

Mountain of popcorn balls helps college prospect

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The sale of 1,100 gooey popcorn balls will make Woodrow Whitehead's college education a bit easier.

Twenty-seven fourth graders at Harrison Elementary School in Twin Falls will send Whitehead, a Shoshone Indian, the money from their popcorn ball sale to help him attend the College of Southern Idaho this fall.

The story of Woodrow Whitehead's scholarship drive began in February, when the students in Mrs. Judy Watson's class read the book "I Want To Help."

That book, the true story of a young girl born into poverty, and her struggles to obtain an education, inspired the students, Mrs. Watson said. "They decided they wanted to help someone like her."

After a class discussion, the students voted to form a corporation, quickly dubbed 'Ode Popcorn Mercantile."

By selling stock in the corporation to students and teachers, the students raised $29.

That money was used to buy the popcorn and materials for making popcorn balls, Mrs. Watson said. "We made 1,100 of them," she added, "800 at one time and 300 at another." The popcorn balls were sold both at school and at a basketball tournament.

During that process, the students who had been studying Idaho history — decided they wanted their money to help an Idaho Indian.

With an assist from former Twin Falls mayor Paul Oxtyn, Woodrow Whitehead was located.

Whitehead, a Shoshone Indian from Mountain City, Nev., will be attending the College of Southern Idaho this fall, to study agriculture.

Thursday, Whitehead was told he would be the recipient of a $75 scholarship — the end result of a mountain of popcorn balls and a three-month corporate sales effort.

Mrs. Watson said she was "very proud" of her students, but added "it may be a while" before she eats another popcorn ball.

LENNY WHITE, 13, EXAMINES TOY ROULETTE WHEELS IN ATLANTIC CITY ... gambling fever found throughout resort area as first casino opens today

Nevada warns New Jersey gaming sharps head east

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Nevada welcomed Atlantic City to the world of legal gambling casinos by warning officials there that local sharpies have packed up and headed east.

Many of the hoodlums and cheaters who prey on legal gambling have left town for Atlantic City, said Gary Alrazi, chief of enforcement for the Nevada Gaming Control Board.

"They've been waiting for the opening and they want to give it a chance," Alrazi said Thursday.

The con artists may be surprised to find they are already known in Atlantic City, he said.

"We've made New Jersey pretty much aware of the identities. I think they're ready."

Nevada gambling figures wished Atlantic City good luck, saying they have no fears of significant competition, but they do fear unpleasant consequences if New Jersey flops.

"Their failure in any way will reflect on gaming in general," said Harry Reid, chairman of the Nevada Gaming Commission. "I hope they get started in the right direction and do not weaken their controls in any manner."

The fear in Nevada is that any scandal will bring down federal regulations, which Nevada has resisted for years.

On the other hand, if the Atlantic City experiment goes well, it will open possible avenues of expansion for the wealthy, well established gambling industry centered in Las Vegas.

This morning, New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne officially launched the gambling era with a ribbon cutting, but crowds ignored the ceremonies and rushed to the slot machines and gaming tables.

Irene Iaconelli of Atlantic City, one of those at the head of the pack, needed only two quarters to collect a $50 jackpot and screamed in delight.

Nevada law previously prohibited locally licensed casino operators from having gambling interests outside the state. But, with an eye on Atlantic City, the law was amended in 1977 allowing expansion to New Jersey or other states — if the other states casinos are free from gangster influences.

"We wish them good luck," said Edward Bowers, executive director of the Nevada Gaming Association, an organization of casino owners.

"Some people have indicated an interest in foreign jurisdictions. But before they can go, the foreign jurisdiction must prove it has an adequate control system. We hope they are very successful in keeping out hoodlums."

The financial impact on Nevada will be small, Bowers said.

A study made two years ago shows that no more than three percent of the customers in Nevada casinos come from the East Coast, he said.

End nuclear arms output: Gromyko

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko called today for an end to the production of "all types of nuclear weapons" and proposed that all five nuclear powers begin talks aimed at the "complete destruction" of their stockpiles.

Gromyko also told the United Nations that Vice President Walter Mondale's charge of an increased Soviet nuclear threat against Western Europe was a "trumped-up" charge and that the United States was the bigger danger with its "particularly vicious and cruel" neutron bomb.

But the Russian spoke warmly of the prospects for an early signing of a new strategic arms limitation agreement with the United States — a subject he will take up later this week in Washington with President Carter. "Many of the difficulties have been overcome," Gromyko said.

Gromyko fully called for "cessation of the production of all types of nuclear weapons," an end to development of new types of conventional arms and a halt to the expansion of armies around the world as steps toward what the General Assembly special session is seeking — world disarmament.

The Soviet Union "proposes that talks on the cessation of the production of all types of nuclear weapons and gradual reduction of their stockpiles up to their complete destruction get under way," Gromyko said.

He said it is up to the five nuclear powers — Soviet Union, United States, Britain, France and China — to take the lead, and insisted "all the nuclear powers must take part" in such talks.

That posed an immediate problem. China has given no indication it has any intention of working with the Soviet Union or anyone else in cutting back nuclear arms.

Gromyko had particularly harsh words for the neutron bomb, which the United States is considering developing. "This is a particularly vicious and cruel means of mass destruction," and Moscow favors its "complete prohibition."

Released patients forgotten

WASHINGTON — The House Select Committee on Aging released a report today showing that over the last eight years there has been a "wholesale discharge" of mental patients from state hospitals into old hotels and private boarding houses supported by federal welfare payments.

The system, as described by one committee staff member, "is incredibly simple. You just take a guy outside, put him on the bus and say, 'Go home, Harry, you're cured.'"

Commenting on the report, which shows that the population of state mental hospitals has dropped from 427,709 in 1969 to 150,830 in 1977, committee Chairman Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., asserted that many of the discharged patients "are not receiving the care and services that they need" and that some are simply being "forgotten."

Yet, despite the drop in state institution populations, the costs for mental health treatment by states has doubled from $2.2 billion in 1969 to $4.4 billion in 1977, the committee report notes.

The places where the former patients wind up are called a variety of names, including "board and care homes," and "foster homes." Unlike nursing homes, which are regulated, in most states there are no standards for boarding homes, according to the report.

The facilities often make a profit, the report said by receiving part or all of the patient's Supplemental Security Income check, which comes from a Social Security program providing aid for the elderly, blind and disabled.

Duluth firm sending lower cost greeting

DULUTH, Minn. (UPI) — To beat the increase in postal rates, the Inter-City Oil Co. Thursday began mailing Christmas cards to its 15,000 customers.

Harold Bach, executive vice president, conceded the company had more than the Christmas spirit and higher postage in mind.

"We've been trying to develop creative promotions," he said. "This one seems novel enough. We think our customers will see the humor in it and think well of our company. We like to try something different."

The message on the envelope says, "Who's the nut sending Xmas cards this time of year?"

The six-by-nine card's only suggestion of Christmas is a border of holly and red and green print with the words: "Because the day of the 13-cent stamp air floating we are sending you now our Christmas greeting."

The card carries a sketch of Ben Franklin, the first U.S. postmaster general, with his quotation, "A penny saved is a penny earned."

Canyon yields bones

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Blaine county sheriff's officers recovered Thursday portions of a human skeleton.

The remains were found scattered in heavy brush in a canyon northwest of Hailey.

Blaine County Deputy Sheriff Ray Wheeler said the skeleton was discovered near the old Eureka silver and lead mine in Bullion Canyon seven miles from Hailey.

The first signs of the skeleton were found by a Baldy Eye man who was riding a motorcycle in the canyon Tuesday, according to Wheeler.

The deputy said Kenneth R. ... discovered the skull of the skeleton which he had parked his motorcycle and was hiking in the area.

The sheriff's department was later notified and officers, searching the canyon area Thursday, discovered about 1/3 of the skeleton.

They had to discontinue the search for the rest of the remains because of a heavy snowstorm, Wheeler said.

Wheeler said it was difficult to determine whether foul play had befallen the dead person, because there were only skeletal remains.

"All we know is that we've got some bones right now," Wheeler said.

Abducted girl weeps as Rome police arrest kidnapper

GIOVANNA AMATI
her rapport grew

ROME (UPI) — He claimed the kidnapped teen-age girl in a small wooden cage for 73 days, pocketed her father's million-dollar ransom and then sent her red roses and love letters signed "Gym Sneakers."

Today he is in jail.

"I can't understand why he would fall in love with me — a man like that, so mature and with such an excellent life," said Giovanna Amati, 18, daughter of a wealthy Rome cinema magnate and one of Italy's 20 kidnap victims this year.

Her alleged jailer, a Marinese gangster named Jean Daniel Nieto, 31, was arrested Wednesday after a wild shootout amid the cafes on the elegant Via Veneto. He was charged with abduction and rape.

Police — her name means "loved" — screamed abuse at police as they tackled Nieto and burst into tears when they dragged him away.

"I only wish they had arrested him in another way — without using me as bait," said the girl who was seized by three masked gunmen Feb. 12 while out on a date with 17-year-old Prince Umberto Barberini Colonna.

Miss Amati, who had kept journalists at bay since her release April 27, agreed Thursday to discuss her "rapport" with Nieto.

"Gym Sneakers — that was my pet name for him," she said, nervously lighting cigarette after cigarette.

"I was afraid and he comforted me when I cried and talked to me and told me stories about his life. Of course a rapport grew up between us." Miss Amati said, adding that Nieto "defended me against the other members of the band."

Police, not impressed, noted that the kidnappers had threatened to gang rape the girl, record her cries and send the tape to parents unless they paid a $933,000 ransom.

"Whether there was consent or not does matter," police said. "Miss Amati was in a state of profound mental and physical subjection."

The girl's parents, who own 50 cinemas around Rome, used box-office receipts from the popular film "Star Wars" to pay the ransom, but when Giovanna returned home she was cold and refused their kisses and hugs.

"When she was freed, Giovanna was the only person in the family who was not happy," said her mother.

When the bouquets of red roses, the love letters and the secret telephone calls began to arrive, the girl's parents became suspicious and alerted police who tapped the family's telephone.

"She had been brainwashed," said her mother. "Even Giovanna understands that now and I convinced her to help the police."

Miss Amati said that she warned Nieto it was dangerous to meet and to hold him "it's best for both of us if we don't see each other."

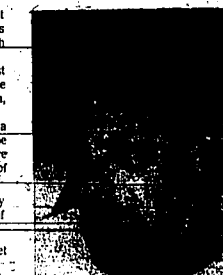

"I prefer to go to jail than never to cast my eyes on you again," she said the Frenchman, married with two children, answered.

Nieto insisted on a rendezvous on the Via Veneto and told Giovanna, "I'll be wearing a crash helmet so in case there are pistol shots I'll have a better chance of at least seeing your face once more."

She agreed and, as instructed, slowly rode her red motorbike down the street of luxury shops and cafes.

He spotted her and rushed into the street waving gaily.

Bury arms encircled him and shots rang out as he reached for his gun... a Frenchman had learned the pitfalls of love.

Get rid of nuclear arms, Soviets say

Although the neutron bomb is on the drawing boards, Carter has suspended its outright development. The Russians have called the suspension a "half-measure."

Without mentioning him by name, Gromyko lashed at Mondale's contention in the vice president's address to the General Assembly Wednesday that the Soviet Union was building up its threat against Western Europe by deployment of its triple-warhead nuclear SS-20 missile.

"In a word," said Gromyko, "that argument is introduced to confound the issue by invoking the very same trumped-up 'Soviet threat.' Is it not true that American nuclear and missile systems can be launched in any way, yet first and foremost in the easily predictable direction?"

Also speaking on the third day of the Assembly's disarmament debate was West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who was to emphasize the need for international "confidence building" to bolster disarmament.

In the afternoon, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was expected to concentrate on the need for immediate nuclear disarmament.

Gromyko listened stone-faced Wednesday when Mondale depicted the Soviet SS-20 nuclear missile "now being deployed against western Europe" as a "substantial increase in the nuclear threat of the Soviet Union."

In his reply, Gromyko is expected to recall a recent statement by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev blaming "politicized generals and bellicose politicians" at NATO for the "effortless notions" about the alleged threatening military preponderance of the states of the Warsaw pact.

On the other hand, the Soviet foreign minister is expected to stress the progress recently made in SALT meetings.

In the Assembly Thursday, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing proposed the creation of a satellite monitoring agency to keep tabs on how well the nuclear powers comply with arms limitation accords.

He also urged the Soviet Union and the United States to "let other European nations participate in their nuclear disarmament talks" and suggested the creation of an all-African force to put down local insurgents to exclude foreign intervention on the continent.

Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua will address the Assembly Monday.

RACE DRIVERS POSE WITH REPLICA OF INDY 500 RACE CAR
... Rick Mears, Danny Ongais, Tom Sneva and model in hot demand

Indy models in demand

DETROIT (UPI) — They're known as the "Indy Vettes" and until a few weeks ago only a handful of car dealers and auto buffs knew of them.

Now, the 6,500 limited-edition Chevrolet Corvettes — replicas of the official pace car at this year's Indianapolis 500 — are among the most sought after cars around.

Some avid Corvette enthusiasts have been willing to pay twice the sticker price of $13,633.21. And that may be just the beginning. Dealers are predicting the cars may be going for $50,000 within a year.

Chevrolet, in what was intended as a promotion of Corvette's 25th anniversary and its selection as the official Indy 500 pace car, built just enough of the sleek black-and-silver special editions to guarantee one for each Chevrolet dealership.

The cars come equipped with a 350-cubic-inch engine, automatic or four-speed manual transmission, racing-like accoutrements, contour bucket seats and loads of options.

But before the cars even began rolling off the assembly lines earlier this spring, a relatively few money-wise entrepreneurs who foresaw the potential demand for the cars began a frenzied nationwide scramble to buy them up from other dealers at premium prices.

Armand Yerdone Jr., a 23-year-old car dealer from Scottsdale, Ariz., began contacting other dealers last winter, offering up to $17,800 for the yet-to-be-built Indy Corvettes. He netted 100 of them, and now expects to clear $300,000 selling them for an average $30,000 each.

"We've had a few dealers who tried to back out on the deals once they saw where the prices were going, even after I put down a deposit," Yerdone said. "We had to file 37 lawsuits, but we haven't had to go to court on any of them."

Paul Hausen, manager of Vintage Motor Car Co. near Columbus, Ohio, ran into some of the same trouble after he bought 12 of the cars, some for as little as $12,500 — about $500 over factory invoice.

"Now they're screaming," Hausen said.

He said he already has sold some of the cars, "mostly to doctors, lawyers and other professionals — people with money."

"I had one guy say he built a special garage, air-tight with a dehumidifier, and plans to keep his car there," Hausen said. "He was a little eccentric."

Hausen said he plans take a few of the cars to Indianapolis for the race in hopes of finding "some fat cats there who will be buyers."

"I expect to see oodles of the cars on the day of the race," he said. "When people see the pace car, it will increase demand and boost the price maybe another $5,000. That is — unless it blows its engine or loses a wheel or something. That would be terrible."

French out of Kolwezi

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — French Foreign Legion paratroopers were leaving Kolwezi today without rescuing any of the 60 white hostages reportedly seized or seven legionnaires rebels say they have captured.

The legionnaires made final sweeps in search of rebels around Kolwezi Thursday before beginning the pullback to the Shaba province capital, Lumbumbashi, 170 miles southeast of Kolwezi, for a few days of rest before returning to France.

The withdrawal of French troops a week after they parachuted into Kolwezi to rescue 2,500 trapped whites left the battered mining town in the hands of a about 60 Zairean soldiers backed by up to 100 Moroccans.

The city itself, ravaged by nine days of rebel occupation and a massacre of nearly 200 whites, was showing some signs of recovery with the restoration of electricity and the arrival of engineers to survey the copper mines, the backbone of Zaire's economy.

Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko told a Paris news conference his soldiers were under orders to clear the border area of civilians, establishing a "no-man's land" in areas used by retreating rebels.

He said Zairean troops were under orders to "shoot anything on sight" in a 65-mile area along the border.

Mobutu said he had not been officially notified of the French withdrawal but praised France as the only Western nation to come to his country's aid in the second invasion of Shaba province by exiled Katangese militiamen in 14 months.

Boise joins food trial

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A pilot program to be tested in 10 areas of the nation will give school districts a chance to purchase their own food instead of relying on food provided by the government for lunch programs.

Under the program announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture this week, the federal government will contribute 12% cents to the districts for each school lunch. Currently the government provides districts with food instead of money.

The 10 school districts, to begin the program this fall, are: St. Louis, Mo.; Greeley, Colo.; Hutchinson, Kan.; Oakland, Calif.; Boise, Idaho; Dayton, Ohio; Williamsville, N.Y.; Shpley, Fla.; Riverside, Iowa; and Jessor, Ark.

"I think they'll (USDA) be a course be looking and seeing whether or not the local districts have the capability of purchasing foods on their own and receiving quantities and quality comparable to what they received in commodities," said Wilbert Grammensch, director of school food service for the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.

"The feeling has always been among many that the large districts could probably buy at about as good a price as the government and would have better control of the quantities that they receive," Grammensch said. "They could make their purchases when they want them."

The 12% cents per lunch represents between 20 and 25 percent of the total cost for an average school lunch. The balance is made from state and local taxes.

Newsman fits into new role

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Make that the Honorable Fast Eddie from now on.

Actor Paul Newman, who has played everything from the amiable outlaw Dutch Cassidy to the pool shark Fast Eddie, has found a new role as a U.S. delegate to the U.N. General Assembly's special session on disarmament.

His name appears on the list of U.S. representatives to the conference as "The Honorable Paul Newman, Westport, Conn.," behind such diplomatic heavies as Ambassador Andrew Young and W. Averell Harriman, the 86-year-old veteran negotiator.

Newman sits with his fellow honorables at the U.S. table in the center aisle of the General Assembly hall, listening intently over the texts of speeches as they are delivered by a parade of presidents, prime ministers and chancellors.

His suit is diplomatically dull — plain-stripe grey and his demeanor serious.

Sometimes he will scribble notes furiously or hustle with Harriman and Young to discuss a point.

Sometimes he will fix his gaze on the podium to avoid the ogles of the floorwalkers who, of course, have to know if his eyes really are that blue and if he really is that short.

Yes, they are, and no, he isn't.

And he apparently is mastering the diplomat's art of being slow and careful on the draw as evidenced by his comments following a meeting Thursday with his Soviet counterparts and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

What had they talked about? Newman pauses to look at the sidewalk.

"We didn't talk business. We just got together to meet and we hope to be meeting again as the session continues." A quick change of subject. "You know I used to live down the block here."

Did he expect genuine progress toward disarmament to come from the session?

Another pause. "It's hard to tell now. You can't tell how a football game is going to come out on the first kickoff."

Why should he be on the delegation? Newman points out that other performers such as Shirley Temple Black and Pearl Bailey have represented the United States at the United Nations in the past.

Is diplomacy harder than facing a camera?

The mischievous Newman smiles and spreads over his face. "Yes, it is more unswerving. But perhaps Mr. Gromyko would see it the other way around."

Silver City property owners rip BLM plan

BOISE (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management was accused at a public hearing in Boise Thursday with trying to put in "bondage" the people who own property in Silver City in Owyhee County.

In testimony at a BLM hearing over management of the area, those involved with property in the area told a hearing officer that the bureau was going in the wrong direction.

The BLM and owners of property are in disagreement over management of the area.

Wilma Stahlman of Boise, who owns property at Silver City, charged the bureau with "flagrant violation." She also said the federal agency valued the land more than it did the people who owned property there.

She charged the BLM with putting the people in "bondage" with proposed recommendations for management of the area.

Mrs. Stahlman said at one point the BLM didn't really care about the area and suddenly took an interest in it and then decided that the agency should get involved and have the property owners sign leases.

She said they will not accept the lease agreements submitted by the BLM because they have been submitted in "bad faith."

Mrs. Stahlman said the agency had been "hit-picking" and bargaining in a "flagrant manner."

Clarence Orton, Boise, president of the Silver City Taxpayers Association, said the proposals recommended by the BLM would destroy the area.

Air controllers threaten slowdown

WASHINGTON — The president of the union representing air traffic controllers has predicted that his members may start wildcat job actions that could slow down air traffic during the holiday weekend.

Air controllers are complaining that three international airlines have failed to honor a clause in their new contract.

Midwest simmers, plains wet

By United Press International

Summer temperatures gripped the Midwest up to the Canadian border as the nation headed into the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Minneapolis thermometers reached 94 degrees Thursday, breaking a record of 88 set last year. It was 93 in St. Cloud, and 85 in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., on the Canadian border, both surpassing marks set in 1914.

Chicago had an official 84, the warmest day since last autumn. The area is under its third ozone watch of the year and the neighboring area in Wisconsin north to Milwaukee was placed under an ozone alert Thursday.

Nighttime temperatures in the Midwest stayed warm.

Southwest deserts had highs in the 80s Thursday. It was cool over the Plateau region and along the Pacific Coast, with readings in the 50s and 60s.

The Plains had more rain. Heavy thunderstorms occurred over the Dakotas, western Kansas and West Texas Thursday night. Three tornadoes struck around Bismarck, N.D., one destroying a house at Madam. Wind gusts up to 70 mph overturned several mobile homes at Fort Stockton, Texas.

Three and a half inches of rain fell at Grand Meadow, Minn. More than 3 inches of rain fell at Medicine Lodge, Kan.

Law study backed

BOISE (UPI) — An interim study of Idaho's public depository law can be beneficial to the people if those with varying views can work out liveable compromises. State Treasurer Marvin W. Rath Moon said today.

Rath said a legislative interim committee provides a place where the community and representatives of various legal entities can sit down and work out laws benefiting the taxpayers without becoming burdensome.

"I welcome such a cooperative effort, because in the past many times each of us has gone our own way in proposing legislation with the result that a proposal which solves one entity's problem only compounds it for other entities which it would also involve," he said.

PRESIDENT CARTER SHAKES HANDS WITH WELCOMING CROWD IN ILLINOIS ... he arrived at home of Rev. James Wall in Elmhurst to spend the night

Carter pushes for ERA passage

CHICAGO (UPI) — For the first time, President Carter has taken his campaign for the Equal Rights Amendment directly to a state legislature that will vote on the issue.

Carter interrupts a largely partisan political trip to Illinois and West Virginia today by standing before a joint session of the Illinois Legislature and urge it to pass the ERA.

The president flew to Springfield, the Illinois capital, early this morning to address the legislature. Later in the day he went to Charleston, W.Va., to campaign for Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., who faces a tough re-election battle this year against former Republican Gov. Arch Moore.

"Today you play a part in one of the great debates of our day," Carter said in remarks prepared for delivery in Springfield and released by the traveling White House press office in Chicago.

"Your own state constitution is one of the few in the nation which includes a provision guaranteeing equal rights to all citizens, men and women alike.

"I hope that you will carry out your historic responsibility by voting to add an Equal Rights Amendment to the federal Constitution as well," Carter said.

To date, 35 states have ratified ERA and three more are needed to make it part of the Constitution. The Illinois House is expected to vote on it within the next month and ERA backers see Illinois as the best prospect on their list.

Both houses of the legislature previously have passed ERA, but not in the same year.

Carter has pushed actively for ERA since his election, but his efforts, including a telephone campaign last year to lawmakers in North Carolina and Florida, failed to win over any states.

In the past week, the top women in the administration, including first lady Rosalynn Carter, asked leaders of the women's movement what they wanted them to do in the final drive for ERA. Their offer was rejected by pro-ERA forces who thought pressure from Washington so far had done more harm than good.

Under current law, ERA must be ratified by next March, when the seven-year time limit expires, although there is an effort in Congress to win an extension.

Keeping African nations from Soviet orbit goal

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Carter wants freedom to send aid to African nations to head off their turning to the Soviet Union — but finds no comparison between that and the early measures which ended in all-out U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Carter denied he was preoccupied with a fear of Communism on the huge continent. He said he believed the United States should correct its unfairness in establishing friendly trade relations with the black nations.

"I think in many instances, they would rather have a democratic friend than a totalitarian friend. I want to make sure they have that option," Carter said Thursday in a regional news conference which was televised and broadcast nationally.

His opening statement was about the African situation and the restrictions which limit his right to respond to requests for American help, and the subject dominated the half-hour question and answer session.

Asked if he had no worries that, if Congress broadens his authority to meet the Soviet-Cuban African challenge, the United States might become slowly embroiled in a conflict similar to Vietnam.

"I don't think there's any comparison at all," he replied.

He said in his opinion if President Lyndon Johnson, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard Nixon and John Kennedy were in office now, "having experienced the Vietnam war, they would be very cautious not to become involved militarily."

"And I feel the same way," he said. "We're talking here about the kind of law that says we cannot give a country any aid or even a loan if it does not have a democratic government like ours."

Carter was sharply critical of the communist-sympathizing governments of Cuba and Angola, charging the Cubans trained and equipped the Katangans who invaded Zaire from an Angolan base in recent days at great loss of life.

Carter sought to put to rest reports he might seek aid for opposition forces in Angola. He said he had "no intention of getting involved in the conflict in Angola," and does not now plan to seek to modify the Clark amendment prohibiting U.S. aid of any kind to the former Portuguese colony.

Steel's help in fight expected

DALLAS (UPI) — White House inflation counselor Robert Strauss says he expects the steel industry to cooperate with the administration's attempts to stop inflation despite a warning by the chairman of U.S. Steel that prices might go up another 7 percent.

U.S. Steel Chairman Edgar B. Spear said Wednesday the industry might raise prices by 7 percent if Carter cannot stop inflation but Strauss said Strauss said he expected the steel industry to cooperate with attempts to halt price increases.

"I'm somewhat surprised he did not see fit to contact me about the price hikes," Strauss said. "They certainly would be counterproductive."

"We're prepared to sit down and talk with them. We're trying to give them every consideration. But it is a two-way street of cooperation. I still expect them to do the same."

When there is evidence is irresponsible union demands or industry offers, Strauss said, "we will speak out sharply and loudly."

Breakout plan link not known

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — She was a teen-age street child who later became an Army air traffic controller and graduate psychology student.

But the most fitting epithet for Barbara Oswald may well be: She had the wrong friends.

Authorities are trying to determine the links between the 32-year-old Mrs. Oswald, a mother of five and the three federal prison inmates she died trying to free in a daring helicopter escape attempt Wednesday.

The Justice Department Thursday identified the three inmates at the Marion, Ill., prison as skyjackers Martin McNally and Garrett Trapnell, and James Johnson, who is serving time for bank robbery.

Mrs. Oswald was shot to death by the pilot of the helicopter she chartered for $500. She said she wanted to see some islands in the Mississippi River but hijacked the chopper to the prison at gunpoint.

The pilot, Allan Barklage, who flew combat missions in Vietnam, grabbed her gun as the craft looped out of control, and as he later said, "just kept pulling the trigger 'til I saw her slump over."

Officials trying to piece the incident together looked for clues in the life of Mrs. Oswald — a story that has all the twists of a Hollywood inspirational drama.

When she was 14, Mrs. Oswald ran away from a Lutheran home for children and was arrested several times on prostitution charges in St. Louis in the 1960s but never convicted.

St. Louis County Police Capt. Jack Patty said she was a friend of Theodore Dilsen, who serving life sentences in the Missouri state penitentiary at Jefferson City for killing two young prostitutes in 1964.

Mrs. Oswald joined the Army in 1968 and was an air traffic controller at various bases until becoming a recruiter in St. Louis in 1973.

New Ways To Save & Invest

Effective June 1, 1978, the Twin Falls Bank & Trust Co. will additionally offer to banking customers a new type of time certificate of deposit. The "Money Market Certificate" will be issued in minimum denominations of $10,000 with a 6 month maturity. The interest rate will be the average auction yield for 6 month U.S. Treasury Bills in the weekly auction held just prior to the issuance of the certificate.

The Bank will continue to make available to customers all other savings instruments at the highest rates allowed by regulatory authority.

Federal regulations prohibit the payment of any certificate prior to maturity unless three months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate.

Italian terrorists strike 3 cities

ROME (UPI) — Terrorists bombed a Rom computer center and an Alfa Romeo car showroom in Pisa today and set fire to cars in Florence and Rome.

Police in Rome arrested a reputed Mafia boss on suspicion of involvement in kidnappings.

Damage in the latest round of political violence that has racked Italy for years was comparatively slight.

The bomb that hit the commercial computer center started a minor fire.

The attack on Alfa Romeo was the 22nd since the state-controlled company introduced weekend overtime instead of hiring more workers as demanded by extreme leftists.

In Florence, two night watchmen's cars were set on fire. A telephone call attributed to the attack to "Proletarian Patrols for Territorial Counterpower."

An arson attack on a private car in Rome went unclaimed.

Police arrested reputed Mafia boss

Basilio Surace in a suburban Rome apartment, saying he was suspected of having a role in a number of abductions.

Investigators said Surace, 43, was found in possession of a $25,000 check made out to the name of Renato Valanni, who is in jail awaiting trial for five abductions.

They also found an entrance card to the San-Remo casino, where police believe Surace laundered ransom money under the pretense of betting.

Police said Surace also was suspected of involvement in a 30-member ring that committed frauds worth more than $1.15 million over the past two years. Several alleged ring member were arrested this week in Rome and the southern city of Reggio Calabria.

In Sassari, Sardinia, a bomb explosion ripped out the lower shutters of a police station—damaged furniture—inside and smashed glass in adjoining buildings. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

Peking assails Viet persecution

HONG KONG (UPI) — Peking today intensified its attack on the Communist government in Hanoi with detailed charges of Vietnamese persecution of more than 72,000 Chinese residents of Vietnam who have fled to China.

Vietnamese officials in Hanoi accused the Chinese of lying about the situation, which has plunged Sino-Vietnamese relations to the lowest point since the end of French rule in Vietnam.

A report from Hanoi by the official East German news agency ADN said the Chinese had decided to withdraw thousands of technicians working on aid projects in Vietnam as a result of what Peking called "large-scale persecution" of China.

The report has not been confirmed by China or Vietnam. But it was published by a leftist newspaper in Hong Kong that takes its editorial cue from Peking.

An eyewitness account of the refugee plight was transmitted today by a correspondent of the official New China News Agency. His report also was broadcast over the national network of Peking Radio.

Television news shows in China Thursday evening devoted more than six minutes — an unusually long time for a news item — to film of refugees fleeing across the Peilun River, which separates Vietnam from south China's Kwangsi Chuang Autonomous Region.

The television film, monitored in Hong Kong, was not as graphic as the account given by VNA correspondent Ma Li.

"I mounted the dikes of the Peilun River and gazed in the direction of the Mong Cai District of Vietnam," Ma wrote. "There I saw on a stretch of open river flats, groups of Vietnamese-Chinese huddling together with their children, mothers trying to soothe their crying babies, old people sitting on the bare ground, completely exhausted.

Under the shade trees and by the bamboo groves were standing gun bearing Vietnamese soldiers, keeping a close eye on those preparing to cross the river. Some of the victims were chained and beaten by the Vietnamese soldiers and security personnel on the river flats and robbed of their belongings."

He quoted refugee accounts of incidents in which Chinese were "beaten," "badly mauled" and "cruelly mistreated" in many ways.

Arafat plan draws blast

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Radical Palestinians are opposing PLO leader Yasser Arafat's proposal to withdraw the guerrillas from Lebanese cities and adopt a lower military profile in south Lebanon.

The Palestine Liberation Organization proposed a five-point accord for cooperation with the Lebanese government Thursday, but the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine rejected it almost immediately.

The PLO proposals followed a meeting this week in Lebanese Prime Minister Selim al Hoss and a PLO delegation led by Arafat.

In an interview with the Beirut weekly al Hawad, Brig. Saad Sayel, a top military aide to Arafat, said the PLO was prepared to withdraw armed men from Lebanese cities, adopt a low military profile in south Lebanon, and refrain from using Lebanese territory to launch attacks against Israel.

The move came to an apparent bid to improve relations with the Lebanese government and the U.N. peacekeeping troops. But the PLO quickly rejected any such move and vowed to take violent action against any party that harms the Palestinian revolution.

PLO executive committee member Tala' Najj said the accord included a Palestinian agreement to cooperate with U.N. peacekeeping troops to ensure speedy Israeli withdrawal from south Lebanon.

He said the PLO emphasized its intention to "tone down the profile of its military presence" in the south and would seek to halt incidents in the area.

The PLO rejected any accord that would limit the field of armed action of the Palestinian people and vowed to "strike against all those who cause any damage to the Palestinian revolution and its reputation."

Peru cleaning house

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Peru's military regime today hunted four retired army officers as part of its growing campaign against political opponents, a drive that already has resulted in the deportation of 13 political figures.

In a related development, an army general and seven soldiers were killed and nine soldiers injured when their helicopter crashed during a search for saboteurs who allegedly planned to cut off food deliveries to Lima.

The 13 men deported — including two former Navy ministers and eight leftist leaders — were sent to Argentina, because of "their participation in recent subversive activities promoting violence," the government said Thursday.

Vance pushing hard for SALT

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is pressing for a new strategic arms agreement in a series of meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, which will culminate Saturday in talks with President Carter.

Vance met with Gromyko Thursday at the Soviet mission to the United Nations and will talk again with his Soviet counterpart today in Washington to lay the groundwork for the discussions with Carter.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators recently have been openly optimistic on the possibility of an agreement after following six years of fitful negotiations on a new treaty in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, known as SALT. But Vance, a circumspect diplomat, was more cautious.

"It's too early to say yet," Vance said, when asked whether a new agreement in which the two superpowers would reduce the number of their strategic missiles and bombers was imminent.

Vance would only say that he would be talking again with Gromyko in Washington today, following the Soviet minister's

Alliance terminates

LONDON (UPI) — The Liberal Party's decision to end a political alliance that has helped the minority Labor government in power may force Prime Minister James Callaghan to call early parliamentary elections.

Liberal leader David Steel announced Thursday that Britain's third-ranking party will pull out of a 14-month-old arrangement to back Callaghan's Labor government in Parliament when the current session ends July 31.

This meant Labor, which is 10 seats short of a majority in the House of Commons, will be faced with the possibility of defeat when the seven-session begins in October.

Cuban forces mass in Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Large concentrations of Cuban forces have been detected massing on the fringes of Ethiopia's Eritrea province in an apparent prelude to joining the war against successive guerrillas, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources also reported an Eritrean guerrilla offensive last week aimed at capturing the city of Barentu, about 100 miles from the Sudanese border, was repulsed with heavy Eritrean casualties.

USO show, dinner honor Bob Hope's 75th birthday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sparkling, star-studded entertainment on stage and via satellite was all for Bob Hope, but "Old Stu Hope" couldn't resist becoming part of the act.

Hope, celebrating his 75th birthday, laughed throughout the 3 1/2-hour presentation sponsored by the USO before 2,300 guests at the Kennedy Center Opera House and rubbed elbows in the presidential box with his old golfing buddy, Gerald Ford, and Rosalynn Carter.

But near the end of the show, John Wayne, via satellite from California, beckoned the master comedian onstage to trade quips. Hope jumped at the chance.

"Duke, I hope I look as well as you do when I'm your age," Hope said.

"You did," Wayne replied.

The cowboy actor, who recently underwent open-heart surgery, added, "I hope you live forever — and that mine is the last voice you hear."

The USO's tribute to the man who entertained the troops for years at distant outposts was taped for presentation on NBC Monday, Hope's actual birthday.

The show and a dinner that followed for 1,000 guests wound up a two-day celebration that included dinner at the White House (at USO expense) and an "amateur hour" at the Capitol in which congressmen put aside their business to crack jokes and sing songs.

Elizabeth Taylor, dressed in a smashing midnight blue pantsuit, delivered birthday greetings from Prince Charles, the Duke of Edinburgh and Pope Paul, who wished Hope "abundant divine blessings."

British Ambassador Peter Jay offered "warm congratulations and best wishes for a very happy celebration" from Queen Elizabeth, who said Hope represented the "world's laughter over darkness."

"Hope, who was born in England, did a 20-minute stint that included cracks about presidents he had known from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Jimmy Carter.

He talked about how beautiful Washington was "with the peanut trees in bloom."

how "If LBJ liked you he didn't applaud, he pulled your ears," and how FDR once told him, "The only thing we have to fear is your age."

He also included a sincere plug for the USO, reminding the audience the organization was active in peace as it was in war, providing aid and comfort for American servicemen. Hope had said earlier he expected the show would raise about $1 million for the USO.

The show opened with Pearl-Bailey singing "Hello, Bobby" to the tune of "Hello, Dolly," and included performers ranging from George C. Scott in person to a taped routine by George Burns; from Lucille Ball to Charo, and from Dorothy Lamour to Alan King.

Hope's wife, Delores, sang, "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," and Bing Crosby's wife, Kathryn Grant, spoke of the two men in introducing a medley of Bob and Bing scenes from their "Road" films.

Hope concluded the show by singing his theme song, "Thanks for the Memories," first alone and then with the assembled cast.

Today's marriages

Bliss may go amiss

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (UPI) — June is the season of rituals and rite, but more than half of those who marry will come to wish they'd said "I do!" instead of "I do."

"That may sound cruel, but it is the honest truth," says Dr. Ray E. Short, University of Wisconsin Platteville sociology professor.

Short has written a new book, "Sex, Love or Infatuation: How Can I Really Know?"

"Research shows that half of all first marriages today will end in divorce, separation, or unhappy tomorrow. Their bliss will go amiss," Short said.

Short offers three ways to avoid marrying the wrong person:

- Take plenty of time in your courtship and engagement — the longer the better.
- Get good, science-tested preparation for marriage from textbooks, marriage and family courses or qualified counselors.
- Be sure that what you have is real love that can support a long and happy relationship — not just strong sexual feelings or romantic infatuation.

"You just can't trust your feelings," Short said. "You won't somehow know it when you've found a true love. Your heart will let you down."

"Falling in love is much like getting into a tippy canoe or hammock. If you're not careful, you'll fall right back out of it again. Romantic love is 'pseudo-love' or false love. It is a kind of romantic quicksand."

During his 30 years as a researcher and teacher, Short gathered 14 clues by which he feels any sensible person can sort out a real love from a false one. Each clue is in the form of a question to ask oneself. Included are:

- How many things about the person attract you?
- How consistent is your level of interest in each other?
- How does the romance affect your personality?
- How do you see each other?
- How do parents and friends view you two?
- What about jealousy?
- How do you feel about and refer to your relationship?
- What is your overall attitude?
- If a person has real doubts but the wedding day is already set and the invitations sent out, Short advises to back out or postpone the wedding anyway.

"Don't be pressured into something you aren't sure is right," Short said. "The consequences are far too serious. Better to bear some shame and blame now than risk travail and tragedy in the months and years ahead.

"If you're not sure you're doing the right thing, postpone your permanent commitment until you are."

Abby

Should Mother lie?

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is in a home for unwed mothers, has decided to put her baby up for adoption. She's not sure who the baby's father is, so I think she's doing the right thing. (Don't you?) She doesn't even want to see the baby after it's born. She says it will be easier to forget if she doesn't.

Abby, even though it would be a lie, what harm would there be in telling her that her baby died at birth? I wouldn't ask the doctor to tell the lie—I will take all the responsibility myself. I just want the doctor and the people at the hospital where she will have the baby to back me up on my story.

My daughter has suffered enough already, and it will be much easier for her if she thinks that her baby died. Then she won't have to go through life wondering where her child is. I can see only good in this lie, but if you think I'm wrong, please tell me why and I'll do as you say. Thank you.

HEARTSICK IN SEATTLE

DEAR HEARTSICK: Although your intentions are good, you can't accomplish good through evil acts. Please, dear, abandon this diabolical scheme. Regardless of how well-intentioned it is, it's wrong.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am bragging, but my problem is that I am too attractive. When I was in high school I never had any girlfriends because they were all afraid I'd take their boyfriends away from them. When I went to work I had to quit one job after another because my bosses were forever making passes at me. Now that I am married, I have the same problem.

All of my husband's friends proposition me, and I have to tell them no. And my friends don't have any married couples to go around with because the wives are afraid of the competition. Sometimes I wish I were born ugly. What's the solution?

"RED" IN REDWOOD CITY

DEAR "RED": Face it, dear, if you aren't consciously lavishing the attentions of the opposite sex, you must be doing so unconsciously. No man in his right mind makes a pass at a statue. He needs some encouragement. A woman who has to beat off every man she meets should find out why.

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged to a very pretty girl. She's from a good family and so am I. All our friends and relatives think we are just right for each other, but the more I see of her, the more doubts I have about how this marriage would work out.

She can be sweet as honey one minute and very sullen and petty the next. She has at times revealed a side of herself that I never saw before. She's spoiled, demanding and selfish. And stubborn, too. I'm not saying I'm perfect, but I don't think I could take this girl's unpredictable moodiness for a lifetime.

What I am trying to ask, my Dear Abigail, is this: How does a gentleman break an engagement?
IN DEEP IN INDIANA

DEAR IN: The same way a lady breaks one. He simply tells his intended the kindest manner possible that he's decided to keep his bachelor button and forego the orange blossoms.

your health Hormones and hair

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I would like to know if estrogen causes a woman to grow hair on her face. Since I started taking it I feel better but I am growing hair on my face. I've asked two doctors; one said it would and one said it won't, so could you please let me know.

Dear Reader,
The main estrogen hormones will not cause you to grow hair on your face. However, some of the medicines women take after the menopause, for a variety of reasons contain combinations of hormones, including some male hormones in some preparations.

Male hormone does increase the prominence of hair on the face. You may be surprised to know you have had the same amount of hair all along but the hair shafts become thicker, darker and hence more noticeable. The very fine hair you usually have may not be noticed.

You should know that women normally have increased prominence of hair on their face at the time of the menopause and thereafter. It may also be more prominent during the onset of puberty and during pregnancy. Your increased hair prominence may be from your menopause, not your medicine.

At the time the ovaries stop, the adrenal gland becomes the major source of sex hormones. Often it produces more male hormones than female hormones. The change in balance has a lot to do with many of the changes a woman notices after the menopause. The skin may change, hair changes on the scalp, the voice may change and hair may be more apparent on the face.

When doctors give female hormones they often give enough to limit symptoms such as hot flashes. There is still an increase production of male hormone in some women from the adrenal gland and this will cause some of these changes.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 5-11, Menopause, to give you more information on female hormones and what to expect with the menopause. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
Just what is neuralgia: is it inflammation of the nerves? I have pain from the back of the neck to the left shoulder blade and around the left rib cage. My family doctor says it is neuralgia. My 87-year-old husband has rather severe pain in the back of the neck and it seems to radiate to the skull. Does not act like a headache. Could this be neuralgia, too?

Dear Reader,
Neuralgia means pain along the course of one or more nerves, usually in a periodic fashion. Since you have innumerable nerves you can have neuralgia almost anywhere.

If a nerve between the ribs is involved the pain will be between the ribs and it is called intercostal neuralgia. If it involves the trigeminal nerve over the jaw area it is trigeminal neuralgia. Neuralgia is also classified as to its cause. If a diabetic has pain in a nerve because of changes associated with diabetes it might be called diabetic neuralgia.

Unless the disease causing the neuralgia is identified the term neuralgia is merely descriptive. You could have neuralgia because of changes in your spine, if the nerve roots in that area are under pressure. The same could be true of your husband if he has arthritic changes in the neck. Your doctor probably has a pretty good idea of what is causing your pain and what he can or cannot do for it.

'Celebration '78' opens May 31

Little Theater group offers a variety of entertainment

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Celebration '78," a dinner theater production by the Magic Valley Little Theater group, will bring area theatergoers a variety of entertainment from vaudeville to Broadway.

The fifth annual such production by the Little Theater organization will open May 31 in the Blue Lakes Inn and continue through four nightly performances.

The production will be given in a three-quarter round setting, Esther Nicholson, group president, explained. Guests will begin arriving at 6 p.m. for a cocktail hour and seating. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and the show opens at 8:15 p.m.

Tickets must be reserved by calling 734-3037. Mrs. Nicholson said each night's performance will be available to a limited number of persons because of seating space. She suggested those attending make ticket reservations early.

This spring's cast includes a number of Little Theater favorites from earlier shows and some new talent as well. A father-son team will be appearing this year. Art Frantz, a long time Little Theater performer, is joined by his son, Matt Frantz, in this year's show. There is also a husband-wife team in the show, Tim and Pam Schmidt, who will be appearing together. Another husband-wife team is Dick Hassell and Mary Ann Hassell. Mary Ann is working in costume design and will not be appearing in the show cast, however.

Other members of the production cast include Kathy Jones, Sharron Wood, Kim Waker, Castleford, Becky Hopkins, Buhl, Ernest Stites, Wendell, and Alice Anderson and Wes Harris.

Nick Nielson is director of the cast and Diane VanEngelen is choreographer. Jan Olson is pianist and Stites will play banjo.

There will be chorus numbers, song and dance routines, instrumentals, piano solos and a number of vaudeville type skits during the fast moving show which will last about an hour.

Three screens used

'Gays' push for ordination

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Two homosexuals, whose requests to become ministers of the Presbyterian church led to a specific ban on ordaining unrepentant homosexuals, say they will keep trying to overturn the church rule.

"I will still be a Presbyterian and I will be ordained some day," William Silver declared Tuesday.

The night before, the church's general assembly declared homosexuality a sin and ruled that practicing homosexuals cannot be ordained ministers.

Silver helped set off the process two years ago when he applied to the New York City Presbytery for ordination, making clear that he had a male lover and intended to continue life as a homosexual.

Silver, an arranger of outdoor art shows in New York, said he will again apply to church authorities there for ordination, arguing that the general assembly declaration was advisory and not mandatory.

"I hope it will come to a vote (again) within a year," said Silver, a leader of Presbyterians for Gay Concerns.

The 650 delegates to the general assembly repeatedly voted down motions that would have weakened the rejection of homosexual candidates for the ministry, including those that would have left the decision to local church leaders.

Chris Glaser, another homosexual applicant for ordination, said "there is more to come."

"We keep reminding our people that what is said at a single assembly is not necessarily God's kingdom or God's future," said Glaser, a staff member at the North Hollywood Presbyterian Church.

Silver said the delegates who rejected homosexual ministers succumbed to "fear and narrowness" and he charged the assembly had been "stacked" against them.

The General Assembly ruled that homosexuals can be ordained as ministers only if they repent and either enter heterosexual marriages or renounce sex altogether.

The ban also was applied to candidates to be deacons or elders.

The ruling urged local church authorities not to scrutinize candidates for ordination for homosexual activities if there is no indication they are homosexuals.

The Rev. Thomas Gillespie of Burlingame, Calif., chairman of the committee that drafted the church stand, said Presbyterians could no more accept practicing homosexuals as ministers than they could practicing thieves or heterosexual sinners.

"If a person said he was an unrepentant thief or fornicator and intended to continue thievery or fornication as a life style, the church would not ordain him," Gillespie said.

THE Discovery Singers will present a multi-media program at 11 a.m. Sunday in Grace Baptist Church, 798 Eastland Drive N., Twin Falls. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Ascension celebrates

TWIN FALLS — The Episcopal Church of the Ascension will celebrate the close of its regular church school year by holding a special church school service on Sunday at 10 a.m.

The children and church school teachers will be recognized. Special honors will be given to the following retiring teachers: Clara Brashear who has been in charge of the kindergarten program for several years, and her two assistants, Karen Bridge and Sherry Kingston, and Debby Marshall, who has been in charge of the first grade class.

Also to be recognized are Margaret Kelly who has been in charge of the second and third grade Sunday programs, and Willie Schel who has been in charge of the Sunday church school music programs.

Honors and awards will be distributed to the children. The parish rector, Rev. Albert E. Allen, will be celebrant and preacher at both the 8 and 10 services. His sermon is entitled "Parables and Crucifixion."

The Episcopal Young Churchmen will meet at 7 p.m. under the sponsorship of Kip and Linae Barnes. The topic of the meeting will be plans of a campout for the weekend of June 2, 3 and 4.

Al-Islam abandons separatist way

CHICAGO — Two years after abandoning its separatist philosophy, the predominantly black World Community of Al-Islam in the West has evolved into what its leader describes as a staunchly patriotic organization with a belief that minorities may have asked for too much and not done enough for themselves.

The new philosophy of the orthodox Islamic organization, formerly known as the Nation of Islam, represents a radical departure from its original doctrine, which held that whites were "devils" and that the institutions they control were to be burned. Now, the message delivered by Wallace D. Muhammad at weekly worship services and on college campuses, and repeated Wednesday in a rare interview at the organization's headquarters here, is that "Blatians and Caucasians" should form a partnership in solving society's problems and that blacks should "take advantage of their citizenship and come into the American spirit and identify with the land and flag."

Except for an occasional slip of the tongue, Muhammad, the chief imam or spiritual leader, uses the terms Blatian instead of black and Caucasian instead of white, rejecting the black and white designations as "racist."

Muhammad, who is 45 years old, caused a doctrinal split in the organization when he assumed leadership after the death of his father, Elijah Muhammad, in 1975.

The faction, which knowledgeable sources describe as small, is made up of ardent followers of the separatist teachings of Elijah Muhammad. The second and larger faction is aligned with the new teachings of Wallace D. Muhammad.

The exact size of the World Community of Al-Islam in the West is difficult to determine. The organization has put its membership at 500,000, while law enforcement officials have put it at 25,000. Sources familiar with the organization say that the membership had been about 300,000 but that this figure had dropped by about 100,000 in the last two years because of the doctrinal dispute.

The chief opponent of the new philosophy, Abdul Haleem Farrakhan, formerly known as Louis Farrakhan, is trying to organize a following from a base in Brooklyn.

Farrakhan, who was national spokesman for the organization under Elijah Muhammad, broke away from it early this year after having been transferred to Chicago in what sources described as an effort by his superiors to keep an eye on him and to remove him from his base of power in New York.

Farrakhan is but one of several influential ministers who broke from the organization and whom Muhammad likens to witch doctors. "People believe witch doctors until they get knowledge, and then the witch doctors have to find another job," Muhammad said in the interview at the central Masjid, or place of worship, here.

Muhammad said he had challenged Farrakhan to a public debate over whether blacks should pursue a separatist course. He said he intended to win out differences with his opponents peacefully and to avoid the violence that resulted in some previous heated doctrinal disputes.

Fear of violence is obvious to those who visit the Masjid on the city's South Side. Before entering, worshippers and visitors must pass through a special detection arch identical to those used at airports and handbags and briefcases are searched. Muhammad's office is equipped with closed-circuit television.

Explaining his views on the course of civil rights, Muhammad said, "Legislation has been piling up but we haven't been taking advantage of the opportunities open to us. The common man should not worry about such legislation and civil rights. If you have the ability, just go out and do what everybody else does." Muhammad said he "did not feel that racial considerations affected the abilities of minorities to move ahead. 'The problem is we don't identify with America. People don't go to the polls and vote, even for their candidates we like. The potholes in the streets can become so large you can't drive down them without damaging the wheel or knocking off the drive, but nobody's complaining. We haven't been raised to believe that citizens have a voice and power.'"

To kindle an increased spirit of patriotism, Muhammad said he had instituted an annual observance of patriotism from July 1 through 4.

Muhammad said he was pleased with the performance of the Carter administration and did not feel, as the leaders of some civil rights organizations do, that the president had reneged on his campaign promises to address the problems of minorities.

Widow, 77 undergoes amputation

ARLINGTON, Mass. (UPI) — A 77-year-old widow who refused amputation of her gangrenous right leg because she had "nothing to live for" since her husband's death changed her mind and underwent the operation Thursday.

Mrs. Rosaria Candura was termed in good condition at Symmes Hospital in Arlington today several hours after doctors amputated the leg. They had said she would die if the operation wasn't performed immediately.

The elderly widow, who had been despondent since her husband of 33 years, Vincent, died in 1976, was apparently talked into the operation late Wednesday after a long conversation with her younger brother, Salvatore Napoli, 62, of Fitchburg.

Savings bond pyramid scheme brings warning

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Wayne Kidwell warned consumers Thursday to be wary of a chain letter involving the pyramid-marketing scheme of Series "E" savings bonds.

Kidwell said the scheme could involve obtaining money under false pretenses and is a violation of Idaho's Consumer Protection Act. He said the scheme promises a return of more than 7,000 bonds for each bond purchased and is based upon the pyramidizing effect of a chain letter.

He said this particular scheme has been circulated in Idaho for at least two years and the likelihood of recovering any return on investments appears remote.

In a letter to Bannock County Prosecutor Garth Pinecock, Deputy Attorney General Rudy Barchas said that from a criminal point of view the scheme could involve obtaining property by false pretenses since "it is mathematically impossible for everybody to be a winner."

"Obviously, if one person can increase his investment by more than a thousand-fold, then 1,000 other persons have to lose their investment," Barchas said.

"The bonds do not grow on trees and the game can only be successful if there are an unlimited number of persons who are available and willing to play it."

"Since the instructions state that everybody can be a winner, the originators of the game would appear to be involved in fraud," he said. "The only sure winners are those at the very top of the pyramid who are clever and devious enough to start such a scheme."

From a civil standpoint, he said, anyone soliciting others to participate in the game would be guilty of violating the Idaho Consumer Protection Act.

Swine marking required

BOISE (UPI) — The State Department of Agriculture has issued a regulation that Idaho swine producers must mark or ear-tag their pigs and boars over six months of age shipped across state lines for slaughter.

The regulations, which went into effect Monday, require identification of herit origin.

Dr. A.P. Schneider, Boise, chief of the department's Bureau of Animal Health, said the new regulations are designed to monitor swine transported across state lines through testing at slaughter.

"We will be able to trace back to the herd-of-origin any swine found infected with swine brucellosis," Schneider said. "Breeding swine over six months of age, he said, must be blood tested and identified by ear tag."

"The new federal regulations do not include feeder pigs, but this classification is covered by state regulations which require health certificates," he said.

Changeover date fixed by utility

BOISE (UPI) — Intermountain Gas Co. has designated July 1 as the date its reorganization into a holding company, Intermountain Gas Industries Inc., becomes effective.

Purpose of the reorganization is to separate the principal business of the company, natural gas distribution, from the much smaller, non-utility activities.

Intermountain Gas Co. will become a subsidiary of the holding company.

The company plans to transfer common stock of IGC Prods. on Co. and IGC Property, both subsidiaries of Intermountain Gas Co., to Intermountain Gas Industries Inc. Interest Inc., engaged in exploratory drilling for natural gas, will remain a subsidiary of the utility.

Holders of Intermountain Gas Co. common stock will become shareholders of Intermountain Gas Industries Inc. The reorganization will not change the rights of common shareholders in any material way, the company said.

Those holding common stock in Intermountain Gas Co. will not have to turn in their stock certificates in exchange for stock certificates of the holding company.

Secretary of Labor invited to move sprinkler pipe

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Secretary of Labor F. Ray Marshall may be moving sprinkler pipe in Idaho this summer. If he accepts the invitation of a Mountain Home farmer...

McClure's bill, S.B. 1004, is a proposal to give state governor's power to certify that Mexican aliens are needed in a state to work for which no other source of labor exists.

McClure said the bill is a proposal to give state governor's power to certify that Mexican aliens are needed in a state to work for which no other source of labor exists.

Herndandez said he and officials of the Sprinkler Irrigators of Idaho have been working for eight years to solve labor problems, but to no avail.

He said a survey conducted at the request of the Department of Employment proved that only three percent of the Mexican census in Idaho are interested in farm work.

First savings and loan to open in Ketchum

SUN VALLEY — Blaine County's first savings and loan association should open its doors for business by July.

In December, federal banking authorities in Washington D.C. approved applications from Mountain State and First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls to open branch offices in Ketchum.

John Harker, president of the Elkborn resort, and a director and original incorporator of the new association, explained that "this community has forever been subject to the whims of other financial institutions."

Larsen, Jackson disagree on 1% initiative

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two tearing Republican candidates for governor agreed in Twin Falls this week property tax relief is the key issue in their bids for election.

But when it came to listing methods by which taxes might be slashed, the common ground between House Speaker Allan Larsen and Representative Larry Jackson disappeared.

Jackson said several steps could be taken to provide rapid tax relief. "I want to repeal the school tax," Jackson said, adding those property taxes would be replaced with general fund revenues.

if the initiative fails to become law, He supports the one percent initiative, Larsen added, and would sign it if presented with an initiative petition.

Water skier awaits season

TWIN FALLS — Idaho is well known for snow skiing and has produced several excellent competitive skiers but there are not a lot of competitive water skiers from here except for Brenda Roske.

The Twin Falls High Junior earned a ninth place finish in the nationals of the American Water Skiing Association last year and is looking forward to a better finish this year.

"I have a goal to reach 100 feet (in the jumping competition) this year. Well, I just want to get to nationals, no matter how far I jump," she commented.

"That goal to reach nationals is a little harder to reach for Brenda than for those who live in a warmer climate. The areas around here are poor, she said of the lakes and rivers available for practice.

"We usually go to Hagerman and ski on the river and we always have to fight the current."

That fighting the current becomes a handicap when it comes to competition because the water skiing tournaments are all held on lakes.

The second-difficult part of preparing for a season of water skiing involves practice and the weather is too cold to practice here until June or so.

The kids in California are practicing in May. As a matter of fact, I haven't been skiing yet this year," she complained.

The factors of weather and lack of good practice areas will be compounded this year by age. Not that Brenda is an old woman, but she is now in the women's bracket competition which includes women from 17 to 30.

She says she doesn't try to compete with the girls from the warmer states. "I told one lady at a camp I went to last year that I didn't compete against the people down there, I just compete against myself and try to do better next time. The lady told me that was the right attitude.

"Last summer, I got to go down and ski during the day and just compete against myself. This year, I don't know what we are going to do," she said.

The first tournament will be held around the Fourth of July so she has a little over a month to train, if the weather will break.

Between now and the time of the tournament, Brenda says she will be attending a two week water ski camp. "No matter how good you are, there's always something more to learn," she explained about the instruction camps.

All the competition on water skis began when she was four. "We belong to a ski club at 1,000 springs and I learned to ski there." The memory of what it was like to get up on water skis at four years old is gone, but Brenda says she remembers a little about the conditions surrounding the experience.

"When I learned to ski, it kinda forced my brother to do a little bit more." Her brother is Mark Roske who is also a competitive skier. When asked who was the better skier, Brenda said "Oh, well, we're pretty well matched."

Her favorite part of the three event competition is the jumping. The skiers are towed by a boat going 30 miles per hour and must jump as far as they can off a ramp that ends up five feet higher than the water level.

"It's thrilling, more dangerous," she explained. The gleam in her eye gave evidence that she loved that portion of the sport. "Jumping has an element of risk," she explained.

While she has never been really hurt, just "out of it a little," she said brother Mark was knocked cold once. "It was a pretty scary experience."

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M.O. Roske encouraged both children to excel at the sport. "My dad doesn't even plan his vacation around his water ski guide comes in the mail so he can know where he is going."

The going is half of the fun but is tough because there are few tournaments in Idaho. Here in the state, there are tournaments at Blackfoot and Emmet. Most of the others are held in California.

Washington, Oregon and one in Utah.

To the recreational skier, being towed behind a boat traveling at 30 miles per hour may be a thrill but add to that attempting to go around a set of buoys. With each successful pass the speed of the boat is raised. If the skier can't make each buoy, the tow rope is shortened. The ultimate part of the competition is when the rope is only 30 feet long and the buoys are 42 feet from the center of the boat.

"Not very many people get to there," Brenda said.

In the future, Brenda said she would like to keep skiing and enjoying it. "There are colleges that compete in Florida and California and I wouldn't mind," she said.

Thinking about college is at least a year away since she is now a junior at the high school.

For $200,000 Irish will play anywhere

MIAMI (UPI) — If Japanese promoters are serious about guaranteeing $200,000 per team plus full expenses, Notre Dame and the University of Miami are serious about moving their 1979 football game from the Orange Bowl in Miami to Tokyo, Hurricanes' publicist George Gallet said Thursday.

Gallet said he is uncertain about the latest developments in the negotiations, since Associate Athletic Director Co. John Stephens of Notre Dame is handling the talks with Japanese promoters.

But he said, "While we are still working on it, there is a possibility the game could be transferred to Japan."

The game is presently scheduled for Nov. 24, 1979, in the Orange Bowl.

The University of Miami Board of Trustees has recommended through its Athletic Policy Committee that the Board's Executive Committee press ahead with the negotiations.

Football Coach and Athletic Director 'Lol' Saban of the University of Miami has indicated by favors making the trip to Japan.

Marrutto, who said the game probably would be televised via Satellite to the United States, predicted a meeting with the Irish in Tokyo would help Miami's football recruiting.

Gallet said the date of the game probably would have to be moved forward or backward a day or so because of the international date line.

A Tokyo advertising agency began last year promoting an annual "Mirage Bowl" football game between U.S. college teams. The 1977 game pitted Grambling against Temple.

The Japanese firm approached Notre Dame a year ago and then asked the University of Miami if it would be interested in moving its scheduled clash with the Irish to Tokyo.

But he said, "While we are still working on it, there is a possibility the game could be transferred to Japan."

The game is presently scheduled for Nov. 24, 1979, in the Orange Bowl.

Pitts 3, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Phil Garner's error, a wild pitch by reliever Kent Tekulve and Lenny Randle's RBI single produced the winning run with two out in the 11th inning Thursday night to give the New York Mets a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Randle's hit to right-center off Tekulve, 33, scored winning reliever Dale Murray who reached base when Garner muffed his ground ball to third. He advanced on Tekulve's wild pitch to Randle. Murray, 27, scattered four hits over the ninth and 10th innings, then retired the Pirates in order in the 11th to gain his first win as Met.

Wealthy women tend to believe that they're at their attractive best at about age 35. But women without much money are inclined to think they reach their peaks in looks at about age 25. In self-confidence, the rich women say they're strongest at age 38 while the less wealthy women report they're most confident at age 35. Both, however, claim to be in their prime—their own words—through age 40. Such are the findings of a scholar who has made a study of the matter.

Cheapest electricity, gasoline, tobacco and liquor in Europe can be found in that French-Spanish border nation called Andorra where the citizens pay no income taxes or customs duties. End of editorial.

Nobody, nobody, nobody knows why Siamese cats are cross-eyed.

OLD BIRD

Q. "What sort of bird lives the longest?"
A. The male swan, evidently. At Darbyshire, England, in 1887, one such was shot. On its leg was found a ring dated 1717 or 1711.

Q. "What makes ivory turn yellow?"
A. Darkness. It's old. It's claimed ivory carvings kept in bright light don't discolor.

Q. "Who were the lightest and heaviest of our presidents?"
A. Madison, 100 pounds. Taft, 340 pounds.

LOW BIRTHRATE

The birthrate in West Germany is so low—9.8 babies per 1,000 inhabitants—that a continued trend without change there would mean the West Germans would be extinct by the year 2500.

Flo Ziegfeld's wife Anna Held so much wanted a small waist—according to a dubious footnote in the theatrical history books—that she had her lower ribs removed surgically.

Three out of five university students in the Soviet Union study English. German is the second most popular foreign language there. French comes in third.
