IT IS KNOWN that earliest man recorded his activities by drawing on the rock walls that surrounded him. Little did he know that he would be creating the fad of "rock graffiti." As the canyon walls near Shoshone Falls become covered with drawings, initials and slang it's hard to find logic or solution for this activity of the 1970s.

Buddies aided drowning victim briefly

By BOB ZUCKERMAN

TWIN FALLS—Before he drowned Tuesday, Alan Ricks, 19, Twin Falls, hollered for help and used his two swimming buddies to keep himself above water for a few moments.

But the other swimmers, Donald Flynn, 17, Kimberly, and Frank Kelley, 19, Twin Falls, who came to the young man's aid before he sank just 25 yards from shore, said Thursday they had to give up their rescue attempt when Ricks apparently panicked and grabbed them around their necks.

"He just got tired and said he couldn't make it," Kelley told the Times-News. Ricks then asked the other two to help him, Kelley said.

The boys managed to pull their companion about three feet before he panicked, grabbing them both by the neck, Flynn said.

At one point, Ricks stood on Flynn's shoulders to reach the surface for air, according to Flynn.

The three swimmers and Ricks' wife, J.R. Ricks, went down to the small lake near the more popular swimming area at Dierkes' Lake early Tuesday afternoon.

While swimming from the north to the south side of the small lake about 2:30 p.m., Ricks grew tired and went under, Flynn said.

Flynn said he and Kelley ran back to Dierkes' Lake where they phoned police and asked lifeguards for assistance.

Steve Staub, 25, Twin Falls, using scuba gear provided by the Twin Falls County sheriff's office, spent about 45 minutes under water searching for the lost man Tuesday.

On Wednesday, three divers from the Mountain Home Air Force Base and Staub returned to the lake to search.

While one Air Force diver remained in the boat for safety, the other three divers dove periodically, each spending a total of 45 minutes under water searching for the body, Staub said.

Money queries for budget chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate committee decided today to ask Budget Director Bert Lance to submit to further questioning about his personal financial activities in light of what some members described as "serious charges" against him.

The Governmental Affairs panel said it would ask Lance to appear Monday and it put off a decision on whether to grant his request to be released from a promise to sell a huge block of stock in the National Bank of Georgia by the end of the year.

Committee Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and others on the panel said they saw no other alternative after it was reported this morning that the National Bank of Georgia had deposited $200,000 in a non-interest-bearing account in the First National Bank of Chicago a month before Lance got a $3.4 million personal loan from the Chicago bank to finance his stock holdings. Lance was then chief executive officer of the National Bank of Georgia.

Lance promised during his confirmation hearings last January to sell his 150,000-plus shares of stock in the Atlanta bank by the end of the year, but went before the committee a week ago seeking to be released from that pledge because the value of the stock had plummeted and he stood to lose more than $3 million if he did to his promise. Most members indicated that they would grant his request.

But at a meeting today, after the report of the Chicago bank transaction, Ribicoff said the committee has "an obligation to check this out carefully" before acting.

"It isn't just a question of an appearance of conflict," he said. "In all fairness, the committee would be derelict in its duties — because they are serious charges — if it didn't give Mr. Lance a chance to respond."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., strongly agreed, saying "none of us wants to cause him (Lance) undue injury," but the committee had no choice but to look into the matter immediately.

Robert Dietsch, a spokesman for Lance, told UPI this morning there was no impropriety in the transaction.

He said the National Bank of Georgia was merely establishing a normal correspondent relationship in which "a smaller bank wants to do business with a bigger bank."

He said he believed the bank has "about a dozen" similar relationships with banks across the country.

Dietsch said the Chicago bank later bid on Lance's application for a $3.4 million loan along with several other banks and won the bidding "at a rate higher than the prime interest rate."

The Washington Post reported today that Lance began shopping for the loan on Dec. 2, 1976, the day before Carter officially announced his appointment as head of the Office of Management and Budget.

The newspaper said that six days later the correspondent relationship was established.

Dietsch insisted that officials at the Georgia bank "were talking about establishing this relationship before Carter was elected."

He said there was "absolutely no relationship" between the two banks' correspondent relationship and the loan to Lance.

"It is not true that this $200,000 just sat there because Lance got his loan," Dietsch said. "It has been as low as $130,000. There's been an active relationship. This deposit money has fluctuated."

He said from the view of the Chicago bank, Lance's application "looked like a damn good loan. His assets far exceeded his liabilities."

There was absolutely no visibility on the bottom Wednesday," Staub said. "You could have been two feet next to the body and not have seen it."

Because of rocks and two feet of silt on the bottom, which ranged in depth from 35 to 75 feet, divers were forced to abandon a plan to conduct a search of the whole area, said Joe LaPerrier, one of the divers from the Air Force base.

He said the divers had to swim down to the bottom head first in order not to "kick up" the silt on the bottom with their swim fins.

LaPerrier said Ricks was harder to find because he was black and rocks created a lot of "dark shadows" on the bottom.

At one point Wednesday, the small boat the divers were using capsized and a police radio was lost.

Flynn and Kelley charged the divers then

County Sheriff's deputies said Thursday the search was being called off because of the danger, expense and lack of visibility in the water.

Mrs. J.R. Ricks, wife of the lost swimmer, told the Times-News today she was not giving up in her personal effort to search for her husband. She said she was attempting to contact local divers today who would be willing to continue searching the lake bottom.

Sheriff H. Carter said earlier a body at the bottom of the lake would likely not rise on its own for about a week.

Carter wows 'em in Yazoo

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Carter, buoyed by an affectionate outpouring in his native South, flew by helicopter today to an oil rig off the shore of Louisiana to underscore efforts to ease the energy shortage.

Carter arrived at New Orleans International Airport at 7 a.m. MDT after spending the night in Yazoo City, Miss., where he answered questions for 90 minutes at a sweltering town meeting on subjects ranging from abortion to the Panama Canal.

The President was greeted by Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, who invited him to Louisiana, and a host of other state political leaders, including New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu.

The helicopter carried Carter to the Zapata Yorktown oil rig about 10 miles off the coast, winding up his two-day swing through the South that began Thursday afternoon with a major foreign policy speech in Charleston, S.C.

Carter spent Thursday night at the home of retired Baptist leader Owen Cooper, an old friend and former board chairman of the Mississippi Chemical Co.

One estimate put the temperature in the gymnasium at 120 degrees when Carter peered off a rain-and-sweat-soaked suit jacket, rolled up his sleeves and began to speak at a mock town meeting arranged to accommodate the White House.

The people of this town of 12,000 were visibly proud to serve as backdrop for what was called a "typical" deep South town.

Banners welcomed the southern-born President, and the Cotton County crowd stayed put throughout a 90-minute question and answer session in a gymnasium that bore the brunt of the Mississippi Delta summer.

The crowd filled the bleachers and floor of the facility and tried to move the showstall-warm air with handheld fans.

In the heat of a southern night, Carter could do no wrong.

A southern President talking about desegregation in a city which only desegregated public schools under federal court order about 7 years ago.

Had his native South not overcome the "indictment" of racial segregation, the President said, he would not be president.

While he staked out no new policy positions, Carter firmly restated a commitment to human rights abroad.

"I'm not trying to make anyone angry," he said. "I'm not trying to bring back the Cold War, but as long as the American people back me, I'll never stay quiet."

A piercing rebel yell greeted the statement.

Carter appeared to brood his personal opposition to abortion, saying it "involves the question of human rights" of both a woman and her unborn child. He opposes both a constitutional amendment barring abortions and the use of federal funds for abortion.

Saying he didn't believe neutron warheads were "more wicked and immoral than other nuclear weapons," Carter promised a decision by "the end of summer" on production of the weapon.

He forecast the need for a second Panama Canal to join the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, saying a sea-level facility would enable passage of the very large ships needed to carry the nation's oil supplies.

Carter's questioners included businessmen, dentists and housewives, elderly persons and an 8-year-old girl, 17 whites and two blacks.

T-N loses appeal

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Supreme Court today announced it has denied an appeal by the Times-News to protect confidential sources.

Fifth District Judge Theron W. Ward had ordered former Times-News managing editor Richard G. High, former reporter Bill Lazarus and the newspaper to reveal confidential sources used in gathering information on articles written about Sierra Life Insurance Co.

The Times-News argued since High and Lazarus attributed all information in the Sierra Life stories to named sources, the two men should not have to reveal the names of people to whom they had talked about the Sierra stories but had not quoted.

The insurance company has filed a $36 million libel suit against the newspaper and the two reporters.

The hearing will be continued Aug. 5.

When asked if he would reveal confidential sources if ordered again to do so, High today said no.

"I think to betray a confidence undercuts the integrity that is basic to any functioning free press. It's a constitutional principle and it's also a deeply felt personal principle," he said.

Should the judge hold High, Lazarus and the newspaper in contempt for not revealing sources, High could be subject to jail and the newspaper could be ordered to pay the damages alleged by Sierra. Times-News publisher William E. Howard said today.

In other developments, Judge Ward ordered the Times-News to release statements of its financial condition to Sierra officials.

In a morning hearing, Sierra attorney Gomer A. Davis argued Times-News officials earlier said they would turn over the financial statements but when documents were "formally requested in writing," Times-News attorneys objected.

Times-News attorney Lloyd J. Webb argued the Times-News financial condition was "irrelevant" to the case, except when discussing punitive damages in a libel suit, a discussion which would not occur until "the case went to trial if at all."

Flood toll continues climb

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Notes planned to message boards in a dozen evacuation centers indicated the full horror of the latest Johnstown flood was anticipated, but not yet known.

Cold figures from the state police said 47 bodies already had been recovered from the mud and debris left by the worst flood in the Conemaugh Valley since 1889.

Poor communications fed the fears of some 2,000 refugees waiting in the schoolhouses, churches and armories, eating meager meals of cereal, milk and bread and wearing hand-me-down clothing.

It was a familiar story in the seven counties President Carter declared a disaster area.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp estimated the damage in Johnstown alone at more than $200 million.

Fresh thunderstorms swept down the valley late Thursday but the river stayed in its banks this time and residents continued a massive clean-up.

Cowmen reject beef checkoff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers here rejected a proposed beef checkoff program which would have raised $30 million to $40 million to finance advertising, research and promotion programs aimed at expanding beef sales, the Agriculture Department announced today.

The July 5-15 voting — supported the checkoff. That killed the proposal because, under a 1976 law authorizing the referendum, a two-thirds majority was needed to put the checkoff into effect.

The board currently has a budget of $4.3 million annually including $2.8 million for beef. Stroud said defeat of the effort to sharply expand beef promotion through the separate $30-$40 million checkoff signals a need for a more aggressive effort to get increased funding for beef activities through its traditional voluntary collection channels.

The checkoff will give up. No doubt there will be a strong effort to revive it with another referendum after a time.

In Texas, where more votes were cast than in any other state, only 61.6 per cent of the 31,550 ballots were in favor of the checkoff. Among other heavy voting states, the proposal got more than the required two-thirds majority only in Oklahoma where 75.2 per cent of 9,880 voters approved it.

In Nebraska, where 15,566 votes were cast, the approval percentage was 63.8 and in Kansas, 60.3 per cent of 18,608 voters said yes. But in Iowa, only 41.2 per cent of 15,597 farmers approved.

Total votes and approval percentages in some other leading states included: Colorado — 4,598 votes, 76 per cent yes; Illinois — 462 votes, 69.6 per cent yes; Missouri — 8,591 votes, 61.7 per cent yes; Montana — 7,544 votes, 80.1 per cent yes; North Dakota — 8,331 votes, 42.8 per cent yes; South Dakota — 12,836 votes, 34.9 per cent yes; Tennessee — 12,877 votes, 18.8 per cent yes; Wisconsin — 6,245 votes, 24.1 per cent yes.

GEO. STRATHAIRN of Burlington, Calif., a spokesman for a beef industry group which promoted the checkoff, proposed an effort to combat threats to beef sales based on diet fears and other factors, said Thursday he was disappointed in the result.

House OK's subsidy rate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farm Belt lawmakers, backed with an endorsement from a major consumer group, have won House approval of legislation raising 1977 wheat and corn supports beyond levels proposed by President Carter.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said he personally believes President Carter will accept the 1977 increases — but only if other portions of a pending $11 billion farm and food stamp bill are held in line with the House figures Carter has approved.

Under a law which the bill would extend through 1981, the government makes direct payments to farmers when market prices sink below the target — as they are expected to do this year.

House action could add $475 million to potential government support payments for distressed wheat farmers facing a bumper crop, mounting surpluses and market prices running below production costs.

For corn, the move would forestall potential direct support payments to growers of perhaps $300 million to $550 million. But it could add $1.3 billion to $1.6 billion to the market value of this year's harvest if 1977 production reaches to or near the currently predicted 6.3 billion bushel record.

Most farmers feed their corn to livestock instead of selling it for cash, so most of the increased crop value would not be immediate cash to growers.

Experts confirmed, however, that the basic value of the grain would increase.

By routine voice votes Thursday, the House adopted Foley amendments setting the 1977 wheat support target at $2.90 a bushel — the same figure approved earlier by the Senate — instead of the $2.65 adopted by the Agriculture Committee.

The crop support loan rate for wheat would be left unchanged at $2.25 a bushel.

For corn, the House provision would raise the 1977 target from the Agriculture Committee's $1.65 a bushel to $2, and the corn support loan would be raised from $1.75 to $2 a bushel.

President explains approach

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — If negotiations with the Soviet Union fail to yield agreement on strategic weapons, President Carter wants Moscow to know the United States "will" do everything "it must" to ensure its security.

Carter spelled out his beliefs Thursday to the Conference of Southern Legislators on the first day of a two-day swing through the Deep South. He told his audience he will press for cooperation in areas of overlapping interest with the Russians, but is realistic about the prospects for meaningful progress.

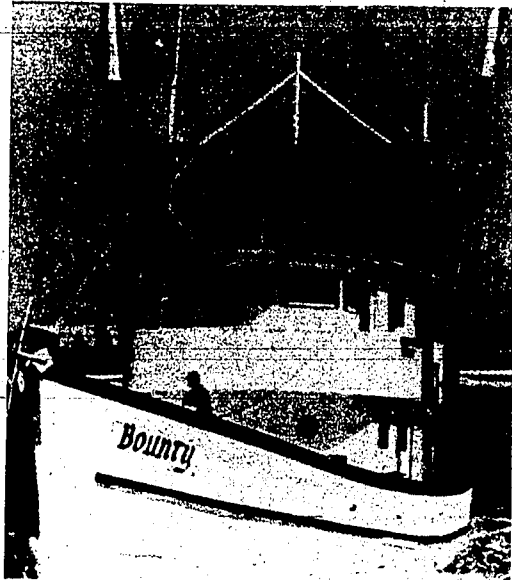

"The basis for mutual trust does not yet exist," he said. "Therefore the agreements we reach must be anchored on each side in enlightened self-interest."

"The profound differences in what our two governments believe about freedom and power and the inner lives of human beings are likely to remain, and so are other elements of competition between the United States and the Soviet Union," Carter said.

"There are no hidden meanings in our commitment to human rights," he said. "Our policy is exactly what it appears to be: the positive and sincere expression of our deepest beliefs as a people. It is addressed not to any particular people or areas of the world, but to all countries equally, including our own."

White House press secretary Jody Powell attributed the rash of seizures to fears by the Fidel Castro regime of stepped up raids by Cuban spies. But there have been no Cuban exile raids, as such, on Cuba for a long time, and Powell did not explain his remark.

There was no immediate news from Havana as to how long DeNicholo, cook Sheila Almquist, 22, and the Bounty might be held. One source close to the case said, "It's anybody's guess. They could be held one day or 10 years."

BOUNTY'S CAPTAIN FLEES, THEN SURRENDERS BOAT
... Cuban gunboats seize craft on open sea

Cubans seize boat

MIAMI (UPI) — The static of the radio was punctuated by the hammering clatter of automatic weapons.

"I'm being fired on by Cuban gunboats," yelled a voice over the guns. "I'm refusing to stop. I don't care if they shoot, I refuse to stop!"

It was Nick DeNicholo, 32, on his second trip as skipper of the $300,000 lobster trawler Bounty out of Key West. He was pounding along full speed for Florida with 3,200 pounds of crayfish and a lady cook — and two Cuban gunboats in hot pursuit.

The chase, however, was delayed in order to rescue the boarding officer whom DeNicholo left foundering in the ocean.

As the chatter of gunfire intensified, Coast Guard officers gathered around the radio at the 7th District Headquarters in Miami looked at a hopeless situation. The cutter Steadfast, dispatched to the rescue, was still 150 miles away.

So late Wednesday the Coast Guard radioed to DeNicholo, "It's going to be your own decision, but we highly recommend that you stop. For your own safety, we recommend your stopping."

"You should have stopped the first time," snapped the ship's owner over another radio. "Let the State Department handle it. It's not worth a life. Why don't you use your head for something other than a hat rack?"

"Roger, roger," came DeNicholo's subdued voice. "I'm stopping."

A few minutes later he reported, "They're taking my radio," and that was the last transmission from the Bounty, the sixth U.S. vessel to be seized by Cuban gunboats in international waters in the last three weeks.

White House press secretary Jody Powell attributed the rash of seizures to fears by the Fidel Castro regime of stepped up raids by Cuban spies. But there have been no Cuban exile raids, as such, on Cuba for a long time, and Powell did not explain his remark.

Spy agency chief denies bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice Adm. Bobby R. Inman, director of the National Security Agency, was emphatic: his super-secret spy agency is not bugging any American citizen anywhere in the world.

In a rare statement from the largest and most reticent of all U.S. intelligence groups, Inman told the Senate Intelligence committee Thursday "there are no U.S. citizens now targeted by NSA abroad."

"None," he added, for emphasis.

Inman, who only recently took over NSA, said current agency regulations to prevent circulation of information accidentally gathered on Americans are "stringent, strict and well complied with."

"All information on Americans inadvertently acquired is destroyed and not disseminated outside the agency. There are no loopholes," he said.

Prisoner treaty passes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 90 to 0 Thursday to approve a treaty with Mexico that will allow scores of Americans now languishing in Mexican prisons to complete their sentences in U.S. prisons if they wish.

The actual transfer of prisoners cannot begin until legislation is passed to set up machinery for bringing home the Americans — mostly young people convicted of drug charges. The implementing legislation is pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The treaty, signed late last year, provides for the voluntary exchange of prisoners between the United States and Mexico. It may not result in the transfer of many Mexicans imprisoned in the United States to Mexico because most are resident aliens who are expected to choose to remain in the United States.

More than 600 Americans are in Mexican prisons, according to the State Department.

Arafat seeks peace

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, turned peacebroker today in an effort to prevent an Egyptian-Libyan border clash from escalating into full-scale war. Tension remained high along the border where an eight-hour aerial and tank battle erupted Thursday.

Arafat, leader of the various Palestinian organizations known as the Palestine Liberation Organization, met with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for 90 minutes Thursday and then flew back to Libya for talks today with Khadafi. He was scheduled to return to Egypt this afternoon.

Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad in a broadcast in the Mediterranean city of Alexandria and returned to Cairo to see what the League could do to avoid further bloodshed.

Riad was reportedly considering the possibility of arranging an urgent conference of Arab Foreign Ministers, but League officials said no decision had been made.

Egypt's state-controlled press denounced Libyan strongman Col. Muammar Khadafi as a Soviet "thug" and urged the Libyan people and army to overthrow him.

Both sides blamed each other for starting Thursday's eight-hour battle, the first outbreak of open hostilities between the former allies.

Egypt said its troops shot down 2 Libyan warplanes, destroyed 40 tanks and 30 other vehicles and captured 42 soldiers and "saboteurs."

Libya's Arab Revolution News Agency said "there were no casualties worth mentioning on our side."

Libya accused Cairo of attacking without provocation and killing "innocent women and children" in the border village of Misra, it said, Egypt "is held responsible for the repercussions of this aggression."

Canal talks slow down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State Department officials believe remaining obstacles in the Panama Canal negotiations will make it difficult to meet President Carter's September deadline for submitting a new treaty to Congress.

Officials cited differences on economic issues, such as U.S. payments to Panama for continued use of the strategic waterway, as one of the obstacles in early completion of the treaty negotiations.

The officials commented Thursday shortly after talks between the United States and Panama went into a new recess to allow negotiating teams to consult with their governments. The talks could resume next week.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, acknowledged a new treaty may face tough opposition in Capitol Hill when submitted to Congress. They said the fight for ratification will be close, even if the new treaty has Carter's strong backing.

According to the officials, the United States and Panama still are working toward Carter's goal of having a new treaty before the end of this summer.

But they were not able to predict whether the September deadline still was feasible, and acknowledged it was becoming increasingly difficult to reach any things stand now.

Having agreed on a tentative basis for the new treaty — Dec. 31, 1999 — the two sides currently are negotiating on three outstanding issues: jurisdiction and protection of the canal and canal zone; expansion of the existing canal or construction of a new sea-level canal through Panama; and economic matters.

The two sides, the officials indicated, still are apart regarding the search for what they termed adequate and equitable payments to Panama through the end of this century.

Japan backs rules on whaling volume

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Japan Whaling Association says rigid international regulations will prevent the "ecological destruction" predicted by anti-whaling organizations.

The association noted in a report on the whaling industry that some groups plan to harass whaling operations.

"But our view is that such actions are inadmissible activities since whaling operations are an internationally recognized industrial activity," the report said. "Freedom of speech is, of course, to be respected, but actions that go beyond speech should be in accordance with international regulations."

The association also denied claims by anti-whaling groups that the number of the mammals is declining.

It said grey whales off California, whales off South Africa, humpback whales near the Hawaiian Islands and blue whales in the North Atlantic are increasing in numbers.

"In the 1976-77 Antarctic season," the report said, "Japanese whaling fleets filled their quotas 10 days earlier than expected and the harvested amount of meat per head registered a record. This is important evidence that resources are reaching stability."

Angolan rebels storm, win town

WINDHOEK, South West Africa (UPI) — Rebels have captured the Angolan town of Cuangar with a rocket and mortar barrage that sent its government defenders fleeing across a crocodile-infested river into South West Africa, officials said.

About 400 refugees, including soldiers and supporters of Angola's Marxist regime, had crossed the Kavango River by Thursday and some said the guerrillas killed civilians at random and destroyed entire villages after the attack.

Military officials near the border said about 100 Angolan troops were killed in a rocket mortar and machine-gun attack by about 200 guerrillas early Wednesday, but there were no overall casualty figures.

They said refugees were continuing to cross the river border and border outposts still heard small-arms fire and artillery shelling around Cuangar.

Although the Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola won control of most of the nation in the 1975 civil war with the help of 12,000 Cuban troops, pro-West guerrillas claim they control large parts of the countryside.

Ethiopians claim triumph in desert

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The beleaguered Ethiopian government, under attack on two fronts, is claiming its first major victory in a vicious seven-week desert war against Somali guerrillas who it says are receiving U.S. arms.

The Ethiopian news agency said government troops supported by local militia "crushed thousands of Somali troops" in a series of battles in Ethiopia's sprawling southeast Ogaden desert region.

It said the troops captured "many" Somali soldiers, including three colonels, and seized tons of weapons including American-made rifles.

A Somali spokesman in Mogadishu refused to comment on Ethiopian claims, but the government has repeatedly denied its regular forces were involved in the fighting.

But Somalia has acknowledged it is helping the Western Somali Liberation Front, a guerrilla organization that claims the Ogaden desert has always been part of "Greater Somalia" and wants to annex it by force.

The reported Ethiopian victory was the first since the 3,000-strong Somali Front invaded the Ogaden in force in early June, captured large chunks of territory, blew up a vital rail line and overran several government outposts and towns.

Border war rages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy fighting raged on Lebanon's southern border with Israel early today despite an unconditional Palestinian ceasefire agreement worked out only hours earlier.

Long after Palestinian guerrilla leader Abu-Iyad announced a unilateral ceasefire in Beirut Thursday, artillery and heavy machine gun clashes between Palestinian-Lebanese fighters and Israeli-backed rightists flared in southern Lebanon, reports from the region said.

At least two persons were reported killed and seven wounded in the leftist and Palestinian positions before the fighting tapered off before dawn.

No casualty figures were available from the rightist positions, which can be reached only through Israel.

The radical Popular Movement for the Liberation of Palestine said the Palestinians had heeded the announced cease-fire but said the rightists launched three separate attacks late Thursday night.

There was no official word from the rightists on whether they would go along with the Palestinian plan to end hostilities in the area around the Israeli frontier.

Test results awaited

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — Doctors' reports on the condition of Screw magazine publisher Al Goldstein will determine whether he will stand trial a second time on obscenity charges.

Goldstein, who was forced by court order to go to Kansas City, underwent tests Thursday at the University of Kansas Medical Center, and asked the hospital to keep the test results private.

"I shouldn't be here," he said on arrival at Kansas City International Airport.

Goldstein was convicted by a Wichita, Kan., court on charges of mailing obscene materials into the state, but a mistrial was declared on grounds of prejudicial remarks made by the prosecutor.

Judge rejects appeal

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge rejected the voluntary deportation appeal of Joseph Gambino and sentenced him to 10 years in prison, after his conviction of using strong-arm tactics to gain control of the private garbage-collection business in the north Bronx.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Ward Thursday also imposed a $50,000 fine on the 47-year-old Gambino, a reputed key Mafia figure and a cousin of the late Carlo Gambino, the Mafia's "boss of all bosses," in the United States.

The judge noted that Gambino, who has been fighting deportation for 10 years, could be sent back to Italy when he finished his prison sentence.

Families separated

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Mary Bird hasn't heard from her daughter's family since a torrent of water ripped their steel town apart Wednesday.

The strain of not knowing whether her daughter and son-in-law, June and James Canar, and her two grandchildren, Kevin, 14, and Nicky, 8, are dead or alive is slowing.

The lines peaking from beneath her soiled, red hair accentuate the panic in Mary Bird's eyes.

"We walked seven miles to try to get to their house, but we had to turn back. The roads were so bad," said Mrs. Bird, a Scottish immigrant.

Marriage-go-round

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Federal arrest warrants are to be issued against five persons for conducting an illegal marriage-go-round to enable a foreign national to remain in the United States, Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce Miller said Thursday.

Miller said warrants will be issued for Shiro Yagui, 35, a Japanese national now living at Lawrence; his host and longtime friend Chester L. Dillo of Lawrence; Jose Luis Pujalte, 26, an Argentine national, also living in Lawrence; Catherine Kristin Gockley, 20, of Grand Junction, Colo., and Janet Gail James, 21, of Mayetta.

'Noah's Ark' film set in TF

TWIN FALLS — The film, "Noah's Ark and the Genesis Flood" will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Bible Baptist Church, 315 Shoup Ave. W., in Twin Falls.

Rev. Kenneth Rhoades says in a day when the Bible's accuracy is being questioned, this film speaks with simplicity and visual impact in behalf of biblical inerrancy. It offers a close look at a biblical event long thought of as scientifically impossible. By marshaling an interesting combination of theory and fact, this new motion picture argues effectively for the feasibility of the entire account, says Rhoades. To that is added the intriguing possibility that the actual Ark of Noah may be resting intact on Mount Ararat at this moment, according to Rhoades.

This film, while dealing with the same subject, is not the motion picture recently shown in area theaters. Much additional information is presented in this film. Rev. Rhoades, pastor of the Bible Baptist Church, extends an invitation to all area residents to see this timely and significant film.

Plains Baptists refused letters of transfer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church has voted to refuse letters of transfer to 26 former members who broke away to form a new church in President Carter's hometown. It has been learned.

Ernest Turner, Plains hardware dealer and chairman of the original church's board of deacons, refused to comment. "We're not talking about church matters anymore," he told UPI.

Slate Sen. Hugh Carter Sr., the President's cousin and clerk of the new congregation, told UPI, "I just don't understand it. They refused to grant our letters."

The original church, with membership of about 415 and huge crowds of visitors every Sunday during the presidential campaign, has undergone severe problems. The congregation voted in November to rescind a 1965 resolution barring Negroes, and in the bitterness that followed, forced pastor Bruce Edwards, an opponent of segregation and a supporter of the President, to resign in February.

Sen. Carter said 29 persons, including 28 members from the old congregation, formed the Botsford Baptist Mission in May and they have been meeting in a former Lutheran church just south of Plains. One of the 28 is White House Special Assistant Hugh Carter Jr.

The other three either got or were expected to get their transfers with no difficulty, Sen. Carter said.

The President and his family transferred their memberships in January to the First Baptist Church in Washington. The First Lady said this week she does not know what church she will attend when she returns to Plains in August for a vacation.

Sen. Carter, who was songleader and clerk for the original congregation, said that according to his information, the original congregation opposed the transfers on grounds the new group was not Baptist.

Sen. Carter said, however, the new congregation planned to vote to affiliate with the local Friendship Baptist Association, which would lead automatically to affiliation with the Georgia Baptist Association and the Southern Baptist Convention.

Sen. Carter said the original congregation's action would have little effect. "It doesn't mean a thing in the world," he said.

He said 70 persons attended Botsford on Sunday and the congregation has hired a pastor, the Rev. Fred Collins, who preceded Edwards at the original church.

Edwards preached at Botsford before leaving for a new pastorate in Hawaii last Monday.

Sen. Carter said he could not predict which church the President would attend, adding, "I think he'll put off a decision for 7-8 years."

Lutheran laymen schedule confab

DENVER, Colo. — Nearly 2,000 persons are expected here for the 60th annual convention of the International Lutheran Laymen's League which will begin July 31 and continue through Aug. 3.

Ed Allthaus of Fort Morgan, the convention committee chairman, said more than 1,000 registrations have been received and more are coming in each day.

The opening event of the convention will be a Lutheran Hour Rally on July 31 in the Denver Auditorium. Dr. Oswald Hoffman will be the rally speaker.

The convention sessions will begin on Monday, Aug. 1, with special greetings from Denver Mayor William McNichols and Ms. Louise Ikenbary, a member of Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm's staff.

The keynote speaker for the convention will be the Rev. Lance Steeple, Lutheran Hour manager from New Zealand.

Lutherans re-elect president

DALLAS, Tex.—Rev. Dr. A. O. Preus was re-elected president of Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod (L.C.M.S.) at the 52nd convention of the 2.5 million member church of Dallas.

Falling by a two vote margin to gain the required majority on the first ballot, Dr. Preus was assured of another four-year term when he amassed a 260-vote plurality over Rev. Charles Mueller, president of the southeastern District of the L.C.M.S.

Dr. Preus has served as president of the beleaguered church since his election in Denver in 1969. He had previously expressed a desire for the church not to forget to remain evangelical even as it pursued its goal of being a biblical, confessional church.

Addressing the issue of church membership in the L.C.M.S. and the break-away Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches (AELC) the convention, by a surprising majority, voted to extend the previously set deadline for dealing with congregations, pastors and teachers who had joined the AELC and still held membership in the L.C.M.S.

New church planned

VAUN MIKESELL and Richard Stotch, from left, and David Carter, right, LDS Church officials, join J.A. Clawson, contractor, in breaking ground for the new LDS Church near the intersection of Eastland and Falls in Twin Falls. The upper photo is an artist's conception of how the church will look upon completion. Costing about $780,000, the building will include a chapel and cultural hall and will be about 16,947 square feet in size. The chapel will seat about 300 persons and there will be parking area for some 200 automobiles. According to church officials, the building will be completely paid for before it is dedicated in July of 1978. The seventh ward with a population of about 450 and the eleventh ward containing about 500 members will be housed in the new church. The church will also include 23 teaching stations and a junior chapel. H. Richard Handel is architect for the project and Clawson is builder. Stotch is bishop of the seventh ward and bishop of the eleventh ward is John L. Hougaard.

Episcopalian prayer book doing well

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

UPI Religion Writer

It's been almost a year since the tumultuous Minneapolis General Convention of the Episcopal Church which saw the church turned inside out with the ordination of women and first approval of the Proposed Book of Common Prayer.

The ordination of women to the priesthood issued was the headline grabber and it threatens the church with at least a minor schism.

But for many Episcopalians, a far more wrenching and far more difficult issue was the revision and modernization of the 1928 Book of Common Prayer.

At the time of the convention, there were dire predictions that the new book would never take hold in the pews and, if finally approved, would result in widespread ecclesiastical disobedience as parishes across the country would refuse to give up the beloved 1928 book.

But just the opposite seems to be happening.

Since January, reports Seabury Press, publisher of the new book, one million copies have been sold and it has gone to press to print a second edition of 150,000 pew copies of the book.

Officials at Seabury say that the people seem "wondering and eager" for the new book and acceptance is growing as people become familiar with it.

"It is the right book for our time," according to the Rev. Charles Price of Virginia Theological Seminary, and a member of the church's Standing Liturgical Commission.

Price is probably the most important influence on the new book.

Much of the controversy over the book is over the grace of the language.

The Book of Common Prayer, first compiled in 1549 by Thomas Cranmer, Archbishop of Canterbury, has become a familiar part of English literature, much as the King James version of the Bible and the phrasing and rhythm of the book seems indelibly imprinted on people's tongues.

But Price argues that the new book is comprehensive and ample, designed so that "the Episcopal Church in all its diversity will be able to use it."

"A given congregation may not like or use all the liturgical possibilities which this book makes available," he says. "But there is room in the Book for most existing Anglican customs."

Some conservatives, after experimenting with the book, seem in agreement.

The Rev. Hugh D. McCandless, writing in the independent but influential Episcopal organ, "The Living Church," notes that "one can have the 1928 holy communion and morning prayer, pretty nearly unchanged, and with those changes not obvious, without breaking a single rubric (liturgical rules)."

But much of the language is contemporary and not Elizabethan.

Price notes that "no aspect of trial use of the book has occasioned more comment than the effort to find adequate contemporary language."

Thousands meet in 'religious unity'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Shouting "praise the Lord," tens of thousands of Protestant and Catholic charismatics had started what they hope will be a new religious unity movement.

"We make one statement tonight," said Vinson Synan, general secretary of the Pentecostal-Holiness Church. "That is that we are here because we are one in spirit."

Synan spoke to an estimated 45,000 charismatics at the opening session Wednesday night of the four-day Conference on Charismatic Renewal in the Christian Church. The meeting brings together, for the first time in history, three streams of charismatics — classical Pentecostal, Roman Catholic and mainline Protestant.

The crowd was smaller than organizers had predicted, but long lines still were waiting to register two hours after the evening session began.

The movement, which traces its roots to the early part of the 20th century, is characterized chiefly by what followers believe to be baptism by the Holy Spirit. By that baptism, those graced are given gifts, particularly the ability to speak in tongues, a seemingly nonsensical language that some believe to be a "real language and others describe as "spiritual ecstasy."

Speakers called the unprecedented ecumenical nature of the conference a "stepping stone" for all of Christendom, which has been divided since the Reformation.

Conference Chairman Dr. Kevin Rinnigan, coordinator of the Roman Catholic People of Praise Community of South Bend, Ind., said he believes the "unity of the body of Christ is a real possibility" — but "the charismatic movement would bring real unity rather than structural unity."

At the same time, leaders of the movement said they recognized — that "doctrinal differences divide us." But they said their common affirmation that "Jesus is Lord" and the shared experience of the charismatic gift were a firm beginning for the unity movement.

Wednesday's session was marked by a great deal of handclapping, footstomping, Scripture reading and singing, punctuated with shouts of "praise the Lord" and "amen."

Nearly half of those participating in the conference were Roman Catholic, the wing of the movement that has burgeoned in the decade since the second Vatican Council.

Anita wants to unionize maids

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 14 years. I love my husband but I'm thinking seriously of having an affair. It's been years now since he's said, "I love you." He can go three or four weeks without making love to me, then it's only because I've suggested it, and I don't really enjoy it when I have to beg for it. He gets off work at 4 p.m., goes to a bar with his buddies and doesn't come home until 6 or 7. He snags, and then falls asleep in front of the TV before 8. Then he gets up around 10 p.m. and goes to bed. He's a good father and a good provider, but I can't take it anymore. I need love and attention.

A friend of mine asked me to have an affair with him. I had never even thought of anything like that. Now I can't think of anything else. I haven't made up my mind yet, but if you print this, maybe my husband (or other husbands) will read it and change before it's too late. I really love him and he's tried to get me to a doctor but he refuses. He says he's not 35 and there's nothing wrong with him. Well, I'm only 41 and I need love. I don't really want to have an affair, but I'm slipping.
HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: Here's your letter. I hope your husband and other men who can identify with the above routine) see this and wake up before it's too late.

DEAR ABBY: Our dog will be going to doggy heaven any day now. Frisky is 90 in human years and he's in awfully bad shape. He's nearly blind and he's so weak he keeps falling down. We've thought of putting him to sleep, but want to know where to bury him when the time comes. We can't afford a plot in the pet cemetery, and he's meant too much to our family to just put him out with the trash. The children want to bury him in our backyard, but I hear there's a law against that. Can you help us?
FRISKY'S FAMILY

DEAR FAMILY: When Frisky dies, please your local animal shelter. They will come and pick him up. Under no circumstances should you put an animal's remains in a trash can that you intend to use again. And in most areas there are laws against burying an animal in a residential neighborhood. I hope you can find a veterinarian who can help you get involved.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend doesn't shave under her arms or even use a deodorant, and she just plain smells bad! I can't understand how she can go around offending people that way, and then blaming them because she doesn't get invited places. She is a very sensitive person (all except for her nose), and why I can't tell her what I have just told you.
MY ADVICE?

OFFENDED: You can and must tell her how she smells. It's the kindest thing you can do.

CONFIDENTIAL TO W.S.B.: To succeed in business, stay awake! Spend too much time in the arms of Mr. Marbles and you'll wind up in the hands of the receiver.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health
By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb — It seems very hard to get some information about emphysema. I am afflicted with it and want to learn all about it and what I can do to help myself. I have been to three physicians, but only when I needed to see a doctor because I had become congested and needed an antibiotic shot. They'd say exercise just enough, not too much or too little, but what is that? A pamphlet of penicillin I feel just great for about a week. I've been told that I shouldn't get it too often as I'd build up an immunity to it. Is that right? When you can tell me about emphysema would be appreciated, not only by myself but I know by many others who are afflicted and would like to learn more about it.
Dear Reader —

Chronic bronchitis is a chronic form of lung disease. It is characterized by restriction of the small air passages inside the lungs. The air sacs that are filled with air are little balloons. At the opening of the balloons is a muscular band and it contracts to narrow the opening of the balloon. As a result it is hard to squeeze all the air out of the balloon. The tiny air sacs remain overdistended with stale air because it is hard to force all the air out.

To give you a better picture of how the lungs work I am sending you The Health Letter number 24, Keeping Your Lungs Fit. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1531, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Because the movement of oxygen and carbon dioxide is not normal, the person with emphysema has trouble increasing the oxygen supply to his body. That usually means a person is limited in how much exercise he can do. How much exercise you can do depends upon how much oxygen can be delivered to your working muscles. Without the oxygen you cannot release the energy needed for muscular work.

That is why your doctors are vague on how much exercise you can do. The best rule is to do mild exercise, such as walking, which is continuous, that you can do over a longer period of time. Avoid peak exertion that requires the sudden delivery of lots of oxygen. That way you won't overwhelm your body with oxygen before you know it — beyond the level that your lungs can cope with.

Respiratory infections often make the condition worse. That is why antibiotics are used. Depending upon the case they may or may not be necessary. Chronic lung infections often require almost continuous antibiotic treatment.

No, you don't become immune to penicillin but you can develop an allergy to it or develop an infection with penicillin resistant organisms. You need to rely on your doctor about the use of such medicines. Of course you should not smoke under any circumstances. Often tobacco is a major factor in developing emphysema. You need to avoid areas of air pollution as well. If you are heavy cigarette smoker, that way you can do more despite your lung disease.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The great organizers of organized labor — Samuel Gompers, John L. Lewis, George Meany and Cesar Chavez — would blanch if they had to do what Anita Shelton wants to do.

She wants to unionize house maids. But don't call them "maids," Ms. Shelton objects to that term. She prefers "household employees" or "household technicians." And don't say "unionize," Ms. Shelton's employer — the National Committee on Household Employment (NCHHE) — avoids that word. It's too strong. "It is a no-no," she says.

Ms. Shelton — whose job resume describes her as "civil rights activist, social welfare innovator, community builder, black women's movement organizer and mother of two" — says instead her aim is to "bring them the benefits of collective bargaining."

But look at the obstacles: Most household employees — maids, babysitters, cooks, gardeners, chauffeurs and the like — haven't considered joining a union and probably would balk if they had the opportunity, Ms. Shelton says. Most think "union dues" when they hear "union."

Most employers of household help, as you would expect, don't want to have to deal with a union. When they hear "union," Ms. Shelton says, they think "strike." Imagine a picket line in front of your picket fence.

Few household employees or employers have ever heard of NCHHE and of the effort to improve the lot of these in an invisible "profession."

The AFL-CIO hasn't raised a finger, Ms. Shelton says, to support NCHHE or help organize household help. She suspects sexism is the reason, since 97 per cent of the country's 1.5 million household workers are women. To win his sympathetic attention, George Meany was given an award at the NCHHE's "Fair Labor Standards Luncheon," but he didn't bother attending.

Mundy is a problem. The Ford Foundation, which had given NCHHE $100,000 a year, cut down to $75,000 last time and pressed the organization to "diversify" its sources of funds.

And 13 years after its creation, NCHHE remains split on fundamental goals. Ms. Shelton says the old question of unionization is bound to rise again in October at the "annual" convention of household workers in Charlotte, N.C.

The meeting will bring together 21 organizations which formed the NCHHE in 1964 at the suggestion of Esther Peterson, then head of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau. They are anything but united on NCHHE's mission.

Despite these troubles, Ms. Shelton feels she will live to see most household workers carry a union card and work under a contract spelling out working conditions, duties, level of pay, sick leave, hospitalization, extra pay for holiday work, retirement benefits and the like.

"My friends tell me I'm talking pie in the sky," she says. "I'm no economist, but my assessment tells me we're entering a high demand, scarcity market," she says. "People are not gravitating into this field — it will always be low-status work — but with more wives working outside the home, the demand for household help is bound to rise."

Today, NCHHE says, the average year-round, full-time household worker earns $2,732 a year — less than the poverty level. Two-thirds earn under $2,000 a year. In 28 states, there is no unemployment compensation for household workers, despite the well-known hazards in the home. Most can't qualify for Medicaid.

Ms. Shelton, who was raised in Englewood, N.J., by an aunt who worked as a domestic, was interviewed in NCHHE's walkup office far from Washington's gleaming downtown buildings. She says she knows all the arguments against unionizing household help.

"Oh, these famous words — 'We are good friends.' They say scornfully. 'That means friends can exploit a relationship.'"

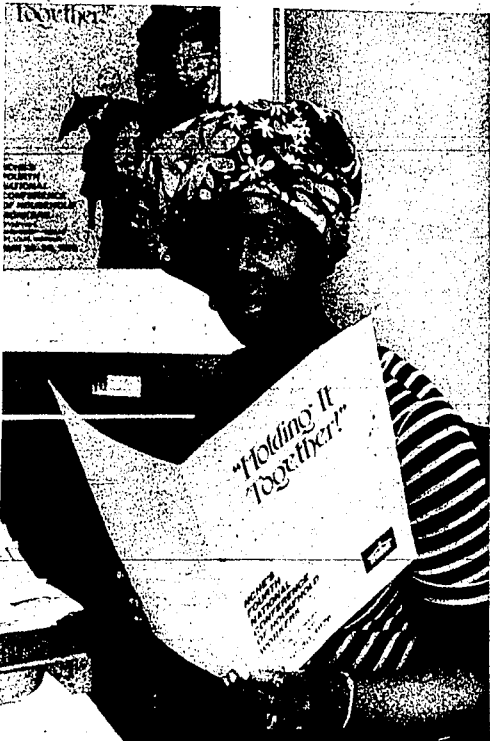

She says she is all too familiar with cases where two women grew old together. Then the employer sells her house and moves into an apartment or a nursing home and the employee, at age 65 or so, has to go into the job market for the second time in her life.

She says she knows of instances where a worker was assured she would be taken care of in a will, but the bequest turned out to be $500 — a princely sum when the will was written.

In the meantime, NCHHE goals are more modest. In a statement presented to presidential assistant Midge Costanza in May, NCHHE asked President Carter to support extending unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation (job accident insurance) to household employees.

The organization also asked for enforcement of the minimum wage law. Household workers were covered by the law several years ago, but a NCHHE study says 40 per cent of household workers are still not paid the minimum wage.

"Imagine all these middle-class women not paying the minimum," says Ms. Shelton. "It's probably the only law they violate."

Rebels without pause

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's no easy thing for a man to be a millionaire and continue to be anti-establishment.

The situation might be likened to Billy Graham falling heir to a bordello or George Meany being elected president of General Motors.

The spirit is willing but the circumstances are compromising.

Such is the case with Peter Fonda. Since childhood he and sister Jane have been rebels without a pause. They come by their social consciousness naturally. Father Henry Fonda has spent a lifetime prodigal the establishment.

But among his enormously talented clan, only Peter is an out-and-out millionaire, thanks largely to "Easy Rider," his invention, production and starring vehicle.

Additional millions gushed forth from "Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry" and "Race With the Devil." His newest film, "Outlaw Blues," promises to perpetuate the cascade of gold.

Despite his wealth, Peter continues to assail the establishment on screen and off. He does not see any conflict between being a capitalist while railing against the shortcomings of capitalism.

Fonda, unlike most other millionaire actors, does not have a Beverly Hills mansion, impressive offices and a coterie of flunkies.

He does own a $2 million yacht anchored in Hawaii and his garage houses a Cadillac El Dorado. But he bought the yacht as a home, a safe place for his children to breath good air and know the sea. The Cadillac is an investment because El Dorados are no longer made.

His permanent home is a 1872 homestead in Montana where he grows apples, hay, clover, barley and runs 40 head of cattle on a 118-acre spread without assistance. He and his second wife, Purita, do the irrigating and fence mending. They also grow their own vegetables.

Home is a log house 52 by 48 feet, one of 14 buildings on the property. Peter has offices in a rundown, fly-by-night Hollywood bungalow outside which he flies the American flag.

The tall (6-foot-2), slender Fonda spends as little time as possible in Southern California. When Peter is in town he visits with his father and sister and his children by his first marriage, Justin, 11, and Bridgit, 13.

"Outlaw Blues" Peter once again portrays an anti-establishmentarian, a jailbird who becomes a country-western singer-composer, but this time lightly and with dashes of comedy.

Not since his first movie, "Tammy and the Doctor" in 1962, has Peter played an establishment figure in necktie and jacket.

"It's not something I designed," said Peter in a short visit to Hollywood. "They were films that came my way, the guy on the outside looking in."

"Maybe the roles reflect my own lifestyle but I'm now singing all the way to the bank."

Fonda is literally singing. He did his own vocals for "Outlaw Blues," fulfilling a lifelong ambition.

"I've always loved music and dreamed of recording an album one day," he said, grinning. "Every time Dad got a role playing a musical instrument, Ed practiced right along with him."

"I learned to noodle around on the trumpet when he played one in 'On Our Merry Way.' And I played the bass when he did 'The Wrong Man' for Alfred Hitchcock. Now I'm singing and loving every minute of it."

"The public now is clamoring for a baby panda."

"The little devils did not breed this year, and we're 'catching' hell," Reed says, especially since the pandas in Tokyo's zoo are believed to have mated this spring. (If so, the first panda born in captivity outside of China should appear in August.)

Some scientists say pandas can breed by age 4, but Xanten thinks Hsing-Hsing, at 6, was simply too young; during Ling-Ling's last-day breeding cycle in April.

Giant pandas called zoo's prima donnas

THE ONLY TWO GIANT PANDAS IN AMERICA
... Ling-Ling, right, and Hsing-Hsing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bill Xanten Jr. says his heart belongs to pandas. He started getting concerned, Xanten says, "We were going to have to put him down (chemically immobilize him for a blood test). But I began playing with him — rubbing his head and talking to him — and he came around and started eating again."

Xanten, 39, is curator of mammals at Washington's National Zoo. Like many zoo people, he loves animals and got his job by helping around.

His father was Washington's superintendent of sanitation. "As a kid, I spent most of my weekends here," he says. "No, I wasn't helping out. I was just a pain in the neck. I started as a gardener in November, 1959, and I've been here ever since."

"Reptiles were really my main interest. But I got transferred out of reptiles into mammals. They like to move you around."

The pandas are the zoo's prima donnas.

Dr. Theodore Reed, the zoo director, says, "You know the saying: 'When the ear has a cold, all Russia sneezes.' That's the way it is with the pandas."

They live in adjoining glass-fronted cages, air-conditioned to a constant 65 degrees. Since pandas are solitary animals with strong territorial instincts, they are separated to keep them from fighting.

On summer days they are not permitted to lean half-acre outdoor paddocks. They would perish of heat prostration.

Twice a day animal keeper Barbara Gatzke, 21, feeds them apples, carrots, cooked sweet potatoes, a dog biscuit and a parcel of cooked rice, vitamins, and minerals, honey and a bit of oat meal.

"She drags into their cages 40 pounds of bamboo stalks, which the pandas devour. The bamboo comes from Washington gardens."

On the other hand, Alan is interested in a slam and bids five clubs to show the tops in that suit. Peter, who has already signed off at four spades can afford to show his second-round diamond control and now Alan can be sure of the grand slam if his partner holds the ace and queen of trumps. Alan's five notrump is the old Culbertson grand slam force. Peter bids seven spades because he does hold two of the top three honors.

Valley highway projects listed

MAGIC VALLEY — District Two of the Idaho Highway Department has released a highway construction status report for projects in the Magic Valley.

In the Twin Falls area, a roadway construction project which includes placement of drainage structures is taking place on US 93 from the Perrine Bridge to Interstate 80 North. Work being done includes the installation of illumination at the I-80 interchange and the completion of roadway appurtenances. Interference with traffic is minor.

About 20 miles of US 93 from the Nevada line to Rogerson will be seal coated.

Work on this project is expected to begin next month.

Eight projects are in progress in the Shoshone, Jerome, and Bliss area.

On I-80N-3, forming and placing concrete for bridge decks on the twin slab structure is taking place with minor traffic interference.

On three miles of I-80N, from the Malad River to two miles east of Tuttle and the railroad underpass east of Tuttle, work includes grading in preparation for placement of base aggregate on the new alignment portion of the westbound lane. Interference, so traffic is minor.

One-half mile of I-80N, from the east Bliss interchange to two miles east of Tuttle and plant mix pavement and parking on three miles of the Malad Gorge State Park, work in progress includes the paving operations at the state park.

The eastbound lane is now paved from Bliss to the Malad River with two-way traffic shifted to this roadway.

On seven miles of US 20-26 from Pagari to Tikura and five miles of US 20-26 from Richfield to Pagari, construction of plant mix pavement and furnishing cover coat material in stockpile will begin next month. Controlled traffic can be expected at that time.

A project of US 93 in the Valley Creek Bridge and Stanley crossing areas includes constructing approaches and prestressed concrete bridge. Work in progress includes removing the existing bridges on Smiley Creek and on the Salmon River. Detours are set up in immediate areas and traffic delays can be expected during placement of bridge stringers on the Valley Creek structure.

On US 26, reinforcement steel and formwork in preparation for placement of concrete bridge decks is taking place on the Little Wood River bridges in Carey. Traffic is detoured around the bridges.

Also included in the projects is the construction of a concrete and pumice, block maintenance building and two trailer pads, and providing water system and disposal system in the vicinity of Stanley. Work includes preparation for erecting roof trusses. Painting of steel stringers on bridges over the Millner Canal, Highline-Carroll, Big Wood River and Salmon River is now complete.

In the Bailey-Rupert area, construction of the roadway, drainage structures, plant mix pavement, illumination and a prestressed concrete bridge over the Snake River at Heyburn is underway. Traffic interference can be expected.

Projects up for bid include planning a plant mix leveling course and a plant mix overlay on US 93 furnishing aggregate for roadmix pavement, cover coat material and secondary screenings in stockpiles at various sites.

Another project for bid includes construction of a plant mix pavement, plant mix scrub coat and cover coat material in stockpile on Idaho 46 from North Prince's Corner to the Camas County line in Gooding County.

The final project open for bids includes constructing a 600-square-foot concrete shelter, a concrete comfort station with storage vault, grading as required for buildings, roadways and drainage in the vicinity of Hill City in Elmore County.

Grains rebound, meats end mixed

CHICAGO — Grain futures rebounded, but meats wound up mixed in trading Thursday.

Western russet potatoes sagged sharply, closing 9 cents lower at 7.76 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said feeder cattle showed independent strength, as did independent steers, as prices rose 25 to 27 points higher in the nearby. October was down 7 but November closed 15 higher. Traders said the buying appeared to be short covering but were unable to explain why it should appear now.

Volume was 363 contracts traded.

Live cattle closed mixed in a slower trade of 7,632 contracts, with prices ending 15 cents higher to 15 cents lower with the three nearby contracts weakest and 17th deliveries mostly showing gains.

Pork bellies settled with moderate declines but up from earlier sharply lower levels. Heavy profit taking produced a break in the final hour but scattered short covering lifted prices off the day's lows to close 55 to 90 points off.

Volume was 7,214 contracts.

Live hogs settled lower, locals applying pressure to break the market in the final minutes. Closing quotes were near the day's lows, off 10 to 37 points. Part of the weakness stemmed from expected heavy hog marketings caused by weather.

Wheat showed lack of support, with light trading as speculators found few reasons for bullish approaches. The close was a penny to a half cent lower after morning highs faded gradually during the noon hour, with no support evident. Mill interest in hedge selling was light and other firms rolled hedges into December.

Corn closed half a cent to 1 1/2 cents higher with short covering a dominant feature. Export sales included 71,294 tons to Taiwan and 32,000 tons for Spain.

Soybean complex prices recovered with the key August-November spread widening by 12 1/2 cents to 54 1/2 cents with speculative demand playing a key role in the day's trading, lifting old crop contracts to the upside. Settlements ranged from 25 1/2 cents to 5 1/2 cents higher in the bean pit. Heavy commercial buying brought limit gains to August and September oil, enabling a deferred to gain 50 points.

Meal contracts closed mixed, 3 1/4 higher to 50 cents lower with commission house and local bull spreading accounting for the price pattern. Oil and meal spreading limited the advance for the front while modest crusher selling added pressure.

International Monetary Market gold saw a stronger U.S. dollar in foreign exchange markets prompt local liquidation, with prices ending 30 to 120 points down. Trading was at a reduced pace, with 1,672 contracts exchanged.

Tourists enjoy view

VISITORS stopping to take in the view from the Perrine Memorial Bridge are in abundance this summer. It's estimated that at least 10 to 20 tourists are enjoying the view of the Snake River canyon from the new bridge at any given moment during the day. Here Times-News photographer Charles Lemmon views the tourist traffic on the bridge rafting from one of the lower vantage points.

Ad anger debunked

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls real estate broker has charged professional jealousy and fear of public awareness were behind complaints that he misrepresented sponsorship of a series of seminars being held by his firm.

"We were the only ones smart enough to put it together," said L. James Koutnik in response to complaints that he had misrepresented sponsorship of seminars being sponsored by his Western Realty Co.

Koutnik agreed, however, to change advertisements which implied the seminars, being held at CSI, were also being co-sponsored by the college.

Koutnik agreed to delete references to CSI sponsorship after a group of real estate agents complained to the college that either it was being used or was showing favoritism to Western Realty in the privately sponsored classes.

Koutnik charged the complaints weren't spurred by a concern for ethics. Other real estate agents, he said, were afraid the Western Realty classes would teach the public to do things for itself that it would normally pay an agent to do.

Koutnik said other brokers were "too dumb to think of it (the seminars) themselves" and had "too much time on their hands" with nothing to do but complain.

"The thing that irritates the realtors is that we're going to tell the seller how he can sell his own house if he wishes to do so," Koutnik said. "Needless to say this (upset) the realtors. Some of the smaller offices got their nose out of joint and decided this was more than the public should know. A number of them complained to our office and our staff personally that we weren't doing our business any good if we told the public too much about it."

"Needless to say," Koutnik added, "Western Realty disagrees vigorously with the attitude of these people and feels it's absolutely essential for us to have a well informed buyer and seller."

The ad that spurred the criticism ran in Sunday's Times-News. It announced "the College of Southern Idaho and Western Realty jointly present HOME SELLER'S CLINIC..."

The ad was the second to suggest CSI might have had a role in the seminars. An ad for a home buyer's clinic held last month included a coupon for "College of Southern Idaho's and Western Realty's HOME BUYER'S CLINIC..."

Koutnik said Tuesday future ads for the seller's clinic (one ran Wednesday) and two more seminars on investments and farm property transactions Western Realty plans later will not imply CSI sponsorship.

L. JAMES KOUTNIK changes ad

Koutnik said the original ad had been read to and cleared by CSI personnel. He said the college had agreed the seminars were a public service and had agreed to provide classroom space without charge.

Far from being an attempt at misrepresentation, Koutnik said he felt the original ads reflected an "understanding" with CSI that both parties were putting on the seminars.

CSI president James L. Taylor agreed Koutnik hadn't violated any "propriety" with the advertisements.

Taylor said he asked that the ads be changed after complaints were made that the college was being used or showing favoritism to Western Realty.

"After the criticism of certain realtors," Taylor said, "I called Mr. Koutnik, and he was very nice about it and said he could change the (ad) format to show the course was being offered by Western Realty and being held at CSI."

Taylor said it was common for the college to provide classroom space for similar seminars without charge in the public interest.

Koutnik said the ads were changed to prevent embarrassment to CSI.

"We have no intention of embarrassing Jim Taylor by getting in a hassle over it..." Koutnik said, "but we are jumping on some of the standard members of our industry who fear what might come about if the public knows too much about our practice."

"The whole question is not whether we did a right or a wrong with the college, but whether the public has a right to know this stuff or not," Koutnik added. "We think they do — that's our position. We don't care if the K.K. Kins sponsors or co-sponsors, the thing is the public should have access to the information, and many of the realtors are opposed to the public."

Koutnik said the upcoming seminars, which can hold about 125 students, are more than half filled. The classes are free of charge.

Power bills carry new charges

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Local residents may be confused by new extra charges, appearing on their monthly electricity bills.

But, for what it's worth, it's all legal.

Idaho Power Co. has added two new charges to monthly bills which should raise the average family electricity expenses by about $3.04, according to company public relations director Robert Brown.

The new expenses — an "interim increase" and an "emergency surcharge" — have been approved by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

"We applied in February for a general rate increase, and because of the length of time that it normally takes for rate cases to be heard and the commission to reach a decision, we asked for a part of that on a temporary basis subject to the PUC's final decision on the overall general rate increase," Brown explained.

The interim jump in bills will raise the average residential bill by about $1.51 per month, or about 7 per cent, Brown said.

The emergency charge — approved by the PUC in April — is necessary because the Idaho drought has "reduced hydro-generation, the amount of power we're able to generate at our hydroplants," Brown said.

Because of the drought, Idaho Power officials have been forced to purchase additional power from other electrical utilities in British Columbia and Colorado, Brown said.

In addition, Idaho Power has been forced to turn on a 50,000 kilowatt combustion turbine in Hatley at a cost of $600,000 per month to generate electrical energy, Brown said. The turbine, which runs on oil or natural gas, costs more money to operate than hydro-generating facilities, he said.

Ketchum uses up permit quota

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Months before it was expected, Ketchum has run out of building permits for the 1977 building season.

An interim building moratorium prohibiting new multi-family dwellings and limiting the number of single family and duplex homes to be built this year went into effect on April 7 to last through 1977.

The moratorium is Ketchum's approach to a state-imposed limit on discharge from the city's sewage treatment plant until improvements are completed on the plant.

The moratorium provided for 61 building permits for single family or duplex homes to be issued this year. This target figure was well above the record high of 41 permits issued in 1975 and 34 permits in 1976 when there were no moratoriums in effect.

City officials expected 1977 to be the strongest building year ever and anticipated no shortage of permits for single family homes. However, they were wrong.

"I was expecting it possibly in August or September," Ketchum's City Planner Russ Pinto said about the complete draw on building permits. "At the outset, I was never expecting it."

In the last three months there has been a steady flow of applications for the permits and a sudden flood of new applications in the past two weeks will snarl up the last permits, according to Pinto.

Change in attitude benefits handicapped

By DAVE MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — They are perhaps America's most ignored minority. They are black, oriental, caucasian, male and female, young and old.

They fit no category and are included in no single definition, except one. They are the physically handicapped.

An estimated 12 out of every 100 Americans suffer from some physical handicap. Some disabilities are acquired at birth, others in wars, or in accidents.

The physically handicapped share more than their limitation, however. They share, as well, the conviction it is their ability that counts, not their disability. A cliche, but one with bitter significance to a veteran in a wheelchair.

They share, in addition, frustration and rage at a society which by its actions — and by its failure to act — tells them to disappear, that they are not persons but a collective problem yet unsolved.

Architectural barriers are a physical manifestation of the attitude that this 12 per cent of the population really doesn't matter. To a person in a wheelchair a six-inch curb might as well be a 10-foot wall. A library reached only by a flight of stairs might as well be on the moon. A public building without special restroom facilities becomes for all practical purposes just another inaccessible structure.

But the physically handicapped are not just those in wheelchairs. Degrees of disability vary. The definition must also include those on crutches, the aged, the blind and deaf, and the arthritic.

Dr. Judy Schrag, the director of special education in Idaho's Department of Education notes the Idaho Code defines handicapped, "as children or adults whose handicap or capabilities are so great as to require special education and special services in order to develop to their fullest capability."

The key word, she notes, is access. Structures which cannot be reached by the handicapped might as well be marked "off limits."

Barry Allison, director of public information for the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board in Washington, D.C., reaches a similar conclusion, but from personal experience. Allison is in a wheelchair.

Architectural barriers, he says, are like "a bar of entrance, and it means I have to have someone help me. I don't like depending on other people."

"When you deprive a person of mobility, you are forcing him to be dependent on others," Allison says. "If you can't get into a building, you can't get a job, and if you can't get a job then society has to support you with taxes."

"This is a man-made world," Allison notes, "and it is designed for a 25-year-old, healthy male."

"If you can't get into a building, you can't get a job, and if you can't get a job then society has to support you with taxes."

There was a time when the demands of the handicapped would have been ignored — if, indeed, they would have been made at all. For years the word crippled meant useless. And those with physical impairments were often dismissed as such. Worse, many of the handicapped themselves believed the accuracy of that label.

The change in attitudes began in the wake of World War II, increased following the Korean conflict, and has reached new heights in post Vietnam America. Three wars. Three generations of handicapped young men. And an increasing refusal to be told they have no place in society.

Improvement in medical science also plays a part. In the 1930's a man with a severed spinal cord had a six month life expectancy. Today the same person often lives a full chronological life, frequently in a wheelchair.

Added to this was an increasing militancy on the part of the handicapped not to be shunted aside. These factors finally came together in a successful drive for federal legislation four years ago, with passage of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

That landmark legislation requires federal agencies and private businesses receiving more than $2,500 annually in federal contracts to develop affirmative action programs to hire the handicapped.

There are more than one million businesses which fall under this requirement. Already some 2,000 complaints have been filed under the act by disabled persons who believe management has discriminated against them. Complaints focus on job interviews, where a staff member fails to obtain enough information about the handicapped applicant.

Sometimes the employer doesn't even try.

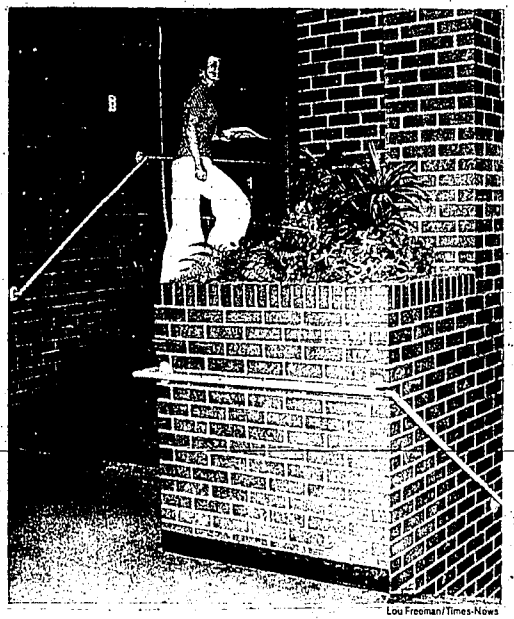

The law makes discrimination illegal. It also requires management to provide the handicapped employee with regular medical and life insurance benefits — just like any other worker. The place of work must also be made accessible to the handicapped employee.

Employers have experienced difficulty complying with the new law. But help is available from several private and governmental organizations. One organization is Mainstream, a non-profit agency in Washington, D.C. Mainstream not only promotes the cause of the disabled, it offers advice to employers seeking to comply with the law. They maintain an information referral service at 1-800-833-1133.

Discrimination does not die easily, but it does die. Attitudes change. Perhaps the most significant example of this is Harold E. Krents, one of the founders of Mainstream. A top graduate of Harvard Law School, Krents was rejected by 40 law firms before he finally found a job.

Krents is blind. And his life story inspired the play and later movie, "Butterflies Are Free."

"What a handicapped person is entitled to," Krents says, "is a chance to show what he can do. Nothing more."

OFF LIMITS TO ANY BUT THE ABLE BODIED AND HEALTHY... these steps in the Twin Falls City Hall bar the handicapped

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Friday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 1.30 points Thursday, was closed at 922.30 shortly after the opening. The Dow gained 18.76 points the previous five session.

Advances led declines, 169 to 62, among the 428 issues comprising the tape in the early session.

Turnover amounted to about 450 million shares.

Investors were encouraged by the Federal Reserve Board's report late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply fell 317 billion in the latest reporting period, compared with a $3.2 billion hike the week before. The drop took pressure off the Fed to tighten credit. Credit pressure is discouraging to Wall Street.

Still, some investors were disturbed by news Thursday that June's Consumer Price Index rose at a higher-than-expected 7.2 percent annual rate. The second-quarter CPI rose at an 8.1 percent rate, down from the 10 percent in the first quarter. Both were ahead of the 4.2 percent rate in 1976's fourth quarter.

Some investors were disappointed the Commerce Department reported the second-quarter Gross National Product rose 6.4 percent, down from the revised 7.3 percent growth registered in the first quarter.

B-League slate set

TWIN FALLS — Pioneer Credit Union of Glenns Ferry and the Billard Dene of Pocatello will be the only out-of-town teams entered in this weekend's women's "B" sloughich invitational.

The two teams will be fighting 10 Twin Falls entries for the championship, which will be finalized Sunday evening.

Due to the relatively low entry of 12 teams, only two of the Harmon Park diamonds will be in use.

At noon, Midstate Construction-Pepsi will play the Ground Round at noon while Grizzly Bears meets Pioneer on diamond three.

At 1:30 p.m., Haney Seed vs. the winner of Sandwich Syndicate-Singer and Schlitz takes on the D and B Supply-Mountain Bell winner. Billard Den plays the Ground Round-Midstate winner at 3 p.m. and Budweiser will meet the Pioneer-Grizzly Bear winner at the same time.

Looser bracket action will take up most of Saturday evening's schedule — with the tournament resuming Sunday morning at 10:30.

Trevino's 67 leads Canadian Open

OAKVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Lee Trevino fired a 5-under-par 67 to take a one stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $225,000 Canadian Open.

Trevino logged four birdies and three bogeys on the front and four birdies on the back on the 7,129 Glen Abbey course to lead a jam of nine players tied for second spot at 68.

Jack Nicklaus, George Archer, Bruce Lietzke, Tom Purtzer, Mike Morley, Tom Kite, George Cadee and four rookies Jeff Mitchell and Jimmy Wittenberg all carded four under rounds for the second place tie.

Wittenberg, who at one point had led on the course at five under before slipping to two under, holed an eight iron for an eagle on the 18th to finish four under par. Archer, Lietzke, Morley and Purtzer also chalked up eagles on the par-5 18th.

Two shots back at 69 were Frank Conner, Mike Reid, Gary Koch and two-time Canadian Open champ Tom Weiskopf, seven golfers recorded 70s, including Al Geiberger and George Knudson, defending champion Jerry Pate was at 71 with six others.

After starting off with birdies on the first two holes, Trevino cooled off to finish the front in 31 one under par, but logged four birdies on the back, touting the side in a four-under 33.

"I really can't remember putting as well as I did today," said Trevino, who had 11 one-putts and a total of 26. "If you cut it down I had a real solid 72 but the putter made it 67."

"I have gone to the old putting style," related the 38-year-old Trevino, "putting the putter in front of the ball and getting the line, once I take the putter back I visualize my hands staying in front of the ball that long."

Although players are allowed to be transported by vehicle in two places on the course, Trevino said he walked the distance. "Once I start a round I don't like to sit down. If I sit down I get stiff." Trevino has been plagued by back problems after injuring it last year, and has only $26,235 in four winnings so far this season.

Nicklaus, who was commissioned four years ago to design the course, now permanent home for the tournament said "I'm old but I'm still pleased with the round. I didn't hit the ball particularly well but I managed my game."

He recorded five birdies and one bogey. "I thought it played fine," Nicklaus said of the course, but thought easy pin-placements and soft greens tended to lower scores. "I don't think you'll see so many low scores after today."

BLACK Meadows Miss fell near the finish line in the third race at Monmouth Park, Oceanport, N.J., trapping jockey Jaime Arellano. The horse was not injured but Arellano suffered an apparent concussion and was rushed to the hospital.

23-year-old leads US Women's Open

CHASKA, Minn. (UPI) — Hollis Stacy, a jovial 23-year-old veteran, fired a 2-under-par 70 Thursday to take the first round lead in the U.S. Women's Open golf championship over the tough 6,313-yard Hazeltine course.

Stacy, of Savannah, Ga., playing in her eighth Open, shot even-par 36 on the first nine and then got two under with 12 and 20-foot birdie putts on the 11th and 13th to finish with a 36-34-70.

Stacy, who began golfing at the age of 11, turned pro three years ago and won her first tournament in April—the Lady Tara at Atlanta.

"Now I have the confidence," she said. "I know I'm capable of winning."

"This is a tough course, rolling and tight, and I think it's great," she said. "It's beautiful. I like a tough course because it makes me think. Sometimes I get a little lazy on the course and need a gun to my head."

Kazmierski fired three birdies against one bogey Thursday for a 2-under-par 34 and played even par on the back nine until the par-3 16th.

"I played the 16th like a par five," she said. "I was going for the pin and overshot."

Then she went for broke again, overshot and wound up with a double bogey five.

"I guess I got a little anxious," she said.

Blalock, a nine-year pro, said that although she is two strokes back, she is hitting the ball well and "patience is a virtue." Stephenson said she "tended to be too aggressive" in going for the pin.

Carner, who went three over par on the front nine, then cut one under on the back nine for a 74, said "It's a hard course to play."

"I'd like to take even par all the way," she said. The lowest score ever to win a Women's Open has been even par.

Bunched at 75 were Pam Higgins, Murlie Brewer, Kathy Cornelius, Michelle Walker, Susan O'Connor and Judy Rankin, the second highest money winner so far this season.

"It's nice to be the first day leader," Stacy grinned in the clubhouse, "but I know I'll be playing my butt off the next three days."

Stacy had a two-stroke lead over Jane Blalock, Amy Alcott, Jan Stephenson and Joyce Kazmierski, who shot even-par 72, in the run for the $11,000 first prize.

Kazmierski, a 10-year pro, was two under par with a chance of tying for the lead until the 16th hole where she shot back and forth over the green for a double bogey.

Alcott said she had a "very consistent, solid day of golf, and I hope I didn't use my whole bag of tricks on the first day."

Nancy Lopez, playing in her first tournament as a pro, and Sandra Post, were tied at 73.

Defending champion JoAnne Carner, trying for her third Open championship and all-time money winner Kathy Whitworth, who like the veteran Sam Snead never has won an Open, were two over par at 74. Tied with them were 1975 winner Sandra Palmer, Debbie Austin and Peggy Conley.

King announces super card

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Boxing promoter Don King announced Thursday he has lined up seven of the world's top 10 heavyweight for a nationally televised series of bouts Sept. 14 to be headed by separate fights by Ken Norton and Jimmy Young.

King said the three-hour prime-time show would be broadcast from Caesar's Palace.

Norton and Young, considered the two top challengers for Muhammad Ali's title, will both appear despite their previously announced Nov. 5 fight in Las Vegas.

Norton will go against 10th ranked Lorenzo Zanon, a little known fighter from Italy. Young, who has upset former champion George Foreman and Ron Lyle in recent bouts, will take on Florida's journeyman Jody Ballard.

There will be three other 10-round heavyweight fights. There will be three other 10-round heavyweight fights.

Lyle, the 33-year-old veteran from Denver, will face unbeaten youngster Stanley Ward of Sacramento, Calif. Another unbeaten fighter, Larry Holmes of Easton, Pa., will face Howard Smith of Las Vegas.

All of the fighters, except for Ballard, are generally ranked among the division's top ten.

Also on the card will be 250-pound Leroy Jones, a Denver boxer who has a 19-0 record. His opponent was not announced.

Promoter King said that if either Norton or Young should be upset, it would jeopardize their planned November showdown which is expected to lead to a title fight with Ali.

Purses for the fighters and cost of television rights were not announced.

GARY Green, number one draft choice of the Kansas City Chiefs, soaks in a cooling splash of water during a Chiefs' practice. It's make it or break it time for rookies in the pro camps now, and first round draft choices have to show they can do the job just like any other rookie.

Yankee owner comes to Jackson defense

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankee owner George M. Steinbrenner came to Reggie Jackson's defense Thursday, following accusations that the controversial outfielder had chased and stomped on a 13-year-old boy after Tuesday night's All-Star Game.

Steinbrenner, in the first official statement from the Yankees, stated, "Anyone who would criticize Reggie Jackson for what happened in this incident just does not have the actual facts. Reggie Jackson is one of the most accomplished baseball players in the major leagues when it comes to obliging autograph seekers, particularly kids. He often spends as much as a half hour in the crowd after games signing autographs and talking and you could not ask for anything more from a ballplayer."

"The facts" are that Jackson, who had been booed by the Yankee Stadium crowd during the introductions to the midsummer exhibition game, was giving out autographs for some 15 minutes in a parking lot in a restricted area which is protected by the police. Apparently, a group of youngsters entered the lot and followed several of the young men "started to shout obscenities that were so bad and so vile that you cannot print them."

According to Jackson and others who witnessed the ugly scene, he was able to put up with it until someone made a particularly vile remark about his mother. At that point, he took off after Chris Howe — the teenager who supposedly made the remark, although Howe denies it — and chased him until Howe fell to the ground.

Whether or not Jackson ever touched the youngster depends on who is telling the story. Howe claims that Jackson stomped him on the wrist when he fell to the ground, but Jackson says it isn't so. According to Jackson, George Scott of the Boston Red Sox restrained him and insisted they go home.

Howe has the option of filing a civil suit for harassment. No assault charges can be filed, because the boy was not badly hurt.

It has been an extremely trying and unhappy year for Jackson, who has had problems since joining the team. Most recently, he was benched by teammate Sparky Lyle, who claimed that Jackson failed to hustle on a play.

The fans seem to have made Jackson the major scapegoat for the team's less than brilliant performance this season. But this time, Steinbrenner feels things have gone too far.

"Here is a player trying to do what you would like to see all the ballplayers do, obliging the fans, particularly the kids," he said. "I cannot say that I would blame Reggie. If he never stopped to sign another autograph and it's too bad. But one rotten apple can ruin a whole barrel."

"What good comes when a youngster shouts obscenities like this? It is uncalled for. The youngsters had no business there, in the private lot. In the first place, I just hope that it will not be the cause of players falling to stop and sign autographs in the future for the many fine baseball fans, young and old alike, who wait after games for players in ballparks everywhere."

Swimmer takes 9 golds

BUCHAREST (UPI) — Jeff Float, 17, of Sacramento, Calif., won his eighth and ninth swimming gold medals Thursday in the World Olympic Games for the deaf.

Float, who has dominated the men's swimming events in the Games, won the 200 meter butterfly in 2:15.14 and the 200 meter backstroke in 2:21.55.

Laura Barber of Pittsburgh took her eighth gold in the women's 100-meter backstroke, 1:11.03, and Teresa Helm of Canada won the women's 800 meter freestyle in 10:20.30.

In men's volleyball, Bulgaria defeated the United States 3-0 and the Soviet Union doped the Netherlands 3-0. West Germany's soccer team defeated Argentina 2-1 and Romania swept past Sweden 3-0.

The Games, which last until July 26, join more than 1,500 deaf athletes from 32 countries.

Lambert wants more $

BEAVER, Pa. (UPI) — All-pro linebacker Jack Lambert will not report on schedule Friday to the Pittsburgh Steelers' training camp, according to the Beaver County Times.

The Times, in a story, written by Sports Editor Sam Beckel, said Lambert, 25, would not report because he wants more money.

The story said linebacker Bill Bergery of the Philadelphia Eagles is believed to receive about $200,000 a season and Lambert feels he should make as much.

Veteran players have until noon Friday to report to the Steeler camp at Latrobe, Pa. If Lambert fails to report on time he will be in violation of his contract and subject to a fine that could reach a maximum of $500 a day.

The Times said Lambert, entering his fourth season and the option year on his original contract, decided as long as two months ago not to report to camp if he was still unsigned.

A Steelers spokesman at Latrobe said as far as he knew Lambert still had not signed a contract as of late Thursday night.

How pros end fights

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — Coach Chuck Knox permitted tackling for the first time Thursday at the Los Angeles Rams training camp and the action became so heated two players got into a fistfight.

Defensive tackle Greg Mardlerian, a 250-pound free agent from the University of Southern California, and guard Jeff Williams, a 256-pound fifth draft choice from Rhode Island, lost their tempers and began fighting.

Knox let them go at each other for perhaps a minute, then he and guard Dennis Harrah broke it up.

As is the custom, Knox then had the two bruisers charge at each other half a dozen times, shake hands and told them to forget the incident.

Fryman back in game?

FLEMINGSBURG, Ky. (UPI) — A weekly newspaper in Kentucky reported Thursday that pitcher Woodie Fryman, who left the world champion Cincinnati Reds earlier this month, may end his self-imposed retirement sometime in the next week.

An article written by C.A. Nard in the Flemingsburg Times Democrat said Fryman may return to baseball and play with a team in the northeast U.S.

Fryman, who had requested to be placed on the voluntary retirement list after leaving the Reds to return to his Ewing, Ky., farm, has a contract with the Reds through 1978. Ewing is located near Flemingsburg.

Card owner lifts long hair taboo

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — August A. Busch Jr., owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, Thursday night lifted the club's rule against facial hair but told relief pitcher Al Hrabosky his moustache had better improve his game.

"Work your butt off for a pennant and quit complaining," Busch said he told Hrabosky. Hrabosky had considered his Fu Manchu moustache part of his "Mad Hungarian" act on the mound; he reluctantly complied with Manager Vern Rapp's ban on long hair this spring, but frequently complained.

Busch emphasized his confidence in Rapp by announcing he has given him a one-year extension in his contract to next year.

Asked whether Hrabosky can regain his fastball with his moustache, Busch said, "I hope to see that."

Hrabosky said, "I firmly believe this Ballclub is going to win. I think if (the lifting of the hair rule) will definitely help my production. That's all I want, flat and simple."

Busch made a rare edited appearance before meeting reporters. He read a statement of his discussion with Hrabosky. "To say I'm disappointed you would be an understatement," he said. He cited Hrabosky's complaints during spring training and his refusal to meet with Rapp, an action that cost Hrabosky a two-day suspension. Busch said after the suspension was lifted.

Hrabosky indicated there would be no further conflict. Instead, he said, Hrabosky resumed his criticism of Rapp and blamed his own slump on being forced to shave his moustache.

"Well, young man, if you're looking for trouble, you can believe August A. Busch Jr. will give you more than you can handle," Busch said. "Apparently you're not happy with the $140,000 a year we are paying you."

He said he was suspending the rule on facial hair only because he wants to avoid a court battle. Hrabosky had said he might file a grievance over the rule.

"I don't intend to give you the satisfaction of dragging the Cardinals and baseball into the courtroom," Busch said. "To me, this whole thing is childish."

However, he said, "You've pushed me into a corner and no one does that to me." He said he would not place Hrabosky on the waiver list and that his status with the club will be reviewed at the end of the season.

Hrabosky, 24, has been ineffective in his last half dozen relief appearances, at one time giving up four homers in four straight crucial appearances. He has seven saves and a .750 ERA.

US tops Jewish games medal count
JERUSALEM (UPI) — The 10th Maccabiah Games for Jewish athletes ended Thursday with a ceremony at the Walling Wall in Jerusalem following a 1.8 mile colorful parade through the streets of the city.

Acting Prime Minister Simcha Eritel, Army Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Mordochai Gur and Mayor Teddy Kolkot attended the ceremony that included a fireworks display.

As the Maccabiah flame was lowered and extinguished, a huge fire inscription "Meet you at the 11th Maccabiah" lit the skies of Jerusalem.

Some 2,500 athletes from 35 countries competed in 25 sports during the eight-day Games, the Jewish version of the Olympics.

According to Maccabiah spokesmen, the United States led the final medal count with 83 gold, 65 silver and 47 bronze medals.

Israel ranked second with 60 gold, 70 silver and 69 bronze medals, followed by South Africa (16-7-9), Holland (11-9-3), France (10-7-16), Canada (8-8-4) and Australia (6-13-10).

It's about time Catfish Hunter records first shut-out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dick Davis delivered a two-out single in the 10th inning to score Cecil Cooper and give the Milwaukee Brewers a 5-4 come-from-behind victory over New York in the second game after the Yankees won the opener 7-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

The Brewers, who scored four runs in the ninth inning of the nightcap to tie the score at 4-4, began their winning rally when Cooper singled. After Roger Dick Tidrow retired the next two batters, Cooper stole second when catcher Fran Hilly dropped Tidrow's pitch and scored when Davis singled right field.

Bill Castro pitched the last two innings to gain his eighth victory against five losses. "Blacked out" eight innings by Ed Figueroa, the Brewers began their games-tying ninth (Hilly rally) on a solo homer by Cooper. Sal Bando singled and after one out, Davis singled and Sparky Lyle replaced Figueroa. Pinch-hitter Ken McMillen greeted Lyle with a single to score Bando, but Lyle appeared to be out of further trouble when he induced Ed Romero to bounce what appeared to be a double play ball at shortstop Fred Stanley. However, Stanley's throw to second was wild as Davis scored and Charlie Moore singled home the tying run.

The Yankees took a 4-0 lead after two were out in the first inning by stringing together five singles. An infield hit by Thurman Munson and successive singles by Chris Chambliss, Lou Pinella, Graig Nettles and Paul Blair accounted for the runs.

In the opener, Hunter, 6-4, struck out three and walked two in pitching his first shutout of the year. Nettles supplied most of the offense with a three-run homer, his 21st, and Ray White collected three hits for the Yankees.

Royals take 7th straight
DETROIT (UPI) — Al Cowens drove in five runs Thursday night to reach a new personal career high of 63 in leading the torrid Kansas City Royals to their seventh straight victory, an 8-1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Cowens, whose previous best for RBI in a season was 59 last year, cracked his 15th home run of the season after Hal McRae doubled home Frank White in the third inning. Cowens' next home run will give him twice as many as he accumulated in his first three major league seasons combined.

Paul Spittorff raised his record to 8-5 with a four-hitter and the run he allowed in the third, which scored on a single by Tito Fuentes, was unearned as the result of a 25th error by Cowens.

John Mayberry hit his 15th home run after Cowens singled in the second. Cowens singled in the fifth to drive home a run and drove in two more in the sixth with a bases-loaded single to complete his four-hit game.

Reliever Charlie Williams, the loser, gave up a single to Ted Sizemore and a walk to Tommy Hutton before departing. Martin greeted John Curtis and hit a line drive to center that Derrel Thomas misjudged. Bake McBride also had a run-scoring triple in the big inning and scored a run. Hutton walked twice in the inning and scored both times.

The Giants had taken a 6-0 lead in the first five innings. Gary Thomsom hit his first major league grand slam in the third and Marc Hill added a two-run shot in the fifth.

Twins top Ryan 3-2
BLOOMINGTON (UPI) — Dave Goltz gave up two runs in the first inning and then hurtled shutout ball the rest of the way to lift the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 win over Nolan Ryan and the California Angels Thursday night.

Lyman Bostock slugged a two-run triple in the first and scored on Larry Hise's bunt single to complete all the Twins' scoring.

Bobby Bonds hit his 19th home run in the first off Goltz. Bonds drove in Rance Mulliniks, who had reached safely on error.

Goltz, who pitched his 10th complete game, held the Angels to six hits. He walked only one and struck out six, upping his record to 11-6. Rod Carew went 0-for-2 and his batting average dropped to .301. Ryan, 13-9, gave up only four hits but walked seven, while posting only four strikeouts to raise his season total to 23...

Expos blank Dodgers 4-0
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Rogers pitched a four-hitter and notched his fourth shutout of the season Thursday night in pitching the Montreal Expos to a 4-0 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 27-year-old right-hander, notching his 12th complete game, walked only one and struck out seven while gaining his 10th victory against eight losses and improving his record against the solo homer Thursday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-0 win over the Astros.

Forsch, who has four losses, struck out two and walked five.

Hernandez, who hadn't hit a homer in a month, lined a two-out homer over the right field wall in the second off J.R. Richard, who had gone 24 innings without giving up a run. Richard dropped to 9-7 with the loss.

The Cards made it 2-0 in the fourth when Gary Templeton led-off with a single, stole second, went to third on a grounder and scored on an infield out by Ted Simmons.

St. Louis added two more runs in the sixth. Jerry Murphy hit a one-out single, stole second and scored on Templeton's triple. Templeton, who leads the league with nine triples, came home when Simmons hit his second runcoring infield out of the game.

Dorsett hurts knee
IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — Prized rookie running back Tony Dorsett sprained a knee Thursday in a game-type scrimmage between the Dallas Cowboys and the San Diego Chargers.

Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winner at the University of Pittsburgh last year, will be sidelined for three or four days, Dallas officials said. He hurt his right knee and had to leave the action when Chargers safety Keith King, a 229-pounder, stopped him on a running play. Dorsett carried only four times, gaining 10 yards.

The Cowboys scored three touchdowns against two for the Chargers.

Jim Jensen, a 210-pound running back from Iowa, was the big gun in the Cowboy offense, gaining 90 yards on 14 carries and scoring two touchdowns on short runs.

The third Dallas touchdown was scored by John Smith on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Glenn Carano, rookie from University of Nevada Las Vegas.

Carano completed seven of 13 passes for 16 yards.

Johnny Rodgers scored for San Diego on a 35-yard pass from Cliff Olander and Joe Washington on a five-yard run. Olander completed three of five passes for 53 yards.

Raider says retraction would have stopped suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The attorneys in the $2 million slander suit by Oakland Raider George Atkinson against the Pittsburgh Steelers presented their concluding arguments Thursday in U.S. District Court.

Judge Samuel Conti said he would deliver his instructions to the jury Friday and then the six members may begin deliberations.

On the ninth day of the trial Atkinson told UPI that a retraction by the Steelers or their coach, Chuck Noll, of a statement suggesting he was part of a "criminal element" in the National Football League would have obliterated the suit.

"All this could have been avoided," Atkinson said. "All I wanted was a retraction. I wanted my name cleared."

Noll made the "criminal element" statement at a news conference on Sept. 13, 1976, the day after the Raiders and Steelers opened the season. In the game, won by the Raiders 31-28 in the last minutes, Atkinson delivered a "hit" on Pittsburgh wide-receiver Lynn Swann who suffered a concussion.

Atkinson later filed the slander suit and also another action seeking $1 million in libel damages from the Oakland Tribune for comments by a columnist. The libel suit is still pending.

Wille Brown, the attorney representing the Raider defensive back, said in concluding arguments that it was clear Noll wanted to eliminate Atkinson's libel to earn a living as his chosen profession.

He said the Pittsburgh coach wanted to damage Atkinson's reputation.

"Let them attack the label 'Dirty player' to him, let them attack the label 'Cheap shot artist,'" Brown told the jury. "He'll take care of that on the football field. But only you can remove the label 'Criminal element' from him."

James Martin MacIntosh, the coach's lawyer, said Atkinson brought all the trouble on himself by striking Swann. He added that Atkinson was no "vestal virgin" when he came into court and asked for damages for slander.

Last month the Steelers filed a $1 million countersuit against Atkinson, alleging he was part of a conspiracy to "disable and intimidate" Swann.

The Steelers Thursday withdrew the countersuit and Conti dismissed it "with prejudice."

meanings, it can never be retracted.

The final morning of testimony saw Raider co-owner Al Davis take the stand and testify that he felt Atkinson's trade value was "severely damaged" by the publicity surrounding the Swann incident and Noll's comments.

"In my opinion his playing career with the Oakland Raiders was shortened some two to three years without question," Davis said.

On Wednesday, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle had testified that Atkinson's trade value had not diminished, that he was still "an outstanding defensive back" and that any number of clubs would be proud to have him on the team.

Walker team chosen

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Dick Siderow, 40, of Westport, Conn., heads a team of 10 amateur golfers who have been invited to represent the United States against similar teams from Great Britain and Ireland in the 28th Walker Cup match to be played Aug. 25-27 at Shinnecock Hills Golf Club.

Siderow, twice the British Amateur champion, has been selected for the fourth time, the third in succession, having played previously in 1969, 1973 and 1975. The match is played every other year, alternately in the United States and Great Britain or Ireland.

The other players have no Walker Cup experience, but three are playing on their second international team. Bill Sander, 21, the current U.S. Amateur champion, Fred Ridley, the 1975 champion, and John Fought of Portland, Ore., all represented the United States in the World Amateur Team Championship of 1976.

Other members include Mike Brannan, 21, of Salinas, Calif., a former U.S. Junior Amateur champion; Gary Halberg, 19, of Portland, Ore., the 1977 North and South Amateur winner; Scott Simpson, 22, of San Diego, Calif., the 1976 and 1977 NCAA champion; Vance Heafner, 23, Cary, N.C.; Lindy Miller, 20, Fort Worth, Tex.; and Jay Siegel, 23, Berwyn, Pa.

Courageous bounces back to outsail Independence

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Ted Turner and 1974 America's Cup winner Courageous got back on course Thursday by winning two races against Ted Hood's Independence.

Both races were touch-and-go as the 12-meters bucked four to five feet seas and 15-18 knot winds.

The first race was neck-and-neck the whole way until in the fourth and final two and one-half-mile leg Courageous did a lightning-speed tack and took the wind right out of Independence's spinnaker.

As Courageous crossed the finish line six seconds ahead, her crew members gave themselves a rousing cheer. The second encounter was nearly as close; Courageous won by 18 seconds to put her record at 12 wins and 3 losses.

Independence is now at 3-10, and Lowell North's Enterprise, the third American boat, is 8-9.

Courageous gets the day off Friday when Independence takes on Enterprise.

Turner's victories came in the wake of a string of losses that had observers wondering whether the tide had turned for Courageous. After losing only once during the preliminary trials in June, Turner has lost three encounters to Enterprise since the observation; trials opened Saturday.

The observation trials continue through July 27. Final trials are set for August when the New York Yacht Club must choose one boat to defend the cup against a foreign challenger in September.

Separate trials are held in August to choose one of the five boats from Australia, France and Sweden as a foreign challenger for the cup which has been in American possession since 1851.

Stanfill holds out

MIAMI (UPI) — Defensive end Bill Stanfill has filed a grievance against the Miami Dolphins challenging an opinion by team physician Dr. Herbert Virgin that he is in good enough physical condition to play this year.

Stanfill has been plagued for the last two years by a neck ailment involving his nervous system. Two University of Michigan physicians, Dr. Gerald O'Connor, and Dr. Richard Schreiber, have told Stanfill he should retire.

Stanfill, who has two years remaining on a no-cut contract estimated to be worth more than $100,000 a year, says he hopes the NFL Player-Club Relations committee will call his another doctor when it hears his grievance.

"The problem is his no-cut contract," acknowledged Dolphin Coach Don Shula. "He naturally wants to be paid for the last two years of his contract."

Stanfill said he did not think the Dolphins would even want him in camp if it weren't for the contract, but he harbors few ill feelings.

"This is not a very pleasant thing to do," he said. "I've got a lot of mixed emotions about doing this. This club has been awfully good to me, but I felt this is what I have to do."

Stanfill said he would not completely rule out playing even if the grievance committee rules in his favor.

Members of the committee that will hear the case are players Len Hauss of the Washington Redskins and Gene Upshaw of the Oakland Raiders — and — owners Wellington Mara of the New York Giants and Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Stanfill was a standout member of all three of the Dolphin Super Bowl teams and was rated among the NFL's top pass rushers until he injured his neck early in the 1975 preseason.

13-year-old nets world record trout

STURGEON BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Thirteen-year-old Gene Leschow of Algoma, Wis., caught a world's record Tiger Trout fishing off the Sturgeon Bay breakwater Thursday.

Leschow's prize weighed 34 pounds, 11-1/2 ounces, nearly a pound heavier than the previous record, according to the State Department of Natural Resources. Leschow caught the fish during a fishing contest sponsored by a local firm. He used a Mr. Champ lure and a 10 pound test line, according to a contest official.

Will Reggie still sign autographs?

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — "Ninety per cent of the kids who come around here all the time are honest and decent, the kind you admire and respect the ballplayers. They really want their autographs. The other 10 per cent are animals."

The man making the statement is a New York City policeman assigned to the area at Yankee Stadium where the players park their cars. For obvious reasons, he said, that his name not be used. Same parents are a little sensitive over having anyone call their kids animals. They jump on the first subway down to City Hall demanding to see the mayor.

It was in this parking lot area that Reggie Jackson ran into trouble the night of the All-Star game, trouble in the form of that 10 per cent element the policeman is talking about. The Yankee outfielder was accused of stomping on the hand of a 13-year-old boy after hearing insulting remarks made about his mother and the girl he was with while he was signing autographs. Jackson admits he chased after one boy but denies touching him. No formal charges were pressed against him because the boy who did suffer injuries to his hand said they were minor ones anyway.

In his first official statement since the incident, Yankee owner George Steinbrenner said that after eliciting as many facts as he could, he wouldn't blame Jackson if he could sign for another autograph. Maybe that's a bit of overreaction, but he does have a point.

First of all, Jackson did not provoke the trouble. Indeed, he was doing all he could to sign as many autographs as he could. Jackson is highly accommodating that way, more so in some respects than even the usually gracious Babe Ruth was.

I asked Ruth once how many autographs he estimated he gave out in his lifetime, and he said, "more than a million." I believe that. The blis never gave him a rest, nor did many grown-ups, and it reached a point where he had to develop some play in pure self-defense. When he'd come out to the ballpark before the game, he sometimes took one look at the huge gang of kids bearing down on him, and he'd hold up those big hands of his and say: "Now wait a minute, fellas. I'll sign for all of you — AFTER the ball game."

Naturally, they'd be there waiting for him with their papers and pencils after the game.

"Only baseballs," the babe would boom, and you never heard so many kids groan all at once in your life.

Jackson always signs as many autographs as he possibly can. On Tuesday night in the parking lot, one kid started it all by hollering at him. "You stink." The kid was far enough away to feel secure. Jackson kept signing.

Emboldened by getting away with what he said, this same kid then called out to Jackson again, using a phrase that couldn't be printed in any family newspaper.

Jackson heard him and the language bothered him not because he had never heard it before, but because his family was with him and the kid was slanting an obscene remark that would make any man's composure fray somewhat around the edges.

A some witnesses say Jackson smiled and answered back which only antagonized the kid and some of his cronies. They became more personal in their insults, zinging in on the girl Jackson was with. That was when he is reported to have run after the youth who had started it all. One fan said later, "for all the times they've zinged him, he should be able to take it."

I don't buy that at all, merely because a man is earning a great deal of money, as Jackson is, doesn't give anyone the right to vilify him in public. I find myself wondering about the parents of this 10 per cent element which considers it great sport to harass people either by hoodlum-like action or obscene name-calling. Do these parents realize what their children are doing, or do they even care?

Some of these "autograph seekers" aren't really looking for a ballplayer's signature. All they're looking for is blood. Joe DiMaggio was practically pinned against the wall by autograph seekers at the Mets' Old Timers' reunion last weekend. They pushed him, shoved him and nearly knocked him down.

"They asked me to sign," he said, "but they never let me do it."

Mickey Mantle says his wife, Merlyn, cured him of asking for autographs. She was his girl friend then and she asked Mickey to get the signature of Harry Kimes, the band leader, after a dance in Oklahoma. Mantle waited in line a long time for the autograph.

"That did it," he says. "I never asked for another one again."

Vilas and Gottfried win to move to third round

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top seeds Guillermo Vilas and Brian Gottfried advanced Thursday with victories in the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

The top-seeded Vilas, a 24-year-old native of Argentina, took a little over an hour to dispose of Van Winitsky, a 18-year-old sophomore at UCLA, 6-4, 6-1 to advance to the third round.

In his third round match, second-seeded Gottfried, of Bonaventure, Fla., rallied to beat 32-year-old Australian Dick Crealy 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Gottfried dropped the first set of the storm-interrupted match to Crealy, and quickly lost his serve to trail 2-1 in the second set but the 25-year-old Gottfried broke back immediately to knot the set at 2-2, and later broke Crealy for a 7-5 win.

The last half of the second set was played in a strong storm wind, following a 45-minute rain delay. Refreshed Gottfried swept the final set, while a steady drizzle fell on the court.

In other third round play, with the winners advancing to Saturday's quarterfinals, fifth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., subdued Terry Moor of Monroe, La., 6-3, 6-4, and South Africa's Ray Moore defeated Tim Wilkinson of Shelby, N.C., 7-5, 3-6, 6-0.

There was one second round upset in the clay court tournament. Hank Pfister of Bakersfield, Calif., beat 12th-seeded Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In other second round matches, sixth-seeded Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., toppled Bruce Manson of North Hollywood, Calif., 6-4, 6-3; No. 9 seed Phil Dent of Australia beat fellow countryman John James; and 11th-seeded John Alexander whipped Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich., 6-2, 6-4.

Yachts require traffic guide

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Chaperone is a motorboat with a split personality. She provides the engine power for guiding the 12-meter Enterprise — a U.S. contender in the America's Cup race — in and out of Newport Harbor. But the 60-foot Chaperone pretends all the while she's a sailboat.

Ken, Gunderson, the lanky captain who has brought Chaperone here for its sixth America's Cup summer, says it has to be that way.

When you're dragging a 300-foot tow line with a million dollar 12-meter at the end, there's not much room to maneuver. Add to that a pack of weekend sailors anxious to get a close peek at America's Cup boat and it spells chaos.

"A twelve under tow has no escape," says Gunderson. "There is no way it can stop. There are no brakes."

Chaperone can tow a 12-meter up to a speed of 10 knots, and when she stops, the twelve will keep gliding for 500 or 600 feet. If a small sailboat or a powerboat gets in the way, there's little anyone can do.

"We are prepared to cut the tow line if necessary," says Gunderson, a veteran of five America's Cup races. "We carry knives, and we have an ax. But we've never had to cut one yet."

But Chaperone came close to it recently. Gunderson says he was towing Enterprise upwind in waters off Newport so that she could raise her mainsail. Once the crew work begins, it's difficult to stop at midpoint. At the same moment, a small sailboat moving at five knots on a port tack barreled toward the two boats on a diagonal path. Rules of the road state that sailboats have the right-of-way over powerboats, but a tender for a 12-meter is something else.

"It was one of those ticklish moments. We're idling ahead, and we miss him by 15 feet, and we still had the boat sideways," Gunderson said of his last ditch effort to miss the boat.

"Even though he was a sailor, it didn't dawn on him that we have to put the main up going upwind."

Nets face new foe

MINNEOLA, I.I. (UPI) — Ozzie Silna, a co-owner of the old St. Louis Spirits of the defunct American Basketball Association, charged Thursday that the New York Nets had, given the Spirits a first option on a National Basketball Association franchise in New Jersey.

Silna filed suit in State Supreme Court in Minneola to enjoin the NBA Nets from moving to New Jersey without first offering the Spirits "the opportunity to apply for the New Jersey franchise."

The suit also asks the court to bar the Nets from any further negotiations relating to the projected move to New Jersey while the Spirits' suit is pending.

Justice Steven C. Derounian signed a show cause order requiring the Nets to answer the complaint on Aug. 22. The suit was filed on behalf of Silna, his brother, Danny, and Donald Schupak, the three owners of the Spirits.

The court papers said that the Spirits filed a suit in Manhattan Federal Court in July 1976 seeking to ban the Nets and three other ABA teams from joining the NBA.

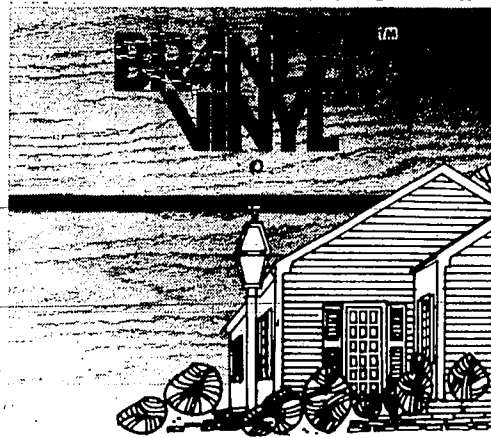

The complaint alleged that the move would signal the demise of the ABA and the Spirits would thereby lose a $5 million investment.

In the following month, the suit was settled outside of court, and under the terms of the agreement, Silna sold the Nets to the Spirits — a first option on an NBA New Jersey franchise.

A letter from a Nets' attorney, spelling out the terms of the agreement, was attached to the court papers.

The letter stated that if any group sought an NBA franchise in New Jersey, it would have to pay an indemnity to the Long Island-based Nets for infringement on their franchised territory.
