

Huge black birds lift lid, let go

LAWDALE, Ill. (UPI)—James O. Daniels shook his head. "If I had just had a can of beer earlier, then I could have said I imagined I saw it. But I didn't have any beer that day."

So Daniels is convinced the two huge black birds that attacked a group of children playing in his neighbor's backyard were not an hallucination. One of the birds tried to carry away a neighbor's 10-year-old son.

The neighbor, Mrs. Ruth Lowe, said she was cleaning the family camper Monday evening when she heard a scream from her son Marlan. She said she reached the backyard in time to see the boy, who weighs 70 pounds, battling a huge bird that was carrying him two feet off the ground. She said the bird then dropped Marlan and then, joined by another big bird, flew toward Kickapoo Creek near the central Illinois community of Lawdale.

Mervyn also said, "I don't think the child was picked up."

Daniels, however, said the birds, which probably weighed 50 to 65 pounds each, may have been able to pick up the running boy with the help of his momentum.

"Other than that, I can't tell you what the varmints were," he said. "If I had had a shotgun, I could tell you what they were."

Nuclear test talks set

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Carter said today formal negotiations will begin in Geneva Oct. 3 on a total ban on testing nuclear devices because of "sufficiently promising" preliminary talks between the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain.

Carter said that although there still are a number of problems, "the intensive discussions have been sufficiently promising to begin discussions in Geneva on Oct. 3" on a nuclear test ban treaty.

Carter also said today Israel's move to establish and legalize settlements in occupied Arab territories may be an obstacle to peace in the Middle East which will be "difficult for world opinion to accept."

Carter told his bi-weekly news conference his main concern was not over the Israeli government's legalization this week of three existing settlements in occupied territories, but over the establishment of new settlements.

He said that last week during meetings in Washington with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, "I let Prime Minister Begin know of our own government's deep concern."

"I hope we can overcome the difficulties," Carter also said.

— Defended new sales of arms to Egypt, Sudan and Somalia as attempts to confine conflicts to a single area and "reduce competition with the Soviet Union."

He said, "I am determined to continue a downward trend in arms sales."

— Estimated the U.S. trade deficit this year will be $25 billion, quadruple the largest deficit in history, and he is concerned that "by leaps and bounds the American people are importing and using too much oil."

— Strongly urged passage of a bill providing public financing of Senate election campaigns to "help restore public confidence" in the electoral process.

— In a statement at the start of the news conference, Carter announced the October nuclear test ban talks with the Soviet Union and Great Britain and said, "My hope is that other nations will join us."

He also gave a boost to congressional backers of the Senate election financing bill, saying a major problem with the electoral process is the large "single source" campaign contributions that create potential for conflicts of interest.

— He drew laughter when he said a law providing for federal funding of presidential campaigns "worked very well last year."

— Regarding the projected trade deficit, the President said that "we have a positive trade balance, excluding oil, of about $20 billion but we are importing $45 billion worth of oil this year."

— "It's a vivid demonstration of the need for very tight conservation measures over the use of oil and natural gas."

— He said if the public "will join in an effort to cut down on the waste of oil, then that would be the major contributing factor toward balancing our trade with other countries."

— Carter also said the search for a new FBI director is proceeding "very slowly and with prospects for good results," but indicated he may look further than the six candidates he already has interviewed. He said he hopes to see Carter approved for both the FBI and the CIA during his administration.

— Carter said the decision by Israeli leader Begin to legalize three Jewish settlements on the west bank of the Jordan River would "tend obviously to increase the difficulties in establishing peace."

Warning overdone

KEMPTON PARK, South Africa (UPI)— A deacon in the conservative Dutch Reformed Church claimed he brought back pornographic playing cards from a trip abroad as a warning to South Africans against the evils of smut.

His lawyer said Deacon Cornelius Taljaart, 37, wanted to "show people how appalling pornography was overseas."

The judge did not find the story entirely convincing. Noting Taljaart brought back not one deck but four, he sentenced the churchman to a fine of $200 or 200 days imprisonment.

Alien labor amnesty may squeeze Idaho

By KEN HODGE
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — President Carter's proposal to give amnesty to illegal aliens already living in this country could mean Idaho farmers will have an even tougher time getting workers to move sprinkler pipe.

"It will make it worse, there's no question about it," Neil Weir, chairman of the Sprinkler Irrigators of Idaho (SII), says. "It's the wrong package. All he (Carter) will do is open up the door for more welfare."

According to Weir, the SII has been trying for eight years to find some legal way to solve their farm labor problem to no avail.

"We're trying to do it legally," Weir says. "We always have been."

He adds the U.S. Department of Labor (USDL) and powerful labor unions have been a stumbling block to SII efforts to establish a "bracero" program and import groups of alien laborers in a controlled fashion to fill labor shortages.

As a result farmers have been forced to resort to illegal Mexican aliens, to do the heavy farm work when no U.S. citizens are willing to do it.

"If it wasn't for these wetbacks, we'd be out of business on the farms," Weir says. "These are the only people that will do it (farm work)."

Weir says all attempts to bring aliens into this country in a controlled program have been thwarted by the "red tape and rules and regulations" of the Labor Department in spite of the need for such workers.

"As it stands now, if you can get it certified, you can bring in alien labor," Ted Neuschwander, aide to Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, says about labor laws. "But the requirements are just impossible."

According to Neuschwander a bill recently introduced in the U.S. Senate by McClure could help Idaho farmers gain certification of their labor more easily, but has stagnated in a Senate subcommittee.

McClure's bill, which would give state governments instead of the USDL the right to make certifications to meet local labor shortages, is sitting in the Immigration Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"The Senate subcommittee is refusing to do anything until Carter's package comes out," Neuschwander says.

Weir says the bill would give local governments a chance to do their own certifying without so much red tape and would allow them to meet local needs not felt on a national level.

Jim Wagner, an official at the Department of Labor in Boise says that department cannot allow alien laborers to come into the country as long as their is an unemployment rate in the U.S.

Weir says, however, the Idaho Department of Employment six years ago made a study and determined it could not supply workers to move sprinkler pipe.

"The problem is the Department of Labor here in Washington is controlled by labor and is very unresponsive to a portion of Idaho that says there are no workers when there is such a high unemployment situation nationwide," Neuschwander says.

Both Neuschwander and Weir expect the problem for Idaho farmers to get worse instead of better if Carter's amnesty proposal, due in about a week, goes through.

Neuschwander says the only reason workers come to Idaho to perform the hard work of moving pipe is "that it is much better than trying to work in Mexico."

"Once the aliens can live and work legally in this country, they will become like U.S. citizens and look for better work than the farm work that is so attractive now, according to Weir."

"It's been proved in Texas," Weir says. "They won't move pipe or work on the farm. Once they are legal for welfare aid, they'll take it."

Neuschwander agrees. "A lot of them could get on welfare and draw welfare benefits and make more money than by moving pipe."

Local labor in the Department of Labor here in Washington is controlled by labor and is very unresponsive to a portion of Idaho that says there are no workers when there is such a high unemployment situation nationwide," Neuschwander says.

Both Neuschwander and Weir expect the problem for Idaho farmers to get worse instead of better if Carter's amnesty proposal, due in about a week, goes through.

HOLDING HIS head in apparent disbelief, Jim Borden stands on the steps of what used to be his home in Santa Barbara, Calif. It was among at least 200 homes destroyed by a runaway brush fire which caused more than $20 million damage. Officials said the fire was caused by a kite which struck a power line. (UPI)

Home lost to blaze

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — A devastating brush fire which destroyed 305 buildings, left hundreds homeless and caused $20 million damages was declared fully controlled today and most of an army of 1,100 firefighters began going home.

Fire officials held an early-morning strategy meeting and decided to begin winding down the fire operations.

"We decided at that time that we were pretty much under control and that we could start releasing men from the lines," Santa Barbara County Fire Chief William Patterson said.

Full control was declared at 9 a.m. MDT. All but 80 fire fighters were released immediately, Patterson said, and that force would be cut in half by night when the county fire department takes over the operations.

An air tanker and a helicopter were on standby duty to help mop-up the fire which started Tuesday when the string of a box kite wrapped around a cable television line and tugged it against a 16,000 volt power line.

While hot spots remained, Patterson said, the blaze was considered under control.

"In layman's terms, full control means the fire is out," he said.

The U.S. Forest Service immediately began reseeding blackened wildland areas with grass and fire officials started a detailed assessment of the structure loss.

City Fire Chief R. R. Peterson said the 305 figures for lost structures was "rough" and some buildings may have been counted twice. At least 200 homes, most in the $100,000 or more class, were lost. Many of the remaining structures were horse barns, garages and other buildings. He said the count would take three days to complete.

The Forest Service spread the grass seed in hopes of avoiding disastrous floods next winter. "There is obviously a danger of floods and mudslides if heavy rains come this winter," Forest Service spokesman Denny Bungara said.

Patterson was full of praise for the hundreds of fire fighters who battled the fire.

"They were really magnificent for a fire that moved as swiftly as it did," Patterson told a news conference. "It was one of the most cooperative and well run fires I have worked. Everyone worked together very smoothly."

Patterson placed the cost of fighting the fire at $200,000 and the Forest Service estimated loss to wildland areas at $250,000.

Cool ocean air and a lack of wind aided fire fighters in getting the upper hand over the blaze, which scorched 729 acres, or slightly more than one square mile.

Farm info snoopers target

Washington — Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said Wednesday the secretary of agriculture is a leading target of electronic eavesdropping by Soviet intelligence agencies.

Moynihan introduced legislation to force the Carter administration to act against the eavesdropping, which he said is done through the use of sophisticated electronic machinery installed at Soviet missions here, in New York, San Francisco, and possibly Chicago.

"Private communications of all sorts have been violated—and on a scale that dwarfs any previous surveillance effort by friend or foe alike," Moynihan said.

"The targets of Soviet interception of telephone communications now included our business, our banks, our brokerage houses, as frequently as our government agencies."

Johnstown flood toll hits 65

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — A dozen yellow ribbons marked spots where rescue workers dug today through mud and rubble in the nearby mining town of Seward in the hope of finding the bodies of 10 persons still missing from a 48-hour trailer park wiped out last week by torrential flood waters.

The ribbons were left by the handlers of four specially trained German shepherd dogs which combed the area for several hours Wednesday, sniffing for human bodies in the wreckage of the latest Johnstown flood.

Sixty-five bodies already have been recovered in the devastated Genesee valley. Fifteen of them remain unidentified and more than 100 still are missing.

Since none of the approximately 175 residents of the trailer court had a chance to evacuate before the flood struck, survival of more than 150 of them is regarded as something of a miracle.

Most of the survivors spent from three to five hours clinging to tree tops and floating debris or squatting along the wreckage of three trailers wrapped by the torrent around a clump of trees before a civilian helicopter pilots spotted them.

New federal water plan called threat

CHEYENNE (UPI) — A proposed federal water policy could remove states from their historic role as adjudicators of water rights within their boundaries, according to Wyoming State Engineer George Christopolos.

He pointed out the draft of the proposed policy contains the option of letting the federal government "purchase rights to water and reallocate them to the most socially desirable or economically productive use. Purchases could be through voluntary sales or eminent domain procedures."

The state engineer said such a policy could interfere with the states' jurisdiction over water rights.

Christopolos said Wednesday he and Gov. Ed Herschler are scheduled to attend a hearing in Denver today on the proposal. The governor will speak for the state in opposition to the policy, the engineer said.

Christopolos also said President Carter's Water Resources Council, which drafted the proposal, was seeking to "identify far more problems" than actually exist. He also said the council was trying to point a finger at the West. "Because of this, they are saying there should be overriding federal control," Christopolos said.

A federal takeover of water rights would result in increased government control and mass confusion for the approximately 50,000 individual holders of water rights in Wyoming, he said.

The state engineer also said opponents of the plan have had little time to review the proposals because of the short time between the release of the draft and hearings on the matter.

The policy was published in the Federal Register July 15 and the Denver hearing was set for Thursday, 10 days later. Other sessions will be held in cities across the country Friday, Monday and Tuesday.

Runaway car kills 2

HESPERIA, Calif. (UPI) — Two railroad workers were killed during a daring attempt to stop a runaway flatcar loaded with lumber that rolled five miles down track in the Mojave Desert at 70 miles an hour.

Santa Fe Railway officials disclosed Wednesday that conductor James Yates, 48, of Yucca, Calif., and brakeman Larry Lindsay, 32, of Hesperia jumped on the flatcar as it started rolling down a siding Tuesday night.

They fell in an attempt to stop the car with a manually-operated brake and an engineer driving five locomotives gave chase.

When he nudged the flatcar, authorities said, the lumber shifted and crushed the two men. Both were dead by the time the flatcar was stopped.

GM lists profits; shutdown possible

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. reported a $1.1 billion April-June profit — the biggest in its history — and then detailed plans Wednesday to close all U.S. operations by mid-September. If Congress doesn't ease clean air rules, it was the first time the world's largest auto company topped the billion-dollar mark in a three-month period, but the mark was overshadowed by warnings from the firm's top officers.

Chairman Thomas A. Murphy and President Elliott M. Estes noted their prediction of a record sales year, topping 14.6 million cars and trucks in 1977, hinged on an orderly start-up of 1978-model production. They said the first cars are scheduled to roll off assembly lines Aug. 8.

"Should Congress not act by then, plant closings would have to be scheduled immediately," they said. "Component plants would be affected first and all automobile production and assembly for the United States market would be scheduled to be terminated by mid-September."

It was the first time GM officials had outlined a timetable for a shutdown that could idle most of the 447,000 blue collar workers employed by GM in this country. Other U.S. auto companies have voiced similar warnings which Tuesday prompted President Carter to urge Congress to speed up deliberations on a new clean air bill and avoid a major economic disruption.

The GM second quarter financial report, however, was all rosy with the automaker turning in the highest unit sales, dollar sales and profits for any quarter in its history.

GM's earnings ($3.82 a share) were 20.7 per cent higher than last year's $3.099 million ($3.16 a share), the previous April-June high. Sales of $14.9 billion, up 18.3 per cent from $12.5 billion, also were a record for any quarter in the firm's history.

While ranked No. 2 among U.S. corporations, GM's $1.1 billion profit easily outdistanced the best ever done by No. 1, Exxon — $822 million in the fourth quarter of 1974. American Telephone & Telegraph, with a $1.159 billion profit in its latest quarter, leads the list.

Despite the record sales and profits, GM top executives said the firm's profit margin remained well below record levels — slightly more than seven cents on each sales dollar. That compares with 8.3 per cent in 1973's second quarter and 11 per cent in 1965.

The lower profit margin "again reflects the continuing impact on earnings caused by increased labor and material costs which, for competitive reasons, cannot be fully recovered, through price hikes," GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy and President E.M. Estes said in the financial statement.

GM's financial statement was the second from the U.S. auto industry for the April-June quarter — expected to be the industry's best ever when Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. report their results by the end of the week.

American Motors last week reported a slim $1.6 million profit.

Ford is expected to report a record profit that analysts say may be as much as $586 million while Chrysler earnings of about $30 million will be below last year because of a six-week strike at a key truck assembly plant.

Finances at rest?

© Newhouse News Service
 DETROIT—Budget Director Bert Lance said Wednesday the matter of his personal finances has been dealt with and that he hopes it will be laid to rest.

Lance was in Detroit to address the annual meeting of the National Association of Counties, but at a news conference was bombarded with questions about his ownership and planned sale of stock in the National Bank of Georgia which he used to head.

He said he had read in a newspaper that the trustee for his holdings was arranging to sell his bank shares to David N. Smith, an Atlanta businessman, for a net loss of only $75,000. He said he did not know the details except that he understood Smith was the prospective buyer.

He declined opportunities to say that he had been treated unfairly by the press or by Senators investigating his affairs.

Oilmen deny market grab

BOSTON (UPI) — The nation's major oil firms are not trying to push independent dealers off the market by running cheaper self-service gasoline stations, according to spokesmen for Mobil and Shell.

Self-service gasoline stations serve a public demand by supplying cheaper gasoline, they said, and attempts to ban them thwart a decision the public has already made in the open marketplace.

"I don't think that local governments are taking into account the consumer when the consumer had already made his choice in the market place," William Whittemore, a lawyer for Mobil, said Wednesday during a debate sponsored by the Massachusetts Petroleum Council.

Gerald Johnson, a district manager for Shell, said dealers could take advantage of the new trend by offering both self service and conventional service.

Spokesmen for the people who run the state's thousands of conventional, full-service stations countered that the growing preference for saving a few cents at the pump will cost motorists more than they realize.

"We feel that if (the self-service trend) is a regressive step in the industry and not in the best interest of the public," said Maurice Langelier, executive director of the Bay State Gasoline Retailers Association.

The average driver saves $22.54 a year by pumping his own gas, Langelier said, but that savings will be offset by repairs necessitated by lack of maintenance only available at full-service stations.

Faulty weld repair stops North Slope crude flow

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — The first flow of north slope crude oil was stopped less than 20 miles from the end of the Trans-Alaska pipeline today while workers repaired one more flow in the troubled 99 billion project.

"The oil was shut down about 3 p.m. Wednesday pending repairs to a faulty weld in the terminal," said Beverly Ward, spokeswoman for Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., Inc. in Anchorage.

"We don't know when it will be restarted, but I'm still hoping it's going to be sometime Thursday."

However, an Alyeska spokesman in Valdez said the latest oil flow interruption might last anywhere from 24 to 48 hours.

The initial flow of oil along the 800-mile route has been marred by explosion, death and injuries, one bombing, and more than $20 million in damage.

In Fairbanks, Larry D. Wertz, 26, was arraigned Wednesday on charges he tried to blow up the pipeline with dynamite.

District Court Judge H.E. Crutchfield labeled Wertz a "danger to society" and ordered him held without bond, pending a psychiatric examination and a preliminary hearing Aug. 4.

The dynamite attempt July 20 — not discovered until days later — did not stop the flow of oil, as did the faulty weld.

Workers at the master control console for the $9 billion pipeline babbled the oil along at a sluggish, reduced rate Wednesday while workers tried to repair the weld.

But when it became clear the oil could reach the terminal before the repairs were finished, the flow was stopped for the sixth time since the oil began its run at Prudhoe Bay on June 20.

"Nobody ordered us to shut down," Mrs. Ward said. "We just couldn't bring the oil into the terminal until the repairs were completed."

The fault was discovered on the main pipeline leading to a storage tank farm by workers making inspections after the explosion at Pump Station No. 8 July 8.

Insulin supplies 'adequate'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The nation's leading manufacturer of insulin says there is enough of the drug to go around, and the supply will be able to accommodate diabetics who will be forced to switch from a banned oral drug.

Eli Lilly and Co. officials Wednesday issued a statement after the Food and Drug Administration asked insulin makers if supplies are ample to meet the needs of certain patients now treated with an oral drug called phenformin, marketed by Ciba-Geigy under the trade name DBI and by USV Laboratories under the name Meflor.

Phenformin was declared an "imminent hazard" to public health Monday by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., because of certain undesirable side effects.

HEW said the FDA would take steps to restrict the availability of phenformin for the treatment of diabetes.

"We are confident that the insulin needs of all diabetic patients will be met without difficulty," a Lilly spokesman said.

Besides insulin, options for diabetics are strict diet and other oral agents.

Other oral diabetes drugs include tolbutamide, tolazamide, chlorpropamide and acetohexamide.

Young unloads world views

Devoted to the citizens of Magic Valley... William E. Howard, Publisher... Chris Peck, Managing Editor... Thursday, July 28, 1977

By CUL SULLBERGER

ON L.Y. Times News Service PARIS — Winding up a European tour largely devoted to acquainting himself with U.N.'s subsidiary organizations in Geneva and Paris, Ambassador Andrew Young unloaded some very sensible and far-sighted observations about this complex and highly charged world and the role therein of the United Nations and the U.S.A. His long range views included the following:

(1) South African partition along any kind of racial lines would be disastrous. That country, tormented as it is right now by racial problems, must remain an outpost of Western technology and productive capacity. Were it to fall under Communist domination it couldn't survive.

(2) All over the earth there are various underprivileged "castes," not always for racial reasons. This black English-speakers from the West Indies brought to Panama to excavate the canal actually benefited because of linguistic advantages in school. In Cuba, however, there was a larger proportion of dark-skinned people with Castro's revolution than against it. This produced an abnormal racial balance.

(3) The United States still has some way to go before achieving its goal of true racial equality. In social terms, even in the South, it is over 90 per cent segregated. In the rural south it is at least 50 to 70 per cent politically nonracial, but in northern cities the distance to go is much further; only 25 per cent of nonwhite voters participate politically. And America doesn't yet fairly share the advantages of its abundant society among the disfavored, perhaps 30 million impoverished, both black and white.

On the basis of these conclusions Young believes each nation — and the world community as a group — must develop a legal system protecting minority rights: blacks in some countries, whites in others (like many African states), tribes elsewhere and religious groups still elsewhere. In Uganda, for example, people have been singled out for persecution simply because of their relatively high intelligence.

Next year UNESCO is holding a conference to discuss this crucial issue and how to eliminate all varieties of prejudice. The United States has its own approach, laying stress on human rights. West Germany is seeking to elaborate an international code for good behavior which would be elemental enough to be accepted by states of any ideology.

Young contends that to confront such broad issues the Carter administration has brought a new kind of spirit to diplomacy. It addresses itself in a forthright way to third-world problems because now, with Vietnam and Djibouti in U.N., that organization has about 117 developing nations who tend to vote together as a bloc. Two decades ago, the big members of U.N. dominated things by their veto. But now the band of little nations exercises a kind of counter-veto.

Both we and the smaller powers recognize that U.N. can only move forward by consensus. Young himself acknowledges with surprise: "I never thought I'd be at the Security Council this long without having to cast a vote."

And, as he becomes increasingly familiar with both the United Nations and its individual members, he realizes the Soviet Union is relatively even more isolated from the third world than the United States because it contributes so little to economic support of developing lands.

Moreover, Moscow is making concrete mistakes. Thus, it has swung its support to a government in Ethiopia that has no popular backing, partly because its people are habitually oriented toward the West, which the regime is definitely not. At the same time the Russians have infuriated their old clients in Somalia, dominating the African horn, with the result they stand to lose everywhere by playing both ends against the middle.

Young finds these problems an enormous challenge both for his country and for himself. He is far more optimistic than many people about U.N.'s chances of exerting larger influence on some of the questions he outlines. As far as he is concerned, he simply hopes: "That I can stay around here another five or six years and keep up with the pace." Young in years (45) as well as name, he might manage to do just that.

Public can justify mistrust of big oil

The Federal Energy Administration recently confirmed what critics of the big oil companies have thought all along.

An independent FEA task force a few days ago found American consumers were overcharged millions of dollars for gasoline and other petroleum prices since the 1974 oil embargo.

The task force said the 15 largest American oil companies probably overcharged American consumers $1.7 billion for oil products in the last three years.

The audits of the major oil refiners showed the businesses took advantage of rising world oil prices and charged consumers even more than they would have needed to cover their own rising costs.

Yet many of the very oil companies who gouged the public for extra millions of dollars are the same firms lobbying for an end of federal price controls on federal gas and oil resources.

A recent Standard Oil of California newsletter entitled "A National Energy Policy" details one large firm's position on the role government should play in the pricing of oil and gas.

The Standard Oil pamphlet reads, in part, "... higher prices will encourage more, efficient use of energy and economic development of all types of domestic energy resources."

Then, the newsletter continues, "... future increases in the price of imported oil will lead to increased domestic crude oil prices with resulting increased earnings for domestic producers..."

Read that paragraph again. It says Standard Oil admits higher, deregulated oil prices will mean bigger profits for the company.

The release notes that "... the historical record indicates that oil producers would reinvest a larger part of their increased domestic earnings in domestic energy exploration and development..."

But the latest FEA audit shows, in fact, oil companies are not investing extra profits into domestic oil exploration and production.

And, a Business Week article a few weeks ago noted many American oil companies actually have cut back on the amount of money budgeted for domestic oil exploration. Other companies have severely limited the number of new test holes they drill, the magazine said.

This conflict between the public relations efforts and the truth tends to erode public confidence in the largest oil conglomerates.

A recent survey by the Sentry Insurance Company uncovered widespread skepticism about the honesty of American oil companies.

One out of every three consumers believed the oil companies were doing a poor job of serving the public and were taking advantage of consumers.

A majority of Americans polled agreed most companies are so concerned about profits they don't care about giving consumers a "fair deal," the survey found.

Interestingly, the same poll was given to executives in major American industries, including oil company executives.

The executives found little to complain about in American business. Most executives felt their companies were giving the public a fair deal and they uniformly deplored government regulation of their industries.

Deploping government regulations is a common cry among businessmen.

But the resonant moan about over-regulation ignores the acts of some businesses, in this case oil companies, which cannot be trusted to give consumers a fair shake.

Deregulation of oil prices may earn additional profits for the already bloated big producers. But deregulation will not gain widespread public support until the oil companies stop milking the public pocketbook with unreasonably high energy prices.

ANDY YOUNG MAY GET HIS OWN TALK SHOW, TV SOURCES SAY...

'Paradise scribes' review overrated

By RUSSELL BAKER

© 1977 N. Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — The arrival of the latest 'Esquire' was greeted with mirth and celebration at the Paradise Serbs Club, William Shakespeare, Edgar Allan Poe, Honoré Balzac and Lord Byron were especially tickled because they detested T. S. Eliot.

"Read me that part again where the critics, professors and writers of America say that T. S. Eliot is overrated," said Lord Byron. They were seated at a table in the bar and had been there all afternoon, ever since Esquire came in with its new literary ratings.

"I'm tired of reading it," said Poe, who was on his sixth burbon. "What it means is T. S. Eliot nevermore."

Ernest Hemingway strode into the bar feeling good and true. He had spent all afternoon in the deep clouds hunting angels and had shot seven sure and two possible, Shakespeare disliked Hemingway, not only because he was helpless in lamble pentameter but also because Hemingway had once shot and stuffed Ben Jonson, who was a good friend of Shakespeare's.

"Have you heard the news, Papa?" he called. "You're all washed up in sophomore lit!" Shakespeare tossed the Esquire to Hemingway.

"What they did," said Balzac, "was ask the literary bigshots of America who was overrated and who was underrated."

"And you, Papa," said Poe, "came out super overrated."

Hemingway knew it was the moment of truth, but he could not let them see the fear or they would tell Jane Austen that he had the fear and she would no longer take the good gondola rides with him.

"You never could hold your liquor, Eddie," he said to Poe.

Lord Byron, who admired courage, felt a surge of sympathy for Hemingway who had been great once but who was now but another overrated hasbeen son to vanish from the sophomore anthologies. "Come, monoglybolic Papa, and have a last drink with us before that wetly Hellsport of oblivion grants thee sweet release from fame," said Lord Byron.

"Thank, Lord," said Hemingway, "but I'll have the last glass with my old pals, Scott Fitzgerald and Bill Faulkner."

Balzac rose and embraced him. "Mon vieux," he whispered, "There is dreadful news. Both Scott and Bill — gone also."

"Esquire took them cleanly and with honor, I hope," said Hemingway.

"Overrated, damn," said Shakespeare. "It's right there in the magazine." Shakespeare had never liked Faulkner. You can't trust a man whose sentences don't parse, he always said. He was sorry to lose Fitzgerald, however. Not because he thought Fitzgerald was worth a place in the sophomore literature survey but because he had planned to cast him as Gloucester in an amateur production of "Macbeth" at the club theater.

Hemingway left bravely and well. He was the last of the overrated writers to leave, Elliot, Pound, Auden, Edmund Wilson, Faulkner, Fitzgerald — what a carnage the American literary academy had left, thanks to Esquire's invitation to revise the ratings.

Poe, who was now doing head down on the floor, opened one eye and saw something in the magazine that awakened him. He read it and then read it again. Then Shakespeare read it. Then Lord Byron.

Esquire had not been content, they explained to Balzac, who could not read English, merely to rate great writers out of the club. It had also ruled new great writers into the club. "Like who?" said Balzac.

"Like Theodore Dreiser," said Shakespeare. "And Conrad Aiken," said Poe. "and Henry Roth who is said to have written an unsung masterpiece entitled 'Call It Sleep.'"

"I once tried to read it," said Byron. "and sleep is precisely the right thing to call it."

When everybody else was asleep, Shakespeare opened up Page 87, powdered his beard to disguise himself as Ernest Hemingway and took Jane Austen for a ride in a gondola where he told her about the foolishness of literary critics and the fables of kings.

Ethiopia becomes African hot point

By WILLIAM CAMPBELL

MOGADISHU, Somalia (UPI) — It is one of the hottest, most inhospitable spots on earth.

Ethiopia's sprawling Ogaden desert is a 150,000 square mile tract of nothing, a wasteland the size of Montana.

It is home to millions of desert lizards, a few stunted trees and several hundred thousand Somali nomads who have wandered the region with their camels and goats for centuries.

But this barren land, which has been sucked dry by 130-degree temperatures and howling winds off the Red Sea, has become Africa's latest flashpoint.

A small-scale desert conflict, unnoticed by the outside world for the last few years, has suddenly exploded into virtual full-scale war.

If left unchecked, diplomats fear the escalating conflict could precipitate a major conflagration on the Horn of Africa which could eventually involve both the United States and Soviet Union.

Since the start of June an estimated 3,000 guerrillas of the Western Somalia Liberation Front poured into the Ogaden grabbing control of an estimated 60 per cent of the region, tucked into Ethiopia's southeastern corner and comprising a full third of Ethiopia's land area.

The insurgents, trained, supplied and supported by Mogadishu severed the vital Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad snaking through the Ogaden and which carries 60 per cent of Ethiopia's imports and exports. They have defied increasingly frantic efforts by Ethiopian paratroops to reopen the line.

Rearing across the desert in camouflaged trucks, the guerrillas overran Ethiopian government outposts, attacked convoys and infiltrated the area's two largest towns — the ancient walled city of Harar and the important rail town of Dire Dawa.

The guerrillas recently claimed they had killed at least 150 Ethiopian troops in fighting around Dire Dawa, destroyed nine aircraft on the ground and shot down a tenth.

together with advance units of the Cuban-trained 300,000-man peasant army, recently unveiled in Addis Ababa after months of secret training.

In its first official communique on the fighting, Ethiopia also claimed major victories.

Addis Ababa said its troops last week killed "thousands" of regular Somali troops in at least six major clashes, captured many prisoners and tons of military equipment including anti-aircraft guns, mortars, rocket launchers and American-made M16 rifles.

Thousands of nomads have fled the war-torn area into neighboring Somalia bringing tales of horror and indiscriminate bombings by Ethiopia's American-bull F5 warplanes.

Adaa Ador, a pretty middle-aged nomad told this reporter in Mogadishu that Ethiopian troops visited her encampment in the Ogaden and after only a couple of perfunctory questions shot her husband and three sons.

"They drank the tea I had left on the fire and then left without a word," she said.

Another refugee said it took him two weeks to reach the Somali border and en route he saw villages and nomad camps littered by air strikes and hundreds of dead camels and cattle, their carcasses rotting in the sun.

Hospitals in northern Somalia are full, both of wounded guerrillas and nomads. Extra Somali doctors and nurses have been sent to the north to help.

The stage is being set for a prolonged and bitter war.

The prize: a useless desert which nevertheless may hide valuable minerals and even oil under its ever changing surface.

government actively supports it with both weapons and training, though Mogadishu officially denies this.

As the guerrilla leader spoke, some 200 additional fit-looking young recruits jammed the sparse Front headquarters, waiting for the bright red cards which would identify them as Front fighters.

The only war decorations at headquarters were official maps outlining the dream of President Siad Barre's socialist government — that of a "Greater Somalia."

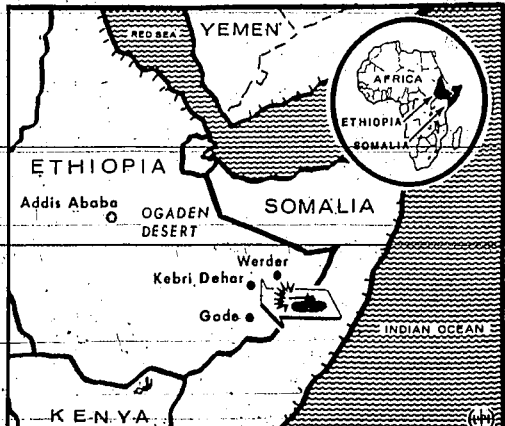

Similar maps adorn all government offices and ministries throughout Somalia.

Millions of matchbox tops are also emblazoned with the bright yellow outline of a Greater Somalia.

Somali schoolchildren from their earliest years are also impressed with this aim.

"Greater Somalia" encompasses the entire Ogaden region, a large chunk of northern Kenya and even the newly-independent state of Djibouti where France in June pulled out of its last African colony.

The Somalis dismiss the boundary lines drawn up by British and French colonializers and even the charter of the 58-nation Organization of African Unity (OAU) which recognizes colonial borders as inviolate.

Coal fire pollutes

Editor, Times-News: Eastern coal, anthracite, is high heat, smokeless coal. Western coal, bituminous, is mineral rich, sulfur soft coal. There is a limit to the amount of sulfur allowed in the air. The national standard allows 1.2 pounds for approximately 100 pounds of coal burned. The amount from 100 tons of coal is 2,400 pounds. The proposed Pioneer Plant would have emitted 155 tons of sulfur dioxide per day. In regard to the Jim Bridger Plant, the Cheyenne report of 6/6/77 states: "Emissions from the plant could contain substances which interfere with visibility, therefore, visibility of distant views would be expected to be affected under some circumstances. . . . It might be possible for the emissions to accumulate in a stagnant mass and therefore be noticeable." Sulfur dioxide is present in the emissions from the Jim Bridger Plant, few people live near it, says the Wyoming Dept. of Agriculture. Odd as it is, it does corrode metal, turn silver dark, fades fabrics, drapes and carpets if in concentration, they say. Smog will stop solar heating. The last report lists total population of Rock Springs and Sweetwater County at 25,900 —

2 per cent engaged in farming; 270 work at the Jim Bridger Plant. Nearly twice that number are unemployed. 440. They have less than 3 people per square mile. Rock Springs has 1 sulfur spring. They had a crisis intervention center for suicide counseling, also a Stillwater County Task Force on Sexual Assault. There are 10 or 12 coal plants west of the Continental Divide, on the Colorado River or its tributaries. Audubon says that the smog merges from plants hundreds of miles apart, for instance the one in New Mexico and the one in Arizona at Page. Smog sulfuric gas is heavier than air and drifts downward from all these plants to where the Colorado reaches sea level not far from Los Angeles; there it accumulates. There has been no deaths from radiation in any nuclear plant in 18 years. The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Year Book states that the cost of farm production is lowered by using nuclear power. The waste for a year from one plant will fill in a box under your table. A coal plant will contaminate all of Idaho, let's leave it to Wyoming. GENEVIEVE UTT Eden

Editorial analyzed

Editor, Times-News: Pretty clever! Editorially backing Anita Bryant while at the same time pushing the case for homosexuality. You decry 19th century ethics. What gave you the idea that the 20th century is ethically superior? Bryant has more intestinal fortitude than those who hide behind the anonymity of an editorial. Yes, God loves homosexuals. God loves murderers, too, but He and we take a dim view of those who go about killing people. They have degraded the word "gay." Spiritually they are gray, gray, gray. Yours for a moral society. JOHN N. GARRABRANDT Buhl

Deaths regretted

Editor, Times-News: Recently there was a news story about two young children dying as the result of a fire in a pickup truck in Garden City. The children are said to have died in the pickup while their parents were in a nearby tavern. A thing of this nature is very unnecessary, to say the least. The parents of those two little ones are probably suffering feelings of remorse and guilt that are hard to bear. I can sympathize with these parents, but I feel more sympathy for the children of such parents. It seems reasonable that when parents marry and have children, they should be prepared to sacrifice some of their old habits and pleasures for the sake of their children instead of sacrificing their children for the sake of their own pleasures. Of course, sacrificing children is a horrible thought, but many of us sacrifice away our children's future in various ways. We often dream of success for ourselves in regards to our careers, and we spend many hours planning and working to achieve our goals. But how often and how seriously do we include our children and their future in the picture in which we see ourselves? Should our children receive top priority, or should they just be treated as a sideline? Some children seem to realize that they are quite low on their parents' list of priorities, so they search

'Revolution is shaking . . . the nursing profession'

Editor, Times-News: In answer to Mr. T. Morgan (and those whose valid concern he attempts to represent): "If your idea of a nurse is that lady in white who passes you a sleeping pill or a cold bed pan with equal aplomb, look again! A revolution is shaking the very roots of the nursing profession. How could you, Mr. Morgan, be so innocently unaware of the explosion of knowledge and skills that is taking place around you?

Have you visited a hospital emergency room lately? Are you equipped to judge the R.N.'s triage skills, her assessment abilities? Have you an inkling of the broad base of theory and experience upon which her nursing decisions rest? Your descriptive adjectives — "disastrous," "ridiculous," "risky" — do not apply to the emergency room R.N., the skilled professional who evaluates the acute trauma patient, initiates lifesaving measures and manages patient care until the arrival of the physician. Nurses to be trained as paramedics are trauma nurses in the emergency room. Outside of physicians, who, Mr. Morgan, are more qualified? If you are the prime requisite in the paramedic program, then Twin Falls must resign itself to the "scoop-and-dump" practice of ambulance service. If malfeasance is to be top criteria for selection, check how many women already are riding ambulance rigs right here in Southern Idaho. E.M.T.'s are not nurses. Nurses are not physicians. Have you any idea who represents which rung on the ladder of medical expertise? Television emergency is stimulating; real life emergency is an eye opener — an education. Would that I could share this education with you. Perhaps we shall meet some day. I would consider it a distinct pleasure to save your life. ROBIN D'ANNUNZIO, R.N. Twin Falls

Is John Grigsby 'misguided cowboy of our day?'

Editor, Times-News: Mr. John Grigsby, field representative for American Militia Organization, spoke in Twin Falls a few weeks ago. His subject: "Militia: The Second Amendment and Why?" Did he really have a message, or is he "the misguided cowboy" of our day?? Do you know why the original constitution was unacceptable to the Founding Fathers? Or that the military's guns could have been turned upon you had not the second amendment been ratified? The original constitution states: "To provide for calling forth the militia, to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions." (No rights for the people. . . . And in another place "To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states respectively, the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress." We people would have had absolutely no right to protect ourselves from the "discipline prescribed by Congress" or domination of the same. The United States of America was founded on the principles of the people, by the people, for the people. It is time that the American people become vigilant, and stop the infringement of our right to keep and bear arms.

Remember, the only alternative to the right of the people to keep and bear arms is a police state. American Militia Organization M. J. DEARDORFF Idaho State Director Paul

Harriman recollects Stalin

NEW YORK (UPI) — W. Averell Harriman, ambassador to Moscow under President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was at the lectern again Wednesday trying to explain the difficulties of negotiating the postwar peace with Soviet leader Josef Stalin to Columbia University students.

Harriman, 86, recalled Wednesday that he once reproached Stalin for going back on his word on a sensitive aspect of the talks. Stalin replied "I haven't broken the agreement. I've changed my mind."

On another occasion, Harriman said he complimented Stalin on the achievements of his army in breaking through Nazi resistance to their advance. To that, Harriman said Stalin huffed "Czar Alexander reached Paris."

Mitchell adjusts to prison

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — John Mitchell is "relaxed and seems to have reconciled himself" to prison life, according to a friend who has visited the former attorney general several times during the five weeks since he began serving his Watergate sentence.

The friend said the 63-year-old former attorney general "is doing as well as can be expected" at the federal prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base, the Alabama Journal reported.

JOHN MITCHELL

"He's in good spirits. He's tough mentally and physically," the friend was quoted as saying.

"He's got a positive attitude," said Prison Superintendent Robert W. Grunski, who refused to discuss Mitchell's life in detail.

The Maxwell prison houses about 300 inmates, all of them convicted of non-violent crimes. There are no bars or walls, and the only fence separates the inmates from a pasture where horses graze.

Mills returns to Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wilbur Mills, toppled from his position of power on Capitol Hill by alcohol and an Argentine stripper, is returning to Washington as a tax counsel for a New York law firm.

William Shea, senior partner in the firm of Shea, Gould, Clemenko and Casey, said the former Arkansas congressman "will be counsel for the firm in Washington" and is expected to start working between Sept. 1 and Oct. 1, probably Sept. 1.

Shea said Mills will concentrate "mainly on taxes and anything else he is interested in."

Mills, an acknowledged alcoholic, left Congress at the end of 1976. His publicly-winning appearances in 1975 with stripper Fanne Foxe led to his downfall as chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

Since the Fanne Foxe incident, Mills has given up drinking and Shea said Wednesday he had no worries about a relapse for Mills.

"He's done such a terrific job on those things," Shea said. "It takes a great man to talk about himself that way."

WEeping WOMAN COMFORTED ... related to one of 8 persons shot

Man turns hobby into money maker

DALLAS (UPI) — A year ago Guy Steele was content as manager of a local theater, stocking his apartment with movie memorabilia and posters. Then he found out there was money to be made in his hobby.

"One evening a group of my friends came over to see my apartment," Steele said. "I was stunned when they wanted to buy everything I had in the place. If it had to do with movies, they wanted it."

"And then the idea struck me. There are a great number of people — and I don't mean just your film buffs — who live and die by the movies. And there's money to be made catering to their fantasies."

From that idea grew The Movie Collection.

biographical sketches of a movie or a particular star. And then there are the bedsheets.

"One man wanted a 'Jaws' bed, so we had a local artist — a friend — air brush a girl swimmer onto the pillows, complete with waves of course," Steele said. "Then on the sea-blue sheets we placed a shark rushing upwards. He loved it."

That led to the provocative ads. "Do You Care to Spend the Night With Your Favorite Movie Star?" The response, of course, was overwhelming.

A Farrah Fawcett-Majors bedsheet made according to customer's specifications would run about $25.

Steele isn't so keen on the bedsheet idea, however.

"We are trying to play down that side of our business," he said. "The air brushing is a real hassle. We're hoping people forget about it."

Miami 'execution' ends in 6 deaths

MIAMI (UPI) — Seven young men and a woman were lined up and gunned down "execution style" at a home in a quiet, racially-mixed suburban area Wednesday night. Six of them died.

Police issued an alert for three unidentified black males driving a rented brown and white Ford Thunderbird.

Police said the survivors, the woman and one of the men, were taken to Parkway General Hospital.

Margaret Wooden, 21, who lived a few doors from the shooting scene, was listed in good condition with a bullet laceration behind her ear and Johnnie Hall, 45, was in serious condition with a head wound.

A man who entered the house with police said all the victims had been bound and gagged and there was "blood everywhere."

The names of the dead were not immediately available.

Police learned of the shootings when Miss Wooden, her hands bound, made her way to the home of a next door neighbor, and asked for aid.

Ralph Page, spokesman for the Dade County Public Safety Department, said the bodies were found in bedrooms of the modest, one-story white concrete block home.

tight against the sultry mid-summer evening heat and his air conditioner turned on. Although the houses are only a few feet apart, he said he did not hear the shots.

Davis said he learned of the shootings when Miss Wooden came to his door, her hands bound behind her, bleeding from her wound.

"Please let me in," she asked Davis. "I must use the telephone. There are a lot of them shot over there and I'm stuck here."

Davis said Miss Wooden's hands were bound so tightly with a man's necktie, he was forced to get a knife to cut her free. She called police and then the family of at least one of the victims, Davis said.

Picnic pleases

PRESIDENT CARTER smiles as he watches a juggler perform at a picnic for members of Congress and their families on the White House South Lawn Wednesday evening. Daughter Amy, seated left, however, appears more interested in what another youngster is doing. (UPI)

Nuclear supply pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti today turned homebound in full agreement with President Carter on most major issues they discussed, including energy problems and human rights.

In a statement issued Wednesday after farewells at the White House, Carter promised Andreotti American uranium and money for Italy's nuclear power program.

Energy issues, in fact, took up a major part of the three hours of summit talks in two days. Carter "agreed to explore ways of meeting Italy's needs for assured supplies of natural uranium as well as financing of its nuclear power program."

On human rights, an issue where Andreotti has publicly supported Carter's open campaign, the two leaders "agreed on the desirability of continuing to stress implementation of these universally accepted values as an important element in the process of détente."

The statement stressed that Carter and Andreotti will "continue the process of close consultations between the two governments and emphasized their basic agreement on major issues."

Throughout the visit, Carter praised Andreotti personally as well as in his role as head of a key American ally whose government shares policymaking powers with Italy's Communist Party, the largest outside the Communist world.

"I think that any problems, or lack of understanding that may have existed in the past, have all been successfully resolved," said Carter as Andreotti's limousine was being driven out of the White House grounds.

US agrees to cutoff

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — American diplomats say the United States will yield to Soviet demands for a cutoff date to this fall's Belgrade conference in exchange for Soviet concessions on other issues.

The Americans had demanded that the conference, which will review human rights and other provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accords, be opened.

"All the issues are tied together," one American delegate to the preparatory talks said. "We can accept a compromise formula (on a cutoff date), depending on some of the other issues."

Senate vote fund fight in 4th day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to let the American public express its opinion on public financing of Senate elections — and against extending such tax payments to its primary elections.

But the Republican Hillbuster against the bill entered its fourth day today, and leaders on both sides said Friday's vote to halt debate would be close.

The Senate Wednesday adopted a proposal by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to add yet another checkoff box to the income tax returns. This would allow the taxpayer to say whether he wants $1 of the taxes he has already paid for 1975 and 1976 to be used to finance Senate elections.

This would be in addition to the current box allowing $1 to be checked off for presidential elections. About 27 per cent of all taxpayers now check that box and a second box for Senate elections would in effect be a public referendum on the scheme.

Republican opponents of the bill said they hoped the response would be so low as to prove the public doesn't want tax money used to finance elections.

Mail snoop probe opens

© N.Y. Times Service WASHINGTON — A House committee began an investigation today into possible legal violations by the Customs Service, which since 1971 has opened international mail that it believed might contain contraband.

The Supreme Court ruled last month that such mail openings were not unconstitutional if federal laws and regulations were followed, but the House Government Operations Committee intends to question practices by customs employees that postal officials have suggested were highly irregular.

These include allegations that the employees have read mail without a search warrant, have delayed mail for up to 90 days and have turned over intercepted mail to military investigators.

these two organizations," NAACP director Benjamin Hooks told the closing session of the Urban League's annual conference Wednesday night.

The theme was mirrored by the executive director of the Urban League.

"The NAACP and the National Urban League are in it together, but we're not in it by ourselves," Vernon Jordan told the conclusion of the four-day meeting. He said help can be expected from the Black Caucus and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"We've heard from all of them in the last few days and I'm here to report that we are together," Jordan said.

Jordan has called leaders of the various black groups to a national strategy session. "We shall meet next month, and then we'll take our agenda to the White House, to the administration and to the Congress."

The conference was highlighted by Jordan's criticism of the Carter administration record on blacks and minorities and by the President's response.

Jordan said despite his criticism, he and Carter still remain friends.

"Contrary to news reports, I am not mad at the President and the President is not mad at me," Jordan said. "The President knows that true friendship means telling the truth, and I have no apologies to make for telling the truth."

Hooks, a former member of the Federal Communications Commission, said the NAACP shares the Urban League's dissatisfaction with Carter.

"I stand foursquare and unqualifiedly behind him (Jordan)," Hooks said. "We have to give a message to this nation."

Hooks said he was confident blacks and minorities can get their message through to Carter.

"I stand foursquare and unqualifiedly behind him (Jordan)," Hooks said. "We have to give a message to this nation."

Police gas massed blacks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police fired tear gas today into the ranks of hundreds of black students massed in the Meadowlands suburb of the segregated Soweto township, witnesses said.

They said the youths scattered before the stinging white clouds of the gas but regrouped in the grounds of the Baigoma secondary school in Meadowlands.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or police arrests.

The police acted after groups of black schoolchildren stoned cars, marched through the streets and attacked black "teachers" in the tense township where a boycott of schools appeared to be growing.

The unrest that has simmered for more than a week was centered around the Soweto suburbs of Dobsonville, Meadowlands, Zondi and Ndeni, the police spokesman said.

A crowd of about 400 primary school pupils milled outside a West Rand Administration Board office in Ndeni and slashed the tires of a tractor.

Market blast wounds 25

BEERSHEBA, Israel (UPI) — An explosion in an open-air Bedouin market today wounded 25 persons, the army radio said.

Three of the injured were hospitalized in serious condition. A number of passing Arabs were arrested.

Some witnesses said the blast was from a hand grenade while others said it was an explosive charge.

The weekly market draws thousands of Bedouins from the entire Negev Desert to Beersheba to trade camels, sheep and other goods in an area adjacent to an open-air food and clothing market.

The blast was the second of its kind in two days. A pipe bomb set by an Arab youth wounded 11 persons by an outdoor market in Tel Aviv Wednesday.

Egypt keeps up vocal attacks

By United Press International

Egypt accused Libya today of escalating border tension by calling up reservists and recruiting mercenaries but agreed to take part in high-level peace talks and put an end to the propaganda war between the two countries.

It delayed, however, the announcement of a "peace plan" Cairo had worked out with two Arab mediators.

Despite the verbal turmoil, a shaky cease-fire held for the fourth straight day along the 650-mile Egyptian border following six days of tank, artillery and air battles.

Egypt's state-controlled newspaper, Al-Ahram, said President Anwar Sadat had agreed to "a high-level meeting" between Egyptian and Libyan officials in Algiers or Kuwait soon, but the presidents of the two countries will certainly not be present.

Al-Ahram said Sadat also agreed to a halt beginning Aug. 1 to the two countries' propaganda war and to a peace plan aimed at "stabilizing the cease-fire and eliminating differences between the two countries."

But it made no mention of whether Libyan ruler Col. Muammar Khadafi had accepted any of the points.

The peace plan negotiated by Egypt with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Kuwait Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmed was announced Wednesday.

But it remained under wraps early today, raising speculation the announcement was delayed because Egypt insisted on its prior acceptance by Khadafi.

Al-Ahram accused the "Libyan leader of engineering a crisis" by calling up army reservists and recruiting Arab mercenaries abroad to fight against Egypt.

Other Cairo newspapers said many of the mercenaries were radical Palestinians who reject Sadat's drive for an Arab-Israeli peace.

Al-Ahram also reported Khadafi has requested an emergency session of the Organization of African Unity "to discuss what he considers an Egyptian attack on Libya."

A government spokesman said Egypt had no objection to such a meeting "since its viewpoint is clear and cannot be the subject of controversy."

In Beirut, Lebanon, the newspaper As-Safir newspaper said in a dispatch from Libya that Khadafi was calling up all military reserves in anticipation of a breakdown in the cease-fire.

It also said Libya rejected Egypt's demand it dismantle military installations near the border.

Somalis, Ethiopians claim success

WARABI, Kenya (UPI) — Fierce fighting between Ethiopian government troops and Somali guerrillas spread deep into Ethiopia today and both sides claimed major victories.

The Western Somalia Liberation Front said its forces captured a string of villages deep in Bale province, shot down six Ethiopian military transports and warplanes, destroyed eight tanks and killed nearly 1,000 government troops.

The Ethiopians admitted the fighting was spreading but said government forces had wiped out "large numbers" of what it called Somali troops and shot down two more Somali warplanes.

Independent observers said the conflict was obviously spreading and increasing in intensity but they could not verify the conflicting victory claims.

Both sides said fighting had erupted deep in Bale province, nearly 200 miles deeper into Ethiopia than previously reported.

The Somali guerrillas said they had killed at least 810 Ethiopian troops in this area, destroyed 13 vehicles, including a tank and captured a string of 11 villages which were named as: el Kere, Harag-Ghelle, Shakisa, Hilla-Madobe, God-Osbo, Goddier, Burhosh, Bilalay, Ban-Gol, Ka-Yeris and el Kura.

A Somali communique said a large force of Ethiopian paratroops was "annihilated" Wednesday in a separate battle around the town of Dhagabur on the northern edge of the Ogaden region.

"Huge supplies of weapons, ammunition, food and medicine" were also captured, the communique said.

The Liberation Front said earlier in the week its forces had captured the important town of Werder and today it gave details of its fall.

It claimed six transports and warplanes were shot down, 70 Ethiopian troops killed and a further 170 captured during the fighting for the crossroads town.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just read in a magazine that one of the most unusual letters you ever received was from a woman who said that on her honeymoon her husband wanted her to lie in a tub of cold water for 30 minutes, and then come to bed and "pretend" she was dead.
— Boy he IS weird! I would have been satisfied if on our honeymoon my wife had taken a hot bath and came to bed, pretending she was ALIVE!

OPPOSITE PROBLEM

Wants wife to act alive

DEAR OPPOSITE: The wife of the weirdo who likes 'em and lifeless wrote to my sister. Not me.

DEAR ABBY: I was raped almost two years ago and something has been bothering me ever since. I was a virgin before I was raped, and now I won't be able to wear a white wedding dress because white stands for purity, and I'm not pure anymore.

I don't have a boyfriend and I may never get one, but in the meantime I do I'll have to tell him the whole story and he may not even believe me.

Do you think because I couldn't help myself I can't get a white?

TROUBLED AT TWENTY-ONE

DEAR TROUBLED: Even though you may not be a virgin technically, you are still morally "pure." However, white gowns are not reserved for virgins held only. Any bride who has never been married before may wear white.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a wedding with a friend of mine. Although the invitation was sent to me, he asked me to accompany him. I accepted and we had a wonderful time. To my amazement, my friend received a bill for $25 for "taking a date." In the past, my friend and I double-dated several times with the bride and groom, so I was no stranger to them. My friend and the groom had even been roommates for a while.

I'm in my 30's and have attended many weddings (myself taking a date, or vice versa) and I have never heard of being "billed" for my guest.

Do the parents of the bride have supposedly "upper crust" money. Is this proper? Have you ever heard of it before?

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAN: It is not proper, and I've never heard of it before. You fail to mention whether your friend asked if he could bring a date. If he brought you without asking, perhaps this was their way of punishing him. In any case, it's a chintzy stunt.

Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," is available to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Leaky Dr., Beverly Hills, CA 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: 39, and mother of three children developed Cushing's syndrome. She grew facial hair, developed a moon face, heavy body fat, dry flaky skin. She recently had surgery and the doctors removed both of her adrenal glands. I am told she will have to take cortisone orally.

Will the symptoms for facial hair, moon face and obesity disappear? We were told by her doctors that without surgery she would have lived one year. What causes this problem?

Woman has Cushing's syndrome

The picture you have described is caused by an overproduction of hormones from the adrenal cortex, the outer shell of the adrenal gland that produces cortisone.

Surgery is commonly used in treatment of such patients. If both adrenal glands are removed entirely the patient does have to take cortisone the rest of his or her life. It is replacement therapy since the normal source of cortisone has been removed.

The obesity should reverse itself and the fat pads over the upper face that cause the moon face appearance should disappear, as well as the excess hair growth and other signs of Cushing's syndrome. The outlook depends a lot on what the real cause for the overproduction of adrenal cortical hormones was.

This is a rare disease, but it points up the role that hormones have in an obesity. The characteristic obesity of Cushing's syndrome involves the trunk of the body and face while it spares the arms and legs. The legs may be quite skinny while the abdomen may become quite large. The hormones influence the areas involved in the obesity.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I have what my doctor calls a "Baker's cyst." It gives me a great deal of pain and I have a problem trying to be comfortable with my leg whether riding, walking, or lying in bed. I have quite a bit of stiffness in my knee after I have ridden in a car for a while.

My doctor has advised that the last thing I should do is to have surgery unless the pain becomes unbearable. He says surgery will leave me with a stiff knee. Since I am only 48 I most certainly would hate to go through the rest of my life that way.

The advice he has given me is to favor my leg as much as possible, and to take a towel and wet it in hot water, wring it out and apply it to my knee. Can you suggest anything else?

Dear Reader: A Baker's cyst is just the normal fluid in the knee joint that has escaped and become encapsulated in a sac-like structure. These are commonly painless, unless there is associated disease in the knee joint.

Your story suggests to me that you may have more than a Baker's cyst and probably have some disease of your knee joint to begin with. In any case I think you should insist on an evaluation by an orthopedic specialist. If it is something he can't handle you will be well to tell you and also what the risks might be.

Readers who want information about arthritis can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-10, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative Wear and Tear Arthritis. Club offers 'first' in Appaloosa sale

JEROME — The Magic Valley Appaloosa Horse Club (MVAHC) is offering another "first" in Idaho with the Magic Valley Invitational Appaloosa Sale Aug. 6 at 6 p.m. in the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

The sale will feature 66 head of Appaloosas from breeders throughout the northwest. It is being held in conjunction with the annual regional show at Jerome.

Seven states are represented in the list of consignors. Offerings include six Appaloosa stallions, as well as geldings, mares, yearlings, weanlings and one spotted mule. Many of the animals offered for sale include halter, performance and racing prospects and a number of excellent youth horses will be available.

The regional show will be held Aug. 5, 6 and 7 at the Jerome County fairgrounds and many of the consignors will also be entering animals in the show.

As an added incentive to both buyers and sellers, the MVAHC's first invitational sale will feature a special western pleasure futurity for yearlings. All yearlings consigned to the sale will automatically be entered in the futurity for next year's show.

There will be an added $200 purse for the event. For each yearling a breeder enters in the sale, he is entitled to enter another yearling in the futurity.

The Silver Gavel Auctioneer Co., and Jerry James, sale secretary, said interest is being shown from breeders in a wide area and the first annual sale is expected to become a regular item for the Magic Valley Appaloosa club.

The club is one of the youngest regional clubs in the national organization, having been organized eight years ago. In that time the club has adopted an annual show during the first week of August, which is growing each year. Members of the club actively compete in other shows, racing and performance events in Idaho, Oregon, Utah and Wyoming each season.

Under the leadership of the club's national directors, L.W. Moore, Hansen, and Robert Harney, Twin Falls, the club's Diamondfield Jack endurance ride has become a nationally known event.

Bloodlines represented in the coming sale include Apache 730, Simcoe's Snowy Rock, Mr. Hank, Hayes Roman Cloud, Sholly Deck, War Don, Roman Strawn, Don's Cavillade, Joker's Spanish Fort, Old Tom Scowler, Vegas Chips, Apache King 3 and many others. A number of high point and certificate of merit horses have been consigned.

A barbecue with beef prepared and served by Bob Harney will be held Saturday at 4 p.m. following the show.

On Aug. 5, beginning at 8 a.m. in the fairgrounds at Jerome, the special all breed youth show will be held. Trophies and awards will be given in three divisions, based on the age of the exhibitors.

Classes include—showmanship at halter, English equitation, bridled path hack, hunter hack, versatility class, leadline for the 6-year-olds and under, bareback equitation, western equitation, western riding, trail classes, stump and Nez Percé stake races and the keyhole race. Friday evening's show will feature junior and senior cutting, youth cutting, team roping, calf roping, steer daubing, and other events for registered Appaloosas only.

The show continues Saturday at 8 a.m. with adult classes including the colorful costume class. On Sunday halter classes begin at 8 a.m. with a Sunday afternoon show beginning at 2 p.m. with jumping, working hunter classes and finals in the western pleasure, trail classes and reining events.

A queen contest to select the club's queen for the coming year will be held during the show. Louise McBride, Rupert 430-1571 is in charge of queen entries.

Jerome pair wed

JEROME — LeAnn Mott and Jay McMillan were joined in marriage in a doubling ceremony at 7 o'clock July 14 at the First Christian Church in Jerome.

Pastor Dean Allil performed the rites. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kenneth Fuller and Lester Mott and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McMillan, all of Jerome.

Banquets of yellow chrysanthemums flanked the altar. Traditional wedding march and choice selections were played by Mrs. Esther Fort.

Given in marriage by her brother, Elson, the bride wore a white floor-length gown of brocade lace styled with a "bolero" neck, trimmed in lace. The gown features a bell-shaped skirt and large bell sleeves gathered at the wrist with cuffs.

The bride wore a three-tiered, floor-length veil of bridal illusion edged in lace. The veil was caught to a headpiece of brocade lace accented with pearls. The veil was made by Mrs. Bob Fuller.

The bride's bouquet was a nosegay of white daisies, yellow roses and baby's breath on a background of white lace, tied with green and yellow streamers.

As tokens of sentiment, the bride wore pearl earrings borrowed from her mother and a mother-of-pearl necklace, a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fuller.

Tammy Dutton, Jerome, was maid of honor and Michael Sobolka, Jerome, acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard McMillan hosted a wedding supper at their home following the wedding ceremony. Special guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. George Reddick and Willard McMillan, grandparents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fuller, grandparents of the bride.

A lawn reception was held July 17 at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The guest book was attended by Kari Diehl. Large, colorful flowers decorated the decking and patio furnished by Moss Floral. Brandy snifters with white floating daisies decorated the guest tables.

The bride's table was covered with a blue-lace-cloth-over-yellow-flanked-by-white-candles in silver candleholders.

The two-tiered cake was decorated in yellow daisies and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom under an arch of flowers. The cake was made and decorated by Carolyn Chojnacki, Mrs. Jack Whitney, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake.

Mrs. Alan Bateman, sister of the bride, and Jill McMillan, sister of the bridegroom, poured.

The bride wore a blue denim jumpsuit for their camping trip. The bridegroom has returned to Zweibrücken Air Base, Germany, where he is presently stationed in the U.S. Air Force and the new Mrs. McMillan will remain in Jerome where she is employed at Tupperware.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Jerome High School, and the bridegroom is a 1975 graduate of the high school.

Out-of-town guests attended the reception from Emmett and Twin Falls.

Rickshaw hauls shoppers

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — Tom Halcher's rickshaw is the cheapest transportation around for bargain-hunting shoppers in Kalamazoo's downtown pedestrian mall.

The graduate student charges 15 cents a ride on his original style buggy, which was specially built to serve as a "mobile home" by night. What inspired the idea? "It's free enterprise," Halcher said. "It's ecological. It's American."

He built the rickshaw from odds and ends — bicycle wheels he found rummaging through garbage, discarded plywood and pine for the frame. At night it provides him with rather crude sleeping quarters — usually alongside a railroad right-of-way where his snoring is drowned out by the rumbling of passing freight trains. "All you have to do is pull out the seat and slide it down for a bench," Halcher said. "My bedding is underneath the seat."

Of his fledgling business, Halcher acknowledges revenues are low at 15 cents a ride.

But veterans benefits pay for his studies at Western Michigan University and living in your own rickshaw is rent-free.

Halcher, who netted $15 one Saturday when a tips were plentiful, has high hopes for the future: "Right now, I'm small," he said. "But everybody starts out small."

As part of his growth plans, Halcher already is thinking about a canopy for the rickshaw and a pedal system for driving the vehicle.

The only problem has been insurance. On the advice of city officials, Halcher checked with various companies to see what kind of rates they offered.

"They said they would charge me $100 for rickshaw insurance," he said. "But I haven't had any accidents so far."

Heart murmur tests waste money

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER
Chicago Daily News

Mass screening of children for heart murmurs is a waste of money, considering the number of cases it picks up, an editorial in the current American Journal of Public Health contends.

Dr. Abraham B. Bergman, professor of pediatrics at the University of Washington, said the screening can cause harm by falsely identifying children as having an ailment.

He cited a survey of 18,872 Baltimore school-children who were examined for possible heart disease by an electronic device designed to replace cardiologist's ears.

"The program was a fiasco," he said. "The economic cost must have been enormous. Only a single child with rheumatic heart disease received treatment as a result of the entire enterprise."

Dr. Richard Shekelle, who conducted screening programs for the Chicago Heart Assn. in the past, said only 13 of 14,000 screened were found to have heart pathology.

While that ratio could not be considered to be "cost effective," it was a worthwhile program in that it cut down on the number of suspicious cases a pediatric cardiologist had to examine, he said.

Perhaps even a bigger advantage was the number of children found to be free of disease after they had been previously told by their physicians they had rheumatic heart disease and must limit their activity.

"We found three-fourths of those so labeled were normal and thus could be de-labeled," said Shekelle, a member of the Northwestern University department of community health.

Dr. David Berkson, chairman of the preventive cardiology committee of the Chicago Heart Assn., said that while the screening program was not cost effective, "You can't measure in terms of cost what it is worth to the child that is picked up."

queen and cashed his queen of diamonds. All of a sudden, South was eyed. He had to keep his queen of hearts guarded so he was forced to chuck a club. Now West threw South in with a spade. He ran off the rest of the club and East did hold four to the queen, East would get in and lead a small heart to a probable honor in the West hand. A reasonable fear, but we still rather think that South should have just continued clubs after the jack held.

Ask the Jacobys
There was a time when the bid for the larger number of points prevailed so that four hearts could over-kill five diamonds and so on. But about 55 years back the laws were changed so that the bid for the greater number of tricks prevailed. Nevertheless, we have a question on this subject from Florida.

Each Yankee ate 16.7 lbs. candy in '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans in 1976 chewed their way through more chocolate bars, caramels, peanut brittle, licorice and other types of candy than they have since 1968, a Commerce Department report said Friday.

They did it, the report said, at a time when inflation had taken a serious toll on the five-cent candy bar, soon expected to join the nickel cigar and the five-cent cup of coffee as a thing of the past.

The report said 78 per cent of all candy bars now sold cost the consumer between 11 and 15 cents apiece.

"The nickel candy bar is an endangered species," the report observed.

Each man, woman and child ate an average of 16.7 pounds of candy last year, the first time per capita consumption has gone up in eight years, the report said.

The peak year was 1968 when per capita consumption averaged 20.3 pounds. Sales had been sagging until last year.

Overall, confectioners increased their shipments 3.3 per cent last year to 3.5 billion pounds, the report said.

Of the total, just 1.2 million pounds were candy bars that sold for a nickel, compared with 16.7 million pounds in 1971.

The report said although sugar prices have been moving downward for the past two years, "cocoa prices soared skyward" and checked the effects of lower-cost sugar. Other production factors also have increased.

Illinois has assumed the title of American's candy kitchen by producing 27.7 per cent of the nation's supply, Pennsylvania is second with 20.6 per cent and the report said it soon may overtake Illinois.

The industry, which employs 57,700 persons, apparently has determined that it has its foot in the door for selling more candy and is trying to boost consumption back to its high point in 1968.

The industry is in the midst of a promotional campaign centered on a slogan that may increase business in dentists offices and produce firms on the faces of mothers trying to protect their children's teeth, it reads.

"Candy is delicious food — enjoy some every day."

STRAY COW CONTENTEDLY MOWS LAWN ... of Grandview Drive resident in Twin Falls

Creature scares ex-cop 'to death'

TAVERNIER, Fla. (UPI) — It's a huge, hairy thing with bright, colorless eyes. Besides all that, it stinks.

Charles Stockman, a Vietnam veteran and former policeman says he isn't easily frightened. But something lurkin' in the mangroves behind his Florida Keys home has him "scared to death."

Stockman doesn't claim that thing is the legendary "skunk man" — Florida's equivalent of such sought-after creatures as the Himalayas' yeti and the Northwest's "bigfoot."

But Stockman, a self-employed cabinet maker who lives only 90 feet off U.S. Route 1 on Key Largo, says the creature's presence is "a nightmare that has seriously changed my family's life."

Stockman says he is considering moving his wife Leslie and their son Charlie, 13, elsewhere.

Monroe County Sheriff's Sgt. Ronald Chinn says he has found tangible evidence of any strange creature living in the mangroves near the Stockman home. But Chinn said Tuesday, "There is definitely a problem there. These people are truly scared to death."

Stockman said his first sighting of the mysterious figure was on July 14 while he and his son were walking in the three-acre mangrove thicket.

"I think I started it," he said. "It was way ahead — a dark, hairy patch. It sort of stayed there, like a deer does when the wind shifts and it catches your scent."

"But it stunk awful, like a dog that hasn't been bathed in a year and suddenly gets rained on," Stockman said.

Mrs. Stockman said she was awakened about 3 a.m. Fridays by the sound of something thrashing through a brush pile in the yard.

"Through a gap in the jalousie window, from where I was lying in bed, I saw these bright, colorless eyes," she said. "They must have been reflecting the back yard light, like a cat's would. They were evil-staring. I could see the silhouette of its huge shoulder and head above an eight-foot bush, 30 feet from the bedroom window."

"I got hysterical," said Mrs. Stockman.

Carter protection hampered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secret Service Director H.S. Knight said Wednesday the government's domestic intelligence-gathering capabilities were so reduced that it has become more difficult to protect the President.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, blamed the reduction on the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts.

Knight said in the past year and a half, there has been a 40 to 50 per cent decrease in the amount of intelligence material received by the Secret Service and the quality has dropped perhaps 20 to 25 per cent. This applies "across the board" to federal, state and local law enforcement authorities.

"I don't want the American public to panic or the White House to panic and think that the President's life is in danger," he said. "What it does do is make our job infinitely more difficult," Knight said.

Hatch asked if Knight had ever recommended that the President change his travel plans because there was not enough information about terrorist groups or dangerous individuals. "Yes, I have," he replied. "I prefer not to name the city."

Testifying before the Senate subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Procedures, Knight said the Secret Service must divert more people to preliminary work before the officials they protect visit certain areas.

public, and have cut down or eliminated forwarding reports to the FBI and Secret Service for the same reason.

Knight said in cities where records have been destroyed, the Secret Service must rely on "the institutional memory" of individuals. He added, "We don't really have a way to get adequate information in such cities."

Knight urged Congress to work with law enforcement agencies to spell out specific guidelines on what can and cannot be done under the laws.

US, Egypt discuss military arms sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has started discussions with Egypt about a sale of military equipment, including 14 transport aircraft, the State Department said Wednesday.

The department, which Tuesday announced U.S. willingness to sell arms to Somalia, also said it "would be willing to contribute to the legitimate defensive needs" of the Sudan and an American survey team will be going there to help decide what arms will be delivered.

President Carter, in his May 19 policy statement on conventional arms sales, said the United States "must take steps to restrain its arms transfers."

He has called for the Soviet Union to join in mutual restraint in sales, especially to troubled areas such as the Middle East.

The State Department spokesman said, in answer to questions about the flurry of arms deals involving Arab Africa, "If you see a contradiction, it must be measured against the overall impact on our national security."

State Department officials said the sale of "nonlethal" military equipment to Egypt would total about $200 million. According to the officials, it would include 14 C130 transports, unarmed and unmanned reconnaissance aircraft, and sophisticated aerial cameras.

The State Department said "confidential" discussions have begun with members of Congress about the proposed sale.

Congress could overrule the sale if it takes action within 30 days of the formal notification.

Department officials said no firm opposition is expected because even the strongest supporters of Israel realize the value of maintaining good relations with Egypt during the coming peace negotiations.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said an election in the U.S. decision will be the desire to remove the Arab countries from their dependence on the Soviet Union as principal arms supplier.

He said Sudan, which has already been sold 6 C130s, has accepted an American survey team, made up of eight military officers and one State Department official.

VANDALISM — George Benham, 462 Fourth Ave. N., told police someone broke a window at his residence recently. He estimated the loss at $200.

Red Cross needs blood

TWIN FALLS — The Red Cross will hold a blood drawing from 2 to 6 p.m., Monday, and from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., Tuesday, at the First United Methodist Church, 360 Shoshone St. E. Betty Thebes, chairman of the blood drive, said officials hope to receive 100 pints of blood each day.

She said the drawing was being held because there is a high demand for blood in the summer, but not as many persons contributing.

Refreshments will be served.

State closes warehouse

RUPERT — Wilson Kellogg, Idaho Director of Agriculture, has given notice that as of June 1, 1977, state warehouse license number 307 is temporarily suspended.

The Floyd E. Idle Warehouse, Rupert, may not do business as a public warehouse.

This temporary suspension is in accordance with Section 69-228 of the Idaho Code and remains in effect until further notice pending an investigation by the Idaho Department of Agriculture.

Fields heads study unit

GOODING — Robert Fields, Gooding, has been elected chairman of the newly organized "Citizens for Adequate Energy."

Purpose of the group is to study the impact of the proposed coal-fired generating plant and the future need of additional electrical energy, Fields said.

Walt Locke, Gooding, was named secretary-treasurer during a meeting of Gooding county residents Monday night at the courthouse.

Blaine appoints principal

HAILEY — Hailey Junior High School Principal Phil Homer has once again been appointed principal of the Wood River High School by the Blaine County School Board.

Homer was originally appointed principal of the high school in a special board meeting May 24 during which the previous principal John Barton formally resigned.

Homer's speedy appointment caused much controversy and the school board later rescinded its action to avoid possible violations of federal hiring procedures.

Blaine County School Superintendent Norman Riggs recommended Homer for the position to the school board last Friday in a board meeting and Homer again was appointed by a 3-1 vote.

Board member Dr. Paul Houston, who objected to the original appointment on the grounds of an inconsistent hiring practice, again questioned the board's selection process.

Houston pointed out the wife of Dick Jones, chairman of the selection committee, was Homer's secretary at the junior high school.

Houston warned an improper hiring procedure could jeopardize an estimated $70,000 to $80,000 in federal funds granted to the district each year.

Democrats meet Friday

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Democratic Party/Central Committee will meet Friday at 8 p.m. in the County Courthouse annex.

A new county chairman will be elected. The public is invited and may call Steve Carter, at 733-2464 for further information.

Kimberly ranchman sued

TWIN FALLS — An Owyhee County man has filed a lawsuit against a Kimberly ranch, seeking $255,000 in damages caused by an abrogation of an agreement.

In a complaint filed in Fifth District Court here, the man, Ivan E. Narney, charges the Silver Sage Ranches, Inc.; Garth Aslett and Artell Aslett, both Twin Falls County residents; Robert Eddy and Duane McCallister, both Salt Lake City; and Leon Nelson, Owyhee County, owe him money because of disagreement over canal rights.

The complaint charges that in September, 1972, the men entered into an agreement in which Narney allowed a canal to run across his land in exchange for one-eighth ownership of the canal.

The complaint charges Narney's interest was sold to someone else.

Families oppose eviction notices

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Six of the seven families told July 1 to leave the Skylark Mobile Home Park, south of Twin Falls, are still in the park and at least one couple plans to force the park owners to take them to court.

Mrs. Stanley May, who sent the first eviction notice, her family received was served on her seven-year-old daughter, and therefore illegally served, has received a second eviction notice.

"I guess that's legal, but we are not going to move," Mrs. May said Wednesday.

"We have done nothing wrong and we have not been given one reason why we were asked to leave," Mrs. May said.

She said as a result of the eviction notices which stated for "compatibility of the court," many other families feel they have no security and especially those with children fear they will be ordered out.

"We are just going to wait and make them take us to court so we can tell our story. We think it will be up to the court to decide if a mobile homeowner has any rights or not," she said.

Mrs. May said other residents, like the Mays, have invested a sizeable amount of money in their homes. They pay property tax, too, she said, and yet apparently have no protection if the manager of a court decides they must pack up their home and move it. Moving a mobile home, she said, costs several hundred dollars.

One of the couples asked to move has sold their mobile home and purchased a new one which they are now moving into a court at Filer. Mr. and Mrs. Val Jenkins and their two children are the only ones to receive notices who have moved as yet, Mrs. May said. Two others, however, say they plan to move, one of them having given notice to the management prior to the evictions orders.

Mrs. May said she feels the orders are unjust in most cases and especially in her own. "We get along well with all of our neighbors and everyone in the court feels we have improved our space with landscaping and new plantings, all at our own expense," she said.

The Mays have two children, ages 11 and 7. All residents asked to move also have children, she said.

Mrs. May said she has been unable to discuss the problems with the court owner although a meeting with the owner and managers was promised her on July 18. That, she said, was the same date shown on the second eviction notice, served Wednesday at her home. Furtberg, Mrs. May said, she has never had any complaints or has never been warned there were complaints against her children or the family as a whole.

Another woman who was asked to leave has offered her doublewide trailer for sale rather than pay about $1,200 it would cost her to move it. She said, like the Jenkinses, she does not want to fight the situation and does not want to continue living where she could anticipate a constant conflict with the management. She has two teen-age children and has lived in the park five years.

The two other residents who are moving, say they had made plans to move prior to receiving eviction notices. One woman said she had notified the management she was leaving and later received an eviction notice telling her to be gone by Aug. 1. She said the family is leaving the state.

Two residents say they cannot afford to move. One woman has a serious health problem and is presently unemployed. She said she can barely afford the $58 a month rent for the trailer space and the trailer payments and does not have a reserve for moving. She estimated it would cost $300 to $400. Both of these families plan to stay and see what happens, largely, they say, because they have no choice in view of cost.

All of the residents who were asked to move say they have been given no specific reasons and all say they have had no prior warnings. All say they have children and most have pets and feel while their list of park rules, in effect for several years, permit children and pets there may be a move to force families with children out of the park.

There are no parks in the city of Twin Falls willing to accept children with the exception of some of the smaller older parks and these report no vacancies.

Robert Willis of Willis Inc., owners of the court, said the evictions are in the interest of continuing a high quality park for families. The park is privately owned and evictions may be legally made at any time, Willis stated.

Chain letter wishes luck, threatens

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When Bill Badgley received a prayer in the mail wishing him good luck, he didn't feel like thanking the letter's anonymous sender.

The prayer was part of a chain letter which also contained an implied threat to Badgley's well-being should he fail to complete the chain by sending copies of the "prayer" to 20 of his friends.

Each year millions of Americans receive chain letters which may ask them to pass on anything from recipes and prayers to money or a holiday bottle of liquor.

"We have quite a few complaints about chain letters," Tom Moore, claims and information officer for the Twin Falls Post Office, says. "We probably get one call a week."

Recipe or picture postcard chain letters are relatively harmless, Moore says. Most people "either follow through with them or throw them away."

Chain letters which ask the receiver to send a sum of money in hopes of receiving more money later are in direct violation of federal lottery laws.

Letters like Badgley received are not illegal if enclosed in an envelope, but border on harassment.

The prayer Badgley received urged him to "Trust in the Lord with a pure heart, and He will acknowledge and He will Light the Way."

It was followed with the promise that good fortune would come to him within four days if he would keep the chain intact by sending copies to 20 friends who "need good luck."

The letter cited examples of people who had failed to send the required 20 copies, one of whom suddenly came into a large sum of money then lost it. Another hapless soul, an Army general supposedly in service in the Philippines, failed to enter the chain and "lost his life six days after receiving this letter."

If Badgley kept the chain intact, the letter told him, "After a few days you will receive a surprise."

After recounting several other stories of people who either met with disaster or death after failure to complete the chain, the letter ended with the ominous warning, "THIS CHAIN SHOULD NOT BE BROKEN FOR ANY REASON!"

Badgley and his wife, Karen, say they have received three such chain letters.

"I received the first one and threw it away," Karen Badgley says. "With the second one, I got upset and showed it to Bill."

Badgley says the third letter, which he happened to open, had essentially the same format, that "this is a prayer, pass it on or else."

"It plays on two basic emotions, greed and fear," Badgley explains. "The fear part is a primal fear. Only a totally sane person would be able to throw the letter away."

"Depending on what your state of being is at the time, it can be very frightening or just make you mad," he adds. "If you then start to look at it rationally, it's an insult."

Moore says the letters which ask the receiver to pass on a prayer are not illegal, and the Post Office can do nothing to stop circulation of them.

"We couldn't prosecute, because we don't know who sent them," Moore says. "There isn't a whole lot we can do about them."

One chain letter, which asks the receiver to send one dollar to the person at the top of a list of six names, then cross out the top name and put his name at the bottom, promises a return of $7.76 if the money is sent to six copies of friends.

"If they want money, that would be fraud," Moore says.

Since it requires the sender to give something of value in return for a chance to win a prize, such a letter is legally considered a lottery and is a violation of federal law.

Such letters almost never do what they say they will. After 11 names have been put on the list, 362 million people are required to complete the chain.

In the case of a letter like the one sent to Badgley, after the chain had passed to the fifth round, 32 million people would have to send 20 letters to friends to keep the chain unbroken.

Tile seller sues Twin Falls

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man has filed a lawsuit in Fifth District Court seeking to overturn a Twin Falls City Council decision.

Bob Lawrence, who operates a tile installing center in his home at 304 Blue Lakes Blvd., earlier requested the city rezone property so he could sell tile at his home rather than just store it there.

The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission earlier recommended the council deny the request for fear of further encroachment on Blue Lakes Boulevard of commercial zones.

The city council later followed that advice and unanimously denied the request.

Lawrence argued a retail tile store at his location would not be an encroachment because commercial establishments exist on three other corners at the intersection in front of his property. He said he has consent of all property owners around his residence to have the land rezoned.

The contracting store operator said he was getting too old to install tile, and an arthritic condition also was making it difficult for him to lay tile. "That's why I want to get into the retail end of it," he said.

City Atty. Charles Brumbach has suggested Lawrence has been operating an illegal retail store at his home for several years.

"There've been a few occasions when people have brought the 'from my place,'" Lawrence said. "But it hasn't amounted to a whole lot."

He said he would also like the land rezoned so he could add a three-room addition to the back of his building on his property. Under current ordinances all buildings must be set back 25 feet from property lines in a residential zone, but not in a commercial zone.

The rear of his building already is 22 feet from the property line because it was built before the setback standards went into effect, Lawrence said.

Health budget taps taxpayer again

TWIN FALLS — South Central Health District board members have approved a $749,567 budget for the coming fiscal year, which will cost taxpayers about 12.56 percent more than the previous budget.

William L. Chaney, Twin Falls County commissioner and board chairman, said the budget was approved by the budget committee and presented to the board as a whole Tuesday for final unanimous acceptance.

Included in the over-all figure will be $377,918 to be raised locally by the taxpayers in the eight counties of the district. Counties will pay their share on a basis of $3.66 per capita compared to $3.26 per capita last year. The remainder of the budget comes from state funds and special federal program grants.

Since the 1977 budget year was nine months only, the 12-month equivalent would have been $335,738 compared to $377,918 for 1976, Chaney said.

The larger counties pay the larger amount with Twin Falls County providing $141,966 this year or an increase of $17,258. Twin Falls will have to levy 1.73 mills this year, compared to 1.75 mills for the previous year, due to an increasing assessed valuation and assessment base.

Other counties and their share of the 1978 budget include Blaine, $33,223; Camas, $3,700; Cusick, $63,355; Gooding, $31,274; Jerome, $40,328; Lincoln, $12,142; and Minidoka, $51,930.

Board members re-elected Chaney chairman, and Charles Parker, Blaine County, as vice chairman. Gwendolyn Krahn, Camas County, will be a voting representative in the coming year. She and Walter Bowman, Lincoln County, share the one vote for the Camas and Lincoln counties, on alternate years.

Other members of the board include John Clark, Cassia County; Don Fredericksen, Gooding County; Henry Schodde, Minidoka County and Dr. Robert Thackeray, Jerome.

TEST CAR FOR NEW HIGH PRESSURE RADIAL TIRES WEAVES THROUGH MARKED LANE CHANGE COURSE
... manufacturer's officials claim less rolling resistance, 4 to 10 per cent better fuel economy

New economy tire tested

UTICA, Mich. (UPI) — Tire engineers have known for years that overinflated tires provide better fuel economy. They've also known the extra air reduced tire life, gave a less comfortable ride and caused a loss in handling control.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. executives Tuesday unveiled a new tire they claim overcomes those problems and provides a 4 to 10 per cent fuel economy improvement over current steel-belted radials, which themselves were vast improvements over the older bias-belted tires.

Goodyear Chairman J. Pilloid Jr. said the new tire which resembles conventional radials except that it is a little more squatly, could help automakers achieve government fuel economy standards of 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985.

Instead of the current 24 to 25 pounds air pressure recommended for today's steel-belted radials with their characteristic underinflated look, Goodyear said its new tire should be inflated to 31 pounds.

In one demonstration, the new tire — dubbed the "Arriva" by designers — increased fuel economy 7.6 per cent over a conventional steel-belted radial, which is now standard equipment on about 70 per cent of new cars.

Compared to older bias-belted tires, fuel economy was increased 16.2 per cent. Bias-belted tires still account for about one-third of all replacement tires.

Using an AMC Matador with a 304 miles per hour, the new tire provided 18.86 miles per gallon. Fuel economy using a regular steel-belted tire dropped to 17.52 m.p.g. and fell even further — 16.2 m.p.g. — with a standard bias-belted tire.

"It's been estimated that a three-tenths-of-a-mile-per-gallon improvement in all cars would be worth a billion dollars," Pilloid told newsmen at test track built more than half a century ago by the Packard

Motor Car Co. at a time when fuel economy was of little concern.

Pilloid said Goodyear has begun showing the new tire to Detroit automakers with the hope they will make it an original equipment option by the 1979 model year. In the same manner steel-belted tires were introduced in the early '70s.

The Department of Transportation must approve the tire before it can be built.

Because the tire requires a specially built wheel, Pilloid said it would be offered in large numbers in the replacement market until after it becomes standard equipment on many new cars.

In another test to demonstrate that rolling resistance was improved, the drivers of three Ford Grandadas traveling 25 m.p.h. shifted into neutral and then coasted.

The car equipped with bias-belted tires rolled to a stop in 1,111 feet. The Grandada fitted with steel-belted radials traveled 1,194 while the new Goodyear tire-equipped car covered 1,600 feet before stopping.

Senators question radar plane sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee decided Wednesday to ask for President Carter to reconsider the sale of seven sophisticated Albatross Warning and Control System aircraft to Iran.

The panel asked Carter for more time for study of the "very delicate" transaction.

Subcommittee Chairman Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., listened for one hour with Democratic and Republican colleagues in the open session with microphones turned away from them before he announced the panel's decision.

He said the subcommittee would send on without any recommendation a resolution to reject the $1.2 billion sale of the system monitoring movements of military troops, aircraft and ships. Humphrey said a letter would be sent to the President today expressing concern and asking more time for a decision on whether or not to go ahead with the deal.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., charged Tuesday that a special report highly critical of the sale is being suppressed by the administration.

Congress technically has only until Aug. 6, when it goes into a month recess, to block the sale. But Humphrey asked the President if the deliberations could be put off until September when Congress reconvenes.

Humphrey formally opened the session by telling the press and public what he and panel members discussed in the huddle around the chairman's position.

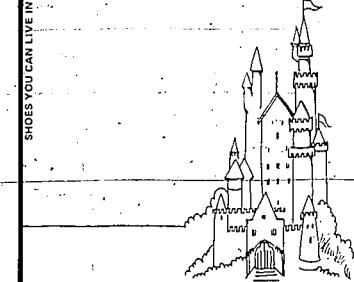

"It is the considered judgment... that the subcommittee should direct a communication to the President today outlining some of our concern to the sale," Humphrey said.

He said that while the panel was aware of Iran's air defense needs and the importance of that country, "critical" security factors concerning the sale need evaluation as well as any alternatives to the system.

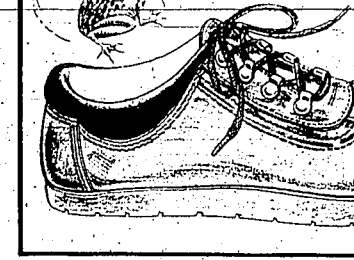

Humphrey said the subcommittee wants neither to be in confrontation with Carter nor Iran.

The congressman said "they are tying the hands of opponents of the sale" by calling the report "classified."

Legal opinion opposes state building ownership

BOISE (UPI) — The attorney general's office discouraged today state ownership of public buildings once their financing bonds are retired because such a move could "impair the constitutionality of the Idaho Building Authority."

Idaho law does not require the state to own buildings erected by the State Building Authority and if the law were changed to do so it could, endanger the constitutionality of the board, the opinion, presented to the Legislative Council's Committee on Capital Facilities, said.

Adding ownership provisions to the state law also could "adversely affect" previous building authorizations made by the legislature, the office said.

The more independent the authority is from the state the more likely it would be held constitutional, the opinion said. If the authority is just an arm of the state it would likely be held unconstitutional.

A year-to-year lease "suggests more independence than a situation whereby the state simply buys the buildings on an installment contract," it stated.

In order for the State Building Authority to maintain its independent status it must have "sufficient autonomy to be considered an independent public body corporate and politic," according to the opinion.

"Any facts suggesting that the Idaho Building Authority is really an arm of the state or that it was created simply as a fiction" to avoid the state's 22 million debt limitation "reflects unfavorably upon its constitutionality."

"We believe that guaranteed future ownership of the buildings erodes the independent nature of the authority and should be avoided," the opinion concluded.

In further action before the committee, representatives of the State Board of Education suggested that an outside authority make space utilization studies and recommend building decisions to the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council and the State Building Authority.

"The state should hire an outside authority to make space utilization studies when we have two state agencies trying to outguess each other," State Board of Education member Janet Hay, Nampa, said.

Dr. John Swartley, Boise, another Board of Education member present at the committee meeting, also called for a third party analysis, "that would have credibility" with the two building councils and the education board.

Mrs. Hay said one of the problems faced by the State Board of Education has been "when our priorities get changed around because of someone's pet project or the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council doesn't believe our figures, then that throws the whole system into chaos."

UP earnings soar

NEW YORK (UPI) — Union Pacific Corp. Tuesday reported second quarter earnings rose 24 per cent to a record $51.7 million, or $1.15 a share, from $44 million, or 94 cents a share, a year earlier.

Sales for the second quarter also hit a new high in the first half, earnings climbed 29 per cent to $102.3 million, or $2.16 a share, from $79 million. Sales were up 23 per cent to $1.19 billion, compared with $967.25 million in the corresponding 1976 period.

Frank E. Barnett, chairman and chief executive officer, said the railroad and both its energy-related companies turned in strong second quarter performances.

The railroad had an 11 per cent gain in second quarter consolidated revenues.

Revenue from the energy sector over the year-earlier quarter, with substantial traffic gains recorded in intermodal trailer traffic, coal and soda ash.

New CB radio user rules written in everyday English

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission, in what the bureaucracy must consider a bold new step, has issued its proposed new rules to govern the nation's 20 million CB radio fans — rules written in ordinary, everyday English.

What's more, the table of contents to the rules is in the form of questions designed to help just about anybody who can read find out what rule covers what. For example:

- What is the Citizens Band (CB) Radio Service?
- How do I use these rules?
- How are the key words in these rules defined?
- Do I need a license?

The proposed regulations — which won't go into effect until the FCC examines the comments it expects to receive from the public and CB operators — were published in Wednesday's edition of the Federal Register, a daily publication of all new federal government "rules" and regulations.

In deciding to rewrite its CB regulations in plain English, the FCC said it has "long believed that failure by a CB operator to observe FCC Rules results more from ignorance of the rules than a deliberate decision to violate those rules."

Further, the FCC pointed out that the phenomenal growth of CB radio from little more than a million stations two years ago to about 10.5 million at latest count (and growing at 500,000 a month) has caused substantial problems — chief among them being crowding an estimated 20 million or more "untrained, non-technically oriented users of the CB Service onto a relatively handful of frequencies."

The problems are compounded when people don't obey FCC rules designed to make the most efficient use of these crowded channels. Although licensed CB operators have been required for years to have copies of current FCC regulations, the commission says it has long believed many CBers simply didn't understand them or didn't read them.

Now, in an effort to make the rules more understandable and readable — and to adhere to President Carter's pledge to cut down on government regulations "and make sure that those that are written are in plain English" — the FCC has published its easy-to-understand rules.

Although relatively few people subscribe to the Federal Register, the FCC is making efforts to get wider exposure for the proposal. "We are ordering the 5,000 copies for commission use and we're going to try to get them out to all the magazines and clubs we deal with," said Richard H. Everett, assistant chief of the FCC's personal radio division, adding, "obviously we can't get them out to all 10.5 million licenses, the cost would be phenomenal."

The Federal Register, printing of the proposal lists both the existing and the proposed rules. In most instances, the proposed rules are much shorter and easier to understand than the existing rules.

For example, what could be more straightforward than the section entitled: How do I use these rules? This section says: (A) Read and obey the rules. See paragraph 95.507 for the penalties for violations of these rules.

Or how about section 95.525 of the proposed rule entitled: How do I sign my CB license application?

(A) If you are an individual, you must sign your own application personally.

(B) If the applicant is not an individual, the signature on an application must be made as follows:

Partnership: one of the partners.

Corporation: Officer.

Governmental Unit: Appropriate elected or appointed official.

This section would replace the existing rule titled: Who may sign applications.

(A) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, applications, amendments thereto, and related statements of fact required by the commission shall be personally signed by the applicant. If the applicant is an individual, by one of the partners; if the applicant is a corporation, by an officer; if the applicant is a partnership, by a member who is an officer; if the applicant is an unincorporated association,

Applications, amendments, and related statements of fact filed on behalf of eligible government entities, such as states and territories of the United States and political subdivisions thereof, the District of Columbia, and units of local government, including incorporated municipalities, shall be signed by such duly elected or appointed officials as may be competent to do so under the laws of the applicable jurisdiction.

Greatly simplified is the existing rule that prohibits

CBers from modifying their transmitters. It has long been an FCC rule that once a CB transmitter is approved by the FCC it may not be modified. The existing rule is about 600 words long and details the types of modifications that may not be made.

The proposed rule is entitled: Can I make any changes to my CB transmitter? The answer is contained in the next paragraph: (A) You must not make or have made any internal modification to your CB transmitter.

Sugar users support import quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for industrial-sugar users ranging from soft drink bottlers to bakers and food processors Wednesday urged Congress to reject a proposal to reduce sugar import quotas.

Joseph M. Creed, an official of the sugar group, told a House Ways and Means subcommittee that approval of a quota cut — or a domestic sugar price support program tentatively adopted by the House last week — would raise consumer food costs by more than $1 billion a year.

"These efforts to reinstate a protectionist policy are being led by a small lobby of sugar processors and producers of corn sweeteners," Creed charged in a prepared statement.

The Ways and Means subcommittee hearing, the latest development in a complex, fast-moving series of developments affecting sugar prices, was called to consider a resolution which would override President Carter's decision last May on recommendations by the International Trade Commission.

"The ITC had proposed helping depressed American sugar growers by reducing import quotas," Carter turned the idea down but, by law, Congress has the power to override him and put the ITC recommendation into effect.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, chairing the subcommittee, said he opposes action putting a floor under sugar prices unless consumers also get protection when prices are high. He called the ITC proposal to restrict imports "a consumer disaster."

Creed noted that government officials currently are in London attempting to negotiate an international sugar agreement. Protectionist moves in the U.S. could hamper those efforts, he said.

Congressional sources, meanwhile, said an effort may be made on the House floor

Thursday to reverse the chamber's decision of last Friday to adopt a price support program putting a floor of 14 cents a pound under domestic sugar prices.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who opposes the support program and wants to use an alternate plan — leaving market prices free to fluctuate while growers and processors get direct federal subsidies — asked the Justice Department in a letter to rule quickly on whether the payments would be legal.

The General Accounting Office had ruled they would be illegal.

Evans supports wheat research

BOISE (UPI) — Continuation of a research program aimed at making wheat grown in the Northwest available for export to the Peoples Republic of China drew the support today of Gov. John V. Evans.

Richard K. Baum, president of the Weslen Wheat Associates, informed Evans that because of drought conditions in northern China, that nation is purchasing considerable wheat from Canada and Australia.

Baum went on to say that it is important to our wheat industry to expand our export business. "Evans said: 'I will urge that the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission continue its support of this valuable study.'"

Food stamps still valid for ice, gum, 'junk food'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday rejected proposals to ban the purchase of ice cubes, cocktail mixes and "junk foods" with food stamps.

Critics said the two amendments, rejected in back-to-back votes, would make the stamp program more complicated, would not substantially reduce sales of junk foods and would limit the freedom of choice of stamp recipients.

The votes came as the House acted on a bill overruling the $5.5 billion stamp program with major changes including one allowing needy people to get stamps without first — as at present — buying additional stamps for cash.

Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., said repeal of the stamp purchase requirement could be the single most important social reform adopted in Congress this year.

Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, proposed a junk food ban under which the secretary of agriculture, in consultation with the National Research Council, would draw up a list of foods which could not be sold for stamps, including ice cubes, chewing gum, soft drinks, cocktail mixes and cooking wine.

The proposal was beaten on a 227-185 roll call vote after House Agriculture Committee Chairman Thomas Foley charged it would not keep stamp recipients from buying such products — which they could purchase with their own cash — but would inconvenience all shoppers because of more complicated checkout procedures in supermarkets.

Graze rule meetings in 3 towns

MAGIC VALLEY — The Bureau of Land Management's proposed regulations for the grazing of public lands will be the topic for discussion in a series of public meetings across the state.

In the Pocatello Valley area, the first meeting will be in Burley at the Cassia County Courtroom on Aug. 3 at 7:30 p.m.

The Sun Valley meeting will be at the Ketchum Holiday Inn Aug. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

In Twin Falls, the public meeting will be at the college of Southern Idaho on Aug. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The meetings are for discussion and are not formal hearings, according to Jens Jensen, BLM range conservationist for Idaho. Questions will be answered but any comments regarding the proposed regulations must be sent to the Bureau of Land Management, 18th and C Streets, Washington, D.C. 20240.

The proposed regulations have been published and are available at local BLM offices.

Rabbit show Aug. 7

GOODING — An official youth-sanctioned rabbit show is planned Aug. 7 in connection with the Gooding County Fair.

The show, scheduled for 10 a.m., is co-sponsored by the Little Wood River Rabbit Club, according to Cathy Clarkson, Gooding secretary. Her phone number is 934-5146.

Joe Young, Kaysville, Utah, will serve as judge. Entry fee is 50 cents.

Exhibitors need not be a member of any organization. The youth-sanctioned show is open to anyone 9 to 18 years of age. There will be an open youth showmanship contest for pre-junior, under 9 years; junior, 9 to 12; intermediate, 13-14, and senior, for youths 15 years and up.

A mini-show will be held for youngsters under 9 years of age.

Deadline for entries is Aug. 1, Clarkson said.

US eats more fruit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans ate more fruit last year than at any time in the past three decades, according to the Agriculture Department.

A department report said per capita fruit consumption rose from 213.6 pounds in 1975 to 222.3 pounds last year; the highest level since 1946.

Consumption of fresh fruits, it said, rose to 86.6 pounds per person last year from 83.3 pounds in 1975, with all of the gain due to non-citrus fruits.

Fresh citrus consumption dropped to 29.2 pounds but consumption of other types of fruits rose because of bigger sales of bananas, apples and avocados.

Feed funds OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House approved Wednesday a $12.7 billion bill for farm and feeding programs. Provisions to delay the ban on saccharin and limit sugar payments to $50,000 were deleted from the compromise measure.

The bill, passed on a 377-33 vote and sent to the Senate, would provide funds for the 1978 fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

The measure got approval even as the House started its seventh day of work on the agriculture authorization bill. Funds in the money measure that require authorization cannot be spent until the bill is passed.

The largest single item in the money bill is $5.6 billion for the food stamp program, which could be affected by scheduled votes Wednesday and Thursday to cut the authorization level far below the appropriated funds.

House and Senate conferees agreed to delete a House-proposed provision to delay the ban on saccharin until Oct. 1, 1978. The language was dropped after it was shown two legislative committees are studying a delay of the planned ban.

The Senate had included a limit of $50,000 support payment to any one sugar producer, but House conferees forced deletion of that provision in the final compromise bill.

McClure seeks drought aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure said today he has introduced amendments to the Emergency Drought Act of 1977 to make available nearly $72 million for drought-stricken farmers and ranchers in the West.

He said the amendment would free funds originally appropriated to the Department of Interior and the Bureau of Reclamation for interest-free loans to irrigators on federal projects, but which has not been used to date.

The Emergency Drought Act provided a total of $100 million for a number of programs aimed at lessening the effects of the drought.

McClure said about $75 million was earmarked for a water allocation program, which would have provided interest-free loans to irrigators on federal projects to mitigate the harmful effects of the drought. The remaining $25 million was earmarked for emergency conservation programs, state programs and studies related to fish and wildlife mitigation, he said.

The Senator said the $25 million has not been used because the Department of Interior has been dragging its

Export list adds lentils

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An amendment passed by voice vote Tuesday in the House of Representatives would include dried peas and lentils in commodity export programs.

Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, said the amendment prevents discrimination between "price supported" and "non-price supported" commodities in the programming of commodities under the Agricultural Trade Development Act of 1954.

The amendment "opens the door for dried peas and lentils to be included in the food commodity program."

Record oil demand looms

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Midyear forecasts prepared by The Oil and Gas Journal indicate oil demand in the United States will surpass the record high set in 1976 and well-drilling activities also will top last year's figures.

The new forecasts, based on surveys by the weekly oil industry magazine, appear in Monday's issue and update earlier projections made in January.

Demand for crude oil and petroleum products will reach 16.636 million barrels per day during 1977, a 6.8 per cent increase over the 1976 rate; the magazine said. Petroleum demand during the first half of 1977 was 8.3 per cent greater than the same period last year.

The Journal also predicted there would be more wells drilled, more footage dug, more rigs working, and more wildcat wells dug than last year's totals.

The midyear survey said 45,399 wells would be drilled in the United States during 1977, an increase of 9.5 per cent over the 41,455 drillings in 1976. The record for wells drilled in one year is 43,633 in 1963.

Almost one-fourth of the 1977 drillings, about 11,038 wells, will be wildcats, the Journal said. That would be a "highest level since 1957, when 11,739 exploratory holes were drilled.

Most of the increased drilling during 1977 will be in proven oil areas including Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana and California. The Journal estimated 15,427 of the wells would be drilled in Texas alone.

Factors pushing the demand include a healthier national economy, cold weather during the first quarter and curtailment of natural gas supplies to industry, the Journal said. Industry placed heavier demands on fuel oils to take the place of the curtailed natural gas.

Summer demand has risen in the hot, dry western states where utilities and industries have turned to fuel oil for power because of a decline in hydroelectric output.

SANTA BARBARA UTILITY WORKERS DOUSE BURNING GAS METER ... roaring brush fire ignited home, reduced to rubble

Air felt like disaster

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—It might have been intuition or the way the wind was blowing, but the people of Santa Barbara have felt for several days now that a fire would bring disaster to their city and their homes.

"You feel it in the air," said Ed Waldapfel of the U.S. Forest Service. "You know from the way the wind is blowing that if a fire starts it is going to be a disaster."

Usually, winds blow from the ocean into Santa Barbara, cooling the city and dropping temperatures into the 70s at night.

But for the past few nights, he said, the winds, called sundowners, "have been blowing from the mountains to the oceans bringing warm air and keeping temperatures in the 90s.

"I was talking to a friend the night before the fire," Waldapfel said, "and he was saying 'I feel it's just in the air, these 90 degree temperatures at 11 p.m. Just tell you something.'"

People, half-dressed, led their horses through the early morning darkness, illuminated by the flames that sent fingers of bright orange light into the sky for miles around.

Others drove vans and trucks to their homes, loading furniture, pictures and whatever other personal possessions they could grab.

Firemen said houses often burst into flames minutes after they were evacuated.

"Astes" are everywhere," said Suzi Zipper, who lives about 10 miles from the fire. "It is hot and sooty and you can see the fire topping the trees. The flames are really unbelievable."

Police and sheriff's deputies were having trouble moving people out of the stricken area because so many others were trying to get back in, clogging the roads.

Because of the lack of water in the area, water pressure dropped and some homeowners using garden hoses were having a hard time watering down the roofs of their houses.

"I was watering down my roof about 9 p.m. when it began to get too hot," said city policeman Payne Green, who voluntarily evacuated his home on Sycamore Vista.

Green said he and his wife, Betty, picked up their two children and "got out of there as quick as we could."

"I don't even have my billfold. But all that counts with me is that my kids and wife are safe."

Green estimated his house was worth about $150,000, but said it was only insured for about $25,000.

"I was going to see about increasing that insurance this week. Now I guess I can forget it. The roof was on fire when we left."

New meeting form sought

© Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON—President Carter's "town meeting" method of communicating with Americans will undergo a series of changes and the recent session in Yazoo City, Miss., could be the last of its kind.

His advisers feel that the two question-and-answer sessions — at Yazoo City and the earlier one in Clinton, Mass. — and the call-in radio program which originated at the White House "were great successes," but new ideas are needed.

"One of the things the President wanted was a variety of ways he could communicate with groups of citizens," said Barry Jagoda, television consultant to Carter. "We are looking for further variations on the People-to-people theme which will enable his wishes to be carried out. Personally, I don't think the town meeting concept could be sustained."

Jagoda feels as though the town meetings are too much like press conferences which Carter holds twice a month "as an integral part of the presidency and the government" even though objections periodically are received from housewives who complain Carter and the TV networks are preempting their favorite soap operas. The President has not yet held a "prime-time" press conference, even during the period of summer reruns.

"We believe that perhaps groups of citizens with the same specific interest — older people, poor people, clergy, businessmen, medical people — would enable the President to have a more penetrating discussion and a better analysis of the subject," Jagoda said.

"We might try that idea, similar to the energy roundtable in Charleston, W. Va., not too long ago. But these groups would be ordinary Americans with specific concerns rather than officials with specific problems."

Jagoda feels the President has done too many of the question-and-answer sessions in his first six months of office, and he would prefer to cut it to about four such programs a year.

"But it's not my decision," he said. "The President likes it, and if he wants to do more than we think he should do, then he is going to do more than we think he should do — you better believe it. He has self-confidence to the extent that he is willing to leave himself open to criticism in these sessions.

"He wants to hear these criticisms so he can think about them and take them into consideration when he is making a decision."

But Jagoda sees an even more important reason for the program of appearances before various "unorganized" groups around the country. He considers them an antidote to Watergate.

"The President is not going to let himself ever be in the position where the country is thinking about something, and he doesn't know what that something is," the TV adviser said.

"There may be another radio call-in show some time, but I think we'll come up with variations on the town meeting theme even though he enjoyed both Clinton and Yazoo City."

$100 bills plug pipes, puzzle cops

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI)—Police in this quiet steel town don't quite know what to do about $100 bills clogging up some toilets.

At least two Bethlehem toilets have become stuffed up with stacks of torn $100 bills, which are neither counterfeit nor traceable to any recent local robbery, according to federal and local officials.

An investigation into the matter began Sunday after a plumber, called to unclog a toilet at a service station, uncovered more than $3,000 in torn $100 bills stuffed in the toilet pipes.

On Tuesday it was revealed that a cleaning woman had found more than $100 bills in the pipes of a restaurant toilet.

Employees at the Bethlehem Sewage Treatment plant found four complete $100 bills and nine torn bills Tuesday morning.

So far at least $4,000 in bills have been recovered and officials said as long as they contain complete serial numbers, the banks will accept them.

"We had a similar situation like this two years ago in Tower City," one FBI agent said. "A little boy got mad at his uncle, took his money, tore it up and flushed it down the toilet."

"That had people fishing in the sewer system," he said.

'Sea monster' labeled sea lion

LONDON (UPI) — A Scottish zoologist says the "sea monster" hailed from the waters of New Zealand by Japanese fishermen is nothing but a decomposed sea lion and certainly no relation to the Loch Ness monster.

Dr. Alan Fraser-Brunner, aquarium curator of Edinburgh zoo, squashed speculation the "monster" might have been a prehistoric plesiosaurus, believed extinct for 130 million years.

The rotting carcass, described as like a snake with a turtle's body and front and rear flippers, came up in the fishermen's nets last April. After measuring and photographing it, they threw it back into the sea for fear it would contaminate the rest of their catch.

The photographs were immediately hailed by British fans of the Loch Ness monster as adding weight to their theory that a prehistoric animal lives in the Scottish lake.

David James, a member of parliament and founder of an "investigation bureau" to track down the Scottish monster, said "We have always thought that the plesiosaurus was the most likely candidate for the Loch Ness monster."

Dr. Alan Charig, head of fossil reptiles at the Natural History Museum, was more cautious. But he said: "It would be unscientific to say a plesiosaurus doesn't exist. Look at the coelacanth fish. We thought they had died out 65 million years ago too, but they turned up off the South African coast in 1938."

However, Fraser-Brunner was definite the new find was not a monster from the dawn of time.

"It is not once recognizable to a zoologist as a decomposed sea-lion," he said in a letter published in Tuesday's Daily Telegraph.

"The forelimb is characteristic and the rather long, narrow skull suggests that it was Hooker's seal lion (Neoploca hoodleri), a species inhabiting the New Zealand area where the body was found," he said.

He said the fishermen's estimate of the size and weight "must be regarded as an exaggeration."

"As seems to be the rule with 'monsters' we are left with no evidence except an indistinct photograph, but it is clear enough to show that the animal was mammalian."

"Nothing about it resembles a plesiosaur, which was a reptile," he said.

Shoemaker finds 'fun in working'

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (UPI) — For shoemaker Tony Izzo, 83, retirement lasted exactly two days.

"I helped my wife clean the basement," he said. "Then, I had nothing to do but go back to work."

That was 18 years ago when Izzo was 65. Since then, he has expanded his shoemaking and repair business to include awnings, insulation and installing carpet.

"He retired?" Izzo asked. "I can't. I need it. I'm having too much fun working."

Izzo, an Italian Army veteran of World War I, opened his shoemaker's shop in a tiny building in this upper peninsula community in 1919. Now, he has 36 employees — 18 of them Izzos — working in a large shop embellished with the legend: "Tony Izzo & Sons, & Grandsons."

A granddaughter, a son, wanted to add her affiliation — "A Granddaughter" — but the building wasn't long enough.

Izzo's four sons took over the business when he "retired" Oct. 22, 1959. Two days later, he returned to work on a part-time basis. He resumed full-time duties in 1965 after his wife, Filomena, died.

"I'm the first one in the shop in the morning and the last one out at night," Izzo said.

FBI church search ruled illegal by judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. district judge ruled today that the FBI had illegally seized documents from the Church of Scientology when the lawmen raided the church's office here July 8.

Government attorneys said they would appeal the ruling. William Bryant's ruling that the search warrant used by the FBI in its raid was so general that it was unconstitutional. But the judge refused to return the seized documents until the government has a chance to appeal his ruling.

Scientists had asked that the files be returned to the church's custody.

A similar motion by the Scientologists is pending in Los Angeles, where FBI agents conducted their July 8 raids on church buildings there.

Bryant said the search and seizure by the FBI "transcends the outer limits" of what is allowed by law.

If man's solar plan picked for research

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — An Idaho Falls man's proposal is among 20 selected by the Energy Research and Development Administration for designing and developing simple, innovative solar heating and cooling systems, the agency announced today.

Ralph E. Watts of Idaho Falls submitted a project on "Air Jet Design and Modular Hybrid Air Collection System."

Dr. Henry Marvin, director of ERDA's Division of Solar Energy, said the research projects by 14 small businesses, four individuals and two universities make up one phase of an overall program aimed at developing better, more economical solar components and systems for heating and cooling buildings.

The 20 projects were chosen from 120 submitted. A total of more than $200,000 is expected to be awarded for the research projects.

Vo-ed recommendations considered by state

BOISE (UPI) — Recommendations on vocational education needs in Idaho will be discussed at a meeting of the 27-member State Advisory Council on Vocational Education Aug. 11 at the University of Idaho.

Don Brennan, the council's executive director, said today recommendations to be considered would be a request of the State Board of Education to seek additional state and federal funds.

He said the recommendations also ask the board to require a state follow-up study, to provide more training for handicapped and to establish written objectives for all vocational programs.

Secretary takes blame

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Joseph Califano told the Urban League today that he takes the blame for legislation slowing the civil rights movement. He urged black leaders not to focus their criticism solely on President Carter.

Califano cited three recent moves on Capitol Hill to limit his offices' efforts toward ending racial discrimination, including a conference committee decision Monday preventing him from taking surveys for two years about racial segregation.

"That will be a black mark in the history of this country and the history of this Congress," the secretary of Health Education and Welfare said.

Califano repeatedly praised Vernon Riffe, executive director of the Urban League, calling him a "great leader." Jordan harshly criticized President Carter at the opening of the four-day convention Sunday and Carter told his comments were "damaging the hopes and aspirations" of the poor.

"I understand your speaking and shouting at President Carter," Califano said in apparent reference to Jordan. "The reason you speak and shout at him is because he listens."

"But you must speak to the Congress as well. It is imperative if you want to get your rights enforced. We cannot do this alone. Your voice is not heard on Capitol Hill."

He said that with all the power the President seems to have, Congress responds to the people and "the only power the President has is the power of the people." He urged the Urban League to lobby on Capitol Hill.

"I beg you to do it," Califano said. "I plead with you to do it ... we do hear you. They don't hear you."

Califano said over his objections, Congress "came within a hair" of preventing HEW from spending money for affirmative action programs and approved an anti-busing measure that would even prohibit busing to achieve desegregation at neighborhood schools.

Califano pledged that the administration will work to win admission for blacks to colleges and universities so they "can have access to the power elite of this country and be a part of it."

"If the universities offer special tutoring for track and tennis stars they can sure do the same thing for black students," Califano said.

"If sons and daughters of alumni get special treatment, then we ought to find a way for black Americans to get into those institutions."

He said at the same time HEW policies will be aimed at assuring that black colleges "will be enhanced and strengthened."

Groups join forces to improve service

CINCINNATI (UPI) — For nearly 75 years, thousands of American children in single-parent homes who needed the advice and friendship of an adult have found it at Big Brothers of America or Big Sisters International.

The two groups, whose foundations and goals have corresponded closely through the years, officially merge their organizations today.

The agencies have chapters in more than 300 cities and claim to be the fastest growing youth-serving movement in the United States. The groups are based on the "one-to-one" concept — the friendship and support an adult can provide a boy or girl from a single-parent home.

The big brothers or sisters themselves are volunteers who spend two-four hours weekly with their "little brother" or "little sister."

Ross admitted the number of girls served through the program is far smaller than the number of boys. "One big hope in combining the agencies is to really stimulate interest in Big Sisters," he said.

"In addition, the combined 'Big Brothers-Big Sisters' will provide a stronger voice in speaking out to help solve the problems of single-parent children," Ross said.

Valdez sees first oil

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — An armada of oil vessels will be waiting in the harbor of Valdez for the first Alaska crude when it pours from the spigot at the end of the 805-mile Trans-Alaska pipeline.

Alaska Pipeline officials now say the oil will arrive Thursday and several companies have indicated they want their tanker to get the first load.

Valdez, meanwhile, was preparing a weekend celebration, including fish-bakes on the beach, a snake dance and a contest to see who looks the best in an oil-soaked T-shirt.

One sidelight of the arrival of the crude could be a fight over the ceremonial "first barrels" of oil.

Beverly Ward, spokeswoman for Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., said offers of up to $1,000 have been made for a sample of the first oil to complete the long journey.

"Some oil will be given away, but we won't sell to outside promoters," she said, adding there may be numerous false claims to samples of the oil.

Originally, it was expected Alyeska would grant a request by ARCO that its tanker Juneau take on the first oil for deposit at a refinery in Cherry Point, Wash.

But now the SOHO Intrepid is en route and an Alyeska official said requests for the right to carry the first-load were expected from EXXON and SOHO. Alyeska officials have given no indication in what order the big companies will have their orders filled.

Ken Schwallier, Alaska representative for SOHO — which owns 53 percent of the Prudhoe Bay oil complex — said the first oil will be carried by a tanker named Valdez in being first. He said the loading schedule depends on when the oil reaches Valdez and which tankers were available.

The eight-pipeline companies which financed the $9 billion project have each asked for a ceremonial barrel and Alyeska also promised samples of the first oil to dignitaries visiting Valdez for the opening of the terminal at the end of the pipeline.

PEOPLE are literally falling out of the sky into the Harmon Park pool these days. Approximately 640 people swim in the Harmon Park pool every day and another 500 thrash the water in the YM-YWCA pool across the street. One day this summer 673 people frolicked in the Harmon pool while another 240 took lessons.

NOT exactly perfect form, but still a successful return. More and more people turn to tennis every summer. This year alone tennis instructor Carolyn Matsuka taught 70 kids and 40 ladies the basics of the game.

Twin Falls expands under summer sun

By JEFF SHER Times-News writer

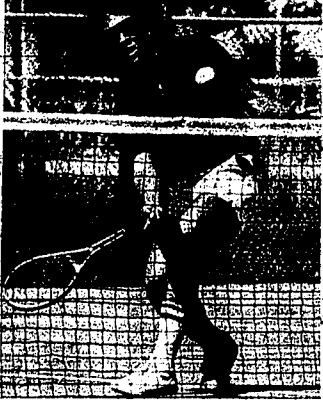

TWIN FALLS—The annual indoor-to-outdoor migration followed by sun worshippers across Idaho is reaching its peak now in the long, hot days of midsummer. People are abandoning their TV sets (but not the movies), the bowling alleys, the skating rinks and most other places where the sun refuses to shine. In Twin Falls, more people can be found enjoying the out-of-doors Harmon Park than any other place. City Park and Recreation director Chad Browning estimates that 12,000 people use the Harmon Park facilities every week. That figure includes all the softball and baseball players, the spectators, the picnicers, and the tennis players and swimmers. The "roundball" players of all varieties are probably the largest single user group at Harmon. Browning estimates there are 192 teams from Twin Falls alone playing either stowpitch softball, junior league or legion baseball, or in the knothole league. The Harmon Park diamonds are in use almost continuously day and night, and the action also spills over into South Park. For every roundball player you can bet there's at least one fan, and for important municipal or legion games the stands will be packed. About 300 swimmers a day descend on Harmon Park pool, pool manager Mike Burgess estimates, plus 240 more kids who come for lessons. One day this summer the pool hosted 672 splashers plus the usual number of learners. Another 500 people a day choose to swim across the street in the YM-YWCA pool, guesses Rosanne Hansen, the Y building manager and aquatic director. Hansen says about 900 people a week use the other Y facilities, participating in the gymnastics, self-defense, silmastics, swimastics, belly dancing and other activities. Being an indoor facility, though, Hansen says the number of people using the Y goes down in the summer, except for the swimming pool mostly because of the 350 kids who take lessons there every day. The tennis courts around town are more crowded than ever this year. Lobbers and slammers of all descriptions fill the courts or the surrounding grass and benches waiting for a chance to get on the courts. Tennis instructor Carolyn Matsuka, who occasionally can be heard to pine for the old days at Harmon Park when you could just walk on the courts any time. Just finished adding to the throng by teaching about 70 youngsters and 40 ladies how to be more stylish when blasting a forehand past their opponent. And the golf courses, dormant beneath a blanket of snow in the winter, come alive with duffers, hackers and scratch players even before the fairway grass rattles out of its winter slump. Canyon Springs pro Jim Packard says about 1,000 golfers a week tour the Canyon Springs links, which is close to capacity for the nine hole course. Twin Falls Municipal pro Don Hamblin says his 18-hole layout plays host to about that same number every week. The bowling alleys, though, see less action than a church in Sodom or Gomorrah on Friday night, especially compared to their continuous buzz and thunder of the winter. Bowladrome owner and manager Eddie Chappell ventures that winter bowlers outnumber summer ones 10-1 on his lanes, and a Magic Bowl spokesman said summer bowlers are not even 1/3 as numerous as their cold-weather counterparts. Skateland owner "Pat" Parrott doesn't even bother to open his skating rink on Main Street during the summer, because he knows from past experience there won't be anyone there. "The movies don't suffer in the summer, though. Theater manager Wayne Kullander says just as many people go to the show in the summer or winter. The slow movie seasons in these parts are early spring and just before Christmas. The expansive, outgoing summer spirit is not confined to the city limits of Twin Falls. Sawtooth National Forest information specialist Velda Lawrence states the forest sustained 1,570,000 visitor days last summer, and probably entertained in the neighborhood of 750,000 people. Lawrence said although figures are not yet available for this season, forest use is probably running ahead of last year. She said this is the first year all the campgrounds in the SNFA were filled by Friday noon for the July 4th weekend. There's no telling how many others. Fishermen, backpackers, hunters, rock hounds, bicyclers, off-road riders and others follow their dreams and noses into places where there are no turnstiles or ticket takers. One thing's for sure. The fun in the sun won't slow down until winter returns to lay its french hand across Idaho's fields of play.

Swingers

DAWN JOHNSON and niece Michelle King swing through the air with great ease and love. City recreation director Chad Browning estimates 12,000 people per week join Dawn and Michelle in using the Harmon Park facilities.

BRYAN Matsuka rushes the net to return his opponent's shot in a match on the Harmon Park courts. Tennis is more popular than ever in Twin Falls, creating crowding on the courts and a need for consideration for other players.

Bob's Lobs and Backhand Comments

Bob Zickman

Doubles is a game for young couples, old men or anyone who likes to socialize a lot. And so I've shied away from talking about doubles strategy. But by popular demand and because I'm running out of things to say each week, I dedicate this one to those people who like to play in pairs. A couple things are of prime importance in doubles. They're more important than in singles, because if you make a mistake, in doubles your partner might decide to hit you over the head with his racket. Get the first serve in. In singles, one tries to serve a rapid first serve, and if that misses, hit a more consistent slower one. In doubles, a speed serve is not as important as getting the serve in on the outside of the service square. The reasons for this are two-fold. First, a slower serve which is more consistent means fewer double faults. Second, a good wide serve makes it more difficult for your opponent to return in such a way as your partner at the net can't blast it. To serve wide move farther away from the center line before serving. You'll probably have to hit it a little higher to get it to the net which is a little farther away. Get to the net. In singles, one usually doesn't come in behind a serve unless one has an awful good one or can keep it to the opponent's backhand. In doubles, the same is true, but it's probably more important to get up to the net. The team that gets to the net first usually wins the point. Position. When a point begins, the server is usually the person who determines where everyone else stands. The server's partner should be about a racket's length from the net and a foot or two from the alley. The opponent returning the serve should stand just behind the baseline. The rule here is the farther the server stands from the centerline, the farther the serve returner stands from the centerline. The other opponent should stand on his half of the court about on the service line when his partner is waiting for the serve. Then when the partner returns the serve, the player on the service line moves up to the net or back behind the baseline. Where the player on the service line goes depends on where his partner can hit the ball. If his partner hits the ball deep to the server, he should move up to the net, as should the serve returner. If his partner hits it to the net man, he should run like hell, because the odds are he's going to get nailed. If the server has such a good serve that the serve returner is just lucky to return it, then the serve returner's partner should probably concede that and play back at the baseline rather than the service line. There are other things to learn but the above are the most important. . . in theory anyway. Other habits. . . When there's one left-handed player on a doubles team, he or she should play on the left side facing the net. This puts the backhands in the middle of the court, and makes it easier for players to return those difficult wide shots. . . When both opponents are at the net and you and your partner are in the backcourt, remember that though wings look bad, there are three shots you can try: lob, passing and hard shots. Anyone of them done correctly is effective. A lot of players don't try the hard shot because they fear the opponent's volley. But if you can't do anything else and you're desperate, you might as well try it. It's much better to lose a point because the opponent made a good volley than because you hit the ball out. . . Players may wish to try the "I formation": that is, the server's partner on the same side of the court as the server. If players attempt this, two things to remember: the player serving should get over to the other side rather quickly and should always serve it to the backhand. A serve to the forehand invites a pounding shot to the far alley, a shot which is awfully difficult to return on the run. . . Don't be afraid to practice. The secret of a good doubles team is a team that practices a lot together.

Colony of blacks begins resurgence

NICODEMUS, Kan. (UPI) — A century ago about 500 blacks, many of them former slaves, crossed the prairies to create a town in an arid and virtually uninhabited portion of western Kansas.

They had no money, few possessions and no farming tools. One newspaper, the St. Joseph, Mo., Herald, suggested that anyone trying to settle such a spot should be returned to eastern Kansas by force. If necessary, and "controlled by the militia or by the superintendents of the insane asylums."

Despite hardships—the colony survived and enjoyed a brief boom period. Now, after long years of decline, residents claim Nicodemus is in the midst of another resurgence.

Nicodemus celebrates its centennial this weekend. Up to 1,000 blacks have returned in past years to celebrate the birthday of the landmark town now kept alive by 15 families. Totaling about 75 persons, this year, bigger crowds are expected.

The original settlement near Hill City was organized by blacks from Topeka, Kan. An initial band of 30 colonists arrived July 30, 1877 and by the end of September, there were 300 more. By 1880, census figures showed 500-700 settlers. The settlers lacked building materials and had to carve dugouts for shelter in the sides of small hills with spades and grubbing hoes. Most had spent their money for railroad fares to Kansas and historians say virtually no farming equipment was available the first year.

In the fall of 1878, two men appeared in the area with equipment to turn the tough prairie sod — at $2 per acre. When they left, an average of nearly five acres per homestead was under cultivation.

The Atchison Weekly Champion said of Nicodemus, "the name will always recall the bravest attempt ever made by people of any color to establish homes in the high plains of western Kansas."

The 1880s were boom years, but the Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific railroads bypassed Nicodemus and the town rapidly declined.

By 1950, Nicodemus had only 16 inhabitants, who had to purchase necessities six miles away at Bogue. Today, townfolks say Nicodemus is on the upswing and will thrive again.

Bill for $26,457 sent to Robertson

© Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON—The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) says the German Messerschmitt fighter plane of World War II doesn't have much of a future, and movie star Cliff Robertson ought to know it.

Robertson portrayed John F. Kennedy in the film "PT-109" and has swashbuckled through other screenepics with vintage weapons.

Robertson owns a Messerschmitt, and also a Spitfire, the British fighter plane that fought off the Nazis in the Battle of Britain; a Tiger Moth, a bi-plane in which the Royal Air Force fliers trained; and a Stampe bi-plane, a trainer which Belgium introduced in 1918. Some of them appeared with Robertson in a recent TV biography of Charles A. Lindbergh.

On his federal income tax returns for 1973 and 1974,

Robertson took deductions for depreciation and expenses related to the planes. IRS knew that claim right out of the sky and sent Robertson a bill for $26,457 additional taxes.

IRS said Robertson had not proved that he used the planes for the production of income, and even if he did he had not determined their salvage value or the length of their useful lives. Thus, IRS reasoned, there was no way to compute depreciation.

Robertson escalated the conflict, appealing to the U.S. Tax Court and asserting that he did, too, use the aircraft in a trade or business and has depreciated their value "on a reasonable and proper basis over the reasonably estimated useful life of such aircraft and has reasonably estimated the salvage value."

Now the Tax Court must decide.

Capitol crumbling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The West Front of the Capitol will keep on crumbling for another year, its future still uncertain.

Congress passed and sent to the White House Tuesday a $90 million legislative appropriations bill for fiscal 1978 providing only for further study of plans for the West Front.

The legislative appropriations bill funds Congress, the Government Printing Office, the Library of Congress and the Botanical Gardens.

It includes about $2 million to pay for the 29 per cent pay increase for members of Congress which went into effect March 1.

The House approved the bill 252-152 and the Senate passed it by voice vote without debate.

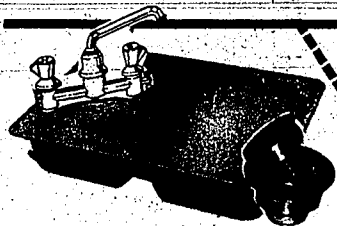

The question of what to do with the West Front has been before Congress for at least 11 years, with the leadership repeatedly calling for construction of an addition as a way of repairing the crumbling, original sandstone walls.

Tests show drunken merchants dangerous

MOSCOW (UPI) — Drunken drivers cause a lot of grief but a recent Soviet experiment shows that drunken shopkeepers are everywhere and dangerous in their own way.

The weekly Literary Gazette, using four doctors and a newly purchased British-made drunkometer which measures blood alcohol content, carried out a series of raids on public shops in a Soviet city.

"Drunken drivers may kill themselves and kill others but one drunken driver may cause only one accident."

"A drunken shop worker is no less dangerous and may cause many accidents," the weekly said.

The weekly newspaper said its experiment was launched after it heard of the case of a drunken butcher whose verbal attack on an old lady was "not less than if she had been run over by an automobile."

"As a result of the butcher's non-provoked insults she suffered a stroke and was hospitalized with complete paralysis," Literary Gazette said.

The drunkometer team discovered that an average 50 per cent of employees had been drinking on the job.

"We met a porter in one shop who insisted he had not been drinking — but the instrument passed right through the number three category to the end of the scale," the weekly said.

The porter said: "Oh that bad foreign machine. It knows everything. It's true. I had some wine, some vodka and then some beer."

In another shop a worker who showed a howling positive declared the instrument was wrong, that he never touched alcohol and only drank mineral water.

"The doctor told him to touch his finger to his nose — and he stuck himself in the eye instead. The doctor then had him try to walk a straight line with his eyes closed — but the mineral water made him stagger 'into a wall,'" the weekly said.

"We will help you sell anything. Just call 733-9031 and place a classified ad.

Archer strikes Streisand

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — An unknown archer shot an arrow into the air — and it hit — a poster of Barbra Streisand.

The pierced image of the singer, on a billboard over Sunset Strip, was dressed in a Superman costume to promote her latest album.

"It was obviously shot from the street at a distance of about 30 yards by someone who knew what he was doing," said a spokesman for Columbia Records, who observed that the archer "shot the arrow with unerring accuracy into a rather unmentionable part of Barbra's anatomy."

Amtrak prices to drop

WASHINGTON, D.C. —

Prices will drop sharply, effective Sept. 1, for Amtrak's U.S.A. Rail Pass sold within the U.S., good for unlimited travel on the 27,000 miles of the Amtrak and Southern Railway systems.

The new prices will be $185 for 14 days, $225 for 21 days, $255 for 30 days. Current prices through the peak summer season are $290 for 14 days, $365 for 21 days and $450 for 30 days on sales through Aug. 31.

The U.S.A. Rail Passes will be good at the new rates for an unlimited amount of "observed" or "unreserved" conventional coach travel between all points on the Amtrak and Southern lines. They may be upgraded for travel on Metroliners, sleeping cars or other premium services by paying fare differentials for applicable trip segments, but only on a space-available basis, one hour prior to train departure.

Jack E. Gordon, Amtrak's director of sales, said the new off-peak season prices for the U.S.A. Rail Passes are set attractively lower than the summer fares "to stimulate more travel when we have more seats to fill. They are good for the traveler and good for us."

The passes are sold outside the U.S. under different conditions and at a rate sometimes varying from those sold domestically. The new $185-$255 rates will go into effect on Nov. 1 for sales in other countries, replacing rates of $165-$225 in effect since Oct. 31, 1976.

Passes sold overseas represent only about 5 per cent of the total.

Float trip space still available

POCATELLO — Limited space is still available on the second annual White Water Float Trip sponsored for alumni and friends of Idaho State University by the ISU Alumni Association.

Scheduled Aug. 12-16, the trip will travel the Lower Salmon and Snake Rivers, according to Steve Guerber, ISU alumni director. The five-day excursion will leave Pocatello Aug. 12 and finish near Asotin, Wash., on Aug. 16.

"Our first float trip along this stretch of river was very successful and we expect this year's float to be equally as exciting," Guerber said. "The drought has affected some rivers in Idaho, but this particular area contains adequate water for a good trip."

The float will include travel through both desert and high country areas, while water rides daily and camping on sandy beaches. Transportation will be on large pontoon rafts.

Included in the $250 price of the five-day trip will be all transportation and food involved with the float. Each individual must provide personal belongings such as clothing, sleeping bag and toilet articles.

"The trip will be hosted by a professional guide, who is licensed and bonded in Idaho," Guerber said. "In addition, he's one of the finest gourmet cooks floating the river today, specializing in Dutch oven cooking. No one will go hungry on the trip."

Additional information on the trip is available through the ISU Alumni Office, Campus Box 8033, Pocatello 83209, or by calling 236-9755.

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very important day since the oncoming full moon makes it possible for you to have considerable activity toward gaining success, especially where your reputation or career activities are concerned. An unusually good time for entertaining and romance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Spend some time on activities that will help you get ahead faster. Entertain a bigwig who can be of help to you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into every phase of new conditions and use them to your advantage. Improve monetary status. New associates can become firm friends if you cultivate them now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are highly magnetic and should be gregarious now and get good results thereby. Be affectionate with a loved one and increase mutual happiness. Take no chances with an inferior.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Carry through with the expectations of partners and be more successful. Show others courtesy and gain their respect.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Do something constructive about cutting down your work load early and then enjoy company of good friends. Cooperate with fellow workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put those good creative ideas to work now in a most intelligent way. Take no chances with one who has an eye on your assets. Be clever.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make an effort to improve a home situation before you consider going to a social affair. Get finances in better order.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make improvements in routine tasks. Try to please those who can make your future brighter. Show more devotion to kin.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Concentrate on how to improve financial position, but don't discuss ideas for expansion until you have studied them more.

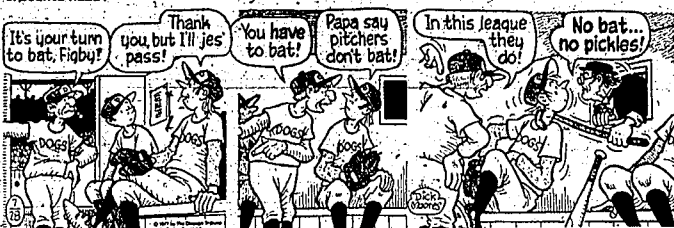

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go after your finest desires since the planets are favorable for this, and you get good results. Build a more enviable existence for yourself. Check wardrobe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get personal aims set in your mind and then you can make headway with them at social affairs. Take time to improve health and appearance. Come to a better understanding with mate.

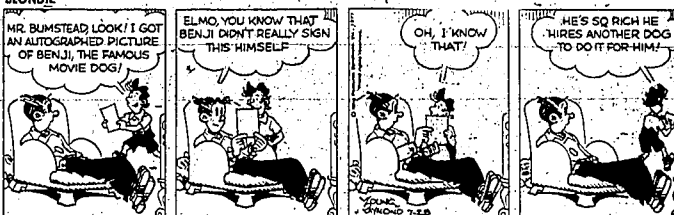

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your closest friends will cooperate with any practical ideas you have. Be fundamental in going after some personal goal.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will be very practical and should have the education slanted toward business and organizing. Upon reaching adulthood there will be a fine balance between the material and the ideal, if you also give good spiritual training as well.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

The matters a husband should keep to himself when talking to his wife fall into two categories: Things he should not tell her about himself and things he should not tell her about herself. Our Love and War man contends no rule could be more golden than the one that says all husbands and wives have right to their own illusions, providing said illusions don't damage the marriage. If a man thinks that in his youth he saw a little like Perry Como, why mention it, and invite the truth? And if his wife secretly retains the notion that she looks a little like Katharine Hepburn, what's the point of insisting on the fact?

KIDNAP INSURANCE

Q. "Can I insure myself against getting kidnapped?"
A. Most probably, if you pass the character tests. Lloyds of London makes $7 Million a year in kidnap premiums. If you should get snatched while holding such a policy, that outfit will buy you back from your kidnapers, once.

Q. "Okay, Louie, what's the class yell in the school of experience?"
A. Ouch!

Most lottery players tend to be highly superstitious, and one of their most common superstitions is the notion that odd numbers are more likely to be winners than even numbers. They also think it's bad luck to hold consecutive numbers.

PSYCHIATRISTS

Psychiatrists who make love to their patients should not be sued in civil court for malpractice, but rather should be charged with the criminal offense of rape. Such is the stated opinion of that renowned sex researcher Dr. William Masters. Sounds reasonable. Suspect the incidence of romance between the shrink and their office callers is pretty high. Over the years of writing this column, I've received at least a dozen letters from women who wanted to know, in effect, if they had to go on paying their doctors after their visits had become more intimate.

The dollar value of a horse can be estimated by the number of times it rolls over when it wallows. Or so says a reputed expert. Figure $100 a roll, contends he. So a horse that lies down and rolls over six times is worth $600. Interesting, if true.

Sleep researchers have determined that any child over age 4 is less and less likely to dream about animals as said youngster grows older.

Carpenter Says:

The other day Shay Patterson called and asked me to come out and watch the Magic Valley Sports Car Autocross. Shay said he was going to race his one-week-old Mazda GLC against the best the Valley had to offer.

So, there I am at the Autocross feeling a little jittery after telling everyone that the Mazda was a Zippy car. Shay looked calm and collected as he gave me the victory sign, but there was a look of 1000 miles on his face as he was surrounded by MG's, VW's, Rabbits, Porsche's and they were revving up and I thought looking down with some scorn on Shay's GLC or least they were all making more noise and they exuded confidence, winking at fellow MG and Porsche owners.

Well, the story had a happy ending... Shay Patterson came in first overall, beating his nearest competitors by over two seconds. The GLC was the lowest priced car at the Autocross... some of the drivers of the high priced models were chagrined, but we made some friends for Mazda and we're trading members of the M.V. Sports Car Club out of their present cars, giving them an extra $50.00 discount when the Sports Car membership card is presented.

At the next Autocross there could be a separate classification for "Mazdas Only" and a grouping for all others to save embarrassment for owners of those long-time prestige sports cars.

Mazda hasn't been around as long, but we're catching up fast... fast. Come in and take a Mazda test drive... you too can become an Autocross winner!
