Trout stream pollution called 'not dangerous'

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — Water quality tests on the clear, spring-fed waters of Billingsley Creek in Hagerman Valley have shown the meandering stream contains high counts of coliform bacteria. Health and environment officials, however, say the stream is not dangerously polluted.

The high coliform counts, usually an indicator of pollution by human sewage, have been found to be a direct result of discharge from trout hatcheries on the creek and do not indicate the presence of dangerous pathogens, the officials say.

"I can't attribute any of those coliform counts to domestic sewage," Alex Schaefer, environmental quality specialist at the Department of Health and Welfare, (DHW), says. "Most of it is coming from these trout hatcheries along the creek."

Schaefer, who collected water quality data between 1971 and 1976 in the stream, quantified his data to a report published by the DHW in January, 1977.

The report labeled Billingsley Creek as "water quality limiting," and recommended further study to determine the impact of fish-rearing facilities on its waters.

According to Schaefer's data, coliform counts in the creek exceeded the Idaho Water Quality Standard for Class A2 water, which is 240 coliform organisms per 100 milliliters of water.

But since the coliform counts are the direct result of five trout farms which use spring water from the Thousand Springs and dump their used water into the creek, Schaefer says their presence in the creek waters does not indicate dangerous pollution.

"We don't have any effluent guidelines for trout hatcheries," Rick Walters of the Environmental Protection Agency in Boise, says. "Coliform is an indicator for viruses from human waste. They are not present in fish waste."

Poverty grip not so tight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three million Americans escaped poverty between 1970 and 1975 despite the worst inflation and deepest recession of the post World War II era, according to the Census Bureau.

Census said Monday 23.9 million Americans had incomes below the poverty level in 1975 compared with 27.1 million below the poverty level in 1970.

Coupled with a population gain of 8 million in that period, the percentage of impoverished Americans dropped from 13.7 percent in 1970 to 11.4 percent in 1975.

On a family basis, an estimated 5 million of the nation's 56 million families had incomes below the poverty level in 1975, or 9 percent. This compared with 5.5 million of the 51.2 million families in 1970, or 10.7 percent.

The government defines the poverty level as annual income of $5,500 or less for a non-farm family of four persons.

The new Census survey also showed that the median household family income was $14,094 in 1975 compared with $9,590 in 1970.

The findings on poverty in the Survey of Income and Education differed from those of the Current Population Survey, which is also conducted by Census. The SIE income levels were generally higher. The CPS found 25.9 million Americans below the poverty level.

Census attributed differences in the findings to the survey period — March for CPS and April through June for SIE. The SIE survey covers a period when people have filed income tax reports and are more certain of their income, Census said.

The decline was significant since there was an increase in the number of impoverished Americans during the 12 percent inflation of 1973 and the recession of 1974.

But data on personal income collected by the Commerce Department showed that welfare and Social Security payments tied to the cost of living resulted in substantial gains for recipients in 1975.

The recession and inflation also resulted in an increase in the number of women in marginal income families seeking employment. This helped boost family incomes.

Census said most poor families were concentrated in southern and western states. One of every seven southern families had incomes below the poverty level in 1975 and more than one of 10 in the West.

Alaska and Connecticut shared the lowest poverty rate among states, 6.7 percent. Alaska where one of every 10 families had incomes exceeding $50,000 a year, had the highest median family income of $22,432. Hawaii was second with $17,770.

Mississippi had the lowest median family income of $9,595 and the highest poverty rate, 26 percent.

Power rates climb again for Idahoans

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission Monday signed an order granting Idaho Power Co. a 10.3 percent general rate increase.

The major portion of the increase granted by the commission has been in effect since May. Idaho Power was granted an interim rate hike of 7.09 percent. Idaho Power had proposed a general increase of 17.95 percent.

In Monday's order, the commission separated the issue of revenue requirements and the rate design which should be used to collect the revenues. The firm's revenue needs were determined in Monday's order while the issue of rate reform was deferred until January. Garth Andrews, a spokesman for the firm, said "the commission simply ran out of time on this case. If the revenue questions had not been decided Monday, by law the entire $20.5 million increase would have gone into effect as requested."

Andrews added that splitting the issues in the Idaho Power case does not necessarily solve the commission's time problem. "Between now and January, the commission will be running into new deadlines as well as complete deliberations on the issue of rate reform."

The added hike will add 63 cents to a typical residential bill of $20.95 for 1,000 kilowatt hours.

The 10.3 percent hike will boost annual revenues by $12.13 million to allow the firm an 8.43 percent rate of return of rate base.

In its decision, the commission reduced Idaho Power Co.'s proposed rate base on which it is entitled to earn a return by more than $5.6 million. The largest reduction in this area was in the utility's investment in the Jim Bridger power plant.

The commission found that the formula by which Idaho Power and Pacific Power and Light Co. built the plant resulted in an over-investment by the Idaho utility. Idaho Power paid the full cost of the first Bridger generation unit with the belief that higher construction costs for the remaining three units would balance the company's total investment at one-third of the total.

The commission found that the construction costs stabilized and therefore made the adjustment.

U.S. may escape extreme chill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government forecasters say there is a 65 percent chance that more normal weather patterns will spare much of the nation from the prolonged record cold of last winter.

The long-range outlook calls for below-normal temperatures in the north central areas "but warmer than usual weather in the Southeast, Mid-Atlantic states and much of the West."

"The pattern is more balanced and that means less extensive cold than last year," said Dr. Donald Gilman, director of the long-range forecast office. "I think it would be pretty hard to match last year."

The December-February outlook issued Monday was based on indications that the upper altitude winds responsible for regulating weather will flow more from the west to the east than they did last winter.

"The flow across North America last winter was coming rather strongly from the northwest and north, bringing the cold highs down from the Arctic very rapidly and very consistently," Gilman said in an interview.

"We look for less of that this year and more storms coming in from the Pacific along their more typical tracks, with the cold air getting down into the country somewhat, but not nearly as deeply as last year." The long-range forecast also said there is a 55 percent chance that it will be wetter this winter in northern California, the rest of the Pacific Northwest, the northern Rockies and the Northern Plains as far east as the Dakotas.

Above-average rain and snow also is indicated from the Mississippi River eastward into the Appalachians, Southern California, the Southwest and southern Plains are expected to have drier-than-normal conditions.

The below-average temperature prediction covered a broad area ranging from the Columbia River Basin in Washington and Oregon, eastward through the Northern Great Plains to the Great Lakes and northwestern New York state and northern New England.

Gilman said much of California, the Great Basin of Utah and Nevada and snow also is indicated from the Mississippi River eastward into the Appalachians, Southern California, the Southwest and southern Plains are expected to have drier-than-normal conditions.

He said conditions are too close to call in a V-shaped strip from New England southwestward to the Mississippi Delta and then northwestward to Idaho and the Pacific.

House Korea probe chief outlines big payoff plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of a House investigating subcommittee said today his panel obtained a secret South Korean plan to spend $750 million in 1976 to influence American foreign policy and more money for congressional campaign contributions.

Chairman Donald Fraser, D-Minn., accused the Seoul government of "outright subversion" as his International Relations subcommittee opened two days of hearings on Korean Central Intelligence Agency activities in the United States.

Fraser said the South Koreans aimed to use money to recruit the good will of congressmen, journalists, scholars, religious leaders and businessmen.

But committee ranking Republican Edward J. Derwinski of Illinois said GOP members could not yet join in the subversion charge because they had not been shown the 1976 plan and an earlier Korean plan which Fraser mentioned.

The subcommittee lined up half a dozen witnesses, leading off with testimony by Sohn Ho Young, who described himself as the chief KCIA official in New York until he defected to U.S. authorities two months ago.

Fraser said copies of the alleged Korean plans would be made public later in the day, but that he had ordered his staff to remove the names of all individuals and most organizations mentioned to protect their privacy. He said some names would be identified next year.

"The (1976) plan shows that approximately three-quarters of a million dollars were earmarked to implement these operations and there is a notation indicating that additional funds were to be set aside for congressional blackmail," he said in an opening statement.

"The action taken by the KCIA to implement the plans was aimed at buying support for South Korean President Park Chung Hee's government."

Time limit eased on age bias suits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today gave hope to workers thinking of bringing age discrimination charges against their employers.

The justices by a 4-4 vote upheld a lower court decision which eased the time requirements within which such a lawsuit must be filed.

Because of the tie vote, the action does not set a precedent. It fixes the law only in the 10th U.S. Circuit, from which the case came.

Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah and Wyoming comprise the circuit.

The 1967 Age Discrimination in Employment Act specifies that in many instances notice of private suits must be filed with the Labor Department within 180 days of the alleged illegal act. The purpose is to allow for an out-of-court settlement if possible.

Three other circuits have treated the 180-day provision rigidly and have dismissed all cases where it was not complied with. But the 10th Circuit ruled that the period can be somewhat more elastic if there is some other reason.

Today's case was brought by Ann Dart, a former employee at the Shell Oil Company's credit card center in Tulsa, Okla. She was fired on July 31, 1973, at age 51 after having worked there more than seven years. The company said a reorganization of the department left her without any work but she claimed age was the reason.

The law applies to persons between 40 and 65.

On a lawyer's advice, Ms. Dart immediately got in touch with the Labor Department's Wage and Hour Division, which took a long time at attempting conciliation and later investigating. It was not until the time limit had expired that a division employee in Tulsa discussed her right to sue, Ms. Dart said.

She immediately hired a lawyer and announced her intent to do so.

The 10th Circuit found Ms. Dart not at fault and said the law is "remedial and humanitarian legislation" which should be liberally interpreted to carry out Congress' purpose of ending age discrimination in employment.

Her suit can now go ahead.

The 180-day restriction applies in the 18 states which do not have their own laws on the subject. This group generally encompasses southern and border states, including Oklahoma.

The tie vote came about because Justice Potter Stewart did not participate.

Because of the outcome, the issue will probably come to the court again.

Firearms under gun in Spain

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — As part of its efforts to fight political violence and crime, the Spanish government today introduced strict gun controls, canceling all but 5,300 of the more than 70,000 existing permits to own firearms.

A royal decree on firearms sales and permits was published in the official bulletin only three days after the move.

The move also criminalized the assassination of a provincial police commander in Pamplona in the latest act of political violence.

The separatist organization ETA has claimed responsibility for the slaying. A massive police search for the gunmen appears to have produced no result so far.

In addition to political violence, Spain has also experienced a growing crime wave, with almost daily holdups of banks and offices.

The new controls — aimed at "adapting to the new needs of the socio-economic and political reality of Spain" — were also seen as an attempt to disarm the members of such semi-clandestine right-wing vigilante groups as the "Guardia Franco."

Under the new law Generalissimo Francisco Franco, these groups were issued permits and guns and were supposed to become active in the case of political street unrest.

Power sharing stirs fuss

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Regional control of electric power was agreed upon Monday by the governors of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, but the chief executives disagreed on how to share hydroelectric power.

Govs. Bob Straub of Oregon, Dixy Lee Ray of Washington and John V. Evans of Idaho, meeting as the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission, all supported a Pacific Northwest Utilities Conference Committee power proposal that is currently before Congress.

But Straub said the bill would have to provide for the governor or his representative to serve on the board of directors before the plan would get his full support.

"I feel the governors should not be on the board because this would conflict with their judiciary capacity in taking final action on rate proposals," Gov. Ray said. She said under the committee proposal the governors would have veto power.

Straub also questioned the difference in rates between public and private utilities under the complex system prescribed in the bill. He said his advisors figured the private utility rates would be 70 percent higher than the public utility district rates. He said the difference should be between 20 and 30 percent.

Gordon Culp, reporting to the governors on the committee's progress, however, said the difference would be 30 to 35 percent.

Gov. Evans asked for a greater share of cheap hydroelectric power for his state. "Idaho gets just one out of every three kilowatt hours that we produce. We want more of that public power."

Evans said he was developing legislation to put Idaho in a position to join Oregon in a suit against Bonneville Power Administration for more cheap public power. He said if the utilities committee plan failed, he was prepared to establish a public power agency similar to Oregon's proposed Domestic and Rural Power Authority.

Ray said the more public power Oregon and Idaho obtained, the higher Washington's rates would be. She said "in the absence of regional cooperation I don't think Washington could sit idly by and see our power supply and rates threatened." She implied that Washington, too, might organize its own domestic and rural power authority.

'Old Guard's power erodes

ARKANSAS SEN. JOHN McCLELLAN
... death opens another chairmanship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The death of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., once again signals the steady erosion of power held in the Senate by the South's "Old Guard." Their numbers are dwindling.

Only Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.; John Stennis, D-Miss.; John Sparkman, D-Ala., and Russell Long, D-La., remain of the Dixon line in the 1940s and stayed to virtually rule the Senate.

Some of the other southern senators are well entrenched, and some are powerful. But they lack the years of seniority that mean authority in the Congress.

Eastland, 77, Stennis, 76, and Long, 59, are going strong, but there is every indication that Sparkman, 78, will retire after next year. Eastland recently announced he would seek re-election next year.

McClellan's death and Sparkman's expected retirement rob the southerners of two prized chairmanships — those of the purse-string Appropriations Committee and the prestigious Foreign Relations Committee.

And they will be replaced by two liberal, dovish westerners, Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Magnuson is set to succeed McClellan as head of appropriations and has, in fact, been acting chairman since the 81-year-old Arkansas veteran's health began to fail earlier this year.

Magnuson will be the first non-southern and first liberal to lead what is considered the Senate's foremost committee since the retirement of the late Sen. Carl Albert in 1969. McClellan, who took over in 1971, succeeded the late Sen.

Richard Russell of Georgia.

Considered a Senate power for a long time, Magnuson's elevation to the chairmanship is good news for supporters of domestic programs, especially in the field of health, where he has conscientiously fought for more federal funds.

But the direction of the Appropriations Committee is not expected to undergo marked changes. Most of the drafting of appropriations measures is done by subcommittees, each of which has its own chairman with the full committee making relatively few changes in its product.

McClellan's death could have a greater impact on the Judiciary Committee, where he was second-ranked Democrat and chairman of the subcommittee dealing with anti-crime legislation.

The committee is now evenly split between conservatives and liberals, with Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd considered a swing vote. Democrats can, if they want, move the committee off center by replacing McClellan with a liberal.

The Senate's process of choosing its chairmen by seniority brings about the kind of musical chairs which follows each election, or on the death or retirement of one of the senior members.

When Magnuson becomes appropriations chairman, Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., will replace him as head of the Commerce Committee and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., will move up to become chairman of the Rules Committee to replace Cannon.

The three new chairmanships will have to be approved by the Democratic caucus but that is a "pure" formality. No date has been set for a meeting.

Burns sees no fewer jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board today said he foresees no significant decline in the nation's unemployment rate during the next few years.

Burns also renewed his call for business tax cuts and predicted the administration and Congress will act to dispel confusion within the business community over government economic policy.

In a speech prepared for the American Council of Life Insurance in New York, Burns said he was skeptical that the jobless rate — currently 7 percent — would be reduced even though the administration is planning to stimulate the economy with tax cuts.

"Even with additional momentum imparted to the expansion," he said, "it is doubtful that the unemployment rate will drop over the next few years to a reading that would be commonly regarded as acceptable."

"The reason for skepticism," he said, "is that a formidable array of structural factors is now impeding the smooth functioning of our labor markets.

The most prominent of these factors, Burns said, "is the recent upsurge in the growth of the labor force — a phenomenon dominated by sharply increasing participation of adult women."

Use This Method To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss and grow more hair.

Have you faced the fact that you have a hair loss problem?

Hair loss occurs so gradually that men and women often ignore it. Find it's too late. Even though you see yourself in a mirror every day, many of you won't admit to abnormal hair fall.

If you think, however, that you might be in this category, look at a picture taken a year ago — three years ago. Notice a difference? It's not you, it's the time to stop your hair loss. You could be going bald.

If it appears that you are already losing hair, whatever your daily hair routine is, if you continue to follow it, your hair will probably gradually thin away to nothing. But it doesn't have to happen. Often hair fall is NOT permanent.

Now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for 32 days — at their risk — if they mean that not only stops hair loss, but actually grows hair. And you don't even have to answer their word for it. You can try

Energy package moving slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy conferees made progress on non-tax aspects of the legislation on the first day back after a week-long Thanksgiving holiday, but tax writers took no action.

And several matters which came up Monday may stall work even more this week.

A number of senators were expected to attend the funeral Wednesday of Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., who died Monday. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., rushed back to Washington state Monday after learning that a brother suffered a stroke. And tax conferees plan to take Thursday and Friday off to work on Social Security legislation.

Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., non-tax conferece chairman, said he expected to reach the crucial natural gas section of the bill by Thursday, but his goal could be threatened by the unanticipated events.

During a long session Monday, the non-tax conferees agreed to authorize the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to force a utility to allow two other utility companies to transmit power over its system.

The activity, called "wheeling," could be ordered if it would conserve a significant amount of energy, promote efficient use of electric generation, or improve the reliability of utility systems.

The Senate initially objected to giving the government authority to order such activity, but relented.

The conferees also adopted a provision to encourage utilities to pool power for dispatching from a central facility, and called for a one-year study of such activity. Senate negotiators rejected House language which would have given the FERC power to order the pooling.

Before leaving, Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, warned if the natural gas industry maintains its demand for price deregulation, Congress will not pass any gas legislation this year.

Jackson, who opposes deregulation, he said he expected the House to stand firm in opposition, but said Senate conferees were deadlocked 9-9 on the issue.

"To sum it up on natural gas, the ball is in the industry's court," Jackson said. "If they are going to maintain their position, there is going to be no bill."

If that happens, Jackson said the industry would lose out on both the administration's proposed price ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet, and his own figure of $2.05.

If no bill emerges, prices will stay at their current level of $1.46 per thousand cubic feet.

IRS bows, delays oil tax decision

© Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Bowing to pressure from Big Oil and its political friends, the Internal Revenue Service has delayed indefinitely a ruling that could cost 19 of the largest U.S. oil companies a whopping $7 billion in back taxes.

An investigator for a House subcommittee Monday said the IRS had planned to issue a ruling in early November prohibiting oil companies from claiming a tax credit for certain "taxes" paid to foreign governments. But about the time the controversial move was due, the IRS informed the subcommittee headed by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., that the ruling had been placed on "indefinite hold."

Bedlam marks conference end

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The National Women's Conference wound up in something close to pure bedlam, with the pro-family contingent walking out to the strains of God Bless America and the rest of the ladies, God bless them still chanting it up for the E. R. A.

The three-day clamor produced little in the way of surprises and almost nothing in the way of hard news, but it was an interesting affair nonetheless. It may even have had its useful aspects. Whether the results justified the expenditure of five million dollars in public funds depends upon one's point of view. I would rather have the five million back, but I have seen far more federal money wasted in much worse ways.

The one small surprise came toward the very end, when the delegates voted down a recommended resolution for the creation of a Cabinet-level Women's Department. This was the last of 26 proposals, and the general idea was that without a Women's Department the other 25 might be ignored. As it turned out, the delegates felt that if a Women's Department were created, a Men's Department might be required in the name of Holy Equality, and the thought was unbearable. The ladies shouted the proposition down, the pro-lifers took to their heels, and in a final surge of oratory the conference adjourned sine die.

Otherwise, no surprises. The apprehensive sponsors, fearful that hair might literally be pulled, had fortified the conference rules with some bristling provisions against punching, pouping and performing on the bullhorn, but none of these rules had to be invoked. With only a handful of exceptions, the combatants behaved with remarkable civility. If the opposing forces lusted in their hearts for mutual mayhem, they kept such felonious impulses to themselves.

The 25 approved resolutions had been well publicized over the past two years. Most of them earlier had been approved in most of the state women's conventions. The Houston ratifications thus amounted to little more than pro forma rubber stamps, and indeed this was the stifled cry that arose now and then from the dissident seats: "Rubberstamp! Rubberstamp!"

Proponents dominated the affair by a margin of four or five to one, though the standing vote on the pro-abortion resolution appeared to be a good deal closer. The abortion issue was the most emotional issue, generating even more heat than a resolution on sexual preference. The latter resolution is intended to protect lesbian women against discrimination. For the record, there were plenty of lesbian women in evidence — they conducted a "dyke vigil" Sunday evening — but I saw none of the offensive conduct reported at a few of the state meetings in the past few days.

The official International Women's Year sessions at the Coliseum understandably dominated the news, but the unofficial pro-family rally at the Houston Astro-Arena deserved more coverage than it got. Phyllis Schlafly's troops turned out 15,000 strong in a rally that one speaker said was "just like revival in a black Baptist church." The affair united Catholics who oppose abortion and fundamentalists who oppose any tampering with what they perceive as women's God-given role in the subordination of things.

The pro-family folks impressed me as just as sincere in their convictions as the IWY supporters are sincere in theirs. We saw extremism on both sides. Bella Abzug equated the dissidents with the Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society, and the dissidents equated their foes with lesbianism and free love.

After listening to these ladies for the better part of three days, I left Houston with the heretical thought — a thought that ought to be suppressed — that it was a mistake ever to teach little girls to read. They grew up to be women who read Robert's Rules of Order. They learn to teller "Point of personal privilege" and "Point of parliamentary inquiry" and they can't get a meeting into knots.

The most outstanding women at Houston were Dr. Mildred Jefferson, a Boston surgeon who heads the National Right to Life Committee, and Ms. Anne Santore of Ohio, who chaired most of Sunday's sessions at the Coliseum. Dr. Jefferson is a five-foot package of dynamite, and Ms. Santore, a long-legged militant, man-hating tiger, is the best presiding officer I ever watched in action. If she wanted to make her services available to the president, her qualifications would be such that we could wrap up the business in 24 hours and go home.

Oh boy, $12 million spent on crooks

Looking at the Justice Department's $12 million-a-year alias program, you want to scream and ask for your tax money back.

The program, originally designed to help criminals start a new life after they fink off their fellow crooks, has become a governmental boondoggle.

The multi-million dollar federal program sounds good on paper. The idea of enticing a criminal into tattling can work extremely well since crooks, better than anyone else, know what other criminals are doing.

But the federal program has developed a few quirks over the years, quirks which must be eradicated.

First, there's the problem of the stoolies being given new names and Social Security cards, in short, new identities, and then developing new arrest records.

National reports indicate thugs-turned-stool-pigeons have been involved in kidnaping sprees in Southern California and murder in Missouri.

That kind of recidivism isn't needed.

Second, there's the problem of deputy marshals who give the stoolies secret identities and then turn around and reveal the new identities to mobsters at $5,000 a head.

Though the charge hasn't been documented yet, one marshal goes on trial for embezzlement next month in Grand Rapids, Mich. Four others there connected with the case have already resigned "for reasons of health."

That corruption is just an example of how corruption corrupts, probably a problem for any law enforcement agency. Though Justice seems to be having more than its fair share of that problem...

How to solve the problems in Justice's alias program is the crucial issue.

Already the Justice Department has begun an 18-month investigation of itself in an effort to find out who the crooks are and get rid of them.

Whether Justice should be investigating itself seems a little suspect. But when one considers how they've handled some of the problems, it looks like out-and-out crime.

Consider: National news reports a marshal on the East Coast became involved in the cocaine trade with another marshal (both have resigned). The two marshals enlisted the help of four relocated stoolies in Orange County, Calif.

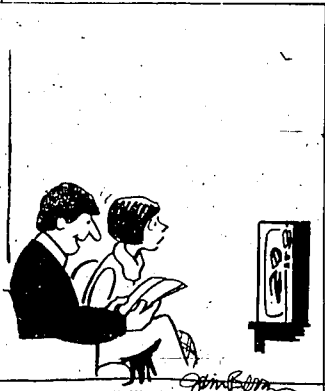

Later the culprits were apprehended, but because one of the marshals finked on his brother, he was put in the alias program and received a new identity.

That type of action shows that more than an in-house investigation is needed, despite the claims of Justice Department officials.

Agency officials insist they are cleaning house as fast as they can and have already beefed up security around alias files, but corruption involves more than just secure files.

And when Arthur Daniels, the program's eleventh director in six years says his real problem is not corruption but a "lack of sufficient trained people," then it may be time to get a 12th director.

Newspapers rival networks for peace

NEW YORK — The editor was angry enough to chew ball bearings, and wonder. We in the print game had looked terribly feeble at diplomacy while the television news crowd was making peace in the Middle East. It had been all Cronkite, Walters and Chancellor when Egypt and Israel were brought together. No editor who loved print could be amused by that.

"I want some diplomatic triumphs," said the editor. "Or else." Cuba would pull all its people out of Africa, and in return the United States would start importing Cuban cigars.

With his usual cunning, Castro began probing for added sweeteners. "How much time are you willing to spend interviewing me on your network?" he asked. I gave it to him straight from the shoulder. There is nothing to be gained from showing weakness with wily negotiators like Castro. "What's more, Howard Cross has offered me five minutes during half-time of Monday's Night Football if I announce the African pull-out exclusively on ABC."

In faraway South Africa Prime Minister Vorster was equally cool to a proposal that I get him together with Andrew Young to discuss abalshah apartheid over barbecued ribs at Back's Flamingo Pit in Hackensack.

"I should get lost eating ribs at Back's when Johnny Carson is offering to let me abolish apartheid on the network right after his monologue," said Vorster. He hung up.

"Nikita," I said, cradling the phone. "I am willing to fly to London..."

"This is not Nikita," he said. "Khrushchev has been dead for years. My name is Brednev."

"What's your first name, pal?" "I can't remember," said Brednev. "You have to remember, our Soviet leaders are not as colorful as we used to be."

"Not to worry, fellow," I said. "My offer stands. I will personally fly to London and meet with you over sherry at El Vino in Fleet Street so we can work out a SALT agreement. In return, I will publish an exclusive interview with you running one column in length." He hung up. I called Gromyko, who said Brednev would prefer to agreement to a SALT treaty with Bert Parks during the talent competition of the Miss America Pageant.

I couldn't get through to Peking. All the lines were busy with representatives of Sesame Street, Lawrence Welk and 60 Minutes who were in a local competition to heal the old rift between China and the Street Union.

Ottawa was easier, but Pierre Trudeau was not. "Are you Donny or Marie?" he asked. "Neither, Pierre. This is the press."

"The press?" he said. "You expect me to settle with the Quebec Separatists in the press when I have an offer from Donny and Marie?"

"Herrro, listen!" "You listen. I want to make it clear to Donny and Marie that there'll be no settlement as long as they insist I work it into a comedy routine." He hung up.

"Winston," I said. "I have got an offer you cannot refuse." "This isn't Churchill," said the voice. "Churchill has been dead for years."

"It is the Prime Minister of Great Britain, however?" "Of course." "What's your first name, Mr. Prime Minister?" "I can't remember," he said. "I can't remember my last name either. You have to remember, we British Prime Ministers are not as colorful as we used to be."

"Never mind," I said. "For sweet music to your ears, how do you like hearing that I can get you together with Bert Lance to put the British energy back on its feet?" "Print journalists?" he asked. "And don't forget, it was print journalism that found Dr. Livingstone I Presume."

"I never heard of a Dr. Presume," he said. "But I have heard of the Captain and Tennille and have already agreed to negotiate with Lance on their show, provided of course they are unable to arrange a meeting between Henry Kissinger and the gang of four, which even I must concede would be socko in the ratings." He hung up.

I phoned the State Department. "Thank God!" cried the voice. "No one has called for weeks." Hung up.

Jordan looks for results of visit

By JAMES M. MARKHAM

AMMAN — Genuinely surprised by the decision of President Anwar El-Sadat to visit Jerusalem, the government of King Hussein has adopted a stance of studied neutrality amid the plentiful invective and thin praise that the Egyptian leader's dramatic initiative has aroused in the Arab world.

"We are in deep silence," a Jordanian official with a broad grin. "His majesty was deeply surprised by the visit, and its dividing effect on the Arabs was not helpful. But at the same time, the negative attitude of some Arab states does not help."

The posture of the Hashemite monarch is dictated by Jordan's special, uncomformable position as the smallest of the three Arab "confrontation" states facing Israel. Praise for the controversial visit comes only under Syria, and possibly turns its wrath on Jordan, turning Syrian propaganda was against what one newspaper here called "the trip of shame."

would run the risk, some Jordanians fear, of driving Egypt toward a separate peace with Israel that would leave both Amman and Damascus exposed.

At the private level, some Jordanians, possibly even Hussein, feel an inkling of satisfaction in the Jerusalem visit. In the past, the king has been accused by other Arabs of having secret contracts with the Israelis, and the Sadat visit, far more dramatic than any clandestine meetings that may have taken place behind that bit of opprobrium from the king.

On Nov. 22, Information Minister Adnan Abul Odeh told a news agency representative that Sadat had "broken the ice and removed the psychological barriers" through the visit and brought "fresh hope" for a reconvened Geneva peace conference on the Middle East. But the minister's remarks were then hastily disowned as official policy, and they have not been repeated.

Moreover, some Jordanians fear that the sudden cleavage in the Arab camp has momentarily lessened the chances of a reconvened Geneva conference that Syria would agree to attend, though there is hope that President Atef Al-Assad will cool the fierce propaganda war being launched by the Damascus press against Sadat.

Premier Mudar Badran hastened to Damascus Tuesday, where he is said to have explained the careful Jordanian posture and urged the Syrians to ease their exhortation attacks on the visit. But, according to official and Western diplomatic informants, Jordan sees a direct linkage between mending the Shiro-Egyptian rift and some tangible Israeli gesture to Sadat after his overture. And so far, none has been forthcoming.

Hussein was on a visit to Oman when the Sadat visit suddenly materialized as a reality, and he returned to Amman just before the Egyptian president's jet touched down in neighboring Jerusalem, just in time to watch the momentous event on Israeli television, which easily reaches Amman, in the premier's office with cabinet members. A government statement issued that evening criticized "action taken by one single party" in the name of the Arab cause but it appealed to other Arab nations "not to go too far in their reaction of the Egyptian initiative and to take into consideration future Arab relations."

The criticism of Sadat's unilateral move was similar in tone to a statement issued the day before by Saudi Arabia, a vital financial backer of Egypt and Jordan.

The next day, the monarch flew off for a holiday in the Red Sea city of Aqaba, while the Muslim feast of Id-al-Adha silenced the capital's newspapers for four days while Jordanians tried to digest the impact of the Sadat venture. "Water skiing is safer than politics these days, quipped one Amman editor, alluding to one of the king's favorite sports. The newspapers, happily were out of business. We did not have to comment on anything.

The outlook, according to a number of informants here, is for a wait-and-see attitude.

Carter trip cancellation seems futile

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY

© 1977 Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — If Jimmy Carter had stuck to his original plan he would have been spending this weekend 8,000 miles away in India.

Instead he is holed up in the nearby mountains of Maryland, taking a long Thanksgiving holiday at the Camp David presidential retreat.

He canceled his nine-nation, four-continent, 11-day foreign marathon — you will remember him tell us — so that he could stay close to the congressional battlefield and personally command the fight for his beleaguered energy program.

Well, it appears now that he might as well have gone on the trip, as haplazarly conceived, and confusingly arranged as it was from the outset.

He might at least have got a look at the Taj Mahal.

And that would seem to be as worthwhile as anything the President is currently accomplishing in connection with the energy program.

Carter stayed home. And Congress took off for Thanksgiving, which was entirely predictable. They won't be back until today, only three days before the President had been due back from abroad.

It appears now that Congress won't get together on an energy program until near Christmas — if then.

But more important, it seems increasingly likely that the whole drive for an energy program this year will end up in fiasco or flimflam, or both.

Whatever does finally emerge from the Senate-House conference now wrestling with the energy legislation is certainly going to be a long, long way from the program. Carter presented to the American people last April as "the moral equivalent of war."

It also certainly is not going to produce the kind of magnitude energy savings then envisioned by the President.

And the White House soon seems less concerned with whether it gets a good energy program or not than with the question of getting something, almost anything, that "it can" people to think is some kind of triumph for the administration.

Carter himself has said the energy program is probably the most important proposal he will ever present and that his success or failure on this score will be a fair measure by which to judge his first year in office.

But the Congress has devoted most of this year to energy. Congressional leaders, House Speaker Tip O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd have almost as much political prestige invested in the outcome as Carter does.

No one wants to come up empty-handed and have to go out and confess to the voters that they have just wasted a year.

So the pressure is on. And more and more it looks like the administration and the President are in retreat, and disorderly retreat at that.

Carter's own Energy Secretary Schlesinger indicated last week that the administration is now willing to give the oil industry higher prices than first proposed and to let natural gas prices soar well above the figure originally set by Carter.

Syria, Jordan tone down blasts

PRIME MINISTER TAKEO FUKUDA reads account of shuffle

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Syria and Jordan have toned down their criticism of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's initiatives for a Middle East peace and radical Arab opposition to him has broken up in disarray.

Arab propaganda attacks on Egypt continued and Syria suspended commercial flights to Cairo because of alleged mistreatment of arriving passengers, but political observers said a softened attitude in Damascus and Amman had eased tensions in the region.

Syrian President Hafez Assad told a news conference he was in "opposition to and non-cooperation with Sadat's dangerous" visit to Israel last week.

But while Damascus and Amman might disagree, Assad said, "Divorce between two brother countries is something else again."

Earlier, Syria suggested that the trip — and Sadat's later call for peace consultations in Cairo — might be the prelude to a separate peace and betrayal of Arab demands for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied lands.

Jordan also acted to defuse Arab anger at Sadat. In a nationwide television address, King Hussein appealed for an end to Arab quarreling and an effort to prevent "legitimate opposition" to the Egyptian president from degenerating into an "Arab boycott."

At the same time, the Jordanian government in effect declared its neutrality in the dispute between Egypt and hard-line Arab countries.

It said Jordan would attend the Cairo talks if all main Arab Middle East parties were there — a virtual impossibility since both Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization have refused to take part.

Jordan also said it would send a team to an anti-Sadat summit in Tripoli, Libya, only if all Arab nations attended — also an impossibility since Egypt will not go.

In a surprise move, Iraq, one of the most violently anti-Israel Arab regimes, in effect turned down the invitation to go to Libya by announcing it was holding its own rival summit in Baghdad "in the coming week."

A government statement made no mention of the Libyan meeting but indicated Iraq would invite the same parties that had been expected to show up there — Libya, Algeria, Syria, South Yemen and the principal Palestinian groups.

It was not clear what sparked Iraq's move, which appeared to destroy chances for the formation of an anti-Sadat alliance, but some diplomats attributed it to the key role its longtime rival Syria played in organizing the Libyan conference.

Firemen's walkout continues

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister James Callaghan met with leaders of Britain's striking firefighters today at their request but the nearly three hours of talks ended with no sign of an end to the 16-day-old strike.

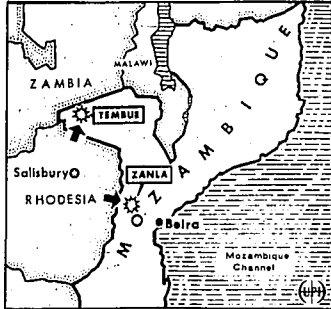

Callaghan told the 16-man executive council of the Fire Brigades Union that their strike could not succeed.

The union's general secretary, Terry Parry, said before the meeting opened the union leaders wanted "to discuss the full situation" and union executive member John Lewis said "the members are insisting that we hold firm on our pay claim."

Home Secretary Merlyn Rees and Employment Secretary Albert Booth also took part in the talks. It was the first time Callaghan had been involved in talks with the firefighters.

Some political sources predicted Callaghan and the union chiefs would try to thrash out a face-saving formula for ending the and first walkout by professional firefighters.

But government officials reiterated Callaghan was determined not to drop his insistence that the government's anti-inflationary 10 percent pay rise ceiling for government employees remain intact.

Attacks buoy Rhodesians

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia's unprecedented air and ground attacks on guerrilla bases inside Mozambique crippled the black insurgency and buoyed the spirits of the nation's embattled white minority, military sources say.

The military command announced Monday that the raids — the most massive operations of the five-year war — killed more than 1,200 rebels in five days last week and destroyed two of their bases.

This would mean more than 20 percent of the guerrilla forces based in Mozambique were wiped out. Authoritative sources put their number at 2,500 trained insurgents and 3,000 under training — a total of 5,500.

The military sources said the latest attacks crippled the black insurgency that has been trying for the last five years to topple the white minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Surplus cut Japan's aim

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda today ordered his newly appointed cabinet to draw up an economic program by next week to avert a trade war with the United States and other trade partners.

But in the first test of Japan's intention to reduce its $17 billion trade surplus, Fukuda ruled out new beef imports from Australia, New Zealand and the United States.

Fukuda drastically reorganized his 11-month-old government Monday and at the first cabinet session today ordered his new ministers to come up with a seven-point plan to reduce Japan's trade surplus, chiefly by importing more foreign goods.

Fukuda set Dec. 6 as the deadline for the new plan.

Japan is under strong pressure from the United States to reduce its exports and import more goods, which the Japanese say would have a disastrous impact on their already slumping domestic economy.

American officials have warned that Congress will take protective action to curb Japanese exports unless Tokyo acts by the end of the year to reduce its trade surplus.

But Fukuda, in his first news conference since the cabinet shakeup, said his government will not liberalize imports of beef because it would be "destructive" to the domestic meat industry.

"We want to bring prices of beef down by attempting to increase demand for domestic beef," he said. "We will not try to reduce beef prices by importing more beef."

Fukuda also said it may be difficult for Japan to achieve the projected growth target of 6.7 percent for fiscal 1977. Many poor countries have been counting on the three "engines" of the world economy — Japan, West Germany and the United States — to spark an economic recovery.

Prior to the news conference, the 72-year-old prime minister instructed his new Agriculture Minister, Ichiro Nakagawa to explore ways of expanding Japan's beef exports and lowering domestic beef prices at the same time.

'Leap' slows down

Daily Telegraph, London MOSCOW — Soviet authorities are applying the brakes to Russia's great leap forward into the age of private motoring.

Although production has more than doubled since the vast Togliatti works started up seven years ago, the plant's general director, Anatoli Zhukov, says no more big increases in passenger car manufacturing capacity are planned.

Despite the recent big boost in output the car shortage by Western standards can best be seen in Togliatti itself.

Bronco fan wins $44.70 suit

DENVER (UPI) — Helen Harris was excited as she and her daughter waited for the bus to Mile High Stadium last Sept. 18. It was her first Denver Bronco game, and she had waited a long time for her season ticket.

The bus never came, and she went home fuming. Mrs. Harris was so angry she filed suit against the Regional Transportation District. Monday she won the suit.

Judge John Sanchez of Denver County Court awarded Mrs. Harris, of Aurora, Colo., $44.70.

Sanchez said he believed Mrs. Harris was entitled to damages because she was forced to watch the Broncos game on television.

"There is a great difference in seeing the game on television and seeing it in person," Sanchez said. The judge also indicated he would have awarded Mrs. Harris more in damages if she had asked for them.

Hospital said her case was unusual but not unique. Injections and pills should help her.

"The more people there are around me, the greater the discomfort," Mrs. Tate said. "I go blotchy, start to itch and feel generally ill. It is ruining my social life."

But the person she feels most sorry for is her husband Steve.

YORK, England (UPI) — Pity Janette Tate. She's allergic to cats, dogs, horses, dust, grass, pollen, feathers and some kinds of flowers. And her husband...

Mrs. Tate, a 21-year-old dressmaker, wheezes and itches during close contact with people. When her husband kisses her, she tends to break out in red blotches around her mouth.

Allergy causes embarrassment

LONDON (UPI) — When the British motor industry decided to give Queen Elizabeth a Silver Jubilee present of a $108,000 Rolls-Royce limousine, it forgot about its own biggest problem — strikes.

And so the Rolls will be represented only by an artist's impression when an exhibition of Silver Jubilee gifts opens Thursday.

Limousine still in workshop

The half-finished limousine is still in the workshop of the Rolls-Royce coachwork division in north London, where a 10-week strike for higher pay was in progress, by 600 skilled workers who outfit the cars with hide upholstery, 18 coats of paint, television sets and cocktail cabinets.

The strike committee has written to the queen apologizing for the delay.

Sadat says he didn't do it

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anwar Sadat says he didn't do it but wouldn't have minded if he had.

The question put to the Egyptian president Monday in a CBS television interview broadcast from Cairo by satellite, was whether he had, as some reports insisted, kissed former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir during his historic visit to Jerusalem earlier this month.

Richard remains 'critical'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Actor Cyril Ritchard, 78, remained in critical condition today, but doctors at Northwestern Memorial Hospital said his vital signs had stabilized.

Ritchard, best known for his role as Captain Hook in the movie "Peter Pan," suffered a heart attack last Friday while narrating a matinee performance of the musical "Side by Side by Southside" here.

He was listed in critical and unstable condition through the weekend, but doctors said his condition improved slightly Monday when his vital signs stabilized.

Attorney paints picture of sick, fearful Hughes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Howard Hughes fell "into a pit of seclusion surrounded by worms called aides" during the last 18 months of his life, a jury was told Monday by the attorney for former Hughes assistant Noah Dietrich.

In opening statements on the first day of a trial to determine if the so-called Mormon will is a fake, attorney Harold Rhoden drew a picture of Hughes as a sick man, beset by fears brought on by a worsening kidney condition.

"When Dietrich left Hughes, he fell into a pit of seclusion surrounded by worms called aides," Rhoden said.

"They were middle-aged errand boys who entered to his every whim, whether it was getting him ice cream, sturing urine or handing him things in a Kleenex."

Rhoden, who said Hughes was dying of kidney disease when he wrote the three-page will in March of 1969, told the jury the three main characters in the trial world by Hughes, former UTA service station attendant Melvin Dummar and a secret Hughes courier LeVere Forsythe. Earlier depositions said that Forsythe, on instructions from Hughes, delivered the Mormon will to Dummar.

The will names Dummar as a one-sixteenth beneficiary to the Hughes empire and names Dietrich as the executor.

Rhoden told the jury how Dietrich, now 89, worked for Hughes from 1925 to 1957, and built the Hughes Tool Co. into a financial empire while Hughes occupied himself with the movie industry and inventions, including the uplift bra for actress Jane Russell.

Rhoden said: "Noah Dietrich negotiated for TWA and RKO stocks. Hughes would give an order to Dietrich and Dietrich sent it down. He (Hughes) made it clear he did not want to be bothered with business."

"He wanted political influence so he bought it, he bribed politicians."

Rhoden said Dietrich set up a dummy Canadian firm through which political bribes were delivered.

"Dietrich knew but he had no part in a $200,000 bribe to President Nixon," said Rhoden.

The jury was told Hughes showed signs of becoming a recluse in the 1950s and low he purchased the Desert Inn Hotel on the Las Vegas Strip in 1966 when management asked him to leave to make room for high rollers.

"He didn't want to go, so when checkout time came, he bought the hotel. This was a lot of fun so he bought more hotels. He began buying up Las Vegas. He bought land and a television station," said Rhoden.

Hughes spent most of his time on the 5th floor of the Desert Inn but did get out of the hotel on occasion, said Rhoden. The jury was told that Brooks Randall, a man on the fringes of entertainment, was used as a double for Hughes on occasion.

"Randall will tell you Hughes' aides wanted him to deliver money for Howard Hughes, which he refused," said Rhoden. The attorney said a man named Jack Henderson will testify that in 1967 he saw Howard Hughes at Carson City at American Flats "wearing a hat and carrying a paper bag."

Rhoden said, Hughes purchased mining properties in that same area seven or eight months later.

Hughes died April 5, 1976 and the Mormon will emerged three weeks later and was delivered to the Nevada District Court by officials of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City.

Morial needs job

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mayor-elect Ernest Morial is looking for work to meet family expenses until he takes office next May.

"I am serious about looking for a job," Morial, who resigned from a state appeals court before the Nov. 12 election, said Monday. "I am looking through the classified ads."

"This is no joke," he said. "My family is living solely off my wife's salary now, and we have tuition notes and other things to take care of."

Morial's wife, Sybil, teaches at Xavier University.

"I did practice law for about 16 years," Morial said, "and I see nothing improper about doing legal work while I am waiting to take office."

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Outspoken atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and liberal abortion law advocate Bill Baird are taking on the Catholic Church in an attempt to stop it from lobbying for strict abortion laws.

In a joint announcement Monday, Mrs. O'Hair and Baird said they wanted Catholics to quit giving money to the church and wanted the public in general to boycott products of Catholic businesses.

"We are declaring economic war against the Roman Catholic Church," said Baird, director of abortion clinics in Boston and Hempstead, N.Y., and a key figure in court fights about women's right to abortion.

Baird and Mrs. O'Hair, head of the American Atheist Center, said they believed the current deadlock in Congress over federally funded abortions for welfare recipients was the work of Catholic lobbyists.

"Who in the heck is the Roman Catholic Church to have the arrogance to say to we Americans, 'We're going to tell you what is right and wrong?'" Baird said.

Mrs. O'Hair said Catholics should turn in empty collection envelopes marked "No money until women have freedom of choice" during Christmas holidays.

Baird and Mrs. O'Hair also suggested abortion advocates boycott Catholic business enterprises such as Christian Brothers' Wine, Monks' Bread and Trappist Jams.

"These are multi-million dollar industries," Baird said. "If we can economically boycott them I think they can put a lot of pressure on the church."

Mrs. O'Hair said the church was attempting to impose its dogma on all Americans because she said Catholic women had disobeyed the Pope's decrees against abortion and most forms of birth control.

"I think the Roman Catholic Church is advertising the fact that it cannot control its own women," she said. "If it could control its own women it would not need to reach out to control all women."

Mrs. O'Hair endorsed Baird's court challenge of a 1974 Massachusetts law that prohibits women under 18 from obtaining abortions without the consent of both parents or a judge.

"I'm afraid we're going to lose," Baird said. "The U.S. Supreme Court has swung drastically to the right."

He said a decision upholding the law would encourage other states to adopt similar measures and lead to deaths of many women forced to obtain illegal abortions.

"Teenagers are not going to quit having abortions," he said. "What you're going to see is teenagers going back to quecks, going back to the people with coathangers and knitting needles."

Student transfer denials cost medical schools aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Medical schools at Yale, Stanford and 13 other universities will lose more than $12 million in federal aid because they refuse to admit American students transferring from foreign medical schools, the government said Monday.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said it has directed another 109 medical schools to accept 564 transfer students in their 1978-79 classes under the 1976 Health Professions Educational Assistance Act.

A department announcement said 15 schools refused to participate in the aid program "or failed to offer satisfactory assurances concerning transfer of U.S. citizen foreign medical students."

Some medical schools have called the law an unwarranted government intrusion into school admissions policies, while transfer applicants caught in the dispute argue the law assured them a place in a U.S. school before they went abroad.

Thirty schools in this year's program will not be required to admit any transfers because they already have enough former foreign students enrolled to meet requirements. The other 29 schools will divide the 564 transfers.

All 109 participating schools will share about $11 million in aid based on total enrollment.

An HEW spokesman said the other 15 schools probably would have received similar aid to their fiscal 1977 totals.

Stanford $41,502; University of California-Davis $618,249; University of California-Irvine $322,151; UCLA $639,091; San Diego University $453,490; San Francisco University $605,832; Yale $452,102; Northwestern University $721,021; University of Chicago $424,743; Iowa's Medical Center $1,553,438; Indiana University $1,320,225; Johns Hopkins University $496,971; Duke University $497,330; Case Western Reserve $635,318; and Baylor $796,124.

Gem court to hear rate increase appeal

BOISE (UPI) — Oral arguments on whether the Idaho Public Utilities Commission overstepped its jurisdiction in granting a partial rate increase requested by the Idaho Power Co. will be heard Thursday by the State Supreme Court.

It's one of 14 cases the court will hear this week and next in Boise.

The IPUIC granted Idaho Power a retail commercial rate increase of $15,414,000 in April 1976, but the company alleged this was $1,686,000 less than the increase needed to insure a fair and reasonable rate of return on its Idaho investment.

Idaho Power argued that assigning $1,686,000 of the needed increase in gross revenues to interstate sources is beyond the jurisdiction of the commission.

Another IPUIC order also will be heard by the court concerning applications by Boise Water Corp. for interim and permanent rate increases.

Boise Water contends the commission improperly disallowed certain operating expenses from a customer accounting and administrative and general accounts and improperly attributed to operating revenue a hypothetical capital gain on a transfer of real property to an affiliated corporation.

In another case, the Supreme Court will hear arguments on an appeal from the Idaho Tax Commission on assessment of tax deficiencies against American Smelting & Refining Co. for 1968, 1969 and 1970.

The mining firm contested the deficiencies in Fourth District Court in Boise, arguing they were based on an improper apportionment to Idaho of the firm's non-business investment income, and the lower court ruled in favor of the company.

Another case scheduled for hearing is the dismissal by Garden Valley School District 71 of superintendent Donald S. Heaney.

The district discharged Heaney several months before his three-year contract was to expire and Heaney sought a court order directing the district to reinstate him. By the time the court was ready to decide Heaney's case, his contract had expired and the court ruled he was not entitled to reinstatement.

Heaney then brought a separate suit seeking damages for the school district's alleged breach of contract. The lower court ruled Heaney should have made his claim for damages part of his earlier action for reinstatement and could not now initiate a separate suit.

On appeal, Heaney asked the high court to overturn the trial court's application of the rule against splitting a single cause of action into more than one suit.

Britons panic at voice from 'outer space'

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — Thousands of Britons were contentedly watching their Saturday night television shows when bleeps interrupted the normal program. The "voice of Asteron" had a message for planet Earth.

Police said they had no idea who — or what — pre-empted the airwaves in southern England, but they warned that the male voice identifying itself as a galactic visitor could wind up in court if he is traced.

Panicky viewers flooded police telephones with calls and police said they had to send a patrol to one elderly woman's home to calm her.

It all began when the independent Southern Television channel was interrupted by a series of bleeps and a man's voice saying:

"This is the voice of Asteron. I am an authorized representative of the intergalactic mission and I have a message for the planet Earth. We are beginning to enter the period of Aquarius and there are many corrections which have to be made by earth people.

"All your weapons of evil must be destroyed. You only have a short time to learn to live together in peace — or leave the galaxy."

One baffled investigator said Sunday, "Clearly the android must have known his onions. I mean, you can't go addressing the air waves unless you have a fair amount of technical knowledge."

A Post Office spokesman said, "Either a transmitter or some kind of link into land lines was used by someone or they managed to get access to the transmitters at Rowbridge or Hannington."

Police said the mysterious broadcast may have been suggested by Orson Welles's broadcast in 1938, which provoked panic across the United States.

Viewer Janet Stewart said "first the sound went funny. Then we heard a man's voice announce, 'This is the voice of Asteron.' My little girl, Donna, was frightened."

Southern television flashed an apology on the screen after the three-minute interruption and said the mysterious broadcast was being investigated.

"We can't imagine how it was done but it appears someone must have managed to transmit a signal over ours," a spokesman said. "The equipment used would need to be fairly sophisticated and expensive."

If arrested and convicted, "Asteron" could get a $360 fine under the Wireless Telegraphy Act.

President's tree

WADING around in new-fallen snow, workmen check for damage after cutting the top 20 feet from a fir tree near Olympia, Wash., that will become President Carter's Christmas tree. Washington State was given the honor of providing the President's tree following national competition among Christmas tree growers. The tree came from a stand about 1 1/2 miles from where the presidential tree was cut in 1972 and is scheduled to go on display in the White House Blue Room early next month.

Development aides return from meet

TWIN FALLS — Tom Flemming, new director of the Region 4 development Association with headquarters here, and William L. Chancey, chairman of the regional advisory board, returned this week from an organizational meeting in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Other development councils and associations in the intermountain west met, Flemming said, with the group divided into a policy-making program for board members and the personnel training program for directors.

He said basically the program consisted of an exchange of ideas between groups with the basic decision being for each organization to prepare personnel programs on an individual basis which would be the most effective in their own area.

The Magic Valley organization, covering seven of the eight area counties, has a staff of five. Some of the directors attending, Flemming said, operate with 75 persons.

Flemming, who took over his duties as regional director only a week ago, coming from Arizona, said the regional staff is currently working to assist with a road improvement project to the Twin Falls City sewage treatment plant in Snake River Canyon and with a canal maintenance project in Lincoln County.

Because of the additional public use of the road into the canyon, there is a need for two-way traffic in the upper narrow section. Construction on the side of the canyon wall will be costly because of the rock.

Lincoln County, experiencing a shortage of funds because of the drought conditions last year, is seeking assistance in improving canals for efficient delivery of available water.

MV 'vet' appointed

BOISE — Gov. John Evans has appointed a Magic Valley veterinarian, Paul Jacobsen of Shoshone, to membership on the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners.

He succeeds Ray M. Thornburg of Burley. Jacobsen was appointed to a four-year term running until Sept. 1, 1981.

Agency to aid Gem consumers

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News Writer

BOISE — For many consumers the only understandable part of rate hearings before Idaho's Public Utilities Commission is the final bill that arrives in the mail. Whether utility rates go up or down, many persons have a difficult time explaining why.

But this may be changing. Sometime in December, Lt. Gov. Bill Murphy will announce a director and three staff members for the proposed Idaho Office of Consumer Services. If the office operates as planned, it will give consumers in Idaho a better explanation of the factors that determine rate cases and utility site selections.

The office will be funded by a one-year federal Department of Energy grant totaling $193,000. Gov. John Evans gave Murphy the job of selecting the staff for the organization shortly after Idaho was notified it had received the grant.

When Idaho applied for the grant in September of this year, Evans argued Idaho was at "a turning point in energy supply and demand and the choices we face must be made by all Idahoans."

Evans stressed the need for public involvement prior to final decision-making in the areas of utility rates and power plant siting. Such consumer involvement in the past, the governor said, has been "sporadic at best," because "the financial resources of individuals and consumer groups to prepare for PUC hearings are woefully inadequate in comparison with the manpower resources of utility companies and industrial representatives."

According to Kirk Hall, director of the state office of energy, who has been assisting Murphy in establishing the new agency, the office will have three roles. The first, Hall said, will be to provide technical information and data to consumer groups involved in cases dealing with utilities. Hall noted the office could be involved in cases in other states, if the final decision there will affect Idaho.

The second role, Hall said, "will be to provide financial support to qualified consumer groups to prepare their own testimony." Finally, if it is felt necessary, the office may, itself, intervene in a case on behalf of consumers.

Hall stressed the purpose of the new office will not be a one-sided attack against any proposed rate increase or site selection.

"What we'll be doing is working for a more intelligent dialogue. As prices go up, people are becoming very skeptical of decisions by the PUC. Part of this is to make sure there is within the PUC a good intelligent exchange."

Hall acknowledged, however, the new office "is probably going to initially benefit consumer groups opposing rate increases who don't now have technical expertise."

And James Bruce, president of Idaho Power Co., pointed out the new office might increase the time — and expense — of PUC hearings. Still, Bruce said he is hopeful the new office "will separate facts from fancy and go into the nitty-gritty and the basics of things."

If the office results in a more knowledgeable discussion between two groups — each aware of facts and technical information — then Bruce said "PUC hearings might be shortened."

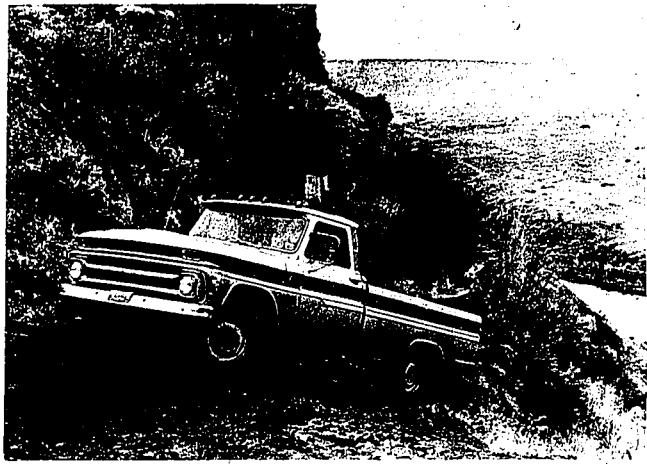

Stuart is willing to see what the new office will do. Bruce added, "I want a strong PUC. I want people who are intelligent and go into basic facts. If we can't prove it, (the need for a rate increase) we shouldn't have it."

Hunters' dilemma

WET BRAKES caused this pickup truck to roll backwards down a grade in Snake River Canyon Monday, bringing an end to a duck-hunting trip. Driver Sheldon Taylor, 18, Jerome, and his brother, Kelly, 14, jumped out when the vehicle began rolling backwards. However, it caught on the embankment and teetered there until a tow truck could remove it this morning.

Fund shortage may cause legal action

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News Writer

SHOSHONE — Another audit is being made of Lincoln County treasurer's office records to obtain admissible evidence for a trial involving the disappearance of $130,000 in county funds, Lincoln County Prosecutor William Stuart said in a written statement Monday.

Stuart said the Lincoln Board of County Commissioners last week authorized a special litigation oriented audit to pin down the time periods and the amounts of funds missing for those periods.

"The annual audit disclosed last month $130,000 in county funds had disappeared between 1975 and the beginning of the new fiscal year Oct. 1, 1977," Stuart said, however, the amount was only a total figure and did not disclose when, how much or why the funds became missing.

The routine annual audit, which led to the disclosure, was intensified after the resignation of county treasurer Myron Johnson Oct. 17, Johnson, who held the post for 36 years, has declined to comment on the fund shortage.

Stuart and county Sheriff Bill Anderson said last week they anticipate charges may be filed in the matter but declined to speculate on what those charges might be.

Tim Qualis, Twin Falls Police department detective captain, who is assisting local law enforcement in the investigation, said his investigation is not complete.

While approving Stuart's request last week for the special audit, the Lincoln County Commissioners authorized Stuart and Anderson to proceed with all legal steps necessary "to finalize the matter involving the $130,000 shortage," the Monday press release stated. Those steps, the commissioners said, included hiring special legal counsel to assist in the case.

Attorney Doug Rose has been appointed to succeed Johnson as treasurer. Stuart earlier said the missing funds were taken from surplus accumulated during the last several years and would not affect the current county budget.

Stuart said he would not speculate on how long it would be before charges could be filed.

Harrah to buy strip

STANLEY, Idaho (UPI) — One of the owners of the Stanley airstrip said Monday Nevada gambling baron William Harrah plans to purchase the strip.

Piero Piva, who owns the airstrip with two brothers, said Harrah is paying around a half million dollars for the 17-acre tract.

Harrah already owns most businesses in Stanley. Piva said Harrah is buying the airstrip because "I was going to close it up if I didn't sell it." He explained he and his brothers were leasing the strip to Stanley for $50 a year, but county taxes now are well over $1,000 a year.

The airstrip deal is expected to be closed Dec. 15 after some nearby land Harrah intends to buy from Piva is annexed to Stanley, Piva said.

Bridge status eyed

HAILEY, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho Highway Administrator Dean Tisdale says a dangerous steel bridge over the Big Wood River south of Ketchum probably could be replaced with state funds, but not until 1982.

Tisdale told Blaine County officials Monday the other alternative is federal funding which would require construction of a four-lane highway or purchasing rights-of-way for four lanes.

Residents of the area have opposed a four-lane highway from Timmerman Hill south of Bellevue to Sun Valley.

Tisdale said the Idaho Transportation Board would consider the state-funded bridge only "if there is an expression of support from the community."

Lloyd Barron, Fairfield, a Transportation Board member, told the gathering, "You're either going to have cars bumper to bumper or have a four-lane highway eventually anyway."

"I would like to see it done at this time so we can get some reasonable planning done in that area," Barron said. "I think the people in that area would rather see free-flowing traffic in there than the congestion in there now."

Teenagers injured

MURTAUGH — Six Magic Valley teenagers were treated for cuts and bruises after the vehicle in which they were riding left Artesian Road about one-half mile south of here late Saturday.

Sheriff's officers said Ray William Kirkland, 17, driver of the vehicle, was traveling north on Artesian Road when the car left the pavement on the east side of the road. Officers reported he apparently overcorrected, sending the car into the west side borrowpit. It rolled over and came to rest in the ditch facing south. The accident occurred about 8:25 p.m.

Passengers in the vehicle included Bobbie Kirkland, 16; Mike Lewis, 16; Steven Jensen, 17; and Bill Rice, 17; all Murtaugh, and Lori Matson, 15, Hazelton.

Cities to push for local option tax bill

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News Writer

KETCHUM — The Association of Idaho Cities (AIC) plans to lobby for a local option tax bill in the 1978 Idaho Legislature and Magic Valley Legislators may be the key to the bill's success or failure.

Floyd Decker, Director of the AIC, swung through Ketchum and Sun Valley Monday on a statewide tour to present the AIC's tentative 1978 legislative proposals.

At the top of the list is a property tax relief bill which would provide city and county governments access to a major new source of local non-property tax revenue as an alternative to local property taxes, if local voters approve the tax.

Riding along with this "Property Tax Relief Act of 1978" are also two other local option taxes in the form of a hotel-motel room occupancy tax and a liquor-by-the-drink tax.

The Wood River Valley community has long been in favor of a local community tax option but for the AIC's local option proposals to pass through January's legislature Decker said they will need the support of Magic Valley legislators.

Local option bills failed in 1974, 1975 and 1976 in the Senate floor after narrowly passing in the House. The AIC did not introduce local option bill last year.

Legislators of Districts 21, which includes Blaine County, have "always supported the concept" Decker reportedly said Monday of the local option proposal.

But key legislators in the Twin Falls, Wendell, Gooding, and Burley areas have generally remained opposed to local option bills, the AIC director said.

Ketchum Mayor Jerry Steffert, a staunch supporter of the local option proposal, set the task of Wood River Valley citizens and officials will be to work with all legislative districts to make sure they understand the local option bill.

Ketchum city administrator Jim Jaquet, said a local option sales tax would benefit any Idaho city by providing flexibility in the local tax base. Jaquet said a sales tax would keep even pace with a community's growth, while property taxes cannot do this and so individual property owners are often burdened by soaring property taxes.

In Sun Valley alone, Decker estimated a local sales tax could wipe out property taxes in the first year of collection and in Ketchum, he said the property taxes could be reduced 60 to 70 percent.

The AIC hotel-motel tax proposal would give communities the option to collect a special room occupancy tax not to exceed 3 percent and the revenues would be used to support recreation and cultural facilities.

The proposed liquor-by-the-drink tax would give communities the option to collect a special tax not to exceed 3 percent of the retail by-the-drink price. The revenues would be used to support local law enforcement.

Two climbers still missing

MOUNT BORAH — Search and rescue teams have been combing the faces of Mt. Borah, Idaho's highest peak, since Sunday when two Idaho Falls mountaineers failed to return from an expedition to the top of the 12,662-foot mountain.

Von Howard, 22, and a 21-year-old friend named Chapman, set out Thanksgiving Day to scale the upper summit of Mt. Borah, 20 miles north of Mackay, according to the Custer County sheriff's office.

The two young climbers were to return Friday but never came back. Sandy James, a secretary in the sheriff's office said. Concerned relatives of the two men called the sheriff's office Saturday night to report they had not yet returned home. A search and rescue squad found the climbers' vehicle Sunday on an axis road at the base of the mountain, James said.

Men from the sheriff's office and Custer County search and rescue have combed the mountain fields on Borah for two days now, while a search plane and helicopter surveyed the mountain from the air, but no sign of the two men or their base camp has been discovered, the sheriff's secretary reported.

James said it was snowing Thursday night after the two men set out and search and rescue squads have been turned back by heavy snows Sunday and slick ice fields from reaching Mt. Borah's peak.

The search was continuing today and a special mountain rescue team from Boise was being flown in to aid search and rescue crews, James said.

TF council approves truck routes

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The City Council Monday took steps to make it easier for trucks to get around Twin Falls, for bikes to get through Twin Falls, and for residents in the neighborhood of McDonald's to find a parking place.

After receiving unofficial approval from the Traffic and Safety Commission, (unofficial because the commission could not muster a quorum at its last meeting, held at the height of the recent snow storm), the council instructed City Attorney Charles Brumback to draft a resolution designating a route for overlength vehicles (75 to 105 feet) through the city.

Overlength vehicles entering the city from the north will be required to follow Blue Lakes Boulevard to Seventh Street east of Kimberly Road. Vehicles exiting Town to the west will follow Fourth Avenue West to Blake Street to Addison Avenue West.

The city also confirmed their intention to encourage the state highway department to improve the intersection of Blue Lakes North and Pole Line Road to make it possible for overlength trucks to make a right turn there off of Blue Lakes.

Coupled with the impending improvement of the West Five Points intersection and the city construction on Washington Street, improvement of the Blue Lakes-Pole Line corner would reduce truck traffic on Blue Lakes.

To achieve a further reduction of truck traffic on Blue Lakes, the council decided to ask the state to upgrade the intersection of Pole Line Road and Eastland Drive plus portions of both these roads to allow trucks to follow those roads around the city to destinations in the southeast section of the city.

The council noted, however, the budget for the state highway department for 1978 has already been adopted, so work not already planned and budgeted will have to wait until at least 1979.

The council also gave final approval to the city's bike route and gave City Engineer Gary Young the go-ahead to complete signing along the route.

In addition, the council approved the construction of an all-weather bike path from Madrona Road to Piler Avenue on the east side of the high school.

The council also discussed complaints from residents in the neighborhood of McDonald's Drive-In on Blue Lakes. Residents complained McDonald's employees are monopolizing available parking in the area.

City Manager Jean Milar told the council he intended McDonald's owner Bill Kyle that one of the conditions of the permit the city gave McDonald's for a drive-in window was that parking be provided for employees.

Milar said Kyle told him he had arranged for parking for his employees in the parking lot of the Episcopal Church one-half block down Blue Lakes near the County Seat Clothing Store. Kyle said his employees had been told they could park there any day except Sunday, and he did not think there would be any parking problem on Sundays because his work force is at its lowest then.

Kyle said, however, that he could not force his employees to park in the lot, but he promised Milar he would make an effort to inform his employees of the problem and encourage them to use the lot.

Man's electrocution brings $372,000 suit

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HALLEY — The parents of a young man electrocuted by a high voltage power line last May have filed a more than $372,000 damage suit against Idaho Power Co. in connection with their son's accident.

The life of Allan Lee Patterson, a 20-year-old Sun Valley downhill skier expected to be named to the U.S. Ski Team this year, was cut short when he came in contact with the high tension electrical line near the Russian John Ranger Station north of Ketchikan.

Patterson and two other Forest Service employees were cutting trees when they came upon a low hanging electrical wire which reportedly had fallen from a cross arm on a pole.

In the lawsuit, the parents charge Patterson, riding in the back of a Forest Service truck, was electrocuted by a high tension electrical wire which hung unsafely near the ground.

The parents, Ramon S. Patterson and Floyd P. Patterson, who works for Idaho Power, charge the power company negligently failed to inspect the line to insure would not be dangerously close to the ground for a "substantial period of time," and for failing to warn persons working near the line that the wire was carrying a high voltage current.

The young skier's parents have demanded a jury trial and asked the court to award them $2,200 for special damages, $350,000 for general damages, $20,000 for punitive damages and also attorney fees.

Snow hampers rescue efforts

By United Press International
Snow blizzards in New York hampered rescue efforts for 14 college students on a Vermont mountain, while Californians returned to swimming pools and beaches to enjoy a return of summery weather.

The National Weather Service had predicted snow flurries Monday, but the snow band picked up moisture as it passed over Lake Erie and dumped more than three inches of powder over Buffalo, N.Y., bringing snow accumulations to six inches. One year ago today, Buffalo was hit by a snowstorm that dumped 28 inches of snow on the city in three days.

Albany, N.Y., received almost three inches of new snow and Malone, N.Y., reported six inches Monday.

The 18 inches of snow that has fallen since Saturday hampered rescue efforts at Jay Peak in northern Vermont, where St. Dawson College students have fallen to return from a hike begun Friday. State police planned to use a spotter plane today to help coordinate efforts of those on the ground. The names of the students have been withheld.

Officials said the students had camping equipment, food and medical supplies and were led by an experienced hiker.

"I have had survival training," said Don Hall, student activities director at the Montreal school. "We assume that they did the right thing and decided to hole up waiting for the snow to let up."

About 50 miles south of Jay Peak, scoters found the body of teen-age hunter, Michael Smyth, 16, Rutland, Vt., Monday night. Authorities said Smyth was last seen Saturday, walking away from a deer camp at the Green Mountain National Park.

Weather conditions also were tied to the deaths of two Indiana residents Monday in a head-on collision and to the death of a Chicago-area man, who suffered a heart attack while shoveling snow.

The cold weather also froze water pipes at the state Capitol in St. Paul, plunging every toilet in the building.

Bridger unaffected by strike

BOISE (UPI) — The Jim Bridger coal-fired generating plant owned by Idaho Power Co. will not be affected by an upcoming coal strike, according to Bob Brown, a spokesman for the firm.

President Arnold Miller has called a Dec. 6 strike "inevitable."

Controversial Gem ag building goes to bid

BOISE (UPI) — The state's $1.5 million Agriculture Administration Building in Boise goes to bid Tuesday amid angry opposition to the 10 percent minority business enterprise rule required for federal funding.

The requirement forces contractors on federally-funded projects to involve 10 percent of the grant money with minority businesses, either by subcontracting, supply purchases, or other means. The agriculture building will be 100 percent federally-funded.

It is a requirement, though, that has been particularly opposed by contractors, not the least of whom is Walter Opp of Walter Opp Construction Co., Nampa.

"My big objection is that all the responsibility hinges on the general contractor," Opp said.

"We have to finance them (the minority enterprise), we have to get them bonded, we have to supervise them, and train them. It's vicious. And the low bidder doesn't necessarily get the job. It's the biggest ripoff I've ever seen."

Opp said the difficulty is finding a minority contractor qualified and large enough to handle a project the size of the agriculture administration building.

There have been some 40 planholders on the project but Opp noted his in because of the risk he believes is involved.

"We shouldn't have to give inexperienced people work. But this rule says we have to. I'm not against minorities but this seems like a political payoff to them."

Ken Hall, state public works director, said the rule was devised as a means to get minority businesses financially back on their feet.

FBI post nominee pulls out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alabama federal judge Frank Johnson said today he will ask President Carter to withdraw his nomination as FBI director because of health reasons, Attorney General Griffin Bell announced.

Bell held a news conference after talking long distance with Johnson, who underwent successful surgery Aug. 26 for a ballooned abdominal artery. But the 58-year-old U.S. district judge has developed complications from abdominal hernia.

"Judge Frank M. Johnson this morning informed me that he will write to President Carter and ask that his nomination as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation be withdrawn," Bell said.

"The reason for his withdrawal is impaired health and a recovery that is not proceeding at the rate expected by Judge Johnson and his doctor," the attorney general said.

"For me, this is, of course, a most unfortunate turn of events. It is also unfortunate for the president, for the FBI and the nation."

Bell said he would not make any decision for, at least two weeks on what to do about another successor to FBI Director Clarence Kelley, who retires next Jan. 1.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened lower Tuesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues. The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 4.84 points Monday, was off 0.43 point to 839.23 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 166 to 92, among the 436 issues crossing the tape.

The government's report of a record $3.1 billion October trade deficit was the chief reason for Monday's setback. Investors so far have ignored Commerce Department statements that the figures were distorted by a two-month-old American dockworkers strike.

Some traders were encouraged the dollar, which has been under attack on foreign exchange markets, rebounded a bit early in the day. The dollar's slide puts pressure on the Federal Reserve Board to take restrictive measures.

Investors remained concerned by reports that Abu Dhabi would reduce oil production in 1978. Iranian members reportedly want to back an oil-price hike for two years. OPEC meets later this month in Venezuela. A Venezuelan spokesman said he thought prices would be raised 5 percent.

BARBS

By PHIL PASTORET. We don't know where the week went to, but we sure don't want to go and find it again.

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. (CHICAGO) - Slosser marked trading in grain and cattle futures Monday. The pork complex was strong, although potatoes were steady to lower. The May delivery of Western russet potatoes was unchanged at 7.12 per hundredweight. Commodity News Service said Maine potatoes were generally lower with a sell off at the close. An advance to 4.78 cwt. basis May came early, then prices held near that level until falling at the close with May dropping to a contract low of 4.65. Nearly months settled on the lows at 1 to 7 cents lower. November settled 2 cents higher on a turnover of 5 cars which included an average of 1,202 cars accounted for the bulk of 1,306 cars traded. Live cattle ended 35 to 7 points below with ideas of a break in dressed beef prices and the prospect of an over-bought market settled prices lower. Volume was 8,574 contracts traded. Feeder cattle ended 25 points lower to unchanged after a higher opening. Volume was 445 contracts. Live hogs finished mostly higher, 10 to 5 points up in nearby and midland months. The most distant months unchanged to 10 points lower. Volume was 5,212. Pork bellies (finished in the plus column, 15 to 5 points up, despite selling pressure which lasted until covers closed short positions.

Volume was 5,624. Wheat came in after the opening, finishing 7 to 6 cents lower and wiping out Friday gains. The break was caused speculative pressure in the oil pit, but prices ended 35 points down to unchanged. New York Sugar 11 barely broke the 2,000 lot mark in.

SINCLAIR & CO. Inc.

By liquidation ahead of December delivery notices and another denial of sales to mainland China. Corn speculators turned sellers after soybeans backed off and hedge selling materialized, and the corn pit ended with prices 2 to 3 1/2 cents lower. An early wave of soybean buying was followed by a slow decline until a wave of late selling fell prices down 19 1/2 to 12 1/2 cents. January suffered the greatest loss, ending 5.975, only 1/2 cent over the day's low. Meat hit the lows at the close on local selling, finishing 8.60 to 5.20 lower. Heavy demand from the merchandisers lusted some volume, as appetitive trading kept prices in a point range for the day. The close was mixed, off 9 points in nearby to up 4 in distants. Chicago Board of Trade silver skidded in late session, ending 10 1/2 cents lower in gold, and ended 280 to 190 points. December fell 800 points below the day's highs before closing, at 4,720, down 280 points. International Monetary Market gold closed 60 to 100 points higher after early gains were more than halved. Volume was heavy, at 7,757 contracts. Profit taking by short sellers and related improvement in the dollar brought the decline.

WRONGFULLY CONVICTED.

Q. "How many people in this country have been executed for murder before later evidence proved them innocent?"

A. At least eight. They were among 75 documented cases of wrongful conviction for criminal homicide in the past 100 years. Authority for this is Professor Hugo Bedau who's made a study of capital punishment.

Q. "Is there any point on the Fahrenheit and Celsius thermometers where the temperature numbers coincide?"

A. Only one. At 40 degrees below zero.

Q. "What's the most popular new car color now?"

A. Blue. With white second. Then silver.

PROPER JOB CLUB

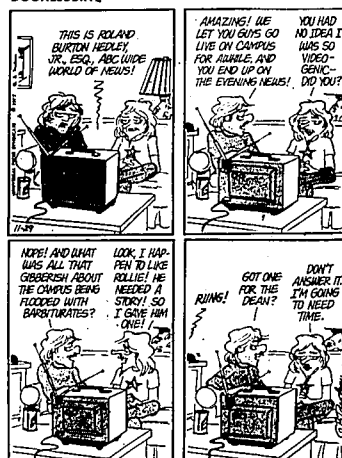

What qualifies archaeologist Iris Cornelia Love for membership in the Proper Job Club is the fact that she seven years ago discovered the whereabouts of the long lost statue of the goddess Aphrodite. She'd put in a lot of time around the Mediterranean diggings in search of it, but that's not where she found Praxiteles' masterpiece. In the basement of the British Museum in London is where.

CSI hosts first major invitational tourney

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho's first major invitational tournament — the K and T Steel Invitational — opens at the Golden Eagle gymnasium Thursday and will run through 12 games and three days of top junior college action.

The three-day event brings together three teams that have consistently ranked well in the NCAA wars — CSI, Casper and Snow College — plus some newcomers to Twin Falls, like Skagit Valley and Wenatchee of Washington and Sheridan junior college.

The event is sponsored by K and T Steel which has provided sufficient funds to help defray the travel expenses of the teams. The college through its cafeteria, will further help the visitors by providing some meals.

Overall, the three-day event figures to be perhaps the prime early season feature in the Golden Eagles' 11-year history. Action opens at 2 p.m. Thursday with Sheridan taking on Treasure Valley Community College of Ontario. The 4 p.m. game figures to be the feature of the first-round with Casper College taking on Snow.

In the night session, Skagit Valley will meet Eastern Utah at 7 p.m. with CSI going against Wenatchee in the midnight.

The teams will maintain the same afternoon-evening format on Friday with the two losers playing at 2 p.m., and the upper bracket semi-finals going at 4 p.m. The evening session will be losers-losers and winners-winners at 7 and 9 p.m.

The championship will come at 9 p.m. Saturday.

CSI, being the home team, would have to rank as the favorite. Although the season is still very young, the Eagles have some comparative scores available.

Coach Mike Mitchell's crew defeated Western Wyoming in its road opener at Rock Springs and Snow followed up later in the week by beating the Spartans by 17.

Casper, with that miracle comeback Saturday night, nipped the Eagles by two points to claim its own T-Bird championship for the seventh time in eight years.

None of which gives a clear picture to the overall tournament, only an indication toward the finals.

The Eagles probably will have to go without Chicago freshman Curtis Rayford and they can ill afford the loss of the diminutive floor general who shot over 70 percent in last week's Wyoming tour.

The youngster believes he re-fractured a bone in his foot, a recurrence of a senior mishap. Whether he did or not wasn't known Monday but Rayford walked only with considerable pain.

Perhaps helping to ease the sting of Rayford's loss is the possibility that Arco freshman Chris Barter may be available. Barter has failed to see any action in CSI's benefit games or first four regular season battles due to a knee injury.

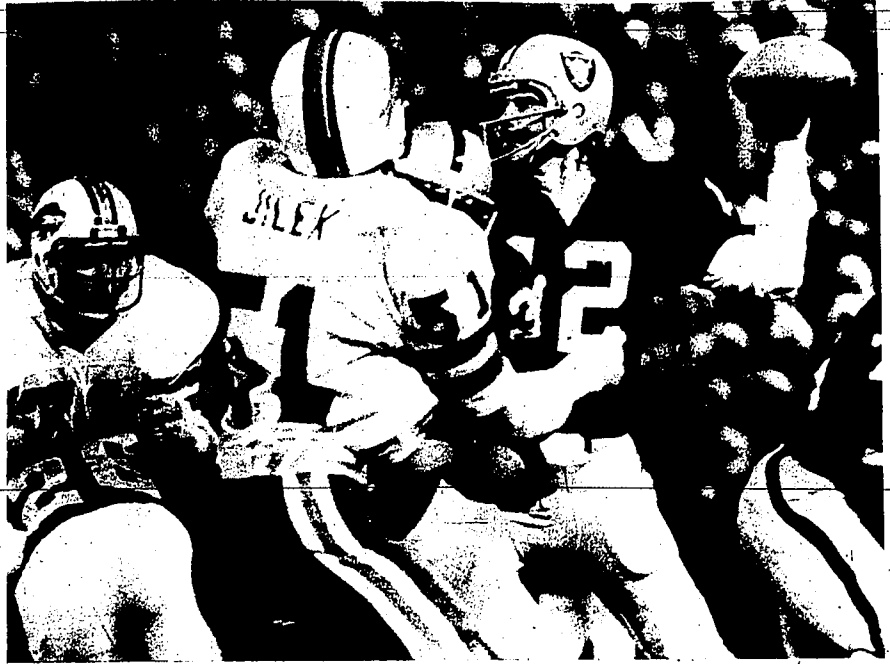

The upshot of that could be the insertion of 6-8 Denver product Kenny Justice into the starting lineup with leading scorer Jerry Williams becoming more of a guard. Fresno transfer David Ferguson doubtless will assume the point position.

Coach Mitchell's Golden Eagles will take a 4-1 record into the fray, a mark that could easily have been 5-0. However, he expressed considerable satisfaction with his team.

"We felt that we could come out of that Wyoming swing 2-2 or worse, and we were aimed for a 5-6 showing," he said. "I felt that our team showed a lot of improvement in each of the games and in that loss to Casper, a lot of courage and poise for a bunch of freshmen."

"Right now we're looking for some practice time to get our stuff together again and work on the things that need it," he continued.

However, there won't be much of that as the Eagles remain in action Monday night, hosting Western Wyoming in a return match. Over the next eight days, some of that practice time will become available with a lone game with Columbia Basin of Pasco, Wash., hitting in the middle.

OAKLAND Raider quarterback Ken Stabler played against the Buffalo Bills Monday night despite a knee injury he sustained last week and guided the Raiders to a 34-13 rout with three touchdown passes. On this play, under heavy pressure, Stabler hit Clarence Davis with a 38-yard pass and then was creamed by Bills' defensive end Ben Williams.

Sore Snake still cool

Stabler's 3 TD's rout Buffalo

OAKLAND (UPI) — A gimpy-kneed Ken Stabler, a doubleheader at game time, passed for three touchdowns and Mark van Eeghan ran for 144 yards Monday night in leading the Oakland Raiders to a 34-13 rout over the Buffalo Bills.

Stabler, who strained a knee last week and almost didn't start, threw 28 and 12 yards to Cliff Branch and 44 to Fred Biletnikoff and left early in the fourth quarter.

Van Eeghan, with his 144-yard effort, ran his season total to 1,012 yards and became the first player in Raider history to achieve two 1,000-yard seasons. The big running back churned out all the key yardage and left it to Pete Banaszak to crack over from the one yard to account for the other two Raider touchdowns.

The victory gave the Raiders a 9-2 record, moved them to within a game of Denver in the AFC West and gave them a one-game lead over Miami in the conference race for the wild card berth to the playoffs.

The 15-point underdog Bills made a game of it in the first half when they trailed by only 10 points at 20-10, and closed to within a touchdown on Carson Long's second field goal to start the second half.

But then Stabler, who finished the game with seven completions in 12 attempts for 166 yards, quickly connected with Branch for the second time and Banaszak closed a short drive following a fumble recovery to put the game away.

The Buffalo points came on a 29-yard pass from Joe Ferguson to John Kimbrough and a 40- and 33-yard field goals by Long.

The Raiders scored the first time they had the ball, marching 80 yards in six plays with Stabler throwing to Branch for a 64 lead. Erroll Mann missed the conversion, his first fuff of the season after 28 consecutive PATs.

Long booted his first field goal to finish a long Buffalo drive to put the Bills within three, but Stabler followed with his bomb to Biletnikoff — the 44-yard throw was his longest scoring pass of the season — and the Raiders built their lead to 13-3.

After Ray Guy, kicking from his own end zone, got the ball out only to the 40, the Bills scored in six plays early in the second quarter to trail by 13-10, only to have Banaszak score his first touchdown after Van Eeghan had run 43 yards in four plays.

Long booted his second field goal after defensive end Ben Williams recovered a fumble by Stabler and the Bills seemingly were back in the game. But Branch and Van Eeghan took charge and before the third quarter was over, the Raiders had their final margin of victory. Mike Rae, who almost started the game at quarterback in Stabler's place, ran the Oakland offense in the fourth period when the teams exchanged a pair of turnovers but neither side scored.

Texas finished season on top

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Texas completed its regular-season schedule as the nation's only unbeaten major college football team this past weekend and was duly retained Monday as the No. 1 club by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The last rankings will be issued after the Jan. 2 bowl games.

Texas raised its record to 11-0 with its 57-28 drubbing of Southwest Conference foe Texas A&M Saturday and earned a Cotton Bowl berth as the SWC champion. There, the Longhorns will face off against the country's top-rated independent, Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish, idle at 9-1 but with a final regular-season game against Miami of Florida on Dec. 3, retained fifth place and could move up significantly with an upset of the Longhorns Jan. 2.

Texas pulled down 36 of the 41 first-place votes cast and a total of 465 points. Notre Dame received one of the five dissenting No. 1 votes and 245 points. Oklahoma and Alabama held second and third, respectively, but the Sooners widened their lead over the Crimson Tide for the runnerup slot from three points last week to 28 this week, 350-321. The top 10 Michigan, which had finished its non-bowl schedule at 10-1, and Arkansas, which edged Texas Tech 17-14 to also be 10-1, continued in fourth and sixth places with 287 and 183 points, respectively.

Penn State, a 15-13 winner over Pittsburgh thanks to a missed two-point Panther conversion, jumped over Ohio State to seventh, with the Buckeyes dropping to eighth, 158-141. The Nittany Lions closed at 10-1, while the Buckeyes ended at 9-2.

Two other matchups in the top eight are set for Jan. 2. Oklahoma will meet Arkansas in the Orange Bowl and Alabama and Ohio State clash in the Sugar Bowl. Also, Michigan takes on Washington, which moved into a three-way tie for 14th, in the Rose Bowl and Penn State battles Arizona State, now ranked 12th, in the Fiesta Bowl Christmas Day, Dec. 25.

Pittsburgh fell to 8-2-1 and 52 points with its loss to the Nittany Lions, but held ninth place. The Panthers' final game is in the Gator Bowl Dec. 30 with Clemson, which leaped from 14th to 10th with 23 points despite having finished its season the week before, also at 8-2-1.

The second 10, in order, with record and bowl destination (if any) in parentheses, are: North Carolina (8-2-1, Liberty); Arizona State (9-2, Fiesta); Nebraska (8-3, Liberty); Iowa State (8-3, Peach); Washington (7-4, Rose) and Brigham Young (9-2), all three tied for 14th; North Texas State (9-2); San Diego State (9-1) and Texas A&M (7-3, Bluebonnet), both tied for 18th and each with a regular-season game remaining Dec. 3; and Southern California (7-4, Bluebonnet).

Two other matchups in the top eight are set for Jan. 2. Oklahoma will meet Arkansas in the Orange Bowl

Norton stalks Ali

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight contender Ken Norton leaves Tuesday night for Madrid, Spain, where he will seek confirmation of another title shot at champion Muhammad Ali during the five-day World Boxing Council convention.

Another boxing personality, promoter Don King, left Monday for the Nov. 29-Dec. 3 WBC annual meetings.

King is protecting his interests in negotiating for a return All-Norton fight. All beat Norton in a controversial 15-rounder on Sept. 28, 1976. Norton owns one of the two victories ever accomplished over Ali, breaking the champion's jaw in an earlier non-title fight.

In an open letter to the WBC, Norton's manager, Robert Biron, pleaded his case for the return match. Biron said All promised to meet the winner of a Ken Norton-Jimmy Young elimination bout and cited that All repeated this in private to WBC President Jose Sulaiman. Norton beat Young in a 15-rounder at Las Vegas earlier this month and King immediately stated he would offer All $8 million to meet Norton for the fourth time.

within boxing who would destroy the credibility of the sport by preventing this from happening. They would go to any lengths to further their own greed by working against the rules of boxing. No man is bigger than the sport he represents and that goes for Mr. Ali."

Biron said that to do anything less than All has agreed would make a laughing stock out of the WBC and a sham of the sport.

"Ken Norton has lived up to his every commitment," Biron emphasized. "If you recall, All had first said he would meet the Norton-Duane Bobbick winner. The wrong man won and All went off on a Norton-Young tangent. It's time that some order be brought to our sport. Ken Norton has paid his dues."

Biron said he hoped the WBC would stand up for its own ideal and cited the case of the Nevada Athletic Commission, which said "if All didn't sign to meet the Norton-Young winner by a Jan. 5 deadline, All's title would be vacated and the winner of the Norton-Young elimination being declared the winner."

Norton's manager said he would use every legal means to see that his fighter gets his chance at the world title.

Boosters plan tourney

TWIN FALLS — All Golden Eagle Boosters are asked to meet at 8 p.m. today at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Booster president Hank Woodall said plans for this week-end's K and T Steel invitational will be finalized.

Nets release Bubbles

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — The New Jersey Nets announced Monday that Bubbles Hawkins, who became the star of the NBA club last season after the departure of Julius Erving, and the loss of Tony Archibald to an injury, was given his outright release.

To replace the third-year pro, the Nets reactivated Jan Van Breda Kolff from the injured reserve list.

Hawkins, 33, had had several conflicts with Nets coach Rudy Lausery and was made expendable by the recent good play of Bob Carrington. Hawkins averaged 10.5 points per game for 15 games, including two 25-point contests.

Cowboy singing blues over Angels

After 30 years of getting the girl, killing off all the bad guys, and riding off into the sunset singing, "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine," Gene Autry, in 1960, founded the then Los Angeles Angels. And right away, he knew what the rustlers felt like.

The Angels lost more often than the guys in the black hats. They were an Italian movie. Everyone got killed in the end.

Gene was shocked. Every place he looked, there were Italians. Things like the cover would have happened in the old days at Monogram and Republic. The wags got busy. Autry's horse in the old days was "Champion," they snickered. If he made a comeback, his horse would be named "Cellar."

GENE AUTRY

to the ball in time to throw anywhere. Jerry Lewis drooled at some of the routines the Angels' inflected perfectly.

So Autry looked over at George Steinbrenner, the Yankee, who was busy buying an annual pennant on his Diners card, so to speak, and Gene thought, "I can play that game."

Financially, Gene could. The owner of hotels, radio stations, rodeos, and a half-dozen music companies, Autry could have bought the entire American League on the annual proceeds from the royalties of "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" alone.

So Gene bought the "on paper" championship of the world. Every available .300 hitter or 20-game pitcher got into him for a year. But the team kept getting hit or fouled — or benched. In other words, they turned into Angels. You had a picture of Autry running out on the field periodically yelling, "Cut! Cut! Now, just a minute, everybody, this is a Take! Be serious! Somebody put a little makeup on Ryan here. Now, Nolan, we're way over budget. Get this one in there!"

The Angels ended up, as usual, surrounded — a remake of "Beau Geste" instead of "Big Sky." They had arrows sticking out of them all over. Autry began looking at Dallas the way he used to look at the sheriffs who weren't getting the job done. "Marshal, how come you haven't brought in that Billy the Kid yet? Why, women aren't safe in this town!"

The Old Cowboy finally brought in a new man to the territory. Buzz Yavast, a man who had built the old Dodgers' dynasty — in other words a man who had cleaned up Dodge City. Tombstone now had two Wyatt Earps.

Dalton got the message and went clear to Milwaukee before he stopped. Buzzie got the star on his chest. The territory was now his, lawlessness and all.

Will this new lawman survive the shootout at O.K. Corral? Or will the Clantons, win this one — again? Can the cavalry get there in time? Or will they arrive with back spasms, and pulled hamstring, and broken hands, and an inability to hit the curve as usual? Will Yavast run the rustlers out? Will the Cowboy get one more happy ending before he goes to that Big-Bunkhouse-in-the-Sky?

Many years ago — 50, in fact — when he was a telegrapher for the railroad in Sapulpa, Okla., Gene Autry was playing his guitar one day, when a stranger dropped off a train, patted him on the head, and said, "Keep trying, son."

That was Will Rogers and, for that chance remark, Gene Autry might be now on a Santa Fe train. But there was another piece of advice that Sittling Bull, the retired Indian chief, used to give everybody in the stageshow "Annie Get Your Gun." It was the old Indian maxim: "No pot money in show business." Old Sittling Bull wasn't wrong. But he sure would have known the Angels.

Autry figured the part was saved. They would cut the league off at the pass. The varmints would swing for their crimes.

But the Angels continued to play like comedy. Dalton brought in a pitcher who threw no-hitters on his good nights — and walked in the world on his bad.

"Phee-noes" with "can't miss" labels, not only missed, they took called third strikes. Outfielders threw to the wrong base on the infrequent occasions they got

BYU upsets Long Beach

PROVO, Utah-(UPI) — Freshman Danny Ainge and Junior Glen Roberts combined for 53 points Monday night in leading underdog Brigham Young to a 109-91 upset of Long Beach State.

Ainge put BYU ahead for good 67-66 eight minutes into the second half and the Cougars then outscored Long Beach 11-4 in the next three minutes to pull away.

BYU is now 1-1 while Long Beach State is 0-1.

Kansas opens with bang

LAWRENCE, Kan.-(UPI) — The Kansas Jayhawks, led by 23 points from center Paul Mokeski, ran away from the Central Missouri State Mules for a 121-65 victory in the season opener for both teams Monday night.

Mokeski, the Jayhawks' 7-foot-1 center, scored 17 of his 23 points in the first half when the Jayhawks built a 60-37 lead.

The Jayhawks expanded their lead to more than 50 points several times in the second half to break their single game scoring record. The previous record had been 112 points scored against Missouri in 1974.

Also scoring in double figures for the Jayhawks were Ken Koenigs with 18, guard John Douglas with 17 and guards Wilmore Fowler and Darnell Valentine with 11. The leading scorer for the Mules was center Rusty Tempierre with 18 points.

Wake Forest rips OSU

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.-(UPI) — Leroy McDonald scored a career-high 25 points and substitute John Hendler hit seven points in a two-minute span at the start of the second half to lead Wake Forest, tied for 14th in the ratings, to a 94-74 win over Oregon State Monday night.

McDonald, a 6-4 senior, scored 15 points in the second half, mostly on inside feeds from freshman Fran McCallery and Junior Mark Dale.

Hendler and Junior center Larry Harrison combined for 13 quick points as Wake Forest, down 39-38 at the half, jumped ahead 55-42 with 15 minutes left in the game. Oregon State never threatened after that.

Harrison finished the game with a career-high 21 points, while Hendler added 11, nine of them in the second half.

Ricky Lee led Oregon State with 14 points and Dwayne Allen added 13.

Wolpack rallies to win

RALEIGH, N.C.-(UPI) — Junior forward Tony Warren led North Carolina State with 26 points and Kendall Pinder added 20 Monday night to give the Wolfpack a 98-90 victory over stubborn Georgia Southern.

Georgia Southern's Matt Simpkins and John Fowler kept the Eagles in the game in the first half with 10 points each and led their squad in scoring. Fowler ended the game with 20 and Simpkins had 18.

Warren, Pinder and Charles "Hawkeye" Whitely sparked a Wolfpack scoring surge early in the second half as N.C. State went ahead by 22 points, 81-59, midway through the final period.

Young Ohio St. now 2-0

COLUMBUS, Ohio-(UPI) — Freshman center Herb Williams scored 21 points and pulled down 22 rebounds and Carter Scott, another freshman, added 17 points Monday night to lead Ohio State to an 81-65 victory over Marshall.

The win was the second in a row without a loss for the young Ohio State team, which had three freshman and two sophomores in its starting lineup.

Scott, a 6-2 guard, scored 13 of his 17 points in the first half and the Buckeyes held a 37-31 lead at intermission.

The 6-11 Williams, who had 34 points in his collegiate debut Friday night, had 13 of his total in the second half.

Arkansas wins by 33

LITTLE ROCK — Guard Ron Brewer fired in 24 points and had six steals Monday night to lead ninth-ranked Arkansas to a 94-61 college basketball victory over Mississippi State.

The Razorbacks held a 26-point halftime lead and coasted to the victory.

Forward Marvin Delp added 20 points for the Razorbacks, now 2-0.

Ray White had 15 points and Gary Hooker and Rickey Brown had 12 points each for the Bulldogs, who fell to 1-1 on the season.

Delp, who hit his first five shots from outside of 20 feet, had nine of 14 from the field as the Razorbacks connected on 85 percent of their shots. Brewer, a 6-4 senior, earned 12 of 15 from the field, including three of the last five baskets in the first half.

7th-ranked Purdue upset

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.-(UPI) — Larry Bird scored 26 points and pulled down 17 rebounds to lead Indiana State to a 91-83 victory over seventh-ranked Purdue Monday night.

Leroy Staley added 22 points, Harry Morgan 18 and Jim Smith 12 points and 11 assists. Bird provided eight assists along with two blocked shots and a steal.

Walter Jordan led Purdue with 16 points. Teammate Joe Barry Carroll got 15 rebounds and 11 points before fouling out.

Purdue led early but the Spartans took the lead for good at 14:30 of the first half on a 3-pointer by DeSearns Webster that made it 14-12.

ISU led by as much as 33 points.

It was the 23rd straight win at home for ISU over three seasons but only the second time in 26 meetings that the Spartans have defeated Hoosiermakers. The last time was in December, 1976, at Purdue, 67-62.

Spartans win opener

EAST LANSING, Mich.-(UPI) — Michigan State got 25 points from freshman Jay Vincent and 18 from Greg Kelsner to defeat Central Michigan, 68-61, in the Spartans' season opener Monday night.

Central trailed for the half, 29-28, but took an early seven-point second-half lead, 39-34, on a 3-point shot by Vincent's outstanding shooting. Grantler led Central with 24 points.

But Michigan State steadily erased the lead as Kelsner and Kelsner scored most of their points from underneath the basket. Michigan State is now 1-0 and Central 1-1.

Knieks aid Rocket spin

NEW YORK-(UPI) — Lennie Shelden scored five of his 19 points during a 13-4 third quarter New York sport Monday night and the Knicks went on to beat the Houston Rockets their sixth straight loss, 101-86.

Trailing 67-65 midway through the third period, the Knicks scored 13 straight points, including five three-pointers by Bob McAdoo, and took a 78-67 lead.

After the Rockets closed to within 82-73 at the end of the quarter, the Knicks scored the first 15 points of the fourth period for a commanding 93-75 lead. Earl Monroe topped New York, 11-8, with 22 points and McAdoo added 16.

Moses Malone led all scorers with 24 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 19.

Why am I laughing?

OHIO State's Kelvin Ransey appears to have Marshall's Ken Labanowski cut off from the hoop, but Labanowski got the shot off anyway. Marshall had to be content with small victories like this one, as Ohio State won the game 81-65, although starting three sophomores and two freshmen.

Penn St., Pitt dominate East all-star selections

NEW YORK-(UPI) — Penn State and Pittsburgh, whose names are virtually synonymous with eastern college football supremacy, dominated the 1977 United Press International All-East team Monday by picking 12 players between them on the 24-member squad.

Pittsburgh, which lost to Penn State 15-13 in their battle for the Lambert Trophy last Saturday, had seven players chosen to the team while the Nittany Lions had five. The team was selected in a balloting of eastern college coaches conducted by UPI.

Quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, running back Elliott Walker, wide receiver Gordon Jones and center Tom Brzozka represented Pitt on the offensive unit while freshman end Hugh Green, tackle Randy Holloway and defensive back Bob Jury were named to the defensive unit.

Penn State was represented on offense by tackle Keith Dorsey and on defense by end Bill Banks, linebackers Ron Hostetter and Rick Donaldson and middle guard Randy Sille.

Boston College had three players named to the team, Colgate, Yale and Syracuse each placed two and Dartmouth, Army and Navy were represented by one player each.

Selected to the team from Boston College were offensive guard John Schmedding, linebacker Rich Scudellari and punter Jim Walton. Colgate was represented by running back Henry White and offensive tackle Rick Deel, Yale by offensive guard Steve Carlson and running back John Pandiaro and Syracuse by defensive back Larry King and kicker Dave Jacobs.

Tipoff end Clemmie Brundage was Army's selection.

Brewers shake things up with new catcher, emblem

MILWAUKEE-(UPI) — What Milwaukee Brewers' President Allan "Bud" Selig referred to as an "assessing" of the club's structure and personnel continued Monday as the team signed free agent catcher Ray Fosse.

The transformation began Nov. 18, a Friday, when the Brewers signed Larry Flehe, the American League RBI champ and one of the top prizes in the free agent bidding wars. It continued the next day when the team fired Manager Alex Grammas and Jim Baumer, director of baseball operations, and again last Monday when the team named Harry Dalton as the club's new general manager.

The moves are all designed to turn the Brewers' a perennial loser, into a winner.

"This has been a very turbulent period for a lot of people," Selig said at a news conference. "I am sure that the changes we've made can be described as awesome."

Fosse is expected to shore up one of the club's biggest weaknesses last year, catching. Fosse, 31, a nine-year veteran, split last season with Cleveland and Seattle and hit 276 overall with six home runs and 32 RBI.

He hit .301 in 1975, was named to the All-Star team in 1971 and was on his way to World Championship teams at Oakland.

Sal Bando, who the Brewers got in last year's free agent draft, was a teammate of Fosse's on those Oakland teams. One of the better catchers in the majors, Fosse is expected to help stabilize the young Brewer pitching staff.

"The free agent draft has given us two players who will make a very big contribution," Selig said.

Dalton wasn't at the news conference but Selig said Dalton was a key in signing Fosse. In fact, Dalton began wooing Fosse the day he took office.

"He's made a great deal of progress in getting things going," said Selig of Dalton, whose back in California with his family.

The club still could use some veteran pitching aid, perhaps, another outfielder, Selig admitted the club will be considering trades at the upcoming winter meetings in Hawaii.

"But to say what we did last year is impossible," he said. "There are other things we want to do before the winter is over."

The Brewers also unveiled a new logo to continue their mood of change. More than 1,900 fans submitted designs and the winner of a $2,000 cash award was Tom Melchod, a senior majoring in art education at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire.

His logo has the letters "m" and "b" put together to form the fingers of a baseball glove, with a baseball in the middle of the glove.

The old symbol featured a character with a beer barrel for a body and spindly arms and legs. He wore a baseball cap and was supposed to be a real "brewer" player but the idea was often ridiculed as stupid.

The team also announced it will open at home April 6 against Baltimore. The team said in prices for reserved seat tickets but that bleacher and general admission seats will stay the same price.

Allen accuses Cowboys of 'unethical' tactics

WASHINGTON-(UPI) — George Allen, while on the subject of football morality, has decided that moving to draw — or opposing — linemen offside is unethical, while screaming ethnic obscenities at a placekicker just before a crucial kick is not.

Allen said Monday his films show the officials in Sunday's Dallas-Washington game blew one of the game's key plays — the fourth-and-four situation where the Redskins' Pete Wysocki jumped offside to resolve the Cowboys' winning drive in a 14-7 victory.

"The center (D.D. Lewis) moved his hips and one of the up backs moved his arm, and the referees didn't see it," said Allen. "It was a deliberate attempt to draw us offside. But we shouldn't have been offside. You move with the ball, not the man."

Later, he asked reporters: "Don't you think that's unethical? You see the guys (the Cowboys) who carry the Holy Grail... you wouldn't think they'd do things like that."

It's the first time I've heard of any of my linemen using it. I'd prefer for them not to do it because it doesn't help you that much."

Allen also complained again about the Cowboys' harassment of kicker Mark Moseley, who missed three field goals Sunday.

"How about what they did to Moseley — they took a cheap shot at him when he's down," he said of Dallas' tactic of blocking Moseley on every kickoff. Then he brought up some old business. "Just because he's worked and become a good kicker, Tex Schramm (Dallas general manager) and that gang say he's been kicking with an illegal shoe."

The Redskins' produced their second-best number of total yards, 334, against the Cowboys, but managed only seven points. Allen, asked if he plans to start Joe Theismann at quarterback next Sunday against Buffalo, said he thought so, but hasn't made a final decision yet.

"When I made the change (to Theismann), I made it clear it wasn't the quarterback's (Billy Kilmer's) fault," said Allen. "Because of the importance of the position, the quarterback is blamed for certain things."

"It doesn't seem to make much difference who our quarterback is — we still get the same things, like holding penalties."

Defensive end Dennis Johnson, who sprained a knee Sunday, will probably miss the Bills' game. The status of veteran center Len Hauss, who may have cracked some ribs, is undetermined.

Fish and game violations up throughout Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — As the hunting improves, the number of hunting violations increases, according to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

In the north Idaho area, Region 1, Pete Prinz, regional enforcement supervisor, said the region has experienced more than 450 citations in their five county area with many cited for sportsmen forfeiting bonds.

"Local judges are assessing nonresidents as much in penalties as residents, but I would like to see some consideration in the fines to include the amount of money not paid for licenses or for the correct license in the first place," Prinz said.

Walt Berry, Region 2 enforcement supervisor, said, "The main problem in our area is spotlighting for deer at night."

In Region 3, the department said there have been 40 untaxed deer cases so far this year compared to only 15 a year ago. The department has used a number of techniques to apprehend hunters trying to get away without tagging their deer.

"The most effective method has been the impromptu road check in which the conservation officer is able to surprise the returning hunting party. Some hunters will try to cover a deer with firewood but don't do a very good job hiding the signs of deer blood."

Ray Lyon, the Boise-based Region 3 enforcement supervisor, said there are also those hunters who do not hide their game but have their tag in hand and are ready to punch out the correct day and month at the first sight of a Fish and Game officer.

"The adrenalin starts running when they see us, and they usually cannot punch out the right holes," he said.

In the Twin Falls-Jerome area, Fish and Game officers issued 20 citations in the first week of pheasant season and deer season. One of the largest fines ever assessed for a game bird violation in Idaho was charged to two Nevada hunters.

They were caught with 86 pheasants in their possession as they tried to bypass an enforcement check station near Hollister. They were fined $1,950. They were 76 birds over their limit, plus 27 of the fully dressed pheasants were hens. The judge also suspended their hunting licenses for the year.

Three Utah hunters were nabbed by the Region 4 officers and fined $500 for possession of 39 pheasants. Another Utah hunter was fined for hunting without a license. A Minidoka man received a 30-day jail sentence, with 20 days suspended, for the illegal shooting of a moose in Unit 56 south of Buhl. He was also fined $300, had his hunting and fishing privileges revoked for three years and will be on probation for two years. The young bull shot during a deer hunt was one of only three known moose in Region 4.

Checks at airport and motel parking lots also resulted in numerous cases. There were 10 citations issued at the Twin Falls airport for overimits and fully dressed pheasants leaving the state. Field operations netted four does shot by residents in buck-only hunts in Units 29, 43 and 48.

Several resident hunters were cited for shooting at pheasants from or across public roads. A nonresident fisherman was caught with 61 trout, 55 fish over his limit.

In order to combat illegal game harvest and to help compensate for the losses, the Department of Fish and Game has drafted a bill for consideration in the next session of the Idaho Legislature to allow the department to sue a violator for the value of the illegally taken animal. This civil penalty would be in addition to any fine assessed under criminal law.

found out early we couldn't do much running." "We played very poorly about as poorly as we've managed all year on offense," said Reggie Tucker, who managed only one reception though he narrowly missed a Mays pass in the Rams' end zone.

"I felt pretty good about throwing, but the Rams' defense did a heck of a job. I thought we could throw deep, but they started flowing back within their coverage, so I was able to dump some to our backs. You can't play this game by yourself, though, it's a team thing."

Cornerback Ron Bolton, on the other hand, was impressed with the game called by the Rams' young quarterback, Pat Haden — despite the fact Bolton intercepted Haden three times.

Quarterback David Mays, in only his second start and third major game action of the year, said, "It was a matter of the way the game was going."

"I like to give the ball to Greg a lot, but we got behind and were put into a situation where I had to throw more. We prettily well closes out the question for the next few years," Davison said. He refused to give the specific vote of the presidents.

Commissioner H. Boyd McWhorter said several non-conference schools, particularly former SEC member Georgia Tech, showed an interest in joining.

The committee report said that historically, conferences with more than 10 members eventually split up, a larger conference would diminish the chances for individual members to win conference championships and scheduling would become more complicated.

Georgia Tech, which helped found the SEC in 1932, left the conference in 1964 and has competed as an independent since. McWhorter said Georgia Tech would depart from the league had no effect on the decision Monday.

Texas loses top tackler

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The No. 1-ranked Texas Longhorns, heading for a showdown against Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 2, have lost their top middle linebacker.

Couch Fred Akers Monday said Lance Taylor, the team's leading tackler, had undergone surgery to repair a shoulder separation suffered in the Longhorns' 57-28 Southwest Conference title clinching win over Texas A&M Saturday.

Akers also said his original starting quarterback this season, Mark McBeth, would be sufficiently recovered from a broken leg suffered in the Oct. 8 game against Oklahoma to play against the Irish.

"Mark thinks he will be able to play and he may be, but it will be pretty close," Akers said. "Lance will not be ready. It's a complete separation and required surgery. We hope he'll be back for spring training."

Akers has given his club the week off. "Texas finished the regular season at 11-0. He said he and his staff would spend most of the week recruiting high school prospects.

Huskies edge ASU

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mike Nell scored a career-high 28 points Monday night as Washington defeated Arizona State 68-62 in the Huskies' opener.

Nell scored 20 points in the second half, hitting seven of 10 shots from the field.

Rick Taylor and Larry Zeno led the Sun Devils with 14 points each. Arizona State now is 0-2.

Cal rips Drake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Gene Ransom, a 5-9 junior guard, scored 27 points and powered California to a 97-78 college basketball victory over Drake University Monday night.

The victory gave the Golden Bears a 2-0 record while dropping the Bulldogs to 0-2. Cal broke away from a 15-15 tie with 10 straight points midway through the opening half and was never threatened thereafter. Sophomore forward Kevin Singleton had four of those points.

CICERO, Ill. (UPI) — One lucky bettor among 6,001 invested $2 and went home with a bonanza never before equaled Monday when the ninth-race trifecta at Sportsman's Park paid $69,473.70.
Prestige Type paid $23.40 to win, having been sent off at odds of 10-1, and Sixth Bird's $28.40 to place and Pandante Star's $3.20 to help do a perfect combine for the 10-1 trifecta.
It was the largest return ever in North America at a thoroughbred track for a $2 bet on the trifecta, wherein a bettor must select the first three horses in order of finish.

Irish pay — Texas free

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The Marriott Hotel chain fell in a mistake in agreeing to house Texas' opponents in the Cotton Bowl, Notre Dame.

So the hotel has offered the Longhorns free accommodations.

The Longhorns, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, have stayed at the Marriott Hotel during trips to Dallas the past three years.

A spokesman for the hotel Monday said the Texas team could stay at another Marriott Hotel, only a few miles farther from the Cotton Bowl, free of charge.

Gambling agent jailed

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Former sports agent Richard Sorkin was sentenced Monday to an indeterminate term of up to three years in prison on his guilty plea to embezzling $360,000 from seven professional hockey and basketball players.

The 37-year-old Sorkin stood silently in Nassau County Court as his attorney, Richard Reisch, pleaded for a probationary sentence that would have kept his client out of jail.

"He wasn't trying to take the money for himself," Reisch told Judge Henderson Morrison. "He lost the players' money investing in the stock market and he gambled, trying to do what people in similar circumstances will often do to recoup losses."

"He was merely trying to make a reputation for himself as a top-flight agent," Reisch explained.

The attorney added that Sorkin, a former sports reporter for the Long Island newspaper, Newsday, "wants to make restitution, but he cannot do this if he goes to prison."

Nassau Assistant District Attorney Robert Clarey recommended a prison term of up to four years, noting that the defendant's bankrupt business owes money to clients and other expenses totaling $1.2 million.

Sorkin was named last June in an indictment charging him with 32 counts of grand larceny involving the theft of $789,500, most of it from 30 top-ranking hockey and basketball players. But he was allowed to plead guilty on Sept. 20 to seven counts of the indictment, alleging the larceny of $360,000.

Among the major losers were Bobby Nystrom of the New York Islanders, $145,000; Ron Greshner of the New York Rangers, $86,000; Jude Drouin of the Islanders; $56,000; and the Islanders' Gary Howatt, $55,000.

Under the players' contracts, Sorkin was supposed to invest their funds, pay their rent, credit card, auto insurance and other bills and provide them with stipulated weekly allowances.

Ram loss shakes Browns

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland owner Art Modell says the Browns' 9-0 loss to the Los Angeles Rams was "a disgrace" and he promised a "complete evaluation" of the Browns organization.

"There might be a bright side to this," Modell said. "There will be a complete evaluation of the organization from top to bottom."

"What starts with me and right down through all the people working here, in the long run this game could prove helpful. If we had won, we might have been lulled into complacency."

"We might have figured that no changes were needed," said Modell. "Now, we know that isn't the case. There is no doubt about it. We must make some moves."

Running back Greg Pruitt felt one of the reasons the Browns did so poorly Sunday was that he did not carry the ball often enough.

"I didn't run enough times to tell you whether the Rams have a tough defense, or not," he said. "Some things take time and I have to carry enough to see how people are playing me, but today I didn't."

"I'm supposed to be important to our attack, but I wasn't used as an important factor in this game."

Pruitt carried 11 times for 29 yards, threw one incomplete pass and caught three more for 25 yards in the defeat which all but erased the Browns' playoff hopes.

Quarterback David Mays, in only his second start and third major game action of the year, said, "It was a matter of the way the game was going."

"I like to give the ball to Greg a lot, but we got behind and were put into a situation where I had to throw more. We

SEC votes no on expansion

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Presidents of Southeastern Conference schools Monday voted against expanding the 10-member league now or in the near future.

The presidents adopted by an overwhelming consensus a report of a special committee studying the possible expansion of the league, said Dr. Fred C. Davison, president of the University of Georgia.

"I would assume that this conference would diminish the chances for individual members to win conference championships and scheduling would become more complicated.

Texas loses top tackler

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The No. 1-ranked Texas Longhorns, heading for a showdown against Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 2, have lost their top middle linebacker.

Couch Fred Akers Monday said Lance Taylor, the team's leading tackler, had undergone surgery to repair a shoulder separation suffered in the Longhorns' 57-28 Southwest Conference title clinching win over Texas A&M Saturday.

Akers also said his original starting quarterback this season, Mark McBeth, would be sufficiently recovered from a broken leg suffered in the Oct. 8 game against Oklahoma to play against the Irish.

"Mark thinks he will be able to play and he may be, but it will be pretty close," Akers said. "Lance will not be ready. It's a complete separation and required surgery. We hope he'll be back for spring training."

Akers has given his club the week off. "Texas finished the regular season at 11-0. He said he and his staff would spend most of the week recruiting high school prospects.

Huskies edge ASU

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mike Nell scored a career-high 28 points Monday night as Washington defeated Arizona State 68-62 in the Huskies' opener.

Nell scored 20 points in the second half, hitting seven of 10 shots from the field.

Rick Taylor and Larry Zeno led the Sun Devils with 14 points each. Arizona State now is 0-2.

Cal rips Drake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Gene Ransom, a 5-9 junior guard, scored 27 points and powered California to a 97-78 college basketball victory over Drake University Monday night.

The victory gave the Golden Bears a 2-0 record while dropping the Bulldogs to 0-2. Cal broke away from a 15-15 tie with 10 straight points midway through the opening half and was never threatened thereafter. Sophomore forward Kevin Singleton had four of those points.

Cager death probably drugs

ROME (UPI) — A surgeon who performed an autopsy Monday on New York-born basketball player Bob Elmore said a narcotics overdose was the likely cause of death, but it would take several days to complete laboratory analysis and come up with a definite finding.

Friends said if heroin was the cause of Elmore's death, it probably was the first time he was taking it.

The 23-year-old center of Rome's Lazio-Eldorado team was found dead early Saturday.

Dietrich — Dietrich jumped out to a big early lead and then hung on with only three players on the court to whip Murtaugh 46-25 in girls' basketball action Monday night.

Gwen Flowers got 14 of her game-high 24 points as Dietrich built up a 25-6 lead advantage, and the Blue Devils coasted in from there despite playing the last two minutes with only three players due to fouls.

In the only other girls' game Monday, Kimberly exploded for 35 second-half points to buy Valley 48-16.

Leading 13-9 at the half, Kimberly caught fire and Valley froze up in the second half. Kimberly's Zapata led all scorers with 14.

Fund cutoff not abortion 'motive'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A medical publication says the Texas woman who died from a Mexican abortion had crossed the border for purposes of secrecy, not because of a cutoff of U.S. government-funded abortions.

Groups seeking federal funding of abortions under Medicaid have cited the case, which occurred during the summer, to support their arguments.

The Ob-Gyn News, a semimonthly for obstetricians, reported Sunday that the woman had the Mexican operation "to keep the abortion secret from her family, not because she was denied federal aid in the United States."

She had obtained an abortion in Mexico two years before when she could have obtained U.S. funding for it, it said, and her doctor had offered to refer her to two Texas clinics that would have done a low-cost abortion.

The newspaper said the McAllen, Tex., woman was falsely being portrayed by proabortion groups and the press "as a martyr to the Hyde Amendment," the section of federal law prohibiting federal funding for abortions under medical-aid programs for the poor.

It said the federal investigator whose report sparked nationwide news accounts knew of the woman's motives, and told Ob-Gyn News that four other women in the area who suffered complications from Mexican abortions were motivated by economic need rather than a Medicaid cutoff.

Dr. Julian Gold, investigator from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, told UPI the facts are as the paper stated, but he added, "There are some things the article made conjectures about that we didn't make."

"My job is to investigate the facts and try to present them as factually as possible," he said.

Gold said there is no evidence a Mexican abortion had ended the woman's previous pregnancy in 1975, although "a number of avenues" were investigated.

And he said he cannot conclude absolutely that money was the reason for her trip to Mexico, but "she told a relative (whom the doctor interviewed) it was cheaper. It was going to cost her $40 in Mexico and $220 in Texas."

House and Senate conferees resume their month-long debate this week on wording of the Hyde Amendment in the current Labor Department and Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill.

Although legislation barring most federal aid for poor women has expired, the administration has elected not to provide such assistance in the meantime.

Two scouts honored

Michael Munn and Robert Werner were honored in an Eagle Scout Court of Honor Wednesday night. Munn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Munn, Twin Falls, is a senior in high school. Werner is attending the Air Force Academy in Colorado and is the son of Lila Werner and the late Leonard Werner, Twin Falls.

FAA charged with 'waste'

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration "has been operating in a slipshod, highly questionable manner for years in several areas," the chairman of the House Government Activities and Transportation subcommittee charged Monday.

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Calif., made the charges as the subcommittee begins two days of hearings into the FAA's procurement policies and air safety activities.

In a statement prepared for delivery at the opening session, Burton said, "Let me emphasize that we are concerned about the FAA because we believe the agency has been engaging in gross mismanagement, because we've already found in preliminary inquiries that the FAA has wasted at least $50 million in the last few years in certain operations."

"We've already found spending in the millions on equipment that never was delivered," he continued.

"We've found that certain undocumented meetings were held between FAA officials and contractors after which their contracts were modified. We've found that millions of dollars have been wasted on training of air traffic controllers because many of the trainees drop out of school."

He predicted that "We're going to get to the bottom of this awful waste."

The subcommittee is also looking into possible deficiencies in safety along the nation's airways and airports areas.

"When the agency fails to take enough time to project accurately what it needs in the future, it may lose years in the future in acquiring what it eventually does need."

"To put it more bluntly, wasted money can mean wasted lives," he said.

During the subcommittee's continuing investigation into FAA operations, "We've had a bad relationship with the FAA," Burton charged. "FAA officials evaded questions (and) the subcommittee was misled."

He reiterated earlier charges that proposals to deregulate the airlines — or to reduce the degree of government regulation — could result in lower levels of safety for the flying public.

If fares and other currently regulated areas were left up to the airlines, the companies could reduce spending and manpower devoted to maintenance as competition increases, he said.

The FAA, however, has insisted officially that deregulation would have no impact on aviation safety.

Soviet dissidents score West Europe for silence

MOSCOW (UPI) — A group of Soviet dissidents accused the major Western European powers Monday of failing to speak out in defense of human rights at the Belgrade Conference on European Security and Cooperation.

Members of the Soviet Group to Promote Implementation of the Helsinki Accords said they were "satisfied only with definite reservations" by the position taken by Western participants at Belgrade.

The group said the United States, the Netherlands, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Belgium had been "sufficiently consistent" in their stand on human rights.

But it said "West European powers have not yet taken any consistent position, thus hampering the efforts of those countries which insist upon absolute abidance by the humanitarian provisions of the Final Act" at Helsinki.

The criticism was contained in a six-page document prepared by the Soviet Helsinki group for Belgrade.

Nobel Peace Prize winning physicist Andrei Sakharov, who also signed the document, told Western correspondents the conference was "at an important stage of work" because it must soon make a decision on human rights.

"The discussion should by no means evolve into an exchange of insulting reprimands or demagoguery but the Western delegations position should be absolutely resolute on every substantial issue," the Soviet group said.

They acknowledged that the Soviet response would be "to threaten frustration of the conference" on grounds that the human rights debate violated the principal of noninterference into the internal affairs of other countries.

But they predicted that the Soviets would "not dare to frustrate the conference which deals greatly with its own interest."

If the Soviets did carry out the threat, they said, it would be "a great misfortune, a long though interim retard in the historical path of detente."

"However, as we are deeply convinced, capitulation and indecision to such threats will be a much greater misfortune, a catastrophe with consequences for mankind difficult to repair."

Among gains made since the 1975 Helsinki conference, the dissidents cited President Carter's stand making "human rights all over the world as the moral basis of the U.S. policy."

Billy Beer banned in Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) — The director of a liquor distribution firm appealing the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission's ban on the sale of a brand of beer endorsed by President Carter just doesn't have the celebrity status of a Farrah Fawcett-Majors.

"That will be the basis of Paul Brown's argument before the ABC commission, which will hold a hearing Tuesday on the prohibition against the sale of "Billy Beer" in Virginia.

A Virginia regulation bans the sale of alcoholic beverages endorsed on the label by celebrities.

Brown, director of the Charlottesville Distributing Company, says Billy Carter is not really a celebrity.

"Just because he commands $5,000 or something like that per appearance doesn't make him famous," Brown said.

Brown asserted the intent of the ABC board's rule is to prevent well-known television stars popular with young people, like Henry Winkler or Farrah Fawcett-Majors, to "lure" them to alcohol by agreeing to do lucrative endorsements.

"I just don't think Billy Carter has many teen-age followers," Brown said.

"The brew in question is marketed by Falls City Brewing Co. of Louisville, Ky. Brown's firm distributes Falls City beers in a 14-county area."

"Other states are selling it and making good profits. Virginia distributors should be allowed to get in on it too," said Brown.

ABC board Chairman Archer L. Yeatts said in banning the beer he not only found it in violation of the commission's no-celebrity rule, but he also questioned the propriety of a president's brother endorsing any alcoholic beverage.

He said such an endorsement "downgrades" the office of the president.

Brown estimates the "Billy Beer" appeal has a 50-50 chance of success.

"They are reasonable people. The board has always been fair," Brown said.

You can enter Federal Wilderness only by foot, boat or horseback.

No cars or RV's are allowed.

"You mean more Wilderness doesn't mean more family campgrounds?"

That's right! Federal Wilderness areas actually prohibit development of campgrounds. Many people believe that Federal Wilderness lands are being set aside to provide recreation opportunities for them. Actually, Federal Wilderness restricts many types of recreation use. Most lands used for recreation are multi-use, serving many people and a variety of outdoor activities.

13% of our Idaho Forest is already administered as Federal wilderness.

51% of Idaho's forest would become Federal Wilderness if all additional lands under study are approved.

We can have additional Wilderness...

The question is: How much more Federal Wilderness can we afford in Idaho?

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 14-year-old girl who was so large for her age that she didn't care if she ever saw her 14th birthday—reminded me of myself!

When I was 14, I stood 5 feet 10 and weighed 205. And as if that wasn't bad enough, I had bright red hair!

I was the butt of many cruel jokes, and I cried myself to sleep more nights than I could count. I didn't have one date in high school.

The summer after graduation I decided that God gave me my body, and it was up to me to make the best of it. I went on a diet, trimmed myself down, and took dancing lessons to develop poise.

Today I'm 32, stand 5 feet 10, weigh 135 and am married to a wonderful man who's 6 foot 4. We have three beautiful daughters who will probably be Amazons, but we plan to teach them early to make the most of what they have.

QUEEN-SIZED AND HAPPY

Encouraging messages

DEAR HAPPY: Yours was one of many letters I received with essentially the same encouraging message. Read on for another inspiring beat:

DEAR ABBY: May I add a few words to your advice to TOO TALL because I was there many years ago.

TOO TALL is the stuff the models, outstanding athletes and many executives are made of. Being tall means you will never be lost in a crowd. Being too tall is difficult at 14, but if you play it smart, you can be a stand-out rest of your life.

The secret?—Train yourself to sit and stand erect. Practice a graceful walk. Study dancing. Read a lot and fill your mind with interesting and useful information. Develop any talents you have in crafts, music, drama, writing. Participate in athletics. Find a way to help others. Teach a Sunday school class, work in a summer recreation program, volunteer as a candy stripper at a hospital, visit a nursing home regularly. Train your ears to listen, and your heart to understand.

Stop crawling to your plate for comfort. Hold your head high and quit trying to fool yourself up so you'll look smaller.

If you take my advice, you will soon find yourself surrounded by friends who appreciate your concern for others and admire your friendly outgoing attitude.

Then one day you'll realize that you're dancing with someone shorter than you, and you will both know that it doesn't really matter which one of you is taller.

TALL AND GROWING

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly how TOO TALL felt because I was also too tall in my girlhood. My problem was further complicated because I was also too thin. You may not believe this, but being too thin can be just as painful as being too fat!

At 15, I was 6 foot tall and weighed 125! I used to force myself to drink chocolate malted until I was sick, hoping to gain a few pounds. My parents took me to a doctor after another trying to put some weight on me. They thought I had TB.

The worst part of being so tall and skinny was the cruel remarks I was subjected to.

Abby, please advise your readers that it's just as unkind to remind a person that he's tall and thin (or fat) as it is to remind a person that he's crippled or blind.

I wish I had a dollar for everyone who's ever asked me how the weather was "up there."

And you would not believe the number of people (stronger, too) who have asked, "Say, how tall are you?" What difference does it make if I'm 5 feet 11 1/4 or 6 foot 2? I hope you print this. It just might make someone stop and think before he hurts the feelings of someone who's hurting enough as it is.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
I am a 45 year old woman, and have relatives who have had sugar diabetes. My mother died at 78 with diabetes. Is there anything I can do to prevent getting sugar diabetes? I am in good health, 5 feet 8, and weigh 150 pounds.

Dear Reader—
The hereditary aspects of diabetes are sometimes hard to establish. Why? Because there is more than one cause for diabetes. It may be inherited or it may follow a disease of the pancreas or even mumps. It is probably several different diseases all with abnormally elevated blood glucose levels.

The other reason is that even inherited diabetes may manifest itself at different ages. If it tended to occur at age 75, but the person died from other causes at age 45, there would be no way of knowing that such an individual carried the genes to develop diabetes later in life.

It is a good idea to do what you can to prevent diabetes. Avoiding obesity is the most important measure. Avoid excess sweets and rely more on raw fruits and plain vegetables rather than sweets for the carbohydrates in your diet. Remain active. Physical activity helps keep the blood sugar low. These measures will help improve your health anyway, no matter what.

To give you more information, I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management. Others who want this issue can send $5 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Dear Dr. Lamb—
What can you tell me about lecithin? My mother has let a friend talk her into taking up to 20 a day. It does not say on the bottle anything about their strength or what is contained in them.

My husband is on a diet for high triglycerides, and she says these pills will help him. I am a very nervous person, and take tranquilizers, and she claims they will help my nerves. Is all this possible? How do you know what is too much when taking them?

Dear Reader—
Would you believe lecithin is a combination of triglycerides and choline. That is all it is.

Triglycerides means three fatty acids hooked to one molecule of glycerine. In the case of lecithin, one of the fatty acids contains phosphorus. The whole thing is then chemically combined with choline, another compound that is important in preventing fatty liver and has its functions in the body. Choline is abundant in meat and other foods.

And when you swallow lecithin, it must be digested. The triglyceride is broken free from the choline. The fatty acids are broken free from the glycerine and the component parts are then absorbed into the blood stream. It is no longer lecithin. You could get the fatty acids from many sources, and the choline from a good balanced diet.

(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)— Ara Cron, a 63-year-old gray-haired woman with a soft voice, is angry, bitter and disgusted with the federal government because it refused to let her smoke marijuana legally.

"My, yes, I'd much rather have marijuana than surgery," she said Sunday in a telephone interview.

Mrs. Cron is something of an expert both on marijuana and surgery in the treatment of glaucoma, a hereditary eye disease in which fluid builds up behind the eye causing pressure on the optic nerve.

Glaucoma is a painful disease that can end in blindness. Several studies, however, have indicated marijuana reduces the pressure on the optic nerve, preventing the disease from worsening.

Earlier this year, Mrs. Cron's glaucoma took a turn for the worse. She had severe headaches and intense pain around her eyes. Her vision became worse each day.

Her doctor suggested surgery, but Mrs. Cron held back. Instead, she asked the federal government to let her use marijuana.

"I started writing letters. I tried every way possible," she recalls. "I wrote to HEW, to state representatives, to just everybody I could think of to obtain it legally — to no avail."

She also was one of 13 persons who signed a petition presented to Attorney General Griffin Bell in April. The petition asked that hearings be held in an effort to change marijuana's classification as a dangerous drug. The federal government now lists it as a highly poisonous drug of no medical or therapeutic value.

Mrs. Cron walked patiently for six months. But the pressure behind her eyes kept increasing and she could walk no longer. She underwent surgery in June to reduce the pressure. The operation cost her part of her vision.

"I'm very grateful that I couldn't have the marijuana instead of the operation," Mrs. Cron said. "I've lost some sight since the operation. I can't see without my glasses at all now and with them I don't see too well."

"There are some days when I just can't read very well at all. Heavens, yes, I was bitter and frustrated when I came out of surgery and couldn't see too well."

During her waiting period, Mrs. Cron received an unmarked package in the mail from someone who had heard of her plight.

"I don't know if I should be telling you this," she said, "but the box was full of marijuana. I was a little fearful to use it because I didn't know where it came from. But my pressure was so high that I tried it."

"It brought my pressure down from 60 to 40 in about 45 minutes. It was wonderful."

Bitter and angry

MRS. ANNA Cron, Wichita, Kan., is bitter and angry at the Federal Government for refusing to let her use marijuana to treat her glaucoma, a painful eye disease. The 63-year-old woman has pledged to do all she can to legalize marijuana for medicinal purposes.

Living

There's no short cut to weight control

© N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — "Right now, there are more people on fad diets than sound ones." This grim assessment, from an official of the American Society of Bariatrics (the doctors who treat obesity), testifies first to the intractable nature of the problem of overweight and second to the unwillingness of most of the more than 50 million Americans afflicted with this problem to accept the fact that there is no short cut to successful weight control.

Through the years, there have been as many fad diets and weight loss schemes as there are calories in a wedge of chocolate layer cake, and they are as effective as the cake would be in helping people to lose weight and keep it off. Yet many people seem willing to risk their future health and even their lives for the promise that this or that reducing gimmick will help them, as one ad put it, "shed those ugly pounds of fat forever."

Liquid protein diets, improper, unsupervised use of liquid protein diets is extremely dangerous. These diets have already resulted in more than a dozen deaths, but this has not deterred the tens of thousands of dieters who have put themselves on this near-starvation regimen.

Dr. Myron Winick, director of Columbia University's Institute of Human Nutrition, points out that the liquid protein (prepared from predigested collagen) does not contain a proper balance of amino acids, the building blocks of protein and is actually harder on the body than total starvation.

Most of the liquid protein diets sold over the counter are not properly fortified with minerals, particularly potassium, a deficiency of which can lead to sudden death. The diet may also produce big shifts in body water and electrolytes, causing cardiac arrest. Many of the deaths associated with liquid protein have occurred when users started to come off the diet, possibly because their hearts could not withstand the added workload of a sudden increase in the body's metabolic rate.

The diet is particularly dangerous to persons with kidney, liver, heart, blood vessel or metabolic diseases, many of whom may not even know they are afflicted. Less serious symptoms associated with the liquid protein diet include fatigue, dizziness, hair loss, dry skin, bad breath and constipation.

However, for properly selected patients who are carefully monitored by a conscientious physician, the liquid diet can be safe and highly beneficial. Dr. Leonard Halmes, a bariatric specialist in Miami, Fla., recommends that patients be examined weekly, and a variety of blood tests be taken every two weeks.

Halmes emphasizes that to be effective in maintaining the desired weight loss, the liquid protein regimen must be combined with a program to modify the patient's eating behavior so that he won't return to his former fat-inducing eating habits after reaching his goal.

Low-carbohydrate diets. These come in many guises — The Stillman diet, Atkins diet, caloriferous-don't-count diet, drinking man's diet, Air Force diet and others. In all, the idea is to eat few or no carbohydrates — sugar and starch — which means no grains or fruits and few vegetables, as well as no candy, cake, bread and the like.

The diets are popular because there is an immediate, encouraging weight loss. As soon as carbohydrates are consumed the water and weight are regained. A lot of sodium is lost along with the water, which may disrupt the body's electrolyte balance.

While the Stillman diet cautions against high-fat foods, the others say you can eat all the fat you want. Most conventional source of protein — meat and dairy products — are also high in saturated fats and cholesterol, which increase the cholesterol level in the blood and may promote clogging of the arteries and heart disease.

Without carbohydrates, the body burns fats for fuel and it burns them incompletely, producing a sharp rise in compounds called ketones in the blood and urine. The resulting "ketosis" can cause nausea, vomiting, apathy, fatigue, dizziness and low blood pressure, and in persons with kidney disease, it can produce kidney failure.

Other hazards of the low-carbohydrate, high-fat diet include disturbances in heart rhythm, excess uric acid in the blood (a precursor to gout) and, in pregnant women, impairment of brain development in the unborn child.

An additional hazard comes from the high protein in these diets, forcing the kidneys to excrete large amounts of nitrogen-containing compounds such as urea. A person may have marginal kidney disease and not know it, this added stress on the kidneys could result in uremic poisoning, damage to the brain and nervous system and, ultimately, death.

High protein diets have also been found to cause a depletion of calcium and loss of bone. Without fruits and vegetables, dieters often develop symptoms of scurvy from a vitamin C deficiency.

If you plan to lose more than 10 or 15 pounds, it's wise to get a complete physical examination first. Once on a sensible reducing diet, don't expect to see immediate dramatic results. It takes four to seven days to lose a pound of fat (larger early losses, if they occur, are nearly all water, not fat).

Aim for a loss of one to two pounds a week, at most, weighing yourself no more often than every two weeks. People who lose weight slowly are more likely to maintain the loss, and a too rapid weight loss can be hazardous to your mental as well as your physical health.

Astrology 'useful tool'

Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — You and your shrink have been at an impasse for months, now, devoid of insights, breakthroughs, transferences or primal screams, you are at wit's end, so to speak.

If he refers you to an astrologist, don't call for the guys in the white coats or file a malpractice suit; it may be a coming trend to judge from a well attended session at the Association of American Psychiatric Services for Children convention here.

And, no, this is not the latest bit of star gazing from the school of California thim.

It's the pet project of a decidedly middle-America, middle-aged former Cleveland, Ohio, child psychologist now with the Veterans' Administration, Dr. Gordon Loomis.

Loomis, a soft-spoken, bespectacled counselor of alcoholics at the Cleveland V.H. led off a discussion billed as "Astrology and its role in Counseling," with a mild observation that "astrology can be a useful tool" for therapists in their work.

He explained that when patients truly had him stumped he referred them to his friend, astrologist Robert (Buz) Myers.

So far, Loomis has sent 25 patients to Myers, without telling the astrologist anything about his clients' backgrounds. In some cases he let Myers handle the counseling, although he continues to see some patients, sometimes reviewing their astrological findings with them, sometimes not.

One case history involved a 26-year-old woman Loomis had been treating for 10 years. After a suicide attempt he sent the client and her family to see Myers.

"The same knowledge or advice I had given had greater impact coming from an astrologist," said Loomis, who claims to only an amateur's interest in art. "Astrology is a way of understanding yourself... I've told Buz that he is one of the most competent counselors I've ever known."

Myers' explanation of how astrology delineates character and promotes self-understanding was necessarily a bit more flamboyant than Loomis', coming as it did from a former nightclub manager.

Human character, he said, is determined at the time of birth and can be discovered by an analysis of the position of 10 or 12 planets and 1,500 potential "aspects" that make up every individual's unique horoscope.

The exact place and time of birth — down to the minute, preferably — allows for a clear reading of the destiny spelled out by the astrologer's reading, Myers said.

What people learn from astrology, Myers said, is that of us only our destiny, choose whatever happens to us, and that the only way to overcome personal problems is to come to terms with the fact that we are doing what we have chosen to do.

New approach to fractures

LIGHTER, easily applied, yet conveniently removable due to a built-in zipper, is this new urethane cast that has been successfully used to immobilize the fractures of more than 4,000 patients in Germany during the past four years. The system was developed by BSAF Group of chemical companies. The two urethane components are poured into a cotton stocking, top left, which is rolled into the desired length and thickness. It is then fitted to the shape of the limb, top right. Unlike plaster of paris casts, which take 24 hours to cure, urethane cures within half an hour. The cast weighs one pound and has a built-in zipper, left, making the cast readily removable.

Bureaucracy balks on pot use

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 14-year-old girl who was so large for her age that she didn't care if she ever saw her 15th birthday reminded me of myself.

When I was 14, I stood 5 feet 10 and weighed 205. And as if that wasn't bad enough, I had bright red hair. I went on a diet, trimmed myself down, and took dancing lessons to develop grace and poise.

Today I'm 32, stand 5 feet 10, weigh 135 and am married to a wonderful man who's 6 feet 4. We have three beautiful daughters who will probably be Amazons, but we plan to teach them early to make the most of what they have.

QUEEN-SIZED AND HAPPY

Encouraging messages

DEAR HAPPY: Yours was one of many letters I received with essentially the same encouraging message. Read on for another inspiring beaut:

DEAR ABBY: May I add a few words to your advice to TOO TALL because I was there many years ago. TOO TALL is the stuff the models, outstanding athletes and many executives are made of. Being tall means you will never be lost in a crowd. Being too tall is difficult at 14, but if you play it smart, you can be a standout the rest of your life.

The secret? Train yourself to sit and stand erect. Practice a graceful walk. Study dancing. Read a lot and fill your mind with interesting and useful information. Develop any talents you have in crafts, music, drama, writing. Participate in athletics. Find a way to help others. Teach a Sunday school class, work in a summer recreation program, volunteer as a candy strapper at a hospital, visit a nursing home regularly. Train your ears to listen, and your heart to understand.

Stop crawling to your plate for comfort. Hold your head high and quit trying to fold yourself up so you'll look smaller.

If you take my advice, you will soon find yourself surrounded by friends who appreciate you for who you are and admire your friendly outgoing attitude.

Then one day you'll realize that you're dancing with someone shorter than you, and you will both know that it doesn't really matter which one of you is taller.

TALL AND GROWING

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly how TOO TALL felt because I was also too tall in my girlhood. My problem was further complicated because I was also too thin. You may not believe this, but being too thin can be just as painful as being too fat!

At 15, I was 6 feet tall and weighed 125! I used to force myself to drink chocolate malts until I was sick, hoping to gain a few pounds. My parents took me to one doctor and another trying to put some weight on me. They thought I had TB.

The worst part of being so tall and skinny was the cruel remarks I was subjected to.

Abby, please tell your readers that it's just as unkind to remind a person that he's tall and thin (or fat) as it is to remind a person that he's crippled or blind.

I wish I had a dollar for everyone who's ever asked me how the weather was "up there."

And you would not believe the number of people (strangers, too) who have asked, "Say, how tall are you?" What difference does it make if I'm 5 feet, 11 1/2 or 6 feet 2?"

I hope you print this. It just might make someone stop and think before he hurts the feelings of someone who's hurting enough as it is.

TALL MAMA

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—

I am a 45 year old woman, and have relatives who have had sugar diabetes. My mother died at 78 with diabetes. Is there anything I can do to prevent getting sugar diabetes? I am in good health, 5 feet 8, and weigh 150 pounds.

Dear Reader—

The hereditary aspects of diabetes are sometimes hard to establish. Why? Because there is more than one cause for diabetes. It may be inherited or it may follow a disease of the pancreas or even mumps. It is probably several different diseases all with abnormally elevated blood glucose levels.

Other reason is that inherited diabetes may manifest itself at different ages. It first tended to occur at age 75, but the person died from other causes at age 45, there would be no way of knowing that such an individual carried the genes to develop diabetes later in life.

It is a good idea to do what you can to prevent diabetes. Avoiding obesity is the most important measure. Avoid excess sweets and rely more on raw fruits and plain vegetables rather than sweets for the carbohydrates in your diet. Remain active. Physical activity helps keep the blood sugar low. These measures will help improve your health anyway, no matter what.

To give you more information, I am sending you The Health Letter number 211, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb—

What can you tell me about lecithin? My mother has let a friend talk her into taking up to 20 a day. It does not say on the bottle anything about their strength or what is contained in them.

My husband is on a diet of high triglycerides, and she says these pills will help him. I am a very nervous person, and take tranquilizers, and she claims they will help my nerves. Is all this possible? How do you know what is too much when taking them?

Dear Reader—

Would you believe lecithin is a combination of triglycerides and choline. That is all it is. Triglycerides means three fatty acids hooked to one molecule of glycerine. In the case of lecithin, one of the fatty acids contains phosphorus. The whole thing is then chemically combined with choline, another compound that is important in preventing fatty liver and has other functions in the body. Choline is abundant in lean meat and other foods.

And when you swallow lecithin, it must be digested. The triglyceride is broken free from the choline. The fatty acids are broken free from the glycerine and the component parts are then absorbed into the blood stream. It is no longer lecithin. You could get the fatty acids from many sources, and the choline from a good balanced diet.

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Ara Cron, a 63-year-old gray-haired woman with a soft voice, is angry, bitter and disgusted with the federal government because it refused to let her smoke marijuana legally.

"My, yes, I'd much rather have marijuana than surgery," she said Sunday in a telephone interview.

Mrs. Cron is something of an expert both on marijuana and surgery in the treatment of glaucoma, a hereditary eye disease in which fluid builds up behind the eye causing pressure on the optic nerve.

Glaucoma is a painful disease that can end in blindness. Several studies, however, have indicated marijuana reduces the pressure on the optic nerve, preventing the disease from worsening.

Earlier this year, Mrs. Cron's glaucoma took a turn for the worse. She had severe headaches and intense pain around her eyes. Her vision became worse each day.

Her doctor suggested surgery, but Mrs. Cron held back. Instead, she asked the federal government to let her use marijuana.

"I started writing letters, I tried every way possible," she recalls. "I wrote to HEW, to state representatives, to just everybody I could think of. It also hit legally — to no avail."

She also was one of 13 persons who signed a petition presented to Attorney General Griffin Bell in April. The petition asked that hearings be held in an effort to change marijuana's classification as a dangerous drug. The federal government now lists it as a highly poisonous drug of no medical or therapeutic value.

Mrs. Cron waited patiently for six months. But the pressure behind her eyes kept increasing and she could walk no longer. She underwent surgery in June to reduce the pressure. The operation cost her part of her vision.

"I'm very resentful that I couldn't have the marijuana instead of the operation," Mrs. Cron said. "I've lost some sight since the operation. I can't see without my glasses at all now and with them I don't see too well."

"There are some days when I just can't read very well at all. Heavens, yes, I was bitter and frustrated when I came out of surgery and couldn't see too well."

During her waiting period, Mrs. Cron received an unmarked package in the mail from someone who had heard of her plight.

"I don't know if I should be telling you this," she said. "The box was full of marijuana. I was a little fearful to use it because I didn't know where it came from. But my pressure was so high that I tried it."

"It brought my pressure down from 60 to 8 in about 45 minutes. It was wonderful."

Bitter and angry

MRS. ANNA Cron, Wichita, Kan., is bitter and angry at the Federal Government for refusing to let her use marijuana to treat her glaucoma, a painful eye disease. The 63-year-old woman has pledged to do all she can to legalize marijuana for medicinal purposes.

There's no short cut to weight control

© N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — "Right now, there are more people on fat diets than sound ones." This grim assessment, from an official of the American Society of Bariatrics (the doctors who treat obesity), testifies first to the intractable nature of the problem of overweight and second to the unwillingness of most of the more than 60 million Americans afflicted with this problem to accept the fact that there is no short cut to successful weight control.

Through the years, there have been as many fat diets and weight loss schemes as there are calories in a wedge of chocolate layer cake, and they are as effective as the cake would be in helping people to lose weight and keep it off. Yet many people seem willing to risk their future health and even their lives for the promise that this or that reducing gimmick will help them, as one ad put it, "Shed those ugly pounds of fat forever."

Liquid protein diets. Improper, unsupervised use of liquid protein diets is extremely dangerous. These diets have already resulted in more than a dozen deaths, but this has not deterred the tens of thousands of dieters who have put themselves on this near-starvation regimen.

Dr. Myron Winick, director of Columbia University's Institute of Human Nutrition, points out that the liquid protein (prepared from predigested collagen) does not contain a proper balance of amino acids, the building blocks of protein and is actually harder on the body than total starvation.

Most of the liquid protein diets sold over the counter are not properly fortified with minerals, particularly potassium, a deficiency of which can lead to sudden death. The diet may also produce big shifts in body water and electrolytes, causing cardiac arrest. Many of the deaths associated with liquid protein have occurred when users started to come off the diet, possibly because their hearts could not withstand the added workload of a sudden increase in the body's metabolic rate.

The diet is particularly dangerous to persons with kidney, liver, heart, blood vessel or metabolic diseases, many of whom may not even know they are afflicted. Less serious symptoms associated with the liquid protein diet include fatigue, dizziness, hair loss, dry skin, bad breath and constipation.

However, for properly selected patients who are carefully monitored by a conscientious physician, the liquid diet can be safe and highly beneficial. Dr. Leonard Halmes, a bariatric specialist in Miami, Fla., recommends that patients be examined weekly, and a variety of blood tests be taken every two weeks.

Halmes emphasizes that to be effective in maintaining the desired weight loss, the liquid protein regimen must be combined with a program to modify the patient's eating behavior so that he won't return to his former fat-inducing eating habits after reaching his goal.

Low-carbohydrate diets. These come in many guises — The Stillman diet, Atkins diet, Calorie-don't-count diet, drinking man's diet, Air Force diet and others. In all, the idea is to eat few or no carbohydrates — sugar and starch — which means no grains or fruits and few vegetables, as well as no candy, cake, bread and the like.

The diets are popular because there is an immediate, encouraging weight loss. As soon as carbohydrates are consumed the water and weight are regained. A lot of sodium is lost along with the water, which may disrupt the body's electrolyte balance.

While the Stillman diet cautions against high-fat foods, the others say you can eat all the fat you want. Most conventional source of protein — meat and dairy products — are also high in saturated fats and cholesterol, which increase the cholesterol level in the blood and may promote clogging of the arteries and heart disease.

Without carbohydrates, the body burns fat for fuel and it burns them incompletely, producing a sharp rise in compounds called ketones in the blood and urine. The resulting "ketosis" can cause nausea, vomiting, apathy, fatigue, dizziness and low blood pressure, and in persons with kidney disease, it can produce kidney failure.

Other hazards of the low-carbohydrate, high-fat diet include disturbances in heart rhythm, excess uric acid in the blood (a precursor to gout) and, in pregnant women, impairment of brain development in the unborn child.

An additional hazard comes from the high protein in these diets, forcing the kidneys to excrete large amounts of nitrogen-containing compounds such as urea. A person may have marginal kidney disease and not know it, this added stress on the kidneys could result in uremic poisoning, damage to the brain and nervous system and, ultimately, death.

High protein diets have also been found to cause a depletion of calcium and loss of bone. Without fruits and vegetables, dieters often develop symptoms of scurvy from a vitamin C deficiency.

If you plan to lose more than 10 or 15 pounds, it's wise to get a complete physical examination first. Once on a sensible reducing diet, don't expect to see immediate dramatic results. It takes four to seven days to lose a pound of fat (larger early losses, if they occur, are nearly all water, not fat).

Aim for a loss of one to two pounds a week, at most, weighing yourself no more often than every two weeks. People who lose weight slowly are more likely to maintain the loss, and a too rapid weight loss can be hazardous to your mental as well as your physical health.

New approach to fractures

LIGHTER, easily applied, yet conveniently removable due to a built-in zipper. Is this new urethane cast that has been successfully used to immobilize the fractures of more than 4,000 patients in Germany during the past four years. The system was developed by BSAF Group of chemical companies. The two urethane components are poured into a cotton stocking, top left, which is rolled into the desired length and thickness. It is then fitted to the shape of the limb, top right. Unlike plaster of paris casts, which take 24 hours to cure, urethane cures within half an hour. The cast weighs one pound and has a built-in zipper, left, making the cast readily removable.

Astrology 'useful tool'

Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — You and your shrink have been at an impasse for months, now devoid of insights, breakthroughs, transferences or primal screams, you are at wll's end, so to speak.

If he refers you to an astrologist, don't call for the guys in the white coats or file a malpractice suit. It may be a coming trend to judge from a well attended session at the Association of American Psychiatric Services for Children convention here.

And, no, this is not the latest bit of star gazing from the school of California think.

It's the pet project of a decidedly middle-America, middle-aged former Cleveland, Ohio, child psychologist now with the Veterans' Administration, Dr. Gordon Loomis.

Loomis, a soft-spoken, bespectacled counselor of alcoholics at the Cleveland VH, led off a discussion billed as "Astrology and its role in Counseling," with a mild observation that "astrology can be a useful tool" for therapists in their work.

He explained that when patients truly had him stumped he referred them to his friend, astrologist Robert (Buz) Myers.

So far, Loomis has sent 25 patients to Myers, without telling the astrologist anything about his clients' backgrounds. In some cases he let Myers handle the counseling, although he continues to see some patients, sometimes reviewing their astrological findings with them, sometimes not.

One case history involved a 28-year-old woman Loomis had been treating for 10 years. After a suicide attempt he sent the client and her family to see Myers. The result?

"The same knowledge or advice I had given had greater impact coming from an astrologist," said Loomis, who claims to be only an amateur's interest in art. "Astrology is a way of understanding yourself. I've told Buz that he is one of the most competent counselors I've ever known."

Myers' explanation of how astrology delineates character and promotes self-understanding was necessarily a bit more flamboyant than Loomis', coming as it did from a former night-club manager.

Human character, he said, is determined at the time of birth and can be discovered by an analysis of the position of 10 or 12 planets and 1,500 potential "aspects" that make up every individual's unique horoscope.

The exact place and time of birth — down to the minute, preferably — allows for a clear reading of the destiny spelled out by the astrologer's reading, Myers said.

What people learn from astrology, Myers said, is that if all us choose our destiny, choose whatever happens to us, and that the only way to overcome personal problems is to come to terms with the fact that we are doing what we have chosen to do.

"The law of Karma is that you have no one to blame for your problems but yourself," Myers said. "We believe that you choose your environment and that you must make the adjustment if something is going wrong. We regard all problems as learning experiences, as opportunities to grow."

Myers went on to denounce the daily horoscopes as worthless, and said that while astrology can be used to predict the future, it's dangerous as a counseling tool and predictions prove to be wrong about half the time anyway.

South studied for a long while before playing to the first trick. How could he make his contract? At best it looked as if there were only 10 tricks to be gathered in. Then he saw a way to collect 12. He started proceeding by winning the diamond in dummy. Then came a club to his ace, a spade to dummy's eight, a club ruff with the ace of trumps, a spade to dummy's jack, a second club ruff, a heart to dummy's king, a ruff of the last club, a heart to dummy's ace, the lead of dummy's last trump to set rid of trumps while chucking the losing diamond from his own hand and then the lead of the heart deuce. East took his queen, but had to give South the last two tricks with the jack of hearts and ace of diamonds. South had made six trump tricks instead of just five by what is known as a dummy reversal play. It is worthy of note that if South had been careless at trick one and won the diamond in his own hand he would have lost his contract.

Doctor says eyes key to inner mind

DETROIT (UPI) — Your eyes reveal all sorts of things about you. Knowing how to read eyes, says Frank Augusta, can be invaluable in social settings and the business world. "In relaxed conversation, sooner or later your eyes will give you away," said Augusta in an Eye Language Dynamics lecture series in the Detroit area. "Eyes are the key to the inner mind. Just think of how it would help you, man or woman, walking into a room and wondering who's available. "Sure you can tell something by the way the people sit. You know, body language signals. But the best thing to do is look into their eyes and find their comfort zone."

Augusta and psychologist Les Zalewski, who developed the series, agreed. Zalewski developed his theory on eye language, the basic positions and what they mean, by observing couples who came to him for marital and individual counseling, and by a year-long study of research on subconscious reactions and racial positions. Augusta is a sales consultant and "personal" friend. Both believe more can be learned from a person's eyes than from conversation.

hold a one-day, six-hour session, "crammed with information." The class would cost between $100 and $125. Ultimately, Augusta said, they intend to spread the lecture out over two or three days, and possibly hold evening sessions. "You must show people how to recognize patterns of eye movement, and to adjust their conversation to compensate for the eye action response," Augusta said. "You must watch for basic positions, such as upper right or lower left, he said. Those used most often are the ones individuals are most comfortable with, their "comfort zones." Finding a person's comfort zone is similar to meeting a person in his own home, Augusta said, "except we meet them at a mental level verbally in terms of their naturally relaxed state. "We communicate in the English language, but meaning interpretation is often obscure. Have you ever wondered why some people work with figures easily and others are superior in spelling? "Their comfort zones are in visualization."

Boost of fee rapped

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — A proposed federal grazing fee increase could be the straw that breaks the livestock industry's back, according to Al Sawyer, of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association.

The group has called for a congressional moratorium on proposed grazing fee hikes on public lands charged by the federal government.

The fee increases were recommended to Congress by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Berglund and Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus to bring the fee charged for domestic livestock grazing on Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management lands up to "fair market value," the fee charged for grazing on private land.

"The secretaries of Agriculture and Interior have washed their hands of the needs of the livestock industry and its economic condition," Sawyer said. "In effect, they have said 'It is not their problem.'"

The recommendations, if adopted, would increase grazing fees on federal land to $1.89 per animal unit month — grazing one cow or five sheep for one month. Livestock producers now pay $1.51 to use BLM land and $1.60 to graze animals on Forest Service land.

The recommendations call for 25 percent increases in 1978 and additional 25 percent increases until the fair market value is reached.

"We feel they are comparing apples and oranges," Sawyer said. "The problem is what they use to determine fair market value. The information is not up to date."

Private land rates vary from state to state and within a state, he said. But in many areas the BLM and Forest Service have not taken adequate samples of the private grazing fees.

"They averaged all the states (grazing fees for private land)," he said, "and apply that figure to the 11 western states."
