

Hansen proposal brings 'No' vote on Panama Canal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House of Representatives finally got a chance to vote—a hefty "no"—on the Panama Canal bill.

It voted 311 to 170 Tuesday to assert its right to have a say before canal tolls are used for maintenance of the waterways.

Specifically, the House inserted a provision in the 1978 federal budget saying the Panama Canal Co. may not directly spend toll receipts on maintenance. Instead they would go to the U.S. Treasury and could be spent only after authorization and appropriation by Congress.

The proposal would have no effect unless the Senate—which did not include it in its version of the budget—concurred.

Even then, such a provision in the budget would have no force unless implemented by specific legislation.

But Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, author of the proposal, said it would preserve the right of the House "to scrutinize expenses," even though the House had no voice when the Senate, acting, he said, "like a House of Lords," approved ratification of the Panama Canal treaties.

"What we are talking about is the prerogative of the House," Hansen declared. "We should have a co-equal voice in the affairs of government."

Democratic leader Jim Wright urged rejection of Hansen's proposal, which he called "thoroughly irresponsible," and an attempt to show "inacho." Wright said it would "throw a monkey wrench in international machinery" and make the treaties "unworkable."

When the House suspended work on the budget for the day—with intentions to finish late today—the spending figure for fiscal year 1980 stood at $497 billion.

The House voted 189 to 189 to cut $3 billion from the budget of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in order to require that agency to reduce "wasteful mismanagement and fraud."

It rejected 200-185 a proposal by Rep. Joseph Fisher, D-Va., to cut another $7 billion across the board.

A proposal by Rep. Garry Brown, R-Mich., to cut $185 million in expenses of regulatory agencies—in order, he said, to reduce inflation—lost on a tie vote.

Lettuce prices easing

United Press International
The age-old law of supply and demand apparently has checked the inflated cost of lettuce before it could reach the proportions of the sugar, beef and coffee price escalations of recent years.

A poor crop and late harvest hampered by California's heavy winter rains cut the nation's supply of iceberg lettuce, driving up prices to a peak of $1.49 a head at Buffalo, N.Y., last week.

But a UPI survey Tuesday showed price-wary shoppers cut consumption and harvests in Florida and Arizona have increased the supply, pushing the prices down once again. Prices this week declined to an average 75 cents a head or less.

"The market will go down in the next 10 days, no question about it," said Ar Christerson, a Salinas, Calif., lettuce farmer.

Some farmers predicted less severe lettuce shortages this summer because of continued bad weather in California. But none said the prices would escalate to the levels of the last 10 days.

In Twin Falls grocery stores, shoppers are buying iceberg lettuce this week for 79 cents a pound, down from as high as $1 a pound during the past two weeks.

Safeway Stores were selling today at 79 cents per head, with heads weighing from one to two pounds each and averaging around 1.5 pounds.

Tuesday the same stores were selling lettuce at 95 cents per head, a drop of 16 cents per head in one day's time.

Bernie Sparrell, produce manager at Buttreys', said the store's lettuce comes largely from California where the heavy rains washed out much of the crop and prevented planting.

He said at the height of the shortage lettuce was $1 a pound.

"We didn't have many complaints but some shoppers who picked up a head of lettuce without paying much attention to the price, were a little shocked at the check stand. Some of the heads were $2 each," Sparrell said.

He said the store was paying as high as $3 a carton with 24 heads per carton.

"We were pretty lucky to be able to hold the price to $1 a pound, considering trimming and other losses. We about broke even," he said.

Although there is no normal lettuce price or normal price of any produce item, for that matter, Sparrell said—the store expects to pay about $6 to $8.50 per carton for lettuce and at the present time is paying $13.

Consumer's Market reported a price of 79 cents today and said the highest price reached during the shortage was 99 cents per pound. Store owners said they were able to stay under the $1 mark of other stores by buying from a Burley wholesaler where the supply was apparently good and held up through most of the shortage.

The smaller stores do not buy in the quantity the bigger markets require so the price change is not as fluctuating as in larger markets.

Food deserves world's top priority: Borlaug

MOSCOW (UPI)—It's been 12,000 years since man domesticated plants and began feeding himself.

Now, the author of the Green Revolution that began massive new plantings to feed burgeoning Third World populations in the past decade says it's time to once again rearrange our priorities and make the first one food.

Dr. Norman Borlaug, winner of the Nobel Peace prize for starting the Green Revolution that introduced fertilized and successful grain crops in South Asia from 1966-1971, told an audience at the University of Idaho the "first right of every human being is food."

And the magnitude of the problem of feeding the masses is staggering.

"Our population has doubled eight times in the past 12,000 years and will double again by the year 2015. That means eight billion people will need to be fed in the next 40 years."

Borlaug said the Green Revolution, "was not meant to be any magic solution to all of the complex inter-related problems of population growth, human hunger, misery and poverty."

"I suppose there have been many green revolutions in the past. The first and most important one was the domestication of the plants. All of the basic food crops on which we largely depend took place 12,000 years ago."

Since that time, a few of the nations, like the United States, have become the largest consumers.

"We represent six per cent of the total population and yet consume 30-35 per cent of all energy."

There's also the problem of population intensity. The third world countries contain the largest populations and, for the most part, birth control is nonexistent.

"When we talk of food and expanding production, it has no meaning except in terms of how we balance this against population growth."

"Of course one of the most frightening things about this is that some of the developing countries are already very densely populated. They have population growths that are going on at frightening rates."

Borlaug dismissed as "a lot of nonsense" theories that the Green Revolution was too energy intensive, using gasoline, fertilizer and modern equipment like in American agriculture and simply could not be extended in the Third World because it took too much energy to produce fertilizer.

Italians denounce Brigades

ROME (UPI)—Hundreds of thousands of workers and students, many with placards reading "assassins," jammed Rome's St. John Lateran Square in a driving rain today to condemn the Red Brigades murderers of ex-Premier Aldo Moro.

The demonstrators, standing in a sea of umbrellas and the dripping banners of their trade unions and political parties, chanted, "Down with terrorism, down with the violent subversives."

Many carried placards bearing the single word: "Assassins."

Photographs of Moro lined the vast square as labor union leaders delivered emotional speeches asking for unity in the fight against terrorism.

Across Italy, police ranned the government's emergency "Plan 3" into action to guard against an expected new "sensational terrorist act" by the Red Brigades. Full details of the plan were not available but Italy's largest newspaper, the Milan Corriere della Sera called it "a plan to capture the killers."

Police also launched a search for a man and woman spotted parking the red car in which terrorists left the body of murdered Aldo Moro.

Hundreds of police searched through a light drizzle over the Fregene beach resort north of Rome in a furious hunt for the gang that kidnaped Moro March 16 and held him captive for 55 days before murdering him. Lab experts said the sand found embedded in the cuffs of Moro's trousers matched the white beach sands of Fregene.

Overruling the expressed wishes of the family, the Christian Democratic Party said a state funeral would be held Saturday for the man considered the leading candidate for the Italian presidency.

Bell ringer

ST. GEORGE, Utah (UPI)—For several weeks, the phones in the office of a group of St. George attorneys would ring but nobody would be on the other end.

Finally, one of the office staff noticed that every time somebody went to the restroom, the "phantom" would call. Closer inspection revealed that when someone sat on the toilet, the phone would ring.

Mountain Bell technicians were called in and found the telephone system in the office was grounded to a water pipe on the floor below. When someone sat on the commode, the circuit would be broken and the phone would ring.

Farmers may get $18 million break

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee today approved and sent to the full U.S. Senate a Bill to provide $18 million in federal funds to cover Idaho farmers' share of the American Falls dam replacement costs.

U.S. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said this morning approval of the bill and its amendments almost certainly assures final approval by the Senate as a whole.

The House earlier approved the bill, known as the Reclamation Safety of Dams Act of 1978, Power, the House version of the bill did not make benefits retroactive to cover American Falls.

If the bill approved by the committee becomes law, Idaho farmers who get water from the American Falls Dam will not have to pay $18 million for reconstruction of the American Falls dam.

More than 8,000 southern Idaho farmers who get irrigation water from the American Falls Dam at present are obligated to pay an $18 million share of the total reconstruction cost of $38 million for the dam.

The dam holds 1.7 million acre-feet of water and is the major irrigation dam in southern Idaho.

Under the bill sent to the Senate floor today, the federal government would reimburse Idaho farmers for their share of the construction costs.

American Falls Reservoir District board of directors has urged Idaho's senators to push for the amendments that make the government, rather than southern Idaho farmers, pay a major share of the reconstruction of the dam.

John Barker, chairman of the board, said the bill was "made to order" for the American Falls situation, although the dam was found defective and efforts begun for replacement as early as 1973.

As amended, the bill would provide $18 million for the project. This would cover all of the replacement cost with the exception of the Idaho Power Co. share.

Idaho Power agreed to provide up to $18 million toward replacement costs in exchange for power-generating rights. During construction of the replacement sections of the dam, the Power Company installed new large generators to take advantage of the falling water power for generation of electricity at an additional cost.

Waterusers were to pay the remaining $18 million over a period of years through annual water use assessments.

Many farmers on marginal land argued they could not afford the cost of current water charges plus the annual increase for dam replacement.

Several lawsuits resulted. Some dissident waterusers urged the district to delay replacement of the dam until federal funding could be obtained to pay for the rebuilding of the dam.

The dam was declared unsafe in 1975 and the water level had to be lowered.

The reconstruction began in 1976.

A spokesman from Sen. McClure's office said the wording of the bill indicates American Falls Dam is the only dam in the nation to qualify under the reimbursement amendments.

Nice pet, but they do grow up

JENSEN, Utah (UPI) — The rare skeleton of a baby stegosaurus is being carefully removed from a quarry at Dinosaur National Monument — only the second such find in paleontologic history.

is a break in quarry policy. The goal of the scientists has been to expose bones in the sandstone wall and leave them in place so visitors could see how they looked in the ancient stream bed where the carcasses were washed into rock of a canyon.

Scientists have known about the "remarkably complete" skeleton for 13 years, but only recently decided to remove it from a sandstone ledge in the monument visitor center in Jensen and put it on display.

King conducted a press briefing on the excavation, which he said is 60 percent complete.

Plaster casts of the bones will be circulated for study in the scientific community. He said: "A model of the skeleton will be sent to Yale, which has the other baby stegosaurus."

"The one thing visitors have asked to see over the years is a mounted dinosaur," King said. "This is an attempt to answer that problem without using up a great deal of space, time and money."

In 100 years of collecting Jurassic dinosaurs in this country, this marks the second baby stegosaurus ever found," Park paleontologist Russel King said Tuesday. "The first one was found 100 years ago in Como Bluff near

The stegosaurus was a plant-eating dinosaur with large leaflike plates protruding from its spine. It was high at the hips and low at the shoulders and roamed eastern Utah 135-145 million years ago.

King said the whole skeleton was about the "size of a German Shepherd, a nice little pet." When full-grown, the stegosaurus was the size of an elephant.

"These bones are very small and difficult to see in the quarry face," he said. The project should be finished within about two years. Meantime, the public may watch scientists as they work on the fossil.

Italians condemn Moro slaying

not want any state funeral, and all but told political leaders they would not be welcome at the private funeral.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the new knee-attack, but such leg shootings are a favorite Red Brigades method of warning their enemies that they have incurred the gang's wrath.

Paul VI condemned it as a "barbarous killing." Holland specifically applauded the government's refusal "to submit to terrorist blackmail."

The pontiff eulogized Moro at his weekly general audience as Italy's parliament, shocked but united by a national outcry to avenge Moro's slaying, was called into session today to back a tough new anti-terrorist law aimed at the Red Brigades.

Initial autopsy reports, meanwhile, said Moro had apparently attempted to defend himself as his killers began to pump the first of 11 bullets into his chest.

Curcio was immediately ejected from the packed and heavily guarded courtroom where he and 18 other Brigades are being tried on terrorism charges.

The universal disgust over the slaying appeared for now at least, to have frustrated the Red Brigades' goal of driving a wedge between the Communists, the Christian Democrats, the group justifies its terrorism by saying it seeks a fascist coup, which would spark a Communist reaction and lead to a genuine revolution of the masses.

But when continued in Rome, when a terrorist hit squad of three men and a woman pumped five bullets into the legs of a director of Italy's vast Montedison Corp. in a Red Brigades-style "knee-capping."

The Interior Ministry said "Plan 33" had been set up for use immediately after the Moro case reached conclusion to "throw the country into chaos."

Much the way John Kennedy's death stunned America in 1963, Moro's slaying has shocked Italy, though it came after 55 days of captivity.

But millions of Communists and Roman Catholics joined Tuesday in nationwide protests against the killers. Catholics and Communists, each with their own banners, marched jointly to the Colosseum in Rome for a demonstration.

The Christian-Democratic party which had been headed by Moro — said the state funeral would be held at the basilica of St. John in Lateran in Rome. Party leaders said the funeral would be held without the body.

The ministry said it was working on the theory that the Red Brigades would time "a sensational terrorist action" with the conclusion of the Moro kidnapping.

Schools, movie houses and many businesses throughout Italy were closed today. Hundreds of young Christian Democrats spent the night in silent vigil in the Piazza del Gesù after a mass in the adjacent baroque Church of Jesus.

"Either we go to the rally for Moro or we go to the funeral of democracy," one Communist youth said.

Moro's embittered family has planned a quiet, private funeral in Turrita Tiberina. In a statement Tuesday, the family it did

North of Rome, hundreds of police searchers combed the beach areas of Fregene for the hideout of Moro's kidnappers. They said sand found in the cuffs of Moro's trousers matched the white sands of Fregene.

World leaders paid homage to the soft-spoken, 61-year-old statesman who had served as prime minister five times, guiding his nation through much the prosperous 60s as well as the social unrest that marked this decade.

CONCERN OVER EARLY VOTES IN WICHITA

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — One of the largest voter turnouts in city history helped repeal a homosexual rights law by an almost 5-to-1 ratio.

missioners Connie Peters, Gary Porter and Jack Shanahan.

One gay leader said the tally showed there are many people "willing to go to the polls and vote to discriminate."

"I think the fact that nearly 5,000 voted against this gay rights proposal is an indication that this city feels they (the city commissioners) have made an error here," Click said.

The non-discrimination ordinance fell by 47,344 to 10,000 votes and became the third such law in the nation to be repealed. A gay rights statute in Dade County, Fla., was repealed last June and a St. Paul, Minn., ordinance was canceled last month.

"I think this is a vote not only for repeal of the gay rights amendment but also a vote of no confidence" in their leadership," Jean O'Leary and Bruce Voeller of the National Gay Task Force in New York said they were shocked the rights of homosexuals had been lost in a third referendum.

The voter turnout in the special $80,000 election, one of the largest in Wichita history, exceeded all predictions.

"Other minority groups have not been subjected to such tests of their civil rights; indeed, if they had been, they might well have lost too," they said.

To Robert Lewis, co-director of the Sodagwick County Homophile Alliance, the turnout showed that "there are a lot of bigoted people in Wichita."

Lewis said the landslide repeal should not decrease the homosexual community's city involvement, which has been spurred through the publicity sparked by the ordinance and efforts to repeal it.

The Rev. Ron Adrian, president of Concerned Citizens for Community Standards, an anti-homosexual vigilante group, called the election a "strong mandate for righteousness," that should prompt three city commissioners to apologize for approving the law last September.

"We're not talking about simple hassling or 'calling names,'" Lewis added. "We're talking about something really physical."

The Rev. John Click said the vote revealed a public desire to recall com-

"The public took care of it," Waters said. "Now there's more lettuce than we need."

Prices reached $1.29 a head in Indianapolis where supermarket officials said shipments at the height of the shortage dropped to 106 carloads a day, compared to the normal 500 daily carloads.

"In India and Pakistan, where the impact of the revolution has been greatest, production has increased from 11 million tons in 1966 to 31 million this year.

"You need a shirt on your back, a roof over your head, a job to gain a livelihood, productive and constructive work, education for your children and medical care when you're sick. These to me these are the six basic human rights."

"Burger Chef has an 'all you can eat' salad bar," said spokesman Rick Bollinger in Indianapolis. "During these times, when lettuce is expensive in the grocery, you can bet that's what they've been doing."

Lettuce prices even shot to 89 cents a head in supermarkets at San Francisco — 150 miles from the lettuce fields — but began declining as the crop harvested picked up under fair skies.

Farmers still largely operate with oxen and wooden plows. The important input of the national mood grim and angry, the Chamber of Deputies appeared certain to approve the anti-terrorist measure by an overwhelming vote of confidence during their debate today.

Lebanon tensions on rise

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Tensions are up in south Lebanon today because of a new clash between Norwegian U.N. troops and Palestinians guerrillas, one week after three peace-keeping troops died in heavy fighting in Tyre.

Ten U.N. troops have died since the peace-keeping force arrived in March. Most were killed in mine explosions. Fourteen U.N. soldiers have been wounded.

Norwegian soldiers fought for about 30 minutes Tuesday with radical guerrillas near the southeastern town of Kaikaba, reports from the scene said.

The flare-up in Kaikaba coincided with a U.N. denial of reports that French troops were to pull out of the guerrilla-held port of Tyre, the scene of last week's fighting. A U.N. spokesman said no official decision had been announced.

U.N. officials said one Norwegian lieutenant was wounded slightly in the leg, while one Palestinian was killed and three wounded.

Senior French Brig. Gen. Jean Cug, deputy commander of Lebanon U.N. force, added, "There's no question of this and there never has been any question of this."

Residents said the fighting began, when the Norwegians opened fire on guerrillas trying to erect a roadblock against U.N. directives.

The fighting Tuesday was the first major battle since May 3, when Palestinian guerrillas ambushed U.N. troops near Tyre, killing two French paratroopers and one Senegalese soldier. Palestinian casualties were not announced.

Mondale heading home

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale said today his tour of the Southeast Asia-Pacific area showed that American relations with the region have changed from paternalism to "mature partnerships."

Mondale-toled-ins host, New Zealand Prime Minister Robert Muldoon: "We greatly respect and admire the role of leadership that you have played and continue to play. In the development of New Zealand's links with the Asian-Pacific, as my visit has demonstrated we too wish to strengthen our ties with these nations."

Mondale, who left Wellington late today for Honolulu, said his five-nation trip through the Philippines, Thailand, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand had enabled him to see an emerging region marked by a strong desire for peace.

The vice president also promised to relay New Zealand's concern about protectionism on agricultural products to President Carter. Muldoon had earlier criticized the "pernicious policy of agricultural protectionism" in most great industrial nations.

"My visit has served to emphasize that our relations with the region have moved from an era of paternalism to an era of mature partnerships," Mondale told a state luncheon before his departure.

Overnight temperatures ranged from the 70s in the Southwest deserts to the 50s over the Pacific Northwest and 40s in the north and central Rockies. Coolest was 36 at Alamosa, Colo., and Flagstaff, Ariz.

In Chicago, a Jewel Foods spokesman reported a price decline from 98 cents a head to 79 cents a pound and then a further trim Monday to 55 cents a pound.

River proposal advances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church introduced legislation Tuesday to implement a compromise classification plan worked out by local citizens for the St. Joe River.

The legislation was co-sponsored by Sen. James McClure.

Classification of the river under the Wild and Scenic Rivers System has been a matter of controversy for years between persons who sought extensive classification and those who opposed including the river under the national system.

"Today, almost 10 years after passage of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, I am pleased to announce agreement has been reached by the two contending sides and the bitter controversy brought to an end," Church said. "Peace has come to the St. Joe Valley."

Under the bill, 66.5 miles of the river above Avery would be classified under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act. Of the total, the uppermost 28.6 miles would be designated and administered as a wild river and the lower 40 miles as a recreational river. The compromise also would prohibit dredging on the main stem of the St. Joe and the tributaries of the river to the east of Avery.

He said he would join the call for full public hearings in northern Idaho "to give all area residents ample opportunity to express their views on this issue. It is important to us as citizens that all who wish to speak are given that chance."

Inmate claims rejected

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Fred Taylor ruled Tuesday afternoon the constitutional rights of a group of inmates seeking damages against prison officials had not been violated.

The suit was brought by protective custody inmates seeking damages from prison officials because they allegedly have not received adequate protection from other inmates. The trial was conducted without a jury.

Named as defendants in the suit were former Security Chief, Josef Munch, Warden Richard Anderson, and the State Board of Corrections.

The inmates' case was rested Monday and the defense presented its case Tuesday with Munch taking the stand. He testified on how the inmates were handled, what their treatment included, and how they were fed.

The suit was filed in December 1976 by 16 protective-security inmates in an effort to obtain better protection and programs for the protective custody inmates. Protective custody inmates are ones who have reported infractions by other inmates. The case, if it is appealed, will go to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Ski area plans denied

BOISE (UPI) — The Forest Service said Tuesday it has no immediate plans to develop a ski area on Thorn Creek Butte.

Wally Silverdecker, a spokesman for the Boise National Forest, made the announcement, saying "recent excitement concerning land sales at Idaho City have led to some misunderstandings about Forest Service plans." All national forests are conducting an inventory of land areas that have potential for downhill skiing, Silverdecker said. He indicated the inventory began in 1975 with implementation of a service-wide moratorium on development of ski areas.

"The purpose of the moratorium was to prevent helter-skelter development and allow time to adequately inventory national forest lands for potential ski sites," he said. "In addition, an evaluation is being made as to the need for development of additional sites."

Silverdecker said that although the evaluation of supply and demand, along with the inventories, is to be completed by October, the moratorium could be extended if more time is needed.

He said the inventory has rated Thorn Creek Butte as potentially good based on snow conditions and terrain, but that the rating does not mean the area will be developed as a ski resort.

"If supply and demand studies determine that an additional downhill ski area is needed close to Boise, Thorn Creek Butte might be a logical place to put it," Silverdecker said.

U.S. lags in energy source race

Ken Carter has chance to make his jet jump

Ken Carter, the daredevil who wants to jet across the Snake River Canyon in a rocket-powered Lincoln Continental, just may pull it off.

Carter has signed leases with landowners on both sides of the canyon, and has now gone to backers in Los Angeles and Ottawa trying to get the estimated $300,000 to $500,000 he says he needs to build a launch ramp and assemble a crew for his jump.

His plan to rocket over the canyon in a fashion that even Evel Knievel couldn't match has a whacky kind of appeal.

Carter still maintains he doesn't want a huge crowd for his jump but simply wants to do it for the national media and to get the world acquainted with him prior to an even more spectacular jump later across the St. Lawrence Seaway from Canada to the U.S.

Ken Carter's motivation for wanting to jump the canyon is simple. He's a daredevil who wants one chance to really make the big time, and hopefully use the jump to get rich off promotions and future publicity.

Although Twin Falls County commissioners and other officials generally oppose Carter's rocket leap, they concede Carter's approach has been civil and generally courteous.

If he has any chance at all of pulling off his canyon jump, Ken Carter must overcome the lingering bad memories of Evel Knievel.

"The Idaho media, plus much of the national media were badly burned by the Knievel jump, and will be extremely hesitant to travel to Idaho a second time for another hype at the Snake River canyon.

Carter's only hope is that he can convince public officials, the press and the people of Idaho, that he basically is a decent, if slightly crazed, man who wants to put his own life on the line with little else at stake.

If Ken Carter keeps cool, and keeps his word about no crowds, then he has a chance to succeed where Evel Knievel didn't.

WASHINGTON — President Carter flew out to Denver last week to publicize his enthusiasm for the development of solar energy. Millions of Americans who may oppose him in other ventures will support him in this one. They will wish the president's enthusiasm were even greater.

Bad as they are, we are nowhere near where we ought to be in the development of alternate forms of energy. Our country is supposed to be the most inventive country on earth; we are blessed with many of the world's finest scientists and engineers; ours is a land of "can-do" imagination. The difficult we do at once; the impossible takes a little longer.

That's about the side of it at the federal level. The states, in point of fact, are doing more than installations and solar insulations. In the third round of grants, announced last August, 169 applicants got $6 million for installations in 3,468 housing units. The fourth round is now coming up.

A few other programs are indifferently kicking around. The DOE has a $500,000 fund for small-scale projects. The HUD folks have a community block grant appropriation that might be available for solar experiments. A "hot water initiative" undertaking is languishing in Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Some solar loan money is available. Mr. Carter's proposed $100 million for research and development, if it materializes, could push the cause along.

That's about the side of it at the federal level. The states, in point of fact, are doing more than

Washington. More than half the states have enacted legislation to promote solar development through a variety of property tax credits or deductions or loans. The National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center, Box 1697, Rockville, Md., has rats of information. HUD and the Department of Commerce also have helpful bulletins.

All this adds up to mighty little. Granted, the technical problems of adapting solar energy are tough, but the problems are not insoluble — and the potential rewards are beyond calculation. If the same spirit and money were brought to solar power that 15 years ago were applied to space exploration, the problems could be licked in another decade.

If the necessary commitment to solar development is to be made, a number of supporting decisions ought to be made also. For example: Residential subdivisions ought to be planned, and roads laid out, to take maximum advantage of sunlight. Certain solar collectors may require large areas of land; we ought to be planning for these needs.

A hundred such areas of development invite the attention of our brightest minds. We ought to be working actively on wind; on wind, on tidal energy. Certain dry plant material, according to Denis Hayes in a recent Worldwatch Paper, contains about as much energy per ton as low-quality coal. Not nearly enough experimental work is being done on alcohol and methane as substitutes for gasoline and natural gas. What we are talking about is a race for survival — and thus far we're only joggling along.

© 1978 Washington Star

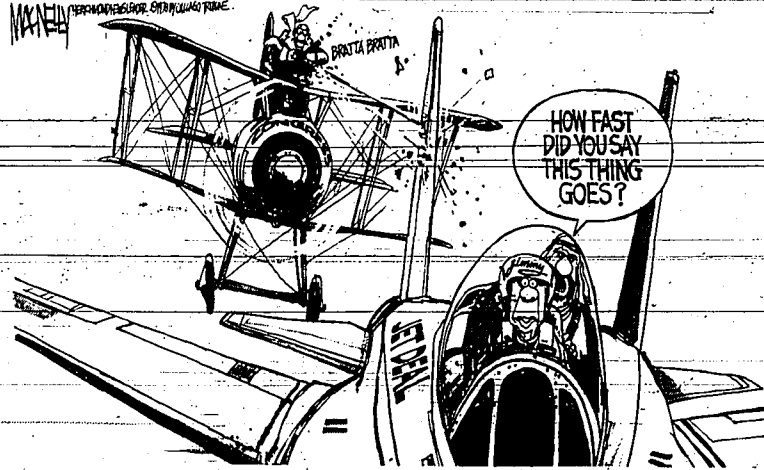

JAMES KILPATRICK

This gungho spirit has yet to be seriously manifested in harnessing the inexhaustible energy of the sun. If our fanned foresight had been working five or ten years ago, by this time a crash program would have brought the cost of solar installations down to competitive levels with other fuels. We would be deriving 10 or 15 or 20 percent of our energy needs from unconventional sources, rather than the miserable fraction of one percent we are developing now.

Joining in last week's Sun Day fun, Mr. Carter appeared to have caught the solar spirit. High time. His pending energy package contains no more than a feeble lick and a promise for future tax credits and subsidies. His existing programs are scattered all over the bureaucratic landscape.

Doubtless, these existing programs are better than nothing. The Department of Housing and Urban Development, in cooperation with the Department of Energy, has an active program of grants for demonstration solar heating and cooling projects in residential units. Under this program, applications are solicited from builders and developers for grants that will pay the difference in cost between conventional

To capture natural America

Photographer shoots naked volunteers

Have you always secretly wanted to pose in the nude, provided that the photographer was a good taste? Well, here's your chance. And you might even end up in a museum.

A respected photographer plans to tour America and do a "portrait of the country" through "the most natural of its natural resources." Namely, its naked citizens.

Don't laugh. The photographer is Charles R. Colium, and he has already done the same thing for the city of Dallas. He decided that he could best capture the personality of Dallas by taking nude pictures of its "everyday people." His collection of photographs — which he calls "Dallas Nude" — is being acclaimed by art and photography critics from one end of America to the other. "The Dallas Nude" is being acclaimed by art and photography critics from one end of America to the other. "Dallas Nude" photographs are touring the country as part of a one-man photography show, and have been collected in a book that is being sold at such prestigious locations as the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Art Institute of Chicago, and the Smithsonian Museum of Natural History in Washington.

And now Colium, 35, is planning to travel the country to photograph the nude citizens of other cities, large and small. As was the case with the "Dallas Nude," the subjects will not be paid for posing. Colium's whole idea centers around the concept of "amateur nudes" — regular people who are willing to take their clothes off and be photographed.

Colium's photography is elegant. The nudes are all done in black and white, with highly stylized lighting and shading. They are understated and low-keyed, while at the same time filled with dramatic impact. They are of Dallas' librarians, dental assistants, models, optometrists, nurses, dancers, bank tellers, college students. They have nothing in common with the blatant "photographs" that appear in men's magazines, except, of course, that the subjects are not wearing clothes.

BOB GREENE

"All the people agreed to let me use their real names and occupations in the book," Colium said. "I had been approaching people and asking them to pose, and then a small story about me appeared in D Magazine, which is our 'city magazine' in Dallas. The story said some nice things about my work, and told about the project.

"I got more than 30 phone calls as a result of the story. I said yes to every caller, sight unseen.

They seemed surprised. They said, 'Don't you want to see me first?' I said no, I'm looking for a cross-section of Dallas people. I don't care if you're fat or skinny, ugly or beautiful. I invited them to come to the studio and look at some of the work I had already done. As soon as they saw I wasn't trying to do a 'dirty book,' they just started to take their clothes off."

Colium said he is convinced that a truer picture of a city can be seen in photographs of its nude citizens than in photographs of its buildings or highways or landmarks.

"The form and flow and expression of the city is the form and flow and expression of the city," he said. "The people of any city are more important than its architecture or its freeways. The soul of a city is in its people. And people without their clothes on are more expressive than people who are dressed. They take off their clothes, and they feel so good about it, they say, 'Here I am, this is me.'"

One of Colium's only disappointments with the "Dallas Nude" project is that he couldn't convince any local politicians to take their clothes off for him.

"No one in Dallas politics would dare pose nude," he said. "They felt it would be death to their political careers. But it's funny, no one who posed for the Dallas Nude project has had any trouble about losing jobs or anything like that. And we even had one radio newsmen pose. These people are finding that they're becoming mind-boggles."

"I've gotten my share of hate mail. Some people say that the KKK (Ku Klux Klan) will take care of me. Some people tell me how sick I am. A lot of people tell me they want to save my soul. One woman said, 'How can you do this to your hometown?' The whole country will be laughing at Dallas. But I don't think anyone is laughing. The people who posed for me are not stupid, are not idiots, are not exhibitionists. They are happy people who are proud of their bodies."

And now, convinced that "everyday" Americans are willing to pose nude, Colium is ready to explore the personalities of other American cities through his naked citizens.

"In addition to the big cities, I'd really like to do some more studies of small town America," he said. "But for my really big project, I've just made my first inquiries at the State Department."

"I want to go to Russia and do 'Moscow Nude.' We were brought up to think that the Communists were bad people, were our enemies. But on a one-to-one level, I think the Russians are just as warm and wonderful as the people of Dallas. I think that 'Dallas Nude' and 'Moscow Nude' would go great together. Together, their message would be, 'Peace one earth, good will toward men.'"

Property owners, take the trees this time

Today, chainsaws are ripping down huge elms and pines along Second Avenue East and North in Twin Falls.

The Idaho Department of Transportation is widening the in-city section of highway 30 and the big trees are coming down to make way for more cars.

Ironically, the tree-cutting comes during National Historic Preservation Week.

Trees aren't quite in the same category as historic buildings or monuments, but in the desert climate of Twin Falls, a tree is as much a creation of man as of God since it was man who planted the trees on the plain where only sagebrush grows naturally.

Homeowners and businessmen losing trees to the widening of Second Avenue can receive replacement trees from the state highway department.

But when the last highway widening project swept through Twin Falls on Second Avenue South, a surprisingly small number of property owners took the replacement trees. Apparently, they felt planting a tree was just too much trouble.

The property owners along Second Avenue East and North should take the trees offered by the highway department, dig a hole and plant them.

Twin Falls could use a bit more shade and protection from the wind.

The end of a story

Mary Northern dies 'of a blood clot'

BOSTON — The end, the very end of the Mary Northern story, came May 1 when the 72-year-old woman died in General Hospital, Nashville, Tenn.

The autopsy says that she died of a blood clot. The doctors' report intimates that if she had not received treatment including amputation, she might be alive today.

But her epitaph says something else. It was written over 100 years ago by Charles Dickens, who ruefully observed: "It's a remarkable Christian improvement to have made a pursuing Fury out of the Good Samaritan, but it was so in this case and it's a type of many."

Miss Northern spent the last three and a half months of her life pursued by this Fury, harassed by Benevolence, a victim of Goodwill.

It was caring people, our public Good Samaritans, who chased her, all the while bewildered, because she didn't want their "help."

It was social workers who came into her ramshackle, unheated home in January, genuinely worried about her health. It was police who carried her forcibly out of her home to the hospital for treatment. It was doctors who tried to persuade her to amputate her gangrenous feet. Finally, when they all failed, it was the state — the Department of Human Resources — which sued to have her declared "incompetent," in an attempt to save her life, even against her will.

Perhaps James Blumstein, the Vanderbilt professor of law, exaggerated when he said: "These people were killing her with kindness." But they did bludgeon her autonomy, her privacy, her independence, and her legal control over her own body.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Now, the lady — labeled a "spinster" even in the wire-service obituary — leaves us a legacy beyond the ramshackle old house she shared with her cats and her family memories. She leaves a reminder of how often individuals, especially the weak, the sick, the elderly and the dependent, need protection from the powerful establishments. Even "The Establishment" of Kindness.

Her story is a fitting one for times like these when we are becoming more sensitive to the problems of doing good.

Once, protective statutes like the one that loosed the Furies on Mary Northern, seemed to be entirely benevolent. We had an almost naive confidence in professional need-fillers who had, in turn, naive self-confidence. As David Rothman wrote in a small, intriguing book called Doing Good: The Limits of Benevolence: "In their eagerness to play parent to the child, they did not pause to ask whether the dependent had to be protected against their own well-meaning intervention."

Today, while we don't question the motives behind the social programs, we are concerned about the results. We are increasingly aware of the way a vast social services bureaucracy can violate the rights of an individual. And increasingly attuned to the new social problems that arise from solutions to old problems.

In the last week, for example, while Miss Northern lay in General Hospital, the Senate Finance committee held a research report which showed a rise in the divorce rate following the government's offer of a minimum guaranteed family income. At the same time, several lawyers expressed concern to me about the zeal with which social workers, following up reports of child neglect, could violate the rights of parents, legally, under statutes written without proper procedural safeguards.

In our political life, the conservatives are attuned to these vibrations of anxiety. They offer these examples as proof of the inherent intrusiveness and coerciveness of government. And they broadcast a desire to halt many new attempts to help people.

But it is as cruel to ignore suffering as to force "cures."

The trick of shaping and reshaping social policy is a formula that fills needs while protecting rights, a formula that abides by what Ira Glasser calls the "principle of least harm."

We have to distinguish continuously between the times when neglect is benign and when neglect is immoral; when caring is helpful and when caring is coercive.

As William Galvin writes in Doing Good: "We can degrade people by caring for them and we can degrade people by not caring for them, and in matters such as these there are neither simple answers nor simple solutions."

There is only the need for constant monitoring, tuning, to create the sort of social planning that neither ignores a neighbor's plea for help, nor loses a Furies in an unwitting victim like the late Mary Northern, of Nashville, Tenn.

Ford boosts auto prices

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. has announced a $91 price boost on its 1978 cars, completing a round of mid-year price increases by the Blue Oval firm that may signal a move toward raising prices for new cars.

Following the lead of General Motors and Chrysler Corp., Ford officials Tuesday announced a 1.3 percent general price increase, effective immediately, intended to offset rising production costs.

Ford's price increases range from $32 on some Fairmont and Mercury Zephyr models to $200 on the top-of-the-line Lincoln. Prices of the Ford Pinto, Mercury Bobcat and Mustang II models, which were raised earlier this year, were not increased again.

"The increase is modest," Ford Vice President Gordon Mackenzie said. "Our costs for labor are increasing at a rate of more than 10 percent a year, and steel costs are up 8 percent annually. Our prices over the past few years generally have increased less than the rate of consumer prices overall."

GM touched off the latest price surge on April 29 when it announced an across-the-board increase averaging $100 — 1.4 percent. Chrysler followed last Friday with a 1.4 percent or $90 price hike on its passenger cars.

It was the first general price increase by the Big Three since the start of the model year when they priced 1978 cars an average 6 percent or $400 higher than 1977 models.

But auto company officials have indicated they may be abandoning the traditional pricing policy that means lump-sum price hikes at new model introduction time.

In its price announcement, GM said it was moving toward a policy of "small adjustments" to keep closer pace with rising production costs.

GM Chairman Thomas Murphy reportedly has told federal officials that while such a policy could result in a flurry of small price hikes, it would allow GM to hold its increases over the next year to less than 3.5 percent — compared with the average 6 percent raises of the past two years.

Ford and Chrysler officials were not as specific in their future pricing plans. A Chrysler spokesman said the firm would "continue to depend on the competitive situation," indicating it would likely follow GM's lead in any interim price adjustments.

However, one industry analyst in Detroit said the mid-year price hike was a "one-time shot" in response to rising import prices. He said he does not expect the companies to abandon their traditional price-cutting strategy.

"It would confuse the public immensely if there were price changes every three months," said Arvid Joupil, of Arvid Joupil Associates. "And it would put the industry under tremendous turmoil to change prices that often."

AMC faces '76 recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency plans to order the recall of all 1976 cars built by American Motors Corp. because of problems with their emission-control systems, it was reported today.

The Washington Post said the EPA probably would announce the recall, which would affect an estimated 310,000 cars, at a news conference today.

The action would be the first time a federal agency has recalled every car manufactured by an auto company in an entire production year.

AMC late Tuesday announced its own recall — of the cars — but — an EPA spokesman called the action "too little, too late," the newspaper said.

The spokesman said unlike a company recall, under an EPA recall the company's corrective action must be approved by the agency. An EPA recall also requires that the firm send notices of the problem to all owners, while under a company recall the firm often only announces the action through the press.

The Post said the EPA action could have a severe financial effect on the company, which has had cash problems.

An AMC spokesman said the company recall will check a back pressure sensor in the exhaust gas circulation valve system which may be broken. He said the problem involved emission control failure after a car "had been on the road and in use a while," according to the Post.

He said some of the cars might not be meeting EPA requirements for control of nitrogen oxides.

Gas war bar fails to pass

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate is refusing to bar major oil companies from using refinery profits to subsidize gasoline price wars that could drive some independent service station operators out of business.

The ban on subsidization was dropped Tuesday to save a bill intended to protect both independents and company franchised gasoline dealers against unfair treatment by oil companies.

The so-called "dealer day in court" bill was passed 85-0 after a compromise call for an 18-month study of price subsidies was substituted for the proposed ban.

The compromise language was proposed by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., and adopted by voice vote when it became clear the bill was not likely to pass if the limitations on the use of refinery profits was kept.

Israel honors war dead in solemn memorial rites

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel today honored 9,000 war dead in a solemn preamble to joyous festivities marking Israel's 33rd anniversary.

Swings throughout the country were held for two-minute, bell-ringing — the nation's 3.1 million Jews to a standstill and signaling the start of memorial services at scores of cemeteries honoring the dead from four wars against the Arabs.

Automobiles stopped and drivers and passengers got out to stand at attention. Pedestrians halted.

Workers put down their tools and stood erect. Blue and white national flags fluttered at trail staff in a cool breeze under sunny skies.

More than 30,000 troops, green-bereted border police and civil defense volunteers maintained tight security precautions to guard against a possible Palestinian guerrilla strike.

Cabinet members fanned out to the nation's cemeteries to attend memorial services.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin went to Safed, a northern hilltop town sacred to Jewry since the Middle Ages as a center of learning.

The town holds special memories for Begin as commander of the Irgun Zvai Leumi, the underground Jewish organization that fought the British in Palestine. The British hanged several Irgun members in Safed and Begin has gone there every memorial day since 1948.

Honoring the dead, Begin said in a three-minute address he hoped "their blood will guarantee for the future peace of the country no more deaths and no more bereavement in the House of Israel so we can work our land and ensure the progress of our people under peaceful and secure conditions because for this, too, our boys gave their lives."

In Jerusalem, President Ephraim Katzir kindled a memorial flame Tuesday in front of the wailing wall in a ceremony attended by Begin and Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, the Israeli chief of staff.

Police attacked

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Suspected separatist guerrillas early today machine-gunned a patrol car near the cemetery of the Basque town of San Sebastian, killing one policeman and injuring three others.

The attack came less than 24 hours after separatists blew up another vehicle of the paramilitary civil guards in the Basque town of Pamplona, killing one policeman and injuring two others.

The civil guard killed in Pamplona was buried late Tuesday. In street clashes after the funeral between politically opposed groups one civilian was shot in the arm.

Police identified the civil guard killed in San Sebastian as Juan Marcos Gonzalez. One of the three injured was reported in critical condition, with a bullet in his brain.

Some good news for Amtrak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was a bad Monday when the Transportation Department recommended dropping many Amtrak routes, but the passenger train system is getting a few bits and pieces of good news as the week wears on.

Two trains that had been included in the Monday list of those to be dropped were removed from the list Tuesday — the Adirondack from New York to Montreal and the Niagara Rainbow from Detroit to Buffalo and New York.

A Transportation Department spokesman said those two trains are partially state supported, and will continue to run. They inadvertently were left off maps accompanying the Monday report, he said.

In a later unrelated development, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams removed the Boston-Chicago Lake Shore Limited from its "experimental" status and made it a part of the basic Amtrak system. The Adams decision assures it will continue running past Nov. 1 when its experimental status would have expired.

There was one more piece of bad news, however, as an administrative law judge at the Interstate Commerce Commission recommended the Rock Island be allowed to drop its last two intercity passenger trains — from Chicago to Peoria and to Rock Island.

The trains will be dropped in 20 days unless someone complains to the ICC or the commission itself decides to take up the case within that time.

Rancher Caldwell goes on trial

BRAINERD, Minn. (UPI) — Rancher Roger Caldwell was described by prosecutors Tuesday as an "unemployed for years" who "unimaginable financial pressures" led him to murder his millionaire mother-in-law and her nurse.

to this city of 15,000 because of pre-trial publicity. Caldwell, 44, of Golden, Colo., was charged with the 1972 slayings of businesswoman Elizabeth Congdon, 83, and her night nurse, Velma Pieltla, at the 39-room Congdon mansion on the shores of Lake Superior. Miss Congdon was smothered in her bed and Mrs. Pieltla was bludgeoned to death.

Cleaver loses pals

By United Press International FRIENDS AX CLEAVER

Eldridge Cleaver — a Black Panther Party founder who did some time on the FBI's most wanted list — says he's lost friends because of his conversion to Christianity and his new belief in democracy.

Some old associates "call me a right-winger and an FBI and CIA agent," he told the Evangelical Press Association convention in San Bernardino, Calif., recently. But his new beliefs convince him of the need for racial harmony to preserve "the democratic principles of our heritage... The American challenge is not to undergo a forced mixing of people to make a bouquet, but to sincerely make applications of the principles of Jesus Christ."

AT LAST

It wasn't easy, but career diplomat Robert Sayre, 55, is now — officially — the U.S. ambassador to Brazil. His confirmation was held up while the Senate made sure he did nothing untoward while he was ambassador to Panama. At the time, Sayre told Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos that Torrijos' brother, Moises, was being investigated by U.S. agents for alleged drug trafficking. The senators wanted to know if that constitutes an illegal tipoff. Evidently it didn't, and Sayre was sworn in Tuesday in Washington to a job Secretary of State Cyrus Vance called "one of the most important posts in our diplomatic corps."

The movie is thinly disguised as the story of Aristotle Onassis and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Defector's wife's death from suicide confirmed

MOSCOW (UPI) — The wife of Soviet U.N. defector Arkady Shevchenko has committed suicide, her son said Wednesday. "I can confirm that my mother did commit suicide," said Gennady Shevchenko, 25, who earlier insisted his mother, Leongina, had died in a Moscow hospital of a heart ailment Monday.

The junior Soviet diplomat told UPI he only said what he said this morning because I wanted to protect the family name.

But Shevchenko said he would not confirm reports that his mother had died of an overdose of sleeping pills. "I will not confirm that and I will not discuss the details of her death," he said.

Mrs. Shevchenko, 48, returned home to Moscow early in April just two days before her husband Arkady, the highest-ranking Soviet employee of the United Nations secretariat, announced he was refusing orders to return to Moscow because he was in disagreement with the Soviet government.

Shevchenko, 42, later resigned his $76,000 a year job as U.N. undersecretary general, assigned to the Security Council and said he planned to live a life of asylum in the United States.

Gennady Shevchenko was a junior diplomat attached to a Soviet disarmament team in Geneva when his father defected. Within a matter of hours Soviet security agents bundled him on a plane home to Moscow.

"Soviet sources said Mrs. Shevchenko took a fatal overdose of sleeping pills Monday and her body was found later in a closet."

Counterfeit charges

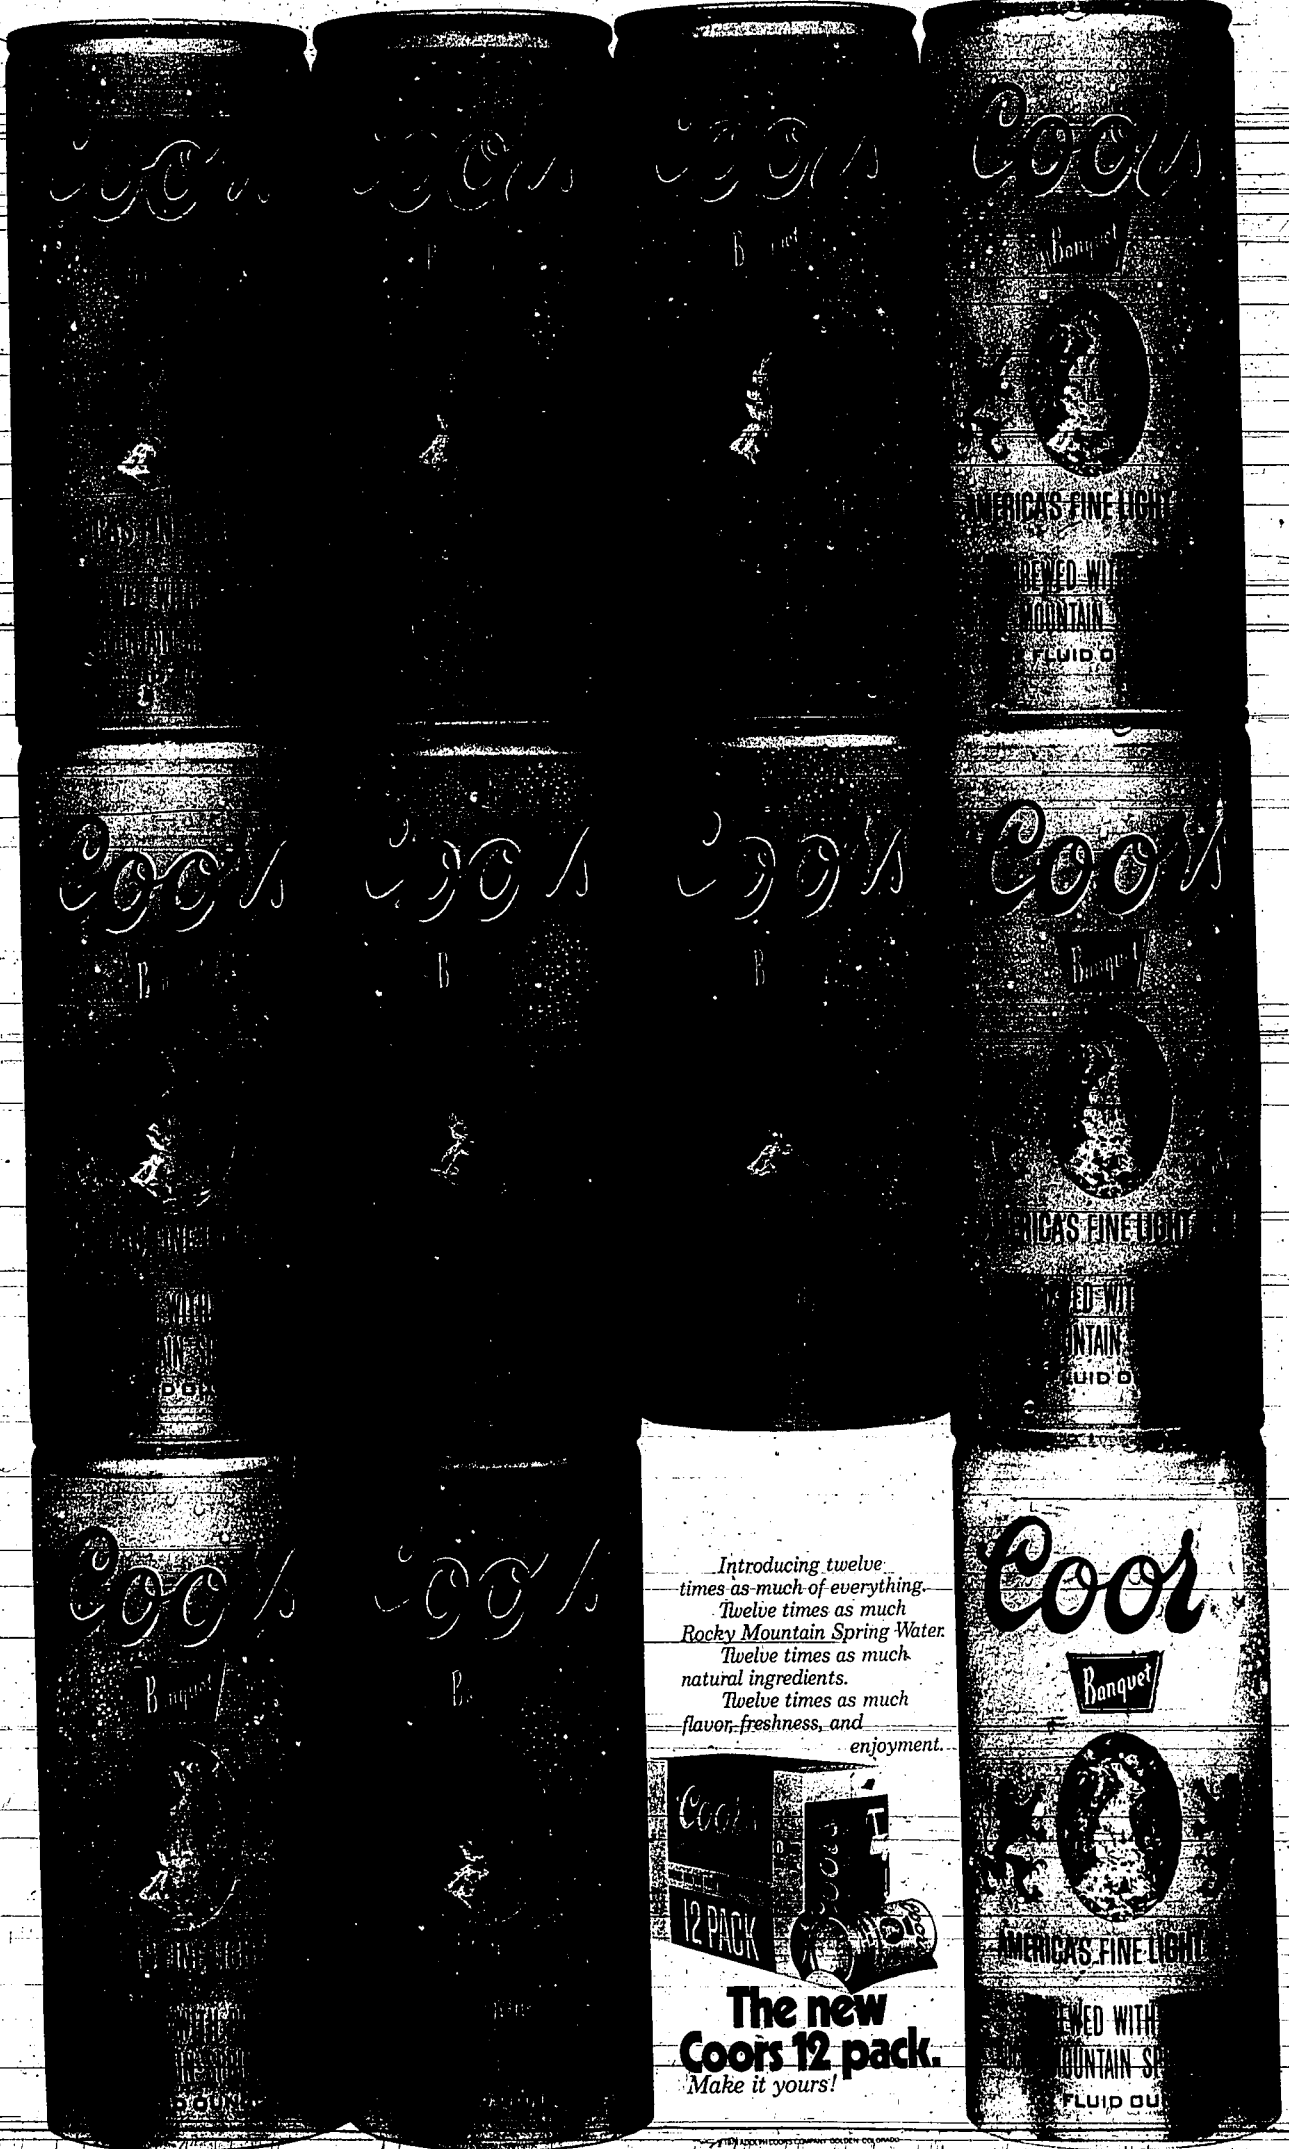

BOISE (UPI) — Boise police said Wednesday they have arrested a Heppner, Ore. man on charges of attempting to pass counterfeit money in the city.

Police arrested David H. Koster after he allegedly tried to pass a counterfeit $20 bill at Hill's Retail Drug, 915 N. 8th St. A suspicious clerk called the police.

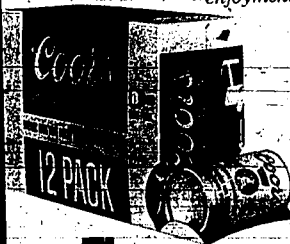

Police said counterfeit currency with serial numbers similar to the one allegedly taken from Koster began turning up in Portland, Ore. a year-and-a-half ago.

CABIN DOOR STANDS OPEN ON SUNKEN NATIONAL AIRLINES 727 passengers escaped through it after landing in bay near Pensacola, Fla.

Tug captain disclaims hero role despite rescuing 55

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — A muddy, gray fog whipped past the windows of National Airlines Flight 193 as it made its landing approach to Pensacola Airport. And the seat belt lights came on.

Aboard the tugboat Little Mac, pushing a large crane across Escambia Bay, Capt. Glenn McDonald peered through the dense fog, wondering exactly where he was. The tug was so heavy he had lost his bearings.

Flight 193 was steady on the radar for runway 25 at the airport. To the 53 passengers, it seemed they had just gotten well airborne from Mobile, Ala., 50 miles to the north, when a stewardess' voice came over the intercom:

"We will be landing..."

And then there were only screams and sudden darkness. Without warning, Flight 193, its wheels and landing flaps down three miles from the runway, pancaked into Escambia Bay. Water began creeping into the laps of the passengers as they struggled with their seat belts.

On the Little Mac, McDonald said he and his crewman-diver, Bill Kenney, "heard him coming and just" turned around to watch him. He just seemed to come on in and land in the water.

McDonald whipped the Little Mac around and put on all power for the big 727, foundering eerily in the fog 300 yards away. He could hear the screams of the passengers.

On board the aircraft, the water was up to 19-year-old Janna Stevens' waist before she got her seat belt off.

"I felt like I was on the verge of dying," she said. "I was crying. I almost drowned. I called on Jesus or someone to help."

Calm stewardesses and cockpit crewmen struggled through the rising water to help passengers don life jackets. Others threw open the emergency exits. Janna scrambled out on a wing and stood her head barely above the water, and she saw the homely Little Mac, its barge wallowing ahead of it, pounding down to the rescue.

Some of the passengers held on to flotation seats. Some grabbed the plane. Others tried to stay inside the cabin. Some, panicked, began to float away in the strong current that runs through the bay.

"Help! Save me! I can't swim!" It seemed to McDonald as he put the Little Mac alongside the wreck that the screams were coming from all around him. "Please help, please, I'm drowning."

As McDonald jockeyed the tug in the current, Kenney hurled ropes from the barge into the water. Both men were frantic, lest some survivors be swept away into the fog and darkness, beyond the reach of the spotlight. McDonald was using.

The plane began to sink in the 13 feet of water that finally covered all but the top of the forward cabin.

Kenney suddenly realized that some of the people in the water were too infirm, or too hurt, or too frightened to get aboard the raft. Throwing 2-by-4 planks from the barge to an emergency exit to help those still inside the plane reach safety, he dived into the water that was slimy with jet fuel.

He swam from one side of the barge to the other, grabbing passengers caught in the current. He found several elderly passengers who didn't have the strength left to get on the barge. Holding onto the scuppers, he guided them into using him as a human ladder. Up to his back, onto his shoulders, over onto the barge.

The screams slowly became moans. There were dashed attempts at thanks. Kenney dived back into the murky bay one last time, going down again and again, hoping to find nothing.

Only hours later did divers find the bodies of the only three passengers who did not make it to the barge.

McDonald and Kenney, who pulled 55 persons from likely death, insisted they weren't heroes. They were a little bit lost. In the bay, they said, and it might be considered an accident they were there — but both men figured later God had put them there.

The passengers took a different view of them.

Ex-Tiger dies

EMMETT (UPI) — Funeral services are planned Thursday afternoon for Air Force Col. Charles W. Sawyer (Ret.), 59, one of Gen. Claire Chennault's "Flying Tigers" in China during World War II.

Sawyer, who served as a flight leader and group staff officer with the famed American Volunteer Group before it was disbanded in July 1942, died Monday at his home.

Born in Emmett, he was graduated from Emmett High school and attended the University of Idaho in 1938-39. He enlisted in the Army-Air Force Flying School in 1940 and was commissioned a second lieutenant, resigning that commission in 1941 to join the Flying Tigers.

Classic Senate election battle in West Virginia

By United Press International

West Virginia voters have set up a classic Senate battle in the fall election. Veteran Democratic Sen. Jennings Randolph, who came to Congress in the Roosevelt election of 1937, faces former two-term Republican Gov. Arch Moore.

In another of Tuesday's primaries, Nebraska Republicans, hoping to capture the governorship for only the second time since 1960, nominated four-term Rep.

Charles Thone, GOP optimism is based on the decision of Democratic Gov. James Exon to run for the Senate instead.

In local elections, Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson won an unprecedented third term.

In addition to nominating Randolph, who has served in Congress longer than any other member, West Virginia voters also renominated Rep. Nick Joe Rahall, who at 28 is the youngest member of either house.

The freshman Democrat beat Kenneth Hechler, the man who held the seat for nine terms before Rahall, but who gave it up to run for governor in 1976.

With about two-thirds of the vote counted, Rahall had 26,694 votes, or 55 percent and Hechler had 21,833 or 44 percent.

Moore and Randolph each drew over 75 percent of the vote in their primary contests.

Randolph's age, 76, is expected to be an issue in the fall campaign when he faces Moore, the only West Virginian to win two consecutive four year terms as governor.

The fact that Moore was indicted and acquired two years ago on charges of trying to extort $25,000 has not seemed to affect his popularity or strength in the state.

Both Randolph and Moore overwhelmed primary voters in a two-way race in their primaries.

Their primaries attracted little attention, but in local races in West Virginia, officials reported a ringleader was instructing a group of illiterate voters in one area, while elsewhere votes were being bought for $5 to $25 — or for a pint of whiskey or a six pack of beer.

In Nebraska, Exon, the state's popular Democratic governor, was unopposed in his bid for the Democratic Senate nomination. Don Shaesten, an aide to long-term Republican Sen. Carl Curtis, who is retiring, won the Republican nomination easily.

Exon's move to the Senate spurred five Republicans to run for governor. Thone won the battle, claiming about 37 percent of the vote, 5 percent more than his nearest challenger, orth-Platte Mayor, Robert Phares.

Rig scheme faltering

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If there was over a scheme to rig the Democratic presidential nomination rules to favor incumbent Jimmy Carter in 1980, it may be coming apart at the seams.

Party chairman John C. White, Carter's contact with the Democratic rank and file, indicated Tuesday on the eve of party voting on new rules that he opposed several proposals critics claim were written to help lock up the nomination for Carter.

White presided over the 26-member national Democratic executive committee's consideration of 1980 rules changes Tuesday and today. The executive committee had no authority to change the so-called Winograd proposals, but planned to vote on disputed provisions today and transmit its recommendations to the Democratic National Committee for action June 9-10.

The changes were drafted by a commission headed by Michigan Democratic chairman Morley Winograd, the third party rules-reform effort since 1968.

The key Winograd proposal White opposed has been called a "sliding window" rule for national convention delegate selection. First, it would require all primaries and caucuses to be held in a 13-week "window" period from the first week in March to the first week in June.

Second, it would deny delegates to candidates who win less than 15 percent of the vote during the first month of the window period, 20 percent during the second month and 25 percent during the third. Present rules permit but do not require a cutoff at 15 percent and critics of the Winograd proposals claim the higher figure was intended freeze out potential last-minute Carter opponents in 1980.

White told reporters Tuesday he favored giving the slide parties a 15-20 percent cutoff to be applied anytime during the selection process. He did support a shortened primary season with exemptions for states such as New Hampshire and Iowa, which now select delegates in January and February.

White said he was not sure the sliding window rule would be adopted. He said he was not sure the sliding window rule would be adopted. He said he was not sure the sliding window rule would be adopted.

Big trees chopped for wider highway

TWIN FALLS CITY CREWS WORK ON SECOND AVENUE TO CUT DOWN TREES ... huge pines and elms dropping to widen highway 30

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Trees are falling along 2nd Avenue North and East as part of a street widening project.

But many Twin Falls residents don't shudder when they hear the crackling of crashing limbs, especially if the trees are Chinese elms.

"We feel it's just a part of progress," commented Mrs. Dwight Bell, who lives at the corner of 2nd Avenue North and 8th Street North.

As part of a project to widen 2nd Avenue North and East, which constitute the westbound section of Highway 30, the Idaho Department of Highways is removing all the trees on the dedicated public right-of-way on both sides of the street.

The streets will become a mirror image of 2nd Avenue West and South, which make up the eastbound section of Highway 30. They will be three lanes wide with parking on both sides.

Mrs. Bell will miss some of the trees which must be felled, but not all of them.

"We like the locusts," she sighed, but of the Chinese elms she said, "These trees are nothing but pests." She added that she and her husband have already had five Chinese elms torn out on the three lots they own on 2nd Avenue North.

Mr. R.B. Randall, who has lived on 2nd Avenue North between 3rd and 4th Streets North for 34 years, described himself as a "lover of trees and flowers."

He said he doesn't mind the construction project, "as long as they give me good trees to replace the ones torn down and do a good, clean job. It makes it look better when they do a good job. We need more room. That's an awful busy road."

The heavy traffic volume carried by Highway

30 is the reason for the widening project, according to state highway officials, and the highway department has offered to replace the trees which must be cut down with 8-10 foot tall blue ash trees.

But not all the property owners along the street have taken the state up on their offer of free replacement trees.

In fact, only 25 replacement trees have been requested by an estimated 90 property owners along the street, noted project engineer Bill Merrill.

Randall won't miss the departing Chinese elms ("We don't want nothing like that in the country," he stated.), but he is not happy that he was promised replacement trees three years ago and has not yet received them.

But the old trees are falling, and the replacements are here, Merrill said today.

The widening of 2nd Avenue North and East is just one phase of a project which includes the resurfacing of Shoshone Street from the singing Bridge to 2nd Avenue North and East.

If the contractors stick to their projected timetable for the project, construction on Shoshone Street between the Singing Bridge and 2nd Avenue West and South will take place between June 11 and August 5. Half the street will be resurfaced at a time.

Construction on Shoshone between 2nd Avenue North and East and 2nd Avenue West and South will take place between Aug. 4 and Sept. 12.

Construction on 2nd Avenue North and East between 3rd Street East and 3rd Street North will take place between July 15 and Aug. 19, and construction on the remaining section of 2nd Avenue North and East will take place between now and July 15.

'Junk food' lunches considered in Buhl today

By SUSIE VAN TUYL
Times-News writer

BUHL — Cheeseburgers, milkshakes, and corn dogs soon may be an accepted lunch for Buhl school kids.

Carol Fultz, cafeteria supervisor for Buhl schools, presented a program Tuesday night at the Buhl school board meeting to adopt a school lunch program offering enriched "junk food" lunches rather than more traditional meals.

Las Vegas schools have become well-known in recent days for their innovative change in menu items for school children and Buhl is considering a program modeled after the Las Vegas experiment.

Las Vegas schools are offering protein-enriched "junk food" instead of traditional hot lunches like turkey, mashed potatoes, cranberries, a roll and pumpkin pie.

The Nevada schools offer items like cheeseburgers, fat-free milkshakes, tacos, pizzas, cheese pizzas, sloppy joes, burritos, corn dogs, chicken, roast beef, ham and cheese, egg, tuna salad and hot dogs.

All are nutritionally-fortified with extra protein, more than in the usual fast-food restaurant.

Items are tagged with clever names such as Big Nevada, a deluxe 100 percent beef hamburger; Big Texan, hot roast beef on a bun; Big Western, a barbecue beef on a bun; Big Virginian, hot ham and cheese on a bun, or the mile long cheese dog.

Students can buy a sandwich combo for a minimal price. A Big Nevada Combo, for example, costs $1.80. Combos include the sandwich of the buyer's choice, french fries and tossed salad plus milkshake or milk. Most items are under $1.00 in price.

Also on the program are breakfast combos, such as Supercharger, which includes a breakfast item, juice or fruit, and milk. Items on the menu are: cinnamon roll at $25; scrambled egg with diced bacon on hot roll $35; ham and cheese on hot roll, at $40.

Members of the school board and Mrs. Fultz visited the school in Las Vegas to acquire a first-hand view of the program. They observed that items are prepared at a faster rate with less hard work involved for cooks.

The program also includes student helpers, who are trained and oriented on food service. Students stand in alphabetical order at individual windows and a card in a file bearing the student's last name is drawn when they order.

This program in Las Vegas serves populations ranging from 700 to 900. Buhl Junior and high school populations amount to 850 students.

Buhl superintendent Dan Mabe noted disadvantages in starting the program in Buhl would include a lack of equipment, the increase in price of each lunch, the idea of offering young children hamburgers for lunch, and the reaction of parents.

Advantages include minimal food waste by students (those attending the schools said there was little food thrown away by students); less cost for the school in food purchases; opportunity for students to learn vocational skills by working in food program and fewer students buying real "junk food" from nearby stores.

Mrs. Fultz presented the school board with approximate costs for new equipment if the program is adopted. Estimates include a 36 x 24 inch grill at $950; heat lites 8 feet long at $170 each; a soft freeze machine, $6,900; a deep fryer, $1,078; hood for the fryer, $375; counter refrigerator including two shelves and 26 square feet, $2,400; and possibly an added freezer and dishwasher, costs not estimated.

The board will make a decision on the program at a later date after Mrs. Fultz researches the program further.

Firewood permits available

MAGIC VALLEY — Free firewood will be available on the Sawtooth Forest as soon as access roads dry out sufficiently to allow travel.

Sawtooth Forest information specialist Velia Lawrence said she anticipates firewood cutting areas in the South Hills will open sometime between June 1 and June 15.

Free-use firewood permits for up to 10 cords will be issued for designated cutting areas within the Deadline Burn. Outside the South Hills limits of five cords of firewood will be in effect.

Firewood will also be available in designated areas in the South Hills outside the Deadline Burn area at a cost of $10 per cord.

Permits are required to cut firewood on national forests and are available at district offices throughout the Sawtooth Forest. Permits must be obtained from the district in which the wood will be cut.

Permits will also be available this year at self-issuing stations at the Rock Creek and Oakley Guard stations on the main access roads to the South Hills.

Spark arrestors with openings no larger than 0.23 inches will be required on all chain saws.

Many Magic Valley residents take advantage of the firewood cutting in the Sawtooth National Forest although the $10 per cord charge in the South Hills is expected to reduce some of the activity in that area of the forest.

Bellevue suicide now called murder

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

BELLEVUE — What investigators originally thought was a suicide in early April now is being called a murder in Blaine County.

Bellevue firemen found the body of Donald Cahoon, 44, on April 4 when they answered an early morning fire alarm and searched a burning house on the corner of Third and Chestnut streets in Bellevue.

Cahoon was found lying dead on the bathroom floor of a home owned by Michael Gorey, and a .22 caliber automatic pistol was found with the body.

Police initially reported that Cahoon's death looked like a suicide because the man had one gunshot in the throat.

But today, officers say a second shot, which hit the toilet bowl in the bathroom, has been discovered.

The re-evaluation of the case was made shortly after officers examined all evidence obtained through the initial investigation at the scene.

"It's just that the evidence that was found, and what it was located, and the way it was processed, make it look like a homicide," Blaine County Sheriff's officer, George Silver said today.

When firemen entered the burning house to search for any inhabitants, they discovered the dead man behind a closed bathroom door. No one else was found in the house, according to initial police reports.

The location of the body and other evidence prompted the sheriff's department. "The exact location of the body," Silver said, "would be apparently strange and different from most suicide cases."

Deputy Ray Wheeler said Blaine County police, with the aid of state law enforcement officers, took samples at the scene to try to find fingerprints and determine if the fire was an act of arson.

Wheeler said he was still waiting for lab tests to be completed. He admitted the fire and subsequent damage to the house as the flames were being extinguished hindered the investigation.

"We have to investigate it as a homicide until we can prove it different," Silver commented on the continuing investigation.

"You have to work on experience and gut hunches and everything you can think of," he added on how the investigation would proceed.

Wheeler noted one of the gray areas in the investigation was Cahoon's activities shortly before his death. "His whereabouts for the last few days there are pretty sketchy," Wheeler observed.

MORE TALK:

Twin Falls councilman still pressing for resignation of Mayor Leon Smith

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although he did not raise the question at this week's City Council meeting, Twin Falls Councilman Chris Talkington still intends to call for Mayor Leon Smith's resignation.

Last week Talkington accused Smith of deliberately misleading the council in an attempt to influence a vote and called for his resignation as mayor, but not as a member of the City Council.

Monday Talkington did not push for a council vote on Smith's resignation because, "I hope to see the sewage plant problem resolved first."

But Talkington was quick to point out, "I'm not saying I will not call for his resignation. Believe me I am not backpeddling at all. I am convinced after talking with the parties and after sampling public opinion that the course that the council has decided to take with closed meetings and runneth information through one or two members has been a major source of our problems."

However, Talkington expects little support from his fellow council members for the removal of Smith.

"I have talked with each of the council people and I do not feel that I have any support for his resignation, and I doubt if I'll even get a second for my motion for his resignation," he predicted.

Talkington also denied an allegation Smith made last week that Talkington was only seeking his resignation as a publicity stunt to launch his campaign for election to the Idaho House of Representatives.

"At this time I am not a candidate for any public office. I do intend to fulfill my contract with the people of Twin Falls for the remaining two years," he stated, and then declared, "If I were running for office, I couldn't pay Smith enough money for being such an effective campaign manager."

Talkington then backed off somewhat on his denial of any intention of running for the legislature.

He observed that, "At least in one place in Idaho, one man served as a councilman and a representative at the same time," and added, "That ought to muddy the water a little."

He also pointed out that the deadline for entering the campaign for legislative office is not for another month, June 7 to be exact.

Talkington admitted there is one election he would relish: "One race I would truly be interested in would be a public vote of confidence involving the mayor and myself," he said.

Jerome school flooded

JEROME — A ruptured boiler flooded part of the Jerome Junior High School basement during the weekend.

As a result, school was delayed for a couple of hours Monday and about $2,000 to $3,000 damage occurred, according to Jerome Schools Superintendent Perry Christensen.

Although it was not flooded, the cafeteria, which is located in the basement, was unable to feed hot lunches to some 800 junior high and elementary school students.

Instead, cafeteria workers prepared sack lunches for the students' noon meal.

Christensen said a stuck overflow valve on the junior high school heating system boiler caused the flood.

Two feet of water flooded the boiler room, storage area and janitor's rooms. The water had been flowing since sometime Saturday, it was guessed.

The worst damage was limited to paper supplies, to the tune of about $2,000 to $3,000, Christensen said.

Husband's car hits wife

RUPERT — A 34-year-old Rupert woman struck by a van driven by her ex-husband early Sunday morning near Heyburn is listed in stable condition at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Millie Leone Horton is in stable condition, but hospital officials refused to list her injuries.

Minidoka County Sheriff's deputies investigating the incident said she suffered head injuries and a possible broken arm and broken leg after she was hit by a van driven by Calvin Wayne Horton, 35, of Rupert.

Ms. Horton's father, George Gibson, confirmed those injuries and said she also suffered a broken rib and a broken pelvis. He said it has not been determined whether she also has any internal injuries.

According to the sheriff's department report, she was standing beside her car Sunday at 1:30 a.m., which was facing east at the junction of 300 South and 5th streets, when the van's right front section hit the left rear of her car and struck her. Damage to her car was estimated at $1,000 and $3,000 to the van, the report said.

Now You Know

Question arises as to what sort of sport uses the biggest playing field. How about polo? Its field is 300 yards long and 300 feet wide.

Not only do third basemen tend to live longer than other major league players, but they play longer generally than do other major players. I'm now told.

Juvenile officer

Blaine youth aide resigns

HAILLEY — Blaine County Juvenile Officer Mack Reynolds, who built one of the state's most innovative juvenile justice programs, will resign from Blaine county's division of law enforcement in mid-June.

The Blaine County Commission accepted Reynolds' letter of resignation, effective June 16, at a commission meeting Monday.

"The county's juvenile justice officer, who became the first person to hold the position in January 1974, told the county commissioners that "I feel I've contributed some to the county but now I've come to a standstill." He said he will return to school in criminology and sociology.

Reynolds made Blaine County's juvenile system one of the most innovative in the state and he has taught several schools on juvenile justice systems.

He said he thought his greatest contribution to the county's juvenile program was the creation of "behavior agreements," which he described as contracts of good behavior which youths enter into when detained by police.

Ada, Bannock, Gooding and Twin Falls Counties have all followed Blaine County's example and implemented the juvenile behavior agreements in their justice programs, Reynolds observed.

Reynolds also helped implement juvenile warning notices and responsibility training workshops in Blaine County.

"It's not a bed of roses," Reynolds admitted about the juvenile officer's position, which demands long hours with relatively low pay. "It's a tough job and I feel like it's time for me to go. I don't want to advance, I've got to get a degree and do it."

Reynolds said he plans to return to school at the University of California at Eureka and obtain a Bachelor of Arts degree in criminology with a minor in sociology.

After accepting Reynolds' resignation, the commission voted to offer the job to Sun Valley Police Officer Gary Starkey, who was recommended highly for the position by Reynolds and Blaine County Prosecutor Maurice Ellisworth.

Buhl told to spend wisely

BUHL — "Slightly over" $1.5 million will be available for use by the Buhl School District, retiring school superintendent Dan Mabe told school board members Tuesday night.

He cautioned the board to spend the money wisely. He noted that the school district in the coming year will experience increases in personnel, maintenance and operation of the buildings.

One of the increases includes operation expenses of the new Buhl High School, to be finished in August. Operating expenses would run up to $24,300, according to Mabe.

"Half of that is inflation and the other half is an increase in operating the school," he said. "We are vacating the junior high building that has cost a lot of money in maintenance, but not as much in operation. This new building will be lower in maintenance costs, but higher in operation." He said costs in hiring more operation personnel would be a large part of the increase, as more janitorial help will be required.

Mabe reported that the district is also spending more money in its capital outlay fund than planned. According to Mabe, 113 percent of the $10,000 budgeted has already been spent. The district of present spending funds at a rate of $114,000 to $120,000 on the average per month.

Personnel costs will also increase as more teachers and aides will be needed. "Personnel costs include one additional second grade teacher, one additional special education teacher, an additional part-time speech therapist and an additional school psychologist," Mabe said.

Mabe noted that although 80 percent of the cost involved in hiring the extra personnel will be paid by the state because they are classified as ancillary personnel, the district will still have to pay 20 percent per year. He added that along with this cost will be increases in workman's compensation and liability, and an 18 percent increase in insurance costs for all personnel.

A public hearing on the budget will be held Tuesday, June 13, at the Buhl district superintendent's office.

Buhl council will not seek federal sewage study find

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

BUHL — City Council members in Buhl defeated a motion Tuesday night that would have blocked city action to seek federal funding for a study of the city's sewer system deficiencies.

Mayor Dale Christensen asked the council to express views on whether the city should go ahead with an application for funding a $30,000 study to pinpoint the needs of the system or get along with the existing system.

Councilman Jerry Hawkins made a motion to "not go ahead with" applications for a study and construction of a new system as proposed by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Hawkins said he didn't trust the Department of Health and Welfare to come through with financing. "This could turn out just like the airport," Hawkins said. "We were told we had a top priority and would get $250,000 and the next thing we knew somebody in Seattle got the $250,000, and we got $82,000."

Hawkins and councilman Cecil Childs said they were not impressed with the picture-DHW environmentalist Jan von Lindern painted during a meeting last week.

Von Lindern advised the city would have to pay for the study and it would be reimbursed if the health department approved it later.

City Engineer John Priester appealed to the council to give the environmentalist more opportunity to explain the picture before turning it down. He said he felt the council had not fully understood the explanation offered by Von Lindern.

Priester said the cost of construction to expand the treatment and delivery system is now estimated at $500,000 with engineering costs expected to run about $100,000. He said the federal government would provide 75 percent of the cost, the state 15 percent and the city 10 percent. Priester told the council this isn't a bad bargain.

Last year DHW ordered the city of Buhl to make no further sewer or water connections until the systems could be approved by later granted a variance to allow completion of current construction.

Priester said the system was constructed to accommodate about 5,000 population with about 1,000 of this assigned the Pet Milk plant.

The plant has improved its system of handling waste and the system would handle more sewage, except for the extremely high water use in Buhl.

Present Buhl population is about 3,500. Priester said excessive water goes into the system and the study, step one of the proposed program, would determine if this is ground water, seepage or excessive irrigation water run off and how to curb the problem.

He said the large amount of water moves waste through the system so rapidly it does not have time to properly digest.

He said the study might provide a less expensive answer to the problem than reconstruction and expansion of the lagoons.

Priester told the council the problems which have plagued Twin Falls and Rupert city sewer plants and construction problems were because the city administrators themselves did not get involved with the work but left it to engineering firms.

"I think Von Lindern is painting the picture a little bleak because he wants you to get involved and know what is going on. He lives in Buhl and I feel he wants to have a good program and wants it in Buhl," Priester said.

Councilmen Dale Thomsberry, Joe Fehrenbacher and Mayor Christensen voted to kill the motion to abandon the funding application.

Mayor Christensen asked the council to give the matter further study. Another meeting has been called for next Tuesday to discuss this and other city matters.

Grant Atkinson, who lives just outside the city, asked for a sewer connection for a home he is building because the city sewer runs in front of the property. Council members said the city policy is to allow no new connections unless the property is annexed. Atkinson was assured an answer next week.

Agency name irritates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whether it likes it or not — and it doesn't — the International Communications Agency, which just changed its name on April Fool's Day, may have to change it again.

The current new name of the former U.S. Information Agency — or USIA — irritates the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In fact, committee members called the new name some names of their own — "a ambiguous," "misleading," and "meaningless," to name a few. And the pronunciation of its acronym ICA gives it a bad sound and a lousy image, they said.

On Tuesday, the committee christened the agency with yet another name, something ICA Director John Reinhardt told them in a letter he does not want. They proposed legislation to dub it the "Agency for Information and Cultural Exchange" by Jan. 1.

"That at least says more accurately what it does," said Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D. "The ICA acronym, International Communications Agency, I don't know what that means."

Some ICA sources are concerned it might be confused with the CIA, particularly in languages where its acronym is legitimate or unneeded.

"I think the name it now has is so bad we ought to throw it out right away," said Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J. "That would not be so bad. They have only been in it in this new name for 30 days or so."

But a smiling Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, warned the agency might be even worse off with the new name.

"The current acronym of ICA sounds like Ick-ah," said Glenn. "But the new one would be spelled AICE, and that is pronounced 'sack' in anybody's language. Is that the message you want to convey?"

"But if you pronounce that with a soft 'c', it comes out 'ace,'" responded Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. "How about that?"

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., growled: "Why didn't they just leave it as the U.S. Information Agency. What on earth was wrong with that?"

Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty fare better. When the committee considered changing the names to East-West Broadcasting, Percy objected.

"That would open us up to a lot of unnecessary controversy," Percy said. "They have become household words. We really should think twice about changing names."

Percy said many East European ethnic Americans favored the present names because of the words "free" and "liberty."

First nuclear ship worries Japanese

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan's first nuclear vessel may find a new home port after a four-year search—near the city where the second atomic bomb was dropped in World War II.

The controversial 8,300-ton Mutsu, a research ship powered by nuclear energy, has had nothing but trouble since its launching in 1974.

The $25.4 million ship had its first misfortune when it sprang a leak in its reactor during the maiden voyage.

Fishermen in Aomori Prefecture's port of Mutsu, for which the ship was christened, demanded the ship be moved, protesting their fishing grounds would be contaminated by radioactivity.

The leak was later proved to be insignificant. Nobody was hurt and sea waters in northern Japan were declared safe.

The government settled the dispute by promising the fishermen that the Mutsu would be moved from northern Japan.

To find a new home port for the Mutsu in this nuclear sensitive country was not easy. Coastal cities where it might have been based, rejected the idea.

Officials suggested Sasebo in southern Japan, where the United States has a naval base only 20 miles from Nagasaki, the second city after Hiroshima to be hit by the atomic bomb.

The Nagasaki government, which has opposition over Sasebo, refused the Mutsu on grounds that the 1945 nuclear horrors still live in many residents' memory.

But now, a prolonged business slump that beset the shipbuilding industry may change that.

Nagasaki Gov. Kanichi Kubo told fishermen recently that he was in favor of allowing the Mutsu into Sasebo if the nuclear reactor was "sealed." The governor said a "sealed" reactor would be virtually the same as removing it from the ship.

He had said earlier he would accept the Mutsu only if the nuclear reactor were dismantled.

The governor did not give the reason for his sudden change of heart. Industrial sources, however, speculated that one of the reasons may well be economic.

They said repair work on the ship could be a shot in the arm to Sasebo Heavy Industries Co., a recession-plagued shipbuilding firm which has had hard times getting bank loans to pay retirement allowances to 850 workers who had agreed to "voluntarily" retire.

Spokesmen for the fishermen said they were not in a position either to endorse or criticize the government's plan to allow the Mutsu to berth at Sasebo.

The Sasebo city council already has passed a resolution welcoming the Mutsu—with its nuclear reactor left onboard intact.

Six vie for Twin Falls school board seats

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— Voters in two zones of the Twin Falls School District will elect trustees May 16 and voters of the entire district will ballot on a two-mill plant facilities levy for the coming year.

Veteran school board chairman Howard Runk is not seeking re-election to the board this year. He has served since May, 1968, and has been chairman since July, 1973.

Four candidates are seeking the Zone 6 trusteeship being vacated by Runk. They include Chester Bohannon, Ester M. Simpson, Marvin E. Taylor and Eugene Champlin.

The other vacancy is in zone 2, where incumbent Byron Snyder is opposed by Gary Custer, who ran for the same office in 1975 but was defeated by Snyder.

School district officials say the two-mill plant facilities levy is simply a continuation of a levy in effect for some time. The levy, which requires public voter approval, is used for maintenance, improvement or expansion of school buildings.

Candidates agree there are few issues for the May 16 election but several have some definite ideas as to what they feel the school board could do to improve or continue present educational services in the district.

Polls will open May 16 at noon and remain open until 8 p.m. In the candidate election, only residents of Zone 2 may vote on candidates there and only residents of Zone 5 may vote for a trustee there. No pre-registration is necessary and patrons may vote in any open polling place.

Residents of the entire district may vote on the levy and may cast ballots in any of the polling places.

Polls are located at Lincoln grade school, Twin Falls High School, Robert Stuart Junior High School and Morningstar grade school.

Custer, who chaired the citizens committee which planned for the purchase of the new junior high school site and the bond issue to finance it, says his interest in education is still keen. Although Custer says he has no major criticism of the present board, he would like to see a program initiated to help the "good" young teachers now in the district.

"We are losing too many of our good teachers to other areas. If it is salaries or other benefits, I think we should make an effort to remain competitive so they will have an incentive to stay in Twin Falls where we can benefit from their training and experience," Custer said.

Custer said the district must also continue to plan for additional building space which will be needed.

"You never get caught up and with our area growing as fast as it is, I think the day is not too far distant when we will need another elementary school in an outlying area of growth," Custer says.

Custer operates a small dairy and works as a sales representative for Sears. He has been active in dairy organizations, is a past Grange master and is active in the PTA. He has four school-age children.

Snyder, with 2 1/2 years on the board, says he would like to continue working with the district in maintaining the present "high standard of education."

He says he sees a need for additional classroom space in the near future. "I would like to see the district continue the building program we have underway now," Snyder says. "We could use more elementary classrooms and another gymnasium at the high school. Our gymnasium is now being used from about 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. every day."

He says he is also interested in building a stronger athletic program in Twin Falls High School, but added this is now beginning to get on its feet again. Snyder says he wants to continue the same high standard of academic training offered in the past and would not want to sacrifice this for sports programs.

Mrs. Simpson, a resident of Twin Falls the past 10 years, is urging a better program of communications in the district.

"I would like to see better cooperation between the school board and teachers of the district," she says. "I think there should be a better line of communication here. The candidate is the mother of two school age children and has two who are out of public schools. She is active in the YWCA, serves as a member of the board of directors—and conducts—gymnastics programs for the Y. She has worked in Boy Scouts, the First Christian Church and other community programs. A native of Texas, she was student body president in her hometown high school at Wheeler, Tex.

Bohannon, a Twin Falls businessman, is a newcomer to the area. He manages the nationally known employment firm of Snelling and Snelling. Bohannon says he is interested in the educational system and would like to serve school patrons and other taxpayers of the district.

"I believe my background as a businessman and my work with youth over the past eight years gives me the insight needed to guide the educational future of our young people," Bohannon says.

He has worked the past two years as an explorer post advisor and is a 7th grade football coach. If elected, he says he would keep an open mind and be willing to listen to the people.

Bohannon says he is interested in a better athletic program but feels academic and vocational training must be maintained.

Champlin, who operates a farm east of Twin Falls, is a native resident and was graduated from Twin Falls High as were two of his children. His younger son attends school here.

Champlin says he would like to see a move to get parents more interested in school programs and another to establish better communication with teachers.

"I have no quarrel with our school programs but education is changing and we need to change with it," he says. "I would like to see athletic programs on a broader basis. The boys and girls who cannot make the first teams in many sports have no athletic competition or participation at all. This narrows the program to only a few. We should establish competition and leadership for all of the students, who are interested in these activities."

The candidate says he also supports activities in school which the boys and girls will carry through as athletic activity after school.

Champlin has been active in Boy Scouts, the Methodist church, 4-H and a number of agricultural group organizations.

"I was once a Jaycee, and I still support that organization's motto that the service you perform is your rent for the space you occupy in the community," he says. "I think everyone should contribute to community services and I think I can do this if elected to the school board."

"Taylor, who farms south of Twin Falls, was also born in Twin Falls and except for time in military service, has lived here since.

He was graduated from high school here in 1958. He served in the U.S. Navy from 1959 until 1963. He now farms about 500 acres south of town and with a neighbor operates his own aerial spray service. He is a member of the Twin Falls Flyers Inc. He served as vice president and handled maintenance on the three planes owned by the Flyers. He has also been active in the soil conservation district program, working on the snow survey and water forecast programs.—He is also a member—of the education committee of the state association of soil conservation districts.

Taylor says he supports more emphasis on the vocational training programs, saying many high school students are much better able to apply the study of science and math to technical skills such as vocational training offers.

"I think Twin Falls has a good school system and a sound basic educational program," he says. "Athletic programs are important, but we must not sacrifice academic and vocational training for sports."

Two contests in Buhl school elections

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

BUHL — Two men and two women are seeking the Buhl School District trustee post from Zone 1 where John Honick, veteran board member is stepping down.

In Zone 2, school board chairman, Richard Morris is running unopposed.

The trustee election will be held May 16 to fill the two vacancies on the board.

Candidates in the first zone include Lila Bell, Linda S. Wolford, Jim Pearson and William Hason. Buhl will also have a new school superintendent for the coming year with Dan Mabe leaving to accept a position with the Meridian schools.

Mrs. Bell, a resident of Buhl for 21 years, says she has always been interested in the community school program and is especially anxious to maintain a good basic academic program.

"I come from a sports-minded family, and we have always been strong supporters of athletic programs," she says. "But sometimes I wondered if we don't devote too much time to extra curricular activities. By that I mean not just athletics but music and other out of class room activities.

"These are important and we need a reasonable amount of such activities; but I think we should weigh their values compared to class room programs carefully and maintain a good balance," Mrs. Bell says.

Mrs. Bell and her husband formerly operated Banbury hot springs and she says her business experience over the past 20 years should help qualify her for the board position.

Mrs. Bell has a son in the seventh grade and a daughter who is a freshman in the Buhl schools. Another son is a freshman in college. Mrs. Bell says she has worked as a volunteer on school programs including the bond issue for the new high school.

"I feel strongly about upgrading of the educational system," she says. "This is a continuing process in all districts."

"Because of her work," Mrs. Bell says she has not been active in many community or social organizations.

She is an active member of the LDS church in Buhl.

Pearson, a dairy farmer has lived in the Buhl area the past 23 years and has four children in the Buhl school system.

"I am interested in good schools for all Buhl children," Pearson says. "I think we have a good program now but we need to work hard to keep the standards high."

He said he is interested in improving the hot lunch program in the district. Pearson is the father of six, 3rd, 5th and 7th grade pupils. He is a member of the Farmers' Exchange, the Chamber of Commerce and with several farms and dairy interests.

Mrs. Wolford, a resident of Melon Valley works in her husband's surveying office and says she is interested in a good special education program in the Buhl schools.

"I would like to see some method for better communication between the school administration, teachers and the parents," she says. "There is no parent-teacher organization here, were the two groups can discuss educational programs or problems on a regular basis. I think we need more parent contact with the schools."

The Wolfords moved to the Buhl area two years ago from Colorado and have two sons in school, one in grade school and one in high school.

William Masón, another relatively new resident of Buhl, farms northwest of town.

He came here two years ago from Oregon where he served as a plant superintendent for General Telephone Co. in Beaverton, near Portland.

Ditchriders

Twin Falls Canal Co. workers face increasing maze of building activity

YOU NAME IT AND YOU CAN FIND IT FLOATING DOWN THE PERRINE COULEE
... ditchrider Lawrence Loughmiller removes clutter from canal

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The first trickle of Snake River Water dribbles out of a pipe into a fresh wash in the earth behind Blue Lakes Shopping Center. A flattened cardboard beer carton swirls and slides in the swirling stream.

Ditchrider Lawrence Loughmiller has turned the muddy flow from the Perrine Coulee into lateral number 40 of the Twin Falls Canal Company. It is the beginning of the spring run of irrigation water destined for a field at John Breckenridge's canyon rim farm.

The water is muddier than usual this spring since the canal was rerouted to accommodate construction of a new shopping mall and its new bed is still unsettled dirt. More of the lateral had to be buried and now flows in 42 inch pipe.

Both the new buried pipe, and the bobbing cardboard carton at its outlet symbolize battles Loughmiller and other ditchriders must wage as the growing city of Twin Falls oozes into cracks and crannies in the 75-year-old canal system.

Ditchriders must keep the water flowing to canal company shareholders when they need it, and at the same time coordinate their water runs with creeping urban sprawl.

With the sprawl come more people, who create a second headache by tossing trash in the canal system. The debris clogs catch screens in the waterways and ditchriders must scrape the material off the screens.

Last year the Twin Falls City council okayed 17 new subdivisions (filling nearly 300 acres of new developments. Developers platted 895 new lots for houses, apartment buildings and industries.

So far in 1978, the council has approved 11 new subdivisions with 599 new lots on about 165 acres. These figures do not include acreages and subdivisions outside the city limits.

Throughout this maze of new construction and design, the Twin Falls Canal Company is constantly keeping track of its existing waterways in order to continue to deliver more than 200,000 shares of Snake River water to irrigators.

For most of the 29 ditchriders the company employs, the job of riding ditch means merely checking and cleaning headgates and filling water orders for farmers.

For some, like Loughmiller and Dale Veeder, the Twin Falls city ditchrider, there are more people and complications involved.

About construction of the new shopping mall on Blue Lakes Boulevard North this year, Loughmiller says, "That's where my headaches started — with all that new development."

Construction of the mall required rerouting of the Perrine Coulee from which all of Loughmiller's laterals originate. Contractors moved the coulee west of shopping center property.

Big headgates for laterals 40 and 41 also had to be moved, according to Loughmiller. Lateral 40 was routed in front of the Merc and across property belonging to Ball Buster Racquet Club, while number 41 was headgated near St. Benedict Priory.

Owners of the racquet club decided they would bury lateral 41 where it crossed their land to retain use of about three-fourths of an acre. The burying process cost about $15,000 and delayed the time when Loughmiller could start water down the lateral to Breckenridge and Oren Boone property near the Snake River Canyon.

Loughmiller and Veeder both spend much of their day trying to coordinate ever-burgeoning numbers on people on their ditch rides.

Veeder, who handles all irrigation water delivered to city residents, says handling the people on his route is the toughest part of his job.

"The pressure to try to get along with all the people bothers me worse than the work does," Veeder says. "I really feel like I have my hands full. It would sure help if everyone would use the water cooperatively."

Veeder says he relies on his schedule to settle disputes over use of irrigating water.

"Generally — it is easier to save heated arguments with the schedule," Veeder says. "I have to tell them, this is it or else, if they can't agree."

Keeping ditches in the city clean and operating properly is more than a full-time job for Veeder in the summer.

The city budget for ditch maintenance and operation last year was $75,000, according to Veeder. That amount pays his salary, those of his helpers and maintenance costs. The city foots about 65 percent of that bill and 35 percent comes from city irrigators and leased out water shares.

The canal company itself, which maintains hundreds of miles of canals and laterals, budgets about $3.71 per share or about $750,000 annually for operation and maintenance. Canal company manager Clifford Montgomery says that price will have to go up as costs continue to inflate.

Salaries are big items on both budgets and ditchriders spend a lot of their working hours answering to the people on their routes.

But one other job continues to creep up the list of headaches ditchriders face — that of keeping the ditches clean and flowing freely.

Not only must Loughmiller, Veeder and others fill all orders for irrigation water and measure its flow accurately, they must continually make sure screens and headgates are free from debris.

Usually, the foreign matter in ditches is due to carelessness or outright troublemaking on the part of waterusers or others who live along ditches.

"I can tell what day it is by the grass and junk that come down the coulee," Loughmiller says. "The people move their lawns or Saturdays and that is when the grass and rose bushes come down. The people use the coulee as a garbage dump."

"I pull everything out of it," he continues.

"The only thing I haven't found in the ditches is money."

And Veeder agrees. "Sometimes it's amazing what you'll find in the ditches. I'm not surprised at anything. I've even seen them dump grass catchers in the ditches."

Everywhere there is a screen in a ditch, Loughmiller and Veeder have piled trash they fish out of the canals. Huge heaps of sticks, paper, tree limbs and even boards adorn street corners in the city.

Though city crews are responsible for removing the mess, many times they don't make their rounds for several days.

"I swear I throw the same board out of the ditch three or four times," Loughmiller says.

As he pulls a particularly big tree limb out of one of his laterals, Loughmiller predicts, "Some kid will have that back in there by tonight. I bet."

What energy crisis?

Farmer William A. Wilson, 81, and his 25-year-old wife, Toby, plow the 1/2-acre garden plot next to his East Cobb, Ga., home. Wilson has used about 50 tractors in his 70 years of working fields and prefers them to tractors. In his prime he worked about 15 acres, but a heart condition and a recent stroke make the garden plot about all he and his aging wife can handle. Toby is blind in one eye but Wilson says the only problem with him is an occasional unintentional bumping.

Wheat estimates 16% below 1977

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Tuesday estimated the 1978 winter wheat crop at 1.22 billion bushels, down 16 percent from last year and 3 percent below a previous forecast for harvest last December.

The new forecast, based on May 1 conditions, showed farmers were taking part in a government production control program which was planned to help curb a mounting, price-depressing surplus of the bread grain.

Under the program, wheat farmers who want to qualify for government price support on this year's crop are required to idle one acre of cropland for every five acres they plant to wheat. Officials say later reports could show further cutbacks if growers take advantage of a government offer of subsidy payments now wheat acreage used for grazing or hay instead of grain production.

The department's crop reporting board said prospects declined from the December forecast mainly because of dry conditions in the southern plains and excess moisture and winter damage in the mid-West soft red winter wheat area.

The forecast indicated that total 1978 wheat production — including both winter and spring wheat — may fall below 2 billion bushels for the first time since 1974.

The 1978 winter wheat estimate was 243 million bushels below last year's crop of 1.527 billion bushels, and was the smallest crop since the 1.272 billion harvest of 1975. The record winter wheat crop, 1.651 billion bushels, was harvested in 1976.

No production forecasts have been made yet for spring-planted wheat, although planting estimates for those grains indicate farmers intended to seed 17.3 million acres, down 8 percent from 1977.

Agriculture Department experts, however, believe the spring crop could reach about 500 million bushels with good weather or 400 million bushels if the weather is poor. That could push the overall 1978 wheat harvest to a roughly projected range of between 1.7 billion bushels and 1.8 billion bushels, depending on weather conditions.

Last year's total crop was 2,028 billion bushels following the record 1976 harvest of 2,142 billion and the 1975 crop of 2,134 billion bushels.

The May 1 report estimated that 39,558,000 acres of winter wheat will be harvested compared with 46,619,000 acres last year. Officials estimated per acre yields this year at 32.5 bushels compared with 31.5 bushels last year.

The crop reporting board said per acre yields appear above a year ago in the central and northern plains but below a year ago in the drought-plagued southern plains and in soft red winter wheat. Moisture which began falling in the dry southern regions about May 1 may have been too late for some farmers but should improve the crop in parts of western Oklahoma and Kansas and eastern Colorado.

In Kansas, the nation's leading winter wheat state, the report estimated winter wheat production at 323.5 million bushels compared with 344.9 million last year and 339 million two years ago.

Wheat prices, buoyed by a combination of strong farmer demand and heavy deposits in a government-sponsored grain reserve program, have improved sharply since reaching a low of $2.04 a bushel last summer. By mid-April, prices had recovered to $2.83 a bushel compared with $2.37 a year ago and $3.50 two years ago.

Rain dampens field work

BOISE (UPI) — Rain and snow slowed agriculture field work last week, although operations made fair headway in most areas of the state, the Idaho Corp and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

The agency said high winds also harassed farmers in southern Idaho, particularly those irrigating by sprinklers, and an average of 4 days was suitable for field activities statewide.

Soil moisture supplies are adequate to surplus in all areas, the service said.

Automakers not expected to obey law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. automakers probably will choose to pay fines rather than fully meet the 1985 fuel efficiency standards required by law, Energy Department officials say.

That prediction is one among many in a new report saying the nation's appetite for energy appears likely to grow faster than its domestic energy supply through 1990 under present policies. Energy Department officials issued the report Monday, saying they had waited as long as possible for Congress to act on energy legislation it has been considering for more than a year. The report was required by law.

On Capitol Hill, Republicans said the natural gas compromise worked out in secret by a few congressional negotiators as part of the proposed new package of energy legislation is worse than no bill at all.

The gas-pricing plan was to be presented to the full House-Senate energy conference committee today. The plan would allow prices for newly-produced gas to increase sharply until 1985, when federal price controls would end.

"The principal weakness in this so-called compromise is that it will do very little, if anything, to bring on more natural gas," Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., told reporters.

"This is not phased deregulation. It is regulation to eternity," Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said. And Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., called the complex plan "a lawyer's dream but a nightmare for the country."

The new forecast by the Energy Department's Energy Information Administration said new cars are likely to achieve as little as an average 21 miles per gallon by 1985, instead of the 27 mpg required by law. Administration officials said they believe at least some auto makers would rather pay fines than meet the 27-mpg standard.

The report predicted total energy consumption through 1990 will grow at an average 2 percent a year. It said domestic supply will grow only 2 percent a year, forcing oil import levels to increase from a present 9 million barrels a day to as much as 16 million by 1990.

It said domestic oil and natural gas production, aided by new supplies from Alaska and from offshore areas, will at best hold steady through 1990 and at worst fall about 25 percent below present levels.

President Carter's goal of doubling coal production by 1985 will be met five years late, it said.

The report — less pessimistic than a CIA forecast released last year but more gloomy than some other recent projections — said a world oil shortage appears inevitable sometime in the 1980s.

Administrator Lincoln Moses stressed the many uncertainties in his report, saying in a preface: "There are no facts about the future, ... for everyday affairs not governed by well-understood physical laws."

More manpower

Church seeks forest funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church urged Monday increased funding and manpower levels for federal forest management.

Church said if timber production is to be stepped up to both meet national housing needs and to lower the cost of wood products and limit inflation in the price of housing, the best opportunity must be found in the national forests.

Speaking to the National Forest Products Association in Washington, D.C., Church said national forest supply 27 percent of the nation's timber and plywood needs.

Although the forests represent only 18 percent of the nation's commercial forest land, they contain 52 percent of the standing inventory of softwood saw timber.

Church urged the following steps: — The administration, working in harmony with Congress, should call for increased funding for Resource Planning Act programs, including timber sales. The programs should be funded at no less than 85 percent of the ideal level for the coming fiscal year, and 100 percent thereafter.

— Forest Service manpower ceilings, which severely restrict agency programs, should be lifted. Part-time Forest Service employees in technical areas such as timber sales, environmental assessment and engineering, should be moved into permanent positions.

— Congress should set up a revolving trust fund, similar in nature to the Land and Water Conservation Fund, to provide adequate money for forest management. Payments into the fund should come from timber sale receipts and be used to finance needed access roads, sale preparation, and intensive reforestation and rehabilitation programs.

Sleepwear exports # to be checked for Tris

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government says if sleepwear treated with the flame-retardant chemical Tris is hazardous to American children, it shouldn't be sold abroad either.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Monday it had reversed a decision it made last fall, and ruled it has authority to block exports of the garments treated with the chemical suspected of causing cancer.

The commission said it will check more than 100 manufacturers in New York City and several southeastern states to determine whether they have been shipping overseas their stocks of Tris-treated sleepwear left on shelves when domestic sales were halted last year.

"There were some inspections made last week that did reveal some firms were exporting Tris-treated garments," the announcement said.

Threats to new airport may lead to visitor ban

TOKYO (UPI) — The government may bar visitors from the new $2.6 billion Tokyo Airport at Narita for at least a week after its scheduled opening May 20 because of opponents' threats to destroy it.

Home Affairs Minister Takekoshi Kato said Monday the banning of visitors may be considered on Monday. "At present," Kato said, "we cannot predict when the situation will return to normal. We haven't limited to one week the period we will keep visitors away from the airport terminal after the airport's opening."

"It may be extended depending on the situation," he said. "It will inconvenience the passengers but it cannot be helped if the radicals remain as they are now."

The airport, delayed more than five years by rioting and demonstrations, was originally scheduled to open March 30. But opponents blocked the control tower March 26 and smashed $500,000 worth of computer and guidance equipment.

Big payoffs in transport are cited

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government auditors say trucking and rail firms lure shipping contracts by taking officials on trips, giving them gifts, and entertaining them at golf and hunting outings.

The Interstate Commerce Commission auditors told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Monday the practice is industry-wide and amounts to about $1.5 billion a year. In addition, they said there is another $1 billion in phony double-billing to circumvent tariffs set by the ICC.

The ICC regulates freight rates, making different transporters charge the same amount to shippers who want identical goods over specific routes.

Five auditors told of finding evidence trips to the Kentucky Derby and Indianapolis 500, Las Vegas junkets, Caribbean and Florida vacations, gift certificates, expensive lunches and dinners, and weekends of golf and hunting.

They said it was the manner by which carriers obtain contracts.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., subcommittee chairman, said the payments were "another tax" on the public because the ICC would be forced to raise rates to offset the cost of the trips.

ICC Chairman Daniel O'Rourke acknowledged public confidence was a concern and said the ICC was restricting acceptance of gifts.

Nevertheless, auditor Raymond Bielata of Pittsburgh said he had been told by a superior to halt further entertainment and travel audits. Bielata said under oath that acting regional managing director Ivan Schaeffer told several auditors at an April meeting in Philadelphia not to conduct entertainment audits without his permission.

Schaeffer bragged that he had a recent lunch bought by a Conrail official, Bielata testified. Bielata's testimony was corroborated to reporters by David Haubert, an auditor from Cleveland, who also attended the meeting.

Schaeffer, reached at his Philadelphia office, said his news had been misinterpreted by Bielata. Schaeffer said he only instructed his staff to cease unauthorized investigations of other ICC employees.

Schaeffer said his comment about the lunch was made "in jest," although Bielata told reporters specifically it was not made in humor.

Carter shuffling under attack

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department will be left as an empty, powerless shell unless an emerging farmer-consumer coalition persuades Congress to junk some of President Carter's reorganization plans, Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., warned Tuesday.

Talmadge, in a speech prepared for a meeting of rural electric cooperatives, urged the co-ops' appointment to join in fighting the first of the Carter proposals—a plan to shift the Agriculture Department's $3 billion collection of child nutrition programs into a proposed new Department of Education.

The Georgian, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which has unanimously condemned the Carter plan, conceded that school lunch and other programs may have no direct impact on rural electric co-ops.

But if the Agriculture Department loses the child-feeding programs, it will be easier for reorganization "raiders" to shift rural electrification, forestry, rural development, conservation and other major department functions to other agencies.

That would leave the Agriculture Department "little more than an empty shell," Talmadge warned. "And he said farm bloc lawmakers would be much of their bargaining power with urban spokesmen in passing farm legislation."

Talmadge's speech came on the heels of a Senate hearing Monday in which a coalition of farm and consumer organizations urged rejection of the proposed transfer of child-feeding programs.

Guidelines given for Lucky Peak Dam

BOISE (UPI)—The way has been cleared for stepped-off preliminary action on a proposed 75,000-kilowatt hydroelectric project at Lucky Peak Dam near Boise by the Boise Project Board of Control.

Idaho Power Co. and the board announced Tuesday approval of a "memorandum of understanding" which establishes general policy guidelines for the new plant's construction, operation and financing.

Approval of the memorandum ends 2 years of discussion and permits the board and Idaho Power to proceed with 3 of the major preliminary steps required for construction of the plant on the Boise River 8 miles east of Boise. The 3 steps are:

- Completion of an application by the board for a 50-year Federal Energy Regulatory Commission license.
- Preparation of construction plans, specifications, cost and an environmental study.
- Development of a final purchased-power contract between the board and Idaho Power, expected to be completed by next Oct. 1.

The board would build and own the proposed plant, financing its construction with revenue bonds to be paid off by the sale to Idaho Power of all energy not needed for operation of the Boise Project.

Idaho Power would operate and maintain the plant under its contract with the board.

The plant's annual average generation is expected to be 295 million kilowatt hours, based on average historical water flows. Most of the electricity would be produced during the summer months when water is being released for irrigation by the 5 irrigation districts comprising the board.

Total cost of the plant and related facilities is estimated at $69 million.

Utah deer in good shape

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah's deer herds came through the long hard winter with few problems, the Division of Wildlife Resources said Tuesday.

Preliminary reports from the division's annual range rides indicate a low winter kill in most areas and an overpopulation of deer in some areas.

In the northern portion of the state there were some losses in the East Canyon and Lost Creek areas, according to game manager John Kimball. But he said the losses were expected due to increasing deer populations.

In the central and northeastern regions, the highest deer mortality occurred along highways. There was also some winter kill near Midway where heavy snow fell.

There were no particular problems in the southern region of the state. The southeastern region reported some losses on the east side of the Marysville divide due to effects of last year's drought followed by the harsh winter.

Prep district track finals dominate week

TWIN FALLS—Twin Falls' Bruin stadium becomes the headquarters for the last hurrah of Magic Valley's track spring, starting Wednesday evening and running through Saturday.

During that time all three district team classification champions, boys and girls, will be crowned and those eligible to advance to the state runs off in Boise in another week will be decided.

From the looks of things it appears that Twin Falls is an overwhelming favorite for both boys and girls. Buhl boys will battle Jerome's boys for the A-2 crown but one will touch the Jerome girls, and the Valley boys and Filer girls look like the teams to beat in the A-3 battle.

Preliminaries will start for the A-3 division at 4 p.m. Wednesday with all 19 A-3 teams in their best to the line. The A-3 then will proceed to the sidelines until noon Saturday when it will conclude with its running finals.

The A-1 and A-2 move into the stadium Thursday with the A-1 girls shotput and boys discus and triple jump finals leading things off at 2:30 p.m. Preliminaries for the A-1 and A-2 running events will go at 5 p.m. with boys' 100 and girls' mile finals at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

The A-2 field finals will start at 2:30 p.m. Thursday with the A-1 events following at 4 p.m. The running finals will begin at 5 p.m., alternating boys and girls A-1 and

A-2 by event through conclusion.

Basically the A-1 thing should be a wave of blue. However, Minico has state potential in Todd Heiner in the high and long jumps, the 100 and 400-yard dashes and should win over spots in the distances. Burley will be strongest in the hurdles with Carl Sandmann and quarter-halfliner Blauer.

Twin Falls had made one last change for the district, moving senior Dave Skinner to the open quarter and putting junior Pat Allison in the 400-yard relay.

"Dave wants to run it and we feel that he could do well in it," said Coach Jerry Kleinkopf. "But most important, Skinner feels he can do very well in it."

Kleinkopf denied it was a ploy to help the Bruins offset Minico's shift of Heiner to the 400-yard dash. "I don't see any trouble with all three of them getting into state," he said. "The qualifying time there is only 50.9 and all three of them have proved they can run that (inserting by reference Clay Meyer who is undefeated in the quarter this season)."

"There are a couple of other areas where A-1 athletes could advance to state on qualifying standards if they can't make the top two. In the high jump the standard is a modest 5-0, which should assure Bruins Dave Wetter and Ken Stagnayer and Heiner of getting beyond district with little problem. Twin Falls also will be shooting to qualify all four pole vaulters for state as that standard is a modest 12-4. All four Bruins cleared that mark in practice Tuesday night. Of course, Bob Mingo, who has done 14.5, and Ryan Thomas, 13.6, are favored to go one-two.

The girls A-1 qualifying standards are so low that it might take a whole bus just to transport the Twin Falls girls to track. "We are putting everyone in the mile and half-mile," Coach Kleinkopf said. "I think we have a good chance of sending five, six or seven in each."

The thin Bruin boys distance corps flattened out badly with Carlos Hernandez, the two-miler, now done for the season and the indication that junior Mark Oyen won't run again this year. Oyen finished a limping last in the 5K last weekend, after winning the western division the week before in a career best 4:32. Kleinkopf said a call to the Oyen home brought the report about the youngster being done — he hadn't attended school Monday and Tuesday.

In the A-2 boys division it is simply a matter of Jerome having the depth enough overall the strength enough in the distances to turn back the first-place power of Buhl. The two have met three times with Jerome winning the first two by badly outpacing Buhl in the final two events. The Tigers did the same thing in the SCIC finals but Buhl had built up enough margin at that time to withstand it. Mountain Home will not be in Friday's events and it will be a matter of which Mountain Home hurt the worst in the SCIC meet. Barring anything completely unforeseen, the A-2 boys should be too close to call.

Not so in the girls. Jerome appears the favorite in just about everything. An exception will be the hurdles and quartermile where Buhl's Helwig has been running pretty much in front. In the sprints and distances and relays, however, Jerome figures to be grabbing off a horde of blue and red ribbons.

The boys A-3 closes down to a battle among Valley, Glenn Ferry and Filer. Just as it did in the Canyon Conference finals and that's the way they finished. The

A-3 division appears the weakest overall it has been in a long while, at least from the standpoint of times and distances. Some of that could be due to the fact that about half of the events have been run on metered tracks at Carey and Valley.

Camas County, which has rolled to totals over 200 on a couple-three occasions, might be able to be in the thick of things this time around but the Musers don't appear to have the first and second place power to make it stick in another week.

It will be a chance to see Filer's Brian Ochsen and Chris Black of Glenn Ferry in the two-mile for the first time this year. Ochsen rules as the favorite in both the mile and two-mile with Black the runner-up pick. There was a chance of the meeting a week ago in conference, but Ochsen didn't run in the two-mile and Black was unimpressed.

Filer's girls have solid first and second-place strength in the girls division and that one should be chopped up enough that the quality points should give Filer the edge.

Lori Johnson provides sure points in the short events and is defending, state champion in the high jump. Beth Rupprecht and Jarolmek will get big points out of the mile and half-mile. Filer also has good relay strength.

But for all intents and purposes, the team situation isn't the major thing in the district track meet. It's staying eligible to run at state.

Retiring CSI coach makes last bid for track crown

TWIN FALLS—CSI track coach Jim Blaisdel will make his last bid for a regional championship this weekend at Pendleton, Ore.

The coach made official Tuesday what has been not too well guarded the past several days that he is leaving the CSI. "I'm retiring after six years to turn my efforts to private business in Elmer," Blaisdel said.

"It's not that we don't like it here," the Elmer native said. "We've enjoyed it very much. But after six years, it seems we're not getting in a rut. Some people think I'm crazy to try it and others think it is the right move but my wife and I decided if we're ever going to try it now is as good a time as any."

Blaisdel said the venue will be in the area of health and exercise with indoor facilities for year around training, racquetball, indoor track, etc.

"Another thing that weighed in his favor was that my brother, Kevin, is coming into the venue."

Blaisdel said he hadn't wanted to discuss the move publicly until Tuesday, although he acknowledged the word had slipped out rather broadly.

"I handed in my resignation about 10 days ago but I didn't want to talk about it until I had a chance to talk to Dr. James L. Clayton. My wife and I have that opportunity until this morning."

Meanwhile, the one thing he'd like to do is how out as a winner — and he thinks there is an outside chance.

"Lane, of course, will be the problem. They don't have many first place points but they have tremendous depth and I'm afraid those fourth, fifth and sixth place points will get us. I thought for a while that we might have trouble finishing ahead of Ricks but I think we can now for two reasons. We have healthy for a change and Ricks lost a couple of quality people who just left the track team."

"I think our first place points are pretty solid," he continued. "Tairo (Correa) should win the five and 10 thousand meters without any trouble. I think Paul Pikington will win the stepchase although the region has some pretty good ones this year. And I can't see anyone challenge Greg Simons in the 100 and 200 meters."

"We competed in a weather-abbreviated meet at Logan last week and we got some pretty good news out of that — before all that rain started falling and those snowflakes. Simons ran a 10.47 100 meters, which shows he's getting back into running form now and Mark Littlefield had a 49.5 quartermile which indicates that his leg is healing and in practice this week he has been knocking stronger every day."

So I think that Mark, being the competitor he is, will give us a good shot at first place in the quarter. And with Simons and Mark in it, I think our mile relay team can take another first.

"We also have a good chance in the hurdles with Wally Fulmer. He and Gardner of Ricks have taken turns beating each other. And Tim Robinson should get us points in the javelin, discus and shotput. I feel that John Gregory is going to beat four minutes in the 1600 meter run and that should be a strong point-giver. Dave Andersen is starting to get over his ankle problems. Last week he went out 4.4 feet in the triple jump and that sure won't hurt. We have point possibilities in other events, like the half-mile and distance-jumping so we could be better than I'm expecting right now. Of course, I've always been a pessimist before a meet."

"I hate to say it but it looks like second again — at the worst third," Coach Blaisdel continued. "Still, I can get some help from the other schools, we could move past them into first. I think Pendleton is something like 1,000 feet in elevation and that will help out distance people."

"But I really think we're going to do well at nationals. I think we have the potential to get 25 to 30 points out of the four guys we have qualified right for. That should put us in the top four or five teams."

Blaisdel said the team would participate in preliminaries Friday through the finals of the discus, long jump and 10,000 meters will be run that day.

Camas boys, Richfield girls cop crowns

CAREY—The Camas County boys and Richfield girls wound up the Northwest Conference by taking track championships Monday — but before Camas County had thrown a scare into Richfield.

The Muser boys had no problems as they amassed 237 points against 72 for runner-up Richfield. But in the girls division, Richfield, which hasn't lost all year, escaped a strong play by the Musers girls by a three-point margin.

The Musers helped themselves by partially breaking up Richfield's usual several place finishes in the weight events. Richfield still got the most points there but the Musers broke up the shotput somewhat when Wolfe took second place.

All the teams were to gather in Twin Falls Wednesday for the preliminary round of the district A-3 finals at Bruin stadium. The finals will be held Saturday.

Affirmed's test

Victor Coladonato and Iron Legend had to miss the Derby but they'll be at the post for the next two jewels

BOWIE, Md. — When Affirmed won the Kentucky Derby over one of the finest trainers in years he convinced Victor Coladonato, his trainer, that he had nothing to fear in future races from the whippers at Churchill Downs. "We're gonna have to find another horse to try him," Laz said.

Maybe, just maybe, they already have. There is a whopper of a colt down here who has run only three times in his life and has the same right to challenge Affirmed, Alydar, Believe It and their sort that the Mother Superior has to slug Leon Spinks.

His name is Iron Legend and he lives in the very last barn in the hindmost corner of the Bowie stable area, a sinkable putt from the blue Cadillac bearing that is home to the man who bred, broke, owns, trains, feeds and galls the horse. The man's name is Victor Coladonato.

Coming his curly black hair, his mistake and a three-day black stubble, he weighs out at 125 pounds of faith, hope and patience. For years he scuffled to support Iron Legend and his colts, sister and their dam, and last January when he still had no reason to think he would ever get one of them to the races, he put up his money to nominate the colt for the Triple Crown.

Iron Legend wasn't ready for the first race of that series, the Derby, but on Derby Day he paid his owner off by winning $23,303 in the Woodlawn Stakes at Pimlico.

Coladonato means to run him in the Preakness a week from Saturday and the Belmont Stakes on June 10, second and third triple crown events.

There is a certain element of chance in horse racing, so it is possible that Iron Legend may not win these stakes, but there is no doubt whatever that he will be the biggest in either field. He is a massive bay with a white star and one white foot who stands 17 hands at the withers and weighs, by his owner's estimate, between 1,100 and 1,200 pounds. That's about three inches taller and 200 to 300 pounds heavier than the 3-year-olds he will oppose.

Horses have run in the Preakness and Belmont after the owner took a ride in a hearse, but up to now no winner ever took the Woodlawn Vase or Belmont Cup home to a meat wagon.

Changes are Coladonato could find room for the topnotch in his cozy equage, though it is already fairly filled by a colt, a chest of drawers, jackets and jeans on hangers and a television set.

"A nephew of mine," Coladonato said, "has a '64 Cadillac convertible and he wanted the rear bumper that was on this machine. Man said he'd have to buy the whole hearse, so he did. 'You want this Caddy?' he asked me. I was just what I needed. I live in it right through the winter. Don't need heat, I have two sleeping bags in there."

Iron Legend's winter quarters were in the barn outside the Bowie grounds, where his owner rented a stall for $20 a month. The track's stable area hadn't room for the potential horse of the year recently.

"The tale of the horse" and man goes back seven or eight years to the day Coladonato bought a 2-year-old filly named Jenny Legend for $1,000 cash with another $1,000 to be paid out of her earnings.

There weren't any earnings because she was too big to race, about as tall as her son but heavier.

"So you bred her and got this colt?" Coladonato was asked.

"This colt had an older sister could outrun him," he said. "Name of Jenny Spencer. I broke her down jumping a ditch, I had her in this barn outside the grounds and the only way to the track was over a ditch or along the road where you couldn't take a horse for the traffic. I had her just ready to race the time when I jumped her over the ditch and boxed her."

At that time Coladonato had a two-horse stable, Jenny Spencer and Iron Legend, both by Iron Peg. He had given the mare, Jenny Legend, away when Iron Legend was a yearling.

"Couldn't afford three horses," he said. "They were costing $15 a day each and I wasn't making that much. I grew up with horses and mules on the Eastern Shore and around the late '40's or early '50's I got a job at the race track. I galloped horses and worked as a groom. After I got Jenny Legend, Iron Peg was standing at Glenelg, Md., for a $750 stud fee." He had raced around and around the potential horse of the year, but he won't sum stakes around here.

"I broke this colt when I had to stand on a feed bucket to mount because I had no help. I was working in a roofer on the side. Three different times I hid him ready to run and something happened. He got dehydrated and I had to go slow with him. Then he bucked his shins. Then he got a lame back from some stiff trouble he'd had since he was 11 months. I took him to Ballou Center (the University of Pennsylvania, Veterinary Hospital) and that was a wasted trip, another waste of time.

"If it wasn't for all those delays, he would have been in the Kentucky Derby. I nominated him for the triple crown because he never did anything wrong from the day I started with him. But I couldn't get him ready for the Derby."

Iron Legend made his first start April 17 in a Pimlico race of a mile and a sixteenth.

"Green horse with a green boy," the owner said, "though the big kid rode a good race." The colt bolted to the outside and hit another horse on the first turn, and although he got up to be third, the stewards sent him back to fifth.

In his second start he won a maiden race of a mile and 70 yards at Keystone near Philadelphia, earning $5,400.

Then, moving into stakes company, he ran his bankroll to $28,703 by winning the Woodlawn.

Rosencrantz takes seniors golf crown

TWIN FALLS — Ed Rosencrantz of Rupert, playing in his first tournament, fired a two-over-par 66 on the backside Tuesday to claim the title in the first annual First Federal Savings 62-and-over senior golf tournament.

Rosencrantz, who escaped the eight penalty-strokes that plagued him on the back nine in the opening day, ended the two-day tournament with the net prize. Ulfem Simmons of Twin Falls won the gross honors. Rosencrantz of Twin Falls was second on both counts.

The tournament, which required no entry fee save greens fees, attracted 85 players and was ruled a success by First Federal officials which said they definitely would sponsor a similar competition at Twin Falls many next year.

Some members of the field suggested another later in the summer this year would be all right, too.

Other awards went to Jack Claiborn, best athlete past 70; Charles Seiber, smoothest senior golf swing; Frank Green, youngest-looking old man; Hi Long, Handsomest senior of them all; Stan Crom, zippiest senior over 70, and Harvey Schlagenauf, best senior chipper and putter.

Special awards went to Cliff Smith and Bob Fulton, Denney Hogue and Frank Cook won closest to pin honors for each of the days.

IOC may hold up decision until LA finalizes plans

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee meets in Athens next week to consider Los Angeles' bid to host the 1984 Olympics, but a final decision may be put off as the city and committee attempt to work out what appears to be substantial contract disagreements.

The dispute apparently centers around the actual form of the contract. The IOC has proposed a standard two-page contract which requires that the local organizing committee abide by IOC rules with a provision that the local committee can reject any changes that would increase costs.

The city, fearful of cost overruns that would be borne by taxpayers, has amended the proposed contract to 24 pages to include specific legal language that would prohibit additional costs.

IOC executive director Monique Berlioux has told the city its 24-page pact is unacceptable and that the city must abide by the standard two-page form. The City Council's Olympic Committee, meantime, has voted 4-1 to notify the IOC that the city finds the IOC's draft contract equally unacceptable.

"The IOC will meet May 18 in Greece to officially designate the host city for the 1984 Games, and it is expected that haggling over contract language will take up much of the session and a final decision may be postponed.

Los Angeles is the only city bidding for the 1984 Games. Anton Calleja, Mayor Tom Bradley's Olympic aide, said Tuesday the disagreement is a "question of form" and that there is "no difference in substance."

"My opinion is that it is possible for the city to assure itself of its cost control if it wants in a short contract form," he said. "I think we are very close. I have talked with Monique Berlioux and she has already received the city's Mexico City amendments as ratified and she has no problems with it."

"It seems to me if those responses are included in a short form contract, our problems are behind us. Forms are important to them. We are substantially in agreement with them. It would be prudent for us to make concessions in the form."

Some City Council members are skeptical or hostile of the IOC's demands, however, and express concern that the Games will increase taxes.

The Council previously planned to present the IOC with a take-it-or-leave-it offer, but the two sides were so far apart it was apparent there will have been some dickering in Athens.

The delegation will not be authorized to make any substantial changes in the city's offer, however, and if there are such changes, the delegation will have to bring the contract back for approval by the council.

The IOC has said that if Los Angeles pushes its sole-contender status too far, the committee will postpone a decision, reopen the bidding and seek another city — probably a recent Olympic host, such as Munich or Montreal — to host the games.

At issue is both Olympic income and expenses. Los Angeles wants one third of the television rights income, which the IOC has guarded as its own in past years and which is expected to bring in more than $100 million.

The city also wants an ironclad guarantee absolving it from all financial responsibility for the Olympic Organizing Committee, which would actually organize the games, and veto authority for both the city and the organizing committee over financial demands by the IOC for such things as stadium construction and site preparation.

Giants edge Pirates for fourth straight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Larry Herndon drove in Jack Clark from third with a one-out ninth-inning single Tuesday night to give the San Francisco Giants a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, extending their winning streak to four games.

Clark beat out a bunt after one out, stole second and continued on to third when catcher Ed Ott's throw bounced into center field. With the Pittsburgh infield and outfield bunched in close, Herndon led his winning hit over center fielder Omar Moreno's head to score Clark.

LA 3, Cards 1

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Reggie Smith cracked a solo homer and unbent Don Romano reached his fifth victory Tuesday night in a 3-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rau, who gave up seven hits over 7 1/3 innings, also helped himself with an RBI squeeze bunt. Smith hit his sixth homer of the year in the fourth inning for a 1-0 Dodgers lead. But Ken Reitz slammed a solo shot for the Cardinals to tie it in the second. The snapped the tie in the third when Davey Lirds singled, advanced to third on a balk and a ground-out and scored on Ron Cey's sacrifice fly.

Royals sideline Brett

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Royals Tuesday placed All Star third baseman George Brett on the disabled list and replaced him on the roster with left-handed pitcher Andy Hassler.

Brett suffered a severe shoulder contusion in a collision with Milwaukee shortstop Tim Nordbrook April 28. His presence on the disabled list is retroactive to May 4 and he will miss 15 games before returning to active duty May 18.

Hassler cut the index and ring fingers of his pitching hand in a freak accident while moving a trunk shortly before the Royals broke spring training camp. He had been on the disabled list since April 4.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Graig Nettles and Reggie Jackson homered Tuesday night to power the New York Yankees to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins behind the combined three-hill pitching of Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Sparky Lyle.

Nettles gave the Yankees a 1-0 lead in the second inning when he hit his fourth homer of the season and the Yankees added two more runs in the fourth off loser Paul Thormodsgard on Jackson's sixth homer and back-to-back doubles by Nettles and Jim Spencer.

Best team cash can buy faces 'bankruptcy'

NBA Playoff Roundup By IRA KAUFMAN UPI Sports Writer

The best basketball team money can buy faces instant bankruptcy tonight in Philadelphia's Spectrum.

The high-priced Philadelphia 76ers — who adopted the motto, "We Owe You One," as their 1978 pledge to fans after losing in the NBA finals last season — have been devalued repeatedly by the WASHINGTON Bullets' going into their best-of-seven Eastern Conference final playoff series.

The Bullets, huge underdogs within the series despite losing to Central Division champion San Antonio in a quarterfinal matchup, lead the Atlantic Division champion 76ers three games to one and can advance to the finals with a victory Wednesday.

Philadelphia's only hope may be an affirmative answer to the question "Is there a Doctor in the house?"

Julius "Dr. J." Erving, the 76ers' all-star forward, says his team still have to turn to their "money" players (Erving, George McGinnis and Doug Collins) in these desperate times.

"I think basically we should attack them with our key players," Erving said. "Win or lose if that way. I think George feels the same way. I can't get out and take just 16 shots and lose. I'm going to take at least 25 shots if we're going to lose. During the regular season I think it was fine to try to pacify everybody. Now we have to do what's best for the team."

The confident Bullets need no shift in strategy. They come off two astounding victories and feature an inspired Elvin Hayes — who appears to have shed the demons which have plagued him in the past and, instead, is playing like a man possessed by winning.

"San Antonio was supposed to run by us and we made them slow down and walk the ball up," Hayes said. "Philadelphia was supposed to run by us and we've made them walk it up the floor. So far, the Bullets have been doing all the running."

All the 76ers, who have been running on empty, will not fold, according to Coach Billy Cunningham.

"We are not ready to call it quits, I guarantee you that. Just from our practices, I'd say the players feel the same way."

Washington's domination has been so complete, it's easy to forget they have played three games without the services of league center Wes Unseld — out with a sprained ankle.

Unseld scored 35 points and paced a 170 spur Sunday that gave Washington control of the fourth game and perhaps the momentum to clinch the series and await the Denver-Seattle winner in the finals.

After splitting the first two playoff games in Denver, the SuperSonics are right where they want to be — home.

The Sonics host the Nuggets tonight riding the crest of a 17-game homecourt winning streak.

"Sure the win streak builds confidence," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "In a long series with two good teams, the first few games maybe the homecourt advantage doesn't matter," he said. "But if you get down 2-1 or 3-1, then it becomes very important."

Seattle displayed a hard-driving, penetrating offense in the two games at Denver's McNichols Arena, and the Sonics are riding huge dividends at the free throw line: in the first game, Seattle had 42 free throws and sank 47 while the Sonics sank 35 of 49 foul shots in the second game.

"It'd be real strange," said Nuggets star David Thompson. "We seemed to have a disadvantage as soon as we took the floor. We had to play twice as hard."

It must be an easy game!

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bob Brinkman, a 24-year-old truck driver, bowled back-to-back 300 games Monday night.

"I still can't believe it," the 185-average bowler said. "I didn't go to bed until a quarter to six. I sat in bed all night just thinking about it."

Brinkman, a left-hander, bowled 205 in his first game at the Louisville Lanes and then reeled off two straight 300 games. He had finished the first game with three straight 300s and the 94 consecutive strikes in the last two games with him 27 strikes in a row.

Local bowling officials said the facts, figures and tests of the games are to be sent to American Bowling Congress headquarters in Milwaukee for sanctioning. It was believed to be only the 12th time that anyone has ever bowled back-to-back 300 games in the same series.

Brinkman, following his sleepless night, celebrated on Monday.

"I took the day off," he said.

New golf tour sets $150,000 opener

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wes Parker, a former Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman, revealed a new dimension in golf Tuesday when he announced that the newly formed World Golf Association will provide a $150,000 purse for its first annual classic for non-pros in November, 1979.

Parker, who earned six golden glove awards as a top fielder in the major leagues, is commissioner of the WGA, which has a membership of 200,000 golfers.

Under the WSG format, non-professional golfers will have an opportunity to compete in handicap stroke tournament play for $2.5 million annually. The inaugural tournament at the El Prado golf course in Chino, Calif., will be preceded by a series of local and regional qualifying tournaments.

"The top prize is approximately $50,000 more than the winner takes in the World Series of Golf," said Parker. "All players who advance to the Classic will earn at least $4,325. In effect, the Classic will provide the setting for the 'Horatio Alger' story of golf."

Parker, an avid golfer who carries a 12 handicap, added that the second place money in the Classic will be $10,000, third $5,000, fourth $2,000, fifth $1,000 and sixth place $500. All other competitors will earn prizes ranging from $14,000 down to $2,000 even if they don't make the final 36-hole cut.

Parker estimated that most of the 200,000 members will compete in the first qualifying round next spring. Additional four- to six-hole qualifying rounds will be played leading up to the championship tournament.

Under the WSG format, foursomes play stroke (medal) play in full handicaps. The low net in each foursome advances to the next round.

Players enter the first qualifying round at their established handicaps and will be permitted a 20 percent downward leeway in scores without handicap adjustment.

"To prevent 'sandbagging,'" said Parker, "when a player exceeds the 20 percent downward leeway, the handicap will be adjusted downward 100 percent of the excess. If a 15 handicap player has a round that corresponds to a 10, the handicap would be lowered two strokes to a 13 for the next round."

Parker said that thousands of golfers who wanted to play in tournaments for cash prizes have been unable to do so because they were not good enough to become professionals playing from scratch. "The WSG now offers the average golfer a chance to play for prizes at full handicap."

Prize money comes from membership dues. Charter membership is $500 in the first year and $250 thereafter for $25 until July 31, 1979. Dues will be raised to $35 on Aug. 1.

BEAMING Walter Davis, Phoenix Suns forward, receives the NBA rookie of the year trophy from general manager Jerry Colangelo.

Davis crowned as NBA rookie of year

PHOENIX (UPI) — Walter Davis knew very little about the Phoenix Suns a year ago.

But now he is the NBA's first 6-6 forward from North Carolina, whom the Suns chose as the fifth player in the 1977 NBA college draft, was crowned the league's 1978 Rookie of the Year Tuesday.

"Phoenix was the team that I knew least about when I was drafted. It was a blessing in disguise, the way I fit into its program," Davis said.

In accepting the trophy from Suns' General Manager Jerry Colangelo, he said, "It's a great honor, especially when you look at the other rookies in the league this year."

Davis got 49 1/2 votes from the 66 sportswriters and sportscasters — three from each of the NBA cities. His closest competitor was Milwaukee's Marques Johnson, who outplayed Davis as the Bucks eliminated Phoenix from the playoffs in two games; Johnson had 10 1/2 votes in the balloting, which closed at the end of the regular season.

Davis' 24.2 points a game ranked 10th in the league. He also averaged six rebounds and led the Suns in field goal percentage, 526, and free throw percentage, 830.

In looking back, Davis said he had no regret — missing the next-to-last game of the season which kept him from scoring in double figures in all 82 regular-season games.

"I was really upset about it," Davis said of the game he missed because of the flu. "I didn't want to hurt myself or the team and the doctor thought it would be best if I didn't play. But, looking back, I wish I had played."

He said he had "a lot of satisfying experiences."

"Being drafted by Phoenix, knowing the style and fitting in, and the great association with the players and coaches. Making the All-Star team. The big disappointment, of course, was being knocked out of the playoffs. I thought we'd still be playing now."

Colangelo said Davis had "a fantastic year" and indicated he would be rewarded with more than the trophy.

"We had some incentives in Walter's contract, and he achieved all of them," Colangelo said.

Davis has four years remaining on his original contract.

Bernard King of New Jersey, who averaged fractions of a point less than Davis, received 8 1/2 votes. Jack Sikma of the Seattle SuperSonics got one vote, and Norm Nixon of the Los Angeles Lakers one-quarter of a point.

For the Suns, it was the second time in three years that their top draft pick claimed the rookie award. Alvan Adams won the trophy in 1976, and guard Ron Lee finished second in the voting to Adrian Dantley in 1977.

Carroll Righter
FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Some confusing influences are in effect in the early part of this day, so be sure not to take any unnecessary chances. You would be wise to be alert in all your business dealings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Make an effort to be more understanding at home and establish more harmony there. Show that you are thinking logically.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You have to use extreme care to have a good day. Take no chances with one who is jealous of you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Study your financial position well and be sure to go over any bills for accuracy before you make payments. Be wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You should be confused about some personal affair and you could follow the advice of good friends at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Obtain all the data you need for a new venture you have in mind. A private worry should not be confided in others at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You could be using the wrong psychology about gaining a personal wish, so change it. Show that you have wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You have to be particularly careful of your reputation today, since others are in a gossipy mood. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): This is not the right time to engage in new activities, but fine for obtaining data you need for career matters. Express happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): There is much you have to do today so get busy early in the day and accomplish a great deal. Be nonchalant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Try to understand the views of others instead of being tempted into an argument. Show more affection for the one you love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): There is much difficult work ahead of you, so put on your thinking cap and it will soon be behind you. Don't neglect your health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Make plans early in the day to engage in pleasurable activity. Sidelstep one who is detrimental to your welfare. Be poised.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: ... he or she will have the ability to solve knotty problems, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can, and such talents can be put to finest use. Give good spiritual training early in life so that your child will always be properly guided.

J. M. Boyd

Television came on the scene fairly strongly in 1946. That year the American moviemakers turned out 448 films. In 1958 the moviemakers produced 352. In 1968 they only brought forth 258. And last year they made 186. This gives you some notion about what TV has done to the motion picture business.

Another thing you can do to whittle away the time of children is to read all the slang expressions that came out of the book, "She's a peach," "Aphrodisiac," "He's hard-boiled," "Nuts to you," "That takes bread." So on.

Everybody knows that weather travels across the United States from west to east, but not everybody realizes it travels faster in winter than in summer.

VALUABLE ANIMALS

Q. "What are the most valuable animals in the world?"
A. Race horses, giant pandas and killer whales.
Q. Can a car's air bag that has been inflated in a crash be used again?
A. No; after the car can be repaired, a new air bag has to be installed.

Q. "What's the most recorded American tune?"
A. Either "Stardust" or "St. Louis Blues." It's about a tonup.

Q. "In what sequence does a walking horse hit its hooves?"
A. Left front, right hind, left hind and right front.

Q. "What's the name of the highest lake in the world?"
A. Doem't have a name, it's Tibet.

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

The Chicago Daily News recently closed down. The book was the first newspaper in America to mass the writings of a daily columnist. That's not why it closed down. I don't mean that, that might not even have had anything to do with it. The columnist, by the by, was none other than Eugene Field.

The Capricorn is not easily taken in by fast talk, according to the stargazers. Therefore, you always want to let a Capricorn have a little time to think things over. It's said the typical Capricorn answers no when first you ask just about 90 percent of the time.

This is the last verse of a famous poem: "And you each gentle animal... to you for life may bind... and make it follow at your call... if you are always kind." Can you name the poem? Of course, of course, "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Says...

"Okay! What's next?" Those are stinging words to hear after you've put all of your efforts into preparing and serving up a rewarding meal and all you've got to kiss it off with are some bought-in, store-bought cookies.

It's picnic time. You don't dare pull a stunt like that at an exciting outdoor eating excursion. After all, you've carefully put together an ideal and superb meal which can be eaten primarily with the fingers — no need for a bunch of cutlery to lose along the way. You've packed only foods which carry well and which have been refrigerated to be eaten cold or cooked at the picnic site to prevent food poisoning. You've wrapped everything individually, taken along extra bags to store garbage which you plan to take out with you when you leave. Your plans are for your pleasers to remember your fine, seasonal entertainment. How can you do it?!

WILLETTA WARBERG

Makes some cookies. Everyone who can wield a spoon in a bowl can do it, so get some assistance a day or two ahead of your picnic. Bar-style cookies are best for travel... cooled and cut into squares, lightly wrapped in sandwich baggies or plastic wrap, candy bar-fashion they are perfect. And bar cookies exemplify microwave baking. Drop cookies take too long to make because microwaves don't accommodate large batches. If you use a microwave, remember to use only glass or microwave bakeware.

A few cookie-making tips are (1) to use butter flavoring (find it next to vanilla extract in the markets) as you would extract when you use margarine and shortening to replace butter; (2) when making any kind of cookies — drop, rolled or molded — never work or beat the dough after flour has been added, or the cookies will be tough.

Leif's legacy

Mother's no-fail pancake recipe

By WILLETTA WARBERG
 Times-News writer

"I like to be around people and I love to entertain," says Ketchum's Leif Odmark, "but it's seldom I can entertain because my professions get in the way." The ex-Olympic Nordic coach, director of the Sun Valley Nordic Ski Center, and president of Odmark Enterprises — dealers in the area for sauna and jacuzzi equipment — has the secret for feeding friends easily.

When Leif squeezes in time for a party, he says he relies on his mother's no-fail plattar (Swedish pancakes) recipe. "I make the first part of the batter sometimes the day before the party and refrigerate it. I make sure, I've got lingonberries, applesauce and other fruit toppings, sour cream, whipped topping or cream and a shaker of powdered sugar. Then I set out a buffet-style table with just plates, napkins and forks. I can go to work the next day, come home to a set table, set out the pancake toppings and heat the plattar maker and rub it down with butter or margarine and when the guests arrive, I offer them a glass of wine and excuse myself to finish and dish out the pancakes. Everyone eats as I make them. It's lively, fun and deliciously simple entertaining," he says.

LEIF ODMARK'S SWEDISH PLATTAR
 2 eggs, separated
 1 egg yolk
 3 tablespoons sugar
 1/4 teaspoon salt

3/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour
 2 cups milk or 1 cup milk and 1 cup light cream
 1/4 cup melted butter
 1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract melted butter
 sweet applesauce or lingonberries or other fruit sauce sour cream, whipped topping or whipped cream powdered sugar
 Beat egg yolks until light and thick. Beat in sugar and salt. Stir in flour and milk, alternately, beating until mixture is smooth. Add 1/4 cup melted butter and vanilla extract. Let batter stand a few hours or overnight. When ready to make up, beat egg whites until they stand in soft peaks; fold egg whites into batter. Heat pancake pan. Brush with melted butter. Pour about 1 tablespoon batter into each depression of plattar maker. Brown on one side, turn and brown on second side. Pancakes must be very thin. To serve, spread each pancake with applesauce or lingonberry sauce. Stack 6 or 8 pancakes on each plate. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar and top with sour cream, whipped topping or cream. Ice cream is an excellent addition to a meal of plattar. These can be served for breakfast, brunch, lunch, dinner or after the movies. anytime you're hungry and the meal is light enough and plenty for anyone. Recipe makes 60 to 70 pancakes.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS

Cantaloupes are coming in now. They're a bit small but they'll rapidly improve over the next few weeks. Vegetable oil products — salad oil, margarine, shortening, mayonnaise — are really getting costly, and predicted to be more than double-priced soon. Hard to believe but true is that flour is going up — in the last few weeks its price has increased almost 10 percent and the markets say it will get higher.

Scovell presides over private bagelateria

By WILLETTA WARBERG
 Times-News writer

Bagel Bagger Supreme, Susan Scovell, presides over her private bagelateria in her home on the Ketchum-Sun Valley border. She allows friends from far and wide to come and partake of her early morning specialty, freshly baked bagels with whipped cream cheese and jam just when she feels up to it.

When Susan feels up to cooking is most of the time. Her strenuous career, however, prevents her from overplaying her position as one of Idaho's newest and best cooks. She's a budding architect, apprenticing in the northerly Magic Valley area.

It was just last Sunday that I had the privilege of joining Susan with friends, Dick and Jane Foberry — he's the Foberry Flop Olympic Gold Medalist high jumper and an architect schoolmate of Susan's — to watch her punch down the dough and form the bagels, boil them and then bake them. The lively conversation made the time go quickly and without any nagging (feeling to leave, we ward soon stoking them away, Susan's bagels are truly the finest I have ever eaten and Susan is kind enough to share her recipe with us. Here it is, made with Idaho potatoes in the dough.

SUSAN SCOVELL'S BAGELS

Boil 3 or 4 potatoes (well-washed but not peeled) in about 3 cups water (you'll need 2 cups potato water). When water is lukish (you'll know), soften 2 packages yeast in 1/2 cup of the 2 cups of water (and maybe a shot of honey in with the yeast). Then beat 3 or 4 eggs in large bowl, add 1 tablespoon sea salt, 1/4 cup honey, 1/4 cup salad oil, rest of water and yeast. Beat; add 2 cups flour and a good healthy glump of sourdough starter. (No Sourdough doesn't have to be babied or treated gently). Stir again. Add enough flour for a kneadable dough. She uses an unbleached white flour with a dash of cornmeal and a bit of whole wheat flour, thrown in. Turn out dough and knead to a firm dough. Place in a greased bowl; cover and let double (1 1/2 hours maybe).

When dough is ready to form, start a large pot of water (about 2 quarts) to boil and when bagels are ready to boil, add 2 tablespoons sugar to the water. Also prepare wash of 2 egg yolks and 2 tablespoons water and have your seeds handy (poppy or sesame).

Punch dough down and knead lightly — cut in half — roll into a rectangle (each) and cut into walnut-sized pieces. Roll into 4 to 6-inch snakes and shape into circles. Place on greased cookie sheets or wooden cutting boards to rise. (If ends won't join, moisten with water).

By the time you have shaped all the dough, it will be time to boil the ones shaped. Put the bagels in the water upside down. As they come to the top, turn them over to right side and boil a few minutes longer. Remove them with a slotted spoon. Place on greased cookie sheets and brush with egg wash and sprinkle with seeds. Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until golden. Let cool completely before storing or hang them up on a thin rope for storage, or freeze them.

Buhl bicyclists pedal Saturday

By Bonnie Baird Jones
Times-News writer

BUHL—Bicyclists of all ages will be pedaling through Buhl Saturday to raise funds for children who are suffering the painful complications of cystic fibrosis.

A bike-a-thon will be held Saturday, sponsored by the Buhl Kiwanis club. In addition to the 20 mile ride to help children with breathing problems, the riders will have an opportunity to win one of many prizes that have been donated by Buhl merchants and Kiwanis.

A 10-speed bicycle from Coast to Coast Stores, Buhl, means the first of prizes. A portable radio and tennis racket has been donated by Gambles and other items include a skateboard and tennis racket from Gambles. Other winners will receive trophies.

The bike-a-thon begins Saturday at 9 a.m. in the Buhl city park and covers a 20 mile route. The winner is the one with the most sponsors and the most cash brought in for the Cystic Fibrosis campaign.

Individuals wishing to enter should pick up a sponsor sheet from their school or a local sponsoring store. Each contestant then obtains sponsors at a donated rate per mile (rate chosen by the sponsor) and the amount the sponsors pay will go to the cystic fibrosis fund.

Richard Hahn, Buhl, is chairman of the event and Jennings Pierce, Castleford, is information chairman. Children and adults taking part should bring their sponsor sheets to city park, for the start of the ride with parent or guardian signatures for all under 18 years of age.

Hahn said from all indications indicate there will be a big turnout for the event with many children interested in helping those who suffer the respiratory disease, making them unable to ride bicycles or participate in other strenuous activities. Many will also be trying for the new 10-speed bicycle, Pierce said.

Hahn said the committee is working on the weaknesses for the annual fundraising for Saturday.

Refreshments will be served at check-points along the route. Kiwanians will furnish cookies and soft drinks will be donated by Smith's Dairy, Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola bottling companies.

Pierce said the effort by local bike riders will help expand research into the child killing disease and to hopefully help find a cure. Modern treatment techniques, such as chest physiotherapy, have helped prolong the lives of many small victims of cystic fibrosis although at this point there is no cure and the victims face a grim future and short life. In 1945 most of the cystic fibrosis victims died in infancy.

Waterways cleaner after six years

By HAROLD H. MARTIN
PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Six years after Congress passed the Federal Water Pollution Control Act there is evidence that the nation's waterways are cleaner.

Success is not complete and probably never will be, according to a report issued by the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia.

"Along many of the nation's rivers, perhaps most of them, it is unrealistic to expect that even the most ambitious of efforts will bring back the streams which early explorers charted as they crossed the American wilderness: dams probably cannot be demolished; cities unbuilt."

But, noted the report, "even the worse polluted rivers can be improved once their major problems are identified and solved."

There is enough improvement for hope that the goals of the national act of "water quality which provides for the protection and propagation of fish, shellfish and wildlife, and provides for recreation in and on the water" will be achieved by the target date of 1983.

Some states with greatest improvements had local pollution control laws long before the national act.

The academy report, compiled from various state and national reports, notes signs of improvement:

- More dead returning to spawn in the upper reaches of the Delaware River, where once water was so foul that sailors left ship in port to keep from getting sick. The first major effort at cleaning up began in 1936.
- The return of the flourishing oyster industry to the Housatonic River in Connecticut; where pollution control efforts were intensified in the late 1960s; Bluefish from Long Island Sound and blue shell crabs have also begun inhabiting the river.
- Increased bass fishing in the upper Ohio River, which carries more freight traffic than the Panama Canal. Even the freshwater drum, wiped out by polluted waters in the 1920s, returned.
- Creation of a chain of state parks along Oregon's Willamette River, the first river in the nation to meet all federal standards for discharge of pollution. Clean-up began in the early 1950s and municipal and industrial users were meeting standards set in the 1972 act before it was passed.

Recipe could cause explosion

NEW YORK (UPI)—Random House is withdrawing from distribution a cookbook it published last November because one recipe in the book could cause an explosion in an electric slow-cooker.

The recipe, Silky Caramel Slices, appears on pages 230-231 of the Random House edition and six book club editions of "Woman's Day Cookbook, Cuisine" by Sylvia Vaughn Thompson, and on pages 466-467 of a large-type edition published by G.K. Hall & Co. of Boston.

The unprecendented withdrawal was announced Monday in New York by William T. Lovred, director of corporate affairs for Random House.

Lovred said the problem was discovered when an employee tried to make the recipe at home and found her slow-cooker overheating. She turned off the appliance and notified the book's editor, who checked with the author and the "Woman's Day" Consumer Publishing Department.

The recipe calls for cooking an unopened can of condensed milk for 10 1/2 hours in a ceramic-lined, glass-lidded slow cooker set on high.

Lovred said all Random House copies have been recalled from book retailers and wholesalers, but that about 10,000 copies of the edition are believed to be in consumers homes and in libraries.

NEW NATURAL STYLE PET FOOD HERALDED BY PRESIDENT

(Quailin, Oregon) A completely natural style of both dog and cat food was announced today by Jason Herwin, president of the Blue Mountain pet food company.

The new products are called, appropriately enough, Blue Mountain Natural Style.

Mr. Herwin proudly described the ingredients as containing a balanced nutrition in a completely natural form, no additives, no preservatives, and no artificial coloring.

"The name 'Natural Style' was only natural," Mr. Herwin quipped.

"He noted that his new pet foods are carefully formulated for puppies and kittens, as well as full-grown dogs and cats.

When asked about palatability, Mr. Herwin pointed on the question humorously. "Both the dog and cat varieties are a delicious beef flavor. Our panel of experts raved about the taste."

the Blue Mountain "panel of experts," it was explained, includes dogs and cats of all kinds who regularly sample all Blue Mountain pet foods.

After listening to the impressive description of the Natural Style foods, one reporter asked, "only half in jest, if he could get a 'lead' on the new products."

"You certainly can," grinned Mr. Herwin. "Just check your local newspaper. We're currently offering a coupon good for 20¢ off."

With that, the press conference was hastily adjourned as reporters scurried to this newspaper's offices to ask about early copies of today's editions.

Old-timer has faith in Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired coal miner, now 82, and believe it or not, I can still read without eyeglasses. I don't remember when I first started to read DEAR ABBY, but it has now become a very important part of my life.

Will you please do me a favor and settle a lengthy and heated disagreement I have been having with a good friend of mine named Curly. Curly says that you do not personally write your own column or answer your mail. He claims you have assistants and secretaries to do it for you. I say that you do all your own writing. Anyway, we have a $10 wager, so please let me know who is right.

GARY AURITT, STONINGTON, CONN.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR GARY: You are. I have a staff of devoted secretaries who are expert typists (I'm not). They do the research and handle referrals, but every line published under my name is written by me!

Collect the $10 from Curly, but be careful how you spend it, Gary, because I don't want to be responsible for contributing to the delinquency of a miner.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was married 12 years ago, I gave him my wedding ring to give to his bride. She wore it for 10 years, then she put it away because my son gave her a beautiful set of rings with diamonds for her 10th wedding anniversary.

Three months ago, my son and his wife started divorce proceedings, and I asked my son to get my wedding ring back. He told me he had already asked his wife for it but she wouldn't give it up. She said it was HERS—regardless of where it came from. Finally I called and told her there was a lot of sentiment attached to that ring and I wanted it back.

She then had the nerve to say that she also attached a lot of sentiment to the ring and refused to part with it.

How can I get it back and what should I do now?

BOILING POINT

DEAR BOILING: Your son GAVE the wedding ring to her, therefore it's hers. And I see no way for you to get it back if she doesn't want to part with it. The word from here is, simmer down and give up.

DEAR ABBY: My 13-year-old sister has this crazy thing about germs. If someone coughs or sneezes near her, she holds her breath or runs out of the room.

If someone touches her food, she won't eat it. She sterilizes her toothbrush every time she uses it. She won't use a towel if anyone else has touched it. When we go anywhere, she won't touch doorknobs or railings with her bare hands because they're "germy."

Our whole family is disgusted with her fussiness and over-cleanliness. What's wrong with her? And do you think she'll grow out of it?

WORRIED SISTER

DEAR WORRIED: Your sister has an obsessive "phobia" (fear) about germs. It is not uncommon, but her chances of "outgrowing it" are slim. Please urge your parents to take her to a psychiatrist. With treatment, her phobia can be removed.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Young muscles need high quality protein. The kind milk gives them. Three 8 oz. glasses of milk provide 53% of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of protein. The U.S.D.A. suggests that you serve three glasses a day to children 6 to 12 years old. Little muscles are big reasons why.

Can fasting for diet bring health problem

Dear Dr. Lamb,
Periodically I fast to lose weight — for instance from supper time to the same time the next night and sometimes a few longer but never more than two days. Recently I watched a well known story about a Hollywood actor who weighed over 240 pounds. He fasted to the extent that he died young. Something about heart strain.

Am I doing a good thing or shall I check my insurance policy? I am 5-foot-10 and weigh 240 — down from 260 — and feel fine except for occasional tender chest aches and a pain in the left side which my doctor isn't concerned about.

Dear Reader,
I prefer for people to learn to eat right and the overweight problem will take care of itself on a permanent basis. I am sending you the Health Letter number 4-7, "Weight-Losing Diet," to help you. If you follow that plan you can lose weight and learn what you should eat to stay slim. Others who want this issue can write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

A single day's fast is not likely to harm healthy people. You will lose water and salt, but it will be replenished the next day. If you fast very long though you could lose potassium with the water and salt. That is one problem that has been implicated in a number of recent heart deaths.

The day you fast you lose both protein and fat. You want to lose just fat. There is no fasting of any kind you would be healthy to begin with ever dying from not eating a day. And I might add that fasting routines have worked rather well under medical supervision but it is definitely not a do-it-yourself project. You have a "hangover" if you fast. Others who want this issue can write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
If a woman has had a complete hysterectomy with removal of uterus and ovaries and everything in OK, is it necessary that she have a Pap test each year? I've been told that there's no need for other women who've had the same but my doctor continues to do one each year — are they all negative.

Dear Reader,
The Pap test is commonly used to detect abnormal cells — mostly from the cervix of the uterus — and identify cancer of the cervix early enough to treat it. The chances of finding cancer of the lining of the body of the uterus (endometrium) are not so good, unless by Pap test you mean to wash cells out of the uterus as part of the test.

Without either a uterus or a cervix-uterus the main sources of cancer have been eliminated. However, a rare person can have changes of the vaginal wall, particularly around the area where the cervix was located. The likelihood of this could well depend upon what was seen in the tissues removed. In a normal woman with no suspicious changes, it is not likely that she will develop cancer of the vagina, or to be 100 percent safe, a Pap test is still of some value.

You need an annual examination anyway to detect any other problems, such as sagging of organs that can cause other problems and cause an examination of your breasts, so the additional procedure isn't that much of a problem.

Fashion scene finds vests of all kinds

NEW YORK — They are to refresh and summer fashions what the shawl was to last fall's styles, though they're much easier to handle. They're vests, sometimes similar to the bearing part of a man's single-breasted suit, and sometimes the third, only a distant relationship to it. Either way, they're wardrobe extenders, slipped on over even last year's shirt to give an outfit a this-minute look. They turn up over dresses, shirts and skirts and at times, in past, including short pants. They're worn two at a time, to give a color fillup to muted outfits. Designers everywhere have added vests to their basic collections, occasionally making them reversible to extend their versatility. While the basic shawl was in paley green printed challis, the basic vest is in white cotton. Alternatives are checks and plaids. But there are also quilted vests and crepe de chine ones. The white cotton vests have the advantage of going with almost anything in a wardrobe. Unlike shawls, they're no practice in front of a mirror before you dare to face the public. You just put them on and forget about them; thereby making life simpler.
