

LONDON (UPI) — Working a girl too hard could make her pretty hairy, a Cambridge professor said today.

Prof. Ivor Mills said some overworked girls have to shave every day like a man. Some begin to go bald and others develop hairy chests.

Mills, a professor of medicine at Cambridge University, said in a magazine article that strain sometimes was related to changes in hormone function.

In some cases, overwork and stress boosted production of male hormones, leading to the growing of body hair and a deepening of the voice.

"It is vital that women recognize their limits before it is too late," he said. "The risk is greatest for women in their 20s."

'Heat storm' fries nation

By United Press International

A "heat storm" fried most of the eastern two-thirds of the nation today, making millions of persons miserable.

Residents of New York City broiled in their seventh consecutive day of 90-degree-plus heat. Monday the mercury there reached 100, the hottest in 11 years.

Water Commissioner Charles Samowitz reimposed a water shortage alert and Consolidated Edison appealed to customers to conserve power. Officials worried the power drain could result in another massive blackout like last week's 22-hour ordeal.

Water meter readers in New York City abandoned their routes to devote full time to turning off illegally opened fire hydrants.

White collar workers in Minneapolis shucked their jackets as they went to work and housewives turned on lawn sprinklers before dawn.

The city close to the North Woods braced for an expected high of 102 after a record warm night in which the mercury dipped only to 80.

St. Louis authorities blamed the deaths of four elderly residents of a rent-subsidized apartment building on prolonged high temperatures in rooms without air conditioning.

Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo ordered special measures, including the shutting off of problem hydrants, to preserve water supplies. Providence, R.I., also had an epidemic of hydrant openings.

Twenty firemen were overcome by heat exhaustion while battling a lumberyard blaze Monday in Greenfield, Mass.

Other firemen on the job were ordered to munch salt tablets to keep from keeling over.

"You were crying about the freezing cold weather six months ago," a police officer in Mendville, Pa., grumped when he was asked how the heat wave was affecting his community.

"Be happy."

Violent storms hit some Great Lakes areas but gave only temporary relief from the heat.

Two tornadoes demolished two mobile homes and shoved several others off their foundations at a trailer park near Monroe, Mich. Seven persons were injured when high winds shattered a window at a restaurant in Cedar Point, Ohio.

Boston Edison reported a record power demand in New England between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. Monday when the region drew 13,248,000 kilowatts.

In Connecticut, health officials cautioned against unnecessary exertion.

Louis Carter, public utility commission chairman at Harrisburg, Pa., warned the increased demand for power brought on by the lingering heat wave could cause a major power blackout.

Forest fires fed by droughty brush and timber burned more than 5,000 acres in three Western states, but authorities said they hoped to control four major blazes soon.

Two fires in Utah burned more than 2,000 acres. Another fire near Missoula, Mont., blackened 2,000 acres and a fire on the Odvella Indian Reservation in Washington burned 1,490 acres.

Mideast proposal offered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, offered President Carter a comprehensive Middle East peace plan today after a sweltering ceremony in which both statesmen mentioned "differences" between the United States and Israel.

"We shall never disagree," Begin told Carter in a ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House. "We shall only agree to differ."

Carter made an effusive personal tribute to Begin, then declared: "We have been encouraged by his statements . . . that this year may be a time of success to bring permanent peace and security into the Middle East."

"We share that common goal, and although there might be differences of conception and viewpoint between him and me, and his nation and the United States, the common goal of finding a path to permanent peace will inevitably bind us together."

Immediately after the ceremony in withering 90-degree heat, the two men retired to the Oval Office with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and other aides.

Begin, according to unconfirmed reports, was expected to try to persuade Carter that Israel retains a legal and historical right to the West Bank of the Jordan River, which it is unwilling to give up. This may prove to be the point of greatest difference.

Begin's plan, which he plans to make public Wednesday, also is reported to envisage the return of portions of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt and part of the Golan Heights to Syria.

Aid sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five health and family planning organizations today urged President Carter to expand national birth control efforts enough to cut the number of unwanted pregnancies in half over the next five years.

"What we are proposing today is a realistic set of initiatives that the administration could take today to give real substance to its professed principles," said Frederick Jaffe, president of the Alan Guttmacher Institute.

The proposal calls for the government to expand birth control programs to reach more sexually active young people, to expand family planning efforts to reduce unwanted pregnancies among couples who have all the children they want, and to reduce the number of unintended births among unmarried women.

It calls for keeping the current national program which provided birth control information to four million persons last year.

TROUT RESCUED FROM RICHFIELD CANAL BY FISH AND GAME OFFICERS . . . Drought threatens game fish populations in Magic Valley

Drought kills Big Wood fish

MAGIC VALLEY — Drought conditions have produced a fish kill in the Big Wood River and have caused the Fish and Game Department to liberalize fishing methods, department spokesmen said Monday.

The department is now allowing fish in the Big Wood River below the Magic Valley Reservoir to be taken by nets and snagging. Liberalization of fishing methods does not apply to fish in the Richfield Canal.

Those fish are being salvaged by the department and taken to Silver Creek for release. Regular fishing methods are still allowed in the Richfield Canal, however.

During low water periods the oxygen level of streams and reservoirs drops below that necessary for fish to survive.

Fish and Game officials said approximately 150 dead trout were counted Monday in the first quarter mile of the Big Wood River below the Magic Valley Reservoir.

During the last drought-caused fish kill, in 1961, between 3,000 and 4,000 fish died in the same area.

The liberalized fishing methods will be in effect indefinitely, Department officials said.

Donna Sechrest, 38, walked into the barroom of the Magic Valley Resort where his wife, Nancy, was working Friday and fired 16 shots from a .22 caliber rifle, according to Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler.

In a matter of minutes Sechrest killed his step-daughter, Dana Blankenship, 15, a customer, Fred Klamon, 58, Paul, and wounded Klamon's wife, Darlene, 52.

Sechrest then turned the gun on himself and later died at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise from gunshot wounds in his head.

In the course of its investigation, the sheriff's office has discovered a personal journal left by Sechrest in his car at the site of the shooting.

The handwritten journal runs for 33 pages in a small writing tablet. Although no dates appear in the notebook, it is believed the last pages may have been written the day of the shooting.

Drexler described the journal as "a documentary of his (Sechrest's) feelings concerning this situation."

Believed to have been written in two separate sittings, Drexler said. "The whole trend of the thing seems to be that he was, of course, unhappy with the situation. He just felt dejected and rejected, and he indicated he was going to do this."

Sechrest and his wife were separated and in the process of getting a divorce.

Drexler said Sechrest seemed to be bothered by jealousy and tried to rationalize what he was going to do in the pages of the journal.

"He talks in 31 pages about quite a lot of things," Drexler observed. "The whole trend seems to be that if he couldn't have the family, nobody could."

Sechrest, who was living in Boise, was receiving psychiatric treatment after being charged in April with child molesting.

Court records on file at the Blaine County Courthouse here show on April 5, 1977, Mrs. Sechrest filed a complaint against her husband charging he had sexually molested his then 14-year-old step-daughter.

A day later on April 6, Mrs. Sechrest filed for a divorce.

Sechrest was arrested on the child molesting charges and later released on bond.

"Attorneys in the case agreed to defer the prosecution of the charges if Sechrest fulfilled certain obligations — one of which required him to enter a psychological and psychiatric treatment program.

Court records show Sechrest was receiving treatment at the Treasure Valley Psychiatric Center in Boise, although Dr. Fred Hurst, a doctor at the center named in court files as one of Sechrest's doctors, refuses to confirm or deny the man was a patient there. Sechrest's attorneys confirm he was.

The question has arisen among police officers why the man was not in custody if he had a past which hinted he was capable of violence and socially unacceptable behavior.

However, Magistrate Daniel Alban, who arraigned Sechrest on the child molesting charges, says he believes referring the man for psychiatric treatment was, in theory, a better alternative and treatment than prosecuting him and conceivably locking him up in jail.

Alban said the problem would probably have re-emerged when the man left prison and no one could foresee what Sechrest would eventually do.

As Thomas Campion, Sechrest's attorney in the child molesting incident, put it: "Hindsight is always 20-20."

"We're just human beings," Campion said, claiming one could be held responsible for Friday's shooting. "I don't think any of us were prepared to know on July 15 he was going to run amuck."

"If you're looking for accountability, the number one person to be held accountable is dead," Campion observed. "So you're looking for surrogate accountability."

Campion said Sechrest's police record was clean when the child molesting charges were filed.

"How could you predict a guy's behavior the first time," he asked finally. "It's easy to predict a guy's behavior with a rap sheet. But how do you do it with no rap sheet?"

Drought keeps hot grip on nation

United Press International

In Dawson, Ga., farmer Bobby Locke put the torch to 2,000 acres of sun-withered corn.

North Carolina, thousands of fish died in the Neuse River — victims of oxygen depletion after 15 consecutive days of temperatures in the 90s and no rain since May 25.

Across Kansas, corn, milo and soybeans shriveled in heat unbroken since June when a then-unwanted deluge cost the state 15 to 16 million bushels of wheat, and in Iowa, farmers and cattlemen faced foreclosure at the bank.

In California, where the overall loss to the state's economy now is pegged at $1.5 billion, farmers are "drilling wells like they're going out of style."

From coast to coast, the farmers' wall of disaster was as unbroken Monday as the blistering heat wave that marked the drought of 1977. Agriculture experts had little to offer in the way of hope for rain.

"Our crystal ball doesn't look very good before 1979," said Iowa state geologist Stanley Grant. "It's literally a dire situation."

"Cities are also in serious trouble," he said. "Unless Iowa received rain of the 40 days and 40 nights variety, many cities may find themselves without any water at all in mid-August."

Bill Schermer, president of the Iowa Cattlemen's Association, said the drought may be "the last straw" for livestock producers hard hit in recent years by low cattle prices.

"Many cattlemen have told me that their bankers have said to them, 'This is the last time I will say yes,'" Schermer said. "Bankers are getting real tough. They're starting to pull the cinch real tight."

The cinch was equally tight for James Shaver who farms 2,000 acres in western Kansas.

"It's dry here with a capital D," he said. "The native grass is burnt to a crisp. If it doesn't improve, probably 50 per cent of the irrigated crops will be in jeopardy."

"Today, the pinto beans were turning blue," he added.

"That's the first sign of a lack of moisture."

"It seems like its either bust or dry here," said Myron Krenzin, head of the Kansas Wheat Commission. "It was dry until the end of May, and then we got some rain right when we wanted dry weather for the wheat harvest. We got too much rain — six and seven inches at a time. We lost 15 to 16 million bushels of wheat but the weather is dry again now. The drought isn't over."

In Georgia, where Locke burned his heat-blasted corn crop, farmers have launched a cloud-seeding operation at a cost of $25,000 a month, but little return has been seen so far.

"Peanuts and soybeans also are in bad shape, but they could be saved if rain is forthcoming," Locke said.

Things were no better in Alabama.

"Almost every county in the state has been declared a disaster area," said J.D. Hays of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, "and it is just that — a disaster."

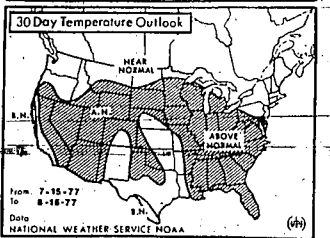

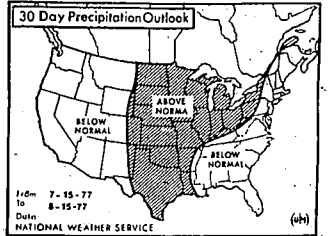

Virginia followed suit, asking federal disaster designation for 27 counties where hay and corn crops have been wiped out, and in Florida, where drought followed the disastrous January freeze, 40 counties now carry the disaster area label.

California alone rang a note of optimism in the blistering drought — but only because initial estimates were unduly pessimistic.

At one point, state officials were predicting crop losses of $1.4 billion. This week, they were expected to downgrade that to a gross farm income loss between $500 million and $800 million, with an overall loss of $1.5 billion to the state's economy.

Dryland farming lost a considerable amount of money, but not as much as last year because they got smart and didn't plant twice counting on the rain," said Gordon Snow, of the state Food and Agriculture Department. "The outlook has improved (because) they're drilling wells like they're going out of style."

Western fires burn on

By United Press International

Forest fires ravaged thousands of acres in the West, the East and the South Monday while New York City, still suffering the effects of last week's power blackout, strained to meet increased power and water demands during its hottest day of the year.

Forest fires fed by drought-dry brush and timber burned more than 5,000 acres in three Western states, but authorities said they hoped to control four major blazes soon.

Two fires in Utah burned more than 2,200 acres. Another fire near Missoula, Mont., blackened 2,000 acres and a fire on the Colville Indian Reservation in Washington burned 1,400 acres.

Firefighters encircled a raging fire near the Utah-Wyoming state line, but feared that predicted thunderstorms and high winds would send flames roaring outside the perimeter once again. A force of 300 men fought the 1,500-acre fire in Ashley National Forest, south of Flamingo, Nev.

In Maine, firefighters used planes, bulldozers and tank trucks in an all-out fight to control a blaze raging through Baxter State Park before a wind shift could blow it up the wooded slopes of Mount Katahdin.

More than 1,200 acres were ablaze and one firefighter was injured. Albert C. Willis, fire control director for the state forestry bureau, said the injured man was airlifted out of the area by helicopter.

Twenty firemen were overcome by heat exhaustion Monday while battling a blaze at a lumberyard in Greenfield, Mass. Other firemen fighting the blaze were ordered to munch salt tablets.

New York's temperatures reached 100 degrees — the hottest in 11 years, and the sixth consecutive day of 90-degree plus heat. The demand for power caused scattered outages Monday evening on Manhattan's Upper East Side and in the Westchester county suburb north of the city.

Officials worried that the power drain could result in another massive blackout like the 26-hour outage caused by a bolt of lightning last week.

The extreme heat also caused an increased demand for water and New York Water Commissioner Charles Samowitz reimposed a water shortage alert. A Consolidated Edison spokesman appealed to customers to practice power conservation measures.

The mercury also soared elsewhere. At Richmond, Va., the temperature reached 101 and officials said it had fallen below 90 only once since June 26. Palm Springs, Cal., reported the nation's high of 102 degrees.

Boston Edison reported a record power demand was set in New England between 1 and 2 p.m. Monday when the region drew 13,248,000 kilowatts. In Connecticut, health officials cautioned against unnecessary exertion.

Louis Carter, Public Utility Commission chairman at Harrisburg, Pa., warned the increased demand for power brought on by the lingering heat wave could cause a major power blackout.

"The heat storm we've been enduring has pushed power consumption to the point that failure of even one major power plant could force fast curtailment of the entire power pool," he said.

Coffee price cut

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Folger Coffee Co., the nation's second largest roaster, has cut the wholesale price for vacuum coffee by 20 cents an ounce and decreased its instant coffee prices by 2 cents an ounce. The pricing action, announced Monday and effective immediately, reduced the list price for vacuum Folger's to $3.40 a pound and a 10-ounce jar of instant to $3.25.

Folger, a division of Procter & Gamble Co., attributed its latest price decrease to "a decline in imported green coffee prices. Our information indicates that there has been a significant industry-wide decline in consumer coffee sales during the past several months."

Loss high in fraud on stamps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government investigators claim in a still secret report that about $500 million in excess food stamp payments were made in one year's time and that some of the overpayments were due to suspected fraud.

Details of the report prepared by the General Accounting Office were revealed after Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., said in a statement Monday that "the GAO report will show that 'the food stamp program is being bilked out of about $600 million and about half of that amount is from outright fraud or misrepresentation on the part of food stamp applicants.'"

GAO official Henry Eschwege, however, denied the report would claim that half the overpayments could be attributed to fraud. Eschwege said his agency was unable to find data reliable enough for use in making a nationwide fraud estimate and would publish only results of estimates of suspected fraud cases in five sample cities.

Bob Greenstein, special assistant to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, said that even the sample tabulation included in the report may mislead readers into thinking fraud rates in the $3.8 billion stamp program are higher than they really are.

The report is expected to be released Tuesday, when the House takes up the agriculture authorization bill which includes the food stamp program.

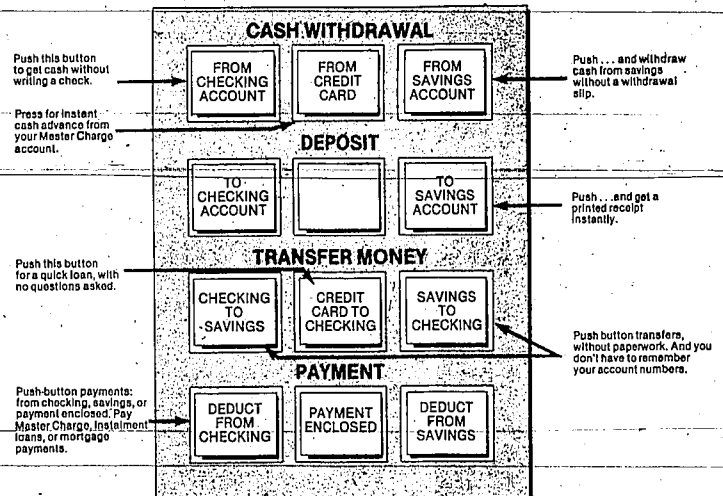

Staff cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown has ordered a manpower reduction of about 22 per cent in his office and the agencies attached to it, making some of the cuts by granting early retirements.

The total reduction will be from 2,065 employees to 1,617, the Pentagon said in an announcement Monday.

Let Anita Bryant vacation in peace

Though she traveled over 2000 miles to vacation in Sun Valley, Anita Bryant cannot escape the public eye.

A handful of Idaho homosexual men and women picketed Bryant in Sun Valley Sunday, calling her anti-gay rights efforts in Florida and the nation a "hate campaign."

While Anita Bryant's views on homosexuality indeed are highly controversial, it seems too bad she can't take a vacation from the public spotlight.

The patrician protest against Anita Bryant in Sun Valley seems oddly out of place in Idaho — a state where the gay rights issue ranks slightly below the World Soccer Association standings in relevance.

Gay rights is not an issue debated daily in this state. The homosexuals of Idaho have done virtually nothing to increase public awareness about their lifestyles.

Rather than picket Anita Bryant on vacation in Sun Valley the gays in Idaho might consider more constructive and educational efforts in their own behalf.

For example, Idaho state laws dealing with homosexuality are a throwback to the 19th century. Homosexual acts between consenting adults in this state are criminal acts.

But few state legislators are likely to change the laws until Idaho's homosexuals come out of the closet and begin to change public attitudes about the gay lifestyle.

Picketing Anita Bryant in Sun Valley does very little for the public image of homosexuals in Idaho.

The protesters in Sun Valley only added another layer of misunderstanding to the issue of gay rights. In a state where Anita Bryant's views probably coincide with the views of most of the citizenry, placard-carrying protesters only harden public intolerance of homosexuals.

Many controversial men and women choose Sun Valley as a vacation spot. Some of President Nixon's top advisors and contributors vacationed in Sun Valley during the height of the Watergate scandal.

In these cases, no protesters have hounded them down the ski slopes or into the back country. Anita Bryant should be given the courtesy of vacationing in private, too.

Rep. George Hansen spoke for many Idahoans Monday when he called the "Sun Valley protests against Bryant" a gross violation of (Anita Bryant's) privacy.

The congressman is right. Even Anita Bryant should be able to spend her vacation in peace.

Berry's World

"Golly! Are you REALLY a 'profiteer from Plains, Georgia?'"

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON — Second thoughts following the rashside first reaction to President Carter's cancellation of the B-1 bomber are producing a different response, confronting the administration with serious problems for which solutions are not presently in sight.

A new great debate over U.S. strategic policy seems assured, now that the B-1 supersonic bomber — whatever its immense costs to the taxpayer — has been scrapped. Plans for such a debate are now being laid by defense-oriented members of Congress who want to know among other things whether Mr. Carter has hidden plans for some new and cheaper manned bomber to penetrate Soviet air defenses after the B-52 dies of old age in the next 10 to 12 years.

The deepening concern inside the defense bloc is that the virtual abandonment of the strategic (long-range) B-1 bomber — with no other replacement for the B-52 yet visible — was primarily a sudden money-saving move with inadequate study of its profound implications.

Some of these implications seem, at least on the surface, to pose horrendous new problems. For example, under the long-held American nuclear-balance thesis of mutual deterrence, or mutual assured destruction, the U.S. has allowed its air defenses to atrophy. The Soviet Union, to the contrary, has done just the opposite: constructed the world's most remarkable air-defense system.

No air defense has been developed against the low-flying cruise missile. Yet, even though U.S. experts hint broadly that the American missile may be equipped with counter-electronic measures that blind Soviet radars, the threat of an eventual effective Soviet defense against the cruise is real.

Moreover, it is axiomatic that what the U.S. does, the Soviets eventually can also do. Jimmy Carter's abrupt decision to cancel the B-1, leading to all-out U.S. development and production of the cruise missile — not as a bargaining counter for strategic agreements but as the replacement for the long-range bomber — will predictably lead to a crash cruise-missile program in the Soviet Union. If successful, leading congressional defense experts warn, this Soviet capability will either force the U.S. into an immensely expensive air-defense program or hand the Soviets an unacceptable advantage.

"We've got the marbles right now with the cruise missile," a top military expert told us, "but 10 years down the road the cruise is being to turn into our problem, not theirs."

There is, moreover, growing suspicion on another score on Capitol Hill, even among hawkish members of Congress who always have felt that the air-launched cruise missile was the American ace-in-the-hole. The suspicion: that without the B-1 as a major role in the air-launched nuclear bomb force — one leg of the strategic triad — the 2,500 kilometer ceiling, on the range of the air-launched cruise missile is clearly inadequate. That ceiling was offered the Russians by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance last March, but never negotiated into an agreement.

With the B-1 as its partner, it was felt that the cruise missile could be restricted to that maximum range (about 1,500 miles) from the point of launch. Without the B-1's versatility, that range will give sanctuary safety to vast Soviet areas, say congressional critics who will make the ceiling a key target in the upcoming defense debate.

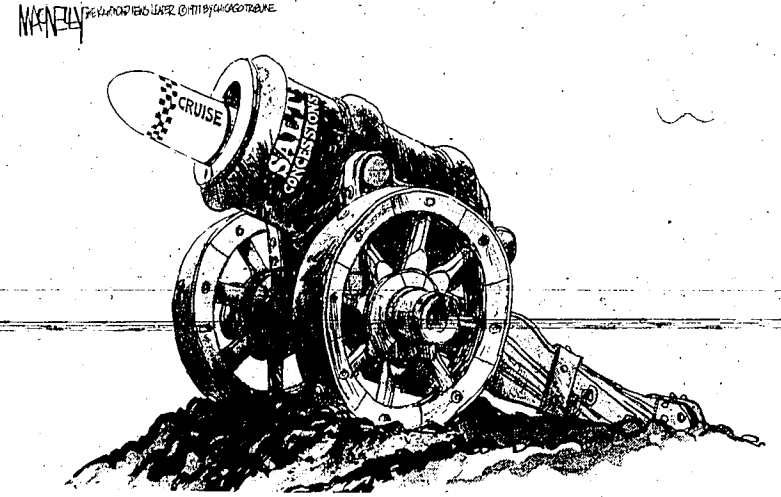

The effect of the B-1 decision on the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) barely begins with the question of lifting that 2,500 kilometer range ceiling for the cruise missile. More important in the long run is the question of verifying the range, numbers and payloads of the Soviet cruise missile.

Verification lies at the heart of congressional worry about any new SALT agreement with the Russians. Yet no way exists to "verify" the existence of whatever numbers of cruise missiles the Soviets say they possess — once they master development and move into production.

This presents the administration with a profound problem. John L. McClellan, who as Undersecretary of the Air Force in the early Nixon days was head of National Reconnaissance — the top verification job — recently defined that problem.

In a letter to the Washington Post July 9, McClellan warned that "the President is moving away from a world of known weapon systems... to a world where there is no way to count how many each side has. He will have traded a temporary advantage in technology for a loosened control over weapons in general."

Underlying these rising concerns is the fact that Mr. Carter cancelled the B-1 with no apparent offset of any kind from Moscow, a paradox deeply troubling to his critics. The President's new budget amendment, asking Congress to kill $1.5 billion in B-1 funds and transfer $50 million of it to the cruise missile, was due on Capitol Hill this week. Mr. Carter is certain to get what he wants, but he may also get what he does not want — the start of a great debate on the strategic position of the U.S. as it looks ahead to a new period without the manned bomber.

Venice after reading Hemingway

By ART BUCHWALD Los Angeles Times Syndicate

VENICE, ITALY — Every person who comes to Venice is influenced in some way by one of the great writers who has written about the city. Hemingway has probably influenced "me" more than anyone, and without "Across the River and Into the Trees" I doubt if I'd even have enjoyed being there.

"Why can't we take a motorboat? my wife asked. "A gondola is awfully slow." "Because you're my wife and we're alone and it is Venice and I want to hold you close and I want you to hold me close and anyway it's cheaper than taking a motorboat."

"Daughter, let's go for a ride in a gondola after dinner." "So you can ogle the Italian women?" "Please, daughter. You must try to understand my attitude. When you have killed so many you can afford to be a little wild."

Euro-Communists challenge Kremlin

A new political pattern has emerged in Western Europe, with the Communist parties of Spain, France and Italy challenging Soviet supremacy. The aims of Euro-Communism, the motives of its leaders and its implications for the West are examined here in the first of two articles.

By STEPHEN CONSTANTIN London Telegraph

LONDON — How can a club committee show its displeasure against a member by expelling him, when the person in question does not consider himself a member of that club? Or how can a church communicate a co-religionist who does not consider himself to be any such thing?

moved to a new, six-story building in Paris designed by the architect Oscar Niemeyer — a zippy million of the streamlined, forward-looking impression that the party wants to give.

Similarly, the Spanish party has moved from its old dusty headquarters in central Madrid to a renovated, air-conditioned building in the luxurious Salamanca area.

Needless to say, the new men are anything but popular in the Kremlin. The heaviest Russian fire has been drawn by Carrillo, the 63-year-old Spanish leader, whose recent book, "Euro-Communism and the State," has already sold over 100,000 copies.

It is his accusation of the Soviet leadership of failing to dismantle Stalinism, and of stifling human rights and economic progress. The Soviet state, he wrote, "has not only kept bourgeois elements but has deformed and degenerated to a degree that in other times was only associated with imperialism."

His is no sudden disillusionment with Soviet Communism. His rejection of the Kremlin as a valid model can be traced back to the 1968 Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia. A year ago, at a conference of European Communist parties, he declared an amended Leninist doctrine and to the other delegates his infatuation with Moscow was over; it had lasted for over 30 years. Speaking for the Spanish Communist party as a whole, he said: "We have built a new kind of church with our own martyrs and prophets. Moscow, where our dreams began to come true, was for a long time a kind of Rome for us. We spoke of the Great October Socialist Revolution as if it were our Christmas. The scientific aspect of our theories is taking over from faith and the mysticism of predestination."

It is to supplant the "mysticism" of the Kremlin.

France's Georges Marchais, the 57-year-old leader of the Parti Communiste Francaise (P.C.F.), is at least three people in one: a tough party apparatchik, a Marxist visionary and an "ordinary Frenchman" of impeccable working-class origins.

Today he is also something of a television personality, always smiling, usually relaxed and self-confident, and of course like all Frenchmen always right. He has taken lessons from public-relations experts, and has largely discarded the heavy-handed, emphatic style which non-Communists sometimes found sinister.

In today's permissive world he stands out as an old-fashioned man, who hates sexual license and pornography. An attempt by younger members to depict the party's "narrow-minded moralism" at the 1970 congress was crushed with the same ruthless authoritarianism as is used on matters of greater political import.

There was a great deal of mocking comment in the French press when Comrade Georges recently suited action toward and made an honest woman of his mistress, the post-growth children by belatedly marrying her.

The doors of the P.C.F. are these days wide open. Hospitality is offered generously to bourgeois journalists at periodic lunches at which Marchais is the smiling host and the rather grim Jean Kanapa, the party's "foreign minister," is called on to answer the insolent questions of correspondents who post-growth.

Yet, as Roland Leroy, senior editor of L'Humanite, the party's newspaper, and one of the post-growth intellectuals told me: "We accept criticism from our members, but we cannot tolerate ventilation of their views in letters and articles published in the non-party press." Such outbursts infringe the Leninist rule of "democratic centralism," which concentrates power in the party bureaucracy.

The P.C.F. now insists loudly and frequently that all its policies are determined in complete independence of Moscow. Doubtless outsiders lack full knowledge of the picture, but there is no substantial evidence to contradict this boast.

Meanwhile, in Italy also the Communists are shining in TV debates; they came through as the calm, moderate voices of sweet reason. With something like pride, Italians who do not even vote Communist will tell you: "All-but our Communists are different — they are men of roses (rosowater) Communists."

Most recent of rose water is the 55-year-old leader, Enrico Berlinguer. Sardinian-born, handsome in a rugged way, and often named as one of the country's "sexiest men" in surveys carried out by women's magazines, Berlinguer comes from an aristocratic background, he would be entitled to call himself a marquis is he wanted to, and his family still owns a huge estate in Sardinia.

His stepmother, Nikki Berlinguer, a well-known artist, is part of Rome's upper set. His daughters appear on the pages of magazines. Their gleaming limbs soaking up all the sun as they lie in their bikinis. With all this glamor, it is directly in rolling their countries. The Italian Parliament has been asked to accept a government program which has been drawn up in close collaboration with the Communists.

The program includes forward the foot which the Italian Communist party has managed to get in the door of government power after three decades outside.

Mother says death 'accident'

FREDDIE PRINZE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Freddie Prinze's mother doesn't think her son meant to kill himself when he shot himself to death last January, despite an official verdict of suicide.

Maria Prunzel told a news conference Monday her son joked about shooting himself and often put a gun to his head and pulled the trigger. But, she said, he always had the safety catch on and she believes he was unaware the catch was off the night he killed himself.

She also said she knew her son's death was accidental because of "circumstances that have recently been brought to my attention." She did not elaborate.

The 22-year-old comedian died of massive brain damage at UCLA Medical Center Jan. 29, 33 hours after he shot himself at the West Los Angeles hotel room where he lived since his separation from his wife.

Hughes estate dwindling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Howard Hughes' estimated $2.5 billion estate may be more than $630,000 poorer if a judge grants that sum to lawyers in fees for looking for a valid will of the late billionaire.

Papers filed in Superior Court revealed Monday that the special administrator of the estate has spent that much in hiring 34 lawyers and paralegal workers in a 15-month effort to find the will.

The lawyers and their aides spent 6,000 hours, examined records of 94 banks and spoke to persons in 13 states and four foreign countries in their quest, papers showed.

Judge Neil Lake said he will consider motions for the fees Aug. 18.

The law firm of Davis & Cox petitioned for $430,000 in fees and $35,414.30 in expenses. The firm of Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher sought $160,000 in lawyers' fees and $1,794.19 in expenses.

Special administrator Richard Gano also asked the judge to instruct him on what further steps should be taken to search for a will. Several days ago Gano filed a will-search report saying he has been unable to locate any valid will of Hughes.

Rev. Jackson raps Carter

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says it may take another Poor People's March on Washington to get President Carter to pay proper attention to the nation's unemployment problems.

Jackson, speaking Monday at the start of the Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity) convention, said, "Unemployment among blacks is 40 per cent, so jobs are the No. 1 priority."

"I look poor people's marches during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations to get the public accommodation and voting rights bills passed," he said. "I think the same thing is needed for the Carter administration," which he called fiscally conservative with only a pallid of "liberal jargon."

However, Jackson said such a march is probably a couple of years away.

Python brings stuntman out

BILL SHIRK

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Stuntman Bill Shirk — a 10-foot python around his neck — left the grave late Monday where he had spent three days with snakes and spiders in order to raise $5,000 for the retarded.

He immediately was shown a White House telegram he had demanded as a condition for being exhumed in front of his radio station.

When his $5,000 goal was not met by the original Sunday noon deadline, Shirk refused to emerge from his self-imposed burial until the full amount was gathered and until President Carter gave symbolic support to his charity effort. Occupying the coffin with him — in addition to the python — were a muzzled rattlesnake and two black tarantulas.

He said the $5,000, finally gathered, will be added to $13,000 raised earlier, to buy a bus for use by retarded citizens, the handicapped and the elderly.

Asked why he finally gave up after 79 hours underground, Shirk said:

"Well I want to be right honest with you, I thought I'd get the python out and kinda mess with him a little bit, and all of a sudden he got up around my neck area. Man I — seriously — he choked me."

Doctor arrested

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — A Palm Springs psychiatrist was accused of giving a "hit man" $1,000 to kill a plastic surgeon whose ex-wife was one of the psychiatrist's patients.

Dr. Morton Kurland, 44, was arrested Monday at the Desert Mental Health Clinic and jailed on a felony warrant charging conspiracy to commit murder, conspiracy to commit burglary, soliciting another to commit murder and selling or furnishing a controlled substance.

The target of the alleged murder plot was Dr. James Henry Churchill O'Connor, 52, a plastic surgeon formerly of Boston who now lives in Palm Springs. An undercover policeman posed as a hitman.

The alleged plot was never carried out.

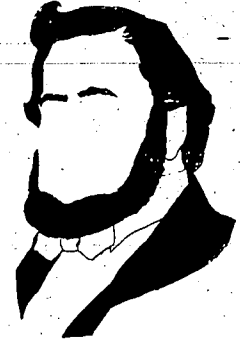

O'Connor said he was advised by police not to talk about the case, but he did say his ex-wife was once a patient of Kurland's. O'Connor and Kurland were reportedly at odds over the psychiatrist's methods of treatment.

"Police would not comment on a possible motive, but said in a prepared release that the investigation of Kurland began three weeks ago when one of his patients "was furnished a restricted drug" as "partial payment for the homicide."

The unidentified patient called police who sent an officer from nearby Riverside to pose as the hit man. Police did not elaborate.

On Monday the undercover officer told Kurland he had "in fact killed the subject as Kurland had requested."

ERA backed in Kansas

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — More than 2,000 women enlisted for more than two days during the Kansas Women's Weekend before voting to support ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, but spokeswomen for the two arguing factions both say they are pleased at the results.

Deby Hannike, a Shawnee Mission businesswoman and spokeswoman for Stop ERA in Kansas, emerged as one of the most vocal speakers for an informal pro-life coalition, composed of Kansans against ERA—Right-to-Life—and the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints. She said that of the 20 delegates elected to attend the national convention in Houston, 13 could be considered supporters of pro-family ideas — a ratio she considered a victory.

"I think it is very important that we (the pro-family supporters) were here," said Ms. Hannike. "Even though the other side passed most of their motions, they didn't pass them with an overwhelming vote. They can't leave the conference saying they have a mandate."

Ms. Hannike said despite the losses, she appreciated the convention because it brought together "people from all walks of life who believe in eliminating government control from their families, their lives and their schools."

On the other side of the controversies at the Kansas Women's Weekend was Kay Camin, chairwoman of the conference. She said that despite the defeat of most of the delegates on the state of the official Kansas Coordinating Committee, the conference had been a success.

Van Houten jury still deliberating

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The jury deciding the fate of Manson Family member Leslie Van Houten concluded its eighth day of deliberations Monday night, without reaching a verdict in her second murder trial.

The jurors have been sequestered since receiving the case July 8.

Miss Van Houten was convicted of first-degree murder in the stabbing deaths of Lena and Rosemary LaBianca at their home the night after the August, 1969, slayings of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons at Miss Tate's home.

The defendant was granted a retrial by the state Supreme Court because her attorney died accidentally during the first proceedings.

German chancellor agrees with Carter

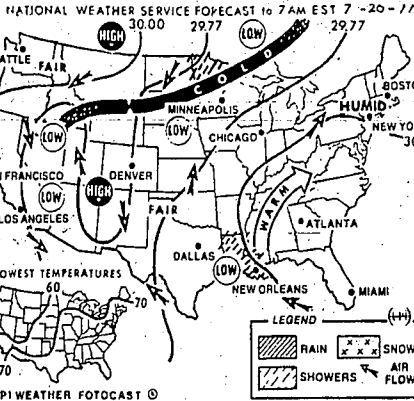

CHANCELLOR Helmut Schmidt said in an interview published on Sunday that he found President Carter an "openhearted man of ingratulating charm" as well as "a man who knows what he wants."

Schmidt flew home Sunday from visits to Canada, the United States and Iceland. Asked what he thought of Carter, the chancellor said: "He is a man of ingratulating charm and very openhearted in his talk. This suits me well. And he is a man who knows what he wants, and why he wants something."

In an apparent reference to reported differences between him and the President on the "human rights" issue, Schmidt said, "If there had been some differences, they evaporated at the London summit (in June). We became good friends in Washington."

Unionization of armed forces 'disasterous'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine spokesmen testified Monday that the threat of unionization of the Armed Forces is real and its potential consequences could be disruptive in peacetime and disastrous in wartime.

On two bills which would outlaw military unions. Some 26 measures on unionization of the military are also being pressed in the House.

With various degrees of intensity, the witnesses echoed his stand. They ranged from a four-star general and an admiral to a Marine captain and a chief master sergeant.

Chief Master Sergeant Thomas N. Barnes, a black and the highest ranking enlisted man in the Air Force, said his soundings as chief spokesman for enlisted grades had convinced him that "the traditional union processes of collective bargaining, mandatory consultation rights, strikes and work slowdowns and so on, have no place in the military environment."

Peaceful transition sought by US

LONDON (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young said today the United States and Britain will press ahead with their effort to achieve a peaceful transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia despite a lack of success thus far.

He praised the "energy and brain power" Owen is employing in trying to reach a settlement. "He said he felt certain Owen's meeting July 22-24 in Washington with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will be "very useful."

They talked briefly to reporters outside before returning to the Foreign Office for further official discussions. Owen said as far as Rhodesia is concerned "the situation is moving all the time."

between the majority of the people, both black and white, who are going to have to live together in peace in an independent Zimbabwe (Rhodesia)." He added that the transitional period between white and black rule is going to be "very difficult."

Organization predicts price increase in oil

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Most members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries believe there will be an oil price increase at the end of this year despite Saudi Arabia's call for a freeze until the end of 1978, the Middle East Economic Survey said today.

unified at the 10 per cent level at the beginning of this month when Saudi Arabia and the Emirates decided to raise theirs 3 per cent while the majority block passed up their scheduled 5 per cent increase.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you could easily see poor judgment or be advised adversely, so make a point to double-check conditions before making any changes. Be alert at all time today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do your work in a most precise way and you get ahead much faster at this time. Be sure not to lose your temper if under pressure.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure not to spend too much money for pleasure now or you could regret it later. Some creative work can prove worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) This is not the right time to pursue a new project that interests you. Strive to have increased harmony with family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't scatter your forces today but concentrate on one project and make sure you handle it efficiently.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to forget all that Leo generosity today and work on economical measures that can put you in a better financial position.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Being more objective in your thinking is wise now. Steer clear of one who is jealous of you. Be careful of your reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle important business affairs instead of spending so much time on personal activities. Pleasing your mate more is wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could be in a criticizing mood now and take your ire out on good friends, so avoid doing so. Concentrate on the practical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't be impatient now because you think all is not going as fast as you wish in career matters. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think over what is best to do in the future but don't come to any definite decisions at this time. Relax tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find a better way of handling your credit and debit matters. A wiser attitude toward mate brings excellent results now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you know what is expected of you by associates and try to please them for best results. Think constructively.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of ideas but has to be taught to differentiate between those that are good and those that are not. There is a fine balance of mind and physical activity in this chart. Don't neglect ethical training.

July 16 was Saint Swithin's Day. Client asks what's the significance of it. Saint Swithin's Day is sort of the Ground Hog's Day of the holy orders. An old rhyme does: "Saint Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain... For forty days it will... Saint Swithin's Day if thou be fair... For forty days 'twill rain nae mair." That particular saint named Swithin was an advisor to Ethelwulf, king of the West Saxons, who was to it he became a bishop around 852. As for what he did to merit the calendar recognition, I'll have to refer you to those who know a lot more about it, and care more.

FAMILIARITY BREEDS

- Q. "Wasn't it Mark Twain who first said, 'Familiarity breeds contempt'?"
- A. No, Aesop gets earliest credit for that one. Twain said, "Familiarity breeds contempt--and children."
- Q. "What kind of animal is it that lays square eggs?"
- A. Can only report that the small shark lays rectangular eggs.
- Q. "What makes oriental hair shinier than occidental hair?"
- A. The outside layer called the cuticle is thicker.

BILLION

That Californian Chris Burns, C. P. A., says: "If you count back in time one billion seconds, you will be in 1845. If you count back one billion minutes, you'll be back at the time Christ was alive. And if you count back one billion hours, you'll be at 112,000 B. C. But tonight at 8 p. m., if you count back $1 Billion in U. S. Government spending, that happened at 10:30 last night."

It's claimed that women play cards better when they're a ferocious mood. Remember that, air. If your wife is to break bridge partner, you're advised to do something to irritate her before the game. Wait, never mind. Maybe your opening play will serve.

Never practice that musical instrument of yours when you're tired. That's the advice of a famous music teacher. When you're over-weary, he says, you tend to rehearse your mistakes.

Now here's a medico who contends you should knock-off the salt in your diet if you get a sprained ankle. Salt retains body water, so increases swelling, which aggravates the pain. That's why.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

©1977 by The Chicago Tribune. A. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: "Stay Out of My Kitchen" was a cute yarn, but you might have helped the lady more had you encouraged her to let her visitor come on in.

Consider the alternative, with the visitor sitting there, staring at your four walls, feeling that she had put you to a world of trouble and wishing she had not come.

Because of my husband's job, we moved nine times to different towns where I didn't know Soul One, but we made friends easily by allowing people to know us as we were.

FRIENDLY SOUL

Visitors welcome

DEAR FRIENDLY: A surprising number of readers agree with you. Meet another "FRIENDLY SOUL."

DEAR ABBY: May I suggest that the woman who doesn't want her guests to follow her into the kitchen drop her foolish pride and wake up to the fact that her friends do not come to see what kind of a housekeeper she is, but to visit with her.

I have a little verse framed and hanging in my kitchen which reads:

COME IN, SIT DOWN, RELAX, CONVERSE.
MY KITCHEN DOESN'T ALWAYS LOOK LIKE THIS.
SOMETIMES IT'S EVEN WORSE!

A FRIEND

DEAR ABBY: I notice from your column that you, too, have been browbeaten into believing that everyone could have a will.

This is something I would very much like to know about, but I can't seem to get a straight answer from anybody.

Isn't it entirely possible for a couple with a modest estate and no minor children to put all their property in both their names and eliminate probate court with its huge fees, delays and red tape?

My husband and I have twin wills and we're beginning to wonder if this doesn't invite the courts to handle something (for a huge fee) that would take care of itself. In other words, wouldn't the property all go to the remaining spouse with no help from the probate court?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: The laws differ from state to state. So since your question is a legal one, ask a lawyer. I am constantly amazed at the number of people who are reluctant to pay a modest legal fee when it could solve their problems and give them peace of mind.

DEAR ABBY: My pet peeve is the accepted, though obnoxious, custom of seating wedding guests so that the bride's family and friends are on one side of the church and the groom's on the other.

When the usher asks me, "Whose side are you on?" I always have the urge to say, "Must I choose sides? They haven't even started fighting yet."

Hospital established solely for abortions

ATLANTA (UPI) — The director of a controversial new hospital specializing in performing mid-pregnancy abortions says the need for abortion in many ways reflects a lack of providing proper education for young people.

Woman and her doctor, and the state could regulate the procedure only in the best interests of the woman's health.

Miss Rose said patients, who have numbered 30 to 50 a week, span all ages, racial and economic groups.

Abortionists will represent an immediate solution to society's failure," said Dr. Edward M. Portman of the Midtown Hospital.

About half the patients so far have been from Georgia, with the remainder from other parts of the Southeast.

Before Midtown, women in the second trimester desiring abortions had to go to New York, Detroit or Washington.

Phonograph show marks 100th year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thomas A. Edison had an inspiration for the phonograph 100 years ago today and surprised himself when he built a model, shouted "Mary had a Little Lamb" into it and heard the machine recite the verses back.

who was so popular that historians like to say, "Curuso made the phonograph and the phonograph made Curuso."

"I was never so taken aback in my life," Edison said later. "Everybody was astonished. I was always afraid of things that worked the first time."

Edison thought people without phones would record their messages and take them to a central station where they would be played for the addressee over a telephone.

To celebrate the anniversary, the Library of Congress opens an exhibition today of Edison's machine and what evolved from it.

Edison thought people without phones would record their messages and take them to a central station where they would be played for the addressee over a telephone.

Visitors will be able to listen to samples from the library's collection of several hundred thousand recordings.

On July 16, 1877, Edison sketched his idea for a phonograph in his journals. Four months later, an assistant, Edward H. Johnson, wrote about his boss' idea in "Scientific American" under the headline: "A Wonderful Invention — Speech Capable of Indefinite Repetition From Automatic Records."

They will hear Woodrow Wilson deliver a 1912 campaign speech; Bing Crosby sing "Where the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day"; comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello do their famous "Who's on First" routine; and a Paganmannaquid Indian chant recorded in 1890.

This embarrassed Edison, forcing him to produce a machine to match his idea. He soon did, and a month later Johnson telegraphed a friend: "Phonograph delivered to me today. Complete success. Talks plainer than the telephone."

They also will hear Edison's 1927 rendition of "Mary had a Little Lamb" (he recorded it again on the 50th anniversary of his invention) and opera sung by Enrico Caruso, who was so popular that historians like to say, "Curuso made the phonograph and the phonograph made Curuso."

Your health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — For about eight years I've been treated with shots for an allergic rhinitis. I was doing fine as long as I took the allergy shots.

Since we have moved I have been going to a Navy hospital and the doctor claims I have asthma. He has been giving me prednisone and other medicines. As long as I am in the hospital with the venous medicine and breathing machines I feel better. Last night I was rushed to the hospital just gasping for breath. After five shots of adrenaline I was sent home. I feel jumpy but the symptoms continue. I'm really upset as I don't know what to do.

Will I change doctors or try any medicine over the counter that will help this constant wheezing?

Dear Reader — Allergic rhinitis does not cause wheezing or the breathing problems you describe. You have asthma. The confusion may have come from the point that some people who are allergic have both asthma and allergic rhinitis.

The three major manifestations of such allergies are allergic rhinitis, asthma and hives. Some people have one of these and some have two or even all three.

The difference is really which cells are involved in the allergic reaction. In allergic rhinitis the cells in the nasal area are interacting with the allergic substance and pour out histamine of a related chemical that causes the nasal symptoms. In asthma, the cells in the air passages are affected. In hives the cells in the skin are involved in the reaction. Desensitization shots may help in some cases in all three of these conditions.

To help you sort out your problem I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter, number 84 Hay Fever (Allergic Rhinitis) and #85 Asthma. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for each with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 151, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10018. As these issues explain, your parents may have one of these three disorders and as a child you may inherit a different one of the three.

Treating acute asthma attacks is sometimes difficult. I would not advise a do-it-yourself approach in a severe case such as yours. That could be a very serious mistake. Better stick with your doctor and stay away from those over-the-counter, do-it-yourself efforts. You understand this better when you read the Health Letters that I am sending you.

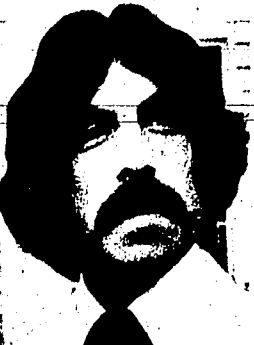

Dear Dr. Lamb — What is the approximate limit of calories that the body can convert into fat in a day?

If I turn 3000 calories per day but eat 20,000 calories a day can the entire balance of 17,000 calories be converted to fat or are some of them simply excreted without being utilized?

The limit is in how much you can eat and absorb. Once the calories are absorbed from the small intestine into the blood stream they will be processed and the unused balance will be used to form fat. In your illustration, about 4.5 pounds of fat.

Of course if you developed diarrhea from overeating you would not absorb all of them and thus wouldn't count. Otherwise, calories do count — every last blasted one of them. So if your stomach and intestines can hold the food and digest and absorb it — you will convert the total excess to fat.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in this column.

DR. EDWARD PORTMAN hospital director

Portman believes the hospital is unique in that it is dedicated to performing second trimester abortions.

There was a small demonstration by members of the Georgia Right to Life group when Midtown opened May 10 in the white, two-story former Ponce de Leon Infirmary. Ann Rose, director of patient services, said that was the only incident. "We've gotten no flack from anybody, really."

Georgia law requires second trimester abortions (those in the fourth to sixth months of pregnancy) be done in a hospital.

In this area (Georgia), as well as throughout the Southeast, the second trimester services are just not available, or, if they are available they're minimal," said Portman. "Most hospitals, large or small, are unwilling to open up their operating rooms or beds for second trimester people."

Midtown will perform abortions through 20 weeks' gestation, Portman said. The hospital intends "to provide a safe, controlled solution to the present problem and to develop better and more appropriate alternatives for the future."

In 1973, the Supreme Court ruled that abortion in the first trimester was a decision between a woman and her doctor, and the state had not regulatory powers. For second trimester abortions, the court said the decision was still primarily between a

NOW eyes ERA foes

SPORANE (UPI) — The Washington State Convention of the National Organization for Women ended a three-day convulsion Sunday by passing a resolution aimed at identifying groups opposing the Equal Rights Amendment.

The resolution was a reaction to a group identified as members of The Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints (Mormon) who attended the state Conference for Women in Ellensburg last week and successfully held back an ethnic women's rights resolution which included the Equal Rights Amendment.

The NOW group met over the weekend at Whitworth College.

There, the ethnic women's rights resolution passed and a separate resolution reaffirming NOW support of the ERA was adopted.

Some NOW conference delegates, wanting further action, advocated women establish boycotts against Mormon-associated businesses.

In a compromise move, the conference voted to establish the task force to delay any boycotts until all organized opponents to the ERA are identified and local chapters are given the opportunity to vote individually on whether they want to pursue boycotts or other actions against these opponents.

STRAWBERRY SOUR CREAM PIE

- 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 tsp. grated lemon peel
 - 1/2 cups water
 - 1 9-oz. pkg. strawberry gelatin
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 1/2 cups sliced fresh strawberries
 - 1 7-inch graham cracker pie crust
 - Whipped cream
- Place sugar and peel in saucepan. Stir in 1 cup water and heat to boiling. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add remaining 1/2 cup water, chill until partially set, whip until fluffy and light in color.

In a chilled bowl with chilled beaters whip sour cream until doubled in volume — about five minutes at high speed.

Fold into whipped gelatin and fold in strawberries.

Pour into crust, cover and chill until set. Garnish with strawberry halves and whipped cream.

Circus coming

TWIN FALLS — Sponsored by the Twin Falls Firefighters, the American Continental Circus marches into Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer on Tuesday, July 26.

Showtimes are 2 and 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at the gate, one hour before each performance.

The performing elephants all work for peanuts, and they're just a part of the fun of over three hours of non-stop thrills with over a hundred international performers and scores of wild animals. Each show includes acrobats, monkeyshine clowns, high wire and trapeze daredevils, spectacular jugglers, bare back horse riders, trained jungle cats and bears, and a carload of crazy clowns.

Touring throughout the United States and Canada, the American Continental is the only circus owned and operated by a woman, Patricia Queen Colquhoun. The lively circus band is directed by Herb Miller, younger brother of the late Glenn Miller, and the singing ringmaster is Herb's son, John.

This will be the only appearance by the circus in South Idaho this year.

New book aids consumers

"The Medicine Show," by the editors of Consumer Reports.

Day in, day out on television and radio, in newspapers and magazines, you are deluged with ads for a bewildering variety of drugs, medicines and cosmetics. These ads are calculated to profit from your anxieties—about how you feel, how you look, how you smell—by convincing you that one product, one product alone can help you. Fortunately, you can get the unbiased facts about many such claims in The Medicine Show. Several chapters guide the consumer through the often baffling world of medicine, including buying prescription drugs, finding a family doctor, and choosing a hospital. What to have in the home medicine cabinet is also discussed, with detailed advice on the seven basic drugs that should be in every home.

"Another Winter, Another Spring," by Louise de Kiriline Lawrence.

This is at once an actual memoir and intensely felt love story. It is the true story of a young woman of ease and privilege, her growing up in a dail the world's richest aristocracy during the 1930s.

In the long run, Helbronner maintains, capitalism must give way before the mounting difficulties of the environment and the waning convictions of its own citizens. Within a century, he suggests, a new "civilization" will have replaced that of business—a tightly controlled society where the traditional pillars of capitalism, private property and the market have been abandoned beyond recognition.

"College Learning, Anytime, Anywhere," by Evelyn B. Nyquist and Jack Arbolino.

Are you one of the estimated

14 million people who want to earn a college degree, but find it hard to attend classes and pay for college courses?

This distinguished group of authors has written this for you. They want you to save time and money and help you gain a college degree for what you know now and what you know in time.

"The Life and Art of the North American Indian," by John Anson Warner.

Our mental picture of these people is so influenced by Hollywood's yelling savages that it obscures our view of the culture that produced them.

This book sets out to put the records straight; it deals with each group of Indians in turn, from Alaska through Canada and the United States to the borders of Mexico.

The author, a young associate professor of sociology in the University of Regina, Saskatchewan, has brought to his subject a passionate conviction that, in modern, materialistic world, we have much to learn from these uncomplacated natural people (instead of the other way around).

There are 150 illustrations, 100 of them in color—truly "a book for our time."

"The Superwives," by Jeanne Parr.

What is it like to be married to a sports hero? The author, after researching over a year 68 compellingly and dramatically as any novel. There are many anxieties of "Mrs. Jock," the uncertainties of endless moves, age and injury, rearing the children of an absentee superdaddy, to Jealousy.

Marquarite Simpson says, "I've been shoved out of the way, pushed and stepped on by more than one beautiful woman." These 29 wives are honest, open, sometimes brash, sometimes vulnerable, as they throw wide the door to their high-powered, highly visible life-style.

"The Werewolf," by John Gardner.

Who could imagine a quiet house in Surrey as an area where ghosts born during the final Wagnerian act of Hitler's Reich conspire to haunt not only a man's past, but to endanger his present and future as well?

This novel is more than a thriller. It looks at the world of sophisticated undercover surveillance.

Potato salad good anytime

Wash and scrub potatoes with a vegetable brush. Place potatoes in a large pan with 2 quarts water and 1 teaspoon salt. Cover and boil potatoes for 30 to 35 minutes or until skins start to break, 300 potatoes are tender when pricked with a fork.

White potatoes are cooking, place eggs in a saucepan with enough cold water to cover. Cover pan and bring water to boil. Lower heat to medium and allow eggs to simmer for 15 minutes. Drain eggs and add cold water to pan. Drain again and add more cold water. Lightly crack shell and allow eggs to remain in cold water while you chop the celery and onion. Drain eggs and peel completely.

Drain water from potatoes, being careful to keep face out of rising steam. Add cold water to potatoes in pan, drain, cover again with cold water and drain. Set potatoes on counter or cutting board, to cool so you may handle them. Working with a small paring knife, peel skins off potatoes. Potatoes will be hot. Cut potatoes into cubes, about 1/2 inch square.

Chop eggs and combine with cubed potatoes in a large mixing bowl. Add celery, onion, French dressing, salt and pepper. Using a rubber scraper, mix lightly to avoid crumbling potatoes. Cover and place in refrigerator to chill. Just before serving, fold in mayonnaise. Line a serving bowl with lettuce leaves. Spoon potato salad into bowl and sprinkle with paprika. 6 servings.

Perfect cow dairyman's goal

By KEN HODGE
Times-News Writer

PERFECTING — Dairyman Tom Bingham may soon have the perfect cow in his herd.

At least that is what he is bragging. Bingham says he is using a computer dating service, Operation Match, originated by Harvard students in the mid-60s.

Just like the college students who hopefully filled out a questionnaire to be fed into the Harvard computer for that perfectly compatible date, Bingham uses a computer to find good bulls for mating with his dairy cows.

Most college students reported they were disappointed with the matches they got by punch card, but the sire's matched to Bingham's dairy cows by computer get the desired results — better offspring.

"The computerized breeding program, Genetic Mating Service, a service of American Breeders Service, not only saves Bingham much time in selecting proper sires for his herd, but also makes him money in higher milk production and better dairy cows."

"I admit the machine is really good at picking the right bulls for mating to his cows," he would be if he took the time to do it right.

Without a program like this, "there is no way of getting that perfect cow," Bingham says as he surveys a computer data sheet in his small office.

"I can evaluate them myself, but it's hard to judge your own cows," he says. "It's time consuming, I never did take the time to study the bulls."

production. A good type cow can stay in a herd longer."

Redick says he tries not only to improve obvious weaknesses, but also to generally make each offspring stronger in all dairy characteristics.

He goes over each cow from head to tail and "scores" the animal on a data sheet.

"We are describing to the computer numerically what that cow look like," Redick explains. "That's why we use degrees of traits."

Once he has filled out the numerical description of the cow, the data can be fed into the computer and the cow is instantly matched with one of the more than 3,000 sires whose statistics and breeding records are stored in the ABS computer.

Knowing the goals set by the dairyman for increasing the type and productivity of his herd, the computer picks two choices of bulls to breed to the man's cow. He can then decide if the price of the breeding is within his means.

"The computer doesn't make any decisions we couldn't make," Redick says. "It's just faster and more efficient. It makes 2,000 decisions for the first choice mating and 2,000 additional decisions for the second choice."

The computer takes into consideration the qualities present in the sire and also the many offspring of the sire and the traits he passed on to them, according to Redick.

The breeding program, called the Genetic Mating Service, is almost a sure fire bet to upgrade a dairyman's herd.

RECORD SCRUTINY PART OF CATTLE FACTOR STUDY

"We mate the cows right."

He says some show 6,000 to 8,000 pounds a year increase in production.

"That's a lot of milk in a man's herd," Reddick adds. "The average continues to grow."

He says the goal of the program is to "get the feed cost and the production as far apart as possible, to get the most milk for the least amount of feed."

Arlanda Ellen who produced a whopping 55,660 pounds of milk and 1,573 pounds of butterfat in her fifth lactation year.

Average productivity for Holsteins is about 14,932 pounds of milk per year, Reddick says.

Bingham's involvement with ABS and the Genetic Mating Service is a success story of which both he and the company are proud.

19,571 pounds of milk and 641 pounds of butterfat a year for about the same number of cows.

He has found that he can increase the number of lactations, or milk producing years, a cow is good for through computer breeding and can increase the productivity of individual cows in his herd.

He even finds younger cows, which usually do not reach their peak productivity—until later in their lives, producing as much as older cows in his herd.

Even though Operation Match failed for matching college students, computerized mating seems to be working for dairy cows.

McClure blasts drought aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senator James McClure, R-Idaho, has charged that bureaucratic red tape is holding up urgently needed interest-free loans for western irrigators that were authorized by the Emergency Drought

Act of 1977.

According to McClure, not a single loan has yet been made to individual farmers under the act which was passed in April to help drought-stricken irrigators ward off the worst effects of this year's drought.

According to McClure's statement, the Department of Interior and its Bureau of Reclamation were supposed to administer the program, but so far they have only managed to process loans for irrigation districts. Individual farmers, on the other hand, "have been given a continual run-around," the senator said.

Higher prices due for beef consumer

DENVER (UPI)—The president of the K-Bar Cattle Feeding Fund said consumers who are enjoying low beef prices expect to pay higher prices in the future or eat less meat.

million head of cattle on feed. While the figure now has dropped to about 10 million.

Russell said the effects of the droughts still is declining as ranchers continue to slaughter breeding cattle to decrease the size of herds and increase the price of beef.

The Bureau of Reclamation has been instructed to get the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) to administer the program, which the FHA has only just now agreed to do, McClure said.

Now the Bureau of Reclamation is "working on getting $4,000,000 transferred to the FHA to begin making the interest-free loans, but no loans have yet been forthcoming, he charged.

How can I cut my electric use?

Here's one way: lower the thermostats on your water heater.

Lowering thermostat settings can put a real dent in the amount of energy you use for water heating. Most water heaters have two thermostats. You'll find them behind the removable plates on the front of your heater. On most models, the thermostats can be adjusted by hand or by using a screwdriver. Lower the setting to 120 degrees. That's hot enough for most household uses, although if you have an automatic dishwasher, you may need a somewhat higher temperature. One note of caution: be sure you shut off the electricity to the heater before adjusting. For more energy-saving ideas, call your local Idaho Power office and talk to an energy adviser.

Defection will bring family woe

PILOT FAN YUAN-YEN GRANTS INTERVIEW
... UPI writer Shullen Shaw, left, listens

Food shortages grip China

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — A Chinese pilot who defected to Taiwan in his MiG-19 jet said today food shortages in the mainland are so extensive many people are near starvation and some even give away their children in exchange for food coupons.

Fan Yuan-yen said in an exclusive interview with UPI that one of the reasons he defected was his horror at seeing children and the elderly gather around his officers mess to wait for food scraps.

Fan said that while Air Force personnel, considered the military elite in China, often got more than enough to eat, most people didn't.

"Our mess hall comrades would put all the leftovers in several buckets and the kids and old men and women would fight to get a share of it," he said.

their children for ration coupons — or for nothing at all so the youngsters might get enough to eat from someone else.

Fan said he is not certain, but he suspects there is no real food shortage in China because of the reported droughts and floods in many provinces.

He said one indication was the fact that meat rations for Air Force pilots have recently been cut by more than two-thirds, with no explanation.

But despite the widespread famine, he said, some families are getting enough or more than enough to eat because of so-called "free trade," which has produced some "rich people" under the Communist rule.

He said many factory workers and farmers have deserted their posts to engage in free trade, purchasing rice and meat from commune farmers who managed to hoard it for themselves.

"The purchasers, in turn, sell the foodstuffs to the people in cities who have surplus money but not enough food rations."

He said blackmarketeering has been going on for many years but it is becoming more popular since the death of Mao and the purge of the "Gang of Four."

He said the Peking government led by Hua Kuo-feng seemed too busy fighting for power to control the people as effectively as Mao did in the past.

three children, the oldest is 13, will suffer," he said.

He said a family in the "Five Black Categories" always suffers with the condemned head of the family. These categories consist of former landlords, former rich farmers, anti-revolutionaries, rightists and "bad elements."

He said his wife had no advance knowledge of his plan to defect.

"She is innocent and so are my children. They should not suffer because of me and yet they definitely will unless Mr. Vance tries to help me," he said.

He said, despite the State Department's announced intention not to get involved in the defection, "I believe Mr. Vance may help me to get my family members out, or at least to stop the Communists from making them suffer."

"I believe because I heard the American President has been promoting human rights in many other countries," he said.

Fan said his letter to Vance was mailed to the U.S. Embassy in Taiwan, which confirmed its receipt but did not say what it would do with it.

Fan declined to discuss how he planned to spend his new fortune — 5,000 ounces of gold worth more than $700,000, which the Nationalist government awarded him for bringing a MiG-19 to Taiwan.

"I know I have a lot of money now, but I have really had no much time to think about it often," he said.

Ravenscroft lauds signup withdrawal

BOISE — President Carter's action in withdrawing his proposal for instant at-the-polls registration is a victory for common sense, a protection for the legitimate voter and a tribute to the imagination and aggressive leadership of Congressman Steve Symms, said Idaho Republican Chairman Vernon Ravenscroft Friday.

Carter's withdrawal of the proposal just two days after Idaho's First District Congressman Steve Symms and Congressman Robert Dorman, R-Calif., held a press conference in Washington, D.C., to exhibit bogus identification cards bearing their pictures and the names of seven prominent Democrats who supported the voter proposal.

Symms said they had obtained the bogus identification cards which bore official-looking seals and a registration number from a California mail-order firm, Symms said the cards demonstrated how easy it would be for anyone to voter fraud to occur if Fulkers had to only show "positive" identification at the polls to be allowed to vote.

Ravenscroft reported the Idaho Republican congressman had said that Carter's plan would open elections up to widespread voter fraud estimated at as much as 10 per cent, enough to change the outcome of many elections.

"Under Carter's compromise agreement announced Friday, at-the-polls registration would be optional for states, but not required," Ravenscroft concluded.

A thought for the day: British Statesman Winston Churchill said, "The V sign is the symbol of the unconquerable will of the (German)-occupied territories and a portent of the fate awaiting Nazi tyranny."

How to have ducks and shoot them too?

By JEFF SHER
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Sportsmen attending a meeting on upland birds, waterfowl and hunters Monday night agreed on a change in waterfowl regulations but opposed most of the changes proposed by the Fish and Game Department.

The Fish and Game Department called the meeting to inform the public of its recommendations for the 1977-78 waterfowl season for the coming year. The meeting was held to gather public opinion on the proposals. The proposals and public comment will be forwarded to the Fish and Game Commission, who will make the final decisions on the season.

A majority of the 25-30 sportsmen in attendance at the meeting indicated they opposed a change in the waterfowl regulations which would disperse the birds from the Hagerman Wildlife Refuge (HWR). Improve hunting away from the refuge, cause the birds to modify their night-feeding practices and reduce the number of crippled birds resulting from the firing line situation at the HWR, in which hunters shoot on the borders of the refuge but are unable to pursue crippled birds into the sanctuary.

But the sportsmen failed to show solid support for any of the plans developed by the F&G to achieve these desired ends.

None of the sportsmen favored a complete closure of hunting near the HWR. Nor did anyone support the limitation of hunting to three firing lines near the HWR with hunting to be allowed only on alternate weeks.

Eleven of the interested hunters said they would support a limited-entry proposal which would limit the number of hunters, require a mandatory check-in and check-out, and limit shooting to blinds only. Some of the hunters said they would even back a limit on the number of shells which could be taken into the area to reduce the "skybusting" shooting practices which only cripple birds.

However, neither the hunters nor Gary Will, regional F&G game manager, nor Stu Murrell, regional F&G information officer, felt that this proposal was workable because the F&G lacks the funds to hire the number of people necessary to enforce such a strict regulatory system.

A proposal to allow hunting every day on three firing lines (the firing line east of the HWR would be closed to hunting to allow the birds a safe route of exit and entry from the HWR) but to close hunting on Riley Creek and the Oster Lakes found no support, but a three-firing line set-up with Oster Lakes and Riley Creek left open found favor, with a majority.

A proposal to close hunting in an 8-square mile area surrounding Bell Rapids downstream from the HWR, in effect creating another refuge to disperse the birds and cause increased flight up and down the Snake River, met with the approval of 13 sportsmen, but none voiced any preference either way on the creation of a similar refuge surrounding the Milner Dam pool.

In a surprising development, 12 sportsmen said they would be willing to pay an extra fee to hunt in the Hagerman area to finance a beefed-up F&G enforcement squad in the area.

Only eight favored a proposed goose-hunting closure for the area along the Snake River from the Gooding County line to on the west. Declo on the east and between I-80 and Highway 30 on the north and south. Nine opposed the plan.

Will said the F&G feels the goose closure is necessary because the number of nesting pairs of geese along the Snake River is either declining or just holding stable. In the area between Minidoka and Milner Dam, the number of nests is down over a third, from 17-11, in the last two years.

Will said he guessed the duck season, which cannot be set until guidelines have been established by the Flyway Council for the Intermountain region, a body composed of representatives from both the United States and Canada, will probably remain the same as last year.

Goose season, however, will be shorter for the area west of Highway 93. The season for all of southern Idaho will open Nov. 9 and close Dec. 18. Last year the season west of Highway 93 continued until Dec. 31.

Ramirez upset in Washington Star net

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unseeded Brian Teacher of San Diego upset third-seeded Raul Ramirez, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, early Tuesday in a draw-out first round of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

Second-seeded Brian Gottfried of Los Angeles, Fla., beat Chris Lewis of Los Angeles, 6-4, 7-6.

Teacher, hoping to play in his first tournament since undergoing heel surgery in February, was forced to withdraw from the singles competition but will attempt to play doubles with his partner, Stan Smith.

Teacher, a 22-year-old UCLA All-American, took the first set, 6-4, and broke Ramirez' serve to lead 4-3 in the second set, but Ramirez broke back twice to win that set, 6-4.

After Teacher jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the final set, Ramirez appeared to take control, going up 5-2. But Teacher held his serve, broke back Ramirez, and held serve again to even the match at 5-5.

Each man held their serves, setting up the tie-breaker which Teacher won, 7-5.

Gottfried, the Grand Prix circuit point leader, rallied from a 3-0 deficit in his second set with Lewis earlier in the evening by winning the next five points, breaking Lewis' serve twice in the process.

Lewis, a 21-year-old University of Southern California senior who qualified Sunday for the tournament, tied up the match at 5-5 by breaking Gottfried's serve, but the 25-year-old Gottfried immediately broke back and served out the match.

Tournament co-chairman Donald Dell said Ashe pulled out of the singles competition because of problems with his heel.

"Arthur tried to play today, but the swelling in his foot forced him to stop," said Dell, who is also Ashe's attorney. "The heel doesn't seem to be responding to treatment."

Ashe, who won the Star tournament in 1973 and was eighth seeded this year, underwent surgery for a bone spur on his left heel Feb. 9 and has not played competitively since.

His place in the singles competition will be taken by 31-year-old Butel Seawagen of Riverdale, N.Y.

First round play began at noon Monday and was hampered during the afternoon by intermittent thunderstorms.

In the only early match involving a seeded player, No. 16 Dick Crealy of Australia, who has reached the semifinals at two Grand Prix tournaments this year, defeated South Africa's Dean Joubert, 6-4, 6-4.

In other matches, Columbia's Ivan Molina beat George Hardie of Long Beach, Calif., 6-3, 6-4; South Africa's Byron Bertram beat Mexico's Emilio Montano, 2-6, 6-0, 6-4; Argentina's Ricardo Cano beat South Africa's Bernie Minton, 7-6, 6-2; Van Winksky of North Miami Beach, Fla., beat Chico Hagey of La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-2.

Australia's John James beat Venezuela's Jorge Andrew, 7-5, 6-0; Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich., beat Howard Schoenfeld of Ponte Vedra, Calif., 6-3, 6-4; Ray Moore of South Africa defeated Anand Arimilraj of India, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4; Ricardo Yanez of Ecuador defeated Willem Prinsloo of South Africa, 7-6, 6-3.

Popping a wheelie

LARRY Dekker, Jerome, jerks the entire front end of his car off the ground when he jumps on the throttle. Dekker's powerful Chevy took second in the super-stock class at International Raceway in Pocatello two weeks ago, losing only to national record-holder Keith Lynch, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Magic dragsters mine Pocatello gold

POCATELLO — Saturday night will find the fourth event of the 1977 drag racing season taking place at International Raceway in Pocatello. Once again, eliminations will begin at 8 p.m., allowing the spectators the enjoyment of watching the action in the cool of the evening.

Continuing as the track, both on the part of the racers and the fans, appears to be an upswing. Jim Hennessy, track owner, commented, "At the last race we had our biggest crowd of the year, nearly 1,500 people along with a huge turnout of racers from three states. The season is reaching its peak, the cars are going faster than ever and everyone is having a great time."

After each event, most of the prize money leaves the Pocatello area. Even though there is a large number of local entrants, the winner and runner up in every bracket except the 1/8 mile were from Utah, Montana and the Twin Falls area.

Carrying the banner for the Pocatello racers is Al Steimle, who pilots one of the fastest Oldsmobile 442s in the Northwest. Steimle is undefeated last year at the Pocatello track as well as at the extremely competitive Bonneville Raceway in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Gary Masterson, Hamilton, will be returning Saturday night in Dralser, action piloting the 180 miles per hour Wilkinson-Master A Dragster along with a large number of Salt Lake City racers and Alan Bloom's machine from Idaho Falls.

Super Stocks and Modifieds are expected back from Utah,

Montana, Idaho and Nevada to do their part in the battle for recognition and a share of the $1,500 in prize money. Twin Falls area drivers were very evident at the last event as they grabbed off three of the four runner-up positions including Dave Austin in Modified, Larry Dekker in Super Stock and Larry Davis in the Stock bracket.

Man-outbid for Slew speaks

OCALA, Fla. (UPI) — The man who stopped $500 short of winning Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew when the colt was yearling has stepped forward, but with no regrets.

"I'm afraid so," T.N. Lavery, a horse trader and buyer, said Monday, when asked if he was the "underbidder" at the yearling sale.

"Not only that, I was the overbidder on Bold Forbes in the Fasig-Tipton yearling sale, $500 in Lexington (Ky.) the year before."

Bold Forbes later won the 1976 Kentucky Derby and was syndicated for stud for $4.1 million.

"But Lavery isn't singing the blues about either sale, because that's just the way he does business.

"As a rule I set my limit on what I think a particular yearling is worth. Then I don't care if I'm outbidding Mickey Taylor (part owner of Seattle Slew) or not outbidding him. It's immaterial to me," Lavery said.

"The limit I'd planned to bid on Seattle Slew was around $14,000, but I got a little carried away and kept the Taylors in suspense by going up to $17,000 in bidding for him."

The Taylors got him for $17,500 and are expected to eventually syndicate him for more than $12 million.

But Lavery insists with a convincing laugh: "I have no regrets. I'm just happy for the people who own these fine horses. Even if I'd got Seattle Slew, I would have resold him, no matter how much potential he might have shown me. That's my business, buying and selling young horses."

Lavery calls himself a

"pilot," a man who buys yearlings, trains them for a year and then tries to sell them for a profit as 2-year-olds.

"It's bidding for a yearling, you have to speculate on how much you can get for the horse as a 2-year-old," Lavery said. "I figured Seattle Slew would be between $25,000 and $28,000 as a 2-year-old."

"He was a gangling colt and needed time to grow into himself. And when I thought I reached $17,000, I had gone to the limit that I could pay and still try to make some money on him."

"I'll tell you one thing, Billy Turner has done a helluva job training Slew. I'm just thrilled by his success. I think Seattle Slew is the best thing that's happened to racing in a long time."

Randle cops plea

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — A judge agreed Monday to accept a no-contest plea to a reduced charge of simple battery from New York Mets infielder Lenny Randle for the March 23 slugging of former Texas Rangers manager Frank Lucchesi.

Randle originally was charged with aggravated battery, a felony with a 15-year maximum penalty.

Circuit Judge Maurice Paul accepted Orange-Occochee State Attorney Robert Egan's recommendation in a plea conference that the felony be reduced to a misdemeanor.

The misdemeanor charge carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. Paul agreed to forego a jail sentence in favor of imposing the maximum $1,000 fine.

Paul made the negotiated plea contingent on Randle's making full restitution for all medical expenses incurred by Lucchesi. Randle's attorney, Richard Neuhelzel of Tempe, Ariz., said he could produce documentation that would show that a Rangers' fine against Randle took care of Lucchesi's expenses.

Paul told Neuhelzel that Randle would have to appear in court in the next few weeks for an arraignment and sentencing. The judge said he would declare Randle guilty once the no-contest plea is entered.

Celtics search for new center-forward combo

BOSTON (UPI) — Whether or not they get Sidney Wicks back into the fold, the Boston Celtics hope they can rekindle the center-forward relationship that gave them world championships in 1974 and 1976.

With that in mind, they drafted forward Cedric "Combread" Maxwell from the University of North Carolina-Charlotte last month, and signed him to a multi-year contract Monday.

General Manager Red Auerbach also announced he was flying to New York Monday night to meet with Wicks' agent, Larry Fleisher, with hopes of coming together on a contract. The Celtics purchased Wicks from the Portland Trail Blazers last season, but the 6-foot-9 forward remained unsigned through last season. If the Celtics sign him this year, they'll have to give up a player to Portland.

"I'm going to New York tonight (Monday) for a meeting on Wicks," Auerbach said. "There's no reason to be any more optimistic, except we're finally getting together."

Celtics officials say while Wicks would like to sign with the team, Wicks and the club are still far apart on a contract.

"The Celtics feel Maxwell will be good insurance if they can't reach an agreement with Wicks."

Both Auerbach and coach Tom Heinsohn say Maxwell is a "quality" player who can help the club when NBA teams are forced to cut their rosters from 12 to 11 players this season.

"He's a quality player," said Auerbach. "He's proven he has the ability to take over a half game."

Heinsohn, noting Maxwell has been able to play the "big spot" in college, says he has plans to use Maxwell as a power forward in the same manner he used Paul Silas during the two recent championship seasons. But Heinsohn also says Maxwell could play center to spell Dave Cowens once in a while.

"It depends on how it works out," he said. "He's very good inside. We could put him inside in the power position and put Cowens outside. We don't keep our center down low in the pivot because we don't have the size."

"But then again, he may end up a quick forward for all I know," he said. "But with the rosters being cut from 12 to 11 players this season, it wouldn't hurt to have him be able to play a little center."

Big Apple seeks Olympics

NEW YORK (UPI) — A study on the feasibility of bringing the 1984 Olympics to New York City has put the price tag at $1.2 billion.

Richard Ravitch, appointed by Gov. Hugh L. Carey to determine whether the games could be held here, said in unveiling the report Monday that the major hurdle to be overcome was a $221 million gap between revenues and costs.

However, Ravitch said the Olympics could provide some 50,000 jobs, including 20,000 in the construction industry, and would bring more than a million visitors to the city.

The plan has been submitted to Carey, Mayor Abraham D. Beame and members of the state legislature who must decide by July 31 whether to submit a formal application for hosting the games to the U.S. Olympics Committee. The committee's decision is due Oct. 1.

"The games would be a tremendous boost to the city and a healthy shot in the arm for the construction and tourism industries, if it is fiscally prudent," Ravitch said.

The firm of Lelwelyn-Davies, Davis, Brody was retained last June to provide planning services for the Olympics study.

"It is estimated that the budget will be approximately $426 million," he said, "adding that some $202 million of that amount could be generated through the sale of tickets, promotional and licensing rights, commemorative stamps, coins and medals."

"The basic issue that this study has identified is whether the public funds required to fill the $223 million gap between estimated costs and antiipated revenues from nonpublic sources can be counted on," Ravitch said.

Among recommendations in the plan are locations for holding each of the 12 Olympic contests. These range from Shea Stadium in Flushing, Queens, for the opening ceremony and various running events, to Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Uniondale, L.I., for handball and Giant Stadium in the New Jersey Meadowlands for soccer.

The plans also suggests building an Olympic Village for 12,000 athletes on Roosevelt Island, enlarging Shea Stadium at a cost of $72 million to 90,000 for the games and 75,000 permanently; and construction of a $30 million swimming complex and $8.5 million bicycle course in Flushing Meadows Park.

Ali follows Rocky script

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Muhammad Ali is apparently following the script of the Academy Award winning movie "Rocky" by offering five Baltimore boxers a chance to beat the champ.

Although Rocky fought for the heavyweight crown, Ali is not putting his title on the line and is staging the exhibition to raise money for the World Community of Islam — the Black Muslims.

"I challenge five of the hardest dudes in Baltimore," Ali says on radio advertisements promoting the two-day program July 29 and 30.

"Go into the alleys, streets and ghettos and get 'em. I'm going to fight all of them for one round apiece," Ali says.

Ali's opponents will be drawn from those responding to the radio spots.

Michael Abdul Rasheed, head of the local Muslim group, said the money will be used to establish a college scholarship fund for poor persons.

"We want the entire community to come out to these activities, both black and white," said Rasheed, noting that the event includes a black trade fair in addition to Ali's performance.

US dominates Deaf Olympics

BUCHAREST (UPI) — The United States swept five of six gold medals awarded Monday on the first day of the 13th World Olympic Games for the Deaf.

The Games, joining more than 1,500 deaf athletes from 32 countries, began with a colorful opening ceremony Sunday and will last until July 28.

American swimmers took gold medals — and set world records for the deaf — in the men's 100-meter freestyle, 200-meter breaststroke, and 800-meter freestyle relay, and in the women's 100-meter freestyle relay.

The U.S. basketball squad routed Israel, 87-32. American volleyballers triumphed in the first round of men's competition with a 15-1, 15-2, 15-6 win over the Netherlands, but the American women bowed to a stronger Soviet team, 15-0, 15-15.

Tennis and track and field competitions are scheduled to begin on Tuesday.

Jeff Floyd of Sacramento, Calif., won the men's 100-meter freestyle in 55:74; Greg Tompkins of Baldwin, Mo., won the 200-meter breaststroke in 2:39:15 and the 800-meter freestyle relay team won in 8:32:31.

Among the women, Laura Barber won the 100-meter freestyle in 1:05:45 and she also was part of the 400-meter medley relay team which won in 5:01:00.

Black beauty queen named

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — The first black Miss Universe says she doesn't believe race was a factor in her selection, but hopes her victory will encourage other Third World beauties to enter the competition.

Janelle Commissiong of Trinidad, who holds the title of the most beautiful girl in the world, called her selection "a step in the right direction."

The 24-year-old beauty, who goes by the name Penny back home in Trinidad, was crowned Miss Universe 1977 late Saturday night in this Caribbean island capital's National Theater before a worldwide television audience of hundreds of millions.

She beat out blonde 17-year-old Eva Daringer of Austria, who was the first runner-up, as well as remaining finalists Sandra Bell of Scotland, Aura Mojca of Columbia and Marie Luise Gasson of West Germany.

Miss United States, 21-year-old Texas A&M student Kim Tomes, was one of the 12 semifinalists.

Miss Commissiong, who stands 5-feet, 5-inches tall, weighs 113 pounds and measures 34-25-36, began her reign Sunday by saying, "What is important is not that I am black, but the fact that I was judged along with all the other girls and I was judged the most beautiful."

She said she hoped her victory would give "other girls from the Third World more of an incentive to get into the contest."

Asked if she thought her selection as the most beautiful girl in the universe would help racial integration, especially in those countries where there still is discrimination, Miss Commissiong said, "It's a step in the right direction."

A fashion buyer whose ambition is to own a chain of boutiques, Miss Commissiong likes the idea of "equal pay for equal work" but has reservations about some aspects of women's liberation.

"I like men to hold open doors for me and all those old-fashioned things that you don't find any more. And I like dresses over pants because I like people looking at my legs."

Government forms hurt the needy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans most needing the help of government may be the least able to complete the forms required to get that help, the Federal Commission on Paperwork says.

A dose of plain English would help, the commission said in a report.

A sample of common assistance forms examined by the commission found persons needed a reading comprehension level ranging from the 9th to the 12th grade.

Needy Americans complete more than 500 million federal forms each year, the commission found. Millions more forms are completed at the state and local level.

"It may take the execution of as many as 60 separate forms to obtain comprehensive financial assistance," the commission said in a report, "and a not atypical 10-year-old case file in New York City was found to contain over 700 different documents."

To help correct the problem, the commission recommended simple English and field testing for forms.

And although field testing forms boosts costs, the commission said "the benefits to be gained, however, more than compensates for the additional expenditure."

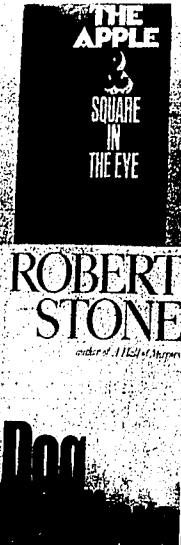

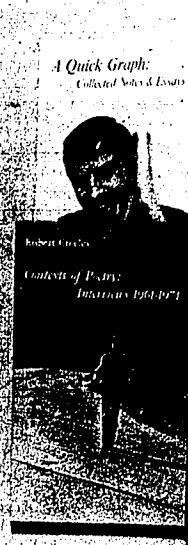

The commission quoted an April, 1977, report of the Office of Management and Budget, which said individuals submit 231,211,159 responses annually requiring 65,643,952 hours to complete.

The commission was established in 1975 to find ways to cut red tape.

The report noted the Survival Literacy Test conducted by Louis Harris and Associates in 1970 to show the problems in comprehending government forms.

"The results indicate that due to reading deficiencies 7 per cent of all Americans have difficulty completing a simple identification form equivalent to a Social Security application."

THREE prominent authors in the contemporary American literary scene arrived in Sun Valley Monday to give a series of public readings and to conduct writing workshops at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities. Robert Stone, Jack Gelber and Robert Creeley will teach the workshops, which are open to all students interested in poetry, fiction and playwriting.
