Carter lauds Sadat, Begin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today praised the leaders of Egypt and Israel for making "a historic breakthrough in the search for a permanent, lasting peace" in the troubled Middle East.

Carter told a news conference — which also touched at length on energy problems at home — that the recent face-to-face dialogue between Egypt and Israel have led to a reduction of fear and distrust among Arabs and Jews.

He praised the courage of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in a recent trip to Jerusalem and "the gracious reception of him in Israel by Prime Minister (Menachem) Begin."

On energy, Carter warned Congress that he is not ready to back down on his original energy plan and that he will veto any House-Senate compromise which does not protect consumers — and at the same time address the major problems of energy conservation and production. The President also confirmed he has rescheduled a trip abroad, although he said details would not be officially released until Thursday.

Administration sources say it will begin around Dec. 28 and end about Jan. 5, with visits to Poland, Iran, India, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium.

Carter said Sadat's visit is "already a tremendous accomplishment... an initiation of direct person-to-person negotiations" between Israel and "the strongest Arab country."

"The fact that this strongest Arab country and Israel are now conducting direct negotiations" is a major step, toward peace, he said. The United States has been very pleased to see this reduction in the mistrust... between the Arabs and the Israelis.

"I want to provide my congratulations and my support for these two strong leaders."

He said the meeting met "two of Israel's most cherished desires" — face-to-face meetings and recognition by Sadat of Israel's "right to exist."

But he warned that in the past, "expectations have sometimes been exaggerated" and noted that the problems of a Palestinian homeland and the return of captured Arab lands have not been resolved.

Carter said the Cairo conference called by Sadat is "a very constructive step," and said the United States would "participate at a high level." He said Secretary of State Alfred Atherton would represent the United States.

But he said it is too early to tell if the United States will participate in a proposed U.N. conference on the Middle East.

Despite the sharp attacks by Syria and Libya on Sadat's overtures to the Israelis, Carter stressed in answer to a question that "President Sadat is speaking for the Arab world."

Carter said he felt the Soviet Union has moved "to a much more balanced" attitude toward the Middle East, and that although the two superpowers disagree in many areas on the explosive area, "I believe the Soviets will follow... any constructive steps toward peace."

Refusing to back down on energy reform, Carter warned Congress he will veto any compromise bill which is unfair to consumers or fails to address the dual targets of conservation and production.

The predicted House-Senate negotiators will reach agreement on the hanging issues of electric rates, natural gas prices and a crude oil tax. But he said he still favors the House stands on energy issues, which stand closest to his own.

"I wouldn't sign" a bill which violates three stipulations he earlier set down, he said. Those, he said, are:

—Fairness in dealing with consumers.

—Consideration of a balance between conservation and production.

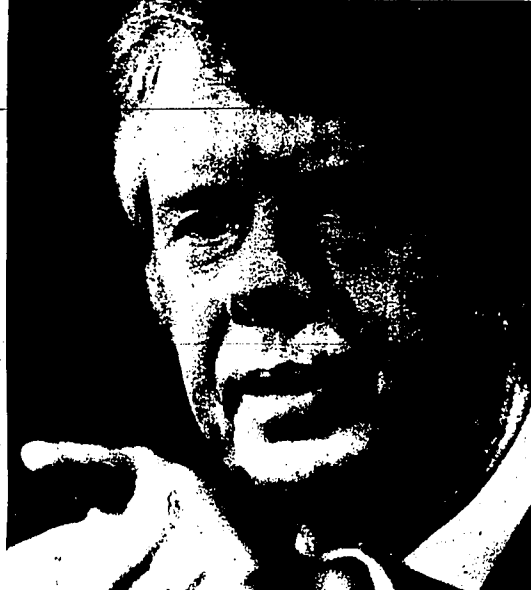

—Approval of a bill "which will not bankrupt the country."

Carter was asked, as he has been before, whether he had made "too many promises" during his 1976 campaign and whether he now was caught trying to fulfill too many of them.

"I'm trying to fulfill all my promises," he said, adding that he thought he had been "quite reticent" in making campaign promises "compared to my opponents."

PRESIDENT CARTER ACCEPTS NEWSMAN'S QUESTION ... warns Congress he won't back down on energy program

More school money Evans' aim

By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gov. John Evans will recommend a significant increase in funding to public schools in his 1978 budget, a spokesman for the governor said Tuesday.

Bob Saxvik, Evans' legislative liaison, made the comment at an evening dinner with area members of the Idaho Education Association (IEA). While telling the 72 educators and legislators present at the dinner that the Governor's budget would not be released until mid-December, Saxvik said, "The public schools will have their turn this time as far as the governor is concerned."

Don Rolfe, executive secretary for the IEA, discussed the proposed legislation which will be presented by the IEA to the 1978 legislature. The IEA's legislative program is formulated after receiving input from its 40,000 members, Rolfe said. Legislation sought by the IEA will include bills in the following areas:

—Retirement. The association will work for improvement of benefits for educators and improvements in early retirement systems. Rolfe noted several states have adopted a system combining age and years of teaching experience. Any combination of age and experience totaling 85 would be considered retirement age, Rolfe said.

—Negotiations. Existing Idaho law on teacher negotiations "needs major revision," Rolfe said. Among changes the IEA will seek are including extra provisions for dealing with unfair labor practices "both from employers and employees," the establishment of some sort of enforcement agency, "a public employees relation board," and the adoption of the "last best offer," form of negotiation settlement. Under that type of settlement, Rolfe said, two deadlocked sides must each submit their "last best offer" to an arbitrator who picks one of the offers as a final settlement.

—Elimination of "super majorities." The IEA will back a constitutional amendment to eliminate the requirement that a two-thirds majority vote is needed to approve bond issues and indebtedness for plant facilities. The current two-thirds requirement, Rolfe said, "gives a 'no' vote the weight of 1 1/2 times the weight of a 'yes' vote."

—Appropriations. The IEA will back bills providing for a 12 percent increase in education personnel costs, a 12 percent increase in operating costs and a 10 percent increase in capital outlay.

—Superintendent salary. Idaho has one of the lowest paid Superintendents of Public Instruction in the country, Rolfe said. The IEA will back a "dramatic increase" in the superintendent's salary "in order to attract the most competent individuals to the job."

—Mandatory immunization. This proposed legislation would require all students entering Idaho schools to show proof of immunization against communicable diseases.

—Teacher lunch bryaps. The IEA supports legislation to provide an uninterrupted lunch period of no less than 30 minutes for Idaho teachers.

—Certification of tax levies. This legislation would allow school districts to certify levies to county commissioners in mills rather than dollars. This would allow districts to compute needs based on current assessment levels.

Iowan gets $587,000 for town

LAUREL SUMMERS LISTENS TO BIDS ... owner, may or sells his town

HURSTVILLE, Iowa (UPI) — Laurel Summers said he just couldn't handle it anymore, so he sold the town he has owned for more than 30 years for $587,000.

The winning bid was submitted Tuesday by a group of local businessmen who say they aren't quite sure what they'll do with the town, which comes complete with 23 houses, a tavern, store, warehouse, city hall and population of 68.

"It has memories," said Summers, 70, who has been mayor and sole landlord of Hurstville since 1944. "It's like you had a child and lost it; it's a sad feeling. But I couldn't stand it any more."

Summers stood quiet and red-eyed as four bids for the town were opened at the Jackson County Courthouse in nearby Maquoketa. The winning bid, from a group of six Maquoketa businessmen headed by former state Sen. Clifton Lamborn, was one of only two legitimate bids.

Summers said he was a little disappointed in the bids. He had hoped for $1 million. But after consulting with his lawyer and members of his family, he decided to let the property go.

"We'll make out alright," said Summers, who in the spring will move to his farm near Maquoketa, where his brother lives.

The businessmen will take over the property in March, but they have no immediate plans for it and only finalized their bid Tuesday morning.

"There are a lot of alternatives," Lamborn said of the property. "There are mineral deposits, there are lime kilns we'd like to see preserved, there's a rock quarry, there's a possibility of selling sand and gravel. But anything I would say at this point would be pure speculation."

Summers and his wife, Ann, came to Hurstville in 1943 and moved onto a 651-acre farm within the town, which was founded in 1870 by Mrs. Summers' grandfather, Alfred Hurst.

The town grew up around a grain elevator built and was incorporated in 1916. Four years later the kiln went out of business and the town founded. When Alfred died, Summers inherited it.

Summers, whose wife died 11 years ago, said he often has had trouble with people who rent his houses, tear them up and don't pay rent, although he admits the structures — most of which lack indoor plumbing — "ain't modern."

"That, and the burden of running the community, finally got to be too much.

"I just can't handle it anymore," he said. "It's too big for me. I want peace and quiet now."

Ex-admiral favors foreign agent ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former U.S. Navy admiral today told House investigators Congress must forbid operations by all foreign intelligence agencies in the United States in light of disclosure of South Korea's secret U.S. activities.

Other nations probably are engaging in similar efforts to influence U.S. policy, Gene R. LaRoque said.

Failure to enact tough new laws will bring "a growth of operations on the Korean model, further attempts to buy influence and corrupt our political process by foreign intelligence agents."

LaRoque testified before a house panel trying to determine if South Korean intelligence agents implemented a plan last year to infiltrate top echelons of the U.S. government, including the White House.

A former Korean CIA agent doubts most of it ever was carried out.

The plan unveiled Tuesday in a House International Relations subcommittee projected spending $750,000 to influence American foreign policy by penetrating Congress and the inner circles of the Ford administration, and to win public support for president Park Chung Hee's often-embittered government.

The KCIA strategy, outlined in 24 pages, focused on "manipulation" of at least four White House aides, scores of congressmen, Pentagon and State Department officials, and opinion shapers in the news media, academic circles and religious groups.

John Ho Young, a KCIA station chief in New York who had defected two months ago, told panel members he thought "some parts of the plan are inflated... my common sense tells me it was not really carried out."

But before subcommittee Chairman Donald Fraser, D-Minn., began a second hearing today, investigators noted Sahn had emphasized in his testimony he was only peripherally aware of the plan's clandestine operations.

They said translation of the document was completed within the last two weeks and they have barely begun contacting those named as targets of payoffs or infiltration. The document also mentions a separate plan for illegal campaign contributions to congressmen.

The plan represents protests against the most damaging evidence to date against Seoul's government, already besieged by criticism for its alleged covert lobbying operations in the United States.

Satellite finds 'black hole' hint

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new satellite scanning the sky for distant sources of X-rays may have discovered the strongest evidence yet of a bizarre invisible star called a black hole.

Dr. Herbert Friedman of the Naval Research Laboratory said the strange object, called Circinus X-1, appears to produce bursts of X-rays in patterns suggestive of the behavior of a black hole.

But he said at a space agency briefing Tuesday on the initial results of the new satellite that the observations were very preliminary and further study is needed before any conclusions could be reached.

Black holes were predicted many years ago on the basis of Albert Einstein's theory of gravitation, but astronomers have been unable to demonstrate they exist.

They are believed to represent the final stage of the collapse of a heavyweight star, compressed so much that nothing could escape their gravitational pull. Everything — including light — would be pulled in like water rushing down a drain.

Since black holes would allow no radiation to escape, astronomers can only detect their existence by studying their space environment.

If a black hole has a normal, companion star as scientists believe, it would draw gas from the companion. As the gas approached the black hole, it would be heated to the extent it would emit X-rays.

Friedman said the theory is that conditions, there would be very turbulent, causing the X-rays to be emitted in frequent, erratic bursts.

He said the preliminary data from new National Aeronautics and Space Administration satellite, High Energy Astronomical Observatory, suggest that Circinus X-1 might be such a twisting, tenuous disc which can distort X-ray emissions.

"It's the kind of differentiation that we've been looking for," he said.

Astronomers first suggested in 1974 that Circinus X-1 might be a black hole because observations from a smaller astronomical satellite showed that Circinus had characteristics similar to those of another X-ray source, known as Cygnus X-1 which also is suspected of being a black hole.

Sugar tariff hike upsets Latin lands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Latin America, upset over higher tariffs and duties on sugar exports to the U.S. market, is charging the Carter administration with protectionism at the expense of developing countries.

The Organization of American States was to consider a declaration today expected to be highly critical of Washington's decision to increase tariffs from 1.81 cents to 2.81 cents a pound of imported sugar, plus an added duty of 3.3 cents per pound.

The new measures were considered by the OAS Tuesday during a special five-hour session in which the higher import charges were criticized for reflecting U.S. protectionism and neglect of Latin American neighbors.

"It is ironic that the first protectionist measure enacted by this American administration affects a raw material whose trade affects mainly the developing nations," said Felipe Vicini, speaking for the Dominican Republic.

During the OAS meeting, Latin American delegates said the new tariffs and duties could cost them up to $50 million in lost income because of foreign exchange losses.

The Latin American diplomats also complained they were told about the measures by the State Department only 24 hours before they were announced Nov. 12.

But the action came as no surprise to Washington officials and industry groups since adoption of the tariffs had been regarded as inevitable for several months ever since congressional approval of legislation setting up a new price support program for domestic sugar growers.

The Latin American concern was compounded by a statement by Gale McGee, U.S. ambassador to the OAS, who acknowledged a resurgence of protectionism in the United States.

McGee's remarks seemed to contradict an earlier statement by U.S. delegate Stephen Bosworth, who said the measures were temporary and would be withdrawn as soon as the new international sugar agreement is working properly.

The United States has also said the new tariffs and duties will be dropped as soon as the world sugar price, now at seven cents a pound, reaches 11 cents.

Index shows gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government index intended to predict the direction of the national economy rose 0.7 percent in October for its fourth consecutive monthly gain, the Commerce Department reported today.

It was a solid rise in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators, indicating current job and production conditions probably will improve in the months ahead.

The department said the two chief factors for the October rise in the index were building permits and the money supply.

The housing industry is building new homes and apartments at the fastest rate in four years. Contractors increased their requests for new building permits by 9 percent in October to boost their anticipated construction 25 percent higher than a year ago.

The Federal Reserve Board has also adopted a moderate policy on money.

The Commerce Department said the index stood at 131.8 in October from the 1967 base of 100.

Since the severe cold weather closed factories and temporarily put thousands of workers out of their jobs last January, the index has risen every month with the exception of minor declines in May and June.

When the index is viewed over a long term, it rose 0.8 percent in the first three months of the year, 1.9 percent in the next three and 1 percent in the final three. These increases are not strong compared to the gains of 2.3 to 5.6 percent in earlier years when the economy was growing broadly and unemployment was low.

S. African whites cast votes today

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Thousands of voters cast ballots today in South Africa's whites-only national election, considered certain to give Prime Minister John Vorster another five-year mandate to block black power.

There was no violence, but police arrested 30 black journalists who staged a peaceful march through downtown Johannesburg. The editors and reporters were protesting the detention of five of their colleagues and the government's ban on the Union of Black Journalists.

South Africa's 20 million blacks, Asians and natives have no vote. The black newspaper the Post said the election was a "non-event."

Commentators predicted the turnout would be light among the nation's 2.2 million whites, but election officials said they expected most voters would cast ballots after work. The polls close at 9 p.m.

Dam inspections planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter announced today a federal-state inspection program to check on 9,000 high-risk dams across the country and prevent another disaster such as the Toccoa, Ga., flood earlier this month.

Carter said $15 million has been set aside for the project that will involve federal assistance to the states to carry out inspections during the next three years.

Carter noted that the none of the dams listed as "high risk" are federal dams. Dams controlled by the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Interior Department have all been adequately inspected, he said.

The program grew out of a meeting Monday with the secretaries of agriculture and interior and officials of the engineer corps. Carter told his news conference.

He said the inspection program will begin "very shortly." In the next few days, he said, the federal government will draft guidelines for the inspections so that the Corps of Engineers and the states can begin the program.

He said state personnel will be trained so that the states can take over the program.

Court to rule on jail access

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court is considering whether to modify its position that reporters have no greater constitutional right than the general public to go into a jail and talk to inmates.

If the outcome could be measured by hostile questions from the bench, the press lost in arguments Tuesday despite a heroic defense by a lawyer for a San Francisco educational broadcast station. But oral arguments do not accurately forecast results.

The case was brought by KQED Inc., which serves the San Francisco Bay area, and the Alameda and Oakland branches of the NAACP, in an effort to gain access to the Alameda County jail at Santa Rita.

After the lawsuit was filed, Sheriff Thomas Houckins started a program of monthly, 25-person public tours of the jail, except for the maximum-security Greystone facility, but banned cameras and tape recorders.

Elephant quarry in Florida hunt

PALMDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Elephant handlers, game commission officers and cowboys searched a vast swamp and jungle-like wilderness today for Colonel, an 8,000-pound Indian elephant that escaped from a circus truck Tuesday.

After his escape, the big bull found his way into a 400,000-acre preserve owned by Kyles Bros. meat packing and shipping firm. The area is so much like Colonel's native land he may be hard to find, said Richard McClelland, the Lykes range investigator who was directing the search.

McClelland scanned the preserve from the air this morning, keeping in touch with ground searchers by radio.

"I've always wanted to go on an elephant hunt," McClelland said, "but never could afford it. Now I've got my wish."

McClelland pointed out that it's far easier to hunt an elephant "because his track doesn't look anything like an armadillo. It's almost like a spaceship crater."

Colonel is a show elephant that specializes in performing head-stand stunts, John Lyons, a spokesman for Circus Vargas explained. "He is also ridden as part of the act. I expect after a day or so in the wild, he misses the other elephants and is ready to come back."

Lyons said Colonel has tusks, but they are trimmed, "and I don't think he would intentionally come up on someone and do them harm. He'll respond to voice commands of a trainer, and we've got three or four of them in the area."

Around the circus, the big bull gulps down about 100 pounds of hay a day. In the wild, Lyons said, he could eat most anything. "He likes grass, vegetation, leaves off trees. I imagine he's near some water somewhere, under a tree."

Lyons said the circus was eager to get the elephant back. "He's been with the circus longer than almost any other. And he's pretty valuable, worth $20,000 at best," Lyons said.

PUC delays flat rate decision

BOISE (UPI) — The Public Utilities Commission has put off until January its decision on an Idaho Power Company request to charge its customers a flat rate.

At present, customers pay less per kilowatt hour as they use more electricity. Instead of that, the power company wants to impose a $4 monthly charge and a flat charge of 1.77 cents per kilowatt hour for all energy used.

The company made the request in a recent filing, a rate increase. The commission granted a 10.3-per-cent rate hike Monday but severed the issues of revenue needs and rate designs for separate decisions.

A spokesman for the PUC said the commission ran out of time on the case. He said if the revenue questions had not been decided when they were, then, by law, the entire $28.5 million increase sought by the company would have gone into effect.

Japan picks trade envoy

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda announced today that high government officials will be sent to the United States soon for negotiations on Japanese-American trade problems.

State Minister for Economic Affairs Nobuhiko Ushiba, the former Japanese ambassador to Washington, is expected to leave for the United States shortly after Dec. 6.

That is the deadline set by Fukuda for a central economic council of cabinet ministers to work out a package of proposals to meet U.S. demands that Japan scale down its huge foreign trade surplus as soon as possible.

Carter competence worries Americans

NEW YORK (UPI) — A majority of the Americans who responded to a new Harris survey are beginning to worry about President Carter's lack of experience and wonder whether he has the competence to do the job, though they still believe he is a man of high integrity.

The survey, released this week, showed that those who responded to the poll:

- By 77-15 percent, a majority feel that some of the mistakes he has made, his lack of experience is clear to see, up from 63-25 percent who felt the same way in July.
- By 57-32 percent, a majority believe that "although he is well-intentioned at times you begin to wonder if he has the basic competence to do the job."
- A solid 83-8 percent majority believe he is "a man of high integrity," almost identical with the 83-9 percent who felt that way in July.

- By 71-15 percent, a majority believe that "he feels deeply about less privileged people and is genuinely trying to help them as president."
- By 66-21 percent, a majority believe Carter "is bringing a new moral tone to the government."
- By 66-24 percent, a majority feel that "what he says he stands for sometimes seems to be different from what he actually does," up from 52-33 percent who shared the same way in July.
- By 59-27 percent, a majority believe Carter "comes up with too many new programs, but doesn't seem to know how to follow through very effectively."
- By 47-36 percent, a plurality feel that "at times, he acts as if he is still running for office against Washington, D.C., where he now is the top man running things there," a turnaround from a 43-41 percent plurality who denied that criticism in July.

- By 67-7 percent, a majority also feel that "with all the problems he has, he is trying his best to do a good job."
- By 44-43 percent, a plurality now deny that "he has learned fast on the job and seems to be on top of everything." In July, a 64-27 percent majority agreed with this statement.
- By 48-37 percent, a plurality feel that "he has a style this is rapidly rebuilding confidence in the White House and government," down from 67-23 percent who felt that way in July.
- By 49-35 percent, a plurality feel that "he is proving to be the kind of new, fresh face we have needed in the White House," down from a 67-22 percent majority who felt that way in July.

Insulation fraud crackdown target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission today announced a state-by-state crackdown on the home insulation business, saying there is already evidence of consumer fraud and certain types of insulation are being brought on by the push to save energy.

The agency said some areas of the country are seeing a thousand-fold increase in demand for insulation and certain types of insulation are almost unobtainable.

The FTC said it has instructed its regional offices to investigate consumer abuses in the field and then confer with state and local law enforcement agencies.

Companies singled out as offenders will be told the FTC has ruled in previous cases it is illegal to "make false or misleading energy savings claims, make claims without having a reasonable basis and fail to disclose any fire or safety risk in using a product which would not be immediately apparent to a user."

Teacher revolt threatens

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland's teachers — on the brink of open rebellion because the school system is broke and their paychecks are being deferred until a new fiscal year begins Jan. 1 — have voted not to teach classes without being paid.

Members of the Cleveland Teachers Union, however, did not call a strike. Instead, many continued to call in sick — suffering from "blackboard flu" — thereby forcing the closing of some city schools.

Despite the lack of money, all of the city schools officially are open because a federal court has ordered them to remain so. However, 14 were forced to close Tuesday because 1,043 teachers — 20.7 percent of the total teaching staff — failed to report to work.

The "no pay, no work" stance gained momentum today, even though the 6,000-member CTU previously had agreed to work through today. The time lapse was designed to allow the CTU to conduct the vote.

CTU President Eugene Kolach said Tuesday night the teachers voted 3,338 to 2,130 against working without pay. The vote was overwhelming even though many teachers were confused about the meaning of the votes they cast

Monday and Tuesday.

"This is as messed up a situation as I've ever seen," Kolach said.

The statement CTU members were asked to approve or reject stated:

"If payment as scheduled is not received by school personnel on Wednesday, Nov. 30, the Board of Education has not honored its contract with its employees and the employees cannot afford to report to work until paid in full on schedule."

On Monday the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati took under advisement the Cleveland schools' money crisis.

WORKERS AT NEWARK, N.J., PORT BACK ON JOB ... use forklift to move big backlog of cartons

Dock strike ends

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dockworkers in East and Gulf Coast ports returned to work today, ending a two-month strike that cost millions of dollars in business losses and piled up billions of dollars worth of containerized goods.

Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, said members were voting overwhelmingly to approve a new three-year contract that provides job security guarantees and increased wages and fringe benefits.

"With the total vote taken so far, and as far as this international union is concerned — and myself — I'm ordering the men back to work," Gleason said Tuesday. "The strike is over."

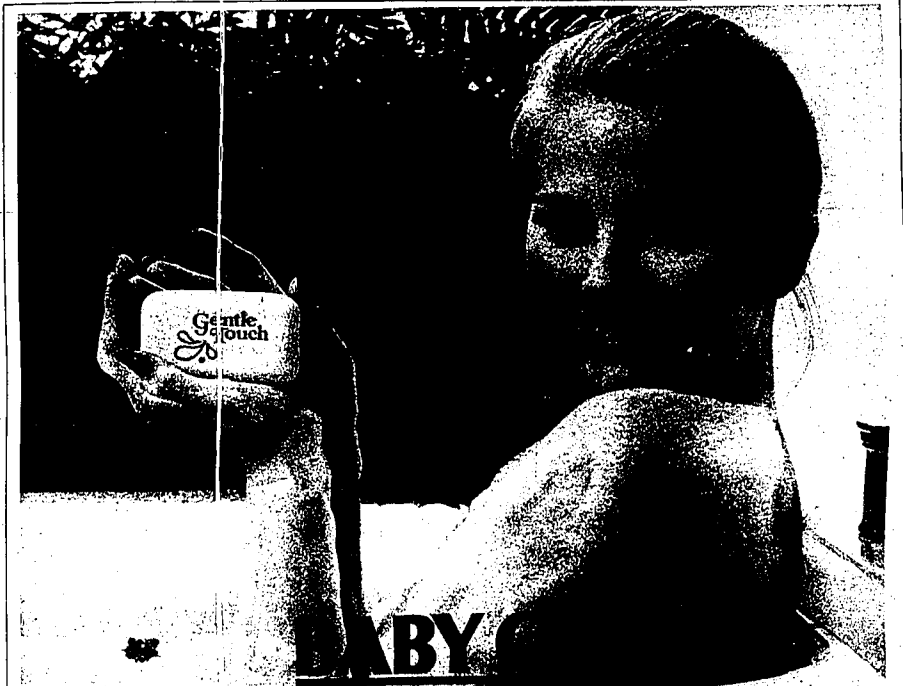

Locals in Philadelphia and New Orleans went today on the settlement, but Gleason said the effect of the overall tally could not be changed by results in those cities.

In the northeast, the vote was running 4-1 in favor of approval of the contract, Gleason said. Trends in other Atlantic and Gulf coast cities were running "three to four to one in favor of the agreements," he said.

In New York, the busiest East Coast port, where 24 containers of automated ships from nearly all over the world were berthed and waiting to be unloaded, extra dockworkers were unloading container ships at 7 p.m. Tuesday, industry officials said.

In Hampton Roads, Va., and Savannah, Ga., IILA spokesmen said workers voted to end the strike and report to work today.

Abortion deadlock holds

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Senate and the House of Representatives remained deadlocked Tuesday on the abortion issue, despite extraordinary efforts by congressional leaders to reach a compromise.

The leaders, hoping to take the lobbyists from both sides by surprise, arranged a compromise Tuesday morning and rushed it to the floor of both chambers in the afternoon.

The Senate approved the proposal by a vote of 44 to 21, but the House rejected it by a vote of 205 to 183. The margins in both houses were little different from those on several previous votes on the issue.

The House thus remained adamant against the use of federal funds to pay for abortions except to save the lives of mothers and the Senate continued to insist on exceptions that would allow some poor women to receive abortions under Medicaid.

The abortion language is tied to a $60.1 billion appropriation bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1, and the departments have been operating on money provided in a special resolution that expires at midnight Wednesday. It was expected, although not certain, that the resolution which continues spending for public service jobs, education and hundreds of other programs, would be renewed.

The compromise drafted by the leaders would have permitted the use of federal funds to pay for the abortions of poor women who were victims of rape. That would have permitted abortions for victims of statutory rape as well as forcible rape.

Arms accord may be near

WASHINGTON — Paul Warnke, chief U.S. arms negotiator, is optimistic about a new strategic arms agreement with the Soviet Union.

After testifying in secret session to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, his remarks are expected to be leaked within the next few days — Warnke told reporters Tuesday there is a good chance of reaching a new arms agreement during the first half of 1978.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, was equally optimistic after hearing Warnke. "We may receive a good SALT I Strategic Arms Limitation Talks agreement within the next few months,"

Church said.

Warnke said the new arms pact would be an improvement over the SALT I agreement reached between President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in 1972.

"It will be better than SALT I," said Warnke. "It will be infinitely better than no treaty."

Drillers given nod

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ten oil companies have been granted permits by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to begin exploratory drilling for oil and gas off the New Jersey coast beginning Jan. 3.

The permits were issued after the EPA determined drilling would not have an adverse effect on the area, a spokesman for the agency said Tuesday.

The permits, which control the discharge of industrial waste, allow the companies to drill for gas and oil in the Baltimore Canyon, an area in the Atlantic Ocean about 75 miles off the New Jersey coast.

Environmentalists have fought offshore drilling, claiming it could lead to spills onto New Jersey and Long Island beaches.

Warnke leaves later this week for Geneva and another round of negotiations with the Russians.

The proposed arms treaty has already met considerable opposition on Capitol Hill, where critics charge that the United States has yielded too much to the Russians.

However, recently reported concessions by the Russians, if true, may make the treaty more acceptable to the Senate, which must ratify it by a two-thirds majority before it can become effective.

Wood burning stoves can burn four ways

Enthusiastic users of wood-burning stoves often say the man who heats his home with wood is warmed three ways.

First, he is warmed when he cuts the wood, second, warmed when he burns it, and third, warmed when he gloats about how he has beaten the high cost of energy.

Unfortunately, wood-burning stoves can warm households a fourth way.

A Priest River woman and her five children died Tuesday when their wood-burning stove ignited their Northern Idaho home.

According to a distraught William Ackerman, father of the five children, his home caught fire when the wood-burning heating stove he recently installed overheated and caught the ceiling of the log house on fire.

Wood-burning stoves can save on heating bills, but they also are dangerous if installed incorrectly. City and county building inspectors around Magic Valley can provide prospective wood stove owners information on safe installation of wood burners.

Flue fires, attic fires and roof fires are three of the most common blazes started by wood-burning heaters.

Use of insulated stove pipe, adherence to manufacturer's recommendations on how far a stove should stand from a wall and construction of high, safe chimneys are three ways to minimize the danger of wood-burning stoves.

TV will miss Eric Sevareid

Tonight, the second best-known newsmen on CBS television retires.

For two decades Eric Sevareid has filled 2 1/2 minutes of air time on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite.

If Cronkite has been the father figure for millions of Americans who learn the news of the day from TV, Sevareid has been the stern grandfather.

White-haired and sober, Sevareid night after night brought thoughtful analytical, and often complex commentary to CBS viewers.

He rarely relied on the quick phrase or the pat answer to solve a national or international problem.

Sevareid brought a nugget of substance to the nightly news, a medium often characterized as all shell and no meat.

Although he often practiced instant analysis, Sevareid complained about the manner in which television and other media constantly sped up the events of history.

Quoted recently in Newsweek, Sevareid said he faulted the press for "chewing everything to bits, every new reputation, or policy line, or program before they have any real chance to mature."

His worries about judgmental media should not be forgotten even after Sevareid retires.

Sevareid had the notion that the world wasn't readily condensed into 30 second spots and tight, easily read news columns. He maintained life was complicated, complex, confusing at times, and the men and women making decisions were neither saints nor sinners, but a volatile mixture of both.

Through the Vietnam War, inflation, the Arab oil embargo, Watergate, the protests of the 1960s, and Jimmy Carter's election Sevareid tried to offer well-founded, thoughtful commentary.

More often than not, he succeeded. For this, he will be missed on the nightly news.

Middle East mood sees change

PARIS — Although President Sadat changed the entire Middle Eastern mood by his bold Jerusalem visit, he made it clear to Prime Minister Begin and Foreign Minister Dayan that the Arabs retain the option to resume war so long as Israel occupies territory they claim.

For the Egyptian leader this refers to lands conquered during Israel's six-day triumph in 1967. But for the so-called rejectionist front which includes Libya, Algeria and Iraq as well as various Palestinian leaders, it means a great deal more. Extreme rejectionists wish to disintegrate the Jewish state and drive it into the sea.

Without doubt Egypt wishes peace. Its announced terms remain tough — although subject to negotiation — but Sadat produced a new psychological situation by telling the Israelis: "Two slogans I want to share — we shall have no more war between us and let us agree about security."

He granted de facto recognition to Israel and to its capital in Jerusalem by his mere presence. This move split the fractious Arab world more than ever, heightening the ancient rivalry between Cairo and Damascus and even touching off incitement by Arab leaders for other Arabs to murder Sadat. Murder is a not uncommon regional sport. What would happen if some killer got to the Egyptian or if Begin, who has a grave cardiac condition, were to suffer a fatal heart attack?

At this particular moment the obvious likelihood is that Israel must be reviewing its contingency plans — in the conceivable event of resumed conflict. These should now logically be based not upon defense against a grinding attack by the massive Egyptian army but on long-range strikes designed to cripple the rejectionists.

Development of anti-terrorist forces in technologically gifted lands has undoubtedly had repercussions in their planning for possible limited and conventional wars. Specially trained and equipped commands have been created in several countries including Israel, West Germany, Britain, France, the United States, the Soviet Union, and others.

Such operations originated as spin-offs from Group Nine effectively raided Mogadishu last month it used similar Israeli operations. One Israeli General Intelligence and Reconnaissance unit ferociously struck Beirut airport in December 1968. Another hijacked an entire Soviet radar-station from Egypt in February 1969. Unit 269 staged the brilliant raid on Entebbe airlifted in July 1976.

Such operations originated as spin-offs from anti-terrorist moves but they clearly have a vast military potential in full-scale conflict. Moreover, Gen. Ezer Weizman, Israeli defense minister, argues: "A state should never undertake the supreme effort of going to war until it has defined its actual state objective, which should dictate all its moves in the war. If a state does not define its political aims before the war, even if its military objectives are achieved in their entirety, and it is flooded with tidal waves of euphoria and showered with the compliments and admiration of the whole world, it has still done only half the job."

If Arab jibes from George Habash of the Palestine Liberation Front to Libya's Colonel Waddafi should precipitate another war it would be foolish for Israel to make any but defensive deployments against moderate neighbors like Egypt and Jordan. Holding forces could be positioned to hit Syria hard, should Damascus make suspicious moves, but that is unlikely.

However, no holds would be barred in far-ranging efforts to destroy the leadership and organizations of principled rejectionist centers and to demolish the huge Soviet weapons stockpiles they have accumulated, especially in Libya and Iraq. It is hard to imagine anything but pleasure in Egypt (with respect to the former) and Syria (with respect to the latter), should reckless extremists detonate such centers.

It would be pointless for Israel to alienate Arab states seeking reconciliation talks or to occupy new areas that would subsequently have to be relinquished. But, with development of general intelligence and reconnaissance units, employing special technological gear and backed by long-range fighters, transports and refueling tankers, swift surgical strikes against rejectionist centers are feasible.

"COOL IT!"

Bill would check civil rights violations

WASHINGTON — Congress is now considering a bill which would once again reopen federal courthouses to a variety of citizen charges that state officials are violating federal constitutional rights.

The bill, introduced by Senator Charles Mathias, R-Md., would give individual citizens and groups access to the federal courts to challenge allegedly unconstitutional official state action including illegal searches, illegally obtained convictions, illegal restrictions on freedom of speech and the press, illegal contempt proceedings and illegal state administrative actions.

Until 1971, the Supreme Court, in its interpretations of the federal Civil Rights Act, had authorized federal courts to hear complaints about unconstitutional actions by state courts, state legislators and state law enforcement.

But with the advent of the current conservative majority on the Supreme Court, decision after decision has been handed down dramatically restricting the rights of citizens to seek this type of federal court help.

As a result there has been considerable criticism by and pressure from public interest organizations, especially organizations which represent minorities such as blacks, women, homosexuals, unpopular political causes and indigent persons accused of crimes.

They argue that recent Supreme Court decisions have made it virtually impossible in most instances to obtain any federal court hearing in many areas where there are accusations of illegal state action.

The controversy surrounds the federal Civil Rights Act which says that "any citizen of the United States" may sue in federal court for "deprivation of any rights, privileges or immunities secured by the Constitution . . ."

Starting with the civil rights movement alleging discrimination in schools, the Act was being increasingly used by other minorities, by state prisoners, by voters and political organizations, and even by state employees and teachers challenging employment conditions.

However, in 1971 a California radical was indicted on charges of teaching socialism and communism. Claiming that the indictment was an unconstitutional infringement on his First Amendment rights, we went to federal court to seek an injunction against the prosecution.

The Supreme Court, in an opinion by the late Justice Black, said that the California man could not ask for federal court help under the federal Civil Rights Act but must instead be tried, convicted and appeal his case in the California Courts.

Subsequently, the Supreme Court expanded on this theory by ruling that federal courthouse doors must remain closed even if there was no actual state prosecution pending if it was quite clear that a state prosecution might start quite soon.

And last term the Court ruled that federal courts should not come to the aid of state citizens in civil cases — in this case a claim by a New York man that he was unjustifiably convicted of contempt for failing to pay off a loan company bill.

At the same time the Court started developing a second doctrine even further restricting the use of the Civil Rights Act. In another series of cases, it ruled that if persons claiming violations of their constitutional rights lose in the state courts, then they cannot come to the federal courts for a "second bite at the apple."

Hearings are expected to be held on the bill in January.

Can peace dreams avert doomsday?

I was born Dec. 19, 1942, war time, in parents of German descent. Love me or leave me.

My daddy left me. My daddy left me and went off to war. My daddy left me and my mommy behind, sobbing.

I was a World War II baby, and we are now coming of age in America. I was born in all the small towns of America. In Twin Falls, Idaho, U.S.A.

Yes, we were World War II babies, born to miss our daddies, born to a cosmic disorder.

For us, daddy's absence was a presence, looming large, looming larger than our own small personal lives, looming, blooming to cover the entire earth with that grey mushroom cloud.

them politely, but they always sounded like screams) and I would line them with prayers, each a certain number of times and in a certain order, turning slowly round in a circle, prayer by prayer, from stomach to side to back to side to stomach —

Meanwhile my sisters slept on peacefully. Or did they? Or did my prayers themselves fire a mushroom cloud, and one big enough, grey enough, to infect my sisters too.

Was I the only one who feared as I did? Was it all alone? Why didn't the others understand? How could they run and skip and play as if nothing was happening, nothing had changed. For who knows, maybe something had changed. Who knows, maybe today the world will end.

So I would think, frowning standing off to the side, watching my sisters and classmates do what children do. I was not a child, I was an old woman. I had seen it all.

I had seen it all in my dreams at night when, finally, exhausted with prayer, I would dip, fitfully, into that never-never-land of fear and prophecy. Which is which. I shall never know.

I'll never know which of my nightmares are mine alone, which are ours together. I'll never know which of my dreams are real, which are merely dreaming. Never know which might alter the course of history — my history? your history? our history? — and thus turn the tide, prove themselves wrong, and thank God, I'll never know.

Now they say we all dream, whether or not we know it. Those of us who know it usually, however, don't care. Our dreams are not real, I think. Real life is when I get up in the morning afterwards. Real life is the life of my plans, my projects. Real life is not my daydreams either.

But sometimes our dreams at night last all day long. Sometimes even the sun does not dispel them. Some dreams cast shadows, like the sun does. They infect us; we feel vaguely ill at ease.

Those dreams who do cast shadows have a power, a light, and in exact proportion to the length and breadth of the particular shadow cast.

Nevertheless, the sun at noon casts no shadows. The sun at noon is at its zenith in the sky.

The sun is at its zenith for one full moment only.

Every day, each and every day of our lives, we have a chance to register this one moment, this light which casts no shadow, this dream of a world which is one, and not two, not divided, not split down the middle — as we go about our daily lives, judging good/bad, black/white; in nations as they go about their headline diplomacy, their secret deals —

Every day each of us has the opportunity to experience the power of these dreams of ours, especially us World War I babies — and before us, those World War I babies, and soon those Korean War babies, those Vietnam War babies — we were all born into a world at war. We cannot help but see beyond our noses, beyond our own small personal lives, at least some of the time. We can't help but dream, at night — and then, at least by morning, begin to cast that mushroom cloud of unknowing, that grey cancer cloud, that fear of our daddy's absence, of that cosmic disorder.

Yes, we can't help but dream too, of that 12 o'clock high, that moment of full sun warmth, that heat that will melt down our differences, and melt them down far enough so that they can be seen for what they are: the living colors of the natural world at noon.

High noon. That one moment of pure light, pure consciousness. High noon, that one, long, magical moment, that moment when our awareness is, or can be, so all-encompassing, so round and all-forgiving, that never again shall we go to war, never again.

For one of these dreams is going to win out. That's for sure. That's how things begin, as seeds, in our dreams.

Some seeds are cast upon hard ground, and so shrivel and die. Others are cast upon the waters, and so drift and drown. Still other seeds, however, fall upon soil deep enough and rich enough to nurture them as they grow, spreading their roots in contact with other seeds' roots, and so, all together to become that mighty oak tree that is or could be the human family.

Is the soil of our life deep enough, rich enough? Or do the winds of change blow too hard here. Do they simply blow over our land, taking the top soil along. Do the winds blow too hard and last here. Do they bend us too far over with their force. Are we so used to war that we prefer it to any unfamiliar dream of peace?

Do the winds blow in one ear and out the other, like our dreams seem to?

Park may pay U.S. visit

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — South Korea may allow Tongson Park, the key figure in the congressional payoff scandal, to visit the United States because he apparently wants to do so, a government source said today.

"We understand his (Tongson Park's) mind is changing and there is no reason for the government to go against his will if he really wants to go (to the United States)," the source said.

It was the first clear indication the Seoul government is willing to let the 41-year-old fugitive Korean businessman testify about his knowledge of influence peddling by Korea in the U.S. Congress.

"Park regards the United States as his second homeland and he appears in deep agony over giving trouble to both his native country and the United States," the source said.

Socialists back Soares

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Portuguese Socialists today reaffirmed plans to seek a parliamentary vote of confidence despite the probability that it would lead to the collapse of their 10-month minority government.

A spokesman said the Socialist Party's 143-member national committee voted unanimously to back Prime Minister Mario Soares' decision to rule alone or not rule at all.

"If we don't reach a parliamentary accord within the next 24 hours, the executive will present a vote of confidence to the legislative assembly," he said.

source said. "He is a businessman and he must have many things to do after clearing this controversy as soon as possible. We understand that is why he changes his mind and rather wants to go to the United States," the source said.

The issue of Park's visit to the United States has been the last major stumbling block in negotiations between Seoul and Washington to clear up the scandal that started in the early 1970's.

The United States mounted diplomatic pressure on the Seoul government for the return of the businessman, but Korean officials refused to send him to Washington. They said the Tongson Park did not want to go and pointed out there is no extradition treaty between the two countries.

The party's position was aired after the national committee met throughout the night to discuss the chances for the government's survival.

The spokesman said that the confidence motion would be introduced Friday, but that debate on it might not begin until next Tuesday. During this period, he said, consultations with the three big opposition parties would continue.

Soares said he would open the talks as soon as he had a few hours sleep and that a cabinet meeting would be held in the afternoon.

British fire toll rises

LONDON (UPI) — Three women died in separate fires in scattered areas of Britain early today and two fire officers and three soldiers were injured fighting a fire in southern England.

News of the latest fire victims came as Prime Minister James Callaghan met with leaders of the fire officers to discuss their position in the nationwide strike by Britain's 35,000 firefighters.

The fire officers, who are not on strike and have been advising army troops on how to fight fires, are under increasing pressure from the strikers to give them more support. Leaders of the firefighters union also are seeking support from the Trades Union Congress, the British equivalent to the AFL-CIO in their demands for a 30-percent pay raise.

The latest fire victims were in Manchester in the industrial midlands, Penzance in southwest England, and Newcastle Upon Tyne in the north. The deaths raised to 35 the fire death toll since the strike began 17 days ago.

Soviets follow Syria lead

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev today all but formally rejected Egypt's invitation to attend a Middle East peace conference, saying Moscow's views on the Middle East are identical with Syria's.

Syria has already turned down an invitation to attend the Cairo meeting called by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to prepare for a Geneva conference on the Middle East.

The Tass news agency said Brezhnev and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met today with visiting Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, who delivered a personal message from Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Israel, the United States and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim have agreed to send representatives to the Cairo meeting without mentioning Cairo by name, Gromyko told Khaddam Tuesday the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's peace initiatives.

Refugees' return sought

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Vietnam asked Australia today to return 181 Vietnamese refugees along with three soldiers seized in a nighttime escape from Saigon in a fishing trawler Nov. 7.

The trawler docked at the northern Australian coast port of Darwin Tuesday. The request was made by the Vietnamese Charge d'Affaires in Canberra in a meeting with senior foreign affairs department officials.

A department spokesman said the request had been noted but that nothing further could be done until normal immigration procedures in Darwin had been completed. The Vietnamese foreign Ministry a few hours earlier asked the Australian ambassador to Hanoi for the return of the fishing vessel.

The 120-ton trawler Song Be was the ninth such refugee vessel to arrive in a week at Darwin, 2,000 miles northwest of Sydney.

Deputy Prime Minister Douglas Anthony said in Darwin Tuesday there would be increased surveillance on Australia's northern waters in an attempt to control the growing number of Vietnamese refugees.

General Mideast meet proposed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is proposing a U.N. Middle East conference that would bring Israel and Egypt together with hard-line Arabs who have rejected Egypt's call for a Cairo summit.

"We have to continue the momentum" generated by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace mission to Israel, Waldheim said Tuesday in floating what he acknowledged was a "trial balloon."

The U.N. conference, to be held perhaps within two weeks, would bring Egypt and Israel face to face with the Palestine Liberation

KURT WALDHEIM ... faces big hurdle

Organization and Arab nations which will not go to Cairo because of anger over Sadat's solo peace initiative, he said.

The United States and the Soviet Union, co-chairmen of the Geneva conference, also would be invited.

One immediate problem facing Waldheim is that Israel has consistently refused to sit at the bargaining table with the PLO. It was not clear how he intended to overcome this hurdle.

Waldheim proposed that the United Nations host the meeting because it is "neutral ground, the most logical place," but added any other site would do. One possibility mentioned by diplomats was Vienna.

The U.N. conference would follow the Cairo summit called by Sadat — so far backed by only Cairo, Tel Aviv, Washington and the United Nations itself — and pave the way for full-fledged Middle East peace talks at Geneva.

The Cairo meeting is expected to begin next week and Waldheim said it is "a very sincere effort by President

"The UANC and I vehemently condemn these massacres. I have sent a letter to Mr. Smith and I shall publish the contents of the letter," he said.

Sadat to achieve a breakthrough," but "only a limited number of parties have agreed to go to the meeting."

Waldheim also said he will not attend the Cairo talks but will send as his representative Gen. Ennio Sillanvuo, a Finnish officer who is chief coordinator of U.N. peacekeeping forces in the Middle East.

The diplomatic maneuvering left the United Nations all but speechless, with most diplomats apparently keeping a "low profile."

Only three states — Kuwait, China and Yugoslavia — spoke on the General Assembly's second day of debate on the Palestinian question and they addressed a chamber where empty chairs outnumbered listeners.

Kuwaiti Ambassador Abdalla Yacoub Bishara noted Tuesday was the 30th anniversary of the U.N. resolution calling for separate Jewish and Arab states in Palestine. The Jewish state was never created.

"Those who dream of a peace without a Palestinian state are mistaken," Bishara said. "No Palestinian state means simply no peace."

Black condemns raids

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A black leader crucial to Prime Minister Ian Smith's plan for a majority rule settlement has condemned Rhodesia's anti-guerrilla raids into Mozambique as a "massacre" of refugees.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, president of the United African National Council, disputed Rhodesia's report that more than 1,200 armed black nationalist guerrillas were killed in last week's raids into Mozambique.

"The people massacred in Mozambique are for the most part refugees," he said in a statement Tuesday. "They are for the most part men, women and children who fled from the land of their birth to seek asylum in Mozambique."

"The UANC and I vehemently condemn these massacres. I have sent a letter to Mr. Smith and I shall publish the contents of the letter," he said.

Trial paints contrasting pictures of Melvin Dummar

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The two sides in the "Mormon will" trial paint contrasting portraits of Melvin Dummar, the desert gas station operator who started it all.

Dummar, by one account, is part of a scheme to raid Howard Hughes' estate with a forged will, which could be the most lucrative forgery in history.

By the rival version, Dummar is "a gentle dunce" who wandered into a law office and told a lawyer, a poor man earning the multimillion-dollar gratitude of a disguised billionaire for a good hearted favor, becoming one of the few to offer help — a ride and a quarter — to an embittered Hughes "without asking anything in return."

The fate of Hughes' fortune may depend on which version the jurors believe.

Attorneys for both sides continued opening statements Tuesday in the trial to determine the authenticity of the "Mormon will." The antiwill side was expected to conclude its opening testimony.

Attorney Harold Rhodes, arguing the "will" is genuine, conceded to jurors that Dummar had indeed "lied to everyone" when the document was discovered.

"I think you will find he's a gentle dunce, sometimes silly," Rhodes told them.

Dummar at first feigned surprise at being named to receive one-sixteenth of Hughes' wealth, but later admitted he himself clandestinely left the document in Mormon church headquarters, saying it had been delivered to him by a mysterious Hughes courier.

He has stuck to his story that his only contact with Hughes came in 1968, when he gave a lift to Las Vegas to an old man he found semiconscious and bleeding beside a desert road. He gave the man a quarter as he dropped him off.

When the man claimed to be Hughes, Rhodes recounted, Dummar, who earlier told the man for "a nut or a wino...thought he had a lunatic in the car."

"We will show you memos (from that time) in which he (Hughes) was angry because people always wanted something from him. Hughes probably remembered Dummar with some affection because he asked for nothing but gave him something — a coin."

Attorney Paul Freese, representing Hughes relatives and business associates trying to discredit the document, said "we are dealing with a forgery and some of the evidence may also be forged," but there are "fatal flaws" in the execution.

Books on Hughes' life and a Life magazine article — containing a photo of real Hughes — were taken from the library of Weber State College in Ogden, Utah, where Dummar was a student, he said.

Some letters were not used in the memo printed by Life. It is those letters, when they appear in the will, that do not correspond to other examples of Hughes' writing because the forger "ran out of luck and ran out of research material," Freese maintained.

He said pages with useful information were torn from the library's copy of "Hoax," the story of the Clifford Irving phony Hughes' autobiography, and the library also provided a copy of "The Bashful Billionaire."

Promise may have saved life

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City Transit Authority policeman Jerome Schwartz promised to wear a bullet-proof vest on his job. Keeping his word may have saved his life.

Schwartz credited the vest with preventing serious wounds when he was stabbed Tuesday during a fight at a subway station in midtown Manhattan.

When Schwartz and another officer, William Kearney, spotted two youths involved in a fist fight and moved in to break it up, officials said, a woman took out a pocket knife and began slashing one of the boys.

The woman, identified as Marilyn Johnson, stabbed Schwartz in the stomach, "but the knife hit my vest and closed on her hand," the officer said.

Mrs. Johnson refused medical attention for a small cut, and was charged with two counts of attempted assault and possession of a weapon.

"She was real apologetic," Schwartz said. "She said she was glad I had my vest on and she didn't hurt me; she had lost her head."

Schwartz said he always wears the vest on the job.

"It's a deal I made with my wife when I came on the job four years ago. It's just your see in the hole."

Daily nip keeps almost doctor away

SEATTLE (UPI) — A drink a day keeps the doctor away," says Dr. William Erkelens — and he's quite serious.

The University of Washington researcher says alcohol beverages consumed in small amounts — say 10 to 20 grams a day — may retard the accumulation of cholesterol in the arteries and help prevent heart disease.

"Following a dogma in preventive medicine, people assume that since alcohol is pleasurable, it must be bad for you," Erkelens, research fellow in the school's division of metabolism, endocrinology and gerontology, said this week.

He said studies done in Framingham, Mass., Albany, N.Y., Evans County, Ga., Honolulu and San Francisco showed the level of a type of cholesterol called HDL cholesterol higher among drinkers than among teetotalers.

However, Erkelens cautioned that too much alcohol will entirely negate any positive effects and do serious damage.

Wright due back in prison

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UPI) — The "Brain of Alcatraz" is due back in prison soon.

The nickname belongs to Cecil Wright, now 71, who in 1949 conducted his own defense to win an early release from Alcatraz Prison. In later years, it became almost common for prisoners to act as their own lawyers.

Panama pays for limousine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sometimes it pays to be persistent.

Several months ago, Panamanian students burned the official limousine of U.S. Ambassador William J. Jordan. The government apologized for the incident and that seemed to be the end of it.

But it wasn't. About every two or three weeks, a reporter asked the State Department spokesman when Panama was going to pay for the ambassador's car.

He finally received his answer Tuesday: "Yes," said the department in a brief written reply, "$3,656 were given to Ambassador Jordan on Nov. 22."

Strangler may have accomplice

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The "Los Angeles Strangler" may be two stranglers, working together to rape and kill young women, police believe.

The number of slayings being investigated as the possible work of the "strangler" rose to 12 Tuesday with the discovery of the body of Lauren Rave Wagner, 18, a petite, red-haired student.

Witnesses told police she was dragged from her car and carried away the night before by two men in another car.

She was the fifth killing attributed to the strangler in 10 days.

Detectives on a multidisciplinary Strangler Task Force are not sure the same killer, or killers, committed all the slayings, but have said there are enough similarities to form the task force and investigate them all together.

"This case bears a number of similarities with the others and will be part of the task force investigation," a police spokesman said. "We have a whole series of homicides which seem to be somewhat related."

because it may provide a key to identifying the killer.

J.G. "Joe" Wagner, Miss Wagner's father, said she left the house Monday night to see a boyfriend.

She was apparently returning home about 10 p.m., neighbors told police, when a large black car forced her car to the curb only two doors from her house. "Two large men" jumped out, dragged her from her car and sped away, the witnesses told police.

Her nude body was found shortly after dawn, sprawled face up on a narrow street on Mount Washington, which is within the five-mile radius where seven bodies have been found. It was found two miles from where the bodies of the two schoolgirls were found, and three miles from where the 11th body was found.

Police issued a composite drawing of a possible suspect.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — In 1927 Ole Edvard Rolvaag wrote the majestic novel "Giants in the Earth," which chronicled the quest of the Scandinavian pioneers to carve their homes and a way of life from the sod of the prairies.

It has been regarded as the great work of the life-and-death struggle against the cold, snow and wind of the winters and the locusts and storms of the summers on the ocean of grass of the Dakotas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Now, a half century later, Ole's son, a former governor of Minnesota, is engaged in a bitter physical fight of his own — the fight against alcoholism.

Karl Rolvaag at age 64 took a hard look at his condition and last Friday called a news conference to announce what had long been known to insiders — he was an alcoholic.

Ending three decades in public life, he resigned from the Public Service Commission with another year remaining on his six-year term. He had resigned as chairman earlier this fall.

"This is a very difficult step to take," he said. "This is an unhappy day," but "it's something of a relief, too. I'm so tired of running and dodging and hiding. I do this with the hope that it may give hope to others with the same problem."

"I've had periods of sobriety in the last three years that have lasted up to 10 months, and other spells of from a month to six weeks. But to drink — and drink alone — and then try to come to work in the morning with a clear head is rather difficult."

"I just didn't think that I was being fair to my colleagues on the commission, my friends or the public. I feel that I've let them down. I want to correct that."

Rolvaag's problems first became public two years ago when he pleaded guilty to drunken driving and, in lieu of a 30-day sentence in the workhouse, agreed to treatment. First he entered St. Mary's Hospital, then Hazelden Foundation at Center City, Minn. Both are pioneers in alcoholic treatment.

If backing is needed in his fight, Karl Rolvaag has a mighty cheering section.

"He's saying that so far he has been so unsuccessful in trying to combat the problem that he is ready to devote the rest of his life to deal with it," said Dr. George Mann, director of chemical dependency treatment at St. Mary's.

"He's the first person I know of, of the hundreds of thousands of alcoholics, who has had to go to that extent to do it. It is a mark of how desperate he is now."

"I think he was worried that unless he took this step he might not beat the problem and the problem might beat him."

Wilbur Mills, once the powerful congressman from Arkansas who had his trouble with alcohol but took the dry road, called Rolvaag and said, "Congratulations, you can win the battle."

A poster on the wall of Rolvaag's office seemed to sum it best:

"Things My Mother Never Told Me"

"Sometimes the Dragon Wins."

Critics give BLM new name

CARSON CITY (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management is probably the most hated federal agency in Nevada. Ranchers, miners and outdoorsmen are continually criticizing the bureau that runs about 67 percent of the land in the state. They don't like the grazing fees charged, the condition of the range, the restrictions on mining and the possible limitation against four wheel drive vehicles. And now the critics are engaged in a contest to give the BLM a new name. Some of the suggestions include "Federal Range Raiders", "Barons of Land Mismanagement", "Bigoted Land Madmen" and "U.S. Bunch of Looney Lovers". More than 1,000 names have been suggested, most ridiculing the agency. And the winner will receive $500 with the runner-up getting $300 and $200. It's all the idea of Tom Norris, a 55-year-old miner from Battle Mountain who says he's "been cussin' the BLM for years." Norris is donating the prize money and the winners will be announced Dec. 20 by the nine-member executive committee of Citizens for Mining. Entries have been piling in from across the west and from as far as Tennessee from men, women and children. A number of them come from Orange County, Calif., the hot bed of conservative politics. Norris says he thinks the concern in Southern California is from offroad vehicle drivers who face a prohibition against using their four wheel drives in certain areas within the federal government. And Norris admits it's a promotion stunt to keep interest alive in the fight against the federal agency. He said public land regulations proposed by the agency would virtually cripple the small miner and prospector. The agency, Norris contends, has been useless and even some of its own people will admit it. Despite the fun promotion, some suggestions are downright mean. For instance, there is one that suggests the agency be called, "Loud Mouthed Bastards," and another recommends the agency be renamed "Bigoted Land Madmen" or possibly "Mean Barbaric Landlords." The BLM is taking this all with amusement. Carl Gidlund, public information officer for the BLM, says it is a neck and neck race between his agency and the Internal Revenue Service. "Casino workers don't like the IRS and rural residents don't like us." "We're pleased Mr. Norris is so successful in mining on the federal lands he has $1,000 to donate to this contest," says Gidlund. Not to be outdone, the BLM has started its own in-house contest to rename the agency. With tongue in cheek, the federal employes have suggested such monikers as The Bureau of Unpopular Missions or "BLM" for short. Others include "Barou Lacking Miracles" and "Bruised, Lacerated, Masochists." And the first prize winner in the BLM will get a transfer to the Internal Revenue Service, quips Gidlund and the second place finisher will be sent to the State Division of Mental Hygiene and Mental Retardation.

Students must carry ident cards

DETROIT (UPI) — In an attempt to restore order to the city's troubled high schools, officials have started turning away students who show up for class without required photo identification cards. Starting Monday, students and staff were required to display the cards in an effort to end incidents of harassment and violence which school officials say have eroded instructors' ability to teach and students' ability to learn. "The main thing is peace in the schools," said schools spokesman Richard Levey. "From the reaction among staff we can see that they are tremendously heartened by the policy." Officials hope that by keeping outsiders from entering the schools, violent incidents can be cut and achievement levels will increase, Levey said. Education officials said 1,341 students — or less than five percent of the approximately 40,000 pupils in city high schools — were refused admittance on the first day of the crackdown. "We are quite happy over the response of both students' and staff to this new policy," said superintendent Arthur Jefferson. "We expect that this figure of non-compliance will go even lower as students adjust to this policy." Levey said spot checks Monday showed dissension among some students, but most were behind the new edict. "There's been a lot of griping about it," Levey said. "From the more articulate ones, some worries that it's going to be a police state. But from others, and presumably the majority, who have talked to us about it, they're pleased. "They're interested in learning" and interested in associating with other students who want to learn."

The get-tough policy began the week after a citizens commission appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Robert DeMaso to monitor implementation of the schools' integration plan issued a report deploring disciplinary problems. But school officials said the ID card program had been in the works for more than a year and was not a response to the commission report. The court-appointed panel said conditions in the schools were chaotic, and that a two-year-old, court-mandated student conduct code still was not being enforced on a uniform basis.

"I don't know. Are you sure groovey vibes and our both being into macrame is enough for marriage?"

Guidelines affect convention signups

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government employees are attending fewer conventions and enjoying it less. Strict new guidelines, initiated by former budget director Bert Lance, for attendance at conferences and meetings already are affecting registrations at some conventions, says a weekly newsletter. The cost was too high, the guidelines say. The crackdown was launched last August, says the Nov. 25 issue of "Association Trends," a newsletter for officials of national associations. It said the restrictions are affecting registrations at conventions of national associations which government officials customarily have attended. The guidelines said attendance by government workers should be limited to meetings where "there is a direct benefit to the achievement of an objective related to the agency's mission and fees are in line with actual costs."

Seven-week vigil pays off

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — For seven weeks this fall, George and Ruth Boner temporarily made their home in a trailer in the parking lot at Hamilton Hospital. Inside the hospital, their son, George, 19, lay in a coma with a brain injury suffered in an auto crash. The Boners, of Avenel, N.J., set up housekeeping at the suburban hospital while keeping a vigil at their son's bedside, watching for any signs of recovery. The brain injury, suffered in a crash on the New Jersey Turnpike, left young George as helpless as an infant. He was unable to talk or walk and had to be toilet trained all over again. The Boners spent the first days of the vigil sleeping on couches in the hospital lobby. Then other members of the family brought them a 6-by-10-foot travel trailer for use as a temporary home. As the weeks passed, young George's condition began to improve. He took his first feeble steps and spoke his first words. Dr. Leonard Svarzein, one of George's doctors, says, "The acute period is over. He's shown great improvement." During the weekend, the Boner trailer was pulled out of the hospital parking lot. The Boners returned to their home 25 miles away, waiting for their son's transfer to a rehabilitation clinic in East Orange for physical therapy. The Boners feel their seven-week vigil paid off. "They say just as being here helped bring him around," George's father said.

Court rules cash meals are income

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a decision that may involve millions of dollars in revenue, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that a state trooper must list daily cash meal allowances as extra income on federal tax forms.

Government lawyers interpret the ruling, in a New Jersey case, to mean troopers across the country who get similar payments for on-duty meals will have to pay taxes on them — except when they are eaten on overnight trips and thus qualify as deductible travel expenses.

The Internal Revenue Service said millions of dollars in revenue were at stake. A decision in favor of New Jersey trooper Robert Kowalski, who challenged the agency's position, could have had wide impact by encouraging other employers to pay similar allowances as tax-free benefits, it said.

The IRS states now pay cash meal allowances amounting to about $10 million a year to 10,000 police troopers. They are in Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Texas and Wisconsin.

The New Jersey allowance is a flat rate for troopers' on-duty meals in their patrol districts. They do not have to account for how it is spent, and receive it even if they eat at home or carry their lunch.

Justice William Brennan wrote that the payments constitute income because they are in cash, they do not fall under a tax law exception which says an employee may exclude from gross income

"the value of any meals ... furnished to him by his employer ... on the business premises of the employer."

Justice Harry Blackmun and Chief Justice Warren Burger dissented.

Government lawyers say under a 1967 high court ruling, cash allowances are not deductible as travel expenses unless they involve an overnight trip. Tuesday's decision does not cover deductions for overnight trips or executive "business lunches."

But the IRS is reviewing tax deductions for all fringe benefits.

In another action Tuesday, the high court upheld by a 4-4 vote a U.S. appeals court decision easing the time limit for filing age discrimination charges.

The tie vote, with Justice Potter Stewart not participating, sets no national precedent but fixes the law in the 10th Circuit covering Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah and Wyoming.

The Age Discrimination in Employment Act specifies that in many instances notices of private suits must be filed with the Labor Department within 180 days of the alleged illegal act.

Three other circuits have treated the deadline rigidly, dismissing all cases where it was not met. But the 10th Circuit ruled in the case of Anne Darity, a former Shell Oil Co. employee in Tulsa, Okla., that the period can be somewhat more elastic if there is a good reason.

Ms. Darity, fired in 1973 at age 51, now may proceed with an age discrimination suit.

Decision expected in McGinnis case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen departed with the U.S. State Department and Bolivian Embassy Tuesday that a decision is expected from a lower court within a week regarding Tom McGinnis of Idaho Falls.

McGinnis has been held in a Bolivian prison on drug charges for some 18 months. Hansen attended McGinnis Monday at the Bolivian Embassy where he discussed the prisoner matter with Ambassador Crespo. McGinnis has been recommended for abolition but must await court action on the matter.

The Idaho lawmaker said a lower court decision of innocence or guilt would then be reviewed by the Superior Court. "It is a tedious process but hopefully the major hurdle will soon be behind us."

McGinnis is one of six Americans being held for completion of judicial review after government prosecution. "Even though the release of

Tom McGinnis was my main reason for traveling to Bolivia during the Labor Day period, I also went as an emissary for other concerned members of Congress to assist any and all Americans held there," Hansen said. "The visit has paid off very well with eleven Americans now having been released during recent weeks. "Hopefully the six not considered guilty by the prosecutors and three others due for conditional liberty will soon be free, bringing the total to 20 of the 41 known to be held in midsummer."

Three Americans have escaped in recent weeks and have not been apprehended.

"One encouraging note is that Bolivians are no longer picking up small offenders and those who may be technically but unknowingly involved, as in the case of Tom McGinnis," Hansen said. "This should close the doors to any future injustices such as the Idaho Falls youth is now suffering."

Senator welcomes free mail denial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church Tuesday welcomed a State Department decision to deny its postage-free franking privilege to the National Commission on the Observance of Women's Year because of a mailing, done under a State Department frank and return address, which accuses the Mormon Church of "subverting the law and which equates the church with the Ku Klux Klan."

"The Department," Church said, "has taken steps to see that its frank will no longer be used for such mailings by revoking the commission's use of its frank and return address. I welcome these steps in the aftermath of a mailing which casts aspersions on a respected religious institution."

Last week Church wrote to the department to protest a press release identified as coming from the Office of Public Information of the State Department which accused the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints with "being engaged in attacks to subvert the purposes of the law and the goals of the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year."

It also linked the LDS Church with the Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society.

In a response to Church, Acting Assistant Secretary of State J. Brian Atwood said "it is regrettable that the letterhead used by the commission may have led to the erroneous impression that the views expressed were attributable to the Department of State."

Atwood said the State Department had no responsibility for the mailing although he said the department franking privilege had been used to send it across the nation under a State Department return address.

Atwood noted the Department had extended "administrative services" to the commission when it first was created by presidential executive order and that the use of the Department's frank had continued to be used after Congress passed legislation superseding the order. The legislation gave the commission its own postage authority.

Work record rewarded with bonus

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Going to work and getting there on time — a daily struggle for a lot of people — is an increasingly popular goal of employees at one Magic Valley manufacturing plant.

In the past year, more than 60 Tupperware Co. of Jerome employees have compiled perfect attendance records, and the company which soon pay out more than $100,000 in bonuses to more than 700 employees with one month or more of perfect attendance.

Tupperware personnel manager Ken Baumgartner, in reporting the preliminary figures, said the number of employees in both categories and the amount of bonus money paid out has increased each year since the perfect attendance program began in 1975.

Employees with perfect attendance during the work year, which ends today, receive a $400 bonus to be paid about mid-December and are eligible to win the grand prize, a new car. The winner of the $7,000 car will be chosen by lottery at the company's Christmas Party Dec. 10.

Other employees receive $25 for each month of perfect attendance during the past year.

Baumgartner said the perfect attendance contest helps an employee pay attention to the clock and to be more conscientious. Contest rules require employees to be at work on time everyday, except in case of a death in the family or military and jury duty.

"In any production plant, time is a big deal," Baumgartner said. "If every employee at Tupperware were five minutes late, the company wouldn't be in business very long."

He said there are complaints because the rules are strict and no exceptions are allowed. But Baumgartner said disappointed employees like the contest for several reasons.

He said employees know ahead of time what their bonus is going to be and can plan on having the money about mid-December; they have a chance at some bonus even if they miss a few days a year, and those who are conscientious are rewarded.

In 1975, when Tupperware initiated the perfect attendance contest and the bonus system, about 40 employees had perfect yearly attendance and 687 individual bonus checks amounting to $77,175 were handed out.

In 1976, 739 checks totaling $90,000 were passed out, and 51 employees had perfect attendance competed for the grand prize. This year, Baumgartner said he expects more than $100,000 to be paid out and, as of last week, 66 employees had perfect attendance for the past year.

During last week's heavy snowstorm, the Tupperware management exercised their option of suspending 106 perfect attendance contest rules and exempted three shifts as "snow shifts." Employees who were late couldn't make it to work because of the snow were still eligible for the perfect attendance contest.

The 1975 grand prize winner, Darlene Helderman, of Gooding, called the contest "a wonderful thing." She had missed one day of work in the past four years.

Mrs. Helderman, now a second shift instructor and morale officer, said, "It's a very hard situation, but it's worthwhile in the long run."

"Some days you would like to stay home," she said. "But you feel maybe I don't feel so bad, and maybe I'll feel better once I get there."

Mrs. Helderman said the contest gives her a goal to strive for and something to look forward to at the end of the work year. She said she would rather have the contest than somewhat higher wages for that reason.

Joint attack set on hypertension

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue Cross Association and the National Heart Lung and Blood Institute are joining forces in a new attack on high blood pressure at a place where it might be most easily found — on the job.

The aim is to cut deeply into the toll of premature death from strokes and heart attacks triggered by hypertension suffered by 23 million Americans.

Walter J. McNamey, Blue Cross president, announced Tuesday that the focus of the test program will be offices and factories.

"The question to be answered during this experimental program is being launched," he said, "is this: 'Can the nation's No. 1 Killer — high blood pressure, hypertension — be brought under control by having people screened and possibly treated for it at their place of work?'"

If the answer is "yes" it could mark a dramatic new direction in the nation's attack on high blood pressure.

About 20 percent of Americans have hypertension; 70 percent know it. Of the 70 percent who know, only 30 percent are in effective therapy," McNamey said.

"The study funded by a $500,000 grant from the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute will come up with a prototype 'work site' hypertension education, screening, treatment and follow-up program, as well as the methods needed to market it to employers and other groups," he said.

"This will be done in cooperation with health organizations in the firm's area, as well as assistance from doctors, hospitals and medical societies."

Through its 69 member plans, Blue Cross of America now provides health care coverage for 84 million Americans, including about 31 percent of the employed population.

In the initial phase of the high blood pressure project, workers in at least two Blue Cross plans will be trained as hypertensive specialists.

"If the program developed is found feasible, the 69 Blue Cross plans will offer the on-the-job program to up health prepayment subscribers," McNamey said.

'Disaster' averted

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Nampa firefighters averted what Fire Chief Bill Wallis termed a "potential disaster" when called to the scene of a railroad car leaking hydrochloric acid Saturday night.

The leaking tank car was sitting at First Street S. and Nampa Boulevard storing the acid for use at the Amalgamated Sugar Co. factory, Wallis said. He contacted Chemtek, national poison control center in Washington, D.C., for advice on how to handle the situation.

At the time of the incident, Wallis said the concentration level of the acid was unknown, but that it could have given off lethal fumes if strong enough. It turned out not to be a lethal concentration — although several firefighters reported feeling "burns" afterwards.

The firefighters doused the area with water since hydrochloric acid is water soluble. Railroad crewmen were called in to lighten the fittings "which was a long drawn out process," Wallis said.

The fire chief said he will be looking in to laws to determine if the acid can be moved to another location for storage.

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (UPI) — America's top teen-agers are becoming increasingly conservative on both political and social matters, supporting the death penalty and strong defense spending and eschewing sex, drugs and alcohol, a poll of 24,000 students indicates.

The 8th annual survey of "Who's Who Among High School Students" released Monday shows a marked reversal of the liberal trends reported by Educational Communications, Inc., in the late '60s and early '70s.

Nearly half the students questioned said they have never had beer and 61 percent said they never tried hard liquor. In 1972, 85 percent said they had tried some alcoholic beverage.

Drug use also fell, according to the survey, with 88 percent of those questioned this year saying they have never used drugs and 91 percent saying they had never used marijuana. Five years ago, 28 percent said they had used drugs or marijuana.

About 70 percent of the students said they had never had sexual intercourse, and 56 percent of that group said the reason was their own moral standards rather than parental pressure or lack of opportunity.

In this year's survey, 77 percent called for either maintaining or increasing defense spending, a proposal that drew support of only 8 percent of the teens four years ago.

Support for the Equal Rights Amendment has fallen, the survey indicates — in 1974, 74 percent favored the amendment. In this year's survey, only 57 percent favor passage.

But the death penalty has gained increased support — 66 percent in the current survey as compared with 50 percent in 1971. And 64 percent favor some sort of censorship of certain books, movies, television shows and periodicals, a proposition that drew only 36 percent support in 1971.

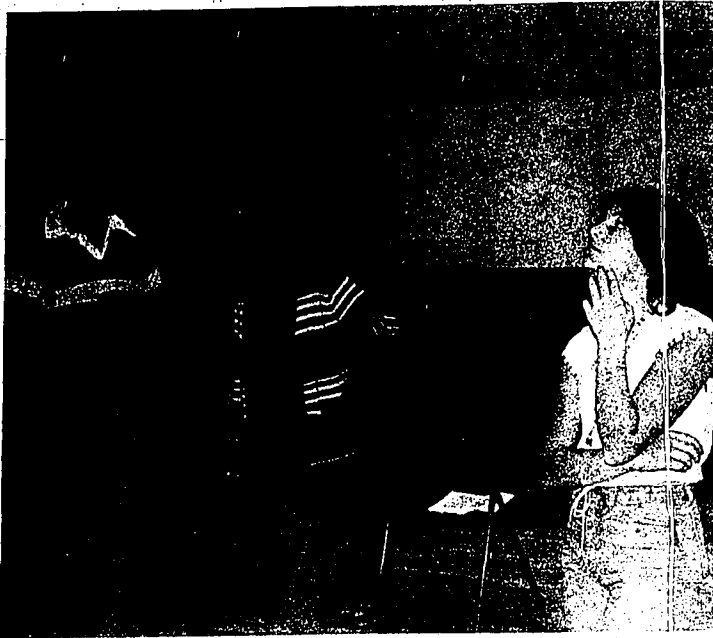

The students chosen for the survey are recommended by high school principals or counselors or by national youth organizations, on the basis of leadership in school or community activities and achievements in academics or athletics.

Santa Claus sued for $25,000 tooth

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — All three-year old Ronald Litterer wants for Christmas is his front tooth and he has filed a $25,000 suit against Santa Claus and one of his helpers to get it.

The action was filed Monday by Litterer's father against "John Doe, also known as Santa Claus and Jane Doe, also known as Santa's helper."

Litterer claims that when Ronald delivered his Christmas list to Santa on Nov. 23, 1976, at a shopping center here, Santa and his helper dropped him on the floor, fracturing a tooth.

Heart group seeks tobacco curbs

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The American Heart Association has urged the government to end subsidies to the tobacco industry and to further curb cigarette advertising.

"It is estimated that cigarette smoking is responsible for 325,000 premature deaths each year and total mortality is twice as high in cigarette smokers as among non-smokers," said a committee report approved by the AHA's executive committee.

Updating its 1971 report on cigarette smoking and heart disease, the committee recommended a ban against "seductive, misleading advertising which might induce children and young adults to take up smoking."

"The sale of cigarettes where children can purchase them should be banned (and) sale of tobacco to children should be made a legal offense, as for alcohol," the AHA statement said.

Dr. Joseph T. Doyle of Albany Medical College, who helped draft the committee statement, went even further at a news conference Monday. "In essence," he said, all cigarette advertising should be banned.

"I would have to concede that cigarette smoking is a drug addiction and must be treated in that way," Doyle said.

Dr. William R. Harlan Jr. said middle-aged professional men have been giving up smoking in recent years, but middle-aged women and all teen-agers are increasingly picking up cigarettes.

"We know an awful lot of the difficulty of stopping smoking, but we have to find out why people start," said AHA President Dr. Harriet P.

Dustan, who admits to smoking half a pack of cigarettes a day. "Until we find this out, we haven't accomplished much."

"It's now clear that one has to have an impact into the behavior patterns of children at (age) 11 or 12," Harlan said. Preventing youth from smoking is one of the most important phases of the campaign, he said.

"The government is urged to refrain from granting subsidies to promote the growth, manufacture and sale of tobacco," the AHA statement said.

Monarch's child designated heir

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The Swedish government has approved a special commission report calling for the monarch's first-born child, whether male or female, to be first in line of succession.

The government was expected to recommend to Parliament next week that the constitution be changed making Sweden the first country in the world giving princes and princesses equal rights to the throne.

Following a recent meeting between the party leaders and Justice Minister Sven Romanus, the law could not take effect before 1980 but it would be retroactive. Thus, four-month-old Princess Victoria, King Carl Gustaf and Queen Silvia's first child would become Sweden's first reigning queen since 1720.

According to the reports, this would make Sweden unique in the world. There are female monarchs in other countries — for example Britain, Denmark and The Netherlands — but they ascended their thrones only because there were no males to precede them.

The royal couple and the Marshal of the Realm were opposed to the change but now agree with the commission report, newspapers said today.

Justice Ministry spokesman Sten Lundberg would not confirm the reports but said the proposal was expected to go before Parliament next week and be voted on for the first time in the spring.

If vetoed, the proposal will be dropped. If approved it must be voted on again by Parliament following the next general election in 1979.

The non-Socialists — who hold an 11-vote margin in Parliament — are said to be the main force behind equal ascension, although there are republicans in their ranks.

The Social Democrats, who governed Sweden for four decades until losing the 1976 election, have had abolition of the monarchy as the first plank in their party program since the beginning of the century but have not forced the issue because the monarchy is popular.

Fast-moving storm on way to Idaho

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert areas.

Increasing cloudiness tonight, leading to chance of light snow Thursday. Overnight lows tonight will be from 15 to 20 degrees and high temperatures Thursday will be 35 to 40.

Friday's outlook is for chance of scattered snow flurries.

Synopsis:

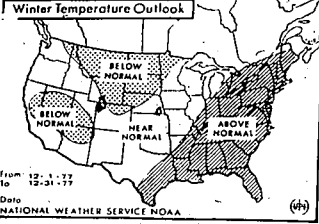

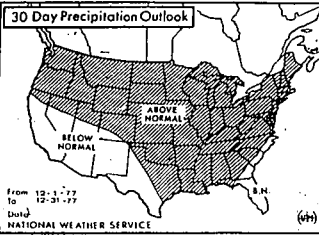

The low between storms over Idaho continues at a rate of 24 to 36 hours between each storm.

High pressure covers most of the Intermountain West but is not strong enough to stop these rapidly moving Pacific storms.

One of these storms moved across the Magic Valley Tuesday morning, but left little more than a few hundredths of an inch of rain.

Sunny skies will dominate the weather today before the next storm reaches the state tonight.

Kennecott launches purchase campaign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kennecott Copper Corp. said Tuesday it has commenced an offer to buy shares of Carborundum Co. at $66 a share although a New York state judge has ruled it cannot actually buy any shares pending his ruling on a Kennecott stockholder's plea for a preliminary injunction to bar the offer.

The court said it would rule on the injunction plea by Dec. 16. Under Delaware corporation law, Kennecott could not actually consummate purchase of any Carborundum shares before Dec. 16 in any case.

Justice Irving Ricksenbaum gave no indication of how he would rule on the suit of Fredericks S. Danziger, a lawyer, and Kennecott shareholder. Danziger charged the $66 price for Carborundum shares was a waste of Kennecott assets and accused the Kennecott management of acting hostilely. He demanded that Kennecott shareholders be permitted to vote on the acquisition.

Kennecott lawyers said the Danziger group owned only $50,000 worth of Kennecott stock and was trying to impose its will on the majority.

Evans fills posts

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans announced today his appointments Monday including that of Barbara Patrick Nichols, Emmett, to the Commission on Women's Programs.

Other appointments include Margo Briggs and James L. Jones, Pocatello, inauguration commission for the 4th Judicial District, and Patricia Ann Stokes, Boise, and Alvin

W. Justen, Glenns Ferry, inauguration commission for the 4th Judicial District.

Other appointments include Paul Jacobsen, Shoshone, State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners; and Una Svaonne Pritchle, Boise, Suzanne Everts, Coeur d'Alene, and Roger Lamb, Carmack, Lewiston, reappointed to the State Board of Cosmetology.

Bus hearing postponed

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has postponed indefinitely a hearing requested by Greyhound Bus Lines and the Star Valley Teton Stages who oppose a permit issued to Idaho State University to run a commuter bus daily from Idaho Falls to the campus.

The commercial bus lines have charged that a proper hearing was not held prior to the permit issuance.

A bus appreciation day was held Monday at Idaho State University and a rally supporting the continued bus service was held.

First '77 payments made

GARLAND, Utah (UPI) — U and I Inc., has made initial payments for the 1977 sugarbeet crop of $23.5 million to growers in Idaho, Utah and Washington, a decrease of $5 million from last year.

Idaho growers received $8.8 million from U and I as initial payment for 1977 crop beets delivered through Nov. 5. Utah growers received $2.9 million, and growers in Washington State were paid $11.8 million.

Laurence Smith, Utah district manager for the processing company, said Tuesday that payments for subsequent deliveries will be made later.

The average payment per ton of beets was $18.50, Smith said, compared with $16.12 per ton paid at this time last year.

"The increase in this year's initial payment is in anticipation of higher prices due to the price support programs recently instituted by the government," Smith said.

"The market has improved some, but the programs have not actually been implemented. As the full effects of the programs are evidenced in the marketplace, subsequent payments to growers will reflect any increases."

The price support programs, Smith said, seek to set a minimum basis price for raw sugar of 13.5 cents a pound. The market during most of the past year has hovered around the 10 per cent mark.

The company's total initial payment last year was $23.5 million.

Gas line equipment OK'd

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Northwest Pipeline has been told it can install equipment in Idaho and Wyoming to handle an expected increase in deposits and withdrawals from the natural gas storage facility in the Clay Basin Field in Daggett County Utah.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission authorized construction of additional facilities costing about $13 million on the main transmission line in Wyoming and installation of compressor stations at Opal, Wyo., and Program and Lava Hot Springs, Idaho.

Another compressor will be added at the Green River, Wyo., station and modifications will be made at Pocatello, Idaho and Kemmerer, Wyo., stations. Northwest will also build 5.5 miles of 26-inch pipeline parallel to its main line south of the Green River station.

There is currently about 9.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas stored at Clay Basin and available for use this winter, according to Northwest chairman John McMillan.

The field is owned and operated by Mountain Fuel Resources of Salt Lake City, which has developed it as a storage reservoir in a joint project with Northwest.

McMillan said next year the usable storage in the reservoir is expected to double to about 20 billion cubic feet with a daily deliverability of 150 million cubic feet.

N. Gem gas prices dip

BOISE (UPI) — The price Washington Water Power customers in Idaho pay for natural gas will dip Dec. 1 to reflect a drop in the wholesale cost of gas purchased by the utility.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has signed an order authorizing the passthrough of the .207 cents per therm decrease.

The decrease reflects a drop in the wholesale price charged by Northwest Pipeline Corp. for pipeline and storage gas.

The effect on a typical residential bill of $4.99 for 150 therms of natural gas would be a decrease of some 31 cents.

Rescue team finds gear on mountain

MOUNT BORAH - Mountain search and rescue teams discovered Tuesday the first signs of two missing Idaho mountain climbers who set out Thanksgiving Day to scale Mt. Borah, Idaho's highest peak. Two-thirds way up the southwest slope of the 12,662-foot mountain searchers found two sleeping bags and a backpack believed to belong to Von Howard, 22, and Guy Campbell, 21, according to the Custer County Sheriff's office. "They (the pack and sleeping bags) were lying there as if, maybe they had dropped them off and would pick them up on the way back down the mountain," Sandy James, a secretary in the sheriff's office, said today. Howard and Campbell set out last Thursday to climb the upper summit of Mt. Borah, 20 miles north of Mayfield. When the two young climbers had not returned Saturday to their homes in Idaho Falls, concerned relatives notified the Custer County authorities and a search was launched Sunday. A search and rescue squad immediately found the climbers' vehicle Sunday on an access road at the base of Mt. Borah. Several of the mountain searchers spent Tuesday night on Borah, James said. The mountain is snow-covered and constantly hit by winds which make it near impossible to spot any tracks and difficult to scale the mountain's peak, she said. The sheriff's secretary also said reports indicate Campbell had some experience with technical mountain climbing while Howard was an inexperienced climber.

SHEPHERDS CLAIM COYOTES ARE KILLING MORE OF THEIR SHEEP THAN EVER BEFORE ... and are organizing a private land closure for next fall to dramatize the problem

Ranchers organize land closure

By JEFF SHER Times-News writer MAGIC VALLEY - Pushed to the brink of financial crisis, Idaho sheep ranchers have decided to dramatize their plight by organizing a closure of private lands throughout Idaho to all public use beginning Sept. 1, 1978. According to John Faulkner of Gooding, president of the Idaho Woolgrowers Association, the number one gripe of the sheepmen is the inadequacy of current methods used by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (F&WS) to control the spurring coyote population and the number of sheep killed by coyotes. "In addition, Faulkner said woolgrowers are protesting the 160-acre limitation on land which may be irrigated by Bureau of Reclamation water because, in a twist worthy of the label Catch-22, it threatens their ability to obtain grazing permits on government land. To obtain a grazing permit, sheepmen must have enough property to raise sufficient feed to see their flocks through the three to four months each year that they are not on government range. But on 160 acres, there's "no way" for most sheepmen to raise enough feed to qualify for the permits, Faulkner said. Because they have similar problems in gaining satisfaction from government agencies, particularly on the 160-acre issue, the sheepmen hope to enlist the support of cattlemen and irrigators in closing lands to the public. The closure coincides with the beginning of the hunting season in Idaho, and Faulkner said the closure is not intended to alienate hunters or any other group, but rather to "get the people behind us" by dramatizing the problem. The movement will not be restricted only to

Idaho, but will cover other Western areas, Faulkner said. He said he is "sure" the Utah sheepgrowers and cattlemen will join in the closure. Faulkner said the sheepgrowers have been patient with the F&WS since 1972, when the use of most chemical poison control methods was banned. But now the sheepmen have their backs against the wall. "Frankly, we're just frustrated. We don't know what to do. We've got to do something or we're going out of business," Faulkner said. Coyote predation intensified during 1977 as a result of the drought, Faulkner said. F&WS predator control efforts are most effective in open, low-lying country, but because of a lack of snowpack in the high country, coyotes never came down to the areas where they could be effectively hunted. As a result, sheep herds suffered few losses in the spring while grazing in the lowlands, but when they entered the higher ranges they were decimated by the untamed coyote bands, Faulkner said. Coyote control in the high mountains is next to impossible, Faulkner said, because aerial hunting, the chief eradication tool remaining in the F&WS arsenal, is rendered ineffective by terrain and vegetation. Faulkner said he does not blame the F&WS service for the sheepmen's problems, because he feels they are doing the best job they can with the tools they have. But that does not alter the fact that many sheepmen in Idaho, including Faulkner, claim to have lost 10 to 15 percent of their herds to predators during the last year. He said.

Ruling reversed JEROME - The Idaho Supreme Court last week reversed the 1976 burglary convictions in Jerome Fifth District Court of Larry Ellis Peterson, who had appealed his case to the high court. The court ruled Peterson's guilty pleas were invalid because the record failed to show he had "knowingly and intelligently waived his constitutional rights to a jury trial, to confront his accusers, and to refrain from incriminating himself." Peterson pleaded guilty Sept. 21, 1976, to seven counts of first degree burglary and was sentenced by 5th District Court Judge Theron Ward to the Idaho Board of Corrections for a term not to exceed five years for each count to be served concurrently. The Supreme Court ruling reverses the convictions and remands Peterson's case to the district court.

Exception to plan

Jerome planners OK rezoning request

By LARRY SWISHER Times-News Writer JEROME - Terming it the only exception to their plan to keep heavy industry on the east side of Interstate 80 south of Jerome, county planning and zoning board members Tuesday night approved the rezoning of about 8.7 acres for an auto salvage yard on the west side of the freeway. Robert Miller of Jerome made the request for a rezoning from agricultural to heavy industrial, saying he plans to use half the site for an auto parts salvage yard and half for display of used trucks and equipment for sale and lease. He said he would build a slight-obscuring fence around the salvage yard on the land, which is one mile south and seven-eighths of a mile west of Jerome. While several board members at the public hearing on the matter Tuesday expressed concern they might be opening the door to other heavy industry on the 8.7-acre site in the future, there were no objections from residents at the meeting. In fact, about 12 local residents signed a statement in support of the rezoning, which was presented to the board by one neighbor. The statement said the residents were not objecting to the junkyard but that "it's none of our business" and that "we respect each other's property rights." The statement cited Constitutional rights to freedom of action as long as others' rights are not violated and said the residents had no objections to Miller using his land as he saw fit.

to keep heavy industry on the east side of the interstate. He also said the "exceptional request" should be approved with the understanding Miller would remove junked cars "at appropriate periods" and that he provide a description to the Jerome County Commissioners of the type of fence he will construct. The rezoning now goes to the county commissioners for final approval. On another matter, the board approved the rezoning request of Jerry Waymott for two acres one mile west and 1/2 mile north of Jerome from agricultural to commercial. Waymott said he plans to move his auto body repair shop from downtown Jerome to behind his residence on the land. Jeff Sherburne of Twin Falls presented to the board preliminary plans for a 120-acre subdivision five miles south and 1/2-mile west of Jerome. The Sunnyside Acres development would tentatively have 37 lots, most 2 1/2 acres in size, and a full preliminary plat is forthcoming, Sherburne said. The planning board passed a motion to require 10 days notice previous to their monthly meetings on any proposal requiring action so board members and the county zoning administrator would have more time to study proposals and plans.

Teens improving

TWIN FALLS - Two persons injured in a traffic accident near Murtaugh Saturday night are reported improving at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Roy Kirkland, 17, Murtaugh, driver of the vehicle, is reported in stable condition this morning. A passenger, Lori Madison, 15, Hazelton, is listed as good. Four others were treated for cuts and bruises and released. The Kirkland vehicle left the highway south of Murtaugh on the Artesian Road and overturned late Saturday night. Darrell Dumas, 16, Kimberly, who was injured Friday in an accident which claimed the life of Nathan Jones, 18, Twin Falls, remains in critical condition. He was taken to St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise, where he is being treated in the intensive care unit.

Poor hay market impacts area plant

By KEN HODGE Times-News Writer TWIN FALLS - Recent layoffs at a Twin Falls alfalfa processing plant have been attributed to a combination of normal thinning and "depressed market conditions" which are influencing alfalfa processing throughout the nation, a company official says. Protein Processors, south of Twin Falls, which dehydrates alfalfa and forms it into pellets for livestock feed, recently laid off about 20 temporary summer workers and four regular workers in its normal seasonal work force reduction. The layoffs, however, reflect nationwide changes in the dehydrating industry as a whole in this nation, due to a sagging market for pelletized alfalfa, according to John Snodgrass, sales manager for Halston-Purina, St. Louis, Mo., owner of the Twin Falls plant. "The situation we're facing is no different than anyone in the country," Snodgrass says. "The market is very depressed and export demand is low. The combined effect has been pretty bad." Snodgrass also explains energy costs for operating the Twin Falls plant have nearly doubled in the past three years. He says the cost of natural gas in Idaho is the highest of any state in the U.S. in which Halston-Purina has dehydrating plants. Ken Smith, executive vice-president of the American Dehydrators Association, Mississoula, Kan., says since 1970, several alfalfa dehydrating plants in the nation have closed their doors due to a combination of various market conditions and government regulations. "There is no way I can attribute those shutdowns to any one factor," Smith says. He adds depressed market conditions are attributable to two factors. First, since drought conditions in Europe have improved, the demand for exported alfalfa pellets dropped by one-third this year. In addition, dehydrated alfalfa production in this nation is up about 10 percent compared to 1976. He says manufacturers produced about 1.4 million tons of dehydrated hay pellets so far this year compared to only 1.2 million tons for the same period last year. Also, in the early 1970s, when the Environmental Protection Agency began getting tough on manufacturers in this nation, some dehydrators shut down rather than invest the capital necessary to pay for equipment, necessary to assure their plants met state emission standards, Smith says. In Idaho, Protein Processors can allow only a 40 percent opacity in the smoke it emits from its stacks, can allow only a certain percentage of its processing weight to be emitted in the smoke and must be careful of "fugitive emissions" which may escape from other parts of the plant, according to John Pfander, of the EPA in Boise.

Burley shooting probed

BURLEY - Burley police are investigating the shooting death of an 18-year-old man who died Tuesday in Cassin Memorial Hospital of what appeared to be an accidental, self-inflicted pistol wound. Hector Martinez, Burley, died Tuesday after a 22 caliber pistol he kept in his car went off while he was reportedly playing with it in the parking lot of Burley Junior High School about noon. "We are investigating all possibilities of anything," Captain Pete Rodriguez of the Burley police says. "We don't want to leave anything out, but we are strongly sure it was a self-inflicted accidental shooting." Rodriguez says the Burley police responded to a call at the Junior High school and found Martinez already wounded at the scene where he and a friend had reportedly been playing with the pistol. Martinez had been shot in the abdomen and died about 2:30 p.m. at the hospital. Cassia County Coroner Bruce Young says an autopsy has been performed and there is still a question about whether an inquest will be held.

Plan won't replace old water laws

BOISE (UPI) — Adoption of the State Water Plan will not supersede existing statutes, an attorney general's opinion held Tuesday.

With a few exceptions, legislative action to change existing statutes or to appropriate funds will be required to implement each of the policies proposed in the plan," Deputy Attorney General Phillip J. Rasmier said.

In response to a query from State Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, Rasmier said the State Water Resources Board was ordered to formulate a state water plan, but the Legislature saw fit by concurrent resolution to withhold approval of the plan until it was reviewed by the lawmakers.

Rasmier said adoption of the plan by concurrent resolution "will not supersede or replace any statutes governing the Water Resources Board."

"Adoption of the State Water Plan by the Legislature will not constitute legislative approval of any specific projects or programs proposed in the plan without further legislative action. Nor will it acquire established water rights if necessary for the construction of water projects."

"Because of the board's authority to acquire established water rights through purchase of eminent domain, it must be concluded that the Legislature did not intend to prohibit the board from giving some consideration to waters already being utilized in accordance with state law. What is indicated by the statute is an intent that provision be made in the state water plan for the protection and preservation of established water rights."

Rasmier also held that there was not a conflict in the Idaho Constitution and that conservation of vested water rights under the state water plan was not prohibited.

He said if there was a constitutional conflict, it would be up to the courts to settle the matter.

Tornadoes rip Southern states

By United Press International

Tornadoes and funnel clouds ripped through Louisiana and Alabama and fierce thunderstorms covered much of the lower Mississippi Valley, bringing rains of flooding and flood watches in several Southern states.

A funnel cloud was reported early today by police at Mobile, Ala. A tornado warning was issued as the cloud moved away from the city.

Tornadoes and funnel clouds also moved through southern Louisiana Tuesday, from the coastal community of Grand Chenier to inland Tangipahoa Parish. No serious injuries were reported and no major damage at South Cameron Elementary School in Grand Chenier, damaging a section of roof, breaking windows and pushing a car against the school building in Tangipahoa Parish, two mobile homes were overturned and several were blown off foundation blocks. Two persons received minor injuries.

In addition, tornadoes and funnel clouds were reported over Lafayette, near Lake Pontchartrain in the New Orleans area and near Gonzales, La.

In a six-hour period ending early today, more than three inches of rain fell at Jackson, Miss., and more than two inches at CoComb, Miss., and Baton Rouge, La.

The National Weather Service reported heavy rains from Louisiana to Alabama early today and issued flood watches for parts of Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

Intense winds were expected to return today to the eastern Rockies, and a high wind warning was issued.

Sustained winds of 75 mph were reported Tuesday at East Glacier, Mont., but service station operator Tony Sitzmann took it in stride.

"We're used to that. What's 75 miles per hour?" he asked.

Several inches of snow fell over northern New Jersey Tuesday, creating hazardous driving conditions and closing some roads. It was the start of the season at Newark International Airport.

Persons with snow on their sidewalks were advised Tuesday by Dr. Michael Kozlans, a heart specialist, that shoveling can cause heart attacks for those who are out of condition.

"The best way to make it through the winter," he advised, "is to spend a little money and have a neighborhood kid do the shoveling."

Arsonist sentenced

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Magistrate William McDougall has sentenced a 15-year-old Boise boy to five days' detention for starting two small forest fires near Idaho City this summer.

The boy admitted starting the fires. Two other juveniles believed responsible for the 925-acre Kirkham Hot Springs fire near Lowman have not appeared in court as yet.

Gov. Evans to seek low-cost BPA power

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans will ask a congressional committee in Boise next week to allow Idaho to share equally with Washington and Oregon in low-cost electrical power of Bonneville Power Administration.

Evans said he prefers the problem of regional production and sharing of electrical power be solved by Congress. But he said if the congressional delegations of the Northwest cannot agree on a solution he favors creation of a Domestic Rural Power Authority to make Idaho a preference customer able to compete with other purchasers when BPA contracts are up for renewal in 1983.

Washington has its own public-power authority. But Idaho and Oregon have relied on private companies for power generation and sale.

Evans plans to testify before the water and power subcommittee of the House Interior Committee at Boise Tuesday.

State health plan aired

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — A proposed new state health system plan for Idaho received a public airing in Coeur d'Alene Tuesday night.

About 30 persons attended the meeting. Most said they felt the goals and objectives of obtaining better health care in the Gem State were laudible, but wondered what, if anything, the new plan would do to reduce soaring costs.

Dr. Clarence Thompson, a member of the northern Idaho subarea Council of the Idaho Health Services Agency, agreed that the goals are unattainable.

But he defended them saying one has to have goals to make any progress.

He added costs could be reduced if people were educated so they "don't" "overuse medical services."

Comments from the meeting will be forwarded to Boise where a citizens committee is scheduled to meet next week to prepare a final draft of the systems plan, according to subarea council chairman Larry Benton, Sandpoint hospital administrator.

Responding to several complaints that not enough time was allotted to digest the 466 page document, Benton said even members of the subarea council had only received copies three days before the meeting. "It's just part of the process," he told one protester.

Merl E. Leonard, Twin Falls County commission chairman, said the board met Tuesday to interview the last finalists. He said one woman and two men are being considered for the directorship at this time.

Dennis McDermott, former director for this region, resigned about three months ago to go into private business from the regional office in Idaho Falls has been serving on a temporary basis.

Director selection nears

TWIN FALLS — Selection of a director by Region 3 of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare in Twin Falls is expected to be announced within a few days at the most, Rita Hogg, chairman of the regional advisory board, said today.

She said three finalists for the position have been interviewed by the board and recommendations made to Milton Klein, director of the IDHW for Idaho. Klein will make the appointment following discussion with his division heads and after reviewing recommendations from the regional board.

Mrs. Hogg said she hoped to have yet today from Dave Humphries, assistant state director.

"We have been without a permanent director for about three months now," Mrs. Hogg said. "All of us have urged the department to make their selection as quickly as possible so our programs can continue on a permanent basis and some of our administrative staff vacancies filled in the region."

Casper-Snow game features tourney opener

between Casper and Snow is judged by junior college watchers to be the favorite to advance to Saturday night's championship game. The tournament includes twelve games with starting times at 2, 4, 7 and 9 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at the CSI gymnasium.

Meanwhile, Coach Mike Mitchell said starting guard Curtis Rayford probably would see no action in the tournament. Rayford sustained a foot injury in Saturday night's final in the Casper tournament and while doctors currently don't feel he refractured a small bone in his foot, the Chicago guard reported considerable pain.

TWIN FALLS — CSI Golden Eagle season passes will not be bought for the K and T Steel Invitational tournament opening here Thursday afternoon.

When teams to play, and the minimal fee we charge for the season ticket couldn't possibly support both the regular season and the tournament," he explained. He added "the season pass is still good for 14 regular season games and we consider that a bargain."

In addition, 6-4 guard David Ferguson spent Tuesday in bed with the flu, a malady that has so far hit four Eagles and Coach Mitchell in the last 10 days, and his recovery wasn't predictable.

Coach Dale James will bring easily the biggest team in TVOC history into the fray. He transferred Gary Simon, a former Nampa star who attended Montana last year, and Pat Mullings, both at 6-9 and Bob Pruitt at 6-7 among the tallest. Also back for the Chukars are leading-scorer Wendell Talley, an all-regional selection last year who had two good scoring games against CSI; Albert Dickcy, the team's second best player a year ago, and Eric Ely, the Chukars' top rebounder in 1976-77.

Casper also showed good depth in its tournament last weekend.

Coach Mitchell points out the tournament format is a little different than usual in that the upper bracket semi-final game will be kept in the afternoon session Friday. Usually the winners of the first round are moved to the evening session.

Coach Mike Mitchell emphasized that point in an effort to preclude any misunderstandings that might arise at the gate during the tournament.

The tournament runs Thursday through Saturday with afternoon and evening sessions beginning at 2 and 7 p.m.

Size similarly will have considerable snow to draw against Casper. The Utahns, in fact, will be a tad taller if 6-8 Larry

At 7 p.m. Thursday, Skagit Valley of Mount Vernon, Wash., will meet Eastern Utah. Skagit Valley reports it is in the opening moments of a rebuilding year, having only one letterman returning from last year's 19-club. Eastern Utah, along with Skagit Valley, is among the shorter teams in the tournament but the Eagles have performed well in previous visits here.

By Saturday, however, only two teams will remain undefeated and they will play for the championship at 9 p.m. The two semi-final losers will meet at 7 p.m. Friday for third and fourth with the 2 and 4 p.m. games deciding seventh-eighth and fifth-sixth positioning.

Filer jumped into a 10-3 lead in the first quarter and pretty much held an eight or nine point lead the rest of the way.

Coach Julie Astorquia cited Pickett's inside defense and rebounding as a key to the win in addition to her 12 points.

Filer's layaves ran their record to 3-0 by winning the first game.

The Filer girls will play Wood River at 8:30 p.m. Friday, as part of a twin bill with the boys varsity season opener.

Reno bombs BYU

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Johnny High and Mike Gray, a pair of highly touted junior college transfers, bombed 28 apiece from the backcourt Tuesday night to lead University of Nevada Reno to a surprisingly top-sided 100-66 win over Brigham Young.

It was the third win without a loss for Reno, which led 49-39 at the half and then exploded after the intermission. The Pack, hitting 55 percent from the field, needed only 8 points from star center Edgar Jones.

St. John's drops Vandy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — St. John's, hitting only three of its first 20 shots from the floor, stormed back behind George Johnson's 14 points in the second half Tuesday night to defeat Vanderbilt 59-54 for its third straight victory of the season.

Trailing 11-2 the first eight minutes of the half, the Redmen rallied to tie 17-17 and trail by only three at the half.

During the final 20 minutes they hit 18 of 25 shots from the floor to put the game out of reach. They outscored Vanderbilt 12-2 during a six-minute shutout.

Lobos shatter record

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — New Mexico, behind the scoring of Marvin Johnson and Michael Cooper, bombed little New Mexico Highlands University, 125-73, Tuesday night, the Lobos' second straight early season victory.

New Mexico, which opened the season with a 120-70 win over Idaho last week, put its opponent away early, breaking away to a 24-lead in the first six minutes.

Johnson led the Lobos scoring with 27 points, while Cooper added 18. Center Jimmy Allen with 17 and guards Mark Felix with 15 and Russell Saunders with 12 added to the Lobos barrage.

Falash, Thomas draw top Twin Falls athletic awards

TWIN FALLS — Three time state champion Brenda Falash drew a standing ovation and defensive back Ryan Thomas won the Paul Ostyn award Tuesday night at the Twin Falls fall sports award banquet.

Falash, who is pointing toward national honors in the national AAU junior cross country championships in Long View, Wash., next week, led Twin Falls to three straight team championships and was the individual titlist each year. She also is a starting guard on the basketball team and has a first and second to show for two trips to the state 800-yard finals. In making the award presentation, Coach Duane Sands said of Brenda "to my mind she is the outstanding athlete in the state."

Thomas, who earned second-team all-SIC honors, joined some excellent company in earning the Ostyn award. It goes to "the hardest working player with the greatest desire to win." In addition, Thomas was selected as the most improved player on the Brain football team.

Football Coach Murray Johnson also made several other grid awards. These include outstanding defensive back, Mark Salinas; defensive lineman (and co-captain elect) Junior Kelly DeKramer; top offensive lineman, Lawrence Pfefferle; top defensive back, junior Pat Allison, and kicker, Mark Fisher, who won the SIC title with a 40.5 average. Curtis Grant also was announced as a co-captain elect.

Cross-country prizes went to the five members of the girls state title team, including Brenda Falash, sophomore Cindy Crow, Tammy Asher, Diane Scott and Heidi Walker. Boys cited in cross country were state runner-up Carlos Hernandez, Joe Martinec, Mike Newberry, Kerry Rohweder and Corey Armstrong.

Volleyball awards went to Teresa Bell, Tammy Krumm and Susan Atkinson and the gymnastic prizes were picked off by Michelle Doerr, most improved, and Vanessa Garrett, outstanding gymnast.

Ulcers force retirement

DETROIT (UPI) — With tears in his eyes, University of Detroit basketball Coach Dick Vitale retired from coaching Tuesday because of a bleeding ulcer.

Vitale, who picked up the tatters of the Titan basketball program four years ago and led the school to an NCAA bid last season, said he would stay on as Detroit athletic director. Assistant Dave Gaines was named to replace Vitale and becomes the school's first black head coach.

"Last night I had the toughest meeting I ever had in my life with my players and my wife," Vitale said. "After three major bleeds, I've had it."

"The one thing about bleeding inside is that you don't feel it. I feel super," he said. His voice choked and he began to sob. It was one of several tearful interludes that punctuated his announcement.

"I always wanted to be a pro coach. I guess that's out the window now," he said.

Vitale, 57, compiled a 78-30 record in four seasons as Detroit's coach, highlighted by a 25-4 record last year that brought the Titans their first NCAA bid since 1962 and the days of Dave DeBusschere.

Detrol's hopes for a national title were snuffed out by Michigan, 86-81, in a game which brought the Titans to the verge of national prominence.

Vitale said the pressure he puts on himself in coaching may have aggravated his ulcer.

"The problem, I think, is when I cross the lines for coaching," he said. "Because I'm such a perfectionist — the way they lace their sneakers, how high they have their socks has to be just right."

"I drive myself so internally, it just tears at me. The night before a game I cannot begin to tell you what I do to my body."

"I feel like a guy who's a major leaguer," said Vitale. "An Al Kaline, a Brooks Robinson... 36, 37 years of age. I have to hang it up. It's time to take up another phase of life."

"I'm not closing the door to coaching. I don't know what's going to happen a year from now, two years from now. If I'm going to be unhappy not coaching, I'd rather be on the floor. If I have to go that way, I'll go that way."

LA mayor confident of hosting games

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayor Tom Bradley, a former track star at UCLA, said Tuesday he is confident the city won't have to build and Olympic Village or give up financial control to the International Olympic Committee should the city win the right to host the 1984 Games.

Bradley also said he will ask the City Council to pass a 16 percent tax on all admissions to Olympic events to help generate revenue to pay for the games.

The mayor said he expects the admissions tax, along with sales, business and bed taxes, to generate a minimum of $6 million.

New York has forgotten Red Holzman

NEW YORK — Not too long ago Red Holzman was revered as a basketball brain, the coach of the New York Knicks in 1973 and 1970 when they won National Basketball Association championships. "On the bench," Walt Frazier once said, "Red knows everything that's going on. He's at his best when we're at our worst." But the world turns. Willis Reed has succeeded Red Holzman as coach. And the brain is now listed as the Knicks' consultant.

"Red's current duties," declares the Knicks' yearbook, "will... revolve around... player evaluations, although he will do some scouting too." But he's the consultant who's not consulted. He hasn't been asked to evaluate players. He spent one day at training camp. He doesn't even have a desk now in the Knicks offices on Madison Square Garden's fourth floor. He's been exiled to an obscure cubicle in a corporate cave adjoining the Felt Forum lobby. It drops in there a few hours before the Knicks play in the Garden, as they did Tuesday night against the Houston Rockets, then he has dinner with his wife Selma in the Penn Plaza Club and they watch the game from the last row of the side promenade behind the visiting team's bench.

"It's a hell of a seat," he was saying with a smile. "Nice and comfortable."

Red Holzman is not complaining. Not at a salary of $150,000 this season, the last year of his coach's contract; not at $50,000 a season for the next five years. Gray-haired and trim, Red Holzman is 57 years old now and he appears content in exile.

"It's no problem with me," he said. "I've got time to play tennis now."

He plays at the Atlantic Beach Club, not far from his suburban Long Island home.

"I'm learning. I'm improving. I'm not sensational but I'm good enough to enjoy it. My arrangement with the Knicks is very good for me. I'm available to be consulted."

coach, in Reed's early years and a scout since then) and Nat Frazier (the Morgan State coach for seven seasons). In the transition, Red Holzman is seen in only one of the photos. He was wearing a dark suit and his face was contorted. But he was blurred. Out of focus.

"That picture of Bill Bradley," he was saying now to somebody on the phone, "if you want it, keep it."

As the new coach, Willis Reed understandably wants to do it his way. He confides in his two assistant coaches, Dick McGuire the Knicks young team. It's interesting to watch and it's running well. They've got three rookies who can play. Ray Williams is going to be great. Toby Knight shoots beautifully and goes to the boards well. Glen Goodenrich goes to the offensive boards, handles the ball well and hustles. He's got a lot of guts. This team can go a long way. It's a lot deeper than last year's."

But from the last row of the side promenade, Red Holzman sees a game differently than he did on the bench.

"I'm looking at the ball more now," he explained. "Coaching, you're not looking at the ball all the time. You might be watching a team run a play, watching the players move instead of watching the ball. Or you might be watching to see if a man gets boxed out on a rebound instead of watching the ball. Coaching, you're always storing things away. I'm still storing those things away."

Storing them away in the brain of the consultant who's not consulted.

"I've got no complaints," Red Holzman said with a smile. "My high school, Franklin K. Lane, recently named its gymnasium for me. The Holzman Gymnasium. That was nice. Cake and coffee, the basketball team, cheerleaders. That was nice. Hey, I've got things in life are health and peace of mind. I've got those, and I'm able to pay my bills so I've got the world by the tail."

Rockets end loss spell

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rookie Robert Reid, starting his first game in the NBA, shot Houston into an early lead and guard Calvin Murphy got the hot hand early in the fourth quarter Tuesday night to help the Rockets end a six-game losing streak with a 120-103 victory over the New York Knicks.

Murphy, hampered by an ankle injury much of the season, led all scorers with 23 points. He hit his first four shots in the fourth quarter to boost the Rockets to an insurmountable 13-point lead.

Reid and Rudy Tomjanovich each chipped in 22 points. Reid sparked Houston to an 11-point first half lead by hitting six of seven field goals and two free throws.

Bob McAdoo scored 20 points for the Knicks, but the closest his team pulled in the second half was five points with one minute left in the third quarter.

76ers win ninth in row

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — George McGinnis, Julius Erving and Doug Collins riddled San Antonio for 86 points and Philadelphia retd past the Spurs 129-117 Tuesday night for the 76ers' ninth straight win.

McGinnis hit 31 points, Erving had 28 and Collins netted 27 as the 76ers broke open a close game near the end of the third period and ran on for the win.

San Antonio led 55-47 at halftime but Philadelphia went ahead for good on a layup by Collins with 2:50 to go in the third quarter and led by as many as 14 points six times through the last period.

The 76ers lead in rebounding 46-47, out-shot San Antonio 53 percent to 43 percent, forced 22 turnovers and blocked 10 shots. It was Philadelphia's 15th victory in the last 14 games since Billy Cunningham succeeded Gene Shue as coach and the team upped its record to 155.

Atlanta drops Boston

ATLANTA (UPI) — Tom McMillen's 13 points led a fourth-quarter Atlanta surge Tuesday night as the Hawks ran off a 19-2 scoring binge en route to a 108-101 victory over the Boston Celtics.

Down 81-67 late in the third quarter, the Hawks took an 85-83 lead with 8:27 left in the game. Five straight Atlanta points with three minutes left enabled the Hawks to pull out to a nine-point lead and secure the win.

Boston assumed a 31-26 lead in the first quarter and expanded its lead to 64-51 at the half on 73 percent shooting and 21 points from guard Charlie Scott.

Boston's Scott led all scorers with 29, while backcourt mate Dave Bing had 17. John Brown led Atlanta's even scoring effort with 22 points and Ron Behagen got 20. McMillen finished the night with 17.

Bulls whip New Orleans

CHICAGO (UPI) — Artis Gilmore scored 21 points to lead all five Chicago starters in double figures Tuesday night in the Bulls' 95-87 victory over the New Orleans Jazz.

The defeat snapped New Orleans' winning streak at five games.

New Orleans held a 42-40 halftime lead as Chicago shot just 33 percent in the first half, compared to 43 percent for New Orleans.

The Bulls came out smoking in the second half, outscoring New Orleans 14-4 in the first 4:14 as they grabbed a 54-46 lead. Wilbur Holland had six of those points. Scott May and Gilmore each had four.

Chicago outscored the Jazz 39-19 in the third period and held a 70-61 lead entering the final quarter.

Pistons edge Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bob Lanier scored a layup and a free-throw with 19 seconds remaining Tuesday night to lift the Detroit Pistons to a 109-99 win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The win was the first in eight tries for the Pistons on the road this season and broke a seven-game losing streak.

The Detroit lead by as many as 15 points just before the fourth quarter, but trailed 89-85 with a minute remaining. Chris Ford hit a jump shot to pull Detroit to within two before Lanier scored his layup and free-throw for the game-winning points.

Lanier scored 19 points to pass New York Knicks Coach Willis Reed and move into 4th place on the all-time NBA scoring list. Eric Money had 20 points for the Pistons and M.L. Carr 17. Marcus Johnson led Milwaukee with 22, while Junior Bridgeman scored 21 points and Dave Meyers 20.

Detroit led at the half 54-52.

Cavaliers thump Lakers

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Foots Walker poured in 20 points, including 14 during a 38-point third period, and Walt Frazier chipped in with 19 Tuesday night to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 118-101 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Cavs, who have now won three straight and 11 of their last 13 games, turned the ball over only three times in racing to a 48-39 halftime, and then blew the Lakers out in the third period.

Frazier, who got seven points in the big quarter, opened with a three-point play after the intermission and Walker hit on seven of nine field shots in equalling his season high.

The Lakers hit on six of 10 field goals to cut the Cavs' lead to 14 points with 8:09 left, but a pair of baskets by Jim Chones, two jumpers by Bobby Smith and a pair of foul shots by Frazier put Cleveland up 98-78 three minutes later.

Nuggets topple Seattle

DENVER (UPI) — Center Dan Issel scored a game-high 20 points and Bobby Jones and David Thompson combined for 34 Tuesday to power the Denver Nuggets to an easy 115-99 homecourt victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Nuggets, appearing sluggish in the opening minutes of play, broke open the game in the final three minutes of the third period. Seattle, down only 75-71, was held scoreless for the rest of the period and trailed by 12 at the end of the quarter.

The Nuggets then moved to leads as many as 24 points.

Issel hit 16 of his points in the first half and sat out much of the last two periods as Denver scored its 10th straight home win of the season. Jones had 18 points and Thompson 16 for the Nuggets, who lead the Midwest Division with a 14-8 record.

Blazers overhaul Suns

PORTLAND (UPI) — Johnny Davis, Larry Steele, Maurice Lucas and Tom Owens came off the bench to key a fourth-period rally Tuesday night and lead the Portland Trail Blazers to a 108-96 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

The Blazers now lead Phoenix by 4½ games in the Pacific Division of the NBA. They have won 30 straight games at home.

Leading 88-86, Portland shot into an 82-71 edge with Davis, Steele, Lucas and Owens leading a 14-5 surge. The Suns never got closer than five points after that.

Bill Walton with 23 points and Lloyd Neal with 21 led the winners. Paul Westphal and rookie Walter Davis, each with 25 points, led the Suns.

Warriors defeat Nets

OAKLAND (UPI) — Rookie Rickey Green scored 10 points in a 39-point third-period outburst Tuesday night to lead the Golden State Warriors from behind a 110-101 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The victory snapped a fourgame losing streak for the Warriors, who fell behind 18-4 in the opening quarter before regrouping.

New Jersey behind guard Kevin Porter's 17 points, held a 52-45 lead at the half, but the Nets only made 3 of 17 field goal attempts in a frigid third quarter and were routed 82-10.

Center Robert Parish then scored 13 of his game-high 27 points in the final period, finishing with torrid 12-for-18 shooting.

Rookie Bob Carrington paced the Nets with 24 points and Kevin Porter added 21. Center George Johnson had 11 rebounds and 5 blocked shots.

Leonard wants watchdogs to fine officials for poor jobs

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indiana Pacers Coach Bobby Leonard charged Tuesday that NBA officials have too much power and suggested they should be watched and fined if they do a poor job in calling a game.

Leonard suggested it may be time for coaches to organize so they have a "voice" in league matters, just as the players do. For that matter, he said, referees are also organized.

"They (the NBA) should have someone in the stands and watch the officials. If they call a bad game, they should have money taken out of their paycheck."

Leonard said officials were "not capable of handling that power" — that of assessing heavy penalties.

Leonard was particularly bitter at the NBA for assigning Jess Kersey to work last Friday's game against Phoenix in Indianapolis, the Pacers lost. He said Kersey, who was not invited back to work NBA games this season, got the job for that game when three other officials' became ill.

"I don't think coaches have to sit back and take it," Leonard told Dick Mitman of The Indianapolis News, referring to what he called "bad officiating."

"They (the NBA) should have someone in the stands and watch the officials. If they call a bad game, they should have money taken out of their paycheck."

'Skins can't find touchdown punch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Coach George Allen is once again struggling to find a solution to the Redskins' long-standing No. 1 problem — no offense.

The answers aren't coming easily.

"It doesn't seem to make much difference who the quarterback is; we still get the same things ... holding penalties, things like that," said Allen, who switched from Billy Kilmer to Joe Theismann six weeks into the season.

The 33-year-old Kilmer had the club 3-3 before he was given the usually fatal "vote of confidence" and then benched in the games Kilmer started, the Redskins averaged 242.7 total yards and 18.8 points.

They have gone 3-1 in Theismann's five starts as starter, and the yardage production is up to 275.6. But point production — what the game is all about — is down to just 12 per game. Overall, Washington has just 14 touchdowns in 11 games.

The two quarterbacks' passing statistics are nearly identical. Theismann has completed 72-of-154 passes for 117 yards and six touchdowns, Kilmer 73-of-152 for 923 yards and five touchdowns.

Theismann, however, has thrown eight interceptions to Kilmer's five.

The rushing attack, except for Mike Thomas (658 yards), has been nearly non-existent. Fullback John Riggins, hurt in the season's fifth game, may play again this year and his presence would undoubtedly give the offense a lift.

Kicker Mark Moseley was Washington's most potent offensive weapon until Sunday's 14-7 loss to Dallas, when he missed three field goals and two extra points. He has made 15 of 28 attempts this season.

Punter Mike Bragg, who has had a good year kicking for net yardage and placing the ball in the coffin corner, got off a 10-yard punt that led to the first Dallas touchdown.

"We would have won, gone away, if we hadn't made all those gosh darn mistakes again," said Allen. "That was the first time Mark had ever missed three field goals and the first time Bragg ever punted 10 yards. It just happened at the wrong time, in a big game."

Washington must beat Buffalo, St. Louis and Los Angeles — then hope Chicago and Atlanta falter somewhere along the way — to win the NFL's "wild card" playoff spot. Allen promises his club will be ready for the 2-4 bills Sunday, and indicated that Theismann will probably be at the helm.

"We have to be ready, because whatever chance we have depends on us winning all our games," he said. "I'm sure that we'll have some guys that are feeling sorry for themselves, but that's part of the challenge of coaching."

Weber stuns Long Beach in overtime

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Center Richard Smith scored seven of his 28 points in overtime in leading Weber State's "super sophomores" to a 39-6 extra period win over Long Beach State Tuesday night.

Smith jammed in a rebound and was fouled with one minute left in overtime, and the 7-footer hit the free three for a three-point play that gave the Wildcats the lead for good.

The 49ers pulled back within one of Weber State and forced a turnover with 21 seconds left, giving Long Beach State a chance to move back in front. But the 49ers committed a technical foul when they called time out — they had already used up all their official time outs — and the Wildcats scored four straight points of foul shots for the win.

Junior college transfer Ben Howland scored 20 points for Weber State before fouling out early in the overtime, and sophomores Dave Johnson and Bruce Collins added 19 and 18 points respectively. Smith and Johnson each pulled down 12 rebounds for the Wildcats.

Smith's two free throws with 1:03 left in regulation time tied the score at 22-all. But both teams had a chance to score again.

The 49ers went into a stall, hoping to go for the winning basket. But Collins stole a pass from Long Beach guard Larry Hudson, only to miss his long range shot for the Wildcats at the buzzer.

Reserve guard Donnie Martin led all scorers with 34 points for Long Beach State, including six in overtime. The 6-foot sophomore scored eight of the 49ers' final points in regulation time, for a brief 82-80 lead before Smith sank his two foul shots.

Guard Rickey Williams added 18 points for the 49ers.

Rebel alums want grid coach fired

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A group of former University of Mississippi football players who played under Coach Ken Cooper has urged Chancellor Porter Fortune to dismiss Cooper because "he's never been able to motivate his athletes."

The 20 players mailed the letter to Fortune Monday, the Memphis Press-Scimitar reported Tuesday.

Roger Ole Miss linebacker Stump Russell of Madison, Miss., said copies of the letter were sent to Athletic Director John Vaughn, assistant athletic director Warner Alford and members of the athletic committee.

He said the other players, mostly from the Jackson, Miss., area, include 1974 graduates Greg Markow and Lundy Gunn; 1975 graduates Bill Farris, Steve Lavington, Scott Steele and James Hickman; and George Nasif and Brad Pittman from the 1976 squad.

"We're not a group of older alumni that have nothing to go on but a win-loss record for the season," the letter reportedly reads. "We're men who have played under Ken Cooper in the last several years, who are aware of his faults and realize that he would never be a consistent winner."

"Ken Cooper is a good man. He is not a head football coach. He lacks in two very critical areas. He's never been able to motivate his athletes... (he) is not a personable man. There was never communication between coach and his athletes."

"We never knew Ken Cooper," said Ken Cooper.

The Ole Miss athletic committee decided Nov. 20 to retain Cooper, despite pressure from alumni to oust him two years before his contract expires.

Cooper's squad finished this season 5-6, his third losing season in four years.

The newspaper reported earlier that alumni are withdrawing financial support from the athletic department, with $30,000 in pledges already withdrawn.

Russell, whose brother Mike is a freshman on this year's team, said Cooper "is the best line coach I have seen in my life." But he said "there are some intangibles that make a difference between an assistant and head coach."

"Ole Miss is as divided as hell. There's bickering among the coaches and players," he said.

Stubborn five-pin on pocket hit robs Morgan of 300 game

TWIN FALLS — "I was just trying to keep it out of the gutter," says Roger Morgan of the "Twin Falls" of the 12th final ball that stood between him and 300 game.

But the five-pin evaded that last effort and Morgan had to settle for a 299. That should stand as something for the rest of the field to shoot at, however, in the eighth annual Magic Jackpot tournament which runs through January.

The event is sponsored by Horseshoe Club and Barton's Club 93 of Jackpot at the Magic Bowl.

Morgan really doesn't know whether he deserved the 300 game or not. "I really can't remember what my best game was before this. I bowed as a kid and then quit for seven years. I'm not sure what it was. Oh, don't ask me that," he smiled when asked what his average is. "It's 167."

"I guess I was always thinking about it," he said of the possible 300 game. "But the pressure started building up in the eighth frame. I was getting very nervous after the ninth."

"In the tenth my first two crossed over... Brooklyns," he says. "The 12th one was in there. I guess I let up on the last one because I just didn't have the ball. I didn't hit it enough," he said of the elusive five-pin.

Taking last week's team prize of $1,000 were the Buccaneers, composed of Rich Birrell, Cole Klassen, George Anderson, Forest Ward and Jerry Miller.

The top 10 doubles thus far include Dick Guyman and Mark Miller 1480, Roger Morgan and Con Honstein 1465, John Irwin and Mark Miller 1432, Jerry Miller and Clyde Pedersen 1406, Ken Estep and Dick Guyman 1405, Jerry Miller and John Irwin 1400, Clyde Pedersen and Hank Milani 1399, Ratz Hukaya and Farren Martin 1378, Con Honstein and John Irwin 1369 and Jerry Miller and Cole Klassen 1367.

Weekly doubles winners through the first three weeks include Mark Miller and Dick Guyman 1480; Jerry Miller and Clyde Pedersen, 1405, and Roger Morgan and Con Honstein 1465.

Ski instructors slate clinic

POMERELLE — Ski instructors interested in teaching in the Pomerelle and Magic Mountain Ski Schools will attend another instructor clinic session Thursday night.

The ski schools will meet at 7 p.m. at Pomerelle for a three-hour session under the lights on Milk and Fall runs.

A two-day clinic was held Saturday and Sunday with about 40 instructors attending each day.

Veteran Sun Valley Ski School instructors, Don Thurber and Bob Berry conducted the week-end clinic and will be back for the Thursday night session. Instructors who did not attend the first sessions are asked to register at the ticket office at Pomerelle Thursday night.

"The strength of our team has been the defense anyway," said Landry. "But we hope to improve in the areas where we need improving and get better offensively."

Dorsett was questionable going into last week's game against Washington, but played and eventually scored the winning touchdown.

"Tony was my biggest concern before the game," said Landry. "We didn't want to risk further injury. But we decided he was ready to play."

"Tony did not get a chance to work out at all last week and he came in in the game and played about as well as you could expect him to play. Particularly with our offense being as complicated as it is."

DALLAS (UPI) — For the second straight season the doomsayers are having a real good time bringing up the woes of Roger Staubach.

The Dallas Cowboys quarterback, who had allowed only one interception through the first eight games of the season, has suffered through three straight poor performances.

And last Sunday's showing against Washington was the worst of the bunch even though the Cowboys rallied during the second half to down the Redskins, 14-7, and clinch a playoff spot for the 11th time in 12 years.

Staubach's biggest fan in the world is Dallas Coach Tom Landry and even Landry admitted Tuesday that Staubach had a not-so-good showing against the Redskins.

And the coach said he and the rest of the staff are trying to find out the reason for it.

Last year Staubach suffered a broken finger and his performance was not all that great during the second half of the season.

This year Staubach has suffered a bruised hip and a sprained thumb, but Staubach and Landry both insist there is no physical problem.

"There is nothing wrong with Roger," said Landry. "But this (the letdown in the passing game) is something we are aware of and we are going to work on it and improve it. We are reviewing everything right now. When things go wrong in the passing game it can be from bad routes, bad protection or it can be the quarterback."

"Any of those things can throw the timing off. We are going to work on finding out what is wrong."

Whatever is wrong the Cowboys need to find it pretty quick since the playoffs are approaching and the team's offense is nowhere near the potent force it was early in the season.

Landry admitted Tuesday the offense is not playing well enough currently to take the team to the Super Bowl.

"The strength of our team has been the defense anyway," said Landry. "But we hope to improve in the areas where we need improving and get better offensively."

"The Cowboys coaching staff is hoping that the offensive spark will come not only from a healthier passing attack, but from the continued improvement of running back Tony Dorsett.

Dorsett was questionable going into last week's game against Washington, but played and eventually scored the winning touchdown.

"Tony was my biggest concern before the game," said Landry. "We didn't want to risk further injury. But we decided he was ready to play."

"Tony did not get a chance to work out at all last week and he came in in the game and played about as well as you could expect him to play. Particularly with our offense being as complicated as it is."

Lions plan 'gut check' windup

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The Detroit Lions will be going through a "gut check" in their final three games of the National Football League season to see which of them would to play football and which don't.

"We will evaluate the character of our football team on its performance, over the last three games," Coach Tommy Hudspeth said Tuesday at his weekly press briefing.

Detroit, 5-6, is at Green Bay this Sunday, at Baltimore next week, then comes home to host Minnesota in its last game of the season.

There will be no drastic lineup shakeup for the first of the final three games, the coach said.

Greg Landry, relieved midway through the third quarter Thanksgiving Day against Chicago, will start at quarterback and fullback-plugger Rick Kane will open halfback.

"It will be a gut check," Hudspeth said. "There's the pride factor. Every player should see that he lives up to his commitment as a football player."

"They should get themselves up the last three games; see if they can't get us three more wins."

It was a grim Hudspeth who said "I will go over my evaluations and recommendations for next year with Russ (Thomas, general manager) and Mr. Ford (club owner William Clay) whenever they have a moment before the end of the season."

Hudspeth caused at least one heart to speed up when he said he would "be gone right after the last game." He said he was returning to Oklahoma because of an illness in the family.

Howard wants to manage Brewers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Frank Howard, the lumbering first base coach who last season excited Milwaukee Brewer fans with his enthusiasm on the sidelines, says he is interested in managing the Brewers.

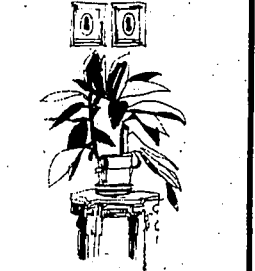

Howard, a Green Bay native who was a slugging star in the majors, has been mentioned as a strong candidate to replace the recently-departed Alton Grammas and Tuesday he confirmed he's interested.

"Very much so," Howard said Tuesday when asked about the job.

Howard is one of only two coaches not let go when Grammas was fired — Cal McLish was the other — and there has been speculation he is being considered as a manager, not just a coach, by new General Manager Harry Dalton.

"I know he's (Dalton) got a lot on his mind," Howard said.

Atlanta needs wins and luck to gain playoffs

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons have their backs to the wall. The defensive-minded Falcons (6-5) must win their three remaining games to stay in the running for their first-ever playoff berth — and even that may not be enough.

To win the NFC West title, the Falcons not only must win in Los Angeles the Sunday after next, but the Rams (8-3) must lose at least one of their other two games (against Oakland and Washington). If the Falcons don't beat the Rams, their only other route to the playoffs is via the wild card route and it appears that St. Louis (7-4) and Chicago (6-5) both have the edge over Atlanta in that direction.

The Cards figure to beat the New York Giants and winless Tampa Bay and then wind up no worse than 9-5. The Bears have Tampa Bay, Green Bay and the New York Giants left to play and are favored to win all three of those games.

Atlanta hosts New England (7-4) this Sunday and closes at home against New Orleans on Dec. 17.

"We realize that we're going to need some help to make it to the playoffs, that we can no longer do it by ourselves," said Falcons Coach Leeman Bennett. "I know a lot of people wrote us off after our loss in New Orleans, but we have not given up hope."

Even if they don't make it to the playoffs, the Falcons have an opportunity to post their second-best season of their 12 years in the NFL. The only time they ever won more than seven games was in 1972 when they went 9-5 under Norm Van Brocklin.

"That was the year the Falcons ran off a string of seven straight victories and, at 8-3, appeared a clinch for a playoff berth, only to be upset, at home, by Buffalo and St. Louis.

As for Sunday's game against the New England Patriots, Bennett said Tuesday, "If we are not up and ready to play, totally, this week, we are not going to win."

"New England is a team that everyone has talked about when they mention Super Bowl contenders," said Bennett. "Their offense can hurt you in so many ways. Steve Grogan (the Patriots quarterback) can throw as well as run and their team speed may be as good as there is in professional football."

"It will take a supreme effort on our part to win."

In an effort to add a little speed to the Falcons' offense, Bennett plans to use rookie Scott Fick. McIntyre more Sunday than he has in the past. "McIntyre is one of those players that has that 4.5 speed you need to get outside," said Bennett. "But, New England has a lot of people with that type speed."

McIntyre was drafted out of Auburn University by the Dallas Cowboys and had a good pre-season, but was cut just before the regular season began because the Cowboys were overloaded with running backs.

The Falcons picked McIntyre up about a month ago, but didn't use him on offense until this past Sunday when he gained 32 yards in a game in Atlanta's 17-0 win at Tampa Bay.

"I hadn't used McIntyre before because I didn't feel comfortable about him in view of too many busted plays in practice," said Bennett. "He's a pretty good runner, but only average, or below average, as a blocker."

Although Bennett insists that Atlanta's offense has been improving, there's no question but what the Falcons must win with their defense, which has been outstanding all season.

The Falcons defense was at its best last Sunday when it held Tampa Bay to just 78 yards — 62 rushing, 16 passing, intercepted four passes; recovered a fumble; and never allowed the hapless Buccaneers to get within scoring distance.

"I realize that we were playing against the weakest offense in the league, but I still like to think that we had a lot to do with that performance," said Bennett. "I know one thing, we would have been very upset if Tampa Bay had gained a lot of yardage."

Paul mulling Indian offer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — New York Yankees President Gabe Paul says he will decide by mid-December whether to leave the club to become president of the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians are expected to be sold at about the same time to a group headed by Art Modell, owner of the NFL Cleveland Browns.

"I will represent the Yankees in the baseball meetings in Honolulu next week," Paul Tuesday told The Cleveland Press. "After that, I will have to make up my mind pretty damn quick. I should make my decision around the 14th or 15th of December."

Paul was general manager of the American League Indians prior to joining the Yankees, whose general partner is George M. Steinbrenner II.

"George has been just great through all this," said Paul, who is a close friend of Steve O'Neill, a trucking executive expected to be the major stockholder in the group attempting to purchase the Indians.

Oklahoma clinches offensive crown

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Oklahoma, with 417-yard ground performance against Nebraska last Friday, surged past Ohio State into first place among NCAA Division I schools in rushing offense this week with an average of 329.9 yards per game.

The second-ranked Sooners will take that top-ranked ground game to the Orange Bowl Jan. 2 to face Southwest Conference runner-up Arkansas.

Brigham Young continued to dominate Division I schools in passing offense with an average of 316.6 yards per game while Colgate ranked first again in total offense with an average of 486.1 yards per game.

Grabling, with Heisman Trophy candidate Doug Williams at quarterback, was the only Division I school to average 40 or more points during the regular season in leading the NCAA in scoring offense at 42.7 points per game.

Jackson State led in both rushing offense and total defense, allowing an average of only 67.8 aerial yards and 207 total yards during its 11 games. Tennessee State ranked first in pass defense with an average yield of 67.9 yards per game.

Brohamer might join Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — Free agent infielder Jack Brohamer appears headed for the Boston Red Sox. It was learned Tuesday.

Ed Kleven, representative for the 27-year-old utility player, declined to confirm or deny reports Brohamer has agreed to terms. But Kleven did say Brohamer, who has been with the Chicago White Sox the past two years, would sign with either Boston or Milwaukee.

"I'm hopeful he will sign with Boston," Kleven said in a telephone interview from his Brookline office. "But I can't say anything one way or the other right now."

But a source close to the veteran infielder said Brohamer has agreed to play for Boston.

Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan and Kleven have had several conversations in the past week. They talked again Tuesday. Sullivan was not immediately available for comment.

Kleven said he would talk again Wednesday with Sullivan.

Brohamer, who batted .257 in 59 games, last season for the White Sox, has reportedly agreed to a three-year contract for approximately $300,000.

His lifetime batting average is .241 after playing six seasons with the Cleveland Indians and Chicago. He has played 19 major league seasons and his base in his professional career.

While refusing to affirm the report, Kleven said: "Jack was only drafted by four teams (Boston, Milwaukee, California and the New York Yankees). California already has eight second basemen.

"And the Yankees? That's preposterous. There's no way he could get to play there. What would he do, carry Willie Randolph's shoes?" Kleven said.

Boston already has signed two free agents, pitchers Mike Torrez and Dick Dicker. Management has concentrated the past week on shoring up its infield.

Western farm union supports strike

DENVER (UPI) — The Rocky Mountain Farmers Union wholeheartedly supports a threatened strike by the nation's farmers, who are demanding a break-even price for their crops, the president of the farm group said today.

"There has been a good deal of confusion about where our organization stands on the proposed farmers strike, and I don't understand why," John Stencel said. "We have stated very clearly that we support grassroots movements of farmers, and also that we encourage our members to participate in these movements if it is their desire."

An organization of farmers calling themselves American Agriculture and headquartered in Springfield, Colo., has called for a nationwide farmers' strike to begin Dec. 15.

"The Farmers Union has stood for and fought for 100 percent of parity for many years now, and we certainly intend to continue these efforts and support similar efforts of others," he said.

"We were the first farm organization to announce support for these grassroots movements, like the American Agriculture movement, and claims by some that we don't support the movement are simply misinformed."

Stencel said the official policy of the Rocky Mountain Farmers Union is to support all legal efforts to achieve 100 percent of parity. He said it has always been his organization's goal, and it would continue efforts to achieve full parity.

"We approve of our members participating in the activities of any grassroots movement if it is their desire," he said. "We sincerely hope that those involved in the new grassroots movements will support the efforts of the Farmers Union in our shared goal of 100 percent of parity."

Suit cites bias against marriage

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Two western Kansas farmers Monday filed suit contending the federal government discriminates against them merely because they are married to each other.

The suit, filed by the late Mrs. Martin's estate, is maintained separately from her husband's operation for the benefit of her children by a prior marriage and due to a wage incentive plan for her operation. Martin has been running his own farm since 1938. They have been married since 1956.

In their petition, the couple said Mrs. Martin's farm, in operation since 1947, is maintained separately from her husband's operation for the benefit of her children by a prior marriage and due to a wage incentive plan for her operation. Martin has been running his own farm since 1938. They have been married since 1956.

Mrs. Martin, who runs her own farm in Kearny County, and Martin, who runs his farm in Hamilton County, said they

Inside look helps

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Milking machines that can be used to milk cows faster with less risk of damaging teats may be the result of research that uses fiber optics to look inside the cow's teat during milking, says Dr. Paul D. Thompson, a biomedical electronics engineer with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

To observe what happens inside the teat canal, Dr. Thompson first anesthetizes the cow's udder. He then inserts a catheter containing a bundle of tiny, flexible, optical fibers into the teat through a needle puncture in the udder. The fiber-optic catheter transmits an image of the inside of the cow's teat to a high-sensitivity television camera. A video tape records the image from the optical fibers. Milk inside the cow's udder is replaced with sterile water to allow for clear viewing during experiments.

Using this technique, scientists can, for the first time, directly observe the physical response of the cow's teat to the mechanical forces of milking. The operation of conventional or experimental milking equipment can be observed in this way.

Dr. Thompson, who is conducting his research at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, says the technique will help scientists develop better milking machines and spot possible sources of trouble in machines now being used.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune & News Synd Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a man who is very intelligent, articulate and informed. The problem is, he hardly opens his mouth when we're in the company of others (especially strangers).

I desperately wish he would speak up so others would know how bright he is, but he just sits there as though he has nothing to contribute to the conversation. It's so frustrating and embarrassing that I want to scream.

When the two of us are alone, his dialogue is brilliant, but in company, he clams up. I'm sure some people think he's shallow, and others probably think he's stuck-up, but he's not.

What is wrong with him, Abby? How can I get him to enter into the conversation when we're in a group?

UPTIGHT

Quiet guy may be shy

DEAR UP: Your friend could be shy. (Many intelligent, well-read people are.) Or perhaps he's too well-mannered to interrupt others who enjoy dominating the conversation.

You can help draw him into future conversations by asking him some direct questions. Try it.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get it across to my hairdresser that I wish she would keep quiet when she is working me? I have changed beauty operators four times in the last year because all these girls do is talk, talk, talk.

I am not interested in their private affairs, and I have no desire to talk about mine. My husband says it's the same way in his barber shop. The barbers talk the man's ears off, too. People who work in offices and stores can't be jabbering to their customers or clients about everything under the sun. They have to keep their minds on their work.

I would appreciate total silence so much while I'm getting my hair done that I would gladly pay a double tip for it. How can this be accomplished?

NO GOSSIP

DEAR NO: Offer your hairdresser a double tip to button her lip, and the only words you are likely to hear are a long silence will be, "You just made a deal, lady."

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged woman who hasn't been to my gynecologist for six years. With all this talk about cancer, I know I should go, but I've been putting it off because I'm afraid I might have VD. I had a few symptoms six years ago, but they went away. I've noticed my eyesight is not as good as it was, and my memory seems faulty. I read somewhere that VD symptoms usually disappear but the disease continues to do its damage.

I don't want to go to my regular doctor in case I have it. I've considered going to a strange doctor and using a phony name, but I hate to go through all those examinations and give him a whole medical history when I know I'll never see him again.

I want to find out if I have VD so I can either take care of it or forget it.

I've never been intimate with anyone except my husband, but there is a good chance that he had it and I got it from him. What should I do?

CONCERNED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR CONCERNED: Call your Planned Parenthood Clinic and make an appointment for a gynecological examination. It will include blood tests and urinalysis. No phony name is necessary. All their records are strictly confidential.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb, I am wondering about the proper treatment of frostbite, and remembering last year's blizzards.

As my husband was an invalid in a wheel chair, I did all the snow shoveling. In being outdoors every day, trying to shovel away the snow, my fingers were frostbitten. I used warm water, very warm on them and had no trouble with them.

My upstairs tenant said I was supposed to use very cold water, and I told her that was an old wives' tale, but she was adamant about her theory, so I would like your version.

I am 78 years old, and I remember my dad and mother using cold water, but that was a long time ago and conditions change. Now, I want to find out which one of us is correct.

Dear Reader,

To put it simply, you are. It is a good time to remind people about this problem and what they can do about it.

Every cold finger is not a frostbite. The first sensation is painful cold, but by the time the tissue freezes, the tissue has already lost its sensation. That is why frostbite is considered a painless injury.

Some authorities refer to minimal injury as a "frost nip." The freezing causes crystals to form in the cells, and with a frost nip you can feel a "sting" as this occurs. The tissue of the involved area, such as the tip of the nose, ear, or fingers, may be white. With a deep frostbite, the tissue will become hard and in a word "frozen." The superficial frost nip will not cause any permanent tissue damage, as only the surface cells are involved, but a deep frostbite will involve at least the full thickness of the skin.

A simple frost nip will respond to warming with a warm hand or the hand of a companion. You can use warm water on it. There is no place in the treatment of a frost nip or frostbite for the use of cold water, snow, or any of those other ideas of yesterday that have been replaced by a better understanding of cold injuries.

If there is actually frozen tissue, it is better to let it alone until you can get someone to take care of it, as once it has thawed, it must be treated as an injury.

If the opportunity exists to get out and stay out of the cold, even re-warming a frozen part at body temperature is acceptable. You should be careful not to expose an injured part to excess heat, as from a camp fire. The part has lost its sensation and can be easily injured from too much heat. Then you will have both a burn and damage from freezing to treat. If circumstances permit, you can warm the area with water at about 100 degrees F. Just about body temperature.

Take care to keep the area clean, and after it has been adequately warmed, separate the fingers with gauze if they are involved and provide protection for the part. Don't have anyone walk on a frozen foot after it has been thawed, as that will lead to further injury. The treatment until you can get medical help is simply gentle warming — no cold water or snow, please.

For information on factors that control your body temperature, send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

USE A LITTLE IMAGINATION AND SOME LEFTOVERS ... for tasty omelet you can serve with pride

Breakfast treat

Make use of leftovers

ROSEMONT, Ill. — It's nice to have chicken and ham leftovers, but why do they have to end being served in the most unimaginative ways?

With a little ingenuity, they can come to the table in impressive style. How about an omelet, for example? It won't take much longer to prepare than sandwiches or creaming for a la king, and it will look and taste terrific. You can even serve it with pride to guests.

The soufflé-like appearance of this omelet is achieved very simply by beating the egg yolks and whites separately, then folding them into each other. Do not overbeat the whites or the omelet will be dry. For more than four people, it's smart to make two omelets rather than doubling the recipe.

As soon as the yolks and whites are folded, start cooking the omelet in a skillet that's heated hot enough so a drop of water dances in it. The omelet puffs to a golden brown on the surface of the range. Then place in a preheated oven to bake for 15 minutes. When the omelet's ready to fold, add more protein by spreading a cup of Swiss cheese between the folds. This will complement the fruited flavor of the meat sauce while almonds add crunchiness.

CHICKEN OMELET
Four servings

- Omelet
4 egg yolks
Dash white pepper
4 egg whites
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
2 teaspoons butter

- Sauce:
1 tablespoon butter
1 1/2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon chicken stock base OR instant chicken bouillon
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
1 cup milk
3/4 cup cubed cooked chicken or ham
1 cup seeded quartered red grapes or chicken; green for ham
1 1/4 cups (5 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
1/4 cup toasted sliced almonds

Heat oven to 325 degrees F. For omelet, beat egg yolks with pepper until thick and lemon-colored. Beat egg whites, water, salt and cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Fold beaten yolks into whites. Melt butter in a 10-inch skillet with heatproof handle until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Turn egg mixture into skillet. Cook over low heat on top of the range until puffy and browned on bottom (about 5 minutes).

Transfer to preheated oven and bake 12 to 15 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. For sauce, melt butter. Blend in flour, chicken stock base and celery salt. Cook over low heat until mixture is smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir one additional minute.

Remove from heat and stir in chicken and heat to serving temperature. Stir in grapes. (Yield: two cups.) Keep warm for serving. To serve, remove omelet to heated platter. Score down the center with a sharp knife. Spread one cup of cheese and one-half cup of sauce over bottom half of omelet; fold omelet in half and top with remaining one-fourth cup cheese. Spoon one-half cup sauce over omelet and pass remaining sauce. Garnish with almonds.

Frittata—a special breakfast for two

MADISON, Wis. — Breakfast just for two... a cozy meal served on the porch or in front of the fireplace, a time to relax and sip an extra cup of coffee, a time to enjoy life and fix something special. Breakfast for two... the perfect time to serve a "frittata."

The Italians have long favored their own open-faced version of the omelet. This easy dish is prepared and served in the same pan. Meat slices are heated along with the egg mixture in a simple one-step operation.

Each frittata can be different and unique. Unlike the French omelet, which is folded with a filling in the center, a frittata combines all of the ingredients. The filling is mixed with the eggs before cooking. One or two tablespoons of fresh garden vegetables such as onion, green pepper, tomato, zucchini or mushrooms add color and zest.

Omelets are usually cooked over high heat and are creamy and moist. Frittatas are cooked more slowly so that meat and vegetables heat through.

Arrange sliced bologna around the edge of a small skillet. Bologna, a favorite American cold cut, is named for the northern Italian city of its origin. Bologna has a fine texture and mild flavor and is delicious when heated. Creative chefs may select Canadian-style bacon, cubes of jubilee ham or thin slices of hard salami. Since a frittata is always served flat and never rolled, ingredients should be selected with an eye for appearance as well as flavor. Accompany the frittata with Italian bread, a wedge of fresh melon garnished with Oscar Mayer real bacon bits, and espresso coffee.

FRIITTATA

- 4 slices Oscar Mayer thick slice bologna, cut in half
1 tablespoon butter
3 eggs, beaten
3 tablespoons milk
1 to 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 to 2 tablespoons chopped fresh vegetables, as desired (onion, green pepper, tomato, mushrooms, broccoli, zucchini, olives)

Arrange half-slices of meat around edge of small skillet. Meat slices should extend above egg mixture when added, but not beyond rim of pan. Melt butter in skillet. Combine remaining ingredients and pour into skillet. Cover and cook over low heat until set, about 10 minutes. Makes two servings.

Pancake with personality

MADISON, Wis. — A breakfast idea for two is a puffery pancake with crisp bacon. This impressive pancake is delicious and easy to prepare. It takes just 20 minutes from start to finish!

PUFFY OVEN PANCAKE

- 1 package (8 oz.) bacon
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 eggs
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 lemon wedges
Confectioners' sugar

Pancake syrup
Separate bacon slices and place on rack in shallow pan. Melt butter in a 10-inch oven-proof skillet. In blender or mixing bowl combine milk, flour, salt and eggs; blend until smooth. Pour egg mixture into skillet. Cook over medium heat until sides begin to set.
Place skillet with egg mixture and pan with bacon in 400 degrees F. oven. Bake about 15 minutes until pancake is self-addressed golden brown, and bacon is desired crispness. Serve immediately. Top with a squeeze of lemon, confectioners' sugar and syrup. Makes two generous servings.

Breakfast made simple

These delicious beef recipes take only a few minutes to finish or warm up when breakfast time rolls around, since most of the preparation is done ahead of time, at your convenience.

1 teaspoon sage
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Dash thyme

Shape into roll two inches in diameter, wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator several hours or overnight. (Roll may be stored in coldest part of refrigerator up to 3 days.) Cut 1/2-inch slices from roll and cook slowly on griddle or in frying-pan, turning to brown both sides of patties. Yield: six servings of three patties each.

Note: For longer storage, wrap and freeze roll or cut into patties, package with double thickness of freezer wrap between each patty and freeze. When ready to use, defrost roll in refrigerator or remove number of patties needed and cook without defrosting.

2 cups crushed corn flakes
2 eggs
3 1/2 tablespoons cooking fat
Syrup, if desired

Lightly brown ground beef in frying-pan. Remove meat to absorbent paper, pour off drippings. Sprinkle salt over meat. Stir soda and cumin into biscuit mix. Combine egg, orange juice and orange peel; add to biscuit mix and stir until just combined. Fold meat into batter. Place paper liners in 12 medium muffin cups and add 1/4 cup batter to each. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Yield: 12 muffins.

Note: Muffins can be stored in refrigerator for several days or in freezer for a longer period and reheated in conventional oven, toaster oven or microwave.

Brown ground beef in large frying-pan; pour off drippings. Sprinkle salt, nutmeg and pepper over ground beef; let cool. Beat eggs well; beat in milk and fold in bread cubes, cheese and pimiento. Stir in cooled ground beef.

Place mixture in well-greased 8 by 8-inch casserole or utility dish; cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) for one hour to 10 minutes. Let stand five minutes before cutting into serving-size pieces. Six to eight servings.

OPEN-FACED VERSION OF THE OMELET ... prepare and serve in same pan

Regains sight
 MARIA de Jesus Rodriguez Hernandez, smiling broadly, plays a toy organ under the watchful guidance of Dr. Michael Cortez. Maria, Guzman, Mexico, was totally blind until she underwent an unusual operation that restored her sight.

After darkness

Light and color sight miracle

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — With a broad smile, Maria de Jesus Rodriguez Hernandez hopped up from the stairs where she had been sitting and walked briskly across the living room of the small rowhouse to where her sister stood.

Just one month ago, Maria — "Chuy" to her friends — would have needed a guide, or she would have had to walk slowly, groping her way as she went.

When she was 9 years old, Maria, now 49, contracted uveitis — a disease that causes cataracts and clouding of the jelly-like fluid in the eye. She went totally blind.

An operation at Wills Eye Hospital in Philadelphia last October, using a revolutionary instrument to withdraw the clouded fluid and replace it simultaneously with a similar substance, restored partial sight to Maria's left eye. Her right eye is beyond repair.

The instrument, known as SITE (Suction Infusion Tissue Extractor) was developed about four years ago at Wills by Dr. Jay Federman.

Maria's physician, Dr. John Calhoun, said, "She's seeing light very well, but her retina was damaged by the uveitis. She's not seeing movement in front of her eyes."

Calhoun said Maria now can see shadows and colors, and some movement when it interrupts light. This makes it possible for her to move around without bumping into things, but there is no chance she will get any better, despite earlier optimism.

"The retina, Calhoun said, was severely damaged and because it is new tissue it can not be regenerated.

"I wish there was more we can do, but we've done all we can surgically," he said.

Dr. Michael Cortez, an intern at Hahnemann Hospital who first learned of Ms. Hernandez's problem and arranged for her operation at Wills, said he is seeking Spanish-language rehabilitation training for her.

With Maria's blindness came a profound shyness, withdrawal and loss of appetite, said Cortez, a graduate of the Autonomous University of Guadalajara, who first met Ms. Hernandez while performing required public service work near her hometown of Guzman, Mexico. "I've seen a tremendous change in her," Cortez said. "Irrespective of how well she sees, her own self-esteem is higher now. She's even voiced an interest in going back to school. She's out of her shell and won't go back anymore."

Traditions custom-made

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Ever wonder why you hang a holly wreath on your door at Christmastime? Because it was once used as a winter charm to keep away the devil. The December issue of Seventeen Magazine tells how many of our popular holiday traditions are derived from old customs and beliefs. Decking the halls with holly goes way back to the Druids, a pagan tribe in northern Europe. Because holly leaves were always green, the Druids thought the sun never deserted the plant, and thus it was sacred. And maidens in Old England attached holly to their beds to keep the devil from turning them into witches. — When you steal a kiss under the mistletoe you should thank Frigg, the Norse goddess of love. Her son Balder, the god of light, was killed by an arrow made from the plant. When he was later restored to life, Frigg promised that mistletoe would never be used for harmful purposes again, and she vowed to kiss anyone who walked under it. Wearing fancy hats and masks on New Year's Eve stems from an old belief that if you're disguised, the demons won't be able to recognize you. And traditionally, holiday bells and noisemakers were sounded to scare the devil of the less of his powers.

You should also know that the first person crossing the threshold of your home on New Year's Day has always had a special significance. A dark-haired man is thought to be a good omen; a female is considered unlucky. So why not start the year on the right foot by asking an appropriate friend to be your "first-footer."

LA PONCIA, played by Peggy Maad of Twin Falls, consolas Adola, played by Judi Dickerson of Boise, in a scene from "The House of Bernarda Alba," which will play at the E.W. Hartung Theatre at the University of Idaho, Dec. 1-4.

Spanish drama

University play scheduled

MOSCOW — "The House of Bernarda Alba" opens for a four-day run at the E. W. Hartung Theatre on Thursday, Dec. 1, directed by Forrest E. Sears.

Sears, who has directed the classic tragedies "Antigone" and "Hamlet" for the University of Idaho Theatre, sees the play as a 20th century version of a Greek tragedy.

"The House of Bernarda Alba," famed Spanish playwright Federico Garcia Lorca's last play before his mysterious death in 1936, is a portrait of the intricate relationships between Bernarda, the stolid, pitiful matriarch, and her daughters, who are desperately trying to escape her domination.

Bernarda's husband has just died and Bernarda has ordered an eight-year mourning period during which the family is to be confined to the house.

"I see Bernarda and Poncia

(the servant) as Greek figures," Sears said. (Poncia is the seer whose warnings Bernarda will not heed.) And the failure to recognize what is happening in her own family causes Bernarda's and her daughters' climactic downfall.

All the characters in the play are women, which prompted director Sears to recruit a woman assistant director in order not to lose the feminist point of view. In the past, the play has usually been directed by women, but Sears soon discovered that "the play is universal in its emotions and passions. Everyone can relate to it, not just women."

Sears approached the drama by developing the theme — "women trapped in a barren, burning passion" — as a dominant image echoed in the set design and the costuming. The characters are trapped on every level. While the five daughters are trying to escape their mother's domination and the rigid rules of their society, they are dressed in stiff, corseted black costumes, and the loosening of the costumes parallels their desire to break out.

Performances of "The House of Bernarda Alba" will be at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 1-3, and at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 4. Tickets, at $2.75 for non-students and $1 for students, are available at the Student Union Building information desk and at the Hartung Theatre ticket office the evening of each performance.

At Wit's End

Aging process fast

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'm always intrigued with those picture stories they do on the President of the United States that compare how he's looked when he entered office and how, within a few short months, it has aged him.

There was one in the paper last week of President Carter. The article was quick to point out that within just 10 months in office, there were "new furrows in his brow, deeper creases in his cheeks, fresh lines around his eyes and more flesh beneath his chin, suggesting an aging process unrelated to time."

Big deal! Beside Delores Fintrock who just taught her teenage son how to drive, he looks like Donnie Osmond at a Prince Festival. Delores was a beautiful girl, taut skin, smiled easily, with deep-set eyes that looked right at you when you talked.

I dropped in on her yesterday. "Dorian Gray lives," she shouted. She shoved a stick of gum into her mouth without taking off the wrapper. "Don't kid around," she snapped. "I'm not kidding, Delores. You look terrible. What happened to your hairline? It couldn't be receding."

"Of course it's not receding," she said irritably. "I may have pulled out a few strands when Roger pulled over and parked just to change the knobs on the car radio."

"What's the matter with that? Sounds like he used good judgment."

"You look like you could use a good night's sleep."

"I haven't slept since he parallel-parked. I put two garbage cans in front of the house and told him to park between them."

"What happened?"

"He sideswiped our mailbox, ran down a 200-year-old blue spruce, and sunk the rear wheels over the septic tank."

"You can't go on like this. You're looking more like Abraham Lincoln every day. President Carter looks better than you."

"Why shouldn't he?" she snarled. "All he's got is the energy program, Lance, the Panama Canal and Andrew Young."

We heard the wheels spin, the brakes screeched and a garbage can rolled into the street. "Wait! Amy gets her temper. You'll never see those straight, white, smiling teeth again."

Hints

FINE FOR FEET
To relieve swollen feet, alternate cool and warm foot baths. And prop them up for 10 minutes or so.

POLISH POW!
Create a dramatic look with your nails by stripping them with different colors of polish.

WARM RESERVATION
Dressy, high-heeled boots are simply too elegant for leg warmers. Reserve the warmers for sportier boots.

SMOULDERING SIGHT
Eye make-up this season is smoldering — everything smokey and smudged.

BETTER TO BLOUSON
Make a romantic blouse top from an old full silk slip, instead of tossing it out.

LAY ON THE LAME
For that special evening on the town, try a gold lame top with boat neck and big sleeves, over black pants or skirt.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

As the poet might have said, "A little caution now and then is relished by the best of men."

South looked over dummy. At first glance he thought about making an overtrick. All he had to do would be to ruff his two little hearts in dummy. Then he thought that overtricks were fine, but players who make their contracts do better than those who go down.

So, South gave up all play for the overtrick and decided to play safely for his contract.

At trick two he led a low heart from his hand. When West discarded South smiled happily. He had insured his contract provided trumps didn't break 5-0.

The defense tried. West chucked a club. East cashed the ace and king and led a third club, but South ruffed, let his last low heart, ruffed with dummy's ace, drew trumps and chinked up the rubber.

This wasn't a far-fetched safety play. East had opened with very few high cards. It was very likely that he held a six-card suit.

Ask the Jacobys
We are simplifying yesterday's rubber bridge answer to cover duplicate. In duplicate each player places his cards in front of him and when all have played the cards are turned over.

In the new duplicate rules, as soon as a player turns his card over he may not ask to look at that trick again except that in the event that a revoke is claimed all tricks may be inspected.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you feel some changes of a drastic or dramatic nature that now take place can be difficult for you to take, nevertheless, you have the opportunity to benefit greatly by improved conditions that give you a chance to be creative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You are concerned with economy but not to the point of missing out on a good investment. You are able to have a good time later after handling an annoying problem.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): A situation at home seems very difficult now, but later all works out fine and is an opportunity to get ahead faster. Get at the cause of the problems and solve easily.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Plan how to get the information you need and be sure to hurdle some obstacle in the path of your progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Budget money wisely. Make that little investment that can lead to a good deal in due course of time. Gain the assistance of a financial advisor you know.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't allow a personal problem to keep you from going after important business goals. Attend worthwhile social functions.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Plan wisely so that you can achieve your aims easily, precisely. Please mate, loved one more and show that you are thoughtful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Use tact with allies and avoid problems with them. Beware entertainment plans if they are to work out.

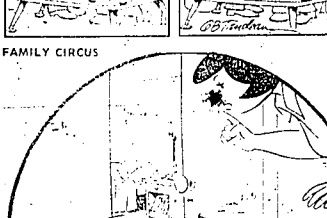

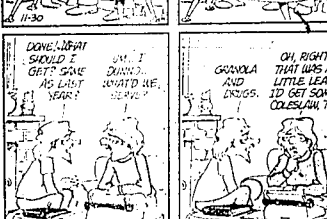

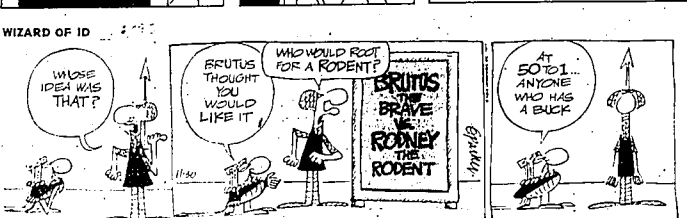

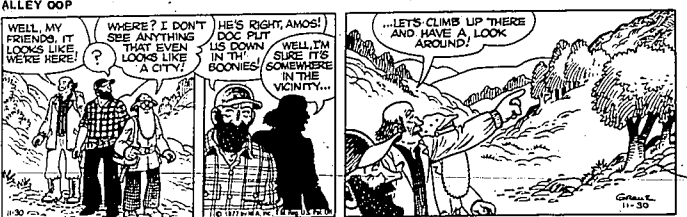

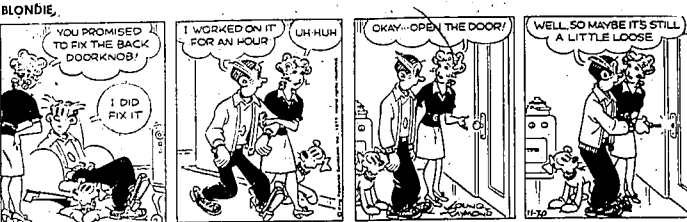

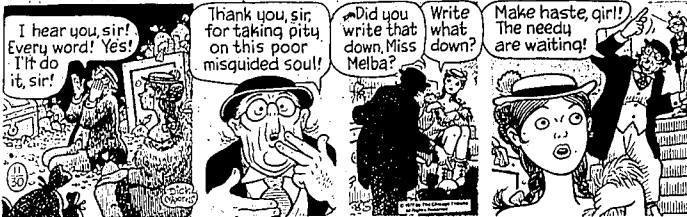

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Study any civic or practical matters well before you act upon them. Come up with any good ideas you may have. Be particularly careful with your credit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Getting into new projects may be a little difficult now. Make more contacts that could lead to advancement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A responsibility seems endless right now, but later you are able to push right through with it. Do whatever will please mate, loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Show you will cooperate more with partners and gain their good will, increase harmony and become more successful. Join with others in other activities and be happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You find it difficult to concentrate on your work now. Later, you get much done. A fellow worker can be helpful with some backing you need later.

what's what

It's widely known that the kangaroo is so called because a forefather asked an Australian native for the name of the animal and the native said "kanga-roo" meaning "I don't know." Less well reported is the fact that Mexico's Yucatan peninsula likewise was so named. A Spanish conquistador asked a native, "What do you call this place?" And Yucatan was the approximate sound of the native's reply: "I don't know."

That musical instrument played by the Indian snake charmer is not a flute, please note. It's a bean. Soudas a little like a Scottish bagpipe. But not to the snake, certainly. The snake can't hear it. What makes the snake writhe is not the music of the bean but its motion.

MALE NURSE

Q. "Quick, name the famous American poet who'd once been a male nurse."
A. Believe you refer to Walt Whitman. That's how he served in the Civil War.

Q. "Who was the first black to entertain on television?"
A. Sammy Davis, Jr., research reveals. Ed Sullivan put him on, but I forget the year.

Consider the convicts in New York State alone. A sizable enough sampling, that. Exactly 87.6 per cent of them are under the age of 40. And 15 per cent are under the age of 21. For the most part, it's a young man's place, prison. Clearly, thousands upon thousands of them are sent up as youths, then turned loose before they hit middle age. Where are they now? Down the street a few doors, going to work every day, minding their own business, and staying quiet about what happened years ago.

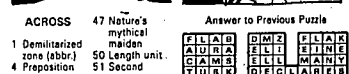

NO HARD LIQUOR

Richard Turner was the fellow's name, and when he gave up hard liquor in 1833, he did so with great dedication. He made speeches about it. In one of same, he declared, "I shall be downright 'tee-total' for ever and ever!" Listeners assumed and meant he'd drink nothing but tea thenceforth, but he never explained his line. Even so, it caught on, and gave us our words "tee-total" and "tee-totaler."

If that youngster of yours has buck teeth, let said offspring take up the trumpet, trombone, French horn, any instrument with a cup-shaped mouthpiece. But not the flute or the piccolo. These would tend to increase an overbite. The Saxophone might or might not, depending on how it's played. And the oboe could reduce the protruding, yet open up the bite. Or so reports a musical dental expert.

Shortly after taking over the Russian government in 1917, V. I. Lenin signed an edict which stated: "...The Council of People's Commissars decrees that all decorations, orders and other marks of distinction are abolished." A move to wipe out inequalities, he said. But consider this: Since 1930, the Soviet Union has passed out more than 400,000 Orders of Lenin, the nation's highest award.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Michael Dengler wants to be called 1069. Pronounce it one-zero-six-nine, not ten-sixty-nine.

Dengler, 31, appeared Monday before Hennepin County District Judge Donald Barbeau to ask that his name legally be changed to the number 1069.

The judge took the case under advisement and said he did not know when he would make a decision.

"I've got to research the laws," Barbeau said. "This is the first time that I've had anyone want his name changed to a number." He added, "I don't know why it can't be done."

Dengler lost a teaching job and was turned down by a judge in North Dakota in his quest for the name change. Now he's working as a short-order cook.

Dengler represented himself in the previous court action. This time he brought along two lawyers.

"Maybe I didn't represent myself too well," he told Judge Barbeau.

Dengler, or 1069, brought along a computer specialist who said numbers lend themselves to identification just as well as names.

Judge Barbeau offered an observation of his own: "Computers will never replace judges, because you have to have someone to blame when you lose."

The telephone company won't do business with 1069 until a court grants official approval. Neither will a gas company or the state drivers' license office.

The phone company gave Dengler a telephone number under the name 1069 but won't list it in the directory. And if it does, the company isn't sure where you put a number for a number.

Northern States Power Co. broke ranks. The electric utility is billing Dengler by the name he prefers — 1069.

"Nobody appeared in opposition to changing his name," Barbeau said. "We checked to see if he wanted to change his name to get out of paying bills or escape a criminal record. He doesn't have a criminal record and doesn't own any property. I've ruled out game playing."

Dengler is divorced and has two children in the custody of his previous wife. He did not ask that their names be changed.

He is firm in the pronunciation of his name — one-zero-six-nine — but he allows those close to him to use the nickname, "One-zero."

FAA rejects investigator's report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administration officials, rejecting the view of a top agency investigator, denied Tuesday that deregulation of airlines will cause safety cutbacks.

They said the opinion of FAA flight standards program evaluation chief Paul Clark was not valid because other experts disagreed and because the report was designed to increase the bureaucracy under Clark's control.

That testimony provoked an angry exchange between Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., chairing the House government activities and transportation subcommittee, and FAA chief Langhorne Bond and flight standards director Richard Skully.

Burton wanted to know why they ignored Clark's report saying that maintenance training would be the first area to be cut back if a deregulated airline has to meet price competition.

"The memo is wrong and mistaken," Bond said. "If these people are wrong they ought to be fired," Burton replied. "You seem oblivious to the fact you're being to have an increased work load" in monitoring safety performance if there is deregulation, as President Carter has proposed.

Bond said experts have found the effect of deregulation on safety "not excessive" and "Mr. Clark is wrong."

"I think he knows more Santa's replies year late

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Children who wrote to Santa Claus last year but didn't get a reply should not lose heart. The reply may be on the way in time for Christmas this year.

Santa Claus opened his 1978 Christmas Post Office Monday in Rovaniemi, the capital of Finnish Lapland on the Arctic Circle. And the first job that Santa's five helpers from the tourist promotion center are undertaking is answering the mail that arrived too late last year.

Some 4,000 letters are already on hand — about 1,500 from abroad including Western and Eastern Europe, the United States, Japan, Australia, and Argentina.

Santa's reply consists of a printed sheet in several languages sending Christmas wishes and also a game through which children can follow Santa's movements through Finland.

Mail from around the world addressed to Santa Claus, North Pole, often gets delivered to the Helsinki main post office from where it is forwarded. But children wanting to be sure of a reply should address their letters to Santa Claus, Valtakatu 17, Rovaniemi, Finland.
