LAPWAI (UPI) — "From where I stand, I will fight no more forever."

Immortal words end long trek

It was exactly 100 years ago that Chief Joseph, the legendary leader of the Nez Perce tribe, uttered those words to a U.S. Army general and ended his war with the United States.

It also marked the end of what has gone down in Northwest history as one of the most heroic efforts of either white man or Indian — Joseph's attempt to lead his tribe on a 1,000-mile trek across Idaho and Montana to escape pursuing federal troops.

The Nez Perce Tribe, now firmly established at Lapwai in north central Idaho, has spent the last three months commemorating the 100th anniversary of the battle at the Chief Joseph Battlefield near Fort Belknap, Mont.

Among the Lapwai contingent was Richard Hoffmann, chairman of the Nez Perce Tribe, for 16 years until his retirement last year. He still serves on the tribal executive committee.

"It was a sad occasion for us, and there's sort of a bitter taste yet," Hoffmann told UPI.

"It kind of boils me to think about it. Why did they even have to compel our people to go that far? Why did they want to get Joseph? Why couldn't they just let them go?"

But Hoffmann concedes that it was "something that would have had to happen anyway."

The Nez Perce War was a fight for land. At stake was the tribe's ancestral lands, what is now the Wallawalla Valley of Oregon.

Historical accounts indicate that white settlers in the valley, offended that the Nez Perce had ceded all their lands in the Treaty of 1863, but an army officer, Maj. H. Clay Wood, went on record at the time supporting the Nez Perce, saying the tribe could not be bound to the Treaty of 1863 since the government had violated earlier treaty obligations.

Pressure to move the Nez Perce from the valley was too great, however, and in 1877, the government sent Gen. Oliver Howard, known in the Nez Perce as the "one-armed soldier chief," to escort the tribe to what is now the Nez Perce Reservation at Lapwai. The Nez Perce were given only 30 days to make the move.

Joseph, who had constantly tried to avoid war, began to lead his people to Lapwai, but tribal history tells of the loss of many of the tribe's cattle in crossing the turbulent Snake River, and the later attack by outnumbered warriors that left 11 settlers dead.

In June of 1877, the Nez Perce clashed with federal troops at White Bird Canyon, about 50 miles south of Lapwai, and defeated the soldiers in battle.

With reinforcements of soldiers on the way, Joseph and the entire tribe of 800 set out to reach Canada and safety more than 1,000 miles away to the northeast.

As the Nez Perce engaged in separate skirmishes, and in nearly every instance, either defeated them or fought them to a standstill.

But federal troops finally caught up with the Nez Perce only 30 miles from the Canadian border and waged a five-day battle.

Joseph, who later was to say he could not bear to see his people suffer any longer, rode into Howard's camp on Oct. 5, 1877, and offered his rifle in surrender. It was then that Joseph gave his famous speech.

While Joseph said they would be allowed to return to Lapwai, the Nez Perce were first moved to North Dakota, then Kansas.

It was not until 1883 that Joseph and the 267 surviving Nez Perce were finally allowed to return to what would be their home from that time forward.

today New Western oil crisis looms

Luck of draw fails

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The luck of the phone book draw was not with Edward Torres, 18. Police said Torres called a phone number, reached Gayle Murrell, and made obscene suggestions. Miss Murrell, unlike most recipients of such phone calls, was interested. She agreed to meet Torres on an east side street corner. Torres, she said, offered her money for sex, and gave her his driver's license to hold for security while he went to get the cash. When Torres returned, she had a surprise for him. Police Officer Gayle Murrell arrested him on charges of making an obscene phone call, indecent exposure, soliciting prostitution and lewd conduct.

PARIS (UPI) — Energy ministers of 19 Western industrial countries met today to seek how to cut oil imports and head off a widely predicted new energy crisis.

With oil producers currently talking about raising prices again, U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told the first session of a two-day meeting of the International Energy Agency that the United States is making progress on reducing its own huge imports.

On Monday Ali M. Jaidah, secretary general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, told a news conference in Bordeaux, France, that a price rise is "unavoidable" and will be discussed at the next OPEC meeting Dec. 20 in Caracas, Venezuela.

Schlesinger raised eyebrows among his fellow delegates, however, when he pledged the Carter Administration to carry out its energy plan for cutting consumption, since that plan is running into heavy weather in the U.S. Senate.

"We are meeting here to discuss what we consider to be a serious problem," Schlesinger told reporters. "We feel... that each nation will have to make its own contribution."

"We believe the United States has made considerable progress in this field. We hope that the others also will make a meaningful contribution," Schlesinger said.

The Energy Agency was set up in 1974 at Washington's request to coordinate Western energy policies at the height of the oil embargo by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Alastair Gillespie, Canadian energy minister, said the IEA should cut consumption to 26 million barrels of oil a day by 1985. He said that unless this effort is made, present consumption of 31 million barrels a day will soar to over 50 million barrels a day by 1985.

The IEA says world oil production capacity in 1985 will be no more than 42 million barrels a day and actual production may be far less.

Gillespie, current chairman of the IEA cabinet-level governing board, said, "We must not allow any temporary easing of crude oil supplies due to increasing production from the North Sea, Alaska and a limited number of other areas such as Mexico to lull us into a false sense of security.

"These new reserves add only a few years to the world supply at current levels of oil consumption," Gillespie said.

He added that even the 26 million barrels a day collective consumption target may still be too high to cope with energy shortages.

If we look beyond 1985 just another five years to 1990 or less than 15 years from today, western world requirements may exceed available supply by at least 6 million barrels a day," the Canadian energy minister warned.

Guido Brummer, European Community energy commissioner, urged the United States to insure it will whittle down its oil imports, which he said are now equal to those of the whole nine-nation European Community.

Tax cut proposed by GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican leaders today challenged President Carter to join their push for a 30 per cent income tax cut which they said would pump $14.4 billion into the economy and open 1.2 million jobs in the first year alone.

House and Senate GOP leaders John Rhodes and Howard Baker told a news conference Carter should "join us now in calling for a tax cut instead of waiting for an election year." Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William Roth, R-De., authors of the measure said it was prepared after the estimated 30 per cent tax cut President John Kennedy got through Congress in 1963.

The bill would cut individual and business taxes an average of 10 per cent a year for three years, effective with the 1977 income year. Roth said the impact for a family of four with an income of $8,000 would be a 90 per cent cut and save the family $100 in taxes.

The average, across the board individual cut, would be about 30 per cent over the three years with the heaviest impact on low income. Additionally, according to Kemp, it would cut the corporate tax rate from 48 per cent to 45 per cent over three years and cut the highest individual rate from 70 per cent to 50 per cent and the lowest rate from 14 to 8 per cent.

Kemp said Treasury Department estimates of revenue loss to the government from the overall cut would be $10 billion in 1978, $22.3 billion in 1979 and $36 billion in 1980.

Dole seeks amended treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert Dole argued today the Panama Canal treaties are "grossly unacceptable" in vital areas and must be renegotiated to clarify and guarantee American rights already being disputed by Panama.

In testimony prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's hearings on the controversial treaties, the Kansas Republican said: "We should amend if necessary and register reservations if necessary, and at that point the ball is in Panama's court. If they refuse to reconsider these points, then the blame is theirs, not ours. But I suspect that they will be ready to renegotiate rather than lose these treaties which give them so much."

Dole, the first of several senators expected to offer amendments to the treaties, released a State Department cable Tuesday which he said showed "beyond a doubt" Panama rejects the U.S. claim of a permanent right to intervene to protect the canal's neutrality.

The cable, sent last Thursday by the U.S. embassy in Panama to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, quoted Panama negotiator Carlos Lopez Guevara as saying: "Panama cannot agree to the right of the U.S. to intervene. Intervention is simply forbidden by international law."

Lopez was also quoted as rejecting the U.S. interpretation that the "expeditious passage" clause for U.S. warships meant "preferential" treatment.

The cable said Lopez Guevara made the remarks to the embassy's political counselor after last week's Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings at which Vance and U.S. treaty negotiators Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz testified on their reading of the pacts.

"This document," Dole said, "shows beyond a doubt the vast differences in interpretation of the most important parts of these treaties — that portion which bears directly on our vital national defense interests."

The second obligates governments to guarantee their peoples rights along the lines of the U.S. Bill of Rights — to life, liberty, thought, religion, freedom of movement and residence, legal trials and peaceful assembly.

One of the covenants, said Carter, "concerns what governments must not do," and the other deals with "what governments must do for their people."

Carter added it would not be easy and offered the example of the United States itself.

Idaho lad makes bid

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Martin Taylor, 18, tackle on the Moscow High School football team, has decided to run for mayor against businessman W. Don Mackin, 39.

Taylor who reached the eligible voting age of 18, candidate for Monday's election, became interested in the mayor's office while fulfilling an assignment for his government class.

"He believes more citizens should become involved in local decisions and, if elected, says he would try to get more people registered to vote in this farming community which also is the home town for the University of Idaho."

Both Taylor and Mackin, owner of the local cable television franchise, are seeking the vacant seat of Mayor Paul Mann, who announced he would not seek reelection.

Carter signs UN rights guarantees

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — President Carter today signed a pair of U.N. covenants aimed at guaranteeing human rights the world over and called it "a tangible step toward peace among nations" and the protection of human rights among nations.

In a 15-minute ceremony in the U.N. Economic and Social Council chamber, Carter and U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young inked the two documents with black and gold pens. The President said he would seek their ratification by Congress "at the earliest possible date."

It was the subject of human rights that brought Carter to the United Nations the first time, last March, to deliver a wide-ranging — and subsequently controversial — speech on the issue before the General Assembly.

One of the documents today binds the signers to take steps toward a series of rights — the right to work, to form and join trade unions, to social security, to an adequate standard of living and to education.

The second obligates governments to guarantee their peoples rights along the lines of the U.S. Bill of Rights — to life, liberty, thought, religion, freedom of movement and residence, legal trials and peaceful assembly.

Geneva talks inch closer

WASHINGTON Star — The United Nations and Israel said today they have tentatively settled on solutions to the difficult procedural problems that have prevented resumption of Middle East peace talks at Geneva.

The dramatic but vague announcement comes amid continuing controversy over what some critics of the Carter administration see as an increasingly hostile U.S. line being taken toward Israel. That is an assessment the administration rejects.

U.S. and Israeli officials, including for a time President Carter, met Tuesday and worked late into the night. Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and a U.S. spokesman emerged shortly after 2 a.m. to jointly and formally announce that proposals for removing remaining obstacles to reconvening the Geneva conference were developed.

The proposals, embodied in what Dayan referred to as a working paper, were not disclosed. Dayan must now seek the formal approval of his government on the details. U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus K. Vance will present the paper to the Arab governments involved for their approval as a basis for resuming the talks.

"I think the Israeli government will go along with this working paper," Dayan told reporters.

One thing the Israeli foreign minister and U.S. spokesman Jody Powell, the U.S. press secretary, did deal with in detail was a joint statement made Saturday by the United States and the Soviet Union designed to prod the parties back to the conference table. It appears now this statement has been shelved.

The joint statement raised a storm of opposition from Israel. It was that statement which put a strain on U.S.

Israeli dealings and prompted continued criticism of Carter's policy toward Israel by its supporters in this country.

The U.S.-Soviet statement, according to its critics, went significantly beyond the points embodied by United Nations Resolution 242, the 1967 measure recognizing Israel's right to exist on which peace talks have exclusively been based.

The Israeli government saw in the U.S.-Soviet statement implicit attempts to impose a settlement, promote a Palestinian state and force recognition of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, which has been officially bent on the destruction of the Jewish State.

Today's U.S.-Israeli statement reiterates traditional policy that the U.S. Resolution is the only basis for restarting the Geneva conference.

"Acceptance of the joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. statement of Oct. 1, 1977, by the parties is not a prerequisite for the reconvening and conduct of the Geneva conference," read today's statement.

Powell maintained that it is not necessary to scrap the joint U.S.-Soviet prod to Israel since the statement was never intended as a precondition to peace talks. It is still in effect, he said.

Powell also noted that U.S. actions in agreeing on the new Geneva proposals were based to some extent on U.S. contacts with Arab nations.

Powell was asked whether, in view of the criticism the administration had been receiving, Wednesday's announcement was at least in part a political placebo, an ineffective medicine designed to promote a false sense of well-being.

"Obviously, the problems have not been all solved, but we would not have stayed up there all night to dream up a placebo," Powell replied.

Today, was President Carter's second day in New York on United Nations-related matters. Tuesday Carter also saw Egypt's foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy, who brought a message from Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat. Carter would only characterize the content of the message as positive.

The President has said he would like to reopen the peace conference by December. Dayan did not say when he thought the conference could resume, but did say, "I am all for an immediate opening."

The central procedural issue that has prevented resumption of the talks is the question of representation of Palestinians.

Most Arab states insist that the PLO represent Palestinians. Israel flatly refuses to negotiate with PLO members. Dayan said that the agreement announced Wednesday contains a proposed method of dealing with this question, but he also noted that Israel's position is unchanged.

CUBAN TRADE Minister Marcelo Fernandez Font, left, chats with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, during a reception given by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday. Font is in Washington, D.C., to attend a private conference on trade with Cuba. Church paid a visit to Cuba a few weeks ago.

HEW settles funds fuss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare today announced a settlement with 22 states to resolve a decade-old warfare spending dispute between the states and the federal government.

The agreement, it appeared by Congress, would require HEW to pay $302 million in federal claims against the states, totaling $820 million against 22 states. Thirteen states are in both groups.

More than half of the disputed $24 billion — earlier HEW estimates had said $2.6 billion was being disputed — will be covered off the books as a result of the agreement, which totals $1.3 billion.

In New York, the settlement would result in HEW paying $214.4 million out of $914 million that had been withheld from the state because of disagreements over the spending of social service funds for needy persons from 1963 to 1975. HEW also would drop a claim of $190 million against the state.

The announcement did not say whether the states, as part

Egypt supports PLO

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt has informed President Carter that the Geneva Middle East peace conference cannot be reconvened without the participation of the Palestine Liberation Organization, a Cairo newspaper said today.

In an effort to help "overcome the difficulties still existing," Egypt has agreed to let the PLO go to Geneva as part of a unified Arab delegation, dropping its insistence that it attend separately, the newspaper Al Gomhuria said.

The newspaper said this was the gist of the message Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sent to Carter in New York Tuesday.

"Egypt's acceptance in principle of an unified Arab delegation provided the PLO is represented and the basis of its participation is to achieve Palestinian legitimate rights including the establishment of a homeland," the newspaper said.

It said Sadat expressed his "appreciation of the positive role being played by the United States" in trying to reconvene the Geneva talks.

Disease outbreak awaited

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Medical experts say 100 or more non-fatal cases of Legionnaires disease may turn up in Vermont where an outbreak of the mysterious, pneumonia-like illness has killed at least 12 persons.

A special team of investigators from the National Center for Disease Control said Tuesday it was broadening its probe to find other persons who may have had the disease without knowing it.

Officials at the Vermont Medical Center Hospital in Burlington, where the team of CDC experts began probing the outbreak last week, disclosed Monday that autopsies had confirmed nine more deaths since the three that were announced last week. They said it was "highly probable" that another person had also succumbed to the disease.

In addition, four non-fatal cases have been confirmed in the nation's third smallest state and another listed as "highly probable."

Thomas Sullivan, director of development at the Medical Center, said 100 or more nonfatal cases of the disease may be confirmed later.

Rehabilitation aid from US endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government said today it would encourage rehabilitation of existing housing and neighborhoods — not simply construction of new housing, the savings and loan industry said today.

The United States League of Savings Associations, conceding it has more at stake in urban areas than most financial institutions, called on the Carter administration, Congress and federal agencies "to revamp urban housing policy."

Arthur A. Hardin, president of the association, which represents 4,461 savings and loan associations, said housing starts alone should not be the lone goal of federal housing policy.

"...It is again time to assess our national housing goals," Hardin said in remarks prepared for delivery at a news conference.

The association suggested changing national and state tax laws to encourage upgrading of older neighborhoods "by protecting rehabilitated buildings from immediate increases in property taxes. Tax credits or deductions to provide incentives for urban pioneers also were proposed."

"Instead of attempting only to build new housing units or to generate more housing money, our nation's policy should be to try to create neighborhoods where people will want to live," the association said.

It asked, too, for curbs on of mortgages in high risk areas to spread the danger of lending in central cities. And in a recommendation that could swell savings accounts held by its members, the association suggested new incentives to "assure that savings accounts will be attractive places for people to put their money."

Partial tax exemptions for interest on savings accounts were suggested.

"Savings and loan associations hold nearly half the mortgage debt on single family homes in urban areas," Hardin said. "Savings and loan associations have a greater financial stake in the future of our cities than any other financial institution," he said.

Building codes should be modified to permit use of new construction materials and processes, the association said.

Among the 18 recommendations for federal agencies involved in housing, the association urged the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to allow long time home owners to obtain mortgages on the basis of the appreciated value of the house, not just the equity the homeowner has built up in the property.

Quebec secession halt draws study

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said today his cabinet decided to study the possibility of halting the Quebec government's efforts to secede from Canada.

A spokesman for Trudeau's office said cabinet ministers would "likely exchange views and ideas" on the "stop and study" proposal.

Trudeau is expected to announce any decisions made during the meeting at his weekly news conference Thursday.

A source said the "cabinet will discuss a series of proposed positions that have been talked about in the past. There are a wide spectrum of options that are being considered."

Among them are the federal response to Quebec's Bill 101, which makes French the province's sole official language and restricts entry to the English school system, and the ground rules for the

Idahoan sentenced

BLACKFOOT (UPI) — Don Ellsworth, 22, of Basalt, was sentenced Tuesday by Basalt District Judge Robert L. Brower on two counts of involuntary manslaughter.

Ellsworth had been charged with three counts in the highway deaths of three Utah women on Interstate 15 near Blackfoot last November.

Ellsworth, 61, of Eldorado, Utah, her daughter Paulene Blackburn, 33, and granddaughter Lynette, 16, of Salt Lake City were killed when the pickup truck driven by Ellsworth struck the rear of their vehicle parked along the interstate early in the morning. The defendant testified he had been drinking.

Judge Brower sentenced Ellsworth to six months in Blingham County jail with four months suspended, and placed him on two years probation. He was also fined $500.

Brower said Ellsworth will serve the last 30 days at the Road to Recovery alcohol detoxification center.

Report clears 'sting' operations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Undercover fencing operations do not encourage crime by providing a market for stolen goods, according to an independent study released today by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The LEAA has provided "buy money" for plenty of fencing projects — called "sting operations" after a movie by that name — in which agents posing as criminals buy stolen property from thieves and purveyors — whom they later arrest.

There have been several news reports that critics of the sting operations have suggested they might lead people to commit crimes they otherwise wouldn't commit.

Acting LEAA Administrator James Gregg said: "I hope this report will lay such unfounded charges to rest."

The Westinghouse Corp.'s National Issues Center, which conducted the $19,000 study for the LEAA, said it found no "pattern" of increased property-crime while stings were underway in eight urban areas.

Instead, the center said, the study showed "most reported crime was stable or down during the period of operation when compared to the year prior to the operations."

In a typical sting, agents of the FBI and other federal agencies join local police to pose as fences in rented storefronts. Word gets around to the underworld and thieves and robbers swarm in to sell stolen wares.

The sting headquarters is rigidly so each purchase is recorded on sound and film. This provides such good evidence that most of the criminals arrested later plead guilty rather than face trial, the report said.

The criminals are so eager to fence the cars, jewels, drugs, checks and other property they steal that second and third stings have succeeded in some cities despite the widespread publicity earlier operations received.

In the 42 stings the LEAA has financed in 23 cities, the agents have recovered an estimated $57 million worth of stolen goods, using only $1.5 million "buy money," and have made more than 3,000 arrests.

The center said that if properly crimes regularly increased during the six months or more of a sting operation, that might indicate the projects were stimulating illegality.

"No such pattern was found," the report said in two cities — Memphis and Las Vegas — certain types of property crimes increased but no "pattern could be found" indicating the stings were responsible.

Another factor indicating stings did not stimulate criminal activity was the low percentages of first-offenders who were arrested, the report said.

On the other hand, the report said there was evidence that stings have a deterrent effect by adding "uncertainty, confusion and suspicion" to other fencing operations.

The undercover agents also have been able to use their contact with the underworld to solve murders, robberies and rapes as well as burglaries and thefts.

ATLANTA Mayor Maynard Jackson won reelection in a landslide Tuesday, defeating four opponents. Jackson received 63.6 per cent of the votes cast, although the turnout was light. Two of his opponents were white. Jackson had the support of most of the white business establishment.

Highway slowdown given push

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams says motorists are driving too fast and he wants the nation's police chiefs to slow them down to 55 mph.

"After two years of slower speeds and fewer fatalities drivers are returning to their old habits," Adams told the annual conference of the International Association of Police Chiefs Tuesday.

The national speed limit was put in effect in 1974 as a fuel conservation measure. A side benefit, Adams said, was the substantial decrease in traffic accidents.

In his speech, Adams announced a three-point program to counter the lack of compliance with the speed limit.

The program would include incentives by states, where slower drivers are in compliance with the speed law. "States where motorists do not comply would face the loss of U.S. highway funds."

Labor law fight continues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organized labor, encouraged by victory on a major test vote, still must do battle with supporters of big business to win House approval of a bill to overhaul federal labor law.

A final House vote on the bill was expected today, once the congressmen consider as many as 150 Republican amendments that would significantly weaken the labor law measure.

Labor meanwhile was bracing for another big battle with business in the Senate, which was preparing to consider a House-passed measure to increase the current $2.30 minimum wage.

Drafted by the AFL-CIO and endorsed by President Carter, the labor law bill would help union organizing and crack down on employers who persistently are accused of violating federal labor law — among them J.P. Stevens and Co.

Thompson and labor's lobbyists, nonetheless, feared some key provisions of the bill might be damaged by amendments, some of which are popular on both sides of the aisle.

Jennings charges dropped

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Federal prosecutors have withdrawn conspiracy to possess and distribute cocaine charges lodged against singer Waylon Jennings.

U.S. District Judge L. Clure Morton granted a request Tuesday by the attorney Hal Harbin that the charges against Jennings and another man be dismissed without prejudice — which means they may be indicted at another time.

Harbin had until Friday to secure indictments in the case under provisions of the federal Speedy Trial Act.

"That's good news," said Jennings' attorney, Dale Quillen. "That's what I have said they should do all the time." He added that the withdrawal "may be just a way for them to get around the Speedy Trial Act."

Jennings was arrested Aug. 21 at a Music Row studio where he was recording an album. Agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration trailed Jennings' secretary to the studio that night after she picked up a package allegedly containing two grams of cocaine at Nashville Airport.

Economic slowdown unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's chief economic adviser sees some disappointments in the pace of economic recovery, but says fears of a slowdown in economic growth next year are "unwarranted."

Charles Schultz, chairman of President Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, said Tuesday "the present recovery is likely to continue for some time. Ample resources are available to permit further expansion, and the recovery shows few if any signs of economic aging."

His remarks were prepared for the Economic Club of Detroit, but made available in Washington.

He said he expected "no major distortions or imbalances in the economy that might precipitate a downturn or prolonged pause."

Schultz, Carter's chief economic adviser, has attempted in recent weeks to calm economic jitters among private analysts worried about a possible slippage in the economy.

Gas deregulation gains Senate nod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate approval of legislation to phase out federal price controls on natural gas ended one battle enlivened by anger and accusation, but signaled the start of another.

A two-week filibuster broken, the Senate Tuesday approved 50 to 46 a measure to gradually lift federal price controls and like the controlled price on natural gas almost 70 per cent in the meantime.

The fate of the bill now rests in a House-Senate conference committee where vast differences in the House and Senate versions of the legislation will be negotiated.

President Carter immediately tried to sway prospective negotiators with a new threat to veto any move to end the price controls the government has exercised for 22 years.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill already has warned deregulation never would survive the conference committee.

The House approved the Carter energy plan to boost the federal price 29 cents to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet and to impose federal controls on intrastate gas — that which is produced and sold within the same state.

The Senate's Bentsen-Pearson bill would eliminate federal price limits in 10 years on newly produced gas from onshore wells, like the federal price-per-thousand cubic feet from $1.46 to $2.40 and free offshore gas from controls in five years.

Senate approval of the deregulation legislation sparked quick reaction as both sides, rallied for final negotiations.

The bill is "an injustice to the working people of this country," the President declared, labeling it "unacceptable" and vowing "I will not sign an unfair bill."

Byrd hurt by tactics

WASHINGTON — Defeated Democrats predicted Tuesday that the tactics used to break the natural gas filibuster would hurt both the Carter administration and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd.

But while President Carter's spokesman, Jody Powell, tried to soothe the situation by saying "clearly there was a misunderstanding which we regret," Byrd would not give ground.

"My concern is with passing this bill, other parts of the president's energy program, and other legislation, and not with evaluating my leadership," he said.

price and end of controls will give producers enough money to find hard to get gas in deep wells and distant fields. Opponents warn lifting federal controls will cost consumers billions of dollars and provide unfair profits to the oil companies who would get a big increase on gas that is costing no additional money to produce.

Homeowners need not fear sharply higher bills, Bentsen said. In Montana, he estimated, homeowners' bills would increase only 15 to 20 cents a month initially.

Others were not so sure.

"Just cannot buy the Senate version," said Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee.

"A slap in the face to the American consumer," said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., calling the Senate measure "a homologue for the gas producers."

"The greatest unarmored robbery of all time in this country," said Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich.

Architects of the Senate filibuster which blocked action on the deregulation legislation for 13 days protested outside the Capitol.

Local governments: don't overspend

Some fat federal checks, made out to Idaho county governments, are on their way to the state from Washington, D.C. under the payment-in-lieu-of-taxes program.

The money should have quite an impact. In some cases, it will amount to almost half of a given county's annual operating budget for 1977.

This windfall is the result of a federal program which seeks to reimburse counties for potential tax income lost on public lands within their boundaries.

The counties with the most public acres will receive the highest payment-in-lieu amounts.

Two Magic Valley counties lead the state in amounts to be received. Cassia County is first with $483,285 and Twin Falls County will get $472,872.

This money can certainly be put to considerable benefit throughout the state. There are some dangers involved with this type of federal program, though. A county cannot afford to become dependent on money which a capricious Congress must vote to renew from year to year.

If this money is channeled into ongoing county expenses, such as salary increases, creation of new programs or hiring of new employees, the taxpayer stands to be stuck with substantial increases when the feds finally turn off the tap.

A good example is the much-debated federal revenue-sharing program.

During 1976 Congress threatened to stop this program which takes local tax monies, brings them to Washington, then sets up a bureaucratic process in which the money is sent back (after deducting administrative expenses) to the local level.

When Congress announced its intentions to halt the program, massive lobbying efforts on the part of cities and counties across the nation were formed to save the local governments' collective checks, and at the eleventh hour, revenue sharing was renewed.

Too many cities and counties in the nation used the federal money to hire policemen, or create hot lunch programs or expand recreational staffs or hire assistants in various departments.

The public had become used to the programs and services, and when the revenue sharing program ended, either these services had to be cut back and various employees fired, or else the local taxpayers had to shoulder the burden of continuation.

Basically, these local governments had learned to live beyond their means.

Payment-in-lieu-of-taxes is the same type of program. Cassia County and Twin Falls County commission chairmen, when interviewed recently, fortunately did not say they had plans to use the money for any ongoing programs. They did indicate, though, they would like to use the money to decrease taxes. While that is an enviable goal, there are also dangers to this use of temporary federal money.

If a person pays $1 in taxes this year, and the federal funds are used to cut his tax payment back to 50 cents, he is likely to be pretty happy — for now. But, what if in five years, the federal money runs out. The same services that cost the taxpayer $1 in 1977 may cost $2 in inflated 1982 money. The taxpayer is not likely to be so happy then in paying almost twice as much, overnight, for the level of government service to which he has become accustomed.

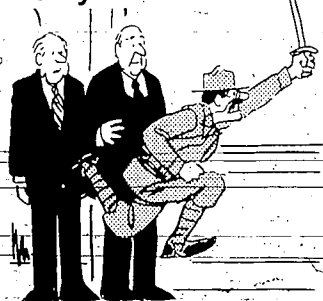

Most of us would prefer to work increasing costs into our budgets on a more gradual basis.

The best use for this type of federal money is in one-time capital outlay expenditures. They give immediate benefit to the taxpayer and they do not continue to cost him money, or seem to, after the program ends.

If the county needs some fire trucks, buy them. If it needs new ball diamonds, build them. If it needs new buildings, construct them. Keep in mind that it might take some additional manpower to maintain the projects, and be reasonable about it.

A little more bloat

Federal pay raise authorized

President Carter last week made a federal pay raise official. The gentleman who ran against Washington's bloated bureaucracy authorized a little more bloat — about $3.4 billion a year more. The 7.05 per cent pay raise becomes effective October 1.

JAMES L. MILPATRICK

In a more spirited time, the American people might have vetoed the high heavens about his bloat. We tend to grow numb. Except for a few feisty outposts, such as the Taxpayers Union, scarcely a voice is heard in dissent. Yet this latest raise is a preposterous imposition upon our hard-pressed people.

With this raise, federal employees will draw down an average salary of $17,350, plus — and this is a critically important plus — fringe benefits amounting to about 40 per cent of that basic salary. Is an average figure suspect? Then consider the median figure instead. The median federal salary will rise from $13,900 to $14,900.

The raise will apply to 1.4 million civilian employees and to two million men and women in the armed services. As one immediate consequence, new pressures will be generated upon state and local governments to match the federal levels. Bureaucrats of the world, unite!

This latest pay boost results from a system instituted in 1962. In theory, the system has merit. The idea is to achieve "comparability" between the pay scales of private industry and those of the federal government. In order to identify the gap, if any, the Bureau of Labor Statistics accumulates data on what private employers pay to clerks, typists, chemists, watchmen, messengers, purchasing agents, and other white-collar workers. Then three advisory panels make separate recommendations to the President. So long as the President doesn't go below a recommendation, his decision is final and not subject to congressional review.

But the system has merit only in theory. It collapses under the strain of this inescapable truth: There is no such thing as "comparability" between the private and public sectors. There cannot possibly be "comparability" for the functions of business and government are quite different. A governmental agency — any agency — is under no compulsion, to make a profit, to pay a dividend, to meet competition, or to improve its productive efficiency. A government agency cannot go bankrupt; it cannot be forced into reorganization by creditors; the federal administrator cannot be booed out by disgruntled stockholders.

These fundamental distinctions plainly affect employment. In the real world of private industry, employees are fired all the time for incompetence. They can be laid off when business goes sour. Private workers do not qualify for automatic raises year after year. But a federal employee, sure he is past the six months' stage, is the closest thing in nature to an immovable object. Mr. Carter's first pledge to government workers last February was that nobody would lose his job by reason of reorganization. In the federal service, promotions and raises proceed with equanimal predictability.

The federal employee has other advantages over this private counterpart. His fringe benefits, on the average, are 25 per cent higher than those of the private worker. In terms of sick leave, paid vacation, pensions, retirement and the like, the federal worker is generously treated. And because federal pay scales are uniform throughout the nation, regardless of local costs of living, a federal employee is a small Southern or Midwestern community is able to live, relatively speaking, in fat city.

Personnel records make the picture unmistakably clear. Fifteen years ago, federal agencies were hard pressed to attract job applicants. Since then, 16 increases in basic or structural pay have come along. Last year, according to U. S. News & World Report, there were 63 individual inquiries for every available federal job. The most recent tally put the ratio at 74 to 1.

Here in Washington, the 7.05 per cent pay raise is expected to have an immediate inflationary impact. Elsewhere in the country, the effect will be delayed but it will not be insignificant. If state and local governments, and private employers also, must strain to match the federal levels, everyone's costs will go up. A year hence, what will the blast bill be?

The House sneaks its pension bill by

By GENE BERNHARDT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — They've done it again, those Congressmen who are so concerned about Congress' public image and complain that the press is always taking a cheap shot at them. For the first time in slightly more than a decade that this observer has covered the House, a bill was introduced and called up minutes later and passed by voice.

No reference to a committee for hearings, no debate, no explanation, no printed copies of the bill or an accompanying report, no record vote. Even the venerable Congressional Record, in reporting the previous day's activities, showed only that Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., asked and got unanimous consent "for the immediate consideration of the bill H.R. 9662."

It was done that way, with the obvious planning of the Democratic leadership and the silent acquiescence of the 70 or 80 members on the floor at the time, because it gave a one shot increase to Congressmen's pensions. To encourage the older members to retire and make room for younger blood.

It's the kind of thing that many members would say "the press would distort and not report objectively." If there had been public debate.

The purpose of the bill had merit. Even Common Cause, the citizens' lobbying group which has little favor among congressmen, supported the objective. It's doubtful, however, that it supported the method of passage.

What it did was allow pensionists for those retiring next year to be figured from the current salary base, rather than determining the base from the average of the three highest year's salaries, which is now in law and which will resume in January 1979.

For any House or Senate member retiring with the maximum pension, it means a one-time $3,426 a year increase in his pension over what he would get under the regular system.

At last count, six Senators and 11 House members plan to retire next year and another nine are seeking other offices and could come under the pension if they lose.

Don Glickman, a freshman Democrat from Kansas, said he wasn't aware of what happened until he read about it the next day in his hometown newspaper.

"I was absolutely disgusted when I found out," said Glickman.

So were Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ill., and Martha Keys, D-Kan.

The three immediately introduced a resolution amending the rules of the House "to require that measures affecting the salaries, fees or emoluments of members or retired members of Congress be adopted by roll call vote."

Glickman, in his freshman naivete, said, "As far as other members agreeing with this position, I think it would be very embarrassing if they didn't go along with it."

What they pass so quietly in Congress, they also kill.

West Point strives for sense of humor

WASHINGTON — A Pentagon commission has just released a study recommending, among other things, that West Point cadets develop a sense of humor. Something it found the academy was lacking. As anyone who has dealt with military officers knows, this is easier said than done. But I'm sure that if the Pentagon recommends it, West Point will give it the old school try.

"All right, cadets, we will now devote the next hour to developing a sense of humor. Bruckley, are you prepared?"

"YESH!"

"At ease, Bruckley. You don't have to stand at attention. Just tell us a joke."

"A WHAT, SIR?"

you'll have to go on report. The academy will not condone joke stealing, nor the failure to report another cadet who stole one. When you lead men into battle, they will expect you to make up your own jokes, and they will not follow an officer who takes jokes from someone else in the field. Have I made myself clear?"

"YESH!"

"All right, now let's keep our sense of humor in spite of this tragic affair. O'Reilly, can you make the class laugh?"

"YESH!"

"Well, go on."

"O'Reilly takes a banana cream pie out from under his desk and flings it into the captain's face. The captain, wiping the cream off his startled uniform, says, 'That was very good. O'Reilly, I'm giving you an A in the course.'"

"THANK YOU, SIR!"

"I am also going to have you court-martialed for striking an officer, insubordination and insulting the uniform of the United States Army under Article 12, Section 6 of the Military Code."

"BUT SIR, YOU TOLD ME TO MAKE THE CLASS LAUGH. THEY'RE HYSTERICAL."

"Good, then I am also adding the charge of mutiny. What is it, Grinstead?"

"SIR, YOU STILL HAVE SOME WHIPPED CREAM IN YOUR LEFT NOSTRIL."

"You must have been in the academy, too!"

"SIR, THAT WAS A JOKE. I JUST MADE IT UP."

"How would you like to march around the parade grounds in full battle dress for six hours?"

"THAT'S VERY GOOD, SIR. YOU'RE VERY FAST ON THE REPALETTE."

"This class will not be given weekend leave for the rest of the year."

"WHY, SIR?"

"Because, dammit, you don't have a sense of humor. And I'm going to see that you get one if I have to break every bone in your bodies."

Survey claims Black vote swung numerous elections

By KAY MILLS
© Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — A leading black political research organization says the black vote decided the 1976 presidential election in Jimmy Carter's favor.

In 13 of the states monitored by the Joint Center for Political Studies, "black votes for Carter exceeded his margin of victory," the report said. "These states accounted for 26 electoral votes. Carter won the presidency by 56 electoral votes."

States cited by the Joint Center were Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas and Wisconsin.

In four of these states, however, Carter won by only two percentage points in the popular vote and by three per cent in a fifth.

In Ohio, for example, Carter finished 8,000 votes ahead of former President Ford out of nearly 4 million votes cast. In Mississippi, Carter's lead was 11,000 out of almost 730,000.

The Joint Center analysis also showed that "in Missouri, black votes provided the margin of victory for the winning gubernatorial candidate," Joseph P. Teasdale. Teasdale won by 12,000 votes. Black voters threw 85 per cent of their support to him, the survey said.

Surveying Senatorial races the Joint Center found that black voters provided the victory margins for Donald Riegle, Jr., in Michigan, Howard Meehan in Ohio and James Sasser in Tennessee. Riegle got 92 per cent of the black vote, Meehan 91 per cent and Sasser 93 per cent.

Nationwide, the Joint Center survey found that President Carter received 5.2 million black votes, or 30 per cent of those cast. In the north, 88.5 per cent of the black vote went to Carter while in the South, he received 92.4 per cent.

For its survey, "The Black Vote: Election '76," the Joint Center sampled 1,020 precincts or wards. Each unit had about 50 per cent black voters. The report said that "the voting behavior of 1.4 million blacks, 23 per cent of those who registered, was examined by analyzing actual votes cast."

Eddie N. Williams, president of the Joint Center said, "There can be no doubt that the black vote can play a significant role in the election of our officials, nationally or on a state level. We are beginning to realize our potential and how it can be put to use for our betterment."

Tokyo fuss over hijack
explodes

TOKYO (UPI) — Justice Minister Hajime Fukuda has resigned in a furious controversy over the government's handling of the hijacking of a Japan Air Lines jet by Red Army extremists.

Fukuda, 72, resigned at a meeting near midnight Tuesday with Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda. They are not related.

The justice minister resigned over Japan's decision to pay the Japanese Red Army hijackers $5 million in ransom and release six prisoners. In the condition set by the terrorists to save the lives of 151 hostages aboard the plane.

What sparked the national outcry was the disclosure that Foreign Ministry officials waived the right to seek extradition of the hijackers and return of the ransom money from Algeria, where the six hijackers were held.

But the cabinet ordered Japanese Ambassador to Algeria Hisamitsu Miyazaki to convey the "message" to Algerian officials that the money, the five hijackers and the six freed prisoners would be returned.

Algeria said Tuesday through the national news agency there has been no formal extradition request for the guerrillas who seized the Paris-to-Tokyo jetliner with 151 other people aboard over India last Wednesday.

They released their hostages and Algeria and gave themselves up to Algerian authorities.

Algerian sources said the guerrillas surrendered on the understanding they would not be shipped back to Japan.

The Algerians may keep the Red Army guerrillas under police surveillance, informed sources said. Algeria was unlikely to keep the ransom. In the past it has confiscated ransom money and returned it to the authorities who paid it.

Parliamentary Vice Minister of Transportation Jun Shuzaki quit with Fukuda. "I resigned to draw some 'distinctions' about things," Fukuda said. "I believed my duties were completed. By resigning I wish to receive the understanding of the people that the steps taken in this affair were very grave."

Foreign Minister Ichiro Hatoyama told the cabinet that officials of his ministry made the decision to waive claims on the hijackers and the money to insure safe landing of the plane in Algeria. It still had 19 hostages aboard at the time.

Plutonium ban defied

London Telegraph — LONDON — France and Japan will defy President Carter's attempted ban on the production of plutonium.

A consortium of Japanese power companies said it had signed a contract with the French nuclear fuel company Comega for 1,000 tons of Japanese waste nuclear fuel to be reprocessed at a plant to be built near Cherbourg.

A Japanese offer for an additional 1,600 tons to be reprocessed in England, is being held up by a drawn-out public inquiry.

The Japanese and French decision is a deliberate rebuff to Carter's policy. Carter has in theory an ultimate control over their actions, since much of the fuel to be reprocessed originated in the United States.

But the French and Japanese hope that he will abandon his policy when he sees that other nations have no intention of complying with it.

Tropical storm brews

MIAMI (UPI) — A rain-laced tropical wave continued to move over the northern Windward and Leeward Islands today, spreading slowly westward.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center say conditions are not favorable for intensification through Wednesday.

A tropical depression in the central Atlantic, 1,200 miles east southeast of Bermuda weakened to a trough of low pressure Tuesday. Forecasters said there was still widespread shower activity.

TOWING ICEBERGS MAY NOT WORK, SAYS SAUDI ARABIAN PRINCE
... Mohamed Al Faisal proposes attaching paddlewheels to ease trip

Paddlewheels on bergs?

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Saudi Arabia's Prince Mohamed Al Faisal proposed Tuesday equipping huge Antarctic icebergs with sophisticated versions of 19th-century Mississippi River boat paddlewheels to bring water to his parched homeland.

In a paper presented to the First International Conference on Iceberg Utilization, Faisal and Dr. Shawkat Ismail, technical adviser to the prince's Iceberg Transport International, Ltd., expressed concern that the icebergs could prove too unwieldy for tugboats.

Instead, they proposed installing paddlewheels with huge arms that would propel 100-million-ton icebergs from the Antarctic to the Arabian peninsula or any other arid nation.

Faisal's proposal contrasts with more traditional plans for large-scale iceberg transport and use, most of which have involved conventional sea-going tugboats or even nuclear-powered "super-tugs" to tow the bergs across thousands of miles of ocean.

"The towing speed recommended for the transportation of icebergs is considered very low for the existing tugs to run with reasonable efficiency," Faisal said. "It is suggested the icebergs be equipped with their own propulsion in the form of paddlewheels."

His plan called for paddle "arms" to be attached to both sides of an iceberg, with powerplants situated on its top. Faisal said that by equipping both sides with paddlewheels rather than placing the propulsion system at the rear of the iceberg, the ice mass could be navigated with ease.

Keynoting the conference banquet Tuesday night, Faisal said finding a solution to the world's need for fresh water could provide the answer to a range of global problems. He said the exploitation of icebergs as a fresh water source could provide solutions to many of the problems facing the world's underdeveloped and industrial nations.

"I know only one thing — if we bring water to the arid areas of the world we will be performing a service to all mankind, whether it happens now or in the future," Faisal said.

He declined to express his expectations about the outcome of the four-day conference, saying he preferred to withhold his judgment until the end of the meeting.

Sweden flays rights lack

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Sweden accused eastern European Communist countries today of seriously violating the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki Accord.

Sweden said that people in the Eastern bloc were subject to "humiliation and persecution" just because they want to enjoy their fundamental rights.

Swedish Undersecretary of State Leif Leifland made the accusation in the second day of the Belgrade Conference being held to review the Helsinki agreement.

It was a continuation of what has emerged as a concerted Western drive to get the Communist countries to live up to human rights commitments undertaken at Helsinki two years ago.

Leifland said: "We feel strongly for people who are subjected to humiliation and persecution because they want to express their views on social and other questions, because they want to practice their religion or because they want to work together for political, trade union or other rights."

Sweden is "seriously concerned" about the human rights situation, Leifland said, without specifically naming Communist countries but like previous Western speakers making it clear who was meant.

Leifland rejected Communist arguments that such criticism "represents interference in a country's domestic affairs."

"The Swedish government will not refrain from drawing attention to violation of human rights," he said.

Bulgaria, a close Soviet ally, flatly rejected what it called the "malevolent plans and political shortsightedness of certain reactionary forces" it alleged were trying to return the world to the Cold War.

Bulgarian delegate Stephan Stankov said Western countries should "refrain from efforts to use the Helsinki Agreements for purposes that have nothing to do with detente or the development of mutual trust."

Yugoslav delegate Milorad Pesic said the question of human rights was "a delicate one that must be approached in a responsible manner."

"There were no models or modes of life valid for all," he said.

Pesic said that interference in the affairs of other countries "is not the best way of promoting human rights."

Peru vote on assembly set in June

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Peru's military government has scheduled elections next year for a constitutional convention that will pave the way for a return to civilian rule within four years.

But the government, in announcing Tuesday that the balloting will be June 4, left open the question of whether all the delegates to the convention will be elected or if some will be appointed by the military.

The constitutional convention will begin a month after the balloting and will work on a new constitution until July of 1979, the government said.

Under the timetable proclaimed earlier this year by President Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez, legislative and presidential elections will be held in 1980.

N. Korean leader ails

London Telegraph — SEUL — Reports that Kim Il Sung, North Korea's dictator, has again been to Romania, for treatment for cancer has not been greeted by South Korean officials with any enthusiasm.

Kim Il Sung is not held in any affection here, but Kim Chong Il, his son and heir-apparent, is regarded as even less predictable, and, as the top official in the anti-South Korea operation, more dangerous.

Kim Il Sung made his first visit to Romania for treatment for the massive growth in his neck in 1975.

Although doubts remain whether Romanian doctors found it to be malignant, Kim is believed to have been told to abandon his long 13-hour days and to be ready to step down from office not later than April of this year when he celebrated his 65th birthday.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A cousin of reputed killer Gary Gilmore Tuesday secured a $4.6 million federal court suit against Time, Inc., and the publishing firm's People Magazine in connection with an article about the woman and her daughter.

Gilmore was convicted Oct. 7, 1976, of the slaying of motel clerk Bennie Bushnell, 26. He was executed by a firing squad Jan. 17, 1977, at the Utah State Prison.

The award was made on a suit filed by Mrs. Smith, following an incident in August, 1975, when she called police to chase teenagers away from her steps because she feared they would damage a newly installed iron railing.

"He (Connor) stuck his face in mine, screwed his face up and said, 'You're nuts,'" she said.

Gooding prison proposal on next land board agenda

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — The proposal to convert the old TB hospital here into a women's prison is scheduled for action at the Oct. 11 meeting of the State Land Board.

Bonita Miller, secretary to Don Erickson, head of the Idaho Board of Corrections, said Monday she had just received word from Gordon Trombley, director of the Department of Lands, that the meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. in Boise and the prison proposal will definitely be on the agenda.

The old hospital site currently houses the Idaho Regional Treatment and Training Center, an alcoholism treatment facility. Since the announcement last summer that the board of corrections wants to use the state-owned facility for a women's prison, center officials have been looking for a new location.

Clay Robertson, center director, said he was informed Friday by Trombley that the treatment center's lease from the land board would be renewed on a month-to-month basis because of the impending move.

The alcohol center, which opened Oct. 1, 1976, has leased the facility for $350 per month. The year's lease expired Friday.

After the initial announcement last summer of plans to remodel the former hospital into a women's prison, considerable support surfaced for retaining the alcohol treatment center.

State officials first said they thought the treatment center could share the facilities which include three buildings.

The center uses most of the space in the newest of the three structures.

The two newer buildings are connected. The third building currently is used by the Antique Festival Theatre and the Gooding school district for a kindergarten class. This building, apparently, will not be involved in the remodeling for the prison, Erickson has said.

The proposal to convert the facility into a women's prison must be officially approved by the State Land Board which has jurisdiction over the property.

The issue was not on the agenda of the last meeting of the board.

Sewage lagoon bids opened

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Disparate bids on construction at the Burley Sewage Lagoon were opened here Monday night.

Nearly $200,000 separated the two bids offered on the first phase of the lagoon project, including aeration and clarification equipment.

Mitchell Construction Co. is the apparent low bidder at $633,555, while Drake Plumbing and Heating bid $822,500. Consulting engineers CH2M-Hill of Boise had estimated $625,000 for the first phase.

The city council turned the bids over to the engineers for review.

The lagoon renovations are required by the environmental protection agency, which ordered chemical treatment of sewage before it is allowed to flow into the Snake River.

Burley has 80 acres of stabilizing sewer ponds where waste is held about three months before release into the river. This year the city purchased another 7-plus acres for expansion of sewage treatment facilities.

There is no chemical application. The city is being required to add a chlorination system to raise the stability of the effluent to meet EPA standards for secondary treatment plants, or find means of disposal other than the river.

The EPA cited the city nearly two years ago for violations of effluent standards and failure to meet time guidelines on renovations at the lagoon. One reason for the city's delay was a decision concerning treatment of Heyburn sewage.

Heyburn at the time was considering three alternatives for disposal of its waste, including piping either to Burley or to Rupert for treatment.

Mexico goes after drug traffickers

EL PASO, Tex., (UPI)—Mexico is serious about its attempts to stop illegal drug traffic — including plans to try to persuade farmers to stop cultivating narcotics, according to the deputy attorney general of Mexico.

Samuel Alba Leyva Tuesday told delegates to the State Western States Conference on Crime and the Border Mexico has begun a series of related activities to eliminate the narcotics problem.

"The office of the Mexican attorney general and the National Defense Secretariat have developed a series of related activities that, coordinated with the objectives of eliminating production and illicit traffic of narcotics, constitute Mexico's permanent campaign of controlling narcotics," Leyva said.

Leyva said Mexican authorities are using direct observation and remote sensing to find fields of narcotics crops, are destroying the fields manually and with herbicides, are using socio-economic studies to determine why farmers grow narcotic crops and if they could be persuaded to grow other crops, and are trying to stop narcotic imports and exports.

He said 50,125 poppy and marijuana fields had been destroyed by Mexican authorities between Dec. 1, 1976, and Aug. 31, 1977. Leyva said 3,077 Mexican citizens and 177 foreigners had been arrested during that period.

Authorities also seized 650 tons of dried and packaged marijuana, six tons of marijuana seeds, 439 kilograms of hashish, 221 kilograms of cocaine, 174 kilograms of heroin, and 4,500,000 toxic pills, Leyva said.

Deputy U.S. Attorney General Peter Flaherty also addressed the conference Tuesday, saying the Mexican drug eradication programs "the keystones of cooperative anti-heroin enforcement."

Time to go?

PALE TOWN, Maine (UPI)—The two Colorado ballistics waiting for the right winds to carry them across the Atlantic are keeping their fingers crossed today for a favorable forecast.

Dewey Reinhard and Steve Stephenson said they expect today's weather report to give them the go ahead for a Thursday morning liftoff and the start of what they hope will be the first successful trans-Atlantic balloon crossing.

The pair arrived in Ear Harbor in mid-September, but they've had to scrap almost daily potential launch dates because of adverse weather conditions, including Hurricane Dorothy.

US debt ceiling rises

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite conservative grumbling, the House Tuesday passed and sent to President Carter an increase in the national debt ceiling to $552 billion.

Passage by a 223-194 vote, came four days after the old $500 billion debt ceiling had expired, leaving the government unable to borrow funds to pay its bills.

All Treasury borrowing was called off pending passage of the debt bill, but no unusual problems were expected. Normally the government can operate for a week or two without any new borrowing.

But Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, warned his colleagues, "It is a very precarious situation. We ought to get back to normal financing."

The new ceiling will expire March 31. Originally the House passed a $773 billion ceiling through next Sept. 30, but the Senate cut the numbers back to $552 for six months, exactly the amount the Treasury said it will need while keeping some funds aside for contingencies.

The House simply accepted the Senate version.

Conservative Republicans complained that the smaller and less lengthy extension was not really a cut at all but was merely a political trick to make the bill easier to pass.

"What we're doing here by this proposal is very, very cosmetic," said Rep. John Roussot, R-Calif. "This is just kind of a plenary type resolution to make it look like we're cutting back on the debt ceiling when in fact we are not."

Boeing plants shut down

SEATTLE (UPI)—The Boeing Co.'s production of jetliners slowed to a crawl today because of a walkout by nearly 24,000 machinists against the aerospace firm at major plants in Washington and two other states.

Several hundred other Boeing workers scattered around the country also were affected by the strike that began just at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

Company supervisors put the finishing touches on nearly-completed Boeing 707s, 720s, 737s and 747s, but work on planes in their early production stages was abandoned, a company spokesman said. It takes about a year to build each of the jets.

Boeing, which relies on commercial jetliners for two-thirds of its business, reported record profits and orders at mid-year and now has a sales backlog of $5 billion, with 200 commercial jets being built or on order.

A weekly payroll of about $5 million was drying up in the Seattle area, where 16,000 workers walked out. Strikers will pick up their last paycheck later this week at the Kingdome athletic stadium, so that union members will not have to cross picket lines.

A payroll of more than $1 million was affected in Wichita, Kan., with 4,000 striking workers and a $200,000 payroll was suspended in Portland, Ore., where more than 1,000 workers are out.

Boeing is the first aerospace company to be struck since McDonnell-Douglas workers went out three years ago and the final outcome of the strike is expected to set a pattern for the industry.

In Seattle, a picket schedule arranged with the help of a computer told strikers where and when to picket.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy's third nuclear-powered aircraft carrier as being named after a former Army man.

The Dwight D. Eisenhower will be formally commissioned Dec. 16 in Norfolk, Va., in a ceremony attended by the late president's wife, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower.

The Pentagon said Tuesday Defense Secretary Harold Brown will be guest speaker at the commissioning ceremony.

The vessel took seven years to build. Mrs. Eisenhower christened the ship when it was launched in 1975.

A fourth nuclear carrier, the USS Carl Vinson, still is under construction.

Job offered

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Carter today told New York Mayor Abraham Beame he had a job for him after they may leave office in January.

"I am hoping you will make a very important assignment from me after you leave office," the President told Beame.

Beame smiled and nodded. Asked as a reporter what the assignment was, Carter smiled widely and said, "I'll leave that for him to announce."

Beame was defeated in the bid for re-election in last month's November primary

Rupert man charged

RUPERT — A 22-year-old Rupert man was charged today with destruction of property as the result of damage to a church and several farm buildings in Minidoka County.

Sheriff Ray Mitchell said a complaint was signed against Eugene Romero, 22, Rupert, charging him with the Sept. 28 damage to the Pentecostal Church, one mile north of Rupert, and several out buildings at the David Kraus home three miles west and two miles south of Rupert.

Mitchell said a number of fights in the church were shot out causing an estimated $350 damage. Damage to the Kraus buildings was estimated at $150.

Romero had not been arrested today, but Sheriff Mitchell said the criminal complaint will be served and the man will appear in court probably during the coming week.

GOP speaker set

TWIN FALLS — Republican State Chairman Dennis Olsen of Idaho Falls will speak to the Twin Falls Republican Central Committee tonight at 7:30 at the Holiday Inn. A no-host dinner will be held.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Olsen, an Idaho Falls attorney, was elected GOP State Chairman on Sept. 17. He has been active in Republican politics for many years. He replaced former chairman Vernon Ravenscroft of Tattle who resigned earlier this summer.

Perjury charged

HAILEY — A 28-year-old Hailey man was charged with perjury in Fifth District Court here Friday and if convicted and sentenced could face from one to 14 years in the state penitentiary.

Melvin Leroy Coulter pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated (DWI) last week but while under oath before the court he allegedly made statements he knew to be false concerning his past involvement with the criminal justice system.

When a presentence investigation for a DWI charge was slow in being run, Fifth District Magistrate Judge Daniel Alban had Coulter testify under oath concerning his past record with the justice system, according to Blaine County Assistant Prosecutor Keith Rourke.

Only minutes after Coulter had left the Blaine County Court-house and the DWI sentencing, the investigation came in allegedly showing Coulter had perjured himself concerning his past criminal record.

He was arrested and charged with perjury about four hours after leaving the court, according to Rourke.

Perjury is a felony by Idaho Code and if convicted one may face a prison sentence of one to 14 years.

Perjury "strikes at the very heart of the judicial process," Rourke said in commenting on the seriousness of the charge.

Coulter was released Friday on $1,000 bond. A preliminary hearing on the perjury charge must still be set.

4 face pot' charges

EDEN — Jerome County Sheriff's officers Saturday arrested three Burley men and one juvenile for possession of marijuana which they allegedly harvested from a corn field south of Eden.

Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall said Jeff Moore, 18, Richard Ray Howard, 20, Randy Lee Parrish, 20, and a 17-year-old juvenile, all from Burley, were charged for possession of a controlled substance, a misdemeanor, and Lloyd Richard McAlister, 21, and Randy Lee Parrish, 20, for criminal trespass. All were released after posting $300 bond each.

"We've been watching the place for the last two or three weeks," Hall said about the field, where the arrests took place. He said the three men and one juvenile were leaving the field and had allegedly picked marijuana plants growing there.

A sheriff's officer was called to the presence of the plants in the field and was called apparently when persons were seen entering the field Saturday.

The amount of marijuana confiscated is yet to be determined.

Despite warning, zone change OK'd

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has approved a request by a city councilman for a zone change despite another councilman's warning that the group "would take it on the chin" for showing favoritism.

In a 4-2 vote, the council Monday approved a request by Councilman Stephen R. Lincoln that his property on Ash Street North be rezoned so he can open a dentist's office there.

Mayor Paul Ostyn, who voted against the request, said the rezoning smacked of "spot zoning."

Lincoln argued changing the current residential medium zone to a residential professional zone would provide "an adequate buffer between residential and commercial zones."

He argued the rezoning would solve the conflict between residences and nearby "America's Post Center."

But Ostyn said he was unconvinced, adding the proper zone change would be to commercial local.

Councilman Chris Talkington urged councilmen to delay voting on Lincoln's request for at least one meeting, so "to avoid the appearance of favoritism."

"You should vote that way then," Ostyn told Talkington, when it came "a vote on the rezoning."

But Talkington voted for Lincoln's request, later saying he did not want to be one to "slow things down. We're going to be criticized anyway."

In response to charges that the request approval looked like favoritism, Lincoln said, "I never talked to anyone (on the council) before I bought the property, or afterwards, until tonight's council meeting."

Lincoln also noted he did not vote on the issue.

In other action during its 27-hour meeting, the council voted 4-3, approving a request by Robert Lawrence to construct a three-room apartment closer to his property line at 304 Blue Lakes Blvd. than normally allowed by zoning ordinances.

With one member absent, the council earlier denied Lawrence's request 3-3. But Councilman Henry Woodall, who did not vote the first time the issue came up because he was absent, voted for Lawrence's request.

Law on residency tested at Gooding

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — A woman who lives outside the city of Gooding Tuesday filed for a city council to "test the validity of the election residency laws of Gooding county."

C.J. Stapp, who with her husband operates a veterinary business on Main Street, said she listed the address of her veterinary office, 230 Main when she registered at the city hall.

"What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," the new candidate said in discussing her reasons for running for the office.

Stapp said she wants to call attention to the "flagrant" abuse of residency requirements observed in the general election last year in Gooding county when a commissioner was elected from one district while living in another district.

Commissioner Jim Wilkins currently faces charges of "usurpation of office" because of alleged violation of residency requirements.

The case is scheduled for a jury trial in district court here Oct. 27, but a hearing on a request for summary judgment is scheduled for Oct. 11 in Rupert before Judge Bellwood. Wilkins' attorney, Peter J. Boyd, is asking for dismissal of the case.

Stapp said when she registered at the city office she had to sign a sworn affidavit that she is not registered to vote any place else. She said she was only registered to vote in Precinct 1.

Stapp lives in South Gooding precinct. She said she did not expect to get signatures so easily but in two hours had obtained 30 signatures.

"If the residency laws in our county are upheld in the jury trial I shall withdraw from the race," Stapp said, "but if the suit is dismissed I will be a serious contender for a council post."

Market prices for beans keep climbing

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Market prices for beans are continuing to spiral upward this week amid rumors of huge losses sustained by midwestern bean growers.

"Local exporters expect the market to stabilize until damaged crops have been sold off as sample-grade and off-grade beans. Then, the market could continue to spiral upward, especially if growers hold their crops in hopes of higher prices."

Tim Courneya, executive vice president of the Red River-Ebbette Bean Growers Association in Preece, Minn., confirmed much of the bean crop in North Dakota and Minnesota has suffered rain and cold weather damage.

"There are a lot of fields which were cut down early," Courneya says. "Some have discolored and some have sprouted."

There are not a lot of beans damaged beyond use, according to Courneya, however, the yield of number ones will not be as high as last year.

Courneya says he expects total production in his area to be about the same as last year in spite of reduced acreages and damage caused by wet weather.

"It was a good bean year until harvest," he adds. "The way it sits right now, growers are discouraged on account of the rain."

He says prices in the area are high enough that although growers don't have as many number ones to sell, they are still getting a good return on their crop.

He says the weather forecast for the next few days includes more cold weather and the chance of snow which could further complicate the situation.

John Gentry, of Empire Brokerage in Twin Falls, says estimates he has heard indicate North Dakota growers, who grow pinto beans, "probably got in the neighborhood of 300,000 to

Trusting farmers target for thieves

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — It is night in the countryside, and the nearest house is just a spot half-a-mile away. Someone backs a pickup truck up to a haystack, loads and drives away with $50 to $100 in free, untraceable goods.

Relatively small thefts like this add up for Magic Valley farmers and ranchers, who once were able to leave equipment, crops and livestock in the open before rural crime became as common as muggings in New York City.

Now the farmers add ranchers, bring equipment and crops closer to home, and sheriff's officers patrol county roads 24 hours a day. Rural neighbors routinely take down the license numbers of strange vehicles and keep on the alert for each other.

Sheriff's and deputies in seven Magic Valley counties say that large scale, thievery of expensive machinery or semi-truck loads of crops and animals is the exception. Farm homes get burglarized when the family goes on vacation or makes a trip to town, but officers and neighbors can check the homes more easily than more vulnerable equipment and crops in the fields.

"It all comes down to opportunity and desire," Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Cordier said about rural thefts. "It's just whoever comes along who sees something he wants, anything lying around loose."

When Cassia County Sheriff Ray Mitchell began his law enforcement career in 1961 it was different. "There was little cattle rustling," he said. "There just wasn't hardly any theft of machinery or vandalism. That's all increased."

"You bet," he added, "(farmers) are a lot more trusting than city folk, but most have wised up to the fact they have to take some precaution."

In the last year in Cassia County, some of the favorite targets for thieves have been hay, which can add up fast at $12 to $16 per hundredweight, hay at $20 to $35 per ton, siphon tube from $1 to $4 each, tools, tool boxes, wheelers, guns and CB radios.

In Jerome County, Sheriff Elza Hall said thieves often get away with from 5 to 20 gallons of gas, saddles, tractor parts such as discs, as well as hay.

"To a pickup, loads of hay from Eden-Hazelton area farmers by two juveniles."

Hall said more thefts occurred two to three years ago before a night patrol was added to the force. Blaine County has also added more patrols. In Twin Falls County, where mostly tools, gas, hay or a few animals are regularly stolen, an extra range deputy and five patrolmen have been hired in the last five years.

Gooding County now has two range deputies and cars patrolling the county 24 hours a day. Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said his office went to a 24-hour shift five years ago and has added three deputies, while Cassia County now employs four more officers than four years ago.

Farmers in the remote Kinama area of Lincoln County have been the hardest hit in recent years in the Magic Valley. Lincoln County Sheriff Bill Anderson said one farmer last year lost 2,000 bushels of grain to a thief, one pickup load at a time. The farmer's wife once gave the thief a pull when his pickup had stalled.

The Kinama area is 40 miles from the sheriff's headquarters in Shoshone and there is only one house every two to three miles, Anderson said. In addition, most of the farmers live in the Burley area.

"When fall comes they go home," Anderson said. "And it's a picnic for the thieves."

Anderson, a 30-year veteran in law enforcement, said times have changed and attitudes are different than in years past.

"We have a bunch of different people than we did 20 years ago. I'll tell you that for sure," he said. "It's cheaper to steal it than buy it if you can get away with it, and there are a lot of people who feel that way."

Other officers report good cooperation from residents in the county.

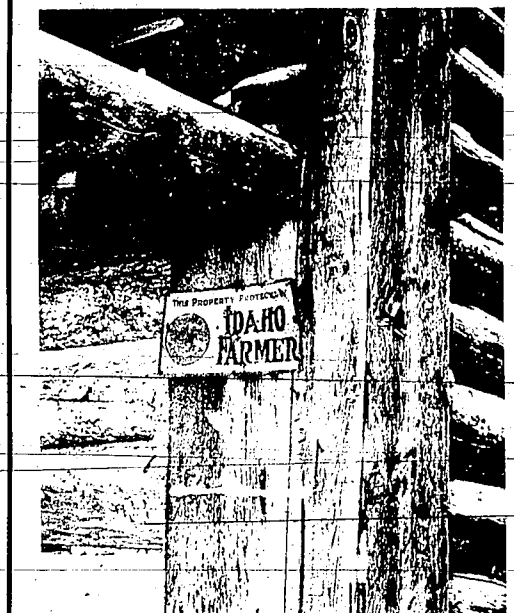

Jarvis said several cases in Minidoka County have been solved because neighbors spotted unfamiliar vehicles and took down the license numbers.

"People in this area are observing and do report things," the Twin Falls sheriff said.

"Without the people's help, we couldn't get a lot done," Jerome Sheriff Hall said.

Most of the crimes are committed by local people, not organized gangs of outsiders, the officers said. And many of the thieves know something about farming and the commodities market. Cattle rustling is down from years past due to low prices, most sheriffs said, while hay thefts they predicted will continue to plague farmers and ranchers.

"A guy can work for 15 minutes and make $50," Anderson said about hay thievery. "It ain't bad money."

350,000 bags of good number one beans" during the harvest.

Earlier estimates indicated the total production in the state would be 1.2 million bags. Gentry says, however, 60 per cent of that could be a loss.

"They have to get them thrashed and into the warehouse to see what they can salvage," he says.

"They tell me they have 600,000 bags laying in the field yet," Gentry adds.

As the rumors fly, however, the market continues to climb.

Gentry estimates the pinto market has jumped ten dollars since June.

"Back in June they were $12. Now they are $22," he says. "It has come up ten dollars a bag to the grower."

Gentry predicts the market could take a sudden jump after first grade beans have been sold to processors and canners.

He predicts growers who have number one beans will hold them in hopes of getting higher prices for their crop.

"They'll hold and get the market up too high," he predicts. "If it gets too high, it'll hurt our export business. Then other countries can't pay that price."

He says the market "should hold steady, however, until the low grade or wet beans are sold to canners, who he says like wetter beans because they are easier to can."

Both Gentry and Courneya predict high prices this year will cause a glut on the market in the future when "everybody gets into the act."

Prices look good, however, for Idaho growers and should continue to hold strong, Gentry predicts.

"We know that North Dakota has a hell of a lot of damage and cannot recover," he says. "The damage is already done."

Growers willing to run plants

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Sugar beet growers in Utah and eastern Idaho say they are willing to operate strikebound U.I. Inc. plants if it is necessary to save their crops.

The American Federation of Grain Millers Sept. 26 struck U.I. processing plants at Garland, Utah; Idaho Falls, Idaho; Moses Lake and Tappanville, Wash.; and the firm's bulk shipping terminal in West Jordan, Utah.

"When it gets down to the wire," Grant Nelhaug, president of the Upper Snake River Valley Sugar Beet Growers Association, said Tuesday, "the growers are going to do whatever they need to do to see that the beets get processed, including help operate the plants if necessary."

"It's a vital crop in eastern Idaho, and we're going to do what we need to do to save it," Paul Holmgren, president of the Utah Sugar Beet Growers Association, said farmers are familiar with machinery and could quickly learn to operate the processing plants.

"We're tremendously concerned about the mill at Garland, and we can recruit enough farmers to run it if we need to."

Holmgren estimated the Utah crop's value at $6 million, and said the farmers need the money as soon as possible to pay bills.

Of the strikers, Holmgren said, "It's ridiculous for people to jeopardize the future of the sugar industry in Utah."

The union and the firm are scheduled to resume negotiations with a federal mediator next Saturday in Boise, Idaho.

Boise miss wins Ice Capades nod

BOISE (UPI) — Sometimes 100 to 1 shots pay off.

Those were the odds against Lori Jukich, 21, Miss Boise State University, when she auditioned for a job with the Ice Capades last Thursday. But she skated her way past them and will join the troupe this spring after completing her reign as Miss BSU.

Miss Jukich, who began skating seriously at the age of 10 during the summers at Sun Valley, went to see the show in Boise last Wednesday.

"After the show, I went behind stage and asked if they were having auditions," she said. "I went down and gave it a try."

Proposal hits rural hospitals

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Idaho Hospital Association says federal proposals requiring a minimum number of patients that hospitals must treat could put some of Idaho's rural hospitals out of business.

John Hutchison, executive vice-president of the association, said the proposed regulations could force all but four or five Idaho hospitals to close.

The proposed regulations would limit the number of general hospital beds to four per 1,000 persons in metropolitan communities and require hospitals to maintain an average occupancy rate of 80 per cent.

"We don't have too many hospitals that can maintain an 80 per cent occupancy rate," Hutchison said.

If adopted, the proposed regulations would require hospitals to comply or make them ineligible for benefits from federal programs.

Jail fumigated

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Sheriff George Nourse quarantined the Canyon County Jail for about five hours Tuesday while cells were fumigated and health officers inspected the facility.

Nourse and Sgt. Billy Haynes took the action after learning two former inmates of the jail had contracted infectious hepatitis. Haynes recommended the quarantine as "an ounce of prevention."

The sheriff said about five prisoners will receive precautionary injections of gammaglobulin.

Disaster aid okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday overwhelmingly approved $1.4 billion in new disaster aid to help farmers affected by drought.

The new money passed 62 to 13 as an amendment to the District of Columbia appropriations bill, despite warnings from Budget Committee chairman Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, that the addition of disaster loan program is an excessive strain on the federal budget.

The full bill, including a federal payment of about $300 million to the capital city, was expected to pass easily and be sent to conference with the House.

Muskie said the budget committee approved $115 million in aid under SBA auspices in July and only two weeks ago was told by the administration that because of unforeseen conditions $725 million would be required.

"What we have here is clearly a runaway program," Muskie said, estimating it will cost a total of $2 billion to $3 billion by next year.

Sponsor Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said farmers hit by drought should be at least as entitled to SBA money as wealthy Los Angeles who used the low-interest loan to rebuild second homes and swimming pools after the 1971 earthquake.

Cool wave chills plains

By United Press International

The second Canadian cool wave of the week chilled residents of the upper Plains today and early frost warnings were posted for portions of New England.

Most of the nation enjoyed clear or rain-free skies and mild daytime temperatures associated with two high pressure systems, which rolled down from Canada since Sunday.

The National Weather Service said the latest system was pulling Canadian air southward into Montana, the Dakotas, Wyoming and Nebraska, dipping temperatures into the 20s before sunrise.

The cold air was moving across Wisconsin and into the middle Mississippi Valley, where cooler temperatures were predicted today and tonight. But cloudy skies were expected to forestall freezing.

Scattered frost was reported in portions of northern England and in the Pennsylvania mountains. Temperatures dipped to the 30s early today along portions of the Atlantic Coast.

Widely scattered showers dampened upper Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and central Missouri. Other showers touched Arkansas and northeast and southwest Texas. No heavy rains were reported.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you printed a letter from a person with heart trouble, diabetes, etc. He said he got dirty looks from people because he didn't look handicapped but parked in areas marked "reserved for the handicapped" so that he wouldn't need to walk great distances.

He's lucky he didn't get ticketed or have his car towed away.

In California, all a handicapped person needs is a letter from his doctor, and the Department of Motor Vehicles will give him special plates that entitle him to park in areas marked "reserved for the handicapped." He may also park by parking meters free.

Special plates

One argument against these plates is that muggers tend to spot victims by their cars and lay in wait for them. So for those who feel threatened, placards that can be removed in isolated or high-risk neighborhoods are available.

Please print my letter because many handicapped people may not know this and your column would be a good place to publicize it.

STAN IN SACTO

DEAR STAN: Thanks to you and to the others who wrote. Most states provide special plates (free) for the handicapped, but the laws and penalties for violations differ from state to state, so I urge those with handicaps (visible and otherwise) to inquire at their local D.M.V. offices. Parents of handicapped children may also apply for special plates and placards.

DEAR ABBY: Thought maybe you'd like to see an item that appeared in the REGISTER-GUARD, a newspaper in Eugene, Ore., that carries your column:

"In her column the other day, Dear Abby talked about sexism in the weather. Hurricanes are named for girls in alphabetical order. The year's first usually has a name like Abby, followed by Bertha, Candice, Debbie, Emma, Fern, Grishelda, Hattie and so on through Zedda."

"It would be possible to name them for boys: Abner, Buster, Chuck, Darwin, Ed, Fred, Geoffrey, Hank, Isadore and on through Zachary."

"But the battle of the sexes would cool off if the names were devoid of gender. Try adversity, brutality, calamity, destructibility, emergency, fitfully, grisly, and on through zowie."

ABBY FAN IN EUGENE

DEAR FAN: I don't object to having a hurricane named after me. Especially since alphabetically Abby is always No. 1.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb, Would you mind giving us some information on Marfan's syndrome? This has struck close to our family and yet we know so little about it.

Dear Reader, A good place to start — and one which will be of particular interest to you — is to point out that medical evidence suggests that Abe Lincoln was a Marfan. These people often have long legs and arms in comparison to the length of the trunk of the body. They may be quite tall.

The lens in the eye may be displaced. The chest may be deformed, and the hands are often large with long fingers.

Lincoln's syndrome?

The disease may be limited to the eyes, the skeleton or the heart and blood vessels or it may involve all three systems. The aorta may enlarge or dilate. The valves in the heart may become deformed causing abnormalities in circulation and unlike that seen from aortic valve damage from rheumatic heart disease.

Some historians think that Abe Lincoln would have died very soon from heart involvement if he had not been assassinated. Apparently he already had significant changes in the valves in his heart and there was no way to properly treat that problem in those days.

Half of the sons and daughters of a person with Marfan's disease will inherit the disorder. About 15 per cent of the people with Marfan's are new diseases and neither parent has the disease. In this instance there is a new mutation of the gene during genetic development that causes the disorder. Once that person starts having offspring, though, half of his children may have the disease.

Dear Dr. Lamb, My daughter has kidney malfunction. She must drink a lot of water. The only thing she likes to drink is tea. She also does not like milk.

She makes enough tea for a few days. She takes three tea bags and fills the 20 cup electric percolator and percolates it for one hour. The tea is as dark as black coffee. The doctor knows she drinks tea but doesn't know she percolates it one hour. This bothers me. I am afraid she is hurting her kidneys. She also has her cocktails.

Please tell me what you think about tea and especially this strong brew.

Dear Reader, Your daughter may not be getting enough liquids. She should drink enough water to pass a large volume of dilute urine each day. This helps to prevent kidney stones. About four quarts of liquid a day is often recommended or enough liquid to ensure formation of two to three quarts of urine a day. The fluid keeps the unabsorbable particles that may form a stone from clumping together.

Tea, beer, fruit juices, soda drinks, all may contain soluble oxalate that is absorbed into the blood stream and may make it easier to form some types of kidney stones. One of the best fluids for kidney patients who need to consume lots of liquid to maintain a constantly dilute urine is also the cheapest — plain water. Alcohol is hard on kidneys and is not a very good way for your daughter to get fluid either.

Too much rest can be harmful. For information send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter-number 66, Effects of Inactivity, including Bed Rest. SYNANON MEMBERS LOAD UP A TRUCK WITH FOOD FOR NEEDY FAMILIES. A computer keeps track of thousands of donors and recipients.

Synanon middleman for poor

BADGER, Calif. (UPI) — Synanon, the private foundation for helping drug addicts and alcoholics, is aiding people needing material help, too, simply by collecting things no one else wants.

A million pounds of vegetables, a complete auto wash and a hardwood gymnasium floor are among the items found along Synanon's, ambitious and well-organized collection route.

Food, clothing and shoes have gone to thousands of people, usually through other charitable organizations, at no charge from Synanon.

"We don't look at these distributions as gifts from Synanon," said Matt Rand, the project director. "We're merely a link in a chain between surplus and need."

Seldom is there a shortage of supply. "I am continually astounded at the amount of food and material that is available in this country," Rand said.

The only requirement to receive goods which Synanon discovers is that they must go through a non-profit organization and be given away at no cost to people who need the help but can't afford to buy it.

Synanon, begun in this Sierra Nevada setting in 1958 to help their way out of their troubles, has branched out to serve additional purposes.

The idea of distributing discarded goods was born in 1959 when the Synanon Foundation had to decide an offer of a boxcar of frozen peas because it was more than the Synanon residents could eat.

From its inception Synanon survived on unemployment checks of its members, and on donations. It ranked founder Charles Fiederich when he led to turn down the boxcar of peas.

He decided that Synanon should never turn away donations, and should set up a system of donating unsolicited material which it couldn't use to other organizations.

Last December, under Rand's direction, the idea became a reality — in the form of a computer keeping track of thousands of donors and recipients.

Recipients range from whole cities such as Detroit, Atlanta and Chicago down to individual boys clubs and churches.

A network of warehouses is used to store goods while it is worked out who gets them.

The largest single donation was 900,000 pounds of frozen vegetables, mostly potatoes, distributed to organizations throughout the nation.

"The vegetables came from a firm in Idaho which had a freezer failure and the food was condemned for insurance purposes. To collect the insurance they could not sell the food but could use the tax advantage if they gave it away," Rand said.

He said another donor was a contractor in Marin County who had a contract to tear down a gymnasium.

"He couldn't see destroying the hardwood floor so he contacted us and we managed to find a youth organization who used the wood to build handball courts for underprivileged children," Rand said.

The city of Detroit became a Synanon recipient through the city's Neighborhood Services Program.

"We sent them 110,000 pounds of frozen potatoes and they were distributed to a number of organizations in the city," Rand said.

An Arkansas firm had a large quantity of turkey hotdogs which weren't selling, so the management decided to seek the tax advantage by giving them away through Synanon.

Since no takers could be found immediately, a cold storage firm held the goods until a trucking firm could ship them to California. By the time the hotdogs arrived on the West Coast there were several organizations lined up to distribute them to the needy.

The Rev. Richard Gonzales of the Apostolic Assembly of Faith in Jesus Christ Church in the Central California Town of San Jose uses the service for individual poor families.

"We helped Gonzales and his church set up a free store at the rear of the sanctuary, borrowed a freezer truck to hold the perishables and then delivered several truckloads of beans, ketchup, tomato sauce, a ton of sugar, half a ton of rice, salt, frozen fish and meat, cookies, clothing and shoes," Rand said.

In two days, nearly everything was gone, and 300 people had groceries that lasted them for two weeks.

Elderly called today's revolutionaries

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Elderly persons are America's new revolutionaries because they do not have to worry about losing their jobs or community status; the leader of the Gray Panthers said Monday night.

The Panthers are described by 72-year-old Maggie Kuhn as a radical organization devoted to the elimination of discrimination against the elderly.

"We can be revolutionaries because we don't have anything to lose," Ms. Kuhn told a meeting of the Iowa Association of Homes. "Send us on dangerous missions to rattle cages and we'll go."

For example, she said, the Panthers have taken on the medical establishment for the past five years.

"It's been a never-ending battle there," she said. "These doctors have been seduced by the myth that old age is a disease. But we're changing that."

Ms. Kuhn said now is the time for senior citizens to act.

"The old people have been oppressed and alienated. We are struggling for new identity and freedom," she said.

She pointed out America's elderly make up the fastest growing population. By 2000, she said, more than 40 million persons will be at least 65 years of age compared with the 3 million who were 65 and over in 1990.

The elderly must change their self-image to be accepted in society, she said. For example, senior citizens must change their attitudes about physical deterioration.

Some of the people I have met in my travels are old, mature, responsible adults. They're not wrinkled babies who are afraid of getting old, she said.

Elderly persons must also change their view of the human life cycle, Ms. Kuhn said.

Nixon's picture of Martha disputed

MARTHA MITCHELL while in hospital

NEW YORK (UPI) — Martha Mitchell's last days were some of the richest and happiest of her life, and did not reflect the emotionally troubled woman of the Watergate period as described by President Nixon, an Episcopalian seminary member.

J.W. Canty, who is finishing his masters of divinity degree at Union Theological Seminary, said he visited Mrs. Mitchell almost daily at New York's Memorial Hospital where she was being treated for cancer before her death May 31, 1976.

He said the wife of the former attorney general helped him with his unique "Thesis Without Words," a collection of 300 photographs depicting his "spiritual journey."

"Among the photographs is one of Mrs. Mitchell in her hospital room. It shows an obviously aged, but proud woman, chin high and eyes bright."

"This was the last photograph ever taken of Martha," Canty said in an interview with ABC-TV, to be broadcast Oct. 9.

"Those months were some of the richest and happiest for the woman in her entire life. And most Americans didn't realize that."

In his last interview with David Frost, Nixon said that if Mrs. Mitchell had not distracted her husband from his duties he might have prevented the Watergate scandal.

Toys recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission Tuesday announced the recall of toys and educational products intended for use by blind children, because the items are coated with paint containing excessive levels of lead.

The products were manufactured and distributed nationwide by the American Printing House for the Blind, Louisville, Ky. The commission said the items were sold mostly by mail order to consumers, school systems and government agencies.

The products, which the commission says should be returned by consumers to the place of purchase for replacement or refund, are:

At all other tables in the game, South chose to raise clubs as his second bid. Some North players got all the way to five. Others stopped short of game. West had a natural spade lead. The club bidders made 10 tricks for either plus 130 or minus 100 depending on how they had bid.

This hand is another example of duplicate luck. That jump to three hearts ranges an absolute force with some experts all the way down to a mere invitation to partner to bid again.

Back in the days of Culbertson a certain soap was first advertised as 99.44 per cent pure. Ely didn't like to have too many forcing bids. At the same time, he described some Culbertson system bids as 99.44 per cent forcing.

Apparently South's jump to three hearts was one of those almost forcing bids. In any event, North did pass. A spade lead would have held South to his contract but West opened a

'Payment-in-lieu' checks are mailed

By MIKE MURPHY
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — The receipt of federal payment-in-lieu-of-taxes checks, by counties which will be mailed to the main stream of county budgets for fiscal 1978.

The long-awaited federal money is finally on its way, however, as U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced that the checks were mailed Friday.

Cassia County and Twin Falls County are the two counties which will benefit most from the program. Cassia County will receive $183,285 and Twin Falls County has $472,872 on the way.

"If the money had come a month ago, it would have been well," grumbled Cassia County Commission Chairman J. Weldon Beck Saturday. "We had to set the fiscal 1978 budget the second Monday of September, so this money will be put out in interest and wait until next year."

Other Magic Valley counties and the amounts they will be paid by the program are Blaine, $250,671; Camas, $42,900; Gooding, $197,536; Jerome, $66,284; Lincoln, $163,185; and Minidoka, $124,004.

Twin Falls County will try and work the money into county spending for this year. County Commission Chairman Mori J. Leonard said the money will be budgeted under unanticipated income and placed in the current general fund.

"State law allows us to do this," Leonard explained. He said the money will be used to "reduce levies or support levies where we can help accomplish projects and reduce taxation."

Leonard warned, however, that there is a limit at which the payment-in-lieu funds cannot be used to further lower

Sugar plant plans to open on schedule

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Amalgamated Sugar Co. and the American Federation of Grain Millers are right in the middle of negotiating a contract for the coming season, according to Larry Corry, Ogden, Utah, spokesman for the sugar company.

The union represents some 500 workers employed on a full-time and seasonal basis throughout the year at the Twin Falls Amalgamated Sugar factory southeast of the city.

"It's just about the same as a week ago," Lloyd Olsen, district manager of U and I in Idaho Falls, said. "The pickets are still in place."

Olsen said there is "increasing concern" among growers who want to start their harvest operations.

Negotiations at Amalgamated Sugar Co., however, appear to be running more smoothly and harvest operations should begin on schedule.

Twin Falls Amalgamated plant manager Ralph Burton reports the best harvest started in Rupert Monday and says harvesting is scheduled to get under way on Oct. 13.

Sedgewick says he is pleased with the progress in negotiations thus far. He says, however, if no agreement can be reached, the union must decide whether or not it will strike.

Sterilization sought for retarded girls

By DIANE HENRY
N.Y. Times News Service

HARTFORD — In a suit that runs counter to the widespread efforts of the public courts and government in recent years to halt sterilizations for children and the retarded, the parents of three severely retarded young girls are waging a compelling fight here to have the operation performed on their children.

Everyone involved in the case — the lawyers on both sides, the hospital that is refusing to operate and the doctors — agrees that the operation would be beneficial to the girls. At issue is an emerging body of law that has been used effectively to protect the rights of the retarded and end sterilization abuses.

The girls, all of whom go to a school for the blind in Hartford, are listed in court documents as Susan Ruby, Valerie Diamond and Lynn Pearl, but the names are fictitious in order to protect the privacy of the girls and their families.

Lynn is 13, blind, retarded, epileptic and has little useful speech. She is a very docile teenager who likes to play on a pogo stick. With supervision and assistance she can dress herself.

Valerie is 12, blind and deaf as well as severely retarded, according to court testimony. Her mother contracted rubella when pregnant with Valerie. The girl has frequent convulsions and can dress herself only with continuous prompting. She can feed herself, but often forgets to chew. She is a diabetic, and she is self-abusive.

Susan, 12, whose mother also contracted rubella, is blind, deaf and retarded. The principal of her school for the blind has testified that Susan is a "particularly strong and violent little girl" who bites, hits and kicks other children and sometimes adults. She has poor toilet hygiene and cannot dress alone.

The planned surgical procedure is a hysterectomy, which would involve removal of the uterus and ovaries, and therefore the girls would not be able to conceive or menstruate.

Only Susan has begun to menstruate and school officials testified that this has been extremely traumatic for her. Anne Lasser of Oak Hill School in Hartford said that the staff noticed when Susan was menstruating she became "more irritable and seems to be more easily frustrated in her simple learning tasks."

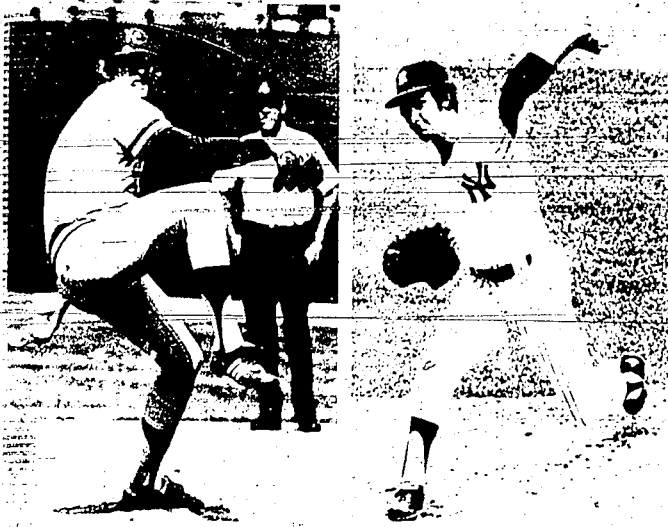

Her attention span is shorter and she is more likely to thrash around aimlessly. We are certain she is losing some educational opportunities because of these periods.

Ms. Lasser told the court that because Susan did not comprehend what was happening to her during menstruation or when it would end, her tantrums were so severe she "sometimes has to be restrained during these periods."

She turned to the courts.

PAUL SPLITTORFF OF KC AND DON GULLETT OF YANKS enjoy pressure of pitching in the "big ones."

Gullett, Splittorff eager for mound confrontation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southpaw Don Gullett and Paul Splittorff, both of whom seem to thrive in "pressure cooker" situations, welcomed their spots on the firing line for Wednesday's pivotal first game of the American League championship series between the New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals.

Gullett, who has won four of his last five post-season starts while a member of the Cincinnati Reds, pronounced himself "physically fit" from a recent neck ailment Tuesday and outlined his plans to tame the Royals, winners of 102 games this year — tops in the major leagues.

"I've got to keep their speed men off the bases," said the 35-year-old Gullett, who, in his first season with the Yankees, was 14-4 and 2.40 versus the Royals. "When you do that, you can then go one-on-one with their power men, John Mayberry and Al Downing."

Gullett, who injured his ankle while beating the Yankees in the first game of last year's World Series, was characteristically enthusiastic about being named to open this year's AL championship series.

"I'm looking forward to it," he said, "because no matter how you look at it, you can't treat this like any other game. Experience is the best teacher, but I can't just throw my glove out there and expect to win. You've got to go out and work."

Splittorff, who is 16-6 this year and 2.00 against the Yankees, was equally enthusiastic about his assignment.

"The way I've pitched against the Yankees I think I deserve this start," said the 30-year-old left-hander who also was credited with a victory over New York in his only playoff decision last year. "Last year I didn't think the Yankees were better than we were. They just happened to be the team that qualified for the World Series."

Although it takes three victories to qualify for the World Series, most observers look at the first game as the key, especially for the Royals who hope to gain a split of the two games in New York and return home to their artificial surface where, at season's end, they were nearly unbeatable.

To gain that split, their chances would most seem to hinge on Splittorff, since Royals manager Whitey Herzog is planning on either Larry Gura or Andy Hassler — neither of whom has shown any signs of consistency — to pitch the second game.

"Splittorff is the pitcher most likely to give the Yankees trouble," said Detroit Tigers manager Ralph Houk. Earl Weaver, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, went a step further: "He's the only one."

Meanwhile, Yankee manager Billy Martin, who on the eve of the playoff opener once again found himself in a reported rift with his boss, George Steinbrenner, was taking steps to reduce Splittorff's efficiency. For his first game lineup, switch-hitting Roy White, who has been stumping against left pitching of late, will be benched in favor of right-handed hitting Lou Piniella. Further, Martin has inserted righty-swinging Cliff Johnson as his designated hitter.

The only other change by Martin was the moving of third baseman Graig Nettles, the Yankees' leading home run hitter with 37, to White's customary No. 2 spot in the order.

Herzog's order remains much the same as it was all year — with shortstop Fred Patek, second baseman Frank White and designated hitter Hal McRae as the men Gullett was most referring to about keeping off the bases. The one change Herzog made was Joe Zidek, a right-handed hitter, playing left field in place of Tom Poquette, a lefty batsman.

The Yankees won it last year — with shortstop Fred Patek, second baseman Frank White and designated hitter Hal McRae as the men Gullett was most referring to about keeping off the bases. The one change Herzog made was Joe Zidek, a right-handed hitter, playing left field in place of Tom Poquette, a lefty batsman.

Houston, Portland State placed on NCAA probation

MISSION — Kan. — UPI — Portland, Ore. — State University and the University of Houston (Tex.) were placed on one-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tuesday for infractions in their intercollegiate football programs.

Portland's infraction involved permitting two student athletes to play through the 1976 season while ineligible under the NCAA five-year rule.

Houston was cited for recruitment violations on a "young man considered by the school as one of the top football prospects in the country."

In accordance with NCAA policy none of the athletes or coaches involved was named.

The probation prohibits the schools from competing in any post-season football games and from appearing on the NCAA-controlled television series of programs during the 1977-78 academic year.

Arthur R. Reynolds, chairman of the NCAA

Committee on Infractions, said Portland's violations were "a result of the institution's improper interpretation of a fundamental NCAA eligibility rule, as well as nonobjective administrative procedures of the university which effectively precluded official notification of the proper application of the regulation to the two student athletes involved."

The committee also alleged Houston's head football coach, an assistant coach and a representative of the university's athletic interests were involved in February 1977 in arrangements for the mother of a prospective student-athlete to obtain a bank loan which she used to purchase an automobile for her son.

Another Houston violation involved arrangements by an assistant coach for a rooming party for the girlfriend of a prospective student-athlete to obtain a bank loan which she used to purchase an automobile for her son.

1977 T-Bird didn't help Houston case

HOUSTON (UPI) — Last spring, Darrell Shepard, one of the state's top school football quarterbacks, told the University of Texas he would accept their scholarship offer. But Shepard instead signed a Southwest Conference letter of intent with the University of Houston. Two days later the Odessa schoolboy was driving a 1977 Fordbird T-Bird when his name written in script across the trunk.

The NCAA office in Mission, Kan., last Tuesday announced the University of Houston football program had been placed on one-year probation for the illegal recruitment of Shepard.

Several team members said they had been told of the probation. The probation is retroactive to Sept. 20, 1977.

The sanction disqualifies the Cougars from participating in a bowl game this season and will prevent them from making television appearances for one year beginning Dec. 4.

A current contract calls for the Houston-Texas A&M game Dec. 3 to be televised.

School officials repudiated head Coach Bill Yeoman and assistant Coach Melvin Brown.

The NCAA alleged Yeoman, an assistant coach and a representative of the university's athletic interests were involved in February 1977 of helping secure the bank loan for the car from the Bank of Brazoria, which is located by a Houston alumni.

Another Houston violation involved arrangements by an assistant coach for a rooming party for Shepard and his girlfriend to Houston in a privately owned apartment.

Yeoman said his team, which shared the SWC championship in its initial season in the league last year, was being harassed.

"I'm glad we're in the Southwest Conference, make no mistake about that," said Yeoman. "But there are people in this conference out to harass us."

Yeoman said it was unusual the NCAA took only four months to conduct its investigation of Houston. He said normally such an investigation takes much longer than four months.

The Cougar coach said he told the Infractions Committee of the NCAA he had arranged the loan for Shepard's car.

"As I explained to the Infractions Committee, if you count arranging a loan as an infraction, then, yes, I arranged it," said Yeoman. "I told them I arranged it."

Yeoman said assistant Coach Gary Mullins talked to Shepard after a game last fall but he did not know Mullins had visited with Shepard.

The Houston coach said he and his staff had been open and honest with the NCAA.

"In this whole thing," said Yeoman, "no one tried to hide anything. Nobody tried to do anything sinister."

Shepard was unavailable for comment Tuesday, but teammate Danny Davis, the Cougars' No. 1 quarterback who is lost for the season with an injury, said there was no resentment towards Shepard.

"I don't think you can blame Darrell Shepard for anything that has happened," said Davis.

House probes NCAA penalties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee has opened an investigation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in connection with its penalties against the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and other universities.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the House Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations, said Tuesday the panel already has started its inquiry. He said the probe was prompted by a request from Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., and 17 other House members from 13 states.

Santini, a member of the Moss subcommittee, made the request after the NCAA put the Nevada basketball team on probation for two years and ordered the suspension of its coach, Jerry Turkkanian, for alleged recruiting violations.

Moss said his panel has "received evidence from Nevada" concerning alleged abuses of authority by the NCAA as well as reports of similar problems from other major universities.

"The subcommittee will attempt to determine such things as whether the NCAA is violating any antitrust laws, whether the investigative methods of the NCAA provide for due process, and whether the penalties assessed to violating institutions, athletes and coaches are fair and equitable," he said.

"The NCAA possesses the unbridled authority to ruin the careers of athletes, destroy coaches' professions and deal staggering blows to the athletic reputations of its member institutions," Santini said.

Pitt not yet ready to risk quarterback

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — It's been a week since Pitt doctors gave Matt Cavanaugh permission to resume playing with a flexible cast on his broken left wrist, but the senior quarterback is still waiting for the nod from Coach Jackie Sherrill.

Whether or not Sherrill will start Cavanaugh, or his competent backup, freshman Rick Trocano, in the 14th-ranked Panthers' game at Florida Saturday night won't be decided "until later in the week," Sherrill said Tuesday.

"If Matt does not go through this week's practice with consistency and do the things we want him to, we will not start him," Sherrill said. "I don't want Sherrill to start Cavanaugh to do to show that this team can survive the wear and tear contact. "We won't put him in until he's been banded around a bit," Sherrill said. Cavanaugh's first contact drills were to take place at Tuesday evening's practice.

Sherrill's delay in returning Cavanaugh to the lineup is somewhat surprising considering the coach's feelings Sept. 10, when Cavanaugh broke his wrist the first quarter of the season opener against Notre Dame.

Two different quarterbacks failed miserably trying to finish the game against the Irish, who were able to rebound, via Panther fumbles, from a 34-0 deficit to a 19-9 victory. The debacle left Sherrill and his team praying for a miracle; the team's offense had been built around Cavanaugh, and without him, it feared total collapse.

During the next seven-day period, Sherrill turned in desperation to still another backup quarterback, and this third choice, Trocano, turned out to be the answer. As flamboyant and confident as his red hair makes him appear, Trocano stepped in to lead the team to three straight victories.

McCovey, Soderholm comebacks cited

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Willie McCovey, a one-time Most Valuable Player who had to earn his spot on the roster of his old team, the San Francisco Giants, was named National League comeback player of the year Tuesday by The Sporting News.

Eric Soderholm, sidelined in 1976 by knee surgery and resulting complications, earned the American League honors for his play with the Chicago White Sox.

At 30 McCovey was one of the few bright spots for the Giants this season, slugging 28 homers, batting .282 and driving in 86 runs. The big first baseman also hit his 17th grand slam homer, setting a league record.

McCovey returned to the Giants after a short exile with the San Diego Padres, who cut him after a poor season last year.

Like McCovey, Soderholm appeared to be at the end of his career after his injury season of 1976. But he was signed by the White Sox as a free agent and responded with an effort that helped keep Chicago in the American League West race longer than most observers expected.

He finished the season with 25 homers, 68 RBIs and a .280 batting average.

TF foursome takes Jackpot golf finale

JACKPOT — Kevin Packard, Mike McLean, John King and the McLinn family provided the birdies Tuesday to run away with the mixed four-person team golf tournament that concluded Jackpot's competitive season.

Dan Carleton and Ed McLinn topped the McLinn family for a two-day total of 236, some 52 strokes under par. Packard had 16 birdies of 69 and 70 in steady, the thing while Dan McLinn posted her best-ever round at 63.

J. Hollingham, C. Hollingham, Spence Cuhon and Mary Cuhon, they had 255.

At 258 were L. Antencio, M. Antencio, Robert Rumbaugh and Helen Rumbaugh while Everett McNulty, Zara Wakewood, Don Whitney and Edie Whitney were sixth at 259.

An all-Jackpot crew of Joan and Ron Bremer, Duane Downs and Noel Years were sixth at 164.

Hounding out the top 10 were Donna Michael, Charles Michael, Andy Anderson and Della Wilson, 269; Darrell Lawley, Judy Lawley, E. Garrett and Melba Aslett, 270; E. Kneer, R. Kneer, (Chris Williams and Howard Johnson 479 — and — Bert — Sorenson, Sergene Sorenson, Betty Rames and Kay Famese, 283.

Ali will fight Spinks or Righetti

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali will defend his heavyweight title early in February against the winner of the Leon Spinks-Alvin Righetti bout, Bob Arum, president of Top Rank Inc., said Tuesday.

Arum said he has signed contracts with Ali and his manager, Herbert Muhammad, plus Spinks and Righetti calling for the champion to receive $3.5 million and the challenger between $2.5 million and $3 million.

Arum said the bout is the leading site. Other potential sites, he said, are New York's Madison Square Garden and Las Vegas' Hilton Hotel. Arum added negotiations are underway with all three networks for home telecast of the bout.

Arum said he expects to announce an exact date and location for the bout by early next week.

The fight between Spinks, the Olympic light-heavyweight champion from St. Louis, and Righetti, the unbeaten (26-0) Italian heavyweight, will take place in November, said Arum. The bout, also promoted by Top Rank, probably will be held in Las Vegas, he added.

Arum said the contract with Ali and his manager was signed on Aug. 19 and prevents the champion from signing for another bout in the interim. Spinks and Righetti signed a week later, he said.

Ali, like Spinks a former Olympic light-heavyweight champion, outpointed Earnie Shavers last Thursday night at Madison Square Garden to retain the heavyweight title.

Pat's offensive linemen return to fold

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Maybe Chuck Sullivan put it best when he said, "It'll be nice just to concentrate on football again."

Sullivan, legal counsel to the New England Patriots and son of their owner, breathed a sigh of relief Tuesday as offensive linemen John Hannah and Leon Gray ended their 23-day walkout and decided to play the rest of the season. The Patriots promised the two all-pros their contracts would be renegotiated when the season ends.

Hannah and Gray left the team one hour before the Sept. 11 preseason game against Atlanta after the Patriots refused to renegotiate their long-term contracts.

"Like everybody else, I'm just glad we got this resolved for now," Sullivan said during a news conference at the team's offices. "I think we will be able to take care of everything at the end of the season. But right now it'll be nice just to concentrate on football again."

Hannah and Gray returned just before the 5 p.m. deadline set last week by the NFL Management Council in its grievance hearings without their agent, Howard Stusher. The return represents a victory for owner Billy Sullivan, who said he felt he'd be letting the 27 other NFL owners down if he caved in to the contract demands.

"I'd like to say Leon and John made the decision to return to the ballclub under terms of their previous contract and the conditions of the hearing," said Coach and General Manager Chuck Fairbanks. "At the conclusion of the season, we will negotiate in good faith with the players."

The decision ended speculation Hannah would ask to be traded and Gray would sit out the season.

The episode seemed to take its toll on both Hannah and Gray. Hannah, who went home to his Albertville, Ala. farm during his rest, said he was close to quitting the game. "I was very, very, very close to retiring," said the 1971 first round draft pick from Alabama. "As a matter of fact, in my mind, before the grievance committee met I was going to give up pro football."

But I got assurances from Chuck (Sullivan) and Billy that at the end of the season they will renegotiate. We were so close before that I think we can work it out."

Hannah said he decided to return "late last (Monday) night. I was sick with the flu or something. I couldn't sleep. I had a lot of time to think about it."

Gray, who stayed at his home in Boston's Jamaica Plain section during the holdout, said he watched the Patriots' losses to Cleveland and the New York Jets on television.

"I felt very much as a player when we lost," he said. "Even though me and John weren't playing, as a player I felt we shouldn't have lost those two games. Now, all I can do is get back in there and shoot for winning our next 11 games."

Both Hannah and Gray said they received mostly favorable letters during the holdout, but Hannah says a letter from a friend saying, "you're not going to make any money working on a farm" was the most negative

"I think most everybody felt like we did. Let's get this thing resolved and play some football," said Gray, picked up in 1973 as a free agent. "We're sorry about the situation, but we thought it was our only choice. Gray also said he didn't think hard-reactions from teammates would cause any problems, either.

'Bama quarterback lost for season

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama quarterback Jack O'Rear re-injured his knee during practice Tuesday and is probably out for the remainder of the season, Coach Bear Bryant said.

O'Rear, a senior, injured his knee in a preseason workout and has not seen duty in an Alabama game this year. Bryant said although a doctor's report is not expected until late Wednesday, he did not expect O'Rear to play during his last season of competition.

"It happened on the fourth or fifth play," Bryant said. "It was just like the first time; he went out and tried to cut back and it just collapsed on him." Bryant said O'Rear, who was co-first team quarterback with Jeff Rutledge last year, asked to test his knee in Tuesday's practice.

"I told him I would wait and ask the trainer," Bryant said. "When the trainer said go ahead, we put him in."

The Crimson Tide takes on No. 1-ranked Southern California in a nationally televised game Saturday.

Bryant said explains for the game will be Mike Tucker on defense. Donnie Faust on the specialty teams and Ozzie Newsome and Bob Cryder on offense.

THE IDAHO DEPARTMENT STORE - ON THE MALL - DOWNTOWN, TWIN FALLS

Lynwood Shopping Center now 20 years old

SPACIOUS PLAZA WAS ADDED TO LYNWOOD CENTER IN 1972
... it connects shops in main area with covered mall structure

Only two remain from opening

VI GOSSETT MANAGES GIFT SHOP
... she joined Lynwood work force in 1957.

TWIN FALLS — Only two of the employees who joined Lynwood Shopping Center businesses in October, 1957, when it officially opened are still working for their respective "bosses."

Jack Asher, an employee of Safeway has been cutting meat in the store's meat department for 20 years. He was one of the workers when the new Safeway store opened in the shopping center and has worked there uninterrupted for 20 years.

In addition Asher finds time to be active in community affairs including Boy Scouts. He is spending the 20th anniversary of his job on vacation, however, camping in the mountains.

The other veteran employee, VI Gossett began with Penny Wise Drug Co. working in the lunch counter.

"Of course the lunch counter closed when other food services came to the shopping center and I changed jobs. I enjoyed the lunch counter work. In fact I baked home made pies as a specialty. Even now some of our Penny Wise customers comment on missing the lunch counter," she said.

Today VI is manager of the new Hallmark gift shop, a part of the Penny Wise firm. The gift shop opened a year ago in January and VI transferred from the main store where she had worked in gifts, greeting cards, toys and appliances.

"When I was interviewed for the job 20 years ago, they told me one of the benefits would be three weeks of vacation after I had been here 10 years. I didn't even listen to that. It never occurred to me I would stay 10 years — much less 20 years," she said.

JACK ASHER, MEAT CUTTER
... is a charter Safeway employee

Both Gossett and Asher say they have enjoyed their 20 years in Lynwood.

"I don't know if I would be good for another 20. Sometimes I think I could work forever and then again it might be nice to quit one of these days and take it easy," Mrs. Gossett said.

She has worked for three Penny Wise managers including the current one, Jack Muldon, and says she has seen a parade of employees come and go in many of the stores and shops.

TWIN FALLS — Twenty years ago the Lynwood Shopping Center introduced an all new concept in shopping to Magic Valley when it opened with three business firms.

Magie Valley's first shopping center now has 50 stores and businesses serving residents of southeastern Idaho and northern Nevada. In the 20 years of progress, the development has grown to include every type of business and service shoppers could wish for, including a bank and post office.

John Bishop, one of the original developers along with Ray and Earl Nielsen, recalls the shopping center's first business was the Standard service station on the corner of Filer Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard.

"We didn't actually consider it a center, however, until we opened in October, 1957 with Penny Wise Drug Co., and Safeway's," Bishop says.

He said he and the other developers never dreamed their center would grow to its present size which is now at capacity for the land involved.

"In fact, there was a time we thought we would donate a site for a city fire department and felt we would fill up our extra space with churches," he said.

"We think we are now fully developed. About all we are looking to in the future is improvement of the shops and services we now have," he said.

Bishop says the business firms located in Lynwood do between $15 million and $20 million in business annually, and provide jobs for 300 to 400 area residents. This figure varies depending on business changes and expansions.

"Lynwood Shopping Center is still the most complete center in Magic Valley and possibly in the entire state. There may be some larger area covered, but we have more types of business and service than any others can offer," he said.

As in the case with many new commercial developments, Lynwood Shopping Center had something of a stormy beginning. Many owners of residential property adjoining the site objected to a shopping center on grounds it would lower property values, ruin their views or otherwise prove detrimental to the north part of the city.

Today many owners of residential property find it an advantage to be located in the proximity of so complete a shopping complex.

Bishop and others involved in Lynwood business say the intent of the center was never to detract from the downtown shopping area. In fact it has served as a complementing facility, he says.

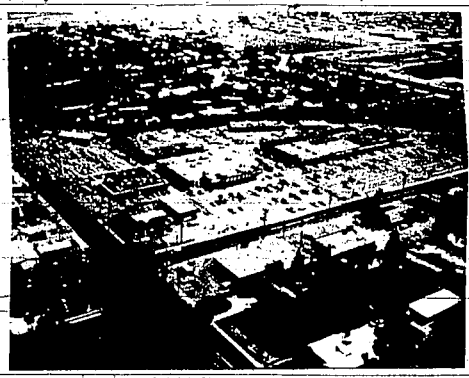

Many of the shops in Lynwood are the offspring of downtown stores. Hudson's Shoes opened a branch store in Lynwood early in the center's development. King's has large stores in both areas and the Twin Falls Bank and Trust moved a branch to the center a number of years ago, expanding it to double the size during the 1972 improvement program.

In August, 1972 the shopping center reached a milestone with completion of the $300,000 plaza which provided the new north entranceway to the main portion of the shopping area.

Two additional businesses, the sandwich and flower shops were also added at that time. Most of the existing businesses remodeled to provide modern rear entrance areas and display windows opening onto the plaza, the covered mall connecting the shops.

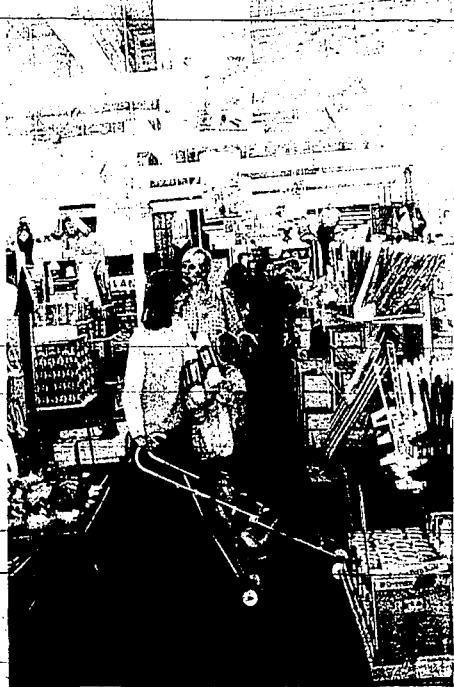

Since that time the two original firms of Penny Wise and Safeway have again remodeled and expanded. Penny Wise took over a former dress shop area and opened a Hallmark gift shop. Safeway expanded to include a number of new features and provide all new modern supermarket facilities and services.

Businesses in Lynwood, some of which have more than one shop or branch include Safeway, Penny Wise Drug, King's, Van's Department Store, Greenwall's Furniture, Twin Falls Bank and Trust, Big Boy Restaurant, Norge Cleaners, Sherwood Sports Center, Sullivan's Music, Hudson's Shoes, Alexander's Men's Wear, Artie Circle, Mode O'Day, Avco Finance, L. # Idle tractors symbol of farm protest against prices

SPRINGFIELD, Colo. — Out here near the western limits of the plains, the tractors that helped produce this year's beautiful grain harvest are at rest.

But many of them stand not in farmyards but in menacing ranks along the highways, bearing signs warning passing motorists that their owners intend to stop growing this country's food supply unless they get better prices for their products. Next spring, they stand along roads leading to such old towns as Springfield, Walsh and Lamar, Colo.; Cimarron and Dodge City, Kan.; Pampa, Texas, and Holbe City, Okla.

"This tractor strikes on Dec. 14," proclaims a sign leaning against a big wheel in a row of farm machinery besides U.S. 160 a few miles south of here. "We strike Dec. 14 for 100 per cent of parity," reads another. The warnings mark the beginning of what many farmers of this area believe will become a national movement by the Dec. 14 deadline they have set for achieving parity, or produce prices that they call a fair return for their costs of production. The movement, which they have named Agriculture of America, is growing in a geometric progression, they say, as a result of meetings like one held the other night in Dodge City.

"We've reached as far north as Minnesota, as far south as southern Texas, as far west as Washington state, as far east as Delaware," a Colorado farmer, one of the four founders of the movement, told 200 Kansans.

"I know you don't like the word strike," said 38-year-old Laurence Blitner. "But do you like these words any better?"

Blitner spoke for nearly an hour, holding his audience with dejected words that seemed to mirror their thoughts. He described their current plight, the reason for the strike movement, the depressed prices for their products, the rising costs of everything they need, but, their steadily increasing debt.

"Unless we get 100 per cent of parity, we will not buy anything we don't have to have," he said. "We will not sell next year we will not produce."

He was interrupted with applause when he said, "Hell, I don't need to tell you not to buy. You're not going to buy because you can't pay for what you've got now."

Parity, as farmers use the term, is the price level at which, under an old formula, their products would bring them a return they consider fair in relation to the goods they must buy. It is based on the relationship between prices and costs in the years 1910 to 1914, a period of relative farm prosperity.

Parity for wheat would now be about $5 a bushel, the price of wheat at country-grain elevators now is about $2 a bushel, although the farmers receive additional income in the form of subsidies before the year is out. The farmers say the subsidies, under the new farm law, still will not let them break even.

When Blitner finished speaking he drew a standing ovation and the Kansas farmers clustered around him to learn how they could help promote the movement.

Others stood in clusters discussing the idea. One of them, Harold Rebel, nodded as he remarked: "It's so simple it just might work." The key part of the strike idea, Blitner explained, is to take advantage of a provision in the farm bill just signed by President Carter. Under that law, farmers can get price support loans from the government and store their grain as collateral instead of selling it. The loans total, after storage costs, about $2 a bushel.

The goals of the group, other than higher prices, have never been clearly defined, but radical revisions of the new farm bill would apparently be required to meet their demands.

Among a dozen or so farmers interviewed after the Dodge City meeting ended with a standing ovation for Blitner, none opposed the strike plan, although some were skeptical that enough farmers would cooperate to make the plan work.

What most of them seemed to like was Blitner's saying: "We don't want any chairman; we're not going to have any officials. We'll have no dues and no membership lists." Every cooperating farmer, he said, would become a strike leader.

The day after the meeting Blitner, tall and sunburned under a broad-brimmed white hat, returned to the little cinderblock building on the edge of this small farm town officers; we'll have no dues, movement is being run. The building was turned over to the group for its headquarters by Tri-State Sprayers, a crop dusting firm that will be inactive until the next growing season.

Its two rooms were crowded with farmers and farm wives, answering telephones, making lists of everyone who called and mailing flyers explaining the movement to everyone whose address they could get.

"They're all volunteers," said Blitner. "We've got more than we can use." He said funds for the movement have come from donations.

From four farmers talking over cups of coffee early this month in the office of a local fuel distributor, Blitner said, the strike movement has farmers in 45 states who have called to tell of plans to join the strike movement, and strike organizations have been formed in more than 20 states.

for less than they cost to produce. And we can't afford to buy anything, anyway."

"We're for them 100 per cent," said Mrs. Gerald Piltman of Dalton, Neb., who is publicity chairman of an organization called WIFE, an acronym for Wives Involved in Farm Economics.

Optimistic as the farm groups are, there is skepticism among leaders of old-line farm organizations, such as the National Farmers Union, whose president, Tony Dechant, said in a telephone interview:

"I'm all for them. I hope they succeed, but I just don't see how they can."

His own organization, Dechant recalled, tried and failed to organize a purchasing boycott about 10 years ago, and the National Farmers Organization tried withholding members' products from markets in that same period, also without success.

"It's been tried many times," said Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland. "It's never worked."

The young farmers leading this movement are not impressed. "We just might make some history here," said Suhler.

The "REAL" American Farmers Will Standup For 100% Parity Or "Strike" Dec. 14 1977 "No Dough No Sow" offered by Greg Suhler, another of the organizers, confirmed that the movement has attracted support in several states. "Our tractors are going to be out there on the road, too, as soon as we get our beans in," said Bruce Pressnell of Clarkfield, Minn. "We can't afford not to join. We can't afford to sell our crops at these prices."

Colorado seeding due federal help

DENVER (UPI) — The federal government will provide about $200,000 to help drought-stricken Colorado with a cloud-seeding program over the mountains this winter, state officials said Tuesday.

Harold Sherman, director of the Colorado Natural Resources Department said the state, trying to recover from one of its worst droughts in history, would have nearly $1 million to spend on cloud seeding this winter.

Sherman's department is charged with overseeing all weather-modification operations in Colorado. State legislators in February appropriated $300,000 in state money for an emergency cloud seeding operation to increase snowfall in the mountains. The program was called a success, even though snowfall remained dramatically reduced from previous years and cost ski areas millions of dollars in lost business.

Sherman said the federal government has provided Colorado with money for experimental research in cloud seeding, but never funds for a regular program. He said the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation now has promised $600,000 to carry out a weather modification program in the state.

The state legislature earlier this year appropriated $300,000 in state funds for cloud seeding this winter. Sherman said other groups, such as ski resort communities, have pledged another $150,000 for the program.

Rain slows grain seeding in Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — Rain slowed seeding of grains in Idaho last week, especially in the northern part of the state, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today. But the additional moisture provided chances for fall grains to emerge to good stand and also improved fall forage for livestock. Lower ranges are beginning to show green in many localities.

potatoes are the only major Idaho crop where harvest is behind last year. Potato harvesting by the weekend was 15 per cent completed. Last year at the same time the harvest was 25 per cent finished. Dry beans were 85 per cent combined by the weekend. A year ago, the bean harvest stood at 50 per cent. Harvest of third cutting alfalfa hay at 65 per cent was 10 per cent ahead of last year.

Filer cow wins

Oilmen, beef producers join for stronger voice

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Independent oilmen and independent beef producers, both smarting about federal legislation, have joined forces in hopes of gaining more strength in selling their viewpoints.

The Texas-based Independent Cattlemen's Association and the Oklahoma-based Energy Consumers and Producers Association have formed the Independent Food and Energy Producers, Inc. They plan to work for legislation to help cattlemen and oilmen and to oppose legislation they think hurts the two industries.

"We live in an organized society," said Bud Stewart of Muskogee, Okla., a politician hired as executive director of the energy group. "Our goal is a national organization of all independent food and energy producers," said rancher T.A. Cunningham of Austin, Tex., president of the ICA and the new group. The two men discussed their plans in a recent interview at Tulsa, where Cunningham had addressed the energy group. "Organize, organize, organize," said Cunningham. "That's where all the pressure comes from — politically and everywhere else."

Cunningham said the organization probably will spend 50 per cent of its energy on educating the public and the opinion makers about their viewpoints. He said farmers are dependent on oilmen and the two can work together because they have more to gain than to lose. Stewart, an unsuccessful Republican candidate for Congress in 1976, said the two groups — independent cattlemen and independent oilmen — have more common interests than differences. He said both groups believe in the need to return to a strict supply-and-demand private enterprise situation and both deal with the land.

Cunningham agreed. "Everything that energy gets it comes from the land," he said. "All of the food comes from the land." "They (cattlemen and oilmen) are already married, whether they like it or not," he said. "They're already in bed together." "Actually, we think we can make 98 per cent of the people in both industries happy," Stewart said the cattlemen need the oil and gas produced by the independent energy producers to work their ranches. "The fact remains if we don't produce it," he said, "they won't have it to consume."

Nutrients dwindling in soils

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The depletion of soil nutrients is reducing agricultural yields in some parts of the world to a point where the inhabitants are bordering on starvation, according to Nobel Laureate Norman Borlaug.

Borlaug, director of the International Center for Maize and Wheat Improvement in Mexico City and a pioneer in agricultural research, said nutrients must be put back in the soil with the aid of fertilizers.

Spud sale nets time

CHEYENNE (UPI) — As far as U.S. District Judge Paving T. Kerr is concerned, 40,000 pounds is not small potatoes.

Alfred David Scott, a 33-year-old truck driver from New Orleans convicted of stealing a truckload of potatoes, was sentenced to five years imprisonment Monday. Scott was charged with selling the potatoes — which were to have been landed from Bakersfield, Calif., to a broker in Michigan — to a Rock Springs, Wyo., supermarket last year for $1,500.

Cops chase stray cows

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati police wound up playing cowboy all Monday afternoon.

A minor auto-trailer accident on busy Interstate-75 about noon sent about 50 cows wandering away from the truck, most of them in search of grass. Police said they wound up in cemeteries and people's back yards.

Colorado beet crop plunges 40%

DENVER (UPI) — Colorado's sugar beet farmers, faced with the worst market in years, will harvest one of the smallest crops in state history this year, a state agriculture official said Monday.

Erwyn Witte, chief of the markets division for the Colorado Agriculture Department, also predicted a slight decline in the state's onion harvest, but said it would be nowhere close to the drop in sugar beet production.

The sugar beet harvest, which begins this month, is expected to bring in only 1,300,000 tons of beets, down 40 per cent from last year. Sugar producers reduced their crops because of the low prices being offered on the market.

Despite the poor sugar beet outlook, Witte is predicting a near-record crop of 62 million bushels of corn, a 10 per cent decline in the onion harvest, and a potato harvest equal to 1976.

Witte said the corn harvest would get under way in two weeks. Yields are excellent, ranging to about 100 bushels per acre, and the total harvest will approach the 1976 record of 62.4 million bushels. Corn will be the state's leading crop. The agriculture official said shipments from the 1977 onion harvest were running ahead of last year in northern Colorado, while the Western Slope onion fields were just reaching maturity. Onion averages were up 15 per cent over a year ago, but yields will be down 10 per cent due to hail damage and water shortage. The onion harvest is expected to reach nearly four million 50-pound bags.

The potato harvest is nearing completion in northern Colorado and is about one-third completed in the San Luis Valley, he said. Witte said the Centennial, a popular new potato variety, was in large supply this year, although the traditional Russet Burbank remains the predominant variety. Only 10 per cent of the 1977 crop will be the round red varieties, principally the Red McClure. About one million bushels of Colorado apples are expected to be marketed through fresh market channels.

Sentences cut for 'Gate trio

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judge John J. Sirica Tuesday reduced the prison sentences of John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman after hearing taped pleas in which each confessed wrongdoing in the Watergate conspiracy and expressed "remorse" and "repentance."

Sirica, the chief Watergate judge, heard the prison camp tape recordings made by the three Nixon White House officials, mediated his decision over-lunch-and-then reduced the sentence of each to one-to-four years imprisonment.

That makes Ehrlichman eligible for parole in little more than three weeks — on Oct. 23 — Haldeman and Mitchell eligible for release next June 20.

Each had been serving 2½ to eight year sentences for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up, but Ehrlichman began his sentence voluntarily a year ago while Mitchell and Haldeman entered prison June 20.

Before he announced his reduction of sentence decision, Sirica made clear he would not accept the argument that the three men should be freed because Richard Nixon had been pardoned by Gerald Ford.

"I cannot condone or excuse anyone just because Mr. Nixon got a pardon," Sirica said in response to the contention of Haldeman's lawyers that it had been unfair to prosecute and punish Nixon's lieutenants while sparing the President himself.

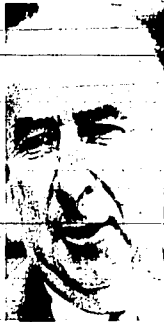

But Sirica was apparently moved by the willingness of all

JOHN EHRLICHMAN

H. R. HALDEMAN
... remorseful

JOHN MITCHELL

three men to confess their guilt and express sorrow publicly for the first time, and with their pleas that they are beset by grave financial and family problems.

In shortening the sentences, Sirica followed the action he has taken in all the other Watergate criminal cases since the first one, involving the Watergate burglars themselves, came before his bench five years ago.

Sirica, a U.S. district judge, had ordered a federal probation official to interview the three as part of his preparation for considering their sentence reduction requests.

The results, made public in a dramatic courtroom scene, produced the first public admission of wrongdoing by any of the three has made in his own words.

In the recordings, there was none of the hang-tough defiance Mitchell and Ehrlichman displayed during their 14 week trial.

Ehrlichman sounded politely confident in the recording. Mitchell was quiet, almost humble in tone.

Only Haldeman sounded about the way he always had — his voice betraying little emotion, and neither bravado nor humility.

Haldeman, 50, once the most powerful man in the White House next to Nixon, seemed to make most the most sweeping acknowledgement of wrongdoing and remorse.

"I have the deepest personal regret for everything I have done," he said. "I realize the damage it has done to the nation and I will carry for the rest of my life the burden of knowing how greatly my acts contributed to this tragedy."

"He repeated he had a 'very real remorse ... I am sorry for the damage to our government system ... I have a very strong feeling of repentance.'"

Ehrlichman, 52, who is confined in a prison camp in Sanford, Ariz., also expressed remorse, saying he got into trouble because "I had an exaggerated sense of my obligation to do as I was bidden without exercising my independent judgment."

He told of how he began to rationalize that "things will get better" and eventually he saw himself in the White House "as the better of angels."

"Looking back, there were all kinds of red flags," he said, "and had I been wiser, I certainly would have checked out when I realized I was in a moral dilemma."

But instead he said, "I made a mistake. I abdicated my moral judgments and turned them over to someone else."

"I am guilty in law and in fact and in these months in prison I've come to accept this reality."

Mitchell, 64, said to be in ill health, said he was "truly sorry for and regretted those actions of mine that resulted in my conviction."

He said that since coming to prison his thoughts "have convinced me that my actions resulted in my conviction."

"I accept that outcome," he said. "My reflections since the trial have led me to considerable remorse and distress."

"I want to give this court the complete assurance that no set of circumstances ... would ever again cause me to perform such acts."

Mitchell, who has said he needs surgery for a hip ailment, is confined at the minimum security facility at Maxwell AFB, in Montgomery, Ala.

State liquor funds bringing in interest

BOISE (UPI) — An investment program for Idaho's general account and more for its public school fund, counties, cities, and other taxing units has been put into effect.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon effected the program as a result of an attorney general opinion.

The treasurer's office began direct investment of the state's liquor account after Attorney General Wayne Kidwell said idle liquor monies should be invested separately. The interest, he said, should go to the liquor account.

All interest from idle money investment has, by law, gone to the state general operating account in the past, Moon said.

Investment of liquor monies separately brought in nearly $16,000 in interest for the liquor account in September. But Moon said the general account lost that much interest.

The treasurer also converted 49 separate liquor bank accounts to the state's direct deposit program.

"All state bank accounts are supposed to be maintained only in the name of the state treasurer," Moon said. "Converting these separate liquor accounts into our own regular bank accounts not only brings them into compliance with state law but also results in the money being received by the treasury much faster so it can be invested earlier and earn more interest."

The balance of the independent state liquor accounts will be converted into the state's bank accounts by the early part of next year when the banks they are located in can certify their capital and surplus to the state.

The state liquor dispensary, in the past, maintained about 100 separate bank accounts outside the treasury system, Moon said.

Virus hits

key cherry districts

PROSSER, Wash. (UPI) — Washington's two major sweet cherry growing areas, the Yakima Valley and near Wenatchee, have been hit with outbreaks of little cherry virus.

Washington State University's Irrigated Agriculture Research and Extension Center plant pathologist Gaylord Mink said the orchards have been nearly disease-free since the 1930's.

Washington produces about one-third of the nation's sweet cherries.

Mink said the principal treatment is to uproot diseased trees and burn them.

Mink said the sooner growers act, the less damaging the virus will be.

He added the sweet cherry industry must either convince the state Department of Agriculture to survey the extent of the virus or conduct its own survey.

In the 1950s the agency initiated a diseased-tree removal program.

Mink said the extent of the current program will not be known until an inventory is taken.

However, he added, "there are orchards where there seems to be uncomfortable high proportions of diseased trees."

Automatic warnings

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — State Traffic Safety Director Wall Friel, who dreamed up portable jails for drunk drivers, is beginning a program using portable radar-equipped signs to warn motorists about speeding.

"The signs will show the legal speed limit and a digital readout of how fast a car is traveling. State troopers may, if they are on hand to take notice of the results."

Friel said the radar scanner will cover as many as four lanes of traffic at once. He said each 3-by-6 foot sign will be completely portable.

Government 'violates' water act

Retiree back at work

HERSCHEL Bold, 80, is shown here keeping fit standing on his head in his office. Bold is one of 123 people over 65 who are employed full-time by Bankers Life and Casualty Co. in Chicago. A mail clerk and messenger, he worked 42 years for the U.S. Post Office when he retired, but came back to work after three years.

WASHINGTON — Undisclosed and unprosecuted by the Environmental Protection Agency, hundreds of facilities of the federal government across the country are violating the antipollution requirements of the Clean Water Act.

A majority of the federal violators are military installations that "have not cleaned up their sewage to the levels required by law. But a wide range of other facilities — from national parks and fish hatcheries to atomic energy installations — have also failed to comply with clean water standards.

Last June, just before a July 1 deadline set by the law for meeting the first stage of the program to clean up the nation's water, the environmental agency held a news conference to announce plans for enforcement action against "industries and municipalities that were not meeting the deadline. At the time it was announced that 600 industrial dischargers and about 2,000 cities would not be in compliance.

Nothing was said publicly by the agency then, or since, about continued water pollution by federal installations after the July 1 deadline.

However, noncompliance reports prepared by the EPA, which were obtained by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, contain the names of several hundred federal facilities that were not in compliance with the law.

When asked, an agency official said there was no exact count of the total number of federal facilities in violation of the water pollution law, but that it was estimated that some 25 per cent of all federal installations were not in compliance.

John Robinson, a chamber of commerce official who keeps track of environmental issues, said the chamber sought the information because the EPA made such a "big thing" out of industrial violators but failed to mention that the federal government was a major water polluter.

The agency admits that violations of the Clean Water Act by the government is a serious environmental problem. "We think the federal government should be the first to comply with the law," said Thomas C. Jorling, assistant administrator of the EPA for water and hazardous materials.

In a telephone interview, Jorling said that under President Carter's administration, the federal instances would be required to comply. "We will use every method, including our enforcement machinery and budget measures to ensure that they do obey the law."

So far, however, the agency has not taken legal action to force the federal installations to comply with the clean water standards. Until recently, Jorling said, "it was understood" that federal agencies, including the EPA, do not sue other federal agencies.

Dissidents eye overthrow plan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two influential Filipino dissidents who escaped from a Manila prison camp last week hope to stay in the United States to work to overthrow Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and "restore democracy" to their homeland.

Eugenio Lopez Jr., former publisher of the defunct Manila Chronicle, and Sergio Osmeña III, grandson of the Philippine president during World War II, applied for political asylum Monday and were granted temporary freedom pending a decision by U.S. immigration officials.

At a news conference several hours later, they plotted to kill Marcos and reports that they would be able to help U.S. authorities, had they been able to escape.

They also promised not to keep silent during their stay in the United States.

"We have joined the Movement for a Free Philippines," Lopez said. "Serge and I have agreed that we will have to do our best to overthrow that tyrant back in Manila and restore democracy to our country."

"I don't think we escaped to this country to live a life of Riley, but rather to be able to do something — concrete and effective to tell the American people about what is really happening back home and then hopefully to be able to do something to bring about the rapid ouster of that dictator back home."

Lopez also said he and Osmeña "welcome, dare and challenge" Marcos to ask for their return, claiming he could not produce evidence justifying the request.

Steve Piskakis, an American married to Lopez, sister who also helped plan and carry out their escape, said leaders of his movement had discussed and discounted the possibility that U.S. officials might refuse to grant Lopez and Osmeña asylum.

"We cannot imagine," he explained, "that the government, particularly under the presidency of Mr. Carter, who has spoken so boldly and bravely about human rights, would deny asylum to hostages who were freed ... to come to the country of freedom."

U.S. officials said the decision whether to grant them asylum would be made within three months. A key factor in the decision, they said, is whether the men would be subject to persecution if forced to return to their own country.

Researchers link cigarettes, heart attacks

© N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — Two Cornell University researchers have identified a substance in cigarette smoke that activates the blood clotting system, a finding that could explain the link between cigarettes and heart attacks.

The substance is a protein present in both tobacco leaves and cigarette smoke, according to a report published in the current issue of the Journal of Experimental Medicine.

The researchers' findings open a new avenue of investigation into the way cigarette smoking is believed to damage the heart as well as the lungs and blood vessels.

In recent years, several epidemiological studies have identified cigarette smoking as a risk factor for heart attacks as well as for lung cancer and other pulmonary diseases. Pathologists have correlated the severity of arteriosclerosis with the degree of cigarette smoking.

However, such links have been based primarily on statistical studies and not on results of biological tests in the laboratory.

Now, Dr. Carl G. Becker and Dr. Theodore Dulan, who are experimental pathologists at the New York Hospital-Cornell University Medical Center here, have reported results of tests in which a substance called rutin triggered the blood clotting reaction. Rutin was found to activate Factor XII, a blood substance that plays a key role in initiating the clotting process.

Blood clots through a cascade system. In this system, Factor XII triggers the release of another substance called bradykinin, which in turn is a major activator of platelets—the microscopic sized fragments in blood that help form a clot.

The blood clot experiments were an outgrowth of studies that the Cornell researchers did on the fibrinolytic properties of tobacco.

Becker and Dulan identified a glycoprotein that is a complex compound that consists of a sugar and protein in tobacco leaves. They reported that it produced an allergic reaction in 12 of 31 volunteers when injected under their skins.

In further studies, they identified the glycoprotein as containing rutin. Rutin is present in tobacco and a wide variety of other vegetables such as eggplant, green peppers, potatoes and tomatoes. They also identified rutin in cigarette smoke.

When rutin is ingested in such foods, they are presumably much less likely to be absorbed through the intestines than through the lungs when it is inhaled in cigarette smoke. The researchers said they are exploring studies to investigate the role of rutin containing substances in foods.

In reading scientific papers, Dulan said in an interview that he learned that a substance called quercetin was known to activate Factor XII. Dulan said he also knew that rutin was composed in part of quercetin. But he said he did not know if the tobacco-containing rutin would activate Factor XII.

Accordingly, the researchers began another series of experiments that showed that the rutin in tobacco leaves and cigarette smoke could activate the blood clotting system.

Firm to rehire 300 in pregnancy firings

CHICAGO (UPI) — American Airlines has agreed to rehire and pay a total of $2.7 million to 300 stewardesses fired between 1965 and 1970 because they became pregnant.

The lawsuit charged the airline violated the Civil Rights Act of 1964 because it fired the stewardesses after they took leaves of absence to have their babies.

Charles Pressman, a lawyer for the stewardesses, said Monday's agreement is one of the largest civil rights case settlements ever.

About half the stewardesses have returned or will return to work, Pressman said. After a 1974 agreement with the airline, 87 returned to their jobs.

U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr heard the lawsuit, which was filed in 1970. McGarr said he had been assured no current airline employees would lose their jobs as a result of the settlement.

Company officials refused to comment on the case.

2 CSI youths awarded grants

TWIN FALLS — Two students have been awarded $600 scholarships by the Central Exchange Foundation, a non-profit arm of Farmers Union Central Exchange, Inc. (FUCENEX).

Teresa Cristobal, Twin Falls, and Kelly Human, Tinsley, were awarded the agricultural and vocational training scholarships by Cenex representative Bob Holloway.

The two CSI students, the Twin Falls students to be awarded the grants, can use their scholarship money over the next two years to pursue agriculturally-related training.

The Cenex grants to Cristobal and Human are two of 38 scholarships the company awarded this year.

According to Holloway, recipients are selected on the basis of merit and financial need.

The Cenex Foundation has awarded about $23,000 in agriculturally-related scholarships this year in the 13-state area it serves.

He never loses in election

DETROIT (UPI) — John Awicki knows how to make political names stick — to the doors of your car — or anywhere else you might want to glue the signs he peddles for a living.

Awicki sells campaign bumper stickers, buttons and placards to candidates — often unloading his wares on politicians running against each other.

"You might say I'm the man who never loses an election," he said. "I've got winners and losers every year, and every year I'm still in there running."

Awicki presently is working for both candidates in Detroit's mayoral campaign as well as for the 18 candidates running for City Council.

"I don't get into gossiping about the election, or about what the other guy's doing, or about how much money he's spending," Awicki said. "I go involved with politicians without getting involved with politics."

Awicki, 35, got started in the campaign booster business with his father seven years ago. They now handle about 3,000 candidates nationally in an average year.

Although about 80 per cent of his business is concentrated in the Detroit area, he spends considerable time recruiting out-of-state prospects by attending rubber chicken banquets and fundraisers.

"You've got to be a little bit of a politician in this business yourself," Awicki said. "I've got my own file of when every elective office with over 20,000 votes comes up. If there's a guy who looks promising, why he's likely to hear from me."

Awicki said despite recent emphasis on radio and television advertising, bumper stickers and signs are more popular than ever.

"A bumper sticker on a car may only carry a candidate's name, but it says a lot more than that," he said. "It says that there's a person who thinks this guy is good enough to display his name in public. It's personal. It makes a statement."

Tree's age 1,200 years

SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK (UPI) — Large redwood tree in the Bulch Park area which officials said might be 1,200 years old.

The tree was ordered cut down by Tulare County Parks officials because it was tilting and there was a danger of it falling.

The final decision to fell the tree came after a large crack appeared in the tree about 15 feet from the base.

Park officials said the tilt was increasing daily.

Burley gets US education grant

WASHINGTON — Rep. George Hansen (R-Idaho) received word today that Idaho has been awarded three education grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Idaho Joint School District 151 in Burley will receive $10,000. The money will be used for the development and operation of new programs, services and activities which meet the special educational needs of children 3 to 18 years of age who have limited English speaking ability and who come from environments where the dominant language is not English.

The Boise Independent School District has been awarded $43,750. This money will also be used to sponsor language programs for students with limited English-speaking ability.

The Shoshone-Bannock Tribe has been awarded a $32,150 grant for Indian Education Special programs and projects. The funds will sponsor demonstration projects for improving educational opportunities and provide training for persons to serve Indian children as teachers, leavers, aides, social workers and ancillary educational personnel.

Follow your own "stress type"

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One of the world's foremost authorities on stress says human "raceshows" shouldn't worry about overdoing it and human "turtles" can go ahead and take it easy.

Dr. Hans Selye, who has studied the effects of stress on humans for over four decades, was in San Francisco this weekend to speak at a seminar on stress for doctors, nurses, social workers, and psychiatrists.

"We are under stress all the time," said the philosopher-physician in an interview. "Stress is the nonspecific response of the body to any demand placed upon it" and can be good or bad depending on how it is handled.

"Some people are stress seekers," he said. "They need it to live and be happy. This is good and they should seek it. They are like raceshorses."

"Other people are stress avoiders. They want to be placid and easygoing. This is what they need to live and they should avoid stress. We call them turtles."

Selye warned that individuals who go against their nature are likely to end up with chronic headaches, stomach trouble, heart disease and even cancer.

"If a person is a stress seeker and his body is falling apart, the last thing I would ever diagnose is that he be imprisoned on a bench for three months," Selye said.

"He will do nothing but run up and down the beach and think about Wall Street. He might as well be on Wall Street and learn about the type of person he is and develop the disciplines that will help him live in harmony with the stresses of his life."

However, the 79-year-old doctor said, "If a person is a turtle and he is forced to run like a racehorse every day, he will have trouble. If he should want to be a benchwarmer, then he should do that."

"Whatever he does, a person must simply strive to live with his nature and be useful. Usefulness can simply be that a man has good will towards others."

30,000 young Idahoans observe week

MOSCOW — From the Palouse to the Snake River Plain, more than 30,000 Idaho young people aged nine to 19 will join some 5.4 million of their peers in observing National 4-H Week this week.

Themed "4-H — Freedom to Be," the annual observance gives 4-H members, their leaders and parents an opportunity to review the past year's work and plan for the coming year. It also focuses attention on the values of 4-H as an informal educational program that enables youth to learn real-life skills, develop leadership abilities, and become productive citizens.

"In Idaho, enrollment in project work has been fairly stable in recent years," noted Corinne M. Rowe, University of Idaho 4-H specialist. She said some fluctuation has occurred in special interest groups, nutrition education, programs, television series, camping and other short-term activities, "but that is to be expected by the nature of these programs."

Although the Idaho Cooperative Extension Service operates in just 42 counties, 4-H programs are available in all 44 counties and at the North Idaho Agency, Lapwai, and the Fort Hall Indian Reservation, Rowe said. Extension staff in neighboring counties provide youth in Shoshone and Boise counties with 4-H opportunities.

While the ratio of girls to boys remains near two to one, more boys are enrolling in home economics projects and more girls are taking part in animal science programs.

"This 'breaking down' of barriers merely reflects our changing society with its reduced emphasis on traditional sex roles," Rowe said.

In 1976, the last year for which complete statistics are available, 40 per cent of Idaho 4-H'ers lived on farms, about the same proportion as during the past five years. This compares with a national level of 22 per cent and a Northwest figure of about 33 per cent.

"This reflects Idaho's rural nature," Rowe explained. "We don't have the large inner city areas where most of the national enrollment increases have been, so we concentrate on improving the quality of our programs and expanding the variety of our offerings."

and community resource development programs in 1977, a number of changes have occurred in the youth education movement which began 75 years ago as informal groups that supplemented rural schooling with practical training in corn and hog raising, soil testing, vegetable and flower gardening and home canning.

"Even though Idaho is essentially a non-urbanized area, each state received a portion of this money," Rowe said. "Here, we tried to put it into our larger population areas where we hired and trained program assistants and paraprofessionals to work with our county agents to expand their contact with youth."

Labor leader asks limited pay hikes

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Prime Minister James Callaghan Tuesday served notice on Britain's labor unions and employers alike that they must keep pay hikes this year within the 10 per cent anti-inflation limit set by his Labor government.

"I say to all on both sides of industry — back us on sack us," Callaghan said in a one-hour keynote speech to his governing Labor party's annual conference here.

"Every negotiator knows," Callaghan said, "that if the first settlements exceed 10 per cent, then this will set a pattern and all the settlements will exceed that level."

He warned that if the 10 per cent level is exceeded "Britain will become uncompetitive in foreign markets and prices will start rising again."

Callaghan's appeal for restraint in pay demands was heard in almost total silence by the 1,200 delegates, many of whom were labor-union leaders.

He received an almost perfunctory 30-second standing ovation at the end.

Callaghan made these other main points:

— Rhodesia: The government will continue to push the joint Anglo-American package designed to hand over power to a black majority government in 1978.

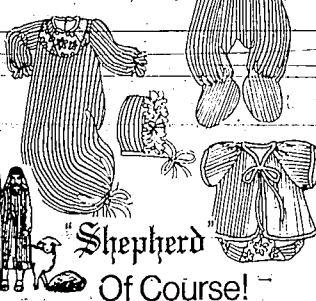

— The government is determined to crack down on street violence by rival extremist groups in Britain. It called for full support for the police in this.

— Britain's huge North Sea oil reserves will not last more than 30 years and the nation must not squander them but must use them for industrial development and modernization.

Callaghan pledged the government to continue its battle against high unemployment in Britain, which currently exceeds 1.5 million or nearly 7 per cent of the nation's work force.

"It is a world problem and it will require world solutions," Callaghan said. But he said the Labor government is doing everything in its power to alleviate this.

LONDON (UPI) — The Latimer Road gang, London's newest bunch of criminals, has been busted by police.

Patrolmen keeping watch on the Latimer Road area of suburban Shepherd's Bush spotted the gang climbing into a nursery school and sneaking out again with armfuls of bacon, bread and butter from the school kitchen.

"They gave up without a fight and police hustled off the five members of the mob to the local station.

Police said the leader is a 7-year-old boy. With him was his 6-year-old girlfriend, another girl aged 7, and a 5-year-old boy. The youngest villain was a 1-year-old girl, aged 3, police said.

Police said all five — who were not further identified — were given milk and biscuits, a scolding and a ride home in a squad car to their parents.

WASHINGTON — Contrary to earlier reports, the 15-nation Nuclear Suppliers Conference failed last month to formalize restraints on future exports of sensitive nuclear technology, but it did succeed in heading off a move to terminate the existence of the conference.

State Department officials told staff members of a Congressional committee concerned with nuclear policy in a confidential briefing last week that France, with the initial support of the Soviet Union, had sought to terminate the existence of the conference, which is made up of countries already engaged in or capable of exporting nuclear technology.

The State Department officials said they had counted it a triumph of American diplomacy that the group, which was initiated by the United States in April, 1975, as a means to curb the spread of nuclear weapons, even agreed to go on meeting in the future.

"The French didn't want to press ahead," a staff member said in reporting on the briefing given by Joseph S. Nye, Deputy Under Secretary of State for Security Assistance, who led the United States delegation to the conference's meeting on Sept. 20 and 21 in London.

The staff member also said he had been told that contrary to reports in the Washington Post and The New York Times the day after the London meeting, which was held in secrecy, the conference did not agree to formalize restraints on future exports of "sensitive" materials — being balked by West Germany and France. The Post report quoted sources close to the meeting and the Times report was based on information provided by State Department officials.

In 1975 West Germany contracted to sell Brazil a uranium enrichment plant and a nuclear fuel reprocessing facility, both of which could be used to produce materials for atomic weapons, France contracted in 1976 to sell Pakistan a nuclear reprocessing facility, which has the same potential.

While United States officials concerned with nuclear policy have taken some comfort from public assurances by the Bonn and Paris governments that they did not plan to make such sales again, the Americans have been disappointed that they have been unable to persuade either country to put this commitment in writing.

The meeting also failed to reach agreement, as was also previously reported, that nuclear importing countries should pledge not to detonate atomic devices, even for peaceful purposes.

It was India's detonation of an atomic device in March, 1974, supposedly for peaceful purposes, that caused Secretary of State Henry H. Kissinger to bring about the formation of the Nuclear Suppliers Conference in the first place.

The conference consists of the United States, the Soviet Union, France, West Germany, Canada, Britain, Japan, Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy, Sweden and Switzerland.

The United States position at the group's meetings in London has been to develop a series of uniform guidelines and principles that would prevent the inadvertent transfer of weapons-manufacturing potential and would discourage free market competitiveness in the bidding for nuclear technology sales, which could be sweetened by the addition of "sensitive" equipment.

To that end, the United States delegations have fought for adoption of a code that would make nuclear imports subject to tight international safeguards, inspections and controls to be administered by the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Relatively loose guidelines were formally adopted by the conference members in January, 1976.

The London meeting closed with agreement to meet again sometime next year, according to Nye.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Steve Symms announced today field hearings on average limitation provisions of the federal reclamation law will be held in the West in November and urged Idaho farmers affected to testify.

Hearings will be Nov. 7 in Spokane, Nov. 8 in Denver; Nov. 9 in Fresno, Calif., and Nov. 10 in Palm Springs, Calif.

Symms said enforcement of provisions of the law could result in the breakup of farms watered by reclamation waters and containing more than 160 acres.

"The 160-acre limitation was proper when it started, but now there need to be some drastic changes," Symms said.

He said the law needs to be changed because the 160-acre farming unit is not economically feasible in Idaho.

Company denies corruption charges

PARIS (UPI) — The French Petroleum Company Tuesday issued a "mass formal denial" of any involvement in corruption charges facing former Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Mrs. Gandhi is accused, among other things, of having misused her official award of an offshore drilling contract to the Compagnie Francaise des Petroles for $174 million while other firms could allegedly do the job for $4 million.

"We categorically deny any involvement in India's corruption affair," a spokesman for the French company said. "This is a most formal denial."

The spokesman pointed out that the contract to develop the "Bombay High" oil deposit was ratified in April by the coalition government of Prime Minister Morji Desai which defeated Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party in elections last March.

Services held for Rhodesian baby

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — The body of a six-month-old white baby snatched from her nursemaid and murdered by black guerrillas was cremated Tuesday in an emotional chapel service.

The tiny coffin containing the body of Natasha Glenn, the Rhodesian guerrilla war's youngest fatality — lay covered by a blue velvet sheet on a bier in front of a floor-to-ceiling metal crucifix.

Men and women wept in the chapel at the Warren Hills garden of rest as a minister led the congregation in saying the Lord's Prayer and the coffin was lowered out of sight prior to cremation.

The child was killed last Thursday on a farm in eastern Rhodesia's Moleletse district — one of the 113 white civilian fatalities of a five-year-old war that has also claimed the lives of more than 4,000 black insurgents, nearly 2,000 black civilians, and 420 security forces members.

Glenn, 26, and his 22-year-old wife, Marinda, were ambushed by another group of insurgents "about 200 yards from the farmhouse."

The couple's truck skidded into a culvert, but they managed to run to safety.

Glenn told the Rhodesia Herald that when they returned to the farmhouse they found their daughter lying face down on the veranda.

He said the black nursemaid reported that the gang which attacked the farm numbered about 25 men. The baby was asleep in her cot when they came.

"One of the terrorists grabbed her and wanted to know what she had on her back. She said it was her baby. But the terrorists pulled back the towel and saw the white face," Glenn told the Herald.

"She yelled out that the baby had been born white, that it was an albino. But the terrorists ripped Natasha from her back and threw her across the veranda. Then she was stabbed."

Moses Abramowitz, Franco Modigliani, George Stigler and Gottfried Haberler, all working in the United States, were also named in the article.

Frenchmen Francois Perroux, Edmond Malinvaud and Maurice Allais were also on the Veckas Affair said.

The article said American candidates for the prestigious prize included Herbert Simon, author of "Organizational Few people ever really taste the toothpaste they put in their mouths. Or so U. S. Navy researchers contend. When sailors at sea ran out of toothpaste, they were given cake soap to dab on their brushes. Nobody complained. And that led the military analysts to run further tests from which they concluded that toothpaste flavors almost never actually get back to the taste buds.

One sort of feminine costume, and only one, has been in continuous fashion for more than 5,000 years, certainly far longer than any other. Can you name it? The Sari of India.

Most recent surveys indicate that if you stand 5-feet-4 and weigh 132 pounds, young lady, you're exactly average in those two significant statistics.

Conviction rate in the crime of arson nationwide only jumps about 1 per cent.

A MILLION DOLLARS

Q. "Louie, I've tried your last two suggestions about how I could make a million dollars. Neither worked. What next?"

A. Simple. Design a set of motor-driven, circular, suction brushes that cling to the sides of swimming pools as they sweep away the algae. Make royalty checks payable to this byline, please. No hurry. Send them annually.

Q. "Is there any company in the world that manufactures chastity belts?"

A. Know of none, anymore. Couple years ago, such a British firm, named Ann Hugessen, closed down for lack of sales.

Q. "What's the body temperature of a turtle?"

A. Same as the air temperature around it, or printrac.

CARTOON

In Italy, early artists drew their preliminary sketches on pieces of pasteboard. The Italian word for pasteboard is "cartone." It's where we got our word "cartoon." And "cartoon." Our language man says some word enthusiasts like to think the first cartoonists were so named because they executed their art on leftover cardboard cartons. But that's not quite how it was. "Cartoon" came to be a rough translation of "pasteboard drawing."

Pet store owners say they, too, have an accurate economic indicator. When rhinestone-studded collar collars fail to sell, a recession is in the offing, they believe. Understandable. Incidentally, not everybody realizes the original poodles weren't simpering lap dogs but rather fairly fearless hunters with a knack for working in water. The name poodle came from the German word for "splash."

"How long does it take to detect the flavor of a vitamin B-12 injection in the forearm?" Inquires a customer. About eight seconds. Tastes sort of peanuty.

...appointed

Farmer named to TF board

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls farmer has been named to the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board of trustees.

County Commissioners named Donald Sharp to the board earlier this month. He replaces board member Robert Brackett, who resigned.

Sharp said he agreed to serve on the hospital board after his name was submitted to commissioners as a possible replacement for Brackett.

"The MVMH board is a non-partisan group appointed by county commissioners to oversee and make decisions on the running of the hospital."

Although it derives most of its revenue from patient fees, the hospital receives nominal funding each year from the county. The county also owns the hospital property and buildings.

Sharp said he had never served on a board of directors prior to accepting appointment to the MVMH board.

IPUC grants rate increase to Washington power firm

BOISE, (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission granted a "pass-through" rate increase for Washington Water Power Co. today to offset an increase in the utility's cost of its supplier of natural gas.

Commissioners authorized the firm to increase rates to all Idaho customers by 2.08 cents per kilowatt-hour, effective last Saturday.

The impact of the increase on a typical residential customer consuming 150 kilowatts of gas during a winter month will be to add $3.80 to the current billing of $38.50.

Commissioners rejected two proposals by the utility, which will result in Bunker Hill Co. and Potlatch Corp. paying a little more per therm than proposed while residential and other customers will be paying a little less.

Washington Water Power had proposed an increase of 2.06 cents per therm to Bunker Hill and Potlatch, and a slightly higher 2.03 cents per therm to all other customers.

The higher rate proposed for all but the two industrial customers reflected the cost of what the company termed distribution losses, which the utility contended should not be charged to the two large volume customers since they did not use the company's distribution system.

Commissioners rejected that portion of the increase, noting a portion of it was to offset the cost of company-used gas, which the commission determined Bunker Hill and

Since the record did not indicate how much of the increase accounted for company consumption, the commission ruled the company could recover that amount as an operating expense during a general rate case.

The IPUC also changed the company's proposed method of crediting its customers for stored gas which was purchased before Northwest Pipeline, the supplier, increased its rates. Washington Water Power proposed basing the credit on projected sales during the 1977-78 heating season, but the commission accepted a staff proposal basing the credit on 1976-77 historic sales.

Charge dropped in plot to steal Presley's body

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Trespassing charges against three men accused in an alleged plot to steal Elvis Presley's body for $10 million ransom were dismissed Tuesday after police said information tipping them to the scheme was "unreliable."

City prosecutor Robert Donahue dismissed his own prosecution witness, Ronnie Lee Adkins, who was among the men arrested Aug. 28 near Forest Hill Cemetery.

Adkins, 26, was revealed after the arrests as the "police informant" who told of the bizarre scheme to steal the body of the entertainer from his concrete crypt and copper casket.

Police who staked out the cemetery captured Adkins, Raymond M. Green, 25, and Bruce Eugene Nelson, 30, as they fled from the mausoleum containing the bodies of Presley and his mother, Gladys Smith Presley.

The men were charged only with misdemeanor trespass when police failed to find any burglary tools, explosives or weapons which Adkins allegedly claimed the men would use.

The bodies were undisturbed but police said the men climbed over the cemetery walls and approached the marble building, where they rattled the heavy iron doors leading inside. Officers said the men were apparently frightened away by the lights of a passing car.

Donahue said the charges were being dropped because "we can't stand behind any statements made by him (Adkins)."

"They were not there to steal the body," said Jay Friedman, an attorney for Green and Nelson. "He (Adkins) had lured them out there under some false pretenses."

Questions filed on Ray

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Jerry Ray, brother of the convicted assassin of Martin Luther King Jr., has filed a series of questions in federal court concerning alleged FBI surveillance of the "Ray brothers and King."

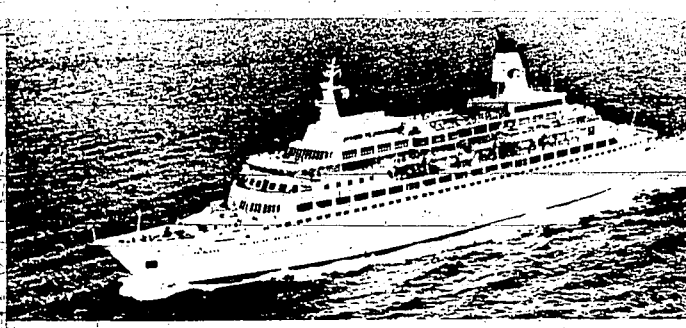

Ray filed the interrogatories Monday in connection with a libel suit he filed earlier over the publication of the book "The Making of an Assassin." James Earl Ray is serving a 99-year sentence at Brushy Mountain State Prison in Petros, Tenn., after pleading guilty to the 1968 slaying of King.

Jerry Ray, now living in Marietta, Ga., claims he is libeled by accounts which said "that I knew my brother James killed Dr. King, that I was told by him he was going to do it, and all sorts of other lies."

His suit contends the FBI cooperated with the author of the book, George McMillan, to provide information on the King case.
