

Supreme Court orders school to admit Bakke

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today Allan Bakke must be admitted to the University of California, but said its future admissions programs can take race into account to redress historic discrimination.

Bakke, a 38-year-old white engineer, had sued when the UC medical school at Davis denied him admission while admitting minority students with lower entrance exam scores. UC Davis, under an affirmative action admissions program, had set aside 16 of 100 openings for minority applicants.

It took the justices more than one hour to read their six separate opinions in the court's historic, long-awaited ruling. A hushed crowd packed into the ornate chamber.

Although it ruled Bakke must be admitted, the court said the Davis special admissions program is invalid but in forming a new program the school may use race as a factor.

The justices were divided. Five ruled Bakke must be admitted, but a second block of five backed the concept of affirmative action.

Although they did not speak together in any one opinion, Justice William Brennan said:

"This should not and must not mask the central meaning of today's opinions: 'Government may take race into account when it acts not to demean or insult any racial group, but to remedy disadvantages cast on minorities by past racial prejudice, at least when appropriate findings have been made by judicial, legislative or administrative bodies with competence to act in this area.'

Justice Lewis Powell, writing the swing opinion, said California courts in barring consideration of race in admissions programs "failed to recognize that the state has a substantial interest that legitimately may be served by a properly devised admissions program involving the competitive consideration of race and ethnic origin."

And Brennan, Byron White, Thurgood Marshall and Harry Blackmun joined to say the decision "affirms the constitutional power of federal and state government to act affirmatively to achieve equal opportunity for all."

Powell said the Davis program was unconstitutional and Bakke's admission must be upheld because after the California courts had ruled in his favor, the university conceded it could not prove Bakke still would have been barred had there been no minority program.

Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justices John Paul Stevens, Potter Stewart and William Rehnquist said the program violated a section of the 1964 Civil Rights act which bans discrimination in federally funded programs. Bakke should be admitted for that reason, they said, since the Davis school gets federal funds. But despite the technically on this particular case, five justices said the university had every right to consider ethnic background in future admissions.

Powell said it is evident the Davis program involves use of an explicit racial classification "never before countenanced by this court."

"It tells applicants who are not Negro, Asian or 'Chicanos' that they are totally excluded from a specific percentage of the seats in an entering class," he said.

The fatal flaw, the opinion said, is in the program's "disregard of individual rights as guaranteed by the 14th Amendment."

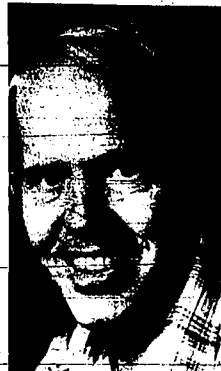

"Such rights are not absolute," the opinion said, "but when a state's distribution of benefits or imposition of burdens hinges on the color of a person's skin or ancestry, that individual is entitled to a demonstration that the challenged classification is necessary to promote a vital state interest."

Powell said the university "has failed to carry this burden."

Marshall, the court's first and only black, said in a separate opinion "during most of the past 200 years constitutional interpretations did not prohibit 'the most ingenious and pervasive forms of discrimination against the Negro.'"

"Now, when a state acts to remedy the effects of that legacy of discrimination, I cannot believe that this same Constitution stands as a barrier."

Detailing how "the Negro was dragged to this country in chains to be sold into slavery" Marshall said "the position of the Negro today in America is a tragic but inevitable consequence of centuries of unequal treatment."

ALLAN BAKKE ... his appeal upheld

Friends assist Joelson family

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Everyone's been so good putting out positive energy," Linda Chamberlain, of Twin Falls, was referring to the many friends of Nick and Sonja Joelson since the couple was seriously injured in an auto accident east of Buhl June 16.

The Joelsons have operated The Leatherman shop on Main Avenue East in Twin Falls for several years and reside at Buhl.

Joelson is expected to be discharged from St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise Wednesday but his wife has never regained consciousness.

However, attendants at the Boise hospital said Monday her condition has stabilized and as Mrs. Chamberlain indicated, their many friends are both praying and "thinking positively" that she may recover from head injuries.

But the couple's closest friends are doing much more than thinking good thoughts.

With Clay and Karen Robertson acting as unofficial coordinators, at least three other couples in the Buhl area have taken over caring for everything from the Joelson's 18-month old baby, Durban; providing hospitality to Sonja's parents who were just ending a visit here from South Africa, to talking to Sonja's pet parrot, a sensitive species said to die if left alone.

Friends leave the television going in the Joelson home and next door neighbors and their children come over frequently to encourage the lonely bird.

Bakke case background outlined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court's decision in Allan Bakke's "reverse discrimination" case turns on whether a university may use a racially conscious admissions program to help alone for society's past wrongs.

Some lawyers, educators and civil rights groups see the case as a key to all affirmative action programs designed to cure racial discrimination in America. Others view it as one man's problem, which should be decided on its own merits without sweeping generalizations.

The University of California reserves 16 spaces for minorities out of 100 in each first year class at its medical school in Davis. The school opened in 1968 and has no history of discrimination.

The aim was to prefer disadvantaged applicants, to promote diversity among the student body and in the profession and to increase the number of doctors practicing in minority neighborhoods.

Bakke, a 38-year-old, white engineer, was denied admission in 1973 and 1974, while less qualified minority applicants were admitted under their separate program. He argued that the university's "quota" system discriminates against whites.

The California Supreme Court agreed the program violates the Constitution's guarantee that the laws apply equally to all and ordered Bakke admitted. The university then went to the U.S. Supreme Court. (Continued on p. A2)

Soap, defects linked

NEW YORK (UPI) — Birth defects in babies born to hospital workers who washed up with phisflex were much higher than expected, a doctor from Sweden reported Tuesday.

There were 25 severe malformations in 460 births among the mothers using the special soap found in many hospitals. There also were minor birth defects.

That's about double what would be expected.

Hexachlorophene in the liquid disinfecting soap and in another one used, Sanitval, is suspected of causing the birth defects, Dr. Hildegard Halling of Stockholm revealed.

The new clue on the puzzling birth defect case was presented at a New York Academy of Sciences Conference on Environmental Hazards to Health.

"Malformations included ... are so grave that they seriously affect the individual's capacity to survive, call for medical intervention, constitute a considerable handicap and are disfiguring," Halling said.

The phisflex used had 3 percent hexachlorophene; the other soap, 0.5 percent.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — 1977 was an off-year for candy-lovers.

The average American chewed, sucked, licked and minched his way through 15.4 pounds of candy last year. That may sound like a lot of sweets for every man, woman and child in the country, but it's the lowest per-capita consumption rate since 1938.

It also was more than five pounds below the level of 1968, when the costs were almost 50 cents a pound.

Fraud scheme charged by Hailey couple

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN Times-News writer

HAILEY — Hailey motel owner Tod Triplett has filed a multi-million-dollar lawsuit against several businesses and financial firms he claims are involved in a white-collar fraud scheme.

In a suit filed in 5th District Court in Hailey, Triplett says he was conned out of more than $10,000 cash by various mortgage brokerage companies which promised to secure loans for as much as $700,000 to expand his motel.

But Triplett charged the loans never came through as promised and now, after beginning expansion of his motel, finds himself $179,000 in debt.

The cast of businesses and individuals named as defendants in the lawsuit reads like a who's who list from the world of high finance.

loan is secured and also a finder's fee once a loan is obtained.

"It is a market which is as ripe as hell for con," Ketchum attorney Lee Schlender commented about the mortgage brokerage business.

Schlender, who is representing the Triplets in their lawsuit, observed further: "It is a prime spot for a con game ... They (illegitimate mortgage brokers) used the glamour of the international set to impress these poor ducks."

The Ketchum attorney is arguing his clients were the unsuspecting victims of just such a con.

The Triplets claim they are fighting off financial ruin because in 1977 Tod answered a Times-News ad which advertised money for construction loans.

In the six cases of court action set out in their lawsuit, they are seeking about $2.3 million in damages, thousands of dollars in attorney fees, and they are demanding at least $500,000 in financing for their motel expansions.

The Triplets claim the white-collar fraud scheme involves forgeries, misrepresentations, and phony letters of credit promising construction loans from major financial institutions.

Universal Funding Co., which used the same Hailey address as Underwriters Mortgage Funding Co., Inc.

In late April 1977, the Triplets received a phone call from the two Texas mortgage funding companies and officers there claimed they had obtained a loan commitment for $500,000 for the motel expansions.

But they requested a 2 percent fee for finding the loan and on May 1, 1977, the Triplets wired $10,000 to Texas.

The loan, however, never came through. Several months passed before a "letter of credit" issued on the David Stott Capital Corp. of Detroit, Mich., was received in the sum of $500,000.

The Triplets spent several months unsuccessfully trying to verify the letter of credit and obtain loans with it.

Finally, they received a letter from David Stott Capital stating the letter of credit was invalid, the signature on it had been forged and the letter of credit was canceled.

The Triplets then contacted Universal Funding and informed the company of the fraud.

Universal Funding next said they would have a letter of credit from the Canadian General Insurance Co. of Ontario, Canada, one of Canada's largest general insurance companies.

A letter of credit for $700,000 ostensibly from this Canadian insurance company did arrive, but this, too, turned out to be fraudulent.

The letter of credit was signed by "B. J. Harris." But more inquiries were made directly with the company, officials said no authorized letter of credit had been issued and that a D.G. Harris worked for the Canadian firm, but not B.J. Harris.

During this period, the Triplets received a phone call from a "Dr. Royale," who claimed he received the loan request package from Universal Funding and he could "beat the interest on the letter of credit and let (the Triplets) have more money."

Dr. Royale visited the Triplets in Hailey and subsequently from various locations in the country sent them letters, telegrams, and documents claiming various loans, bank commitments and construction financing for them.

The court complaint states Dr. Royale, alias John Joseph Royale, operated under several alias names and is a convicted felon who served prison terms in Florida for forgery and in Georgia for bank robbery.

Royale, whose last known address was Trenton, N.J., has no known Idaho address and could not be reached for comment in Idaho or New Jersey.

Magie Valley finance people say Royale introduces himself as a mortgage broker who can obtain large loans for clients and he has had business contact with many people throughout Idaho.

On Royale's assurance that a loan was forthcoming, the Triplets began to purchase materials through Boise Cascade for a $650,000 improvement program at the Hitchcock Motel.

The suit claims Royale contacted Glenn Wegner, a 1978 Republican candidate for congress and a medical director of the Boise Cascade Corp., and Wegner allegedly made a phone call authorizing the issuance of building materials from Boise Cascade's Gooding office.

The Triplets never received the loan through Royale, although they claim they did receive several "bad checks" and when construction at the Hitchcock Motel stopped because of unpaid bills, the Hailey couple was thousands of dollars into debt.

Triplett's situation and stated the allegations involving Boise Cascade, "are as close to being a fairy tale as you can get."

"Unfortunately, I believe Mr. Triplett finds himself in trouble and is thrashing around trying to find someone to blame it on," Clute commented.

"In my view, the allegation is totally without foundation," he said.

Boise Cascade has filed a lien against the Triplets' property in an attempt to recover $35,676 owed the company for materials used in the stalled motel expansion.

Dr. Glenn Wegner said today he had not seen the lawsuit and declined comment on it.

The Triplets claim the actions of various defendants were a combination scheme and conspiracy to defraud them and obtain money by false pretenses.

In six cases of action, they have asked the court to order:

- Royale to pay them $200,000 general damages, $500 punitive damages and $50,000 attorney fees.
- Deseret Financing, Universal Funding and Underwriters Mortgage to pay them $200,000 general damages, $500,000 punitive damages and $50,000 attorney fees.
- Stott Capital Corp. to pay them $200,000 general damages, $500,000 punitive damages and $50,000 attorney fees.
- Canadian General Insurance Co. to enforce its letter of credit for $700,000 and pay $50,000 for attorney fees.
- Boise Cascade Corp. to finance the Triplets' obligations for not less than $650,000 and declare the Triplets owe the corporation nothing and the Boise Cascade to pay $25,000 in damages, and $25,000 in attorney fees.
- Glenn Wegner to pay them not less than $500,000 general damages and $50,000 for attorney fees, or be required to pay not less than $650,000 in a loan for the motel project.

New York guarantee bill reflects national issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The title of the bill before the Senate today, the "New York City Loan Guarantee Act of 1978," is local, but the issues are national and even international.

The Senate is considering — perhaps for the rest of the week — whether to provide $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees to the city to enable it to borrow money and thus keep itself from bankruptcy.

The guarantees, running up to 15 years, would replace federal seasonal loans to New York City, approved by Congress in 1975, which the city has repaid with interest and which expire June 30.

The House already has approved $2 billion in loan guarantees.

Both critics and supporters predict Senate passage, but not until after much rhetoric.

Proponents — including the city government, its leading bankers and labor unions, the state of New York and the Carter administration — say the effects of bankruptcy would spread nationwide in rapidly expanding circles.

Confidence in municipal bonds would be weakened throughout the country, they argue, and as a result taxpayers in other areas would have to pay higher interest rates to run their local governments.

Firms doing business with the city would suffer. Countless investors would lose money or have it tied up.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal says bankruptcy of one of the world's great financial centers would have a psychological effect around the world, weakening the already sickly U.S. dollar.

Opponents also argue in national terms.

Republican Sens. John Tower of Texas and Jake Garn of Utah say many other cities have experienced financial difficulties but have been expected to cope by making hard choices involving taxes and spending.

They complained in a joint statement that New York state recently cut its taxes $750 million. Tower and Garn said the money should have gone to the city.

They accused the Carter administration of a "double standard" — on one hand favoring loan guarantees for New York City, on the other, announcing that California, which drastically cut its property taxes with Proposition 13, would not get additional federal aid.

Never before has the federal government extended loan guarantees to a city, although it guarantees $300 billion in loans for other enterprises, ranging from fishing boats to satellites.

Opponents say the bill would change the federal system and set a precedent for other cities seeking guarantees.

Supporters reply that controls accompanying the guarantees would disallow most cities from applying. New York must subject itself to federal oversight and special audits for a period that could extend to 1995.

House, Senate slash spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The message, sent loud and clear from California, is being heard and heeded in Congress.

Both Senate and House are cutting spending and letting the dollars drop where they will.

Ever since California adopted Proposition 13 — slashing property taxes — by a 2-1 margin, the election-year Congress has whacked away at appropriations and authorization bills to show it knows the country wants government spending reduced.

And they are using a tactic that in previous years was shunned as the province of the non-thinkers — an across-the-board percentage cut that lets the agency or department decide what has to go.

Although it passed the fiscal 1979 Transportation Department appropriations last week without an effort to make a percentage cut, the Senate Tuesday slashed funds for the Treasury Department, the White House and several smaller agencies by a flat 2 percent, or about $144 million, reducing the size of the bill to $8.8 billion.

The U.S. Postal Service was exempted because, as sponsor Roth explained, its growth was less than the inflation rate.

Two other signs of cost-cutting were included in the bill by the committee: a freeze on pay raises for members of Congress and other high-ranking government officials with salaries over $47,000, and a 5.5 percent ceiling on pay raises for federal blue-collar workers, the same as that proposed for white-collar employees by President Carter.

Demo lawyers win runoffs

By United Press International

Two lawyers beat better-known opponents in Democratic runoffs for governor of South Carolina and senator of Mississippi Tuesday, but they are up against strong Republican opposition in the November general election.

Dick Riley, who vowed to end "good ole boy" politics in South Carolina, capitalized on a former opponent's endorsement to overtake Lt. Gov. Brantley Harvey and win the chance to regain the governor's office for the Democrats.

At his victory party, Riley said he owed much of his strong showing in the runoff to former Rep. W. J. Bryan Dorn, the loser in the three-way June 13 primary. Dorn endorsed Riley and campaigned hard for him in the third district. Dorn's home area.

"The Dorn enthusiasm really meant something to us," said Riley.

Riley, a 45-year-old progressive former state senator from Greenville, S.C., waged an aggressive campaign to gain name recognition.

"We had the momentum and the supporters," he told about 800 cheering backers. "We had come from next to nothing. ... I had the strongest bunch of supporters statewide."

Riley will face former Rep. Ed Young, the Republican nominee, in the general election. Gov. James B. Edwards, the first GOP governor in South Carolina in almost a century, by law cannot succeed himself.

With more than 99 percent of the vote counted, Riley got 128,518 votes, or 53.2 percent, to 156,476, or 46.71 percent for Harvey.

In Mississippi, attorney Maurice Dantlin won a landslide victory over Gov. Cliff Finch in the Democratic battle for the chance to succeed retiring Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss. He lost no time in gearing up for a strong Republican challenge in November.

"I am very grateful for the tremendous vote of confidence and call on all previous candidates and supporters, and all Mississippians, to join us in bringing a victory for Mississippi in November," the 48-year-old former mayor of Columbia told a crowd at his Jackson headquarters.

The one-time District attorney, a Marine Corps Reserve colonel who runs occasional marathon races to stay in shape, faces three-term GOP Rep. Thad Cochran, plus black Independent Charles Evers and Henry Kirksey, in the general election scramble for Eastland's seat.

Evers, a veteran black civil rights leader and mayor of Fayette, Miss., called Dantlin's victory the result of an "anti-Finch" vote and promised a "different race in November."

With all but two of the state's 2,333 precincts reporting, Dantlin had 234,353 votes compared to 124,633 for Finch.

In the Democratic runoff race for the 4th District congressional seat being vacated by Cochran, veteran state legislator John Hampton Stennis, son of veteran Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., scored a solid victory over freshman legislator Jay Disharoon.

In the South Carolina runoff for lieutenant governor, state Rep. Nancy Stevenson moved a step closer to becoming the first woman to hold the post by defeating state Sen. Horace Smith. Jim Clyburn lost in his bid to win the nomination for secretary of state and became the first black to hold statewide office since Reconstruction.

Opponents of such cuts call it the fiscal "meat ax" approach to spending. Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said Tuesday it's like "telling the appropriations committee it doesn't matter what you do because we're going to have a 2 or 5 or 10 percent cut."

"It's time to do more with less," argued Sen. William Roth, R-Del. "That's the message from California."

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, said cuts in the remaining appropriations bills are "highly likely" and will continue to be across-the-board.

But Tower said he did not believe Congress would make such reductions in the $160 billion-plus defense budget. He said there is national concern that "the Russians are getting ahead of us."

The Senate indicated Tuesday that it is just as eager as the House is to make the slashes.

Missile move pressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new Air Force chief of staff wants to get moving on the $15 billion to $20 billion M-X intercontinental missile system, and suggested today that work on two separate basing systems continue until a choice is made.

Gen. Lew Allen, who took over as the Air Force's top general last week, talked in an interview about plans that would shuttle about 200 of the missiles among thousands of holes in the ground — known as "vertical shelters" — or move them on tracks in underground tunnels.

The administration already has delayed the M-X program by a year because of doubts about basing, now making 1986 the soonest it could be ready without a speedup.

A basing decision is scheduled for August, but civilian Pentagon sources indicate it may be delayed further — a step Allen thinks would be "incorrect and unfortunate."

"I think it is possible that we can proceed rapidly and still keep some options open," he said, outlining a possibility of going ahead with vertical shelter development while continuing simultaneous testing of tunnels.

Allen said he is concerned about speed because the present Minuteman missile force, based in fixed sites, is becoming vulnerable to attack from Soviet missiles that are improving in accuracy.

Carter to unwind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will follow Congress' lead and take a full 10-day holiday, starting Friday at Camp David, the presidential retreat where he plans to celebrate the Fourth of July.

Allen says Carter is tired. He's also "pretty disgusted" that the Senate has handed him another setback in his drive to get a comprehensive energy program. The Senate voted Tuesday to block Carter's power to increase import fees on oil.

The president had hoped to use the import fees as a weapon to force action on his 14-month oil energy package. He particularly had hoped to have some indication from the

Nuclear plant foes to march

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last weekend's anti-nuclear power plant demonstration in Seabrook, N.H., was successful, but atomic protesters say their activities may now turn to massive marches and civil disobedience — reminiscent of the 1960s.

"If it takes thousands of people marching on Washington as in the '60s to protest nuclear power's medical, moral and political dangers, so be it," said Joan Bigler, resident of a small New Hampshire coastal town near Seabrook.

Ms. Bigler joined spokesmen for an anti-nuclear coalition called the "Seabrook Natural Guard" in announcing a march today from the Capitol to Lafayette Park across from the White House for a rally.

The following Furniture & Appliance Stores will be closed Monday & Tuesday, July 3rd & 4th so that their employees may spend the holiday with their families:

From 50 to 100 people will try to occupy the Nuclear Regulatory Commission after the rally, spokesmen said. The group passed out literature to its supporters, calling on them to "sit down" in confrontations and be prepared to be arrested.

"The Seabrook Natural Guard action in Washington is the beginning of our actions to serve notice on the federal government and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that the people of New Hampshire and this country cannot abide any longer the jeopardy into which our lives have been placed," said Chuck Matthei, a member of the Clamshell Alliance.

Interpretation of scripture contradictory

Editor, Times-News:
Lorri Mink's letter of June 18 questioned a Mormon leader's declaration that "salvation will be rewarded for individual effort" which she claimed is in direct contradiction to Paul's "For grace you have been saved, direct contradiction to Paul's statement in Romans 3:23-25."
May I ask Lorri if she feels the statement is also in contradiction to the fact that she became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him? (Hebrews 5:9) Or, as Paul wrote, "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling" (Phil. 2:12)? Or Paul, speaking of the Judgment Day, "who will render to every man according to his deeds" (Romans 2:6)? Or the Savior, himself, when he was most specific with Nicodemus, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:5)?
The scriptures are full of many other such references which call for effort on an individual's part, and I ask Lorri, did Paul contradict himself when he wrote instructions stating effort was necessary? Did Paul contradict the teachings of the great Apostle James when he wrote the second chapter of the Book of James?
Certainly not. There are no contradictions within the scriptures. It is but people's misinterpretations which make them appear as contradictions.
May I suggest a key? There are two major themes of which the writers of scriptures wrote. First, they wrote of specific things the Savior did for mankind which mankind could do for himself. One was the resurrection — that our bodies will come forth from the grave. On this, I am sure, we have no question. Also the Savior provided us a gospel plan by which mankind can return to the kingdom of God. Mankind did not have the ability to do either and so, willingly and freely, the Savior provided them.

When a writer of scripture referred to these matters they referred to them as a free gift.
Theme number two, on the other hand, is the theme on which much of the scriptures is written and this is, what man has to do for himself — in order to enjoy the free gift of the gospel. The reference is a salient part of the message of the gospel. The obedience given above which indicates effort has to do with theme number two and is most vital to one's inheriting the kingdom of God.
When a writer of the scripture wrote of theme number two, we misinterpret if we attempt to interpret on the basis of theme number one and/or if we ignore theme number two and attempt to classify all the scriptures by theme number one — the free gifts of Christ — then we are, likewise, in error.
The gospel plan has been freely provided but personal effort is required to keep the laws and commandments which provide the gateway for entrance into the kingdom of God.
Yes, Lorri, the Mormon Church believes literally in your quotation that "my grace is my salvation" for man could not have done it with all his effort but Paul was also so right when he said, "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. I hope this explanation helps.

Mormons constantly must defend beliefs

—Editor, Times-News:
I'm glad we live in a country where we have freedom of religion. Do we have to constantly be defending our beliefs?
It seems that we Mormons constantly are being belittled or misquoted by people who know nothing about our religion. We are thought strange because we believe that God loves us just as much as He loved the people in the days of Moses or Abraham.
—He loves us enough to give us a prophet to guide and direct us through revelation just as He did to the ancient people. We are not and have not been belittling the black race. Many righteous blacks will reach the celestial kingdom because of the way they have lived.
Lorri Mink says we are in co saying that salvation will be r or individual effort. I agree that we are saved by the sacrifice of the Savior we c not be saved by sitting around do our salvation.
Please read James 2:17-26. Roscoe Patton says Cain were destroyed 100 percent by the flood. Who is Noah but a descendant of Adam and his posterity (which included Cain). Also we are told in Genesis 8:19 (King James version) that Noah, his wife and his sons and their wives went forth out of the ark after the flood. What about Ham's wife? Could she be the seed of Cain?

Wayne Hogg of Way Station Ministries might find a study of this interesting.
There are many wonderful people in the black race and we respect them as we do any other race. We are all God's children. We use the King James version of the Bible and the Book of Mormon, which clears up a lot of mysteries for us along with revelation. The Book of Mormon is just another witness that Jesus is the Christ. It further proves the Bible and gives us a history of some more of God's people.
It seems to me there is enough bad in the world without picking apart the religions of the world. Please let us worship as we please. We are forcing no one to believe as we do. I have studied quite a bit and have a personal conviction that my religion is true. Please allow me that.

Crusade article was injustice to Kroezes

Editor, Times-News:
I am writing this letter in response to the horrible injustice done to the Kroezes family. I would like to assure any person who was influenced by Mr. Sullivan's article, that he could not have been wrong in it.
Mr. Sullivan stated that they, the Kroezes, repeatedly asked for money. They did not. There was, of course, an offering taken, and people were urged to buy the gospel books and records that were available, but this was no more than would be found at any other revival or crusade. An extreme amount of prayer, time, and money went into that crusade. Mr. Sullivan blasted God's people and work with his statements.
In order to reach more people with the gospel of Jesus Christ, people must give money. Money is freely given to telethons for various reasons, usually to prolong a life. Why then cannot money be asked for in order to give someone the hope of eternal life?

I feel that you, Mr. Sullivan, owe the Kroezes family an apology. Also, you owe the people whom you hurt with your article a public apology in this paper. If you can have the courage it must have taken to write and publish an article that was so wrong, then surely you must have enough courage to write an article that might take some of the wrong and make it right.

Ravenscroft is interested in conservation

Editor, Times-News:
By personal choice I have been involved in conservation work relating to our natural resources since 1936. Most of the time was a wildlife professional. During that time I have become acquainted with a lot of people with a wide range of interest and dedication in conservation.
One of the individuals with whom I worked for some six years was Vern Ravenscroft of Ruffin. He served as Chairman of the Idaho Landholder-Sportsman Council, a statewide organization of which I was secretary for over 20 years.
From this experience I feel compelled to say something for Vern, as he is asking for public support to become Idaho's elected leader at the end of Capitol Boulevard in Boise.
During this time of contact with Vern Ravenscroft, I found him to be a person with a real dedication and interest in the management of our natural resources. He didn't take the chairmanship of the Council for glory or notoriety, but instead, he did it because of his interest and desire to do something for the landholders and sportsmen of Idaho.

Vern Ravenscroft not only showed that he knew a lot about Idaho and its problems in conservation, he demonstrated that he had the kind of leadership needed to "get the job done." He showed to me that he had real interest and ability in the area of good management of our natural resources, and this is what I'd all about when you boil the issues down to what's good for all of us.

Breath of thanks for help

Editor, Times-News:
On behalf of millions of children who suffer from lung-damaging diseases, I want to say thank you to the people in Twin Falls who contributed to the Cystic Fibrosis Breath of Life Bike-A-Ton, and to the volunteers who gave their time and efforts in the various campaign activities.
I also want to thank the following businesses and organizations for their contributions: Albertsons, Alexanders, Bulltreys, Coke, Donnelly Sports, Hobby Town Toys, Kings, KMVT-TV, McDonald's, Montgomery Wards, Pedersons, Penny Wise, Pepsi, Safeway Stores, Sandpiper, Seven-Up, Springa Service Co., Times-News, Twin Falls Lions Club, and the Twin Falls radio stations.
All of these people have shown they really care about lung-damaged children. The money they have helped us to raise in the Twin Falls area will support the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation's programs for diagnosis, treatment, research and public education.
Research is accelerating to find a control or cure for Cystic Fibrosis, one of the most serious genetic diseases. Recent advances have brought us closer than ever to developing a practical test to identify the carriers of this inherited disease. About one in 20 people is believed to carry the recessive gene for Cystic Fibrosis.
The medical care now provided in over 117 Cystic Fibrosis Centers is lengthening the lives of our Cystic Fibrosis children and, in many cases, relieving or curing the conditions of children suffering from severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis and a condition sometimes called "childhood emphysema."
We are encouraged by this progress, and we thank you friends here in Twin Falls. At the same time, we ask everyone to renew his dedication to the continuation of the fight against lung-damaging diseases in our children.

No mistake— Alice Cooper donates an 'o'

United Press International
TYPE O DONOR
The marquee over Baltimore's Civic Center says it all: "Tonight — Alice Cooper." It's no mistake. "Cooper" in Baltimore because the famed but bedraggled sign high in the hills over Tinseltown on the West Coast now reads "Hollywood." So Rock Star Alice Cooper says he's donating one of his personal "O's" — along with $2,000 — to replace the missing letter and make the whole thing proclaim "Hollywood" once again. He's hustling fans for support — says, "We all grew up on Hollywood. I think everyone owes Hollywood a dollar."

WAITING AT THE PALACE
Even a screen legend can have an off day, and for Gary Grant, Tuesday was off the wall. He arrived in Monte Carlo for a pre-wedding party being given by David Niven for bride-to-be Princess Caroline and her intended, Philippe Junot, only to run into Gregory Peck — literally. Grant and Peck's cars tangled in a fender-bender. Nobody was hurt, but later, at the royal ball thrown by the Princess's papa, Prince Ranier, Grant found himself stood up by his date. He wouldn't say who the date was supposed to be — some say Ava Gardner — but she didn't show. After half an hour of fruitless waiting at the royal palace, Grant left the ball — stag.

VINTAGE BETTE
The lightshow is psychedelic, the music, acid rock, and the audience, pure flower child. The big event — Bette Midler, popping fake pills, swilling ersatz booze, swearing real cuss words and belting heavy numbers in a series of Los Angeles concerts straight out of the 1960s, "The Divine Miss M" is starring in "The Rose" — a movie about a blues-rock singer who just might have been the late Janis Joplin. Fans pay $2 each to a children's charity for the privilege of dressing up in flowers and love beads to be extras at the concerts, which are filmed for the movie.

ALL ABOUT ELVIS
Priscilla Presley — former wife of the late Elvis Presley — says she's going to "set the record straight" about her marriage to the rock 'n' roll king. The Nashville Banner says she's signed with Henry Jaffee Enterprises of Los Angeles to do an hour-long television special on her six years with Presley.

GLIMPSES
With the sounds of the big band era catching a new generation of fans, Helen Forrest — singer in days gone by for such maestros as Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman and Harry James — is warming up for a comeback at New York's Reno Sweeney ... Jerry Lewis dropped by the White House for a chat with President Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale Tuesday; after being handed a special public service award for his role as national chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, David Jonas — former manager of the late Freddie Prince — has won a court battle in Los Angeles giving him $205,000 in disputed fees from the comedian's estate ... Jordan's King Hussein and his new queen — the former Lisa Hay — have ended a weeklong honeymoon in Scotland where, says the king, "We went fishing once and I caught a salmon."

Politicians challenging Sen. Brook

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Brooke may not be politically dead, but the Massachusetts Republican is unexpectedly vulnerable.
— And because of that, the state's politicians are lining up to challenge the U.S. Senate's only black member.
The perception is everywhere that Brooke — given a patsy Democratic opponent six years ago and only months ago seemingly headed for the same free ride this time — can be beaten.

Tuesday's request by his wife for a second divorce trial further hurts Brooke's political image and his chances — for re-election because constant news media coverage of the messy marital split is certain during the campaign.
It's not inconceivable Brooke will ride out the bad publicity, because conservative Republicans he's worth retaining though he doesn't vote the party line, then survive the November election in the nation's most Democratic state.

Two months ago Brooke seemed virtually assured of a third term. Three virtually unknown Democrats were vying for the role of sacrificial lamb against him in the November election.
Big-name Democrats saw no reason to risk their futures on an uphill fight against an incumbent. They wanted the seat, but his voting record was like that of many Democrats.

His record did irk many conservative Republicans and he faced a primary challenge from talk show host Avil Nelson, whose ideology is more in line with GOP precepts.
But few really thought Massachusetts Republicans — almost a vanishing breed and virtually powerless — would sacrifice their only major officeholder for ideological purity.
That was before Brooke's daughter "leaked" financial documents showing he made "misstatements" about his finances in the original divorce settlement. Other questions have since been raised about his financial affairs.

Now, it's been open season on his finances for reporters, and the senator says the media has been unfair to him.

Singer Donna Fargo tested satisfactory

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Country and western singer Donna Fargo, whose hit "Happiest Girl in the Whole U.S.A." pushed her from teaching to singing, has undergone tests to determine the cause of numbness throughout her body.
Miss Fargo, 33, was reported in satisfactory condition at Cottage Hospital Tuesday.
Doctors said they did not know what was causing the numbness and a paralyzing feeling but were checking every possible cause from polio to multiple sclerosis. They ruled out a brain tumor.

"She is in satisfactory condition and is undergoing tests," a hospital spokeswoman said.
The popular singer entered the hospital during the weekend and canceled a 2½-month nationwide tour with 36 bookings.
Diana Pugh, executive vice president of Jim Halsey Corp. of Tulsa, Okla., Miss Fargo's booking agency, said she received a telephone call from the singer's husband, Stan Silver, two weeks ago asking for the cancellations.
"He said Miss Fargo has numbness throughout most of her body," Miss Pugh said. "She is not paralyzed and still able to move, but she is not able to feel anything throughout most of her body."

Basques suspected in editor's death

BILBAO, Spain (UPI) — Two youths wearing jogging suits and believed to be Basque guerrillas today shot and killed a Bilbao newspaper editor who published a story opposing government negotiations with the guerrillas.

Police said the killers used a submachine gun and a pistol to open fire on Jose Maria Portell, 46, from only three feet away as he got into his car from his home.

His wife, Carmen, who is expecting their sixth

JOSE MARIA PORTELL
... Bilbao editor slain

child, was in the home when the shooting occurred. "All my children heard the gunfire," she sobbed to reporters.

"He left the house at the same time as every day and in front of the car they machine gunned him," said Portell's father-in-law, Juan Torres, who lives in an adjacent house in the northwestern Basque city of Bilbao.

Police said the killers wore athletic warm-up suits and were believed to be members of ETA, a Basque separatist group that has killed two dozen policemen and civilians in the last year, including a policeman slain Tuesday.

Portell's newspaper, La Hoja de Lunes (Monday's Page), published an article this week saying the government should not give in to ETA demands for negotiations. Portell also has written several books on ETA.

The unstable situation in the Basque region has become the top problem for Premier Adolfo Suarez, who has recognized a "pre-autonomy" government in the Basque region but has so far given it no real powers or financial resources.

Basque Socialist leader Jose Maria Bengas has stated publicly that secret negotiations between the Suarez government and ETA will provide the best solution to the separatist dispute.

The article in Portell's newspaper rejected such negotiations, arguing that ETA's aim "is to destabilize any political system and its aim is to generalize the armed struggle and form a popular army."

It was the second attack attributed to ETA gunmen within 12 hours.

On Tuesday night, ETA guerrillas in the Basque resort city of San Sebastian opened fire on a police jeep parked at a roadside, killing one officer and wounding three men.

SOYUZ CREW BOARD CRAFT
... Soviet Klimuk, Pole Germazewski

Cosmonaut team bound for Salyut

MOSCOW (UPI) — The world's first Polish cosmonaut, strapped in beside a Soviet veteran of two previous missions, today headed for a rendezvous with the orbiting Salyut 6 space station.

Moscow Radio announced Tuesday that Soyuz 30 was fired into orbit carrying Soviet commander Pyotr Klimuk and Polish cosmonaut Mirosław Garmashevsky on Tuesday morning MDT.

If all goes well, the flight follows earlier docking patterns. Garmashevsky and Klimuk should be shaking hands with the two cosmonauts already aboard the station by this evening.

Cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalevok and Alexander Ivanchenkov have been aboard Salyut 6 since June 17, conducting experiments and switching the station's systems back to life.

Klimuk, 36, joined the cosmonaut program in 1965 and had his first mission in December 1973 aboard Soyuz 13. His second mission came in 1975 aboard Soyuz 18, which docked with the Salyut 4 space station for 63 days.

Garmashevsky, 37, was born in the Polish village of Lipniki and enrolled in the Polish Military Air School in 1961. In 1969 he transferred to the academy of the general staff and returned to the air force in 1971.

The Soviet Union has placed heavy emphasis on its Intercosmos program, stressing that it proves the closeness between the Soviet Union and its satellite allies.

And Salyut 6 has been a station of unparalleled success. Last March, Cosmonauts Georgy Grechko and Yuri Romanenko spent a total of 96 days aboard the station, breaking the American record for space endurance.

Kovalevok and Ivanchenkov, have continued the experiments testing man's endurance in space started by Grechko and Romanenko.

Cubans tip Yemen scales

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A leftist newspaper said today Cuban advisers and pilots tipped the balance in favor of South Yemen's pro-Moscow forces in this week's ouster of President Salim Robaya Ali.

The pro-Frangi newspaper Al Liwa said 600 Cuban advisers of various military ranks "have been in complete control of military matters in South Yemen for the past two months."

Quoting a "diplomatic report received from Aden," the newspaper said active Cuban involvement helped crush the forces loyal to the Robaya Ali, who was executed by firing squad after his ouster Monday.

"It was not the defense minister Lt. Col. Ali Antar, who tipped the scales in favor of the (pro-Moscow) National Liberation Front leadership, but the Cuban advisers," the newspaper said.

Al Liwa said the Cuban forces "speared the attack against Robaya Ali at the presidential palace and that it was Cuban pilots who flew the MIG fighters which pounded the palace where Robaya Ali and his supporters were entrenched."

Diplomats in contact with the strategic Red

Sea state said the pro-Moscow political forces that triumphed in the power struggle now planned to purge some of Robaya Ali's top military supporters.

The diplomats, receiving radio reports from what they called "well-placed political sources," said among those slated to be removed were a number of "high armed forces members."

Robaya Ali was shot by a firing squad Monday, culminating an internal power struggle between hardline leaders of ruling NLF and the president, who reportedly had favored more moderate policies and rapprochement with such conservative neighbors as Saudi Arabia and North Yemen.

The diplomats said the military purge, which is expected soon, would consolidate a strengthened hand won by NLF Secretary General Abdel Fattah Ismail's hardline faction.

Robaya Ali's ouster came three days after the assassination of the president of neighboring North Yemen by a bomb carried in the briefcase of a South Yemen envoy. North Yemen broke diplomatic relations with its Marxist neighbor over the incident.

UN disarm conference may extend

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. General Assembly session on world disarmament, scheduled to end today, may be extended another day because it is no closer to a solution than when it started five weeks and millions of words ago.

From the beginning, the Assembly envisaged the adoption of a declaration demanding world disarmament and a resolution setting up the international machinery to oversee the process.

On Tuesday, the diplomats were still struggling with the problem of how to phrase the proposals to make them practical documents and not just another set of toothless declarations.

The session may be held over until Thursday to at least produce an all-around acceptable document setting guidelines for future global disarmament policy, U.N. sources said.

Skirmishes continuing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials said today there are indications that "border skirmishing" is going on between Vietnamese and Cambodian forces but no signs of a wholesale invasion from the Vietnamese side.

The officials were commenting on a Voice of America broadcast which said that as many as 80,000 Vietnamese troops had penetrated as far as 40 miles into Cambodia.

Both sides have a tendency to exaggerate, one informed official said. "We are not convinced it's that big. Our indication is that border skirmishing is going on but we have no confirmation that the Vietnamese have penetrated that far with that number of people."

Matamoros tension continues

MATAMOROS, Mexico (UPI) — Machine gun carrying soldiers in jeeps chased rock-throwing teenagers from downtown Matamoros, heading off a second night of rioting, looting and arson over the death of a 15-year-old boy.

The city's major labor union staged a strike, in support of the embattled mayor and chief of police of the city of 150,000 across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Texas.

An estimated 1,000 protesters — in groups of 30 to 40 — gathered Tuesday night around the army barricades encircling eight square blocks of the downtown area, which was gutted by 4,500 rioters Monday night.

Damage was estimated at $2 million. City hall, eight banks and up to 30 stores were looted and destroyed and nine cars were firebombed.

While the troops kept would-be rioters from a second night of arson and pillage, the youths occasionally threw rocks at the troops, who retaliated by chasing them from the area in jeeps.

Four cars, including one belonging to a U.S. reporter, were overturned and gunfire occasionally echoed through the streets Tuesday night. While tense, Matamoros appeared quiet early today.

Big, fast growing union runs head on into top issue

By New York Times Service
LAS VEGAS — The biggest, fastest growing union in the American Federation of Labor and Congress of the Industrial Organizations is running head on against the biggest, fastest growing issue in the country.
 The union is the American Federation of Labor, County and Municipal Employees, a million members strong.
 The issue is the tax revolt. Its spread has meant a heavy pay raise or even layoffs for many of the millions in the public employee unions.

AFCME officials promise to meet the problem head-on at the big union's national convention now in session here. They'll push for "an action program for tax justice" to try and get localities to ease property and sales taxes before a California-style tax earthquake hits.
 "Every democratic politician will be beating on us," said Jerry Wurf, president of the big union. Rational tax reform won't hurt unions but, he warns, "if other unions make the mistake of trying to preserve the status quo, the tax payers will tread on us with the scorn we deserve."

The unions, Wurf says, have a year to get ready for the fight for their jobs because most 1978 public budgets and union contracts are wrapped up. The unions aren't waiting, though. Across the nation tax revolt fever has the nation's public employee unions running scared, and the union counterattack already is beginning.
 "We're setting up a network of state-by-state coalitions," said James Farmer, director of the Coalition of American Public Employees, first in 15 states that he believes are susceptible to the initiative movement that proved so successful in California, where Proposition 13, a voter initiative that will slash property tax revenues by 60 percent, was approved by a margin of nearly 2 to 1 on June 6.

Last Monday, Al Wurf, brother of Jerry and director of the New Jersey AFCME, began building a state coalition he hopes will include public employees, mayors, administrators, teachers, college officials and do-gooder groups such as the women's movement and advocates for the retarded.
 "We must put aside the rivalries and jealousies to prevent the kind of thing that happened in California," he said at his initial coalition meeting Monday night in Trenton, N.J.

The Public Employee Department of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, consisting of 30 unions with 2 million members on the public payrolls, has set up an "emergency committee" to "develop, in close cooperation with the AFL-CIO, a coordinated program of action for the future."
 The Assembly of Governmental Employees, a confederation of independent state and local unions, has already started to develop tactics to combat tax revolt. "I can't see anything else but confrontation," said James F. Marshall, executive director of the 600,000-member group.

There is very little talk of strike, but there is some talk of slowdowns, and even more talk of political action.
 Jerry Wurf, the AFCME president, said, "We've developed the best political apparatus in the American labor movement," and added that he was ready to use political power, which means money and manpower at election time, to protect public workers' pay and benefits.
 Some labor leaders are already talking about slowdowns. "In those situations where the disastrous impact of the Jarvis-Gann initiative will be felt," said Howard McClennon, president of the AFL-CIO's Public Employees Department. "We urge our members to resist being overworked or overloaded with the duties of laid-off workers by communities attempting to deliver the same level of services with a sharply eroded work force."

McClennon was referring to the authors of the California property tax initiative — Howard A. Jarvis, a 75-year-old retired businessman who has long opposed tax increases, and Paul Gann, 66, a retired real estate salesman.
 The California State Employees' Association, which has 110,000 members, met this week to debate strategy. Rich Martin, a spokesman for the union, said Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who recently canceled a pay increase in exchange with 250,000 state employees, "is in trouble with us," but conceded that it would be difficult to find a candidate who has not joined the tax revolt. Brown is seeking re-election this year.
 The coalition building that Al Wurf started this week in New Jersey is expected to be repeated across the country in the coming months.
 There will be campaigns to publicize "hidden" public services, to confront tax cut proponents with the demand that they name the services they want cut, and to "convince the public employee to create a better image," Wurf said.

 Public employees continually talk about police officers and firemen who will be laid off in any tax revolt, although, ironically, there appeared to be no police or firemen at Wurf's coalition meeting — they were at the State House that night, lobbying for 20 years-and-out pensions.
 "We're not the cops or the firemen," Jerry Wurf, the national union president, said. "We're the health inspector, the clerk at City Hall. But if it weren't for us, you couldn't buy a hamburger without getting sick."

The public employees usually use the word "essential" and rarely bring up any spending that might be less than essential. Nor is there much talk about the explosion in the public worker payroll. From 1968 to 1976, for example, Census Bureau data indicate that the number of state and local employees grew to 12.2 million from 8.6 million, and their pay nearly tripled, to $10.4 billion from $3.8 billion. That does not include the 2.8 million federal employees earning $3.6 billion.

Oil lands' growth lags

CALGARY, Alta. (UPI) — The oil-producing countries have fallen behind the industrial world in economic growth because of a 1978 oil price freeze agreed to by OPEC, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Yamani says.
 He noted Monday at the opening of an international conference of geologists that because of an over-supply of oil the 13-nation OPEC cartel had agreed to freeze its prices for the rest of 1978 despite demands from some Arab nations for an increase.
 The oil minister warned that "current prices of oil set by OPEC has deteriorated in real terms by 29 percent since January 1974 and in maintaining the current price the organization is forfeiting its opportunity for economic growth."
 He said a short-term period of world over-supply began in the first quarter of 1977 and was likely to continue until the second half of 1979. He attributed this over-supply to oil production from the North Sea and Alaska, but said the growth in production in these areas will begin tapering off in 1979.

 OPEC's oil reserves are being depleted at a rate of 11.5 billion barrels a year, Yamani said. At the same time the value of this oil is deteriorating at a fast rate in real terms.
 "OPEC is not being fairly compensated for its depleting natural assets and the end result is that its members are forfeiting opportunities for economic growth," Yamani said.
 He said some member countries were drawing on their accumulated financial reserves or borrowing on the international money markets in order to maintain growth.
 By contrast the industrialized countries have achieved reasonable growth since mid-1975.
 The result is that the imbalance between the wealth of the OPEC members and the wealth of the industrial world was growing, he said.

140,000 Chinese depart Vietnam

TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese authorities say the number of ethnic Chinese who have fled Vietnam has reached 140,000, Japan's Kyodo news service reported Tuesday.
 Kyodo said in a special dispatch from Kunming in southern China that the Chinese government has spent about $100 million, or at least $14.6 million, to help all the refugees resettled in mainland China.
 The Kyodo correspondent was one of four foreign reporters allowed to travel to Yunnan province on the Chinese-Vietnamese border.
 They were told by senior Chinese officials that the rift between the two Communist states had developed since the start of the border war between Vietnam and Cambodia.
 Kyodo said Kunming airport was heavily guarded by troops and about 20 jet fighters and two large transport planes were standing by.
 A senior provincial official told the visiting journalists about 140,000 ethnic Chinese have fled Vietnam, about 39,000 of them escaping from the Vietnamese border city of Lao Kay to the small Chinese town of Hokou.

 When asked about the possibility of an armed conflict breaking out between China and Vietnam, Yao Posheng, the official in charge of the refugee problems, replied, "It depends on what moves the Vietnamese make."
 He added, "China and Vietnam have shared a long history of friendship."
 The Kyodo dispatch said a steam-powered train travels some 350 miles between Kunming and Hokou each day to take the arriving refugees to state farms in several Chinese provinces.

Business quest goes on

WALKING his route over the streets of south St. Louis, Mo., knife sharpener Tony Gagliarducci, 28, seeks business as he has for the past 57 years. He said he sharpens all kinds of tools and guarantees his work. His prices start at 50 cents for a knife.

Terror links widespread

©New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — United States intelligence agencies, drawing largely on information from foreign intelligence sources, have linked terrorists from 14 countries with international operations of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The largest number of foreign terrorists who have cooperated with the Palestinians over the last nine years came from West Germany, according to a presentation by United States Air Force intelligence officials to a member of Congress.

"Germans comprise the single largest foreign group," said Charles A. Russell, chief of the acquisitions and analysis division in the Air Force's Directorate of Counterintelligence in a letter sent to Rep. William Lehman, D-Fla.

from the Netherlands, Brazil, France, Venezuela, Britain, Colombia, Turkey, Algeria, Egypt, Libya, Jordan, Lebanon and Italy.

The compilation lists 12 West Germans who received training either from Habash's group or from Al Fatah, the major Palestinian group.

The first group of West Germans to receive training from Palestinians were members of the so-called Baader-Meinhof gang, named for Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof. Along with others, they were given weapons training in 1970 and 1971 at Fatah camps in Baalbek, Lebanon, and in Syria. Later gang members who called themselves the Red Army Faction participated in terrorist actions in Europe. Virtually all of the original members of the group are dead, including Baader and Miss Meinhof.

The second group of West Germans, constituting offshoots of the Red Army Faction, was trained almost entirely by Popular Front specialists based in Southern Yemen, according to the intelligence compilation.

The group included two West Germans, Gabriele Krocher-Tiedemann and Hans Klein, who were part of the six-member Popular Front team that attacked a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna in December 1976. At least six other West Germans are listed in the compilation as having received Popular Front training in Southern Yemen before committing acts of terrorism.

The listing, which was requested by Lehman as an amplification of a briefing on terrorism for the Congressional Research Service, described cooperative ventures in which the West Germans helped procure vehicles for Palestinian terrorists in Paris, joined in an attempted rocket attack on an Israeli aircraft in Kenya in January 1976, and participated in an airliner hijacking in June 1976 that ended in Entebbe, Uganda, with hostages being freed by Israeli commandos.

The pro-Palestinian stance of the West German terrorists dates back a full decade, according to their published statements and manifestos. It was the counterpart of intensive anti-Zionist agitation that developed among West German leftists after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Family branch gone

—MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Don and Marilyn West say they feel they have lost a member of the family.

Minneapolis police say they are the victims of a petty theft.

The Wests say police displayed a deep lack of understanding when informed of the disappearance of the Wests' favorite houseplant and its plant companion.

"It was part of the family," Mrs. West said Tuesday. "One year when we couldn't afford a Christmas tree, our three children decorated the plant."

"When I left the house, I used to wish it a good day — we believe in talking to plants," West said.

The plant was described as an apricot croton, about 5 feet tall. It was last seen Sunday night, when Mrs. West put it on the back porch so the rain could wash its leaves.

Around midnight, West said, he heard a dog bark twice "in a strange way." In the morning, the plant and poinsettia plant-friend were gone.

West called police. When they said they couldn't come immediately, he called the mayor's office. Very shortly, Deputy Police Chief Leonard Brucejian took over the case personally.

"I felt that if the plant were going to be fenced, the police should have a description of it in their hands," West said.

Hawaii tax burden among heaviest

By WALLACE TURNER
 ©N.Y. Times Service

HONOLULU — If California's Proposition 13 is the pattern for future tax cuts by local governments around the nation, then government in Hawaii has been living in the future for more than a century. And the tax burden here is one of the nation's highest.

The effect of the California vote to cut property taxes was to cut back heavily on local government revenues. Rather than see some services collapse, California officials have begun to look for ways for the state to absorb some costs formerly paid by cities and counties.

In Hawaii, government has been financed from Honolulu since the Polynesian kings ruled from Iolani Palace. When the islands became a territory and then the 50th state, the central government continued to finance most programs.

Hawaii's property taxes, which supply most of the emenies for local government, average eight-tenths of 1 percent of market value. That is 20 percent lower than the maximum rate established in California by Proposition 13, which will limit property taxes to 1 percent of market. But state taxes are heavy enough to put state and county government here in the ranks of the big spenders.

Unlike the patchwork of the mainland's cities, towns, townships, villages, school districts and special tax districts, Hawaii has but five tax levying bodies. These are the state and the four counties — Honolulu, which covers all of Oahu, Kauai, which includes that island and also Nihoa; Maui, which includes Lanai and Molokai; and Hawaii, the island at the east end of the chain.

There are no city governments. An elected mayor and council govern each county. The governor appoints almost all top state officials except the lieutenant governor, legislators and the State Board of Education, whose members are elected.

The site spends 80 percent of the taxes and the counties spend 20 percent. The counties pay for public safety and some other, less costly functions.

Gloomy outlook for pork consumers

By SETH S. KING
©1978 N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department released its latest forecast of pork supplies this week, and there was no cheer in it for consumers.

The number of hogs now on farms is only one percent more than last year and the number born over the winter and early spring — the ones that will come on the market later this summer — was actually down one percent from the same period last year.

Even gloomier were the figures on the number of sows expected to give birth over the next six months; only 3 percent more than last year.

These estimates indicated to the Agriculture Department's meat experts that there would not be enough of an increase in the supply to lower the currently high retail prices for pork. Nor is there anything in the forecast to change their earlier prediction that these prices will end the year 14 to 16 percent higher than last year's average of $1.25 per pound.

The only positive note, and its tone was more of relief than of cheer was the department's latest estimate of beef cattle now being fattened for market.

In the major cattle producing states, there were 16 percent more animals in the fattening pens than there had been last year. In addition, cattle feeders placed 22 percent more animals in their lots in May than last year, the department said.

If these estimates are correct, it means the supply of fattened beef could hold steady over the coming six months, offering the hope that retail beef prices have reached a plateau.

Two weeks ago, the Agriculture Department's average retail price for choice beef was $1.74 cents a pound. That was after the price of choice steers had soared to $60 a hundred pounds at Midwest stockyards.

By the end of this week, as reports of increased cattle numbers on feed reached the meat trade, this stockyard price had dropped back to about $53.50 a hundred pounds.

But earlier, retail prices had not gone up at the same rate as the stockyard prices. So Agriculture Department meat analysts expected these to remain at about $1.74, which would be more in proportion to the $33.50 stockyard level.

Whatever comfort consumers may feel at the prospect to fade by early winter.

The big reductions that began on the ranches last fall and continued into this year have not stopped. So there will be fewer ranch animals available for fattening this fall. Thus, a smaller supply will be coming to the supermarkets next winter and another jump in retail prices seemed certain.

Glen Grimes, the University of Missouri's livestock marketing specialist, was not as pessimistic about pork prices as the Agriculture Department was.

"It may well be that this latest increase in cattle on feed will cause retail beef prices to drop down a little more," he said Friday during a telephone interview.

"That would tend to pull retail pork prices down a bit with them," he said. "But we're expecting a 10 percent decrease in the supply of ranch cattle later this summer, and that supply was already low to begin with. That's going to mean another jump in beef prices next winter."

Grimes said he did not see how there could be any turn-around in the cycle of beef cattle numbers before mid-1979 and it would be 1980 or 1981 before the beef supply would be increased enough to start retail prices downward again, he said.

Cattle and hog raisers have traditionally resented to profitably high stockyard prices by increasing the number of animals they raise and fatten.

With feed grain costs so low last fall and meat prices rising, the Agriculture Department had expected the supply of pork and poultry to rise sharply this spring, although it would take another year for beef numbers to begin rising.

The broiler supply has jumped sharply as poultry raisers could increase their numbers more quickly. But the expected increase in hog numbers did not materialize.

Idahoans need rain

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Tuesday despite a wet spring farmers in some locations need even more rain.

Irrigation water supplies are up to par, but some dry-land crops and ranges badly need a dose of precipitation. Farmers harvesting hay and cherries, however, are making good use of warm weather.

By June 24 about 50 percent of the first hay crop had been harvested, which is in line with last year's pace. Sugarbeet thinning is on the verge of being finished and dry beans and potatoes are 90 and 80 percent emerged,

Wheat rates changed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland Monday announced two wheat policy changes designed to increase financial aid to the nation's farmers.

Bergland, in Kansas City to meet with members of the American Seed Trade Association at the group's annual convention, said the wheat loan rate will be increased from $2.25 to $2.35 a bushel. The move will not affect the market price on wheat, but will increase cash flow to farmers, he said.

The farmer-held reserve release level will be raised from $3.15 to $3.29 a bushel, Bergland said, stabilizing seasonal market movements with little impact on the seasonal average price.

Treasury launches probe of imported sugar price

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department Tuesday said it had launched an investigation to determine if beet sugar imported from Europe is being sold in the United States at less than fair value, a violation of American trade laws.

A Treasury statement said a group of beet sugar producers in Michigan filed a complaint with the government claiming that about 50,000 tons of beet sugar from Europe were being imported "at prices substantially below those charged in European domestic markets."

Furthermore, European firms allegedly were receiving subsidies from their governments "exceeding the price at which the sugar was sold for export to the United States," the statement said.

Treasury said that because portions of these shipments have started to arrive in the United States through the port of Savannah, Ga., the Customs Service has started "immediate preliminary investigations to determine whether proceedings should be initiated" under federal law.

Under the Anti-Dumping Act of 1921, special dumping duties may be assessed on imports found to sold in the United States at less than fair value.

Experiment scheduled

FILER (UPI) — Experiments designed to reduce erosion in Idaho fields have achieved dramatic reduction in topsoil losses for farmers involved, according to advisor Chuck Brockway, a University of Idaho professor.

During a 12-month period starting in June 1977 topsoil erosion decreased by 82 percent, said Brockway.

The project is being directed by the Snake River Soil Conservation District. It is funded by the district, the University of Idaho Research and Extension Center, the Cooperative Extension Service and the Science and Education Administration.

Project participants have constructed large sediment basins and traps and planted strips of vegetation on outer edges of fields to filter runoff and reduce topsoil loss.

New grain due

PULLMAN (UPI) — Several new wheat varieties will be put on display during a field day at Washington State University July 6.

The varieties are resistant to several common malady which affect such crops.

The wheat varieties have been genetically cross-bred to resist such plant diseases as stripe rust, dwarf smut and foot rot.

The display will be at the Spillman Agronomy Farm on the WSU campus.

A new matting barley will also be displayed.

Judge extends labor order

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Federal District Judge Jack Tanner Monday extended a temporary restraining order which keeps the U.S. Department of Labor from prohibiting 10- and 11-year-old children from working in berry and cucumber fields in Washington and Oregon.

Tanner said that Labor Secretary Ray Marshall had abused his authority when he effectively suspended the waiver law which was amended to the Labor Act several years ago by Congress.

The act prohibited children under 12 from working in the fields, but the amendment provided specifically for waivers for 10- and 11-year-olds.

However, Marshall last week denied the waiver applications of more than 200 individuals and farm organizations in Washington and Oregon.

"If the labor secretary won't take action to let the 10- and 11-year-olds work, I will," said Tanner.

Tanner said there will be a final hearing sometime in August on a permanent injunction against the Labor Department. He also ordered that the Labor Department take no punitive action against either state or against the berry pickers.

The Washington and Oregon Farm Bureaus had requested the order.

SHORT QUIZ FOR SMALL ACREAGE SPUD GROWERS

Find the Three big differences in this Lockwood potato harvester

GIVE UP?
We don't blame you—they're tough to find. Here are the answers:

1. It's a good-as-new remanufactured harvester
2. It's about half the price of most new machines
3. It carries a full "one season" warranty

When we say "remanufactured" we don't mean "re-conditioned." We start with a good pre-owned harvester, take it apart down to the last bolt and put it back together using new, genuine Lockwood replacement parts wherever needed. Then it gets a new paint job and a full "one season" warranty. Now you've got all the answers you need to save money on a new-quality remanufactured Lockwood harvester.

L.M. Boyde

Writer Zane Grey averaged better than three novels a year for 29 years.

Q. "Why is a river delta so called?"
A. Because the original delta, that of the Nile, was shaped like the Greek letter "Delta."

Claim is you can shine your shoes in a dandy manner with the inside of a banana peel.

Q. "Is it true that the presidential salute of 21 guns is a commemoration of the date of the American Revolution?"
The 21 shots divide nicely into 1:7-6."

A. Not likely. The same number are used in the British royal salute.

Not just one but two of the more renowned American writers of this century did much of their literary work while on their feet: Ernest Hemingway, as has been noted, wrote at a typewriter. Thomas Wolfe, who stood 6-feet-6, penned many of his lines with the paper on the top of a refrigerator.

CANADIAN BIRTHS

It's easier for the Canadians to trace their ancestry than for any other nationality. Canada started its birth registry at Quebec City in 1621. Thus, it's the only country in the world with more than three centuries of an unbroken record of births.

Was only 27 years ago that Pennsylvania officially removed from its books the bounty on Indian scalps.

DAHILIA DINNER

The first dahilia tubers brought into this country were supposed to be eaten.

Did I tell you that turnip seeds run about 15,200 to the ounce?

Q. "What's the oldest known fruit?"
A. The fig. Fossil figs are said to go back 25 million years.

Sky wasn't falling

JEROME — Two motorists traveling east on 180-N probably thought rocks were falling from the sky Tuesday as their cars were pelted about three miles south of Jerome. Idaho State Police reported the rocks were actually coming from an overpass where loose gravel had been dumped too close to the curb. Two cars, owned by Walter Mandel of Greeley, Colo., and Lessa Henderson of Cottage Grove, Ore., suffered windshield and paint damage before the gravel could be removed. The state police isn't sure who dumped the gravel on the overpass.

BLM land burned

JEROME — Ten acres on route 93 owned by the Bureau of Land Management burned in a weed and brush fire Tuesday evening. Jerome firemen, who brought three trucks to fight alongside two BLM tankers, think the fire may have been caused by a cigarette tossed from a passing vehicle. Fire chief Lynn Bingham says fire danger is high right now, as the "June grass is getting dry." The fire, which began at 5 p.m. on the empty field between 180-N and the KOA campground, burned for 1 1/2 hours.

Energy seminar tonight

TWIN FALLS — "You mention breeder reactors, and people expect a monster to walk out of a power plant," says Roberta Carter. To demystify the language of energy, Carter will lead a seminar sponsored by the South Central Community Action Agency entitled "The ABC's of Alternative Energies." During the seminar, Carter, who works on energy projects for the CAA, will "translate" technical terms used in geothermal, oceanic, nuclear and coal power sources. The seminar will be held Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Shields Building, room 117, at the College of Southern Idaho. There will no admission charge. The seminar follows last month's CAA seminar on solar energy.

Bliss vote Thursday

BLISS — Bliss school patrons are asked to vote Thursday to continue both an override and a plant facilities levy. Polls will be open at the Bliss school cafeteria from noon to 8 p.m. Voters will be asked to renew both a 12.75 maintenance and operation override and a 2 mill plant facilities levy. Dick Flores, superintendent, said approval of the levies will mean no additional taxes because both are now in effect. The plant facilities levy is geared for a 10-year period while the override levy has to be approved yearly. All legal residents 18 years and older are qualified to vote. Flores said earlier the approval of next year's school budget is contingent upon passage of the levies.

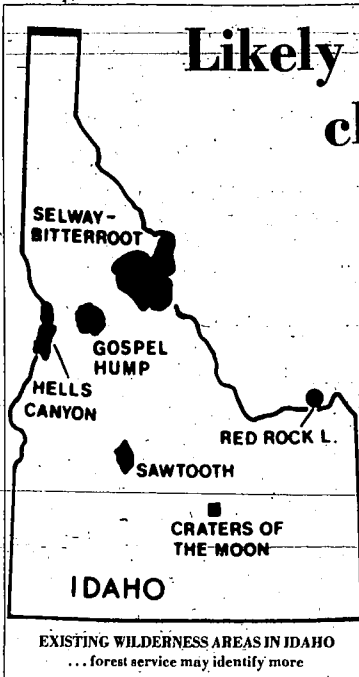

Geothermal site picked

TWIN FALLS — An area south of the College of Southern Idaho's maintenance building has been selected as the tentative site for a geothermal well on the campus. Bob McManaman, building and grounds superintendent, said drilling at the location will begin "as soon as the necessary legal work is completed." That will probably be in a few weeks. According to McManaman, the site was chosen for its access and close proximity to "where we want the water to go." The college, if it finds underground hot water, eventually plans to heat the entire campus by geothermal energy. "We don't know what we'll find, but we're hoping to hit hot water," said McManaman. The superintendent was unable to detail the costs of the project or who will be doing the drilling.

Likely Sawtooth wilderness chosen by forest service

By JEFF SHER Times-News writer
MAGIC VALLEY — The Sawtooth National Forest contains 14 roadless areas totaling more than 646,000 acres, not counting the Sawtooth Wilderness Area. This week at Sawtooth National Forest district offices, people interested in what happens to those roadless areas can look over the alternatives, which are the result of the RARE II studies. The forest service released its recommendations recently and has opened the report to public comment. Residents can make known their opinions on what should be done with these roadless areas, whether they should become permanent wilderness or non-wilderness, or be set aside for further study. Open houses will be held at the Sawtooth Forest offices this week to discuss RARE II Roadless Area Review and Evaluation, the process by which the future of all remaining roadless areas on Forest Service land will be decided once and for all. The Forest Service has compiled some information on the possible effects of making those roadless areas permanent wilderness or non-wilderness, but more specific information is needed, especially from loggers, outfitters, guides and others who make their living in and from Idaho's remote back country. The remaining roadless areas on the Sawtooth Forest includes: Ten Mile, 22,016 acres, contiguous with the Sawtooth Wilderness Area on the north and west (includes an additional 14,880 acres on the Challis National Forest and 106,730 acres on the Boise National Forest). Pioneer Mountains, 65,792 acres east of Ketchum. White Cloud-Boulder, 242,248 acres on the east side of the Stanley Basin, including the White Cloud Mountains (most of this area has already been designated as a wilderness study area by Congress). Lime Creek, 14,208 acres, just northwest of Fairfield. South Boise-Yuba River, 165,785 acres south of the Sawtooths and west of Ketchum. Eight areas in the South-Hills, including Fifth Fork Rock Creek, 6328 acres; Third Fork Rock Creek, 15,749 acres; Colterwood, 12,228 acres; Lone Cedar, 7,035 acres; Mahogany Butte, 22,448 acres; Thorobred, 7,322 acres; Mt. Harrison, 29,246 acres; Cache Peak, 28,526 acres south of Mt. Harrison; and Subleit, 7,040 acres east of Raft River. Sawtooth Forest Service Planner Jack Hougard predicted the areas in the northern section of the Sawtooth Forest are most likely to be designated permanent wilderness, while the roadless areas in the South Hills were more likely to receive less wilderness consideration.

The RARE II draft environmental statement indicated employment in the timber industry in and around the Sawtooth Forest could increase as much as six percent under some of the alternatives proposed by the Forest Service, but the report pointed out that logging accounts for less than one percent of total employment in the Blaine County-Magic Valley area. The report was less specific about the effect on other forms of employment in the area, saying only that the Sun Valley area "could experience demands for additional services when new wildernesses attracted additional growth." The Forest Service has vowed to give serious consideration to local opinion in formulating its final recommendations for Idaho's roadless areas, but unless local people with knowledge about specific roadless areas come forth and participate in the RARE II process, the Forest Service will be forced to rely only on the information it has gathered thus far. Sawtooth National Forest district offices at Burley, Ketchum and Fairfield, the Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters seven miles west of Ketchum, and the supervisor's office in Twin Falls will remain open each weekday evening this week until 7 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to discuss RARE II. Written public comment will be accepted until Sept. 30.

Better migrant health care coming

By GARY ELIASSEN Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Migrant workers in the Magic Valley area may receive expanded health care service by October. A preliminary application to provide additional services and manpower for the local migrant clinic has been filed with the federally-sponsored National Health Service Corps at Seattle. No funds could be used before the next fiscal year begins Oct. 1. Cooke Atkins, Boise, assistant health project director for the Idaho Migrant Council, said today that the expanded health care has become available to the migrant clinics as a result of federal action permitting designation of the migrant population as a manpower shortage area. Previously, only communities could receive such designation, which is designed to clear the way for assignment of National Health Service Corps personnel to fill the void. Five areas in Idaho have been designated "manpower shortage areas" including Cassia, Twin Falls, Canyon, Poyette, and Bingham. An application has been filed for Bingham County. Frank Martinez, Seattle, regional program consultant for migrant programs, said the Pacific Northwest is the first area of the country in which the migrant population has been declared to have a manpower shortage.

One of the criteria is whether there are 6,000-plus migrants for two months out of a year in the impact area, he said. Martinez explained that by applying for the health care funds it would allow the local migrant clinic to free up federal grant money for other types of services such as Outreach, immunization and preventive education. "Doctors already working for the clinic would continue in the same fashion except they would be paid by the health service corps," he said. About 60 percent of the migrants who may need such specialized health care as surgery and obstetrics, but cannot afford it, go without the necessary care because federal funds are not available, Robert Epstein, Seattle, a recruiter for the corps said. "The migrant population has been routinely underserved with health care," Epstein said. "Now they will have as much access as they need to medical services and dental care." The National Health Service Corps program provides for assignment of health care professionals to designated areas where they work one year in return for each year of funding assistance the professional receives while in school. Assignment of corps personnel frees a percentage of the federal funding to the migrant clinics for expanded health services such as specialized care, Epstein said.

Camas Prairie invaded by caterpillars

FAIRFIELD — An onslaught of tiny chewing caterpillars called "alfalfa loopers" is threatening the famous Camas Prairie hay crop this summer. To try to beat the bugs, farmers are having to hurry their first cutting this week. The caterpillars, which hatch into harmless moths, have eaten part of nearly every hay field on the prairie, according to Camas County Extension Agent Donna Basey. She estimated 70,000 acres of hay are under cultivation on the prairie this year. "There has been quite a bit of damage," Basey said. "Hopefully, it is not serious." Basey said the caterpillars are ordinarily a small problem and can be stopped with pesticides. This year, low market prices for hay are discouraging pesticide use because of reduced profit for growers, Basey explained. "The big problem is economics," Basey said. "It is not worth spraying." She added no hay from this year's crop has yet been shipped from the Fairfield area and market prices are uncertain.

Last year during the drought, hay prices jumped to $55 to $60 per ton. By the end of 1977, prices had fallen to approximately $40 per ton. The high quality Camas Prairie hay usually sells to dairies, according to Basey, and brings a premium price. "It won't wipe us out," Basey said about the caterpillar infestation. "But most fields in the area have been affected in some way."

Lazy afternoon

Sagebrush Days festivities begins with dance Friday

BUIH — Five days of festivities, making up the 1978 Sagebrush Days, begin in Buhl Friday featuring entertainment ranging from dinner theater to a greased pig contest.

Sponsored by the Buhl Jaycees, the five-day program is designed to provide a full range of entertainment for Magic Valley residents of all ages.

Dave Anderson, Jaycee committee member, said the first event will be the youth dance Friday at 9 p.m. in Jaycee Hall. Music will be furnished by The Jets, a local rock and roll group.

On Saturday a pancake breakfast, also in Jaycee hall, will be served from 7 to 10 a.m. followed by downtown activities at 2 p.m. The beard growing contest will be judged at that time and the most colorful beard, the longest, and best-looking chin whiskers will win prizes. There is also an award for the grower who tried the hardest.

Any male resident without a beard will have to face up to his lack of support of Sagebrush days Monday when the Jaycee jail sets up headquarters on Main Street and "arrests" are made by Jaycees. The Jaycees will be making a little money with the event as those arrested will have to "post bond" to regain their freedom. Anderson said the non-bearded residents might keep in mind the sponsoring organization has a $1,200 bill for rewiring of Jaycee Hall.

Saturday evening the Woody Allen play, "Don't Drink the Water" will be offered in a special dinner theater program in Jaycee hall.

Sunday's program will include the Prescott rides and carnival at city park. The carnival will remain in the park through Tuesday.

At 2 p.m. Sunday childrens games will be held in the park, including the greased pig chase and a fish crab. There will also be an adult horseshoe tournament Sunday in the park and Sunday evening the first game of the American Legion baseball tournament will be held between Pocatello and Twin Falls. The first game will be at 5 p.m. and a second at 8 p.m. featuring Buhl and Valley.

Monday, which is not a holiday for most

Buhl residents, will feature sidewalk sales in the downtown area and the Jaycee jail.

At 5 p.m. a consolation game in the Legion baseball tournament will be held, followed by the championship game at 8 p.m.

Also at 8 p.m. the opening performance of the Sagebrush Days rodeo will be held at the rodeo grounds. From 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. the Sagebrush Days dance will be held in Jaycee hall with music by the Waldon brothers.

July 4 will open with a giant Sagebrush days parade at 10:30 a.m. through the downtown area. The procession begins at the northwest corner of town and proceeds down the full length of Broadway, onto Fair Avenue for one block, then to Sprague and Robinson to the rodeo grounds for disbarring.

A free barbecue will be served in city park at 1 p.m. followed by a country music concert and at 8 p.m. the final rodeo show. Fireworks will be displayed from Farris Field at about 10 p.m. or as soon as it is dark.

Utah bankers meet

Garn criticizes bill action

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Monday his colleagues on the Senate Banking Committee are "wearing blinders" and cannot see that the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill will fuel inflation.

In remarks prepared for delivery to a convention of the Utah Bankers Association, Garn criticized recent congressional action on the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, aid to New York City and a truth-in-lending law.

The Utah Republican said the banking committee, of which he is a member, is

"resisting attempts to amend the Humphrey-Hawkins bill to include national inflation goals."

"It's ridiculous for the committee to consider lofty, unemployment goals while virtually ignoring the nation's number one economic problem, inflation," Garn declared.

"If unemployment is reduced, but inflation is still at the double-digit level, no one will benefit."

"It appears that the committee members are wearing blinders and can't see the real problems of this country."

Garn also said the committee recently approved $1.5 billion in long-term loan guarantees for New York City, "making the city a virtual ward of the federal government for the foreseeable future."

The senator said New York's problems stemmed from its own "fiscal irresponsibility and excesses." He said a better solution than federal would be for the city to tighten its belt and seek assistance from the state and local institutions.

Burley subdivision plat approved

BURLEY — Two subdivision plats for family dwellings south of Burley were approved by the Cassia County Commissioners Monday morning.

The commissioners approved a plat for Sandy Glen Estates, a mile south of Burley, for developer Gary Turner. Since it is in the Burley Impact Area, the plat had received prior approval of the Burley City Council before the commissioners gave the go-ahead.

Also approved was a plat for Cedar Hills development, 1 1/2 miles southeast of Burley. Sy Trout is the developer.

The Cassia officials also agreed to install a six-strand barbed wire fence around Jackson Cemetery in northeastern Cassia County. The fence will cost about $500, Cassia County Clerk Frank Kearns estimated.

Action was postponed on accepting bids to repave a 16.3 mile stretch of county road from Corner's Corner to Alma because Prosecutor Al Barrus was out of town. Barrus is to recommend whether to accept one of three bids opened June 12. The low bidder wasn't known at the time bids were opened because none of the bids had been totaled.

Water resources pamphlet available

BOISE — Findings of new and old water resource investigations in Idaho, done by the U.S. Geological Survey and the Idaho Department of Water Resources are now available in pamphlet form from the U.S.G.S. office in Boise.

According to a Department of Interior press release, the folder also sports a map of Idaho showing where the more than 200 surface-water and ground-water sites are that were used to compile streamflow and water-quality information.

In addition, a detailed aerial investigation of the 1976 Teton Dam flood is included.

The pamphlet also locates present USGS water research projects being conducted and gives data on subjects ranging from mean annual precipitation to principal aquifers and flood-prone areas in Idaho.

Listing more than 180 water-resources reports and maps, the pamphlet, "Water Resources Investigations in Idaho, 1977," can be ordered free by writing to: E. F. Hubbard Jr., District Chief, Water Resources Division, U.S. Geological Survey, 550 West Fort Street, Boise, Idaho 83724.

Savings certificate response favorable

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Public response to a newly authorized six-month savings certificate has been substantial, said Chairman Robert H. McKinney of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

On May 11, the bank board authorized associations to issue this new money market certificate, as well as a new 8 percent, eight-year instrument. McKinney said the new money instruments provide saving and loans with additional flexibility in competing for savings so as to increase the supply of funds available for housing during periods of rising market interest rates.

Initial industry and public response to the new six-month certificate was measured by a special bank board survey of the experience of approximately 250 large associations holding about two-fifths of the savings held by all savings and loan associations and including the 20 largest associations in each of the 12 Federal Home Loan Bank Districts.

"The associations surveyed issued slightly more than $1 billion of money market certificates during the first week of June," said McKinney.

These findings, Chairman McKinney said, indicate many associations have been quick to take advantage of the new competitive tool and the new money market certificate has helped them to obtain or retain funds that would have otherwise been invested in other ways.

The substantial response to the new savings instrument in the form of both new money and transfers from existing accounts also shows substantial consumer acceptance of a new, and somewhat more complex, savings instrument.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

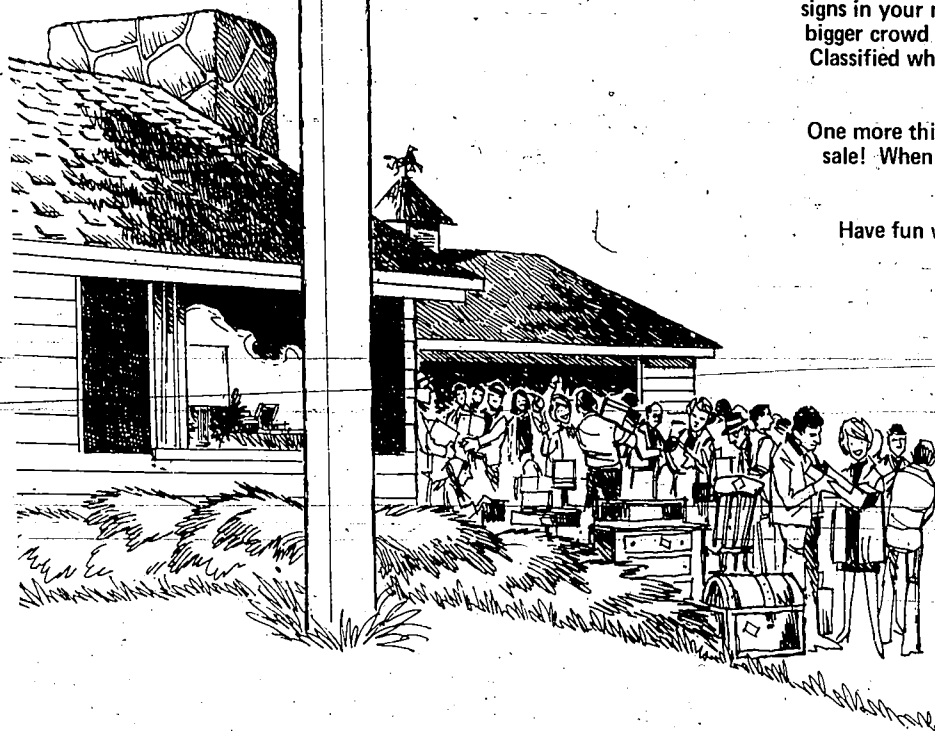

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Grandma minds Cayuse store, post office

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI National Reporter

CAYUSE, Ore. (UPI) — The boy of the Walla-Walla tribe scrambled on hands and knees up the rocky and dusty north bank of the Umatilla River and hid in the shade of the locust trees where Grandma keeps store.

Grandma saw him coming and glanced at the toilet walled she had laid on the adding machine of the Post Office counter.

The boy opened the screen door and then the wooden door Grandma kept shut to trap any coolness in the shop-house without air conditioning.

"Grandma," said the boy.

The U.S. Post Office in Washington, in its computer records, lists Mrs. Lucille Ruark as postmistress of Cayuse, keeper of the last post office on the Umatilla-Walla Walla-Cayuse Indian Reservation. But, on the reservation she is Grandma.

She is 64. Her hair has been white since she was 16. She has a younger face. Her husband ran off five years ago. She is in debt. She suffered a heart attack two years ago and diabetes put her in the hospital twice last year.

Her semi-Siamese cat Poopsie put two paws on the boy's chest. Her black poodle Char wiggled a tall stump.

"It's here, where you lost it," Grandma said. She handed the wallet to the boy.

The boy gripped his wallet with both hands. The cat pawing had knocked off the boy's shoulders some of the locust blossom white petals that dusted him under the trees.

"Down, Poopsie, or I'll get the flyswatter," Grandma said. The cat ignored her.

An Indian woman in black dress and eyeglasses standing by the letter boxes, spoke to the boy. "What are you going to say?"

He raised his eyes from the wallet toward the white woman behind the counter.

"Thanks, Grandma," he said.

Grandma nodded.

"Just do go losing your wallet again," she said. "There's little enough we have around here."

Outside the gas pump's empty hose hole filled up with locust petals. The oil company cut off the Cayuse pump in the first shortage of the 1973 gasoline panic. "When they finally did have gas, I didn't have any money to buy it. Don't buy nothing on credit. I buy what I have money for," Grandma said.

The shelves behind the counter displayed a dozen photographs of Grandma's granddaughter. For shoppers there was less on the shelves — two cans of hominy, two cans of beef, a jar of relish, two cans of sweet corn, five cans of potatoes, nine packs of cigarettes, two bottles of ink, five bars of soap, 10 packages of cookies, three boxes of crackers, a bottle of baby shampoo.

"There's some 200 people in Cayuse but they do most of their shopping in Pendleton, 13 miles west, she said. "Can't blame them—I can't compete with the prices and I can't give credit."

Pendleton and Milton-Freewater to the north now mother light and dark green fields to the horizon, proclaiming the area the Pea Capital of the World. Once it was blonder. Memories of Indian-white war are fading. "Maybe Sweet Annie was the last," Grandma said. "She was a grand Indian lady and she was 117 and dying over in the hospital and she wouldn't take food from the nurses, so I went to the hospital every night and fed her and her mind went young."

"She thought the white riders were coming again. Sweet old Annie, she suddenly would lean toward me and say, 'Let's go, let's get the blankets and go hide. They're coming. They're coming.' She thought the massacre was on again."

Now there is peace in the pea capital. The only evident dark sign is sprayed in white paint in adolescent style on a traffic bridge on the 10-mile road from Pendleton. "SEX," it says.

This is proud pioneer country and the most elegant dining in Pendleton sell garb for ranchers and farmers to dress as cowboys. It is prosperous but not fancy — an outskirts house has a lawn on the dry soil and white-painted auto tires jammed in the ground and lining the driveway.

The Oregon Trail passed by, as highway 20. The tourists here of today, the Merimacko-style hills and the Umatilla River are cut by the Union Pacific tracks and the railroad is as close to Grandma's as the river.

"My second husband was getting out of the Navy, down in Alameda, Calif., and the lady who had the post office and store here wanted to retire. We thought it was a pretty good thing; but it didn't work out," Grandma said.

Two men came through the door. They each bought a soft drink and could they telephone a bank in Pendleton? Grandma pointed toward the door to the room with the Cayuse telephone.

One of the men went to phone. The other chugged his drink and said what a nice post office this is. Grandma laughed. She talked of a former postmaster who, when a customer came for a postcard, would shout out the message on the card before handing it over. "And he always held up the magazines until he had read them."

On these warm times, used to have Fourth of July celebrations by the Indians. No more. Young ones all gone to the city.

"Used to have a school here. They took it away. It's downhill when they take away a school."

The men left. The Indian woman and the boy went out into the 85-degree heat. Two waist-high dogs galloped up from the river bed. They bumped the screen door and barked. The cat fled under the old rocking chair Grandma keeps covered with an old bed cover.

"Poopsie can't go out. Dogs would kill him," she said.

She talked of her Indian neighbor-friend, Chief Burke who still dances in his 80's. Of the young buck who to show off, rode the Shetland pony of Grandma's daughter and got bucked off.

She frowned.

"Too much sadness, though. Beanie Hines was killed in the Navy and his half-brother Lyman was killed in a car crash. Just last Monday little Terry Saunders, a 10-year-old Indian, was playing on the tracks and the Amtrak couldn't stop in time and she was killed and then Saturday her cousin, only 18, he was killed up on the road when his pickup hit something."

Cycle gang tattoo aids in capture

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) — The way-tough Jacqueline Dancy apparently tried to play cut-and-mouse with police, it was good for her that she was a topless dancer.

If she were a bottomless dancer, the chase would have ended sooner.

One of the things that finally led to her capture was the insignia of a motorcycle gang tattooed on her buttocks.

Mrs. Dancy, 21, was charged Monday with fatally shooting and strangling her husband, Edward, in Longwood, Fla., in December. Her alleged boyfriend, Charles Hackett, also is charged in the killing.

She was arrested Thursday at the Sahara Night Club in Biloxi, Miss., where she worked as a topless dancer and reportedly told police, "I know you all were looking for me."

Seminole County State Attorney Douglas Chesire said the "bubbly, street-wise" suspect traveled up and down the East Coast eluding authorities. "I think she enjoyed the chase," he said.

Puerto Ricans faced with asbestos hazard

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of low income families in Puerto Rico face cancer risks from asbestos dust in their homes and the danger may also exist in third World countries, it was reported Tuesday at a conference on environmental hazards.

The houses, built for sale at a low price, are made of asbestos concrete and other materials containing asbestos — now known to cause cancer in susceptible persons 20 years after exposure.

Dr. Jorge Chiriboga, Puerto Rico's assistant secretary for health, described the problem at a New York Academy of Science conference dealing with the asbestos dilemma and other hazards.

He said officials seeking ways to solve the problem were studying sealants that might be brushed on the structure.

Chiriboga said there was fear persons who remodel or use power saws on any part of the house would fill it with asbestos dust.

The particles can't be seen and are buoyant enough to float in still air. They are inhaled and swallowed. In schools in Puerto Rico, as in those across America, asbestos problems have been located and control measures taken.

"The children in schools were protected first," Chiriboga said.

This was done by painting the asbestos parts, he explained. Asbestos was used in construction of schools from the 1940s to 1970 across America and its removal has been accomplished in only relatively few schools.

Asbestos concrete used in the houses in Puerto Rico and being used in emerging countries in Africa, is cheaper to make and transport, Dr. Robert Sawyer, professor of preventive and occupational medicine at Yale University Medical School, said at a workshop.

"If motorists will practice safe driving, especially during this Fourth of July weekend, many lives can be saved," Tofany said.

Mysterious magic draws crowds to Reo dance hall

LONGVIEW, Texas (UPI) — Carl Johnson speaks Texan accents. Ask him what makes his Reo Palm Isle dance hall a redneck institution and he's apt to reply simply: "Atmosphere."

By day, the 90-by-200-foot structure looks like an unusually plain skating rink, but at night it's an East Texas island of country and western pleasure — warm, dark, smoky, boozy and loud. Peace-keeping is required.

"We have rules. We don't tolerate any foolishness of any kind," Johnson said. "They can't stay if they're not nice. We put 'em out. Now, once in a while we break a glass or two, but we never fall to get 'em out the door and into jail."

In truth, the retired banker from Mount Pleasant, Texas — who bought the Reo in 1971, "has a hobby" — isn't sure exactly what pulls 4,000 men and women a week from the surrounding woods to the Reo.

"There's something about this club that everybody likes, or anyway the majority," Johnson said. "I don't know what it is. I don't know what makes atmosphere."

Shella Watts, 25, who drove 35 miles from Henderson, emphasized security.

"A woman can come here alone and she knows she's protected," she said as Chris Sanford, 28, massaged her hand. "When she walks out that door, they're watching to make sure she gets to her car."

The entertainment and recreation also helps lure patrons. "You feel free to dance," said Dorothy Hargis, a lower-middle-age lady with husband, Charles.

"I like the band and I like Kenneth Schane, the singer," said Allie Palmer, 65ish-but admitting only "I'm not a teenager."

The Reo has a mysterious magic and Johnson is wary of any change that might divert traffic.

That's why he has refused to change old tablecloths and rundown electric machines. ("That's atmosphere.") But he agreed to renovate restrooms and adopted a county-wide extension of club hours from midnight to 2 a.m.

Johnson claims a wide audience — "We have them 18 to 80" — and a national reputation — "There's nobody that even amounted to anything in the business that hasn't played here."

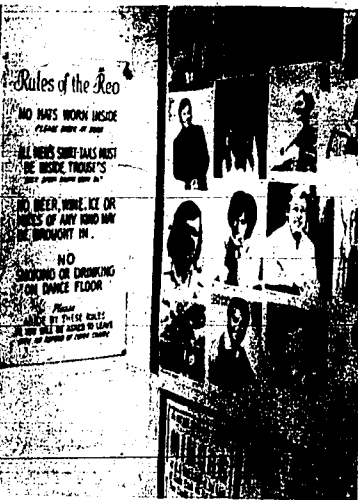

oldest and most successful club.

Since it started as a palm-tree-ringed, open-air dance hall in 1936, the Reo has been through changes of ownership, name (the owner merged the Palm Isle with a Kilgore club called the Reo) and reputation.

Notorious locally was "pressure-cooker day" — the Wednesday matinee. Johnson claims there no longer is a "pressure cooker," but Wednesday still a big day.

The story was that adventurous housewives would put supper in a pressure-cooker and sneak over to the Reo to let off steam before husbands returned from work. There'd be traveling salesmen, stray farmers, juking, living — and worse.

"It kind of got a bad name," Johnson admitted. "Everybody kind of looks down on it locally. It's kind of hard to draw local people. They kind of felt everybody here was on the make. We're changing that."

WHAT MAKES THE REO PALM ISLE DANCE HALL A REDNECK INSTITUTION? ... owner Carl Johnson, Longview, Texas, calls it simply "atmosphere" UPI

NHL finally admits to talking merger

DETROIT (UPI) — National Hockey League President John Ziegler finally admitted Tuesday night his league is conducting talks with the rival World Hockey Association...

But, Ziegler said, "no agreements had been reached" and talks were to resume after both sides conducted a form of shuttle diplomacy between differing meeting rooms.

The four WHA teams applying — Edmonton, Winnipeg, Quebec and New England — are believed to have obtained a league waiver to seek admission to the NHL.

"We have to have an agreement by 4 p.m.," Ziegler said, "because of certain obligations by some of the teams."

"We are trying to define some common ground to see if any exists," he said. "We are working to see whether or not the NHL should expand."

Ziegler would not comment on whether the four WHA teams were to be admitted en masse as one new division or spread through the existing NHL divisions.

"We're going to meet through the night and into Wednesday," he said. "As you can guess there are a myriad of considerations that have to be dealt with."

"We've reached no agreements. We are discussing to see if possibly that there can be something mutually agreeable."

"We're working on expansion, other than that — such as what number of teams are involved — I can't say. It's in the exploratory stage," Ziegler said.

Continuing probe causes Idaho cage coach to resign

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — University of Idaho basketball coach Jim Jarvis resigned his post Tuesday in the midst of new investigations into alleged recruiting violations.

In announcing Jarvis' resignation, UI Athletic Director Bill Belknap said a brief investigation conducted by the school indicated additional recruiting irregularities prior to the 1976-77 season.

The university's basketball program was placed on one-year probation earlier this year by the NCAA as a result of more recent recruiting violations.

At the time, the NCAA said Jarvis and an assistant "provided or witnessed provision of cash, transportation, entertainment and inducements to prospective recruits and allowed certain prospective athletes to practice with the varsity team."

Belknap did not elaborate on alleged recruiting violations uncovered since then by the university's own investigation.

"In view of the continued NCAA investigation, I feel it is time for me to resign as basketball coach at Idaho," Jarvis said.

"The program contains a super team and a fine, young group of men and I wish them the greatest success. I have business opportunities I will now pursue."

Jarvis had been the Vandals' head coach since the spring of 1974. Prior to that, he was head coach at Spokane Falls Community College.

Belknap said the search for new coach would begin immediately. He said the university hoped to have a new coach by Sept. 1.

"I like Jim Jarvis and wish him only the best," Belknap said, after announcing the resignation and the school's investigation.

"I recognize the difficulty of coaching another season with an investigation hanging over his head and I understand why Jim is choosing to resign."

One spot in PGA tournament spotlights Magic Bowl for weekend of qualifying

TWIN FALLS — Bowlers from throughout the Pacific Northwest and Intermountain Area will converge on Miller's Magic Bowl this weekend for a chance to earn a spot in the Professional Bowler's Salt Lake City stop.

Magic Bowl earned the coveted spot in PBA tourney by helping to send more entries to the program than any other bowling house in the Pacific Northwest or Intermountain West.

"We worked hard at it and I think it was 22 bowlers from Magic Bowl that entered in the program. That was the most. Even from houses that have 40 and 50 lanes," Mrs. Paul Miller said in announcing the special playoff.

Actually, the special bowl off is a real bargain for the one person who would like to test his skills against the play-for-pay guys.

The other way is to try to crack the starting lineup the hard way. This includes qualifying day, then a "rabbit round" in which top qualifiers are eliminated down to the number of spots available in the official tournament that weekend. This would cost a total of $300.

"The only problem is that we just got word this morning (Tuesday) that we had won the one spot and that we had to hold a special rollout for it by this weekend. Toidi Linn thanks a lot for the preparation time and I've been on the telephone ever since," Mrs. Miller said.

The Magic Bowl playoff will be restricted to 70 players. They will roll eight lines each in squads competing at 4 and 8 p.m. Saturday. On Sunday, the top 14 qualifiers from Saturday will square-off in head-to-head competition with the 14th game being a position round. The survivor gets the Salt Lake City assignment.

News of the Magic Bowl's spot has travelled widely and quickly. For instance, by 6 p.m. Tuesday five men from Medford, Ore., had entered and five from Butte said they'd be there.

Mrs. Miller had entries from Moscow, five from Salt Lake City, some of Pocastello and Boise and "individuals from the various smaller houses. But we'll take 70. I don't know if we can fill that many but that is what Paul has decided he'll try for it," she said.

Kleinkopf named new track coach for Golden Eagles

TWIN FALLS — Kari Kleinkopf, who was instrumental in making Jerome one of the state's A-2 track powers, became College of Southern Idaho's track coach Tuesday.

Kleinkopf, who left coaching to enter into a more administrative position with University of Idaho extension service at Aberdeen a year ago, will replace Jim Blaisdell as the new CSI track mentor.

"They (CSI) definitely want to have a more Idaho-oriented track program and that's the way I feel it should go," Kleinkopf said after accepting the position Tuesday.

Kleinkopf said the challenge of the program will be to maintain the acceleration that Coach Blaisdell had started and turn attention to women's track.

"We're definitely going to go into women's track beginning this year. I don't feel we have the resources and the manpower to get into it in a big way but we will be starting a women's program and hopefully in a couple-three years we will be competitive in that area," he said.

The new coach said he was especially pleased to be returning to the Magic Valley area where all his roots are. "I feel there will be a definite advantage to our program with the close cooperation we will be receiving from Jerry Kleinkopf (the new coach's cousin Twin Falls high school track coach). We will be sharing the same facilities for practice and I'm sure that we will be able to complement each other very well," Kleinkopf said.

"Although I've been out of coaching for the past several months I feel certain that I can get back into things quickly. Coach Blaisdell has super organization and he's left him a file system that is as complete as any I've ever seen. He's also maintained good contact with a number of good track prospects and it will be up to me to see if we can carry these through."

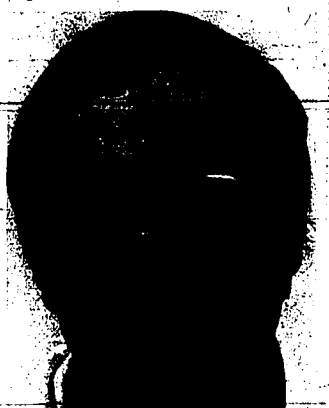

"He showed me a remarkable file of letters from Kenya, Uganda and everywhere in the world. But I feel CSI — that if the program is going to have a solid base that we have to get good track people from Idaho. People who are used to running in the wind and weather that we have around here."

At Jerome Kleinkopf saw his charges win three of six state championships and finish third in the other three A-2 competitions. As a high schooler he competed in football, basketball and track at Murtaugh high school; then transferred to Twin Falls where he lettered in football and track. He accepted a scholarship from University of Idaho upon graduation but later transferred to University of Hawaii for his final two years of eligibility.

"Coach Blaisdell has a good line on several distance runners who I feel could make us a strong cross country team this fall," he continued. "I am committed to my job in Aberdeen until Aug. 1 but until that time I'll be spending a lot of time on the phone keeping contact with all the people that will be important to our program. For those reasons I don't feel that we will be able to field a strong women's cross country team this year but in another year we'll be working hard to bring that portion of the program into a balance with the rest of the athletics at CSI."

Kleinkopf added "In the past several months we have been more into administration and all of a sudden we're back into education and coaching. It is a real challenge but we're really looking forward to it."

Old college try

HUSTLING rightfielder Lee Lacy of the Dodgers both are out as they arrive at the same time. The ball went out of the park for a homer while Lacy headed for a headache.

Ashe, McEnroe understand Wimbledon frustrations

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Veteran Arthur Ashe and young John McEnroe know the exhilaration of advancing to the later rounds of Wimbledon, the world's premier tennis event. Now they also know the pain of losing in the opening round.

Ashe, who had never lost before the third round in 10 previous Wimbledon, and McEnroe, the teen-ager who as an amateur qualifier last year reached the semifinals, were ousted Tuesday in their first matches.

"It's a pretty big blow," said Ashe, the ex-Wimbledon champion who was seeded 15th. "You key your whole year around this tournament. There's nothing I can do about it now but come back and play next year."

McEnroe, seeded 11th, said, "You try to expect more from yourself and it's hard sometimes. It's hard playing a first-round match and then the guy plays good out of nowhere. No one expects you to have trouble. You hope to get through a couple of rounds without too much trouble."

McEnroe had too much trouble with Eric van Dillen, who ironically had to qualify this year. Van Dillen won 7-5, 1-6, 8-9, 6-4, 6-3.

Steve Docherty edged Ashe in a five-hour match, 8-9, 8-6, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, by breaking Ashe's serve in the 11th game of the final set.

"I did everything I could to win and it didn't work," Ashe said of the crucial game. "I got three first services in and he hit three good returns."

Chris Evert, the top women's seed and a two-time Wimbledon champion, had a first-round bye, and was to meet Sweden's Helena Andlauer in a second-round match Wednesday.

In another second-round action on center court, second-seeded Jimmy Connors took on Australia's Kim Warwick and Tracy Au tin, seeded ninth, played Betsy Nagelsen.

Two-time defending champion and top-seeded Bjorn Borg met Australia's Peter McNamara on an outside court and No. 4 seed Guillermo Vilas took on Britain's John Flavel.

Tuesday's action at the All England Club, bringing the two-day total to 63,538.

The departure of McEnroe and Ashe meant three American seeds have fallen in the first two days. Dick Stockton, the 10th seed, was an opening-round casualty Monday.

Tri city women golf champions crowned

TWIN FALLS — Team captain Mary Obenchain and mates Jean Hamblin and Vera Amende walked off with top honors in the tri-city women's golf tournament at Canyon Springs golf course Tuesday afternoon.

The winning trio posted a five-under par 67. Second place went to Verma Menapace, Vera White and Mae Feldman at 68 while Shirley Straighton Julie Blainford and Fran Threlkeld were only a shade behind at 68.2. Rosemary McRoberts, Flora Kirkman and Paul Doshier placed fourth at 70.2.

The tournament combined women from Blue Lakes, Twin Falls municipal and Canyon Springs women's golf associations.

Bulls signs LaRue

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls Tuesday announced the signing of center LaRue Martin, formerly of Loyola University and the Portland Trail Blazers, as a free agent.

Martin, 28, played four years with Portland and in his last season averaged seven points and five rebounds a game. He did not play last season.

Doctored courses hinder

Once upon a time, back in the days before Procter & Palmer and Ronee Arledge took over golf, they played the U.S. open on the same course as the members played. Bobby Jones always won. If he didn't, Gene Sarazen did.

It was hardly ever won by anyone named Andy. Oh, occasionally it was won by dark so maybe nobody could win it. They did everything but put the pins in quicksand. The USGA's Sandy Tatum said this was "not to embarrass the greatest players in the game but to identify them."

In the past few years, the USGA has identified the following as the finest players in the game — Tony Jacklin, Orville Moody, Hale Irwin, Lou Graham, Hubert Green, Jerry Pate and Andy North. Most of them didn't make the cut in the next year's open.

In the past few years, four guys were winning their first pro tournament when they won the open. One was also winning his last. This year a guy was winning his second.

Now, I yield to no man in my love of double bogeys. When a guy whistles a flier through the green and under a rock or behind a tree, he's playing my song. Sixty-fives drive me up a wall. I'm a big fan of 79's.

But the game of golf is becoming as chaotic as a dock fight. It's anarchy. The way things are going the only recognizable name in the game will be Nancy Lopez. She's bringing form and stability — and prosperity — to the women's game while the men are coming up with a different winner every week. And every year. It's not a contest, it's a crap shoot.

What's wrong with taking a course like Riviera or Oakmont or Inverness or Baltusrol — some course that has stood the test of time and has a 73.5 or 74 rating already and letting 150 guys on it playing summer rules? You're going to get a champion. What does Winged Foot need with 200 more acres of alfalfa for a rough? Think the 18th at Riviera needs another tree? Miller shot a 63 at Oakmont. But he shot a 76 there the day before.

I'm not saying slow the greens and widen the fairways. But why does Pebble Beach need narrow fairways? Only 10 guys broke 200 there in 1977. An open is getting like a card game in the dark. We get a mystery guest as winner every year. And the panel wouldn't have to be blindfolded. They wouldn't recognize him anyway. Having to go at Cherry Hills with three iron's like having to go at a tank with a peashooter. This kind of game handicuffs the fine players.

I am not suggesting they play the open on some rubber-mat munny course in San Antonio. But when they pick a good course, let it fight its own battle. Don't mine it.

JIM MURRAY

Someone like Tony Manero or Sam Parks but this was so unusual it was sensational news. Page one stuff. Winners were always guys winning their 20th or 30th tournaments, not their first or second.

Timé moved on and Hogan won the opens. Sam Snead was second, blowing to an eight on the 18th hole or misting 15-inch putts. Nonplace in there, the USGA began to silt up nights figuring ways to play the open in the

Coaches feel condition of team their secret

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two of college football's most prominent spokesmen Bear Bryant of Alabama and Bob Devaney of Nebraska agreed Tuesday that coaches should not attempt to deceive the public, but said they saw nothing wrong in concealing pregame information about their teams.

"Don't publicize things (like injuries to key players) that aren't asked about," Devaney told some 300 college sports information directors at their annual workshop. "But when such things are found out, don't lie about them."

Bryant said that prior to a game, "I don't want anyone (on his staff) talking about any of our people except me."

Bryant, who has won more football games than any other active college coach, and Devaney, who retired from coaching to devote full time to the job of athletic director, both said they could recall no incidents when they felt unfavorable pregame publicity cost them a victory.

"I don't think there has been a time that a player has said something that cost us a football game but there have been times when I used something someone else said in an effort to psych up our players," said Devaney.

"I think maybe I've said things that hurt us more than what players said," said

Bryant. "I ask our players not to talk against other players, especially their teammates."

Bryant and Devaney were members of a panel discussing ways to cope with unfavorable publicity.

"Be cool and evaluate the situation before you open your mouth," Devaney told the sports information directors. "Don't run your mouth before your brain is in gear."

Bryant agreed. "First found out the real facts," said the Alabama coach-athletic director. "Then decide what you can do that won't hurt the team — the team comes first — then try to help the people involved. I talk it over with my staff and we decide what we would like to keep out of the newspapers."

"I may not answer questions, but I'm not going to lie to anybody."

Devaney said schools should not attempt to cover up situations which involve disciplinary action because "the press is going to dig in."

Bryant said he is opposed to answering questions about conversations he has with members of his staff or with his players.

"That's private," he said. "But, I don't object to people interviewing my staff and our players after a game. We used to keep the dressing room closed off awhile to allow for a cooling off period but we don't do that much anymore."

Devaney said he never felt that any of the writers covering Nebraska were trying to cause trouble "although occasionally a writer will ask a kid a question he shouldn't have asked."

LaSorda says L.A. will win pennant

ATLANTA (UPI) — Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda, calling himself the "second greatest optimist in history," said Tuesday he is convinced his Dodgers are the best in the National League and will win the pennant for the second straight year.

Lasorda, whose team dropped the opener of a four-game series with Atlanta 5-2 Monday night, told a news conference his team suffered early in the season when they lost two starters (outfielder Rick Monday and second baseman Davey Lopes) to injuries.

"It's tough to lose two starters at the same time," he said. "You lose 25 percent of the team. But we are thankful that the Giants and Reds were also losing and we're still within striking distance with a lot of games left."

The Dodgers currently are in third place in the National League West, six games in back of division leading San Francisco and three and a half behind Cincinnati.

"I'm the second greatest optimist in history," Lasorda joked. "Custer was the first, but when I used to put on my uniform as a player, I always believed my team would win and now as a coach I feel the same way."

Brown feels Denver received needed 'leadership' in Scott

DENVER (UPI) — Denver coach Larry Brown, looking for his first championship in the National Basketball Association, said Tuesday the Nuggets obtained a "needed leader" when they acquired veteran guard Charlie Scott.

"I'm not looking for a security situation," he said. "The Celtics fired Heinsohn in January after five years and blamed it on his failure to get the 'hard-bred' players to adjust to the old style College game. Injuries, contract squabbles and other problems made the club ineffective and precipitated Heinsohn's ouster. He had 18 months left on his $100,000 a year contract.

"There is no problem between Philadelphia and ourselves," Scott said. "But the Philadelphia club — a death knell to the deal — just as easy as anything being done by the clubs." Both McGinnis and Jones have no-trade clauses in their contracts which give them veto powers over any trade.

Scott came to Denver in a trade that sent veteran forward Darnell Hillman and the rights to the Nuggets' first-round draft pick, Mike Evans, to the Kings for guard Ron Boone and the Kings' second-round draft choice in 1979. Denver then sent Boone and the second-round pick, plus the Nuggets' second-round selection for 1979, to the Lakers for Scott.

"This will mark the fifth team that Scott has played for in the NBA," said Scheer, who previously played for the Virginia Squires in the old American Basketball Association, and the Phoenix Suns, the Boston Celtics and the Lakers in the NBA, has averaged 23.8 points and five assists per game.

"You only have to look at his statistics to see what he's accomplished," said Scheer. "We're beginning to put the pieces together."

Brown, who admitted trying to get Scott several times in the past two years, said he had been "looking forward to this opportunity for a long time." He first coached Scott when he was a freshman at the University of North Carolina. Scott dismissed reports he had been a trouble-maker in the NBA.

"Where it (that report) came from, I can't tell you," he said. "I guess I've always been controversial because I'm a very emotional basketball player, and I let my emotions show."

"If you get a bad rap, you really can't get rid of it, I never knew where it started."

Scott said he had been looking forward for a long time to playing with Brown, but something always seemed to happen to block trades that would send him to join his former college coach.

"It's like when you're a little kid, you want something so bad and you feel it's never going to arrive," he said.

OSLO (UPI) — Henry Rono of Kenya clocked 7:31.2 Tuesday to break the world 3,000 meters record and set his fourth world distance mark in two months.

Rono, a student at Washington State University, shaved three seconds off the previous record of 7:35.2, set Aug. 3, 1974, by Britain's Brendan Foster at an international track and field meet. The 3,000 meters race rarely raced and was included on the program to give Rono an attempt at the record.

Rono holds the world records in the 3,000 meters steeplechase, the 5,000 meters and the 10,000 meters.

Portland's 100 percent capacity, and set a season attendance record of 435,057.

The size of the arena was a problem when the team first came to Milwaukee and in 1970 talk began to expand the arena or move the team to a larger facility that would have to be built. The talk is being revived.

Chairman Arnold K. Mason of MECCA, the city-owned conglomerate composed of the arena, auditorium and convention center, said MECCA plans to expand seating capacity for the Bucks and other events.

Fitzgerald added profiting the Bucks with a larger playing facility is something the city has to handle.

Rono continues record breaking

OSLO (UPI) — Henry Rono of Kenya clocked 7:31.2 Tuesday to break the world 3,000 meters record and set his fourth world distance mark in two months.

Rono, a student at Washington State University, shaved three seconds off the previous record of 7:35.2, set Aug. 3, 1974, by Britain's Brendan Foster at an international track and field meet. The 3,000 meters race rarely raced and was included on the program to give Rono an attempt at the record.

Rono holds the world records in the 3,000 meters steeplechase, the 5,000 meters and the 10,000 meters.

Heinsohn doesn't miss bench

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Boston Celtics coach Tommy Heinsohn said Tuesday he has no interest in coaching at the present time and doubts the team gained enough in the draft to rebound from their worst season ever.

"I'm not really super-inclined to get back into coaching," he said in an interview. "I took the Celtics job for fun. I have no need to do it for fun again. I've experienced everything I possibly could have as coach."

Heinsohn said only the Buffalo Braves have made any serious overtures to him. But he said he had not heard from Braves owner John Brown, who wants to move the franchise, since the league meetings three weeks ago.

Heinsohn, 43, said he turned down seven college offers because he did not want to coach at that level. He said he also was looking to coach a basketball franchise in the south and serving as general manager or possibly coach.

"I'm looking for a security situation," he said. "The Celtics fired Heinsohn in January after five years and blamed it on his failure to get the 'hard-bred' players to adjust to the old style College game. Injuries, contract squabbles and other problems made the club ineffective and precipitated Heinsohn's ouster. He had 18 months left on his $100,000 a year contract.

Bucks to remain in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Although the Milwaukee Bucks feel cramped by the small capacity of the Milwaukee Arena, the club said Tuesday it has agreed to play in the arena through the 1982-83 season.

"The Bucks were born in Milwaukee, they were raised in Milwaukee and they will be in Milwaukee as long as the city wants us and the fans want us," said Jim Fitzgerald, Bucks president.

Fitzgerald said the team exercised an option and renewed its lease for another five years.

The arena seats 10,938 and is one of the smallest in the league. The Bucks' last season played to 97 percent of capacity, second only to

Williams signs for two-year extension

MONTREAL (UPI) — Dick Williams, reported w... ing in the wings until Billy Martin's situation with the New York Yankees was clarified, had his contract extended two years through 1980 Tuesday by the Montreal Expos.

The 49-year old Williams, who guided the Expos to a fifth-place finish in the National League's Eastern Division last season, has finishing a two-year pact with Montreal. The Expos, aware of reports the Yankees might sign Williams if they sacked Martin, made the new agreement because they wanted to be sure Williams would be with the club at least two more years.

Williams, who in 1973 became the first non-Yankee American League manager since Connie Mack to win two consecutive World Series, signed a contract with the Yankees in 1974 but the move was blocked by Oakland clubowner Charles O. Finley.

In addition to the A's, Williams, a former Brooklyn Dodger outfielder, managed the Boston Red Sox and California Angels.

Orioles support Weaver's decision

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore General Manager Hank Peters called the 24-10 loss an "embarrassment" but said he thought Orioles Manager Earl Weaver's decision to use an outfielder and a catcher to pitch was the correct one.

The Toronto Blue Jays shellacked the Orioles 24-10 Monday. In the fifth inning with the score 19-6, Weaver sent outfielder Larry Harlow to the mound and later replaced him with catcher Elrod Hendricks.

Toronto General Manager Peter Bavasi said it was illegal to pitch the two men, who were not listed as pitchers, and protested the game, despite the veto Weaver defended his decision and asked Bavasi for an apology.

"I'm embarrassed by the way the club performed," said Peters. "But I'm not upset because of what Earl did. There's no point wasting your bullpen in a game like that when you've got a doubleheader the next day."

The Orioles and Blue Jays faced off again Wednesday for a doubleheader.

"If you're going to carry a ninth pitcher just to sit around and wait for games like this, then you're going to be paying a guy who's going to pitch 26 innings a year," Peters said. "Would you rather have somebody like that, or a guy who can pinch-run, pinch-hit or play defense?"

When Weaver brought Harlow into the game in the bottom of the ninth the score was 19-6.

"What I did was, I took the guys that throw the best batting practice, the guys I thought would throw strikes, and used them," he said.

Concerning Bavasi's accusation that Weaver had an obligation to Toronto fans to use pitchers off his normal rotation, Weaver said: "I had an obligation to the fans of Toronto to try and get them home."

Weaver said, "They got 19 runs off my pitchers and five off the other guys."

LA Olympic group wants big cushion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A citizens' committee trying to arrange financing for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles without committing the city government to responsibility will require a backup fund of $50 million from whatever network wins the bid to televise the summer games, it was announced Tuesday.

Howard Allen, a committee member, told reporters the $50 million would be "over and above" the $100-$150 million the committee expects to get from the network for TV rights.

Allen said the backup fund might not be needed because of financial assistance from the federal government and private sources but it will be there to "insulate" Los Angeles taxpayers from any liability if the games lose money.

Committee chairman John Argue said the United States Olympic Committee has agreed to accept joint liability for all financial obligations with the citizens committee.

Argue and his colleagues indicated they feel objections of International Olympic Committee to private financing can be overcome.

The IOC has insisted repeatedly that the host city must accept financial responsibility.

IOC director Monique Berlioux said Tuesday her group would not back down.

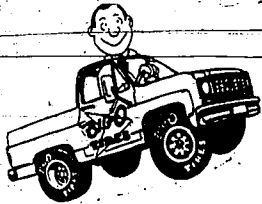

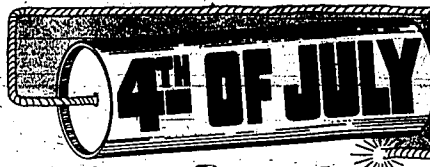

A dispatch from Lausanne, Switzerland, quoted Berlioux as saying negotiations with Los Angeles were deadlocked.

"We are waiting for them to budge a little bit," Berlioux said. "They want the financial responsibility for the games to be taken over by a group of private individuals instead of the city. The IOC Rule 4 says the city must accept the responsibility."

Randolph sidelined

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees Tuesday placed second baseman Willie Randolph on the 21-day disabled list retroactive to June 23 and called up catcher Mike Heath from Walt Haven to fill his spot on the roster.

Randolph, batting .247 in 62 games with the Yankees, suffered a knee injury earlier this month before becoming too hobbled to play. Heath is making his second appearance with the big club this season, and will join the Yankees Friday in Milwaukee.

Halitosis is a problem

DEAR ABBY: How can someone tell a good friend or lover that his breath would knock over a herd of buffalo? I am speaking of my future husband. He sleeps with his mouth open, and in the morning I can't even get near him! I've tried that after we get married I won't be able to give him a good morning kiss without gagging. He is a very sensitive person and I don't want to hurt his feelings. HELP!

CAN'T TELL HIM

DEAR CANT: If you can't tell him, who can? If you won't tell him, who will? TELL HIM! Halitosis is a pothole on the royal road to romance.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK PUTZIER

Miss Rutherford, Putzier say vows

TWIN FALLS — Janice Lynn Rutherford and Frederick H. Putzier were married in a double-ring ceremony June 2 in the Immanuel Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. Bruce Hall, Twin Falls, and the late Damon Rutherford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Putzier, Twin Falls.

Rev. E.J. Bernthal performed the rites before baskets of pink mums accented with burgundy ribbons and candelabras tied with burgundy bows.

The couple lit a unity candle after repeating their vows.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, wore a square necked gown of chiffon over taffeta. The bodice, cuffs and two insets down the front and hem were covered with lace and enhanced with miniature seed pearls.

She wore a floor-length veil and train trimmed with lace. She carried a hogarth bouquet of pink carnations and red roses on a white Bible.

Fan Grant was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Robyn Kellum, Claudia VanPatten and Peggy Doshier and Pamela Green, sister of the bride.

Candlelighters were Karen Rutherford, sister of the bride, and Matcy Schneider, cousin of the bride.

Noel Briggs was best man and groomsmen and ushers were Bob and John Putzier, brothers of the bridegroom; Kelly Putzier, his cousin, and Kevin Maylor.

Chris Maylor was ringbearer and Kara Kawamoto was flowergirl.

Herb Einspahr was organist and Cliff Hall, stepfather of the bride, sang, accompanied by Dennis McCracken.

Nancy Rutherford, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Gifts were carried by Deon Hall, Teresa Tillon, Tina Putzier and Jeri Bennett. Elaine Putzier, Sharon Hall and LeAnn Pulham were in charge of gifts.

The couple was honored at a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a cloth which featured a gathered chiffon skirt. A fountain of burgundy water was placed under the two tiered cake which featured a miniature starway, bridal party and pink roses.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please say something about people who punish their children and then won't let them cry. I am of the opinion that crying is a normal outlet when a person is angry, hurt or frustrated, and children need to cry to get it out of their systems.

I have a relative who increases the punishment if a child cries. He says it's a sign of weakness, and he doesn't want any weak kids!

I would like your opinion.

TENDERHEARTED AUNT

DEAR AUNT: To punish a child for crying is cruel. Children (and adults, too) need to express their emotions freely without fear of being shamed, ridiculed or punished further.

Please tell your relative that tears are as vital to the emotional growth of a child as laughter, and crying is a normal response—not a sign of weakness. Your relative is guilty of child abuse!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a big, handsome, vigorous-looking man of 29. He's a loving father, but due to a chronic back problem he can't lift anything that weighs more than four or five pounds, much less his 13-month-old son.

While taking a Sunday walk, I was carrying our husky child, when a total stranger asked, "Why isn't that strong young man carrying that baby instead of you?"

I can't tell you how humiliating this was to a man who has already suffered much pain and has had to limit his activities because of his uneven handicap.

Please, please print this so ignorant busybodies (even well-meaning ones) will realize that things are not always as they appear. Believe me, my husband, and many others in his predicament, would like nothing better than to carry the baby, carry out the garbage, carry in the groceries, etc.

HAPPY TO CARRY THE LOAD

DEAR HAPEY: And I'm happy to carry your worthwhile message to my readers.

CONGRATULATIONS TO "CAN'T FORGIVE": He who cannot forgive others destroys the bridge over which he must pass himself; for every man needs to be forgiven.

Full face hassle

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I am 17 years old. Last year I had my nose done. Since then I have gained 20 pounds. It seems mostly on my face. I went back to the doctor to see if this was because of the nose job. He said definitely not. I then went to my regular doctor and had a thyroid and metabolism test done which was normal. I really watch my diet but have not lost any weight. I am 5 feet 4 and weigh 130. If I could only lose the weight off my face it would save many tears.

Dear Reader,
Many of my readers who are somewhat older than you would like to have your problem — getting rid of the fullness in their face. The usual problem a person has with dieting is that the fat leaves the face first causing a wrinkled and shrunken appearance of the face. In these instances it seems like the last area to lose fat is always the waist and hips area.

Lawrence E. Lamb M.D.

There are hereditary or familial characteristics as to which regions of the body accumulate fat. A tendency to have a full face is not necessarily bad and can be a great advantage to you as the years go by. Perhaps you should count your blessings.

There is no such thing as spot reducing and the way to lose the fat-off-your-face is to be relatively thin all over. However, you should not overdo that because that can lead to serious health problems.

I would suggest that you try to limit your sweets, starches and fats in your food and I am sending you the Health Letter number 47, Weight-Losing Diet to give you a basic sensible plan that you can follow. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

The Health Letter I'm sending you also suggests that you exercise and a regular exercise program could help you immeasurably in controlling your weight. You can learn to do a sport well, regardless of how bad you may be to start with. If you could develop an interest in tennis, for example, playing tennis regularly would help you lose a lot of calories — provided you avoided the habit of snacking before, during and after the game.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I am a 44-year-old woman and I have been told that I frown a lot. Now I notice that my eyebrows are drooping. I have been trying to keep my brows up but find that hard to do. Is there an exercise that can help or creams or conditioners?

Dear Reader,
If you'll look at yourself in the mirror you'll notice that the exercise that you do to lift the eyebrows actually wrinkles the forehead, so I don't really think that you're going to get an awful lot of help in raising your eyebrows by exercising them. The same applies to use of creams or conditioners.

If it is true that your eyebrows are drooping, you could have some minor cosmetic surgery. These are called brow lifts. A skilled cosmetic surgeon can easily lift the eyebrows and take out a little excess skin without leaving any significant scar. It is a fairly simple procedure.

For further information I suggest that you contact a plastic surgeon who does cosmetic surgery and get his advice as it applies to your particular condition.

Porcelain brings record price

LONDON (UPI) — A rare piece of Meissen porcelain brought a world record price of $194,250 Tuesday at the Sotheby's auction sale of art treasures collected by late German industrialist Robert von Hirsch. The morning sale brought the total for the von Hirsch auction so far to a staggering $29,454,672. The item was a model of a red macaw, 2 feet 2 1/2 inches tall, made between 1732 and 1735 by famed German Meissen artist Johann Joachim Kaendler. It was bought by German dealer J. Mischel on behalf of the Kunst Gewerbe museum of Cologne. The macaw was one of a series of birds and animals ordered from Kaendler by Augustus the Strong, Elector of Saxony, for his Japanese palace in Dresden. The previous record price paid for a Meissen treasure was $145,025 in 1977 for a Vincent quarter group sold by Sotheby's in Monaco. The Kaendler macaw was by far the biggest seller among eight Meissen pieces sold at Sotheby's this morning. The eight treasures brought in a total of $316,500.

All bridge players know about playing a loser on a loser. If the opponents are certain to win a trick, discard a loser on it. The loser-on-loser rule is as old as bridge itself. But, as with most rules, there are exceptions.

South won the opening heart lead with the king and found out the wretched news about the trump suit when he led dummy's ace. He continued with the three of diamonds. East won with his ace and led a heart which drew the jack, queen and ace.

Next came the key play: throwing a winner on a loser. Declarer led dummy's jack of diamonds and discarded his 10 of hearts. It was a brilliant stroke.

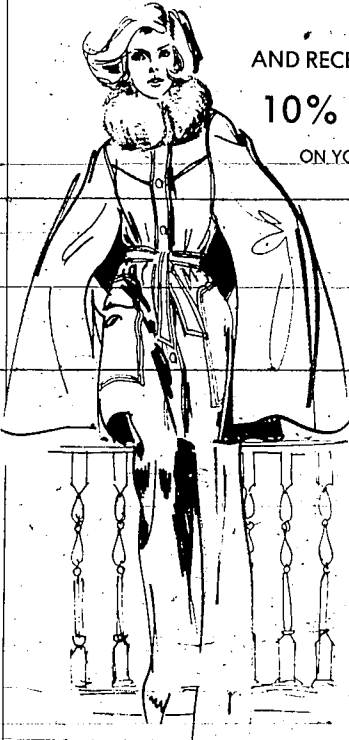

East could not get a heart ruff. He could get three club tricks if he held the ace of that suit, but South knew where that ace was. East had passed originally and had shown up with the king-queen of spades and ace of diamonds.

Eventually, South got to discard one club on dummy's 10 of diamonds and wound up losing two spades, two diamonds and one club.

Had he not thrown that winner on a loser he would have lost two spades, two clubs, one diamond, one

The fitted gown was fashioned into a chapel train outlined in daisies.

She carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her maternal grandmother.

Her gown was borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Chris Peck.

Nielsen, Starry recipe promises

TWIN FALLS — Pamela Faye Nielsen, Twin Falls, and Kirk Bradford Starry, Houston, Tex., were married June 10 in the Immanuel Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Nielsen, Twin Falls, and Mrs. John Thibert, Twin Falls, and J.E. Starry, Spring, Tex., are the bridegroom's parents.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Crosner.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown of sheerganza and re-embroidered chantilly lace. The lace-trimmed bodice of the gown featured a queen anne neckline and a chapel-length train fell from the waistline. The bishop sleeves were made of sheerganza with lace-trimmed cuffs.

Her three-tiered fingertip-length veil of imported english tulle was attached to a Juliet cap of chantilly lace with umbrella styled strands of pearls.

She carried a bouquet consisting of daisies, baby's breath and miniature coral roses.

Shelly Nielsen, Twin Falls, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Helva Nussbaum, Twin Falls; Ariene Thiele, Rupert, and Deb Nowatski, Idaho Falls. Julie Hockley, Vancouver, Wash., cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

Rocky McClymonds, Twin Falls, was best man, and groomsmen were Craig Nielsen, Twin Falls, brother of the bride, and Stuart and Earl Starry, Spring, brothers of the bridegroom. Carl Starry, Twin Falls, brother of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Michael Nielsen, brother of the bride, was candlelighter. Maxine Schroeder, Buhl, was organist. Ida Strasser was soloist; Barbara Henschel, Twin Falls, was Palmist, and Diana Winehager, Post Falls, was at the guest book.

The reception was held in the church parish hall following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a four-tier lemon wedding cake crowned with fresh daisies.

Reception assistants were Marie Sweeten, North Dakota; Gladys Jacobson and Gail Hankel, both Vancouver, and Jean Hickman, Burley.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John Thibert for members of the wedding party and relatives.

After a wedding trip to Vail, Colo., the newlyweds live at 5101 Spring Cypress Road, Spring, Tex.
