Improper plant operation could be costly for city

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Every day the poor performance of the Twin Falls waste water treatment plant continues may cost the city $10,000, an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) attorney said Thursday.

At that rate, the plant's failure to meet EPA pollution standards during February alone could cost the city $210,000.

Every day plant discharges fail to meet EPA standards, $10,000 may be added to the amount of fines the federal government is seeking from the city for its violations of those standards, according to Brent Gilhausen, an attorney for the EPA's enforcement division in Seattle.

The federal government suit filed against the city in 1976 for violations of EPA regulations seeks $10,000 a day in fines for those violations. By December, 1977, the amount of fines sought against the city was already at least $500,000.

For February alone, at least $210,000 could be added to the fines sought in the suit, because out of 21 days for which reports were made exceeded the oxygen demand standard all 21 days and exceeded the suspended solid standard 15 days, plant performance reports show.

Gilhausen said as the violations continue, the amount of the fines sought in the suit adds up.

"Any violations subsequent to the filing of the complaint that we discover and have evidence of will be alleged at a trial," Gilhausen said.

Gilhausen also said the government constrains the EPA regulations as a "strict liability statute," meaning, "When there's a discharge, that constitutes a violation." Gilhausen explained that this means "under the civil action filed by the government against the city, we don't have to show intent to violate the regulations." The only burden of proof on the government is to show that the violations occurred, Gilhausen clarified further.

Gilhausen said the city could mitigate its responsibility for the violations by showing it was somehow not responsible for those violations.

In an attempt to show exactly that, the city earlier this month filed a cross-claim against all the major designers and equipment suppliers for the sewage plant.

By filing a cross-claim, the city is asserting that it is not the city's fault the plant has not met EPA standards, and if fines are to be assessed for the violations; the designers and equipment suppliers, not the city, should be responsible for those fines.

The city filed its cross-claim on the basis of information compiled by new sewage plant superintendent Don Snelling which Snelling says indicates some of the equipment at the plant may not have been designed correctly.

Last Friday the council toured the plant at the invitation of Snelling, who explained to the council both the design problems of the plant and the problems experienced at

Main Panama pact now before Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Confident despite the narrow approval of the neutrality treaty, Senate leaders today scheduled debate on the main Panama Canal pact in hopes of rallying it by mid-April.

By a vote of 68 to 32, the Senate Thursday ratified the first of two controversial canal treaties and handed President Carter a substantial and bitterly fought diplomatic and political victory. (Related stories, page 7.)

Meanwhile, Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos warned his nation would accept no changes in the treaties which would mean "occupation in perpetuity disguised as morality."

In an exchange of letters dated March 15 and released by the Panamanian Embassy shortly after the Senate vote, Torrijos said his government would "carefully study" any reservations written in by the Senate.

Carter had told him to expect the Senate to attach a number of reservations to the treaty and said, "we have made every effort and have been successful to date in ensuring that these will be consistent with the general purposes of our two countries as parties to the treaty."

"I hope you will examine them in this light," Carter wrote.

The Senate voted down scores of amendments to the first treaty, and approved two which Torrijos earlier said would be acceptable. But he had not responded to "reservations" strengthened ing the U.S. defense and security rights, including use of military force if the canal is ever shut down, for whatever reason.

Those sweeteners were added in recent days to help convince fence-straddling senators to throw their lot in with the administration and make up the 67 votes — two-thirds — necessary for ratification.

The canal issue is volatile, and senators up for reelection this fall can count on facing well-financed challenges from anti-treaty conservatives.

Members of the American Conservative Union announced Thursday, in fact, they would launch a $250,000 anti-treaty campaign during the Easter recess.

The two amendments which Torrijos agreed to and were passed by the Senate,

Valley airport measures wing to governor's desk

By DAVID MORRIS
Times-News writer

BOISE — Two bills which would make it financially possible to construct a Magic Valley regional airport flew through the Senate Wednesday, and were sent to Gov. John Evans.

Monday Evans was in Twin Falls, where he said a need existed for a regional airport. Such a facility, the governor said, would attract additional business to the Magic Valley.

House Bill 476 passed by a vote of 28-7. It increases the amount of general obligation bonded indebtedness which can be issued by regional airport authorities. The maximum would increase, under H.B. 476, from two to three percent of the aggregate assessed valuation of property within counties in the authority.

House Bill 477, a companion piece of legislation, passed by a vote of 23-12. This measure increases from one to two and a half mills the assessed valuation on taxable property which can be levied by an authority in counties within its authority.

Both bills were carried in the Senate by Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell, who told legislators the measures were the end result of 10 years of work. It was 10 years ago, Bradshaw said, that the legislature provided for the creation of airport authorities in Idaho. Since that date, Bradshaw said, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Mindoka and Cassia counties have formed the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority, H.B. 476 and 477 are enabling legislation which make it possible to begin construction of the airport, Bradshaw added.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, also supported the two bills. Barker noted he had backed the idea of a regional airport since it was first suggested. If either Twin Falls or Blaine counties join the authority, Barker said, these bills provide a means to pay for the structure. "If either one or both do not come in it isn't economically feasible to put in that master airport," Barker said.

While H.B. 476 drew little opposition, H.B. 477 was criticized as an unnecessary tax increase. "We came in here knowing property taxes were the big problem," said Sen. Pro Tem Phil Ball, R-Willard.

"This is a pretty sizeable tax increase."

But Bradshaw reminded Senators "we are not voting for the airport here, we are just giving the enabling legislation to make the airport possible if people want it and vote for it." Bradshaw said no bonds would be sold unless approval was given by two-thirds of the voters in a special election.

There are six Magic Valley legislators in the Senate. Five supported H.B. 476 and 477. These legislators were Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl; Sen. Jack Bell, D-Rupert; Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell; Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls; and Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley. Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Clennas Ferry, opposed both H.B. 476 and 477.

Passage of measures delight supporters

MAGIC VALLEY — "Whoopie!!!"

The reaction by Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority lawyer Pete Snow sums up feelings expressed today by two backers of two SIRAAs — bills to finance regional airports which were passed by the Senate Wednesday.

The two measures now go to Gov. John Evans for signing. They allow general obligation bonds to be issued equal to three percent of the assessed valuation of counties in a regional airport authority, instead of two percent, and to increase regional airport authority mill levies from 1.10 2/3 mills.

Steve Leroy, the governor's press secretary, said today the legislation has not reached the governor's desk and he had not indicated what he will do. However, Leroy noted Evans has stated he favors the people's opportunity to accept or reject the proposals.

Evans has 10 days after the legislature adjourns in which to sign the bills into law.

"The board (of trustees) is extremely satisfied that the legislature saw fit to enact the proposed legislation which SIRAAs had submitted," Snow said, "which will now put them in a position to submit to the people the question of whether or not a regional airport should be constructed." Snow said the trustees are responsible for printing and circulating petitions in the five SIRAAs counties and Twin Falls and Blaine counties, asking if they want those two counties to join the authority. SIRAAs is proposing a $32 million regional airport in Jerome County, southeast of the interchange of U.S. 20 and Interstate 80-N.

Five percent of register electors in each county must sign the petitions to get the question on the fall general election ballot.

Snow said if either Twin Falls or Blaine counties opt to join SIRAAs, he believes the board would seek a election to ask for general obligation bonds to be issued to cover the $6 million local share of the $19 million cost of the first phase of the regional airport. That phase would build an operational airport.

John Harker, president of Elkhorn, called the passage "a progressive step for the Legislature. I think it's progress for the whole area. I think the real work can start now."

Harker said he will spend a lot of time studying the "nuts and bolts issues of the regional airport in terms of location, economic impact..." in order to see just what role he will play in the balloting effort.

The other backers of the legislation, Wally Huffman, general manager of the Sun Valley Company, and College of Southern Idaho President Dr. James Taylor, could not be reached for comment this morning.

Irish roots crop up all around

By United Press International

It's the miracle of St. Patrick's Day that every year people whose family trees never had so much as a lateral root in the "Wild West" suddenly wake up indisputably Irish.

And when it comes to today's celebration of the event, every Irishman has his own style: Armadillo races and country-western music in Dublin and Shamrock, Texas, a green river in Chicago, political protest in Los Angeles and Savannah, Ga. and green beer just about everywhere.

It's not known if St. Patrick did any tippling when he drove the snakes out of Ireland back in the 5th Century A.D., but dedicated celebrants of his day have a traditional penchant for free-flowing grog.

Dallas liquor distributor Bob Peehon said sales of Irish whiskey are up, as are sales of Heineken beer, which comes in a green bottle. But he worried a bit about all the green-dyed brew in demand at taverns.

"The trouble with green beer is that you have to sell it all on St. Patrick's Day, because on Saturday, it's not worth a damn," he said.

In Shamrock, Texas — where the name alone is motive for a party — Gary Gandy summed it up.

"Every good Irishman has a jug under the coat," he said.

Gandy is chairman of this year's fiesta in Shamrock, but he said the hoodlum, not the jug, dominates the day here.

"Most everybody here likes country and western," he said.

President Carter and the first lady were going home to go Irish — celebrating the day in Savannah, Ga., at separate events that may raise feminist hackles. The President will attend a banquet at the Hibernian Society, while Mrs. Carter goes to another event staged by the Hibernian wives.

"We'd love to have her," said Hibernian officer P.J. Buttiner, "but it's traditional that no females attend."

The NAACP already is up in arms over the presidential visit, protesting his address at the all-white, mostly Irish Catholic Hibernian Society.

In Los Angeles, a group called Friends of Ireland was to demonstrate at the British consulate, in protest of British troops in Northern Ireland. In Washington, a group of Irish-American politicians, headed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., used the occasion to condemn Belfast violence as a human rights violation by Britain.

But for the most part, St. Patrick's Day was being celebrated for reasons cited by John Sullivan of Cambridge, Mass.

"Sure there's no real reason at all," he said, "except that it's great fun."

Parades will proliferate, with the biggest expected in New York, Chicago and Savannah — Ga. — Boston's — was canceled because the streets still are clogged with snow.

Chicagoans — turning out 70,000 strong for their city's parade down a green-striped State Street — maintained the tradition of dyeing the Chicago River green — a tradition matched with the San Antonio River in Texas.

For San Antonio's Shamrock Society, the big event of the day was a wreath-laying at the Alamo in honor of Irishmen who died there in the famed 1836 battle.

Nine states boast towns named Dublin; but only in Dublin, Texas, apparently do residents take their Irishing seriously.

Texas Dubliners celebrate the day with an armadillo race, an Irish stew cookoff and entertainment from a western band, but other Dubliners are contemptuous of the whole brouhaha.

Elsie Heppas, municipal treasurer of Dublin, Va., said no parades, jigs or green beer were in the offing, and L.L. Trinkle, 89, said there shouldn't be.

"The first settlers were Lutheran German and Scottish Presbyterian," he said of his town. "Those old people were too busy making a living to celebrate much — and they had something to celebrate. It certainly would have been St. Patrick's Day."

In Dublin, Ohio, Village Administrator Sherm Sheldon wasn't wearing green either.

"We never have really gotten into St. Patrick's Day," he said. "The biggest thing around here will be the dance at the country club, and this is the first year we've had that."

BROKEN IN HALF, GIANT TANKER RESTS ON BRITANNY REEF
Amoco Cadiz spills thousands of gallons of oil in fishing grounds

Oil pollutes French coast

BREST, France (UPI) — The 220,000-ton American supertanker Amoco Cadiz broke in two on sharp reefs during a storm today, oozing thousands of gallons of oil that polluted miles of scenic beach off the Brittany coast.

French navy helicopters rescued 42 of the 64 crewmen from the stricken Liberian registered tanker during the night. The last two men aboard, the master and mate, were rescued at dawn. Nobody was hurt.

French authorities dispatched boats loaded with chalk and detergents to the scene three miles off Cape Finistère in an effort to contain the spreading oil slick. But sharp reefs prevented the vessels from approaching the tanker itself.

The Amoco Cadiz, owned by the Chicago-based Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was on lease to the Shell International Petroleum Co. of London, which is not connected to Shell Oil of Houston. It was enroute from the Middle East to Rotterdam.

Ships tow movable booms across the mouth of the Aber-Benoit estuary in an effort to protect the oyster beds there.

The Amoco Cadiz broke immediately forward of its rear superstructure. Oil was spewing from the engine room and from one of the cargo compartments.

But until the tanker could be pulled away from the mouth of the estuary, there was a danger that other compartments would rupture in turn.

The tanker, of Panamanian registry, stopped dead Thursday afternoon with engine trouble off the island of Ouessant. The tug Pacific was sent to tow it into port.

But the lowlines parted in wind and high seas.

The storm died down after midday today but the reefs hampered efforts to get another line aboard the tanker and pull it away.

The oil slick lapped the coast over a width of 3 miles. The odor of the leaking oil was noticeable as far as 35 miles away.

Hardest-hit were the 2,000 people of the little white-washed village of Porsil, 18 miles northwest of Brest, who make their living from fishing and tourism.

Most of the population of the town mobilized with buckets and shovels to scoop up what oil they could.

"The summer is finished for us," one villager said as he gazed out over sand dunes blackened with oil to the reefs beyond where the great tanker heaved helplessly.

Soviet military blackmail brings warning by Carter

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — President Carter today warned the Soviet Union against using its military might for "political blackmail" and said America is prepared to spend more on its own arsenal if necessary.

In a brief news item, although no formal defense statement, the president also told the Soviet Union its stepped-up military activities may erode "popular support" in the United States for joint ventures by the two nations.

The president made his address at Wake Forest University before hearing a nuclear aircraft carrier for a demonstration cruise off the Georgia coast, where he will spend the weekend.

Carter pointed to the Russian arms buildup and an "ominous inclination on the part of the Soviet Union to use its military power" to intervene in Africa and other crisis spots.

To protect the nation and maintain peace, he said, "We shall have to continue to support strong and efficient military forces — we will not allow any other nation to gain military superiority over us."

Besides greater strategic arms, he said the Russians also have built up "massive" non-nuclear forces which "could be used for political blackmail and could threaten our vital interests" unless the United States and its allies maintain their own conventional military strength.

North Carolina is a major tobacco growing state and Carter was greeted in Winston-Salem by cheers and signs chiding HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano.

The placards, aimed at Califano's anti-smoking campaign, read "Legitimate Tobacco" and "Peanuts to Califano."

Carter said if the Russians "failed to demonstrate restraint in missile programs and other force levels and in the projection of Soviet or proxy forces into other lands, the relations with the United States would degenerate."

"Then, popular support in the United States for such cooperation will erode," the president told about 2,000 persons in his Wake Forest speech.

A top-level government official, who is serving as the president from Washington, said Carter was concerned with "growing pattern of Soviet intrusion" and its "growing... capacity to intervene in local conflicts."

Lebanon battles continue

By United Press International

Palestinian guerrillas said today they struck back at Israeli forces occupying southern Lebanon and Jordan, an attempted sea invasion near Tyre.

Residents near Tyre said Israeli commandos killed 20 civilians, including 10 children.

Israel said resistance to its invasion had all but collapsed in a 6-mile-deep defense corridor and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said he would consider a U.S. proposal to withdraw in favor of a U.N. peace-keeping force.

The Palestinian news agency Wafa in Beirut said guerrillas launched several counterattacks as Israeli forces occupying a tenth of Lebanon's territory, hitting supply routes and troops exposed, despite massive Israeli bombing and shelling raids.

"Our forces counterattacked and hit the enemy's rear positions and supply routes, killing more than 20 soldiers and damaging three armored vehicles," Wafa said.

The Palestinians said they foiled an attempt by Israeli soldiers to storm the beaches near the biblical port of Tyre. They gave no details of the encounter.

But local inhabitants in Tyre said an Israeli commando squad staged a lightning raid north of the city, landing by sea near the Aadloun area, and shot two carloads of civilian refugees, killing at least 20 people.

UPI correspondent Ned Temko said he saw the first car — a taxi — filled with 13 corpses, including at least 10 children. He said the residents told him the bodies of seven people had been removed from a second vehicle.

The car was riddled with bullet holes and appeared to have been hit on the driver's side by an explosive charge, possibly a grenade, apparently coming from the defense strip along the border.

There was no immediate reaction in Israel to the charge. But the Israelis said guerrilla resistance to their offensive was at a "bare minimum" and called off air strikes in the defense strip along the border.

Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman toured the occupied Christian village of Marjayoun, Lebanon, and said his government would consider a U.S. proposal for a U.N. peace-keeping force to "replace Israeli troops in southern Lebanon."

"As for the U.N. force, anything that can give a solution, we shall look into," Weizman told reporters. He stood on a hilltop overlooking former Palestinian strongholds that were overrun by the Israelis.

"The U.N. has a role to play everywhere," Weizman said. He cited the U.N. peace-keeping forces between the Israeli and Egyptian armies in the Sinai desert as an example of a force that worked.

"Everyone that can bring back a normal state to Lebanon is welcome," he said.

The United States called on Israel Thursday to withdraw its forces from southern Lebanon and linked its statement to the need for a security arrangement that would prevent Israel from further Palestinian terrorist attacks.

"The point of the operation is not to be in south Lebanon, not to stay in south Lebanon, not to capture or to conquer or anything like that," Weizman said.

In Tel Aviv, a military source said the thousands of resupplied Israelis were mopping up scattered guerrilla holdouts along the 64-mile front in their third day of war against terrorists in southern Lebanon.

"There is very little fighting, just house to house," the source said. "Resistance is at a very bare, bare minimum."

The source said Israeli troops have not advanced beyond the six-mile limit set by Weizman and have been careful not to encounter Syrian forces stationed above the Litani River, about seven miles to the north.

But warplanes Thursday knocked out the Litani's Arkia Bridge.

Moro kidnappers sought

ROME (UPI) — Thousands of policemen, armed with composite pictures of two suspects, scoured Italy today for the terrorist kidnappers of elder statesman Aldo Moro. Italy's ruling party hinted a foreign power may have engineered the abduction.

Premier Giulio Andreotti met in emergency session today with cabinet ministers, police and intelligence chiefs to beef up the nation-wide hunt for the kidnappers, who claim to be members of the "extreme" left Red Brigades, Italy's foremost political terrorist gang.

A spate of phone-calls claiming to come from the kidnappers warned authorities not to try to rescue Moro. One warned that he would be executed unless Red Brigade comrades are freed from captivity in Turin, where 49 alleged members of the gang are on trial for kidnapping and terrorism.

Moro's ruling Christian Party hinted in its weekly magazine that the secret service of an unnamed power may have engineered the abduction of Moro, 61, to destroy Italian democracy.

"It is not rash to believe that something even more terrible is hiding behind the name of the Red Brigades—that there are the means, efficiency and goals of the secret service of a power that wants to lead Italy to an Argentine-type situation," said the Christian Democratic party's weekly magazine La Discussione.

"It was the latest of several hints over the past few years that top Christian Democrats believe foreign agents are behind Italy's political terror wave. None of them ever named the nation they suspected.

Moro's kidnappers gunned down his five bodyguards in a daring morning ambush Thursday. The action brought cries of "civil war" and demands for martial law from politicians.

Extension considered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson Jr. was faced today with deciding whether to extend his Taft-Hartley restraining order against striking coal miners — an order that has been largely ignored.

Robinson had set a hearing for today on a full 90-day "cooling off" injunction under the act, but changed his mind after meeting Thursday with attorneys for the government, United Mine Workers union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

Instead he was expected to approve a Justice Department request that the current order, which expires at 4 p.m. MST, be extended until March 28 while rank-and-file UMW members vote on a new agreement.

Both the union and industry supported that move, according to court sources.

The American Civil Liberties Union, however, opposed any extension or injunction.

More snow sweeps across Northeast

By United Press International

Not even the Irish could bluff the Winter of '78, which today covered budding green with large accumulations of white in the blizzard-battered Northeast for the third time.

A late winter storm bearing gale-force winds along the New England coast dumped 6 to 12 inches of snow over southern New England and dusted the dirty crusts left by past storms in New York and Boston with 3 inches.

"We've already had enough snow," said Sara Browning, a legislative secretary in Concord, N.H. "Just when I thought it was going to warm up, see what happens — snow."

Gale warnings were posted along the coast from Eastport, Maine to Watch Hill, R.I. The Coast Guard and private officials warned to empty a garage, loaded with 10.5 million gallons of gasoline, that grounded on a rock early Thursday.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect in southern New England, New Hampshire and western, Maine. By late Thursday, 2 inches had fallen on Providence, R.I., with another heavy dose expected today.

Ready to celebrate St. Patrick's Day and eager for spring's official debut next week, some Northeasterners fell into a blue funk because of the storm.

"I hate snow. It's extremely depressing," said Mary Pilkington, another state worker in Concord, N.H.

Snow emergencies were imposed in a number of communities and some evening social and civic activities were either postponed or cancelled. Connecticut's plant, there are either design or equipment problems, and some machinery is not functioning properly.

Snelling expressed confidence that the plant could be brought into compliance with the EPA regulations, but he admitted it would take time.

And each extra day it takes, the stakes rise in the government's suit against the city.

Gilhausen said the government is currently in the process of discovery (obtaining information necessary to the suit), and the city is supposed to deliver information relevant to the suit to the court by May.

Gilhausen said the government would take no further action in the suit until it receives the city's response to its interrogatories.

Major bills remain as houses roll toward adjournment

BOISE (UPI) — Each house of the 2nd regular session of the 44th Idaho Legislature has one major piece of legislation to consider in the race to ring down the final gavel before the week is up.

Both houses of the Legislature rolled through heavy calendars of legislation Thursday with the Senate working into the evening hours and acting on nearly 50 measures.

Both houses suspended rules to take up appropriations and speed them through the legislative process in hopes of bringing down the final gavel.

Most lawmakers agreed they can finish their work by Saturday if not tonight.

The major legislation still before the legislature deals with tax relief for the elderly and implementation of the water plan. The House has before it a water plan bill passed late Thursday by the Senate and the Senate still has to consider its circuit breaker property tax relief for the elderly which was amended by the House.

Without debate and without dissent, the Idaho Senate approved Thursday evening and sent to the House the bill to implement the new state water plan.

Assistant Majority Leader J. Wilson Steen, R-Idaho Falls, one of the principal drafters of the measure, made a brief explanation of the bill after rules were suspended to take final action on the proposal and the bill was passed by a previous unanimous roll-call.

The Senate bill would enact policies included in a resolution adopted by the Legislature to implement a state water plan. The resolution adopted a modified water plan proposed by the state Water Resources Board and included 32 policies.

The measure provides a guide for the state water plan to protect unappropriated waters. There are several other measures which have been drafted which also will adopt additional policies in the water plan.

The House approved the circuit-breaker bill 61-8 and will bring it back to the Senate for concurrence and consideration. A short time later the House suspended rules on a 4-million bill property tax relief measure and gave it majority approval 61-9.

House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said he felt the Legislature could adjourn sine die by nightfall today — adding there will be little more to do after the appropriations are approved.

Elsewhere on the legislative scene: — The House approved 53-5 a Senate bill to require Canyon County commissioners to devote full time to the discharge of their duties.

— House members also completed legislative action 40-30 on a Senate bill to increase to $100 from $50 the size of campaign contributions from unreporting, out-of-state committees.

— A proposed constitutional amendment to authorize the Legislature to provide mandatory minimum sentencing was adopted by the Senate. The proposal will be placed on the ballot at the November general election.

— Two House bills to aid the Greater Boise Auditorium District slipped through the Idaho Senate — one by a mere two votes after one Senator changed her negative vote. After a brief debate and on a vote of 21-14, the Senate approved a bill to allow the auditorium district to levy a hotel-motel room sales tax not to exceed 5 percent. Then the Senate took up a bill to change auditorium district laws to include community centers. An initial vote count showed a 17-17 tie before Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, changed her vote to make the final tally 18-17.

— Arguing the counties and cities should get together prior to the next legislative session and negotiate a workable agreement, the Senate refused 10-15 Thursday to approve a House bill to eliminate a collection fee assessed by counties against cities.

— By a vote of 31-4, the Senate adopted a House bill to license livestock dealers in a move the floor sponsor said would help stem an outbreak of brucellosis among cattle in Idaho.

— The House approved 64-1 a Senate bill which prohibits a city from annexing a fairgrounds operated by a county or a fair board without the consent of the county commissioners. The measure grew out of annexation disputes between Boise and Garden City.

— Gov. John V. Evans signed into law a bill providing Moscow with a convention center liquor license.

— A bill giving the state superintendent of public instruction an additional pay raise to $32,500 was buried in a House committee. Earlier, the governor signed a bill which raises the superintendent to $28,000.

Minimum sentence proposal approved

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho Senate endorsed mandatory minimum sentencing Thursday, despite charges the practice ties the hands of the courts and prevents judges from considering individual cases.

By a vote of 27-5, the Senate voted to place House Joint Resolution Six on the November election ballot. If that proposed constitutional amendment is approved by voters, the legislature would then have the power to set mandatory minimum sentences for the commission of certain crimes.

Support for the measure came from the resolution's sponsor, Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston. "The time has come for mandatory minimum sentencing," Mitchell said. Pointing out that Idaho "is the only state in the nation that doesn't allow mandatory minimum sentencing," Mitchell said, HJR Six "would allow the people to say they want crime and criminals punished severely in certain cases."

Sen. John Baxter, R-Idaho, also endorsed HJR Six. Final say over what crimes should have a mandatory sentence will be with the legislature, Barker noted. "If we wish this legislation can pass bills stating that the minimum penalties will not apply to first offenders but only to second and repeat offenders," Barker added.

Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, a former Ada County prosecuting attorney, also endorsed HJR Six. Mandatory sentencing would likely be used only for certain violent crimes, such as rape, Risch said. "I think the legislature can and should put a minimum sentence on someone convicted of such a crime," Risch said.

But Sen. Dorothy McCann, D-Wallace, pointed out the legislature had this year directed that a one year study of mandatory sentencing be undertaken. The Senate should wait for the results of that study before taking final action, McCann said.

McCann also argued the same crime may be committed for different reasons. "One person holding up a store with a gun may be getting money for his children while another gets his kicks holding up stores. There is a difference and that's where judges take these things into consideration," the legislature should think twice before "taking away the judgement of the courts in sentencing," McCann said.

McCann's arguments were seconded by Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow. Dobler warned that if prosecutors believe the mandated sentences for certain crimes are too high, "they'll just lower the charge. That isn't fair either."

Senators reject site amendments

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate refused 28-5 today to concur in House amendments to the power-plant siting bill it had adopted earlier in the session.

Lt. Gov. William Murphy said he would appoint a conference committee later in the day to meet with House members to try to reach a compromise on the siting bill.

Senate President Pro-Tem Phil Batt, R-Idaho Falls, who brought the measure to the Legislature, said the additional amendments do not serve a valuable purpose.

Although he said he had no vested interest in the proposal other than the time that he had spent on the bill, he urged the Senate not to concur in the amendments.

He said he felt that possible a compromise could be reached which would make the measure "a salvageable bill." He said in its present form it serves no valuable service.

Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said he felt the measure needed all the amendments placed on it by the House. "It's such a bad bill it needs everything that was done to it," he said.

As amended in the House, the bill exempts new hydroelectric power plants, additions to such existing plants, geothermal plants, oil and gas lines and authorizes a coal-fired power plant at Bliss.

McClure queries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure said Thursday it would be "stupid" to ignore past experience and bury radioactive wastes without the possibility of retrieval.

McClure was challenging plans by the Department of Energy to bury permanently the wastes in an underground site in New Mexico. "If we have learned anything from our burial of low-level nuclear wastes in east Idaho, it is that we will discover new methods of handling radioactive materials in the future."

McClure was referring to low-level wastes buried in East Idaho nearly 30 years ago which are being dug up and repackaged under an expensive federal program.

"Those who buried those wastes in Idaho 30 years ago thought they knew all the answers, but we have learned new things since then," McClure said. "Now the Department of Energy wants to permanently bury high-level nuclear wastes underground in a way so that we can never retrieve them at some future date."

Resolution recorded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Panama Canal treaties may have passed but not with the blessing of the Idaho Legislature.

Rep. George Hansen said Thursday the Legislature's joint resolution calling for defeat of the treaties by the U.S. Senate has been entered into the Congressional record.

Hansen applauded the action taken by Legislators and said "The real losers in this treaty are the American people. They understand what it will mean in terms of lost security and higher costs."

Tax relief increases sails past

BOISE (UPI) — With a minimum of debate, the House approved 61-8 Thursday and sent to the Senate an amended bill to increase the circuit-breaker property tax relief for townships, elderly homeowners.

Floor sponsor Morgan Munger, R-Idaho Falls, said the bill increases this form of tax relief by some $1.5 million. Some estimates have it as high as $2.1 million.

The bill raises the maximum qualifying income to $7,500 from $5,500 and the maximum exemption from property taxes to $400 from $200. House amendments eliminated a $10,000 ceiling on liquid assets, made the bill retroactive to Jan. 1 and extended the deadline for filing for the exemptions.

Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, offered the only opposition debate to the bill.

"I won't deny people over 65 need property tax relief," Olmstead said. "But they are not the only ones who do."

Bill held

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee refused Thursday to go along with a House bill to license and regulate massage parlors.

Evans pondering stand on voting

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans said Thursday he is reconsidering his position that two state legislators should be allowed to vote on the State Building Authority and the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council while unseating other members who serve on both.

Evans acknowledged that he asked for the resignation of State Building Authority Chairman Gerald Wilson, Lewiston, from the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council to break up the dual membership of the boards.

Wilson said he formally resigned from the council following a meeting with the governor March 8.

He will remain chairman of the authority until matters are settled with the construction of three new state office buildings in Boise, Lewiston and Idaho Falls.

At that time, Wilson said, he may consider leaving the post.

Asked if he asked others who had joint memberships to resign, Evans said he had given the job to Bart Brown, director of the Department of Administration.

Evans said he was acting on the "advice" of Attorney General Wayne Kidwell in changing the make up of the boards.

"I don't know if it was an official opinion but it was his advice that the state could have some problem if there was the same membership," Evans said.

At one time five persons served on both boards.

With the resignation of Vince Mullin, Idaho Falls, from the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council and the expiration of the term of Murray Johnson, Boise, from the State Building Authority dual memberships are presently held by two state legislators.

They are Sen. Vernon Brasse, R-Boise, and Rep. Emery Hedlund, D-St. Maries.

Mullin's resignation becomes effective as soon as the governor appoints a successor. Evans plans to fill the post after the Idaho Legislature adjourns.

Well, that's Bilandic's own fault. He could have enough time to train if he had been content to remain an alderman... Second, Bilandic weighs too much. Miller says Bilandic is at least 16 to 20 pounds too heavy to be a truly successful marathon runner...

But he's in the race anyway. The Boston Marathon Committee, which almost never makes an exception, apparently respects clout. It has written Miller a letter saying Bilandic will lend "added lustre" to the race...

Scott evicted from prison

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — Ewing Scott, a celebrated San Quentin Prison senior citizen who in 1975 turned down parole on the ground it would be an admission of guilt, finally is being evicted from his honor-block cell.

The California Community Release Board ordered the 82-year-old Scott's discharge earlier this year and authorities made him pack his bags for release today.

"No one's going to rush me," Scott told his pre-release counselor Thursday while he was slowly cleaning out his cell. Guards said he was "moving awfully slow" all day.

Scott was committed to the state Department of Corrections from Los Angeles County and transferred to San Quentin in 1960 after conviction on first-degree murder charges for the death of his wife, Evelyn, 63, whose body was never found.

Mrs. Scott disappeared from her Bel Air, Calif., home in 1955 while her husband was shopping for tooth powder for her.

Scott has maintained she is still alive.

and he said one of his first chores upon release from prison will be to file for a dissolution of their marriage.

In 1975 Scott was granted a parole, but refused to accept it because it would be an admission of guilt for the death of his wife.

"The hell with parole. That is out," he said at the time. "As for a pardon, I can pardon Gov. (Edmund G.) Brown (Jr.) for what California has done to me, but he can't pardon me for something I didn't do."

Hughes' doctor, aide indicted

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Howard Hughes' doctor and a top aide to the industrialist were indicted Thursday on charges of illegally supplying him with cocaine the last two decades of his life.

Dr. Norman Crane, a physician who worked solely for Hughes beginning in 1962, and John Holmes, a Hughes aide for 19 years, were charged in a federal indictment with illegally supplying the drug on hundreds of occasions beginning in 1955.

The indictment said Crane wrote prescriptions in the names of Hughes' aides and Holmes filled them, primarily at a Beverly Hills, Calif., pharmacy, and delivered them to a Hughes' in California, Nevada, Canada, England and the Bahamas.

The grand jury said Crane wrote the drug prescriptions in the names of Holmes, and aides George Francorn, Lezare Myler and Chuck Waldron. The indictment said the aides knew of the conspiracy designed to conceal Hughes' addiction to narcotics and facilitate the delivery.

Crane and Holmes were the only defendants named in the indictment.

Los Angeles (UPI) — Singers Helen Reddy and Olivia Newton-John have canceled concert tours of Japan to protest the recent slaughter of thousands of dolphins. It was announced Thursday.

A spokesman for the singers said Miss Newton-John canceled 26 concerts set for October and Miss Reddy discarded unscheduled concert plans for the fall.

"I would not be comfortable appearing in a country where they have permitted the destruction of such beautiful and intelligent mammals as the dolphins in this cruel and inhumane fashion," Miss Newton-John said in a statement.

Miss Reddy added, "I feel the only way to properly protest such slaughter in a country which is such a lucrative record and concert market for us is by the cancellation of our tours, even though it could ultimately affect our record sales."

PUC rate hearings slated

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will conduct open hearings during the next two weeks on two applications for rate increases filed by Intermountain Gas Co.

On Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. the commission will hear the firm's request to pass a 1.376 cents-per-therm increase in purchased gas cost through to its ratepayers.

According to the utility's application, the increase is the net effect of price changes (led by its natural gas supplier).

The proposed increase would add $2.05 to a typical winter month's residential bill of $48.73 for 150 therms.

The commission will hear Intermountain's request for nearly $3.2 million in interim general rate relief March 29 at 9:30 a.m. The interim request is related to the utility's application for a $5.3 billion permanent rate hike.

Intermountain proposes a 2.33 cents-per-therm surcharge to all customers effective through the end of October. The firm is requesting a permanent increase of 1.439 cents-per-therm to replace the interim surcharge in November. It claims it must have the interim relief to avert a serious decline in earnings.

Both hearings will be conducted in the commission hearing room in Boise.

Caroline gives plea

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Caroline Kennedy, caught speeding in her 1977 BMW on Long Island last summer, will plead guilty today to a reduced traffic violation allowing her to keep her driver's license.

President Kennedy's daughter won't be in court, however. Instead, she planned to submit a signed affidavit in which she admits speeding but says she did not know her rate of speed.

Miss Kennedy, 20, was given a speeding ticket on July 4, 1977, for driving 86 mph in a 55-mph zone on the Long Island Expressway.

Her lawyer, Thomas McVann Jr., said Thursday a plea bargaining arrangement with the Suffolk County District Attorney's office will allow her to plead guilty to a charge of speeding 70 mph.

Panama Canal treaty foes think battle can still be won

TREATY CRITIC SEN. PAUL LAXALT OF NEVADA
...he thinks second treaty will be easier to defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost to a man, Senate opponents of the Panama Canal treaties claim only a battle has been lost and the war can still be won.

Deflected but not dependent on the 68-32 ratification of the neutrality treaty, opponents feel they have a much stronger chance to kill the main Panama Canal treaty and, thereby, doom both.

Not surprisingly, key backers of the treaties disagree.

"I think this pretty much positions the Senate on the issue," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The optimism infusing the opposition, even at the moment of defeat, was buttressed by several factors.

A letter, drafted by Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, that there are some "soft" votes among the victors.

The possibility, anticipated by Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., of a "violent constituent reaction" to Thursday's vote.

A 10-day Easter recess, beginning Thursday, during which vulnerable senators will have to go home and face the voters.

A $250,000 media blitz planned by the American Conservative Union against senators they feel can be converted. Among the targets are Sens. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky.

The fact that a number of senators, including key vote Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, have expressed grave concern about the second treaty while Church claims "we will hold the line against immunities."

"I'm very optimistic on the main treaty," Laxalt said. "I see eight to nine potential prospects and we need only two."

To which Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Alan Cranston of California replied, "I would be optimistic about the next one.

"If we vote on one, we can win that one," Cranston added. "It was a solid victory today which looks almost impossible."

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia and Baker, both indicated treaty supporters are banking heavily on the momentum of winning the first test. Byrd revealed that he had three or four reserves who he could have called out if needed.

Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and William Scott, R-Va., saw a grassroots surge against ratification of the second treaty.

"There are a number who can be turned around by the opposition," Hatch said. "The battle has just begun. This was clearly the lesser of the treaties."

Among the opponents, only Jake Garn, R-Utah, expressed pessimism. "I will continue to oppose the Panama Canal treaty, but I suspect that chances to defeat it are not good."

Treaty passage brings Carter smile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Smiling and triumphant, President Carter celebrated passage of the Panama Canal neutrality treaty with happy telephone calls to Gerald Ford and other key supporters of the accord.

Carter watched television and listened to the radio in his study off the Oval Office during the crucial roll call in the Senate Thursday and even called some of the senators after the vote.

As soon as the tally was announced he called Frank Moore, his chief congressional lobbyist, and congratulated him for diligent work in winning over reluctant members.

With the president during the balloting was National Security Affairs adviser

Zbigniew Brzezinski. Bounding happily into the study was top aide, Hamilton Jordan, who had coordinated the campaign to win public support for the pacts, and Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

The jubilant Carter also talked to Vice President Walter Mondale during the past 10 days almost exclusively to lobbying members of the Senate, and to former Secretaries of State Dean Rusk and Henry Kissinger, former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and a long list of others.

The vote culminated months of intensive lobbying with a wide range of special interest groups from labor, business, churches and others to win broad support.

Some 1,000 speeches were made by Cabinet officials and other administration leaders around the country. In addition, the president, within a span of 10 days after the signing of the treaties last September was in personal contact with 60 senators.

Last Sunday afternoon Carter telephoned 16 senators who had been given up for lost, and officials say he won one vote — and perhaps two — from that group.

By Wednesday morning officials said they believed they had the necessary votes plus three senators who voted "no" but might have switched if defeat threatened. On Capitol Hill, Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd indicated the same thing.

But aides said there would be no resting on laurels.

Conservatives plan drive to turn some votes around

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that it knows who the "enemies" are, the American Conservative Union will launch a $250,000 campaign during the Easter recess to turn around the votes of specific senators on the second Panama Canal treaty.

The ACU Thursday named Sens. Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H.; Dennis DeConcini, D-N.M.; Herman Talmadge and Sam Nunn, both D-Ga., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., as among those who may be the subject of an intense newspaper, television and radio campaign back home during the next month.

ACU chairman Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., said he believed the second treaty — the one actually turning the canal over to Panama — could be defeated "and then the whole thing goes down the drain."

When the rollcall on the first canal treaty — the neutrality agreement — was completed, Becky Norton-Dunlop, the ACU's political consultant, said: "now we know who some of the names are — the enemies."

"It's just a question of changing one, or two, or three votes," Crane told a news conference at the three-day Conservative Political Action

Conference — a meeting of most major conservative groups.

The conservatives boomed and hissed as they listened to a live broadcast of the rollcall. Loud boos were reserved for Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., who has voted conservative on just about every issue but supported the treaty.

Theory loud cheer came when Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., Ronald Reagan's running mate, voted "no." Reagan was scheduled to address the meeting's banquet tonight.

With the canal treaty occupying center stage at the conference, Crane said: "We're going to target those senators who might be moved if there were more pressure from back home."

"We have $250,000 to invest and we will spend it if we can buy the time," Crane said. The group has already spent $1 million against the canal treaties.

Crane, mentioned as the new right's favorite 1980 presidential contender after Reagan, said a vote for the treaties would be a "kiss of death" for any senator seeking the Republican presidential nomination. His comment was an obvious reference to Baker's vote.

McClure raps vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure said Thursday the administration stopped at nothing to get the Panama Canal Treaties approved by senators.

"It's obvious that Jimmy Carter's White House will go to any lengths, take any action, to buy whatever votes are necessary to get the Panama Canal Treaties passed in the Senate," McClure said after voting against the neutrality treaty dealing with the Panama Canal and U.S. Panamanian relations.

"I was bitterly disappointed by the vote," he said upon learning of "the treaty ratification. I hope senators will go home and talk with the people during the Easter recess to learn that the American people don't want to give up the canal."

"Jimmy Carter must have a success. Few if any of his programs have been accepted by the Congress and he taking whatever steps are necessary to buy the votes on Panama."

McClure said he still is opposed totally to the treaties and that only two senators would have to switch their votes on the second and "most important" of the two treaties with Panama.

Jackpot Baptists conduct revival

JACKPOT, Nev. — Beginning Sunday, a week-long revival will be conducted by Samuel Ray Borden and John Whitley of the Southwestern Seminary, Baptist Church, in the Jackpot chapel, the Rev. Robert C. Schreckenberg, pastor of the East Side Baptist Church at Twin Falls, who is in charge here, announces.

The men, who are from Fort Worth, Tex., will hold services Sunday at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Daily services during the ensuing week will be at 6:30 p.m.

Palm branches included in service

TWIN FALLS — The commemoration of Holy Week at the Episcopal Parish of the Ascension begins with the Sunday of Passion: Palm Sunday.

This service will begin in the Bishop Rhea Auditorium at 10 a.m. where branches of palms will be blessed and distributed to members of the congregation. This will be followed by a joyous procession into the church.

This year's celebration will include a baptism, confirmation and the Eucharist. The celebrant and preacher will be the Right Rev. Hanford L. King Jr., Ph.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Idaho, assisted by the rector of Ascension parish, The Rev. Albert E. Allen.

Other Holy Week events include the penitential offices held each day (Monday through Thursday) at noon; the Maundy Thursday service of foot washing, supper and the Agony in the Garden at 7 p.m., and three hour services of Stations of the Cross at 12, 1 and 2 p.m., and another at 7 p.m.

Presbyterian choir to perform

WENDELL — The junior choir of the United Presbyterian Church, Wendell, is to sing at the morning service to be held at 11 a.m. The pastor of the congregation, Rev. Francis E. Horner, will preach the last of a series on the Cross entitled, "The Challenge of the Cross."

Last Sunday members of the Sunday school raised over $100 for the "One Great Hour of Sharing Campaign" by holding a box lunch.

Maundy Thursday, March 23, will see the celebration of the Office of Tenebrae (one of the earliest services of the church.) This service will take place at 7:30 p.m.

Good Friday will be commemorated at a Service of Meditation, to be held at 7 a.m. The Methodists will join the Presbyterians on that occasion.

Adventists hold story hour

EDEN — The lesson study week at the Eden Seventh-day Adventist Church is entitled "The Creator and the Resurrection." This lesson is based on 1 Corinthians 15:54 and deals with the physical condition of man after the second coming of Christ. Sabbath school begins at 9:30 a.m. with the worship hour at 11 a.m. The worship hour speaker this week is Doug Schmechel from Twin Falls.

The "Story Hour" continues each Wednesday evening at 6 at the Hazelton Housing Recreation Room. This program for children up to the age of 14 consists of Bible stories, nature stories, games, songs and other character-building activities. For further details phone 829-5550.

Van Nest speaks on 'His Kingdom'

TWIN FALLS — This Palm Sunday the First Presbyterian Church will have its regular schedule of worship at both 9:30 and 11 a.m.

At each service, Rev. Van Nest will speak on the subject, "His Kingdom." At the 11 a.m. service Elder Carrol Dowd will give the Minute for Mission on the One Great Hour of Sharing, new members will be received, and there will be special music. Church school will be held at 9:30 for all ages.

All are welcome and invited to attend any of these services.

Holy Land slide show planned

KIMBERLY — Pastor and Mrs. Mel Rayborn will show colored slides of their trip to the Holy Land which was taken in the summer of 1968. Eight countries were visited.

Rayborn was sent on the three-week trip by the city of Atwater, Calif., where he was pastoring the Church of the Nazarene.

The slides will be shown Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Kimberly Church of the Nazarene where Rev. Rayborn is pastor. The public is invited.

Baptists schedule cantata

TWIN FALLS — The Easter Cantata "No Greater Love" by John Peterson will be presented by the Chancel Choir of the Twin Falls First Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the church sanctuary. The presentation is under the direction of Mrs. Willa Rider.

The Lively Set, an 80-member youth choir and brass ensemble from Downey, Calif., will present a concert at Twin Falls First Baptist Church beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The ancient Passover celebration in its Christian context will be observed at Twin Falls First Baptist Church beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Kimberly church plans revival

KIMBERLY — Rev. Larry L. Maxwell who serves as pastor of Pine Ridge Baptist Church, Kamiah, will be guest speaker in revival services at the First Baptist Church, Adams and Birch streets, Kimberly.

Services will begin with 11 a.m. worship hour and continue each evening at 7:30 p.m., ending Wednesday.

The public is invited to attend these services.

LDS series continues in Jerome

JEROME — "Living by the spirit" will be the title of the fifth in a series "Know Your Religion" to be presented today at 8 p.m. in Jerome at the LDS Stake Center on North Lincoln, by Edward Peterson, director of Career Education at Brigham Young University.

Cost of this lecture is $1.75 for those who do not have advance tickets.

'Matter' title of lesson-sermon

TWIN FALLS — The title of the lesson-sermon Sunday at the Christian Science Church will be "Matter."

Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. and church services are at 11 a.m. Sunday, and 8 p.m. Wednesday, at the church, 160 9th Ave. E.

Cantata set at First Christian

TWIN FALLS — The choir of the First Christian Church, Twin Falls, will present "Easter Celebration" cantata by Harold DeCoul at 10:50 a.m. Sunday.

The choir is directed by Mary Nelson, accompanied by Janet Williams and Cleo Hitchey. Narrator will be James Reynolds. Featured soloists are Elvis Cain, Sylvia Osterman, Shirley Hazen and Shirley Vernon. All are invited to attend.

Students to conduct services

TWIN FALLS — In the absence of Rev. Darwyn Williams who is on vacation, students of science of mind will conduct Sunday services of First Church of Religious Science at the YWCA Chapel at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Churches receive new members

KING HILL — New members will be received Sunday in the service by baptism and transfer of membership in both the King Hill United Presbyterian, and the Glenns Ferry United Methodist churches.

Husband and wife share career

GOODING — When Pat Koskela entered seminary she was determined she would never marry, mostly in reaction to the many times she had been asked about going to seminary to find a husband.

Now, in her first pastoral assignment since being ordained last October, the enthusiastic young woman not only is a dedicated minister, but a wife and mother as well.

While she faces all the potential problems peculiar to a woman in that profession, her career also has a new dimension. For Pat and her husband, John, are breaking relatively new ground, at least in this area, in what is known as a team ministry.

Both Rev. John and Rev. Pat are hired by the First Baptist Church in Gooding, sharing one salary and dividing the work load. In addition, like many young working couples, they also divide domestic duties, including care of 11-month-old daughter, Sommer.

The young pastors say their congregation is most supportive of what is still considered an unconventional arrangement to most church members used to the traditional role of the pastor and his long suffering wife who has for centuries been expected to dutifully work in the church, entertain, keep a perfect house, but always in the role of mistress to her husband.

Sharing of a pastorate between husband and wife with similar training is so new there is no literature on the subject, Pat says.

"The only help we get is from other people we know who also are involved in team ministries," she said.

She contrasted this lack of books or workshops through the national denominations to the wealth of material available on women ministers, which is still a controversial issue in some denominations.

Even among the Koskelas' own American Baptist denomination there is considerable difference in the degree of support for women pastors—from "one" section of the country to another. As for the idea of team ministry, it is so new "no one has had a chance to have much opinion about it," John said.

The Koskelas said five other couples at the American Baptist Seminary of the West at Berkeley, where both graduated, also were going into the team ministry. Were they encouraged to enter into this new modern ministry at seminary? John said when he and Pat first fell in love after meeting at seminary, they felt they did not want to enter such a joint type of ministry.

"We talked to a counselor who, after he got to know us both, said he felt we have the kind of personalities that can work well together," John said. He said many times seminary leaders discouraged couples from entering a team ministry if the teachers felt the individuals could not work together well.

As it was, the couple was engaged for a year and a half until Pat could work out her feelings. She said she finally came to realize that her hangup against marriage was mostly an emotional response to the teasing she had received earlier about only entering seminary to "catch" a husband, a pattern some girls do take, she said.

For a husband and wife to share a career which is as much a goldfish bowl existence as the ministry, both must feel secure in their own persons, the Koskelas believe.

Pat said she and her husband complement each other in their personality traits. Neither feels jealous of the other and they see their ministry as trying to divide their duties so each utilizes his own talents.

"When someone compliments John I'm pleased for him," his wife said convincingly.

She believes his strong points are relating to people and he is good in administration and insight into leadership ability of other people. John is the more intellectually oriented, Pat said, so his best talents lie in organization, such as planning events, while she is more comfortable in the social aspects of the ministry.

Pat's primary focus is on youth because this is what she says she is best at, although other women ministers have urged her to drop that activity "because it only reinforces the old image that women should have babies and work with youth."

The Koskelas have convincing answers for most of the questions they face in this relatively new relationship in a local church. How do they divide the sermons? Won't some members of the congregation rather talk to a man than a woman if they have a problem?

John says he often is asked who is the head of the house. He tends to laugh off such "sexist" queries, but Pat says they irritate her, probably because she is more defensive.

"The only time I feel threatened," she said, "is when I'm told I should decide between motherhood and the ministry."

But this last question is similar to that faced by any working mother, although Pat's career is more highly visible in the community than some of the more traditional jobs long filled by women.

Pat believes the part which bothers lay people most about the team ministry is that "people have a fear of a woman taking leadership in a field long held by men. They often ask John who makes the decisions," she laughed. "I think they want to be sure there is someone to hold me down."

They take turns on sermons, sometimes alternating each week, but when one has a series the same minister is in the pulpit for several successive weeks. But both ministers participate in the worship service each Sunday.

The husband-wife team—often—presents sermons in a dialogue form. How structured the dialogue is depends upon the formality of their topic.

One of the main advantages they see to their joint ministry is that both can spend more time with their little girl. Each pastor is officially hired for three-quarters of the time.

Another obvious practical advantage is that the minister can literally be in two places at the same time, to represent the church, something many busy pastors can well appreciate. When there are sermons at the same time, Pat and John can each have their own audience, thus extending their influence and help.

"We also challenge each other and can serve as good critics of each other," Pat said.

The Koskelas both say part of the questions they have faced, more in seminary and in their student pastorates than in Gooding, stem from the mistaken belief that "if you are married you are supposed to be alike."

"We're very fortunate our congregation here sees us as two different individuals with different kinds of abilities," Pat said. She said they were particularly fortunate in that the area minister, Rev. Bob Smith, Twin Falls, has been most supportive of their team ministry.

"He treats each one of us as an individual," she said.

The young couple also has received support from the other ministers in the Gooding area, so as yet the questions which they obviously have given thoughtful attention to are mostly academic at the moment. But they are very realistic about the potential pitfalls of the team ministry, having been asked all the negative questions throughout their young careers.

John obviously is comfortable with the situation and sees their team ministry as a trend toward change in role models. He said he feels they arrive at better solutions to problems by working things out together than in the old authoritarian model.

Pat emphasizes that she does not want to be cast into a mold of being perceived as against men. While she is for women's equal rights she feels it is unfortunate that some feminists are against men.

"I'm not for every individual developing his or her talents and if women want to play a traditional role that is fine," she said.

Pat felt called to the ministry during her senior year in college. She grew up in Salem, Ore., and John's home town is Centralia, Wash.

LDS Conference planned

TWIN FALLS — Mormon leaders from throughout Magic Valley are making plans to attend the 148th annual world general conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Four general sessions of the conference will be conducted on April 1 and 2 in the historic Mormon Tabernacle on Temple Square. These sessions are attended by leaders and the general membership.

In addition, there will be a special conference session on the church's unique welfare services system, and another session for those who hold the priesthood. In connection with the conference, a day-long seminar for regional leaders of the church will be held March 31.

Presiding over the world conference once again will be President Spencer W. Kimball, world leader of the four-million-member church. He will be assisted by his counselors in the first presidency, Presidents N. Eldon Tanner and Marion G. Romney.

These three men and other general authorities of the church, including members of the Quorum of Twelve Apostles, will be the speakers during the two-day conference. They are expected to address the great moral issues in the world today, as well as general church doctrine.

As has been traditional for many years, the world famous Mormon Tabernacle Choir will provide music during the conference. Under the baton of director Jerold D. Ottley, the 75-voice choir will perform several numbers. Portions of the conference, including the choir, will be seen and heard over an independent network of hundreds of radio and television stations.

Annual conferences have been a tradition since the church was first organized April 6, 1830, in Fayette, N.Y.

Viewing for the general public in Magic Valley may be seen April 1 and 2 from 10 a.m. to noon on Boise Station KTVB Channel 3, and on cable VISION Channel 5. On April 3 there will be a delayed broadcast from noon to 2 p.m. on Twin Falls station KMYT Channel 11.

Ashram set at Hagerman

HAGERMAN — The United Methodist Church here will hold a Christian Ashram today through Sunday.

Registration fee is $7 per person or $12 per couple which will include the Saturday evening buffet dinner.

Dr. Kenneth Kinghorn, Wilmore, Ky., and Rev. Cyril Dorsett will conduct the Ashram.

The conference begins this evening with a potluck supper at 6 p.m.

The picture of Rev. Dorsett and Rev. Richard Dorsett, guest speaker at the Twin Falls Assembly of God Church convention, were reversed on last Friday's church page.

The Times-News regrets the error.

Hungarian speaks in Magic Valley

TWIN FALLS — An Hungarian Presbyterian minister is to be the guest preacher at a series of services to be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Twin Falls, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Holy Week, March 20-22.

He is Rev. Dr. John A. Bodo.

Born in Budapest, Hungary, Dr. Bodo completed his training for the ministry in the Reformed Seminary there. In 1952 he received a doctor of theology degree from Princeton Theological Seminary in New Jersey.

Dr. Bodo's experience has been both in the pastorate and the university. His last pastorate was at the Old First Presbyterian Church in San Francisco, which he left in 1976 to embark on a free lance ministry of preaching, adult education and writing.

"His book 'Adam and Eve and You,' will be available after each service.

Dr. Bodo has chosen three characters from the Holy Week story to preach on. On Monday he will preach on "Zacchaeus," on Tuesday on "Judas," and on Wednesday on "Pilate." Each service will be held at 8 p.m. and will be followed by a coffee hour.

Each evening a choir from one of the Magic Valley Presbyterian churches will sing.

Presbyterian churches in Wendell, Burley, Jerome, Hollister, Buhl, Hazelton and Twin Falls have combined to invite Dr. Bodo to preach in Twin Falls. The ministers and lay people of each congregation will be participating in each of the services.

The public is invited to attend.

Baptists conduct spiritual renewal series

TWIN FALLS — A series of meetings with special emphasis on spiritual renewal will be featured at the Eastside Baptist Church, 204 Eastland Drive N., beginning Sunday and continuing through March 26.

The services are set for 11 a.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. nightly. Rev. Mark Hood, Ft.

Worth, Tex., a seminary student, will be the special speaker, and Ralph Nations, also from Ft. Worth, will lead the music.

Hood is a graduate of the University of Texas where he was designated as college scholar in 1975. He is now preparing for the ministry at Southwestern Baptist Seminary. Nations studied aeronautical engineering at the university before entering the ministry of music. He is a graduate of Dallas Baptist College.

The public is invited and transportation and nursery care will be provided.

Leaves soon

FRED D. Jaynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jaynes, Buhl, will leave March 30 for a Latter-day Saints Church mission to Brussels, Belgium. A 1977 graduate of the Buhl High School, he has been employed by Sav-Mor drug store. He will speak at a sacrament meeting in the Buhl First Ward LDS Chapel at 4 p.m. Sunday. The public is invited to attend.

"Where Background Doesn't Make a Difference"

Week's rites set

TWIN FALLS — Four Holy Week and Easter services are announced for Immanuel Lutheran Church, 2055 Piler Ave. E., according to Rev. E.J. Bernthal, pastor.

The Maundy Thursday evening service at 7:30 will commemorate the inauguration of the Holy Eucharist by Jesus Christ which in the Christian tradition supplants the old covenant Passover celebration.

A Lenten service focusing attention upon the seven words of Christ on the Cross of Calvary will be held Good Friday, March 24, also at 7:30 o'clock. Youth of the church will present the meditations on each of the Seven Words. Singing will be by the adult choir, a children's choir and by the congregation. The service will include the celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

The Feast of the Resurrection will be celebrated in two distinct worship services, the first at 6:30 a.m. "The Joy of Easter" will be the topic of the Easter message. Special music will include a duet with guitar accompaniment by the Misses Ruth Schepman and Barbara Pitsch.

Easter breakfast served by Immanuel Youth Leaguers will follow sunrise service in the church fellowship hall (11) 9 o'clock.

"Not Possible" is the theme of the sermon by pastor E.J. Bernthal for the second Easter service at 9:30 a.m. Special music by the senior choir will include a concertato, "I Know That My Redeemer Lives," by Paul Bunjes, with Brent Reinke as trumpet player, and "Sing Praise to Christ" by J.S. Bach.

Abby

Monkey business

DEAR ABBY: I am 64 and Norman is 68. We have two married sons. Everything was fine until about five months ago when I noticed that Norman was spending a lot of time in the airport, even when it was pouring rain!

I started to watch him from the window and I saw him making hand signals and waving the lady across the street. I noticed, too, that when Norman walked the dog, he would stand in front of this lady's house and stare into her window. Then she'd come to the window and the hand signals and waving would start.

The woman is older than I. I notice that this monkey business between her and Norman goes on only when her husband is at work. I finally called our two sons over and asked them to talk to their father about this outrageous flirting. They told him to stay out of the airport and to walk the dog in the other direction, which he did for two days. Then he went back to his old tricks, claiming there was nothing to it.

Abigail Van Buren

Abby, I'm sick about this and am losing weight. What can I do? I can no longer trust my husband of 44 years.

UPSET AND JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: I think you're making something out of nothing. What harm is there in a little waving and a few hand signals? It's certainly not important enough to worry about. Please try to see the humor of it, dear. It is comical. Flirting flirts get a "thumb" out of waving at each other, let them have their fun. Laugh about it. And when Norman realizes that you think it's funny, he'll probably quit.

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is 70, has struck up an unusual friendship with a young woman in her early 20s. The two of them make the bars on weekends, strike up friendships with the musicians, and sometimes bring them home for a jam session until the wee hours. It seems strange that this young lady has no friends her own age. My mother tries to look younger by wearing her hair shoulder length. She even wears false eyelashes and false teeth that are definitely not for a woman her age. She looks ridiculous. Please put this in your column. It might do her good to see it.

CONCERNED DAUGHTER.

DEAR DAUGHTER: If your mother looks "ridiculous," she's the one who will pay the price. For my part, if she's happy, I fall to see whom she's hurting.

DEAR ABBY: I am only 14, but I learned a lesson I will never forget.

When my parent used to tell me they "worried" when I didn't come home when I said I would, I thought they were silly. Well, now that I got a taste of my own medicine, I don't think they're so silly anymore.

Last Saturday night my folks went out and still they'd be home around midnight. Well, I got to be one o'clock in the morning, then two, then three and they still weren't home, and I nearly went out of my mind imagining they were both dead in a ditch somewhere with the car on top of them.

Finally, at 4 a.m., they came home. They said they ran into some old friends and were just sitting around their apartment talking over old times. They didn't bother to call me because they didn't think I'd worry.

Believe me, I will NEVER give them the kind of night they gave me.

HIGHLAND PARK

your health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dear Dr. Lamb, I need information on what I can do as a wife and mother to help fight overweight.

My husband is 42 years old, 5-feet-9 and weighs 185 pounds. He also has high blood pressure. His doctor has not recommended a diet, but instead advised him to cut down on the amount he eats. However, it seems he is addicted to eating, always talks about cutting down but always eating just as much.

Our daughters are becoming the same way. The 16-year-old is 5-feet-8 and weighs 125 pounds. The 20-year-old is 5-feet-7 and weighs 150 pounds.

I do not cook many foods that are high in fats and carbohydrates. I am 41 and 5-foot-1 weighing 124.

Do diets work? I have considered diet pills to help curb the appetites but most warn "do not take if high blood pressure persists." Can you help? Do you have a suitable diet plan?

Dear Reader, You can lose weight on any diet that decreases the calorie intake sufficiently to result in an amount of physical activity that uses calories. The point is to do it safely and not injure your health in the process.

Yes, there is probably a lot you can do and are not doing. It involves learning how to cook without adding a lot of calories to the meals. I am sending you the Health Letter number 9-12, Kitchen Power for Weight Control that discusses this for you. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long stamped self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 325, San Antonio, Texas 78222.

If you eliminate calories during food preparation the family can often have diet satisfaction and not have to exercise so much will power. The key is kitchen power, not will power.

Eliminating fat is important because it is a major source of calories. A lot of fat is hidden. It is not just in meat as some people believe. You can eliminate fat from beef and have a fairly low calorie salad. How you prepare chicken and which fish you choose and how you prepare it determines whether it is still low calorie or not. Most of these foods can be enjoyed in abundance without ingesting a lot of calories if you don't fry them, add fat in preparation, or broil them swimming in butter or margarine.

You can use uncreamed cottage cheese which provides a lot of diet satisfaction with as well as well as well as well as needed calcium. Low fat or uncreamed cottage cheese with unsweetened pineapple is very filling and adds few unnecessary calories. It is easy to prepare, too.

You can learn how to make a sour cream substitute that has few calories and can be added to a baked potato so your family can enjoy baked potatoes and a baked cream substitute without getting fat.

You can learn to cook vegetables without fat - getting them as nature intended you to. And learn how to make salads without adding high calorie salad dressings. Use fresh fruit for dessert. Avoid sweets and fats and what is left is a wholesome well-balanced diet that can be limited in calories and still provide diet satisfaction. That would be a big contribution any wife and mother could make to her family's health.

ONE SENIOR CITIZEN HELPING OTHERS, HARRIS HOWARD PROVIDES BUS SERVICE here he helps passengers out on arrival at Golden Age Club dinner and dance

Seniors put free time to work

CARRIE HOWARD DONATES 30 HOURS A MONTH she assists Luke Watt and Wendy Houser at Center

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some 300 retired residents of the Twin Falls area are volunteering their leisure time, or at least a part of it, to make this a better place to live and to make some of the difficulties of others a little less serious.

More than 300 senior citizens are working through the RSPV, Retired Senior Volunteer Program, at the College of Southern Idaho. The individuals need only to contact the RSPV office at CSI and offer their services. They are encouraged to donate a few hours a week or month or a few hours a day to help out in hospitals, clinics, serve with charitable organizations or work with special education and therapy programs.

Typical of the many who are doing this are Carrie and Harris Howard. Carrie donates some 30 hours a month to the program, most of it spent at the Child Development Center where she works with handicapped children, carrying out programs designed and supervised by the professional staff of the center.

Her two hands and her free time give the professionals an opportunity to handle more of the technical procedure at the center and thus serve more children with specialized training and therapy.

While she is working with handicapped children, her husband, Harris, is busy driving a senior citizen bus. The van is owned by the college and available for senior citizen use but there has to be a driver.

Harris Howard picks up about 16 elderly non-driving residents two Fridays each month and takes them to the social events of the Golden Age Club. He then has an opportunity to join in the potluck dinners and programs while waiting to return his passengers to their homes. He also drives the van and interested passengers to Jackson occasionally, takes them to their doctor or to the grocery store. He may just drive by and pick up a few for a fishing trip some sunny afternoon.

Others participating in the program offer a wide variety of services depending on their special talents. Some do nothing more than serve as adoptive grandparents to children without grandparents in this area. Others with musical talent can be found performing at rest homes in the area on frequent occasions.

Betty Thiébes, one of the RSPV directors, says while there is no pay, those who use their automobiles in conjunction with the service are paid the small fee of 15 cents per mile.

"They don't make any money but it helps compensate for the use of their vehicles," the director said.

The RSPV staff, again with the help of a number of volunteer senior citizens, publishes and mails a monthly newsletter. This is presently going to about 2,500 senior citizens in Magic Valley and each Senior Citizen Center contributes items each month. All the senior citizen needs to do is call the RSPV office at the college and ask to be added to the mailing list.

Mrs. Thiébes said the program is by no means filled. There's plenty of room for more volunteers and they are invited to participate.

"Through our program, many senior citizens with time on their hands no longer have time for boredom. They are finding new interests in life which helps them as well as the many other lives they touch," the director said.

Seniors help library staff

TWIN FALLS — Many senior citizens in Magic Valley are using their valuable training and talents to good advantage through the RSPV (Retired Senior Volunteer Program).

In two libraries volunteers are providing assistance to the staff members and patrons. RSPV officials say two retired teachers are working in the Buhl library doing everything from cataloging new books to helping a reader find research material.

In the Twin Falls Public Library, Anna Hanson-Hayes, herself an author, is helping the library establish an Idaho history section.

Topless debut initiated fashion change

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Fashion designers are not generally known for making weighty political statements about the times, but when Rudi Gernreich created the topless bathing suit in 1964, he did much more than simply snip a few inches of material from a swimsuit.

Gernreich created a cultural artifact which marked the rebellious attitude that so clearly marked the 1960s. His bathing suit without a top became one of the first expressions of a wide cultural banking for freedom from establishment values and stodgy social conventions.

The famous designer, who is also the creator of the thigh, unisex clothing, movement liberating no-hra dress and a new line of stylish leotards for the Cuzpezo dancewear company, is the first to admit the topless bathing suit never really became fashion.

"What happened with it is something that surprised even me," Gernreich commented recently while in Sun Valley. "It never became a fashion. It could not be worn. Many bought it and never put it on. It immediately went into an area that was surprising because it had sociological and psychological meaning.

Indeed, the topless swimsuit was far more political than fashionable, for the world of dress often presents a picture window into a society's attitudes and moods.

"Clothes are really symbols of people's attitudes," Gernreich observes. "You can tell a great deal about the time you live in by what people wear."

Although the topless bathing suit probably never made its debut at your town swimming pool or public beach, Gernreich says the shock it caused when pictured on national fashion pages helped "to free ourselves from antiquated values."

Most women never did take off their tops, but after the 70s, fashioning suit many people in the '60s did shed a number of other hangups about their bodies.

"It immediately freed a certain kind of attitude which allowed the body to be exposed in certain areas, such as in nightclubs and theaters," Gernreich recalls. "It became permissible to bare a breast in situations where it was not permissible before."

"It freed the woman's body. Underwear began to change very quickly. Women began to shape their bodies through underclothing. The body became a very natural thing and underwear began to reveal the natural figure. Within two years, then, you could see the woman's breast move under a sweater. That happened very fast and would have been impossible before."

"It was not just a freeing of the body. It freed the spirit as well. It freed a lot of hangups. It was a statement of spirit."

To some, Gernreich may seem to be an extreme subversive who has taken aim at certain conservative, or perhaps more closely Victorian, values in our culture. But he may in fact be remembered in our cultural history as one of the age's great egalitarians.

Gernreich recalls that the topless bathing suit emerged on the fashion scene during a period of cultural revolution. He pinpoints the earliest rebellious in London where English youths who had strong Victorian upbringing began to cry out against all that was aristocratic, hierarchical and confining in their society. And there is nothing more intrinsically aristocratic and elitist than the world of fashion, Gernreich openly admits.

Soon this cultural revolution "found an identification, with young people all over the world," he says. "The young aristocracy all of a sudden began to wear workmen's clothes. A kind of rebellion occurred against dictatorial formats and there was this instinctive wanting to free yourself from the impositions of fashion."

"It began in England and suddenly blue jeans became the uniform of the masses," Gernreich observes. "You could not tell how much money someone had if he was wearing a pair of blue jeans. And it's still here with us. The whole world is still in blue jeans."

From the earliest history of fashion, Gernreich says, good taste has always been closely bound to high price and elegance. The closer people came to that top line of price tags, he says, the better dressed they are thought to be.

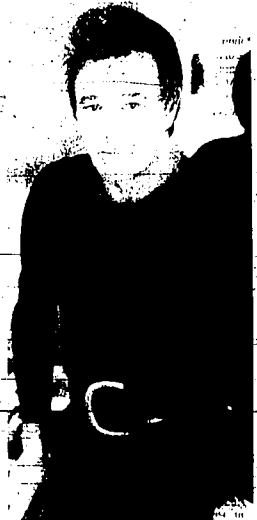

But allying himself in the early '60s with a vanguard that sought functional, non-restrictive dress, Gernreich began to resist the fashion establishment.

"I became very interested in what clothes really were," he says, "and prior to this was just one of a group of fashion designers. But the change occurred, and I began to feel what I was doing didn't really belong to my thinking."

He frankly admits: "The topless swimsuit was a symbolic statement and not logical. There was no reason to design something that wouldn't have a top."

But it began an evolution of thought which has brought him today, in a point where he will comment that high fashion "is hierarchical and fascist in nature and doesn't belong in a democratic society."

He says it is important to him that clothes be comfortable and affordable. He has slowly retreated from fashion design to home and environmental designs: His recent return to fashion to create a line of Cuzpezo leotards allowed him a change to make something both functional and affordable. In essence, it allowed him a perfect chance to be democratic.

South had a slight problem in the play. He won the first diamond in dummy and led his king to trump. West took his ace and played two more diamonds. This gave South a chance to ruff in dummy and discard his potential losing heart. But South ruffed in his own hand, led a spade to the queen back to his hand with a heart and then he ran off the rest of the tricks.

It was a matter of simple squeeze against East. On the last trump East had to chuck a heart or a club.

Book version of top movies banned from school library

WYOMING, Mich. (UPI) — The book version of the popular movie "Saturday Night Fever" apparently is a bit too hot for officials at a high school in the Grand Rapids suburb of Wyoming, Mich.

The book was banned from Rogers High School library shelves Wednesday as "inappropriate reading" for the teen-age students because of its four-letter words and explicit sex.

But that was not quick enough. School officials said 10 students managed to check out the book before it was removed from the shelves.

Principal John Pylman even said he thought the book should be burned, although there are no actual plans for such a move. Pylman did say, however, that the school will dispose of its three copies of the book.

"We've got two (copies) in our hands and we're after the third," said Pylman. "It has no place in our school. We've got a lot of good things to put into the library."

The book is had enough that it ought to be burned," he said.

The book, written by H.B. Gilmour, is based on the current R-rated movie hit starring John Travolta. It was one of 800 paperbacks added to the school's library in mid-January under a $1,500 state grant aimed at encouraging students to read.

A committee composed of parents and students selected the books to be ordered, but, as assistant school Superintendent Eugene Berends put it, "This one apparently slipped through ..."

It was a group calling itself the Interfaith Committee Against Blasphemy that persuaded high school officials to pull the books off the library shelves.

"I don't understand why they are putting this undigested version in the library where it would be available to 14-year-olds," said Rev. Wesley Manker, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene.

Snowfall contest may end today

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — The Rochester station of the National Weather Service doesn't just predict the weather. It sponsors contests, too.

For about a month now, the weather service has been sponsoring the "Guess When Rochester Will Break the Snowfall Record" contest.

Contestants and their received about 7,000 entries. Rochester has received 154.8 inches of snow this winter. The all-time record is 161.7 inches.

With a storm brewing over the Gulf Coast States, the record could be broken today, Drummond said.

Students circulate petitions

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Students at Van Nuys Junior High School don't mind if the rumors about changing their school's name are true.

They just don't want to get stuck with a name they don't like.

Steve McGlocklin, a ninth grader, announced Wednesday that students are circulating petitions around the school and suburban neighborhood asking the school board to rename their school Bubbles Junior High.

Bubbles was the pregnant hippopotamus who escaped earlier this month from the Lion Country Safari animal park in Orange County and died last week after being shot with tranquilizers in an attempt to recapture her.

University announces honors

TWIN FALLS — Three students from the Magic Valley were named to the dean's list for Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C.

They are Alicia Ann Green, Jerome; James Eldon Harper, Twin Falls; and Steven James Seaman, Twin Falls.

Students must earn a minimum of a B average at the liberal arts, coeducational Christian institution.

Miss Green is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh B. Green, Jerome. She is a freshman in the school of fine arts.

Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Harper, Twin Falls, is a sophomore attending the college of arts and science.

Seaman is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Robert J. Seaman of Twin Falls. He is a sophomore in the school of religion.

First aid classes scheduled

GLENNIS FERRY — The Elmore Chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct instructor's classes in CPR and Standard First Aid Multimedia System during the week of March 20-25.

Sandee Schwann, district safety director, will conduct these classes. This will also be the beginning training of the instructor trainer.

Advance registration is required, as these classes are limited in size. Also, instructors taking the training are required to have completed this course as a student. Preparation classes will be held today and Wednesday.

Those interested may contact Barbara Checketts, first aid chairman, 387-7665.

Aquifer measure has Senate approval

BOISE (UPI)—House legislation which would establish mechanics to recharge the water aquifer in Jerome, Lincoln and Gooding counties was approved by the Senate today by a unanimous 34-0 vote.

The legislation would provide for formation of an aquifer recharge district, which would work with the Idaho Water Resources Department to divert flood waters from Milner Dam into lava pockets in the desert of the three counties.

Floor sponsor Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell, said because of irrigation wells the flow out of the aquifer at Thousand Springs on the Snake River in the Hagerman Valley had been reduced as 50 percent during the summer months.

He said by diverting flood waters in the early Spring from Milner to the lava pockets, "we can recharge the aquifer and hold up the flow of the springs."

The water rights of those upstream and below the springs would be protected, Bradshaw said, adding it would increase the aquifer and help the flow of the Snake River and the trout farms in the Hagerman valley.

Pumping has depleted the aquifer and it can be recharged with these flood waters, Bradshaw said.

Calling it a "self-help plan," Bradshaw said there would be ample waters to fill the upstream reservoirs and then the excess could be turned into the aquifer.

The Senate also approved two bills which the sponsor said would enable a regional airport authority in southern Idaho to ask the people of the Magic Valley to vote whether they wanted to establish a regional airport in that area.

Energy Department reviews new space reactor concept

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The energy department is reviewing its plans to study a new space reactor concept in view of the recent destruction of a Soviet reactor-powered satellite, an official told a Senate subcommittee today.

Eric Willis, a deputy assistant secretary of energy, said the proposed 1979 budget now before Congress includes $2 million to start a program aimed at evaluating the feasibility of a nuclear reactor power supply in space.

But he said the budget was formulated before the Soviet Union's Cosmos 954 satellite reentered the atmosphere over Canada and scattered radioactive debris over remote areas of the Canadian northwest.

Unlike the Soviet reactor, Willis said the concept to be studied by the United States would require that the reactor be launched in a non-operating condition and that it be activated only after it had been placed in a "suitably safe long-term orbit." He said it would not be in a low orbit similar to the one that led to the Soviet mishap.

"At present we are reviewing our program and budget so as to ensure conformance with evolving national policy regarding the use of nuclear material in space," he told the Senate commerce subcommittee on science and technology.

The United States has orbited only one nuclear reactor. That was the Snapshot Project in 1965 and the satellite is expected to stay in orbit for 4,000 years.

Mel Miner explains airport plan

JEROME — A 20-year Jerome Airport plan calls for the building of a new runway and the present runway becoming a taxiway.

The final long-range plan was explained Wednesday to county commissioners and airport board members by design engineer Mel Miner of Corvallis, Ore. Because of poor flying weather Miner was unable to attend a Tuesday night public meeting, which had to be canceled.

Commissioner Mel Grinstead said the county will need to acquire more land but has a promise of land on the west end of the present runway in exchange for county land on the north.

About 27 planes are stationed at the county airport, which is located east of Grinstead said a regional airport would "not be much bearing" on the Jerome airport or the long-range plan, because "we will still have all our local airplanes."

Also attending the meeting was Dick Waite, who wants to build a three-plane hangar at the airport.

Grinstead said the hangar, which must be approved by the airport board and the commissioners, would be compatible with the long-range plan.

Grinstead explained the county wanted the plan, which was partially funded with a matching grant, to set goals for the airport and to provide continuity. "Everything has been hit and miss out there, he said."

Ward refused this prisoner

KARLSRUHE — West Germany (UPI) — When a Karlsruhe man reported to local prison guards he began serving a 16-month jail term, they turned him back.

The warden refused to open the gate because the would-be prisoner had lost his identity papers.

The 36-year-old man then went to a nearby police precinct, presented the court-issued penal order and asked for a new passport. The desk sergeant obliged and the man finally was allowed into jail.

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, March 17, the 76th day of 1978 with 289 to follow. This is St. Patrick's Day.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

There is no morning star.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

American singer Nat King Cole was born on March 17, 1918.

On this day in history:

In 1889, a submarine developed by John Holland remained submerged off Staten Island, N.Y., for one hour and 45 minutes.

In 1912, a group of young women to be known as "The Camp Fire Girls" was formed by Mrs. Luther Gulick of Lake Shabago, Maine.

In 1955, the U.S. Navy successfully launched Vanguard I, a three and a half-pound satellite, into orbit around the earth.

In 1975, the U.S. Senate Court ruled that the federal government has exclusive rights to any oil and gas resources on the Atlantic Outer Shelf beyond the three-mile limit.

A thought for the day: American publisher Horace Greeley said, "Wisdom is never dear, provided the article be genuine."

Brigades instigators of death, destruction

ROME (UPI) — The Red Brigades, who claim responsibility for Thursday's kidnapping of Christian Democratic Party president Aldo Moro, have been carving an ever-widening swath of death and destruction across Italy for eight years.

The extreme left terror group, founded in 1969, first announced its existence in 1970 by blowing an electronics firm in Milan, leaving the first of its now familiar leaflets at the scene headed by their ringed five-pointed star symbol.

Police now hold them responsible for the majority of political terrorist attacks which touched an all-time record of 2,800 last year.

In the most serious of those attacks 25 magistrates, lawyers, policemen and a journalist were killed, and scores of executives and leading citizens were wounded in a land where there is a political outrage every four hours, six minutes — a world record.

But it was not until April 18, 1974 that the Red Brigades came to prominence with the kidnapping of Genoa magistrate Mario Sossi, demanding the release of eight imprisoned comrades in exchange for his life.

Genoa District Attorney Francesco Coco ordered the men released, the Red Brigades released Sossi unharmed after five weeks and the Rome Court of Cassation promptly cancelled the release order.

From that day Coco went everywhere with two police escorts.

All three were shot to death by two Red Brigades gunmen in June 1976.

The self-proclaimed leader of the Red Brigades is 37-year-old bearded Renato Curcio, now standing trial in Turin accused of three kidnappings and forming an armed band with 48 other defendants.

Moro — a man of influence

ROME (UPI) — Aldo Moro is the most political of Italian politicians.

The president of the ruling Christian Democratic party, five times premier of Italy and five times foreign minister, he is a gentle, soft-spoken idealist with a genius for compromise.

His genius made him one of the most powerful and influential men in Italy and therefore one of the likeliest targets for guerrillas in the nation.

The terrorists acted today killing Moro's five bodyguards and spilling away the trail, 61-year-old politician in a car.

Ironically, Moro was on his way to parliament for debate on Italy's first Communist-backed government in 31 years when he was abducted.

Moro was the main architect of the Christian Democrats' deal with the Communists; as he was the decisive force between his party's first alliance with the Socialists back in 1962.

The suave southern lawyer with a white forelock in his black hair began his political career routinely as justice and education minister but jumped to prominence in 1959 when he was appointed Christian Democratic Party secretary.

Within four years he had the party firmly under control and in 1963 won his first premiership.

He stayed in power for nearly five years, heading three governments, until the Socialists walked out in 1968, accusing the Christian Democrats — but not Moro — of dragging their feet in reform.

Over the next six years he served five times as foreign minister and became the leader of his party's left wing.

His fourth government was tormented in 1974 and his fifth lasted five and one-half months in 1976 — collapsing two months before the national elections which gave the Communists 34 percent of the vote.

Politicians credit Moro's vast influence to his well-known dedication to democratic principles and to his knack of making speeches that can be read either way.

A devout Catholic who takes communion every morning, Moro always keeps a glass of cognac under his seat in parliament for tense moments.

Married and the father of three daughters and one son, he has always kept his personal life out of the public view.

ACU to spend $250,000 to change senators' votes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the American Conservative Union said Thursday the group would mount a $250,000 campaign during Congress' Easter recess to get specific senators to change their vote on the second Panama Canal Treaty.

Conceding defeat on the first treaty, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., said he believed the second treaty can be beaten after Easter "and then the whole thing goes down the drain."

"We still have a chance to defeat the second treaty. It's just a question of changing one, two, or three votes," he told a news conference opening the three-day joint meeting of nearly every major conservative group in the nation.

"We're going to target those senators who might be moved, if there were more pressure from back home," Crane said.

He named Sens. Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H.; Dennis DeConcini, D-N.M.; Herman Talmadge and Sam Nunn, D-Ga.; Walter Huddleston, D-Ky.; and Jennings Randolph, D-Va., as among those who might be selected if they all vote for the first treaty.

"We have $250,000 to invest and we will spend it if we can buy the time," Crane said.

Escort wounded

POLICEMAN Francesco Zizzi, 30, one member of Aldo Moro's escort, was wounded by the Red Brigades urban guerrillas when Christian Democratic Party President Aldo was kidnapped.

Officials take action

GOODING — Gooding school officials have taken "positive action" in response to citizen complaint over vandalism in the high school, Superintendent Gene Gibbons said Wednesday.

The superintendent met Wednesday morning with the high school student body to ask their cooperation in curbing damage to the interior of the high school and to stimulate pride in the structure which is only about seven years old.

"We're dealing with this in a positive way," Gibbons said.

Pat Costello, a teacher at the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind, told trustees at Tuesday night's school board meeting that he was concerned about what is happening to the physical condition of the high school. The vandalism is the result of student action from within the building, he said, referring to writing on the walls, holes in the ceiling and broken chairs.

Costello said he was also voicing the concerns of other citizens. He told the Times-News Wednesday he was in no way criticizing the administration, but simply voicing the administration to "come to grips" with the problem before conditions got any worse. He said the superintendent's meeting with the students showed he was handling the matter well.

In other business, it was reported teacher conferences for kindergarten, first and second grades will be held March 22 and 23.

School will be dismissed for spring break March 24 and 27.

Willis Cheney, bus contractor, discussed the bus routes with the board. Gibbons said bids will be called April 11 for a new contract.

Trustees Walter Nelson and Clark Sears were appointed to represent the school district on a joint board with city officials which will administer the tennis courts and ball field at the Gooding High School. The facility was jointly financed by the school and city and the agreement calls for appointment of this board to operate the recreational facility, Gibbons said.

Gary Neubauer, Janet Sackman and Kathy Jose, representing the Gooding Educational Association, presented their committee report on evaluation criteria for teachers.

Gibbons said teacher contracts will be discussed at a special meeting later this month. The superintendent also reported two driver-training classes are being taught by Rex Adamson and Gary Larson.

Music program set

TWIN FALLS — A refreshing musical program by the New Freedom Singers from Ricks College in Rexburg will be presented in the Twin Falls Harrison St. Stake Center Saturday.

The New Freedom Singers present a theme on the heritage of America through song. They will sing of American ingenuity, people, freedom, the family and love.

The show includes a combo and numerous soloists.

John Craner, a student from Buhl, is the leader. Sandy Greaves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Greaves, Twin Falls, also sings in the group.

Tickets for the concert can be obtained at the door.

Following the concert there will be a dance for the youth and adults.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have an opportunity early in the day to study your environment and improve conditions in the home. Later you are able to invite congenials into your home and entertain them, but don't become involved in any controversies.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Contact a financial expert for advice you need regarding a new project you have in mind. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Go over reports and make sure there are no errors in them. Make sure you carry through with promise you have made to others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Put your financial affairs in better order so that paying bills does not seem so difficult. Cut down on unnecessary expenses.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Try to be more objective in handling any matters that crop up today and you get excellent results. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Stop procrastinating and rid yourself of petty annoyances that keep you from gaining your aims. Take needed health treatments.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Fine day to be with friends and to exchange good ideas for mutual betterment, solving personal problems. Control your temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Handle those civic matters well that will stamp you as an excellent citizen. Show more concern for the welfare of family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Before you make a radical change in your affairs, think about it carefully. Avoid expenditures that are too costly.

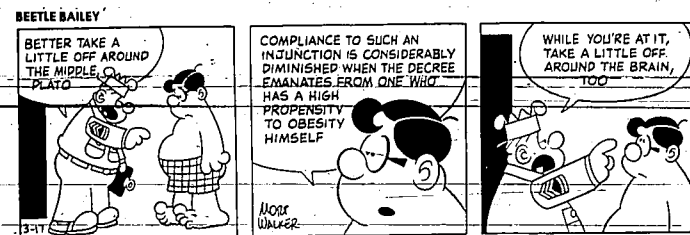

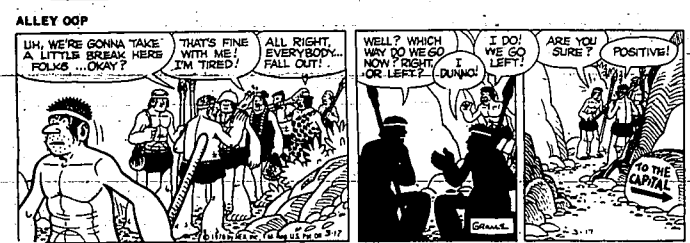

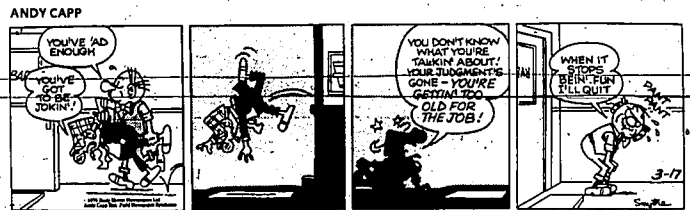

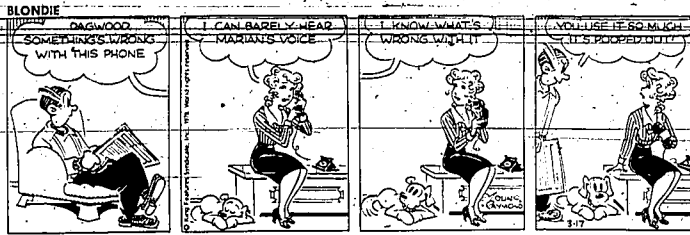

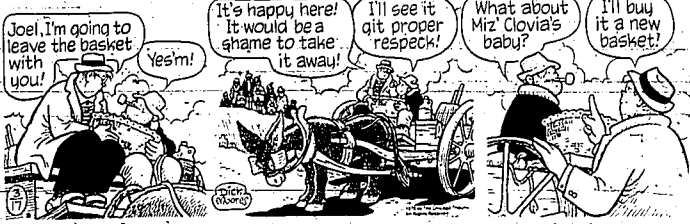

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Make plans to improve the quality of your work and become more successful. Strive for happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Modern ideas can be most helpful to you now provided you get the backing you need. Try not to criticize others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you attend to personal duties early in the day you'll have time to engage in favorite hobby later. Express happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Take time to work on a particular talent you have so you can advance in career matters. Make new friends in the evening.

BE YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ... he or she will want to know the truth of things, so direct the education along lines of investigation and research for best results throughout lifetime. Be sure to give right ethical and spiritual training early in life.

what's what

Universities have their campus cops. High schools—two-thirds of them in the big towns—have their security guards. Junior highs—half of them in the cities, too—have their watchmen. All I remember as a lad in the way of protection around the old classrooms was the school janitor, a silent soul whose boiler room was off limits. Mornings, he slept on a cot there, presumably. Nights, he swamped, out the place. You rarely saw him. And if he saw you, he looked right past you, as if you weren't there. There was only one instance of record wherein he got involved with vandals. He whipped two brothers who broke windows. And when their father came up swinging, he whipped the father, too. Nobody thought of him as a security officer, and he surely didn't get paid for that, but nothing much had happened when he was around.

LARA
Q. "Recall the girl Lara in 'Dr. Zhivago'? Did she have a real-life counterpart?"
A. That she did. One Olga Ivinskaya, by name. She was the lady in Boris Pasternak's life, according to her book "A Captive of Time."

Q. "What are the measurements of the average home swimming pool?"
A. About 16 by 32 feet with a depth of three and a half feet at the shallow end and eight feet at the deep end.

Q. "Has any U. S. Senator ever played world class hockey?"
A. Only one. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota.

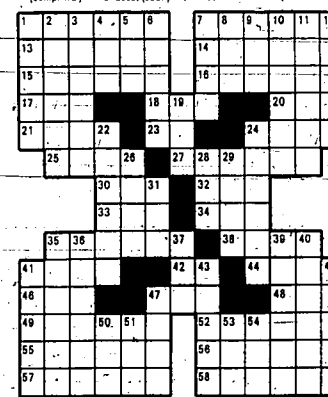

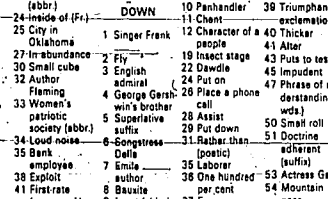

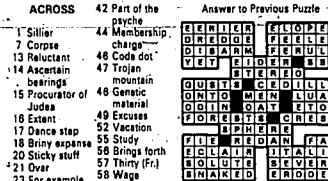

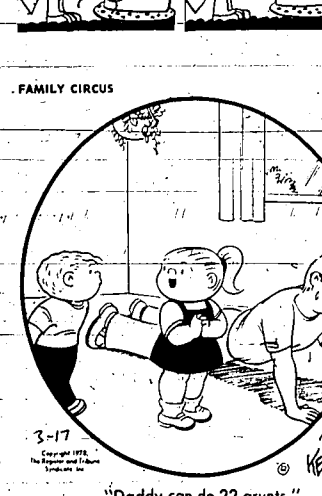

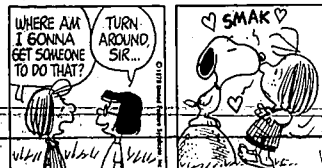

Q. "What were Franklin D. Roosevelt's dying words?"
A. "I have a terrific headache."
Q. "Are there any major ports on Africa's Atlantic coast?"
A. Just one. Walvis Bay.

GOURMET MECCA
When the Gauls lived in Lutetia, they ate raw fruit, raw fish and raw meat, slicing same with fingernails and teeth. It was a bloody mess, frankly. Lutetia eventually turned into the French capital of Paris. And this bit of history, comes to mind whenever Paris is called the fine-food mecca of gourmets.

The surface of the earth—even with its Mt. Everests and Guam Trenches—is proportionately smoother than the finest man-made ball bearing. Or so contends that scholar Buckminster Fuller.

How do you account for the fact that men devote 52 minutes a day in coffee-breaks while women only spend 35 minutes a day similarly?

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Friday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which gained 4.24 points Thursday, was ahead of the opening.

Advances led declines, 326 to 116, among the 730 issues crossing the NYSE tape in the early going.

Analysts said institutions were bargain hunting following the market's slide the first two months of the year. Many observers noted the market has held up well the past several days, indicating many investors might have discounted shorter-term economic problems.

A continued concern was the U.S. dollar. It was lower again in early trading on most foreign exchange markets.

The money supply, a item that drew attention of traders and investors, rose $1 billion in the latest reporting week. A Wall Street Journal story said the Federal Reserve System has been curbing the money supply growth for the past six months.

Some investors were encouraged the Federal Reserve Board reported industrial production rose 0.5 percent in February despite the soft coal strike, now 101 days old. The United Mine Workers union's 36-man bargain clause last Wednesday approved a third contract hammered out with operators. The vote was close, but Wall Street was hopeful the strike would approve the pact.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — United Airlines Thursday announced it was cutting its daily flight between Boise and Salt Lake City from four to one.

Airline spokesman Jack Meyer also announced nonstop flights linking Salt Lake to Washington, D.C., and Portland, Ore., for United's summer schedule.

"These are perhaps the most significant improvements in United's service to Salt Lake since we upgraded the nonstop to New York 10 years ago," Meyer said.

The airline reduced its Salt Lake to Boise service to one flight a day because the big DC-8s have been flying at less than 20 percent capacity. The single daily flight, using a smaller 727, will leave Salt Lake at 3:50 p.m., and arrive in Boise about 50 minutes later. The return flight arrives in Salt Lake at 9:30 a.m.

Meyer said Western Airlines had already filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board to supplement the Boise-Salt Lake market. He said United had expanded its service between Boise and other cities.

The new Salt Lake-Dallas flight, which will begin June 9, leaving daily at 10:50 a.m., and arriving at Dallas International at 4:35 p.m., will add two nonstop daily from Salt Lake to hand-and-bag-fled with CAB for a night coach fare which would cut the price of flying between 9 p.m., and 6 a.m., by about 20 percent.

Town meet sparks Hagerman action

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

HAGERMAN — Hagerman's town meeting Thursday night drew spirited exchange between retired persons fearing to lose the identity and values of a small town and other residents concerned about lack of growth.

Nearly two dozen residents attended the three-hour meeting to examine the problems facing the community and to work toward practical solutions. It was one of a series of such gatherings sponsored by the Idaho Committee for Town Meetings, an outgrowth of similar efforts during the bicentennial observance, according to Carl Ennis, one of the discussion leaders Thursday night.

One subject on which there was unanimous opinion was the general messiness of many yards and areas of town.

A cleanup drive, with emphasis on finding help for elderly persons unable to undertake such a physical task, was one of the final objectives formulated by the end of the session.

Other practical suggestions offered were to have a committee inspect the town to decide where traffic signs should be placed, the need for a community newsletter because it was agreed that Hagerman gets poor coverage in both Twin Falls and Gooding papers, have businessmen talk to high school students about possible jobs so more youths could stay in the area, launching a town market where people could bring their produce, and setting up a volunteer telephone network for elderly residents needing assistance with household and yard tasks.

During the initial discussion to identify both strengths and weaknesses in the community, considerable opinion was expressed that many residents want Hagerman to remain as it is. But the need for a drug store, eating places, a doctor and clothing store all were cited.

Charlie Carter, who said he moved to Hagerman because of too much growth, said "I don't give a damn if your realtors ever sell another lot. All I want is to live here and be let alone."

Admitting this was a selfish position, Carter added he, as is the case with most of the many retired residents, was on a fixed income and he could not afford to pay for "all the many services some people want." He said the town he had come from had grown from 9,000 to nearly 100,000 and "they're getting it all."

Many of the participants agreed they would hate to lose the identity and friendliness of a small town. John LeMoyné, county commissioner chairman, pointed out, "You can't have a drug store or other facilities without growth."

Eiva Wright said it was "difficult to find out anything about what is going on in Hagerman" regarding local government policies.

Some of the activities that residents feel good about were listed as the recently launched senior citizens weekly dinners and the annual Pioneer Day celebration each July 24.

Firm studies pollution controls

By RAY SULLIVAN

BURLEY — A $250,000 chlorination system is being studied by Ore-Ida Foods Inc. officials as a possible fall-as-a-moisture or preventing any future water pollution for which its potato processing plant here was cited by the state Board of Health and Welfare.

The plant was cited by the board earlier this week to have been pumping too much ammonia into the Snake River in its plant effluent since it reopened Jan. 3 after a two-week shutdown over the Christmas holidays.

A state Department of Health and Welfare official estimates it will be about a week before the agency decides if it will file a civil suit against Ore-Ida for the violation. The firm could be fined up to $1,000 for each day it had been in violation. He said there are some 15 to 20 days during which the Burley plant may have exceeded Environmental Protection Agency standards.

Dee Nelson, Burley plant manager, said the first priority is to get back into compliance with the EPA standards. That should come about by the end of March, weather permitting, he estimates.

Nelson said the second priority will be to find a fall-safe system preventing any recurrence of the current violation.

The problem surfaced in the plant's wastewater aeration treatment basin. Bacteria in the basin, which eat up ammonia particles, died during cold weather when the plant was closed in December.

"The bugs" have not grown back in sufficient numbers to keep the ammonia level below the daily limit of 405 pounds of ammonia allowed to be pumped into the Snake River when the flow is at 1,100 cubic feet per second (cfs).

That limit is higher than the original limits of 160 to 200 pounds, DHW officials said, but Ore-Ida and the J.R. Simplot Co. were granted variances last October when river flows dropped below predicted levels, on which the ammonia limit is based. The variance runs out in April.

SAUL CHAPA STANDS ON THE CAR HE EARLIER PARKED NEAR RIVER ... car slipped into the murky water Wednesday

Crowd watches car pulled from river

TWIN FALLS — More than 75 persons and 15 cars showed up to watch officials pull a 1966 Chevrolet sedan out of the Snake River above Shoshone Falls late Thursday afternoon.

The red car, owned by Gilbert Chapa of Rupert, rolled into the river Wednesday at the boat landing area after two small children in it had apparently moved the car's gearshift into neutral.

The 2 and 3-year-olds were rescued from the top of the automobile just seconds before it disappeared into about 20 feet of water in the river.

Lovers, sightseers, motorcycle enthusiasts, high school students and even a few dogs gathered at the boat landing area Thursday as a diver from Valley Towing, one scuba diver and one sheriff's deputy worked to find the car in the murky water and pull it from the river.

When the first attempt to pull the car from the river only turned up a rear bumper, a sarcastic cheer went up from the crowd.

But two hours after the crew had arrived at the scene, the top of the car emerged from the river, and by 7 p.m. Thursday the recovery was, for the most part, over. The crowd and cars that clogged the boat landing area began to disperse.

Chief Deputy Sheriff James Munn said he hadn't decided whether he would issue Saul Chapa, Gilbert's son who had driven the car to the boat landing before leaving it with his two children inside, a citation. The car had an expired license plate on it, Munn said.

EVERYBODY WANTS TO GET INTO THE ACT ... or at least see what's going to be pulled from the river depths

Drama used to portray religious history

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

TWIN FALLS — Since the earliest days man has used drama to portray the events in his religious history, according to Rev. Albert E. Allen.

The traditions surrounding the Sunday of Passion commonly known as Palm Sunday can best be comprehended in this light. Christian religious traditions have continued to use drama that in many cases is an extension of the Judeo heritage, the pastor says.

For example, the Jewish passover, still kept by Orthodox Jews, became the Holy Communion of the Christian church.

A number of branches of the Christian church begin the Holy Week preceding Easter with a dramatic procession of palms. This custom originated in the church in Jerusalem during the fourth century where it was natural that the holy sites, embellished by the pious labors of Emperor Constantine and his mother, should become the scenes of dramatic representations of the events marking the close of Christ's earthly life.

According to Rev. Allen, pilgrims to these sacred places were impressed by the ceremonies and soon similar observances were adopted by other churches. At Jerusalem the faithful gathered on the Mount of Olives on this day and with singing and waving of free branches, they escorted the bishop, riding in their midst upon an ass, into the city.

The Western church adopted the procession by the sixth century, but the ceremonies and ritual of blessing and distributing the palms now observed in the more liturgical churches actually began in France, says Rev. Allen.

At the time of the Reformation, distaste for blessing material objects caused the elimination of the picturesque feature of Palm Sunday, and in most Protestant churches there was no special commemoration of the triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

Today there is a growing return to use of liturgical drama by more of the Protestant denominations which now follow traditions that have continued throughout the Orthodox, Roman and Anglican communions since the earliest days.

This triumphal procession brings to the important events of the final week of Christ's earthly ministry. On Thursday, known as Maundy Thursday, some congregations will act out the drama of the night in which Christ was betrayed when he washed the feet of his disciples and established the sacrament of holy communion in breaking of bread and sharing of wine in their last meal together.

In some congregations all the lights will be extinguished at the close of the Last Supper, signifying the betrayal and a vigil will be kept portraying Jesus praying in the agony of the Garden of Gethsemane. This service is called a tenebrae service because the word means darkness.

In some churches, candles are extinguished one by one, interspersed with scriptural accounts of the crucifixion, with the large Christ candle symbolically carried from the church in total darkness.

Palm Sunday opens Holy Week services

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

MAGIC VALLEY — Sunday will be observed by Christians throughout the world as Palm Sunday, commemorating Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem prior to his crucifixion and the beginning of Holy Week.

Many churches in Magic Valley plan special music for Palm Sunday. Communion services are scheduled either Thursday or Friday as Christians observe Maundy Thursday and Good Friday in preparation for Easter, the high point of the church year.

A Palm-Sunday concert will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls by the Magic Valley Chorale and the Magic Valley Symphony. The Chorale, composed of singers throughout the valley, has given a Palm Sunday concert for the past several years. This year the group is joining with the symphony in a combined performance under the direction of Pat Wolliver, CSI vocal music director.

The triumphal entry into Jerusalem will be reenacted at the Fine Arts Auditorium at the beginning of Twin Falls at 10 a.m. Sunday when branches of palms will be blessed and distributed to members of the congregation. This will be followed by a joyous procession into the church, where the service will be conducted by Rt. Rev. Hanford L. King Jr., bishop of the diocese of Idaho, assisted by Rev. Albert E. Allen, rector.

At the First Christian Church in Twin Falls, the choir will present Harold DeCous's cantata, "Easter Celebration." Narrator will be James Reynolds, with Elvis Cain, Sylvia Osterman, Shirley Hazen and Shirley Vernon as soloists. The Twin Falls First Presbyterian Church choir will present three special numbers during the 11 a.m. worship service and Dick Humphreys will sing a solo. Helen Corner and Jean Pippitt will have solo parts for the choir selections.

At Eden, Sunday school children will carry palms at the Trinity Lutheran church 11 a.m. service. Confirmation classes will be received Sunday morning at many Lutheran churches.

Children will participate in a procession carrying palms at the Jerome United Methodist church. High children and adult choirs will sing for the 11 a.m. service.

Both Presbyterians will hold an agape meal with Holy Communion at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Presbyterians from throughout the Magic Valley are sponsoring a series of Holy Week services

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Twin Falls First United Presbyterian Church, featuring Dr. John R. Bodo, San Francisco, as speaker.

A native of Hungary, Dr. Bodo has taught at leading seminaries, Princeton University and Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn. He is now involved in a freelance ministry of preaching, adult education and writing, according to Rev. Bob Van Nest, host pastor.

Dr. Bodo also will address a women's luncheon Wednesday noon at the Jerome First United Presbyterian Church.

Many churches will hold communion services on Maundy Thursday. Among those scheduling this observance are the Wendell Presbyterians at 7:30 a.m., Twin Falls Methodists at 7:30 p.m., Hollister Presbyterians at 7:30 p.m., Burley and Jerome, Presbyterians and Clover Lutherans, all at 8 p.m. Jerome Methodists will have a potluck supper at 7 p.m. Thursday followed by communion service. Congregations of the Ketchum and Halley Episcopal churches will also hold potluck suppers at 6 p.m. in St. Thomas Church in Ketchum. The meal will be followed by communion and stripping of the altar.

An ecumenical community Good Friday service will be held at noon in the Twin Falls First Christian Church. Rev. Gilbert Myers, First Baptist Church and president of the Twin Falls Ministerial Association, will be presiding. Speakers will include Rev. Harold Hassel of the Community Christian Church, Charles Upton of the Twin Falls YMCA and Rev. Jacob Quiring of Lynwood Chapel. Special music will be provided by the First Christian, Methodist and Presbyterian churches. (Continued on page 18)

Street depicts day

TWIN FALLS — Some over-enthusiastic Irishman went to work Thursday night and decorated the downtown Twin Falls mall in honor of St. Patrick.

Downtown merchants said the bright green stripe painted down the street the full length of the mall was not just a St. Patrick's Day salute — specialists — but added it was right in tune with their thinking.

The stripe, about one paint brush wide, was visible to motorists and pedestrians alike — a reminder that on March 17 there should be something green in everyone's apparel, even the downtown mall.

Conference Saturday

TWIN FALLS — Residents of Magic Valley are being invited to participate in an economic development conference here Saturday to let agencies know how they hope to see growth in their communities.

Tom Flemming, director of the Region 4 Development Association, said this is one of several such conferences being held in the state. It is jointly sponsored by the regional development association and the governor's office.

Gov. John Evans will present opening remarks followed by group meetings of those attending. The conference, open to the public at no charge, will be held in the College of Southern Idaho administration building. Registration will be from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.

Flemming said the development agencies and the state want to guide growth according to the feelings of the individuals living in various communities. Some are interested in encouraging industrial growth and others are not, he said. Some communities need additional facilities such as water and sewer services if they are to accommodate high growth and will need assistance in this area before planning for additional development.

Airport Day slated

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Airport Commission has set May 20 as Airport Day this year. The date was selected at the commission's meeting this week, according to airport manager Harry Merrick.

Airport Day this year will be a celebration of the 30th anniversary of Joslin Field and of the initiation of air service to the Magic Valley, Merrick said.

Although this year's activities will not include a visit from the "Spirit of St. Louis," as last year's festivities did, Merrick said plans are being made to invite skydivers and possibly aerobic performers. A mass flight around the county may also be organized, he added. Last year's mass flight included nearly 60 aircraft.

UFO sighting reported

TWIN FALLS — The little green men from Mars may have made St. Patrick's Day visit to Magic Valley.

City police received a call Thursday night from three young men who reported they believed they had seen a UFO over Twin Falls. Bret Flynn, 20 Collegewood Circle, reported he was looking at the Big Dipper Thursday night when he saw a series of flashing or "sprinkling" lights which appeared to be running in all directions. He didn't say if the lights were green but said they remained visible for two or three minutes. The sighting by Flynn was in the vicinity of the College of Southern Idaho.

Petitioners back water power vote

By JEFF SWER

TWIN FALLS — Supporters of the water power initiative met this week to organize a drive to gather 1,500 signatures in Twin Falls County in support of placing the initiative on the ballot in November.

Ten thousand signatures have been collected so far across the state. To place the measure on the ballot, nearly 25,000 signatures must be collected by July 7.

The Hydropower, Protection and Water Conservation Act, as the initiative is called, would protect Idaho's unappropriated river, and stream water, supporters say.

To meet the 1,500 signature quota established for Twin Falls County, local supporters of the measure formed four committees to organize their petition drive effort.

Gary and Beverly Stone, Kimberly, volunteered to head the public relations committee. Gary Richardson and Barbara Justice, Twin Falls, will organize the speakers' bureau to supply speakers to groups which wish to learn about the initiative. Ina Seach, Twin Falls; Steve Parks, Kimberly; Melissa Delameter, Filer; and Bob Humphries, Buhl/Burgeo, will work in their communities coordinating signature gathering. A finance committee will be formed to collect funds to support the drive.

Local citizens supporting the petition represent a wide spectrum of interests and groups, including the League of Women Voters, the Idaho Wildlife Federation, the Idaho Conservation League, the Association of Fly Fishermen, the Association of American University Women and the Idaho Lung Association.

At least 75 petitions will be circulated in the county in the next four months. Individuals who wish to see the initiative placed before the voters of the state are urged to sign one of the petitions.

Further information on where to find petitions to sign or to circulate, or how and where to aid the drive in other ways, may be obtained at the Idaho Conservation League booth at the Magic Valley Home and Energy Show at Twin Falls High School Saturday and Sunday or from individuals involved in the drive.

Firm studies water pollution checks

Dave Wilson, environmental control supervisor for the Ore-Ida plant, said the plant had been pumping out about 1,900 pounds the last week of January, and Wednesday the level had dropped to 1,535 pounds.

Warm weather allows the bacteria to repopulate the basin faster and effect a quicker control of the ammonia content, Wilson added.

He said the company is holding in treated sludge from its West Boise treatment plant when the system was built. He said until the shutdown the plant had not exceeded EPA's ammonia limit. Nelson added the plant had been used as an example of waste water pollution control before EPA standards were changed.

Nelson also said bacteria the firm discharge point, designed by CH2M engineers. In the late 60s, was set-up to meet old EPA standards and has been updated to meet standards which are six times more stringent today than and dumping it into the basin in an effort to bring the bacteria level up to the required level.

Wilson said the chlorination method being studied would require additional facilities taking six months to build and to incorporate into the current system. It would be used as a backup unit to the aeration basin, which can be used an average of 9 to 10 months a year, he added.

He said it works by dumping in two tons of chlorine daily at had not died during a shutdown over the Thanksgiving holiday last year, or in the last several years during the plant closure at Christmas time.

In searching for a foolproof system, Wilson cautioned that the company wants to be sure the method will work before instituting it.

He said municipalities put in multi-million-dollar water treatment facilities, "and they fail, so we want to make sure what we do on will work."

Spring skiing available

TWIN FALLS — Spring skiing conditions exist in the northern area of the Sawtooth National Forest this weekend while the southern area reports report 10 to 12 inches of new snow.

The weekly recreation report from the forest service shows Pomerelle with 10 inches of new snow in the past few days for a total of 72 inches at the lodge. Roads are good, but snow tires or chains are recommended for the upper area of the canyon.

Magic Mountain, with 12 inches of new snow this week, reports 60 inches at the lodge. Snow tires or chains are also required on the road to Magic. Soldier Mountain reports 40 inches at the lodge with a skiff of new snow since Sunday.

Sun Valley has had a skiffed new snow this week with clear sunny weather but a forecast for increased cloudiness later today. Snow depths are 70 inches at the top of Bald Mountain and 30 inches on the valley floor.

Cross-country skiing and snowmobiling are both reported good in most areas of the forest. Conditions are reported very good for cross-country skiing in Prairie Creek, Galena Lodge and Hutten Meadows areas.

Softening conditions are occurring in the late afternoons in a number of areas as long as temperatures remain high. Snowmobiling will be only fair in such cases, the report states.

Name corrected

TWIN FALLS — A story in the Times-News on Feb. 26 about Lilly Norris, who may have been a pioneer in planting beans in the Magic Valley, failed to mention her name had been Lilly Butler when she first came to Idaho in 1912.

Mrs. Norris was first married to the late Luther M. Butler. Butler had other relations living in the Twin Falls area. They were the late Ralph, Orion and Homer Butler.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County members of the 71 Livestock Association voted unanimously March 7 at their annual meeting to support adoption of the Twin Falls County Land Use Plan as it stands after amendments.

Without a dissenting vote, only those members of the association who live in the county passed the following resolution:

"We the Twin Falls County members of the 71 Livestock Association do recommend that the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission present the amended Twin Falls County Land Use Plan to the Twin Falls County Board of County Commissioners with the recommendation to adopt."

Gerald Tevis, president of the livestock association and a Twin Falls County rancher, signed the resolution presented to Twin Falls County Commissioners.

TWIN FALLS — Tickets for the Palm Sunday concert by the Magic Valley Symphony and Magic Valley Choral will be available at the door prior to the 3 p.m. event Sunday at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

Singers and instrumentalists from throughout the area will combine to present Haydn's "Lord Nelson Mass" under the baton of Patrick Woliver, director of choral music at CSI. The choral has given a Palm Sunday performance for the past several years, but this year the event is a combined effort by the two groups, both conducted by Woliver. The symphony also will play the "Home and Juliet Overture" by Tchaikovsky.

Government milk purchases may stay same during '78

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One out of every 20 gallons of milk produced by dairy farmers last year wound up in government hands under the Agriculture Department's price support program, department experts estimate.

This year, the department says farmers may again see nearly 5 percent of their production purchased by the government in order to bolster the open-market price of the remaining 95 percent of the milk.

Agriculture Department analysts said in a report that dairymen last year produced 127 billion pounds of milk, up 2 percent from 1976 to the highest level since 1965.

While production was rising, commercial sales of milk and other dairy products remained at 1976 levels.

This combination of a large increase in milk production, stagnant commercial use and large industry stocks at the start of 1977 resulted in USDA purchases under the price support program amounting to a total of 6.1 billion pounds of milk, the report said.

Officials said those purchases were the largest for any year since 1971 and were "considerably more" than the combined total of government purchases in 1974, 1975 and 1976 combined.

Under the dairy price support program, the Agriculture Department starts by setting a floor price for manufacturing-grade milk, which is used in making butter, cheese, nonfat dry milk and similar products. Currently, the floor is $9 a hundredweight.

Next, the department converts the milk-price floor into equivalent purchase prices for butter, cheese and nonfat milk powder. These prices are set at levels which, theoretically at least, will allow processors to cover their operating margins with enough left over to pay farmers the support price for raw milk.

Finally, any processor who cannot find a commercial buyer for his products at the support "purchase rate" can sell them to the Agriculture Department at the support level.

The support rate, meanwhile, is about to go up again.

A section of the omnibus farm bill approved by Congress last year provided for an automatic boost in supports this April 1 — midway through the current marketing year — if that should be necessary to bring the floor into line with recent changes in farm costs.

Agriculture Department officials have already reported that changes in farm cost indexes are expected to ensure an increase of 10 to 15 cents per hundredweight in the dairy support price.

That boost of about 5 percent will bring the floor to between $9.40 and $9.45 beginning April 1.

Analysts say commercial sales of milk and other dairy products could rise about 1 percent this year, breaking off the plateau of 1977.

Consumer incomes are rising, experts say, and some shoppers are expected to begin buying more cheese as beef and pork prices go up this year.

But while commercial sales are rising, production is also expected to be going up again, experts said. As a result, a Dairy Situation report predicted that the Agriculture Department may have to buy up to about 6 billion pounds of milk again this year in order to keep market prices from sagging below the increased support level for farmers.

For consumers, the report said, retail prices for milk and milk products for 1978 as a whole probably will average about 4 to 6 percent above last year.

Real natural gas flowing into Chicago kitchens now

CHICAGO (UPI) — Within a few weeks, Chicagoans will be getting a different kind of natural gas to heat their ovens and ignite their stoves.

Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, a Peoples Gas Co. subsidiary, will soon be pumping methane — garnered from the distillation of cow manure — from the Oklahoma panhandle north to the gas-equipped kitchens of the city.

A plant in Guyton, Okla., is recycling the manure into methane and two valuable by-products, high-protein feed for livestock and nitrogen-rich liquid fertilizer.

The $3 million plant was designed and built by California Recovery Anaerobic Process Inc. and can handle 1 million pounds of manure per day.

genuine natural gas. It's the real thing."

Company officials said they will produce enough fuel to keep 3,500 Chicago homes energized each day.

And, officials said, as many as 107,000 head of cattle at three nearby feedlots can be counted on with regularly to keep the recycling plant supplied.

James Samis, president of the company, said the plant now has "quite a hill of manure" in its supply tank.

He said the pipeline company has completed a facility for compressing the methane for transmission to Chicago. Samis explained the process will involve mixing the manure with water into a liquid, extracting the fiber content and feeding the watery residue into bacteria-filled tanks.

Farm group leader assails emergency bill

DENVER (UPI) — The president of the Rocky Mountain Farmers Union has blasted the emergency farm bill for offering what he called inadequate loan and target level prices.

Under the proposal, farmers would receive $2.3 billion at the rate of $75 per acre to pull 31 million acres out of production in 1978. The loan level for wheat will go to $2.30 a bushel and the target level will reach $3.

"It's a bone being thrown to farmers that they won't accept. I can see the whole country-side erupting," said John Stencel Wednesday after the National Farmers Union also announced opposition to the proposal.

Stencel said the production cutback was necessary, but the target and price levels must be raised by at least $1 per bushel. A bushel of wheat currently sells for about $2.25, although production costs are closer to $5.05.

The large set-aside program was designed to compensate farmers for the low loan and price levels by permitting them to avoid deficiency payments, Stencel said, but agriculture producers need cash, not tax credits.

Meat, potato futures skid sharply

CHICAGO — Meat and potato futures plunged Thursday but grains and metals were stronger.

Commodity News Service said massive profit taking sent live cattle skidding with April and June closing limit down and other months off 130 to 45 points. Limit down moves in the pork complex also contributed to the break.

Feeder cattle touched limit lows in all months but January before settling 40 to 150 points off. Long liquidation was a factor but the fall was mostly in sympathy with fat cattle.

Live hogs lost the 150 point, limit in all but two deferred months with weakness influenced by other meats.

Pork bellies closed limit down in all delivery months as weakness from other meats spilled over.

Malpe potato futures advanced early in the day, then stalled around 4.80 per hundredweight basis May and drifted slowly downward. Trade selling was noticeable and leftover lots evened up on the close, further eroding positions.

Continuing uncertainty over a study of wheat potato acreage was a major market factor.

May western russets closed at 7.40 cwt., unchanged.

Wheat ended mixed, only fractionally off the previous day after trading in a slim range. An early rally which produced gains of 3 1/2 cents in May and December was fueled by a soybean rally but later followed off down.

Speculative buying in corn accounted for much of the demand which firm prices at the opening. March through September were strengthened with a late rally and shaved new crop month losses. The close was 2 cents up to a quarter cent off.

Meat was strong in the soybean complex, where beans seasawed to gains of 7 to 2 1/2 cents. Meat gained 4.50 to 1.20 and oil closed 3 1/2 points higher in the spot month to 37 points off in September.

New York Sugar 11 continued its technical upswing with a gain of 3 to 12 points, mostly a lack of selling. Volume was 3,877 lots.

New York Comex gold regained Wednesday's losses for gains of 200 to 210 points on an up-down day.

Texas cockroach may help astronauts

LUBBOCK, Texas (UPI) — A species of West Texas cockroach about the size of a thumbnail is helping scientists study the possible effects of long space flights on astronauts.

Dr. H. Bernard Hartman, associate professor of biological sciences at Texas Tech University, said most organisms have some form of nervous system that creates equilibrium.

But Hartman said future astronauts could face journeys of many millions of miles — to distant planets — without the accustomed gravitational pull of earth, thus throwing their equilibrium off balance moments at a time.

The Arenivaga cockroach has such a simple system — only four cells — that it's easier to study what happens when that system doesn't work, he said.

The gravity receptor system of the cockroach Arenivaga is the simplest, most accessible and readily manipulated of any yet described," said Hartman.

"Once we understand the rules by which Arenivaga's nervous system signals orientation to gravity, it may be relatively easy to prepare a model to aid the understanding of animal functions in more complex nervous systems like that of a human."

The tiny Arenivaga burrows in the soil up to 3 feet deep and comes up at night to feed on the surface. By using it's "equilibrium receptors" that look like "little weighted balls hanging on a stick," the insect crawls through its tunnel without the help of light.

"The receptors, which send impulses through the nervous system, enable the insect to determine whether it is leaning forward, backward or sideways."

"Most organisms have an equilibrium receptor to keep from walking sideways. This thing is so simple, consisting of a few cells, you can ask a few questions about what happens if you lose the cells. It appears confused to them."

Oral timber sales return

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, in the aftermath of a law written by Sen. Frank Church and signed by the president in February, has instructed the chief of the Forest Service to draft regulations which will return oral auction bidding on national forest timber sales in the Northwest.

Bergland sent Church a copy of a letter he has sent to John McGuire, the chief of the Forest Service. Church said the letter acknowledges final acceptance by the administration of "our position that oral auction sales are necessary to protect forest-dependent communities."

"The battle has ended," Church said. "Reason and common sense have prevailed. After months of explaining to the top levels of the administration the reasons why westerners need open bidding on Forest Service timber sales, the department has adopted our view and dropped their opposition."

In his letter to McGuire, Bergland said "It is clear" the new law was written because those who supported it believed that the changes in bidding methods in the West were resulting in unnecessary economic disruptions.

"In view of their concern, I want to promptly circulate draft regulations for public comment which will reflect the congressional intent as expressed in this legislation."

Bergland told the Forest Service chief to draft regulations to "protect the overall public interest while permitting a return to oral auction bidding in the western forests where normal competition makes collusion unlikely or where it appears necessary to protect dependent communities."

Busch eviction bid rejected

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A judge Wednesday rejected a request by August A. Busch Jr. for permission to evict his estranged wife from the Busch estate.

St. Louis County Circuit Judge Milton Saitz denied Busch's request for dissolution of a temporary court order prohibiting him from evicting Gertrude Busch from her cottage.

Mrs. Busch, 62, retired chairman of Anheuser-Busch Inc., ordered her off the estate, named Gertrude's name.

Busch argued that the order forced him to "expend large sums of money" to provide his wife with luxuries. Mrs. Busch's attorney said the order merely allowed her to live in the style to which she had become accustomed until divorce proceedings were completed.

Busch, 78, and his wife, 50, have filed for divorce in separate suits, contending their marriage of 26 years is irretrievably broken.

Mrs. Busch has lived in the cottage since she and her husband separated in September.

The couple had seven children, one of whom died in an auto accident.

Busch underwent two hours of surgery Tuesday for replacement of his left hip joint. He is expected to be hospitalized two to three weeks. Because of the surgery, he was unable to appear in court.

Up the limit

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI) — There is a limit to what movie goers will pay for a candy bar — about 75 cents.

That is the calculation of theater owners attending Showest '78, a gathering of 800 delegates from the movie business.

Harold Cheever, owner of a theater concession business based in Salt Lake City, said candy prices are approaching "a danger level" eventually nobody will buy.

He suggested that 75 cents is as much as moviegoers will pay. Most of the audience agreed and he suggested that if a brand of candy bar costs too much wholesale to sell at that level "it should be dropped."

Judges file suit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two federal judges have filed suit in U.S. District Court in an attempt to get a cost-of-living raise granted by a 1976 presidential order but denied by Congress.

Senior U.S. District Judge William J. Campbell and Judge Hubert L. Will contended Tuesday that they and some 600 other federal judges were entitled to a nearly 4.8 percent increase under the October 1976 executive order, but that Congress failed to appropriate adequate funds for the raise.

The suit asks the court to order the government to retroactively restore the specified raise to various types of federal judges whose appointment predate July 1, 1977.

Similar suits were being filed by federal judges in New York, California and Louisiana, the Chicago judges said.

Appeals court judges currently receive $37,500 a year, while district judges get $34,500.

The complaint challenges the constitutionality of a July 1977 statute suspending the Executive Cost of Living Act for one year.

Congressional adjustment of the judges' salaries violated a section of the U.S. Constitution that judges' pay "shall not be diminished during their continuance in office," the suit said.

The case was assigned to Judge Prentice H. Marshall.

Fullerton knocks USE from NCAA playoffs

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)— Guard Keith Anderson fired in a 20-foot jump shot to break a tie game and give California State-Fullerton a 75-72 upset victory over San Francisco in the semifinals of the NCAA Western Regional Thursday night.

The unranked and unloved Titans pulled off their second major upset in a week by coming back from a 15-point deficit—and set-up a regional championship match with Arkansas.

Arkansas upset UCLA in Thursday night's opening game, 74-70, on the combined 62-point efforts of Marvin Delph, Ron Brewer and Sidney Moncrief.

Forwards Greg Bunch and Kevin Heenan combined for 41 points and it was the pair's outside scoring punch which carried the Titans in a second half rally.

Bunch finished with 26 points, Heenan added 15 and Anderson 12 for the Titans. The game was tied six times in the final 10 minutes, the last time after San Francisco's Winford Boyles hit a 16-footer from the top of the key to tie it at 72-72 with 54 seconds left.

Fullerton's Mike Linden missed the front end of a one-and-one with 32 seconds remaining, but the impatient Dons mistired on a 20-footer just seconds later to give the Titans the lead.

After a time out with 13 seconds to go, Anderson, a 6-2 junior guard and the second leading scorer on his team, took San Francisco defender Sam Williams one-on-one and with time running out hit a turnaround jumper.

San Francisco tried to call a time out, but the Dons had none left and a technical foul was called. Heenan added a free throw on the technical for the final margin.

The Dons, who finished 23-6 and had hoped to give outgoing coach Bob Galliard a national championship, seemed as if they would blow the Titans off the court in the first half.

With seven-foot center, Bill Cartwright and Boyles doing most of the damage, the Dons connected on 65 percent of their field goal attempts and led at halftime 44-32.

But Fullerton, as it did last week against No. 4 New Mexico, got its passing offense going in the second half. Bunch and Heenan triggered a 15-2 Titans surge and took its first lead at 61-60 on a 20-foot jump shot by Bunch with 10:24 left.

Cartwright, who picked up 19 of his points in the first half, led the Dons with 27. Boyles added 17 and reserve Doug Jemison scored 13.

Arkansas will play in the regional finals Saturday afternoon against the winner of Thursday night's second game between San Francisco and California State-Fullerton.

Unimpressed by the Bruins' mystique and national ranking, the Razorbacks took control of the game early as Delph and Moncrief led Arkansas to a first-half offensive explosion with 32 points.

Arkansas, ranked sixth, opened a 16-point lead and with the nation's best shooting team peppering the nets for a 52 percent average took a 42-29 halftime advantage.

Delph, who connected on nine of his first 11 shots, paced the Razorbacks with 23 points. Moncrief chipped in with 21 and Brewer had 18 as the 6-4 threesome destroyed UCLA's defense early and then fought off a Bruins comeback.

UCLA, seeking an 11th national title, was led by guard Hamilton with 18 points and All-American center David Greenwood with 17.

UCLA wiped out Arkansas' first-half advantage by outscoring the Hogs 12-2 in a three-minute stretch of the second half. The Bruins finally tied it 58-58 on a Hamilton breakaway jump with 8:20 left.

The Bruins took their only lead the second half moments later on a slam dunk by sophomore forward Kiki Vandeweghe.

But the root Razorbacks, whose highest national finish has been a pair of third places, responded with two free throws by Brewer and a 20-foot jumper by Delph, his first points of the second half, which gave the Razorbacks the lead for good at 62-60 with just over five minutes left.

Arkansas center Steve Schall added 7 hook shot and the closest the Bruins could come after that was four points in the final three minutes.

The Razorbacks, the nation's winningest team at 30-3, took an early 19-15 lead and then outscored the Bruins 16-4 over a six-minute period in the opening half to open a 35-19 bulge.

With Moncrief, Brewer and Delph using their quickness to solve the Bruins man-for-man defense, Arkansas repeatedly broke inside for easy baskets.

Arkansas, which led the nation with a 54 percent shooting average from the field, finished with 56 percent Thursday night. UCLA, which ended its season with a 25-3 record, shot 50 percent in both halves, but simply could not match Arkansas' fire.

After making the NCAA's final four 10 years in a row, UCLA dropped out of the tournament in the second round for the second straight year. The Bruins were beaten last year in the regional semifinals by Idaho State 76-75.

Greenwood, finished with 17 for UCLA and sophomore substitute Darrel Allums helped in the Bruins rally with 12 and led his team with 10 rebounds.

Arkansas, which figured to be outbounded by the physical Bruins, outrebounded UCLA 36-30.

Kentucky and Michigan State set showdown in mid-east regional DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Mike Phillips scored 24 points to pace five Kentucky players in double figures Thursday night as the No. 1-ranked Wildcats routed Miami of Ohio 91-69 in the NCAA Midwest Regional semifinals, setting up a Saturday showdown with No. 3 Michigan State, a 90-69 winner over Western Kentucky.

Kentucky quickly dispelled any thoughts Miami had of duplicating its upset of Marquette last Saturday. The Wildcats broke a 6-6 tie, shot into a 16-6 lead and never relinquished its advantage.

Later in the first half, Kentucky reeled off 11 straight points to go ahead 44-26 and then the Wildcats grabbed a 64-40 margin midway through the second half.

Phillips, a 6-10 senior, scored 14 of his game high 24 points early in the second half to help break open the contest.

The Wildcats, upping their record to 27-2, also got strong scoring from Rick Robey with 14, Truman Claytor with 13 and Jack Givens and James Lee with 12 each.

Miami, which ended its season 19-9, was paced by Randy Ayers with 18. Teammates Rick Goings added 12, Archie Aldridge had 11 and John Shoemaker contributed 10.

In Thursday night's first game, Earvin Johnson set up numerous easy baskets with passes to help his Michigan State teammates Gregg Kessler and Robert Chapman score 23 points each in the Spartans' 90-69 win over Western Kentucky.

The Big Ten champion Spartans, running their record to 25-4, will play the winner of Thursday night's other semifinal matchup between top-ranked Kentucky and Miami of Ohio on Saturday afternoon, for the right to advance to the NCAA finals in St. Louis next weekend.

Western Kentucky, which fell behind 21-6 and could never get back in the game, ended its season with a 16-14 record.

The defeat also marked the last game for Western Kentucky Coach Jim Richards, who is quitting after 18 years of coaching because, he said, he is fed up with today's "undisciplined" college athletes.

Johnson, lived up to his nickname "Magic" by setting up his teammates with numerous assists all night. Kessler, a 6-7 junior, and Chapman, a 6-2 senior, led Spartans with 23 each, and got help from three other teammates in double figures.

Johnson, besides his many assists, scored 13 points. Ben Carter scored 13 and 6-8 freshman center Jay Vincent added 12.

Greg Jackson paced Western Kentucky with 21 points, while teammates James Johnson, Aaron Bryant and Darryl Turner had 12 each.

Michigan State jumped to a 21-6 lead in the first 10 minutes behind the passing of Johnson and the scoring of Chapman, who got 14 of his 23 points in the first half.

Western Kentucky managed to recover later in the first half and pulled within 32-28.

But Michigan State regained control as the half came to a close. Chapman and Johnson hitting two free throws apiece and then Johnson tossing a lob pass to Charles for a dunk just before the buzzer.

The Spartans held a 32-28 halftime lead. Midway through the second half, Western Kentucky spurred to within 53-46, but the Hilltoppers could never come any closer than seven points.

Utah faces Irish on St. Pat's day

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI)—It's possible. Just north Carolina Coach Dean Smith.

His Tar Heels were faced with the prospect of playing Notre Dame on St. Patrick's Day in the 1977 NCAA East Regional. But the entire East Coast would have been decked in green and Smith wouldn't have cared. His North Carolinians decked the Irish that day, 79-77.

Now it's 18th-ranked Utah and Coach Jerry Pimm who must find a way to beat Notre Dame on March 17, this time in the opening round game of the Midwest Regional in Lawrence, Kan.

Smith-ranked DePaul meets No. 14 Louisville in the other game Friday.

"We've got the Irish on St. Patrick's Day," said Pimm. "And we're looking forward to it. We'll have to get our green socks out."

The Runnin' Utes had to scratch out a 86-79 double overtime victory last Sunday over Big Eight also-ran Missouri in their sub-regional game for the right to take on the Fighting Irish and their millionaire "subway" alumni against the nation. Utah will carry a nine-game winning streak to Lawrence.

Eleventh-ranked Notre Dame had a much easier time against a much tougher opponent in its sub-regional game, whipping 16th-ranked Houston 100-77 in what Coach Digger Phelps called "our best game since December."

The key match-up in the contest will be at center between Notre Dame's Bill Laimbeer and Utah's Buster Matheny.

The 6-11 Laimbeer scored 20 points and was major reason the Irish edged the smaller Cougars under the backboards last weekend. Matheny, called "the best 6-8 shooter in the country" by Pimm, scored a career high 36 points and pulled down eight rebounds to help Utah win the inside battle against Missouri.

But the best big man in the Regional will be playing for DePaul in the other game. Dave Corzine, another 6-11 titan, averaged 20.3 points, 11.9

rebounds and four assists per game for the Blue Demons this season.

"Dave is a pure team player," said DePaul Coach Ray Meyer. "Statistics don't mean a thing to him. When he came off the floor after our game against Duquesne, someone said to him, 'You only scored six points; that could ruin your chances for All-America.' Dave looked at him and said, 'We won didn't we?'"

DePaul has a 26-2 record this season and will carry a 13-game winning streak into the Louisville game.

"This is a very capable ball club," said Meyer. "I don't sell them short. We've won 13 in a row, equalling my personal high. We've done it about four times but then the roof always falls in. Maybe this time it won't."

"These kids are making things easy for an old coach. They have made me a good coach all year. I appreciate their efforts."

CSI posts 4-3 mark in Arizona swing

PHOENIX—College of Southern Idaho completed its "spring training" swing through Arizona Thursday and returns to Twin Falls with a 4-3 record.

"I'm excited about the team," Coach Jim Walker said after his team wound up its stay with a 5-0 blanking of defending national champion Yavapai. "If we could ever get it together, this team could be awesome. We played well against the biggies, like we knock off Yavapai and end Arizona State Jayvics' 17-game winning streak...and then collapse against the teams that a good high school team would beat. But I think its the best team I've ever had at CSI, including last year's although, we did better during last year than we did this spring."

CSI started its swing by thumping Mesa 14-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Tim Mueller. CSI banged in 18 hits in that one.

Entering the Cotton Classic tournament at Casa Grande, CSI, with Montana fresh Lee Cline throwing a one-hitter, dropped Cochoise Junior College 6-1. The Eagles then dropped a 5-3 decision to Pima as three errors in the sixth inning opened the door. The Eagles had built up a 3-0 lead on two homers by Al Romero and another by Gary Hollett.

The Eagles rebounded with an 11-1 decision over Arizona State as Brian Linden went the distance. CSI's chances to get into a championship position came in the next round against highly-regarded Central Arizona. CSI bounced into an early lead when Jimmy Goode cracked a grand slam homer but in the fifth inning Central took advantage of a couple of CSI errors and rallied to a 6-5 decision.

The loss that upset Coach Walker most came Thursday morning when the Eagles dropped an 11-7 decision to Scottsdale. That proved Scottsdale's only win in the tournament. CSI again got off to a 4-0 lead but the pitching collapsed in a rash of bases on balls, including four in a row at one point, and Scottsdale struck six times.

But that was followed by the big 5-0 decision over Yavapai. Again Cline, drafted by the pros two months ago, came up with a one-hitter and was in complete command of the game.

The Eagles stay on the road next week, traveling to Lewiston when they will compete in the Junior-Banana-Bell tournament against North Idaho, Spokane Falls, WSU Jayvics, Lewis-Clark, Edmonds, Wash., and Bellview, Wash.

CSI won't appear on the home field until March 29.

SF shares club with Oakland; A's cleared for Denver move

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The way was cleared for the Oakland A's to be sold and moved to Denver Thursday when Mayor George Moscone said he would recommend that the San Francisco Giants be permitted to play a portion of their 1978 National League schedule in the Oakland Coliseum.

After a two-hour meeting with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the presidents of the National and American Leagues and Giants' owner Bob Lurie, Moscone said, "I am making a recommendation to the Parks and Recreation Commission which if followed will clear the path for the Oakland A's to move to Denver."

"However, matters concerning this issue may be in litigation, and on the advice of the city attorney, I am making no further statement on the recommendations," Moscone said.

The Parks commission, which has authority to permit the Giants to split their schedule between Candlestick Park and Oakland's Coliseum, was to meet in executive session before a public hearing later Thursday.

If the commission agrees to the mayor's points, the sale of the A's by Charles O. Finley to Denver millionaire Marvin Davis would be imminent.

Although no one's heard Oakland Coliseum officials were on hand, Lurie said he was more than satisfied. "If the commission agrees to all the recommendations, there will be no problem," he said. "We're trying to solve the Bay Area baseball problem, and this is the way to do it."

Moscone indicated the Giants would play on both sides of the bay, probably splitting the schedule with 41 games at Candlestick and 40 in Oakland.

"We're happy on what we agreed on," the mayor said. "The specifics will be decided on in executive session and made public later today."

The name of the team, which Moscone earlier insisted remain San Francisco Giants, was one of the recommendations which he would not discuss.

Reached in Denver, Davis said there were "too many ifs" to react to the announcement.

"Show us a piece of paper and we'll see what we'll do," said Davis. "We're not reassessing the situation. We're not making any moves until there is something more definitive. We did a few times and got egg on our faces."

"The fly in the ointment has always been Oakland. Right now, things depend upon how they react to what happened today in San Francisco."

Stuart tops west for robust crown

TWIN FALLS—Robert Stuart came from behind in the final quarter Thursday night to nip West Milco and win the Stuart Invitational basketball championship.

Stuart, down by as much as 11 in the second quarter, didn't take the lead until Gary Krumm made it 45-43 with three minutes left. Stuart moved ahead 47-43 and the teams then battled through a couple of scoreless minutes before West cut the deficit to two. A free throw with a second left nailed down the victory.

Krumm paced Stuart with 15 points while Miller had 13 to spark West.

In consolation play, O'Leary broke away in the opening minutes of the second half and went on to defeat Burley 50-29. Lars Hovey had 12 for O'Leary and Dan Crane topped Burley with 10.

Messersmith sidelined

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) The comeback attempt of pitcher Andy Messersmith literally went up in a cloud of dust Thursday when the New York Yankee right-hander separated his right shoulder during an exhibition game against the Chicago White Sox.

The 32-year old right-hander was scheduled to return to New York Thursday night for an examination Friday by the team physician, Dr. Maurice Owen. There was speculation in the Yankee camp that Messersmith might not be able to return to action this season, although it was not known yet if surgery would be required.

Magic Valley all-stars point toward Monday night collision

MAGIC VALLEY—Magle Valley's basketball championship goes on display Monday night at the CSI gymnasium in the seventh annual Easter Seals all-star game.

Teams for the east and west have been working out under trying conditions this week but all the coaches believe their teams will be as ready as a week of working can make them.

Shoshone, which supplied both the girls and boys west coaches, has been out of school for three days due to flu and Coach Ed Sandy still has yet to meet Brenda Falsh of Twin Falls, one of his guards, who has missed both practices due to illness.

The girls square off at 7 p.m. Monday with the boys encounter following immediately after, probably at 8-8:30 p.m.

Both games will be played with conventional high school rules with eight-minute quarters. The only restriction is that male-to-male defense must be played. No zones will be allowed. This is intended to speed up play from a spectators standpoint and also allow the individuals an opportunity to "create" more offense.

Representing the eastern division for girls will be Harbelle Roberts of Carey; Connie Hubbsmith of Richfield; Cindy Present of Kimberly; McLane Belliston of Burley; Lori Henry of Valley; Larua Quiston and Connie Gilman of Minico; Teresa Zapala of Kimberly; Vally Ward of Haft River, and Crista Malton, Forrest Fomesbeck of Valley will be the eastern coach.

Opposing that lineup will be the western force under the guidance of Coach Ed Sandy, of Patty Kasel and Brenda Falsh of Twin Falls; Deann Sorenson and Mary Bellis of Shoshone; Karen Nieman, John, Spokane Falls, WSU Jayvics, Viner of Glens Ferry; Sue Croner of Camas County; and Tammy (Pearson) and Connie Sturtevant of Hagerman.

Lineup for the eastern boys team includes Quinn Hephworth and Tony Bringham of Minico; Jeff Kerbs and Kelly Davis of Burley; Rory Joe and Brent Hale of Oakley; Mike Bagne of Carey; Kent Bates and Jack Anderson of Murtaugh, and Leland Towne of Dietrich. That team will be coached by Berry Berg of Murtaugh.

Lary Messick of Shoshone will coach the western boys aggregation, composed of Dave Wetter and Randy Kofler of Twin Falls; Karl Emerson; Jerome; Dirk Wageman, Gooding; Jim Peterson of Wendell; Jack Shrum of Glens Ferry; Alvin Reynolds of Buhl; Jerry Giles and Jason Webb of Shoshone, and Ted Choules of Hagerman.

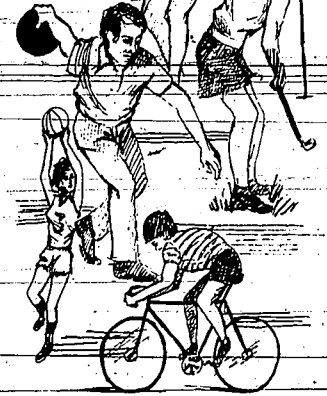

Event chairman Rolfe Mporre notes there are no pre-game ticket sales. Tickets will be available at the door Monday night at CSI.

Cowboys get rodeo schooling

By DOUG TULLIS
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Nearly every college and university holds a summer camp or school for track, basketball and football where beginning athletes can learn the fundamentals of their sport and CSI is among those schools. CSI, however, adds one sport few universities cover. That sport is rodeo.

Eighty-five men and two women are now in session at the CSI arena being instructed in the basics of saddle bronc riding, bareback riding and bull riding by three of the best riders and teachers in the country.

Resident expert in Saddle Bronc riding is Shawn Davis who is the rodeo coach at CSI. The other two instructors are Brad Mink and J.C. Trujillo.

"We try and teach them the fundamentals of the sport," Mink explained as he watched riders come out of the chute on the bulls. "The stock is geared for all riders," he explained as one of the bulls put up a mild fight before bucking the cowboy off.

Most cowboys who want to get into the sport end up learning by themselves at the thousands of small town rodeos held each year across the country. "There used to be no place where they could go and learn the right way to ride," Mink said. This is where they can find the right way to ride and the right equipment to use.

Mink said there is a dealer who handles the best equipment available at the school and the students can buy it without getting a bunch of junk at a hardware store that wouldn't hold up in rodeo use.

"Most of these guys are between 11 and 22 or 23. A few may go on to go into it professionally, and then there will be those who just end up riding in their own local rodeos for the fun of it," he emphasized.

Just as soon as the bull riders had cleared the arena, the saddle bronc riders were behind the chutes getting their gear ready and getting themselves mentally prepared.

"The mental attitude is emphasized," Mink said. "It's something you have to psych yourself up for and this is where they do that," he said as the riders concentrated on their upcoming rides just behind the bucking chute.

At the west side of the arena, about 30 riders were listening to J.C. Trujillo explain how to spur a saddle bronc as it comes out of the chutes.

"Keep your right arm bent to absorb the shock and keep your knees bent and the toes pointed out," Trujillo said as he sat atop a funny-looking contraption that resembles a cross-bill quilliter more than a horse. The machine looked completely harmless until the switch was thrown and the budding rodeo stars got the "feel" of a bucking bronc.

A few of the students didn't quite understand just how powerful the electric motor under the fiberglass hide of the teaching tool was until they let go before the switch was turned off.

"That gives them a good idea of what the horses feel like," Mink said. Trujillo stood right by each student telling them what they were doing right or wrong.

The instruction from three of the best instructors around is not all the cowboys get for their $155. They also get to view video tapes of their rides which are critiqued by each of the instructors.

"The students can only get into one event in the school because we just don't have time to teach them," Mink said. "If we had 20 or so students they could get into the different events but we don't have the time or instructors."

Another plus of the professional instructors is that they spend a lot of time just talking to the cowboys. "Sometimes we just sit around and shoot the bull about rodeos. They can ask all kinds of questions about what it's like to enter a rodeo and what it takes," Mink explained. That chance to just sit around and ask someone who has been there what it's like is one of the best parts of the school. "When these guys pay their money they not only get the school but they get us," he said.

"Some of these guys come in here and expect to ride 15 horses in the three days but they end up on about five of them. Hell, I couldn't even ride 15 horses in three days," Mink said.

None of those who enter the school are professional rodeo riders and so take time out of their work schedules to attend. "They are all kinds of different guys. Truck drivers, construction workers, you name it."

The whole purpose of the school is to save them a lot of years of injuries and get them into the sport the right way.

The program is working but not without problems. One rider ended up in the hospital for x-rays after being thrown by a bull Thursday afternoon. When someone came in and asked if the students parents or one of the instructors would give approval for series of x-rays, no one even blinked and the instruction went right on.

By all standards the school is a success. It's especially successful to the 37 students who came from 12 states, one from as far away as New York, to learn what rodeo is all about.

Three days after the school started, 35 guys and two girls will know just how hard rodeoing is by the stiffness in their legs, the soreness in their arms and the bruises on their backsides. An appropriate measure of their learning.

HIGH FLYING is the name of the game for this student of Rough Stock School held at CSI this week. The rider is watched closely by instructor Shawn Davis to see how the student is learning his lessons. The rider learned his lesson but the horse fell on his face.

Cancelled VB games scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Teams in the YWCA Women's Volleyball league will make up games which were scheduled for February 15 but were postponed out next Wednesday night.

Beutler Bernina still holds the top spot in the B league and will be able to hold onto it, as they have a 9-0 record with only one game top play. The second place team is Magic Valley Memorial Hospital with a 7-2 record.

Beutler will play Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Wednesday night and a win by the hospital team will clinch second place for them. However, a tie to Beutler will create a tie for second with Independent 3Hats. If they win their game with cellar dwelling Ottos News.

In the A League, Century Yamaha is in first place with a 7-1 record. The Four Haus is in second place with a 5-2 record and Pepsi and Coors follow with 4-3 marks and Barger Mattson.

Kawasaki and Moores Business Forms close out the standings.

Century will play sixth place Kawasaki Wednesday night. A race for third place will be determined in a game between Pepsi and Coors. Both are tied for second with 4-3 records.

Barger Mattson will have a chance to move up a notch if they can beat second place Four Haus in the 8:30 p.m. game.

In last Wednesday's games, Pepsi defeated Kawasaki 15-4, 15-13; Coors dropped Moores 15-5 and 15-9; Century beat Barger Mattson 15-10 and 15-3; Magic Valley Memorial Hospital stopped Winn Construction-Master Auction 15-8, 15-1; and Beutler Bernina topped Ottos News 15-9, 15-4.

The teams will prepare for a post season tournament to begin March 27. Teams from the league and others interested will be playing in that event.

Freestyle wrestling tourney set

RUPERT — A freestyle wrestling tournament for boys up to age 18 will be held at Minico High School Saturday beginning at 10 a.m.

The tournament is being sponsored by the U.S. Wrestling Federation and is open to all those who are interested in wrestling in the valley. Wrestlers from all over the state have also been invited.

Weightin will take place from 8 to 9:30 a.m. and the entrants will be charged $1 each to enter.

The different classes will be broken down by age and by weight. Those eight and under will wrestle and a five pound breakdown will be used to determine opponents. Other age groups will be 9-10, 11-12, 13-14, and 15-16.

There will also be a $1 charge for those who don't have a Federation card which provides the insurance for the wrestlers.

Medals for the first three places will be given after the tournament is over.

Another meet is scheduled for April 1 and will also be held in the Minico High School gym.

Those interested in the tournament and would like more information can contact Doug Gosnell at 436-9739 or by calling the Minico High School wrestling coach.

"The purpose of the tournament is to stimulate wrestling throughout the valley," Gosnell explained.

University of Wyoming cage coach gets OK to take Tennessee post

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI)—The University of Wyoming has agreed to release basketball Coach Don DeVoe from his contract, freeing him to take the Tennessee post at the University of Tennessee.

In a short, public meeting Thursday with no discussion, UW trustees voted to release DeVoe—a two-year veteran at the school—from the remainder of his five-year contract.

His resignation was submitted earlier in the day to Athletic Director George McCarty, who said a search for a replacement for DeVoe had already begun.

DeVoe, 55, will replace UT Coach Ray Mears, who missed much of the Volunteers' previous season because of an emotional disorder.

Wednesday, UT Athletic Director Bob Woodruff confirmed that the school had offered DeVoe the position. Woodruff said DeVoe's position was at Army and Virginia Tech before leading the Cowboys—"qualifies him as one of the top coaches available."

"He comes to us with the highest recommendations from those who have been associated with him at other universities," Woodruff said.

By taking the UT post, DeVoe leaves the Cowboys with a 125 record this year.

"My only regret is that I'm not going out as a winner," DeVoe said in an interview.

"Because of, intelligibility, illnesses and injuries, we just could not put the things together."

After five years and an 88-45 record at Virginia Tech, DeVoe took over a Wyoming basketball program that languished at the bottom of the Western Athletic Conference. Picked to finish last in 1976-77, the Cowboys surprised fans with a third-place, 8-6 record and a 1,710 overall.

He was paid $30,000 annually by the Laramie school, but would not say how much Tennessee had offered. UT officials said they were unable to furnish that information.

"I'm going on a five-year contract that I'm very pleased with," he said.

McCarty said he was not surprised at the move, because—UT officials—had gotten UW's permission before approaching DeVoe.

UW trustees "expressed interest in wanting me to stay," DeVoe said. "They realized it was a good move for me professionally and I know they didn't want to stand in my way."

DeVoe was a walk-on at Ohio State and played for two Big 10 championship teams. When he graduated in 1964, he assisted then Army Coach Bobby McMillan, continuing in that role until 1969.

He began his head coaching career at Virginia Tech, leading them in the following season to the National Invitation Tournament crown with a win over Notre Dame.

Dorsett charged with disorderly conduct

DALLAS (UPI)—Police today charged Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett with disorderly conduct for interfering with the arrest of a woman friend on drug charges.

Dawn Waatlif, 27, was driving the car in which Dorsett was a passenger, Hix said. Dorsett "just generally would stay out of the way while the arrest was being made," the sergeant said.

The woman was released from the city jail on a writ of habeas corpus and Dorsett posted a $55 bond.

Dorsett can either contest the charges at a later date or forfeit the $55 fine, Hix said. The narcotics charges will be investigated.

North Idaho drops Essex in NJCAA

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI)—Duane Richardson scored 20 points and James White added 19 Thursday night to lead Niagara (N.Y.) to a 74-70 quarterfinal victory over Columbia State (Tenn.) in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

Middle Georgia faced Anderson (S.C.) in Thursday's last game.

Niagara sped to a 47-26 halftime lead and never trailed, but Columbia State rallied through the second half to narrow the margin. Roger Hayes led Columbia with 20 points and Rusty Poole added 18.

Duane Trares hit a long jumper in the final two seconds to lift Casper (Wyo.) to a 75-75 consolation decision over Westark (Ark.).

Westark led 42-29 at the intermission and held an edge until the closing minutes. With 41 seconds to play, Casper pulled to within 75-74. Gerald Mattison led Casper with 25 points and Trares finished with 12. Del Gray paced Westark with 24, followed by Arthur Banks with 20.

Scott Thomas and Willie Young scored 17 points each to pace North Idaho to a 79-59 decision over Essex (N.J.) in another consolation game.

North Idaho took a 36-28 halftime lead, but Essex came within two points in the second half before North Idaho raced away with a 26-8 spurt in the final seven minutes.

The loss eliminated the New Jersey club, which finished its season at 31-5. Angel Cruz led Essex with 22 points. Also in double figures for North Idaho were Randy Wilks and Joe Hart with 14 apiece.

Shack Leonard hit 15 points and Mike Bennett added 14 to lead North Beach (Fla.) to a 68-59 win over Mesa (Ariz.) in earlier consolation action.

Mesa jumped to a 35-30 halftime margin, but the Florida club came back to go ahead for good, 50-47, with 9:10 to play. Charles Farrell paced Mesa with 17 points.

Adam Bendle and Douglas Worthington paced Western in another consolation match.

Four charioteers bid for world title

JEROME — Four Magic Valley racers will carry the Snake River Chariot Racing Association banner into the world championships at Pocatello this weekend.

The four, along with seasonal winners from the association's races, were honored at an awards banquet in Jerome Wednesday night.

George Juker and Chuck Ewing retired the traveling trophy with their third association championship. Second place went to Sonny Giltner and Wes Dunn; third was Don Vandenbos, and fourth went to Harold Peterson and Thig feed lots. Those four are eligible to run in the championships this weekend. Collecting fifth and the Fred Ray memorial trophy was D.R. Thompson.

Jennett Juker won the colt division title, followed by Lyle Wonderlick in second and Lee Larson in third.

Peterson also was given special recognition for his second place division finish in the recent state cham-ionships. It was reported the 1978 state meet will be held in Boise, leaving eastern Idaho for the first time ever.

Also receiving special thanks was Charles Thompson, representing Schiltz beer, for the support he gave the association during the year. Thompson also presented Juker with a "cham-plonship" coat.

Three share lead in tourney

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Playing in high Santa Ana winds which created slow play, Penny Pulz, Amy Alcott and Silvia Bertolacini grabbed a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the second annual Kathryn Crosby Golf Classic with under-par 71s.

But darkness halted play with nine golfers remaining on the course. They will finish Friday morning before the second-round can be started for the 21-player field. Players left on the course included defending champion Sandra Palmer.

It took more than six hours for some threesomes to get around the 6,212-yard Rando Bernardo golf course as winds gusting up to 35 mph dealt with muddy conditions left over from last weekend's heavy rains.

Tied for fourth at par 72 were Betty Burelind and Paul Bradley.

The winner of the last two LPGA tournaments, rookie Nancy Lopez, led a group of five at 73. Others were Susie McAllister, the last player to finish, JoAnne Carner, Donna Young and Jan Stephenson.

Bertolacini, a native of Argentina, had the most inconsistent round of the day, collecting six birdies and five bogeys for a 34-odd ave-

Area coaches host clinic at Jackpot

JACKPOT — About 100 coaches from throughout southern Idaho will converge on Jackpot this weekend for the first annual Idaho fourth district coaches association clinic.

Association president Jon Jund of Buhl said the clinic had attracted 80 pre-clinic registrations, indicating the goal of 100 would be reached.

"We feel this will be an outstanding clinic," Jund said, "because the speakers are high school coaches and they will be talking about the things high school coaches can do. So many times the clinics that feature college coaches have so many things that just aren't applicable to high schools in terms of talent, time and money."

Jund said the clinic will start at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the Club 93 convention center. Jim Koetter, Highland head coach, will discuss the passing game for grid coaches while Charles Henry of Capital will speak on "installation of intensity in your basketball program."

Jon Giannandrea, former Boise head coach, will talk on the multiple flex defense and Les Roh of Idaho Falls will discuss the philosophy of developing the big man in the second portion of the opening session.

From 1 to 2:15 p.m., Ted Norman, Jim Carberry of Boise and Koetter will speak at the football session with Tom Anderson talking about off-season basketball. Jerry Kleinkopf of Twin Falls, sprinting techniques and relay racing, and Tim Dunne of Jerome, distance running and cross-country training.

The clinic banquet is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Carberry and Norman will be on the football speakers' stand Sunday morning while Henry will talk about basketball and Ed Jacoby will speak on the triple jump in track.

The clinic winds up from 2:15 to 3 p.m. with Keith Carlton discussing development of a high school training program.

Michigan official defends NCAA role

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — University of Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham said Thursday a "distorted portrait of the NCAA is being drawn in a congressional hearing."

"The picture being painted in Washington of the NCAA offers little resemblance to the NCAA I have known and been associated with for 30 years," Canham said.

"It's about time the institutions of this country which have benefited so much from the administration of amateur athletics by the NCAA step forward and set the record straight."

"I agree wholeheartedly with NCAA President J. Nels Leistikow has — as he put it — resulted in a distortion of facts in full. And Thompson put it mildly," Canham said.

The House Oversight and Investigations Committee is conducting an investigation of the NCAA and how it deals with member transgressions. Among those testifying were officials of Michigan State and Minnesota. Two Big Ten schools who have been put on probation by the organization during the decade.

"I have been waiting patiently for some favorable testimony in front of the House Oversight Committee," Canham said, "but to date we have only seen negative testimony — and that mostly from those who have been charged with NCAA violations and penalized."

"To me, that is not fair treatment. The NCAA is not perfect, but it is an ever-changing organization and the faculties of the colleges and universities should determine our athletic destinies, not congressional committees or individual congressmen."

"I think it is time for the fans in this country and the educational institutions who are members of the NCAA and who have benefited from the NCAA administration to come forward."

Canham said he had not seen or heard of a single case of NCAA intimidation or reprisal in more than 30 years' membership in the organization and that intercollegiate athletics would be "an absolute shambles" without it.

"If a cigarette doesn't have taste it has nothing. And my Winston is all taste."

DEALER'S CHOICE.

THE SUPER HIGHWAY TO NEW CAR SALES

WHY A DAILY NEWSPAPER?

Why should a car dealer advertise in the daily newspaper? Sure, the factory might be doing its job, over the long haul, selling the car's name and reputation. But in today's competitive, consumer-oriented market, image is not enough. It's local advertising, right in the local papers, that steers those prime prospects into the showroom. It's this local advertising, in the daily newspapers, that helps to sell cars, service, price and, in fact, dealership. Because newspapers reach the most prospects at the best cost — a cost that a dealer (and the dealer committee) can afford.

LET'S START WITH THIS BASIC FACT.

Just about everybody reads the daily paper. Three-fourths of all adults read the paper every day. So newspapers give the broad coverage that serves as a base for the more specific coverage dealers want to achieve with their prospects. People read the paper thoroughly, because they don't want to take a chance on missing anything important. For example, 81% of the men readers open to all pages of the paper... and 85% open to the general news pages. And 91% of the women readers also open to the general news pages. Each part of the page is well-read. So, no matter where the ad appears in the paper, the dealer's prospects can see it.

LET'S FACE IT.

Because, let's face it, dealer prospects really want help. They want to read dealer ads. When they are in the market, ready to buy, prospects will consult the auto ads. And these prospects, who do read the auto ads, read them regularly — 30% will read the auto ads every day.

In all, 84% of these new car prospects will read the auto ads in their paper at least once a week. And these customers will consult the ads in both the classified section and the other sections of the paper. Since car dealers sell cars every month of the year, they want to invest their money where there is no fall-off in audience, no summer slump, and no second-season returns. And newspaper readership remains high all year. A dealer can match his advertising schedule to seasonal sales curve, without any loss of coverage.

A dealer sells cars every day of the week. Prospects shop for cars every day of the week. Two-thirds of the prospects report no preference at all, any one day of the week. Newspaper coverage is high every day of the week, so your chances of catching prospects are excellent. So car dealers have to be consistent in advertising — because 6 out of 10 new car buyers will make their decision and make their purchase, within just two weeks of the time they start looking for a new car.

WHAT'S THE BEST WAY?

So, what is the best way to reach the most prospects in your market? Well, what about radio? A dealer could buy spots in the morning drive time, when motorists are in their cars, on their way to work. The media experts say that this is the best time to reach new car prospects with radio commercials. But in this example, one spot on each of the five leading stations, during this peak driving time, will reach only 3 out of 20 prospects.

Or, a dealer could try TV. Buy a spot on each of the leading TV channels during evening prime time, and you reach 6 out of 20 prospects.

But nobody buys just 1 radio spot, or 1 TV spot. You buy lots of spots, on lots of stations. And that's just it. You have to buy lots of spots, to get anywhere near the coverage of one newspaper ad. You would have to buy 6 times the radio spots just to increase the coverage from 3 to 6 out of 20 prospects.

Because newspapers provide the broad coverage you need — Newspapers, in fact, are your super highway to sales.

NEWSPAPER READERSHIP HIGH AMONG NEW CAR PROSPECTS

And newspaper readership is highest among the best new car prospects. The people to reach with new car advertising messages. Upper income adults, for example, are better-than-average newspaper readers. Remember that was said earlier, three-fourths of all adults read the paper on the average week day. Well, among those who make $15,000 or more a year, readership climbs to 82%.

And here's another way to look at new car prospects. People who purchase new cars more frequently. They are better than average newspaper readers, too.

And people who own more than one car. All of the best prospects are the best newspaper readers.

But television does it just the other way around. TV does its best job covering the people who are the least likely to buy new cars. The best prospects, the upper income people, are the ones who watch the least TV, watching a total of less than 20 hours a week.

And, of course, some people just don't watch very much television at all. Here we see that one-fifth of all adults do 40% of the TV viewing. And at the other end of the scale, one-fifth of all adults watch hardly any television at all. And, remember, those heavy viewers are at the lower end of the income scale, while the light viewers are the upper-income people — the best prospects.

How does all this translate into sales for the car dealer? Can they reach prospects successfully with TV? Well, the heavy viewers, who soak up 40% of the TV viewing, include only 15% of the people that they want to reach, the new car buyers.

And down at the bottom, that 20% of the adults who watch practically no TV at all — they're going to buy 22% of the cars. Or, let's take the 2 lightest viewing fifths. That's 40% of the adults, accounting for only 16% of the total viewing. Yet they buy 45% of the new cars.

These light viewers are dealers' best prospects. But a schedule of TV commercials is going to miss most of these prime prospects. Now, let's say more spots are added to the TV schedule. Or spots are added to the factory's TV schedule. Does this eliminate the mismatch between TV viewing and new car prospects? No, what it does is pile more spots on the heavy viewers. And it continues to miss most of the good prospects, the light viewers.

Of course, one buys a TV schedule selectively, so that you get the best possible audience. And for automotive advertisers, that seems to indicate sports programs, such as football because the experts tell us that sports programs are what all the men are watching.

Well, when we divide the male football viewers into 5 equal groups, we see that one-fifth of the audience is doing nearly half of all the football watching. But they buy only 16% of the new cars. The light-viewing fifth, the ones with better things to do, account for only 3% of the viewing. And they buy 10% of the new cars.

There is still another group — nearly half of all men watched no football at all during a 2-week test period. Yet they buy 38% of the new cars.

Can radio do it? Well, there are so many stations to choose from, in any market, that the total audience is carved up into tiny fragments.

Take a look at this example. In Cleveland, there are more than 30 stations slugging it out. And the top station gets only 3% of the adult listeners during peak morning drive time.

And even if you reached all the radio audience during morning drive time, you still would miss a lot of people. Because only 22% of the adults are tuned in to any radio station during the average quarter hour of morning drive time. This same pattern of fragmented radio coverage holds true in any market, because of the vast number of stations on the air.

But newspapers, with their broad coverage, particularly among best prospects, can bring all your potential customers together, where you can reach them all at once.

YOU HAVE A JOB TO DO

But there is one other very important factor to consider, something that these audience measurement figures do not include. That's the advertising message itself.

You have a big selling job to do, and it requires big selling power to do the job. To tell the customers about the product, and price, and EPA mileage figures, and features, and options, and warranty, and availability, and service, and location, and hours, and reputation.

It would be difficult to cram all of this vital information into a 30-second TV or radio spot.

TAKE IT FROM THOSE WHO KNOW.

Plunging with its massive $15 billion plus sales into the heart of the television-newspaper advertising issue, Sears, Roebuck & Company, the country's largest retailer and biggest retail advertiser, is making a significant media change this year.

Those who believe that national and regional retailers are using television more as a selling tool may be surprised to learn that the Chicago-based merchandising giant is cutting back on this practice, at least locally.

In 1977's first six months, Sears increased its newspaper advertising spending by 15.6 percent in 38 key cities. Meanwhile, it cut its spot television advertising in those cities by 11 percent.

The reasons offer some insights into how a multibillion-dollar company changed its marketing direction, saw its traditional sales gains begin to slip because of it and then quickly reversed itself.

HAVE IT YOUR WAY.

And the nice thing about newspaper advertising is that newspapers are flexible enough to fit the requirements of any budget.

You can buy anything from a classified liner ad, or a little box ad, to a full page, or even a two-page spread. Or a special section in the paper, as many dealers have done. You can run an ad in black-and-white... with one color added... or in full color. You can run all copy, or you can combine copy with illustration.

STUDIES SHOW ADDING BROADCAST TO EXTEND REACH IS NOT COST EFFICIENT

One of the most popular approaches of broadcast salesmen today is to try to convince small-and-medium sized retailers to cut down on the size or the frequency of their advertising campaigns in the Times-News and use the "extra" money in broadcast to reach more people.

The approach sounds reasonable but it is really a very expensive way to extend reach because a majority of the audience for radio and TV are also readers of the Times-News.

This means the retailer actually is adding to frequency and is paying a higher price for the small amount of additional new people he might reach.

Clearly, to reach non-Times-News readers through broadcast the cost-per-thousand is excessive. Extreme caution is suggested to retailers being confronted with this broadcast sales pitch.
