U.S. drafts a new treaty in hopes of reviving talks

By JIM ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States introduced a new draft treaty Friday in a bid to get the deadlocked Egyptian-Israeli peace talks past a critical stage in which both sides recalled key negotiators for consultations.

Israel's chief negotiator predicted President Carter eventually would have to arrange a new Camp David-style summit to break a deadlock over the sensitive Palestinian issue.

President Carter called the Israeli and Egyptian delegations to the White House separately to review the progress of the negotiations and the remaining issues to be resolved.

The foreign minister said the issues still in dispute were so important he has proposed a new Camp David summit to resolve them.

Palestinians denounce accords

GAZA, Israel-Occupied Gaza Strip (UPI) — Hundreds of Gaza Strip Palestinians staged a rally Friday to denounce the Camp David accords and demand the creation of a Palestinian state. Israeli troops turned back three West Bank mayors from the city.

The end of the hour-long meeting in the rear courtyard of Gaza's YMCA building.

Some West Bank Palestinians believe Gaza Strip residents privately want to make a separate agreement with Israel on the status of their narrow, 25-mile stretch of coastal land formerly controlled by Egypt.

Confidence sources said the talks, which at one time seemed headed for a possible windup this week, will go into next week with the new American draft providing the basis for negotiations. The sources described the new proposal as an evolution of the first U.S. draft — but with the incorporation of treaty language already agreed on during the Israeli-Egyptian talks.

High-pressure hoses and 16 lawmen needed

Thursday's fire 'close to a jail riot'

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It took 16 lawmen and a fire crew with high-pressure hoses to put out a fire and quell a riot in the Twin Falls County Jail Thursday night.

Chief Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputy Jim Munn, in describing the incident, called it "as close to a jail riot as I ever want to be."

The thick smoke, Munn said he does not know which of the prisoners welded the weapons. He said charges of injuring jail facilities, a felony offense with a maximum penalty of $10,000 and five years in prison, will be filed against Heck and Derrell Nevill, who was recently returned to the Twin Falls after escaping from the jail in May.

Officers and fire department aid. Before the incident was over, Munn said, 16 city and state police and sheriff's deputies and a fire crew were on the scene.

Munn said the jail suffered no permanent damage from the flames, smoke or water, but several mattresses were ruined by the flames.

Nevada ERA referendum gets the OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice William Rehnquist refused Friday to block a scheduled Nov. 7 referendum in Nevada on whether the state legislature should ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

The prisoner, Ronnie Leroy Heck, was being held in the jail on charges of malicious destruction of property and first degree burglary.

The maximum security cell is set in a room apart from the rest of the jail, all on the fourth floor of the county courthouse. The cell is a cage of iron bars with three compartments with four bunks each. Less than five feet of clearance separate the cell from the walls of the room.

When the disturbance began, the guard on duty called Munn and asked him how to handle the situation. Munn instructed him to call on-duty sheriff's deputies and Twin Falls police to remove Heck from the cell.

Five other prisoners were in the cell with Heck at the time, on a variety of charges, including rape, attempted escape, assault with intent to commit murder and second degree murder.

When the officers, intending to remove Heck, opened the door to the room housing the cell, they discovered a fire had been set in the cell using matches and pages torn from a book, Munn said.

Just how much wilderness can Americans afford?

By PETER J. BERNSTEIN
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The fate of 532 million acres of wildlands in national forests and other roadless areas throughout America will be decided in the next few months.

Both inventories have become the focus of a national controversy, pitting conservationists against land developers.

National environmental groups such as the Sierra Club and Wilderness Society view the inventory process as their last opportunity to save wild and pristine lands from being logged and paved over for commercial development.

Oil companies have complained that the inventories prevent them from exploring for new deposits in potentially valuable regions of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho, known as the Overthrust belt.

In directing the Interior Department and Forest Service to undertake the inventories, Congress stipulated that neither agency should permit commercial activities that might impair an area's suitability as wilderness while it is being considered for designation within the national wilderness system.

So far the Forest Service has studied 2,700 roadless areas across the country and found that 36 percent have high wilderness potential and a minimum of 56 percent should be allocated for development. The remainder were found suitable for various degrees of multiple use of further planning.

Protest banner flies

LONDON (UPI) — Two men protesting foreign investment in South Africa climbed the 153-foot Nelson's column in central London's Trafalgar Square Friday and tied a protest banner to the statue of Britain's most famous admiral. Thousands of commuters gathered in the square below to watch the drama atop the sheer granite column, snarling rush hour traffic.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Recluse American chess whiz Bobby Fischer soon will end six years of retirement and return to competition, Serbian Chess Federation Milos Milovanovic said Friday. Milovanovic said Fischer recently made a trip to Yugoslavia to discuss his chess comeback with his close friend, Yugoslav grand master Svetozar Gligoric.

More may join walkout

OTTAWA (UPI) — Justice Minister Otto Lang Friday moved to obtain injunctions against picketing by 23,000 striking postal workers but leaders of other civil service unions threatened to join the four-day walkout. Canadian Union of Postal Workers President Jean-Claude Parrot stopped short of saying he would order his members to defy the injunctions if they are upheld by the courts.

Today's weather

Widely scattered showers and a bit cooler

Twin Falls, North Side, Burley-Rupert area. Cooling trend. Widely scattered showers today. Variable cloudiness with showers gradually decreasing Sunday. Windy at times tonight. Lows tonight mostly in the 30s, highs Sunday in the upper 50s.

October and possibly well into November. Bean harvest, small grain combining, and the last cutting of hay should be pretty well completed by the end of this week. Potato harvest is also nearing completion, and cool temperatures should continue above the critical 45 degree point for the cleanup of spud digging. Beet harvest is gaining momentum. The outlook for the weather to average warmer and drier than normal should help the beet harvest to make good progress.

The three to five day forecast, Monday through Wednesday, for southern Idaho calls for dry with warming temperatures. Highs mid 50s to mid 60s Monday, then 60s to low 70s. Lows mostly 30s west and 25 to 35 east.

Big margin predicted on victory of 1 percent

BOISE (UPI) — The man who spearheaded a drive to put the 1 percent initiative on the November ballot predicted Friday it will pass by a 60 percent margin. The spokesman for the opposition believes it will fail by a small margin. During taping of the KTVB Viewpoint program Friday, Don Chance, president of the Idaho Property Owners Association, and Steve Swadley of the Idaho Citizens for Responsible Government agreed that the initiative has been losing some support. "They've been spending a lot of money and doing their homework," said Chance. "They will carry a few counties but it's going to pass the state by 60 percent." But Swadley said the battle will be much tighter.

Swadley of the Idaho Citizens for Responsible Government agreed that the initiative has been losing some support. "They've been spending a lot of money and doing their homework," said Chance. "They will carry a few counties but it's going to pass the state by 60 percent." But Swadley said the battle will be much tighter.

"I think it peaked out about a month ago and I think it is losing steam," he said. "There still is a lot of support for it, there's no doubt about it." "But I predict it will fail by a very small margin." Both men predicted the initiative will be tested in the courts if it is approved by voters. "There are organizations that are looking at the constitutionality of it and I'm quite certain there could be a court test," Swadley said. Chance agreed. "I think the opponents will undoubtedly bring a court test because they're like a bunch of bees out there trying to protect their honey." Chance added "They don't want their name taken off our bank accounts." Swadley predicted the voters will defeat the initiative and press the Legislature for more responsible tax reform.

Jensen criticizes McClure's absence from Washington

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Democrat U.S. Senate candidate Dwight Jensen said Friday night if he were in the Senate he would not be running around Idaho at a time of crucial votes in Washington, D.C. "When the chips are down and the key decisions are being made in the U.S. Senate, I will be in the U.S. Senate where I belong, not running around the Idaho Panhandle covering flag and forest with empty rhetoric," he said. Jensen told a Democratic Canyon County rally he has been a little reluctant to criticize Republican Sen. J. James McClure for abandoning Washington during the crucial last week of the Senate session in order to campaign for reelection. "After all, we must face the fact that Idaho is probably better represented when McClure does not show up at all," Jensen said. "But we know the Senator's job is to work and vote on the legislation that guides the nation and, when those decisions are being made, I plan to be on the job, not on the campaign bus."

Evans denies Larsen claims

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans told the Capital Journal Friday, claims of runaway growth in state government have been exaggerated by gubernatorial nominee Allan Larsen. Evans said recent statistics from the Department of Employment indicate the number of state employees has declined during the past year. "The employment rate in Idaho state government has grown at a much slower rate than the growth of employment in Idaho's private industry," he said. "In fact, during the period from 1975 to September of 1977, when private employment in Idaho increased by 24.6 percent, employment in state government actually decreased by 3 percent."

Commission takes jobs

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — The President's Commission on the Coal Industry heard encouraging news of labor stability in the nation's coalfields Friday but drew a withering tongue lashing from a Mingo County, W.Va., citizens group. There were few surprises, however, for the members who heard from 38 witnesses. The commission has one year to determine the cause of problems in the coalfields and recommend solutions. Beth Spence, representing Appalachian Alliance, a 200-member coalition of grass roots mountain groups, blasted the panel, saying its first chore should be to fire its chairman, West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller. She said the only one of five voting members on the panel who knows anything about coal is former Labor Secretary Willard Wertz, and Wertz, she noted with scorn, was absent from Friday's hearings. "She accused Rockefeller and member Dewey Presley, a Texas banker, of having conflicts of interest because of the Rockefeller family ties to Exxon and because Presley is on the board of Occidental Oil, which owns Consolidation Coal Co., West Virginia's No. 1 producer."

Sudden cloudburst hits Las Vegas, traffic stalled

By United Press International A sudden cloudburst sent torrents of water surging through Las Vegas streets Friday, halting traffic in the nation's gambling capital. Showers spread over much of the west, from the Pacific Northwest to the southwestern desert, and snow drifted over New England. Widely scattered showers brought only a few hundredths of an inch of rain to most of the arid Southwest. But Las Vegas was an exception to the rule. A half inch of rain fell in Las Vegas, a city whose climate is so dry that such a rainfall is regarded an

Candidate backs PTA

McCALL, Idaho (UPI) — Republican state superintendent of public instruction candidate Jerry Evans says schools have made a mistake by shutting out parents and organizations such as the PTA from active involvement. Evans, in addressing the Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers at its annual meeting in McCall, said "Parents need to be constructive and supportive of the good things schools try to do for youngsters, and schools need to be open to the ideas and feelings that parents bring to education." "The PTA is a perfect vehicle to use in traveling that two-way street." Evans also said the PTA "may have a few years on us but it still runs better than most of the newer models because of its broad commitment to quality education for all youngsters."

unspeaking downpour. Streets and overpasses immediately filled with water. Some overpasses were under 5 feet of water. Traffic across much of the city came to a halt. But there were no reports of injuries or major damage. Clear skies greeted most of the nation east of the Rockies. But clouds hovered over New England — where light snow fell during the early morning hours. An inch of snow fell on New Hampshire's Mt. Washington. The mountain recorded 2 inches of snow accumulation since Thursday.

Plant accident claims Nampa man

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — A Nampa resident was killed early Friday when he got caught in a piece of machinery at the Amalgamated Sugar Co. processing plant in Nampa. The victim, 18, a graveyard shift worker at the plant, died at about 6:10 a.m., according to Dr. Thomas Donnelinger, the Canyon County coroner. Donnelinger said Chavez was killed when he went through a piece of machinery in a mill. He was alone at the time of the accident. District Manager Ray Larsen said Chavez's death was the first fatal accident at the plant he can remember.

Dr. Jascavlevich trial

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — The prosecutor in the murder trial of Dr. Mario E. Jascavlevich charged Friday the physician was a calculated killer of hospital patients who covered up his tracks for 10 years. In a summation to the jury, prosecutor Sybil Moses said the case has shown overdozes of curare by Jascavlevich were responsible for the deaths of three patients at Riverview Hospital in Oradell, N.J., in 1965 and 1966. "These people died. They should not have died. They were recovering. There was no (other) cause of death," Mrs. Moses said.

Now it's a cotton-pickin' landmark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The original mechanical cotton picker was designated a historical landmark Friday. A former fieldhand said he was glad to see that machine come along, back in 1945.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers unveiled a plaque at the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology calling attention to the machine's accomplishments.

Called "Old Red," and run by a tractor, the device is a steel frame carries a huge wire basket to catch flying cotton bolls.

It is the last survivor of the first four to be manufactured. It picked 8,000 bales of cotton in California before its retirement in 1959. It could do the work of 40 hand pickers.

A participation in the ceremony was Sidney B. Cox, son of an Oklahoma farmer who had gone broke in the Depression and moved his family to California to hire out for fieldwork.

Cox said he picked cotton from when he was 7 until, at age 15, he happily was replaced by "Old Red."

"I thought it was the greatest thing since shoeleather," he said.

He now is vice president of the Producers Cotton Oil Co. of Fresno, Calif., original owner of the mechanical picker.

He said picking cotton by hand was hard work, but he hadn't felt depressed.

"It's like a lot of other things," he said. "It didn't seem that difficult at the time."

Cox calculated that it would take 47,000 machines and 100,000 workers to pick this year's 2.4 million bale California cotton crop in a day. To pick the same crop by hand in a day would require 4.7 million people.

Historians said no machine since the cotton gin had a greater impact on southern agriculture than the cotton picker.

International Harvester built "Old Red" after 47 years of research. The problem was to make a spindle that would pick the ripe cotton while leaving the immature bolls on the plant.

Guerrilla chief threatens to thwart Smith peace plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith formally agreed Friday to attend a no-strings peace conference with black guerrilla leaders, but an angry guerrilla chief threatened to torpedo the whole plan.

The contrary developments occurred in Washington, where Smith endorsed the Anglo-American peace conference proposal, and in Lusaka, Zambia, where guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo denounced Rhodesia's damaging air raids on guerrilla camps in Zambia and Mozambique.

"All-party conference? All-party nonsense!" Nkomo told a news conference. "Forget the whole damn all-party conference... We shall get that country by force."

But State Department spokesmen nonetheless held out hopes U.S. and British mediators can still talk the major guerrilla leaders into attending the long-sought talks — implying that diplomats are not taking Nkomo's outburst as final.

One U.S. spokesman said Nkomo's anguished reaction "is to be expected," and added, "I think the impulse toward talks on all sides is still sufficient to justify the hope that an all-parties meeting can be convened."

Smith and his three black colleagues in the interim, mixed-race Rhodesian government formally endorsed the Anglo-American peace conference proposal at a State Department meeting with U.S. and British officials.

Cuban prisoners released

MIAMI (UPI) — The first 46 Cuban political prisoners allowed to emigrate from Fidel Castro's jails will fly to Miami today aboard a charter flight for a reunion with friends and relatives they haven't seen in over a decade.

Accompanying them will be 25 relatives who, for years, have been refused permission to leave Cuba, the U.S. Justice Department said.

As the latest in a series of good-will gestures, Castro offered several weeks ago to release the prisoners, including two well-known exile commanders captured in a 1966 raid on Havana.

Pope tells diplomatic corps to attack world's miseries

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Friday told Vatican diplomats that his pontificate would fight with "peaceful language" to eradicate the "physical and moral miseries" in the world.

The new pope, the former Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, told the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican that although "at times the church may not be understood, it is rendering a service that mankind cannot do without."

"On its part, the church — and the Holy See in particular — demands that your nations, your governments, always take into account a certain number of needs," the pope told ambassadors from more than 80 nations that have diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

"There are still too many physical and moral miseries due to the negligence, selfishness, blindness or hard heartedness of man," the pope said, in a French language only five days after his surprise election as the first non-Italian pope in 455 years and first Polish pontiff in history.

"The church wants to contribute toward diminishing these miseries through its peaceful work," John Paul II said, "educating the moral sens through the honest work of Christians and men of good will."

In calling nations to a greater respect for religious freedom, the pope said he and the Vatican would continue "to consider that in international relations respecting the rights of every nation is a duty."

The new pontiff said that the fact that he comes from Poland makes no difference in the Vatican's approach to religious freedom.

"As a Christian and still more as pope, I am and will be the witness of universal love, reserving the same benevolence for everyone, especially those who have experienced ordeal," he said, dropping into the familiar first person singular speech so often used by his predecessor, John Paul I.

"He who says 'diplomatic' relations," says stable, mutual relations marked by courtesy, discretion and fair play," John Paul II said.

Polish Americans on their way

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 700 Polish Americans from around the United States converged at Kennedy Airport Friday night for a flight to Rome to attend the investiture of Pope John Paul II.

The groups, many wearing Polish flags, wearing buttons carrying the pope's picture, organized quickly within days of the election of Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Krakow, Poland, the first non-Italian pontiff in 455 years.

Despite a 24-hour strike by airport workers in Rome, two 747 jumbo jets were scheduled by Alitalia Airlines to fly the groups, mostly from Polish-American communities around the nation, to Sunday's ceremonies in the Vatican.

Auxiliary Bishop Alfred L. Abramowicz, who said he was a close friend of the new pope, led a group of nearly 200 Polish-Americans from the Archdiocese of Chicago, the nation's largest.

Naughty rockers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Continental Airlines plane bound for Hawaii turned around Thursday and returned to Los Angeles after members of a British rock group aboard became unruly and created a disturbance, the FBI said Friday.

The plane, flight 925, left Los Angeles at 12:15 p.m. PDT and returned at 3:20 p.m. where 10 members of the band were escorted off. The plane then resumed its trip to Honolulu.

The FBI said it did not have the name of the group.

An FBI spokesman said that Anthony Kwabu Baah, 35, a British subject, was arrested and charged with interference with the flight crew. The other band members were released.

Man charged in sub plot testifies at hearing

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An FBI agent said Friday James W. Cosgrove, one of two men charged with plotting to steal a nuclear submarine, was furnished by an FBI office with the name of a sonar technician who could operate the ship.

Cosgrove's lawyer, David Larimer, has said Cosgrove went to the FBI office near his home in Geneva, N.Y., eight days before he was arrested Oct. 4. Larimer said Cosgrove was worried that Edward J. Mendenhall, the alleged mastermind of the plot, might actually try to carry it out.

after he was contacted by Mendenhall.

At a preliminary hearing Friday in St. Louis before U.S. Magistrate David D. Noce, Larimer asked Michael Haggard, who headed the FBI's investigation of the case, if agents tried to "encourage the plot" after Rosene reported it on Aug. 9.

"In fact you were trying to encourage them to develop this plot," Larimer said.

"We did not," Haggard replied.

"Isn't it a fact that Mr. Rosene, as your agent, supplied names of people who could operate the submarine?" Larimer continued.

Haggard replied that the FBI office in Rochester, N.Y., had given Cosgrove the name "Mark Daniel Atwell" and his date of birth and Social Security number. Cosgrove, in turn, gave the name to Mendenhall. Atwell was identified at the hearing only as a "nuclear power operator."

One of 18 pleads innocent

More GSA guilty pleas given

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The last of 18 men indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the federal government pleaded guilty Friday to accusations he received trips as a reward for falsifying invoices for the General Services Administration.

Seventeen defendants have pleaded guilty and one pleaded innocent.

Federal prosecutors are continuing the investigation into the scandal-marred GSA and said more indictments are expected next month.

Donald E. Wheeler, 47, of Clinton, Md., pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to defraud the government before U.S. District Judge Joseph H. Young after prosecutors said he has begun cooperating in the investigation.

Wheeler, a supply clerk at the Land and Natural Resources Division of the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. was authorized to buy supplies from a GSA store in the Department of Justice Building.

Store manager James I. Taylor, 48, of District Heights, Md., has already pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to defraud the government by turning in false invoices from James Hillies Associates, of Westminster, Md., for goods never received, in return for gifts.

The prosecution said Taylor, in order to account for the items he ordered that actually were never delivered, had "Wheeler sign forms saying he had bought the items for his agency."

In return, Wheeler and Taylor were given trips to Las Vegas and Los Anges.

They also went to the island of Tobago in South America accompanied by Charles H. Oertel, 55, a former vice president of Hillies Associates, prosecutors said.

Oertel has also pleaded guilty to a conspiracy to defraud charge.

The 18 indictments were the result of a wide-ranging investigation of charges that GSA employees authorized payment to suppliers for goods never delivered or delivered at inflated prices, in return for cash and gifts.

The thefts in connection with Hillies Associates was estimated to total nearly $2 million.

Grand jury investigations are also under way in Boston, New Orleans, Washington, Houston and Dallas.

Librarian killed by a teen-ager

IRVINGVILLE, La. (UPI) — A teen-ager shot and killed the only librarian on duty at the St. Charles Parish Public Library Friday in a $20 robbery, officials said.

Sheriff's deputies said a suspect, Edward George Creaux, 19, of Boutte, La., was arrested a few blocks from the scene and later confessed to the crime and led officers to the murder weapon, a 22-caliber revolver.

Creaux was held without bail on murder and robbery charges.

The victim was identified as Catherine Landeche, 38, of Luling, La. Sheriff's spokesman Ben Pelot III said she was shot several times after she apparently struggled with the gunman for her purse, which contained $20.

Reference to "scab" worker draws criticism from readers

A reference to "scab workers" under a picture taken during the Amalgamated Sugar Co. strike drew the wrath of some Times-News readers this week.

One reader wrote, "We work hard to teach our children not to use derogatory terms... the Times-News should be a better example."

Clearly, if the word "scab" has a bad connotation, then it shouldn't be used in a newspaper if an acceptable alternative word can be found.

Perhaps "non-union workers" would have been better. The newspaper will add the word "scab" to its list of banned headline and cutline words.

A story on a school camping program at Lincoln Elementary School drew comment from one reader.

The camping program, the reader said, was begun a year ago (1977) by teachers Mrs. Steelsmith, Mrs. Williams and Mr. Backlund. But the article on the camping program didn't give them credit.

Credit is now given.

The newspaper also received an uncomfortably high number of nasty letters this week from people who spotted headline reversals and typographical errors.

"If you would only clean up your act, professionally speaking... you would be in a position to regain the support and respect of the citizenry," the most caustic of the readers wrote.

The tone of these letters, as well as the many foolish errors in the paper, indeed damage the credibility of the newspaper.

On this point the angry readers and the editors agree.

Singing criticism has the effect of a stiff drink of bad medicine early in the morning.

It tastes bad but is good for one. Keep those coupons coming.

Gloves come off; referees ignored

One of those noble but fruitless stabs at purifying Idaho politics barely got off the ground this week before it was trashed.

Republican and Democratic party chiefs Wednesday announced the formation of Idaho's first fair-campaign-practices committee to handle complaints about dirty politics.

"Candidates will be expected to make their complaints directly to the chairmen without making them public before the problem is resolved. No part of the process will be public except the final report," the two party chairmen stated drearily.

Dennis Olsen, state GOP head, and George Klein, his counterpart, should have known better than to expect silence from candidates in the middle of an election.

"No sooner had the words escaped from their mouths than the shooting started.

Gov. John Evans was unhappy at recent statements and advertisements by his opponent Allan Larsen — and the governor expressed his displeasure in every public place handy.

"Some of his ads must be looked into," Evans said in Caldwell's newspaper, the Press-Tribune. "I intend to contact Mr. Klein about the half-truths and absolute falsehoods being spread around by Mr. Larsen."

Larsen ignored the committee too and snorted, in public, "Let the governor present his case to the people in a public debate."

Evans was also displeased the infant fair campaign committee didn't think it had any dirty politics to look into yet.

"I couldn't believe it," the governor said, giving Klein, the chairman of Evans' party, a slap on the wrist.

Evans should have thanked the poor committee for giving him the opportunity to use its meager existence to broadcast his criticisms of Larsen.

And that may be the extent of the committee's usefulness in this election.

Evans cried foul on two charges by Larsen, that the governor is proposing a 30 percent budget cut for education and that Evans' staff has increased from 10 to 494 in the last eight years. Incidentally, Larsen's ad in the Times-News noted the budget cut could eliminate the College of Southern Idaho.

Evans proposes to eliminate CSI? When those kinds of misrepresentations are brought forth, any candidate who is worth his salt doesn't sit still while a committee deliberates.

Evans points out he has cut down on state government. The staff increase came from the 1974 Legislature's reorganization of state government, when employees were switched from other agencies to his for administrative efficiency.

On the other charge, Evans simply has never proposed a 30 percent budget cut for education. Some experts have said that much would be lost if the 1 percent initiative passes and would have to be made up.

In outlining the operation of their committee, Lord knows if Olsen and Klein were dreaming of doing for politics what the Marquis of Queensbury did for 18th-Century boxing or were just reacting out of weariness from the suggestions. Both men in their roles as stand-ins for party candidates have been taking and throwing a good number of punches.

When the political gloves start to come off, a rule book doesn't do much good.

A David and Goliath tale

WASHINGTON — One of the great recurring themes in life as in literature — a theme that never loses its special satisfaction — is the theme of David and Goliath. It turned up last week in the U.S. Supreme Court.

The story began 18 years ago in Gardner, Mass., where 15-year-old Peter M. Roberts was working as a sales clerk in the hardware department of the local Sears, Roebuck store. The story hasn't ended yet, but it reached a climactic point last week when the Court refused to review a $1 million award of damages against Sears and in favor of Roberts.

The teen-aged clerk loved to tinker with tools. On his own time, he invented a quick release socket wrench, a device so ingenious that it permitted a mechanic to change sockets with one hand. Young Roberts, with only a high school education and no experience in the business world, took his invention to his Sears manager. One thing led to another, and in 1964 Roberts' drawings went off through the suggestion box to Sears' headquarters in Chicago.

Young Roberts was not altogether dour-eyed. Presumably, he had read Popular-Mechanics-and-had-enough foresight to apply for a patent — a patent that would be granted a year later. Meanwhile, some amazing things had been happening. The Sears people were having a close look at the young man's socket wrench. The too ool buyer was so impressed that Sears had its chief toolmaker, the Moore Drop Forging Co., cast a couple of prototypes for testing.

By early spring of 1965, it was evident that a bonanza was at hand. The wrench worked beautifully; mechanics were enchanted by it. The Moore company reported that the cost of the quick release, originally estimated at 44 cents, could be reduced to 20 cents. The opportunity for stunning profits was apparent.

As two federal courts later would agree, Sears knew at this time what a beautiful thing it had going. The big-hearted merchandising Goliath wanted to do the right thing. A Sears negotiator wrote young Roberts to this effect — that his invention really was not new, that even if a patent were granted, the patent would be limited in scope, that the wrench would sell only to the extent that Sears promoted it, that Sears couldn't be certain that it would maintain sales on the item. But it was implied that because Roberts was such a fine young fellow, and a Sears clerk to boot, the company would pay him $10,000 for all the domestic and foreign rights. Sign here.

Roberts signed, took the $10,000, and afterwards called in the Air Force. As the Seventh U.S. Circuit Court would later conclude, in an opinion by Judge Robert A. Sprecher, Sears well knew that it expected to sell several hundred thousand wrenches. Within days after the agreement was signed, Sears was manufacturing 44,000 wrenches a week. In nine months the store had sold more than 50,000 Roberts wrenches. By 1975 it had sold upward of 15 million. Roberts' counsel now estimate sales at 25 million — and every wrench proudly bears the Roberts Patent No. 3,208,318.

Roberts began to discover some of these things when he got out of the Air Force in 1969. He sued in the U.S. District Court in Chicago, charging fraud and misrepresentation. The trial jury awarded him $1 million in damages. Sears appealed to the Seventh Circuit, where Judge Sprecher and his colleagues emphatically upheld the jury's verdict. Sears then sought review in the Supreme Court, complaining bitterly that the Roberts patent was legally worthless, invalid, — and all the rest. The Court refused to listen.

The upshot is that the District Court, on remand, now will consider rescission of the contract, return of the patent, and further restitution. Roberts' lawyers estimate "conservatively" that Sears has made $44 million in profits off the Roberts wrench. They have one million now, had a green light to go for the other $43 Roberts now lives in Red Bank, Tenn., near Knoxville, where he runs a grocery store and manages an apartment house. He's a "very creative fellow," says his lawyer, "and has lots of good ideas."

Birch Bayh's weaseling testimony

"Sure, there'll be a tax cut for every taxpayer, and it'll be delivered by the tooth fairy!"

WASHINGTON — Remember Clement F. Haynsworth? He was the U.S. Appeals Judge from South Carolina who was chosen by President Nixon to serve on the Supreme Court. But that was 1969, soon after the resignation of Abe Fortas, and the Democrats were out to muddy-up a Republican appointee.

Organized labor decided that Judge Haynsworth had voted wrong on a labor case in 1963, and had some information about his stockholdings that could be fashioned to appear as a conflict of interest — nothing near the Fortas magnitude, but possibly embarrassing.

An AFL-CIO lobbyist called a Senator in labor's pocket — Birch Bayh, D-Ind. — and assigned him the task of hitting Haynsworth. Bayh, curiously enough, was on his way to India and Korea that day, but promised to follow up on his return. He did, and became a liberal household word by engineering the rejection of Nixon's appointee on the grounds that he had been insensitive to the highest standards of ethics.

This episode comes to mind upon looking into the recent reports of the Senate Committee on Ethics investigating improper influence upon

Senators by the South Korean government.

When newspaper reports in 1977 (led Senator Bayh in closely with South Korean "businessman" Tongsun Park — then identified as an agent of the Korean CIA — the Senator responded to an Ethics Committee inquiry with an undated letter denying all.

"At no time," insisted the Senator to the Senate, "did he (Tongsun Park) offer me any money, honorary degrees, trips to Korea, or any of the numerous items we've all read about in the newspaper." Bayh sent a copy of his letter to the Justice Department, which had shown some passing interest in Koreagate.

To put it charitably, it turns out that Senator Bayh suffered from an extraordinary lapse of memory. After his recollection was refreshed with documents, cancelled checks, and sworn testimony from others, and after he was himself placed under oath, the Senator allowed as how "I would have chosen different words."

He referred to himself as "a pumpkinhead," and in 18 pages of the shiftest, most weaseling testimony, tried to make himself out as an aw-shucks, forgetful hayseed.

Not even his colleagues in the Senate could stomach all of that. Among the Ethics Committee's conclusions: "Senator Bayh's undated letter of July, 1977... was wrong in that Tongsun Park had given a party in Senator Bayh's honor, costing Mr. Park about $5,000. The Senator had a substantial portion of the guests."

The committee added that Tongsun Park had brought a friend into Bayh's office who then and there contributed $1,000. It is against the law to accept such money on federal property; but nobody's holding his breath for Birch Bayh's undated letter to the Justice Department to prosecute a Democratic Senator.

On contributions, Bayh and his Korean friend differ on whether the Senator took money, but now admit that the offer was made. Bayh said that Senator Bayh's undated letter of July, 1977, and his response to the committee's questionnaire were wrong in that they stated that Senator Bayh had never been offered anything of value in excess of $35 by Tongsun Park. In fact, Mr. Park had offered a sizable campaign contribution to the Senator, and Senator Bayh acknowledged in his testimony in April, 1978.

Concluded the Ethics Committee: "Senator Birch Bayh's failures to report this offer of a contribution" — in fact, his two written statements to the direct contrary — "constituted neglect of his duties as a United States Senator." In Senate club-ese "neglect of his duties" means "he lied to us."

Of course, when you or I lie to the Congress, it's a crime under the Capitol Hill, we have a government of men and not of laws. (Before voting next month, ask your Congressman how he voted on the censure of Roybal.)

Double standards are nothing new, but it's hard to resist the irony: Today, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth continues to serve with distinction on the Fourth Circuit — U.S. Court of Appeals. The man who blocked his advancement to the highest court — on gossamer charges of conflict of interests — stands exposed as one willing to mislead his colleagues.

"Senator Bayh's testimony was his only defense the proposition that he is just a pumpkinhead — rather an awkward pose for the Chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

Tax cut won't keep taxpayers from paying more

By JOHN F. BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite all the ballyhoo that accompanied the passage of an $18.7 billion tax cut in the last hours of the 95th Congress, the vast majority of the nation's 89 million taxpayers will pay more next year.

What the lawmakers did not emphasize was that the cut — large as it seems — will not offset the impact of inflation and higher Social Security taxes in 1979.

The bill, now awaiting President Carter's action, contains $13.1 billion in tax cuts for individuals.

On the surface, that would seem enough to offset the combined impact of the $3.2 billion in increased Social Security taxes starting Jan. 1, and the $8.8 billion which inflation will cost by pushing taxpayers into higher brackets.

It also would seem that individuals got best deal out of the bill, since business and capital gains taxes were reduced only $5.6 billion.

Neither appearance is fact. Most Americans will get tax increases because the tax breaks are distributed almost entirely among 16 million taxpayers who earn under $20,000, are married, and have two children. According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, married couples with two dependents and adjusted gross income of $15,000 would have a $97 income tax reduction from the legislation. That would be offset by $4 for increased Social Security taxes and another $56 by inflation, leaving the family only a $23 tax cut.

The same size family earning $5,000 would have its $100 tax cut shrunk $12 by more Social Security taxes, and $56 by inflation, for a net $40 tax cut.

But they would get net tax reductions. Not so for the same size family earning only $10,000. Because of the way the tax tables and formulas are set up, the four member family earning $10,000 would get a $24 tax increase. That actually is twice the $12 net increase that would be absorbed by the same size family earning twice as much, $20,000.

A $315 tax cut for a family of four earning $30,000 would be eliminated by $26 in Social Security taxes and $161 in inflation, resulting in a $106 tax increase. If that family earned $50,000, it would get a net $1,423 hike; $100,000, a $1,811 increase.

Single people and married couples get tax hikes in every category, despite some hefty pre-Social Security and inflation tax cuts. Those in the $5,000 income category get a tax hike of $10 and $4, respectively.

Singles in the $10,000 category will see a $22 cut become a $33 hike, while the $15,000 bracket will only get a $2 increase, as a $79 income tax reduction is wiped out by inflation and Social Security taxes.

Married couples with no dependents in the $10,000 slot have a $39 tax cut turned into a $16 tax hike, whereas those earning $15,000 not only get a $27 tax cut, but have it turned into a $47 increase — triple that of those earning only one-third less.

Singles and two member families in the $20,000 bracket get tax hikes of $65 and $75, respectively. But singles earning $30,000 get a hike of $233, while two member families earning just as much pay only $213.

Members of a House-Senate conference, called to shape a compromise from their differing tax bills, followed the lead of Senate Finance Committee chairman Russell Long, D-La., and Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and first approved major tax breaks for business and investors.

White business taxes were cut only $2.2 billion in 1979 by dropping the corporate tax rate from 48 to 46 percent. Treasury officials estimated the cut would save corporations another $2.4 billion between 1978 and 1983. The conferees also added another $1.3 billion in business tax relief for 1979.

Next, investors got a $2.1 billion break when capital gains excused from regular taxes was raised from 50 percent to 60 percent. The bulk of the capital gains tax cuts go to those earning more than $100,000.

Though individual tax cuts were first on a list of 126 items, they were taken up last by the conferees.

Only after the cuts for corporations and investors were fixed did Long ask Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal how much relief beyond the House bill could be provided for individuals.

"About $1 billion," Blumenthal replied. "Is that all we can afford for the time being?" Long asked.

"Yes," Blumenthal said. Long repeated that he wanted to give as big a break as possible to people, but "something will have to be squeezed out." It was the major tax cuts for individuals got the squeeze.

The case of the ex-CIA man

Maryland police theorize that Paisley shot himself

PIKESVILLE, Md. (UPI) — Former CIA official John Paisley strapped 40-pound diving bells to his body, shot himself in the head and fell into the Chesapeake Bay, state police theorized Friday.

Police officially reported that Paisley, whose body was found Oct. 1, was a suicide despite FBI tests that did not prove the 55-year-old Washington resident fired the fatal shot.

FBI spokesman John Kilby said tests on Paisley's hands showed "no significant amounts" of nitrite particles to indicate that he fired a gun, but added that nitrite can dissolve in water.

"We have been unable to uncover any indication whatsoever of foul play involved with the death of Mr. Paisley," said State Police Superintendent Thomas Smith. "All the information and evidence we have been able to develop so far indicates that Mr. Paisley died from a self-inflicted wound."

Smith noted similarities with the June 1971 death of Yale University professor Richard Wolfgang, who was found floating in Long Island Sound.

His body bore a bullet wound to the head and was weighted with a bag of stones.

Wolfgang was a chemist who did research with nuclear reactors. Paisley's work for the CIA dealt in part with U.S. spy satellite equipment.

Police in Gullford, Conn., said the state medical examiner ruled Wolfgang's death a suicide.

Smith said two of the seven investigators will remain on the case to tie up loose ends, including a search for the weapon.

Paisley, who continued to do some CIA work after retiring from the agency in 1974, was last seen Sept. 24 when he went sailing on his 31-foot sloop, the "Brillig." He notified mainland friends by radio that he would not arrive until later that night.

Military academy head chosen as SALT talker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday chose retired Army Lt. Gen. George Seligman, president of The Citadel military academy, to replace Paul Warnke as director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Warnke, who recently announced his resignation, has been the chief U.S. negotiator in the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty talks with the Soviet Union, an area where Seligman also has some experience and more of a hard-line reputation than Warnke.

In Charleston, S.C., Seligman told reporters Carter had called him

Friday morning and said "I was the man that he needed to take on this onerous responsibility."

"And, as the commander in chief making a direct request to me as citizen, I could not say other than 'yes,'" the general said.

Seligman, 57, has served as the "at large" member of the SALT negotiating delegation since September 1977. A seasoned soldier-diplomat, he also served as military advisor to special envoys Averell Harriman and Cyrus Vance.

Carter creates new judgeships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday signed legislation creating 152 new federal judgeships and said many of them should be filled by women or minority group members.

The bill expands the size of the federal judiciary by over one-fourth — an unprecedented increase — and is intended to help clear up the backlog of cases now confronting the courts.

It provides for 35 new judgeships on the courts of appeals and 117 on the federal district courts.

Schlesinger says the administration will try again to boost oil prices

By EDWARD K. DeLONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said Friday the administration will try again next year to boost U.S. oil prices to the world level, a potentially inflationary step Congress refused to take this year.

Schlesinger said President Carter will submit a new proposal to Congress early in 1979 to fill the gap in his energy plan left by congressional rejection of a crude oil tax which the president considered the centerpiece of the plan.

If Congress again refuses to raise domestic oil prices, he said, Carter may take the less desirable step of ending price controls under his own authority. The president has the power to abolish existing oil price controls as soon as next spring or to let them die in 1981 when the law that created them expires.

The energy plan passed by Congress just before it adjourned will be signed by Carter in early November, Schlesinger said, and its changes in natural gas policy should cause the opening of some shut-in wells by December.

He said a threatened court challenge to the gas policy changes by Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana is likely to be dropped after the election. Price controls should be removed gradually to keep from creating too great a shock to the economy, Schlesinger said.

Details of the new oil price hike proposal have not been settled, Schlesinger said. But he said the urgent need to reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil might make it desirable for oil and gas prices to rise faster than the president's general inflation guidelines.

The administration wants higher oil prices to discourage consumption and to stimulate domestic production, both of which would reduce the need for imported oil.

Schlesinger said the advantage of a crude oil tax, such as was proposed in the energy plan, is that it would raise prices without giving windfall profits to the oil industry. Simply ending controls without any corresponding tax, he said, would open the door to excess industry profits and could provide.

He said one possibility would be for Carter to announce a schedule for phasing out the existing controls, leaving it up to Congress to decide what sort of tax to use to prevent windfall profits.

More revolvers, ammunition found in Young's apartment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detectives Friday found three more revolvers and 350 rounds of ammunition in the posh Manhattan apartment of Oscar-winning actor Gig Young, who killed his bride-of-a-week and then himself with bullets to the brain. Police, who still have no motive for the murder-suicide, said they found the guns — two .38-caliber snubnose revolvers and a .32-caliber weapon — in a set of four custom-built wall drawers hidden behind a sofa.

The fully clothed bodies of the 64-year-old actor and his new bride, Kim Schmidt, 31, were found Thursday, lying in the bedroom of their duplex across the street from Carnegie Hall. Young was best known for his Academy Award-winning role opposite Jane Fonda in the 1969 film "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

The medical examiner, Dr. Michael Baden, ruled the cause of death in both cases to be a single gunshot wound to the head. A .38-caliber snubnose revolver was found clutched in Young's hand.

"There is nothing to indicate it was anything other than what the police first called it — a homicide-suicide," said Baden.

Additional medical tests Friday showed no evidence of other "significant" diseases, according to Baden.

Friends had said Young recently developed skin cancer and was plagued throughout his adult life by a drinking problem, but Baden said the skin cancer was not life-threatening. Detectives said they were checking to see where Young bought the four guns and the "massive" amount of ammunition — and how long he had it in his possession.

"We still have no motive," said Detective Richard Chiswick. "The why" is still a big question. Friends and relatives tell us he looked fine. They thought he was happy. Nobody has been able to shed any light at all on the case."

Police found no note in the couple's fashionably decorated apartment at the Osborne Apartments, although a diary on a bedroom desk was open to a Sept. 27 entry: "We got married today."

New York press agent Sydney Preston said that at a dinner Monday night, the Youngs were "hugging and kissing and Young was in the highest of spirits — greeting people, passing out autographs."

Chartrand said the couple's last days appeared to have been routine. Young had left their duplex Thursday. The building manager became suspicious only after groceries at the couple's door went unattended for several hours — although he later said he had heard a noise around 3 p.m.

Young was married five times. His first wife died shortly after they were married; his next three marriages ended in divorce. He met Miss Schmidt, a native of West Germany, in Hong Kong while filming sequences to complete the movie "Name of Death," which hung in screen idol Bruce Lee was making when he died in 1973.

Young was known through much of his career for his roles as the suave sailor who never got the girl.

In his Oscar-winning performance, he played a dancer during the Depression. Critics called that part "a lifeline for a drowning actor" whose career was marked by "a trail of second leads in second-rate movies."

Doris Day, who starred with Young and "Gladys" Gledhill in the film, "Teacher's Pet," said, "Jan't that terrible. I loved him. He was so dear and funny and light-hearted. This is just terrible."

Doctors, clergy urged to attend AA meetings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The doctor who treated Betty Ford for alcoholism urged physicians and ministers Friday to attend Alcoholics Anonymous meetings and learn to recognize the problem drinkers among their patients.

"The police asked Willie Sutton why he robbed banks and he said 'that's where the money is,'" said Dr. Joseph Porsch, chief of the alcohol rehabilitation center at the Navy's Long Beach, Calif., medical center.

"Well, AA meetings are where alcoholics are," he said. "I urge doctors and clergy to go to meetings, get to know these people and their symptoms, recognize the humanness, cleverness, denial and need that is part of the disease."

"Too many doctors, well-trained and zealous as they may be, are simply do not recognize the symptoms and should not wait for a confession," said Porsch, who treated Mrs. Ford, the former first lady, at Long Beach and who helps train about 1,000 Navy and government doctors a year on how to help problem drinkers.

He addressed a regional conference on alcoholism three days after HEW Secretary Joseph Califano reported to Congress that 10 million American adults have a drinking problem and that 200,000 deaths a year are related to alcohol.

Chairman of the alcoholic conference was former Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who quit Congress and the commanding post of Ways and Means Committee chairman because of alcoholism.

"You can tell me — and I'll tell you — that I'm an alcoholic now," said Mills, who practices law in Washington. "But you couldn't have told me that before I sobered up. Back then, I needed someone to tell me what road I was on in no uncertain terms."

Doctors, said Porsch, should start thinking about alcohol problems. "The airline pilot who gets hurt driving a snowmobile down an unlit ski slope at 4 a.m. didn't do it because he was sober," he said. "That's an alcohol accident, not a skiing accident."

First Lady role not new to Rosalynn

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — First lady Rosalynn Carter said Thursday she feels she was better prepared to deal with White House pressures than former first lady Betty Ford.

Mrs. Carter told UPI during a two-day, four-state northeastern tour that she had not yet read excerpts of Mrs. Ford's book, "The Times of My Life."

Despite not having Mrs. Ford's exposure to Washington, before her husband was elected president, Mrs. Carter said she felt her role as first lady was nothing new.

"It's just totally different," Mrs. Carter said comparing her situation to Mrs. Ford's.

The account of Mrs. Ford's addiction to prescription drugs and alcohol and her rehabilitation was excerpted in the November issue of Ladies Home Journal.

Mrs. Ford "was thrown into a new situation" as first lady, but Mrs. Carter said her own new life was comparable to being the wife of Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Royal bloomers bring $3,000

HOUSTON (UPI) — A pair of royal bloomers hanging in a Texas tavern may be the most expensive undergarments in a state noted for extravagance.

And they are certainly among the biggest, with a 42-inch waistband.

There's a royal seal on the waistband as proof. "It's amazing," Anderson said. "The Queen of England once had her bare bottom in there."

Her protest very costly

LONDON (UPI) — Yana Mintoff, 26, daughter of Prime Minister Dom Mintoff of Malta, was fined $200 by a London magistrate's court Friday for throwing bags of horse manure onto the floor of the House of Commons last July.

She also was ordered to pay $240 court costs and to pay a further $1,000 fine if she breaks the peace again within 12 months.

The prosecution said Miss Mintoff and a man companion brought the bags of manure into the Commons visitors' gallery concealed under their clothes without being stopped by the doorman who thought the smell was caused by their needling to wash.

What's what

Napoleon's troops weren't awake enough to win the battle

Hardly anything except a direct hit will wreck a soldier more quickly than lack of sleep. It has to get that way. Haiti owes its independence to that fact. In 1802, the guerrilla fighters in that rebellious colony were far outnumbered by Napoleon's troops. So those fighters didn't even try to deal with the French army in open battle. Instead, they took turns to feint attacks night after night. The guerrillas got plenty of sleep. But the French soldiers didn't. By 1804 Haiti was a sovereign state.

Those born under the sign of Leo tend to be self-controlled, determined and ambitious. They are not without generosity, however, particularly when it comes to family. They go after what they want, all right. If only to give much of it away after they get it. Or so say the stargazers.

LANGUAGE MAN
In Shakespeare's time, a "scot" originally spelled "scell" was a town tax paid to the sheriff. But some locals were able to avoid the payment of that tax. Our Language man has learned that's where we got our expression "get off scot-free."

Poles begin trip to Rome

Pope John Paul II meets with Cardinal Joseph J. Krol, archbishop of Philadelphia

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Thousands of Polish Catholics jammed airports and stacked up border traffic Friday at the start of a pilgrimage to Rome to witness the investiture of Cardinal Karol Wojtyla as Pope John Paul II — the first Polish pope.

The Polish national airline LOT put on larger planes and ordered crews to work overtime to accommodate the increased traffic on their regular Warsaw to Rome flights.

Bishop Wladyslaw Mizolek, organizer of the pilgrimage, said three chartered planes were to depart from Warsaw, another three from Krakow, and at least one from Poznan.

"Several of our crews have agreed to put in extra shifts on their free weekend to handle the increased air traffic to Rome," a LOT spokesman said. He said the airline has replaced the normal Russian-built TU-134 with the larger IL-62 plane on their regular Rome flight to enable some 100 more passengers to fly to Italy.

"The extra seats in the larger plane were sold out within 40 minutes," the LOT spokesman said.

In addition to increased air travel to Rome, there was also extremely heavy automobile traffic on the highways leading south.

"We have counted at least twice as many cars today as on a normal Friday," a custom official at the Polish-Czechoslovak border station at Cieszyn said.

Travelers from the area of Krakow planning to drive to Italy would have to cross at the Cieszyn border station where long lines of cars waited at the border station throughout the day.

Why cardinals broke tradition

BY BARRY JAMES

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Why did Roman Catholic cardinals break a 455-year tradition in electing a non-Italian pope?

The election of Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla came as a surprise even to the 111 electors themselves. "Their tense, abrupt mood as they left the electoral conclave indicated the voting had been tough.

"If there's anyone who didn't quite guess the result in advance, don't worry," Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia told reporters. "You have a lot of company."

"Before the conclave I thought it would be an Italian," Brazilian Cardinal-Avelar Brandao Vilela said. "But a convergence was not possible."

The secrets of the conclave which elected Wojtyla may never leak out in detail, but a hint of what went on is emerging.

According to Vatican sources, Cardinal Giovanni Benelli of Florence came within a few votes — perhaps as few as two — of the two-thirds majority needed. The sources said he was backed by cardinals supporting Genoa Archbishop-Giuseppe Siri — as well as a "Curia" bloc of Vatican prelates.

Benelli had managerial experience as Pope Paul VI's right-hand man for many years, but he had made adversaries in the Vatican and had only brief experience as a resident archbishop in Florence. Although conservatism was the leit-motiv of the conclave, Siri apparently ruled himself out by failing to give guarantees that he would carry forward the reforms of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Vatican sources said it was evident for one reason or another that none of the other 24 Italian candidates had a chance of reaching the required 75 votes, and attention turned to the possibility of a foreign candidate for the first time in centuries.

"There was not enough convergence to get enough votes to elect an Italian," Benelli said later. But there was no obvious compromise candidate in the wings, as there was in the case of Cardinal Albino Luciani, who was elected Pope John Paul I in August.

"In August, it was really like lightning when the Sacred College found itself in agreement on Luciani," Benelli said. "This time that extraordinary quality was missing. We had to go through some patient research."

Wojtyla had two things going for him: he was well-prepared and he was well-known. Even in the conclave that elected Luciani he reportedly received some votes, and his name figured again in the first ballot Sunday.

The other outstanding foreign candidate, Cardinal Aloisio Lorscheider of Brazil, was reportedly ruled out because of a recent heart operation. After the shock of Pope John Paul I's death, the cardinals were looking for a fit man and, in any case, Lorscheider was probably too liberal for a conclave that was looking for a candidate of great doctrinal firmness.

Wojtyla had played an active role in the Vatican Ecumenical Council and in subsequent synods of bishops. He was a frequent visitor to Rome, and familiar in the Curia. He had traveled widely and received several brother cardinals as guests in Krakow.

He was strict on dogma, open on social problems. He had noted qualities as a pastor and teacher. And to top it all, he had a lifetime of experience in dealing with the subject of maximum concern to the church leadership: the rising Communist tide in Italy and elsewhere in the world.

The political ramifications of choosing a pope from a Communist country were — and still are — enormous. But Cardinal John Dearden of Detroit said that while the political aspects had been taken into consideration "they were not central to our decision."

Asked if the pope had been an "anti-Communist choice," Senegalese Cardinal Hyacinthe Thiandoum replied: "I deny this absolutely. If it was a question of finding an anti-Communist, we would have elected someone immediately."

TWIN FALLS — Turning Point, a new 30-minute full-color weekly telecast sponsored by local Assemblies of God churches, will be aired on CBIN-TV, Channel 9, Twin Falls, beginning at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Telecasts relate to life stories of individuals from a variety of backgrounds, highlighting the events that led to their "turning point" experiences. Family conflicts, drug and alcohol problems, survival in a German concentration camp, fascination with the occult, and involvement in the Hell's Henchmen motorcycle gang, are all discussed by guests who have turned from former ways of life and are now "living for Christ."

Also scheduled are personal interviews with well-known Christian recording artists and musicians.

Although the program is produced by the national Radio-TV Department of the Assemblies of God, Lee Shultz, producer of the telecast, explains that the scope of the series is larger than just denominational promotion.

"According to Shultz, "The series was created to share a simple message of truth; people can overcome their problems through Christ."

School slates Bible operetta

Jesus is played by Billy Swan in the first half and by Lori Ruiter in the second part. Some other roles are Pam-Huntzman as the shepherd who lost a sheep, and Mark and Michelle Mayland as the preacher and teacher walking by the wayside in the story of "The Good Samaritan." Others in the operetta are Bonnie Brown, Brandi Hillman, Rita Ruiter, Paul Westermann, Angela Peatow, Jeff Reinke, Steve Rahe, Doug Lierman, Shane Clough, Karen Wolters, Angela Hoops and Amy Lierman. # Firestone agrees to 500 line radial tire recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and the government agreed Friday to the largest tire recall in history, with millions of motorists to get free replacements for the trouble-plagued "500" steel belted radial.

The recall, prompted by reports of 41 deaths and 65 injuries allegedly resulting from failures of the tires, will cover:

- Firestone Steel Belted Radial 500s: All major private brands made by Firestone, such as Ward's "Grappler 8000" and the Shell "Super Steel Radial," and Firestone "TPC" tires, all if they were purchased after Sept. 1, 1975, but before May 1, 1976.
- Any Steel Belted Radial 500 in the five-rib tread design manufactured after March 1, 1976, but before Jan. 1, 1977.

Steel Belted Radial 500s in the seven-rib design if manufactured after March 1, 1976, but before May 1, 1976. In those three categories, Firestone estimates there may be 10 million tires, of which 7.5 million still are in service and of which 5.5 million to 6 million actually will be returned.

Owners of these tires will be eligible for a free replacement tire, which will be a Firestone "721" steel belted radial unless the consumer requests some other Firestone tire.

In general, no proof of purchase will be required. In addition to the Shell and Ward's private brands, and the TPC brand used by General Motors on factory equipment, the following private brands are involved in the recall:

K-Mart 400 steel radials; Union (Oil Co.) steel radials; Aias-Gordon "721"; Dayton Radial X82; and the Seberling Tire Co., brands Ferraria radial, JTW Super steel radial, Holiday Super Steel Power radials, Caravelle Super steel radials; Zenith Supreme Power radials, LaMons steel radials, RT78 steel belted radials, and the Caravelle Double steel radial.

Not covered by the recall, but eligible for an adjustment, are an additional 6 million Firestone 500 tires sold before Sept. 1, 1975. Owners of those pre-recall tires will be eligible to buy a new 721 Steel Belted Radial at half price.

In addition, anyone who owned one of the affected tires and already has had an adjustment on it — that is, brought it back to the dealer because of a problem and received a replacement at a reduced price — will be eligible for a refund in the amount of the adjustment; provided the consumer presents proof of purchase.

Consumers can find out the week and year of manufacture of their tire by checking the last three digits of the government identification number on the sidewall. If the digits are "385," for example, the tire was produced in the 38th week of 1975.

Firestone Chairman Richard Riley said: "We will try to arrange the replacements for minimum inconvenience for our customers. Current owners of the tires may continue using them, he said, provided they maintain their property and keep them inflated."

"We're agreeing to the recall because there has been so much publicity," said Riley.

Nation's economy slows pace of growth; inflation tapers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's economy grew a respectable 3.4 percent during the third quarter, just as the administration said it would, and inflation tapered off from 11 percent to 7 percent, the government announced Friday.

Commerce Department figures for the third three-month period of 1978 indicated a return to a more normal growth rate after the economy fell back 0.1 percent in the first quarter as the result of the coal strike and a severe winter, and then jumped forward 8.7 percent during the second quarter.

The 3.4 percent increase during the third quarter meant that in current dollars the Gross National Product went up $53.6 billion to $2.14 trillion. Inflation, the department's measure of all price changes, not just consumer prices, veered away from double digits, largely as the result of a slower climb in food costs.

Still the 7 percent rise was troubling to consumers and President Carter. Inflation, the department's measure of all price changes, not just consumer prices, veered away from double digits, largely as the result of a slower climb in food costs.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said she was pleased with the strong "catch-up" of the economy after the slow start in the first quarter.

Emphasizing that the inflation figure was "still far too high," she said prospects for growth in the fourth quarter and in 1979 would depend on successful implementation of the administration's anti-inflation policies.

A drop in motor vehicle sales dampened growth in the third quarter, reported Courtney Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Department. Strong sales for the first 10 days of October indicated a better response in the fourth quarter, she said.

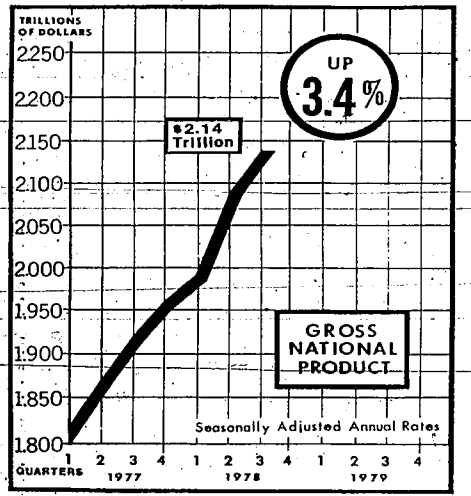

Total food prices increased by 5.9 percent, down from the 20 percent jump in the second quarter, Mrs. Slater said. Prices for other commodities were up 7.6 percent for the quarter, compared to 8.7 percent in the second quarter.

Mrs. Slater was reluctant to hazard an estimate on fourth quarter price levels, but added, "I don't think we are going to have any fundamental improvement." She was similarly wary of predictions on 1979 growth rates or prices.

Noting that only a few days earlier the government had reported that housing starts remained strong, Mrs. Slater forecast the possibility of a slight drop in residential construction during the fourth quarter.

On the brighter side, Mrs. Slater said she anticipates that business investment should be one of the strongest sectors of the overall economy. "Nothing you would call a boom but (it would be) steady growth," she said.

Steel import dumping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Friday launched its first anti-dumping investigation of cut-rate steel imports under its new trigger price system that went into effect nearly six months ago.

The Treasury singled out three companies from Spain, Poland and Taiwan who allegedly sold "significant quantities of carbon steel plate" in the United States at prices "less than fair value, a violation of American trade laws."

"These cases are clear and strong and that's why we're beginning with them," a Treasury official said.

The official said the Treasury is "looking at" about 200 additional cases where potential underselling may have occurred.

The Treasury officials would not disclose the total tonnage of steel plate that was shipped to the United States by the three companies involved. However, it said that total tonnage from the three countries was 22,000 net tons — with a value of $91.2 million — between May 1 and Aug. 31.

About 25 percent of that tonnage, the officials said, was steel plate allegedly sold under value and subject of the investigation. That means 56,000 net tons is involved with a value of $2.4 million.

The three companies involved in the case are:

- Empresa Nacional Siderurgica, S.A. of Spain.
- Stahlexport Przedsiębiorstwa of Poland.
- China Steel Corp. of Taiwan.

The department said the three firms would be given 35 days to supply additional information needed to make a fair evaluation of the situation.

The trigger price system was announced in February and went into effect on May 1.

The system was devised after American steel firms complained to the White House that low-price imports were crippling the U.S. industry, forcing plant closings and worker layoffs.

The main thrust of the program involves a set of "trigger prices" based on production of steel in Japan, the world's most efficient steelmaker.

When imports from anywhere in the world arrive in a U.S. port below the trigger price, the Treasury automatically begins a probe.

Texas airline buys stock

HOUSTON (UPI) — Texas International Airlines, battling Pan American World Airways for control of National Airlines, Friday announced another purchase of stock in the Florida-based airline, boosting its holdings to 21.1 percent.

A Texas International spokesman said the airline paid $4,521,361 in open market transactions Oct. 17 for 174,200 common shares. The airline now holds 1.9 million National shares.

The total price paid for Texas International's holdings since the takeover drive began last spring is $23,338,000 to date.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has begun proceedings on the competing petitions of Texas International and Pan Am to take control of National and has authorized each to buy up to 25 percent of National's stock.

New crop spud use dips

BOISE (UPI) — Potato processors in Idaho and Malheur County, Ore., used fewer potatoes from the 1978 crop than they did from the 1977 crop, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Friday.

Of this year's crop, 4.43 million hundredweight was processed, below the 4.71 million hundredweight last year.

Of the total processed this year, 2.9 million cwt. were Idaho grown potatoes and 1.52 million cwt. were produced in other states. During the same period last year, 2.46 million cwt. were Idaho produced;

Cattle, grain futures keep on sliding lower

CHICAGO — Cattle and grain slipped lower in commodity futures trading Friday while Maine potatoes ended mixed.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds opened unchanged to slightly higher but drifted lower on lack of interest. Trade hedge selling in November depressed the month and the April-March spread widened to 33 points. Prices settled 8 cents lower to 2 higher with May off 2 cents at 6.16 per hundredweight. Volume was 1,325 lots.

Wheat ended 8 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents lower after a second round of stop loss selling was touched off at noon. Brokers said increasing export competition from abroad helped contribute to wheat's weaker stance. Exporters thought heavily during the market break.

Idea weather for harvesting the record "corn" crop was the major underlying feature in the corn pit, as speculators kept futures under varying amounts of pressure during the morning. Shorts covered in the late minutes, shaving losses and leaving prices unchanged to a penny lower at the close.

Traders said a report late Thursday the Department of Agriculture would buy 2.1 million pounds of frozen Maine rounds had no appreciable effect on the market, because of the large supplies of frozen potato stocks.

Soybeans moved off lower levels as professional support appeared in the final hour, absorbing fair commercial pre-hedging which appeared earlier. November settled at 6.72 1/2, about 1 1/2 cents higher, and the May contract rose 1/2 cent to 9.25 cents. Prices ended down 1/4 to 2 1/2 cents. Oil ended down 15 to 6 points from December through March with July through September unchanged to 10 points higher. Meal closed unchanged to 90 cents higher, on or near the high. Spot October meal expired 42 points higher and October oil left the board down 1.60.

Feeder cattle ended off 135 to 15 points in an active trade of 2,874 contracts. Selling continued under pressure from the cattle on feed report with nearby most affected.

Live hogs closed lower on selling again influenced by weaker cattle. Spot October went off the board at 62.50, off 60 points. Other contracts closed 1 1/2 to 10 points down except for slightly higher December, which closed unchanged. Negatively constructed chart signals also weighed heavily on the market most of the day.

PHILIP GUIDICE, Gem State's vice president for sales and marketing, said the airline will also have to pay $1,000 for space at the Boise airport, and another $5,000 for space at the Pullman-Moscow airport.

New York Sugar 11 closed 10 to 15 points higher. In line with levels held all afternoon. March was up 12 points at 9 cents a pound. Volume was 3,075 lots.

PHILIP GUIDICE, Gem State's vice president for sales and marketing, said the airline will also have to pay $1,000 for space at the Boise airport, and another $5,000 for space at the Pullman-Moscow airport.

International Monetary Market gold gained 330 to 230 points on a trade of 11,502 contracts.

Airline must pay for airport spot

LEWISTON (UPI) — Gem State Airlines, which will become Idaho's newest airline Dec. 1, will have to pay about $10,000 for remodeling of the Lewiston-Nez Perce County Airport.

That's the architect's estimate of how much it will cost to provide airport space for the Coeur d'Alene-based airline. The airline will also have to pay a monthly fee.

Philip Guidice, Gem State's vice president for sales and marketing, said the airline will also have to pay $1,000 for space at the Boise airport, and another $5,000 for space at the Pullman-Moscow airport.

Starting Dec. 1, Gem State will provide daily service between Boise, Lewiston, Moscow and Coeur d'Alene.

Closing prices Stocks skid in heavy trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Interest rates sent stock prices broadly lower on the New York Stock Exchange Friday as the Dow Jones Industrial Average to the worst one-week loss in 50-year history.

Trading was the heaviest in two and half months.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, down more than 12 points in the afternoon, fell 8.31 to 836.10. The blue chip indicator piled up an unprecedented $8.99-point loss for the week, eclipsing the previous record of 1.78 points given up in the five days ended Nov. 2, 1973 during the Arab oil embargo.

The Federal Reserve Board set the stage for Friday's heavy selling when it reported a $4.8-billion surge in the nation's money supply in the latest week. The supply expanded at a 9.2 percent annual rate in the latest four-week period — far above the Fed's target of 6.5 percent — and signaled even tighter monetary policy ahead.

The Fed pulled in the credit reins twice this week, raising its ceiling on key federal funds rates from 8 1/2 percent to at least 9 percent. The increase in federal funds rates puts upward pressure on other short-term rates, particularly the benchmark prime, which now is at an almost four-year high of 10 percent.

Public officials and private economists have warned that ballooning interest rates could lead the nation into a recession. Many have predicted a severe credit crunch is just around the corner.

Meanwhile, the dollar slumped against most European currencies Friday, erasing momentary strength exhibited Thursday.

Also in the news background, the Commerce Department reported the economy grew at a 3.4 percent annual rate in the third quarter in line with Carter administration projections and inflation during the July-September period subsided to a 7 percent annual rate in the third quarter of 11 percent in the second quarter.

Ramada Inns, Bally Manufacturing and Holiday Inns — all gambling-related issues — were active and lower during the session. Brokers are making margin calls in gaming stocks.

The airlines continued to weaken in the wake of a report earlier this week that a Wall Street airlines' analyst had turned bearish on the industry. American Airlines, Eastern and UAL Inc. gave up strength.

Pan American World Airways, a volume leader during the session, lost ground. Pan Am hopes to take over National Airlines, but Texas International Airlines boosted its Texas National Friday, Texas and National came under selling pressure.

Occidental Petroleum and Mead Corp. retreated. The Ohio Division of Securities said it will release a final decision late Friday on whether Occidental has provided Mead shareholders enough information about its proposed takeover of Mead.

General Instrument was a pointer loser during the day. The company said a subsidiary of Applied Devices lost a bid for an injunction against the Massachusetts State Lottery Commission, which awarded a contract to General Instrument.

Applied Devices, traded on the Amex, gave up ground.

Midland Glass attracted buyers. Midland said it was engaged in preliminary discussions involving its possible takeover by an unidentified company.

Firestone Tire and Rubber weakened. The company has agreed to recall about 10 million steel-belted radial tires in a move that may cost

Evans plans to file complaint about Larsen ads, speeches

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans says he will file a complaint with a member of the newly-formed Idaho Fair Campaign Practices Committee over ads and speeches made by his opponent, Allan F. Larsen.

"I think the campaign practices of Mr. Larsen should be looked into," the Press-Tribune newspapers quoted Evans in a copyright story Friday. "I plan on calling them to the attention of the committee."

"Some of his ads must be looked into," he said. "They are completely untrue. They are a misrepresentation of my position."

"I stand by the facts," Larsen said in a statement issued by his campaign staff. "If the governor believes he has a case he should present it to the people of Idaho in a public debate on public television. Let the people decide who is telling the truth. It is interesting that Evans is crying foul but is afraid to present his facts to the public in an open, direct way."

The Fair Campaign Practices Committee, headed by state GOP Chairman Dennis Olsen and Democratic Chairman George Klein, announced formation of the group on Wednesday but, at the same time, also said the campaign to date has contained nothing to warrant investigation.

But Evans disagrees with that assessment from his party's chairman, Klein.

"When I first read that the committee was formed but didn't think it had anything to do I couldn't believe it," Evans said. "I intend to contact Mr. Klein about the half-truths and absolute falsehoods being spread around by Mr. Larsen."

Evans endorses testing

DECLO (UPI) — Superintendent of public instruction candidate Jerry Evans says proficiency tests will restore public confidence in the school system and give credibility to high school diplomas.

But Evans told a meeting of Republicans that the tests should be given first in the ninth grade so students' deficiencies can be spotted and corrected before graduation.

Officers split on sheriff

MOSCOW (UPI) — Idaho Association of Counties members were divided on a legislative proposal making the position of county sheriff non-partisan, but they finally recommended it by a narrow margin.

The county officials also took an adamant stand against any additional increase to the federal wilderness system in Idaho.

Leroy lashes back on salary

POCATELLO (UPI) — Attorney general candidate David Leroy Friday said his opponent's challenge to disclose his income is one more indication he has been "too long out of touch with Idaho law as a Washington bureaucrat."

The Republican nominee told businessmen in Pocatello that his income is about $10,000 a year less than his opponent's who is talking about what he calls "my well-financed campaign."

Leroy was paid $30,500 a year as Ada County prosecutor and that salary by law is a matter of public record.

Specifically, Evans objects to Larsen's contentions that he proposed a 30 percent cutback in higher education funding and that he is responsible for monumental growth in the governor's office.

"Mr. Larsen cites growth in the governor's office in his ads and speeches and the implication is there that I'm responsible for it," he said. "It is technically true that there are more employees in the office than before."

"But it is the result of state government reorganization and I wasn't even the governor when it happened. It's a bald truth. He's telling the entire story."

One ad that Evans called "absolutely untrue" says that the governor has ordered a 30 percent cutback in higher education.

"I never proposed a 30 percent cutback in higher education. That is a total misrepresentation of my position."

While Evans says his campaign is using the essentially the same strategy in running against Larsen as it would have against C.L. "Butch" Otter or Vern Rensvold he notes that Larsen has one factor in his campaign that is hurting the speaker of the House but wouldn't have been an issue in a race with Otter or Rensvold.

"The Mormonism thing is killing him," Evans said of Larsen. "He has made an issue of it for himself starting with his victory in the primary."

Evans, too, is Mormon but states "I don't campaign and use the church in any way."

"I've always maintained that kind of practice," he said. "I believe in the absolute separation of church and state and I think people know I'm not going to interfere with their rights to practice their own religions."

Gun control plan has problem

MOSCOW (UPI) — State Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, Friday said there are serious problems with a proposed constitutional amendment dealing with gun control.

Mrs. Dobler, a six-year veteran of the Legislature, said "one of the things that really alarms me about this is that only an abbreviated form has come from the secretary of state's office."

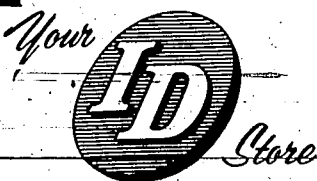

"But if you read the full text of the amendment you'll find it has a lot of very confusing language," she said. "It even has a statement that has to do with minimum sentencing which is the object of an entirely different constitutional amendment."

Wetherell cites divergences

POCATELLO (UPI) — Mike Wetherell, Democrat attorney general candidate, said Friday his opponent appears to be the most misunderstood candidate in Idaho politics today.

Wetherell said first the Idaho Education Association apparently misunderstood David Leroy's position on the 1 percent initiative and when it understood it withdrew its endorsement.

"Then he told the people he didn't mind losing the endorsement because he wanted no strings attached to him," Wetherell said. "But again he must have been misunderstood because he never returned the $1,000 contribution which was given him by the IEA."

Mormon families thrash grain on the Woodbury Ranch during the early days in Cassia County

Early history Latter Day Saints supported woman's suffrage two decades before constitutional amendment

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Mormon counties approved woman's suffrage in Idaho more enthusiastically than those with smaller percentages of Latter-Day Saints.

For example, Cassia County voters approved the measure in 1896 by an 84 percent, compared to 60 percent in non-Mormon counties, according to Dr. Leonard J. Arrington of Salt Lake City.

The Twin Falls native, now director of the history division of the Mormon Church, spoke in Burley Wednesday night on "The Mormon Experience in Idaho," as part of the "Snake River Country" lecture series.

Some 650 persons, including many students, filled the Burley Junior High School to capacity for the lecture, which concentrated on the Mormon immigration to Cassia County, particularly the Oakley area, in the 1870s.

The speaker said the several Idaho counties with the major Mormon settlements approved woman suffrage by 77 per cent in the Idaho referendum more than two decades before the U.S. Constitutional Amendment which forced all states to allow women to vote.

He said the Mormon support probably resulted from the fact Utah had had woman suffrage since 1870.

The church historian said the movement of Mormons into the state was divided into six stages, with the settlement in the Oakley area as the fourth one.

The first abortive attempt to settle at Lemhi, near Salmon in 1855 was abandoned two years later. In 1860 a group of families came to Franklin where the first permanent school in Idaho was begun. Three years later 40 families established a settlement in Bear Lake Valley.

The fifth movement followed construction of the Utah Northern Railroad from Ogden when a large group came into the Upper Snake River Valley about 1879. The development of reclamation projects in the 1930s and 1940s brought the final movement into the Teton, Magic Valley, Boise and American Falls areas.

Arrington said the fourth migration concentrated in the Oakley area did not follow the "typical Mormon pattern where on the appointed day the families selected to settle in a certain area would gather and after prayer, with Brigham Young would travel as a group to their appointed destination."

While most of the early day settlers in the Cassia communities were Mormons, many of them came on their own, the historian said, with only partial church supervision.

In 1873, Ransom Beecher of Willard, Utah, came with his sons to settle 18 miles east of Burley. The resulting settlement was first called Beecherville, but when the leaders tried to get a post office established they were told the name was too long.

Studying a map for inspiration, they found the island where Napoleon was imprisoned and decided Elba would be short enough to satisfy government regulations.

Elba had a population of 200 by 1867 when the first Mormon Church ward was organized.

In 1875 the first settlers came to Marsh Basin. The community, soon called Albion, became the county seat in 1879. Three years later, Myron Durfee led another settlement which was first called Almo but was shortened to Almo.

The largest group of early-day Mormons settled in Goose Creek Valley in 1878, led by James Dayley and his three sons. Settlements followed at Oakley, Marion and Springs Basin where seven families formed a branch ward in 1880.

Oakley became the hub of these settlements and the Cassia ward was formed there in 1882. Originally the Cassia ward included members at Albion, Almo, Elba and the other smaller settlements, but by 1887 the steady growth of the area resulted in the establishment of the Cassia LDS stake, with individual wards for these communities.

Arrington interspersed his lecture with humorous and folksy tales gleaned from letters and other records of pioneer times, including an alleged incident in which a Mormon leader wrote he could not get his oxen to haul until he lost his temper and swore at them.

The settlers were poor and had little money, but they worked together to build roads, canals and fence their farms from wild animals.

Arrington read portions of a letter by a Mormon woman describing how the group's prayers were answered when a man loaned them $10 to buy seed and would wait until harvest to be repaid. Another man loaned them a team.

Grain was the medium of exchange. Some 75,000 bushels of wheat were raised in Goose Creek Valley in 1883, according to early records — all sowed and threshed by horse power.

The pioneers also hunted cooperatively, the meat being divided equally among them. The man who shot the animal was allowed to keep the skin.

If it had not been for the plentiful deer and antelope many of the settlers would have starved before they could reap their first harvest, the historian said.

Jackrabbits were special hazards. They often would cause entire haystacks to tip over by their continual nibbling away of the hay underneath.

But while life was hard and living conditions primitive, the Cassia pioneers enjoyed both dance and drama through their church organization. Dances were held in the original log cabins, and Arrington reported instances where activity continued until 3 or 4 a.m. after an intermission at midnight.

In 1883 a dramatic group was formed and residents viewed the Oakley's first play. Other cultural interests soon followed. The Oakley Brass Band began in 1885 with 20 members and soon was entertaining throughout the area.

A manuscript newspaper which included songs, poems as well as other community news was another amenity of the pioneer community.

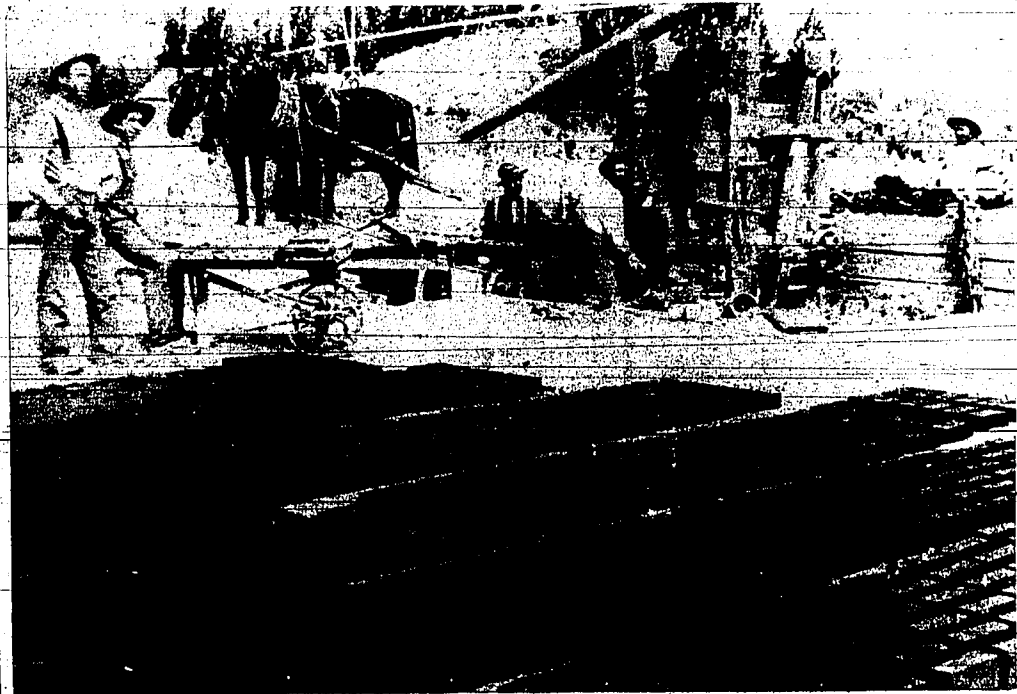

Arrington said minutes of early priesthood meetings showed a wide variety of community and economic concerns as well as religious ones. They set dates for rabbit drives, hunting trips and planned harvest activities.

In 1889 the Oakley Academy started with 125 students in a $6,000 building. By 1903 the academy boasted 150 students and in 1910 the school was moved into a new building which served until 1921 when the public school system assumed its operation.

Horton Haight was the first president of the Cassia LDS stake and his wife, Louisa, was a leader in the Relief Society. They came to Oakley in 1880. The church leader crossed the Plains seven times in fulfillment of church business, the speaker said.

Early minutes of the Cassia Relief Society show the wide variety of economic and community topics which concerned members. They not only stored grain and provided food for the poor, but prepared corpses for burial, held clinics for teeth and eye tests, knitted for soldiers and took luncheon hikes to the nearby mountains.

The church historian closed his talk, the last of the series of lectures to be given in Magic Valley, by quoting the admonition of church leader Brigham Young to "work hard, plan well and trust in God."

Most of the brick for the early homes in Cassia County were made at the old Oakley Brick Yard

Ex editor stands firm on airport funding issue

By RAY SULLIVAN Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — An opponent of the regional airport proposal argued Thursday chances of getting funds to build the facility would be "extremely remote, practically impossible." Standing by a claim he made last August, Gus Kelker of Twin Falls said he checked with a Department of Transportation official, who reiterated that the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority's proposed $32 million regional airport would stand little chance of being funded in fiscal 1980. However, Kelker refuses to say who he spoke with in Washington, D.C. Speaking to the Kiwanis Club Thursday at the Turf Club, Kelker said such a project would be competing with the fund needs of all the operating airports in the United States. Kelker also maintained the airport couldn't be built for less than $50 million. He attributed that statement to another unnamed government official, this one reportedly being an Federal Aviation Administration officer in Seattle.

An Oct. 8 interview in the Times-News with Robert Brown, airport division director for the Seattle office of the Federal Aviation Administration, quoted Brown as scoffing at Kelker's claim that it would take at least $50 million to build the Jerome County site. "That statement was made to me and it is true. The other FAA official is just irritated because he cannot find out my source of information," Kelker said.

"It is unfortunate that every time someone of the SIRAIA group — or some of their supporters — so much as bech, it ends up as another publicity story," Kelker, a former editor of the Times-News, said. "It is a case of Sun Valley, the airport authority, the FAA, the Times-News and a small group of local businessmen who are endeared to the newspaper because of the advertising dollars they spend, all sleeping in the same bed and under the same sheet."

Yet, Kelker pointed out, no stories have mentioned the $4 million Idaho Power would have to spend to see that four new high-tension power lines would not go across the SIRAIA site. Also unnamed, Kelker said, is the fact that the three Gooding County commissioners stated last August they wanted out of SIRAIA because of the cost but couldn't withdraw because they were prohibited by law.

Gooding County Commissioner John LeMoyné affirmed Friday they had said that.

However, LeMoyné said the commissioners — also — said they would reconsider their position after the election if Twin Falls and Blaine counties voted to join SIRAIA, a fact Kelker did not mention.

Kelker praised Twin Falls County Prosecutor Frank Dykas for denying what he said was a request from SIRAIA lawyer Pete Snow to keep off the election ballot the fact that Twin Falls County would have to pay up to 36 1/2 percent of the cost of a new regional airport.

Snow has admitted he did not want the percentage on the ballot. He claimed the percentage figure is misleading when read alone since taxpayers in all SIRAIA-member counties would be leveled equally.

Kelker also hit at SIRAIA's proposed airport site southeast of the junction of U.S. 93 and Interstate-80N in Jerome County, because of its proximity to Blue Lake and Jerome county clubs, Shoshone Falls and the Lazy J Ranch, a mobile home park in which Kelker lives.

"The departure and arrival of flights from that west would be over the close vicinity of the Jerome County Club and the Blue Lakes Country Club and the approach and departure routes to the east will be toward Eden and Hazelton or southeast toward the Hansen Bridge."

Kelker argued against the county joining SIRAIA because the "dream" of a regional airport in Jerome County, based on Twin Falls County taxpayers paying a large share of the costs, was based on three words, "if, perhaps and maybe."

"If we can get enough money from the taxpayers, perhaps we can start a new airport and maybe we can end up with enough revenue and more taxes to pay for it someday," he said.

KMVT election program features Evans, Larsen

TWIN FALLS — KMVT-television in Twin Falls announced Friday that Gov. John Evans and Republican challenger Allan Larsen will appear on the station's special election program — "Decision '78" — Nov. 1 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. MDT.

It is the only television appearance with Larsen that Evans has agreed to make. He previously turned down invitations to debate Larsen on Boise television station as well as public television.

David Denaull, KMTV director of news and public affairs, said the joint appearance is in consideration of two things: it will not be a debate program, but a format similar to "Meet the Press." Home viewers also will be allowed to call in questions.

The one hour program was expanded to 90 minutes to include candidates seeking congressional seats.

Republican incumbent Rep. George Hansen and his opponent, Stan Kress, as well as Democrat U.S. Sen. Ken Burrows of the Statesman newspaper, Boise; Frank Catalano, KIDO, Boise, who also is KMVT Capitol correspondent, Jay Hildebrandt of KMVT.

Bid accepted for cars

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Commissioners accepted a bid Wednesday morning of $16,248 to replace three Twin Falls County Sheriff's cars.

The bid, from Bill Workman Ford of Twin Falls, was opened Tuesday morning by the commissioners. Three 1978 Ford LTDs were purchased to replace three of the department's 11 patrol cars.

Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said all car agencies in Twin Falls received a hand-carried notice that bids were being taken.

All-State Youth Rally opens

TWIN FALLS — The opening session of a three-day All-State Youth Rally was held Friday and will continue today and Sunday at the Twin Falls First Christian Church, Community Christian Church and Kimberly Christian Church.

Also unnamed, Kelker said, is the fact that the three Gooding County commissioners stated last August they wanted out of SIRAIA because of the cost but couldn't withdraw because they were prohibited by law.

The rally started off with singing, ice breakers, devotional dramas and a sandwich supper. The dramas were judged for awards, which will be presented tonight at a formal banquet. Speaker Friday evening was Jody Hardenbrook, Youth Minister at the Caldwell Christian Church.

A Prayer Walk through the Twin Falls City Park at 9 a.m. today will feature Lee Magness of the Boise Bible College as speaker. A special singalong with Fred Bittner, associate pastor at the Emmett Christian Church, will be at 10 a.m. At noon the youths will go to Community Christian Church for a witness toast.

This afternoon will be free time, with a singalong at 6:30 p.m. The formal banquet will be held at 7 p.m. featuring a Salisbury steak dinner, hosted by the Kum Dubble Class at First Christian Church. The banquet will be in the New Fellowship Hall complex at First Christian Church. Dress will be formal and awards will be given.

Sunday has been designated as Youth Sunday, with the youth of the church in charge of the 10:50 a.m. worship service. At 12:30 p.m. a potluck dinner will conclude the festivities.

The youth of Magic Valley are invited to attend. Further information may be obtained by calling Mr. and Mrs. Scott Baumer, Youth Committee Chairpersons, at 733-4581.

QUESTION . . .

Please tell me about cremation.

ANSWER . . .

There is very little to distinguish a cremation-funeral from one involving earth burial or entombment. As casket and funeral are a part of all these services, and our minimum service is available for any one of them. Apart from our minimum we have many other funerals.

The present cost for cremation is $80.00. The ashes subsequently are buried, placed in a columbarium or disposed of otherwise.

How people care for their family members after death is one of their most personal matters. At the White Mortuary we know the proper procedure to follow for cremation, entombment of burial. The final choice in this regard rests entirely with the family.

Gunnerson also reported that the first-ever local gymnastics meet for the Sage team last week was an "overwhelming success."

The local team, participating in its first actual competition, scored a 6.95 average out of a possible 10 points. The team title went to Wings of Boise, while Sage placed sixth out of seven teams.

In her first meet, Sage gymnast 14-year old Katie McRoberts scored 29.55 in the all-around and just missed the necessary 30 to qualify for the state meet. She was the highest scorer for Sage.

BLM's wild horse roundup

BOISE — The Bureau of Land Management is still looking for qualified people to adopt wild horses which will be rounded up in Owyhee County on Monday and Tuesday.

BLM spokesman Michele Hudson said about 200 wild horses will be rounded up, but so far, only 50 applications for adoption have been received.

"We'd like to place the horses in this state," she said.

The horses will be rounded-up by helicopter and then held in a corral near Murphy, Idaho.

If qualified owners are not found for the horses, they will be shipped to a central holding area. One is near Burns, Ore. and the other one is in Texas.

Ms. Hudson said these adopting the horses should have some knowledge of horses and how to care for them along with a place to pasture them.

European golf edge to Faldo

WALTON HEATH, Eng. (UPI) — Bearded Tom Welkopf, festering fresh after a five week layoff, kept the pressure on Nick Faldo Friday to shave the 21 year-old Briton's lead to one stroke after 36 holes of the inaugural $200,000 European Open golf championship.

Welkopf, two strokes adrift overnight, turned in a 4 under par 69 over the 7,130-yard par 73 Walton Heath course for a two-round aggregate of 138.

Faldo, who carded a 70, was pulled back level after 35 year-old Welshman picked up five birdies in the first 11 holes. But the 63 American, 19th on the U.S. money list with $110,331 came to grief at the 517-yard par 5 14th, the longest hole on the course where he bogeyed following a wayward drive and a poor second shot which stranded him in the rough.

Faldo, two-putting from 25 yards, took his chance to grab a birdie four and go two up again, but Welkopf pulled one back at the next with a birdie three and the two front runners completed the final three holes in regulation figures.

"That trouble at the 14th was my only bad drive of the day," said Welkopf, winner of this year's Doral Eastern and joint favorite with Faldo to collect the $35,000 first prize.

"I have not played at all since the Irish Open five weeks ago," Welkopf said. "I have been on a hunting trip to the Yukon. I played much better than I thought I would after such a long layoff."

Watson still tied for lead

ST. NOM - LA-BRETECHE, France (UPI) — Tom Watson, of the United States, narrowly retained his share of the lead at the halfway stage of the eight-man $40,000 invitational golf tournament for the Lancome Trophy Friday.

His new co-leader at 139 is fellow American Lee Trevino and South African Gary Player is two strokes behind at 141.

Watson, the leading money winner this year with $380,000, again had serious problems with his putting in this second round missing four times from under five feet and failing to hole his share of critical ten putters.

It was around in 71, one under par, and must count himself fortunate to have kept his place at the head of the field.

Trevino reverted to an old putter in an attempt to remedy his lack of success on the greens. The switch was partially successful. His three under par 69 contained only 31 putts, although Trevino still feels he is a long way from his best form.

The Australian defending champion, Graham Marsh, had a lack of luck and slipped out of the joint lead down to sixth place with a 77.

Marsh had trouble with his swing and also could not hit approaches near the flag.

Pearson in 16th slot

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (UPI) — David Pearson, stalled a day-in qualifying for Sunday's American 500 stock car race because of engine failure, Friday took the 18th position for the race with a speed of 141.27.

It was the third fastest qualifying speed, behind Cale Yarborough and Donnie Allison, but Pearson will have to start in the eighth row because repairs could not be completed before Thursday's first day-of-qualifying.

Thompson's 34 paces Nuggets

By United Press International

David Thompson's 34 points helped Denver break open a tight contest in the fourth quarter and enabled the Nuggets to take a 126-117 post basketball victory Friday night over the New Jersey Nets.

The Nuggets shot 67 percent for the game, with George McGinnis scoring 19 points, Dan Issel 18 and Charlie Scott 17. Bernard King was high man for the Nets with 26 points, Ed Jordan added 22 and Eric Money 21.

The Nuggets scored the first eight points of the game before John Williamson hit with a jumper to get New Jersey on the board. After the first period, Denver led 32-25 but the Nets rallied, finally tying the score with 3:15 to go in the half on a driving field goal by Jan van Breda Kolff. The Nets led when Winford Bolnes connected to take a 64-43 halftime lead.

Bob Wilkerson's layup gave the Nuggets a 92-91 lead after three quarters before Denver scored the first five points of the final period, capped by Thompson's three-point play.

In other action, Nick Weatherpoon tallied 19 points and seven other San Diego players scored in double figures to lead the Clippers to a 110-94 victory Friday night over the Chicago Bulls.

Weatherpoon scored nine of his points in the third quarter as the Clippers raced to an 82-74 lead. They were never threatened in the final period.

San Diego led 54-42 at the half as Randy Smith scored 12 of his 17 points in the first two periods.

Lloyd Free and Kermil Washington each had 18 for San Diego, while Chicago's Artis Gilmore led all scorers with 27 points, and rookie Reggie Theus scored 21.

The loss was the second straight for Chicago.

In Thursday night play, New Orleans downed Boston 120-115 and Houston defeated Kansas City 108-103.

Despite a 37-point, 18-rebound effort which led the Jazz over the Celtics, "Truck" Robinson says he's not quite tuned up yet after holding out through two weeks of the pre-season.

"My timing is off just a little," Robinson said after leading the Jazz. "I'm not quite in shape yet. I'm still jumping a little early for rebounds."

With Robinson leading the way up front, New Orleans out-rebounded Boston 47-42 and dominated the boards at the offensive end.

Rose names teams under consideration

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Pete Rose Friday named five American League and three National League teams he would "consider" playing for, and singled out the Philadelphia Phillies as a team that would be ideal for him.

Rose, who has declared himself a free agent after unproductive contract negotiations with the Cincinnati Reds, listed the Boston Red Sox, California Angels, Kansas City Royals, Los Angeles Dodgers, New York Yankees, Philadelphia, San Diego Padres and Texas Rangers as teams he is willing to negotiate with after the Nov. 3 free agent draft.

"I can think of a couple of teams that I'd like less to go for than the other teams on the list," Rose said in a television interview. "I think the Philadelphia Phillies would be an idealistic team for me because of my association with some of the players on their ball club and the type of team they do have."

"See, some of those teams on that list are on that list because I feel I can still play the outfield. I'm not limited just to third base."

The 37-year-old switch hitter, who declared himself a free agent after the Reds failed to meet his contract demands, also said he would be "happy to have further talks" with the Reds, the only major league team he has played for in a 16-year career.

"As you know, I love playing baseball and could enjoy it anywhere, National or American League," Rose said in a prepared statement. "At this stage of my career, there are only certain teams on which my full worth would be realized and my ability would be best suited."

"Including every team wouldn't be realistic. There were two principle factors used in determining the teams. First, I'll be most helpful to a contending team. And, I'll be most helpful to an offensive team."

Rose said he had thought about which teams he would consider joining for some time, but noted he was not allowed under league rules to discuss the matter publicly until he declared himself a free agent.

Rose officially became a free agent Wednesday, making him eligible for the Nov. 3 draft. As many as 12 clubs in addition to the Reds can select Rose in the draft, and the Reds will be asked if they wish to negotiate with Rose also.

According to league rules, free agents must declare their intention of leaving the clubs they are with on Oct. 15 or in time during a 15-day period after the final World Series game. Interested clubs are permitted to talk to them, but not sign them.

Since clubs draft in reverse order of 1978 finish, the New York Mets will have first pick. Free agents may negotiate with any of the teams that select them. If a player remains unsigned by Feb. 1, a second free agent draft is held.

Nebraska's streak on line against Colorado

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
The fifth-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers may learn today that there's nothing worse than encountering a wounded Buffalo.

The odds don't favor the Colorado Buffaloes for an upset. They're missing from this week's college football ratings after a 24-20 loss to Oklahoma State, but the massive wave of upsets that caught them last Saturday could provide the springboard from which to retaliate.

Nebraska, like Colorado, is 5-1. The Huskers were a five-game winning streak after an opening 20-3 loss to Alabama and average 480 yards a game, third best in the nation.

But Coach Bill Mallory's Buffaloes are hurting. Tight end Bob-Nizolek has a knee injury, defensive tackle Mike Hagan a twisted knee and defensive back Mike Davis a thigh bruise.

Complicating matters is James Mayberry's ineffectual effort to produce a fourth straight 100-yard rushing game when Oklahoma State held him to 63 yards, is the fact Colorado hasn't beaten Nebraska since 1967.

Still, Mallory isn't discouraged.

"This is a good time to see what we're made of," says Mallory. "We have to regroup after the Oklahoma State loss and this will be a good test for our rushing game when Colorado beats Nebraska, then top-ranked Oklahoma stands an excellent chance of coasting to the Big Eight Conference championship. The unbeaten Sooners are off-the-board favorites in a league game against Iowa State. Oklahoma has a 16-game winning string going against Iowa State and this doesn't appear to be the Cyclones' year for an upset.

No. 2 Penn State, owner of a 14-game winning streak, longest among major colleges, hopes to use the strong arm of quarterback Chuck Fusina against Syracuse to lengthen the skin. Fusina, ranked 20th among the nation's leading passers, holds or shares 13th Penn State passing records. He has completed 77 of 135 passes this year for 979 yards.

Third-ranked Arkansas faces No. 8 Texas in a Southwest Conference game that has all the overtones of producing the ultimate champion in the league. Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz's only loss last year was to Texas. His Razorbacks are ninth in the nation in scoring, eighth against scoring and fourth in total defense. Texas has the ninth best rushing attack.

Ninth-ranked Michigan, one of five top 10 teams last week that met defeat, would like to regain stature against Big Ten rival Wisconsin. Last year, the Badgers owned a 5-0 record when they met Michigan. The Wolverines clubbed Wisconsin 56-6, and the Badgers were unable to win a game for the rest of the season.

In other games involving the elite rated teams, No. 4 plays Tennessee, sixth-ranked Maryland meets Wake Forest, No. 7 Southern California faces Oregon State and 10th rated UCLA goes against California.

Utah, BYU face 'must' situations in WAC title chase

By United Press International
College football coaches like to think every weekend of the season falls in the "must-win" category, but hardly anyone will be crying wolf today.

Resurgent Utah, 4-1, meets Wyoming, 2-3, and defending two-time

BYU for the WAC title.
Wyoming, 1-1 in the league after dumping San Diego State into the WAC cellar last week, has been plagued by an inconsistent offense all week of the season. But, the Cowboys lead the league in team defense and will be facing a Ute offense that has averaged 402 yards per game.

BYU, atop the league with a 2-0 mark and a 4-2 record overall, has shifted leaders in the middle of the campaign. Coach LeVell Edwards has decided to go with sophomore Jim McMahon at quarterback, benching junior Marc Wilson.

Wilson, who led the Cougars to the NCAA passing title a year ago, has passed for just two touchdowns this season and has thrown a league-leading 12 interceptions.

Wilson, who led the Cougars to the NCAA passing title a year ago, has passed for just two touchdowns this season and has thrown a league-leading 12 interceptions.

champion Brigham Young takes on Texas El Paso, 1-5, in a pair of Western Athletic Conference games that will play a major role in determining the league's representative in the Inaugural Holiday Bowl at San Diego in December.

And although not vital to their league aspirations, New Mexico, Colorado State and San Diego State all face a crossroads in their season in a trio of nonleague games. New Mexico, 3-3, meets rival New Mexico State, 3-3; Colorado State, 2-3, plays Nevada-Las Vegas, 2-3, and San Diego State, 1-3, meets Pacific, 3-3.

Coach Wayne Howard has just about completed his reconstruction project in Utah and the Utes appear headed for their first winning season in five years. But, Howard has a bigger goal in mind for the Utes, now 4-1 overall and 1-0 in the WAC.

"They can't afford to lose to us and if we drop it, we'll be fighting for our lives," Howard said. "I know how hard it is to win a game like this. We'll win it, I predict we'll be playing

The Navy's Blue Angels precision flying team performed in Albuquerque last weekend and the city's sports fans will probably spend most of this afternoon looking skyward again.

The attraction this time will be a pair of quarterbacks who are among the nation's hottest passers right now. New Mexico State's David Spriggs is the NCAA leader in total offense with a per game average of 313.3 yards per game while New Mexico's Brand Spriggs has thrown an average of 245.6 yards.

Spriggs also ranks third nationally in yardage with an average of 19 completions per game and Wright had his best passing day ever with a school record 432 yards against Texas Tech last week.

Vandals to play host to Montana State

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The University of Idaho Vandals, who finally won their first game of the year only last week, will have the honor of hosting today when they host top-ranked Montana State in a Big Sky Conference game.

The Bobcats, who are 6-0 on the season and 3-0 in conference play, are the nation's top-ranked 1-AA football team. MSU scored a 29-12 win over Idaho State last week.

Meanwhile, Idaho upset the University of Montana a homecoming last week with a 34-30 win over the Grizzlies.

It was the Vandals' first win in six starts and the first win coaching win for Jerry Davitch, who took over the job for the first time this season. Four of those losses were to Division I-A teams.

"Idaho is the best 1-5 team that we've seen," says rookie MSU Coach Sonny Lubick. "They have a physical football team and as good a club we'll play all season long today when we're directing the Idaho over offense will be quarterback Jay Goodenbour, who has completed 28 of 46 passes for 383 yards and three touchdowns.

Goodenbour's favorite receiver is Jet Taylor, who has caught 18 passes for 353 yards and one touchdown.

Primarily a ground oriented team, the Idaho rushing attack is led by freshman Terry Idler, who has 372 yards on 65 carries for a 5.7 average.

But Davitch, who called last week's win "outstanding," is fully aware of the Bobcat national standing and the task that lies ahead for his team.

"They know that if they can beat us, they have a tremendous opportunity to go on and win the Big Sky Conference title," says Davitch. "So, I think they are going to come in here with a lot of excitement and they will play very, very hard and with a lot of intensity."

Montana state fullback Delmar Jones has rushed for 721 yards this season, including a 118-yard performance against Idaho State. Jones has a 51-yard average.

People in sports 'Money not roses'

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
Tracy Austin, the 15-year-old tennis whiz who has turned professional, says she's looking forward to winning money instead of roses.

Miss Austin told a news conference at Los Angeles, Calif., Friday that she will leave for Europe Monday to make her professional debut in Stuttgart, West Germany Oct. 22-23.

The 5-foot-11 high school sophomore from Rolling Hills Estates, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles, is ranked No. 10 in the world in women's tennis.

Although she has played in pro tournaments in the past two years, as an amateur she could not accept prize money.

"If Austin had been a pro this year she would have earned $3,877 in prize money already."

"I feel that the decision to turn pro won't change my life," she said, "except instead of just getting roses I will be getting prize money."

She will play in another tournament in Tampa, Fla., Nov. 6-12 before returning to Southern California to play in the Championship Series in Palm Springs.

She reached the third round of Wimbledon this year before bowing out to Chris Evert. Two months later she defeated fourth-seeded Stee Barker in the U.S. Open but lost in the quarter-finals to Betty Stove.

Austin, who will turn 16 on Dec. 12, will be accompanied by a tutor.

Gunnar Nilsson, the 29-year-old Swedish Formula 1 driver, died Friday in London, after a nine-month fight against cancer, a hospital spokesman said.

Nilsson took part in 35 grand prix races in 1976 and 1977 as the No. 2 driver to Mario Andretti on Colin Chapman's Lotus team. His only F1 victory came in the 1977 Belgian Grand Prix.

American golfer Bob Clampett shot his third sub-par round — a one-under par 71 — to put the United States into an unbeatable 17-stroke lead over Australia and Canada Friday in the Eisenhower Cup Amateur Team Golf Championships at Pacific Harbor, Fiji.

Clampett's rounds of 69, 71, 71 on the tough 7,000 yard layout, gave him a 84 hole total of 211, five under par, and an eight stroke lead over New Zealander Geoff Clark in the race for individual honors.

Australia's only saving grace was a one-under-par 71 by the ill Peter Swenney. He is the only Aussie to crack the par barrier this week.

U.S. Open champion Jimmy Connors will compete in this year's Hong Kong Tennis Patrons' Classic, tournament officials announced Friday.

The tournament, which will be held from November 7-12, has a $75,000 purse.

Other world-ranked players expected to play include Ken Rosewall and Tony Roche of Australia and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Undeclared Steve Chase of Kelso, Wash., rallied in the final five rounds Thursday night in Portland, Ore., and defeated Joe Talamandz to capture the Northwest junior welterweight boxing title.

Talamandz, 137, San Jose, holds the California lightweight title, and gave Chase all he wanted until Chase pounded his left eye virtually shut in the sixth round. Chase, now with eight wins and two draws in his 10 pro starts, took control at that point and pulled out a close but unanimous decision.

Talamandz's record fell to 13-4-1.

The World Boxing Association has given lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama 90 days to defend his title against Colombia's Alfredo Pitalova.

The 90-day period will take effect as soon as Duran's current medical disability ends: He was granted a delay in defending the title due to a hand injury.

U. S. Promoter Bob Arum said he was eager to stage the Duran-Pitalova fight.

The convention elected Venezuela's Fernando Mandry Galdames WBA president for a second consecutive term, defeating former president Elias Cordoba of Panama.

Laurie Calloway, once the San Jose Earthquakes' most valuable player, will leave the coaching ranks to rejoin the North American Soccer League club in 1979.

General Manager Ben Relchmuth today said Calloway, the Quakes' top player in 1977 and head coach of the American Soccer League Southern California Lazers in 1978, also has signed a personal services contract with the club to assist the front office.

Australian Ken Rosewall, two weeks after his 44th birthday, outfoxed Phil Dent 16 years his junior Friday to sweep into the semi-final round of the Custom Credit Indoor Tennis Championships at Sydney, Australia.

Rosewall, beaten last year's finals by Jimmy Connors, hoodwinked Dent and a capacity crowd with his late comeback to win 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

In doubles matches Friday, Australia's five-time Wimbledon Doubles champions John Newcombe and Tony Roche downed Ken Rosewall and Arthur Ashe 7-6, 7-6 in the quarter finals and the Australian pair Col Dibley and Kim Warwick beat the Americans, Tom Gorman and Hank Pfister 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Upset Trojans face OSU

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The USC Trojans, still smarting after last weekend's shocking loss to Arizona State, seek to regain their stride today against Oregon State in the Coliseum.

The 207-Pacific 10 upset in Arizona snapped a six-game winning streak for the Trojans, now 4-1, but USC coach John Robinson said the loss shouldn't derail his seventh-ranked squad.

"We have to place the game in perspective," Robinson said. "Certainly it was a shocking experience and setback for us. But it was just one of those nights. We have to continue to maintain confidence in ourselves."

"We played some great football early in the year, especially against Alabama, and we're neither the great team that beat Alabama nor the almost horrendous team that lost to Arizona State. We're somewhere in between."

The Beavers, 1-3-1, drew a bye last week after upsetting Minnesota, 17-14, two weeks ago. They will be sparked by the return of fullback James Fields, the team's leading rusher in 1976 and 1977, who was sidelined for two games with a sprained ankle.

Oregon State also has several good receivers, led by junior split end Steve Coury. Coury leads the team in receptions this year with 13, and led the team last year with 36 catches.

Senior flanker Karl Hubberg caught seven passes for 86 yards against the Trojans last year.

Robinson has vivid memories of the game between the two schools last year in which the Trojans gained a narrow victory, 17-10, with the winning touchdown coming on a 50-yard, fourth-quarter pass.

"We have to win five straight conference games to get to the Rose Bowl," he said, "but our real goal is to beat Oregon State. We have to come back and play as well as we can. They gave us a lot of trouble last year."

Top passers to do battle

FULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Two of the nation's top passing quarterbacks square off against each other today when the Washington State Cougars host the Stanford Cardinals in a Pacific-10 football game.

Calling the signals for Stanford will be Steve Dils, who's completed 139 passes for 1,542 yards and 11 touchdowns so far this season. Dils leads the nation in completions with a 23.2 per game average.

On the other side will be Jack Thompson, who has completed 161 passes for 1,047 yards and nine touchdowns. Thompson has passed for more than 6,500 yards in his career at WSU.

Also on the line will be Stanford's desire to win its first conference game of the season, along with the Cougar's hopes of staying in the Pac-10 race.

Cal, UCLA battle for first

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford had a lot of luck competing passes to its three tight ends in a 27-26 loss to UCLA three weeks ago, so there is a good chance California will try the same tactic against the Bruins

Campbell surprise choice

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — There were more than a few surprised looks in early September when Roger Theder announced Rich Campbell would start at quarterback for the University of California against powerful Nebraska in the season opener.

After all, the sophomore handed the ball a meager 12 times as a freshman last year and the Golden Bears also had two experienced signal-callers on the squad in Gary Graumann and Chas Young.

But midway through the 1978 season, Campbell has proven he was the right choice. Statistically, he has ranked among the nation's top passers since his first varsity start, and has been instrumental in turning Cal into an offensive powerhouse.

"I could see Rich developing during spring practice, but I wasn't sure he had enough need take-charge attitude to be the No. 1 quarterback," Theder said recently. "I found out. As we began fall practice, I could see he had matured and there was no question in my mind that he was going to be our starter."

Since the Bears opened their season on the road — against Nebraska and Georgia Tech — followers were able to judge Campbell's performance only through the media.

They had to be impressed.

today in their fight for first place in the Pacific-10 Conference.

The game will be televised nationally — Cal's first such exposure in 10 years. Both teams are 5-1 overall but UCLA, which is favored by three points, leads the Pac-10 with a perfect 3-0 record. Cal is 2-0 but has won five in a row.

Lamar Lundy Jr. and Ron Moffett are California's rotating tight ends. While neither has been thrown to that, many times in six games thus far, both are geared for a busy afternoon against UCLA.

Part of California's assumed strategy of throwing to the tight ends probably is due to the loss of star wide receiver Floyd Eddings. With Eddings out, it seems logical UCLA will put a blanket on Holden Smith, the Bears' top wide receiver with 17 receptions for 448 yards and four touchdowns. That might leave Lundy and Moffett free for business.

"I sure hope it works out that way," said Lundy, son of the former Purdue and Los Angeles Rams defensive end. "We might just unleash the tight end on some people. The coaches haven't said anything specifically about it but we have a lot of tight end plays that we haven't used yet."

"We knew at the start of the season that opposing teams would have to double up on our wide receivers (Eddings and Smith)," said Moffett. "That would leave Lamar and me with single coverage from a linebacker. No linebacker, not even Jerry Robinson, can stay with us one-on-one."

To this point, Moffett has had seven receptions for 140 yards and Lundy six for 96. Both are big and strong and can block.

NCAA basketball finals may not be in Kingdome

SEATTLE (UPI) — The 1984 finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament may not be held in the Kingdome as it almost became a scheduling conflict, The Seattle Times has reported.

Kip Horsburgh, Mariners' executive director, said the baseball team might need the Kingdome for an exhibition game, a practice session or in the event the baseball season were to begin earlier than it now does.

Bowie Kuhn doesn't think umpires showed series' favoritism

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Friday absolved George Steinbrenner, the principal owner of the New York Yankees, from a critical remark charging that National League umpires in the World Series favored the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Steinbrenner said in published reports this week that the National League umpires at the World Series "leamed over backwards" in favor of the Los Angeles Dodgers. "National League umpires 'intimidated' American League umpires."

"I would totally disagree with any suggestion that our umpires show favoritism in the World Series or at any other time," Kuhn said in a statement released by the Commissioner's office. "While I strongly disagree with the umpires' decision to strike this past season, their integrity is beyond question. I have talked to George Steinbrenner and do not believe that he has a different point of view. He was emphatic that he did not intend to question the umpires' integrity — though obviously he does question whether particular decisions were right or wrong.

A spokesman for Kuhn said no action would be taken against Steinbrenner for the comments.

National League umpire Ed Vargo, the senior umpire in the major leagues and the senior member of the crew that worked the 1978 World Series, said Thursday he resented Steinbrenner's remarks and had contacted attorneys representing the Major League Umpires Association and Kuhn's office about the charges.

"That's like calling me a cheat," Vargo said. "Who is to question our integrity? I was shocked that a man of his character would say such a thing. He has to wake up and solve the problems he has with his team before worrying about the umpires."

Reinhardt opens lead in Houston golf classic

CROSBY, Texas (UPI) — Alexander Reinhardt, who has never won in three years on the LPGA tour, sank six birdie putts and twice chipped into the hole Friday to shoot an eight-under par 64 and open a wide lead in the first round of the $50,000 Houston Exchange Club's LPGA Classic.

Six strokes behind the leader were Donna Caponi Young, Patty Hayes, Jeri Lynn Britz and Amy Alcott, the tournament's defending champion. They all shot two-under 70s on the short, baked course at the Newport Yacht and Country Club.

Reinhardt's round tied the lowest score on the tour this year and it was four strokes better than her previous best round. Afterwards, she said her performance surprised her.

"As a matter of fact I was thinking this morning, why am I here? I am just tired. I wasn't in a good mood to play," she said.

The tournament is the last domestic stop on the LPGA this year, and many of the biggest tour winners did not attend.

Reinhardt, 25, is completing her third full year on the tour. She learned to play golf at the University of New Mexico and the coach her freshman year was Britz.

"I'm surprised that she and a lot of other people did not have low rounds today," Reinhardt said. The condition of the course made it think there would be a lot of good scores."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is another peanuts and bananas hand. South finds himself in four spades because he wanted to score the 150 point honor bonus. Had he passed three no-trump his partner would have had no problems.

West cashed his ace and king of diamonds and continued with a low one to force South to use up one of his trumps.

South overruled West's eight, cashed the ace and noted that East had started with two singletons.

He had nine top tricks and a 10th trick represented by the jack of hearts if he could just get back to his hand to cash it.

Finally, he figured out how he could handle the endgame. He ran the rest of his trumps. On the last trump he got to discard from dummy and proceeded to chuck the ace of clubs.

That ace represented a one trick loss on peanuts. Now South cashed dummy's king of hearts, the queen of hearts. Then he led the 10 of clubs. East took his king and had to give South two banana tricks with the queen of clubs and jack of hearts.
