Prices soar anew

© Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Led by dramatic increases in food, beverage and housing costs, the Consumer Price Index rose 0.8 percent last month, the Department of Labor reported Friday.

The March increase in prices means that if the rate of inflation for the first three months of 1978 continues at the same pace for the next nine months, the Consumer Price Index would rise 9.3 percent this year.

That would be a dramatic increase from last year's annual rate of 6.5 percent, and comes dangerously close to signaling a return to double-digit inflation.

The government said most of the inflation this year was attributable to food prices, which — based on the first three months — are going up at a compounded annual rate of 15.8 percent. From March 1977 to last month, food prices have increased 7.9 percent.

Last month, food bought in grocery stores increased 1.5 percent following increases of 1.3 percent in February and 1.4 percent in January. About two-thirds of the March increase stemmed from higher prices for meats, fresh fruits and eggs; the government said.

Continuing the rapid rise in prices, however, beef prices rose 2.6 percent and pork prices advanced 2.9 percent last month. Fresh fruit prices rose 4.7 percent last month.

Prices also rose for poultry, dairy products, cereal and bakery products, sugar and sweeteners, and fats and oil products. On the other hand, fresh vegetable prices declined — and the downward trend in the price of coffee continued.

The cost of housing also increased last month, rising 1.0 percent in March compared with 0.8 percent in February and 0.8 percent in January. Based on the first three months of this year, that would mean a compounded annual rate of inflation in that index of 9.9 percent. From March 1977 to last month, housing prices have increased 7.7 percent.

Home ownership costs, charges for fuels and utilities and the price of home furnishings and household supplies increased more in March than they did in February.

The cost of fuel for homes also advanced more than in previous months. The price of fuel oil rose 1.0 percent last month, following smaller increases earlier this year. Gas and electricity increased 1.4 percent in March — the second consecutive month of rapid increases.

After registering a 1.2 percent decline in February, the price of apparel commodities rose 1.0 percent last month. From mid-1977 through January 1978, the government said that prices in this category rose at the moderate rate of about 0.2 percent a month.

Prices turned up last month for mens', boys', infants, and toddlers' clothing after declining earlier this year, while prices for women's and girls' apparel increased 1.7 percent last month following a decline of 2.4 percent in February.

Skateboarders run injury risk

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Skateboarding, a sport for those who like pavement whizzing by inches from their bones, generates a sensation of freedom and excitement, but an increasing number of cerebral concussions, fractures, soft tissue bruises and injuries to internal organs.

Dr. Kaye Wilkins, a clinical associate professor of orthopedics at the University of Texas Health Science Center specializing in sports medicine, says the medical community is becoming more concerned about skateboarding as it becomes more popular with the younger set.

Wilkins and Dr. Mel Thornton complied statistics on injuries suffered in unorganized sports for presentation recently to the American Academy of Pediatrics and are helping the Academy prepare a policy statement on skateboarding, laying down guidelines for the sport.

"We're trying to educate the public and the physicians," Wilkins said.

He said types of orthopedic and neurological injuries seldom seen in emergency rooms in years past now are nearly everyday occurrences because, since 1973, there have been more than 35,000 emergency cases resulting from skateboard accidents nationally — an increase of five or six-fold from earlier years. A majority of the patients were between the ages of 11 and 20 and most of the injuries involved the lower arm. Wilkins said most injuries were not disabling, but many may lead to long-term limitation in other sports activities and high medical expense.

"If children are going to use skateboards, they must wear safety gear such as gloves, knee and elbow pads and lightweight helmets," Wilkins said. "Choosing a good quality skateboard and learning the hazards involved with the sport are important too."

"With children's new exposure to this sport, wrist, knee and arm injuries are happening more frequently."

He said newer designs and modification of skateboards have increased their popularity, making them faster and more maneuverable and speeds up to 60 mph have been reported.

But "hard surfaces, lack of braking mechanisms, and the absence of safety gear increase the severity of accidents."

Sidewalk and random incline skateboarding are being replaced by large skateboard parks where riders of beginning, intermediate and advanced skills face fewer safety hazards. Participants are required to wear pads and tennis shoes at most parks. "Skateboarding should be limited to safe areas where there is supervision," Wilkins said. "It should not be done on the streets."

In the Magic Valley, skateboarding did not appear to be a serious cause of injuries.

Twin Falls Clinic Administrator Louis Meigs reported three youngsters were treated at the hospital for minor scratches but none were admitted.

Spokesmen for Gooding Memorial Hospital, Blaine County Hospital, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and St. Benedict's hospital all said no skateboards had been treated in recent months for injuries caused by their hobby.

Sewage woes

Worker slips into vat, says life endangered

By JEFF SHER Times-News writer TWIN FALLS — Steve Dean, an employee at the Twin Falls Waste Water Treatment Plant said Thursday he almost lost his life at the plant last year as a result of unsafe working conditions.

Dean said on Oct. 21, 1977 he fell into a 10-foot-deep basin filled with foam and water when a grating over the basin on which he was standing suddenly overturned.

He said he was on the verge of suffocation when a fellow employee pulled him to safety.

"I know I would have died if (former plant employee Don) McNeil hadn't been there," Dean said.

Dean estimated he was in the basin 45 seconds to a minute before he was rescued, and he said he was starting to suffocate.

Dean told this frightening tale to dramatize the hazardous conditions which he feels exist at the plant.

He said despite the ever-present danger, it is common to assign only one employee to operate the plant for full eight-hour graveyard shifts.

And the designer of the plant, contacted today, agreed that the city sewage plant probably is unsafe for workers because it is understaffed.

Plant designer Jack Hammond of Hamilton and Voeller Engineers said today for safety reasons alone the absolute minimum number of employees that should be on duty in the plant at any one time is two people.

City Manager Jean Millar said today that the plant is regularly staffed during the graveyard shift by only one employee.

Millar said the plant is regularly staffed by 16 people during the day shift, four during swing shift, and two during graveyard shift.

During the graveyard shift, however, one of the employees operates the plant itself and one operates the heat treatment unit, a unit separate from the plant, Millar explained.

"Even in emergency short periods, at least one person is in attendance and with radio and telephone supervisory support," Millar added.

Hammond, however, said, "If sludge processing (the heat treatment unit) is not being used, the absolute minimum would be two people, if for nothing else safety reasons."

If the heat treatment unit were in operation, there should be a minimum of four employees at the plant, two in heat treatment and two in the plant itself. (Continued on p.2)

Scaffolding collapse toll 51; cause sought

WILLOW ISLAND, W.Va. (UPI) — Federal labor inspectors today were trying to determine why the scaffold inside a power plant cooling tower collapsed without warning, sending all 51 workers to their deaths 170 feet below.

Ten members of one family were killed in the accident at the Monongahela Power Co. plant, Thursday morning.

Carpenters, electricians and other workers tumbled to their deaths in a cascade of lumber, concrete, bricks and twisted steel.

No one on the scaffold that encircled the tower was spared when it began to disintegrate. Like a column of dominoes, they toppled to their deaths.

The Charlestown, W.Va., Gazette reported today that some construction workers had complained that some foremen were rushing the project and not allowing the tower's concrete to harden sufficiently. Construction supervisors, according to the newspaper, blamed the accident on the scaffold itself.

For Gary Steele and his wife, the tragedy was almost unbearable: ten relatives perished in the accident — an uncle, four brothers, and five cousins.

For the Duesley Brothers, Thursday's tragedy was a quick take — one brother died and the other lived. (Continued on p.2)

The Duesley brothers had been almost inseparable, but Thursday Edgar refused to follow his brother up the spiraling scaffolding.

"No, Buck, I don't want to go on that tower," Edgar said, and was working in another area when he heard the thundering crash.

John Pepler, a 38-year-old laborer, was on the ground below when the scaffold started collapsing.

"The first thing I heard was concrete falling," said Pepler. "I had just sent a basket of it up."

"I looked over my left shoulder and I could see it falling. I could see people falling through the air and everything falling."

Pepler jumped under a truck ramp inside the tower and four other workers ran to the center, avoiding the crumbling debris.

Federal labor inspectors from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration today were trying to determine the cause of the collapse. The Charlestown, W.Va., Gazette reported today some construction workers complained foremen were rushing the project and not allowing the tower's concrete to dry sufficiently. (Continued on p.2)

Turn 'em up

TWIN FALLS — The time has come to think about saving — or losing — time.

Daylight saving time returns to the Magic Valley Sunday.

That means setting the clocks ahead an hour to be in step with most of the rest of the nation for the next six months.

Daylight time takes effect at 2 a.m. Sunday, so for most Idahoans the best way to handle the time change is to turn their clocks and watches ahead an hour when they go to bed Saturday night.

That way, they will rise at the usual time on Sunday, although they will be an hour short on sleep.

In theory, that hour will be regained — at the end of October, when standard time returns. Clocks are set back an hour then.

But for early risers, the prospect of getting up in the dark once again is not one to delight them — particularly when they are becoming accustomed to rising with the morning sky light and the sun climbing above the eastern horizon.

But the embarrassment of arriving somewhere with a "joker" later on "Sunday should serve as an efficient reminder to set the alarm — and all other timepieces — ahead an hour.

Afghan leftists seize power

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Military rebels who seized power in a leftist coup in Afghanistan announced today that they had killed President Mohammed Daoud and his brother when they refused to surrender.

Fighting was reported continuing in the capital city of Kabul. "Daoud and his brother, Mohammed Naim, have been killed," the rebel-controlled Kabul radio reported in a broadcast monitored by radio Pakistan. "They refused to present themselves before the military council despite repeated requests." Diplomatic reports from Kabul, relayed to New Delhi, said the brothers were shot by soldiers demanding their surrender. Disident army and air force officers and troops seized power in Afghanistan Thursday after an hours-long bloody battle. Tanks and planes shelled the presidential palace, where Daoud lived and worked, the interior ministry, the broadcast monitored by radio Pakistan. Daoud's interior minister, Kadir Nuristani, was reported captured early in the coup. All telephones in Kabul remained cut, but diplomats with radio transmitters relayed sketchy reports that said heavy ground fighting continued in the pre-dawn hours today, tapering off but not ceasing during the day. The airport and land entrances to Afghanistan were closed. Diplomats reported few people in the streets of Kabul. Although an indefinite curfew remained in effect, Kabul radio urged people to resume their normal work.

Throughout the day the radio broadcast denunciations of the Daoud government, charging the president was the "worst tyrant, whose regime was characterized by corruption and looting." It charged he handed over the wealth of the nation to his family and foreign interests, who were not identified. Daoud himself served as prime minister of Afghanistan from 1953 until 1962, when his cousin, King Zahir Shah, dismissed him. In July 1975, Daoud headed the rescue of army officers who ousted the vacationing king in a bloodless coup and he became president. Daoud was considered friendly toward the Soviet Union, one of four nations bordering Afghanistan and the country's largest aid donor and trading partner. But as president he carefully kept his distance from army officers considered pro-Soviet and took few of them into the cabinet. Diplomats in New Delhi said it was too early to speculate on leanings of the officers who engineered the latest coup.

The broadcasts of the new revolutionary military council, headed by Gen. Abdul Khader, air force commander under Daoud and a leader of the coup, said the new government would practice "non-alignment, peaceful coexistence and the tenets of Islam."

The first announcements of the coup were laced with leftist rhetoric. They denounced the "imperialist tyranny" and concluded, "all power to the masses." The coup followed two days of unrest stemming from the murder of an underground communist leader whose funeral turned into an anti-government demonstration.

Kabul radio, then controlled by Daoud's government, announced hours before the coup began that seven persons who attended the funeral, including two ranking communists, had been arrested. How closely the announcement of arrests and the coup were linked was not known.

Safety rapped at sewage plant

(Continued from p.1) Hammond continued. When told of the staffing schedule at the plant, Hammond added, "If it were owned and operated by (private) industry, it would probably be operated with a different perspective." The practice of having only one person maintaining the plant continues today. Plant employee Eileen Wright, an 18-year-old woman, said Thursday she is assigned to work this week on graveyard shift by herself with another employee assigned to head treatment. Wright said on weekends the heat treatment unit does not operate, so she will be the only employee on the premises during graveyard shifts this weekend. Although Dean said he had been told by plant superintendent Don Snelling that if he talked to news media about conditions at the plant his job would be in jeopardy, Dean said the plant is understaffed because Snelling is replacing field employees with Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employees. Dean said the CETA employees are not being trained to become certified operators to work into plant rotation and spell the other operators but are being used only as laborers.

Collapse cause sought

(Continued from p.1) However the newspaper said construction supervisors blamed the accident on the scaffold itself. "The best description I can give you is that it continued to break loose in a circle more or less like you would peel an apple and fell 168 feet," said State Police Maj. W.F. Donohoe. "It's the worst industrial accident outside of a coal mining accident that's ever occurred in the state." The deaths were a personal tragedy to many of the residents of Willow Island and the other nearby small towns along the Ohio River. "One family alone accounted for 10 of the victims. Edgar Duetley, a beefy man with dark hair, controlled his grief until he had to go to the temporary morgue to identify his brother's body. There he wept, the tears pouring down his tanned face. "It was a heck of a way to lose one," he said. Ken Ball, who was among a team of ministers aiding in counseling relatives of the victims, said, "I've seen death before, but this, it's something you don't get used to." "I haven't seen anything this bad since World War II," said Ball, minister of Bethany United Methodist Church in Parkersburg. The tower, measuring about 360 feet in diameter at the base, was one of two being constructed by Research-Cottrell Inc. of Bound Brook, N.J., for the Allegheny Power System's $677 million Willow Island Power Plant, which was scheduled to begin operation next year.

Fire wrecks Bahamas mecca

FIREFIGHTERS estimated damage to the restaurant and dress shop at $90,000. They made no estimate of the loss at the bank, government offices and Finlayson's offices, but police said the total would reach "the millions of dollars."

managed to contain the blaze before it reached the residential area. Driven by high winds, the flames quickly spread from the vacated furniture store to the adjoining Nook Restaurant and Penny's Dress Shop and then to the branch of Barclay's Bank. From there the fire jumped to the personnel office of the Ministry of Education and then to the offices of millionaire businessman Tiger Finlayson, confidant of Prime Minister Lynden Pindling. Firefighters estimated damage to the restaurant and dress shop at $90,000. They made no estimate of the loss at the bank, government offices and Finlayson's offices, but police said the total would reach "the millions of dollars."

Documents seized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Documents seized by the FBI indicate that the Church of Scientology has been waging an "attack and destroy" campaign against government investigators, public officials and reporters, the Washington Post said today. The newspaper reported sources "close to an intensive federal investigation" of the church say the attacks have involved illegal surveillance, burglaries, forgeries and harassment. "Officials of the church were scheduled to appear in federal court today for a hearing in connection with a massive FBI raid on church offices last July in which the government seized large numbers of internal church documents. It was apparently these documents on which the post based its copyrighted article. "It's just old trash... old stuff," Gregory Layton, a spokesman for the church, told UPI. "I have been told not to comment on this thing."

East reels from storms

By United Press International Sections of Virginia are under a state of emergency today because of flooding which followed two feet of snow. Gov. John Dalton declared the emergency after about 1,500 persons were evacuated from the Roanoke area and Tidewater Thursday shortly after the storm moved out to sea. Rivers overran their banks, flooding homes and businesses in Roanoke, and tides as much as 3 feet higher than normal washed away tons of sandy beach along the Tidewater coast. The storm is the worst in 43 years, said Harry Harrison, owner of a fishing pier in Norfolk. Snow drifts of up to 4 feet closed portions of the Blue Ridge Parkway in North Carolina's mountains. A strong tide covered part of the only Outer Banks road. Raleigh was hit by relatively minor flooding. However, North Carolina officials say they expected no major problems. Thunderstorms over a large part of the Middle West late Thursday produced winds with gusts over 90 mph at Chadron, Neb., and over 70 mph at Lincoln, Neb. Scattered showers and thunderstorms also occurred across the northern Rockies. Flooding forced evacuation of several families at Lewiston, Idaho, where nearly 4 inches of rain broke the old record of slightly less than 3 inches set in 1917. Skies were generally fair in the southern half of the nation, the Ohio Valley and the Great Lakes.

Sugary foods target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission Thursday proposed possible alternatives ranging from a complete ban to counter-advertising to regulate the television ads for sugary products aimed at children. The agency is seeking comment on a three-part proposal drawn up by its staff. The proposals would either ban all advertising on programs for young children; allow only sugared snacks, and possibly cereal ads on programs primarily viewed by older children; or require advertisers of sugared food products to pay for counter-television ads for nutrition or health. The FTC, in its notice in the Federal Register, also asked whether there are alternatives short of a ban which would accomplish the same result. The FTC reacted to reports of an epidemic of tooth decay and the feeling that children are being unfairly manipulated by advertisers in ordering its staff to draw up the proposals. The action touched off widespread public debate and editorial comment. Publication of the proposals sets in motion a process which will not be completed until at least the fall of next year.

Before it decides how to tackle the problem, the agency said it needs many questions answered, including whether children of a certain age can understand they are being "sold"; whether any advertising directed at children is unfair; and whether a ban would "adversely affect the quantity or quality of children's television programming." The staff said nearly half of all ads directed at children are for food, including some for cereals which are more than half sugar. The commission staff said 20 million adults have lost all their teeth and the average American eats more than one-third of a pound of sugar each day.

ITALIANS BUY BULLET-PROOF JACKETS ... in wake of Red Brigade attacks

Police seal off Genoa in search

ROME (UPI) — Police hunting for kidnappers' former Premier Aldo Moro sealed off the city of Genoa at dawn today and started a massive search of homes, railroad stations and ships in Italy's largest port. Police did not say what prompted the search, their second major operation in Genoa since Red Brigades guerrillas abducted Moro and gunned down his five bodyguards in a March 16 Rome ambush. The Red Brigades recently announced they would "execute" the 61-year-old statesman unless 13 jailed terrorists were freed. The government flatly rejected the demand. Genoa has for years been a major stronghold of the Red Brigades, an ultra-left gang that uses killings, kidnappings and bombings in an attempt to trigger civil war and force the pro-government Communists to join them in the underground. A similar large-scale search of Genoa April 3 yielded no new results. Genoa was the scene of the Red Brigades' first major action, the kidnapping of prosecutor Mario Sossi in 1974.

Sossi was eventually released unharmed despite the authorities' refusal to meet a demand for release of eight Genoa terrorists convicted of a kidnapping for ransom and a robbery murder. The latest massive hunt coincided with a worsening quarrel among politicians over whether to negotiate with the terrorists, who only Thursday shot Fiat labor relations official Sergio Palmieri in the knees outside his Turin home. The attackers, two men and a woman, fired at least 12 shots at Palmieri's knees, breaking both of them, before fleeing by car. An anonymous caller later said the Red Brigades took responsibility for the latest strike. But Moro's fate was still an agonizing mystery with no further word from the terrorists since Monday. As the war of nerves dragged on — Moro entered his third day of captivity today — the split between politicians divided over the merits of trying to negotiate with the kidnappers intensified. Most political parties including the second-rank Communists remained solidly behind Moro's own Christian Democrats in refusing to negotiate. But the Socialist Party stepped up its calls on the government to try to appease the kidnappers through half-way measures that would include moving terrorists out of maximum security prisons.

Outspoken general back on Pentagon carpet again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub has agreed to retire from the Army as a result of his second public criticism of President Carter's defense decisions, an Army spokesman said Friday.

Brig. Gen. Robert Solomon told reporters that a recommendation for the retirement was made by Singlaub's immediate commander, Gen. Frederick Croesen, after Singlaub met early in the morning with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff.

Singlaub agreed to the recommendation and will file retirement papers although the exact date has not yet been determined, Solomon said.

Singlaub, ordered to be in Washington no later than noon after his remarks to ROTC cadets at Georgia Tech on Thursday, slipped unobserved into the Pentagon and was on hand shortly after 9 a. m. to meet with Alexander and Rogers. Croesen, who heads the Army's Forces Command, was also present.

Alexander told reporters at a Pentagon ceremony shortly afterwards the subject of Singlaub's retirement or resignation "did not come up in our conversation" at that meeting, but Solomon said Croesen met with Alexander and Rogers shortly afterward and offered the recommendation.

GEN. JOHN SINGLAUB ... blasts policies

Singlaub met with Alexander and Rogers for less than 30 minutes as a result his statements in a question-and-answer session following a lecture at the Atlanta university.

Included were remarks on the administration's positions on strategic arms limitation talks, the B-1 bomber and the neutron warhead. He also said the administration has a different world "perspective" and is not as strong on "military readiness as earlier administrations.

Singlaub came to the public's attention last May when he was forced in an interview with saying Carter's decision to withdraw ground combat forces from Korea "will lead to war."

He was ordered to leave the job as chief of staff of the United Nations Command in Korea and reported to Carter at the White House for a dressing-down. He was then given a less choice assignment as chief of staff of the Army Forces Command at Ft. McPherson, Ga.

Singlaub has made few public appearances since his recall from Korea, but his remarks Thursday were covered by reporters due to advance publicity about his appearance.

His lecture to the ROTC students was on "Innovation and Audacity in Battle." "Afterward he answered students' questions.

Asked about Carter's recent decision to delay production of the neutron warhead, Singlaub said it was "like throwing your trump cards away in a game of bridge. I think it's ridiculous.

"I put the B-1 bomber in the same category," he said of Carter's cancelling production of the plane last year.

President movin' on in coming weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, although showing fatigue, plans a great deal of travel in the next two months, starting with another weekend at Camp David today.

When Carter is not traveling, much of his time will be taken up with foreign visitors, including Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin on Monday and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda on Wednesday.

The White House was expected to announce that Carter will go to Panama in June to hand over the two ratified treaties yielding control of the canal to the Panamanians at the end of the century.

Carter planned to plant a cedar of Lebanon tree on the Jefferson Mound on the south grounds of the White House today.

Attorney general under fire again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Griffin Bell faced "cover-up" accusations in Congress today for the second time since the Carter administration took office 15 months ago.

With his February firing of U.S. Attorney David Harston still rattling some Senate Republicans, others are now accusing Bell of a cover-up in the investigation of the FBI's alleged past illegal surveillances.

The new controversy was triggered by charges of William Gardner, once head of the investigation, that Bell blocked the prosecution of eight high-level FBI officials on charges of illegal wiretappings and "black bag jobs."

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said Thursday the testimony of Gardner and two assistants before a Senate appropriations subcommittee "rightfully calls into question the suitability of Griffin Bell to continue as attorney general."

With Bell out of the city, Justice Department spokesman Terrence Adamson pointed out the attorney general publicly explained when Gardner's team quit the case last December that there had been a difference in principle.

"We are witnessing a period in Washington in which anyone whose recommendations are rejected... or who is to be replaced feels free to challenge the attorney general publicly," Adamson said.

Judge stops Lance, pals in bank deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance's recent waffling with federal agencies and courts concerning his financial affairs has not interfered with his easy access to President Carter.

"I know of no particular change" in that close relationship between Carter and Lance, says Rex Granum, deputy White House press secretary.

Granum says Lance still holds a White House staff pass and that he knows of no plans to ask the former budget director to turn it in.

Lance's latest woe came to a head Thursday when Judge Oliver Gasch ordered a halt to his group of Arab princes and foreign and American businessmen to temporarily halt their efforts to gain secret control of a $2.2 billion bank holding company.

Acting on a complaint by the management of Financial General Bankshares Inc., Gasch issued a preliminary injunction to hold the Lance group in place until a hearing can be held and stockholders informed of the issues.

The judge took no action on the company's request that the Lance group be forbidden to proceed with its attempts to buy a controlling share of the Financial General, a holding company that owns 13 banks in Maryland, New York, Tennessee, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Lance and his associates acquired nearly 25 percent of Financial General's outstanding stock before there was public knowledge of the attempted takeover, the judge said.

It was the third federal court proceeding in six weeks to go against Lance, who resigned as Carter's budget director last September during a controversy over his past banking activities.

Gasch also ordered the Lance group to offer to sell the Financial General shares they acquired in December and January back to the original public sellers at the original prices of about $10 a share.

On Wednesday, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the controller of currency accused Lance of violating securities laws in part by failing to disclose details of his overdrains and personal loans to stockholders of two Georgia banks he headed from 1963 to 1977.

Lance signed a consent order, agreeing to restrict his banking activities.

Ship, air funds restored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Formal approval by the House Armed Services Committee is expected next week of legislation which would restore a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier and a cruiser to President Carter's military program and raise the proposed defense budget by $2.48 billion.

The committee Thursday tentatively approved the defense authorization legislation for the year beginning Oct. 1. The carrier and the cruiser previously had been cut from the proposals by Carter. The committee also added funds for additional Navy F-18, F-14 and A-7 planes.

Although Carter's entire defense budget totals

$126 billion, the committee's bill deals mainly with military hardware and would authorize spending $37.97 billion, mostly for procurement and development of weapons.

If the committee approves the authorization as expected, the bill then must be considered by the full House and the actual money will have to be provided in appropriations legislation, which is likely to reduce the armed services panel's programs.

Committee Chairman Melvin Price, D-Ill., said Carter's budget provided for no post-inflation increases in spending on major weapons systems.

On furlough

NEW YORK (UPI) — Watergate conspirator John Mitchell hobbled out of a hospital Thursday to take a month-long prison furlough with family and friends.

The former U.S. attorney general, who is serving a one- to four-year term for his Watergate crimes, entered Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center a month ago for hip surgery.

Mitchell, 64, left the hospital from a side entrance in an effort to evade scores of reporters, photographers and cameramen who had gathered to chronicle his progress on crutches.

Marston affair hits the fan again

BY N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — If you were watching the television news last Monday night, on ABC or CBS, you would have learned that all the charges you have been reading in this space lately — about President Carter firing 148 Attorney General Alex. B. Andrius, firing 148 Congressman Joshua Ellberg, who was under investigation by the prosecutor at the time — were just so much hot air.

from a columnist; and his boss, Francis Rosenberger, has left word that he is permanently at the dentist.
The single-staffer whitewash (formerly the "committee report") reads as if it were composed by the same merry band at Justice that produced the two-page affidavits attempting to clear the top brass.
"It appears to the committee," wrote Dixon, acting as the committee, "that there was no investigation of Congressman Ellberg at the time of the telephone call to the president."
The evidence developed in the real committee showed exactly the opposite: that the FBI had "opened a file" on Ellberg and had men in the field asking about him, probably triggering the panicked call to President Carter to fire his tormentor. The record is replete with direct conflicts — under oath — among the top officials in Justice.

Dixon's whitewash goes beyond protecting the president to absolve Ellberg of charges of obstruction of justice. No trial, no conviction, no punishment, no reprimand, no censure, no "committee's conclusions." The Justice Department is supposedly investigating potential obstruction at this moment, and such a blanket endorsement is a gross impropriety, but it gives us a pretty good clue about how those investigators are predisposed.
What is all about the Marston affair that forces so many in the White House, the Justice Department — and now the Senate Judiciary Committee — to such extremes of cover-up? Sooner or later, the attempts to slam down the lid on this mess will no longer be dismissed as a comedy of errors, but will be seen to be a tragic example of where official lying can lead.

If anything should prove to the Senate, that the Marston affair cries out for a special prosecutor, following criminal laws with no preconceptions or protections in mind: If the spectacle of an individual staffer assuming the role of an entire committee in issuing a sweeping verdict of exoneration...
If anything should prove to network newsmen, that the Ellberg obstruction is a serious matter worth Dan Schorr-style digging, it is the ease with which our low-level partisan politician, currying favor at the Justice Department, can pretend to speak for a Senate of Congress — and get away with it, with no rebuttals aired nor questions raised.

Main problem on the Mall

The traffic-pedestrian guessing game at the Shoshone and Main streets in Twin Falls continues, and it's a wonder that fewer accidents haven't happened there.

It seems to be a good time to reassess that intersection before too many more persons make the wrong decision in a stop-go situation.

The problem arises from a main street that is suddenly turned into a secondary street (at least from a vehicular point of view) and then is hit by a stop sign when a heavily traveled main street (Shoshone) crosses its path.

The situation becomes especially serious when pedestrians crossing Shoshone have to play a guessing game with the cars and trucks on that street. Some of the vehicles stop, others don't. Call it Shoshone roulette. In this game the pedestrian usually wins, but when he loses, the costs are astronomical.

The Shoshone barrier also splits the commercial activity of the Mall, as most store owners on the northwest side of Shoshone can tell you. That side of Shoshone never seems as busy as the other side.

So, what's the solution? How can the traffic be kept flowing smoothly on Shoshone while making pedestrian crossings safer and keeping the traffic-discouraging factor in force on Main Street? If you have a solution, tell the folks at city hall about it. Who knows; they may agree.

Can cut trees cut inflation?

President Carter's plan to reduce housing costs by opening up more timber lands in the national forests may seem like a great idea, but where this timber will be cut and how remains in question.

Carter's main concern is inflation, and the idea of lowering housing costs by cutting more timber may work, but the federal government and the Forest Service must take measures to ensure that the multi-purpose concept of the national forests is retained. A cheaper house for Mr. and Mrs. America is fine, but they should also have the opportunity to take advantage of the fishing, hiking, camping, hunting, skiing and boating in the national forests when they want to get away from awhile from that cheaper house.

The plan, as proposed by Carter in his speech last week in which he outlined his latest battle plan against inflation, is to increase the level of cutting in national forests by 25 percent, from an annual rate of 10 billion board feet to a maximum possible 16 billion board feet. This, it is argued by the Carter thinkers, would put much more lumber on the market, the price of lumber would then fall and, it follows, the house-building costs would also fall. This assumption is based on the estimate that 30 percent of the construction in today's single-family homes consists of lumber.

The conservationists, for the most part, agree that there is ample timber in the national forests for more harvesting, and that this timber must be made available, over a period of time, to private loggers; but how and where such trees will be cut must be carefully considered, keeping in mind the other uses of a national forest. Massive clear-cutting of timber must, at all costs, be avoided in national forests, and it must be made clear as to exactly where increased cutting can take place, making sure that such lumbering will not greatly interfere with the other functions associated with a national forest.

Aside from the conservationists' concern about maintaining national wilderness areas, Carter's plan has other doubters in Washington, mainly from an economic standpoint. It has been pointed out that the Forest Service's budget has been cut, and, therefore, it has less money to plan, supervise and replant forested areas.

The Forest Service claims that this year's budget allowed for the managing of 12.2 billion board feet from the nation's forests. But for the next fiscal year, which will begin Oct. 1, there is only enough money in the Forest Service's budget request for cutting 11.5 billion board feet, with reduced funds for reforestation, timber stand improvement and wildlife management.

If the Forest Service's budget climbs too high to meet the increased costs of harvesting supervision, then any inflation-fighting effect would be watered down.

If the Forest Service's budget is to remain as requested, Carter's plan for increasing harvesting can't take place anyway, unless the Forest Service can improve its efficiency or unless some corners are cut.

For the sake of the national forests and all of us using them, let's hope that any corners cut aren't vital ones. National forests must never be lowered to the point of becoming merely a loggers' circus.

"Today," said Walter Cronkite, "the Senate Judiciary Committee, which looks into the situations reported there could have been no cover-up because there was no investigation then; that Ellberg was not under investigation until a month and a half after the call..."

The unsuspecting viewer (or reader of wire service and major newspaper reports) might have concluded that members of a Senate committee had met and issued that report. Not true.

Not one senator on the Senate Judiciary Committee read the "committee report," exonerating the Justice Department and the president in the Marston affair, before the report was issued.

Not even the retiring chairman, James Eastland, in whose name the report was issued, knew its contents! He later told a Senate colleague, "What does it say? I never read it."

Thunderstruck members of the minority, who learned of the existence of a "committee report" only when they heard it on television, put out statements the next day pointing out that the so-called report had never been circulated for comment, that no vote had been taken on its conclusions, and — in Wyoming Sen. Malcolm Wallop's words — "The hearing record does not sustain the conclusions drawn."

What "sinister force," then, spoke on behalf of the August Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate, weighing in with a verdict of "not guilty," on serious charges involving the administration of justice in the United States.

The Judge and Jury of the Justice Department turns out to be one man: David Dixon, 46, of Nashville, assistant counsel to the committee, who was in Ben Civiletti's pocket throughout the hearings. Like the "committee report," the Attorney-General-to-be, Dixon is too busy manipulating national networks to answer calls

Elvis remembered without bitterness

One Tuesday morning last August, I had a telephone conversation with a man named Delbert (Sonny) West. I was in Chicago; West was in California. West was talking about Elvis Presley.

"His drug habit is so severe that I'm convinced he is in danger of losing his life," West said. "Neither of us knew it at the time, but even as we spoke, Elvis Presley was dead in the bathroom of his Graceland mansion in Memphis; the body had not yet been found. So West, a confident and bodyguard to Presley for 16 years, spoke in the present tense as he said."

Presley had a drug habit so severe that he needed pills to get up in the morning, to go to the bathroom, to stop going to the bathroom and to go to sleep.

Presley believed he was a modern-day Jesus, put on earth with psychic healing powers, and a supernatural force.

Presley for "fun," liked to take friends to funeral homes and mortuaries to examine embalmed bodies.

Presley lived in dread of assassination, and had told his body guards to "rip the eyeballs out" of any Presley assassin before the assassin could be brought to trial.

Presley had ordered his bodyguards to kill the man who took his wife from him.

Presley loved guns; he once bought 32 handguns in a single month. He owned a Thompson submachine gun and an M-16 rifle, and liked to wear three guns on his person, including a small pistol concealed in his boot.

Presley was brooding and lonely, often staying in his room alone for weeks, eating enormous quantities of food, taking drugs, and refusing to go out.

Presley enjoyed shooting out the screens of television sets when a show appeared he did not like.

Reaction to the interview with West was immediate and vehement. People hated him. He had written a book about Presley (with two other former Presley bodyguards, Red West and Dave Hebler), and many Presley fans blamed the book for Presley's death.

Sonny West is a Humes High boy, just like Elvis. He is what you would call your marginally unemployable. Having spent most of his life as Elvis' muscle, West could never be accused of being overeducated. This fact did not, however, stop him from being the best-selling author in the country during most of last summer and fall. Now, alas, it is spring, and he has only his memories.

This week I got together with Sonny West and talked about that day last August. He is a large, bearded man with a gentle voice but an unmistakable aura of latent menace.

"I got done talking to you that morning, and then I went to the home of a friend," West said.

"I was there for a while, and I was outside. He went inside and heard it on the news. He came out and told me. I broke down and cried. I couldn't talk to anybody."

"People say they're angry about what I said about Elvis. They say I'm lying. But they loved the image. They never knew the man like we did. I loved Elvis, the man. The public put such pressure on him to be Elvis, the myth, that Elvis, the man, had to die."

"And people say that we were only in it for the money. I can't blame them for saying that. We originally did write the book out of bitterness and anger. He fired us with three days' notice after the week's pay. We were bitter. But we wrote the book."

"Elvis was so dependent on drugs... once we tried to cut off his supply of cocaine. We stopped a guy from bringing it to him. And Elvis told us, 'Any more of this cutting off the drug supply, there's gonna be guys looking for jobs. Don't you understand, I need it.' So he got his drugs."

"He'd been doing what he was doing so long that he needed the cocaine just to get him on stage. And the downers... there were times when he would be sitting around, and he would take some pills, and he would be out so fast that we'd have to carry him to the bedroom. And he'd be there for hours. He'd be in control. He thought he could get off it any time he wanted to. There were no more challenges for him, though, so he kept up with the drugs."

"He was offered the role opposite Barbra Streisand in 'A Star is Born,' and I think he had accepted it. He was going to be alive today. But he wouldn't take the role. He knew it would take months of dieting and staying straight for him to do it. If you think he was sloppy on stage toward the end, think what he would have looked like on film, with his eyes all dilated and his mouth sturring every word he spoke. He knew it would be terrible, so he turned down the part."

"Elvis was in control of his own destiny. Colonel Parker wasn't the influence everyone thought he was, and Elvis' father was no longer an influence. Elvis made all the decisions."

"I still don't know if Elvis read our book before he died. I heard one report that he started to read it and then tore it up. Then he sent someone out to buy another copy, and he read it, and then he said, 'That's not me. If those guys think that's me, then that's their problem.'"

"Somewhere down the road, I was a part of God's plan for Elvis. I was just a pawn in His plan. Elvis was the King. Either God allows things to happen or He causes things to happen. We'll never know."

"If I had been with Elvis at the end, I suppose that I would be lying and covering up for him the way people with him at the end are still doing. But I can recognize Elvis' faults and still love him. We ate and slept with this man for years. God, I miss him. Whenever I hear 'Suspicious Minds' or 'Kentucky Rain' or 'In the Ghetto'... I would have gone to the funeral. I wanted to. But Elvis' father let it be known that he didn't want me down there. I have every intention of trying to go to Graceland and pay my respects at his grave. I don't know if the Presley family will allow it. But I want to go there with my wife to pay my respects. I want to do it because I loved Elvis very much."

Plan calls for tunnels under Chicago

© 1978 Chicago Sun Times
CHICAGO — I haven't had any confidence in the Deep Tunnel Project since the first time I heard of it.

The plan is to dig about 120 miles of 30-foot tunnels under Chicago and suburbs to catch surplus stormwater and prevent flooding.

One reason for my suspicion was that it was a project conceived by the Sanitary District. When I was just a lad, a wise uncle of mine told me never to trust anything they did. He was on the Sanitary District payroll for 30 years and never worked more than an hour a day, which permitted him to operate a tavern and real estate business and become rich. So I figured he knew what he was talking about.

I also was skeptical about any project that would be 200 feet beneath the surface of the city, where we couldn't see it. If we couldn't see it, how could we be sure that they even built the thing in the first place?

And knowing how sturdy our other local public works projects are, what kind of quality could we expect of a locally produced tunnel? If they build tunnels like they build expressways, the tunnels will probably develop cracks that swallow entire city neighborhoods and dump them into the world's deepest pot-hole.

Now I'm sure that I was right in being skeptical. Chicago and the suburbs are likely to become the proud owner of dozens of miles of deep tunnels, which cost hundreds of millions of dollars, and are useless.

The federal government has apparently decided that the whole thing is going to cost too much, and it isn't going to help finance it.

MARCO ROTKO

Without federal money, the project can't be completed. And unless it is completed, it won't work. At least so far as fulfilling its intended purpose.

You would think that before the Sanitary District dug all those tunnels, it would have been sure of getting money to finish the job.

But our local cigar chompers and the federal government can't even agree on how much the whole thing will cost. The Sanitary District says it can be done for $2.6 billion. But some federal experts say that the final bill will be about $7 billion. Either way, that's an expensive sewer.

So if the federal money is cut off, as appears likely, we are going to have those tunnels down there, doing nothing.

We must remember, though, what Mayor Daley liked to say. No, not about kissing his children. He also liked to say: "When the Lord closes one door on you, He always opens another."

Around here, that maxim about doors most often applies to cutthroats who are put in jail and immediately let out on bond by some judge who thinks he's the good Lord.

But it might also hold true for our Deep Tunnel Project.

Sure, we might not be able to use our tunnels for their intended purpose, but there is no reason to let them sit down there doing nothing. Somewhere among this city's many great minds there should be an idea for putting the tunnels to practical use.

Maybe they could be a major tourist attraction. We could put in some phony stalactites and stalagmites and promote the tunnels as — The Great Chicago Caves and Caverns! See where Indian Joe and Al Capone tried to bump off Tom Sawyer! See where the Phantom of the Opera hid while plotting revenge on the city that laughed at his sneer! I know it isn't historically accurate, but that kind of stuff sells.

Or maybe the tunnels could be converted to use as a jail. One of the reasons so many creeps are wandering around the streets is that we don't have enough cells to hold them all. But those tunnels are big enough to hold all this city's creeps, as well as the spillover from Gary, Ind.

There might be resistance from some gentle souls to storing criminals 200 feet below the Earth's surface. But I see nothing inhumane about it. At least nobody will get hurt climbing over walls.

Another possible use would be to equip it as a fallout shelter reserved for the city's most important citizens — the mayor and his staff, the aldermen, other key city officials, ward committeemen, judges, state legislators, sanitary district trustees, highway builders, big real estate developers, condominium operators and other members of the in-crowd.

To do this, it would have to be equipped with a modern life-support system, which would include a supply of food, water, liquor, cigars, Duran suits, monogrammed shirts, cufflinks, a stereo bath and a sun lamp.

Then we could blow in the air raid siren. And when they all jumped in, we could lock the hatch and look in their safe-deposit boxes.

Letters: Times-News readers discuss Church's Minico speech, utilities commission 'attacks'

Public utilities commission 'attacks' rapped Minico-waits for Church

Editor, Times-News: Attacks on the Idaho Public Utility Commission by Larry Jackson and Vernon Ravenscroft, Republican candidates for Governor, demonstrate either ignorance of the issues involved or a lack of concern for Idaho's utility consumers.

Mr. Jackson's and Mr. Ravenscroft's attack decisions about coal-fired generator siting and Mr. Ravenscroft says he will appoint members to the commission who are not as concerned with the consumer interests as the incumbents.

Either of these alternatives could have disastrous effects on the consumers of utility services in Idaho. The IPUC must make decisions that are fair for all the people.

We sure can't count on the legislature to do this. They couldn't even come up with property tax relief that benefited anyone but big corporations. And Mr. Ravenscroft's idea of getting commissioners who won't make decisions so much on a 'consumer oriented' basis makes one wonder in whose interest he would like to have them made.

The truth on the coal-fired generator is that the big majority of the people don't want it, and secondly, as the recent hearings have shown, there are a lot of questions about the need for it. There are cheaper and better alternatives for the small amount of new capacity needed now.

The rates we pay for electricity are directly related to new capacity additions. It doesn't make sense to raise customer rates to satisfy the interests of the leadership of the AF of L-CIO or the Idaho association of Commerce and Industry (IACI) or the Idaho Power Co.

Someone has to look after the interests of the average person

In utility rate and plant siting decisions. Someone has to think about what's going to happen to senior citizens and others on fixed incomes. Someone has to consider the effects of rate increases on family farms and small business people. And, someone has to be concerned about the impact of higher utility charges on the pocketbooks of the wide average.

The current IPUC Commissioners are doing that in every case that has come before them, the commission has substantially reduced the allowed increase from the amount asked by the utility companies.

There must be something haywire in the information Mr. Jackson and Mr. Ravenscroft are getting which leads them to the conclusion that drastic changes are needed in the IPUC. Right along, the commission has been making decisions that are in the best interest of all Idaho's people.

AL FOTHERGILL Boise

Editor, Times-News:

Parents of the Minico High School seniors, rejoice! Since we understand Frank Church is such a fine speaker, such a fine statesman and so knowledgeable in foreign relations, we will expect him to answer the objections to his Panama treaty vote raised by the parents. He must show us both parents and students exactly how those new treaties will benefit our American taxpayers and voters, our seniors and how they benefit the USA. How will they reduce prices, reduce inflation, make our economy stable and sound, our dollar sound, too, raise our standard of living, give us more freedom of movement and of controlling power-hungry leaders from giving away our property and rights against our wishes — and secure us militarily from Russia.

Now that Torrijos plans to destroy the canal that involves 70 percent of our imports and exports if we intervene, Church might elaborate on those benefits to our seniors, and then, is "nationalization" of the canal far off, under those circumstances? Church might explain those benefits to us, too, as well as his friendship with Castro and Brezhnev, and the benefits those associations will bring us — and how they will affect the lives of our seniors.

We all rejoice we can have the first opportunity for the unveiling of the superior future for our seniors who will be happy parents of narcotic addicts (helped by Torrijos' new transportation system), 40 years of age in the year 2000 and shortly after, can look back and remember the struggle with their biased parents about the controversy on the appearance of Frank Church at their commencement exercises, 1978. Church, the motivator of the canal giveaway, brought them to their predicament — families broken up in separate work communes a la Soviet.

Williams gets response

Editor, Times-News:

After reading Rob Williams' statement concerning the defeat of the sewer district south of Jerome, we must assume the ballots we cast were not secret ballots — since Mr. Williams knows who voted against the proposal. Since Mr. Williams, in his usual witty style, claims non-property owners defeated the proposal, then we wonder why the tax assessor keeps demanding that we pay property taxes for something we don't even own. Mr. Williams has declared us non-property owners. Therefore, we feel he should find out who owns the property on which we reside and make it known to the public and tax assessor. In order to clear up the awful mistakes of the past and make it possible for the real owners to pick up the tax burden we have been bearing for them.

Mr. Williams seems to know something we don't. We request the property taxes we have paid for these unnamed owners be returned to us, and no further property taxes be levied against us.

JOHN WAYNE BACK IN CALIFORNIA

Governor backs awareness days

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Gov. Rudy Perpich took to a wheelchair Thursday to find out what its like to live with a handicap.

The big, active governor presided over a cabinet meeting from the chair and lugged it around in his car during a busy round of meetings near the Capitol and at the governor's residence.

"It's going good," he said at mid-morning. "The only trouble is that I keep wanting to get up and walk. I keep forgetting."

The governor, who often moves at such a fast pace his staff has a hard time keeping track of him, agreed to spend the day in the wheelchair as part of Minnesota Handicapped Awareness Days.

"The general public needs to be educated as to accessibility problems which disabled persons must deal with in their daily life activities," he said in a proclamation.

"A significant effort must be made throughout Minnesota to eliminate barriers to employment, housing, transportation, education, public services and public accommodations."

Perpich promised to stick with the plan through the day, which included a lunch with area businessmen and dinner with University of Minnesota dentists.

During the early cabinet meeting, the governor fidgeted with the chair while foot rests and rolled the chair back and forth from the table.

He moved himself about by pushing the side wheels and had some trouble keeping on course.

"I forget you have to move both wheels at the same time or you go sideways," he said.

Two women confined to wheelchairs took turns accompanying Perpich throughout the day.

The two-day observation was sponsored by the Minnesota State Council for the Handicapped with help from the governor's office and from Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — John "Duke" Wayne came home from three weeks in a Boston heart surgery ward declaring "Hell, I feel great!" and he wants to go home.

Wayne, 70, said he will start to work.

"What do I want to slow down for?" Wayne asked.

In Boston, his doctors said they hoped Wayne, now 70, would relax for about a month.

Wayne said he wanted to get back to work next week studying scripts of possible future movie roles.

Wearing a Western hat and looking thin but fit, Wayne stepped from a twin-engine private jet that carried him from Boston to Orange County Airport and walked about 30 yards to a group of reporters.

Wayne, who has appeared in more than 200 movies and won an Academy Award for "True Grit," was operated on April 3 at Massachusetts General Hospital by surgeons who replaced the mitral valve of his heart with a valve from a pig's heart.

Blood from the leaking valve had entered his remaining lung, complicating his breathing problems. The other lung was removed because of cancer 14 years ago.

Asked if he was frightened, Wayne answered in the gravelly rumble familiar to generations of moviegoers: "Ah, hell, sure."

Did he fear he wouldn't live through it?

"I wasn't too sure, but I'm sure glad I went there."

Before checking out Thursday, Wayne hosted a farewell gathering in the hospital's "Amstelbale" — first publicly demonstrated in 1846 — for the surgeons, nurses and all others at the hospital who played any part in his treatment.

After the operation, he said, "The most wonderful thing I can remember was coming to, looking up into the beautiful face of a black angel, who soothed my brow and said 'You're going to be all right.'"

"I thank you, Rhoda," Wayne said to surgical nurse Rhoda Bates.

"How does he feel?"

"About two weeks ago there were guys cutting into me, putting a new valve in my heart. I'm not exactly jumping with joy."

Court books death appeals

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court announced Thursday it has scheduled arguments next week on the appeals of two Idaho State Penitentiary inmates originally sentenced to death for first degree murder.

The court announced that oral arguments would be heard Tuesday for Thomas Eugene Creech and Phillip L. Lindquist.

Creech was convicted of the murder of two inmates near Connelly and Lindquist was convicted in the shooting death of a Spokane woman.

The high court will consider arguments on the ex post facto effect of resentencing Creech after the death penalty statute was declared unconstitutional in the first Creech opinion.

In that first opinion, the court ruled unconstitutional the statute under which Creech was sentenced to death, but also ruled he could not be sentenced to death under certain guidelines later adopted by the Idaho Legislature.

Session broadcast mullied

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court will appoint a 14-member advisory committee to consider allowing live television and radio broadcasting of Supreme Court proceedings on an experimental basis.

Justice Joseph J. McFadden, who will chair the committee, said it will include membership from major media organizations such as the Idaho Press Club and the Idaho State Broadcasting Association. Representatives of the State Bar Association and the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association also will participate.

The first committee meeting will be held June 16 at the Supreme Court Building.

Court rules currently prohibit television, radio, or still photography coverage of Supreme Court case events, such as bar admission ceremonies.

Boise power hearing May 30

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Frank Church and James McClure said Thursday a Senate Energy Committee hearing is set for May 30 in Boise to take testimony from Idahoans on pending legislation to reallocate distribution of Bonneville Power Administration hydroelectric power.

Reallocation of BPA power has been under discussion in the Northwest for several months, and hearings by the Senate Energy Committee already have been held in Oregon and Washington.

Church, who will chair the hearing, and McClure, a ranking Republican member, said formulation of regional energy plans should focus on local needs as much as possible.

BPA markets power produced by federal dams in Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and Montana, including seven in Idaho.

Caldwell sheriff denies aliens poorly treated

CALDWELL (UPI) — Charges before a U.S. magistrate in Boise by an attorney for a group of aliens being held in the Canyon County at Caldwell that they were being subjected to conditions of a Mexican jail were denied Thursday by Sheriff George Nourse.

Steven Beane, a Boise attorney for the 14 being held as witnesses in federal cases involving transportation of illegal aliens, charged Wednesday his clients were suffering cruel and unusual treatment.

"The conditions there are such that it is worse than the Mexican jails we hear about," Beane said.

At a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Jim Christensen, Beane submitted an affidavit in which one of the aliens, Geraldo Mendoza-Sandoval, said that 4 of the 14 men must sleep on the floor of jail cell, that all the men have had to wear the same clothes for 25 days, and that all have had to share the same 3 towels for the past 15 days.

The affidavit also charges the men have been denied pencils and writing paper and that occasionally some of the men have gone hungry.

Nourse said that each prisoner is given a cup, a spoon, a towel, 2 blankets and a mattress when he or she enters the jail.

He said all 14 aliens were issued those items and that each has been served 3 meals per day. "There's no way in world these people are being starved. Our food is excellent, as good as you can buy downtown."

Nourse also said the men are being jailed in the "bullpen" area of the jail and that they are among 32 prisoners being held in that enclosure.

He said the bullpen is not overcrowded at the present time and that the men have access to a shower within the bullpen.

Demo Sallaz enters race

BOISE (UPI) — Boise educator and legislator Daryl Sallaz is the first announced Democrat to seek the job as state Public Instruction Superintendent.

Sallaz made his announcement at a news conference Thursday, saying he would seek the position presently held by Democrat Roy Truby, who is running for a congressional seat.

Two Republicans already have announced their candidacy — Jerry Evans, who is presently deputy superintendent, and Dick Nelson of Moscow, who is a regional officer with the Department of Education.

Sallaz said he intends to run an active campaign aiming at maximum input from the patron-voters of Idaho.

Hearing set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen said Thursday the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime has set hearings for May 3 and 4 to consider legislation to block new gun control proposals by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms.

"The committee is to be congratulated for responding to this serious situation by scheduling hearings so soon," Hansen said.

Problems brewing

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 47. We've been married for 20 years and have a fine family. I have known for many years that he is a transvestite. He enjoys dressing in women's clothes (only in private)—a practice which I tolerate but do not encourage.

He saw a psychologist for two years in an effort to overcome this urge, but decided not to fight it any longer. For the last six months, he's been taking hormones, and the spurs hormone cream (10,000 estrogen units per ounce) to his chest area daily. I think he is beginning to develop breasts, but the change is so gradual and subtle that it's hard to tell. Also, the hair on his hands and arms has become finer and thinner.

Abby, I don't want a female-shaped husband. What do you suggest?

HUDSON, MASS., MRS.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR MRS: From what you tell me, you are going to have a female-shaped husband whether you want one or not, because that's the way things are developing.

You should be aware that your husband is a transsexual who appears to be preparing for a sex-change operation. I recommend some candid dialogues between you and your husband in order to plan your future—and his.

DEAR ABBY: I answered an "ad" in a magazine for information about joining a flower club. All I wanted was information about the club, but before I knew it, they started sending me all kinds of seeds.

I don't want these seeds and didn't order any, so I just put them aside. (I may have even thrown some away.) Now I am getting letters from this flower club telling me that if I don't send them the money or return the seeds they are going to sue me!

Abby, I am worried sick. Can they sue me? Please help me! I have four children and no money to go to court to fight this thing.

SCARED

DEAR SCARED: Throw their letters in the wastebasket. No one is obligated to pay for—or return—anything that has been sent to him unsolicited.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a son (I'll call him Jason) who was born out of wedlock. He is 6 years old. About 4 months ago, my sister married a man who refuses to take Jason into his home, although he pays for his support. Jason now lives with our parents and he can't understand why his mommy "visits" him at Granny's but won't take him "home" with her.

My sister hasn't told Jason anything. I think he should be told something. But what? I have a right to ask this question because my mother is in poor health, and now my sister wants me to promise that I will look after Jason in case something happens to our mother.

I am 28, have been self-supporting since I was 17, and plan to be married in August. Please withhold my name.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Jason should be legally adopted by someone who wants him—ideally you, since you appear to be the only one who is concerned about what the boy thinks.

Under the circumstances, the child should be told the truth. No one can be forced to raise a child he doesn't want. And if he could, I'd pity the poor child.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Body-building advice

Dear Dr. Lamb,

I'm 15 years old. I'm writing because I would like to know whether or not there are special exercises I can do to help build up my baseline. If so, can you please send me some instructions how to go about it. Thank you very much. Hurry up!

Dear Dr. Lamb,

Don't rush in such a big hurry. If you are that impatient you will not be patient enough to get the results you might get from a sensible exercise program. Some things in life take time as you will realize better as the years go by.

Regardless of what those advertisements tell you, exercises do not increase the size of the breast—yours are small anyway at your age. The exercises simply enlarge the muscle the breast sits on and improve your posture.

Lawrence E. Lamb M.D.

The front of the chest wall is covered with muscles, the pectoralis major and pectoralis minor. To give you an idea of what you can do with these look at some of these chest muscles on the "Mr. America" types. Think of your breast on top of a muscle like Arnold Schwarzenegger has developed and you'll get the idea. The breast is not muscles but mostly fat but you have the same muscles he has under that breast.

Any exercise that causes the muscles over the front of the chest to contract against resistance will help develop these muscles. The forward motion as used in swimming the crawl is an example. You can lie down on the bed and hold a small weight in your hand—with your arm outstretched. Now holding the elbow straight, lift the weight up above you. This pulls on the muscles over your chest.

You can move the position of the outstretched arm from your side to above your head and all points in between. Since these muscles fan out over the chest wall this change helps work them all.

Another time-honored exercise is to put both hands together in front of you with the palms against each other and push. This, too, contracts the chest muscles against resistance.

For best results in building muscles over the front of the chest you may want to go to a health club and use some of their equipment.

Also, don't neglect to strengthen the muscles between the shoulder blades. What does that have to do with the breasts? It helps prevent rounded shoulders. If you develop good posture with the shoulders back, and don't slump, the breast line will be more prominent. And besides, a girl's boy looks better if he or she has good posture.

Idaho sisters hit the big time

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — Three sisters who grew up in Gooding have hit the "big time" with their pooled efforts in crafts.

Lois Gehrig and her sisters who live in the eastern part of the state have become so involved in making hats, baskets and other creations from Swiss straw they have published a "booklet" of instructions and a California supplier is handling the production of a planned second book.

Good Housekeeping magazine wants to publish instructions on their creations.

Gehrig, who works fulltime at Tupperware in Jerome, says they are so busy with the management and other budding enterprise she scarcely has time to work on the straw creations which overflow into every corner of her house.

The sisters, Rita Pate of Roberts, and Annell Williamson, of Georgetown, and Gehrig are the daughters of Mrs. Donna Behunin, of Gooding, who helps them as much as her own upholstery business allows.

"She's very talented and creates new designs as well as helping us write the instructions," Gehrig says of her mother. Mrs. Behunin is "one of those persons who can read instructions" for craft work easily, her daughter says admiringly.

Gehrig says the many types of hats, baskets and other items the three sisters have designed only came to national attention after they attended THE craft show in the country, the Hobby Industry of America trade show, held in Houston last January.

The sisters not only displayed their crafts at the trade show but modeled the various hats they have created out of the imported Swiss straw, a type of artificial raffia.

The skirts, described on the label as vilvose rayon ribbon were so difficult to find in area hobby shops that the search for an adequate supply for their increasing business is what finally put the women in touch with leaders in the business world of crafts.

Gehrig said stores in Twin Falls could not supply their need so she wrote to places in Korea, Switzerland and Japan. In addition to seeking a materials supply, she also tried to interest various trade outlets in the Gooding creations.

But all her writing came to naught.

"They probably get letters from thousands of people with great ideas they want to sell," Gehrig said.

Meanwhile the sisters continued their individual creations after they became "hooked" on using Swiss straw back in 1974.

Pate created a western hat to wear while horse back riding. Friends started ordering so the other two sisters began helping her fill orders. Gehrig said she varied the design to create a floppy hat and beranias. Soon she, too, was making them for other people.

The third sister wanted to contribute something individual, so she created a Christmas bell. They began making baskets for weddings and floral shops, using a single crochet stitch to form their creations.

When they went to California for their brother's wedding the sisters decided to make a special trip to Solvang, which Gehrig described as a Danish town eight miles from the coast. There they went in person to the firm, Artists, Inc., whose name was on the label of the raffia they used. Upon meeting Aileen Eckstein, owner of Artists, Inc., their worries about supplies were over. The California firm now furnishes all the imported Swiss straw the sisters need, and finances their appearances at trade shows.

The sisters will take their creations to an open house in July at Zim's, a crafts warehouse supplier in Salt Lake City, representing Artists, Inc. They have already sent it designs to Aileen for publication in a second book.

The sisters have coined the trade name "Ral Raffia" for their instruction books. Ral represents the initials of the three women—Rita, Innell and Lois.

How does the Gooding woman keep in touch with her business partners on the other side of the state?

"Our phone bills are terrific," she said.

Despite their growing number of inquiries from craft publications and suppliers, Gehrig is more than willing to show other people how to create out of the artificial raffia "so they can do it themselves."

A veteran of "all kinds of crafts there are" Gehrig says use of the Swiss straw is the most satisfying because "there is no end to what you can make."

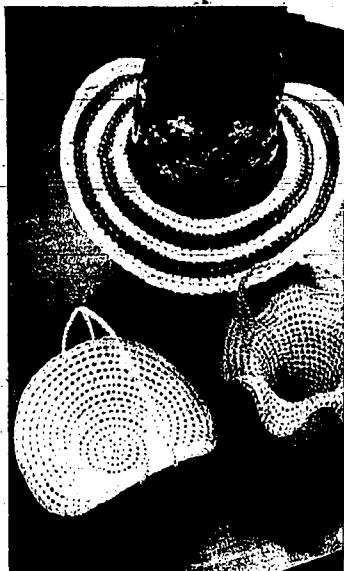

The "Ral Raffia" books give step by step instructions for different sized baskets and a variety of hats as well as the Christmas bells. Gehrig has found spraying a mixture of glue and water onto the baskets creates the proper stiffness.

Currently she has some elaborate purse handles which a company in Florida has sent to her to design purses to fit. Artists, Inc., has suggested the sisters open a warehouse to handle supplies for area hobbyists.

No wonder she has not yet had time to actually make one of the Bicentennial red, white and blue western hats her sister has designed.

Dialing for others

Rachel Borden's 'chutzpah' for a fee

NEW YORK (NEA) — A man from Dallas called Rachel Borden in Philadelphia and said, "Call my wife and tell her I'm not coming home. I can't stand it anymore and I won't live like this."

Mrs. Borden said, "Five dollars in advance, please, and what tone would you like me to take?"

"When she dialed the number, a man answered. "He called a woman on the phone," Mrs. Borden recalled recently over her own phone, "and I said, 'This is the Chutzpah Phone Service. I have a message from your soon-to-be ex-husband.' Then, because he wanted me to deliver a forceful message, I screamed and yelled.

"I really felt sorry for the woman. But she was very quiet and when I finished, she said, 'Hold on a minute.' Then I heard her yell in the background, 'Hey, honey — you can move in. He's not coming home.'"

Mrs. Borden then went on to her next call, which is what her Chutzpah Phone Service is all about. "Chutzpah," in case, there are any questions, is Yiddish slang for "nerve."

She'll make any call you don't want to — barring the obscene and threatening — at any reasonable hour and I've yet to have a boss turn one down. The fee includes a return message and I say things like, 'Your secretary would like to meet you on a more intimate basis after hours.' Some of the men have said, 'What look he so long,' or 'I'll meet her at nine,' and that's what I tell the secretary."

Or she'll ask him for a raise for you. "I have an 85 percent success rate because bosses think it's unique."

And if he no longer requires your services, she'll tell him where to get off. That's an insult call, something she particularly savors when it comes to used car dealers, she says. "I've gotten really nasty with them because I've dealt with them myself."

Mrs. Borden, 30, the mother of two, makes 20 to 30 calls a week and spends three hours a day on the phone. And she handles everything: Emergency insult calls from mothers-in-law to daughters-in-law or vice versa, let's-make-up calls, love you truly, etc.

She even delivers Chutzpahgrams — her equivalent of a telegram — for fees that begin at $5 and go up according to mileage and risk.

Once she got $100. "It was the seventh inning, there were two men on base and a man up at bat and I ran out to deliver a get-well wish to the Philadelphia Phillies' third baseman."

But he wasn't there because he was sick. The first baseman was on third. So she delivered the Chutzpahgram to him instead. "I could have been arrested," she said, which is why she got $100.

She holds three patents — on her service, the Chutzpahgrams and Chutzpah CTV Certificates, which start at $5 and entitle the bearer to a phone call, a Chutzpahgram or a first free pie toss ("I throw defrosted chocolate cream pies for $50 at designated parties").

During the year she has been dialing for others, she has been called from Canada, Germany and France to make calls. And she has sold franchises at $50 to $800 to interested entrepreneurs in Dallas, Miami and New York. Twenty-eight more are pending.

And the whole thing started, she says, because of a girl friend's affair.

"She was seeing a married man and I was taking calls for them. One day my husband said, 'Why don't you charge?'"

So she did. Then she placed a couple of ads locally — "We'll give them a piece of your mind" — and soon, because Americans in general are nervous about phones, hers was ringing all over the place.

Obviously, her phone bills run in the hundreds each month which doesn't thrill her husband, she says, but she's bringing in more than she's paying. And so far she hasn't gotten a call from a muffled but familiar voice saying, "Call my wife and tell her to get off the phone."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag
 "Finesses work for everyone else. Why don't they ever work for me?" complained South.
 South had drawn trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds and lost a diamond finesse. Back came a third diamond. Later on, South led a heart toward his hand and finessed the nine only to have it lose to the 10. The defense also cashed their ace and king of hearts. Those same finesse would have gone wrong for any other declarer, but a winner would not have taken either.
 He would draw trumps, ruff his six of clubs and play ace-king and another diamond. He wouldn't care which opponent won that trick because the four-spade contract would be safe.
 A heart lead would ensure a heart trick for declarer. A club or diamond lead would allow him to ruff in dummy and discard a potential losing heart.
 South's line of play was a loser this time. The correct play was always a winner.

Four sons of Hunt family serving church missions

HUNT — April 15 was a red-letter day for the Fred Stewart family of Wyo.

Letters were delivered from each of their three sons who are serving missions for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. But that wasn't all. A letter came from church headquarters in Salt Lake City, calling the fourth son, Sandy, to serve a two year mission in Tahiti.

When Sandy leaves for his mission May 11 the Stewarts will have four sons serving at the same time, an accomplishment that not many families can boast.

"The Church News," official newspaper for the LDS Church, recognized the Stewart family for having three sons in the mission field at the same time in their April 15 publication. But by the time the paper was delivered Sandy had received his call.

Fred Robert, 21, the eldest Stewarth, has served in the Stockholm, Sweden, Mission since June 1976 and will be returning home in June. Twain, John and Wayne, 20, left last June for their missions — John to the Tokyo, Japan, Mission, and Wayne to the Helsinki, Finland, Mission.

The Stewarts are parents of 11 children, seven sons and four daughters. One daughter, Phyllis Anne, is married and the rest of the children live at home on the family farm in Hunt. The boys, Jim, Scott and Joseph are looking forward to when they will be old enough to go on missions, too.

All the members of the Hunt Ward are happy to have their little ward represented in missionfields throughout the world. When another missionary, Chad Dixon, leaves for the Copenhagen, Sweden, Mission May 25, they will have about 5 percent of the ward population in the missionfield.

Elder Stewart will be honored at a sacrament meeting at the Hunt Ward Sunday, April 30, at 11:45 a.m.

Baptists schedule fish fry

TWIN FALLS — A fish fry scheduled for Sunday evening is only one of several fund-raising events being planned by the Senior High Youth group of the Twin Falls First Baptist Church in preparation for summer adventures. In keeping with the First Baptist Church's emphasis of supporting missions, both home and foreign, the youth group members will be visiting home Indian missions in Arizona. They will spend time in the Pocolca and Kams Canyon area where they plan to distribute warm clothing and baby clothes.

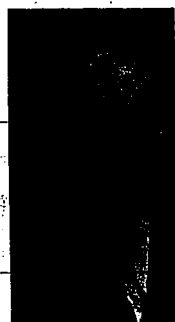

From there, traveling by bus, the group will cross the border to visit the Lily of the Valley Mission which is some 100 miles into Mexico. Dried beans will be taken to this mission. Dry beans are the main diet of these people who were hard hit by the severe rains earlier this year.

The group will continue up the coast stopping in Los Angeles to learn first-hand of the inner-city missions. In each area the Twin Falls young people will share, work and plan with the youth of the missions. They will return by way of Disneyland and Lake Mead. Helping make this unusual experience possible will be the adult youth advisers, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Bradley and Mr. and Mrs. Merl Eiden who will accompany the 11 on the 10-day trip in early June.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is one of those days when you may want to upset present plans for an illusory new appeal, but you would be wise not to discard carefully laid plans of the past.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Try not to argue with a long-time friend or you could regret it later. Take the right step to gain a personal wish. Be patient.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 - May 20) Make an effort to improve your position in your community. Not a good day to ask an influential person for a favor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time to study a project that could mean increased income in the future. Engage in recreational activities you enjoy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to please an irate associate so that you can carry on with mutual interests more harmoniously. Relax in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to complete your chores with fewer interruptions and increased efficiency. Take treatments to improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your mate is under an emotional strain that you can help to alleviate now. Don't do anything to jeopardize harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be patient with one at home who may be upset since the planets are not favorable at this time. Establish more order around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure not to react bitterly to remarks of a careless person and upset present harmony at home. Be more tolerant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Don't jeopardize your present security in any way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You could be tempted to conclude a present business arrangement and get into something new, but this would be most unwise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you analyze a new enterprise more carefully you will know how to be more successful. Make new friends in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't lose your temper over a situation that displeases you. This would only make matters worse. Sidelstep a troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will easily comprehend the problems of others and also will be endowed with the ability to help solve them wisely. There is much humanitarianism in this chart, and the education should be directed along lines of helping people.

FISH

Say a dozen different kinds of fish are laid out side by side in the display counters at the seafood market. You can tell how each man by its coloring. The perpendicular specimen, like salmon, and the flatfish, like flounder, swim with their dark sides up toward the light and their silvery sides down toward the seabed. This comes to mind because a client asks if there's such a thing as a "left handed" fish. So to speak, there is. The flounder that swims on its wrong side might be so described. It's called a fluke.

May potato futures display strength

CHICAGO — Potato futures displayed strength Thursday with May Maines and western Russels advancing.

 May western Russels gained a dime, ending at 70¢ per hundredweight.
 Live falls contracts were in June with other months unchanged to 22 points higher as the market failed to hold gains after hog futures declined. Profit taking shaved an advance that reached 60 to 30 points. Volume was 22,066 contracts traded.

 May feeder cattle closed 7 points down on liquidation to 45 points up. Most other months were 22 to 45 points up. Most deferred contracts were mixed, up 2 to off 5 points. Volume was 1,674 contracts.

 Wheat gained 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 cents with local dominating trading and covering at the close. May was under pressure from liquidation but it closed as spreaders bought it against sales of July.
 Corn gained 1 to 2 cents after early speculative selling linked to improved weather on the corn belt and several other direction changes, including a surge of interest following a late soybean rally.

 New York Sugar 11 lost 12 to 11 points on a turnover of 3,700 lots. Expiring May settled down 12 points at 7-3/4 cents a pound.
 New York Comex gold capped a 230 to 330 point gain on another weak day for the dollar and the rejection of an oil-import fee by a Senate committee. Volume was 6,000 contracts. There was a late run of short covering.
 New York Comex silver closed 340 to 430 points higher, helped by late short covering and near July holding above the 5.00 level. That contract peaked at 530 points higher but fell back.

Blaine County puzzled over building consent

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A Blaine County communications building was erected illegally on federal land east of Bellevue in October but Blaine County officials say they don't know who it was, who approved the building.

An 816 foot concrete building, which stands about 7 feet high, was erected on Bureau of Land Management land on Bell Mountain, about 10 miles east of Bellevue, according to BLM officials.

But the concrete structure, which was to house radio and communications equipment for the Blaine County sheriff's department, was never approved by the BLM.

Chuck Hazler, BLM district manager in Shoshone, said the building trespasses on federal land and fails to meet BLM building, site and environmental specifications, which he said were given to the sheriff's department as guidelines for a communications building on Bell Mountain.

Hazler said the building will have to be torn down, receive proper BLM approval and then be rebuilt in the proper location and with the proper specifications.

With $3,577 paid to a Bellevue contractor by Blaine County for the concrete communications building, county officials are unable to say who, if anyone, authorized construction.

Blaine County commissioner Andy Gardner said

Wednesday that he had no recollection of the commissioners giving a start-work order on the building.

Blaine County clerk Marie Ivie Lilya said Thursday the county has one contract bid on record from Umek Construction Co., which erected the concrete building. The county clerk said the bid was signed only by John Umek, the Bellevue contractor, and that nothing in the commission meeting minutes from the day the bid was received indicates the bid was approved. The clerk said county records also show the county had paid Umek $3,577 for construction of the communications building.

Umek, however, claims his bid was accepted, approved and served as a contract. He said most of his dealings on the project were with Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler.

"They gave me the OK to go ahead and build that building," Umek said. "I don't care what anyone says."

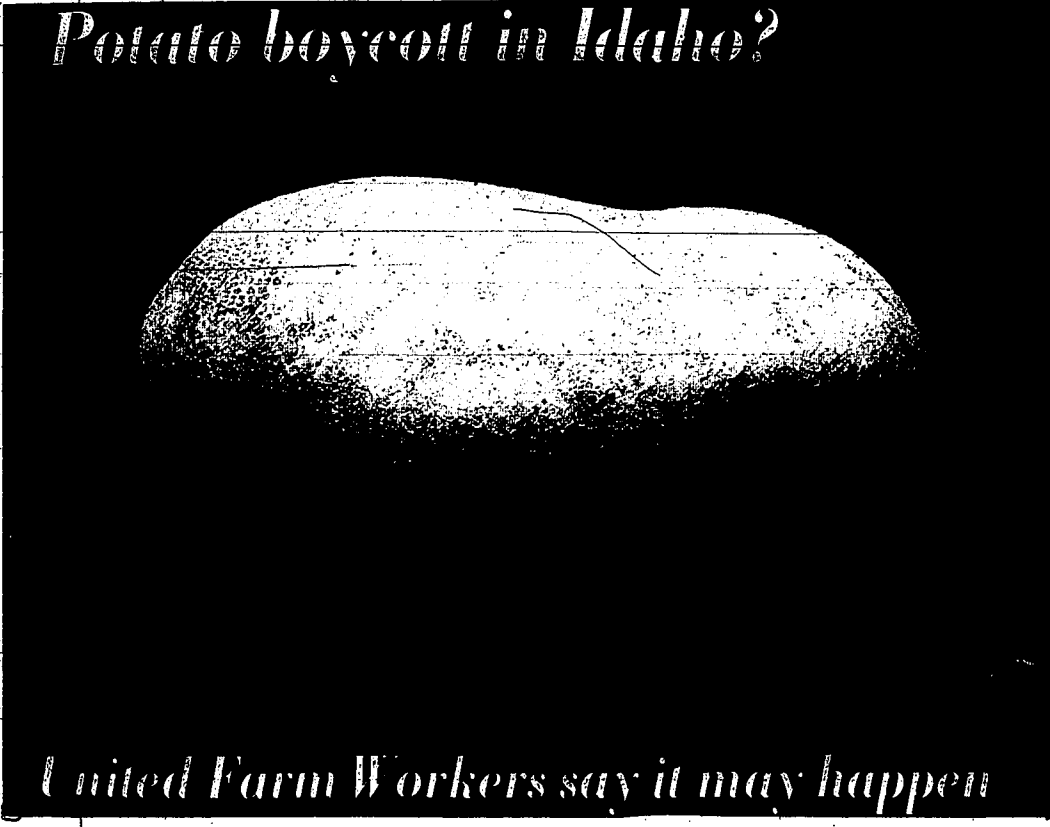

But Drexler, who was on vacation when the building was erected in early October, said he did not give authorization to start work because he knew the building hadn't been approved by the BLM.

"I still don't know how or through whom that was authorized — knowing that building up there," Drexler said Thursday. "To the best of my knowledge, no one ever said start now or at any other time."

Drexler said the situation appears to be a misunderstanding caused by a lack of communication.

Hazler has said the building will have to be torn down, which would mean the county will have lost $3,577.

As Drexler put it: "The problem is that there's a building up there and the BLM says it has to come down... that's my big problem. So what do we do now — that's my big concern."

Fire destroys wall

TWIN FALLS — An early morning fire at Bennett's Twin Falls Paint and Glass Co. on Addison Avenue East, destroyed one interior wall and caused smoke damage throughout the building, Twin Falls Fire Department officials said today.

The fire was reported about 7:47 a.m. today when company officials arrived for work.

Phil Clough of the Twin Falls Fire Department said the fire had probably been smoldering four or five hours but had not been able to get any air so had been contained to a single area.

"Another hour and we would have had a real fire on our hands," Clough said.

He said fire apparently started on a work bench beside a wall which separates the shop area from the business office and show room. The wall and one door were burned, he said, but two vehicles in the shop were driven out before they were extensively damaged.

Insurance officials were inspecting the building this morning in an attempt to estimate damage. Clough said cause of the fire had not been determined.

Rabbit show planned

BURLEY — About 450 prize rabbits will go on display here Saturday and Sunday in the Cassia County Fairgrounds.

Sponsored by the Magic Valley Rabbit Breeders Association, the show is open to the public and affords an opportunity for interested residents to see some unusual and little known breeds of rabbits.

Show secretary, Janus McEwen of Jerome, said about 60 breeders will be showing their top stock. They will be coming from California, Montana, Utah, Idaho and possibly other states.

Judging the show will be Jan Coffelt, Bothwell, Wash. who will fly in for the two day event.

Mrs. McEwen said every rabbit is individually judged and top entries in each of four divisions then judged in a final competition for "best of show" award and "opposite rabbit" award. The latter is selection of the best, animal of the opposite sex of the "best of show" rabbit.

The French Lop, a large rabbit with droopy ears will be one of the breeds shown.

There will also be Flemish Giants, Checkered Giants, Salins, New Zealand, Ryelanders, Silv or Martins, Dwarfs and Dutch. A total of 16 different breeds will be shown.

Winners will take home a more than $300 in trophies and awards. The show will begin with judging at 9 a.m. Saturday, continuing through 6 p.m. and will reopen at 9 a.m. Sunday with judging to be completed at 1 p.m.

The public is invited to watch the judging and to inspect the rabbits on display at the fairgrounds. The show is an American Rabbit Breeders Association sanctioned event.

GOP elects delegates

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Republicans Thursday evening elected 19 delegates to their party's state convention, three each from legislative Districts 24 and 25 and 13 from Twin Falls County-at-large.

The number of delegates each district or county is allowed is based on past voter turnout and support for the party.

The three delegates from District 24 are Bill Roberts, Chick Lunte and Dave Monroe, all of Buhl. District 24 contains most of southern and western Twin Falls County.

The delegates from District 25 are Ron Kienzle, Tom Silvers, and Debbie Johnson, all of Twin Falls. District 25 contains the northeast corner of Twin Falls County.

Subdivision in works

KEENE, Calif. — A nationwide boycott of the Idaho potato is a definite possibility if the United Farm Workers come to Idaho and attempt to organize farm workers.

Marc Grossman, an assistant to UFW President Cesar Chavez, said Thursday a United Farm Workers push into Idaho could include an attempt to organize a national boycott of Idaho potatoes similar to the UFW-organized national boycotts of grapes and lettuce in connection with the unionization of California farm laborers in recent years.

"There has been a growing disparity between wages and benefits in California and those in Arizona, Kansas and Idaho," Grossman said by telephone Thursday afternoon from United Farm Workers headquarters in Keene, Calif.

"We are considering organizing in Idaho immediately and pursuing legislation," he continued. "We have not been organizing there for six years because of the (state) law."

"We have done a lot of research in Idaho. Idaho potatoes are used by McDonald's and other fast food chains," Grossman added. "Idaho potatoes would be a prime boycott target."

Grossman said the UFW "would rather not go through" boycotts and farm strikes in order to upgrade farm labor conditions in Idaho, but would resort to such tactics if necessary.

Grossman said the UFW received a written decision from an Arizona court upholding UFW charges the farm labor law in that state was unconstitutional. He said the law was "rigged" against migrant farm laborers.

He said Idaho has a similar "rigged election procedure that disenfranchises many of the migrant farm workers."

In California, the law provides for holding union elections only when 50 percent or more of the laborers are employed.

The "seven-day rule" of the law also requires that elections be held within seven days of the petition in order to give all temporary seasonal help the right to vote.

Grossman claims Idaho law is unconstitutional like Arizona law.

"Arizona and Idaho law do not have those provisions," Grossman said.

A check of section 22-4109 of Idaho Code, however, does show that the Idaho law allows farm labor elections to decide whether employees at any particular farm operation wish to be represented by a bargaining organization such as the UFW.

Idaho Code also provides for collective bargaining and primary boycotts and picketing. Section 22-4104 outlines farm employees' rights to self-organization. The law also outlines the duties of the Agricultural Labor Board of Idaho which oversees employer-employee relations in Idaho agriculture.

Buy Grossman said Idaho farm labor conditions have been slow to measure up to better conditions California farm workers have achieved in recent years since Gov. Edmond Brown helped pass landmark farm labor legislation in 1975.

"California farm workers have improved their economic status, worked out a medical plan, a pension plan and a citizen education plan among other benefits," Grossman said.

"They are still a long way from industrial wages and benefits, but Idaho and Arizona have lagged far behind progress that has been made in California."

After the UFW's court victory in Arizona, Grossman said Chavez plans to initiate a reparations suit in that state against the state department of agriculture and the Farm Bureau for money they have failed to pay farm laborers in past years.

"We are saying the state and Farm Bureau are liable for economic injury," Grossman said. "In California, in the last two and a half years since our law was passed, we have had very little conflict. We have been able to resolve our differences with negotiations and through the legal process. We would rather do it that way than through strikes and boycotts."

He said union hands were tied in Arizona and laborers could not negotiate such issues as management rights, seniority, mechanization and collective bargaining.

"What is the use of having a union if you can't negotiate about these critical issues?" Grossman said.

He added when the UFW begins organizing in Idaho and other states like Kansas where farm laws "lag behind" those of California, reparations suits, boycotts and strikes may be necessary to win legal battles for farm workers.

Workload bogs down public defender

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Charges by the Twin Falls public defender that magistrate court judges are overloading him with cases were aired Thursday.

Golden Bennett and Mike Powers of the firm of Bennett and Powers hold the contract for public defender services for a two year period at $42,000 per year.

Bennett complained to the county commissioners Thursday about the increasing workload, saying too many defendants were being granted public defender services by the magistrate court in the county.

County commissioners, the administrator, magistrates here and Bennett met Thursday afternoon to hear the complaints.

Recently, attorney Bennett had been fined $100 in the magistrate court of Paul Smith for arguing with the judge but the public defender said he has complained about the workload both before and after his fine in Smith court.

Charles C. Shaw, Gooding County magistrate and trial court administrator for the 5th Judicial District, said he felt the problem of too many cases for the public defender involved a lack of communication.

Shaw suggested some changes in the way a judge assigns a public defender, that he hoped would alleviate some of the cases for Bennett.

Commissioners said the public defender is asked to keep records for commissioners as to the number of cases handled and that there has been a marked increase in the time since Bennett took over the contract last November.

Judge Shaw decides to order a change in the questions asked defendants to better determine their financial responsibilities.

He said wording in the previous form may have not been the best.

"I think by revising the questions we will eliminate some of the individuals who can afford their own legal counsel. If the individual is working and not too involved with financial responsibilities, we require him to pay the counties for the public defender services, usually through small monthly payments. Of course, this does not go to the public defender, but it does give the taxpayers a little help," Shaw said.

Would-be robber leaves money behind

TWIN FALLS — An armed robber was frightened from the Coin Gallery on Shoshone Street in downtown Twin Falls Wednesday afternoon, leaving a paper sack of money behind.

Tim Qualls, chief of detectives, said a young man walked into the shop about 3:15 p.m. with a hand gun and demanded money.

A salesman started to enter the shop and realized what was taking place. The salesman backed out of the building and ran to find a telephone.

Qualls said this apparently frightened the young man and he left his paper sack of money behind and ran out of the door and into the alley behind Main Avenue.

Qualls said the robber told the woman employee, who was alone in the shop at the time, he would shoot her if she moved.

He told her to fill his paper sack with cash. The officer said the robber was apparently interested in the cash only and not the shop's coins or other merchandise.

Qualls said the suspect was described as young, male and about 5 feet 3 inches tall, wearing faded tan trousers, a navy blue stocking cap and a red sweatshirt.

He said witnesses reported he ran from the coin shop and into the alley and then cut through a parking lot behind the Douglas Hotel and disappeared. When officers reached the shop he was out of sight.

Qualls asked anyone who may have been in the downtown area at about 3 p.m. and saw an individual of the suspect's description to contact the police department.

"We would like to know the direction he took after witnesses saw him behind the hotel, and whether or not he may have gotten into a vehicle somewhere in the area," Qualls said.

TF teacher talks progress

TWIN FALLS — Negotiators for Twin Falls instructors and school district officials edged closer to agreement on a teachers' contract for next year during the seventh round of talks Thursday night.
Spokesmen for both sides said negotiators reached verbal agreement on six topics Thursday night, including a proposal on grievance procedures, an area in which both sides earlier said they expected trouble.

However, spokesmen admitted they had not reached agreement on six other topics also discussed, including the issue of teachers' salaries. The spokesmen estimated the two sides were now less than $30,000 apart on what teachers should be paid next year.

On grievance procedures, both sides verbally agreed to leave the wording in the contract as it is in this year's contract. Negotiators also agreed verbally on the partial rewriting of contract sections on teachers' workdays, how teachers will be paid when called for jury duty, when teachers will be evaluated by administrators, operations of a student discipline committee, and how minor changes in the contracts such as dates can be made without direct negotiations.

At Ware, spokesmen for teachers' negotiators said a section on teachers' workdays was "a little tighter now." The clearer wording would help clear up problems teachers had had at one school obtaining the duty-free preparation period and duty-free lunch period teachers at other schools enjoyed.

Schools Superintendent James D. Sawin, spokesman for school district negotiators, agreed the section would be clearer under proposed new wording, but denied teachers at any school had had problems obtaining their duty-free periods.

The proposal on jury duty calls for teachers to receive regular salary for days they spend on juries minus money teachers receive for the duty from the courts.

The teachers evaluation proposal calls for teachers with less than three years experience to be evaluated at least twice every year and teachers with more than three years experience at least once every two years.

Under this proposal, less time would be spent evaluating teachers with more experience.

Both spokesmen said the change was needed because under the current plan, administrators did not have time to evaluate all the more experienced teachers annually, as called for under the contract.

The proposal on student discipline creates one committee consisting of three teachers and three administrators to set standards for handling student misconduct.

Language creating special sub-committees at each school would be deleted from the current contract under this proposal.

In addition to a wage proposal, negotiators failed to reach verbal agreement on sick leave policy, a proposal setting aside certain school days for teacher-parent conferences, and a teachers' plan for more coordination of curriculum planning.

Grey Hawk Hotel begun at Ketchum

KETCHUM — The developers of the Grey Hawk Hotel beat a building permit deadline just under the wire Thursday and began construction of the huge luxury hotel to be located at the base of Bald Mountain in Ketchum.

After nearly four years of battles in and out of court, ground breaking for the 218-room hotel began Thursday.

The project developers had to begin construction by today or forfeit their building permit. The permit was granted in late December and required the Grey Hawk developers begin ground breaking within 120 days, which period ends today.

If all goes well, the Grey Hawk project, a 218-room resort lodge with estimated development costs totaling $12 to $13 million, will present Ketchum with its first major resort facility.

Architect plans show a three-story,

173,917-square-foot building which will boast two restaurants, a bar, a greenhouse-type lounge, banquet hall, five elevators, a swimming pool and health spa. The project developers estimate the hotel will employ about 200 people.

Grey Hawk architect Dave Barovetto said today that if all goes according to schedule, the luxury hotel will have its grand opening in January, 1980.

Vandals plague Ketchum

KETCHUM — Ketchum has slowed its pace between the busy winter and summer tourist seasons but the Ketchum city police phones have been ringing with calls from angry citizens reporting a spree of petty vandalism.

Late Thursday evening 10 citizens reported the air had been released from their car tires, according to police reports.

Even though most gas stations in town were closed, the police were able to help the citizens by inflating the car tires at the Sun Valley Police Department.

But the problems of four automobile owners were not so easily solved on Sunday evening when police reports show the windows of four cars were smashed at random points in Ketchum. Nothing was taken from the cars, according to police reports.

And a week and a half earlier, on April 11, the police report that windows were broken at two office buildings and a restaurant in Ketchum.

Two juveniles were detained for these incidents involving the broken building windows and restitution is being made to the business owners, but investigating officers have few leads on the other acts of vandalism.

Ketchum Police Chief Dennis Haynes said the city does not usually have problems with vandalism.

Aides turn levy vote

PAYETTE (UPI) — Voters in the Payette School District narrowly defeated a $-mill improvement levy Thursday night, but officials wasted little time in deciding to hold an override vote.

Superintendent Jim Fisher said the vote was 506-314, or 61.7 percent in favor, however a two-thirds majority was needed. In an override vote, 50 percent approval is needed.

The levy would have generated $650,000 to be spread over five years. Fisher said the money would have covered remodeling, plant re-serve, equipment, transportation and roof maintenance. The override vote is set for May 23.

Tarkanian says sacrifice precedes success

First in line

AWARD WINNERS Rose and Tommy Walker, right, accept the first Al Ralph trophy for outstanding booster service to the College of Southern Idaho athletic program. Mrs. Ralph and Booster President Hank Woodall officiate at the presentation made Thursday night at the annual CSI awards banquet.

TWIN FALLS — "So many athletes want to be great but many are willing to pay the price." That was the premise of Jerry Tarkanian, coach of University of Nevada at Las Vegas Thursday night when he spoke at the College of Southern Idaho annual athletic awards banquet. Tarkanian, who has known the ups and downs of college coaching on the competitive and political front, used former CSI guard Ricky Sobers as his example in speaking to the 300 athletes, coaches, boosters and guests attending the shindig. "Sobers was the greatest Rebel of them all," Tarkanian said of the New York product. "No one has matched what he has accomplished." "What he did he did himself between his junior and senior year," Tarkanian continued. "It was a change in attitude. He decided he was a little over weight. He lost it by running and dieting. He was a guest of my home for Thanksgiving his senior year and he refused pumpkin pie because he said 'I'm not eating sweets.'"

"But the next year Sobers and four sophomores had a great year and we went into the NCAA playoffs. From the year Sobers was a senior and over the next two years we had bananas. And we had success. The greatest effort, the team that worked hardest these are the years that when accomplished give the team and the coach the great feeling." Earlier in the night, Coach Mike Mitchell had indeed MVP award winner, Jerry Williams, Chicago frosh, as one of the best if not the best in the long line of CSI basketball greats. Coach Tarkanian promised that if Williams was indeed the best in the CSI line, Las Vegas definitely would be hot in the recruiting pursuit. Tarkanian also admonished the athletes assembled to be grateful for the opportunity to have participated in the CSI program. He lauded it as one of the top two or three in the nation, tracing some of the names who have gone on to professional or NCAA rewaras. Earlier in the proceedings, Rose and Tommy Walker, former CSI stars, and have been named the recipient of the first Al Ralph trophy, emblematic of outstanding service by boosters to the CSI athletic program. The award was named for Al Ralph, long time CSI supporter, who died in January of this year. It need not necessarily be an annual presentation, nor would it be restricted to just one recipient per year, Booster President Hank Wood said in presenting the plaque. The Walkers provided athletic scholarships and had paid the "guest and athletes' bill for meals at the athletic banquet for several years. "It was a complete surprise," Mrs. Walker said afterward, and then amended that to, "well, it was a complete surprise to Tommy," which indicated she had been in on the deal earlier than the announcement. In the athletic awards, volleyball coach Jan Mitchell (Mrs. Leon Smith) presented the outstanding frosh award to Tommy Gardner and the top sophomore prize to Kathy Eggleston. Girls basketball coach Bob Wright, noting the team in three years had risen from a near disaster to 17-3, cited Polly Smith as the top freshman and Sam Lorens as the leading sophomore. Track Coach Jim Blaisdell presented the top sophomore award to Paul Pilkington and the outstanding freshman prize to Steve Correa. He mentioned he anticipated both doing well in regional and national competition later this spring. The top tip thrower to now, Coach Blaisdell said, was weightman-javelin thrower Tim Robinson. That prize will not be officially bestowed until the end of the season. Baseball coach Jim Walker, after introducing his team, noted the two prizes, leading hitter Ed MVP, will not be awarded until the end of the season. In basketball, Coach Mitchell presented the Vern Riddle inspirational award to sophomore Bob Starner, who he said, led the nation in "sitches." Jerry Williams picked up the MVP award and frosh Curtis Rayford was named the team's outstanding defensive player. Coach Mitchell also introduced several young men he is trying to recruit for next year's team. These include Jeff Herba of Boise; Karl Emmons of Jerome; and Jim Grishp of Borah, all high school seniors, and Mark Stroud, a Highland of Pocatello product who attended Brigham Young University last year.

Trevino leads on closing birdie; Player lodged four strokes back

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Lee Trevino's 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole gave him a seven-under-par 65 Thursday, good enough for a one-shot lead after one round of the New Orleans Open and a four-shot advantage over Gary Player — winner of his last three tournaments. Trevino, who holds the New Orleans tournament record of 21-under-par, combined a new putting style and near perfect playing conditions to come within one stroke of the Lakewood Country Club 18-hole record. He finished the day a shot ahead of Mark Hayes and two ahead of 67 shooters Homero Blancas, Bob E. Smith and Ray Floyd, who bogeyed two of the last three holes to lose his chance for the opening day lead. Player, trying to become the fourth player ever to win four consecutive tour events, cruised around in three-under-par 63 and did not have a bogey on his card. "We've got to be realistic," said Player. "A 69 is not too bad a round. Four of these should not be too far back when it's all over." Player had opened last week's tournament in Houston with a course-record 64, but eventually had to overcome a five-shot deficit on the final day. Trevino, whose most recent victory was at last year's Canadian Open and who hasstrung together three birdies in a row at one point of his round. "I must have left 20 or 30 putts short right in the mouth of the hole last week (in Houston)," Trevino said. "But today, they went in." Trevino made four putts of 15 feet or longer for birdies. "I changed my putting style and I feel more comfortable," he said. "I started watching Ben Crenshaw. He's a very upright putter and I just tried it out. It's given me a tremendous lot of confidence." Trevino said playing conditions on the 7,000-yard, par-72 layout were similar to those in 1974 when he won the tournament with a record score of 227. "The course is not playing long." Trevino said. "The fairways are running well. I think par today was 69 or 68. The conditions were just perfect." Hayes, who three-potted the 18th green for his only bogey of the day, echoed Trevino's comments. "With no winds, or very little winds, I expected the scores to be low," said Hayes, whose best finish this year has been a tie for ninth at the Hawaiian Open. Hayes holed out two chip shots and put two other chips within a foot of the pin to scramble to his six-under 66. Among those at four-under 68 — three behind Trevino — were former New Orleans champion Miller Barber, Rod Curl, George Burns and Andy Bean, who faded on the back nine last Sunday to allow Player to come from behind and win his third straight tourney. Player said he was pleased with his round, particularly because of the increased pressure brought about by his winning streak. But Trevino disagreed that the pressure was the key. "He's actually the man to beat out there," said Trevino. "He doesn't have any pressure on him. No one expects him to do it (win four in a row). He can afford to free-wheel it. With the confidence he has here he's going to be hard to beat."

Campbell signs Houston pact six days before NFL draft

HOUSTON (UPI) — Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell Thursday agreed to contract terms with the Houston Oilers, six days before the team was scheduled to make him the nation's No. 1 NFL pick in the college draft. Campbell's agent, Mike Trope, and Oilers' assistant general manager Pat Peppier worked out the details of the contract Wednesday and Thursday and presented it to Campbell. "I'm very happy with it," Campbell said. "With Mike's hard work, and the way the Oilers cooperated, it was no problem. No figures were released. The Oilers traded for the draft rights for Campbell Monday. Houston sent Tampa Bay Light and Jimmy Giles and four draft choices for the Buccaneers No. 1 draft choice. Houston will use that choice in next Tuesday's draft to select the former University of Texas tailback. Oilers owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Jr., said by mutual consent no details of the contract would be disclosed. "We just finished a 20-hour negotiating season with Earl and Mike, and we agreed on most of the terms that we needed to," Adams said. "All we need to do now is for Earl to sign the standard player's contract." Adams said the speed with which the contract was negotiated was due to Campbell's traveling to New York next Monday to appear on nationwide television. He also will be in New York Tuesday for the draft and is scheduled to participate in a news conference as soon as he is named the No. 1 pick. Campbell, 5'11" and 230 pounds, led the nation in rushing last year with more than 1,700 yards. The Oilers invited Campbell and Trope to Houston Tuesday and met with the press. They then went immediately into contract negotiations. Adams also represented 1977 Heisman Trophy winner Troy Dorsett in his contract negotiations with the Dallas Cowboys last year. Trope has indicated he hoped to get a better contract for Campbell than he did for Dorsett. Dorsett's contract reportedly involved more than $250,000 for five years.

Detroit's 'Bird' flying low

SEATTLE (UPI) — Seldom has Mark "The Bird" Fidrych flown any lower. The Tiger right-hander, who won Rookie of the Year honors in the American League in 1976 but then slumped to a 6-4 mark last year due to leg and shoulder injuries, has a persistent sore arm that has not responded to cortisone treatments. Fidrych was given a cortisone shot Sunday after he said he was unable to pitch on Saturday and had hoped a few days of rest would restore his arm. But with each of 45 pitches in a practice session Thursday, there was pain. Fidrych, who won 19 games his first year, said the soreness was apparent from the first practice pitch and "Yep" it was the same kind of pain he experienced last summer when he spent the second half of the season on the sidelines with tendinitis. Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said it was not known when Fidrych would be able to pitch again: Fidrych said very little but showed his disappointment in the club house after the practice session, tossing his clothes on the floor in disgust as he disrobed. "We'll just have to wait a few days and see how he feels then," said Houk. "That's all we can do — wait." "He can't throw the ball now, that's all there is to it. He's still got the same soreness in his shoulder when he reaches back to throw. It doesn't seem to be any better. "He's certainly not ready to pitch, that's for sure. All I can do is rest him and do what the doctors tell me to do. He'll keep taking his medication to reduce the inflammation and we'll see what happens." The Tigers had no plans to place Fidrych on the disabled list or call up a pitcher from their Evanville farm club to replace him. Fidrych's absence from the lineup leaves Houk with four starting pitchers, Dave Rozema, Jack Billingham, Jack Morris and Jim Slaton. Both Rozema and Morris have had some problems this year with sore arms. The Tigers faced the Mariners tonight in the first game of a weekend series, sending Slaton to the mound against Rick Honeycutt. Houk said he was "amazed" by Fidrych's arm trouble since he had been able to throw well in the Instructional League last fall and did well this spring and in winning his first two starts, both via complete games. "If he had hurt his arm, he wouldn't have been able to pitch the way he did in those games," said Houk. "If he had actually hurt something, it would have hurt on every pitch he made, and it wouldn't have gotten worse. "If I knew exactly what it was, it would ease my mind," said Houk. "I'm sure Mark would like to know, too. "Maybe, it's just as the doctors say, some inflammation that has kicked up and will go away. Maybe, three days from now, his arm will feel so good he won't be able to believe it."

Duran wins 32nd straight match

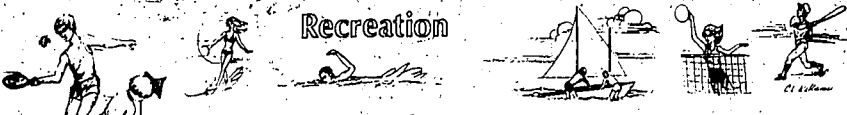

NEW YORK (UPI) — World lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama notched his 32nd straight victory Tuesday night with a 10-round unanimous decision over junior welterweight Adolfo Viruel in a non-title bout before 17,135 at Madison Square Garden. Duran, thin despite being seven pounds over his usual weight of 135, forced the attack from the start and bloodied Viruel's nose in the ninth round. "There were no knockdowns in the fight, but all three officials were one-sided for Duran, who picked up $100,000 for his half hour of work. Referee Arthur Mercante, who instructed the judges to take away the seventh round from Duran for low blows, gave Duran seven rounds to two with one event. Judge Tony Castellano had Duran ahead 7-3 and judge Artie Aldela had Duran ahead 8-4. After the decision, Adolfo's older brother Edwin, who lost two decisions to Duran, jumped into the ring and tried to throw a punch at Duran, who had to be restrained from retaliating. Edwin was pulled away by guards without any blows landing. Viruel, a New Yorker, three-quarters of a pound lighter than Duran at 141½, was content to play a guarding game in the early going, hoping to catch Duran off guard. "But Duran, fighting with intensity he rarely shows in non-title fights, kept bringing the action to Viruel, whose record dropped to 15-5-0. Duran, 31-1 with 48 KO's, had his best round in the ninth when he landed a hard right to Viruel's midsection and followed with a left to the head."

Alydar looks tough in derby outlook

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — If things keep going as smoothly for Alydar as they have been during his 3-year-old season, next week's Kentucky Derby should pose few problems. The handsome chestnut, sent off as an overwhelming favorite, Thursday won his fourth straight race this year, trouncing a weak field of eight others to win the $100,000 added Blue Grass at Keeneland by a whopping 13-3/4 lengths. But despite the winning margin, trainer John Veltsch said the horse was not as sharp as he had been during his impressive victories in the Flamingo Stakes and Florida Derby. "I purposely didn't have him as sharp — I wanted this to be more of a final week he would be in perfect shape for the next nine days," said Veltsch. Even though Alydar got crookedly at the start, he had no problem handling the field once jockey Jorge Velasquez decided to make his move going around the far turn into the stretch. The big colt easily overtook pretensees Raymond Eari and left the field behind as he thundered down the stretch under intermittent whipping from his jockey. "Jorge said the track was considerably heavy in spots," said Veltsch. "I don't know if he knows he won but it's certainly better than getting his brains beat out. Alydar sent off as the prohibitive 1-10 favorite in the field of nine, the shortest priced horse since Honest Pleasure in 1976 and Bimblech in 1940. His margin of victory was the largest since Arts and Letters scored by 15 lengths in 1969. Alydar was timed over the 1/4 mile course in 1:14-9/32. "The victory was Alydar's ninth win in 14 career starts. After Raymond Eari broke first and led the pack through margins of 1:23 4-5 and 4:5 1-5, Velasquez allowed Alydar to move up on the outside. The big chestnut pounded past the tiring and overmarched horses around the far turn and cruised down the backstretch as he won the final eight. Raymond Eari finished second, followed by Go For. Alydar, in raising his lifetime earnings to $274,028, returned $2.20 and $2.20 while Raymond Eari also paid $2.20. There was no show wagering on the race, which resulted in a minus pool of $35,076.45. It was the sixth Blue Grass victory for the devil's red-and-blue of Calumet Farms, who last won with Forward Pass in 1968. Alydar, second in his archival Affirmed in the balloting for 2-year-old champion last year, shipped to Louisville Friday to prepare for his No. 6 Kentucky Derby. "May, there weren't any problems," said Veltsch. "It was about what I expected. Sometimes he thinks it's all over when he goes by someone too soon."

New club offers gymnastics

TWIN FALLS — Most construction workers get a chance to walk on a three- or four-luck beam at one time or another, but three Magic Valley couples are doing something to provide children with the same opportunity, but not on a construction site.

The three, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Watson, Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Buck and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Perry, said they were tired of taking their children to Boise to gymnastics clubs for training. Because of the hassles of the trips, they asked themselves "why not have one here?"

As a result of their questioning, the six people got together and formed "SAGE Gymnastics."

The "SAGE" stands for Southern Idaho Association for Gymnastics Education. "We wanted it to be for all of Magic Valley, not just Twin Falls," Everett commented.

A 6,000 square foot building is now going up at 2042 4th Ave. East because of their dreams.

"We're not in it to make a fast buck, but to help the kids," Mrs. Buck said.

"Look around; there just aren't any sports for the little girls until they get into junior high or high school," Mrs. Buck pointed out.

The three couples say they see gymnastics as a way to provide youngsters, both boys and girls, with training in exercise, balance and coordination. All that will come with the help of a professional coach, they insist.

As a result, they are now interviewing several gymnastics coaches and are "pretty close to hiring one."

Those interviews have included coaches from across the nation.

The gymnastics club will have the latest equipment which will meet the same standards as those of the college sanctioning NCAA.

"We wanted to get the same kind of equipment the colleges use because it is the best," Perry said.

The first priority for equipment was a balance beam, uneven parallel bars and springboards but in the future when there is more demand, for men's equipment the exercises "horse" and "men's rings" will be added, they said.

"Gymnastics is not something you can pick up when you are in junior high or high school," Perry said. "Look at Olga Korbut and Nadia Comaneci. They were 12 and 13 when they won the Olympics," he added.

The club will not be here to force the kids to compete but to give them a program they can carry on all year round.

"It's something you can leave for a while and still come back too and it's not limited to one season," Mrs. Buck said.

Area high schools do have gymnastics programs along with the YMCA but those programs compete with other developed athletics for participants and are also just seasonal programs.

"The kids who are involved in it around here have to go to summer camps for training during the summer season, Watson said.

As a club, they are joining the U.S. Gymnastics Federation and the Idaho Gymnastics Federation. The USGF is the standard setting organization for the U.S. and is responsible for training judges and holding most of the meets.

When most other sports pit the individual against someone as strong or stronger than themselves, gymnastics pit the individual against himself or herself, Perry added. It helps teach character and self esteem along with the physical exercise, he added.

Construction of the building is going on now and is scheduled to be finished in mid-June.

Although the club will not be a private club, there is a limited amount of room for who would like to get involved.

As a result, the three couples insist that those who want to work in gymnastics will be accepted on a first come first serve basis.

A pre-opening registration for club membership will be held May 13 and 14 at the home of Mrs. Buck at 2042 Rancho Vista Dr. Those who would like more information about the club can call Mrs. Buck at 734-3134.

Even though the Magic Valley does not boast a national gymnastics champion now, perhaps four or five years down the line, this area could be represented in the Olympics by a 12 year-old gymnastics wonder from here.

Cycle races this weekend

TWIN FALLS — Local bicycle enthusiasts will get a chance to observe some of the Intermountain area's best amateur bike racers here Saturday and Sunday when the Magic Valley Bicycle Club sponsors two types of races.

Riders from Idaho, Utah and Wyoming will be competing for U.S. Cycle Federation points on a national scale in a closed course race and a 75 mile cross country race.

The criterium race, or the 20-25 mile closed course race, will be held Saturday at CSI parking lot. The participants in this race must have a USCF license for racing.

Local cyclists who wish to try their skill in such a race may also enter in one of the citizens races to begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. The citizens races will only be one-half for the younger riders and one mile for the older classes. Registration will take place from 8-9 a.m. Saturday.

All racers must sign a waiver of liability form and children who enter the races must have their parents sign the form. Those forms can be obtained from John Houser or by calling 73-0671 or 733-8384.

The citizens races will be broken down into 10-year age groups. Registration for these races will be held at the CSI parking lot.

Medals will be awarded to the first ten places in the races.

A $1 fee will be charged to those entering the races in the older age classes and 50 cents for those in the three younger classes.

The one mile closed circuit course will contain two 45 degree turns, an S turn and a straight section. Merchandise prizes will be awarded to the racers who place in the sanctified race.

The USCF licensed races will be started immediately after the citizens races are concluded.

Sunday, the racers will tackle a 75 mile road race which will take them from CSI to Buhl and on into the Hagerman Valley, to the north side of the canyon to the Buhl canyon road, back to Buhl and then on to CSI. That race should take about three hours to finish.

According to Race Director John Houser, there has been a lot of interest expressed about the Magic Valley hosting the race and local merchants have donated prizes and trophies for the races.

Five area cyclists will be in the USCF races. Those five are Dave Nelson, Gary Graham, David Peterson, Mark Everett and Dennis Bolkin.

"We hope to have more of these races here in the future," Houser commented.

Perfect balance

CONCENTRATING on staying on the balance beam is eight-year-old Kathleen Lehr. Gymnastics students like Kathleen will soon be able to receive year-round coaching through the new gymnastics club now being constructed.
