©New York Times Service
 DAMASCUS, Syria — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance concluded his latest Middle East tour here Sunday without winning any open endorsements for the Camp David agreements but with assurances on all sides of continuing dialogue.

During the United States secretary's first two stops in Jordan and Saudi Arabia, where he had hoped to get support for the American-sponsored peace process, he was questioned and received many complaints. But there were polite refusals to join the Camp David club under the present conditions.

In Damascus, which has just been host to an Arab summit conference against Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the Camp David agreements, Vance's aspirations were not so high. The secretary, on good authority, hoped at best to persuade Syria to restrain its more radical allies, namely the Palestine Liberation Organization, and at least to keep an open line.

After five hours with Syrian President Hafez al Assad — two more hours than he had planned — Vance said the talks had been "helpful to me" and stressed that he and the Syrian president had agreed to continue the dialogue.

"We share the hope for a comprehensive and just peace in the area which takes into account the aspirations of all the region's people," Secretary Vance said in a brief farewell message at the airport. His Syrian counterpart, Foreign Minister Abdelhalm Khaddam, said nothing.

Syria's President Assad, who emerged from this week's summit meeting here as the leader of the anti-Sadat Confrontation Front, clearly aimed to keep his options open, and the Vance visit was there to prove it.

The front, which groups Syria, Algeria, Libya, South Yemen and the PLO, rejected the Camp David accords outright and announced measures to isolate Sadat, reinforce the opposition camp and reinforce relations with the Soviet Union.

The front announced that it would break off political and economic relations with Egypt, set up a unified military command and convert itself into a structured political organization.

The measures were not new but had been declared intentions when the front was created last December after Sadat's journey to Jerusalem that began his unilateral peace drive.

The inaction of the front had led observers to question its credibility.

and strong doubts had been expressed about its ability to put the new measures into effect. However, leaders of the summit meeting here explained that until the Camp David agreements, Sadat's opponents had generally believed that the peace initiative would fail and that he would return to the Arab camp. For this reason, they explained, nothing was done to implement the decisions of the Tripoli conference.

Now, however, even the most moderate Syrian leaders have expressed conviction that Sadat is "lost" and ready to sign a separate peace, and for this reason the front had to take concrete action.

Sinai terms win OK

©New York Times Service
 JERUSALEM — The Israeli cabinet, by a vote of 11-2, on Sunday approved the two frameworks for peace in the Middle East signed by Egypt and Israel at the Camp David summit talks.

The cabinet also overwhelmingly voted to remove, as part of a peace treaty, Israeli settlements in the Sinai Desert, which was captured from Egypt during the 1967 war.

The cabinet votes came after an eight-hour closed meeting. It was the prelude to a major parliamentary debate on the Camp David agreements and on an ultimatum by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat that the Israeli settlements in the Sinai must be withdrawn if there is to be a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel.

That debate, one of the most important in Israel's tumultuous 30-year history, begins today in the Knesset, or parliament. Prime Minister Menachem Begin will lead off the session. Another scheduled speaker today is Shimon Peres, the Labor Party opposition leader.

Predictions here are that the 120-member Knesset will ratify the Camp David agreement and will vote, albeit with reluctance, to remove the 18 Israeli settlements in the Sinai. Most of the settlements are in a northern portion of the sandy peninsula in the region along the Mediterranean Sea called the Rafah Salient.

The key Knesset vote is not expected until Wednesday after an exhaustive debate has been held.

Before entering the cabinet meeting Sunday, Begin said the cabinet would support the results of the Camp David talks. In a reference to the Sinai settlement decision, he said: "I am sure the cabinet will support the accords, even though some ministers had some objections to the sad and difficult decision that must be made."

According to reports here, two members of the Likud faction of the ruling Likud Party, voted against removing the Sinai settlements. They were the minister of commerce, industry and tourism, Yigal Hurwitz, and the minister of health, Eliezer Shostak.

In addition four other ministers abstained, including the three representatives of the National Religious Party, a partner in Begin's coalition government.

Ore vein yields gold, silver, lead

HAILEY — Geologists said it wasn't there, but Gordon Nicholas found what a man "spends his whole life looking for" in the hills near Hailey.

Nicholas, a Norland farmer and prospector, has uncovered an ore vein containing gold, silver and a metal experts say cannot be found there — lead.

If his guess is correct, the ore deposit could be rich enough to warrant opening a mine in an area where miners packed up and left more than seven decades ago.

Nicholas, 64, came to Idaho 25 years ago with about 600 other farm families to claim a sagebrush-covered homestead north of Rupert in what was to become the Northside Pumping Division of the Minidoka Project.

In 1966, he bought three mining claims on Rock Creek west of Hailey where neighboring mines such as the Camas No. 2, the Tip Top and the Black Cinder had produced millions of dollars worth of gold in the 1880s and '90s when the area was known as the Hailey Gold Belt.

In 1945 Alfred Anderson and Warren Wagner, two University of Idaho geologists, had surveyed the area and reported miners had left the area relatively untouched since before 1910.

In a pamphlet for the Idaho Bureau of Mines and Geology in 1946, the two reported, "The district holds some promise and is worthy of more attention than it has received in recent years."

They reported finding no lead of any commercial value in the sage-covered hills of the Hailey Gold Belt.

At the time of their survey, the geologists wrote, the gold belt was the least known mining area in the state. And books written about Idaho's colorful mining history bear them out.

Popular maps of well-known Idaho mining towns, leave the area blank. The maps favor such famous mining camps as Mullan, Sawtooth City, Vienna, Galena City and Broadford. Not one map pinpoints the abandoned mining town of Donphan on the flat below the Camas mine.

Gold was discovered at Camas No. 2 in 1865 but mining did not get into full swing there until about 1886. It closed down in 1898 and was reopened twice thereafter for short times.

In its short history, the Camas mine yielded $1.25 million worth of gold. The total gold production of the Gold Belt was about 70,000 ounces, including production from such little known mines as Tip Top, Black Cinder, Hattie, Golden Star, Rustler, Winner and others.

The caved-in tunnel of the Rustler Mine is still visible in a gulch below where Gordon Nicholas has parked his small trailer house. He bought the Rustler property from a dentist in Hailey 12 years ago.

molybdenum—mines—in—the White Cloud mountains raised a controversy in Idaho during the late '60s and Don Samuelson lost the governor's race in 1970 over the issue.

But Nicholas said the two engineers were with him when he picked up a heavy piece of rock which obviously contained lead ore.

"Look what I found," Nicholas remembered saying to the engineers. He recalled they both told him that rock "couldn't have come from around here."

"Where did it come from, then?" Nicholas said he asked the experts.

"Well, it must have been planted there by someone, because there's no lead around here," he said the engineers told him.

Roving U.S. envoy, Somoza confer on Nicaragua unrest

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A special envoy from President Carter met with President Anastasio Somoza for more than two hours to discuss the situation in Nicaragua, the government newspaper Novedades said Sunday.

The newspaper did not disclose the subject of the discussion between Somoza and roving U.S. Ambassador William Jordan, who is on a tour of Central America, Colombia, Venezuela and Mexico to sound out opinion on the unrest in Nicaragua.

Nicaragua's Conservative Party, the official opposition party, sent a letter to Carter Sunday urging him to "stay far away from any action that which could be interpreted as support for Somoza."

The letter, delivered to the U.S. ambassador in Managua, pledged support for Carter's human rights policies, which it said was being put to the test in Nicaragua.

The Conservatives criticized an earlier letter sent to Carter by 78 members of Nicaragua's House of Representatives urging the U.S. president to stand by Somoza because he was anti-Communist.

They said Carter would lose the support of the Nicaraguan people if he took the side of Somoza, whose troops fought off a bid by Marxist Sandinista guerrillas to topple him.

Octane posting proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission Sunday proposed a rule under which gasoline distributors and refiners, to comply with a new law, would have to post octane ratings on gasoline pumps.

The law, signed by President Carter in June, requires refiners to test gasoline for octane ratings. Octane is a measure of how well gasoline will resist engine knock.

High octane gasoline burns evenly in the combustion chamber. If gasoline has a poor octane rating it burns unevenly, causing knocking that wastes energy, and lowers the effectiveness of the engine and can eventually damage the engine.

The law, the Petroleum Marketing Practices Act, requires distributors to certify their octane rating to retailers who must in turn display them in a clear and conspicuous manner — otherwise unspecified — at the point of sale.

The posting requirements go into effect next April 1.

Neutral term 'perit' answer to chauvinism

©Chicago Sun-Times

Real easy, men. Women's Lib won't eat you up. The Farmer's Almanac has it under control.

No more Miss, Mrs. or Ms. mixups. No more chairperson, spokesperson or salesperson malarky.

Almanac editor Ray Geiger, with the aid of correspondent Joan Zielinski, has come up with the perfect solution.

As the 1979 almanac notes, even such terms as chairperson are chauvinistic, because the "son" in the end of the word denotes a male offspring.

So the obvious solution, according to the almanac, is instead of the sexist connotation "person" to use the nearly neuter syllable "perit" for any masculine combinations such as he, his, him, man, men and son.

This, says Geiger, will be useful in "forever banning male chauvinism from our lives."

For example, chairman or chairperson will become "chairperit," woman will become "woperit," and humor will be "huperit."

Going back into history (excuse it, perit), some of our Presidents will come up with de-chauvinized names. How could we ever forget Thomas Jeffersonit, James Madipertit, Woodrow Wilperit, Harry Truperit and Lyndon Johnperit?

Geiger points out that one of the choice new words that will come into the vocabulary under the new arrangement is the substitute for mailman, which will become "perit-perit."

A whole new world of songs will open up, with such old favorites as "Can't Helping Loving That Perit of Mine" and "The Perit I Love."

And what about the Hershey chocolate bar? What else but the It-it bar?

Monday briefing

Life magazine back after absence of six years

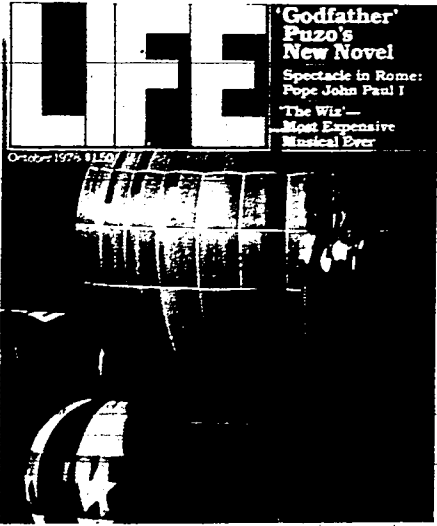

NEW YORK (UPI) — Life, the magazine that brought the magic of pictures to four generations of Americans, hits the newsstands on a regular basis Monday after an absence of six years.

The magazine, which first appeared in November 1936 for a time and suspended publication in 1972, a victim of changing tastes and loss of advertising revenue, will appear monthly instead of weekly as it had for 36 years.

"Life is back," its editors exclaimed in the preface of the 140-page October issue. While the new Life is the 1,865th grandchild of the issue that appeared in 1936, its editors have set it off from the past by labeling the October issue Volume 1, Number 1.

Since it ceased publication with its Dec. 29, 1972 issue, the magazine's familiar red and white logo had appeared 10 times on special issues.

Another factor not mentioned in the preface but no doubt responsible for the decision to resurrect the magazine was the success in recent years of other picture-oriented magazines as Us and People, one of Life's sister publications on the roster of magazines owned by Time Inc.

CIA actions denounced by JFK probe chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the House subcommittee investigating the assassination of John F. Kennedy said Sunday Congress was outraged at the Central Intelligence Agency for contacting organized crime in a plot to kill Cuban President Fidel Castro.

Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., said the CIA also opened itself to public criticism for the way it handled a Soviet secret police defector who said Lee Harvey Oswald was not a Russian operative.

The defector, Yuri Nosenko, was subjected to more than three years of imprisonment and hostile interrogation because the CIA suspected he was planting false information about Oswald.

While the Congress generally, all of the committee are outraged about two things in the CIA conduct," Preyer said. "One is the brutal way in which they handled Mr. Nosenko.

"The second thing is the facts that have come out now over a period of years about the CIA's involvement with organized crime. That the American government should ever have had anything to do with the Mafia has outraged the members of Congress."

Adair attempt fails

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (UPI) — Red Adair, the country's best known well-fire expert, failed Sunday in his first effort to smother a roaring natural gas well fire that has been burning since the well blew Friday.

The high-pressure gas well blew Friday, burning eight rig hands, three of them seriously. The well fire has been raging since then, eating up 320,000 of natural gas a day and spewing flames as high as 60 feet in the air and 100 feet along the ground.

Adair's crew pushed 3,000 barrels of mud and water into the well Sunday, only to have it blown out again by pressure that authorities estimate is 100 times greater than normal well pressure.

The second effort to pack the well with 6,000 barrels of mud was postponed until this morning because Adair could not immediately get enough water.

Singer Etting dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Singer and movie star Ruth Etting, once dubbed "Chicago's Sweetheart" when she first sang on radio, died early Sunday after a long illness. She was 80 years old.

A family spokeswoman said the singer, widow of musician Myrl Alderman, died at St. Francis Hospital in Colorado Springs, Colo. Funeral services were planned for either Tuesday or Wednesday in Colorado Springs.

Barrage misses Graham

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham, already hit in the face by a rotten tomato, escaped untouched Sunday from a barrage of fruit and cream cakes hurled at him at a revival meeting in a soccer stadium.

A woman threw the tomato at Graham Saturday at an indoor religious service, saying she was protesting his brand of "power Christianity." She was quickly overpowered.

On Sunday he spoke again, this time to 22,000 worshippers at a soccer stadium. At the end of the address, hecklers in the crowd heaved rotten fruit and cream cakes at him, but missed.

Strikers ignore warning

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada's striking postal workers Sunday refused to heed a government warning that they faced parliamentary action to put them back to work if they did not accept binding arbitration to settle a wage dispute.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras appealed to striking postmen Saturday to accept independent, third-party binding arbitration of a contract dispute or face the possibility of having a settlement imposed by Parliament.

But the postmen Sunday continued their three-day rotating strike against the postal service and did not reply to the government statement.

The union launched a series of rotating strikes Friday in 25 cities including four provincial capitals.

Crash probe continues

WEST POLAND, Maine (UPI) — Navy officials Sunday began cataloging debris from a mid-submarine plane that exploded in mid-air over a rocky hillside in south central Maine, killing all eight airmen aboard.

Lt. Cmdr. Stewart Hopewell said searchers had not found "concrete evidence" that a mid-air collision reported by some eye-witnesses caused the large Navy P-3 to burst into flames and crash last Friday.

Among the dead was an Idahoan, P-3's James Pelikorn of Emmett.

Today's weather

Weatherman offers to give harvesters a hand

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and northside areas:

Fair through Tuesday with warm days and cool nights. Highs both days near mid-60s. Low tonight mostly in the 40s. Fan evaporation is forecast at 20 Monday and Tuesday and the harvest outlook is dry except for slight chance of showers about Thursday or Friday. Temperatures above normal through the period. The four-inch soil temperatures remaining at or above 45 degrees.

Camas Prairie and lower Wood River Valley:

Fair through Tuesday and days will be warm and nights will be cool. Highs both days near 80. Lows tonight in low to mid-50s.

Synopsis:

Fair skies along with warm temperatures covered Idaho Sunday except for some 70 degree readings in northern Idaho and over the central mountains. The lower valleys, especially in the south, recorded highs generally in the 80s. High pressure at higher levels over the northern inter-mountain area will dominate the weather picture until at least mid-week. Under this high pressure, fair skies with only a few high clouds at times will continue.

Unseasonably warm daytime temperatures and the cool nights also will continue. Weakening of the high pressure toward week's end will allow a chance of showers, especially in northern and central Idaho. A slight chance of showers also is forecast for extreme southern Idaho.

The extended outlook for southern Idaho Wednesday through Friday calls for warm and mostly dry Wednesday, becoming more unsettled and becoming cooler Thursday and Friday with a slight chance of showers.

Highs in 70s to low 80s and lows mostly in the 40s during the extended period.

New anti-cancer drug coming soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A unique new drug unusually effective against cancer of the "testicles," which primarily strikes young men, is expected to receive government approval soon for use against heretofore usually fatal advanced stages of the disease.

The drug, called cis-platinum or cisplatin, was the subject of a two-day National Cancer Institute conference last week designed to introduce the drug to the nation's cancer specialists.

Bridgeport teachers OK accord

By United Press International
Striking teachers in Bridgeport, Conn., voted overwhelmingly for a plan to end their 19-day strike, and teachers in the Chicago City College system scheduled a vote on a new contract that would salvage the semester for 110,000 students.

Faculty strikes at two community colleges in Michigan also neared an end. But negotiators brought little progress in 11 other states where more than 275,000 grade school, high school and college students have been killed or otherwise affected by school strikes.

Teachers in Bridgeport voted 68-205 to ratify the plan that reportedly recommends binding arbitration to resolve unsettled issues including wages and class sizes.

The agreement was reached at 1 p.m. following a 16-hour negotiating session at the state Labor Department.

The meeting was held in anticipation of Food and Drug Administration permission for Bristol Laboratories, Syracuse, N.Y., to begin marketing the drug under the name of Platinol for use against cancer of the testicles. About 3,700 cases of the disease are diagnosed annually in men in their 20s and 30s.

"I don't think there's any question that cis-platinum has entered us into a new era in the treatment of testicular cancer," said Dr. Robert Gorbey of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York. "I think with testicular cancer we're at a point where it's within our grasp to say we've cured a cancer."

The results of numerous small-scale tests of the drug against cases of testicular cancer where the disease had spread to many parts of the body were reported at the meeting. In more than half of the men treated with a combination of drugs including cis-platinum, all evidence of cancer had disappeared for many months.

Dr. Lawrence Einhorn of Indiana University Medical Center said, for example, that 73 of 67 (68 percent) of patients with advanced cancer were disease-free for more than two years after treatment with cis-platinum and two other anti-cancer agents. He believes a testicular cancer victim has a 99 percent chance of cure if he remains disease-free for two years.

The average survival rate in 1964 for a man with advanced testicular cancer was 13 percent.

One of the drug's major drawbacks is its toxicity. It causes nausea and vomiting in all patients and can cause kidney damage, partial hearing loss, a ringing in the ears and other ill effects.

"Because of its toxicity, intravenous doses of the drug must be carefully regulated and sometimes balled. Doctors are now experimenting with the most effective dosages and drug combinations to be used in patients with advanced testicular cancer. The National Cancer Institute is also considering tests to see if use of the drug is warranted in earlier cases where the disease has not spread significantly.

The drug also has shown effectiveness against ovarian cancer. Cis-platinum was discovered accidentally 10 years ago by Dr. Barnett Rosenberg and colleagues at Michigan State University. They noticed that bacteria did not divide when placed in an electric field created by platinum electrodes. They later discovered that platinum was combining with chemicals in the culture medium to prevent cell-division.

Nicholas finds unique vein

"Then they got in their Land Rover and drove away," Nicholas recalled.

But Nicholas, who has many "no shoots" had brought valuable minerals to the surface of the hills during geologic disturbances along the famous Hattie Fault, was certain he had found lead.

He felt his find untouched for some years until he asked a heavy equipment operator to bulldoze the area for him.

What the duster uncovered is enough to cause any prospector's heart to thump an extra beat.

Surface digging Nicholas and his son have completed near the quartz outcropping indicate the vein of lead, silver and gold is ten feet wide at the point where it enters the earth and gets wider beneath the surface.

A neighbor, 62-year old Jim Cook, was so excited about the vein he began digging a tunnel along the Hattie Fault to reach it. Working only with a jack hammer and an ore cart, Cook eagerly bored 450 feet into the side of the hill in an attempt to strike rich.

"I have seen him drill 16 four-foot holes in that granite in one hour with a jack hammer," Nicholas recalled about Cook's Herculean effort to hit the jackpot.

Though Cook was long on enthusiasm, he was short on lifespan.

"He never got to the ore," Nicholas recalled. "He died from sniffing blue."

Nicholas said Cook died accidentally at the age of 82 from fumes he inhaled while working in his shop.

Cook's work would have been worth it had he reached the vein, according to Nicholas.

An assay report obtained from a smelter in East Helena, Mont. places the contents of the vein at 40 percent lead ore per ton. Ore samples from the hilltop also showed 12 ounces of silver and 2 ounces of gold per ton.

Nicholas led the potential mine untouched for years because of world metal prices, but now lead is selling for 35 cents an ounce according to the American Metal Market. Gold is selling for more than $100 per ounce and silver is selling about $5.60 per ounce on world markets.

At those prices, Nicholas figures his claim would yield at least $350 per ton of ore rock if mined commercially.

He doesn't know how deep the vein runs into the fault, but the crack is known to have allowed molten metal to surface from the bowels of the earth. At a depth of only 15 feet, a miner could glean about $18,000 worth of minerals from the vein Nicholas has found.

Even with dollar signs clicking in his head, Nicholas said he is too old to mine the claim himself and plans to sell it when a buyer comes along.

In comparison to the past 70 years, a rash of mining activity has broken out near Halley which could mean a potential sale for Nicholas.

The Bear Creek Mining Co. recently announced a renewed search for lead and zinc at the famous Triumph Mine near Halley. And Wyoming Mineral Corp. announced last year its search for uranium in the Halley hills.

That company recently discovered uranium on property adjoining the claims on which Nicholas has found lead.

The mining rash may soon spread to his long-deserted claim.

Carter revamps White House inner circle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has broadened his Georgia-dominated White House inner circle to plug some holes, rev up for the fall elections and, probably, prepare for his own run in 1980.

In recent weeks and months, he has added as presidential assistants and special assistants:

- Gerard Rafterson, image-maker and assistant for communications.
- Anne Wexler, the public advocate for administration programs.
- Sarah Weddington, liaison to women's groups.
- Louis Martin, liaison to the blacks.
- Ed Sanders, liaison to the Jewish community.

While these specialists have been added to Carter's team, a few original members have left the presidential staff.

Martha "Bunny" Mitchell, highest ranking black in the White House at special assistant rank, departed two weeks ago. Tim Kraft, Carter's assistant in charge of political appointments, said no new job has been found for her yet.

Midge Costanza, 45, resigned as the only woman at the presidential assistant level after her power had been deeply eroded. Her duties were divided between Ms. Wexler and Mrs. Weddington.

James Fallows, 29, also has resigned as chief speechwriter, effective after the November elections, to return to magazine journalism. And Barry Jagoda, 34, special assistant for television, is preoccupied with project on international communications for the National Security Council.

Of the new crew, the best known nationwide is Rafterson, the Atlanta-based advertising executive and media expert who masterminded the image-making for Carter's million-to-one 1976 presidential campaign. He was called to White House duty when the president's poll ratings hit their lowest point recently.

Ms. Wexler, 48, has been active in politics since the 1950s. She is frequently in view in White House meetings with special interest groups.

Martin, 65, a black newspaperman and former deputy Democratic national chairman, has taken over Mrs. Mitchell's duties.

Sanders, 56, a Los Angeles attorney, is past president of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee and is on the executive committee of the United Jewish Appeal. He got the task of shoring up Carter's standing in the Jewish community, a job his predecessor abandoned when the administration was pressing its decision to sell warplanes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Mrs. Weddington, 33, a former member of the Texas legislature, successfully argued the case for liberalized abortion before the Supreme Court. She was general counsel at the Agriculture Department before Rosalynn Carter asked her to become special assistant to the president.

Although Carter maintains he has not yet decided whether he will run again in 1980, the betting is he will.

Among the new staffers, Mrs. Weddington gave an answer that would be appropriate for all.

Asked if she would expect to be campaigning for Carter two years hence, she laughed and said she didn't expect not to.

Jordan, Palestinians seen joining accords

Henry Kissinger prepares for TV interview Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two of the chief architects of U.S. foreign policy during the past decade agreed Sunday that Jordan and the Palestinians will eventually come around to joining the peace process set in motion at Camp David.

Zbigniew Brzezinski and Henry Kissinger said the ambiguity of Camp David's loosely worded "framework for peace" — cited by critics as the plan's major pitfall — may actually be its key to success.

President Carter's national security adviser and the man who once held the same job under President Richard Nixon made their remarks in separate broadcast interviews.

"Brzezinski spoke on ABC's 'Issues and Answers' and Kissinger on NBC's 'Meet the Press.'"

Kissinger, who later served as secretary of state under Nixon and President Gerald Ford, played down Jordanian King Hussein's sharp weekend criticism of the U.S.-Israeli-Egyptian peace plan drafted at the 13-day Camp David summit.

"I don't interpret what King Hussein said as ruling out any role in the negotiations," Kissinger said.

He said Hussein, an Arab moderate who drove anti-Israeli guerrillas out of Jordan, is "trying to maneuver to make very sure that the other Arabs understand that he is not rushing at the first opportunity."

"The trends that we started at Camp David seem to me to make it probable that he will come in," Kissinger said.

Brzezinski explained Hussein's reluctance to join peace talks with Israel by saying "the other Arab parties cannot be expected to jump in instantly."

But he predicted that "at some point, and I hope quite soon, they will see clear-cut benefits for themselves in entering into such a process."

Kissinger said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance ought to think twice before launching a shuttle mission aimed at bringing an end to the Rhodesian civil war.

"I'm in a bad position to say this,

Kissinger said he wasn't surprised by initial criticism from Palestinian leaders on the West Bank and Gaza Strip but predicted they also would join in the peace process.

"I think that the other Arab leaders will realize that the way to get back any territory is by means of the agreement that has been signed," he said.

The three-way summit pact signed a week ago calls for an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty by the end of the year and five years of interim Palestinian self-rule on the West Bank and Gaza Strip under Israeli and Jordanian auspices.

Israel captured the West Bank from Jordan as well as the Sinai Desert and Gaza Strip from Egypt and the Golan Heights from Syria during the 1967 Middle East War.

Saying the ambiguity of the Camp David agreement makes it easy for moderate Arabs to join the peace process, Brzezinski said "excessive precision can be an enemy of peace negotiations."

Kissinger, explaining his public support of Camp David, said foreign affairs should be a non-partisan issue. Brzezinski, in turn, put in a few non-partisan words of praise for the work of Kissinger.

"We started moving toward peace when, very creatively, Henry Kissinger opened the doors to discussions with Sadat and under Ford and Nixon these initial steps were taken," he said.

Did Kissinger have any advice for Carter on how to promote the Camp David pact? "We have to push it forward but not with an excessive sense of urgency," he said.

but I don't think that Secretary Vance should take too many trips to which he cannot describe the outcome before he goes," he said.

He made his remarks on NBC's "Meet the Press" interview program.

Kissinger, whose shuttle missions to the Middle East led to Israeli military disengagement accords with Egypt and Syria, diplomatically added that he has "very great admiration" for Vance.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger, whose wide-ranging travels as secretary of state produced the phrase "shuttle diplomacy," had a bit of surprising advice Sunday for his successor — stay home.

Kissinger said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance ought to think twice before launching a shuttle mission aimed at bringing an end to the Rhodesian civil war.

"I'm in a bad position to say this,

Car thieves law's target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two senators said Sunday they will introduce legislation requiring manufacturers to place vehicle identification numbers on such easily saleable items as car doors, fenders and roofs to help curtail the theft of nearly 1-million automobiles annually.

Sens. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said their 1978 Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Act would help law enforcement efforts by allowing the easy tracing of stolen automobile parts. The vehicle identification number currently appears only on automobile dashboards and some moving parts, but not the sheet metal parts that are lucrative items on the black market.

Justices ponder cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The justices of the Supreme Court get down to work today and begin conferring on some of the more than 1,000 appeals awaiting action at the start of their new term Oct. 2.

The justices will gather around a table in their oak-paneled conference room at 10 a.m., with copies of the court's forthcoming docket in front of them.

In utmost secrecy, the nine men vote during their all-day conferences to determine which cases they will hear arguments on and which they will refuse to review. It takes four votes on the court to grant a petition for review.

Their deliberations are so closely guarded that no one but the justices may enter the conference room, which is adjacent to Chief Justice Warren Burger's chambers. The junior justice, now John Paul Stevens, acts as messenger and answers the door.

According to a court spokesman, the justices have 992 cases to consider on their initial conference list — although they may not act on all of them when they issue orders on opening day, traditionally the first Monday in October.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Education Association "has blanketed the House of Representatives with campaign contributions," Common Cause vice president Fred Wertheimer said Sunday.

Common Cause, a private watchdog group, said a study showed the NEA, the largest teacher organization with 1,750,000 members, contributed $620,556 to the 1974 and 1976 campaigns of 237 current members of the House.

"The NEA committees contributed $184,589 to the 1974 campaigns and contributions reported by Common Cause from the Federal Election Campaign Act files are: $14,700 to Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Calif., $11,450 to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-Calif., $11,225 to Rep. Jerry Patterson, D-Calif., and $10,100 to Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore.

An NEA spokesman said there was "nothing at all" wrong with its contributions.

"Our membership has supported candidates basically friendly to NEA, and money has been based upon the fact they supported NEA issues," he said.

$435,967 to the 1976 campaigns of these members," Common Cause said.

Common Cause said a top legislative priority of the NEA, the Department of Education Organization Act, is expected to be considered on the House floor soon. The bill would establish a cabinet level Department of Education that apparently would be more favorable to teachers programs than the current Health, Education and Welfare Department.

The NEA gave Reps. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., and Richard Nolan, D-Minn., each $16,000 for the two campaign years, the study showed.

Pinto sales lag worrying Ford offices

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. officials are concerned that sluggish sales of the embattled subcompact Pinto may pose a major obstacle to sales of the rest of Ford's 1979-model cars.

Although company officials say Pinto sales presently are "running very well," they dread the recurrence of a severe mid-summer decline that followed a rash of publicity concerning fuel tank explosions in older models.

The company is offering its dealers large bonuses, up to $325 per car, to keep the Pinto sales momentum moving. It also is running national ads referring to the "redesigned fuel system" in Pintos built since 1977.

The fear, which company officials are reluctant to admit, is that a dramatic drop-off in Pinto sales would throw Ford's corporate fuel economy average (CAFE) off balance, forcing the firm to hold back its larger, less fuel-efficient cars or face stiff penalties for failing to meet federal standards.

That would particularly hurt Ford's new fullsize cars, the LTD and Mercury Marquis, which the company recently unveiled, culminating a $1.2 billion redesign program. Ford expects the LTD to be its 1979 sales leader.

"There is no question, if Pinto sales deteriorate it could cause CAFE problems," a Ford spokesman said.

"But the same would be true if Fairmont sales deteriorate or if Mustang sales do not meet their objectives," he said. "But I don't see any real problem with any of them."

Looks like Somoza survived attack

By ALLAN RIDING
©N.Y. Times Service

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Anastasio Somoza Debayle appears to have survived the most serious challenge of his family's 45-year-old rule of Nicaragua, although opposition groups here seem more determined than ever to keep fighting for the overthrow of the regime.

One month after leftist guerrillas launched an opposition offensive by seizing 1,500 hostages in the national palace in Managua, General Somoza's troops have retaken control of several provincial cities occupied by rebels. Meanwhile a four-week-old nationwide strike to force the president's resignation is expected to wind down next week.

But no one believes that the regime's troubles are over. The country's guerrillas, regrouping after two weeks of fighting, are growing rapidly in numbers, convinced that General Somoza will leave office only after being defeated militarily. The repression of recent days has also served to deepen the civilian population's unquenchable hatred for the president and his National Guard.

"Somoza is still there," one foreign analyst said, "but we all know that, within a month or two, there'll be a new offensive against the regime.

Somoza is fatally wounded. He can't recover the capacity to govern this country. It's just a question of how long it takes the regime to die."

But the latest offensive, not only radicalized political opinion; it also clarified the political panorama. It demonstrated that the 7,500-man National Guard was unlikely to turn against the Somozas and that the president was prepared to resort to extreme oppression to survive.

The National Guard — always described by opposition leaders as "Somoza's private army" — is, in fact, more than ever directly controlled by the ruling family, with day-to-day command in the hands of the president's half-brother, Gen. Jose Somoza, and crack combat units personally led by the dictator's 26-year-old son, Maj. Anastasio Somoza Portocarrero.

To sustain the regime, the guard also showed itself willing to carry out massive rocket and shell attacks against the cities held by the rebels. With the last pockets of resistance now being flushed out of the northern city of Esteli, reports have been coming in of atrocities and massacres carried out by the soldiers, including the summary execution of 22 youths in Leon one week ago. Close to 1,000 people, most of them noncombatants, have died in the fighting.

Rather than feeling intimidated or defeated, however, opponents of the regime seem ready to rise up once again against the government. "People are angry and bitter," said one foreign aide, "and they are visiting the cities taken by the National Guard. They're ready to give up their lives rather than accept perpetuation of the Somoza regime. Everywhere I went, people were asking for guns."

But the events of the past two weeks also proved that the leftist guerrillas, known as the Sandinist National Liberation Front, still lacked the military strength to defeat the National Guard. Although some guerrilla units carried automatic rifles and even bazookas, most rebels were fighting in the cities with little more than pistols and hunting rifles.

"Until the guerrillas can neutralize aircraft and tanks, they won't defeat the guard," one foreign analyst said. "In any case, it's fire power that counts. And this is a war."

From the guerrillas' point of view, then, the immediate objective is to obtain new armaments, particularly anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns. Whether these can be acquired, however, may depend on the outcome of complex political negotiations now being quietly sponsored by the United States.

This week Washington endorsed an opposition call for outside mediation to bring about a cease-fire and a political solution to the crisis. General Somoza immediately rejected the idea, explaining that the Sandinist guerrillas first had to be defeated, but the U.S. nevertheless dispatched its ambassador to Panama, William J. Jordan, to eight countries of the region — Costa Rica, Panama, Venezuela, Colombia, Mexico, Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala — to seek support for the initiative.

A special American envoy, Malcolm Barneby, sent here last week by Washington, then helped work out a letter to Somoza in which the leadership of the Roman Catholic Church and the private sector jointly called for mediation in the conflict by Mexico, Colombia and the Dominican Republic.

The main opposition block, known as the Broad Opposition Front, has accused the government of responsibility for the initial call for mediation with "genocide" and has stated that mediation would only be useful if it resulted in Somoza's resignation. Nevertheless the president is now expected to respond more positively to the idea of some diplomatic involvement in the crisis.

"Having done what he wanted to do militarily, Somoza will now begin acting politically," one Nicaraguan opposition leader predicted. "Obviously he's not going to step down, but he may accept some sort of mediation in order to improve his image abroad. It will be his way of trying to divide the opposition here."

But even if outside mediators recommend that the president step down in favor of some moderate politician accepted by the opposition, Somoza has repeatedly refused to contemplate resignation. "I'm not going, and I won't be run out," he has frequently said.

Before any mediation effort is exhausted, however, the Sandinist guerrillas, who form part of the Broad Opposition Front, along with moderate conservative groups, may be unable to acquire the armaments to launch a more effective military offensive.

The governments of Venezuela, Panama and Costa Rica are both hostile to the Somoza regime and sympathetic to the opposition, yet they seem unlikely to provide clandestine arms to the guerrillas until no peaceful alternative remains.

In the meantime the opposition organizations — now represented by a three-man commission that, for the first time, offers a non-Marxist alternative to the Somoza regime — faces a serious problem of guiding the urban masses, who are now in mutiny against the regime.

By imposing marshal law and censorship here last week, General Somoza silenced the main opposition daily, La Prensa, and effectively cut off the lines of communication between the moderate opposition leadership and the angry population at large. By doing so, the president is also seemingly fomenting greater radicalism, leaving the popular Sandinist guerrillas with the only efficient system of clandestine communication.

From all points of view, then, the outlook is for continuing escalation of the crisis and new suffering for the Nicaraguan people. A growing economic crisis is further eroding Somoza's ability to govern — the administration is close to bankruptcy as capital has fled the country and tax revenues have fallen. But the crisis is also causing greater unemployment and even food shortages among the poor.

Still, the determination of the population to force out the Somozas, evident increasingly since the crisis began here last October, seems to have been hardened by recent events. "We are ashamed to have tolerated the Somozas for so long," one middle-aged slum-dweller in the town of Masaya said this week. "Now we are prepared to pay whatever price is necessary to be rid of this disgrace."

Kress deserves an apology

George Hansen, the 2nd District's representative in Washington, should have been delighted flying home this past weekend on a campaign jaunt.

That's when he learned his supporters and paid staff members in a series of "anonymous calls" had suckered some Idaho newsmen with a phony story about his Democratic opponent Stan Kress of Firth.

It wasn't the first time Hansen and his people had fed anti-Kress material to the press, but in the latest instance they did it secretly, trying to get the press to do their dirtywork for them.

Luckily for the voters, only one newspaper and one wire service took Hansen's bait. The rest spit it out with a bad taste in their mouths.

Friday, the South Idaho Press in Burley accused Kress of leaving a deficit in the school district where he used to be superintendent.

Supposedly the deficit meant Kress, a Democrat, was being hypocritical when he announced recently he would push for an end to federal deficit spending and a balanced budget.

It's a phony issue. The bait was the word "deficit," and it hooked the unthinking South Idaho Press.

The Idaho newsmen who took the time to investigate and think about it, discovered there was nothing wrong. If anything, Kress' administration at Firth was in his credit.

In his last year with the district before quitting to campaign full time, one part of the school budget went into the red, but the causes were unavoidable. Kress did not spend carelessly or budget poorly.

The federal government was late paying the schools for damage caused by the Teton Dam burst, and the district had to pay interest on money borrowed to make repairs. Unforeseen teacher pay raises caused the rest of a $23,000 deficit in part of the $1 million budget.

True, Kress called for an end to the federal government's deliberate practice of deficit spending.

True, Kress failed to guess how much the interest and teacher pay raises would cost the Firth School District's general fund. He made an error. Errors have been made in other school districts, and that's all they're called.

The unintentional, partial deficit in the Firth

School District resulted in no hardship to taxpayers. The school district ended with two accounts having sufficient funds to cover the one account that finished in the red.

But the U.S. government's deliberate deficit spending, approved by the Congress where George Hansen sits, results in a constantly growing national debt in the billions of dollars. That increases federal taxes and contributes to skyrocketing inflation. And many, including Hansen and Kress, want to end the federal government's practice.

The Firth schools, on the other hand, are not in debt. They are in the black again overall this year as in years past — and with a lighter tax burden than ever. In the seven years of Kress' administration there, the tax burden dropped from 52 to 35 mills.

Hansen supporters must have been delighted to see the truth twisted in print without their candidate's name attached to it in the SIP and on the Associated Press wire.

If the Hansen camp had made the charge in public, the fact of their candidate's personal and campaign debts, which have reached into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, would have been dragged out in public again. It would have been a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

Most 2nd District newspapers already knew the story for what it was — sucker bait. Most, including the Times-News, ran stories explaining how the Firth deficit occurred and exposing the fact that Hansen staff and supporters — working behind the scenes — had set the hook.

The men involved were Larry Anderson, paid by taxpayers to be Hansen's field representative in the Magic Valley, Jim Ostler, a staff member in Pocatello, and Bill Barlow of Pocatello, a Hansen supporter. They wanted to remain anonymous. In Burley, the SIP won't say who baited them other than an "anonymous call."

The SIP and Associated Press owe Stan Kress an apology for their gullibility in letting Hansen hook them into making an unfair, unfounded slam against Kress.

George Hansen owes Kress an apology for not having the guts to fight the campaign in the open.

Sports over 40 can hurt

WASHINGTON — I stepped on a tennis ball this summer while running for another ball. I wouldn't mention it except that Time magazine did a piece on people over 40 who still think they are youngsters when it comes to sports. They ran a picture of me in a leg cast (I had a badly sprained ankle) and they called me a "klutz," which means a klunk who doesn't know what he's doing.

Naturally, I was offended, because Howard Cosell has said, on many occasions that my performance on a tennis court could only be compared to Nureyev's on a ballet stage.

The problem with having any kind of sports injury when you're over 40 is not what it does to your body or even to your pride. It's the flak you have to take from well-meaning people who keep asking you what happened.

Since I was in the cast for six weeks, I was able to break these people down into categories.

In the first category were those who demanded to know why I stepped on the tennis ball. My stock answer for them was "I always wanted to do it but I never had the nerve. It beats the hell out of ballooning, because when you're flying through the air you have a complete sense of weightlessness."

The second category of sympathizers I ran into were extra tennis ball off the court before you started playing."

"Because that would have taken the fun out of the game," I would reply. "The thrill of tennis is to get the ball back without stepping on the one you left on the court."

I said this with so much conviction that most people would reply, "I didn't know that."

"Of course. Why do you think you play with three tennis balls? You need two to serve with, and one to leave on the court so you can trip over it."

The real agony of being in a cast is that you have to listen to everyone else's past story. I don't believe I ran into one person who hadn't been in a cast at one time or another. And when you're on crutches, it's very hard to move away when someone starts telling you his or her own tale. They were all horror stories and ranged from the fact that their bones hadn't been set right and had to be set again to how they were driven up the wall when their injured leg started itching and they had to poke knitting needles down the cast to get relief.

"The worst thing," one lady told me, "is that when they take the cast off and you see what your leg looks like, most people faint."

After a while I realized that people were not impressed with how I was injured, so I devised a story which would get their attention.

When asked what happened, I would say, "It's very boring, but if you're really interested — I was on a tennis court, and suddenly this flying saucer landed by the net and a little green man got out wielding a laser pistol. He said, 'Take me to your leader.' I didn't know who to take him to — so he shot me in the leg."

You would think that your own orthopedic surgeon would have sympathy for someone over 40 who had suffered a sports injury. But when I returned to Washington and went to my doctor to have the cast removed, he took one look at my leg and all he said was, "Did you have a nice summer?"

You can be your own investigative reporter

TWIN FALLS — Complaining about government is rapidly becoming a national pastime. For any of a dozen reasons, government is tops on quite a few hate lists.

But if there is any one complaint registered more often than others, it is the inability to determine just who it is, at which level of government, is actually responsible for what decisions.

Determining the problem is often quite easy. Determining who should be contacted about that problem frequently becomes complicated beyond reason.

One complaint I hear at least every week is the inability of the average voter to pinpoint where in government his problem should be taken.

It takes time to learn the ropes. But investigative reporters, political professionals and other full-time snobs use several tools which make the search a bit easier. In recent years, for instance, a dozen or so books have appeared which can act as roadmaps through the labyrinths of federal, state and local governments.

With a handful of dollars spent wisely at the book store, an angry voter can be well on his way to shaking up complacent government. I recommend the following books, among others, for persons wondering how to be most effective in their unequal struggle with the bureaucracy. None of them reveal the entire picture, but each is useful.

• The Almanac of American Politics. Perhaps the best all-round book on Congress, the Almanac has been published every two years since 1972. It provides a complete analysis of every representative and senator in congress, listing votes on a dozen key issues and job performance ratings from 10 different conservative and liberal political interest groups. It is co-authored by Michael Barone, Grant Ujlusa and Douglas Matthews and is published by Gambit Books.

• Congressional Quarterly's Washington Information Directory. This is also published every two years. It lists nearly every federal agency and sub-agency in Washington, plus numerous private but politically oriented business or lobbying groups. It includes names of persons in power, addresses, telephone numbers and definitions of what each organization does. It is published by Congressional Quarterly, Inc.

• Where's What This Rather obscure publication can sometimes provide information available nowhere else. It is a list of sources of information for federal investigators, prepared for the Central Intelligence Agency under a Brookings Institution grant. Only recently declassified, this CIA handbook is a book for investigators written by an investigator. Intended to make CIA information searches a bit easier, it focuses on the quickest means by which information can be obtained from numerous sources. It was published in 1976 by Warner Books.

• The Idaho Political Handbook. A new publication from the University of Idaho Bureau of Public Affairs Research Center, the handbook is the best nuts and bolts examination of Idaho local politics yet published. It examines every county and the influence there of local social-economic factors. It also examines every state legislator, listing his votes on key issues, his campaign contributions, and other related materials. First published in 1978, the handbook will be published every two years.

• The Idaho Almanac. Published last year by the Idaho State Government, this is an excellent Idaho fact book. No other single source contains so much on every subject affecting Idaho. It is available from the Idaho Division of Tourism and Industrial Development.

• The Organizer's Manual. Written in 1971 by a liberal organization, the Organizer's Manual is action oriented. It tells persons with a gripe how to go about making that gripe heard. Subjects covered include small-group organizing, fundraising, power, structure, research, how to prepare leaflets, how to canvass neighborhoods and hints on dealing with the media.

This may be a "new-left" publication, but during the late truckers strikes — which were triggered by rising gasoline prices — I saw it being used as an organizing tool by redneck truckers. It is available from Bantam Books.

• How To Find The Law. This is a "hornbook," a textbook used by law students. Frequently updated, this book can go a long way to demystifying the legal practice.

For the layman interested in looking up a law or a court case on his own, this is the book with which to begin. For the person wondering how the legal system did it to him, this can answer some questions. How To Find The Law is published by the West Publishing Co.

• Campaign Money and The Hundred Million Dollar Payoff. Both of these books focus on elections and campaign contributions. For the voter wondering how loudly money talks in political campaigns, these books are a must.

Douglas Caddy, author of The Hundred Million Dollar Payoff, tends to believe all campaign corruption stems from unions. Herbert E. Alexander, editor of the collection of articles in Campaign Money is more objective and has written a better book. But both are worth reading.

Caddy's book is published by the Public Policy Press. Alexander's book is published by The Free Press. • The State of Idaho Telephone Directory. As basic a publication as this is, most persons don't know it exists. This directory lists every state employee, his job, his position in government, his telephone number and his mailing address. It is published by the Department of Administration, Bureau of Communications, in Boise.

• Congressional Quarterly Almanac. Published four times a year, CQ provides a detailed analysis of every vote, and the motives behind the who voted, in each congressional session. Absolutely unbeatable in proving whether your senator or congressman is a lying buffoon or an informed legislator making a tough vote.

CQ Almanac is published by Congressional Quarterly, Inc. • State Services Directory. Published by the governor's office, this is a listing of every service offered by state agencies, departments and officials. If you can't tell the players without a scorecard, this is the scorecard.

This is by no means a complete list. But the advantage of the above publications is that they will lead to other more specialized lists and resources. In the hands of voters determined to make their influence felt, information becomes a powerful weapon.

Rebels suffer heavy losses to Rhodesians

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia said Sunday its air and ground forces made a four-day strike into Mozambique, meeting stiff resistance from insurgents and Mozambican armored units but wiping out 25 guerrilla bases and inflicting heavy casualties.

Military sources said up to 300 rebels were killed, but a senior intelligence officer said about 4,000 guerrillas had managed to flee the target areas, indicating they had advanced knowledge of the raids.

Lifting a news blackout, the military command said the "self-defense operation" that began Wednesday and ended Saturday morning "was carried out successfully" against the strongholds of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army.

It said Rhodesian warplanes bombed and strafed 25 ZANLA bases and troops then moved in for mopping-up sweeps.

A military spokesman said, "Considerable casualties were inflicted on the terrorists by air strikes." No figures were cited, but military sources said the Rhodesians, losing two soldiers killed, may have slain some 300 insurgents.

The sources said two Rhodesian Canberra jet bombers and a Hawker Hunter jet fighter-bomber were hit by guerrilla fire, but there were no casualties among the flight crews.

A communique said the largest single target area was a complex of eight ZANLA guerrilla camps strung out over 12 square miles. These camps, it said, housed guerrillas poised to infiltrate into Rhodesia.

The communique said that while Rhodesia has no quarrel with Mozambique's army, Mozambican armored units were moved from the town of Chimolo, 40 miles from the border, into guerrilla bases under attack.

"It became imperative to eliminate the Soviet-supplied armored personnel carriers," it said.

Rhodesian television Sunday night screened a film on the raids. It showed Mozambican armored personnel carriers smoldering. Near the wreckage of one vehicle were three corpses, one badly charred.

Syrians escalate Beirut offensive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian troops shelled more than 450 rockets and artillery shells into two Christian neighborhoods Sunday in a major escalation of their offensive against the strongholds of Israeli-backed Christian militants.

At least 23 people were wounded, five critically, in the pre-dawn shelling of the capital's exclusive Badaro quarter and the middle-class suburb of Hadath, Christian sources said.

The casualties brought the toll in the three-day Syrian offensive to three dead and 50 wounded.

The offensive, launched Friday from atop the Syrians' towering skyscraper fortress in the heart of the Christian districts, shattered 15 days of relative calm in the capital.

Residents of the Christian neighborhoods ran screaming into the streets in their nightclothes when the Syrians opened fire with heavy rockets, 160 mm mortars, 115mm tank cannon and anti-aircraft guns.

Right-wing Christian officials said 450 shells hit the two neighborhoods during the three-hour barrage.

The Syrian offensive coincided with the announcement by President Elias Sarkis of an extension of the mandate keeping 30,000 soldiers of the Syrian dominated Arab peace-keeping force in Lebanon.

Christian rightists said Syrian officers contacted them by radio immediately following the address and said: "Did you hear what your president said? He renewed our mandate, now we can fulfill our duties."

The Christians, armed and trained by Israel, have demanded that the allegedly pro-Palestinian Syrian troops "go home."

The Syrians said they were forced to take "appropriate" action to wipe out Christian sniper nests harassing their positions.

In an attempt to appease the Christians, Sarkis reportedly planned a trip to Syria soon to arrange the withdrawal of Syrian forces from Christian East Beirut and their replacement by the Lebanese army.

Protesting Muslim leftists said the plan as tantamount to encouraging the Christian militias to step up their attacks on the Arab peace-keeping forces.

Other violence Sunday, a powerful dynamite explosion shattered a drug store owned by a Christian but no serious injuries were reported.

Target practice turns into bloody shootout

DORTMUND, West Germany (UPI) — West German police surprised three suspected Baader-Meinhof terrorists at target practice in the woods outside Dortmund Sunday, wounding and capturing two of them in a "kambatte" that killed one officer.

The third terrorist, a man, fled with the dead policeman's submachine gun, police said.

The bloody encounter came just two and a half weeks after police killed terrorist Willy Peter Stoil in a Chinese restaurant in Duesseeldorf.

Residents of a wooded suburb of Dortmund phoned police Sunday afternoon to say they heard gunshots nearby and four officers in two patrol cars were sent to check out the reports.

When they reached the woods, the left their cars and walked in two pairs toward the shooting, police said.

The three terrorists saw the first two policemen approaching and opened fire, killing one of them and wounding the second, police said.

The second two officers rushed up from the other side into a second fusillade of bullets that wounded both. But as one of them fell, he got off a burst from his submachine gun that cut down one man and one woman.

The third attacker, a man, picked up the submachine gun of the dead policeman and fled, police said.

The trio had set up what appeared to be a target range, police said. Officers found several large caliber pistols and some hand grenades there.

The office of the Federal Prosecutor General said the woman may be Angelika Spetel, 26, wanted for suspected participation in the 1977 murders of banker Juergen Ponto, federal prosecutor general Siegfried Buback and industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer.

Fingerprints taken of the wounded woman matched none of those in the records of the Federal Criminal Police, the Prosecutor General's Office said. Police therefore believe it likely the woman is Spetel because the Criminal Police also have no record of her prints.

Cleanup work proceeds

TABAS, Iran (UPI) — Three banks Sunday began giving cash loans to the survivors of an earthquake last week that killed 25,000 residents of this desert town and 100 surrounding villages.

Telephone service between Tabas and other towns in Iran, cut by the earthquake Sept. 10, has been reconnected and water and electricity supplies were restored in some parts of the city. Only about 6,000 bodies have been recovered from the debris.

The remains of most victims still rotted under the walls and roofs of devastated buildings amid an overpowering smell of disinfectant sprayed by aircraft three times a day.

Gen. Jafar Sanei, head of the relief command in Tabas, said several water wells in the devastated town had been repaired and now were suitable for use.

That night men and women, some accompanied by children, sat by broken furniture, clocks and clothing, refusing to leave Tabas despite warnings by health officials.

Many survivors stayed in town for fear their remaining belongings would be stolen by looters.

Intended dinner gets first bite

MARQUETTE, Iowa (UPI) — City Councilman Don Hackett's dinner got the first bite.

Hackett, 32, went to a fellow snake-hunter's home to look at a 52-inch tiger rat rattlesnake, thinking he might want to buy it for the meat.

Hackett, who has been hunting snakes for 35 years, made a mistake and got too close to the head. The snake got the last word in the deal and a quick trip back to his cage.

Dream of better life ends in orphaned family

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (UPI)—Carlos and Irene daSilva came to America to build a better life.

Now their seven orphaned children are left behind to find the dream for themselves.

Carlos, 40, was the first to come from the Azores. He worked hard for 12 months, saved a little, then brought his wife and children after him from the Portuguese Islands. They settled in Rhode Island and found life wasn't as easy as they'd hoped.

Instead, there was a year of frustration, poor wages and a low-rent apartment. Then came tragedy.

Seven months ago, on Feb. 18, Carlos was beaten to death in a fight in a bar. His widow didn't like that idea so she started working at the Providence Metallizing Co. one week ago.

As she walked home from work Thursday night, a car climbed the curb and hit her. She died Friday.

The five youngest of her seven children are staying with their uncle and aunt, Joao and Zenaida daMota. Zenaida was Carlos' sister. They know the dark-haired and dark-eyed children can't take care of themselves.

Carla, 2, and Rui, 4, stay at home all day. Fernando, 6, is in the first grade. Susie, 8, is in the third grade and Lucia, 9, is in the fourth. The two older ones, Liberal, 12, and Jose Carlos, 13, are both in middle school.

The children have another uncle in Rhode Island, and another uncle and two aunts in Canada. But no matter where the children go, they will present... a hardship to their new family. And they must be split up.

When the police called at midnight to tell the family of the accident, Mrs. daMota went to the hospital.

"I asked the doctor if she was going to live," she said. "He said he didn't know, that she was very bad. I told him she had seven kids and he began to cry and tell me, 'No, don't tell me that.' The doctor cried."

Mrs. daMota hopes the Canadian relatives can come to the funeral Monday and see the children who may soon be their own. She hates to see the children split up, but she knows what must be done.

Two days after the tragedy, Mrs. daMota thinks more of the past than the present.

"When Carlos first came over, he loved the country," she said. "He said it would be beautiful for the kids when they came over. He made $2.75 an hour. He didn't realize what it would be like to take care of them all."

"Carlos had a good job in the Azores with the post office," Mrs. daMota said. "He was doing okay, but he wanted more."

She shakes her head sadly, without tears. "Carlos and Irene had it hard, and they just came over here to die."

Impaled driver, 22, will live

Dr. Vikram Paul section of fence after surgery

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An auto accident drove a one-inch thick, eight-foot long section of wooden fencing through the right chest and out the left side of a young man, and doctors said Sunday the victim will live.

David Hamilton Rich Jr., 22, of Warrenton, Va., was reported in serious but stable condition at Washington Hospital Center.

Police said Rich's sports car swept off a rural road Saturday and wrecked a 150-foot long section of one-by-six-inch fencing. One sharp length of board punctured the convertible top and impaled Rich.

The board entered Rich's body below the right chest, punctured the abdomen but missed the heart by four inches. The impact splintered the board and forced a three-by-four-inch wide section past the small bowels, punching through the body above the left hip.

A helicopter ferried Rich to the hospital, where he was conscious prior to three hours of surgery. Doctors were unable to saw off a protruding four to six inch section of the plank with their surgical tools, finally turning the job over to a member of the rescue squad, a part-time carpenter who used a circular power saw.

Surgeons opened the chest cavity from below the chin to the abdomen and removed the remainder of the splintered board.

"Fortunately, the board missed his heart," cardiac surgeon George Garcia said. "It's a horrible sight to see a man with a board sticking out both sides of him. It's amazing how he survived this."

"There were a few splinters in the chest wall and a few loose pieces of wood that we removed," Dr. Vikram Paul said.

Rich, a machinery operator, and his companion, Sue Clark, also of Warrenton, Va., were driving down a rural paved road shortly after midnight Saturday. His small foreign car missed a turn, skidded off the road and swept down a 150-foot embankment before slamming into the fence.

A state police officer said Rich was not drunk—but had—apparently consumed several alcoholic drinks earlier at a friend's house. "He's the luckiest man alive," said one trooper.

"I saw it (the plank) come through the car slowly but surely," Miss Clark said. "I didn't think it went all the way through him. He kept telling me that it did."

Miss Clark, 22, a college student, suffered minor facial injuries and was treated at the hospital and released.

Tradition broken in final reunion

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—The Last Man Club of Company A has broken a pact that called for the final survivor of the World War I military unit to drink a silent toast to the rest from a bottle of French champagne.

Members of the company, 110th Engineers of the 35th Division, Saturday night drank from the bottle of Mumm Brut French champagne at its 80th and final reunion at a downtown hotel.

Physical disabilities and age led to a decision to disband the unit, although local members said they still may meet occasionally. Fewer than 20 veterans of the unit—which had 250 soldiers during World War I—attended the final company reunion, which was also the 39th reunion of the Last Man Club.

Minutes of the Last Man Club adopted in 1939 said it would be the duty of the last survivor to drink a silent toast to the rest of the unit.

Joe Rizzi, 83, and his wife of Tarrytown, N.Y., made one of the longest journeys to attend the reunion. They have been at 30 of the 60 meetings.

"Everyone in this company is a hero," Rizzi said. "This is the only company we know of that has met every year for 60 years."

Lindsay Osborn, a retired Topeka dentist and reunion chairman, said he thought the champagne tasted better with more than one survivor there to drink it. The meeting ended with a rendition of "Auld Lang Syne."

Congregation returns $10 bills, multiplied

LAKEWOOD, Ohio (UPI)—Four months ago, the Rev. Richard Morris, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, stepped off the pulpit, pulled out a fistful of new $10 bills and passed them out. He told the congregation to take the money and multiply.

"We did very well," Morris said. "We've gotten back about 150 of the $20 bills I gave out and the average addition to the original $10 is $50. I expect to get things in the mail and to hear from some people who I know couldn't be here this week."

"We're hoping for $10,000 to $12,000," he said, "but I am also happy that people have had a good time and got to know each other a little through this."

One young parishioner, Morris said, took his $10 and bought a bag of fertilizer. "Then he fertilized a lady's lawn and cut it all summer. He turned in a $100 bill today."

One man spent $9.80 on bus tickets and turned in to the church the $88 he saved on gas for his car. A woman spent her $10 to hire a helper, then with her new spare time whipped up a quilt, raffled it off and donated the $30 in proceeds to St. Peter's.

Morris said he knew one parishioner who spent the $10 for nautical supplies, gave sailing lessons and made $85, and another who spent $10 on gas money for a trip to Columbus and a consulting assignment that brought the church $200.

On the last Sunday in May Morris finished his sermon, pulled out the money and walked up and down the aisles of the church handing out $10 bills. Morris said he got the money from five businessmen with whom he shared the idea — an idea "I just thought of."

But it was Jesus who provided the inspiration in a parable found in Matthew 25:14-30.

'Miracle baby' fights for life following cesarian delivery

CARDIFF, Wales (UPI)—A 2-day-old girl born by cesarian section minutes after her mother was killed in a highway accident fought for her life Sunday in the University of Wales hospital.

The staff nicknamed her the "miracle baby."

Hospital spokesman David Charles said the infant was in poor condition but added this was "not unusual in the case of premature babies, and especially ones that come into the world so suddenly."

He said the mother, 19-year-old Karen Brown, was believed to be between 8 and 8½ months pregnant at the time of her death. The baby appeared to be fully formed and weighed 4 pounds, 5½ ounces at birth, he said.

Mrs. Brown was killed instantly Friday night in the collision of her bicycle with a truck. She was riding home from a shopping trip.

Doctors at the Royal Infirmary, where she was taken by ambulance, performed an emergency cesarian in an effort to save the unborn baby. The infant was delivered about 30 minutes after Mrs. Brown died.

Charles said the baby was placed in the hospital's special care baby unit—the equivalent of an intensive care unit for adults—where she was being administered extra oxygen and fed milk from other mothers.

The infant, first called the "miracle baby," also was nicknamed "Baby Jane" by hospital staff after the doctor who delivered her.

Newspaper reports said the father, Colin Brown, a 21-year-old bakery worker, had decided to name the child Louise Ann Karen Jane. Louise Ann was his wife's choice, Karen was her name, and Jane the hospital's nickname.

"The baby is all I have of Karen now," Brown was quoted as saying. "I'll bring up the baby somehow."

Charles said Brown visited his daughter in the hospital Saturday night.

Prof. Peter Gray, professor of child health at the hospital, said Saturday there were some "breathing difficulties common in pre-term babies," but that doctors had a "guarded optimism for her survival."

One Cardiff gynecologist, noting the odds against such a delivery, said that once the mother's heart stops beating there is an interval of only 30 to 60 minutes before the infant's stops as well.

"A baby could survive only if the accident took place near a hospital where the special instruments were available and there was someone to operate," he said.

Laker marks 1st anniversary with new economy air route

LONDON (UPI)—Sir Freddie Laker, the patron saint of cheap air travel who has flown nearly 250,000 people between London and New York, celebrates the first anniversary of his Skytrain service by inaugurating a low-cost London-Los Angeles run Tuesday.

The one-way fare for the London-Los Angeles flight will be $182 during the off season and $185 during the peak summer travel months. The Los Angeles-London flight will be $220 during the off season, $243 during the peak. The difference is because of currency exchange rates.

Both fare schedules are less than half the normal economy fares currently offered by other airlines.

Laker Airways Skytrain made its first flight Sept. 26, 1977. And Sir Freddie, as he likes to be called, will fly on the initial London-Los Angeles flight Tuesday — just as he did on the first London-New York run.

Skytrain revolutionized trans-Atlantic air travel between London and New York by making cheap travel possible with a one-way, no-frills flight. The one-way fare from New York to London was set at $135, and the return flight at $110.

Other trans-Atlantic air lines were forced to offer competitive fares, triggering what Laker says was a 40 percent increase in the London-New York market.

There will be one DC10 flight daily each way between London and Los Angeles. All seats are sold on a first come, first served basis. The DC10 will accommodate up to 345 passengers. Meals, drinks, movies and stereo cost extra.

Since the introduction of Skytrain, Laker has grossed more than $17 million and filled 83 percent of its Skytrain seats with nearly 250,000 passengers, Laker officials said.

For his efforts, Laker was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II in June, and just last week announced one of the largest airplane purchases by an independent airline.

Laker says his main problem has been opposition by private and publicly owned airlines who, he says, fear competition.

"I hasn't entered the heads" of airline officials that "you have to have direct head-to-head competition to insure quality service."

Laker is not without his critics, although most complaints come from other airlines and not his passengers.

Those airlines complained Skytrain service would wreck the industry and cause long lines of people waiting for seats.

That did happen in London this summer, but Laker contends it was the fault of the other airlines who "spent millions of dollars" advertising cheap stand-by tickets and then couldn't deliver the seats.

Andalusian: rarest horse in world

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — The pure-bred Andalusian horse is probably the rarest and most sought after horse in the world.

These horses are the direct descendants of the great white war horses ridden by Hannibal. They were of truly great strength, learning and elegance.

The Andalusian of today, although refined from the original breed, still retains all of these characteristics. With but less than 180 pure-bred horses in the United States, owners consider them priceless.

These animals crave tremendous amounts of affection and handling. They have a long flowing mane and fall just inches off the ground and make a breathtaking sight with their natural high-stepping gait and synchronized movements. By his very nature, the Andalusian is the perfect adaptation for classical dressage, his animation and spirit make him the perfect parade horse. He also demonstrates an affinity for jumping and as a pleasure horse, he is without peer.

The Garrison Ranch in Thousand Oaks, Calif., is the largest breeder of pure-bred Andalusian horses in the United States. There are 40 horses at the ranch, starting with Legionario III, the Grand Champion of Spain in 1969.

A minimum of 15 hands high for the mares and up to 16 for the stallions, they are born a steel gray—sometimes chocolate or brown. Within three weeks they start to change color. The browns and the chocolates to dark gray; the grays into a lighter gray. At six months, they have various shades of gray. As they grow older, depending on the genetic background of the individual, they start lightening up. At five they are generally white with a slight dapple. Later light dapple gray horses go pure white. Those that remain gray will arrive at the permanent light dapple color.

Legionario III's blood lines can be traced back almost 500 years. He is considered by the Spanish Military Stud Farm as one of the three greatest living Andalusian sires in the world, based on confirmation, his breeding and a recent visit to the ranch by two representatives of the Spanish Stud Book, to examine his foals. If you have a pure-bred Andalusian mare, his stud fee is $3,500.

Capitano is a 5-year-old stallion with a tremendous future as a dressage horse and sire. He has been used extensively during the present breeding season and is now available to outside pure-bred mares. He's a magnificent looking, light silver dapple-gray with a perfectly sculptured head. Stud fee is $2,500.

The Andalusian is popular with the international celebrities of the world, and top dressage riders and instructors in this country have purchased stock for their clients. Additionally, Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis, Dean Martin and Clint Eastwood have been riding pure Andalusians, along with the Royal Family of Sweden.

Andalusian breeder, Greg Garrison, and daughter, Pat, visit Legionario III

Mother takes part in religious cult voodoo rite

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: We are three married sisters deeply concerned about our mother who, up until a few months ago, was a normal, healthy mother and a loving grandmother.

Mother got involved with a weird religious cult, and now she's taking part in voodoo rites. She gave them $5,000 to take her a "saint." They locked her in a house for seven days and nights with another "saint" who is her Godmother.

She went through a ritual during which her head was shaved, and chickens and doves were sacrificed and their blood poured over her body. For a year she must wear a white turban, support her "Godmother Saint," and get permission before going anywhere. Mother now actually believes that she has the power to cure, curse and kill!

Her lovely home has become filthy — cluttered with candles and all sorts of ceremonial paraphernalia. She hangs up the phone when we try to reason with her, and says if we can't accept her new religion we can all drop dead. She vows she will never give up her religion even if it means never seeing her children or grandchildren again.

The police know all about this cult, but they say they can't do anything about it because our mother joined it of her own free will. Her doctor says she definitely needs psychiatric treatment, but we can't get a psychiatrist to commit her.

Meanwhile, our lawyer says that he is powerless to act without a psychiatrist's affidavit. Please help us.

WAITING IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR WAITING: Even though your mother insists that she chose this "religion" of her own free will, she obviously was influenced by some kind of mind-control such as hypnosis or brainwashing.

The fact that your mother paid $5,000 to become a "saint" and now claims powers to cure, curse and kill is clear evidence that she is a very sick woman.

You need a lawyer and a psychiatrist who will work together in an effort to get your mother deprogrammed and restored to normalcy. Don't give up!

DEAR ABBY: Some weeks ago you ran a letter from a lady who claimed flatly that everyone in the world knows the Swiss to be closer with a centime, lighter with a token, if you please, than any other people. That statement has rankled me ever since.

As one whose ancestors wore the tartans and kilts, I take umbrage at her claim, for the whole world knows that the canny Scots are the most penurious people in the world. As a matter of fact, it's common here in Bonnie Arizona that the Grand Canyon was dug in a fortnight when my maternal great-great-grandfather, Pedro Gonzales McLeod (pronounced McCloud), dropped a nickel, and it rolled down a gopher hole.

DALE CANNON; TEMPE, ARIZONA

CONFIDENTIAL TO ETHEL GRAHAM VANCE — wherever you are — Thank you for these profound lines: "If while is good, and black is bad Then all my friends are gray or plaid."

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write, Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Reader requests help for painful foot callouses

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb:

I have a very painful callous on the bottom or ball of my right foot that earns a lot of weight. There seems to be a hard core-like portion to it, some of which came off when I pulled on it with my fingernails.

Some months ago my doctor only danced at it and called it a callous but did not tell me anything to do to get relief except to cushion it. We don't have a foot doctor near enough for me to visit. I have two or three thicknesses of callous pads with donut holes on it, each three-quarters inch in diameter. That gives a little relief. Do you have a suggestion as to what I can do to get relief for this painful center or to heal it?

Dear Reader:

You are on the right track. The callous on the bottom of the foot means that that area is bearing excess weight. The most likely cause is you probably have improperly fitting shoes. I would suggest you get shoes that are adequately roomy so your foot can move around comfortably inside the shoe. You should be able to wiggle your toes. Use soft shoes if you can.

Any pad device from which you cut out the center where the callous is, so there's no weight bearing on the part of the callous itself, will help relieve the condition. Of course, you can soak the callous in warm water and then rub it with a pumice stone or a rough wash cloth while it's still soft. That will help some but unless you remove the problem of excessive weight bearing in that area, your callous is likely to return.

If you're unable to correct it with an improvement in the quality of the shoes that you're wearing, then I think you probably should see an orthopedic specialist to see what's wrong with the weight bearing mechanism of your foot.

To give you more information about a callous on the foot I am sending you the Health Letter, number 11-10, Common Foot Problems: What to Do About Them. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78222.

Dear Dr. Lamb:
The latest word is that cod liver oil taken in orange juice one hour before breakfast or five hours after dinner on an empty stomach will bypass the liver and be beneficial to the legs and foot joints of an arthritic. What is your opinion?

Dear Reader:

My opinion is that the latest word is pure nonsense. I'm not sure who's responsible for the latest word, but you can be assured that it is not based on any scientific facts.

It doesn't matter what you take cod liver oil in, it still goes through the same digestive system and it doesn't matter whether you take it at midnight or six o'clock in the morning. It's still going to be digested. The only way anything you eat or take by mouth gets to the leg or foot is by way of the circulation and to get into the circulation, it has to be digested and absorbed first.

Whenever you're getting the kind of information you've suggested here about cod liver oil, I think you should totally discount that source and never on any occasion use that source of information whatsoever.

There is no indication that cod liver oil taken in any form is beneficial in any way to arthritis.

Transport system doesn't aid women

By SUSAN FOGG
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The silent assumption that transportation — whether private car or public transit — exists mainly to move men to and from work limits the job opportunities and social life of women, according to sociologist Helena Znaniecki Lopata.

From young mothers in the suburbs to widows in the central city, Mrs. Lopata — of Chicago's Loyola University 8 found in a study of 3,000 women that the existing transportation system restricts their options.

"Most transportation resources of modern urban America have been developed on the assumptions that men need them for work and that family activity involves a husband-father familiar with the main (transportation) resources," Mrs. Lopata said at a recent conference on women and travel sponsored by the Transportation Department.

"Women are expected to drive in order to maintain their homes and families, but not to understand the mechanics of the automobile," she said. "Because of the American insistence that women belong in and around the home, they often face transportation difficulties when they try to move into other areas."

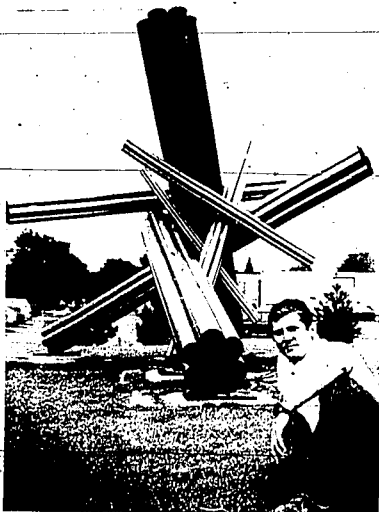

For example, Mrs. Lopata found that 23 percent of her sample of Chicago-area women would not take a job they "really wanted" if it entailed working outside their home neighborhood; 52 percent would turn down a job that required them to travel out of town; and 85 percent would not move to another city for work.

"Women having to seek employment often limit themselves by refusing to consider a job requiring moving out of town or traveling; (they prefer) to work near home, and in a 'desirable' neighborhood," she said.

The phenomenon of women traveling on the job is a very recent one," she said. "Business firms... were traditionally reluctant to hire women for jobs requiring overnight travel. Having a male escort in travel or entrance into a public place has been a necessity for women not yet affected by the feminist movement."

Women with school-age children find it difficult to break away from full-time homemaking, Mrs. Lopata said, because they are locked into the role of the children's chauffeur.

With the exception of the little yellow school bus, urban communities outside the inner city provide little transportation to recreational activities for children short of a privately-organized neighborhood car pool.

we wrote the book.

Here's short-term, high earning power in Money Market certificates.

It's just human nature to expect more from big things.

Similarly we can expect larger sums of money to work harder than lesser amounts.

They can.

They earn at much higher rates of interest than regular savings accounts. They're called Money Market certificates* and they are issued in minimum $10,000 denominations with a six-month maturity.

The high interest is pegged at the average discounted rate for Six-Month Treasury Bills which is established each week as they are issued. In the first six months of 1978, T-Bills have exceeded regular six-month CD rates by an average of nearly 1 1/2%.

So make your money work at least as hard as you did to get it. It's the best of both worlds because with the long gain, you retain short-term flexibility and control. Money Market certificates... that's the long and the short of it.

It was during the terrible winter of 1874 that Alfred Packer led five prospectors into the Colorado Rockies and returned two months later without them. Packer was convicted, as every student of history knows, of cannibalism. # RARE II confrontation broadens

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The National Forest Service named it "RARE II" but the people who oppose locking up more wilderness in the West call it "Rape I."

RARE II stands for Roadless Area Evaluation and Review. It is a study of 2,686 "roadless" areas covering more than 62 million acres across the country. About 90 percent of the areas are in the West.

But the government acronym has become the label for another confrontation between environmentalists who want to save vast tracts of land for posterity and developers who say the nation will suffer if they can't mine and drill.

Basically the brainchild of Dr. M. Rupert Cutler, assistant secretary of agriculture, RARE II is an attempt to identify those areas of the country which should be added to the Wilderness Preservation System created in 1964 by the Wilderness Act.

It has the support of President Carter, who said in his environmental message to Congress, "The National Wilderness Preservation System created by this act must be expanded promptly, before the most deserving of federal lands are opened to other uses and lost to wilderness forever." The Forest Service began RARE II about three years ago by updating the inventory of roadless areas that were identified in an earlier study called RARE I. To be "roadless," an area must be at least 5,000 acres and not contain any man-made or maintained roads.

Development of economic resources in the areas is in limbo until the final phase of the study is complete and final recommendations sent to Congress.

Thousands of written responses to the study are now being read and prepared for computer analysis by a team of Forest Service employees in Salt Lake City. More than 11,000 responses from all over the country are read and coded so the computer can print out an accurate picture of how people think the lands ought to be managed.

"The initial inventory from which the public worked was intended to include all possible areas, with the full knowledge that some areas would not best serve as wilderness," said Dr. Cutler.

"Some people expressed concern that all the areas might be immediately designated as wilderness. This was not the intent; this will not happen."

But opponents to "locking up" more land as wilderness and preventing it from being drilled, mined and grazed are not so sure. Many believe the Carter administration is infested with environmentalists who want to salt away in the Wilderness System, millions of acres of economically productive land.

"Industry supports the maintenance of a quality wilderness system but the emphasis should be on quality, not quantity," said W.D. Hagenstein, executive vice president of the Industrial Forestry Association in Portland, Ore.

"Designation of more wilderness would decrease, not expand, recreational opportunities in the national forests. Studies have shown less than 4 percent of national forest visitors use wilderness and the demand for dispersed recreation, with minimal sanitary facilities and roads, is increasing rapidly."

John Marker, a Forest Service information officer in Ogden, Utah, said the battle over RARE II is a classic confrontation between groups which have diametrically opposed ideas on how the same piece of land should be used. He said the more vocal opponents "tend to over-dramatize it."

"We call it Rare II. They call it Rape I. There is no way it's all going to be named wilderness."

"But it's complicated because we're dealing with an awful lot of land. Utahns have real concerns over how much of the state should be wilderness, but so do other people in other states, because, after all, it's public land."

Typical of the opponents of more wilderness in Utah is Cal Black, chairman of the San Juan County Commission, which recently got so mad at the National Park Service over a road plan in Canyonlands National Park that it revoked rangers' designation as county peace officers.

"I wouldn't go so far as to say there's going to be bloodshed, but I can see development to that point if the situation continues," Black said. Black doesn't like the people who use wilderness areas. He wants backpackers to pay a fee to use the areas.

"Everyone else pays fees to use the public lands ... miners, livestockmen and so forth ... so why not backpackers?"

He said environmentalists want to turn southern Utah into "one big wilderness park."

"But when south-Utah people have been ignored so long and stepped on their own values, aspirations and right to make a living trampled on, then they may turn to destroying the values of those who torment them. It could result in revolutionary activity, such as sabotaging vehicles and government property. I'm not in favor of it, but I've heard talk about it."

The bitterness is also evident in New Mexico, where Bill Lamminger, president of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau says more wilderness means economic trouble.

"Economically, more wilderness means the loss of jobs for the citizens of our state, so that a select few can have a private playground on weekends," Lamminger said. "Our state does not have the kind of economic base to support more wilderness."

In Montana, where RARE II covered about 5.7 million acres, the battle is being fought over timber.

Bill Cunningham, spokesman for a coalition of 21 Montana citizen conservation groups, said the study does not include about 3.1 million acres of other roadless land in the state.

"We don't hear that much about the amount of roadless land allocated to non-wilderness uses," Cunningham said. "The Montana coalition will simply not be influenced by blind rhetoric that insists that wilderness classification will 'lock up the land and put people out of work.'"

The coalition says all the land in their alternative can be designated wilderness without an adverse impact on jobs and local communities.

Mental health group to explore 1% issue

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The impact of California's overwhelming adoption of Proposition 13 on mental health services in Idaho will be explored by a annual meeting of the Mental Health Association of Idaho in Boise Oct. 6-7.

Allen Maltzen, the scheduled banquet speaker at the state convention in the Boise Sheraton Downtown, says the impact of the California action will be felt in every other state in the nation.

"It is our responsibility to make certain that the Mental Health Association at every level faces up immediately to the possible consequences," he wrote in the current issue of the Idaho Mental Health Association publication "In Touch in Idaho."

We acknowledge there is occasional unwise use of funds in government (and private) fiscal programs. But the vast majority of mental health services supported by tax dollars are meeting a real need and being operated efficiently. Most are hurting for funds rather than being profligate with what they have, the attorney said.

The Mental Health convalesce will be held in conjunction with the National Council of Community Mental Health Centers, Region X annual meeting Oct. 5 and 6.

Persons attending the mental health meeting can take advantage of speakers from both groups, according to Nancy Pyburn, Boise, acting executive director of MHA.

Other features of the mental health session will include an afternoon workshop Oct 6 by Dr. Charles Greene of Boise on brain chemistry and mental health and a no-host social gathering at 6 p.m. in the Sawtooth room of the Sheraton Downtown with Idaho congressional and legislative candidates.

Another Friday afternoon workshop will deal with special needs of women in therapy. Speakers will include Sue Stadler, a Boise social worker in private practice; Dr. Wylla Barsness, Boise State University professor of psychology; and Dr. Sue Hayden, clinical psychologist at the Region 4 Community Mental Health Center. Depression and patients and deinstitutionalization are other topics on the two-day program.

Registration fee is $15 for non-members and $10 to Mental Health Association members, with the Friday evening banquet extra. More information can be obtained by calling the state MHA office 343-4866 or contacting Charles Perry, president of the Twin Falls chapter.

Not a cat whisker in sight

TWIN FALLS — Fifty-five dogs roamed Twin Falls City Park Sunday afternoon, but the dog catcher was never called.

In this instance, he wasn't needed because they were there with their owners for the fall dog show sponsored by the Snake River Canyon Kennel Club.

The animals and their owners enjoyed Sunday's unseasonably high 82-degree temperature in a practice meet aimed at eventually getting the club's shows sanctioned by the American Kennel Club, a club spokeswoman said.

Sharon Patterson said the bi-annual show is the third such event or halfway toward getting the AKC's stamp of approval. She estimated it will take another 18 months activities before AKC officials will even consider the local club's application.

Once it is given, winners of the various categories can receive points that count toward a championship award for a dog and owner, Mrs. Patterson said.

Meanwhile, she said events like Sunday's gathering give handlers and dogs, young and old, a chance to practice for other clubs' AKC-sanctioned meets.

She said the Sunday turnout was a little lower than expected because of another meet elsewhere in Idaho.

Magic Valley dog owners, who accounted for most of the 55 canines entered, won all classes of the

Jensen backs farm supports by government

MERIDIAN — The United States government should protect the genuine family farmer while making it harder for large corporations to receive government supports or subsidies, Dwight Jensen said last week.

Jensen is Idaho's Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate. He used a speaking appearance before the Meridian Chamber of Commerce to lay out his farm program he has been promising since he announced for office on April 1.

Jensen said the nation has good reason to protect the family farmer. By keeping him in business, Jensen said, the country can ease unemployment and urban problems, provide a good atmosphere for raising children, keep agriculture and food production from falling into the hands of a few large corporations and work toward energy efficiency and a better environment.

For those and other reasons, Jensen said, government supports and subsidies to family farmers are justified.

But he said no such help should be given to large corporations that go into the farming business. "They should fend for themselves — insure themselves rather than take federal disaster relief, take their chances in the open market and either survive on their own or else get out of the farming business."

Among the goals Jensen outlined:
• Definition of a family farm. The definition should require the basic operations of the farm be carried out by the family owning or leasing it and not by hired managers. The farm should probably not be larger than 1,200 acres, Jensen added, except for dry land farms.

• Restrict to family farms only, and not to farms owned by large corporations, government subsidies, price supports, low interest loans and other forms of government assistance.

• Bar corporations in the farming business from getting federal disaster relief, and in general tighten up the disaster relief program.

• Base price supports as nearly as possible on 100 percent of parity, using committees of local people to help determine what the support level should be.

• Retain the present federal limit of $15,000 per farmer in support payments.

• Encourage the formation of cooperatives limited to family farmers. The co-ops could, in some cases, improve marketing procedures and prices for the farmers.

• Peg the level of beef imports to the domestic production of beef.

• Restrict the ability of foreigners and corporations to buy farmland.

Jensen said his plan could reduce the cost of government price supports to the taxpayer, avoid a sharp rise in consumer prices, and help move the nation toward a situation in which the family farmer could operate in a free market atmosphere without government supports "once he no longer has to face unfair competition from conglomerate corporations."

Business as usual at regional GSA

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In Washington some insist GSA stands for General Scandals Administration, as the government's quartermaster and paymaster service is the subject of continuing allegations and investigations.

But at the local level of the General Services Administration, it's business as usual.

Last week Carl O. Strand, a GSA representative for Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Alaska was in Twin Falls, consulting small business firms on how to negotiate contracts with the federal government.

GSA is the "marketing arm" of the federal government, Strand said, pointing out the administration is charged with purchasing and operating most of the property used by government agencies. This includes, he added, purchasing, building and renting all federal office space and office buildings.

If GSA's questionable use of office space, at least according to its congressional critics, that has led to charges GSA is involved in a large financial scandal.

But Strand said no evidence of that scandal has been found to touch the four states which are his responsibility. "We have had auditors look at it," Strand said. "What they have found is no hanky-panky."

The worst that has been found in the audit of the 1,800 GSA employees in the four state region, Strand says, "is some very minor rule bending to get a job done a little quicker that had to be done."

Strand says his tour through Idaho including stops in Boise, Twin Falls, Pocatello and Idaho Falls — is an attempt to bring the services of GSA to the small businessman.

"If we sat there in Seattle waiting for businessmen to come to us we'd miss a lot of people," he said. The GSA goes out of its way, Strand said, to contract with small businesses.

During his Twin Falls stop, Strand said, he was contacted by several area distributors interested in contracting with the government. They were interested in selling chemicals and paper products, he added.

Strand also said his trip was not planned as an attempt to bolster the sagging image of GSA at the national level, but, acknowledged, "that could be a by-product with the people I see."

Strand, who worked in private business for 21 years before joining GSA 6 years ago, said he is interested in establishing closer contacts with local businessmen. Individuals with questions on government contracting should call him at his Seattle office, Strand added. That number is 206-442-5558.

New fire district approved

KING HILL — A fire district was approved for the Glenns Ferry-King Hill area.

Elmore County Clerk Dean Sangrey of Mountain Home said that Gov. John Evans will appoint the first three-person governing commission. The county commissioners will appoint the governing commissioners after the first term. He said a district could not be created in time to appropriate fiscal year starting Oct. 1 but tax money for fire protection would be available in December 1979, Sangrey said.

The Glenns Ferry City Council and fire chief agreed to house fire-fighting equipment in King Hill. A hearing was held in the King Hill Grange Hall with Elmore County commissioners, relative to forming a fire district. New maps and papers were presented to the county commissioners, who required the cost of the election be sent to the auditor and recorder.

About 15 years ago the King Hill Grange tried to establish a fire district in the eastern portion of Elmore county, but was not successful. Last April the Grange decided to try again to establish a fire protection district.

Frank Jones, past master of the King Hill Grange, was chairman of the fire district committee.

For the election boards for the two polling places, all workers were unpaid volunteers.

McClure's van

TWIN FALLS — Shoppers in the Lynnwood Shopping Center Saturday were able to inspect the electric van that U.S. Sen. James McClure has leased for five months to promote energy conservation.

The senator, not only drives the non-polluting van to commute between the capitol and his home in Alexandria, Va., but he also is using it to campaign around Idaho, according to Ron Shifflett, his legislative assistant.

The van is a 1978 Ford Econoline 150 refitted with a General Electric electrical propulsion system which is recharged nightly by plugging into a wall socket.

It uses 20 kilowatts of electricity to travel 55 miles, and based upon the Idaho cost of 2 cents per kilowatt hour, the van can travel 55 miles for 40 cents, Shifflett said.

The side said a government demonstration program is now under way at five different sites throughout the country, including Disneyworld in Florida, to gather data on operation of electric vans.

The eight-year testing program is part of legislation which former President Gerald Ford vetoed. McClure helped override that veto, Shifflett said.

Statistics show that 80 percent of all driving in this country is for distances less than 37 miles, and it is exactly this kind of situation that the electric vans are best suited for.

Candidates to speak

SUN VALLEY — Idaho's two gubernatorial candidates will speak on health care to delegates at the 45th Annual Idaho Hospital Association convention this morning.

Anne Quinn, administrative assistant for the association, said Republican challenger Allan Larsen is first up before the delegates and guests at 11 a.m. in the Sun Valley Lodge Limestone Room. Democratic governor John Evans follows at 11:20 a.m.

Ms. Quinn said the two men are not expected to "debate" one another head-on following their 20-minute speeches.

More than 800 people from Idaho's health care community will listen to the two men, who follow keynote speaker Alfred J. Barran, president of General Telephone Company of the Northwest Inc. The five-day convention ends Wednesday.

A family campaign

MOUNTAIN HOME — Political interest runs high in the Wetherell family.

Michael Wetherell, a practicing attorney in Boise and vice president of Guaranty Title Inc. in Mountain Home, is seeking the Idaho Attorney General's seat. But he isn't the only one getting campaign help from the family.

His mother, Claire, is seeking the state Senate seat from District 22 in Elmore County. Both are running on the Democratic ticket.

"She sometimes fills in for me when I can't make a local Democratic candidate rally," the attorney says of his mother. "Sometimes we are both on the program when there is a political event in Elmore County — and sometimes I get to put in a word or two on her behalf and visa versa."

Mrs. Wetherell is presently a city councilwoman in Mountain Home and her husband, Bob, served in the Idaho legislature for many years.

Television

BOISE — Candidates for state offices in the November general election will be debating issues in a series of television debates next month sponsored by the Idaho Press Club.

The first show is scheduled Oct. 10 at 7 p.m. between Steven D. Symms, Republican incumbent state representative from the 1st District, and his Democratic opponent, Roy Truby. The debate will be held in Moscow and aired over KUID television station.

The second debate also features Symms and Truby Oct. 19 in Boise at 8 p.m. at the Boise State University student union building. It will be televised over KUID and KAID.

On Oct. 24, David Leroy, Republican, and Michael Wetherell, Democrat, candidates for attorney general, debate at 8 p.m. in the BSU Special Events Center.

The final debate involves candidates for lieutenant governor, William J. Murphy, Democrat, and Phillip Batt, Republican. It is scheduled Oct. 31 at 8 p.m. in the Ada Lounge of the BSU student union.

Debate coordinator is John Corlett.

Common Cause criticizes votes of Hansen, Symms

WASHINGTON — Idaho Republican Congressmen George Hansen and Steve Symms have among the worst voting records in the House on issues of government reform, according to a survey released last week by Common Cause.

According to Common Cause studies of recent Senate and 14 recent House votes on questions of accountability in government and improving government's performance, Hansen voted against reform measures 11 times, while supporting them only twice.

Only four other members of the House of Representatives had that bad a record on government reform votes, according to the Common Cause survey.

First District Congressman Steve Symms, also a Republican, supported the Common Cause reform position three times, while voting against it 11 times.

In the Senate, where 16 votes were recorded, Republican Jim McClure supported the measures Common Cause says were questions of accountability and improving government's performance six times, and opposed them seven times.

Senator Frank Church, a Democrat, supported 12 of the 16 measures and opposed four.

Common Cause, a national non-partisan citizen's organization, with the goals of promoting "openness and accountability in government," conducted its survey during 1977-1978.

According to the organization's 15 page vote analysis, Common Cause does not endorse or oppose candidates, or issue rankings of members of Congress, because "there are many facets to a legislative career." And while voting records do not provide "a full picture of what a Senator or Representative has accomplished," Common Cause says it considers those voting records to be "the best available measuring rod" of a lawmaker's performance.

"We have an operating philosophy of no permanent allies and no permanent adversaries," Common Cause President David Cohen said. "We take up issues one at a time, getting support from all parts of the political spectrum."

Horizon changes? Residents sight UFOs

By United Press International

There was a rash of UFO sightings in Utah and Wyoming late Saturday night, many of them reported by law enforcement officers.

The Referral Center for UFO Studies in Chicago, which takes reports of sightings from Northwestern University, said two officers in Utah and several in the Evanston, Wyo., area reported UFOs.

The sightings were virtually identical, with people reporting an extremely bright light that looked like a falling star until it started moving sideways. The lights were blue, yellow and green and reportedly moved down very fast before taking off. All the sightings were in the northwest skies.

A spokesman at the center said the rash of sightings could be due to the fact that the horizon changed early Saturday morning with the arrival of the Autumnal Equinox.

That changes the horizon, she said, and people could be seeing normal phenomena that they just aren't used to seeing.

A mobile van Democrats campaigning on wheels

CASCADE — Twin Falls Democrats hit the streets Saturday, knocking on doors and distributing campaign literature in a county-wide get-out-the-vote drive.

Campaign canvassing was conducted in Castleford, Buhl and Filer. According to Twin Falls County Democratic Chairman Marge Slotten, canvassing will take place in Hansen, Kimberly and Murtaugh on Oct. 7.

On Oct. 12, Gov. John Evans, congressional candidate Stan Kress, and senatorial candidate Dwight Jensen will join local Democrats for a third round of canvassing. On Oct. 26, a final all-county canvass will be conducted Slotten said.

Democrats were transported throughout the county in their mobile headquarters — a converted school bus that now sports the campaign signs of Democratic candidates.

Study says Nevada should build wild horse museum

CARSON CITY (UPI) — Nevada should use part of a $500,000 legacy set aside for preservation of wild horses to build a museum to tell the history and the battle to save the mustang, a new study showed Sunday.

Gerald Brown, in his $12,000 study, also suggested the state use part of the money for developing springs and wells for use by the wild horses that roam the Nevada range. The survey suggests the state try to get other money to bolster any program for wild horse preservation.

"The wild horse problem is not widely understood," said Brown. Although most individuals and organizations agree the mustang must be saved, there are differences of opinion on the methods.

"The myths about the wild horse rest on emotionally charged concepts without, in many instances, any basis in fact," he says. "The banner of the wild horse has been picked up by many organizations and individuals with no concept of what the wild horse is, its origin or its needs..." he says.

Brown was hired by the Governor's Wild Horse Committee headed by Sen. Floyd Lamb, D-Las Vegas to come up with ways to spend nearly $500,000 left in the will of Leo Hell of California for Nevada to preserve the wild horses.

'Hard choice' but Evans opts for William Murphy

BOISE (UPI) — Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus had to choose between friends Sunday afternoon, but stuck with the Democratic candidate in his endorsement for Idaho's lieutenant governor race.

Andrus, a former Idaho governor, flew to Boise to attend a political picnic in support of Lt. Gov. William Murphy.

Andrus said both Murphy and Republican candidate Phil Batt are "excellent" candidates and his close personal friends, but picked Murphy because he said it is important to Idaho that both the governor and lieutenant governor hail from the same party.

In making his decision, Andrus said he was confident that Idahoans would re-elect Democratic Gov. John V.

Evans in the November election. "I speak from experience," he said. "I think it's important that both the governor and lieutenant governor be of the same party."

"I have two friends running for the office," Andrus said, "Phil Batt and Bill Murphy. I would be very comfortable if either one of those men was the governor of the state of Idaho. They are both honest, hard working and experienced. But they are not running for governor, they are running for lieutenant governor."

Murphy's rally was staged at Municipal Park. "I am very pleased that Secretary Andrus was able to take time to come to Boise to help my campaign," Murphy said.

The mustang controversy has centered on ranchers who complain the wild horses are trampling the range and the environmentalists who see the horse as a decedent from the early day Spanish stallions which should be preserved.

Brown says the $500,000 is inadequate to start any major program but does make a number of suggestions that the state should seek extra money and start an educational program.

He said an informed public could replace the emotional responses that arise whenever suggestions are made for controlling the mustang. He said education would help the public understand that other species such as livestock have a right to the range also.

At present there are an estimated 30,000 mustangs roaming the Nevada range. The Bureau of Land Management is taking part of these horses off the land and putting them up for adoption to the public.

Investigator under arrest

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — A statewide grand jury investigator arrested by Rock Springs police while on an undercover assignment has pleaded no contest to charges of public drunkenness, resisting arrest and creating a disturbance.

Cecil Cundy entered the plea Friday. He was arrested July 11 in a Rock Springs after-hours club which is said to be at the center of the grand jury's investigation into vice and alleged corruption in the southwest Wyoming energy boom town.

Officials said Cundy, a former deputy Sheridan County attorney, was fined $50 on the disturbance charge, $10 on the drunkenness charge and $40 for resisting arrest.

Cundy was arrested at 3:20 a.m. at the New Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks of the New World, formerly the Townsend Club. He was talking to club operator Earl Dotsley at the time.

Grand Jury Special Prosecutor Lawrence A. Yonke said Cundy was on assignment at the time. Police denied the arrest was linked to Cundy's work or the grand jury investigation and said they were not aware of Cundy's identity until they had booked him.

Dodgers clinch second straight western title

By United Press International
Los Angeles clinched its second straight National League Western Division title Sunday when Steve Garvey drove in three runs and rookie Bob Welch fired a five-hit shutout to pace the Dodgers to a 4-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The Dodgers batted around and scored three runs in the fourth inning, driving starter and loser Bob O'Leary, 10-13, from the mound. It was the third shutout and sixth complete game of the season for right-hander Welch, 7-4, who struck out six and walked two.

It was also the second straight division title for the Dodgers under Manager Tommy Lasorda. With two out in the third inning, Reggie Smith doubled and scored on Garvey's single. Joe Ferguson led off the fourth with a double and Davey Lopes was walked intentionally, with Ferguson scoring on Bill North's single. Mark Lee then replaced O'Leary and walked Smith intentionally to load the bases. Garvey singled to center to score Lopes and North.

The three-hits game Garvey 194 for the season. Garvey is bidding for his fourth 200-hit season with six games to go. It was also Garvey's 16th straight game in which he hit safely.

Philadelphia increased its Eastern Division lead to four games by defeating the New York Mets 8-2 coupled with Montreal's 4-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bake McBride hit the first pitch of the game for a home run and Tim McCarver added a three-run blast in a four-run sixth inning to lead the Phillies past the Mets. Steve Carlton benefited from the long ball support to gain his 16th victory in 28 decisions. Carlton pitched eight innings, allowing seven hits and only one earned run.

Rookie Scott Sanderson fired a three-hit shutout and Ellis Valentine drove in two runs with a fielder's choice grounder and a double to pace the Expos over the Pirates.

Right-hander Tom Hume tossed a three-hit and Champ Summers doubled in the decisive run to give the Cincinnati Reds a 2-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Mike Vail and Larry Bittner singled home runs off reliever Tom Bruno in the ninth inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 5-1 win over the St. Louis Cardinals. The victory went to Lynn McLoughlin, 5-2, who worked three innings in relief of Ken Holtzman. Pete Vukovich started for St. Louis and gave up a first-inning home run to Buckner and two more runs in the sixth.

Pinch hitter Bill Madlock doubled home two runs in the seventh inning to give the San Francisco Giants a 6-4 victory and a sweep of their double-header with the Houston Astros after the Giants won the opener 7-0.

In the American League, Ron Guidry tossed a two-hitter for his 23rd victory and notched his ninth shutout of the season in leading the New York Yankees to a 4-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The victory kept the Yankees one game ahead of Boston in the East. Both teams have six games remaining.

Meanwhile, Boston edged Toronto 7-6 to stay one game back of the Yankees.
In other games, Minnesota defeated Kansas City 6-4, Chicago dumped California 7-3, Detroit downed Baltimore 4-2, Milwaukee bested Oakland 5-2 and Texas took a double-header from Seattle by 5-3 and 4-3 scores.

Manager Tommy Lasorda: never had any doubts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tommie Lasorda, the second-year manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said he never had any doubts and neither did his players.

But his captain and second baseman Davey Lopes, speaking strictly for himself said, "There were plenty of doubts."

A champagne-drenched Lasorda and Lopes spoke in separate parts of the Dodger dressing room Sunday after Los Angeles won its second straight National League West Division title with a 4-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"When we were six games behind on June 27 everybody thought it was the end of the Dodgers," Lasorda claimed. "But it was really the beginning."

"I never had any doubts. Even when we had a 3-7 road trip in June, I told our players we were going to win and they never doubted themselves."

"Yes, first I did have my doubts."

Lopes contradicted. "When we started out, I felt we could go all the way. But I also knew it might be tough because it's always tougher winning it twice in a row."

"But when we got way back I had my doubts if we were capable of catching up. I thought it might be 1975 all over again."

Lopes' reference was to the Dodgers' 1975 collapse when they finished 20 games behind the Cincinnati Reds in the NL West after capturing the pennant in 1974.

Steve Garvey collected three straight hits and drove in three runs to pace the Dodgers' 9th win in their final regular-season home game.

"I don't make predictions," smiled Garvey, when asked about the Dodgers' chances in the National League playoffs and World Series.

"I'm confident we can win it all, but I don't want to predict it. I will say we're a better team than we were last year."

Seahawks rally to edge Lions

SEATTLE (UPI) — Jim Zorn threw three fourth-quarter touchdown passes Sunday to rally the Seattle Seahawks to a 28-16 victory over the Detroit Lions.

Rolling to his left, Zorn looped a 4-yard scoring pass to tight end Ron Howard with 9:17 left to give the Seahawks a 21-16 lead. The 53-yard scoring drive was set up when Seattle's Doug Long recovered an onside kick from Elren Herrera.

The kick followed a 49-yard scoring pass from Zorn to Steve Largent at the 12:34 mark. Zorn's third TD pass, giving Seattle a 28-16 lead, was a 12-yard throw to Sam McCullum with 2:30 left to play.

Zorn also scored Seattle's first touchdown on a 5-yard rollout with 1:55 left in the first half to give the Seahawks a 7-6 halftime lead.

Seattle's fourth-quarter outburst was in sharp contrast to the first three periods when the Lions outgained the Seahawks 227 yards to just 90.

Dexter Bussey burst through the middle of the Seattle defense for a 29-yard TD run to give Detroit a 16-7 lead with 58 seconds left in the third quarter.

Dallas 21-12

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — Robert Newhouse, Tony Dorsett and Roger Staubach put life in Dallas' lethargic offense in the fourth quarter Sunday and rallied the Cowboys to a 21-12 victory over the feisty but still winless St. Louis Cardinals.

St. Louis opened a 10-0 lead in the first half and still led 12-7 after three periods before the Cowboys were finally able to solve the Cardinals' defense.

"It was the fourth straight loss for St.

Louis and Coach Bud Wilkinson, something that happened to Wilkinson only once in his 17-year coaching career at the University of Oklahoma. Dallas' victory allowed the Cowboys to stay one game behind NFC East leading Washington, setting up an early season showdown between the Cowboys and Redskins next Monday night.

St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart hit Dallas nemesis Mel Gray with a 9-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter. Jim Bakken produced a 23-yard field goal in the second period and the Cardinals blocked a punt out of the end zone early in the second half for their 12 points. Just when it seemed that would be enough, Dorsett put the first spark in Dallas' attack.

Late in the third quarter, Dorsett, who had scored the Cowboys' first touchdown on a 7-yard run, broke for 25 yards to the Cardinals' 34.

On the final play of the quarter Dorsett sprang free for 23 yards and on the third play of the final quarter Newhouse scored on a 2-yard run that finally put Dallas in front.

Dallas then held St. Louis on downs and promptly marched 82 yards in seven plays. Newhouse again getting a touchdown on a 15-yard pass from Staubach. On that drive Newhouse picked up 15 yards on one carry and Staubach hit favorite target Drew Pearson with a 24-yard throw.

Dorsett, the NFC's leading rusher, gained 154 yards on 21 carries and was rewarded by a punt on the shoulder pads by Coach Tom Landry when the former Heisman Trophy winner left the game with a minute to play. His performance Sunday boosted his season total to 450 yards.

Overtime win for Broncos

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Dave Preston swept one yard around left end with 4:32 left in the overtime period Sunday to give the Denver Broncos a 23-17 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Middle linebacker Randy Gradishar stopped Tony Reed on a fourth-and-one situation at the Denver 40 to give the Broncos the ball for the winning drive.

Craig Morton, operating with third-team running backs Larry Canada and Preston behind him, drove the Broncos 60 yards in 13 plays for the score. Canada gained 34 of the yards in the drive, including a 9-yard run on a fourth-and-one from the Kansas City 27.

The victory lifted Denver's record to 3-1 while Kansas City fell to 1-3.

Denver scored 117 points in regulation time on a 42-yard pass from Morton to Riley Odams, a 42-yard field goal by Jim Turner and a 3-yard run by Canada.

Both teams blew chances for the victory late in the fourth quarter.

Gary Green blocked a 37-yard Turner field goal try and the Chiefs drove 54 yards to the Denver seven o'clock to have Tom Jackson intercept Mike Livingston's pass in the end zone with six minutes left. Denver then drove 56 yards to the Kansas City 25 but Turner's 41-yard field goal try was wide right with 24 seconds left in regulation time.

For New England

Cunningham's dive does it

OAKLAND (UPI) — Sam Cunningham dove over from one yard out Sunday night to give the New England Patriots their first victory of the season, a come-from-behind 21-14 decision over the Oakland Raiders.

Cunningham's score was set up by a Mike Haynes interception of a Ken Stabler pass that got the Patriots started on the Oakland 31 yard line with 1:13 left to play.

The big play of the drive was a 28-yard bootleg sweep by Steve Grogan which put the ball on the Raiders' three. It took Cunningham two smashes to take it over.

New England threatened to score two minutes earlier when it had a first down on the Oakland five, but Willie Brown, inserted into the lineup after an injury to Monte Jackson, intercepted a pass that bounced off Don Hasselbeck. However, the Patriots turned it right around when Haynes picked off Stabler's pass at the New England 45 and returned it 21 yards to set up the winning drive.

New England trailed 14-0 in the first quarter with Ken Stabler hooking up on a 15-yard pass to Dave Casper and a four yard sweep by Art Whittington.

New England, unable to move beyond the Raiders' 42 in its first five offensive series, got on the board with 1:31 left in the half on a 25-yard pass from Grogan to Russ Francis. The Patriots drive of 80 yards, came after the Raiders failed to capitalize on a first and goal from the nine.

The tie score came on the first series after the second half kickoff with Horace Ivory scooting 16 yards, untouched, around right end.

The Raiders threatened to break the game wide open in the second quarter when they drove to the New England

Csonka surpasses 7,000

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Larry Csonka of the New York Giants became the sixth player in National Football League history to rush for 7,000 career yards Sunday when he gained one yard on his first carry against the San Francisco 49ers.

Csonka, 31, finished with 13 yards on five carries, including a 1-yard TD plunge, to give him 7,012 yards in 10 seasons. Ahead of Csonka on the all-time rushing list is Jim Brown (12,312), O.J. Simpson (10,464), Jim Taylor (8,597), Joe Perry (8,378) and Leroy Kelly (7,274).

Angels' outfielder Bostock killed by gunman

IRVING, Ind. (UPI) — Lyman Bostock, a 37-year-old star outfielder for the California Angels and one of the highest paid players in baseball, was shot to death Saturday night in an apparent case of mistaken identity.

Bostock, who was riding in a car en route to a dinner outing, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where doctors worked on him for 3 1/2 hours before he died at 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

Police said they were not sure of the motive for the slaying but speculated the gunman may have been after someone else in the car. A suspect, identified as Leonard Smith, 31, was arrested Sunday morning and will be arraigned on a murder charge Monday, police said.

Bostock, the American League's ninth-leading hitter, went for Gary for some "socializing" — apparently with an aunt and uncle — after the Angels' 5-4 loss to the White Sox in nearby Chicago Saturday afternoon, police spokesman Cpl. Thomas Harbrecht said.

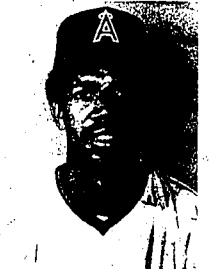

He was riding with them when a gunman fired at the group from another car, wounding Bostock in the head. Harbrecht said the weapon "might have been a shotgun."

Bostock's teammates and baseball associates expressed shock and sorrow at his death. Manager Jim Fregosi said his star outfielder's character as a man transcended his ability as a ball player.

"I haven't talked to my team, but as far as I'm concerned, I lost a very close personal friend," the grief-stricken manager said. "He was the type of kid who was a great guy to have on a ball club. He had ability but that's not what we're really talking about here. It was his ability as a man."

"He had feelings; he cared. I know myself I'm going to miss him very much," he added.
Said teammate Don Baylor, "He was a close friend and outstanding player. There's still disbelief on the club. It's very shocking — here one day and gone tomorrow.

"I'll miss his humor around the clubhouse. He was a very sincere guy who would go out of his way to do things for people. The money was fine for him but he didn't care about it that much. He just wanted to play every day and win."

LYMAN BOSTOCK killed Saturday

Baylor said Bostock's uncle and aunt, whose names were not immediately known, called the Water Tower Hyatt Hotel and told trainer Freddie Frederico about the shooting. Frederico took a taxi to Gary, about 20 miles southeast of Chicago, and was present when Bostock died.
"We (Baylor and some other Angels) were going to take a taxi to Gary. But by the time we got organized he had passed away," Baylor said.

A witness to the shooting gave police a description of the gunman's car. Police said they found the car and traced it to Smith, who surrendered without resistance after officers surrounded his home.
Harbrecht said police were unsure of a motive "since so far as I know the men did not know each other."

"It could have been a matter of mistaken identity," he added. "There were other persons in the car so it is possible that this Smith was trying to get someone else."

Bostock, who came to the major leagues in 1975, hit .336 for the Minnesota Twins last season and then became a free agent and signed a multi-year contract with the Angels for over $2 million.

Said Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch from Minneapolis, "I'm shocked; I'm sorry; I'm angry; I'm sick. People don't realize the strong feelings of admiration and respect that develop on a ball club. I thought the world of that man."

Major league batting leader Rod Carew, who also was Bostock's teammate with the Twins, also expressed disbelief.
"I just can't believe it," he said. "It's such a waste for something like this to happen. He was liked by everybody on the club. I know his wife real well, and all of us share in her grief."

Bostock made headlines early this season when he tried to give a month's salary back to the club because he was playing poorly.

When club owner Gene Autry wouldn't take the money, Bostock gave it to charity. He was hitting .296 when he died.

Bostock's father, Lyman Bostock Sr., made $3,000 a year in his prime playing for Negro professional-league teams like the Birmingham Black Barons, the Chicago American Giants and the Ethiopian Clowns.
Lyman Jr. was making that much a game.
"I guess I'm the highest-paid player in baseball," Bostock said. "But singers and dancers make big money, too. An Elton John makes $7 million a year. I know the president of the United States makes $200,000 a year."
"We all have our jobs. Evidently more people support sports than the president," he said.

Trojans embarrass Alabama

By United Press International
One thing remained vividly clear after the third full week of college football became history this weekend — Southern Cal is a potent force to be reckoned with.

The top-ranked Crimson Tide turned a lighter shade of pale Saturday before a nationwide television audience when seventh-ranked SC coasted to an embarrassingly easy 24-14 victory over Alabama.

"They made the big plays while we flubbed ours," said Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, quick to give credit where it was due. "I think they made us look a little worse than we are. I still don't know how good the Trojans are, but I know they are a heckuva lot better than we are."

Charles White, making an early bid for Heisman Trophy honors, is all on his way to becoming the Trojans' all-time rushing leader as he scrambled for 199 yards and a touchdown. After three games, White has gained an impressive 528 yards after totaling 1,478 yards last year.

"I thought our kids came out and were physically ready to play," said SC Coach John Robinson. "But I don't think we can start fantasizing about being the top football team yet because it's still too early and we're too young."

White scored the Trojans' first TD on a 40-yard run midway through the first quarter and, although he didn't cross the goal line again, it was his presence that enabled quarterback Paul McDonald to toss two touchdowns to sophomore flanker Kevin Williams to break the game open in the final period.

The Trojans led 10-0 at halftime after a 40-yard field goal by Frank Jordan with 4:27 left in the half. Alabama closed the gap to 10-7 early in the third period on a 41-yard TD dash by Major Ogilvie.

But the Trojans destroyed Alabama's hopes for a comeback when McDonald threw a six-yard touchdown pass to Williams with 11:15 left in the game and a 20-yard scoring strike minutes later to Williams that was tipped by Alabama defender Don McNeill.

Alabama, an 11-point favorite, got its final touchdown with 7:10 left on a 41-yard pass from Jeff Rutledge to Bart Kroyt, but two subsequent scoring attempts for the Tide were thwarted by SC fumble recoveries.

In other Top 10 action, second-ranked Oklahoma devastated Rice 66-7, No. 3 Arkansas got by Oklahoma State 19-7, fourth-ranked Penn State eased past Southern Methodist 26-21, No. 5 Michigan stopped No. 14 Notre Dame 28-14, sixth-ranked Texas outlasted Wyoming 17-3, Kansas shocked No. 8 UCLA 29-24, ninth-rated Pittsburgh handed Temple 20-12, and 10th-ranked Texas A&M drubbed Boston College 37-2.

An enjoyable victory

By United Press International
In more than 20 years as a football player and coach, Bill Michael has had plenty of opportunities to enjoy that incomparable feeling of success.

As an offensive tackle at the University of Arkansas in the 1950s, Michael earned All-Southwest Conference honors. Later, he coached on several bowls teams at Oklahoma as an assistant under Chuck Fairbanks.

But according to Michael, his most enjoyable moment on a football field came Saturday night.

Michael's Texas El Paso Miners scored their biggest win in several seasons by dumping Western Athletic Conference newcomer San Diego State 31-24 in the final seconds.

In the second half, the only score was a 21-yard field goal by Tom Dempsey.

Packers 24-3
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Willie Buchanan, playing in the city where he was a college hero, intercepted four passes and returned one 77 yards for a touchdown Sunday to lead the Green Bay Packers to a 24-3 upset victory over the mistake-prone San Diego Chargers in temperatures that reached 105 degrees.

'Skins 23-3
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Joe Theismann enjoyed his best passing day in the NFL Sunday — completing 21-of-30 passes for 209 yards and two touchdowns — and Mark Moseley added three field goals as the unbeaten Washington Redskins rolled to their fourth straight victory, 23-0 over the New York Jets.

Saints 20-18
CINCINNATI (UPI) — John Leybold kicked a 27-yard field goal which hit the left upright and bounced through the goalpost on the final play of the game Sunday to lift the New Orleans Saints to a 20-18 victory over the winless Cincinnati Bengals.

The Saints, trailing 18-10, called their final timeout with just three seconds left to set up Leybold's do-or-die field goal attempt. Leybold's kick glanced off the side of the left upright and bounced toward the center of the goalpost, just barely making it over for the deciding points.

The Saints, trailing 18-10 in the final quarter, began their rally when Mike Strachan scored his second 5-yard TD run with 5:25 to play.

Payton, Tarkenton hold key to Vikings-Bears matchup

CHICAGO (UPI) — The success of Walter Payton running and Fran Tarkenton passing could decide the Chicago Bears' matchup with the Minnesota Vikings in the NFL's nationally televised game tonight.

In their last meeting Payton rushed for a record 273 yards in 40 carries, bettering O.J. Simpson's mark by two yards, and his performance was the key to a 10-7 Bears victory. Tarkenton completed 23 of 31 for 180 yards last week and his percentage tonight could key the Vikings offense.

It was unlikely Payton could come close to duplicating his record performance. Only 30 200-yard plus games are listed in the NFL record book, and only three players have more than one. Payton two, O.J. Simpson six, and Jim Brown four.

Tarkenton in the past years has had success against the Bears, though the two teams have broken even in the last four games, and tied for the title in the NFC last season with 9-5 records. Previously, the Vikings had an eight game winning streak over the Bears.

Both Bears Coach Neil Armstrong and Vikings Coach Bud Carson expected defense to be decisive. "Our defense has been improving," Armstrong said, and pointed out that "the offense deserves equal credit for our shutout over Detroit, and shutouts that frequent in this league."

"We're on a defensive string as far as our opponents are concerned," Grant said. The Vikings have scored only 46 points in winning one of the first three games while the Bears have tallied 52 while winning all three starts.

The Bears could benefit from a more balanced attack since Roland Harper and Payton each have gained 240 yards rushing and Bob Avellini has completed 24 of 53 passes for 338 yards.

Tarkenton can expect running help from Chuck Foreman, with 206 yards this season, but no other runner has reached 100 yards in three games. Foreman could be a dangerous receiver as well with 16 catches this year.

The Bears offense planned to use Payton more as a pass receiver this season but so far he has caught only five for 28 yards.

The game was sold out last week so will be seen on local television.

Wide margins, big plays highlight SIC action

By United Press International
Borah, Boise, Highland, and Bonneville were the big football winners in the Southern Idaho Conference Friday night.

Borah rolled to a 41-0 win over Twin Falls. Boise delighted a homecoming crowd by shutting out Meridian 14-0. Highland crushed Minico 48-7, and Bonneville beat cross-town rival Idaho Falls 33-0.

In other games involving SIC teams, Caldwell beat Madison 31-7, and Capital whipped Nampa 21-7.

Borah 41-0

TWIN FALLS — Randy Holmes scored three touchdowns and Darren Corpus added two more to lead Borah High School to a 41-0 win over Twin Falls in SIC play.

Borah scored the first four times it had "the ball" moving out to a commanding 27-0 halftime lead. From there it was all downhill.

Twin Falls was never a threat after halftime, but Borah did not let up. Holmes and Corpus continued to apply pressure in the second half and Borah added two more touchdowns to ice the victory.

Bonneville 33-0

IDAHO FALLS — A tough Bonneville High defense and a relentless offense peaked as the Bees topped rival Idaho Falls 33-0.

Bonneville scored two touchdowns late in the first half to take a 13-0 lead and kept it up throughout the second half.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Bees broke the ice on one-yard plunges by running backs Lance Richardson and Tim Payne. Both scorers were set up on long passes by Bonneville quarterback Rich Webb.

The Bees made it 20-0 in the third quarter when Webb hit tight end Jeff Berggren with a 43-yard touchdown pass. They increased their lead to 27-0 on a five-yard run by Payne later that period.

Bonneville rounded out scoring in the fourth quarter with a four-yard run by Jim Acevedo.

Highland 48-7

POCATELLO — A one-two punch of Ray and Wray proved too much for Minico High School as they were downed by a balanced Highland squad 48-7.

Kelly Ray ran for touchdowns of 10 and seven yards while Jerry Wray scored from 33 and 20 yards out in leading Highland to its fourth win against no losses. Minico is 0-4.

In addition to their ground heroes, Highland was equally impressive in the air. They were 15 of 25 for 197 yards compared with Minico's 12 of 30 for 146 yards. Highland led the rushing attack 286 yards to 82.

Penalties were a dominant factor in Minico's loss. A total of 22 penalties were assessed for 253 yards, with Minico charged with 12 for 113 yards and Highland 10 for 140.

Boise 14-0

BOISE — Craig Jones and Rick Penzari scored Boise High School's only touchdowns in leading the Braves to a 14-0 win over Meridian.

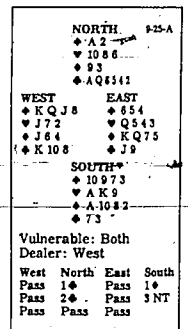

The Braves took command early in the game — one of their toughest defensive struggles of the young season — when Jones broke through the middle and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. The conversion attempt failed, and Boise went into halftime ahead 6-0.

Neither team could muster a score in the third quarter as the Warrior offense was contained well. But early in the fourth period quarterback Penzari scored on a 12-yard run to the right side. That play was called back because of a clipping penalty, but on the next down Penzari returned with the same play to put the Braves ahead 12-0.

Boise ran in for the two-point conversion and walked away with a 14-0 win.

Nampa passed for 213 yards, but couldn't penetrate the end zone enough to over threaten Capital.

Capital got its three touchdowns on a 13 yard run by Wally Jones in the first quarter, another eight yard run by Jones in the second, and a four yard run by Quarterback Jeff Holmud.

Buhl Indians keep rolling along on local scene

By GARY ELIASSEN
Times-News writer
Area football teams are beginning to wonder what it's going to take to stop the Buhl Indians.

The Indians got a taste of the Buhl defense and offense Friday night as the Indians rolled up a 35-0 victory in Buhl.

For Buhl it was the team's fourth straight victory without a loss this year. The Indians opened with an 18-7 triumph over Madison, and since then it has been easy living. They have racked up 119 points in its last three games with victories over White Pine 40-6, Middleton 35-7, and Jerome 35-0.

Next week the Indians will host Blackfoot which Friday night was an impressive 23-0 winner over Rigby. Blackfoot also defeated Jerome last week 12-0.

Jerome, meanwhile, still hasn't been able to come up with its first win. The Tigers are now 0-4 after the Buhl loss.

Their two other previous losses, besides Buhl and Blackfoot, have been to Shelley 20-12, and Madison 33-0.

Jerome will play host to Rigby next week.

In other games around the Magic Valley this past weekend, Declo played a Saturday game and came up a winner over an out-manned Shoshone team. The score 40-0.

Declo held Shoshone to less than 20 yards in total offense, and got its two touchdowns after a fumble recovery and a pass interception.

After fumbling the opening kickoff, Shoshone was never able to recover in the game.

Shoshone is now 2-2 on the year, while Declo is 2-1-1.

Gooding was a 28-0 winner over Wendell, in a game featuring two touchdowns by Bob Richards and a Mike Mann to Brady Hall 53-yard touchdown pass.

The win improved the Senators record to 3-1, its only loss an opening 20-0 setback to Mountain Home. Wendell is 0-4.

The Bishop Kelly Knights rolled over Wood River up in Halley. The 42-0 defeat came after a relentless defense by the Knights.

Castelford finally got its first victory of the season. It downed the Carey Panthers 16-12 in an eight-man game. Castelford is now 1-3 on the year, while Carey is 0-3.

Camas County racked up its fourth straight win, a 50-0 shellacking of Richfield at Fairfield. In four games Camas County, playing in the eight-man Snake River Conference, has scored 301 points.

It was Richfield's first defeat after two wins.

Kimberly's Bulldogs exploded for three touchdowns in the third quarter to bury Filer 28-0. It was the Bulldogs fourth win without a defeat. Filer still is seeking its first victory.

Hansen's Huskies edged Mackay 12-2 in a non-conference game. Burley showed a lot of ball control to roll by Mountain Home 20-6 to win its first after two losses, Murtaugh downed Oakley 28-18 to even its record at 3-2, and Valley beat Glenns Ferry 28-6 to stay undefeated.

Cross country

TF girls dominate

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls girls cross country team is proving that it once again is the team to beat for the state crown.

The defending state champions swept both the varsity and junior varsity divisions Friday at the Boise City Cross Country Invitational.

It was the third straight win for the team. The first came two weeks ago at Pocatello, and then last week, it triumphed at a meet on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

The girls won in Boise with 77 points, followed by Borah with 106, Capital 114, Jerome 119, Meridian 165, Weiser 187, Caldwell 200, Ontario, Ore. 218, Emmett 220, and Bishop Kelly 242.

Cindy Crow of Twin Falls finished second in the individual competition behind Kelly Bishop's Ellen Lyons. Cindy's sister, Tami, a freshman, finished 10th.

In the Jayvee division, Julie Yergensen paced TFHS with a first; Jeannette Hillman third; Berry Barron fourth; Kristy Scott fifth; and Suzie Shelby eighth.

The team had 21 points, compared to second place Borah's 60.

A Magic Valley entrant in the men's division, Filer's Brian Ochsner, won the individual crown. While he was the only local entry in the top 10, Mark Oyen of Twin Falls finished 15th.

Nampa won the boys crown.

Volleyball

Richfield on top

RICHFIELD — Richfield's girls are currently king of the Northside Conference in volleyball competition.

After defeating Bliss last week 15-0, and 16-14, the Tigers are still undefeated after the first half of conference play.

This week the team has a busy schedule, and the Tigers' undefeated record will receive a severe test. Tonight the team hosts Mackay, tonight to Camas County Tuesday.

Richfield currently has a 7-0 mark on the season.

Another area volleyball team will see action tonight. Buhl will host Filer's Wildcats in the new gymnasium.

In a match last week, Buhl nipped Gooding by identical 16-14 scores. Twin Falls is fresh from a victory over Minico.

Jana Trucker led last Thursday night's win by serving eight straight winners in the second game, and Twin Falls won going away. The first game was a see-saw 15-13 TFHS victory.

In other action last week, Wood River stayed undefeated with a 15-9, 15-2 win over Jerome. Gooding beat Shoshone 15-3, 15-5. Buhl upset Twin Falls 15-13, 15-10. Glenns Ferry downed Hagerman 15-10, 15-12, and Hansen stopped Murtaugh 15-5, 15-7.

Match changed
KIMBERLY — The volleyball match between Kimberly and Declo high schools will be played tonight at Kimberly instead of Tuesday.

Athletic Director George Arrossa said the rescheduled match will start at 7 p.m. today in the Kimberly High School gymnasium.
