

Illegal livestock hauler keeps on truckin'

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dennis Adams of Rupert hauls cattle for a living. He hauls enough cattle each month, he says, to make payments on a new, $51,000 Kenworth tractor-trailer rig he recently purchased.

But Adams has a problem. He's not properly licensed with the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to haul livestock.

Adams recently applied for a permit, but his application was denied because other truckers in Magic Valley protested there is not enough business to warrant licensing of another livestock hauler in this area.

But in spite of the cease and desist order served against him, Adams continues to haul cattle from point to point in southern Idaho and continues to "infect" his truck payments.

"I just had to stay right in there, and keep hauling," Adams said Thursday at an IPUC hearing in Twin Falls. "I don't have a permit, but I have to make a living. You can't make enough on wages to meet truck payments."

While Adams continues to operate without a license, other licensed haulers in Magic Valley are getting hot under the collar because they say it is not fair for Adams to be able to work without a license when they must pay large sums to finance their own licenses.

Other unlicensed truckers like Adams are operating on Idaho highways, too, according to IPUC officials and some Magic Valley trucking firms. But Idaho's laws are not being enforced.

The IPUC is too short of manpower to enforce Idaho's motor carrier laws, according to IPUC officials.

And the manpower shortage is giving Idaho's unlicensed truckers almost free rein in southern Idaho unless they are stopped at checking stations.

"We only have six investigators authorized for the whole state," Jim Kincaid, director of the regulated carrier division of the IPUC, said. "With the number of carriers on the highways, it is impossible for them to contact them all."

Magic Valley IPUC investigator Ken Baer of Twin Falls said his department is "definitely" understaffed.

Baer said he thinks the staff should be tripled to handle the work-load in the eight-county Magic Valley area.

"I am leaving the commission. It is understaffed," Baer said. "They are not doing the job that can be done. And they don't pay enough."

Part of the problem is a lack of funding from the 1978 Idaho legislature.

Because of the lack of funds and manpower, Baer says the commission operates on a "crisis management" basis instead of formulating a workable plan for law enforcement and carrying it out.

"Our laws are strict enough," Baer said. "What we need is stricter enforcement. When you have an organization like that, you have to have a plan of action."

Currently licensed truckers like Marvin Huyser, a Shoshone livestock hauler, agree with Baer.

Huyser complained at the recent IPUC hearing that unlicensed truckers like Adams continue to operate with impunity in Magic Valley no one enforces Idaho's motor carrier laws and does not impose penalties.

Huyser argued the 47 licensed trucks within a 50-mile radius of Twin Falls and others nearby can handle the demands of the demands of Idaho livestock producers, and that Adams and others make it tough for the licensed truckers to make a living.

Huyser's truck said Adams at our of this last 120 days. He charged Adams continued to operate without a license and infringing on business Huyser might otherwise have been able to handle.

Roger Wagner of Wagner of Wagner Livestock trucking in Twin Falls concurred with Huyser's criticism of the IPUC.

"I don't know as they do anything to them after they catch them," Wagner said. "I don't fear of any case on it. What good is the authority if they don't use it."

"Adams just continues to operate," Huyser concurred. "He just keeps running up and down the highway and nothing is done to stop him. These illegal operators cut the rates."

The IPUC's Kincaid, when questioned about the lack of enforcement of motor carrier laws, said the only way the IPUC can enforce a law is if an illegal trucker is caught in the act.

And he said there are not enough investigators to catch the illegal haulers.

"A lot of the illegal haulers are operating at night," Kincaid explained. "It would take a 24-hour staff to do it."

Adams was reportedly cited about two weeks ago at the Bliss weigh station for operating without a permit, but had not appeared in court for his violation.

BURNT-OUT HELICOPTERS ON AIRSTRIP IN KOLWEZI, ZAIRE, AFTER FIERCE FIGHTING HAD RECAPTURED AIRPORT

Legionnaires paratroop to Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — Hundreds of French Foreign Legion paratroopers dropped into the embattled Zaire-mining center of Kolwezi today to rescue 3,000 trapped foreigners from rebels who Zaire said had ordered a massacre of their white hostages.

Zaire Foreign Minister Umba di Lutete said messages intercepted by his government showed that Gen. Walibaud M'Bumba, commander of the rebel forces, had given the order to kill Europeans after it became apparent his invasion was doomed to failure.

The French government announced that paratroopers of the 2nd Foreign Legion Regiment jumped into the heart of Kolwezi as Zaire air force Mirage jet fighters suppressed rebel ground fire.

"I understand M'Bumba has ordered his men to kill as many Europeans as they can and to destroy all possible economic objectives in a region which represents a quarter of the economic potential of my country," Umba said.

In Washington, U.S. government officials said Air Force C-119s were en route to Zaire today with fuel supplies for French and Belgian airborne rescue operations in the Kolwezi area.

The officials said the U.S. planes would land at the airfield in Kamina, about 130 miles north of Kolwezi, with rubber bladders carrying aircraft fuel for the operations to rescue whites trapped in the Shaba province fighting.

Sources said about a dozen Air Force personnel would probably remain on the ground at the Kamina airfield to handle refueling operations.

A Pentagon spokesman said that stand-down orders had gone to Fort Bragg, N.C., for the 1,500 paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division, on alert since Wednesday.

Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans said in Brussels the French parachuted into Kolwezi beginning at 8:45 a.m. EDT and said he had been informed prior to the action.

In Lusaka, Zambia, diplomatic sources said some 700 French paratroopers were dropped over the European residential area of Kolwezi this morning and were securing a route to the airport, which was recaptured by Zairean troops two days ago.

An official French announcement said the French troops were parachuted into the center of Kolwezi to rescue foreign residents and "re-establish security" in the rebel held city. A presidential spokesman said the troops will remain in Kolwezi until Zairean authorities can assure control of the area.

A Zaire radio broadcast reported in Washington the leader of the invasion forces had called for the destruction of the mining facility in Kolwezi and the "beheading" of the white population.

In Brussels U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown said the United States may provide limited logistic support for the rescue operation, but added: "We have no combat forces planned to go in there."

"We are willing to consider support with our aircraft—capacity—to carry fuel for example," Brown said. "Beyond that our involvement does not go."

In Paris, a French presidential spokesman announced that French Foreign Legion paratroopers had gone into action in Zaire's revolt-torn Shaba province to "save the lives of the foreign citizens."

Belgium and France started ferrying paratroopers to Africa Thursday. The operation had been prepared in close consultation with the United States and Britain.

In London, Britain announced it would send four Royal Air Force planes equipped with medical facilities to Lusaka, to help in the rescue in an "entirely humanitarian" move.

Diplomatic reports in Kinshasa said fighting started again in Kolwezi during the night and one diplomat said the situation can fairly be described as "grave" in Zaire's mining center.

Frog hop under fire

LANGELOS CAMP, Calif. (UPI) — They're hopping mad in Calaveras County—the Inmanak love their frogs and take them seriously.

The ire of the citizenry in this one-time mother lode community was stirred by a statement from the Fund For Animals charging that frogs are mistreated at the Calaveras County Fair and Jumping Frog Jubilee.

Those are fighting words in parts where frog jumps once helped assuage boredom in the Gold-Rush days and later became immortalized in Mark Twain's short story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

The 50th annual jump will be held this weekend and some 40,000 persons are expected to crowd into the Sierra foothills to witness the event. But the Fund for Animals says there is a darker side to the doings.

"During the contests the frogs are jumped at, kicked at and yelled at to make them jump farther," the fund said. "Frogs sometimes die during the four days of the event from the heat, not being kept wet and the trauma of the contest."

A local officer went so far as to charge the frogs were eaten or maltreated. The fund is a Washington-based ecology group whose letterhead lists such officers as Mary Tyler Moore, Princess Grace of Monaco and author Cleveland Amory.

Thoroughbred horses die in Ohio stable fire

CINCINNATI (UPI) — At least 25 thoroughbred horses died in a fire at River Downs race track early today. Twenty-three of the horses burned to death and two had to be killed because of injuries.

Three barns, valued at about $200,000, were also destroyed by the blaze which was believed to have been started by a short circuit in an electrical wire, authorities said.

"The property damage in the three barns that we lost, numbers 52, 53 and 54, was total. They all burned to the ground," said Larry Collegen, assistant manager of the track. "Personal injuries were very minor. There were some minor burns here and there to people trying to get some of the horses out of their stalls."

California study results

Cervical cancer linked to pill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Preliminary results of a large California study suggest a possible association between long-term use of the birth control pill and cervical cancer.

But the co-director of the study said the findings are confounded by uncertainty of the role that a woman's sexual behavior had in development of the 25 cases of cancer of the cervix that were detected.

The results, she said, were not sufficient to warrant a warning to pill takers.

Dr. Savitri Ramcharan of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center, Walnut Creek, Calif., reported the study's preliminary results Thursday at a meeting sponsored by the consumer-oriented Health Research Group.

Previous research has linked cervical cancer and sexual behavior, especially a woman's age at first intercourse and the number of her sexual partners. Dr. Ramcharan said in an attempt to clarify the issue her research team is now trying to compare the histories of pill takers and those in the study who have not used the pill.

Preliminary results from this study suggest that sexual behavior may account for some but not all of the difference," she said.

The results, which were published in the January issue of the American Journal of Epidemiology, showed that cancer of the cervix was three to five times more common in women who had used oral contraceptives for more than four years than in women who had never used them.

All but one of the cases of cervical cancer detected in the study were at a very early stage of development, easily detected by a Pap smear and easily cured. Dr. Ramcharan called it a "very mild disease."

She said the number of cases of cervical cancer in women who took the pill more than four years figured out as 173 cases per 100,000 person-years of follow-up study. For non-pill takers, the number was 32 per 100,000 person-years.

The study of more than 15,000 women is one of the largest and most comprehensive examinations of the side effects of oral contraceptives in the United States. The research was sponsored by the National Institutes of Health.

Human rights activists urge campaign for Orlov

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet human rights activists, outraged and frightened by the harsh sentence given dissident scientist Yuri Orlov for "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," have called for an international campaign on his behalf.

The call for support coincided with strong condemnations by the United States and other Western nations of the sentence and the conduct of Orlov's trial.

Orlov, 53, a nuclear physicist and a founder of the dissident group monitoring Soviet compliance the 1975 Helsinki accords on human rights, Thursday was sentenced to the maximum penalty — seven years in prison and five years of internal exile.

Orlov's trial was expected to set the tone for proceedings against two other founding members of the Helsinki group arrested with Orlov more than a year ago.

Alexander Ginzburg faces a charge similar to Orlov's, but could be imprisoned for up to 10 years because of a previous conviction.

Orlov's Helsinki group is under investigation for the capital crime of treason.

Orlov's Helsinki group issued a statement saying the trials of Orlov and other members "are directly linked not only to the problem of human rights but to the problem of relaxation of international tensions as well."

"We call on the governments and states of countries which signed the Helsinki agreement as well as on private people ... to stand in defense of Yuri Orlov, in defense of the Helsinki movement, thus defending the Helsinki act itself."

In Washington, White House spokesman Jody Powell said President Carter was "deeply concerned" about Orlov's conviction and had conferred with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance about it.

The House of Representatives passed a "sense of Congress" resolution condemning the trial and the State Department hinted it could affect U.S.-Soviet relations.

In New York, a group representing more than 200 professors from 29 law schools from around the country denounced the sentence in a letter to the Soviet Embassy in Washington and the Soviet Mission in New York.

"We had hoped," the statement said, "that developments such as the Helsinki Agreement and the new Soviet Constitution suggested a growing respect for the rule of the law and individual rights in the Soviet Union."

British Prime Minister James Callaghan said the sentence was "unjustified and the Canadian Parliament deplored the trial and 'extremely severe sentence.'" France issued its strongest criticism of Soviet human rights policies.

During his four-day trial, Orlov was not permitted to present character witnesses in his defense, cross-examine prosecution witnesses or defend the contents of documents issued by the Helsinki group, his family said.

He was jeered and heckled by spectators who shouted after the sentencing, "They should have given you more."

His wife, Irina, 33, and two sons by a previous marriage — Dmitri, 25, and Alexander, 23 — were the only Orlov supporters allowed into the courtroom.

End-to-war note gets a rejection from Cambodia

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Cambodia has rejected a "desperate" Vietnamese diplomatic note asking for negotiations to end their bloody border war, official Radio Hanoi said Tuesday.

The delayed Vietnamese disclosure of the diplomatic rebuff — which occurred April 10 — came amid reports of a military escalation on the battlefield.

Hanoi Radio said the diplomatic note was sent by Vietnam's Vice Premier and Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh to Cambodian Foreign Minister Ieng Sary. The note was rejected by Ieng Sary, the radio said.

The note, the first government-to-government contact between the two Southeast Asian communist nations since the Vietnamese ambassador was expelled from Cambodia Jan. 7, was relayed through Laos where both countries have embassies.

An official Vietnamese commentary termed the rejection "regrettable" and said the note "truly confirms the desperation of the people of Vietnam."

Western diplomatic sources in Bangkok reported stepped up fighting with more sophisticated weapons along the 500-mile Vietnam-Cambodia border.

Included were the first reports of Cambodian use of armored vehicles against Vietnamese forces. China is the only nation known to be supplying weapons to Cambodia.

Vietnam was reported using captured American A-1 fighter bombers in recent border battles.

Some reports suggested Vietnam has swung over to the offensive after several weeks of trying to ward off small guerrilla-style attacks from Cambodia.

The conflict has flared intermittently since the communist victories in Vietnam and Cambodia three years ago but was admitted publicly only last Dec. 31 when Cambodia broke relations with the firm and accused it of a large scale invasion of Cambodian territory.

Since then Vietnamese troops have withdrawn under heavy pressure to the border line where both sides have apparently launched bloody cross-border attacks, often against civilians.

Vietnam has called for negotiations, but Cambodia has repeatedly rejected the public demands saying the only problem was Vietnam's desire to swallow the Cambodian nation.

Six-month sentence given Hanchu Kim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — South Korean businessman Hanchu Kim today was sentenced to spend six months in prison for conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government and for lying to a federal grand jury in denying he received $600,000 from a Korean intelligence agency.

Kim is the second man to be sentenced in connection with the investigation into alleged South Korean spy activities to U.S. office holders. The first, former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., is serving a 6 to 30-month sentence at the Maxwell Air Force Base military installation after his conviction on conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Flannery sentenced Kim to three years concurrently on the two charges, then suspended all but six months. Flannery said Kim would spend the three years on federal probation.

Kim was convicted of lying to the grand jury when he denied he received the $600,000 in cash on two congressional aid senators in an effort to win favor on Capitol Hill for South Korea.

Carter calls for help

By VERNON A. GUDRY JR. Washington Star

WASHINGTON — President Carter's White House staff shakeup apparently has been completed — for the most part by drawing on longtime, trusted aides who have helped him over his past troubles.

The White House Thursday announced that Gerald Rofshoon, the man who handled the advertising for all of Carter's campaigns since 1966, was being put back on the account.

Another outsider, Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., dean of big city mayors, is considering an offer to join the White House staff.

Powell said he will retain his daily contact with the press while Rofshoon will take over long-range planning and coordination of administration efforts to put its programs across from the presidential desk through the sub-cabinet levels.

Powell last fall had announced that his deputy, Rex Gramus, would take over more of the daily duties of press secretary so that he (Powell) could do more of the kind of work Rofshoon will take on.

Powell, however, did not relinquish any of his daily responsibility and he acknowledged Thursday that there had been failures in the administration's attempts to get its programs and accomplishments across to the public.

Carter's approval rating has dropped dramatically in public opinion polls and Powell used an element of those polls to illustrate the problem—the White House is trying to correct.

He said that since Carter took office there has been a substantial improvement, two percentage points' worth, in the nation's unemployment. Yet, he went on, the polls record that only 30 percent of the public gives Carter good marks for easing unemployment.

"We simply have not done a good job," Powell said.

In addition to long-range planning and coordination duties, Rofshoon will take over from Powell the White House speech-writing operation, the office that handles advance arrangements for the press during presidential travel and the office that deals with television news on a technical and logistics level.

House appointments secretary to presidential assistant to handle party liaison and personnel.

The only relative outsider brought into the White House in a senior post (but recently was Anne Wexler, a highly regarded, throughgoing political field general who had been working at the Commerce Department.

Another outsider, Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., dean of big city mayors, is considering an offer to join the White House staff.

Son of LBJ press aid held for teacher killing

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The 13-year-old son of former presidential press secretary George Christian is being held by juvenile authorities for allegedly shooting and killing his junior high school English teacher in front of a crowded classroom.

Police said John Daniel Christian, described as an honor roll student, walked into the class Thursday with a semi-automatic rifle, said something to Wilbur Rodney Grayson and then fired — three times — blowing the 29-year-old teacher off the stool he was sitting on.

"The game is up," several of the 30 students in the class quoted Christian as saying.

One student, however, told police those words were spoken by Grayson in response to something Christian had said and were an attempt to have the boy put the weapon down.

Following the shooting, the boy fled from the classroom and dropped the rifle by a bike rack outside the building, but was captured by physical education teacher Larry Schrippl as he ran across a field.

"I shot Mr. Grayson," Schrippl quoted Christian as saying as he was bringing the boy back.

"The teacher was sitting on a stool conducting class," Police Lt. Freddie Maxwell said.

"Christian walked in the door and pointed the rifle at him. The teacher didn't take it seriously. He said something and the boy shot him."

Officials said Grayson was shot in the head, chest and right arm with a 22 semi-automatic rifle.

District Judge Hume Cofer ordered Christian, whose father served under President Lyndon Johnson, held pending a hearing in the death. Authorities said he was too young to be certified for trial as an adult.

Police said Christian sobbed when his mother, Jo Ann, asked him why he shot the teacher, but refused to explain the shooting.

Three classmates, however, told a reporter the strange student was upset at a falling grade the teacher recently gave him.

The boy's father, currently a public relations consultant to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, was shaken when he appeared with his son at the police station arraignment and juvenile court detention hearing.

The teen-ager, wearing a flannel shirt, jeans and jogging shoes, said nothing during the session. Assistant District Attorney Jackie Strassman said the maximum punishment Christian could receive if he was found to be a juvenile delinquent would be commitment to the Texas Youth Council until age 18. At age 18 he would be set free under Texas law.

Final attempt

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jean Little, the 34-year-old black fugitive who attracted national attention during her trial and acquittal for the murder of a white prison guard, today makes a last-ditch effort to flight her extradition to North Carolina.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A jet carrying three Saudi Arabian student pilots on their last training flight collided Thursday with a plane taking a student on his first lesson, killing all six occupants of the two aircraft.

It was not immediately known if student pilots were at the controls of the Falcon jet and the single-engine, propeller-driven Cessna 150 when they collided in a fiery ball over Memphis Airport.

Jack Barker, of the Atlanta office of the Federal Aviation Administration, said the Falcon jet carried a flight instructor in addition to the Saudi students. The instructor, identified as John Mitchell of Memphis, was listed as pilot of the jet.

Authorities identified the occupants of the Cessna as Danny Conway, 28, an FAA air traffic controller and flight instructor, and Steve Norman, 22, who was taking his first flight lesson. Both were from Memphis.

The identities of the Saudi Arabians were not revealed. Airport sources said the Saudi Arabians were on their last flight prior to being rated as Falcon jet pilots and had been photographed before takeoff to commemorate the occasion.

For the last two years the Saudi government has sponsored a program at the Memphis airport to train its students in flying the Falcon jet.

Barker said the French-made Falcon jet was making "practice instrument landing approaches." He said the plane had pulled up from a runway at the airport shortly before the two planes collided at an altitude of 2,000 feet at 1:10 p.m. EDT.

"The Falcon had just made an approach and pulled off runway 17 right headed south and banked to the west while the Cessna was making a preliminary landing approach headed east for a different runway when the collision occurred," Barker said.

"The control tower had contact with the two planes up until the time of the crash, but it's too early to say what brought about the collision," he said.

Put in isolation cell

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The first woman sentenced to die in Alabama in more than two decades today was placed in a special isolation cell at Julia Tutwiler Prison while her husband awaited execution of Holman Prison.

Debra Bracelwell, 18, was separated from the other inmates on arrival at Alabama's only prison for women. Her 27-year-old husband, Charles, has been on the more traditional death row at Holman Prison since April 10.

The Bracelwells were convicted of murder for the robbery and slaying of grocer Rex Carnely. Circuit Judge Murland Smith ruled Wednesday to reduce Mrs. Carnely's sentence and set her execution for July 7, but an appeal was automatic.

Smith said arguments for clemency rested on Mrs. Bracelwell's age — she was 17 when Carnely was slain — and on possible domination by her husband, but he said there was insufficient evidence that she acted, under Bracelwell's influence.

"She will be placed in the segregation cell with instructions that she is to have no contact with anybody except corrections personnel," said Board of Corrections spokeswoman Ashley Williams. "There shouldn't be any problems at all."

Julia Rhonda Bell Martin was executed in 1957 for a murder in Montgomery County. She was only the third woman to die in the electric chair since the Board of Corrections starting keeping records on capital punishment cases in 1927.

Alabama's last execution was in 1965 when William F. Bowen Jr. was put to death for a murder conviction from Madison County. Earle Denison and Silena Gilmore preceded Mrs. Martin as the other two women electrocuted.

Republican candidates key on property taxes

BOISE (UPI) — There is little doubt among Republican candidates for governor that property taxes are a top concern during this election year.

And six of the seven candidates who showed up at Thursday's Idaho Press Club luncheon agreed something should be done about property taxes.

But the rest was not as easy as they tried to explain their thoughts on the proposed 1 percent property tax initiative and how property tax relief can best be obtained.

"It is a primary concern of Idaho when the Legislature went into session," said C.L. "Butch" Otter. "But the Legislature failed to respond. I think the good Lord that the people are responding (with the proposed 1 percent initiative). I hope it gets on the ballot. At least now Governor Evans will never again say he doesn't know what the people want."

Allen Larsen agreed. "I'm pleased the people are doing things at the grass roots level," he said. "I think it's proper the people have spoken out against property taxes and that good will come of it."

But Larry Jackson said he cannot support the initiative, calling it a "simplistic response to a complex issue."

"The problem is not going to be resolved by a simple limitation on property taxes," he said. "But I think it will cause the next governor and Legislature to offer an alternalive."

James Crowe said one way to achieve lower property taxes is to place a lid on state government expenses.

"Any money saved should go back into the general fund to improve property taxes," he said. He also said he supports zero-based budgeting.

Jackson said he would reduce the obligation of local property to government services and that "there has to be a local tax response to a unique situation in the school districts."

"The Legislature has preoccupied itself with reform but nothing was accomplished. But that doesn't mean there can't be."

Larsen disagreed with Jackson, saying "I don't agree that we did nothing in the last session. Our plan is to hold down state government and to transfer state revenues."

Every candidate, except Beverly Shepard, who has not yet been asked, has pledged to support the Republican winner of the Aug. 8 primary. And Larsen said the group should pledge "not to cut themselves up" during the campaign.

"I have confidence that we won't," he said. Otter was more optimistic. "I don't think (the Republicans) have a candidate weaker than Evans," he said.

Crowe urged "all the candidates to march and campaign together with one thing in mind — winning the election."

Rain threatens Wyoming dam

BIG HORN, Wyo. (UPI) — About 250 persons were evacuated from the town of Big Horn, Wyo., Thursday afternoon after two days of heavy rains threatened to break a dam on Jackson Creek, immediately above the town.

The evacuation was the largest single move of residents from areas of north-central Wyoming, which weather forecasters say had not felt the peak of the spring storm which hit the state with snow and rains this week, when dam on the Bell Poudre River in northeastern Wyoming gave way, swelling the river as it headed toward the downstream town of Moorcroft.

However, Campbell County officials predicted that if the river were to exceed its banks, waters would be absorbed by the largely unoccupied prairie and range land before reaching Moorcroft.

No damage or injuries were reported.

The National Weather Service issued flood warnings for the east slopes of the Big Horn Mountains and a flood watch elsewhere in northeastern Wyoming and the Big Horn Basin.

Highway crews Thursday dug out from heavy, wet snowfalls around the state, part of another spring storm that caused other Wyomingites — mainly in north-central Wyoming — to leave their flooded homes.

Families located throughout Sheridan County were evacuated in the face of waters 2-3 feet above normal levels. Sheriff Bill Johnson reported several county bridges washed out and roads closed.

At Kaycee several inches of water running through the streets closed six businesses, Johnson County Sheriff Gene Netzer said.

"They're sandbagging the doors to try to keep the water out, and they're raising the stuff off the floor as fast as they can," Netzer said. At the Hole-in-the-Wall Bar at Kaycee, a customer reported the town was "pretty much shut down" because of the water.

"We've got a helluva lot of it here," she said.

At Ranchester in Sheridan County, sheriff's deputies asked "about a dozen" families to leave, Johnson said.

The rest of the small town northeast of Sheridan was told Thursday afternoon to prepare to leave.

Johnson said the foundation of one Ranchester house collapsed because of "waterlogged ground."

Four firms oppose crude oil pipeline

SEATTLE (UPI) — Four pipeline firms which are about to build the "Alaska" natural gas pipeline from Alaska to the United States proposed Thursday that a new crude oil pipeline be constructed parallel to the natural gas line.

Robert Blatz, representing the four companies, made the proposal at a federal hearing in Seattle.

He told a Department of Energy panel the proposed line could hook into the trans-Alaska oil pipeline near Fairbanks and follow the Alcan Highway to Alberta.

The line could link with existing pipeline systems near Edmonton. The existing systems feed Northern Tier and Midwest refineries.

Revenue drops

Financial problems for Intermountain Gas

BOISE (UPI) — Intermountain Gas Co. is in the midst of a financial crisis. The Idaho Statesman reported in a copyright story today.

The newspaper said the gas company's problems were brought about by a drop in revenue from gas sales and by losses suffered from its retail gas-appliance division. It said the company's earnings during the 12 months ended March 31 amounted to 11 cents per share of common stock compared with $3.07 per share for the same period a year earlier.

"We're not doing very well," the newspaper quoted Intermountain President R. Dean Grimm.

During the 12-month period, the newspaper said, Intermountain's gas-sales revenue was down $13 million and losses totaled $704,000. It said the losses came through the operation and liquidation of HomeGuard Systems, a retail gas appliance division the board of directors decided last January to phase out.

William C. Glynn, vice president and treasurer of the company, said earnings have fallen to the point where Intermountain will have to dip into retained earnings if the board of directors declares a common stock dividend. The company has $11.9 million in retained earnings and can use up to $4 million of it to make dividend payments.

BLM slates land hearing

BOISE (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management announced Monday a May 31 hearing in Boise on the transfer of more than 27,000 acres of BLM-managed federal land to the state of Idaho.

The BLM said all the lands applied for by the state under the 1890 Admissions Act are forested land and are scattered throughout Idaho.

Dean Bibbes, Boise district manager for the bureau, said the land selected by the state amounts to 153 acres more than entitled to the state.

Planes deal didn't promote peace

NEW YORK — We will see now what President Carter, President Sadat and the Royal Family in Saudi Arabia do with their so-called "victory" on the Middle East planes deal. The dangers of "victory" now are very real. Actually, there was no "victory" for anybody on the central question of a general peace settlement in the Middle East, but merely a temporary tactical adjustment of political forces in Washington on the side issue of these particular planes, at this particular time, to three particular countries.

The mood of this country and even of the Senate. Three years ago, in a different controversy between Jerusalem and Washington, 76 United States senators warned President Ford and Secretary Kissinger not to put too much pressure on Israel — making Kissinger wonder who was in charge of the foreign policy of this country. But the mood is different now, and Carter is very different.

There is really no resentment there against Israel. The debate on the planes is regarded by Carter as an unfortunate intrusion into the peace process, though in a way he forced it by his promise to the Saudis early this year. Even at the end of the debate on the planes in the Senate, it was not made quite clear what really divided Washington and Jerusalem. The military question was important, mainly the assumption that a negotiated general settlement or compromise was impossible.

Jordanian front, the Syrian front, the Iraqi front, and the Palestinian guerrillas operating out of Lebanon.

What this really troubled the Israelis primarily, however, was not even the addition of a "fifth front," but the loss of their "special relationship" with the United States. The Israelis, not unreasonably, are acting like a rejected lover. Washington is saying it will always be faithful but is interested in others, and "let's be friends."

Washington is also saying, we know this hurts, but it's in Israel's best interests because this new "friendship" with the moderate Arabs is the way to make peace. For now we can talk to President Sadat and King Hussein and the Saudis in different terms and get the "peace process" going again.

Israeli officials here say Begin is ready for this, despite the vote in the Senate, but much depends on whether Carter is able to get Sadat back to the negotiating table.

Regulations needed for daycare centers

Delphia Dotson cares for other people's children in her home and gets paid to do it. In fact, the child care is her major source of income.

But the woman recently has tangled with the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare because she isn't licensed to run a daycare center.

State health and welfare regulations require women like Delphia Dotson to get a license to care for children.

A daycare license doesn't cost anything. But some provisions of the licensing procedure could preclude some babysitting services from obtaining the license.

For example, a woman like Mrs. Dotson who cares for up to 14 children at a time, is required by state law to have 35 square feet of inside space for each child in her care and another 75 feet of outdoor space to qualify for a license.

Mrs. Dotson also should have a fenced yard and an outside babysitter to watch so many young ones, health and welfare regulations suggest.

And, if she ever plans to care for more than 15 children, Mrs. Dotson would be required to have a second bathroom and sink in her home.

Benign and legitimate as these regulations appear, they have created a problem for Mrs. Dotson.

She claims the licensing regulations, if enforced, will put her out of the child care business — the only business she knows.

The woman argues she is too poor to fence her yard or buy a bigger house for the care of the children.

And, because of poor health, she pleads for mercy from health and welfare, saying she cannot do anything else but babysit and will be forced to go on welfare if the daycare regulations are enforced and she is ordered not to care for children.

Mrs. Dotson's plight is indeed a sad one. But rather than plead for a special exemption from the daycare licensing regulations, the Twin Falls woman could pursue a number of other options.

First, she could charge more for the children she cares for, explaining to parents she has to fence her yard, perhaps add a bathroom and otherwise comply with the state regulations.

If the parents were pleased with her performance as a babysitter they probably would comply with the raise without much fuss. Perhaps Mrs. Dotson could lower her rates again after the work on her house was done.

Or, the woman could approach some charitable organizations in Twin Falls for financial help in getting her house in order, including, perhaps, the Southern Idaho Day Care Co., a group of daycare operators in southern Idaho.

If she sincerely wants to run a decent daycare center, Mrs. Dotson, and other non-licensed daycare operators in Magic Valley, cannot simply call the Department of Health and Welfare daycare regulations capricious and arbitrary.

The regulations, modest compared to those in many states, are designed to give working mothers and fathers some assurance their children are being adequately tended.

That goal requires some regulations. Those who refuse to be regulated cast doubt upon their interest in providing quality care of children.

Berry's World

"The reason my clothes look like I slept in them is because it's the latest fashion — and I did!"

JAMES RESTON

Nothing could destroy the "peace process" started by Sadat at the Knesset in Jerusalem quicker than any other "blow" by Cairo, Riyadh and Amman to interpret the Senate vote as a rebuke to Israel and a major switch of U.S. policy in favor of the "moderate Arabs."

There is something to this theory, but not much. Carter did feel that, if the vote on the planes went against him, his control over the foreign policy of the United States would have been gravely weakened, not only in the Middle East but in Europe, Moscow, Peking and Africa.

This is quite different, however, from assuming that the president and the Senate have made a fundamental reappraisal of their relations with the state of Israel. Defeat of Carter on this issue would have been a major strategic and political event of world-wide importance, but the vote in favor of his proposal — this very limited question merely revives the question of talking peace again and bringing Sadat back to the negotiating table.

Accordingly, it will be interesting to see how Sadat reacts personally to all this. If he goes back to the philosophy of his Knesset speech, there might be a chance of a step-by-step compromise of the West Bank and Palestinian questions, but it is hard to think there has been a fundamental change in Washington, with Jimmy Carter and the Senate on his side against the Israelis, he will misjudge the whole debate in the Senate and lose the particular personal magic he brought toward peace.

This is not a time to put more pressure on the Israelis. Prime Minister Begin has misjudged

Out of touch with real life

Washington suffers from un-real estate

WASHINGTON — Last week after a bill of unseemly wrangling over small change — a piddly $3.15 billion — the House finally approved a target federal budget of $50.9 billion for fiscal 1979.

Now, there are places in the country where $500,000,000,000.00 seems like Serious Money. There are places in the country where $500,000,000,000.00 is being discussed at great length.

They are talking about it in Kansas, for example, where the word "budget" is normally applied to the price of iceberg lettuce. They are talking about it in Illinois, where the word "deficit" means "debt," which means creepy calls from collection agents who tend not to believe that the check is in the mail.

They are people chatting about these billions in our Nation's Capitol? You ask, I answer: The major subject of conversation I heard here the day the target figure was approved can be written with two little words: Housing Costs.

While 80 percent of the population of this town could not guess how many pennies there are in the HEW Jar, 99.9 percent of the people seem to know that a seven-foot-wide house in Georgetown own sold this spring for $111,000. So, like a lot of other visitors, I've become convinced that if Washington seems out of touch with Real Life, you can blame it on Real Estate. When the average Georgetown writer hears home complaining that he cannot find a decent house

Washington has finally become the winner of its own Golden Pleece Award and the rest of us are losers.

This is the city where street vendors sell quiche Lorraine, where a YMCA membership costs $20, where nursery school for a 3-year-old can run $875 a year, and where a gallon of gas can cost 80 cents.

Never mind all the reports that Washingtonians have the highest disposable income of any of the top ten metropolitan areas. The point is that their income is more quickly disposed of here.

In the pre-Unreal Estate days, an out-of-towner could go to a party here where everyone would be speaking in the foreign language of numbers and initials. You could spend a whole evening wondering how the "Bile III" was doing with "HR 460" at the EOB. Nowadays, however, you can spend the evening both comprehending and undressed.

This city that used to be dowdy is now living up, not to the Joneses, but to the property values. It is difficult, after all, to wear $295 blue jeans in a $100,000 house, and impossible to shop at Penney's with such an impressive mortgage.

Furthermore, this city may have more working wives than any of the other ten major metropolitan areas. But half of these wives are working for their real estate while the other half are working in real estate.

Washington in 1978 reminds me of New York in 1968. This is where people are coming to hustle. The difference is that most people come to Washington to make it and leave it. They want to turn over everything, from their house to themselves, at a quick profit. So the obsession here is with the real estate market instead of the stock market.

But this is where the government sits and sleeps and votes and stores its sense of values. People here are so busy tabulating the rising rate of real estate at 20 to 40 percent a year that they can hardly understand the screams coming from the rest of the country about rates of inflation on anything else. And when a house here sells at auction one day for $350,000 and then sells again two weeks later for $50,000, who's so worried about the federal budget?

You see, in Washington, D.C., $500.9 billion sounds like just another down payment. © The Boston Globe

Turn about's fair play

FBI agents defend 'questionable' tactics

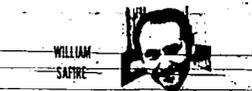

WASHINGTON — The ill-considered decision of the Carter administration to prosecute former FBI officials, and to discipline present FBI agents, for using questionable but long-tolerated investigative techniques in order to stop the terrorist bombers of the Weather Underground, has begun to backfire.

The accused lawmen and threatened agents have refused to cop the plea offered them; they will not plead to a misdemeanor and take a suspended sentence. On principle, they say they operated within then-recognized guidelines in upholding public safety, and that current operations of the Justice Department are not that much different today.

What worries Justice most is the accused officials' right to "discovery" — finding out about past and current practices similar to those they are accused of — which would then be taken before a jury in open court.

For nearly a year, people inside and outside Justice have been nervous about "cooperating with the law," when such cooperation may later be deemed illegal. For example, after Vice President Mondale made a speech in August of 1977 supporting a bill outlawing all "warrantless" wiretapping, the telephone companies — which does the tapping for the government — and is worried about civil damage suits arising therefrom — threatened to refuse to do any foreign-intelligence work without a court order. On Sept. 29, 1977, Attorney General Griffin Bell wrote American Telephone and Telegraph "to assure you that it remains the position of the Executive Branch that the foreign intelligence surveillances are a lawful exercise of the president's constitutional power."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

On Feb. 20, when AT&T again threatened to hang up, Bell kept them on the line with, "Our ability to continue these essential actions and our right to ask your continued cooperation demands the strictest adherence to the Constitution."

Nervousness about being sued or prosecuted tomorrow for what the A.G. says is legal today extends to agents on the beat. The longest floating investigation in existence is the FBI's surveillance of the Communist Party of the USA, begun in 1938. In 1976, Attorney General Levi recognized that the surveillance of a political party could no longer lawfully be conducted under the "domestic security" simply switched the case's cover sheet, giving the investigation the legal rationale of a foreign intelligence probe.

"Discovery" will show that FBI agents have been following certain officials of the Communist Party in the United States, looking at the outside of their mail and examining their toll calls at the very least. (Presumably, Bell refuses to confirm even the existence of this particular investigation; he tells me, "I never signed a wiretap authorization on the Communist Party, USA," and that no surveillance is being used which, if used in a criminal case, would require a warrant. He adds ably, "We just keep up with people.")

Someday, however, the question will arise: Is this legal?

When the Trotskyite Socialist Workers Party was the object of the FBI's "counterintelligence" surveillance only a few years ago, it rightly hollered bloody murder, and an FBI was denounced for police-state tactics.

If the Communist Party, USA, is an agent of a foreign power, or if its leaders are engaged in conducting espionage here, Justice ought to prove its case and close the sham party down; if you cannot make a case after 40 years, you're not really trying.

here are not demonstrably agents of a foreign power, then it is the "foreign intelligence" excuse for surveilling them that is the sham, and we should extend to our card-carrying friends the same protections as members of any other party.

One day, what the FBI is now doing will be challenged. Put yourself in the shoes of the FBI agent taking pleasure of visitors to Communist Party headquarters from across the street; will future interpreters of the law find him guilty? Put yourself in the shoes of the attorney general: "I cannot be certain that I won't be prosecuted someday for doing what I think is legal today."

That's not right; a person's actions should be judged in the context of the time those actions are taken, and not ex post facto. Of course, if "discovery" should turn up a memo dated only last spring directing FBI agents to work in certain grey areas with the assurance that what seems "illegal" is really permissible counterespionage, that would be an even more vivid example of hypocrisy.

At the time when Soviet expansionism and espionage are gaining strength, President Carter ought not to be looking for scapegoats to satisfy our consciences for yesterday's practices, or blowing an uncertain trumpet at today's troops. Justice should drop its politically inspired indictments before "discovery" destroys what little spy-catching capacity we have left.

Dominican interference is criticized

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — President Joaquin Balaguer has promised the winner of the nation's disputed presidential election will be allowed to take office, but blasted Washington for interfering in Dominican affairs.

"Have faith in me. Have faith in the armed forces. Whoever wins the final verdict, power will be handed over to him normally," Balaguer said in an emotional, 25-minute television address to the jittery nation Thursday night.

Both sides have claimed victory in the still-antebellum election, which pitted conservative Balaguer and his Reformist Party against liberal Antonio Guzman, 67, of the Dominican Revolutionary Party.

The vote count was halted by the military at 4 a.m. Wednesday, only hours after the polls closed. Guzman led at the time by 553,542 votes to 502,171 for Balaguer, 70, who became president after the U.S. Marines ended the country's 1965 civil war.

The opposition has accused the Balaguer's Reformist Party of planning vote fraud and has threatened to counter it with a general strike.

Heavily armed soldiers patrolled the nearly deserted streets of the capital and many shops remained shuttered. Ballot counting resumed briefly Thursday, but ground to a halt for a second time amid charges that the soldiers would not allow opposition representatives to observe the vote tally, as provided by law.

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance sent Balaguer a cable saying that interruption of the democratic process in the Caribbean island nation of 5 million would have serious consequences for U.S.-Dominican relations.

Big Alaska wilderness approved by U.S. House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted overwhelmingly today to put 102 million acres of still unspoiled Alaskan lands into national parks, wildlife refuges and wilderness areas for the benefit of future generations.

The lands — equal in size to all of California — would be left untouched, except for limited exploration to determine how much oil and other mineral resources they might contain for the future.

Despite the overwhelming majority by which the House passed the bill, it faces an uncertain future in the Senate — where Alaska's two senators have threatened to filibuster against it.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia has indicated he will not call up such legislation in the Senate so long as both the Alaska senators — Republican Ted Stevens and Democrat Mike Gravel — are opposed to it.

Prior to final House passage of the bill, an effort to send it back to committee was rejected by a vote of 243-67.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said Thursday no attempt will be made to end the filibuster until the Memorial Day recess is over.

Next week, the House may end up testing its relations with a long-time ally — South Korea.

A "sense of the House" resolution to be voted on Tuesday would threaten South Korea with the loss of U.S. economic aid unless its former ambassador, Kim Dong Jo, testifies about influence-buying in Congress. If it passes, the next move will be up to Seoul, which has refused to allow Kim to testify on grounds of diplomatic immunity.

ERA debate continuing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To the National Organization for Women 63 years is not a long time to put the Equal Rights Amendment into effect. To Phyllis Schlafly seven years is too long.

NOW's president, Eleanor Curti Smeal, told a House Judiciary subcommittee Thursday it took 72 years — from 1848 to 1920 — for women to win the right to vote. Congress passed ERA in 1972, stating it would become an amendment to the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of 38 states "within seven years."

That deadline is up March 22, 1979, and so far only 35 states have ratified.

ERA supporters are asking Congress to extend the deadline for another seven years, until 1986.

NOW says the ERA efforts began in 1923, and if all the time from then until 1986 were used, the cause would have taken 63 years, nine less than the right to vote.

Addresses Jewish group

Mondale defends jet sale

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale Thursday night said jet sales to Arab nations were necessary for Mideast peace, but Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz said the sale represented a "grave danger" to the security of his country.

The two men both spoke at a dinner of the American Jewish Committee.

While noting the decision to sell the F-15 fighter bombers to Egypt and Saudi Arabia "was not an easy one," Mondale said U.S. policy makers had determined it was "necessary to work with moderate forces in the Arab world if a peaceful and stable Middle East is to evolve."

Support for Egypt and Saudi Arabia, he said,

"will help promote that objective without threatening the security of Israel."

But Dinitz, addressing the 1,000 Jewish leaders after the vice president, said that because of the jet sale "we'll be facing a grave danger."

The sale of 50 F-15s to Saudi Arabia also means that Israel will have to defend itself "on five fronts instead of the four fronts we now have," Dinitz said.

"It was a choice of policy ... which reflected a considered belief in the rightness of our course," the vice president said, adding that the "special partnership" between the United States and Israel "will not be undermined."

Arrests made

Police continue search for Red Brigade gang

ROME (UPI) — Police have stormed two Red Brigades hideouts and arrested 11 persons, including a willow blonde, in a big breakthrough in the hunt for the urban guerrilla killers of former Premier Aldo Moro.

"This could be the tip of the iceberg," Rome police chief Emanuele De Francesco said after the arrests Thursday in Turin and Rome. "More arrests may follow in coming days."

Italian Senate legalizes abortions

ROME (UPI) — The Italian Senate has narrowly voted to legalize abortion for the first time in the predominantly Roman Catholic nation in a major defeat for the Vatican.

The new law permits abortion on demand in the first 90 days of pregnancy at state expense for any woman over 18 who says childbirth would endanger her physical or mental health.

Girls under 18 must have parental or guardian approval and after 90 days a medical certificate is required.

Italy's counter-terrorist squads seeking the killers of Moro hit two Red Brigades hideouts in Rome and arrested 10 people in the capital and a woman in Turin.

Police said some women also were among those detained in Rome, including a tall, slender blonde who was sought in both the killing and abduction of Moro.

Police said a willow blonde took part in the kidnap attack on Moro March 16 that left five of his bodyguards dead and that a tall blonde was seen walking away from the car in which his bullet-riddled body was found in downtown Rome May 9.

In their twin raids, police said they seized weapons, false documents and an electric typewriter like one used by the Brigades to write communiques during Moro's 55-day captivity.

"We have three or four good addresses we are working on," an investigator said after the raids — the first big breakthrough in the Moro case.

In another lead, police said a search of a suburban print shop turned up the stencils for the Red Brigades communiques and ransom money from another kidnap.

Police said there was nothing to show that Moro had been held in either of the raided hideouts.

OSARK AIR LINES FLIGHT ATTENDANTS PICKET SHAREHOLDERS MEETING... suspension of 10 Ozark stewardesses protested

Flight attendants protest suspension

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Flight attendants picketed the Ozark Air Lines shareholders' meeting Thursday to protest the suspension of 10 stewardesses for being overweight.

Alaire Murray, a representative of the airline's 360 flight attendants, said company rules permit male attendants to weigh as much as 30 pounds more than female attendants of similar height.

The women, she said, often starve themselves for days or take reducing pills and laxatives to meet weight requirements. She said a maximum weight of 118 pounds for a 5-foot-2 woman is typical of the standards.

July Herlik was suspended for being 2 pounds overweight. "It just isn't fair," she said. "We have to go through all kinds of torture just to make sure we make the weigh-in."

Don Morris, spokesman for Ozark, said the women were not immediately suspended but were given time to lose weight. He said the difference in the male and female weight schedules is not discriminatory.

"Men and women are not equal in their weight categories," he said.

Ms. Murray said the weight standards are outdated. "The rules date back to the days when airlines wanted skinny models, not skilled flight attendants," she said. "Apparently that is still what they want."

She said some standards are needed: "A woman of 300 pounds wouldn't be able to get through the window exit. We are not interested in becoming obese and sloppy, but the present policy is very restrictive."

Grandma's heading for parts unknown

GEORGETOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Great-grandma Milda Wilburn, 70, rescued by a sympathetic great-grandfather from a threatened two days in jail, says she's weary of national attention, tired of fighting City Hall and is moving to parts unknown.

"I'm going into the back woods and never come out," she said Thursday, managing a laugh. "If I go to West Virginia, I'm going to tell people I'm going to New York. I'm not going to tell the public where I'm going. But I don't think I can live here anymore. You can't fight City Hall and stay around."

Mrs. Wilburn, who has 10 children, 28 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren, decided last week to go to jail for two days rather than pay what she considered an "unjust" $38 fine for her granddaughter's curfew violation.

It turned out she had to do neither.

Her protest brought phone calls and letters of support from people around the country, including a West Virginia great-grandfather who sent $38 to officials of Granny's southwestern Ohio community to keep her out of jail.

When the money arrived Thursday, the chief of police went to Granny's house.

"When the police chief came to the door, I figured he had come to take me to jail," Mrs. Wilburn said.

Yasmin controls Rita's money

United Press International
BUT STILL FRIENDS
 Princess Yasmin — daughter of Rita Hayworth and the late Al Kahn — tells friends in New York that she is forced to keep a tight rein on her mother's money. Miss Hayworth — who inherited about $25 million when Kahn died in an auto accident in 1960 — is suffering from alcoholism and now her 28-year-old daughter completely controls the fortune she'll eventually inherit altogether. "I hate being ruthless," Yasmin confides, "but it has to be this way." In any case, there are no hard feelings — Yasmin says she and her mother are still "the best of friends."

 It's a hassle when you're marijuana connection dries up. Ask Robert Randall of Washington, D.C., who's been smoking pot — legally — for over a year to alleviate some symptoms of glaucoma. But his doctor — who for a year supplied him with up to 3,000 joints of the government's best Mississippi grass — moved to North Carolina three months ago, and the federal government promptly cut off Randall's supply. Randall sued, and on Thursday the government announced a settlement under which Randall will be able to go to a local pharmacy each day for up to 10 joints. The drugstore was named:

 The newspapers of the Middle East are abuzz with the coming marriage of Jordan's King Hussein to New York socialite Lisa Halaby. Columnist Irene Mossall of Beirut's Orient-Le Jour sports Miss Halaby — a businesswoman — has received "splendid jewelry" and "a superb Lancia sports car, equipped with the King, Miss Halaby, 28, is getting something else — a new name: Once married she will be called Princess Nur al-Husseini — "the Light of Hussein." The Royal Palace in Amman says only that the wedding will be "very soon," but palace sources say the day will be May 25, Jordan's Independence day.

'Quickie' divorce will cost $29

LONDON (UPI) — The 18-year marriage of Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon — which began with an elaborate wedding ceremony in Westminster Abbey — ends next week with a two-minute "quickie" divorce costing $29.

The final details of their divorce proceedings were revealed Thursday with publication of a list of undated petitions to be heard in London's High Court.

It should take the presiding judge about two minutes Wednesday to divorce the couple — the time needed to read out the names in court.

The Snowdons qualify for the "rubber stamp" procedure by having lived apart for two years. Neither have to be in court.

Margaret's petition for a mutual consent divorce on grounds of breakdown of the marriage will be heard simultaneously with about 30 others in a courtroom her sister, Queen Elizabeth, dedicated in 1968.

Margaret's lawyers filed her petition Thursday for the divorce from Snowdon, former court photographer Anthony Armstrong-Jones, whom she wed in a magnificent ceremony in Westminster Abbey May 6, 1960.

Sources said Margaret hoped to delay the divorce for about a year so their two children, Viscount Linley, 16, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 14, would be more able to adjust to the attendant publicity.

But Snowdon's friends believe he sought a quick end to the relationship. In order to marry his television production assistant, Lucy Lindsay-Taylor, 33, daughter of an Irish dress designer.

The Royal Treasury announced Thursday that the 47-year-old princess would receive a 7.3 percent increase in her annual Civil List allocation, taking her from $99,000 to $106,200.

Oregonian chief dead at 79

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Michael J. Frey, chairman of The Oregonian Publishing Co. and for many years a dominant figure in publication of The Oregonian, died Thursday in a Portland hospital after a lingering illness.

The immediate cause of death was pneumonia. He was 79 years old.

Frey began working for the Oregonian in 1915 as a clerk in the circulation department. He became circulation manager in 1934, business manager four years later and went on to serve as general manager, becoming publisher of the paper in 1961. He was made chairman of the board on June 1, 1972.

Frey was born in Waltham, N.D., on Aug. 28, 1898, and came with his family to Heywood Broun and Sigma Delta Chi — in recognition of a vice investigation he authorized in 1956.

The Oregonian received three top prizes in American Journalism Pulitzer.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Carter honors family doctor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has found a doctor he approves of — one who still makes house calls.

Carter, who earlier this month criticized organized medicine, Thursday honored Dr. Mario E. Ramirez of Roma, Texas, as the American Academy of Family Practice's "Family Doctor of the Year."

"He makes house calls because many of his people are poverty-stricken and old and can't speak English," Carter said during a White House ceremony. "He is the direct tie between those who don't speak English and the rest of our country. "He represents the finest aspects of the medical profession."

In his earlier blast at the American Medical Association, Carter said that when doctors organize into pro-fey (p.m.) groups they tend to become overly concerned with their own interests.

In praising Ramirez, the president said the doctor had "lived in a town "four times larger than Plains," Carter's home town, and had practiced in a county of 17,000 "as their only doctor for more than 20 years."

Timber report false

BOISE (UPI) — Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus said Thursday reports of problems with regard to the transfer of north Idaho timberlands owed to the state are false.

Andrus telephoned Gov. John Evans during a press conference Thursday and blamed reports that the federal government is stalling the lie, land transfer on "fourth level bureaucrats."

"These fourth level bureaucrats are not running the Bureau of Land Management," Andrus said. "I understand the concern of some people who thought the Land Board had brought this to a successful conclusion. I want to make it clear that a sub-bureau chief in one of the state agencies does not speak for me. There will not be any delays."

The United States owes Idaho some 27,000 acres of land promised the state under the Admissions Act but which the federal government took for other uses. Idaho selected some 19,000 acres of timberland in north and central Idaho with the backing of Andrus.

At a Coeur d'Alene environmentalists' meeting May 4, a BLM official said there are problems with the transfer of some north Idaho land.

Andrus said he had a "very constructive" meeting with President Carter to discuss the situation.

"There will be archeological studies done on some of these areas," he said. "And with the help of these archeologists, I don't believe it will cause us any delay. We are on schedule and I don't appreciate some of the comments attributed to some of our people."

Gem guide Europe prototype

BOISE (UPI) — The United States curriculum development team has chosen Idaho's new health guide for elementary schools as the American model for health education for a two-year project in Switzerland, South Africa.

Developed over a 14-year period by a team of Idaho educators and health professionals, the guide was pilot-tested in 17 representative school districts last year before being adopted this school term by approximately 200 elementary schools.

It is illustrated with cartoons throughout and contains a variety of subjects. There is a guide for teachers of kindergarten through third grade and one for teachers of grades four through six.

Included are drug-alcohol education, mental health and self image, nutrition, growth and development, safety and first aid and environmental health and dental health.

In a foreword to the guide, Public Instruction Superintendent Roy Truhy says that "a good health program provides students with an understanding of themselves as whole persons, enhances their self image and reinforces their concept of their own capabilities and potential."

Butch Otter fund-raiser Saturday

MAGIC VALLEY — Entertainment, a four and fun event scheduled for the C.I. "Butch" Otter fund-raiser Saturday in Twin Falls.

The event will last from 4 to 9 p.m. and will be held at the home of Thomas Walker, Sr., on 319 Orchard Dr., off the road to the airport.

Entertainment for the candidate for governor will be provided by Idaho Blue Grass Band — an outstanding group of people playing banjos and guitars. Those attending will tour the Walker Home. Food and drinks will be served.

The cost is $15 per person and $25 per couple. Tickets may be purchased from Otter's office, Twin Falls; John Brooks in Reed and Rep. Gordon Hollifield in Jerome.

service news

JEROME — Pvt. Douglas J. McFall, son of Mrs. Mary B. Chung, Route 1, Jerome, recently was presented the Air Assault Badge upon graduation from the Air Assault School at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Trainees learned to rapidly and safely exit a helicopter from a variety of difficult situations. Whether descending into tree tops or lowering themselves or injured loadings down sheer drops, the graduates are highly proficient.

McFall entered the Army in August, 1977.

The private attended Idaho State University, Pocatello.

BURLEY — Melvin K. Pingel, son of Mr. and Mrs. M.H. Pingel of Rte. 2, Burley, has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Pingel, a ground radio-communications equipment repairman, is assigned at Malmstrom AFB, Mont., with a unit of the Air Force's "Communications Service."

The airman is a 1976 graduate of Burley High School.

Abby

Sexless marriage

DEAR ABBY: If a man is married to a woman who is "cold" or always "too tired" to satisfy her husband's physical needs, he gets a lot of sympathy. And if he blames her for what's missing at home, no one blames him. But how about a woman? She can be love-starved for years, and if she as much as looks at another man, she's considered a tramp.

Well, I'm no tramp, Abby. I'm a decent, normal woman who has been married for 18 years to a man to have given me a fine home, children, financial security and companionship. But for the last four years his interest in sex has diminished to nothing.

Abigail Van Buren

We are both in our early 40s, and I think we are much too young to consider the physical side of our marriage finished. (Or am I wrong?) I've tried everything to revive his interest in me, but it's hopeless. He refuses to discuss it, and he won't see a doctor. Meanwhile, I'm left frustrated.

I've never been unfaithful in my life. I'm attractive, look younger than my years, and lately I have been wondering if perhaps an affair on the side would save my husband's face and our marriage. Or, am I rationalizing? Woman to woman, Abby, what do you think?

DESPERATE IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: Woman to woman, I think you should tell your husband that if he values his marriage he had better see a doctor for a thorough checkup. He could have a physical disorder.

If it's not "physical," it's psychological, in which case therapeutic counseling might help. It is not normal for a man his age to have lost all interest in sex.

DEAR ABBY: You told BUGGED, whose ex-in-laws made a habit of visiting her and her new husband's home every Sunday in order to see the grandchildren, that a once-a-week visit didn't seem so bad to you.

Abby, you are wrong, wrong, wrong!

Visiting every Sunday is excessive. Once every two months would seem more reasonable to me. Also, why should the ex-in-laws go to their former daughter-in-law's home regularly? If they want to keep up the contact with their son's children, why don't they just come up and take them to a park, a ballgame or to their home and entertain them? And why must it be on a Sunday?

Please reconsider, Abby. That answer didn't sound like you. Are you on a vacation or what?

DISAPPOINTED IN GEORGIA

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I never go on vacation. That answer was mine and I'll take my lumps for it. You are right. I googled and several hundred readers wrote to tell me so.

Big celebration slated Saturday in honor of Bookmobile Day

By JEFFSHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There are two things you just don't do in a library: make noise, and fail to return the books you find.

But starting Saturday, who-does-it-whizzes, adventure-addicts and other book junkies will get their chance to find the books they want and keep them too, when the Twin Falls Public Library kicks off its new outreach program with a decidedly uncharacteristic Bookmobile Day celebration.

Saturday has been designated Bookmobile Day in Twin Falls because it marks the first day of operation of the library's new Bookmobile.

To advertise the existence of the Bookmobile and to acquaint people with the route it will follow beginning Monday, the Old-Time Fiddlers will open an afternoon of revelry at 12 noon at the Lynwood Shopping Center.

The fiddlers, who say it takes them five or six songs just to start getting warmed up, will be followed throughout the afternoon by the Sunchild Puppet Theatre, bolly dancers, ventriloquist Ron Piercy and a performance by the Company One drama group of a segment of their upcoming play, Ibsen's "A Doll's House." Big Bird and Magic Mary, an artist-elf who makes pictures come alive, will also make appearances at the festivities.

In addition to the entertainment, free balloons, free soft drinks (donated by Coca-Cola Bottling Co.), and 19-cent hot dogs will fuel the festivities. The attention-grabbing activities accompanying the opening of the Bookmobile are intended to let people know what the Bookmobile has to offer, just as the brightly-colored bookmobile was created to alert people to the wealth of entertainment, excitement and information available at the library, explained Bookmobile librarian Kathleen Duignan.

And just as the Old-Time Fiddlers don't fiddle around in the corner, hoping someone will notice, the librarians have decided to take their collection to the people on the Bookmobile,

KATHY DUIGNAN PREPARES TO STOCK NEW BOOKMOBILE
...kick off scheduled Saturday for new program rather than wait for the people to come to the library.

The Bookmobile idea itself is not new. Duignan pointed out, but the Twin Falls Bookmobile will be different because it will not only lend books, but sell them and swap them.

Any paperback in good condition can be brought to the Bookmobile (or the main library) and exchanged for another paperback. When that book has been devoured, it can be exchanged for a more recent issue to satisfy the hopeless book addict's habit.

And to keep readers supplied with the finest and most up-to-date soothsayers of the mind, the Bookmobile will stock a revolving selection of best-sellers, to be updated weekly, Duignan said.

And if you would prefer to keep a favorite paperback book rather than exchange it, the library best-sellers will be selling paperbacks, including used to improve the collection.

Hardback books will also be available through the Bookmobile, although on a lend-only basis. If the Bookmobile doesn't have the book you want, you can request it, and if the main library has the book, it will be brought to you the following week when the Bookmobile makes its regular stop in your neighborhood. A list of the Bookmobile's regular stops appears on this page, and will be available Saturday.

The Bookmobile will also take suggestions for updating the paperback collection, including best-sellers.

In short, the Bookmobile brings all the services of the main library into the neighborhoods of the city.

The program has been initiated, Duignan said, because most people using the library now are reading paperbacks. Paperbacks are more convenient than heavy, expensive hardback editions, so the library has decided to take the books people want to the people.

The idea is to get more people reading, and to get people reading more.

your health

Aid for depression

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I'm a woman, 71 years old, very nervous and get so depressed. My doctor says I have chronic depression and chronic anxiety. He is giving me Triavil which he says is a tranquilizer and an anti-depressant. Can you tell me anything about this medicine and what after-effects it will have from taking it a long time? There are so many relaxing pills that they say will give you cancer. Is this one of them? Will they affect or damage the brain? I do relax and sleep much better. I know for sure I don't want brain damage or cancer but I do need something.

Dear Reader:
Your doctor expressed it very well in saying that Triavil is both a tranquilizer and an anti-depressant. It is used to treat anxiety, agitation and depression. Anxiety and depression often go together. Triavil is a combination medicine that also contains Elavil.

Lawrence E. Lamb M.D.

Triavil works very well as you have found out. Such medicines can really make a big difference in a person's life when they are needed. We are learning more every day about how depression and mental disorders are often related to changes in chemical functions in the body. These are often chemicals that are important in transmitting nerve impulses and promoting proper nerve cell function.

To give you general information about depression I am sending you the Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78202.

You and anyone else using such medicines should be under the careful supervision of a doctor, but since they are prescription items that would be expected to be safe. They can cause some disturbances in large doses or in susceptible individuals but these can be easily corrected.

Triavil and related medicines do act adversely with a long list of other medicines by your doctor should know that and should not prescribe such medicines at the same time. Which reminds me to tell everybody that you must be sure that your doctor knows all the medicines you are taking. A patient may get one medicine from a family doctor and another from the gynecologist with neither doctor knowing what the other one has prescribed. That can be a real problem.

Many good pharmacists keep records of their regular customers and may spot such a problem but you can help by always giving all the doctors you see a list of all the medicines you are taking — including those you buy without a prescription. No, Triavil does not cause cancer nor does it adversely affect your mind.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
We are great lovers of popcorn as a snack. Could you please inform us as to how many calories there are in popcorn and also are there any vitamins gained in eating it?

Dear Reader:
A cup of plain popped popcorn contains only 23 calories. It is what you add that may make the difference. Since so much of it is air, a cup of it does not provide any meaningful amounts of vitamins or minerals. You have to eat a lot more than a cup to get anything out of it. In these days of many rich foods that is encouraging.

I'd add one word of caution. We already get too much salt in our diet and salted popcorn does add to our consumption. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

'Ziegfeld' features production numbers

NEW YORK (UPI) — When we were kids at the movies, all the little boys used to groan at the love scenes and mutter, "Mum!" Many used to moan at the production numbers and grumble about slush.

For who agree that chorus rhymes with bore us; don't watch "Ziegfeld: The Man and His Women," which NBC will show Sunday, 8-11 p.m., Eastern time. The word that most accurately describes the show is interminable.

It features 15 musical numbers, including one with bubble-like balloons that single-handedly could have killed the revue-style musical theater.

The story of Florenz Ziegfeld and his theatrical follies, not to mention his amorous follies (some of which starred the same women).

is told by his mother; his first wife, Anna Held; his mistress, Lillian Lorraine; his second wife, Billie Burke; dancer Marilyn Miller, who was no fan, and his daughter, who loved him.

According to this version, he was the kind of man only a mother or a daughter could love — otherwise he was a selfish, ambitious womanizer who was unscrupulous about money, contracts and almost everything else.

He also was the super showman of the early 20th century who provided a Broadway showcase for Eddie Cantor, Fanny Brice, Will Rogers and the musical talents of Irving Berlin and George Gershwin, among others.

The stars include Paul Sholar in the title role, with Barbara Parkins, Valerie Perrine, Samantha Eggar and Pamela Peardon among the women in his life. The best moment in the show is none of these — it is when Dan Tullis belts out "Old Man River" from "Show Boat."

Ziegfeld and his follies may be among the ancestors of the Las Vegas girlie show, in which he has a lot to answer for — including the pilot of "Loose," which will become a regular half-hour series on the NBC schedule next fall.

The hour-long pilot which will be aired tonight, the show boasts Marla Lewis as a fat Vegas comedienne who wants to bring up her son in a normal manner despite the Vegas atmosphere, which includes sharing an apartment with two showgirls.

This show will appeal to those who want to watch good-looking girls, some without brassieres. It also will appeal to the subtler swooners who sigh over Scott Ballo as the son. Ballo already has a following as Fonzi's nephew on "Happy Days."

The comedy depends on lines like, "I love the milkmen in Las Vegas — they'll shoot you double or nothing for cottage cheese."

Lines — or lack of them — also are the problem in "The Paul Lynde Comedy Hour," that goes on Saturday, 8-9 p.m., Eastern time, with guests Harry Morgan, Juliet Prowse and Brenda Vaccaro.

The gimmick is that Lynde has the power to grant his own and his guests' wishes — although of course the results are far from happy. The same goes for the script, which gives these pleasant performers little to work with in a series of skits.

Ascension hosts guest minister

TWIN FALLS — The guest preacher and minister at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension this Sunday will be Rev. Clavess "Cory" Burley III.

Burley is a deacon-in-training at St. Michael's Cathedral, Boise, where he is a member of the cathedral staff in preparation for ordination to the priesthood. A native of California, he is on loan from the Diocese of California and is youth officer of the cathedral staff. He will be preaching and celebrating a "Deacon's Mass" at both 8 and 10.

At 8:45 a.m. he will be meeting with the lay ministry training class over continental breakfast and at 5 p.m. he will meet with the Episcopal Young Churchmen of Ascension Parish.

Nazarenes honor seniors

TWIN FALLS — First Church of the Nazarene will honor its graduating seniors this Sunday at the 11 a.m. service.

Each senior who attends college will be given a $660 scholarship.

The pastor will speak from the subject "No Hangover." The thought is in relation to pentecost which was celebrated the past Sunday and the hangover, justifying effects upon the Christians of the early church.

The sanctuary choir under the direction of Steve Pace will furnish music for the service and special musical numbers will be presented for both the morning and evening service by local groups. The evening service begins at 6.

The annual district missionary convention and district assembly will convene in Boise at First Church of the Nazarene, 1200 Liberty Road, May 24-26.

Student wins Lutheran stipend

HAZZELTON — Todd Schwarz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Schwarz, Hazleton, has won an Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) All-College Scholarship, and will attend Boise State University.

As a representative from the Magic Valley Circuit he has served on the Idaho State Youth Board and will be transferred to the Treasure Valley Circuit to represent their Lutheran Youth.

Boise Brethren visit Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — Rev. Lyle Arnold of the First United Brethren Church announces that the Boise United Brethren Church will come to Twin Falls Saturday for a time of fellowship and fun.

A potluck luncheon will be served at noon, followed by a full afternoon with the program featuring a skit by Mrs. Irma Wall of Jerome, "Sadie Belle Learns to Play Piano." A sing-along will be held to be followed by an appearance of the M.O.P. Squad from the local First Nazarene Church.

From 4 to 5 p.m. will be a time of fellowship and refreshments before the visitors return to Boise.

The local church is located at 302 Third Ave. E.

Church plans Visitor's Day

TWIN FALLS — Sunday will be Visitor's Day at the First United Brethren Church. Rev. Lyle Arnold says there will be a coffee hour in the church fellowship room following morning services.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eastman will be in charge.

Adventists study 'conversion'

EDEEN — The lesson study this Saturday at the Eden Seventh Day Adventist Church will be "We Are Born Again." This lesson deals with spiritual conversion.

Sabbath school begins at 9:30 a.m. and the worship hour at 11.

The worship hour speaker this week is Pastor Alfred Griffith.

Bethel Temple rally planned

TWIN FALLS — Bethel Temple Church of Twin Falls announces a Deeper Life rally to be held at the church May 25-28. The rally will be held every night except Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The church is located at County Road 2300 E. at Ninth Street in Twin Falls. The rally evangelist is Rev. Roland Baker; guest pastor, Rev. William Parent; resident pastor, Rev. Carroll McGruider, and associate pastor, Rev. Harold Shepherd.

Everyone is invited to attend. Nursery facilities are available.

Sermon topic announced

TWIN FALLS — "Your Self-Fulfilling Prophecies" is the topic of Rev. Doreen Williams at services of First Church of Religious Science at 11 a.m. Sunday at the YMCA-YWCA chapel.

The public is invited.

Baptists schedule update

TWIN FALLS — The First Southern Baptist Church's "Family Crusade" will begin at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and continue through Thursday. Meetings will be led by Mrs. Loraine Cohrs and by Mrs. Carol VanGerpren from Lynnwood, Wash., who will bring "Danny and Nicky," ventriloquist dummies.

'Soul and Body' sermon title

TWIN FALLS — "Soul and Body" will be the title for the season-sermon Sunday at the Christian Science Church. Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. Church services are at 11 a.m. Sunday and 8 p.m. Wednesday at 160 Ninth Ave. East.

King Hill seniors honored

KING HILL — Graduating seniors of King Hill United Presbyterian Church will be honored at a potluck dinner at 12:30 p.m. Sunday in the church basement. A session meeting will follow the dinner.

TWIN FALLS — The film, "The Christian Home," will be shown Sunday at 8:30 p.m. in the Tyler Street Baptist Church.

Dr. Howard Hendricks, authority on Christian living, examines the parent-child relationship.

The questions why have I failed as a parent, how can we be losing our child when we are so sincere or what can I do to restore a close relationship to my child are all examined.

The public is invited to see this film at 288 Tyler St.

Reception scheduled Sunday

TWIN FALLS — A reception and program scheduled for 7:30 Sunday evening will welcome new members to Twin Falls Baptist Church.

The program will include the latest Billy Graham film entitled "Shiloh's Pass." Refreshments will be served by the board of deaconesses under direction of Lillian Lakley.

The evening will be devoted to getting acquainted with the 50 new members and extending a warm welcome into the church fellowship, according to Rev. Gilbert Myers, pastor.

A nursery will be provided.

Evangelist presents class

TWIN FALLS — Bill Putman will present a Soul Winning class at First Christian Church during the 9:45 a.m. Sunday school hour.

He will also be the guest speaker during the 10:50 a.m. worship hour.

Putman is the Oregon/Idaho Christian Evangelistic Association evangelist and is active in starting new Christian churches in eastern Oregon and Idaho.

The public is invited to attend both services.

A nursery is provided for all activities at the church.

PARTICIPANTS ARE SHOWN IN PRESENTATION
... at Clover Trinity Lutheran School

Clover pupils present show

FILER — A talent night has been held at Clover Trinity Lutheran School which featured musical numbers, skits, songs and a special presentation of "Rumpelstiltskin."

The play, presented as it would be shown on TV today, was complete with commercials between scenes, and told the story of the miller's daughter who spun straw into gold with the help of the wily elf, Rumpelstiltskin.

Other numbers included Corey Kaster in the News "Kasters"; a Jimmy Carter peanut butter commercial by Joe Kachmarek; a song by a girls quartet and piano solo by Sandy Roessler.

Students of grades one and two presented a short play and Greg Paulson gave a tap dance number, followed by songs by Allison Lindholm, Kirsti and Steve Lutkehus, James Schroeder and Mark and Clinton Lutz.

Grades three, four and five danced the Virginia Reel and the third grade gave a skit narrated by Wendy Lienman, Lori Jagals and Jackie Hoogland presented a piano duet and the third, fourth and fifth grade girls presented "An Old Fashioned Ball Game."

Todd and Tara Jagals sang a duet, Robert Rytting, Tim Kachmarek, Paul Loman and Edward Benedictus demonstrated a hula hooping marathon and Jackie Hoogland played two piano numbers. Grades one through five performed a tumbling finale and closing song.

Members of the eighth grade served as masters of ceremonies, stage hands and technicians.

Mrs. Ranata Graesch is kindergarten teacher at the Clover Lutheran Church-sponsored school. Mrs. Richard Luttrell teaches grades one and two, Mrs. William Rupprecht, grades three, four and five, and Mrs. Luttrell teaches grade eight.

Edna Filer women

MRS. Hugo Meyer, from left, Mrs. Paul Schwarz and Mrs. Elmer Fischer took part in the Lutheran Women's Missionary League convention in Idaho Falls.

Bible school planned

FILER — The Filer Mennonite Church invites everyone to participate in a summer vacation Bible school, scheduled daily from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

Dates of the school are May 30 to June 9, with the final program planned for Friday evening, June 9.

Classes will be provided for children ages 4 through eighth graders.

... for interested Twin Falls High School pupils

Seminary dedication soon

TWIN FALLS — The new buff brick building adjacent to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints stake tabernacle on Mauler Street North is a recently completed seminary facility for the Twin Falls senior high school student enrollment in religious educational courses.

The classes, covering old and new testament, church history and book of Mormon, have been held since 1956 in the classrooms of the stake building. About 200 students attend classes daily now in this new building, the stake tabernacle and the LDS chapel on Fourth Avenue North.

The new building contains two classrooms with a dividing partition that can be opened to seat 70 persons for assemblies. There are also two offices in the new facility. Arrington Brothers Construction was the building contractor; Richard Heindel, the architect.

The seminary program had its beginning in 1912 in the Granite school district in Salt Lake City with 70 students enrolled.

The seminary classes in Twin Falls began in 1956 with an early morning schedule. Bible classes taught by businessmen James Dodds and Jack Frederickson convened in the stake tabernacle at 7:30 a.m. for 50 minutes of devotions and instruction. The classes continued in this building for 21 years with lay members as teachers.

In 1958, 60 ninth grade students began their seminary classes in the old Twin Falls first ward building which stood at the corner of Fourth Avenue and Second Street East. Carl Shaner was the instructor. The early morning schedule continued until 1973 when the Twin Falls School District adopted its partial open campus policy, allowing students to schedule five periods daily with the option of having first or sixth period free. At this time the opportunity to take seminary at 9 a.m. or 7:15 p.m. was added.

To serve

GREGG S. Lyons, son of Earl and Betty Lyons, Burley, formerly Twin Falls, will serve a Latter Day Saints mission in San Diego. His farewell will be at 11:30 a.m. June 11 in the Burley Unity Ward. He will enter the Language Training Mission June 15.

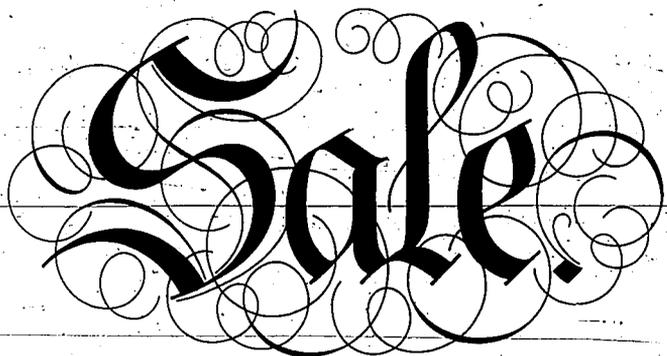

Writings studied

TWIN FALLS — Ellen White, co-founder of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, wrote in the 1860s of a tobacco-cancer link.

Robert Leake, pastor of the Twin Falls church, says the health books written during that period by Mrs. White continue to be bestsellers to this day.

Leake says the local church members will be studying her influence on the church at services Saturday.

He says she was ahead of her time in advocating diet and dress reform. She wrote that cancer was a virus and that many cancers are caused by factors like pollution and tobacco.

TEXAS REP. BARBARA JORDAN
... favors extension of deadline

Hot hearing on ERA time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Phyllis Schlafly, leading anti-ERA forces in congressional hearings, said Thursday Congress would be tampering with the Constitution if it extends the deadline for ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment another seven years.

Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Texas, responded the present deadline of March 22, 1979, is "arbitrary" and Congress can and should extend it to 1986 by majority vote of each house.

Both extended in an emotionally charged hearing by a House Judiciary subcommittee. The room was packed with women, half wearing "Stop ERA" buttons, the other half "ERA Yes" buttons, who alternately applauded and glared as one debater or another appeared to score a point.

Congress passed ERA in 1972, stipulating it would become part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of 38 states "within seven years."

Thirty-five states have ratified and supporters are seeking a seven year extension to work for the remaining three.

Mrs. Schlafly, national chairman of Stop ERA, said "millions of Americans will look upon this as an unfair attempt to tamper with the Constitution."

Rep. Jordan replied, "There is nothing in the Constitution or history that says once Congress sets a deadline that is inviolable... The question of extension is a political one."

ERA forces will continue to work for the required number of states by the deadline, but it should be extended "just in case," Rep. Jordan said.

Mrs. Schlafly charged "ERA proponents are trying to change our Constitution in an unfair way because they can't win if they obey the law."

She said the 15 state legislatures that have not ratified ERA would be compelled to vote "again and again" on the issue for another seven years, but that states which have ratified it would not be allowed to change their position to "no."

Rep. Jordan said the proposed extension resolution is silent on this "right to rescind" and the question would be debated at a later time.

Mrs. Schlafly said the "one reason" ERA supporters want seven more years is to continue what she called a "malicious, secondary boycott" against hotels, restaurants and other businesses in non-ratification states.

As to the deadline, she said, even the first seven years was "unreasonably long — no constitutional amendment, even in the days of pony express-communication, has taken as long as four years."

Dr. Marjorie Bell, president of the American Association of University Women, said in prepared testimony the 25 states which have ratified represent 72 percent of the American people while the remaining 15 represent only 28 percent.

She said a handful of politicians was thwarting the will of "the majority of the electorate."

Nerve gas bombs bound for Utah

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown has reversed a decision to destroy 900 deadly "Weteye" nerve gas bombs and they will be moved by plane and truck from a Denver arsenal to a storage site in Utah, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Officials said Brown made the decision to retain the weapons earlier this year and informed Congress and the White House.

The 900 bombs contain about 155 tons of the gas Sarin, which causes quick and agonizing death from spasms and convulsions.

Officials said Brown based his decision on the bombs' value as a deterrent to Soviet use of their large stockpiles of gas in the event of war.

The United States and Soviet Union have been discussing a possible ban on chemical weapons, but the talks are stalled over verification and other issues.

The United States has a total nerve gas supply estimated at up to 20,000 tons, about half of it in bombs, artillery shells and other munitions. Officials said most of them are older types, some of which have started to deteriorate and cause leakage and storage problems.

The Weteye is the most modern on hand.

Weteye production was halted amid bitter controversy in 1969 after nerve gas drifted from a Utah test site and killed 5,000 sheep.

The bombs were produced at Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Denver, but were scheduled for destruction in 1973 after local opposition resulted in a decision to dispose of all nerve gas stocks at the arsenal.

Thursday's announcement said that within three weeks, the bombs will be taken from the arsenal in Denver and put aboard Air Force C-141 jet transports at the adjacent Stapleton International Airport.

They will be flown to Utah and taken by truck from an airfield at the Dugway Proving Ground 46 miles to a storage depot at Tooele Army Depot; the announcement said.

It said the move will take place when weather conditions minimize chances of an aircraft mishap, and that strict security precautions will be observed.

The Pentagon has been doing research on new types of nerve gas weapons — including another bomb called "Bigeye" — that would contain chemicals that are harmless until activated by firing or being dropped from a plane. So far, however, it has received no production money.

The Pentagon said one of the 900 bombs at Rocky Mountain Arsenal has been discovered to be leaking inside its sealed container. That bomb will be deactivated at the arsenal instead of being moved, it said.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own... but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item... and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers... so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood... but you'll want a bigger crowd than that... so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing... get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Setaside acreage 19.3 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American farmers intend to set aside 19.3 million acres of wheat, feed grains and cotton this season under a program designed to reduce crop production, the Agriculture Department reported Wednesday.

As of May 11, some 41.8 percent of eligible farmers who farm 61.3 percent of the nation's normal farm acreage had signed up for the program. A May 15 sign-up deadline Monday was extended until May 31 after President Carter signed an emergency farm bill.

The set-aside intentions were increased from the 18.2 million acres signed up a week earlier.

Weekly reports on how much land is set aside will be made in subsequent weeks.

The current total is approaching the administration's set-aside goal of 22 million acres.

The signed-up farmers intend to plant 41.8 million acres of wheat and 55.9 million acres of feed grains.

Farmers have told the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service they intend to idle 8.4 million acres on wheat farms and 5.6 million on farms that raise feed grains.

Additional acreage to be diverted includes 318,344 acres under the cotton program and 4 million acres under the feed grain program.

Highway 93 detour begins Monday

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

JEROME — Beginning Monday, traffic on U.S. 93 north of Twin Falls will be detoured around the Barrymore railroad crossing three miles north of the I-80 overpass.

H.L. Johnson, the Idaho Division of Highways district engineer in Shoshone, said today the railroad crossing will be blocked off for about a week so Union Pacific Railroad crews can rebuild the crossing.

"We don't really feel it will take a week to do it, but the railroad asked that we schedule a week," Johnson explained.

The crossing repairs will include replacing ties and ballast and also putting in laminated timber planking, he added, that should last longer and require less maintenance than the present crossing requires.

"We complain and they work on it," he seems like continually," the district engineer said of the crossing. He hopes to repair it down considerably.

Don Morris, leadline engineer for the state highway division in Shoshone, said northbound traffic on U.S. 93 will be detoured east for two miles along an unnamed county road a mile south of the crossing.

Then, vehicles will travel north a mile and west two miles back to highway 93 just above the crossing.

Southbound drivers will turn west off the highway opposite from the point at which northbound traffic enters the highway, Morris said, go one mile and then south a mile and east a mile to get back on the highway.

Morris said detour routes were split because it is safer on the narrow county roads.

Also, today, Union Pacific spokesmen said the westbound Amtrak passenger train was delayed an hour and a half and rerouted through Jerome because of a minor derailment almost halfway between Minidoka and Shoshone.

C.R. "Rocky" Rockwell, a railroad public relations official in Salt Lake City, said the wheels on the end of an empty hopper car jumped the track about 3:30 a.m. at a switching station and prevented the passenger train's engineer from using a siding to go around the 61-car eastbound freight train.

Rockwell said crews used a crane and had the car back on the tracks at 7:30 a.m. today.

He said there were no injuries in the incident and railroad officials are looking into the cause of the derailment. The derailed car was 14-cars head of the caboose, he noted.

Magic Valley Blaine county teachers, board deadlocked on salary agreement

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Blaine county teacher salary negotiations are deadlocked and a federal mediator is being called in to continue contract talks between teachers and the county school board.

Contract negotiations collapsed last week when local negotiating teams were unable to agree on next year's teacher salary schedule.

A last ditch effort Thursday to avoid an impasse failed and Blaine County superintendent of schools Norman Riggs said today he will go ahead with the request for a federal mediator.

Riggs wrote a letter Monday to a federal mediation service in Salt Lake City after both sides agreed a third party should be brought in to help with the contract negotiations.

Negotiators for the teachers and the school district met Thursday night for three hours and detailed the points on which they were at impasse, Riggs said.

The standoff between teachers and trustees has come about primarily over teacher salaries.

As Irene Healy, teachers chief negotiator, put it: "We think there is more money and we think we should be getting more money."

The teachers last week rejected a district offer to increase the school district's instructional budget by about 9 per cent. Riggs said this increase would mean a 6.1 per cent increase on the teachers' base salary.

But the teachers are holding out for more money.

"Other districts with a lot less money are giving teachers about 10 per cent on their base salaries," Healy noted.

She said the teachers wanted to be flexible but were looking for a base salary raise in the 10 per cent range.

The teachers initially asked for a 15.6 per cent instructional budget increase, but this was rejected by the school board negotiators.

Healy said a 15.6 per cent increase in the instructional budget would provide about a 10 per cent base salary increase and a dental insurance plan for teachers.

Riggs said the school board's proposed 9 per cent instructional budget raise was "reasonable by any standards" and he claimed the teachers firm stand was "part of the psychological warfare" of negotiations.

The superintendent said he believed the teachers were simply following the "party line" of the Idaho Education Association in holding out for a 10 per cent base increase.

But Healy denied the Idaho Education Association had told Blaine County teachers to demand 10 per cent.

She said the 10 per cent increase was based on the rate of inflation and the high cost of living in Blaine county.

today Teen still critical

RUPERT — Pocatello hospital authorities say a 16-year-old Rupert girl is still unconscious and in "critical" condition today after a two-vehicle accident three miles south of Rupert Thursday morning.

Brenda Rasmussen was taken by ambulance to St. Anthony's Hospital in Pocatello after initial treatment at Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert. A hospital supervisor in Pocatello said Miss Rasmussen is in the intensive care ward but that she could not release information on the extent of the girl's injuries.

According to the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department report, the girl was driving a compact car north on 100 West about 10:30 a.m. Thursday and she failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection of 300 South.

Her car was hit broadside on the driver's side by a pickup driven by Burdell Curtis, 68, of Burley, the report said, knocking the car off the northeast side of the road onto its top.

Curtis was treated for bruises and released from the Rupert Hospital, a sheriff's department official said.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the pickup driven by Curtis, which is owned by Burley Irrigation District. The girl's 1977 car was totaled.

The accident investigation is continuing, a deputy said.

Canyon jump delayed

TWIN FALLS — Canadian daredevil Ken Carter said Thursday he will probably attempt to rocket across the Snake River Canyon sometime in October or November.

Earlier, the stuntman had indicated a date this summer.

Carter, who is in Hollywood trying to arrange financing for the canyon jump in his rocket-powered car, told the Times-News by telephone he is not moving back the jump to accommodate television officials.

Rather, he said the postponement is because of delays in locating landing and takeoff sites and in arranging financing for the venture.

Carter is in the process of negotiating with the networks to broadcast the flight.

Carter has never set a specific date for the attempt, because he wants to comply with Jerome and Twin Falls counties' ordinances restricting crowds to 1,000 and 500 persons, respectively.

However, he has hinted the jump would take place soon after test runs he plans to make at Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats in June.

Carter said he is talking with the three commercial networks. If he can obtain a television contract, one of them to broadcast the jump, Carter said his Canadian backers would put up the $250,000 he needs to build a takeoff ramp, run the Utah tests and pay leases on the property.

Free clinic Saturday

TWIN FALLS — South Central Health District nurses will be on the Twin Falls Mall Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to give free blood pressure examinations.

The blood pressure screening will continue Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in front of the downtown J. C. Penney store.

This is part of the district's promotional effort to make Magic Valley residents aware of the importance of regular blood pressure checks.

DHW officials explain child care rules

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — While a Twin Falls babysitter believes she is being treated unfairly, health and welfare officials say they must see to it that quality day care is offered.

The woman, Delphine Tolson, who has been earning her living by babysitting in her home, was told by DHW she would either have to get a license, quit taking in children or face prosecution.

Patrick Murphy, of the Twin Falls Department of Health and Welfare regional office, the agency's role in requiring licensing is twofold.

"First, it's simply the state law," Murphy said, "and secondly, our major concern is to see that quality child care is offered working parents."

"Most people are happy to comply," said Erma Shropshire, who is in charge of day care licensing in the region. "If we are told about someone caring for children it's our responsibility to talk to them and help them become licensed."

She said she had no idea how many people are caring for other children in the area — "not even aware they should be licensed." She said she made eight calls Monday to persons advertising child care, encouraging them to get a license.

Some 50 homes and centers are now licensed in Twin Falls for child care. Ten of these are day care centers, and the rest are day care homes.

An organization of Magic Valley day care center operators has been formed recently. The group, called the Southern Idaho Day Care Corp., exchanges ideas and information on improving their operations.

Although there is no cost for a license, the number of children a person wants to care for in her home determines the health and space requirements necessary to obtain a license.

Mrs. Shropshire said there is a difference between a day care home and a day care center.

The line between the two usually is drawn at four children unrelated to the sitter and a total of six children — including the baby sitter's own children in the home.

Those who care for more than four extra children are considered a day care center and must meet health and fire protection standards. For example, 35 square feet of space per child inside and 75 square feet outside and one toilet and sink for every 15 children are required.

According to law, anyone who wants to care for children — even just one extra child — on a regular basis to earn money, must be licensed.

Mrs. Tolson who, according to DHW officials, has had up to 14 children in her small home on Harrison Street, could probably qualify for a day care home license. Mrs. Shropshire said, thereby limiting her to four extra children.

The agency recommends either having a fenced yard or having the sitter available to be outside with the children. When there are both infants and older children under the care of one person this is impossible, Mrs. Shropshire said.

Mrs. Tolson says, because of weekly doctor visits and medication she requires for diabetes and high blood pressure, she owes $1,000 to her doctor and $114 to the drug store and needs all the money she can earn. She said she feels having to limit her meager earnings will result in financial disaster.

She views the intervention of the agency, which resulted from an anonymous complaint about children in the street in front of her house, as unfair, since she is "trying to make it on her own" and has no other source of income, because of inability to work.

Jerome school district

Teacher contract talks in final stages

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Teachers and the Jerome school district may reach agreement today on next year's teacher contract.

At a Thursday night negotiating session, the district's team presented its final package offer, and teacher representatives said they would accept three of the four items.

Jerome Teacher Organization spokesman Wesley Gates said teachers will be polled today for their opinion on the fourth item.

Gates said he would have the results by 4 p.m., when the two bargaining teams will again meet.

The three items already acceptable to teachers are a 10 per cent salary increase, establishment of a sick leave bank and a plan to reimburse teachers for unused personal leave days.

The final item to be settled concerns medical insurance.

Gates said 94 of the 180 teachers in the district did not sign up this year for the district's Blue Cross insurance plan, for which the district pays $24 per month per teacher.

The district has offered to raise the amount of support to $27.

But two-thirds of the teachers want either full coverage, amounting to about $30 this year, while one-third want the opportunity to use the $27 for any health insurance they wish. Gates told district negotiators Thursday.

The district team then caucused, and Jerome School Board Chairman Alvin Chojnacky made the teachers a final package offer.

"This will be final," he said. "It's the very best we can do."

In addition to the three agreed-upon items,

Chojnacky said the district would pay $29 per month per teacher for Blue Cross medical insurance, $5 more than this year and $2 more than the district's original offer.

He said this will cost the district a total of $5,000 and is "as far as we can go."

Gates said the proposal "won't require a great deal of debate" among teachers and he would have the answer today.

This afternoon's meeting is the third one between bargaining teams this week. Negotiations began in early April.

Dr. Gibb speaks to

Wendell graduates

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

WENDELL — "Your generation needs our generation to help you keep your feet on the ground, but we need you to help us reach for the stars," the president of the University of Idaho, told Wendell High School seniors Thursday night.

Dr. Richard Gibb, featured speaker at the combined baccalaureate and graduation program, urged the 51 graduates to find ways to improve the Establishment for the better and not work to destroy the established order.

Despite inequities in this country, Dr. Gibb said the United States has a much better record on discrimination and human rights than such countries as Ireland, India or Nigeria.

Few of the world's great leaders got that way by trying to be popular, Gibb said, adding: "To be a leader you must be willing to be lonely and unpopular."

In his sermon prior to the Gibb speech, Bishop Roy Miller of the Wendell Mormon Church, admonished students that "evil is evil even in little doses."

Wyoming attorney general leaves post confident

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Wyoming Attorney General V. Frank Mendicino has left his job on a note of confidence without pay, misconduct charges and soon return.

Mendicino exited from the post he has held for three years Thursday in response to rare common law charges of misconduct handed down by a specially impaneled statewide grand jury.

Gov. Ed Herschler made the announcement at a news conference. Mendicino then met with reporters to elaborate.

Mr. Mendicino on the whole has done a good job and I have faith in him," Herschler said. "I hope he'll come back if he's vindicated in this matter" (or if the charges are dropped).

In his farewell remarks to Herschler for the leave, Mendicino wrote, "With complete confidence I look forward to reassuming my duties as attorney general." However, Mendicino acknowledged that if the news conference that the case could drag out if it goes to the Wyoming Supreme Court.

The leave was Mendicino's idea, Herschler said. But because of the public nature of the charges, Mendicino could have expected to remain in office, the governor said.

Jerome violates own law

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — The city of Jerome has been getting its water free from the city water department, contrary to city law.

Jerome City Councilman Ralph Peters brought out the matter Tuesday night's council meeting and noted that the city does not recoup by giving the water department a free ride.

Specifically, the department must pay $300 a month rent to the city for office space in city hall, he said.

Peters discovered the city pays nothing for the water used to sprinkle city parks or fill the city swimming pool.

But Jerome charges the city water department $300 a month rent for office space in city hall in an attempt to make the department sure the department's expenses are paid for by water users and not subsidized from the general fund by the rest of the taxpayers.

Now the plan may have boomeranged on the city.

"They should pay for the water," Councilman Glen Capps said. "They're two separate entities."

Mayor Marshall Everheart proposed an agreement be worked out in the next budget session later this year.

Everheart said similar agreements exist by which Jerome County, the county fairgrounds and the city sewage treatment plant, which is also a separate entity, pay a flat rate to the water department.

One benefit, the mayor noted, was that a fee would be established for the time when, and if, the Jerome Recreation District takes over the city parks and recreation facilities.

Jerome purchased the Jerome Water Co. in 1958 with a revenue bond issue. The water department must be operated as a separate entity at least until the bonds are paid off sometime in the 1980s, Peters said.

The rest of the city council and the mayor promised to settle the issue by working out a fee to be paid by the city to the water department for water used to fill the city swimming pool and water the city parks.

Peters said the practice of getting free water directly violates a city ordinance, which states no free water will be furnished to any city, county or state entity by the Jerome water department.

"It was a surprise to me when I found out about it Tuesday," said Peters, who worked for the water department when it was the privately owned Jerome Water Co.

While thumbing through the city's bills, he said he noticed only a small sprinkling bill from the water department. It was for sprinkling the streets.

Shoshone revival begins Monday

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Assembly of God will begin a revival week Monday.

Evangelist Leo Gaston of Springfield, Mo., will host the services each night from Friday at 7:30 p.m.—Sunday night services will begin at 8 p.m.

Gaston was converted to Christ in San Diego, Calif. while he was in the U.S. Navy in 1950. He has been in the Navy and since that time has pastored churches for 13 years in Nebraska, Texas and Missouri.

He has traveled as an evangelist for over 12 years preaching over 300 revivals in most states. He has also been involved in missionary evangelism in Central America.

His ministry is primarily slanted towards youth and he has spent almost nine years in many areas of youth ministry. He is noted as a Bible expositor and as a camp meeting speaker. The emphasis of his preaching is on having a deeper Christian life and a preparation for Last Day events as related in the Bible.

Rev. Robert Foster, pastor of the Shoshone church, invites anyone interested to hear these special services. The church is located at 116 W. 4th Avenue in Shoshone.

Youth events slated

TWIN FALLS — The Mariners' Group of the First United Presbyterian Church will have a work party at Camp Sawtooth Saturday, preparing the camp for summer use.

The Young Couple's Club will have a softball game at 3 p.m. Sunday at Sawtooth Elementary School.

The high school seniors, in honor of their graduation, will be presented gifts at the 11 a.m. worship service and served a breakfast at 10 in the Fireside Lounge. The sermon for Sunday's worship services, "Getaway to Heality," will be delivered by Rev. Thomas Young.

New left turn ban to aid safety

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

JEROME — Motorists in Jerome will no longer be able to make left-hand turns at the town's main intersection, under a plan adopted by the city council.

A public information meeting on the plan is scheduled for June 7 at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The plan is one of several alternatives prepared by city public works director Ed Evans to improve safety and reduce traffic congestion at the intersection of Main and Lincoln streets in the center of Jerome.

The city has sought a solution to the problems caused by drivers making left turns in the center of town for about two years, Evans said.

Problems include traffic being backed up behind vehicles waiting to turn and the danger of accidents.

City council members Tuesday picked "Plan 1," which outlaws left-hand turns at Main and Lincoln and for two blocks on Main Street before and after the intersection and for one block either way on Lincoln Street.

After the plan becomes effective following the public hearing and publication, drivers will not be able to turn left onto, or from, Lincoln Street until they reach Avenue "A" or 1st Avenue. They will not be able to turn left onto, or from, Main Avenue until they reach Birch or Buchanan Street.

"We'll probably get a lot of static," Evans said. "That's why we want public input. We want to come up with a safe traffic pattern that the public can live with."

He said the city plans to create left-hand turning lanes on Main and Lincoln for turns onto "A" and 1st avenues and Birch and Buchanan streets.

The turning lanes will mean the loss of some parking spaces on Lincoln and Main at those intersections, but Evans said the city plans to build a parking lot at South Park on the west side to compensate for the loss.

JEROME city council voted to ban left-hand turns at Main and Lincoln, the town's busiest intersection. The new adoption should relieve traffic congestion as well as prevent potential accidents.

Salary hikes ok

RICHFIELD — Richfield teachers will receive an 8 per cent raise, next year, Craig Hall, superintendent, said today.

The salary schedule was completed at a board meeting Wednesday night during which the tentative school district budget for next year was completed.

The public hearing on the budget is scheduled for June 12, the date of the June board meeting, Hall said.

The salary increase was the major item in negotiations with teachers, he said. Both health benefits and provisions for professional and sick leave will continue the same as this year.

Recreation

Summer recreation season gets underway

TWIN FALLS — A full slate of summer activities sponsored by the Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Department get into full swing in the next two weeks, according to Recreation spokesman Terry Miller.

Registration for the summer swim classes is now going on at the Harmon Park Recreation Building from 5 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Three sessions are scheduled for Harmon Park pool and Harry Barry Pool.

The first session will be from June 12 to June 23. The second from June 26 to July 9 and the last session from July 17 to July 28.

There will be classes for beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates, water hikers, swimmers, motor lifesaving, senior lifesaving, diving, adults, swim team and training classes.

If no one can be reached at the Harmon Park recreation building, more information can be obtained by calling the Parks and Recreation office at 734-0865.

For the young baseball players, registration is now going on — at the Harmon recreation building for ages first grade through 15 years old. The last day to register is May 26. League play will begin June 12 and end July 29. Playoffs will be held August 1-4 and the championship games will be played at the Jaycee Park after that.

A baseball clinic is scheduled for June 6, 7, 8 and 9 at Harmon Park. The June 5 session will be conducted by CSI Baseball Coach Jim Walker. Registration is from 9-12 and 1-5 at the Harmon recreation building. A $2 fee will be charged for registering.

Girls softball teams and players are now organizing for girls in the fourth grade through those in the ninth grade. The season will be from June 13 to July 29 with the finals and championship games to follow.

Sierra Life Insurance has donated a pitching machine to the Parks and Recreation Department — and will be available for use by appointment on Saturdays and in the evenings. There is a $3.50 per hour charge for the use of the machine and any team may use the machine.

For more information about the machine Contact Terry Miller at 734-0863.

Fishing hints: by Swen

Idaho's first trophy trout lake opens May 27

Anglers can give Idaho's first trophy trout lake a try when the general season opens. It will be on a "fish for fun" basis this year.

Crane Falls Lake, south and west of Mountain Home in Elmore County, has the new designation.

The trophy lake will be a new concept in fishing proposed in public hearings and from interviews with fishing enthusiasts at the lake in 1977.

"Trophy" fish will probably be hard to come by this, the first year. It is estimated that by the 1969 season the fish in the lake might reach the 16 inch size.

This, the 1978 season will see only the 12 to 14 inch fish.

My friend Roy Bush reports that C.J. Strike is still slow for crappie fishing. He did report some fine catches of yellow catfish.

One report from Salmon Falls creek reservoir tells me that the crappie are being caught. I haven't tried as yet. My target date for the crappie in this lake is June 10th.

With the break in the highline canal, you would assume it slowed the fishing in the Snake river. No! so into they fished last week. It seemed to stir them into feeding frenzies and the catches were good.

Explorers to hold crash derby

TWIN FALLS — Explorers and Varsity Scouts from Magic Valley and the Wood River Valley will get a chance to demonstrate the skills at wrecking a car during the Demolition Derby tomorrow at the Thunderbluff Raceway south of Twin Falls.

The Derby will begin at 5 p.m. Saturday and tickets for the event are on sale at the Scott Service Center or at the gate.

The event is sponsored by the Snake River Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Thunderbluff Raceway is next to Nat-Soo-Pah south of Twin Falls.

Caldwell to host race

CALDWELL — The Caldwell Exchange Club is now organizing an 26.2 mile Olympic distance marathon for June 24.

According to Exchange Club officials, the course is relatively flat with only two small hills. About 15 miles of the race will be on pavement while three miles is on gravel roads and 10 1/2 miles on jeep trails.

The event is sponsored by the Snake River Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Thunderbluff Raceway is next to Nat-Soo-Pah south of Twin Falls.

Weightlifting clinic planned tomorrow

TWIN FALLS — The Ball Buster Rifle Club is sponsoring a weightlifting demonstration by Jerry Engleberg tomorrow from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the club on Falls Ave. West.

Club owners say Engleberg will be posing and demonstrating weight lifting methods and will also explain diet for conditioning.

The demonstration is open to the public and there will be no charge for the effort.

The club is also sponsoring a racquetball summer camp for boys and girls 9-17 years old. The five day camp will be divided into three age groups. The youngest group will be ages nine to 12; the second 13 and the oldest 15-17.

Each class will have 12 students in it and the $27 cost of the camp will provide a lunch each day, the cost of the racquets and balls and a racquetball tee-shirt.

More information on the summer camp can be obtained by calling the club at 734-7538.

South Hills hike Saturday

MAGIC VALLEY — Hikers anxious to get a start on the summer hiking season will have an opportunity tomorrow with a 12 mile warm-up hike along the Third Fork Trail in the South Hills.

Trip leader Mike Devitt said the hike is moderately difficult and will involve an elevation gain of 2500 feet. Hikers will also cross some snow during the hike.

Those interested in making the hike should meet behind Perry Wise Drug in the Lynwood Shopping Center at 7:30 a.m. Saturday where car pools will be formed. Gasoline expenses will be shared by the riders at two cents a mile.

Hikers are asked to bring their own water, lunch and waterproof hiking boots.

More information can be obtained by calling Devitt at 734-8150.

We'll Be Happy To Explain Value and Economy For Your Tire Dollars.

These Days we all like to make sure we're getting the most for our money. That's why we'd like you to know the facts about why we believe the Michelin 'X' to be your best buy.

Michelin is the ORIGINAL Steel Belted Radial. Introduced in 1948. The first choice of millions of satisfied drivers. Because of its radial design the Michelin 'X' rolls with less road resistance than conventional tires; and that means you can save up to 10% of your present gas consumption (pretty good considering today's fuel crisis). Plus, every Michelin 'X' tire gives you all the distinctive radial tire advantage over conventional bias-ply tires: smoother ride, easier handling, better traction and firmer road holding. And, they add up to a lot of comfort and safety. Invest in better driving. Stop in and have a set of Michelin 'X' radials installed today.

Sneva serves notice on Indy competition

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Tom Sneva served notice late Thursday he will surrender his pole position for the Indianapolis 500 auto race without a fight this weekend by turning in the second-fastest speed of this month's practice period.

Driving his new Penske-Cosworth, the former schoolteacher from Spokane, Wash., was caught at 203.1 mph just before the oval closed for the day to become the seventh driver to surpass the magic 200 mph mark since the track opened May 6.

Only teammate Mario Andretti has gone faster in unofficial practice tests.

Thirty-five cars, one short of the season high reached last Friday, made practice runs without major mishaps, with thousands of race fans in the stands in sunny weather that pushed the temperature to 64 by mid-afternoon.

The forecast for Friday, the last full day of practice for this year's race, called for sunny and a top reading in the low 80s. No rain was forecast before the start of the weekend.

The time trials, washed out last weekend, were scheduled to start at noon EDT Saturday and to end by late Sunday.

Sneva, Spokane, Wash., the USAC's national driving champion and runner-up last year to race winner A. F. Coy, holds the official one and four lap records of 200.555 and 196.894 mph.

Official records are set only during qualification races.

Six drivers, led by former race winner Mario Andretti, have logged unofficial practice laps of better than 200 mph, but Andretti will miss the time trials.

Andretti is in Europe for this weekend's Belgian Grand Prix, so car owner Roger Penske contracted with Mike Hiss to qualify Andretti's car.

"Mike was available and he'll do a good job for us," Penske said. "We'd rather not mess around with Mario's chances to win the world driving title."

However, Andretti will have to start the 1981 Indianapolis 500 with the car.

John Mahler made his first appearance on the track as Spike Gobhaussner's teammate and, after three warm-up laps, passed 180 mph.

"I didn't push the car, I know there are several more miles in it," Mahler said. "I knew when the car arrived at the Speedway that it was ready to go and I had expected to reach that kind of speed after just

Clear Lakes Fishing opens on Saturday

BUHL — The lake of the lunkers, Clear Lakes, opens to public fishing at 5 a.m. Saturday with the usual fees and regulations intact.

The lake, which traditionally harbors the big ones from the surrounding commercial hatcheries, is expected to yield its usual run of five to eight-pounders and three-pounders in profusion.

Salary Francis, manager of the Clear Lakes Country Club, said no fees will be accepted at the clubhouse until 3 a.m. Saturday. An Idaho fishing license is required. The limit is six fish.

without size limit. Treadpass fee is $4 per fish.

The Idaho Fish and Game department will have a large force of enforcement officials there. The lake is opened prior to the general opening of next week to allow extra enforcement on the Clear Lakes because of the waning waste of fish by anglers who become size conscious, skipping the larger fish and throwing away the smaller ones instead of keeping when their number limits have been reached.

Three comebacks warm hearts of major leagues' faithful

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comebacks are always among the more heartwarming sightlines to the baseball season, and this year American League fans are privileged to be witnessing three of them — one in the embryonic stage, another which might be considered more of a renaissance and the other which is now stretching over two seasons.

Left-hander David Clyde, the onetime 18-year old phenom — for the Texas Rangers who was dealt to the Cleveland Indians this spring, won his first game since May 15, 1974 last Tuesday, limiting Ohio's Oakland A's to just four hits while striking out seven and walking only one.

According to Clyde, now 23, ex-Texas manager Billy Martin is as much to blame for his three-year slump as the nerve-injury in his left shoulder which required surgery.

"Billy Martin completely destroyed my confidence," Clyde charges. "He didn't allow me to pitch at Texas or even work on things on the mound. When I was finally allowed to work on the side for the first time, I bounced a curve in the dirt and Martin came out and said 'Sit down.'"

"When he allowed me to pitch in a game, as soon as the first man got a hit, he'd have two guys warming up in the bullpen..."

Almost overlooked in the early-season success of the Oakland A's and their remarkable "middle-corps" of rookie pitchers has been the gradual comeback of veteran right-hander Joe Coleman. The last time — most fans noticed, Coleman was winning 20, 19 and 23 games in 1971-73 Detroit Tigers before falling victim to an arm injury and drifting to the National League.

Last season, Coleman wound up with Charlie Finley's last place Oakland Indians but he appears to be as a spot starter and reliever, Coleman was 4-4 last year, while his earned run average of 2.96 was his lowest in five years.

In his first 15 innings this season — all in relief, Coleman is 3-0 and has yet to give an earned run.

"My arm is still not as strong as I'd like it to be," says the 32-year-old Coleman, "but control and my fastball are getting me by right now. My fastball is a sinker, but the biggest thing is 'rejuvenated.'"

"When you're pitching out of the bullpen, you can't mess around. I used to mess 'em down when I was younger. Now, however, I'm trying to change speeds and I'm getting ahead of the batter, giving me a chance to throw my pitch."

What is the impact relief pitchers are having in baseball today, can you imagine what might have happened had the Red Sox and Yankees not swung what looked to be a "minor" deal back in March of 1972? That was when the Yankees sent utilityman Danny Cater to Boston for Sparky Lyle, who had the Red Sox wouldn't have given over the past few years to have that one vetoed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bill Lee, the Red Sox's resident southpaw "spaceman" who is off to a 6-0 start this year and has apparently regained the form which enabled him to win 17 games for three straight seasons, was talking about the Lyle trade after nothing his 90th career victory for the Red Sox this week.

The 90 victories pushed Lee past Babe Ruth on the all-time Red Sox victory list. But it will be recalled, also, was sent to the Yankees in a trade that had a major impact on the pennant races for years to come.

"If they had traded me to the Yankees instead of Lyle, I wonder how many home runs I'd have hit by now," said Lee, alluding to Ruth's accomplishments after leaving Boston for New York. "They wouldn't have needed Reggie Jackson that's for sure. I used to be able to hit until Bowie Kuhn, Charlie Finley and those other sports-casters came along with the designated hitter."

Thus, the White Sox with pitchers Wilbur Wood and Lerrin LaRoz among their more coveted chaffers; the Padres, still hopeful of jangling a package for Tenace or even slugger Dave Winfield; and the Twins, unable to ex-pect to be in the heat of the 11th hour bargaining. Look for some of the contending clubs to land a couple of those "big name" types in exchange for more minor league hopefuls than proven commodities.

Adv for PMs Friday and thereafter.
