Old Glory's day today

TYING an American flag to its pole in preparation for display in Twin Falls in observance of Flag Day is Pat Bird. He was among the Exchange Club members who rose early to set out more than 100 flags in various places in town. Old Glory was also flown at many homes as Idahoans joined other Americans in flying the flag.

Uranium shipment to India wins OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House committee today cleared the way for U.S. shipment of enriched uranium to India, giving Indian Prime Minister Morarji Desai what he sought in meetings with Congress and President Carter.

House International Relations Committee rejection of resolutions to block the sale of nuclear fuel to the world's most populous democracy came as Desai and Carter held a final chat at the White House.

The committee action was a personal triumph for the 62-year-old Indian leader who had pleaded India's case before the panel Tuesday. Carter favored providing India the fuel.

The Carter-Desai summit talks had focused in part on India's request for fresh nuclear fuel for its power plants. Federal law requires all recipients of U.S. nuclear fuel to open nuclear plants to international inspection and safeguards by 1980. India had objected to the requirement.

But Desai, in an appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and its House counterpart, apparently won support for the export deal.

The action by the House panel clears the way for automatic approval. To prevent U.S. shipment of the fuel, both the House and Senate would have to vote to reject the proposal.

Some House members said the issue still could surface on the House floor, but the House seldom overrules its committees.

Carter endorsed the nuclear fuel shipment in an executive order April 27 after a 2-1 split by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission split on the export license. Congress had 60 days or until June 30 to object.

Americans ponder safety against Soviet campaign

MOSCOW (UPI) — Members of the American business community in Moscow, concerned by the arrest of a U.S. businessman on charges of currency violations, met at the U.S. embassy today to discuss their own safety.

Soviet authorities held F. Jay Crawford of Mobile, Ala., in Lefortovo Prison as they continued a pretrial investigation.

Crawford, 38, is International Harvester Corp.'s Moscow representative. He was arrested Monday evening as he drove through central Moscow with his fiancée.

American embassy officials said they were informed Crawford was being held for a "pretrial investigation" in connection with section 78 of the Soviet criminal code, which covers smuggling.

Sources said the charge also involved currency violations. A conviction on a section 78 charge can lead to a 3-to-10-year prison sentence.

Sources close to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow said today Crawford told the Soviet authorities he was innocent of currency violation charges. They said Crawford relayed the same information to U.S. Embassy officials who met with him on Tuesday, the day after his arrest.

In Washington, officials said today Crawford told a State Department representative who visited him in prison Tuesday night that he was innocent.

Representatives of 24 American companies registered in Moscow met at the U.S. Embassy commercial office today for a briefing.

Some of the businessmen feared Crawford's arrest was only the beginning, anticipating further harassment of businessmen.

However, embassy sources said no information was relayed to the businessmen that would indicate Crawford's arrest was part of a campaign. "It was a factual briefing," one source said.

One business source who asked not to be identified said the members of the business community decided to contact their home offices to express concern for their safety, and for Crawford's.

Signatures sufficient

BOISE (UPI) — Supporters of the proposed 1 percent property tax limitation initiative apparently have acquired enough signatures to place it on the November ballot.

According to a copyrighted story in the Idaho Statesman, a survey of 44 county clerks indicates 20,783 signatures have been verified, leaving boosters of the proposal 5,217 short of the 26,000 needed to place the issue on the ballot.

But Bannock and Ada County clerks estimated that 6,000 to 11,000 signatures they have in their possession also will be certified. If they are verified, proponents of the limitation would have 2,000 more than needed.

A total of 9,245 signatures already have been turned in to the secretary of state's office.

Return set

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Three convicts who broke out of an Omaha jail and escaped in a stolen airplane waived their right to a removal hearing in North Dakota today and were ordered returned to Nebraska, where two of them await a death-penalty hearing.

U.S. Magistrate David Kessler of Grand Forks, N.D., said it would take about a week to process the paperwork authorizing the return of Peter Hochstein, 24, C. Michael Anderson, 26, and Dan Sheppard, 23, who escaped from the Douglas County jail early Monday and were captured Monday night in near the Canadian border.

Idaho GOP may be nation's strongest

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — The national Republican Party may be floundering, but the Gem State GOP is as feisty as ever.

In fact, the Idaho Republican convention scheduled for this week in Pocatello brings together what may be the strongest state

Republican organization in the nation.

That has to have a significant influence on the six Idaho GOP gubernatorial candidates, and the delegates, who will be rubbing shoulders at the Pocatello convention. Each realizes that should a Republican be elected governor, and should the legislature remain in Republican hands, Idaho could become the only state in the nation where both the legislative and executive branches of government are under Republican control.

Each of the four states that now have Republican majorities in both houses of their legislature also have Democratic governors. In addition to Idaho, those states are Colorado, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The candidates gathering in Pocatello know a Republican governor with a Republican legislature would have significant power. He would likely have prominence in the national Republican organization. Robert E. Smylie, the last Idaho Republican governor with a legislature controlled by his party, not only served as chairman of the Western Governors Association, but was in 1964 mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate.

Nationally, Republicans look to Idaho with envy. Statistics from the Republican National Committee make it clear Idaho's strong Republican party is a rarity.

According to the RNC:

—Idaho is one of but four state where Republicans hold a clear majority in both houses of the state legislature.

—Only 12 of the nation's 50 governors are Republicans.

—Largest public opinion polls found only 22 percent of voting Americans consider themselves Democrats, as contrasted

U.S., Cuba remain at odds over Zaire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — African intelligence reports show Cubans trained and then accompanied to the Angolan border the Katangese invaders of Zaire, according to a senior White House official.

And intelligence sources trace Cuban involvement with the Katangans to 1975 and document Cubans provided military training for Katangans at five locations in Angola before the latest invasion of Shaba province, the official said.

The White House official's statement came amid continued questioning of administration claims that Cubans assisted the invasion and did nothing to stop it. Cuban President Fidel Castro has said he tried to convince the Angolan government to halt the planned invasion.

Katangans formerly lived in Zaire and repeatedly have tried to return to their homeland and win its independence from the central Zaire government which enjoys financial and military backing by the West.

Intelligence reports show Cubans slayed with the invaders at least until they departed the Angolan sanctuary and entered Zambian territory on the way to Zaire's copper-rich southern province.

Intelligence showed Katangan leader Nathaniel M'Bumba had declared a goal of "liberating" Zaire and was claiming support of the Angolan government and Cuban advisers, the official said.

Plans for the first Katangese invasion of Shaba province in March 1977 were made in "close cooperation" with the Cubans and Angola's armed forces, the official said. East Germans also helped in preparations, he added.

with 46 percent who consider themselves Democrats and 32 percent who vote as "independents."

Against this record, Idaho's winning Republican combination stands out as a GOP beacon. Several facts speak for themselves:

—Ronald Reagan picked up 74 percent of the Republican vote in the 1976 Idaho presidential primary, the highest percentage of any primary he entered.

—Six months later, in Idaho's general election, Gerald Ford trounced Jimmy Carter nearly two to one.

—No Democratic presidential candidate has carried the state since 1964, when Lyndon Johnson squeaked out a narrow Idaho victory over Republican Barry Goldwater.

—Only one Democratic senator in Idaho history — Frank Church — has ever been re-elected.

—Republicans hold 48 of the 70 seats in the Idaho House of Representatives and 20 of the 35 Idaho Senate posts.

UN PEACEKEEPING FORCE MOVES IN AS ISRAELI UNITS DEPART ... Christian rightists, UN units take over in southern Lebanon

Israelis leave Lebanon with warning, rap at UN

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel has accused U.N. peacekeeping troops of cooperating with Palestinian guerrillas and warns it will intervene militarily if its Lebanese Christian allies are attacked. Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan made the accusation in a strongly worded letter to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, formally advising him of Israel's withdrawal from Lebanon Tuesday after a 91-day occupation. "On the other hand," Dayan said, "according to reliable information, hundreds of terrorists ... in the wake of the Israeli withdrawal, returned to southern Lebanon. Moreover it appears that (the U.N. force) is permitting the transit of food and other supplies to the terrorists, and that the latter ... are clandestinely introducing arms and other military equipment into the area."

renewed military intervention should Christian Lebanese be attacked by the Palestinians or their leftist Moslem allies. "The Israeli government is standing by its commitment to continue to protect the Christian minority in south Lebanon," Ben-gal told Christian militia leaders at a ceremony in the Lebanese village of Malsis el Jebel. "I will certainly recommend a military action" should either Christians or Israeli settlements along the border be attacked, Ben-gal later told a television interviewer. In all, Israeli forces handed some 14 positions over to U.N. forces and another 20 to 800 Christian rightists. U.N. commanders and troops were excluded from the ceremony at Malsis el Jebel but four miles to the north, at the village of Merkabe, Israeli troops turned their positions over to Irish soldiers of the UN command.

group that had no legitimate authority from the Beirut government. But Tuesday, Erskine told reporters the Beirut government told him the Christians were the "legitimate Lebanese authorities" in the area and said he would cooperate with them and that they were taking orders from Beirut. He said the "good fence" open border between Israel and the Christian zone would also remain in effect, but no military supplies would pass through. Saad Haddad, a Christian militia commander, said, "There is freedom of movement in the U.N. area and the principle is we can go anywhere in south Lebanon." In turn, Haddad said, U.N. troops will be permitted free passage through Christian villages, such as Marjayoun and Kfeia. "We hope the U.N. forces will be able to succeed in keeping this area clear of terrorists," said the mustachioed Haddad as villagers with camels and goats looked on. Israel began a massive sweep against Palestinian guerrillas in south Lebanon March 14, capturing the entire area between the international border and the Litani river. Three days earlier, seaborne Palestinian guerrillas attacked buses and cars along the major Tel Aviv-Haifa coastal highway, killing 30 people.

U.S., Cuba remain at odds over Zaire

(Continued from p.A1) Heinz Hoffman said today in Berlin his country was siding Africa liberation movements but did not play a part in the invasion of Zaire. Summaries of intelligence data being made available at the White House showed Cuban and Soviet advisers during 1976 asked the head of Angola's government to back incursions into Zaire. And they showed Cuban and East German officials gave military training to rebels at Sauroiro Air Base in Lunda province in Angola.

After the 1977 invasion, rebel training camps were set up with Cuban support in the towns of Zomboda, Nova Shavas, Chibanga, Seremo and Kamistomo—all in Angola, the summaries showed. President Carter was certain to face questions on details of the intelligence reports at a 3 p.m. EDT news conference. Castro told U.S. envoy Lyle Lane on May 17 the Cuban government had heard about preparations for the Shaba invasion and had asked Angolan leader Agostinho Neto to try to prevent it, an administration official said. The official said Castro claimed not to have any involvement with the Katangans in Shaba. Two days later, the official said, Lane told a Cuban diplomat that if Castro's assurances were not true the United States would view it with "gravest concern." The invasion began the next day. On May 25, Carter publicly condemned Cuba. Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., who met with Castro for seven hours Monday, told reporters Tuesday Castro said a political solution is not possible in Angola. "The mission of Cuba in Angola is to protect it from foreign aggression," Solarz quoted Castro as saying, "and there needs to be Cuban troops in Angola as long as the situation is unstable in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia), Namibia and South Africa." The United States estimates there are over 40,000 Cuban troops and military advisers in Africa, most of them in Angola (about 23,000) and Ethiopia (around 17,000). Solarz said Castro has no plans to withdraw from the Ogaden in the Horn of Africa because the situation there is not yet secure, fighting continues and in any case Somalia has not yet abandoned what he termed expansionist designs on Ethiopia.

Idaho GOP feisty

The Democratic Party, Jordan says, "is more oriented toward the city and urban interests." He says, "The Democrats traditionally look more to government to solve the ills of the country, while the Republicans look to each other and to themselves." Former governor Smylie says Republican dominance of Idaho "was because we were giving the people what they wanted." Smylie says, however, that Idaho is changing. "Every contest is a horse race now," he says, "and often the personality of the man is more important than the party."

No federal bailout fund for areas under tax lids

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget director James McIntyre, in the administration's strongest warning, said today the federal government will not bail out states or local communities in which taxpayers vote to limit taxes or spending. "The federal budget already is being stretched tight," the White House budget official said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Advertising Council, and the federal government cannot be expected to absorb the additional costs of government taxpayers refuse to finance locally. Local communities or taxpayers may "turn to the federal government from time to time to bail them out," McIntyre said. But suggestions Washington will finance what local taxpayers will not "raises false hopes," he said. It was the first extensive comment by the administration's chief budget official since California voters approved Proposition 13 last week. "The California vote was undoubtedly the loudest single shot fired so far in what some people insist is a taxpayers revolt," McIntyre said. Proposition 13 slashes property taxes and thereby local communities' revenue, forcing cutbacks in services that already have begun with cancellation of summer school in Los Angeles and San Diego. Prohibitions in federal law prevent the federal government from using federal funds to finance services previously bankrolled by state or local revenue, McIntyre said. "I can tell you now that the fiscal 1980 budget will be very, very tight. It will call for very little real growth in overall spending," McIntyre said. Services said McIntyre took the tough line after consulting with President Carter as top White House aides study the impact on the federal government of the 57 percent cut in property taxes voted by California voters last week. "My staff is studying the effect of the California vote on federal programs and the federal budget," McIntyre said. "We know, for example that a number of major federal education programs include a prohibition against using federal funds for activities normally or previously carried out with state or local funds. "We visualize this prohibition as cutting off federal aid in the first year of implementation of Proposition 13 if California, for example, tried to reimburse with federal funds teachers previously paid with state or local funds," he added. "We are studying similar restrictions in federal child nutrition programs. We are studying possible issues and problems which might arise in the in the public service employment area."

McIntyre said that either document over taxes, bureaucracy and red tape is also directed against the federal government.

Gasoline sale setup dealt blow by court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today upheld a pioneering Maryland law that would allow companies from operating their own retail gasoline stations in the state. More than half the states have considered similar laws since the 1973 Arava oil embargo created nationwide gasoline shortages and led to complaints about uneven distribution of available supplies. But only a few have enacted them so far, Maryland being the first. Today's 7-1 decision opens the way for other states to adopt such laws and eventually could lead to major changes in the U.S. system of petroleum marketing. Oil companies which challenged the Maryland law warned it would lead to an increase in consumer prices. For starters, it will require producer-refiners in Maryland to divest themselves of 250 outlets — with a total value of about $13 million when it takes effect in one year. The Maryland legislature approved the statute after a 1973 survey found company-operated stations were getting all the gas they needed, while other dealers were having serious problems obtaining supplies during the shortage. The law not only bars oil companies from operating their own retail service stations, but requires them to distribute supplies uniformly and says they cannot discriminate in apportioning gas during shortages.

The most common form of retail service station is the "major brand" station, usually run by independent dealers who sell nationally advertised brand-name products and offer full services. Another form is the "private brand" station, which usually sells only gas and motor oil, is run by company personnel and offers gas at slightly lower prices.

Fire battled

SEQUOIA NATIONAL FOREST (UPI) — Firefighters completed a line around a 30-acre grass and brush fire at the 2,500-foot level in Sequoia National Forest and expected to control the blaze by tonight. The fire broke out in the Miracle Hot Springs-Hobo Ridge area about 35 miles east of Bakersfield about noon Tuesday. Some 100 firefighters, aided by three air tankers, battled the blaze through the night. U.S. Forest Service officials said no structures or timber were burned by the fire and none were in immediate danger. A spokesman said the firefighters hoped to declare the fire under full control by 6 p.m. Cause of the fire was under investigation.

Several other cities approached record low marks. Bradford, Pa., and Marquette, Mich., recorded 35 degrees during the night. Temperatures ranged from 72 degrees in seaside Santa Monica to 89 degrees 15 miles inland at the Los Angeles Civic Center. Burbank recorded 96 degrees and Riverside 98. Palm Springs "peaked at a stifling 108 degrees. A 98-degree reading was recorded at Blythe during the night. The winds faded late in the day, leaving a layer of smog over the metropolis. First-stage health advisories were called in San Gabriel, San Fernando and Pomona Walnut Valleys and in San Bernardino and Riverside counties. The National Weather Service said temperatures in Southern California could be even hotter today. In the northern states, however, clear skies and cool temperatures forced millions of persons to retrieve light coats stored for the summer months. Pryor, Ravenel capture Demo Senate primaries

By United Press International
Arkansas Gov. David Pryor, winner of the state's Democratic runoff primary, is virtually assured election to the Senate in November and the chance to join the growing ranks of "new South" moderates in Washington.

Investment banker Charles "Pug" Ravenel, another moderate Democrat, would like to have the same chance in South Carolina. But he must first defeat one of the last surviving stalwarts of the old "cotton South," Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Pryor and Ravenel both won their states' Democratic Senate primaries easily Tuesday. South Carolina and Maine also nominated candidates for governor.

Pryor is the overwhelming favorite in November in heavily Democratic Arkansas. Ravenel, 40, has an uphill battle against the 75-year-old Thurmond.

In the race to pick a successor to the late Sen. John McClellan, who served 35 years in the Senate, Pryor defeated Rep. Jim Guy Tucker. The two had finished on top in the May 30 primary, but neither received a majority.

Pryor received 262,743 votes, or 55 percent, while Tucker received 217,342 or 45 percent.

Both Pryor and Tucker are considered moderate Democrats. But Pryor, who voted against the seating of the all-white Mississippi delegation at the 1968 convention, moved somewhat to the right during the runoff and criticized Tucker's support of the labor reform bill now before Congress.

Ravenel won his second chance for statewide office in South Carolina. He won the Democratic primary for governor four years ago, but a court declared him ineligible because he hadn't lived in the state long enough.

Gov. James B. Edwards thus became the first Republican in modern times to be the state's chief executive. He cannot succeed himself, and the state is likely to return to its Democratic tradition.

Ravenel set his sights on Thurmond's seat almost immediately. Unlike other veterans upset by young challengers, Thurmond is not resting on his record.

Earlier this year, he pulled his children out of private schools in Washington and sent them back to public schools in South Carolina. He has been home campaigning almost every weekend — and spending thousands of dollars — even though he was unopposed in the primary.

The primary season isn't over in South Carolina. There will be a runoff June 27 between the two top Democrats in Tuesday's primary for governor.

Lt. Gov. Brandley Harvey finished first ahead of former state Sen. Dick Riley, Jimmy Carter's 1976 campaign manager. Former Rep. William Jennings Bryan Don was third and out of the money, but with enough votes to force a runoff by preventing Harvey from winning a majority.

Former Rep. Ed Young was declared the winner of the GOP primary over fellow millionaire Raymond Finch. Only a few hundred votes separated the two, but Republican state officials said Young was the nominee and Finch agreed.

In Maine, House GOP leader Linwood Palmer and Democratic Attorney General Joseph Brennan won nominations for governor.

Treaty foes get ready

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — Nationalist groups opposed to new Panama Canal pacts they consider humiliating and unconstitutional are gearing up for President Carter's visit for a formal "treaty exchange" ceremony Friday.

Leftists have begun a war of spray-painted slogans along Balboa Avenue leading to the American Embassy, urging Carter not to come for the ceremonies.

The University of Panama law and political science faculty has approved a resolution predicting that Carter's trip would "produce problems."

Carter and his wife Rosalynn arrive in Panama City one hour before the treaty exchange ceremony. Carter and Panama's President Omar Torrijos will go directly from the ceremony to address a crowd estimated to reach 100,000 persons in the 5 de Mayo Plaza, within sight of the canal.

Carter will hold discussions with Torrijos and tour the Canal before returning to Washington.

Latin American leaders who participated in last year's conference in Bogota, Colombia during a crucial period in the U.S.-Panama negotiations also will attend the ceremony.

Male pride stops ERA in Illinois

ERA: Spirit of Constitution doesn't endorse extension

Monday's Times-News editorial on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment implied that a seven-year limit for amendment proposals is dictated by the Constitution.

That implication was wrong. There is no time limit specified in the Constitution but since the ratification of the 18th Amendment in 1919 it has been established as a tradition that seven years is sufficient for consideration of an amendment.

Not enough of America's citizens have been convinced in the last seven years that ERA is necessary. For those of us who have supported the amendment, that's a bitter pill to swallow, but seven years time is enough to debate this point.

BOSTON - There is a shop in Springfield, Ill., where some grown-ups trade votes with less integrity than children trade baseball cards.

Without the slightest hesitation, they asserted their 'manhood' by denying women their equality. Without the slightest hesitation, they traded away decades of American history and the rights of half the population in order to protect internal party squabbling.

Conservatism, or all the other trendy little things. The amendment has been the victim of distrust, hostility, or fear toward women's rights. It's been held back by a dozen men in a few states who consider it a tradeable commodity.

up in another way in Washington, D.C. The bill to extend the ERA deadline from March, 1979, to March, 1980, has been sent to the House Judiciary Committee. There's no plea of evidence that supports its passage more solidly than the Springfield saga.

ELLEN GOODMAN

The clearest terms how the Equal Rights Amendment has been dealt with. As if it's just another nag. On last Wednesday, the ERA came up for vote in the House of Representatives.

But a funny thing happened. A funny thing often happens during an ERA vote, whether its in Tallahassee, or Raleigh, or Springfield. Surprises and problems pop up like clowns out of a circus car.

HE SAYS WE'VE GOT A CHOICE! WE CAN COOPERATE WITH HIM OR WE CAN CONTINUE WITH WHAT WE ARE DOING... I THANKED HIM KINDLY FOR THE CHOICE.

Blaine County squabble belongs in the courts

Both sides seem to have taken a logical stance in the dispute between city of Halley and Blaine County in regard to impact zone negotiations, but nothing much of substance has happened in the last few months except for the widening of the gap between the two governmental combatants.

Recent revelations seem to point out that the communication gap between the city and county are at least as wide as Croly and Quigley canyons put together.

But in the absence of such a framework a court settlement is all that's left, short of setting up an armed camp in the hills surrounding Halley.

The dispute between the city and the county centers around three key areas outside of Halley. Those areas extend out Croly and Quigley canyons, east and west of Halley, and into Indian Creek, northeast of the city.

seven loudcousins, do you know what I saw? I saw that guy's big, fat - seven times. Yes, I'm a mild man. I don't believe in violence. But I would gladly serve on a jury to put him out of my misery."

"Water skiers," said Johnny Shack. "Not all water skiers. Most of them are jerks, but not big jerks. Anybody who speeds around on a nice lake, making noise and pollution and waves is a jerk. But the prize jerks are the skiers who want to see how close they can come to a little fishing boat, trying to scare the fishermen, splashing them, then laughing. When I fish, I always keep a rod handy that has a big muscle lure on it. And when they come close, I grab it and cast and then try to hook them on the legs. I haven't got ote yet, but someday I will. And I'll have the punk mounted for my room wall."

broadering of capital punishment to cover jerkism. I know that to be true, because I recently took a scientific survey of more than 15 ordinary citizens who happened to be sitting nearby in Billy Goat's tavern.

asking the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to step back from the proposals OSHA originally had advanced to control byssinosis, or brown lung, in textile mills. The debilitating disease is caused by cotton dust.

reduced its demand to an estimated $625 million in capital spending. The Textile Institute was studying that proposition last week. Certain aspects of the problem are now tied up in U.S. District Court, where the textile workers' union, furious at the president, is pushing for prompt and tough regulation.

Maybe it is all worthwhile. Perhaps milk consumers are happy to pay an extra 10 percent as the cost of federal regulation of milk. Airline passengers may raise no objection whatever to the $2.7 billion the airlines must spend every year to comply with Civil-Aeronautics Board requirements. Much of the activity conducted in the name of "regulation" is doubtless good and constructive.

Letters Times-News readers discuss Alaska land, Hansen news coverage, government control

Times-News coverage of Hansen rapped

Editor, Times-News:

Although we have had several talks in private regarding this problem, I feel that your response to my criticisms of the Times-News coverage of Congressman Hansen has been minimal; therefore, I feel that it is my duty as field representative for Congressman Hansen to draw this situation to the attention of the public. The people of the Magic Valley should know that this area is the only area in the 2nd Congressional District where Mr. Hansen's news releases must be mailed to various members of the community because the Times-News simply refuses to print them. I will give several examples: Between April 24 and May 7 of this year, Congressman Hansen had five major press releases. Two of these releases received some national attention and one was a poll which showed Hansen ahead of all contenders for his congressional seat. (The poll was conducted by the Idaho Statesman and appeared in every major newspaper in the state.) None of this information appeared in the Times-News. However, during the same period of time, the Times-News gave front-page coverage to the Stan Kress poll; criticized Hansen editorially for attempting to "save" the Panama Canal; and printed two stories by Dave Morrissey, both of which brought up Mr. Hansen's problems in 1974, but neither of which mentioned the fact that Wayne Hays was the prime motivator of the incident.

On June 9 you gave front-page coverage to the fact that a radical group of environmentalists had placed Mr. Hansen on their "hit list." But Mr. Hansen has been cited by numerous other national organizations for his uncompromising principles — these citations have not been printed in your newspaper. For example, on April 6 our office had delivered a press release that announced that the National Alliance of Senior Citizens had given Congressman Hansen a 100 percent rating on his voting record of key issues for senior citizens; furthermore, on May 4 our office had delivered a press release which stated that the National Taxpayers Union had chosen Congressman Hansen as one of the top four legislators in the nation voting in the taxpayers' interest. Neither of these releases appeared in your newspaper.

Congressman Hansen's successful efforts to halt "backdoor" gun controls by the ATF have been totally ignored by the Times-News even though we have delivered several news releases to your office on this subject.

Mr. Hansen's monumental efforts to stop OSHA were awarded by your newspaper with a one-line quotation. You totally ignored the fact that our office was responsible for the legal coordination of the case and that Mr. Hansen was the leader in the fund-raising efforts for Bill Barlow, as well as chairman of the National STOP OSHA Committee.

Finally, David Morrissey's disgusting personal attack on the congressman in his June 5 commentary is one of the most vulgar pieces of journalism I have ever read. What kind of a journalist ridicules another human being's personal appearance? This is extraordinarily immature, and I personally hope that your newspaper will refrain from such behavior in the future.

Inventory tax repeal record set straight

Editor, Times-News:

An open letter to Allan Larsen's Campaign Director: I'm aware that campaign letters soliciting support are often perturbed by flowery statements in which their is more "sacrosanct than truth."

When fair steps on Idahoans' toes, however, some form of response becomes necessary. I'm referring to your claim that Allan Larsen "wrote and carried the bill that repealed the inventory tax."

In fact, there are many people — mostly from the citizenry — who deserve pats on the back for the repeal of this outmoded tax.

The names include Tim Brennan of the Idaho Retailers, who drafted and lobbied the bill; Leon Weeks from the Hardware

Dealers; and colleagues Noy Brackett and Don Fredrickson and other concerned individuals who nurtured the bill until its passage.

The bill itself was polished in Rep. Joe Preston's Revenue and Taxation Committee and passed that group. It was carried on the floor by four legislators — Vern Ravenscroft, Karl Koch, Bill Roberts and yes, Allan Larsen.

In the spirit of bringing people together, I feel we should give credit where credit is due. Mr. Larsen should receive some credit for his support and involvement with the repeal of the inventory tax, but not to the exclusion of the hard-working citizens and legislators who played roles in its passage.

Alaska land bill opposed

Editor, Times-News:

I'm a lifetime Alaskan and am one of the majority of its residents who stand beside Alaska Senators Mike Gravel and Ted Stevens in their opposition to the pending Alaska lands legislation, HR 39.

If enacted, this bill would effectively remove 40 percent of Alaska's land from potential resource development — development that would benefit this young state and help the nation in its quest for energy independence.

Like Gravel and Stevens, I love the scenic beauty of Alaska's wilderness and would strongly oppose anyone attempting to despoil it. But as witness to the development of two major oil fields here and the successful first-year operation of the trans-Alaska pipeline, I vehemently disagree with the philosophy that resource development is synonymous with environmental degradation.

I am aware you are confronted with difficult problems in your own back yard, but the Alaska lands issue is not a regional matter. If passed as currently drafted, HR would severely retard the nation's efforts to attain energy self-sufficiency. The adverse effects would be felt coast to coast for decades to come.

Morrissey vs. Hansen

Editor, Times-News:

Has David Morrissey run out of things to write about? I noticed that within the past month or so he has written four articles on Congressman Hansen's close encounter of the Wayne Hays Kind of 1974.

I am getting sick and tired of reading and rereading Morrissey's endless personal vendetta against my congressman. Either give Morrissey an interesting assignment, or hire someone not blinded by hate.

'We simply have too much government'

Editor, Times-News:

It is disheartening to me as an honorable taxpayer to send elected representatives to Boise and note the ridiculous show put on by them this past winter.

It is apparent to me that we, the taxpayers, must now exercise some direct control over the size of our government and limit the amount of money the government has available. We simply have too much government, and despairingly, it is still growing. We have at hand a possible tool, and I urge all to sign and hopefully vote for the one percent property valuation tax proposal.

We have much propaganda strewn in the way by the employees of our bloated bureaucracy, but decrease the size of the government we must. I do not propose we replace all the revenue lost from the decreased property tax, but use this method to insure that we, the taxpayers, obtain and retain some measure of control over the size of our government.

Given a limited budget, perhaps our elected representatives could then decide on the more essential services to retain, such as education, firemen and policemen, but decrease the government we must. I again urge all to sign the one percent property valuation tax proposal.

Concerned about Alaska's fate

Editor, Times-News:

Recently the House of Representatives passed H.R. 12825, a modified version of H.R. 39 — an Alaska lands withdrawal plan — engineered and rammed down the throats of timid Congressmen by extreme environmentalists rallied by the Sierra Club and championed by Morris Udall, D-Arizona, and John Seiberling, D-Ohio.

Well, the vast majority of Alaskans (70 percent, plus) do not support H.R. 39, despite comments to the contrary by an articulate group of "excited" Congressmen. And it is important that your readers know that Alaskans support their Senators — Stevens and Gravel — in an effort to defer action on Alaska lands until a reasonable plan can be composed. We Alaskans have a far more realistic alternative to anything the Sierra Club can devise.

We urge your readers and your paper to support the senators from Alaska. It is not a matter of Federal versus state rights on land and resources. It is not an issue of wilderness preservation.

Robertson urges actors to fight wheelers, dealers

Actor Cliff Robertson, who exposed the check-forgeries and helped force David Begelman from the presidency of Columbia Pictures, wants other actors to fight white-collar crime in the film industry. In a recent speech to the Screen Actors Guild in Hollywood, Robertson denounced "the wheelers, the dealers" who threaten to destroy movies financially and artistically. "The actors, directors, writers and craft people make movies and when these movies are successful, the 'dealers' take the bows," Robertson said. "After a flop, the boss says 'the director has lost his touch, the actor doesn't draw, the writer is incompetent. And the dealers get in their limousines and look for new prey.'"

Television viewers familiar with Garner Ted Armstrong's evangelical shows may have to reacquaint themselves next year. The Los Angeles Times says Armstrong's father, Herbert W. Armstrong—founder of the 65,000-member Worldwide Church of God—is angry at his son, 48, because he disobeyed a paternal order to leave of absence. During the weekend, the Times says, the elder Armstrong, 85, ordered his son into exile—somewhere in Texas—until the end of the year, or be banished forever. This isn't the first time the TV evangelist has been banished: In 1972 the elder Armstrong banished his son for about six months because of alleged sexual improprieties.

Tug of war game ends in tragedy

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—A lighthearted attempt by the Harrisburg Middle School to set a world tug of war record began with the drop of a yellow flag.

It ended tragically about three minutes later with 70 students injured: four of them with parts of their fingers sliced off.

For nearly three minutes, 2,200 students and teachers from the school strained against the 2,000-foot long, 1 1/2-inch, braided nylon cable.

Then there was a sound like a rifle shot. The rope, which was supposed to be strong enough to withstand the pull of 33,000 pounds, had snapped.

Besides the four students who lost parts of their fingers, another 66 were treated at local hospitals for burned, blistered hands and possible fractures. And 150 to 200 more were treated by school nurses for hand burns.

Marshall Layton, principal of the school, said the students and teachers were trying to set a record for the largest tug-of-war so they could get into the Guinness Book of World Records.

"It sounded like an explosion. It really popped and everybody went flying," said Pete Rekus, a news photographer who witnessed the accident.

"There was some confusion at first until the kids realized what happened and looked at their burned hands. I saw one kid running with his hand held up in the air saying, 'My finger's gone. My finger's gone.'"

The rope, loaned to the school district by the Pennsylvania Power & Light Co., had a breaking strength of 13,000 pounds. Witnesses said the rope broke about one-third of the way in from the left side. One said smoke issued from the rope just before it snapped.

"There were too many people pulling. There was just too much heat, too much resistance," said Janice Hicks, 14, who suffered hand burns.

Betty Bogar, spokeswoman for Harrisburg Polytechnic Hospital, said four persons were treated for amputations. They were:

Donald Burnett, 16, who lost the little finger of his right hand;

John Price, 14, who lost the tip of the little finger of his right hand;

Dale Roberts, 13, who lost the tips of the third and fourth fingers of his right hand; and

Marie Lewis, 13, who lost part of her left thumb.

Burglar catches a few Z's

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI)—A couple was awoken early Monday by a ruck, loud sound. The burglar who broke into their apartment had fallen asleep at the foot of their bed and was snoring.

The startled tenant picked a dowel rod and began shouting at the intruder, but the stranger didn't budge until police were called.

When police arrived, the burglar had fled. Several blank checks and $10 was missing from a ruffled purse.

A couple of blocks down the street, Patrolman Gregory Lasley found two men sleeping in a car. The pair couldn't explain why they were there but told the officer the driver, who owned the car they were in, was missing.

Lasley recognized the driver's name as Gary E. Bodour, who had previously been arrested for burglary and who was known to have broken-in women's apartments to watch them sleep.

The officer arrested the two men for public intoxication. Then Lasley returned to the apartment with a picture of Bodour, whom the couple identified as the man in their bedroom.

Ford, Fiat back probe

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. and Fiat officials have pledged their cooperation in a federal safety investigation of suspected fuel line and steering defects in Ford and Mercury cars and possible wheel bearing problems in Fiat.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced earlier this week it will study the vehicles to determine if a safety-related recall should be ordered.

Spokesmen for the two firms said Tuesday they hope for a speedy resolution of the matter.

Included in the investigation are 589,000 1975 and 1976 Ford Granadas and Mercury Monarchs the agency suspects could spring gasoline leaks in a small rubber hose connecting the fuel line to the gasoline filter on the carburetor, resulting in fire in the engine compartment.

Also involved are more than 1.2 million 1973-1975 Ford Pinto, Mustang H and Mercury Bobcats with manual steering the agency suspects could go out of control as a result of a loosened bolt in the steering mechanism.

The Fiat investigation covers 1973-1977 Fiat 128 and X-1.9 sports cars the agency believes could experience front wheel bearing failure, resulting in loss of control due to wheel looseness, lockup or separation.

German role cited in Zaire invasion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — East Germans, not Cubans, trained the rebel force that invaded Zaire recently, says an Austrian-born expert on terrorism.

"What happened in Zaire is mass terrorism, and I don't think it was engineered by the Cubans but the East Germans," Dr. Stefan Possony said Tuesday at a news conference.

"It has all the earmarks of a German World War II operation," he said. "The Cubans couldn't do it in 20 years."

Possony, the co-author of a new book, "International Terrorism: The Communist Connection," noted that East German Defense Minister Gen. Helm Hoffman was in Angola just before the rebels launched their attack from that country.

The blitzkrieg-type invasion and withdrawal of Katangese rebels, he said, pointed to East German training and direction.

The Carter administration has mentioned East German involvement in Africa but blames Cuba for the Zaire invasion.

Possony and L. Francis Bouchea, Executive Director of the Council for Inter-American Security, claim in their book Communists are involved in terrorism all around the world.

Japan shaken anew

TOKYO, June 14 (UPI) — A moderate earthquake shook central and northern Honshu, Japan's main island, tonight, two days after a powerful tremor jolted the same areas, the Meteorological Agency reported.

The tremor also was felt in the Japanese capital. Injuries, damage and the epicenter of the quake were not known immediately.

An agency spokesman said the quake, measuring 4 on the Japanese scale of 7, was recorded at Fukushima, north of Tokyo, at 8:36 p.m. (5:36 a.m. MDT).

Monday's powerful quake killed at least 22 persons, injured hundreds and caused heavy damage in the northern province of Miyagi.

Spy swap considered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is exploring an indirect offer by Cuba to exchange an American imprisoned in Havana for a Puerto Rican woman convicted of a 1954 terrorist attack on the U.S. Capitol, the Washington Post reported today.

Administration sources were quoted as saying the offer was rejected by Washington by an East German lawyer, and U.S. officials are not certain about whether it has the full backing of the Cuban government.

The exchange would involve the swap of Lawrence K. Lunt, an American imprisoned in Cuba since 1965, for Lolita Lebron, who is serving a U.S. prison term.

Lunt, who is serving a 30-year sentence, has admitted acting as a contract agent collecting information for the CIA.

Yellowstone camps closed after bear mauls hiker

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—Yellowstone National Park rangers have closed almost 10 percent of the park's back-country campsites because of a mauling incident.

A 21-year-old Jackson, Wyo., woman was mauled by a bear Tuesday while hiking alone in the isolated Heart Lake area in the southwestern portion of the park, park spokesman Jordan Burns said.

Mary Anna Young was hiking alone on the isolated Heart Lake Trail in the southwest portion of the park when she was attacked, Burns said. She was reported in critical but stable condition at the park's Lake Hospital Tuesday.

Hospital officials said Miss Young suffered scap, chest and abdominal lacerations, and extensive tissue damage on the buttocks. She was expected to be transferred by air ambulance to a Salt Lake City hospital late Tuesday or today, Burns said.

It was not known what may have caused the attack, he said.

Burns said 35 back-country campsites in the Heart Lake and Shoshone Lake areas and the extensive back-country area were closed. There are 470 back-country sites in the park, he said.

"The Heart Lake area was one of the more heavily used areas in the past," Burns said. The area will remain closed until further notice, he said, and probably would be opened only to "larger parties."

"There's safety in numbers," Burns said.

"Bears will avoid people as much as possible, and when you have large number of people they're naturally gonna make that much more noise."

Miss Young was found by a party of about 20 hikers about 15 minutes after the attack, he said. They summoned a park ranger who radioed for a helicopter to airlift the woman to the park hospital.

Gem college head leaves

BOISE (UPI) — Dr. Jerold O. Dugger, president of Lewis-Clark State College at Lewiston for the past 10 years, has accepted the presidency of Bluefield State College at Bluefield, W. Va.

Dr. Ben L. Morton, Chancellor of the West Virginia Board of Regents, announced Dugger's appointment when UPI reached him by long distance telephone at his home in Charleston Tuesday evening. He said it is effective July 1.

Morton said Dugger succeeds Wade Gilley, who resigned to become secretary of Education for the State of Virginia. Gilley's new job is a cabinet post in Virginia.

Dugger resigned earlier this year from Lewis-Clark. He will be succeeded by that institution by Lee Vickers, who is being promoted from the post of academic vice president.

Welding sparks may have caused Boise hotel fire

BOISE (UPI) — Fire officials said a welder working above a pile of debris probably was responsible for a fire Tuesday morning which gutted part of the basement in the Historic Boise Hotel.

The fire, which broke out shortly after 11 a.m., occurred as workers were refurbishing the structure, built in 1930. Workmen were on several floors when the fire broke out, and about 15 men were trapped on an abutment above the fifth floor.

But several men slid to safety down a drainage pipe running from the roof to the ground. The fire department arrived moments later and those remaining on top of the building climbed down ladders.

No one was injured in the blaze and damage was minimal. The building, which is 10 stories high and is capped by a wooden cupola, is made of concrete and the fire destroyed only rubble in the basement.

"There was a guy welding above the debris and we think a spark may have dropped onto the pile," said Victor Lewis, assistant battalion chief. "There also were electrical wires under some debris and they may have shorted out."

Lewis said a spark from the welder probably fell down an electrical conduit and ignited some cork. The blaze covered about 100 square feet of area and sent thick black smoke billowing out of basement and first floor windows, which were placed in the structure during the last couple weeks.

Two pumps, two ladder trucks, and a power utility truck manned by about 27 firefighters were sent to extinguish the blaze.

One worker said eight to 10 other employees were on the cupola high above the city when the blaze broke out, but that they descended to the fifth floor and climbed or slid to safety.

"I was on the third floor when I saw the smoke," the worker said. "I wasn't too worried. I knew the fire department was close by and that I was close enough to the windows to escape."

Another worker trapped on the fifth floor was more concerned. "I was scared as hell," he said.

A third worker said he was on the fifth floor when he noticed the smoke. "It was kind of scary seeing all that smoke. I just tried to make it to the roof as fast as I could. It was hard to know how bad it was."

Engineer Andy Anderson told the fire department to have the gas company shut off the lines because of a newly-installed gas line which runs through the basement.

Evans heads for meeting

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans departs today for Hawaii and the Western governors' conference.

The Idaho governor will serve as chairman of the conference's resolution committee and also will speak to the governors about their role on agriculture in a high growth area such as Idaho.

Evans also expects to be named committee chairman at the concluding session Saturday. He already serves as vice chairman.

During resolution discussions, Evans will offer at least two resolutions, addressing the issues of national water policy and beef importations.

In the national water policy resolution policy resolution, he is expected to comment on the resident's efforts to establish a national water policy and request the President "to form a special advisory committee to help determine additional goals for the policy through citizen involvement."

On the issue of beef importations, Evans said he will ask the conference to forward a resolution to the President asking reconsideration to increase his decision to increase the limit on beef import by 200 million pounds and return the limit of 1.25 billion pounds of beef.

No contract

BOISE (UPI) — The State Tax Commission is not authorized by law to contract with cities to collect the recently authorized resort city hotel-motel rooms and liquor-by-the-drink taxes, the attorney general said today.

While the new law allows cities to contract with any person for the collection of authorized non-property taxes, Assistant Attorney General David G. High wrote, there is no similar legislative authority for the Tax Commission.

"If the State Tax Commission or the cities involved believe that such a contract would be desirable, we would urge you to seek legislative authorization for such a contract," High wrote Commission Chairman Jenkin Palmer.

Stocks at Midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks opened higher in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead 2.77 to 775 shortly after the opening bell. Advances led lines, 300 to 109, among the issues crossing the tape.

The market rebounded from earlier losses late Tuesday. The National Steel announced it would raise prices only 3 percent this year in line with the Bethlehem Steel.

Also buying investors' firms, Federal Reserve chairman G. Williams called the United States is firmly committed to maintaining a strong dollar.

The recent weakness of the dollar abroad has discouraged foreign investors from buying U.S. equities and prompted a sale from Kuwait to seek other round of price hikes at OPEC's ministerial meeting in Geneva to compensate for declines caused by the dollar's rise.

But Wall Street's nervousness over the prospect of higher interest rates strained buying. The Wall Street Journal has predicted another quarter-point boost in the prime lending rate is imminent because of mounting cost pressures and heavy demand.

Metals futures stronger

(Cody) Sinclair & Co. CHICAGO — Metals and grains were lower but metals were sharply higher in commodity futures trading Tuesday.

Commodity News Service said live cattle closed 135 to 150 points off after mixed buying which may have been short covering, bringing prices up from the lows.

Wheat ended fractionally mixed, fluctuating in a narrow range. It was higher to a penny lower with most months under pressure from falling soybean prices.

Corn pared some of its losses on speculative short covering which offset some of the pressure from weaker cattle, closing under the cent off. Traders consider the crop situation borderline at best although planting is virtually complete.

Light weight and mixed prices characterized the soybean market most of the day, and speculator selling carried prices lower across the board.

Beans ended 8 to 6 1/2 cents down, oil was off 2 to 50 cents and meal lost 1.40 to 20 cents.

Western russets remained at $7.00. New York Sugar #1 closed 18 to 22 points lower on a strong volume of 6,025 lots. Trade buying was steady but there was no move toward a rally.

International Monetary Market gold rose 19 to 330 points in active trade of 3,901 contracts with back months strongest as carrying charges between months widened.

Traders saw the Japanese yen's strength against the dollar as bullish, but white the dollar recovered some of its early losses that had no impact on gold.

New York Comex silver gained 840 to 960 points as the market brushed off messages from the White House about controlling silver.

Supreme Court rules burial trust legal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday dismissed a challenge to the Illinois law requiring companies that sell burial vaults on prepayments plans to hold the purchase price in trust until the buyer's death.

The justices left standing an Illinois appeals court ruling that the law is constitutional.

The 1969 state law, designed to protect consumers from fly-by-night funeral services salesmen, says all money paid for the furnishing or delivery of any personal property, merchandise or services of any nature in connection with the final disposition of a dead human body, for future use shall be deposited in a bank account until the buyer's death.

The state comptroller began action against Memorial Consultants Inc. in 1971 for violating the so-called "burial bank" act. The company, which sells burial vaults in advance of death on monthly installment plans said the law is unconstitutional as used against it.

The company said it sold about 9,000 contracts for vaults during 1972-74 with receipts of $1.25 million. The vaults are to be delivered either 60 days after the price is paid in full, or "on request" — usually at time of death, 30 or more years after the contract is signed.

It said the vaults only cost it 35 percent of the purchase price, and there should be no need to hold in trust 100 percent of the price to ensure their delivery. To do so leaves it without funds to pay overhead and continue its business, the company said.

It said the law only protects the interests of funeral directors who sell such merchandise at much higher prices at the time of death and is "prohibitory" rather than regulatory.

But the Illinois 3rd Division appellate court upheld the law last July 29, citing a previous opinion that such laws are authorized by the state's police power.

It noted Kansas, Utah, Idaho, Arkansas, Texas, Tennessee, West Virginia and Montana have similar statutes which have been held constitutional.

The appellate court opened the way for proceedings against Memorial Consultants for violating the law.

U.S. flag presented

SEN. James McClure, left, recently presented the MA-ISHU Lodge of the Order of the Arrow a flag flown by the lodge's request over the U.S. Capitol Oct. 7, 1977. The lodge, a special order of the Boy Scouts of America, will present the flag to Camp Bradley for its official flag this summer. Shown with McClure are, from left, Erik Partin, secretary of the lodge; Jim Olson, director of Camp Bradley, and Jay Hartwell, Order of the Arrow adviser.

Doctor stresses feeding therapies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey's deteriorating appearance in the months before his death reflected an unnecessary nutritional deficiency common among cancer patients, says a Harvard Medical School professor.

Dr. George Blackburn, professor of surgery, said at the opening day of Senate hearings on cancer and diet that research on nutrition treatment is threatened by financial cutbacks and biases by physicians.

As he opened the hearings Monday, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., chairman of the Senate nutrition subcommittee, said although about half of cancer among Americans is diet-related, only 1 percent of federal spending for cancer is on diet and its relation to the disease.

Blackburn, who also is director of the Nutrition Support Service of the Cancer Research Institute in Boston, said nutrition is important not only in disease prevention but also in disease treatment and rehabilitation.

He said "no better example exists" of problems of inadequate nutrition among cancer patients than Humphrey, whose loss of weight and hair was evident as the nation watched him grow weaker in the months before his death.

"Many people, including many physicians, consider such tissue waste a natural and inevitable part of certain illnesses, particularly cancer. In fact, this is not true," Blackburn said.

He said "over half of all weight loss that occurs with cancer can be prevented" and the quality of life of cancer patients can be improved with "extremely simple" feeding therapies.

Hyperalimentation, a method of meeting nutrition requirements through intravenous feeding, is not widely enough used, he said.

Since passage of the 1971 Cancer Act, after which the bulk of the research money was spent, it has been determined that 80 percent to 90 percent of cancers are apparently environmentally caused, McGovern said.

"More striking is the discovery that 40 percent of the cancers in men and 60 percent in women are nutrition-related. These include cancer of the breast, colon and rectum, liver, kidney, stomach and prostate," he said.

Youth survives bacteria attack

TORRANCE (UPI) — Two weeks ago, 9-year-old Mary Pack dove into the cool Deep Creek pond in the San Bernardino Mountains, unaware of the pond's deadly secret.

Today she is the only living victim of amoebic meningoencephalitis, caused by a rare bacteria which enters the nose and quickly moves to the brain and begins destroying it.

"There have been only 100 reported cases in the world and most of those have been in Czechoslovakia," Dr. James Seidel, chief of ambulatory medicine at Harbor General Hospital, said Monday.

Dr. Seidel said a team of doctors treated the girl with a series of injections directly into the spinal column.

"She is awake and listed in good condition," a hospital spokesman said Monday. "She should be released within a few days."

Only one other case has been reported in California, Susan Ratliff of Long Beach. She too, contracted the lethal bacteria from the Deep Creek pond and died shortly after a swim in 1971.

"The bacteria goes to the brain right away and is quickly fatal," the doctor said. "Symptoms are a severe headache, then a coma and death."

The popular nude bathing water hole is in a remote area about 80 miles east of Los Angeles. U.S. Forest Service officials said at least 200 swimmers hike to the pond each weekend during the summer.

Rangers said swimmers continually remove the posted "quarantined" signs.

Marge and Rod Pack took Mary and her 7-year-old brother, Roddy, to the swimming hole during the Memorial Day weekend. Two days later, the girl lapsed into a coma and was rushed to Victorville Community Hospital. She was transferred to Harbor General June 2.

8 prisoners freed by U.N. Command

PANMUNJOM, Korean Demilitarized Zone (UPI) — Eight North Korean prisoners stripped to their shorts after being released Tuesday and threw their South Korean clothing back across the truce line.

The U.N. Command freed the Communists captured May 19 when South Korean sailors sank a North Korean armed vessel that intruded into Seoul's waters.

On their release, the North Koreans cursed at their captors, stripped to down to their shorts and threw the clothes they received in the south across the Military Demarcation Line in the Panmunjom truce village.

The UNC immediately sent a protest note, accusing North Korea of violating an agreement that there would be no disorderly conduct by either side in the process of transfer.

"Once again, your side has demonstrated its inability to abide by agreements it makes," U.S. Army Col. Kenneth A. Kleypas, UNC Secretary to the Korean Armistice Commission, said in the note.

"I most strongly protest the behavior of your personnel and your side's failure to maintain order on your side after the transfer was completed," the note said.

UNC officials said an investigation had established that the boots the eight North Koreans were aboard belonged to the North Korean Defense Ministry. North Korea has said the eight were fishermen.

Base salary for Twin Falls teachers goes to $9,300

By GARY ELLASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Teachers in the Twin Falls School District will receive a salary increase next year, but they still will be some of the lowest paid teachers in the state, if not the nation.

In the 1978-79 budget approved Tuesday night by the school board, the teachers' base salary will go from $8,600 to $9,300, said Camden Meyer, assistant superintendent. The average teacher in the district will now make just over $10,000, he said.

"This is one of the best rates in a long time for teachers," Meyer said. "But they still are relatively low."

Of the total $6,000,000 budget, approximately $4,100,000 is to provide salaries for 400 teachers, principals, aides and other instructional help. This compares with an instructional expense last year of $3,744,500.

The total administrative salary budget will jump from $157,000 in 1977-78 to $176,000 for next year. On the other hand, administrative expense (legal fees, publishing expenses, etc.) is expected to go down $9,000 to $33,000.

According to Meyer, the teachers received a slightly larger increase based on the salary schedule in salaries than administrative personnel. But overall administrative salaries took an 8 to 11 percent jump, too. In addition, Meyer said some revision was done in custodial and secretary salaries to make their wages more uniform.

The 1978-79 budget is based on an assessed property valuation of $23,700,000 producing a total levy of $4,266,000. About $1,400,000 will be used for general fund purposes.

Meyer said 70 percent of the district's revenue comes from state funding, and 30 percent from local taxes. About $80,000 is from federal grants.

Other major categories of the budget include: Pupils transportation $260,000; Operation of plant salaries $240,000; and Fixed Charges (insurance) expenditures $229,000.

The board also decided to have three appraisals done on the old Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School. The superintendent will choose one, the county another, and then the two will get together and pick a third.

Superintendent James Sawin said the county has expressed an interest in the property, and this will give them a chance to be involved in the process.

The group also authorized the spending of $25,822.30 for new equipment at the new junior high and after hearing concern about vandalism—decided to explore the cost of lighting a new stage shed at the west end of the track.

Architect Jim Smallwood reported that progress on the new junior high is on schedule.

"There seems to be some controversy among the public," board member Rich Dwyer said. "We should point out that the building is not scheduled to be ready for use until after Christmas."

"It was never intended to be open by September," he said.

Ronk retires as board chairman for Twin Falls school district

TWIN FALLS — Dr. Howard Ronk chaired his last school board meeting Tuesday.

And fellow school board members wanted him to know they — and the entire community — appreciated his years of dedication to education in Twin Falls. They presented him with a wooden plaque which takes note of his 10 years on the board—five years as chairman.

Dr. Ronk was first elected to the board in 1968 and was chosen chairman in 1973. He decided not to seek re-election this year and will be replaced July 1 by Gene Champain.

"It's become a way of life for 10 years," he said. "It's going to be hard to break that habit."

Ruth Day, in making the plaque presentation, praised Dr. Ronk for his "tremendous knowledge" of taxes. "We appreciate what you have done," she said.

Dr. Ronk said this is "an excellent board" and "if we never did anything right, at least we did the right thing in hiring Dr. Sawin (superintendent)."

Rupert zoning hearing postponed

RUPERT — It will be late July or early August, before a public hearing is held on changes in a proposed comprehensive land use plan for Minidoka County.

County Planning Administrator David Abo told the Minidoka County Planning and Zoning commissioners Monday they should be the officials to hold the public hearing and not the county commissioners.

The final draft of the plan is being readied now for the hearing, Abo said.

revised plan, as 40 acres and requires landowners to subdivide after selling off four sections for residential development. The size of a tract of land had not previously been defined.

Another wording change in the proposed land use plan requires neighbors within half mile of a commercial or industrial development to be notified in writing of public hearings on the development before the county planning commission or the county commissioners.

county with fire, liability and automobile insurance.

Minidoka County Clerk August "Gus" Bethke said the insurance has not been bid in recent years and the county may have trouble finding interested companies to bid. He said some firms may not want to bid for the false arrest coverage, but he strongly favored soliciting bids again.

The commissioners did not act on Bethke's suggestion they begin work soon on the 1979 budget. Bethke said the budget must be advertised by Aug. 21 and he wants to begin meeting with the commissioners, preferably in special meetings, in assembling the budget.

Child immunization program planned in city of Hansen

HANSEN — Childhood disease and the need for immunization will be discussed Thursday in a special program at Hansen.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Hansen School multi-purpose room.

Jim Giffrey, health educator, said a film on immunization, "A Gift and Obligation," will be presented.

There will also be a talk, with a question-and-answer period, he said.

"There have been several cases of childhood diseases in the Magic Valley over the past few years. We want to draw to parents the need for immunization," he said.

A follow-up clinic is planned June 27 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Hansen Parent Teacher Association and the South Central District Health Department are sponsoring the meeting and clinic.

But suggestions offered

Buhl — City council members in Buhl, reviewing the Buhl's comprehensive fire plan, complimented firemen for their work but made several suggestions for preparing for major fires.

Both Mayor Dale Christensen and Fire Chief Walter (Dub) Hamer were away when the fire occurred.

Hamer told the city council the city still has a need for better and bigger water mains in some areas of the city.

"We can have all the water in the world in that reservoir, but if we haven't got the mains to carry it and the pressure we need we can't fight a fire," he said.

Hamer said the men had difficulty with a switch on one fire hydrant but swapped to another in a matter of a few seconds. He said pressure is always a problem in fighting a large fire in most areas of the city.

Lawrence Farwell, public works director, said at one point in the fire it was necessary to switch from Well

no. 3 to Well No. 4 for a water supply. This was also complicated in a matter of minutes and without loss of the water supply at the scene of the fire, he said.

Council members suggested some public educational program as city wide regulation requiring residents of Buhl to turn off lawn sprinklers in the event of a fire.

City Clerk Peggy McArthur said many people turn on their lawn sprinklers before they leave for work and it is

Candidate reveals personal finances

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Republican congressional candidate Jim Jones Tuesday voluntarily disclosed personal holdings and assets totaling more than $500,000, and liabilities totaling at least $125,000.

The Jerome attorney candidate for the seat now held by Republican George Hansen, said he didn't like "the idea of disclosing my financial situation," but added, "since my primary opponent is required to do so, I think it is only fair to make this disclosure."

Legislation "By making his disclosure at this point, Jones said, 'nobody can come along at a later date and make the accusation that I had some sort of undisclosed interest with regard to some piece of legislation.'"

Jones said his financial disclosure also included all assets and liabilities of his wife, Nancy.

Jones reported his financial statement on forms used by congressmen and senators to make the financial disclosure statements required under the House and Senate ethics codes.

Connor's Cafe burns in Paul

PAUL — Calvin Connor won't end his vacation today with a piece of pie and a cup of coffee in his cafe near the Burley-Paul exit of Interstate 90-North.

Instead, he will find Connor's Cafe closed because of an early morning fire which fire officials believe started in the kitchen.

Fifteen volunteer firemen successfully fought for three hours shortly after midnight this morning to keep the flames from spreading to the Hub 66 gas station adjacent to the cafe.

Elmer Fetzer, chief for the West End Fire Department in Paul, said the fire was contained in the cafe's kitchen and spread to areas when his department's three trucks rolled up. He said the flames had broken through the roof and the building was filled with smoke when the firemen arrived, after a call had been received from a gas station attendant.

Fetzer said cause of the fire was not known but that the blaze probably started near the ventilation hood for the cooking range.

The fire chief estimated damage to the building at $6,000 to $7,000, but said he would have to wait for insurance officials to determine the damage to the contents.

Connie Paslay, daughter of the owner, said the last restaurant employees left about 11:30 p.m. and no one was in the building when it started.

Mrs. Paslay said equipment in the cooking area was destroyed. However, she said all the equipment appeared to have been turned off before the fire broke out.

Representatives passed ethics codes requiring members of Congress to list personal holdings, assets and debts. While all candidates are bound by federal law to report campaign contributions and expenditures, only sitting members of congress are required to itemize the personal assets and liabilities listed in the ethics codes. This means Jones, while required to file reports of his campaign spending and contributions, was not required to disclose the financial data he released Tuesday.

Jones, who listed extensive real estate and cattle holdings said "it is probably a good idea to let the public know I do have interests in the farming, cattle-feeding and ranching businesses."

Jones said it was essential to Idaho and the nation "to maintain a strong farm and livestock economy," adding that "for the most part I believe these businesses operate best under the free market system."

Jones said there were cases where legislation could affect the farm and livestock industries, adding "I would expect to support that

Several of Jones' assets were itemized as falling into the fifth, and highest "category of value" listed on the federal ethics codes reporting forms. That category of value is use for income or holdings worth "over $100,000."

This means that while the salary and assets listed by Jones and his wife are worth at least $348,631.61, they may be worth in excess of that total.

Jones also released a list of his financial liabilities. These, including a home mortgage and a property contract, totaled at least $125,000.

Truck tires blow, vehicle destroyed

BURLEY — A $40,000 City of Burley garbage truck full of garbage was destroyed Monday afternoon after two tires blew out and the vehicle rolled in a barrow pit south of Burley, Cassia County Sheriff's officers said today.

According to the report, garbage truck driver Larry Lee Hill, 28, Burley, was southbound on Highway 20 near 300 South Road after 1:45 p.m. when the accident occurred.

The report said Hill was passing a slower-moving vehicle when the outside left rear dual tire slipped off the pavement and the inside left rear dual tire blew out. The vehicle swerved back control of the truck, officers said.

The truck went off the right side of the highway and into the barrow pit, where it rolled once, ending up on its right side. Sheriff's officers said Hill received minor cuts and bruises and was taken to Cassia County Memorial Hospital for treatment. Hill was not cited in the accident.

Jess Norton, city sanitation superintendent, said it only took 30 minutes at the accident scene to clean up garbage which spilled out from the rollover. However, he said it took another half day with back hoe to scoop the garbage from the wrecked truck.

One truck is being used on two routes now, Norton said.

Colorado ski ticket prices up

DENVER (UPI) — Skiers who come to Colorado next season are going to have to pay as much as $15 a day for their lift tickets as the result of new fees approved by the U.S. Forest Service.

A spokesman said rate increases ranging from $1 to $3 had been approved for 14 areas and further lift charge increases still are under consideration. The most costly areas for skiing will be the four Aspen ski areas and Vail where the daily lift cost will be $15 during the peak season from Dec. 21 to March 31.

Lake Eldora from $8 to $9; Loveland Basin, from $9.50 to $10.50; Copper Mountain from $12 to $13; Breckenridge from $11 to $12, and Sunlight from $9 to $10.

Last year U.S. Forest Service Director John McGuire allowed ski areas to set their own rates to see whether competition would keep the prices in line. This year, ski areas were required to submit requests. No request has been rejected yet.

Bob Weir, a ski lift specialist with the Forest Service in Washington, D.C., said the federal agency gathered statistics on the percentage of capacity the areas handled last season in making a review.

"We also tried to determine whether or not skiers had an alternative to skiing at a particular area," Weir said. "Generally, if there is a reasonably close alternative, our feeling was that competition would serve to keep the prices at a reasonable level."

Juvenile testimony approved

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Juveniles will be required to testify as trial witnesses in Idaho criminal cases, according to a ruling handed down Monday by Third District Judge R. Doolittle.

Doolittle's ruling specifically requires a juvenile who allegedly took part in an Oct. 2, 1977 burglary of Emmett High School to testify at the trial of two adults also charged in the incident.

Idaho law requires that a person may be compelled to produce testimony if he is granted immunity from criminal prosecution that could otherwise result from his testimony.

Under this law, Gem County Prosecuting Attorney John Ruelmann asked the court to require the juvenile to testify against the two adults. The defense attorney, James F. Kile of Boise, said that by requiring the juvenile to testify in open court he would lose the anonymity usually granted juveniles accused of crimes.

Kile also said that if the juvenile testified in Gem County, he might incriminate himself on another criminal charge in Ada County.

But Doolittle said the purpose of the immunity statute must be to assist successful prosecution of persons charged with violations of the criminal laws enacted to protect the lives and property of the people of Idaho. "The prosecutor may, in this case, choose to immunize a juvenile in exchange for testimony against one or more adults allegedly involved in the same offense," the judge said.

"There is no policy of confidentiality in the youth rehabilitation act which would operate to exclude juveniles from the terms of the immunity statute," Doolittle said. "Moreover, there is no constitutional right to confidentiality for juveniles who graduate to major crimes."

Doolittle said his court finds that in this case it is in the public interest to grant immunity to prosecution of the juvenile in order to secure his testimony regarding the adult offenders.

"The public," Doolittle said, "must also have an interest in the terrifying increase in juvenile crime which has reached such proportions that juveniles account for 59 percent of all those persons arrested for burglary in Idaho in 1978. Add well over half of all persons arrested for all major crimes."

fugitive arrested

TWIN FALLS — Kenneth Barker, 51, Rawlins, Wyo., was being held in the Twin Falls County jail today under $25,000 bond on fugitive warrants issued in both Wyoming and Montana.

Barker was arrested Monday by Twin Falls sheriff's officers while already in the county jail.

Chief Deputy Sheriff James Munn said Barker was originally arrested by Twin Falls city police in May on a warrant charging violation of parole in Wyoming. His bond of $1,500 had been reduced to $750 but he had not posted bond.

Monday the sheriff's office received a warrant from Montana, also charging parole violation. Munn said he did not know the nature of the original charge in Montana, but said the suspect refused to waive extradition and the governor of Montana has started extradition procedures to return the man to that state.

Firm opens new office

TWIN FALLS — United First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Boise will open a branch office on the corner of Filer Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The City Council Monday approved a request by the company to conduct business in a trailer at the location, former site of Crown Music, until a permanent facility is constructed.

The council gave the company permission to operate out of the trailer for nine months, but the company plans to complete their building by October.

CLOWN AMONG TROUPE COMING TO FILER
... American Continental Circus to present show

Firefighters helping circus

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firefighters are distributing tickets to children who otherwise might not be able to see the circus coming to Twin Falls in July.

The American Continental Circus, the second largest traveling circus in the western hemisphere, will bring its many acts to the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer on July 24.

Among the performers will be six acts who recently quit Ringling Brothers Circus to join the lions, tigers, elephants, clowns and other acts of the American Continental Circus.

The six new acts are, Knopp's equilibrist act from Poland; the Flying Willstons from Columbia; who execute the triple somersault, on the flying trapeze; the Chorles Troupe on the teeter board from Hungary; Miss Christina, the Czechoslovakian trapeze artist; and Bill Brickie and his poodle review. It is the policy of the circus to bring in a completely new cast each year, so that each year's show is new and different.

The firefighters, who are sponsoring the circus through the Firefighters Benefit Fund, are working with the Health and Welfare Department and the Salvation Army to provide tickets to children who otherwise might not be able to see the circus.

In addition, tickets are on sale in advance at a discount.

Further information on available tickets may be obtained by calling 734-5705.

Twin Falls selects bonding consultant

TWIN FALLS — The City Council has selected the firm of Loeb Rhoades, Hornblower and Co. as financial consultant for the northwest local improvement district construction project.

Loeb Rhoades' function will be to prepare the sale of bonds the city will issue to finance the $2.5 to $3 million project and secure bidders to purchase those bonds.

Loeb Rhoades' fee will be between one-half and three-quarters of one percent of the amount of bonds sold. At one-half of one percent, Loeb Rhoades will be paid between $12,500 and $15,000 for its services.

Loeb Rhoades was chosen as the city's bonding agent over Idaho First National Bank and Burrough's Co. of Salt Lake, partially because they are represented locally.

Ed Smith, Loeb Rhoades' local representative, said the city also chose his nationwide firm because it can offer the city's bonds to over 600 municipal bond institutional buyers, an exposure which could not be matched by the other, more regionally oriented firms which sought the job. The added exposure should result in a lower interest rate to the city on the sale of its bonds, Smith said.

grant given

WASHINGTON — Idaho has received $103,189 in federal funds to conduct a nutrition education and training program.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said the money will be used to provide children, teachers and school food service personnel with training on the relationship between nutrition, good food, and health.

Grants are based on a rate of 50 cents for each child enrolled in a school or institution. The minimum amount a state can receive is $75,000.

A total of $26 million is available to states nationwide.

House denies poor women abortion $

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday rejected an effort to allow poor women under the government Medicaid program the same access to legal abortions as wealthier women who can afford them.

On a 287-122 vote, the House rejected an amendment by Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, to strike all language restricting federal funding of abortions from a nearly $57 billion bill funding the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

Stokes sought to eliminate wording added by a House appropriations subcommittee that would prohibit federally funded abortions except to save the mother's life.

The House then turned its attention to another amendment that could hold the key to heading off another long battle with the Senate on the abortion issue.

That amendment, by House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas, would substitute the compromise abortion language that settled last year's six-month congressional battle over restrictions on federally funded abortions.

In addition to life-saving abortions, the compromise allows the procedure for victims of rape and incest who report the attacks to law enforcement or public health authorities, and for women who would suffer "severe and long-lasting" physical damage by continuing a pregnancy to term.

The Senate has consistently taken a more liberal stand on abortion than the House, and it is believed another long, bitter confrontation can be avoided only by softening the abortion language in the committee bill.

Stokes said the restrictions on federally funded abortions should be taken out of the legislation because they affect only one group in the population — poor women. He called this "unconscionable class legislation."

"There are lots of things that rich people can afford that are not available to poor people," responded Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Mo., said the issue is whether taxpayers' dollars should be used to finance a "slaughter" that "violates the conscience of millions of Americans."

But Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., said cutting off federal funds to finance abortions for poor women won't stop the practice — just force women to find "back alley" abortionists or try to perform the operation themselves.

"I don't think it's right for the right to life committee in this House to use poor women as pawns in a very cruel game," said Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Mo.

Hagerman adopts school budget

HAGERMAN — Hagerman school trustees have adopted a budget which is 9 per cent above last year's spending.

The new budget totals $438,473 compared to $402,201 last year. Three persons attended the public budget hearing during the monthly board meeting Monday night.

The budget includes a 10 per cent salary increase given teachers in next year's contracts. The instructional budget is $329,797, compared to $285,497 last year.

The maintenance and operation budget is down to $57,100 compared to $63,400 last year, but this does not reflect any real savings, only a decrease in bookkeeping, because the extra money is budgeted under a special outlay. It will be spent on hookups for the new sewer system now being installed in Hagerman.

The capital outlay budget is $15,475, compared to $11,799 last year. The transportation budget also is up, with $37,000 budgeted for this year, compared to $33,000 last year.

This item covers an increase in bus operation expenses in the contract with the J and N Bus Co., Jerome, according to Carol Ainsworth, district clerk.

The board retired all non-certified personnel who also will get a 10 per cent salary increase. Trustees also decided to again sponsor Red Cross swimming lessons in Gooding in July. Laura McNulty is in charge of registration.

EPA seeks input on weed killer

MOSCOW — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has extended to Aug. 4 the deadline for public comment on the agency's plan to review the safety of the herbicide, 2,4,5-T.

Comment is invited on the agency's notice of rebuttable presumption against registration (RPAR) of products containing the herbicide 2,4,5-T.

RPAR is the process by which the EPA reviews the safety and usefulness of pesticides it considers to have potentially dangerous characteristics.

Chemicals that go through the RPAR process are not necessarily banned or restricted as a result. The RPAR process is designed primarily to gather and review information.

Idahoans wishing to respond should send three copies of their comments to Federal Register Section, Technical Services Division (WH-569), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA Room 401, East Tower, 401 M St. S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460. Each copy should be marked "OPP-30000/26."

Classed and used as a selective herbicide, 2,4,5-T is marketed and sold under such trade names as Brush-Rhap, Esteron 245, Weedat 2,4,5-T and Ded-Wood T.

The EPA has received reports which show 2,4,5-T and its associated dioxin contaminant TCDD produce tumors and cause birth defects in test animals and that TCDD is poisonous to humans.

Giant statue may be sold

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UPI) — A 62-foot statue of Abraham Lincoln has been the butt of numerous jokes among residents of the eastern Illinois community of Charleston.

So now, it may find a new home — appropriately, in Lincoln, Ill.

Representatives of Lincoln, the only town named for the 16th president before he became chief executive, plan a trip to Charleston Thursday to take a look at the statue.

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce has offered Charleston city officials $5,000 for the statue that was erected in 1969 at a $21,000 cost to area businessmen. Charleston accepted the offer, but a final decision by the board of directors of the Lincoln Chamber "must" be made before the sale is final.

"If we feel it is good for us and tourism and adds to the historical outlook in the city of Lincoln, we will carry on regarding and not listen to one or two people," Walter Strohmenger, executive director of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce said.

The steel and fiberglass statue — said by some to be the ugliest likeness of Lincoln ever built — stands two miles southeast of Charleston and has attracted vandals and partygoers, not tourists as planners had intended.

The idea for the structure came from Charleston merchant Andy McArthur who had seen a large statue of a lumberman in Iron City, Mich., and thought Charleston could use a similar attraction. Initially, a commercial developer planned to build the statue as the center of a large tourist attraction, and 21 businessmen each signed $1,000 promissory notes to begin the project.

But the developer backed out and the businessmen were forced to come up with the $21,000. Later, some of the merchants decided to hold a festival to raise money and recoup some of their losses. Few people attended, though, and the Charleston Chamber estimated that, in all, the Lincoln statue cost its backers $37,000.

Another sore point with residents is the looks of the statue.

"There is some question about how the thing looks," said Jack Ensign, a Charleston merchant and former City Council member, who was one of the statue's 21 financial backers.

"People use all kinds of sarcastic adjectives to describe it. It's grotesque and the head seems to be out of proportion with the rest of the body. It's too large."

Even with all its problems, Strohmenger said the statue may be just right for Lincoln.

He said he is aware of thousands of tourists who come to Illinois each year to visit Lincoln's native home and he added that if the city purchases the statue, it probably will be placed in Rallegitler State Park, south of Lincoln.

"If we were to put it in, we would make something that people might want to come to see," said Strohmenger. "It wouldn't just be a statue sitting by itself."

Suicide attempted by accused Nazi

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — Alleged Nazi war criminal Gustavo Franz Wagner tried to kill himself in his prison cell by eating small bits of glass from broken eyeglasses, police said Tuesday.

The 66-year-old Wagner, accused of ordering the executions of thousands of Jews in the Sobibor and Treblinka death camps in occupied Poland, was in no serious danger, unofficial sources said.

The German-born Wagner was being treated in his cell, where doctors have also been giving him medication for extreme high blood pressure, the sources said.

A brief Federal Police announcement said Wagner tried to kill himself on Monday by smashing his eyeglasses and swallowing small pieces of glass.

Police said Tuesday a prison guard restrained Wagner almost immediately after he began eating the glass in his special cell in the Federal Police prison in the Brazilian capital.

Wagner, who admitted he was at Sobibor but claimed he was only a construction worker and denied ordering any executions, was arrested in Sao Paulo May 30 after Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal charged he was a war criminal.

The governments of Israel, West Germany, Austria and Poland have shown interest in extraditing Wagner, but as of Tuesday the Foreign Ministry said only Israel has filed an official request.

But Israel's request is not considered strong because the country did not exist at the time of Wagner's alleged crimes. A Foreign Ministry spokesman also said the documentation Israel submitted was incomplete.

In a related case, newspapers reported Manfred Kurt Roeder, the organizer of an April 23 meeting in Rio de Janeiro celebrating Adolf Hitler's 89th birthday, was living in southern Brazil.

Roeder, a West German citizen, is wanted on charges of illegal neo-Nazi activities by the Brazilian government. Wiesenthal picked Wagner from a photograph of the gathering taken by a Brazilian journalist.

A Federal Police spokesman said his department has received no extradition requests on Roeder from the West German government.

McRoberts opens defense of M.V. women's amateur title Thursday

TWIN FALLS — With predictions that 10 over par could well prove good, enough to win it, Rosemary McRoberts tees-off Thursday at Canyon Springs golf course in defense of her Times-News Magic Valley women's amateur championship.

A full field of 72 closed the entry list last week and, due to this being a nine-hole course, the competition will be played from shotgun starts both mornings. This will allow the field to participate in the awards luncheon about 2 p.m. Friday at the clubhouse.

"This course doesn't play very easy," Mrs. McRoberts said. "Women's par is 38-37-75 and I think a couple of 80s could be good enough to win it. Maybe even a couple of 85s."

"I figure if I put well I will do all right. But that part of my game has been erratic lately. I haven't felt comfortable over the ball," she said.

She felt her mental outlook on the course could help her, too. "I thoroughly enjoy playing it. But I know some of the girls don't."

One who hasn't been overly found of the course is 12-time champion Virginia Undhjem of Twin Falls. However, she has been playing it of late in preparation for the Magic Valley. Both Mrs. Undhjem and Mrs. McRoberts teed up for this one by finishing second and third in the Gate City amateur in Pocatello last week.

Mrs. McRoberts, like the rest of the Magic Valley golfers, is waiting for the debut of Karen Brown, Twin Falls, into the sport competitively. Brown, a junior-to-be at Brigham Young University this fall, is just two years into this sport after having great success in basketball, track and softball.

SUPERSTAR Rod Carew of Minnesota, reportedly on the verge of being traded to another American League team, sat out the first game of the Twins' doubleheader sweep of Toronto Tuesday night.

Price for Rod Carew may prove too much

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Telephone lines out of Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith's office were humming with Rod Carew trade talk today. But it depended on who you talked to for a verdict of whether a trade will take place before the Thursday deadline.

Griffith, chastigated by fans for losing Larry Little and Lyman Bostock to free agency after last season, was in touch with several teams who wanted his superstar.

"But we're not going to give him away," Griffith said. "We need a first baseman and a pitcher and more."

Manager Gene Muechler said he didn't think a trade could be made for the six-time American League batting champion.

"I don't expect it to happen," he said. "I wouldn't know how to make a deal for Carew that would make any sense. I'm not sure anybody in the world could do it."

Carew wasn't talking.

"I'm just keeping my mouth shut. I just don't want to create any problems," he said. "People can trade me and do what they want, but they have to realize I have final say on the deal."

Carew, 31, is making about $190,000 in the last year of a three-year contract, which also binds him to the Twins for an option year in 1979 after which he would be a free agent.

If he isn't traded by Thursday, the Twins could continue efforts to negotiate a contract or try to work out a deal with a National League team at the end of the season.

Carew rejected a $2 million, five-year contract offer from Griffith and has listed five teams he would be willing to report to: Kansas City, California, Texas, New York or Boston. He wants to go to a pennant contender.

All five have been in contact with Griffith, who says he wants some top players, top prospects and a cash settlement if he has to part with Carew.

Until the contract battle erupted in training camp last spring, Carew always had good words for Griffith.

A laminated reproduction of a year-old Time magazine cover featuring Carew hangs on the wall of Griffith's office. It bears the inscription: "Calvin, Thanks so much for what you've done for me. I'm very grateful. Rod Carew."

Griffith compared the current trade with another deal he worked out two years ago.

"It's not like when we traded Bert Blyleven to Texas a couple of years ago — that was something we wanted to do," he said. The animosity between Blyleven and the front office had been growing long before that trade, but "Rod isn't that way at all," he said.

"Oh, sure we've had some difficult moments this year and at other times, but nothing neither one of us couldn't get over," he said.

Lopez matches birds, barbs with golfing illuminaries

KETTERING, Ohio (UPI) — Golfing sensation Nancy Lopez matched putts and friendly banter with Bob Hope, Gerald Ford and Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes Monday — and carded birdies on both counts.

Lopez, a 21-year-old rookie from Roswell, N.M., won her fourth straight LPGA tournament Sunday, the LPGA championship at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center Course at Mason.

A disarming smile and friendly manner have made Lopez a gallery favorite, evident Monday when she played with the comedian, the former president and Ohio's chief executive in the Boney Busters fundraiser for multiple sclerosis.

Appaise and exclamations of "she's so cute!" and "Lopez, she's great!" rippled around the first tee as the lanned Lopez addressed the ball. The traditional hush followed — almost.

"What do you think about?" Hope inquired loudly just before her swing.

Smiling, Lopez walked over and proffered Hope a kiss. She then arched a drive arrow-straight down the fairway, drawing oohs from the crowd.

Up came Hope, concentrating on his first swing — almost.

"What do you think about?" interrupted a female voice from behind.

The scoreboard was even.

Many of the estimated 1,500 spectators thronged to see Lopez, who mingled easily with the strangers and signed countless autographs: "I love doing as many as I can," she said.

Lopez has won $118,964 this year, with a velvet-smooth swing and easy putting stroke, something that did not escape Hope's notice.

"After Lopez cracked another impressive tee shot, Hope quizzically grabbed hold of her left arm.

"Where do you buy those stiff left arms? Is there a sale on those?" he asked.

The comedian then carefully tried to emulate Lopez' stroke, prompting her to warn: "Don't strangle yourself."

"Only a girl with your money would let talk that way," countered Hope.

Neither did Ford escape Hope's humor. Following one of the former president's better drives, the comedian wandered aloud, "How many unemployed presidents are there?"

During a thunderstorm delay, Lopez said her next major goal is to win the U.S. Open in July.

"I feel tired from play (last week)," said Lopez, who took the week off before the LPGA championship to rest. "The week went by too fast."

"My rookie year ends in July and I want to play as much as I can until then. After that I might take a few weeks off," she said.

Of her record-tying fourth straight win, she said "It feels great, just great."

Boney Busters, in its 12th year, raises about $40,000 annually for MS. This was the first year women professionals participated, among a field of 250 celebrities.

Owner's comments stir Padres

At least Ray Kroc didn't say it over the public address system this time.

But the San Diego Padres' owner still shook up the team when he recently told an interviewer his team was composed of "idiots" who demand high salaries and play on a "high school" level.

"I'm not going to contradict," Padre Manager Roger Craig said Tuesday after the team gave Kroc more reason for displeasure, losing a 3-2 decision to the New York Mets. "I'm not going to say anything to Mr. Kroc. He owns the club and I'm on the field trying to win ballgames."

It wasn't the first time Kroc expressed himself about the state of the team.

Four years ago, with the Padres mired in a slump, Kroc seized the public address microphone and announced to a stunned crowd, "I've never seen such stupid ballplaying in my life!"

Kroc stopped his comments soon afterwards, but quite frankly, the Padres never started playing on a level that would prove him very far wrong.

Finally, after spending lots of money on free agents, only to see the club fail to improve, Kroc exploded Monday night. The only trouble was his timing. While he was criticizing his players, they were rallying to win a ballgame in the ninth inning. Tuesday, they were in more familiar form.

Lenny Randle's one-out single with the bases loaded in the ninth drove in Lee Mazzilli and pinch-runner Joel Youngblood, came off loser Rolfe Fingers, 2-7, who took over for starter Bob Ojochiko in the seventh. Reliever Skip Lockwood, 7-4, got the win.

"I don't know what's going on," said Oscar Gamble, an expensive free agent purchased who is not among the four players named by Kroc as those who help the team. "I signed to play here. I have an obligation here. It's stay here time. If I'm traded fine."

"We have the attitude to win. It takes more than attitude. You need a good team."

The four players complimented by Kroc were Ozzie Smith, Derrell Thomas, Randy Jones and Gaylord Perry.

"Our attitude is good now," said Jones, who may have sparked the controversy when he blasted some of his teammates for poor attitudes. "We've talked it over. The guys realize we have to pick ourselves up. As far as Mr. Kroc, he's the

Humor rife in Denver — tension's coming

DENVER (UPI) — The tension that will pervade the final days of the U.S. Open, the most coveted of professional golf's four major tournaments, hadn't settled in Tuesday, the second day of official practice rounds.

Spectators swarmed the Cherry Hills Country Club course, jamming every available vantage point on the manicured 7,063-yard layout in an effort to watch their favorite players.

A carnival atmosphere prevailed and infected many of the players, who are feeling out the course prior to the start of tournament play Thursday. Many took time from their rounds to chat with fans and sign autographs, and several showed a sense of humor that doesn't often come across on the television screen.

Lee Trevino apologetically declined to sign autographs during practice, explaining he does so only after he finishes for the day.

"Somebody comes up and shoves a Magic Marker in your face and the next thing you know, your shirt looks like you've been playing '66-66-66 on it," Trevino said. "Hell, I bet I throw away 39 shirts a year."

One suburban lady couldn't believe it when her companion said that was Trevino about to tee off.

"He's not as chunky as he looks on TV," she said.

"I guess I'm going to have to have my set adjusted."

Chl. Chl. Rodriguez, the clown-prince-of-professional golf, attracted a large gallery and told a pretty, young fan he would autograph her program "only if you swear you love me and I am your favorite golfer." She swore and he signed.

Perpetual favorite Arnold Palmer and Andy Bean exchanged banter on one of the practice greens, where Bean was chasing balls for another player practicing out of the sand.

"That has to be the most expensive shag-boy in golf," Palmer said, referring to Bean's two straight wins at the Kemper Open and last week's Droughty Thomas Memphis Classic.

"Talk about making money in golf," Bean quipped to the gallery. "That's old moneybags himself."

Track meet needs no preliminaries

TWIN FALLS — No preliminaries for running events will be required for the Hershey track meet at Twin Falls' Brinn stadium Thursday night.

Meet director Jim Ferguson said the event, open to boys and girls 10 to 15, will start with field events at 5 p.m. and running finals at 6 p.m.

"It's a new thing here and we didn't get the entries that we anticipated but it will be a start," Ferguson said. "We only have two and three entries in some of the events."

He noted the Hershey people had demanded pre-registration, meaning only those who already had entered will be allowed to run Thursday.

NBA fights violence with third referee

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Concerned over violence in basketball games, a committee of the National Basketball Association owners Tuesday proposed stricter rules to prevent violence.

The Competition Committee accepted a recommendation from its Anti-Violence Committee that three referees be used instead of two.

Joe Axelson of the Competition Committee said, "We have rules. We're proposing that the third pair of eyes will help." The Big 10 and the ACC conferences already use three referees, and it has proven practical, Axelson said. "We're all upset that the zone isn't called — the consensus of everyone is let's call the book."

The suggested change was only one of 11 on the way to the NBA governors. But they must pass two other hurdles first — the coaches and general managers will vote on the proposals, but only in an advisory manner. Fifty-one percent of the NBA's Competition and Rules Committee must approve the changes before they go to the board, where a two-thirds vote is required.

The anti-violence committee which suggested the third referee also suggested the elimination of hand checking.

Other major changes would establish a restraining line for coaches, three feet around each side of the bench, and another calls for ejection of the coach the second time a zone is called; the first time it would be technical.

"We all know the zones are being played," Axelson said. "We're going to try and stop it."

Nicklaus remembers close race of 1960

DENVER (UPI) — Because of the importance of Arnold Palmer's 1960 U.S. Open victory to the lore of golf, it is often forgotten that Jack Nicklaus' 1960 U.S. Open was a 29-year-old amateur — finished just two shots behind in second place. But it is a cliché that Nicklaus has not forgotten it.

"And as golf's all-time leading money winner made his tour of the Cherry Hills Country Club course Tuesday in preparation for this year's Open, his mind drifted back to the final nine holes of his first big chance in a major professional championship.

"There are courses that I've played yesterday that I can't tell you anything about," said Nicklaus. "But as I played the back nine today I could remember where I hit every shot that day, where the pin was, and I had firmly in my mind what I did wrong."

"I was just a free-wheeling kid of 20 years old and I played like it. I shot 29 on that last nine to lose."

"I had a 20-foot birdie putt on the 13th hole that day and ran it 14 inches by the hole. I had somebody else's ball mark in my line and I was so nervous I didn't have the presence of mind to fix it and I missed the putt."

"I three-putted the next green, missed a three-footer at the 15th and a four-footer at the 16th. It was in the same position today I might shoot 39, but it would be for different reasons. I know I wouldn't shoot a 39 if I had the ball in the same positions."

"Had I played better and not let Arnold win, or let Arnold win on his own — however you want to phrase it — you wonder what might have happened differently later."

"That was the year that Arnold won so much of his popularity. But it meant a lot at the time to me, too."

And does he feel some of the nostalgia about the return to Cherry Hills because of Palmer's popular victory here?

"Nope," Nicklaus said. "I kind of feel like I should have won."

Now, 18 years later, Nicklaus is playing in his 22nd consecutive U.S. Open and going for his fourth win — something he has been trying for since he captured No. 3 at Pebble Beach in 1972. Nicklaus has gone without a major title since he won the 1975 PGA.

"I don't feel any more keyed up coming into this tournament because I haven't won one of the major (title) lately," said Nicklaus. "I just know it's been a while and I would like to win another one soon."

He may win another one soon, but even if he doesn't, his record in major championships will likely remain unchallenged. He has won 16 of them — five Masters, three U.S. Opens, two British Opens, four PGA's and two U.S. Amateurs. Nicklaus has finished second or tied for second 14 times in major tournaments and finished third or tied for third nine times.

And earlier this year, before the Masters, he predicted himself to be playing the best golf of his career.

"I've been going a lot of things lately that I did to get my game in shape before the Masters," said Nicklaus. "I had a week of uninterrupted practice at home and I think that was the best thing for me. I was planning to come here a few weeks ago to play, but it was raining and 40 degrees so I passed on that."

And when Nicklaus did arrive at Cherry Hills, he, like everyone else, found the rough to be very rough.

"The rough is the most uniform and most difficult I've seen in balls," he said. "You can't expect to drive the ball off the fairway and make par."

"The course is playing fast and short and it's going to be difficult to chip and putt. On the surface, it looks like the kind of course you could shoot low scores on. But if you miss it just a little bit you might see some high numbers out there."

"I don't think 200 (Palmer's winning score in 1960) will win, though. I think somebody will shoot better than that. There are a lot more good players now."

Ali raps his way through Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — Muhammad Ali isn't one to pass up a ring appearance, even in Russia.

All, on a 16-day tour of the Soviet Union at the invitation of a Russian sports committee, ambled through a gym in downtown Moscow Tuesday and spotted some kids sparring.

He moved closer to the ropes, glared, growled and then hollered, "I want my gloves, I need a pair of gloves."

Stripping off his pinstripe coat, the former world heavyweight champion, laced on an old pair of gloves and barked to the wide-eyed youngsters: "All right, who wants to fight?"

Joking and clowning, Ali, traded a few light punches with the kids and later removed his shirt and tie for a full round with Igor Vysotsky, a Soviet amateur champion.

All, introduced as a "great sportsman and great social activist" also spoke to a thousand youngsters at the Physical Fitness and Sports Institute.

At one point in a question-and-answer period, All said he was going to tell everybody back home how popular he is in Russia. "Who else besides me is popular here?" he asked the crowd.

Someone shouted back: "Don Spinks."

All, who lost his heavyweight title to Spinks last February, mumbled that over for a moment.

"Yeah," he said finally. "Well, that's because I made him popular."

All also did a little shuffling and shadow boxing along a Moscow street as he jugged through Red Square at 6 a.m.

Occasionally tugging at his blue sweatshirt, All bobbed and weaved across the cobblestones in the shadow of the Kremlin Wall.

Russians and foreigners, a little wary at first, began crowding around Ali, thrusting paper and pen at the boxer for autographs.

"I've got the most recognizable face on earth," All said. "Tell me, who else could come to Russian like this and be recognized?"

Later, it was a subbed Ali who walked through the streets of Moscow.

"Russia," he said shaking his head. "I just can't believe I'm really in Russia."

KC's Gale blanks Texas on one hit

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Rookie Rick Gale of the Kansas City Royals, pitching for the second time in six days against Texas, took a no-hitter into the seventh inning before settling for a one-hit, five-victory over the Rangers. Gale held the Rangers hitless until Al Oliver tripled down the right field line with two outs in the seventh. The three-walk, four-strikeout performance upped Gale's record to 6-1. The right-hander also went 6-13 innings last Wednesday against Texas before losing his no-hitter in that game on a single to Richie Zisk.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Fred Norman and Doug Bair combined on a four-hit shutout Tuesday night and the Cincinnati Reds, aided by Gene Clines' three-base error in the fourth inning, scored a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

In the fourth inning, George Foster led off with a drive to right which bounced off Clines' glove for a three-base error. Foster remanded at third when Dan Driessen grounded out, but after Cesar Geronimo was hit by a pitched ball from loser Dennis Lemp, Foster scored on Don Werner's sacrifice fly to Clines in right field.

Cepeda's plea rejected
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — U.S. Federal Judge Hernan Pesquera rejected a plea for reduction of the 5-year sentence levied against former big-league Orlando Cepeda and 2½ years to former minor league leaguer Hermen Cortes for possession of 170 pounds of Colombian marijuana.

Both were arrested in 1975 when they went to the airport to pick up two boxes and two suitcases from Colombia full of the drug.

when he clubbed a three-run homer to highlight a five-run outburst. That doomed Wetter to the defeat.

Buhl added three more in the third when three walks and singles by Jim Smalley and Bryan Crawford padded the margin. In the fourth, Buhl reeled off five straight singles, added another run and runner on an error and wound things up when Hamilton hammered another baseball.

Twin Falls got its first run in the third when Hoffman opened with a hit and eventually scored on Kerry Brown's single. In the sixth, Doug Proffers and Cummings both singled and scored on wild pitches after an assortment of errors and steals.

Buhl remains home Thursday, entertaining Burley at 8 p.m.

Deadline nears for youth golf classic

TWIN FALLS — Teen-age golfers under 18 years of age are invited to enter a golf tournament for a chance of playing rounds with professional golfers Lou Graham, Charles Coody, Roger Maltbie, and others later this summer.

The qualifying tournament will be held at the Canyon Springs Golf Course June 21 and is a preliminary to the Insurance Youth Classic national championships August 12-15 in Overland Park, Kan.

The national tournament and the local and state qualifying tournaments are the 10th annual test for the young golfers. One hundred and fifty golfers from 40 states will eventually be invited to the national finals.

Entries for the tournament must be received no later than June 20 to qualify and there will be a $5 entry fee for each participant.

The local event is being sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Twin Falls. The national finals are being sponsored by several national-wide insurance companies.

Gymnastics school will open Monday

TWIN FALLS — Gymnastics lessons for 200 youngsters begin Monday in a new Twin Falls gymnastics school.

Mary Perry, one of the school's owners, said Sage Gymnastics, 2042 Fourth Avenue East, will open its doors at 9 a.m. Monday for students between ages three and 18.

Mrs. Perry said the school's instructors have prior teaching and competition experience and are certified through the U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

She said the school is located in a new, 6,000 square foot building fully equipped with gymnastics equipment. Lessons will be given between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. daily.

Besides Mrs. Perry, Sage Gymnastics Inc. also is owned by her husband, Everett, Larry and Judy Watson and Bruce and Andrea Buck.

Scholarship planned in Hoke's memory

FILER — A memorial fund honoring Lisa Hoke has been established by the Pork Raisers, Unlimited 4-H group and the proceeds of the fund will go to the 4-H camp between Ketchum and Stanley.

The funds will also be used to purchase a trophy during the Twin Falls County Fair.

Miss Hoke died in an automobile accident earlier this spring. She was a member of the 4-H group sponsoring the fund. She also was the top-ranked shot put in the girls state-A-3 division and died the day after qualifying for the state finals.

Donations can be sent to J.C. Mills or to the County Extension Agent.

Registration of foreign land owners recommended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office, following a study of foreign investment in U.S. farmland, Monday recommended a registration of foreign landowners similar to the Immigration and Naturalization Service's registration of aliens.

Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. The European Investment Research Center has estimated that last year foreigners invested about $800 million in U.S. cropland. Other estimates place the figure at $1 billion. The limited GAO study did not establish a total.

The GAO looked at 25 counties in the states of Georgia, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and California and found foreign ownership of 44,700 acres or 0.3 percent of total farmland in those counties. The percentage ranged from zero in Oklahoma to 6.3 percent in Johnson County, Ga. Most of the foreign owners were from Germany, Sweden, the Netherlands Antilles and France.

The GAO said the "most feasible and simplest approach" to finding out data about the foreign farm ownership would be a registration system similar to the "system currently used by the Immigration and Naturalization Service — which requires card-type reports to be submitted annually by resident aliens through post offices to a central federal post."

Stanley Sargol, who headed the GAO investigative team, noted that 25 states restrict foreign ownership but in most cases state laws did not prohibit foreign ownership. Oklahoma was an exception to that rule, he said.

Talmadge said foreign purchases "are of national concern and raise serious questions of national policy." He said without more data he was not certain that the purchases are "wrong," but noted that farmers argue that foreign purchasers push up land prices which in turn raise prices of food.

Larger Soviet grain crop seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American experts predict the Soviet Union's total 1978 grain crop is likely to range between 185 million and 225 million metric tons. In its first forecast of the 1978 Soviet crop, the Agriculture Department Monday predicted the crop could be larger than the 1977 harvest of 195.5 million metric tons.

Under unfavorable conditions, the output could fall below 185 million metric tons, the forecast indicated. Spring planting was substantially delayed in the Soviet Union, but total planted area was quite large and should be as large as the 130 million hectares planted in 1977, the highest since 1964.

The total 1972 crop, when the Soviets made major purchases of American wheat, was 188.2 million metric tons. In other recent years, the crop has ranged from 140.1 million metric tons in 1975 to 223.8 million metric tons in 1976.

The total grain crop includes wheat, coarse grains, rice and miscellaneous grains and pulses, which are combinations of beans and peas used to feed animals. The forecast said the winter grain crop, one third of the total Soviet grain crop, received average winterkill. So far moisture conditions have been above normal, and the wet conditions have brought on problems of weeds and disease, the department said.

World Bank farm loans rapped

By SONJA HILLGREN, UPI Farm Editor. WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Bank is keenly aware of criticism by some U.S. agricultural interests that its lending for agricultural development chisels potential American export markets. Critics of the World Bank's role in agriculture say it is unfair that the United States pays for a share of World Bank loans to bolster agricultural programs in foreign nations that compete against American producers.

At a meeting last week with reporters and bank officials, Yudelman said the bank and its affiliate, the International Development Association, will lend nearly $3.3 billion for agriculture and rural development during the fiscal year ending June 30, bringing to $10 billion their agricultural lending during the past five years. Most recipients have been the poorest developing nations that are too poor to import U.S. food and have not been traditional importers.

those nations will become rich enough to become markets for U.S. food products. Looking at the overall world food situation, Yudelman was mildly optimistic, saying, "In the aggregate, there's no catastrophe around the corner." He said the world has the capacity to feed 6 billion people by the turn of the century, one-half more than the approximate 4 billion population now.

earnings. It quickly becomes apparent that commercial imports of this magnitude cannot be financed. "These countries simply have to produce the grains themselves," he said. Continued food aid for these poorest nations "may discourage the growth of agriculture," Yudelman continued in his paper.

Strategic withdrawal

CALF roper Don Davis took 17.81 seconds to tie down a calf at an amateur rodeo near Denver Sunday, but when he found he had ripped out the seat of his pants, he needed less time than that to cover the hole with his hat during his exit from the arena.

FFA honors captured

MOSCOW — Several Magic Valley youths captured honors at the State Future Farmers of America contest last week at the University of Idaho. Bull's dairy cattle judging team of Johnny Ashbire, Randolph Price, and Steven Lemrick placed second in the competition. Price also got third in the individual competition.

Rupert's West Minico High School livestock judging team was a runner-up in that category. Team members were Sam Gochnour, Jerry Gochnour, and Bill Merrigan. Individual finishers in the livestock judging contest were Aaron Williams, Filer, and Maurine Allen, Twin Falls.

By the end of the century, they (developed and developing nations) will be able to buy everything on the market," Yudelman predicted. But the poorest nations in Asia and Africa, where most of more than 450 million malnourished people live, now face a market gap of about 12 million tons of grain.

A focus toward large farmers was altered to help out small producers, not only to produce grains but also to improve crops of indigenous tropical roots by which they survive.

E. Gem brucellosis testing completed

BOISE (UPI) — The State Department of Agriculture has announced that a federal-state brucellosis testing program for 10 eastern Idaho counties has been completed, resulting in the closure of the Idaho Falls field office. Wilson Kellogg, director of the agency, said the office was opened 19 months ago to coordinate testing of cattle in the 10 eastern counties where an outbreak of the disease, which causes cows to abort, occurred after the Teton Dam failure.

Bull escapes, shot

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A 1500-pound black bull that charged pedestrians, frustrated police and dented cars Tuesday in an hour-long dash for freedom was eventually shot to death by police. Police said officers fired an estimated 20 to 25 rounds of ammunition from a 12-gauge shotgun before the animal, which had escaped from the city's stockyards area, was stopped.

Officers, who feared the animal would harm passerby or plunge into a nearby expressway and crash into motorists, decided to shoot the animal after cornering it against a brick wall.

But the poorest nations in Asia and Africa, where most of more than 450 million malnourished people live, now face a market gap of about 12 million tons of grain. By 1990 these poor nations, the "core of the world food problem," would have to buy 70 to 80 million tons of food. They will be unable to pay for that food because of pressures from expensive oil imports.

prospective foreign exchange Yudelman wrote, "When the costs of these amounts are compared with the countries' prospective foreign exchange

Worm control studied

CASCADE (UPI) — Trying to determine the safest, most effective means of controlling budworm damage to grand fir and other species in the Forest Service's job this summer in the Boise National Forest. According to Max Olliva, Forest Service entomologist, 1,500 acres will be sprayed from a helicopter with different concentrations of two common agricultural insecticides that haven't been adequately tested in this particular situation. About 20 persons are working on the experiment, which costs $50,000, until the first part of July. If the project is successful, the Forest Service will schedule a larger pilot project for 1979. Impact studies on mammals and other wildlife will also be conducted then.

It's a careless kidnapper who feeds fried chicken to the kidnap victim. Or so says a lawman-with considerable experience in such cases. Fried chicken in a bucket may be the easiest sort of comestible to bring back to the hideout, he says, but the eater of same will leave lasting legible fingerprints all over the place, and these lead to prosecutions.

Quick, what's the difference between "shore" and "coast"? All right, the shore is the water's edge, the coast is the land's edge. Lot of dictionaries don't draw the distinction this way, but the ocean experts do.

Among the birds and beasts that fly, a bat can carry more weight in proportion to its size than any other critter, I'm told.

FIGHTING IRISH
Q. "How can Notre Dame call itself The Fighting Irish when on its football team this year will be men named Knafiec, Wormack, Zeak, Martynovich, Unacko, Horansky, Palawak, Wroblewski, Heimkreiter, Paeck and Deslatto?"
A. Come on, Notre Dame's team is not entirely devoid of Irish. Also suiting up will be men named Holcomb, Hart, Quinn, Foley, Scully, Haggerty, Ryan, Flynn and Reilly.

Q. "What do the government test-tube boys get the marijuana they use for experiments?"
A. From a 5.6 acre tract of the stuff grown by the Research Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences at Oxford, Ms.

Q. "What's the price on that tag that dangles from Minnie Pearl's hat?"
A. $1.98.

LIFE AFTER 80
He was 80 years old when he won the Oscar, George Burns was, and no Seasoned Citizen should overlook that fact. But George wasn't the first elderly artist to make late notice. G. B. Sney was 93 when he wrote the play "Fatefulch's Files." Emma DeValen at 91 was president of Ireland. Adolph Zukor when 91 chaired the board of Paramount. At 89, Dr. Albert Schweitzer opened a hospital in Africa and Mary Baker Eddy ran her Christian Science Church. And you already know, too, about the exploits of Michaelangelo, Winston Churchill and Benjamin Franklin in their 80s.

Willetta Says...

Hey guys! A good many of you've got three days till, to get ready for legally enjoying your big, individual bowl of the year—Father's Day. Wouldn't it be lovely if you would be allowed to do it up exactly the way you wish with nothing barred and a little boot to tradition?

You can just about be sure, though, that some special friend will insist, if you give her half a chance, on buffing the nostalgic on your day following that tradition established three score and two years ago when our President Coolidge brought forth a Father's Day button to pay tribute to your fathers and the first such recognized father sat down to an overwhelming meal in his honor. In case you'd like to know it, only in 1972 was your day legalized when a bill was signed declaring Father's Day a national holiday to be celebrated the third Sunday of June.

So, you've gone national. Go along with the thing but why not suggest to that little celebrant that you would like to unritualize the customary sleep-four-hours-after-holiday-dinner-by-planning a picnic to some place you can enjoy the fabulous weather and maybe go fishing, run, hike, water ski, swim, boat, or even enjoy a game of golf or tennis. It's not only more exciting, it's healthier.

Following is a way to eat anywhere but the dining room or kitchen or restaurant. That's what a picnic is, isn't it? You can even participate in the fun by making up your own sandwich. And, because this year is the 25th (silver) anniversary of the meat industry's campaign of beef for Father's Day, the sandwich suggestion here is for making unusual use of beef. Relax about the cost of beef. You won't be framing beef bone this week because the markets are keeping prices reasonable just because of your big day. Aren't they nice!

FATHER'S DAY PICNIC MENU

- Red burgundy wine, beer or other beverage
- Flying Saucer Meatball Sandwiches
- Fresh fruit
- Semi-hard cheeses
- Cookies, brownies or cupcakes

Picnic accouterments are rather simple for this picnic... the fewer utensils you have to take along, the better. Take a tablecloth, paper napkins, cups and plates, a bread knife, serving spoon, bottle opener and corkscrew, thermos for beverage other than wine, camping heating element to heat sandwich filling or an old pan to heat sandwich filling over outdoor fire.

Here are a few "reminders" for the picnic preparer: Take the sandwich filling to the eat-out directly from refrigerator. If you're going a long way, freeze the filling and start out on trip with it frozen. Don't ever carry warm food to picnic. Bacteria have a way of growing in these conditions. When cooking up carried food, let it simmer until it is steaming hot throughout. Take away from your picnic spot everything you look to. Make it look as if nobody had been there. If you made a fire, make absolutely sure you put it out by smothering it with dirt or water.

FLYING SAUCER MEATBALL SANDWICHES

- 1 pound round steak, ground (do it yourself with the onion if you can)
- 1 medium-sized yellow onion, peeled and minced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon powdered thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon onion powder
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup bread crumbs
- 1 cup homemade tomato sauce (see following recipe)
- 6 store-bought Middle-Eastern style breads known as "pita"
- 1 small head lettuce

In mixing bowl, combine ground round steak, minced onion, salt, pepper, powdered thyme, garlic and onion powders, and egg. When well-blended, mix in bread crumbs. Form mixture into 3/4 to 1 inch balls. Mixture should make about 40 balls. Put meatballs in skillet, and lightly brown all over. Add tomato sauce and simmer 10 minutes, turning occasionally. Remove from heat and let cool. Put into plastic container and refrigerate or freeze until ready to pack for your picnic. Take pita and lettuce separately to picnic.

MW: Microwave meatballs in heated browning dish, turning to brown all over. Add tomato sauce and microwave covered, at high for 5 minutes, stirring after 2 minutes. To serve, thoroughly heat meatballs and sauce. While meatballs are heating, cut pitas in half and spread open to form pockets. Shred lettuce. Pack a handful shredded lettuce in bottom of pocket. Spoon at least 3 meatballs and a little sauce into pocket and eat while filling is hot.

HOMEMADE TOMATO SAUCE

- 5 large fresh ripe tomatoes, rinsed
 - 1 very large or 2 medium-sized onions, peeled
 - 2 stalks celery, rinsed
 - 2 cloves garlic, peeled
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon basil
 - 1 very small bay leaf
 - 1/4 teaspoon oregano
- Boil tomatoes in large pot in rapidly boiling water for about 5 minutes. Remove and cool. When cooled, peel off skin. Puree tomatoes, onion, celery and garlic in food processor, blender or grinder. Scrape puree back into pot, add spices and simmer over low heat for 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Remove bay leaf. Put sauce into container; cover and store in refrigerator until ready to use. Sauce may be frozen in ice cube trays and when frozen hard, removed to plastic bags. Only amounts needed can be easily thawed and/or reheated. One standard size ice cube equals approximately 3 tablespoons liquid.

MW: In casserole, put halved tomatoes, cover and microwave at high for 5 minutes or until they break down. Remove skin and follow directions for pureeing above. In microwave slowware accessory or a 3-quart casserole, put puree. Insert temperature probe so tip is in liquid on bottom of dish. Use accessory cover, or cover lightly with plastic wrap, arranging loosely around probe to vent. Attach cable end of probe at receptacle. Microwave at automatic simmer 3 to 4 hours.

NOTE: Try taking along other thoroughly-chilled-pita fillings such as tuna fish mixed on the spot with mayonnaise and diced, deseeded cucumber, or cold cuts and cheese with drained canned pimento slices, sliced tomatoes and a little Italian dressing sprinkled over them, or a filling of your own which travels well chilled.

With Father's Day just around the corner, perhaps a cookout is in order.

The "winter wearies" are behind us, and the joys of summer are bringing us outdoors. Summer blooms and summer scents are waiting to be enjoyed, and the odors of food cooking on a grill give us summer enjoyment at its best.

Patio Cookouts have become an "American Way of Life." They provide an excellent activity for family participation. If the cookout is planned properly, we can make an appreciable contribution toward energy conservation.

Traditionally, families have cooked out-of-doors, but in too many instances, have failed to exploit the total advantages of this type of food preparation. Frequently, only a very small portion of the foods has been prepared out-of-doors, and the balance in the kitchen oven. This is no longer necessary.

With the proper outdoor cooking equipment such as a covered kettle, complete meals are easily prepared on the grill. This provides an excellent opportunity for all of the members of the family to participate, (and goes a long way toward the elimination of the over-heated kitchen, with the resultant excessive use of the air conditioner). Furthermore, it provides a distinctive and delicious flavor which is somewhat different, but thoroughly appetizing and enjoyable.

Remember, outdoor cooking should be fun for everyone, and with a limited amount of prior planning, it provides that fun-filled activity for the entire family, guests and friends that they have been looking forward to all winter.

With modern equipment, it is important that we try something new and different. Let's not limit ourselves to the same things that we have done over the years. Really, the only limitation is your own imagination. So, let's say "Hello, Summer!" and do it in style with some interesting and unusual cookouts.

A flavorful ham, delicious leg of lamb or your favorite cut of beef are among favorites which are extremely simple to prepare, and the leftovers may be used in a variety of ways, providing true economy. While cooking the roast, include the vegetables and thus prepare the entire meal. The salad and/or fruit should be selected and prepared prior to the cookout, and refrigerated, which releases the host to enjoy family and friends.

Best buys

Beef special pricing will appear in time for Father's Day. While it is a little lower, you might be wishful to get some extra for your freezer. Shop the markets for the best buys. Market managers confirm the generally better meat money savings with the family size packs. Fresh produce is unstable. Fruits are coming in from California now and in a few weeks you'll see some good pricing. Of course, the generic foods are the canned foods to buy these days. Cases of such are at even better savings than the single purchases.

Truthful answer

Dear Dr. Lamb:
My problem is my fat stomach. I work as a sales clerk and mow my half acre of lawn every week so I'm quite active. I'm 63, 5-foot-4 and weigh 138 pounds. I exercise daily. I eat a well-balanced diet and keep down to 2000 calories or less per day. My doctor gives me a hormone shot every three months and has for about 15 years. There is a pad of fat across my stomach. I like to wear well-fitting clothes but they are not very becoming without that extra bulge. Do you have any ideas on what is causing my fat stomach?

Dear Reader:
Yes. Too much food. That may sound cruel but it is truthful. Despite your activity you are consuming too many calories for you. That fat pad is like the bank balance in your checking account. Your balance goes up if you put in more than you spend and the fat accumulates when you take in more calories than you use. It is that simple.

It is true that some people inherit certain body characteristics and this makes it harder for them to avoid local fat accumulation—but not impossible. You think your problem is just the fat pad you feel outside but that isn't true. Most people have about as much fat inside the abdomen as they do outside the abdomen. You simply cannot compress the fat by increasing the strength of your abdominal muscles. You have to eliminate the fat—or empty out the inside of the abdominal cavity.

So you need two things. First, a diet program that helps you lose pounds of unwanted fat. It should be a gradual fat loss, not a crash program. You can probably do it on 1500 calories a day for you if you are really eating 2000 calories now. And you can increase your exercise and could start exercises to strengthen your abdominal muscles as the fat disappears.

The exercises you need are leg lift type exercises and sit ups. To help you I am sending you the Health Letter number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding the Big Middle. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I have a male friend who is 45. Now this is weird. It has to do with his skin. If I touch him anywhere on his body a few seconds later it begins to itch. If I should slap him, the place he's been slapped wells up.

This all started about four years ago. He went to one doctor who said it was something he had to live with but offered no explanation. Have you ever heard of such a thing and what could be causing this?

Dear Reader,
In some people scratching the skin causes a white mark because the blood vessels in that area constrict. If you scratch a little harder you can produce a red mark because the blood vessels dilate with the stronger stimulation.

In still other people the place you touch or rub or scratch then swells and you can write your initials on the skin this way. In these people—it is an allergic reaction and is called dermatographia elevate (elevated skin graphics). By special tests transferring the reaction to non-allergic persons it has been proved that this is an allergy. It isn't dangerous.

I guess you will just have to nuzzle your boyfriend gently if you don't want to leave your mark on him.

The skirt was circular with a self-fabric ruffle at the hemline. A mantilla-type train comprised the total look. Her flowers were a nosegay of pink roses and blue daisies with blue streamers.

The bridesmaids were Debbie Chaffin, Boise, sister to the bride, and Charissa Mueller, Boise, sister to the bridegroom. Colleen Nelson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Their matching gowns were made by the bride's grandmother Mrs. Louie M. Baty of Buhl. Flower girls were Angela Assendrup, niece of the bride, and April Mueller, niece of the bridegroom.

Best Man, Mr. Twin Falls, was best man and Darwin Chaffin, Boise, and Russell Sivert of Twin Falls acted as groomsmen. Ushers were Chuck Flumb of Twin Falls and Russ Mueller, brother of the bridegroom, Boise. Chad Mueller, the bridegroom's nephew, and Lincoln Assendrup, nephew of the bride, were ringbearers.

At a reception immediately following the ceremony a five-tier chocolate bride wedding cake was served by Carmen Assendrup, aunt of the bride. The cake was decorated in pink and blue with a flowing blue fountain beneath it and a handblown glass heart and cupid ornament placed on top.

Coffee and punch were served by Mrs. Russ Mueller, Idaho Falls; Mrs. Chlorinda Johnson of Salmon and Mrs. Mike Mueller of Shelley, all sisters-in-law of the bridegroom.

Verna Thornton, Twin Falls, was in charge of the guest book. Bernice Hatfield assisted at the reception.

Pre-nuptial showers were given by Mrs. Randy Cox of Twin Falls and by the Hollister Presbyterian Women's Association.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn J. Nelson of Twin Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Louie M. Baty of Buhl; the bride's grandparents, and Gary Baty of Las Vegas, uncle of the bridegroom.

The newlyweds will reside in Idaho Falls where both are employed.

Snooping charged

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—A state senator, irate about operators eavesdropping on long distance telephone calls, has told the phone company it is employing a snoop who is a "blatant liar."

In a letter to the president of Northwestern Bell Telephone, Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha said a male operator listened in on a collect long distance call made to the senator at his Lincoln office.

Chambers said an investigation revealed eight male operators were working at the time, but each denied having handed the call.

"Thus, in addition to illegal eavesdropping, you have a male operator who is a blatant liar," he told phone company president Jack McCallister.

Wyatt, Nagel married May 21

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS NAGEL

TWIN FALLS — Christine Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt, became the bride of Dennis Nagel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nagel, Boise, in a ceremony performed by Rev. Tom Young at the First United Presbyterian Chapel May 21.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Organist was Mrs. Charles Allen with Mrs. J. Garland Gibbs playing the violin.

The bride's gown was fashioned of polyester organza with an attached chapel train. The dress was complemented by a sweetheart neckline trimmed in Venice lace. The bodice, also trimmed with lace, was attached to an empire waistline accenting the skirt which featured a double layer flounce trimmed with Venice lace.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of seven orchids, stephanotis and ming fern. The orchids were from her own plant, given to her by her sister-in-law, Barbara Nagel. The plant will bloom again on their wedding anniversary next year.

Maid-of-honor was sister-of-the-bride, Lila Wyatt. Bridesmaids were Christi Ramos, Boise, and Mar-Jean Brown, Halley, sorority sister of the bride.

The bridegroom chose his brother, Patrick Nagel of Boise, to be his best man. Ushers were Marshall Baker, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Columbus, Ohio, and Mike Canavan, Boise.

Assisting in the reception at the Tart Club which followed the ceremony were Mrs. Marshall Baker, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Pat Nagel, Boise, who cut and served the cake: Mrs. Kelli Carlson, Filer, served punch and coffee; Charlene Hansen, Salt Lake City; at the guest book.

A sheer white lace cloth with apricot colored bows graced the bride's table. The centerpiece was a three tiered spice cake trimmed with Sont roses and topped with an arrangement of Sont silk roses with baby's breath and greenery. Four heart shaped cakes encircled the wedding cake. Guests could help themselves to liquid refreshments at the fountain on the table.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Idaho with a B.A. degree as a finance major. She was active in Kappa Kappa Gamma. Nagel graduated with an M.B.A. from the University of Wyoming. He is auditor for Morrison Knudsen Co. in Tullahoma, Tenn.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nagel at the Holiday Inn.

The bride was honored with a brunch hosted by Mrs. Ken Williams and Christi Ramos of Boise; a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Howard Allen, Mrs. A.L. Blandford and Mrs. C.F. Wurster; a champagne brunch by Mrs. C.A. Perkins and Mrs. Mark Feldhausen. Mrs. Richard B. Smith of Boise entertained the bride and groom for the Nagel family honoring the bride's birthday May 12.

Out-of-state guests came from Washington, Oregon, California, Colorado, Utah, Chicago, Ohio, South Dakota and Montana.

ABC yanks '20/20' hosts

NEW YORK (UPI) — With perfect hindsight ABC yanked the co-hosts of its news magazine show "20/20" after only one broadcast and replaced them with Hugh Downs.

Downs, best known for his years as co-host with Barbara Walters of the "Today" show and currently hosting a PBS program for the over 55 set, "Easy Over," took over for Harold Hayes and Robert Hughes in the anchor spot on the hour-long show, starting with the June 13 broadcast. The first broadcast of "20/20" June 6 earned a 12.4 rating and a 22 percent share of the audience, which is within shooting distance of the 25 percent share executive producer Bob Shanks said he hoped for when the program was announced in May with everything but ruffles and flourishes.

But it is 12 points lower than the "Carter Country" episode that preceded it and that, combined with bad reviews, apparently made Roone Arledge, ABC news and sports president, decide on immediate surgery. Shanks said he hoped Hughes, an Australian who also is arts editor of Time magazine, and Hayes, a North Carolinian and former editor of Esquire magazine, would remain with the show "either as on-air contributors or as editorial members of the program's production staff."

Hughes had served as a production executive, aside from his co-host duties. "20/20" is scheduled for weekly broadcast Tuesdays, 8-9 p.m. Mountain time, through the summer, then shifts to monthly scheduling until January, when ABC will decide whether to go weekly again.

Fred Silverman addressed the NBC affiliate stations Monday over closed circuit television, and the most startling announcement—the new president of NBC made was, "Good afternoon." In brief remarks he stressed the need for teamwork, the importance of news and information, of commitment to innovation, quality and responsibility. "We are not going to follow anyone," Silverman said. "We're going to lead."

A pair of ocelots move from the slum of their old fashioned zoo room to a habitat designed to resemble their place in the wild. A three-ton female hippopotamus screams silently in frustration as she is rebuffed by a wary 600-pound baby hippo who would rather follow his keeper around like a dog at heel. A king cobra waits for its venom to kill its "prey" — a sausage rubbed with snake skin so it will smell like the cobra's natural food.

Those are among the fascinating zoo scenes on the "Nova" presentation of "Memories from Eden," which PBS will broadcast tonight (check local listings).

The beautifully produced program describes the changes in zoos as they increasingly become places where endangered species may be protected and encouraged to reproduce.

Repeatedly the point is made that the wild areas of the earth are disappearing beneath the bulldozer and from now on the wild must be managed if it is to survive.

IQ test developer says current uses outrageous

BURLINGAME (UPI) — The man who helped develop the modern IQ test 50 years ago says some of the current uses of the test are "outrageous."

Samuel C. Kohn says there is a need to measure intelligence and that his own test is valid. But, he adds, IQ tests not only discriminate against some minorities but also are used to assign numbers to a child's worth, based on a limited measure of the whole person.

"This," says the 88-year-old retired educational psychologist, "is outrageous." Many of his younger colleagues disagree, but Kohn insists IQ tests often "make children unhappy, when the idea was to help people, to improve their educational experience."

The social welfare organizer is working on a book, which he hopes will expose what he terms "a great suffering put on little children" by IQ tests as they are administered in the United States.

He developed what is known as the Kohn block test in 1918 while a graduate student at Stanford under pioneer educational psychologist Lewis H. Terman — who developed the Stanford-Binet intelligence test.

The block test, which is still widely used, consists of arranging blocks to match various patterns printed on cards. The speed and accuracy with which a person makes the matches supposedly correlates with abstract reasoning ability.

The problem with the IQ test, says Kohn, is the numbers attached to it are sometimes interpreted by teachers, the educational test publishers and the children themselves as a measure of overall intellectual worth.

"Our tests focus on just such narrow things, the ability to acquire knowledge. What of human feelings? What of social abilities? Are not these also important?"

Kohn says he has no argument with the measurement itself. And he is striving for a better test that measures "true brain power, the full capacity of the human mind."

"The IQ test does not truly measure intelligence," he says. "It measures something, but we must get much, much better tests for the whole person."

Bonnie Mink, Meyer marry

WENDELL — Bonnie Jean Mink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Muncie Mink of Wendell, and Timothy Charles Meyer of Twin Falls exchanged vows in an afternoon ceremony May 28 at the United Presbyterian Church in Wendell.

Rev. Francis E. Horner of Wendell performed the ceremony in front of an altar decorated with candelabra, greenery with white daisies and yellow and salmon colored carnations. The bride carried a bouquet of salmon pink roses and stephanotis to complement her gown of white chiffon over taffeta. The gown, of lace and pearl trim, featured a matching veil. As taken she wore a pearl necklace given to her by Vickie Blodgett.

Maid of honor was Angie Carlson of Boise; bridesmaids were Diane Mink of Portland, Ore., Susan Meyer and Cindy Shields, both of Twin Falls. Matt Meyer of Twin Falls and Kerry Horner of Wendell were candelighters.

John Meyer of Twin Falls was best man. Ushers were Scott O'Mello, Mike Duggan and Paul Warr, all of Twin Falls. Mrs. Earneestine (Jim) Osborn of Twin Falls and Mrs. Hope (Tim) Mink of Dallas, Tex., were soloists and Jim Osborn was organist.

A reception followed at the church. Elaine Hoffman of Portland was in charge of the guest book. Serving wedding cake were Vickie Blodgett of Denver and Karen Kribbs of Twin Falls. Attending the serving table were Shelley James and Jenni Horner of Wendell. Assisting with the reception were the United Presbyterian Ladies with Mrs. Jim Bennett and Mrs. Lester Bolan in charge.

Showers were given earlier for the bride by the Twin Falls Bank & Trust and the Tyler Street Baptist Church ladies.

The bride is a graduate of Wendell High School and attended Boise State College. She is employed at Twin Falls Bank & Trust Company. The bridegroom is a graduate of Twin Falls High School. He is employed by Ed McKittrick Construction.

Following a wedding trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo., the couple will make their home in Wendell where the bridegroom is employed.

Mental health panel to discuss stress

TWIN FALLS — There has been one change in the speakers for the panel discussion on "Stress and Ways to Cope" the Mental Health Association is sponsoring Thursday night, according to Phil Grover, program chairman.

He said Tom Payne, social worker with the Regional Mental Health Center's satellite office in Rupert, will replace Robert Scott on the panel. Other participants will include Dr. Richard Worst, psychiatrist; and Scott Williams, psychologist. All are mental health professionals associated with the regional mental health center.

Tickets for the Thursday evening discussion are $2 and will be available at the door, or may be obtained in advance by calling Charles Perry, association president, at 734-3624 or Lorayne Smith, 733-0301. Arrangements will be made for anyone unable to purchase tickets.

Perry said a question period is planned after the formal presentation by the panel members.

Since it is estimated by mental health professionals that 15 per cent of all Americans need mental health services each year, and stress is a major factor contributing to emotional problems, Perry said he believes the subject should be of wide interest to the public. "Whether it's on the job, at home or getting along with your boss, wife or relatives, everyone undergoes stress," he said.

Troop 65 takes camporee honors

TWIN FALLS — Boy Scout Troop 65, sponsored by the Twin Falls First Christian Church, took top honors at the weekend Falls district camporee at Bear Gulch in the South Hills.

Out of a total of nine first-place ribbons given to the 275 Scouts participating, Troop 65 earned five of them. Honored were all four patrols plus the leadership corps of the troop, according to scoutmaster Keith Jenkins.

The patrols and their leaders include Panther Patrol led by Mark Alexander; Liberty Patrol, Del Hanks; Viking Patrol, John Kidd; Cobra Patrol, James Harrington, and the leadership corps, Mike Brown.

Troop 65 also had five boys tapped for the Order of the Arrow, honorary Scout camping group. They include Kirt Henman, Greg Back, James Harrington, Mike Brown and Brent LaLoof. Jensen said more than 20 Boy Scout troops from throughout the district participated in the camporee, with some 25 patrols. Many of the troops have but one patrol, which is a smaller unit within the larger troops.

SOPHISTICATED LADY

We're building at 226 Eastland Drive next to the Bowladrome (come watch the transformation)

Abby

Quiet — not shy

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote in on behalf of quiet people, saying that most quiet people are shy, sensitive and insecure, and they're embarrassed when someone says, "See, you're quiet."

I've been quiet all my life and it doesn't bother or offend me. I'm quiet because as a matter of fact, with so many nonstop talkers in the world, I think we quiet ones deserve some applause. If everyone talked all the time, who would listen?

Furthermore, the quiet ones are often intelligent people who wisely refrain from blurted out every thought that pops into their heads.

Let that quiet one speak only for himself. Although I'm considered "quiet," I'm neither shy nor insecure.

I also notice that because I'm not always talking, when I do say something, people listen.

PROUD TO BE QUIET

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for speaking out for those who prefer to be quiet. (P.S. I know you're right. I've been married to a quiet, intelligent man for 39 years.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old, fairly attractive woman who was born cross-eyed. I had surgery at a young age, which corrected the problem somewhat, but it's still quite noticeable.

Abby, my reason for writing is to ask why comedians and cartoonists think that portraying a person with cross-eyes is considered either funny or a sign of stupidity.

I have lived with this defect all my life and have developed a severe complex about it. I find it difficult to look someone in the eyes or even have my picture taken. I try my best to conceal my defect because I have been humiliated and embarrassed to the point of tears when inconsiderate people make fun of me.

Being cross-eyed is a handicap. Why do so many people think it's funny? And what can I do about it?

HURTING IN OHIO

DEAR HURTING: Intelligent, sensitive people do NOT think any kind of handicap is "funny." And comedians and cartoonists who use cross-eyed characters to get laughs do so more out of thoughtlessness than malice.

Much is being done today in modern surgery. Don't give up until you've explored every possibility of further corrective surgery. (P.S. Try to develop a little compassion for the ignorant who ridicule the handicapped, for "they know not what they do.")

DEAR ABBY: Your letter from OVER 70 IN MISSOURI certainly touched home with me.

My mother recently passed away leaving no will. Now my father must pay tax on her share of everything that be worked years to provide for me.

I don't know about the laws elsewhere, but here in Oklahoma we have found that it's very expensive NOT to have a will.

The sad part is that it takes time to handle all these legal entanglements, and this keeps your grief alive while you're waiting.

Everyone should have a will to protect the survivors as well as to insure that their possessions go to the right people. The cost of a will is minimal compared to what you must pay if no will is left.

NOT OK IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NOT: What's true in Oklahoma is true in the other 49 states.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a large, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lanky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Walton, Graff repeat vows

MURTAUGH — Christina Walton, Pocatello, and Gordon A. Graff, Murtaugh, were married May 27 in the First United Methodist Cathedral of the Rockies in Boise.

Rev. Fred Venable performed the ceremony. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Leo O. Walton, Boise, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Graff, Murtaugh.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin which featured a chapel train. Her fingertip veil with shoulder-length blusher was trimmed with daisies and seeded pearls.

Her cascade bouquet was composed of gardenias, baby red roses, stephanotis and lily.

Maid of honor was Jane Eldemiller, Grangeville, and Julie Graff, sister of the bridegroom, Murtaugh; Sue Miller, Sweet; Carolyn Potter, San Rafael, Calif.; and Kay Kirk, and Suzanne Graff, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, both Boise, acted as bridesmaids.

Steven Graff, brother of the bridegroom from Boise, was best man, and Max Lewellen, Caldwell; Ray Kirk, Boise, and Dan and Paul Graff, both Murtaugh, and Bill Graff, Twin Falls, were ushers. The latter three are brothers of the bridegroom.

Bill Cannon, Emmett, played a violin solo; Bill Sweet, Twin Falls, sang, and Mrs. Todd Marshall, Caldwell, accompanied both performers.

A reception honoring the newlyweds was held at the Roadway Inn after the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with fresh flowers. The table decorations carried out the wedding colors of red and white.

Reception assistants included Mrs. Max Lewellen and Carrie Mathis, both Caldwell; Mrs. C.B. Campbell, Mrs. Aaron Lowrey, Mrs. Charles Kirk, Teresa Kirk and Barb Miller, all Boise.

The bride works for the U.S. Railroad Retirement Board in Pocatello and the bridegroom is a master's candidate in piano performance at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

The couple took a wedding trip to Maui and Kauai, Hawaii. They are living at 723 W. Lewis, No. 103, Pocatello 83201.

Kitten rescued

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A little water from a garden hose saved an 8-week-old kitten from drowning in a storm sewer. A neighborhood youngster threw the kitten into a storm sewer last Thursday. Neighborhood children tried all weekend to rescue the animal, but were unable to reach it.

time it was necessary. The opening lead of the queen of hearts won the first trick. West had an excellent lead. This indicated six hearts and four diamonds. South, West reasoned, must have a good seven-card spade suit. At trick two West cashed the king of diamonds. This was a must. Otherwise, South would take a marked club finesse and dispose of his losing diamond. Now West switched to a trump. He wanted to stop South from ruffing his losing hearts in dummy. Declarer won in his hand and took the club finesse. He then led the 10 of hearts from dummy upon which East played the ace.

West trumped his partner's ace. He knew East also had the king because his own queen had taken the opening trick. He knew from the bidding that his partner had no more spades and if he did not take his last opportunity to get on play to lead a trump, there would be no way to defeat the contract. Even the most sacrosanct rule must be broken when the occasion demands it.

Hands such as this, with points equally distributed and each player having a strong suit, frequently escalate into heated and exciting bidding battles. Just as frequently, the player with the strong spade suit ends up outbidding everybody.

"Don't ever trump your partner's ace" is one of the first truisms a novice is taught, yet like most truisms there are exceptions. This
