MAKING LEFT turns at the intersection of Shoshone and Main in Twin Falls is now illegal. After considering several proposals to alleviate traffic congestion at that intersection, city oficials directed "no left turn" signs be installed. They were put up Friday. But on Monday afternoon, some drivers were still making left turns.

Rupert lad struck while leaving bus

RUPERT — An 11-year old school boy died Monday night after he was struck by a car while leaving a school bus.

David Eugene Despain died at Cassia Memorial Hospital about 6 p.m. Monday.

He was struck by a car on Idaho 25 about a mile west of Rupert, shortly before 3:30 p.m. Monday.

The car was driven by Cynthia Lei Berlin, 25, Rupert.

Blain County Coroner Kim Christensen, said the boy apparently died from abdominal and cranial hemorrhaging. He said a decision on whether or not an inquest will be held is pending.

Blain County Chief Deputy Sheriff Robert Nevarez said the case is still under investigation.

The victim, who was a sixth-grader at Lincoln Elementary School in Rupert, had just stepped off the school bus which was headed west from Rupert.

Witnesses said the school bus had its flasher lights on and the stop arm was out.

They said a group of children already had crossed the road and others were leaving the bus when the boy was struck by the car coming from the west.

Nevarez said skidmarks showed that the driver tried to stop her car and swerved to the right in an attempt to avoid the boy, but skidded into him. Despain was struck by the left front (driver) corner of the car.

Henson trial ordered on embezzlement charges

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magistrate Judge Paul Smith today ordered Deborah A. Henson, charged with embezzling about $2,800 from YWCA coffers, to face a trial in district court.

Henson has been charged with 11 felony counts of embezzling funds during the 10 months while she was YWCA director.

Henson faces a maximum 154 years in jail, 14 years on each embezzlement count, the judge said.

The judge's ruling followed an announcement by defense attorney William R. Hofffeld that she did not wish to put on any defense at the preliminary hearing, a court session to determine if a trial is necessary.

A closed preliminary hearing for Henson began last Tuesday. During the three-day hearing, closed at the defense attorney's request, a police detective, accountant, and bank and YWCA officials testified.

County Prosecutor Frank J. Dykns said the accountant, who added the YWCA books after the charges were filed, testified that he found a $3,022 imbalance in the books.

According to Dykns, the accountant told the court the "imbalance" in the books "was only about $18 before Henson became director."

The defense attorney has suggested the embezzlement charges were at least partially filed as a result of a personality conflict between Henson and YWCA president Terrill L. Castagna, a suggestion the prosecutor has denied.

Henson resigned on May 27. She said earlier she moved from Twin Falls to live with her parents in Sacramento, Calif., on May 31. In mid-June, the embezzlement charges were filed.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said today "wide gaps" exist between Israel and the United States on a Middle East peace settlement but he feels a Geneva peace conference can be convened this year.

He also indicated new Israeli flexibility, including a possible willingness to give up some settlements established in captured Arab territory.

"I estimate a Geneva peace conference can be convened even before the end of the year from what I know of the Arab states," he told a news conference.

But Dayan, who conferred at length with President Carter Monday, told reporters there are still "wide gaps between us and the Department of State on the ultimate lines and what would take place in the meantime."

He said that major differences with the United States involved Israeli settlements on occupied Arab territory, Israel's claim of historical ties to the West Bank, and the ultimate boundaries of neighboring Arab states.

Dayan indicated some new areas of flexibility in Israel's positions, including:

—Negotiation of final Arab-Israeli borders without regard to where Israeli settlements on Arab territory might exist. That could leave one or more Israeli settlements on the Arab side of the boundary.

—A willingness to allow Palestinians to

Senate likes gas guzzlers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee voted 11 to 5 today to kill President Carter's proposed tax on gas guzzling automobiles.

The tax, approved earlier by the House, is a major part of the Carter energy program. The House bill calls for it to begin in 1979 with a maximum $553 tax on cars getting less than 13 miles per gallon or $339 on those getting less than 15 mpg.

The margin of defeat was a surprise and another indication that the entire Carter program is in trouble in the Senate.

The favorable vote on an amendment by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to kill the tax came despite administration pleas the tax was "very important to an energy program."

The Committee also voted 10 to 7 in favor of a move by Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., to leave intact the current deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. The House bill would repeal this popular deduction beginning in 1978.

The vote was 10 to 7 in favor of Packwood's motion to wipe out that section of the House bill.

"This is an amendment against doing anything about energy," said Assistant Treasury Secretary Laurence Woorthing, who unsuccessfully fought the Dole proposal.

Several senators complained before the Dole vote that the tax was unfair on people who have a legitimate need for big cars. Dole said it would make about as much sense to tax people who live in big houses.

Voting against the Dole amendment were Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La.; Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.; Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y.; and Packwood, R-Oregon.

Voting in favor were Dole and Sens. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.; Harry Byrd, D-Va.; Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.; Floyd Haskell, D-Colo.; William Hathaway, D-Maine; Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii; Carl Curtis, R-Neb.; Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo.; and John Danforth, R-Mo.; and Paul Sarant, R-Vt.

The Senate today called a second day of debate on Carter's natural gas pricing plan before considering amendments, starting Wednesday.

Senate Energy Committee Chairman Henry Jackson, D-Wash., headed senators backing Carter's plan for continued federal price controls. The chief rival was a phasout of controls sponsored by Sens. James Pearson, R-Kan., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

The Energy Committee approved a plan Monday for federal officials to participate in utility rate cases before state commissions. That was a pale shadow of Carter's original rate bill which would have made sweeping changes in the way utilities charge customers for electricity and natural gas.

The committee had decided last week it had too little information to work on the rate reform, so substituted the participation plan.

Help for delinquents pilot program's goal

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "1984," said one respondent ominously.

"Best sound like really a good idea to me," said a second.

Whatever the public reaction, the Twin Falls School District hopes a pilot program to pluck potential juvenile delinquents from the ranks of grade schoolers and refashion their "life adjustment skills" can serve as a model for school districts everywhere.

The school board approved the program, a week ago, and last Friday the Law Enforcement Planning Commission gave the district firm verbal commitment for $36,500 to fund the initial year of the project.

Once that commitment is received in writing, said Supt. James Sawin, the district will begin advertising for a project director and a counselor and let the program take wing.

But Sawin emphasized the district would monitor the program carefully in an attempt to prevent any stigma becoming attached to grade schoolers singled out as potential delinquents.

"Certainly the district is sensitive to the discriminatory angle," he said. "The people that are hired will be professional and sensitive to the scope of the project."

"If I were to see that kind of a problem (stratification), I would be the first to say let's change that or get out of the project," Sawin added.

As proposed by the district, the project would attempt to identify potential delinquents among grade schoolers.

"The cause of their difficulties would be diagnosed and a special program designed to remediate them," a grant proposal drafted in part by high school positive action teacher Carol Allred reads.

"The problems could be anything from an unfortunate home situation, to a learning disability, to a lack in particular academic skill, to an undetected physical problem; but whatever, it would hopefully be detected and steps taken to correct it. The purpose being to provide that student with a successful school experience and the skills to cope with life.

"Records of these individuals (students) and their problems would be kept along with the design for remediation," the grant proposal continues. "Notations and evaluations included in the records would come from all individuals coming in contact with that student in his program."

Food stamp phaseout defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Agriculture Department official today defended a phasing out of food stamps in favor of cash grants to the poor under President Carter's welfare reform plan.

Poor people may spend their money more wisely than middle class people, said Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary for food and consumer services. She testified before a special House Welfare Reform subcommittee, replacing Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland as this morning's witness.

The subcommittee is conducting hearings on Carter's $31.1 billion plan to overhaul the nation's welfare system. It would include consolidation of the present system of family welfare payments, food stamps and Supplemental Security Income.

Subcommittee member Joseph Fisher, D-Va., said some of his constituents have expressed fears about replacing food stamps with cash because poor people "would spend the money on booze and race tracks."

But Mrs. Foreman said research by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare "found that low income people use their money perhaps more wisely than middleclass people do."

participate in a Jordanian peace delegation without inquiring if those Palestinians were "sympathizers of the PLO." In the past, Israel has refused to have any dealings with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

But Dayan said Israel insists on a military presence on the West Bank of the Jordan "to protect and defend Israel." He also said Israel wants a warning system on the top of the Golan Heights.

Dayan gave no specific details of the model peace treaty which he presented to President Carter Monday. But he said it stated that all problems were negotiable.

"I think the American administration understands better our position and we will find ways to close the gap," he said. "We shall try to be forthcoming. The Geneva peace conference is closer because every day we are getting closer."

Dayan appeared to indirectly confirm that he met during the last few days in Europe with a high Arab leader — possibly Jordan's King Hussein. But he said he was not at liberty to disclose any details.

"I do believe all parties — and I mean the Arab states — do want a Geneva peace conference. It's just ultimately an agreed formula will be found," he said.

POLICE FORM RING AROUND EARTHMOVERS ON KENT STATE CAMPUS
... demonstrators on 'Blanket Hill' watch gym site work start

Kent State gym started

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Earthmovers tore into Kent State University's controversial gymnasium site Monday near where students were shot in 1970, and a federal judge disposed of what may be the final court challenge of the $6 million project.

A few dozen demonstrators rallied near the Kent State shootings site and marched on the construction area chanting "Cops off campus, move the gym." But campus police kept them away from the workers.

The demonstrators, members of the May 4 Coalition, hurried bags of red dye and heckled the police without having a noticeable effect on the work.

In Cleveland, U.S. District Court Judge John Manos denied a request for a preliminary injunction against construction. The request was filed last week by the families of the four students killed and nine wounded on May 4, 1970, in a barrage of Ohio National Guard gunfire aimed at anti-Vietnam War demonstrators.

The plaintiffs, represented by the American Civil Liberties Union, argued the site should be preserved as evidence in the retrial of their $16 million "Kent-State" shootings civil suit against Gov. James A. Rhodes and others.

"This court is bound by the Sixth Circuit decision that the plaintiffs will not be prejudiced by the construction," Manos ruled, referring to a decision by the federal appeals court in Cincinnati last week.

The appeals court said "preservation of the evidence pertaining to the site concerned has been (or plainly should have been) amply accomplished in the intervening seven years."

The coalition stopped construction July 29 shortly after it began by securing a temporary restraining order from a federal judge in Cleveland.

The judges later ruled jurisdiction in the case rests with the legislative branch and vacated the restraining order.

"Five attempts to get a hearing of the case in the U.S. Supreme Court have failed and the coalition has vowed to take over the construction site Saturday.

Sugar tariffs on shelf?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Monday the government may avoid the use of a congressionally mandated sugar support program which would require an increase in tariffs on imported sugar.

Bergland told reporters the plan may take so long to put into effect that the government may continue an alternate sugar support system, which is already in effect, until all domestic sugar programs are replaced "next spring" by an expected international sugar marketing agreement.

Bergland last week announced immediate activation of a program under which the incomes of depressed

American sugarcane and beet growers will be boosted by direct payments routed through processors.

At the time, officials indicated the direct payments would be used only as a temporary device until they activated the congressionally-approved program.

The congressional program, which is part of a farm bill approved by Congress last week, would put a floor under sugar market prices at 13.5 cents a pound.

Bergland's program, in contrast, allows market prices to fluctuate at lower levels and uses federal payments to make up the gap between actual market levels and 13.5 cents.

If the congressional market price support plan takes effect, officials, have indicated they would have to raise tariffs on imported sugar to keep imports from undercutting the support price.

Bergland told reporters Monday, however, that after President Carter signs the pending farm bill, it will take until next Jan. 1 or longer to draft regulations putting the congressional sugar program into effect.

By that time, he said, the government may be within a month or two of beginning formal American participation in a new international sugar agreement which would prop markets at 13.5 cents a pound.

Bergland said he was "98 percent sure" the international agreement will be negotiated this fall and go into effect next spring.

Under those circumstances, he said, it would seem futile to bring the congressional sugar plan into effect in January for only a month or two of operations. See adoption of the agreement appears likely by early 1978, he said he might ask the congressional agriculture committees for clearance to continue the direct payment program until spring rather than activating the market support program — with its accompanying tariff hikes — for a brief run.

Royal Navy's big sling too late to save Victor

WINCHESTER, England (UPI) — Victor, the spread-eagled giraffe who fell five days ago and could not be lifted today as Royal Navy experts hoisted him to his feet in a giant sling.

Victor's owner, Marwell Park Zoo chief John Knowles, had warned that the lift operation could be risky because giraffes are delicate animals.

"One of the greatest risks is that he will get frightened and break his legs or that stress could lead to a heart attack," he said.

Veterinarians said they had not yet determined the cause of Victor's death. But onlookers said all appeared to be going well during the hoist operation until the 18-foot giraffe suddenly lost consciousness.

"Victor's death dashed hopes around the world that he would pull himself up. His plight has prompted thousands of telegrams and letters from all corners of the earth, and kept a postal van busy making special deliveries every four hours.

They included an offer from an American hypnotist to fly over and mesmerize Victor to his feet, a claim by a faith healer that the laying on of hands would do the trick and a British man's theory that a lion's visit might be the answer.

Victor, 15, did the splits Thursday while apparently trying to mate with Arabesque, one of his three wives. Zoo experts think he injured himself when he fell.

Knowles rejected such ideas but tried, fruitlessly, the oldest trick in the book — parading Victor's three wives past him.

Monday he approved an offer from Royal Navy dockyard workers to hoist the giraffe to his feet in a sling of four-legged canvas trousers.

Zookeepers said Victor appeared nervous this morning as scaffolding was built around him. But he was given saline and glucose drops, a variety of energy-producing drugs, and was stroked by his keeper in an attempt to calm him.

Sun flare may disturb radio waves

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Scientists with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Monday spotted a large flare from an active region on the sun and said incoming protons from the flare would disturb the earth's magnetic field and cause minor radio-outages in polar regions.

Gary Istockman, director of NOAA's Space Environment Services Center, said the active region could signal an upsurge in new-cycle activity on the sun.

"Usually we have a quiet interval during the period when the ending and beginning cycles overlap," Heckman said. "With this burst of flares, we think the solar 'drought' is ending, and activity will now begin to increase."

Heckman said a major eruption occurred early Monday on the sun in an area nine degrees north of the solar equator. The region will be on the solar disk for four more days, when the sun's rotation will turn it away from earth.

Abortion stand discussion sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of Protestant and Jewish religious leaders said today they are dismayed that President Carter, who has met several times with members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has refused to meet with them to discuss the abortion issue.

"Abortion is a critical issue which can become very divisive for this nation," the Rev. John T. Conner, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church told a news conference.

"It is incumbent upon the President to become knowledgeable about the theological and moral beliefs on abortion held by all the religious bodies in this country."

The Protestant and Jewish leaders seeking the Carter meeting represent 11 denominations which are members of the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights. They have been seeking the meeting with Carter since mid-summer.

The group opposes a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion, a position strongly backed by the Catholic hierarchy and most recently restated to Carter at a Sept. 12 meeting the president held with Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"Because abortion is, basically a theological question, it must not become a matter of civil law," Conner told the press conference.

Conner said that Carter, during his campaign, promised to be "the president of all the American people."

"His consistent refusal to communicate with us while continuing to make himself available to the Catholic hierarchy indicates to us that in respect to this issue this was not a serious pledge," Conner said.

Conner was joined by Rabbi Balfour Brickner, director of Union of American Hebrew Congregations, and the Rev. Paul Carnes, president of the Unitarian Universalist Association, and Rabbi Richard S. Sternberger, chairman of the religious coalition.

Plan seeks delinquents

(Continued from p. 1) — "If access can be obtained to the court system, any changes in contacts with police and justice systems will also be utilized in the evaluation of project performance," the proposal adds in a later section.

"The target area" for initial focus "would be the first through third grades at the Lincoln Elementary School," the proposal reads.

Working with individual students would be only one goal of the project, and not an immediate goal at that, Sawin noted.

As outlined in the proposal, the first goal would be to "teach the concepts of life adjustment in a logical and organized manner" enabling 80 per cent of students to "pass a test on these concepts with 80 per cent accuracy by the end of the school year."

A second goal would be "to raise the level of self-esteem" among students. "Eighty per cent of all students in the impacted grades would improve their scores on a self-esteem inventory by 20 per cent by the end of the year," the proposal reads.

A third goal would be to "improve academic success" with "90 per cent of all students impacted" improving "one-half grade level in school one year beyond what would normally be expected."

A fourth goal would "reduce the level of tardies, truancy and disciplinary action within the school and community setting."

"It is projected that there would be a 25 per cent decrease in such offenses by the end of the year," the proposal adds.

The last goal of the project would be to single out and remediate those "students with need of special help."

A large part of the program would be devoted to "pre-serve inservice training of the teachers."

"It will be essential to establish a near ideal learning atmosphere by the teacher in hopes of increasing the probabilities of school success in her students..." the proposal reads. "Teachers will be thoroughly trained in the life adjustment skills before beginning."

The proposal doesn't detail the life adjustment skills nor the methods for teaching them to students. According to Sawin, these are "how" questions which can't be answered until the "what questions of program scope and content have been settled."

Prior to approval, Sawin told the board both the governor's office and the Department of Education had asked the Twin Falls district to participate in the delinquency project.

Sawin said the major effort will probably be to see if delinquency can be piped in the bud by focussing on grade schoolers.

He said the Law Enforcement Planning Commission has given "encouragement" that the project can be funded beyond the first year.

Sawin called the grant one of the "nicer things that happen to school districts in terms of money that allow the school district to do some things beyond the scope of normal programs."

Arabs carry criticisms before UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Arab diplomats have carried to the United Nations their criticisms of an Israeli plan for a Middle East settlement and their insistence that the PLO must be included in the Geneva peace talks.

"It appears from (Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe) Dayan's statements... that his proposals are intended to block a settlement and not reach one."

Other Arab diplomats strongly objected to the reportedly Dayan plan to establish joint Israeli-Jordanian control over the West Bank of Jordan, giving area Arabs a considerable measure of autonomy but keeping the area under Israeli military rule.

The Arabs say they have not yet seen the plan and could not comment on it officially. But they said that if press reports on the plan are true, they will reject it.

UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim also told a news conference Monday he had not seen the plan, but said that if press reports were correct, his requirements "are not in conformity with the resolutions of the United Nations and, therefore, I do not know whether they could contribute to a solution."

Egypt's position on participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization in resumed Geneva peace talks "is very clear," Amr said.

Twisters hit East

By United Press International

Tornadoes pumiled another afternoon visit to Pennsylvania Monday and leveled a church under construction in Michigan. Heavy rains brought relief to California.

Flash flood watches were in effect today in northwest Pennsylvania, where tornadoes struck for a second afternoon in a row. By evening, the storms had subsided and only the water remained. Flash flood warnings were posted in northwest Pennsylvania and parts of New York.

Tornadoes leveled a church under construction at Hemlock, Mich., and knocked down a school site at Merritt, Mich. Flooding rains forced schools to close and literally chased the police chief of Saginaw, Mich., out of his office.

Lebanon border war rages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The fiercest fighting in south Lebanon in the past 10 months has sparked an Israeli troop alert and Syrian charges. The Israelis might mount a "direct military operation" in the region.

(In Israel, witnesses said Monday they saw Israeli troops in half-tracks returning from Lebanon. And military sources said Israel ordered a stepped-up alert of its border forces.)

Palestinian and leftist forces fighting Israeli-backed Christian rightists reported five killed and 13 wounded and more than 20 houses destroyed in heavy shelling battles.

No casualty figure was available from the rightist side, accessible only from Israel.

Reports from the war zone said fighting was concentrated for the fifth day today on Cherkil Hill, a strategic point between the rightist-held Marjayoun and guerrilla and leftist-controlled Khlam just several miles from Israel.

Both sides used ground-to-ground missiles today as well as artillery, heavy mortars and machine guns in the worst fighting in the south since the Arab League troops quelled the civil war in the rest of Lebanon 10 months ago.

But the predominantly Syrian peacekeeping troops have not moved into the south to stop the clashes between Christians and Palestinians because of Israeli warnings it would consider such a move a threat to its own security.

Spanish magazine bombed

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — A powerful bomb today killed the superintendent of the building housing the editorial offices of the left-wing satirical magazine El Papus and injured several other persons, two critically.

Police identified the dead victim as Juan Penalver Sandoval, 60, the building's superintendent. He was delivering a parcel containing the bomb to El Papus when it exploded in his hands. Sandoval's wife was injured.

The news agency Europa Press said one of the two critically injured was another woman blown through a window of the third-floor of the. She landed on a car parked in the street below, the agency said.

Others injured included several persons passing by in Tallers street at the time of the blast.

There was no immediate indication of the motive behind the bombing, the report said.

Cuban exiles protest thaw

MIAMI (UPI) — About 8,000 Cuban exiles marched through downtown Miami to the statue of liberator Jose Marti Monday to roar their disapproval of thawing U.S.-Cuban relations — and to issue a warning.

A declaration read at the gathering said interference with anti-Fidel Castro activities would be considered "aggression against the Cuban people."

The document was read by principal speaker Luis Crespo, freed earlier this month from a prison sentence stemming from the explosion of a bomb in a Miami garage.

Crespo, who lost both his hands in the explosion as he and another exile were making the bomb, said the bomb was "being readied" for use outside the United States.

Crespo also alluded to an admission two months ago by the State Department that it had been exchanging intelligence with the Cuban government on anti-Castro exiles. He said the exiles respect the right of the U.S. government to formulate any relations, it deems convenient with the Castro government.

But he added they see as an "intolerable interference and an unjustified act of aggression against the people of Cuba any type of collaboration with the regime of Fidel Castro, including the exchange of information."

He said, "We reserve the right to take and execute any pertinent actions against this interference and aggression, where and when we may deem it congenial to the national interests of the people of Cuba."

Quake rocks Moluccas

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — An earthquake registering 6.2 on the Richter scale rocked the Moluccan archipelago in eastern Indonesia Monday, the Jakarta Geophysical Service announced today.

The quake was located at about 1,250 miles northeast of Jakarta, the announcement said.

The geophysical service recorded a second quake of a magnitude of 5.5 on the same scale 38 minutes later in the same general areas as the first — approximately 45 miles north of Ceram Island.

There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties.

Portugal prison seized

OPORTO, Portugal (UPI) — A dozen armed convicts threatened to kill 22 hostages they held in a maximum security prison today if they are attacked by the more than 200 heavily armed policemen surrounding the prison.

"We want liberty or death," one of the prisoners told reporters in a telephone interview. "If the guards move against us, we will kill the hostages. We are prepared to fight to the end."

The prisoners demanded safe passage to Morocco in exchange for the return of the hostages. Government officials said they would not agree to the demand.

The convicts grabbed the hostages after a bloody fight with guards at the modern Custodas prison shortly before noon Monday.

One prisoner was killed and six persons were injured in the fighting.

Police said friends of the convicts, apparently smuggled several pistols into the prison and the convicts used them to overpower guards and capture their side arms and an automatic rifle.

The convicts, believed by police to total about 12 men, said they were holding 22 hostages inside the prison's administrative offices. Police said they only had been able to identify nine hostages and thought the total was about 12 to 15 persons, including several women.

The prison warden, who was shot in the stomach and leg during the shoot-out, was among the hostages.

Bakers end long strike

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's 57,000-member Bakers' Union has agreed to return to work Wednesday, ending a nine-day strike by bakery workers that had threatened to cause a bread famine.

The workers, who produce 80 per cent of the nation's bread, called off the walkout Monday night once they were given a say in holiday work schedules.

The strike caused long bread lines outside independent bakeries, which normally supply the other 20 per cent of the nation's bread but normally doubled their output during the walkout by working around the clock.

Carter's strife aids Republicans

By ROBERT GRUENBERG
© Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — The chief of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee sees rich dividends in next year's house races — many of them a result of Bert Lance's troubles and Judy Powell's attempt to undermine Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-III).

Making the already oft-heard point that the Carter administration can no longer maintain the "cleaner-than-a-hound's-tooth" posture, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt (R-Mich.) believes it will contribute to what he faintly predicted will be a 33-seat gain for the GOP in the house, where 146 Republicans are outnumbered by 289 Democrats.

The Lance-Powell imbroglio "reflects far more on (President) Carter than any other President because his (campaign) rhetoric was more extreme," the 46-year-old, 7-term Republican leader told reporters yesterday. Referring to presidential press secretary Powell's attempt to strike back at Percy, a chief Lance critic, by passing on a report — found to be untrue — that the senator used a plane of his former company, Bell & Howell and facilities of the First National Bank of Chicago in his 1972 re-election campaign, Vander Jagt said:

"The mentality reflected in the Powell action is a reflection of the mentality that is still more one — campaigning for office — than it is presidential, and I don't think that mentality is limited to Powell."

He added that a "Lance resignation could be a blessing in disguise for Carter) and if Powell goes along that would be a double blessing."

The Powell action was in the realm of "dirty tricks" which the "White House should have been aware of, said Vander Jagt, just as "we've been taken to the woodshed" on the role of President Nixon in Watergate, culminating in the "I am not a crook" statement.

Asked about what some persons regard as a reluctance on the part of Senate Republicans to be harsher on Lance, Vander Jagt said, "They don't want to pile it on, or appear too gleeful, and make it look like we're relishing others' misfortunes."

Vander Jagt acknowledges that Lance has been "one of the conservative voices that the administration has" acting as a "brake" on "runaway" economic policies.

Still, he's a "political hemorrhage on Jimmy Carter" and the longer he stays the better "time it," said Vander Jagt with a trace of gusto.

The GOP tactician asserted, however, that the party is not depending solely on such "negative" developments as the Lance affair to refurbish its 1978 fortunes.

After the 1976 elections, studies in 11 selected districts — five which the Republicans won, and six they lost — showed the GOP was still being seen as "the party of big business and country clubs and that we don't care about people and solving their problems."

It is this "people-caring" factor that is most important, Vander Jagt said. He emphasized that his colleagues are being urged to take a page out of the political handbook of Rep. George M. O'Brien (R-Ill.).

Specifically, they should set up "service centers" along the lines of O'Brien's "3,000 pals" (precinct advisory liaison-service) operation, he said.

O'Brien, for example, will have 1,000 citizen volunteer "pals" delivering carnations to otherwise forgotten women in hospitals on Mother's Day, or the lawmaker's "pals" will dig out driveways after a heavy snowfall, Vander Jagt explained.

He conceded that Mother's Day carnations and snow-blocked driveways are not great national issues. But, he said, they strike a responsive chord among people concerned about everything from "getting their kids into college to fixing potholes in the street."

"You cannot change the image through television (commercials). You've got to do it through carrying the carnations or shoveling out the driveway," he asserted.

Vander Jagt also conceded that a "serious blunder" in communications was made by House Republicans last week in putting forth Social Security cost-cutting proposals resulting in stories focusing on raising the retirement age from 65 to 68 — instead of the proposed improvements such as phasing out the restrictions on the amount of Social Security beneficiary may receive.

GOP congressional targeting on administration vulnerabilities, as Vander Jagt sees them, has already begun. A $9.1 billion budget — of which $4.5 million from 400,000 contributors, 10 times the number of two years ago — is to be spent, he said.

Issues will range across the board. Domestically, they will include challenging the depth of intent by Carterites on fighting corruption — as evidenced in the recent forced resignation of a corruption-battling New Jersey U.S. attorney — to the cargo preference bill.

In the foreign area, a campaign watch is being kept on the "hopelessly bogged down" strategic arms limitation talks. The "almost inevitable confrontation (by the United States) with either the Arabs or Israel," the "screwed up relations" with both China, and U.S. African policy in which United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young "is like a loaded cannon on a ship billowing in the stormy sea."

Invite the people to all hearings

Idaho law is very clear on the issue of closing a preliminary hearing. The presiding judge has no choice but to close the hearing if the defendant requests closure.

Despite the fact that a person is entitled a "speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury..." under the Sixth Amendment, the hearings leading up to that trial do not necessarily have to be public.

Yet the fact of a person's arrest and allegations (charges) made against a defendant have most assuredly already been made public. Under Idaho law, 19-811, one step in the chain of events leading from an arrest to a possible trial can be obscured from public or press review — the pre-trial or preliminary hearing to determine if, in fact, a trial should be held.

The press in its attempts to bring information to the people, however, believes that pre-trial information should be part of the public record. The innocence of a defendant would not necessarily be jeopardized by the publication of testimony in a preliminary hearing.

Bits and pieces of information about the hearing obtained from various sources inevitably wind up in print and on the air, even after a hearing has been closed by a judge upon request of the defendant. Depending upon the availability of sources and the impartiality and willingness of those sources to talk, the information can be very biased or one-sided.

Open hearings avoid the piecemeal information flow, allowing people to attend and form their own conclusions, and of course, reporters to present the information to the general public.

Proponents of a closed hearing could take the point of view that until a person is formally bound over to district court for trial the details of charges should be shielded from the public. They might contend that if, in fact, a defendant is not bound over then the person's record would remain clear.

In reality this is untrue. If the case is one which has enough public interest for a closure request in the first place, much already has been printed and broadcast about the circumstances surrounding it.

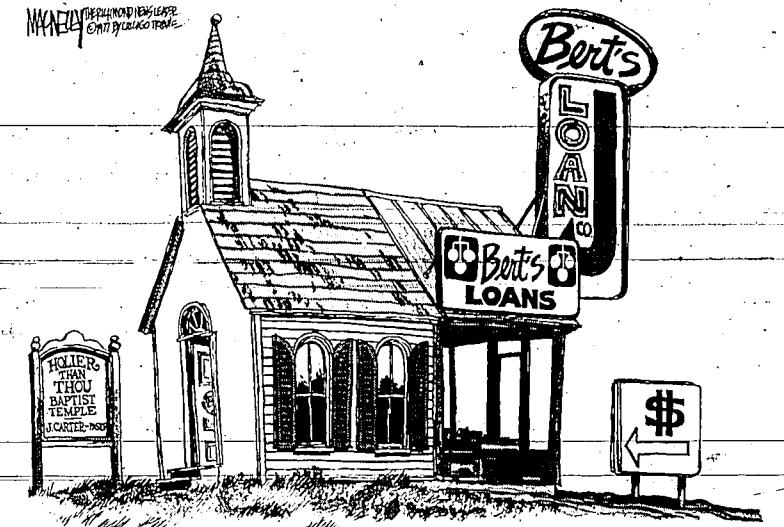

By preliminary hearing time what is demanded is a balanced, fair dissemination of information. Instead, a closed hearing produces leakages of information from biased sources trying to portray the case in a light favorable to their cause whatever it might be. The selected facts must be sifted without a true hearing perspective from witnesses, attorneys for the defense and prosecution, none of whom is directly accountable to the public for disclosures.

A perfect example, of course, is the Debbie Henson hearing where the news media were denied access to the open flow of information when the proceedings were closed.

A closed public hearing, therefore, often produces a result that can be more damaging to a potentially innocent defendant than an open forum. The weight of testimony in favor or against the defendant may be distorted or lost along the twisted route it must follow to reach the public.

The Idaho law may be an old one, but it's not an isolated situation. Most states practice similar procedures. The judge must accede to the request which made.

Supposedly, it's for the protection of the defendant, but the concept should be examined in the light of today's media competition for piecemeal information that becomes even more prejudicial to a defendant's position.

Russia battles in Middle East efforts

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
© Chicago Daily News

Russia's costly effort to establish a solid political and economic presence in the Middle East is being battered by a storm of adverse factors.

They include the mercurial nature of Arab leadership and politics, the strength of Islam, the growing power of conservative oil-producing Arab countries and the role of the United States as the chief peacekeeper in the area.

Despite billions of dollars' worth of arms, elaborate state visits and largely meaningless "free gift" treaties, the Soviet Union has remained a basically secondary force on the Arab scene.

The United States may have considerable difficulty in bringing Arabs and Israelis to the negotiating table, but Moscow hardly even figures into these efforts.

The Arabs no longer regard the Soviet Union as the champion of their cause, as they did after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Although Soviet arms continue to be supplied to such countries as Libya, Syria, Iraq and South Yemen, most Arab states are increasingly wary of Soviet gifts and intentions.

After an almost meteoric rise in the late 1960s, the Soviet position among the Arabs plummeted even faster. Today the Russians consider only three Arab countries as reasonably reliable allies: Libya, Iraq and, perhaps, Algeria in North Africa.

For some time Soviet diplomats and policymakers have been reexamining their efforts on the confused Middle Eastern scene. On the basis of the sketchy information available, it does not look as though they have learned much from previous mistakes.

To be sure, the Soviet attitude toward the most crucial Middle Eastern problem — the Arab-Israeli conflict — has not varied in 10 years. The Soviet Union calls for Israel's withdrawal to the pre-1967 borders, the establishment of an independent Palestinian state and the right of all states within the region to exist within "secure and recognized boundaries."

On the surface, such an attitude should automatically secure unwavering Arab loyalty. It has not been the case.

Soviet support did not spare the Palestinian guerrillas from virtual destruction in Jordan in 1970 and 1971. It didn't help the Palestinians during the recent Lebanese civil war.

On the contrary, when Syrian troops moved in on the left-wing Soviet-backed guerrilla organizations in Lebanon, Soviet efforts at persuasion were counterproductive.

The Soviet Union's failure in the Arab world has been its inability to secure the friendship of the two key Arab countries — Egypt and Syria, although Syria is still a recipient of Soviet arms.

The expulsion of 15,000 to 20,000 Soviet advisers from Egypt in the summer of 1972 was perhaps the biggest single blow to the Soviet presence in any Third World country. This was followed by the abrogation by President Anwar Sadat of the Soviet-Egyptian Friendship Treaty. Nevertheless, during the subsequent 25th Congress of the Soviet Communist Party, chairman Leonid Brezhnev referred to that treaty as "a milestone."

After the Egyptian setback, the Russians moved to isolate Egypt on the Arab scene and to some extent improved their relations with Libya, Iraq, South Yemen, Algeria and Somalia.

In recent months, however, Soviet efforts were dealt a heavy blow by the forging of an alliance among Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Sudan. The only consolation Soviet policymakers have is the knowledge that in the Arab world most alliances are ephemeral.

Although in Egypt President Sadat thunders against the Soviet Union and makes frequently embarrassing disclosures, the Russians have hinted more than once that they would be willing to resume the old ties with Cairo. It is easy to see why Egypt has been and will remain the key to the Arab world.

Still, an effort to patch up the quarrel turned sour last June when Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy agreed to "discuss" searching for more arms and spare parts. The Russians apparently retreated but in exchange wanted a new political agreement that would be approved by the parliaments of both countries.

Sadat, who has put much faith in the United States, was not ready to compromise. In mid-July the Egyptian president announced that all efforts at rapprochement with Moscow had failed and that all military contracts had been canceled, leaving Egypt with an unpaid $7 billion debt.

But at that point Sadat could afford to make the announcement without any threat from his military — almost in the same breath he disclosed that the Egyptian armed forces would be subsidized by oil-rich Saudi Arabia until 1981.

This is bound to be a major and complicated effort since the bulk of the Egyptian-armed forces is Soviet-equipped. Despite Egyptian complaints, since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war the Soviet Union has supplied Egypt with close to $300 million worth of arms and spare parts.

By contrast Libya, with a population of hardly more than 2 million and fledgling armed forces of 30,000 men, has received $1 billion worth of Soviet arms in the last 18 months.

But Libya is no substitute for Egypt, and Soviet diplomatic efforts aimed at Cairo apparently continue. No one believes in their success.

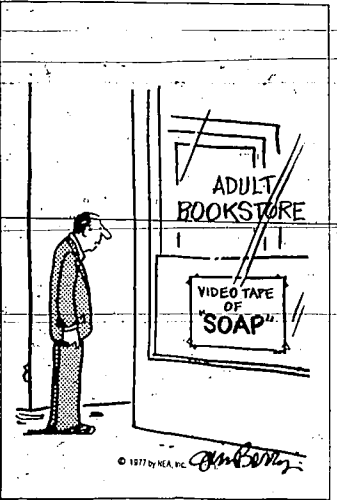

The Russians apparently have been unable to learn the futility of getting involved in Arab conflicts and quarrels. Thus, by supporting Ethiopia's claims against the Sudan and Somalia and Libya's claims against Egypt, they have only harmed their positions in Syria and Egypt.

Besides the strategic importance of the Middle East, there is another reason for stepped-up Soviet efforts in the area: all Western intelligence sources estimate that by 1985, the Soviet bloc will have to import a minimum 7.5 million barrels of crude a day.

The Arab world seems the most likely source, but whether the Russians will be successful in making deals with countries other than Iraq or Libya is another matter.

The Arabs frequently accuse the Russians of being "mere merchants of arms." Significantly, the Sinai and Golan Heights disengagements were the work of American diplomacy. There is no Russian "Kissinger" on the horizon, not even able and sensitive diplomats capable of understanding the vagaries of the Arab mind.

Old South rises to Lance's defense

© 1977, Los Angeles Times Syndicate
WASHINGTON — My Southern friends are furious for what the Northern Liberal Establishment Press has done to one of their own, the Honorable Bert Lance.

Scarlet O'Hara, who lives in an old mansion in Atlanta which had been destroyed during the Civil War, called me.

"You still hate us, don't you?" Scarlet said.

"We don't hate you, Scarlet. We love the South. Didn't we elect a Southerner President?"

"Well then you hate our bankers."

"We don't hate your bankers — We think they're great. Where else would bankers let you make the overdrafts that they do in Calhoun, Ga.?"

"Bert Lance is a good old boy, and anything he did was just to help his friends. That's the way we do things down here."

"Of course," I said "I only wish Northern bankers cared as much about their friends. You ask for a loan up here and the first thing they want to know is if you have any collateral. They're mean-as-hell when it comes to parting with a dollar. I wish I had an account at the Calhoun National Bank."

"Don't soft-soup me," Scarlet said. "You Northerners were dying to get something on one of our menfolk. When you couldn't find anything, you brought up a lot of stuff about Bert depositing his bank's money in other banks to exchange for loans and using his plane for medical trips and mismanaging his own money. That's all you could get on him."

"But Scarlet," I protested, "the people have a right to know who is in charge of the U.S. budget. If Bert couldn't run his banks, how could he run the finances of the country?"

"Bert comes from one of the best families in the South, and so does his wife, La Belle. That should have been good enough for you."

"Ordinarily it would be that when the man closest to the President is having personal financial problems, it makes someone nervous."

"That's because you don't understand anything about the South. If a man is liked down here, and Bert is loved, you don't pry into his personal affairs. It just isn't done."

"Scarlet, I know the Southern way is the best way, and I wish everyone accepted a man for what he is, and not for what he's done. But Jimmy Carter ran on a campaign against cronyism and promised high standards of morality. It just so happens that his handling of the Bert Lance affair seems to contradict his campaign rhetoric."

"But at that point Sadat could afford to make the announcement without any threat from his military — almost in the same breath he disclosed that the Egyptian armed forces would be subsidized by oil-rich Saudi Arabia until 1981."

"This is bound to be a major and complicated effort since the bulk of the Egyptian-armed

"I know you're not going to believe this, but when I write out a check on the Riggs Bank in Washington, and don't have money to cover it, Mr. Riggs calls me in an hour. Bert would never do that."

"That's because you don't get Lance, who else from the South are you going to go after?" Scarlet wanted to know.

"Nobody, Scarlet. I swear it. The Civil War is over so far as we're concerned. We Yankies are forgiving people."

"You're not going to get anyone from Georgia to believe that after what you did to Bert and La Belle."

"Will it help any, Scarlet, if I say I'm sorry?"

"Frankly," she replied, "I don't give a damn."

Emergency plans drawn for US fuel shortages

Washington Star
 WASHINGTON — Federal energy officials are preparing a series of emergency measures that could be invoked if the country faces severe shortages of natural gas, coal and oil this winter.

The measures, being prepared by the Federal Energy Administration on orders from Energy Secretary James H. Schlesinger, will be circulated in the next few days to the nation's governors and mayors for comments and suggestions.

The idea, a key energy aide explained, is to have in place by November a special "emergency hot line center" within the new Department of Energy that could instantly coordinate planning with states and municipalities to see on the nation's fuel shortages — particularly if the winter is harsh.

The planning guide, now being drafted, includes preparations for such "worst case" eventualities as a nationwide coal strike, which some officials believe is inevitable, and a serious interruption in oil supplies from the Middle East.

Such interruptions, which officials believe unlikely but possible, include an oil embargo, a production cutback by the United States' chief oil supplier — Saudi Arabia — sabotage of Arabian oil fields by terrorist groups and pipeline accidents.

Here is the preliminary outlook of the fuel situation as the energy planners currently see it, and some of the strategies being proposed:

"NATURAL GAS: The Federal Power Commission, soon to become part of the DOE, has already reported that six interstate gas pipelines face a particularly hard time this winter.

FEA, which has surveyed about 2,000 natural gas distributors, says gas stockpiles are in better shape than last year at this time — filled to about 70 per cent of capacity instead of 65 per cent. Moreover, gas consumption is down 3 per cent below 1976, which officials attribute to switching away from gas to coal, and to consumer conservation.

But trouble spots that could evolve if the winter is cold over several weeks, are pinpointed as sections of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, North and South Carolina, Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Missouri, Nevada, Ohio and Tennessee.

The ground rule for shortages that has always existed will stand: "The government 'at all costs' will not allow the 40-million homes, plus the small businesses, hospitals and other health facilities, to be curtailed from natural gas industries, as they did during last year's record-breaking cold, would bear the brunt.

If severe shortages occur, Governors would have authority to move gas within states to areas of desperate need.

President Carter, as he did last winter, could order interstate pipelines to carry gas.

 WINNER of New York City's Democratic mayoral nomination in Monday's runoff is Rep. Edward Koch, a bachelor from the Manhattan "talk stocking" district. He defeated Mario Cuomo by a margin of about 77,000 votes and will be a heavy favorite in the Nov. 8 general election.

Probers eye Vance's aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional and federal investigators who want to question indicted rice merchant Tongsun Park looked to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance today to press their case in talks with South Korea's top diplomat.

The State Department said Vance's mid-afternoon session with Foreign Minister Park tonight was arranged at South Korea's request "and we have agreed to this meeting because of the urgency of the Tongsun Park case."

Park, now in Seoul, is accused of conspiring with Korea's CIA to bribe congressmen and influence U.S. policy toward his homeland. Despite President Carter's personal appeal, Korea's government has refused to make Park return and face the charges. The two nations have no extradition treaty.

Although Korea has said congressional investigators may be allowed to question Park in Seoul under certain conditions, the overall situation has strained U.S. ties with its Asian ally and created problems for the Justice Department as well as House and Senate committees probing the lobbying scandal.

On Capitol Hill, the House Ethics Committee began taking testimony Monday from former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif. He had no comment on reports and sources said he was called in for another round of private interrogation today.

VICTOR KRAMER ... digs for Senate

The federal grand jury that brought charges against Park named Hanna as an "undisclosed consultant." It said he "helped serve, Korean interests in Congress and that in return Park paid him over $100,000 over several years, including a share of Park's commissions on U.S. subsidized rice sales to Korea.

As the House probe continued, the Senate ethics committee announced it, too, had hired a "special counsel" "at all costs" will not allow the 40-million homes, plus the small businesses, hospitals and other health facilities, to be curtailed from natural gas industries, as they did during last year's record-breaking cold, would bear the brunt.

If severe shortages occur, Governors would have authority to move gas within states to areas of desperate need.

President Carter, as he did last winter, could order interstate pipelines to carry gas.

Connally endorses term limits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John B. Connally says limiting Presidents to six years in office and members of Congress to eight would be "the most productive things that could be done on the American political and economic scene today."

The former Democratic governor of Texas, now a Republican, said in an interview with the GOP national committee magazine "First Monday" that the terms of Presidents should be lengthened to six years, senators to eight and House members to four, with only the latter permitted to seek second terms.

"Everybody looks to Washington for leadership. Anytime you start looking to a central government for favors, you sow the seeds of inevitable, deep-seated corruption."

Clean it up

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — First the rains stop. Then the mudslides break down.

And now the federal government says the water that gets through to the nation's third largest city has to be cleaned up — at a cost of $100 million or more.

SENATORS ABRAHAM RIBICOFF, CHARLES PERCY CONFER committee suspends Lance probe 2 weeks

Lance may get time to sell bank stock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget director Bert Lance probably will get his requested extension of time to sell his Georgia bank stock — providing he is still around to take advantage of it.

The Senate Government Affairs Committee has concluded nine days of hearings on Lance and its key members favor voting to ease temporarily his financial problems.

"The man is in trouble," said committee chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. "I have always been in favor of giving him more time to sell his stock."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., also said he would vote for the limited extension of the Dec. 31 deadline to sell 200,000 shares of National Bank of Georgia stock, provided an audited financial statement was provided.

Ribicoff and Percy said they believed the majority on the committee agreed with their views.

Carter and Lance met Monday following a weekend in which the White House received telephone calls and telegrams expressing heavy public support for Lance after his three days of testimony on Capitol Hill.

And White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the President still believes Lance has done nothing illegal.

Lance told CBS Monday in a telephone interview: "I haven't really thought about resigning. I'm here working. Early Monday he was reported to have participated vigorously in a Cabinet meeting."

No further witnesses were scheduled in the Lance controversy and Ribicoff said Lance's future now is up to the President and Lance. He said the committee does not now plan a report on its findings because, "I don't know what to write a report on."

The committee has reached no consensus on whether the budget director should resign. It has no power to do anything but advise Carter of its opinions.

The formal issue still before the committee is whether to give Lance an extension of a Dec. 31 deadline to sell his stock that constitutes about half his personal fortune of $2.5 million.

Percy and other Republicans on the committee had charged Lance was unfit to be budget director because of financial irregularities in his past. They cited critical reports from the comptroller of the currency and the Internal Revenue Service on Lance's pattern of writing checks for more than he had in his account and personal use of an airplane owned by the bank he headed.

Shipping US beer at million a year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon is spending almost $1 million a year to ship American beer to troops stationed in West Germany, Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., has discovered.

Transporting beer to Germany for sale at military bases is one of the all-time costly to-Newcastle money wastes, Simon says.

"But if I start complaining about it, such as the beer industry in the United States and the unions in the industry will object," Simon said in a constituents' newsletter.

"In fact, this is a costly subsidy of the U.S. beer industry. Congress never voted a direct subsidy of that industry," Simon, a House Budget committee member, cited the beer shipments as an example of how money should be saved in the $5 billion a year now spent for military transportation. The $1 million is for only freight cost on the beer — not the cost of the beer itself.

Money is also wasted on reassigning military personnel, Simon said. He said he was recently told by a long-time Army colonel that the officer had never been stationed at one place for more than 22 months.

He has also been told of many cases where military people with only a few months remaining before their discharges are sent to Korea, Spain or another foreign country.

Simon said he'll keep prodding Pentagon officials to change such policies.

Shipping US beer at million a year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The box score, according to a national committee spokesman, includes 121 promises kept, 17 broken, 231 on which action "falls short of fulfillment," listed as "not kept," 153 on which no action has been taken, listed as "not broken," 45 which the GOP said had "no discernible substance" and "can't be kept," 38 "empty promises" which pledged to do things that have already been done, and 10 "unverified" promises that simply could not be checked.

In 1973, financial chaos forced the New York Stock Exchange to close. It remained closed for 10 days.

In 1981, Vice President Chester Arthur became the 21st American President following the gunshot death of James Garfield.

In 1974, it was estimated that 1,000 persons had been killed in Honduras by Hurricane Fifi. That figure was increased to 5,000 the following day.

A thought for the day: British philosopher John Locke said, "It is one thing to show a man that he is in error, another to put him in possession of the truth."

GOP keeps Carter scorecard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republicans, who are keeping tabs on President Carter's campaign promises, report he has kept 121 and broken 77 of 49 pledges he made to the voters last year.

"Many of the promises that Mr. Carter has kept, frankly, are the ones we would have preferred to see him break since they'll cost the American taxpayers billions of dollars," said GOP National Committee Chairman William Brock.

The study, made by the committee's research division, lists 61 promises included in the White House's own "Promise Book" issued last winter. There were also 48 other promises. The GOP dug up and 14 that duplicated or overlapped others.

Trial stalls

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI) — Former United Mine Workers president W.A. "Tony" Boyle, who suffered chest pains during a retrial for the slaying of union rival Joseph Yablonski, was hospitalized Monday in stable condition.

The diagnosis of "the exact nature of his illness has been made."

The trial was recessed by presiding Judge Francis J. Calanala until 10 a.m. Friday.

Boyle, 76, who has a history of heart trouble, complained of chest pains Monday when he arrived at the courthouse where jury selection was underway in his second trial for the Dec. 31, 1969, slaying of Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Boyle was rushed to Crozer-Chester Hospital in Upland, Pa.

A hospital spokesman said Monday night Boyle was "resting" comfortably.

Psychiatric evaluation set

ROMAN POLANSKI

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Roman Polanski is going to prison for a 90-day psychiatric study despite a psychiatric report concluding he is not a deviate and should not be imprisoned for having sex with a 13-year-old girl.

Judge Laurence Rittenband ordered Polanski to spend three months at Chino State Prison for further psychiatric evaluation, but delayed it until Dec. 19 so the director can finish his latest film, a remake of "Hurricane".

The judge ruled Monday that Polanski could not be classified as a "mentally disordered sex offender," but said he needed more input before deciding whether to sentence him to prison or to recommend he be deported.

The probation report, based largely on comments of two psychiatrists and including letters from several celebrities, concluded Polanski was an intelligent and moral man who had made a mistake and was sorry for it.

Picasso estate squabble ends

PARIS (UPI) — Pablo Picasso's heirs have ended 4½ years of squabbling over the $250 million estate left by the Spanish artist, the largest net record for any artist.

Picasso left no will when he died in April 1973 at the age of 91, and shortly before had predicted the battle among his heirs for their share of his fortune would be "worse than anything you can imagine."

Fifty-four months and innumerable court hearings later, it was announced Monday that Picasso's six heirs have reached a settlement terminating his estate. It comprises 1,876 paintings, 12,000 drawings, 20,000 engravings, 1,355 sculptures and 2,880 ceramics, as well as tapestries, illustrated books and his mansion in southern France, the Chateau de Vauvegranges, where he is buried.

Its $250 million estimated value makes it the largest ever left by an artist.

Family lawyer Maurice Rheims said Picasso's wife, the former Jacqueline Roque, broke the deadlock Thursday when she approved the settlement proposed by the other heirs.

Mrs. Picasso had previously opposed the draft agreement, saying "It lacked fact," and gave the others the first option on buying the chateau should she decide to sell it.

When Picasso died, his 21-year-old son, Pablo, committed suicide because he and the other children were not allowed to attend the funeral service.

The settlement leaves Mrs. Picasso with about $60 million after taxes.

The painter's legitimate grandchildren, Marina, 27, and Bernard, 18, will inherit about $40 million each.

Picasso's illegitimate children, Maya Widmayer, 42, Claude, 30, and Paloma, 28, are to receive about $17 million each. They are taxed heavier than the two legitimate grandchildren.

The French government has agreed to accept payment of most of the inheritance taxes in the form of art works to be housed in a new Picasso museum being built in Paris.

Out-of-court settlement

Jackie will receive $26 million

JACKIE ONASSIS ... settlement

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis will receive $26 million from the estate of her late husband Aristotle Onassis under the terms of an out-of-court settlement, a member of the Onassis Foundation board said today.

The board member said the $26 million will be in addition to an annual income of $100,000 originally bequeathed to her by her second husband, Onassis, the Greek shipping tycoon.

The source, who declined to be identified further, said the out-of-court settlement was reached in June 1976. It followed lengthy negotiations between lawyers representing Onassis' only surviving child, his daughter Christina, Jacqueline's legal representative and the executors of the Onassis estate.

The board member, who took part in the negotiations, said that in May, 1976, it was agreed that Mrs. Onassis would receive $20 million. But Mrs. Onassis pressed through her lawyers for more and at a further meeting in Zurich in June, 1976, she was granted an additional $6 million for a total of $26 million, which she accepted.

Sources close to Onassis' daughter said she accepted the large settlement because she was eager to cut ties with Mrs. Onassis and had been advised that Jackie, formerly married to President John F. Kennedy, "would not consider anything less than $20 million."

The board member said the legal wrangle over Onassis' multimillion dollar estate began in 1975, when Christina decided to demand her full rights under Greek law, rather than accept a major share of a trust, covering 45 per cent of her father's assets, which the shipping magnate had bequeathed to her.

Under Greek law, she was entitled to 75 per cent of her father's estate as the only surviving child. Under the same law the remaining 25 per cent normally would go to the widow.

Mrs. Onassis had relinquished her claim to the estate under a marriage settlement totalling $3 million, agreed on at the time of her marriage to Onassis in 1968.

"Mrs. Onassis is a woman who knows how to protect and augment her rights," the board member said. "She took advantage of Christina's wish to become controller of the part of the Onassis estate she was legally entitled to, and asked for her share."

Under the final settlement, Christina received 50 per cent of the Onassis estate, mostly in ships and in U.S.-based enterprises owned by her father. Shipping experts estimated the total value at around $250 million, depending on the market value of the shipping fleet. Christina agreed to pay the amount granted to Jackie out of her share of the estate, the Onassis Foundation executive said.

Sextuplets on way to fame

LEUVEN, Netherlands (UPI) — Holland's first sextuplets today were well on their way to fame, fortune and good health.

"I can assure you the highest bidder will get the rights of pictures, interviews, movies, and so on," said the business agent appointed to handle the affairs of the four girls and two boys.

The infants, born Sunday to Jacoba Nijssen, 26, and her husband, Simon, 27, a steelworker, are the first sextuplets born in Holland and only the second set born anywhere known to have lived beyond a few hours.

"There is no early-stage decline as sometimes happens with premature births," Dr. Jan Ruys, head of the post-natal department, said Monday, following hopes for the survival of the babies.

Cor Koster, an agent who represents some of Holland's top soccer players, was appointed to handle the sextuplets' affairs, even before their births. He will handle the anticipated deluge of offers from women's magazines and popular newspapers.

A hospital spokesman said the father "eagerly consented" to the arrangement, and had planned to attend the news conference Monday, but at the last moment he was still "too dumbfounded" to appear in public.

The babies are the couple's first children. Mrs. Nijssen, who had been taking a fertility drug, had been pregnant once before and was told to expect quadruplets, but she suffered a miscarriage.

The infants were delivered Sunday morning by Caesarian section. They weighed between 2½ pounds — 2 ounces and 2 pounds, 11 ounces.

"Naturally, the babies are under the normal weight of premature babies, but their weights may still be described as reasonable," one doctor said.

Mrs. Nijssen will be allowed to return home in about two weeks, but the babies will have to stay in the hospital for at least three months, doctors said.

The only other known surviving sextuplets are three boys and three girls born to Susan Jane Rosenkowitz in Cape Town, South Africa, in 1974.

Jilted girlfriend arrested

JOYCE MCKINNEY

LONDON (UPI) — A Utah beauty pageant contestant jilted by a boyfriend who became a Mormon missionary was under arrest today in connection with the three-day kidnaping of the missionary.

Scotland Yard detectives questioned Joyce McKinney, 27, and Keith, May 25, following their arrest Monday in southwest England as they drove toward London in a rented car police said was stuffed with luggage.

Warrants for their arrests were issued after Kirk Anderson, 21, of Provo, Utah, told police he had been kidnaped and kept shackled and handcuffed for three days before being freed unharmed Saturday.

Police sources said during his three-day captivity, Anderson overheard talk about his affair with Miss McKinney. May, of Los Angeles, was believed to have carried out the abduction, they said.

Mormon Church spokesmen in Salt Lake City said Anderson had dated a Joyce McKinney while attending Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, but broke off with her before he left for London 10 months ago.

Prospective jurors must name religion

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Prospective jurors in the probate trial of the purported "Mormon" will of the late Howard Hughes will be asked to specify their religion, District Court Judge Keith Hayes ruled Monday.

However, a prospective juror who is Mormon will not be excluded from serving unless the fact his church is a beneficiary in the will might sway the verdict, Hayes said.

The Mormon church was named a beneficiary in the will which was found in the Salt Lake City headquarters of the church several weeks after Hughes died.

"I want to make it absolutely, totally and completely clear we do not expect that Mormons will be excluded as jurors just because they're Mormons," said attorney James Dilworth, lawyer for Annette Gano Lumley, the aunt and closest living relative to the late industrialist.

Dilworth and opponents of the will were the ones who suggested that the religious question be asked of prospective jurors.

"I believe both sides have a right to know a juror's religion in this case," Hayes said, the judge himself was briefly disqualified from hearing the probate trial last month because he is a Mormon, but that ruling was overturned by the Nevada Supreme Court.

The probate trial begins Oct. 3. Jury selection may take up to two weeks, according to courtroom speculation by lawyers.

Unprecedented procedures will be used in jury selection: Hayes said he will warn prospective jurors when they first report to the courthouse not to discuss the case.

Each prospective juror will be given a list of all attorneys and witnesses in the case to read to determine if they know any of the parties involved.

Attorneys for both sides will then question prospective jurors individually rather than in the presence of the full panel.

"It is going to be very tedious," Hayes said of jury selection.

That's the way cookies crumble

N.Y. Times Service
OCEAN BEACH, N.Y. — The great cookie case crumbled Saturday.
 Judge Benjamin Mehlman of Village Court dismissed charges against Lawrence E. Wallick, 18, who had been accused of eating a chocolate chip cookie in public in Ocean Beach, and a friend of Wallick, Ruth Bushnell, who had been accused of eating a piece of crumb cake.

Mehlman granted a dismissal after the prosecutor, Bennett L. Gershtman, agreed with the defense attorney that the law, which was designed to cut down on litter in the Fire Island community, was being applied discriminatorily, with the police enforcing it against cookie munchers but not against ice-cream lickers.

"The matter has gone so far that it almost borders on the absurd," said Gershtman, who teaches criminal law at Pace University Law School. "We have a case here where we have a prosecution that goes on and on for a person accused of eating a cookie. There ought to be a point where we draw the line."

The dismissal was also agreed to by M. Arthur Hammer, the attorney for the Ocean Beach Homeowners Association, who had entered the case two weeks ago as a friend of the court, although Hammer insisted that "this is a lawful ordinance."

 "This is designed to prevent litter, but it should be applied intelligently," Hammer said. He added that the law should be enforced against people whose food left a residue of bones and wrappers, but not against people who ate cookies or ice cream.

 Referring to the wide attention that the case has attracted nationwide and abroad, Hammer said: "By seeking to prosecute with undue zeal this act of eating a cookie, we have made ourselves look ridiculous to outsiders. We have branded as violators of the law people who eat ice-cream cones or cookies."

 Hammer argued that the law should be enforced only in certain cases.
 The defense attorney, Michael N. Hills, said that he was eager to have the case argued on constitutional grounds, but that "it is in the best interests of my clients to have the case dismissed."
 Hills, who was retained by Rachel Doering, the owner of a cookie shop, to defend Wallick and Miss Bushnell, said to the judge, "We don't want this ordinance to stand."

 He added later that he would bring a civil action in State Supreme Court in Riverhead, N.Y., to have the ordinance declared unconstitutional, asserting that the law was drawn in such a way that one interpretation of it would make eating in a restaurant illegal.

Litterbug litter

INVESTIGATING nearly a pickup truck load of trash which was dumped in the Rock Creek county park here are Ed Woods, left, and Darrell Heider, the two say the trash was taken to the county park and dumped by some disrespectful individual early last week. The two say they hope to trace the owner so he can be prosecuted.

Trash plagues county parks

TWIN FALLS — One of the major problems facing the Twin Falls County Parks and Recreation Department is keeping them clean.
 Regular trash pick up from numerous containers in the county parks represents a sizeable annual expense, but there is another unnecessary expense involved, says Darrell Heider, county sanitation superintendent.
 An example, he said, occurred this past week when someone took a load of old cans and other garbage, drove into the Rock Creek park just west of the hospital, and dumped it beside the creek near the center of the park.

This is one of the newer county parks and county crews have spent a lot of time and money improving and landscaping it, Heider said.

"We are proud of this park and it is one of the most heavily used by our own county residents and many tourists. It's really disturbing to have such disregard for the facility shown," he said.
 Heider and county zoning administrator Ed Woods say they may be able to trace the garbage to the owner since there was a clue left among the debris.

This is just a typical incident of the countless cases of litter, vandalism and other indications of how a very few members of the public treat the facilities built for their enjoyment, Woods said.

The park was built on the site of a former old car wrecking lot with county funds augmented by donations from the Twentieth Century Club, Lions Club and other community organizations.

Nuclear tests 'worry'

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — Almost four weeks after President Carter said South Africa had assured him that it will not conduct a nuclear test, the U.S. government continues to be worried about the possibility that one might occur.

"There is still enough stuff in the desert" at the Kalahari site where South Africa was believed to be preparing for a nuclear explosion "to cause us concern," one senior American official says.

The Carter administration is keeping an eye on that site, although officials decline to talk about their latest satellite reconnaissance of the area. It is known, however, that South Africa has not dismantled any of the facilities in the desert which seemed to have been built for a nuclear test.

The administration is discussing with other countries ways to restrict the supply to South Africa of equipment and materials that might be used for nuclear weapons purposes.

Missing woman found after four hour search

ARIZONA — The Korean wife of a missing man was found safe late Saturday night after about a four-hour search in the area north of Kimama Butte.

Man attacked

Escort
actress

PEKING (UPI-DPA) — An American art dealer taking a walk with actress Stephanie Powers was slightly wounded Sunday by a Chinese man waving a knife, informed sources reported today.

Art dealer Richard Palmadge, whose hometown was not immediately available, was walking with the actress near the Peking Hotel when he was attacked by a middle-aged Chinese man armed with a knife, the sources said.

Palmadge defended himself and the man attempted to run away, but was detained by Chinese and was arrested, the sources said.

Palmadge was treated in the Peking Hospital for slight wounds.

Palmadge came to Peking with Miss Powers and William Heider, who are making a film in China.

First reports about the incident erroneously identified the victim as Jadranko Topic, a member of the visiting New York Cosmos professional soccer team which is on a playing tour of China.

The Cosmos played to a 1-1 tie with the Chinese national team Saturday night.

James Valjert reported to the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department about 7:30 p.m. Sunday that his wife became missing while he was hunting sage hens about five to six miles north of the Kimama area.

She was found by two Rupert area farmers, Allen Funn and James O'Donnell, about 10:45 p.m. when a small fire was noticed in a ravine about one-half to three-quarters of a mile from the Valjert pickup.

Cassia County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said Valjert had reported that he left his wife in the pickup while he walked through the desert hunting sage hens. He said he returned about 1 1/2 hours later and his wife was gone.

Valjert left the pickup at the site and caught a ride to Rupert with Tuma and O'Donnell, who also had been hunting sage hens in the area.

Jarvis called in two bloodhounds and handlers from Hailey, but the woman was found about the time the bloodhounds arrived.

Jarvis said the woman apparently tried to follow her husband, since she was found in the same general direction that Valjert had gone when he left the pickup.

IEA appoints new director

TWIN FALLS — A former Oklahoma English teacher who later became a teachers' union representative in that state has been named new Magic Valley regional director for the Idaho Education Association.

James Shackelford, 31, will take over as Magic Valley IEA representative and director of the union's Twin Falls Uni Serv office on Oct. 1.

He will replace Virginia Ross, who held the post for two years before resigning this fall to accept a similar post in central Oregon.

Shackelford was named to the Magic Valley post after topping a list of finalists selected by the Magic Valley Uni Serv Council and IEA state officers.

IEA president Terry Gilbert said Shackelford was the first choice of three finalists selected from about 40 original applicants.

Shackelford, who is married and the father of three children, began his career as an English teacher at Central Junior High in Moore, Okla. He later taught English at West Mid-High in Norman, Okla., before accepting a job as a regional director for the Oklahoma Education Association.

A graduate of Laverne, Okla., High School, Shackelford received his BA in English from the University of Oklahoma in 1970. Five years later he received a master's degree in guidance and counseling from the Uni of O.

As Magic Valley director for the IEA, Shackelford will represent teachers in Education Association locals in Twin Falls, Burley, Bluffdale, Sun Valley, Jerome, Ketchum and other Valley school districts.

The association locals are affiliates of the IEA, which is in turn the Idaho affiliate of the National Education Association.

The IEA locals represent teachers in collective bargaining with school boards. Through its Uni Serv offices the IEA provides teachers with assistance in grievances, guidance in political action or help with other problems where union aid is requested.

As Magic Valley IEA director Shackelford will make about $22,000 per year, according to Gilbert.

Bridge bid awarded to local firm

DAHEY — The Idaho Construction Co. of Twin Falls has a low bid of $238,296.55 to construct a 65-foot prestressed concrete bridge on Smith Lane and a 66-foot prestressed concrete bridge on Dry Creek Road.

Both bridges are over the Little Wood River north of Carey. Congress recently authorized funding to the Idaho Transportation Department for improvements on 200 deficient bridges throughout the state. Total funds appropriated for 1976-77 were $5.4 million. The 1978 appropriation has not been released. Other counties included were Latah, Bonneville, Bingham, Ada and Clearwater.

Hospital board okays expansion project

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Hospital board members Monday approved a major expansion project which would be financed through a loan of about $5.5 million from the Idaho Hospital Finance Authority (IHFA).

In addition to the IHFA loan, which would be paid back over a 25-year period, the hospital would add about $1.2 million in profits over a four-year period to finance the project.

The expansion would begin next April and would be completed by April, 1980. It would add about 70,000 square feet to the hospital building, most of it in an expanded emergency room and a new outpatient center.

Radiology and pathology laboratories would also be expanded and upgraded, and surgical facilities would be enlarged. Two elevators would be added, and four additional beds would be provided in the intensive care unit.

The total $7.7 million project has been contemplated by the hospital for several years. Two previous attempts to finance the project through general obligation bonds were defeated at the polls.

Under the present proposal, the hospital would generate $1.2 million in profits from patient revenues over the next four years to accompany the $6.5 million borrowed from the IHFA.

A feasibility study by the hospital's accountants,

Tonkin, Swenson and Johnson, Boise, projects repayment of the IHFA loan over 25 years in monthly installments averaging about $44,000.

According to G. W. "Bill" Bonkin, chief accountant, no increase in present hospital rates would be necessary for repayment beyond increases already approved this year and standard inflationary increases of about 6 per cent per year over the course of the loan.

In his firm's report, Tonkin estimated interest on the IHFA loan at 6.5 per cent per annum, although as with other estimates he noted the figure could change.

The hospital board approved the project after a report by finance committee chairman Ivan

Skinner.

Skinner told the board his committee had recommended the project after "general agreement the hospital was in a position to assume such a responsibility."

Skinner said previous election failures left the board "no real opportunity" for a bond issue. Referring to the IHFA loan, he said, "This does offer a way for much-needed improvements at this hospital."

The board approved the IHFA loan application unanimously.

MVMH attorney Fred Decker, who is also immediate past chairman of the IHFA, said the state financing agency would have to review the hospital's application before making its own approval of the project.

If the IHFA board approves the expansion then it would call for an independent, in-depth feasibility study before issuing revenue bonds to make the loan.

Although Decker made no commitment on IHFA action, he told the board prior to its approval of the project, "We're ready to go when you are."

MVMH building committee chairman R. W. Pierce noted that a Twin Falls County general obligation bond issue would probably be less expensive than the IHFA loan through revenue bonds.

Pierce said the IHFA loan, however, was the "only" source of revenue that we can really depend on to get this project started right away."

No extra seating

TWIN FALLS — Only those citizens who already have tickets for the U.S. Army Band concert Friday at the College of Southern Idaho will be admitted to the show in the Fine Arts Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Standing room and extra seating will not be allowed in the auditorium, according to Twin Falls Fire Marshal Clare Harkins.

According to the section of the Life Safety Code on places of assembly, Harkins says, "The number of fixed seats in a place of assembly" determines the occupant load of that place.

"Aisle space shall not be used to increase the occupant load," Harkins says. The aisle space in the Fine Arts Auditorium will "not be used for standing room or for fold-down seats for additional people."

Unless you are a holder of one of the 1,200 tickets already distributed, you will not be admitted to the concert Friday night.

Harkins says the danger of loss of life in case of fire is just too great to allow overcrowding of the auditorium.

"For an example you could use what happened at the Kentucky night club fire," Harkins says. "They allowed people beyond allowable space and look what happened when fire broke out."

The concert, technically a performance of the U.S. Army Field Band and Soldiers Chorus, is sponsored by the Times-News and ticketholders will be admitted free of charge.

Audit reports 'good'

HANSEN — Both the Hansen and Murtaugh School Districts are in good financial conditions, according to a recent audit conducted by Eugene Manwaring, Pocatello.

Both school board meetings conducted Monday night in both Hansen and Murtaugh, Manwaring discussed results of audits of both school districts and declared both districts in good shape.

In other school board business, Hansen Superintendent Garth Miller says his board approved the purchase of 100 new chairs for the multi-purpose room in the elementary school.

The Hansen board approved its recent needs assessment which is to be sent to the Idaho Department of Education in Boise, Miller explains.

Drugs confiscated

SUN VALLEY — The arrest of a 20-year old California man Saturday on grand larceny charges led local police to confiscate about two pounds of hallucinogenic mushrooms and to make three other arrests.

Sun Valley police and security officers Saturday arrested William Hillier, El Cajon, Calif., a former employe at the Sun Valley Resort, for allegedly taking $20 from a resort guest room.

This arrest, made in an Elkhorn condominium, led police to a slash of about two pounds of psilocybin, a hallucinogenic mushroom, and set Sun Valley, Ketchum and county police officers off on an investigation which resulted in the arrests of Brec T. Bybee, 19, Michael D. Owen, 18, and Michael Riches, 18, all of Salt Lake City.

All three men were charged with the felony of unlawful possession of a controlled substance with the intent to deliver.

The four men were arraigned in Magistrate court Monday, where preliminary hearings are expected to be scheduled later this week.

Fire study slated

TWIN FALLS — Fire officials from the Idaho Surveying and Mapping Bureau, Inc. will visit commercial buildings throughout the city for the next month, according to City Manager Jean Milar.

The five men are studying the construction, fire safety standards and fire susceptibility of the buildings. The information will be used to help determine whether the city's fire rating should be improved.

If the city's fire rating is improved, residents could see a drop in fire insurance rates, the city manager said.

Two men held

HURLEY — Two Oregon men are being held in Box Elder County, Utah, for extradition here on charges of rape.

The men are William Elmer Cross and Richard White Bennett. Each is being held on $50,000 bond.

Cassia County Undersheriff Bill Crystal said the rapes allegedly were committed Saturday in Twin Falls and Cassia Counties. They were reported to the Cassia County Sheriff's office at 3:10 p.m. Saturday when the alleged victim, a woman from Casper, Wyo., appeared at the Coterrell port of entry southeast of Boise.

The woman told authorities she was hitchhiking from Boise and was picked up by two young men from Oregon. She said she was raped four times, with each man raping her in Twin Falls County and again in Cassia County.

The two men were arrested in Box Elder County, from the alleged victim's description of them and their car.

CSI approves bid

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho officials here to have blacktopping at the school's Expo Center completed in time for a 10th anniversary open house and tour of the campus in October.

The CSI board Monday approved a bid of about $71,000 for the blacktopping by Beymer Paving Co., Twin Falls.

The only other bid for the work, one of about $77,000, was submitted by Twin Falls Construction Co.

In other action at their monthly meeting, CSI trustees approved payment of bills amounting to about $1.8 million and student loans of about $240. Also approved was a $400 scholarship for Richard Sterling-Twin Falls-Sterling plans to study engineering and science at CSI.

CSI president James L. Taylor told the board $2 million in grants — about $1 million from the state and an additional $1 million in federal funds — are being sought to build a new vocational building on the campus.

If the 45,000-square-foot facility, becomes a reality, Taylor said, the school would be housed totally on campus with the exception of the Nye Building near the Singing Bridge.

"Taylor told the board the initial fall term 'head count' will probably indicate an enrollment increase at the college.

Taylor said enrollment figures have not yet been compiled.

Turning to the 10th anniversary open house scheduled for Oct. 23, Taylor urged board members to attend.

"I'd like to see all board members there October 23rd if at all possible," he said.

He said special tours of the campus would be conducted by students and a contingent of senior citizens from the school's Retired Senior Volunteers Program.

Golf carts and vans are being readied to take participants from one site to another, he added.

A special section of the Times-News on Friday, Oct. 21 will commemorate the school's 10th anniversary.

"We're hoping to make it a big thing," Taylor told the board.

Complaints heard on annexation plan

TWIN FALLS — More than 70 local residents Monday night attended a public hearing on a city plan to annex about 800 acres.

During almost an hour of public testimony, people stood up to either denounce the city plan or ask questions about it.

The 800 acres includes 16 separate pockets scattered sporadically around the city (see map).

Mrs. Amanda Plot, 2033 Eldridge Ave., told the council she was worried that the proposed annexation of some of her land would mean an end of her "laying hens" business.

Other residents who said they had property in No. 5 also expressed concern about how annexation of part of their land would affect their farming operations.

Craig Slane, 1956 Osterloh Ave., complained that annexation of part of his land in No. 9 might mean the end of his small ranching operation.

Under the planned annexation, only a half acre of his land would become part of the city while 20 acres would not, he said.

On the half acre sits a corral where he keeps his animals in the winter, Slane said. "I couldn't have the density of animals on that land if it's brought into the city," Slane said.

Others complained that proposed annexation of their land was not legal.

Russell Kvanvig, an attorney who said he was representing P.F. Sande and Floyd E. Smith, owners of land in No. 11, charged the city could not annex their land because it was more than five acres in size.

Mayor Paul Ostin said the council was not prepared to answer residents' complaints at the public hearing but noted such complaints would be considered before the council would take any action on annexation.

City Manager Jean Milar said city officials would prepare an annexation ordinance for the council to take action on in about a month.

During the two-hour meeting, the council also, unanimously agreed to offer the Twin Falls fire fighters another contract for the upcoming fiscal year.

Under the contract, fire fighters' salaries would only be "adjusted" quarterly using the Consumer Price Index. The current contract expires Sept. 30.

The proposed contract, approved Monday night, would be exactly the same as this year's contract, city officials said.

Only one clause on constant manning would be changed, City Councilman Stephen R. Lincoln said. That clause would allow fire fighters to work an extra shift when needed at regular pay.

Fire fighters had requested time-and-a-half pay for extra shifts. They also requested other salary adjustments besides those based on the Consumer Price Index.

In other action, the council:

—Voted 5 to 3, denying a request by Robert Lawrence owner of Blue Lakes Tile, Inc., to add an apartment on his residence at 304 Blue Lakes Blvd.

—Unanimously approved a request by the South Central Community Action Agency to help the Headstart Preschool Program in a building at 229 Madrona St. N.

—Voted 5 to 3, denying a motion by Councilman Leon Smith to require Twin Falls businesses to acquire an operating license from the city.

Trial in 2nd day

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — With millions of dollars at stake, as well as the future ownership in the core area of the Sun Valley resort, attorneys for the former owner of Sun Valley and two California developers today began the second day of a "bitter" trial in Blaine County District Court.

Recessing after five hours of initial statements and testimony Monday, the court reconvened this morning promptly at 9:30 a.m. in a trial over a multi-million dollar lawsuit between the Sun Valley Co., owned principally by William Jans, and California developers Charles Dwight and Richard Fenton.

The suit, which includes claims and counterclaims estimated at about $32 million, will determine the future ownership and development rights in a 40-acre core area of the Sun Valley resort.

Senior attorney Howard Ellman for the Dwight-Fenton Co., opened the trial by grilling the trial's first witness, Sun Valley Co. owner William Jans.

The names of individuals expected to testify during the trial looks like a list torn from the pages of "Who's Who in America."

In addition to the principals in the case, among those individuals expected to testify are Oliver Vanderbilt and Travis Reed, assistant secretary of Commerce in the Ford administration, both associates of Dwight and Fenton in an Oregon development project; Ralph Comstock, president of First Security Bank; John Montgomery, president of Wells-Fargo Mortgage Co.; and other prominent businessmen.

The suit, which attorneys say could easily take longer than the allotted two weeks, involves former plans of Dwight-Fenton and Co. to rent the Sun Valley mall from the former owner, Sun Valley Co., and to develop an architecturally integrated mall area in the style of a European village.

Those plans were aborted and a suit and countersuit were later filed with each party claiming the other was responsible for the broken deal.

Sun Valley Co. contends Dwight-Fenton and Co. failed to make a required initial payment of $384,500 on a lease, which was central to the development project, due March 31, 1976.

So the two developers were in default of all agreements, according to the Sun Valley Co.

The leases, which Dwight-Fenton and Co. signed with Sun Valley Co., were to allow the developers to create a $10 million shopping and residential complex in Sun Valley.

But in counter claims, Dwight-Fenton and Co. argue Sun Valley Co. tried to renege on the deal illegally and worked to prevent the developers from making the initial lease payment.

Sewage plant problems not solved yet

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Waste Water Treatment Plant continued to expel pollutants into the Snake River at levels exceeding Environmental Protection Agency standards this month, recently released records show.

But City Manager Jean Milar said Monday "major" problems at the sewage plant should be over, adding he plans to invite EPA and state health officials to visit the plant next week.

The plant has been discharging pollutants at levels exceeding EPA guidelines since April, 1976.

Recently released statistics show the plant operating much better in August than it had in the past, though Idaho Frozen Foods, the main contributor to sewage plant waste, shut down its potato processing equipment and sent the plant little sewage during much of that month.

In September, with Idaho Frozen Foods again sending sewage to the plant, levels of suspended solids, one type of plant waste, and oxygen demand, (the amount of oxygen discharged waste will remove from surrounding water) began to creep up, passing EPA maximum levels.

Milar blamed the excessive levels of suspended solids on scum built up in part of the plant's secondary system. This problem is being cleaned up and "we should be in pretty good shape by next week," he said.

Recurring problems with the plant's heat treatment facility, which sterilizes treated sludge, and with the plant's vacuum filter — should be solved, Milar said.

Officials from out-of-state firms, Envior-Tech and Controflow, have finally solved problems with the machinery, he said.

Despite equipment repair, average daily discharges of suspended solids during the first two weeks of September, exceeded EPA guidelines on seven days and by as much as four times allowable levels.

In addition, average daily levels of oxygen demand exceeded EPA guidelines on five of the first eight days of the month and by as much as two times acceptable levels.

Under the guidelines, plant officials must compute an average level of discharged suspended solids and oxygen demand per day. The guidelines say the daily average can not exceed 60 milligrams per liter and oxygen demand.

But from Sept. 1 through Sept. 14, average daily discharge levels for suspended solids (measured in milligrams per liter) were 70, 40, 30, 20, 30, 100, 10, 130, 100, 160, 250, no reading, and 220.

From Sept. 1 through Sept. 8, average daily discharge levels of oxygen demand measured in milligrams per liter were 35, 169, 150, 73, 65, 17, 105 and 25.

City officials have called the standards overly strict and have said excessive discharges did not accurately portray how well the plant is operating.

Milar said the plant is removing about 92 per cent of the pollutants from sewage flowing into it.

But EPA and state health officials have not been satisfied with the city's plant.

EPA officials have threatened to take the city to court, paying $10,000 for each day of discharge violation. In addition, state health officials are no longer approving hookups of subdivisions to the city's sewage system until excessive discharges stop.

In other developments, Al Murrey, state health and welfare department water quality bureau chief, said health officials would decide in two weeks whether to give the city an additional two months to meet EPA guidelines.

In an in-house memorandum, three officials in the state health and welfare department's environmental branch recommended the city be given two months to meet EPA standards.

Real estate leader to lecture in TF

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The man who is considered the nation's best authority on real estate development and housing costs in the nation, Harry G. Elmstrom, president of the National Association of Realtors, will speak in Twin Falls this week.

Joe Young, president of the Twin Falls Board of Realtors and best for the Idaho State Association of Realtors Convention Wednesday through Saturday, said it is a rare opportunity for people in the state of Idaho to hear from the head of the nation's largest business organization.

Elmstrom heads a nearly 500,000-member national organization. He and the realtor members of the association are involved with the housing industry in America, Young said, and the president will have some interesting reports on why housing costs are skyrocketing, and why the average family is being priced out of home ownership in many areas of the country.

HARRY ELMSTROM speaks

Elmstrom is scheduled to arrive Wednesday afternoon by plane and will address a Thursday luncheon of convention delegates at the Holiday Inn.

He has been in the real estate industry for 24 years and makes his home in Ballston Spa, N.Y. During the past two decades he has been active in real estate organization from the local to national levels. In 1967 he was named Realtor of the Year in New York State.

Other speakers during the three-day convention will include Jack Linkletter of television and business world fame. He will address the convention Friday noon during the annual "wards dinner." At that time the Idaho Realtor of the Year will be announced.

Election of 1978 officers will be held Thursday, and the president's banquet will be held Friday evening.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower Tuesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 5.39 points Monday to a 21-month low, was off 0.69 point to 850.83 shortly after the opening. The closely watched average is off 153 points so far this year.

Declines led advances, 128 to 95, among the 375 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

Turnover amounted to about 440,000 shares.

Analysts said the Dow average's decline through its previous 1977 low of 854.12 could lead to further selling.

Some analysts have predicted the closely watched average would fall as low as 780 in the near future.

Observers said Monday's sell-off was the result of a number of reports showing the economy had slowed and to rising interest rates.

Grains, cattle up; hogs, spuds dip

COURTESY SINCLAIR & CO. — Grain and cattle futures ended higher Monday while hogs and Maine potatoes closed lower.

The May delivery of Western russet potatoes ended unchanged at 7.46 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds closed 4 to 8 cents lower on a trade of 1,832 lots, covering only a narrow range. December closed 4 cents down at 4.46 as improving weather in Maine had some effect. Cash markets were steady. Harvesting was expected to accelerate today if the weather improves.

Early diggings indicated variable yields and quality, with 10 to 15 per cent of the harvest out of the ground.

Wheat reversed earlier losses, closing 1/4 cent to 2/4 cent higher and near the day's highs. Trading was on the light side. Commercial buying and local professional buying were the main price supports. European harvests are expected to be up about 19 per cent from 1976 and Indonesia and South Korea were to tender for exports today.

Corn closed 1/2 cent to 3/4 cent higher after overcoming opening losses. Exporter and cash connected losses, plus speculator short covering, took prices to the day's highs. Some late hedging trimmed earlier advances. Export sales appeared scant.

The soybean complex also closed higher, with aggressive late demand in the bean pit and speculative support for products. Beans closed 3 to 4/4 cent higher, meal was up 1/10 to 2/40 and oil gained 50 to 47 cents.

Live cattle closed steady to 47 cents out, higher in a moderately active turnover of 8,208 contracts. October preced the gains but February was held without gain by bull spreaders who bought nearby against sales in February. Closing quotes in more active months were also near the day's highs. Carcass prices were steady with Friday's close.

Feeder cattle ended on the plus side but off the day's highs. All nearby but spot September held above Friday's settlement through the session, then ended 2 to 20 points higher. Volume was 275 contracts. Short covering was a factor.

Live hogs ended mostly lower, down 5 to 10 points on nearby October closing unchanged as the futures discount to cash offered some support. Most of the trade was attributed to evening up ahead of the pig crop report Wednesday. Volume was 3,652.

Washington, D.C. — New York Sugar #11 closed off 1/4 cent at 16.00.

Corn virus invades Magic Valley

KIMBERLY — A serious corn virus disease, believed to be caused by the wheat streak mosaic virus, has been detected in the Magic Valley.

In studies conducted at the University of Idaho Research and Extension Center, Kimberly, it was found that large acreages of sweet corn planted after June 1 in the Bulli area are infected.

According to Bob Forster, plant pathologist, symptoms include parallel streaks on the leaves which are light green in color, barren stalks, or poorly developed ears with little or no seed set.

The virus infects wheat, barley and oats in addition to corn and is transmitted from infected plants by the wheat curl mite. It is not carried in the seed.

Forster said Kenneth Hooper, agricultural superintendent of the Green Giant Co., Bulli, estimated present losses are running at approximately 50 per cent, with the likelihood that losses will be even greater as the season progresses.

Control measures are aimed at destroying the populations of mites which transmit both the wheat streak mosaic virus and the virus source.

These measures are best accomplished by the early plowing of volunteer grain fields in the area, and by planting winter wheat as late as possible in the fall.

At least two weeks between plowing volunteer grain and planting in adjoining fields, and three to four weeks before sowing in the same field should be observed, as this helps to break the disease cycle by killing the mites, he said.

Best control of the disease results when all wheat farmers in the area cooperate by destroying volunteer wheat and old stubble well before planting.

Title hope squashed

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Nicolas Mastroianni of North Haven, Conn., thought he had the winner of Connecticut's first "Great Pumpkin" contest with a 198-pound vegetable.

But after inspecting it, the state Department of Agriculture said the strange-looking entry was a Hungarian mammoth squash.

The eventual winner was Embem Duford of Ashford, Conn. with a legitimate 102-pound pumpkin.

Stock offer out

DENVER (UPI) — Great Western United Corp. announced Monday it has begun a cash tender offer for up to 1.25 million shares of common stock of Sunshine Mining Co. at $14.75 a share net.

The offer is scheduled to expire at 8 a.m. MDT on Sept. 29 unless extended.

Great Western said it has invited Sunshine's directors or representatives to meet with the Great Western Board Monday or Tuesday to discuss the possibility of a "friendly tender offer."

Great Western, which said the offer was not being made to Sunshine's Arkansas shareholders, will pay a solicitation fee of 25 cents a share.

Great Western made its original tender offer for Sunshine Mining common in March, but the Idaho Department of Finance stopped the offer under the Idaho state takeover statute. A district court held the statute unconstitutional.

Weathermen see colder winter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The coming winter will be colder than normal but not as bad as last year's record freeze, government and private weathermen predicted Monday.

Based on "a very preliminary" and "tentative" forecasts, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said the northern quarter of the country will be colder than normal and the southwest mild, while the northwest and southeast quadrants defy prediction at this point.

"It is unlikely this winter will be as severe as last winter," said Donald L. Gilman, chief long range forecast for the National Weather Service, a branch of NOAA. "It could be a colder than normal winter without seeming too bad."

Associate NOAA administrator Edward S. Epstein set the odds of "a similar and equally severe" winter this season at "more than 30 to 1."

Epstein and Gilman, along with private meteorologist and television weatherman Gordon Barnes, testified before the Senate Intergovernmental affairs subcommittee on the subject of long range forecasting.

Stressing his prediction was general and would be supplemented by observations about fall weather patterns, Epstein said:

"The scattered clues we find point toward a national temperature pattern in which the northern quarter of the country and the central Mississippi Valley seem the most likely to experience a colder winter than normal, and the southwestern quarter most likely to enjoy a mild one."

He called the forecast a "tentative picture, which should not be given more than a 55 percent chance of verifying at any individual city."

Gilman said last year was 25 to 40 percent colder than normal in parts of the Ohio Valley and Deep South and 10 to 20 percent colder in the East. Ten percent colder than normal qualified as "a harsh winter," he said.

He said the mid-September prediction of the coming winter "is the kind of thing we don't feel bound by." If NOAA had to make such an early prediction last year at this time, "We would have been quite wrong," he said.

Barnes said he had forecast a 22 percent colder than normal winter last year east of Rockies, which turned out to be a conservative prediction. For this winter his forecast is "15 per cent below normal — not as severe as last winter but colder than normal."

Adverse effects of mining cited

BOISE (UPI) — Mining plans for southeastern Idaho would have an adverse effect on land surface, soils and vegetation, wildlife habitat and water quality, a final environmental impact statement said today.

The statement, filed with the president's Council on Environmental Quality, analyzes the broad cumulative regional impacts of existing, proposed and potential phosphate resource development in a 145,000-acre area in six counties.

It also analyzes the impact of individual mining and processing operations that would be permitted under specific applications now pending before the federal government.

Phosphate mining has been conducted in the study area since the early 1900's and there currently are five operating surface mines there. Seven companies have submitted plans for 16 new mines on the existing federal leases — one an underground mine and the other 15 surface mines.

"The 16 mining plans that were submitted by the companies were filed to insure that if they were implemented in the future they would be covered by this EIS," the final statement said.

"In aggregate, they represent a level of production that far exceeds the forecast demands for phosphate from the western U.S. field."

However, the statement noted that since a draft environmental impact statement was prepared, changing market conditions have resulted in reduction of expansion plans for phosphate mining and processing.

Besides land, wildlife habitat and water quality impact, the statement said the mining plans would lower ambient air quality, reduce livestock forage, increase population and employment in the region and thereby create stress on the socio-economic structure and would reduce recreational resources; change aesthetic aspects and possible destroy unknown archaeological values.

"Much of the area proposed for development is within the Caribou National Forest," the statement said. "Because of the potential impact on management of the Diamond Creek planning unit of the Caribou National Forest, the Forest Service is preparing a separate EIS on Management Alternatives for the Diamond Creek Planning Unit."

Hansen scores bill

Rep. George Hansen said he could not support final passage of the 1977 Farm Bill because it was "farmers getting the scraps."

"I supported several amendments to strengthen farm income which passed during consideration of this legislation that will provide some immediate relief to beleaguered farmers," Hansen said.

"However, the general loss of freedom to farmers and the outstanding provisions for food stamps spending made it impossible to support final passage of such legislation."

He voted against the House-Senate conference report on the bill last Friday.

WITH THEIR backs against the wall, the Boston Red Sox are not about to concede the AL East title to the New York Yankees. Above, Carlton Fisk and third sacker Butch Hobson chase a foul ball into the stands and Fisk emerges with the out. The Red Sox beat the Yanks 6-3 Monday night to stay alive in the race.

Red Sox top Yanks, stay alive

BOSTON (UPI) — Carlton Fisk's three-run, third-inning homer offset a pair of solo shots by New York and Carl Yastrzemski drove in two other runs with a homer and a single Monday to keep the Boston Red Sox in playoff contention with a 6-3 victory over the Yankees.

The win moved Boston to within 3 1/2 games of first place New York in the American League East.

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on Thurman Munson's 17th homer but Boston tied the game in the bottom of the inning when Rick Burleson, rookie Ted Cox and Carl Yastrzemski each singled.

Cox, the hero of Sunday's 10-4 victory over Baltimore and playing only his second major league game, notched his sixth straight hit with a one-out single in the third inning and advanced to second on Jim Rice's single. Fisk then hit his 24th homer onto the left field screen, putting Boston ahead 4-1.

Reggie Cleveland, 10-8 and 8-2 lifetime against the Yankees, surrendered back-to-back doubles to Roy White and Munson in the sixth for New York's second run and Daave Kingman hit his third homer in as many days in the seventh to draw New York within 4-3. It was Kingman's fifth AL homer and 25th overall this season, including 20 with San Diego.

Boston then sealed the win with two eighth inning runs. Yastrzemski hit his 25th homer, a solo shot to center field that gave Boston 200 homers on the year. Fisk followed with a triple to center and scored on George Scott's single to left.

Scott's single knocked out Yankee starter Ed Figueroa, now 15-10. Figueroa bested Cleveland, 2-0, in last Wednesday's crucial New York encounter.

Michigan keeps No. 1 ranking

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Michigan retained its No. 1 ranking and Southern Cal was again rated No. 2 Monday, but there was a great deal of reshuffling in UPI's Top 20 teams, selected by its Board of Coaches.

Michigan received an overwhelming 27 first place votes, compared with five for USC and four for Oklahoma. The Sooners moved from sixth to fourth in this second week of ratings, but the biggest leaps were made by Penn State, which moved from ninth to fifth, and Alabama, which went from 12th to ninth.

Alabama and Notre Dame took the greatest plunges in the ratings, as they were both upset on Saturday. Notre Dame, which was the No. 1 team in the preseason balloting and dropped to fourth last week, fell to 15th, as the result of Saturday's 20-13 loss to Mississippi. Alabama, which was No. 3 last week, dropped to 12th following its 31-21 loss to Nebraska.

Ohio State moved from fifth to third and Colorado and Florida moved into the top 10 — Colorado No. 8 and Florida No. 10. Texas Tech beat out Texas A & M for the sixth spot by just five points.

Several teams which were unranked last week moved into the top 20. They are: Nebraska, 11;

Washington State, 13; Arkansas, 14; and West Virginia, 19.

Here by sections are the coaches who comprise the UPI major college football ratings board:

EAST: Joe Yulica, Boston College; Carmen Cozza, Yale; Frank Barnes, Rutgers; Jackie Sherrill, Pittsburgh; Frank Maloney, Syracuse; Jerry Claiborne, Maryland.

MIDWEST: Jim Young, Purdue; Lee Corso, Indiana; Bill Hess, Ohio U.; Dan Devine, Notre Dame; Woody Hayes, Ohio State; John Pont, Northwestern.

SOUTH: Bobby Bryant, Alabama; Vince Dooley, Georgia; Bill Dooly, North Carolina; Doug Dickey, Florida; Jim Carlen, South Carolina; Johnny Majors, Tennessee.

MIDLANDS: Al Onofre, Missouri; Tom Osborne,

Nebraska; Barry Switzer, Oklahoma; Earle Bruce, Iowa St.; Jim Wright, Wichita St.; Bob Comminges, Iowa.

SOUTHWEST: Bill Yeoman, Houston; Steve Sloan, Texas Tech; Emory Bellard, Texas A&M; Charlie McClendon, LSU; Grant Teaff, Baylor; Hayden Fry, North Texas State.

MOUNTAINS: Frank Kush, Arizona State; Ben Martin, Air Force; Jim Bradley, New Mexico State; Lavel Edwards, Brigham Young; Bill Mallory, Colorado.

PACIFIC: John Robinson, Southern California; Craig Fertig, Oregon St.; Jim Sweeney, Fresno State; Mike White, California; Don James, Washington; Terry Donahue, UCLA.

Jays drop Orioles 3-1 — playoff coffin swings shut

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Rick Cerone drove in two runs with a double and a single and rookie Jerry Garvin spaced nine hits Monday night to help the Toronto Blue Jays deal a crippling blow to Baltimore's American League East pennant chances with a 3-1 victory over the Orioles.

The Orioles, who need to win almost all of their remaining 12 games to keep their longest pennant hopes alive, thus failed to gain on the division-leading New York Yankees who, although losing to Boston, maintained their three-game edge in the loss column. The Orioles and Red Sox are now tied for second place, 3 1/2 games behind the Yankees.

Cerone singled across a run in the second inning and doubled home an insurance tally in the ninth while Garvin, now 10-16, stopped the Orioles on six singles and Rich Dauer's homer. Roy Howell singled across the other Blue Jay run in the third lining after Gary Woods singled and took second on a groundout.

Cerone's two-out single in the second lining scored Doug All, who had forced Doug Rader after Rader singled and stole second base.

Rudy May, 17-13, had a fivegame winning streak snapped as Toronto earned its fifth victory in 12 games with Baltimore. All doubled leading off the ninth and pinch-runner John Scott stole third base before Cerone doubled down the leftfield line to score scout.

Garvin, meanwhile, struck out three and walked one in pitching his 12th complete game this year.

Steelers embarrass 49ers as Harris scores 2 TD's

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Franco Harris ran for 100 yards and two touchdowns Monday night to become the National Football League's 20th leading all-time rusher and lead the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 27-0 victory over the San Francisco 49ers in their nationally televised season opener.

Terry Bradshaw passed 15 yards to John Stallworth for another Steeler TD, while Roy Gerela added field goals of 49 and 47 yards and three extra points.

Harris' rushing performance, in 27 carries, gave him 5,233 career yards, moving him in front of Lenney Moore of Baltimore for 20th place on the all-time rushing list. Harris, a six-year veteran, also moved into a tie with Jim Taylor of Green Bay for fourth place on the all-time list of most 100-yard games in a career, with 26.

Harris' touchdown runs of 14 and seven yards also made him the Steelers' third all-time leading scorer with 282 points on 47 touchdowns.

Gerela tied his own personal Steeler record for his longest field goal with his 49-yard kick in the second quarter. However, Gerela's all-time personal career record is a 50-yarder he kicked as a Houston Oilers, and the Steelers' longest field goal ever was a 51-yarder by Lou Michaels.

Cornelback Jimmy Allen set up two of the Steelers' touchdowns with interceptions. His interception of a Plunkett pass on the Steeler 30 that came 37 seconds into the second quarter resulted in Pittsburgh's first TD on Harris' 14-yard burst off-tackle. Midway through the third quarter Allen picked off another Plunkett pass on the San Francisco 43 and returned it to the 6. Three plays later, Bradshaw, who had been sacked for a 10-yard loss on the second play from scrimmage, hit Stallworth with his 15-yard scoring pass.

Harris' other TD with 4:25 gone in the final quarter capped a seven-play, 62-yard drive. Gerela kicked his 37-yarder for the only scoring in the third quarter.

The Steelers continued their success on Monday night home games, never having lost a game. The Steeler defense also stretched to 30 straight regular season games their record of not giving up a touchdown in the first period.

The Pittsburgh defense kept the 49ers bottled up deep inside their own territory the entire first half as Plunkett was able to take the team no further than their own 36.

In the second half, the 49ers were given an excellent scoring drive when Mel Phillips recovered a fumble by Harris to give him team possession on the Pittsburgh 22. But with a fourth-and-one on the Pittsburgh 21 the snap for a 40-yard field goal attempt was muffed and kicker Tom Wytym failed in his attempt to pass for a first down.

Namath must still prove worth

By DAVE ANDERSON
N.Y. Times Service

ATLANTA — In the quiet of the Los Angeles Rams' locker room Sunday, Joe Namath was unwrapping the elastic bandage from his right knee when he was asked to assess his performance.

"We lost," he quipped back said.

Indeed, the Rams, who with Joe Namath at quarterback represent New York's third National Football League franchise, had lost to the Atlanta Falcons, 17-6, but as the Falcons' new coach, Leamon Bennett, said, "I don't think this game can be blamed on Joe at all. I still think he's going to get it together." If anything, the Rams' loss was a team effort. No big plays by the offense. Nicklaus saves for the defense. Namath plays by the special teams. Against the Falcons, whom they destroyed 59-0 in their next-to-last game last season, the Rams were a team without enthusiasm, without emotion. And they departed without the victory they apparently had assumed. Joe Namath had predicted that the Rams would "blow out" the Falcons in their opener. Joe Namath apparently has misplaced the crystal ball he used before Super Bowl III when he "guaranteed" the New York Jets upset of the Baltimore Colts.

But as a quarterback, Joe Namath appeared as if he has not misplaced the skills that made him famous.

"I thought he was on target," said Joe Kuharich, who coached the Rams for the Eagles, their opponent in Los Angeles next week. "He'll get'em rattling."

Chuck Knox, the Rams' coach, hinted that Joe Namath will continue as the starting quarterback instead of Pat Rader.

"I don't like to give an assessment of how Joe played until I see the films," Chuck Knox said. "But if you can't run the football, it's pretty tough to throw it."

With only 43 yards from Lawrence McCutcheon and 15 from John Cappelletti, the Rams produced only one first down by rushing.

"I thought Joe played well," said Don Klosterman, the Rams' general manager. "He can't play defense, he can't run the ball."

As a passer, Joe Namath showed the praise the Rams need at that position. He completed 15 of 30 passes for 141 yards and the Rams' only touchdown, a lofted pass to Harold Jackson in the end zone on a play that covered 27 yards. He was sacked three times for a total of 33 yards, but on each occasion his blocking had collapsed. He was not intercepted. And four of his incomplete passes were dropped, including one by Harold Jackson in the end zone on a play prior to the touchdown pass that provided the Rams with a 6-0 lead. And one of his completions, to Lawrence McCutcheon in the final quarter was fumbled away at the Falcons' 15-yard line. Had the Rams gone in for a touchdown there, they would have had about 3 minutes to produce a possible winning touchdown.

"But give Alvin credit," Joe Namath said. "They made a lot of things happen."

And the Rams didn't make anything happen. Fred Dryer had a theory as to why.

"Maybe not enough people are giving enough time to their work," the defensive end said. "This is your job, you're supposed to work at it 24 hours a day. I know a lot of people out there who think when they put their headguard on, the other team is going to fall down. Four consecutive division champions, that's the Rams — but no Super Bowls, that's the Rams, too. Some people should stop being so self-conscious and start giving of themselves. If the game was all they had, they'd never lose a game — that's me in mind. But if their environment is boring and bland, you got to make yourself work harder than you want to. Otherwise, your performance is boring and bland."

As it was Sunday, but Fred Dryer was careful to mention that Joe Namath was not one of the team loafers.

"He's serious," Fred Dryer said. "He does everything he can. He wants it more than anybody else here."

Perhaps the 31-year-old quarterback wants it too much. Perhaps he's putting too much pressure on himself.

"The biggest adjustment I've had to make is regaining my confidence," Joe Namath had said before the opener. "One of my strong points always was my confidence and now I've got to get it back. Chuck has given me the vote of confidence by starting me, knowing I'll break out and do it, but I've got to do it."

When the Jets won Super Bowl III, he was an underdog, a boastful underdog, but still an underdog. But with the Rams, he is supposed to be the savior of their Super Bowl frustrations.

"I've never been in this situation," Joe Namath said. "With the Jets, I was a high-priced rookie but I still was a rookie. The fans and the coaches usually are patient with a rookie quarterback but this is different. This is more of a strain than anything I've ever encountered. I've got so much desire, so much price."

And so much concern over proving that he is still Joe Namath, that he's still a formidable quarterback at age 31.

"Some people don't think I can play anymore, but they're wrong. And I'm going to prove them wrong."

Joe Namath did not prove him wrong today, at least not completely, but he has 13 more games. And perhaps three in the playoffs.

Hoople helps out needy gamblers

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE (Pierces Predictor)

Edgud! Things must have been economically very difficult around the Meyerhoefer residence these past few weeks.

It is the only explanation one can logically use after learning that son Chris Meyerhoefer and father Jerry Meyerhoefer have bamboozled Magic Valley with a one-two blitz in my weekly predicting contest.

Young Meyerhoefer, whose expertise should lie more in the realm of basketball, negotiated that rugged, upset-plagued slate of 20 games with only four mistakes. He is the unchallenged winner with that number and as such will receive the usual weekly stipend of $10.

Father Jerry Meyerhoefer had to be a little sharper with his point predictions since he, like three others, missed five. It was the swing of points on the Georgia-Clemson game that moved him into second place and doomed Tom Quigley of Buhl to third. Still, those two will receive $5 and $2.50, respectively.

Our honorable mention for the week are headed by Jean Bell of Rupert, followed by Randy Clark of Castleford, Lavear Thormock Jr., Twin Falls; Manuel A. Dias, Wendell; Stanley Bertanoff, Wendell; Walt Nelson Jr., Gosport; and Randy McCona, Dietrich.

The 10 listed also become eligible for the bowl contest which will conclude the season.

Now let us move on to this week's selections (Ed's note: And not reflect on the won-lost percentage of last week, eh, Major!) The highlight, of course, will find Oklahoma visiting my former protégé Woody Hayes and his Ohio State Buckeyes. Surely, Hayes learned enough at my knee to win a game of this magnitude.

Notre Dame always has trouble with Purdue, and the Irish will be in the home of the Bolleymakers which makes the chances of a second straight loss very real for the Irish. But I stick with Notre Dame by a thin field goal.

On the Magic Valley scene we find Buhl at Jerome, a traditional blood-letting made even more fun this time around by the fact both are undefeated. I anticipate a defensive duel.

Burley also faces a formidable foe in Mountain Home but I give the edge to Coach Larry Finley and his Bolseats.

Buckeyes healthy for Sooners

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes said Monday everybody should be available when the third ranked Buckeyes host No. 4 Oklahoma in Saturday's regionally televised game.

Hayes told his weekly press luncheon that the Buckeyes came through last Saturday's 38-7 trouncing of Minnesota with only a couple of "minor" hurts and that tailbacks Jeff Logan and Riley Johnson should be able to play against the Sooners.

"Logan and Johnson should be back," said Hayes. "but they won't get to practice." Both were hurt in the season's opener against Miami — Logan suffering an ankle injury, and Johnson a knee — and Hayes switched safety Ray Griffin to tailback against Minnesota. He gained 58 yards in 14 carries.

Hayes said Griffin's role in Saturday's first meeting between the two college football giants would depend on the availability of Johnson and Logan.

Meanwhile, Hayes said the Buckeyes would go about preparing for the Sooners in routine fashion — except "to be fair to everybody, we're going to close practices."

Usually, Hayes reserves that move for the final week or two of the season, just prior to the season-ending war with Michigan.

"Saturday's game should be an enormously great contest," Hayes said of the Oklahoma invasion. "It should be a close one. I don't think either team has been tested yet."

Besides Ohio State's win over Minnesota, the Buckeyes own a 10-0 decision over Miami (Fla.) while Oklahoma has a shaky 25-3 win over Vanderbilt and rolled to a 62-24 victory over Utah last Saturday.

Hayes was quite pleased with his team's offensive showing against Minnesota which saw the Buckeyes get 385 yards on the ground and another 133 through the air.

"We ran the ball quite well," said Hayes, "and our passing was considerably better than usual."

The defense was superb for the second straight week, surrendering only 135 total yards to the Gophers and not allowing them any closer than the Buckeye 44 yard line except for a 102-yard kickoff return by Bobby Weber.

Junior linebacker Tom Cousineau was selected the top defensive player for the Minnesota contest with tackle Chris Ward and quarterback Rod Gerald got the offensive linemen and back honors.

"We felt we played quite well on offense," said defensive coordinator George Hill, "but we're not real sure how strong Minnesota was. Our only disappointment was the kickoff return. On that, we made a few mistakes which we will try to correct."

Rangers interested in Hisle

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas Rangers General Manager Danny O'Brien said Monday his club would be interested in signing soon-to-be free agent Larry Hisle of Minnesota.

"It wouldn't surprise me one bit if he were out of the Rangers' outfield" in 1978, O'Brien said.

"Hisle is someone we would like to have. I probably should be billing my tongue for fear someone might think I was talking about money," O'Brien said with a smile. "We just say 'link the presses.'"

Texas dipped into the free agent market last year to sign shortstop Bert Campaneris and pitcher Doyle Alexander.

Plimpton takes up hockey

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI) — The Boston Bruins opened training camp Monday with 24 players and author-goalie George Plimpton.

Plimpton, who has worked out with several professional teams in other sports and then written about his experiences, was named Friday's starter in the Montreal-Canadians pre-season exhibition game with the Bruins.

When you have three super goaltenders, I feel like it's pretty tough to carry three all year," agreed Coach Don Cherry Monday. "But I think we're going to start with three and go from there."

Whatever goaltenders are stopping the puck in the exhibition games, they're the ones that play. It's that simple.

Tarkanian fights UNLV ouster

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — District Judge James Brennan will conduct a non-jury trial next week to determine whether Jerry Tarkanian remains as the University of Nevada-Las Vegas basketball coach.

Tarkanian was told early this month by UNLV President Donald Baepfer he would be severed from the UNLV athletic program in compliance with demands from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Tarkanian filed a complaint Sept. 8 charging his constitutional rights were violated. The court granted a temporary restraining order to block the university's action against him.

Rep. James Santini, D-Nev., has received assurances from the powerful House oversight subcommittee that it will conduct a congressional investigation of the NCAA if it has jurisdiction.

Sage grouse same as last year

MAGIC VALLEY — Sage grouse hunters experienced about the same amount of success over the opening weekend as they did on last year's opener, Fish and Game Department check station statistics show.

F & G information officer Stu Murrell said F & G personnel checked 2,257 hunters over the weekend, and those hunters bagged 1,478 sage grouse in 10,091 hours of hunting.

That comes out to .65 birds per hunter and 6.8 hours per bird, compared to last year's totals of 6.4 hours per bird and 6.7 birds per hunter.

Murrell said he thought that the general feeling among hunters was one of disappointment that they didn't flush more birds, but he added most hunters said they were prepared for the worst by earlier F & G predictions.

Murrell added that a high number of adult birds were counted among the harvest, confirming F & G fears that this spring's hatch was a poor one due to the drought.

But the wet weather this fall helped scatter the birds, Murrell said, and not enough birds were taken to put too big a dent in the base population.

Thus, no emergency closures were contemplated by the F & G.

The check stations throughout Region 4 also turned up a wide variety of other game bagged by local hunters, including 30 blue grouse, one ruffed grouse, 39 chukkas, 56 huns, 15 doves, three quail, 63 cottontails, one snowshoe hare, seven bear, six elk, three deer, one badger, two coyotes, 10 black-tailed jackrabbits and three white-tailed jackrabbits.

Coach calls new attitude key to Wood River football success

By JEFF SHER
Times-News Writer

HALLLEY — Football is no longer uncool at Wood River High School.

Even hard-core skiers have turned out for the football team this year, and, as a result, despite the injury of their top player, the Wolverines have won two out of their first three games.

After losing their opener to American Falls 22-13, the Wolverines have knocked off Kuna 13-12 and Fruitland 11-12.

Take Pat Savaria, an excellent skier and a senior, who never played football before this year. In his first start last week against Fruitland at safety, Savaria had seven tackles, an interception and a fumble recovery.

And Jeff Jones, a basketball player, only last year, caught a 48-yard touchdown pass against Fruitland.

Then there's senior Jeff Farrow, who opened the season starting at cornerback. When star running back Steve Morey hurt his knee and was lost for the year, Farrow stepped into Morey's shoes and played a creditable game on offense against Fruitland, while still holding down his defensive chores.

New head coach John Hopkins was warned when he came to Wood River that he'd be lucky to have enough kids out for the team to scrimmage (22). But the Wolverines are suiting up 28 players for each varsity game and 24 for the sophomore team.

How did an enthusiastic young team rise out of the ashes of a complete disaster?

Hopkins says the kids "just needed to be shown that football was fun and not just a drudge, that you just don't go out and beat your head against a cement wall."

Hopkins gives much of the credit to assistant coach John Cole, who suffered through last year's non-season with the kids who wanted to play football but couldn't and kept their enthusiasm for the game alive.

Hopkins says the entire football staff is young, around 30, loves the game of football, and is able to transmit that attitude to the players.

Hopkins gives much of the credit for the team's success to a nucleus of junior players from last year's 5-1 JV team, plus four "hard-core" senior football players.

The line is all juniors, and the stalwarts are Darrell Cain, right offensive tackle; Steve Burke, left offensive tackle; and Richard Lee, center. Cain, Burke and Lee also rotate at the defensive tackles, teaming with nose guard junior Mitch Head to anchor the defense.

The Wolverines have a bye next week, then face Mountain Home, an A-1 team the following week.

Hopkins says the staff will be stressing pass defense to prepare for the air-oriented Tigers.

The offense is also going through a transition period. The Wolverine attack was built around the 5'11", 180-pound Morey. "When we had Morey back there, we ran over people. Now without Steve we have one power and one finesse back," Hopkins explained.

He said the staff is changing blocking assignments and plans to use more misdirection plays to utilize the talent they have to the maximum.

Falash, Bruins keep old habits

In winning the 3,000 meter

(just under two miles), Falash led the Bruin girls to victory in the meet. Twin Falls won with a total of 20 points. Jerome finished second with 64, and Wood River was third with 133.

Falash had plenty of help from her teammates in creating the Bruins' wide victory margin. Bruins Cindy Crow and Tammy Asler were fourth and fifth respectively, behind second-place finisher Corrie Plinder, Idaho Falls, and Melissa Hearst, Pocatello.

In boys' competition, Highland demonstrated good depth to win the team title, but Magic Valley runners took the top four spots.

Highland finished with 70 points to 82 for Jerome, 123 for Minico, 136 for Wood River. Twin Falls finished seventh with 206.

Mike Thompson, Jerome, won the 5,000-meter ramble, followed by Bryant Ochser, Filer; James Morrison, Minico; Jim Ashton, Wood River; J.C. Stroschein, Highland; and Bob Shay, Wood River.

Fifteen full teams and 5-6 partial teams from across the Magic Valley and as far away as Idaho Falls participated in the meet.

Please fish Little Camas

MAGIC VALLEY — The Fish and Game Department would like as many fishermen as possible to fish Little Camas Reservoir this week, because they plan to poison the reservoir next week.

Little Camas is currently down to seven acres in size.

and, according to F & G information officer Stu Murrell, the F & G feels that the reservoir is so low that it will probably winterkill this year. So the F & G plans to make sure that the suckers and shiners that inhabit the lake along with the trout are eradicated.

The F & G plans to use rotenone as the poisoning agent.

There is no limit on the number of fish that can be taken from Little Camas, but only conventional methods can be used.

Permanent blinds out?

BOISE (UPI) — Hunters may no longer be allowed to build permanent duck blinds on islands in the Snake River in southwest Idaho, if three state and federal wildlife agencies have their way.

The three agencies — the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Idaho Department of Fish and Game and Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife are considering a ban on permanent duck blinds on the federal and state islands of the Snake River in southwest Idaho.

The agencies are looking for public comment on their plans to make hunting on the islands strictly a first-come, first-served sport, according to an announcement from the Idaho Department.

The agencies are considering a rule that prevents permanent blinds and proprietary claims to those blinds by hunters. Under the proposed rules, a hunter could use only native materials, immediate to the blind area in building a blind.

In recent years, the wildlife agencies report that some hunters are building large, permanent blinds in favored hunting spots, a practice the agencies say is unfair because it tends to reserve these spots for the blind builders and excludes other hunters.

If the new regulation gains the support of waterfowl hunters and other sportsmen over the coming year, the Idaho wildlife agency says it likes the idea well enough that it may recommend the same rule for public land along the Boise and Payette rivers.

Should the new regulation gain public favor, it would become part of the 1978-1979 waterfowl season regulations of the three agencies.

F&G booklets will cost

BOISE (UPI) — Four publications of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game will no longer be free, the department announced.

Two of the department's most popular publications, Idaho Lakes and Reservoirs and Mountain Lakes of Idaho, will be sold for one dollar each. A booklet called Know Your Fish will sell for 75 cents, and Common Idaho Fishes will sell for 50 cents.

The department said that after the present supply of Mountain Lakes of Idaho is exhausted, the booklet will not be reprinted.

In the department's policy plans for the coming 15 years is a policy statement that there is no longer a need to "draw hunters or fishermen to certain areas of the state or advertise what could be considered "hot spots."

Other big winners this past weekend included Jeff Knowles of Bend, Ore., who picked up $2,483 in calf roping and steer wrestling at Pendleton and California's Bob McCalland and Stan Melshaw, who won $1,135 each in team roping.

Bronc rider's big weekend

DENVER (UPI) — Joe Alexander, a 34-year-old Wyoming cowboy who has dominated bareback riding for the past half dozen years, earned more than $400 in his specialty this past weekend at the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association said Monday.

Alexander won both go-rounds and the average in the contest at Pendleton, Ore., for $2,213 and collected $786 for second place in the bareback riding at the San Jose, Calif., rodeo.

The Cora, Wyo., cowboy has won first at nearly every major rodeo in the country at one time or another and leads the standings with $38,377 this year.

Browns let punter go

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns said they gave punter-place kicker Tom Skladany's agent, Howard Slusher, permission Monday to negotiate for his client with any other American Football Conference team including those in Cleveland's division.

Skladany, the Browns' second draft choice from Ohio State, never agreed to terms with Cleveland and has been sitting out the season.

"We gave Slusher permission to deal because we don't want to hurt the kid's career," a Browns spokesman said. "If he can't work out something with us perhaps he can work out something with someone else."

"Of course, we would have to be compensated with talent or a draft choice."

Skladany's importance diminished greatly as the exhibition season wore on because of Don Cockroft's place-kicking success and rookie Greg Coleman's emergence as a punter.

DEAR ABBY: For three years, I've been involved in a very painful love triangle. The man I love says he loves both me and the other woman.

I know the other woman. We finally got together and compared notes and found out that he had been lying to both of us!

Here's the unbelievable part: Knowing that he's a no-good liar who has been using both of us, I just can't say goodbye to him and make it stick. The other woman feels the same way about him. He has us under some kind of spell.

Abby, why would a woman who knows a man is no good and will only hurt her keep going back for more? What kind of fool am I?

Sign me _____ WEAK

DEAR WEAK: You obviously have a neurotic need to punish yourself. (You either enjoy pain in a perverse sort of way, or you think you deserve it.) The fact that you've written to me shows that you're tired of leading with your chin. Get into the spy and find out why you set yourself up repeatedly for that kind of punishment. And when you do, you'll know what kind of fool you were.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law keeps bringing her friends over for a guided tour of her son's new house. I wouldn't mind so much, but she never gives me any warning, and it's embarrassing when I haven't had time to tidy up the place.

And while I'm complaining about my mother-in-law, she always refers to our children as "my son's children." And she calls this house, "my son's house." Everything is her son's... as though he had no wife.

Even though I'm sure this won't make your column, it's such a relief to get it off my chest.

Thanks, Abby. I had to tell somebody. I'd never complain to my husband because he's a sweet guy who's had to put up with his mother a lot longer than I have.

OFF MY CHEST IN CHELSEA

DEAR OFF: You're wise to get it off your chest without putting it on your husband's shoulders. My mail tells me that few things irritate husbands more than a wife who complains about his mother.

DEAR ABBY: May I say a word for the medical secretaries who are ready to scream? Crowded waiting rooms are no fun for anybody, especially if you're sick and can't find a place to sit.

Waiting rooms are always crowded because people who have appointments insist on bringing their children for the "ride," or their friends, cousins—you name it—for "company."

Children get restless and cranky. They cry and run all over the office. Then when Mommy sees the doctor the kids are left unattended, and I have to watch them and pick up the mess when they leave. Sometimes Daddy or Grandma comes along to keep an eye on the children, but if they can watch them here, why not at home?

Please, Abby, remind people that there is just so much space in a doctor's (or dentist's) office, and if patients must have company, to limit it to just one person.

your health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
I have become quite concerned about the new things I have been hearing about eggs and how they contribute to cholesterol in the blood stream.

I am largely responsible for cooking for my family. I want to prevent any possible heart trouble for as long as possible. I would like to know how many eggs I can safely serve each day or week? I mean eggs included in other foods such as custards, puddings, cookies, cakes and what have you.

I understand that heart attacks do give warnings, sometimes several hours before they strike. I hear that if you have had any chest pain or pain in the left shoulder or left side of the neck followed by excessive tiredness you should get to a doctor as fast as you can.

I appreciate full information on these topics. I do not think we are having any trouble in this area, but I want to be prepared as much as possible since we do not have a doctor in this city.

Dear Reader—
The American Heart Assn. recommends that the total consumption of egg yolks should not exceed three yolks a week including all of those used in cooking of any sort.

The dietary program you need to follow is much more complicated than that though. If you don't restrict your calories from any source to the point of preventing or eliminating obesity, your dietary program may not be very helpful.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis, which will give you the general guidelines you need. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019. You will need to restrict your total fat consumption and particularly your saturated fat intake.

Almost all fat in foods is made up of saturated fat and unsaturated fat. There are two types of unsaturated fat, monounsaturated-fat and polyunsaturated fat. Even beef fat contains all three. The important principle is to limit the total fat consumption and choose foods that have little saturated fat and more polyunsaturated fat in them.

From this point of view you should use corn oil or safflower oil for cooking but not coconut oil. Corn oil contains only about 10 per cent saturated fat. About 80 per cent of coconut oil and palm oil is saturated fat. About a third of the fat in fish is polyunsaturated but only about two per cent of the fat in beef is polyunsaturated.

Monounsaturated fats are not harmful as saturated fats may be other than adding to the total fat consumption which you should limit.

No, it is not true that heart attacks always give you a warning. Too often the first symptom is the sudden attack and is about half of these victims die before they get to the hospital. This is why the preventive program is so important. When the first symptom is fatal you need to do something before the first symptom occurs.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

LEFTOVER HAM BECOMES A FAVORED ENTREE when manipulated into a patty that changes appearance

Good menu, budget and lots of ESP

Cooks have little need for opinion surveys to determine how they measure up. What's left on the plate after each meal indicates how their efforts were received.

If you're ringing up clean plates meal after meal, you don't need an expert to tell you you're doing something right. But if some meals bring on the blahs or if food costs get out of hand, that's a different set of circumstances.

Today it takes extra sensory perception to synchronize food costs, menu planning and family acceptance. And if food preparation skills are limited much advice about reducing food costs doesn't apply. For instance, buying a ham or a turkey may appear to save money and take care of the entree for a certain number of meals. But if the use-of-leftovers-becomes monotonous, waste often results. Varying subsequent uses of the leftovers and offering a harmonious menu are very important.

Weekly specials at supermarkets are often useful for perking up low cost menus. Fresh apples are plentiful now and savvy cooks use them to extend more costly foods. Flavor is friendly with meats, vegetables and other fruits. While personal taste preference can't go wrong whatever the variety choice, mildly tart varieties such as McIntosh, Stayman, Rome and Jonathan are excellent with meats and vegetables. Golden Delicious, Cortland and Red Delicious make fine salads and desserts. Apple products make appropriate garnishes and can be served directly from the can or jar.

Ham is a leftover that most cooks find many uses for. It can be sliced or ground for sandwiches, silvered for salads, cubed for casseroles and soups or minced finely for garnishing omelets and vegetables. The accompanying picture illustrates a ham patty made by grilling the ham, adding chunks of fresh apple, bread crumbs and onion so texture and appearance are completely changed.

Topped with a spiced apple ring and a thin glaze of pineapple preserves it becomes a respectable entree. Baked spiced potatoes, steamed broccoli, fresh spinach salad with onion rings and chilled apple juice complete a harmonious autumn menu.

HAM PATTIES WITH SPICED APPLE RINGS

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 onion, chopped
4 cups ground, cooked, smoked ham (about 2 pounds)

1 cup chopped peeled and cored apples
2 cups soft bread crumbs (about 4 slices bread)

2 eggs, well beaten
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 jar spiced apple rings (1 pound 4 ounces)

2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1/3 cup pineapple preserves
In a small skillet heat butter and saute onion for 5 minutes or until lightly browned. Stir mixture into ham. Add apples, bread crumbs, eggs, and mustard. Mix well and shape mixture into 6 large patties. Place patties side by side on a heavily greased shallow baking pan. Bake in a preheated, moderate oven 375 degrees for 15 minutes.

Remove from oven and top patties with spiced apple rings. Mix melted butter and preserves. Spoon mixture over apple slices. Replace in oven and bake for another 15 minutes or until apple is glazed. Serve hot with a green vegetable and baked sweet potatoes.

Serves six.

Favorite fall treat

The favorite foods for fall are a combination of the best foods in season and what your taste buds crave. Even though modern food processing and worldwide distribution have given the consumer the option of eating out of season, the best food buys are consistently seasonal!

At this time of year, you'll find the best quality in items such as honey, apples, fowl, all manner of winter squash, cabbages, mushrooms, game birds and the jewel-like bay scallop. The list of foods at their seasonal peaks on and on, and the opportunities for fall entertaining are just as numerous. From tallgate picnics to neighborhood brunches after hours of sweeping leaves in the crisp out-of-doors.

Fall foods demand a hearty hand with beverages served warm and spirited help provide the stamina for those crisp, cool autumn days. Cook up a large batch of applesauce and save some to be combined with honey, raisins, seasonings, butter and rum for a fresh "Honey Applesauce Raisin Cake".

5 ml baking soda (1 teaspoon)
5 ml cinnamon (1 teaspoon)
1 ml ground cloves (¼ teaspoon)

75 ml dark rum (¼ cup)
250 ml raisins (1 cup)
250 ml chopped walnuts (1 cup)
30 ml flour (2 tablespoons)

Wisconsin woman judge takes oath

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Feminist Morla Krueger donned a minister's robe and was sworn in as Dane County's first woman judge Monday, replacing a judge who lost his job for suggesting rape might be a normal reaction to a permissive society.

"This feels very good. If you would like to know," said Ms. Krueger as she sat beside Circuit Judge Richard W. Bardwell, who had administered the oath in a courtroom crowded with friends and dignitaries.

Ms. Krueger defeated Judge Archie Simonson in an unprecedented recall election Sept. 7. He was ousted for suggesting that rape might be a normal reaction to women's dress and sexual permissiveness. His statements were made in sentencing a 15-year-old boy involved in a rape at a west side high school.

With her husband, Edward, and mother, Mrs. Robert Mackert of Manitowish, present, Ms. Krueger said she hardly had time to reflect on what had taken place Sept. 7.

"But what I see most clearly is the hundreds of people who worked so hard to make this day a reality," she said. She said she hoped she could live up to the "most important responsibility" of sitting in judgment of others.

Ms. Krueger received a standing ovation, and Bardwell told the crowd that he had observed many investitures in his 21 years on the bench.

"But," he said, "never have I seen a turnout such as this."

Ms. Krueger said last week her biggest problem since the election was finding a robe for the ceremonies. She was thinking of renting a graduation gown.

Following the ceremonies, she said she got a robe from a friend.

"A friend of mine loaned it to me," she said after the ceremonies. "It's a minister's robe."

Bonnie Goodman, right, makes presentation.

Victim's equipment donated

TWIN FALLS — Donation of a $600 respirator and oxygen tank for use under the direction of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation in Twin Falls was made during the past week by members of the family of the late Wayland Custer.

Mrs. Bonnie Goodman, daughter of Custer, said she and her brothers and sisters, Lt. Col. Phillip E. Custer, Panama Canal Zone; Donna Snider and Luanna Custer, Boise, agreed to donate the equipment which had been used to extend the life of their father by a number of years.

Mr. Custer died recently of emphysema and heart disease.

The equipment which he used in the later years of his life to make breathing easier will now be available to children or adults in need of such assistance, including the small victims of cystic fibrosis, a lung disease which greatly shortens the life span of children born with the condition.

Mrs. Vida Harrison, chairman of the local chapter of the foundation, said it will be available at no cost to victims. It will be kept at the hospital for their use on request.

Gerber asks for aces

aces. He is willing to gamble on six if South holds just three and will sign off at four notrump, if South only holds two of those desirable cards. It is possible, but most improbable, for South to have a two notrump opener with only two aces.

South shows all four aces and North bids the seven-crown notrump.

Note that if South showed three aces North would bid six clubs. South might have a high suit. If South showed two aces North would sign off at four notrump which would be safe because South would need all missing king-queens.

Ask the Jacobys

For the benefit of those readers, we wish to report that Easley is not only alive, but he should be with us for a long time.

The Gerber convention provides that a four club bid asks for aces. It has never been successful in competition, but every expert uses the four-club bid under certain circumstances to take the place of Blackwood.

The first time is in response to a notrump opening. Today's North hand is a good example.

South opens two notrump. North can count 13 easy tricks if his partner holds all four

Item No. 863A in our Love and War man's file on matrimonial happiness reads: "If the husband is more than 10 years older than the wife, odds run four to one against wedded bliss. If the wife is more than five years older than the husband, odds run nine to one against a successful marriage. But if the ages of the husband and wife are within four years of each other, it makes little difference who's older."

BERLIN

Q. "Who made the World War II decision to stop the Allied forces at the Elbe River in Germany and let Josef Stalin's Soviet troops take Berlin?"

A. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Declassified documents show he unwittingly gave Stalin the go-ahead in a strategic message. Historians now know it wasn't a political decision from Washington, D. C., as many once believed.

Q. "What's the difference between 'thoroughbred,' 'purebred' and 'purblood'?"

A. Thoroughbred horses, purebred dogs and pureblood cows, that's the way the words are used, according to our Language man. Otherwise, they all mean the same: in each case, bred from parents of the same recognized breed.

KICK THE BUCKET

More than one curious customer has asked why we came to use "kick the bucket" as a synonym for dying. Numerous suicides once stood on buckets to get the necessary altitude to hang themselves. After adjusting the nooses and tightening the ropes over tree limbs, rafters or whatever, they kicked those buckets out of the way.

The master bathroom on the yacht of the late Aristotle Onassis had a one-way mirror for its door so Mr.-Onassis from the inside could see everything in the master bedroom. Why he installed such a gimmick was never explained.

A survey of 11,000 women indicates one out of every seven now thinks it's perfectly all right to live with her preferred man without that personal permit known as the marriage license.
