prices and services just as they would do in an automobile showroom or in a furniture store.

By the nature of our business we are reluctant to be too farcical in our advertising. We have complete funeral services in all price ranges. We would like to discuss these things as frankly as you will let us.

Even in this day of women's liberation, it is an all-but-forgotten fact that 1,100 women served the nation as pilots during World War II, flying everything from P-51 fighters to the biggest bombers.

These were the WASPs — the Women's Airforce Service Pilots.

According to an article in the current issue of VIVA, the women's magazine, WASP ferry pilots flew airplanes out of the assembly lines at airports and ports of embarkation. They were also stationed at training fields across the country and were frequently required to test-fly airplanes just out of the repair shop. In addition, they were heavily involved as staff pilots in every training mission preparing males for combat duty.

In the article entitled, "These Daring Young Women in Their Flying Machines," author Sally Van Wagenen Kell recalls that "WASPs taught men how to strafe, drop bombs, lay blankets of smoke and track enemy aircraft... They taught gunners to shoot airplanes from turrets and tanks and from batteries of ground artillery... As evidence of the reality of their immediate involvement in war, 38 crashed to their deaths flying for their country."

Unlike the men they trained and flew with, however, the women pilots were denied military hospitalization and insurance, and their salaries were pegged a full 20 per cent lower than the men's.

After racking up more than 60 million miles in the air, the WASPs were disbanded on Dec. 20, 1944, when Congress — in a debate speckled with barbs about the alleged inability of women to fly as well as men — refused to grant the group full military status. Ironically, at about the same time, the Army was using women to test-fly the B-29 super bomber to reassure male pilots about the new craft's safety.

All this is more than an interesting footnote to history. Some 850 surviving WASPs have united in the Order of Flight, named after the character designed by Walt Disney as their mascot, to fight for the veterans rights and recognition so long denied them. Identical bills have been introduced in both houses of Congress by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., to prove these women veterans with the service benefits they would automatically have received had they been men.

At the time of their discharge, in 1944, Gen. H.H. "Hap" Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, told the WASPs, "We of the AAF are proud of you. We will never forget your debt to you."

After more than 32 years, it's a time that debt was paid.

Teaching depressed

"Once you could get a job in a classroom just because you were a warm body," says Harold J. Noah, dean of Teachers College at Columbia University. "No more."

Of the 190,000 would-be teachers graduating from college this spring, only 100,000 will be hired by school systems this fall, says an article in Money magazine.

What happens to those who don't find teaching jobs? "Nobody knows what they do," says William S. Graybeal, researcher for the National Education Association. "I know they get pretty discouraged."

Discouragement aside, young people continue to enroll in teaching programs because they believe it to be a rewarding career. Says Fred Crossland of the Ford Foundation: "You deal with people, with matters of the mind, you explore a discipline and you keep on learning."

Explains one university president: "Even if you land a job and lose it in six years because you are denied tenure, you've had a few good years."

Snooze after study

Sleep helps us remember only when sleep follows a period of study, says Psychology Today. It doesn't seem to make much difference whether a person sleeps immediately after learning or waits a few hours before going to sleep. What IS important is the sleep.

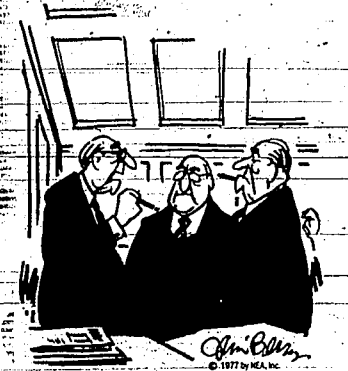

In fact, a short nap before studying can seriously increase forgetting, according to Bruce Ekstrand of the University of Colorado.

Says Ekstrand: "Everyday examples of this are common; a person is awakened by a telephone in the middle of the night, talks for a while, goes back to sleep, and remembers nothing of the call the next morning."

"Don't sleep before you study unless you allow yourself a period of time of being awake before you start studying seriously," concludes Ekstrand. "And allow for an undisturbed period of sleep."

Berry's World

Carter optimistic about Mid-East

By MONROE W. KARMIN

© Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON—It wasn't so much what President Carter said as the way he said it that gives rise to two speculations:

(1) Major steps may be afoot, involving Israel and the Palestinians, that could bring progress in the negotiations for a Middle East settlement.
(2) Left-wing Democrats, personified by Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, find better chum out in the cold.

At his press conference following his first trip abroad, the President appeared relaxed, confident and buoyed by what he called a "renewed spirit of hope and confidence" achieved at his economic summit meeting with the leaders of the world's seven major industrialized democracies.

There was a "quiet sense," Carter said, among the heads of state that "we have justified reasons" for being confident in "our ideological competition" with Communist and socialist countries.

In addition to that general optimistic tone, the President communicated what might be described as a "quiet sense" to borrow his phrase, that important moves may be in the making in the Middle East.

As he has before, Carter affirmed his support for a "special relationship" between the United States and Israel and said again that he felt the Palestinians were entitled to a "homeland."

This time, however, he ventured a bit further than his previous statements on the subject.

"We have a long way to go, but I do believe there's a chance the Palestinians might make moves to recognize the right of Israel to exist," he declared. "That would remove obstacles."

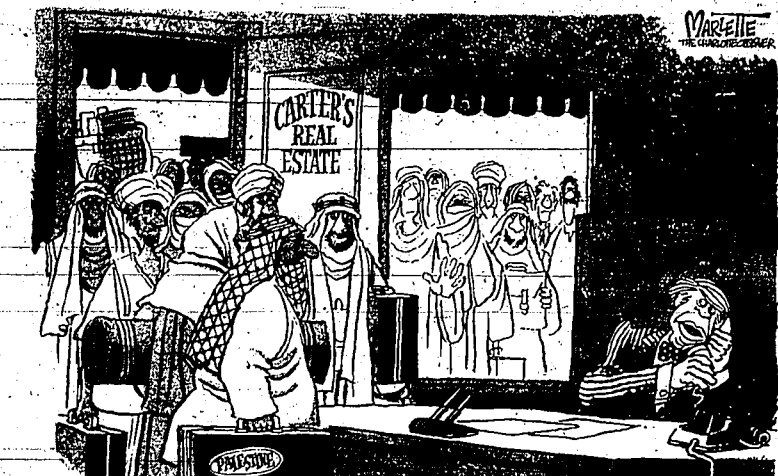

These remarks tend to add credibility to reports earlier this week from abroad that Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, might be willing to recognize the state of Israel, a radio switch in PLO policy.

In return for a Palestinian homeland on the West Bank of the Jordan river and the Gaza strip.

During the summit trip, Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, would only say "not at this stage" when questioned about the reports of Middle East movement.

The President yesterday responded in positive, rather than negative terms, though he attacked the proviso that total Middle East peace remains "very much in doubt."

The President also used his press conference to send a message to the left wing of his party. Questioned about McGovern's scathing denunciation of his economic policies as "McGovern's words, attempting to 'balance the federal budget on the backs of the poor, the hungry and the jobless,'" Carter sought to isolate the senator from the rest of his party.

Actually, the question was phrased as "Sen. McGovern and a number of liberal Democrats... The President responded by saying 'I would not refer to Sen. McGovern as a number of liberal Democrats,' and then hanged home his point."

"I'm grateful that the criticism was confined to (coming from) one person," the President said, meaning that it came from McGovern alone. And then, he added, "I think one of the characteristics of liberals is that they are difficult to please."

The implication was clear: Carter is getting tired of trying to please the liberals, or those personified by McGovern, and, if they want to achieve a working relationship, they had better start trying to please him.

In his seventh nationally televised press conference, and in chatting with reporters afterward, Carter also said:

"He thinks Richard Nixon violated the law during Watergate, a statement he made for the first time. David Frost's television interviews with Nixon, he commented, 'didn't change my opinion about President Nixon. I think he did violate the laws. I think he was guilty of impeachable offenses."

Despite the fact that AFL-CIO leader George Meany disapproves of many of his action, his "Doesn't mean we have any personal disruption of our communication."

He approves of Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's decision to seek indictments against FBI officials who allegedly broke the law in domestic surveillance cases.

"Style" is an important part of his Presidency. In the sense that he's trying to restore confidence in the Presidency "by frequent news conferences... by access to me, in the Oval Office... and (by his) travel around the country. I think that is the style part."

Future limits on coal burning told

By WALTER SULLIVAN

N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — A new study published in the air of sufficient carbon dioxide to cause major climate changes. It may ultimately be necessary to restrict the burning of coal and other fossil fuels, according to Dr. William D. Nordhaus of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

The study limits the dependence on coal that, under present policy, is to replace rapid expansion of nuclear energy.

Nordhaus, who is on leave from his post as professor of economics at Yale University, told this week's spring meeting of the American Geophysical Union in Washington, that he early in the next century, the burning of coal, oil and gas might have to be curtailed by taxation or rationing.

He said he was speaking as an individual and not present a government policy. He has been investigating the climate and economic implications of "carbon dioxide" accumulation, having also worked on the problem at the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis near Vienna.

He cited estimates that if the trend toward heavy use of fossil fuels continued, by early in the next century the level of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere will have doubled. This, it has been proposed, could make the worldwide climate warmer than at any time in the last 100,000 years.

Nordhaus' argument was based in part on calculations by Dr. Wallace S. Broecker of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, who also presented a report. Each ton of coal or other fossil fuel burned, he said, produces three tons of carbon dioxide.

In the atmosphere that gas acts much like the glass of a greenhouse. It readily permits the passage of sunlight, warming the earth, but it inhibits the escape of heat into space as infrared radiation.

While carbon dioxide is removed from the atmosphere by absorption into the oceans and incorporation into trees and other plants, these processes have been unable to keep pace with the addition of the gas from smokestacks, automobile exhaust and other sources.

If, as now seems likely, the development of nuclear energy is slowed in favor of heavier coal consumption, a more rapid rise in atmospheric carbon dioxide must be expected. While there is still much uncertainty as to how much of an increase could occur without major influences on climate, Nordhaus proposed that within 40 years severe restraints might become necessary.

He cited Broecker's estimate that by 1985 to 1990, there will have been a 20 per cent increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide, leading to a mean global warming of about one degree Fahrenheit. This would still be within the range of naturally occurring changes over the last 100,000 years, Nordhaus said.

In that period, which included the last ice age, the fluctuations remained within 10 degrees.

GOP's Thursday night show flops

By RAYMOND COFFEY

© Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — In the view of former California Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan there is no real energy crisis in the first place — "We're not running out of anything except confidence in ourselves." There's enough oil and gas in the world to last more than 100 years.

But then again, the view of Republican Sen. John Danforth of Missouri, Democratic "President Carter, to his credit, has pointed out the serious nature of this crisis to the American people" who have indeed "squandered our resources."

Both these views were part of the Republican Party's prime time television answer this week to Carter's energy program.

And if the GOP is still in any way baffled about why it has sunk to its presently pathetic condition — only 12 of 50 governors, 28 of 100 senators, 145 of 435 House members — it might, for a start, take another look at its own TV show.

For months now the Republicans have been fretting about all the free TV time the President, commands, most notably his two-hour speeches in one week on the energy program.

So when NBC offered some reply time, the GOP put in weeks preparing the show presented Thursday night, trying to make it professional, including it up with what TV folks call "production values" and ordinary people call gimmicks, going out of the way to make it anything but just another Republican bigwig sitting behind a desk and delivering a speech to people's living rooms.

What they got for all their effort and expense must have been almost enough to make the White House with the networks would give the Republicans a whole season of prime time. The show was shallow, empty, confusing, unspecific and thoroughly forgettable.

First there was a lot of fakey business about interviewing motorists concerning Carter's proposals for a gasoline tax increase — which call for a maximum increase of five cents a gallon a year, but not for a couple of years yet, not at all if national gasoline consumption is cut, and with all the extra revenue to be returned to the consumers.

Somewhere in the GOP show, this got translated with absurd inaccuracy into a 57-cents a gallon tax hike and, of course all the motorists thought it was "outrageous," "crazy" and "stinks."

As for Carter's call to conserve energy by imposing a tax on big "gas guzzler" cars, one of the GOP's interviewees offered this blindingly wise and touchingly altruistic counter-proposal: "If you can afford to drive 'em, drive 'em."

The approach was stunning — stunningly simple-minded — And simple-mindedness about the nation's energy situation is something seemingly already in heavy surplus. Only this week a Gallup poll found that about half the people in this country still do not realize, despite all the publicity about the Arabs over the past four years, that the U.S. must import oil to meet its energy needs.

Then there was former Tennessee Sen. William Brock who served as host for the show. Introduced the guest stars and summed up the GOP "alternative" to Carter's energy program, Brock lost in his run for re-election last year and, losing an election being lately almost the ultimate test of an authentic Republican, is now

GOP National Chairman.

There, too, he said, gravely, "three key elements to our alternative energy program." He then proceeded to list them as "first conservation... second production... third research and technology."

Those are, in fact, three of the stated and crucial elements in Carter's own energy program and except for opposing "high taxes," Brock's presentation was not much different from, but very much vaguer than, Carter's.

"Ladies and gentlemen! Once again the one and only, the captivating Mr. ..."

Irate Amin issues threat against British

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — President Idi Amin, charging Uganda has been barred from this week's Commonwealth conference in London, has threatened to do "something serious" to the British.

Amin's warning immediately raised fears for the safety of the 200 British citizens — mainly missionaries and businessmen — remaining in the landlocked east African country.

After threatening for several months to lead a 250-strong Ugandan delegation to the meeting, personally, Amin apparently ended his cat and mouse game with the British government Sunday and said neither he nor a Ugandan delegation would attend.

He said in a Radio Uganda broadcast that a letter from British Prime Minister James Callaghan had made it clear Uganda was not welcome in London, but Amin promised to attend the 1978 commonwealth conference.

Amin attacked Britain for what he called "hatred of revolutionary countries like Uganda" and said "Britain wants those leaders who are only puppets to attend the conference."

"There is something serious I may do to the British," he said.

Amin did not specify what actions he might take, but diplomatic sources feared he might again turn his attention to those British citizens still living in Uganda.

Repeatedly in the last few years, when relations with London soured, Amin held these British virtual hostages, accusing them of being spies and threatened to take drastic measures against them.

Bonfires brighten queen's jubilee

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth opens the most important week of her Silver Jubilee year tonight by summoning her people to celebrate a day of thanksgiving in a form of commemoration as old as the nation — a chain of bonfires.

The Queen will light a small hill of brushwood near Windsor Castle and watchers at more than 100 other beacons — many of them on the same sites that rallied Britons against the Spanish Armada in 1588 — will ignite theirs in turn.

The flames burning in eight chains radiating from Windsor and covering 10 mountain tops and 18 offshore islands will serve as a "reminder" that Tuesday has been declared a national Silver Jubilee holiday so the country can give thanks for the 25 years of her reign.

A torch lit at Windsor will be flown to Australia to start a chain of hundreds of bonfires there. When the Dover beacons burst into flame a rocket will be fired and Frenchmen on the cliffs of Calais will light a bonfire of friendship.

The Queen will lead the nation in its thanksgiving services Tuesday, traveling from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral in the most colorful procession in the capital since her own coronation.

She will ride with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, in the golden state coach, drawn by eight matched white horses with an escort of Household Cavalry and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The entire royal family will take part with the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, riding behind the royal coach on horseback and in the splendid dress uniform of an officer of the Welsh Guards.

Officials estimate several million tourists are in or near London and massive crowds are expected, adding to the

The uniformed man who wears his best ever ready to combat lurking danger, is an officer of the city, working for you. All through the stillness of the night when homes are dark and stealth is on the prowl, your watchful Policemen are going his rounds. Smiling, rosy-cheeked, a mountain of security clad in blue, he shepherds the little children across the street. He is their laughing pal, on occasion — and who of us would have it any other way? So let's be considerate and really warm-hearted toward our fine officers. The Policemen — please remember — are one of our most dependable citizens!

Island republic scene of leftist coup

Coup rocks island

VICTORIA, Seychelles (UPI) — Prime Minister France Albert Rene overthrew the flamboyant president of this island nation, strung out across several hundred miles of the Indian Ocean.

Rene claimed that under the government of President James Mancham, the islands were falling under the influence of "capitalists and foreign powers." He immediately proclaimed a new government of the people.

Mancham, in London to attend the Commonwealth conference, immediately denounced the takeover as a Soviet maneuver to extend its control over the Indian Ocean.

The bearded, 37-year-old Mancham blamed Soviet subversion, not his playboy style of life for the "Judas-like coup" by the MARXIST-oriented Rene. He warned he would not accept the coup as a fait accompli.

"It is no big heroic deed to take over the Seychelles," he said. "Twenty-five people with sticks could seize control."

The takeover followed sporadic shooting in this tiny seaport capital, home for scores of tycoon's yachts, in which two policemen reportedly were killed and several others wounded.

Rene, founder of the Seychelles' Peoples' United party, accused Mancham of being more interested in beautiful women than government and of planning to become "president for life."

Mancham — "Jimmy" to the islanders — claimed the population, supported and admired his lifestyle.

The Seychelles, which became independent of Britain last June, are world renowned for beautiful beaches, deep sea fishing and sailing. Tourism has been a main industry.

'Six-Day War' anniversary marked

By United Press International

The Arabs Sunday marked the 10th anniversary of the outbreak of the Six Day War with a call for renewed preparations for another Middle East conflict. In Israel, the anniversary of the Jewish state's greatest military triumph passed quietly.

The anniversary came at a particularly tense time in Arab-Israeli relations due to the victory last month of the right-wing Likud bloc in Israeli national elections. The Likud, led by Menachem Begin, has taken a hardline position on returning occupied Arab lands.

On June 5, 1967 Israel attacked the Arabs on three fronts and, in the six days that followed, captured the Sinai Peninsula from Egypt, the Golan Heights from Syria and the West Bank from Jordan.

But even as the Arabs bitterly remembered their losses, they recalled with pride their improved performance in the 1973 October war.

"If we remember June

(1967) with sadness and pain, we remember October with pride," declared the Abu Dhabi newspaper Al Ithad Sunday.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, touring the Suez Canal Zone, said he will give peace efforts every chance of success before opting for war.

JAMES MANCHAM
... sees Red plot

Rene, a longtime political foe of Mancham's who finished runner-up to the ousted president in every legislative contest, indicated a major swing to the left in his initial address to the nation.

He promised to free the people of "capitalist and foreign countries" and ordered the immediate deportation of Irish-born Chief Justice A.J. O'Brien and several senior British officers running the police force.

He suspended the constitution and the national assembly and said a committee to organize new elections will be set up.

Rene also is expected to move against the American satellite tracking station and its 120 employees, perched high above Victoria on this main island of Mahe.

Ex-premier leads vote

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Former Premier Bulent Ecevit's party today took a commanding lead over backers of conservative incumbent Suleyman Demirel in legislative elections and may have won enough seats to install Turkey's first left-wing majority government.

With 81.5 per cent of Sunday's vote counted, unofficial returns showed Ecevit had captured 180 seats in the 450-member National Assembly, compared to 148 seats for the right-wing Premier Demirel's Justice Party. Splitter parties accounted for an additional 39 seats.

Musical 'Annie' dominates Tony Awards

NEW YORK (UPI) — The musical "Annie" dominated the Tony Awards Sunday night, but the fact 10 other shows shared in the 19 awards was an indication of the high quality of the 1976-77 Broadway season.

"Annie" won awards for best musical, best actress in a musical (Dorothy Loudon), best book (Thomas Meehan), best score (Charles Strouse and Martin Charnin), best scenic design (David Mitchell), and best choreography (Peter Genearo).

And it shared the best costume design award (Theofil V. Aldridge) with "The Cherry Orchard" (Santo Laquadio).

"The Show Box" Michael Cristofer's Pulitzer Prize-winning play about dying, got the best play award and its director, Gordon Davidson, was voted best director of a play.

Julie Harris, who was not present, won her fifth best actress Tony for "The Belle of Amherst" while Al Pacino was named best actor for David Rabe's "The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel."

Barry Manilow's "New York City-Rhythm," Diana Ross' "Somebody," and a dozen others.

Theme of the 31st annual Tony Awards — presented by the American Theater Wing and organized by the League of New York Theaters — was "Survival."

The big winner, "Annie," itself is a symbol of "Survival." It was conceived nearly 5 1/2 years ago, when lyricist-director Martin Charnin — lead-through-a-comic strip collection of "Little Orphan Annie."

It took four years to reach the stage, at the Goodspeed Opera House at East Haddam, Conn., and even then, few thought it had a chance for Broadway.

And there was, for all the entertainment you could wish: Lily Tomlin doing her waitress number, 13-year-old Andrea McArdle belting out "Tomorrow" from "Annie," and the six young girls from the same show singing and dancing "You're Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile," the cast of "Happy Feet" (with star Christopher Lloyd on crutches) singing the Brecht-Weill "The Bilbao Song."

'Fancy Tom' makes it to the top

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Tom Winec wears a 10-carat diamond ring and fancy clothes and runs a nightclub that has its own prayer room. It's a long way from the two-room shack in the Mississippi Delta where he was brought up.

"I thought I would pick cotton all my life. I'll never have to pick cotton again," said Winec, 66, now a respected night-spot owner, dubbed "Fancy Tom" by his associates in this Mississippi River city.

Something just told me to start selling beer and Cokes. I've been doing it ever since," said Winec.

During a more than 30-year stay at the Blue Room before it was closed because of urban renewal, Winec hosted what he called "every big band of the time."

"When I had Louis Armstrong in my place it was packed. We had both blacks and whites. After a while, the blacks and whites were dancing on the same floor together," he said. "This was unheard of at that time. I made so much money that afterwards it took me all night to count it."

Vicksburg some of the entertainment gems of the time, including Charles. Fats Domino, Dinah Washington, Lionel Hampton, B.B. King, Little Milton.

"I had them all in. I was the first man to bring the big bands into the area," he said.

Winec moved his nightclub to a new location in 1972 and started the Barrel Club. Before he opened that establishment, he said a unique idea hit him.

"I was working on the bar, getting it ready when something came over me and told me to put a prayer room in it," said Winec, who has missed but two Sunday church services in 19 years. "So I started on the prayer room before I even got finished."

The prayer room, which has stained glass windows, biblical statues and a rosary, has been one of the popular attractions at Winec's club. "People from all around come to look at my prayer room. They can't get over it being in a nightclub," he said. "I pray every day. So I figured, why not have a prayer room where I work."

Out of sight — out of mind

EXETER, N.H. (UPI) — The head of a national organization fighting the use of children in pornography says President and Mrs. Carter refused to discuss the subject because "they don't want to know" about it.

Dr. Judianne Densen-Gerber told local officials at a seminar on child abuse over the weekend, "I am convinced they won't see me because they don't want to know."

"You just don't know what this is all about until you see it," said Dr. Densen-Gerber, president of the Society for the Prevention of Child Pornography.

To illustrate her concern over the prevalence of child pornography, she noted that she recently bought $18 worth of magazines in an Exeter store which featured articles on such things as a popular 6-year-old pornography movie star.

"Here you can get this stuff in the same place you buy birthday cards," she said.

American shot

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — An American was shot to death by his neighbor in suburban, Earldale, Valley Sunday in an argument over a lawnmower interfering with television reception, police said.

"Here you can get this stuff in the same place you buy birthday cards," she said.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I never miss your column and believe that more people read Dear Abby than any other part of the paper.

Here is a thorny question I have never known you to comment on.

Ever. Are the millions of unmarried, widowed and divorced people supposed to do without it?

We are taught to share everything else, so what is so wrong with sharing love with some needy person?

And can you separate love from sex?

M. H.

DEAR M. H.: Sex for sex's sake means anyone will do. Love is selective. Only a certain somebody can fill a need for love.

The need for "sex" rarely leads to love, but the need for "love" usually leads to sex. Promiscuous love? Sil Promiscuous sex? No!

Loveless sex a no-no

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago I was depressed for a period of time, and since I considered myself an enlightened person, I went to a private psychiatrist. He assured me that there was nothing seriously wrong, that I didn't need prolonged treatment, and after a few more appointments, he dismissed me. That was the sun and total of my "psychiatric treatment."

A year ago I applied for a position. I was asked, "Have you ever had psychiatric treatment?" Seeing no reason not to tell the truth, I mentioned my experience.

In case you don't know this, there are many government positions (and private ones) that cannot be held by anyone with a "history" of psychiatric treatment.

Abby, a person can be nuttier than a pecan plantation, but if he's never been to a psychiatrist, he's considered mentally stable.

I'd appreciate your comments.

STABLE BUT LABELED

DEAR LABELED: There are still in existence a number of laws, rules, regulations, traditions and precedents that are unjust, archaic, senseless and plain idiotic.

If a single session (or a hundred) with a psychiatrist makes one a "mental case," then all psychoanalysts are "mental cases," because in order to become a psychoanalyst one must himself be psychoanalyzed. Steering clear of a psychiatrist's office does not necessarily affirm one's good mental health. The person who boasts that he's never been to a psychiatrist can be a lot sicker than those who have.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EAGER TO SUCCEED: Sorry, but you will never accomplish what you have in mind if you continue to wait until you "find the time." No one ever found time for anything. He made it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 59700, L.A., Calif. 90063. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Now that summer is here I would like to get a good tan. I always look better tanned than being white as a sheet. But I'm worried about causing my skin to look old and wrinkled. I've read that the sun ages your skin, but how can I get a sun tan without aging my skin? Also I've heard that too much sun can cause skin cancer. Is that true?

I'm sure that there are lots of other readers who want to have fun in the sun without paying for it later. Any suggestions?

Incidentally I'm blonde and tend to burn easily rather than tan so that makes it doubly difficult for me.

DEAR READER: You are right to be concerned. Undoubtedly nearly every beautiful tan is skin damage. Ultraviolet radiation in the sunshine is a perfect example of a substance that is essential to our health and life but too much can be harmful. The UV radiation is necessary for the energy that enable plant life and it stimulates the formation of vitamin D in our skin.

The UV radiation damages the process essential to maintaining the elastic fibers in the skin. This leads to wrinkling of the skin associated with aging. One of the best proofs of the effects of the sun on your skin is to look at a skin area protected from the weather of an individual who has a wrinkled and weather beaten face. The protected skin may look youthful and unwrinkled.

It is also true that solar radiation causes skin cancer. That is why most skin cancers are on the face and areas where the skin is exposed to sunlight. Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer. Fortunately most of them can be completely cured if they are diagnosed and treated early. But new crops of skin cancer tend to recur, requiring repeated treatments to rid the skin of new cancers. The best treatment is prevention. To give you more information on skin cancer, those brown spots caused by the sun and aging of the skin I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10: Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Sports and Cancer. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

I am sorry to say there is no way you can get a good tan without damaging your skin. This is particularly true for blonde people like you.

Realizing that people will get a tan and want to enjoy the outdoors I can only suggest ways to minimize the damage. The first rule is not to expose your skin for more than 15 minutes a day. Never stay out so long that the skin gets pink. That early pink flush is not the real tan. That comes a few days later and reaches its peak about three weeks after exposure. It is produced by the increased formation of pigment in the deep layers of the skin. This pigment helps to protect the skin from sun damage.

Remember that your face is the area that is most important to protect. If you lie on your back 15 minutes and then on your stomach 15 minutes part of your face will get more than 15 minutes of exposure. I think you should use a sun screen on your face. Increase your time in the sun about five minutes a day—no more.

Fair people like you really need to use a sun screen all year around. I have discussed the various sun screens in The Health Letter I am sending you.

Dress rehearsal

PAIRED off to sing "How About You?", Rich Durrington, left, Kim Wacker, Larry Replogle and Jackie Hovey rehearse in costume for the opening night of Celebration '77. The show, which includes dinner, will be produced by Magic Valley Little Theatre Friday and Saturday nights and again June 17 and 18 at the Elks Lodge in Twin Falls. The show is an annual presentation of the theater group first performed in 1973.

Little Theatre to open Friday

TWIN FALLS—It is time once again for Magic Valley Little Theatre's annual gala production of Celebration '77, a musical revue including hit songs, Broadway tunes and dance.

After a dinner at the Elks Lodge, Twin Falls audiences can hear such popular tunes as Celebrate, Celebrate; Edelweiss; Singing in the Rain; Second Hand Rose; Anything You Can Do, and others, performed by the Little Theatre cast.

The show opens this Friday and Saturday at the Elks Lodge in Twin Falls with dinner served at 7 o'clock and show time at 8:15. The group will perform two more shows June 17 and 18 at the same time and place.

Beverly Hackney, local dance instructor, is choreographing the many musical numbers to be performed by the cast.

Janet Cooke directs and participates along with Marilyn Hankins, Jackie Hovey, Debbie Johnson, Pat Kleinkopf, Kim Wacker, Gary Dalton, Art Frantz, Lavear Thornock Jr., Rich Durrington, Dick Humphrey and Larry Replogle.

Decked out in formal attire, the group will perform a medley of Broadway tunes, a medley of songs about the rain and numerous single songs from Broadway musicals and pop charts.

Janet Brackett, pianist; Ron Brackett, bass, and Dave Willis, percussion, will accompany the performers.

Tickets to the dinner theater production can be reserved by calling 733-4040. Admission of $10 includes dinner at the Elks Lodge and the performance at 8:15.

The celebrations are an annual presentation of Magic Valley Little Theatre.

Woman handler

HANDLING a woman can be tricky business. Here, as Debbie Johnson dances, Dick Humphrey expounds his theory about how it is done as he sings "How to Handle a Woman." The number is part of Magic Valley Little Theatre's Celebration '77, which opens at the Elks Lodge June 10, 11, 17 and 18. The dinner theater presentation begins at 7 p.m. each day with dinner and the show starts at 8:15.

Singer, accompanist

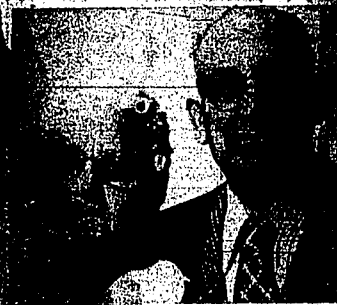

ACCOMPANIED by Lavear Thornock Jr., Pat Kleinkopf sings her rendition of "Can't Help Lovin' That Man of Mine" from the musical "Porgy and Bess." The two are part of Magic Valley Little Theatre's Celebration '77 which will open June 10 and 11 and June 17 and 18 at the Elks Lodge in Twin Falls. The dinner theater presentation includes a medley of famous Broadway tunes and a rain medley. Dinner at the Elks Lodge is 7 p.m. and show time is 8:15.

New constitution sets up Brezhnev for presidency

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union published its new "Brezhnev" constitution Saturday to replace the 46-year-old document drafted by late dictator Josef Stalin and giving party leader Leonid Brezhnev a stepping-stone to the presidency.

Western diplomats and Soviet dissidents alike said that despite some changes in wording, the new constitution would have little change on day-to-day life for Russians.

Dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov said the new constitution, published Saturday in the nation's press, "reflects the present state of affairs and makes no changes."

"We have an unshakable society and the constitution confirms that," Sakharov said. Western diplomatic analysts noted little new in the draft, which is a revision of the 1936 charter ordered by Stalin.

"I don't think the flavor of life will be much affected," one diplomat said. "A Stalin constitution is now replaced by a Brezhnev constitution."

The draft appears to further pave the way for Brezhnev to accede to the presidency, replacing Nikolai V. Podgorny who was ousted from the party's ruling Politburo last month.

It creates the post of first deputy president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, suggesting that some of the more mundane duties of the presidency could be transferred to the new post.

But the draft made no fundamental changes in the way the Soviet Union is ruled.

The constitution expands on some civil rights, giving citizens the right to make suggestions and complaints as well as seek court action against officials who act illegally.

It also introduces tough wording about individual responsibility, saying that rights and freedoms cannot be "harmful to the interests of society and the state."

Sakharov, who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his civil rights work, said he felt the articles about citizens duties will make it easier for authorities to apply the document against dissenters.

"The use of rights in practice will be just the same. The practice is expressed in a more definite way. The phrase 'you don't observe the constitution' may be used more frequently," he said.

Diplomats are studying key sections to see if other changes could be in the offing. They noted that the wording about peasants' private garden plots had been tightened, but it was not clear if government policy would be changed.

The document will be submitted for approval to the Soviet parliament in October.

MUSCOVITES gather around a sidewalk newspaper stand Saturday after publication of a new Soviet constitution. The constitution creates the new post of vice president, which will free the president of routine tasks and thus allow General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev to be both chief of state and party leader. (UPI)

Western drought moves eastward

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The western states' drought is deepening and moving eastward, government scientists reported Friday.

"The area of hydrologic drought appears to have deepened and expanded eastward at least temporarily," said Carroll Saboe, a U.S. Geological Survey hydrologist.

The scientist said stream flows in May averaged well below normal in about 60 per cent of the U.S. from Maine to California, with the driest May on record for index streams in nine states.

Most of Utah, Colorado and Idaho had the lowest May flows in 60-70 years, scientists reported.

"Although some coastal areas of the Pacific Northwest were reporting their first near-normal flows in seven months, significant declines in stream-flow to well below normal levels were reported in parts of Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey," Saboe said.

The May flow of the nation's "Big Five Rivers"—the Mississippi, St. Lawrence, Columbia, Ohio and Missouri—was about 35 per cent below normal, Saboe reported. In the East, the survey reported streamflows declined in three major rivers—the Susquehanna, Potomac and James.

Groundwater levels also declined throughout Maryland and Delaware and were in the below-normal range, the survey said.

In the West, there was more rain, but little improvement in water flow.

Northern Utah, for example, had near record-high precipitation but the rainfall was "mostly absorbed by the soil and streamflows averaged about 80 per cent below normal throughout much of the state," the survey said.

Weber River at Oakley, Utah, had its lowest May flow in 73 years of record and Beaver River near Beaver, Utah, the lowest in 63 years," the survey reported.

In California, record monthly flows helped ease water use and produced some inflow to reservoirs.

Runoff at index stations in Southern California was above normal but in Northern California the contents of major reservoirs remained about 60 per cent below normal and runoff from the Sierra Nevada was about 85 per cent below normal.

New calf not twin

NEW PLYMOUTH, Idaho (UPI) — A guernsey cow belonging to the Al Brown family has given birth to a second calf in less than three months and a veterinarian says it isn't a twin of the first.

Dr. W. Wayne Ashton, Payette, the Browns' veterinarian, said he had heard of such a thing before but that it is a rare occurrence. He said he does not believe the heifer is a twin of the one delivered in March but the product of a second, fertilized egg.

Such unusual births, he said, are called "superfetation."

Stock aid plan set

BOISE (UPI) — The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration will make a cattle transportation program available to residents of Washington County, Gov. John V. Evans said Thursday.

The program is handled by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for the F.D.A.A. The cattle transportation program will provide up to two thirds of the funds necessary for transporting cattle to areas where forage conditions are adequate.

Washington is the first Idaho county that has received a cattle transportation authorization, the governor said. Another request is being sent in for Lincoln County.

Hormone residues in livers rising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There's been a sharp and so far unexplained increase in the number of illegal residues of the controversial hormone DES in beef livers, the Agriculture Department says.

The synthetic hormone, DES, has been used to cattle for much longer because it promotes faster, cheaper growth and reduces the cost of beef production. Federal law prohibits any residues of the chemical in meat because it has been shown to cause cancer when fed in large doses to laboratory animals.

Agriculture officials said in a report they found six DES residue cases in cattle livers between January and March of 1977. A spokesman said there had been a total of 500 tests for DES.

This is a violation rate of 1.2 per cent, twice the 0.6 per cent rate for all of 1976. Other violation rates were 1.07 per cent for 1975 and 0.3 per cent for 1974.

Officials said they did not know what caused the sharp increase in the first quarter of this year. One spokesman said the department was "concerned" and would monitor the situation closely.

The Food and Drug Administration is preparing rules to ban DES from livestock feed, arguing that even though it would be eliminated naturally if used in accordance with directions, low-level trace residues, kept appearing in Agriculture Department samplings.

Agriculture officials say if a violation is found, the farmer "must" pretest future animals before they can be sold as food.

Valley men gain spud panel posts

SAN FRANCISCO — Two Menai Valley men have been named to the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato Committee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Edward F. Hillis, Rupert, was named to the District 3 spud growers and William C. Davis, Kithley, for the District 3 seed for handlers.

Other producers appointed include: District 1 — Earl Beck and Don Smith, both Rexburg; District 2 — Lenard Schneider, Aberdeen, and L. Mechem, Blackfoot.

District 3 — Ira R. Ure Jr., Nampa, Ore., alternate; District 4 — handlers appointed include: District 1 — J. — Farren, L. — Idaho Falls, and District 2 — Hurley, Rigby.

District 3 — Hal Cramer and Howard L. Phillips, both Blackfoot. District 3 — Jon Watson.

Beef vote sign up starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Registration opens today for a referendum which will decide whether cattlemen want to approve a controversial check-off program to raise an estimated $20 million to $30 million annually in federal money for beef promotion, advertising and research.

Backers of the plan, including the Beef Development Task force which pushed legislation authorizing the check-off through Congress last year, are appealing for heavy registration and a big vote.

"The industry's future is in your hands, vote 'yes' for a more profitable future in the beef industry," the American National Cattlemen's Association says.

The check-off program and the promotion and research it will finance will "solve" our problems and strengthen our markets," a Beef Development Taskforce campaign flyer adds.

Critics, including officials of the National Farmers Union, are also calling for a big turnout of farmer voters. An NFU spokesman said his organization was campaigning against the check-off program because, among other things, millions of dollars spent of beef advertising and promotion might provide little help for cattle producers.

The records show that consumers tend to spend a steady percentage of their disposable income for red meat. This means that economic conditions like per capita income and employment have more to do with red meat sales than any promotion programs," said Robert Mullins, an NFU staff aide.

"Advertising isn't really going to change the amount people eat. And if it increases sales of beef, it would only be at the expense of other farm products like pork," Mullins added.

Registration for the referendum will continue through June 16. Anyone who owned even a single beef or dairy cow in 1976 can register in person or by mail at county offices of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Voting will take place from July 5 through July 15. To win adoption of the check-off program, at least 50 per cent of those who register must follow up by casting ballots. And two-thirds of those who vote must favor the program.

If the plan is adopted, all cattle sold would be subject to a deduction of three-tenths of one per cent. Any producer who objected to the contribution could request a refund, although critics like the Farmers Union complain the refund procedures are complicated and unlikely to be used by many small producers.

"Even if the small producer wants his money back, it's so complicated he probably wouldn't bother in most cases," Mullins said. "As a practical matter, he just won't take the time."

If the check-off program is adopted, the producer money would be spent through a 60 member Beef Board whose members would be nominated by cattle industry organizations and appointed by the agriculture secretary.

The board would have authority after three years, if the secretary agreed, to raise the check-off level to half of one per cent without any new farmer referendum.

Mullins said an estimated 1.6 million to 2 million persons may be eligible to vote in next year's referendum. How many actually will register is uncertain, although one pro-check-off leader estimated recently that only about 200,000 persons may sign up for the balloting.

Campaigning pro and con has been heavy. Backers of the check-off program say they have nearly 90 producer organizations on their side and some state units of the American Farm Bureau Federation have also been active. NFU officials, although they voice skepticism about the amount of help farmers can get for their cattle profits by chipping into a multi-million dollar advertising fund, said they were planning to do some newspaper and radio advertising themselves in some areas in the anti-check-off campaign.

Gas industry shows solar heat interest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A gas industry study says gas utilities could lead the way toward widespread use of solar energy by installing and maintaining home solar units.

The American Gas Association report said there is intense interest in solar energy among gas companies.

It said possibilities for the homeowner range from rooftop solar collectors for water heating and limited air conditioning, to full systems covering several of the home's energy needs.

"The gas utility could be the innovative catalyst to bridge the gap that now exists between known technology and commercial acceptance," said one report prepared by a consulting firm.

Depending on legal questions and regulatory limits, it said, suggestions for gas utilities include:

- Subcontracting installation of solar heating units

- In homes and assuming maintenance at a specific rate.
- Installing units themselves.
- Installing, but subcontracting the maintenance to local heating or air-conditioning firms.
- Promoting leased solar energy systems.

"Certainly the regulatory and political climate of the next four (Carter administration) years promises to be favorable toward solar energy in general and government support and funding specifically," said the consulting firm, Insights West, Inc.

Utilities already know energy demand and markets, have an image of reliability, and have ways to get the money for expansion, it said.

The report said natural gas "left over" when homeowners switch to solar energy can be used for industry, heating and cooling buildings.

Ohio doctor's office gets medicaid raids

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bertold J. Pembaur, believed to be Ohio's most prolific welfare doctor, contends his office should not be treated like "a gambling joint" that is raided every month.

But in the last month-and-a-half, authorities have twice raided his Rockdale Medical Clinic in Cincinnati's black ghetto — once axing his door down in front of startled patients — in search of Medicaid fraud.

The Hamilton County Prosecutor's office, Ohio Highway Patrol, Cincinnati police and other authorities also seized his medical records without giving him a receipt, the doctor said.

American Medical News reported in its latest edition:

"And they rooted his secretary out of her bed at home, arresting her because she allegedly failed to follow a grand jury subpoena."

Pembaur, 58, a native of Austria, was not arrested, charged or indicted, AMN reported.

"This is not a gambling joint that you have to raid every month. This is a medical office. If I'm guilty of something they ought to come out and charge me with something," Pembaur said while vigorously claiming his innocence.

"I felt I was back in Austria in the olden days when the Gestapo was in charge of everyone."

Authorities have returned Pembaur's records, 75 boxes full which were left in a parking lot. Pembaur has filed suit, seeking $2,500 for each day the records were gone.

The action began April 26, when a team of 12 investigators led by Russell Jackson of the Hamilton County Prosecutor's office produced a search warrant and demanded to see the files. While Pembaur attempted to contact his attorney, the law officers confiscated all 75,000 files.

On May 19, investigators showed up again producing warrants for the arrests of Pembaur's secretary, Marjorie McKinley, and his assistant, Dr. Kevin Maldon. Pembaur this time barred the door while he again attempted to contact his lawyers.

While television cameras recorded the scene, Jackson took a fire ax and chopped down the door.

Later that night, investigators showed up at Mrs. McKinley's home, ordered her out of bed and arrested her in front of her husband and 16-year-old son. She was held in jail for six hours before being released on $5,000 bond.

Vaccinated rabies researcher contracts disease

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials sought to reassure rabies laboratory workers of their relative safety Saturday after a vaccinated medical researcher fell ill with the usually fatal disease.

It was the first documented case of its kind on record.

The National Center for Disease Control said that while the laboratory-acquired rabies case in a vaccinated individual "may cause some concern among rabies laboratory workers, it should be remembered that few laboratories are engaged in activities which could lead to exposures of the type believed responsible for this infection."

It said the parent rabies virus began with which the victim, Jerome Andronis, 34, of Albany, N.Y., was working when he became ill had been used for over 10 years in many laboratories. It said a number of accidental exposures to the virus had occurred "without subsequent infection developing, even in immunized individuals who were not treated."

The CDC said the Andronis case was unusual because it was the first documented case of rabies in a person previously vaccinated and presumed protected, as evidenced by antibodies against the disease in the researcher's blood six months prior to the illness. The case also is only the second case of presumed laboratory-acquired rabies infection in recent history.

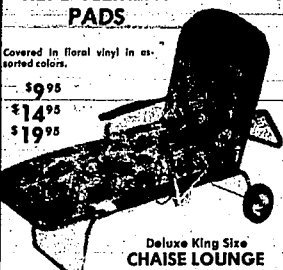

Andronis, a New York State Health Department researcher, was stricken with rabies about seven weeks ago, apparently from inhaling a live virus he was using in work to develop an oral vaccine for wild animals.

Officials at the Albany Medical Center hospital said Andronis was in "fair" condition, an improvement from the several days his condition was described as "serious." He had been unconscious for four weeks.

Cycle accident fatal

SHOSHONE — A 22-year-old Shoshone man was killed in a motorcycle accident about four miles south of here early Sunday morning.

The man, Ricky E. Peak, was headed northbound on U.S. 93 when he failed to negotiate a curve; state police officer John Gould reported.

Peak bounced off his bike and, hit a road reflector, police said. Passenger Dale E. Kerner, 22, Shoshone, suffered cuts and bruises.

He was treated and released by a Shoshone doctor.

The bike was traveling less than 50 miles per hour when it went off the road, Gould said. Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at less than $100.

Plant foes meet

WENDELL — Opposing to a coal-fired generating plant in Magic Valley hardened Friday night with the naming of community chairmen to fight the plant.

The leaders, who will organize opposition to the plant in their own towns, include Ralph Ingraham, Paul, Mrs. Dan Leach, Bliss, Dennis Calhoun, Ingerman, Joe Lyon, Twin Falls; Pearl Lehman, Buhl; Bill and Karen Arkoosh, Gooding; Carl Nellis, Jerome; Gary Will and L.J. Etlinger, Shoshone, and Don Sullivan, Wendell.

The central committee, known as Citizens for Alternatives to Coal Power, (CACP) will hold another general meeting June 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln County Courthouse, Shoshone.

Arkoosh said CACP members conferred with Sen. James McClure Friday and are setting up a central library with documented information.

Members also plan to send a delegation to confer with Gov. John Evans about finding alternatives to the proposed coal-fired plant, according to Sullivan.

Buhl eyes ordinance

BUIHL — City council members here hope to have an ordinance regulating abandoned and vacant buildings when they meet June 11.

The council has asked city attorney William Nungesser to draft an ordinance to require building owners to demolish or bring abandoned structures up to building code standards.

Many buildings in the community have generated complaints from property owners who worry the vacant structures cause devaluation of surrounding property. In a number of cases, the city has already contacted owners of such structures. Mayor Dale Christensen said most owners have been cooperative and are making arrangements to improve the problem buildings.

He said the proposed ordinance will have "teeth" sufficient to give the city leverage to assure removal or cleanup of such structures.

Christensen and other members of the city council have been taking steps to beautify the community and improve the downtown area with replacement of broken sidewalks.

The council is also encouraging individual business and home owners to join the effort by making needed improvements on their own property.

Sniper report eyed

KETCHUM — A sniper may have shot a pickup north of Ketchum three times Sunday night, the Blaine County Sheriff's office reported.

According to Sheriff Orville Drexler, his department is looking into a report by John Emerson who said he was fired on at least three times while driving up Prairie Creek Sunday about 10:45 p.m.

Emerson reported hearing gunshots and said he turned to see what appeared to be muzzle blasts in the dark, Drexler said.

Emerson's pickup was struck three times in the left rear, but Emerson was not injured, according to Drexler.

Similar incidents involving gunshots have been reported in the past, but there is no indication this incident is related to past reports, Drexler said.

Two interviewed

BURLEY — Two candidates for the new Fifth District Court judgeship in Cassia County have been interviewed by Gov. John Evans.

The third, Twin Falls Magistrate Daniel Meehl, will be interviewed before a selection is made, a spokesman for the Governor said today.

Jean Terra, Evans' administrative secretary for appointments, said the Governor has already interviewed Cassia County Magistrate George Granata, Jr., and Jerome attorney William J. Hart, the two other nominees for the new judgeship.

Terra said the post will be filled by July 1, but she added Evans "won't do anything until he's interviewed all three of them."

Amtrak makes inaugural run

By David Morrissey
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Presidents, governors and dignitaries of all kinds once rode the rails through Shoshone and today they did it again — on the inaugural run of an Amtrak train in southern Idaho.

Gov. John V. Evans and Sen. Frank Church were among those who took the first passenger train six years through the Idaho desert today which stopped in Shoshone shortly after 10 a.m. this morning.

The train continued on to Salt Lake City and begins regular passenger service tomorrow morning — early.

Amtrak service to Salt Lake City has a scheduled stop in Shoshone at 2:03 a.m. beginning Tuesday.

Passengers wanting to take the train west to Boise and Portland must arrive in Shoshone downtown depot by 4:10 a.m. tomorrow morning and each succeeding morning.

While the train attracted a good crowd in Shoshone today, residents of this town of 1200 weren't completely optimistic about the future of the train.

But as the sleek Pioneer pulled into the station the community seemed to be doing its best to stifle a collective yawn.

It's not that Shoshone doesn't care. After all only five stops are scheduled for the Pioneer in Idaho, and they're one of them. It's just that none in this town seems to be expecting the great results from this Seattle to Salt Lake City run that recent publicity has forecast.

"I'm not holding my breath," one local merchant said. "I'd like to see it make money and pay its own way. Most of us would. But I don't think it will. And that means we taxpayers will have to bail it out. If I go broke with my store here I won't be bailed out," he added.

At the intersection of Shoshone's main street and state highway 93, Dianne Shaffer runs an Amoco station. She too, has doubts about the new Amtrak line.

"It won't help Shoshone," she said. "Not going through at that time in the morning. Nothing will be open. None of our hotels are going to stay open all night." Shaffer said many people in Shoshone and the surrounding area "are used to riding buses. I don't think they'll change."

"I would love to see my kids be able to ride on the train," Shaffer said, "but it will never happen. By the time they're old enough there won't be any trains."

Down the street, Merthan Dille, cur a customer's hair in his barber shop, a Shoshone landmark for 35 years.

"Oh, the train will help the older folks, and the people who can't drive," he said. "But I can get into my car and drive to most of these places cheaper than taking the train. And I'll have a lot to get around when I get there, too."

He said he remembered the old Union Pacific passenger trains, which stopped in Shoshone until 1971. "Sometimes they'd have time to kill and they'd come into Shoshone stores or come in and get a haircut. But that won't happen when the train gets in at two in the morning."

The customer in Dille's barber chair examined his haircut and then seconded what Dille had been saying.

"The people resent the taxpayer picking up the tab," he said.

Dille noted that there would be no bus service to Shoshone from either Twin Falls or Sun Valley. "Before someone always used to meet these passenger trains."

The strongest support for the Amtrak line came from Shoshone Chamber of Commerce President Ray Silver. "It won't hurt the town any," he said. "And it will help the old folks."

Silver noted that the first runs would have no sleeper cars, but added "If they get sleepers on it more people will ride."

Silver said he had talked with representatives of Amtrak, who countered criticism of the new route by pointing out that taxpayers currently subsidize auto and bus travel. "The interstate system was mostly federal dollars, and the buses and cars aren't required to keep up the highways like railroads must maintain their beds. They couldn't if they'd go broke."

Silver said he didn't think the new route would have "any big impact on the Shoshone flagpole. Valley area. It won't be anything elaborate," he said.

Passengers from Boise to Shoshone will find they won't be using the old Shoshone Union Pacific station. They will instead be using a new metal and glass structure some 50 yards down the track, which contains 12 new, blue plastic chairs and a row of neon lights across the ceiling. While no restrooms are in the Amtrak room — which measures about 20 feet by 10 feet — the nearby city park offers such facilities.

Council to hear McDonald's bid again

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — McDonald's Hamburgers officials will again ask for permission to install a drive-in window at the recently remodeled fast-food eatery during tonight's Twin Falls City Council meeting.

The council earlier denied the request; after nearby residents complained of noise and traffic problems near the restaurant at 305 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

McDonald's "asked that the matter be reconsidered because such a request has never been denied before and because the council vote on the request was close 13-31. Officials have also threatened to sue the city if the request is denied."

Councilman Stephen R. Bancroft, who abstained during the last vote on the matter because of a business conflict, said this morning he may vote on the request this time because of its importance.

Bancroft, who said he was an accountant for McDonald's, said earlier if he voted, he would vote for the drive-in window.

Councilman Christopher Talkington, who earlier voted against the request, has indicated he may not attend the meeting tonight because he earlier planned a vacation in Mexico for this week.

He could not be reached for comment this morning.

At its meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight, in City Hall, the council is also expected to vote on a request by Cosgriff, Inc. for permission to keep its 11 billboards in the downtown area up even though the billboards violate the city's recently adopted sign ordinance.

Evans plans interviews

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Gov. John Evans will begin interviews soon to name a replacement for Twin Falls attorney Edward Benoit to the State Board of Education.

At least three of the candidates are women who have the backing of the Idaho Federation of Teachers.

Benoit, who last year served as chairman of the board, submitted his resignation for business and personal reasons effective July 1.

According to Gov. Evans' administrative secretary for appointments, Jean Terra, Evans has "received a large number of nominations and names, and before long the Governor will start interviewing the people that he will want to see."

Terra refused to disclose the names on the list, although she said the list contained the names of "four or five women," out of about a dozen nominees.

Evans had said earlier that he would give special attention to women nominees, although he did not eliminate the appointment of a man to the post.

Sam Greer, executive director of the Idaho Federation of Teachers (IFT), said the three nominees submitted by his organization include former Jerome school board member Sheryl Hymas, Twin Falls attorney Zoe Ann Shaub, and Twin Falls Horizon School operator Marilyn Wright.

"Our overriding concern," Greer said, "was to get away from the professions that are currently on the board — with two doctors, a dentist and a doctor's wife. We did want to get someone with an emphasis on or with a past orientation in education, winter working in education or for education."

"The doctors and lawyers work from a crisis mentality and in crisis situations," he said, "which means that they react rather than plan. If we could find someone who would plan and avoid crises, we'd be much happier with that type of person."

ANNA HAYES
... off to Shoshone

Anna meets train

By DAVE MORRISSEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Riding trains is nothing new for Anna Hayes, Twin Falls.

"There used to be a train that ran from Mindoka to here," she recalled. "And sometimes we'd get on it in Hansen and ride it into Twin Falls — just for fun. I don't remember the exact price but it was less than a dollar. That was in, oh, 1906."

Anna Hayes turns 91 next month, and most of those years she has spent in Twin Falls — or the surrounding area. One of the reasons she hasn't lived there all in Twin Falls, she notes, is that the town wasn't built until nearly 20 years after she was born.

But when the town was being mapped and sited, Anna Hayes was involved. The man she would later marry — John Edward Hayes — charted the first survey of the area in 1891.

Anna Hayes remembers when trains regularly serviced the Twin Falls area. "For a while they had a special train that ran out to the Shoshone Falls. But they dropped it because it wasn't making enough money."

And with a memory unclouded by age she remembers the first trains that arrived. "It was Aug. 7, 1905," she says. "And everyone was excited."

As in many other areas of the country, Twin Falls eventually lost rail passenger service when costs continued to exceed profits.

Today Anna Hayes will be in Shoshone, waiting for the arrival of The Pioneer — the Amtrak train which will provide rail passenger service between Seattle and Salt Lake City. Last week she received a telegram from her cousin — Paul H. Reistrup — inviting her to meet him when the train arrives.

Reistrup is the president of Amtrak. "It will be fun to be here," she says. "And I've told the people taking me to Shoshone I want to be there early."

Will she ride the Pioneer?

"Oh, I don't know. I might. It might be fun. But I'll wait and see what Paul says."

Trailblazers win NBA championship

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Portland's Trail Blazers, with five players scoring in double figures and Bob Gross leading the way with 21 points, beat Philadelphia, 103-107, Sunday to win the NBA championship.

A record standing room only crowd of 12,951 went wild as their rags-to-riches team, after only seven years in pro basketball, won the sport's most coveted prize.

Bill Walton was named the most valuable player in the NBA championship playoffs.

Philadelphia made a last gasp charge to pull it out in the dying seconds and was trailing by two points, but Gross blocked a Lloyd Free shot with five seconds left, then Walton tipped a George McGinnis miss to Johnny Davis who raced down the floor as time ran out.

It was the fourth straight win by Portland over Philadelphia and the first time since 1969, when the Boston Celtics beat the Los Angeles Lakers, that a team losing the first two games of the championship series came back to win.

Portland again used an explosive period, a tactic that became its offensive trademark in games 3 through 6, scoring 40 points in the second quarter with Walton-Davis-Gross and Hollins the big gunners which put Portland up 67-55 at halftime.

That was a gap Philadelphia never quite closed, although the 76ers made a run at it in the fourth period, pulling to within five points at 91-

86 early in the quarter, then getting to within two at the 18 second mark. But as in three previous losses to Portland, Philadelphia could not catch up.

Julius Erving put on a brilliant 40 point performance and McGinnis came out of his long slump to score 27, but they couldn't do it.

While Gross had 24 to lead Portland, Walton and Lionel Hollins had 20, Maurice Lucas 15 and Johnny Davis 13 as scoring was distributed in the team-oriented attack.

Philadelphia made it a tough ballgame in the first period, which ended at 27-27. McGinnis got the first six points for the 76ers; who played a team game for the first time since Game 2, and the lead changed hands seven times and the game was tied seven times in the opening period.

It was nip and tuck early into the second period with the score tied 40-40 on McGinnis' basket with little over seven minutes left. That's when the explosion began with the Blazers outscoring Philadelphia 17-2 in the next five minutes and it was Walton, Hollins and Davis on the rampage.

Walton had 23 rebounds and seven assists in directing his teammates to the victory. Portland controlled the boards, 55-41, and shot 51 per cent in the second period, although both teams hit 44 field goals apiece. It was a two point differential at the foul line that spelled the difference in the final score.

Olympic mascot named

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russian brown bear has been chosen as the official mascot of the 1980 Moscow Olympic Games, the Soviet press reported Sunday.

The news agency Tass said the Olympics organizing committee had chosen the bear as Moscow Games mascot following a competition organized by a Soviet television show, "The World of Animals."

Tass said over 40,000 letters with suggestions were received and examined before the bear was chosen.

The news agency said the question of how the Russian bear mascot would be drawn would be decided by the Olympic organizers after consultations with Soviet artists and designers.

Arnie forced to qualify

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer and two other former U.S. Open winners are among 128 golfers competing Monday in a 36-hole qualifying round for 40 spots in the U.S. Open.

This is the first time since 1969 Palmer has had to qualify for the prestigious tournament.

"I don't look forward to playing 36 holes," he said. "I haven't played 36 holes since the last time we had a postponement."

The golfers will play 18 holes at the Charlotte Country Club and 18 holes at Myers Park Country Club.

Other past U.S. Open champions competing Monday include Billy Casper and Ed Furgol. Also in the field are former Masters winners Charles Coody, George Archer and Bob Golsby, and former PGA champion Bobby Nichols.

Rodney Bobick killed

BOWLING, Minn. (UPI) — Rodney Bobick, brother of heavyweight contender Dwayne Bobick, was killed Sunday night in a traffic accident near his central Minnesota community.

The State Patrol said Bobick was killed about 8 p.m. when the car he was driving went off Minnesota 238 about two miles west of Bowling and hit a utility pole.

Bobick, who was alone in the car, was pronounced dead at the scene.

Rodney Bobick, 25, Little Falls, Minn., also was a heavyweight boxer and sparred with several name contenders.

Ancient Title by a nose

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — California's favored thoroughbred, Ancient Title, demonstrated Sunday he had lost none of his speed as a 3-year-old when he raced to a nose victory in the 11th running of the $25,000 Bel Air Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Ancient Title and Hahab battled head and head for most of the 1.4-mile test, before Sandy Hawley forced Ancient Title over the wire in front.

Allen opts for control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins' Coach George Allen has not signed a new contract because he insists on retaining full control of team personnel and finances, the Washington Post reported Sunday.

Sources in the Redskins organization said Club President Edward Bennett Williams is trying to take some control of the payroll, the highest in the National Football League, the newspaper said.

Williams said previously that the Redskins and Allen had agreed on a five-year contract bettered to add $20,000 per year and pay benefits to Allen's present compensation, which includes $125,000 and fringe benefits.

But Williams is said to want more control of the team that has made the playoffs in five of the last six years, but failed to make profit.

Allen is beginning the last year of a seven-year contract which has him in total control of salaries, hiring and firing.

Meanwhile, Morris Siegel of the Washington Star reported that Allen recently hired a psychiatrist to discover why the Redskins sometimes lose games they are supposed to win.

WHILE other members of the NBA champion Portland Trailblazers reach out to touch their newly won trophy, Bill Walton rubs the wrong bright shiny object in the room, Portland coach Jack Ramsay's head. Meanwhile NBA commissioner Larry O'Brien (R) seems oblivious to everything but the TV camera. Portland won the title Sunday by defeating the Philadelphia 76ers 103-107.

Boise clubs dominate TF softball tournament

TWIN FALLS — Two Boise teams, McEl Sports and Nielsen's Van Lines finished one-two Sunday in the Twin Falls major invitational softball tournament.

McEl's nailed down the championship by clobbering Nielsen's 20-9 in the tourney's final game Sunday afternoon, after beating Nielsen's earlier in the day in a battle of the underdogs to force them into the loser's bracket to earn their rematch.

The best a Twin Falls club could do was finish fourth, Union-Pacific-Twin Falls Merchants, the current leader of the Twin Falls A-League, battled into the quarterfinals, but was stopped there by Pizza Hut of Nampa 14-4.

Pizza Hut then went on to play Nielsen's for the right to meet McEl's in the final game, but Nielsen's took that game 21-14 to earn their title shot.

Top tennis stars may get illegal entrance bonuses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tennis professionals suspect some top players are receiving guaranteed fees, possibly indirectly, to participate in tournaments in violation of Grand Prix rules, the Washington Post said Sunday.

"It is one of the most aggravating problems we have from the standpoint of the ATP (Association of Tennis Professionals), the Grand Prix and the pro circuit," according to Bob Briner, the ATP executive director, who was in Paris for the French Open.

Briner is also a member of the council which administers the Grand Prix series of tournaments which finish off the year with a bonus pool of nearly $2 million.

"He said the practice is limited to a few players, but said, 'Those who do, do it often.' The Grand Prix rules bar payment of any money to guarantee, directly or indirectly, appearances by players."

The Post quoted one official who said some players seek appearance fees of $50,000 and practice courts and are paid for promotional activities at the same time as the tournaments.

Some officials charged that Bjorn Borg and other clients of the International Management Group enter only if they get extra income from promotions.

But Slanner, IMG vice president, said his clients don't get paid for merely showing up but do get paid for promotional activities. "I think certain officials are having a private witch hunt," he said.

Philippe Chatrier, French tennis federation president and pro council member, said he has heard of the difficulty, but documentation, is needed.

"We have told tournaments, 'give us proof and we will nail the offenders immediately, even if they are the top players in the world,'" said Chatrier. "We'll throw them out of the Grand Prix in a moment."

The Post said Pepsi Grand Slam organizers said representatives of Jimmy Connors sought a $50,000 appearance fee. He played in the tournament, which is not part of the Grand Prix, even though he was not given the fee, they said.

Weiskopf notches first golf title in two years

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Veteran Tom Weiskopf left three young, winless challengers behind Sunday midway through the final round of the $250,000 Kemper Open to win a two-stroke victory with an 11-under-par 277.

Weiskopf, whose last victory was the 1975 Canadian Open, was locked in a battle with Bill Rogers and George Burns at 11-under par after nine holes on the 7,160-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course. But Weiskopf, who won the Kemper in 1971 and 1973 to become the only two-time champ, birdied the 10th hole to move 12 strokes below par and claim a one-stroke lead.

He bogeyed the 17th hole to drop 11 under par, but had a three-stroke cushion over Rogers and Burns going into the 18th.

Doug Tewell, another youngster seeking his first win in three PGA seasons, was another stroke back at the turn. He finished eight strokes under par with a birdie on the final hole to tie Les Graham for fourth place.

Rogers bogeyed the 11th and 14th holes to finish nine under par, but made his best showing since his fourth-place finish in the Crosby Open.

Burns, a lucky former football player at Maryland, also stood ninth under in a tie with Rogers for second place at 279. He said he decided last week to "let his game get me churned up inside," and credited his improved play to a relaxed attitude.

Burns, Rogers and Weiskopf started the final round tied for the lead nine strokes below par at 207. Burns edged ahead with two birdies on the first five holes, and Tewell joined him at 11 under after six holes before a bogey dropped him out of the lead.

Six golfers — Lanny Wadkins, J.C. Snead, Bill Calfee, Hubert Green, Allen Miller and Craig Stadler — finished seven strokes under par.

Charles Coody started five strokes below par and picked up four birdies on the front nine, but lost ground on the back side to finish six strokes under par in a tie with Chi Chi Rodriguez and three others.

First round leader George Archer stayed in contention until Sunday, when he started eight under par at 208 but fired a 75 to finish five under par.

Barney Thompson, who won only $376 going into the Kemper, shared the second round lead with Archer, but slipped to a 75 Saturday and dropped two more strokes away from the lead to finish three below par.

Weiskopf's $50,000 first place purse brings his winnings for the year to $94,588 and boosted him from 36th to seventh among PGA money winners on this year's tour.

Carner scores 5-shot win

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner struggled to a two-over-par 74 but still scored an easy, front-running 5-stroke victory Sunday in the LPGA's $100,000 Talk Tournament.

Carner, two-time U.S. Women's Open champion, made only two birdies—the second after stanking a pitch shot off a spectator's face on the 18th hole—in matching the highest final-round score by a winner on the LPGA Tour in a year.

The first birdie came at the 119-yard 14th hole, right after Carner's lead, which was six strokes at the 71st and had been trimmed to three—simply because she had made four bogeys in the first 12 holes.

After that, Carner routinely parred her way to number 18, where she generated the only excitement of the breezy, overcast day.

Carner was just short and to the right of the green on the 45-yard, par five finishing hole in two. Off a side hill lie, she shanked her wedge shot right into the middle of the gallery clustered around the green. It hit a woman spectator in the mouth and ricocheted onto the green, struck the pin and came to a stop 18 inches from the hole. The woman was taken away in an ambulance. Carner made the putt for a birdie.

Her 72-hole total of 294 was four under par for four trips over the 6,169 yards of hills and valleys that make up Wyklyp Country Club and earned her a $15,000 first prize.

Kathy McMillen, who has not won in eight years on the tour, birdied the final hole for a 71 and earned second place money of $9,750, the biggest check of her career, with a 289 total.

Sandra Post, whose 67 Sunday was the best round of the tournament, and Jane Blalock, who shot 73, shared third at 290.

Pat Bradley, the winner a year ago, was at 292 with Judy Rankin and Sandra Spuziel. Bradley tied 76 Sunday. Rankin 73 and Spuziel 72. Sally Little was at 70-293.

Vilas crushes Gottfried to win French net title

PARIS (UPI) — Argentinian ace Guillermo Vilas, wiped out Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-3, 6-4, 6-0, in Sunday's final of the French Open tennis championship to win his first major tournament title.

The 24-year-old "left hander" from Mar del Plata, allowed Gottfried 25-to-10 odds but served only three times throughout the match, which was marred by light rainfall in the first and third sets.

Vilas attacked the 2-1 hour match, watched by a capacity 13,000 crowd at the red clay center court of the Roland Garros stadium, by breaking service when Gottfried put a full volley outside the left sideline.

Vilas earned $30,000 for his straight set victory. Gottfried, playing in his first major tournament final, received $10,000.

Earlier, top seed Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia took the women's singles title with a 6-2, 6-7, 6-1 win over Romanian's unseeded Florentina Mihai.

Vilas, firing rhythmic volleys from his own baseline—the tone of the match—when he broke Gottfried's service in the opening game, Gottfried was able to win only the first, third and seventh games of the second set on his own service.

The American was playing attacking tennis, going to the net on the slightest pretext. But Vilas—who is noted for his unfrustrated play—returned to be intimidated.

Gottfried came closest to breaking service in the fourth game of the second set when he had three break points, then lost them. But more often, Vilas would catch Gottfried at the net with an unbreakable full volley from the baseline.

Mihai, a 21-year-old physical education student from Bucharest University, put up a stubborn resistance against 20-year-old Jausovec, ranked No. 10 in the world.

Five games down in the first set, the strongly-built Romanian fought back to break service and win two games in a row before Jausovec could wrap up the set.

Mihai was strongest in the second set, where she won a nail-biting tiebreak 7-5. Jausovec, despite a sore left knee, won the match with a series of finely judged angle shots. Both players were hampered by a gusting wind and Mihai in particular had trouble clearing the net with her sliced backhands.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 7, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to focus upon the unconventional activities instead of relying too much on regular routines. Keep cheerful for best results. You have a good chance to impress others now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A private affair can easily be solved now. Don't try to borrow from others at this time or you could get in trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact a person who appears unknowing-but is actually very clever, and can help you solve an important problem.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A different attitude and perspective where your career is concerned brings excellent results today. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take steps to get out of that rut and make your life more interesting. Make plans for the days ahead.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your hunches are fine so be sure to follow them and clear up any confused thinking you may have. Stay clear of "yes-men" people.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know better what is expected of your associates, and they of you, and then come to a better understanding with them. Be diplomatic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) State your finest ideas to associates and gain their cooperation to put them across. Try to improve your environment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good time to plan for a new type of amusement that will be enjoyable. Be careful of one who is hypocritical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do something nice for family members and gain increased affection. Take care with your reputation.

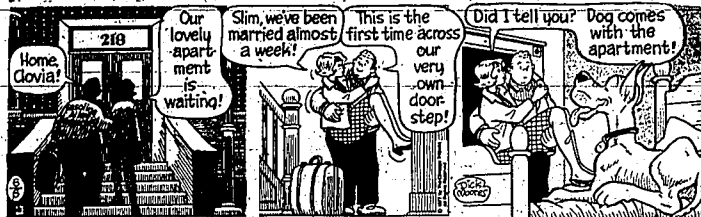

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can now engage in new avenues of expression that will be more suited to your talents. Strive for better rapport with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A day to engage in activities that you didn't have time for recently. Cultivate new acquaintances and turn them into friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A sudden inspiration could show you the way to handle a problem you have. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have many good ideas to express and should be encouraged from early in life. Give a good education in modern schools where your progeny can make rapid progress. There is genius in this chart that needs careful handling.

By the time the Pilgrims on the Mayflower left down the anchor in Providence town bay, they had a lot of dirty clothes to contend with. First day they got to shore to clean them up was a Monday. That's how Monday came to be the traditional washday, I'm told.

Do you have any notion of how many deer were killed by vehicles on the Pennsylvania highways last year? Exactly 24,183. Or maybe not exactly. That's only how many were reported.

There are those who claim that chopsticks were invented by a Chinese emperor who feared assassination by stabwound.

An English woman refers to her lingerie as her smells.

Q: "All right, Louie, how long does it take a cupful of spilled molasses to travel one foot?"

A: Just 3 minutes 41 seconds. In the winter. No doubt that Yale varies depending on the physical condition of the molasses. Thought it intriguing, though, that molasses, too, has undergone time trials. Might stage a race someday between a cup of well-conditioned molasses, an athletic smear of fish tank algae and a cornstalk at the peak of its training.

Q: "In what role did Telly Savalas first appear with a shaved head?"

A: As Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." It wasn't his idea. Director George Stevens talked him into it. Then he found out he liked it.

PUT ON THE DOG

Question arises as to the origin of that phrase "putting on the dog" to mean getting all gussied up for an important. Distinguished sources indicate said slang may have spread from Yale to other colleges in the 1860s. Blenheim and King Charles spaniels were at the peak of their haughty popularity then. "To put on the dog" originally may well have meant to take your aristocratic pup out for a public walk.

Studies indicate about half of all recently married women think they look a lot better now than they did before the wedding. But half, also, still aren't confident about their appearances, believing they don't make the most of what they've got.

Item No. 531-C in our Love and War men's miscellaneous file reads: "A woman becomes queen of her household only after her husband becomes king."

Inspectors to ferret out medicaid system cheaters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal "inspector general" with the probable help of a former Watergate special prosecutor — expects to ferret out 500 doctors and druggists who bilked the Medicaid system last year.

The probe is called "Project 500" and is the first major effort of the recently created Office of Inspector General in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A HEW spokesman sees it as "the first shot at the most serious violators."

Thomas Morris, who has 40 years of management experience in industry and government, leads the inspector general's office, and government sources say his chief deputy is expected to be former Watergate special prosecutor Charles Ruff.

Congress created the post of inspector general to investigate fraud and abuse in HEW programs and to make the agency more efficient, since it will spend at least $10 billion next year.

HEW officials admitted in testimony last year they had no idea how much money was wasted. In department programs, Secretary Joseph Califano estimates Medicaid alone wastes $1 billion a year.

So, within the next few weeks, Morris is planning to announce the first details — without names — of the Project 500 computer investigation into payments made to Medicaid physicians and pharmacists.

Medicaid enables the poor to medical treatment from doctors and prescription drugs from pharmacists. The government then pays the medical providers for their services.

The program — designed to insure good health care, for everyone regardless of financial status — has led to numerous abuses.

An HEW spokesman said Morris "doesn't want to overpromise," but expects to find at least 500 persons who bilked the Medicaid system last year.

"Five hundred is not a quota," the spokesman said. "This is what is reasonable to expect based on past experience. It's no barometer of fraud or abuse. It's the first shot at the most serious violators."

The investigation, started in April and covering 1976 Medicaid payments, is using computers to comb files on payments made to doctors under the Medicaid program.

It found one doctor, for example, who billed Medicaid for six tonsillectomies on the same patient. The spokesman said.

Love, mortgage inspire auction of playing cards

LONDON (UPI) — A seven of diamonds worth $80 and a 17th Century deck brought $2,670 at London's first auction devoted solely to playing cards.

It all helped Brian Kemp pay off his mortgage — on the suburban home he bought for his new bride.

The sale came about because Kemp, 39, fell in love with a Polish tour guide on a trip behind the Iron Curtain 18 months ago. He married her on the spot and tried for more than a year to get her out of Poland and into Britain.

Earlier this year he succeeded, and "suddenly he found himself with the responsibilities of a married man," a colleague said.

To finance "his new suburban house, Kemp decided to sell the playing cards he had collected for more than two years.

His employer, auctioneer Stanley Gibbons, arranged the sale Wednesday which made Kemp $2,100 richer, minus a commission to his boss.

Most packs of cards brought prices higher than those predicted by the Stanley Gibbons group, which ordinarily auctions stamps and banknotes.

The sale's highest price — an automatic water auction record — was $2,670 for an English deck made in 1679 depicting incidents in the "Popish plot."

Interest in the playing card sale surpassed all expectations. Catalogues quickly ran out and so did copies hastily duplicated.

The single seven of diamonds was French and was used as money in a line of coin shortages. Its use as a line of exchange was signed by Edward Gibbons, author of "The Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire" on July 13, 1786.

The oldest pack of cards in the sale was made in Sicily in 1617. The Sicilian set has 30 cards.

Next, all packs have 52 cards. Some have 97, tarot packs have 78 and packs of 32 and 10 cards are common in Germany. Collecting playing cards is an infant hobby, that could mature overnight, one expert said before the sale.

Two books on the subject appeared here recently and a growing group of collectors has been buying cards for what they have of politics or social attitudes and as a study of printing techniques or illustrations of costume.

Age was not the only factor to push prices up Wednesday.

A French dealer spent $75 for a pack made in 1976 that was promptly banned and confiscated by the French government for an unflattering depiction of President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, Nixon and Kennedy. Packs also were included in the sale.

Board probes jet crash

ATLANTA (UPI) — A National Transportation Safety Board panel this week will attempt to determine the cause of a Southern Airways jet crash during a hail storm that killed 72 persons.

Forty witnesses, including several passengers and two stewardesses who survived the April 4 crash near New Hope, Ga., will be called to testify.

The hearing, which opens Monday and is expected to last five days, will center on three key points, according to NTSB spokesman Bob Buckhorn.

"Weather is one important factor," said Buckhorn. "The weather given to the crew, the accuracy of the weather, the speed of its delivery, the interpretation of the weather."

Both engines "flamed out" on the Atlanta-bound Southern jet as it flew through a violent storm, which spawned tornadoes and produced violent hail.

Buckhorn said the other key issues involve the performance of the DC-8's two Pratt & Whitney engines, and the handling of the emergency by air traffic controllers at Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport.

Southern Flight 412, enroute from Huntsville, Ala., crashed when co-pilot Lyman W. Keefe tried to land the plane without power on a two-lane highway in the tiny New Hope community 30 miles northwest of Atlanta. Keefe and pilot William W. McKenzie were killed.

Buckhorn said National Weather Service meteorologists will testify on weather conditions at the time of the crash.

"Another question involves the procedures used by the air traffic controllers and the instructions they gave the aircraft," said Buckhorn. They first vectored it to Dobbins Air Force Base and when he couldn't get there, they vectored him to Cartersville.

Woman oversees human rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Patti Derian, a driving woman who has made some enemies at the State Department, oversees President Carter's human rights campaign with the zeal of a true believer and the clarity of what she wants to accomplish.

"Everybody agrees that famine is unthinkable, and we need to get rid of it," she says. "What we're trying to do is to put torture into that same category."

Like Carter, she sees the human rights campaign as a consciousness-raising problem on a global scale and says that cannot be achieved by traditional, quiet diplomacy alone.

"We are trying to get into the world's consciousness certain basic ideas," Ms. Derian said in a recent interview. "The idea is that individuals should be protected by the process from the growing might of the state. You don't get anywhere with an idea, unless you mention it."

"You could end with each case individually, and you could fill this country up with refugees from other countries for all eternity, but you wouldn't attack the basic problem."

Patricia Derian, known as Patti, is a 40-year-old professional nurse and Mississippi civil rights campaigner who got into Democratic politics in the 1960s. In 1968, she became a Democratic national committee woman from Mississippi, where she had worked for school desegregation, and she later became deputy director of the Carter-Mondale campaign.

Her title now is State Department coordinator for human rights and humanitarian affairs. Her job is to advise the President on human rights problems worldwide and recommend official U.S. policy positions.

Poll supports nuclear control

NEW YORK (UPI) — A poll of Americans with a keen interest in foreign affairs indicates most believe the nation's top foreign policy priority should be controlling the spread of nuclear weapons.

The opinion poll, conducted by the International Foreign Policy Association, analyzed and projected responses from 50,000 participants in 15 discussion groups across the country.

"Participants are not a national cross section," the FPA said. "On the average they have more education than most Americans and take a more lively interest in foreign affairs."

The poll indicated that 72 percent of respondents believe the United States should "give first priority to our foreign policy agenda to controlling the spread of nuclear weapons."

Sixty-four per cent backed an approach that would seek agreement with all other nuclear exporting nations to ban the sale of sensitive nuclear technology and fuel to non-nuclear weapons nations.

On other topics, though 61 per cent felt the United States should "continue negotiation efforts," directed toward black majority rule in the Middle East, a equal percentage were opposed to supporting the white Rhodesian regime if guerrilla war continued.

As for "the Middle East conflict," 77 per cent of those responding favored a policy that would "encourage both sides to reach a settlement in direct negotiations." Yet 59 per cent opposed a policy that would tilt toward support of the Arab side, and 22 per cent opposed a policy that would "tilt toward the Israeli side."
