today Flu shot stockpile may pay off

ATLANTA (UPI) — A meeting of federal and state health officials was told today the nation's 443 million stockpile of swine-flu vaccine may give some protection against the new Russian flu strain that has caused an epidemic in that country.

Dr. Gary Noble, a virology researcher at the National Center for Disease Control, said laboratory tests show the swine flu vaccine can give some protection against the new strain, particularly in persons over 25 years of age. But he said tests also show young people and the elderly would get very little protection from the vaccine.

But officials noted healthy young people are normally not seriously affected by the flu. One of the medical experts at today's conference, Dr. David T. Karzon of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., suggested that health observers be sent to the Soviet Union to gather information on the influenza epidemic.

"Russia is giving us a perfect model of what may happen here," Karzon said.

Officials said there probably will be sporadic cases of the new Russian influenza in this country during the current flu season, but it is still uncertain whether there will be an epidemic.

Dr. Walter Dowley, another CDC virology expert, said the pattern of previous flu epidemics indicate outbreaks are preceded by scattered cases of the illness. He said laboratory tests and information received about the flu epidemic in the Soviet Union show that if outbreaks occur in the United States persons under 20 years of age will be the primary targets.

The CDC ordered hurried tests of the swine flu vaccine leftover from last winter to determine its effectiveness against specimens of the Russian flu sent to the CDC by the World Health Organization.

Noble, while saying the swine flu vaccine will give some protection, stressed "it's very age specific."

The Russian flu virus was described earlier by the CDC as a "distant cousin" of the swine influenza virus, an antigenic relationship that opened the possibility the stockpiled vaccine might be at least partially effective in blunting an epidemic of the new strain in this country.

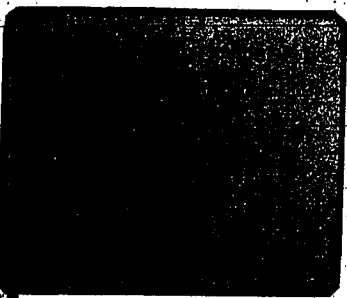

Nearly 85 million doses of the vaccine is stored under refrigeration, most of it in Atlanta. The vaccine was left over from the abortive swine flu immunization program of 1976 and placed in warehouses after public demand for it virtually ceased.

No specific vaccine to combat the new flu is available.

Federal health officials concede there is no way to prevent the Russian flu virus from reaching the United States. The virus swept from the Russian Pacific coast to Moscow in barely 4 months. It also was prevalent in Hong Kong and there were reports of it in Italy.

The Soviet flu was described as moderately severe with the usual symptoms of high fever, headache, muscular pain and a feeling of weakness lasting from 5 to 7 days. In Russia it has afflicted an estimated one out of seven persons, with an attack rate of more than 15 percent.

Russian spending lonely Christmas

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Aleksander Slepak, 25, is experiencing his first Christmas ever, but without the joy of family togetherness — his parents are in Moscow and his brother is in hiding from the Russian KGB.

Slepak is a Russian emigrant, and his parents are waiting for Russian visas. His brother, Leonid, 18, just went into hiding because he was drafted by the Russian army. Inaction would keep him from getting out of Moscow for years.

Aleksander was granted permission to emigrate to Israel in October. His parents, Vladimir and Mariya, began asking government officials for permission to make their home in Israel in 1976, but their plea has been ignored.

His father is the leading Jewish dissident in Moscow today and is the target of KGB harassment. Aleksander, said in an interview while visiting his American wife's family in Los Altos, Calif.

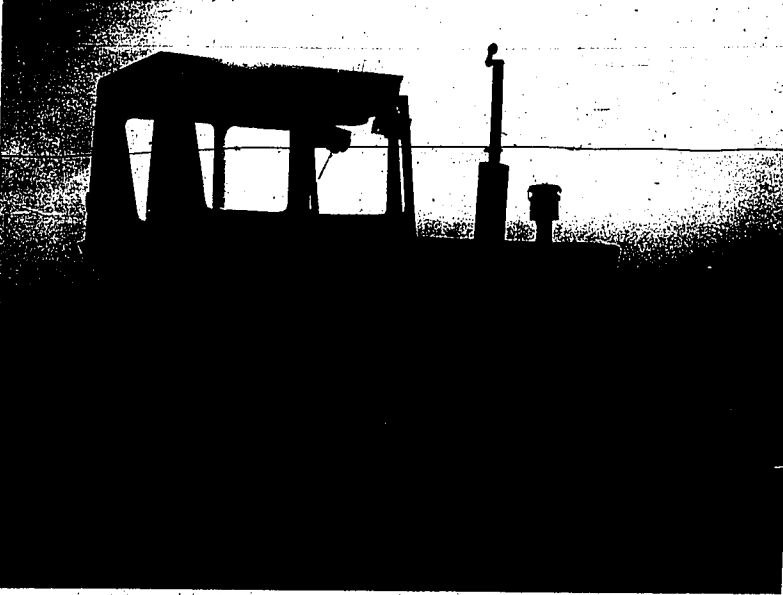

He said when he flew out of Moscow his mother told him at the airport: "In one day I lost two sons."

He explained that she meant it was the same day Leonid received his draft notice and went into hiding.

"My brother and I are close," Aleksander said. "We had to be close because we lived in one small room together all our lives. Christmas is not celebrated in the Soviet Union, so we don't know about such holidays."

"I miss my brother very much. I don't even know where his friends are hiding him. My parents don't even know. He never leaves his hiding place, and friends bring him food. It's been two months since we have heard from him."

Asked why the Russian government granted him a visa but not the rest of his family, he said: "I think I got my visa because of pressure from Jews and non-Jews in the west about our family. They (the KGB) had to let someone go. They threw me to public opinion."

LOW-HANGING SUN SILHOUETTES WINTER-IDLED TRACTOR ON MAGIC VALLEY FARM ... but its owner may put it to work if another tractorecade comes to pass

Valley farmers plan more efforts to tell price woes

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

BUHL — Striking farmers in Magic Valley probably won't stop with one tractorecade to get their point across to the public about parity prices they must have to stay in business.

They may parade through Twin Falls again on Jan. 3.

Wednesday night at a meeting in Buhl, more than 100 area farmers met with strike leaders from Utah to organize their effort to let the help of more farmers and educate the public about their plight.

Farmers discussed a second parade and setting up strike headquarters.

"If this movement fails, you can say good-bye to the family farm," Randall Marble, Tremonton, Utah, told the group. "There are too many corporations buying up our farmland." Marble, a sugar beet grower whose livelihood is threatened by plummeting sugar prices, turned to beets when the turkey raising business in his home town failed.

"Eight years ago, there were 20 turkey producers in Box Elder County (Utah)," Marble recalled. Last year the last one went out of business. "That was my dad."

Marble laments farming has been so unprofitable in recent years many farmers have "jumped from one commodity to another" in an effort to find one they could make money growing.

But in recent years, none have been able to get "parity" for their crops.

Parity, Marble explains, is simply "being at par or equal to the rest of the economy." The concept was originally established in 1933 so a farmer's dollar would always have the same buying power.

Based on the farm economy during the years from 1910 to 1914, parity is a price for a crop such as wheat which will buy the same amount of goods it would buy during those base years.

Since 1933, however, due to technological advancements, farming has become much more efficient and parity has had to be adjusted downward because one farmer can now grow enough food to feed 57 people and his income would be enormous at 1910 base rates.

Marble explains 1967 is now the base year for parity.

"We're just asking for a fair return for our commodities," Marble says. "Parity is not a subsidy or a guaranteed income. The farmer still has to produce to get paid parity prices for his crops."

Marble says farmers in the American Agriculture movement, originally formed in Springfield, Colo., last September, are simply asking Congress to pass a law making it illegal to buy or sell an agricultural commodity at less than parity prices.

If commodities were suddenly boosted to fair parity prices for growers, Marble says, the impact would be about 3.1 per cent of the average American's income.

"It will be a one-time increase," Marble says. "But it will have a stabilizing influence on the economy."

Current market prices for all agricultural commodities in this country are sadly under the parity figures established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, according to figures Marble presented.

Gas pricing plan defunct

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A natural gas pricing compromise collapsed in the House-Senate energy conference committee today after its chief architect abandoned the plan, calling it "a turkey" with virtually no support.

Senate conferees voted 162 against the compromise, thus killing it in conference. "I want to get off this ship before it explodes," Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., told the conference as it resumed public meetings after a week of secret negotiations.

"We have been torpedoes for one and a half and we have taken direct hits," Johnston said.

Johnston at first had indicated he was hopeful a delay in a showdown on his compromise could bring eventual approval. But today he urged the conference to go ahead and vote, settle the matter and go on to other things.

The compromise, completed just before midnight Tuesday, would have extended federal controls on prices of natural gas sold within the state of production, but allowed prices to increase on a steep upward curve that some estimates would in fact amount to deregulation within a few years.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move to strengthen the U.S. dollar on foreign markets, President Carter has moved to increase domestic oil production and expand sales of American farm products abroad.

Carter said Wednesday the United States stands ready to "intervene to the extent necessary" to counter "disorderly conditions" in international monetary markets.

"We have a responsibility to protect the integrity of the dollar," he said. The value of the dollar has plunged this year, particularly as it compares with currencies of such countries as Japan, Switzerland, and West Germany. A series of short-term steps were announced in a statement released after Carter left Washington for Plains, Ga. Carter said he had instructed the Department of Energy to:

—expand production of oil at the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve in California from the current 140,000 barrels per day to between 300,000 and 350,000 barrels per day.

—encourage an expansion of production at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska about the 1.2 million barrels per day planned for March, 1978.

—maintain production of California crude at a high level.

Snow covers region

TWIN FALLS — A light snow storm, which swept throughout southern Idaho and into both Utah and Nevada left all highways, and roads slick and icy and resulted in a rash of minor accidents.

Twin Falls "city police" investigated 10 accidents between 7:31 a.m. and 10 a.m., but there were no serious injuries.

Idaho State Police reported all driving conditions hazardous, but said warmer temperatures were helping the situation by 10 a.m. District State police offices have reported accidents "no more than 15 to 20 days." In Russia it has afflicted an estimated one out of seven persons, with an attack rate of more than 15 percent.

(Related story, p. 2)

State Highway Department officials in Shoshone said roads were slick this morning in the entire district, but snow depths were not great.

The Shoshone office reported snow falling there at 10 a.m. and said the storm was moving north, snow having just started to fall in Carey.

Weather officials say chances for a white Christmas are good as another Pacific storm bringing more snow is following on the heels of the one which reached Magic Valley this morning. Gooding has four inches of snow on the ground and McCall reports 20, but mostly from earlier storms.

Holiday travelers can expect some hazardous road conditions in just about any direction out of or through Magic Valley. Depending on temperatures during the next few days weather officials say there will be either rain or snow in the valleys and lots of new snow for the ski resorts.

Motorists are advised by state police to allow plenty of time for their holiday trips, taking into consideration predictions for continued snow and icy roads.

Ski resorts are expecting their biggest business of the year during the coming two weeks and weather officials say there should be more snow added to already ideal conditions.

All resorts are operating daily and will need a fresh cover of snow occasionally to maintain ideal conditions. According to the weather reports, it should be forthcoming.

Blast toll high

WESTWEGO, La. (UPI) — A grain elevator along the Mississippi River exploded today trapping workmen in a maze of burning silos and sending a cloud of dust five miles downstream to New Orleans.

Ten persons, including one sheriff's deputy, were taken to area hospitals. Plant officials said they feared 20 others were dead.

David Borchert, manager of the Continental Grain Co., said as many as 20 workers were inside a cinder block office building that was crushed by rubble after the grain elevator exploded.

U.S. moves to prop $

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move to strengthen the U.S. dollar on foreign markets, President Carter has moved to increase domestic oil production and expand sales of American farm products abroad.

Carter said Wednesday the United States stands ready to "intervene to the extent necessary" to counter "disorderly conditions" in international monetary markets.

work with appropriate governmental and private interests in expediting provision of adequate pipeline capacity for transport of Alaskan and California oil east of the Rocky Mountains.

In the effort to boost agricultural exports, Carter said the administration has already doubled Commodity Credit Corporation credits from $750 million to $1.5 billion.

Also, there will be a sharp increase next year in lending activity by the Export-Import Bank, Carter said. Lending in 1978 should reach $2.8 billion, four times the current level, according to a Treasury Department official.

California storm loses punch; snow blankets East

FIREFIGHTER STAN WALKER, FRIEND
... rabbit survives air base fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A RELANDER storm that raked California from one end to the other with pale-force winds lost its vigor today, but left at least nine persons dead and widespread destruction to buildings and crops.

The winds, gusting at up to 100 mph during the height of the storm, eased to 10 to 25 mph. Drought-stricken Northern California was washed with spreading showers.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. crews moved into rural areas to restore power. The winds blew down utility poles and falling branches snapped lines, leaving some 150,000 homes without power for hours from Eureka in the north to Bakersfield in the south.

Dollar estimates of the damage were not available, but the California Farm Bureau Federation said the crop loss would be in the millions. The avocado industry alone lost $5 million to $10 million.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. declared Humboldt County on the north coast and Arvin in Kern County disaster areas. The state Office of Emergency Services sent representatives into Humboldt, Kern, Fresno, Monterey, Santa Barbara, and San Diego counties to assess damage and a lack of slush from the Middle Atlantic states to New England.

Winds that gusted up to 100 mph Wednesday eased to the 10 to 25 mph range early today, as rains increased over northern California.

Travelers advisories were issued today in northern Maine, where snow, sleet and freezing rain were expected to add 1 to 3 inches to Wednesday's accumulations. More than one inch of rain fell late Wednesday and early today at Augusta and about three quarters of an inch was reported at Bangor.

Snow poured over upstate New York Wednesday, closing roads in Herkimer County and interrupting power lines. Massena was hit with 8 inches of snow and some mountain areas had up to 18 inches.

The winds — at the junction of two pressure systems — had topped majestic redwoods as well as power lines.

As the winds died down, the rainfall increased. More than an inch of rain fell Wednesday night at Ukiah.

The REPORT FROM THE BIRD ...

gave freighters a chance to control the brush fire that killed the base commander and two other men and blackened 2,000 acres at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

The Midwest's first winter storm lessened to isolated flurries early today, after leaving shovellers with as much as 11 inches of snow in some areas, such as in some Chicago suburbs. In Iowa, the state Department of Transportation reported its budget for snow and ice removal already is showing signs of strain — and might burst well before the spring.

Travelers advisories were in effect early today in Upper Michigan, where more than an inch of snow fell Wednesday night at Sault Ste. Marie.

OPEC holds line on prices

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The world's major oil exporters will not raise petroleum prices for at least the next few months, offering a reprieve to economically hard pressed Western nations.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries held a two-day meeting at the Caribbean coastal resort of Caraballeda Wednesday without reaching a consensus on 1978 oil prices. This means the current price levels will continue, OPEC spokesmen said.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said a glut of oil on the world market forced the freeze in prices and that his country, the largest OPEC producer, would begin cutting back production to ease the surplus.

In Brussels, Belgium, Common Market officials said they were relieved by the outcome of the OPEC meeting because over a 5 percent oil price increase would have added $2.5 billion to the nine-nation community's import bill.

"We are greatly relieved," an official said. "Any increase would have added to our difficulties in trying to reduce the number of unemployed."

In Washington, the State Department had no immediate reaction to the price freeze. But in Plains, Ga., a vacationing President Carter told reporters it was "great ... I hope it lasts all year."

Saudi Arabian oil, the "benchmark" for setting prices for other grades of oil, is now $12.70 a barrel.

The 13 OPEC countries were widely divided on 1978 prices. Saudi Arabia and Iran, the two largest producers, sought a

More farm parades ahead

Wheat currently goes for about $2.25 per bushel, while government parity indexes list a fair price for wheat at $5.02 per bushel. Wheat, then, is said to be selling at 45 percent of parity.

Another way of explaining parity prices, according to Harbale, is if a bushel of wheat would buy a shirt in 1976; it should still be equivalent in price to enable the seller of wheat to buy the same shirt.

The law proposed by American Agriculture to assure parity prices for commodity sales would like a minimum wage law, but not a guaranteed income," he continues. "We still have to contend with drought and other natural factors."

A vote at the farm meeting in Buhl last night revealing farmers present were unanimously in favor of the proposed measures to even out farm commodity prices.

They all pledged their support to the movement and vowed to "get off our tails and tell the (strike) story to more people."

"We all recognize the fact that agriculture has the biggest debt today that it has ever had in history," George Juker, Buhl farmer and strike organizer, says. "And there are fewer people to retire those debts."

Juker urged local farmers to join the strike, hand out leaflets explaining strike demands to other farmers and consumers and to organize a strike office in the county.

"The only thing we have in Idaho to sell is our agricultural products," Juker says. "If we sell them below the cost of production, what are we doing for this state?"

Farmers at the meeting voted to hold another organizational meeting next week in Twin Falls and to set up strike offices in both Buhl and Twin Falls to continue strike efforts.

Explosion puzzle grows

FROM RIVER, N.J. (UPI) — A series of loud, mysterious "explosions" Wednesday night alarmed residents along the New Jersey shore for the third time this month.

"Sonic boom has been ruled out for the blasts that have rumbled over the coastal area and that have been heard as far away as on Long Island's South shore."

The latest blast was heard at 7 p.m. Wednesday in a 15-mile area of Long Beach Island and as far as five miles inland. Hundreds of puzzled residents called their local police to report the sound, and nearly everyone was talking about the mystery.

Local defense officials checked with government agencies and rule out sonic booms and explosions set off by offshore oil exploration rigs.

Norman Diamond, operations officer for the county civil defense office, said the best theory seemed to be the sounds were caused by either meteor showers or thunderclaps.

"It must be something up there in the sky because we can get no answers from the agencies down here on the ground," Diamond said. "If we wish we could come up with an answer for the public. We have absolutely no explanation for it."

are sounding the same warning to consumers and government officials. They say they will not buy or sell commodities or agricultural products and may not plant their crops in the spring if nothing is done to boost their prices.

In Riverton, Wyo., a group of farmers held a sale and bought a cow named "Parity" for 58 1/2 cents a pound compared with current market prices of 37 to 40 cents. They say the sale demonstrated parity is not an unreasonable demand.

In Iowa, Informational Belts and Stripes set up tractor barbecues at grocery stores, grain-mills and — livestock auctions to get their point across.

In Plains, Ga., President Jimmy Carter's U.S. Department of Agriculture efforts of U.S. farmers saying it is a "new and healthy development."

Castro role focal point of Secret Service probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service investigation into the Kennedy assassination concentrated heavily on reports the Cuban government of Fidel Castro plotted the murder, according to newly released documents.

One Secret Service lead even suggested the Chinese Communists were involved with Castro, but the agency's investigation was unable to link Lee Harvey Oswald to a Cuban assassination plot.

The Secret Service gave UPI hundreds of documents from its Kennedy assassination file

In response to a request under the Freedom of Information law.

The documents show the Secret Service inched on to the Cuban connection almost immediately after the assassination of John F. Kennedy largely because Kennedy had been in Miami the week before he was killed in Dallas.

Some 40,000 pages of FBI documents of the Kennedy assassination released early this month also speculate on a Cuban conspiracy. Like the FBI files and the Warren Commission investigation, the Secret Service probe of the Cuba connection led to a dead end.

The Secret Service's investigation of a possible Cuba connection—look—Treasury agents to New Orleans, Dallas, Miami, Chicago and Mexico.

Among the other items in the document:

— Kennedy did not like to have the public physically restrained during his appearances and twice prior to Dallas he discouraged agents who tried to block people from his motorcades.

Involved in an attempt by Cubans to assassinate Castro leading to speculation Castro played a role in the Kennedy murder.

When the Secret Service tried to link the Castro speech to the assassination, they found but one connection. A story on the speech was carried in New Orleans newspapers at the time Oswald lived there as an active member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Another Secret Service memo on Nov. 22, 4 weeks after the assassination, said if there was a Cuban conspiracy—information had been received

LEE HARVEY OSWALD ... under FBI watch

JAMES J. ROWLEY ... raised questions

Files on Oswald retained by FBI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI agents monitored for more than three years the puzzling activities of a young Texas man who journeyed to the Soviet Union in 1962, announced he was defecting and then did a turnaround to return home in 1962.

But FBI files on Lee Harvey Oswald never reached the Secret Service, the security force responsible for protecting the president.

The apparent slip-up in communications was disclosed in Secret Service files obtained by UPI Wednesday, more than 14 years after Oswald shot President John F. Kennedy to death in Dallas.

The slip-up caused James J. Rowley, then chief of Secret Service, to raise serious questions about procedures for sharing information between the Secret Service and other intelligence and law enforcement agencies.

"The fact that the name of Lee H. Oswald was not furnished to the Protective Research Section (of the Secret Service) prior to the time of the assassination made it clear that (the) criteria required reexamination," Rowley wrote in an April 22, 1964 memo to the Warren Commission.

He told the commission he had ordered a re-examination of "the criteria employed by the Secret Service in identifying individuals who might be dangerous to the President."

A Secret Service memo dated three days after the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination stated neither Oswald's name nor that of A.J. Hidell, his known alias, appeared anywhere in Secret Service files — including the lists of persons potentially dangerous to the president.

However, 40,000 pages of FBI documents released earlier this month indicated the FBI, and apparently the CIA, kept close track of Oswald's movements for more than three years prior to the assassination.

Secret Service memoranda indicated the assassination, and possible agency errors that contributed to it, also triggered a re-evaluation of the manner in which a president is guarded. In the 1964 memo, Rowley said agents might make experimental searches of buildings along presidential parade routes.

He did not rule out the possibility of requesting more manpower.

Rowley said he was concerned about the problem of identifying high-risk individuals, urging intelligence agencies to adopt uniform criteria.

"The late President Kennedy believed he belonged to the people," wrote Gerald Behm, head of the Secret Service's White House detail.

— One of the most intriguing documents in the material was from a Miami Secret Service agent who was told by an unnamed "Western diplomat" of an "alleged Chicom-Castro plot" to kill Kennedy. Chicom is shorthand for Chinese Communist.

The agent in Miami concluded his office could not "vouch for the reliability or veracity of the information" but he said he was investigating further and trying to identify the original source.

There is no reference to the matter elsewhere in the documents.

A speech made by Castro two months before the assassination also attracted the attention of Secret Service investigators. Castro warned, "United States leaders would be in danger if they helped in any attempt to do away with leaders of Cuba."

It was revealed during the past year that the CIA was involved in an attempt by Cubans to assassinate Castro leading to speculation Castro played a role in the Kennedy murder.

When the Secret Service tried to link the Castro speech to the assassination, they found but one connection. A story on the speech was carried in New Orleans newspapers at the time Oswald lived there as an active member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Another Secret Service memo on Nov. 22, 4 weeks after the assassination, said if there was a Cuban conspiracy—information had been received that the party responsible for carrying out any action on the part of Fidel Castro undoubtedly was Quinten Pino Machado, a Cuban terrorist used by Castro to carry out any Castro action.

The San Antonio Secret Service office also checked in with a report that a Mexico City telephone operator had listened to a call placed to Miami the night after the assassination.

The Mexican caller stated: "The Castro plan is being carried out. Bobby is next. Soon the bombs will begin to rain and they won't know from where."

And three days after the murder, the Secret Service in Chicago conducted an extensive investigation into a man who told them he had been in touch with a group of "Chicago Cubans who may be involved in the assassination" and is endeavoring to purchase a variety of automatic weapons and explosives.

Nothing came of that lead.

Pacemaker warning out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors were alerted Wednesday that 75 electronic heart pacemakers may have a defect which could cause them to stop working, the Food and Drug Administration said.

Involved are Hewlett Packard electronic pacemakers made in California, serial numbers 7501 through 1323A01059. The units are worn outside the body instead of being surgically implanted.

The FDA said Hewlett Packard's Medical Electronic Division in Waltham, Mass., which is conducting the recall, estimated the 75 pacemakers were distributed in California, New York, Missouri, Illinois, South Carolina, Florida, Texas, Utah and Washington state as well as overseas.

Some of the pacemakers are being worn by heart patients and others are in the supply pipeline, the FDA said.

The FDA said moisture penetration could cause the pacemakers' pulse-generation to stop.

Cairo talks stall; bombshell awaited

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian and Israeli negotiators failed to reconcile basic differences today and looked to a Christmas summit meeting to produce a "bombshell" development that could revitalize the stalled Cairo peace conference.

Chief Egyptian delegate Esmat-Abdel-Meguid told reporters after today's 55-minute session, "There has been progress but there are still some questions in dispute."

Conference sources said these questions concerned basic approach — with Egypt wanting agreement on the main principles of peace, and Israel seeking to define details of such a peace beforehand — in advance of the Sunday meeting between President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

A conference source said the Sunday meeting of the two leaders "could well produce a bombshell" that would spur efforts to solve the Middle East crisis.

"That's where the movement could come, where things could really come together," said a conference source, reflecting a feeling of suspended animation as the talks awaited the outcome of the summit session.

Conference sources said differences also remained on the issue of the Palestinians. Egypt has demanded establishment of a Palestinian state, while Begin earlier in the week proposed limited self-rule for Palestinians on the Israeli-occupied Jordan-West Bank.

In his first public criticism of Begin's peace plan, Sadat Wednesday said Israel cannot retain military control of the West Bank of the Jordan.

The only tangible accord in today's session among the Egyptian, Israeli, U.S. and U.N. negotiators was on a "message of greeting" to Sadat on his 59th birthday, which will coincide with the Christmas day meeting at Ismailia.

Meguid said the delegations would hold "consultations" the day after the summit to set a date for the next formal negotiating session of the weekend conference.

Conference sources said that despite disagreement, the atmosphere among delegates behind the closed, carved-wood doors of the Mena House hotel conference room was cordial.

"There is a marked desire by both Egypt and Israel to achieve a peace settlement," said an Egyptian official.

There was no indication the delegates had settled on an agenda for future sessions to surpass procedural disagreements that surfaced from the outset.

Today's session heard a report from a three-man "working committee" of Egyptian and Israeli legal experts that had been charged with agreeing on a compromise procedure for the talks, but officials did not say how the report was received.

Although the U.S. and U.N. delegates have taken a backseat in the milestone face-to-face talks between Egypt and Israel, Meguid said the American delegation led by Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton had intervened from time to time and is constantly following the talks.

But Meguid said frankly that the future of the Cairo talks, which Sadat has said will be upgraded to foreign ministers' level after his talks with Begin — will be conditioned on the outcome of the Sunday summit meeting.

Lab choices narrow down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency today named six Americans including one woman as finalists for one of two scientist seats aboard the first Spacelab, a science laboratory to be orbited in the belly of the space shuttle in December, 1980.

The European Space Agency, which built Spacelab in cooperation with the United States, announced in Paris the names of four Europeans competing for the second seat reserved for a scientist.

They were Franco Malerba, 31, an Italian electronics engineer working in Milan; Urs Merbold, 36, a West German research worker from Stuttgart; Claude Nicollier, 33, a Swiss pilot and scientist working for the European Space Agency in the Netherlands and Wubbo Ockels, a Dutchman working as a physics expert at the Groningen University.

The slots are set aside for scientists or engineers working on specific Spacelab experiments. They usually will fly only once, will not be trained as astronauts and need only be in reasonably good health.

Among the American candidates is Mrs. Ann Whitton, a 38-year-old mother and NASA physicist from Huntsville, Ala., who could become the first American woman to fly in space.

There are no women in the astronaut corps, although the space agency is expected to include several in a group of 40 new astronauts to be named next month.

"I think it's fantastic, I'm really excited," Mrs. Whitton said upon learning of her selection. "I've been interested in this since the late '60s when I worked on an experiment that flew in Skylab."

The other American candidates are Dr. Craig Fischer, 40, a Palm Desert, Calif., physicist who once worked for NASA; Dr. Michael Smith, 35, an astrophysicist from the University of California at Berkeley; Dr. Robert Menzies, 34, an atmospheric physicist at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.; Byron Lichtenberg, 29, a biomedical engineer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, and Dr. Richard Terrie, 26, a planetary scientist at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

The first Spacelab will fly on the 11th flight of the space shuttle and will remain inside the 60-foot cargo bay of the space plane during the entire seven-day mission. Its scientists will use special instruments in the lab and on an accompanying platform to carry out a variety of experiments.

In addition to the two Spacelab scientists, the shuttle will be flown by three American astronauts for a total of five crew members.

The European and American candidates for the two scientific posts will undergo medical tests in Houston in late January. The group will be narrowed down to five in April — two Americans and three Europeans. One American and one European later will be selected to go into space and the other three will perform advisory or support work at the control center.

Hostages subdue gunman in bank

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (UPI) — Fourteen weary and hungry hostages today overpowered and killed a Filipino gunman who held them for 47 hours in a bank on the U.S. Subic Bay Naval Base, officials said.

A statement issued by a U.S. Navy spokesman said U.S. Marines rushed the one-story, white-washed bank building after several of the hostages overwhelmed the gunman.

Rear Adm. Huntington Hardisty, commander of the base, told a news conference the gunman suffered head wounds which may have been caused by a massive blow or a gunshot.

The gunman died about an hour after the end of the siege inside the Filipino-owned Prudential Bank and Trust Co., near the main gate of the base, 90 miles northwest of Manila. About 5,000 American servicemen are stationed at the base, one of two major American bases in the Philippines.

There were shouts, screams and gunfire when the hostages finally overcame the gunman and the Marines moved in, the Navy said. A crowd of about 1,000 people, including bargirls from nearby nightspots, cheered as the Marines rushed the building and the hostages came running out.

The hostages, without food for nearly two days, appeared to be in good condition, although the bank manager, Nicomedes Villaluz, suffered a cut on the forehead.

Kearney sentenced to life

PATRICK KEARNEY

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Patrick Kearney, who confessed to 28 homosexual "trashbag slayings," possibly making him the worst mass murderer in U.S. history, was sentenced to life in prison Wednesday. The sentence was passed immediately after Kearney, 38, pleaded guilty to three of the murders. The prosecutor said Kearney could be transferred to a state prison as early as today.

Fourteen dismembered boys and young men ranging in age from 13 to 28 — most of them teen-age homosexual drifters — have been found in plastic trash bags alongside highways throughout Southern California since 1970.

Superior Court Judge John Hews warned Kearney that although he will be eligible for parole in seven years, "in all likelihood you will spend the rest of your natural life in prison."

Cabbie tries to help woman

NEW YORK (UPI) — A rky sly cab driver who tried to help a woman mugging, Wellm was shot and killed by one of her three attackers in the East New York section of Brooklyn Wednesday night, police reported.

Police said Phillip Jackson, 26, of 114-14 58th Ave., Brooklyn, was shot in the forehead at point blank range by a semi-caliber gun.

"He was just a good Samaritan trying to help someone," a police spokesman said.

Authorities said Jackson apparently found the woman and drove her around in his cab until she spotted her three attackers near Union Street and Blake Avenue around 8:30 p.m.

Jackson approached the three youths, but two ran. As Jackson was herding the third into his taxi, police said, he was shot.

No arrests were made and no weapon recovered, police said.

Film called public nuisance

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The city's anti-obscenity board, dispatched to view the X-rated film "Peach Fuzz" to determine if it was obscene, caught the final few minutes of another feature, "Night of Submission."

When the hour-long "Peach Fuzz" was over, some of the board members continued to watch the beginning of "Night." "These dirty old men just want to watch the movie," said board member Marcella Lubar, as she left the Madam X Adult Theatre.

Back at City Hall Tuesday night, the anti-obscenity group — which includes a realtor, a priest, a lawyer, a public military officer, a dentist, a public relations officer and an engineer — voted "Peach Fuzz" a public nuisance.

The board decided the film appended to the lustful interests of an average citizen, depicted "ultimate sexual acts," and had no serious cultural value.

One of the dissenting votes was cast by Marcella Lubar, who said the main obscenity was the movie was too long.

Services held for Mrs. Ross

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Funeral services for Nellie Taylor Ross, the first woman governor in the United States who died at the age of 101, were Wednesday at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Cheyenne.

Remarks by Rev. Eugene Todd, Rector of the historic church said, "There is no need to say anything, for you all know what she did for this state."

Rev. Todd called Mrs. Ross a "beautiful lady and a devout Christian who made her mark not only on the state of Wyoming, but the nation as a whole."

FORT MADISON, Iowa (UPI) — The Christmas spirit is alive and well in the Iowa State Prison, whose inmates are playing Santa-Claus to needy area children.

"Men in Blue" is the name given to the group of inmates who for one month a year pitch in their coats, join the hustle and bustle of last-minute Christmas shoppers and then visit area educational institutions to pass out the carefully selected toys and clothes to smiling retarded and handicapped youngsters.

"I've been involved since I'm here, nine years," inmate Richard Schmitz said

Wednesday in a telephone interview.

"Everybody who wants to get involved can. We are helping a lot of needy kids. I have three children of my own and as I help these handicapped children, I hope someone is doing the same for my children."

Schmitz, 36, of Dubuque, serving time on a second-degree murder conviction, said the activities actually start in early December. First, money is collected.

"We had only one collection this year. We have guys go around from cell to cell," he said. He added some inmates gripe-about contributing money but "they seem to donate anyhow. Last year, $600 was collected, but we average $300-$400."

Next, the men gather ideas on the types of gifts to buy. Schmitz and two other members of the steering committee got gift ideas from teachers and supervisors during visits to area schools and activity centers.

"We went to all the schools, talked to the teachers and played with the kids," Schmitz said. "Some of the kids remembered us from last time, right away they said, 'Hey, there's Santa.'"

The fun is in the shopping. Schmitz said. Using the $300 collected this year at Fort Madison and minimum-security facilities, the men — accompanied by a prison staffer — bought about 150 presents. Several area merchants and local banks also contributed money or provided discounts.

"We were going there (down town) everyday and the prices were dropping (because of discounts)," Schmitz said. "We spent about $2.50 per kid but that was raised because the merchants gave us free clothing, toys and candy."

The Men in Blue, organized about 24 years ago, held two Christmas parties Wednesday.

"The kids are real happy. They say 'There's Santa' and all that. They happy to see them happy. And, we get some stuff — candy and food — to take back to the inmates. They (the inmates) like that," Schmitz said.

Not only the children benefit from the program. Schmitz said he is getting to know the people in the community — "where I'll be again someday."

Carson negotiates new contract

© N.Y. Times Service — NEW YORK — Johnny Carson, who already is probably the highest salaried performer in all show business, has negotiated a new contract with NBC that gives him yet another pay boost, reportedly bringing his salary close to $3 million a year.

But more significantly, the contract, which goes into effect early next year, increases Carson's time off from the "Tonight" show with a substantial schedule of three-day work weeks.

Under his present contract, Carson performs on "Tonight" four nights a week, with a guest host substituting for him on the fifth night. NBC has indicated that for the newly reduced schedule it will present repeats of early "Tonight" shows one night a week.

Although neither the network nor Carson's attorney, Henry Bushkin, would discuss the terms of the new agreement, sources close to Carson described his new working schedule as follows:

- 25 three-day work weeks, in which he would appear on "Tonight" from Wednesday to Fridays.
- 12 four-day work weeks, with Mondays as Carson's night off.
- 15 vacation weeks, to be used one or two weeks at a time.

As the most successful host of NBC's long-running and highly profitable late-night program, Carson has been earning more than $2 million a year from NBC since 1972. He has been able to command such a salary because "Tonight" has been perhaps NBC's most profitable single program through two decades.

Last year, despite the high salary paid Carson and despite his frequent absences, "Tonight" was said to have earned profits of $30 million. Carson, who took over the "Tonight" show from Jack Paar in 1962, immediately proved an even more effective host than his popular predecessor.

Heavy snow may fall on MV tonight

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert Area: Traveler's advisories are out for southern Idaho for tonight and Friday. Periods of light snow with strong gusty winds at times through Friday are predicted. High temperatures Friday 35 to 40 and overnight lows near 25. Saturday's outlook calls for chance of snow. Halley-Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley: Occasional periods of light snow tonight through Friday with snow locally heavy in the mountains. High temperatures 30 to 35 and overnight lows 15 to 20. Saturday's outlook is for a chance of snow. Synopsi: Considerable cloudiness from a Pacific storm covered the Magic Valley during the night, keeping early morning temperatures in the 20s. Moisture from this storm was spreading mixed rain and snow over northern California and Oregon during the night and snow began moving into Magic Valley early today. Traveler's advisories have been issued for heavy snow for the Sierra-Nevada mountains and southern Idaho for tonight and into Friday. Another Pacific storm right behind this one will be moving into Idaho tonight for more snow activities. The extended outlook for Christmas weekend through Monday calls for periods of mixed rain and snow in the valleys and snow in the ski resorts. High temperatures will be 45 to 35 with overnight lows mostly in the 20s.

Anti-laetrile tactics hit

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A California toxicologist testified in a federal court hearing on Laetrile Wednesday that he believed the Food and Drug Administration was misrepresenting Laetrile's toxic aspects.

Dr. Bruce Halstead of Colton, Calif., said Laetrile, made from the pits of apricots or other fruits, does not contain cyanide as Laetrile opponents have claimed and that some conventional cancer treatments are more toxic than Laetrile. The Food and Drug Administration and the U. S. Customs Service want U. S. District Judge Luther Bohannon to stay his Dec. 5 order allowing unrestricted importation and use of Laetrile by cancer patients. Attorney Kenneth Coe, who represents Laetrile supporters, asked that the FDA be forced to stop distributing posters and pamphlets saying laetrile was dangerous. After hearing the arguments, Bohannon took the case under advisement. After Halstead's testimony, Bohannon said "thousands have used it (Laetrile) in the last year with no toxic effects and have received comfort, easing of pain and considerable shrinking of tumors." Government attorneys said the judge's ruling lifting Laetrile restrictions would result in massive importation of the drug.

Gates open for 7,000

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has decided to seek the emergency admission of 7,000 Vietnamese boat people instead of the 10,000 originally proposed by the State Department, administration officials said Wednesday. The officials said the White House Tuesday night authorized the State Department to ask Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell formally to use his "parole authority" to admit the "boat people" — refugees stranded in Asia, often living on the small boats they used for their escape. Earlier this month, the State Department, worried about the increasing flow of refugees from Vietnam — the rate had risen from 150 to 1,500 monthly — had decided to ask Bell to authorize the emergency admittance of 10,000.

Wild river compact on Snake discussed

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — The governors of Washington and Idaho Wednesday discussed the possibility of entering into a compact to manage a 34-mile stretch of the Snake River as a wild and scenic river. But no formal agreement was reached during a two-hour meeting between Washington Gov. Dixie Lee Ray and Idaho Gov. John Evans. The two discussed a possible second meeting on the subject sometime next spring. Evans invited Gov. Ray to take a trip up the Snake River at that time to view the area in question. The 34-mile reach between Asotin, Wash., and Hells Canyon is currently under consideration for inclusion in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. The northern 30 miles form the border between Idaho and Washington and the southern four miles form the border between Idaho and Oregon. A 110-mile stretch of the Snake further upstream was added to the Wild and Scenic Rivers System two years ago after a lengthy battle between environmentalists and various utilities seeking to build a hydroelectric dam in Hells Canyon. Steve LeRoy, an Evans aide, said the tone of the meeting was very friendly and there seemed to be plenty of room to work out a future agreement regarding management of the 34-mile stretch. "We were in agreement to the fact that the area in question would best be administered by the states themselves rather than the federal government," LeRoy said. "They seemed to be spending a great deal of time talking about some type of compact." "Gov. Ray was concerned that if the two states entered into such a compact for management of the area, would that leave open the option in the future of possible construction of a dam in the area," LeRoy said. But while Evans had been quoted in the past as saying Gov. Ray's support of such a project near Asotin was the main point of disagreement between the two governors, LeRoy said Gov. Ray indicated there was no immediate concern on her part on the need for such a dam. "Gov. Evans has always felt that he has to oppose a dam presently or in the future in that area and his concern now is to include that area under wild and scenic river designation and to do it as quickly as possible," LeRoy said. But LeRoy said Evans indicated that if it should become necessary in the future, an amendment could always be added to any kind of compact between the two states. Besides the discussion, the two governors viewed a slide presentation on the area. Prior to Gov. Ray's arrival in Lewiston, Evans met with various citizens to hear their comments on the matter. After the meeting, Evans returned to Boise, while Gov. Ray made a visit to nearby Clarkston, Wash., before returning to Olympia.

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — The commander of the fighter wing at Mountain Home Air Force Base says the 100 F111A fighter-bombers at the base have been officially grounded because of cracks in engine cases. Col. John Pickitt, commander of the 366th Tactical Fighter Wing, was notified of the grounding Wednesday night. Pickitt independently had ordered all the planes temporarily grounded after an Air Force announced a problem last Friday.

Alaska pipeline project long way from moving gas

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — The Alaska gas pipeline project, which resided at the Federal Power Commission for about three years until Congress and the White House interceded to push it forward, now appears to have taken up semipermanent residence at FPC's successor, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Several days ago, the five FERC commissioners granted a "conditional certificate" to Alcan Pipeline Co., implying that the company has the right to build its planned $7.7 billion, 2,700-mile pipeline to carry natural gas from Alaska's North Slope through Canada to the 48 contiguous states.

The certificate, however, turns out to be one more step in what could turn out to be a years-long case before the new energy commission. The certificate, officials say, was simply an automatic duty the commission had to perform under law. It does not permit Alcan to turn over the first spadeful of dirt, but does mean that company may begin putting the project together, secure in the knowledge that nobody else will win the right to build and operate the pipeline.

At the same time it granted the conditional certificate, the commission appointed an "Alaskan delegate" to head an Alaskan pipeline office. The delegate, John B. Adger Jr., a geologist and since last May, a member of a government team examining the Alaska pipeline project, will gather and analyze all the data to help the commissioners make their decisions. Just what decisions remain?

According to some commission observers, they are among the most difficult. They include approval of a final financing program (by some estimates the cost, originally $6 billion, has escalated to $10 billion and could wind up $20 billion), approval of a detailed construction schedule, selection of the final pipe size and pressure, and determination of the actual extent of gas reserves.

The commission may also have to determine the price of the gas, unless Congress enacts new natural-gas legislation taking such powers away from it.

Just how long this will take is an open question. Commissioner Don S. Smith, the only holdover among the commissioners from the old

FPC, and one who has been close to the Alaskan case, did not want to estimate "when asked about it Tuesday night."

Smith said that while it is possible the pipeline case may wind up with full-scale hearings, "We do not contemplate the kind of protracted, adversarial procedure that has gone on for years. It may well be that an evidentiary on-the-record showing that the applicant is prepared to comply with all the conditions will be necessary at some later point."

The Alcan pipeline proposal was one of three plans for Alaska gas pipelines that were before the FPC for years. The first, by Arctic Gas Co., was filed in early 1974. Arctic would have brought the gas from Alaska to the Midwestern United States via Canada.

In late 1974, El Paso Co. filed its "All-American" plan to pipe the gas to southern Alaska, where it would have been liquefied and transported by ship to the West Coast for gasification.

The last proposal, filed in July 1976 by Alcan, also called for a route through Canada, but paralleling existing highways. Unlike the Arctic plan, it would not pass through a wildlife refuge.

Company recalls bad yule lights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thousands of Christmas tree lights with a possible explosive defect were recalled Tuesday, the Consumer Product Safety Commission announced.

The lights are standard-sized replacement bulbs and three inches long imported from Taiwan by Market Research Imports, Incline City, Nev.

The company, which is conducting the recall, discovered the defect after a retailer reported a customer complained one of the bulbs exploded and cut his hand.

A defect in some of the bulbs could cause them to shatter with explosive force when electrical current is first applied, the commission said.

"Consumers who may have purchased these replacement bulbs are urged to immediately inspect them to see if a thin strand of wire (1/4 to 1/2 of an inch in length) is protruding from the solder tip at base" of bulb. When the protruding wire is present, the bulb is defective," it said.

"The defect may be safely removed by simply snipping off the protruding wire at the base of the solder tip with a pair of scissors or pliers with cutting edges," it said.

The consumer may also elect to return bulbs to the place of purchase for exchange or refund.

The two models of the bulbs which may have the defect can be identified on the package as item No. LC-9008 Size 8 1/2 and item No. LC-7004 Size 7 1/2. The words "replacement bulbs" and the MRI brand letters also may appear.

The bulbs, four in a pack, retailed for about $1 or less and were sold nationwide.

The company and the commission said they were issuing a warning that "other distributors may have imported these same bulbs from Taiwan and may be selling them under different brand names. The consumer is cautioned to inspect all such replacement bulbs before installing them in decorative light fixtures."

The commission said there were more than 2,200 Christmas tree-related injuries one (1) from Christmas tree lights, treated in emergency rooms last year.

The agency said it is urging everyone to check lights before plugging them in to look for broken or cracked sockets and to discard the set if any are found.

"Each socket should have two electric contacts, one horizontal across the inside base of the socket and the other vertical along the inside wall," it said. "If both both contacts are positioned vertically the set is defective and should be discarded."

SHOPLIFTERS BEWARE...

You could spend the holidays in jail!

Ever see the inside of a jail cell? It's not exactly like home, but it might well be your next home if you're a shoplifter! Because people are onto you! Stores are installing sophisticated security systems to prove it. Customers watch for you, because they know that what you steal, they'll end up paying for with higher store prices. And the laws are being revised to make punishments and fines even stiffer! Shoplifting may be tempting, but one thing's for sure...it's definitely NOT worth it!

Pioneer remembers early days

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem concerning my daughter-in-law (I'll call her Mary) and my three beautiful grandchildren, who are all under 10 years of age. Mary doesn't work, and about three times a week she brings the children over for me to baby-sit while she goes out to the club, attends club meetings, etc. I love having the children, but it breaks my heart to see them looking so neglected. Their clothes are soiled and tattered, and they always look like they could use a good bath. Last week when Mary dropped the children off, I took the boys to a barber for a haircut and a shampoo. Then I took the girl to my beautician, who shampooed the child's hair and gave her a shorter, more manageable hairstyle. (She loved it!)

Grandma draws ire

When Mary came to pick up the children she hit the roof. She screamed at me and told me she'd never bring the children over again if I didn't leave them exactly as she dropped them off. (In the past I've bathed them and bought them new clothes, and she never complained about that.)

Meanwhile, I haven't seen the children in a week. Do you think I was wrong? I only did what I thought was best for the children.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Cleaning up the children, and even buying them new clothes, is one thing—but haircuts without their mother's permission is something else. Even though you meant well, you overstepped your bounds. If you want a good relationship with your daughter-in-law, you should have a clear-cut understanding of what you may and may not do for your grandchildren, regardless of how neglected they may appear to you.

DEAR ABBY: In one of your columns a white back you said that the IRS ruled that a face-lift for either a man or woman is a legitimate deductible medical expense. Well, I just had a hair transplant performed by a licensed surgeon, and I assumed that it was also tax deductible because it was done for cosmetic reasons—same as a face-lift.

I phoned my local IRS office and a man there said there is nothing in their files that states that a hair transplant is deductible, but I should go ahead and deduct it and see if it's allowed.

I don't want to get into any trouble with the IRS, but I certainly don't want to pass up a chance to save some money. What should I do?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Consult a C.P.A. or a tax expert who is informed on what the IRS considers deductible.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a divorced man for three years. His ex-wife still calls him to trim her shrubs and fix her furnace.

That daughter is getting married soon and my boyfriend's ex-wife has refused to attend the wedding if I'm there. The daughter has asked me to attend. She says we should all bury the hatchet for that one day and attend the wedding in harmony.

Should I go? Or should I step aside if the girl's mother positively refuses to come if I'm there?

THE OTHER ONE

DEAR OTHER: The word from here is to step aside.

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
One of your columns about the menopause and Premarin raised some questions for me. About four years ago, I had a kidney removed for kidney cancer, no treatments or medication for cancer. Since then, I had a total hysterectomy, but not for cancer. I take Premarin daily, three weeks on and one week off. I am 40 years old.

As a cancer patient and not having a uterus, just what is Premarin doing for me? Since I don't have a uterus, the lining can't grow from hormone stimulation nor stuff off when the hormones are stopped for a week, so what does it do? Is it necessary to take it and how does it act without a uterus?

Dear Reader,
You should discuss this with your doctor in relation to your previous cancer. The decision as to whether a female or male hormone should be used depends entirely on the type of cancer. To illustrate the point, female hormones are useful in the treatment of cancer of the prostate that has spread beyond the gland itself, but may speed up the spread of breast cancer. I presume that your kidney tumor was either benign, and hence no further treatment, or it is a type of tumor not affected by hormones.

Premarin as other female hormones does act on the uterus, but that is only a small part of its action. If a woman is low on female hormones from other sources after the menopause, or after the ovaries have been surgically removed, replacement therapy prevents hot flashes and other changes attributed to the menopause and postmenopausal phase. Some women produce adequate amounts of female hormones from the adrenal glands (in contrast) and do not require hormone replacement—but only an examination by your doctor can establish the need or lack of need for replacement hormones.

Female and male hormones have a general effect on the body beyond the primary sex organs that include such things as affecting hair growth and distribution, muscular strength, perhaps the retention of calcium in the bones, and in some cases, the tendency to have a high or low cholesterol level. You may be interested to know that a very good study at Vanderbilt University showed that women who took estrogen therapy after surgical removal of the ovaries did not take hormones. In both groups, of course, cancer of the uterus was not a consideration since neither group had a uterus.

Why did these women do better receiving female hormones? The big factor was that these women had a lower rate of heart attacks, strokes, and a decreased rate of cancer than women who took neither hormone. The word "old" is an affront. The result for the vast majority of us is loneliness, poverty and dissociation from the mainstream of life. We'll stay in the light to resist all prejudices against anyone, anywhere, anytime. By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When Ella Abbott came to Twin Falls as a teen-age bride in 1906, the mud was knee deep in front of the Ferrine Hotel. Mrs. Abbott, now an alert 90-year-old resident of Skyview Manor, refers to the mud as hub-deep, because the horse drawn wagons had such a hard time negotiating the muddy terrain.

These vehicles, referred to locally as "War-mon hacks" were the only form of transportation once travelers left the train depot in the year-old community of Twin Falls.

Ella and her husband, the late Joe Abbott, came here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fancher, to the newly opened Twin Falls Tract. Earlier the Fanchers had homesteaded in South Pass Valley, Wash., where her father had cleared forest land to build a barn and house.

"Dad said he was going to find someone where he wouldn't have to dig stumps," Mrs. Abbott laughed. He apparently did not realize that even though the new land in Twin Falls did not have any trees, there was endless sturgeon brush to remove.

Mr. Fancher settled northeast of Buhl near the old Northview School. The Oregon Trail crossed his property and went on through a corner of the school yard, she recalled.

By 1907 when the branch line was extended from Twin Falls on to Buhl, the railroad had replaced the Oregon Trail as the major means of transportation. Early day settlers were too busy turning the sagebrush into a farming community to give a second thought to the historic significance of the famed trail.

"Prove up" shacks dotted the sagebrush, Mrs. Abbott recalls, and the night air often was enlivened by the howl of coyotes. The Twin Falls Canal Co. system was under construction as her father built the first permanent house in the Northview area.

Leaving her parents to grub sagebrush, the young couple found employment at the now long abandoned outpost called Abby on the south side of the Snake River, about two and a half miles upstream from the present Clear Lakes Bridge.

The severe winter of 1906-07 had killed most of the cattle owned by Charles Arthur, who employed eight men in his farming operation at Abby. He also served as postmaster of the post station which pre-dated Buhl's post office.

One of Mr. Abbott's first jobs was to clear the fields of the skeletons of Arthur's dead cattle. Mrs. Abbott cooked for the farm hands and distributed the mail to patrons, although Arthur was the postmaster. Soon she got to "know everyone in 'the surrounding country,'" Mrs. Abbott said.

Outgoing mail was taken by boat across the river by Fred Clute, who married Ella's sister in 1907, and excited for incoming mail brought by a horseback rider. The horseman then took the outgoing mail to Shoshone where it was put on the train. After rural routes were established out of the Buhl Post Office the Abby station was abandoned.

Among Mr. Abbott's choice memories of life at Abby is the buck sheep Arthur owned. The farm hands would torment him, she said, but the ram soon learned how to get his revenge.

He never attacked a woman, but would wait quietly behind a gate until a man approached, then butt him in the seat of his pants "sending him over end over end," Mrs. Abbott laughed. Arthur eventually had to get rid of the buck because of his uncivil ways.

Another time a 50-pound sturgeon was caught in the river by some of the employees who asked Mrs. Abbott to cook it. As she started to cut off the head, the huge tail flapped and hit her in the face. The men laughed; she cried, but she got it cooked.

One noon as the men were eating their hearty dinner, Mrs. Abbott heard a man's voice crying for help. He had jumped from a boat carrying hay across the river when the craft began to sink and swim to safety.

Some of the hay had been tossed into the water to lighten the load. A companion who had jumped onto the floating hay had drowned and his body was not found for several days, she recalls.

Her husband helped clear land for Alma Anderson Howe in the area and prepare it for the first irrigation water. Later the Abbotts bought 40 acres and raised bees.

"This was a lucrative business until the bees developed what Mrs. Abbott described as "fool brood" disease, where the only eggs which are fertile produce drones. Soon there were no bees to produce honey."

"We made big money the year of the San Francisco Fair," she remembers. "After the bee business collapsed, the Abbotts had to go out to work again."

She cooked for threshing, haying and shearing crews. At one time she was paid 75 per day cooking for 36 men, but she and Joe got their board free.

The Abbotts spent seven years at the D.F. Sweet Ranch four miles southwest of Twin Falls. The ranch now is operated by a son, Ferris Sweet.

Abbott also worked on the railroad and in other jobs, but his big interest throughout his life was music.

He played the banjo and for some years had a program of country music on radio station KFTV. The late J. Hill and Harry Musgrave were among his colleagues on the program over the years.

The Abbotts operated a service station in Hollister when Joe got off to a most haphazard start in his professional entertainment career.

A neighbor boy once came in with a harmonica to join Joe with his banjo, Mrs. Abbott recalls. A local businessman, Hal Wallington, who heard the extemporaneous "jam session" spread the word about the "group" and soon a request came from the radio station.

"They really weren't a formal group at all," Mrs. Abbott recalls, "but they just started off through the sagebrush picking up members as they went."

Apply calling themselves the Hollister Sage Bunch, Abbott and his various colleagues continued performing on the station for many years.

National recognition came to the Abbotts during their years at Hollister. Their kindness to a penniless couple who were attempting to leave the deep snow in Nevada was reported to Tom Brenneman's Breakfast Club, a long-time national radio program of pre-TV days.

The Abbotts urged the couple not to attempt the trip because another party had frozen to death on the route earlier that winter. They offered them to stay in the Abbott cabins free. After the incident was reported the couple received orchids and many letters.

Not only did the "penniless" family pay them back, but Mrs. Abbott still is visited by Ed and Lucy Kolb, who are now well to do.

ELLA ABBOTT NOW RESIDES AT SKYVIEW MANOR came to Twin Falls as a teen-age bride in 1906

Long prejudices should be abandoned

We have a true incident from the '30s. Bobby, a 10-year-old, lived in a plush New York City suburb. He kept singing the praises of a new friend named Peter.

"Pete," he proclaimed, "is the smartest kid in my class." "Pete," he declared, "is the best ball player and he runs faster than the big kids."

Bobby had a few superlatives for Pete every day for several weeks. There seemed to be no end to Pete's accomplishments. "You've got to see some afternoon!" asked Bobby's mother.

"Oh boy, could I, Mom? I'll ask him tomorrow. Wait till you meet him." Pete came the next day. The kids played amicably together. A car picked up the visitor at 5 o'clock. Peter said, "Thank you, I had a good time."

At supper Mamma said to Bobby, "You never told me Peter was a Negro boy."

Bobby looked at his mother in surprise. "Gee, Mom, I never noticed." The refrain of a song from the past says it all: "You've got to be taught to hate." Many of us who are now senior-agers never really understood who the teachers of hate were. Nor did we know the reasons why they taught this miserable lesson. Now we're beginning to understand. Prejudice is an economic tool.

We have lived our lives within three obvious areas of prejudice. We have "ageism." That's bias against the elderly. We have "sexism." That's bias against women. And we have "racism." That's bias against people of a different color, religion or national background.

There's no need to explain the economic reason for sexism. Hitler was not the only world leader to proclaim, "Kinder, Kirke and Kuche (children, church and cooking) as the ideal for womanhood. Women who must work for less than their labor is worth understand sexism when they get their paychecks. In fact, they learn about sexism even earlier when they apply for jobs.

Racism needs even less explanation. The race trade unionism came to the South so late was blatantly publicized. For years, white workers were threatened, "If you join a union we'll put niggers in your job."

This is an advocacy column for senior citizens. The lesson must be learned: Basic improvement in the quality of our lives as senior-agers cannot be achieved if we work as for the aged.

The community of our struggle must be enemies of all those three nasty "isms" joined. The ageists, sexists and racists are the same. Hearstline's guide to Medicare is well-written-in-easy-to-understand question and answer form and contains all of the up to date information on Medicare. Explore the reasons for these "isms." In 1935, Social Security was set up to relieve unemployment. From that to now we oldsters have been pushed off payrolls. We have been rendered economically useless. Ageism became the established policy of business, industry and government. And so it remains to this day.

I have set it up with my doctor to pay him on a monthly basis until my Medicare reimbursement comes. My question concerns my hospital bill. Will I have to pay them first and make a claim for Medicare? M.C.

ANSWER: No. When you receive covered services from a participating hospital, skilled nursing facility, or home health agency, you do not need to make any claim for your hospital insurance benefits. These participating facilities have agreed to charge you only for services which you are not covered by Medicare. These institutions or agencies make the claims and receive the Medicare payments from intermediaries, which are organizations selected by the Social Security Administration to handle hospital insurance claims. These are typical of the classic remarks a newspaper employee has to listen to — but now there's another use for the daily news.

With a little imagination yesterday's news can be turned into a clever—and original gift wrap. Not only is it different, but it's much less costly than those expensive papers and ribbons on sale several dollars a pack in the drug and stationery stores.

Susan Hartgrave said she started using newspaper as an economy measure and it turned into real fun.

"My mother works for the Times-News and so it became kind of symbolic of our family to send gifts wrapped in newspaper," Susan commented while taping up a big box covered with a Sunday social feature.

"We usually try to pick out just the right piece of paper for the gift it will cover — maybe comics for the children, or an ad from the store where the individual works or a favorite columnist. The sports page is always good for dad," Susan says.

Another economy minded wrapper, Shannon Barkes, says some of the color pictures on the feature sections are ideal, especially those around Christmas time as they may have a stained glass window or a holiday decoration as a cover picture.

Advertisers also use large color ads, Santa, a poinsettia, or evergreen branches bordering the ads provide ideal decor for a small package.

Instead of Ribbon, strips of newspaper can be curled with a scissors blade just as easily as the regular ribbon.

"I never could curl ribbon, but newspaper strips curl much easier and it doesn't matter if you tear one, there's always more available," says Shannon.

For contrast, use the white borders of the paper to curl for bows or cut strips from a dark "midnight madness" ad or large photograph with lots of dark tones.

Another idea is to use borders or plain newspaper for the curls and center it with several smaller curls from dark or colored ink pages.

Bits of yarn or rick rack can be used in the bows with the paper curls or the entire package can be made attractive by using news wrapping and wide bright ribbon.

A tiny personal item can be tied with a paper bow of curls enhanced by a sprig of evergreen, some artificial flowers, a tiny bottle of perfume or a baby rattle.

For the individual who sews, remnants or sewing scraps can be cut on the bias and stretched around the package for ribbon. By stretching the bias or a knit material the raw edges can be turned under and hidden. Take a scrap of rick rack and tie it over the wider material ribbon for an added touch. If cut with pink shears, the raw edges add to the attractiveness of the sewing material. Use your imagination. Your gifts may be the most attractive conversation pieces under the tree this year.

Photos used for decorating

Chicago Star Times
A collection of favorite family-oriented photos can be adorned with a little decorating ingenuity.

Don't forget you can mix color and black-and-white photos for visual impact.

A vacation corner makes a conversation piece if you want to present more than just portraits on walls.

Another school of thought is that all photographs should be limited to one area. Then you can fill just one large wall with photographs of all kinds. Don't hang color photographs where they might be exposed to bright sunlight, because color dyes fade quite rapidly.

An acquaintance keeps changing a bathroom grouping, all with water as a theme. Currently he has a selection of views of Niagara Falls on every available wall space. You can buy a photographic fixative spray for the surface of prints to keep them from warping from condensation.

Split personality

Santa Claus may be the most accurately documented case history of an individual with a split personality, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins.

Before Dr. Clement Clarke Moore immortalized Santa as a full-bodied, bearded, jolly old elf in the poem "A Visit from St. Nicholas," Santa had appeared in America under half a dozen names and countless disguises.

The poem, better known today as "The Night Before Christmas," was first printed anonymously — without Moore's permission — in the Troy (N.Y.) Sentinel in 1823, Miss Hopkins says.

Program Friday

TWIN FALLS — Ebenezer Scrooge, played by Sesame Street's Oscar the Grouch, will be a humbugging Christmas Friday in a puppet-interpretation of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" presented by the Sun Child Puppet Theatre.

The whole Sesame Street cast will be featured in the play at the Odd Fellows Hall on Third Avenue between Second and Third Street East.

The show will be held at 2, 4 and 7 p.m., before and after the play. Ernie, Oscar and the other group will lead the Christmas carols. Santa will arrive too, along with a host of his elves, and he'll bring candy canes for all his friends.

The cost of the show will be $1.

Glenns Ferry plans free matinee

GLENN'S FERRY — Children from King Hill, Glenns Ferry, Hammett and surrounding areas will be treated to a free showing of "Race For Your Life, Charlie Brown" on Saturday at 2 p.m.

Following the free matinee, sponsored by the Glenns Ferry Chamber of Commerce and the Glenns Ferry Opera Theatre, the children will be honored with a visit from Santa Claus by the local Moose Club. He will be distributing sacks of candy and goodies to all children who attend.

This special Christmas event is a tradition and the children are asked to bring money for their treats if desired during the show.

The movie will also be shown on Thursday and Friday and at the regular Saturday evening time for others who wish to attend.

Settlement reached in bias case

BOSTON (UPI) — Houghton-Mifflin Co. has reached a $750,000 settlement in a sex discrimination suit filed by five women editors at the publishing company.

U.S. District Court Judge Andrew Caffrey will have to approve the settlement, signed Tuesday, before monetary awards for 250 employees can be handed out and a cooperative monitoring system created.

"It has been three years since we first filed the suit," said Emily Shenk, one of the five women plaintiffs. "It is an enormous relief."

The class action suit was filed on behalf of all editorial employees working in the publisher's school and college divisions.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Rose points out, the commonest reason for not playing trumps immediately is that you want to ruff some losers in dummy. This hint it is easy to see. South should not draw trumps until he has double-checked about those two small diamonds in his hand.

Can he afford one round of trumps? No, although it is not too easy to see why he can't.

West holds the first trick with his Jack of hearts and continues. South ruffs; cashes his ace of diamonds; ruffs a diamond; ruffs a heart to get back to his hand; ruffs his last diamond; leads dummy's 10 of trumps; overruffs; ruffs trumps and eventually loses two of his three clubs.

Suppose he had led just one round of trumps before starting on ruffing diamonds. After he had ruffed his last diamond he would have had no way to get to his hand to draw trumps. He would ruff a heart and West would get to make his Jack of hearts.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, DEC. 23, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day, when you are most clever, is the best time to exercise your creative skills. However, the good influences dwindle as the day progresses. Safeguard your health.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact influential persons who can give you the important data you need in a new project you have been working on.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Any financial problems should be handled now without fail, otherwise the situation could get worse later on.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are able to handle personal matters well early in the day, but later you had better rest or there could be confusion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Observe what is taking place around you but avoid hasty action or you could be in error. Don't neglect responsibilities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid those who make trouble and be sure not to do anything of a destructive nature. Working alone is your best mode of procedure now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid a situation that could spoil your carefully built-up reputation. Show that you are truly devoted to family members.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Study new ideas well before you put them in operation. Widen your vistas via sensible methods. Strive for more harmony at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be certain to carry through with any promises you have made to others. Take no chances with your fine reputation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Instead of arguing with one who opposes you, try to reason with this person. Take needed health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have much work to do so don't go off on any tangents. Be sure to accept a social invitation. Think logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't go away today for a good time and neglect important duties. Be careful of your diet. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to make conditions at home more pleasant and avoid arguments of all sort. A good time to make plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a brilliant mind but will need proper direction in order to keep from scattering the forces, and then there can be much success in this lifetime. Give good spiritual training early in life. There's musical talent in this chart.

Up jumps a new explanation of where we got the term "by and large." Credit the seaman. To sail "by" the wind meant to tack hard across it. To sail "large" of the wind meant to catch it easy from the stern. "By and large" to a sailor meant both ways, hard and easy, the average conditions of a trip.

Politicians overall have deeper voices than men in general. Exceptions: Certain superior speakers such as John F. Kennedy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and the earlier William Jennings Bryan, whose recordings indicate he had no bass notes in his voice at all.

When the census-takers in Iraq call for a national head count, every body in the country is required by law to stay home all day.

Dogs, too, wear dental braces.

THE LETTER E
Q. "It is true that F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel 'The Great Gatsby' does not have the letter 'e' in it anywhere except for the title."
A. Believe you're thinking of "Gadsby" by Ernest Vincent Wright. Came out of 1939. It has no "e" in it. Then 30 years later in 1969, a Frenchman named Georges Perec, who evidently felt he had enough 'e's in his own name to suffice, likewise wrote such an e-less novel, "La Disparition" meaning "The Disappearance."

Q. "How did the Woolworth stores get started?"
A. F. W. Woolworth in 1824 was a dry goods clerk. He took a tray of random items, marked them 5 cents and 10 cents, and sold them most by day's end. So he quit, his job, opened a five-and-dime shop in Lancaster, Pa., and grossed $127.65 the first day. Great! Six years later he had 25 stores with yearly sales of $1 Million.

THE TUBA
To that lengthy list of things and people that dictatorial governments have purged from their societies, please add the tuba. Mao Tse Tung's widow, Chiang Ching, didn't like the sound of the first tuba she heard years ago. Fire the tuba player, she said, or words to that effect. Every orchestra in China promptly got rid of its tuba players, if such they had. Since the purge of Chiang Ching, there's no word as yet that the tuba has been reinstated.

Sixteen years ago only 17 per cent of all United States patents went to foreign inventors. Today 37 per cent do so. The bright minds overseas are coming on strong.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened higher Thursday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues. The Dow Jones Industrial average, which gained 7.71 points Wednesday, was about 0.70 point to 814.53 shortly after the opening. Advances led by Phillips, 197 to 78, among the 454 issues crossing the tape. Traders were encouraged at the outset by a sharp rise in the dollar on foreign exchanges. Investors said this was in response to President Carter's statement Wednesday that the United States will intervene to prop in the dollar in "disorderly markets." Carter, in reaffirming U.S. policy, said the market has been disorderly lately. Investors generally are encouraged the Carter administration plans to propose $2.5-billion worth of tax cuts this year, with business betting about a $7 billion deficit. But some economists urged a larger break. The excitement generated Wednesday by the apparent agreement between House and Senate conferees over natural gas pricing was dashed by a wave of protests that make a compromise shaky at best.

City seeks EPA change

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls city officials will ask the Environmental Protection Agency to replace its "arbitrary" waste water requirements for the Twin Falls sewage plant with requirements based on studies of the city's individual situation.

The city will ask the EPA to take into account two major factors: "The receiving characteristics of the stream (the Snake River) and the characteristics of the effluent (entering the Twin Falls sewage treatment plant)," City Manager Jean Millar said today.

The federal government has filed suit against the City of Twin Falls for violations of the pollution standards at the sewage treatment plant and at the Rock Creek pump station which lifts sewage over a hill to the treatment plant. The suit seeks fines of more than $500,000 from the city for the alleged violations.

Millar said he had no idea how the EPA arrived at the pollution standards which apply to the sewage treatment plant and called them "truly arbitrary figures" which the city wants "re-evaluated."

One of the factors which has caused the plant to have difficulty meeting EPA standards has been the fluctuation in amounts of sewage entering the plant and resulting overloads at peak periods.

City monitoring of discharges shows that at various times Idaho Frozen Foods, one of the major contributors to the sewage system, has discharged sewage into the system at concentrations exceeding contractual limits, Millar said.

In clarifying Millar's statement, Idaho Frozen Foods vice-president Routh said Idaho Frozen Foods' discharges may have exceeded contractual limits "possibly for very short periods, but the average does not. The average is what you have to look at."

"We always monitor it (sewage flows), but these (figures) are for our own use," Routh declared.

Nor is Idaho Frozen Foods compelled by any government requirements to compile and furnish records of their sewage discharges, Routh stated.

Under the terms of the contract between the city and Idaho Frozen Foods, which established a formula for determining the company's share of operating costs and its share of the repayment of the construction costs of the plant, discharge limits were established.

To attempt to solve the problem they have had in dealing with sewage flow fluctuations, the city has been working closely with industries contributing to the sewage system, including Idaho Frozen Foods, by recommending equipment improvements and other operational changes which could modify flows of sewage coming from industrial plants, Millar said.

Smith to take mayorship

TWIN FALLS — An informal straw vote of city councilmen indicates attorney Leon Smith will be selected the next mayor of Twin Falls at the first formal council meeting of the new year.

A consensus of opinion compiled from informal discussions on "several occasions at which more than one councilman was present" indicates Smith will be the majority choice of the council, Councilman Dr. Steve Lincoln said today. "It's kind of like a straw vote," he added.

Although no formal vote will be taken until after the first of the new year, Lincoln said with certainty, "it's the result of the informal poll something that isn't going to change. People have stated their opinion. That's likely what it will be."

Lincoln said he felt such an advance indication of the council's preferred candidate for mayor is a good idea election rather than putting him in the position of having it "thrust upon him" where he wants it or not.

"I'm excited about it (Smith's selection)," Lincoln said. "He's going to be very active in expanding more from city forces and from the administration, and in the improvement of the sewage treatment plant and in defending the suit by the federal government."

Lincoln stressed, however, that "what will happen over the next two years won't be any different with him (Smith) as mayor than with anyone else."

Smith is on vacation and unavailable for comment.

Center will stay in Gooding

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — Citing "realism" as the reason for a change of policy, directors of the alcohol treatment center have decided to remain next door to the women's prison scheduled for establishment in the old TB hospital later in 1978.

Clay Robertson, director of the Idaho Regional Treatment and Training Center, earlier had said the center would have to seek a new location because the operation of its 28-day treatment program would be incompatible with a prison.

But with spiraling building costs and the length of time involved in obtaining government grants, Robertson Wednesday the directors decided, "We have to be realistic," and accepted an offer from the Department of Corrections to remodel the west wing of the old tuberculosis hospital to the center can merely move to the somewhat older building connected by ramp hallways to its present location.

Use of the middle and newest structure in the three-building state-owned complex, now occupied by the treatment center, was approved earlier this month by the State Land Board for establishment of a women's prison.

The third building, former Tyler hall, occupied by the Antique Festival Theatre and Gooding kindergarten, is not involved in the moves.

Robertson said the center will continue operation in its present location until at least Sept. 1.

The Department of Corrections will ask the Idaho Legislature for $30,000 to renovate the west wing which is connected to the building now occupied by the alcohol center with connecting hallways on two floors.

Updating the electrical wiring will be the major expense, according to Elton Rile, Twin Falls, Department of Labor official who has inspected the building at Don Erickson's request. Erickson is head of the Idaho Department of Corrections.

Some wall repair, painting and fire escapes are also planned to bring the structure up to the life safety code standards required for an alcohol treatment center.

The center must meet the same safety code as a hospital in order to qualify for third party insurance payments, Robertson said.

One of the biggest expenses, according to the Department of Labor official, will be the installation of security doors on both ends of the passageway connecting the two buildings.

Henson viewing set.

TWIN FALLS — Judge James M. Cunningham has granted anation in 5th district court here on behalf of Deborah Henson granting her the right of discovery and inspection of evidence against her in the embezzlement case brought by her former employer.

Mrs. Henson is charged with 12 counts of felony and two counts of misdemeanor in connection with the missing $3,240 from the YMCA where she was formerly employed as women's director.

In the motion filed by her attorneys and approved by Judge Cunningham, she was granted the right to inspect evidence held against her which would tend to negate guilt on her part.

She was also granted a request for payment by the county for a transcript of the preliminary hearing in her case, an amount of $78.

Ruiz arraigned

TWIN FALLS — Adolph Ruiz, 24, was arraigned in Magistrate Court here Wednesday on charges of involuntary manslaughter in the shooting death of Russell Victor Gillen, 20, Twin Falls.

Magistrate Daniel Mehl reduced bond of $10,000 to $1,000 and appointed a public defender requested by Ruiz. Bond was set at $10,000 on the original charge of destruction or concealment of evidence in connection with the missing gun with which Gillen was shot.

Gillen was injured early Saturday morning and died Tuesday afternoon in a Boise hospital of a gunshot wound in the back of the head. The second charge, involuntary manslaughter, was filed Wednesday morning by sheriff's officers.

Supervisor resigns

RUPERT — Elmer Schenk will step down as supervisor of public services Dec. 31, it was announced Tuesday night at the City Council meeting here.

A resignation letter from Schenk read he wishes to step down to devote more time to building up the city's official services crew. He had held both supervisory positions since 1975.

When asked if he was stepping down because of philosophical disagreements with incoming Mayor Bill Whitton, Schenk said he had no comment. Whitton said Monday he would be replacing City Attorney Bill Goodman and City Treasurer Clifford Nutting when he takes office Jan. 3.

Closing okayed

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners voted Wednesday to allow closing of the Twin Falls City-Country airport restaurant on Christmas Day.

Carol Halstead, operator of the restaurant, said she kept the business open on Thanksgiving and found business was almost all. She said it would be difficult to get workers to serve on Christmas and she didn't feel it would be worth the effort.

Commissioners agreed, announcing the restaurant will close Christmas Day although the contract calls for Sunday operation. The facility will be open Sunday, New Year's Day, however, Mrs. Halstead said.

Coal bins well stocked in Magic Valley

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Well-stocked coal bins in the Magic Valley are negating effects of a nationwide coal miners' strike, according to various officials.

Superintendents for school districts in Mindoka, Cassia and Twin Falls counties and plant managers for the Paul and Twin Falls operations of Amalgamated Sugar Co. all said supplies will open Monday.

Supplying coal for the three districts are Matlock Coal Co. north of Declo and Malloy Coal Co. of Burley. Lewis Matlock said he can get truckloads in from his contacts any time.

although he said he quit sending trucks to the Price, Utah, mines after reports of troubles. He said he hired truckers from that area who managed to sneak out loads as pickets would change shifts.

Matlock said it means he can get orders as he needs them, but he cannot pinpoint the exact time of arrival.

Brent Matlock said mines he dealt with in Utah and Wyoming will be able to supply him with coal. In anticipation of the trouble, he said he has stockpiled about a month's supply in a normal two-to three truck carryover.

Mindoka Superintendent Wayne Fagg said only two schools are out — Minner-High School and Aequula Elementary. He said the English building at Minico uses gas heat and the rest of the school is warmed by coal. Only the new wing at Aequula is on fuel oil. Supplies will last up to two months if weather remains good, he estimated.

Across the Snake River in Cassia County, Superintendent Harold Blauer said there have been no problems so far for the eight district schools on coal. "Bins are full and we have stockpiled some coal besides," he added, that should last through March.

Those eight schools are Ruff, Rury, Burley and Oakley high schools, and Malta, Almo, Springdale, Allion and Oakley elementary schools, Business Manager Matt Warr said.

Twin Falls Superintendent Jim Sawin said the supply on hand should last two months with good weather for the six district schools using coal for heating fuel. The Christmas vacation beginning Saturday and lasting until Jan. 2 will help stretch supplies, he added.

However, if districts do run short of coal, Sawin said the Idaho Office of Energy is establishing data on where supplies are and amount available and will be looking at the total state on an allocation basis should any schools run into difficulties.

The superintendent said the district will re-evaluate the supply in January and watch the schools. The two schools not on coal heat are Robert Stuart and Sawtooth elementary.

Ed Bulgin, manager of the Twin Falls sugar plant, said the plant stockpile will last until the processing operations shut down Dec. 27. Consumption of coal will then drop to less than half the 500 tons a day used now, he said, and should leave some coal for when the processing plant is restarted in March or April for juicing operations.

Bulgin said inventory will be held after the shutdown next week to "... see where we stand. We don't like to stockpile raw materials any more than necessary, so you don't have a lot of money sitting around not being used."

He said coal supplies are shipped by rail from Wyoming from mines that settled with UMW-affiliated miners prior to the national strike action.

Pete Chertudy, manager of the Paul sugar plant, said the plant shuts down Friday and the current supply is adequate. He said the plant uses 5,000 tons a week from its start-up time in early October. No noticeable amount is used the rest of the year, he added, but problems might crop up if the strike were still going next fall when the plant reopens again.

Closing times vary

Merchants list holiday hours

TWIN FALLS — Many store workers who have been keeping shop late each night to accommodate holiday shoppers will have a well earned rest Sunday and Monday.

Some of the major stores, including chain firms, will be open on Monday, however. Sears will open Monday for regular hours, closing at 6 p.m., while J.C. Penney Co. will open Monday from noon to 5 p.m. The Mgrs. will be closed Sunday and Monday.

All city, county, state and federal offices will close Saturday, Sunday and Monday and a number of professional offices will close early Friday to give workers an early start on Christmas travel plans.

All stores will be returning to regular hours following Christmas and even major grocery stores will be closed Sunday.

If the family cook forget something she needs for Christmas dinner, she had better look for a Seven-Eleven store. All Seven-Eleven stores will be open regular hours on Christmas day. Others including Safeway, Burrey's and other major markets are taking Sunday off.

Private and smaller shops such as The Paris, Rogers and other Mall and shopping center stores are generally planning a Sunday and Monday closing. Gift exchanges, usually the biggest business activity after Christmas will have to wait until Tuesday in these stores.

Some stores, including Penneys will close early on Saturday so shoppers who wait until Christmas eve to buy should not expect to find store workers on the job until 9 p.m.

While store owners say it is too early to have any comparisons, they feel this Christmas season has been a good one economically. Many say they detected a trend toward more practical purchases such as appliances and clothing, but they also said people seemed to buy larger more expensive items than several smaller ones.

One store owner said the rain and snow in November and early December did a great deal to boost Christmas spending. Farmers had a much brighter outlook when moisture began falling and were more willing to spend money than in last year's drought conditions.

Kelly readies bills for Gem legislature

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News Writer

MOUNTAIN HOME — Freshman Republican representative Dan Kelly will have two bills ready for the Idaho Legislature in January which are likely to draw a considerable amount of attention.

Kelly, a school teacher in Mountain Home whose district covers Elmore, Camas and parts of Gooding and Twin Falls counties, this week is putting the finishing touches on a bill to force school districts and teachers to complete contract negotiations before Labor Day each year.

Kelly says he has already heard grumblings from some school board trustees and superintendents in opposition to parts of his bill.

But, he says, "There's no doubt negotiations are here to stay, and it's not right as set up the moment."

Kelly says his bill, which would set up a series of mandatory negotiation stages and deadlines leading up to binding arbitration and a no-strike clause as possible last resorts, would make sure contracts are not carried over from the year before.

A second bill, which the 39-year-old Kelly has already had printed, would set up a fund for widows and survivors of a "Son of Sam" type murderer. The bill is a copy of a New York law.

The fund would get its money from any capitalization on such a major criminal, and Kelly says it would hopefully keep others from copying his crime.

"One guy does it and gets rich, and the publicity seems to generate a like happening," he says.

Money from selling major criminal's book rights, television rights, and so on would go to set up a fund in Idaho for survivors and crippled victims according to Kelly's bill. And this siphoning off of these money-making schemes may discourage the sensationalizing of the crime and discourage a major criminal's mimics, he says.

Kelly, who is married and has one daughter, says the two most important issues facing the next session of the legislature for the Magic Valley are power plant siting and revitalization.

Kelly is concerned about recently watered threats to transfer Idaho water to California.

Kelly says the legislature can "make noises" about keeping a moratorium on such water diversion plans. The 10-year Congressional moratorium runs out at the end of 1978.

Also, on water, Kelly says, "Any time people talk minimum stream flows, we have to take a tremendously close look at it." He says he believes Idaho will need guaranteed reservoir storage for irrigation as well as for power.

About a power plant siting bill to be introduced next session, Kelly says he is concerned that it set up the right qualifications. He says they should be realistic ones which both the people in the Magic Valley and the utility companies can live with.

He says he is concerned while power might be available from other sources such as the Bonneville Power Administration, inflation may drive up the cost of a power plant (and of Idaho's power bills) if power does run short.

Kelly, who says he will probably run for reelection in 1978, says he was disappointed Gov. John Evans vetoed the permanent four-mile property tax relief passed by the last session of the Legislature. With most Republican legislators lined up to try again next session, Kelly's doubt will try to avoid disappointment a second time.

He said smoke stop doors now in the hallways have plate glass windows. These will have to be changed either to safety approved glass or replaced with regular metal doors.

No major overhaul of the building will be needed, he said. "One of the biggest pluses is that the entire building has a sprinkling system," Rile said. The west wing formerly served as the Gooding County courthouse but was connected to the former TB hospital with the long ramp hallways.

Bona Miller, secretary to Erickson, said the $30,000 request for remodeling will be in addition to the $50,000 the agency is seeking to launch the new prison, seeking to launch the new prison.

The $500,000 includes the $117,000, yearly maintenance costs for the facility plus the $30,000 the state now is spending housing women prisoners out of state, Miller said.

The Corrections department has received a $115,000 grant to remodel the building into a prison. Fencing is scheduled to be installed in February, but there is a definite time table on the other moves.

"Mr. Erickson wants to help the center make the move as easy as possible," she said.

Two savings and loan branch offices

New association OK'd for Ketchum

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN Times-News Writer

KETCHUM — Federal banking authorities in Washington, D.C., have approved applications from two savings and loan associations to open branch offices in Ketchum.

But in its decision to grant both applications, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board has also given one of the associations an 18-month head start to begin business.

Both First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls and Home State Savings and Loan Association, a new state-chartered association incorporated by seven prominent individuals in the Wood River Valley Community, received federal approval in late November to open branch offices in Ketchum.

Home State, which applied first for the Ketchum branch, had filed protest with the federal banking authorities when First Federal also applied to open a Ketchum office.

The state department of finance supported Home State in the protest, stating there was no need for two associations in the area and that it would back a new association in order to promote more state competition.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, however, did not grant the protest. Instead, it approved both Home State's and First Federal's applications, telling Home State it had to open within six months from the time of approval and forbidding First Federal to open within 18 months of the time of approval.

Roy Leventhal, Home State president, said the local association is currently searching for a chief executive officer to run a Ketchum office and hopes to be open by the spring.

Jim Dodds, managing officer of First Federal in Twin Falls, said his firm is still planning for a Ketchum office but is negotiating with Ketchum city officials over a special-use permit for a business site on which First Federal has options.

Dodds said, however, that a final decision has not been made and will be voted on by the association's board of directors.

Home State officers were pleased to receive their branch approval, although they were baffled by the blanket approval granted to both associations.

John Harker, secretary of Home State, remarked about the blanket approval, "We really don't understand that. It doesn't seem to make a lot of sense to give a blanket approval in advance to competing savings and loan associations, before the Federal Home Loan Bank Board would know how well we are doing."

First Federal, which already serves Blaine County from Twin Falls, reported last spring it handled $12 million in loans in this area and $1 million in deposits.

Before Home State can open a branch in Ketchum, it must have a minimum of $25,000 commuted deposits from 175 Blaine County residents, according to Leventhal.

Home State is currently negotiating on several branch sites in Ketchum, Leventhal said.

Jerome couple buys auctioned city property

JEROME — A Jerome couple was the only bidder at a public auction of city property Tuesday.

The couple bid $2,000 more than their bid in order to meet the appraised value.

The city must receive at least the appraised value to sell the land.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wolverson, who live next door to the two auctioned lots, first bid $600 at Jerome City Council Tuesday's meeting.

They were informed the appraised value was $2,600.

The couple plans to extend the property of their present home on Sixth Avenue East to have space for a garden.

Other bidders included the Jerome City Council received a plaque of appreciation from the Jerome Swim Team, adopted overtime policy for city employees and look under study a plan to divide the city into three fire zones.

"We felt (the appraisal) was a little high because of the caudex cutting the lot in half," Mr. Wolverson said. She added the couple had to have a variance to build their house next door this year.

With 20 feet on either side of the corner reserved as canal company right of way and a 45-foot required set back from the street, Mrs. Wolverson said what's left is "a nice garden space."

The appraisers indicated the value was placed at $2,000 because there was enough room on the lots to build, Lynn Bingham, city fire marshal said.

Bingham presented a plan to divide Jerome into three fire zones for construction purposes to comply with the Uniform Building Code, which the city has adopted.

Fire zone No. 1 is basically the main business district where buildings are closest together. Buildings in this zone would be required to have four-hour fire walls and masonry construction, among other things, Bingham said.

When adopted, the fire zone requirements would apply only to new construction.

Fire Zone No. 2 is less restrictive and includes the rest of the town's commercial and industrial areas, Bingham said. The zone would allow buildings to have one-hour fire walls, if built a certain distance back from the property line. If built next to the property line, buildings in zone No. 2 would have to meet zone No. 1 requirements.

Zone No. 3 would include the residential areas of the city.

The plan was taken under study so council members could receive maps of the proposed zones.

The council adopted a new overtime policy for city employees setting up rules for a quick time off or payment for overtime hours where necessary.

Patient info kit passed out by TF hospital

By KEN HODGE Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A visit to the hospital for the first time can be like a trip to a foreign land, but officials at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital have tried to ease the transition with the new Patient Information Kit.

So patients will know what to expect when they enter the hospital, Dick Boyd, public information officer at MVMH, said. The kit and manual will make it available to all prospective patients through local physicians and at the facility.

"What we're trying to do is make sure the folks have an idea what we're doing here and make their stay a little more comfortable," Boyd says.

"Most hospitals have a kit of some sort, but maybe not in such detail."

The kit contains eight brochures which cover different aspects of a stay at the hospital including one on general information, one on surgery, hospital staff, special services, visitor regulations, payment of bills, one on the extra services provided at the unit and a message from the administrator.

In his message, James Rosenbaum, hospital administrator, outlines ways in which a patient can make his stay as short and sweet as possible.

A brochure entitled "The Team," explains the staff and structure of the hospital and the ways in which they can assist patients at the facility.

"General Information" simply is designed to give a patient an idea of what to expect when he enters a hospital room. By reading the booklet, he will know when to expect his meals, his bath, his treatments and visits from his physician. Items of information often overlooked in the rush of daily hospital activity. He also will learn when to expect visits from friends during approved visiting hours.

If a patient has been admitted to undergo surgery, a small pamphlet entitled "Surgery" is designed to calm his fears and give him information in advance about hospital procedures for surgery patients.

The publication explains pre-operative medication administered for relaxation, and other procedures before and during the operation. The pamphlet suggests deep-breathing exercises to speed recuperation.

The kit also explains the "Special Services" available at MVMH. The laboratory provides 24-hour service to patients. The radiology department is under the direction of trained radiologists, and patients with physical problems can get treatments in the physical therapy department.

The brochure also explains emergency service, outpatient services, social services, discharge planning and patient education.

The kit also contains a detailed set of rules and

Series highlight film adds novelty

NEW YORK (UPI) — A foul ball strikes Los Angeles catcher Steve Yeager in the groin during the second game of the World Series, doubling him up in pain as he slumps to his knees on home plate.

From the stands there is a collective moan and millions of others watching on television wince. Those who have experienced Yeager's plight understand the agony.

Yeager players converge around the plate and Manager Tom Lasorda puts a fatherly arm around his catcher.

"Where'd it get you?" Lasorda asks.

Yeager informs him of his plight and Lasorda puts his stricken warrior on the back.

"It'll only hurt for a little while," says the Dodger manager.

Lasorda's words were not intended to be humorous, yet they provide one of the lighter moments in an exceptionally fine film of the 1977 World Series which was shown for the first time Wednesday and is now available to schools and organized groups.

Naturally, much of the 30-minute film centers on the heroic home run feats of New York Yankees slugger Reggie Jackson, but through the technique of wiring the two managers and the plate umpires for sound there are some entertaining sequences which bring the elements of the national pastime into a more human focus.

Of course, they've wired the perfect man in Lasorda. The joke-telling Dodger skipper is never at a loss for words and his exchange with plate umpire John McSherry in the fourth inning of the decisive sixth game is one of the film's highlights.

Lasorda has already made up his mind to plump starting pitcher Bert Hooton but is stalling for time to give his bullpen more time to loosen up when he is confronted on the mound by McSherry.

"I've got a big decision to make. I don't know what to do," Lasorda says to McSherry.

"Let's hurry up and decide," says McSherry.

"Well, Mac, I'll let you make that decision for me since I know you're such a knowledgeable baseball man. I've got all the faith in you," says Lasorda.

Lasorda then extends his right arm and signals to the bullpen only an instant before McSherry makes the same gesture.

While Lasorda provides comic relief, Jackson gives the film its high drama.

"Years from now when people have forgotten that the Yankees defeated the Dodgers in six games to win the 1977 World Series, they will remember Jackson's feat."

The most dramatic moment occurs in the eighth inning of the sixth game when Jackson, who has already hit two home runs, steps in against reliever Charlie Hough. With the Yankee Stadium scoreboard flashing "Reggie," Jackson connects on a knuckleball and as the ball sails toward the centerfield bleachers, he stands almost motionless at home plate as if to freeze the moment in time.

In fact, Jackson's powerful swing on that historic third home run has been immortalized by artist Paul Calle. Major League Baseball and Circle Gallery Ltd. selected Calle to commemorate the 1977 World Series in a limited edition lithograph and his depiction of Jackson swinging at Hough's pitch was officially unveiled in conjunction with the showing of the film.

Copies of the lithograph were presented to the Baseball Hall of Fame, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Yankees' principal owner George M. Steinbrenner and Jackson. Players and officials in the film division of the Major League Promotions Corp. at 41 E. 42nd St., New York.

Groups interested in obtaining the World Series film should contact the film division of the Major League Promotions Corp. at 41 E. 42nd St., New York.

Majors, Cuba view baseball exhibition

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League president Chub Feeney and Johnny Johnson, an administrative assistant to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, will meet with a delegation from Cuba in Mexico Thursday to discuss further plans toward a possible exhibition game or games between U.S. major leaguers and a team of Cuban stars.

"Actually, these discussions have been going on since early last year," a spokesman for Kuhn told UPI Wednesday night. "The fact that Chub Feeney and Johnny Johnson are meeting with the Cubans again is merely a continuation of these talks. Nothing firm has been established as has been reported by at least one newspaper."

It was reported that a three-game series between a team of U.S. major leaguers and the Cubans has already been finalized for some time in late March. According to the report, the major league team would likely be chosen from among the clubs training in Florida.

"It may be that these discussions will help further that possibility," the spokesman added, "but I assure you nothing has been finalized. We are working toward getting a game or games with the Cubans. It could be either."

Feeney and Johnson will meet with Flavio Ruz, a Cuban executive in charge of sports and recreation.

The trio is expected to report back to Kuhn after the holidays, when plans could be finalized for some sort of historic meeting between the Cubans and the major leaguers. In addition, television rights for both countries still have to be worked out and it is likely all three U.S. networks will bid heavily for the game or games.

BSU stuns Beavers

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Steve Connor pumped in five points in 12 seconds to ice a Boise State 76-43 victory over Oregon State Wednesday night in a basketball game that saw Beaver center Steve Johnson leave the contest with an ankle injury.

OSU officials said the ankle would be x-rayed to determine if it was broken. Johnson had missed part of the season earlier with a stressed fracture of the foot.

Oregon State trailed 32-29 at the half but then went up 38-32 before the Broncos came back with a 16-1 scoring spurt to take a 46-39 lead. The Beavers went ahead briefly at 49-48 until Connors got hot again late in the game.

Connors was the game high scorer with 29 points, while Johnson had 19 for OSU before leaving with 12:50 to go.

Rebels edge Iowa at gun

LAST VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A tip-in by Earl Evans with one second remaining gave the University of Nevada-Las Vegas an 85-84 victory over the University of Iowa and the championship of the Rebel Roundup Wednesday night.

It was the Rebels' 11th win without a loss and their 69th straight home victory.

The Rebels' Willard Govan made good on two free throws with 23 seconds left in the game and the score knotted at 81-81. But Iowa's Ronnie Lester hit a 15-foot jump shot with 13 seconds left and was fouled. Lester made good the free throw, putting Iowa out in front 84-83.

The Rebels came down the court quickly. After Tony Smith missed a jump shot, Evans tipped it in for the victory.

The Rebels took an early lead in the game, but Iowa pulled to within five points at halftime, 46-41.

Three Arkansas players suspended

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz Wednesday suspended three starters, including all-conference performer Ben Cowins, from his Orange Bowl-bound Razorbacks for discipline reasons.

Holtz said Cowins, running back Michael Forrest and wide receiver Donny Bobo, the team's leading pass catcher, will miss the Jan. 2 Miami game against No. 2 Oklahoma.

"The players will not play in the football game," Holtz said in a statement released by the university's sports information office. "For me to make any other statement concerning this situation would be unfair to the players."

A spokesman for the university said Holtz, who in his first year as head coach helped the Razorbacks to a 10-1 record and a No. 6 national ranking, would have nothing further to say.

"There were no legal problems, no law violations," the spokesman said. No decision has been made on whether the players will be allowed to play next year. Cowins and Forrest are both juniors and Bobo is a sophomore.

The loss of the three leaves only junior quarterback Ron Colglint remaining in the starting backfield for the Oklahoma game.

Forrest had been alternating starting chores with Roland Sales because of injuries, but had seen considerable action and was the team's fourth leading rusher.

Cowins, who led the Southwest Conference in rushing in 1976, finished second this year behind Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas with an average of 108.4 yards per game.
