

Mexico hit hard by Anita

MATAMOROS, Mexico (UPI) — Hurricane Anita, diving sharply south, today smashed its 155-mile-an-hour winds into remote fishing villages in northeastern Mexico, then drove inland dumping rain and threatening flash floods.

The season's first hurricane frightened coastal residents from Corpus Christi to the border towns of Brownsville-Matamoros for two days, but then spared the population centers. Instead it struck 135 miles south of the Rio Grande, hitting the shore at latitude 24 north, near the villages of La Pesca, Las Guavayas, El Charco Largo and Soto la Marina.

David Olvera Gonzalez, spokesman for Governor Enrique Cardenas of Tamaulipas state, said the Mexican military on Thursday had evacuated residents of the 14 agricultural communities near the gulf. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

—A Mexican weather official in Tampico, 100 miles south, said heavy rain on the San Fernando and Purificacion rivers likely would flood all of the San Fernando Valley in Tamaulipas.

By 7 a.m. MDT the National Weather Service said the eye was 25 miles inland but that the winds were still about 100 miles an hour. The storm was expected to slide southward, and likely dissipate over the Eastern Sierra Madre.

Officials in Brownsville said the 4,000 mainland residents who spent the night in refugee centers had gone home and that all Civil Defense centers in south Texas had closed. The island town of Port Isabel, Tex., and the peninsula town of Boca Chica, both connected by a blacktop road over salt flats Salt flats were high tide.

Cameron County Texas Sheriff Frank Krause said he had no reports of injuries or damage in South Texas. He said the only visible indication of a storm were a few palm fronds blown into the city's streets.

The rains in Brownsville were far less than many thunderstorms deluged the city.

Brownsville Police Chief George Acres said Mexican authorities told him it would be "quite awhile" before any information was available from northeast Mexico.

"It's going to be hard to get in there, possibly only with helicopters," Acres said. "It's been raining hard there and the roads will be impassable."

Communications, even in the best of times, are sketchy along the coast. Only La Pesca, between the oil city of Tampico and the Rio Grande has widespread 800 facilities and those are centered in the charter boat fishing areas. Telephone service was knocked out early today by the hurricane.

Heavy rain moved up the Rio Grande through Texas and Mexico parallel with the hurricane.

Anita was the third storm in seven years to threaten the 200,000 people in the citrus rich Lower Rio Grande Valley and the third to turn southward in the first hours. The last major storm along the South Texas coast was Felix in 1974 which killed 31 persons.

Traffic was heavy out of the Valley all day Thursday. Residents stockpiled batteries, gasoline, lanterns and boarded up their homes and businesses.

Westerners decry 'theft'

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Governors from the drought-plagued West accused the Carter administration Thursday of trying to rob them of their management over water.

Wyoming Gov. Ed Herschler told a panel discussion at the Western Governors' Conference that Carter's proposed national water policy was a "grave threat to the West."

He said the western states "have been doing a tremendous job of allocating their water" and there is no reason to overthrow the system.

The criticisms came despite assurances from Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus that the Carter administration did not recommend the federal takeover of states' water rights.

"We never have and we don't see that as a probability," he said.

Andrus, who spent the day in debate and discussion, is the top federal official at the conference. After the water session, he told a news conference he anticipated the issue would be a hot one.

"What I think it is, is an underlying fear of the aristocrat — and you have to designate the area, as it does not prevail in Western Oregon, Washington, Alaska or Northern California, that some unforeseen hand is going to turn off that valve," he said.

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said he was "very suspicious" of the federal water proposals. He complained that "inadequate notice was provided for comments from the governors on the plan."

Andrus said the governors later were given a 90-day extension to provide recommendations.

Herschler said the federal proposal shows a "complete misunderstanding of what a farmer and rancher must do to irrigate."

The fears voiced "must offer" "that the federal government would issue water permits, make interbasin transfers of water and charge a cost-sharing ratio on federal dams and reclamation projects."

The governors were told again what they already know: that the drought is very clearly still with the western states and the weather picture for the coming winter is unknown.

Andrus earlier told the governors that local sheriffs in some areas are ignoring shooting and other violations on public lands and this may force creation of a federal law enforcement unit.

The governors at the opening session of the annual Western Governors' Conference approved a resolution "opposed to the establishment of new federal legal forces within the states."

Andrus, a former governor, said he agreed with that policy but he told of instances where federal officials were shot at and local sheriffs "have looked the other way."

He said no one has been hit but he will not jeopardize the lives of federal workers.

The shooting incidents have taken place mainly in areas where federally protected wild horses and burros compete with livestock for grazing.

Promoter raps high CSI center fee

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An Idaho-based promoter of family entertainment says an exorbitant rental fee of $1,500 per day to use the Expo Center at the College of Southern Idaho is pricing Magic Valley residents out of this brand of entertainment.

Doug Fitzgerald, Spectra Productions, Eagle, says he has been "thwarted" in his attempts to bring shows such as the Ice Capades, arts and crafts festivals, sports shows and many others to Twin Falls because of the high rental fee.

In a recent letter to Karl Black, CSI business manager, Fitzgerald wrote, "In fact that building was erected for the enjoyment and use of the citizens of your community, why in fact are you denying use to a company whose business it is to bring entertainment events to your area?"

Black, however, says the college does not approve of using the Expo Center for such a venture.

"It's a commercial production he wants in, bring in other people, make some money and wants the college to subsidize him," Black explains.

That is the reason the college and the five-man advisory board which helps arrange the scheduling for use of the Expo Center have set prices so high to promoters like Fitzgerald, according to Black.

Fitzgerald, who says he has produced family entertainment shows in the Northwest for 10 years and does business with the owners of other large exposition facilities, asked CSI officials in his letter to review the rental cost of the Expo Center.

"We have been in the business of producing exhibitions and trade shows all over the northwestern U.S. for the last 10 years and are very familiar with all the buildings," Fitzgerald wrote. "Yours ranks number one as far as costs are concerned.

"It is beyond me that so much money is spent to erect a building and then charge such a high rental fee that the building should not be used," Fitzgerald says.

"This rental fee is for non-entertainment supported activities," Black says. "College supported activities would not be charged the rental."

An event produced in the Expo Center "must be sponsored by someone locally in Magic Valley or even allow an event in there."

"It is questionable whether the board would approve if Fitzgerald's rental request at any fee," Black explains.

He says college authorities and the advisory board, composed of five valley farmers and ranchers, object to use of the facility for commercial ventures designed to take money out of the community.

Fitzgerald, however, says his shows are designed for entertaining the entire family and include such productions as a Boys' Bureau Show, the Harkon Gled Trolley, a Home and Garden Exhibition show and others.

He says he would like to bring the Ice Capades to Twin Falls this fall and a special Christmas Show later this year.

"I like to turn people on," Fitzgerald says about his type of entertainment. "I've been denied use of that building by some narrow-minded people who think I'm a city slicker trying to rip them off."

He says his shows, especially exhibitions, not only entertain thousands of people, but also stimulate local economies.

After a home and garden show he produced in Eugene, Ore., Fitzgerald says he passed out questionnaires to local businessmen who participated in the show.

Cocaine seized at Burley

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Two Arizona men were arrested early Thursday at the Burley Municipal Airport in what local officials call the biggest cocaine bust in Idaho history.

Billy Wilson, 28, and Henry Juarez, 21, both of Mesa, Ariz., have been charged with possession of cocaine with intent to deliver.

Burley police and agents of the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics seized one-and-one-quarter pounds of cocaine with a minimum street value of $52,000.

The arrest was made and the cocaine seized while Wilson and Juarez were in an airplane preparing to take off from the airport. Police also seized their red and white six-passenger Cessna aircraft.

The two men had been staying at a north Burley motel since they arrived in the city "some time last week," according to Capt. Pete Rodriguez, chief of Burley detective.

They were driven to the airport by a police officer disguised as a taxi driver.

Rodriguez said 10 men were involved in the arrest. They included three city detectives and two patrol officers, three narcotics agents, a Maldonado County sheriff's office representative and Cassia County Prosecuting Attorney Al Barrus.

Rodriguez said the men offered no resistance, although a loaded handgun was found in the seat of the airplane.

The detective chief called the cocaine seizure "the biggest haul in history for the state of Idaho." Barrus called it "our biggest drug bust ever."

Bud Mason, chief of the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics, said the seizure was probably one of the biggest in the state as far as quantity of cocaine or heroin is concerned. He said the value, inaccurate at $52,000, would be well below some other seizures.

Mason said he did not know if the seized coke had been cut, but that quantity would be worth well over $200,000 if it was 82 to 90 per cent pure.

Mason said the bureau has seized about a pound of cocaine several times and seized better than a pound of heroin in one case at the Homedale airport recently. He verified there have been several seizures of 100 pounds of marijuana and that 700 to 800 pounds were seized in one case in northern Idaho, but the value of the marijuana would be far less than cocaine or heroin.

Rodriguez said the case is still under investigation and there are "probably bigger people involved."

Because the cocaine allegedly came "all the way from Arizona," Rodriguez said, Burley police are working with Arizona officials. He said the case involves both states and that federal officials also are involved because of interstate transportation.

Rodriguez said the two men had been under surveillance since their arrival last week. He said police surveillance was instituted because of the aircraft and the contacts Wilson and Juarez made, among them several known drug users.

"We uncovered a lot of rat's nests," he said.

The detective chief said Burley police put in a lot of hours of surveillance and stake-out before calling in the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics for assistance.

The aircraft was staked out for two hours before the police officer taxed the two men to the airport Thursday morning.

Wilson and Juarez were to be arraigned in Magistrate Court here this afternoon.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment rose to 7.1 per cent in August as the jobless rate for blacks returned to pre-World War II highs in the depths of the recession nearly two years ago, the Labor Department reported today.

Unemployment has been hovering stubbornly around 7 per cent in the past five months, reaching a May and July low of 6.9 per cent.

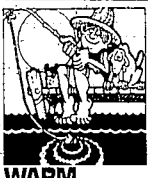

August's developments had news for President Carter, who is bogged down to suffer the political consequences of a stagnant jobless rate. The report is expected to fuel already vocal criticism of blacks disappointed with Carter's economic policies.

The 0.2-per cent increase in unemployment in August was concentrated among black workers. Joblessness for blacks rose to 14.5 per cent — a postwar high established in September, 1973.

Black teenagers suffered an unemployment rate of 40.4 per cent in August, with indications that all of the newly created summer jobs went to young whites.

PANAMANIAN LEOPOLDO ARAGON ... treaty for takes own life

FATAL FLAMES AT U.S. EMBASSY ... 'They must not sign,' he vows

Treaty foe's burns fatal

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — A Panamanian man opposed to the new Panama Canal treaty burned himself to death in front of the U.S. Embassy, mooting "They must not sign" as he was enveloped in a ball of fire.

Leopoldo Aragon died Thursday night at Karolinska Hospital, where he had been rushed with burns over 90 percent of his body.

In Springfield, Va., Aragon's wife, Rose Marie, said she knew her husband had planned to do something to show his opposition to the U.S.-Panama treaty, but didn't think it would be so drastic.

A Swedish television reporter said Aragon went to the Swedish Broadcasting Corp. 15 minutes before the incident and said he was going to kill himself.

"I am burning myself so my people ... will have the right to choose and decide whether they accept or reject the canal treaty ... in this protest, not in a Torrijos fascist referendum," Aragon told the reporter.

The treaty is to be signed Sept. 7 by President Carter, and Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos.

"It was calm and very determined," the reporter said. "He wanted us to film the incident to get publicity for his cause ... He did it because we had the chance to call the police." The incident was not filmed.

Witnesses said Aragon poured a fluid over his body

Governors accuse Carter of taking water controls

Andrus said he agreed with the governors' resolution that the Interior Department should work with local police in patrolling the vast state and federal acreage in the West.

A decision is expected to be made later this year on whether the Interior Department will contract with local law enforcement officers or do its own enforcement.

The federal government owns 56 per cent of the land in 16 western states.

Andrus sought to assure the governors they would have a voice in the regulations that affect management of the lands. Governors in the past have constantly complained the federal agencies don't listen to the states when making decisions.

Arizona Gov. Raul Castro told Andrus the public was "frustrated and confused" with the myriad of federal regulations being imposed on everything from minerals to recreation to wild life.

"Too much is coming too fast," Castro told Andrus.

The train has got to slow down a little.

Andrus replied the problems have accumulated over a number of years and must be solved.

Andrus told the governors he was not quarreling with them on any of the law resolutions.

"I worked with you on other matters. I will work with you on this," he said.

Andrus was governor of Idaho before being named secretary of interior.

He told the governors that when he assumed the federal job it took 60 days for the Interior Department to reply to letters from the public and governors. He said he has been able to reduce this to 21 days for the states and three days for governors.

The secretary said the administration has made it a priority item to return to the states the land the federal government owes them. He said there is 554,000 acres still owed the states and the administration wants to transfer those lands. He said 170,000 acres was located in Arizona; 103,000 in California; 27,000 in Idaho; and 22,500 in Montana.

Fish run request repeated

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — The Pacific Northwest Regional Commission, headed by Bonneville Power Administrator Don Hodel, Thursday decided not to resend its request BPA spend $4.1 million next year to restore fish runs in the Columbia River system.

After listening to a plea from Hodel, the commission decided to keep in force a resolution passed last week in Idaho.

Hodel told the commission BPA revenues in 1977 had declined by $70 million from 1976 as a result of the drought and the additional money for fish projects would mean added costs to ratepayers of the region.

Hodel said lack of water in the region's reservoirs had reduced BPA sales of secondary power and sales of interruptible power to industries and California.

Gov. Bob Straub of Oregon, who proposed the fish appropriation last week, said Oregon would not push for inclusion of the money because of agency's financial problems. The commission decided, however, to let the resolution remain in effect as a means of urging Hodel to allocate more funds to fishery projects.

The commission is made up of the governors of Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Straub and Washington Gov. Dixy Lee Ray attended the session but Idaho Gov. John Evans had been called home by the death of his father and Idaho was represented by a substitute.

Sweetener ban reply time longer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration today extended until Oct. 3 the time period in which it is accepting comments on its proposed ban on saccharin.

The original comment period was to have expired Aug. 31 but the Calorie Council, representing the makers of diet soft drinks, went to court on Aug. 18 to obtain certain documents from the FDA under the Freedom of Information Act.

In a notice published in today's Federal Register the agency said it granted the Council an extension of time because the court case is still pending. It added that it had now decided to extend that same action to all interested parties.

The FDA proposed its saccharin ban on April 15, citing studies which indicated the artificial sweetener caused cancer in test animals.

Dr. David Fraser, chief of CDC's special pathogens branch, said pneumococcal pneumonias were commonly and effectively treated with a wide range of antibiotics, primarily penicillin. He said the bacterial pneumonia mortality rate in this country, even with the availability of antibiotics, was 5 to 10 percent.

Medical authorities have been concerned recently that pneumococcal strains might emerge that could not be treated with antibiotics.

New pneumonia watched

ATLANTA (UPI) — A new strain of pneumonia resistant to most common antibiotics, including penicillin, has been identified and is under close watch by health officials.

The new strain is caused by a type of organism responsible for most of the bacterial pneumonia cases in the world, the CDC said.

The hard-core pneumonia strain was detected at a hospital in Durban, South Africa, where it struck five children and killed three. Subsequent investigation showed the strain, or one similar to it, had spread to 89 other patients in the hospital. However, they did not become ill.

Cases and carriers of the resistant organism were also found in Johannesburg, about 300 miles inland from Durban.

The CDC was notified of the development and immediately sent an observer to South

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The countdown for the Sept. 5 launch of the Voyager 1 spacecraft on its journey to Jupiter, Saturn and the stars beyond will begin at 9:21 a.m. Sunday, the Kennedy Space Center announced Thursday.

Voyager 1 is scheduled to be launched at 8:56 a.m. Monday. A space agency spokesman said there is a one-hour "window" in space available for the spacecraft beginning at that time. Preparatory preparations for the Titan Centaur rocket were described as "smooth."

High rental fee prices some shows out of area

He asked the merchants how much they would charge for their participation in the show.

The answers Fitzgerald says he received for his question were indicative of merchants who participated in the home and garden show enjoyed a total increase in the volume of about $2.5 million in their businesses.

Black, however, says the value of Fitzgerald's shows to the community is questionable and cannot be used as a criterion in reducing the rental fee to allow production of the shows.

"I can't feel too sympathetic toward him when he says he has an interest in the community," Black says. "If it was something we felt was of genuine benefit to the community, we would consider it."

He says the college and the advisory board are not interested in attracting entrepreneurs from outside the area to use the Expo Center for commercial ventures.

"It was built for the Magic Valley community," Black says.

"Other show promoters have been shipped short at the end of renting the Expo Center," he says.

Bill New Bussis, who produces auto shows and also operates Finchard Raceway, says he would have produced a rod and custom show in Twin Falls with many different classes of cars and a band of champions cars from all over the Northwest if it had not been for the dirt floor of the Expo Center.

"That was a bit of a disappointment," New says. "I couldn't imagine a banding without a floor. I had it put into a rental."

"None-wise, though, I think I expressed at the time they were completely out of line," New continues. "If one of the dirt floor didn't stop me, the other rental fees would"

New says his shows also boost local economies because of the extensive advertising in many from local media sources, radio stations and newspapers.

New says Twin Falls has a growing population which would support many other types of shows in addition to agricultural-type shows.

A survey of rental costs for other exposition type buildings similar to the Expo Center at CSI reveals a wide range of prices.

Ray Ritani, new manager of the Idaho State University Mainframe in Lewiston, says previous rental fee for the 73,000 square feet of astro turf in his facility has been $1,200 per day in the past, but may go up now that he is manager.

Ritani says he plans to schedule more commercial events in the Mainframe in the future.

Bob Glasgow, manager of the Billings, Mont., fairgrounds, says rental of the $8.5 million Alberta Coliseum in Billings is about $2,000 for 102,000 square feet of temporary space.

"Our space rental fees are less than in the East and Midwest," Glasgow says.

Dan Peters, manager of the Western Idaho State Fair in Boise, says it costs about $900 per day to rent the 20,000 square feet of concrete floor space in the exposition building there. The building is equipped with electrical outlets for displays.

At the Lane County Fairgrounds in Eugene, Ore., a producer can rent a building with 55,364 square feet of blacktopped floor space with electrical outlets at regular intervals for $675 per day.

The 71,000 square foot Salt Place in Salt Lake City rents for $1,875 per day for exhibition shows.

According to Black, the Expo Center with its 60,000 square feet of dirt floor rents electrical outlets installed in the floor rents for $1,200 per day for commercial ventures like Fitzgerald's.

Nuke processing terms set

London Telegraph — U.S. negotiators have agreed the Japanese will be allowed to operate a nuclear reprocessing plant for the next two years. The agreement follows the lines initially proposed by Japan. The surprising agreement, not thought likely at the beginning of discussions, is opposite to the proposal of President Carter's administration that nuclear energy utilization should be consistent with non-proliferation of nuclear weapons. Operation of the Tokai village reprocessing plant, a facility about 100 miles northwest of Tokyo, is to be discussed "again two years" from now. In the meantime the plant will extract pure plutonium and uranium from spent nuclear fuel. The Americans had been reluctant to approve production of pure plutonium. The plant is a vital part of Japan's program of re-cycling nuclear fuel.

US may quit sea law meet

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Subjected to growing harassment from a radical Third World nations, the United States is weighing a pullout from the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference. The conference, which has met on and off since 1974 without reaching agreement on any major issue, is due to reconvene next March in Geneva. The U.S. ambassador to the conference, Elliot L. Richardson, is leading a Carter administration review of the situation to determine whether the nation should go on with the Law of the Sea negotiations or whether, on balance, U.S. interests would be better served with no treaty at this time.

Some officials believe the United States may be better off trying to develop multilateral and bilateral treaties on such unresolved issues as deep ocean mining, environmental pollution, freedom of navigation, fishing rights and ocean research. A U.S. pullout would almost surely doom the 157-nation conference and any chance for a treaty in the near future. Growing demands and harassment by Third World nations have undermined support for the conference on Capitol Hill, where in late July the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee approved a deep-sea mining bill that it had been considering for years.

Air bag order survives

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Congress will not block a government order requiring that air bags or passive seat belts be installed in new cars beginning with some 1982 models, says the head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). "I don't think it's going to be overturned," Joan Claybrook, NHTSA administrator, told a small group of reporters at breakfast Thursday. "I think that knowledge is on the side of the air bag," she said. Under the terms of a safety standard issued by the Department of Transportation, which NHTSA is a part, auto makers must provide automatic protection for front seat occupants in 30-mile-per-hour crashes, beginning with all standard and luxury-sized 1982 cars.

Probers pressing Koreans for help

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — Investigators for the House Ethics Committee, led by special counsel Leon A. Jaworski, have started an effort they intend gradually to intensify to persuade or force the South Korean government to cooperate with their inquiry into the Korean scandal, congressional officials said Thursday. The disclosure of the secret indictment of Park Tong Sun, who allegedly was Seoul's principal agent here, will strengthen the hand of negotiators dealing with the South Koreans. The congressional aides said, but they acknowledged that some of their colleagues believe the indictment will cause the Koreans to continue resisting any cooperation. The congressional investigators, particularly want the South Korean government to return Park to the United States because he is considered a key witness in the investigation. But they were also said to want information from other Koreans, such as former Ambassador Kim Dong Jo. In effect, the investigators appear to be asking for a full explanation of the six-year Korean attempt to influence American policy, legislation, and public attitudes to favor South Korea. The instruments that Congress and congressional aides have at hand include quiet personal contacts with Korean officials, stronger public statements and as an ultimate weapon, the reduction or cutoff of military aid that would be used only as a last resort. The United States is currently negotiating a $2-billion military aid package with South Korea in connection with the planned withdrawal of American ground forces over the next five years. The Korean government considers that sum to be vital to Korea's national security. But the Congressional sources said the investigators will seek to avoid embarrassing President Park Chung Hee, who reportedly ordered the extensive lobbying, and in general will try to avoid a confrontation with the South Koreans. "We're interested in what our guys did," said one congressional aide. "But we have to know what our guys did to find out what our guys did." Park, Kim and other Koreans are alleged to have spent large sums on entertainment, gifts, travel and possibly bribes to win Congressional support. Several Congressional aides contended that the news of the indictment of Park would help put pressure on the Korean government. One said that "this will show them that it is time to come across. They can't hold out forever."

Judge rules out visit to hotel

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sirhan cannot be shipped out of prison to return to the hotel pantry where he assassinated Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to jog his cloudy memory, a judge ruled Thursday.

The judge said there was no precedent for such a trip and no reason to believe it would do any good.

Further, said Superior Court Presiding Judge William F. Hogboom, sending a prisoner back to the scene of the crime in hopes of reviewing clear up debatable points for history would be "to operate" the court under the authority of old wives' tales.

The U.S. scientific evidence known of a medical, psychological, or biological or other condition to support the claim this would revive his memory.

The judge denied Sirhan's request to return to the scene, saying he had "absolutely no jurisdiction to take a convicted felon on a visit to the custody of the state department of Corrections and permit him out to try to jog his memory."

Sirhan's attorney, Godfrey Isaac, had asked the court to allow Sirhan to visit the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel where Kennedy was shot in hopes of clarifying the "second gun" controversy.

GODFREY ISAAC
...request refused

Sirhan said at his trial and again to two county supervisors who visited him in prison in June that he "blacked out" and remembered nothing about the assassination, but a trip to the scene might jog his memory. "I felt there was, in fact, a possibility he would recall he was the gunman and he alone killed Kennedy," Isaac said. "If that was so, it would put some of the doubts to rest." "Unfortunately, we're not going to be able to find out one way or the other."

Adviser reconsiders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Carter transition adviser who concluded in January Bert Lance was ethically qualified to be budget director is having second thoughts, the Chicago Sun-Times reported today.

John I. Moore Jr., chief of ethics for the transition team, said he told the President in a letter Jan. 14 the Atlanta banker was free of conflicts of interest and would meet the administration's ethical standards, the newspaper said.

"I could not write the letter today with the allegations that have been made," the newspaper quoted Moore as saying. "It was written on the assumption things would be done at a later time. I contemplated that any assets, other than real estate assets, would be put in a blind trust." Lance still controls some business holdings, including stocks and bonds investment account partnerships owned with a brother-in-law, according to his trustee, Thomas M. Mitchell, the newspaper said. Moore told the newspaper he used Lance's personal tax returns, a government financial questionnaire, Lance's financial statements, and common sense in reaching a decision.

Moore blamed high unemployment for an apparent increase in anti-union sentiment among employers. "Union busting and high unemployment, have always gone hand-in-hand," he said.

If Carter's hurt, Lance goes

By JAMES RESTON
N.Y. TIMES

WASHINGTON — In the last few days, there has been a definite change in the White House attitude, but toward Bert Lance personally, and toward the "Lance problem." Publicly, his Georgia colleagues are still supporting him, but privately and sadly they are now conceding that he is embarrassing the President and will probably have to go.

It is still early, and Carter was just coming to the decisive phase of many of these questions when the Lance case diverted him. It couldn't have happened under more awkward circumstances. Harry Truman had trouble with old friends in the White House like Harry Vaughan, who had no power. Franklin Roosevelt had trouble with colleagues, like Henry Wallace, who had power but were not friends. President Eisenhower relied on Sherman Adams as his chief of staff in the White House, but had to let him go for accepting a few personal favors that in retrospect seem trivial.

It is precisely these fields of fiscal responsibility and organizational efficiency that made his banking record seem particularly vulnerable. Washington has been watching the struggle against the background of Watergate: one lesson of which was: in a crisis, cut your losses, don't let personal consideration damage your administration. Now, after an understandable delay to give Lance a chance to explain himself, this idea seems to be moving the President's closest aides, though there is still no clear evidence that it has moved the President.

Some of the leaders in the black community are organizing against what they call his "neglect." His initiatives in the Middle East and in China have not gone well, and he is facing hard decisions in Africa and on strategic arms talks, and a savage battle over the Panama Canal.

Build bridges over Shoshone

Mall: A shaded walk or public promenade. (4) A street for pedestrians only, with shops on each side, and often with decorative plantings, benches, etc. (Webster's New Twentieth Century Dictionary, unabridged).

Plans specified one of these would take place in downtown Twin Falls. It nearly has. But cars dilute considerably not only the definition of a mall, but the pleasantness of shopping in one.

While the major factors needed to bring about the desired qualities of shopping in aesthetically-pleasing surroundings have been present in Twin Falls for nearly 10 years now, some nagging problems persist.

Though inhibited by the physical design of Main Avenue, auto traffic is still a nuisance for the crowds of pedestrians drawn to the shopping area every day of the week by the mall concept.

Attempts have been made — though rebuffed — to find compromise solutions — to relieve the congestion caused by cars attempting to cross Shoshone Street on Main Avenue.

It's a soothing experience to shop in the Twin Falls downtown mall. People from other cities have verified that over the past several years.

It's not quite so soothing to dodge through traffic, however, when you believe you're walking in a pedestrian-protected area — the red brick crosswalks.

A recent proposal to restrict through traffic on Main Avenue by planting small bushes — down the center of Shoshone seemed to be a logical compromise to blocking traffic entirely.

Mall merchants objected. The City Council listened to the merchants.

How do the people, the consumers, feel about the Mall?

It often depends upon the point of view. For a pedestrian can become a motorist in a matter of seconds — and attitudes change as quickly.

Pedestrians want to do their thing — and it's a good thing in a unique setting. Motorists in a hurry don't want to walk several blocks to pick up an item. The merchant wants them both — pedestrian and motorist — and who can blame any of them?

But a solution demands attention. An arboretum in the center of Shoshone Street has possibilities, but carries with it some restrictions on the motorist segment of the merchant-motorist-pedestrian triangle.

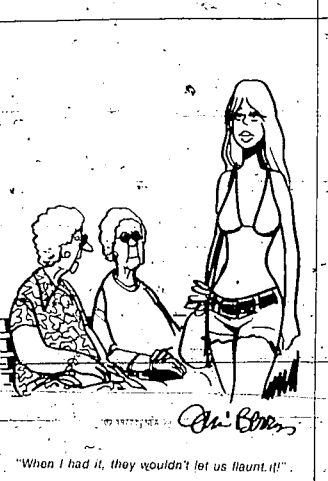

The row of shrubs not only would block through traffic on Main, it would also prohibit left turns. Another proposal rumored to be cooking would simply restrict left turns, either from Shoshone or Main, with signs.

Merchants blocked original plans to shut off vehicle traffic entirely from the mall, merchants again are exerting pressure to influence the City Council. That's not necessarily bad. All proposals should be heard, including those of the people who walk and walk along Main Avenue.

Perhaps pedestrian bridges arching diagonally and intersecting over the center of the intersection, or four arching pedestrian bridges, one for each street, would defuse the triangle and solve the dilemma.

So, we're back to our definition. A shaded walk or public promenade. Why not extend it over the street and avoid curtailing the flow of traffic for those who insist upon it?

Hairstylists don't necessarily swing

—1977 Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — I usually try to get haircuts in a traditional barbershop, rather than at one of the more contemporary-hair-styling studios. It may have something to do with the phrase, "lifestyle." In my lifestyle, I talk to barbers about the cuts and button my shirts to the neck. At hair styling studios, I get the prettiest women cutting and styling. The swinging action at Arnie's or Zorba's, and they wear their shirts open to the third button, with chest hair curling out.

to get a house. Kids. So that's why I moved to Berkeley. "I must be a big change in lifestyles — Lincoln Park to Berwyn." "You know what the biggest difference is?" "Let me guess: No swinging bars?" "No. Walking the dog." "Of course walking the dog. I should have known that." "No, really it is." "How can there be a difference? Walking a dog is a damn fine job."

"I said: What do I want?" "He pointed at my dog and said: What do you do?" "I said: That's what dogs do." "He said: Why do you do by MY garage? Why you do by YOUR garage?" "Then another guy comes out of a yard and he stares at me like I'm a criminal and shakes his head. And then another guy. And all three look at my dog like a criminal."

What's a matter you? I don't want in my garbage can. You put in YOUR garbage can. "I walked down the alley and put it in my garbage can. They watched me all the way. "Now I walk my dog behind my garage. We keep walking around in a little circle until he does his business or gets dizzy and falls over. That's the big change in my lifestyle."

Greece should start 'earth museum'

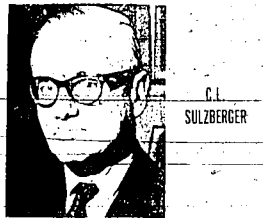

N.Y. Times News Service
According to Webster's Third New International Dictionary (1963), a "museum" is "an institution devoted to the procurement, care and display of objects of lasting interest or value. Naturally much leeway is left to individual judgment and contemporary taste when any decision is taken on a lasting interest or value. There have been collections of eggs, beads, beer mugs, draft wood or counterfeited stamps that might not normally be considered worthy of museum display.

History Museum of New York, the Louvre, the Teyakov Gallery in Moscow, the Prado in Madrid, and so forth. Some are glittering, well-kept, far-generously funded, like the Guggenheim in New York. Others have stunning and priceless collections but are dirty, stingily financed and filled with badly shown if not missing items, like the Cairo Museum where piratical spotters are kept in dusty cases, rubbish is piled around haphazardly, and uniformed guards brazenly cut tips.

My argument was that if such a project were to be started, it would gain a momentum of its own. Not only Greek museums and individuals should be induced to part with, or exchange special prizes but ultimately the movement might spread. Perhaps the British Museum could be persuaded to give up a single specimen of the Elgin marbles.

husband wrote me: "You're a wonderful idea. Ari and I apart from congratulating you for thinking of it, we would be delighted to help." In 1975 I took up the suggestion with Greek Premier Karamanlis but he has obviously been swamped in a series of far weightier and urgent affairs. Last January I again raised it with the Minister of Culture, a famous Byzantine scholar, the cultivated Constantine Trypanis, who pointed out numerous difficulties but promised to look into the matter.

Decade of ICBM draws to close

London Telegraph
 LONDON — The decade of the ICBM, when the long-range ballistic missile carrying nuclear warheads dominated the strategic scene is drawing to a close.
 By 1980, or earlier, both super powers will have the capability to knock out the launching sites of the other's missiles.
 This neutralization through the complete accuracy of the ICBMs will be achieved by the United States just before the Russians.
 But both Washington and Moscow are funding new and yet undisclosed strategic systems for the 1980s.
 Meanwhile the Russians deployed 80 new ICBMs during the last year.
 The information comes from "The Military Balance 1977," which is published annually by the International Institute for Strategic Studies.
 Other findings:

In the European theater the increased mobility of the Warsaw Pact nations' missiles and heavy artillery will enable it to launch a surprise attack on the West for there will be no requirement to send men and additional tanks and weapons on advance.
 During the past year, the Russians have increased the number of MiG-23 aircraft deployed in this area from 700 to 1,100.
 To lay the Warsaw Pact powers are deploying 20,500 main battle tanks in the Central and Northern sectors of the East-West front as against 7,000 deployed by NATO.
 Since 1962, the Russians have increased the number of divisions "deployed" in central Europe from 26 to 41 and the divisions are better trained and armed and are larger in size than the old ones.
 At the same time, Moscow has increased its forces on the Sino-Soviet border by 25 divisions.

 NATO has relied on off-setting Russia's numerical superiority by the superior quality of its weapons, but this is being eroded as new Russian equipment is introduced. The pattern is of the balance moving steadily against the West.
 The Soviet navy continued to grow, and the first of the three Kiev class aircraft carriers became operational. But a comparison of NATO and Warsaw Pact ship building showed that, excluding the increasingly important strategic missile submarine, NATO, as a whole, has kept pace with and sometimes outbuilt the Warsaw Pact in all but the smallest class of ships during the past 10 years.
 The Russians have been increasing their defense spending annually at the rate of 4.5 per cent of their gross national product (GNP), which is the amount of goods and services produced. American sources suggest they are now spending 11.3 per cent of the GNP on defense, while the Chinese put the figure as high as 15 per cent.

 The Chinese, who are about to transform their army into a modern conventional force, are spending between 2.5 per cent and 9.4 per cent of their GNP as against 6 per cent for the United States and 3.7 per cent for European members of NATO.
 However, the big spenders are Israel, which devoted 35 per cent of its GNP to defense, and Egypt, 37 per cent. Rhodesia and South Africa showed increases in defense budgets and are up by 22 per cent and 27 per cent respectively.
 The Military Balance notes that Israel, Australia and South Korea have begun to export arms.

On second strike

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's air traffic control assistants are on strike for the second time in less than a week, this time to protest the suspension of one assistant for continuing the work slowdown.
 Civil Aviation Authority spokesmen said delays and canceled flights were inevitable although they expected the confusion would be no worse than in the past two weeks.
 With the cooperation of airlines and control air-traffic controllers who staff the control towers, British airports have been able to handle up to 60 per cent of normal schedules with varying delays. Cancellations of some 30 per cent of flights plus the mass switch by thousands of travelers to road, rail and sea transport have prevented chaos at London and provincial airports, the Aviation Authority said.
 The airlines, which are not directly involved in the dispute, are being asked by British Airways alone, according to industry spokesmen.

Rhodesian blasts plan

SATISFACTORY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith today blasted the latest Anglo-American proposals for establishing a black rule in Rhodesia as "insane, insane, disastrous."
 Smith addressed a news conference one day after his massive election victory and after meeting U.N. and American peace package.

Asked if he was optimistic the proposals brought by Owen and Young would lead to a settlement, Smith replied: "I am no more optimistic now than before."
 "We are being asked to dissolve ourselves before knowing what our constitution will be," he said. "That's a crazy suggestion."
 Owen and Young said they encouraged him to discuss them with his people.

No veto of peace terms, Owen says

LONDON (UPI) — Foreign Secretary David Owen today brushed aside a Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's charges that the Anglo-American peace package was "insane, insane and disastrous," and said Britain and the United States would accept vetoes from anyone.
 "We feel if these proposals are to be vetoed, the outcome would be very serious," Owen said at a news conference.
 Andrew Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, said the United States supports Britain in the bill in their joint effort to achieve a peaceful handover to a black majority government in Rhodesia in 1978.

Smith struck a firm, uncompromising stance, promising to give the proposals "thorough consideration."
 The two diplomats flew to London, where they also were to hold a news conference today.
 After meeting with Smith, Owen told reporters: "I'm not optimistic to put it mildly, but I don't want to prejudice Mr. Smith's discussions and we encouraged him to discuss them with his people."
 The proposals call for a transition to black rule in two, disbanding the Rhodesian security forces, stationing of U.N. peacekeeping troops and establishing a new army, based on guerrilla forces and elements of the Rhodesian army. Smith previously has rejected all these points.
 In Lusaka, Zambia, the Patriotic Front—leading the five-year-old guerrilla war against Smith's government—Thursday rejected the Anglo-American proposals and vowed to intensify the war until Smith surrenders.
 The spokesman said the Patriotic Front objected to the loss of 12,000 peacekeeping troops and to retention of units of the present Rhodesian army during a transfer of power.

Conditions listed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cuba is demanding an end to the economic blockade as a precondition for diplomatic relations and the United States is insisting on at least partial payment for U.S. property seized by the Castro regime.
 As the two countries set up missions in each others' capitals Thursday, those conditions were laid out by Cuban and American officials.
 Partial diplomatic relations resumed with cocktail parties in Washington and in the dusty old U.S. embassy in Havana still cluttered with monuments of the day the Americans left in 1961.
 The United States broke relations with Havana in January, 1961, when Fidel Castro ordered his entire staff cut back from 47 to 11 staff members. The U.S. and Cuban "interests sections" have 10 members each.

William Simon raps Beame

WILLIAM SIMON

Humphrey may go home today

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Doctors say Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who underwent cancer surgery 15 days ago, is recovering faster than the average patient.

The 66-year-old former vice president was expected to be released from University of Minnesota Hospital today.

"With good luck he should be discharged," said Dr. John Najarian, chief surgeon. "He is well enough."

A hospital spokesman said there would be no news conference and no questions would be allowed but that reporters and photographers would be allowed to be present when Humphrey leaves.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary William Simon says he agrees with Securities and Exchange Commission report criticizing the administration of Mayor Abraham Beame in handling the city's finances, but he reserves judgment on the involvement of major banks.

Simon, who headed the Treasury Department at the height of the fiscal crisis, said in a televised interview that the Beame administration acted in a "deceptive and, in my opinion, highly dishonest manner."

"Simon, a board member of Citibank one of the major banks the SEC said 'dumped' their own holdings of city notes while selling commercial paper to 'unsuspecting' investors—said "judgment should be reserved on the banks because there are 'all sorts of reasons why a bank liquidates securities.'"

Earlier reports said that Humphrey planned to go to his home in Waverly, Minn., 40 miles south of the Twin Cities to recuperate for 10 days before returning to Washington.

Doctors discovered an inoperable cancer when they performed a colostomy Aug. 18. They said that while the cancer cannot be removed, it could be kept in check with chemotherapy for months and perhaps years. Humphrey is expected to start the treatments in another week.

Najarian said Humphrey recovered faster than the average patient, and getting back to work would help Humphrey very much.

British rock star missing

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — British rock star Joe Cocker has mysteriously disappeared in Mexico City after U.S. Immigration officials refused him entrance into the United States Tuesday and shipped him back to Mexico.

"We've searched, but come to the end of the line," said British Embassy spokesman Eric Nelson. "Nobody seems to know about his whereabouts."

Cocker was on his way to Houston when immigration officials detained him at the San Antonio airport because he did not have a proper visa. He was sent back to Mexico City on a flight Wednesday morning.

Cocker, a star of the Woodstock generation, apparently lost his papers somewhere in Latin America.

Liddy may take pauper's oath

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy may have to take a pauper's oath when he goes before a U.S. magistrate next Tuesday to clear the way for his parole.

Liddy can be paroled only if he can make satisfactory arrangements to handle his $100,000 fine at appearing in the U.S. District Court at Williamsport, Pa.

Since Liddy has served 33 months in prison and is believed to have hundreds of thousands of dollars in legal fees, a pauper's oath is considered likely.

If all goes well, Liddy will spend a last night at the institution, then walk to freedom and his waiting family Wednesday morning.

President Carter reduced Liddy's 20-year sentence, plus 10 months for contempt of Congress, to eight years, making Liddy eligible for parole.

Reward offered

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — A $25,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person involved in the New World Liberation Front bombings against the Adolph Coors Co.

Bombs have boobytrapped at least 17 Coors distribution points since July. The NWLF has claimed credit for the bombs, only three of which exploded. The explosion damage did no one has been injured.

The company hopes the reward incentive will aid law enforcement officers who are currently investigating the incidents. "It may also motivate knowledgeable people" to report information to authorities.

A California-based terrorist group, the NWLF has claimed the bombings at Coors' distribution points in San Jose, Silicon City, Aurora and Nevada City, Calif., and in Aurora, Colo.

The NWLF said the bombs were planted in sympathy for striking Coors factory workers. The employees walked off the job almost six months ago to protest a company demand that he detain tests

No fuzz on businessmen's wits

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Do it. It's Ham and Jim Postovsky think it's up to them to preserve a vanishing bit of Western culture, and being believers of P.T. Barnum's first law of consumerism—they have decided to become the next novel lint entrepreneurs.

A few weeks ago from the cool comfort of their offices, Ham and Postovsky watched the push four traffic fleeing downtown. It was a fiercely hot June afternoon and the bored businessmen had taken to contemplating their navels—literally.

"You know, I haven't found any lint in my navel for a long time," Postovsky said.

"Probably 'cause you wear polyester double-knit clothes," Ham said. "It's wiped out belly button fuzz — made it an endangered species."

For $1 navel pickers can buy a box emblazoned with the flame-red word "fuzz." Inside is a cellophane package of navel-lint mattress ticking from a local factory—a bumper sticker declaring "belly button fuzz is an endangered species" and a 12-page booklet describing "the fluffy stuff's origins, proper care, astrological signs and tricks to teach your lint."

Ham said belly button fuzz has hundreds of uses, including a last resort in strip poker, giving a shock to fastidious housekeepers and hi-fi enthusiasts, replenishing tennis ball fuzz, enhancing flax or oil-fact food lunches, and as a tip to snooty waiters.

Proper care includes avoiding vacuum cleaners, white shirt carpets, cats, Yonnis "fuzz traps," snow, rain, dead of night and 101 Am in.

"Fuzz always responds well to stroking," the booklet says. "Don't use a bristle brush on it, however. Also, don't use wax of any kind on it or try to give it a tub bath."

According to the booklet, some more lively pieces of fuzz like to have sunbaths on the beach, but remove it from the sun when it starts smoking or swimming.

"Fuzz is highly resistant to cold weather," the booklet claims. "But a word of caution is in order — don't wear it under long underwear. It may get lost."

Court solution studied

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger says the Soviet system of using laymen, such as plumbers and carpenters, as judges may be a way of relieving the strain on the country's backlogged small claims courts.

"This People's court system is very effective," Burger said in a rare interview with reporters Thursday.

"Regarding minor disputes currently handled by the complexities of U.S. courts, it is worthwhile exploring."

The Soviet people's courts are composed of a "trika" of judges—one professional and two laymen such as plumbers, carpenters or bricklayers, who serve for a period of two years.

Burger, on a nine-day tour of the Soviet Union at the invitation of Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, said "the people's court system has been under study for quite a while in the United States."

"He said American small claims courts are supposed to work in a roughly similar way as the Soviet people's courts, "but then top rate lawyers arrive and the next thing you know an elaborate jury trial is demanded."

"As I said, this people's court system may be effective in a minor court and the American Bar Association is currently examining where to draw a line between minor and major cases," he said.

He said a solution has to be found to alleviate the overworked American courts. "In the big cities, court cases are sometimes backlogged from four to five years."

ETHEL WATERS heart failure

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ethel Waters, who went from poverty to riches, then died in poverty, put all her joys and sorrows of her life into her carthy renditions of "Sweet Mama Stringbean" and proclaimed her deep religious beliefs in "His Eye on the Sparrow."

Miss Waters, whose career spanned 60 years on stage and screen, died Thursday at the home of friends in Chatsworth after a lengthy illness. The 76-year-old singer had suffered from diabetes and heart trouble since 1965.

Private memorial services will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Church of the Resurrection, Forest Lawn Mortuary in Glendale.

Born Oct. 31, 1900, in Chester, Pa., Miss Waters said her family was so poor she was the granddaughter of a black girl who passed as white.

In 1940 Miss Waters starred in 39 segments of the TV series "Beulah." After her last film, "The Sound and the Fury" in 1958, she made several television appearances, including such "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show," "Daniel Boone" and "Hoot" as their devoted "home" to gospel singing.

United States, Europe and Asia.

"Ethel Waters was one of the most unforgettable characters I ever knew," Graham said in a telegram from Austria. "One loss has been heaven's gain."

At 14, she began singing in Philadelphia nightclubs as "Sweet Mama Stringbean," and made her stage debut in "Plantation Revue of 1924," when she introduced the hit song "Dinah." In 1927 she appeared on Broadway in "Africania."

Her movie career began in 1941 in "Tales of Manhattan" and she went on to appear in "Cabin in the Sky," "Member of the Wedding," "As Thousands Cheer," "At Home Abroad," and "Rhapsody in Black."

She received an Academy Award nomination in 1950 for her role in "Pinkie" as the grandmother of a black girl who passed as white.

Valdez confident of win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Rufus Valdez, a full-blooded Ute Indian, is confident of winning the national chili cookoff again this year. His recipe goes back 2,000 years.

It was originally made with the meat of horses or deer, chili peppers and corn meal from the ears of stalks that grew only to the knee, No beans.

Valdez, a civilian engineer at Kirkland Air Force Base, won last year's championship at Rosamond, Calif., and will be back on Oct. 23 for the 11th annual cookoff.

draw a crowd of 30,000 paying $3 admission which goes to charity.

The contestants are furnished only with a table and a Coleman gas stove. They must bring their own ingredients — none to be prepared in advance — and various pots and pans.

Each contestant makes three gallons of chili. The winner is based on criteria of taste, consistency, color and aroma. Judges this year will include Robert Mitchell, Ernest Borgnine and singer Kathryn Grayson, one of whose hit songs — "I Cried For You"

Valdez' chili is made with ground beef, ground pork, onion, celery, green pepper, tomato, oregano, cumin, New Mexico' chili powder, clove garlic, salt and corn meal.

He says his Mexican wife has given him a tip on how to make the chili just that extra bit hotter that produces a champion.

Australian church OKs women priests

London Telegraph
CANBERRA—The Australian general synod has approved in principle the ordination of women priests and congregations of women bishops in the Anglican church in Australia.
 The ruling of the general synod, the Anglican church of Australia's national parliament, that there are no theological objections to women taking full part in the ministry has shocked some church leaders.
 Bishop E.K. Leslie of Bathurst, in New South Wales, said the arguments presented in favor of women's ordination were unconvincing, "certainly not enough to persuade me to lay aside centuries of tradition and risk alienating other branches of the Christian church."
 "God didn't create a unisex race," he said. "He gave us both sexes to complement one another — man can't be a mother and a woman can't be a father."
 Miss I.P. Jefferys, one of the five women members of the synod, said it was wrong that because Jesus was a male all priests should be male. "If this was followed to its logical conclusion all priests should be Jews, eunuchs and circumcised," she said.
 Voting was conducted separately by the house of laity, clergy and bishops. The house of laity voted 43-33 for ordination of women, the house of clergy 50-33 in favor and the house of bishops 13-6 in favor.

 The Rt. Rev. John Hazlewood, bishop of Ballarat, said he would refuse to ordain women as long as he was a bishop.
 The acting-primate archbishop, Sir Maurice Loane, who did not participate in the debate, made his opposition clear in a presidential address.
 He said the doctrinal commission's attitude that there are no objections to women's ordination begged the question.
 "I for one, believe that there are serious theological issues yet to be resolved," he said.
 The whole question is "rooted in theology and ought to be examined accordingly."
 It is now believed that it will be at least eight years before the machinery of church laws allows the ordination of the first Australian women.
 The immediate reaction by prelates in the Roman Catholic Church was that the synod's decision has set back by years the move toward union of the two churches.
 "There are already ordained women ministers in the Anglican church in New Zealand, Hong Kong, and Canada and this year some women were ordained as priests in the Episcopal (Anglican) church in the United States.

Tweeds appear in Wendell

THE Tweed Family Singers of San Diego will sing in the United Presbyterian Church, Wendell, Wednesday at 8 p.m. The family members have traveled throughout the United States and Canada and are on their way back to San Diego. The father and leader is Dr. Myron L. Tweed, professor of music, Point Loma College, San Diego. His wife Pauline will later this year sing the lead role of "Mimi" in the opera La Boheme in San Diego. Their son Randy, oldest of four children, directs, the R. n. c. h. o. B. e. r. n. a. r. d. o. Presbyterian Church Choir, while sister Robin is a freshman at Port Loma College. Her brother Gregory studies piano and little Heather, age 8, is also featured with the family in several musical numbers. Rev. Francis E. Horner of the Wendell church invites everyone to the Tweed Family concert.

Nation's religious practices change

© Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO—The rosary is making a modest comeback. St. Joseph statues are moving nicely.
 The bumper sticker tells what's in Christian hearts. And Jewish folks can wear Hebrew. Coca-Cola's sisters "white reading the popular "To Be a Jew" and "To Raise a Jewish Child," both by Rabbi Hayim Donin.
 The voice of religion is heard in our hand — a sometimes funny combination of church-going and laddishness, or respect for the Bible and zest for (married) sex, of honest devotion and a shortage of three-foot statues made of plaster.
 "There was a turnaround the last three years or so," said John Hopkins, co-owner of Gorman Church Goods House. "We're selling rosaries, scapulars, prayerbooks, first-comunion sets. We have demands all the time for three-, four-, and five-foot statues, but nobody makes them. All we can get are woodcarves out of Europe," said Hopkins.

 The turnaround reversed, if only a little, the post-Vatican Council II shift from Roman Catholics, from popular devotions of the past 50 years or more to "the new liturgy."
 Nobody said not to say the rosary — the time-honored series of prayers with beads — but somehow, with all the emphasis on participation in the Mass, many people stopped saying it.
 Church-goods stores serving the Catholic community went out of business right and left. Inventories gathered dust as the devotion of several decades either turned in Sunday Mass or dried up.

The renewed interest, says Hopkins, "is the net result of people searching for something. People in their 30s want something substantial for their children to hang on to."
 He may be right. The annual year-end Gallup Poll of religious attitudes and practices last December discovered what the Gallup organization said "could mark the beginning of a new religious revival in America."
 It showed a rise in church attendance for the first time since 1954: 42 per cent said they went to church or synagogue in a typical week in 1976. The figure represented the end of a five-year teetering out of weekly attendance at 40 per cent. In 1955, and again in 1968, 49 per cent said they worshiped weekly.
 What's more, the much more fluctuating percentages of those who thought religion was gaining or losing influence hit a standoff in 1976, with 44 per cent saying it was gaining and 45 per cent saying it was losing. In 1970, it was 44 to 75 per cent in favor of losing influence. In 1957, it was 69 to 31 per cent in favor of gaining.

 In another survey published in early December, 1976, the Gallup poll reported that 31 per cent of Americans claimed to have had a "sudden religious insight or awakening" of one kind or other. This moved George Gallup to observe, "It is reassuring to discover that religious faith for many people appears to be on a comeback."
 They read books, produce, arguing with that "when he notes another possible cause of increased religiosity — mimicry of religion by secular culture.

pression of religion. Cultural shifts both religious professionals but not the people. A lot of these things will never be eradicated," Father Coughlin said.
 We can all bet on that. St. Joseph statues, for one example, are an absolute rage. "Oh, mercy, it's fantastic. We've sold countless St. Josephs," said Ann Prete, owner of Averno Religious Articles and Book Store.
 "The stories we hear: a house on the market three years; they bury the St. Joseph statue in the yard, and three days later the house sells for the asking price." She said.
 "I did not know about St. Joseph and Worker in the store window — and bought the building we wanted for expansion of the business. Jewish people buy them too. They read books, produce, arguing with that "when he notes another possible cause of increased religiosity — mimicry of religion by secular culture.

'Whole new relationship' between nuns, lay people

© Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO—Many a Roman Catholic can remember how nuns trooped into church two by two for Sunday mass, and all sat in the front pew. But hardly anyone has seen that lately.
 The change is "one of the minor things" that have helped to achieve a "whole new relationship" between nuns and lay people, says Sister Jeanne O'Laughlin, planning officer for the Adrian (Mich.) Dominican Sisters.
 "Big deal, sitting apart that way," said Sister O'Laughlin in an interview between sessions of the national convention of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious at the Continental Plaza hotel.
 "We were the chosen ones. We were special. And all of a sudden, we're one with people. Instead of apart from them," she said.

 Sister O'Laughlin was to address the convention today. The annual meeting, which extends through Thursday, has drawn 570 administrators of 365 U.S. Catholic nuns' communities, plus 100 invited guests, including some priests and lay people.
 "The question used to be, what can we do for the laity? But now it's what can we do with them? What nuns used to consider their own private domain, they now think is a call to all Christians," she said.
 She agreed there used to be a lot of standing on ceremony with nuns and priests. "Yes, and the privilege of being special," she said.
 "It was hard to let go of that.

But we've been through it and have found a core of identity that has nothing to do with externals.
 "A lot grieved over the loss of being something special, until they recognized that everyone is special, and their identity doesn't depend on the habit."
 She referred to the official nun's garb, which has for the most part been abandoned, sometimes over objections by lay people.
 "Some would rather we still wear it. It's nostalgic and still special for them. But it's not special for us," she said.
 Asked to predict nuns' future, she said, "They'll be around. There will always be women and men seeking to give special services from a Christian motivation."

Carved wood decorations

NORWAY'S stave churches are masterpieces of ancient architecture whose origin remains a controversial issue. Most were built during the 12th century or earlier and only 22 of the original 750 remain today. Some historians believe the churches were rooted in the Viking Age, though others say they represent the Norseman's adaptation of the Gothic-style stone church.

Carter's stand 'harmful'

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—President Carter's fellow Baptists in Russia "think his 'spouting off on human rights' is harmful, according to the president of the American Baptist Churches, Charles Z. Smith, who recently toured the Soviet Union.
 The president is not a member of the Baptist group headed by Smith of Seattle. Smith, attending the 69th national convention of the American Baptist Churches, said that Christians in Russia "feel his (Carter's) pronouncement on human rights is interfering with détente."

 Russian Baptists told him, he said, that "it's to the advantage of the United States to maintain an appropriate relationship with the Soviet Union, and that President Carter's spouting off on human rights is doing a disservice to that."

 The President belongs to the Southern Baptist Convention, formed when the church split at the time of the Civil War. The American Baptist Churches, of which Smith is president, is descended from the other wing, the Northern Baptist Convention.

Burley Commerce manager to retire

By SHANE O'NEILL, Times-News writer
BURLEY — Agnes Anderson will retire Dec. 1 after more than 20 years as manager of the Burley Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Anderson recently made that announcement to the public today. Actually, the executive secretary-manager gave Chamber President Bob Hilliard notice of her intention a year ago.

"I took it for two weeks and it turned into 20 years," Mrs. Anderson commented.

She took on the duties as secretary-manager on Oct. 14, 1957, at the request of then-president Cliff Strom, manager of Consolidated Freightways "for two weeks. Just until they could find somebody."

She added, "After two weeks you couldn't have prided me away from this job. I wouldn't have traded it for anything."

Mrs. Anderson was born and raised in Oakley. She and her husband, Fred, owned Steamers Carpet Cleaners here until he retired almost two years ago.

"I hate to think about leaving," she said of her job. "But Fred and I plan to do some traveling—I appreciate all the people have done for me and the support the community has given me because, in the main, it's been just tremendous."

Mrs. Anderson said she will continue to be involved "keep my hand in the public life" and is willing to help her successor and the community any way I can.

She said she hoped to be active on legislation at both the local and national levels by convincing people "it's important to get involved."

Her Congressman, Greggs Hansen gets more letters from Mrs. Anderson than from anyone else in Idaho.

"The job has made me very aware of politics and legislation," she said. "I think if everyone would take time to write, they could control government agents, it would be government by the people again."

Mrs. Anderson became secretary-manager when the Burley chamber's office was a little corner of the lobby of the old Knappton Hotel at the main intersection of the city.

Two years later the office was moved to the lobby of Valley Glass on Oakley avenue. After a year, it moved into the basement of the city building in the fall of 1960 and has been there since.

"I always hoped my swan song would be a new chamber of commerce office building," she admitted.

The Burley chamber did have some money saved toward a building but Mrs. Anderson said the members felt this was adequate for the time being.

The 1957 chamber membership was only about 30, with only 11 present for Mrs. Anderson's first meeting. She said the attendance grew to 60 within a few weeks because "they had never had a lady manager, a lot came out of curiosity."

The chamber had $360 in its treasury then. Today it is financially solvent and currently is raising its dues for only the second time in those 20 years.

Mrs. Anderson's other disappointment is the slow progress of the Southern Idaho Regional Airport, a movement the Burley chamber saw its instrumental in getting started.

"That's the thing about going to tie our valley together," she said. "Economically we can't afford to be without it. I expect it to be realized within the next several years."

Father of the "regional airport idea" was the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce, which was organized at the suggestion of the Burley chamber.

The Burley chamber 10 years ago was the "envy of all others in Idaho at that time," Mrs. Anderson said, because of the city's industrial growth.

"We had a bigger spurt in growth in those 10 years (1957-1967) than Burley and Cassia County has ever seen," she said.

"It stemmed from opening of the first potato processing plant here, that plant was in the next 24 years. On top of that, when Mrs. Anderson became secretary-manager of the chamber.

The chamber aided and supported the other potato processors that followed in the next 24 years. On top of that, the potato companies came Del Monte with its canned foods processing plant.

Mrs. Anderson said the chamber's Industrial committee found ground and worked closely with Boise Casende Corrugated Container, which moved here to manufacture cartons for the processors.

Despite a census of just over 9,000 people for Burley a year ago, Mrs. Anderson still maintains it has grown from 6,000 to more than 10,000 in her 20 years as chamber manager. She cites all the construction of the past few years and says, "There are no empty houses."

Mrs. Anderson called her 20-year position "very rewarding."

She was sent by the chamber to Stanford University in 1959 for a "crash course" in chamber management.

She said she has attended 45 U.S. Chamber of Commerce arcades in major cities in the west, where she learned more about government and legislation.

"Learning about the importance of the people's voice in the affairs of government has been invaluable to me," she said.

Mrs. Anderson said the local chamber has always had good relations with city government and the city has worked closely on chamber of commerce projects.

"That's not true for all chambers of commerce," she said.

Among the highlights she recalls is her trip with Shirley Paulsen, first lady president of the Burley chamber, to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington, D.C., during the bi-centennial year.

She also remembered on attending a breakfast for the grand opening of the Overland Shopping Center. She said a man walked up to her and introduced himself as Jack Thompson.

Another time, she said, a member brought Will Rogers Jr. to a chamber luncheon.

Mrs. Anderson's first airplane ride was on West Coast Airlines (now Airwest) maiden flight to Utah. The Burley chamber negotiated every seat on the plane, they were greeted and wine and dried by the mayor of Salt Lake City and attended the Utah State Fair and were on radio and television.

For years after that she was teased that "I took 24 men to get me on my first plane ride."

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
1977 by The Chicago Tribune & News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Ron is 21 and I am 19. We're newlyweds, and our problem is the TV in our bedroom. Ron likes to lie in bed and watch TV until midnight every night, and some nights he watches it until 1 a.m.

I want to turn off the TV at 11 p.m. because I have to get up at 7 a.m. for work, and if I don't get eight hours of sleep, I am very crabby the next morning. Ron gets up at 7 a.m., too, but he says he doesn't need as much sleep as I do. Anyway, I can't fall asleep while the TV is on, and Ron refuses to turn it off at 11.

How can this problem be solved? Don't suggest earplugs because I've tried them, and they bother my ears.

CRABBY

DEAR CRABBY: You have two choices. Separate rooms, or a 50-50 compromise. (Turn the TV off at 11 every OTHER night.) But remember, although a compromise makes a good umbrella, it's a poor roof.

Late-night TV hassle

DEAR ABBY: I work for a large corporation and for the last few weeks, my boss has been acting very secretive. I walked into his office one day, and he quickly slammed his desk drawer shut. Then I noticed smoke coming out of the drawer, but I didn't say anything.

He supposedly stopped smoking three months ago, but I know he's at it again because I've seen him in the hall with a cigarette in his hand. He tried to hide it, but I'm sure he knows that I saw him.

I'm afraid he might try to ditch another burning cigarette in his desk drawer, forget about it and burn up the building.

Don't you think he's acting very immature for a 55-year-old executive?

Should I write him an anonymous note and ask him who he thinks he's fooling?

ON TO HIM

DEAR ON: No. Anonymous notes are also immature. But do tell him that in the interest of safety for others, he should refrain from placing lighted cigarettes in the drawer.

DEAR ABBY: Is marriage contagious? It seems to be an epidemic around here. I'm 21, male and single—and one by one, all my friends are getting married.

My first love went away to college, and during the first quarter, she fell in love with a theology major, and they decided to get married. Now she's pregnant, and I don't know whether to cuss or pray.

Another old girlfriend is soon to marry the drummer of a rock group. Other good friends, male and female, are heading in that direction.

Why would anyone want to end the fun of being young and foolproof by getting hitched so soon? All of them are under 21. Is marriage a contagious disease? I hope not.

SINGLE IN SEATTLE

DEAR SINGLE: Marriage in a sense is "contagious"—like divorce, sneezing up, or growing a beard; some people get the courage to do it because their friends have made the move.

But you're safe. Anyone who suspects that marriage is a "disease" is probably immune.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

your health

By LAWRENCE F. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I had my right kidney taken out when I was in my early 20s. I have lived a very normal life, but now I'm in my late 60s and am feeling very old and tired.

Please, doctor, will you give me who have only one kidney some advice as to how one should live? How one should eat? Exercise, etc.?

Dear Reader: Your feeling has nothing to do with just having one kidney. Nature gives us redundant systems, more than we need for good health. The two kidneys are a good example of this. A person can lead a completely normal life with one good functioning kidney.

Life with 1 kidney

My advice is the same I offer to anyone else in your age group. Eat a good healthy balanced diet that doesn't provide an excess of calories. One limited in its fat content, particularly saturated fat content and cholesterol. Exercise sensibly. For many people that means regular good walks. Avoid bad habits which include cigarettes and excess amounts of coffee, tea, and alcohol.

Feeling old and tired is not always a medical problem. It is often related to psychological factors. One of these is a lack of goals. As people get older and are no longer striving to progress in a career field, or make enough money to send the kids to school or pay for a home, the goals that stimulated the person are gone. Life is a lot like love—the chase is often the most interesting part.

You need to be sure you don't have a medical problem such as unrecognized anemia or diabetes or any number of medical problems associated with fatigue. Still about 80 per cent of patients complaining of fatigue have no physical illness. I am sending you the Health Letter number 9-6, Fatigue: Feeling Tired and Weary, to give you a better concept of what makes people feel that way and what to do about it. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1651, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10101.

Personal fulfillment is also important. Do you have friends and loved ones and do you get a full measure of satisfaction out of such relationships. If not, seek out people and situations where you get involved in other people's lives. Boredom is an important factor in fatigue.

Have you had a change in scenery? It is important for people to have a change in pace and scenery that helps prevent the boredom that saps your energy.

Are you physically active? Just slowly sinking into a state of inactivity leads to fatigue. Your body gets stale and the inactivity makes you feel tired. After a day at the office with little physical activity, no matter how much busy work and stress may be involved, a person feels tired and good physical exercise is often the key to feeling better.

There is a lot of people can do about their energy level that can help them to avoid feeling "old and tired" before their time.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column.

Despite fame and fortune

Michael remains 'down to earth'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Girls tear at his clothing—pull his arms, try to touch his flesh. One fan shoved him a hunk of hair she grabbed from his head and saved in her wallet.

Michael Jackson is only in and this has been going for more than 10 years.

Ever since he can remember, Jackson knew he wanted to be a singer. And since he was 5 years old and started singing with his brothers as the Jackson 5, girls swooned over him.

In the 1970s, the group — Jackie, Tito, Marlon and Jermaine, later replaced by Randy — began carving gold records for "I Wanna You Back," "ABC" and "I'll Be There." And they haven't stopped.

Jackson doesn't know how many gold records are plastered on the den walls of the suburban Encinitas home shares with several members of the large family, including parents Joe and Kathy.

"I don't see how a person can think they're better than somebody else just because they have a certain job."

But he does know The Jacksons, as the multi-talented family troupe is now known, has sold more than 60 million records. What was it about the group that clicked?

"The drive behind us, the push," Jackson explained. "We had a different sound. We were the first young group doing rock and roll and soul together. We had a style."

"But none of it happened overnight," he said. In Gary, Indiana, where he started, he released every day after school into the night. There was a big baseball park behind us and we'd listen to the maring of the crowd, the home runs, and we'd want to get out there and do that too, but we couldn't."

Jackson said he made up for missing the "normal" childhood things. "We got to see things that ordinary kids don't get to see. Things you study about in history books."

The softspoken, handsome young man was recovering from a cold and although he had to take frequent breaks to regain his strength, he remained smiling and cooperative throughout a day-long session of interviews. He is confident about his ability and the group's overwhelming success, but still appears down to earth and even a trifle shy.

"I don't see how a person can get big headed. Ever since I can remember I was told, 'don't get a big head, don't get a big head.' I don't see how a person can think they're better than somebody else just because they have a certain job."

"If I was king, I wouldn't think I was better than the people, because they made me king. What is the king without people? What am I without the fans? I'd still be me, but not where I am today."

For all he owes the fans, though, he admits that sometimes their love can be dangerous. "Sometimes you get mobbed and you feel terrible. They just grab you. It's the worst feeling when they mob you. London was the worst. The security guards made a long line. Fans were pushing and the whole line just caved in and all these fans got in the car with us. That's my legs."

And there is a disturbing lack of privacy. "People come in and act like they own you," he said, shaking his head in disbelief. "That's awful. There are people who jump our gate, come and sit right here in the den. There was one lady who took a whole tour of the house."

Jackson said the group is growing musically and is starting to write more of its own material.

"I write when I want to put a message across. I don't like simple stories and I get tired of love songs all the time. I like different things. I like to write about a tree or a dog or a horse. In our new album I like 'Different Kind of Lady.' It's smokin'—you can dance to it."

A few of his brothers and Jackson, have made their own albums and Michael is trying acting with the part of the Scarecrow in the movie "The Wiz." But with all the diversity, the family is still close and works often together.

"There are never any fights. If there were any, I don't think I could take it. Ugh, I hate that. You have to get along."

MICHAEL JACKSON HAS ALWAYS WANTED TO BE SINGER. Now 18, he has been performing since he was 5.

Medic Alert plan protects thousands

TURLOCK, Calif. (UPI) — A 14-year-old California girl's brush with death 21 years ago turned out to be the best thing that could have happened for thousands of Americans who require special precautions in medical emergencies.

In the summer of 1954, Linda Collins cut her finger on an air filter while her parents were out of town. She was taken to a hospital and before giving her a tetanus shot an intern put a drop of the serum on her arm and pricked the skin with a needle. At that time, it was the only way he could determine if she was allergic to the serum.

She was Linda went into a coma when the anti-tetanus serum entered her body, and was near death for three days before returning home.

When her father, Dr. Marion Collins returned home and learned how close he came to losing his daughter because her allergy was unknown, he resolved to do something about it.

Three years later he founded Medic Alert to offer protection but only to his daughter but to the millions of persons for whom conventional emergency treatment can be dangerous.

His daughter because her allergy was unknown, he resolved to do something about it.

Three years later he founded Medic Alert to offer protection but only to his daughter but to the millions of persons for whom conventional emergency treatment can be dangerous.

Linda, now 38 and a registered nurse, was the first of now more than a million Medic Alert patients in the United States and many thousands more registered with the program's 16 foreign affiliates.

The Medic Alert Service, founded by Collins is still headquartered in this small central-California farming community. Collins, who died in early August, headed the service until he retired three years ago.

"We get more than 300 calls a year in medical emergencies for our members," said Fred Hunter, executive vice president of Medic Alert.

"In one recent 12 month period we had more than 2,000 testimonial letters from members who said that without the program they would have died."

Hunter said Medic Alert offers peace of mind to its members because it assures them that in an emergency severe enough to render them incapable of communicating with a physician, their special medical needs still will be recognized.

To become members, applicants fill out forms available at many hospitals, doctors' offices and pharmacies, listing their medical history and hidden disorders such as allergies to drugs.

A one-time fee of $10 is charged to record the information in the Medic Alert computer and the new member is sent either a bracelet or necklace with the international medical symbol on one side. On the other side is a list of allergies or other noticeable ailments such as diabetes or other disorders requiring precautions.

A telephone number is also listed, which medical authorities can call collect, to get a complete account of the member's medical history.

When a doctor, paramedic or other medical authority calls the Medic Alert number in Turlock it takes only 12 to 20 seconds for the operator to find a member's information card and relay the needed information.

"We have never made a mistake in an emergency in the 21 years the program has been in operation," Hunter said. "All the information on a patient, including any updated information, is on a computer microfilm and can be retrieved in less than half a minute in an emergency."

MEDIC ALERT BRACELET IS ENGRAVED WITH VALUABLE MEDICAL INFORMATION ON THE BACK. more than one million U.S. people and thousands in other countries wear the bracelet or necklace.

Terrorists issue threat

Club bomb fails to explode

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A bomb was planted at the prestigious Pacific Union Club on Nob Hill early Thursday but failed to explode, and police said the terrorist New World Liberation Front threatened to attack six of San Francisco's leading hotels.

The crude bomb, consisting of six sticks of blasting gelatin, had been activated but failed to explode.

Police were alerted by Michael O'Connor, a television newsman, who said he received a call at his home about 2:30 a.m. from a woman who said the New World Liberation Front planted the bomb.

The woman directed O'Connor to a telephone booth in which he found a communique from the terrorist group "claiming" Nob Hill, where the exclusive club is located, is the heart of ruling class tourism.

The underground group's message threatened the "hoarded wealth of Nob Hill" including the Fairmont, Mark Hopkins, Stanford Court, Sheraton-Palace, Hyatt Regency and Hilton hotels.

Several of the hotels are located on Nob Hill near the Pacific Union Club. Police searched all of them without finding any other bombs.

The Pacific Union Club bomb would have caused extensive damage if it had gone off, according to bomb squad officers who disarmed it. The club building, a landmark on Nob Hill since the 19th century, is a four-story red sandstone structure originally built by pioneer San Francisco businessman James Flood.

The New World Liberation Front has claimed responsibility for numerous terrorist bombings in the San Francisco area over the past three years.

The organization was blamed for an explosion earlier this week at an electric power station in Sausalito which blacked out the community.

'Sam' aware of charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Accused "Son of Sam" murderer David Berkowitz is mentally unfit to stand trial but is "well aware of the charges against him" and understands his alleged actions were criminal, a psychiatric report disclosed today.

The report is the same one delivered in Brooklyn Supreme Court on Tuesday, but details of the eight-page document were released for the first time as Queens District Attorney John Sauter read portions of it into the record at a competency hearing in Queens Supreme Court.

During the hearing, two phone threats were made against chief defense counsel Mark Heller, one saying he would be shot and the other a bomb threat. Three defense attorneys were later taken from the courthouse without incident.

The report said Berkowitz is "well aware of the charges against him and understands that his society's standards, what he did is illegal," but added he "feels so emotionally dead that the outcome of this case is totally immaterial to him."

The psychiatrist concluded that "said defendant, as a result of mental disease or defect, lacks the capacity to understand the proceeding against him or to assist in his own defense."

The suspect in the six December killings must undergo official competency hearings in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx — the three jurisdictions of the "Son of Sam" murders — and could conceivably be judged fit to stand trial in one county and unfit in another.

EDWARD WEEKS DISPLAYS 'MONSTER' REGULAR PEANUTS 'CROSSIN' UP SEEDS' POSSES 'CHALLENGE' FOR HIM

Seed man begets monsters

TARBORO, N.J. (UPI) — Edward Weeks doesn't just grow watermelons. He calls them monster melons — the size of washbasins. The Guinness Book of World Records has certified for its 1978 edition his 197-pound watermelon as the biggest grown in the world. "Yep, the county agent and Congressman L.H. Fountain stand right here and weighed it on official scales," he said proudly.

Last Friday, a Chicago supermarket sent a pickup truck and a work crew to load up 20 of Weeks' 199-pound watermelons. It took two men and a slab of thick canvas to pick up each one. The men complained of sore backs.

Dozens of giant melons have been taken from his fields and they sell for $30 to $75 each. But that's not how Weeks makes his living.

He sells seeds. The 197-producer produced 1,717 seeds. Weeks sells them and thousands of others in 100 seed stores across North Carolina and by mail order to 49 states.

Since Weeks began "crossin' up seeds" back in 1964, his fields have drawn crowds from such places as New Jersey and Chicago. They come to look at 160-pound pumpkins the size of an armchair, ears of corn 15 inches long, a peanut the size of a small ear of corn, a 29-pound cantaloupe and three-pound tomatoes — the size of volleyballs.

"It's a challenge, I reckon," Weeks said.

Weeks started crossing seeds as a hobby after watching his father develop the process.

"Daddy was never interested in seeing how big he could get," Weeks said. "He just had fun with it."

But Weeks is fascinated with his ability to grow giant plants. He saves seeds from year to year, strategically planting larger and larger strains which are pollinated by bees. He mixes his own special brand of fertilizer and adheres to a few simple growing secrets.

Watermelons grown from Weeks' seeds have set records in Florida and Alabama. A Florida man claimed to have grown six melons totaling 1,400 pounds from a single vine from Weeks' seeds.

"And somebody stole the biggest one!" he said.

Somebody tried to steal some of Weeks' melons too, but dropped them in the field.

"Do you know how heavy 'em," he said.

Raw farm product prices edge down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices of raw farm products fell another 3 per cent in the month ending Aug. 15, the third consecutive monthly drop, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The average for crops and livestock as they left farmer's hands en route to processors and consumers was 6 per cent below a year earlier and was the lowest since last November.

The continuing decline strengthened administration forecasts that retail food prices will remain stable through the rest of 1977 and will rise more slowly in 1978 than they did this year.

With big grain supplies pointing to more meat, milk and poultry output next year than previously expected, analysts said 1978 retail food inflation probably would fall below the 6 per cent forecast for 1977.

Farm prices declined 2 per cent in July and 5 per cent in June under the impact of reports indicating another year of bumper harvests.

Prices rose 12 per cent from last November through May.

The drops for corn and other crops were partly offset by higher prices for tobacco, oranges and milk.

Comparing farm product prices and farm costs, officials said farmers' returns in mid-August were 64 per cent of the "fictitious" standard, down slightly from the 65 per cent reported in July and the lowest since March of 1933.

President Carter, facing prospects of spreading distress in the farm economy, this week approved plans to require wheat growers to idle cropland equal to 29 per cent of intended 1978 wheat plantings if they want to get government price supports.

Corn prices fell to $1.64 a bushel in mid-August compared with $1.93 in mid-July, $2.64 a year earlier and a peak of $3.45 in late 1974. Soybeans plunged from $6.34 a bushel in mid-July to $5.34 compared with $6.07 a year ago.

Wheat edged up to $2.02 a bushel from $2 in July compared with $2.97 a year earlier and a $5.52 peak in early 1974.

Wednesday's farm price report also noted that farmers' costs fell 0.5 per cent during the month ending Aug. 15 but were 5 per cent above a year earlier.

Records showed the August corn price was the lowest in more than four years and the soybean price the lowest in 15 months.

Seasonal work right upheld

BOISE (UPI) — A seasonal worker has no obligation under the unemployment compensation law to accept permanent work, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In a unanimous opinion written by Justice Steve Brand, the high court affirmed an Industrial Commission ruling that approved the claim of Helen S. Behart for jobless pay.

Mrs. Behart is a seasonal office employee as general office manager of the Silverhorn ski area. In May of 1976, after she returned to Coeur d'Alene for the off-season, she applied for and was declared eligible for unemployment benefits.

In June, the Department of Employment referred her to a possible job. She did not follow up on the referral because the department representative told her the employer wanted permanent help only.

Then the department declared her ineligible for unemployment benefits because of her failure to apply for the job. The Industrial Commission reversed the determination, holding that she was improperly denied her benefits, and the department appealed.

Disaster loan funds dry up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal agencies who expect to be hit with nearly $8 billion in low interest loan applications from 195 drought victims, say their disaster loan funds have dried up.

The huge, unprecedented crush of requests, many from farmers who lost their crops as well as their livestock, has created a dilemma for administration budget experts. Only a fraction of the loan money being approved for victims in 47 states has been appropriated by Congress.

More money could be appropriated because the loans will be repaid to the government, but the extra is most of the loans due for 20 and 40-year periods and there is no money in the current budget to cover several billion dollars in unexpected spending.

And there is money, although more than 2 out of 3 counties from coast-to-coast were affected by the drought. Agriculture Department officials are projecting a potentially record farm production year.

The number of loan applicants has been so great that the Small Business Administration Wednesday nearly stopped accepting applications for two weeks. The agency resumed the action under pressure from congressmen and others.

A key reason for the increase is a new interpretation of SBA loan authority, to permit up to a half-million dollars on low interest loans to individual farmers for covering crop losses.

Paul Ledato, director of public information for the SBA, said the agency now is projecting it will grant $5 billion in loans to farmers, businessmen and communities hit by the 1977 drought. The agency's disaster loan fund for physical losses was budgeted at $70 million for fiscal 1978.

Added to small business projections are these estimates.

The Farmers Home Administration expects to make $2.5 billion in low interest loans to more than 20,000 farmers in 47 drought-stricken states. The most FHA loans granted previously was $556 million last year.

The Economic Development Administration expects by Sept. 30 to make $110 million in loans and $65 million in grants to help improve the water supplies in 230 communities in 20 states.

Programs in the Department of Interior and the Agriculture Department should account for at least another $19 million in $15 million in disaster loans.

"We're all in the same boat," Ledato said. "We're talking with the Office of Management and Budget and the Congress, trying to find the money."

Chemical 'reason' asked

CHICAGO (UPI) — The "rule of reason" should prevail in decisions regarding farm chemicals if food storage laws are to be avoided, the American Farm Bureau Federation says.

The AFBF, following a board meeting Tuesday, said "Arbitrary rules by which the federal government now regulates agricultural chemicals must be replaced by the rule of reason" to assure maximum production.

The board called on Congress to overhaul the Environmental Protection Agency's agricultural chemical law in order that farmers and ranchers have a fair fighting chance to produce the food and fiber needed by the U.S. and the world.

The board also went on record in favor of a bill that will be introduced in Congress to amend present farm chemicals laws.

In other activity, the AFBF announced it has filed a friend of the court brief with the U.S. Supreme Court in a case in which the constitutionality of the suspension provisions of the Occupational Safety and Health Act

Section 8A of the act on grounds it violates the Fourth Amendment, which prevents "unreasonable searches and seizures" by the government.

The AFBF entered the case to appeal from the U.S. District Court in Boise, Idaho.

The brief cited the possibility that an OSHA inspector may attempt to determine that a home is a place where work is performed and intrude upon its privacy, whereas, in reality, many ranch operators and farmers maintain private homes as part of the agricultural premises.

Red meat output sets record

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's red meat production during July set a record — 23 million pounds for the month, eclipsing the mark set in 1972 by 22 per cent. The Idaho Cattle and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

Cumulative slaughter for calendar 1977 amounts to 224.9 million pounds or 15 per cent more than the record setting pace of 1974, the report said.

The number of cattle slaughtered during July at 299,000 head was 20 per cent greater than last year. Average slaughter weight for the month dropped by 25 pounds from last year to 1,077. Calf slaughter during July remained at 100 head, the same as the previous month and July a year ago.

Big slaughter during July totaled 6,000 head and brought the cumulative total for the year to 46,700 or 30 per cent of the corresponding 1976 total.

The January-July average live weight of 213 pounds was three pounds above last year's average through the same period.

Sleep slaughter during the month totaled 200 head or 81 per cent of last year. Cumulative slaughter through July was 10 per cent below last year.

Victim search expanded

ATLANTA, (UPI) — The search for victims associated with a 1957 nuclear test in Nevada to determine whether any contracted leukemia has been expanded to include 1,153 individuals, a spokesman for the national Center for Disease Control said today.

Dr. Clay Caldwell, deputy chief of the CDC's cancer branch, said the list includes everybody "who had on a film badge" during the Aug. 31, 1957, day of the atomic test explosion.

The list includes the names of 2,235 persons "the Army surgeon general's office said were 'on the field' the day of the explosion, plus 910 others who were in the area and had film badges, which were used to detect the amount of radiation exposure.

Caldwell said he has received more than a thousand letters from concerned individuals who think they may have been in the area of the blast. Don Berrett, public information director for the CDC, said the agency has handled "thousands of telephone calls recently from persons inquiring about the CDC investigation.

Two veterans, Donald Coe of Emmett, Idaho, and Paul Cooper of Tompkinsville, Ky., have filed claims with the Veterans Administration that they were deliberately exposed to radiation in the test of "Smokie," a 44-kiloton nuclear bomb in Yucca Flats, Nev.

Caldwell said it would require at least a year just to track down the persons, who were present at the test site and even longer to determine where there was a risk of leukemia to those exposed and whether the risk came from radiation.

'Optimist' seeks vacation funds

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Gregg Charbonnet is looking for someone to make his $100,000 dream vacation come true.

So the 28-year-old former biology teacher, now working for a Memphis truck line, placed a $20 "I" ad in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Tuesday, August 16. The ad read: "Nice young family would like $100,000 to travel the world."

For Charbonnet, the idea was not new. Last year he posted similar ads in six metropolitan dailies around the country.

He said the ad wasn't just a get-rich-quick scheme but was placed to learn more about human nature. And he had some "soul-searching" moments before submitting the bold ad.

"I thought it was embarrassing and silly," he said.

Four of the six papers returned his checks with rejection notices, but the St. Louis newspaper and a Houston paper ran the ad in their assisted sections.

Charbonnet was surprised that the meager response came from a "sawdust" and the other from an anonymous person who admitted to the same urge.

"Congratulations and wishing what I have thought about for years, but never had the courage. I hope you get a million letters like mine with $1 enclosed. I am now retired due to cancer and can't afford any more. Sincerely Disabled."

Women in combat favored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women are as capable as men of serving in combat, a field down to the nuclear weapons button, two retired women military officers told Congress Thursday.

They were supported by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who presided over the hearing where they expressed their views, and by a spokeswoman for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Testifying before Congress Joint Economic Committee, retired Maj. Gen. Jeanne M. Holm, former director of Women in the Air Force, said "I don't need a fancy study or a test to tell me that a woman could perform as well as a man as a missile launch officer."

Retired Col. Mary A. Hallgren, former head of the Women's Army Corps, said she headed the first battalion of women to serve overseas in World War II and all of "were 'superb' under the stress of buzz-bomb attacks on London."

"Working with men and women over the last 50 years — both in and out of the Army — has convinced me that it is the individual and not the gender that determines a person's strength under pressure," she said.

"To show the absurdity of the current situation," said Proxmire, "just imagine a university which allowed women to hold a variety of jobs but which excluded them from teaching, the primary role of the university just as fighting is the primary role of the military."

The ACLU's Jill Laurie Goodman acknowledged that the question of women launching nuclear missiles is the "hardest to answer," but said "a democratic society committed to the principle of equal protection under law has no justification for allocating obligations, responsibilities or privileges according to sex."

Antonia Handler Claves, assistant Air Force secretary, told the committee in July there was deep concern in the military about giving women the "awesome responsibility" of triggering nuclear weapons.

Gen. Helm agreed this is "a value question," but said extensive study of it is a waste of time and women should be given such responsibilities forthwith. "The Air Force should hit the bullet and do it," she said.

Dr. Carol C. Parr of the National Coalition for Women in Defense also criticized the Air Force definition of missile launching as combat service based on "sex-stereotyping."

"The result of this kind of emotionalism is an extreme interpretation of the law whereby 40 per cent of enlisted jobs and 60 per cent of enlisted jobs in the Air Force are closed to women," she said.

Recreation unlimited for Labor Day weekend

Charles Lemmon/Times-News

Labor Day weekend will be the last chance for many area residents to try their hand at fishing and camping. Here a pan full of potatoes boils in preparation for a breakfast while a pot of lean steiners on the side. This particular breakfast also included freshly caught trout from a nearby mountain stream.

MAGIC VALLEY — Labor Day weekend promises to cap the summer season with ideal weather, plenty of camping space available and three major celebrations for Magic Valley residents.

The Sawtooth National Forest recreation report indicates the cooler weather and the start of school has cooled the demand for campsites and there should be available space in all areas of the forest this weekend.

Campers and hikers looking for high country, however, should prepare for cold nights and even some snow. There was about 2.5 inches of snow at Fourth of July Lake and about a quarter of an inch above the 8,000-foot elevation in the Sawtooth Wilderness during the past week.

Sawtooth Forest officials say the information booth at Galena Overlook is closed for the season, and Redfish Lake Visitor Center will close following the holiday weekend.

Some of the holiday weekend recreation seekers in Idaho have an added bonus in store for them. The Kokanee run is expected to begin any day on the South Fork of the Boise River. If the fish arrive, fishing will be allowed above the Pine Bridge only.

The archery hunt will begin this weekend in the South Hills. The Rock Creek Road will be open beginning at 5 tonight and will not close until 8 a.m. Tuesday when construction crews return to work.

Throughout the Magic Valley city, county, state and federal offices will close Monday, and many stores will also shut their doors while others will offer special buys.

In addition to camping and outdoor recreation, two major celebrations will attract persons to Blaine County.

The 24th annual Labor Day barbecue will be held in Bellevue with a number of accompanying events to provide entertainment throughout the day. William Aiken is general chairman of the barbecue which begins at 1 p.m. in the Bellevue City Park. Traditionally, persons from throughout southern Idaho and many other states plan their vacation on Labor Day activities to include the Bellevue barbecue.

This year an old west "shootout" will be staged in the center of town at 11:30 p.m. Monday. There will be a parade down Main Street at 11 a.m. and music will be provided by the Old Time Fiddlers and the Musicians Performing Artists Trust Fund members.

In Ketchum the annual Labor Day celebration will feature a parade including the old one wagons which once hauled valuable ore from mines beyond Galena Summit into the town of Ketchum. Pulled by an eight-horse hitch of matched Belgian draft horses, the wagons will parade through the streets of Ketchum with colorful stage coaches, mounted posse groups and floats.

Ketchum's parades will begin at noon Saturday with festivities continuing through the weekend. There will also be a shootout at 6 p.m. Saturday in Ketchum with actors reliving the Black Jack incident of early days.

Following this a barbecue will be served at the Elkhorn Mall followed by an authentic Shoshone-Bannock Indian tribal dance.

On Sunday morning and on both parade will be held in Ketchum beginning at noon. A rock concert will be held at 1 p.m. Sunday at Clavholm Hot Springs south of Ketchum. There are no events scheduled for Monday in Ketchum because of the Bellevue Barbecue on that day.

In Twin Falls county many residents and excursionists will spend the weekend at the county fairgrounds in Filer, preparing for the Tuesday opening of the fair.

Mountain Home will observe the 7th Annual Air Force Appreciation Day on Saturday, honoring the Mountain Home Air Force Base and the U.S. military as a whole.

A parade will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, followed by a noon "feed" in the City and Miller Parks.

Carroll top boots and contests will be featured throughout the day with prizes, a queen contest and baseball games. Air-Force-base personnel and community residents will join in staging the event.

Panel meets today

TWIN FALLS — A fact-finding panel convenes today at 1:30 p.m. today in the Blue Lakes Inn to discuss problems met in negotiations between city officials and fire fighters on the 1977-78 fire fighters contract.

The board is charged with looking over proposed pay packages presented by both sides and making a recommendation for an agreement to the Twin Falls City Council.

However, such a recommendation need not be accepted by the council.

Varin ponders charges

GOODING — Jack Varin, Gooding city deputy attorney, said today it will be "at least next week" before he decides if charges will be refiled against County Commissioner Jim Wilkins for failure to obtain a building permit.

A complaint against the county official was dismissed by magistrate court here Thursday. Twin Falls Magistrate Paul Sumner said he was dismissing the complaint signed by Floyd Urta, Gooding, because it lacked specific dates.

The original charge claimed Wilkins had not taken out a building permit to remodel a former theater building he owns on Main Street. He obtained a permit in October, 1974.

Wilkins was represented by Michael Felton, Bahd Gooding Magistrate Charles Shaw disqualified himself from hearing the case.

Cash, items taken

KETCHUM — The club house at the Big Wood Golf Course was broken into Sunday night and burglars made off with about $634 cash and various sports items, according to the Ketchum police.

Police reports indicate the burglars entered the club house, owned by Springer Land Development, Sunday by prying the lock off the building's door. Apparently a pair of lock-cutting pliers were used to gain entrance, reports say.

Several boxes of club golf clubs and $634 cash were taken, according to police reports.

Ketchum police say the case is currently under investigation.

Hearing postponed

TWIN FALLS — A hearing on a motion by attorneys for Nora Ann Hicks, who brought an $150,000 lawsuit against Tupperware Co., Jerome, has been postponed until Sept. 6 in Fifth District Court, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Hicks has charged Tupperware with negligence and sought damages for herself and her daughter for the death of husband, Elmer G. Hicks, who drowned in the company's swimming pool in 1972.

The trial took place last month in Jerome, where a 12-member jury found in Tupperware's favor by a vote of 10 to 2 and awarded no damages to Mrs. Hicks or her daughter.

James May, Twin Falls, attorney for Mrs. Hicks, is asking the court to grant a new trial or overrule the jury, which he charges was "biased and prejudiced" and "knew the effect of the verdict was contrary to Idaho law."

In connection with May's motion, affidavits by three jury members, including the original foreman, have been filed with the court testifying to the jury's bias and confusion over its verdict.

The hearing was postponed due to the illness of Tupperware Co. attorney Michael Sasser.

Local man arrested

TWIN FALLS — A 21-year-old man was arrested on a burglary charge Wednesday night in connection with the theft of a pickup and merchandise from the Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 249 Third St. S.

Police said they arrested Raymond Lee Cox near the intersection of the U.S. 93-U.S. 30 junction in the pickup. Police said they recovered everything taken, valued at $5,000.

Governors adopt guidelines for power cut

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — In case of a regional energy shortage from continued drought conditions, Northwest governors are drafting five stages of power curtailment including rotating blackouts as a last resort.

The governors of Idaho, Washington and Oregon last Friday adopted a set of guidelines prepared by a regional task force which began working on the plan in March.

In Idaho, the public utilities commission holds the authority to order such emergency power curtailments, according to Garth Andrews, public information officer for the IDPC.

The IDPC, which held hearings in May to consider proposals for curtailment plans in Idaho, has yet to issue a final order on the matter, Andrews said.

Idaho Governor John Evans could petition the IPUC to consider the recently-adopted regional guidelines, and "it's not too late to reopen the curtailment plan if the commission finds it necessary," Andrews said.

Under the Northwest governors' plan the first two stages of "rotating curtailment" would be voluntary and the last three mandatory.

The first two stages of the plan call for voluntary curtailment by customers, as requested by governments and utilities, including pleas to the public through pamphlets, newspapers, television and radio.

A similar informal voluntary curtailment effort has been effectively enforced since February, and has resulted in an 11 per cent reduction of consumption below forecasted amounts.

"The voluntary curtailment stages would come into effect when the probability of mandatory curtailments being imposed in the near future reaches 40 to 60 per cent. Mandatory curtailments would be imposed when the chance of emptying the region's reservoirs before the next spring runoff reaches 20 percent.

The Northwest Power Pool computes these probabilities based on information received from the region's electrical systems.

The first stage of mandatory curtailment calls for maximum and minimum thermostat settings for space heating and cooling, elimination of such energy uses as swimming pool heating and decorative lighting and importing power to make up deficiencies.

In this stage each utility would monitor customer compliance and report to the appropriate state authority the degree to which each user had met their direct compliance obligations.

Two stages of mandatory curtailment would take effect when the threat of reservoirs being employed reaches 80 per cent. In this stage every power generating unit would be put into operation, and excess power in one area would go to make up deficiencies in another. Customers would be directed to curtail consumption by a percentage of total electricity to balance the region's supply and demand.

The utilities would monitor compliance based on previous year's use, and the state would insure the necessary reduction of power consumption through penalty rates discontinuation of service or "other appropriate sanctions for excess usage."

The final stage of mandatory curtailment would be imposed when the region's reservoirs are in "imminent danger of being emptied" when even more cutbacks become needed than attainable under the first two mandatory stages.

Rotating power blackouts would take place to the extent necessary to achieve the required amount of energy conservation.

Line plans tangle

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Proposals of two Northwest power companies to construct transmission lines across Idaho received both support and opposition this week.

The Idaho office of the Bureau of Land Management will have the final decision on plans because both the Idaho Power Co. and the Pacific Power and Light (P-P and L) must apply for right-of-way through BLM land.

Don Watson, BLM regional planner, Boise, said today he expected a decision would be made on the P.P. and L application within 30 days.

Idaho Power's plan to construct 84 miles of 500 kilovolt lines across BLM land from the Midpoint substation south of Shoshone to the Burch substation near American Falls has drawn opposition from Idaho Fish and Game and U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials.

"They fear the lines would have an adverse effect on birds and wildlife."

The P.P. and L application to build a similar, but longer transmission line from the Midpoint substation in Oregon received endorsement from the Pacific Northwest Watersheds Association. The association works for comprehensive planning and development of water and related land resources in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and western Montana, according to Roy Webster, PNWA vice-president, Walla Walla, Wash.

Both transmission lines would carry power from the Jim Bridger coal-fired generating plant near, Rock Springs, Wyo., owned by the two utilities.

Originally the two firms planned to build the transmission lines as a single project, according to Wendell Smith, Idaho Power environmentalist, but because the P.P. and L. lines cross two states and would encompass several hundred miles, an environmental impact statement was required.

That statement was released last month and is available at the Idaho BLM office, Boise.

Idaho Power is now preparing an analysis report for the BLM, according to Allen Ansell, Boise, another environmentalist for the firm. He said BLM officials will decide whether the more detailed impact statement is necessary for the 84-mile transmission line application.

Both environmentalists said the new transmission lines are needed because present lines already are carrying a combined load which will not be sufficient to carry the additional power.

The four major Idaho Power transmission lines between Midpoint and American Falls are now carrying a capacity load, Smith said.

The acting state director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Robert Van Worman, Boise, wrote Idaho Power President James Bruce that the firm should build its line across private land to run it parallel to railroad tracks because the plan to run across BLM land would disturb wildlife.

Crossing private land, the Idaho Power contends would intrude on farmers and prove much more costly because "we would have to deal with each farmer," Smith said.

KETCHUM — A man charged with kidnaping a Ketchum police officer in early April who led local law enforcement authorities on a merry chase through the hills outside Ketchum returned this week to face those charges in Fifth District Court here.

Aiden Nailton, 36, stood Monday before Magistrate Judge Daniel Alban to face charges on two counts of grand larceny, assault, resisting an officer and kidnapping.

Accompanied by two Blaine County sheriff's officers from the Idaho Penitentiary, Nailton was given his rights and local attorney, Bruce Collier, was appointed for his defense.

After cluding local authorities in April, Nailton fled to the Pocatello area where he allegedly took three employees from a Grizzly Bear pizza restaurant hostage and then

Tornadoes, rains hit Midwest states

By United Press International
Thunderstorms sent tornadoes whipping over the Midwest and Plains states and torrential rains flooded streets and closed highways Thursday night.

Eight funnel clouds were sighted in less than an hour in Cass County, Mich., a sheriff's spokesman said.

Cass and St. Joseph counties in Michigan and neighboring counties in Indiana and Ohio were hit by tornadoes and funnel clouds spawned from a band of thunderstorms that moved across the three states Thursday night. There were reports of injuries or major damage.

Twisters and funnel clouds were reported along the Nebraska-Kansas border, including a tornado at Red Cloud, Neb., but there were no injuries. High and high winds were common in the area.

Salina, Kan., reported six inches of rain. Larry Mathews, an editor of the Salina Journal, said, "People can't get out of their homes. They're blocked in because the streets are flooded clear up to the driveways."

"They were getting hit with everything at Red Cloud rain, wind and hail," a Franklin County, Neb., sheriff's spokesman said. "A deputy told me the courthouse was just a shaking. He didn't know for sure if the courthouse would stay up."

Winds were slower in the Chicago area, where a month's worth of rain fell in one day.

The National Weather Service reported 3.7 inches in Chicago Thursday. The average rainfall for September is three inches.

Rainfall in other parts of the metropolitan area reached five inches, and the Metropolitan Sanitary District was forced to divert raw sewage into Lake Michigan in an effort to reduce flooding in sewers and streets.

A San Francisco-bound Greyhound bus overturned on a rain-slick expressway outside Chicago, injuring the driver and 13 passengers, none seriously. More than 25 streets were flooded in Joliet, Ill., southwest of Chicago, and state police reported a mail slide forced the temporary closing of U.S. 6 between Seneca and Marseilles, Ill.

'Pot' petitions proposed

BOISE (UPI) — An Oregon lobby announced plans Thursday for a petition drive to decriminalize marijuana in Idaho.

Jim Whittenburg, a Portland pharmacist and president of the Lobby for Social Concerns and Demands, said he will ask student leaders at Idaho's four state universities to begin circulation to begin circulating petitions.

Whittenburg said the aim is to put the question on the 1978 statewide ballot. He said his group proposes revising Idaho law to prohibit jail sentences for use, manufacture, transportation, cultivation or possession of marijuana in amounts less than one ounce.

He said he was initiating the drive because of Brian Kincaid, a former vice president of the Associated Students at the University of Idaho who recently was sentenced to one month in jail after unsuccessfully challenging the validity of the marijuana law and refusing to renounce plans to continue smoking marijuana.

Kincaid sits in the Latah County jail, Whittenburg said, "to satisfy the vengeance of an archaic, anachronistic-thinking judge."

"For an offense that usually results in a $5 to $10 fine in Oregon or Washington or 10 other states in the country, you have interrupted a man's education, and summer employment," Whittenburg said.

Team goes 24 under to take Blue Lakes title

TWIN FALLS — A torrid score of 49 pulled a team from well back and into the championship of the Blue Lakes Country Club's women's invitational Thursday.

The four-woman team of Ellie Borders, Blue Lakes; Kathy Erb, Buhl; Patt Mannino, Indian Wells, Calif.; and Rosa Proctor, Sun Valley, provided the devastating score to win the 36-hole competition by six shots. Par would be 73.

During the round that foursome had two net holes-in-one, four double-eagles, two eagles, eight birdies and two pars.

Their final total was 108. Three foursomes shared second place at 114. These TORRID FOURSOME of Kathy Erb of Buhl, Ellie Borders of Blue Lakes, Patt Mannino of Indian Wells, Calif., and Rosa Proctor of Sun Valley carved out a 49 on the final 18 holes of the Blue Lakes women's invitational Thursday to win by six strokes.

US swimmers point for second victory

LENINGRAD (UPI) — U.S. swimmers, fresh from their victory over the strong East Germans last week, take on an underdog Soviet Union squad Saturday in a two-day meet at the Leningrad Army Sports Club Swimming Stadium.

Soviet experts have billed the clash as the match of the season but the Americans are unlikely to find the class of opposition they faced in East Berlin when five world records fell.

Both Joe Bottom, who beat Mark Spitz' fabled record of 51.3 in the 100 meter butterfly when he was timed in 51.18, against East Germany, and Brian Goodell, who improved his own world record in the 400 meter freestyle to 3:51.56 in the same meet, are expected to be in the 61-strong American party.

And the 400 meter relay squad of Jack Babashoff, Bottom, Rick DeMont and Jim Montgomery will be out to better the 3:21.11 world record time posted in East Berlin.

The Russians, who finished second in the recent European Championships with 23 medals to East Germany's 31, can boast one world recordholder, Marina Koshemova, with 2:33.35 in the 200 meter breaststroke. But it was 13-year-old prodigy Julia Bogdanova who grabbed the limelight at the European Championships at Jönköping, Sweden, taking both the 100 and 200 meter breaststroke events.

Declo begins first year in new league

DECLEO — Coach Mike Matthews and his Declo Hornets have a new kid on the block, entering competition in the basically A-3 Canyon Conference for the first time.

And Coach Matthews expects his Hornets will have to pay their dues the first while.

"We hope to become strong because of our seniors and many of the juniors have varsity experience," the coach says. "Being new in the conference I would pick any of them to win it) because I'm not that familiar with teams like Filer, Valley and Woodhill."

We have played Kimberly, Shoshone and Glenns Ferry for several years but not the others. I just hope we can compete adequately."

The Hornets have a pair of two-year lettermen in senior Lamont Young, a 5-10, 175-pound halfback, and Scott Panchari, 5-10, 165-pound halfback and still a junior.

There are eight one-year veterans among the seniors, including Greg Richins, 6-1, 185-quarterback; linebacker, Kevin Saxton, 5-9, 195 halfback;

Gotta be record!

Raft River hopes to become spoiler

MALTA — The yards of the huge lines seen ended at Raft River High School this year, but Coach Keith Wilson believes his charges could come along well enough to be a factor in the Magie Valley conference title race.

Coach Wilson reports, "We will have two platoons, and it appears most of our inexperience will be on defense." And he says, "We lost a lot of size. As of now we're pretty small. Oakley probably is the top conference contender, but we could come."

The Trojans start their season Friday night by hosting the Shoshone Indians.

Coach Wilson lost 15 men to graduation but returns 16 lettermen, the majority of them being seniors.

Among that list are Arley Cahoon, 5-10, 165 fullback; Lee Carter, 5-10, 195 linebacker; Calvin Darrington, 6-4, 170 end; Ken Hintze, 5-9, 160 guard; Terry Hutchinson, 5-8, 160 nose guard; Dennis James, 5-9, 150 guard; Dell

Four share lead in women's tournament

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Jane Blalock, Betsy Cullen, Sally Little and Hollis Stacy each fired a 4-under-par 68 to grab the lead in the opening round of the rain-dampened $100,000 LPGA Muscular Dystrophy golf tournament Thursday.

Two brief thunderstorms temporarily halted play in mid-afternoon but hot and muggy weather prevailed for most of the first day of the four-day, 72-hole tournament.

Debbie Austin, 16-year-old Prentice and Sue Roberts were a stroke off the pace at 69.

Stacy, who had a one-stroke lead going into her last hole, overshot the green on her second shot and ended up with a bogey on a par-4, 376-yard ninth hole.

Stacy, the U.S. Women's Open champion, had six birdies including a 38-foot putt on the 18th hole. "I'm playing well. I'm very happy with the round," she said.

Little, who returned to the LPGA tour after two weeks off, credited her rest, her quick recovery from a first hole bogey and an eagle on the par-5, 498-yard third hole for her strong finish.

Little also said she spent Monday working on her short game with golf teacher Johnny Ravolta in Chicago.

Gate mark threatened as Penn St. tests Rutgers in college opener

The Penn State team, Coach Joe Paterno is from nearby York and many of its players were recruited from the New York Jersey area.

"Playing in Giants Stadium will be exciting," said Paterno. "We have a lot of kids from New Jersey and the New York area, so there's a lot of incentive for us to play as good as we know how."

The game is considered Rutgers' final step into a major college schedule, despite Rutgers' No. 17 ranking last year after building an 11-0 record to capture a two-season, 18-game winning streak.

The Scarlet Knights, however, were only invited to the Independence Bowl in Shreveport, La., an invitation they declined by a team vote.

Penn State, 75 last season, beat Notre Dame in the Gator Bowl at the end of the season but was ranked 15th in preseason ratings.

The game shapes up as a defensive battle, with both the Knights and the Nittany Lions having a tradition of strong defensive units. However, Penn State, despite a lack of punch in its offensive line, still looks much stronger than Rutgers in that aspect. Keith Dorney, the center last year, is now a tackle and the only returning starter on the Penn State line.

"I think Rutgers is going to be a very tough team for us," said Paterno. "They're a strong, solid football team. They beat Tulane away, held Navy without a touchdown and won 10 straight so they've got to be a good football team. They've recruited well."

Penn State will be led by quarterback Chuck Fusina, who leads a crew of 13 returning lettermen. Rutgers will be going with Jeff Robb, who was the backup signalcaller last season after leading the Scarlet Knights to an 8-0 record in 1975-76. Robb had out Burt Rogen, who was first string last year for the starting slot this season.

In major opening day action Saturday, Miami (Ohio) plays Dayton, Mississippi State takes on North Texas State, Mississippi meets Memphis State, North Carolina State faces East Carolina, New Mexico State tangles with Southern Illinois, South Carolina faces Appalachian State, Northern Illinois meets Eastern Michigan and Wichita State faces West Texas State.

St. Louis tries to find scoring punch against Bears' defense

The National Football League season opens in a little more than two weeks and Dan Coryell's St. Louis Cardinals, who are supposed to be contenders in one of the league's toughest races, haven't looked the part.

The usually offensive-minded Cardinals have scored only 26 points in four straight preseason losses and are up against a tough defensive club, the Chicago Bears, Friday night.

"I'm concerned about our play," Coryell said. "We should be playing better than we've played the last two weeks. We haven't been sharp. We're experimenting with players. We've tried to give some of the younger players experience."

Even with regular quarterback Jim Hart going almost all the way against Cincinnati last week, St. Louis still couldn't score a touchdown until a bad snap on a punt set up Jim Ott's nine-yard TD run in the final quarter.

"Hart, Otis, Terry Metcalf, they need more time to play," Coryell said. "It's a risk you don't want to get to your opener with a Jim Hart hurt. But it looks like the veterans will have to see more action."

Bears Coach Jack Pardee is hoping his team can get started a little quicker as the season draws close. Chicago has scored only 14 first half points in its five games.

"We've got to get going earlier than we have been," Pardee said. "Thursday night we played three quarters of terrible football. If there's a quota of how many bad quarters we can play, we've probably used them up by now."

In other games Friday night, Philadelphia is at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Baltimore and Denver at Seattle. On Saturday night, Dallas is at Houston, Cleveland at Green Bay, San Francisco at Oakland, New Orleans at Miami, Tampa Bay at Buffalo and Minnesota at Cincinnati.

The New York Jets face the New York Giants and Washington is at New England on Sunday and Atlanta is at Kansas City on Monday night.

In the only Thursday night contest, San Diego was at Los Angeles.

The Eagles feel a new confidence as they face the Steelers. Philadelphia is 4-1 in preseason and has confessed upsets of New England and Denver.

"I think we're really developing a winning attitude," said quarterback Ron Jaworski. "The guys are confident and beginning to believe that they can win."

All-Pro middle linebacker Jack Lambert, who had been a holdout, will return to the Pittsburgh lineup.

"I'm sure having him come in under the right circumstances is what we need at this point in time," said defensive tackle Joe Greene. "That's an emotional lift we can use right now. It's uplifting."

Lambert returns just after defensive end L. C. Greenwood suffered a sprained ankle that will sideline him for three to four weeks.

Craig Morton, assured of the No. 1 quarterback job at Denver, will start for the Broncos at Seattle.

"Morton is capable," said Seattle coach Jack Patera. "If he ends up doing a pretty good job, they could be improved. Denver is a very good team that is just that much from being a strong contender."

Headed for new teams

Nets send Archibald to Braves; Dantley traded for two players

JUTHERFORD, N.Y. (UPI) — The New Jersey Nets of the National Basketball Association traded veteran guard Nate "Tiny" Archibald, one of the world's highest paid athletes, to the Buffalo Braves Thursday for forward George Johnson and a first round draft choice in 1978.

The 6-foot-11, Archibald, who earns a reported $400,000 salary, spent only last year with the Nets following six seasons with the Kansas City Kings. He missed the last half of the season with a broken foot suffered on Jan. 2 after having averaged 20.5 points a game. He had 59 steals and 251 assists in 34 games.

Johnson, 6-11, spent four undistinguished seasons with the Golden State Warriors before going to Buffalo in midseason last year for a No. 1 draft choice. In 70 games, he averaged 6.0 points and grabbed 61 rebounds.

Archibald, 29, led the NBA in scoring in 1972-73 with a 31.0 average, setting a record for a guard, and had a career mark of 25.2 when the Kings dealt him to the Nets before last season for Brian Taylor, Jim Ennis and two first-round draft picks.

A second round draft selection by the Kings, Archibald was drafted in Cincinnati and known as the Royals) from Texas El Paso in 1970. The scrappy Archibald is a New York native who grew up in a Bronx ghetto and "had my mind made up that I wasn't gonna be part of the street scene."

With the Braves, Archibald will team with Ernie DiGregorio to give the Braves one of the stickest basketball combinations in the NBA. The Braves also obtained high-scoring swingman Billy Knight from the Indiana Pacers Thursday for Adrian Dantley, last season's rookie of the year, and Mike Bantom. Bantom had signed with Buffalo after playing out his option with the Nets and the Braves will owe the Nets a player to be named later as compensation.

The 28-year-old Johnson was selected by the Chicago Bulls from Dillard College on the fifth round of the 1970 draft. He was cut by the Bulls without playing a game and signed by the Warriors as a free agent before the 1972-73 season. He averaged 14 points a game in four seasons with Golden State.

The Nets, last champions of the American Basketball Association in 1972-76, will play their home games this season at Rutgers University's gymnasium in Piscataway, N.J., before moving to a new complex to be built in the Meadowlands at East Rutherford, N.J. They had played in the past at Utica, N.Y., on Long Island about 70 miles east of Manhattan.

NBA pays to avoid law suit

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The National Basketball Association Thursday announced it had signed a contract settlement with Marques Johnson, UCLA forward who was the Milwaukee Bucks' No. 1 choice in the spring player draft.

Johnson had threatened a lawsuit because of a contract offer from the Denver Nuggets when the team was with the American Basketball Association. The Nuggets reportedly withdrew their offer before the draft to insure the merger of the leagues.

Contract talks between Johnson and the Bucks were stalled this summer, apparently because of the old offer and the club's desire to pay Johnson less than Kent Benson, the Indiana center chosen No. 1 in the draft. The Bucks signed Benson the day after the draft to a six-year, $1.5 million contract.

A statement from the NBA's New York office said the league will make payment for five years to settle Johnson's threatened lawsuit, which could have set a costly precedent for other players.

"The payments to be made by the NBA to Marques Johnson are not a subsidy to his salary from the Milwaukee Bucks," said the NBA. "The league will make payment of less than $15,000 for five years as a settlement of a lawsuit that Johnson had threatened. The NBA agreed to this settlement to avoid a court case, that counsel advised would be lengthy and costly."

John Steimmler, a Bucks' official, said the club has no statement about the settlement.

"They weren't going to sue us, they were going to sue the NBA," Steimmler said. "That should be made perfectly clear."

Steimmler said settlement was not initiated by the club but it did help to sign Johnson.

World's best tracksters open three-day cup battle

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (UPI) — The first World Track and Field Cup, whose three-day competition starts Friday, has attracted 278 of the fastest and strongest athletes in the world to battle for their country's continent.

There will be two cups, for men and for women, and eight teams in each event. In the men's competition, the United States, East Germany and an all-star team from Europe are the favorites, with other teams coming from Africa, Asia, West Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and an all-star squad called the Americans drawn from Canada, Central America, South America and the Caribbean.

In the women's events, the East Germans, who won nine out of the 14 gold medals at the Montreal Olympics last year, are considered the certain winners. The other teams come from the U.S., Asia, Africa, Australia and New Zealand, the Soviet Union and the all-star teams from Europe and the Americas.

"There will be no gold medals. Points will be awarded for each event on a 30-25-20-15 basis, and everyone will be competing for his or her team."

"Everyone except Dwight Stones.

"No way am I competing for the United States," said the maverick 6-5 Californian. "I am competing for me. That's what I have always done and always will do. Sure, I hope the U.S. wins, we've got a great team. But when I'm out there jumping it's me against the other guy."

The other guy in this case is Ralf Bollmann, an East German who has come out of obscurity to clear his name from the 1976 season but whom Stones beat in a head-to-head duel two weeks ago.

"His technique is very good and now he has the consistency, but I know I can beat him. From what I hear from the East German camp, he's tired and he doesn't think he can beat me and in high jumping the psychological hit is 80 per cent of the game sometimes," said Stones.

He said he couldn't see anyone else, including a 6-6 African from Chad called M. Baidoudou, Neadjadoum both at home.

U.S. Head Coach Stan Hunzicker predicted, the American met would do well on the first and third days of the meet, but their cup chances would be dimmed Saturday in their weaker events like the hammer, triple jump and 1,500 meters.

"We have some injury problems but I don't think they will generate into anything substantial. But in a meet like this you only have to have one injury and you're in trouble," said the 44-year-old head coach from the University of Tennessee.

But he conceded that the U.S. women's team was "not up to the standard of the rest of the world."

The U.S. men will begin Friday's seven-event program with one of their trump cards — Edwin Moses in the 400 meter hurdles, none of his rivals have come within two seconds of the world record set by the physics student from Atlanta, Ga., in June and his time of 47.55 could stand for several years.

Mark Eby, in the 800 meters will be facing world recordholder and Olympic prodigy Alberto Juantorea of Cuba.

"Mark thinks he can beat him. He thinks he can match him for speed on the second lap," said Hunzicker.

Olympic champions Mae Wilkins and Arnie Robinson should also give America a good start in the discus and long jump but Terry Albritton will have to improve almost three feet in the shot to match East German Udo Beyer.

Burns breaks record in Buick open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI) — George Burns, 70, set a course record with a 65 on the 18-hole course at the Buick Open.

Ralston views old team from stands

DENVER (UPI) — Former Denver Broncos coach John Ralston, who has been spending the summer lecturing to NFL clubs about positive thinking, will skip the usual pep talks Friday night when his old regiment takes on the Seahawks at Seattle.

"Out-of-sight is probably best for a new program," said Ralston of the Broncos, who are now led by Fred Miller, a new assistant coaching staff and new front office personnel.

"I'd like to go down and wish the whole squad well. I notice a very positive mental attitude among them. I'm happy they're not being criticized for it."

Ralston, who stepped down after his post as Broncos general manager was snatched away and player discontent surfaced last January, spends most of his time visiting about pro football training camps lecturing on the attributes of positive thinking.

The former Broncos coach, who will help broadcast the game for a Seattle television station Friday night, also is compiling a booklet notebook entitled, "Structuring an NFL Franchise for Growth, Progress, Profit."

"Why is he doing all of this? To get back into pro football as a head coach."

"I am obsessed with the idea of getting back into professional coaching," Ralston said. "Anything you can vividly imagine, ardently desire, sincerely believe in and enthusiastically act upon must inevitably come to pass, inevitably."

Ralston, 50, admitted that he was so overcome by his fall from power he went home and sat in a room alone and cried.

"I am an emotional guy," he said. "I'm not afraid to tell the world. Woody Hayes says golf is a luxury. Some coaches went it as Lou Saban did. They throw furniture, bend flashlights, some drink. I find a dark room and I'll cry."

Burns, whose clubs were ruled illegal one month ago prior to the start of the third round at Hartford, toured the Flint Elks nine in 32 shots each. His score was eight under par and beat George Emler's course record by a shot.

One stroke back of Burns were Dale Hayes, a South African in his second year on the tour, and Greg Pitzer, a two-time golf dropout who once drove cabs and delivered pizzas until deciding to return to the game.

Frank Beard, Peter Osterlath, Ed Dougherty and Jeff Mitchell shared fourth place with 66 while another stroke back at 67 were Bobby Cole, Tex Caldwell and Wally Armstrong.

Low scores were the rule in humid weather that threatened rain all day but was dry following morning showers.

Burns was waiting on the tee prior to the third round at Hartford last month when Jerry Heard and Art Wall wondered if the grooves in his golf clubs were too large. They were, it turned out, and that touched off a controversy that has been going on ever since.

Burns' White Spanglers golf firm $5,000 after he dropped out of that tournament, capped the par-5 sixth hole when he put a two iron second shot 20 feet from the cup.

"I saved par on eight and nine and that's what really started me rolling," said Burns, 28, who was a third string football player at Maryland for two seasons before turning to golf full time.

"My second round hasn't been three shots lower but I missed some short shots."

"I've had chances to win the last two years but I haven't done it," said Burns, who with winnings of $100,000 stands fifth on the PGA money list. "But I've had an attitude problem I've got to get over."

Hayes singled the front nine in 31 strokes, as did Pitzer, who has qualified for only three tournaments this year. The 39-year-old Pitzer's only winnings were $500 he picked up in Oklahoma City much earlier this year.

Dave Hill, winner of the last official Buick Open in 1969, turned in a 69 in the revival of the tournament, which the sponsors hope to make into a regular feature on the PGA tour.

"That might be the seventh time I've broken par this year," Hill cracked. "I started off four under but then I got back on my usual gumpy tour."

Chargers nip Rams 26-25 on last play

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Fritsch booted a 22-yard field goal on the last play of the game Thursday night to give San Diego a 26-25 exhibition victory over Los Angeles in a game in which ex-Ram quarterback James Harris threw three touchdown passes for the Chargers.

Harris, who was shipped to San Diego in June after the Rams acquired Joe Namath, completed scoring passes of 34 and 37 yards to former Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers and 9 yards to Chuck Bradley.

Fritsch, a six-year pro who was born in Austria, sent the Rams down to their third straight pre-season defeat as last-minute Charger drive bogged down on a fourth-and-five situation with three seconds showing on the clock.

When Fritsch kicked the game-winning three-pointer for the sixth lead change in the game, time ran out.

Fritsch also connected on a 36-yard field goal just as time ran out at the half to give San Diego a 17-16 advantage.

The Rams appeared to have won the game with 5:43 remaining when Tom Dempsey booted a 35-yard field goal to make the score 25-23.

But Rodgers ran back the ensuing kickoff 31 yards to the Charger 28 and San Diego then drove 57 yards in 10 plays.

The Rams went ahead 22-17 in the third quarter on a touchdown drive engineered by Namath with John Cappelletti scoring on a 7-yard run.

But Harris hit Rodgers with 8:31 remaining. To put the Chargers in front 23-22 in the second half, Harris witnessed by a crowd of 35,946.

Harris sent his team to an early 14-0 lead, but the Rams came back and tied the score as Pat Haden passed 32 yards to tight end Terry Nelson and 9 yards to Harold Jackson for touchdowns.

Los Angeles went ahead 16-14 in the second quarter when Charger punter Jeff West was tackled in the end zone for a safety by Ram safetyman Bill Simpson.

Harris completed 16 of 30 passes for 234 yards, while Haden was 7-for-15 for 100 yards and Namath 3-for-7 for 53 yards. Rodgers, coming to the NFL after a sojourn in Canada, caught five passes for 80 yards, returned three kickoffs for 51 yards, and returned two punts for 25 for a total of 129 yards.

Stay young longer

Horrors! The subtle over-the-hill signs of physical deterioration show up, sooner or later, for all of us. You know... the double chins, sagging jowls, flabby underarms, protruding belly and thunder thighs... not to mention breathlessness after climbing a single flight of stairs.

The biological process of aging—that long slide downhill—actually starts when you're a mere baby of 22. But telltale signs don't become obvious until you hit your thirties, or, if you're lucky, your forties. Unless, of course, you are among the genetic unfortunate who crumble early, perhaps in the late twenties.

No, your efforts will not keep you perpetually young, but they will make a difference between "getting old" and aging gracefully... or even handsomely.

Gerontologists, specialists in studying the scientific nature of aging, agree that there are a number of common sense steps that anyone can take to encourage good health through—adulthood and—perhaps—add—extra—years of vigorous living.

One central factor in the aging process centers around persistent overeating. Dr. Nathan Shock, gerontology specialist, sums it up this way: "If you could suddenly wave a wand and eliminate all the obesity in the population, you'd be more likely to increase life spans than by almost any other means."

In the Hunza culture, for example, it is commonplace for people to lead spirited lives well beyond 100 years of age. Their diets contain half the calories of the average American intake and show a low concentration in saturated fats.

In the cases of the Hunza population and the residents of the Vilcabamba valley in Ecuador, also known for long-lived, vigorous physical activity is a way of life.

What may be equally important in explaining the long life of these less sophisticated tribes is their attitude towards old age. These people themselves entertain no such notion as "retirement," they stress the importance of maintaining a calm, worry-free state of mind throughout life.

"Biological aging accounts for 25 per cent of the difficulty," says Dr. Alex Comfort, author of "A Good Age." "The real problem concerns the attitudes we have toward people who are no longer young. And these attitudes very definitely affect behavior."

In other words, it's a question of role playing. Little boys play with trucks; little girls play with dolls. Likewise, older folks have been forced to role play in a similar way. They are supposed to be physically slower, forgetful, no longer useful to society, according to Comfort, who also wrote "The Joy of Sex" and "More Joy."

He relates the story about the senator who was showing to one of them and asked, "And who did you used to be?" The old man cast a piercing eye on the senator and replied, "I still am!"

"Old people are people who have lived a certain number of years, and that is all," declares Comfort.

F&G develops Carey Lake for bass and bluegill

By JEFF SHER Times-News writer
CAREY—Three-of-three-inch-bluegill-and-eight-inch-bass... The Fish and Game Department is too, so they have undertaken a massive habitat improvement project at Carey Lake, just northeast of Carey.

With $85,000 worth of emergency drought funds received from the Bureau of Reclamation, the F&G is financing a dredging operation to improve the capability of the lake to support fish life year round.

The shallow lake, 1072-feet in the deepest section, covers most of the 617-acre Carey Lake Wildlife Management Area. The lake's water supply is surplus irrigation water from the Fish Creek area plus 2,000 acre feet of water annually from the Little Wood Reservoir.

The lake's lack of depth results in high summer water temperatures, making the habitat unsuitable for trout but excellent for warm-water species. The lake's shallowness also makes it highly susceptible to winterkill, which has kept the lake from realizing its full potential as a fishery.

So the F&G plans to dredge channels 50 feet wide and 15 feet deep in the deeper north section of the lake. Regional fisheries biologist Bob Bell predicts this bottom modification will be sufficient to allow fish to survive the hard Carey winters.

In the 1950's, the lake was producing bluegill in the three-pound class. In the early 1960's the lake winterkilled and it was back to square one.

As water levels rose once again through the good water years of the early 1970's, perch averaging about 3 1/2 of a pound, bluegill in the one pound range and bass up to five pounds were taken from the lake.

In March of 1975, the lake winterkilled again. Most of the bluegill and bass and many of the perch died.

This year the lake is completely dry except for a small, hot water spring emptying into it from the east. The F&G saw their chance to improve the fishery and took it when the drought money came through.

When the dredging is completed, the Fish and Game will reintroduce bluegill and bass, but not perch.

A bass-bluegill combination has been proven to produce good-sized fish of both species. The bass feed on the smaller bluegill, and the bluegill reproduce quickly enough to avoid being decimated by the bass, but not so quickly they become dominant in the lake.

Introducing perch throws the whole system out of whack. The perch reproduce at such an astonishing rate they soon outstrip the ability of the bass to thin them through predation and they quickly become the dominant species.

The dredging also should benefit the waterfowl which frequent the lake and marsh area.

From spring thaw through early winter freeze, the lake is home to Canada geese and a variety of ducks. But the habitat is not ideal for waterfowl, according to Stu Murrell, F&G information officer, because of the preponderance of cattresses and emergents.

Murrell says the ideal ratio of open water to rushes is about 50-50, but Carey Lake is about 80 per cent covered with vegetation. The open water provides nesting habitat for diving ducks like canvasbacks and redheads and a place of refuge for bank nesters like mallards, pintails and teal.

Dredging will create more open water and the channels will be dug in a pattern that will create islands in the marshes. Additional islands and dikes extending out into the lake will be formed by the material dredged from the trenches.

Islands are preferred nesting sites for Canada geese and ducks because of the extra protection from predators they afford. The dikes won't help the waterfowl any, but they will make it possible for waterfowl hunters to penetrate further into the lake on foot.

When the drag line finishes its job and the lake begins to fill again, hopefully this fall, Murrell said the F&G will take bluegill from Dierkes Lake near Twin Falls and largemouth bass from another source and plant them in Carey Lake.

Murrell added that the F&G would probably propose a one-year fishing closure to allow the fish to establish themselves and attain some size. After that Carey Lake just might be one of the hottest bass-bluegill fisheries in Region 4.

Corrective surgery

THE FISH and Game Department hired the drag line pictured above to dig channels in the bottom of Carey Lake to help fish survive through the hard winters. The channelization will also create islands like the one at left to aid waterfowl nesting and dikes like the one at the right to facilitate hunter access.

Bows, guns uncased

MAGIC VALLEY — Bows are being strung throughout the Magic Valley tonight, but local archers aren't getting ready to loose another flight at the hay bales.

Tomorrow the arrows with the business heads will be fitted to the bows, and the targets will be live deer and elk.

General deer and elk archery season opens tomorrow in Region 4 and will run through Sept. 25. Units 48 and 49 will be open to both deer and elk, while units 54 and 56 will be open only to deer.

All general archery seasons in region 4 will be either sex-tantus this year.

A black bear archery season will run concurrently with the deer and elk season on units 48 and 49.

In unit 52, an antelope archery season opens tomorrow and continues through Sept. 18. The Butte County section of unit 52 has been open for archery antelope hunting since Aug. 6 and will close Sept. 2.

Yesterday saw the opening of the seasons on dove and pigeon and cottontail rabbits.

The doves carry a bag-limit of 10 birds with 20 in possession while the bag and possession limit on rabbits is eight in the aggregate.

Birds beware

DOVE season got underway yesterday and the popping of shotguns could be heard throughout the countryside. Shotgunning for the numerous Idaho game bird species will continue almost unabated throughout the fall.

Wild edibles

The king of mushrooms

By MARK AND MELINDA MILLER

Here is some wild food for thought: a mushroom that doesn't look like a mushroom.

It's family name is a scientific one, but here goes anyway. The family "Gelvelaceae" includes the moose-hell morels, false morels and another genus not being discussed here, the saddle fungi.

Little is known of the morel's life history or biology. The probable cause of this is their savory, almost heavenly flavor. Why they even smell good. Every botanist I have known can't seem to hang on to one long enough to investigate it. After all, who cares about life history or biology when one's pallet is involved? True morels belong to the genus "Morella", which contains several species. The cone shaped morel or "Morella conica", the hybrid morel or "Morella hybrida", delicious morel or "Morella deliciosa" and the thick stemmed morel "Morella crassipes" are all edible.

Their distinct shape and texture make edible morels very easy to identify positively. All varieties have a thick stalk, and a pile of sometimes fuzzy cap which looks like a sponge. Its colors vary from dirty grayish white to a dark brown, depending on the species or age of the specimen. The size varies from one inch or less to four or five inches tall. "Morella crassipes" has the longest stalk and cap of all the species mentioned, and perhaps the best flavor of them all.

Look for morels under deadfall in the forest during early spring in lower altitudes or through August in altitudes up to timberline. They like other wild life, have a food chain which follows the snow melt up. Remember that the conditions under which they grow is in forest that has good water and a reasonable amount of decay. A healthy forest breeds healthy life—Good luck and unforgettable eating.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 3, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There could be a number of delays in whatever you try to put in motion today as well as some confusion as to the exact procedure to take to be successful. Keep alert at all times.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine creative thoughts flow that need to be worked out in detail if they are to be successful. An associate can be helpful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't be frustrated because some personal aim has not been attained. Take steps to improve your health and appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Remove any stumbling blocks in the path of your progress today. Not a good day for social affairs. Take time for informative reading.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Sidestep an argument with a friend since you are both at odds where views are concerned. Relax at home tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you feel frustrated because an outside activity is not working out right, consult an authority who can be helpful. Be careful in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to expand but this is not the right time to do so. Be more concerned with improving your financial status.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your responsibilities can be handled well now if you use that determined attitude for which you are well known. Safeguard your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Think more about your associates' needs and less of your own and come to a better rapport with them. Engage in favorite hobby.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Complete whatever you have begun and forget about new interests for now. Strive for increased happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show your particular abilities to higher-ups and gain their support and become more successful. Take time out for recreation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to solve a problematical affair at home in a diplomatic way and establish more harmony there. Avoid an argument.

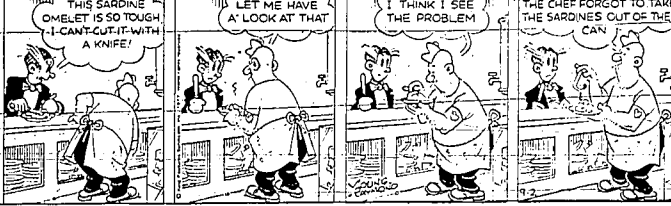

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use particular care in motion and avoid possible accident. Don't lose your temper with a friend who may have acted foolishly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very good at solving puzzles and could become a great trouble-shooter. The education should be directed along such lines, particularly where police and government work is concerned. Do not neglect ethical training.

what's what

J.M. Boyd

Most people hear better in one ear than in the other. So they tend to tilt their heads slightly when listening attentively. A professional after-dinner speaker says he keeps this in mind when at the podium. Whenever he notices his audience members begin to sit up straight and look directly at him, he winds down his talk, assuming they're fighting boredom.

The paint in every can of paint in the store is black until it's opened. Oklahoma law prohibits taking a bite out of somebody else's hamburger. The horseshoe crab chews its food with its legs.

You'd think the modern nudist camp movement might have started in some tropical climate. It didn't. Earliest camps were set up in Germany about 62 years ago. If there ever were a real Helen of Troy, no doubt she was called Ilika, the Greek for Helen.

COMMON MOTHER

Q. "Children of a Common Mother." That's the inscription on the Blaine Peace Arch between Washington State and British Columbia. What does it mean?
A. In Mexico, it might mean the Holy Mother. In China, it might mean Mother Earth. In Yellowstone Park, it might mean Mother Nature. And in Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, it might mean the girl next door. But in the Canadian border, it undoubtedly means Mother England.

Q. "What was the point of putting glass bottoms in the ancient English beer tankards?"
A. Some of the old inns were pretty rowdy. And dangerous, too. Men of means therein were scared to raise their heavy beer bottoms up for fear of getting their throats cut. So some enterprising craftsman introduced the glass-bottomed tankard to permit drinkers something of a view of the room while they drained their drinks. Or so goes the tale.

Q. "Your Love and War man says red-haired women with brown eyes are jealous. I say blondes with green eyes are even more jealous."
A. This is a common assumption rarely proven true, says our L. and W. man. In fact, green-eyed blondes are usually so good-looking, it practically never occurs to them they have reason to be jealous, he says.

PICKPOCKETS

A pickpocket can tell where a man keeps his wallet by watching the way said man uses his hands, usually, usually. Or so contends such a convicted thief. A right-hander, he says, generally prefers to keep his wallet in his left hip pocket. A left-hander, in his right hip pocket.

What's wrong with having a mustache dyed blue, green or orange? In Julius Caesar's Rome such were fairly common.
