JELLYCO, Tenn. (UPI) — More than 60 days ago, state inspectors gave the owners of the old red-brick Jenkins Hotel in this Tennessee-Kentucky border town 30 days to correct a number of safety defects, including the lack of smoke detectors.

Authorities ruled out arson, but they said they were trying to pinpoint the cause of the fire that left only the outside walls of the three-story hotel standing.

Reform battle starts

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — The long-promised battle over the Carter administration's labor-law reform bill has officially begun, and both business and labor are claiming ultimate victory.

This all depends on how many good men strong and true, will stand up against the great evil that is about to be perpetrated on the American people," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, when asked how long he thought a filibuster against the bill could continue.

Tower said his side believes it has the necessary votes to continue efforts to kill the bill through the July recess or even longer.

Carter met with Senate leaders Tuesday to discuss several matters, including the labor-law reform measure which the president has promised to lobby for personally. At the meeting, participants said, Carter reiterated his support of the bill and said the measure was "fair" pieces of legislation that would address the imbalances he saw in the administration of the 43-year-old National Labor Relations Act.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, however, sharply disagreed, maintaining that the measure "is a loaded organizing gun at the throats of small-business" and an "easy organizing bill" that will ease the unionization of the major part of American industry that is non-union.

Hatch, as leader of the bill's opponents, has launched a confrontation that appears likely to be as emotional as last year's filibuster over natural-gas deregulation and the debate over the Panama Canal treaties.

Wallace backs off Senate race

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Three-term Gov. George C. Wallace, who sought the presidency four times, apparently signaled the end of his political career in a stunning postscript to an otherwise routine speech Tuesday night.

Wallace, 58, paralyzed from the waist down from an assassination attempt during the 1972 presidential campaign, said Tuesday night he will not run for the U.S. Senate despite his certainty that he would win the race.

Wallace cannot succeed himself since Alabama law prohibits a governor from serving three consecutive terms, so his announcement means he is evidently retiring from elective politics.

He gave no reason for his decision to the shocked delegates to the Alabama League of Municipalities, saying only that it came from a period of reflection at a nearby beach resort.

Wallace said: "As one who feels and knows he could win the U.S. Senate seat, I want to announce to you tonight that my conclusion after going to Gulf Shores the last couple of days is that I will not be a candidate for the United States Senate."

The statement came at the end of Wallace's speech, and the governor was whisked away by aides without making further comment. The crowd of 1,000 sat silently for a moment and then gave him a standing ovation.

The announcement even stunned Wallace's press secretary and the chairman of his Senate campaign, Billy Joe Camp, who was reached later in Montgomery.

"This would be a surprise to me," said Camp. "I knew that he had been giving a lot of thought to it. I knew he needed to think about it. But we all assumed that it was kind of 100 percent across the board that he would run."

Last month Wallace assured supporters at a fund-raising event in Montgomery that he was in fine health and ready to run for the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated by the retirement of Sen. John Sparkman, 76, at the end of the year.

Wallace ran for president in 1964 and again in 1968, when he garnered 13.6 percent of the vote on a third-party ticket. He also ran for president in 1972, winning the Democratic primaries in Florida, Tennessee and North Carolina before he was shot at a campaign appearance in Laurel, Md. The next day he carried Michigan and Maryland.

GEORGE WALLACE ... career at end?

Teamster leader boycotts airing of charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons foiled union dissidents who wanted a face-to-face confrontation at a union disciplinary hearing on charges his reign is riddled with corruption. He boycotted the session.

Officials of PROD, the reform group fighting Fitzsimmons' leadership, said they were "hoodwinked."

Another session was scheduled today by the five-member special panel appointed by the union's General Executive Board to consider the charges.

Fitzsimmons, 70, who took over control of the Teamsters when Jimmy Hoffa was jailed in 1967, had been expected by PROD to appear and face their questions directly.

"He found it not to his advantage to be here," said Mozart Ratner, Fitzsimmons' personal attorney.

Ratner said the presence of news media at the hearing Tuesday in the Shoreham-

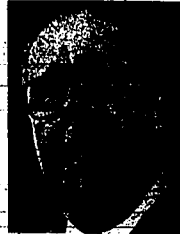

Americana Hotel was a major factor in Fitzsimmons' decision, and added the Teamsters president would comment on the charges "appropriately, completely ... at the appropriate time."

He labeled the charges "invalid" and said they were "a rehash of accusations" PROD made before Fitzsimmons' last reelection.

The six-hour session Tuesday was held behind closed doors under tight Teamsters security.

PROD charged in a 94-page "bill of particulars" that Fitzsimmons has encouraged ties with organized crime, engaged in "sweetheart contracts" with the freight trucking industry, placed relatives on the payroll and given inflated salaries to union officers.

They said the union has become "riddled with corruption" and demanded Fitzsimmons be ousted from office and expelled from the union.

F. FITZSIMMONS ... ducks hearing

PROD leaders reiterated their demand that Fitzsimmons appear at the hearing. They cited a March 30 letter from Ratner to the union's secretary-treasurer saying Fitzsimmons would be "available" for an appearance at this time.

But Ratner said that only mentioned his availability, not whether or not he would actually appear.

Hearing chairman Peter Wilson, according to a PROD spokesman, rejected a demand that Fitzsimmons be present, citing a clause in the union constitution that a representative — Ken Silvers of Lexington, Ky. — could take his place.

William Berryhill of Giengary, W.Va., one of two PROD members who formally filed the charges, said the panel was "multiplying on the matter of proof" and that PROD encountered "objections on top of objections" during the session.

Penn races drawn

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — Republican Richard Thornburgh and Democrat Pete Flaherty, both of Pittsburgh and both former U.S. deputy attorneys general, won their respective party gubernatorial nominations in Tuesday's primary election.

David Marston, the former U.S. attorney from Philadelphia who was fired by President Carter, ran fourth in the Republican primary, which could have implications for the national political ambitions of Pennsylvania's two GOP U.S. Senators.

Democratic Reps. Daniel Flood and Joshua Ellberg, who were targets of investigations by Marston when he was U.S. Attorney, were easy winners for renomination.

Rep. Robert N.C. Nix of Philadelphia, a 10-term veteran, was the only congressional incumbent who lost. He was defeated for the Democratic nomination by William H. Gray 3d, a Baptist minister who lost to Nix by only 333 votes in 1976.

Thornburgh, former U.S. attorney from Pittsburgh, Jed Arien Specter, former district attorney in Philadelphia, former state House Minority Leader Robert J. Butera and Marston, in the Democratic race, Flaherty, former mayor of Pittsburgh, beat Robert Casey, former state auditor, and Lt. Gov. Ernest Kille, who conceded early in the evening.

Commercial ban slows freedom

William E. Howard, Publisher

WASHINGTON — With its proposal to ban certain children's advertising on TV, the Federal Trade Commission has charged off on a new crusade.

Thus mesmerized, children become fat little monsters. Denied their morning Goopy-Woody bar, they throw temper tantrums.

commercial take a toll on the parent-child relationship. The exploitation of children encourages confrontation and alienation on the part of children toward their parents.

Why were residents soaked in Rock Creek?

Rodents may have caused the initial trouble in the recent breaking of the High Line Canal and subsequent flooding of Rock Creek Canyon, but some water-logged residents smell a rat elsewhere.

Turning off the flow of water at Milner Dam, where water is taken into the canal from the Snake River, could have prevented a second wave of flood water that hit the canyon later Friday.

On the first point, the question of diverting the canal waters into Rock Creek, it seems the Twin Falls Canal Co. had little choice.

But on the second point it seems the canal company officials may have erred by not turning off the canal water upstream while repairing the leak.

It appeared that the waters in Rock Creek Canyon were receding when the second surge of water hit, raising the creek's level once again.

Many of the property owners claim that the second surge could have been prevented, but they say that even if it were inevitable, they could have taken necessary actions to minimize property damage.

It was as if the canyon property owners were a band of soldiers holding off the invading forces, but were betrayed by their scouts who neglected to tell them of a second brigade coming down the road.

Tom Olmstead, canal company president, said that turning off the canal input at Milner Dam would have had a delayed effect on the flood waters and that such actions would have been too late to prevent the Rock Creek Canyon flooding.

But canal company's explanations, don't plug up the information gap that the canyon property owners had to contend with Friday. It appears that they were told one thing and had to mop up the other.

Closing the canal may very well have had too much of a delayed effect on the canyon flood but it seems that the biggest delay came in opening the communication channels.

Looking into Harriman's bill of health

WASHINGTON — I received a call the other day from the State Department saying they were doing a security check on Ambassador Averell Harriman.

At first I thought it was a joke so I called back to see if they were serious. It turned out they were. The man in charge was not there so I never had an opportunity to give my opinion.

Should I go out on a limb and say that as far as I know Harriman could be trusted or waffle on the subject?

Should Amtrak be cut back?

DON ORAFF There are those ideas whose time finally comes, and there are others where it seems to be gone again almost immediately.

effect. But even so, the trimmed system would fall far short of paying its way.

The latter would appear to be the case with revitalization of the nation's passenger rail service.

The cuts will be argued out in months of public hearings around the nation before going to Congress for a decision, which is likely to be politically difficult to reach.

The Transportation Department is proposing to trim the Amtrak system, set up by Congress only seven years ago, by almost a third (8,000 miles) of its present 27,000 miles to head off mounting deficit and consequent federal subsidies.

The loss-cutting proposal comes as bad news to those who saw the rehabilitation of passenger service as the answer to a number of problems.

Existing service in the heavily traveled Northeast, Midwest and Pacific coast population corridors would be largely unaffected, but elsewhere pruning would be drastic.

A strong argument can still be made on these and other grounds for maintaining service at present levels.

The result would leave eight states — Arkansas, Maine, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming — and such cities as Dallas, Nashville, Omaha and Salt Lake City without any passenger service.

And that is not even taking into consideration the roadbed, often so badly deteriorated that trains capable of a hundred-plus miles per hour must creep along on portions of the premier New York-Washington run.

Also, public response has been increasingly favorable. With no significant increases in fare-structures since 1971, revenues have grown from $137 million to $311 million annually, up 37 percent.

In the end, however, the Amtrak problem comes down to several pluses being outweighed by one minus — operating costs. These are up 50 percent since 1971, and are expected to continue to rise more steeply than revenues.

Should cutbacks be undertaken as proposed, the deficit and consequent federal subsidy for 1984 is estimated at $200 million. Without the cuts, it would be $1 billion.

As the Transportation Department apparently sees it, there is no arguing with an approaching $1 billion lack of success.

I lost track of Harriman when he became governor of New York State, though I heard through the grapevine that he was still keeping up his relationships with the Soviet leaders.

Then it was back to Washington where he was involved in working out a deal in Laos and becoming a close advisor to President Kennedy, particularly in his dealings with Khrushchev.

Secretary of State Cy Vance worked with Harriman in Paris, never realizing that Harriman pushed for the round table on direct orders from people who felt a square table would put the Russians at a great advantage.

The more I thought about it, the more I decided that I couldn't give the ambassador a clean bill of health. I was eager to get back to the State Department security people and tell them of my suspicions.

Dominican troops take control

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI)—Dominican troops seized electoral commission headquarters in Santo Domingo today and there were widespread reports of a half-hearted military coup attempt to head off a victory by left-wing presidential candidate Antonio Guzman.

Gen. Juan Beauchamps Javier, Minister of State for the Armed Forces, announced that the armed forces were not carrying out a coup with the apparent electoral defeat of incumbent President Joaquin Balaguer.

"The military would not deviate from its institutional functions,"

His terse announcement on a national network said the armed forces would limit themselves to maintaining order and preserving democracy. The first public reaction was one of skepticism due to the capture of the electoral processes when the army halted ballot counting in the middle of the night.

The reports said there had been a coup attempt but that it was aborted when some strong military garrison commanders refused to go along with it. Balaguer had opposed any coup attempt and said the UPI "is a military would not deviate from its institutional functions if Guzman won the election."

Military leaders were meeting with Balaguer today and the outcome of any coup attempt was expected to depend on the outcome of that meeting.

National Police chief Gen. Nestor Rafael Nivar Seljas was heard on the police radio band this morning convoking his section chiefs to headquarters and placing on an alert. This touched off reports here and abroad that Seljas was acting against Guzman, whose social reforms were an anathema to Seljas.

The troops acted as returns from Tuesday's presidential election showed Balaguer was falling farther and farther behind Guzman, a rich rancher from the Cibao who galvanized a middle class surge for change with promises to end corruption. He had a 2-1 lead when voting was halted.

A source close to the Balaguer government said there had in fact been a coup headed by Seljas and that Guzman and other Dominican Revolutionary party candidates were in jail. Rumors of a coup swept the capital as the work-day bustle began, but the only evidence of it was circumstantial.

Morning newspapers did not appear on the stands—the national election return broadcast hook-up which had announced it would remain on the air until returns were cleaned up went off at 4 a.m., and telephone links abroad were interrupted.

A concentration of military and other official vehicles was parked around the residence of Balaguer, indicating a high level conference inside. The lack of an official pronouncement of the coup suggested that Balaguer may not have endorsed the action. The meeting at Balaguer's residence also suggested civil-military lack of accord.

When the electoral commission was seized and the election returns network went off the air, oppositionist Guzman had 226,076 votes to Balaguer's 218,073. That represented 25 per cent of the total vote, and Guzman's margin was increasing. Balaguer was not closing the gap with rural returns as expected.

Tension prevailed in Santo Domingo despite the apparent workaday normalcy.

Austrian climbs Everest solo

KARMANDU, Nepal (UPI)—An Austrian mountain climber has reached the summit of Mount Everest in the first solo climb of the world's highest peak, the Foreign Ministry announced today.

Franz Oppurg, 24, made it to the summit of the 29,000-foot mountain around noon on Sunday, the ministry said, quoting a message from base camp of the 11-member expedition. Sir Edmund Hillary, the cooperator of Everest 25 years ago, was accompanied by a Sherpa guide, Tenzing Norgay.

Oppurg began his final assault from a fifth camp at 27,200 feet, accompanied by Joel Knoll, 24, another Austrian alpinist.

But Knoll, who would have been the oldest person to reach the top of Everest, had problems with his oxygen regulator and was forced to return to camp a few minutes after setting out, the announcement said.

Wife labels Orlov trial circus, but 'not funny'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Human rights activist Yuri Orlov faces jeering spectators and a judge who will not allow him to cross-examine prosecution witnesses in his trial on charges of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda, according to his wife.

"It's a show. It's a circus. It's really not funny," Irina Orlov told Western correspondents, fellow dissidents and a representative of the U.S. Embassy. All have been barred from the courtroom even though the Soviets have termed the trial "open."

Mrs. Orlov and Orlov's two sons by a previous marriage—Dmitri, 25, and Alexander, 23—were allowed into the courtroom Tuesday along with what appeared to be a handpicked crowd of spectators.

Police tried to prevent Mrs. Orlov from reporting on the proceedings to the correspondents, dissidents and the diplomat in the parking lot of a supermarket down the street from the white brick courthouse on Moscow's outskirts.

Scuffles broke out as police and a partisan crowd of about 150 grabbed at one reporter's tape recorder and camera, got into a shoving match with another and seized Jewish activist Vladimir Stepak, who fought them off.

Correspondents and supporters outside the courthouse got their first glimpse of Orlov Tuesday as he was driven away in a closed military van. He looked pale and thin. When he raised a hand in an apparent attempt to wave, he was pushed out of sight.

Orlov, 53, a nuclear physicist and founder of the dissident group monitoring Soviet compliance with the 1975 Helsinki accords on human rights, was the first of three human rights activists arrested more than a year ago to go on trial.

The proceedings were expected to set the tone for later trials of fellow Helsinki group members Alexander Ginzburg, who faces similar charges, and Anatoly Shcharansky, accused of the capital crime of treason.

A conviction could bring Orlov a sentence of up to seven years in prison followed by five more years of internal exile.

Mrs. Orlov said the crowd in the courtroom "has been crude and impolite and laughs at inopportune moments but the most important thing is that Orlov has lost his right to defend himself."

Presiding Judge Valentin Lubentsov consistently upheld the objections of prosecutor Sergei Yemsharov to Orlov's attempts to question prosecution witnesses, she said. The court earlier refused to accept Orlov's list of defense witnesses.

The official Tass news agency said Tuesday that testimony "fully exposes Orlov's anti-Soviet activity."

Grandma picks up support of ex-Beatle

GEORGETOWN, Ohio (UPI) — If the telephone call for a 70-year-old grandmother headed for jail has the support of ex-Beatle John Lennon. And she doesn't even know who Lennon is.

"Granny" Milda Wilburn, who has 28 grandchildren, has received a lot of letters and phone calls from around the country since she decided last week to go to jail for two days instead of paying a $38 fine because of her granddaughter's curfew violation.

She had pleaded guilty to permitting the 15-year-old to stay out two hours past Georgetown's

9-p.m. curfew earlier this month. But the self-described "stubborn old woman" contends her granddaughter was unfairly singled out.

One caller Monday afternoon identified himself to Mrs. Wilburn's daughter as John Lennon, calling from his lawyer's office in New York, to wish Mrs. Wilburn well.

"I believe it really was John Lennon," said the daughter, Mrs. Shirley Coltrien. "He had a British accent and said he was in his attorney's office and that his attorney had just shown him a newspaper story about mom. He said he wanted to talk to mom to wish her well.

"But Mom has been getting so many calls lately that she's become allergic to the telephone," Mrs. Coltrien said. "She just wanted her husband to come to say she wasn't there."

It was impossible to reach Lennon or his lawyer to verify the call, but observers noted that Lennon might take an interest in such a case because he ought authorities for several years—finally successfully—on a deportation attempt.

But whether the caller was Lennon or not, Granny wasn't impressed.

"My daughter carried on, but I don't know the Beatles from a hole in the ground," said Mrs. Wilburn.

Mrs. Wilburn also doesn't know anything about jail, where she's going as soon as there's a vacancy suitable for an elderly woman.

"I got a letter from a lady in Michigan who said she went to jail instead of paying a fine and she said they took her clothes away from her and caused her quite a bit of trouble," she said. "So I don't know what to expect."

Mrs. Wilburn also isn't sure how to react to all the fan mail she's been getting.

"I'd like to go under the bed and stay there," she said. "People are writing me and praising me, but I think if I saw something in the paper about something like this I'd just say, 'Well, that poor old fool woman.'"

"But," she added, "the mayor had a right to fine me and I had the right to spend two days in jail. I don't want no sympathy. I'm just waiting to go to jail."

Citizens enraged

COACALCO, Mexico (UPI) — Nearly 4,000 rock-throwing citizens enraged at the police shooting of a workman stormed the town hall, seized Mayor José Ramón del Cuelo and forced him to eat 12 pounds of bananas, authorities reported.

Cuelo was then forced to sign his own resignation.

The angry crowd also seized the Commander Nicolás Campuzano of the local judicial police and the Deputy Commander Manuel Rodríguez of the municipal police. Both men were stoned.

The violence Monday was a protest against the killing of a José Reyes, a workman in this small town 14 miles north of Mexico City. The two policemen accused of killing him were under arrest.

Chaplin's body recovered

CORSIER, Switzerland (UPI) — Police today recovered the coffin and body of Charlie Chaplin and arrested a Bulgarian and a Pole on charges of seeking to obtain a ransom for the remains of the movie's famed "Little Tramp."

The recovery of the coffin containing the remains of the great movie comic came 10 weeks after it was stolen from a grave at the Chaplin family's Corsier estate, where he lived for 25 years.

Jean-Daniel Tenhorey, the examining magistrate in charge of the case, said the coffin was found buried outside the Lake Geneva village of Noville, some 25 miles from Corsier.

The coffin was found and the two men arrested after they made a ransom demand. Tenhorey said, "One man is Bulgarian and the other is Polish but the motive was money, not political," the magistrate said.

"Police told us they had arrested three persons, all foreigners—that is not Swiss nationals—and that these people are now being questioned," a family spokesman said.

But Tenhorey said only two men had been arrested.

The coffin was not being returned to the original grave until legal procedures had been completed.

Robbing a grave is a crime in Switzerland, known under the penal code as "disturbance of the dead."

Chaplin was buried Dec. 27 in the Corsier cemetery, close to the large manor house where he lived with his wife Oona. The grave, still without a tombstone, was opened the night of March 2.

Oona, daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill, immediately said she would refuse to pay any ransom as "Charlie would have found it ridiculous."

The actor, who was 88 when he died, had always said he wanted to be buried in his own country of England.

But Oona decided on a Corsier burial when lawyers told her there may be complications over death duties if her husband were buried in England.

The actor's fortune was estimated at $25 million when he died.

Proctor says promotions coming for state police

BOISE (UPI) — Law Enforcement Director Kelly Pearce dipped into his own ranks Tuesday and named Thomas Proctor superintendent of the Idaho State Police.

Proctor, 43, is a former Los Angeles police officer who has worked for the state police since October, 1977, and spent 22 years with the Los Angeles Police Department.

"He comes to us with an excellent background and 23 years with a major law enforcement agency," Pearce said. "I feel he has extensive qualities and abilities. He has my support and cooperation in this capacity."

Pearce also promoted Capt. Marvin "Bud" Snyder, operations officer for the Idaho State Police Department, to major. Snyder was named "Outstanding State Employee of the Year" by the Idaho Public Employees Association in 1972.

Proctor, who replaces Capt. Kenneth DeYoung, said he plans on improving the Idaho State Police's "outstanding image."

"I don't like to see cars hiding behind bushes," he said. "We'll be out in the open. I want people to know we are their friends. I want us to be visible."

Pearce said major promotions, a rarity in past years with the State Police, will become more common during Proctor's administration.

"Nothing helps morale more than promotion," he said. "They have been limited in the last 15 or 16 years but for the first time in a while, we plan to have substantial rank advancement."

Proctor also said:

- He hopes more women will become involved with the State Police.
- The department will maintain its traffic enforcement reputation.
- The department will become involved in a variety of law enforcement areas.

More gusty winds, sunny weather

Twin Falls, North Side, Burley-Rupert area: Clear and cool tonight, continued sunny but windy Thursday. Overnight lows will drop to near 35 degrees and high temperatures Thursday will be in the 60s. Winds will decrease to 10 to 15 mph per hour tonight but will increase to 15 to 20 miles per hour Thursday afternoon.

Halley, Camas Prairie, Lower Wood River Valley: Clear and cold tonight, mostly sunny Thursday. Overnight lows near 30 and high temperatures Thursday will be 60 to 65 degrees.

Synopsis: The cold upper-air low pressure system responsible for the cool, showery windy weather from the past two days, is now moving through Utah.

High pressure is building behind this low, and is causing a strong pressure gradient. This is resulting in strong gusty winds from the west across the Magic Valley.

These winds will continue through the afternoon, decreasing to 8 to 12 mph tonight, but increasing to 15 to 20 miles per hour Thursday. However, as this high pressure builds in the intermountain region, winds will be considerably less.

The forecast for Friday through Sunday calls for high pressure dominating the weather pattern through the weekend. Therefore mostly sunny skies and continued dry weather is expected. High temperatures will rise to 65 to 75 degrees with overnight lows 35 to 45.

High wind, rain, snow buffet Rockies, plains

Another siege of thunderstorms and other foul weather today caused another gray day for many sections of the nation.

A severe thunderstorm packing strong winds hit east of Denver Tuesday night. Cars were damaged by an apparent tornado at a hospital parking lot in Aurora, Colo.

The leading edge of much cooler air swept into the high Plains and set off showers and thunderstorms over eastern Colorado and eastern Wyoming.

Snow fell in parts of western Colorado, Utah and the Wyoming Rockies. Travelers advisories were out due to hazardous driving conditions over the higher passes.

Scattered thunderstorms occurred over the eastern Gulf Coast region and the southern Plains. A few intense storms hit western Oklahoma.

Rain, drizzle and fog covered the northern Atlantic Coast states and the upper Ohio Valley.

Fog also occurred over southern sections of Illinois and Indiana and western Kentucky.

Showers eased out of the Pacific Northwest late Tuesday, clearing the skies. Skies were also mostly clear from the eastern Dakotas through Minnesota and the western Great Lakes area.

Idahoan killed

CALDWELL (UPI) — A 41-year-old Caldwell man was killed Tuesday in a hit-and-run accident.

The Canyon County Sheriff's office identified the victim as Erallo Martinez, who was struck by a vehicle in a troop of a restaurant on Highway 30 west of Karcher Mall.

Thompson appointed Idaho dean

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dr. Cliff Thompson, dean of law at the University of Hawaii, has accepted a similar post at the University of Idaho, it was announced Tuesday.

Thompson, 43, will become dean of UI's college of law sometime after July 1 and before the start of fall semester, said Dr. Richard Gibb, University of Idaho president.

Thompson will replace Dr. Albert Menard, dean of law since 1967. Menard announced last spring he wanted to step down in order to return to teaching.

A Rhodes scholar, Thompson holds degrees from Harvard and Oxford University. He also taught at Southern Methodist University.

Rent wheels, trim costs

With auto ownership and operating expenses a stunning 50 percent above the levels at the time of the Arab oil embargo, you must be scrambling to cut your car costs as the rest of us are — buying smaller, lighter models, keeping your car longer, driving less.

But have you considered giving up car ownership entirely and renting your wheels instead?

If you live in a city, drive a typical intermediate make the national 10,000-mile-per-year norm, keep your car the usual three to four years and don't commute in it, you might save close to $350 a year by selling your car and renting a substitute for your vacations, weekend trips, occasional weekday visits.

And the lower your annual mileage, the more money you may be able to save by renting. Even if you drive a five-year-old car, renting could be less expensive if your annual mileage is under 7,500. And for anyone garaging and insuring a 10-year-old auto in a big city, you can rent a brand new model and drive it 5,000 miles a year at your current ownership costs.

Also, if you're a city resident and trade in your car every year, you could drive a rented one as many as 14,000 miles annually and be ahead of the money game. Or if you drive the more typical 10,000 miles each year, you could save $700 every 12 months by renting instead of trading in annually.

Below are rental vs. ownership figures, calculated for me by the Hertz Corp., the car and truck lease-rental firm. (You might save more by renting from a smaller, out-of-the-way company, but Hertz is the leader in the field — and thus, these totals are guidelines.)

1. For your vacation, rent a four-door (Fairmont) station wagon for a two-week, 1,400-mile jaunt. Cost: $338, at a flat rate of $169 a week for a maximum of 700 free miles each week. This does not include gas, of course. It's computed at the so-called "dry" rates which the bigger firms are emphasizing: 80¢ you would be buying gas for your own car, as well, so fuel is not a factor in your calculations on renting vs. owning.

2. For the other 50 weekends of the year, you could rent a subcompact and drive it 175 miles each time for about $67 per trip. That's figured at $10.95 a day and 19 cents a mile, less 5 percent discount plus 8 percent taxes. The total: $3,600 for 10,150 miles of vacation and weekend travel.

How does this compare with big-city ownership?

3. A typical $5,200 mid-size 1977 model costs $3,950 a year to own and operate in a major urban area. Hertz calculates, assuming 10,150 miles annually for three-year ownership. The breakdown: depreciation $1,322; interest on the car loan $308; licenses and fees $48; maintenance, service, tires, parts and repairs $215; figured at the national average. But insurance is placed at $700 rather than the nationwide average of $560 and garaging might be about $130.

4. This means the rented wheels — new each year — are $29 cheaper than those you own. And you've sold your three-year-old car for about $1,225, which in a savings bank would return roughly $75 in interest. Thus, your real yearly savings top $340.

5. With a five-year-old car, your yearly depreciation is less, though your upkeep is slightly higher, lowering your overall ownership expenses. Thus, your break-even mileage is reduced. But you still could take the 1,400-mile vacation and have the 44 weekends of 175-mile trips in a new car for the same total as your five-year-old.

6. If your weekend trips are just 125 miles, you can take the vacation and rent the car all 50 weekends for $75 to $100 less than ownership of the five-year-old driven a similar 7,650 miles a year.

Check your actual driving distances and use patterns and your actual auto expenditures against the rates charged by the leading firms, such as Hertz, which normally rent current model cars from convenient downtown locations. It is unlikely, for instance, that a city dweller will use the car every single weekend of the year. Or you may prefer fewer but longer holiday-weekend trips.

Make your calculations with care. And if they show that you can achieve significant rental savings, consider perhaps for the first time) actually selling, not trading, your car.

next winter, the department said.

Today's announcement was in effect an amendment to the department's fiscal year 1979 budget and Congress will have to approve.

The changes would pull $130 million out of earlier proposed budgets and use that money to increase other areas. The plan would also use $33 million "reprogrammed" from this year's budget.

These initiatives will serve as an insurance policy against rapid oil price increases," Schlesinger said. "Even if oil prices stay low, the investments in these measures have a relatively small cost for the critical insurance they provide."

Federal funds moved to push energy work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger announced Tuesday a $100 million set of budget shifts to speed development of new forms of synthetic and unconventional energy.

Beneficiaries of the shifts would include loan guarantees for converting coal to other forms of gaseous and liquid energy, research into turning the sun's rays directly into electricity, and getting usable fuels from farm, home and forest wastes.

An Energy Department spokesman described the proposals as the second part of President Carter's "Phase I" energy policy. Phase II, with emphasis on increasing domestic production of conventional forms of energy, will be announced

Activism blamed for power cost

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah Power & Light Co. President E. Allan Hunter Monday blamed environmentalists for higher electric rates and slow development of coal resources.

In his report to the annual UP&L shareholders meeting, Hunter said the federal government, at the urging of environmental groups, had gone "overboard" with pollution regulations which were contributing to inflation.

He also claimed that environmental activists have landed many top level jobs in the Interior Department and are working to slow down development of new coal resources.

"Last year the electric industry spent $2.3 billion for new pollution abatement equipment," Hunter told a record 1,500 people gathered in the Salt Palace for the shareholders meeting.

"Industry as a whole spends many times this amount and there's no doubt but what this is one of the big contributing factors to our growing inflation. This is a major reason why we have to continue raising our rates."

The utility official also charged that "the environmentalists, not the federal government, are responsible for the coal leasing program in the United States."

Coal development is going to be necessary to solve the nation's immediate energy needs, he said, yet environmental groups have filed suits blocking the issuance of new federal coal leases.

Hunter said the government had been slow to appeal the environmental lawsuits, possibly because "A good many of the employees of Interior Department and other federal agencies were being replaced by environmental activists."

He said the chief Justice's Department attorney who is defending the Interior Department in the coal leasing suit was a former official of the Sierra Club's Legal Defense Fund.

Another attorney who represented the environmental groups when they brought their original suit is now an associate solicitor in the Interior Department, he added.

"I don't see this as most shocking, if not illegal, certainly it strains legal ethics."

Hunter reported total 1977 revenues of $881.1 million — $33 million, or 12 percent, above 1976. But UP&L stock paid $1.76 per share in 1976, down from $2.39 in 1975.

He said the drop in earnings per share was caused by increased coal-power purchased in the Northwest during the 1977 drought, problems at the UP&L Huntington Plant which closed the facility for half of the year, and slow action on rate requests before state regulatory agencies.

The company also spent a record $200 million in 1977 to construct new facilities, and to acquire two coal mines.

markets Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed Wednesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 7.21 points Tuesday, was off 121 points to 853.09 shortly after the opening.

The closely watched Dow has gained 32.23 points the past five sessions, closing Tuesday at the highest level since 856.81 on Sept. 16, 1977. It has climbed 114.14 points since reaching a three-year low of 742.19 on Feb. 28.

Advances led declines, 340 to 240, among the 709 issues crossing the NYSE tape in the early going.

Early Big Board turnover amounted to about 1,650,000 shares Tuesday's volume of 48.17 million shares was the fourth heaviest in the NYSE's 160-year history.

Analysis, noting the Dow's sharp rise lately, said investors should be surprised to see heavy profit taking in the near future.

Nonetheless, the dollar's continuing recovery abroad has attracted foreign investors stamming into the stock market.

President Carter's recent decision to pare his proposed $5 billion tax cut, and a Treasury official's prediction of a smaller U.S. budget deficit have been factors in the dollar's performance.

Carter's tax move prompted Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller to state he hoped to be able to relax monetary policy soon.

However, most money watchers believe banks will raise the prime rate by one percentage point to 8 1/4 percent soon because of recent Fed credit tightening.

Sales slow

SLUGGISH sales of Richard Nixon's memoirs are reported in many bookstores, but three bookstores in Oklahoma report "strong sales" of $5 T-shirts and 50¢ bumper stickers saying "I Don't Buy Nixon — or His Book."

Public not buying Nixon's memoirs

By United Press International
Perhaps the seventh — perhaps the 70th — crisis for Richard Nixon appears to be the lukewarm and often hostile reception his new book is receiving.
The book, which costs $19.95 to buy and a good deal of effort to read (it's 1,120 pages long) started arriving at eager bookstores last week, but it's all the stores can do to unload it.
Richard Paul, vice president of Ulbrich's Book Store in Buffalo, N.Y., said Monday: "What I am hearing from customers is three things: One, the price, $19.95, is pretty steep. Two, 'He's a crook and I don't want to support him.' Three, they're just fed up with the whole Watergate affair."
Barbara Miller, who works for the bookstore at the Buffalo campus of the state university, said not a single copy has been sold.
"RN: The Memoirs of Richard Nixon" is even doing badly in Washington. "People have been Watergated out," said Peggy Schell, manager of Georgetown's Saville Book Shop.
Viscent Rivers of "Wanamaker's" book department in Philadelphia said the Nixon book is moving "very slowly" perhaps "because people have gotten what they wanted to out of the newspapers." Many papers printed pre-publication excerpts over the past few weeks.
So the booksellers are getting industrious. Barnes & Noble cut the price in New York and Boston stores to $12.98 and $12.95 respectively. In the Washington area, Crown Books split the difference, selling "RN" for $12.97.
Jack Arstein, executive vice president of Grosset & Dunlap, which published "RN," said he is not worried about recouping the six-figure investment for hardcover rights.
"It's too early to say," Arstein said. "Depending on the location, we're getting spotty sales or very, very good sales."

ISU to acquire six tennis courts

BOISE (UPI) — The State Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council Tuesday appointed a Poncelet architectural firm to design an $850,000 tennis court project for Idaho State University.
The action to appoint Wallace-Hudson & Associates followed a heated discussion between Sen. Vernon Brassey, R-Boise, and Physical Plant Manager John Korbis. Brassey questioned the value of a report considering the project and Korbis said an architect is needed to proceed.
Six tennis courts at the school would be covered under preliminary proposals, with two converted to multipurpose courts. The project, approved by ISU students and the State Board of Education, would be funded through student fees.
"I'm not even sure if this is the direction we should take," said Brassey, who suggested the council consider building six more courts elsewhere. "I'd sure like to see some options on the courts."
Korbis disagreed. "All we're asking is to go out and appoint the architects to so we can get some designs on the project. We're not talking about going out and building the thing tomorrow."
One of Brassey's concerns was the proposed 25-foot height of the structure. He suggested moving it up to 30 feet, saying the facility should be higher to accommodate top-flight competition.
"I think that if ISU is going to build a facility it should be a good usable one," Brassey said. "And I think the information we have on it so far is sketchy and inadequate."
But Korbis said the project was approved for recreational purposes only and that the lower height would be adequate.
The action followed approval by the council of preliminary plans to build a $488,750 addition to the veterinary medical facilities at Caldwell and a $806,687 addition to the veterinary science facility at Moscow. Both projects would be built for the University of Idaho.
Architect for the projects is Dick Kelley. Financing is to come from a legislative appropriation, university funds, and a federal grant.

Stevenson to fill post

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Dr. Elizabeth Stevenson has been named acting Academic Vice President of the University of Idaho, president Richard Gibb announced.
Dr. Stevenson has been associated Dean of the University of Idaho College of Letters and Science.
She will fill the post while a national search is conducted to permanently fill the post vacated by Dr. Robert Coonrod.

Smoking pot bad for lungs

BOSTON (UPI) — Smoking marijuana regularly may prove to be as bad for your lungs as "moderate to heavy tobacco smoking," a Los Angeles physician reports.

Dr. Donald P. Tashkin of the UCLA School of Medicine told the annual meeting of the American Lung Association on Monday that "less than 20 percent of heavy marijuana smokers" run the risk of suffering chronic bronchitis and even emphysema.

Tashkin's comments were based on the test results of 74 male, regular marijuana smokers from the Los Angeles area who were solicited and paid to participate in the study through newspaper advertisements. He said they averaged five joints per "week" over a three-year period and were compared to a control group of the same number of non-marijuana users.

Some of the marijuana smokers were also tobacco smokers as were some in the non-marijuana smoking control group, he said. Tashkin said "under sensitive lung function tests" it was determined that marijuana led to a "significant decrement in respiratory function" and that marijuana "may cause more respiratory functional impairment than chronic tobacco smoking."

"People who do (smoke marijuana) over a long period of time are at risk of developing chronic lung disease," he said. "The fact that we did find something suggests cannabis may have a harmful effect."

"These changes in lung function are qualitatively similar to those attributable to moderate to heavy tobacco smoking over many years and suggest a potential for the development of chronic bronchitis and pulmonary emphysema in chronic, heavy marijuana smokers," he said.

Tashkin also said there is no evidence to suggest that marijuana smokers who get constant exercise run less risk of respiratory problems.

New system increases Medicaid benefits

BOISE (UPI) — Implementation of a new Medicaid management system has saved enough money to increase benefits for all Medicaid clients, especially the elderly, Gov. John V. Evans said Tuesday.

Evans said the estimated savings also will enable the Department of Health and Welfare to implement provisions approved by the Legislature to increase prescription drug allowance to $85 from $20 a month and the length of hospital stay per admission to 40 days from 20.

All of this, he said, comes one year in advance of the deadline set for it by the Legislature.

Evans said the department implemented a new, computerized system as part of a management program designed to help contain health care costs and ensure the best possible administration of the Medicaid program.

He said the agency also plans to develop a pilot program to reimburse psychologists in private practice for their services to Medicaid clients. That, too, he said, should help contain costs.

The three programs, he said, carry a total price tag of $746,000 a year.

"All of these adjustments will be made on a trial basis for one year and monitored to determine the impact on health care costs for the state," Evans said.

Number of farmers failing to qualify for credit rises

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A survey of lenders in areas hit hard by low crop prices and drought last year shows a sharp increase in the number of farmers who can't qualify for credit, the Agriculture Department says.

Most farmers, however, can still qualify for ample credit, the government survey indicates.

The report said a sample of 883 bankers surveyed in 12 states said about 3 percent of their 1977 borrowers would not qualify for short-term production loans this year, in normal years, the figure would be only 1 percent.

Farmers owed "Production-Credit" Associations said about 4 percent of their 1977 borrowers could not qualify for non-real estate credit this year compared with a normal rate of 2 percent.

The survey covered 17 percent of the banks and all 171 of the Production Credit Associations in 12 states hit hard by reduced income because of low grain prices during the past year. The states are Colorado, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Texas.

"No shortage of loan funds to the farm sector is evident. But marginal operators will continue to have problems getting credit and repaying outstanding loans," the report said.

"A small but significant number of borrowers ... cannot get loan funds from commercial sources," experts added.

Analysts studying the survey results said the number of farmers in trouble with banks and other lenders would have been much larger except for the fact that many producers were able to refinance debts to a longer-term, basis to reduce annual payments.

Banks said the number of borrowers refinancing short-term debt into real estate loans — in effect, dipping into the inflated cash value of farmland to make up for current production losses — rose from a normal 2 percent of borrowers to about 7 percent. At Production Credit Associations, the number rose from a normal 3 percent to 9 percent.

The farm income crunch shown in the report had earlier touched off widespread unrest among many producers and had given birth to the American Agriculture farm strike movement which is demanding drastic increases in government-guaranteed farm prices floors.

The survey showed that Texas and Georgia, two states in which farm strike leaders have been most active, had the highest percentages of farmers with credit trouble.

In Georgia, bankers said 12 percent of their borrowers could not qualify for non-real estate loans this year compared with a normal 2 percent. In Texas, 4 percent could not qualify compared with a normal 1 percent. In both cases, the ratio was well above the 3-1/2 figure for the 12-state surveyed area.

Also, the survey showed that among farmers who were being retained as bank and Production Credit Association credit users this year, the number who had reached their lending ceilings was about twice the normal level.

Analysts added that while the survey shows that money is "tight" for some farmers because of higher production costs and reduced crop prices, the price outlook is currently improving and most farmers are still able to get credit freely.

"In general, banks were optimistic about the quality of their farm loan portfolio," the Agriculture Department said. Nearly 75 percent of the bankers surveyed said the quality of their loans was as good as or better than a year earlier, although nearly half the Production Credit Associations said the quality of their loans had deteriorated, officials added.

As a sidelight, more than 85 percent of all bankers checked in the survey said the quality of their farm loans — meaning the prospect the loans would be repaid — was as good as or better than the quality of their non-farm loans.

Agriculture Department experts added that many of the price-pinched farmers who could not qualify for bank or PCA credit this year have been kept in business by credit from two government sources — the Agriculture Department's Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration.

Others may be kept afloat by new credit which will soon be available under legislation scheduled to get approval in Congress soon. The legislation includes provisions raising ceilings on Farmers Home Administration loans and providing $4 billion in new government-insured and guaranteed loans to refinance debts owed to bankers and other lenders.

Officials said the survey showed that through 1977 — a year of severe economic woe for many grain farmers and some livestock producers — bank deposits in the rural areas grew by 13 percent and farm loans grew 10 percent.

Some rural bankers felt a pinch as their farmer customers faced low prices. The report indicated. Compared to conditions earlier in the 1970's, bank loan-deposit ratios appeared high and banks in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Texas reported loan funds relatively tight.

Fines for grain firm recommended

DALLAS (UPI) — The federal government Tuesday recommended the Continental Grain Co. be fined more than $47,000 for "willful" and "serious" health and safety violations at a Westwego, La., grain plant that exploded last December killing 38 persons.

The Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration's penalties proposed were $40,000 for eight alleged willful violations, $7,500 for 10 serious violations and $100 for one of three violations in other or non-serious categories.

An OSHA official said Continental had 35 days to appeal or pay the fines. If Continental appealed, the case would be heard by the independent Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission.

The "willful" violations listed by OSHA included allegations Continental failed to exercise proper safety precautions while using compressed air to blow dust from around machines on the top floor of the grain company's headhouse.

The Dec. 22 explosion killed 38 workers. It was centered at the 250-foot headhouse, located along the Mississippi River five miles above New Orleans. The blast destroyed the headhouse and blew the tops off 43 silos at the $100 million grain complex.

Another violation alleged by OSHA was that Continental failed to provide "adequate means for removal of static electricity from the conveyor belts."

Grain dust is highly explosive and some investigators have said they thought the blast may have been set off by sparks from one of the conveyor belts used to shuttle grain from ships along the Mississippi River to the plant.

"Among the 10 alleged serious violations, four were cited under the National Electric Code," said an OSHA spokesman. "They included not providing proper current-breaking contacts; improper fittings and boxes where dust could enter; using unapproved electric spark-producing equipment; and no grounding for exposed non-current-carrying metal parts."

Director selected

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Wheat Growers Association has named former State Sen. Vince Nally its director, effective June 1.

Nally, who now lives in Boise and works for the state Department of Employment, represented Gem County in the Senate in the 1960s. He is a former rancher and has a degree in agricultural economics from the University of Idaho. He will receive $16,000 a year in his new post.

Effective bloat treatment for ruminants developed

By MARTY BECKER
Special for the Times-News

Recent developments in veterinary medicine have provided for effective treatment of bloat in ruminant animals.

Bloat is an excessive accumulation of gas in the rumen compartment of the ruminant stomach. Severe bloat causes extreme discomfort to the animal and is often fatal. Bloat occurs in all domestic ruminants, but is most frequently found in cows.

Although pasture bloat may occur at any time, it is of higher incidence in wet summers on clover-dominated pastures that are growing rapidly.

There are two kinds of bloat — primary and secondary. Primary bloat is caused by a number of obscure factors which cause stomach gas production which results in eructation or belching. Most authorities agree that bloat is caused by a failure of the eructation mechanism. Secondary bloat is caused by some solid object blocking the esophagus, also stretching of vagus nerve, or papillomas at the entrance of the esophagus into the stomach. Such items as corn cobs and potatoes can cause secondary bloat by lodging in the esophagus and obstructing eructation.

Cattle are especially prone to bloat when they graze in lush pastures with heavy growths of legumes. The primary cause of pasture bloat is a chemical change in the ingested food which forms a stable foam that prevents eructation. This frothing should be controlled by physical or chemical means in order to prevent bloat.

A livestockman can protect his animals against bloat by a variety of management practices, many of which are uncertain and subject to failure. Recommendations include:

- 1) Maintaining pastures that don't contain over 50 percent legumes.
  - 2) Practicing strip grazing that compels close or whole plant grazing.
  - 3) Feeding at least 10 pounds to the head of dry hay before permitting the grazing of legume-rich pastures.
- The prophylactic administration of either non-toxic surfactants such as poloxalene or non-toxic oils or fats. In the third case, oil or fat may be sprayed on the pastures if grazing is controlled. If grazing is uncontrolled, natural oil can be administered orally, painted on the animal's flanks where it will be licked off, or mixed with drinking water.
- Sometimes this year, veterinarians expect trial marketing of a product which may be effective in reducing bloat. The product employs anti-fothing agents which are implanted in the stomachs of animals subject to bloat. The anti-fothing agents are expected to be inexpensive. They can be administered like any bolus. The product is already being used widely in Australia.

At present, available treatments effective in controlling bloat consist of old standby remedies and a few new promising ones.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Not a good time to work out association or partnership arrangements with other persons. Do those things yourself! that require neat touch and precision. Wait until another day for conferring and making arrangements with other persons for a more harmonious relationship.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Partners are apt to huck where your ideas are concerned, so use diplomacy and they soon come around to your way of thinking. A situation arises that will need some time to straighten out. Don't act hastily.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Get-at-all-that-work ahead of you and don't be dependent on others and you accomplish a good deal. Remain poised so that you do not run your nervous system. Take it easy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Do not indulge in recreation that is too expensive for your pocketbook and show you are wise. Be more willing to cooperate with loved ones. Make life together more ideal.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Avoid a tendency to argue at home and try to establish greater harmony instead. Get rid of tension. Plan a trip that can bring good results, whether of a personal or business nature.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Use much care in driving, walking, since both you and others are apt to make mistakes. Use care in speaking also, since tempers incline to be short.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Be careful in handling financial affairs since you could make serious errors otherwise. Make improvements to real estate and other holdings so that you feel more secure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You feel dissatisfied and want to make new connections, change your way of living. Wait for a better day before getting started. Analyze financial position well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be careful in making loans or giving other favors, since they might not all be bona fide. Listen to advice given you by an intelligent friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Not a good day to see friends since they are preoccupied with their own affairs. Study fondest aims and how to best gain them. Have a plan for living.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): This is not a good day to get much done where credit matters are concerned, so postpone until tomorrow. Be alert to any changes within your community. Go along with the best of those.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You want to make radical changes, but think them over carefully before you take action. Get your work done in a more up-to-date fashion instead and get good results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Do what others expect of you and don't waste time foolishly. Try to please good friends more. Evening fine for personal happiness with loved ones.

Pretty popular still is the old notion that a man who swears his wife out before marriage tends to remain faithful to her later than a man who swears his wife out before marriage. The matrimonial researcher claims that studies have shown that the more promiscuous the bachelor, the more inclined he'll later be to commit adultery.

In death and destruction, World War I was seven times as large as the 901 other major wars that occurred before it. Since 500 B. C. and World War II was about four times as large as World War I. Or so the historians contend.

Was Calvin Coolidge who said, "Nobody ever listened himself out of a job."

CALAMITY, CATASTROPHE

Q. "What's the difference between a calamity and a catastrophe?"

A. Example: The "calamity" was Richard M. Nixon's resignation—"a state of deep distress caused by major misfortune or loss." The "catastrophe" was his pardon—"the final event of the dramatic action, especially of a tragedy."

Q. "Who's the world's highest paid pianist, if it's not Van Cliburn?"

A. Vladimir Horowitz. Cliburn comes in a distant second in this matter of money.

Q. "Who was the model for Uncle Sam in that famous 'I Want You' poster of World War I?"

A. The artist who designed the poster, James Montgomery Flagg.

Q. "What's the fastest insect?"

A. The botfly, probably. It hits 40 maybe 50 m.p.h.

BULLFIGHTS

In the Philippines, the bulls in a bullfight fight each other, not people with weapons. Those bulls stand head to head, lock horns, and push. The loser is the bull that eventually gives up and runs away. The winner, if he's a winner often enough, is rewarded with a second career, that of a sire. Big thing in the Philippines, that bullfighting.

First gold found in this country was turned up in North Carolina in 1799 by the young son of one John Reed. When the boy brought in the 17-pound nugget from Little Meadow Creek, he had made it in a day, and he sold it for its value. Three years later, a jeweler told Reed the nugget was gold, and shortly after Reed had asked price of $3,500 for it. The jeweler promptly recast it for $3,600. A mine was later developed on Reed's property.

Supersonics fuming over snub of Wilkens

SEATTLE (UPI) — Irritation over an "injustice" to their coach, Lenny Wilkens, could serve to fire up the Seattle Supersonics in Wednesday night's game six of their NBA playoff series with the Denver Nuggets.

But Sonics' owner Sam Schulman may have served to ignite another debate under Denver's David Thompson, one that Seattle doesn't need to irritate as the Sonics seek a victory which would put them into the NBA finals against Washington.

Sonics players were still fuming Tuesday over the failure of Wilkens to get the nod from "league sportswriters" and broadcasters as coach of the year. That honor went to Atlanta's Hubie Brown.

Marvin Webster, who became the Sonic center through a Wilkens-engineered trade, said, "The circumstances speak for themselves. We were like in an impossible situation to come back from."

"Atlanta the first part of the season started out winning. It wasn't like they came from a deficit."

Reserve forward Wally Walker, who also came to Seattle by way of a Wilkens trade, said:

"It's just unbelievable he's not coach of the year."

"When you think about the year we've had, it's an incredible sports story. When you see the kind of year we've had under Lenny, it makes you kind of wonder what criteria the writers are using."

Sonic forward Paul Silas, a long-time friend of Wilkens, admitted, "I'm kind of partial to Lenny," then added: "But I think Hubie did a good job with what he had to work with and where he came from. They made their choice. I'd probably have made a different choice, but I didn't have a vote."

Schulman also expressed indignation that Wilkens was not selected.

"No one in history has stepped in when a team was in the depths, the second-worst team, and done what he's done," the Sonics owner said.

Schulman's comments on Thompson's salary came when he said he and Wilkens had settled on an offer they will make to Webster, who becomes a free agent after the final Sonic playoff game.

He said the $4 million contract Denver gave Thompson was "judiciously fantastic" and Webster won't be offered anything resembling that amount.

Schulman said he and Wilkens "are going to give him (Webster) a darn good offer. Beyond that, we just can't get into the areas of salaries that Denver did with Thompson."

Stevenson whips Tubbs

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Teofil Stevenson, the two-time Olympic heavyweight champion from Cuba, registered a unanimous decision over Tony Tubbs of the United States Tuesday night in the quarterfinals of the world amateur boxing championships.

Stevenson was on the offensive throughout the fight against the retreating Tubbs, who was born in Cincinnati and now lives in Pasadena, Calif. Yugoslav fans booted the contest and the referee had to ask Stevenson and Tubbs to start fighting.

Stevenson, the defending world champion, will meet Carlos Rivera of Venezuela Thursday night in a semifinal bout. Rivera outpointed Ion Cernat of Romania in the quarterfinals.

Stevenson's victory continued the domination of the championships by Communist countries.

In a flyweight bout, Mike Felde of the U.S. was knocked down three times in his first round before his fight with Aleksandr Mikhaylov of the Soviet Union was stopped. Felde is from Missoula, Mont.

Results Confirm Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

And in detailed interviews conducted among current MERIT smokers?

Man composes $50 million song

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joe Brooks wrote a $50 million song and is cashing in on it to become a movie star.

Brooks composed "You Light Up My Life."

The ditty won this year's Oscar, Grammy and Golden Globe awards. Debby Boone's rendition ranked No. 1 on Billboard's pop chart for 13 weeks, an all-time record, and accounted for 5.3 million singles and albums of the total 7.8 million sales.

Brooks says his movie, "You Light Up My Life," grossed $23 million and the records have accounted for $30 million.

Not to recent memory has a one song done so much for one man, a gangly, likable 34-year-old New Yorker with a prominent nose, spectacles and a slight speech impediment. He's also a show business corner.

Brooks wrote, produced, directed, scored and composed the songs for "You Light Up My Life." He raised the money for it himself and wrote the advertising campaign — "A movie you'll always remember, a song you'll never forget."

"You Light Up My Life" was filmed in Los Angeles on weekends during a four-month period in the fall and winter of 1976 with Brooks commuting from New York. His leading lady, Didi Conn, was tied up in a television series and couldn't work during the week.

Once he'd completed the film, Brooks failed to interest any of the studios in the finished product. He was turned away by all the major record companies. The record executives didn't think "You Light Up My Life" would be commercial enough.

"I took the movie around to every studio," Brooks said. "Finally Columbia agreed to release it after two previews based on my ad campaign on television. "Believe me, I know about advertising. I've written hundreds of advertising jingles for television. I had 122 spots on the air at one time."

Brooks became a millionaire and something of a Madison Avenue legend after his conception of the "Pepsi Generation" campaign and music.

"I've written jingles for every soft drink, including Coke, Dr. Pepper, Canada Dry and the rest. I've done the same thing for airlines and hundreds of consumer products and services.

"All those jingles have made me extremely rich. The advertising people estimate $500 million has been spent on air time for my spots.

"I'd never written a hit song before "You Light Up My Life," but I like to think of all my jingles as hits."
