'Unspoiled beauty' wins out over gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department and the Council on Environmental Quality today urged President Carter to reject building any natural gas pipeline through the "unspoiled beauty" of the arctic to the lower 48 states.

The CEQ said too many people have detested which of three routes the pipeline should take and too few have considered whether there is a compelling need for gas from Alaska.

Carter asked to recommend to Congress by Sept. 1 what to do about getting natural gas from Alaska's North Slope to U.S. consumers. He requested the CEQ and Interior recommendations to help him make that decision.

"From one perspective, the most obvious environmental choice is to build up Alaskan gas transportation systems whatever," the CEQ said.

If a line must be built, it said, the proposed Alcan pipeline route — parallel to the separate Alaska pipeline to Fairbanks and then following the Alaska highway across Canada to the northern United States poses the least threat of environmental damage. An interagency task force on the environment, led by the Interior Department, ranked five possibilities for Carter: As No. 1 it listed: "Decide not to construct a separate gas transportation system." It said this choice would be "environmentally superior."

The Interior study recommended as second-best selecting a route but deferring any plans for construction to allow more time for studying environmental issues.

It listed as third-best the selection of the Alcan route, joining the CEQ in saying the route has the least environmental impact.

A combined pipeline-tanker route sponsored by El Paso Alaska Co. and a different pipeline route across Alaska and Canada proposed by the Alaskan Arctic Gas Co. ranked fourth and fifth, respectively, in the Interior report.

It said the Arctic Gas route, cutting through a major arctic wildlife refuge, would have the worst environmental impact.

The Federal Power Commission earlier voted for either the Alcan or the El Paso route. Its recommendation did not include the possibility of doing without a pipeline.

Interior and FEA analysts said Alaskan gas would not prevent shortages in the lower 48 states and would have little impact on the nation's gas prices or on alternative fuels.

Administration energy officials, meanwhile, said a key argument for building any Alaskan gas pipeline is that without it either gas will be wasted on the North Slope or Alaskan oil production will suffer.

A major decision is expected Monday from Canada, which would have to approve either of the two proposed routes crossing Canadian provinces.

Carter received recommendations from more than a dozen federal agencies.

The Treasury Department concluded that private capital is available for the multibillion-dollar gas pipeline project and consumer risk-sharing can be used if necessary to avoid the necessity of federal funding the project.

State orders halt to sewer hookups

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times News Writer

TWIN FALLS — State environmentalists announced Thursday they have placed a moratorium on subdivision sewer hookups in this city until the Twin Falls Waste Water Treatment Plant meets federal and state discharge requirements.

The plant has been discharging pollutants into the Snake River at levels exceeding the environmental Protection Agency standards off and on since April 1976.

The moratorium would mean state environmentalists would no longer give the required approval to developers to hook up to the city sewer system. Ian Von Linden, environmental engineer for the state health and welfare department, said.

City Manager Jean Miller said Thursday his mailed a letter to the welfare department asking that the moratorium be lifted.

He called the moratorium "unlawful and not enforceable."

"No where in state codes is the health and welfare department given the authority it has assumed," Miller said.

Larry Kohler, welfare department official in Boise, disagreed, saying the state receives its authority from Chapter 50, Section 1302 of the Idaho Code which obligates property owners to file plans with state officials before connecting homes to city sewers.

The city of Twin Falls shall not be denied its continued growth and progress by some unwarranted moratorium," Miller vowed. He said the city would continue to process and approve subdivision plans.

Von Linden said, however, if a subdivision developer should try to connect subdivided homes to the city sewer system, health and welfare officials would seek an injunction in district court.

It remains unclear what effect the moratorium will have.

Miller said the city normally approves construction of three to four subdivisions per year or "maybe eight or nine little ones" per year.

"By this time of year, however, most deals have been approved and the rest of the summer and early fall is spent on construction," he said.

Carter predicts balanced budget by fiscal 1980

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today accelerated his timetable for balancing the federal budget, predicting a surplus of $7.2 billion in fiscal 1980.

This is a full year ahead of the schedule the President set for himself after taking office in January. The surplus would show in time for Carter to use it as a reelection campaign issue.

For the President in his campaign issue, economic assumptions of his administration confirmed that the estimates take into consideration only present conditions.

The President forecast real economic growth of about 5 per cent for the next four years and unemployment on a slow but steady downward slide. The current jobless rate of 4.9 per cent would drop to 6 per cent over the next 18 months, falling down to 4.5 per cent over the following four years.

The improving economy would provide the administration with a budget surplus of $42.1 billion in fiscal 1981 and $75.5 billion in fiscal 1982.

In more immediate estimates, however, the President estimated federal spending will exceed income by $1.5 billion in fiscal 1978, the second upward revision in the budget deficit in five months.

Next year's red ink would be followed by a $3.8 billion deficit in fiscal 1979 — the 11th consecutive year that federal spending would have exceeded income.

But thereafter conditions would improve as federal spending increased at a slower rate than income from taxes and other sources. The administration projected outlays for fiscal 1980 would be $32.7 billion, an increase of less than 1 per cent from next year.

Meanwhile, income would swell to $35.6 billion.

SUN VALLEY — Gen. George Armstrong Custer, leader of the Seventh Cavalry, was slain at the Little Big Horn, wasn't a hero nor an honorable man, a Connecticut professor says.

Speaking Thursday at the "American Hero: Myths and Media" symposium in Sun Valley, Prof. Richard Slotkin exploded some of the myths about one of the West's best known figures.

Slotkin, an American Studies scholar at Connecticut's Wesleyan University, said Custer:

— Was aware of, and perhaps a party to, a successful scheme to defraud the U.S. government when a friend of Custer won the contract to supply the entire U.S. Army with horse shoes for the cavalry and then knowingly delivered cheap and defective merchandise.

— Tried to use his military position to gain access to secret government information detailing where the army planned to locate its command posts in the Black Hills area before colonization there so that Custer could strategically locate a series of trading posts in the area for personal economic profit.

— Was involved with dubious and illicit land speculations.

— Diverted funds intended for Colorado silver for his personal use.

— Endorsed Northern Pacific Railroad advertisements for land sales in the northwest when his own personal military accounts of the areas fell far short of the advertised descriptions.

The American Hero conference, which began here Tuesday and will continue through Sunday, has brought more than 30 prominent American cultural figures to this resort town to discuss and explore the subject of the American hero.

Discussions have eulogized the American heroes as well as debunked them in certain instances.

Slotkin's research details how the image of Gen. Custer and the Last Stand grew from a sentimental and revisionist military view.

military talents who had many public and business contacts, several of which were highly dubious.

This picture of Custer reminds one of someone who today would likely be called before a federal grand jury.

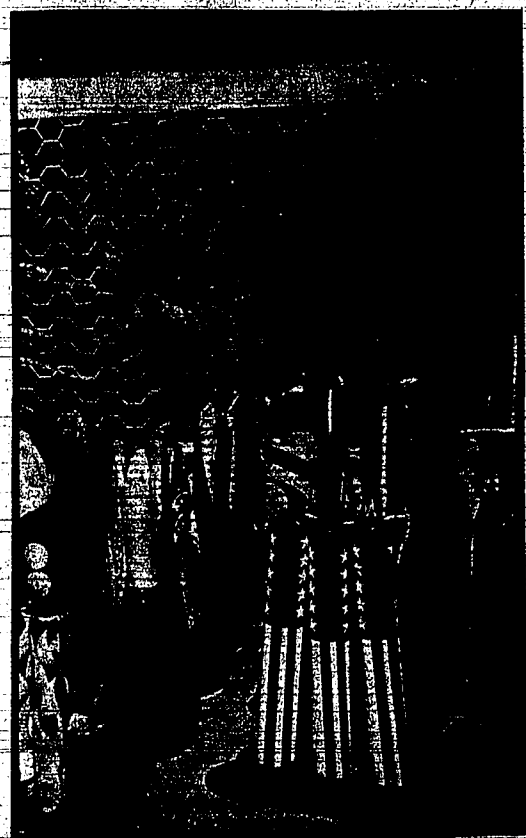

On May 17, 1875, the flamboyant general and his regiment marched to the Little Bighorn. Slotkin, in view of the historical record, questions whether it is a deserved elevation.

On July 6, 1967, two days after the centennial celebrations, the first American newspapers reported that on June 25, two weeks earlier, Custer and his troops had been massacred.

Over 250 men had ridden with Custer into battle with the plains Indians, and everyone was killed. A gory scene was found on the ridges overlooking Little Big Horn river. Hundreds of bodies lay bloodied on the ground, most of them stripped of boots and clothing.

Slotkin says it was the New York City journalist, perhaps inspired by dazzling copy for their readers, who first created the myth of Custer and the Last Stand.

Illegal fireworks easily obtainable

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times News Writer

MAGIC VALLEY — A survey of fireworks stands in the Magic Valley reveals illegal fireworks are easily obtainable — sold over the counter with no questions asked.

At one area, fireworks stand, illegal rockets and candles are sold by and to minors.

But law enforcement officials don't seem concerned. And the Idaho attorney general's office prefers to let Idaho's fireworks laws be enforced on the city and county level.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Art Berry said that office generally won't get involved unless there is a complaint the county or city law enforcement officers are not doing their jobs.

Idaho law states, "Dangerous fireworks" are not to be sold at retail, given away, possessed, or discharged, except to a person having a valid license for public display or agricultural and wildlife use.

The law further states "It shall be the duty of every seller or distributor of dangerous fireworks to require each licensee to present said license to the seller or distributor of dangerous fireworks at the time of every sale to the licensed person. No dangerous fireworks shall be discharged or used except for public display, or for agricultural and wildlife use."

"Dangerous fireworks," as opposed to "safe and sane" fireworks are defined under Idaho law as including the following:

— Firecrackers, salutes, cherry bombs, roman candles, and other explosive articles of similar nature.

— Skyrockets and rockets, including all similar devices employing any combustible or explosive material and which rise in the air during discharge, except model rockets.

— Roman candles, including all devices which discharge balls of fire into the air.

— Chasers and whistles, including all devices which start or travel about the surface of the ground during discharge.

— Spangles, meaning ten inches in length, one-quarter inch in diameter.

Yet in the Magic Valley area, many of these legally dangerous fireworks are sold without license, to unlicensed purchasers — first come, first served.

In addition, many "safe and sane" fireworks sold contain what should be large balls of fire into the air — also an apparent violation of Idaho law.

In Jerome, a fireworks stand in front of the Klutas Auction Center offers firecrackers and several kinds of skyrockets.

According to the two boys operating the trailer fireworks stand on Thursday (both were minors) "We had 55,000 worth of fireworks and we've sold half."

Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall said he received a complaint about the stand on Wednesday. That same day, he said, he "jumped all over them. I told them they couldn't sell them."

Thursday, the stand was still selling firecrackers, skyrockets and whistles. According to the boy running the stand business was "great."

The license for the fireworks stand is issued to Lynn Wylding. The license is only for safe and sane fireworks.

Inone County Clerk Virginia Roberts said.

In Lincoln County, four miles north of Shoshone, firecrackers, roman candles, skyrockets and other fireworks are sold at Johnny's Country Store.

But as Lincoln County Sheriff Bill Anderson commented, "We have no county or city ordinances on fireworks." Anderson said his office tries to limit fireworks sales to the licit and a halt, he said, and "if we have any problems we won't harass them."

Numerous other Magic Valley fireworks stands also sell varieties of "pyrotechnics" in their collection of "safe and sane" fireworks.

But the pinwheels may be altered in where they become "dangerous" fireworks.

At the Red and Devil fireworks stand on the Safety Parking lot in Jerome, a stand run by the Assembly of God Youth Group, one young woman selling fireworks demonstrated how the powder filled cartridges may be taken off the round cardboard pinwheel and made into bottle rockets.

Gem prison drops to second priority

BOISE (UPI) — A new Department of Agriculture Building took priority over the Idaho State Penitentiary Thursday when the Penitentiary Building Advisory Panel of the State Penitentiary Board approved the expenditure of $15 million in federal funds for the state for public works projects.

The decision was a reversal of an earlier ranking that put a $70 million request for improving the state prison at the top of the list.

The unanimous vote was taken Thursday afternoon after Gov. John V. Evans prevailed on the council to support the new agriculture building.

Evans told the members such a structure would provide "a number one industry" for the state.

The council developed its priorities for the expenditure of $2.3 million of the $11 million Economic Development Administration funds in a June 21 letter to Gov. Evans, director of the Division of Budget Policy Planning and Coordination.

The Idaho State Penitentiary is in severe need of a cell house unit and a remodeling of the existing cell house, the letter said.

The Penitentiary Building Fund Advisory Council is a three-member panel.

The project cost is $1,685,000, the letter written by Marty Miller, deputy director of the Department of Administration, stated.

Don Erickson, director of the Idaho Board of Corrections, told the council Thursday that in two years the penitentiary will have 1,902 inmates and in five years the estimate is 1,230 prisoners.

Erickson said the census Thursday was 921 inmates — an increase of 71 percent in three years.

The state trailer houses presently are being used to contain prisoners and efforts are being made to obtain more, Erickson said.

With inmate labor, he said the facilities could be brought up from a cost of $2 million to $1 million, he said.

Evans recommended the council consider the project as a high priority.

He asked the members to rank the agriculture building, first followed by $15,000 for a women's prison facility in the former tuberculosis hospital at Gooding and $300,000 for the second phase of the Panhandle Health District project.

The governor said after his presentation that the penitentiary, which was designed for 40 inmates only, now houses 1,230 inmates. It is "qualitatively because one of the provisions for use of the money is that it can't replace other funds."

The 1977 Idaho Legislature appropriated $1 million from the anticipated sale of Eagle Island in the Boise River for use of the new penitentiary site.

But EDA representative Alfred Ames said the money can be used as a catalyst in addition to other money.

Richard Slaughter, planner with the Idaho Division of Budget, Policy Planning and Coordination, said the federal regulations stipulate that the funds cannot "reduce, diminish or replace other funding sources."

Gov. Evans said the council but I doubt the governor will approve it," Slaughter said.

Medics suspect pesticide illness

BOISE (UPI) — Military authorities are awaiting the results of blood tests to determine whether a pesticide caused a sudden illness this week for 30 Utah Army Reserve soldiers undergoing summer training at Gowen Field.

They are among 70 reservists from the Utah National Guard who came in contact with the pesticide malathion. Medical authorities say it is possibly a virus which has caused their breathing difficulties, headaches and nausea.

The men came in contact with the insecticide Monday from residue left in two-ton barrels used in a truck exercise and by inhaling fumes in the barracks. Col. Warren McPhillip, training site commander, said:

"Two barracks downwind from a loading area on Gowen Field used to store aerial spray service were shut down Wednesday night after a strong odor of pesticide was detected in the building.

The 54-gallon barrels were borrowed from a pile of empties after the troops obtained permission from the Sprays Company to use the barrels for a slalom course — rival companies' trucks "knocking their trucks through in the race competition."

A doctor said the residue inside and outside the barracks may have caused the sick illness Monday night when 30 men, including the ones who loaded the barrels, became ill. He said they displayed classical symptoms of malathion poisoning.

The men at Gowen for a 15-day training program were back on active duty Thursday.

March opposes ruling

BOISE (UPI) — Five dozen persons demonstrated outside St. Luke's Hospital for two hours Thursday night against a year-old Supreme Court ruling that eased restrictions on abortions.

Sponsored by the Idaho Right to Life Society, the march drew a crowd of about 45 adults and 15 children. They wore signs and carried candles.

The demonstrators held a "silent vigil" against a court ruling that extended abortion rights to unviable minors and held that a married woman may terminate a pregnancy without her husband's consent.

Tax exemption sought

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — The former head of the conservative Posse Comitatus in northern Idaho is seeking to have his property exempted from paying income taxes.

The Rev. Richard Butler said four other ministers of the newly formed church of Jesus Christ, Christian, Haven Lake, have decided their property over to church corporations and want that property taken off the tax rolls.

Libya, Iraq ready to cancel oil hike

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Libya and Iraq said they were prepared to cancel a 50-cent price hike scheduled for today, clearing the way for an end to a six-month price war and to split the OPEC cartel.

Oil ministers of the two Arab States said they would cancel the price increases if Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates bring their prices into line with the rest of the organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The announcements from Libya and Iraq raised the prospect that the price war, which has deeply divided the powerful 11-member cartel, could be formally resolved by day's end.

Libya broadcast word of its decision on Libyan Radio and Iraq announced its decision in an interview with the Wall Street Journal.

Libya and Iraq did not join the other OPEC partners who announced a 50-cent price hike on Wednesday in Vienna, Austria, that they would forego the hike. Saudi Arabia refused to take part today in a bid to end the OPEC price dispute.

The Wall Street Journal said Thursday a face-saving dispute had been holding up the announcement.

Gem land trading gains panel eye

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Public Instruction Sup. Roy Truly suggested the Land Grant Committee form a subcommittee to study the north in selection of in-land lands from the government.

Truly told the committee there was some good manageable timberland in the Clarkia area of North Idaho that the board should consider in the in-land exchanges with the Bureau of Land Management since there was a problem getting the agency to swap land in the Island Park Country.

He said the bid was a timbered area which would return a good investment for the State Endowment Fund, which provides money for the state's orphan children.

Truly, who also is a member of the Idaho Land Board, said the state should have a "viable" alternative to all other transactions fall through and said that the Clarkia area land would make a good alternative selection.

Trial for church rebel?

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A trial for a church rebel? Perhaps excommunicated Lefebvre or rule the French archbishop excommunicated himself by ordaining 11 followers as "priests" Wednesday in defiance of Papal authority.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, headed by moderate "Apostolic" Cardinal Ermenegildo Zeno, said the Vatican's top watchdog organization on church faith and morals.

Set up by Pope Paul III in 1542 as the Sacred Congregation of the Universal Inquisition to combat Protestantism, it changed names twice to escape some of the hatred it earned for the death sentences it imposed.

Its early victims included philosopher Giordano Bruno, burned at the stake in 1600; astronomer Galileo Galilei, who was forced to recant on his theory that the earth revolves around the sun.

Custer image said false

with the Indians and the Last Stand became a rallying cry for American imperialist revenge against the Indians.

The myth of the Last Stand was used by World War II Army officers and throughout American military history to act as a rallying image for troops.

However, for Slotkin the myth of Custer and the Last Stand is more a symbol of the "double-edged sword" of quality of American expansionism.

Still to come in the American Hero symposium here this weekend are presentations on "The American Hero and White Racism," "Wonder Woman: Super Heroines of the American Popular Culture," and "The American Film Hero."

Ted offers tax reform plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., proposed a wide-ranging tax reform program today, offering it to the administration as a "stimulus" for a "transfer" for debate over the President's own ideas.

The administration's proposals will not be presented to Congress until this fall, Kennedy's proposals would:

- Reduce the income tax rate range from between 14 and 70 percent to between 10 and 50 percent, cutting corporate tax rates from 48 to 45 percent.
- End the current 8750 personal exemption and replace it with a $200 to $250 tax credit to "provide the same relief to all taxpayers." Deductions, he said, provide a greater benefit to the rich. Deductions for home mortgage interest, payments, property taxes, and charitable contributions would also be converted to credits.

- Repeal the current preferential tax treatment of capital gains and taxation on inherited property.
- End "current tax discrimination against single persons" by establishing a single rate schedule for all taxpayers.
- Repeal deductions for state and local income taxes with the revenue returned to those governments as an incentive for local tax reductions.

Head Start receives boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Head Start program for needy preschool children is about to start again with its first financial strengthening package as a part of a package showing long-term, learning, and social gains among its participants.

"A child of the War on Poverty, Head Start appears to have won a battle," said Bernard Brown of HEW's Office of Child Development.

The administration quietly has signaled Congress it will accept a $200 million increase in Head Start funds, the first big money increase in a decade, said a Department of Health Education and Welfare official.

President Carter had asked a modest $10 million boost over the $75 million appropriated for fiscal 1977.

The House appropriations committee wants an extra $120 million to enroll 100,000 more children. The Senate wants to raise the ante to $365 million.

Head Start provides educational, social and health services for 3½-year-old children aged 3 to 6 in year-round, summer and experimental programs.

In its heyday, Head Start was billed as the Great Society program everybody could rally around.

Senate offers compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has agreed to meet President Carter halfway on his proposed elimination of 17 controversial water projects, voting to fund only 8 of them in hopes of averting a presidential veto.

The action came Thursday night as the Senate worked on a $10.2 billion appropriations bill for "water and public works projects and energy research. Approval of the measure, which also carries funds for the controversial neutron bomb and Clinch River nuclear reactor, will not come until after the July 1 recess.

The Senate worked on the water projects section of the bill until late in the evening.

Decision 'mistake'

FORMER President Gerald Ford said Friday evening the decision by President Carter cancelling the B-1 bomber was a mistake and he is strongly disagreed with it. "He is relying on a B-3 that is 20 years old or more and a cruise missile system that is still in the research and development stages," Ford said in San Francisco. (UPI)

Energy tax over hurdle

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

President Carter's plan to tax energy so Americans will use less of it has cleared its first big hurdle, somewhat changed from Carter's original proposal.

The House Ways and Means Committee completed work on the bill Thursday and will take its final vote in a formal vote July 13 when Congress returns from recess and the committee has a "clean" bill back from the printers.

The committee's top Democrat and Republican summarized opposing views on the massive measure. Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said it sets the basis for an energy program for this country. It follows the recommendations of the President, strengthening them in some cases, and making them more realistic in others.

"Every American is going to be much more conscious about the use of energy,"

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., said. "I am frankly frightened by the extent to which the government is meddling in day-to-day decisions."

In its four weeks of work, the committee killed Carter's gasoline tax increase and his price break for fuel-efficient cars. It approved a tax on gas-guzzler inefficient cars, tax credits for home insulation and solar energy, a tax to nudge industry from oil and gas toward coal, and a big tax designed to make domestic oil almost as expensive as foreign oil so demand for oil and its products will be discouraged.

Ban reaffirmed

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — While the July 4th celebration countdown well under way, the Consumer Product Safety Commission Thursday passed a 26-resolve, legal questions surrounding its partial ban on fireworks.

By a 3 to 2 vote, the commission reaffirmed its ban on fireworks larger than the 50-milligram "Lucky Finger" size standard fireworks. A commission lawyer said the reinstatement of the ban is effective immediately.

The ban was placed in jeopardy Tuesday when a federal appeals court ruled that the procedure by which the ban had been drawn up was improper. To clarify the matter before July 4, the commission called for another vote.

Before the ban took effect last December, the previous ban, which prevailed during the bicentennial Independence Day celebration, was 100 milligrams of powder. The ban also covered general safety rules concerning fireworks, but they were not involved in the court action.

Black revolt at polls hinted

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Politicians who retreat from their support of civil rights and turn their backs on efforts to end discrimination will face an election-day uprising of blacks, civil rights leader Benjamin L. Hooks says.

Hooks spoke Thursday at the 60th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, whose leadership he will assume Aug. 1. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was to address the convocation today. The five-day meeting ends tonight.

Hooks, who will succeed Roy Wilkins as NAACP executive director, said some liberal politicians considered friends of the civil rights movement are now turning their backs on efforts to end racial discrimination.

"If the South was based in law, the impression that if there is one racial in officer and one running for office, we vote for the one who was out, no matter how bad he was, just to shake it up," he said.

"If we have to shake up this country from top to bottom, we're capable of doing it and we don't mind doing it. We're tired of being treated as second-class citizens."

Carter accused of race bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A black Republican former member of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission refused to vacate his office. He says President Carter has discriminated against him illegally.

Colston A. Lewis, a Richmond lawyer who was appointed to the commission by Richard Nixon in 1970, defied Carter's order to move out of his office when his term officially expired at the close of business Thursday.

A spokesman said Lewis has been deprived by the President of his legal right to remain in office for another 90 days. She described it as "discrimination" — both racial and political.

She said Lewis suspects the administration wants him out now because he argues that the commission's proposed budget "might be the demise of the EEOC." The commission will discuss the budget at a meeting next Tuesday.

"That's not true," insisted White House attorney Margaret McKenna.

Airbags ordered for 1981 autos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Bedeck Adams says the government has a duty to make cars "socially responsible." He is ordering that new cars be equipped at least with 1981 whiplash or automatic seatbelts as a step toward that goal.

His aching order, designed to save the lives of motorists, including those who don't buckle up, is the final step in an administration program of tightening up — automobile safety, fuel economy, and pollution requirements.

In issuing the order Thursday, Adams estimated the mandatory safety systems will save 9,000 lives or more a year by the mid-1980s at a cost of $1.5 billion. The cost per vehicle of $25 to $100 for automatic seat belts or $100 to $500 for airbags.

U.S. auto accidents now claim 100 lives a day, with the toll hitting 47,000 deaths and 100,000 injuries a year, Adams said.

Ralph Nader and automakers — normally fierce opponents — joined to make cars "socially responsible."

Chrysler Corp. said Adams' program "was a high-cost, second-best approach compared to proposed laws requiring the use of existing seatbelts."

Nader said Adams yielded to political pressure by imposing the new restrictions starting in 1981 rather than 1980, and by applying them last to small, fuel-efficient cars.

Adams said new small cars were given the longest to comply because it will be harder to fit them with the new systems.

The insurance industry said the ruling will save lives, reduce injuries and hold down the rising cost of auto accidents.

Adams' order will go into effect unless Congress rejects it within 60 days.

The "official" exchange of ambassadors between the governments of Havana and Washington will take place next Sept. 1 in an official Cuban communiqué, announced.

Carter, Brezhnev box it out

By DAVID BINDER
© N.V. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The current state of United States-Soviet relations in terms of public appearances might be compared to a room in a boxing match between a rangy, young fighter and an over-the-hill but still dangerous slugger.

That is also the way President Carter, who is 52 years old, appears to see his relationship with Leonid I. Brezhnev, the 70-year-old Soviet leader, according to the observations of three of his White House associates.

But Carter and his foreign policy advisers are also aware that the match between the two world superpowers cannot end with a knockout. It is a long-term struggle that will go on and on.

Two days ago the President told a group of American newspaper editors that he did not expect any early improvement in relations with the Soviet Union.

He spoke with pride, as he has been inclined to do in recent weeks, of what he perceived as the success of his human-rights campaign, in which he was taken many a job at the Russians, as well as his rather radical initiatives to stop the spread in the world of nuclear weapons.

Carter, his foreign policy advisers say, feels confident, idealistic, dynamic, imaginative and the qualities of youth. He and his advisers also feel the Soviet leadership has become less confident, less dynamic, less imaginative and less appealing in short, the qualities of old age.

"They take heart, one said, from the conclusion that in contrast with past Soviet efforts to test new American Presidents by military ventures, as in the case of President Kennedy, the current Soviet leadership is content to confine its testing of Carter's will to the political arena.

The advisers contend that the two governments are moving along reasonably well in negotiations to ban all Soviet and American nuclear tests and talks on further steps to curb the spread in the world of nuclear weapons-making capability. They note also that Paul C. Warnke, the President's chief disarmament negotiator, is in Moscow to discuss measures for demilitarizing the Indian Ocean.

There is also an apparent wish by both Carter and Brezhnev to meet, perhaps later in the year, possibly without a fixed agenda, probably without fanfare, and without any pressure to achieve anything specific on a new strategic arms limitation treaty. Brezhnev indicated this desire last week to the French President. Carter has also the same wish in his foreign policy advice. Last week Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's adviser for national security, discussed with the Soviet Ambassador, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the possibility of a Carter-Brezhnev meeting.

Such an informal Carter-Brezhnev introductory session would be in sharp contrast with the practice inaugurated by former President Nixon and continued by former President Ford in their meetings with the Soviet leader. Those meetings were key to the conclusion of treaties and other major agreements.

Carter's sharply differing approach to dealings with the Soviet Union also prompts his advisers to argue that Brezhnev obviously needs to understand the Carter administration.

There is an hint in the remarks of the prestigious "aidos" that the Carter administration might be willing to adjust at least some of its ways of conducting international relations.

Judging from Soviet reactions to Carter's human-rights campaign and other initiatives, some of the annoyance expressed in Moscow may be ascribed to that lack of mutuality in the new administration's approach to bilateral relations.

But the Carter aides and the President himself profess to be utterly, and unmovably, by the somewhat cool and occasionally edgy relations between Moscow and Washington.

Alcohol center needs protection

Idaho needs a women's prison. But the state needs adequate help for alcoholics even worse.

A proposal to put women's prison in the old Idaho Tuberculosis Hospital at Gooding makes sense — except that the prison may doom the alcoholic treatment center already located in the building.

Under no circumstances should the alcohol treatment center get squeezed out by a new prison.

Idaho has between 35,000 and 50,000 alcoholics. Alcoholism and inefficient work caused by big payrolls in the state, according to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Motor vehicle accidents caused by alcohol amount up $22 million automobiles each year.

In light of these sobering statistics, putting a women's prison in Gooding at the expense of the alcohol treatment center doesn't make sense.

The state is woefully short of beds to treat alcoholics and the stigma of sending a man or woman to the treatment center located on the same grounds as a prison could ruin the treatment center.

The state of Idaho would get a bargain prison in Gooding. Renovating the old hospital into a detention facility would cost only $50,000 compared to a $5 million estimate for construction of a new prison.

Since the state is getting such a great deal at the hospital, perhaps some of the money saved by locating a prison in Gooding could be directed toward relocation of the alcohol treatment center. Perhaps a prison and an alcohol treatment center can operate peacefully and efficiently at the hospital.

But prior to any final commitment on prison in Gooding, the state of Idaho must carefully consider the need for protecting the alcohol treatment center.

Leary may be on right track

Throughout the 1960s, Timothy Leary spent much of his time spaced out. Now, the former LSD cultist is talking of outer space.

While his visions of space colonies by the end of the decade surely are fantasy, Leary may be a prophet of where mankind eventually will end up.

Leary is right that planet Earth is a shrinking globe.

Unless current population trends and resource consumption patterns change, man could be living on a crowded, exhausted planet in the next century.

With all the frontiers long closed on Earth, man could look to the stars for a new home, a new place to make a stand.

Always a visionary, Leary sent tingles down the spines of those who heard him speak at the Sun Valley Center's symposium on American Heroes.

Leary projected a vision of the future where man embarked on a great period of space colonization which offers unlimited potential for expansion of human experience.

That's an exciting prospect for the future.

This time, Leary may be on a track which will prove more fulfilling to mankind than his visions of expanded reality using psychedelic drugs.

Real estate prices go 'weird'

By ART BUCHWALD
© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — Something weird is going on with real estate prices in this country. I didn't realize how wild the prices of homes had become until a month ago.

Talkin who lived in a house that he bought for $20,000 ten years ago, rushed in to see me one night and said, excitedly, "I've been offered $90,000 for my house."

"That's great," I said. "What are you going to do?"

"Sell it, of course," he said breathlessly. "The purchase price was 'buying' it may change his mind."

"Where are you going to live?" I asked him.

"I'm going to buy myself the $90,000 house that I've always dreamed of: one with large garden and a golden in the back and maybe, a swimming pool or tennis court to go with it. I don't have to worry about keeping up with the Joneses any more because I'll be the Joneses."

"I'm very happy for you, Talkin," I said. "Every man should have his dreams come true. Maybe you better find such a house before you sell yours."

"Are you crazy?" When you've been offered $90,000 for a $20,000 house you don't wait for lightning to strike twice. I'm signing the papers tomorrow.

"I envy your upward mobility," I told him. "May God go with you."

A month later I ran into Talkin. His face was drawn and his shoes rattled nervously.

"Where are you living now?" I asked him.

"We're still looking for a place," he said sadly. "You can't believe what they're offering for $90,000 on the real estate market these days. They're sharks. They're not worth more than $20,000."

I looked at him yesterday. "I had your room in the back and a foot of land in the front."

"It sounds like your old house," I said. "I had a good house," he replied defensively. "The walls were thick and a brick was solid. It didn't look like much from the outside but after what I've seen, the guy who bought my home got a steal. He played me for a sucker. They don't build houses like the one I sold any more."

"I guess not," I said. "Maybe you should have kept it."

"And lose a $70,000 profit? That's the best business deal ever made!"

"But what good is it, Talkin, if you have to pay $80,000 for another house that isn't as good?"

"I was afraid you'd ask me that," he said.

"Why don't you offer to buy your old house back for $90,000 and forget the whole thing?"

"Because the guy I sold it to wants $125,000 for it."

"That's a lot for that house," I said.

"It's still better than the ones we've looked at," Talkin said. "It may not have much of a yard but the basement is completely paneled and it does have a well."

"But you're thinking of buying it back for $125,000?"

"I've offered him $120,000, and he said he'd think it over."

"That's a good deal," I agreed. "You lose $30,000 on it, but you instead of a $90,000 house, you'll have a $120,000 one, and that's not bad."

"I never thought of it that way," Talkin said. "In a few years it will probably be worth $150,000 and then if I sell it, I'll make a $100,000 profit."

The big question is will the guy sell it?"

"Sure he will," Talkin said. "As soon as he sees the furnace doesn't work."

S. Koreans dislike US withdrawal

By NORMAN THORPE
© Chicago Daily News

SEOUL — Ask a South Korean man on the street about the proposed withdrawal of American troops here and you understand a torrent of fears and objections.

He is haunted by the gruesome specter of the Korean War that began 25 years ago last Saturday.

He is "encouraged" by the government of President Park Chung Hee to keep the country alive.

A Seoul housewife who had attended government-organized gun-barrel tours in an civil defense drills, South Korea will need under weapons to ensure its safety from invasion from the north.

A provincial business man, chairman of an anti-Communist committee, says North Koreans have lists of those they dislike and will kill if they see South Koreans if they are true that Americans will leave.

Dependent on the Communist and neutral media for almost all information, the average Korean has little doubt the number of major attacks from North Korea has been increasing.

But in more sophisticated circles, the mood about President Park's proposal to withdraw U.S. ground troops over a five-year period is one of general acceptance.

Although many agree that a U.S. withdrawal will increase the possibility of an invasion from North Korea, there seems to be few who agree with Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, who said publicly, "If we withdraw our forces on the schedule suggested, it will lead to war."

For his outspokenness, President Carter called Singlaub home and the general was reassigned to command of the 1st Marine Division.

A European diplomat in Seoul said of the withdrawal: "There is an element of risk but I don't think it's a very great one. There's certainly no sense of alarm."

An African businessman here said, "How much it increases the odds is uncertain, but certainly not enough for my company to change its investment plan."

This is not to say Koreans do not oppose the troop reduction. To them, Singlaub is a hero. Even opposition parties and the government's most student critics have spoken against Carter's decision.

The Park government has sent the specter of Communist attack as a convenient and effective justification for its ever-tightening domestic control. General-become-president Park justified his 1961 coup in terms of the Communist threat. He has twice run for reelection on the platform that the menace was too great to risk changing administration.

Since 1971 he had declared, at least nine emergency laws, aimed primarily at stifling domestic opposition. All were justified in terms of the increasing threat from North Korea.

In the 1960s, North Korea's military might was easy to demonstrate. The most graphic examples were the 1968 capture of the USS Pueblo and the shooting down in 1969 of a U.S. EC-121 reconnaissance plane. Hundreds of incidents during the decade also included catching infiltrators from the north.

But the incidents lessened dramatically early in this decade.

After the begging for joint North-South Korean talks in 1972, the incidents almost ceased. Since 1974 when relations cooled again, there have been a few incidents each year. But even including two tunnels under the DMZ found in 1975 and the freezing of negotiations, there has been nothing comparable to the tension of the 1960s. The number of incidents had dropped so low that U.S. Army intelligence has discontinued its monthly report on them.

But the years of the Park government's dependence on the crisis-level threat have left a big confidence gap to fill.

As a Western diplomat put it, even the Korean military has "been dependent on the Americans so long that being thrown out on their own is kind of a shock."

Yet most observers here seem to concede that the government is taking the withdrawal in stride and is taking steps to fill the vacuum of public self-confidence.

As early as January, Park was quoted as having told senior military officers that the south was "about to enter a stage of surpassing North Korea in military capacity. In March, Park reportedly told his cabinet that the troops withdrawal plans were not in conflict with South Korea's aim of self-reliant defense by 1981.

At the end of April, South Korean media reported statements by Defense Minister Seo Jong Cheol before the National Assembly. According to Seo, the south already surpasses the north in military strength and defense industries.

Public opinion against the U.S. withdrawal is so useful to the Seoul government in its negotiations with the U.S. that Park doesn't want to suffer a complete turnover of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency has directed domestic media to play down stories of opposition and to play up Korean self-reliance.

Most important, the government has taken some of the wraps off the top secret defense industry. Recent presidential tours of defense plants got great publicity. Now the government is sponsoring tours of the plants for selected opinion leaders and other citizens.

A Kitegard who has taken such a tour expressed surprise about the degree of technological development. He had no idea, he said, of how advanced the industry has become.

While South Korea's self-confidence is only beginning, the foreign reaction to the proposed withdrawal is in fact, instability. Foreign investors express no loss of confidence and no outflow of foreign capital is taking place.

Overall, there seems to be general trust in the U.S. assurances that every effort will be made not to upend the delicate balance on the Korean Peninsula.

UN issues appeal

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The U.N. Security Council has taken its strongest stand yet against Rhodesia, asking all nations to help Mozambique defend itself against raids by the neighboring white-ruled country.

A resolution appealing for "immediate and substantial" aid to Mozambique was adopted unanimously Thursday by the 15 members of the Security Council, including the United States.

The resolution—did not specify whether the assistance should include arms—but the United States and other Western nations made it clear they did not intend to supply weapons to the East African Marxist state, a former Portuguese colony.

Diplomatic sources said, however, the resolution implied approval of "military material" opening the door for delivery of defensive weapons by the Soviet Union or other African states.

The resolution was the strongest ever adopted by the Council against Rhodesia, which has been accused of major attacks by troops, tanks, heavy artillery and jet planes.

He said an estimated $15 million in damage had been caused by Rhodesian incursions into Mozambique in search of black nationalist guerrillas, which included major attacks by troops, tanks, heavy artillery and jet planes.

Ambassador Andrew Young said before the vote the United States "wishes it clearly un-

Resort town shelled

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Guerrillas fired mortar rounds into Rhodesia's major tourist and gambling resort at Victoria Falls, damaging the kitchen area but causing no casualties, a military spokesman said today.

The government said the mortars apparently were fired from within Rhodesia, rather than from across the Zambezi River in Zambia, where guerrilla attacks have been launched.

No casualties were reported in the Thursday attack on the Elephant Hills Casino Country Club Hotel in western Rhodesia.

Today is Friday, July 1, the third day of 1977 with 183 to follow.

The moon is full and moving toward the last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

These born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

American actor, James Cagney was born July 1, 1901. On this day in history:

In 1859, the first intercollegiate basketball game was played at Princeton. Harvard beat Williams 16 to 12.

In 1898, Teddy Roosevelt and "Rough Riders" took San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American War.

In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated by the Democrats for president. FDR eventually won four consecutive terms and died July 19, 1945, at the age of 63.

In 1946, the first post-war test of the atom bomb occurred at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific.

A thought for the day: Hence, the human race said, "He has left the dead dead, who has made the beginning."

Mitchell given 'menial' job

JOHN MITCHELL

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — John Mitchell, the only attorney general ever sent to prison, has been assigned "menial" clerical duties at the federal prison where he is serving his 18-month sentence.

The 62-year-old Mitchell received the assignment Thursday, eight days after he entered the federal prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base.

Acting Superintendent Jim Pledge said Mitchell was put to work as a clerk in the education department, where inmates are given four hours of education.

"Basically, they do menial jobs that professional and supervisory personnel don't have the time to do themselves," Pledge said. Among the duties are scheduling interviews and keeping statistical records.

The clerical job is considered one of the most desirable in the camp, according to Charles Carson, an inmate lawyer, aide to Richard Nixon who served part of his sentence at Maxwell and worked in the clothing room.

Millionaire claims 'accident'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Texas millionaire W. Herbert Hunt says he once bought too many soybeans by accident but he has lost a federal court bid and his family never purposely tried to cheat the market.

Hunt testified in U.S. District court Thursday at a hearing on a suit by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission charging the family worked together to exceed the 1 million bushel trading limit on soybean futures.

The hearing before Judge Frank J. McGarr was on a CFTC request for an injunction preventing future trades in concert.

Hunt said it is possible other members of his family might have been present when he arranged to buy or more of his soybeans. And he said he often discussed his business dealings with his son, Douglas, who also is a defendant in the suit.

He said he once exceeded the soybean limit accidentally when he forgot to order a side before he bought a new contract.

"I lifted the wrong bean first," he told a laughing courtroom.

He continued the limo when he was asked if he receives a salary as president of the Hunt Energy Corp.

"I don't check," he said. "I don't think so."

Man sentenced for mail fraud

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge who sentenced a man for bilking the Veterans Administration out of $700,000 said he would have been happy to pay VA officials in prison too, because they made such times easy.

In sentencing the president of a South Side barber school to one year in prison, Thursday, U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr, said the VA itself is guilty of "stupidity and negligence" for failing to adequately monitor its programs.

"If the government had the wisdom and insight to indict the Veterans Administration, I'd send them to the penitentiary to join Mr. Copeland," McGarr said.

Percy Copeland, 45, was charged with collecting benefits for 1,313 students, although only 24 were eligible. Copeland pleaded guilty in May to two counts of mail fraud.

In another case last week, a federal court judge convicted the owner of a beauty college of cheating the VA out of more than $100,000 sent a note to U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. Decker. In the note, jurors blasted the VA for having what they called an inefficient auditing system.

Carter to pray for staffers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You White House staffers "who have slipped from grace" into the shadows of promiscuity, take heart, President Carter is praying for you.

Carter didn't concede his staffers or Cabinet members were living in sin, but he told a televised news conference "if there are some who have slipped from grace... I will do the best I can to forgive and pray for them."

Carter's comments came in response to a question from the Rev. Lester Kinsolving, an Episcopal journalist who wears a clerical collar on the job.

He wanted to know more about an aide's statement that although the President's own relationship was managable he never hid anything against staff members who were promiscuous.

Kinsolving attributed the statement to White House Special Assistant Peter Rubin, a psychiatrist and adviser on drug abuse.

Quinlans express gratitude

PATERSON, N.J. (UPI) — Karen Ann Quinlan's parents have expressed their gratitude to the Morris View Nursing Home for the "brave concern and goodness" given their comatose daughter during her brush with death last week.

The letter from Joseph and Julia Quinlan, addressed to the staff of the nursing home, was released Thursday by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Paterson at the request of the family which said it was now returning to "what is normal for us" after the week-long ordeal.

The statement confirmed what was rumored during that period that the 21-year-old Miss Quinlan had developed a severe infection which threatened her life.

She recalled that there was no treatment indicated for the infection that threatened Karen's life, beyond what was already being done," the parents said in the letter.

"Nature — God — cured her; we did not," it said.

Miss Quinlan has recovered from the infection and is now listed in "stable condition. However, she remains in a deep coma with no hope of recovery."

She was the focus of a "right to die" trial in the fall of 1975, when her parents sought court permission to remove the artificial respirator which was believed to be keeping their daughter alive.

The state Supreme Court granted their request in March, 1976. Several weeks later, Miss Quinlan was removed from the respirator and transferred from St. Clare's Hospital in Denville to the Morris County nursing home in Morris Plains, where she has been a patient for more than two months.

She lapsed into the coma on April 11, 1975, after taking a combination of alcohol and barbiturates.

Florida girl freed unharmed

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Charlotte Grasso, a 15-year-old girl kidnapped early Wednesday from a Girl Scout camp, was released unharmed today and authorities said the man who allegedly abducted her was in custody.

"Charlotte Grasso is safe and a suspect is in custody as of 10:20 a.m.," Sheriff's Capt. Ray Pilson said.

Pilson said the sheriff's department communication desk received a call from the girl and the suspect was arrested at about 10:15 p.m. near the pretty "cherry" balled authorities.

Pilson said Charlotte called from "an address" on nearby Siesta Key.

Charlotte was wearing only a Mickey Mouse T-shirt and underpants when she was dragged by her waist-length brown hair into the "denchairs."

Virginia Wallace, 45, who was in the tent with Charlotte and her 14-year-old sister Eleanor, said they heard movement in the brush outside all night long, indicating the man may have stalked the tent for hours.

Charlotte was released about 10 hours after she was dragged screaming from a tent at Girl Scout camp in the Oscar Scheerer State Park into some dense woods.

Authorities said they had an indication that Charlotte would be released today.

The suspect, not yet identified, was brought in handcuffed to the Sarasota County Sheriff's Department in an unmarked car.

The likely suspect, who appeared to be about 6-foot-4, had curly, bristly hair, a mustache and was wearing jeans and a white shirt with blue flowers.

Two hours before Charlotte was released and the suspect captured at Siesta Key, a plus-exclusive residential island off Sarasota, detectives said they hoped the kidnaper was a thrill-seeking nut killer.

Charlotte is a choir girl and acolyte at the nearby, Nokinis Venice Methodist Church, called her father at home Wednesday night, said she was unharmed and said the abductor had promised to release her soon.

That was the last authorities heard from Charlotte until she called the Sheriff's Department today.

"She said Charlotte was really jumpy. I don't think she got to sleep all night."

The three girls stayed up until 1 a.m. playing cards and listening to the radio, Virginia said, and she tried to comfort Charlotte the noises were rascals. They discussed the murders of three Girl Scouts at a camp in Oklahoma two weeks ago, she said.

"She said she only went to sleep, but she was awakened by Charlotte just before dawn."

"It's back," she told them. At that moment the mosquito netting at the back of the tent was ripped open, a figure lurched in and grabbed Charlotte's hair.

"Oh my God, it's got her!" Eleanor cried.

"Please don't take me," Charlotte screamed as the man dragged her into the brush.

Suspect's mother claims 'vision'

LOUCST GROVE, Okla. (UPI) — The mother of the man charged with killing three young Girl Scouts June 13 says a vision from God has convinced her that her son is innocent and not to be argued.

Gene Leary Hart, 42, a convicted rapist and kidnaper who escaped from the Maxey County Jail in 1974, is accused of killing Lari Lee Farmer, 11, Michelle Guse, 9, and Doris Denise Miner, 10, on their first night at Camp Scott.

"My boy didn't do it, God gave me a vision. He told me what was happening and I showed me that my boy ain't even in this state," Ella Mae Buckskin, 51, Hart's mother, said.

Although massive manhunt, Hart said Charlotte called from "an address" on nearby Siesta Key.

Charlotte was wearing only a Mickey Mouse T-shirt and

"He's not even in this state," Mrs. Buckskin said. "I know cause God told me so."

Authorities have searched two miles northwest of the Girl Scout camp and have kept it under surveillance.

"He's never been in my house," the mother said. "It's been four years since I seen him and when he left I was living in town."

He moved out here because I ain't well and I couldn't sleep in town 'cause all the noise."

Charlotte was released about 10 hours after she was dragged screaming from a tent at Girl Scout camp in the Oscar Scheerer State Park into some dense woods.

Authorities said they had an indication that Charlotte would be released today.

The suspect, not yet identified, was brought in handcuffed to the Sarasota County Sheriff's Department in an unmarked car.

'John Doe' rites draw 50 people

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — The 50 people who attended his funeral had no idea who he was.

"They only knew that he had been killed nearly seven months before in a traffic accident and that authorities had been unable to learn his name."

Thursday, the state Registry of Motor Vehicles, said a man watching a television news report of the unusual service tentatively identified the victim as his brother, Stephen Wilkinson of Boston.

Officials said they would seek approval to exhumate the body, buried Tuesday under the name "John Doe" at Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford.

The body was kept in the cemetery morgue for seven months.

The victim, about 25 years old, was struck and killed by a car in Medford last Dec. 10. He carried no identification and no one came forth to identify the body.

Registry Inspector Resegh, D. McLoughlin, who had tried unsuccessfully since the accident to find out the man's identity, said he was pleased so many people showed up for the funeral.

"I wanted someone to be here for this man," he said.

A change is taking place in the general weather pattern. A cold front will be moving into Idaho this afternoon and evening. This will produce scattered thunderstorms with chance of a few heavy thunderstorms over the mountain areas. Decreasing cloudiness is expected behind the front on Saturday, however, conditions will generally be windy and much cooler.

The extended outlook for Sunday through Tuesday, mostly dry and mild. High temperatures in the 75 to 80 range and overnight lows 45 to 55.

Tornadoes rake Indiana, Ohio

By United Press International.
Tornadoes lashed the Midwest, Ohio and Indiana and razing, thunderstorms gutted Chicago with torrential rains, and sent golf pros searching for cover in Wisconsin.

The storms left at least two persons dead.

A tornado destroyed a mobile home in Hodgenville, Ky., killing one person. Another twister destroyed five mobile homes in Carnation, Ky., injuring three persons. Gusty winds were widespread throughout Kentucky and trees and power lines were downed in most areas of the state.

Strong winds collapsed a partially constructed house in Kankakee, Ill., killing a workman.

More than six inches of rain drenched northern Illinois, mauling motorists on flooded highways and triggering widespread power failures.

Heavy rains forced authorities to open the locks on the Chicago River and dump untreated sewage into Lake Michigan.

A tornado hit Yorkville, Ill., slightly injuring one person, uprooting trees and shattering windows.

The Mississippi River town of Andalusia, Ill., received 6.3 inches of rain. Floodwaters ran 3 1/2 feet deep through some streets in Moline, Ill., stranding automobiles.

Ohio Gov. James Rhodes ordered the National Guard into Fremont, Ohio, where a tornado destroyed homes and businesses and downed power lines. No injuries were reported but damage was heavy and the town's downtown business district was left a shambles.

Reports of looting prompted the request for National Guard protection.

The roof of the Sandusky County Home in Fremont was blown off and the residents were evacuated by bus to a nearby home in nearby Green Springs.

Authorities said fallen trees blocked roads, making all travel in the Fremont area impossible. The twister also knocked out electricity in many areas.

The tornado was one of many that skipped across Ohio Tuesday night.

Twisters also hit "Hobart, Ind.," and "Hammond," including heavy damage but causing no major injuries. The entire downtown section of Hobart was blocked off to prevent looting.

Fourteen families spent the night in an emergency shelter in Hobart.

Heavy damage also was reported in Hammond and Mayor Ed Raskosky at one point asked Gov. Otis Bowen to call out the National Guard detachment, mostly to help in cleanup operations. However, that request was later withdrawn.

Tornadoes also caused scattered damage in several other Indiana communities.

Lightning struck two homes at Plymouth, Ind., touching off minor fires.

Thunder, lightning and rain forced a one-day delay in first round play of the PDA Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

Lee Trevino said he was on the telephone, preparing to talk to the links when the storm hit, reminding him of the lightning that indirectly struck him and Jerry Heard in the Western Open at Chicago two years ago.

"I really hung up and got under the bed," Trevino said.

Strike hits US copper industry

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — More than 35,000 union workers struck the U.S. copper industry today, walking out at seven of the eight major producers throughout the West and announcing plans to strike the eighth tonight.

The strike by 25 unions idled workers in seven Western states and smelters in New Jersey and Maryland.

Copper workers have struck in every contract year since 1963, with the walkouts averaging four to five weeks.

The eight major producers employ 85 per cent of the 45,000 U.S. copper workers and contracts at the five smaller firms which employ the remainder expire in 30 to 60 days.

The strike deadline at Magnum-Copper-Cos., the nation's second largest producer, was set for midnight tonight, when its contract expires.

About 400 representatives of 25 unions comprising the National Nonferrous Industry Conference called the strike Thursday after bargainers rejected a Kennecott-Copper Corp. offer of 88 cents an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

The unions called for parity with other metal workers including those in steel and aluminum, which require a raise of about 15 cents an hour.

Quakes hit Sicily town

TRAPANI, Sicily (UPI) — Heavy quakes (residents fled from the streets) were tremors, rocked this west Sicilian town Thursday night.

The tremors were light and caused no damage, officials said.

Trapani is on the fringe of the Balkan valley, where the earthquake zoned area killed more than 200 persons.

Earlier Thursday the Friuli region of northeastern Italy reported its 30th aftershock since an earthquake claimed 6,000 lives in May 1976.

Briton to preach in Jerome

JEROME — A British Methodist pastor, Rev. Cyril Dorsett, will preach at the Jerome United Methodist Church on July 3 at the 10 o'clock worship service.

Last year he celebrated the American story on independence Day. It's only fair that we learn from the other side," says the present pastor of the Jerome church, Glenn A. Williamson.

An expert on Methodist hymn history, Dorsett will be leading the congregation in hymn-singing as well as preaching. His expertise comes from years of serving in Jamaica and the West Indies where Methodism has been strong.

A retired district superintendent of the Oregon-Idaho Methodist Church, Dorsett has, for the past two years, been directing a pension-funding crusade in this area. To date, one and a half million dollars have been raised.

"His contagious enthusiasm and his remarkable vitality is seen in both his singing and in his preaching," says Waltman. "It's a pleasure to invite people from the Magic Valley to his service."

Services scheduled in South Hills

HOLLISTER — The annual traditional picnic and worship service hosted by the Hollister Community Presbyterian Church will be held this weekend in the South Hills at Bear Gulch about 35 miles south of Twin Falls.

The Saturday evening meeting set for 8 will include the usual bonfire activities of group singing, guitar, mandolin and ukulele music, a brief devotional and perhaps a luncheon.

Sunday's activities continue at 1:30 p.m. with a potluck dinner followed by regular church services at 2:30 p.m. There will be special music and speaker for the occasion will be Judith Donaldson, pastor of the Hollister Community Presbyterian Church.

Meat for the Sunday dinner will be furnished but guests are asked to bring a covered dish and/or potluck salads, desserts, vegetables, etc.

Anyone who desires to stay for the night should have a camper or a suitable tent.

The public is cordially invited, according to A. Richers, publicity chairman, Twin Falls.

Drive-In Church speaker named

TWIN FALLS — Robert C. Schreckenberg, pastor of the Eastside Southern Baptist Church, will be the speaker at the Drive-In Church this Sunday.

The church is held at 8 a.m. each Sunday at the Motor-Vu Drive-In Theater on Eastland Drive.

Schreckenberg's sermon topic is entitled "On Being a Good Citizen" and is taken from Romans 13:17.

Music will be provided by a women's quartet composed of Helen Johnson, Evelyn Kelsey, Mildred McClristian and Louise Schreckenberg.

Plants will be Mrs. Schreckenberg.

Everyone is invited to "come as you are" and to share in a fellowship after the service in which coffee, orange juice and doughnuts will be served.

Nazarene service time changed

TWIN FALLS — This Sunday only at First Church of the Nazarene the morning worship service will be at 10 a.m.

Dr. Kenneth Pearsall, from the Northwest Nazarene College will be the guest speaker and the congregation will join with the other churches at Twin Falls City Park for the special union service.

Another time change will be in effect until further notice. The Sunday evening service will be changed from 7 to 6. The midweek prayer service will be changed from 7:30 to 7:00 p.m. and will continue to meet at 7:30 on Wednesday evenings.

The public is invited to all of these services.

Adventists begin series of study

EDEN — The Eden Seventh Day Adventist Church will begin a new series of study this Saturday.

The lesson study title is "God's People," based on Gen. 17:2 and deals with fellowship with God.

The worship time speaker will be Hugh Cowles, pastor of the Jerome church. Communion service will be observed this Saturday.

Sabbath school begins at 9:30 a.m. with the worship hour at 11 a.m.

The Adventist Church is free to the public booklets on health-related subjects. Anyone interested in a certain subject may send their mailing address for the booklet to Box 418, Eden 83425.

Sermon topic announced

TWIN FALLS — The sermon topic at the First Church of Religious Science Sunday will be "On Gaining Independence."

The church holds services each Sunday at 10 a.m. in the YWCA Chapel on North Idaho Street.

Rev. Doreen Williams, minister of the church, says everyone is welcome to attend the services.

Lutheran women to attend conference

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. James Moore, Mrs. Melvin Quade and Mrs. A. P. Nelson from Our Savior Lutheran Church, Twin Falls, will attend the Sixth Triennial convention of the American Lutheran Church Women, July 13 to 17 in Portland.

Mrs. Nelson is the Snake River conference president.

Six hundred women from Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Alaska are expected to attend the convention.

Lesson-sermon title revealed

TWIN FALLS — The title of the lesson-sermon Sunday at the Christian Science Church will be "God."

Sunday services are at 10 a.m. and church services are at 11 a.m. Sunday and 4 p.m. Wednesday at the church, 169 Ninth Ave. E.

The Reading Room, 92 Main Ave. S. is open from noon to 1 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Sacramental wine, singing bring trouble

HOUMA, La. (UPI) — It wasn't so much drinking the sacramental wine that got Larry Reed in trouble — it was sitting around church dressed only in an altar boy's cassock and singing at the altar.

Terrebonne Parish sheriff's deputies said they received a complaint of someone running naked in the church and found Reed, 26, in the last pew of St. Francis De Sales Cathedral without clothing and drunk on sacramental wine.

He was arrested and charged with criminal mischief.

SISTER BERNITA GREET'S WOMAN ... on arrival in Twin Falls

Parishioners greet 2 Catholic sisters

By DEB MENDIOLA
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — After six long years, two sisters of the Order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary have come home.

Sister Bernita and Sister Mary Zita, who left Twin Falls six years ago when St. Edward's Catholic School closed due to a shortage of sisters, have returned to do parish ministry, which includes visiting the sick, taking the census and helping out in the parish wherever they can.

"Words just can't describe how it feels to be back," said Sister Bernita, "everyone has been so receptive," she commented.

Sister Bernita, who is currently teaching at St. Ambrose School in Bridgeport, Conn., was a sister at St. Edward's Parish for 19 years. Six of those years she served as principal.

Sister Mary Zita, who recently changed her name to Sister Carolyn, taught the second, fourth and eighth grades during her 10 years in Twin Falls. She was principal of the school the last two years of its existence.

"I changed my name out of necessity," said Sister Mary Zita. "When I applied for a driver's license, the man wouldn't issue it to me under a religious name."

Sister Mary Zita, who has been teaching religious education in Millford, Pa., for the last four years, will return to Brantley to begin a new teaching assignment in the fall.

Sister Bernita will return to Connecticut.

After 40 years in existence, St. Edward's closed its doors in 1973. Girls just weren't joining the convent and there weren't enough sisters to staff the schools.

At that time the Catholic order also closed its parochial doors in Coeur d'Alene and Gresham, Ore. These three communities were the only ones, west of Pennsylvania, that had schools operated by the order of sisters.

The logistics of operating the schools over long distances made it difficult to continue operation.

When asked about reopening the school in Twin Falls, Sister Bernita commented that it would be "nearly impossible." "We've had to close three more schools back east this year," she said.

The school was donated to the South-Central Community Action Center in 1971, where the administrative staff, the Senior Citizens Agency, the Neighborhood Center and the full-day Head Start day-care program are still housed.

The convent, which was located behind the school on Seventh Avenue East, was recently purchased by Stan Rose Jr. to be restored for personal use.

The sisters returned, but without a school or a home.

"I feel the removal of the convent adds to the beauty of the clinic," said Sister Bernita optimistically.

"The changes that have taken place since I left speak of growth," said Sister Mary Zita. "I'm delighted with them."

The sisters, who arrived in Twin Falls Monday night, were greeted by a large crowd of former students and parishioners, carrying a bouquet of roses for each and a "welcome home" sign.

The sisters will be staying in the home of James Kirgan, Twin Falls. They plan to return to the east in the middle of August.

Union church rites planned in TF park

TWIN FALLS — A Union church service in the Twin Falls City Park will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. by the Twin Falls Ministerial Association.

Association officials said a favorable response last year to the Bicentennial Fourth of July services has prompted area ministers to plan a similar program for the July 4th holiday weekend this year.

Special speaker will be Dr. Kenneth Pearsall, president of the Northwest Nazarene College.

Music will be furnished by a group composed of choir members from all of the churches and under the direction of Willie Wrighter. A practice session for the choir will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday in the First United Methodist Church.

Organists will be Dennis McCracken and pianist will be Robyn Snow.

One-man show features pioneer 'Brigham Young'

TWIN FALLS — Brigham Young, in the person of James Arrington, will visit the Magic Valley during the Pioneer Day celebration planned for the week of July 19th through the 23rd.

Brigham Young pioneer, colonizer and Mormon Church leader, tells his own story in the one-man show, "Here's Brother Brigham" to be staged at the College of Southern Idaho auditorium on July 19, 20 and 21st.

The show begins at 8 o'clock.

Tickets are available at Crowley's Pharmacy and the "Music" Center in Twin Falls. All seats are $2.

Arrington, author and star of the show, tells in Brigham's own words the epic of his life from his beginnings as a poor Mormon settler to ruler of a vast territory in the wild and unsettled west.

Arrington read 20,000 pages of personal letters, speeches and biographies and talked with dozens of Brigham's descendants. From this he gleaned his characterization and script, "Brigham" says Arrington. "Brigham Young wrote the script" and edited it.

"Here's Brother Brigham" reveals the Mormon leader as a man of surprising warmth and skill. His opinions on everything from his enemies in the federal government to the difficulties of plural marriage are delightful and perceptive.

Ra worshipers recreate temple

Chicago Daily News
 CHICAGO — The rich aroma of incense filled the room as the white-robed priestess held her arms outstretched and intoned a prayer, invoking the powers of Ra, the ancient Egyptian sun god.
 The priestess gleamed on the graceful shapes of her face and her hands as eight other robed figures stood around an altar laden with figurines and the trappings of one of the world's oldest religions.
 Nineteen members of the Temple of Isis-Herakl (Clark) were reenacting the Egyptian rites on the scene of the new moon.
 But the ceremony took place recently in Rollingbrook, Ill., thousands of miles from the sacred River Nile, and the purpose was not to worship ancient gods but to experience metaphysical power.
 Rosemary Clark is the priestess who conducted the rite, chanting both in Egyptian and English. It was in her home in the far southwestern suburb that the temple had been created.
 The ceremony was deadly serious, with the participants wearing grave expressions as they made offerings and shared in a communion ritual.
 "That was because 'the forces invoked by the rite are very potent,'" said Mrs. Clark, 29, who founded the temple 2½ years ago.
 "People who have drawn 20 persons to join the group, seeking strength to make them whole in a society that has created millions of incomplete, unfulfilled people," Mrs. Clark said.
 Hence, her interest in the religious forms of ancient Egypt — where priests and priestesses were everything — healers, political leaders, mystics and the learned.
 Their temple is on the first floor of the two-story frame house in a tree-lined residential neighborhood. Not far away are the massive concrete dome of an amusement park and a shopping center.

 But the temple is far removed from these symbols of bustling, ultra-urban America. In the dimly lit room, the shape that is revered is the ancient, geometrically simple and powerful pyramid.
 The trappings of the temple are rich in the humanistic arts — the hand-molded-terracotta figurines, the hammered metal of altar-decoration and scepters, and plaster-shaded portraits of deities in the Egyptian pantheon.
 Among the sources of power pursued by temple members are meditation, divination, astrology and healing.
 There are grades and ranks within the temple attained through study and initiation, and denoted by colored sashes draped over the ceremonial robes.
 "The practice and application of the disciplines depends upon the individual members — each selects the identity of a particular deity in whose name service is rendered.
 Healing, for example, may involve the use of diet — discipline — yoga — zone therapy — healing — transference, meditation and the laying-on of hands. Healing rituals are among those practiced in the new room rite, and the temple claims some success.
 But the prime motivation for joining the temple is to develop personal qualities often not stressed or actually neglected by society," Mrs. Clark said.
 Of the men in the temple, many select the identity of Osiris to represent their path to knowledge.
 "Osiris portrays the tenderness of the father, the loyalty of the brother and the gentleness of the rook," she said.

Group appears in TF

ONE of five ensembles representing Bob Jones University on tours throughout the country this summer will present a program of sacred music at the Bible Baptist Church, 315 Shoup Ave. W., Twin Falls. The program will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday. This male group will sing special arrangements of familiar hymns and gospel songs. Members of the group are Brian Parrish and Ron Hawker, tenors; Tom Bartz, bass; Tim Fisher, baritone, and Ed Rea, pianist. Director of the group and speaker will be Greg Kaminski. Hawke is a sophomore majoring in sacred music. Bartz and Rea, both juniors, are majoring in sacred music and piano, respectively. Parrish and Fisher are seniors majoring also in sacred music. Kaminski graduated in June from BYU with a major in Bible. The group of six — who came from California, Georgia, Michigan, North and South Carolina — is typical of the students at the university in Greenville, S.C.

Lefebvre watched by US Catholics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The near schism of the Roman Catholic Church brought on by traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre's defiant ordination of 14 new priests will have little impact on Catholicism in the United States.
 While Lefebvre's actions may bring about the first formal schism in the Church since 1870 and has stirred considerable interest in the United States, there are few, if any, as Lefebvre's followers are cited in this country.
 "We can't say it is without significance," one official said Wednesday. "But it is probably not very large in absolute."
 "Lefebvre is a man of his time," said James Hitchcock, chairman of the Latin Liturgy Association, "is that they (Lefebvre's followers) are very small in this country," and that once they see him as a schismatic, they will break with him.
 There are an estimated 10,000 of Lefebvre's followers in the United States — out of a U.S. Catholic community approaching 30 million.
 At the same time, officials say that there is an unknown number of "conservative" Catholics — those unhappy with the changes in the Church wrought by Vatican Council II.

 "There is a good deal of discontent with what people try to make of the Council," Hitchcock said.
 Lefebvre has not only called Pope Paul VI a heretic, but also a tool of communism. His opposition to the Vatican stems from everything that has happened in the church in the past 15 years — they believe there is heresy in the Vatican," Hitchcock said.
 "He said 'perhaps in a worldwide context — especially in Western Europe' Lefebvre's latest act is significant." But I don't see it as having a significant impact here."
 Catholic officials said that while "we can't say it is without significance" and that "we don't want to go too far — what has happened" in Europe the movement has become tied in with right wing politics.
 "There is no real analogue to that kind of movement in the United States," officials said.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was recently wed to a wonderful man in all respects except one. He insists on keeping the pictures of all his previous girlfriends, and he has had quite a few. He has them all neatly matted in a large picture album, which he insists on leaving on our coffee table, along with our wedding album.

When we have friends over, to be sure they don't miss it, he starts going through the albums, bragging about all the chicks he's had.

I voluntarily destroyed all the pictures I had of myself and previous acquaintances, and I think he should do the same.

He knows how I feel because I've mentioned it several times. He says I am being childish—that there is nothing wrong with recalling a few memories.

His keeping and showing that album hurts me deeply. How can I get him to stop, Abby? Should I destroy them myself and put an end to it?

HURT

Hubby keeps brag album

DEAR HURT: No, but tell him that his recalling those memories hurts you deeply and to please put them out of sight. A married man who needs to brag about the "chicks" he's had is an insecure little boy whose "manhood" needs constant reassuring. He also has a touch of cruelty.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor boy and I are pretty good friends, but he's never asked me for a date. He's 19 and I'm 18. He is quite handsome and by no means shy, but he hasn't dated much. I'm a little bit overweight, but have been told that I have a pretty face and good personality.

One night we were sitting on my front porch, and he asked me to get him a date with a good-looking girl. He said he could take a girl to the movies, hold her hand and take sweet to her as well as any other boy.

Now, here's what I want to ask you: If I were to tell him that I could be taken to the movies, my hand could be held, and I would enjoy sweet talk more than some good-looking girl who hears it every Friday night, would he get the wrong idea?

CINDY

DEAR CINDY: No, he'd probably get the RIGHT idea.

DEAR ABBY: How does one forget someone he loves? It can't seem to get over her. It's not true that time heals. The pain seems to be getting worse as the days and weeks go by.

I have even thought about moving to another city, but no matter where I go I'll see the kind of car she drives, and every time I turn on the radio I'll hear the songs we both liked. I'll still think of her when I see her favorite color, or actor, or television program. She is on my mind constantly, even though there is no hope of reviving the relationship.

I know it would be best to forget her (as long as there is still love and tenderness in as much as ever), is it possible to forget? Can you kill love? If so, tell me how.

PIECES

DEAR PIECES: You can't "kill" love, but you can let it die quietly from maintenance. Don't permit yourself to dwell on thoughts of her. The moment they come into your mind, drive them out with another thought about something else. The less you allow "her" to live in your memory, the sooner you'll get over her.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box No. 69704, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb— I have a stomach problem. The X rays showed a slightly herniated diaphragm and no active ulcers. I get heartburn and sour stomach after meals on some occasions and especially if I lie down after meals. I also get burning in bed at night if I roll and change positions.

My most pressing problem is a burning sensation while I am eating as the food enters my stomach. Some foods such as citrus fruits and juices, tomatoes, sauces made from tomatoes and foods containing vinegar will cause this at all times. Other foods will do this also on some occasions.

I have been told that a sensitive stomach and spasms give me this burning sensation as I eat. Does this sound right for the cause of this?

Dear Reader— Your doctors are telling you that you have a hiatal hernia, a hernia of a small part of your stomach through the hole in your diaphragm. This is often associated with locking the contents of your stomach back into the lower esophagus; the food tube between your mouth and stomach. The normal closure mechanism prevents the leak but your closure mechanism is not working right.

The stomach is protected from the acid digestive juices with a thick mucus layer. The lower esophagus is not and the acid digestive juices burn and irritates it. It can cause an ulcer in that location as well. The only cause the burning sensation you complain about, just under the tip of your breast bone.

There are a lot of things you can do. Eat small meals, do not lie down after eating. You have already found out that causes burning. Don't eat fats or meaty dishes for your evening meal so that will delay stomach emptying.

You will do better if your bed is propped up and you will find that sleeping on your back or left side helps.

To give you the information you need I am sending you The Health Letter number 14, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux. Others who want this issue, can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1541, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Dear Dr. Lamb— Can you explain what causes a person's blood to be very thick and need to have a pint of blood removed every month or so, sometimes twice a month? The blood can't be used for anything and is simply thrown down the drain. If the blood isn't removed twice a month the year around, he becomes very sick.

Dear Reader— You are probably describing a condition doctors call polycythemia vera. Which means simply a true overproduction of red blood cells. It is distinguished from known causes, but increased red blood cell count may be due to exposure to altitude. No one knows what causes polycythemia vera. The usual treatment is removal of the excess blood that is formed. If that is not suitable for management, some patients are treated by chemically thinning the bone marrow so it will stop producing too many cells. As long as the veins are simple from the periodic removal of blood that is probably the best approach.

The name of the volunteer of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letter personally, but he will answer representative letters of general interest in the column.

Infant displays aquatic skills

8-MONTH OLD FREDDIE GETS TOSSED IN THE WATER. Freddie is star pupil of Olympic Champion Greta Andersen.

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (UPI) — They cheered when baby Frederick Garcia III fell in a swimming pool. When he got out, his father held him high and hurled him back in.

Freddie wasn't a hattered child.

He was in the process of becoming the youngest person ever to pass a Red Cross beginner's level swimming exam.

Freddie is only eight months old.

Crying all the way, except when he was blowing bubbles. Little Freddie proved Wednesday that he can float, paddle about and generally slave off drowning for a while, even if he can't walk or talk yet.

The infant displayed his aquatic skills at the swimming school of Greta Andersen, the Olympic champion who coached him in the pool back in 1948 and went on to claim dozens of distance records, including English channel crossings both ways.

Miss Andersen said the red-haired infant is the youngest ever to pass the water safety beginner's test and the most promising among the several hundred children at her school.

On a wall is posted the admonition: "All children three years and under MUST wear diapers and tight rubber pants to enter the pool."

Freddie's parents, Dr. Frederick Garcia Jr. and his wife, watched proudly from the sidelines along with reporters, photographers and television crews as Miss Andersen put her star pupil through his routine.

First Freddie floated on his stomach and blew bubbles in the water. Then he turned over on his back and floated, crying lustily. Miss Andersen put him on the side of the pool in a sitting position and he fell in on his face in what passed for a dive.

She dunked him a couple of times and he struggled to the surface and turned over on his back, which turned out to be his best feat. In that position he paddled about 15 feet.

As the piece de resistance, Dr. Garcia lifted the child up above his head and threw him into the pool from the side. Freddie surfaced, crying and turned on his back.

Miss Andersen proclaimed that he had passed with flying colors and draped her Olympic Gold Medal around his neck.

"It's good discipline and he's established a trustful relationship with another person."

A spectator wondered aloud what Greta would have done if Freddie flunked the test.

A school assistant, who shall remain nameless, said: "She probably would have drowned him."

"It's been the best thing in the world for him," beamed his mother. "It's good discipline and he's established a trustful relationship with another person."

Miss Andersen is unfazed by her pupils' howling when they hit the water.

"Better they cry now than have the parents crying later," over a drowned child, she observed.

Painting face fad hits youth

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI) — One of the "latest fads" in this seemingly carefree-oriented Summer of '77 is to have your face painted in bright colors and wild designs and then walk around soaking up double-takes from passersby.

"Why not?" said a youth with crisp, clean lines of washable paint forming jagged red stars around his eyes. "It makes me feel really free for awhile. I have no cares and the rest of the world is just spinning."

The fad has especially caught hold at places like Kings Island amusement park, where artists are charging from between $1 and $2.25 for facial paint-jobs.

"We just started it this summer and a lot of people want it done," said 18-year-old Kelly Dunlap, one of several young artists whose entire summer job will consist of painting faces.

"When I finish, the people stand in front of our mirror and just stare and stare. They can't wait to go walk around the park. I think it makes them feel like a different person."

"They may be a little self-conscious at first, but a lot of them come back later in the day and tell me they really like it. Some want to know if they can go home and sleep with it on and keep it the next day. But it's washable paint and rubs off on pillows."

TAMMY BLACKBURN engaged

August wedding planned

SHOSHONE — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Blackburn, Vale, Ore., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter Tammy Jeanette to Sherman Dale Sorenson.

Sorenson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman F. Sorenson, Shoshone. Miss Blackburn is a 1970 graduate of Shoshone High School and is employed at Capital Educators Credit Union, Boise.

Sorenson, also a Shoshone graduate, is currently employed by the Union Pacific Railroad in LaGrande, Ore.

An August wedding is planned, then the couple will reside in Boise where Sorenson will attend Boise State University.

briefs

TWIN FALLS — Tracy Hackett, a graduating senior at Twin Falls High School, has been awarded a $200 general scholarship for the 1977-78 school year at the College of Southern Idaho. Miss Hackett will receive $100 each semester for the coming year.

WENDELL — Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McGhee, Wendell, will observe their golden wedding anniversary Sunday. Their children are honoring them with an open house to be held at their Wendell home from 2 to 5 p.m.

The couple was married July 3, 1927, in Compton, Ark. They moved to Jerome in 1930 and farmed there until 1963 when they moved to Wendell. They formed until retirement six years ago. They have three daughters.

Mrs. Oda Sturtevant and Mrs. Juanita Hurd, both Wendell, and Mrs. Arnela Anderson, Nampa, seven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren and all friends and relatives are invited to the open house. The family requests no gifts.

Battered wives book topic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than half of America's wives — some 28 million women — are victims of physical abuse by their husbands and 10 percent of them have been subjected to "extreme violence," according to the author of a new book.

Richard C. Levy, author of "Wife Beating: The Silent Crisis," says the total includes wives who are occasionally slapped as well as those who are severely beaten.

Calling battered wives "the missing persons of official statistics," Levy says the government is just starting to show concern for the problem because there has been so little documentation on it. Legislation to aid the victims of wife beating was introduced in Congress for the first time last week.

Levy, said in an interview, that his estimate of 28 million abused American wives was based on nearly identical findings obtained by social scientists in seven separate surveys.

"We have discovered enough evidence to point out a wife-beating syndrome in America today," he said. "The experts tell us our estimates may even be too low."

In his book, Levy conceded that the term "abuse" is inexact.

Levy's book also includes physical violence ranging from an occasional slap to a severe beating, the experts believe that more than half of all U.S. couples engage in it, he said.

In the category of extreme violence, he concluded from one scientific study that there are at least 4.7 million badly battered wives in the United States today, "or 10 percent of the estimated 47.5 million married women."

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader asks who is responsible for this rubber-bridge disaster. The bidding goes pass-pass-one heart-one notrump-double redouble-pass-pass-pass. The notrump bidder makes a couple of overtricks and it seems that the third hand bidder had 10 high-card points and a heart suit consisting of queen-10-x-x.

It is hard to give a Solomon like judgment when you don't know everyone's hand, but we feel that anyone who opens with 10 high-card points and a queen-10-x-x suit deserves anything bad that happens to him.

15 fires reported

TWIN FALLS — Fifteen forest fires have already occurred in the Sawtooth National Forest this season, Bob Powers, fire dispatcher said Thursday. With the July 4th weekend coming up, most camping and picnic areas are expected to be crowded; cooperation from the public is needed to minimize fire danger, he said. Unauthorized fireworks previously have accounted for about two fires per year in the Sawtooth National Forest. Any and all fireworks are illegal in the national forests. Powers reminded recreationists. Powers said fire danger is now increasing rapidly and while the fires to date this year have been rapidly controlled, many parts of the forest are now dry enough to provide fuel for a major fire. The Sawtooth is now in the final stages of lookout mauling and fire crew rosters are full and manpower trained.

Sentence suspended

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Judge Theron W. Ward sentenced Kent Bradley Mattison to 14 years in jail, then suspended the sentence and placed him on three years probation for his part in an alleged fencing operation uncovered last January. The Times-News earlier reported Mattison, 22, Twin Falls, was sentenced to 14 years in jail, and three years on probation after he pleaded guilty to a felony charge in connection with a June, 1976, theft from a local jewelry store. The Times-News regrets the error.

Landfills to close

TWIN FALLS — Landfills in all areas of Twin Falls County will be closed Sunday and Monday for the July 4th holiday. Darrel Heider, county sanitation director, said the landfills will close to give workers a deserved holiday. He said normally on holiday weekends, the county residents are celebrating the occasion and landfill volumes are not in heavy demand. Regular hours will resume at all of the landfills on Tuesday.

Complaint filed

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls County men are seeking more than $145,000 from an insurance company and local insurance agents. In a complaint filed in Fifth District Court, Grant and Gary Stuart charge Northwestern National Insurance Co., Lloyd A. Hamilton and Zane Parker with "negligence and carelessness" which caused Gary Stuart not to receive state workers' compensation benefits after injuring his shoulder on the job in July, 1975. Gary Stuart is an employee of Grant Stuart Painting Co., a local painting contracting company, according to the complaint. The complaint asks for $100,000 punitive damages, $50,000 in alleged insurance benefits, $15,000 general damages and attorney fees.

Safe July 4 urged

TWIN FALLS — Parents in Twin Falls were warned today by Fire Marshal Chas Harkins to allow their small children to discharge "safe and sane" fireworks only under adult supervision. Harkins said many of the fireworks which are "legally" safe, can also cause serious burns or injuries. He said there are also many dry trends and vacant lots where these fireworks can start fires. Harkins also said the larger illegal fireworks which are being purchased in some surrounding communities will be confiscated by firemen or city police if found.

Salary hike higher for school officials

TWIN FALLS — Salary increases for Twin Falls school administrators next year will be much higher than those given other school district employees. Officials argue, the wage hikes are fair, however, since administrators received no pay increases at all this year. Under a schedule approved earlier this month by the school board, principals, vice principals, central office directors and other supervisory personnel will receive pay increases averaging 13.1 per cent during the next school year. By contrast, base pay for teachers will go up only about 2.3 per cent, and salary increases for janitors, secretaries and other non-certified personnel will go up only about 5 per cent. Despite the difference in pay increases, assistant Supt. Clarence Meyer argues the administrators and teachers are actually on a par since no pay raises were given to administrators this year, while teachers received a pay hike of 2.65 per cent. A teacher who started at the district's base pay of $18,000 in 1975, for the year the present administrative salaries were set, would be making $9,065 next year through pay increases and 5.6% adjustments on the salary schedule, Meyer said. He said this represents a 13.3 per cent wage hike slightly more than equalling the amount administrators are averaging this year. Meyer says the large administrative increase this year in the face of the smaller increase for teachers "is an effort to keep them on the same plane and keep them about even." Meyer's sense of fairness in the salary increases is not shared by teachers, who have now called for mediation to try to break a deadlock in negotiations with the school board. Al Ware, now president for the Twin Falls Education Association (TFPEA), the teachers' union, said the administrative increases "simply reflect our argument that there is something in the budget for some of our programs." "I kind of feel they (the administrative increases) are unfair at this time, but it's something I expected," Ware said. Meyer argues that despite the increases Twin Falls administrators are still about average for administrators in other large school districts in the state. Meyer says the new salary schedule under which the administrative pay increases were granted provides for more equal treatment among administrators and will make equitable pay increases easier in the future. The new schedule for the first time establishes a base pay for administrators -- next year $11,515 -- from which all administrative salaries are to be calculated. Meyer said salary increases have been approved for all administrative personnel except himself and incoming superintendent James Sauer. This year Meyer made $22,500 and the superintendent was paid $25,000.

'Shelter home' faces closure

By BOB ZUCKERMAN Times-News Writer TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Prosecutor Frank J. Dykes plans to file a misdemeanor complaint today against Mrs. Bertina Doyle, 60, Twin Falls, for allegedly operating an illegal shelter home. Mrs. Doyle, who lives in a recently purchased duplex on Elizabeth Boulevard, admitted earlier this week she is taking care of three mentally handicapped men at her home in a residential zone. State law requires anyone offering shelter home care to more than two persons must acquire a license from the state. Mrs. Doyle said she has applied with the state health and welfare department, seeking to acquire a license so she can operate a shelter care home from her 563.00 residence. She said she would like to care for the three men in care of eight handicapped persons at her home. Welfare department officials said this week they told her earlier they could not issue her a license until she cleared up zoning problems she faces with city officials. City Atty. Charles Brumbaugh asked the county prosecutor to file charges against Mrs. Doyle because shelter homes are not allowed by city ordinance in residential zones. In addition, Dykes and Brumbaugh announced they have formally requested the state health and welfare department director file an injunction against Mrs. Doyle, seeking to stop her from taking care of more than two handicapped persons. "I'm not doing anything wrong," Mrs. Doyle said earlier. "I'm just trying to aid some helpless people and stay off welfare myself." Mrs. Doyle's attorney Randy Stoker said the city code section not allowing shelter homes in a residential area is a form of discrimination. He argued another section of the code defining family, allows Mrs. Doyle to take care of three persons in her home. If two conflicting parts of the code exist, the city must give the property owner the benefit of the doubt, he said. The state has a valid interest in insuring adequate facilities, training and supervision in shelter care homes," the county prosecutor said. He said he had "nothing against shelter homes which are needed to help the handicapped," but said he could not allow them ones to exist, "especially since she has publicly announced she is in violation and plans to stay in violation." Mrs. Doyle was to be arraigned today in magistrate court. If found guilty, she faces up to $300 fine for each day of operation and up to six months in jail. Before moving into the duplex on Elizabeth, Mrs. Doyle had lived at 1220 Heyburn Ave., also in a residential zone, and housed the three handicapped men for about 18 months, welfare department officials said. Two of the handicapped men moved in with Mrs. Doyle after living at the Idaho State School and Hospital for the mentally and physically handicapped. "They were ready to leave," and state officials helped them find Mrs. Doyle, Corie Poulsen, state health and welfare official in the adult and child development center, said. The third man came to the welfare department seeking a place to live and department officials gave him the name of Mrs. Doyle, one of them Mrs. Doyle's home, Poulsen said. "We informed him and his parents that the place he entered would have to have a shelter care license," Poulsen said. Mrs. Doyle had applied with the department for a license at her old home, but welfare department officials ruled they could not give her a license because it was a basement apartment, Poulsen said. Mrs. Doyle has applied for a license to operate at her new residence but licensing officials have told her they will not issue her one until the legal problems involving city zoning are cleared up, Poulsen said. At Hatterman, welfare department official in the licensing division, said he had visited Mrs. Doyle's duplex in March to explain licensing requirements because she had asked for a license. "I thought at the time she was operating a foster home," Hatterman said. "If we've caused more persons to be placed in a home than are allowed, that's an error."

Moratorium placed on sewer hookups

(Continued from p. 1) A moratorium on subdivision sewer hookups in Retchum from May, 1976, to April, 1977, caused construction to slow there, Phil Puchner, Retchum City Councilman said today. Three subdivision developments "were held up for about a year," he said. Miller publicly requested that Dr. Lee Stokes, director of the environmental division of the state welfare department, meet with him to discuss the problem. Miller said he has also formally requested the state health and welfare department would remain in effect until the sewage plant meets federal and state discharge requirements for at least 60 days in a row. "The 60-day requirement was set based on

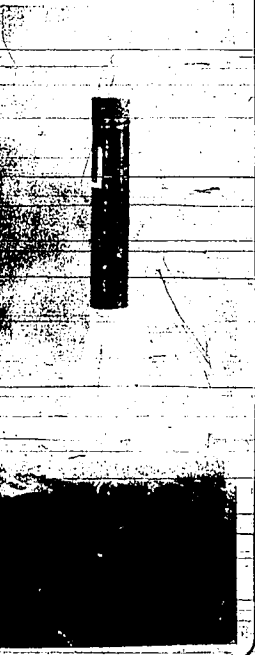

(plant) performance in the past," Von Lindern said. "We've been told compliance was just around the corner so many times, we need 60 days as a minimum." He said state environmentalists would be watching the plant pretty carefully "in coming months, but would not say when environmentalists planned spot checks. The city manager blasted state officials for not working with city to solve the problem but rather "throwing their weight around." "The dictatorial position of the state ... is a disgrace to the taxpayers of this community as well as an outright affront to the public," he said. "They expect intergovernmental cooperation rather than a display of adversary orders by some self-appointed authority within a division of state government."

Parades, rodeos top July 4 activities

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News Writer MAGIC VALLEY — Three Magic Valley communities will offer July 4th entertainment this weekend ranging from parades, rodeos and fireworks displays to watermelon busts and jumbo hot air balloons. Sagebrush Days, the major celebration each year in Hild, begins today and continues through Monday night's fireworks display. In Hildley, the Days of the Old West will get underway at 10 a.m. Saturday with a street fair and climax with the Sunday afternoon barbecue at city park. The annual Fourth of July Rodeo in Rupert is planned Sunday night with other entertainment thru Sunday and Monday. Fire displays will be held at 7 p.m. in Hildley, and at 8 p.m. in Hild. A queen coronation will crown an Hildley queen. Fireworks, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and discharged by the Hild Fire Department, are scheduled for 9:30 p.m. at Farris Park. Another special feature is the dinner show and dance Saturday at 6 p.m. presented by the Dilettantes of Magic Valley. It will be held in Jaycee Hall with Jim Latrone as director. Days of the Old West "One of the Wood-River Valley's major holiday activities will be held in Hildley with the Days of the Old West opening Saturday morning with a street fair and sales event. A children's parade will be held Saturday at noon and an adult football game at 1 p.m. and street sports at 1 p.m. An old time western shoot out will take place on the streets of town Sunday evening about 5 p.m. and again Saturday at 11 a.m. The rodeo, produced by Vern Hawkins, Western will be held Sunday at 8 p.m. with the finals Monday at 12 p.m. In Hildley the fireworks display is scheduled Sunday night following the rodeo.

followed by a watermelon bust open to the public. This will also be in Eastman Park and is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. An American Legion baseball tournament with teams from Burley, Jerome, Valley, and Hild will be held Sunday at Farris Park in Hild from 5 to 10 p.m. Games and contests are planned at Eastman park during both Sunday and Monday. A highlight of the three-day event will be the July 4th parade at 11 a.m. Monday with some 50 floats and special entries. A free country music concert is slated in the Hild city park Monday at 2 p.m. The Hild Rodeo is scheduled Monday and Tuesday nights in the rodeo grounds. A queen coronation will crown an Hildley queen. Fireworks, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and discharged by the Hild Fire Department, are scheduled for 9:30 p.m. at Farris Park. Monday's schedule in Hildley includes an old west breakfast at the Grange Hall beginning at 8 a.m. and the big Fourth of July parade at noon. Following the Monday rodeo barbeque will be served in the city park. Rupert Celebration Daytime programs in Rupert Sunday and Monday will include a gospel music concert Sunday afternoon in several churches. Special games, contests and other entertainment will be offered in the Rupert City Park both Sunday and Monday. The annual Rupert Rodeo will begin at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the rodeo arena at the Minidoka County Fairgrounds. Several special events will be featured including the Hild and the El Caca horseback riders. The rodeo finals will be Monday night, also beginning at 8:30 p.m. The Cassia County posse will perform Monday night. A mile-long parade will be seen in Rupert Monday at 11 a.m. followed by a Minidoka High School hand concert at 1:30 p.m. and an adult football game at 2:30 p.m. Puppeteers from Northwest Nazarene College will present three shows in the Rupert City Park Monday afternoon. Show times are 1:30, 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. The puppeteers from the Nampa school are known for their television shows in the Nampa and Boise areas. Horse racing is planned both Saturday and Sunday afternoons in Rupert. The Twin Falls fireworks display is scheduled at Frontier Field Monday at 10 p.m. Clara Harkins, city fire marshal, said there will be plenty of parking in the College of Southern Idaho parking lot and the display will be visible to persons who may wish to sit on the college lawn. An Idaho support train, reminiscent of the nationally publicized Bicentennial support train of 1976, will be at the Twin Falls county fairgrounds in Piler Sunday and Monday.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices opened mixed today in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Investors were disturbed by the Federal Reserve Board's report late Thursday that showed the nation's money supply climbed $1.5 billion in the latest week and demand at New York's lending banks dropped $1 million.

Any large increase in the money supply is chilling to Wall Street because it raises the possibility of a tightening of the money supply, which means a rise in interest rates.

Higher interest rates for corporations.

The market rallied Thursday for the first time in four sessions in reaction to a 5 percent drop in farm prices that indicated inflation may be easing.

But investors were disturbed by a Commerce Department report that factory orders were unchanged in May. The report gave further impetus to claims the economy may be slowing down. On Wednesday, the department reported its leading economic indicators declined for the first time in four months.

CHICAGO—Meat and grain futures declined Thursday.

Commodity News Service said live cattle closed lower across the board, with final prices showing August 07 to 10 points, futures down 2 and other months 15 to 45 lower.

Futures followed under local pressure scattered liquidation and stop-loss selling. Cash live prices were mostly steady in slow trading, with carcass beef prices higher about mid-day. Volume was estimated at 7,551 contracts.

Nearly feeder cattle contracts closed 20 to 20 points higher after buying attributed to short covering pulled prices of lows. Defers closed 2 to 10 points off. Volume was placed at 1,308 contracts.

Pork bellies settled with moderate losses and near lows of the day after a final hour break. Most active August led the decline of 50 to 100 points.

Traders said local liquidation and an easing tone in cash were the major sources of weakness. Volume of 5,873 contracts was moderate.

Live hogs closed off 5 to 70 points except for nearby July which ended 20 higher. Strength in the front month was credited to firmer tone in settled deferreds in the lower end of trading ranges. Volume was 6,322 contracts.

A smaller speculative trade in "high" and "low" local and merchanter, moves to profit in the market and the close were 15 to 30 points lower. There was scattered rain in Kansas harvest areas during the morning but drying conditions were expected by afternoon. European trade was down sharply as interests there await word on U.S. planting estimates.

Corn closed 5 to 57 cents lower at or near the day's lows, as reports of widespread rainfall across the corn belt and general liquidation pressured the market. Deliveries totaled 2.38 million bushels. Chicago cash buying basis was nominally unchanged with boxcars 8 cents under July and hoppers 7 cents under.

Rockwell stock loses

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock of Rockwell International, the prime contractor in the B-1 bomber program, President Carter ordered killed, suffered a sharp loss in the stock market Thursday.

The stock's trading declined for four hours on the New York Stock Exchange to allow dissemination of Carter's announcement, opened at $32 a share, down $4.75 a share from its previous position at 12:30 p.m. MD.

Rockwell officials said the company would lay off 10,000 workers as a result of Carter's decision.

Complex detergent listings unneeded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission has decided that listings of ingredients of detergent products are so complicated and little known that their producers need not list the contents on those boxes.

Consumers want to be helped much by ingredient listings, the FTC said Wednesday in a unanimous decision.

"It is unlikely that identical or similar ingredient lists, unless they have the same percentages of ingredients, will produce an identical performance," the FTC said.

"In addition, the analytical process involved in comparison of detergent ingredients is sufficiently complex to warrant the assumption that very few consumers would shop in this manner."

The agency also said the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection is working on a proposal to make advertisers disclose certain information in their ads about detergents, which may help the consumer more than list of ingredients.

Oil flows near Yukon

ANCHORAGE (UPI)—The pumping of Alaska's North Slope oil from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez has been running ahead of schedule, the Alyeska Pipeline Services Co. reported Wednesday.

By Saturday, the oil was expected to be crossing the mighty Yukon River, 350 miles south of Prudhoe Bay and near the halfway point of its 79-mile journey.

The pipeline began pumping oil June 20 with the oil expected to begin filling the huge storage tanks at Valdez about a month later.

Borg to meet Connors in Wimbledon finals

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg outlasted New Yorker Vilas Gerulaitis 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6 in a three-hour center court duel Thursday that will go down as one of the greatest in Wimbledon's 100-year history...

The final set began with a stream of inch-perfect lobs, scorching passing shots, deadly volleying and spectacular retrieves that were emotionally draining to watch.

Gerulaitis appeared to have the edge when he broke Borg's service to love to go 3-2 up with a succession of textbook volleys.

His opponent's game perfectly. The second encouragement by Connors' errors and in the third set where there were 10 service breaks, got the crucial one with three perfect backhand passes that gave him the set.

IRS threatens bowl games and college sports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three major universities and the Cotton Bowl Association told the Internal Revenue Service Thursday they could not afford a challenge to the tax-exempt status of the income their athletic programs receive from radio and television.

If the IRS follows through on a threat to tax radio-TV money as unrelated business income, colleges and universities across the nation could be faced with a reported $150 million bill for back taxes and interest.

In addition, the schools would have to pay nearly one-half of their future radio-TV income in taxes, a development which college sports officials say would lead to the destruction of intercollegiate athletics.

Richard Thomas, an attorney for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, also attended in an advisory capacity. The case began when the regional IRS office in Dallas, home of the Cotton Bowl, informed the three schools and the Cotton Bowl Association last year that it had decided that income earned from radio and television broadcasting falls into the category of income from a business unrelated to the fundamental educational purpose of the institutions involved.

Sources said IRS attorneys in Washington agreed with the Dallas ruling, but Cohen maintained a decision was never reached on either the regional or national level.

They've never taken a position publicly," he said. "It's a new beast. They want to look at it from all points of view" before ruling, Cohen said.

He said the Dallas office asked for "technical assistance" from Washington.

The basic case involves just the three schools and the Cotton Bowl Association. However, if the IRS disallows the tax-exempt status, schools across the nation would also fall into the same category.

Logically, every IRS agent would apply the ruling to every taxpayer college affected," Cohen said.

NCAA officials have said the ruling could force a large-scale cutback of intercollegiate sports because many schools already are operating in the red.

TV's dominance of sport probe builds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee Thursday announced a stepped up investigation into whether television networks have begun to "control" the sports events they broadcast.

Rep. Clonell Van DeRien, D-Calif., chairman of the Commerce subcommittee on communications, said the panel will look into "alleged imperfections" relating to ABC's involvement in promotion of the U.S. Boxing Championships.

— CBS' "winner take all" tennis matches in which Van DeRien said, players were paid via air use.

— NBC's contractual arrangements to broadcast the 1980 Olympics from Moscow.

— In general, we will try to determine whether the networks have become so involved with arranging, promoting and scheduling sports events that they, in effect, have come to control those events," Van DeRien told a news conference.

— "In other words," he said, "is the public seeing an independent event covered by electronic journalists or an event staged for and controlled by television?"

— Contracts between the NCAA and networks for the coverage of collegiate sports. He said these result in some games going uncovered.

— Networks' broadcast practices involving the National Football League, National Basketball Association, National Hockey League and professional baseball, particularly provisions for exclusive telecasts.

— Exclusive contracts between networks and athletes.

Rep. Lou Frey, R-Fla., said he would ask the committee staff to look into claims of harmful effects of anti-blackout legislation.

Van DeRien said the panel hopes to open hearings within the next month, the first probably in New York City, where he indicated network executives will be asked to testify.

Any recommendations the panel comes up with, Van DeRien said, are to be ready in time for inclusion in a broader report of the Communications Act for which hearings are scheduled for October and for which legislation is to be drafted beginning the first of next year.

He said Phillip H. Hurlburt, a Washington attorney and former sports writer and announcer, will help with the investigation.

Hurlburt has represented both the NHL and NBA. Van DeRien said that to avoid any conflict of interest, Hurlburt will stop working for those clients during the inquiry, will receive no pay from his law firm for four months and will not take part in any of the investigation which turns out to involve NHL, NBA or other clients.

TRIUMPHANT Bjorn Borg, the Swedish title holder, raises his arms after defeating Vilas Gerulaitis New York in a marathon semi-final at Wimbledon Thursday. Borg won 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6 and will meet Jimmy Connors for the title Saturday. (UPI)

Golfers rained out

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Lee Trevino thinks he knows what kind of playoffs are going to win the Greater Milwaukee Open.

The first round of the GMO was rained out Thursday. Eighteen holes were scheduled for today and Saturday and 36 holes Sunday. And Trevino says that long, long finale is going to test the strength of the 60 golfers who qualify and will influence the outcome.

"I'll have a lot to do with the winner," he said Thursday. "I'll be the guy who's in shape. I've got to pick a flat belly, as I call them."

Trevino, who is still recovering from back surgery last year, says the 36 holes on Sunday will be an especially severe test for him. "If I'm lucky enough to make the cut."

"I'm going to have to take a cue," he joked. "Maybe someone will have to get a wheelchair for me. But really, 36 holes is going to be awfully tough on me."

The delay also puts a crimp in Trevino's plans to get to England as soon as possible for next week's British Open but he admits he is glad the tournament was delayed for a day because of poor weather.

Airborne approach

US has little hope against Soviets

SOCIETY, USSR LEADS — A young and inexperienced U.S. track and field team, which managed to upset the West Germans, faces a Soviet powerhouse with "only a very outside chance" of playing another surprise.

The competition is scheduled to begin Friday afternoon.

"The Russians are the best team that we've gone against," said Head Coach Tom Toltz of the University of Houston. "I don't think we're expected to win — but we weren't expected to win against the Germans either."

"We have a chance, but it's a very outside chance," he said.

The two-day Soviet-U.S. track meet in the small 11,000-seat outdoor Central Sports Stadium at this Black Sea resort is the 15th in an annual series dominated by the Soviets. They hold a 30-4 advantage in combined results.

The U.S. team was hurting even more than usual this year because of a lack of big name athletes.

Such competitors as high jumper Dwight Staines, Olympic champion sprinter Thayer Mac Wilkins, Sprinter Steve Williams, Olympic champion hurdler Edwin Moses and shotputters Al Feuerbach and Terry Absher were among the missing.

Despite the lack of heavyweights, the Americans opened their current tour by beating Italy and Britain in a triangular meet in Turin. American men upset the West Germans at Gidseskirchen in win in combined results although the American women were defeated.

The Soviets, trying to bounce back from their own embarrassing loss to East Germany earlier this month, promised to field some of their top athletes.

A provisional list included five Olympic gold medalists, Tatyana Kavanina in the 800 meters, Viktor Sanev in the triple jump, Yuri Sedukh in the hammer throw, Flanaa Velosa-Mink in the discus and sprinter Valery Barzov — but competing only in the relay.

Some of the Americans stayed home because the tour was an arduous one. Which would have kept them away from home from June 16 to July and interfere with training for the biggest event of the season — the World Cup meet Sept. 2-4 at Düsseldorf.

American Athletic Union officials admitted their 55 per cent could not compete with pay-off anywhere from $9 to $14 figures for a one-night appearance in an invitational meet.

"Anba lot of them just didn't like to come to the Soviet Union," they said.

"They love to compete against the Russians, but the food is different, the lodging is different. They don't understand the language, they can't do anything here."

American officials acknowledged this but said they considered the Soviets as different from any other national team.

"This Cold War stuff went on a long time ago," one American woman said.

They did complain that transportation problems in the Soviet Union kept them up 24 hours en route to Sochi. They didn't get to bed until 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, losing most of what was to have been their final full day of training.

"We waited four hours for our charter from Moscow and then they gave us a prop plane," Tolley said. Once the team arrived in Sochi, he said, they had to wait four hours at the airport waiting for buses to take them the 18 1/2 miles to their hotel.

"I don't think anyone did it any longer," Tolley said. "But I sure didn't help our chances."

Seattle Slews tops racing's weekend

United Press International — Undeclared Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew will compete in Sunday's $500,000 Swaps Stakes at Hollywood Park, highlighting a big holiday weekend of thoroughbred racing.

Mrs. Karen Taylor's colt will be making his first appearance since he won the Belmont Stakes June 11.

Only four other horses are scheduled to compete against Seattle Slew in the mile and a quarter race: Swaps Stakes Harbor View Farm's Affilate, Elmendorf Farm's Text, W.R. Hawk's White Sprite and El Peco Ranch's J.O. Tobin.

Belmont Park Saturday will feature the $100,000 mile and a half Coaching Club American Oaks — the final leg of the Triple Crown for fillies — and Monday will be the site of the $100,000 Suburban Handicap at a mile and a quarter.

Blackby Tree Stable's Brig O'Day, who won the mile Acorn by three lengths, the first leg of the Triple Crown series, and Elmendorf's inbred Princess, who won the second leg — the mile and a quarter Mother Goose — are the favorites in the Oaks.

Road Princess, a 434 shot came from far back to take the Mother Goose by a length and three quarters.

Lazy F Ranch's Forego will be the main attraction in Monday's Suburban Handicap. Forego, America's Horse of the Year for three consecutive seasons, will be seeking to win the second leg of the Handicap Triple Crown. Undeclared in three 1977 starts, the year-old gelding won the Metropolitan Mile May 26. If he can win the Suburban, Forego will need only the Brooklyn Handicap July 29 for a sweep of the Handicap Triple Crown.

Forego will carry a top weight of 138 pounds in the Suburban — the highest impost of his career. With $1,771,107 in winnings, Forego trails only Ken Pen on the list of all-time money earners.

Peter Brant's Turn and Count, winner of the Excelsior and Grey-Lag Handicap at Aqueduct this season, is expected to provide the biggest obstacle to Forego.

In Thursday's results, Fifth Marine defeated Gentle King by a half-length in Belmont's featured $25,000 allowance, setting a new course record for 1 1/16 miles on inner turf.

Fifth Marine, with Jean Crugnet up, trailed early leader Zen by a head as the seven-year-old entered the stretch, but rallied to finish first with a time of 1:40.47, breaking the 1:41.25 set last days ago by Alhambra's Luck.

Pamela H. Firman's 4-year-old bay colt was a 12 favorite and returned $7.00, $2.10 and $2.10.

Gentle King, with Steve Cautlin aboard, paid $3.00 and $3.20 while Zen, who led continuously until midway through the stretch, returned $3.20.

French Gaper paid $4.00, $2.10 and $2.20 in winning the feature at Moonmouth, while Late Spring finished $7.00, $8.00 and $1.60 for finishing first in Bowie's feature.

Case of stolen mare stays at standstill

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Looking for a stolen horse like looking for a needle in a haystack. And, J. L. Hicks is worth a half million dollars. It's even harder to find among the mares.

Last weekend, Frankfort, a former North American filly champion in foal to superjockey Secretariat March 10, was stolen from Claiborne Farm near Paris, northwest of Lexington — in Kentucky's central Bluegrass horse country, and hasn't been seen since.

Frankfort was due to be shipped back to her owner, J. L. Levesque, of Toronto, Ont., Canada, in a month.

State Police and the FBI said late Thursday there has been little movement in the investigation.

"Quite frankly, we're not sure if the horse is still out there," State Police Major Alvin S. Roberts, while an FBI agent said. "We are in the case, but up to this point, the investigation is at a standstill."

"We do have some vehicles we are checking on, but that is horse country, you know, and a vehicle with a horse in it is not unusual," Roberts said. "As things stand now, the horse is gone and we don't know where it is."

"We are now in the process of trying to locate a pickup truck with a horse trailer that was seen in the vicinity at about the time frame of the theft — sometime Saturday afternoon between 4 and 6 (EDT)."

He said the investigation is being looked at from two angles — that someone doesn't know what he's got, or does know.

Claiborne, considered the world's No. 1 Thoroughbred breeding farm, is home to such studs as five-time Triple Crown winner, Bold Ruler and Holst. The farm, as well as a Secretariat.

Canyon Springs accepts entries

TWIN FALLS — Entries for the $5,000 Canyon Springs amateur are being accepted at the clubhouse beginning today, reminds Director Jim Packard.

Packard said the entry list will be limited to the first 100 on a first-come, first-served basis. The meet features $200 in added money.

Kenyan Breaks 10,000-meter record

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Samson Kimaniwa of Kenya shattered the world record in the 10,000 meters with a time of 27:29.17 Thursday, the second and last day of the 11th world games at the Helsinki Olympic Stadium.

He broke Britain David Bedford's 1973 record of 27:30.8 after a tremendous last third of the race. Kimaniwa's day was crowned as he was voted the star of the games, receiving a three-foot high, 2 1/2 pound trophy.

The 21-year-old Kimaniwa is a student at Washington State University, working on a degree in agricultural economics. It was his first-ever race in Europe and he bettered his personal best by 40 seconds.

Italian Franca Pava and Britain Tony Simmons led from the start. About two-thirds through the race, Kimaniwa and countryman Mike Musyoki staged a breakaway with Japanese Toshiaki Kamata.

"Kamata led back after one lap and soon Musyoki had to give in to Kimaniwa's flying stride. From there, Kimaniwa added to his lead all the way to the wire.

Musyoki finished second at 27:41.92 and Pava was third with a new Italian record of 27:42.63.

Olympic champion Alberto Tomba of Italy got an easy win in the 100 meters. He finished in 15.77, clearly outrunning Mike Parks of Fresno, Calif., in 16.10 and Herminio Ferreira of Philadelphia in 16.36.

Chantreena's compatriot Alejandro Casanas turned in the year's best time in the 110-meter hurdles. 13.42 seconds. Finland's promising youngster Antti Bryggare, 19, was second in 13.93.

Joska Samon Canadian got the way and held off a last turn attempt by Kenyan Wilson Waigwa to win the 1,300 meters in 3:38.96.

In a replay of the Montreal Olympics, Hungarian javelin thrower Miklos Nemethi won with a toss of 291 feet 10 inches.

Olympic champion Don Quarrie of Jamaica bettered the Helsinki stadium record at 200 meters with a 20.26 clocking. Finland's Antti Kalimacki won the pole vault (17-8 1/2) and Finn Heijo Stahlberg 60.2, 1 meter East German Udo Beyer 67.2, 1 in the shot put.

T.F. Legion splits with Boise Senators

TWIN FALLS — John Miller cracked a homer to right-center. But the play-off pitcher, a dive at the last minute. But the ball slipped out of his reach to the lower. All three runners scored but an appeal play at second base nullified the run at first.

Miller, against the play-off, amounted to a home run with no runs scoring but Miller, after a protest was upheld, produced the home run. The ball that had an appeal play coming in the 7th inning counted.

Boise had taken the lead in the 7th inning when Miller, who had pitched a no-hitter in the 6th, struck out the side. Miller's homer, which came in the 7th, gave the Senators a 4-2 lead.

But the Capital City crew bounced back to claim the nightcap 6-2.

Miller's game-winning hit went without controversy. Twin Falls, trailing 2-0, had rallied into a tie with two runs and the bases loaded with two out in the sixth.

Johnson hits three homers for N.Y.

Friday, July 1, 1977 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 19

TORONTO (UPI) — Cliff Johnson hit three homers, including a major league record-tying two homers in an eight-run eighth inning, Thursday night when he drove in four runs and led the New York Yankees to a 15-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Yankees scored eight runs in the eighth on four home runs started by Johnson's first home run of the inning. After Reggie Jackson grounded out, Lou Pinella followed with another solo homer and Craig Nettles singled. Bucky Dent tied out and Willie Randolph singled. Mickey Rivera singled to score Dent and then Thurman Munson stroked a three-run homer. Chris Chambliss then doubled and scored on Johnson's second homer of the inning and 14th of the year.

The Yankees scored the first run of the game in the third inning when Randolph walked, reached third on Rivera's single and scored on Munson's sacrifice fly. Johnson hit his first home run of the game in the fourth to make the score 1-0.

Indians edge Orioles 4-2

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Duffy, who entered the game hitting .199, belted two home runs and Wayne Garland scattered five hits Thursday night to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in game called after 6 1/2 innings because of rain.

Duffy, who hit only two homers last season and one in 1975, hit an 8-1 pitch into the left field stands leading off the third and ended the Cleveland scoring by sending a bases Grimsley fastball into the left field seats for his fourth homer of the year.

Garland, who dropped a 7-2 decision to his former teammates in April, gave up a run-scoring double to Ken Singleton in the first inning and a run-scoring single to Doug DeCinces in the fourth before retiring the final 11 batters prior to the rain to pick up his fifth victory against eight losses.

In the seventh when losing pitcher Steve Rogers (9-7) walked Bruce Boieslain with the bases loaded to force in Mazzilli. Reliever Bob Apodaca earned the victory bringing his record to 3-3 and Skip Lockwood got the last out for his 12th save.

Senate OK's limit on sugar supports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a stroke that would cost large producers millions, the Senate provided money for a $240 million sugar price support program Wednesday, but limited payments for any individual grower to $50,000.

The amendment with the $50,000 limit passed on a 54-41 vote before the Senate approved a bill allowing the Agriculture Department to spend $12.5 billion in appropriations next year. The amendment is not in the House version, so the matter must be settled by House-Senate conference.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said the ceiling would just about destroy big business in Hawaii, which supplies 20 per cent of the sugar produced in the United States. Others said it would be a severe blow to sugar industries in Florida, Louisiana, California and Texas.

"If the Dole amendment is adopted, that industry will go bankrupt," Inouye said. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the sponsor, said without his amendment, large sugar firms would receive up to $4 million in subsidies. He said 40 companies would get 10 per cent of the money; five would get 20 per cent.

Carter's program, Dole said, "is conceived. He felt price supports should go to farmers not corporations. For other commodities which have price supports, the law limits individual growers to $20,000, although the farm bill now in House-Senate negotiations might raise that figure to as much as $50,000."

"Carter approved sugar subsidies in early May to aid growers who are severely pinched because heavy world supplies forced market prices below costs. It is currently awaiting public comment."

The Agriculture Department would pay up to 2 cents a pound on raw sugar when market prices were below 13.5 cents a pound. The payments would go to processors who would be required to give growers all except the actual cost of handling the cash.

For example, if prices are at 11.5 cents a pound or below, processors would get a payment of 2 cents a pound. If prices are above 11.5 cents, processors would get the amount needed to bring total returns to 13.5 cents.

A department official, J.B. Penn, said if Dole's amendment became law, "it would mean we couldn't offer the same level of protection to all areas of growers. It makes the program discriminatory."

Penn said the heaviest limitation would fall on cane growers who generally operate on a larger scale than sugar beet producers.

Carter rejected the plan after approving proposals that included a cutback in import quotas or a support system which would raise sugar market prices.

Comments sought on new forest graze regulations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday called for public comment on proposed new grazing regulations on National Forests, including a plan to compensate stockmen in some cases when grazing permits are cancelled.

Under the proposal, compensation would be paid for improvements stockmen make to the land they use under Forest Service grazing permits if the permits are canceled so the land can be used for other purposes.

The compensation rule was one of a number of proposed regulations published by a 1976 Land Policy and Management Act.

Officials said most of the proposed regulations are similar to rules which the Forest Service already had been following in arrangements for the use of its lands by private cattle and sheep operators who pay for the privilege of grazing stock on government land.

The 1976 law, for example, established 10 years as the standard term for most grazing permits. A regulation embodying this feature is included in the new Agriculture Department proposals, but officials said they are already following this practice under existing rules.

Also, the new proposals would restrict an existing practice of authorizing shorter-term permits on National Forests in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Spokesmen said the major new features provided by the 1976 law and the proposed regulations are the compensation plan and a proposal withdrawing authority for setting up grazing advisory boards except where a majority of the grazing permit holders ask for one on a forest with more than 500,000 acres of grazing.

Comments should be submitted until Aug. 29 to the chief of the U.S. Forest Service in Washington, officials said.

'Copter herding rescues horses

BURNS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon's first herding of wild horses by helicopter was used this week to save two dozen of the animals in danger of dying of thirst in the dry range west of Burns.

Chris Vosler, Bureau of Land Management district manager at Burns, said more such rescues of wild horses from parched ranges probably will be necessary.

He said a rancher reported Monday that animals in the Oakman area north of Highway 20 between Riley and Sagehen Rest Area about 20 miles west of Burns were in danger of perishing from lack of water.

Vosler said cattle which normally roam that range had been moved off earlier because of the short supply of water resulting from the long Eastern Oregon drought.

Vosler supervised movement of 20 of the horses onto an adjacent range Tuesday evening and 5 more were herded on the new range Wednesday.

BLM crews waited for the weather to cool to complete the wild horse drive the remaining 15 miles to Burns Wednesday evening. The horses will be kept in BLM's adopt-a-horse corral near Burns, where no wild horses already were held.

Vosler said the horses moved from the dry range included four or five colts.

He said the movement of the horses left "only a few deer and antelope" on the Oakerman range.

The movement will be paid for from $100,000 in drought relief funds appropriated for the Vale and Burns Districts.

Vosler said if funds remain there may be a helicopter roundup of wild horses in the Steens Mountain area this fall.

After public information meetings in July to reduce an overpopulation of wild horses there.

Use of helicopters to round up wild horses and burros has been permitted only since May 25. Environmental groups had opposed use of helicopters to round up excess numbers of the wild animals on public ranges but BLM personnel won a change in rules by arguing that rounding up the rugged animals on horseback was too difficult and expensive.

Helicopters have been used to round up wild horses in California, Vosler said.

Utah beet crop third smaller

GARLAND, Utah (UPI) — Utah's 1977 sugar beet crop will be about one-third smaller than last year's due to the drought. A depressed market and higher transportation costs, says Laurence A. Smith, district manager for U and J Sugar Co.

The drought had an effect on the number of acres planted to sugar beets this year, he said Wednesday, "but most of the fields that were planted are looking very good for this time of the year."

He also said lower prices for beets coupled with higher costs to transport them from outlying areas also persuaded many farmers to try other crops.

The U and J plant at Garland is the last remaining sugar factory in the state.

Smith said: "For years, sugar beets have come to the plant from as far away as Wellington and Richfield."

"With rising freight costs and poor sugar prices it simply became impractical for either the growers or the company to transport beets from some outlying areas," he added.

"This year, no sugar beets are being grown south of Provo."

Smith said the sugar beet crop in Utah is about 5,000 acres this year, compared to 14,600 acres in 1976.

Gem wheat stocks up

BOISE (UPI) — Wheat stocks in both on and off Idaho farm facilities are considerably higher than last year, the State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

The service said as of June 30 it was estimated wheat stocks totaled 2.1 million bushels.

Wheat in all positions is near the record high of 1955, the agency said. Off crop storage on the start of the month is 100 per cent larger than the amount stored in June of 1976.

The agency said feed grains on hand showed a decline from last June. It said accounting for most of the decline was the volume of barley stored on farms. Compared with last year barley Idaho's most important feed grain, declined 10 to 20 per cent in total stocks.

PUT YOUR MONEY WHERE YOUR HOUSE IS...

Nothing brings out the warmth and beauty of wood like a good stain.

But the most heavily advertised stains are not necessarily the best. According to recent laboratory tests Bennett's El Rancho penetrating stain has several times as much oil as our more vocal competition. Oil is the protective ingredient in exterior stains — it keeps the wood from drying out and cracking — particularly in the dry climates of the intermountain west.

Bennett's El Rancho is available in 21 colors — natural colors such as autumn rust, thundercloud blue, bramble bush and leather.

At Bennett's we put our money in our product — not expensive promotions. Put your money where your house is — specify El Rancho.

Club gives funds for picnic area

TWIN FALLS - The best Estate Board of the Twentieth Century Club has donated $1,000 for facilities for the picnic area at Frontier Field.

Arnold Bryson, superintendent of the city parks and recreation department, accepted the check from club members Wednesday.

The funds are from interest received annually on property the club owns and are generally given in one lump sum to provide a maximum benefit—and something the entire community can utilize.

Ruth L. Brown, member of the real estate board, said:

"This year the board asked the money be used by the city in the development of Frontier Field into a community facility.

Bryson said the money will be used to purchase picnic tables and outdoor grills, which have already been selected.

Charlotte Link, another member of the committee, said the donation this year will realize a double benefit in that it can be used to obtain matching federal money through the recreation project and will actually give the city about $2,000 for purchase of such equipment.

Bryson said the city plans to place the picnic facilities in the area of the field where grass and trees are already planted so they can be used immediately.

Stipend set

TWIN FALLS - Rebecca Lee Meyer, a graduating senior at Kimberly High School, has been awarded a $200 general scholarship for the 1977-78 school year at the College of Southern Idaho. She is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Galvin of Kimberly.

Over-sized pet rocks can cut energy bills

PULLEMAN, WASH. (UPI) - With an oversized pet rock, you could cut 10 per cent off your energy bill, a Washington State University architecture class has discovered.

Prof. Bob Allen's class explored the use of passive solar energy collection in housing, room design and the positioning of house windows in relation to the sun.

The basis for heat collection in the passive system is the use of what the student researchers call mass—a material placed in the room or dwelling that collects and stores the sun's heat, releasing it over an extended period of time.

The students used four 55-gallon barrels filled with water to collect the solar heat.

But Allen said rock, masonry or a combination of decorative masonry and a water holding system would be more practical.

The mass heats up during the daytime exposure to the sun and releases the stored heat during the time when the sun is not shining.

Allen said "even though this appears to be low technology, we were finding ways to save energy consumption without having to do anything more than plan a little better which direction your house or building should face."

"We are at the bottom of the learning curve concerning energy consumption in our building design. Projects like this help students become more aware of how energy use should affect their design work."

Funds donated

ARNOLD BRYSON, Twin Falls City Parks and Recreation Dept. superintendent, receives a $1,000 donation from Ruth Brown, left, and Charlotte Link of the Twentieth Century Club. The money will be used, along with federal matching money to purchase picnic tables and grills for Frontier Field.
