West gets hands off pledge

DENVER (UPI) — President Carter, participating with the governors of 10 Western states in a forum on the nation's water policies, Saturday pledged the federal government will not try to assume control over state water supplies.

The President told members of the panel he expected to have a study on the situation by February and would offer no programs until he has the report in his hands.

"There absolutely will be no federal preemption of the states' authority over water supplies," he said to applause from several hundred onlookers.

"We must make sure that federal water programs are effective," he said.

Since assuming the presidency, Carter has met several times with members of Congress from the West and was repeatedly told of their concern that he would favor federal control of water distribution.

His comments in Denver appeared aimed at defusing this concern.

It was pointed out during the question-and-answer session that 94 per cent of all federally owned land is located in 16 Western states, most of which have water supply problems.

Carter quickly said, however, the problem of adequate supplies of useable water "applies all over the nation, not just the West."

He called on Congress to pay "new attention" to the situation and recited a list of the areas that need further examination including pending Indian land claims over territory in watersheds. He said it is not known at this time what effect future court decisions might have on such Indian claims.

Governors in attendance were Wesley Bolin of Arizona, Richard Lamm of Colorado, John Evans of Idaho, Thomas Judge of Montana, Mike O'Callaghan of Nevada, Jerry Apodaca of New Mexico, Robert Straub of Oregon, Richard Kneip of South Dakota, Scott Matheson of Utah and Herschler of Wyoming. Lt. Gov. Wayne Sastead represented North Dakota.

In addition to the public forum, Carter met with the state heads in a separate session to discuss problems on other matters.

Members of the Western Governors' Conference said President Carter will be asked to repeat his promise the proposed federal water policy would not jeopardize state and local water rights numerous times in the future.

"There will be absolutely no federal preemption of state of private prerogatives in the use of consumption of water," Carter said during a panel discussion on water, prior to a 30-minute meeting with the 12 governors.

The administration's plan to evaluate water use and control throughout the country and make changes caused concern among Western officials and water users.

"It is going to be very necessary for him to repeat that statement. Several of the governors asked him to and I know he will have to again and again later this year," said Gov. Richard Lamm after the meeting with Carter.

According to Lamm, the private session with Carter allowed each of the governors to express their particular concerns with most of their comments centering on water, agriculture and energy development.

"I was very pleased to hear the President's statement that the government is not going to preempt state water rights," said Montana Gov. Tom Judge. "But I am going to want to hear it again and again."

Judge said the governors from Oregon, Idaho and Wyoming each pressed Carter on the large amount of land set aside in their state's by the federal government as possible wilderness areas.

He said cattle producing states requested quotas on beef imports and most of the governors expressed concern over low farm prices. According to Judge, the President's response was encouraging.

"I think we have a far better relationship with this president as governors than with any of the three presidents in my memory," said Judge. "He encourages us to speak up even if we disagree."

New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca said he believes Carter's promise about existing water rights was sincere as was his interest in the region's problems.

A man to man talk

Treaty approval lost cause?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two months after President Carter signed the Panama Canal treaties, their supporters in the State Department and Congress are fearful the White House is losing its battle to win popular support for the accords.

One glowing department official likened the White House offensive so far to a "fleet of mosquitoes."

The treaties must be ratified by two thirds of the Senate to take effect. However, polls showing widespread public disapproval are pushing many senators against them — or at least forcing the lawmakers onto the fence.

That department official working to explain policy to grass roots America says the latest public opinion polls show no significant shift.

"Maybe in two or three months we'll see a shift, but for the moment nothing significant has happened."

An experienced diplomat and a treaty supporter, the official said, "What we need are heavy bombers, but what we have is a fleet of mosquitoes. Contrary to what some people think the federal government just does not operate a propaganda machine."

Carter budgeted time to stump for the treaties during his present coast country tour. And negotiators Sol Linowitz and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker are planning to follow up.

But the State Department has only about 25 persons qualified to explain the intricacies of the accords. It depends on local groups to provide expenses since the department has no extensive funds for traveling speakers.

Yet Sen. William Scott, a staunch treaty opponent, doesn't believe the administration is at a disadvantage.

"The evidence continues to accumulate that the President intends to utilize the full force of his office as chief executive to change the views of individual senators and to change the opinions of the American people," the Virginia Republican said.

The Senate will probably be asked to vote on the treaties in March or April, according to Senate sources.

In preparation for that vote, the Foreign Relations Committee held extensive hearings, Sept. 26 through Oct. 14, which some members hoped would "educate" the American public.

"The hearings were judicious but they lacked excitement," Ronald Reagan, the most prominent treaty opponent and a surefire draw, declined to testify. "He said he couldn't fit it into his schedule," one committee staffer said.

"Reagan should have been put on the stand and squared off against Secretary of State (Cyrus) Vance to give those hearings some drama," said another staff member.

This official suggested Reagan should have been subpoenaed and forced to appear.

And there are other problems.

Foreign Relations panel staffers are disappointed by what they feel was State Department failure to provide adequate support for their hearings.

Korea warned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said Saturday South Korea's refusal to cooperate with the investigation of the Capitol Hill influence buying scandal could affect future votes on U.S. aid to Seoul.

The West-Virginian said he feared many lawmakers would take note of South Korea's action. Byrd told reporters at his weekly news conference modifying aid to South Korea could affect the stability of the Far East.

He urged the South Korean government to avoid the difficulties by cooperating with U.S. efforts to win the testimony of Tongsun Park, the alleged middleman in the Korean effort to win favorable U.S. policies by dispensing favors and gifts to members of Congress.

A pair of Justice Department lawyers traveled to Seoul to talk to Park, but were forced to work through the South Korean government in negotiations to arrange for his testimony.

Byrd's comments came one day after President Carter asked Congress for permission to leave $800 million worth of assorted U.S. military equipment in South Korea to offset the gradual withdrawal of U.S. ground forces.

The South Korean government Saturday denied it ran a Capitol Hill bribery operation and dismissed congressional testimony to that effect as "hearsay."

"Any wrongdoing that is said to have been done was not done with the knowledge, approval or cooperation of our government," said Seoul's Washington embassy in a statement intended to rebut three days of House testimony by former Korean officials.

It also, in effect, challenged the statements of special House Ethics Committee counsel Leon Jaworski and his deputy, Peter White, who say the covert, eight-year payoff operation can be traced to the Korean government itself.

State agrees to drop suit

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A lawsuit charging a Twin Falls firm with misrepresenting itself to the public will be dismissed within a few weeks, attorneys for both sides said Friday.

The attorneys said they were currently drafting a written agreement which would lead to a dismissal of a state attorney general's complaint against E. Beverly and Associates, a Twin Falls firm which helps its customers acquire loans for a fee.

In a complaint filed in Twin Falls Fifth District Court in August, Attorney General Wayne Kidwell charged the firm's "primary goal is to take out money" from the consumer, rather than obtain financing for potential clients.

In response, Beverly's attorney, Gregory Goss, charged the attorney general's office was "bad-mouthing" the loan institution and "too lazy" to go after real culprits.

But, Rudy Barchas, deputy attorney general, said "We agreed that it wasn't entirely black and white on either side. Some of the allegations made in the complaint didn't prove as serious as they seemed at first."

"There was a great deal of misunderstanding and general lack of communication," Goss said. "But that has been worked out."

Among other things, the attorney general's office had complained Beverly officials were taking from $100 to $2,000 from prospective clients before going out to find them loans.

Beverly officials said they required the "deposits" to help pay for paperwork and office work that must be done when searching for lending institutions which might make the loans.

In the written proposal, Beverly has agreed to tell a potential client before hand, a non-refundable deposit will be collected of one per cent of the loan a customer seeks but no less than $150 and no more than $1,500.

Beverly officials have also agreed to refund about $2,200 paid by five customers in deposits and for securing appraisals.

Goss said Beverly officials had planned to refund most of the money anyway.

In the written proposal, the attorney general's office agrees to drop the case which also charged the firm exaggerated its rate of successfully finding lenders for consumers and failed to disclose the "very slim chances of financing" available to the consumer.

Goss said the suit had definitely hurt the firm financially because of the adverse publicity it caused. Lending institutions had been slow to make loans through the Beverly firm for fear of becoming associated with the lawsuit.

However, Goss said Beverly officials were not "feeling vindictive" and planned to drop the suit on their own.

Though the lawsuit had never reached the trial stage, Barchas said he still felt "it was necessary because it brought the thing to a head."

He agreed the suit may have hurt the firm financially but said he did not think the attorney general's office was responsible.

Getting around obesity posed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two specialists on obesity suggested Saturday that tax rebates and lowered insurance premiums might be one way to encourage Americans to lose excess weight.

Possible financial incentives were one segment of a broad range of proposals offered by the co-chairmen of one of nine panels of a scientific task force working on a 10-year blueprint aimed at controlling obesity and thus reducing illness.

It was estimated as much as 10 to 30 per cent of the American population is seriously overweight. Doctors said obesity can have a role in high blood pressure, gout, diabetes, arthritis, menstrual irregularities and possibly even cancer.

"A small number of people are using most of the medical care and it might be appropriate to try to reward people who take care of their health and contribute less to the overall costs of medical care," said Dr. Albert Stunkard of the University of Pennsylvania.

He and Dr. Aaron Altschul of Georgetown University suggested the government could institute a tax rebate for losing weight, and that insurance companies might lower rates for people who are of normal weight and in good health.

"We recommend research to explore the feasibility of these measures," the two specialists said in a position paper presented at the closing session of a three-day conference on obesity and the American public.

As far as government regulation is concerned, Stunkard and Altschul suggested that food labeling rules be extended to emphasize caloric content of foods and of ingredients that affect caloric content. The Food and Drug Administration now requires such labeling only when the manufacturer makes a nutritional claim for the food or adds nutrients.

They also proposed the government set standards to promote better nutrition such as lowering the fat content of grades of meat and processed meat, and that regulations be established requiring disclosure of caloric content of food in food advertising.

The two specialists recommended the food industry continue to develop more nutritious and lower calorie options in processed foods, and that manufacturers increase the information about calories and nutrients in processed foods.

Another proposed recommendation called for restaurant and food service industries to provide information about the calories and nutrients in the foods they serve.

Congress butts heads over energy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House-Senate conferees working on a compromise energy bill have reviewed only the minor issues so far, yet there's been enough conflict already to signal rough times ahead on the big, disputed issues.

President Carter added to that prospect by exhorting the House conferees to "hang tough" and hold out for the House version that he much prefers to the Senate bills.

The conference, called to resolve differences in the energy measures passed by the two bodies, resumes

Monday with some work remaining on the conservation issue.

Then the conferees will take up a program designed to make industry switch from oil and gas fuels to coal.

The energy conservation bill was considered a "motherhood issue," involving little disagreement.

But in trying to decide the role of utility companies in improving the energy efficiency of homes, the mood of compromise vanished.

Late in the week, for example, Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., cracked that the only thing Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., would compromise on was "the color of the paper we are using."

Dingell told Durkin, a freshman senator, he had not been around long enough to know that senators and congressmen do not take personal swipes at each other under the "rules of civility" of Congress.

"The people of New Hampshire cannot burn comity this winter," Durkin said.

Another time, Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, asked Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., the conference chairman, about the scope of the conference. After much badgering, Staggers finally said, "You have not gotten to the reality of what we are doing here!"

The three non-tax bills that lie ahead offer far more grounds for feuding, since there are much bigger differences between the House and Senate versions.

The coal conversion bill would require certain utilities and industry to stop using burning natural gas and oil and start switching to other fuels.

The House and Senate versions differ on the scope and the exemptions.

Then, on utility reform, the House bill would eliminate bargain rates for bulk users and provide special lower rates for householders who concentrate electricity use during peak hours.

The Senate bill merely establishes ways for federal officials to intervene in state rate cases and argue for conservation through rate design.

And the vastly differing natural gas pricing bills have prompted the toughest talk of all, including Carter's threat to veto any bill removing federal price controls.

$3 million in art carted off

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Thieves stole nearly $3 million worth of ancient paintings, weapons and jewels during the night Saturday from a museum founded by a 19th century British art collector, police said Saturday.

They said the thieves — probably four or five persons of high professional skill — entered the suburban Stibbert Museum through a skylight and carefully selected the more valuable items on display, including a "Baptism of Christ" by 18th century master Giovan Battista Tiepolo and a "Madonna and Child" attributed to Renaissance artist Sandro Botticelli.

Also stolen were a "St. Dominic" by 15th century painter Carlo Crivelli, a "Madonna with Child and Saints" by an artist known only as the Master from Vercucchio and nine other paintings.

The lot included 44 Indian, Malaysian and other daggers, 15 Chinese and Japanese swords, 200 other sidearms, 11 ancient firearms and well over 500 medals, medallions, pillboxes, cameos, coins and the like.

Experts said it was hard to put a money value on some of the exhibits, but $2,840,000 was a reasonable estimate for the entire haul. They said all items were catalogued and photographed and the thieves may therefore have trouble finding buyers for the paintings.

The bulk of the exhibits in the museum comes from a private collection put together in the 19th century by Frederick Stibbert, the son of a British father and an Italian mother. Stibbert fought with the Red Shirts of Italian national hero Giuseppe Garibaldi.

The museum is relatively little known and its admission fee of 34 cents is among the lowest in Florence.

Israel qualifies 'Palestinian'

By United Press International

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Saturday Palestinians living in the West Bank or the Gaza Strip will name Palestinian delegates to the recommended Middle East peace talks at Geneva, not the Arab states or the United States.

In Damascus, government sources said, top Syrian officials met Saturday with Arab and foreign diplomats, including the Soviet ambassador, for talks on Middle East and Arab developments.

Cairo reported the arrival of Syrian Deputy Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Najj Jamil for consultations with Egyptian leaders on current peace efforts.

Israel has agreed to inclusion of Palestinian delegates in a pan-Arab delegation to the Geneva talks. The Palestinians, however, will be excluded from bilateral talks between Israel and individual Arab states.

Dayan, speaking in a weekend interview with the Army radio, said the Palestinian members of the pan-Arab delegation "must be representatives of the inhabitants of Judea and Samaria and the Gaza strip — in simple language, that they be residents who are actually living and present there."

Marine deaths reach 24

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — Search crews Saturday recovered the bodies of six more U.S. servicemen killed in the crash of a Marine Corps helicopter in rugged jungled mountains in the central Philippines, bringing the death toll to 24.

Another 13 men were injured when the CH53 Sikorsky "Sea Stallion" crashed and burned in a ravine Friday during a U.S. 7th Fleet amphibious landing exercise Friday.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said

one soldier suffered injuries during the rescue operations on Mindoro Island, about 100 miles south of Manila.

A U.S. Navy HH-32 helicopter crashed in the Mediterranean sea off Sicily Saturday because of rotor trouble but all eight crewmen were rescued by the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal.

The spokesman at the Subic Bay naval base north of Manila said all 37 men aboard the Marine helicopter were accounted for following an allnight search of the area described as "mostly jungle and very mountainous."

Earlier reports had listed 39 servicemen, including four crew members, aboard the helicopter.

Most of the victims were Marines but the spokesman said U.S. Navy and Air Force personnel also may have been aboard the chopper.

The names of the dead and injured were being withheld pending notification of their families.

Carter, Brezhnev predict SALT agreement

DENVER (UPI) — President Carter, hours after a surprise announcement that a U.S.-Soviet strategic arms agreement may be imminent, toured Strategic Air Command headquarters Saturday and said he believes America has the strength on hand to defend itself.

Carter's schedule on a three-day tour of western states emphasized domestic issues, but he overshadowed those issues Friday night in Des Moines by announcing that a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviets may be concluded "within a few weeks."

He flew from Iowa to Offutt Air Force Base, Neb., for a tour of SAC's underground headquarters, then flew to Denver to discuss agricultural water policy and to drum up support for the Panama Canal treaties.

Later Saturday he was attending a $1,000-a-plate Democratic fund raising dinner in Los Angeles.

During his three hours in the giant concrete bomb shelter that is SAC headquarters, Carter talked on the "red telephone" with Air Force personnel around the world.

Asked afterwards whether he was reconsidering his decision to scrap the B1 bomber and rely instead on SAC's aging B52 force and new cruise missiles, Carter said:

"I think we have an adequate force capability and that we'll have a good improvement with the cruise missile."

"I've really been reassured about our capabilities and training programs around the world. I was able to talk with all our training forces throughout the world and I was favorably impressed."

During his Des Moines speech, which primarily addressed farm issues, Carter said, "I predict that within a few weeks we will have a strategic arms limitation agreement (with the Soviets) that will be the pride of the country. And from that we will proceed to the goal of reducing the number of nuclear weapons in the world to zero."

His surprise announcement was matched in Moscow by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, who said in a speech that SALT II negotiations have suddenly undergone "a definite change for the better."

Congressional sources and State Department officials have said they expect any new agreement with the Soviets to draw some stiff opposition from U.S. military leaders, who fear U.S. negotiators may have offered too much by way of compromise.

Before flying to Denver, Carter entered the cockpit of a giant B52 bomber — the backbone of America's flying defense.

He toured the base with the new SAC commander, Gen. Richard Ellis, a strong advocate of the B1 bomber the Air Force had wanted as a replacement for the B52.

Carter killed the B1 production program in June, saying the pilotless jet cruise missiles and modernized B52s would do the necessary defense job.

Ellis said Carter's B1 decision was "a great shock to me personally," but he said he accepted the decision.

In the telephone hookup to the personnel who are the country's first line of defense, Carter said, "A closeness with which we communicate in preparing for emergency will prevent, as nothing else possibly can, the possible destruction of our nation."

Fifth day of violence shakes Europe

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Leftist demonstrators protesting higher bus fares in Milan and the deaths of Ecuadorian workers and West German guerrilla leaders roamed the streets Saturday hurling Molotov cocktails.

The young rioters threw firebombs and stones at the Ecuadorian consulate, a clothing store, two night clubs, the office of Trans World Airlines and a Mercedes automobile showroom. Damage was light.

Some of the demonstrators were protesting the raising of Milan bus fares from 11 cents to 22 cents.

Others protested the reported death of dozens of Ecuadorian workers during a raid by police.

Still others accused the West German government of responsibility for the deaths of three Baader-Meinhof guerrilla leaders in a Stuttgart prison.

The deaths Tuesday of Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl Raspe, touched off five days of leftist attacks against West German property in Italy.

Targets of bombings and firebombings Saturday included a parked German tourist bus in Bolzano, a BMW showroom in Sassari, Sardinia, a Volkswagen showroom in Reggio Emilia and a Grundig television set repair center in Vicenza.

They raised the number of attacks on West German property in Italy to at least 32.

Supporters of the Baader-Meinhof urban guerrillas Saturday attacked West German companies, legations and tourist buses across Europe in the fifth consecutive day of violence protesting the Bonn government's tough anti-terrorist policies.

Arsonists set fire to eight tourist buses in central Paris Friday night and early Saturday and attempted to burn the offices of the West German tourism offices on the French capital.

A violent explosion severely damaged a Paris apartment where police found explosives and pamphlets favorable to the West German Red Army group.

In the southwestern French city of Toulouse, butane gas bottles were set on fire at the West German consulate, a private German telephone company and a computer manufacturing firm, police said.

The self-proclaimed "Andreas Baader Commando" group claimed responsibility for the Toulouse attacks in a telephone call. The group is named after the leader of the West German Red Army Faction, who died in his cell at Stammheim prison Tuesday with two other urban guerrillas after collapse of a plane hijack attempt to win their release.

In Italy, police reported minor damage from bomb attacks on a parked German bus in Bolzano and a BMW auto showroom in Sassari.

In Paris and the Normandy port of Rouen, graffiti favorable to the West German terrorist groups mushroomed. One sign in front of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris read, "The Red Army Faction Lives On," while another in Rouen proclaimed, (West German Chancellor Helmut) "Schmidt Kills what this Policy Generates."

South African editors warn government

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Nineteen editors-in-chief of South Africa's English-language newspapers warned the government Saturday the crackdown on the black press would not intimidate them.

World editor Percy Qoboza and Weekend World news editor, Aggrey Klaaste.

He also silenced Donald Woods, the white editor of the East London Daily Dispatch and one of the country's most persistent critics of the government's racial policies. Woods was banned for five years and prevented from working as a journalist or columnist.

Wood also must report to the police once a week, remain inside his East London judicial area and may not see more than one visitor at a time.

Kruger also declared 18 black consciousness organizations unlawful and ordered them liquidated, virtually totally muzzling all vocal black dissent.

Criticism, from inside and outside South Africa, followed the move, which local commentators said would lead to the rise of more radical black leaders than the more than 50 who were detained.

The crackdown appeared to have further strained relations between South Africa and the United States. Washington already has recalled U.S. William Bowdler "for consultation."

Charlie thrills southerners

ATHENS, GA. (UPI) — Prince Charles visited historic Charleston, S.C. Saturday, then shuttled to Athens, Ga., to see the second half of the Georgia-Kentucky football game.

The prince received a rousing welcome from the more than 60,000 persons on hand for the game, chatted with the majorettes and was introduced to the captains of both teams. He was also warmly received in Charleston, a city named for Great Britain's last King Charles.

The Prince of Wales walked about "two blocks down" a narrow street in Charleston, with about 2,000 persons lining his route. Many broke through police lines to get a better look at him.

"What you say, Charlie, what you say Charlie baby!" yelled one man to get the prince's attention.

He succeeded and Prince

Charles chatted with the man for a few seconds before again strolling down the street.

"Momma, he shook it, he shook my hand," one teenager screamed as the prince walked away from her.

Prince Charles stopped in front of another girl and asked her her age. She replied she was 10 years old.

"How are you doing on exams?" Prince Charles said.

"Pretty good," the girl replied.

The can crushers

An ecological success story

TWIN FALLS — C.H. Tanner's old Dodge pickup often rattles with beer cans when he and his wife come back from a fishing trip.

The retired fielded farmer isn't a lush.

Mr. C.H. and his wife Mazie are among the dozens of retired people in southern Idaho who collect aluminum cans for recycling.

One afternoon last week the Tanners pulled off highway 93 between Jackpot and Twin Falls and spent a couple of hours poking through the sagebrush looking for cans.

That afternoon C.H. brought four trash bags full of cans to the Reynolds recycling center and picked up nine silver dollars.

or the Kaiser recycling center run by the Twin Falls Coors beer wholesaler.

Doctors, lawyers, businessmen and housewives still throw out their cans with the trash.

Once in the alley the recycling brigade begins its often stinky, dirty work.

County dumps are regular tour stops for the reclaimers of other people's wasteful habits.

Salons offer fertile hunting grounds along with major Idaho roadides.

And, while middle class consumers continue to through-out their cans-as-always, the recyclers are getting richer and richer.

In 1970, the equivalent of about 500,000 beer cans were collected by the two largest recycling centers in Twin Falls.

This year, the equivalent of 17 million aluminum cans will be sent from Twin Falls to recycling centers in Washington and Alabama.

For every 23 cans collected here, Reynolds and Kaiser shell out 17 cents.

Last week Reynolds alone paid mostly work-shirted retirees and youngsters $300 a day for their cans. So far in 1977, over $80,000 (mostly in chunks of $5- and $10) have gone into recyclers' pockets.

Occasionally, this money goes for party funds when bars like the Klover Klub, The Alley and The Cove bring in their loads of cans.

But most of the money goes for more essential items than potato chips.

For sixteen-year-old John Layton who chugged his 1961 Ford into the Coors parking lot a few days ago and collected $4.08, the money will go for a weekend's worth of gas.

The Tanners' $9 fishing trip check will help with groceries.

Sometime next year, after another million pounds of scrap aluminum are sent for recycling, the Reynolds and Coors collection centers will write another news release about their successful programs.

The consuming public will cheer and marvel at how many thousands have been paid out for dirty old cans.

Meanwhile, the unheralded legions who stoop a thousand times to pick up discarded aluminum will go on.

They will continue to drop off their sacks of cans at the recycling centers with the sticky, concrete floors.

The big augers of the days to come.

Their work augers the days to come.

Their big aluminum companies like Reynolds and Kaiser know a recycled beer can can be produced with only five per cent of the energy of a newly forged can.

Bauxite ore grows scarce and cans grow lighter, aluminum only becomes more valuable.

Economics, not politics or idealism, already has made recycling a part of life for those in southern Idaho who are not rich.

In time, all of us may learn that what we throw away is too valuable to waste.

CHRIS PECK

Neither C.H. nor Mazie were out marching around on Earth Day in 1970 when the national recycling movement began. They aren't clamoring for national returnable bottle legislation; either.

Yet it is couples like the Tanners and millions of other middle and low income people who have turned a starchy ecological idea into a raging success across southern Idaho.

Without much fanfare or publicity, Twin Falls now boasts a flourishing aluminum recycling program.

It's not liberal Democrats, businessmen or young professionals who get the credit for this success.

Only a small percentage of Magic Valley's 120,000 residents bring cans to the Reynolds recycling center

Governor congratulates CSI

Editor, Times-News:

The 10th anniversary of the College of Southern Idaho marks a milestone of progress in the educational development of both the Magic Valley and of all Idaho.

The success of this institution signifies what the citizens of this state working together can do to meet the educational needs of a particular area. The College of Southern Idaho stands as a monument to the dedication and enthusiasm of many people and as a point of community pride in the Magic Valley of Idaho.

The programs of the College of Southern Idaho are uniquely designed to meet the needs of the people. They accommodate the desires and educational expectations of a wide spectrum of citizens. In the best sense of the word, the College of Southern Idaho is truly a "community" college. Through it, the people of this area can obtain the skills and training they desire to become more successful and productive citizens of both their community and their state.

As the College of Southern Idaho moves into its second decade, it is appropriate that all the citizens of Magic Valley and of Idaho commend and congratulate those who have been a part of its first decade. Every contribution has been meaningful and has been significant in the growth and development of this institution.

On behalf of all the people of Idaho, I extend my heartiest congratulations and best wishes to the College of Southern Idaho on its 10th anniversary. I also extend the best wishes of all Idahoans for a great future of continued quality and achievement.

Headline called misleading

Editor, Times-News:

Your article "Natural pest controls gain field's favor" on Page 1 of the Times-News, October 18, 1977, deserves comment. The word natural in the headline was inappropriate and misleading. The word natural appears in the article only once, while the words pest management or integrated pest management appear 16 times. Obviously the article is about the renewed interest in and emphasis on more sophisticated pest management rather than on natural control of insects.

Insect pest management includes such things as (1) careful monitoring of crop conditions and insect populations, (2) the introduction and monitoring of parasites and predators, (3) the careful application of insecticides based on (1) and (2), (4) the use of resistant crop varieties, and (5) various cultural practices such as adjusting dates of planting, cleanliness, and crop rotation. None of these are new. We are simply trying to put them together in a more sophisticated and effective way. It is ironic and revealing that the three examples of insect pest management programs currently underway in Idaho,

Farm Bureau operation is explained

Editor, Times-News:

I read with interest your article interviewing Oren Lee Staley, the national president of the National Farmers Organization, in your Friday, October 14, issue.

However, I feel Mr. Staley should stick with explaining the goals and objectives of his farm organization and not attempt to define the purpose of other farm organizations.

Farm Bureau is NOT an insurance oriented organization. Rather, Farm Bureau is a free, independent, voluntary organization of farm and ranch families united for the purpose of analyzing their problems and, formulating action to achieve educational improvement, economic opportunity and social advancement and, thereby, to promote the national well-being.

To achieve these goals Farm Bureau is very active in the political and legislative spectrum of both state and national levels. Through the "united" voice of over 2-1/2 million farm families Farm Bureau does indeed have much influence regarding decisions affecting agriculture.

In the area of commodities the Idaho Farm Bureau has the most up-to-date market information program available in the state covering nearly all the major commodities grown. In addition Farm Bureau deals directly in some commodities and has a free listing service for all members in an effort to bring buyer and seller together.

Farm Bureau members have found that joining together in one organization has enabled them to provide other services to themselves at a reduced cost. These services include insurance, real estate, financing, and tire and battery purchases.

Obviously, these services could only be offered after Farm Bureau became a thriving organization in the areas which should be of primary concern to all farmers.

U.S. is urged to withdraw from United Nations alliance

Editor, Times-News:

October 21st is celebrated as United Nations Day. It should be called a "day of shame." The United States should get out of the UN and move the UN to a communist country where it will be at home.

Throughout its entire history, the United Nations has not only ignored violations of human rights, but has actually supported these violations through its support of Communist tyranny. The UN has never condemned the Soviet military presence in Cuba or Eastern Europe; the slave labor camps behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains; and the massacre of innocent victims by Communists in Africa or Asia. Instead, the UN constantly criticizes anti-Communist countries, such as its resolution denouncing our bases in Guam — American territory!

These human rights violations are granted legal status by the United Nations' own "Covenant on Human Rights." The covenant assumes the power to grant rights that are already inherent, and lists exceptions for the violation of each of these rights. As just one example of his hypocrisy, the right to freedom of expression is "...subject to certain penalties, liabilities, and restrictions...as prescribed by law." By contrast, our bill of rights assumes no power to grant rights that are already God-given. It instead points out that "Congress shall make no law...abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble..." The difference between the American and UN view of human rights is therefore the difference between freedom and slavery.

— Besides the human rights issue, there are many other features of the United Nations that should concern all freedom-loving Americans. Among these are:

— The United Nations Budget: The largest percentage of the UN budget comes from the United States, while the

Editor, Times-News:

Can you believe there is still a gentleman in Idaho? Well, there is!

On Wednesday afternoon I was stranded on I-80 after a blow-out, with a sick child. After standing on the highway gesturing for help for 45 minutes, and getting no assistance, I decided to lock the car and walk back towards Wendell.

Bill, a gentleman from Glens Ferry, stopped and offered to help. He was able to get at my spare tire, fill it, and change it. He spent two hours helping me.

Since I didn't find out his last name, I am writing this letter to thank him again.

I'm glad there is at least one gentleman like him in Idaho.

ROBERTA FELDMAN

Meridian writer takes offense at UNICEF

Editor, Times-News:

Well, it's UNICEF time of the year again.

What about UNICEF? Does it provide food and medicine for needy children? Or is it in business; instead, to assist Communists in their steady drive toward total world domination?

Columnist Robert D. Heintz, writing in the Greenview, S.C., News for May 16, 1975, offered additional evidence to support the contention of a growing number of Americans that the real business of UNICEF is "bankrolling" Red takeovers.

In that article, he pointed out that, as part of an emergency program, the UN children's agency supplied goods worth $2,975,587 to the Communists in Vietnam during their drive to ultimate victory. UNICEF also supplied goods valued at $3,360,707 to the anti-Communist government in Saigon. But a close look at some of the details of these grants will infuriate anyone with a sense of justice.

The South Vietnamese government was given food and medicine by UNICEF. But the North Vietnamese government was provided with trucks, bulldozers, tools, and heavy construction equipment — all, according to UNICEF, to be used in rebuilding schools. The fact that these items are essential for war-making seems to have been overlooked. Arsonists needing gasoline might also try UNICEF. It appears that few questions are asked.

UNICEF likes to boast that all its gifts go to needy children and that it carefully monitors the distribution and use of whatever it supplies. But such a claim is hardly supportable in view of the fact that UNICEF's grants are given to governments. Even when deliveries of goods are made to non-Communist governments, the extent of corruption and misuse is usually overwhelming. But to supply a communist government, where tyranny is already entrenched, is to solidify the position of the lynx — no matter what goods are supplied to the Red regime.

When pressed about the matter of monitoring the use of the equipment given to North Vietnam, a UNICEF spokesman admitted to Mr. Heintz, "UNICEF has no way to make sure the supplies to the Communists go to children. They were dropped off at the airports and docks, and we assume they were used as we intended." Such trust is either incredible naïveté, or knowing treachery.

It doesn't surprise us to read that any U.N. agency is in the business of financing the Reds. What surprises us is that so many Americans — who supply UNICEF with funds through trick or treat and greening card programs — are still deceived by this patently fraudulent outfit. UNICEF is playing a "trick" on its supporters. The "treat" is for the Communists. Please don't support UNICEF!

National newspaper week noted by Kiwanis

Editor, Times-News:

We, as members of the Rupert Kiwanis Club, would like to pay tribute to you and the nation's newspapers during National Newspaper Week which was Oct. 9-15.

More than 6,000 Kiwanis Clubs in the United States and Canada are joining in this year's observance. This year's theme is "Freedom In Our Hands" and is the 39th annual observance by Kiwanis International, which is the oldest participation in the National Newspaper Week other than the sponsors, Newspaper Manager's Association, Incorporated.

The Rupert members wish to go on record as joining other citizens of the United States in honoring the men and women of the newspaper industry for their stand on behalf of freedom of speech and their unceasing effort to obtain and present the truth.

Kiwanis International President Maurice Gladman points out that "Newspapers and the role they play are absolutely vital to our freedom. If we can dramatize this fact, we will have done a great service for our countries and their people."

Again, we appreciate the efforts the Times-News has made in the Magic Valley area, both in protecting our freedoms, and in promoting community service efforts, ours and those area-wide.

In closing, we would like to make two contrasting quotes which best portray the difference:

"If the press is not free, if speech is not independent and untrammelled, if the mind is shackled or made impotent through fear, it makes no difference under what form of government you live, you are a slave, and not a citizen." — U.S. Senator William E. Borah.

"The organization of our press has truly been a success. Our law concerning the press is such that divergencies of opinion between members of the government are no longer an occasion for public exhibitions, which are not the newspapers' business. We have eliminated that conception of political freedom which holds that everybody has the right to say whatever comes into his head." — Adolph Hitler.

Again, keep up the good work as we value our freedoms also.

Gooding commissioner claims mistreatment

Editor, Times-News:

The First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States guarantees that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the right of speech or of the press; or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

The Times-News has repeatedly violated a sacred trust granted by the First Amendment with complete disregard for the responsibilities that should be assumed by any honest news publication. Not one single word in either the Constitution or the Amendments gives any newspaper the right to distort, mislead, or print libelous statements in reporting the news. Despite the fact that liberal courts and Title 6-712 of the Idaho Code have provided virtual immunity to newspapers in libel suits, public outrage at irresponsible reporting will ultimately demand that restrictions be placed on the news media.

A Times-News editorial on Tuesday, September 20, 1977, deplores the law granting a defendant the right to a closed preliminary hearing, contending "what is demanded is a balanced, fair dissemination of information." Unfortunately, past experience with Times-News reporters has proven that to be impossible. Editorialized news stories by Lorayne O. Smith and others have repeatedly distorted news stories by innuendo, inference, and outright misleading information.

From personal experience I submit that a news article by Ms. Smith regarding a building permit was completely false and misleading. Her headline, with a large picture of my building charged, "No building permit," I did, in fact, have a valid building permit and the ridiculous, politically motivated, and unfounded charge was dismissed in court. The criminal complaint signed by Floyd Uria, the front for a local group protesting my election as Gooding County Commissioner, was accepted by City Attorney Cecil Hobbey and Deputy Jack Varin without one shred of evidence that any law had been violated.

The lack of concern in requiring evidence for the issuance of a criminal complaint is plainly a case of malicious prosecution and malfeasance of office by Cecil Hobbey, Jack Varin and City Council members Reed, Moline and Echeltha. Floyd Uria is, in my opinion, guilty of perjury, malicious prosecution, and harassment. Despite the fact that the Gooding City Office confirmed on June 16, 1977, that I did have a building permit, the city attorney filed the unjustified criminal complaint with the Gooding Magistrate Court on June 20, 1977, four days later. With the eventual concurrence of the Gooding City Council in filing the complaint, my arrest and trial followed, resulting in a motion for dismissal allowed by Judge Smith.

A vicious attack on me in an article by Margo Brown, Editor of the Gooding Enterprise, and the misleading story by Lorayne Smith in the Times-News were never retracted or clarified at the time of the dismissal of charges. An unsigned (as usual) editorial in the Times-News (as October 7, 1977, plainly said "good newspapers try to serve the whole pie." Is a classic example of hypocrisy. Are we guilty until proven innocent?

Concealing or ignoring part of the facts, while reporting others as is dishonest in reporting as a deliberate lie. Lorayne Smith has often quoted Catherine Stapp, and Thelma Ferguson charging discrimination against women on the County Planning Commission, among other things. The facts that Ms. Smith, the Times-News, Margo Brown and the Enterprise had at their disposal were that Mrs. Stapp and Mrs. Ferguson are partners or co-owners of development property in Gooding, and during the time Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Stapp were serving on the County Planning Commission, Richard and Catherine Stapp are accused of developing a subdivision. In violation of state law. Despite the fact that Mr. Hobbey, Mr. Varin, Margo Brown, Lorayne Smith, and Thelma Ferguson were aware of those facts, no public mention has been made by any of those involved. Property owned by Richard and Catherine Stapp is now one of the largest subdivisions in Gooding.

Unfortunate errors and mistakes will certainly occur in the news media and I agree that the media should be allowed to correct or retract a statement or article.

However, Title 6-712 of the Idaho Code should be charged or repealed. No one should be forced to suffer the persecution of an irresponsible press, immune to prosecution.

Castro lauds Carter's ethics

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Fidel Castro praised President Carter Friday as a deeply religious man who would not try to assassinate the Cuban leader and appealed to the United States to make the next move toward better relations.

The bearded Cuban revolutionary wept with emotion as he embraced his host, Prime Minister Michael Manley, and said goodbye to end a week-long visit to Jamaica.

At a news conference before departure, Castro defended the security measures necessary because of what he called "hysteria" created by previous U.S. administrations.

He accused the U.S. administrations of promoting the idea that Cuban revolutionaries were some kind of "rare animal" that could be hunted down with impunity.

Castro said the next step in detente between the United States and his Communist island is up to Washington.

Ford turns professor

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Gerald R. Ford turns professor again next month when he returns to his alma mater, the University of Michigan, for a three-day teaching stint.

University officials announced Friday the former president will conduct nine classes and address seminars Nov. 2-4 in his role as adjunct professor of political science.

It will be Ford's second teaching visit to the campus since leaving office. He met with nine classes during four days last April.

Ford's three-day visit is sponsored by the Washington-based American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research as part of the institute's academic outreach program to focus attention on public policy issues. Ford is a distinguished fellow with the Institute.

All but one of Ford's classes will be limited to students enrolled in the courses and other invited persons, said Samuel H. Barnes, chairman of the Political Science Department. An Introduction to American Politics class will be open to the news media.

Singer gets last chance

MARVIN GAYE

Miss Lillian testifies

AMERICUS, Ga. (UPI) — "Miss Lillian" Carter, the President's mother, testified Friday that curiosity prompted her to attend a Ku Klux Klan rally where 30 persons were injured when a car smashed into the crowd.

During a courtroom outburst, defendant Buddy Cochran accused a Klan leader of murder. He quieted down when the judge threatened to oust him from the court.

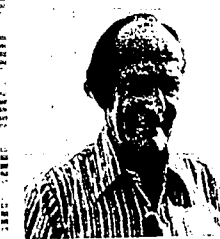

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Singer Marvin Gaye has one more chance — his third — to give a deposition in a lawsuit filed against him by five of his former employees.

Gaye has already been fined $765 for refusing to appear for the depositions two other times. Municipal Court Judge Roberts Weil, who said he would not tolerate a third refusal, ordered the singer Friday to appear within three weeks.

The five musicians claim Gaye did not pay them for their services.

Curtis Shaw, Gaye's attorney, told the judge that the singer is currently in Jamaica and would be in Miami next Monday. Shaw said he would contact Gaye in Miami to set up a deposition date.

Wallenda down but not out

KARL WALLEND

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Karl Wallenda, the 72-year-old patriarch of the circus wire walkers, expects to be out of the hospital within three days and back on the high wire in time for a television movie on his life.

Wallenda fell 20 feet Thursday while rehearsing at his home for an act for the movie. He suffered only bruises and minor whiplash.

"I feel so much better today than I did yesterday that I can't believe it," Wallenda said Friday.

"If he could get out of here and get back on the wire in his hospital gown, he would," said his wife, Helen. "I'm sure his doctors will be glad to get rid of him."

NYC artists get work

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City will use federal funds to pay 500 unemployed writers, dancers, actors and other artists to work for a year in community-oriented projects.

Mayor Abraham Beame announced Friday that the artists will be given fulltime jobs for a year at a salary of $10,000 under the $65 million program, financed by federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds.

An accepted unemployed artist whose income is below certain levels will be assigned work with one of several non-profit organizations, including Hospital Audiences Inc., a performing group for hospital patients and the Theatre for the Forgotten, which performs in prisons.

Cultural Affairs Commissioner H. Claude Shustal said artists have been employed under CETA programs in other cities but not on the scale planned for New York.

"We expect virtually thousands to apply for the available positions," Shustal said.

Congress designed the CETA program to stimulate training and employment in localities hard by a loss of jobs.

LYNYRD SKYNYRD ROCK GROUPT TOGETHER EARLIER THIS YEAR
... charter plane crash for lack of fuel claimed seven

Mishap foreshadowed crash

GILLSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — An uneasiness among members of the Lynyrd Skynyrd rock group as they boarded their chartered aircraft foreshadowed its fatal plunge into a Mississippi pine forest.

Wednesday—the day before the crash, the right engine of the twin-propeller Convair 440 briefly lost power on a flight from Miami to Greenville, S.C., the fourth stop on a planned three-month tour.

"A six-foot flame shot from the right engine," said Kenneth Pelden, 24, a sound technician for the nine-member group. "It wasn't burning fuel. It was literally exploding fuel."

Pilot Walter McCreary assured Pelden the engine would be worked on at the next stop, Baton Rouge, where a concert was scheduled Friday.

Nevertheless, the group decided to take a flight to Baton Rouge to continue the tour on a bus, another plane could not be obtained.

Cassie Gaines, a backup vocalist and sister of guitarist Steve Gaines, considered riding in the equipment truck instead of the plane. But she went along with the group.

About 50 miles northeast of Baton Rouge, the engine coughed and sputtered for several minutes then seemed to smooth out.

Steve Lawler, 28, a lighting expert from Houston, was riding in the tail of the plane playing poker with several others. They resumed their card game when the engines appeared to improve but remained apprehensive.

"In five or ten minutes it conked out again. That's when we started losing altitude," he said.

Dean Kilpatrick, an assistant road manager for the group from Jacksonville, Fla., moved toward the rear of the plane and told everyone to get seated and buckle up.

"Fasten your seat belts! This is for real!" he yelled. Lawler and others started talking about how to prepare for what they thought was going to be a hard emergency landing on a runway.

"I don't think it entered anyone's mind that we were headed for the trees," he said. Shortly before 7 p.m. McCreary radioed the McComb, Miss. control tower that he was "having fuel problems."

By this time the plane had passed over McComb and was under guidance of Houston Air Traffic Control. Houston instructed McCreary to land at McComb.

Polanski stuck, misses court

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — The judge in Roman Polanski's sex-crime trial gave the director the weekend to find a way back from Tahiti and explain what he was doing in a beer hall in Germany while on special parole to finish a movie set in the South Seas.

Polanski, 44, who pleaded guilty to illegal intercourse with a 13-year-old girl, was supposed to appear Friday.

His lawyer, Douglas Dalton, told the judge that Polanski intended to show up but was trapped in Tahiti by an airline strike. Polanski will appear for the hearing Monday "for sure," Dalton promised.

The judge granted an extension, but noted that he suspects he was deceived in granting Polanski temporary freedom.

Polanski pleaded guilty to the sex offense on Aug. 8, and rape and drug charges were dropped.

On Sept. 19 the judge ordered Polanski imprisoned for 90 days for psychiatric tests. That order was lifted for 30 days because Polanski pleaded he needed time to complete his current film, "Hurricane" in Tahiti.

Since then, the judge said, he learned "the script had not even been written in September and shooting was not intended until next January."

Two weeks after Polanski was granted the delay to complete the film in the South Seas, United Press International transmitted a photo of him from Munich, in which he was surrounded by pretty young women in a beer hall during the Oktoberfest celebration.

His lawyer has said he will show that Polanski was really working at the time, explaining the story — which only he knows — to an important German distributor not shown in the photo.

The women, the lawyer said, were actually at a neighboring table and not with Polanski.

Stunt fails

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Disco singer Grace Jones, as usual, drove her Honda 500 motorcycle onto a 30-foot ramp to open her act Friday night, but the bike spun out of control and smashed into a wall by the stage.

A spokesman said Miss Jones was only "shaken up" in the accident. She disentangled herself from the twisted motorcycle, the spokesman said, stepped up to the microphone and said, "The show must go on."

Miss Jones, 23, recalled that the bike "kicked on her" as she was driving up the ramp and she had to jerk the handlebars as hard as she could to keep from plowing into the audience of 2,700 at the Marlin Beach Hotel, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said there was "a lot of excitement" in the crowd after the mishap, but the audience soon settled down so Miss Jones could resume her hour-long show.

Agriculturist to U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dr. Raymond J. Miller, director of the University of Idaho's Agricultural Experiment Station, will leave for Russia next month to participate in discussions regarding U.S.S.R. cooperation in agricultural research.

Miller is one of 14 American members of a joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. committee on cooperation in agriculture which will meet in Moscow, Russia Dec. 12 and 13.

The group will review progress in agricultural cooperation between the two nations and will chart goals for future activities.

An initial agreement on agricultural cooperation was signed by the U.S. and Russia in 1973. Since then, the countries have shared information in many areas of agricultural research and have exchanged breeding animals, seeds, plant germ-plasm and other biological materials.

PUC flight ruling defended

BOISE (UPI) — A Washington spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) told the Idaho Statesman Friday the Idaho Public Utilities Commission (PUC) probably does have jurisdiction over in-state airline operations.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission recently ruled that Hughes Aircraft must reduce its Boise-Lewiston fares by 45. The airline charges the same fare for a Boise-Lewiston flight as it does for the longer Boise-Spokane flight. The Boise-Spokane flight, as part of an interstate operation, is regulated by the CAB. But the CAB has no jurisdiction on in-state flights.

Hughes Aircraft has challenged the PUC's authority to regulate its operations inside Idaho and asked for a rehearing on the case.

Hansen raps military

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Second District Congressman George Hansen, Idaho, charged Friday that the American military is saying one thing in public and another in private on the Panama Canal treaties.

Hansen charged during Hansen's testimony before the House Armed Services Committee.

Hansen said he was shocked by the testimony in favor of the controversial treaties by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General George Brown, who preceded Hansen in testifying before the committee.

"The generals are running scared on this issue," Hansen said. "After their experiences with Korea and Vietnam, they are afraid to speak out. They fear for their jobs and are lining up like good little soldiers behind the orders of the chief executive."

Group comes home depressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate passage of the Endangered American Wilderness Act this week left a group of Idahoans who went to Washington to protest such legislation "depressed but not discouraged," according to a spokesman.

The bill includes the provisions of the controversial Goshute Hump compromise negotiated by a group of environmentalists and businessmen in the Grangeville area. The legislation spells out how the vast roadless area on both sides of the Salmon River between McCall and Grangeville will be managed.

Les Kelley, an edgeman for the Boise Cascade sawmill in Cascade and leader of the group of eight who traveled to Washington, said his group opposed the legislation because it puts too much land under the wilderness designation.

"We're a pretty unhappy group about it. But after about an hour of that we started thinking up ideas, and we've got one in process right now."

Lumber speedup pushed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure called on Congress to speed up the utilization of resources on federal lands by allowing land management decisions to proceed despite court appeals.

"We can no longer afford the luxury of years of drawn out court appeals which bring to a halt the implementation of any management decisions," he said. "Public involvement, yes. But once the administrative decision has been made, the plans should be allowed to proceed even during court appeals."

McClure made the remarks while testifying before the Senate Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Committee which is investigating the availability and pricing of lumber for homebuilding.

"There is a very real and direct relationship between the price of a new house and the availability of lumber," McClure said. On the one hand our government attempts to provide affordable homes for our citizens while on the other we are restricted severely on the allowable cut of timber from our public lands through administrative inaction or court delays.

"It is a simple equation—the longer we delay implementation of our forest management plans the less timber will be harvested and the higher the costs of lumber and new homes will be."

State panel backs local option taxes

BOISE (UPI) — The Governor's Local Government Task Force has strongly endorsed the concept of local option taxes in a preliminary report that may undergo revisions next month.

The task force was created last summer by Governor John Evans to develop proposals to help Idaho cities and counties face the problems expected to arise in the next quarter century.

The local option tax proposal endorsed by the task force calls for local governments to be given the power to levy local taxes other than the property tax. The proposal listed as possibilities a local sales tax, a hotel-motel tax and a liquor-by-the-drink tax. The proposal also called for approval by a majority of local citizens before the imposition of any such tax.

The task force also took stands on a number of other local government issues.

The group strongly opposed state-mandated budget ceilings on local governments as was considered by the 1977 Idaho Legislature.

The group strongly favored a recommendation that all property be valued full market value and taxes be levied on a percentage basis, an effort to eliminate the confusing assessed values, assessment ratios and mill levies currently used.

The task force strongly endorsed the 1975 Local Planning Act and opposed any efforts to weaken land use planning laws.

The group also endorsed constitutional and legislative changes to permit county governments to reorganize themselves.

The task force favored a proposal to approve joint city-county voter registration.

A proposal to pass a one cent increase in the state sales tax was given a lower priority. The proposal originated with the Association of Idaho Cities, but the association later called it unrealistic after Governor Evans said he would veto any such bill that reached his desk.

The task force will meet again November 10 to review the priorities established this week and possibly to alter the language of certain recommendations. The task force reviewed 123 possible recommendations two weeks ago before coming up with its recommendations.

Rights up to court, company says

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company contended Friday the courts and not the Idaho Public Utilities Commission should determine water rights on the Snake River and tributaries between Swan Falls and Milner Dam.

Idaho Power has been charged with failing to use its hydropower water rights to prevent river depletion for irrigation.

To solve the question, the company filed a district court suit in Ada County.

William R. Fleming, company general counsel, said the suit is "a necessary first step" to decide whether the firm can assert water rights to stop irrigators from taking water from the Snake River and its tributaries for agricultural purposes.

"We believe that the proper arena for this vital issue to be settled is the courts and not the Idaho Public Utilities Commission," he said.

The suit stems from a complaint filed with the commission, asking that the company be ordered to prevent new appropriations of water for irrigation pumping because upstream depletion reduces the amount of water available for hydropower production.

Idaho Power argues that the commission lacks jurisdiction over water rights, but the regulatory agency refused to dismiss the complaint.

Fleming emphasized the suit is not an appeal from the commission decision, but "is an original action since the court is the only body under Idaho law with the legal authority to determine water rights."

In the suit, Idaho Power asked the court:

— To determine whether the company's water rights are subject to depletion.

— To identify the "specific reach" of the Snake River and its tributaries where its rights can be asserted to prevent depletion.

— To order a "full" adjudication of rights between Swan Falls and Milner Dam.

The company also declared the Idaho Department of Water Resources should supply "the court—with a survey and determination" of water uses.

Idaho asks waterusers to close off headgates

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Water Resources (IDWR) Friday called upon water users to stop diverting irrigation water in order to begin filling reservoirs depleted by this year's drought.

"Although most irrigators have stopped using water for the season, there are a few areas—in the state—where irrigation diversions are still being made," Stephen Alford, IDWR Director, said.

"We are asking those irrigators to shut their headgates as soon as possible," he said.

The streams that will fill the badly depleted reservoirs in Idaho are flowing at about average or slightly above average levels for this time of year. The river flows were boosted by the above average precipitation that fell on the state in September, Alford said.

"We should store as much water now as possible just to be on the safe side. Any water we store now and carry over the winter will help next year when demands for irrigation water will begin again," he added.

"An end to irrigation pumping also means a reduced demand for electricity. Of course, this, too, means water can stay stored in the reservoirs rather than being released for producing electricity," Alford explained.

Recent streamflow measurements by IDWR and the U.S. Geological Survey show streamflow improvements in nearly all areas of the state, especially in northern Idaho, the department reported.

The Big Wood River, drainage still remains seriously affected by the drought. Prospects for filling Magic Reservoir and other reservoirs in that drainage remain uncertain, Alford said.

Cogeneration supported

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for Boise Cascade Corp. Friday urged the state Legislative Council's Committee on Energy to incorporate cogeneration into an energy plan for Idaho.

Robert A. Shade, director of energy conservation for the wood products firm, said cogeneration, the simultaneous production of process steam and electricity in an industrial plant, is something that is becoming more and more feasible.

"Cogeneration provided 15 per cent of the U.S. energy as recently as 1950," he said, "but now contributes only 4 per cent."

During the fifties and sixties, as the cost of utility generated electricity decreased and the reliability of utility service increased, the economics of cogeneration became less attractive for an industrial plant. Now, as energy prices rise and with the potential for electrical power shortages, cogeneration will become increasingly attractive.

But he said cogeneration should not be viewed as an alternative to large utility thermal generating stations, only as a complement.

The process steam involved in cogeneration is that required in manufacturing processes such as for drying wood veneer, pulp, paper, and preparation of packaged food products.

Shade said one of the assets of cogeneration, in a time of rising power costs, is that installation of a capability within an industrial plant is not expensive. He also said it would allow an industrial plant to be independent of the servicing utility and would lighten the efficient use overall of the available input energy.

The conservation expert said cogeneration would only be a new concept to Idaho on a large scale.

"We have been generating a small portion of our electrical requirement at the Emmet sawmill for 50 years," Shade said.

Elvis died from heart failure

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Elvis Presley did not die from a drug overdose, although prescription drugs were present in his body at the time of his death, the medical examiner who directed an autopsy on the singer's body said today.

Dr. Jerry Francisco issued a statement backing up his original report that Presley died Aug. 16 from heart failure at age 42.

"The cause of death has been attributed to hypertensive heart disease, with coronary artery heart disease as a contributing factor," the report said.

Francisco issued the statement in response to the published reports that 10 prescription drugs, including Demerol and Valium, found in Presley's body might have contributed to the singer's death.

The medical examiner said that three pathologists and one toxicologist at the University of Tennessee and two other toxicologists in other areas agreed that "there is no evidence the medication present in the body of Elvis Presley caused or made any significant contribution to his death."

A third toxicologist, Francisco said, noted that the medications were in the therapeutic range and individually did not constitute an overdose.

All of the medications found in Presley's samples were prescription drugs, the medical examiner said, and an extensive search for illegal drugs turned up no trace.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, Presley's friend and physician, admitted the singer had "abused drugs accidentally" in the past, but said he did not think he had any drug problem.

Nichopoulos, who pronounced the singer dead after efforts to revive him failed, said Presley was taking medication for his colon, hypertension and a sinus condition.

Presley had been plagued with health problems long before his death. He had a weight problem during recent years and had been hospitalized four times in five years for treatment of hypertension and an impacted or enlarged colon.

Nichopoulos said he also suffered from mild diabetes and a liver problem.

Bill affects 33 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is hardly a person in America without a stake in H.R. 9346, a bill to overhaul the Social Security program, which comes to the House floor for what promises to be a major fight Wednesday.

Some 33 million persons, one out of seven Americans, draw monthly Social Security benefits.

About 107 million workers contribute to the system through payroll taxes.

Ninety-five out of 100 children and their mothers are protected by survivors' insurance under the program. Four out of five adults between the ages of 21 and 64 are covered by its disability insurance.

Medicare—providing health care for more than 25 million elderly and disabled persons, is part of Social Security, and is the only part operating in the black.

The rest of the program has been running at a deficit for several years. At the present rate, the disability fund will run out of money in 1979; the retirement fund, in the early 1980's. The projected deficit for the next 15 years in the retirement and disability programs is $173 billion.

The causes include the recent recession, and the fact that, while today there are three workers for every retiree, in the next century there will be only two workers per retiree, pushing the cost per worker up.

Another cause is what everyone concedes was a mistake made by Congress in 1972 when it geared benefits to inflation in such a way that, by the next century, some people would receive more in retirement than they made working.

The House bill takes away that windfall and stabilizes retirement benefits for the next 75 years so each generation of retirees would be about as well off, relative to the standard of living at the time, as retirees in 1976.

This one change, about which there is no real dispute, is expected to take care of more than half the Social Security deficit over the next 75 years.

Other changes are causing political agony.

The bill raises employer and employee payroll taxes over the next decade in addition to increases already written into existing law. For example, a $15,000-a-year worker now pays $877.50 in annual Social Security taxes. In 1987 he would pay $967.50 under existing law, $1,035 under the House bill.

"A lot of members will vote against the bill because of these tax increases," said one congressional staff member. "The vote will be close."

In another effort to bring more money into the system, the bill would require some 6 million federal, state and local government workers and employees of non-profit organizations to join Social Security in 1982, with a study to be completed by 1980 on how to do it.

The administration, House Democratic leaders and federal employees themselves are lobbying in support of a floor amendment by Rep. Joseph Fisher, D-Va., to put the study first and defer any decision on inclusion of the 6 million workers until later.

Police force demonstrators to leave Kent State campus

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Police Saturday broke up a prohibited rally by various groups opposed to construction of a gymnasium annex on the Kent State University campus near the site where four students were shot in 1970.

At the close of the rally of more than 1,000 demonstrators, police forced the protesters across the street and off campus.

At least one tear-gas canister was thrown.

"This ends the rally, but not the demonstration," said the final speaker at the rally, which had progressed without incident since noon.

Police, some mounted on horses, then moved in to read a court order barring any campus demonstration against construction of the facility, and herd the crowd off campus.

Earlier in the afternoon, police barred protesters from the actual construction site. The protesters withdrew to an area near other dormitories, then marched to the south

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Residents of an Albany suburb place a high value on the trees lining Route 85 — $17,500 apiece.

Judge orders U.S. to fight whaling ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Friday ordered the government to file an objection to the International Whaling Commission's ban on the killing of bowhead whales by Eskimos.

Judge Sirica ordered Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to object to the IWC's zero-kill quota on bowheads which would go into effect this spring.

The Eskimos said the ban has authority, only over commercial whaling and not over their subsistence hunt.

The Eskimos brought suit after a State Department announcement Thursday that it would not issue a formal objection to the zero-kill quota on bowheads.

The State Department wanted to go back to the IWC in meetings later this year and seek approval of a plan for studying bowheads and repulsing a kill of about one dozen whales for Eskimo subsistence.

Eskimos said the decision "betrayed" their human rights in favor of the votes of "animal-loving, people-hating conservationists."

Sirica ordered the State Department to present the IWC with an objection by Monday's deadline.

The bowhead whale, a mammal up to 60 feet long with blubber averaging 20 inches in thickness, has been a mainstay of the Eskimo culture.

While once plentiful in both the Atlantic and Pacific, only a small stock estimated at from 500 to 2,000 whales remains off the Arctic Coast.

Conservationists argue Eskimos strike and leave to die as many as three times the number of whales they bring ashore.

They say a U.S. objection to the IWC ban will weaken its long stand in favor of a cut-back in commercial whaling, especially by Japan and Russia.

Republicans deny drive to amass $8 million election 'war chest'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats claim Republicans are trying to amass an $8 million war chest in a drive to win additional seats in the House next year. Republicans say it just isn't so.

House Democratic whip John Brademas of Indiana told reporters he and other Democrats have heard "there is a huge Republican financial buildup for 1978. We understand they're planning on raising $8 million."

"Many Democratic members I talked with were stunned to learn that much money is being set aside to go after their seats," said Brademas. "I wish it was true, but it isn't," said a spokesman for the GOP's Congressional Campaign Committee. "I don't know how we could get to that figure of $8 million."

He said the committee has put "$3 million in escrow" for next year and hopes the national party and GOP booster clubs can raise the potential sum to $5 million for House races.

By comparison, the GOP spent $3 million on House races in 1976 when the Democratic majority increased by one seat, 289 to 146.

Brademas conceded Democrats were speaking out may be in support for a bill would permit public financing of House general elections.

Applying only to the House and not the Senate (where a similar measure was rejected), the measure is modeled after the present practice of checking off $1 on a tax return for use in presidential elections.

It's appealing to Democrats because it would include strict spending limits and cut into any GOP plans to spend more money next year than in the history of House elections.

Brademas said some 400 business-oriented Political Action Committees "are funneling money around to Republican candidates."

Republicans "spent over $400,000 on each of the three special elections they won this year."

The GOP spokesman rejected those claims. "Those business PACs, from our experience, give 60 per cent of their contributions to Democrats. They're just playing it safe with the people in power," he said. "At best, we get a 50-50 break on those contributions."

As for the special elections, he said about $400,000 was spent in Louisiana to elect Bob Livingston to the seat vacated by Democrat Richard "Tummy who resigned and was eventually convicted of election irregularities. Republican victories in seats vacated in Washington and Minnesota when Brock Adams became transportation secretary and Bob Bergland became agriculture secretary involved spending about $250,000 each, the spokesman said.

Brademas also claimed Republicans apparently have "targeted" some 80 Democratic seats for special emphasis and said the GOP strategy "includes" members who have served four or five terms and were once considered "safe."

The GOP spokesman confirmed it, saying "we are expanding our strategy to look at more longer term Democrats such as members who were freshmen in 1974. We want to go back and look at them again."

"But we are also looking at long term members who are out of touch with their districts. We're looking at about 20 of those now and that might be expanded to 10 or 15 more."

Change clocks Oct. 30

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Next Sunday, most Americans get back that hour of sleep they lost in April when the nation went on daylight saving time.

Standard time resumes officially at 2 a.m. on Oct. 30, meaning those areas that have been on daylight time for the past six months should set clocks back one hour to 1 a.m.

Certain areas will not be affected by the time change. Arizona, parts of Indiana, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa, are permanently on standard time.

Indiana, which is dissected by central and standard time zones, has a special situation in the time change.

Six counties in the Northwest, around Gary and Hammond, and six counties in the southwest, around Evansville, observe daylight time and will turn their clocks back one hour. The 12 counties are left in the central time zone.

The other 40 counties in Indiana, around Indianapolis, Fort Wayne and South Bend, remain on standard time throughout the year and will not change their clocks. Those counties, however, are in the eastern time zone which will once again put them one hour ahead of the other 12 counties.

The present system of starting daylight time on the last Sunday in April and returning to standard time on the last Sunday in October was set by law in 1966 under the Uniform Time Act.

The act permitted a state to exempt itself in whole or in part from the time changes which resulted in the current patchwork system.

The nation varied from the act only once, in 1972 during the energy crisis prompted by the Arab oil boycott. An emergency bill put the entire nation on daylight time year-around as an energy saving device but heavy protests from parents with children going to school in the morning darkness prompted repeal of that measure on Feb. 23, 1975.

Bills are introduced in each new Congress that range from mandating all year daylight time to extensions of seven or eight months but after the experience with the 1973 emergency act, none has ever been considered.

Cat jungle studied

By LINDA MERRY DVM
Question:
We lived next to a vacant lot that was a wild tangle of weeds — tumble weeds, wild asters, tall grasses — and all last summer my cats lived in, and apparently loved, their own private "tangled wild-wood."

Answer:
Now the lot has been made into a hard top parking lot and I long to re-create some sort of refuge for my two outdoor creatures in our backyard.

The question is what kind of plants to use, what kind of plants would a cat like best, besides catnip, of course. Tumble weeds really aren't all that bad looking for a corner of a yard, but surely there are some other things that may be more appealing to domestic felines!

Also what grasses would be better for them in a "garden" such as I visualize making for their pleasure. I appreciate your even considering this strange request, as it surely must be!

Answer:
A backyard jungle could bring out the feral side of any pussy cat. Sounds like a wild idea but there's no need to roll out the tumbleweeds for atmosphere. There's many a domestic plant that will look untamed in the proper setting.

How about ... big elephant ear coleus plants, a few asparagus ferns, here and there some splashy zinnias, asters, dill (this affects some cats almost like catnip), pampas grass, mint (the same family with nepeta cataria or catnip), bushy tall sunflowers for a jungle roof and then some stalking grass like wheat or rye.

Don't overlook vegetables like carrots, squash, peas, or lettuce even potato vines or a few radishes for ground cover. That's the good news — summer entertainment for the cats and fall edibles for you. Add a few boulders and if you've a fondness for the exotic, a big sunken washtub full of water lilies or even a small waterfall.

Just watch out who you tell about your backyard. You'd like to have more great white hunters on safari than jungle cats!

Question:
We have two dogs and when we go backpacking, one of them gets human stool. But the other dog doesn't. What can be done?

Answer:
Have the dog checked for proper digestive enzymes, add vitamins to the dog's diet, divert the dog's attention, bury feces or place rocks over it.

Apply in the order given:
Question:
We would like to know what you can use to repel cats. All the neighboring cats congregate in our storage shed, and it smells so strong of "cat" that you can hardly get close to it.

Answer:
Shed the storage shed floors at all times not in use. Try vinegar, ammonia or bleach to deodorize. Spread clean, light gravel over floor (if you can) to discourage use as a toilet. You may want to try some of the commercial products like "off!" around outside foundations. Borrow a large, white dog. Apply in the order given.

Some clouds due, fair skies follow

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area:
Variable high cloudiness this afternoon and Monday. Highs both days in the mid 60's. Lows tonight in the upper 30's to lower 40's.

Halley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley:
Variable high cloudiness this afternoon and into Monday. Highs both days in the low 60's and lows tonight near 30.

Synopsis:
The dry and mild autumn weather of the past few weeks is expected to continue at least a few more days. A weak Pacific front moving into the northwest will likely cause a few showers in north Idaho today and some cloudiness in the south.

High pressure is expected to rebuild over Idaho Monday and fair weather will resume over all of the state.

Above normal temperatures are also expected to continue. Weak cold fronts moving eastward out of the Pacific every few days will bring only slight changes in temperature. No end to the mild sunny days and cool nights is in sight at this time.

The outlook Tuesday through Thursday is for fair and warm weather. Highs 65 to 75 and lows in the 30's.

UN approves Sinai forces

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)
The U.N. Security Council Friday approved a one-year extension of a 4,300-man United Nations peacekeeping force in the Sinai peninsula, but drew a warning that the force should not be used as a "permanent crutch" in the Middle East.

The council took barely 10 minutes to vote, 13-0, to extend the mandate beyond its scheduled expiration Monday. China and Libya did not vote.

Approval of the peacekeeping force, stretched 100 miles from the Mediterranean to the Gulf of Suez between Egypt and Israel, came as no surprise — but several countries indicated time may be running out on the force's usefulness.

The force "cannot be used as a permanent crutch" to maintain the present state of "no peace, no war" in the region, said British U.N. Counselor Robin A.C. Byatt.

Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky also warned that indefinite reliance on the peacekeeping force might result in a "freezing" of the uneasy balance.

The comments echoed U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's concern that "unless and until a comprehensive settlement covering all aspects of the Middle East problem can be reached, the situation in the area will continue to be unstable and, with the passage of time, increasingly dangerous."

The Sinai force consists of 4,297 troops and 121 observers, from Australia, Canada, Finland, Ghana, Indonesia, Poland and Sweden. It costs about $73 million a year to support.

It was one of two peacekeeping forces established in the Middle East in the wake of the October, 1973, war. The other, about 1,200 men strong, is deployed in the Golan Heights between Israel and Syrian troops. Its mandate expires Nov. 30.

Troyanovsky said the Soviet Union agreed to the extension of the Sinai force because "favorable conditions are arising for making progress toward establishment of a lasting and just peace" — the resumption of peace talks in

But, he added, Moscow considers the peacekeeping force "extremely temporary" and said "it should not be used to protract or delay a comprehensive settlement in that area."

Satellite TV comes to Ketchum

By CHRIS BOGAN
Times-News writer
KETCHUM — Two weeks ago a small square of land behind Wood River Cable-Vision's Ketchum offices were suddenly transformed into what looks like a NASA space observation pad.

A parabolic reflector antenna, costing close to $50,000, appeared on the site and pointed its green bowl-shaped face up to the heavens.

The huge antenna won't be in touch with NASA space shots, but it is linked with an RCA Satcom II satellite that orbits the earth 22,500 miles over the Pacific Ocean. This connection will provide Ketchum cable television viewers with two new stations, including Home Box Office (HBO) TV service.

With a gala champagne christening of the new reflector antenna Tuesday, Dave Wolford, general manager of Wood River Cable-Vision, Inc., began broadcasting Channel 17, WTCC Atlanta, Ga., to the company's cable-vision subscribers in Ketchum.

WTCC, owned by flamboyant millionaire Ted Turner, who also owns the Atlanta Braves and who captained the yacht Courageous to this year's America's Cup victory, is the largest independent-TV station in the world, according to Wolford. The station will be broadcast free of charge to cable-vision subscribers 24 hours a day on Channel 9.

Wolford said the Atlanta television station is being picked up by the RCA communications satellite and beamed down to the new reflector antenna here. The signal travels a total of 44,600 miles but still transmits a clear picture on Ketchum television sets. WTCC programs daily television series and also broadcasts movies from a film library with 2,800 titles.

Lewiston and Pocatello are the only other two Idaho cities to broadcast an independent television station via satellite to its TV audiences, Wolford said.

As a result of the new antenna, Ketchum cable-TV viewers will also be able to receive HBO pay television beginning November 1.

HBO is "premium television service," which broadcasts first run movies, sports events and other entertainment shows without commercials, according to Wolford.

On the weekend of Oct. 28-30, Wolford says he will preview HBO on Channel 12 free to his Ketchum customers. HBO, broadcast from New York, will air movies such as "Mahogany," "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution," Mel Brooks' "Silent Movie," two television premiere films and a Soup Sales special this last weekend in October.

HBO pay television costs $20 for initial installation, $20 for an equipment deposit and then $10 monthly for the special service. HBO equipment installations will begin on Oct. 31 and regular broadcast of the station on Channel 12 will be resumed Nov. 1. Wolford said the signal for HBO will be scrambled so only those sets with the special equipment will receive broadcasts.

Wolford says HBO doesn't replace commercial television and he claims it doesn't really compete with local movie theaters. He adds that HBO even "tunes people into movies and it tends to whet the appetite" for many movies.

So he says HBO may even benefit local theaters, while for the "rag rags," invertebrate TV watchers, HBO presents a form of entertainment similar to what you might receive at a theater but in your home and at a substantially lower price than at the theater.

The Wood River Cable-Vision—general—manager finally says the new satellite antenna "will benefit the community" with additional television service and he even talks optimistically about other types of programming that may become available in the future.

The new antenna has the capacity to pick up 24 stations, Wolford says, and right now it is receiving only two.

Upped loan rates send market down

NEW YORK (UPI) — A rise in the prime rate, prospects of further hikes in short-term rates big traders say and a White House jab at the Federal Reserve Board left prices lower at the close of the New York Stock Exchange Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 2.60 points Thursday, was off 6.58 points to 888.22 shortly before the New York Stock Exchange closed. That put the Dow at its lowest level since 794.55 on Oct. 2, 1975.

Declines outnumbered advances by about an eight-to-five margin among the 1,842 issues crossing the composite tape at 4 p.m. EDT.

New York Stock Exchange turnover amounted to about 19,910,000 shares, compared with 20,520,000 traded Thursday.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues.

Analysts said treading Clitbank initiated the selling by raising the prime lending rate a quarter point to 7 1/4 percent, the highest level in two years. Many banks followed the lead.

The Fed's latest figures showing no change in the nation's basic money supply following a $4.9 billion surge the week before added to the selling pressure. Investors had speculated there would be a decline. In light of these figures, the Wall Street Journal said the Fed may be forced to raise its discount rate if charges member banks for loans from 5 1/4 to around 6 1/4 percent. This would mean higher interest rates all around.

Meanwhile, Wall Street was dismayed that the White House in a late-Thursday statement warned the Fed not to raise interest rates. Analysts said the statement was an attack on Chairman Arthur F. Burns, who is more respected on Wall Street than the Carter administration.

Elsewhere, the Labor Department reported consumer prices rose only 0.3 percent in September. Critics, meanwhile, said its latest survey showed consumer confidence was at a 15-month low.

Citicorp was one of the most active issues and lower most of the day. The bank holding company Thursday said it has doubts its fourth-quarter earnings will match those of a year ago.

Western Publishing Co. attracted considerable attention. The company said it has received several feelers from companies bent on acquiring it and said it is having preliminary discussions with several of these firms.

business Interior, USDA plan grazing fee increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior and Agriculture Departments Friday proposed a hike in grazing fees on federally owned lands to $1.89 per animal per month to bring fees up to fair market value by the early 1980s.

Current grazing fees are $1.51 per animal per month on Bureau of Land Management lands and $1.60 per animal per month on Forest Service land.

The department said in a joint statement the comparable cost for grazing on private lands in the 11 Western States will be $1.94 in the upcoming grazing season.

The proposed increases would take effect during the next grazing season which starts in March pending Congressional approval.

The recommendations are part of a new grazing fee system required by the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1920. The act called for a joint study to determine an equitable grazing fee system.

"Even though there will be an economic impact on individual operators at a difficult time for the livestock industry, the secretaries said the recommendations are intended to resolve a longstanding issue as equitably as possible," the department said.

But the National Cattlemen's Association and National Wool Growers Association immediately called the recommendation "unfair and unrealistic," said it would force thousands of family farmers out of business and is designed to remove ranchers from public lands, a move they said could make "adequate supplies of food at reasonable prices a thing of the past in America."

Under the recommendations, grazing fees would be increased by no more than 25 per cent until the fair market value is reached. No increase would be more than 12 per cent after that.

The wool growers and cattlemen say the fees should be based on production costs and their ability to pay rather than fair market value.

The department said if their proposal is not adopted, present regulations will remain in effect and the grazing fee for 1978 will be $2.09 for BLM lands and $2.15 for forest service lands.

The eleven states involved in the action include Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

The government began to increase grazing fees since 1969, but pending increases have been delayed four times.

The department said about 25,000 operators hold permits for grazing an estimated 8 million head of livestock on public land.

The study said about 18,000 operators or 72 per cent could expect an increase of $60 in their 1978 grazing bill while 380 of the largest operators could expect an increase of $3,000 in their 1978 grazing bill.

The department noted it expects to collect $28 million in fees for 1977, with that figure going up $6 million under the new system. Officials noted most of the money goes back to Western states, with the bulk of it appropriated for range improvement and restoration and the remainder going to state and county governments.

"It threatens the continued existence of an industry already reeling under the effects of severe drought, four years of the worst economic depression in history and increasingly adverse government policies," the groups said in a statement.

Uniformity: an American way of life

By DAVE MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What do Reggie Jackson, Chief of Police Frank Barnett, a lecturer for Weight Watchers and a Hughes Air West stewardess have in common?

They all perform their jobs wearing specially designed career apparel, articles of clothing most of us used to call uniforms. (For the record, in the clothing business the word "uniform" is out, career apparel and corporate clothing are in.)

Whatever you call them, work uniforms are big business. So big, in fact, it is estimated by 1990 12 million Americans will be wearing their corporate identities on their sleeves. This year alone some $175 million will be spent on uniforms of this nature — all, mind you, for the civilian sector of the economy. Uniforms for the military are a separate factor altogether.

Twin Falls Police Chief Frank Barnett notes a uniform "is like the big sign and lights on a police car. It's ready recognition. In an emergency situation an officer may not have time to identify himself to everyone. The uniform does it for him."

Fire Marshal Bobby Bopp agrees. "It helps us, no doubt about it. A uniform identifies you. Without it people wouldn't know who you are." Bopp added firefighters in uniform "receive more respect" than those in civilian clothes. "And people respond to us quicker."

Bus Howard, owner of the Twin Falls Quality Uniform Store, is another strong supporter of uniforms for civilian workers. Howard, who says he stocks the sole complete uniform store in Idaho ("We're the only pull behind distributor in the state,") provides clothing for medical employees, mail, police and firemen, and a half-dozen other occupations.

Uniforms do more than benefit the company, he insists, citing a case in Montana where a meter reader knocked on a door in his civilian clothes. He was greeted by a shotgun-wielding woman, unsure of his intentions.

"The next week they all had uniforms on," Howard said.

Howard believes many workers enjoy uniforms. They save wear and tear on personal clothing "and they answer that question of what should I wear to work."

Uniforms have been with us quite a few

The Swedish monarch, disturbed by reports his ill clad soldiers were unable to distinguish the good guys from the bad — consequently killed a significant number of each — ordered his troops outfitted in standardized tunics, knee breeches and woolen stockings. Other countries liked the idea, and within years uniforms were an essential part of warfare. (Continued on p 18)

Hospital insurance stalled

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A proposed statewide hospital self-insurance plan is in limbo because of a constitutional bug which could make the participation of county hospitals illegal.

The Idaho Hospital Association (IHA) proposed the money-saving malpractice insurance plan early last summer with a projected startup time of Sept. 1. Several hospitals agreed to drop private insurance carriers and contribute their premiums to the IHA fund. Association officials estimated they would have the $400,000 in premiums the Idaho Commissioner of Insurance had decreed the IHA needed to get the fund underway.

All that, however, was before the constitutionality of county hospital participation came into question. With county hospital participation denied, the fund stalled.

Now, IHA attorneys are researching the legality, hoping to have the problem resolved in time to get the fund going by the first of the year. But IHA officials admit clarification of the constitutionality could take longer.

"Our legal counsel has this on the front burner," said IHA personnel director Steve Millard Friday. "It's the highest priority they have for our legal work. We expect to hear from them any day now."

At issue is whether a "county" hospital by participating in the fund is using taxpayers' money — in the form of fund premiums — to provide aid to private hospitals which are also members of the fund.

According to Fred Decker, attorney for Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, county-hospital participation in the fund could violate a constitutional ban on the use of public agency monies to aid private businesses.

In August Decker advised MVMH to wait for legal clarification before committing itself to premiums of about $50,000 its first year in the IHA fund. Decker said at that time that if claim payments were made to private hospitals out of a fund comprised of both private and public hospital premiums, it could be construed that public support was being given the private hospitals.

Without participation of Magic Valley Memorial and other county hospitals in the state, the IHA fund hit the skids. The association still does not intend to start the plan without county hospital participation.

"If what we get back (from attorneys) says it would be unconstitutional, then we'd have to back up and figure out some other way to do it," Millard said, "but we wouldn't do it in any way to exclude the county hospitals."

He estimated that nearly half the potential participation in the IHA fund would come from public institutions.

Many public hospitals, including MVMH, had indicated they would like to join the IHA fund, if possible.

Since Idaho's rates of payout for malpractice claims are lower than in most states, Idaho hospitals end up paying higher premiums than deserved to support hospitals in high-claim-rate states, fund proponents claim.

IHA officials have estimated malpractice premiums for Idaho hospitals might drop as much as 50 per cent in the long term through participation in the fund.

Millard said the hospitals which had intended to join the IHA plan by Sept. 1 had gone back to private carriers until the fund gets going.

He said there had been no evidence of reprisal from private carriers against hospitals which had indicated they would join IHA.

Head Start program has new quarters

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Head Start Program has moved out of the "inner city" and into the suburbs and the accommodations are deluxe.

In the modern, carpeted surroundings of a large split-level home at 329 Madrona St. N., low-income and handicapped students enrolled in the program sit quietly around tables cut out of pumpkins or coloring pictures under supervision of trained staff.

"We are renting this house for one year," Head Start Site Supervisor Dorothy Miller explains. "We then have a three-year option to buy if we can come up with $10,000 in donations from the community."

Miller says the Head Start program has always been required to obtain 20 per cent of its funding from sources in the community.

In order to buy the house, a federally funded agency, the down payment must come from private donations, Miller says. Once the down payment has been made, the payments, on a 30-year contract, will equal the rent the program is now paying.

Miller has been working all summer on getting the new facility ready for the 57 Head Start students it now houses and the 20 students enrolled in the revitalized Parent Co-Op Learning Center.

The learning center, formerly the Day-Care Co-op, is now complete with a form "program of learning activities for the students who spend their days there."

Miller says both programs have vacancies for students. The Twin Falls HS program can take on seven more students for a total of 61 as of the learning center can open enrollment and also take drop-ins on a registered basis.

The public is invited to view the new school facilities, across from Sunrise Park, at a public open house Nov. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m., according to Miller.

RUPERT — An involuntary manslaughter charge was filed Thursday in the death of a school boy last month.

Minidoka County deputy prosecuting attorney Mike Newell filed a misdemeanor charge Thursday in Minidoka Magistrate Court against Cynthia Lee Berlin, 25, Rupert.

The woman is charged in the death of 11-year-old David Despain on Sept. 19. Despain was struck by the Berlin car as he crossed Idaho 25 west of here, after leaving a school bus; he died later the same day.

Airport funds awarded

BOISE — Twin Falls city and county will share $276,543 in federal airport development funds for the coming fiscal year. Allocation of nearly $3 million in the federal funds was announced Friday by Gov. John Evans.

Of the total, $2,363,218 is for air carrier airports and the remaining $388,667 is allocated for general aviation airports — those lacking commercial air carrier service.

Boise gets about half the total for the air carriers airports—$1,638,000. Idaho Falls receives $500,000; Pocatello, $310,742; and city of Lewiston and county of Nez Perce, $216,127.

'Status' bill considered

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — A bill to eliminate the prosecution of juveniles for offenses that would not be crimes for adults is being considered by Governor Evans' staff, a Blackfoot judge said Thursday at the Governor's Conference on Children in Sun Valley.

Magistrate Judge Robert Brower, Blackfoot, said these so-called "status offenses" such as running away from home or skipping school should be handled by community and state service agencies rather than the courts.

Les Purce, General Services Administrator for the Idaho Department of Administration, agreed. He said the Juvenile Justice Advisory Council appointed by the governor hopes to channel federal money into a program to identify children who may have problems that could lead later to more serious problems.

Brower proposed that local non-profit corporations be set up to secure federal funds and to review status offense juveniles. Brower said he normally refuses to hear status offenses in his court because "the court is not a social agency."

Brower predicted the Idaho Legislature will eliminate status offenses as crimes within two years.

Parole disturbs Shoshone residents

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — The sudden parole last month of convicted murderer Danny Williams has left many Shoshone citizens shocked and concerned. Even though Williams was paroled to a brother in Iowa, some Shoshones argue the parole board acted too quickly in releasing the young man from prison. Not only did Williams failed to pay his debt to society, they argue, but his release presents a dangerous situation if he ever attempts to come back to Lincoln County. Williams' father himself expresses relief that his son is far from the town where he grew up. He says he doesn't think his son will come back. Williams was sent to the Idaho State Penitentiary in Boise to serve a life sentence in 1970, after he was convicted of the slaying of 33-year-old Melba Gray, the mother of six children.

Public outrage at the murder was particularly strong because the Shoshone woman's body was reportedly dragged to downtown railroad tracks after her death and was later hit by a train. Citizens of the community of just over 1,200 held a collection to raise money for the woman's children after her death. When Williams sought parole about two years ago, angry Shoshones flooded the parole board with petitions demanding his retention behind bars.

Now, they express a sense of betrayal at Williams' unannounced release.

"I guess I feel, like several people in the community, that it happened too soon," said Shoshone School Superintendent Kenneth Crothers.

"I didn't deal with Danny closely (when he was a student)," Crothers said, but he added Williams had been "a problem in the classroom and to his principals" long before the murder occurred.

"I was surprised and I guess a little bit shocked that it happened so quickly with the parole," he concluded. Lincoln County Sheriff's Deputy John Davis also expressed dismay at the parole.

"I think if you picked any name out of the phone book in Lincoln County or Shoshone which is not a relative of his — which is strictly Williams here — they would give you your opinion on it," Davis said.

Like former Lincoln County Prosecutor Howard Adkins, Davis is also upset because the parole was granted without local consultation or warning.

"They say it was put out on the teletype, but it didn't come out on our machine," Davis said. Adkins said notice of a parole hearing was sent to the prosecutor's office late last year but that no announcement of parole followed.

"I never liked to see anybody tramped on after they're down," Adkins said with some sympathy for Williams. "But I don't like to see the public subjected to exposure that they shouldn't be either."

He said Williams' parole had come too soon after his life sentence.

"My personal feeling is if a judge puts a fellow into jail, the judge should be the one to turn him out," he said, "but that's not the law."

Even Williams' father, Don, agrees his son is better off out of state.

"I feel it's probably better that he was paroled than that it would be here," the elder Williams said. "I think he'd have a little better chance at it."

He said his youngest son had been paroled to the custody of an older brother near Des Moines, Iowa. He said Danny was working in a plastics factory.

Williams said he hadn't seen Danny since his release but had seen him in prison.

"When I visited him down at Boise he seemed to me like he grew up a little bit," the father said. "I think with age everybody gets just a little bit wiser."

Williams said he'd had nothing to do with his son's parole, but he added, "They must have thought down here if he was ready for parole or they wouldn't have let him out. Wouldn't you think so?"

Asked if his son would be likely to return to Shoshone in violation of his parole, the elder Williams said, "I doubt that very much. I don't think he wants to be here either."

By the terms of his parole young Williams, now in his mid-20s, must complete a six-year probation in Iowa.

No meningitis outbreak seen

By BONNIE BARD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Health Department and hospital officials here confirmed reports Friday of active meningitis cases in Twin Falls, but said the disease is not the infectious type which is sometimes fatal or carries serious after-effects.

Nancy Churchman, director of nursing at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, said there is currently one case in the hospital which involves a child.

Hospital officials said there is no outbreak and the disease is not serious.

Officials at South Central Health District here said they have had reports of several cases but since they do not involve the type of meningitis which requires reporting to the health district, no record has been made of the number and no investigation initiated.

Edward Perry, epidemiologist with the health district, said there are two types of meningitis — hemophilus meningitis and nisseria meningitis, the more serious type. All of the cases in Twin Falls are the hemophilus meningitis type, he said.

Officials say apparently a number of parents have heard of an outbreak of meningitis and have become concerned.

"There is no outbreak," Perry said, "and the illness we do have reports on is not serious."

Bells are ringing

'THE GLAMOUR that goes with being a quarterback is often tempered by the slings and arrows of defensive linemen. In a battle between Buhl and Buford Friday night, Buhl quarterback Allyn Reynolds suffered some bumps and bruises. He was all right, though, after a quick check from trainer Al Baxter. Buhl went on to take the win.

The Earth Stove®

Check these facts before you buy any other stove!

- The Earth Stove burns 1/3 the fuel of many stoves because pre-heating draft manifold promotes efficient and complete combustion like solid fuel power plants. Super-heated air prevents "cooling" of fire unlike manual "hole" drafts do. Even large chunks burn slowly and completely—eliminates frequent ash removal.
- Even temperatures — thermostatically maintains temperature you select. Levels out uneven cycle of wood combustion (Manual drafts cannot do this). Home temperatures more even than furnace heat.
- Burns 14 hours on one wood load
- Converts to open fire instantly
- Cook top just set thermostat to cooking heat desired — ideal for "Crock-Pot" style cookery
- Wood gases not wasted — Secondary drafts introduce oxygen above primary fire zone to burn volatile gases such as methanol, propylene gas, etc.
- Air tight — Prevents heat loss up chimney.

The Earth Stove makes use of modern technology to improve the great tradition of Wood Heat.

Filer facing school bond election

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

FILER — Passage of the proposed $1.99 million school bond issue Nov. 1, will give the school district a second gymnasium and 10 high school classrooms.

Members of a Citizens Committee for Schools, headed by Mrs. Roger Vincent, have been working in support of the bond issue and contacting residents of the district, urging them to vote in the coming election.

Superintendent Ray Baker said the funds will give Filer district an opportunity to expand the school complex along lines planned at the time of other improvements such as the auditorium building. The new 10 classrooms for the high school would be added just to the south of the auditorium.

"With the increased emphasis on sports for both boys and girls, we find our one gymnasium is in use from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and we still haven't time for all of the things we need to do in the way of physical education," Baker said.

Plans call for the renovation and improvement of the existing gymnasium as well as the present high school building for use by junior high school classes.

Baker said the old gymnasium has no restroom facilities and the dressing room area is in very poor condition. The present wrestling room will be remodeled to include restrooms and the locker area will be improved.

Included in the 10 classrooms will be one multi-use room which will serve as a lunch and classroom. There will also be special plans made to accommodate the school's unified science program for the freshmen and sophomores.

Jim Smallwood, Twin Falls architect, is designing the building addition for the school district with plans to be finalized if the bond issue passes.

Baker said the qualified electors of the district will be voting from noon to 8 p.m. Nov. 1, in the Filer High School and the Hollister grade school buildings.

The general obligation bond issue would be repaid by the district over a period of 20 years. Any bond file resident of the district who is 18 years of age or older is eligible to vote in the election.

Absentee ballots can be obtained now from Mrs. Ray Baker, school clerk or by sending a written application to the clerk for an absentee ballot. The application should include the name of the elector, the trustee zone of the district where he or she resides and the present address of the voter.

Ballots must be returned to the clerk prior to Nov. 1, the date of the election.

Wrongful arrest suit filed

JEROME — An arrest error in North Dakota resulted in Idaho, Jerome and Cassia Counties being named defendants in a $1 million lawsuit.

A Montana tree trimmer, arrested in Cavalier, N. D., was brought to Jerome a year ago on two-year-old charges of second-degree burglary involving checks. He was later released when handwriting tests indicated he was not involved in passing the checks.

William Evans, Missoula, Mont., has named ten defendants in a suit seeking $1 million. The complaint involves ten counties.

Named defendants in the case are the state of North Dakota, and subsidiary jurisdictions, Idaho and Jerome and Cassia Counties, and several individual officers. The original Jerome county warrant was signed by a state investigator. Other defendants named in the suit are Sheriff Elza Hall, Jerome County, and Burley Police Detective Lt. Pete Rodriguez, who is listed as a Cassia County law enforcement officer.

Cassia County Prosecutor Al Barrus said his office issued a John Doe warrant on the basis of a sworn statement by Rodriguez. He said Evans' name was not listed on the warrant.

Jerome County Prosecuting Attorney Gene Fredericksen said the second-degree burglary warrant there was issued for a "Duke Thyberg," and aliases including the John Does name. The warrant was issued by Russell Shaud, Jerome County magistrate, and sent to the National Crime Information Center. It was based on the theft of a series of checks from a Jerome merchant which were then run through a check protector machine.

About two years later, North Dakota officials investigating a forgery case arrested Evans. Sheriff Hall went to Cavalier, N. D., and transported the prisoner to Jerome.

Twin Falls attorney James May, representing Evans, said the man volunteered to pay his own flight to Jerome county, but was refused. May said he was brought back in chains and handcuffs and housed in the Jerome county jail for seven days before he was released following handwriting tests.

The suit was filed in Federal District Court in Boise. May estimated the case will not come to trial for six months to a year.

The latter additions often enhance esprit de corps of particular units. But uniforms still continued to serve the same purpose, advance by King Adolphus — they told at a glance who was who and what was what. That purpose is still important today, whether the uniform is civilian or military.

Identification is one of the central reasons behind the explosion of work uniforms in the business world. Ten years ago airline stewards were virtually alone when it came to career apparel. Today employees in banks, supermarkets, motels and virtually any business which deals with people regularly are likely to be wearing uniforms.

At a glance, positive identification is made. A customer can distinguish between the check out clerk paid to sort his groceries and the other customers standing in line.

In addition, each uniformed employee is "walking billboard for the company's product. If the uniform doesn't somewhere advertise the employer — most do — a regularly-seen uniform will still bring to mind a definite business.

While the march of career apparel into the civilian sector is still a new phenomena, Americans have for years shared their lives with uniforms.

Students at parochial schools still wear standardized clothing. While dress is free at public schools, Boy and Girl Scout programs are everywhere and provide a uniform. High school and college bring graduation — with the universal gown and mortar board. For many the next step is the armed forces, and another uniform.

Still, America's acceptance of uniforms has been far less complete than the open love affair Europeans have with their national dress.

In Spain, for instance, recent proposals to change the formal garb of the matador — rigidly controlled for two centuries — has sparked bitter debate. In Britain, blood red tunics, polished breastplates and tasseled helmets can yet convince Londoners the sun still shines on the Empire.

And in Rome, the Swiss Guard still patrols the Vatican, armed with 14 foot pikes as part of their medieval costume.

American uniforms tend toward the egalitarian, and departures from this somewhat Puritan ethic often meet with disapproval. President Nixon's unsuccessful attempt to outfit the White House Guards in costumes reminiscent of a comic opera still draws laughs. But the rise in career apparel has not been uniformly praised. Some critics have charged corporate clothing brings workers one step closer to a corporate state — a state where Big Brother rules and runs us all.

Others argue that strongest support for career apparel comes from women — who have had wide clothing choices in the past. Career men, it is pointed out, have only recently escaped the uniform of gray flannel suits, narrow lapels, white shirts and drab ties. This group of workers, some say, are in no rush to trade one uniform for another.

Other critics, armed with batteries of psychological tests, insist a growing number of uniforms also means an increased number of authority figures in an already over-regulated world. Uniforms, they say, stifle spontaneity and creativity — replacing them with drab obedience. The critics seem to be fighting a losing battle. Uniforms seem — not only designed to stay but are likely to play a growing role in the American work force.

Bill pays for suits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Individuals who take the federal government's court and win, may have their attorney costs paid by the government under provisions of a McClure bill which passed the U.S. Senate Thursday.

Sen. James McClure termed the Senate action "a tremendous victory for the ordinary citizen, the businessman, or the private organization who must face the huge federal bureaucracy in court." He said the legislation would require that the federal government pay for reasonable attorneys fees which would normally be incurred by the individual.

Anti-poverty projects plagued

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National organizations representing local anti-poverty programs have been plagued with mismanagement, lavish travel for VIPs and improper use of limited funds for the poor, according to a House committee.

Two of the groups "have become arenas for political infighting," said a report by the House Government Operations Committee Thursday.

The report covered seven organizations that have offered services like public relations or lobbying for 110,000 local community action workers.

The associations, it said, need substantial reform if they are to serve poor people. It indicated the federal Community Services Administration is moving to correct the abuses.

"These poverty associations assert that they have the right to speak for those who have dedicated themselves to assist the poor, and the excesses of the leadership may reflect unfairly on those they claim to represent," said Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., chairwoman of a manpower and housing subcommittee.

The report charged that "close ties" between some officials of CSA — which directs much of what remains of the Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty — and two of the national groups "made it difficult for CSA to exercise proper supervision ... of these professional associations."

These associations agreed in 1973 to help save the CSA-forerunner Office of Economic Opportunity from being dismantled, the report said. But the resulting relationship between CSA and the groups worked to the disadvantage of taxpayers, it said.

It found:

- The associations spend about $12,000 a year each for travel and entertainment expenses of their presidents, with no determination whether it furthers association objectives.
- Operations of the National Community Action Executive Directors' Association and the National Association for Community Development have been supported indirectly by the CSA without a determination "that these organizations either fostered the professional development of community action employees or furthered the cause of community action."

Auto gas use up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Licensed American drivers last summer consumed an average of 23 gallons of gasoline a day, government figures show.

The Energy Department said Thursday a record 317 million gallons of gasoline were consumed daily by the nation's 136 million licensed drivers.

A new report said consumption during the 100-day summer peak driving season has 3 per cent higher than during the 1976 Bicentennial summer.

The highest regional consumption was recorded in the heavily populated East and North-Central states, which averaged 106 million and 107 million gallons per day respectively.

The lowest consumption recorded, 11 million gallons a day, was in the Rocky Mountain states. South-Central states averaged 45 million, and far West states 48 million, according to the report.

Nagging wife killed

CHELMSFORD, England (UPI) — Reginald Elliott killed his wife because she nagged him constantly for 17 years, he walked out of court Tuesday a free man.

"I don't think I have ever before come across a case where provocation has gone on so long," said Judge Henry Croom-Johnson. "In the end you got into a position where you were unable to cope."

He put Elliott, 47, on probation for three years. Elliott pleaded guilty to manslaughter. His attorneys told the court his wife Doreen was "a miserable woman who found pleasure in nothing."

She nagged him about his faithfulness, nagged him about his neighbors, about the local stores, about his watching television — she once hid the television set to keep him from watching.

During the 17 years Elliott put up with her he moved 10 times, changing jobs each time, to find a place which satisfied Doreen.

Nothing worked. At the end of his tether, Elliott went to the police and asked to be locked up because he feared what he would do. They refused. A week later he strangled his nagging wife.

Snake water improved

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State University scientist William Funk says the water quality of the lower Snake River is better than it was 10 years ago.

Funk said although there is still much work to do, he credited the improvement to the enforcement of federal and state water quality standards.

"Industries along the river are upgrading their systems for treating effluents and municipalities are improving their sewage treatment plants," Funk and scientists from the University of Idaho and the Army Corps of Engineers are completing a seven year study of the effects of Lower Granite Dam on the Snake River's aquatic life and water quality.

"Construction of Lower Granite Dam did not have as drastic an impact on the Snake's water quality as some individuals had feared," said Funk.

"It did change the aquatic life. Organisms that lived in the free-flowing stream were replaced by those which inhabit the reservoir's depths. It's a trade-off."

Carter betrayal claimed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Eskimos say President Carter has betrayed them by abandoning their human rights in favor of "animal-loving, people-hating conservationists" who back a ban on hunting of the bowhead whale.

The bowhead whale, a mammal up to 60 feet long with blubber averaging 20 inches in thickness, has been a mainstay of the Eskimo culture. While once plentiful in both the Atlantic and Pacific, only a small stock estimated at from 500 to 2,000 whales remain off the Arctic Coast.

The State Department attempted Thursday to resolve a battle that pitted the endangered bowhead against the Eskimo, one department of government against another, and traditional allies like the National Audubon Society against the Humane Society.

The department announced the United States would not deny the International Whaling Commission as the Eskimos demanded but would seek Eskimo participation in a conservation program for presentation to the IWC late this year.

"In order both to protect Eskimo subsistence hunting and to maintain and improve international cooperation to protect whales, the United States has decided not to present an objection at this time," said the State Department in a statement.

"We have assumed Carter would opt for human rights over the votes of animal-loving, people-hating conservationists," said the Eskimos, adding they formed their own group to eliminate abuses in whaling.

Some conservationists claimed as many as three whales were killed for every one taken ashore.

"We will see the United States in court," the Eskimos said. They are believed to be considering a suit, arguing the IWC has jurisdiction over commercial and not subsistence hunting.

For several years, the IWC, which limits the commercial whale hunt has warned the United States to work out a conservation program for the declining bowhead stock.

Zahner sets rushing record as BSU whips NAU, grabs conference lead

BOISE — Northern Arizona, blew into Boise Saturday with a share of the Big Sky Conference lead and the best rushing and best rushing defense in the league.

It was blown out Saturday night with all those reputations shattered and Boise State sitting atop the conference with a 27-13 win and 40 conference record.

First Boise State used a lot of a double tight end formation for blocking power and then turned loose over freshmen tailbacks to dazzle the Lumberjacks. Most dazzling was California product Terry Zahner, who picked up 204 yards to establish a school one-game rushing record.

Zahner was doomed to all those yards without any points, but not Borah product Cedric Minter. He uncorked touchdown runs of seven and 47 yards and caught a 39-yard bomb. Minter seldom played in the second half but had over 120 yards.

That left last year's BSU rushing leader Fred

Good, now a third teamer, to come up with over 60. By the end of the game Boise State had picked up 451 yards in total offense while Arizona, which was the best offensive team going in, mustered just over 225.

The game opened in a punt exchange but after Boise kicked to NAU, linebacker Max Billinton picked off a Lumberjack pass and returned it 43 yards for a touchdown. Tony Sarrett added the point-after.

But BSU returned that compliment later in the period when Harold Smith picked off a pass at the BSU 44 and six plays later Golden burst into the end zone from the 10 on a counter play.

Boise used the last minute of the period and five minutes of the second to drive for the touchdown that put it ahead to stay. The Broncos moved 20, sustained a 15-yard penalty but then came back on Zahner's first short run, a short pass to Sorenson and Minter's short drive to make it 14-7.

Northern Arizona had to punt immediately after the kickoff and Boise State went on another drive. The last 47 yards came quickly as Minter went on a sweep to the right, cut back and then swept in to score standing up.

But in the last two minutes, another interception set up a 42-yard field goal by Fred Jurich with 36 left in the half.

The second half settled into punting exchanges with one exception midway through the third quarter. BSU had just received a punt at the NAU 43, ran a short yardage play and then went without a huddle. Minter was a sleeper on the play, standing just inside the sideline and blending with his teammates. No one was around when Hoskins Hogan hit him with the scoring bomb.

NAU's second half points came on a 37-yard field goal by Jurich and on the last play of the game Daniels hit Tyrone Peterson with a long bomb but Boise prevented that touchdown by making the tackle at the seven as the clock ran out.

Montana nips ISU on field goal in last 22 seconds

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — Bruce Carlson's 22-yard field goal with 22 seconds remaining gave Montana its first Big Sky Conference win this season 17-15, over Idaho State Saturday.

Carlson, who kicked conversions following two Grizzly touchdowns in the first half, became Montana's career scoring leader with 181 points. Dan Worrell, also a kicker, had 180 points in 1968-70.

Carlson's game-winning field goal was set up on a 76-yard drive, highlighted by a 31-yard pass from quarterback Tim Kerr to split end Vern Kelly.

Montana led 14-8 in the second quarter, but the Bengals went in front, 15-14, with less than four minutes left in the game.

Halfback Monty Bullerick, who carried the ball 36 times for 170 yards, ran five yards for Montana's first touchdown, late in the first quarter. Fullback Grant Kleckner's two-yard run and Carlson's second PAT made it 14-0 with 3:36 left in the first half.

Idaho State bounced back, following an interception by Bengal safety Brent Helmandollar, with quarterback Mick Spoon tossing a 21-yard touchdown pass to split end Greg Smith. Fullback Bruce Bachmeier ran for a two-point conversion, leaving the Grizzlies ahead, 14-8, at the half.

The third quarter and much of the fourth period were scoreless until Bachmeier took a 12-yard pass from Spoon to tie the score. Jeff Fillmore's PAT kick gave the Bengals their only lead of the afternoon before Carlson booted the winning field goal.

Fumbles and penalties often slowed the Grizzly offense, but Montana's defense had a shining afternoon, limiting the Bengals to 68 yards rushing and 121 passing. The Grizzlies led by cornerback Greg Dunn's three interceptions, stole five ISU passes and held the Bengals to 11 first downs, only two in the second half.

The victory was Montana's second of the season against five losses. ISU has an identical overall record, but the Bengals are 1-3 in Big Sky play while last-place Montana is 1-4.

Idaho strikes for 17 early points to surprise Montana State by 17-6

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — The Idaho Vandals got off to a fast start following a Montana State fumble and upset the nationally-ranked Bozeman 17-6 Saturday.

The loss dropped the defending NCAA Division II champs out of contention for a second straight Big Sky Conference crown.

The Bobcats fumbled on their second play from scrimmage, and moments later halfback Tim Lappano sprinted 14 yards to give the Vandals a lead they would not relinquish.

Midway through the second quarter reserve quarterback Rocky Tuttle went eight yards for a second Idaho score, and kicker Ralph Lowe provided the Vandals with a 17-point half-time cushion when he hit a 49-yard field goal for a stadium record.

Earlier in the second quarter, Lowe saw a 55-yard field goal attempt stray to the left.

Montana State foresaw its usual running game in the second half and quarterback

Paul Dennehy, just one for nine in the first half, hit seven of his first 10 attempts in the third quarter to mount the pressure.

The Bobcats pounced on an Idaho fumble at the 29-yard line several minutes into the half and turned that into their first touchdown. Dennehy then kept the pressure on with a series of short passes and buttonbacks and three times the Bobcats moved inside the Idaho 25.

But in each case Idaho was able to escape without damage as Jeff Hiral missed a field goal and the Idaho defense stopped the other two.

Idaho gave its fans some anxious minutes midway through the fourth period when it gambled on a fourth and one at its own 49-yard line and failed. Montana State immediately bounced to the Vandal 24 but ran out of downs there.

The final Bobcat effort, coming in the final two minutes, carried to the Idaho 18 before Brian Clark picked off a pass at the two and returned it to the 15.

The win boosted Idaho's record to 2-2 overall while MSU dropped to 2-2 in the league and 5-2 overall.

Huskies slip past Oregon St.

SEATTLE (UPI) — Washington quarterback Warren Moon hurled a 38-yard touchdown pass to Spider Gaines Saturday to lead the Huskies past stubborn Oregon State, 14-6, and into a share of the Pacific-8 Conference lead.

The Moon-to-Gaines pass followed a 66-yard drive that began right after Oregon State's Kieron Walford had narrowed the lead to 7-6 with a 21-yard field goal, his second of the game.

Walford booted a 49-yard three-pointer early in the second period to give the Beavers a 3-0 halftime lead.

Washington went ahead to stay when fullback Ron Gipson broke through center for 13 yards and six points. Gipson's touchdown was set up when Beaver quarterback John Norman fumbled after being sacked and Washington linebacker Antowaine Richardson recovered on the Oregon State 37. Washington missed a chance for a touchdown midway through the second period after recovering a fumble by Beaver fullback Byron Keller on the Oregon State 22.

But the threat ended when Gibson fumbled, and Beaver linebacker Kent Howe recovered on the Beavers' 8.

The victory gave Washington a 3-0 record in Pac-8 play, and ties the Huskies with USC for the conference lead.

This was Washington's third consecutive win over the Beavers, and the victory gave the Huskies a 35-24 edge over Oregon State in this traditional series that dates back to 1897.

TD off punt block lets UCLA rally past California 21-19

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Marvin Morris blocked California's first punt of the game early in the fourth quarter and then ran the ball back 26 yards for a touchdown Saturday night as UCLA's Bruins came from behind to upend the 14th-ranked Golden Bears 21-19 in a Pacific-8 football game.

In absorbing their second Pac-8 defeat, the Bears were virtually eliminated from the Rose Bowl race on a night when Jim Breach kicked four field goals and Cal quarterback Charles Young passed for 299 yards.

Trailing 16-7 after three quarters, the Bruins got their second touchdown of the game on the second play of the final period when Rick Bashore found Homer Butler standing alone in a corner of the end zone and lobbed the ball to him.

That touchdown came with just 33 seconds gone in the fourth quarter to complete an 80-yard, 13-play drive and cut the California lead to 16-14.

Just 1:06 later, Morris scored after breaking in to block Dan Melville's punt. Morris, a junior nose guard playing on a special team, scooped up the ball on the first bounce and ran untouched into the end zone.

Breach, who set a Pac-8 career record by running his collegiate field goal total to 45, booted a 45-yarder with 5:46 remaining. He earlier had field goals of 21, 36, and 37 yards.

By beating Cal for the sixth consecutive time and 23rd time in the schools' last 27 football meetings, UCLA stayed very much alive its bid to go to Pasadena in January by improving its Pac-8 record to 2-1. The Bruins improved their overall season record to 4-3 with their second straight win while California suffered only its second loss in seven starts.

UCLA won in a game in which Young, Cal's replacement for the late Joe Roth, completed 25 of 44 passes. He was intercepted twice.

Cal, who set a Pac-8 career record by running his collegiate field goal total to 45,

N. Texas nips Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — David Morris return a blocked punt for one fourth-quarter touchdown and reserve quarterback Ken Washington completed a clutch fourth-down pass for another to give 16th-ranked North Texas State a 20-19 victory over Memphis State Saturday night.

With 12 minutes left in the game, Memphis State led 19-7 and appeared on its way to victory as punter Keith Wright lofted a high kick to the North Texas 30. Offsetting penalties brought the ball back to the Memphis State 47, however, and Wright tried to kick again.

Morris then broke through the left side of the Tiger line and cleanly blocked the punt. The freshman defender then scooped up the ball and rushed into the end zone, cutting the Memphis State lead to five points, 19-14.

Purdue belts Iowa

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Freshman quarterback Tom Herrmann hurled five touchdown passes Saturday, four of them to Reggie Arnold, to tie one Big Ten record and establish another in Purdue's 34-21 victory over Iowa.

Herrmann's five scoring strikes tied the league record established in 1963 by Iowa's Fred Riddle against Indiana and tied 10 years later by Milt Anderson of Northwestern against Minnesota.

Arnold's four TD receptions erased the Big Ten record held by numerous players.

Herrmann completed 13 of 18 throws for 257 yards and suffered three interceptions. His five touchdown passes also tied the school mark established by Mike Phipps against Stanford in 1969.

LSU mauls Oregon

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State tailback Charles Alexander rushed for four touchdowns and 227 yards, both school records, in a 56-17 non-conference win over Oregon Saturday night.

Alexander rushed the ball 31 times and scored all four touchdowns in the second half. However, he rushed for more than 100 yards in each half to surpass Terry Robiskie's single-game rushing record of 214 yards in 1976 against Rice.

Alexander's scores came on runs of 2, 20, 4 and 2 yards, the last with two seconds remaining in the game.

It was the first time in LSU history that one player scored four times by rushing.

Hogs blank Houston

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas quarterback Ron Calegari passed for two touchdowns and rushed for more than 100 yards Saturday night to direct the eighth-ranked Razorbacks to an easy 34-0 Southwest Conference victory over the fumbling Houston Cougars.

Calegari enjoyed his best night of the season, connecting on 10 of 15 passes, including scoring strikes of 7 and 15 yards to tight-end Charles Clay. He also picked up 127 yards on 18 carries.

N.M. State wins

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Rick Horacek scored on a 10-yard run with 3:16 left in the third quarter Saturday night and Skip Vernon converted the extra point to give New Mexico State a 7-6 victory over Texas-Arlington.

The Mavericks had dominated the game until Arlington quarterback Roy Devalt fumbled on his own 38 to set up the winning drive for the Aggies.

The only Mavericks' scores came on field goals of 42 yards in the first quarter and 37 yards in the third quarter by Tom Skoruppa.

Skoruppa tried seven field goals, but missed on five of them, including a 29-yard attempt with 1:27 left in the game.

New Mexico State, tied for the lead in the Missouri Valley Conference with a 3-1 league mark, is now 4-3 for the season. Texas-Arlington, fighting to stay alive in the Southland Conference, is 3-4 for the season.

A&M topples Rice

HOUSTON (UPI) — Quarterback David Wake threw one touchdown pass and directed the 11th-ranked Texas A&M to two more scores, but it took a stiff Aggie's defense to turn back a late Rice rally and preserve a 28-14 Southwest Conference victory Saturday night.

Rice, 1-6, and 0-4 in conference play, scored two touchdowns in the second half on Randy Hertel's 37-yard pass to David Houser and Calvin Fangel's 1-yard run.

Texas A&M recorded its third conference victory without a loss and remained in a tie for the league lead with the Texas Longhorns.

It appeared A&M would rout the Owls, who gave up 77 points to Texas, as the Aggies drove 87 yards for their second possession and scored on David Brothers' 4-yard run. Barefoot place kicker Tony Franklin added first half field goals of 54 and 34 yards and the Aggies pulled to a 21-0 lead early in the third quarter on George Woodward's 3-yard run.

Late mistakes help Stanford edge WSU

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Gary Benjamin, a leading All-America and Heisman Trophy candidate, passed Stanford to three touchdowns but the Cardinals needed a fumble recovery and a second Washington State mistake with 1:35 left to play Saturday for a 31-29 victory.

The triumph, which gave Stanford a 5-2 overall record and a 3-1 mark in the Pacific-8 conference, put the Cardinals back in the conference Rose Bowl race. Washington State lost its fourth game in seven starts and dropped to 1-3 in the league.

Benjamin threw scoring passes of 14 and 12 yards to wide-receiver James Lofton and 23 yards to split-end Bill Kellar, and the Cards got 10 more points on a two-yard run by John Finley and 29-yard field goal by Ken Naber.

Benjamin completed 27-of-39 passes for 330 yards, and the three TDs gave him 13 for the season. His completion average rose to close to the 70 percent mark.

Jack Thompson, the Cardinals' talented quarterback, completed 19-of-24 passes for 274 yards and one touchdown. He completed a 5-yard throw to Brian Kelly to put WSU to within three points of the lead in the first minute of the final quarter, then marched his team 80 yards in seven plays with Harold Gillum going the last three with eight minutes remaining.

At the end of the drive Thompson threw to Dan Doornink for two extra points that put the Cougars within two of the lead.

But Stanford marched 66 yards to the Washington State three with Finley and Darrin Nelson carrying the ball on alternating plays. Benjamin tried for a touchdown, but Don Schwartz came up with his second interception to give the Cougars life.

Thompson passed six yards to Gillum to the 23, but on the next play Gillum fumbled and Chuck Evans recovered it for Stanford at the 27.

The Cards bogged down at the 19, and Naber seemingly kicked a 37-yard field goal, but Washington State was offside and Stanford had a first down at the 15.

Three running plays advanced the ball to the 10, and then Naber missed a 32-yard FG try with six seconds left.

Thompson went for the bomb, but Lofton intercepted as time ran out.

The Cougars got their other points on a four-yard run by Mike Washington and a two-yard run by Tall Etna.

DEFENSIVE BACK Alan Caldwell (38) of North Carolina breaks up a pass intended for South Carolina's Willie Scott. North Carolina won 17-0.

Nebraska tips Colorado 33-15

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — I.M. Hipp scored two touchdowns Saturday while turning in another superb running performance in a sparkling 17th-ranked Nebraska to a 33-15 upset of seventh-ranked Colorado.

In helping the Cornhuskers notch their 10th consecutive victory over one of their bitterest Big Eight rivals, Hipp scored on runs of 28 and 4 yards, including the clincher midway through the final quarter which boosted Nebraska to a 25-16 lead.

In twisting, squirting, and occasionally ramming his way through the Colorado defense, the sparkling sophomore I.M. Hipp scored two touchdowns Saturday while turning in another superb running performance in a sparkling 17th-ranked Nebraska to a 33-15 upset of seventh-ranked Colorado.

He had lots of help in fashioning the win over Colorado, including a stout performance from the Husker defense which denied the Buffaloes any points after Colorado overcame a short-lived 3-0 Nebraska lead early in the game. The Buffs scored one touchdown in the first period on a 59-yard kickoff return by Howard Ballage right after Billy Todd had kicked a 42-yard Nebraska field goal.

Colorado took a 15-3 lead on a 1-yard run by James Mayberry and a 2-point conversion run by quarterback Jeff Knappe.

But Nebraska edged back into the lead, 16-15, during the final 2:43 of the second quarter when Hipp scored from 22 yards out and quarterback Tom Sorely connected with seven seconds left on a 22-yard touchdown strike to Kenny Brown.

Todd added a 38-yard field goal halfway through the third quarter to pad Nebraska's lead to 19-15.

BYU slips to 10-7 win over Wyoming

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — Quarterback Marc Wilson outlasted a strong Wyoming defensive effort Saturday with a 13-yard touchdown pass and Dev Duke added a 22-yard field goal to give 15th-ranked Brigham Young a 10-7 win over the Cowboys.

Wyoming stifled the passing game of its opponent with six interceptions, but committed eight turnovers of their own.

The victory puts the Cougars in command of the Western Athletic Conference race with a 3-0 conference record. Wyoming drops to 2-2 in the league.

BYU failed to score in the first quarter for the first time this year but put together a 76-yard scoring drive to open the second quarter. Wilson found tight end Ted Thompson in the back of the Wyoming end zone.

Duke kicked his field goal with 6:45 to go to make it 10-0 at the half.

Quarterback Marc Cousins started his first game since opening day for Wyoming and fumbled four times, losing three, before suffering from exhaustion midway through the second quarter. Don Clayton replaced Cousins. He fumbled once and threw one interception.

Oklahoma thumps Iowa State

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Quarterback Thomas Lett ran for two touchdowns and scooped up a shovel pass to help Elvis Peacock for a 14-yard touchdown to guide Oklahoma to a 26-16 victory over Iowa State in a battle for first place in the Big Eight Conference Saturday.

Lett scored on runs of 9 and 6 yards, freshman halfback David Overstreet ran in from the 4 and halfback Freddie Nixon sprinted 85 yards for a touchdown on a punt return for the Sooners during a rainy afternoon.

Oklahoma's big plays overcame a 17-yard effort by Iowa State's 162-pound tailback Dexter Green, who scored, one of the Cyclones' touchdowns on a 44-yard run. Green carried 29 times to mark the 11th 100-yard-plus game of his career.

Green bounced off a tackler, jumped outside and scooted

the 44 yards to put Iowa State ahead 7-0 on its second possession of the ball game.

Iowa State quarterback Terry Rubley passed 12 yards to tight end Guy Preston on fourth down in the third quarter for the Cyclones' other touchdown, and ISU picked up a safety on a bad snap to Uwe von Schumann who was attempting to punt from the end zone. A noncontact foul and 15-yard penalty in a holt, which led to the safety.

Kentucky shuts out Georgia

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Kentucky quarterback Derrick Ramsey put on a royal passing performance for the Prince of Wales Saturday when he threw for three touchdowns to lead the Wildcats to a 30-0 victory over Georgia.

Prince Charles attended the second half of the game, receiving a rousing welcome from the crowd. He chatted with majorettes and was introduced to the captains of both teams. Charles came to Athens from Charleston, S.C., a city named for Great Britain's last King Charles.

Ramsey caught Georgia off balance with a 1-yard toss to Freddie Williams for Kentucky's first touchdown with 2:28 left in the first half, threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Dave Trosper in the opening minutes of the third quarter, and then finished with a flourish by throwing a 12-yarder to Felix Wilson in the opening minutes of the final quarter.

Kentuck got its other points on two 51-yard field goals and three extra points by Joe Bryant and a 10-yard touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Mike Deaton to Gregg Nord with 3:31 left in the game.

Georgia, only a 2-point underdog, gained only 38 yards in the first half and did not get inside the Kentucky 15 until the final quarter when Ramsey and the other Wildcat regulars took a rest.

Kentucky, beating Georgia for only the third time in 21 years, simply manhandled the Bulldogs, but was unable to get its first points until Bryant kicked his first field goal with 8:14 left in the first half after missing a 52-yarder four minutes earlier.

The Wildcats' first touchdown was set up when Mike Martin blocked a Georgia punt, giving Kentucky possession at the Bulldog 32. Kentucky moved to a first down at the Georgia four on the running and passing of Ramsey, but faced a fourth-and-goal at the Georgia one before Ramsey caught the Bulldogs expecting a run and flipped the ball to Williams, who was alone in the back of the end zone.

Kentucky marched 79 yards after the second half kickoff with Williams turning in a 47-yard run two plays before Ramsey connected with Trosper for the second touchdown. Bryant kicked his second field goal with 4:38 left in the third period to give the Wildcats a 20-0 lead.

Six plays later, Kelly Kirchbaum intercepted a Georgia pass, and Ramsey led the Wildcats to their third touchdown, hitting Wilson in the corner with 12:03 left to play. The Kentucky reserves marched 74 yards for the final touchdown with Deaton completing three passes for 43 yards in that drive.

Ohio State wins despite turnovers

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — A ragged Ohio State squad overcame six turnovers Saturday and defeated Northwestern 35-15 in a Big Ten conference game on a pair of touchdowns by freshman Joel Payton.

The Wildcats, playing before 29,563 homecoming fans, converted two turnovers by the fifth-ranked Buckeyes into first-half scores.

Norwestern, which fell to 6-7 on the year, took a 3-0 lead on Sam Poules' 44-yard field goal with 9:33 left in the first quarter. The score was set up by Jeff Logan's fumble at the Northwestern 41.

After Poules missed a 51-yard field goal attempt, the Buckeyes who liked their record to 6-1, took the lead for good at 4:58 in the first quarter when freshman tailback Joel Payton scored the first of his two touchdowns, this one on a 14-yard plunge.

The Buckeyes made it 14-3 with little more than a minute remaining in the quarter when Jeff Logan took a pitch from quarterback Rod Gerald and sprinted over from the 5-yard line.

However, Northwestern capitalized on the second Buckeye turnover when quarterback Steve Bobowski intercepted a Gerald pass and returned it to the Ohio State 34.

Valley cinches trip to state playoffs

EDEN — Bryan Human smashed for four touchdowns and 234 yards in 16 carries Friday night to lead Valley past Kimberly 36-4 and into the first state playoffs ever offered in Idaho.

The Valley victory, coupled with Shoshone's defeat of Wendell, gave the Vikings the Canyon Conference championship regardless of what happens when they meet Shoshone next week.

Kimberly gave Valley some early anxious moments but Human quickly righted things and from the middle of the second period on the Vikings fairly well dominated play.

Kimberly marched 56 yards on its first possession to take the lead. Mark McKinley got the touchdown on a 26-yard sprint.

But on the first play after the kickoff, Human broke off fumble and swept 61 yards to the two-point run that put Valley ahead to stay.

Just two minutes later, Human continued his scoring tear with a 28-yard sweep and

Camas County earns right to defend state eight-man crown

ROCKLAND — The Camas County Musters crushed Rockland 42-20 Friday afternoon to clinch a trip to the state eight-man football championships.

The victory carried the Musters to within a victory over Clark County next week of the Snake River Conference title. Only Richfield has an opportunity to tie the Musters for the title but since Camas County already has defeated Richfield, the Musters would receive the invitation to the playoff against the third district finalist. That likely will be Cambridge although the Long Pin Conference isn't settled yet.

Camas County put Rockland away with a three-touchdown burst in the second quarter.

The Musters took the lead in the first period when Dave Ivie uncoiled a 41-yard scoring scamper. Keith Lemons added the two-point.

But Rockland replied immediately with a drive that wound up in a hurry on Morris' 40-yard gallop.

In the second quarter Camas County moved away when Mike Blodgett scored on runs of 12 and 37 yards and Lemons clipped in with a seven-yard

Raft River trims Murtaugh to clinch tie for league crown

MURTAUGH — The Raft River Trojans scored on their first play from scrimmage Friday night and battled past Murtaugh 14-0 to clinch at least a tie for the Magic Valley Conference title.

Murtaugh gave Raft River a good battle but two plays proved the difference.

Base Ward gave the Trojans enough to win it when, on the first Raft River scrimmage, he broke off tackle and sailed 76 yards to score. Raft River had kicked off and forced Murtaugh to punt just prior to that run.

The rest of the way the teams simply slugged it out. Raft River got the insurance points as rather a gift. Murtaugh's snap from center to the punter sailed over his head.

Shoshone upsets Wendell 22-8

WENDELL — The halfback passing of Bart Koonce accounted for two of Shoshone's touchdowns Friday night and the Indians surprised the Wendell Trojans with a 22-8 decision.

The defeat knocked Wendell out of any chance of catching Valley in the Canyon Conference. Shoshone will play Valley to conclude the season next Friday but Valley has the title clinched.

Shoshone scored in the first quarter on a pass from Koonce to Jason Webb that covered 12 yards. Koonce booted the two-point.

Early in the second quarter, Koonce and Webb hooked up on a 30-yard bomb that carried to the Wendell three-yard line and Meservy plunged over from there.

Wendell, which had several chances killed on downs inside the Shoshone 20, then came back with its only points of the night. Tod Hegi drove over from the three and Pete Dias hit Steve Westendorf for the conversion.

Shoshone wound up scoring in the third quarter when Koonce hit Meservy on an 18-yard pass and Astle then passed to Webb for the two-point conversion.

Oakley topples Declo by 32-6

DECLO — The Oakley Hornets rode the passing arm of Rory Jo and an alert defense into a surprisingly easy 32-6 decision over Declo's Bears Friday night.

Declo had a night of misery as it turned the ball over six times, three on interceptions and three on fumbles.

Oakley took the lead midway through the first period when Jo hooked up with Brent Hale on a 17-yard scoring pass. Hale booted the point-after.

With six minutes left in the second period, Oakley pounced on a Declo fumble and seconds later Craig Bell romped 26 on a drive play. Hale again converted.

Another Declo fumble gave Oakley a chance to pick off another touchdown just six seconds from the end of the half. That came on a 25-yard scoring pass between Jo and Lance McIntosh.

Declo put together its only touchdown drive to score 118 yards.

midway through the third quarter. Scott Matthews plunged for the last yard but Oakley stopped the extra point run.

Before the period ended, McIntosh nullified that for Oakley with a three-yard score. Oakley wound up scoring with 4:43 left in the game when Jo and Woodcock collaborated on a 35-yard touchdown bomb.

Gooding beats W.R. with long plays

GOODING — The Gooding Senators got a 30-yard run from Benny Stevens and a 29-yard pass Friday night to turn back the Wood River Wolverines 14-0.

Gooding mounted a drive on its first possession, which ended in a missed field goal.

In the second period the Senators took the lead on a 29-yard pass from Mike Mann to Rob Moline. Gary Thompson booted the point-after.

After a scoreless third quarter, Wood River posed its only threat when it drove deep into Gooding territory. But the Wolverines held at the 10-yard line and on the next play Stevens uncorked his 90-yard gallop. Thompson again converted.

Stevens ended the night with 118 yards.

Bliss falls 22-6

DUBOIS — Clark County hit on a couple of long scoring plays Friday afternoon to down the Bliss Bears 22-6.

Clark County drove for its first score, Edginton getting the last six yards for the touch-down and Ellison adding the two-point.

In the second quarter a 35-yard pass to Rob Laird plus an Edginton conversion made it 16-0 at intermission.

Ellison ended Clark County's scoring in the third period on a 50-yard draw — on third and 15 — by Ellison.

Before the third quarter ended, Brian Kinney, who had 16 tackles for the Bears, picked off a pass to set up Bliss' touchdown. It came on a 25-yard pass from Mike Cenarrusa to Wade Carlson.

Midfield confrontation

BRUIN TAILBACK Pat Allison (30) puts an inside move on Meridian's Gary Huston enroute to a 31-yard run Friday night. Allison piled up 150 yards rushing but the Bruins bowed 14-0.

Meridian cops 14-0 victory over Bruins

TWIN FALLS — The Meridian Warriors scored on their first and last possessions and played with their backs to the wall the rest of the time Friday night to defeat the Twin Falls Bruins 14-0.

The Warriors moved 80 yards to seize a 7-0 advantage but then on most of the interest was provided by the Bruin offense. In the second half particularly the Bruins hammered steadily at the goal line but couldn't get the touchdown. Finally Meridian put together a closing march of 65 yards — Twin Falls helping with two 15-yard penalties — and the Warriors tucked it away with a touchdown just 30 yards from the end of the game.

Meridian went on its first march without a huddle and kept banging off tackle with fullback Rod Furrough doing most of the carrying. Finally quarterback Greg Hawley kept for the last four yards and the touchdown and booted the point after.

Immediately Twin Falls returned with a drive that carried to the 13 before fumbling that chance away while trying to pass. After a punt exchange, Twin Falls poised another threat as Pat Allison, who ran for over 170 yards, nearly broke a deep drive to scramble to Meridian's 23 yard line. But that threat died at the 17.

Meridian came back with a drive that carried to the Twin Falls four before a mishandled snap from center snafled a field goal try.

Twin Falls' defense turned in its best effort just before halftime, after Warrior David Rumble picked off a pass. Meridian moved to the seven on a screen pass but four plays later the Bruins took over at the two and left the clock running.

The Bruins recovered an onside kick to open the second half and for the next quarter and one-half played on Meridian's side of the 50. Mostly it was the running of Allison that kept Twin Falls knocking at the door but there's something about the 10-yard line that shuts the Bruin offense off.

Twin Falls had one good threat in the third period and late in the quarter moved to a first down at the 16. But Meridian stopped the Bruins on fourth down at the seven. The Warriors were hurried back to the two before punting and Twin Falls, picking up two major penalties, then had to kick in return. It was at that point that the Warriors, with 5:46 left on the clock, started the final touchdown drive.

Pocatello belts Minico 49-8

POCATELLO — The Pocatello Indians stuck to the ground Friday night and rolled over the Minico Spartans 49-8.

Pocatello never was threatened by the Spartans as it racked up a 28-0 halftime lead and then turned it into a rout with a three-touchdown burst in the third period.

Minico took the opening kickoff, picked up two first downs to the 40-yard line and then fumbled the ball away. Six plays later, helped by a 15-yard penalty, Pocatello took the lead on an 11-yard sweep by Brian Quenton. John Anderson then booted the first of a succession of extra points.

Minutes later George Simons blocked a Minico punt and in the second period Pocatello added two more scores.

The third quarter was a nightmare for Minico. Pocatello took the third quarter kickoff and ground to a touchdown by Greg Kosco. Two plays after the kickoff, Ed

Collins picked off a pass at the Minico 30 and Ryan Hancock capitalized on that several plays later with a five-yard scoring run.

Minico then fumbled the kickoff away at the 17 and within five plays Gary Kemp had burst for the final seven yards to establish Pocatello's final score.

Minico broke the shutout three minutes from the end of the game. The big push was a 42-yard pass from Tony Wilson to Lloyd Jensen. Felix Maldonado then hit Ron Barras at the one-yard line and two plays later Scott plunged in. A pass to Barras picked up the two-point conversion.

Kinyon and Howard spark Castleford

CASTLEFORD — The legs of John Kinyon and the arm of Doug Howard pushed the Castleford Wolves to a 22-22 decision over Hansen Friday night.

Kinyon started the scoring in the first period when he broke a 46-yard scamper. Before the quarter ended, Howard plunged in from the one after his 35-yard pass to Mike Bulkey had set things up.

Late in the half, Howard and Kinyon combined on a 23-yard scoring pass and Howard threw to Tom Quigley for the extra points.

Hansen got on the scoreboard just before halftime, scoring off a blocked punt.

In the third period it was Howard to Kinyon for 36 yards and Kinyon wound things up with a 40-yard scoring dash.

Hansen added its second touchdown in the third quarter and scored its final one late in the game.

Minico, T.F. grab cross country wins

BURLEY — The Minico Spartans broke a long string of district cross country championships Friday when they defeated the Twin Falls Bruins 23-37 but the Bruin girls rolled unopposed to another title.

Minico had seven men in the top 10 against the Bruins with James Morrison leading the way over the Burley golf course layout.

The tie in the boys varsity race included Morrison, Minico; Carlos Hernandez, TF; Joe Martinez, TF; Doug Schade, Minico; Kendall Koyle, Minico; Jeff Wieb, Minico; Jim Gallego, Minico; Terry Hoebelevich, Minico; Ted Hunter, Minico, and Mike Newberry, TF.

No other teams were entered against Twin Falls girls.

Filer shuts out Glenns Ferry 20-0

GLENN'S FERRY — The Filer Wildcats scored on their first possession and rolled on to a 20-0 decision over Glenns Ferry Friday night.

Filer Metcalf capped Filer's opening drive that covered most of the field. He went in on a short plunge and Tim Chadwick threw to Wes Tews for the point-after.

In the second quarter Filer marched again, this time sending Tews in from the three yard line. Just before halftime, Glenns Ferry moved to the six-yard line but a pass into the end zone as the buzzer sounded fell incomplete.

Tews moved Filer out of reach in the third quarter when he scored from eight yards on a pass to Shrum. The conversion pass failed.

Glenns Ferry then made its last thrust of the night, hitting on a pass to Shrum that carried to the 25-yard line but a fumble killed that chance.

Baylor whips Air Force

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Freshman quarterback Scott Smith threw touchdown passes of 15 and 17 yards and junior tailback David Snares scored on runs of three and five yards Saturday to lead Baylor to a 38-7 victory over the Air Force Academy.

Cornerback Howard Fields ran an intercepted pass 53 yards for another Baylor touchdown and freshman Robert Bledsoe kicked a 21-yard field goal for the other Bears' points.

Last chance tackle

BUHL'S Larry Allen is pulled down from behind by an unidentified Burley Bobcat during action Friday night. Buhl whipped Burley for the fifth straight time.

Unbeaten Buhl rips Burley

BUHL — Buhl's undefeated Indians rolled over the Burley Bobcats 29-9 Friday night for their 19th consecutive victory.

Burley gave the Indians a mild threat to open the game but from the second quarter on Buhl dominated play. The Indians racked up a 29-0 lead before Burley got on the board with a safety and then got its touchdown on the final play of the game on a flea-flicker. Allyn Reynolds threw for three touchdowns and picked off a pass to emphasize his defensive ability in the battle.

Burley moved to the Buhl 27 early in the game before an interception turned that back. After three first downs, Buhl pointed to the Burley 15, picked up a fumble there and moved to the nine — only to fumble the ball back to the Bobcats.

The first score didn't come until the second period when Reynolds hit Dave Davis with a seven-yard scoring pass. Brian Crawford converted.

A couple of minutes later, Bartlett caught Burley quarterback Kelly Davis in the end zone for a safety and that made it 9-0 at intermission.

In the third period, Reynolds hit Davis with a five-yard scoring pass, the TD set up on two long runs by Terry Clayton. Mark Schaal added the two-point.

An interception-fumble exchange gave Burley a chance a short time later but Pogoaga intercepted the ball back for the Indians at the two and Buhl immediately went on a 98-yard drive. The payoff came on a 23-yard bomb from Reynolds to Vinje Hamilton.

On its next possession, Buhl stormed to its final points, sophomore Troy Harvey picking them up with a 20-yard scamper.

Burley broke the ice after another interception at the two when Casey Arnold caught Harvey in the end zone for the safety. Then on the final play, Davis threw a little flat pass out to Rick Allen who lateraled off to Lee Bower on a 47-yard rattle-dazzle play and Burley's only touchdown.

Tigers nip Carey in two overtimes

CAREY — The Richfield Tigers nipped the Carey Panthers 26-20 in double overtime Saturday afternoon to nail down second place in the Snake River eight-man conference.

In a real crowd pleaser, Carey jumped, off to a two-touchdown lead, fell behind by eight and rallied in the last two and one-half minutes to tie it.

Neither team was able to score in the first overtime, although Carey twice tested Richfield from the one and failed to get in.

In the second overtime, Karstetter scored on a two-yard burst and that tied the victory as Carey came up with a holding penalty to kill its second try chances.

Carey struck from 83 yards to take the lead in the first quarter as Mike Bame passed to Wayne Parke. The Panthers made it 12-0 when Bame broke a 43-yard scoring punt.

Richfield came back just before halftime when Jim Powell uncorked a 35-yard touchdown gallop.

The Tigers put together two drives in the third quarter, Hubsmith sneaking over from the one and then kicking on the two-pointer and Wes Karstetter ending the second with a one-yard burst. But Carey stopped the crucial extra point run.

The Bame to Parke duo clicked for Carey's tie touchdown on a 40-yard scoring bomb. Bame then plunged in for the two-pointer that brought on the overtime.

Pilkington paces CSI distance meet

TWIN FALLS — Paul Pilkington took the individual first but the CSI Golden Eagles slipped to third in their own cross country invitational at Canyon Springs Saturday.

Pilkington broke away from Rick's Curtis Bluth and Gary Hunter, Minico product, in the last three-quarters of a mile to win the five-mile test in 26:35. Bluth was clocked at 27:09. Hunter at 27:25 and pre-race favorite Steve Hills of NNC was fourth at 27:32. He was followed across by CSI's Ray Lawson, running unattached. Rick's won the team title with 33 points, followed by NNC at 46, CSI 50, Eastern Utah 106 and College of Idaho 141.

Also scoring for CSI were Steve Foster, ninth; Ricard O. Sevedra, 10th; Bob Roberts, 13th; Jeff Keathley, 17th, and Trevor Cam, 18th.

CSI takes next week off and competes in the regional finals in Coeur d'Alene the following weekend.

Florida nips Tennessee

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida broke loose for 10 points in the last 92 seconds on a 28-yard field goal by Bert Yepremian and a 6-yard touchdown run by Tony Green to defeat Tennessee 27-17 Saturday in a Southeastern Conference contest.

Tennessee had reared back from a 17-3 halftime deficit to tie the game 17-17 with 3:56 left in the third quarter, but Vol kicker Jim Gaylor missed a 34-yard field goal attempt with 5:37 left in the game that would have put Tennessee ahead.

Florida quickly took charge, mounting a 69-yard drive that ended with Yepremian's second field goal of the day, a 28-yard kick with 1:32 left.

Alabama rips Louisville

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Ozzie Newsome caught touchdown passes of 67 and 32 yards from Jeff Rutledge and third-ranked Alabama scored after recovering four fumbles to rout Louisville 33-14 Saturday.

Rutledge passed only three times and completed all of them to Newsome, whose three catches were good for 124 yards. The first pass of the game was the 67-yard touchdown toss, which came on the Crimson Tide's first possession with only 1:41 gone.

Rutledge's second touchdown throw to Newsome was early in the third quarter and gave Alabama a 34-0 lead.

Penn St. routs West Virginia

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Quarterback Chuck Fusina passed for two touchdowns and tailback Steve Gelse ran for two more in a 42-point first half that carried ninth-ranked Penn State to a 49-28 rout of West Virginia.

Defensive tackle Matt Millen ran 3 yards with a blocked punt to spark a 21-point explosion in the first five minutes of the game that helped the Nittany Lions, 6-1, to their 19th straight victory over the Mountaineers, 4-3.

Clemson edges N.C. State

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — Clemson's Will Underwood returned a punt 75 yards to set up a 19-yard touchdown pass from Steve Fuller to Jerry Butler Saturday, giving 19th-ranked Clemson a tough 7-3 victory over North Carolina State.

Stung by three quarters of mistakes and miscues, the Tigers trailed 3-0 going into the final period.

But Underwood's punt return put them in scoring position. Butler skipped out to the left sideline and made a turnaround catch before heading to the end zone to climax a five-play drive which took less than a minute.

Maryland belts Duke

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Tailback Steve Atkins ran for three touchdowns and quarterback Larry Dick passed for 219 yards Saturday to lead Maryland to a 31-13 win over Duke, keeping the Terps in the Atlantic Coast Conference title chase.

Atkins, in his best performance of the season, scored twice in the first half on runs of one and two yards as the Terps took a 21-7 lead and again in the third quarter on another two-yard burst. He finished with 116 yards.

Weber outlasts Bemidji

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Mike Korvas's 21-yard field goal with just 31 seconds remaining in the game helped Weber State overcome a school-record eight fumbles and edge Bemidji State 31-28 Saturday.

The Wildcats moved inside the Bemidji State 10-yardline in the final minute, but had to go for the winning field goal instead of a touchdown when they ran out of time outs. And Korvas split the uprisings from straight ahead.

Weber State never could open a big margin over the Beavers, but appeared to have the game under control with a

CSI sets 'meet

TWIN FALLS — "A meet the players' session will be held at 5 p.m. Sunday by the College of Southern Idaho basketball team just prior to their intra-squad scrimmage.

The scrimmage is basketball team's part in the 10th anniversary open house.

Coach Mike Mitchell urged the fans not to expect too much in the way of a season preview. "We haven't gotten into our offense at all and have done very little on defense yet."

But the scrimmage will give each player a chance to display his individual talent.

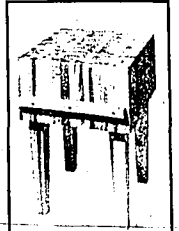

Pitt nips Syracuse in final quarter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Matt Cavanaugh plunged over from the 1-yard line with 64 seconds remaining in the game Saturday to cap a 14-point, fourth-quarter rally that lifted 12th-ranked Pittsburgh to a 28-21 victory over upset-minded Syracuse.

The winning touchdown came on the third try from the Syracuse 1 after Cavanaugh completed a 45-yard pass to Gordon Jones.

Before Pitt's winning touchdown, each team had a tiebreaking field goal attempt blocked. A 56-yard attempt by Pitt's Dave Trout was blocked by Warren Harvey in the latter half of the final stanza, and on the next series Pitt's J.C. Wilson blocked a 52-yard attempt by Dave Jacobs of the Orangemen.

Colorado St. defeats Lobos

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Quarterback Dan Graham hit Mark R. Bell with a 50-yard touchdown to lead the penalty-plagued Colorado State Rams in a 14-9 Western Athletic Conference victory over the New Mexico Lobos Saturday.

The victory for the Rams, who were assessed 160 yards in penalties and failed to recover four of their six fumbles, lifted their WAC record to 3-1. New Mexico dropped to 0-3.

With 1:59 remaining in the first quarter, the Rams tallied on Graham's 50-yarder to Bell, who led all pass receivers with three completions totaling 77 yards.

Alriest is regulated by the federal Civil Aeronautics Board and its lawyers contend the PUC lacks jurisdiction over it. But the PUC maintains it does have jurisdiction over intrastate rates.

PUC President Robert

Lenaghan said Airwest's case is analogous to that of Key Airlines which is headquartered in Salt Lake City.

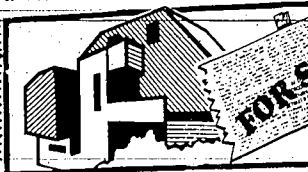

"Key flies intrastate routes in Idaho and they had to come to us for a certificate to operate between Idaho cities," Lenaghan said.

Meantime, the company denied a report it might abandon intrastate service in Idaho. Airwest and its predecessors have served Idaho since 1946 and it now flies to five cities, including Boise, Lewiston, Twin Falls, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

Larry Litchfield, San Francisco spokesman for the airline, said that "any rumor that we would cut intrastate service in Idaho didn't originate here."

THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER USS AMERICAN
... on which Declo man serves

DECLO NAVYMAN WILLIAM OKELBERRY WATCHES
... Navy oiler USS Neosho, a ship that pumps oil to other ships

WILLIAM OKELBERRY, DECLO, CHECKS PRESSURE GAUGES
... of carrier's firefighting water systems

Ship home of Declo man

DECLO — "The job I do in this floating city is the same job that a plumber might do when he comes to your house," said Declo native William D. Okelberry. "But more than just plumbing, my job also calls for welding, and a lot more."

The "city" in which 29-year-old Okelberry works has a population of some 5,000 people. It also employs bakers, electricians, doctors, barbers and just about any other skill or profession common to any city across the United States.

Petty Officer 3 C. Okelberry's professional job title is hull technician. His city is the 80,000-ton aircraft carrier USS America, one of five U.S. Navy ships that recently completed a 30-day cruise to South America.

While in South America, the American ships conducted combined training with ships of the Brazilian Navy. The operation underscored the U.S. commitment—in the South Atlantic and demonstrated naval flexibility for meeting that commitment.

En route to the ship's homeport of Norfolk, Va., Okelberry, a 1967 Declo High School graduate, talked of the days before he enlisted in the Navy, his job aboard ship, and the highlights of his most recent cruise which included a seven-day visit to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Okelberry recalled that he didn't really like the idea of farming, although he was raised on a farm and has a younger brother, Don, who lives and breathes farm life.

"I don't know what it was, but I knew it (farming) just wasn't for me," he said.

"So, I joined the Army right after I got out of high school and was a heavy equipment operator for two years and eight months," he explained. "And I spent two years of my Army time in Vietnam."

"After I got out of the Army, I still worked as a heavy equipment operator, and traveled to South Dakota, Oregon, and even down to Texas," he continued.

"I joined the National Guard, and then thought to myself, 'I can do this kind of a job every day,' and decided to come back into the military."

He returned to the Army recruiter only to find that re-entry into that service would be at a lower grade than when he left it, so Okelberry went to the Navy.

"The Navy said I could join at paygrade E-3 and could work in engineering, and that's what I wanted."

Declo native Okelberry says his "enjoys repairing things" and that's the job of a hull technician — to repair the ship and everything inside it.

"When the ship's at sea, we put in a lot of hours on the job, but it's necessary," he explained. "There are a lot of repairs needed everyday on a ship this big, and it's important that they get done."

In addition to the America being home for 5,000 men, its primary mission is that of a combined repair facility and haven for the more than 70 aircraft carriers aboard.

At sea, using the expanse of its 1,000-foot flight deck as a floating runway, supersonic jet and attack fighter aircraft can take off and land quicker than the mind can imagine.

And, as the carrier allows its aircraft to range hundreds of miles distant, so, too, the ship's travels permit her crew to visit new lands thousands of miles from home.

Highlight of the cruise for Navyman Okelberry and the more than 6,000 other sailors aboard the five ships in the group was their visit to Rio de Janeiro, some 5,000 miles from their starting point of Norfolk.

"Rio was a real nice place, and the people were just super friendly to Americans," smiled Okelberry. "I did a lot of sightseeing while I was there, and just really had a good time."

Shortly after the ship's return to the U.S., the traveling sailor from Idaho will head back to Declo for a short period, and then to a new duty station in the opposite direction from South America.

"I have orders to Keflavik, Iceland," he said with a wide grin. "I re-enlisted in the Navy in July, and I guess I chose duty in Iceland because it doesn't go to sea like a ship!"

As for the snow and cold he will encounter at his new duty station on the fringes of the Arctic Circle, Okelberry laughs, "I was raised in snow, so it doesn't bother me a bit!"

Capitol dome floodlights on again

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans now sees the light and soon may nighttime visitors to the Statehouse will, too.

Evans told fellow members of the State Board of Examiners Thursday that he has rescinded his order of last spring that turned off the floodlights on the Capitol dome to emphasize the need to conserve energy.

He said the lights will be turned on again as soon as possible.

Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell brought up the question, saying the state went to considerable expense a few years ago to install the low-voltage floodlights. He said the State University is bathed in far more light at night than the Capitol dome ever was.

Kidwell said many citizens feel the Capitol should be illuminated, pointing out it is the only symbol of the capital city visible at night.

Evans said some of his advisers had questioned the wisdom of turning the lights back on for fear the act would indicate there no longer was an energy crisis. But he said he disagreed with that and ordered them turned on again.

Committee proposes health care plan

BOISE (UPI) — The Governor's Blue Ribbon Committee on Health Care is proposing a new medical insurance plan which could allow state employees more money in salaries.

Chairman James Underwood told a meeting of the Idaho Press Club the plan could give employees more say about medical benefits while resulting in savings to the state.

Under the plan, he said, employees could ask the state to contribute less money in medical benefits and put the difference in their salaries. He said it also would establish a medical care loan program whereby the employees could borrow money to cover major medical expenses.

Plant of many uses

Aloe called medicine or healing plant

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
ALOE — A HANDY PLANT

More and more people are beginning to appreciate the value of aloe (pronounced "al-oh-wee"), also called medicine or healing plant. It's easy to grow.

Give it a light, sunny to semi-sunny window, average house temperature and a soil mix of equal parts of sand, peat and loam, with a little perlite or vermiculite added.

Avoid overwatering as this succulent plant suffers from a lack of drainage or overwatering.

Aloe has so many uses that just for burns alone it should be on every kitchen window sill. Our readers have sent us dozens of uses to which the aloe have been successfully applied. Here are some gleaned from Agway Gardens' "Handy Tips":

- (1) Burns, scalds, insect bites, poison ivy. Soak cloths with the clear blended gel from aloe and bind on.
- (2) To purify drinking water. Removes the chlorine or fluoridation taste and "makes the water taste like that from a mountain spring."
- (3) A general tonic and "mild regulator of the bowels."
- (4) Baldness and hair treatment. Faithful applications of aloe vera gel "will wake up dormant hair cells." Many women use gel as waveset. It may also be rubbed into the scalp as a conditioner for the hair.

(5) Ring worm and boils. Aloe vera is used by the natives in the Congo for ring worm and boils. The hunters anoint their entire bodies and aloe before a hunt. It reduces perspiration and body odors, permitting them to get closer to the game. In the Philippines, the gel is used with milk for dysentery and kidney infections.

(6) Erysipelas. Mexicans apply a poultice of aloe pulp for relief.

(7) Styptic pencil. If you cut yourself shaving, dab a piece of aloe on the cut to stop the bleeding.

Note: Many gardeners mistake aloe for Agave, and vice versa. Agaves are tough and fibrous, while leaves of Aloe are soft, juicy and tender. A cross section of an aloe leaf resembles a chunk of cool, green ice. If you've had experience with Aloe has a healing plant, please write and tell us.

ASPARAGUS SEEDLINGS

If you find tiny asparagus plants sprouting up all over your patch, it's a sign that your plants reseeded themselves. Remove the tiny plants and start a new patch with them or give a batch to your neighbors. If left, they will become "weeds" and you'll have nothing but spindly stalks.

Asparagus should be left to grow three years before you start to harvest stalks.

PLANT FOODS SAVE WATER

During dry spells of summer many wonder if plant foods have any effect on helping plants use moisture efficiently. The answer is yes, they do.

Adequate fertility stretches moisture supply in the soil. Naturally, it does not replace water, but helps a plant use it more efficiently. It has been estimated that one inch of rain produces five bushels of corn under low fertility, but seven to eight bushels under high fertility.

Here's the reason: Ample nutrients in a soil means fuller root system to extract more moisture from each foot of soil topped. In short a soil that's balanced with nutrients helps plants send out roots (they "explore" the soil) so that soil water is used more efficiently and to greater depths.

To put it briefly, here's how feeding helps crops get through dry periods: (1) It increases root exploration in the soil. Anything that encourages roots to explore another foot into the soil means you get another two inches of available water.

(2) A well-fed plant has increased foliage canopy, covering the soil. This enables more water to seep into the soil when it does rain and causes less evaporation from a blistering sun.

(3) It increases nourishment to oxygen-starved roots. Too much irrigation or even a heavy rain can fill soil air space with water, choking off oxygen to roots. Added fertility insures more nutrients for oxygen-restricted roots.

In dry soils, nutrients have a hard time moving to the roots. In very wet years, roots have a hard time respiring (breathing) well enough to take up enough nutrients. Both conditions — too dry and too wet — require enough added nutrients to insure adequate uptake.

We like to use a liquid plant food such as 23-19-17 which is absorbed through the foliage and through the roots. There is no loss of either water or nutrients.

NOTE: Be careful about adding a dry fertilizer to a dry soil. If it cannot be watered in, the salts will burn the roots if they come in contact with them.

DUMB CANE BLOSSOMS

Under right conditions, the dumb cane or dieffenbachia will send forth a blossom resembling that of a calla lily, causing many to wonder if they have something special. Too much sun will cause leaf scorch and too little sun will cause plants to be spindly and poorly colored. Poor drainage or excess water will cause bottom leaves to turn to yellow and drop.

Give your plant a semi-shaded window, a soil mixture of one part each of sand, peat and loam, with perlite added. If plant is leggy, cut the top off.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D.R. of Bellevue: "We have seeds of horseradish plants and would like to tell your readers how we prepare it for winter use. It's an old recipe used by grandma years ago. First, prepare horseradish by scraping and grating it. Add 1 tablespoon white sugar, 1 teaspoon of salt and strong cider vinegar, enough to make it quite thin, all this to 1 pint of horseradish. Bottle and seal tightly. Even some roots can be packed in garden soil and put in a cool cellar."

"If you put a plastic bag over the roots while grating it, the fumes are less apt to bother your eyes or nose. When the tops are cut off, leave part of the roots on, then plant the tops in a wall of drained soil and keep watered. These tops will root easily and you can increase your supply of plants, without buying new ones."

Good tip. Another reader grinds her roots in a blender and mixes with white vinegar. She adds about 2/3 of a can of canned milk to about one pint of mixed horseradish and vinegar. She tells us the milk will keep it from turning dark.

We make ours in a blender, adding a little white vinegar. It's stored in jars and refrigerated. Remember: to keep it "hot," keep it cool in the refrigerator.

B.J. of Twin Falls: "Our evergreens are showing a yellowish effect, and even the leaves are somewhat twisted. It's been dry and we thought it might be due to dry weather. Would that cause mottled foliage?"

It could be bringing out an infestation of spider mites, a tiny pest that's a lot more serious during dry weather.

Take a strong magnifying glass and check for presence of tiny specks. Or take a white piece of paper and hold it under a branch. Tap the branch lightly to knock off the mites. They show up on white paper and you may be able to see them crawling. If not, take your finger and draw it across the paper. If you see a reddish stain, it means mites are present.

Control—Spray with Kelthane, or try misting foliage in evening. Water causes mites to blot and discourages them. That's why they are worse in dry weather.

'Depression' speakers listed

JOSE GRECO AND NANA LORCA
... schedule Hailey, TF concerts.

TWIN FALLS — Speakers are announced for the three seminars on mental depression scheduled for the next three Thursday nights in Room 115 of the Shields Academic building in CSI.

Dr. Richard Worst, Twin Falls psychiatrist, will moderate the three sessions, which begin Thursday at 8 p.m. The series, sponsored by the Mental Health Association, will discuss depression as it affects various age groups.

Thursday night's opening meeting will deal with depression in children and youth. Speakers will include Dr. Paul Miles, pediatrician at the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital; Ann McNevin, master social worker with the Youth Services Division of Health and Welfare, Region 5, and Dr. Ron Bennett, psychologist at the Child Development Center here.

Depression reportedly costs the nation more than $5 billion in terms of treatment expense, and losses from reduced productivity, let alone human suffering. According to the National Institute of Mental Health at least 15 per cent of all adults will suffer some form of emotional problem during their lifetime.

The Nov. 3 session will deal with depression in the middle-aged.

Speakers will be Marie Scott, social worker with the Region 5 Mental Health Center, Twin Falls; Bill Hayes, psychologist at the center's satellite office in Rupert; and Scott Williams, psychologist at the center in Twin Falls.

Speakers for the final session Nov. 10 will be Bob Snow, coordinator of programs for the elderly at the Health and Welfare Department in Gooding; Doc Sims, R.N., and George Lukes, master social worker, both with the Mental Health Center in Twin Falls.

The final seminar will discuss depression among the elderly.

A $5 registration fee is being charged for all three seminars or $2 for a single session. Advance tickets are available from Lorayne Smith, Mental Health Association president, at 733-0931 or 733-5221. They also will be available at the door.

Marriage counselors now use computers, too

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Marriage counseling, like just about everything else these days, is moving into the computer age.

Des Moines-based GMI, Inc., has developed a computer program that can help marriage counselors, clergy and other clinicians predict problems in a marriage and guide the couple toward a solution.

The computer accomplishes its task by sorting out the words a couple uses in answering a questionnaire. A counselor then uses the printout to help the couple analyze the strengths and weaknesses of their marriage.

Charles Cleveland, GMI president, said the computer program is based on the concept that certain words or phrases indicate distinctive behavior patterns. Cleveland said the relationship between language and attitude has been researched extensively and field testing has given the GMI system — called Marital Climate Inventory — an accuracy rating of 92 per cent.

"We're not in the business of telling a couple they should or shouldn't get a divorce. That's not what the tool tells us," said Cleveland, a professor of sociology at Drake University and a practicing marriage counselor.

"The tool tells us these areas in a marriage that are well worked through and those areas that are soft. It also is diagnostic in that it can help find solutions to certain problems."

The process begins with a couple answering 58 questions that focus on nine areas — love, sex, money, relatives, communication, religion, selfishness, children and freedom.

Some examples: "Describe several situations in which you, intentionally or unintentionally, were hurtful to your partner in the last month; give the ways you and your husband (wife) differ; describe how important decisions are reached in your marriage."

The responses, which provide about 1,000 words for analysis, are fed into the computer, which has a program of 15,000 commonly used words. Cleveland said the computer examines the word usage, then indicates how strongly the couple is focusing in 40 attitude categories which have been shown to predict the strengths and weaknesses of marriages.

For example, one such category is control, which has a word base that includes insist, allow, permit and require. If a person uses words in that category often, Cleveland said, he or she is probably the type who focuses on someone "being in charge of the situation."

The computer also shows how partners compare in the types of behavior suggested by their word usage. The degree of difference is shown in the computer printout.

Although the computer doesn't actually analyze the marriage, Cleveland said it does show if a marriage has characteristics of a stable, strained or destructive relationship.

"The computer analyzes the words and tells where the couple is at in certain areas," Cleveland said. "The clinician has to analyze the results. We have a manual that goes with it to explain how to use the system and interpret the printout."

A counselor could sort out the words and chart the results manually, but the computer can perform the function much faster and at a lower cost.

"I had to do it once by hand," Cleveland said. "It takes the computer 5.6 seconds to do an analysis. It took me, 14½ days."

MV-symphony-to feature Spanish dancers Nov. 11-12

TWIN FALLS — The opening concerts of the season for the Magic Valley Symphony will be presented in Hailey and Twin Falls Nov. 11 and 12.

Jose Greco, acclaimed as the "world's finest male Spanish dancer" and his co-star, Nana Lorca, will be featured.

The symphony, directed by Lawrence Curtis, will accompany the dancers and also play several numbers separately.

The Nov. 11 concert will be held in the Wood River High School in Hailey and the home concert at the CSI Fine Arts auditorium Nov. 12.

Both performances will begin at 7 p.m.

Greco has had a brilliant career which has taken him around the world four times. He has performed in the US for 25 consecutive years — a record for consecutive tours in America — and is ranked in the history of dance companies, Curtis said.

Greco is also a motion picture performer, television star and recording artist. His film credits include the Michael Todd production of "Around the World in 80 Days" and the co-starring dramatic role in "Ship of Fools," directed by Stanley Kramer.

Television viewers have seen him frequently on the Ed Sullivan, Perry Como, Bob Hope, Diana Shore and Dean Martin shows and many others.

Greco lives in the Costa del Sol, Spain, with Nana Lorca whom he married in 1972 and their son Pablo.

Greco is recognized around the world as the artist's artist, the quintessential Spanish dancer. With his co-star, the luminous Senorita Lorca, he represents the personification of the Iberian Peninsula to millions of people all over the world.

Lorca, who is celebrated as a brilliant choreographer and performer in her native Spain, continues to capture the enthusiasm of American audiences and critics alike.

As prima ballerina with the Jose Greco Co. in recent seasons, her skills and versatility dazzled the experts who called her "superlative." She now co-stars with her husband.

Tickets are available at local music stores and the CSI bookstore. Patron tickets are still available and may be obtained by calling 733-4060. Patron tickets admit entire families for both concerts each season.

Annual Halloween projects

PUMPKIN pointer Beryl Skamara, Starling Heights, Mich., each year drops her parttime job as a waitress to decorate hundreds of pumpkins with hideous faces. She then lines them up in front lawn and sells them. She paints more than 90 pumpkins a day with an airbrush and relies on each pumpkin's shape for inspiration. "See this one, so long and skinny? It'll make a great Bugs Bunny," she says.

State music teachers schedule Caldwell meet

FILER — The Idaho Music Teachers state president, Mrs. Georgia Blalock, Filer, invites non-members to join with members for the annual convention to be held Oct. 27 to 29 in Caldwell with the College of Idaho as host.

There will be two days of concerts and workshops. Mary Toy, Spokane, Wash., will give a workshop using as her topic, "Mind, Muscle, Materials and Musicianship." She has given many workshops in the West and has had award-winning students in important auditions.

The program also will include Richard Heiler, piano faculty of the University of Idaho, recital of works of Beethoven and Liszt; Arthur Hart, Idaho Historical Society, illustrated lecture on "Fine Arts of the Hispanic Era in

New foam contraceptive available soon in US

Chicago Daily News

A new foam contraceptive, used only in West Germany, is soon to be available at drug stores without prescription.

The German studies show it to be about 99 per cent effective, which would put it in the same category as the Pill, but without its adverse hormonal side effects. Currently available foams are rated about 90 per cent effective by Planned Parenthood.

Dr. Robert Kennan, a medical director of Eaton Laboratories, attributes the better success rate of the new product to size and convenience of use.

Present foams are contained in pressurized cans and are dispensed like shaving cream. The new product is about the size of an almond. It is smooth, white, oval-shaped and waxy. It requires no applicator.

Inserted into the vagina, it melts at body temperature and gently effervesces, forming a protective shield over the cervical canal.

It also contains a sperm-killing compound, nonoxonyl, a long used in other spermicidal preparations.

The manufacturer says nonoxonyl has approval of the Food and Drug Administration. The FDA says no approval has yet been given, but added it finds no objection to the compound.

Armond Welch, director of the FDA's panel on over-the-counter contraceptives and other vaginal drug products, said the panel has voiced some doubt over the claim of a 99 per cent effectiveness. In other words, one pregnancy per 100 women per year.

"Effectiveness depends on compliance rate," he observed. "In Germany, women are more likely to be more medically compliant than

The package insert states that women should wait 10 minutes after insertion before beginning intercourse.

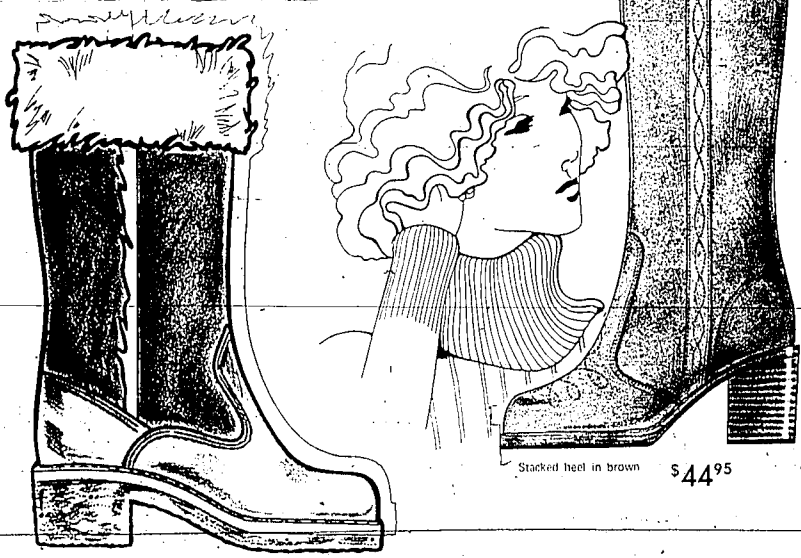

Effectiveness lasts about two hours and for only one act of intercourse. There are no foamy effects but 23 per cent of women subjects experienced a warming sensation after inserting the oval, which was not perceived as unpleasant.

The product, called Encare Oval, will cost about $3.75 for a package of 12.

Kennan said Encare Oval is useful for women who cannot tolerate hormonal contraceptives, are fearful of IUD's, find mechanical contraceptives unacceptable, do not have regular menstrual cycles, are taking a "pill pause" or have forgotten to take their Pill.

We have just decided to establish a "Jacoby Silence is Golden" award to that bridge player who remains silent under the greatest provocation.

West held the first trick with the jack of hearts and promptly shifted to a low trump.

South won in his hand and led a second heart. Back came a second trump and South had to lose a third heart and a club.

"What could I have done?" complained South. "The defense was too good."

North could have said any number of things starting with the mild suggestion that South would have made his contract. If he had led a small club and played low from dummy instead of that heart, all the defense could do would be to cash a second heart to keep South from making an over-trick.

Or North could have said something stronger such as "Play bridge!" or maybe "Use your brain, if you have one."

In any event North merely said, "Deal!" and gets our award.

Jerome woman gets top office

JEROME — A Jerome delegate to the national convention of American War Mothers, Mrs. Birdie Gill, was elected national recording secretary of the patriotic organization.

Mrs. Gill formerly served as national public relations chairman and during the convention served as a page. She is a former state president of the Idaho chapter, American-War-Mothers-and has held nearly all other local and state offices and has served on many committees at all levels of the organization.

She was one of about ten Idaho delegates attending the convention at Buena Park, Calif. recently. Mrs. Gill served two years as state president and has been active in the Idaho chapter for more than 18 years.

Other area delegates included Mrs. Ella Robinson, Jerome, state vice president who represented the state president; Ethel Kiser, Marygrove Cox, state chaplain all Jerome, and Minerva Hammond, Eden.

Ultra sound used to detect heart

N.Y. News Service

NEW YORK — Doctors at a small but growing number of medical centers in this country and elsewhere are now diagnosing some cardiac problems by examining the heart for an unlimited period of time with ultrasound. Other physicians use the technique, which "sees" with sound, to examine the fetus in the womb for diagnostic and research purposes.

These are two of the latest applications of ultrasound in medicine since the development of new techniques allowed two-dimensional motion studies. The use of ultrasound in this manner can be compared with doctors viewing motion pictures of the heart or fetus rather than snapshots, which was the way ultrasound was adapted to medicine after World War II.

Ultrasound is now being applied to the diagnosis of disorders in virtually every field of medicine. About 1,500 American physicians are using the technique.

"Within the last year or so there has been a tremendous increase in ultrasound's usage because of improvements in technology and in our knowledge about how it works and what we are able to see with it," Dr. Marc S. Lippman, a radiologist at Temple University in Philadelphia, said Tuesday at a news conference in New York City held by the American College of Radiology.

Experts in the field described ultrasound as a painless, "noninvasive" technique, one that avoids the hazards of other specialized tests that involve insertion of needles and tubes and injection of chemicals that can cause potentially fatal allergic reactions. Ultrasound is free of radiation, the experts said, and has no known hazards.

Ultrasound was developed earlier this century to locate submarines and other submerged objects. Its adaptation to medical use after the war resulted in part from the recognition by an obstetrician of the resemblance between a submarine in the ocean and a fetus in the womb.

Jackie Onassis enters new chapter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis, newly unemployed, appears to be moving into an uncharted but lively chapter of her life influenced by syndicated columnist Peter Hamill, her constant escort.

Not that Hamill, an unrelenting critic of the American Establishment who lived until recently with activist actress Shirley MacLaine, has proposed marriage to the former First Lady. There are those who say Mrs. Onassis will never marry again, preferring to remain the eternal robot of President John F. Kennedy and Greek shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis.

But she has assumed a new life style with Hamill. She makes many more public appearances with him than with any other escort in her two-widowhoods. She obviously enjoys his company, appearing more vivacious and more beautiful than ever.

In this she follows the lead of her widowed sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, who is the exclusive companion of Peter Tulo, an attorney who serves as New York City Commission of Corrections, in charge of all city prisons.

Tulo, a Chicagoan of piebald Italian descent, was formerly married to an heiress of the Gardiner family, hereditary lords of the 17th century manor of Gardiner's Island off Long Island. Hamill has no such link to blue bloodlines. Brooklyn born, he started his career as an ad agency production and art assistant. He was married to a Puerto Rican, but now is divorced. His column regularly depicts the plight of America's depressed racial minorities, including the Hispanics.

He is a man of considerable charm and writing talent which is earning him a small fortune this year. His Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Syndicate column appears in the New York Daily News and a dozen other papers, and he has written a novel, "Flesh and Blood," due for publication by Random House Nov. 21. Bantam Books has purchased the soft cover rights for a reported six-figure sum.

Mrs. Onassis won a $36 million settlement from the estate of Onassis last month after a hard-won out-of-court battle with Onassis' only heir, daughter Christina. Mrs. Onassis resigned last week from her editorial job at Viking Press in protest to the publishing firm's new novel, "Still We Tell the President."

The book by Jeffrey Archer, a former member of the British Parliament, is sensational in its depiction of an assassination plot against "President" Ted Kennedy in 1961 (a plot that is aborted).

Football game 2 hour sedative to Irma

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have just read that an American football game is an "emotional high."

I wouldn't have put it in quite that way. In fact, I have experienced greater "emotional highs" getting a piece of dental floss caught in my teeth.

Psychologically speaking, men have a lot of reasons for enjoying a football game. They act out their repressions, live vicariously through their heroes, experience renewal and feel like "one of the gang."

To me, it's a two-and-a-half hour sedative. The way I see it, a football stadium is the one spot left in the world where a fan can enjoy diplomatic immunity from (a) being arrested for being drunk and disorderly (b) charged for making obscene calls to the players and coaches and (c) committed to a home for standing on a seat in the driving rain, waving a thermos in the air and shouting, "You're getting on my nerves, Ricky!"

Happily, I have learned to busy myself at games and try to have a good time in spite of all the noise and those little knee-grabbers running up and down the field. Among some of my more provocative games are:

The Fashion Alphabet: Two women alternate with naming a style worn by another woman in the stands from Accordian pleats and Blouses to Yokes and Zippers. The first woman who can't come up with a style for the letter has to be penalized by watching the game until a first down is made.

The Hot Dog, Cola Caper: Disguising your voice, you yell down an order of a hot dog and cola to the vendor at the end of the row. Without an eye leaving the game, people will pass it down an entire row of 138 people. When it gets to the end, pass it back to the next row and see how many rows that hot dog and cola will cover.

Restroom Touchdown: Using strategy, experience, and perseverance, see if you can effectively get a play to work that actually gets you into the restroom before the game is over.

Stump The Fans In The Stands: Establish a pool of what it is the band is trying to spell out on the playing field. (I once correctly identified a take player as an anchovy on a field of pizza and won $5.)

Woman's Intolerance to football is not going to kill the game. Football... like head colds and Derris Day will be with us forever.

But an emotional high? As I told my husband when he announced the game was going into overtime and I began to cry, "This is as emotional as I get!"

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Andrew Loesel.

Tammy Gartner was in charge of the guest book. The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony.

Mrs. Virginia Martins, Mrs. Helen Meyer, Mrs. Irene Adolf and Mrs. Kay Nee served the cake, punch and coffee.

The bride's table was covered with white lace. The five-tier cake was decorated with white and decorated with orange flowers, yellow sweet peas and accented with mint green. It was topped with three wedding bells and two yellow doves which held ribbons connecting two separate heart-shaped cakes.

The cake was flanked with two silver candelabra holding apricot candles.

TWIN FALLS — Officers for 1978 were elected at the Idaho Writers' League meeting at Sunnyside Courts.

Other responses were poems by Frances Harris, "October Gold," Pearl Campbell, "My Favorite Holiday," Sudie Hager, "Autumn Winds Winds Rise and Fall." There were prose articles by Silger, "By the River's Edge," and "Trails from the Nineteenth Century," Wallington.

Mrs. Lena Dugal, who had an article published recently in High Country, was a visitor. Wallington reported on her trip to the annual conference of the state Idaho Writers' League at Caldwell Sept. 30 to Oct. 1, stressing the stimulating talks by successful writers.

TM banned in school

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A federal judge banned the teaching of transcendental meditation in New Jersey public schools Tuesday, ruling the practice violates the doctrine of separation of church and state.

The decision, which only applies to public schools in the Garden State, is expected to have some bearing on the teaching of the course in schools around the nation.

U.S. District Court H. Curtis Meador said transcendental meditation, popularly known as TM, violated the rights of students in five public schools who participated in a mandatory religious ceremony related to the course.

Meador said the "underlying teachings fall well within the concepts which courts previously have found to be religious."

A STRANGE IDEA OF HUMAN RIGHTS

If you are an American, "human rights" means freedom. Freedom to worship as you believe, go where you please, vote for (or against) your representatives in government — in short, to make your own decisions about your own life.

But "human rights" means something quite different to the United Nations. The UN has never condemned the Communists for assaulting religious freedom in Latvia, destroying the sanctity of the family in China, abrogating property rights in Cuba, or abolishing free elections in Hungary. Instead, the UN has always ignored Communist violations of human rights. Even worse, the UN itself has a history of suppressing basic rights and glorifying tyrants.

In 1961, for instance, UN troops in the Congo massacred civilians, bombed hospitals, destroyed churches, and slaughtered women and children. In 1971, the UN expelled the government of Free China and welcomed into its midst the bloody Communist Chinese, the murderers of millions of their own people. In 1974, Yasir Arafat — the leader of the same terrorist P.O. that committed cold-blooded murder at the Munich Olympic Games — addressed the UN General Assembly amid enthusiastic applause. And in 1975, the UN condemned our bases in Guam — American sovereign territory.

The UN hypocrisy on human rights is another compelling reason why we should get out of the United Nations. And why October 24, the anniversary of the UN, should be proclaimed...

a United Nations "Day of Shame."

Nature seekers hurt goal

SPOKANE (UPI) — The architect behind the experimental Arizona community of Arcosanti said Thursday the "back to nature" movement may ultimately destroy what its participants are seeking.

"Masses of people seeking nature while abandoning cities may, by their presence, eliminate their goal," Paolo Soleri told a Spokane Falls Community College audience.

Soleri called it an illusion for people to believe they can have the best of the "back to nature" movement while still enjoying the advantages of the city.

"The architect's central Arizona community of Arcosanti is designed to be a compact complex of structures on 10 acres of land within an 80-acre preserve."

"Started in 1970, Soleri said the community is being built with the notion of combining all urban problems, including energy, pollution and shelter needs."

"We have been working on it for thousands of years and we will be working on it for millions of years," he said.

Soleri said he believes cities should be patterned after natural organisms, which he said are self-contained and do not scatter endlessly.

Women scientists to up Uncle Sam consciousness

©Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — Sixty young women scientists who believe that salary and opportunity gaps between the sexes are widening despite "affirmative action" programs have come to the nation's capital to try to raise Uncle Sam's consciousness.

Supported by the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), the 60 participants in the four-day conference on women in scientific research have all earned their doctorates in the last six years.

The women, mostly in their late 20s and early 30s, contend their male counterparts in laboratories and classrooms have the advantages in academic advancement and compensation.

This contention is bolstered in a study by Betty M. Vetter, executive director of the government's Scientific Manpower Commission, that shows — in her words — that "women make less than men at every degree level, in every field, in every employment setting, at every age and in every activity — and the difference increases with age."

Their demand, according to remarks by Dr. Janet Brown of the office of opportunities in science at the AAAS at the opening of the conference Monday, is "not only representation in greater numbers but also to be used to the extent of their talents and training — to be utilized fully in scientific research."

The latest available figures show that although women are a slight majority in the U.S. population, they represent only about 10 per cent of all scientists and less than 5 per cent of scientists and engineers.

Engineering particularly is a man's game, with only about 2,600 women numbered among the 650,000 persons with engineering degrees.

In strictly scientific fields there are 365,319 men and 40,813 women, according to the Vetter study.

This represents a slight increase in the number of women in science as compared with previous years, but, the Vetter study says, "The salary gap generally is increasing." In 1975 women PhDs had salaries 19 per cent below men's, whereas in 1973 the difference was only 17 per cent.

World War 2 women pilots to receive vets benefits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to extend veterans' benefits to some 850 women who ferried military aircraft during World War II.

Extension of Veterans Administration benefits to the women pilots — known as WASPs — was included in a bill passed Wednesday to increase educational benefits under the GI Bill.

The amendment, offered by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., was passed over the opposition of Chairman Alan Cranston, D-Calif., of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee.

Cranston, the floor manager of the bill, said the WASPs were civilian employees of the government and got all the benefits of other civil servants.

To bring them under the program, he said, might pave the way for demands to provide veterans' benefits for the Merchant Marine and other civilians involved in the war.

Goldwater said Congress had "passed legislation extending veterans' benefits to Poles and Czechs who fought for the Allies during World War II and later became American citizens."

"I think we can do that much for our American girls," he said.

Goldwater also reminded the Senate 39 of the women pilots were killed while ferrying military aircraft and their funeral expenses had to be borne by their families.

SCULPTOR JOHN DANIELS
...enjoys Edina center

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — At 102, sculptor John Daniels says it's fun to live in Edina Community Care Center.

Fun in a nursing home? You can bet on it, because Edina Care is among those run by the non-profit Volunteers of America, an organization devoted to caring for people for the past 82 years.

Among other residents of the Edina center is the mother of Col. Robert Nolte, head of VOA's health care division and midwestern regional director. Nolte said VOA felt there was a need for a national nursing home agency that used all efficient methods of operation. So Volunteers of America Care Facilities became a division of the VOA in 1976.

"Nobody wants to go to a nursing home, and that's not because it's a bad place," said Nolte's son, Bob Jr., recently appointed general manager of the VOA's nursing homes.

"There's a lot of family anguish involved in the decision to send a family member to a nursing home. But sometimes there aren't any other alternatives."

Father and son agreed that "only through better guaranteed care in nursing homes can we get over the stereotyped idea of the nursing home."

VOAC now has 11 health care facilities in the nation, with about 1,500 beds. The elder Nolte said the goal is to add 1,000 new beds at a projected cost of $15 million by the end of next year.

"We may look at 30 to 40 nursing homes before we find what we want," the younger Nolte said. "We just don't want them if they can't be brought up to snuff," his father added.

Besides the 152-bed Edina center, VOAC operates Crystal Care Center in suburban Minneapolis, a 192-bed nursing home, and Maplewood Care Center, a 176-bed facility.

The exteriors of the buildings are "as standard as a McDonald's hamburger stand," the younger Nolte said, but each home is managed as an individual entity. Each has a different patient mix, a different set of circumstances and problems.

Administrators are given a wide range of latitude in developing new ideas to suit their particular needs, he said. VOAC also operates Kettering Convalescent Center in Kettering, Ohio, and the Leisure Oaks Convalescent Center in Defiance, Ohio. In Florida, VOAC-operated nursing homes include Tanglewood Convalescent Center in Lake City and Richie Manor Nursing Home in Newport Richie. In Wisconsin, VOAC operates four residential facilities for emotionally disturbed and retarded adults and teenagers.

"We aim for the nicest facilities in the country," the elder Nolte said. "But you can build all the nice buildings you want with grass and trees, and it won't work without the proper care that we get from most of the young people who come to work for us."

During their VOA career, Nolte and his wife worked in group homes and halfway homes. In 1966 they were doing so well with the Bar-None boys ranch outside Minneapolis he described himself as "the poor man's Father Flanagan."

But he couldn't keep up with the kids anymore, Nolte said, "and I felt there was a need for an agency like ours to be in the health care business. So 10 years ago we just started from scratch, and it seemed as though the VOAC program evolved from what happened in Minnesota."

VOA began the Minnesota nursing home project with 100 per cent funding. It operated at a loss for the first six months to a year, while beds were being filled at the Maplewood home.

But seven years later, after substantial gains in real estate values, "we are assuming an erect fiscal posture," Nolte said. "We charge competitive rates as set by welfare and, instead of the profits going to stockholders, they go back to the patients."

All VOAC facilities are privately financed by local banks and occasional bond issues. The 11 health care centers have an annual operating budget of about $14 million.

Nolte said people find VOAC homes through their clergy, doctor or telephone yellow pages. They visit the homes, and then the patient and family make a decision. Patients on welfare, he said, receive the same care as those with their own funds.

VOAC provides general nursing care, nutritional programs, physical therapy, weekly church services, social work counseling for both patients and family and arts and crafts activities, which John Daniels enjoys most.

"They have to set a timer to let him know when it's time to do something else," said Edina administrator Leila Campbell.

"Otherwise, he'd sculpt all day."

CONSTANCE FELOA PLEASSED
... $26 cough syrup

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (UPI) — Not even a spoonful of sugar would help this medicine go down.

After her 19-year-old son underwent a routine tonsillectomy at Beaumont Hospital, Constance Feola of Southfield received an $896.26 for his 36 hours of care. The bill included $139.46 in pharmaceutical costs — a bit steep, even by hospital standards.

Even though she was fully covered by medical insurance, the former model who now gives dancing lessons decided to investigate.

Mrs. Feola demanded a breakdown from the hospital on the medication charges. Five months and several dunning notices later, she got it.

It showed she had been charged $50.88 for two milliliters of a drug called Trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole that her son never received and $28.86 for a teaspoon of ordinary cough syrup that sells for $2.07 an ounce at the drug store.

The hospital admitted its mistake, apologized to Mrs. Feola, refunded $69.07 to her insurance company and overhauled its billing methods for prescriptions.

"I know medical costs are outrageous these days and it was no money out of my pocket, but it was the principle of the thing," Mrs. Feola said.

"I've never done anything like this in my life. I don't usually pay attention to prices."

I don't know why I got involved this time except people may think that overcharges and padded hospital bills are just the insurance company's problem — but the cost is passed along to us in premium increases.

Hospital administrator Ted Wasson called the case "an isolated error."

"This is the first time we have found ourselves to be in error on prescriptions and we handle 350,000 a month," Wasson said. "We are frequently audited by a number of insurance companies checking to see if patients received the medication charged to their accounts."

"But as a result of Mrs. Feola's complaints, we are making sure that this won't happen again and we are surveying area hospitals to see if our prices are in line with what they are charging. We feel our prices are in line with most other hospitals."

USDA to aid sugar industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department says it will implement a new loan and sugar purchase program to aid the ailing domestic sugar industry no later than Nov. 8, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Thursday.

Dole received a hand-delivered letter from Deputy Agriculture Secretary John White on Thursday afternoon outlining the USDA's plans to speed up implementation of the sugar program.

The plan calls for government loans to producers or purchases in the marketplace to support the price of raw sugar equivalent at 13½ cents a pound. It was included in the farm law passed this year by Congress, but there were fears on Capitol Hill the administration would drag its feet in implementing the program.

On Wednesday, Dole raised his concern over delays and said he planned to call up a Senate resolution to overturn President Carter's earlier decision not to impose import quotas on sugar from foreign sources. Dole had intended to bring the resolution up for Senate debate and a vote Thursday afternoon.

However, at midday, Dole received the letter from White assuring him the program would be in place no later than Nov. 8. As a result, Dole backed off his threat to bring up the disapproval resolution on import quotas.

"You and other members of the senate have expressed your strong interest in the earliest possible implementation of the sugar price support provisions of the farm bill," White told Dole, adding that the original plans called for publication of final regulations for the sugar program by Dec. 1.

"However, it is now our intention to waive certain procedural constraints generally required for less urgent matters. We now believe we can advance our timetable even further. It is our intention to implement the aforementioned loan and purchase program no later than Nov. 8, 1977," White said.

The agriculture official said to meet the new timetable, the department "will eliminate a period we had intended to use to hold public hearings on minimum wage rates and use other, faster methods to seek advice on setting minimum wages for sugar workers."

White said President Carter and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland "are committed to a strong effort to bring about workable price relief for our sugar producers. To this end, I am pleased to state my personal commitment and that of the secretary to implementation of this program at the earliest possible date."

The program included in the farm bill requires the government to extend loans to producers at 13½ cents for every pound of sugar equivalent from beets or cane or to go into the market and buy enough sugar to bring domestic prices up to that level.

Future farms to harvest energy

MOSCOW — Farmers of the future will harvest new sources of energy along with their conventional food and fiber crops, predicts Dr. Glen Murray, University of Idaho agronomist.

Murray said farmers and agricultural scientists will respond to the nation's critical need for reliable supplies of energy by finding ways of producing fuel on land that is not suited for ordinary crop production.

"Millions of acres of marginal farmland could be planted to fast-growing bushes that would be burned for fuel. Crop plants may be important also as a renewable energy resource. Sunflower stalks compacted together have been reported to give more heat per pound than coal," Murray said.

Looking ahead to the year 2000, Murray said a "waste not-want not" ethic will prevail and maximum use will be made of all agricultural by-products.

"Manure and processing wastes are already being converted to methane and oil and larger-scale use of these waste products can be expected."

"Production of protein can be increased by using single-cell organisms to degrade food processing wastes which are currently non-usable," he said.

Also foreseen by the UI College of Agriculture professor were these developments on the farm:

- Meadowfoam, safflower, flax and other crops rich in oil may be grown extensively as sources of industrial and cooking oils.
- Multiple cropping, getting more than one crop per year from each field, will add to farm yields.
- As "no-till" farming increases, scientists will have to develop new crop varieties adapted to no-till conditions.
- Improved weed control methods are needed also.
- Need-for-potrogen-fertilizer will decrease if soil tests succeed in developing bacteria or fungi that can fix nitrogen from the air and make it available to wheat, corn and other crops.

- Plant breeders will increase seed yields and protein content of important crops.
- Improved weather forecasting will enable farmers to plan production programs more effectively.

"As farming becomes more scientific, the farmer must do his work almost as precisely as the druggist mixes his pharmaceuticals. Prescription farming is just around the corner," Murray said.

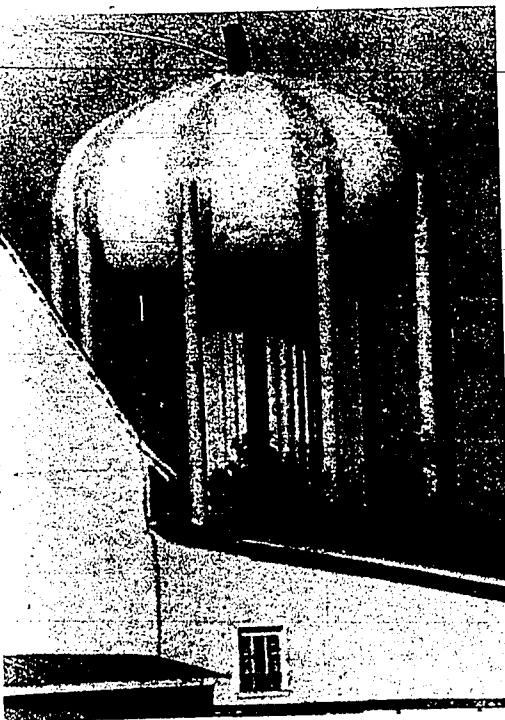

Evans to address Cattlemen's Assn.

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans will address the 64th annual convention of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association set for Nov. 17-19 at the Roadway Inn, Boise.

The convention theme is "Tribute to Idaho Ranchers," and Evans' presentation is set for Nov. 18.

Also speaking will be Tom Monier, of the National Cattlemen's Association, and Rold Tongvald of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank.

Symms introduces bill to block 160-acre limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressman Steve Symms sponsored a bill Thursday to block an attempt by the Carter Administration to force some western farmers to sell their irrigated lands in excess of 160 acres.

Interior Department regulations scheduled to go into effect next month would force any farmer receiving federal water to irrigate more than the basic allowable acreage to sell the excess acreage or face having his water shut off.

The acreage allowed is 160 acres per person and 320 acres for husband and wife.

The bill, co-sponsored by more than 25 western congressmen, would prohibit Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus from putting those regulations into effect for one year.

"Their regulations would raise havoc with western agriculture," Symms said. "This bill will cut them off at the pass and hold them there until Congress can amend the old reclamation laws on which the regulations are based."

Symms said the Reclamation Act of 1902, under which some 150 reclamation projects have been developed in 17 western states, was aimed at attracting new settlers westward. It placed a limit on the number of irrigated acres a farmer could own if he was going to use water from a federal project.

"The 160-acre limitation was fine in 1902," Symms said.

Pest, weed class slated

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho's 1978 Plant Protection Seminar is scheduled for Jan. 34 in Boise.

The four-day short course is designed for agricultural chemical applicators, fieldmen, growers and other persons involved in the control of crop-destroying pests.

Classes and workshops will be held in the Roadway Inn. New developments in the control of weeds, plant diseases and insects will be presented.

Gene Carpenter, pesticide coordinator of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture, and Art Walz, UI extension potato specialist, are co-chairmen of the seminar.

Information about the seminar may be obtained from Susan Buraw, director, Office of Continuing Education, University of Idaho, Moscow 83843.

The fee for advance registration is $50, including instructional materials and luncheon each of the four days the seminar is in session.

Big seeds yield more wheat

TWIN FALLS — Does the farmer take a big risk by planting wheat seeds that are of less than normal size?

Dr. H.R. Guenther, University of Idaho extension agronomist, says researchers are finding that yields of many crops are influenced by the size of seeds planted — and research in Washington and Oregon has demonstrated that wheat is one of the crops which produce bigger yields from large seeds.

"Large wheat seeds will produce plants that emerge better and have greater vigor than those from small wheat seeds," Guenther reported.

Referring to the results of tests in eastern Washington, Guenther said large seeds produced a crop that yielded 74.1 bushels of Nuggles wheat per acre while small seeds gave a per-acre yield of only 63.2 bushels.

"That's a whopping difference of nearly 11 bushels per acre, which is something to think about," Guenther said.

Staff added at Reno

RENO — Staff additions are expected to upgrade research capabilities and other functions at the University of Nevada's Knoll Creek Agricultural Field Laboratory in Elko County.

Dr. Ralph A. Young, associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the university, said an experimental agricultural aide has been hired at Knoll Creek and has been on the job since July. He is John Hullinger, from Carey, Idaho. Dr. Young said an aide will be hired for the Central Nevada Agricultural Field Laboratory near Austin this fall. He said an aide is especially needed at Central Nevada since the station superintendent has a split appointment — 50 per cent research and 50 per cent extension.

The aides will assist with the experimental work, including irrigation and other activities on agronomic field trial plots and with animal science studies. Additionally, they will perform routine farm work including haying, fence mending, equipment maintenance and so forth. The aides will also work on field trials conducted on farmers' and ranchers' fields.

CSI Rodeo Club sponsors show

Clinic fee will be $5. The clinic will be at 8 a.m. Nov. 12 with the horse show on Nov. 13 at 9 a.m.

The show will consist of 37 classes including youth classes, hunter-jumper, with

Try the Oswalt 3-Way Profit Package

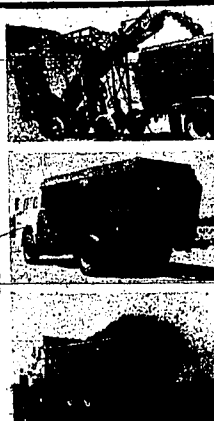

Start with the Oswalt ENSILOADER... either tractor or truck mounted. Dig and load over a ton a minute from trench, bunker, or stock piles.

Patented reel and boom are hydraulically raised to place the top of the ensilage (up to 21 feet high). Revolving rapidly as its own weight feeds it into the ensilage, the reel digs smoothly and efficiently.

A conveyor/loader carries away the ensilage as it falls.

Then mix the ration you want in the ENSILMIXER on your way to the feedlot. Weigh it in... mix it on the run... then weigh it off as you fill bunks uniformly with a single pass.

Finally, dispose of feedlot wastes with an Oswalt Commercial Manure Spreader... the only spreader in America with the capacity, endurance, and performance to handle waste disposal from even the largest feedlots. Mounted on either a single axle or tandem axle truck, it handles loads up to 13 tons.

RICHARD MEYER
...lobbied against law

Meyer resigns USDA over lobbying effort

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Meyer has resigned after refusing to stop lobbying against a 75-year-old federal law affecting land he owns, officials said.

An Agriculture Department spokesman said Meyer decided to quit after several conversations with Secretary Bob Bergland about a possible conflict of interest related to his lobbying against the law.

Meyer and his family hold some 2,000 acres in the Imperial Valley around his hometown of Brawley, Calif.

Meyer acknowledged that he arranged — "as an individual" — several meetings at the White House and on Capitol Hill with officials for his neighbor farmers in the Imperial Valley, but said he had done nothing wrong.

At dispute is a 1902 law that limits access to federal water for irrigation purposes to small farmers of less than 100 acres. That law recently was upheld by the courts, and the Interior Department has drafted regulations to implement it, much to the dismay of large western landholders.

President Carter told a group of farm editors in late September the law probably needed to be changed since few farms as small as 100 acres can be profitable operations.

Meyer and his Imperial Valley friends contend they have been exempted from that law for more than 30 years and the government was reneging on its word to try to enforce the provisions in the valley.

His government contacts were made as an individual seeking redress from an unfair situation and he said he did not attempt to use his Agriculture Department position to sway policy makers.

"He never did understand he couldn't be a public person and a private person too," the department spokesman said.

"I'm not going to keep my mouth shut on this issue," Meyer has been quoted.

Meyer's letter of resignation has been sent to Carter, although it was not requested, Press Secretary Jody Powell said. Carter did receive a report from the general counsel of the Agriculture Department on the question of a possible conflict of interest.

Meyer, as assistant secretary for marketing, was in charge of grain inspection.

Food crisis movement stirs

NEW YORK — Three good years after the famous "world food crisis" of 1974, three years in which generally favorable rains have rolled back the specter of famine almost everywhere, popular interest in problems of the world food situation continues to grow and even shows signs of building into a long-term movement.

Like every good popular movement this one has its college "hunger courses" and its benefit concerts by such entertainers as James Taylor, Gordon Lightfoot, John Denver and Harry Chapin.

It involves many young people who, believing the meat-heavy American diet monopolizes world food resources, became vegetarians. And it includes large numbers of religious people and church organizations who are involved because they felt moral or ethical obligations. By one estimate there are several hundred local and national groups in the movement.

All recognize that many more droughts will come and that, even in the absence of overt famine now, hundreds of millions of people are still suffering and dying from chronic malnutrition.

The movement is also becoming vastly more radical, contending the root causes of hunger are not droughts or backwardness in developing countries or even overpopulation. Instead, according to two leaders prominent in the movement, the real cause of hunger is that the rich countries of the world and the rich elite in poor countries are monopolizing the best farmland. Even within the poor countries, they argue, the rich have taken so much land that the poor are actually prevented from growing the food they already know how to grow.

During the Sahel drought, for example, huge peanut plantations on some of Mali's best land — land owned by multinational corporations — increased their exports to European customers.

In the same way, American corporations in the Philippines have, over the last 10 years, bought up much prime farmland to grow bananas for export to Japan. Some Filipinos who once raised their own food there now labor on the plantations for $1.50 a day, dependent on food grown elsewhere. Others are unemployed.

In Kenya, British colonists claimed vast tracts of that country's well-watered highlands for coffee and tea plantations, driving out Kenyans who once were able to feed themselves.

More than half of Central America's agricultural land is not used to grow food for hungry Guatemalans or Nicaraguans but to provide Americans with such luxuries as fresh produce in winter.

"People are beginning to ask hard questions about where their food comes from," said Joseph Collins, one of the leaders of the new movement. "They question whether we should be importing food from countries where people are going hungry."

Francis Moore Lappé, whose book "Diet for a Small Planet" has sold 1.5 million copies, and Collins, co-author of "Global Reach," a critical examination of multinational corporations, together founded last year the Institute for Food and Development Policy in San Francisco, one of the new movement's sources of information.

Energy accord reached

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Having reached their first accord on a major feature of the energy package, House and Senate conferees went into recess until next week when they will resume negotiations.

The 47-member conference committee came to terms Thursday, the third day of meetings, on a multi-billion dollar program to help Americans save money and energy by weatherizing their homes. The agreement prompted conference chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., to declare that the panel was making "real progress."

The energy program is the major item to be resolved before Congress ends its current session next month. Although the exact adjournment date has not yet been decided, Congressional leaders have decided when Congress will resume work next year. After a conference Thursday between Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill it was announced that the second session of the 95th Congress will begin at noon on Jan. 17.

As for the end of the current session, Byrd said he thinks the Senate could dispose of all pending bills by Nov. 5 and then deal with conference reports — including the energy package — as they come.

The weatherization part of the package includes $5 billion in federal funds that will be made available through commercial lending institutions for homeowners to make their homes more energy efficient. The plan also calls for utility companies to provide advice and information for such projects.

The second day of the House Ethics Committee's hearing on "influence-buying" produced some intriguing testimony by a former South Korean CIA agent.

Valley comment

QUESTION: Do you think Allan Bakke, the student who was turned down in his application for medical school because the school had filled its quota for white male students, has a just cause for action?

Mary Biggers, Twin Falls:

"Yes, I do. I think the school should take the students as they come. Those who apply first should have the first chance. They should be selected on a basis of when they applied and on a basis of their qualifications, not if they are black or white."

John Hipkins, Batesville, Aransas:

"If I said he should be allowed to go to college rather than a minority student, I'm being just as prejudiced as the school is being against him. If what he says is true, and he is more qualified than others that were selected over him, then he does have a cause for action. If Bakke is the best qualified, he will obviously get the most out of the education and be the best doctor after he graduates."

Tracy Dawson, Twin Falls:

"I think we've gone a little too far. I think if an individual is better qualified I think he should be admitted over someone not as well qualified. If he got higher marks, they should have accepted him."

Frank Delana, Buhl:

"I don't think he should be turned down if he is better qualified than the others who applied and were accepted. It doesn't seem fair, and there must be a better solution to the matter, but personally, I don't know what it is."

Emma Lyda, Twin Falls:

"Yes, I think he has a right to object. I think they should have taken him. The vacancies should go to the most qualified individuals, and it shouldn't be decided on a basis of equal numbers of blacks, whites or other things besides qualifications to do the best in college."

Elmer Wilson, Twin Falls:

"I think he's right. We are guaranteed protection under the provisions of the United States Constitution. The Constitution is supposed to safeguard everyone's rights, and if you're white your rights should be protected, too."

Kitty Ahlm, Buhl:

"I think Bakke is just a victim of the times and I think things are going to begin swinging back the other way. Bakke would be too old by the time he goes to college now and graduates to start a career. He has his point in a way, but I came from the south and I know how repressed many minorities are and someone has to give them a chance."

Steve Wetzel, Pocatello:

"Well, I'm undecided. I know I won't be able to go to the law school of my choice this year because I'm white male middleclass. Somehow it doesn't seem right, but still you have to help those who need the help most."

Ketchum extras seeking 'big chance'

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Working for Hollywood is even better than a government job — the coffee breaks are longer and the donuts are free.

At least that's what quite a few local residents discovered this week as they hung around the sets of "Stedman," a made-for-television movie being filmed here, waiting for their cue to come into the camera's view and live up a street scene as the extras who provide it with a bit of real life atmosphere.

But their cue was a long time in coming, and for most of the extras their day in the movies was an extended coffee break.

The call to duty — or, perhaps, as many must secretly have hoped, the call into bright lights, the camera's eye, discovery, fame and all the rest of the American celluloid fantasy — came unexpectedly the night before the first day of filming: An ordinary ring of the phone on a weekday evening.

But...

The Stedman producers wanted some locals to provide a little foot traffic for two street scenes to be shot the first day.

Camera and production crews for Columbia Pictures Television arrived on the set at the Elephant's Perch sports store in Ketchum about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday with the first light of day and the bitter cold. It was long, underwear weather — foot-stomping, hand-puffing cold!

The first scene was shot inside the Elephant's Perch and didn't require any extras. So, there was nothing left for them to do but stand around outside and josh and jive and talk and rap and, heck, if you can't provide atmosphere for the scene, then provide it for the set.

This was the quintessential Hollywood set: Collapsible canvas chairs for the director's and the stars' names printed on the backs stood outside the Elephant's Perch among a jungle of wires and lights and microphone booms, while outside all this stood the crowd of extras... just like in the movies of the movies.

Hollywood takes good care of its children, and for the day these 23 locals were part of the family. To fight the cold and the early morning ennui, two large thermal containers of fresh coffee were put on top and trays piled with fresh donuts were brought out for the general consumption.

The shooting inside lasted all morning and as one extra, a Ketchum resident named Mike Thompson, glibly put it: "We had coffee and donuts for the first 12 hours."

Another extra, Rod Tatsuno, Ketchum, joked that the highlight of his morning was the two glazed twists which he devoured with coffee as he waited for the call.

However, things were better for Gary Smith, a Ketchum resident and self-proclaimed ski bum, who has been picked as a "walk-on." For $40 a day, Smith, who looks a bit like Stedman's star, Dale Robinette, hung around the set and every now and then was used as the standard by which to set up scenes and adjust the lighting and sound while Robinette took a breather.

For this Smith has a steady job for three to four weeks and longer if Stedman returns in the winter to shoot a 10-part mid-season series. Smith remarked, "If the snow falls, I'll probable ski. If Stedman calls, I'll make some money."

But the question still quickly rises into mind: Had all these locals climbed from their beds early that morning just to stand in the cold and eat glaze twist donuts? The answer was definitely, No.

Mac said they'd come to make a quick 25 bucks for an easy day's work which promised to be interesting. And, all kidding aside, who could look at all those lights and cameras and makeup boxes and still ward off the faint glimmering hope that Director Paul Stanley might suddenly turn to you from the set and say, "You, come here. Can you read these lines?"

Mountaintop experience

In the second week of filming the made-for-television movie "Stedman," Columbia Pictures crews traveled to the top of Trail Creek Pass northeast of Sun Valley. The movie is being filmed in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area this month. Crews are shown filming a segment among the spectacular Idaho scenery.

WATCHING AND HOPING FOR A PART

... 400 to 500 local people were interviewed, and about 25 eventually landed small parts.

READING FOR THE PART

... Kay Burkle reads to casting director Claire Newell

... and do a lot of waiting

The first call for extras finally came about noon.

An assistant to the director gave them all quick instructions and dispersed them onto the street, where they were momentarily to become atmospheric foot traffic. Waiting awkwardly, like fine Rocky Mountain resort statuary, they stood in place until the director's call.

"All right. Here goes. Roll it!"

Instantly the street came alive with walking, talking, laughing people.

Perhaps you've wondered what all those intent faces on the sidewalks of movies are actually talking about?

Well, it isn't anything to write home about.

One fellow admitted that as the stars walked by he'd said straight in the distant camera's face, but out of microphone range. "I wonder what they'd look like without clothes on."

Another couple invented a party they were planning and discussed whether they ought to invite to it some third person.

And a few just talked out and out about how "dumb" they felt walking through the scene like plug-in-rebels.

Once the first "take" was done, the extras arranged themselves again on the street and waited for the second and third takes to be shot.

By the end of the day, most agreed being an extra was plain BORING. It was a story better in the telling than in the actual acting. Yet, there was at least one person who for a short while watched the filming and was thrilled by it all. She was a middle-aged Mom who climbed out of a car with Wyoming license plates just before lunch.

When everyone broke for lunch, she finagled the good-humored and polite star of Sledman to have his picture taken with her.

She, a good foot shorter than Robinette, quickly gave her pocket camera to a young lady standing nearby and then snaked her arm around the star. He smiled and politely joked for the picture.

Then, after retrieving her camera, the woman said thanks and started back to her car. Half way there, she turned and said to Robinette, "By the way, what's the name of your movie?"

Lucky resemblance

Gary Smith, of Ketchum, is one of the luckier of the local residents who went looking for work on the movie set. He bears a resemblance to the leading actor, Dale Robinette, and is being used as the star's stand-in. If "Sledman" makes it as a television series, Smith may have found an interesting occupation.

LESLEY ANN

because it's referred to in this film as "McBride's." The actual funeral, with a cast of 100,000 mourners, was one of the most lurid and famous ever, and is responsible for making Campbell's famous, so it seems ironic that a fake name was used.

DINA

... Cary was the connection

Q: What about Lesley Ann Warren, John Peters' ex-wife? I know she tried a nightclub act that didn't go anywhere. Is she working in anything new? — G.I., Chicago.

A: Lesley recently finished working on a mini-series airing this week on NBC. It's based on Harold Robbins book, "79 Park Avenue." She's been keeping a low profile and was very reluctant to see the press. NBC's press department, anxious to set up some publicity for her in connection with the mini-series, found her quite difficult and reluctant to see reporters. Nobody could figure out why. Lesley is still close to Peters and very friendly with Barbara Streisand. She still goes to Peters for advice on her career.

Q: I know Mark Hamill of "Star Wars" was in a terrible automobile accident which required plastic surgery on his face. Did it mar his looks? Also, how old is he anyway? Stories about him never mention his age. — O.S., San Francisco.

A: Hamill's face is now perfect, a tribute to the miracle of plastic surgery. He's 26, but has decided never to tell his real age because he wants to have a long, rewarding career as a movie star. Remember Cary Grant was in his 60s and still playing romantic leads because nobody was sure how old he was.

Q: We like watching Lawrence Welk, but he has a habit of reminiscing about his band-era days. Was he really that famous? I don't seem to remember him. — B.G., Scottsdale, Ariz.

A: Welk's a big TV star, but he has an inflated memory concerning his past. The truth is, during the big-band era of the 1940s, his group wasn't anywhere in the league of the Glenn Millers, Benny Goodman, and Tommy Dorsey's, with whom he links himself.

Q: I know Susan Ford is working seriously as a photographer on "Jaws 2," but I'd love to know what she's really like in private life. Does she miss the fact that her father is no longer in politics? — C.H., Beverly Hills, Calif.

A: Susan is very close to her parents and has just bought a condominium about 10 minutes away from the Ford home in Palm Desert, Calif., near Palm Springs. She thinks her father might run again, feeling that "after 29 years in politics he won't get it out of his system in less than a year." Susan says she doesn't miss the White House life at all, explaining that when she was the president's daughter her social life was too restricted but is much less so now. Susan says that both she and her mother actually have very aloof personalities and that she no longer talks to people unless she knows them. Susan says her mother is like that too, but maintains a pose of being more accessible.

Q: Is it true that the late Buster Keaton, the movie comedian, was a poker fiend? — T.D., Ardmore, Pa.

A: Absolutely. Keaton died Feb. 1, 1966, at his home in Woodland Hills, Hollywood, in the middle of a poker game. Buster was even buried with a deck of playing cards.

Q: Despite Anita Bryant and her success in that campaign against homosexuals, do you think that acknowledged homosexuality hurts someone in the public eye in this day and age? — R.P., Westport, Conn.

Q: I'm fascinated with that British master spy Kim Philby, the one who defected to Russia. I thought there was going to be a movie about him starring Michael Caine, but I haven't heard anything recently. — G.H., New Brunswick, N.J.

A: Caine, currently in "A Bridge Too Far," won't make the movie. He's pretty sure at Philby, who old Moscow reporters that he didn't think much of Caine playing him. Philby described the star as "a comparatively uneducated cockney actor." Besides Caine's pique, there's been trouble financing the film.

Q: What can you tell us about Julie Harris? Has she retired from acting? Is she married? — C.P., Pittsburgh.

A: Julie, now 51, is in London doing a play. This spring she married again for the third time. This time to Walter Carroll, a man she fell in love with 32 years ago when she appeared in a play Carroll wrote. He was married at the time and they parted, seeing each other only once in 20 years. Julie and her new husband were both married twice in the interim. She has a son and he has six children.

Q: You wrote about "The Honeymooners Special" in a recent column. That got us to thinking whether Jackie Gleason, Art Carney, and Audrey Meadows made fortunes because the old shows keep playing on TV. — W.P., Yuma, Ariz.

MEADOWS

A: Gleason sold his residual rights to CBS, although he would have made much more money had he not. Carney's contract only provided for residuals for a limited period of time. But Audrey Meadows has really cleaned up. When CBS tried to buy back her rights to "The Honeymooners," she asked her lawyer-brother for his advice. Audrey's brother asked if the show was in reruns, and Audrey said it wasn't. The brother then advised her not to sell, saying he was sure the reason for the offer was that the show was going to be rerun.

Q: We went to a charity benefit recently, and there were gifts from a well-known jewelry company at every place setting. How do these charities get companies to donate presents like that? — E.T., Miami.

A: Easy — if you're well-connected. Someone close to the corporation asks them to make a donation, which, of course, is tax deductible. Dina Merrill, for example, went to Faberge director Cary Grant and got from the company thousands of dollars worth of gifts for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. She devotes a lot of time to the organization because her late son was a diabetic. Remember, Cary was married to Dina's cousin, Barbara Hutton, and she also worked with Grant in the movie, "Operation Petticoat."

TANTRUM TIME: A famed movie star, long known for his quiet, low-key manner, has turned into a difficult person. Friends and relatives say he is impossible to work with or live with, and one director claims, seriously, that the actor is a good candidate for a straitjacket. The director also says he had such a difficult time with the man in his last movie that he himself was hospitalized for rest and recuperation after the ordeal.

SOVIET BRAIN DRAIN: One of the world's greatest and youngest mathematical geniuses is planning to immigrate to the United States. Twenty-nine-year-old Gregory Tcheudnovsky is now in Vienna, having finally received permission to leave Russia, through the intervention of an international committee of mathematicians determined to "aid" Russians who want to leave their country. Tcheudnovsky has been confined to a wheelchair since he was 11 because of a neuromuscular disease. When he was 19 he achieved worldwide recognition by solving a math problem that had stood unanswered for 70 years.

Q: I really like Engelbert Humperdinck. Why hasn't he made any movies yet? — P.M., Orleans, Mass.

A: The handsome British singer has been very cautious about movie offers, despite his success in other areas. He recently moved to Hollywood and while producers aren't exactly hanging down his door, some projects are perking. One is an all-star war film in which Humperdinck would play a sidekick to Sean Connery and Roger Moore. But the singer is fully aware that friend and fellow performer Tom Jones' "Yoko" never got finished. It collapsed midway into production. Not exactly an encouraging sign to Engelbert.

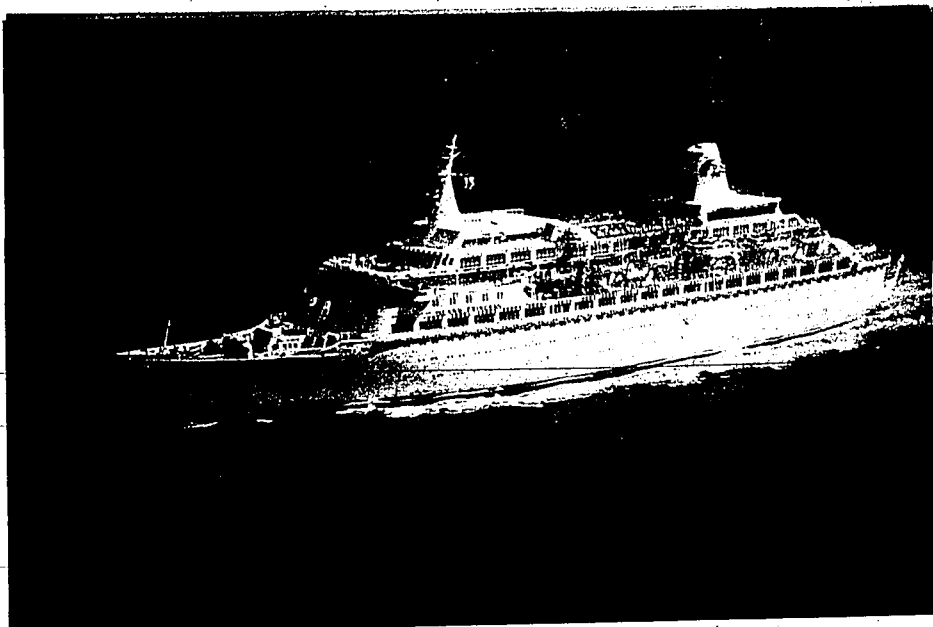

Q: I'm an old Valentino fan, and wonder about that new movie with Rudolf Nureyev. Is it another of those flaky movies, where they change the names of real people to do something fictional, like they usually do? — T.P., Tacoma, Wash.

A: Interestingly, most real-life character names are preserved intact for this version of "Valentino," with people like Nijinsky and Nazimova, the actress, parading through the plot. What makes it bizarre is that clearance apparently wasn't obtained from the Frank E. Campbell Funeral Chapel in New York,

The finest Times-News tour ever! Last year my wife and I had the opportunity to select and preview this year's Mexico tour. We wanted great accommodations, great food, sunshine, beautiful beaches; a variety of places to visit, and all this without having to pack our bag and move every day.

The Princess Ships we believe to be the finest ships on the west coast. Their English officers and Italian crew offered the excellent hospitality and cuisine — we enjoyed breakfast in bed, movies on board, live shows starring Phyllis Diller, all at no extra cost.

Without a doubt this is the finest tour we've offered.

Sincerely, Bill Howard, Publisher
