Lowman fire near control

Holdup man walks out

METZ, France (UPI) — A disgusted bank robber discovered crime doesn't pay. The man, masked and armed with a pistol, stalked out of a small suburban bank when he discovered the teller had only $300 to offer him. He burst into the bank in Montigny near closing time and demanded the day's takings at gunpoint. "We gave him everything we had," said teller Patrick Dupuy. "He shoved it in a canvas bag, paused, then took it out and counted it. He said something like, 'Just who do you think I am?' Threw the money down on the counter and walked out."

By United Press International
A 700-acre fire in the Boise National Forest near Lowman was the only blaze burning out of control in Idaho today, but fire officials said it should be controlled by this evening. The Kirkham Hot Springs fire, about 70 miles northeast of Boise and about seven miles east of Lowman, should be contained by early afternoon and controlled by 6 p.m., the Boise Emergency Fire Center reported. Meantime, firefighters controlled the Coffer Bar fire in the Nez Perce National Forest near Grangeville Sunday evening after it had consumed 4,355 acres, much of it prime timberland. Wally Shilverdecker, fire center spokesman, said the Kirkham fire was the only major blaze in the West, outside of the Hog fire in California's Klamath National Forest, burning out of control. The 400 firefighters battling the Kirkham blaze had troubles during the night along the east edge, Shilverdecker said it became very "hot" in that area. Aerial tankers were dispatched early today to suppress the situation, he said. Six tankers are being utilized and through Sunday night had dumped 65,000 gallons of fire retardant and were expected to dump another 12,000 gallons today. "A large helicopter capable of dropping bucket loads of water on the fire will arrive from California this afternoon," Shilverdecker said. The Kirkham fire broke out Saturday afternoon and officials said it was "definitely man-caused." It was burning in rugged terrain near the South Fork of the Payette River and bulldozers could not be used to build firelines.

Shilverdecker said there has been no damage to summer homes adjacent to the fire and "none is anticipated." "The fire official said the four-day weather forecast indicates 'some relief' in sight to the current fire situation." "A high pressure ridge sitting over the western states the past month has weakened and there is a major low pressure weather mass moving into the area, bringing cooler temperatures and precipitation," Shilverdecker said.

Treaty filibuster pledged

WASHINGTON — The administration's efforts to obtain Senate ratification for the new Panama Canal treaties will be met with a filibuster, according to one of the leading Senate foes of giving the waterway to Panama. Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., said Sunday on the NBC television program "Meet the Press" that he believed the Senate would defeat ratification if the vote were held now. But even so, the conservative Helms declared "you can count on" a filibuster when the treaties reach the Senate floor. The treaties agreed upon by U.S. and Panamanian negotiators have not yet been seen or studied because the formal documents have yet to be written in English and Spanish.

But the U.S. generally has agreed to hand over the canal and all its necessary properties to Panama by the year 2000 in return for U.S. right to defend the canal without time limit. Meanwhile, the United States will raise Panama's annuity from the present $2.3 million to about $50 million a year from canal tolls. Helms and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., have returned from a visit to the 16-mile-wide Canal Zone which divides the isthmus. Both were outspoken opponents of giving up control of the canal and the zone before their trip. They came back even more aggressively opposed to the treaties after listening to Zonians and others who would be affected by the treaties.

Thurmond was asked how he would feel if a foreign power held a strip of land across South Carolina. He replied, "It was as advantageous to South Carolina as it is to Panama. I don't know if I'd object." Asked whether he would be willing to go to war to preserve U.S. control of the canal, Thurmond said, "We can't afford to let the property be taken because of the threats of a dictator. We would have to take whatever steps are necessary to protect it." Thurmond also noted that a new poll indicated 78 per cent of the U.S. citizenry opposed to the treaties, while 90 per cent of the population of his state was antirealist. He said he was told by canal officials that the tolls would have to be raised to pay Panama under terms of the treaty that have been disclosed. He said the only alternative would be for Congress to appropriate the money from the Treasury.

Andrus looks ahead to Idaho return

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN

SUN VALLEY — When Cecil Andrus left the Idaho governor's mansion seven months ago to become Secretary of Interior, he walked in the footsteps of a young David challenging Goliath — the "lumbering giant" of the Interior Department.

Today, Andrus seems well on his way to conquering that bureaucratic giant, when no other recent interior secretary has succeeded. But when he finishes his battle on the shores of the Potomac, the former Gem State governor says he's sure of one thing — he'll return to Idaho to spend the rest of his life here.

Andrus returned home to Idaho briefly this past weekend to play in the Danny Thompson Memorial Golf Tournament. This benefit tournament was to raise research funds to help battle leukemia. The Interior secretary talked with the Times-News Saturday, shortly after stepping off the Sun Valley Golf Course. He had just finished his second round of play with, he said humorously, his little as "the greatest duffer in the state of Idaho" still intact.

Still soft spoken, the tall, lanky Andrus candidly admitted there have been sacrifices for him and his family in their move to Washington. The greatest sacrifice, he observed, was in leaving Idaho and giving up the governorship, which was for him "the greatest job in the world."

He went to Washington to confront "a monster"

(In the aspect of the Interior Department) that had not had a head for many years." Andrus described the department he heads as a "lumbering giant that was running off in all directions."

Although he may slay this bureaucratic monster and establish some degree of effectiveness and policy consistency within it — he was recently described in Newsweek as the most effective member of the Carter cabinet — Andrus has accepted a change in the style of his life. It translates simply into "longer hours, more work, more frustrations and not being able to squeeze it (the Interior Department) and make it work."

Andrus acknowledges he and his family preferred their lives in Idaho to their present life in Washington. He says he took the job there because the President of the United States asked him and because he and Carter share many political and philosophical viewpoints and the President agreed to give Andrus, and not a White House staff member, full control to run the Interior Department.

But when Andrus' term is up, he says he's coming back to Idaho: "I'll be 50 then, and I'm going to spend the next 20 years in Idaho."

He admits he doesn't have "the foggiest idea" what he will do upon his return, but he says "Idaho's home and that's where I'm coming back. That's the only thing I can be sure of right now."

Andrus observed he and the entire Carter administration work with a different set of priorities than past administrations. He feels the Interior Department now walks a more balanced line of approach with both business leaders and environmentalists providing input for policy decisions.

Ultimately, though, it is President Carter who sets policy and Andrus is responsible for

The Titan III was checked out Sunday and found to be in good working order. The upstage Centaur is scheduled for a similar check today.

Voyager Project Manager John Casani of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., said, "We are now working toward a Sept. 3 launch."

Casani said the postponement was opted so tests on the spacecraft's camera-carrying science boom could be made. The space agency wants to know why Voyager I failed to radio the information that the boom had been fully deployed following the start of its 1.4 billion mile trip to Jupiter and Saturn.

Meanwhile, scientists at the JPL attempted to check an onboard computer on Voyager II which may have been responsible for the problems. Voyager I had been scheduled to be brought to the launch pad on Tuesday to be placed atop the

After Saturday morning's launch of Voyager II on its 1.4-billion mile journey to Jupiter and Saturn the spacecraft failed to report that its scientific instrument boom had deployed and it indicated that the on-board computer had shut down one of the three gyroscopes aboard, indicating it was malfunctioning.

But late Saturday space agency officials determined that all three gyroscopes are working normally. Two must function to keep the spacecraft on course.

Early Sunday, scientists commanded the spacecraft to perform ahead of schedule a "plasma experiment" in which the direction of the solar wind is measured. From this measurement, they determined that the camera-bearing spring loaded scientific instrument boom had been fully deployed. For some reason, the computer controlled radio signal had not been passed on to Earth monitoring stations.

At that point, they became suspicious of the on-board computer.

SECRETARY CECIL ANDRUS ...winning big battle

SEN. JESSE HELMS, RIGHT, PROMISES TREATY FILIBUSTER
... Sen. Strom Thurmond, left, sees defeat if vote taken now

Treaty filibuster looms

When asked how he could be opposed to the treaties when the Joint Chiefs of Staff favor ratification, Helms said, "I have never known any military officer to back the Commander in Chief who didn't pay for it in terms of his career, including Gen. MacArthur." Both senators pointed out that four retired admirals had issued a statement opposing giving up the canal because it is vital in their view, to America's defense.

Helms also denied that Sens. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., supported the pacts. Asked about conservative columnist William Buckley's support for the canal treaties, Helms said, "He's entitled to be wrong once in a while." Helms also raised the argument that the terms of the treaties violate the Constitution. He contended that only the House of Representatives had the right to dispose of U.S. government property. Thurmond urged instead of the treaties negotiated by Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker and Sol M. Linowitz that the U.S. modernize the canal and make an adjustment to what Panama now receives as an annuity. He acknowledged that the present figure was perhaps too low a payment and said the canal could be modernized for half the $5 billion it would take to build a new sea-level canal.

Chairman John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said, meanwhile, there was no reasonable chance of the treaty coming to the floor for a vote this year. Sparkman said the need for extensive hearings meant no action could be expected before early 1978. Carter advisors are believed to prefer an attempt at ratification this year rather than during an election year.

Many senators report a flood of opposition mail coming to Capitol Hill, some of it apparently the result of an organized letter-writing campaign.

West's hidden heroines feted in old mine town

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Brassy-haired bar girls in black net stockings and scruffy miners in pink long-johns lined the streets Saturday to honor the forgotten heroines of Western history — madams.

A bustling gold mining town in the late 1800's, Central City hosted more than its share of prostitutes — from high class sporting house girls and fur wrapped madams to less classy camp followers.

Louise Bunch, who was once described by a fellow madam as having a pig's snout for a nose, was the last to operate a house in the mining town. Her girls were Buckskin Nell, Dynamite Ann and The White Hope.

On Saturday, her contributions in and out of the bedroom and those of countless and unnamed other ladies of the night were commemorated with a bed race through town and full dress ball.

The participants were local businessmen, shop tenders and visitors. Gail Shettel, the state's only licensed madam, says the attraction is simple.

"Every woman wants to play the role of being a hussy without the hassle," said Mrs. Shettel, who owns a bar licensed as Madam Gail's. "It's playing the role but not the game."

Miss Bunch, known as Lou, operated her house on sandy Gunnell Hill above the town from 1899 to 1916. She closed the doors because World War I cut into the trade in Central City, but set up a new business in Denver which flourished.

More than just a bordello, Lou's establishment was a social center which featured $2 beers and a piano player. The only known picture of the proprietress shows her as portly, jeweled and smiling.

In a land where amenities were few and where women ventured out only with husbands, "ladies" were a treasured species. Dance hall girls not only provided companionship but wrote letters for the illiterate and nursed the sick.

Lou Bunch Day traditionally honors them all with festivities starting at the train station where local men clad in long johns of varied hues greet the steam engine, throwing the disembarking lovelies in front of them on horses.

The bed race follows with an aged, red metal model as the sole vehicle in the time race. Entrants wear crash helmets atop their period costumes. Two miners and a dance hall girl make a team with the men switching off between reeling and pushing.

The Miners and Madam's ball, held in the Eureka Room of venerable Teller House of local opera fame, follows. Pantaloons and patent leather slacks, boys and six-shooters, garter and top hats are traditional attire.

As the band strikes up "Bird in a Gilded Cage" the parade of contestants for Madam of the Year and Lady of the Night begins with 40 contestants, ranging in age from 21 to 50.

Gas transfer set

DUGWAY, Utah (UPI) — Workmen at the Dugway Proving Grounds have begun loading trucks with nerve gas, blister agents and mustard gas for a 51-mile move to the Tooele Army Depot.

The transfer of chemical warfare agents to the depot is being made for security reasons, Col. James Templeton, assistant commander at Dugway, said Sunday.

Mustard gas causes blisters and burns and can be lethal.

The crews are loading 23 tons of the chemicals onto 13 trucks which will be part of a 28-vehicle convoy. Templeton said the convoy will carry security personnel and nerve gas experts.

No official date has been set for the move. Some of the gas will be destroyed later at the depot.

Slowdown extended

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's 850 air traffic control assistants voted overwhelmingly today to extend their six-day work slowdown that has disrupted flights at London's Heathrow Airport into a four-day full strike starting Thursday, union officials said.

The vote by secret ballot was nearly five-to-one in favor of the strike, which could snarl the vacation plans of more than one million persons, the officials of the Civil and Public Services Association said. Limited action by 250 assistant controllers at the London control center has already caused heavy delays at Heathrow, Gatwick and other airports.

A British Airways official said it was forced to cancel 45 flights from Heathrow Sunday.

Trailers hang on hearing

JEROME — A man's seven-month-long push — so far unsuccessful — to get Jerome County's approval to build a trailer park on his land will last at least a little longer.

Leslie Thompson, local farmer and real estate dealer, has asked for a hearing from the Jerome County Commissioners, after the county planning and zoning board voted last month to recommend the county deny rezoning the land for the trailer park.

The county commissioners will hold a hearing on the matter Sept. 5 at 9 a.m. at the Jerome County Courthouse. The commissioners have final say but usually follow the recommendations of the planning board.

Thompson has been trying since January to get 30 acres, located one quarter mile east of Golf Course Road four miles south of Jerome, rezoned from agricultural to residential so he can develop a 100-unit mobile home park.

Several neighbors opposed his plans with petition drives and by speaking at planning board meetings. County Commissioner Mel Grindstaff said Thompson and his opponents are gathering more signatures in preparation for the Sept. 6 hearing.

The planning board did its own 33-question poll of residents in the area and voted July 22 to recommend denial of Thompson's rezoning request partly because of the opposition of neighbors, both to changing the area's agricultural designation and to the trailer park's open lagoon sewage system.

LDS refute book charges

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Saturday released what it called "conclusive evidence refuting charges by three California anti-Mormon researchers concerning the origin of the Book of Mormon."

The church, presented a paper written by Dean C. Jesse, an historian in the Mormon historical department. Photocopies of various documents involved in the controversy were also released.

The report shows "numerous discrepancies in the researchers' theory that the Book of Mormon was written by an ex-minister named Solomon Spalding, who died in 1816."

Church spokesman Don LeFevre said, "The church's position since the Book of Mormon was published in 1830 has always been that it is a scriptural record of civilizations living in the western hemisphere primarily between 600 B.C. and 420 A.D. The book was translated from ancient records by Joseph Smith, first president of the church."

LeFevre said the anti-Mormons' theory is based on the allegation that 12 of the original Book of Mormon translation manuscript pages are in Spalding's handwriting.

Three handwriting experts hired by the anti-Mormons to study the documents have not issued final opinions on the question and one of them has withdrawn from the case, LeFevre said.

Jesse's report and photocopies show differences in Spalding's handwriting and the writing in the original translation manuscript. He also says significant differences are apparent in writing style, punctuation, flow, word usage and spelling.

The three handwriting experts were hired by an evangelical Protestant publishing house in Anaheim, Calif., which will soon publish a book critical of the Mormon Church.

Meetings called off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter canceled three of his weekly Cabinet meetings this month to give agency chiefs time "to be with your families and do some reflection," Cabinet Secretary Jack Watson said today.

The Cabinet meetings will resume next Monday, Watson told UPI. He said Carter, who has held more Cabinet meetings than most recent presidents, told the last meeting on Aug. 1 that "with Congress in recess, it's a good chance to take some time off, to be with your families and do some reflection."

Indonesia earthquake toll soars

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — The massive earthquake that hit Indonesia's eastern islands may have killed more people than the 1976 tremor that left 500 dead in the fabled of Bali, a government official said today.

H.M. Minteraja said Friday's quake had officially killed 72 persons in the coastal areas of Lombok, Sumbawa and Bali — the three main islands — and the count will rise as rescue teams reach more remote areas on horseback.

number of missing persons, many of them swept into the sea by huge tidal waves that shot as much as 1,200 feet into shore, "pending more complete information."

Bali earthquake," Minteraja told reporters after giving President Suharto the preliminary casualty and damage reports.

Philippine leader eases martial law

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos, in a sweeping relaxation of his tough martial-law regime, announced today he will free political prisoners, lift an overnight curfew and hold local elections in 1978.

"I have no intention of leaving as a legacy for our people the institution of a command society," Marcos told the opening session of the World Law Conference, whose main topic is human rights.

"We are moving irretrievably toward normalcy as we come closer to a solution of the southern secessionist movement as well as the leftist and rightist rebellion and the economic crisis."

Government documents show the Marcos regime holds more than 330 political prisoners, although it was not known how many would be affected by the amnesty.

The amnesty grant was similar to one Marcos issued last year to entice Moslem secessionists in the Philippine's southern provinces to end the lengthy war that left more than 10,000 persons dead.

Marcos also said a 1 a.m. to 4 a.m. curfew and an international travel ban on Filipinos that were part of the martial laws were also lifted as of Sunday and some local elections will be held within a year.

The elections for provincial governors and city and town mayors would be the first local balloting held in the Philippines since 1969, two years before Marcos imposed martial law on Sept. 23, 1972.

Vance opens China talks

PEKING (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance conferred today with Foreign Minister Huang Hua in the Carter administration's first high-level contact with China's new leadership.

Vance took 11 aides into the talks while Hua went in with only seven, for what U.S. officials said was expected to be a round of talks on general world topics such as the Middle East and Africa.

Later meetings over the next three days will move to specific bilateral issues such as Sino-U.S. relations and U.S. support for the Nationalist Chinese in Taiwan, the officials said.

Vance and his retinue were greeted by Huang and a small but cheerful welcoming party at the airport following a 2½-hour flight from Tokyo aboard a U.S. Air Force jetliner.

There were no speeches or ceremonies at the airport and both groups filed into an automobile caravan that swept down deserted roads and avenues until it reached the center of the capital.

There, Vance's party saw the imposing sight of an estimated 1 million men, women and children in a mile-long procession celebrating the end of the 11th Communist party congress, which gave a stamp of approval to Premier and party chief Hua Kuo-feng. The demonstrators looked on silently in subdued and orderly formations as the procession of official cars sped down wide boulevards. In the central Tien An-men square, thousands of soldiers paraded in bright green uniforms. Strings of firecrackers were heard popping in the hot, humid sunshine and several trucks were seen carrying large kettle drums and cymbal bands. Vance's arrival came only hours after Hua was quoted by the Chinese media as saying diplomatic relations cannot be established until the United States ends its support of Taiwan and abrogates the countries' mutual defense treaty.

Lebanese Moslems launch new attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Druze Moslems launched "violent attacks" on the Christian village of Muteh today, the second day of fierce sectarian fighting in central Lebanon, the rightwing Phalangist radio said.

In southern Lebanon, heavy artillery and machine-gun battles between Israeli-backed Christian rightists and the Palestinian leftist forces left at least seven persons injured, initial casualty reports said.

The Phalangist radio report said Christian rightists repelled attacks on both the east and west sides of Muteh early today. The rightists in Muteh had exchanged sniper fire with a nearby Moslem settlement early Sunday.

The fighting in central Lebanon also spread to Mazrat al Chouf, a nearby village where the Druze Moslems killed dozens of Christians last March to avenge the assassination of their leader, Kamal Jumblatt.

In Briel, a central hill town 30 miles from Beirut, the rightist and Moslems fought

Sunday in one of the worst sectarian clashes since the end of Lebanon's 10-month civil war.

The predominantly Syrian, Arab, peace-keeping force intervened, bringing a halt to the fighting. A spokesman for the force said 15 persons were dead or wounded "on both sides."

1978 may bring 'bedsheet ballot'

TWIN FALLS—In Chicago they called them bedsheet ballots—those vote tally sheets listing not just candidates for president and governor but every state and municipal office down to assistant county surveyor.

As long as sometimes as the green giant's arm, they intimidated even the most hearty voter, and were said to be so large they could cover a bed unassisted. Penning an "X" for each office could produce terminal writers cramp. Even Mayor Daley was known to take a break halfway through the ballot, pausing to let the blood flow back into his hand.

Idaho hasn't had a ballot that long for some time. But with 1978 coming up it's time to begin the finger calisthenics.

Topping the list will be the contest for governor, a race that at this point has attracted at least three candidates. Choices will also have to be made for Lieutenant Governor, attorney general, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction; United States congressman, United States senator, and the state legislative positions.

But that's not all.

Next year the Idaho voter also may be facing six ballot initiatives—each demanding approval or rejection.

Idaho has allowed the initiative since 1933. Essentially the law is a gun behind the door, a means by which citizens can enact legislation when elected officials failed to respond to popular demands.

Under Idaho law, initiative sponsors must gather signatures on petitions totaling 10 per cent of the aggregate vote cast for governor in the last general election. This means any initiative for 1978 faces a signature hurdle of 25,000 names.

Once signatures are gathered Idaho law says the initiative must obtain not just a simple majority but "the approval of a number of voters equal to a majority of the aggregate vote cast for the office of governor at any such general election to be adopted."

Notwithstanding these significant obstacles, Idaho's American Party (AP) seems determined to place their issues before the voters. The minuscule organization lists presidential candidate captured but 1.7 per cent of Gen State ballots in 1976) has sponsored the following six initiatives—and is beating the sidewalks in search of signatures.

—Land Use Planning. This initiative "would require that any land use plan be subject to approval by two-thirds of the voters." AP Chairman John McAdams Eagle, explained. "The basis for the two-thirds figure is that any other type of legislation dealing with property, such as bond issues, requires a two-thirds majority," McAdams said.

—Gun Control. Few organizations more militantly assert their right to own guns than the AP. This second initiative, if approved, would make it a crime "for a governing body to pass a law to deprive you of the right to keep and bear arms," McAdams says. Should the legislature pass such a law, then the attorney general would be charged with imprisoning its 105 members.

—Recall Laws. Idaho tightened its recall laws several years back, when it appeared they were subject to manipulation by any fringe group with a grudge. The laws still allow recall of most elected officials but their restrictive proceedings effectively limit such actions to the most serious of offenses. The AP wants this changed and proposes a recall be made successful if a simple majority of those voting dislike the incumbent.

—Board of Corrections. Current parole practices also come under fire from the AP. If this fourth initiative is passed additional restrictions would be placed on the powers of the state board of corrections to limit paroles. The initiative "would stop revolving door justice," McAdams says.

—Initiatives. "Under present law an initiative that is passed by the people can be revised and amended by the legislature to where it is no longer recognizable by the people who voted for it," McAdams says. "This initiative would prevent that."

—Educational Choice. "In a nutshell," McAdams says. "This provides a tax rebate for those people who elect to send their children to private schools. At the present time they pay double, through their taxes and through what they pay the private school. The rebate would not exceed what they would normally pay a public school," McAdams says.

The American Party has suffered from a bad case of credibility loss since Alabama Governor George Wallace returned to the Democratic fold. Where once this militant organization could seize a solid 10 per cent of Idaho votes (above that in some counties), today they boast a membership barely above that of the Vegetarian Party.

"The AP image won't be helped any when voters realize their ballots have been nearly doubled in length by a group today dismissed as largely fakes and crackpots. That could lead to resentment."

Still, several of the initiatives stand a reasonable chance of becoming law. If this occurs, then the American Party is setting it will be treated with a little more respect. An organization which has the power to change the law is by definition an organization with which other parties must contend.

For the American Party, bedsheet ballots are a small price to pay for a possible return of their once letty political clout.

In another Gen State political matter, the word coming from the Democratic Party is optimism. "Unlike the Republicans," who seem determined to stage knock-down dragons in several important primary races—never a healthy step toward a unified party—the Democrats seem amazingly unified. Primary challenges seem unlikely on their side of the ticket in such significant races as governor and first and second district congressman.

Key Democrats are also raising money in unheard of sums for this early date. First District congressional candidate Roy Truby is boasting to close friends that he'll have "at least" $10,000 in the bank by Christmas. And fifth flash Stan Kress, the likely Second District Democratic candidate, has 100 fund raisers scheduled before New Year's Day. I have learned he received $135 at the first of those events—held in Twin Falls—and $110 the next day in Burley. If Kress can raise that kind of money over a year before an election deep in the bosom of Republican suburbia, then he's also well on his way to the $10,000 Christmas Club.

Community can judge pornographic material

Editor, Times-News:

I read with interest the letter to the editor by a Brent L. Christensen who criticized Louise Meyer for her letter urging a ban to the spread of pornography, sexually explicit music and blasphemous literature, and think he is way off base in his criticism.

The Supreme Court of the United States has ruled that local communities have the right to judge whether material is pornographic or not by prevailing community standards.

Thankfully, most Idahoans recently having blatantly offensive, sexually-oriented materials readily obtainable by children.

Even in supermarket magazine racks, one can see magazines of the Playboy, Hustler and "Owl" stripe at the eye level of youngsters.

I noted that Mr. Christensen referred to Ms. Meyer as a "religious fanatic." How does he know?

Is a person a religious fanatic because he or she wants to protect his or her community from the inroads of filth purveyed by evil men and women who would get rich from debauching the souls of the immature?

Doesn't he realize that music is a powerful motivator and influences thought and actions.

The music he is extolling has the following qualities:

RHYTHM, which can be responded to by the mind dulled by alcohol or drugs.

LOUDNESS, to the point of damaging hearing, which blocks thought and reason.

REPETITION TO EXTREMES, which likewise dulls the intellect and encourages mindless feeling.

GYRATION, which, performed by performers and participants, cannot be misinterpreted, even by those with clean minds.

DARKNESS, which deadens the conscience and breeds irresponsible actions, and

FILTHY LYRICS, which urge fornication, perversion, godlessness and anarchy.

The leaders of the "Rock Society" readily proclaim their degeneracy.

I would like to ask Mr. Christensen what sort of society he would like his children to inherit.

Would he have them grow up in filth, degradation, crime and lawlessness and see their country fall like an overripe fruit into the hands of the Communists or collectivists thirsting for this nation's blood, or would he like to see this great land strengthened, the people free and growing in righteousness?

For one, I think that it is about time for concerned citizens to stand up and be counted; pornography and immorality are some of the prime evils being used to weaken this nation from within.

At those who think differently and who would tear down in order to build up inflict their sordid philosophies elsewhere.

Bomb flares weaponry conflict

By C. L. SULZBERGER
© N.Y. Times News

ANKARA—Every time a major new weapons system is developed by ingenious technicians, humanity itself is appalled. During the Middle Ages the Byzantine Empire's secret weapon, "Greek fire," was outlawed by the papacy as too horrible. Yet it continued to be used effectively for some decades—an inflammatory mixture of pitch, oil and sulphur that devastated warships and their crews.

When President Carter decided to push through the cruise missile program, he was severely criticized. Yet there is surely nothing more brutal about the tiny, sophisticated and inexpensive cruise than the huge multistage and multiwarhead missiles which are its alternative deterrent. Now the argument about needlessly savage weaponry flares up over the neutron bomb.

The neutron bomb is less of a deterrent than an arm of practical potential in the actual event of war. Because of this distinction some of our allies have quietly told NATO they hope we will proceed with its manufacture and deployment, although opposition voices are raised in public.

In any conflict—whether conventional or with tactical or strategic nuclear warheads—those allies nearest to the Soviet bloc (like West Germany, Norway or Turkey) would suffer enormous damage, not only in terms of human life but also in terms of massive destruction.

Nobody in NATO ever for an instant thinks a war might start with an attack from West to East. Such is wholly excluded from the most abstract contingency plan. All conceivable centers on the size, method and force employed in an attack moving from East to West and what, if anything, could repel it.

Such being the case, it is axiomatic that some (probably a good deal) of NATO territory would be lost initially, regardless of the form of onslaught. What the neutron warhead offers is the theoretical chance of civilizational extinction, followed by quick military retreat, and a means of riposte against invaders that would destroy their forces but not the area they had occupied. In other words, if things went well the territory lost could be regained—and would not be wholly destroyed.

The use of neutron warheads would allow European planners to try and work out for their populations defenses not based upon the assumption that survivors of a total war would return to a totally ravaged countryside.

Moreover, it would permit destruction of enemy forces sheltering in cities they had occupied—without evacuating those cities.

Some critics of the neutron bomb, such as the astute West German Egon Bahr, complain that by preserving property, it makes "man," something "second class." But that is not its weapon's purpose. As with cruise missiles, neutron warheads could be so precisely employed, with their relatively lower blast and heat collateral effects, that targeted areas would not be turned into desert.

All aggressive war is immoral. It doesn't matter enormously to the victim whether he died from Greek fire, napalm, or a nuclear or neutron warhead. The entire subject is too dreadful to contemplate. One would prefer not to do so—were it not blatantly obvious that superpowers continue to improve their armaments every day, both with a view to deterrence—and to war, if deterrence doesn't work.

What is the objective truth about ghostliness? S.T. Cohen, a scientist and technologist advising the U.S. government on nuclear weapons for some 20 years, concluded in a study he recently sent me:

"Neutron bomb radiation was essentially no different biologically than radiation from other ways radiation effects were much less inhumane than those from many conventional weapons—fragmentation bombs, napalm, etc."

The comment is not cynical; it is frighteningly true. If disarmament can ever progress toward reality, the entire arsenal of terror must be abandoned. Until then, however, defense planners must rely upon the grim logic of their profession. It is this logic which must be used to assess the true import of the neutron bomb, as it already assessed the meaning of the cruise missile.

Council: Do as we say not as we do

Editor, Times-News:

I am constantly amused by the way our city council uses the system of, "Do as we say, not as we do," philosophy to govern us.

After seeing where the city engineers' wife was allowed a "shop" in her home, I've come to the conclusion one must be "on the inside" at city hall or have enough money to fight it as in the recent case of a drive-in window.

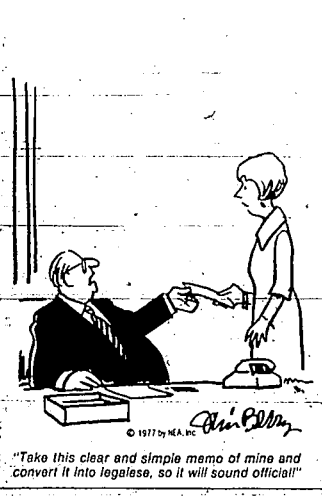

Not long ago a man wanted to have a business at his home on Blue Lakes Boulevard, but was denied the request. If Blue Lakes Boulevard is an unfit location, how can they justify a business in a residential neighborhood?

I'm sure the city boys used a lot of "scrutiny" to insure no preferential treatment was given this request, no telling what would have happened if they hadn't.

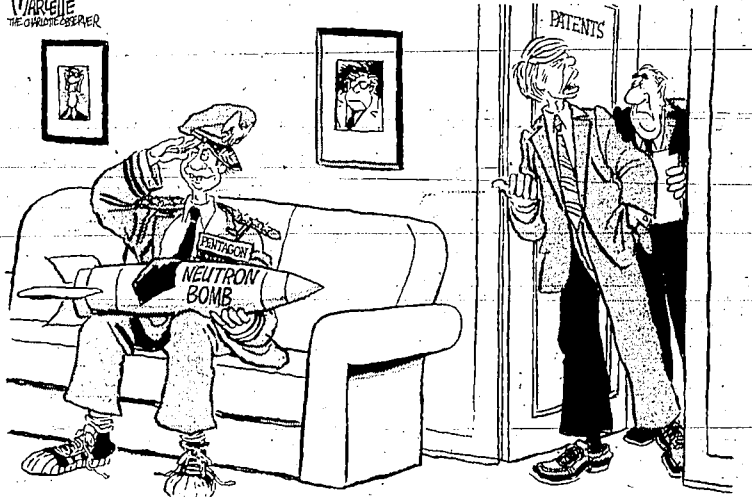

I hope many of you will follow Councilman Lincoln's advice and make your position known at the next city election.

Berry's World

"Take this clear and simple memo of mine and convert it into legalese, so it will sound official!"

"SAY, ISN'T HE THE SAME GUY WE JUST KICKED OUT OF HERE WITH THAT NUTTY B-1?"

Will Berkowitz case ever go to trial?

WASHINGTON—Patty Hearst, Richard Speck, Sirhan Sirhan, Dr. Sam Shepard, Lee Harvey Oswald.

Now it's David Berkowitz, the 24-year-old man alleged to be "Son of Sam," the night-prowling 44-caliber killer of six persons.

In all the cases, it was the same. Massive publicity about the crime. Damaging charges in the press. Incriminating evidence displayed for the public. And the oft-heard sentiment: "They'll never get a fair trial."

Some did, some didn't; some never got to trial.

What will happen to Berkowitz? The public has read he confessed. And the series of murders that terrified New York for more than a year, "OK, you got me," he reportedly told police when he was arrested Wednesday night in Yonkers, N.Y. ("I'm) Son of Sam. I guess this is the end of the line.")

They've also read that he said he was compelled to kill by a 6,000-year-old man who spoke through a dog.

Given such publicity, can this man get a fair trial—or perhaps, more important, will he ever come to trial?

"I am of the opinion that this person may be an incapacitated person," said acting New York Supreme Court Justice Richard A. Brown, who presided at Berkowitz' arraignment last Thursday.

"This man is completely insane," is the way one police officer put it to columnist Jimmy Breslin, who has written extensively on the crimes. "The guy is never going to be in court."

Before Berkowitz can be tried, he will be examined under court orders by two psychiatrists during the next 30 days under the direction of Dr. Daniel F. Schwartz, director of forensic psychiatric services at the Kings County (Brooklyn) Hospital. The two doctors will determine whether Berkowitz is mentally able to communicate with his defense lawyers or whether he can handle his own defense.

If they find that he can't, he will be designated an "incapacitated person," under the law, and will be put in the hands of the New York State Commission of Mental Hygiene, which probably will commit him to an institution.

If he's not "incapacitated," he can still be found insane at his trial, where a team of prosecutors, under the direction of Brooklyn District Atty. Eugene Gold, will attempt to prove him guilty of second-degree murder.

That charge does not carry a penalty of death, which is reserved for killings of police officers and prison guards in New York. Berkowitz could be sentenced to a prison term of from 25 years to life.

What about a fair trial if Berkowitz is found mentally fit?

Gerald W. Getty, the Chicago criminal lawyer who in 1967 defended Richard Speck, the killer of eight Chicago nurses, doesn't think Berkowitz can get one.

"In this day and age, no matter where people are," he said, "they hear a radio, they watch TV, and they read the newspapers. People have read already that (Berkowitz) has confessed. Maybe 60 per cent are convinced of his guilt. And they probably don't see why he needs a trial. If they're not convinced, they talk among themselves and somebody will convince them."

Under a 1975 Supreme Court ruling, however, Berkowitz is not entitled to a jury that is ignorant of the facts of his case—only an "impartial, indifferent" jury that puts aside its preconceived opinions about the case and decides it on the evidence presented in court.

Berkowitz has two lawyers working for him so far, Philip Peltz of Brooklyn and Leo Stern of Mineola, N.Y. Both say they have been hired by relatives of Berkowitz. Neither is talking about the tactics they might use to assure their client a fair trial.

They have several approaches available, perhaps the best being a change in the location of the trial. If there is one, from the Brooklyn Criminal Court to some place in upstate New York.

Plan shifts to disabled

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — Sometime this year, the nations first federalized welfare program, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), will switch from a program designed to serve a majority of elderly clients to one that devotes most of its time and money to the disabled.

According to the planners, this was not supposed to happen. The Nixon administration's welfare experts examined the states' adult welfare rolls in the early 1970s and told Congress that if the federal government took them over, the case load would be roughly two-thirds elderly and one-third disabled clients.

But it is the younger people with disability claims who are now straining the finances of the Social Security Administration, which runs SSI and a larger Disability Insurance program, and nobody seems to know why there are so many of them.

Since SSI began in 1974 the percentage of disability cases has moved constantly upward. By the end of this year, according to statistical projections, slightly over 50 per cent of SSI's 4.2 million clients will be disabled. Together, they will be absorbing about 60 per cent of the program's $5.5 billion a year. Three out of every four applicants coming into Social Security offices are now claiming disabilities.

Welfare experts admit they're confused by the trend. "You can take almost any explanation for it that you want," asserts Pat Livers, head of the Social Security unit which operates SSI, "and you will find some support for it."

The Disability Insurance program, which operates from a trust fund of payroll deductions and employer contributions, has had the same phenomenon. Again, there are no easy answers.

Since 1970, according to an actuarial study recently published by Social Security, there have been no major changes in the way disability programs are publicized and no changes in the legal definition of disability. In recent years there have been major advances in vocational rehabilitation, psychiatry, medical treatment and the use of prosthetic devices, advances that should have brought more workers off of disability.

Nevertheless, the percentage of disabled workers in the U.S. Work force has moved steadily upward, from 10 per thousand workers in 1970 to 30 per thousand this year. Curiously, the new disability applicants do not seem to recover as fast as beneficiaries have in the past, but they do live longer. They stay on the rolls. The costs of the Disability Insurance program have jumped from $6.7 billion to $12.5 billion in just three years.

'Missing' presents to Nixons sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department wants permission to examine crates of Nixon materials to determine if they contain "missing" gifts given the Nixon family by foreign leaders, the Washington Post reported today.

Poor record keeping may account for some of the unaccounted gifts in the Government Services Administration collection, but officials believe the Nixon family retained custody of some of the presents, the newspaper said.

Federal law requires the president and his family to give the government foreign gifts worth more than $50.

Evan Dohelle, chief of protocol for the Carter administration, is scheduled

Wednesday to ask federal court Judge Aubrey E. Robinson for permission "to pick through some 200 packing crates of Nixon materials in government storage," the Post said.

Among the gifts retained by the Nixon family, the newspaper said, is one described by the White House gift unit as a "very fine hand-painted miniature portrait of the President done on ivory."

MANACLED JERRY R. MILLS LED AWAY BY FBI ... hijacker surrenders at Salt Lake City airport

Paper bag hijack ends in surrender

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A California man, who hijacked a plane from San Diego to Salt Lake City before surrendering to FBI agents, told the crew he had a bomb but actually he only had a paper bag.

The man, identified by the FBI as Jerry R. Mills, 36, Escondido, Calif., climbed on board Western Airlines Flight 550 bound for Denver and demanded to be flown to Salt Lake City. He said he had a plastic bomb. After the plane landed in Salt Lake, Mills released the 24 passengers and crew of seven uninjured.

"We wondered how anything could have gotten through San Diego security," Grant

Murray, spokesman for the airline said. "He just didn't have anything. He had a white paper bag, a barf bag we call it."

Murray said Mills had a ticket which was made out in his name when he boarded the plane.

Mills released the passengers and flight attendants about 10 minutes after the plane landed.

Mills released the passengers and flight attendants about 10 minutes after the plane landed.

Salt Lake City. After being assured of where he was, Mills deplaned with the crew. The FBI then took him into custody.

Clark said hijacking charges will be filed against Mills in U.S. District Court Monday. The agents did not find a bomb anywhere on the plane.

Murray said, "Everyone handled themselves beautifully. There was no panic and no injuries."

He said Mills apparently asked for the plane to be refueled right after the passengers deplaned but there was no other indication he wanted to be flown anywhere else.

"I surmise he just wanted attention," Murray said. The passengers were delayed for two hours.

Tankers load anew

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — Oil tankers are taking on their cargo of Alaskan crude for the first time since "human error" shut down the Trans-Alaska pipeline nearly a week ago.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. began pumping 430,000 barrels of North Slope oil into the Overseas Alaska on Sunday night as the Exxon New Orleans prepared to move into the Valdez terminal berth when the Alaska finishes loading today.

"Five other tankers waited at anchor, at a cost of $100 an hour, in Prince William Sound for their turns at the terminal. Alyeska officials expect to load an average of one tanker a day.

The oil is flowing at a rate of better than 500,000 barrels a day through the pipeline. The pumps were started again Saturday after a four-day shutdown, but it took pipeline workers "several hours" to "pack" the line and bring it up to full pressure. The thick crude is pumped at Valdez into huge storage tanks which had to be partially-filled before loading could start again.

Broad aid plan pushed

SEATTLE (UPI) — The nation's lieutenant governors have asked the federal government to help farmers, elderly citizens and energy-hungry Americans.

In a series of policy statements adopted during the weekend at the National Lieutenant Governor's Conference, the delegates sought federal aid for drought-stricken agricultural areas.

They also asked for an end to mandatory retirement rules and removal of obstacles to increased off-shore oil drilling.

Another statement urged President Carter to find funds to upgrade the nation's railroad system.

Oil spills

OCEAN CITY, Md. (UPI) — A major oil spill of unknown origin has blackened six miles of shoreline along the broad, sandy beaches of this resort city during the height of the summer season.

U.S. Coast Guard officials said they learned Sunday night that smelter slicks were reported off the coast at Rehoboth Beach, Del., about 30 miles to the north, and at Assateague Island, which begins just south of here.

"We've got a big mess," said a spokesman at the Maryland State Police office in Ocean City. "We're trying to keep people off the beaches."

Fans continue to mourn Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The crush of fans mourning Elvis Presley has been so great that Forest Hill Cemetery officials may have to limit hours sharply for fans visiting the superstar's burial place.

More than 200,000 persons have come from all over the country to see Presley's casket, entombed Thursday in a large gray marble mausoleum. Guards stand at locked doors and permit visitors to get no closer to the building than 30 feet.

Presley's death Tuesday at the age of 42 sparked a pilgrimage of mourners from hundreds of miles away. Many came with no money or place to sleep when they learned of the death of their idol. Some slept in cars parked outside the cemetery gates.

"If it continues like it did today, we'll be forced to shut the cemetery except for a few short hours each day," said Forest Hill's general superintendent, Ralph Davis.

He said the fans have been "marvelously" orderly, but Forest Hill has other burials scheduled today and throughout the week that cannot be interrupted.

'No tears and no funeral'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — They came to pay their respects, not to mourn him. The wisecracking comedian, the master of the one-liner, Groucho Marx, would have despised a formal memorial service.

"We talked about the good times," Marx' son Arthur said after the informal service for the comedian Sunday, at Arthur's Bel Air home.

"We are so pleased that we did it this way rather than at a church or a synagogue where it would be a cold service conducted by somebody who didn't really know him," Arthur said.

"He wasn't religious, but he was a really good person."

Marx used to joke about wanting to be buried "near a straight man," but a family spokesman said the comedian's remains would be cremated as Groucho had instructed. Groman Mortuary said the date of the cremation would not be announced.

Among about two dozen persons attending the service were Bill Marx, son of Harpo; grandson Andrew Marx; and Nat Perrin, who brought the Marx Brothers to Hollywood.

Trudeaus together again

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his wife Margaret were back together Sunday and trying to see if they can live again as husband and wife.

The Trudeaus, who agreed to a separation in their six-year marriage last May, were reunited aboard a government aircraft at Vancouver International Airport. The couple and their three sons flew back to Ottawa together.

Mrs. Trudeau said in an interview Friday a reconciliation was "what we've always wanted. We've been working in this direction and I am praying it will work out again."

Friends gather

ARTHUR Marx, right, son of famed comedian Groucho Marx, is joined by Groucho's grandson, Andrew, left, and director Eddie Buzzell in front of the Arthur Marx home to talk to newsmen about the gathering of a small group of close friends and relatives for informal memorial services for Groucho. Arthur Marx said his father "just ran out of time." (UPI)

Humphrey keeps brisk pace

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Even discovering that he has terminal cancer has not slowed the brisk pace Sen. Hubert Humphrey has maintained in a lifetime of public service.

Major surgery last Thursday, during which doctors said they discovered terminal cancer, stalled the former vice president's schedule only briefly. He says he plans to be back in the Senate after Labor Day.

"He enjoys work," Dr. John Najarian, chief surgeon at University of Minnesota Hospital, said Sunday. "He gets up at 6 o'clock in the morning, he wants to go, and if you restrict him from doing that he doesn't feel well."

"He is doing well," Najarian said. "The only problem they have with him on the ward is that he is walking so much and so fast that the nurses say they'd like to put some kind of a regulator on him so that he doesn't speed up and down the halls."

Humphrey's schedule, Najarian said, is an unusual one for anybody after major surgery. "But he isn't just anyone," the surgeon said.

He said he expects the former vice president to leave the hospital Thursday or Friday, then have at least a week at home to recover his strength before returning to the Senate.

"Two weeks after the operation he should be back to the same old vigorous Sen. Humphrey — although he seems to be that way right now," Najarian said.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked if chickens had teeth, and you said they didn't. I said they didn't, but if you want to get technical, every chicken is born with a single tooth. It's called an "egg tooth," and is located on the end of the upper beak. This egg tooth is the means by which a chick breaks the eggshell to gain entrance into the world. The tooth falls off a couple of days after hatching.

HENRY HAHN

DEAR HENRY: You certainly laid a new one on me with that story about the egg tooth. Sure it's not a yolk?

Do chickens have teeth?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went to a restaurant with my best friend and her husband, who I'll call "Al." The bill came to $55, and the men paid the bill with $60. The waiter didn't return with the change, so Al called him back and asked for the change. The waiter looked puzzled, but he gave him the change and a dirty look. Well, this couple asked us to go on a vacation with them, and we said we'd go, but that was before we knew that Al didn't believe in tipping. (He says as a matter of principle he refuses to pay somebody else's help.)

We'd really like to vacation with them because we enjoy their company, but my husband isn't sure he can put up with the embarrassment of being with a guy who refuses to tip.

Answer soon because we don't know what to do.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: If you enjoy their company, go! Your husband can tip for HIS share of the check while Al sticks to his principles.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the bride-to-be who wanted her real father, instead of her stepfather, to give her away, even though she said that her real father had disappeared during the most important years of her life, and her stepfather had been more like a "real" father to her.

I had that decision to make a few years ago, and the circumstances were identical. My parents were divorced when I was 2 years old. (My father left my mother for another woman.) I figured that my real father had already "given me away" once, so when it came time for me to marry, I chose my stepfather to give me away. I have never regretted it.

your health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—

I have a coated tongue and I have to rub it off every morning and night. I am now 55 years old.

I have asked several doctors and nobody seems to know what it is, but one old doctor told me once that there is nothing that I can do about it. Something like that is hereditary and I believe it is because my mother is the same way.

I am hoping you know what it is and have a remedy for it.

Dear Reader—

The tongue is an indicator of many diseases and of general health. The evaluation of the tongue, sometimes called glosology, was once considered so important that some doctors thought various parts of the tongue represented different portions of the abdominal organs. Such an idea today would be ridiculed—as it should be. It smacks of current quack ideas of relating bumps on the head or area of the foot to various bodily ailments and personality.

White tongue worries man

Nevertheless, the tongue may provide good evidence of a vitamin deficiency and its nature, various diseases, anemia and, of course, of related disorders in the mouth itself.

The coated tongue may be caused by many things. Often it is of little or no importance medically as your doctors apparently think in your case. Such simple things as sleeping with the mouth open can lead to furring or coating of the tongue. It is difficult to change this habit if you are a mouth breather.

Digestive disturbances often cause the tongue to be coated. One of these particularly common in middle-aged people is a hiatal hernia—a hernia of a small part of the stomach through the diaphragm. The tendency of acid digestive juices, and partially digested food to leak backward—out of the top of the stomach into the lower esophagus may cause "heartburn" and a coated tongue. I am sending you the Health Letter, number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux, so you can learn more about it. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1151, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Often the real cause of the common coated tongue is not found. If the person is otherwise healthy it can be disregarded. Cleaning the tongue after eating may help. Many people do not know that they can simply brush the surface of the tongue with their toothbrush. That will help clean off the back part of the tongue. Try this after every meal and in the morning and you may not have a heavy coating.

The tongue can be a source of bad breath in some people. Many people clean the teeth religiously and never bother to clean the decaying, foul-smelling food particles off the tongue. Food tastes better too if your tongue is clean.

Mouth breathing is sometimes associated with obstruction of the sinuses. This may be worse at night as the lining of the nasal passages tend to become swollen and boggy at night because the head is at the same level as the heart while lying down which promotes swelling in the face and head if there is any reason for swelling at all. It might be worthwhile for you to consult a specialist in ear, nose and throat disorders if you cannot solve your problem yourself.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally, but he will answer representative letters of general interest in this column.

Japanese give party to Twin Falls hosts

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Seventeen visiting Japanese turned the tables on their Twin Falls host families this week for a farewell party featuring favorite Japanese foods, costumes and crafts.

The party, held at the Presbyterian Church here, was attended by nearly 100 persons. The visiting Japanese—students and adults, all participants in the "Experiment in International Living," left Twin Falls Thursday for a brief visit in Los Angeles and then their return to Japan.

The group arrived July 29, and have been learning about life in the United States, and Idaho in particular, by residing with area families since that time. Many of the young people spoke almost no English when they arrived, but had picked up enough words to make themselves understood when they departed.

Chuck Upton, one of the host parents, said Masafumi Nakagawa, their young guest, had some difficulties during the first week and there was a lot of sign language used in the Upton home.

"We probably learned as much as Masafumi did, and we enjoyed him and his other young friends immensely," Upton said.

All 17 of the visitors dressed in costumes native to Japan. They cooked and served rice cakes, chicken teriyaki, anise soup, made of soybeans and ramen, a noodle dish, salty pickles, to flavor the rice cakes and other Japanese snacks and tea.

Many of the young Japanese visitors sold souvenirs brought with them or made after arrival here. These included scarves, paintings and craft items.

The 17 Japanese visitors represent one of the largest groups to participate locally in the Experiment in International Living program. Mrs. Eugene Stacey, program coordinator, said. Since 1962 residents of other countries have been guests in Twin Falls homes under the international program.

Those visiting this year and their host families included Hiroo Toyama, adult leader, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stacey; Yuji Hashino, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mariett; Satomi Ishikawa, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Britze; Chinami Maeda, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Walker; Akemi Mitomi, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Nelson; Akio Naito, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harris; Masafumi Nakagawa, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Upton; Yuki Nishino, Rev. and Mrs. Les Peterson; Yumichi Ono, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Nass; Akiko Sakamoto, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stalley; Kayoko Tanaka, Mr. and Mrs. Ingrid Stroepe; Masao Kobayashi, leader, Mr. and Mrs. Stacey; Chisato Furumagi, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Dingwall; Hisayuki Nishinaka, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Henschel; Kinichi Salmen, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harris; and Tomoko Takahashi, Mr. and Mrs. John Forbes.

Dual yule stamps this year

CHRISTMAS MAILERS HAVE CHOICE OF STAMPS THIS YEAR
... Washington at Valley Forge, crammed rural mail box

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Service said Saturday it will issue two Christmas stamps this year — one showing George Washington kneeling in prayer at Valley Forge, and the other a snow-custed rural mail box jammed with gifts.

The brightly colored 13-cent stamps will go on sale Oct. 21 along with reminders to "mail early."

On the Washington stamp, the general is wearing boots and sword and is shown bowing in prayer with one knee in the snow during the Continental Army's 1777-78 winter encampment at Valley Forge. It was painted by J.C. Leyendecker for a Saturday Evening Post cover in 1935.

The rural mail box, representing an important link to the outside world for many Americans, was designed by Doll Tingle of Westport, Conn., who also designed a needlepoint Christmas tree the Postal Service used in 1973.

The George Washington stamp will be issued first at Valley Forge, Pa., and the mail box stamp at Omaha, Neb.

Sanctions work best on CB's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Communications Commission study has found criminal sanctions are the best way to enforce Citizen Band radio rules.

But an FCC spokesman said Saturday several commissioners, including Chairman Richard Wiley, who must decide how to allocate the agency's $20-million budget, favor CB education over criminal enforcement.

The FCC study, conducted in 15 cities over six months, considered the effectiveness of education, criminal prosecution and administrative sanctions against CB users who violate FCC rules. The FCC's Field Operations Bureau said it found criminal penalties to be the most effective deterrent to misuse.

"Education and education with administrative sanction resulted in almost no increase in compliance," the FCC said.

An FCC spokesman said the most widespread problem caused by CBers results from use of high-power amplifiers.

Reforms in real estate lacking, Naderites say

WASHINGTON — A Ralph Nader organization charged Sunday that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has failed to carry out its legal obligations to reform real estate settlement practices, thus costing homebuyers at least $1 billion a year.

The accusation came from the Housing Research Group of Nader's Center for Study of Responsive Law.

The Housing Research Group noted that the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, passed by Congress in 1974, required HUD to work toward reforming practices that add up the cost of transaction to real estate.

"Consumers spend over $7 billion a year on real estate brokers, title companies and settlement agents," said a spokesman for the housing group. "Yet HUD has largely failed its legal responsibilities to protect millions of Americans from overcharges and anti-competitive practices."

He protested that HUD was using the time of only 1½ of its 15,000 employees to try to reform settlement practices. The result, he said, is a "fardly slipshod and uninspired" attack on the problems.

The complaints were made in a 20-page report and a letter submitted to HUD Secretary Patricia R. Harris. A HUD spokesman said the material was "under study" at HUD and would receive a "serious reply."

The study said most full-service brokers selling houses charge a fee of 6 per cent of the purchase price.

"Brokers' fees need not be so costly," the report said. "Consumers can take complete or partial responsibility for selling their own homes, as an estimated 10 per cent of home sellers already are. A small but increasing number of discount brokers provide ranges of services to consumers selling their own homes at savings of 10 to 50 per cent of the standard 6 per cent 'full service' fee.

"If consumers were to select different levels of brokerage services at an average cost of only 3 per cent of the sales price, consumers could save as much as $3.5 billion."

The report said reform in the purchase of title insurance could save $500 million annually, and changes in escrow requirements for deposits with mortgage lenders could be worth additional millions to home-buyers.

"Lenders usually require that home-buyers place certain monies in an escrow account to cover payments for local property tax, insurance, and the like," the report said. "Consumers wind up forfeiting millions of dollars annually since these accounts earn interest in only 5 of the 50 states."

China builds shelters, prepares for world war

HONG KONG (UPI) — China is expanding and improving a nationwide network of air-raid shelters and other underground facilities in preparation for a new world war, its leaders say.

The underground facilities include "many factories, hospitals, theaters, shops and storage areas for food and other goods," the New China News Agency said today.

Experts in tunnel warfare are working to upgrade the network of tunnels that run beneath most major Chinese cities to make them more suited to modern warfare, NCNA reported.

"Air-raid shelters with an underground tunnel network have been completed in many cities in China," NCNA said. "The shelters are equipped with ventilation, drainage, power and water supply and other facilities. Some include factories, shops, hospitals and theaters."

In one Peking shelter, where foreign visitors often are taken, a lounge is under construction, NCNA said. That shelter, located in the Tashan shopping district, already had a large canteen, a conference room, auditorium and other facilities.

One of the underground hospitals was built inside a mountain at an undisclosed location "in preparation against war," NCNA said. "It now treats patients in its 44 cave wards with 300 beds."

At another underground shelter, a granary capable of holding 5,000 tons of grain has been built.

The shelters and tunnels were built in accordance with the late Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's admonition to "be prepared against war" and "dig tunnels deep."

Almanac

Today is Monday, Aug. 22, the 233rd day of 1977 with 131 to follow.

The moon is moving from its first quarter to its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury. Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo.

French composer Claude Debussy was born Aug. 22, 1862.

On this day in history: In 1911, the Mona Lisa was stolen from the Louvre Museum in Paris. It was recovered four months later.

In 1941, Nazi troops advanced to the outskirts of Leningrad, Russia, during World War II.

In 1973, U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers resigned and German-born presidential aide Henry Kissinger was named to replace him.

Also that day, President Nixon assailed his Watergate critics and pledged to stay in office.

A thought for the day: American writer Bret Harte said, "One big vice in a man is apt to keep out a great many smaller ones."

Not much change through Tuesday

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert area:
Mostly fair tonight and Tuesday. High temperatures Tuesday will be 85 to 90 and overnight lows tonight will be 50 to 55. Wednesday's outlook is for little temperature change. Spraying and dusting conditions will be generally good during the early morning and evening hours with winds increasing to 9 to 12 mph in the afternoon.
Hailey, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley:
Mostly fair tonight through Tuesday with a slight chance of afternoon and evening thunder showers near the mountains. High temperatures Tuesday will be near 85 and overnight lows tonight will range from 40 to 45. Wednesday's outlook is partly cloudy with little temperature change.

Synopsis:
Under mostly fair skies and light winds temperatures Sunday climbed into the upper 80's to low 90's across the Magic Valley.
However, both Gooding and Jerome reached 95 degrees for the warmest spot in the Valley.

The flow aloft across Idaho is changing from the south to a more westerly direction. This will bring dry stable air into Idaho which will reduce the thunder shower activity across southern Idaho.

New audio battery

Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Gold Inc. has unveiled good news for hearing aid users in the form of a new battery cell that Gold says has twice the life of currently available products.
The Gold Activair battery, which will be available for hearing aids in the fall, is expected to be adapted for use in digital watches, calculators, medical instruments and cameras as early as next year.
Gold said yesterday the so-called button-cell batteries will be priced to compete with conventional cells but for competitive reasons wouldn't disclose the figure.
Conventional cells are priced from between 60 cents and 80 cents, Gold said its price would be less than twice that.
Gold's president, Daniel Carroll said that, in the first quarter of 1978, he expects the battery to capture $1 million worth of the $35 million annual sales in the hearing aid battery market. He sold 25 million Americans wear hearing aids and use 60 million batteries a year.
The 1.4 volt battery will be sold through hearing aid specialists.

Inflation slowup only short-lived

© Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Government economists see some slowing in the rate of inflation in the months ahead, but it's likely to be only temporary.
The improvement they see would result from a number of random factors during the rest of this summer and in the fall. Some merely would reflect a reversal of elements that led to the exceptionally high 10-plus per cent rates of earlier this year.
Price specialists feel that this winter the underlying forces of inflation will reassert themselves and the rate will continue at 6 per cent a year. Inflation with any deviation is likely to come on the high side as the low.
It's a gloomy long-run outlook, one hardly likely to build consumer confidence or encourage businessmen to invest.
Here are some of the reasons for the short-run optimism. If that's the term to use for expecting a slower but still high rate of inflation:
— Food prices, the principal cause of the winter-spring surge in the Consumer Price Index, have been falling at the wholesale level. They were down 1.2 percentage points in July, the second consecutive month of decline. What's more, bumper grain crops will keep them down for a while. In time, some of this slippage will be translated into consumer prices. Food is a major component of the price index.
— Prices of many commodities traded in world markets have come down in recent months, in good part because the economies of much of the industrial world are sluggish and not chewing up much in the way of materials. Metals are particularly affected — and, in turn, affect the selling prices of literally thousands of items people buy.
Inventories of copper were built up in anticipation of possible strikes and have forced both price and production cuts. Last spring's stainless steel price increase of 8 per cent has been rescinded as a result of listless demand and import competition.
— Even gasoline prices have weakened this summer, at a time when they usually go up as the vacation season booms. Presumably, the current oversupply will continue in the months ahead — or perhaps until the world market situation enables the oil producers cartel to make another hike in crude oil prices.

— Some analysts feel that after an initial firming on news of the forest fires out West, lumber prices may weaken, which will help keep home costs from rising so fast. Logging operations in many dry areas far from the current blazes have been suspended for fear of spreading the damage. But once conditions improve, it may be necessary to let and ship large numbers of single trees. Which, more, Canada is stepping up shipments to the American market.
In time, these price declines will come to halt. Some will reverse. Assuming that no huge or random factors again materialize — a highly dubious assumption — there still will be strong influences that will keep inflation rising at 6 per cent for another year and beyond.
One factor that not all economists give weight to may be the short-run optimism. If that's the term to use for expecting a slower but still high rate of inflation:
— Food prices, the principal cause of the winter-spring surge in the Consumer Price Index, have been falling at the wholesale level. The Hagerman Fish Hatchery operates a facility (SIC 0221) to spawn, hatch, rear and release rainbow trout, steelhead trout, and lamprey. The installation consists of the hatchery room, 36 raceways, waste water treatment, include metabolic by-products, fecal matter, and unclean fish food. All wastes are discharged to Riley Creek. These wastes are classified as Class A, according to the State's federally approved water quality standards.
The Regional Office of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has tentatively determined to modify the discharge permit issued on April 1, 1975, to include listed pollutants as follows:
The dissolved oxygen monitoring and limitations for Riley Creek have been deleted from the permit. Dissolved oxygen monitoring is not necessary to control the discharge of pollutants from the facility and does not affect the enforceability of permit requirements. The past two years data indicates that instream dissolved oxygen water quality has not been significantly affected by the discharge. Therefore, the expense of continuing and analyzing the samples for dissolved oxygen appears unwarranted.

Milk, beef, chicken abound

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers will find plentiful supplies of milk, beef and chicken in markets next month, the Agriculture Department said Saturday.

In a monthly Food Marketing Alert report, officials said September supplies of fresh apples, Bartlett pears, grapes and grain foods including rice, corn and wheat also will be plentiful — a term the department defines as more than enough to meet normal market needs.

Spokesmen added that supplies of pork, eggs, turkey, fresh potatoes and frozen vegetables will be classed as adequate, which means just enough to meet market demand.

Lower down the scale, officials predicted supplies of frozen orange concentrate will be "tight," with stocks much below year-ago levels.

In a companion report, officials urged household consumers, the food service industry and schools to make heavy use of dairy products during September. Despite an upswing in fluid milk demand as schools reopen, supplies of manufactured products like butter, cheese and nonfat milk powder will be far above commercial demand.

Milk production has been heavy since the administration raised dairy support levels last spring. The new food report said at current national use levels — the government now owns a 10-month supply of surplus nonfat dry milk acquired under its dairy support program.

Total milk supplies, in September, although declining from the summer "flush production" season, will be well above a year ago, officials said.

Government economists have predicted that if farmers harvest expected heavy crops this summer, retail food prices will remain fairly stable during the last half of this year and early next year.

For 1977 as a whole, retail prices are expected to average 6 per cent above 1976. Analysts said next year's increase may be smaller and probably will be due mainly to increases in middlemen's marketing costs.

In the September shopping guide, officials said beef supplies will be 3 to 5 per cent below last year's record — with most of the decline coming in grass-fed hamburger-type beef. Even so, they said, supplies will be about 5 per cent above average.

Pork supplies were expected to be about the same as a year ago.

The report said supplies of canned sweet corn, tomatoes, tomato juice, peanuts and dry beans will be plentiful. But stocks of dry split peas will be tight.

Avocado panel draws fire

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Friday passed a bill establishing a California Avocado Commission but not before it was attacked by both ends of the political spectrum as special interest legislation.

A 20-0 vote sent the bill (AB1602) by Assemblyman Tom Sully, D-Indian Wells, back to the Assembly for consideration of amendments.

Basically, the bill would allow avocado growers to vote whether to create a special commission to promote sales of the popular fruit much like ones other groups, such as almond growers, have formed.

Avocado growers would be required to make payments into a fund for advertising and promotion and the director of food and agriculture would oversee its actions.

Ailment increases

BOISE (UPI) — Equine encephalomyelitis among horses in southwestern Idaho is on the upswing, Dr. A.P. Schneider said.

Schneider said 26 cases of the sickness have been reported in the Treasure Valley area from Weiser to Glens Ferry, with only five cases observed in the balance of the state.

"Two cases have been reported in Gooding and one each in Jerome, Twin Falls and Lewiston," he said.

Schneider said the incidence of the disease in adjoining states appears to be about the same as in past years with the exception of Montana, which is experiencing more than the normal number of cases.

Between 120 and 150 cases in the central and eastern part of Montana have been reported, with one human case in Columbia Falls, Schneider said.

Fallowing harm cited

MOSCOW (UPI) — University of Idaho agricultural economist Mike Harker said bad laws could bring faster erosion to the topsoil of the Palouse wheat country.

Harker said laws which force farmers to adopt the erosion-causing summer fallow practice on 20 per cent of the wheat land is harming not helping the situation.

Harker said he is referring to the set aside program being proposed in which land would be left unprotected and subject to runoff and the elements.

He said the solutions are threefold: let farmers in high erosion danger areas plant crops to prevent erosion; subsidize farmers for planting soil building crops; or encourage production of oil crops such as safflower and flax to prevent erosion and gains extra income.

No complaints heard from educators

Controversial civil rights report dropped this year

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT—Elimination of a controversial federal civil rights questionnaire for this year drew no complaints from top Magic Valley educators.

Twin Falls Superintendent of Schools James Sawin called the 12-page survey "a very laborious process."

Minidoka County Assistant Superintendent Doyle Lowder charged it is "an invasion of privacy."

Norman Hurst, in charge of the Cassia district's civil rights compliance, said many of the questions "have no relevancy to effective education." Although the district has been cited for non-compliance, Hurst said he believes the new ruling will apply to it too.

The forms (OCR 101 and OCR 102) have been used since 1968, requiring an individual school report and a school district summary report. The 1976-77 report added questions concerning sex and handicap discrimination to the earlier queries regarding racial status as the report burgeoned to 12 pages.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano last month bowed to congressional pressure and announced the survey will not be taken for the 1977-78 school year and will be required only on alternate years.

Three Magic Valley school superintendents new to their posts this summer declined to comment on the questionnaire.

Sawin, newly arrived from Arizona, remarked that it is laborious, but could not estimate its effect on the Twin Falls district.

Gooding Superintendent Eugene Gibbons said he was not familiar with the form, never having had to fill it out himself. Minidoka Superintendent Wayne Fagg is in a similar situation.

Lowder and Hurst have worked with the growing survey and were critical of its content.

"It's an invasion of privacy, I think, on the parts of people," Lowder said. "I don't like it."

The form requires information on how many students have a primary first language other than English.

"That's very difficult to know without interrogating the student," Lowder said. "This was one of the questions I felt was an invasion of privacy."

Lowder also objected to questions on ethnic and sex breakdowns regarding corporal punishment and the number of students expelled or suspended for at least one day.

He said, "I don't see where expulsion in a local school district is any interest of the U.S. Office of Education."

Both the Minidoka and Cassia districts, after filing their reports in the late spring, received phone calls from Washington recently insisting on correction of discrepancies and additional information for the complicated form.

Hurst said the Cassia phone call two weeks ago took 1½ hours.

"I couldn't see why they needed to know a lot of the information asked in the survey," Hurst said. "It has no relevancy to effective education for every child."

He added, "It's a big questionnaire with all sorts of questions. I wonder what they use it for."

The Cassia district already has been under civil rights fire. It was listed in a lawsuit as one of the three worst violators of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 in the Northwest, following behind Fairbanks, Alaska, and Ontario, Ore.

The Office of Civil Rights found in 1974 that the district was "effectively excluding Mexican-American students from full benefit of, and participation in the Burley education program."

In early 1976, OCR accepted the Cassia comprehensive education plan as adequate to ensure compliance, but will continue to monitor the Cassia program until 1979.

"As far as they are concerned, we are in compliance, as long as we follow the comprehensive education plan," Hurst said. "We were not found in non-compliance on sex or the handicapped."

Hurst said the OCR review "has no connection with the survey" and Cassia should receive the same respite as other schools from the prodigious survey.

Hurst said the survey calls for "the ethnic breakdown of students in each subject area, each teacher has, requires the teachers' names, the sex breakdown of pupil assignments and other such detailed information."

"It makes for a lot of paperwork, because we just assign kids," Hurst said.

Jerome miss selected

JEROME — A Jerome high school senior was selected Sunday as the new Miss National High School Rodeo queen.

Janice Nelsen, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nelsen, was crowned at the "national high school rodeo finals" in Helena, Mont. She won the horsemanship division during the competition.

Winning titles is nothing new for the Jerome girl. She was named Miss Idaho High School Rodeo queen at the state competition in Burley last June. Last year she won the national bareback equitation title at the national Appaloosa horse show in Oklahoma City, Okla.

She competed with 31 candidates from 29 states and two Canadian provinces for the high school rodeo title, succeeding Leslie Ferreira, King City, Calif.

Miss Nelsen will be honored at a reception Tuesday following the Jerome County fair parade, set for 6 p.m. The reception will be held at the Jerome fairgrounds next to Messersmith Auction booth.

First runner up was from Texas, second place was from Arkansas and third from Washington.

The national title includes a silver trimmed saddle and wearing of a crown valued at $5,000, according to Jerome rodeo officials.

During her year's reign, Nelsen will travel to several national functions, including the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association finals in Oklahoma City this winter. She will represent the sport of high school rodeo throughout the year.

Minidoka fair opens

RUPERT — The Minidoka County Fair opened today with the entry of flowers, exhibits and livestock.

Through a decision made last fall, the 4-H and FFA competition is being held a week earlier than the Minidoka County Fair Board's Pastime Horse Racing, scheduled on the Labor Day weekend.

Exhibits will be judged in the merchant's building Tuesday, with the building closed to the public until 5 p.m.

Livestock will be judged on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The round-robin livestock showmanship contest will be at 6 p.m., Thursday, with the fat stock sale climaxing the Youth portion of the fair at 7 p.m., in the show ring at the fairgrounds.

The first livestock judging will be at 9 a.m., Tuesday. Beef quality and breeding, goat quality and fitting and showing, and horse quality and fitting and showing and performance will be judged Tuesday morning.

The 4-H and FFA beef fitting and showing will be judged at 2 p.m., Tuesday, and the livestock judging contest is scheduled at 7 p.m.

Hogs and sheep take over the competition on Wednesday. The 4-H and FFA swing fitting and showing and quality will be judged at 9 a.m., with fleece judging at 3 p.m. and the sheep judging slated at 5 p.m.

A tractor driving contest is set for 4 p.m., Wednesday.

Dairy animals will be judged Thursday morning. The 4-H and FFA dairy fitting and showing and quality judging will start at 9 a.m., Thursday. The judging of open class animals will follow.

Accident injures 3

RUPERT — Three people, including a seven-year-old child, received minor injuries in a three-vehicle accident here Friday noon.

Melaine Heinrich, 32, Rupert, and her daughter, Victoria, were treated at Minidoka Memorial Hospital and released. Also treated there for cuts and bruises was Hanna Pearl Grant, 21, Burley.

Driver of the third vehicle, a Project Mutual Telephone Co-op van, was Dennis Louis Dickson, 27, Rupert.

Rupert Police said Dickson had stopped his van, headed south of Idaho 24-25, waiting to pull in to a drive-in restaurant on the right side of the road. The small Grant car had stopped behind the van for the same purpose.

Mrs. Heinrich was headed south and ran into the small foreign car, smashing it into the telephone van.

Police cited Mrs. Heinrich for inattentive driving and failure to maintain insurance. The Grant car sustained $3,000 damage, while the other two vehicles received only minor damages.

Truck driver pinned

BURLEY — A truck driver was pinned for at least 30 minutes Sunday after his truck jack-knifed and rolled on Interstate 80 west of here.

William Rathbun, 34, Mojave, Calif., was treated for minor injuries and released from Cassia Memorial Hospital following the accident about 10:10 a.m. Sunday seven miles west of Burley.

Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue's extrication unit was called to the scene to cut the driver out of the truck.

Idaho Highway Patrol Cpl. Les Simpson, said Rathbun reported that he had pulled over to pass another vehicle and looked in his rear view mirror. Rathbun said that, when he looked back the vehicle was starting off the pavement onto the median.

The driver said he tried to correct, but the truck and its trailer both rolled into the median. The truck was loaded with produce en route from California to Canada.

"Simpson cited Rathbun for driving while under the influence of alcohol."

Many water systems flunk state test

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Nearly every community in the eight-county Magic Valley has some area or areas in which water systems will not meet new state Water Quality Standards.

Ian von Lindern, environmentalist with the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Twin Falls, said routine inspections are made at regular intervals of all municipal water systems.

Last week, he advised the Buhl City Council members of disapproval of the entire system there. Von Lindern ordered no additional water hookups until corrections are made.

"I doubt any other communities in our region will get disapproval," von Lindern said. "Many will be asked to make minor changes and improvements but I am not aware of others that might get a disapproval stamp."

Each public water system, which not only includes municipalities but other places the public might be drinking, must send in four water samples per month for testing in the state laboratory. Von Lindern said there are 37 municipal systems and about 300 other public water systems including those of businesses, subdivisions and homeowner associations with 25 or more homes.

"We do not have the manpower to make any special studies of municipal systems but we do routine sanitary surveys of every community and we pretty well know in advance if a municipality is not going to meet the new water quality standards," he said.

Von Lindern asked the Buhl City Council to submit a time schedule when corrections to the system there might be expected and to present a proposal for actions to reach minimum requirements.

He said he has received a response from Buhl city officials and it has been forwarded to the state office of DHW for evaluation.

The environmentalist said there is no special emphasis being placed on community water sampling, although there have been several instances in this area this summer in which small communities have developed contaminated water supplies.

Positive bacteria tests have been discovered this year in Albion, Bliss and Bellevue systems.

Von Lindern said generally it is a temporary situation which can be corrected by some simple procedure. Two negative water tests over a period of several days are required to clear the situation. When the positive sample is received, residents of the community must boil their drinking water until the second negative sample is received, he said.

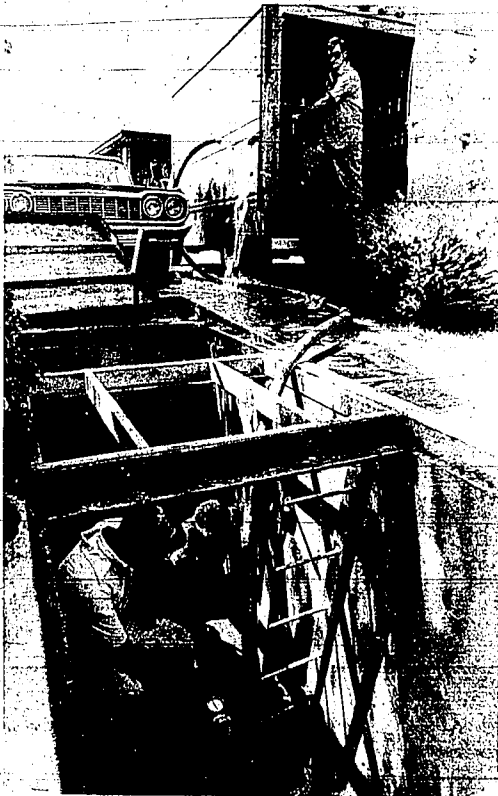

Bellevue was ordered to boil water recently. An irrigation reservoir was leaking, he said, and contaminating the city's spring water supply used for culinary purposes. One negative sample has been received and results on the second sampling are expected at any time.

Bliss residents last week were put on notice to boil water.

Water meter fix-up program under way

Lou Freeman/Times-News

TWIN FALLS — A program to repair, replace and clean the roughly 8,000 water meters in Twin Falls has begun, according to City Manager Jean Millar.

Under the plan approved by the City Council last year, Water and Waste Water Service Co. will begin fixing the nearly 400 meters in the city which are not working and adjust ones which are working incorrectly.

Millar said he estimates adjustments of water meters, some as much as 40 years old, will mean a 10 to 15 per cent increase in flows measured. Theoretically, the older a water meter gets, the less water it tends to measure, Millar explained.

With better adjusted meters, the city will more accurately measure water flows, Millar said.

The program will cost from $75,000 to $100,000.

depending on how much repair work is needed, Millar said. The company would be paid through increased revenues created by better functioning meters, Millar said.

During the next two months, the company will repair and clean larger meters. After that, it is expected to begin a larger maintenance program in which 100 meters will be taken out of service and cleaned or repaired at a time.

If the system of repair works well enough, city officials will then give the company the go-ahead to repair all city meters, a program which could take a year, Millar said.

In the short run, all increased revenues will go to the company. Millar said it would take from one to three years for the city to pay the company's fee with increased revenues. After that, all increased revenue would come to the city, he said.

Recreation board eyes budget change

JEROME — A disappointed Jerome City Council learned recently the Jerome Recreation District cannot take over operation of city recreation facilities before 1979.

Director Mike Pepper says the district, created by the voters last year, is operating on 1978 revenue, and the money spent this year will have to be deducted from that.

"We wanted to begin services for the people who voted for the district as soon as possible," Pepper says. The district's board of directors decided not to "sit idle" for a year before it could begin collecting its first revenue in January, 1979, Pepper says.

The recreation board meets tonight to consider changing its 1978 budget "in light of information from the City Council," Pepper says.

Mayor Charles Hancock says, "Frankly, I hoped we could relieve a millar two off the city budget."

Councilman Walter Bentzinger says the city is settling its recreation budget "about the same as we have."

"We had to set a budget and had to know what to do," says Bentzinger about last week's council meeting attended by Pepper.

W. J. "Bill" Bubak, another councilman, says, "I was a little disappointed they didn't send a representative to see us before."

"If the district runs a budget and we run one, it's double money," Bentzinger says.

Pepper says the district intends to take over operating city recreation facilities, mainly the swimming pool and tennis courts. The city, he says, would continue maintaining the facilities while the district would handle hiring, directing the staff, and paying for lighting, among other items.

"The city has not given us figures on what it costs to operate the swimming pool," says Pepper, who began as director in June. "We're evaluating the situation in light of the information I gained from the City Council, and the board may or may not change the budget."

"It costs more to operate facilities than operating programs, so the board said, 'Why not budget now for program development and administration?'" Pepper says.

"Our wish is that the people be taxed by the district both for programs and operations of facilities," Pepper says. "But we're operating 1977 and 1978 on one year's revenue, namely 1978's, which in turn makes it very difficult for us to add on additional facilities operations, particularly the swimming pool, until we have a full budget year, meaning 1979."

The recreation district's budget is $26,000 for 1977, and its 1978 budget will be announced sometime this month.

Hansen-Cove cops title by winning six straight

TWIN FALLS — Ace Hansen-The Cove signed up for the Newton slowpitch softball tournament this weekend because its players wanted to play a little more before calling it a season. So they played six games Sunday — the last four with no more than five minutes between — and then won an extra inning in the extra session and a double that drove in the tying run in the top of the seventh against Coors. Hansen-Cove started the day by beating Maxie's Pizza-Will O'Dell 15-2; dropped Moore's Business Forms of Jerome; trimmed Burton-Webb-Quilty Roofing 12-4; eliminated Donnelly Sporting Goods-Factory Tire Outlet 21-6 and then took a 7-4 decision over Coors. Coors led 3-2 going into the fifth inning of the first game before Hansen-Cove put two men on base. Bradley then stroked another hot shot into leftfield which bobbed momentarily and by the time Coors had thrown the ball twice more — the last time out of the park — all three runs scored. In the extra session, the game was searless through the first four innings and it appeared that perhaps Coors' storpye Hanky had taken the wind out of Hansen-Cove's sails with three good defensive plays. He leaped to nab one line drive for a flyout and was in the right spot for another. Meanwhile, Hansen-Cove had three hits to lead the bases. Bradley then made his bid for a ninth-straight hit, a little Texas leaguer over the third baseman's head that appeared to be trouble all the way until Hancey culminated a long run with a diving catch that ended the inning. In the fifth, Dave Livingston and Erickson collected singles and a sacrifice fly gave Coors a 1-0 lead. That lasted until the top of the seventh when Miller singled and hero Bradley stepped up to line an RBI single to left. In the eighth, Mike McIntyre singled inside the first baseline and Thompson followed with a liner to left-center. Coors' outfielder looked like he was going to try a diving catch, suddenly backed off to prepare taking it on the first pop and then, as the ball continued to carry surprisingly well, seemed to make a last-second decision to try for the catch again. Too late, the ball skipped by him and to the fence and both McIntyre and Thompson scored to end the day-long Hansen-Cove test. Coors picked up the second place trophy from Newton's while third went to Donnelly-Factory Outlet Tire and fourth to Burton-Webb-Quilty Roofing. Webb-Quilty Roofing had a good run, eliminating Burley Beverage 24-12 and Twin Falls Realty 17-6 before Hansen-Cove ousted them. Coors had gained the finals undefeated by beating Donnelly-Factory Outlet Tire in the morning semi-final.

Olavarria collects Sandpiper tennis title

TWIN FALLS — Second-seeded Jess Olavarria trounced Mike Bringham, Rupert, to win the Sandpiper Tennis Tournament Sunday. Olavarria, who has already tucked one tournament under his belt, beat a staggering Bringham, 6-1, 6-7 and 6-3. But the road to the finals for Bringham was an impressive one: walking over fourth-seeded Bob Zuckerman, 6-1, 6-2; and nipping first-seeded Bob Hovenden in the semi-finals, 6-4, 6-4. In the women's B's, first-seeded Mary Hoag convincingly knocked off second-seeded Joan Edwards, 6-2 and 6-3. In the men's B's, Israel Spinsola beat Bill Beeson, 6-4, 6-4. The women's A's was cancelled because of a lack of players. Other scores: Men's A's — Semi-finals, Olavarria-df. Allen, 4-6, 7-6, 6-1; quarter-finals, Hovenden df. Brian Olmstead, 6-4, 7-6, Allen df. North happy Westchester's final hole showed up before Archer did HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Andy North figures a lot of credit for his first victory on the pro golf tour goes to somebody he never knew. That's the guy who decided, a couple of centuries ago in Scotland, that a golf course should be 18 holes and no more. "I'm just happy we finally ran out of holes," said North, who staggered down the stretch to an even-par 71 and scored a front-running, two-stroke victory over George Archer Sunday in the $300,000 Westchester Classic. "I hit a bad shot at eight (into a bunker) and made a bogey, and then I just never hit any more good shots," he said. North made only one birdie on the incoming nine, a 3-foot putt at the 394-yard 10th hole, one of the easier par-4s on a course that traditionally has produced some of the lowest scoring on the tour. He had to make testing second putts in the 5-6 foot range to par the 13th and 14th holes, salvaged a par at 15 after driving behind a tree, and then bogeyed 16 (missed the green) and 17 (three putts). "He knew he had it won," said Archer, who was playing with North in the final threesome on the course. "He just got a little careless."

So careless, in fact, that when they reached the final tee, North's lead, which had been five strokes with six holes to play, was down to two. "That 18th hole looked about 900 yards long," said North. "It's only 569." But Archer drove it in the rough and lost any chance for the heroic finishing eagle he needed to possibly force a playoff. Both he and North wound up with routine par 5's. North's 72-hole total was 272, 12 under par for the 6,600 hilly yards that make up Westchester Country Club, and the $30,000 top prize raised him into six figures for the first time in his five-year career, at $112,687. Archer had 67 Sunday for a 274 total while Tom Weiskopf, three shots behind in second place starting out, had 72-276 for third. Weiskopf, however, virtually assured himself a spot in the field for the World Series of Golf over the Labor Day weekend. North, 27, became the first player without a previous victory to win at Westchester, which at one time was the premier big-money tournament on the tour. That had been an oddity since normally, the easier the golf course, the less chance form will prevail and the greater the possibility of an outsider winning. But the list of champions here has been impressive, including Jack Nicklaus (twice), Arnold Palmer, Julius Boros, Johnny Miller and Gene Littler. In fact, seven of the past 10 Westchester champions have won more than $1 million in their careers and only last year's winner, Australian David Gooden, who used to play primarily overseas, has failed to earn at least $900,000 on the U.S. tour. North, whose first three rounds were 66, 70 and 65, ended that, since his career earnings now are just $332,276. George Burns, finishing with 66, and Andy Bean, a 69 shooter, shared fourth place at 277. Tom Watson shot 71 and tied Leonard Thompson for sixth at 278, the 14th time in 20 tournaments on tour this year that Watson has finished seventh or better. The $10,200 Watson earned moves his No. 1 money winning total to $291,678. A group at 279 was headed by Jack Nicklaus, who had 66 Sunday, and Gary Player (70) and No. 3 money winner Bruce Lietzke (70) had 282 totals. Ben Crenshaw (72) and Hale Irwin (70) were at 286 and Gary Player had 74-291.

Cincinnati outlasts Lions in 17-13 win

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Substitute quarterback John Reeves hit second stringer Mike Voight with a nine-yard scoring pass 7:46 into the second half Sunday to hand the Cincinnati Bengals a 17-13 exhibition victory over the Detroit Lions. The Bengals had to turn back Detroit inside the 15 yard line in the last minute of the nationally televised game to raise their preseason record to 2-1 while dumping the Lions to their second loss in three tries. Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson rallied the Lions with a fine second half performance, hitting 10 of 15 passes for 104 yards before stalling on two tries from the Bengal 13 as time ran out. Detroit rookie Rick Kane scored twice on one yard runs, both set up by Cincinnati back interference penalties. The first Kane score was with 52 seconds left in the first half and the second came 2:28 into the final quarter. The second Kane plunge narrowed the score to the final margin, but Detroit was hurt earlier by its troubled kicking game, missing two field goals from inside 35 yards and fumbling one extra point. Archie Griffin scored on a six-yard run as Ken Anderson marched the Bengals down the field the first time they had the ball in the game, and Chris Barr added a 36-yard field goal later in the opening quarter. Reeves and Cincinnati's second set of backs and receivers operated with the team's first-string line in the second half, but the only time they scored was on their first possession of the half. Reeves directed a 50-yard drive and hit Voight to make it 17-6.

49ers overhaul LA for 23-14 victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett tossed a pair of touchdown passes and scored on a five-yard run Sunday to rally the San Francisco 49ers from a 14-point deficit to a 23-14 preseason victory over the Los Angeles Rams. The 49ers' victory left both clubs with 1-2 preseason records and cut the Rams' lead to 19-17 in the annual exhibition season rivalry. Quarterbacks Pat Haden and Vince Ferragamo each needed for TDs as the Rams battled to a 14-0 lead, but Plunkett's one-yard pass to tight end Jim Odravich made it 14-6 at the half. With Joe Namath quarterbacking the Rams in the second half, the 49ers' defense toughened, and a 50-yard field goal by Tom Wiltum seemed to inject life into San Francisco, cutting the Los Angeles lead to 14-6. The 49ers again held Plunkett started a 50-yard drive with a 23-yard pass to Kenny Harrison. Plunkett circled left end from the five for the go-ahead touchdown, giving San Francisco a 16-14 lead. Namath again was stopped and Plunkett bounced back with a 48-yard bomb to Harrison early in the final period. Fumbles by the 49ers' Wilbur Jackson set up the Los Angeles scoring. Defensive end Fred Dryer recovered the first fumble on the second play of the game and the Rams took over on the San Francisco 35. Haden then connected with wide-receiver Willie Miller for a 17-yard TD. A fourth-down stop, blunted the Rams' next drive, but a Jackson fumble early in the second period was recovered by linebacker Ron McCartney, giving Los Angeles possession on the 49ers' 37. Ferragamo passed twice for first downs, and a holding penalty nullified a TD run by Cullen Bryant before Harold Jackson made a teapung grab for an 11-yard touchdown that made the score 14-0. Following the Kickoff, Plunkett marched the 49ers 71 yards to a touchdown, the score coming on the veteran quarterback's one-yard pass to Odravich.

U.S. men dominate international meet

NICE, France (UPI) — The U.S. men's track team, participating in its first European warmup for the first World Track and Field Cup next month, won 10 of its 13 events in an international meet Sunday. But the U.S. women's team, without the majority of its top performers, failed to win any of its four events. Marty Liquori provided the highlight of the meet by beating Kenyan stars Helson Waigwa and Mike Bolt in the 1,500 meters in 3:38.6. However, Liquori is scheduled to run in the 5,000 meters at the World Cup in Dusseldorf, West Germany, Sept. 24 and Steve Nunn, the U.S. representative at the distance, could manage only fifth place, five seconds off the pace. Steve Riddick led a 1-2-3 sweep in the 200-meter sprint, clocking 20.38 to the 20.57 of Steve Williams and 20.86 of Bill Collins. Maxie Parks and Robert Taylor finished 1-2 in the 400 meters with Parks breaking the tape in 45.97 despite a gusting wind. The U.S. had a clean sweep in the 400 hurdles, with world record-holder and Olympic champion Edwin Moses first in 49.83, Wes Williams second in 49.23 and James King third in 50.09.

Cuban tracksters set 2 world marks

SOFIA, Bulgaria (UPI) — Cuban speedsters Alberto Juantorena and Alejandro Casanas crashed through world record barriers Sunday and Rosie Bryant captured the United States' first gold medal in an action-packed track program at the World Student Games. Juantorena, the double gold medal sensation of the 1976 Olympics, ran a race against the clock to retain his 800 meters Student Games title in 1 minute 43.44 seconds, just inside the world record time of 1:43.50 which he set in Montreal. Casanas, nicknamed the "Cuban cannonball," set the pattern earlier when he posted 13.21 seconds in the 110 meters hurdles final to better the record 13.24 which American Rod Milburn clocked. In winning the 1972 Munich Olympic title, Willie Smith, U.S. favorite for the men's 400 meters, had to settle for a silver medal behind Belgian European record holder Alfons Bridjebach who took the title in 45.18. "But then Rosalyn Bryant made up for the disappointment by landing the women's 400 meters in a photo finish. The 21-year-old P.E. major at California State University, just beat the long-legged Russian Natalia Sokolova at the line in 52.10 seconds against the Russian's 52.15. Bryan, from Chicago, had an anxious wait before learning the result and then commented: "All I can say is, Thank you, Jesus." Juantorena went out seeking a world record and had to do it virtually all on his own. The 23-year-old Havana economics student, his eight foot stride eating up the tartan track, left the other seven finalists for dead in his race against the clock. The powerful 6-foot-2 Cuban recovered the first 400 meters in 51.1 seconds, reached the 600 meter mark in 1:17.5 seconds and then unleashed a powerful finishing burst to cross the line 15 meters clear of Yugoslavia's Milovan Savic. "I was out for the world record from the start," Juantorena said later. "I had no other tactic in this race than to be in front from the very beginning and try to beat my world record. I knew I would make it when I looked up at the clock on the scoreboard 20 meters from the finish. "I think Mike Bolt is the only other runner who might beat me," Juantorena added. The Cuban and the Kenyan would have met at Montreal, but Kenya joined the African boycott of the Olympics. Casanas, like Juantorena is also studying economics at Havana University, was silky smooth over the flights in his event. The 23-year-old Cuban led from start to finish and had more than three tenths of a second on his nearest rival, Jan Pusz of Poland. Casanas said later his record-breaking victory made up for the disappointment of finishing second to Frenchman Guy Druet in the Montreal Olympics. "This is my greatest reward since Montreal where I was disappointed not to win the gold medal," the Cuban said. "This victory boosted my confidence for the 1980 Olympics in Moscow. I will definitely be there and I hope to win the gold this time," he said.

HAPPY ANGLER Claire Nice beams over the eight-pound trout she pulled out of Snake River Saturday afternoon.

Snake yields eight-pounder

TWIN FALLS — It isn't the family record but Claire Nice of Twin Falls now feels definitely part of the fishing club. Mrs. Nice got that feeling after a 15- to 20-minute fight with an eight-pound rainbow trout ended Saturday. She made the catch at her husband's favorite spot — anonymous hole on No-Tellum creek. Actually, the couple is a little more specific. Snake River not too far from Twin Falls. Mrs. Nice was using a spinning outfit with eight-pound test line and dangling a night-crawler as bait. The fish didn't put up as great a struggle as might be expected but it was lucky at times. Most of that came from clearing the line away from rocks and brush in the low water stream. But the moment of truth came just as Mrs. Nice said. The line came uncoiled from the hook. "He's always telling me to make a couple more wraps around the line..."

Same old pass rush

UNIFORMS CHANGED but Joe Namath still winds up on his back in the face of a pass rush by San Francisco's Cedrick Hardman. San Francisco beat the Los Angeles Rams 23-14.

Robinson ends long career with Orioles

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — In what was probably the most painful roster decision any Orioles' General Manager ever made, Hank Peters Sunday announced that, at the club's suggestion and with his consent, Brooks Robinson has been placed on the voluntarily retired list.

The move, dictated by the need to restore first-string catcher Rick Dempsey to active status after six weeks on the disabled list, effectively ends the illustrious playing career of the man regarded by most observers as the greatest fielding third baseman in the history of major league baseball.

The 40-year-old Robinson has played in 2,896 Orioles' games over the last 23 years. Only Ty Cobb, with 3,033, has played more games in the American League. But this season, in a dual capacity of player-coach, Robinson has seen action in only 24 games, batting only 149.

Brooks will continue to function as a coach until the end of the year, at which time he intends to hang up his uniform for good.

"I was planning to retire at the end of this season anyway," said Robinson. "I've just retired six weeks early. It's no big deal."

"I told the guys on this club that they'd need me in a World Series. Now they'll have to do it without me," Robinson added.

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver said "I once said that I would retire as manager when Brooks Robinson retired. I guess I'll have to go back on that promise now. I'll be at Cooperstown five years from now when Brooks is inducted into the Hall of Fame.

"It was tough to handle the Robinson situation the past two seasons when I had to pinch hit for him," added Weaver. "The other night, I was going to use Brooks as a pinch hitter, but then they changed pitchers on me, and I switched from Brooks to the left-handed hitting Tony Muser."

"It was tough. I'd go home and hate myself for not playing him. He was the best that ever played third."

He was also the Most Valuable Player in the 1966 all-star game and the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1964. His career fielding average at the end of last season was .971 — the highest ever for a major league third baseman appearing in more than 1,000 games.

Yachts divide races

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Enterprise and Independence dueled to a draw Sunday in trials to pick an America's Cup defender, while Sweden's Sverige eliminated Australia's Greta II from foreign competition for yachting's top prize.

The Swedes immediately raised champagne glasses to toast their win by 1:58 over Greta II, breaking a 33 tie in a best-of-seven series. Sverige will meet Australia, another entry from Down Under, in a final series starting Thursday.

For the Americans it was just another day in the rigorous series of selection trials to determine which of three 12-meter yachts will represent the United States in the World Series of sail, beginning Sept. 13.

It was the second time since finals began Tuesday that Independence skipper Ted Hood of Marblehead, Mass., and Enterprise skipper Lowell North of San Diego, Calif., split a pair of races.

Austin has Wheeling golf title

WHEELING, W.Va. (UPI) — Debbie Austin scored her second straight triumph and fifth of the year Sunday with a one-stroke victory over Hollis Stacy in the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Austin, winless in eight previous years on the pro tour, whitened Stacy's seven-birdie charge by firing a 2-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 209 and first-place winnings of $7,500.

Stacy birdied the 18th hole with a 15-foot putt from the fringe for a 67 and 210. Then she stood by and watched as Austin birdied the hole for the victory a few minutes later.

Laura Baugh and Jan Stephenson were the only others who took a run at Austin but both faltered in the stretch. Baugh took third with a 72-213 and Stephenson fourth with a 72-215. M.J. Smith turned in a 70-210 for fifth place.

Stennett lost for season

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Pirates second baseman Rennie Stennett, second leading hitter in the National League, fractured a bone and dislocated an ankle Sunday while sliding into second base in a game with the San Francisco Giants and will be out for the remainder of the season.

Oil men change minds about OSHA

DALLAS (UPI) — For the oil industry, the advent of the Occupational Safety and Health Act seemed worse than a dry hole.

With visions of oil fields cluttered and slowed by complicated safety devices, oil industry spokesmen said in 1971 that OSHA regulations would be "impossible" to meet.

But the regulations practically are routine today and some oil industry representatives even begrudgingly admit OSHA may be the best thing that could have happened to them, according to the magazine "Petroleum Engineer International."

The magazine, in its August issue, found that after six years of coping with inspections and directives, the petroleum industry has discovered that OSHA, "like dry holes and Senator Jackson (Industry critic Scoop Jackson of Washington), is something it can live with after all."

"The idea is not bad," said James P. Comer III, safety director for Noble Drilling Corp., of Tulsa, Okla. "OSHA has gotten management's attention and some things that had been difficult to do in the past now get done quickly."

Philip W. Blake, vice president of Safety Consulting Inc., of Wichita, Kan., quotes a contractor who was firmer: "OSHA is probably one of the best things that could have happened to me, even though I hate to have to say it. It has made me do the things I ought to have been doing anyway; and it has improved my equipment, my crews and is making me money."

OSHA has shown a tendency to go along with successful standards, the magazine reports, even "if they are" specifically covered by OSHA regulations. And the agency even has become involved with industry associations, such as the International Association of Drilling Contractors, in the development of workable safety standards and manuals.

An IADC spokesman recently noted that OSHA seems to be trying to be more of a help to the industry than it has been in the past. Willard Fine, IADC director of safety, said OSHA is putting more emphasis on performance standards and less on hard directives.

Hunt for Titanic in works

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (UPI) — Scientists here are exploring a possible expedition to locate and photograph the sunken wreckage of the ill-fated ocean liner Titanic, which sank in 1912 on her maiden voyage.

Scientists at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute say a newly available ship makes the expedition possible, but a major obstacle is the estimated $2 million cost.

Several groups have approached the institute about sending an expedition to locate the giant liner, which struck an iceberg about 400 miles west of Newfoundland, "killing" 1,513 passengers and crew.

"Finding the Titanic wreck," in mind, be difficult," Woods Hole geologist Robert Ballard said. "The real challenge in something like this is the photography."

He said the expedition, which would use remote control cameras to make detailed studies of the 882-foot ship, could be launched no earlier than summer 1979.

The ship which would be used on the expedition is the 243-foot Alcoa Seaprobe, said Capt. Robertson T. Dismore, chairman of the Institute's facilities and marine operations department.
