

Lebanon asks Big Five to halt Israeli attack

Salt Lake City Utah 8115

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon and Syria today called on the five permanent members of the Security Council — the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France — to intervene immediately to halt the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

Syria, whose men form the bulk of the 30,000-man Arab peacekeeping force in Lebanon — expressed its "strong concern" over the Israeli attack. There were no reports of Israeli-Syrian clashes and Israel in announcing the raid said it would avoid Syrian troops, the Lebanese army and civilians.

There were no precise casualty figures but conservative diplomatic estimates said the figure was likely to climb well into the hundreds, including civilians, in heavy Israeli strafing and rocket attacks on refugee camps in the outskirts of Beirut and naval bombardment of a refugee camp near the port of Tyre.

Refugees from the south crowded into mosques and schools in the Sidon area. The leftist Voice of Arab Lebanon radio station in Beirut sent out appeals for blood donors to help victims of the Israeli offensive. Crowds of refugees streamed northward from the battle zone as they had so many times in the past.

Assistant Syrian Foreign Minister Nasser Kaddour, summoned the ambassadors of the five nations and said Syria views the Israeli military operations as "an aggression against a member country of the United Nations and a violation of the charter of the U.N. as well as of international law".

He called on the diplomats to intervene immediately in an effort to stop the Israelis and to work for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon.

Lebanese Foreign Minister Fuad Butros notified the United Nations Security Council of the invasion and called in the Big Five ambassadors to ask their governments to help in any way possible.

Prime Minister Selim al Hoss complained bitterly that the Israeli strike by jets, troops, tanks, gunboats and artillery had "no justification whatsoever".

The Palestine Liberation Organization taking part in the anti-guerrilla campaign as "at least 25,000." Beirut press reports put the number of Palestinians and their Lebanese hosts battling the Israelis at about 8,000. Christian rightist militiamen fought on the side of Israel in south Lebanon.

In the southeast, the Israelis used air power, tanks, troops and artillery fire to throw the Palestinians northeast and away from the major cities, capturing the towns of Kham and Ebel Es Saq.

The right-wing Phalangist Radio said the Israelis also raided Palestinian positions at villages in the southern Bekaa Valley.

UPI reporter Ned Temko visited the south, south-central and southwest combat zones and reported from Tyre that the Palestinians were pressed by the Israeli military machine back from key positions in the central sector at Bint Jbeil, Maoun er Ras and Taireh and that the northeast border towns of Kham and Ebel Es Saq had fallen to the Israelis.

At the same time, Israeli gunboats shelled the Rashidieh refugee camp south of Tyre and Israeli troops crossed the border and clashed with Palestinians in the southwest.

Witnesses said Israeli warplanes flew six times against the coastal town of Damour, which has been occupied by Palestinian refugees since the end of the civil war in Lebanon from 1975-76.

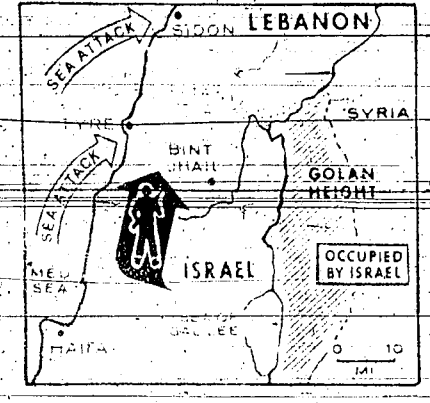

One report said a guerrilla naval slugging area had been destroyed, but there was no immediate confirmation of this.

UPI Correspondent David Zenan watched as the planes raided the Ouzal area south of Beirut four times, when dozens of concrete huts that were home to Palestinian refugees were destroyed. Also demolished were several restaurants, two bakeries and scores of cars.

The Sabra and Chatila refugee camps on the southern outskirts also reportedly was hit in the bombing, but not as seriously as Ouzal and Damour.

In Damascus — PLO — Executive Committee Spokesman Abdel Nohsen Abu Maizer said "this aggression will be met with increased determination and steadfastness, denunciation and anger."

"We have notified Arab kings and presidents of the details of the aggression and we expect an escalation of the situation."

Fired sewage workers cite illegal dumping

TWIN FALLS CITY COUNCIL MEMBERS ON RECENT INSPECTION ... of trouble-plagued city sewage treatment plant

By JEFF SHER
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Three men fired at the Twin Falls Waste Water Treatment Plant last Friday said Tuesday one of the reasons they were released from their jobs was because they ignored an order to illegally expel sewage from the plant directly into the Snake River.

The former city employees, Jim Erickson, Don McNitt and Fred Puzler told the Times-News it is a standard practice at the plant to open drains in the plant's chlorine contact chambers, the plant's last treatment unit before wastes are expelled into the river, and allow sludge collected at the bottom of the chambers to flow directly into the river.

Idaho regulations for the operation of waste water treatment plants specifically forbid this practice.

In two years of operation, the Twin Falls Waste Water Treatment Plant has consistently failed to operate as it was designed to do. The plant has been consistently unable to meet federal or state pollution discharge requirements into the Snake River.

The three men fired at the plant last week all said they had opened the drains and flushed the chambers into the river in the past.

They said such illegal flushing has been practiced since the time they were hired at the plant.

Workers worked at the plant for 13 months, McNitt for 12 1/2 months, and Erickson for 7 1/2 months.

But the three men said in recent weeks they had repeatedly and intentionally failed to carry out orders to flush the chambers because they felt the illegal flushing was wrong.

"That is the heart of a decision you have to make, between what's right and wrong," McNitt said.

Department of Health and Welfare environmentalist Alex Schaefer said he witnessed such a violation in progress Friday morning, "they were using the drain in the bottom of the contact chamber Friday to drain the chamber. One valve was open. That constitutes a violation," Schaefer said.

An acceptable way to deal with sludge accumulating in the chambers is to vacuum the sludge into a pump-out truck and then recirculate it through the plant, according to the fired plant employees.

Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Environmental Division administrator Dr. Lee Stokes said if the valve in the contact chamber had to be opened "for the purpose of repairing the plant," that could be an allowed practice, but "if it's just done for getting material out of the way, especially if we're not informed in advance," DHW could take action against the city.

The city council turned the sewage plant Friday at the invitation of plant superintendent Don Snelling, who wanted to explain to the council why the plant was still having problems meeting federal pollution standards.

Snelling admitted Tuesday that he was aware that the valves on the chlorine contact chambers had been illegally opened Friday, allowing sludge to drain into the river.

Treaty support expands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two more senators announced today they will vote "yes" on the Panama Canal neutrality treaty Thursday and President Carter apparently threw his support behind a late move to amend the treaty.

Democratic Sens. Russell Long of Louisiana and Donald Riegle of Michigan said they would definitely vote in favor of the first of the two treaties to turn the canal over to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999.

But the outcome was still in question although Senate leaders of both parties expressed confidence the administration will get the needed two-thirds Senate support for ratification.

Arizona Sen. Dennis DeConcini met with Carter at the White House today and said Carter supports an amendment allowing immediate U.S. military intervention in Panama if the canal is closed for any reason.

"We should have the right to intervene, for whatever reason," said Democrat DeConcini. "The president assured me he will accept this amendment."

Until today, Long had been listed as undecided on the canal treaty.

"It is my duty to vote to ratify this treaty. If I am to be equal to what the framers of the Constitution expected of men like me," said Long today.

DeConcini and other undecided senators today jockeyed to amend the treaties. The Arizona senator said he would vote "yes" if the Senate agreed to his amendment for emergency intervention.

"If it isn't accepted I will not vote for it," DeConcini told reporters. "I made it clear it had to be accepted."

DeConcini said he also supported a move for continued talks with Panama on a permanent U.S. military presence in the Central American nation.

"The president assured me he will accept this (military intervention) amendment," said DeConcini after the White House meeting. "I felt the leadership amendments did not go far enough on our right to maintain the openness of the canal."

As the Senate began its session today, both Democratic Leader Robert Byrd and Republican Leader Howard Baker expressed optimism the neutrality pact would be ratified Thursday even though they are not certain today of the required two-thirds vote.

"I think the votes will be there," Byrd told reporters.

"I don't think it's going to be rejected," Baker said. "We're still short of 67 votes. It's still winnable."

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., a leading treaty foe, repeated his belief the treaty would be defeated.

"I'm cautiously optimistic," he said.

The first ratification vote was set for 2 p.m. MST Thursday, with the outlook uncertain on the treaty guaranteeing the Panama Canal's permanent neutrality. A second vote would come later on the agreement to cede U.S. control of the canal in the year 2000.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., was mildly optimistic as the final hours of debate ticked away.

Cycle mufflers proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency, responding to one of its most frequently received noise complaints, today proposed regulations to muffle the often irritating roar of motorcycles.

An EPA spokesman said the rules would not take the fun out of riding a motorcycle and are designed solely as safeguards. Right now there are some motorcycles on the road that are as loud as a railroad train, the EPA said.

The proposed rules would affect new motorcycles, forcing manufacturers to produce vehicles with mufflers that will keep noise within the new decibel limits. The rules would also ban production of special replacement mufflers which motorcycle fanciers often use to heighten the sound of their vehicles.

"Just about every survey of local communities puts motorcycle noise near the top of the list as a source of annoyance," said David Hawkins, the EPA assistant administrator for air and waste management.

He said the new rules — if observed — will cause an average 5-decibel reduction in new street-motorcycle sound levels by 1985 and a 2.9-decibel reduction in sound levels for off-road motorcycles, those intended for use in vacant lots or recreation areas.

The current noise range of motorcycles can hit 108 decibels, the sound of a loud railroad train, said Hawkins, who spiced his presentation with tapes of freight train noise.

He said the proposed rules will affect the looks and performance of motorcycles and he conceded they may cause some replacement muffler manufacturers to go out of business. But he promised the new rules will "not take the fun out of motorcycle."

"We believe this proposed rule strikes a reasonable balance between the freedom of motorcyclists to enjoy the use of their cycles and the freedom of our citizens from excessive motorcycle noise."

He acknowledged the most serious problem in reducing motorcycle noise will be "keeping owners from removing the (sound reducing) mufflers or attaching ineffective mufflers."

The proposed standards would reduce new motorcycle noise in 1980 to 83 decibels; in 1982, 80 decibels; and 1985, 78 decibels.

Facing motorcycles would be exempt from the standards, but would be required to carry a label to ensure they are not used off the track.

EPA will take comments on the proposed regulations and plans three public hearings, April 28 and 29 and May 1 in Anaheim, Calif.; May 5 in St. Petersburg, Fla.; and May 9 in Washington.

Miners ponder new offer

By United Press International

Negotiators in Washington radiated optimism that their new contract — under scrutiny today of the UMW bargaining council — will end the 100-day old coal strike, but reaction was mixed among rank and file miners who still must ratify it.

"From what I can tell, I think about 75 percent of the men will endorse it," said West-Virginia miner Roger Hammack. "From what I've been told, it looks good to me."

"You may as well tell (UMW President) Arnold Miller to stay the hell in Washington," growled Ohio local officer Rick Sillier. "This contract doesn't sound any better than the last one. We'll probably have to reject this one too."

In Castlewood, Va., three angry miners used a match to express their opinion of the new pact. Handed a copy of press reports on it, they burned them.

"This is no better than the contract we rejected," one of them said.

Whatever their view of the agreement, the 100,000 striking UMW miners were solidly in accord Tuesday on one point. Reflecting their union battle cry of "no contract, no work," they left the coal mines idle in their second day of defiance of President Carter's Taft-Hartley back-to-work order.

In Washington, the third contract so far proposed in the strike was before the UMW's 39-man bargaining council, and union leaders studied ways to speed up the cumbersome rank and file voting process, which last time took 10 days.

They predicted a vote as early as Monday, and Nicholas Camie, chief negotiator for the coal operators, sang praises of the pact.

"We think we have a package that would be very good for the union, very good for the country," he said.

The agreement does offer more to the miners than the one they rejected in their last ratification vote, but a few volatile issues remain.

The new contract lowers, but does not eliminate, the retirement amount miners must pay for health care, always free before.

Payette Lake land sale moves nearer

BOISE (UPI)—The State Land Board authorized today an inventory of saleable lands on Payette Lake.

The motion, made by Attorney General Wayne Kidwell, directed the Idaho Land Department to "make a precise inventory of lots that could be sold and suggest criteria" for selling them.

It passed on 3-1 vote with opposition registered by Gov. John V. Evans, who proposed as an alternative the development of a "master plan to decide the best use of all the state land around the Payette Lake then decide what can be sold."

Jack Gillette, deputy director of the Land Department, said such a study would cost $30,000 to $50,000.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Roy Truly was not present for the vote.

State Auditor Joe Williams voted for the inventory saying the motion did not approve the sale of any lands but the identification of lots that would be suitable for disposal.

The board would retain its authority to approve all final sales on a case-by-case basis, he said.

Kidwell and Secretary of State Pete Conrath voted for the motion expressing concerns about the time element involved in a comprehensive study that would cause delays in the state getting the highest return on the lands.

"I think it's very shortsighted not to look at the entire area," Evans said.

The department presented the board with an inventory of lands it recommended for retention for future public use.

The areas include the west side of the peninsula on Payette Lake involving land adjacent to state park lands which the department described as "some of the best beach sites on that side of the peninsula."

Chimney Island and Cougar Island also were recommended for potential public use as camp sites, picnic areas and public boating areas.

The northern portion of Pilgrimage Cove and the Girl Scout Camp lease lots there also were recommended for retention by the state.

"The suggested areas provide reasonable access to the lake with minimal interference between public and private use."

They are "of such a size as to provide for future public use without serious conflict with private or leased cottage sites," the department's recommendation said.

In other action, the board approved "in principle" the exchange of 23 acres at the Plantation Golf Course in Boise.

Plantation Golf Course Inc. offered to give 11 acres of its property to the state in exchange for 12 acres of state land to clear the way for development of the golf course and a proposed industrial area.

On the recommendation of Land Department Director Gordon Trombley the board granted approval pending examination of the lease agreement by the department's legal counsel.

The board also approved a stipulation that a five-year lease, rather than a 31-year lease as requested, be part of the agreement.

The property under discussion, which totals 23 acres, was "land between the original government meander survey and the present ordinary-highwater mark," the department reported.

The board also settled a three-year dispute over a statesanctioned dock on Wagon Wheel Bay.

It accepted the petition of six residents of the area proposing an arrangement for the use of the dock.

"I was aware that the valve was open," Snelling said. "I am adamantly against placing down there that I'm not aware of. If there's any anger to be pointed, point it straight at me."

It was opened to try to improve the quality of effluent of the plant," Snelling said of the opened valve.

Snelling denied that it is standard practice for plant supervisors to order their employees to illegally flush the chambers.

"No one has ever been ordered to do that!" he said adamantly.

Snelling explained why the three men had been fired Friday.

All three men had been CETA (Comprehensive Employment-Training Act) workers, and, Snelling said, "These people had used up their CETA (funding)."

The salaries of CETA workers employed by the city are paid by the city, and the city is then reimbursed for the total amount of those salaries by the federal government.

Snelling said he had planned to add Putzier and McNitt to the city's permanent work force, but they had been assigned to the sewage plant's heat treatment unit, and when the unit had broken down and it had become apparent that the unit would not become operational for an indefinite period of time, he decided to fire them.

As for Erickson, Snelling said, "I just decided that I didn't want to use him anymore."

Snelling added that Erickson had a poor work record as well.

Despite the fact that the reason given for firing the men was that there were no permanent positions available for them, Friday afternoon the city hired three new CETA workers at the sewage treatment plant.

Snelling explained that the three new CETA workers had not been promised permanent positions but were merely hired on a temporary trainee basis.

Snelling explained that the three new CETA workers had not been promised permanent positions but were merely hired on a temporary trainee basis.

McNitt, Erickson and Putzier all said they were never informed that they had been specifically assigned to the heat treatment unit of the plant.

They said they functioned as operators, performing the same duties as all the other operators at the plant.

They also said they were given no notice that they would be fired, and Erickson said he was told he was being fired for the same reason as the other two men and that no mention was made of his "poor record."

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare agreed in January to give the city 240 days to find the cause of the plant's problems.

DIH promised not to take any action against the city

State police head selection in works

BOISE (UPI)—Law Enforcement Commissioner Kelly Pearce said Tuesday he will not be able to select a new superintendent of the Idaho State Police before the Legislature adjourns but he will lean toward applicants from Idaho when he does make a decision.

Pearce said he has not had time to review the "30 to 35" applications and interview the candidates because he has been "monitoring 20 bills" in the legislature and handling the "normal press of business in the office."

His routine has included testifying before legislative committees, two to three days a week.

The commissioner said he has not chosen any finalists but when he narrows the field there will "probably be five."

Most of the applications are from persons in the state, he said, adding "I am not eager to approve someone from out of the state. Maybe three or four of the applications are from out of state," Pearce said.

which could be avoided or which are frivolous?"

Stokes said if the city's actions were intentional violations of state regulations, it could have a bearing on "whether the city is acting in good faith" in its attempts to live up to the terms of its agreement with the state.

But Stokes said the agreement with the city not to prosecute for 240 days "wouldn't preclude us from taking some action if there were some discharges over and above the standards

GM battles test probe

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. has gone to court to stop an Environmental Protection Agency investigation into charges that emission tests of some 1977 Buicks were rigged.

GM filed suit in U.S. District Court Tuesday, accusing the EPA of conducting an improper criminal investigation at the firm's Buick Division plant in Flint, Mich.

The suit, which names EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle as defendant, asks the court to halt the probe and rule on the EPA's authority to conduct such investigations.

The probe centers on allegations that certain Buick LeSabre models picked by Buick officials for an EPA emissions audit last December "were chosen ... in a manner which may have caused the vehicles selected to be unrepresentative of normal production vehicles," in violation of EPA testing procedures.

Specifically, the EPA charged "emission components were withheld from production during and immediately preceding the audit based on their anticipated poor emissions performance," and were brought back into production after the tests were concluded.

GM's vice president and general counsel, Otis M. Smith, said the firm — upon receiving notice of the accusation — began its own investigation and had been cooperating with EPA officials in what was believed to be a civil investigation.

"However, GM was informed by EPA officials for the first time last week that the investigation was criminal in nature and aimed not just at GM but at individual employees as well," Smith said.

He said the EPA Monday demanded certain company documents be turned over to agency attorneys within 24 hours and said EPA investigators would appear at the Buick plant Tuesday to interrogate employees.

"GM does not claim that the corporation cannot be investigated, but rather that any investigation must be in accordance with established procedures and due process safeguards," Smith said.

"We cannot be a party to an interrogation of our employees where basic constitutional rights would be abrogated," he said. The suit charges the EPA's investigative procedures "constitute an unlawful invasion of the rights of GM, its agents and employees and the rights and obligations of its counsel."

Smith said emissions components involved in the investigation are no longer in production.

Early March car sales far under 1977 level

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. automakers reported car sales in the first 10 days of March slipped 13.5 percent from a year ago, continuing a nearly uninterrupted auto sales slump that began last November.

Combined sales of the Big Four auto companies totaled 222,953 cars for the period, down from the 256,926 passenger cars sold in early March last year. So far this year, sales total 1.39 million, off 8.5 percent.

Although each of the auto companies posted a sales decline, General Motors, Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. were up against year-ago figures inflated by sales contests that concluded during the period.

The companies' combined daily sales rate of 24,675 for the period — though lower than last year's record, is still the second best since 1975.

GM reported sales of 127,216 for the period, down 16.5 percent from last year's sales which were boosted by a contest in its Oldsmobile Division. So far this year, GM has sold 774,303 units, off 9.6 percent from 1977.

Chrysler sales of 28,893 for the early March period were off 7 percent from a year ago and raised the No. 3 automaker's year-to-date total to 180,323, down 14 percent.

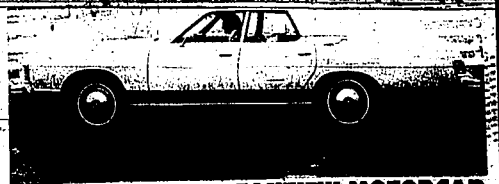

Struggling AMC reported its sales dropped 28.5 percent for the period, with 4,255 cars sold. For the year to date, AMC's sales total 27,630, down 27.8 percent.

Ford Motor Co., which reported the only sales gain in the previous reporting period, posted an 8.7 percent decline in early March on sales totaling 61,697. The No. 2 automaker's year-to-date performance is off 2 percent from last year.

Despite the continued slump, which reversed itself briefly in mid-February, company officials voiced optimism that a spring upsurge will turn sales around and make the year a good one for the auto industry.

Letters T-N readers discuss scrolls, abortion

Scrolls article discussed

Editor, Times-News:
The article written by Ken Hodge ("Scrolls prove Bible inaccurate," February 24, p. 2) begs response. The article was based upon a talk given by Daniel Ludlow, professor of ancient scriptures at Brigham Young University.

Overlooking the implied use of the Dead Sea Scrolls as a polemical device to call into question all Christian experience, Professor Ludlow's most obvious generalization ignores centuries of honest Christian differences of Biblical interpretation and prey. Something comparable would be to suggest that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, the Church of Christ — Temple Lot, Sidney Rigdon's Church of Jesus Christ, Church of Jesus Christ — Cutlerites (if they still exist) and the so-called Strangites (if they still exist) all believe exactly the same things. In point of fact, of course, anyone at all sensitive to the history of the LDS Church would know that rather large and important differences do exist between these LDS bodies.

So while there may be some fundamentalist Christians who might still adhere to a literalistic interpretation of the Bible in the King James translation, these people certainly would not represent the only position of the world's Christians, nor, even, the majority Christian viewpoint. It certainly is too bad that Professor Ludlow did not bring such an understanding and appreciation of those differences to the "audience" of about 300 at the article stated. Professor Ludlow's insensitivity to, or ignorance of, 500 years of sophisticated Biblical scholarship does not speak well of him.

Furthermore, to accuse all Christian biblical scholars of not realizing that the Bible contains "scribal errors, omissions and mistranslations," according to Ludlow, is to deny what is common knowledge to millions of Christians.

For example, D. Eberhard Nestle and his son, D. Erwin Nestle, after him, have collated manuscript copies of the New Testament, up-dating the text as new material is discovered. There have been more than 21 editions thus printed since 1898.

But probably the best-known work in this area was done by the great Dutch theologian, Desiderius Erasmus, who attempted to find the oldest Greek manuscripts. He began the work in 1516, fully 415 years prior to the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls, finally publishing a Greek New Testament in 1535.

The heart of the Christian faith is in Jesus, the Christ, and His Father the God of both Testaments. The Bible simply has succeeded in convincing 48 generations of people that what it says about Jesus, as the Christ, the Messiah, (a concept taken from the Old Testament); it is a Jewish word, Messiah is true. While no one would be willing to become a martyr of about 300, error, omissions, and mistranslations... thousands of Christians have been martyred because of their willingness to give up their faith in the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and in God's only Son, Jesus, the Christ.

The falling paragraphs, however, are the third and fourth from the end. What Professor Ludlow seems to be suggesting is that a religion was formed from Jewish roots that antedates Christ, and that religion is "Mormonism." The argument seems to be that "Mormonism" is the better religion because it is the older of the two. Part of that argument is based upon the strongly held notion that the plates of the "Book of Mormon" were written after 600 BC, and presumably, before 52 AD.

Because, furthermore, the Later-Day Saints accept the Bible "as far as it is translated correctly," Professor Ludlow may be trying to wean the Saints from the King James translation, and therefore fundamentalist leanings, the Saints.

Mr. Ken Hodge and Professor Ludlow are to be commended. The arguments presented are subtly stated. A superficial reading of the article could lead the reader to assume that sweeping generalizations abound. No so, carefully worded, the article must be read carefully in order to see the implied notion that people will come to know a better Bible, if the King James translation can be shown to be "inaccurate."

Bible: world best-seller

Editor, Times-News:
The Times-News recently published an article reporting a talk by Daniel Ludlow of Brigham Young University under the extraordinary title of "Scrolls prove Bible inaccurate." Ludlow's speech apparently attempted, in a somewhat confused manner, to demonstrate that the Dead Sea Scrolls have somehow proven the Bible to be inaccurate. Despite the fact that the article ran over 1,500 words, the number of inaccuracies from the Bible actually cited was nil.

The Bible has been attacked, burned, banned, subjected to the minor criticism of the 19th century, the Alcohol prohibition of the 20th century, and 400 years of persecution by Christians and yet it still stands like a rock, unshaken and immovable. As any grade-schooler knows, who reads the Guinness Book of Records, the Bible is the world's greatest all-time best seller. It has been translated in whole or part into nearly a thousand languages. It has penetrated to the farthest corners of the globe and it has, right to the present day, proved its Divine origin in its power to transform lives.

Veterans captured and imprisoned by the Viet-Cong quailed before it to each other, at the risk of beatings, to maintain their inner strength and confidence in God; people behind the Iron Curtain take down handwritten copies of it from dictation broadcast by radio from the free West; young graduates devote their brain and energies to learning the languages of the remote peoples of Asia, Africa and South America in order to give them the Word of God in their own tongue, and children and adults of all ages in this country daily find the Bible to be the most reliable and strongest resource in their lives.

The Bible proved inaccurate? Phooey!

Carter oust suggested

Editor, Times-News:
I read with interest the column in the March 8 Times-News by William Safire in which he gave many reasons why the Panama Canal pact was all wrong, but stated that if he were a Senator, he'd vote for the treaties because he wouldn't want to embarrass our President or words to that affect.

Well, "la-de-da," this could cost me my pension, but I say: start impeachment proceedings against that traitor Carter and kick him out of the White House before he gets us into World War III. After all, there is nothing like a good war to boost the economy.

Sterilization the answer

Editor, Times-News:
A recent letter from National Organization for Women prompts this letter. The letter deals with the proposition that "right to lifters" pose a real threat to the privacy, dignity and lives of women because of their stand against free abortions. This is my answer:

I am just as much in favor of dignity and acceptance of women as anyone else. I've always worked and paid my own way through life — but I cannot go along with killing babies. I NOW would work as hard to teach morally, instead of promiscuity; to teach birth control, instead of infanticide, yes, I could join ranks.

I am 60, still youthful, still active. We had four children, but knew we had to make a choice at the birth of the fourth between a life of hardship for the remainder of our lives or a life where the essentials could be provided. In other words, we had as many children as we felt we could care for and educate properly. So we chose sterilization at a time when very few people approved of that, and we have no regrets.

There are probably many of us in this land who agonize over the difficulties women get themselves into — but why not a massive campaign for rhythmical control if they can't afford medical help and for vasectomies for more permanent control? We consulted our doctor and he put it to us this way, "A vasectomy is inexpensive, minor surgery, and can be performed in a doctor's office. Hysterectomy is expensive, major surgery."

I believe, in India, at least for a while, vasectomies were performed in railway stations and the man gave a fee instead of paying a fee to have it done. Put your push, you in NOW, on free vasectomies for promiscuous males, or for thoughtful husbands. Let's get it done right! Prevention, not cure at any price, including murder.

It's an issue in "free abortions," but there are other things to think of, too.

Isaac Asimov, foremost science-fiction writer, and one who has been amazingly accurate in his predictions, states that massive world hunger will become a reality in 20 years — too many mouths to feed.

This is a problem not only that we in the United States will have to face — but the undecimated millions of the world — and will they come pounding at our boundaries? We are beginning to experience even now the desperation of the hungry poor in our south.

We need to come out of our tight little borders in Idaho and begin to think and work for solutions, singly or with others, with more knowledge of world situations.

Doctor indicted

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Dr. Allan George Thurmond, brother of U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., was indicted Tuesday on 34 counts of filing false Medicaid claims.

The federal indictment against the North Augusta obstetrician and his secretary, Nell E. Shaffer, said the pair filed Medicaid payment forms for services he did not perform between June, 1973, and June, 1975.

Dr. Thurmond could not be reached for comment at his home late Tuesday night.

The maximum sentence on each of the 34 counts is five years in prison or a $10,000 fine.

Cher special scheduled for April 3

United Press International

COSMOLOGICAL CAPER

Cher, the pop singer and actress, will appear in a special on ABC-TV's "The Love Boat" on April 3 when she hits the screen for her only special of the year. The show is being billed in New York as a "lavish lyrical battle between good and evil" with the ever virtuous Dolly Parton on the side of the angels and funky Rod Stewart and his "disco devils" on the other team. Amid gospel singers and what doubtless will be very cosmological choreography, they'll vie for Cher's soul. Move over Dr. Faustus — here she comes.

The man whose lack of the Pentagon Papers made him king of the anti-war protesters back in 1971 is at it again — this time in Colorado where the target of his wrath will be the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant northwest of Denver. Daniel Ellsberg says he'll lead his followers in a demonstration there April 29-30 — to protest development of the neutron bomb. Says Ellsberg, "This weapon must be stopped. It tortures people to death. It doesn't kill the right way, but does it slowly."

Reluctant medics turn off machine

CHICAGO (UPI) — Advised by the Cook County medical examiner they could not be held responsible, doctors at Loyola University Hospital Tuesday disconnected a life-supporting machine for a 15-year-old boy whose parents had pleaded for his son's "right to die."

Sieck's parents had pleaded for his son's "right to die," but hospital officials were reluctant to remove the respirator because of the implications for the criminal case pending against the boy's accused attacker.

But in a ruling that appeared to tread new ground in such cases, Medical Examiner Robert Stein said the hospital could not be held responsible for the death of the youth, previously determined to be "brain dead."

"The fact of death is a medical matter to be determined by doctors only," Stein said. "After a death determination is made, I will perform an autopsy and determine the cause of death."

State school levy cut faces Senate amendment

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate-requested, House-approved bill to reduce the $-mill county school levy permanently to 4 mills has run into trouble in the Senate and may be amended.

This proposal provides $9.3 million in tax relief by repealing half the mill levy and replacing the money from state sources. It also includes a provision to spend any surplus accruing to the general fund this year on additional tax relief — up to a ceiling of $9.3 million.

Senate Democrats oppose citing that dollar ceiling in the bill because they feel it is misleading and might be interpreted by some as a promise of 8 mills worth of tax relief this year. They, and many others, doubt if the surplus will be anywhere that size.

When the bill arrived from the House Tuesday the Senate slipped it into the Local Government and Taxation Committee. That committee is expected today to kick it out to the Senate floor for senior citizens could take advantage of it this year. The measure amounts to $1.8 million in additional tax relief for elderly homeowners.

Both parties in the Senate discussed the proposed House circuit breaker amendments in caucus early in the afternoon. Afterward, both parties generally agreed they would accept the bill only as originally passed. However, a spokesman for the Democrats said the restrictive

Agency watchdog OK'd

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho legislators served notice Tuesday that state agency rules and regulations occasionally get out of hand, and need to be watched.

And by a vote of 32-3 the Idaho Senate voted to create a committee which would do just that.

Senate Bill 1558, which has already passed the House and now goes to the governor, establishes legislative interim committees whose sole purpose is to review rules and regulations proposed by state agencies during the interim period between legislatures.

The interim committees will have no formal power to reject proposed rules. But they can, after study, recommend that rules be altered or abolished. That means, said Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Caldwell, the sponsor of SB 1558, that the agency will be rejecting the committee recommendation at its own risk. If the agency goes ahead and implements the rule — overriding the committee's recommendation — the committee can recommend at the next session of the legislature abolish the rule altogether.

Tuesday's vote appears to be the end of a series of battles stretching over the past few years. For several years critics of administrative rules have charged that "bureaucrats" are "legislating by regulation," making what are in effect laws they shouldn't have the power to enact.

Legislation which would have required prior legislative approval of administrative rules before they go into effect was introduced in the 1974 legislature. Although the measure passed both houses, it was vetoed by then Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

Similar legislation again passed the 1975 legislature, and was again vetoed by Andrus. In 1977 almost identical legislation again passed both houses of the legislature. Again it was vetoed by the governor — this time John V. Evans.

Earlier this year legislation was once more introduced which would again have required legislative approval of administrative rules before they take effect. Critics of the legislation then argued it would be impossible for Idaho's part-time legislature to deal with agency rules advanced by full-time government agencies.

S.B. 1558 came out of this year's earlier debates. A compromise piece of legislation, it has not been directly endorsed by Gov. Evans, but the governor has said he hopes the administrative agencies of government and the state legislature can work more closely together.

Water plan rolls on

BOISE (UPI) — Without opposition, debate, the House approved a constitutional amendment today to protect its work on the State Water Plan as well as two bills designed to help implement that plan.

The constitutional proposal provides that the water plan formulated by the Water Resources Board cannot be effective until approved by the state Legislature. It was approved 64-1 and sent to the Senate.

At the last session, the Legislature passed legislation to block implementation of the plan until the lawmakers adopted it.

Since then, that legislative authority has been challenged in court.

Floor sponsor J. Vard Chabourn, R-Albion, said the constitutional amendment would protect the work done on the plan by the Legislature at this session under that bill should a court declare the bill invalid.

House members also approved 65-0 bills, including local public interest as a criterion for approving or disapproving applications to appropriate water and to give the Department of Water Resources authority over construction, maintenance and operation of mine tailings impoundment structures.

Bills offered

BOISE (UPI) — Two bills designed to implement the management account policy of the State Water Plan were introduced by the House State Affairs Committee today.

One bill sets up a management account and provides for grants up to $50,000. The other appropriates $1 million to the management account.

Helmet law up again

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate bill to repeal the motorcycle helmet law for riders over the age of 18 survived an attempt to amend it in the House Tuesday and comes up again for final consideration.

Rep. Wendell Miller, D-Idaho Falls, tried unsuccessfully to change the bill so that it repealed the helmet requirement for motorcycle riders of all ages. Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, its floor sponsor, successfully argued that the amendment was designed to "slaughter the bill."

Party formation rules tightened

BOISE — Forming a political party in Idaho may soon become a more difficult task.

Tuesday the Senate passed and sent to Gov. John Evans Senate Bill 1349, which tightens the requirements for formation of a new political organization. If S.B. 1349 becomes law, political aspirants forming a new organization can guarantee a spot on the ballot by gathering signatures of registered voters equaling three percent of the vote cast for president at the last election. In Idaho that means a new party would need 10,200 signatures.

Existing law requires only 1,500 signatures of registered voters.

A place may also be secured on the ballot by an organization that either runs three or more candidates for state or national office in the last general election, or which polls at least two percent of the vote in the last gubernatorial or presidential election.

S.B. 1349 grew out of an

IVOR RICHARDS ... he abstained
ANDREW YOUNG ... for compromise

Third world raps terms

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council says Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's internal settlement is "illegal and unacceptable," but the United States and Britain already are turning their backs on the ruling in search of a compromise.

The council Tuesday ended five days of debate by voting 10-4, with five abstentions, for a Third World resolution that was a far cry from the strong condemnation of the Smith regime sought by black African states.

The diplomatic maneuvering was prompted by Smith's March 3 agreement with three black leaders to end white rule in Rhodesia, providing the rights of whites are safeguarded. The agreement excluded leaders of the guerrillas battling Smith's government.

Among the abstentions Tuesday were the United States and Britain. Their ambassadors, Andrew Young and Ivor Richard, said they intended to continue efforts to bring all sides together — including the three black moderates who signed the agreement with Smith and the black guerrilla Patriotic Front which rejected it.

But chances for such a conference did not appear good. Washington and London left it clear their official line was neither acceptance nor rejection of Smith's Salisbury pact — a position reflected in Young's own about-face in the Security Council.

Young said that "compared with the kinds of settlement proposals which Smith has entertained in the past, the Salisbury agreement marks some progress." It was a sharp reversal from Young's original description of the Smith pact as an instrument that would put "black on black" in a civil war.

The resolution adopted by the council "declares as illegal and unacceptable any internal settlement" under the Smith government's auspices and demands "the speedy termination" of the white minority regime and replacement of its military and police forces.

Young said, "We must examine the so-called internal settlement dispassionately." Richard said, "There are elements in the internal settlement as it has been reported which correspond to what the U.N. has been calling for for many years."

Young and Richard are trying to persuade guerrilla leaders, moderate black leaders and Smith to sit down at a conference table to reach an agreement that will end the bloodshed in Rhodesia.

Israelis harass American oil rig

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Israeli gunboat recently chased an American oil-drilling ship from a site in the Gulf of Suez, industry and government officials said today.

A spokesman for Amoco Oil Co. in Chicago said the incident occurred March 7, when Amoco's oil drilling rig, Discovery 111, moved to one of the company's drilling sites in the western half of the southern portion of the Gulf of Suez between Egypt and the Sinai peninsula.

The spokesman said an Israeli naval vessel approached and after a lengthy and heated discussion, ordered the ship to move two kilometers to the west.

The ship did move west, but the incident was reported to the State Department, he said. The department made no formal protest to Israel, but did express its interest and displeasure.

For two days the Israeli gunboat anchored at the drilling site and refused to let the drilling vessel approach. Finally it moved away.

The site was granted to Gupeo (an acronym for Gulf Petroleum Co., a consortium of Amoco and the Egypt Petroleum Co.) in 1964 by the government of Egypt, along with a number of exploration blocks in the oil-rich rift.

Gupeo produces about 300,000 barrels of oil from the gulf every year.

Israel claims half of the Gulf of Suez as the right of conquest from the 1973 war but, according to Israeli and company officials, the claim is for only the western half of the gulf. The Discovery, according to the company, was 120 feet west of the center of the gulf when it was ordered to move away by the Israeli gunboat captain.

Somali peace call follows withdrawal

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Somalia announced today it had withdrawn all its forces from Ethiopia's Ogaden desert and appealed to the superpowers for bringing a lasting peace to the region.

The official Mogadishu Radio quoted the Ministry of Information as saying the heavy pullout — more of a full-scale retreat before advancing Ethiopian forces left by Cuban troops — was completed Tuesday to end nearly eight months of conventional warfare.

"The Somali government wants to make it known that it has withdrawn units of its armed forces from the war zone in accordance with its promise to withdraw Somali forces from the battlefield," the radio said.

The Somalis announced Thursday they would pull out of the country, but already the Ethiopian offensive directed by Soviet advisers had sent their forces reeling.

By Monday, Ethiopian said it had captured virtually every town and key installation — with the exception of Gode, a base near the Somali border — that had been lost to the Somalis since the war began in July.

Today's statement said that as a result of the withdrawal, "The Somali government calls on the superpowers to fulfill their promise of seeking to bring about a just and lasting settlement to the issue in the horn of Africa."

It added that the problem could only be solved by granting the people of the Ogaden — mostly ethnic Somali nomads, independent from Addis Ababa.

Mullard left scenery to pioneer Gem firm

OAKLEY — The pioneering spirit overruled the scenic beauty of the Reno-Lake Tahoe area for Gary Mullard when he decided to move his stone company headquarters here six years ago. Mullard, 45, is owner of Northern Stone Supply Inc., a new business, Fireplace Distributors of Idaho. "I liked the development opportunities here, the pioneering aspect of building up from scratch and development in a nice, quiet rural area."

He said business trips to Oakley 10 years ago perked his interest in settling in the area and he bought the quarry six years ago. A 25-year veteran of the stone business, Mullard still owns a building stone company in Quincy, Calif., but his main operation is centered around the 1,000-acre quarry located 15 miles south of Oakley on Middle Mountain. He said the company employs 12 full-time people year round and expands to 25 in the summer months. The quarry has been gradually carved out of the mountain and today the firm cuts 4,000 tons of quartzite and high grade flagstone a year, Mullard said. Shipments are sent all over Canada and the continental United States, he notes, as well as to Belgium, where the stone will be cut into floor tile. Mullard said the company even filled one order for a shipment of stone to Taiwan. Expansion plans will not exceed what the employees can be efficiently handled, he said. The biggest problems with more growth is the lack of labor and the volume of paperwork. Mullard added the pay is not a deterrent in getting good help, but simply a lack of status associated with doing outside physical labor. Mullard said the fireplace end of his business was started a year ago and serves as the Idaho distribution center for major manufacturers. Dec Jensen is manager of the fireplace division in Oakley, he said.

FmHa offices close for district meeting

TWIN FALLS — All county offices of the Farmers Home Administration will be closed on March 24 due to a district meeting for FmHa personnel at the Blue Lakes Inn in Twin Falls. The offices which will be closed are in Twin Falls, Gooding, Paul, Rupert, Burley, Jerome and Shoshone. All offices will open as usual the following Monday.

One out of five homebuyers last year was single. And three out of five were married couples without children. Why is unclear, but the men and women in Chile vote in separate precincts.

"No family is so poor that can't afford to keep a dog," said Josh Billings, "and I've seen them so poor they could afford to keep three."

Fair weather spell cast on Valley

Twin Falls, North Side, Burley-Palms Area: Mostly fair tonight and Thursday. Overnight lows near 25 degrees and high temperatures Thursday up to 55 degrees.

Friday's outlook calls for slight chance of rain.

Halley, Camas Prairie, Lower Wood River Valley: Fair tonight with increasing cloudiness Thursday. Overnight lows will be from zero to 15 degrees and high temperatures will be in the 40s.

Friday's outlook is for chance of snow.

Synopsis: High pressure along the northwest coast extends eastward into Idaho. The flow aloft is out of the northwest and is cold and dry.

This allowed morning temperatures to fall into the teens and lower 20s across southern Idaho. In fact, Fairfield in the Camas Prairie reported one degree above zero with a snow depth of 22 inches.

This high pressure is moving slowly eastward, which will allow the flow aloft to change to a southeasterly direction, causing some high cloudiness and warmer temperatures to flow into the Magic Valley Thursday.

The forecast for Friday through Sunday indicates a return to wet, unsettled weather. Rain is expected in the Valley and snow in the mountains. High temperatures will be in the 45 to 55 range and overnight lows will be dropping back to 25 to 35.

The mandate of the 1964 Civil Rights Act... only the means by which that mandate is carried out," the Justice Department said.

The brief was filed in a suit brought by civil rights groups challenging the constitutionality of the anti-busing law.

The civil rights groups argue HEW is allowing federal aid to flow illegally to 17 school systems, mostly in Northern and Western states, because the only desegregation remedy is busing and HEW is blocked by the law from requiring busing.

HEW also filed an affidavit saying it may refer a number of the school desegregation cases to the Justice Department for legal action.

Attorney Joseph Rauh Jr., who represents the coalition of civil rights groups, called the Justice Department ruling "not a legal but a political decision."

New anti-busing law "bad policy"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Tuesday condemned a new anti-busing law, which the Justice Department has said is unconstitutional, because it will encourage court desegregation battles.

The law limits the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's authority under the 1964 Civil Rights Act to require busing for school desegregation.

The legislation, passed Dec. 9, probably will have its greatest impact on HEW efforts to desegregate Northern and Western schools.

Court-ordered busing is not affected.

The law "is bad public policy because it limits our ability to work out desegregation plans cooperatively with local school officials and, instead, forces the matter into the courts," said HEW Secretary Joseph Calliano.

"If the issue before the court were whether this legislation is good policy, we could not defend it," the Justice Department said in an opinion filed in U.S. District Court in Washington last month.

Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act forbids federal aid to schools which discriminate on the basis of race or national origin. HEW is charged with enforcing this provision.

But the new legislation prohibits HEW from using federal funds "to require, directly or indirectly, the transportation of any student to a school other than the school which is nearest the student's home."

"Congress has not altered

the mandate of the 1964 Civil Rights Act... only the means by which that mandate is carried out," the Justice Department said.

The brief was filed in a suit brought by civil rights groups challenging the constitutionality of the anti-busing law.

The civil rights groups argue HEW is allowing federal aid to flow illegally to 17 school systems, mostly in Northern and Western states, because the only desegregation remedy is busing and HEW is blocked by the law from requiring busing.

HEW also filed an affidavit saying it may refer a number of the school desegregation cases to the Justice Department for legal action.

Attorney Joseph Rauh Jr., who represents the coalition of civil rights groups, called the Justice Department ruling "not a legal but a political decision."

Doctor list erroneous

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators said Tuesday HEW's listing of $100,000-a-year Medicare doctors was "poorly managed... riddled with errors... promulgated, released and costly."

It cost nearly $14,000 to prepare the report last year and $122,000 to correct it, said a General Accounting Office report.

A Michigan doctor listed as receiving $115,000 actually got $15,000 and said, "My wife must think I have an apartment on the side and a mistress as well."

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Calliano apologized to the American Medical Association for "any embarrassment that may have been caused to any of your members" by errors in the March 14, 1977, list.

The GAO report, released by Rep. L. I. Fountain, D-N.C., said some 470 doctors complained about errors in the list, including 300 who said an individual physician's name was used mistakenly to identify a group practice.

Other doctors complained physicians in group practices were listed as solo practitioners or reported dollar amounts were inaccurate.

There were 25 complaints the list included names were used of doctors who had died, retired or were no longer associated with the group practice indicated, the GAO said.

Cattlemen's banquet set

TWIN FALLS — The annual banquet and business meeting of the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association will be held Saturday evening at the Holiday Inn.

The social hour will begin at 6:30, followed by the banquet at 7:30. After the banquet there will be a short business meeting when officers for the coming year will be elected.

College of Southern Idaho President Dr. James Taylor will be the evening's featured speaker.

After the meeting there will be music supplied by the Tradesmen and dancing. In addition, door prizes will be awarded.

Tickets will be $9.50, and information packets will be mailed to association members with tickets enclosed. Members are asked to make early response as to whether or not they will attend, but tickets will be available at the door.

The association performs several functions for its members and in support of the beef industry. Members are kept current on legislative activity affecting them, and the association contacts legislators to inform them of the association's stands on issues affecting the industry.

The association also encourages young people interested in the beef industry and provides seminars and speakers for those already in the business.

The group also promotes beef locally, holds annual meetings and picnics, and offers a $500 reward for conviction of cattle theft of member's cattle.

For further information about the association or the banquet, call Charlie Boss at 655-4223.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, March 15, the 74th day of 1978 with 291 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

There is no morning star. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the United States, was born March 15, 1767. This is the 62nd birthday of American orchestra leader Harry James.

On this day in history:

- In 1916, Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding 12,000 U.S. troops, was ordered to proceed to Mexico and capture revolutionary leader Pancho Villa.
- In 1953, Russian Premier Georgi Malenkov, successor to Josef Stalin, said international disputes could be settled by peaceful means. He was deposed two years later.
- In 1969, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was found to be "suffering" from congestive heart trouble.
- In 1977, the United States flew supplies to Zaire to help halt an invasion of that African republic.

A thought for the day: British poet Alfred Lord Tennyson said, "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

Seniors plan Mexico trip

DIETRICH — The four-member senior class of Dietrich High School will leave March 23 for a 10-day trip into Mexico and California.

Supt. Wayne Perron said the seniors and their parents attended the trustee meeting Monday night when the board approved plans for the trip. The seniors and their chaperones will first go to Salt Lake City, visit the Grand Canyon area, continue to Nogales, Mexico, returning through San Diego, Los Angeles and Las Vegas. They will return home April 1.

Perron said the senior sneak always is held in conjunction with spring break so three of the days will be school holidays. All teachers in the district met with the board to walk through the state legislature complex in Boise to see the bill so the district will know how much money it will have.

Trustees commended several students for outstanding achievements. They include Mike Kelly and Steve Short for qualifying for the regional speech festival in Boise this Saturday, and Kevin Perron and Leland Towne for making all-star basketball squads for the North Side conference. Towne also was commended for being named to the Magic Valley East squad which will play in the Easter Seal benefit game Monday night at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

Skoshone to offer teacher contracts

SHOSHONE — Shoshone school trustees will offer contracts for the next school year to all teachers in the district, Supt. Ken Crothers said Tuesday.

On Monday night the board also adopted the calendar for next year. School will begin for the 1978-79 year on Aug. 29. Trustees approved the attendance of Coaches Vincent Howard and Larry Resnick at the fourth district coaching clinic this weekend in Jackpot, Nev.

The board adopted a rental policy for persons wanting to use school facilities for music and dance lessons. The charge will be $5 per session for all rooms but the gymnasium, which will cost $10 per session.

Ben Webb, board chairman, and Ivan Hopkins, will represent the trustees on the teacher-negotiating team. Howard Miller is spokesman for the teachers.

Crothers said the board discussed items presented from the teachers for contract consideration. The negotiating team will meet Monday.

Applications are still being accepted for the position of Shoshone High School principal to replace Jim Clements who has resigned, effective at the end of the school year, to enter private business in Washington state.

Crothers said the board reviewed several applications already received for the post.

Tax relief reviewed by school trustees

FAIRFIELD — Camas County school trustees feel tax relief should come at the county school tax level, not in lowering the 27 mills local school districts may levy, Supt. Harold Stroud said Tuesday.

He said during Monday night's board meeting that trustees discussed two proposals introduced in the Idaho Legislature to reduce the district mill levy to either 20 or 22 mills. If the district levy is reduced and more money is redistributed through the state formula, small districts such as Camas County would suffer, Stroud said.

The superintendent said he understands the proposal to cut the 27 mills for local school districts is "probably dead" and that there likely will be a four-mill reduction in the county school levy.

In other business, the board offered contracts to all teachers in the system and declared Feb. 8 and 9 as "snow days" when school was closed because of the weather.

Book policy established

TWIN FALLS — A policy for selection of material in the Castelford school libraries and creation of an evaluation board in the event of objections to the selections were established Monday night by the Castelford School Board.

Superintendent Dick Peters said there have been no objections to books and other material in the Castelford school libraries and none is anticipated.

"We felt we should have a policy established in the event our parents or others in the district feel some of the material we might select are not desirable. This has occurred in some other school systems," Peters said.

He said at present the librarian, teachers and administrators are responsible for material made available in the school libraries and this is expected to continue to be the method used. The newly adopted policy calls for an evaluation board appointed by the school board to review any material which might be received and to rule on the material in question.

The board also discussed teacher qualifications, and Peters said five of the 18 teacher in Castelford are not "endorsed" for teaching the subjects now in use.

"The board decided we should work with these teachers in an effort to have them fully qualified for their teaching subjects," Peters said.

All tenure teachers of the district were rehired by the board Monday night. Letters of intent will be sent out about April 1 and contracts will be presented following a review of the letters of intent, the superintendent said.

Trustees voted to offer contracts to all other teachers.

Teacher negotiations start

WENDELL — The negotiating team from the Wendell school board has been chosen to participate in teacher contract negotiations, Supt. Lawrence LaRue said Tuesday.

He said the first meeting will be at 7 p.m. March 21. Trustees will be represented by Jim Campbell, chairman; John Harrison and Lemo, with Ed Christopherson as alternate. Ronnie Vogt is spokesman for the teachers and other faculty team.

The committee, composed of effective July 1 and is for five years with the price to be negotiated annually.

The board decided to apply for federal funds to launch an individualized learning program in math for junior-high school students. LaRue said the dollar amount has not yet been determined, but the program would include getting new materials and providing in-service training. There would be no additional staff.

Trustees instructed LaRue to send a letter to school patrons outlining the need for passage of the 10-mill plant facilities levy scheduled for April 4. The funds will be used for such things as replacing equipment, maintenance on parking areas and resurfacing the parking areas, he said.

The board renewed a lease with Walter Stockham Jr. for 17 acres of rental ground at the site of the physical education building and asked LaRue to apply for non-fund assistance in the state hot lunch program to pay 75 percent of the cost of a new oven.

In an executive session, trustees reviewed evaluations of secondary and elementary teachers prior to offering contracts.

The next board meeting, March 22, is planned to begin at 8 p.m. Meeting time is earlier in the winter, but will be at 8 p.m. through the spring and summer.

Film on alcoholism slated

BLISS — An educational program on the effects of alcohol will be presented to senior- and junior-high school students at Bliss, Supt. Dick Flores said Tuesday.

He said Archie Walker, Bliss, chairman of the board of directors of the alcohol treatment center at Gooding, discussed the film program available to the public schools on alcoholism and board members approved presentation of the program in the local school.

In other business at the monthly board meeting Monday night, it was decided to advertise for bids for a major rewiring job on the main school building. Flores said trustees approved the recommendation of Jim Knutz, of J and L Electric, Buhl, that the building needs to be rewired to meet the national electrical code.

The board also approved purchase of citizens band radios for four school buses. The district runs some buses in areas where there are no telephones, Flores said.

The board approved the senior class trip scheduled for May 22-28. It also hired Jerry Davis as a bus driver beginning April 6.

The exhibit of the King Tut treasures and artifacts, which will be on display in Seattle in October, was discussed. Board members instructed Flores to make plans and determine cost of a trip so that interested local students could make the trip, probably by Amtrak, at their own expense. The trip would be under school supervision, the superintendent said.

School auction set

JEROME — Anyone want to buy a recycled school building?

The Jerome school board is providing that opportunity with the first auction of materials salvaged from the demolition of the Lincoln School.

The sale, under the direction of Messersmith Auction Service, is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, April 4, at the school.

Materials to be sold include red brick probably in lots from 500 to 2,000. Lumber, metal and special items such as a curved set of handrails.

The auction to "recycle" 65-year-old building will help the school district pay for its demolition. A work is paying for most of the labor involved.

One or two more auctions are planned later as work progresses.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market headed lower early Wednesday amid investor hopes of a settlement of the 100-day-old coal strike and concern over Israel's attack on guerrilla bases in Lebanon. Trading was active. The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rallied to gain 2.80 points Tuesday, was off 4.76 points to 757.71 shortly before noon EST. Traders were encouraged by the United Mine Workers and operators jointly announced a tentative third contract agreement Tuesday and the apparently improved chances of the pact's approval by rank-and-file workers. But investors were disturbed by Israel's attack on guerrilla bases in Lebanon during the night and reports that Syrian forces reportedly had shot at Israeli warplanes. Syria reportedly has warned the United Nations to intervene. Also weighing on Wall Street was news of the dollar's weakening in West Germany after being higher earlier in the day. The dollar's woes have paralleled those of the stock market. G. William Miller, the new Federal Reserve Board chairman, said Wednesday that the U.S. economy moves more than the dollar's decline on foreign exchanges. Miller predicted "real" growth would slow this year. Market breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty over these developments. Of 1,602 issues circulating the New York Stock Exchange table, 566 declined, 497 advanced and 559 remained unchanged. NYSE volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 9,900,000 shares, compared with 10,000,000 traded during the corresponding period Tuesday. Hercules, which gained 3/4 Tuesday in heavy trading, was the most active NYSE issue.

CHICAGO — Traders reported Tuesday's local short feed on a feed report as bearish, but the report came after a day in which cattle futures were stronger. Commodity News Service said the government report showed the government's short feed on March 1, 10 per cent more than the same date a year ago. The report showed placements of 1.5 million head on feed in February, 11 per cent more than a year ago, and marketings of 1.56 million head in the month. An increase of 6 per cent over the same month in 1977. Live cattle closed strongly but mixed, from 27 points up to 10 points off, as late firmness in depressed prices caused heavy local short covering which pushed April to a contract high, October sold in anticipation of the cattle on feed report. Feeder cattle futures closed 22 points up to unchanged with exception of March which was 40 points off. The close was on or near the highs. Volume was 2,263 contracts. Live hogs lost 50 to 42 points in nearby and 10 points in middle months while the deferred were up 15 to 85 points. Weakness was attributed to profit taking ahead of the cattle on feed report. Pork bellies ended with 52 to 127 point losses in 1978 contracts as traders evaded up ahead of the cattle report. Maine potatoes made a sharp comeback from early losses, short covering resistance at the lows reversing the downward move which followed Monday's bearish spot stocks report. May fell to 4.28 per hundredweight, a cent over its contract low, before much as 5/2 cents basis December before closing half a cent down at 3.01. Other contracts were 1/2 cents higher to unchanged. Soybeans put on a wild finish, bouncing up and down before closing 4/2 cents higher to 9 cents off. Meal was higher to unchanged and 17 points higher.

HANSEN RESIDENTS DISCUSS IMPROVEMENTS THEY CAN MAKE IN THEIR CITY ... members of the recreation committee want a new park

Hansen area plans facelift

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

cooperative effort. Rathburn helped the loosely-knit group compile a list of problems—plugging community residents. Concerned citizens listed 67 gripes they had about the city of Hansen and later added four more for a total of 71. When residents had isolated a list of gripes, Rathburn helped them rate each problem according to urgency by rating each grievance on a zero to three scale. Poor communications within the community topped the list while potholes in city streets came second.

HANSEN — Like Rip Van Winkle the sleepy little town of Hansen is awakening to find things have changed while it slept. In the past five years, community leaders estimate, the population of the tiny farm community has nearly tripled. Two new housing developments have sprung up and the school district recently had to rezone to represent all the new people. With new people have come a myriad of problems—the residents have neglected over the years. Now, after a few yawns and stretches, people in the growing town are looking around, registering their complaints and taking action to give the town a facelift.

High priority is cleaning up junk on vacant lots in the city—and cleaning up vacant buildings. Residents even want to remove obscene words from buildings in town. Weed control, new sidewalks, water and sewer improvements, crosswalks, the dog ordinance, a senior citizen center, street lighting, house numbering and many other items large and small made the list. The biggest problem, Rathburn explains, was that people living in the community had stopped talking about their problems. Mills, coordinating the community effort, says the fast growth and building of new residential areas isolated new people from the center of town and everyone was "quite apathetic" about city concerns. "Everybody gripes, but nobody had any solutions," Mills says. "Then at the meetings, people that didn't know each other came and met their neighbors and sat and talked. They got all the gripes they had off their chests. "We formed all of our committees. They have some fantastic ideas," Mills says. "Our city beautification committee will check the junk ordinance and form a committee to go around and check the junk in the alleys and vacant lots. "If there is no Junk ordinance, they are, going to ask the city council to draft one," she continues. "We are going to do as much as we can for ourselves."

Mills says the group has formed six committees to address certain classes of problems in Hansen. The city services committee will be wrestling with the city maintenance to make it more responsive to the needs of the citizenry. Mills says the committee will work with the city council to appoint one person to head up the maintenance crew, check its progress and make it justify itself. The communications committee, according to Mills, has formed a group of people to call residents to inform them of community developments and important meetings to encourage community support and participation. The streets committee has a big job, according to Mills. "We only have two paved streets in town, Walnut and Main Street," Mills says. "We want to have every street in town paved. "It's a disaster," Charles Homan, chairman of the streets committee, says. "But don't get the wrong impression, this is a nice town." (Continued on p. 18)

Idaho tourist tax approved by Senate

By DAVE MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho's first tourist tax received a vote of approval from the Idaho Senate Tuesday, clearing the way for Ketchikan and Sun Valley to begin imposing liquor-by-the-drink and hotel-motel room taxes. By a vote of 31-4 the Senate passed and sent to the governor House Bill 373. That measure, brought to the legislature by Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, allows "resort cities" in counties with populations of less than 20,000 to institute liquor-by-the-drink and hotel-motel room taxes if 60 percent voter approval is obtained. Gov. John Evans has indicated he will sign the bill. The bill was carried in the Senate by Sen. Jack Bell, R-Rupert. Arguing the measure was designed to help resort cities that must provide services for large numbers of tourists, Bell said the population of Ketchikan swells from 3,000 to 12,000 during the ski season. "I don't know why we're unable to pay for the city services that tourists in the area need," Bell said. Support for the bill also came from Sen. C.C. "Cy" Chase, D-SI, Maries. "As long as these people want to do this by themselves and it's by a 60 percent vote, I can't see anything wrong with it," Chase said. H.B. 373 was also backed by Sen. Lytle Cobbs, R-Boise. Sun Valley and Ketchikan are competing for tourist dollars with resorts across the nation, Cobbs said. Vail and other resorts have already adopted similar taxes and used the proceeds to attract more tourists, Cobbs added.

The tourist taxes came under sharp attack from Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs. Budge acknowledged large tourist populations have brought numerous problems to Sun Valley and Ketchikan but he said tourists also bring in large amounts of revenue, Budge said. Budge also warned the resorts against raising their rates so high that some tourists are unable to afford staying at Sun Valley or Ketchikan. Prices at the resorts are now so high, Budge said, that "I can't afford to take my family there for skiing any more." Budge also argued that although the initial discussion of H.B. 373 focused on how much property tax relief would provide, the bill itself allowed revenues collected to be used for any purpose. "No matter what you call it, it's nothing more than a tax increase," Budge said.

Ambulance service halted

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Mercy Ambulance, in operation here only four months, has been shut down by the state licensing authority for ambulance operators because of lack of a two-way radio and a portable suction pump in the ambulance. John Ashley, state health officer for the Department of Health and Welfare, sent a letter March 10 after an inspection just prior to that date by two officials from a division of DHW, Emergency Medical Services. Cassia County Sheriff Ray Mitchell and Cassia Memorial Hospital Administrator Fred Schloss received a letter Monday notifying them of the decision. They said it stated Mercy Ambulance does not currently meet state ambulance minimum standards and "cannot qualify" for an ambulance license.

ambulance crew was out on a run. Murray said he was not even aware the state had ordered the firm to cease operating. He said he closed down his own accord last Thursday because "I didn't feel like we were providing as good a service as we could." Murray's two partners are Twin Falls residents Bob Bolton and John Hancey. Hancey refused to comment on the case. Bolton said he will reapply for a license when the radio arrives. He said he thought a foot-powered suction pump was on the ambulance when it was sent to Burley. Bolton said the radio was ordered in November and he hopes to get it this month. "It takes the state 10 to 11 months to get a radio and we were promised less time," he added. "We do plan to reopen in Burley." However, Murray said he had been told the radio was ordered last November, but a check of Miniver Radio Communications in Idaho Falls showed it had not been ordered. Mrs. Ingra Miniver, who said she was an owner of the Idaho Falls company, told the Times-News in a telephone interview today she never ordered the two-way radio after two letters she had sent to Mercy Ambulance went unanswered. She said the firm had ordered a used two-way radio in December but they were sent a low-band police radio to use until they acquired a new two-way unit. Mrs. Miniver said her firm wrote that it would not order a used radio because of possible problems arising if repair work were needed.

Farm Bureau votes

Plant site bill opposed

BLISS — Gooding County Farm Bureau members Monday night voted unanimously to oppose State Rep. Gordon Hollifield's amendment to the power siting bill that would authorize construction of a coal fired plant at Bliss. "We are appalled that one man feels he is a better judge of our energy policy than the Public Utilities Commission," said Graham Hooper, Bliss, county president. "We feel by his actions, Hollifield is precluding other viable sources of power such as the hydro potential within our canal systems, as well as low head dams," the Farm Bureau official said. He said the Gooding County unit is joined by Cassia and the Payette County farm bureaus in asking their state legislators to vote against Senate bill 1320 as amended. The siting bill, with Hollifield's amendment, is now in committee in the House. Two area canal company managers, Leon Grieve, of the Big Wood Canal Co., and Ted Diehl of the North Side Canal Co., both spoke at the Gooding Farm Bureau meeting at the Oxbow Cafe in Bliss. The men said there is enough hydro potential within the canal systems to provide current energy needs. A coal fired plant is not a "necessity at this time," Hooper said. The official said studies already are being made on the canal systems for the feasibility of built turbines in low head systems to be installed as they are needed.

Car goes into river

SHOSHONE — Two Richfield men escaped injury Tuesday when the car they were in plunged into the Little Wood River on the Grape Street bridge in the west part of Shoshone. According to Dean Larsen, Shoshone policeman, the water in the river is waist deep, but Boyd King, 34, Richfield, and a male companion, were able to get out of the car and go to a nearby house for help. The accident occurred about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. King had a bruised lip and his companion was uninjured, the officer said. King removed his vehicle from the river later Tuesday, according to the officer.

Jerome meet canceled

JEROME — Tuesday night's meeting to hear the final layout plan for the Jerome County Airport had to be canceled because of poor flying weather. The airport's design engineer, Mal Miner, was grounded. In his hometown, Corvallis, Ore., airport manager Marva Walters said. Mrs. Walters said she did not know whether a meeting for the public could be rescheduled because of lack of time. But Miner will meet with the airport board and county commissioners to present his final plan, depending on when he can travel.

Insurance queried

TWIN FALLS — Social Security officials in Twin Falls said today they have received reports of an insurance firm attempting to use the Social Security Administration as a connection in selling insurance policies. James Fritzley, district manager, Twin Falls, said his office has received several calls from elderly residents in this area saying they have been called and asked to make an appointment regarding insurance. "All of these people say they are told the insurance is in some way connected with their Social Security and they feel they are obligated to talk to the individual and maybe even to purchase the insurance," Fritzley said. Most of the calls, he said, are in the Twin Falls area but some have also been made in the Burley-Rupert area. Fritzley said anyone being called should contact his office, 733-6052. "If the individual makes an appointment we would like to be there to talk to the insurance representative. These sales are in no way connected with this agency. If the insurance representatives are using our agency to sell insurance, we will report it to the state insurance commissioner and have it stopped," the district manager said.

School board okays boundary changes

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school board Tuesday night approved school boundary changes that could mean 210 students will change schools next term. James D. Sawin, schools superintendent, said the moves were necessary to equalize enrollments throughout the district. Under the plan, 50 to 75 students will move from O'Leary Junior High to Robert Stuart Junior High, 77 students will move from Sawtooth Elementary to Morningside Elementary, 30 students will move from Morningside to Bickel and 30 students will move from Harrison Elementary to Lincoln Elementary. The students selected for the move from O'Leary live in an area bordered by Washington Street North, Addison Avenue, Harrison Street, Monroe Street, Filer Avenue and a line extending west from Stadium Boulevard. Beginning next term, the area will be within the Stuart boundaries. The 77 students moving from Sawtooth to Morningside will come from an area east of Eastland Drive and south of Stadium.

The 30 students moving from Morningside to Bickel will come from an area bounded by Kimberly Road, the alley between Fifth and Sixth avenues east, Locust Street and the alley between Walnut and Elm streets. The 30 Harrison students who will change to Lincoln live north of Addison Avenue South and southwest of Rock Creek. The schools superintendent estimated the moves would total enrollments at about 900 students at O'Leary, 600 at Stuart, 500 at Bickel and 700 at each of the other elementary schools (Morningside, Lincoln and Sawtooth). How close the district comes to these projected figures will depend on how many families move from one school's area to another during the summer, he said. During its 2 1/2-hour meeting, the school board also agreed to ask district voters for permission to levy a tax to raise funds for building maintenance. The board will seek permission to levy a two-mill annual tax on property in the district for 10 years. Such a tax would raise $94,000 a year, Sawin said.

He said the money would be used for two purposes: bringing Bickel and Lincoln schools up to state building standards and maintaining the district's $20 million worth of buildings. The school board will hold an election on the same day May 16. The election will be held the same day voters cast ballots on two school trustee positions. In other action, the school board: Received a report on a recent survey of roughly 1,350 students, 170 staff members and 90 parents. In the needs assessment study, officials reported those surveyed feel there are "no glaring discrepancies" in the school district's education program but think more emphasis should be placed on reading, writing, spelling, mathematics and study skills. Approved roughly $3,340 in unexpected construction bills which have arisen at the junior high school currently being built in the eastern part of town.

Daredevil says jump site lease will be signed soon

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Canadian daredevil Ken Carter says leases may be signed by early next week for land he will need to use in his proposed jump of the Snake River Canyon in a rocket-powered Lincoln Continental. "I'm not at liberty to say when they will be, but it might be as early as Monday morning on signing the leases," Carter said Tuesday. The daredevil said he then will present an outline to the Twin Falls County commissioners of his plans for a summer or fall jump as promised when he met with them Feb. 17. To assure the commissioners the jump will not attract a crowd in violation of the county ordinance limiting crowds to 500 persons, Carter agreed to keep the jump date secret. Carter said he is planning for a jump from a site west of Twin Falls across a 1,700-foot portion of the canyon, taking off from Jerome County and landing in Twin Falls County. The landing area will be covered with 10,000 bales of straw, which Carter said he also is negotiating to use. He said he chose traveling north to south because of the danger in hitting high tension wires on the Jerome County side. When Evel Knievel made his unsuccessful motorcycle jump in 1974, he tried to go in the opposite direction. Carter has had to search for a new jump site since landowner Tim Qualls withdrew his offer Feb. 15 for Carter to use the Knievel jump site, northeast of Twin Falls. Carter also announced an escape artist will then open his final news conference before the jump attempt. Carter said that rather than simply showing off his jump site to the press, Steve Baker, originally from Nampa and now a Los Angeles area resident, will attempt to set a world record by escaping from a straitjacket while hanging from his heels beneath a helicopter hovering 1,500 feet above the river. The record for such an attempt is 1,400 feet. (Continued on p. 18)

Finalists compete

SIX Americans and one German are finalists in the men's division of the fourth annual Cuervo National Paraski Championships under way in Sun Valley. The seven men will compete for the accuracy parachuting title in a jumpoff today.

Buhl rents airport space to Reeder

BUHL. — A lease agreement was approved Tuesday night by the Buhl City Council for operation of Reeder Spraying Inc. planes from the Buhl city airport.

Although the council approved the firm's leasing of a small parcel of land just northeast of the runway, no fee was set. pending recommendations from the city airport committee on new lease fees for all hangar space and other facilities.

John Reeder, of Reeder Flying Service and Reeder Spraying Inc., said his firm operates from the Buhl airport during the spraying season but has never had an office or an area where spray materials could be housed and handled.

"We do a lot of spraying in that area and we would like to be able to land our planes, load them and leave one plane at the field," Reeder said.

He said because of regulations for handling chemicals the firm wants to lease an area where a chain link fence can be constructed to protect the material, equipment and the public.

Reeder spray planes are based in Twin Falls but also operate out of the Jerome, Gooding and Hazelton fields during the spray season and have landing strips, mostly on Bureau of Land Management ground in the Bell Rapids, Balanced Rock and other new farm development areas.

Some remote roads are also used for landing and reloading the planes, he said. "It's moving into the Buhl field area for parking during the road ways and may wish to expand in the future. At this time we are not planning to build hangars."

Buhl city officials said any new leases at the airport must conform with the master plan which has just been completed for future development of the field. Council member Jerry Hawkins said the site selected by Reeder fits into this plan.

Reeder said the firm's 1978 spending is just about on schedule, but warned the heavy expense months are just coming up and the council may have to tighten the purse strings a bit on such major items as streets, water and sanitation.

The council discussed with Wilson the methods of handling accounting for the new $63,000 city warehouse which is scheduled for completion next month. It is being built with revenue sharing funds, but will require the present and new federal grants to cover all of the costs. The city will borrow money from the Idaho First National Bank in Buhl at six percent interest and repay it over the next several years.

Wilson said the contractor has agreed to complete the project when it is completed by the contractor, Ullman Construction Co., but will allow the bank ownership during the repayment period, operating on a lease basis with the bank. The council extended the deadline for completion of the warehouse to April 15 because of weather and other factors. The contractor has faced during construction. Council members also approved plans for installing gasoline pumps in the new warehouse with keys for each city department in order to determine how much gasoline is used by each department and what the annual budgets will need in the future. Council members said they will be able to keep a closer watch on gasoline use through the new method.

Daredevil's jumping plans take shape

Carter said the conference won't be held the same day as the jump, thus he does not fear Baker's stunt will create problems in getting his jump plan approved.

Carter said he invited Baker because he is a personal friend and because he will appear at a "show prior" to Carter's proposed jump over the St. Lawrence River, which is due to follow the Snake River attempt. He said Baker will perform a walk-for-money, but for the media exposure.

Baker said he will have 60 seconds in which to escape before an explosive charge between his foot rigging and his safety line explodes and drops him to the bottom of the canyon. He said he has to escape from the jacket and reach up and place a pin in the unit to keep it from exploding.

Carter's jump will not come off until after he tests the $150,000 rocket car with the fiberglass body. The car will be checked out in speed runs over the Bonneville Salt Flats about the first week in June, he said, depending on the condition of the salt flats.

The Canadian said he will introduce himself to Twin Falls County at a show April 15 at Thunderbolt Raceway by making a ramp-to-ramp jump over 18 parked cars.

Mine strike impact felt in many ways

BASIL ARBAUGH WATCHES DAUGHTER KATHY, WIFE OPAL PLAY WITH FAMILY POODLE ... disability, death, hardship, prosperity family's legacy from coal mining

REV. JOHN YOUNG LEAVES LIBERTY METHODIST CHURCH ... I'm having the time of my life ...

'Chaw' price up at store

(Editor's Note: How are coal miners' families coping as the United Mine Workers strike moves into its fourth month? To gauge the impact, UPI West Senior Editor Gay Paulley back to her native West Virginia to talk with individual families. This is the first of her reports.)

CANNELTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Basil Arbaugh, 61, leases his wife, Opal — "the only thing she notices about our bills is that the price of my chewing tobacco has gone up."

That it has, said the coal miner who told me this report should have the dateline Bullpunch instead of Cannelton, "because that's what everybody around here calls it."

"I got the nickname because at one time men pushed the mine carts or used mules. That was before motorization. I don't know where the bull part came in."

Arbaugh, disabled like many old-time miners, likes his "chaw" of tobacco — Mail Pouch, which now costs him $4.99 per 12-pack, when just a few months back it was $4.55.

"The older miners chew, the younger ones use snuff," he said.

Smoking is a dirty word in the coal mines where one spark could spark a disaster.

The Arbaughs were talking about inflation in general and how the coal mine strike, now in its fourth month, affected them in particular in matters of money and changed living standards.

They invited me into the scrupulously neat home, formerly company-owned but now theirs. Their younger daughter, Kathy, a junior at West Virginia Tech in nearby Montgomery, took me around also to visit with other families in a mine village squeezed among the hills about an hour's drive southeast of Charleston, the state capital.

"If you were to set out to find a typical mining family, the Arbaughs would fit the pattern like pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. Mining has been their life for at least four generations.

It has brought disability and death, hardship

MINER JOE COMER ... 'black lung' victim and prosperity, and now the patience game as they ride out another of the coal industry's trouble times.

Arbaugh's poor health forced him to retire from Cannelton Industries in 1970 under a total disability ruling. He had the traditional miner's disease, "Black Lung," from years in inhalation of coal dust and silica, he said.

When the contract between the operators and the UMW expired in December, Arbaugh's pension of $225 a month stopped. Whether he gets it back depends on the new contract, he said.

Meanwhile, the family continues to draw state workmen's compensation, Social Security and is eligible for Medicare. "Anyone who has been qualified as disabled for two years becomes eligible," said Mrs. Arbaugh. "Basil has had pneumonia twice this winter."

Mrs. Arbaugh, a handsome, hospitable woman of 59, figured the family currently has about $700 a month in income.

Then there are the food stamps and, "I watch the advertised specials and clip all those price-reduced coupons," she said.

For the times, the white poodle which was a gift, dines on table scraps except for an occasional commercial treat.

"If necessary," she said, "I will go back to work. Other times, I've had jobs as a licensed practical nurse, worked in the cafeteria of a nearby five and ten, as an aide at Montgomery Hospital. I'm a jack of all trades."

For the times, the Arbaughs manage, although payment of daughter Kathy's tuition at West Virginia Tech (she plans to be a teacher) pressed them.

The family owns two cars — one acquired so that Kathy could live at home and drive to classes.

They have paid off the mortgage on their five-room, two-bath house, which was built by the coal company in 1910, but which they since have re-done with wood paneling for the living room and modern kitchen equipment. Numbers of other homes in the once "coal camp" also have been purchased and remodeled.

"I've live in this house for 50 years," Mrs. Arbaugh said. "My mother and father had it first — and children were born here. I wouldn't want to leave."

"My grandfather was a miner. My father died of silicosis — the hospital said he had pneumonia. He was only 50. He worked all his life in the mines."

"I had a brother killed in 1916 ... he got caught between two motors. He was 75."

"My husband had four brothers in the mines. Of her, four children, two sons and two daughters, only one son follows the family tradition. Ronald, 37, the eldest, also works for Cannelton Industries. "We're getting along so far," he said, "and we're not depressed."

"But we do sit around a lot watching soap operas.

"New clothes for spring? My wife, Louann, and I haven't even talked about that yet. She doesn't work. We do have the problem of car payments ... I'm just keeping up the interest."

"The children are keeping in school." Ronald's children are 12, 9, and 8, among the seven grandchildren of the elder Arbaughs.

Kathy — helped — lead — a demonstration — in downtown Charleston the other day when Tech students — "marched for miners." The group chanted slogans, sang songs and carried signs bearing such unabashed statements as "Take that contract and shove it."

"Well, I'm a miner's daughter," said the slim brunette.

The scene now shifts from the Arbaughs' home to Penryn's six-acre, centered in a string of small communities which make up the population working mostly at Cannelton Industries or for mines of All Chemical. On a busy afternoon, the carts are well laden.

"We find the volume is holding," said Eric Bozo, manager of store 15 in the market chain.

"If food stamps stop, we'll find a great deal of eating."

"If I spent as much as $63 a week before the strike, I'm spending half of that now," said Mrs. Corbet May. The May family, of Boomer, has three children aged 18, 16, and 7. The 18-year-old daughter is a student at West Virginia University, Morgantown.

May is a trucker with an outside job at a coal cleaning plant and his $38 or so per day stopped with the strike call.

"My salary is just about half of his," said Mrs. May, a pretty brunette who teaches in the Gaudy, Bridge elementary school system. She holds a master's degree from the West Virginia Graduate Center.

"We aren't doing a lot of the things we might otherwise be at," she said. "We don't do the entertaining. We're not buying any clothing. It's the peak of our high school basketball season playoffs, but we don't always go to the games."

"Well, I'm paying my bills," said Mrs. Erma Williams, 65, widow of a miner who had an arm cut off by a boom. He died in 1968 from emphysema, she said. Their son, Donald, is a miner. Social Security is her main income.

Mrs. James Angel, 21, was unloading a basket in the checkout line "for just the three of us husband, me and our dog."

But it turned out her husband is on disability pay because of a slipped disc — blamed on his mining job.

"The compensation is slow and low," said the pretty blonde. She supplements the family income by clerking at a pharmacy in Glasgow.

Joe Comer, 54, a bachelor who lives in Cannelton, worked in the mines, stopped and went to work as a short order cook in a restaurant, then went back to the mines "because there's more money in it."

"The son of a miner, he lives in a former company house which he got for $6,500, but then I put $4,000 or $3,000 more into improving it."

Comer lost a finger in a mine accident and said his doctors tell him he has black lung — "anybody in the mines has it," he said.

"No matter how much they water down, you still get dust. Sometimes it's like walking through a bag of sawdust."

But the lung disease doesn't halt his smoking — "I've been at it for 40 years," he said.

As a bachelor with a nephew and his wife who occasionally drop in, Comer figures he can last out the strike if necessary until next Christmas.

"I haven't stopped eating my T-Hones. No way."

Talk with Carter might be helpful

CINCO, W. Va. (UPI) — The Rev. John Young, a Methodist minister and a coal miner, wants to talk with Jimmy Carter, a Baptist and the president.

Young says that he and other Christians involved in the lingering mine strike want to obey the law — in this case, the Taft-Hartley law the president invoked to order striking miners back to their jobs.

"I believe the president would understand," Young said. "The Scriptures teach us repeatedly to obey the law of the land. But how can I obey the law when at the same time I'd be risking my life, perhaps the lives of my family. We do want to be good citizens."

"If I tried to go back to work and there was a picket line, why I could walk out the front door of this church and be picked off. There are lots of high-powered rifles in these hills."

Young's Liberty Methodist Church — "a real country church" — is located at almost the head of Campbell's Creek, W. Va., once a heavily mined area and still home for the dozens of mining families who yet work in the Kanawha Valley area.

Young, 49, has been a miner since 1947 and comes from a family of miners. He and his wife, Barbara, 46, part-time cook at an elementary school, have four children — a daughter, 28, working as a secretary; a son, 22, who is studying computer management at West Virginia Tech, Montgomery; a 19-year-old daughter, also a secretary; and a 14-year-old son in school.

Young said he had misgivings about the outcome of the strike. "I'd like to go back to work. We all would. But it's always been a rule in the mines, no contract, no work."

"Our family isn't in need, although our bank account is going down. We need four cars. But if I don't make it, I don't spend it."

"I'm having the time of my life ... eating, singing, preaching. The Lord said he will take care of us and I believe."

He thought a minute about the cost of living: "I can load $85 worth of groceries into the Volkswagen today. Once upon a time I'd have needed a pickup truck."

"The strike has been hard on all of us. But I have all I want. I have God."

Remote isle of peace in coal's sea of woe

HEAD OF GRASSY, Ky. (UPI) — Grandpa Thurston Stamper plays his dulcimer.

His old dog, Blackie, the horse and the mule meander down toward Grassy Creek, swollen by melting snow here in the hills called Appalachia by lowland folk, but the Knobs of Kentucky by the people of the hollows.

Six miles south, on U.S. Highway 64 between Charleston, W. Va., and Lexington, Ky., non-union coal trucks ignore the speed limit because they do not ignore the feelings of striking coal miners. This tri-state banishing of West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky is the land of coal.

Head of Grassy is an island of peace in coal's current sea of woe.

"Coal is not us," said Paul Stamper, 34, putting on his indoor shoes because his muddy outdoor boots would spoil his wife's quilted carpets.

"Time was, in the last century, when the young men would come out of the hollows — hollows is Knobs of Kentucky talk for valleys — and go for coal mining."

"They didn't have inspectors and those other safety measures in their days and very few of the young men ever came home to the hollows. Cave-ins, accidents buried them far from home.

"In the Knobs there's a saying: 'Don't go to work in the deep mines, or nothing good will happen to you'."

Across the farmyard, in his house, Grandpa Stamper made his sweet dulcimer tones, seated next to the fat stove in the parlor. "We burn wood. Lots of oak and all that hickory here. No real need for coal." The 77-year-old man said. "God and family keep us warm, along with that chopped wood."

His wife, Mrs. Ethel Grace Stamper, 72, laughed. She's a lowland woman, grew up in Mason County and walked up into the mountains at 19 to teach school around the bend at Ruckson and "stayed longer than I planned. Married Thurston."

"Coal is one of those things foreign to Head of Grassy," she said.

"Her husband said 'some 20th century works have made it out the creek. 'Moonshining has about died out, but I was out picking herbs and found a strange plant flowering in the ditch. Came home, checked my plant book and found it was marjanna," he said.

On the wall, above the sofa where Grandmother Stamper sat, hung a 200-year old deer rifle used by her husband's grandfather. She nodded toward the creek.

Western water supplies bypassed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The second phase of President Carter's energy program will boost energy production without adversely affecting western water supplies, Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary said today.

O'Leary testified at a hearing by a subcommittee of the Senate Energy Committee, which is looking at water availability for energy supplies of the future.

Some water demand information is still hard to assess, O'Leary said, as the president plans

Phase 2 of his energy program. The first phase, still struggling through Congress, emphasized conservation and incentives for reducing demand.

"We are not going to propose anything that does violence to the water regime of the West," O'Leary said.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., asked when Carter's Phase 2 will be announced. O'Leary said the full plan will not be known until early next year, but he said it will keep in mind the enormous supplies of water that would be needed for some fuels such as oil from western shale.

"We do not know with precision the demand side of the equation," O'Leary said, but he added, "There are no overwhelming constraints arising from water supplies. Nationally, clearly, we will be able to find our way through in finding these really not overwhelming volumes of water we will need."

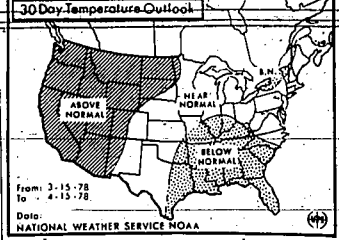

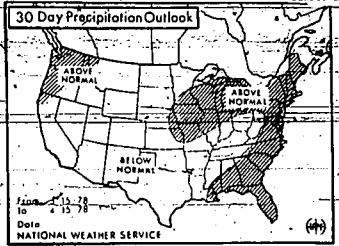

He said much information is still missing and the Department of Energy hopes to complete a great deal of research on water supply and demand.

Domenici said: "Give our states some idea of the burden that is to be imposed on their water resources."

O'Leary said the plan will not suggest how many water-using power plants could be supported by a given state, but rather that states "will be able to see what share of the burden is available to them."

Utilities will take the initiative in planning and the state "will be the principal player" in the permit process, O'Leary said.

Towers trouble

READING poster at Bonneville Power Administration substation near The Dalles, Ore., is Howard Turk, Litchfield, Minn. He was among a group which examined an intertie line and to visit with farmers living and working under the lines. After his visit, Turk said he sees no health hazard from the lines but thinks the towers are a problem.

Custer County committee upset by wild horse herd

CHALLIS, Idaho (UPI) — The Custer County Resource and Economic Stabilization Committee is upset about the wild horse situation in the Challis Planning Unit of the Salmon District of the Bureau of Land Management and have expressed themselves in no uncertain terms to Idaho's two senators.

The wild horse herd in the Challis Planning Unit has grown to more than 700 and "something will have to give," according to the newly-established committee.

"There is need for immediate control in order to avoid longlasting injury to the soil and grass resources," the committee said in a letter to Idaho senators James McClure and Frank Church. "The present overstocking of wild horses is creating a situation very detrimental to the long-range wild horse programs."

The committee was appointed by the Custer County Commission. Members include Allen Getty, chairman; Clayton Hurless, vice chairman; Raymond Bursted, secretary; Lawrence Bradbury, John Rovetto, Tom Chivers, Will Ingram, Jim Bennetts, Andy Anderson and Jim Hawkins.

The object of the committee is to work more closely in planning of federal and state projects.

The report of the committee on the wild horses said the size of the Challis herd has increased almost five-fold since 1971, when the herd was estimated at 150 head.

The committee said there is only enough winter range to support about 300 head of horses.

"Let us point out that removal of cattle has absolutely nothing to do with the problem," the committee added. "The limitation is one of available winter range."

The committee criticized the Adopt-a-Horse program of the BLM that is designed to deal with the problem. The committee charges the program is incapable of placing the many thousands of excess horses on various BLM lands in the West and is too costly as well.

"Wild horses penned for long periods of time awaiting adoption by persons uneducated in the character of wild horses is most inhumane," the committee added.

The committee also maintained in the letter that there is an increasing conflict between the wild horses and other wild game in the area.

"They pointed out that Idaho Fish and Game Department studies show only 11 fawns per hundred antelope in the wild horse area in 1976 and only nine per hundred in 1977.

"Right across the road (U.S. Highway 83) on similar terrain except for the absence of wild horses, the counts ran approximately 50-55 fawns per hundred," the letter said.

The committee asked that a limitation be enforced on the expansion of horses beyond the 1971 estimates.

"At present the wild horse has no economic value. IF WE JUSTIFY ITS EXISTENCE ON AESTHETIC VALUES ALONE THEN IT FOLLOWS THAT THEIR NUMBERS AND TERRITORY MUST BE LIMITED. Once they become so widespread that they become nuisances and pests, they will have no value at all aesthetically or otherwise," the committee argued.

"To counter those who may become faint hearted at the thought of utilization of the red meat rotein value of a wild horse, please apply logic. We do have people in this country in dire need of food — especially protein," the letter added.

Finally the group asked for more access to and more participation in the material that makes up the Challis environmental impact statement as well as other state and federal projects.

"We feel that by the time the plans are completed as they have been in the past that we have not been able to collect and interpret sufficient data to have any impact on the final proposed plans," the committee concluded.

Cyanide neutralized

MURPHY, Idaho (UPI) — A truck accident near Jordan Valley Friday afternoon sped-lethal cyanide pellets on the ground, but none was hurt and all of the cyanide was either recovered or neutralized — according to the Owyhee County sheriff.

The truck, driven by Duane Biederman, 27, Reno, was hauling 44,000 pounds of cyanide pellets to the Delamar Mine near Silver City for use in the milling process at the mine.

Sheriff Tim Nütten said Biederman became "boxed in and the truck's trailer shipped out the road and pulled the tractor over an embankment." The trailer burst open after it rolled over and about a dozen of the 200-barrel of cyanide broke open, scattering the pellets about.

The sheriff said the accident occurred near a small stream on Elmt. Creek Road about seven miles southeast of Jordan Valley; but that the cyanide was neutralized with chlorine before it reached the water. He added that the barrels of cyanide, including what had spilled on the ground, were removed from the accident scene Friday, Saturday and Sunday and transported to the mine.

Japan trade unit sets Boise meet

BOISE (UPI) — A Japanese trade mission interested in purchasing American farm products will meet in Boise Thursday with agricultural representatives, Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, announced Monday.

The delegation will meet with representatives of the Idaho Farm Bureau, Western Idaho Potato Growers, Idaho Potato Growers, representatives from Symms' Boise office and other interested individuals.

Symms said Japan intends to import 10,000 tons more beef this year than last, due to increased beef import quotas. "They also hope to increase other agricultural imports," he said.

The delegation will be accompanied by Jim Nader of the U.S. Department of Commerce. The Boise meeting was arranged by Symms and the Western Idaho Potato Growers, in cooperation with Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

Symms said individuals interested in attending the noon meeting should contact his Boise office for further information.

Farmers plan meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Washington state farmers were scheduled to meet with another farmer Monday, President Jimmy Carter.

William Zagelow, Odessa, president of the Washington Wheat Growers and Jack Felgenhauer, Spokane, secretary-elect of the National Association of Wheat Growers were among a group of 18 farm leaders scheduled to meet with the president. The group was to present the president with a list of requests including higher wheat prices.

The national association has adopted resolutions supporting a wheat target price of about $4 per bushel and a loan rate of about $3 per bushel. The target price is about $1 per bushel lower than what the American Agriculture Movement considers parity.

Position outlined

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — The American Agriculture Movement is not seeking reductions in cattle numbers despite continuing declines resulting from depressed prices, a Lemhi County spokesman said.

Paul Chapman, Leader, told the Salmon Chamber of Commerce the cattle industry produced $6 million dollars in business last year for Lemhi County ranchers.

The Salmon Chamber of Commerce went on record after his remarks supporting the achievement of 100 percent of parity for farm products and controls on foreign beef imports. Chapman said if parity had been reached in 1977 Lemhi County cattle producers would have received $8.16 million dollars.

Implement sales lag

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Farm implement dealers report that depressed commodity prices and the farm strike are hurting their business.

"Some dealers said farmers just can't afford to buy equipment this year," Carl Arnold, owner of Nampa International, said that although this is a bad year last year was worse "with low prices and the drought scare."

Arnold estimated that his sales are up about 10 percent from last year.

But International Harvester reported its sales for the first quarter of fiscal year 1977-78 were down 17.5 percent.

State open

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — Nominations will be solicited in coming weeks for the newly-formed district grazing advisory board in the Salmon area.

The Salmon District Bureau of Land Management said today it has received a signed charter for the board.

The BLM Organic Act authorized the establishment of the grazing advisory board on the request of a simple majority of the grazing permit holders.

Nominations will be accepted from each of the three resource areas in the district which includes Challis, Mackay, Palismer and Lemhi.

Farmers head east to push new board

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — About 100 striking Utah and Idaho farmers left this morning for Washington, D. C., to lobby for a bill which would establish a farm board to set prices that would guarantee a profit for producers.

"Our efforts will be focused primarily on urban senators and congressmen," letting them know what we expect out of a farm bill," said spokesman Randy Marble, Bouthwell, Utah.

Evon Koller, Cornish, Utah, admitted passage of the bill would bring an immediate three percent increase in consumer food prices but said a recent Harris survey showed the public is willing to pay up to five percent more for food if the increase went directly to the farmer.

Planting delayed

BOISE (UPI) — Record rains have delayed some farmers' chances of getting out in the fields to plant crops.

But Richard Max, with the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said the weather "from here on out" will be the determining factor in the timing of planting.

Max said today he predicted slight delays in planting small grains, spring wheat, barley and oats.

Sugar beets might also be delayed for a few days if the weather does not clear, he said.

The Agriculture Department had estimated the bill would mean a 15 or 20 percent food price hike. Opponents of the bill, which is co-sponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said not all the three percent increase would go directly to farmers, that middlemen, labor and transportation would all get a cut.

Another farm bill being considered, the Talmadge-Dole bill, would take a different tack, setting aside 31 million acres of farmland and paying the farmers an average of about $75 per acre to not grow wheat, soy beans, feed grains and cotton.

Europeans thrash U.S. indoor track team

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Franklin Jacobs of Paterson, N.J., captured the men's high jump Tuesday but the Europeans generally humiliated the United States at the first U.S. European indoor track and field meet.

In 21 men's and women's events, the 17-nation European team won 16 competitions for 141 points while the American all-star squad took only five for 80 points.

With a crowd of 11,000 in Milan's Sports Palace screaming him on, the 20-year-old Jacobs cleared the bar at 7 feet 5 inches to win his event.

Jacobs, who until Sunday night held the world best at 7'7 1/2", in the indoor event, made three false starts at 7'7 1/2".

At the European indoor championships Sunday, Vladimir Yashchenko of the Soviet Union smashed the world best and surpassed even his own outdoor world record by passing the bar at 7'8 1/2". Soviet officials would not allow the exhausted Yashchenko to compete against the U.S. team, but the 19-year-old Russian made a surprise appearance to wish the Italians "arrivederci."

"I have all next season to take the record away from Yashchenko and I'm in no hurry," said Jacobs. "Tonight just wasn't the right night."

Jacobs, who says high jumping is like flying over the moon, has his sights set on other goals.

"I really only high jump so that later I'll be able to jump higher in life — I'm majoring in business management, and this is a good way to get people to notice you and recognize your name."

Somewhat less stoical about his victory was 23-year-old Herman Frazier of Philadelphia who was slipped into the men's 400-meter race at the last minute when Benny Brown pulled out.

"I did it, I won," shouted Frazier, who was clocked in 46.48 seconds.

Vesko Bradley of Fort Lewis, Wash., won the men's jump with a 25 feet, 8 inch leap — well ahead of second-place flinstler Ronald Desruelles of Belgium at 24'10 1/2".

In the men's shot put, All Feuerbach, a hefty 30-year-old from Los Gatos, Calif., earned five points for the United States with a 66-10 1/2 foot toss. His teammate, Colin Anderson, failed to appear.

The Americans were impressive in the men's 400-meter relay. Thanks to Frazier they whipped the Europeans in 3 minutes 8.9 seconds to 3:09.5. However, the Europeans said the 400 meter relay is not a usual indoor event and it was included daily at the Americans' request.

Otherwise, the meet was a disaster for the Americans, who took only five second places. Stan Vinson finished second to Frazier in the 400-meter event and Sharyn Dabney of Philadelphia was runner-up to the Soviet Union's Marina Sidorova in the women's 400-meter. She was best — to Sidorova's 53.01.

The biggest upset of the night was by Sweden's Linder Haglund, who defeated indoor record holder Marlies Oelsner of East Germany in the women's 60-meter run.

Lyle reportedly confessed to cop

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Heavyweight boxer Ror Lyle confessed to a police detective that he fatally shot one of his former employees last New Year's Eve, according to testimony at the fighter's preliminary hearing.

Bolt's first and second-degree murder charges have been filed against Lyle for the fatal shooting of Vernon "Rip" Clark at the boxer's home.

Lt. David Dial of the Lakewood Police Department testified Monday he received Lyle's call about 6:20 p.m. Dec. 31 and asked the detective to come to Lyle's house.

Dial said he saw Clark's body on the living room floor of Lyle's house and said the boxer told him Lyle and Clark had had an argument about money.

Dial said he asked Lyle if Lyle had hit Clark.

"No, I shot him," the detective quoted Lyle as saying.

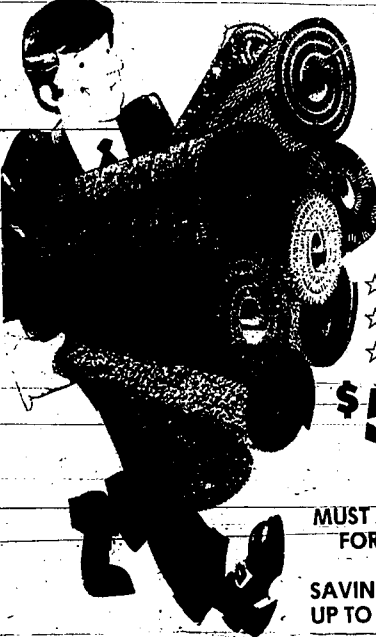

Lyle's younger brother, Phillip, testified Clark came to the home in the afternoon.

Ex-president hits NCAA for 'selective punishment'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former NCAA president told Congress Tuesday the collegiate sports governing body makes itself "look ridiculous" by selectively punishing universities for petty offenses.

John Fuzak, who headed the National Collegiate Athletic Association in 1975 and 1976, said his habit of selective enforcement and sanctions for minor offenses "creates a good deal of resentment on the part of member institutions and makes the NCAA look ridiculous."

Fuzak and Miley Holmes, commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference, told a House Commerce oversight subcommittee that many colleges resent — but are reluctant to complain — alleged NCAA violations of the individual rights in enforcing its rules.

Holmes said NCAA officials were "exceptionally defensive" when he proposed a study committee to reform the enforcement procedures, and accused the association's television committee of circumventing the wishes of a majority of big schools "by using potential television revenue as bait."

The subcommittee has been investigating complaints about "unfair" actions by the NCAA in its enforcement committee.

Holmes described himself as "a voice in the wilderness" for reform of the rules and the NCAA's very structure, which he said has built to "autocratic dimensions" the executive director's office now filled by Walter Byers.

"I've been very concerned, quite frustrated, with the NCAA enforcement process, particularly — the lack of protection of individual rights," Holmes said.

Fuzak said "an overwhelming majority of the membership seem satisfied with the present investigative and infractions procedures," mainly because most schools never have been charged with offenses.

But members of infractions committees, he went on, "have little idea of the feeling of unfairness held by many institutional representatives appearing before them."

Fuzak, now a dean of the college of education at Michigan State University, said a sense of resentment exists among many institutional representatives who have gone through the experience although most hide their feelings because they feel it would be unwise to do otherwise.

Fuzak and Holmes dwelled on unfair procedures in determining an athlete's loss of eligibility for rules violations.

"Once a charge is made and proved to the satisfaction of the NCAA investigators," Fuzak said, "the infractions committee has already declared the student-athlete ineligible, yet it forces the institution to take the action under pain of additional penalty."

He suggested the infractions committee should have its own staff, not relying on the NCAA staff, and hold hearings from the start with direct power to penalize an athlete.

The time and expense involvement would mean prosecution of only significant violations in which the athlete or school knowingly or willfully broke rules, he said.

Fuzak, who said he was reluctant to testify until asked, also criticized the fact the NCAA expects a school to disprove fully its own violations but does not provide the alleged wrongdoer with evidence that led to the charge.

Defending champion breezes to first JC tournament win

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Defending champion Independence (Kan.) Tuesday humbled Faulkner State (Ala.) 101-64 in opening round play to move into the NJCAA quarterfinals.

In the final game, Palm Beach (Fla.) met Niagara (N.Y.).

Lobby by freshman forward Bobby Potts with a game-high 25 points, the Independence Pirates turned a close first-half game into a second-half rout. In the final four minutes, Independence outscored the Alabama team 26-1.

The victory boosted the Pirates' record to 25-7.

Guard Thomas Loudon scored 15 points for the Pirates, while center Calvin Coleman chipped in with 14 and forward Leslie McLeod added 11.

Center Walter Myers was high for Faulkner State with 11 points and forward Joe Nantz followed with 15. The loss drops Faulkner State to 20-16 for the season.

Second-ranked Casper (Wyo.) fought off a tough rally in the second half to register a 61-51 win over Western Texas.

Casper jumped to a 28-14 halftime lead, but saw it diminish to 44-43 in the final eight minutes.

Then the Thunderbirds took control in the final minutes on accurate free throw shooting by Dan Bush and stiff shots by Kevin Brewer, who led Casper with 14 points.

Columbia State (Tenn.) advanced with a 72-60 victory over Mesa, Ariz.

Columbia's Chargers, paced by Ken Offutt with a game-high 22 points and James Dumes with 20, led 30-28 at halftime. The Chargers, now 27-5, scored the first five points of the second half and went on to lead by as many as 15 in the final 20 minutes.

Mesa, 21-10, was led by Stanley Smith with 14 points.

Danny Foster, a 6-5 forward, scored 30 points to spark Three Rivers to an 87-82 overtime victory over three-time champion Vincennes (Ind.) in an earlier game.

Also in double figures for Three Rivers were Otto Porter with 23 points and Sylvester James with 17. Keith Oglesby led Vincennes with 19.

Three Rivers, with a 28-10 record, moves into the tournament quarter-finals against Westark (Ark.). Vincennes dropped to the consolation bracket with a 27-6 record.

In earlier action, Westark defeated Baltimore (Md.) 47-40, pulling away in the closing minutes.

Guard Elton White led Westark with 14 points.

Forward Leroy Loggins of Baltimore captured game scoring honors with 18.

The victory boosted Westark's victory to 26-8 and Baltimore is now 30-3.

Elliott to join new Card staff

MIAMI (UPI) — University of Miami Athletic Director Pete Elliott resigned Tuesday to become an assistant coach on the staff of the St. Louis Cardinals new head man, Bud Wilkinson.

"I've decided to join my great personal friends and outstanding coach, Bud Wilkinson, as a coach with the St. Louis football Cardinals," Elliott said in a prepared announcement.

"It will be a new opportunity and challenge in football which I am enthusiastically looking forward to meeting," said the former head coach at Miami, Illinois and California.

The 51-year-old former Michigan quarterback came to the University of Miami in 1972 as associate athletic director and became head football coach in 1973.

Park questioned

SENATE INVESTIGATORS took over the interrogation of South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park who will appear before the Senate Ethics Committee.

Senate committee begins interrogation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators took their first crack at indicted rice dealer Tongsun Park Tuesday and sources said a House subcommittee will soon disclose documents showing Park had "a working relationship" with South Korean Intelligence.

Following a similar effort by a House panel, the Senate Ethics Committee began its own closed door interrogation in an effort to determine how much money Park may have given senators and whether any payments were intended to buy influence for Korea.

Investigators said "a large number of senators" had already supplied them material related to the Park questioning, but they refused to elaborate.

Park is said to have told Justice Department prosecutors that senators got only a small fraction of the $750,000 he gave to about two dozen past and present members of Congress.

He described those payments as campaign contributions or compensation-for-help-in-consuming-the-business-deals-he-transacted as a Washington-based rice merchant in the 1970s. He denied charges the money was distributed as part of a Korean government-backed bribery scheme.

In the House, sources said the international relations subcommittee, also probing Korean lobbying practices, has obtained previously classified U.S. intelligence documents showing Park began helping Korea's Central Intelligence Agency about 10 years ago.

Kim to stand trial for influence buying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Korean-born businessman Hancho Kim becomes the first defendant to stand trial in the Capitol Hill influence-buying case Wednesday, facing charges he conspired to pass $600,000 to congressmen on behalf of the Korean government.

He has pleaded innocent to all charges. Kim's federal court trial opens following closed door congressional testimony by indicted rice dealer Tongsun Park, who has admitted under immunity from prosecution that he made $750,000 in payments to congressmen.

Park has denied he ever worked for the Korean Central Intelligence Agency and maintains the payments he made were private business or political contributions.

Park also maintains he never heard of Kim until he read about him in the newspapers.

But a defected KCIA agent told congressional investigators a check was drawn on Park's bank account to help fund Kim's separate influence-buying plan, known as "Operation White Snow."

Kim is charged with one count of conspiring to influence congressmen "to enact legislation for the benefit of the Republic of Korea" and one count of lying to a federal grand jury.

His attorney, David Povich, says he questions whether "any Korean can get a fair trial" after the widespread publicity given the congressional and Justice Department investigations of the alleged bribery schemes.

Prosecutors do not claim to have evidence Kim ever actually attempted to bribe members of Congress, but only that he received Korean government money as part of a conspiracy aimed at buying influence on Capitol Hill.

Sources say that if he did make any payoffs, the Justice Department has only one apparent way of getting him to admit it: to convict him and convert him to a government witness with an offer of leniency on his jail sentence.

The strongest evidence against Kim involves his association with at least two unidentified congressmen and one unidentified executive branch official.

The charges against Hancho Kim rest mainly on the testimony of defected KCIA agent Kim Sang Keun, who said the Washington-area businessman phoned him in August 1974 and told him they would be working together on a "very important mission" for Korea.

The agent said that, on KCIA instructions, he sent $600,000 in two bundles to Kim, including a $44,000 check drawn on Park's account.

Park says he was pressured into providing a blank check to Korean embassy officials and they filed in Kim's name.

Park is not expected to appear at Kim's, but is expected to testify in the later trial of former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., the only other defendant under indictment in the case.

Fiddler convention set

UNION GROVE, N.C. (UPI) — The Annual Old Time Fiddlers Convention, an event which began 54 years ago as a modest effort to raise money for a rural school, cranks up again next week with tens of thousands of fans expected to attend.

The event, the largest country music festival held in the country each year, will begin March 22 and end in the early hours of Easter Sunday when the champion fiddler and the best of the blue grass bands and instrumental players are picked.

Last year's event drew an estimated 130,000 people who spread out over 70 acres of pastures on J. Pierce VanVoy's farm to hear more than 200 bands and scores of individual players.

Last year's "World Champion Fiddler," Stuart, Va., postman Buddy Poydleton, is expected to return to seek a fifth title.

The convention has become a spring ritual for young blue grass fans along the East Coast. They camp in VanVoy's fields, enjoying the music, campfires and often-times drugs. While drugs, particularly marijuana, are used openly, police have regularly described the massive crowds as well-behaved. Drug and drunkenness arrests usually do not exceed 100 or 150 for the duration of the event.

VanVoy will open the gates to his farm off Interstate 77 Wednesday, though the competition will not begin until the following night.

"We'll sell tickets as long as we have room," he said. "It's been so lousy this winter, I think everybody's due for a break."

Hafer, Davis married

SALT LAKE CITY — Genea Hafer and Roger Davis exchanged wedding vows Feb. 16 in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.R. "Bud" Hafer of Twin Falls. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Davis of Spanish Fork, Utah.

The bride wore a white gown of sheerganza and embroidered chantilly lace. The sheerganza pinafere bodice had a high neckline and lace mandarin collar and the sheerganza victorian sleeves had lace cuffs. The flared skirt of sheerganza featured double vertical bands of re-embroidered chantilly lace which went to the hemline edged in lace over double self-fabric ruffles.

The bride wore a veiled fingertip mantilla embellished with matching lace. The veil was made of imported english tulle and edged with matching lace trim. The bride carried a bouquet of blue carnations, white and yellow daisies, budding pink roses and baby's breath.

A wedding dinner at Hotel Utah was held after the ceremony. An open house honored the couple Feb. 24 at the bride's parents' home in Twin Falls.

Another open house will be held for the couple in Spanish Fork at the bridegroom's parents' home.

Pre-nuptial showers were given by relatives and friends.

The couple will reside in Orem, Utah, where the bridegroom is a student at Brigham Young University.

end the week will be held at the YMCA starting at 5 p.m. Refreshments will also be served.

A well-known established group, Camp Fire, in keeping with today's modern changes, has added pants to the regulation uniform. Girls are now allowed to wear jeans with their uniform of a white blouse, red tie and blue smock.

Theme for 1978 is "The New Day," and in keeping with this theme, girls in the club will have several environmental days in which they work to keep things clean.

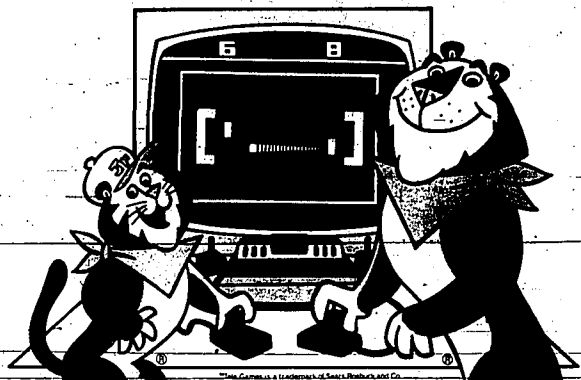

Anyone interested in joining Camp Fire may contact a Camp Fire Girl or the principal of any school. Dues are paid on an annual basis and most of the groups charge minimal weekly dues.

Patrons subdue robbers

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Why not hold up the Y-Not Pub? Two bandits found out why not.

Two men wearing ski masks tried to rob bartender Pearl O'Connor at gunpoint Sunday night. But by the time police arrived, bar patrons had the situation — and bandits — well in hand.

"This guy standing next to the gunman whacked him in the side of the head and the melee began," Mrs. O'Connor, 54, recalled.

"They took the gun away from him and held the two men on the floor until police arrived."

When police got there they took off the suspects' masks. Robert Duffy, 27, suffered facial cuts. Donald Bolaman, 24, had a broken nose. Both were charged with armed robbery and weapons violations.

Man helped wife in suicide

LONDON (UPI) — A London journalist who described on television and in a forthcoming book how he helped his terminally ill wife commit suicide faces possible prosecution.

Police Monday referred the case of Sunday Times journalist Derek Humphry, 47, to the director of public prosecutions who must decide whether to charge him with aiding a suicide.

"If the director decides to prosecute, I shall plead guilty and ask for the mercy of the court," Humphry told reporters Monday. "I have made this confession in an attempt to change the law on mercy killing."

Humphry's book, "John's Way" describes his wife's losing battle with cancer and tells how she made him promise to help her die when she felt she could no longer go on living.

On television Sunday night, Humphry told how one morning in March 1975 the couple decided the time had come. At 1 p.m. he gave his wife a lethal mixture of sleeping pills and painkillers in a cup of coffee.

"We said goodbye to each other and kissed each other for the last time and she just drank it. About 30 minutes later, she died," he said.

Police in Wiltshire, where Mrs. Humphry died, have asked for a copy of the television script and have been invited to see a tape of the show.

A police spokesman said "preliminary inquiries" have been made into the case. He said police were not aware of the circumstances of Mrs. Humphry's death before the television program and recent articles on the book.

Humphry was aided in writing his book by his present wife, Ann, a 35-year-old American he met six months after Jean died, when both were doing research at the British Museum.

"He told me about his wife and how she died about the second time we met," Ann told a reporter on Monday. "Ann told a reporter on Monday. "There was no secret.... He explained the two years she had lived knowing she was dying and the way the cancer and pain spread and how she wanted to die at home, not in a hospital out of her mind," she said.

"I thought it was a wonderful story and thought he should write about it," she said. She said Humphry had a great deal of difficulty writing the book and that finally they conducted "interview sessions" with Ann asking Humphry questions and Humphry "unleashing his thoughts."

"Derek cried a lot during our interviews and so did I, but we carried on — it was a purge for both of us," she said.

Curare poisoning case

Doc testifies in peer's trial

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — A part owner of Riverdale Hospital, suspicious about increased deaths at the facility, says he entered a locker used by Dr. Mario E. Jascalevich and found vials of the muscle relaxant curare.

Dr. Allen Lans testified Monday in the murder trial of Jascalevich, accused of killing five hospital patients with overdoses of curare more than 10 years ago.

His testimony was the first since the trial began Feb. 27 that linked Jascalevich to the drug, which was once used by South American Indians to poison arrowheads.

"I saw many vials of curare," Lans told a hushed courtroom while Jascalevich scribbled notes at the defense table.

"Some of them were full. Some were empty. Some had a little bit of fluid," he said of his search on Oct. 31, 1966.

The five victims died in 1963 and 1966 after routine surgery.

Lans' testimony came over strenuous objections from attorney Raymond Brown, who is defending Jascalevich, 50, of Englewood Cliffs, N.J.

Lans said he returned with the hospital board of directors, reopened the locker and took photos. "There was wild disarray within the locker. It was in a mess," Lans said.

Copies of the photos, blown up, and a vial of curare allegedly taken from the locker by Lans were submitted as evidence.

Lans testified he went to the locker after Dr. Stanley Harris, another surgeon, appeared at Lans' office "shaken and upset" after opening the locker. Lans said Harris gave him the combination.

The doctor said he felt compelled to go to the locker because he believed the rash of deaths at the hospital was not normal.

"My opinion was that in fact these patients... had been tampered with, in fact they had been murdered. My opinion also was that Dr. Jascalevich was responsible for these deaths," Lans said.

The remark was stricken from the record by Judge William Arnold, who said it was up to the jury to decide who was score on the board.

Rosenkranz discovered the only play that would set the contract two tricks. He led the 13th club. Declarer had no counter. If he ruffed in dummy, East would over-ruff, and South would have to win with the ace of trump. This would establish an extra trump trick in East's hand, allowing the defense to score three trump tricks, setting the contract two tricks.

Of course, if declarer does not ruff in dummy, the result is the same. West's enlightened lead of the 13th club did indeed earn his partnership a top score.

North's two-heart bid was a Jacoby Transfer, forcing South to bid two spades. This bid has the advantage of allowing the strong hand to be concealed during the play.

Dr. George Rosenkranz, Mexico's greatest player, was sitting West. Rosenkranz, like all champions, possesses a killer instinct. At a bridge table, he is completely devoid of mercy. Which is why he is Mexico's greatest player.

This hand was played at a national championship in Chicago. With the opening club lead there is no chance for declarer to make two spades. He must lose three club tricks, a diamond and two spades.

Most defenders would be satisfied with this rather cut-and-dried result. Not Rosenkranz.

East won the opening club lead with the jack when declarer played low from dummy. East returned a heart, won by declarer in dummy with the queen. Declarer returned the singleton 10 of diamonds and West topped the king with his ace.

West (Rosenkranz) led the queen of clubs which was covered by the king and won by East's ace. East returned a club that Rosenkranz won with the 10.

Palm Sunday concert set at CSI

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Symphony and the Magic Valley Choral will present a combined concert Palm Sunday, March 19, at 3 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Under the direction of Patrick Woliver, the concert will feature the "Lord Nelson Mass" by Joseph Haydn by the choral, and orchestra. Each group also will present separate selections.

Two quartets will sing solo parts during the mass. The Haydn work is the third of six famous masses composed from 1792 to 1802. There is a strain of heroism and nobility underlying the music, Woliver said, which is the most forceful feature of the piece.

It is believed that portions of this piece were inspired by Nelson's victory at Aboukir. Nelson is depicted as victor and liberator from French imperialism as reflected in the "Benedictus" number. The Mass was performed two years later in the presence of the famed naval leader, which tends to confirm the theory, Woliver said.

The symphony also will perform the "Romeo and Juliet Overture" by Tchaikovsky. The overture premiered in Moscow in March, 1870. It was then completely rewritten the following summer and further revisions were made in the second edition completed in 1881.

Woliver said the piece is especially challenging to a string section of the orchestra, requiring technical as well as musical ability.

Classes set

TWIN FALLS — Diet, exercise, personality, hair care and style, fashion and wardrobe, makeup and skin care, conversation, hands and etiquette will be discussed at the Image of Loveliness Self-Improvement classes to begin March 27 and 28. The class is for women and girls of all ages. For further information call Carol Brockway 81-733-1808.

Concert soloists

Shamrock plans annual celebration

SHAMROCK, Texas (UPI) — They say those parades, beauty contests and dances are in memory of St. Patrick. That's what they say.

But in the absence of a discernible Irish community, the real reason for the annual celebration honoring Ireland's patron saint is a chance for everybody to cut-up-like-a-bunch-of-cowhands on Saturday night.

"It's just a chance for people to come back and visit. It's quite a celebration," said Gary Gandy, chairman of this year's event.

Among the traditional activities in this West Texas town with the name reminiscent of Ireland include a donkey shenanigan (a beard judging contest), selection of a colleen (an Irish beauty queen), parades and tangos.

A man without a beard becomes as wanted as the fugitives whose pictures once decorated sheriffs' offices. The only thing that protects the clean shaven desperado is a permit that lets him walk the streets without being tossed in the pokey, according to the town's St. Patrick's Day (tongue in cheek) law.

The celebration has gone on successfully for 31 years, even in the presence of laws banning the rog flowing so freely at St. Patrick's Day parties elsewhere on the Christian map.

"Every good Irishman has a jug under the coat," said Gandy.

How many good Irishmen live in Shamrock? "Oh, quite a few," he said, not meaning it.

The celebration dates from 1938 when

Glenn Truax, a high school band director, decided to take advantage of the community's name. Except for a few World War II and Korean War years, the shenanigans have been going on ever since.

How the town came by its moniker goes back to the 1890s, according to local legend. Then the town was called Exum, but a homesick postmaster named George Nickle changed it to Shamrock in memory of Old Sod.

But on the High Plains of the Texas Panhandle, the ways of the American West are bound to intrude at the Saturday night western-style dance.

"Most everybody here likes country and western," Gandy said.

ERA ratification rescinded

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — To the cheers of Equal Rights Amendment opponents, the state Senate voted 23-15 Monday to rescind Kentucky's 1972 ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment.

The resolution to rescind ERA ratification now goes to the state House of Representatives. Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall, a staunch supporter of the ERA who presided over the Senate, predicted the resolution will pass, but said she will try to convince House members to defeat it.

"As long as I'm alive, I still have some hope," she said. A lengthy procedural battle prompted six separate votes before the anti-ERA resolution was added to another measure as an amendment and finally passed by the Senate.

The Senate gallery, crowded with women displaying anti-ERA buttons, at times burst into applause as the measure slowly progressed through the six votes until it was finally approved.

Thirty-five states have ratified the ERA and three more are needed for it to become law.

Abby

Teen alcoholics stamp OK on TV show

Mother needs help

DEAR ABBY: What can be done for a 72-year-old woman with a drinking problem? That woman is my mother, and it breaks my heart to see her destroying herself. It all began several years ago when Dad retired and they started spending their winters in Arizona. Why would a loving, respected grandmother turn to alcohol when she hardly ever drank before?

Dad is strictly a one-drink-before-dinner man. I finally got the courage to speak to mother about it, and she said she could quit anytime, but I know she can't. She drinks alone and thinks no one knows it. I can't force my mother to go to a doctor, and I can't accuse my father of lying when he says she is "better." How can I help her, Abby?

HEARTBROKEN DAUGHTER

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: No one can overcome alcoholism unless he admits that he is powerless against drink. That is the first step in the Alcoholics Anonymous program. Your mother could possibly be helped by joining their group. Try writing a try.

It is a sad fact of life that no one can be helped who will not help himself. Another fine program I highly recommend is Women For Sobriety, Inc., P.O. Box 618, Quakertown, Pa. 18951. When writing, please enclose a stamped, long, self-addressed envelope since this is a non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Adam for two years, and I always thought his family liked me. Adam's brother is getting married next Sunday and Adam will be an usher in the wedding party. I am very upset because I wasn't invited to the wedding. Who does the inviting anyway? Please answer soon as this has left me sleepless.

HURT

DEAR HURT: The bride and her family "does" the inviting. But the groom and his family are also allowed to invite a certain number of guests.

If Adam had requested it, you probably would have been invited. But it's possible that they had to limit the number of guests, or maybe the ushers were asked to "escort" the bridesmaids, so Adam had a "duty" date. Ask him.

DEAR ABBY: If I don't get this off my chest, I'll burst. We have two sons. There are none better. Both are married and have lovely families.

When we go to their homes, it hurts when we don't see even one photograph of Dad and me in sight. We've gone to the trouble and expense of having our pictures taken at a good studio. We've even had them enlarged and framed, but apparently they are stored away in some closet.

Our home is filled with pictures of our sons, their wives and children. Am I wrong to feel hurt?

HIDDEN PICTURES

DEAR HIDDEN: No. Apparently your sons and their wives are not aware of your feelings. No harm in being honest. Mention it.

How to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Leaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

Ransom proved out in Chaplin snatch

CORSIER, Switzerland (UPI) — Charlie Chaplin's family and police investigators today all but ruled out a ransom bid as the motive behind the bizarre theft of the actor's remains two weeks ago.

"We have heard absolutely nothing from those responsible," a family spokesman said.

"Nobody really knows what was behind the dreadful theft but it doesn't look like an attempt to get a ransom," he said.

Police said they also have received no "serious" messages although there have been several crank telephone calls and letters.

When Chaplin's grave was opened March 2 and the coffin and body stolen, police and the family thought there would be a ransom demand.

Oona Chaplin, who was married to the actor for 34 years and who inherited the fortune estimated at more than $25 million, said she would never consider paying ransom.

"Charlie would have thought it ridiculous," she said. Family friends and police said privately that the coffin may have been stolen by admirers who wanted to bury the remains in England. Chaplin had said he wanted to be interred in England, but Mrs. Chaplin decided on a burial in this tiny village overlooking Lake Geneva — where they had lived since 1952 — on legal advice.

It is privately theorized that the grave robbers may have opened the coffin and removed the actor's body for easier smuggling from Switzerland to England, then burned the plain oak coffin.

Low-cost air fares in effect March 18

LONDON (UPI) — New low-cost air fares between London and eight major U.S. cities will take effect March 18 following the withdrawal of British government opposition, airline officials said Tuesday.

New stand-by and budget fares will be sold between London and Boston, Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles and San Francisco as well as New York. Cheap fares to New York have been available since September. Stand-by fares to New York forced British Airways, Pan American and TWA to introduce competitive prices. But the British government had opposed extending the cheaper fares to other U.S. cities.

The British position was challenged by President Carter's "open skies" policy which encouraged low fares for the benefit of the traveler.

The disagreement came to a head March 1 when Braniff was refused permission to start its service between Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas, and London. The British government would not accept Braniff's proposed low fare and the high fare was not acceptable to the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board.

But airline officials said today that British government negotiators had withdrawn their objections to extending the cheap fares to other U.S. cities.

Examples of the proposed fares are Boston-London $148, Washington-London $182, Philadelphia or Chicago-London $151, Detroit-London $189, Los Angeles or San Francisco-London $227 and Dallas-Fort Worth-London approximately $180.

Fares in the opposite direction will be about $20 less because of the disparity between the dollar and the pound. All fares will be about $20 higher in the peak summer months.

The prices cover two kinds of ticket — stand-by and budget.

Even a stand-by fare the passenger can only buy the ticket on the day of the flight and only when space is available.

The budget fare must be booked three weeks before the date of departure and the passenger can only specify the week of travel. The airline tells the passenger the specific day of the week he can fly on any day.

British Airways had asked the British government to oppose the low fares because the airline believed more time was needed to evaluate them, a British Airways spokesman said.

U.S. airlines believe the low fares will generate new business and not undercut existing business.

Even lower fares are possible on some routes. British Columbian and Laker Thursday will challenge each other for the "spare" British airline route from London to Los Angeles, to be allotted by the British government.

Laker is bidding to extend his Skytrain service to the West Coast while British Columbian has countered with a $158 stand-by fare.

Judge pays fare

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Weisberg was lucky he had a sympathetic and generous judge when he appeared in a District Court recently on a traffic violation.

Weisberg of Salinas, Calif., pleaded innocent to a charge of driving 70 mph in a 55-mph zone and then asked Judge John Marro: "Can you lend me 60 cents?" He explained to the judge that he needed the money to catch a bus back to Salinas.

LISA HOKE

JEANIE KULIK

Staters picked

FILER — Lisa Hoke and Jeanie Kulik have been chosen as Girls State delegates to represent Filer High School at the state convention in June. Karla Ranft was named alternate delegate.

Miss Hoke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoke, has served in school organizations as cheerleader, drill team member, member of the Honor Society, Laurel class president and F club secretary. She serves on the youth conference for Brigham Young University and has participated in volleyball, basketball, and track.

Miss Hoke plans to attend college after graduation, majoring in counseling.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kulik, Miss Kulik is a member of the Honor Society in school. She has been an active participant in the March of Dimes campaign, is secretary of the Cautious Youth Organization in Buhl and participated in the American Legion oratorical contest in 1977.

Miss Kulik plans to major in business after graduation.

The delegates were selected by the Filer American Legion Auxiliary following a tea held for all girls in competition for the state delegate title. Each gave a talk on the quotation "Ask not what your country can do for you, but ask what you can do for your country" and also gave an impromptu speech.
