

Mars lacks life; riddle lingers on

After a year of analysis and reports by American scientists, the results of the Viking landings on Mars: They produced no proof of life in any form there.

But the scientists are far from understanding what caused the strong reactions that occurred when Martian soil was tested by the Viking biology experiment chambers. If it was not a biological one, what nonliving chemical process could account for the results? Attempts to reproduce the reactions in sterile earth soil, using a variety of oxidizing and catalytic agents, have been unrevealing.

These are the conclusions of Viking project scientists, reluctantly arrived at by some, disappointing to others but provocative to all. They were reported last week at a three-day planetary biology symposium at the University, sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Space Sciences Board of the National Academy of Science.

The participants reviewed and debated the Viking findings in considering possible next steps in the exploration of Mars. Among the proposals were further ground laboratory experiments aimed at clarifying the Viking data, sending roving vehicles to Mars to scout a greater variety of terrain and eventually bringing back samples of Martian soil by robot craft.

But space agency officials cautioned the scientists not to expect any major Mars flights to be initiated in the next couple of years. Budget restrictions, they said, have already forced NASA to forego any immediate request for funds to begin preparations for a Mars rover mission to be launched in 1984—the earliest target date now is 1986.

Such a mission would involve landing wheeled vehicles capable of ranging over several dozen miles, taking pictures, examining soil for both chemical and biological properties and drilling scientific instruments several feet into the soil.

A mission to return a soil sample to earth, for the kind of detailed analysis made on the lunar samples, could not get under way until 1988 or 1990, the NASA officials said. Together, the rover and soil-return missions would involve an expenditure of several billion dollars over a decade.

At the close of the symposium, Richard S. Young, head of the space agency's planetary biology programs, said in an interview: "We now feel that the biology scenario explaining the Viking results is an exceptionally unlikely one. The data do not rule out the possibility of biology, but they give us no proof. Our challenge is to develop an inorganic rationale, if it exists, to explain the data we see."

Baggage lost anyway

LONDON (UPI)—When Derek Mayhew boarded his British Airways flight in Bahrain, the island sheikhdom in the Persian Gulf, a whole corps of baggage handlers turned out to handle his single suitcase. Mayhew was the only passenger on the plane.

Mayhew landed in London after a flight in which the entire crew of 11 flight attendants was devoted to him and his single suitcase. The airline's pilot of baggage handlers was the only one on the plane.

It was reported that the baggage handlers were on the airport. An embarrassed airline official said, "This case turned up by itself three days later."

Job-income plan pushed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—HEW Secretary Joseph Califano urged congress today to scrap the nation's welfare system and replace it with a "pro-family and pro-work" program of jobs and income for the poor.

President Carter has proposed the first major revision of the welfare system since the Great Depression, a $31.1-billion package of jobs and supplemental income for the poor. The plan represents $2.8 billion in new welfare spending.

Opening the administration's congressional testimony on the Carter plan, Califano said welfare as it exists is intolerable.

"The time is now for welfare reform because most Americans agree that we simply have to scrap our present welfare system and build a better one," Califano testified.

He was the first witness at a series of hearings before a special House welfare reform subcommittee.

Rep. James Corman, D-Calif., subcommittee chairman, said he supported welfare reform and urged both the House and Senate to respond creatively "to the welfare problem."

But Corman was not as prompt as Califano to dismiss the present welfare structure. "It distresses me greatly when people speak of the present income-support system as a total failure," Corman said in an opening statement.

"The President's proposal and any other welfare reform plan should be assessed in light of the accomplishments of the present programs, and with the intent of developing a better system of insurance against poverty."

Califano described the plan as "pro-family and pro-work, anti-fraud and anti-abuse, equitable and efficient."

He said it would not be enough to "linker with the present irrational structure" because welfare now provides incentives for families to split up and discourages work.

The present system, he said, also fails to provide adequate job opportunities for the poor, creates "intolerable inequities" through separate programs and eligibility requirements, provides "exaggerated" differences in welfare benefits in various parts of the country, and imposes undue financial burden on state and local governments.

"The present hodge-podge of income assistance programs that has grown up over 40 years is, in reality, no system at all," Califano said.

Twin Falls man, alien die in Cassia accidents

BURLEY — Two men died in pickup truck accidents in Cassia County Sunday.

Wendell Elias Umbaugh, 60, Twin Falls, was killed shortly before 7 p.m. Sunday when his pickup camper was hit by an automobile about 10 miles south of Burley.

Law enforcement officials this morning were holding Lyle Lot Udy, 49, Oakley, driver of the car. Formal charges have not been released.

An illegal alien drowned in a canal north of Declo early Sunday morning when a pickup went off 950 East Road.

Cassia County Undersheriff Bill Crystal said the name of the victim is being withheld pending notification of kin in Mexico.

The alien's body was brought up by divers from Burley police, Snake River Divers and Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue about 11:20 a.m.

Sunday. The body was found only 20 to 30 feet from the pickup, which landed in about 12 to 13 feet of water.

Crystal said the pickup went into the canal about 2 a.m. Sunday with four illegal aliens in it. He said the accident was reported about 3:30 a.m. One of the three illegal aliens who escaped the canal stayed to help officers check the pickup for the missing man.

In the fatal collision, Crystal said, Umbaugh was driving west on Golden Valley Road when his camper was broadsided by the Udy car headed north on 600 West Road. Crystal said there are stop signs on 600 West Road.

The deputy said Umbaugh was dead when the investigating officer arrived at the scene about 10 minutes after the accident. He said Udy was treated for minor injuries.

Henson charge stands; judge's ruling pending

TWIN FALLS — Magistrate Judge Paul Smith has denied a request by a defense attorney that the embezzlement charges against Deborah A. Henson, former YWCA director, be dropped.

Henson is charged with embezzling about $2,800 while she was YWCA director for 10 months.

It remained unclear whether the judge would bind Henson over for trial in district court.

Smith said he would still allow the defense attorney, William R. Hofffield, to present a defense during the preliminary hearing which began last week.

If Hofffield should not present a defense at the hearing, Henson would be bound over for trial in district court, the judge said.

Hofffield was unavailable for comment this morning.

The judge's ruling followed three full days of testimony behind closed doors by a police detective, an accountant, and YWCA and bank officials.

The judge ordered the preliminary hearing closed to the defense attorney's request.

Henson resigned on May 27. She said earlier she moved from Twin Falls to live with her parents in Sacramento, Calif., on May 31. In mid-June, she was charged with embezzlement.

Prosecuting Attorney Frank Dykas said this morning he could not comment on the judge's ruling.

Diesels top tests

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Volkswagen Rabbit Diesel took top honors today in the industry's annual ranking of new model cars by fuel economy, averaging 45 miles per gallon.

Two other diesel-powered 1978 models, a Peugeot and the new Oldsmobile diesel, also emerged as the most fuel efficient cars in their classes.

The test results released by the Environmental Protection Agency covered 91 percent of the cars expected to be sold during the new model year, but did not include last year's miles-per-gallon champion, the Honda, which has not submitted test data.

EPA Administrator Douglas Costle also announced that the agency plans to change the way it calculates the figures next year to more accurately reflect "the kind of mileage consumers actually experience when they own the cars."

There have been complaints that the test results are never matched on the road and Costle said "there are a large number of drivers who do not get the advertised mileage."

He said this was due to "wide differences in driving habits and maintenance practices" and the varying road, traffic and weather conditions which drivers experience. "In testing 1978 model cars, he said, EPA will adjust the figures downward, possibly taking off a certain percentage to account for variables."

The Rabbit Diesel, which also took top honors in last year's preliminary mileage list but which was not widely sold in this country, got 40 m.p.g. in city driving and 53 on the road. The car tested was a four cylinder, 90-cubic inch engine with manual transmission and fuel injection.

It topped the subcompact class and recorded the best overall average mileage as well.

Here are the other categories and their top finishers:

- Two seaters: Fiat x33i-9 average 23 m.p.g., 20 in town, 31 highway.
- Mini-compact: Datsun B-210 average 40 m.p.g., 36 city and 49 highway.
- Compact: Peugeot 501 Diesel, average 30 m.p.g., 28 city and 34 highway.
- Mid-size: Ford Fairmount and Lincoln-Mercury Zephyr, both averaging 26 m.p.g.
- Large Size: Oldsmobile Delta 88 Diesel and Oldsmobile 98 diesel, both averaging 24 m.p.g.

Up to Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., today placed Bert Lance's future in the hands of the President of the United States and Bert Lance, and President Carter said that public opinion now strongly supports his budget director.

But four staff members of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, called to provide final testimony before the hearings are suspended, said Lance and two federal officials misled them several times during confirmation proceedings in January.

Claudia Ingram, a Republican staff aide, said Lance assured her press reports of his wife LaBelle's overdrafts were "false and misleading."

Ms. Ingram said Lance claimed "that estimation might be a little high," when she asked whether overdrafts by himself, Mrs. Lance and her family exceeded $100,000. The comptroller of currency's report placed the Lance family and campaign overdrafts at $450,000.

Lance testified he gave staffers information on all the matters which led the committee to call him back for questioning.

Hang up those phones; concert tickets gone

TWIN FALLS — Please stop calling! Our switchboard operators are "only human" and they're embarrassed by continually telling people there are no tickets left for Friday's Army Band concert.

So please, hang up those phones. All tickets for the Army Band — technically the U.S. Army Field Band and Soldiers Chorus — were dispensed several days ago.

Your best bet, if you still want to hear the concert, is to wait at the CSI Fine Arts Building "until" after ticketholders have been seen Friday night to see if you can get in on standing-room only.

The 1,200 tickets for the concert have been mailed, but there may be a few no-shows, and just prior to the concert a few persons will be admitted to stand in non-observing sections of the auditorium.

The concert, sponsored by the Times-News, will be presented without charge at 8 p.m. Friday at CSI.

US mum on race quota use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration today strongly endorsed the use of "minority-sensitive" admissions programs, but did not say in a long-awaited Supreme Court brief whether it supports the use of rigid racial quotas to end discrimination.

The brief asked the court to return to the California Supreme Court the case of Allan Bakke, a 37-year-old white applicant who contended he was denied admission by the medical school so he could admit less qualified blacks, Hispanics and Asian-Americans under a special quota system.

While the Justice Department position was filed only as a friend of the court, it is believed it will strongly influence the Supreme Court because it is a statement of government policy.

Black leaders have considered the case to be the most important civil rights case since Brown v. Board of Education school desegregation case of 1954, and some 50 briefs representing more than 160 different groups have been filed with the high court.

ECONOMIST Walter Heller said Sunday the Bert Lance affair "is fouling the waters of Washington" and diverting administration attention from the real problems of job creation.

No proof of Martian life but scientists perplexed

The source of the Martian puzzle is the three life-detection experiments carried to the planet's surface last year by each of the two unmanned Viking spacecraft. At both landing sites, 4,500 miles apart, the instruments produced positive results, which at first raised hopes of a discovery of the first extraterrestrial life.

The pyrolytic release experiment of Norman H. Horowitz, of the California Institute of Technology returned signals suggesting that the organic soil might be converting carbon monoxide or carbon dioxide into organic matter, a possible sign of life. But the synthesis was weak compared with similar earth processes, was inhibited by small amounts of water and was not totally destroyed by heat sterilization — all the more confusing to the scientists.

Kent gym project starts

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — A coalition which is opposing construction of the $6 million facility, stepped in front of the truck but was moved aside by Kent State security police. Security police also forced about 25 demonstrators away from the entrance.

The tractor-trailer moving the equipment to the construction site was escorted by one police car in front and five behind. Several KSU security officers also rode on the truck.

Several of the demonstrators at the site wore masks while campus police took pictures. The demonstrator who stepped in front of the truck, identified himself only as "Lonnie," said he did so because "I didn't want the truck to go in and do the work — and the gym will be moved."

Robert Malone, director of security at KSU, said it had not been determined how much more equipment would be moved onto the site today. The contractor will be in later to check out the site and see how much more heavy equipment he will want to bring in, Malone said.

Top Miami hotels bombing targets

MIAMI (UPI) — Bombs apparently set by militant Cuban exiles exploded at four of the Miami area's best-known hotels before dawn today, blowing out windows and spattering dirt near pools and in lobbies.

The explosion at the Dupont Plaza knocked out two 4-by-5-foot panes, strewn chunks of glass over the floor and a few tables of the Ecore Lounge, which was closed at the time of the blast.

The blasts came just hours before a planned march through Miami by Cuban exile groups to protest the thawing relations between the United States and Cuba. The first bomb went off at 2:03 a.m. at downtown Miami's Dupont Plaza. It was followed at 2:09 a.m. by a blast at the Fontainebleau in Miami Beach.

The explosions at the two downtown Miami hotels — the Dupont and Four Ambassadors — were both in the swimming pool areas and caused the most damage. The bomb at the Eden Roc scattered dirt in a circular driveway leading to the building. Damage at the Fontainebleau was described as negligible.

There were no injuries. The Pedro Luis Bollet Commandos, an anti-Fidel Castro organization of Cuban exiles — which claimed responsibility for two similar bombings in Washington Sept. 7, claimed responsibility for the four explosions.

Rain soaks California

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rain — beautiful rain — poured down on Northern California today, sometimes in torrents, bringing hope that the worst drought in the state's history may be ending.

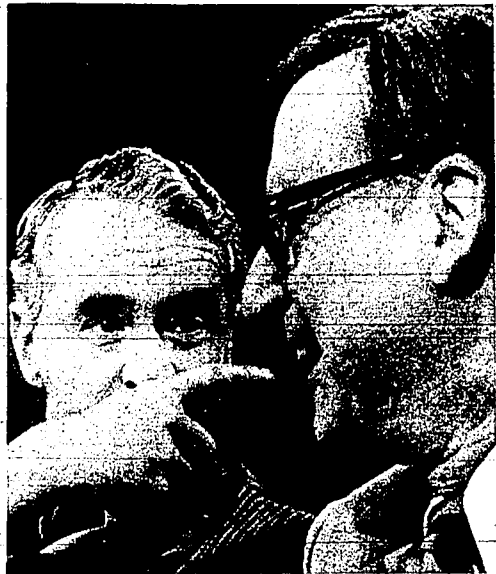

Marin County north of San Francisco, one of the areas hardest hit by the two-year drought, had nearly two inches of rain. Crescent City, on the northern coast, also had an inch and three-quarters and downtown San Francisco got a half an inch within an hour.

The drought-parched central valley tarantulas and orehams also were drenched. Some streets in the city and suburbs were flooded by a sudden heavy downpour about 6 a.m.

Triple blame for club disaster

FT. MITCHELL, Ky. (UPI) — The Beverly Hills Supper Club was jammed to twice its capacity and was replete with fire safety code violations the night a blaze killed 164 persons, Kentucky fire investigators have found.

State Police officials, in a comprehensive report released late Sunday, blamed the nightclub's owners, the state fire marshal and local authorities for actions which directly contributed to May 28 fire disaster.

It covered an investigation of three and one-half months. When the report was released, Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll suspended Fire Marshal Warren Southworth for "ineffective enforcement" of fire laws.

The report said investigators also pointed an accusing finger at owner Richard Schilling for allowing, at times knowingly, deviations from fire safety codes which "were manifold and extreme."

The report listed the major violations as: "Locks on doors, absence of sprinklers and proper firewalls, hazardous wiring, overcrowding, inadequate exits and improper construction."

The evidence of these violations was overwhelming," the report concluded.

The probers also said Southworth's office and similarly empowered Southgate, Ky., fire inspection authorities failed to properly examine the huge nightclub.

"The picture that emerges is that the fire marshal's office knew of fire hazard problems at Beverly Hills," they determined. "Inspections were not complete or thorough. The most frequent suggestion in the statements that it was someone else's task to remedy the situation does not reduce the overall obligation of the fire marshal's office."

The proper "occupant load" of the Cabaret Room, the club's main entertainment area, was 538, investigators figured, but about 1,300 persons were jammed into the room the night of the blaze. The report noted at least 160 of the 164 victims died in the Cabaret Room, where singer John Davidson was to perform that night.

In addition, the nightclub in general was overcrowded, they declared. Based on the number of exits provided the capacity of the entire club "should have been limited to 1,511 people, but employees indicated there were between 3,000 and 3,400 patrons that night."

With tables and chairs jamming routes of escape, chaos and panic prevailed in the Cabaret Room. "Statements from patrons indicated that some did not take the warning seriously. Some climbed over railings to get to exits, others were pushed or fell over tables and chairs, which were in the aisles."

Ex-CIA director denies bugging

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former CIA Director William E. Colby denies any knowledge of the reported CIA bugging of Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos.

But Colby, who headed the agency from 1973 to 1976, indicated during a weekend conference at the University of Southern California that he would not disapprove if the eavesdropping did occur.

"There are situations where it is very much to our advantage to eavesdrop," Colby said.

The Senate Intelligence Committee began an investigation Friday into reports the CIA had electronically bugged Torrijos and that he in turn used knowledge of that surveillance to blackmail American negotiators during the Panama Canal treaty talks.

"I just don't know the answer with regard to Panama," said Colby, who was the CIA head in 1974 when Torrijos was reportedly bugged.

Colby faced Daniel Ellsberg during a debate on "The Age of Conspiracy."

Ellsberg argued that secrecy, assassinations and support of right-wing regimes are incompatible with and destructive to American democracy.

"The notion that secrecy protects us from our enemies is absurd," Ellsberg said. "American people have no more control over foreign policy" than the Soviet people had over the sending of tanks into Hungary in the 1950s, he said. He also charged that "many Gestapos exist in the world, and we installed many of them."

Ellsberg argued that radical changes are needed in the American system to prevent abuses of power and the destruction of democracy.

"The executive branch possesses the means to destroy life on Earth," he said. "I don't think we can afford a clandestine service in this country."

ADA raps Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The liberal Americans for Democratic Action says President Carter's domestic policies are "jeopardizing his liberal support for re-nomination and reelection in 1980."

The organization's national board said in a statement it is "concerned with the underlying assumption of this administration that 'life is unfair and little can be done about it.'"

ADA National Director Leon Schult said, "President Carter is retreating from long-time Democratic progressive positions and reneging on the realistic expectations many citizens derived from his campaign commitments and the Democratic party platform."

The ADA said the administration's goal of balancing the budget and at the same time increasing defense spending has hurt employment programs and other social services.

Board members specifically criticized the administration for a welfare proposal that "redistributes poverty rather than income," and an economic stimulus package that it said favors individuals and private industry.

See Lance remaining

Two members of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee who disagree about Bert Lance said Sunday they believe President Carter intends to keep Lance as budget director. Sloth helps crime

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Large numbers of suspects arrested for serious crimes are being free because police officers fail in being in the "tangible" evidence and witnesses needed to get convictions, a government-financed report said today.

In Washington, D.C., the report said, fewer than 30 per cent of arrests for serious crimes in 1974 resulted in convictions. But the conviction rate was far higher when the officers brought in evidence along with the suspect.

There were 17,534 arrests but only 5,184 convictions, the report said. Of 2,416 officers who made arrests, a small group — 368 officers who regularly brought in evidence — accounted for half the convictions.

The Institute for Law and Social Research based its report on arrests by the Washington Metropolitan police, but it said similar findings have been made in Baltimore, Detroit, and in Los Angeles County and San Diego County, Calif.

"Statistics show that most major city police departments are all in the same boat," said Robert Deso, deputy counsel for the Washington police.

"The problem is with the police system as a whole, across the country."

"The costs of this phenomenon are surely staggering," the report said. "To the extent that criminal perpetrators are set free, justice is not done, opportunities to reduce crime through incapacitation and deterrence are lost."

Brian Forst, the project's chief investigator, said in a statement.

"It is likely to be difficult for many persons to see how justice is done in a system in which the majority of offenders are not arrested, the majority of the arrestees are not convicted, and the majority of convicted defendants are not incarcerated."

The investigators found that when officers brought in evidence as well as suspects, the conviction rate was 60 per cent higher for robberies and 25 per cent higher for other violent crimes.

The institute urged police departments to train officers to look beyond the traditional goal of "clearing" a case by making an arrest. It suggested rating officers by the convictions they help win rather than by their arrests.

"The court standard of convincing a jury of a suspect's guilt 'beyond reasonable doubt' is much higher than the 'probable cause' standard for making an arrest, it noted.

Toll at 25

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — An autopsy has been scheduled to determine the identity of the 25th victim of last week's devastating flash flooding.

Searchers found the latest victim Sunday in a wooded area near Brush Creek. Authorities said the victim was a woman, but they said an autopsy would be necessary to determine the woman's identity because the body was decomposed.

The body was found about five miles east of the Country Club Plaza, one of the areas hit hardest by the flash flooding last Monday and Tuesday.

VICTOR, said one of the great philosophers, is something lightly remembered in that time has in this town? We don't think so. We remember. We remember the faces and figures of our boys who marched away for World War I . . . and our lads who donned uniforms for World War II. The American Legion is a fraternity of these men who, when the occasion arose, look up arms in OUR defense. Do THEY remember? Most certainly. Lance has one hope to stay

By LYLE DENNISTON and VERONICA A. GUIDRY Jr.

WASHINGTON — Bert Lance has one hope of staying in office, and it forms his basic strategy now: Wait for the "pendulum to swing."

That is the way one of his aides puts the budget director's estimate of what must happen if he is to have any chance of remaining in President Carter's administration.

Deeply aware that the sway of events has been against him for the past several weeks, Lance is said to be still determined to stay on, yet convinced he can do that only if there is a detectable shift his way.

As his associates analyze his prospects, it would help to have a noticeable public reaction that Lance has done well in Senate hearings, answering his critics.

But more critical, his aides say, would be shifts in the press and in the White House. Their initial judgment was that Thursday's opening of Lance's defense helped him with the public and the press.

It was not yet clear whether the "pendulum" is swinging within the inner circle of White House aides. Lance apparently has some adversaries there.

It also is unclear just what has to happen if anything different must, in order to persuade the President himself to protect Lance's job. A pro-Lance crowd, if it existed, would help him with Carter if the President has become one of the skeptics.

Lance at least has been allowed a waiting period by Carter, the budget director's aides say. They insist Carter has not renounced, directly or indirectly to Lance that would have told him his resignation is inevitable.

But the waiting period for Lance may be allowed to go on for only a few days, perhaps no more than a week or so.

The President Thursday gave his first firm indication that he is approaching a point where he must face a decision about his close friend's future in Washington.

Apparently, the point of decision is to come when the Senate hearings into the "Lance Affair" are over. That is supposed to be this weekend, but may not come until sometime next week at the earliest.

"I'm sure that the decision that I make about with Bert Lance at the conclusion of the hearings will be satisfactory to the American people," the President said.

That comment could be interpreted either way. That he is leaning toward keeping Lance and thinks he can make a case for that, or that he is leaning toward accepting his budget director's resignation and thinks he can do that, and still seem fair.

Carter gave no hints Thursday as to how he was leaning. He said he still has no reason to believe that Lance is "dishonest, incompetent or that he has acted unethically."

He said he was "keeping an open mind about the subject, eager to hear all the responses that are being made."

Some of the allegations against Lance, Carter said, are known to be false. "Those that prove to be correct, I will have to make a judgment on them." He did not elaborate.

The comments seemed somewhat less favorable than those Carter made at his last news conference here, on Aug. 23. At that time, he said, Lance had no competitor for the key job.

"I still have that much faith in his honesty and his competence," the President told reporters then.

Taken together, the President's remarks Thursday, as well as a noncommittal White House report about a brief meeting between Carter and Lance Thursday morning, at least implied a measure of impatience with the continuing controversy.

Aides to Lance themselves now seem to be quite cautious.

Their optimism after his appearance Thursday appeared to be tentative; they stressed that he still faced several — perhaps many — hours of questioning that would surely grow increasingly hostile.

Asked if their boss will be keeping his job for quite a while, they say flatly: "He will stay." But then they talk of the need for a better turn.

In his statement Thursday, Lance said he was leaving his fate to "the jury" of the American people.

His associates, however, indicated that he is not necessarily relying upon any specific rise in his popular standing, such as an opinion poll.

Andrus introduces west to land reform

Creation of the Department of Energy reeled the Department of Interior of some of its energy resource responsibilities, which may be just as well considering Interior's view of oil as greasy stuff best left in the ground.

But whatever benefits there are from the change may be wiped out by the ways Secretary Andrus is finding to use his extra time. For example, he is introducing land reform to the American West.

We had always thought that land reform was something they did in places like Vietnam, or Chile or Iran. But that was before the Secretary's announcement last week that he intends to break up large land holdings in 17 Western states and distribute small parcels to thousands of aspirant farmers selected by lottery.

The Secretary's decision came about as the result of a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco on the meaning of the Reclamation Act of 1902. It seems that the court belatedly discovered that federal reclamation projects were not supposed to deliver water to farmers holding more than 160 acres. You don't find many successful farms in the West or anywhere else these days with 160 acres or less.

The Secretary will give the owners a year to turn over their land to the government for sale. Interior intends to see to it that there are no "windfall profits" to holders who might have bought land irrigated to have it rise sharply in value through access to federal water. Buyers would also be precluded from making any "unreasonable profits" through resale for 20 to 25 years.

Now, we know enough about Western water politics to know that some farmers and investors have made killings on their political connections by getting government water supplied to arid lands. And we know that President Carter dislikes this form of booting.

But we nonetheless find it capricious of the government to first supply land holders with water to make their land valuable and then to seize it because of latter-day reminders that the whole process was illegal. No doubt it will be a heady experience for Secretary Andrus to stand on the courthouse steps in Ft. Collins or some such place and fire a pistol to signal a new land rush. But the symbolism inherent in claim stakers pelted through Imperial Valley vineyards and tomato fields to grab choice real estate reminds us a bit too much of the storming of the Winter Palace.

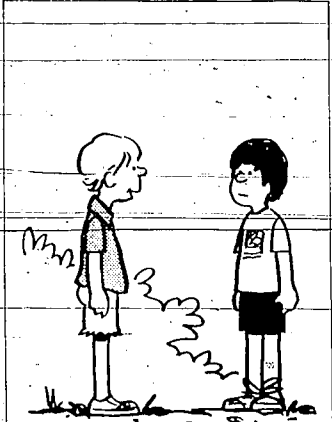

The Farm Bureau raises another issue, which, since it involves economics, probably didn't occur to the court or anyone at Interior. "A farm of 160 acres may have been an efficient unit in the days when farmers walked behind horse-drawn plows," says Farm Bureau President Allen Grant. "But times have changed in the past 75 years. To return to the outmoded concept of the 160-acre farm would limit the productivity and incomes of farm families at the same time that it would cause higher food prices." The average farm in the Mountain states is 2,139 acres and in the Pacific states 516 acres.

We see no particular reason why farmers should be subsidized with water furnished by the government at below cost. And by the same token we see no reason why the 1902 law could not be rewritten to take account of changed circumstances, to eliminate whatever subsidy it might contain and to make federal water available to all comers.

The thing we find puzzling is why the Interior Secretary ignored this obvious course in favor of seizing land and reselling it. But then a lot of things puzzle us about the conduct of this administration.

Signs in Middle East appear ominous

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
Chicago Daily News

The Middle East — this proverbial permanent time bomb — appears to be leading for a new period of turmoil.

The signs are ominous: the failure of the latest American peace efforts, a tougher stand by the Palestinian guerrillas, continued fighting in Lebanon, intensified underground activity in Egypt and the beginning of unrest in Syria.

The optimistic view is that these dangerous splittings can be contained locally, without spilling over the borders. Pessimists feel that increasing friction with the status quo can, once again, set the entire area ablaze.

One thing appears certain: Whatever happens the United States will be blamed by the Arabs and Israelis alike. President Carter had raised much hope by promising to make 1977 a crucial year for movement toward a settlement. Nearly eight months after that pledge, the area is seething with tension. Old fears are coming to the surface. America, the antagonists say, has failed again.

The feeling of frustration was heightened after the 11-day tour of the Middle East in August by Sec. of State Cyrus R. Vance. The only thing Vance managed to achieve during the tour was an agreement by the Arabs and Israelis to continue their dialog during the autumn session of the United Nations General Assembly. And that debate has yet to lead anywhere.

Hardly anyone in the Middle East considers the resumption of the Geneva peace talks — one of Carter's main aims — likely this year. A recent meeting of Palestinian leaders in Damascus virtually slammed the door on the conference.

The 55-man advisory Palestine Central Council categorically rejected any acceptance of the UN Resolution 242, the key to existing peace moves, on the grounds that it does not mention Palestine or the Palestinians.

The resolution, adopted by the Security Council in November, 1967, calls for a settlement based on Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab land, the end of belligerence and the right of every state in the area "to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries free from threats or acts of force."

The Palestinians realize only too well that they are the crux of the Middle Eastern problem. They have now thrown down the gauntlet at the powers trying to solve the simmering dilemma.

The United States has made an initial step to appease the Palestinians, mainly by President Carter's statement, for the need for a Palestinian "homeland." This so far has not been followed up by a single concrete act. President Carter has received a string of Arab and Israeli leaders at the White House, but no movement toward a settlement has emerged from these visits.

The issue at hand is whether the Palestinians will be allowed to participate if and when the Geneva Conference resumes. If they are allowed, in what form? As an independent delegation or as a member of one of the Arab delegations?

Israel is on record opposing any dealing with the Palestinians or their presence in Geneva. Prime Minister Menachem Begin reiterated this view formally during his recent visit to Romania, the only Soviet Bloc country maintaining ties with Israel.

Will Democrats triumph in 1978?

TWIN FALLS — In 1976 the Idaho Democratic Party continued a lengthy tradition of losing elections. Both congressional candidates went down in flames, five seats in the House of Representatives were lost, and the Senate — which Democrats had predicted they would capture — remained tightly in the GOP grip.

At the national level, Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter demonstrated he was the most popular Democratic-presidential candidate in Idaho since George McGovern. As with the state races, his performance was nothing to write home about.

Surprisingly, however, getting embittered in the 1976 elections may have been the best thing that ever happened to Idaho Democrats: Discovering their backs to the wall, the Democrats finally began taking politics and organization seriously — a change that could be made only infrequently in the past. And as luck would have it, the Democrats have finally begun acting as a disciplined army at the same time the Republicans face intra-party mutiny, rebellion and armed revolt. From the top to the bottom of the ticket, 1978 looks more and more like a Democratic year.

The gubernatorial contest provides the best example of the change: Taking place in the two parties. There, right off the mention of John Evans' name prompted snickers and a crude comparison with Don Samudson. "From Big Dumb Don to Big Dumb John," went the joke.

No one's stopping anymore. Slowly and surely, John Evans has taken a tight grip on the reins of government. In a quiet and dignified manner he has left no one unaware that the governor's mansion is occupied by a man to be reckoned with.

The initial impression of Evans was formed almost entirely by a contrast in styles. Forgetting that "Creed" Andrus had once been a bumbling backwoods senator from Oregon — whose first major bit in the legislature dealt with regulations of the cutting of Christmas trees — Democrats compared John Evans with the suave and sophisticated — from Andrus' later — departed when governor. Against that background, the lieutenant governor from Malad who gave a jousy public speech was pegged as a country bumpkin.

Forgotten was the top notch business education from Stanford University, the extensive banking experience and the 14 years in the legislature, which combined to make John Evans one of the most qualified men ever to serve as Idaho's chief executive.

The contrast in style blinded most to the substance of the man. And much as the awkward, fumbling junior senator from Missouri — Harry Truman — was dismissed as a small town dolt, when suddenly forced to serve as President after the polished presentation of Franklin Roosevelt, Idaho's new governor was judged on an extremely superficial standard.

Evans has been touching all the bases, and with the one-on-one style at which he excels. He has built a new base of respect. He still has a long way to go; some areas of the state have complained they're being ignored, and his Democratic troops are limited in number — but John Evans has come a long way since he first became governor.

While John Evans will run unopposed in the Democrat primary — always a unifying factor — the Republican contest is beginning to resemble a political smorgasbord. The one candidate with an established statewide recognition and organization, Attorney General Wayne Kidwell, not only pulled out of the contest but took a few parting shots. The other Republican candidates as he left. The result has been a vacuum into which at least five candidates have entered or plan to enter. This means a bitter struggle for a limited number of Republican campaign dollars — and workers — while the Democrats sit by and enjoy the fight.

Evans will have no free ride into the governor's chair in 1978, but it is possible a bitter Republican gubernatorial primary may prevent the GOP from unifying, severely hampering the campaign of their general election candidate.

It is not just at the gubernatorial level that everything seems to be coming up roses for the Democrats. Both of their congressional candidates are well along in fund-raising efforts, and have strong organizations.

In the First District Superintendent of Public Instruction Roy Truby plans to have $100,000 in the bank by Christmas to challenge Steve Symms. An uphill struggle, Truby is gearing his campaign on the premise he can re-capture the Democrats who have voted for Symms in the past few elections. Truby is operating — on the assumption most of those votes are protest votes, and that the cuteness of always voting no is beginning to wear off. In the words of one Truby supporter, "Steve Symms is the middle finger of Idaho, extended upward and outward toward the East Coast and all that it represents. The Truby clan hopes to show that just making such a gesture isn't enough."

In the Second Congressional District the campaign organization of Stan Kress is also well along in fund raising — and organization. Kress supporters are aware that while Republican President Gerald Ford carried the state by over 77,000 votes in 1976, Republican Congressman George Hansen beat them by less than 2,000 votes. "George rode in on those coattails," one Kress supporter commented. "And the coat won't be there in 1978."

That assured Hansen won't be dumped by his own party in the GOP Primary. Vernon Ravenscroft of Tulle, a tough campaigner with a strong base of support in southern Idaho, has laid the groundwork for a congressional challenge to Hansen. Again, the Republicans will spill blood in the primary while the Democrats sit back and smile. The Senate race seems to be the Republicans' brightest star for 1978. Jim McClure has yet to generate significant Democratic opposition. The name of freshman legislator Mike Black, D-Craigmont, has been floated in some circles, and he may well enter the race. A minister with a dynamic speaking presence, Black could count on funding from national organizations opposed to McClure, including conservation and pro-Israel groups.

Over the years Idaho Democrats have developed to a fine art the practice of snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. Frequently they fight among themselves more than against the Republicans. And for all their good beginnings, the Democrats may repeat past performances by losing most of next year's elections. Still, 1978 appears to have all the signs of becoming a Democratic year.

Lebanon border war escalates

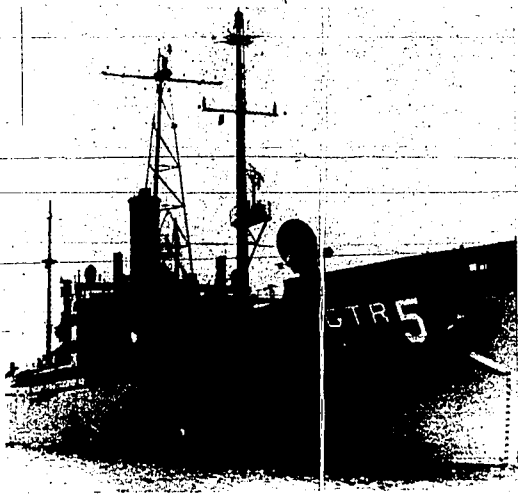

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese leftists today fought a see-saw battle with Israeli-backed Christian rightists for control of a strategic hill near the Israeli border in the fiercest fighting in 10 months.

Israel: Wounded rightists reportedly were being transferred to Israel for treatment. On the fourth day of intense artillery, mortar and machine gun fighting in the area, the battle swirled around strategic Clerki Hill, located between rightist-held Marjayoun and Palestinian-held Khiam to the southwest.

Palestinian-leftist reports said the hill had changed hands several times, with the rightists taking it in their initial offensive at the beginning of the weekend and the guerrillas recapturing it by Sunday. The reports said the rightists today again were trying to wrench the ridge away from the Palestinian-leftist forces.

that fire was being exchanged in the vicinity of the hill between guerrillas and rightists with artillery, mortars, rockets, heavy and light machine guns. The correspondent said one rightist armored car was destroyed. Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat, directing military operations from a frontline bunker, sent urgent messages to Arab leaders Sunday asking them to "shoulder their responsibilities" in the face of a "renewal of Israeli aggression," a Palestinian official said. Lebanese Premier Selim Al Hoss met in Beirut Sunday with U.S. embassy charge d'affaires George Lane.

Smith offers counter plans

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith has offered counter-proposals to the Anglo-American plan for a peaceful shift to black majority rule in Rhodesia. Unveiling his new, all-white cabinet Sunday, Smith said he has submitted proposals on how "the British 'white paper' (the Anglo-U.S. proposal) can be improved" and has asked which of its terms are negotiable. He said he is awaiting replies, and in the meantime has shelved parts of his own plan for a settlement with moderate blacks — including some blacks in his government — and drafting a new constitution that provides for majority rule but at the same time offers wide safeguards to white Rhodesians. "I am satisfied that the thinking of all concerned at the moment is we should hold our horses for a while until we can ascertain whether there is going to be progress on the 'white paper' proposals," Smith said. "Providing we can get the British and American governments to go along with our kind of thinking, then there is no reason why we should reject this or turn our backs on it, he said."

Britain and the United States have rejected Smith's plan for the "interim settlement" — so-called because it would exclude black nationalist guerrillas — saying it would not stop the five-year guerrilla war.

CIA links Dayan, US ship attack

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Newly revealed CIA documents say Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan ordered the 1967 attack on the USS Liberty in which 34 Americans died because the ship was jamming Israeli communications. The documents, which the American Palestine Committee said it obtained through the Freedom of Information Act, contradict Israeli declarations that the incident during the Six-Day War was a mistake. National ABC chairman Norman Daley of Bridgeport said he chose to publish them Sunday to coincide with Dayan's scheduled visit to New York and Washington. He suggested Dayan be tried in the United States as a "war criminal."

were "unevaluated for accuracy." Similar reports he has been published in the past, but none was ever confirmed. Israel claimed the daylight attack on the U.S. communications ship June 8, 1967, was a tragic mistake that occurred when its warplanes and torpedo boats confused the Liberty with an Egyptian vessel near Israel's 12-1 mile limit in the Mediterranean. The incident came three days after Israel's June 5 lightning-strike across the Sinai Peninsula caught the Norman Daley of Bridgeport said he chose to publish them Sunday to coincide with Dayan's scheduled visit to New York and Washington. He suggested Dayan be tried in the United States as a "war criminal."

Plans drawn for curbs on cholera

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Jordan and Saudi Arabia today prepared a coordinated drive to control a Middle East cholera epidemic before millions of Moslems begin their pilgrimages to the holy city of Mecca in the next two months. Jordan reported 14 new cases of the highly-infectious disease Sunday, a total of 351 in an outbreak that has killed 71 people and stricken more than 3,000 others in neighboring Syria, where it first appeared last month. Saudi authorities vowed a crackdown on sanitary conditions after "several isolated" cases of cholera were reported a week ago north of Mecca, Saudi Arabia, the holiest place in Islam. Though the Saudis are said to have very well trained and equipped medical personnel, a Beirut cholera expert stressed the pilgrimage remained "an ideal environment for spreading the disease."

Viet exiles head for US

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — More than 100 Vietnamese refugees left today for San Francisco, the first of 15,000 exiles from Communist countries in Indochina who will start a new life in the United States. The 105 refugees who flew off this morning aboard a Pan American 747 all escaped Vietnam on boats, risking capture, shipwreck and death in their attempt at freedom. They will land in San Francisco and from there will travel to the homes of their American sponsors — families and organizations which have offered to help the refugees get started on their new life. Most of them will settle in the Midwest. The 105 are the first of 15,000 refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia admitted to the United States under a special program recently approved by Congress.

Stapleton book published

RUTH CARTER STAPLETON

LONDON (UPI) — Mrs. Ruth Carter Stapleton, the President's sister, arrived in London Sunday night for the British publication of her book on spiritual healing.

Mrs. Stapleton, accompanied by her husband Bob, told reporters at Heathrow Airport, "I have seen many people healed but I would never say I have performed any of them. We are all just a vehicle for the holy spirit so I don't claim to be a healer as such."

Mrs. Stapleton, a preacher and faith healer, said her brother's religious convictions have been very strong since he was 6 years old, but she said he never gave up politics. "He was called into it as I was called into the ministry. Everyone does their own thing in their own way," she said.

Miss Wheelchair America

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Margie Sloan of Atlanta will have the interests of all handicapped persons at heart during her reign as Miss Wheelchair America.

Mrs. Sloan, 31, a regional program specialist in the Rehabilitation Services Administration in Atlanta, was crowned Miss Wheelchair America Saturday night in the sixth annual pageant. She became a spokeswoman for thousands of handicapped Americans. "One thing I'd like to accomplish is to have the evening news programs, both at 6 and 11 p.m., translated for the deaf," she said.

"I'd also like to make the public aware of 504 (a part of Title V of the Rehabilitation Act) which forbids discrimination against all handicapped," she said.

Throughout her reign, year, she will be making many appearances on behalf of the handicapped.

She said she would like very much to visit again with President Carter. She visited with him when he was governor of Georgia, but has not seen him since he became President.

Sextuplets born in Holland

LEYDEN, Netherlands (UPI) — Sextuplets born to a young Dutch couple are in good condition and already have an agent to handle their business affairs, doctors at Leyden's University Hospital said.

The four boys and two girls born Sunday at the hospital in Leyden, near Amsterdam, are the first sextuplets born in Holland — and only the second set known to have lived more than a few hours after their birth.

The 25-year-old mother, from the town of Heemkerk, near Haarlem, had been taking fertility drugs. The babies were born two months prematurely and were delivered by Caesarian section, doctors said.

were not disclosed by hospital authorities.

Three boys and three girls born to Susan Jane Rosenkowitz in Cape Town, South Africa, on Jan. 11, 1974, are recorded as the only other surviving set of sextuplets.

The actual birth of the Dutch babies, weighing between 2.2 pounds and 2.7 pounds, took only 70 seconds for all six, doctors said.

From the start, Holland's newest citizens were given first-class treatment, with individual doctors taking immediate charge of each infant as it was born.

A medical team of 15 was on hand for the operation. "We had eight doctors in attendance so two were disappointed," the hospital spokesman joked.

Prof. Jan Bembroek Groenewald, the man in charge of the birth, said the babies were born at 10:15 a.m. (4:15 a.m. EDT).

Concert supports gay rights

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Belte Midler and comedians Lili Tomlin and Richard Pryor performed in "Sunday Night's Star Spangled Night for Rights" concert in support of gay rights.

The concert, held in the Hollywood Bowl, was an attempt to make a "positive statement" by calling attention to discrimination the entertainers say is aimed at homosexuals.

The show went on despite a protest from anti-gay state Sen. John Briggs, R-Fullerton, who warned of a campaign to blacklist Hollywood celebrities defending homosexuals.

Entertainer listed 'critical'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Entertainer Frank Fontaine, the mellow-voiced comic who delighted millions as a television regular on the "Jackie Gleason Show," suffered an apparent heart attack Sunday at Port Columbus International Airport.

Mount Carmel East Hospital.

Fontaine, whose "Crazy Guggenheim" character contrasted sharply with his fluid singing style, had just finished a nightclub engagement and was waiting for an airplane when he suffered the attack.

Missionary released unharmed

Couple sought in kidnaping case

LONDON (UPI) — Police sought an American man and woman Sunday for questioning about the kidnaping of a young Mormon missionary who was released unharmed after being held shackled and handcuffed for three days.

The missionary, 21-year-old American Kirk Anderson, was still talking with Scotland Yard detectives more than 24 hours after his kidnapers set him free Saturday in central London.

Scotland Yard issued descriptions of Joyce McInney, 27, the American woman Anderson told police he fitted after a love affair, and Keith Joseph May, 25, of Los Angeles. No hometown was given for McInney.

"We think they can assist us in connection with the kidnaping," said Det. Chief Supt. Bill Huckleby, who is heading the investigation.

Huckleby said police were watching airports and ports in their search for McInney and May. He said both have several aliases.

"They could have left the country but I very much doubt it," he said.

Detectives said Anderson told them he was kidnaped after going off on church business with a man with a Canadian accent.

Detectives also questioned three unidentified men in connection with the case but police sources said later they would not be charged.

Officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints said Anderson had been the victim of harassment by the woman whose love he scorned.

Anderson, from Provo, Utah, had been physically assaulted, had his car tires slashed and his car run off the road in the two-year harassment campaign, the officials said.

A Scotland Yard official said police were cooperating with the FBI in the United States to establish the whereabouts of the woman allegedly involved in the case.

Anderson was still talking to the police in Epson, the village 20 miles south of London where he was kidnaped Wednesday. He was released in London.

Police announced Sunday night they were questioning three men in connection with the case but declined to give further details.

Richard Eyres, Mormon president for southern England, said he visited Anderson at the police station and found him "fine and comfortable."

Scotland Yard detectives said Anderson told them Saturday he was kidnaped after going off on church business with a man with a Canadian accent. He said a blanket was placed over his head and he was driven to a house.

"While he was kidnaped, he was kept handcuffed and his legs were shackled," Det. Chief Supt. Bill Huckleby of Scotland Yard said. "I stress he was not harmed in any way. He was well-treated and well fed."

Huckleby said detectives believe Anderson "has been released so that he can settle a domestic issue between a girlfriend and himself."

Huckleby said Anderson told detectives that "a lot of talk had been going on in the house connected with the domestic problem he has."

Anderson came to Britain 10 months ago as one of the Mormon Church's 1,500 missionaries here. His kidnaper posed as a "convert" who wanted to talk to him about joining the church.

Woman's identity 'mystery'

SCHILLER PARK, Ill. (UPI) — Resurrection Hospital employees have offered to pay for the funeral of "Jane Doe," a young woman who died Sunday after she was found severely beaten in a forest preserve two weeks ago.

But police say they are hopeful they may day identify the woman, aged in her late teens, who never regained consciousness after her ordeal. She was discovered bound and wrapped in a bloody blanket by a hitchhiker who heard her moans.

"We don't want to see her go to a pauper's burial by the state," said Walter Chasen, a funeral home owner. "You never know," said Patrolman Robert Collura. "In the next two minutes someone could come in and identify her."

Police said they are especially anxious to find the identity of a woman who has called the hospital each day asking about the girl's condition.

More than 200 persons came to Resurrection Hospital in attempts to solve the mystery, a hospital spokesman said.

Police received 1,000 more telephone inquiries about the woman.

Pictures of her bruised face were distributed in hopes that someone might recognize her. Photographs of her teeth were sent to daily newspapers so that a dentist might identify them as belonging to one of his patients.

East champ wins Monopoly playoff

NEW YORK (UPI) — Go to jail. Go directly to jail. Do not pass "Go." Do not collect $200.

Nearly everyone living in the United States since the Great Depression knows the source of those four imperatives is Monopoly — one of the country's most popular table games.

On Saturday at the Four Seasons Restaurant, the five best Monopoly players in the nation gathered around a table strewn with red hotels, green houses, Chance and Community Chest cards, and thousands of dollars in weakly play money.

They met to determine who would represent the United States at the World Monopoly Championship in October at that bastion of bacchar and other expensive games of chance — Monte Carlo.

A 20-by-20 foot playing board with 16-inch thimbles, balls, sports cars and other tokens was erected—for a morning celebrity game. But in the afternoon, those playing for big stakes preferred to huddle around the familiar four-legged card table and use dice that disappeared in a palm. Four players representing four regions of the country challenged the defending champ, Gus Gostomelsky, 41. Gostomelsky was the first to drop out, lasting just 35 minutes.

In the next 25 minutes, Steve Gunn, 21, the Midwest champ, and Lee Bayrd, 43, the West Coast champ, both were eliminated.

For the last ten minutes of the 73-minute contest, Dana Terman, 21, the East champ, and John Buffa, 23, the South champ, battled for hotels and houses. Buffa built hotels on all the orange properties. Terman owned one vacant yellow lot and built four houses each on those prime dark blue corner lots — Boardwalk and Park Place.

Terman was lucky enough to land on any of Buffa's orange properties—for about four consecutive tours of the board. He got his $200 each time he passed "Go" and rebought some of his mortgaged property.

The error came when Buffa picked a Chance card which read, "Advance token to Boardwalk." That broke Buffa's bank, and Terman won.

Terman, who makes his legit money as an assistant manager of a fast food store in Washington, D.C., said his main strategy was to stay flexible. "I buy everything I land on," he said, "and then I look to trade."

Laura Cathoun, vice president of Chase Manhattan Bank, worked a sixth day and acted as banker.

DEAR ABBY: In stressing the importance of speaking up for oppressed minorities, you published a quote and asked if anyone knew its origin.
The original quote was somewhat different. Its author was Martin Niemöller, who served aboard a German U-boat during World War I. He later became a Lutheran minister. When Hitler rose to power, Niemöller opposed him and was promptly thrown into Theresienstadt—a Nazi concentration camp. At this camp 76,000 Jews (of which 15,000 were children) were sent to their death. At the time of the liberation, only 100 children had survived.
When Pastor Niemöller was released, he was asked, "How did the world let this happen?" He responded:

Quote serves as reminder

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."
How sad that only 92 years have passed and many of us have already forgotten that lesson. Let this serve as a reminder.

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAN: Thank you and the hundreds of other readers who sent their versions of that brilliant quote. The same sentiments were expressed by Thomas Paine (1773-1809), a revolutionary, whose writings greatly influenced the political thinking of the leaders of the American Revolution.

He said, "He that would make his own liberty secure, must guard even his enemy from oppression, for if he violates this duty, he establishes a precedent that will reach to himself."
And that, my friends, is what human rights are all about.

DEAR ABBY: I have been meaning to write this letter for years, but I never got around to it until now. I want you to know that a letter in your column signed TOO LATE caused me to visit my mother every day during her last two years in a nursing home.

I will always feel indebted to you, Dear Abby, for motivating me to do something that now permits me to live with a clear conscience.

Abzug blasts those against IWY meet

By KAY MILLS

© 1977, Newhouse News Service

—WASHINGTON—Bella Abzug, chairman of the increasingly-embattled International Women's Year (IWY) Commission, blasted the Ku Klux Klan, John Birch Society, Mormon Church and various other anti-Egal Rights Amendment and anti-abortion groups last week for trying to "smear" her commission as it plans a national women's meeting.

"Mrs. Abzug singled out Sen. Jesse Helms (D-N.C.), a conservative who was consistently opposed the IWY meetings, for holding hearings this week on use of federal funds for the upcoming session in Houston" and on alleged irregularities in selecting delegates.

The two days of Helms' ad hoc—or unofficial—hearings at which 60 people were selected to testify, could provide "the groundwork for illegally disrupting this meeting," Mrs. Abzug angrily told her fellow commissioners.

"We will hold our meeting and we are not going to allow anybody to disrupt us," she said.

The 42-member commission, which includes New York Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupak, civil rights leader Coretta Scott King, television actress Jean Stapleton and feminist leaders Gloria Steinem, Eleanor Smeal, Millie Jeffrey and Audrey Colom, has been wrestling with the issues and the delegate credential problems which will be aired in Houston Nov. 18-21.

Feminist leaders see their efforts under increasing attack by conservatives. They fear the Houston meeting will evolve into a "women against women" confrontation instead of the opportunity to draw up a national agenda of women's needs, including ERA ratification as a number one priority.

As a measure of their concern, the commission voted to close portions of its two-day planning meeting in Washington this week to discuss personnel and security. That move is provided for under the Government in the Sunshine Act, which Mrs. Abzug sponsored.

"I'm also author of the Privacy Act," Mrs. Abzug told the reporter whose presence forced the vote. "I have to deal with both privacy and sunshine at the same time. It's an enormous conflict."

Congress appropriated $5 million for state and national meetings to follow up on the IWY session two years ago in Mexico City. Through the summer, conservatives began seeing the state sessions as a forum for their opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and other feminist issues.

Laetrile shown aid for breast cancer

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Loyola University biologist says he has conducted laboratory tests that indicate a cancer treatment involving Laetrile has cured breast cancer in mice.

Most American health authorities have condemned Laetrile as a worthless treatment for cancer, but some states have legalized it in response to growing demand for it from cancer victims.

Dr. Harold Manner, chairman of the biology department at Loyola, said in an interview Tuesday his tests show Laetrile, used in conjunction with vitamins and enzymes, can cure breast cancer in mice. He said previous tests on Laetrile had dealt with the controversial substance itself and not its use in a complete therapeutic program.

He called his research a possible "step toward the ultimate cure of cancer."

Manner said he will divulge his experimental methods at the annual meeting of the National Health Federation in Chicago so other cancer researchers can repeat his experiments.

He said he is confident they will come up with the same results and "then the FDA can release it for human trials."

Manner said about a year and half ago he began the same type of tests "used so effectively by the Food and Drug Administration in talking against Laetrile."

"We came up with exactly the same results which would lead us to the conclusion that Laetrile is worthless," he said.

"We could have left the issue there and gone on to something else, but he talks with graduate researchers here I suddenly realized we were working in the wrong area in that we were talking about cancer as a nutritional-deficient disease."

"We changed our outlook and began to realize that Laetrile would be effective only if used in conjunction with a complete therapeutic program."

'Mothers' given uniforms

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy, which recently decided to restore the bell-bottomed sailor suit for men, announced another style innovation Friday—the first maternity uniforms for officers and enlisted women.

The objective, it said, is to allow pregnant WAVES to maintain a "professional" look instead of switching to civilian maternity clothes as they near must do.

The new four-piece maternity uniform—consisting of a long or short-sleeved shirt, dark blue slacks and skirt and dark blue overblouse—can be mixed to form appropriate uniforms for all seasons and duty requirements," the announcement said.

It will cost about $40 and will be available in Navy exchanges or through special order outlets early next year.

The Navy said the uniforms were developed "in response to the desires of Navy women for an attractive and practical uniform which would allow them to maintain a more professional appearance while performing military duty during pregnancy."

"Currently pregnant Navy women wear civilian maternity clothing when conventional uniforms no longer fit."

It said the maternity uniforms "are adaptations of commercially successful maternity garments."

It will cost about $40 and will be available in Navy

Dear Dr. Lamb: Permit me to ask about hair loss from too much vitamin A. Is it progressive or should the hair return when the vitamin A is stopped? Could this be the reason for the progressive hair loss in our son's case? He was given massive doses of vitamin A for acne in his high school years and about then he started losing his hair. Our family is a hairy bunch for generations back to the Revolutionary War so this is not inherited.

Time goes on and year after year he keeps losing his hair. He is a happy person and looks fine despite his baldness but his sons are approaching the acne age and if vitamin A is the culprit we should know. Is that type of hair loss permanent and progressive?

Dear Reader—

As soon as the vitamin A is stopped the trend should start reversing itself and eventually stop. If your grandson develops (and he should not be treated with vitamin A capsules or pills as that does no good at all.

Questions hair loss

Vitamin A acts is used on the surface of the skin to encourage skin peeling and improve the skin but this is not the same thing as vitamin A and must be prescribed by a physician.

Vitamin A was once thought to be useful in treating acne but we now know that it doesn't help at all. I am anxious that young people realize this so they will not pop large amounts of vitamin A on their own. Such a practice is not only useless but it can be harmful.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, so it will be available for your grandsons. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb: My family got tired of going to the store and buying the same blah, tasteless cereals. So now we have reverted to the grain bin, using hard wheat, Drum wheat, rye, millet, flax, soybeans and corn. We wash and clean the grains and store them in jars till we are ready to use them. Then we run the amount of grain we need through a mill to make either flour or cereal.

Cereals are sweetened with honey and a little molasses. Breads are made using one part home grains and two parts store bought flour.

Is this a good healthy diet for us? What do you think of using natural grains? We have just about given up those flat tasteless cereals since we have been enjoying whole grain cereals.

Dear Reader—

This natural grains are just fine and they provide a good amount of bulk that you may also need. If you like the taste, from a nutrition point of view there is no reason why you should not use them.

I would add only one caution. Be sure the grains you use are for food purposes and not for seeds. Some seed grains have been treated with chemicals, pesticides and the like. If you happen to use seed grains for food you could fatally poison yourself. So always be sure what kind of whole grain you are buying.

The grains you mention belong to one of the four basic food groups, cereals and bread. You still need a proper amount of the fruit and vegetable group, the milk and dairy products group and the meat group for a good balanced diet.

Reptile transport causes problems

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—A 300-pound crocodile, a pregnant python and a 12-foot king cobra are a few of the larger problems involved in moving day for Ron Goellner, curator of the St. Louis Zoo's Reptile House.

The reptile house is home to one of the largest reptile collections in the nation. The 500 individuals are being moved this week to new accommodations so renovations on the 50-year-old building can be made during the winter.

The move could solve a mystery surrounding the zoo's slender-nosed crocodile.

"He happens to be the oldest zoo resident," Goellner said of the huge crocodile. "He's been here since 1933."

"We call him a lie, but we'll find out for sure when we move him," Goellner added.

Goellner plans to lower a crate into the pool, persuade the crocodile to crawl inside, then haul him out.

"Move lies that constitute the most work just because of the size of the animal," he said.

At one point, Goellner paused before a display housing a blarney snake identified as a ball python.

"That's the oldest snake in the building," he said. "She's way past due to lay eggs and keeps getting heavier. She's been in cage '46; that must be the oldest individual on record to produce viable young."

Goellner says moving the king cobra to new quarters in a basement of an adjacent building at the zoo should be less of a problem.

"It's pretty easy going as far as king cobras go," Goellner said. "What we do when we clean his cage is just open a little door to a side room, and he crawls back in. We'll just do the same thing but have a box or something there that he'll crawl into."

"We don't manhandle any of the venomous snakes—that is, pin them down and pick them up. It's dangerous to the individual picking them up and possibly harmful to the snake. We just use a stick with a hook, balance them on the end and slip them into a trash can."

Because of the hardy nature of reptiles, Goellner said there will be no danger in confining them to smaller cages. He said cages are being built to house some of the larger specimens, such as the monitor lizard from New Guinea.

"Stretched out, he's probably close to 9 or 10 feet. Of course two-thirds of that is tail," Goellner said of the lizard, which was lying on a tree branch in its cage. "They're nervous animals, though, so just grabbing them right can be a little problem. They'll bare their claws just like a cat, and they're razor sharp."

Stapleton book published

RUTH CARTER STAPLETON

LONDON (UPI) — Mrs. Ruth Carter Stapleton, the President's sister, arrived in London Sunday night for the British publication of her book on spiritual healing.

Mrs. Stapleton, accompanied by her husband Bob, told reporters at Heathrow Airport, "I have seen many people healed but I would never say I have performed any of them. We are all just a vehicle for the holy spirit so I don't claim to be a healer as such."

Mrs. Stapleton, a preacher and faith healer, said her brother's religious convictions have been very strong since he was 8 weeks old, but she said he would never give up politics. "He was called into it as I was called into the ministry. Everyone does their own thing in their own way," she said.

Miss Wheelchair America

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Margie Sloan of Atlanta will have the interests of all handicapped persons at heart during her reign as Miss Wheelchair America. Mrs. Sloan, 31, a regional program specialist in the Rehabilitation Services Administration in Atlanta, was crowned Miss Wheelchair America Saturday night in the sixth annual pageant. She becomes a spokesperson for thousands of handicapped Americans.

"One thing I'd like to accomplish is to have the evening news programs, both at 6 and 11 p.m., translated for the deaf," she said.

"I'd also like to make the public aware of SRA as part of Title of the Rehabilitation Act which forbids discrimination against all handicapped," she said.

Throughout her reign, she will be making many appearances on behalf of the handicapped.

She says she would like very much to visit again with President Carter. She visited with him when he was governor of Georgia, but has not seen him since he became President.

Sextuplets born in Holland

LEYDEN, Netherlands (UPI) — Sextuplets born to a young Dutch couple are in good condition and already have an agent to handle their business affairs, doctors at Leyden's University Hospital said.

The four boys and two girls born Sunday at the hospital in Leyden, near Amsterdam, are the first sextuplets born in Holland and only the second set known to have lived more than a few hours after their birth.

The 25-year-old mother, from the town of Hoeksmaek, near Haarlem, had been taking fertility drugs. The babies were born two months prematurely and were delivered by Caesarian section, doctors said.

"The babies are in very good condition," a hospital spokesman said. They were the first children for the couple, whose names were not disclosed by hospital authorities. The boys and three girls born to Susan Jane Rosinkovitz in Cape Town, South Africa, on Jan. 11, 1974, are recorded as the only other surviving set of sextuplets.

The actual birth of the Dutch babies, weighing between 2.2 pounds and 2.7 pounds, took only 70 seconds for all six doctors said.

From the start, Holland's newest citizens were given first-class treatment, with individual doctors taking immediate charge of each infant as it was born.

A medical team of 15 was on hand for the operation. "We had eight doctors in attendance so two were disappointed," the hospital spokesman joked.

Prof. Jan Bennebroek Gravenhorst, the man in charge of the birth, said the babies were born at 10:15 a.m. (4:15 a.m. EDT).

Concert supports gay rights

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Bette Midler and comedians Lili Tomlin and Richard Pryor performed in Sunday night's "Star Spangled Night for Rights" concert in support of gay rights.

The concert, held in the Hollywood Bowl, was an attempt to make a "positive statement" by calling attention to discrimination the entertainers say is aimed at homosexuals.

The show went on despite a protest from anti-gay state Sen. John Briggs, R-Fullerton, who warned of a campaign to blacklist Hollywood celebrities defending homosexuals.

Entertainer listed 'critical'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Entertainer Frank Fontaine, the mellow-voiced comic who delighted millions as a television regular on the "Jackie Gleason Show," suffered an apparent heart attack Sunday at Port Columbus International Airport.

He was listed in critical condition at Mount Carmel East Hospital.

Fontaine, whose "Crazy Guggenheim" character contrasted sharply with his fluid singing style, had just finished a nightclub engagement and was waiting for an airplane when he suffered the attack.

Missionary released unharmed

Couple sought in kidnaping case

LONDON (UPI) — Police sought an American man and woman Sunday for questioning about the kidnaping of a young Mormon missionary who was released unharmed after being held shackled and handcuffed for three days.

The missionary, 21-year-old American Kirk Anderson, was still talking with Scotland Yard detectives more than 24 hours after his kidnapers set him free Saturday in central London.

Scotland Yard issued descriptions of Joyce McInney, 27, the American woman Anderson told police he killed after a love affair, and Keith Joseph May, 25, of Los Angeles. No hometown was given for McInney.

"We think they can assist us in connection with the kidnaping," said Det. Chief Supt. Bill Huckleby, who is heading the investigation.

Huckleby said police were watching airports and ports in their search for McInney and May. He said both have several aliases.

"They could have left the country but I very much doubt it," he said.

Detectives said Anderson told them he was kidnaped after going off on church business with a man with a Canadian accent.

Detectives also questioned three unidentified men in connection with the case but police sources said later they would not be charged.

Officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints said Anderson had been the victim of harassment by the woman whose love he scorned.

Anderson, from Provo, Utah, had been physically assaulted, had his car tires slashed and his car run off the road in the two-year harassment campaign, the officials said.

A Scotland Yard official said police were cooperating with the FBI in the United States to establish the whereabouts of the woman allegedly involved in the case.

Anderson was still talking to the police in Epsom, the village 20 miles south of London where he was kidnaped Wednesday. He was released in London.

Police announced Sunday night they were questioning three men in connection with the case but declined to give further details.

Richard Eyles, Mormon president for southern England, said he visited Anderson at the police station and found him "fine and comfortable."

Scotland Yard detectives told Anderson told them Saturday he was kidnaped after going off on church business with a man with a Canadian accent. He said a blanket was placed over his head and he was driven to a house.

"While he was kidnaped, he was kept handcuffed and his legs were shackled," Det. Chief Supt. Bill Huckleby of Scotland Yard said. "I stress he was not harmed in any way. He was well-treated and well fed."

Huckleby said detectives believe Anderson "has been released so that he can settle a domestic issue between a girlfriend and himself."

Huckleby said Anderson told detectives that "a lot of talk had been going on in the house connected with the domestic problem he has."

Anderson came to Britain 10 months ago as one of the Mormon Church's 1,500 missionaries here. His kidnaping posed as a "convert" who wanted to talk to him about joining the church.

Woman's identity 'mystery'

SCHILLER PARK, Ill. (UPI) — Resurrection Hospital employees have offered to pay for the funeral of "Jane Doe," a young woman who died Sunday after she was found severely beaten in a forest preserve two weeks ago.

"We don't want to see her get a pauper's burial by the state," said Walter Chasen, a funeral home owner.

But police say they are hopeful they may some day identify the woman—aged in her late teens, who never regained consciousness after her ordeal. She was discovered bound and wrapped in a bloody blanket by a hitchhiker who heard her moans.

"You never know," said Patrolman Robert Colura. "In the next two minutes someone could come in and identify her."

Police said they are especially anxious to find the identity of a woman who has called the hospital each day asking about the girl's condition.

More than 200 persons came to Resurrection Hospital in attempts to solve the mystery, a hospital spokesman said.

Police received 1,000 more telephone inquiries about the woman.

Pictures of her bruised face were distributed in hopes that someone might recognize her. Photographs of her teeth were sent to daily newspapers so that a dentist might identify them as belonging to one of his patients.

East champ wins Monopoly playoff

NEW-YORK (UPI) — Go to jail. Go directly to jail. Do not collect $200.

Nearly everyone living in the United States since the Great Depression knows the source of those four imperatives is Monopoly — one of the country's most popular table games.

On Saturday at the Four Seasons Restaurant, the five best Monopoly players in the nation gathered around a table strewn with red tokens, green houses, Chance and Community Chest cards, and thousands of dollars in sweetly play money.

They met to determine who would represent the United States at the World Monopoly Championship in October at that bastion of baccarat and other expensive games of chance — Monte Carlo.

A 20-by-20 foot playing board with 15-inch thimbles, hats, sports cars and other tokens was erected for a morning celebrity game. But in the afternoon, those playing for big stakes preferred to huddle around the familiar four-legged card table and use dice that disappeared in a palm.

Four players representing four regions of the country challenged the defending champ, Gus Gostomlsky, 41.

Gostomlsky was the first to drop out, lasting just 35 minutes.

In the next 25 minutes, Steve Gunn, 21, the Midwest champ, and Lee Boyd, 43, the West Coast champ, both were eliminated.

For the last ten minutes of the 73-minute contest, Dana Terman, 21, the East champ, and John Buffa, 23, the South champ, battled for titles and houses. Buffa built hotels on all the orange properties. Terman owned one vacant yellow lot and built four houses each on those prime dark blue corner lots — Boardwalk and Park Place.

Terman was lucky enough to not land on any of Buffa's orange properties for about four consecutive turns of the board. He got his $200 each time he passed "Go," and rebutted some of his mortgaged property.

The end came when Buffa picked a Chance card which read, "Advance token to Boardwalk." That broke Buffa's bank, and Terman won.

Terman, who makes his legal money as an assistant manager of a fast food store in Washington, D.C., said his main strategy was to stay flexible. "I buy everything I land on," he said. "And then I look to trade."

Laura Calhoun, vice president of Chase Manhattan Bank, worked a sixth day and acted as banker.

DEAR ABBY: In stressing the importance of speaking up for oppressed minorities, you published a quote and asked if anyone knew its origin.

The original quote was somewhat different. Its author was Martin Niemöller, who served aboard a German U-boat during World War I. He later became a Lutheran minister. When Hitler rose to power, Niemöller opposed him and was promptly thrown into Theresienstadt—a Nazi concentration camp. At this camp 76,000 Jews (of which 15,000 were children) were sent to their death. At the time of the liberation, only 100 children had survived.

When Pastor Niemöller was released, he was asked, "How did the world let this happen?" He responded:

Quote serves as reminder

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

How sad that only 32 years have passed and many of us have already forgotten that lesson. Let this serve as a reminder.

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAM: Thank you and the hundreds of other readers who sent me their versions of that brilliant quote. The same sentiments were expressed by Thomas Paine (1737-1809), a revolutionary, whose writings greatly influenced the political thinking of the leaders of the American Revolution.

He said, "He that would make his own liberty secure, must guard even his enemy from oppression, for if he violates this duty, he establishes a precedent that will reach to himself."

And that, my friends, is what human rights are all about.

DEAR ABBY: I have been meaning to write this letter for years, but I never got around to it until now. I want you to know that a letter in your column signed TOO LATE caused me to visit my mother every day during her last two years in a nursing home.

We wash and clean the grains and store them in jars till we are ready to use them. Then we run the amount of grain we need through a mill to make either flour or cereal. Cereals are sweetened with honey and a little molasses. Breads are made using one part home grains and two parts store bought flour.

Is this a good healthy diet for us? What do you think of using natural grains? We have just about eliminated that tasteless cereals since we have been enjoying whole grain cereals.

Dear Reader—
The natural grains are just fine and they provide a good amount of bulk that you may also need. If you like the taste, from a nutrition point of view there is no reason why you should not use them.

I would add only one caution. Be sure the grains you use are for food purposes and not for seeds. Some seed grains have been treated with chemicals, pesticides and the like. If you happen to use seed grains for food you could fatally poison yourself. So always be sure what kind of whole grain you are buying.

The grains you mention belong to one of the four basic food groups, cereals and bread. You still need a proper amount of the fruits and vegetable group, the milk and dairy products group and the meat group for a good balanced diet.

NAVY ANNOUNCES MATERNITY UNIFORMS lets pregnant Waves maintain 'professional' look

'Mothers' given uniforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy, which recently decided to restore the bell bottomed sailor suit for men, announced another style innovation Friday — the first maternity uniforms for officers and enlisted women.

The objective, it said, is to allow pregnant WAVES to maintain a "professional" look instead of switching to civilian maternity clothes as they now must do.

The new four-piece maternity uniform — consisting of a long or short-sleeved shirt, dark blue slacks and skirt and dark blue overblouse — "can be mixed to form appropriate uniforms for all seasons and duty requirements," the announcement said.

It will cost about $40 and will be available in Navy exchanges or through special order outlets early next year.

The Navy said the uniforms were developed "in response to the desires of Navy women for an attractive and practical uniform which would allow them to maintain a more professional appearance while performing military duty during pregnancy."

"Currently, pregnant Navy women wear civilian maternity clothing when conventional uniforms no longer fit."

It said the maternity uniforms "are adaptations of commercially successful maternity garments."

Reptile transport causes problems

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A 300-pound crocodile, a pregnant python and a 12-foot king cobra are a few of the larger problems involved in moving day for Ron Goellner, curator of the St. Louis Zoo's Reptile House.

The reptile house is home to one of the largest reptile collections in the nation. The 500 inhabitants are being moved this week to new accommodations so renovations on the 50-year-old building can be made during the winter.

The move could solve a mystery surrounding the zoo's slender-nosed crocodile.

"He happens to be the oldest zoo resident," Goellner said of the huge crocodile. "He's been here since 1933."

"We call him 'Abe,' but we'll find out for sure when we move him," Goellner added.

Goellner plans to lower a crate into the pool, persuade the crocodile to crawl inside, then haul him out.

"Moves like that constitute the most work just because of the size of the animal," he said.

At one point, Goellner paused before a display housing a bloated snake identified as a ball python.

"That's the oldest snake in the building," he said. "She's way past due to lay eggs and keeps getting heavier. She's been here since '46; that must be the oldest individual on record to produce viable young."

Goellner says moving the king cobra to new quarters in a basement of an adjacent building at the zoo "should be less of a problem."

"It's pretty easy going as far as king cobras go," Goellner said. "What we do when we clean his cage is just open a little door to a side room, and he crawls back in. We'll just do the same thing but have a box or something there that he'll crawl into."

"We don't manhandle any of the venomous snakes — that is, pin them down and pick them up. It's dangerous to the individual picking them up and possibly harmful to the snake. We just use a stick with a hook, balance them on the end and slip them into a trash can."

Because of the hardy nature of reptiles, Goellner said there will be no danger in confining them to smaller cages. He said cages are being built to house some of the larger specimens, such as the monitor lizard from New Guinea.

"Stretched out, he's probably close to 9 or 10 feet. Of course two-thirds of that is tail," Goellner said of the lizard, which was lying on a tree branch in its cage. "They're nervous animals, though, so just grabbing them right can be a little problem. They'll flare their claws just like a cat, and they're razor sharp."

Abzug blasts those against IWY meet

By KAY MILLS

© 1977, Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Bella Abzug, chairman of the increasingly-embattled International Women's Year (IWY) Commission, blasted the Ku Klux Klan, John Birch Society, Mormon Church and various other anti-Egal Rights Amendment and anti-abortion groups last week for trying to "smear" her commission as it plans a national women's meeting.

Mrs. Abzug singled out Sen. Jesse Helms (D-N.C.), a conservative who was consistently opposed the IWY meetings, for holding hearings this week on use of federal funds for the upcoming session in Houston and on alleged irregularities in selecting delegates.

"The two days of Helms' ad hoc — or unofficial — hearings, at which 60 people were selected to testify, could provide 'the groundwork for illegally disrupting this meeting,'" Mrs. Abzug angrily told her fellow commissioners.

"We will hold our meeting and we are not going to allow anybody to disrupt us," she said.

The 48-member commission, which includes New York Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupsak, civil rights leader Coretta Scott King, television actress Jean Stapleton and feminist leaders Gloria Steinem, Eleanor Smeal, Millie Jeffrey and Audrey Cole, has been wrestling with the issues and the delegate credential problems which will be aired in Houston Nov. 18-21.

Feminist leaders see their efforts under increasing attack by conservatives. They fear the Houston meeting will evolve into a "women against women" confrontation instead of the opportunity to draw up a national agenda of women's needs, including ERA ratification as a number one priority.

As a measure of their concern, the commission voted to close portions of its two-day planning meeting in Washington this week to discuss personnel and security. That move is provided for under the Government in the Sunshine Act, which Mrs. Abzug sponsored.

"I'm also author of the Privacy Act," Mrs. Abzug told the reporter whose presence forced the vote. "I have to deal with both privacy and sunshine at the same time. It's an enormous conflict."

Congress appropriated $5 million for state and national meetings to follow up on the IWY session two years ago in Mexico City. Through the summer, conservatives began seeing the state sessions as a forum for their opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and other feminist issues.

Laetrile shown aid for breast cancer

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Loyola University biologist says he has conducted laboratory tests that indicate a cancer treatment involving Laetrile has cured breast cancer in mice.

Most American health authorities have condemned Laetrile as a worthless treatment for cancer, but some states have legalized it in response to growing demand for it from cancer victims.

Dr. Harold Manner, chairman of the biology department at Loyola, said in an interview Tuesday his tests show Laetrile, used in conjunction with vitamins and enzymes, can cure breast cancer in mice. He said previous tests on Laetrile had dealt with the controversial substance itself and not its use in a complete therapeutic program.

He called his research a possible "step toward the ultimate cure of cancer."

Manner said he will divulge his experimental methods at the annual meeting of the National Health Federation in Chicago so other cancer researchers can repeat his experiments.

He said he is confident they will come up with the same results and "then the FDA can release it for human trials."

Manner said about a year and half ago he began the same type of tests "used so effectively by the Food and Drug Administration in talking against Laetrile."

"We came up with exactly the same results which would lead us to the conclusion that Laetrile is worthless," he said.

"We could have left the issue there and gone on to something else, but in talks with graduate researchers here I suddenly realized we were working in the wrong area in that we were talking about cancer as a nutritional deficient disease."

"We changed our outlook and began to realize that Laetrile would be effective only if used in conjunction with a complete therapeutic program."

MINTED CHOCOLATE CHIP PEAR ICE CREAM

- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 2 egg yolks, beaten
- 4 medium-size fresh California Bartlett pears (1 1/2 lbs.)
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1/4 teaspoon peppermint extract
- 6 to 8 drops green food coloring
- 1 square (1 ounce) semi-sweet chocolate, coarsely grated or chopped fine

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt and milk in 1-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil over moderate heat, stirring; cook until thickened. Stir a little into egg yolks. Combine with remaining hot mixture, return to low heat; cook, stirring constantly, just until mixture reaches a boil.

Remove from heat and cool. Pare, core and wash pears to make a coarse puree, measuring about 2 2/3 cups. Combine with cooled custard, cream, mint extract and food coloring. Freeze in hand-freer or electric ice cream freezer, using 8 parts crushed ice to 1 of rock salt.

Freeze until it begins to be difficult to turn (or electric freezer appears to slow). Remove dasher and fold in chocolate. Drain water from freezer tub and repack using 4 parts ice to 1 of salt (or, if ice cream is to be held longer than a few hours, turn into loaf pan, cover, and place in freezer compartment of refrigerator). Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

Pregnancy ruling may help workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate approval of legislation equating pregnancy with other medical conditions that result in inability to work could represent a major step toward ending discrimination against women on the job.

Employers who exclude pregnancy and childbirth from medical coverage would be required to broaden worker health and disability benefit plans to cover pregnant women, under legislation passed by the Senate Friday and sent to the House.

The Senate vote was 75 to 11. The legislation would overturn a 1976 Supreme Court ruling that held General Electric Co. was not engaging in sex discrimination by refusing to allow disability and medical benefits for pregnancy or childbirth. That plan covered, among other things, hair transplants and vasectomies.

Employers who do not offer health plans to their workers would not have to implement one, under the measure.

Remember, pears are pickled mature, but still green; for the best full-flavor you can ripen them easily at home. Just store them for several days in a loosely closed plastic or paper bag at room temperature until they turn golden yellow and yield to gentle palm pressure.

This year's California Bartlett crop is an especially sweet one — and what could be a better way to enjoy that

Needless breast surgery curbed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Concerned about unnecessary breast amputations, a committee of doctors and public representatives has recommended surgery on small tumors be delayed until at least two pathologists examine suspected cancerous tissue.

The conclusion by the 16-member National Institutes of Health panel followed three days of evaluation of a breast cancer detection project sponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society.

The concern about the unnecessary breast surgery arose after it was reported 66 of 506 tumors one centimeter in diameter or smaller were found to be benign although they originally were judged malignant. Fifty-three of those women had mastectomies.

The committee recommended in a report to the NCI that in the future pathologists seek the opinion of at least one other pathologist before surgeons operate if the tumor is one centimeter or smaller.

The general procedure now is to go ahead immediately with breast amputation while the woman remains under anesthesia if the biopsy is malignant.

Doctors say the tiny growths, spotted by the use of X-Rays called mammograms, represent a new class of tumors for which little is known and it is sometimes difficult to determine if they are cancerous. A second opinion would reduce errors.

Larger tumors are more easily evaluated by pathologists and few errors are expected.

Oceans offer energy source

Four of five articles by Peter J. Bernstein in Washington News Service

WASHINGTON — Imagine obtaining electricity from the ocean off the flip of a switch.

Scientists say the ocean in tropical zones contains limitless thermal energy that could be converted into electricity. The energy comes from the heat of the sun, and because the ocean acts as an energy storage system, it could be a source of steady, round-the-clock power.

Construction of the nation's first large-scale heat exchangers for an ocean thermal energy conversion system is under way in Cleveland. The heat exchangers are the main elements in ocean energy systems, which use the difference in temperature between warm surface waters and colder water in the ocean's depths to produce electricity.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) plans to use the heat exchangers in a 1,000-kilowatt test program to test the feasibility of the ocean thermal energy conversion process known by its acronym OTEC. If successful, ERDA may develop a 5,000- to 25,000-kilowatt interim system, then a full-scale 100,000- to 200,000-kilowatt system.

The heat exchangers — each 15 feet in diameter and 30 feet high — will be mounted on a floating platform called the Gomar Explorer, which was once owned by the late industrialist Howard Hughes and secretly used by the Central Intelligence Agency to lift part of a sunken Soviet submarine from the depths of the Pacific. ERDA plans to moor the platform at one of four offshore sites currently under study — in the Gulf of Mexico off either Florida or Louisiana, near Puerto Rico, or near Hawaii. The agency expects to announce the site in the fall and begin the tests in 1979.

"Ocean energy systems could go into commercial service by 1985," said Sigmond Gronich, who manages the ocean energy program at ERDA. "There is sufficient energy in the Gulf of Mexico alone to accommodate the electricity needs of the entire Southeastern United States," he said.

The OTEC concept, he said, does not involve any new basic technology. A French scientist suggested exploiting ocean thermal gradients in 1881, and the French government built a number of small conversion plants in the 1920s in hopes they would provide inexpensive energy for France's tropical colonies.

French interest in the project crumbled along with its overseas empire following World War II, but the idea of harnessing the ocean's power lingered on. The Arab oil embargo four years ago brought about renewed interest in ocean energy, and that interest has soared with the rise in oil prices.

The OTEC system resembles a closed cycle refrigeration plant, in which ammonia is vaporized by warm water and then condensed by cold water brought to the surface by a 3,000-foot pipe. The vaporized ammonia propels a turbine which generates usable electricity linked to the conventional utility grid via cable.

However, significant technological hurdles still have to be cleared before utilities can use OTEC systems. Right now the system's bugs are so formidable that the research chief of the Florida Power and Light Co. said there is "very little likelihood that present closed cycle OTEC systems will be cost-effective in comparison to other energy sources in the foreseeable future."

David G. Jopling, coordinator of research and development at the Florida Utility, said that because of the relatively small temperature differences between deep and surface waters, OTEC's efficiency would be limited to about 3 per cent, compared with 30 to 40 per cent efficiency for large conventional fossil fuel plants. Moreover, as much as a third of the power an OTEC facility produces would be required to pump the enormous amounts of water needed to drive the cycle, he said.

The main stumbling block is the loss of efficiency caused by ocean algae that clog the heat exchangers. Biofouling from microbiological slime is considered OTEC's most significant problem. "There is no experience to date to indicate that any breakthrough in control of marine biofouling is likely to occur in the foreseeable future," one utility executive said.

Intensive deployment on the scale urged by OTEC's most ardent enthusiasts could also possibly engender a variety of environmental problems that a few scattered plants would not provoke.

"An increase in the overall heat of substantial bodies of water and the upwelling of nutrient-rich waters from the ocean bottom could both bring on unfortunate consequences," environmentalist Denis Hayes of the Worldwatch Institute has warned. "Ocean temperature shifts could have far-reaching impacts on weather and climate, and displacing deep waters would disturb marine ecology," he said.

In addition, physicist Robert Williams of Princeton University calculated that the upwelling of carbon-rich water from the ocean bottom could cause atmospheric carbon dioxide to increase substantially.

Despite the drawbacks, ERDA is spending $14.6 million on OTEC this year and expects to spend about $30 million during the coming 1978 fiscal year.

ERDA officials are optimistic they can make OTEC competitive with other sources of electricity. They point out that one great advantage of OTEC is that it could be deployed for heavy industry such as aluminum or fertilizer production in offshore facilities. "As a renewable energy resource, there's nothing that can match its potential," Gronich said.

Must'a been a big 'un

GRANBY, Mass. (UPI) — The largest dinosaur track ever discovered—the five-foot long footprint of a three-toed dinosaur—has been found in western Massachusetts, a museum owner says.

Rouville F. Gingras said Wednesday he discovered the 59-inch long, 33-inch wide track at his Granby Dinosaur Museum. A Connecticut biology professor confirmed that the track "would certainly be the largest ever discovered" provided it was authenticated.

Both agreed the largest track previously discovered was a 41-inch footprint found at the Granby museum in 1973. Peter Galton, a biology professor at the University of Bridgeport, Conn., authenticated that track.

The 59-inch track appears to come from a 70-foot long animal that walked on two legs, Gingras said. He said he had discovered a toe print from one of the prehistoric creature's other tracks and was attempting to recover a complete set of tracks to measure its stride and authenticate its size.

The prints were found in two acres of shale strata in a quarry at Gingras' museum, which he believes is on the site of a feeding or breeding ground for the ancient beasts since he has found prints of 25 different species of dinosaur.

"There's no question he has a big print there," Galton said in a telephone interview from his Connecticut home.

"But what I'd expect to see, I'm not sure. One of the toes in the print is a bit vague and could alter its size."

L.M. Boyd

Was reported that the five swastika phrases in the English language are: "I love you," "Dinner is served," "I am forgiven," "Sleep 'til noon," and "Keep the change." Little argument over these. Where the debate turns up is over the five saddest phrases: "Buy me one," "I'm out of gas," "Dues not paid," "Insufficient funds," and "External use only." According to a client who claims large experience in unhappy situations, this list of the saddest should include: "Easy to assemble," "Batteries not included." And: "dn pua s412."

FIDO

Q. "How did 'Fido' get to be a stereotype name for a dog?"
A. Came from the initial letters of "Freaks, Irregulars, Defects, Oddities." It was humorously hung on mongrel dogs ago. The word also names any coin with a minting error.

Q. "Which states permit personalized car license plates?"
A. Easier to name the states that don't: Alabama, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, and South Dakota.

Q. "What's the average number of pitches in a nine-inning major-league baseball game?"
A. 125. Not counting the warmups.

HUMILITY

In the middle of his remarkable career, old Ben Franklin tossed out of his vocabulary some words, like "certainly," "undoubtedly" and "obviously," and adopted such phrases instead as "I imagine," "I conceive" and "so it seems." No sensational change in his outlook, maybe. But this juggling of personal expressions occurred at just about the same time he added to his renowned list of virtues that thing called "humility." He credited the counsel of a Quaker critic for his new insight.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Industrial production dropped in August along with rising interest rates sent stocks lower today in slow trading.

The Federal Reserve said its report late Friday that industrial production fell 0.5 percent in August from July.

A rise in the prime rate to 11 percent from 10 percent, which will inhibit a pickup in the economic growth rate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, its highest level since July 1976, fell 1.58 points to 242.45.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 3.98 percent gain Friday, was off 4.59 points to 852.23 shortly before noon EDT. The Dow lost 0.26 point overall last week.

Declines outnumbered advances, 761 to 242, among 3,456 issues crossing the tape. The 493 unchanged issues reflected some investor uncertainty.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 6,800,000 shares, compared with 4,300,000 traded during the entire Friday.

Applied Digital Data Systems was the most active NYSE issue, up 10 1/2 points, Zellerbach followed off to 33 1/2.

Zenith Radio, a 1 1/2 point loser, Friday, was the third most active issue, off 3 1/2 to 4 1/2. The firm said it will discontinue some research units and lay off some workers under a reorganization plan.

IBM was off 1/4.

Rain to spread over Magic Valley

Intermittent rain is expected to spread in the Magic Valley during the afternoon and should accumulate up to 1-quarter inch or more by Tuesday morning.

Snow should fall above 6,000 feet.

The precipitation should decrease to a few passing showers Tuesday with partial clearing at times. A change to cooler will also bring a threat of frost as skies clear Tuesday night and Wednesday morning.

The extended outlook is for another storm system to spread rain in the Magic Valley about Thursday night or Friday. Conditions will be poor for hay and bean harvest much of this week.

Winds will become gusty by mid-afternoon today and will continue gusty through the night and most of Tuesday.

New farm group threatens strike

SPRINGFIELD, Colo. (UPI) — A fledgling farmers' organization has threatened a nationwide agricultural strike unless parity levels are shifted to 100 per cent, group spokesman Keith Thomas said.

Additional members are being recruited in Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas, he said, and many plan to present their demands to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland when he visits Colorado Sept. 22.

"It's growing by leaps and bounds—and everyone is unanimous in their support of the strike if 100 per cent parity is not granted," said Thomas. "We started with a small office and two phones and we are up to 10 phones and more calls than we can handle." Bergland will meet with farmers in Pueblo and Denver, and Thomas said Rep. Frank Evans, D-Colo., has requested a meeting with the group prior to the agriculture secretary's visit to discuss the demands.

A group of southeastern Colorado farmers formed American Agriculture Monday and the group counted 1,500 members by Friday, Thomas said. He said the total should hit 5,000 by the end of the month and include stockmen as well.

Parity, or the purchasing power of farmers, has hit a low of 64 per cent, Thomas said, and unless the government raises the level to 100 per cent by midnight Dec. 13, a strike will be called.

"If a strike is forced, we will not sell any farm products, we will not produce anymore agricultural products, we will not buy any agricultural equipment or production supplies," he said.

Activities at CSI

J. D. HIEBERT, CSI Vocational Student, at right, was one of several hundred CSI students who gathered Friday afternoon on the campus for a watermelon bust.

The bust is the second of a series of outdoor activities planned for CSI students in lieu of the more expensive concerts that have been held in the past. The first of the activities, planned by the Student Program Board, was a concert held at the Twin Falls County Fair.

The next event will be a barbershop quartet, "The Common Taters," which will appear on campus Friday, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. A horse drawn cart will also be on hand with free ice cream for the students.

Further activities have not been planned by the Program Board because of the changing weather but warming temperatures in the spring will bring further outdoor entertainment to the campus.

Hearing set tonight

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council will hold a public hearing tonight on zoning designations for roughly 800 acres around town proposed for annexation.

Set for 8 p.m., the public hearing will gauge public opinion on possible zoning classifications for the property.

At its regular meeting scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in city hall, the council is also expected to discuss a fact-finding panel's report in the stalled talks with city fire fighters on a wage contract for the next 12 months.

The council will also consider making a zoning adjustment for Robert Lawrence, owner of Blue Lakes Tile, Inc., so he can remove a garage and build an addition to his building at 304 Blue Lakes Blvd.

JEROME — A Jerome County deputy sheriff, who was fired earlier this year because "he didn't have the personality to deal with people," has been hired as a Jerome city policeman.

However, city Police Chief Howard DuBois said the former deputy, Lloyd Bonawitz, Jerome, who started work as a patrolman Sept. 1, "has got his problems behind him."

County Sheriff Elza Hall said he first asked Bonawitz to resign in January after about two years on the force. When he refused, Hall said he fired him, then received a letter of resignation from Bonawitz a few days later.

Hall said he fired Bonawitz because "he didn't have the personality to deal with people" when serving civil papers and working in the drivers license bureau.

The Jerome sheriff said he preferred to have an officer "who could meet the public better," but commended Bonawitz for his dependability and hard work. He said he hoped Bonawitz would succeed as a police officer and recommended him for the job.

Jerome County Prosecutor Eugene Fredericksen said he received more citizens complaints than usual over Bonawitz's "mannersisms" when he was a deputy sheriff. He added it is not unusual to get complaints about law enforcement officers.

DuBois said, "I've never known him to do anything—but bark orders—instead-of—make requests, and he says he's going to stop it." He has received 20 complaints so far, DuBois said.

Jerome's new patrolman was a Navy chief petty officer for many years and also worked at the St. Anthony Juvenile Rehabilitation Center before joining the sheriff's office.

"He has had time off to think about it," DuBois added, "and has got his problems behind him."

Fredericksen said Bonawitz was dedicated, worked well with the prosecutor's office and turned in reports promptly.

He added, "On cases that I was prosecuting I didn't have any real problems on how good the arrest was."

DuBois said he had two conferences with Bonawitz who's hiring has been approved by the Jerome City Council to "put him on the spot" concerning "Innuendos" received by DuBois concerning misbehavior by Bonawitz.

"There's someone viciously trying to assassinate the man," DuBois said.

DuBois called Bonawitz a dependable, conscientious man and challenged anyone making a charge of misbehavior against the former deputy sheriff to come forward.

Sewage plant 'grace period' proposed

By BOB ZUCKERMAN

TWIN FALLS — State environmentalists have recommended city officials be given two months to get the malfunctioning Twin Falls Waste Water Treatment Plant operating correctly.

If the sewage plant is not operating correctly after a two-month "grace period," the environmentalists have recommended "civil penalties, in the maximum amount, should be sought."

The plant has been expelling pollutants into the Snake River at levels "exceeding" Environmental Protection Agency standards off and on since April, 1976.

City Manager Jean Milar said earlier he expects the plant to meet those standards with no more than three violations a month beginning this month. Pollutant discharge data for September were to be released later today.

In an in-house memorandum, the three officials in the state health and welfare department's environmental division, recommend Al Murray, division water quality bureau chief, ask the state health board to set the two-month deadline.

"If the plant is found to be significantly violating their effluent limitations at any time following the end of the grace period, immediate civil penalties, in the maximum amount, should be sought," say the officials, Roger Tinkey, Larry L. Koenig and Orlando Dalke.

Murray was unavailable this morning for comment.

The three officials also recommend that federal funds already scheduled to be spent at the plant be "cancelled immediately."

City officials have said withholding of such funds will only hurt their efforts to make the $6-million plant operate correctly.

In the memo, the environmentalists complain the sewage plant has been expelling excessive waste into the Snake and has been improperly maintained by an inadequate staff.

City officials have said they operate an acceptable maintenance program, and problems at the plant have been caused by malfunctioning equipment guaranteed by manufacturers.

Milar said Friday two major problems with plant equipment have been solved by manufacturers.

City officials have also argued the plant is adequately staffed.

State health department officials announced in late June they would no longer approve hookups of subdivisions to the city's sewerage system until excessive discharges at the sewage plant stop occurring. Already health officials have disapproved sewer hookups for three proposed Twin Falls subdivisions.

Burley man injured

RUPERT — A Burley man was listed in stable condition today but may be partially paralyzed after he was accidentally shot in the back Saturday afternoon.

Cassia County Undersheriff Bill Crystal said Frank Gifford was shot by a 22-caliber revolver in a juvenile while the group was dove hunting from the back of the pickup truck.

The shooting took place about 3:30 p.m. Saturday across the Snake River east of Rupert.

The hunters told deputies the driver of the pickup accelerated unexpectedly and those in the back of the pickup lost their balance and the gun went off.

Gifford was taken to Mindoka Memorial Hospital and then transferred to St. Anthony's Hospital in Pocatello. Crystal said medical reports indicate Gifford may be paralyzed from the shoulders down.

Woman's purse stolen

TWIN FALLS — Eleanor Alter, Twin Falls, told city police someone snatched her purse about 1:50 p.m. Friday while she was standing at the corner of Shoshone Street and Fourth Ave. N.

The woman said she heard someone walking up behind her at a rapid pace and moved to one side to let him pass. Instead, he grabbed her arm and removed her purse, then took off on a run. She said value of the purse and its contents was about $42.

Blaine trial begins

HAILEY — A $32 million lawsuit from former owners of the Sun Valley resort and a California development firm came to trial this morning in a somber Blaine County Fifth District Court.

As church bells tolled beneath gray skies outside, Phillip Westbrook, attorney for Sun Valley Co., owned principally by William Janss, began the proceedings by presenting his client's view of the case's history.

The lawsuit between Sun Valley Co. and developers Charles Dwight and Richard Fenton involves claims and counterclaims estimated at about $22 million.

The suit involves former plans of Dwight, Fenton and Co. to rent the Sun Valley Mall from the former Sun Valley Co. and to develop a mall area there in the style of a European Village. Those plans were aborted and a suit and countersuit were later filed, with each party claiming the other was responsible for the broken deal.

The suit will determine future ownership and development rights in the core area of the Sun Valley resort.

Innocent plea given

RUPERT — The father-in-law of a Rupert area man who suffered five gunshot wounds Thursday evening pleaded innocent Friday to charges stemming from the shooting.

"Trinidad Garza Jr., 20, was listed in "good" condition today at Mindoka Memorial Hospital.

Manuel R. Tamez, 44, was arraigned in Mindoka County Magistrate Court Friday. He pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

The alleged shooting took place shortly after 6 p.m. Thursday at the Tamez residence on H Street in Rupert.

Police said Tamez allegedly shot Garza four times with a .38 caliber special revolver. Garza suffered wounds in the back, left shoulder, abdomen and the right wrist.

Utility delays Bliss hot springs study

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BLISS — Idaho Power Co. has decided to delay any further investigation of the hot springs north of Bliss until the Idaho Public Utilities Commission (PUC) chooses a site for the firm's proposed coal-fired generating plant.

Bob Erkins reported last month that both Idaho Power and the Idaho Falls office of the Energy and Research Development Administration (ERDA) were considering use of the geo-thermal resource on his White Arrow ranch.

The hot water emerges 150 degrees at the surface and is believed to be around 270 degrees underground, according to geologists, Erkins said. The springs theoretically would cut the amount of coal needed to produce steam which generates electricity in the proposed coal-fired plant.

The Idaho Power Co. application to construct a 500 megawatt plant is now before the PUC, with hearings scheduled to open in Boise Oct. 27. The PUC has been asked to choose one of three possible locations — north of Bliss, east of Dietrich or near American Falls.

"There's not much point in pursuing research into this project until the PUC chooses a location for the plant. If in fact it does approve the application," Bob Brown, Idaho Power public relations official, said.

He said the suggestion to delay further study of the geo-thermal resource came in an inter-office memo from Bill Arms, head engineer, to Bill Grange, who heads the firm's industrial relations.

Grange and James Bruce, Idaho Power president, met with Erkins and representatives of ERDA last month after initial reports that the hot springs could be used as an adjunct to the proposed coal-fired plant.

John Griffith, ERDA engineer, told the officials that if Idaho Power was interested in pursuing research to determine the economic feasibility of the hot water, they and Erkins would have to submit a written proposal to ERDA outlining what assistance they wanted.

According to Wane Knowles, senior project engineer at the Idaho Falls ERDA office, the major guideline the agency uses in its selection of which projects to fund from the "myriad of requests" received is which ones will have the widest application of the technology involved.

The Raft River geo-thermal research project, Knowles said, is "very representative" of the many moderate temperature geo-thermal springs in the West.

Research at Raft River, scheduled for completion in late 1979, is to test the efficiency of converting the energy in hot springs to direct electrical power.

Knowles said this is done by use of a test loop through which the hot water is run. During the process the energy present in the hot water is transferred through a heat exchange to a gaseous steam-like substance called isobutane.

The isobutane could be run through a turbine to provide electricity.

Since the goal of the Raft River project is to learn the economic feasibility of the application of geo-thermal energy, Knowles said there would be no reason for similar research at the Bliss location.

But he said his agency would be interested in seeing any proposal from Idaho Power which would "have to be weighed against proposals from others with comparable setups."

The hot water on Erkins' property is about five miles from the proposed plant site. Geologists say the water would lose one degree per mile if it is piped.

Since it already is about one-third the temperature needed to convert water to steam, use of the hot water would mean less energy would be needed to bring the water to the 1,000 degrees needed to produce steam, according to Idaho Power officials.

Knowles said his colleagues in the Idaho Falls office would like to evaluate any proposal from Idaho Power along with similar work elsewhere.

Storms diminish, cleanup underway

By United Press International
Thunderstorm activity and tornadoes that closed highways, destroyed homes and flooded streets diminished early today, leaving a relative calm over the Plains and Great Lakes states.

The cleanup was under way today at Lake City, Pa., a town of 2,100 along the shore of Lake Erie where two tornadoes destroyed 12 houses, damaged 70 others and left more than 100 persons homeless Sunday.

The tornadoes also forced the closing of the Parker-White Metal Co. plant in nearby Fairview. Two injuries were reported — one each in Lake City and Fairview.

Don Bovard, an Erie County, Pa., policeman, said he was in a police car on U.S. 20 and saw the tornadoes moving in off Lake Erie.

"I watched the first one for about 10 minutes before it sort of dissipated. The second one was a long, skinny one and it was around for about one minute. It went right through Lake City. I could see boards and pieces of houses in it 200 to 300 feet in the air," Bovard said.

Heavy weekend rains flooded streets and caused some crop damage in the Midwest, the National Weather Service reported. Officials closed U.S. 6 between Marengo and Victor, Iowa, Sunday as the runoff of heavy rains washed out bridges and covered the road. Repairs on the bridges were to begin today.

The National Weather Service reported six-to-nine inches of rain during the weekend in eastern Iowa, including 7.8 inches at Ladara.

The Illinois River was reported running high in northeastern Illinois, while in Ohio, some flood waters spilled into lowlands in the Maumee River Basin.

More than two inches of rain fell late Sunday and early today at Fayetteville, Ark., and more than one inch was reported at Hartford, Conn.

Jackrabbits roped, toad race stopped

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI) — Laruth Bomar, who defends the rights of even the lowly animals, failed to block the Lone Star Jackrabbit Roping Contest, but she did manage to put a stop to the controversial Horny Toad Race.

Mrs. Bomar, a representative of the Humane Society of the Permian Basin and the Defenders of Wildlife, said both contests were "sadistic events."

"To me, the idea of rabbit roping is very barbaric and makes me very sorry that I belong to the human race that has to get its entertainment like this," she said.

"The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department was aware of these events and were very appalled by them," she said.

Ector County Fair directors scheduled the two events this weekend as part of the Ector County Fair and Exposition.

The Jackrabbit contest was held as scheduled Sunday, but Mrs. Bomar stopped the horny toad race by notifying contest officials the event would be against the law because horned toads are considered an endangered species.

"Texas law prohibits possession of a horny toad for any reason other than scientific," said Bill Hicks, a contest official. "And possession is punishable by a fine of not less than $500 or more than $2,000."

Hicks instructed law enforcement officers at the fair Saturday and Sunday to stop anyone on the fairgrounds caught "in possession of a horny toad" and escort them off the premises.

Mrs. Bomar threatened to ask Ector County Judge Gary Watkins, a former Humane Society attorney, to issue an injunction halting the rabbit roping contest, but the judge said he would not stop the festivities.

"I believe it is inhumane treatment to animals. But I'm not going to use my influence to stop the events," Watkins said.

"I do not think that these are the types of activities that the Ector County Fair should be known for. I personally think that they're bad for the growth of the fair."

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — Julio Corta, 67, Mountain Home, was killed by a car Friday night as he walked along Idaho 68 north of Mountain Home, the Elmore County Sheriff's Department said Saturday.

Detective Bill Sanders said Corta was struck as he was walking in the southbound traffic lane in the dark about 11 p.m. Saturday night. Corta was pronounced dead at the scene about two miles north of Mountain Home.

The driver of the car, James M. Allman, 21, Halley, was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated, Sanders said.

The case was referred to the Elmore County prosecuting attorney's office and Allman was released on bond.

Silva, the only one of the four who spoke English, was acting as interpreter while talking with Lynn Beus in the driveway of the house. Deputies said Lynn Beus told the four to leave and they would not. They said Silva told them that Lynn Beus struck him twice in the face before the stabbing.

LEHI, Utah (UPI) — A 29-year-old Holladay, Utah woman plunged 7,500 feet to her death Sunday in a sky-diving mishap at Cedar Breaks Airport.

Utah County Sheriff's deputies identified the victim as D'Onne Ranquist Wedler. She was killed instantly by the fall into a farm field just west of the airport. Mrs. Wedler's body was taken to American Fork hospital.

Investigating deputies said the woman was sky diving about 5 p.m. with a party of five. When she jumped from the airplane, witnesses said the woman was apparently unable to pull the ripcord on her main chute.

Three companions of Silva were arrested on charges of being illegal aliens. The four, Epitacio Acuna, Mariano Grimaldo and Enrique Grimaldo, all of Mexico, are to be turned over to officials of the U.S. Immigration Service.

Ada County Sheriff's deputies arrested Rafael Silva, 18, Mountain Home, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Silva was lodged in the Ada County jail in lieu of bail.

Officers said the four had gone to the Stan Beus farm, three miles east of Kuna, to collect a salary bonus they claimed they had been promised while working there this summer. Lynn Beus said they had not been promised a bonus.

Beus was taken to St. Alphonsus Hospital at Boise for treatment of wounds in his back, stomach, chest and hands. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

GOP unity pleases leader

BOISE (UPI) — Dennis Olsen, newly elected chairman of the Idaho Republican party, said Sunday he was pleased with the level of unity in the party.

Olsen also commented on next year's race for governor, possible divisions in the party, the state of the party organization in Idaho, Attorney General Wayne Kidwell's recent comments on the party and the theme that Olsen intends to stress as chairman of the Idaho GOP.

Despite the large number of Republicans who have expressed interest in running for governor, the possible primary battle between Congressman George Hansen and former GOP chairman Vern Havenscraft and the recent comments by Wayne Kidwell, about too much corporate influence in the party, Olsen insisted he felt good about the party's unity.

"From the standpoint of unity, I have never seen our party more unified," Olsen said.

Asked about the problems of bringing the party back together after all the primary battles next year, Olsen said, "From the standpoint of unity, I have never seen our party more unified. I think those problems exist in every election in both the Republican and Democratic party."

Olsen has been party chairman in Bonneville County for the past five years and claimed the party there has in recent years always managed to reunite after the primaries despite strong primary rivalries.

Three companions of Silva were arrested on charges of being illegal aliens. The four, Epitacio Acuna, Mariano Grimaldo and Enrique Grimaldo, all of Mexico, are to be turned over to officials of the U.S. Immigration Service.

Officers said the four had gone to the Stan Beus farm, three miles east of Kuna, to collect a salary bonus they claimed they had been promised while working there this summer. Lynn Beus said they had not been promised a bonus.

Beus was taken to St. Alphonsus Hospital at Boise for treatment of wounds in his back, stomach, chest and hands. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

Betley, Breaux share Cactus Pete's title

JACKPOT — Ogden professional Bob Betley, in the golden chair going into the final round of the Cactus Pete's $12,000 pro-am Sunday, had to birdie the toughest hole on the Jackpot course to gain a share of the professional sweepstakes with Boise's Jerry Breaux.

The two wound up the 72-hole test dead even at 272 with both shooting one-under par 71s. This was totally unexpected as 66 and 67 rounds were not a problem for the leaders during the day.

They entered Sunday deadlocked and Breaux appeared to have settled for second when he posted his 71 in the morning shotgun-start squad. Not given to great quotable remarks, Breaux, a former tour player, said "I didn't play badly."

But that brought up Betley, whose worst round thus far had been 69 — against a pair of 68s. He quickly moved to two-under par and then hit a stalemate as the Jackpot course was lengthened to its 8th degree.

Length wasn't the problem for Betley, who, like Breaux, is one of the big tee hitters, but the Ogdenite couldn't keep it going. He vacillated between two and one under and then moved to even par with three holes to play.

The key for Betley, headed by the Northern California open in Suisun last week, came on the par four sixth hole. It's all up hill with a rocky tour to the left and man-made lake to the right. He birdied that one to the Breaux.

But the best round of the day was shot by tour pro Tom Storey at seven-under 65. Not because it was 65 but because of the conditions the little Las Vegas made it under.

Storey, who won the Cactus Pete's open title the previous two years, shot himself out of contention with a 75 Saturday. But, changing his putter, he moved to four under par on the first six holes Sunday.

As he waited for his second shot, on No. 6, the group behind him decided to tee off. One of the drives hit Storey on the left side of the head, opening a bloody gash and rendering him unconscious for a while.

"I put me down for a while," he said later. When offered something like an aspirin for the pain, Storey replied "If the ball had stayed inbedded, I'd take one."

Not surprisingly, Storey bogied the sixth hole and then continued in his 65.

Meanwhile, Ken Sparks, stating later he'd played the best 72-hole tournament of his career, posted a five-under 67. That left the Bolson and Storey tied for third at 277. Willie Barber, the national senior champion, and Tom Williams of Brigham City were next at 279. Joey Bonjorno, Spanish Fork, Utah, had 282; Lynn Landgren 283; Lenny Stroup, Nampa, 292 and Mike Taylor, Idaho Falls, 293.

In the amateur division, Ogden's Bob Bradbury posted a 73 to win the G-12 handicap gross division with a 287. He was followed by Tyke Troedgen, Twin Falls, at 296; Glenn Hinkleley, Burley, 299; Ken Hutzinger, Burley, 300; Fr. Cosmas White, Twin Falls, 302; Mike Harper, Twin Falls, 308 and Gus Menapace, Twin Falls, 311.

In the net division, Bill Bowden, Salt Lake City, won at 271 with Carlos Livingston, Boise, 272; Gary Hazelgren, and Carl Hoss, Twin Falls, 275; Bob Saxvik, Burley, 278; Doyle Morrill, Kimberly, 279, and Bill Kelley, 283.

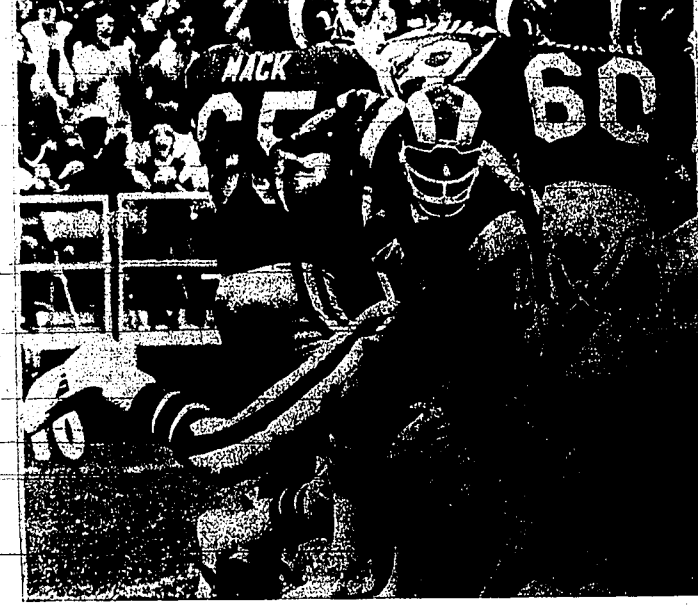

In the 13 and over division, Bill Brake of Filer ran away with a 211 total, followed by Ed Hainle at 221; Ron Heathman, Jackpot, 237; Wendell Campbell, Hite, 234; Jack Millar, Ogden, 236; Dr. Glenn Hoss, Twin Falls, 239, and Gerald Laidler, Reno, 240.

Net champion was Jackpot's Everett McAnulty at 231 while Duane Belum had 249, Bob Wills, Twin Falls, 261; H. D. Christensen, Jackpot, 263; Rick Raynor, 266; Virgil Cross, Burley, 273, and Carl Ulrich, 274.

Sparks won the seniors division with a 277 with national champion Barber two strokes back. Al Jones, Rupert, had 298, while Clyde Thomson, Twin Falls, and Mike Corjello, American Falls, had 306.

In the Northern chapter competition, Breaux was tops at 272, followed by Sparks at 277, Lenny Stroup, Nampa, 292; Mike Taylor, Idaho Falls, 293, and Billy Downs, Jackpot, and Jones, at 302.

Betley also shared the five-man team best ball title with amateurs Bob Wills, Twin Falls; Bob Harvey, Twin Falls; Gerald Laidler, and Bob Bradbury. In second was DeVon Sommer, St. Anthony, and amateurs Les Schlike, Kennewick; Carl Hoss, Twin Falls; Bob Babb, Jackpot, and Earl Hymas, and pro Mike Taylor and amateurs Duane Belum, Ed Laidler, Bill Brake and Glade Stevenaveldt. In fourth was pro Ed Varden, Green River, Wyo., and amateurs, Carolos Livingston, Boise; Davey Coopperman; Bill Compton and Odie Henderson, Gooding.

DALLAS LINEBACKER Thomas Henderson was the grateful recipient of a very fortunate bounce. A Fran Tarkenton pass fell to him like manna from heaven, and the Cowboys beat the Vikings 16-10 in overtime.

Browns upset Bengals 13-3

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Larry Poole dashed 12 yards for a touchdown and Don Cockroft kicked field goals of 41 and 25 yards to send the Cleveland Browns to a 13-3 upset victory over the Cincinnati Bengals in an NFL season opener Sunday.

The highly favored Bengals, losing the first home opener in the 10-year history of the club, could manage only a 25-yard field goal by Chris Blair.

The Browns, winning their first game in Cincinnati since 1972, did all their scoring in the first half and held off several Bengal rattles in the second half.

Cincinnati's biggest threat to get back in the game—died—when Mickey Simms deflected a Ken Anderson pass and Joe Jones intercepted it at the Cleveland 11 yard line with five minutes remaining.

Atlanta surprises LA 17-6

ATLANTA (UPI) — Scott Hunter, filling in at quarterback because Steve Bartkowski had a knee operation earlier in the week, completed 10-of-17 passes and the sacked across for the game-clinching touchdown Sunday to lead the Atlanta Falcons to a season-opening 17-6 upset of the Los Angeles Rams.

Hunter, scheduled to be the Falcons' backup quarterback before Bartkowski's reinjured his right knee in the last preseason game against New England directed a 76-yard Atlanta drive early in the third quarter, capped by his own one-yard scoring run to give the Falcons their second touchdown.

When Nick Mike-Mayer, who had a 34-yard field goal in the closing seconds of the first half, kicked his second conversion, that ended the scoring in the ballgame.

The Rams, favored by two touchdowns, got their only points with 5:44 left in the first quarter, when Joe Namath threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson.

Allen loses first opener

EAST-RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Joe Danco's 30-yard field goal with three seconds left Sunday set-up by middle linebacker Harry Carson's fumble, helped the New York Giants to a 17-10 victory over the Washington Redskins and handed Coach George Allen his first seven-season opening loss.

The Giants, who lost their first seven games last year, scored 10 points in the last two minutes of win. The deciding score followed Mike Thomas' fumble after he was hit by defensive tackle Troy Archer. Carson recovered on the Washington 19 and, after three running plays, Danco kicked his second field goal.

Broncos blank Cards 7-0

DENVER (UPI) — Otis Armstrong sprinted 10 yards around the right side for the game's only touchdown and Denver's defense made it stand up Sunday to lead the Broncos to a 7-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals before the largest crowd ever to watch a sports event in Colorado.

A stubborn Cardinal offense threatened to score and possibly throw the game into overtime, with less than two minutes left when Jim Hart hit wide receiver Ken Stauch with a 40-yard pass. But the effort was killed by Denver's grueling defense.

The Broncos' victory came before a Mile-High Stadium crowd of 72,002, the largest gathering for a sports event in Colorado history.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Quarterback Roger Staubach ran four yards for a touchdown midway through a sudden death overtime Sunday to give the Dallas Cowboys a 16-10 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in an opening

America's Cup stays in States

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Ted Turner put his act together faster and longer than the inexperienced Australians to keep the America's Cup in its hallowed niche at the New York Yacht Club for at least another three years.

Turner and the crew of Courageous beat Australia by two minutes and 25 seconds Sunday to complete a four-race sweep of the Aussies for the boat's second straight shutout over the sailors from Down Under in two defenses as the United States maintained its streak of never losing an America's Cup series since it won the "aud mug" in 1851.

every effort to atone for the disastrous play of his baseball Atlanta Braves this season.

Courageous' brass skipper jibed, tacked, feinted and covered with the expertise expected of this TESTY sailor who has been sailing boats since he was 3 years old as he — easily — outclassed Robins.

Turner managed to increase Courageous' time over Australia on five of the six legs over the 21.3-mile nautical course.

An even start between the 12-meter craft sent Courageous in the advantageous leeward position by 50 yards and enabled Turner to lead the first mark by 44 seconds as once again Robins declined to gamble for the favorable weather side in the 16 knot wind considered best for the Aussies.

It was all good fellowship for both winners and losers, all of whom were dunked in Rhode Island Sound when the 12 meter aluminum boats docked.

Turner, who had as much liquid celebration in him as an him, said "This crew busted their butts to make by the finals after we were lodged in the role of 'trial horse' to Independence and Enterprise in the trials" for the 23rd renewal of the international yachting classic.

The Aussies appreciated his effort as they lifted Turner on their shoulders and sang "Waltzing Matilda" for the new American yachting hero.

And Turner wasn't too proud to accept a helping hand. He used a blue and white spinaker borrowed from Ted Hood of the Independence on the fourth leg Sunday to stretch a 2:11 lead another 24 seconds on the important fifth downwind leg.

Courageous extended the lead appreciably on the final leg as its well-run crew turned a winches-a-breakneck speed to bring the $1.5 million sleek sloop across Australia's bow on tuck. Turner tacked twice more to send the Courageous across the finish line by its second widest winning margin of the series in the accomplishment of blaring horns from the spectator boats of enthusiastic Americans that set up a mile-long wall of greeting en route to the finish line.

Turner wrapped up the race in the second windward leg on the conservative Robins, boosting Courageous even further ahead by picking-up an additional 77 seconds on the heels of a tacking duel that left Robins bewildered by the American skipper's tactics.

On his leg Robins anticipated the wind would blow on the same scale as the opening windward segment. He fooled by holding his tack for 15 minutes and allowing Turner to escape as the leading Courageous picked up the puff of breeze the trailing Australia had hoped for.

Noel Robins, the affable Australian skipper, thought Turner was "formidable and if Ted wasn't a qualifiable, I think we might have won."

Turner displayed superb seamanship as he made the approval of the New York Yacht Club to defend the "aud Cup."

Winner over Australia's Southern Cross by 44 in 1974, Courageous now joins Columbia and Intrepid as the only double winners in the classic that dates back to 1870.

The U.S. never has lost a defense.

Robins was the Aussie lumper this time as he swept past France and then Sweden in the final foreign eliminations.

There was no denying Turner in this series as he won his races in 1:48, 1:03, 2:32 and 2:25 and established himself as a strong contender to skipper the next defender in 1980.

Red Sox drub Orioles — Yankees pull away

By United Press International. After a lusty, emotional farewell to a legend on "Thanks, Brooks Robinson Day," 51,789 fans sat back to watch their Orioles take on the Boston Red Sox. It turned out to be "No Thanks, Ted Cox Day."

Cox, making his major league debut, slugged a double and three singles and scored three runs. Sox to lead Boston to a 10-4 triumph over Baltimore. The victory enabled the Red Sox to salvage the final game of their three-game set with the Orioles.

With the Yankees' victory over Detroit, Baltimore now trails by 3 1/2 games in the AL East while Boston remains 4 1/2 games back.

Cox scored his first run after walking in the third, singled and scored his second run in the fifth and crossed the plate after doubling in the ninth.

Reliever Bob Stanley, 7-7, shut out the Orioles for five innings before yielding to Bill Campbell, who came on with two out in the seventh to gain his 27th save.

Doug DeCinces highlighted a four-run second inning for the Orioles with a three-run homer after Eddie Murray and Andres Mora had singled.

The crowd was the largest ever to see a regular-season game in Baltimore.

In pre-game ceremonies that included Robinson's entire family and AL President Lee MacPhail, the Oriole great received a sports car, a trip to Hawaii for his family, a lifetime membership to an area racquet club and 14 identical gold gloves to replace those he gave away to charity among the 16 he received during his illustrious career.

In other American League games, New York edged

Detroit, 6-5, Toronto handed Cleveland 7-4, Oakland dominated Milwaukee 3-1, Kansas City drubbed Seattle 8-3 and in doubleheader action Chicago swept California 6-3 and 7-3 at Minnesota at Texas.

Reggie Jackson smashed a three-run homer and Dave Kingman added a two-run shot to help Ron Guidry win his seventh straight game for the Yankees. New York has now won five of their last six with the sweep of their three-game series with Detroit, and opened a 3 1/2 game lead over the second-place Orioles. Jackson hit his 30th home run and reached the 100 mark in RBI for the season with a three-run blast in the third inning which followed a walk to Craig Nettles, and a single by Thurman Munson. Jackson now has five home runs and nine RBI in the last five games. Kingman has played just two games since becoming a Yankee earlier in the week and hit his second two-run homer for them.

Toronto left two four-Cleveland errors into a five-run fifth inning and Jesse Jefferson and Pete Vuckovich collaborated on a seven-hitter to pace the Blue Jays over the Indians.

Manny Sanguillen ripped a run-scoring single to snap a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning, lifting the A's to victory over the Brewers. Rookie Matt Keough gained his first major league victory, stopping Milwaukee on five hits before Doug Bair came on with one out in the ninth.

Rookie Clint Hurdle drilled a mammoth two-run homer in his second major league at-bat to help Dennis Leonard gain his 16th victory in Kansas City's triumph over the Mariners. John Mayberry highlighted a four-run sixth inning with a three-run homer, his 22nd of the year.

Oscar Gamble and Jim Spencer each powered homers to lead the White Sox to victory over the Angels in the first game. Gamble led off the second inning with his first homer, putting Chicago ahead 1-0. Spencer opened the fourth with his 18th homer. In the nightcap, Wayne Nordhagen's two-run homer capped a four-run third inning to complete the sweep.

RBI doubles by Jim Mason and rookie Pat Puliani plus a solo homer by Toby Hall gave 39-year-old Gaylord Perry his 13th victory in 22 decisions in the opener. In the second game, Harrah, Kurd Johnson, Ken Henderson 3 and Mike Harrove drove in two runs each to give the Rangers a 10-0 victory.

Raiders blitz Chargers 24-0

OAKLAND (UPI) — Ken Stabler, picking up where he left off a year ago as the National Football League's No. 1 quarterback, threw two touchdowns passes Sunday in leading the defending Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders to a 24-0 victory over the San Diego Chargers in the opening game of the 1977 season. Stabler, who threw 27 touchdown passes in 1976, connected with wide receiver Cliff Branch and tight end Dave Casper to start the new season as though the old one had never ended and Pete Banaszak added a short burst for the three Raider touchdowns. Oakland's other points came on a 20-yard field goal by Errol Mann.

Branch grabbed a 70-yard throw for his TD and Casper a little one-yard flip for his.

Pack trips Saints 24-20

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Quarterback Lynn Dickey led Green Bay to 24 first-half points, and the Packers survived a late rally by the New Orleans Saints Sunday to record a 24-20 season-opening victory.

The victory spoiled the return of Archie Manning, who played in his first regular season game since 1975 and became the Saints' all-time rushing leader. Manning completed 18-of-30 passes for 223 yards and one touchdown and rushed for enough yards to pass Jess Phillips as the Saints' career rushing leader.

But Green Bay controlled the first half of the game, scoring 14 points in the first nine minutes.

Payton leads Bears' win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Walter Payton rushed for 159 yards Sunday, including the longest run from scrimmage in Chicago's seven-year playing in Soldier Field, to lead the Bears to a 30-20 victory over the Detroit Lions.

Payton scored two touchdowns on runs of three and two yards but his most impressive play was a 73-yard dash up the middle on a draw play on which he was kneeked out of bounds on the Lions' four to set up a tying touchdown for Chicago. Johnny Musso scored on a 2-yard run.

Payton's 159 yards was the second highest single game production for him in three years in the league. His 73-yard dash was the longest of Payton's pro career and broke the previous Bears' best run from scrimmage in Soldier Field — 49 yards by Cyril Pinder.

Patriots top Chiefs 21-17

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Reserve fullback Jess Phillips slotted 11 yards with the game-winning touchdown in the third period and wide receiver Darryl Stingley celebrated his birthday with a pair of scores Sunday to push the New England Patriots to a 21-17 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs in an NFL season opener.

The Chiefs had a chance to win the game when defensive back Gary Barbara recovered a Sam Cunningham fumble on the New England 22 with 2:30 to play. But the Patriots' defense pushed Kansas City back to the New England 43 to take over on downs.

Eagles hand Tampa 15th loss

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ron Jaworski, making his regular season debut in a Philadelphia uniform, threw touchdown passes to Tom Sullivan and Keith Randle Sunday to lead the Eagles to a 13-3 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the NFL season opener for both teams.

The Buccaneers, who entered the league last year, only managed a 22-yard field goal by Dave Green in the third quarter to suffer their 15th consecutive loss without a victory in regular season play.

Miami shuts off O.J., Bills

Charles Rhames, a rookie from North Carolina State, took a Miami kickoff on the Buffalo 2, then ran 31 back to the 20 when he fumbled and Norris Thomas recovered for Miami. On the first play from scrimmage, Bulaich ran up the right side and went into the end zone standing up to make it 13-0 at 9:34.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dan Pastorini directed scoring drives of 99 and 88 yards and the Houston Oilers defense completely shut off the New York Jets Sunday to preserve a 20-0 season opening win.

Reds lose — Dodgers near NL West title

By United Press International. The Los Angeles Dodgers, handed a chance to win the National League West title Sunday, fell just short and settled for clinching a tie for the division championship.

After learning the Cincinnati Reds had lost 3-2 to the San Francisco Giants, the Dodgers rallied from a 9-6 deficit with single runs in the eighth and ninth innings but fell short of catching the Atlanta Braves.

Willie McCovey, who scored single runs in the seventh and eighth on Dusty Baker's 28th homer and Reggie Smith's 20th and added a ninth-inning tally on Bill Russell's run-scoring double.

Burroughs slugged his 40th homer in the sixth to go with a double and sacrifice fly, while Montanez drove in a pair of runs on a double and two singles to offset Ron Cey's 30th homer and Steve Garvey's 31st. Amersline socked a pinch-hit homer in the fifth with Barry Bonnell aboard on a single to score Atlanta's first two runs.

At San Francisco, Willie McCovey, putting a perfect ending on the day in his own behalf, stroked a two-out, ninth-inning single to score Derrel Thomas' from third base and give the Giants the victory over the Reds. It was a storybook ending for the 39-year-old slugger, who was being honored by the San Francisco fans for his 19 years as a major leaguer.

Thomas began the winning Giants' rally off loser Pedro Borbon with a one-out single and went in third one out later on Bill Madock's infield chopper before McCovey's game-winning. Rookie left-hander Bob Knepper went the distance for his 10th victory against eight losses and his sixth complete game.

Elsewhere in the NL, St. Louis clobbered Philadelphia 12-5, Pittsburgh edged Mon-ter 7-5 in 11 innings and New York split a doubleheader with Chicago, winning the second game 6-0 after losing the first 6-3.

Keith Hernandez' grand slam homer climaxed a nine-run, second-inning rally which saw 12 St. Louis batters go to the plate, staking Bob Forsch to his 18th victory and stalling Philadelphia's quest for the NL East pennant at a magic number of five. Lou Brock went 5-for-5 and Garry Templeton had four hits; good for four RBI as St. Louis batters collected 18 hits off five Philadelphia pitchers.

Phil Garner tripled home Frank Taveras and scored on the tiebreaking run and scored on a wild pitch in a three-run 11th inning that led Pittsburgh over Montreal before a Cap Day crowd of 25,097. Gary Carter hit two homers for Montreal a solo homer in the fourth for Pittsburgh.

Craig Swan scored the winning run and combined with Bob Myrick in a four-hit shutout to lead New York over Chicago in the nightcap. Swan singled and scored in the third and was aided by a five-run seventh, keyed by Steve Henderson's two-run triple, and Myrick's hitless relief for the Cardinals' 7-13 innings. Rick Rauschel became the major leaguer's second 20-game winner in the opener and the first Cub 20-game winner (20-8) since Ferguson Jenkins in 1972. Rauschel helped his own cause with a run-producing double in the third inning and a two-run triple in the fourth.

Royce Sutter got the final out on a strikeout to collect his 28th save.

US wins Ryder Cup

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Dave Hill, who has not even made the top 100 in the money-winning list this season, succeeded where Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson failed Saturday and steered the U.S. Ryder Cup golfers to a 12 1/2 to 7 1/2 victory over Britain and Ireland.

The Americans, needing only three points from 10 singles on the final day of competition to clinch the trophy for the 18th time in 22 meetings, got off to a great start. Lanny Wadkins, winner of the U.S. PGA and World Series titles, overwhelmed rookie Howard Clark 4 and 3 and Leo Greham slammed veteran Nell Cole 5 and 3 in the first two matches.

It was Hill, who has asked to be dropped from the singles because of his poor play Friday, playing his best golf of the year, who got the winning point, beating Tommy Horton 5 and 4.

Aussies oust Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Phil Dent defeated Richard Cano 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 and Pent and John Alexander teamed to beat Cano and Guillermo Vilas 6-2, 4-6, 7-4, 6-6 in a doubles competition, as Australia moved into the finals of Davis Cup play Sunday with a 3-2 victory over Argentina.

U.S. Open champion Guillermo Vilas won both of his singles matches, including Sunday's final match, against John Alexander 6-4, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2, but by that time the Australians had clinched the series.

Alexander gave Vilas a tough fight in the singles, but

Soviet general mum on NATO tanks

HUNSHAUSEN, West Germany (UPI) — Soviet Maj. Gen. Alexander Knyrkov, the first official Soviet observer at a NATO exercise, had a close-up view of the West's finest tanks today but had little to say about what he saw.

Knyrkov watched a platoon of five Leopard tanks, generally considered the best in NATO's arsenal, as it moved up a highway to join a simulated computer-guided battle, including sophisticated electronic warfare techniques.

"Himself," a tank officer, the Russian general made no comment beyond saying it was "very interesting."

Knyrkov was with a group of 25 foreign observers from 16 of the 35 nations that signed the Final Act of the European Security Conference in Helsinki, Finland, two years ago.

German officers said Knyrkov would not have learned military secrets without also hearing orders and seeing the general plan of battle tactics. And Knyrkov himself, while admitting he was having a pleasant time, said, "Unfortunately we don't see everything. We see isolated incidents and episodes."

Knyrkov, the senior Soviet military attaché in Bonn, avoided saying his visit to the maneuvers, involving more than 30,000 German and American troops, set a precedent.

Asked if his presence marked a change in Soviet policy, Knyrkov replied, "Why a change? Our policy is as it is. We stand up for peace."

He said future invitations by NATO countries would be dealt with on a "case by case" basis by the Soviet government.

The Soviet Union and its allied Communist countries had ignored previous invitations to attend NATO maneuvers, although such attendance was one of the facilities provided for among the "confidence-building measures" of the Helsinki agreement.
