

Carter unveils Mideast peace plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a smiling President Carter looking on, the leaders of Israel and Egypt brought the Camp David summit to a dramatic end Sunday night by signing a historic blueprint for peace in the war-torn Middle East.

In a televised ceremony at the White House, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin signed two agreements providing for negotiation of a full Middle East peace treaty within three months.

Carter praised the "courage and wisdom" of the two Middle East leaders, saying his prayers for a successful end to the 13-day summit "have been answered far beyond any expectations."

The accords — called "A Framework for Peace in the Middle East" — outlined plans for an interim government on the occupied West Bank with Israel, Jordan and the Palestinians sharing power for at least five years.

Administration officials said the settlement will be safeguarded by a series of security measures, including surveillance stations and an international peace force without the presence of Americans.

The officials said Egypt would begin major withdrawals from the occupied Sinai Desert between three and nine months after a peace treaty is signed.

They said the Jewish state will pull the last of its troops from Sinai between two and three years after peace is declared in the Middle East after three decades of war.

Carter made the announcement of the agreements, which culminated 13 days of intense, secret negotiations at Camp David in the Maryland mountains, before a hastily summoned group of congressional and diplomatic leaders in the East Room.

The president scarcely could contain his joy and pride, and his declaration of a Middle East peace after 30 years of war and hostility since the birth of Israel were interrupted frequently by applause.

The three leaders addressed the television audience from the East Room of the White House with three flags — Israel, Egyptian and American — hanging behind a small table under a huge crystal chandelier.

Begin said the Camp David summit talks "should be renamed the Jimmy Carter talks."

Carter said he would go before a joint session of Congress Monday night to describe the historic agreements.

The transition will take place over a five-year period, an interval suggested by the United States, and accepted by both sides. In the meantime, there will be a shared responsibility for the West Bank.

— The Israeli military, restricted to certain key military strongholds, will be responsible for the external security. Jordan may also have a role in the maintenance of security, if King Hussein chooses to join the negotiations now.

— The Jordanians, probably together with the local Palestinian governments, would have local police authority.

— The "Palestinian inhabitants," in the careful phraseology of the documents, will govern themselves, along the lines laid out in prime minister Begin's "self-rule" plan during the interim period. No mention is made of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The agreements will provide, during the transitional arrangement, for the buffer zones between forces of the opposing sides, and also areas of "limited armament," where the number of types of military personnel and armaments will be limited.

The Israelis have given up their claim to two remaining airfields in the Sinai and they will return to Egyptian control, but the Egyptians will not be able to use them as military airfields.

Israel also has conceded that Egypt has sovereignty over the Sinai and the Gaza strip. In order to win that concession, the Egyptians have promised to restrict their military activity in some of their own territory.

The Israeli military withdrawals from the Sinai, the West Bank (except for certain early warning stations) and Gaza will take place within two to three years after the signing of the full treaties.

It is the "hope and expectation" of the American government that Jordan will finally join the negotiations, and that probably will be settled when King Hussein comes to the United States in the next few weeks.

Sen. Frank Church speaking in Sun Valley Sunday

To Nicaragua Church wants ban on aid

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-news writer

SUN VALLEY — Idaho Sen. Frank Church, the ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sunday called on the Carter Administration to end all American aid programs to Nicaragua.

Church warned that if some action is not taken to help the people of that nation form a government more legitimate than the one now in office, the end result could be that leftist might gain control of the country.

"If we do nothing," Church said, "the revolution will go the way of all revolutions. The longer the revolution is in the streets, the greater the number of killings, the more radical the revolution will become."

In order to prevent the possibility of "another Cuba in Central America," Church said the Carter Administration "should be well advised to make clear the U.S. doesn't support or endorse the Somoza regime."

Church, who made his comments in the keynote address to the fall meeting of the Allied Daily Newspapers, a trade association of western-state daily newspapers, described Nicaragua as having been "for 45 years a captive country run as a family fiefdom."

"Now Anastasio, the last of the Somoza presidents, counts the days his troops can keep the people from the palace gates," Church said.

The Idaho Democrat said Somoza was using the United States' support of his administration — as demonstrated through American aid programs — as a claim of legitimacy to keep his government in power.

But the revolution in that country, Church said, has spread to all classes of persons and has cut across all political affiliations, "giving only the national guard to hold the president in office."

Church's remarks came in a 30-minute address on terrorism and the responsibilities of the news media in covering acts of terrorism.

Church warned it was difficult to define terrorism. Pointing out that colonial Americans loyal to King George considered George Washington "the villain and traitor to his king," Church said "much depends on the eye of the beholder. One man's terrorist is another man's freedom fighter."

But the Church said there are several types of terrorist violence which could not be accepted by civilized nations.

Among examples he cited, were:

- Aircraft hijackings.
- Governments, such as Cambodia and Uganda, which are "so bestial in character as to warrant the universal condemnation of the human race."
- The deliberate fomenting of violence or perpetration of crime by agents of one country within the boundaries of another nation.

Church said that air national agreements restricting trade and commerce with nations that harbored terrorists are one method by which terrorism might be curbed.

Church also praised the recent international anti-hijacking agreements as a first step against international terrorism.

Church also told 75 newspaper editors, publishers, and reporters representing newspapers throughout the west and the nation, that "in covering violence by terrorists, the press must avoid over-emphasizing the drama of the event to the neglect of the consequences."

Terrorists seek attention, Church said, adding that "there is a danger that massive media attention to a terrorist act spawns more terrorism. The capture, trial, and conviction of terrorists should receive the same attention as the original crime."

Big earthquake kills 15,000

TABAS, Iran (UPI) — The most powerful earthquake this year smashed a major town and 40 nearby mud hut villages into rubble, killing at least 15,000 people in remote eastern Iran, health officials said Sunday.

Hardly a wall remained standing in what was once the busy town of Tabas, where 11,000 of its 13,000 residents were killed by the tremor, that shook the town's concrete and mud buildings into dust.

Troops, firemen and civilians worked by the harsh light of electric lanterns to pull one body after another out of the wreckage, sending them to the cemetery for quick burial.

The quake struck the area on the Iran-Afghanistan border at the dinner hour Saturday, when most residents were at home.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Washington said the quake, which registered 7.7 on the open-ended Richter scale, was the strongest tremor recorded this year.

Only 2,000 of the 13,000 inhabitants of Tabas survived Saturday's earthquake and all the buildings in the city were destroyed," the official Iranian news agency Pars said Sunday.

Health officials on the scene confirmed the death toll in Tabas, formerly a picturesque farming town that produced wheat, barley, oranges and dates.

They said at least another 4,000 people were killed in nearby mud hut villages, raising the death toll to at least 15,000. At least 60 more villages suffered serious damage, the news agency said.

All local doctors were killed in the quake and the injured had to be taken by ambulance to the nearby town of Ferdows for treatment. The more seriously injured were airlifted to Tehran.

Shah Muhammad Reza Pahlavi and Prime Minister Jafar Sharif-Emami declared three days of national mourning for the victims and radio stations switched to classical music as a sign of grief.

Tabas construction worker Barat Jaafari, 46, said he was eating dinner when the quake hit.

"I ran out of the house to look for cover," he said. "It felt like huge mountains moving. Dust was flying and there was a strange light in the air and I collapsed from fright and hurt my head."

Women in black veils sat on the streets and wept for their lost families. Passersby stopped to give them money, food and water.

U.S. inflation rate not bad, study finds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation within the United States during the last two years increased at a considerably slower pace than in virtually all of the world's other major industrialized nations, the International Monetary Fund said Sunday.

Furthermore, the worldwide lending agency said the U.S. economic growth rate was more rapid during the same period than every other major nation except Japan.

Although the statistics are probably little comfort to Americans who have faced hardships because of steep price increases or have lost a job, it does offer some perspective on how the U.S. economy stacks up against other countries.

The only major nation to top the U.S. performance was West Germany, which averaged 3.4 percent during the same period.

Italy and Great Britain had astronomical rates. Inflation compared with the United States. Prices in Italy rose 18.3 percent during the two year period and 14.4 percent in Great Britain.

Canada's two-year average was 8.4 percent while Japan's was 6.9 percent.

The IMF said that although worldwide inflation impeded off somewhat last year the price situation is "still unsatisfactory."

"Inflation rates of the order of magnitude now prevailing in most of the industrial countries — well above the standards of the 1960s and early 1970s — are still much too high to be considered acceptable," the report said.

The lengthy IMF report said that looking at the world economy as a whole, there were several unsatisfactory developments last year.

"World output and trade continued to increase, but the pace of domestic expansion in the industrial world ...

became slow and uneven, contrary to earlier expectations," the report said.

The report noted the "disturbing instability" in foreign exchange-money markets, a reference to the steep decline of the U.S. dollar abroad.

Terrorism: Century-old problem

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-news writer

SUN VALLEY — Terrorism is not a bad dream that modern civilization has awakened to in the past decade. It is a bad dream that has been recurring since the start of civilization.

This was the message of two experts on the subject who opened the Allied Daily Newspapers Conference on terrorism Sunday in Sun Valley.

Assassins, vigilantes and other extremists have used the threat of violence for centuries to accomplish their ends, according to Dr. David H. Smith, a clinical psychologist speaking on the psychology of terrorism.

But a group called "The People's Will," an organization of anti-zarist Russians in the 19th Century, are the dark forefathers of modern political terrorists like the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Red Brigade, according to Brian Jenkins, a Rand Corporation social scientist who is a leading expert on international terrorism.

This group of about 50 Russians, who lived in the mid-1800s, threw bombs and advocated violence, Jenkins said.

But even the members of that organization had some conscience and avoided terrorist acts and innocent bystanders, Jenkins noted. Their progeny, however, seem to have lost even this.

"These Russians called themselves terrorists and were proud of it," Jenkins said. "They don't call themselves terrorists today: they're all freedom fighters."

In the modern terrorists so-called "fight for" freedom, anything goes, anywhere and at any time, but the Rand Corporation social scientist noted terrorist acts are not senseless and illogical.

"Terrorism is based upon a kind of terrible logic," he said.

And just as there is a terrible logic to the actions, Jenkins said today's terrorists seem to come from similar backgrounds. He noted they are usually young people, 22 to 25 years old, while their leaders are 30s to their early 40s.

Most terrorists are male and unmarried, he added. They grow up in urban areas and come from middle-class families, where their parents are professionals, he said.

They are educated people as well. Jenkins noted that two-thirds of all terrorists have university educations. Their personality profiles bear remarkable also, according to the social scientist.

He said they are often "absolutists" who cling passionately to an ideology and see the world as black and white.

They are action-oriented and hold

"systemic" views of the world in which their actions are believed to have clear causes and effects, he observed.

Often, they also are "gun-freaks" who have an abnormal fascination with firearms and explosives, Jenkins claimed.

They are not the beautiful people of magazine and television advertisements.

A study of presidential assassins, Jenkins said, showed them all to be short people who were lovers and often have problems with their sexual identities. They all had difficulty in maintaining personal relationships and were usually younger brothers in families often lacked a father in the home.

"Terrorism is theater," according to Smith.

And these are the grim players who fill the roles.

Good morning!

A grim reminder in Nicaragua

A grim reminder of the battle between the National Guard and Sandinista guerrillas, a burned body lies in a street near the center of Leon.

"Holocaust," "All in the Family" win Emmies

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — "Holocaust," the chronicle of a Jewish family's annihilation at the hands of the Nazis, took the big three dramatic awards at the 30th annual Emmy presentations while "All in the Family" captured all but one of the comedy awards.

"Holocaust" won the award for best limited series of the 1977-78 season with stars Meryl Streep and Michael Moriarty winning for best actress and actor

American pilots want Mexico flights stopped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. flights into Mexico should be suspended for 24 to 48 hours because of safety problems resulting from a strike by Mexican air traffic controllers, the Airline Pilots Association said Sunday.

The control tower at Acapulco "is completely shut down," and "Mexico City center is manned by one unlicensed person with no radar experience. Unauthorized general aviation takeoffs have been occurring," ALPA said in a statement.

Bus wrecks with handicapped children aboard

ASHLEY, Pa. (UPI) — A chartered bus carrying 34 deaf children overturned and burst into flames Sunday, but all of the children apparently escaped serious injury.

State police credited the quick work of the bus driver, Frank Beaver, 35, of Milton, with preventing a tragedy. He immediately got the children off the bus and kept them calm until help arrived.

Police said the bus was entering Interstate 81 near the Ashley exit around 2:45 p.m. MDT when the right front tire went off the road.

State police said Beaver tried to turn the wheel to in the category.

"All in the Family," in its eighth year, won the comedy series award for the fifth time.

Carroll O'Connor as Archie Bunker won the Emmy for best actor in a comedy series, sharing honors with costar Jean Stapleton, best actress. Rob Reiner, who plays their "meathead" son-in-law, was picked best supporting actor.

The pilots organization said it is "alarmed by the Federal Aviation Administration's failure to notify U.S. pilots of the dangers brought about by the Mexican air traffic services."

ALPA said poor communications, inadequate radio and radar services, abnormal air traffic procedures, non-proficient controls and inadequate weather information were the reasons why it was calling for the suspension.

The FAA had no immediate comment.

get it back on the road but the bus continued to veer off and climbed an embankment. The bus came back down off the embankment, overturned and was immediately engulfed in flames.

State police said the bus was en route from the Danville area in Montour County to the Pennsylvania State School for the Deaf in Scranton.

A state trooper said all the children were taken to four hospitals as a precautionary measure. He said most of the children suffered "bumps and bruises," although there may have been "one or two who were burned a little bit." Police said Beaver suffered a broken collarbone.

Egyptian trains collide, 29 dead, 50 hurt

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Two trains collided at a junction south of Cairo Sunday, killing at least 29 people and injuring 50 more, police said.

The accident occurred at El-Wasta, about 20 miles south of the capital — a crossing point for railway trains connecting Cairo with southern Egypt and with El-Fayoum to the southeast.

A train moving south ran into the rear carriage of another train bound for El-Fayoum, the officials said.

The carriage overturned, killing 29 passengers and injuring 50 others, they said.

Rail traffic was disrupted for about six hours.

Officials said a preliminary investigation blamed the accident on an error by the traffic signal operator, who permitted the two trains to cross the junction at the same time.

It was the second major accident in Egypt in three months. Last July, a bus plunged in the River Nile, drowning about 60 people.

Hurricane

Greta bashes Honduras with 120-mile winds

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Greta strengthened suddenly Sunday night and "raked northeastern Honduras with 120-mph winds, 8-foot tides and flooding rains."

At 9 p.m. EDT, the "wall cloud" — a ring of hurricane-force winds surrounding the eye of the storm — was on the coast of extreme eastern Honduras, near latitude 15.6 north, longitude 83.7 west.

"Greta appears to have slowed down temporarily as the eye approaches the coast," the National Hurricane Center in Miami said in an advisory Sunday night. "However, the hurricane is expected to continue towards the west at about 10 to 15 mph, with the central-core-of-the-hurricane hugging the north coast of Honduras."

"Reports from an Air Force reconnaissance plane indicate that Greta has strengthened considerably during the past few hours. Highest sustained winds are now 124 mph and gales extend 100 miles to the north of the center. The last central pressure reported by the aircraft was 952 millibars — 28.11 inches of mercury."

Mexico issued a hurricane warning for the east coast of its Yucatan Peninsula. Director Nell Frank of the National Hurricane Center said the Iles de la Bahla, off Honduras' north-central coast, "should be prepared to feel the full force of Hurricane Greta early Monday."

Frank warned that torrential rains associated with Greta "may cause serious flooding in river valleys" along its path in Central America. Small craft near the Gulf of Honduras were warned to head for a safe port immediately.

The government of Belize issued a hurricane watch Sunday afternoon for its entire coastline and the hurricane center said Belize officials were ordering evacuations as necessary.

Center officials in Miami said tides of 5 to 8 feet above normal were likely along the northeast coast of Honduras Sunday afternoon, spreading westward Sunday night.

Soviet prisoner heading for U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet Armenian kept in prison for nearly a year left Moscow Sunday for San Francisco where he hopes to get U.S. citizenship. Nerse Sarkissian, 48, boarded a Pan American flight for New York on his way to San Francisco after he was delayed at a final customs checkpoint, a Pan Am spokesman said.

His fate started last year. An Armenian who emigrated to the United States in 1970, Sarkissian was down on his luck.

He was living in San Francisco on a U.S. residency permit with his 82-year-old father and mother and two sisters. Despite his training as a civil engineer, he was unable to find work, he said in an interview at his Moscow hotel Saturday.

"I was getting $110 a month from the U.S. government, and I said 'Let me make a trip back to Armenia and then maybe I come back and I find a job.'"

So he headed for the Soviet Union last October, bringing 35 shirts with pictures on them, a number of bracelets, some rings and some chains to sell.

He spent seven days in Moscow before proceeding to the Armenian capital of Yerevan where he said he sold some of the goods.

Torgerson named T-N circulation director

TWIN FALLS — H. Ross Torgerson, 25, has been named circulation director of the Times-News, publisher William Howard announced today.

A 1976 Journalism graduate of Weber State College, Torgerson joined the newspaper earlier this year as a classified advertising salesman.

He replaces Wayne McWilliams. "Ross will begin immediately to direct improvements in our circulation department and improve service to our customers," Howard said.

"We also hope to expand the department and increase circulation," the publisher said. The Times-News is currently circulates to more than 21,000 homes in Magic Valley.

Torgerson attended high school in Scottsdale, Ariz. and went to Weber State on a football scholarship.

At WSC he edited the sports pages of the college newspaper and was a sports director at a college radio station.

He and his wife, Lauri, reside in Twin Falls.

Congress looks at the GSA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress turns its attention to the corruption-plagued General Services Administration Monday in a bid for more information on what may turn out to be the biggest government scandal since Watergate.

A Senate Government-Affairs subcommittee begins hearings Monday morning on what the administration has done to determine the extent of the huge thefts by civil servants and private contractors.

A House Government Operations subcommittee takes up the scandal a week later, the second half of a double-barreled congressional probe into the theft of tens of millions of dollars from the GSA.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Federal Spending Practices and Open Government, predicted the hearings would drag on for a long time.

Soviet foreign policy relies on lies, CIA says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet foreign policy relies heavily on the spreading of lies, rumors, forged documents and other propaganda plays to discredit the United States, the CIA says.

"The Soviets believe that propaganda, planned and executed at the highest levels, plays a highly significant role in the execution of foreign policy," the report said in a 96-page report prepared for the use Intelligence Committee.

"The primary target of Soviet propaganda abroad is the United States," it said. "Soviet propaganda seeks to isolate the United States from its allies and create a worldwide image of the United States as aggressively 'imperialist' and 'racist'."

"Exaggeration, innuendo and outright falsehood are common."

The report said that while western propagandists generally believe propaganda emanating from official sources should be true and hence credible, "no such inhibitions deter Soviet propagandists."

"Ethical considerations are subordinated to the demands of the Soviet state."

One recent example, it said, was Soviet press treatment of the death of Italian Premier Aldo Moro, kidnapped and murdered by Red Brigade terrorists.

"The Soviets attempted to establish in the European mind that the kidnapping of Moro was the working of western intelligence services, or, specifically, the CIA," the report said.

It also credited Soviet propaganda with making the neutron bomb "a household scareword in Europe," where the U.S. weapon would be deployed, by "exaggerating" its lethal power.

The study said the Kremlin's aims are to spread the impression the United States spends too much for defense; is devoted to right wing regimes; interferes constantly in the internal affairs of even its closest allies; and is unsympathetic to Third World aspirations.

Nicaraguan war spills into Central America

AGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Armed Sandinista guerrillas a new battle front in the border area with Costa Rica, threatening to widen the gun civil war into a regional conflict.

Nicaraguan foreign ministry said that a Venezuelan warplane striking the guerrillas and called ambassadors of Venezuela, Rica and Panama for "clarification."

Guatemala has dispatched five warplanes and Panama has sent four helicopters to Costa Rica, ostensibly to defend that unarmed nation against Nicaraguan attacks.

Costa Rican radio reports, quoting four Sandinistas who returned to Costa Rica wounded, said the border attack was coordinated by Agent Zero, the notorious Eden Pastora.

Pastora reportedly led the daring Aug. 22 raid on the National Palace in Managua that forced President Anastasio Somoza Debayle to release and fly almost 60 political prisoners to Panama.

In most of Nicaragua's major cities, however, the eight-day-old Sandinista guerrilla offensive appeared to be on the wane.

The nation's second largest city, Leon, was reported totally in the hands of National Guard troops late Saturday after a two-day land and air attack that left much of the city in shambles and bodies lying in the streets.

The National Guard also claimed control of Chinandega, 80 miles northwest of Managua, but its announcement left it clear that most of Esteli, 80 miles north of Managua, was still in rebel hands.

Hurricane Greta was reported howling toward the coast of Nicaragua with 100 mph winds and torrential rain, but the bad weather had not yet affected military operations.

Word of the border attack came when the Nicaraguan foreign ministry announced "with profound concern that a military force coming from Costa Rica has again cowardly attacked the border area."

It said Nicaraguan Ambassador to Costa Rica Juan B. Lacayo had filed a formal protest with the Costa Rican foreign ministry "against this new aggression which already has obtained the military support of the Venezuelan government, which made a Venezuelan combat plane participate in this latest aggression."

iling Vorster may resign

ANNESBURG, South Africa — Prime Minister John Vorster, 63, and his cabinet may step down Tuesday, opening a fierce fight for leadership of South Africa's white government.

Race already is narrowing down to two men. Two of them, Defense Minister Pieter W. Botha and Connie Mulder, minister of black affairs, are considered unyielding hard-liners.

Vorster has kept his intentions to himself so far but he has done nothing to halt the open tussle and intense lobbying among supporters of the four contenders.

Vorster, who succeeded the assassinated Hendrik Verwoerd in 1966, was hospitalized for a week earlier this month, suffering from exhaustion and bronchitis. He will return to chair his first Cabinet meeting Tuesday and newspapers are predicting it will be his last.

alian police closing in on Red Brigades leaders

ROME (UPI) — Judicial officials said a news blackout on their hunt for Red Brigades leaders but investigation sources said women and three men were at the center of a nationwide search for the group's leaders.

Police official said bitterly, "Instead they let it out in three hours."

Despite the news leak, police were able to arrest Alunni's girlfriend, Marina Zoni, 31, and Marla Alberani, 29, of Bologna shortly after the raid on his apartment.

Police sources said the hunt for additional suspect following examination of documents in the Alunni apartment had centered on Marina Teresa Zoni, 23, Marina's sister Liviana Tosi, 27, of Bologna, and Marzia Lelli, 23, of Bologna.

Alunni's arrest was reported in a news leak about the hunt for suspects was not even tell you the color of Alunni is wearing," Milan magistrate Armando Spataro told reporters when they asked about the Red Brigades suspect on Wednesday night.

Investigating magistrates said the Interior Ministry in Rome, called plans to round up suspects had been photographed and at Alunni's apartment during weeks of secret surveillance.

It was supposed to be the secret of the hunt. It should have been kept three days at least so we could work," one Milan anti-terrorist

Foreign tongues may become official

By MARK SHWARTZ
Pacific News-Service

The monopoly enjoyed by the English language in the United States may face its toughest challenge under a new proposal that, if enacted, would designate Spanish, Chinese and more than a half dozen other foreign tongues as "official languages."

The proposal, gaining momentum among influential Hispanic organizations, promises to be loaded with the same problems and benefits that have roused long-standing controversy in such places as Quebec, Wales and Flanders, where proponents of native languages have fought uphill battles against dominant, official languages.

In the United States, multilingual guidelines are already on the books in the areas of education and voters' rights, and Congress is considering a bill to provide bilingual court proceedings.

But the "official languages" proposal would have a much broader impact both on government and daily life.

The model is the 1969 Canadian Official Languages Act, which mandated French and English as official languages "for all purposes of the Parliament and government of Canada."

If adopted in this country, the proposal would put any foreign language on an equal footing with English in areas where at least 5 percent of the population speaks that language. Depending on how the designated area is defined, the proposal could result in official status for Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Native American or many other languages.

"The survival of this country depends on this official languages approach," said Ricardo Callejo, attorney for the Spanish Speaking/Surnamed Political Association (SSSPA) based in San Francisco, the group spearheading the national drive.

"If this country doesn't tap its multilingual resources fully, we haven't got a prayer," Callejo said, pointing to studies that project that Hispanics will become America's largest minority by the year 2000. The U.S. is already the sixth largest Spanish-speaking country in the world, with 12 million legal residents of Spanish origin, according to recent Census Bureau figures.

"It's vital to adopt this plan, not only because of civil rights issues," he noted, "but because Mexico, Venezuela and other Latin American countries will be selling the U.S. vast quantities of gas and oil. They'll look with a jaunted eye at any Hispanic discrimination here."

So far, Callejo has received backing from leaders of several national Hispanic organizations and is seeking support from Chinese, Japanese, Filipino and other ethnic groups. The 200,000-member League of United Latin American Citizens passed a resolution in support of the official language proposal at its recent national convention.

The California chapter of La Raza National Lawyers Association passed a similar resolution that soon will be introduced to their 600 national members.

The proposal would likely get the support of the congressional Hispanic Caucus, predicted Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y. "If for bilingual education," he said, "so, although I have not seen the official languages act proposal, I would be delighted as a member of the Caucus to support it."

The House is currently considering a more limited proposal that passed the Senate last year, and with administration backing, appears headed for House approval this year. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., would provide consecutive or simultaneous foreign language translations in federal district courts for foreign-language speaking defendants.

Richmond claims that his district, which includes part of Brooklyn, is the most multi-ethnic district in the country, representing voters who speak Spanish, Hebrew, Polish, Greek, Italian, Chinese, Mohawk and other languages.

Ironically, the Richmond bill does not include federal courts in Puerto Rico, where all court proceedings have been conducted in English since 1917, despite the fact that less than half the population speaks English.

A similar courtroom bilingual bill—initiated by the SSSPA—passed the Senate in 1974, only to be defeated in the House. The following year, however, Congress passed the Voting Rights Act which stipulated that interpreters must be present at polling places for any minority constituting 5 or more percent of a voting district.

Despite optimism about the bill's passage, opposition to broad bilingualism promises a growing controvery. "What I am nervous about," said Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-California, "and this is a very, very real fear, is if we push the bilingual education process too far, for example, especially in states with a heavy Mexican population like Texas and California, you could someday find yourself in a situation like the province of Quebec."

It was mounting pressure from French strongholds in Quebec that led the Canadian Parliament to pass the Official Languages Act.

"It seems to be that we are preparing the ground for permanently and officially bilingual states," Hayakawa said. "Is this the development which we want to promote?"

But Mike Shadrin, a Canadian government adviser in San Francisco, warned against strict comparisons between the United States and Canada. "It's far too complex an issue to draw parallels," he said. "It has been an immense topic of controversy and discussion for years in Canada. Governments have been toppled on just that issue."

Callejo to the SSSPA said that official bilingualism has succeeded in Canada, Israel and the European Common Market.

He also pointed to legal precedents for such approval in the United States. The original California constitution of 1849 provided equal status for English and Spanish in all government publications. New Mexico recognized both languages as official until 1963.

"Forty-three percent of the students in New Mexico schools are Mexican-American," said Henry Pascual, the state director of bilingual education. "Eighty percent are Native American and speak eight different Indian tongues." That state now encourages schools to establish bilingual programs in nine languages.

To those who argue that bilingualism would be too costly, Callejo said, "The benefits far outweigh the costs of keeping people in jail who went there because they were unable to understand American laws in English—or the cost of spreading disease because a person couldn't understand basic health procedures."

"Unless we develop a viable and effective bilingual population in the United States," he said, "we'll lose the whole ball game internationally."

Legal wiretap proposed

NEW YORK—President Carter, at long last, is about to receive a bill that would make it possible for an American citizen to be legally wiretapped by federal officials without a court order.

This welcome measure, passed by the Senate earlier this year and by the House last week, has more than two years in the making. It had its origin in the Ford administration with Attorney General Edward Levi, was greatly strengthened by the Carter administration's Justice Department, and has had the powerful congressional sponsorship of Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts. Both the CIA and the FBI have supported it, although not entirely happily.

The bill provides that even taps installed for foreign intelligence purposes must be authorized by a federal judge, and only after applicants for the order meet a "criminal standard." That standard is not quite as stringent as the customary "probable cause" to believe that a crime is being, or about to be, committed; but it is sufficient to prevent the wiretapping of an American citizen on the mere allegation that he or she might be engaged in some kind of espionage activity.

Since the omnibus crime act of 1968, a court order has been required for a tap on persons suspected of domestic crime; the Supreme Court ruled some years ago that such a warrant also was necessary for domestic intelligence purposes, such as tracking subversives; now the bill just passed in the House would bring foreign intelligence taps under the same kind of judicial safeguard, thus closing off the last area for possible abuse of government authority.

More than that, the bill as passed by the Senate repealed the so-called "disclaimer" contained in the 1968 act; the disclaimer said in effect that the warrant requirement was not intended to limit any inherent power the president might have to order wiretaps on his own executive authority. Its repeal meant, as the Carter administration has acknowledged, that no statute inherent power, any longer existed, if it ever had, and that henceforth the only authority to order wiretaps would rest in legislation and in applicable court decisions.

Unfortunately, while the House bill also repeals the 1968 "disclaimer," it certifies other language in the bill revises the possibility of a claim of inherent executive power. Strong pressures to eliminate this language will be exerted in the Senate-House conference on the measure, with good prospects for success.

The House bill was not passed without a fight. Not only was there a stinging Republican attack on its major features, it also was opposed by a group of Liberals, led by Rep. Robert Drinan of Massachusetts, on grounds that no wiretapping at all should be allowed. That is a splendid principle but an impossible goal in the present climate, and court regulation of this dubious practice surely is better than leaving it to the unbridled discretion of someone like Richard Nixon, who might happen to be president.

Republicans did succeed briefly and by the narrow margin of 178 to 176 in forcing an amendment that would have eliminated the warrant requirement for tapping a "foreign power." But the bill's definition of a "foreign power" made it clear that that would have made it possible for American citizens to be tapped without a warrant, since the definition included certain organizations that might be considered dominated or influenced by a foreign power—say, the Communist Party. Some hard overnight lobbying by the White House, Vice President Mondale, Speaker O'Neill, and the American Civil Liberties Union resulted in removal of the amendment by 200 to 176.

The ACLU, interestingly enough, at one time officially opposed the bill, on Father Drinan's principle and due to help in its drafting. But after having helped eliminate those flaws, it is primarily by the inclusion of a criminal standard for the required warrants—the ACLU declared the measure an improvement on current law and was instrumental in its passage in both houses.

To those who have long warned against warrantless wiretapping as an invasion of individual rights and as a dangerous expansion of government police power—and against any kind of tapping as a vastly overrated law enforcement tool—congressional passage and the prospect of President Carter's signature represent a kind of vindication.

These opponents know that despite the bold claims of Candidate Nixon in 1968, wiretapping in the decade since has done little to control crime except to send a few bookies to jail. They saw Nixon himself demonstrate its potential for abuse, against journalists, "heaters," and his own associates. "They watched the courts strike down warrantless tapping against political dissidents, without any effect at all on 'national security.' They have yet to see the evidence of its efficiency even in the foreign intelligence field.

The new law will not eliminate but only restrain government tapping—and that not enough, since judges tend to issue the requested warrants without much questioning. Nevertheless, it's another step away from the kind of anti-crime, anti-subversion hysteria that led me to write, on Jan. 29, 1970, that if either the Bill of Rights or the Magna Carta came before Congress "in its present mood of political panic and myopia, it would undoubtedly be voted down as a needless restraint in the war on crime."

Agriculture department, stay alert

To a farmer, beans in a warehouse are no different than money in the bank.

In fact, receipts from a bean warehouse are as good as cash with many banks and lending institutions.

Warehouses are critical to the Idaho farmers' operations because they store crops from one year to the next while growers wait for better prices.

Then, when farmers want to sell, warehouses must always be able to produce a farmer's crop in a matter of days.

A Filer bean warehouse had trouble doing this earlier in the year.

Beans, Inc., came up a million pounds short of top-quality beans entrusted to them by Magic Valley growers and temporarily lost its bonded warehouseman license as a result.

The beans had a market value in excess of $200,000.

And Beans, Inc. lost its right to participate in Idaho's world-famous certified seed program after improperly handling some seeds.

It appears the problems at Beans, Inc. have subsided. The firm's spokesman last week said "everything is fine at the warehouse" and the Idaho Department of Agriculture has reinstated the warehouse's bonded warehouseman license. Magic Valley bean farmers certainly hope it's true.

Bean growers wish no harm on Beans, Inc. but they are concerned by the recent gyrations at the warehouse.

The agricultural economy of Magic Valley rotates around a dependable warehousing system where beans can be stored safely, graded accurately and where seed may be purchased with confidence.

Bean shortages, the loss of seed license and other reports of mismanagement at the Filer warehouse shakes the confidence of Magic Valley growers in Beans, Inc. and casts cloud over the entire Idaho bean seed certification program.

The Idaho Department of Agriculture is charged with monitoring the activities at the state's commodity warehouses. Ultimately, farmers rely on the department of agriculture to keep warehouses honest.

Beans, Inc. problems should serve as a reminder to the state agriculture department to stay on top of the warehousing operations in Idaho and never be tempted to play footsy with any warehouse that spews a good line, but can't produce the commodities to back it up.

Working men, women differ in goals

By DON GRAFF

It verges on heresy to admit it in this era of ERA and Job equality, but there does appear to be a difference between the working man and the working woman.

It's more basic than salary differential—or individual capabilities, according to the findings of a Minnesota firm reported in the Journal of Applied Psychology. Analyzing more than 50,000 job applications received during a 30-year period, the Minnesota Gas Co. found a significant difference in job priorities.

Type of work was the most important factor among women in rating a particular job good or bad. Men, on the other hand, placed job security at the top of the list.

Men and women were agreed, however, in giving priority of place to aspects of psychological compensation. Pay ranked relatively low in both cases—in fifth place for men and sixth for women overall. And the interest, at least among men, declined with age, dropping to eighth place for the over-40 category.

Money, it appears, doesn't buy happiness on the job, although it might not be easy to sell that to union leaders.

On terrorism and its coverage by the media

SUN VALLEY—For the next two days journalists from around the nation will be gathering in Sun Valley for a special symposium on terrorism and its coverage by the media. Idaho Senator Frank Church, soon to be chairman of the influential Foreign Relations Committee is among the 15 featured speakers, as is Anthony C. E. Quainton, director of the State Department's Office for Combating Terrorism.

The underlying assumption of the conference is that terrorism, once considered largely a product of third world nations, is likely to become commonplace in the United States. Most law enforcement experts, say this nation's sheltered immunity from terrorism is about to end.

But the formal purpose of the conference is to examine how the media has responded with its coverage of terrorism.

I suspect that in the long run this response of the media to terrorist acts will be more important than the acts themselves.

And to date, we in the media have shown ourselves largely incompetent in dealing with this important area. Terrorist acts have all the makings of a good story: highly charged emotions, tension, frequently a "masterful plot," the possibility of loss of life or destruction of property and usually an ideological list of demands which make dramatic reading. Someone wins and someone loses. In short, a light, easily resolved story for the evening news or the front page of the first edition.

Claiming the public's "right to know," we in the media do what we say is our job of presenting an important story, filling in the facts until we know more about the terrorists than their mothers.

And that is our job. The public does have a right to know when major events occur. And it can be argued that to do otherwise than the media has done would be censoring in the long run more dangerous than the terrorism.

The problem is that doing our job isn't enough. There has always existed a dual relationship between the media and terrorists—one feeding off the other, one encouraging the other.

It is the failure to recognize and acknowledge this symbiosis that is disturbing.

The art of publicity, which the media represents, is a powerful magnet. It attracts those with otherwise futile actions of impotence, who realize those acts become magnified through print and screen. George Bernard Shaw, speaking of the impact of an audience, once wrote that "martyrdom is particularly attractive to people who find fame well-nigh impossible in other, less outlandish ways."

In less esoteric terms there is the example of the Algerian war, when anti-French guerrillas moved their struggle into Algeria's urban capital. Few sections of the country were more strongly controlled by French forces, and predictably the guerrillas were beaten back.

At first, for in their urban struggles they had guaranteed worldwide publicity for their cause—and that in the long run gained them victory. As one rebel later wrote, if 10 French soldiers were killed in rural villages, few would notice. But even a skirmish in Algiers—and the incident will be picked up by the international correspondents and reporters and will appear in New York newspapers the following day.

More recently, Brian Jenkins, of the social science department of the Rand Corporation, a foreign intelligence expert, analyzed 77 international hostage incidents. In addition to noting that three quarters of the terrorists eventually escape, Jenkins pointed out that the terrorists almost always get the extensive publicity which is one of their key demands.

Jenkins will also be present at the Sun Valley conference.

Courtesy of the international media, all the world's a stage. And for those who use terrorism merely as a powerful means of self-actualization, of self-expression, the ever-present journals is ready to switch on the stage flood lights.

All this must not be seen as a denial of truly revolutionary aims behind some terrorism. Historically there have always been governments so despotic and situations so unbearable that murder is not so much a crime as it is an act of liberation. Attempts on the life of Adolph Hitler come to mind. A nation such as ours, born in terrorism, must think carefully before dismissing all modern terrorism as mere violence.

But again, this is an area where the media has failed those it informs. There has been precious little attempt to discern just what it is we mean by terrorism. Under the label of "terrorism," I have seen listed the pathetic circus of Patty Hearst, the murders committed by Germany's Baader-Meinhof group, descriptions of American street violence, denunciations of Palestinian attacks on Israeli settlements, coups d'etat, and most recently the fighting in Nicaragua.

In our rush for news we have been, guilty of describing without first defining.

However it is eventually defined, terrorism is indeed a problem being taken seriously by more and more Americans. American airlines, for instance, now spend better than $200 million a year on anti-hijacking devices, including baggage X-rays, passenger searches and increased numbers of security guards.

Sales of bullet-proof limousines, which frequently run in excess of $40,000 each, are steadily increasing.

At Fort Stewart, Ga., and Fort Lewis, Wash., the U.S. Army has stationed two special 600-man "Black Beret," Army Ranger battalions. Their regular course of duty includes training to recapture American embassies occupied by guerrillas, rescues of captured American businessmen and freeing American diplomats "from jungle or desert hideaways.

Terrorism is a problem not likely to disappear easily.

Neither are the problems facing journalists who must report such events.

But while there are no easy answers available to the media, may is the time to be asking the questions. If, as seems likely, terrorism is soon to become a "beat" reporters must cover, then they should in advance have tried to determine how best that beat can be reported.

Investigation planned for nation's banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission announced Sunday it is launching a nationwide investigation to determine if lending institutions, stores and other creditors are obeying the law in their charges and information to customers.

Satellite crashes into sea Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pegasus 1, a dead 23,000-pound satellite, slammed into the Earth's atmosphere early Sunday and crashed harmlessly into the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Angola, the National Aeronautic and Space Agency announced.

NASA said the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, which had been tracking the satellite, reported its re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere at 2:25 a.m. EDT.

The spacecraft, resembling a giant dragon fly in orbit with wing-like panels 96 feet wide, had been expected to slip into the atmosphere and burn across a trajectory 31.7 degrees latitude on either side of the equator. That area includes the southern portion of the United States and portions of Latin America, Africa, and Asia.

Unlike the Soviet satellite that scattered radioactive debris across the northern territories of Canada last winter, Pegasus 1 was not powered by a nuclear reactor and therefore was free of nuclear contamination.

The commissioners said they took a "unanimous vote" in closed session to make sure millions of Americans who borrow money or charge merchandise are not being cheated or misled over the interest and fees they must pay.

The investigation, which the FTC said "does not imply that violations of the law have occurred," will cover whether creditors are following the Truth in Lending Act.

That act requires consumers to get a clear, written explanation of what they will be charged for credit so that they may shop around for the best deal.

The commission in July ordered Household Finance Corp., the nation's largest independent finance company, to stop offering to lend money to its bankrupt customers with the stipulation that they repay debts already erased in bankruptcy proceedings.

It said the company was violating the Truth in Lending Act through such practices. In answering the charges, an HFC spokesman said the company was in "total compliance" with federal laws.

Firemen reject pact in Wichita

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Striking firefighters, who walked off the job a week ago over a contract dispute, Sunday rejected a tentative agreement reached hours earlier under the close supervision of a Sedgewick County district judge.

Economist proposes rebate for inflation-wary workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economist Arthur M. Okun says workers should receive rebates of 2 percent of their pre-tax income in exchange for a voluntary limit of 6 percent on wage increases.

Okun, in a U.S. News and World Report interview released Sunday, said workers would gain increased take-home pay through the adjustment of taxes withheld from their paychecks.

"The criterion is a guideline that's moderately — not drastically — below the present rate of wage increase," Okun said.

Okun, the 1968-69 chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, said: "The whole process of unwinding inflation has to be gradual; otherwise you create enormous inequities and disparities and major dislocation in markets."

"So a declaration of two percentage points in the ongoing rate of inflation seems a feasible and responsible objective."

Okun said continuing to fight inflation by tightening monetary and fiscal policy can be called "burning down the house to roast a pig."

CORE called 'black mafia'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The national director of the Congress of Racial Equality has turned the group into a "black Mafia," complete with "hit men" and "mechanaries on-elim." CORE leader James Farmer said Sunday.

Farmer, who helped found the group 30 years ago, made his remarks on America's Black Forum, a syndicated television interview program.

"The former CORE director is leading a fight to remove Ray

Innes from the leadership of the divided organization; and is planning a November convention of dissatisfied CORE members to vote Innes out of office.

Innes, who called the proposed convention illegitimate, is scheduled to appear on the interview show next weekend to address the charges.

CORE helped finance and lead "freedom rides" in the South during the early 1960's.

Farmer, who left CORE in 1966, said there have been no conventions held in the 10 years since Innes became director. Innes' appointees members of the board of directors and fires them at will," he said.

Farmer also accused Innes of "transforming the organization from a civil rights organization to a kind of black Mafia in which there has been much talk of 'hit-men' and contracts let out on CORE staff members."

He said some of Innes' former bodyguards told Los Angeles authorities they beat up a CORE member who had joined PUSH — another civil rights group, on orders from Innes.

Farmer also said a Washington, D.C., man was shot by someone under Innes' orders.

Farmer said, however, the charges do not originate from him.

"I, myself, do not make the claims because I have it from hearsay. But the persons who do make the claims in many cases were themselves involved," he said.

Army recruiting violations probed

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — The U.S. Attorney's office said Sunday it is investigating Army recruiters who allegedly filled enlistment quotas by falsifying personal documents for hundreds of enlistees.

Staff members in the office of U.S. Attorney James Brady confirmed the investigation was under way but would not reveal details.

However, a source who was said to have witnessed the alleged illegal recruiting tactics told UPI that falsifications occurred as far back as 1972. The source asked not to be identified for fear of reprisal.

Recruiters named by the source denied knowledge of the alleged frauds.

Recruits at a suburban Wyoming shopping center office received fake documents, were coached on aptitude tests and urged to dodge questions about prison records and physical defects, the source said.

The alleged falsifications stemmed from pressure to fill recruiting quotas. Failure could mean reassignment away from the preferred duty as a recruiter.

"I heard several conversations where guys who'd enlisted illegally and become discontent would call their recruiter and say 'Hey, I want to tell them what went on so they could get out,'" the source said.

The source also said one recruiter, Staff Sgt. Thomas E. Keen, would threaten malcontent "telling them that if they opened their mouths not to ever come back to Michigan."

When contacted at Fort Stewart, Ga., Keen said, "I have no knowledge of that."

The source also said recruiters often supplied each other with false documents, many obtained from unscrupulous printers in the area.

Maj. Pete Peterson, Midwest chief of public affairs at Fort Sheridan, Ill., said the Army had no knowledge of such actions.

Gas showdown this week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, moving closer to adjournment, reaches a critical showdown this week on the fate of the natural gas bill — the key to President Carter's energy program.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd predicted he has the votes to block an attempt to send the compromise gas-pricing bill back to what he says would be certain death in a House-Senate conference committee.

Byrd reported rounding up 55 votes against sending the bill back to committee at Tuesday's showdown vote — well over the 51 needed to block the move to shelve the legislation.

The West Virginia Democrat also said he's "virtually over the top" in the next stage of the energy battle — a final vote to pass the bill. He said he has 49 votes, two short of a majority, compared to only 37 against the bill.

The Senate is scheduled to vote at 3 p.m. Tuesday on a motion by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to send the bill back to a conference committee with instructions to drastically rewrite it.

Supporters of the measure have repeatedly warned such a move would kill the delicate natural gas compromise worked out in months of negotiations.

Last July, seven Michigan recruiters were forced to transfer or retire after admitting that 12 enlistees were given fake high school diplomas or similar documents.

Many kids not in school

By United Press International
More than half of September is history, yet school bells ring silent for more than 400,000 of the nation's students — victims of negotiations crossfires between striking teachers and the school boards they are battling for better pay.

Court-ordered negotiations were to resume Monday in hope of ending a strike against Cleveland schools. School bus drivers for the Dayton, Ohio, public schools voted Saturday to honor picket lines set up by teachers and maintenance workers, virtually closing the school system.

Officials of Chicago's City Colleges have threatened to cancel the strike-delayed fall semester if faculty members fail to return to work.

The walkouts that closed classrooms for 101,000 Cleveland public school pupils and 110,000 students in Chicago City Colleges were the largest in a series of school strikes that curtailed the schooling of more than 400,000 students in 10 states.

A judge in Cleveland has refused to order teachers to return to work and, instead, instructed negotiators to continue talks and directed school officials to juggle the budget and lobby the state to get money to fund raises for strikers.

Striking teachers and non-teaching personnel have gone without pay hikes for two years while the school district teetered on the brink of bankruptcy and now are demanding a 20 percent pay hike.

Officials of Chicago's City Colleges, where a strike has been waged since late August, said the autumn semester probably will be called off if striking faculty members do not return to work by Sept. 25. A spokesman for the teachers' union termed the announcement a "scare tactic." Negotiations were to resume Monday.

In Dayton, most of the 2,200 teachers walked off the job Sept. 6, one day before classes were scheduled to begin for 37,000 students. Classes had been held last week with supervisory personnel and substitute teachers on the podium.

Other major walkouts idled students in Dayton, Ohio, Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., and in Bridgeport, Conn., where negotiations were being held in a makeshift jail where 138 teachers are being held for refusing to obey a judge's back-to-work order.

Tornado crushes car, occupants
Rescue workers peer in to the remains of a car hit by tornado in Grinnell, Iowa Saturday. Three members of a New Hampshire family traveling in the car were killed when the tornado struck.

Tornado's survivors stunned

GRINNELL, Iowa (UPI) — David Humes was working at Mitchell's One-Stop, a service station and cafe, when the tornado touched down, leveling the building.

"The first thing that happened was the lights went out but I didn't think much of that," said Humes, who was treated for minor injuries. "Then the windows came in and that was it — everything just went flying. The whole place went boom."

State Disaster Relief officials Sunday surveyed the destruction inflicted by the state's most deadly storm in a decade, which roared unannounced through sections of central and eastern Iowa Saturday night.

At least six persons were killed by tornadoes that swirled down from driving thunderstorms, cutting a narrow swath that destroyed at least 50 cars. Nearly 50 persons were injured with 15 reported in area hospitals.

Unofficial estimates pegged the damage at more than $750,000 and possibly as high as $1 million, including vehicles demolished by the storm.

Rescue workers moved tons of debris with bulldozers and tow trucks at the site of a motel complex at the intersection of Interstate 80 and Iowa 146, south of Grinnell where the storm took its worst toll.

Gov. Robert D. Ray, who arrived to assess the damage, Saturday night had authorized use of a National Guard helicopter and state equipment to assist cleanup operations and movement of the injured.

The helicopter searched the area for the body of a missing New Hampshire man, whose wife and children were killed as they parked their car along the highway in an attempt to wait out the torrential rains that preceded the twister by minutes.

Rosemary L. Rau, 26, Alstead Center, N.H., was found in the car. The bodies of the Rau's two children — 8-year-old Belinda A. and 4-year-old Alexander — were found in a grassy area about 100 yards from the car.

Before the storm struck the Grinnell area, it damaged a number of Jasper County farms and killed two persons when tornado winds struck their mobile home. The victims were identified as Gary L. Cade, 34, Laurel, and his 7-year-old daughter, Jennifer. Cade's wife, Karen, was hospitalized.

The National Weather Service, which had not issued a tornado watch but only a warning for severe thunderstorms, charted the path of the storm in a 30-mile radius from Baxter to about six miles north of Kellogg to Grinnell.

Faces 7000 protest Narita airport

NARITA, Japan (UPI) — An estimated 7,000 demonstrators, mostly helmeted radicals, staged the year's second largest rally against the new Tokyo International airport Sunday. But there was no violence and operations were not affected.

More than 12,000 riot police and private security personnel guarded the $2.8 billion facility in Narita, 40 miles north of Tokyo, against possible snark attacks by extremists.

Police reported some incidents of harassment and sabotage by the radical leftists but no damage serious enough to hamper operations.

The demonstrators rallied at the village of Sanrizuka outside the airport fence where they chanted slogans demanding the installation be shut down.

Bonnie and Clyde not heroes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Dr. Clarence Coffey, who says he still feels the effects of shots fired at him 45 years ago by gangsters Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow, said the public may consider the pair folk heroes but the victims did not.

Coffey, 84, of Kansas City was shot and wounded four times on July 19, 1933, as Bonnie and Clyde and their comrades, Buck and Blanche Barrow, attempted to elude authorities. Bullets struck him in one arm and also grazed his head, arm and leg.

"They shot me because they had to," Coffey said.

"People will feel like they're heroes like Robin Hood and Jesse James are heroes," he said. "But whoever thinks of the victims?"

Bonnie, Clyde and the Barrows were blamed in the deaths of 15 persons. Bonnie and Clyde died in a hall of more than a hundred bullets near Arcadia, La., on April 7, 1934.

"They were just young people back in the days when people were a lot poorer than they are now," he said. "My impression is just that they were wayward people."

The four gangsters arrived at Crown Tavern in Platte County, Mo., located near the present Kansas City International Airport, the afternoon of July 18, 1933. Their arrival was witnessed by Delbert Crabtree, 71, of Platte City, then a service station attendant at the tavern.

Crabtree said Clyde asked to see two tavern cabins and then rented them.

"The next morning she (Blanche) came over and got them breakfast paying for it in change, he said. "Then the car left with one or two of them

In it. They were going somewhere and buying medical supplies because some of them were wounded."

The manager of the tavern told a captain of the highway patrol, at the tavern eating lunch, of strange behavior exhibited by some of the guests.

"He checked it through and found out that the four people answered the description of the Barrow brothers and their women," said Coffey, whose father, Holt Coffey, was then Platte County sheriff.

Authorities attempted to make an arrest that night. The gangsters' car was blocked in a garage with only police and employees allowed to stay in the area. The attempt to block the car failed, however, and authorities were forced to back away under heavy gunfire.

"I had the (tavern) door open," Clarence Coffey said, "and when I saw my father go down I went out after him. When I stepped out the door I was the only target they had."

"Something shot off the heel of my shoe," he said. "Then one bullet hit me in the head — a little too deep to be called a graze."

"The next thing I knew I was in the tavern," being cared for by a waitress, Coffey said. "I looked at her and thought she was bleeding to death, but it was my blood spraying on her."

Bonnie and Clyde escaped.

Blanche, who was injured by flying glass, later was captured and held in the Platte County Jail until it was determined the young Coffey and the others injured would not die of their wounds. He said he visited Blanche at his father's jail after his wounds healed.

Thousands may starve in Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Tens of thousands of people in northern Ethiopia face a renewed threat of starvation as torrential rains hamper emergency efforts to get them food, diplomats said this weekend.

The diplomats said food shortages remain acute throughout the East African nation, posing the most serious problem currently facing the four-year-old Marxist military government.

"The shortage of grain in the towns and urban areas is alarming," Lt. Col. Mengistau Halle Mariam, chairman of Ethiopia's ruling Dergue, told a rally in Addis Ababa last week.

The rains, which in 50 years described as the heaviest in 50 years, have turned large areas of two northern provinces, Wollo and Tigre, into mires of mud impassable to trucks and relief vehicles.

Attempts to bring food to the area on pack animals also failed since the onset of the seasonal rains, and the government has resorted to dumping food supplies from airborne army helicopters, the diplomats said.

The crisis in Wollo and surrounding areas became critical in June, when the government reported that more than 1 million people were in danger of starvation because a drought wiped out the staple crop of barley.

In addition, crops in Wollo were reported to be infested with a deadly fungus, ergot.

Kissinger's Mind might help talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's Mideast peace efforts perhaps could use a touch of Henry Kissinger, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday.

Percy said the United States should use the very best minds available to break the Mideast stalemate and the former secretary of state in the Nixon and Ford administrations could be useful.

Percy said the negotiations cannot break down because of any setbacks at Camp David.

"If it falls I would say lets bring Henry Kissinger back in then," Percy said. "Let's try anything. Let's be totally non-partisan. Bring in the most experienced team we possibly can and not give up hope."

"There is no alternative other than to continue the process to try to bring them together. The best minds in this country should be brought to bear on this problem."

That blue 'bug' has electric power!

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — From the outside it's just another beat-up blue 1965 Volkswagen, with bumper stickers covering some of the larger fender dents. But a glance through the side window and the aging beetle loses its common identity.

Where the rear seat should be is a double row of six-volt batteries hooked in a continuous series. Instead of being a candidate for the junk pile, the unassuming Volkswagen is one of the few electric cars in Idaho. And if its builder, Bill Chisholm of Buhl, has anything to say about it, the electric bug will soon be zipping through the streets of Idaho's polluted capital city. Chisholm is a Democratic candidate this year for the House of Representatives. A central part of his platform, he says, is demonstrating there are alternatives to traditional methods of problem solving. His Jerry-rigged electric car, he says, is one method of dealing with oil embargoes and rising gas prices.

"It cost maybe $1,500, $1,600 to build, plus labor," Chisholm says, adding conversion of the beetle took four months. "But a lot of that was waiting for parts. Some parts I had to order from as far away as Massachusetts."

Chisholm, who calls himself a mechanic and a handyman, says he isn't an inventor; "I don't have any really special knowledge. By building this I think maybe I've demonstrated that an ordinary person can build one, and that the common man has a choice."

Chisholm pegs himself as an ordinary mechanic, but in Idaho he is far from an ordinary candidate, and if elected would hardly be your run-of-the-mill lawmaker.

In addition to his unusual mode-of-transportation there's the Indian tepee he calls home, nestled on 80 acres of Magic Valley farmland he co-owns with several friends. Then there's the hair. In a state legislature where lawmakers with crew cuts are considered suspiciously liberal, Chisholm's shoulder-length blond hair and scraggly beard would stand out like a spotlight in a dark room.

But the 33-year-old Chisholm is undaunted. He's been "fascinated with cheap, clean transportation" for several years, and the main point of his campaign is to interest people in that and other related ideas. Victory would be nice, he adds, and he hopes to win, but there's more to the campaign than that.

Chisholm calls the recent move by several auto companies to build electric cars "a great idea," but he points out most of those electric cars carry a price tag four and five times what his beetle cost.

And that beetle, if he wins his November election race against incumbent Republican Representative Bruce Brackett of Twin Falls, will be his transportation in Boise during the legislative session.

Chisholm hopes that will spark a few questions about the pollution of the capitol city — pollution caused almost entirely by auto exhaust and which at times exceeds levels registered in Los Angeles.

But the blue bug with the fading paint does have a few problems, he acknowledges.

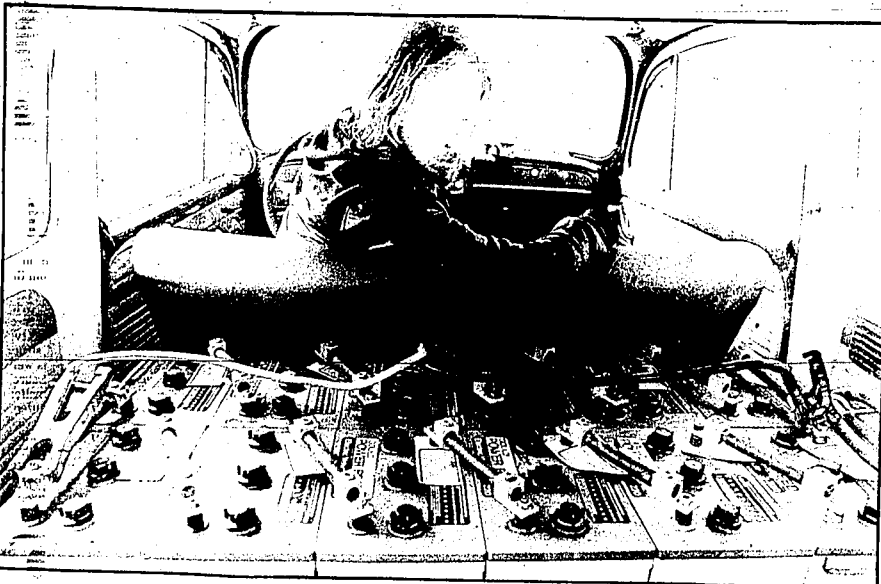

To begin with, it can normally travel only about 40 miles without needing a recharge.

"It's a commuter car," Chisholm says, adding a complete recharge of the batteries can take all night.

Then there's the question of the rear seat. There isn't one in Chisholm's car — sharply limiting the already limited passenger space in a Volkswagen.

But with all its problems Chisholm wouldn't trade his "juiced-up bug" for any of Detroit's latest gas guzzlers. And he insists the technology for development of electric cars — now coming into its own — has long been available.

"I talked with a guy a while back who told me about an electric car that was built in the 1930s that had a roof supported with solar panels," Chisholm said. "And when I heard about that car, and that we had abandoned" that technology, I almost cried.

Bill Chisholm of Buhl has unique transportation — an electric-powered car

Leos' future trips must be meaningful

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Carry through with the details of whatever plan of action you decided upon, but make it a point not to get into strict pioneering ventures. Study all phases of anything you undertake.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be restrained in going after personal desires and you get good results. Your business affairs should be handled with less emotion and more reason.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are the one who will have to get rid of obstacles in the path of your progress. Don't add to personal problems you already have.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use care with your friends since they are irritated and could cause you trouble if you back them. Use a new method to gain aims that have been difficult before this.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't take any risks with those who have power over your affairs or you meet with some serious reverses. Be particularly careful of credit matters.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Before you get into a new project, be sure you have first completed another important one. Make sure that trip you are contemplating is a necessary one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep any promises you have made to loved ones and get good results thereby. Stay on the logical side of life and feel better, accomplish more.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't harass a partner because of some situation that has developed and you do not understand it. Don't enter into any arguments of a public nature either.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although you are thinking of recreational pursuits, there is so much work ahead of you it is wiser to handle it instead. Cooperate more with co-workers and get good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get at your work with a smile and get it done efficiently, since recreational activities would only be met with delays and obstacles. Don't argue with loved one or matter could get serious.

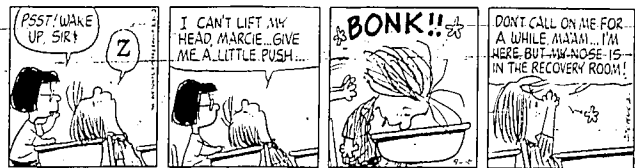

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't be so opinionated over some home affair, but listen to the views of others also. Come to a correct solution of the matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) The planets are not favorable for anything important you want to do, so wait for a better time. Be extra cautious in motion of any kind tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be careful of any purchases you make today and try to economize more. Improve your budget so that it runs more smoothly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will be able to spot errors and wrong thinking...so be sure to give the finest education you can to equip your child for a successful career. Teach to use these qualities in own undertakings for best results throughout the lifetime.

What's what

Anne Marie Grosholtz got ahead in life with masked labors

Poor Anne Marie Grosholtz! She had no choice. She was at the mercy of the rebels who took over Paris after the French Revolution. The heads of a number of the famous people who died on the guillotine were handed to her in sacks. She was forced to make death masks of them. It was this experience that led her later—after she became Madame Tussaud—to establish the world's most renowned wax museum in London.

U. S. presidents for 51 years had to step out into a booth in a hall in the White House to use the telephone there. Think of that, 51 years! Warn't until 1929 that the installers got around to putting a phone on the president's desk.

No one man alone could pick up the skin of a hippopotamus slaughtered after it's grown.

Beau Brummel sneered.

CHIP HUSTLER

Q. "What's a 'chip hustler' in the lingo of Las Vegas?"
A. A woman, usually quite attractive, who hangs around the gaming-tables—She plays-up to winning bettors, and eventually gets around to asking them for a few chips so she can play the games. But she doesn't bet them all away! She cashes them in at night's end. Quite a number of girls' work that little dodge. Some make between $300 and $400 a week at it.

Q. "Can an armadillo kill a snake?"
A. Can indeed. And how it does so is intriguing. Incidentally, the armadillo turns on its back and rolls over the snake, back and forth, to subdue it before the kill.

Q. "Where in this world can an airplane land at an altitude lower than most submarines can dive?"
A. How about on the Dead Sea which is 1,286 feet below sea level?

HEIGHT

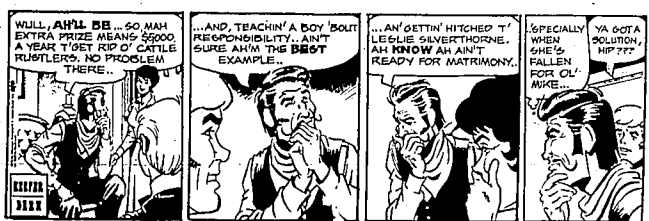

Note it claimed in print that a grown man is always at least as tall as his mother. Surely there are exceptions, no? It's also said that a healthy 12-year-old boy weighs exactly half of what he should weigh when fully grown. Fascinating, if factual.

The talent who has won more Academy Award Oscars for Best Actress than any other is Katharine Hepburn—with three—and she has never accepted any of them in person.

Ralph Cederholm watches American flag being lowered after ceremony marking Woodstone Retirement Center's first year

Woodstone fills most of capacity

TWIN FALLS — After one year of operation, Woodstone Retirement Center in Twin Falls has filled about 80 rooms of its 90-room facility.

Residents of the center observed the first year anniversary of the facility last week with a day-long program beginning with a flag raising and ending with evening entertainment.

Woodstone Retirement Center offers 90 large, modern rooms, each with private bath. It provides such special facilities as a beauty shop which is open two days a week which Yerta V. Thompson as operator, has a Mary Sunshine gift shop, whirlpool bath center, two large lounges, a dining room, activities center for exercises, quilting, ceramics and bible studies. Church services are held at the center each Sunday.

Administrator for Woodstone is Barbara Stearns and activities director is Ginny Wilcox.

On the occasion of the anniversary, Mrs. Mabel McClain Tarr, a resident of the center, donated her late husband's flag to the center. It was handed in ceremony in which past commander Frank Mogensen of Post 7, American Legion in Twin Falls, assisted Mrs. Tarr.

Dinner was served residents and special guests with Mrs. Evelina Lewis who has served as the center's cook the past year, preparing a special menu.

During the evening organ music was provided by Joyce Gee, organist for the First Christian Church of Kimberly, and Ken Stearns, vice-president in charge of marketing for the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, vocalist.

GM to warn Olds buyers of engines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Motors plans to install Pontiac engines in some of its 1979 Oldsmobiles and Buicks, a GM official said, adding that customers will be told before they buy cars.

David C. Hawkins, assistant administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, revealed the plan, saying he heard of the plan when GM asked for Clean Air certification of 301-cubic-inch V-8 engines, built by GM's Pontiac division, in Delta 88 Oldsmobiles and Century, Regal and LeSabre Buicks. The same engine is used in seven Pontiac models.

Hawkins alerted Albert H. Kramer, director of the Federal Trade Commission, in a letter.

"You may recall a similar use of Chevrolet engines in Oldsmobiles a year ago, generated considerable public outcry and court action against General Motors," Hawkins wrote.

A GM spokesman confirmed the plans but said technically there are no such things as "Pontiac engines" or "Buick engines" since all bear a common "GM" designation.

Investor concerns span wide range, send market tumbling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks suffered their worst loss in eight months this week as investors registered concern over the Camp David Middle East summit, higher interest rates and rampant gambling-stock speculation. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 28.41-point winner last week, plunged 22.13 points to 978.55, the steepest setback since it skidded 37.68 points Jan. 3-6. Thursday's 12.56-point setback was the worst in eight months.

Analysts said they were disappointed the Dow failed to hold above the 900 level after the market rallied 64 strongly last week. Many had thought a major upswing was underway. Now they feel the market is headed sharply lower.

The New York Stock Exchange index plunged 1.43 to 58.81, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index skidded 2.67 to 104.12. Declines roared advances, 1,266 to 686, among the 2,135 issues traded.

Traders cashed in on week-long gains and then sold heavily as uncertainties grew over President Carter's Middle East peace efforts.

"Saud Arabia made Wall Street shudder when it warned that Arab nations would examine protective options if President Carter's efforts with Egypt and Israel failed.

Among the other uncertainties hindering the market was the fate of the Carter administration's energy bill — and the House-passed tax-cut measure. There was speculation the bill to decontrol natural gas prices by 1985 would pass.

Meanwhile, banks raised their prime lending rate ¼ point to 9½ percent, a 3½-year high, and sparked Friday's selloff. The Federal Reserve, which tightened credit recently, reported a $1.7 billion surge in the nation's money supply — a hike that could put pressure on the Fed to tighten again.

Many analysts were disturbed by unprecedented speculation in gambling stocks, particularly in Resorts International, which pioneered casino gambling in Atlantic City. Resorts B stock soared 124½ points on the American Stock Exchange and the A stock climbed 56½, despite lighter margin requirements.

Big Board volume totaled 192,099,398 shares, compared with 157,152,650 in four days last Labor Day week and 87,510,370 during the same week a year ago.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 216,883,688 shares, compared with 177,619,330 last week.

Ramada Inns, the most active NYSE-listed issue, rose 5¼ to 49¼ after revealing it was looking for Atlantic City properties. Holiday Inns, which changed its gambling policies, was second, gaining 4¼ to 39¼.

Caesar's World climbed 19½ to 63¼ after the firm, armed with a $15.5 million mortgage commitment, broke ground for an Atlantic City casino. Del E. Webb, which bought some boardwalk property, rose 3¼ to 34¾. Howard Johnson, the fourth most active issue, rose 1¼ to 15¼.

Pan American World Airways, the third most active issue, fell 1¼ to 9¼, and National Airlines, fifth, added ¼ to 34¼. The carriers have agreed to merge, but Texas International Airlines won't drop its quest for National. The Justice Department doesn't want Pan Am or TIA to buy any more National stock.

Merger news influenced several other stocks. Green Giant soared 12¼ to 34¾ after receiving a merger offer from an unidentified suitor. Hanes Corp. jumped 9 to 58 after agreeing

Low inflation rate by 1984 will only follow recession

By ALAN D. MUTTER
©Chicago Sun-Times

Instead of shrinking from Big Brother in 1984, Americans could be basking in a 2 per cent inflation says a Wall Street economist.

Getting there, however, won't necessarily be fun. It'll take a recession next year to scale back the inflation that's now dangerously near 10 per cent, says Francis H.M. Kelly, the executive vice president in charge of research at Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co.

But he figures the recession will be a major step toward purging the nation's held economic myths that somehow allow inflation to happen, even though nobody wants it. Those are the myths of perpetual economic growth and the unflinching faith in the power of the government to make it happen.

"Inflation can only come to an end when the myths are shattered," writes Kelly in a recent missive titled, "In Praline of Folly: A Tract for Counter-revolution."

The Proposition 13 tax revolt is one of the first signs that the myths are tumbling, says Kelly. Called upon to pay ever-higher taxes as inflation erodes buying power, the pinched taxpayers are beginning to howl.

They wouldn't mind paying the taxes, if only the government could produce results.

When the government can't deliver as it inevitably can't — its "competence comes increasingly into question," says Kelly, predicting that the tax revolts springing up at the state level now will become a full-scale national issue in the 1980 presidential race.

Eventually, says Kelly, Congress will be goaded into adopting strict limits on federal spending.

If Kelly's and other economic forecasters are correct, the nation's laborers to climb out of the recession expected to begin in early 1979.

Kelly says this recession will result, as they always do, from "some major excess" caused by "a thorough misreading of the growth outlook." As we learn from the experience of past recessions, it becomes harder to make those mistakes, says Kelly. But we somehow manage to find new ones, anyway.

The wretched excess this time, says Kelly, was the collapse of the dollar on the international foreign-exchange markets.

As the dollar tumbled overseas, explains Kelly, the price of imported goods automatically rose in the United States. American businessmen took this as a signal that they, too, could raise the prices on goods produced domestically. And they were willing to suffer higher labor costs in order to rapidly boost production to take advantage of their newfound pricing power.

The economy boomed, but the inflationary consequences were enormous. Even though the dollar has continued sliding, says Kelly, "it is quite unlikely the hiring binge will be repeated in the months ahead — not because hiring has become too costly, but because the pace of inflation is now destroying real income growth."

"Faced with declining real take-home pay, and little prospect, this condition will suddenly reverse, the individual is about to become more cautious."

So it will come to pass, Kelly believes, that consumers will pull in their horns — and require the government to voters demand a lid on federal spending at home, but the government will be forced to take stern measures to halt the dollar's slide and prevent a recurrence in the future.

Struggle between New Elite, Left Behinds menaces nation

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A struggle between the "New Elite" and the "Left Behinds" threatens the roots of the nation's democratic system, a nationally-known political philosopher asserts.

"What is happening now has never happened before," attorney-philosopher David Lebedoff wrote in a recent issue of Esquire Magazine, "and it's most ominous result could be the death of democracy."

"For the first time in Western democratic tradition, many educated liberals no longer instinctively believe in majority rule," Lebedoff wrote. "They no longer believe all men are created equal."

In an article entitled "The Dangerous Arrogance of the New Elite," Lebedoff accuses the New Elite of attacking the principle of majority rule.

He described California's Proposition 13 as the result of a revolt by the Left Behinds against the New Elite and said it does not represent a swing to the right.

"The country is not becoming more conservative," Lebedoff wrote. "It is becoming more liberal — in terms of specific issues ... and the polls show that support to be steadily growing. The shift to the right that so many commentators perceive is really something else. It is the revolt of the Left Behinds."

Lebedoff, a 40-year-old attorney active in state Democratic politics and long-time friend of the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, described the New Elite as "the managers of society, the teachers, the journalists, the planners, the articulators of thoughts and standards."

The Left Behinds, he said, are the traditionalists, corporation presidents, top executives, manufacturers, businessmen, retailers, manual and clerical workers and salespeople.

"The most Left Behind occupation of all is holding public office — or at least that's the way it's supposed to work."

In New Elite society, Lebedoff wrote, "a Volvo wins more points than a Cadillac; a mink coat at a faculty party is a social disaster."

Illustrations accompanying the article identify Barbara Walters, Jerry Brown, Mort Sahl and Alexander Hamilton as examples of the New Elite.

Harry Reasoner, Robert Strauss, Bob Hope and Thomas Jefferson are portrayed as the Left Behinds.

The New Elite, Lebedoff says, use the wok, belong to Mensa, have polished wood floors and attended the Bronx High School of Science; the Left Behinds use the microwave oven, belong to the Socialist Party, have wall-to-wall carpeting and go to Phillips Exeter Academy.

The influence of the New Elite, he said, is far greater than their numbers.

"Real power is transferred in elections. Elections may be decided by the people, but the candidates are chosen by political parties. If the New Elite can gain control of one, or both, of the political parties, it can choose the candidates itself."

Go places to meet men

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: To get right down to the nitty-gritty, how does a reasonably intelligent, fairly attractive 26-year-old single woman meet men? I'm not frantically searching for a husband — nor even a "meaningful relationship" — but I wouldn't be adverse to it either.

can teach them. Either way, you can't lose.)

And last but not least — travel. Consider one of those affordable group tours. Get out and see the world, and the world will see YOU!

Above all, don't play games. If you find someone attractive, don't worry about who makes the first move. It's a whole new world out there. Help yourself.

DEAR ROBIN: I received no less than 100 letters this week asking the same question, so I'll kill 100 "Robins" with one stone and proffer the following:

The best way to meet decent men is through one's work, church, friends and interests — out in the mainstream of life. And no matter how lonely you are, avoid those lonely hearts clubs, singles bars and the phony computer dating services.

A girl who's in politics can make many new and interesting friends while gathering names for a petition, registering voters, or working on a campaign.

Don't overlook adult education classes in the evening — particularly subjects that appeal to men. (Scuba diving, aeronautics, auto mechanics, sailing.) You may find that you're the only woman in a class of 30 men. (Whoopie!!!)

Sports offer opportunities galore. If you're not keen on outdoor sports, try indoor sports. How about pool or billiards? If you live in a singles apartment with a pool table, pick up the cue. (Ha!) If you don't live in a singles apartment, visit a friend who does. Men hang around good pool players. (They even hang around poor ones so they

I have a son, 13, and you wouldn't believe how he detests soap and water. And to top it off, he doesn't even want to wear socks. The answer I get is, "None of the guys wear socks anymore, mom!"

When he comes home from school grimy and sweaty, and I tell him to show before supper, he tells me he had a shower in gym, so he doesn't have to shower at home. And he climbs into bed at night, exhausted, with dirty hair and filthy feet. You should see the bed sheets! You would think he had been working in the coal mines. And he sleeps until the last minute in the morning, so he's too rushed to shower then. Please Abby, how can I clean up this kid? I don't know how much longer I can take it.

Tennis court supporters seeking benefactor

By GARY ELIASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Supporters of new tennis courts in Twin Falls are hoping a benefactor might step forward with some needed money to help fund four or six courts.

The money is needed, says TFHS Athletic Director Duke Wiseman, after a drive to raise funds for six courts fell about $25,000 short of its goal.

About $27,000 was raised in a Jog-a-thon last spring, and he said this is far short of meeting the costs for either six or four courts.

After a meeting of the school board last week, the school district was authorized to seek bids for three courts (which would cost about $25,000) with alternate bids for four and six courts being added. After the bids are in, the board will take a look at the bids and make a decision which way to go.

The fact that only three courts might be built after a year long fund raising effort doesn't upset Wiseman. "I'm feeling pretty good," said Wiseman last week, after the board voted to ask for bids on three courts. "It's a very good start."

A 21-day publication period is required in calling for bids on a project like this.

Construction work, if the board gives the okay in October, could begin in this year, but the project probably wouldn't be completed until next spring.

Money is still the biggest factor in the size of the project. Wiseman presented cost estimates and site plans to the board for four and six courts. He said six courts would cost $53,600, while four courts would cost $36,822. These figures were obtained from Plexipave Co. of Yakima, Wash. which was involved in the laying of a new running track at the high school.

Money raised from a Jog-a-thon last spring totaled $27,520, the athletic director said. His reason for coming to the board was to see if it would make up the difference to build four or six courts.

The board indicated that no money was available and instead proposed that the tennis court backers think in terms of three courts.

David Woodhead

Differences mark Woodhead, Stivers legislative race

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — David Woodhead is walking against 40 years of history.

Door by door, handshake by handshake, the young Twin Falls businessman is campaigning in hopes of being the first Democrat elected to the Idaho Legislature from Twin Falls County since 1938.

That's no small task. Forty years ago Franklin Roosevelt was in the White House, and his lengthy electoral coalitions reached even into Idaho, pulling into office candidates whose sole qualification was allegiance to New Deal politics.

Those days are gone, and during the past four decades Twin Falls County has been solid Republican turf, a patch of ground on which Democrats ventured at their own risk.

Woodhead, 26, who is seeking the District 25 House Position "B" seat, is challenging incumbent Representative T.W. "Tom" Stivers, a well known area Republican and former county clerk.

And according to the election statistics Stivers is more than well known — he's well liked.

In 1974, when first elected to the legislature, Stivers had no opposition at all. In 1976, when opposed by an Independent, (no Democrat ran against him that year.) Stivers was re-elected with 75 percent of the votes cast.

But Woodhead, the owner of Magic Valley Window Service, says it's time for a change. There are many differences between himself and Stivers, and before the November general election Woodhead says he will visit every home and apartment in his district explaining those differences.

To date, Woodhead says he has visited "approximately 1,500" homes and apartments in the east Twin Falls County district, adding "it won't be long before I need a new pair of shoes." Each evening he averages about two hours of door-to-door canvassing after finishing work with his business.

But this will be no one-sided campaign. Stivers says he too will reach the entire district. While his job as president of Titlefact Inc., (he is also owner of Title Insurance Agency, president of Sawtooth Title Co., and president of Western Title Co.) keeps him "too busy" to do all of the campaigning, supporters will pick up the slack.

"I have a campaign committee of 15-20 people doing door-to-door work," Stivers says. "I will do what we can and I think we can cover it all."

During his four years in the House of Representatives Stivers has been a spokesman for the conservative wing of the GOP.

According to Democrats, that means Stivers is a far-right "obstructionist," a man more interested with the sound of his own voice than in constructive legislation.

But from conservative Republicans — who make up a majority of Idaho's GOP legislators — Stivers frequently receives support and praise.

Stivers also feels the conservative political movement is growing, and not just in Idaho. Even on today's college campuses, Stivers says, students are more conservative. Views he holds which once might have been criticized as too conservative, Stivers says, are now being accepted by more and more voters.

Both candidates are intelligent, personable and charming. Each has a sense of humor at its best in front of a crowd. But the similarity ends there. There are numerous issues dividing the two candidates, and each says their defeat or victory will rest on public reaction to those issues.

Blaine County school board delays bond issue decision

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Blaine County School Board shifted direction last week and moved to delay until January a final decision on a possible $2 million bond election.

After a regular meeting early in the week, board members indicated a school bond levy probably would be necessary to finance facilities expansion at three of the district's schools because of overcrowding.

Worried by possible effects of passage of the 1 percent initiative, the school board believed it had to have the bond election before the general election Nov. 7.

But a re-evaluation of the 1 percent initiative's effects led bond experts from Idaho First National Bank in Boise to change their advice to the school district Friday.

Originally the bank's bond experts said that if the initiative passed it could tie up a bond election for a minimum of 14 months following the general election.

At the board's special meeting Friday, bank officials said it now appeared as if the 1 percent initiative, if passed, would not go into effect until 1980.

The board quickly decided then not to rush a bond issue, which is estimated to range between $1.5 million and $2 million, and the board moved to hold off on a final decision until further information is gathered concerning the expansions needed at Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum, Carey School, Bellevue Elementary School and the Blaine County School District administrative offices.

"We've got to sell it (the idea of a bond election)," board member Ross Peck commented Friday, "and I don't know how fast it will go but we've got to do it right."

The board ordered Superintendent Norman Higdon to do a feasibility study and projections for the district and educational specifications for each building that needs expansion.

These materials are to be ready by November and the district's architect will then be given about three months to prepare cost estimates by which to set the bond issue.

Board members indicated that a bond election seemed likely in the future and they said they would try to make a decision on the size of the bond and the election date at their January meeting.

If they decide to go ahead with the election then, they said it would probably occur in early March.

School district architect Jim McLaughlin has estimated construction costs for the proposed new school facilities would run about $1.5 million.

Preliminary estimates showed expansion at Hemingway School costing $416,564; Bellevue school, $217,255; Carey, $478,536, and administration building, $339,905.

Two men survive wild ride in car

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Police said two Twin Falls men escaped serious injuries early Sunday morning after the car they were riding in went out of control on a curve, knocking down a fence and hitting a parked car and a tree stump before flipping on its top.

The police report identified the driver as Russel Eugene Burch Jr., 21, 93 Skyline Park, who was charged with driving while intoxicated.

A passenger ejected from the Burch vehicle was identified as Dave Andrus, 23, also of the same address. Both men, who weren't wearing seat belts, received only cuts and bruises, the police said.

According to the report, Burch was driving north in the 200 block of South Blue Lakes at 2:25 a.m. Sunday, traveling 70 to 80 mph in a 35 mph zone when he saw the curve.

The investigating officers said Burch's car left 114 feet of skid marks before sliding off the west side of the street and onto gravel in front of 298 S. Blue Lakes.

The car slid 78 feet in the gravel, knocking down a fence and shrubs before hitting head-on a parked car in front of 292 S. Blue Lakes owned by Brent and Lila Styhl, the report said.

The Styhl car was knocked backward with the Burch vehicle for 58 feet, before the latter car hit a tree stump between 292 and 282 S. Blue Lakes. The Burch vehicle sailed 20 feet through the air and landed on its top facing south, the report stated.

Police said both cars were totaled and estimated damage was $4,000 to Burch's car and $3,000 to the Styhl vehicle. There also was $1,000 damage reported to the 136 feet of fence and shrubs which were ripped up.

Accidents concern police

JEROME — Two accidents in front of Jerome High School just two weeks into the school year has raised the concern of police here.

Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall said every year there are more accidents than he can keep track of at the intersection of State Highway 25 and Mile 1 Road east, which meet in front of the school. This year the sheriff wants to do something about it.

Hall said bad driving is not the only reason for the high accident rate. The rising sun, he added, blinds drivers heading east to school in the early morning hours.

Blinding rays also make it hard for drivers to see oncoming cars as they look to either their left from Mile 1 Road.

Shawn Michael Vincent, a 16-year old high school student, may have had that problem when he had an accident at the hazardous intersection last week. Vincent was hurrying to school at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, perhaps a little late for his first class, when he failed to yield to an oncoming car at the crossing. Vincent pulled onto the highway and collided with Charlotte Carrico.

The next day Jimmy Black, also 16, crossed the intersection without waiting until it was clear. Black slammed into the car of Timothy Malone, 18, who was approaching from the east on Highway 25.

Hall said speeding is at the root of the problems at the intersection, and he's trying to get a traffic light installed there. But the sheriff is having a hard time convincing State Highway Department officials to put in the light because they say the intersection doesn't fit any of their eight qualifying categories for stoplights.

Executive director begins duty at local alcohol center

TWIN FALLS — A Los Angeles man and a Seattle woman have assumed responsibilities at the men's and women's alcoholic rehabilitation centers in Twin Falls.

Gregg J. Fuller, chairman of the board for the Magic Valley Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center Inc., said Barry Hogan Meyers is the new executive director in charge of both centers, and Donna Swain is the counselor for the Women's Crisis Center, Fuller said.

The two appointees replace Jim and Bees Butcher, fired by the board May 1 on what the board first termed was the couple's improper handling of the centers' finances and for not setting up an adequate alcoholic treatment program.

After a hearing with the Butchers, the board agreed to rewrite their termination letter, saying they had been fired because of policy differences.

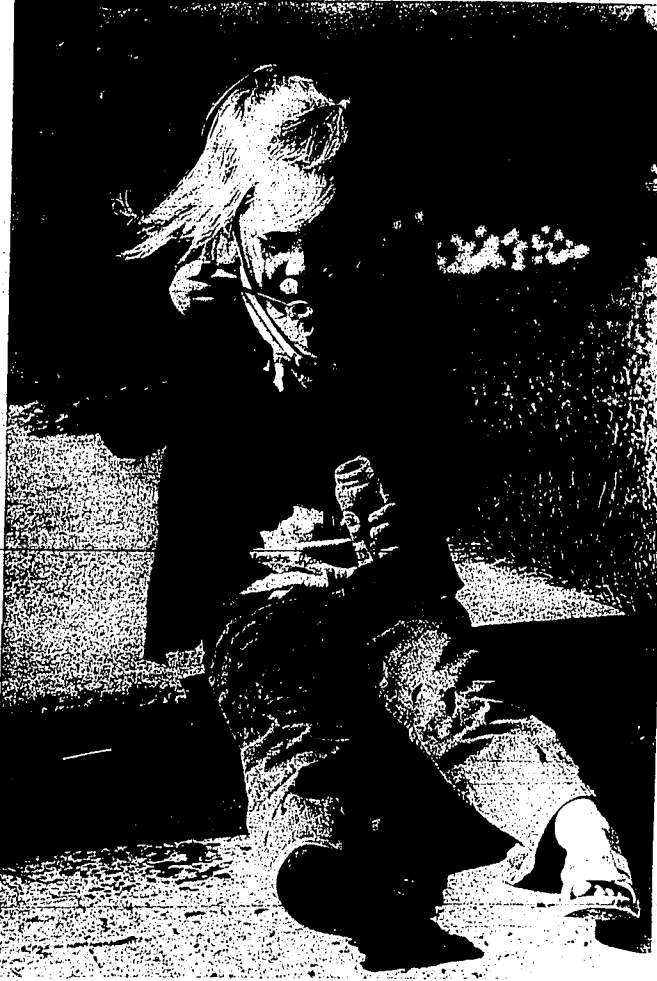

Counselor Edmond Cormier has been serving as director of both centers in the interim period, but is resigning his position at the end of the week.

Meyers, who took over the Twin Falls job Sept. 11, was assistant director of the Behavioral Health Services Social Model Detoxification Center and supervisor of the Wayback Inn Residential Alcoholism Program in Los Angeles. Meyers also helped start and was coordinator of services of the Sanlivia Foundation prior to that. Sanlivia is a non-profit organization offering outpatient drug and alcoholism programs at Los Angeles' Queen of Angels Hospital.

Miss Swain is a registered nurse and certified alcoholic treatment counselor. She worked at the Riverfront General Hospital alcoholic treatment center and with the Cabrini Hospital Alcohol Program in Seattle prior to moving to Twin Falls.

The Duluth, Minn., native finished a five-year nursing program at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., which is affiliated with Fairley Hospital School of Nursing in Minneapolis.

Woodhead, Stivers differ on legislative problems

One of the sharpest divisions between the two is the 1 percent initiative. Stivers has been one of the stronger supporters of that budget busting bill. What changes that measure needs to become operative can be made by the next session of the legislature. Woodhead not only opposes the 1 percent initiative, but disagrees the legislature can ever smooth its rough edges.

"It's bad legislation," Woodhead says. "Mr. Stivers says the initiative can be fixed by the legislature. I don't believe it. If it could be fixed by the legislature then why didn't the last legislature, of which he was a part, give us some sort of adequate tax reform. They didn't. They failed to do it."

Woodhead also says the initiative is "unconstitutional," would "encourage land speculation," could "increase taxes on farmers," and might raise taxes on some Twin Falls homes.

But that isn't the only issue separating the two candidates. What follows is just a partial list of issues where the two legislative aspirants fall on differing sides of the fence.

Mandatory Minimum Sentencing. Stivers is the legislative sponsor of two proposed constitutional amendments which will be on the November ballot. The measures give the legislature power to impose mandatory minimum sentences for certain specified crimes.

"Basically it's a step to getting the vicious criminal off the street, putting him in prison and keeping him there," Stivers says. "Our interim committee studies showed 52 percent of the people now in the penitentiary are there for passive crimes, non-violent crimes." Those persons should be given short sentences, fined, and forced to pay for the harm their crime caused, Stivers says. Mandatory minimum sentencing would insure "perpetrators of vicious crimes are the ones locked up for a long time."

Woodhead disagrees. "Mandatory minimum sentencing is a simplistic solution to the problem," he says, adding it prevents a judge from considering the differing circumstances of each case. Woodhead says taking the flexibility out of the judicial system might mean mandatory minimum sentencing would be declared illegal by the courts.

Woodhead also says such a system "would cost us a tremendous amount of money in prison facilities, not to mention courtroom costs. We cannot finance mandatory minimum sentencing, so what you will see instead is a tremendous increase in plea bargaining. There will just be a lot of wheeling and dealing between prosecutors and defense attorneys because the prosecution will know how cluttered the courtroom and prisons will be."

8 Mill Bill. In this year's legislature Stivers voted for the bill which would have eliminated the 8 mill local school tax, a measure later vetoed by Gov. John Evans. Stivers says the bill was a good attempt to give property tax relief to the people of Idaho.

Woodhead disagrees, and says that was a bad vote. "This bill would have given most of the tax relief to corporations and utilities and not to individual homeowners and property owners," Woodhead says. "The people of Idaho realized this and they wrote to Gov. Evans asking him to veto the bill. His mail ran 7.5 to 1 in favor of a veto."

Right to Work. Stivers has been a strong supporter of a "right to work" law. Such a measure would make the union shop job contract illegal in Idaho. Under such a job contract, now permitted but not required in Idaho, a worker must join a union after obtaining employment.

During the 1977 legislature, where this was an emotional issue, Stivers argued the real issue was "freedom of choice." No worker, he then said, should be "forced" to join a union.

Again, Woodhead disagrees, saying the right to work bill was an attempt at "union-busting." Right to work laws "are an attempt to stack the deck against one part of the argument between unions and business. I don't agree with everything unions do, but I don't want to scrap them altogether. For without them, the little guy, the worker, the man who makes it all possible, has no voice in his future."

"I don't believe in unions right or wrong," Woodhead says, "but neither do I believe in business right or wrong. What we need is a balance between the two."

Sunshine Law. In 1977 Stivers was one of only 18 legislators who supported House Bill 244. That measure — which would have eliminated many of the key provisions of the disclosure act — was strongly criticized by both Democrats and Republicans as an attempt to destroy the Sunshine Law.

Stivers, however, says the bill in question would only have made the Sunshine Law more workable, while "getting rid of some of the nitpicking disclosure requirements."

Stivers adds that he sees some "advantages to the Sunshine Law" and "in some of the reporting requirements. I think it has some value."

Woodhead disagrees with this vote also. "I believe in the Sunshine Law," Woodhead says. "It's a means by which the citizens of this state can discover the source of our elected officials' financial backing. It's a good law and needs to be supported — not repealed as Mr. Stivers would do."

Woodhead pointed out that Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa, a Republican, said the measure in question would "gut" the Sunshine Law, "not just amend it as Mr. Stivers says."

Land Use Planning. In this year's legislature Stivers voted to repeal the Local Planning Act of 1975 — Idaho's only statewide land use planning act. The attempt to repeal the law died in the house after a close vote.

"I just don't think the state land use planning law is effective," Stivers says. "It's the same old story of the state trying to impose a directive statewide. It's like the federal government trying to impose a land use planning act on all the states. It's hard for someone in New Jersey to tell us what is good in Twin Falls." Stivers adds that he does support a county prepared and controlled land use planning act.

Woodhead says he would have voted differently. "It's precisely because we don't have adequate plans that Idaho is daily becoming more like California. We have to stop urban sprawl. I'm not saying we can keep Idaho from growing, that's absurd. But we have to plan that growth or we will end up with the same problems people are coming here to avoid."

Both candidates say their race will be devoted entirely to the issues, a comment heard from many politicians in an election year. But in this particular House of Representatives race there should be enough issues to keep both candidates talking until November.

Red Sox keep flickering pennant hopes alive

YORK (UPI) — Jerry Remy knocked in a pair of hits a single and a sacrifice fly and Butch Hobson in two others Sunday to spark a 7-3 Boston victory over New York Yankees which kept the Red Sox in pennant hopes alive.

By tapping a four-game Yankee winning streak and a five-game losing skid, the Red Sox moved back in 2½ games of the division-leading Yankees in the tie.

On Sept. 1, the Red Sox scored their three decisive runs over Sparky Lyle in the eighth inning. Carlton Fisk with a walk, Frank Duffy singled and George Scott on a 6-3 slump by doubling home Fisk. That day Lyle and brought on Ken Clay, who was 1 by Hobson's two-run double down the third base Chambless, a walk to Roy White and another single by Gary Thomsom, got back two runs in their half of the eighth thanks to errors by Hobson and Remy.

The Red Sox, hitting just .185 as a team for the month of September, scored their first run in the third when Rick Burleson led off with a single, stole second and came home on a bloop single to left by Carl Yastrzemski, whose 14th homer gave Boston its final run in the ninth.

Boston made it 2-0 in the fifth on a single by Dwight Evans, Burleson's sacrifice and Remy's single. A walk to Evans, Burleson's ground rule double into the right field seats and Remy's sacrifice fly made it 3-0 in the seventh.

Jim Beattie, 5-8, went seven innings and gave up the first three Boston runs in taking the loss. Bob Stanley hurled the last 2-13 innings to notch his ninth save.

In another key American League game, Frank White and George Brett hit back-to-back third-inning homers and Dennis Leonard fired a five-hitter to pace the Kansas City

Royals to a 5-0 victory over the California Angels.

The loss dropped California 4 1-2 games back of Kansas City and reduced the Royals' magic number for winning a third-straight Western Division title to nine. The Angels are now six games back in the loss column with just 11 to play.

Losers Frank Tanana, 17-11, set down the first eight Kansas City batters of the game before White launched his sixth home run of the year into the left field seats. Brett followed on the very next pitch with his seventh homer over the wall in right-center field.

Kansas City added two more runs in the fifth on a walk to Brett and back-to-back doubles by Hal McRae and Amos Otis. The Royals finished off the scoring in the seventh on a double by Fred Patek and a single by Brett.

Leonard struck out three and did not walk a batter in upping his record to 18-17. It was his fourth shutout and 18th complete game of the season. In Arlington, Texas, Richie Zisk had three hits and drove in two runs and Jon Matlack pitched a six-hitter Sunday to lead the Texas Rangers to a 3-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

Zisk put the Rangers ahead 2-0 with a single in the first off loser Rick Langford, 7-12, that scored Bump Wills and John Grubb, who had opened the inning with back-to-back singles and moved into scoring position on Al Oliver's fielder's choice grounder.

The Rangers added another run in the third. Zisk singled and went to second on a Juan Beniquez single. A throwing error by A's third baseman Wayne Gross moved Zisk to third. Zisk then scored on a Jim Sundberg single.

Matlack, 13-13, walked none and struck out nine in going the distance for the 16th time this season. He lost his shutout in the fourth when Rico Carty blasted his 29th home run.

Rams' defense gives Cowboys few lessons

ANGELES (UPI) — Pat Haden led the Rams to a 43-yard win pass with 7:13 remaining in the fourth quarter as they defeated the Los Angeles Rams 27-14 over the defending Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

The Rams intercepted a Staubach pass and gave the ball to the Rams on a 37 with 5:37 on the clock, as the Rams improved their record to 10-4 head coach Ray Malavasi by dropping them one game below .500 in the NFC East.

Fashington in the NFC East's long pass to Miller in the end zone snapped a 14-14 tie, as the Rams 5-foot-9 cornerback followed the brilliant Cowboy sack with his interceptions, but passes that Staubach had to try the Rams.

Buccaneers win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers turned three Minnesota mistakes into scores Sunday en route to a 18-10 upset over the perennial NFC Central Division champion Vikings.

The Buccaneers converted a recovered fumble into a field goal and a pass interception into a touchdown for a 9-7 lead in the first half. They scored again in the third quarter after their punt touched a Viking. Tampa Bay grabbed the ball on the Minnesota 5-yard line and Doug Williams passed for a touchdown.

Minnesota had a chance in the last two minutes. In the waning moments, Coach Bud Grant sent in sophomore quarterback Tommy Kramer for veteran Fran Tarkenton for the second straight game. Kramer led the Vikings to an overtime win against Denver Monday night, but his second pass was intercepted by Cecil Johnson, ending the threat.

It was the first victory in three games for Tampa Bay, Minnesota, which was upset by New Orleans on opening day, dropped to 1-2.

Seattle's first

NEW YORK (UPI) — David Sims' third touchdown of the game, a 3-yard run with 10:20 left to play Sunday, brought the Seattle Seahawks their first victory of the season, a 24-17 upset of the previously unbeaten New York Jets.

Sims' burst around right end to snap a 17-17 tie was set up by a 3-yard run by quarterback Jim Zorn off a fake field goal attempt that gave Seattle its first and goal at the Jets' two-yard line.

Sims, who finished with 121 yards, scored twice in the first half on runs of four and two yards and Efren Herrera kicked a 43-yard field goal for the Seahawks. Clark Gaines scored on runs of one and five yards and Pat Leahy hit a 37-yard field goal for the Jets.

With the score tied 17-17 after three periods, Zorn took the Seahawks 65 yards in 14 plays, aided by five jet penalties. Sims had runs of 25 and 12 yards and a key facemask penalty on Jets tackle Abdul Salaam after a 10-yard sack and a pass interference penalty gave Seattle automatic first downs.

On a fourth-and-2 from the Jets' 7-yard line, Seattle lined up in a field goal formation and Zorn, the holder, spun out and drove 5 yards off left tackle to the two. Sims went in two plays later for the TD.

The Jets last hopes faded with 1:55 remaining when Bill Gregory and Peter Cronan threw jet quarterback Richard Todd for a 10-yard loss after New York had moved to the Seattle 30.

Ron Streck wins open in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Young Ron Streck, who had finished no better than 14th in his two-year career on the PGA tour and who was in danger of losing his playing card, shot from the pack with a closing-round 62 Sunday and captured the Texas Open by a single stroke.

Streck, 24, had barely made the cut with an even-par 140 after two rounds, but he strung together closing rounds of 63 and 62 for a 72-hole total of 15-under-265.

That was just good enough to edge Lon Hinkle and Hubert Green, each of whom were at 266. Next came third-round leader Ben Crenshaw, alone in fourth place at 266 after missing a 10-foot "birdie" putt on the 17th hole and three-putting the final hole for a bogey.

Crenshaw said after Saturday's round that "the only person who could beat me was myself," and he shot a 50-so 1-under-par 69 Sunday.

Streck joined the tour last year out of the University of Tulsa and earned only $11,014 — 143rd on the money list. And this year was even worse until his come-from-behind finish over the Oak Hills Country Club course Sunday.

He had picked up only $6,832 and had won money in just eight of 32 tournaments in which he had entered until he won the Texas Open first prize of $40,000.

Now, instead of losing his right to play on the tour, he is exempt from qualifying for next year and will be issued an invitation to play in the Masters and the Tournament of Champions.

"I'm still a little bit in shock," said Streck. "I think what kept me going was when I figured out that all the other guys out there are human beings just like I am."

Broncos survive late scare

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Broncos scored two touchdowns within the last four minutes of the game on a 75-yard punt return by Rick Upchurch and a 20-yard run by Lonnie Perrin Sunday for a 27-14 triumph over the San Diego Chargers.

The Chargers had led 14-13 until Upchurch returned the punt for the TD with 3:17 left. Denver followed with Perrin's burst on their next possession to score with 1:33 remaining.

Quarterback Dan Fouts led the Chargers to two second-period touchdowns, but with 3:17 to go, the Bronco defense held the Chargers at their own 26, and Jeff West kicked a 49-yard punt. Upchurch took the line on his own 25, slipped through a ball of Chargers and raced down the left sideline for the go-ahead touchdown.

Denver's other touchdowns came on a 2-yard pass from backup quarterback Norris Weese to Rick Egloff and a 1-yard run by Perrin. Jim Turner missed the extra point after Perrin's first touchdown.

Fouts scored on a 2-yard rollout and connected with rookie John Jefferson on a 20-yard scoring pass.

Denver scored initially in the first quarter on an 89-yard drive started by a 20-yard run by Otis Armstrong up the middle. Craig Morton hit Haven Moses on a 25-yard completion and Perrin went around right end for 19 yards to the Chargers' 14.

Following two consecutive offside penalties, Weese was called in for his only play of the first half. Weese, a more dangerous runner than Morton, rolled to the right and tossed the ball into the end zone to Egloff.

San Diego didn't get a first down until the final play of the first quarter, but Fouts led the Chargers to a pair of quick touchdowns and a 14-7 halftime lead. The touchdowns were the first scored against the Broncos this season.

Fouts engineered two quick scoring drives, which held up until the fourth period. The first drive consisted primarily of passes to his backs, as Fouts completed a pair of passes to Bo Matthews and hit Lydell Mitchell for 15 and 17 yards. With the ball on the 10, Fouts rolled around right end and went into the end zone untouched.

San Diego's second score, on the next series, followed a 23-yard pass from Fouts to Bob Klein. Matthews went up the middle for 3 before Fouts looped the scoring pass into the end zone to Jefferson.

Ali plans world trip to help people

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Muhammad Ali is to reap the rewards of victory, but not for himself.

He got so many things going on. "All said leaving New Orleans for a week of rest at in Chicago. "I'm going to South Africa, to the Mideast. Gonna make a movie, bring to starving people, flood victims, help all around the world. I'm gonna use the friendship to help, eight months then devote full time to sixing people."

His face was still a little swollen and he had purple bruises under both of his eyes two after he became the first man in boxing to win the world heavyweight championship three times.

At the age of 36, Ali is one of the oldest heavyweight champions ever and his one-sided unanimous decision over 25-year-old Leon Spinks at the Louisiana Superdome Friday night ended the shortest reign in heavyweight history — seven months.

— Ali didn't completely rule out the possibility he would fight again, but he isn't eager to return to the grind of training.

"I killed myself to get ready for Spinks," Ali said. "I suffered and sacrificed more than I ever did. There's nothing left for me to gain by fighting."

Ali is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association. Asked whether he would fight Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council champion, for a possible $5 million purse and try to reunite the title, Ali said:

"Who's Larry Holmes? His title don't mean nothing. He was my sparring partner, he ain't no champ. I'm the champ. I got nothing to gain by fighting him. It don't make sense. No, this was my last fight. I'm not making any promises, not signing any contracts, but I don't want to fight again."

All said he will devote himself to his new organization called WORLD — World Organization for Rights, Liberty and Dignity.

"I can't just go fishing," Ali said. "Man, my life's just starting. I ain't old. I'll travel and organize and get my people, sisters and brothers of all races and colors, to work for God. Moslems and Christians and Jews all together."

Patriots face punchless Colts

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — New England Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks says he's not concerned about his club being heavy favorites to knock off the punchless Baltimore Colts in their Monday night nationally televised game.

"I don't pay any attention to that sort-of-thing. The points, whatever they are, don't mean a thing. We should have plenty of incentive because they won the division last three years," Fairbanks said.

Baltimore, outscored 4-30 in its first two games and 18 point underdogs, will once again be without starting quarterback Bert Jones, who has a shoulder injury. The Colts also will be without tackles George Kunz and David Taylor and linebacker Stan White.

"We seem to be losing people in pairs," said Baltimore coach Ted Marchibroda. "I try to think of something comparable off the top of my head, but nothing comes to mind with anything like this. But we go into every football game thinking we have a chance to win."

The Patriots will be missing strong safety Freddie McCreary, who has undergone minor knee surgery, and possibly placekicker John Smith, who has a muscle pull. Punter Jerrel Wilson will kick in Smith's place.

Fairbanks noted the Patriots played the Colts three years ago with an injury-riddled squad that had only 33 healthy players. The Colts, who already clinched the division title, had to come from behind to post a 34-21 win.

"We've had plenty of evidence of rivalry between these two teams. This is an important divisional game for us," Fairbanks said.

There also may be a little revenge motive in many Patriots' minds. The Patriots and Colts were to have clashed on the final day of the season last year for the AFC East title. But Baltimore lost the week before when they refused to take an intentional safety, throwing the Patriots out of contention for the playoffs.

Pats' offensive tackle Leon Gray said the team would have to guard against the kind of complacency that saw them lose their opener 16-14 to Washington despite being 10-point favorites.

"We've had a tendency in the past to take these kind of games lightly. We've learned our lesson. They kept us out of the playoffs and we don't want that kind of thing to happen again," Gray said.

McEnroe seeded

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — John McEnroe, fresh from leading the U.S. team win in the American Zone finals of the Davis Cup series, is the top seed in the $75,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament beginning here Monday.

We certainly approve a two-splinter opening. We can make gains in a major suit with practically nothing in partner's hand.

Bradshaw fires up Steelers

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw fired touchdown passes of 23 and 12 yards and Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier each ran for touchdowns Sunday to power the unbeaten Pittsburgh Steelers to a 28-3 rout of the winless Cincinnati Bengals.

Bradshaw, off to the best start of his career, rifled TD passes of 23 yards to Bennie Cunningham and 12 yards to Lynn Swann, shredding the Bengals' defense by completing 14-of-19 passes for 242 yards.

Giants roll

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Joe Pisarcik threw two first-quarter scoring passes and set up a third touchdown with a 46-yard pass to tight end Al Dixon Sunday to spark the New York Giants to a 29-10 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Bears by nine

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Chicago's Walter Payton converted a fumbled punt by Detroit into a 1-yard touchdown run and defensive end Tommy Hart turned a Greg Landry passing attempt into a safety Sunday, keying a 12-point third quarter that helped the Bears keep their record spotless with a 19-0 victory over the Lions.

The Bears' ninth straight regular season win left them 3-0, while their NFC Central Division rivals slipped to 1-2. A crowd of 63,382 saw the Lions shut out at home for the first time since Los Angeles did it, 29-0, in 1975.

Browns 3-0

ATLANTA (UPI) — Quarterback Brian Sipe, abandoning the running game because of the absence of injured Greg Pruitt Sunday, threw two second-quarter touchdown passes and scored another himself to lead the undefeated Cleveland Browns to a 24-16 triumph over the Atlanta Falcons.

The Browns, now 3-0, erupted for 17 points in the second quarter. Don Cockroft opened the period with a 43-yard field goal and Sipe added TD passes of two and 27 yards to Ozzie Newsome and Reggie Rucker, respectively, the second coming with only 13 seconds left in the first half.

Oakland on top

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Mark Van Eeghen gained 151 yards to highlight a devastating Oakland rushing attack Sunday and the Raiders overcame four Ken Stabler interceptions en route to a 28-3 rout over the Green Bay Packers.

The Raiders got three touchdowns on the ground, two by Arthur Whittington in the final quarter. Van Eeghen didn't score, but he paced the Oakland running game — which accounted for 348 yards — with 151 yards in 23 carries.

The win gave the Raiders a 2-1 record and dropped Green Bay to the same mark.

Oilers by one

HOUSTON (UPI) — Quarterback Dan Pastorini drove Houston 78 yards in the final minutes and Austrian place-kicker Toni Fritsch kicked a 19-yard field goal with 1:20 left Sunday to lift the Oilers to a 20-19 victory over the winless San Francisco 49ers.

Eagles' first

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski threw touchdown passes of 19 and five yards to wide receiver Harold Carmichael Sunday and the Philadelphia defense blunted a late threat to preserve the Eagles' 24-17 triumph over the New Orleans Saints.

Jaworski, who completed 14-of-23 passes for 182 yards, sparked the Eagles to 17 second-half points after a 7-7 halftime tie.

The win was the Eagles' first of the season in three games. New Orleans also has a 1-2 record after an opening win over Minnesota and consecutive losses to Green Bay and Philadelphia.

Miami wins

MIAMI (UPI) — Reserve running back Gary Davis ran 65 yards down the left sideline for a touchdown late in the third quarter Sunday to lead the Miami Dolphins to a 31-24 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

Davis' TD gave the Dolphins some needed insurance, as Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson later found receiver Frank Lewis alone on the right side behind the Dolphins' secondary for a 92-yard scoring pass.

Miami regained a two-touchdown lead with 5:02 left in the game when Delvin Williams capped a nine-play, 78-yard drive by scooting 18 yards for a score, but Buffalo came back with 1:31 to play on a 4-yard pass from Ferguson to running back Roland Hooks.

The Dolphins began their 17th straight win over the Bills in the first period when fullback Leroy Harris punched over from four yards out. Buffalo tied the score in the second quarter on a 1-yard sweep by rookie running back Terry Miller, but the Dolphins went up 14-7 at the half on a 6-yard scoring pass over the middle from Don Strock to Andre Tillman.

Redskins again

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rookie Tony Green returned a kickoff 99 yards and Joe Theismann threw touchdown passes to Jean Fugett and Clarence Harmon Sunday, lifting the Washington Redskins to a 28-10 victory over the winless St. Louis Cardinals.

Theismann completed 5-of-12 passes for 59 yards before being replaced by Billy Klimer late in the third quarter with the Redskins holding a 28-3 lead.

Donna Caponi Young ends one-year slump

ALAMO, Calif. (UPI) — Donna Caponi Young ended a two-year slump Sunday to win the $100,000 LPGA Alamo Open by five strokes over defending champion Jane Blalock.

The 33-year-old Young closed out the field with a final round 2-under-par 71 that gave her a 72-hole score of 10 under 282 and a prize of $15,000.

Although Young hadn't won a tournament since taking three consecutively in 1976, she had finished in the top 10 on 14 occasions this year. Her victory Sunday boosted her 1978 earnings to $74,093.

A 25-foot birdie on the next-to-last hole gave Young a four-shot lead over Blalock, who had a final round 72. Young closed out the day with another birdie on the final hole, rolling in a four-footer.

When she chipped in on 17, Young jumped for joy, because she said she knew then she had the tournament won.

Bobby Allison roars to 48th career win

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., took the lead with 180 miles to go Sunday and roared to his 48th career win and a NASCAR Grand National victory in the $124,000 Daytona 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway.

Allison averaged 119.363 mph in a Ford Thunderbird and finished nearly 20 seconds ahead of Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., a five-time winner at Dover Downs.

Yarborough edged Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., in a hectic duel over the last 10 laps. David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., was fourth with Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., fifth.

Allison, who won $14,600, started second behind J.D. McDuffie of Sanford, N.C., who had the pole position for the first time in his NASCAR career. But McDuffie led only the first 10 laps before falling back when his tires blistered.
