

Wine as a medicine . . . in moderation, of course

By ANNEA FREUND
Dr. Y. Times Service
PARIS — A French handbook reporting on the medical uses of wine has quietly gone into its sixth edition and is turning into an international success as well.
 The book is Dr. Eberhard Armand Maury's "Saignez-vous par le Vin," somewhat misleadingly translated as "Wine is our best Medicine" in its American edition.
 Maury indeed never claimed that wine alone could cure any illness. What he has written is that wine can usefully contribute to recovery from a wide variety of ailments.
 And the author holds that wine is better for you than much of the tap water at our disposal, provided the wine is good and the dose is reasonable.
 The fact is that Maury, who says he drinks a liter of good wine every day and has done so all his life, looks a good ten years younger than his actual age.
 Maury's theory is simple. All wines have about 250 different ingredients, largely drawn from the minerals in the soil. Many such minerals — potassium, magnesium, sodium and iron — have various curative properties. Their proportions in wines vary with the soils on which they are grown.

 Wines can thus be reported in terms of the medicinal values they derive from their places of origin, Maury says and can be recommended as ancillary medication of this or that physical deficiency.
 Three examples:
 • Maury recommends Medoc to persons susceptible of allergic conditions because that wine contains natural potassium, and potassium tends towards controlling the retention of water involved in allergies.
 • Graves is similarly recommended to people suffering from anemia because of its iron content, which will help bring up the number of red blood cells, Maury says.
 • Sancerre and Pouilly are suggested as good against gallstones because of a dissolving property ascribed to the siccium they contain, he reports.
 Maury's listing also takes account of the presence of vitamins in wine.

Conditions and illnesses where Maury has found wines of use include angina, bronchitis, colitis, the flu and typhoid fever.
 Most unexpected — on Maury's list is the mention of diabetes. There the doctor suggests young red wines, because of their high vitamin content, apt to stipulating the combustion of sugar and fats. Also, apparently, young wines have a nutritive value that can usefully take the place of the forbidden starches.
 In Maury's classification, the wines with the most extensive curative properties are Bordeaux and Champagne.
 Champagne is notably recommended in cases of stomach aches, colic, chronic rheumatism, tuberculosis and old age.
 Medoc is recommended for people with bronchitis or suffering from nervous depression or diarrhea and Saint-Emilion against deacidification, excessive tiredness, eye fatigue and itching skin.
 The soothing qualities of wine have been known since biblical times, according to Maury. Noah planted a vine first thing after the flood when disembarking from his ark.

 And the great bacteriologist Louis Pasteur, after all, called wine "the best and healthiest among beverages."
 Maury's own interest in wine goes back quite simply to the fact he has always liked to drink it.
 As a general practitioner here in Paris for four decades, he frequently found that patients' morale went up sharply if upon his recommendation they switched from drinking water to taking wine, with an ensuing benefit to their physical condition as well.
 Maury then took up collecting various scientific communications on wine in the Bordeaux and other wine-growing areas, notably by members of an organization known as the Doctors' Association of Friends of Wine. He then completed these works with his own research.
 Maury rejects any accusation of encouraging alcoholism. He argues that no physician is responsible if a patient decides on his own on doubling the doses he has been prescribed.

Carter takes on inflation

Washington — President Carter has unveiled his long-awaited anti-inflation program, setting voluntary wage and price standards that give employers and employees incentives to follow them.

 In a nationally televised address Tuesday night, Carter also pledged to cut federal spending in the next year's fiscal budget as a means of reducing inflation. And he promised to reduce the federal budget deficit to "33 billion or less" — about half of what it was when he ran for office.
 Carter's program also includes plans to eliminate federal regulations that reduce competition and thus fuel rising prices and inflation. And he intends to oppose any further reduction in federal income taxes until inflation is under control. Such opposition does not apply, however, to the unassigned tax cut bill just passed by Congress.

 "I do not have all the answers," Carter told the nation. "Nobody does.

Whether our efforts are successful will finally depend on you as much as on me. I cannot guarantee our joint effort will succeed.
 "In fact, it is almost certain not to succeed if success means quick or dramatic change. These proposals, which give us a chance, also deserve a chance. If there is one thing I am asking of every American tonight, it is to give this plan a chance to work."
 Carter's anti-inflation program breaks down into three principal categories:
 • Government budget actions.
 • Changes in government regulation.
 • Voluntary action on wages and prices in the private sector.

ITT case troubling government

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge abruptly discharged the jury in the perjury trial of a former ITT official Tuesday and it appeared the government might have to drop its case in order to protect national security secrets.

Dollar drops to a new low

TOKYO (UPI) — The dollar plunged to a new low of 180.75 yen in Tokyo Wednesday, as traders, discouraged by President Carter's anti-inflation package, mounted heavy selling of U.S. currency.
 The dollar, opening the day at 182.30 compared with Tuesday's close of 182.25, remained unchanged until mid-morning.

Gem Valley shakes a bit

POCATELLO (UPI) — A mild earthquake rocked the Gem Valley of southern Idaho Tuesday, but caused no damage or injuries.

... and this is how they reacted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Bill Brock Tuesday called the timing of President Carter's anti-inflation announcement "blatantly political," and business and labor appeared cool to the new guidelines.
 But Democrats generally supported their president and Ernest Becker, president of the National Association of Home Builders, urged the nation's home builders to support Carter's wage-price guidelines.
 "With the support of the business community and organized labor and coupled with a reduction in federal spending and regulatory reform, I believe the guidelines can work," he said.
 Most labor leaders refused to comment immediately on the wage-price guidelines, indicating they intended to make statements over the next few days after studying the plan.

 Toasters President Frank Fitzsimmons has already decried any guidelines, saying members should be allowed to win improvements to offset past inflation, and many other labor leaders had criticized the plan in advance.
 William S. Sneath, chairman of the board of Union Carbide Corp., said "the use of wage and price guidelines ... is unwieldy, discriminatory and, even worse, has in the past usually proven to be little more than a way station to outright wage-and-price controls."
 House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said, "I have given my word to the president that I will be supporting his plan."

 Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said, "I think as a first step, it will get considerable Republican support."
Carter to sign tax-cut bill
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials said Tuesday President Carter has decided to sign the $18.8 billion tax cut bill passed in the closing hours of Congress.
 In his address to the nation outlining his anti-inflation steps, Carter hinted that he would sign the measure but did not say so directly.
 Officials said Carter's statement that he will oppose "any further reduction in federal income taxes until we have convincing prospects that inflation will be controlled." Is a reference to further reductions Congress may enact.

 "The bill is not what Carter had presented to the legislators, but is more palatable than some of the earlier versions that had worked their way through the legislative process."

On the campaign trail with Hansen

By JEFF SHER
 Times-News writer
 TWIN FALLS — Idaho's 2nd District Rep. George Hansen is betting that his district still loves a good conservative.
 While his Democratic opponent Stan Kress steals a page from the Republican book by calling for a balanced budget, Hansen, echoing a theme Kress has been pushing for months, said Monday he plans to campaign on his "positive" accomplishments for the final two weeks of the campaign.
 Because of the repeated criticism Hansen has weathered from his opponent and the news media for ineffectiveness in Congress, a poor voting record, and personal financial problems, one might expect Hansen to adopt a defensive posture.

 But Hansen, secure in the belief that his constituents are vitally concerned about gun control, the Panama Canal, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and other anti-big government issues, hopes to ride his victories in those conservat... causes
 "We have arrived on a number of issues," he stated, citing Pocatello plumber Bill Barlow's victory over OSHA and his own efforts to stop the Panama Canal treaties, which, he maintained, will be successful.
 Hansen has been criticized for being a one-issue candidate, for putting too much time into pet conservative causes, in particular his battle against

OSHA.
 In Twin Falls on a campaign swing Monday, Hansen said he concentrates on those issues because those are the issues his constituents are concerned about.
 He said surveys indicate almost 80 percent of his constituents oppose the "giveaway" of the Panama Canal, a similar percentage oppose gun control, and 60 percent are opposed to OSHA.
 "I don't fabricate them (the issues)," he stated, and added that those issues "are real considerations" which are "strong on peoples' minds," strong enough to be considered "emotional issues."
 Hansen said he is ready to stand before the electorate on the strength of his performance, because he feels his philosophy is "compatible" with that of a majority of the people of Idaho.

 "Do the people of Idaho want what I'm doing, or do they want a different direction?" Hansen said, summing up the choice facing the voters.
 Hansen expects his constituents will choose his direction by a margin of six to 10 percentage points.
 That is exactly the margin of victory Kress has said he expects.
 In fact, Kress has said that because Hansen is behind, he expects Hansen to launch a hard-hitting, anti-Kress media advertising campaign in the last two weeks of the race.
 Hansen Monday said his media advertising "won't mention anybody else (but himself)" and will deal only with his achievements and with some of the "special interest groups" which have opposed his reelection.

 He added, however, "If we get into a situation where somebody's sniping at us, we'll have to deal with it."
 Hansen's present game plan is to run on his record and to rely on his abilities as a campaigner. He is considered excellent in-person campaigner.
 Hansen said the goal of a street-pounding, hand-pumping campaign is simply to "meet as many people as you can."
 One-on-one meetings and eye contact with people "give them a chance to feel that they know you," he said.
 Hansen's explanation may not sound novel, but he said the difference in his approach and that of other politicians may be that he campaigns whenever he is in his home district.

George Hansen sat in on a political science class at CSI Tuesday morning

Related story on page B2

"It's kind of phony," he said, "just meeting people when you need something from them."
 Hansen's day Monday started at a 6:30 a.m. shift change at the Jensen Tipperware plant and ended at a fund-raising dinner for Allan Larsen at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls.
 An incident which occurred early in the morning at the Amalgamated Sugar Co. plant south of Twin Falls may have been indicative of why Hansen has a reputation for effective campaigning.
 In leaving the plant following a shift change, Hansen passed an office that minutes earlier had been empty. "I'll bet you a nickel that office is full of people now," he ventured, and took off in search of more potential votes.
 Several other times that day he went out of his way to shake the more hand.
 Two years ago he defeated Kress by less than 2,000 votes. How many of those voters know George Hansen only by his handshake is impossible to say, but he's not taking any chances.

Into Jesse James' coffin

Archaeologists began an examination of Jesse James' coffin Tuesday in Liberty, Mo., to try to find out more about the outlaw. James died in 1882, but according to records, his body was removed from his first grave in 1902 to a nearby

Kearney cemetery. No body was found Tuesday, but the men did find what appeared to be a bone from either a human foot or hand, and several clumps of hair. Those items are now being studied.

Vance returns with progress but no pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance returned from strategic arms limitation talks in Moscow Tuesday, achieving progress on two issues but failing to bring back the U.S.-Soviet pact he was sent to complete.

Asked whether the president was disturbed by Vance returning without a completed SALT pact, he replied, "No, he didn't express disappointment." The secretary said the United States hasn't "reached a final decision" yet on the next step in the protracted talks with the Soviet Union on a new SALT treaty.

Vance, accompanied by chief U.S. disarmament negotiator Paul Warnke, went immediately to the White House to brief President Carter on his 11 hours of talks with Soviet leaders.

Brooke probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The former special counsel to the Senate Ethics Committee charged Tuesday that Sen. Edward Brooke's lawyers altered check stubs and financial ledger entries to bring the records into line with Brooke's current testimony.

"We've reviewed the situation with the president and has been brought up to date and we'll be considering the situation from the various elements of the staff," Vance told reporters after speaking to Carter for an hour.

Treaty talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An American mediator met with Egyptian diplomats Tuesday in an attempt to answer Cairo's questions about the tentative treaty with Israel drawn up at the peace talks in Washington.

The senator and his lawyer, Charles Morin, denied there had been any attempt to conceal information or mislead the committee in its probe of Brooke's financial affairs.

Israeli and Egyptian economic and military experts worked on the details of subsidiary documents accompanying the proposed treaty to end three decades of hostility between the two nations.

Airline bill signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter sounded the death knell Tuesday for four decades of federal control of America's airlines, signing a deregulation bill that he predicted would spur inflation-fighting fare cuts.

Israelis disagree

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Israeli cabinet, meeting in one of the longest sessions in its 30-year history, failed again Tuesday to approve a U.S.-drafted peace treaty with Egypt and scheduled a third day of debate for Wednesday.

UN meeting urged

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Black African delegations Tuesday requested an urgent meeting of the Security Council to take action against South Africa for obstructing the creation of an independent Namibia in South West Africa.

"I hope the debate will end tomorrow and decisions will be taken," Prime Minister Menachem Begin told reporters after a seven-hour session Tuesday. "It is a long debate. There are most serious problems concerning the future of our nation."

The Cabinet Room signing ceremony opened the door to airline representatives who have camped out day and night at the Civil Aeronautics Board for almost a week to claim title to hundreds of unused air routes.

UFO sightings

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — The father of a missing pilot whose last radio message reported a strange space vehicle with blinking lights hovering near his plane said Tuesday creatures from another planet may have captured his son.

Argentina blackout

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — For the first time since World War II residents of Buenos Aires Tuesday turned off their lights to baring sirens in a black-out drill — a sign of rising war fever between Argentina and Chile.

The Australian government renewed its search for the Cessna aircraft that disappeared Saturday night and news accounts of the incident touched off a flurry of UFO sightings in the state of Victoria.

The blackout came on the day Argentine and Chilean diplomats meeting in Santiago began the final round of talks on the long-festering territorial dispute that marked the fears of possibly fighting.

Eilberg indicted

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Just two weeks short of the November elections, a federal grand jury indicted Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., Tuesday on conflict of interest charges in connection with an alleged $100,000 influence peddling scheme.

In Santiago, Chile, members of 11 religious denominations were holding a mass for peace in a downtown church at the same time the lights were to go off in most sections of northern Buenos Aires.

Campaigning with George Hansen

Twin Falls is an area where he can not afford to take chances.

It is said that in the 2nd District, a candidate need win only three of the four major cities in the district to win an election.

Hansen has traditionally done well in Idaho Falls and Twin Falls, while Pocatello has traditionally voted Democratic and the portion of Boise in the district is considered a Kress stronghold.

This year is different, Hansen said. He said due to the "semi-collapse" of the Democratic Party in Pocatello, he is running "better there than we ever have."

He also feels he is doing better in Boise, and he feels Allan Larsen will bring out a strong conservative vote in southeast Idaho, which will benefit him.

On the other hand, in the Republican primary Hansen lost six counties in the heavily Republican Magic Valley, including Twin Falls County, and it is uncertain how many of those anti-Hansen votes will hold steady in the general election.

Brazil: military trouble

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Barring unforeseen events, Joao Baptista Figueiredo will take office March 15 as the fifth general to hold the Brazilian presidency in a decade and a half of military government. Most Brazilians, perhaps including even a majority of the top brass in his own beloved armed forces, hope he will be the last.

But civilian government, an attention-grabbing issue ever since current President Ernesto Geisel picked Figueiredo as his successor, designate and charged him with the prosecution of the Geisel-inspired "redemocratization" program for Brazil, has lost force in recent weeks.

It has become apparent that Figueiredo's inauspicious problem will not be to please civilian politicians who have no real power, but to stem the rising crisis within the military hierarchy.

Several important and influential generals do not like Figueiredo and this is a serious situation in a regime which has attempted to bring the military virtues of consistency and stability to Brazilian political life while avoiding the factionalism that provokes the frequent barracks coups for which Latin America is notorious.

The first open break came a year ago when a retired Army Minister Gen. Silvio Frota, a leading presidential hopeful at the time and a "hardline" anti-Communist disenchanted with Geisel's "moderate line." Then Geisel, apparently after only minimum consultations within the high command, in January named Brazil's FBI, as his preferred presidential candidate, a virtual guarantee of eventual succession.

This move provoked the resignation of military cabinet chief Gen. Hugo Abreu, a Frota backer and bitter opponent of Figueiredo. On Oct. 2 an order of military arrest was put under 20 days military arrest for circulating literature among the high command charging the Geisel government departed from the political line inspired by the military "revolution" of 1964.

The latest crack in the military facade came Oct. 14 on the eve of indirect presidential elections, when opposition candidate Euler Bentes Monteiro, like Figueiredo a four-star general, denounced the Geisel government for capitalizing on the "basic" military values of the "discipline and the chain of command" by force feeding the Figueiredo candidate to a reluctant corps of general officers.

Backers of Monteiro, who had mischievous chances to win the election in the official party-dominated electoral college, billed the speech as a last-ditch attempt to woo support from Figueiredo, but it dealt largely with military problems unlikely to inspire sympathy from civilian politicians.

It was unclear for whom Monteiro spoke besides himself, but the speech pointed up what appears to be the shared characteristic of all the armed forces dissidents — opposition to the Geisel-Figueiredo way of doing business whether for personal, methodological or ideological reasons.

Thus Figueiredo's first order of business will probably be to either silence or appease military opponents, a project that may be difficult now that Geisel, as custom dictates, will depart the political scene, taking his apron strings with him and leaving his protégé to weather the storm alone.

However, Figueiredo's political line is so mushy that he should be able to accommodate virtually any military point of view, as long as it fulfills certain broad policy guidelines.

Chief among these is Figueiredo's commitment to gradual democratic change, perhaps culminating in free democratic elections, perhaps not. Monteiro wanted faster and more sweeping reforms and there have been increasing signs that many leaders in the armed forces are ready to move more quickly than Figueiredo.

The new president has a six-year term to serve and, if he can develop the sort of military based personal prestige and old-fashioned political clout that marked his predecessor, he should be able to use the years as he likes.

"FOR THE LAST TIME—WHO ARE THESE 'VOICES' YOU CLAIM TO HEAR?..."

James Reston

A pope for oppressed

WASHINGTON — With the election of the Pope John Paul II of Poland, the world's mocking question — "How many divisions does the pope have?" — takes on a different meaning.

The answer probably is: "Quite a few." In Poland, the new pontiff has not only divisions but an army of faithful. In the rest of Communist Eastern Europe, including not only Czechoslovakia and Hungary but East Germany, the temporal and political world of Communism is now probably going to have to deal with the spiritual world of Catholicism in different terms.

In his first formal address to the cardinals in the Sixtine Chapel, the new pope said that he wanted to reach out "to all people and to those who are oppressed by whatever injustices or discriminations — whether it has to do with economy, life in society, political life or the freedom of conscience..."

This takes on quite a few people not only in Eastern Europe but in the rest of the world. It did not come across as a provocation or challenge to the Communist leaders, but simply as a declaration of personal faith and duty.

But the political implications are not likely to be missed by the Communist leaders who have proclaimed their atheism but have never quite been able to stamp out religion or explain the mysteries of death to their surprised believers.

Poland didn't need a national pope to sustain the religious life of its people. Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski had held the ring and defended the faith against all invaders from East or West and the Polish armed forces, alone among Communist nations, had to have priests in their ranks.

Even President Edward Gierek of Poland, when my wife and I interviewed him last year, seemed to feel obliged to express his respect for the church.

His mother was a devout Roman Catholic, he said, who had rebuked him for his Communist politics, but they had agreed to disagree about this. Poland is a very old country and has learned to suffer and live with these things, he said.

There will probably be no major confrontations about all this in Eastern Europe, but there will undoubtedly be important changes in subtle ways.

Presumably, at some point, John Paul II will go home as the supreme pontiff to the ancient see of Krakow and there again proclaim his faith.

Time, space and politics as well as religion are bound to be affected by all this. John Paul II is just beyond his middle fifties — younger than most political leaders in the world. With luck, he will outlast them all and could even exercise his influence in the Roman church until the end of the century.

Twin Falls Globetrotters and O'Leary's gym

Unless they decide to form a traveling basketball show, something like the Twin Falls Globetrotters, the three Twin Falls county commissioners won't have much use for the old O'Leary Junior High School gymnasium.

But the commissioners will inherit the old basketball court if the county's purchase of O'Leary as an office building proceeds as planned.

Probably the county commissioners haven't thought much about how to use the O'Leary gym. Here are a few suggestions.

Rather than close off or tear up the old hardwood, the county would gain innumerable friends if it allowed the O'Leary gym to be used for recreation, specifically in conjunction with the Twin Falls city recreation program.

More than 1,000 children and adults participate in the Twin Falls city basketball program each winter and these basketball players (potential voters every one) sorely need more baskets and courts.

Chad Browning, the Twin Falls City Recreation Director, suggests the county commissioners draft a lease agreement with the city to maintain the O'Leary gym for recreation.

Probably the City of Twin Falls would also be willing to pay to seal off the gym from the rest of the school.

Other uses for the gym also come to mind.

The old gym also could be utilized as an exercise area for county law enforcement personnel or rented to the Boy Scouts, the YFCA, or commercial groups in Twin Falls County needing a large auditorium for a trade show.

The old O'Leary gym, dark and warped as it is, remains one of the few indoor recreation facilities in the county. Replete with fine softball fields, parks and playgrounds, Twin Falls County has few indoor basketball floors and auditoriums. And, in this age of tax revolt and the trimming of government spending, there seems small chance a new indoor facility will be built in Twin Falls County.

But people still want to play. The indoor facilities at the College of Southern Idaho are booked every year and public schools constantly are asked to open the doors to the school gyms for non-school purposes.

So, the old O'Leary gym, because of its size and function, shouldn't end up as a series of offices.

Its highest use wouldn't be to house more bureaucrats.

Too many basketball teams need the gym.

And think of it this way: If the gym stays in recreation it will play some small role in keeping down government growth.

Audience with Godfather

WASHINGTON — The Godfather was in a very good mood when I kissed his ring. He invited me to sit down in his office and offered me a cigar.

"What can I do for you?" he asked. "You have any enemies you want me to take care of? Does your son need to fix a Las Vegas? Would you like me to job a horse race for you?"

"No, Godfather. You asked to see me."

"That's right," he said. "I don't remember as well as I used to. Let's see now. Oh, yes. Tell me about Washington."

"It's okay, Godfather. No better or worse than usual."

"There's lots of crime down there now."

"Well, there seems to be more than usual. White-collar stuff. You know, federal employees ripping off the government; congressmen and senators taking money they shouldn't; contractors being accused with economy. I do mention the usual stuff of legitimate companies being indicted for violating every law in the book."

The Godfather said, "I imagine the FBI must be working day and night finding out who is doing what to whom down there."

"They're pretty busy, because every time a scandal breaks the President or Congress asks the FBI to investigate it. It gets them off the hook."

"That's what I figured," he said. "I was wondering why it was so quiet around here. My people said it was too quiet and something was up. But I said, 'Just read the papers. The Feds don't have time to fight organized crime. They get too much to do in Washington investigating their own people. They got nobody left to find out what we're up to.'"

"I think you're right, Godfather. I haven't heard one FBI man of Justice Department lawyer mention the mob since the Watergate scandal broke."

"I know I'm right. I used to have round-the-clock surveillance in front of my house. Four guys in a car at one time, and they took movies of everyone going in and out. Now the so-called in the family come on Thursdays and takes three Polaroid pictures, and you don't see him again for a month."

"Does it bother you, Godfather?"

"When you're in the big-time racketeers you like to be taken seriously. The so-called in the family are losing respect for me. They figure if the Feds aren't interested in what I'm up to, I can't be that important. How can I keep everyone in line if the Justice Department acts like I'm not a threat?"

"You have a good point," I said. "I want you to tell my boys — they only read the sports pages — why the Justice Department don't have time for people like us any more. I want you to explain that there's so much stealing going on in Washington, all the resources of the FBI have been mobilized to root out corruption in the government. That's why they've put people like me on the back burner. Tell 'em that the Justice Department still considers me a menace to society, but they just don't have the legal talent to find out what I'm up to."

"I'll do it, Godfather. After all it's the truth. There's just so many FBI agents to go around and they have to clean up their own backyard before they go picking on strangers."

"I want you to know I appreciate you doing this," the Godfather said. "I never forget a favor. Can I hijack a truckload of cigarettes for your wife?"

"Thank you, Godfather. But she just gave up smoking."

Symms spoke for Larsen with eye on 1980

TWIN FALLS — It may be 1978, but the campaign for 1980 has already begun.

Monday First District Congressman Steve Symms spoke here in Twin Falls at a fund raising dinner for Republican gubernatorial candidate Albin Polunski.

That's the kind of good will gesture politicians do for each other in election years, especially, as is the case with Larsen and Symms, when both are in the same party and hold similar ideological positions.

But anyone who thinks Symms is primarily concerned with Larsen's victory is fooling himself. Symms has his eye on 1980, when Democratic Senator Frank Church will be up for re-election.

Symms expects to be re-elected to his western Idaho congressional seat this year, and polls say it may be by a big margin. When that occurs his every move will be directed toward challenging the man conservatives most love to hate — Frank Church.

Symms was in Twin Falls because he will need the Republican votes here to make his race in 1980 successful. One way to have voters remember your name in 1980 is to begin telling it to them in 1978.

The 40-year-old Symms is betting his can do what no Republican has been able to accomplish in a quarter of a century. Since Frank Church first began campaigning in the early 1950s, he has defeated everything the Republicans have thrown at him.

In 1968, for instance, even though Church publicly advocated a highly unpopular anti-war position in the Senate, he humiliated hawkish Republican George Hansen in the Idaho general election. Church not only defeated Hansen that year, he racked up the second largest election victory of any Idaho Senatorial candidate ever on any opponent in the state's history.

It's doubtful Church will ever again be that vulnerable, and a look at the election statistics should give any Republican pause.

Symms has undoubtedly looked at those election statistics, but in his mind there is no doubt that although it will be a tough battle, he can separate Church from state.

Symms would be the strongest candidate Church has ever faced. And there are several factors that indicate a Symms challenge might indeed be successful.

Although Church has the reputation of a masterful campaigner, a candidate who remembers every voter's first name, Symms has shown he can match any Democrat handshake for handshake. At his best, Symms is a campaigning dynamo, charming, appealing and witty.

Then there's ideology. Symms believes his conservative Republican positions are more in tune with Idaho than the beliefs advanced by Church. Talk with any of the Symms' staff assistants and they'll tell you the state that gave Ronald Reagan his largest presidential primary election victory in 1976 isn't about to re-elect Frank Church in 1980.

Still, anyone who thinks defeating Frank Church will be easy needs a session with the psychiatrist.

By the 1980 election, Church will be second or third in seniority in the Senate. What that means is that at the relatively young age of 56 Church will possess almost unheard of power. In a Congress where senators sometimes serve into their 80s, that also means Church could be in that very rare, very powerful position for decades. It will be difficult for voters from what is traditionally the politically weak state of Idaho to lightly dismiss Church and his seniority.

Church also holds without challenge the title of being the best, "errand boy" lawmaker Idaho now has in Washington. The number of Idahoans who curse Church for his votes is immense. But when they need help in cutting through the bureaucracy, more often than not they turn to Church.

Church's staff is the best of the Idaho delegation, and they have a well-earned reputation of being able to deliver. One reason for Church's successful elections must be traced to the number of voters who, while in disagreement with his help and his votes, are grateful for his help in their struggle with the red tape of government.

Still, Symms may be the giant killer. Republicans have been dreaming about Shrewd and intelligent, he just may lead the GOP back to the senate seat they haven't held since 1952.

Most observers say the race, if and when it occurs, will be tough and close. My hunch is that the partisan on both sides will be passionately insisting their man is heading for a victory — but politely refusing to place any bets behind their predictions.

Big California fire finally runs out of fuel

Some hot spots remain in the wake of blaze's rampage of destruction

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An arson-caused fire that scorched 25,000 acres of brushland and destroyed or damaged more than 200 expensive homes finally ran out of fuel Tuesday on the Pacific beaches.

Officials reported 53 injuries in the blaze that raged down on the celebrity-studded Malibu community. Two people suffered serious burns in Southern California's largest fire of the year.

Firefighters had the Malibu fire 80 percent contained by nightfall. A second blaze that raged through the exclusive Pacific Palisades-Mandeville Canyon area and destroyed 24 homes and a church was also contained.

Fire officials reported several other fires scattered throughout Southern California were either contained or under control. In all flames craked through some 38,000 acres since Monday.

The Malibu blaze, which investigators said was deliberately set near Agoura about 30 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, virtually burned itself out for lack of fuel, helped by a drop in the winds and a bank of fog that brought moisture to the hot, dry air.

"All the flames have been knocked down," said Bill Hughuey, Los Angeles County fire information officer. "We are working on the perimeter, putting out hot spots."

Full containment was expected by 7 a.m. Wednesday, but Hughuey gave no estimate for control of the blaze. He said a fire-up of the desert-like Santa Ana winds could still whip up embers.

Hughuey said 181 homes were destroyed and 50 to 100 more were damaged. A total of 600 firefighters, including units from Ventura County, worked on the blaze, but some units were released at nightfall.

The blaze, which broke out Monday, ran wild south from Agoura across coastal mountain ridges and down canyons to the ocean, leaving an eerie

Smoke billows up in the Santa Monica Mountains, which separate the San Fernando Valley from the ocean UPI sight — charred rubble overlooking the beach.

The home of Jack Lemmon, one of many celebrities who live in the area, was damaged by flames. Lemmon was not home at the time and firefighters had to break in to save it from destruction, a department spokesman said.

Hundreds of residents fled the area, many carrying or leading all kinds of pets, from cats and dogs to horses and chickens.

The flames were capricious — six homes ranging in price up to $400,000 were destroyed along one private road, while homes 40 feet away and across the street were untouched.

"It's hard to describe the feeling," said Charles Hoffman, who valued his house at $250,000. "I'm more or less wandering around—there's nothing else to do. Everything is gone."

Mike Brustin lost a $375,000 home he had not lived in yet. He said he closed escrow only two weeks ago on his "little piece of paradise."

Initial reports said two people died in a head-on collision between two vehicles fleeing the flames, but the California Highway Patrol said later the report was false. There were no reported fatalities.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. declared a state of emergency and city fire Chief John Gerrard said he believed budget cuts, prompted by the Proposition 13 property-tax measure, had an impact on his department's ability to fight the blaze.

It was a busy day for firefighters throughout Southern California.

A blaze of suspicious origin at the outskirts of Yorba-Linda in Orange County charred 5,600 acres near the Aerojet-General Plant in Sleepy Hollow, forcing 200 residents out.

Firefighters expected to contain a 1,400-acre blaze in the Angeles National Forest by 6 p.m. Wednesday, with control expected by Thursday. No structures were burned, but damage to a watershed was estimated at $5 million.

AN EMPTY HOSE ... woman joins fire battle

Five killed, many hurt in Texas fire

BROOKSIDE VILLAGE, Texas (UPI) — A natural gas pipe buried under a trailer court exploded in a huge fireball early Tuesday, killing five persons and burning more than 40 others, some who fled in flaming night clothes.

Survivors said they thought the ominous hiss and roar which shattered their sleep around 3:30 a.m. was an earthquake, hurricane or airplane crash.

"It looked like hell to me," said

Pearland Fire Chief Lee Reagen. "It would be my imagination of what hell would look like when we got here. I think I'm gonna be a little bit better than I cause I sure don't want to go there."

Federal safety investigators were dispatched from nearby Houston to try to determine why the underground, 30-inch pipeline exploded, sending the fireball rolling through the Royal Mobile Trailer Court and leaving a crater 15 feet wide.

Others were treated and released. A policewoman was treated for a fractured toe she suffered while keeping spectators away from the blaze.

Almost 200 Atlantic City firefighters using 20 pieces of equipment fought the blaze, several blocks from the Resorts International Casino Hotel.

The cause of the fire was not immediately known. Ocean winds gusting to 30 mph, falling temperatures and heavy smoke hampered firefighters.

The blast destroyed more than 20 cars and leveled everything within 100 yards.

In addition to the five unidentified fatalities, more than 40 persons — many escaping in burning nightclothes — suffered injuries which required hospital treatment.

The most seriously burned were admitted to nearby Houston hospitals by U.S. Coast Guard helicopters. Several were reported in critical condition.

Two valves on the pipeline were capped and the fires were extinguished.

"I thought it was a hurricane at first, the noise was so loud," said trailer resident Eugene Dolan, 28. "The doors on my trailer were beginning to melt as we ran out. I fear we lost everything."

Several shops damaged in Atlantic City fire

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — A raging fire swept through 10 Boardwalk shops early Tuesday, burning for seven hours just blocks from this famous resort community's gambling casino.

Authorities said $2.5 million in property was destroyed between Kentucky and Illinois Avenue — made famous by the game Monopoly. Twelve firemen suffered smoke inhalation. Three were admitted to the Atlantic City Medical Center in satisfactory condition, while the others were treated and released. A policewoman was treated for a fractured toe she suffered while keeping spectators away from the blaze.

Almost 200 Atlantic City firefighters using 20 pieces of equipment fought the blaze, several blocks from the Resorts International Casino Hotel.

The cause of the fire was not immediately known. Ocean winds gusting to 30 mph, falling temperatures and heavy smoke hampered firefighters.

Suspended sentence for Rolling Stone

TORONTO (UPI) — Keith Richard, musical spirit of the Rolling Stones, Tuesday was given a year's suspended sentence for heroin possession and ordered to give a benefit performance for the blind.

Judge Lloyd Graburn put Richard on a year's probation and ruled he must continue treatment for heroin addiction at a private New York psychiatric clinic. Richard also was ordered to report twice a year to a probation officer and submit medical reports on his drug treatment. Shortly after arriving at his hotel from his court appearance, Richard telephoned the Stones' acoustic vocalist Mick Jagger in New York to begin planning the concert.

They began to plan the concert right away," said Paul Wasserman, the Stones' Los Angeles-based publicist. "It will probably be in March."

'Sensationalism' irks Betty Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford says she sometimes regrets she talked so openly about her battle against drugs and alcohol because it led to some painful, "sensationalized" press coverage.

"I think it's very misleading ... sensationalized, and does a disservice to me," she said. "Sometimes it gets to you and I begin to be sorry that I shared this experience."

discussing with delight her recent "face lift" operation. Told that Rosalynn Carter had said she might not have been so "forthcoming" in announcing such facial surgery, Mrs. Ford said, "I think the world is made up of all different kinds of people."

Alabama woman killed by lion

TALLASSEE, Ala. (UPI) — A 300-pound pet female lion, one of two chained outside the rural one-room shack of Margaret Haynie and her husband, broke its chain Tuesday and killed Mrs. Haynie.

jumped Mrs. Haynie from behind and mauled her. She was bitten in the neck, the head and on the leg and dragged about 100 yards into the woods in a rural area about seven miles south of Tallahassee.

Lion attacks pipeline worker

PLEASANTON, Texas (UPI) — A 250-pound African lion Tuesday jumped a fence and attacked a pipeline worker, dragging the man 15 to 20 feet while biting him on the hip and lower back.

Haynie said he awoke from a nap, discovered his wife was gone and walked outside. He saw that the lion was no longer chained and saw it standing over his wife's body. "I jumped on her (the lion)," Haynie said. "I started beating on her and stomping on her, but it didn't do any good. I really don't know how I kept from being mauled myself."

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Seven Americans have abandoned their attempt to climb Annapurna III because of illness and exhaustion and two members of a women's expedition failed in an assault on the tallest Annapurna peak, the Ministry of Tourism announced Tuesday.

Three of seven Americans in the assault on the 24,787-foot Annapurna III had to give up only 1,000 feet from the summit because of exhaustion. Team leader Steve Van Meter, a 23-year-old real estate agent from Santa Barbara, Calif., reported from the team base camp.

It took them all night to ascend the 3,600-foot face without Sherpa guides," Van Meter said. "The team was short of climbers because two members were ill."

The three climbers who attempt the assault were identified as Greg Sapp, a 22-year-old travel agent from Phoenix, Ariz.; Ed Conner, 36, an irrigation contractor from Santa Barbara, Calif.; and Werner Landry, a 31-year-old marine technologist from San Diego, Calif.

Can you spot the hidden bishop? He isn't really hiding; he's just reading a newspaper alone among hundreds of empty chairs following Pope John's Paul

'Nitpicking' regulations rubbed out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department Tuesday revoked nearly 1,000 "nitpicking" workplace safety regulations — scrapping, for example, the federal standard on U-shaped toilet seats.

The department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration revoked standards that ranged from the height at which fire extinguishers must be mounted to the minimum age requirements for certain jobs and the location of buildings in relation to public thoroughfares.

"This is just the beginning," said Assistant Labor Secretary Eula Bingham, who heads OSHA, at a news conference.

Cardiovascular deaths decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite an aging and growing population, the number of Americans who died of heart and blood vessel disease last year was the lowest since 1963, continuing a decline in the heart attack death rate that experts find hard to explain.

The new, tentative figures for 1977 were reported Tuesday by Dr. Robert Levy, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, at the opening of a two-day conference on the heart disease mortality trend and its possible causes.

Heart and blood vessel disease remains the nation's No. 1 killer, but Levy said the total number of cardiovascular deaths fell below the 1 million mark in 1975 and last year dropped to about 369,000 — 18,000 fewer deaths than in 1976.

"The decline since 1968 in coronary heart disease — in the heart attack death rate — has occurred in both men and women ... in every age range ... in both our minority and majority populations," Levy said.

Levy calculated that if the 1968 heart disease death rate had continued into 1976, 164,000 more Americans would have died of heart attacks in one year.

Dr. Sidney Blumenthal, the conference chairman from Sumers, N.Y., said some reasons for the decline are improved medical care — including specialized rescue and hospital coronary care units, and reductions in known risk factors such as smoking, diet, high blood pressure and a lack of exercise.

Dr. Fred Epstein of the University of Zurich, said there has not been much change in heart disease death rates for men in Canada, a distinct decline in Australia and tendencies toward decline in England.

Encephalitis under attack

Food and Drug Administration approves new anti-virus drug

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration Tuesday approved the first injectable drug for the treatment of a life-threatening virus, calling it a "major development in medicine."

The drug, called vidarabine, will be used to treat Herpes simplex virus encephalitis, a highly fatal infectious disease. The FDA estimates 1,000 people in the United States suffer from the disease at any given time.

The disease is fatal 70 percent of the time and frequently leaves survivors with brain damage.

The drug, which will be marketed under the trade name "Vira-A" by Parke, Davis and Co., Detroit, was tested by the National Institutes of Health.

"Everyone connected with the development and testing of vidarabine can take pride," said FDA

Commissioner Donald Kennedy. "The dramatic reduction of death in a formerly fatal disease marks a major development in medicine."

"Approval of this drug is particularly noteworthy because it holds out the hope that some day we will be able to successfully treat other viral diseases."

The agency said it is the first injectable drug ever approved by FDA for treatment of a life-threatening viral infection.

Dr. Robert Buchanan, director of clinical research for Parke, Davis, said, "Since this is the first parenteral (injectable) anti-viral drug, this means virus infections can now be treated with drugs or chemicals."

"We have all been taught in the past that there is no drug that can treat viral infections. But now we have one. "The second implication is that now that a drug can be used, second and third generation compounds already being identified in our laboratories can be developed, and we will see many other infections succumb to drug therapy."

Herpes is a common virus which can strike the body locally — such as an eye, mouth or genital infection — or generally throughout the body. The form which causes encephalitis is the most dangerous form.

The FDA in 1976 previously approved vidarabine as an ointment for treatment of Herpes eye infections. The only other anti-viral drug approved by FDA — also for topical application — is called idoxuridine.

Buchanan said the drug was developed in Parke, Davis labs and elsewhere and was first thought to be an anti-cancer drug. He said the anti-viral use of the drug was identified by his company.

Jury acquits 'Dr. X' in curare murder case

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — Dr. Mario E. Jascalevich, the New Jersey surgeon known for a time as "Dr. X," was acquitted Tuesday of charges he murdered three hospital patients with overdoses of the drug curare.

The trial of the 57-year-old Jascalevich — the longest criminal proceeding in New Jersey history — began last February and combined the mystery and drama of murder-by-poison with a constitutional confrontation that pitted the right of a free press against the right of a defendant to a fair trial.

DR. MARIO JASCALEVICH smiles after verdict.

The jury of six men and six women announced their verdict after only three hours of deliberations over two days, and the decision brought cheers and applause from spectators who jammed the courtroom.

"I'm very happy," Jascalevich said as he hugged his wife and thanked well-wishers who mobbed the defense table.

"Yes. It's a new beginning."

"Thank God," said Raymond Brown, the defense attorney who was given a standing ovation by spectators last week when he finished his summation to the jury.

"Thank God an innocent man was not convicted," Jascalevich's wife, Nora, said as she led their two preschool children into an office used by defense attorneys.

"He saved my life," said a middle-aged patient who was treated by Jascalevich several years ago. "He never took any money from me. He was a wonderful man. I couldn't believe this was happening to him."

Members of the jury said the state never had a case, had never proved that any murders were committed.

Christina Kelly, a copywriter from crimes committed," Captain said. Jascalevich, of Englewood Cliffs, had been under a cloud for the past three years, ever since New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber wrote a series of articles that led to the surgeon's indictment for murdering the patients at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell in 1965-66.

The stories, which helped re-open a 10-year-old case and brought Farber a $75,000 book contract, identified the Argentinian-born Jascalevich as "Dr. X" and captured the public imagination with references to the exotic drug, once used as an arrow-tip poison by South American Indians.

Defense lawyer Brown had charged Jascalevich was the innocent victim of "greedy and ambitious" men, including Farber and former-Bergen County prosecutor Joseph Woodcock who, he said, wanted to advance their careers at J. Jascalevich's expense.

Claiming his client was the victim of a frame-up, Brown contended that the patients died of natural causes coupled with medical neglect by other doctors at the hospital.

The prosecution claimed Jascalevich committed the murders in an attempt to discredit his colleagues at the hospital and thus further his own career.

The jury deliberated for only 45 minutes Monday night before being sequestered. Jascalevich, who practiced medicine in Jersey City, had originally been indicted on charges of killing five patients. But the trial judge ordered a directed verdict of acquittal on the first two counts in August because the state could not prove there was curare in two of the bodies.

Judge frees newsman Farber hour before verdict reached

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — New York Times Reporter Myron A. Farber, who spent 40 days in jail rather than reveal his sources for the "Doctor X" stories, was freed Tuesday as a jury was reaching its verdict acquitting the surgeon of murder.

Superior Court Judge Theodore Trautwein ruled it no longer made sense to keep Farber in jail while he appeals a subpoena for his notes on Dr. Mario Jascalevich.

"Where compliance becomes meaningless, continued commitment becomes meaningless," Trautwein said.

Trautwein also suspended a six-month jail term for criminal contempt because the U.S. Supreme Court is considering whether to hear the case.

The Times and Farber claim the subpoena was so broad it violated the First Amendment's free press guarantees and shield law protection of news sources.

Farber compiled some 4,000 pages of notes on the man he called "Doctor X" in stories on suspected curare poisonings at a small hospital. The stories helped reopen a 10-year-old case and brought Farber a $75,000 book contract.

The reporter left the Bergen County jail an hour before the jury announced its verdict in favor of Jascalevich, who was found innocent in the deaths of three patients at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell in 1965 and 1966.

Trautwein said he decided to release Farber because the trial testimony had been completed, and he summoned Farber and his lawyers to the courtroom after the jury had begun its three-hour deliberation.

Trautwein asked Farber if he had changed his mind about relinquishing the notes.

"No sir," Farber said.

The executive editor A. M. Rosenthal, who was in court, said the Farber case has cost the newspaper $1 million. The figure includes $285,000 in fines paid because Farber and the Times refused to comply with various court orders for the material.

Rosenthal said the precedent set by the fines and the court's power to fine may have a chilling effect on other newspapers.

"Many newspapers throughout the country may be worried about the precedents set by these fines," Rosenthal said.

Farber was jailed on three separate occasions, the first a seven-hour stay in July.

Harmony lies ahead for Taurians' homes; Sagitarians should heed their hunches

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is not the day to strut or attempt to impress others with big ideas but rather to think about ways to operate on a down-to-earth manner. Maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Bring your finest talents to the attention of prominent persons so that they can help you to commercialize on them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listening to ideas of close lies can bring more harmony. In the home now. Make the evening a happy one with congenials.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a good day for signing agreements of committing yourself to any future projects. Clear up whatever is in error.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to economize more at this time and build a reserve so that you need not worry about money in the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study family conditions and make plans for improvement. Make plans to have greater prosperity in the days ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Give more attention to any limitations you may have and eliminate them intelligently. Take no risks in money matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Separate financial affairs and dealings with friends for best results. Sidelstep one who has an eye on your assets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't do anything that could jeopardize your reputation in any way. Make sure your activities are well-organized.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can study new projects but don't neglect current ones. Your hunches are especially good at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Ceasing routine duties to pursue some new ideas is not advisable now. Study money matters and cut unnecessary expenses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't try to force allies to go along with your ideas exclusively or you could end up in a heap of trouble. Be logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Cooperate more with co-workers and gain their respect. Make the evening a happy one from a social standpoint.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will know how to find the right solution to problems of others, but teach to be objective, otherwise your progeny could get hurt in the process. There is a fine balance of mind and physical activity in this chart.

What's what

Who will be the first mobile-home-president?

Last of the Presidents to be born in a log cabin was James A. Garfield, you've read that. Almost 100 years ago, it was, when he served. And for a couple of generations before his term, the fact that a presidential candidate had been born in a log cabin was much touted in the political campaigns. Our Chief Prognosticator believes it's inevitable that this pattern will be repeated, but instead of a log cabin, some future presidential candidate will proudly proclaim himself to be the first such aspirant to be born in a mobile home. And thereafter our progeny will witness a whole string of mobile-home presidents. Just wait.

CHINESE

Q. "Can all the Chinese of every province in China understand all the Chinese languages in every province?"
A. If written, yes. If spoken, no. Variations of tone change the pronunciations considerably.

Q. "Can a 14-year-old boy legally marry a 13-year-old girl anywhere in this country?"

A. In New Hampshire, yes, with the permission of parents and a judge.

Q. "Do all cultures believe in a Supreme Being?"
A. Just about all. Except for the Australian aborigines and some Eskimos.

Q. "What's the smartest sort of bird?"
A. The crow, contend the birders.

Q. "Has there ever been a society where the women were completely in charge?"
A. The so-called matriarchal society? Historians say there's no record of any, ever.

BAGPIPE

You don't just go into a music store and buy a bagpipe off the shelf. A bagpipe is made to order. This comes to mind because a direct ask how much such an instrument costs. At least $600, sometimes much more.

The number of people who flew in and out of Chicago's O'Hare Airport last year is roughly equivalent to the populations of New York and California combined.

There are now 250 published books that purport to explain the truth about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Was none other than Lillian Day who said, "A lady is one who never shows her underwear unintentionally."

In Cuba, only youngsters under age 7 and grownups over age 60 are allowed fresh milk daily, I'm told.

Incumbents, 1% initiative look like Kootenai winners

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Four Idaho incumbents and the controversial 1 percent initiative are sure bets in Kootenai County, according to a poll conducted by four North Idaho College political science students. The poll asked registered voters their preferences on five political races as well as the tax initiative. Responses were gathered from 321 registered voters during a four-hour stint at the Coeur d'Alene Mall. Republican Sen. James McClure emerged as the top choice of area voters by capturing 172 votes while his opponent, Dwight Jensen, could only muster 88 supporters. The tally represented a 33 percent margin for McClure with 55 undecided. Other heavy favorites included Gov. John V. Evans, Rep. Steve Symms, Lt. Gov. William J. Murphy and the property tax measure. Perhaps the most interesting point to emerge from the poll was the apparent lack of party support for gubernatorial candidate Allan Larsen. Of those claiming to be Republican nearly 50 percent said they would vote for Evans rather than challenger Larsen despite party loyalties.

This gave Evans a 28.9 percent edge with 164 votes to Larsen's 80 and 47 undecided. No such split occurred among the Democratic rank and file. When asked "Do you support or oppose the 1 percent property tax initiative," 163 voters said they would while 87 voiced opposition and 42 were undecided — putting the initiative in front by a 29 percent margin. The pollsters said as many as 25 people were decided on the initiative and yet checked the undecided box on all five political races — indicating the tax measure will be the drawing card for a number of area voters.

GOP chairman rebukes Evans

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The state Republican chairman has charged Gov. John V. Evans is undermining the function of the Idaho Fair Campaign Practices Committee. "By raising a complaint in public," Dennis Olsen said, "he is trying to use the committee to get publicity and has in fact violated the rules for submission of a complaint."

Olsen was referring to Evans' filing a complaint with the week-old committee last week against GOP gubernatorial nominee Allan Larsen. The governor said Larsen was misrepresenting his position and skirting the truth in some of the Republican's television advertisements. "Democrat Chairman George Klein and I agreed that the committee should not be used for publicity purposes," Olsen said, "but rather should go about its business on the basis of privately-submitted complaints. That way the committee could act with careful deliberation and out of the limelight." Olsen said only the committee's final decision is meant to be made public. "The governor's public charges destroyed this objective and violated the rules of the committee."

Symms cites incentives

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Steve Symms said Tuesday there must be a return to a government that serves the people, not the government that runs the people. "If we are to have a future filled with hope," there are few incentives to excel. Real changes in the employment situation in our country can come only through the private sector because public service jobs must be financed by our tax dollars."

Symms said overregulation of business and industry add billions of dollars of added costs to products consumers buy every year and the government believes taxation is the way to solve all of the problems.

Symms told Borah High School government students in Boise they can have a great future if the government restores incentives to work, invest, save and produce. "Tax rates are now so high that

McClure said it is past the time to initiate and energy policy designed to increase domestic production and cut down foreign imports. He said certain provisions in the recently passed congressional energy package "were constructive, but those of the Carter administration thus far have been negative."

McClure hammers 'delay'

REXBURG (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said President Carter's "delay" in formulating "solid energy policies" has made the United States vulnerable.

McClure said it is past the time to initiate and energy policy designed to increase domestic production and cut down foreign imports.

"The lack of solid energy policies during the past several years has led to a dangerous dependence on foreign oil, a foreign trade balance that is approaching an intolerable level, and higher prices for foreign energy which has fanned inflation," McClure said. He said certain provisions in the recently passed congressional energy package "were constructive, but those of the Carter administration thus far have been negative."

Hansen says amendments gained vote

RUPERT (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen told audiences in Minidoka and Cassia counties Tuesday he was able to support the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 because it finally was amended to meet his objections. Hansen said that as an original sponsor of this expanded market concept, he was pleased the conference committee agreed with him and made substantive changes from the original House version which he had opposed.

He voted against the bill when it first passed the House, he said, because it gave special status to Red China at the expense of one of the United States' major trade partners, Taiwan, and because of its narrow scope of market assistance. The conference committee broadened the number of commodities to be included and added a stipulation that no export sale may be financed under the bill unless the sale will develop, expand or maintain the importing nation as a foreign market on a long-term basis for the commercial sale and export of U.S. agricultural commodities without displacing normal commercial sale.

Advocates attack Hansen's record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen's effectiveness as a congressman "is very limited," Congress Watch said Tuesday in releasing its profile of the Idaho Republican. Hansen has little success affecting crucial agricultural decisions and has spent more time supporting big business than watching out for the interests of his own constituents, said the organization, a public affairs advocacy group affiliated with Ralph Nader.

Citing Hansen's poor attendance record in the House, Congress Watch said he "devotes most of his energy to his role as a right-wing activist. Ultimately, he represents not so much his own district as his own far right ideology, to which the interest and needs of his district must bend." "Hansen avoids the work of Congress," the organization said. "He seems to perceive himself as a cutting edge for the radical right, not as a congressman working productively on serious legislative proposals."

Jordan receives pacemaker

BOISE (UPI) — Doctors at St. Luke's Hospital in Boise implanted a pacemaker into the heart of former U.S. Sen. Len B. Jordan Tuesday morning and his hospital spokesman called the operation a success.

Campbell said the pacemaker implantation was necessitated because of a heart block which caused Jordan to become dizzy.

The pacemaker was placed successfully and without complication," said Juanita Sahr, a spokesman for the hospital. "He is resting comfortably in satisfactory condition. They are calling the operation a success."

Another hospital spokesman said the operation was performed in the hospital's cardiac catheterization unit, as is customary, instead of in an operating room. She added "A lot of these operations are performed."

Jordan, who was governor of Idaho from 1951-1955, was appointed to the U.S. Senate Aug. 6, 1962. He was elected Nov. 6, 1962, re-elected in 1966, and retired in 1973.

He also was a member of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and the Joint Economic Committee.

INEL remains closed after leak

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Officials said the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will remain closed until Oct. 31 because of a radiation leak Oct. 17 that caused the evacuation of 50 plant personnel.

Some 1,200 workers have been furloughed by the shutdown. INEL spokesman Dick Blackledge said officials now are certain that a chain reaction in the plant's uranium separation process caused the leak.

No one was injured in the incident, which occurred during the night shift. Blackledge said inspectors were checking equipment and making sure the plant will be safe for reopening.

Rabies death may have come from cornea transplant

By STEVEN K. WAGNER
BOISE (UPI) — Health officials said a Boise woman who died of rabies two weeks ago may have contracted the disease through a corneal transplant and could be the first case of secondary transmission in medical history.

Her death came less than two months after she received the cornea of a Baker, Ore., man. The man's death still is being investigated, but state health officials said Tuesday he suffered from a nervous system disorder. The woman, whose death officially was attributed to rabies Monday, developed a nervous system disorder after receiving the man's cornea. "We have not definitely determined the man had rabies," said Rick Sager of the Central District Health Department. "But we have probable cause to believe that's how he died. We strongly suspect it and further tests may confirm it."

Sager said the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta has no record of anyone having ever contracted the disease through a secondary means. "It's always through an animal bite, or from a bat, or something like that. There has never been a known recorded case of secondary rabies."

The man died Aug. 20 in Boise's St. Alphonsus Hospital where he was flown from Oregon after developing the nervous system disorder. The next day the woman received the transplant. She was discharged Aug. 24 in satisfactory condition, but was readmitted to St. Alphonsus Hospital Sept. 27 after developing the nervous system symptoms. She died two weeks later.

Hospital officials suspected a correlation between the donor and the Boise woman, and an autopsy was performed Oct. 10. Specimens were taken of both victims and submitted to the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md. Rabies later was confirmed as the cause of the woman's death.

Sager said tests have given a strong indication the man also died of rabies.

Klein says Hansen misleads voters on grants

BOISE (UPI) — State Democratic Party Chairman George Klein charged Rep. George Hansen Tuesday with hypocrisy and misleading voters.

"When Pinocchio told a lie, his wooden nose grew and grew. George Hansen's announcement that Idaho will receive six grants from the (department) is correct. But what he doesn't bother to mention is that most of that funding was made available over its objections."

Klein said Hansen's announcement of the grants was aimed at misleading voters and making them think "George Hansen is actually working for those programs in Washington." Klein criticized Hansen for voting against continued funding of nursing programs, then "boldly" announcing a grant which will allow Idaho State University to establish a Master of Science program in nursing.

"If anyone sees George Hansen and thinks his nose is a little longer,"

Klein said, "perhaps we will have truth that the story of Pinocchio can come true for congressmen who try to mislead the voters."

U.S. Education official to speak

BOISE (UPI) — Dr. Richard L. Fairley, who heads the U.S. Department of Education program dealing with special problems of educationally deprived youngsters, will be featured speaker of a statewide conference on this topic Thursday in Boise.

The two-day conference is being sponsored by the Idaho Department of Education.

Skiing brought Idaho $35 million

BOISE (UPI) — Skiing contributed more than $35 million to Idaho's economy during the past season, Gov. John V. Evans said Tuesday.

Evans released results of a study conducted by the University of Idaho under a grant available to the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission. It was intended to show the effect of the skiing industry on the economy. "This report shows that skiing has grown during the past 30 to 40 years until it now is a major industry for Idaho," Evans said. "There is every indication the growth will continue."

Evans said the importance of the industry was demonstrated during the drought season of 1976-77 when lack of snow greatly curtailed skiing activities. "The short ski season that year made state officials and business leaders aware of the importance of the skiing industry," he said.

'Tax Clipper' tours Friday

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — State GOP Chairman Dennis Olsen said several Idaho Republican candidates will take a "Tax Clipper" campaign tour Friday.

Gubernatorial nominee Allan Larsen will lead the group in recognition of the GOP-designated "Tax Cut Day," according to Olsen. Stops will be made at Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Twin Falls, Boise, Nampa-Caldwell, and Lewiston.

"We've designated Oct. 27 as 'Tax Cut Day' because we think every Idahoan needs to be concerned about both the terrific taxes he's paying and the lack of services he's getting for the money," Olsen said.

Accompanying Larsen will be Phil Batt, candidate for lieutenant governor, attorney general hopeful Dave Leroy, and public instruction superintendent candidate Jerry Evans.

Death of plant worker accidental

NAMPA (UPI) — A Canyon County sheriff's investigator says the death of an 18-year-old Nampa man at Amalgamated Sugar Co. Friday still appears to have been an accident.

But Deputy Larry Grossman said he will continue his investigation into the death of Rick Lynn Chavez whose dismembered body was discovered by a co-worker at the plant early Friday.

Democrat leader endorses Kress

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, threw his support to 2nd District Democrat congressional candidate Stan Kress Tuesday, saying he is needed "to work effectively" in Washington.

"The 2nd District of Idaho needs Stan Kress in Washington, D.C., to work effectively on the issues that will be before the next Congress," Wright told the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Kress agreed. "The last Congress left a number of items of unfinished business that will have a direct impact on the lives of 2nd District residents," he said. "Resolving these issues will take a congressman who is dedicated to working effectively with his colleagues for the good of the district."

Champion astounds Hoople

Zounds! In what was described as the national "upset week" of the season — we had a truly amazing showing by this week's champion.

He missed but two and none of those misses came in the college games. DeVon Rulter Sr., Route Five, Twin Falls, was the man turning in that amazing schedule. He was incorrect on two high school games but was untested by the rest of you Magic Valley prognosticators.

I considered myself doing quite well when I missed five of the games. Of course, that 75 per cent ratio is a little off my norm and I am somewhat disappointed (Ed's note: Last week's was 75 per cent — negatively) but I was surprised when that wasn't up to snuff again. Egan! The Magic Valley predictors are amazing.

For his brilliant effort, Rulter receives the $10 first prize.

Second place Larry Bond of Shoshone deserves nearly as much homage as Rulter, however, as he skirted the 20 games with only three slips. He is alone for the second prize of $5.

Third place goes to that soccer coach of Bliss high school, Jerry Couch, who seldom lets a year go by without augmenting his income in this contest. He headed a list of honorable mentions who missed four.

These include Russ Cole of Twin Falls, Timothy Rice of Gooding, Tom Glasser of Filer, Jason Meyerhoeffer of Twin Falls, and five-missers Bob Tickner of Twin Falls and Fred Plankey of Twin Falls. (Egan! Father Plankey by now must have the entire family eligible for the contest.)

This week we don't have the exceptional games to choose from. In the Pac-10 and Big 10 it is the havoc against the heavyweights.

Comaneci faces defeat

STRASBOURG, France (UPI) — Romania's Olympic champion Nadia Comaneci faces defeat after the compulsory exercises of the 33-nation World Gymnastic championships Tuesday.

Two 17-year-old Soviet Union competitors, Maria Filatova and Natalia Shaposhnikova, have a 0.20 point lead over the Romanian girl, whose third place total of 38.90 points is shared with another Soviet competitor, Ilena Mouskhina, the European silver medalist.

Comaneci's growth of four inches and 22 pounds in two years since the Montreal Olympics has slightly affected her mobility.

Both Russians still have similar physiques to that which Comaneci possessed before she reached puberty.

But French Dr. Michel Leglise, a founder of the International Gymnastic Federation's medical commission, commenting Tuesday on speculation since Montreal that experienced Communist gymnasts were being artificially prevented from achieving puberty said: "Nothing can be proved and arresting someone's maturity would have detrimental side effects even to a sportswoman."

"Also, one can forecast which competitors are likely to have extremely slim frames as teenagers by taking into account hereditary and physical factors," he said.

The Romanians, who trail the Soviet Union team by 1.80 points, were helped by protests over the floor markings of Olympic fourth placer Theodora Ungureanu and Marinela Neaseu. Both were improved to 9.40 and 9.45 points respectively after officials examined a videotape of the movements.

But there was no question of the Romanians repeating last year's notorious waltz at the European championship in Czechoslovakia. The technical director for the tournament, Arthur Magakian, said, "There was no threat of the Romanians withdrawing. There will be no second Prague here."

The highest scorer for the U.S. team was Kathy Johnson with 37.85, including an excellent 9.60 on the floor. The 19-year-old from Belcher, La., was unlucky not to score more highly, but was marked down by the judges.

The next best scorer was Rhonda Schwandt, a 15-year-old from Los Alamitos, Calif., with a best of 37.25 points.

Meanwhile, Comaneci and the rest of the Romanian team have accepted invitations to compete against the Soviet Union at the 1979 Spartakiade multi-sport tournament, International Gymnastics Federation chairman Yuri Titov said.

The 6-day gymnastics event will be part of the invitational tournament which is being billed as the pre-Olympics with 32 other nations taking part.

Unbeaten Maryland facing crucial week

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Maryland, 7-0 with an 11-game winning streak and ranked No. 5 nationally, but Coach Jerry Claiborne sees things getting a lot tighter before they get better for the Terrapins.

The Terrapins lead the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 3-0 mark, just ahead of Clemson's 2-0. The two appear headed for a Nov. 18 showdown at Byrd Stadium, but this week is crucial.

Maryland visits Duke Saturday while Clemson is at North Carolina State, whose only loss in three ACC games was at Maryland.

"Duke (3-3) hasn't lost at home and hasn't won on the road," Claiborne said Tuesday. "There's something about being at home that brings out the best in (the Blue Devils). They've been burned by the big play on defense, but no one, not even Michigan, has been able to take the ball and drive it on them."

"I don't know if that's good or not. We haven't had one of those big plays in a while. We had receivers open last Saturday (a 39-0 win over Wake Forest) but didn't get the ball to them. Part of the time, (quarterback Tim) O'Hara didn't see them and other times he was under pressure and didn't have time to look. But we need one of those plays, a quick touchdown to pick us up."

Duke will be without senior quarterback Mike Dunn who reinjured his right thumb in last Saturday's 29-8 loss at Clemson. Dunn missed the first three games after chipping a bone in the thumb.

Carew not headed for Boston

By United Press International

Relief pitcher Bill Campbell says he doesn't think Minnesota Twins first baseman Rod Carew will join the Red Sox when he becomes a free agent due to Boston's racial climate.

"I don't think Carew will come to Boston," Campbell said Monday night. "Boston is not a racially suitable city."

Campbell addressed a meeting of the World Series Club of Hartford.

Carew had expressed a desire to leave Minnesota this summer because of salary and other differences with Twins owner Calvin Griffith, but the club could not work a deal by baseball's June 15 trading deadline.

Next season, Carew, winner of the American League batting title, will be in the option year of his contract and eligible for next winter's free agent draft. Campbell added he thinks Boston's racial climate is affecting Boston Sox slugger Jim Rice. "If Fred Lynn had had the kind of year Jim had, the man would have been put on a pedestal and taken through Kenmore Square," Campbell said. "You don't hear too much about Jim Rice up there."

Campbell said he had spoken with Rice Sunday. He predicted Boston's top batter would become a free agent before the season if the club does not make him a contract offer by April.

"They still haven't approached Rice. If they don't approach him by the start of next year, he's gone. He'll play somewhere else," Campbell said. "You have to look around with all that money out there."

Campbell, bothered by an elbow injury most of last season, finished last year leading two straight games to the Houston Cougars and Baylor Bears. A&M did not score a touchdown in either game.

Miller said he tried to talk Bellard out of quitting. In a prepared statement Bellard said: "Under the existing circumstances, I feel that it is best that I resign my position as director of athletics and as the football coach of this university."

"Texas A&M is a great university and will always have a special place in my heart. To all the great people who have supported our program, I say thank you for loyalty and friendship."

The Montreal Expos announced Tuesday that 38-year-old left-hander Woodie Fryman had signed a two-year contract which would carry him through the 1980 season.

Fryman, who joined Montreal from the Chicago Cubs on June 12, had a 5-7 record this season and an ERA of 3.60 in 14 appearances. His highlight was a one-hit no-run effort on July 16.

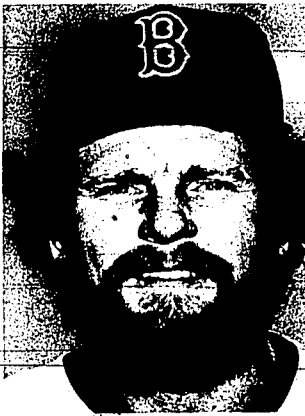

Fryman, who also played with the Expos in 1975 and 1976, is Montreal's top left-hander with 27 victories. Terms of the contract were not revealed.

The New York Giants placed starting offensive tackle Ron Mikolajczyk on the injured reserve list Tuesday because of torn ligaments in the injured knee, the team announced.

A Giants spokesman said Mikolajczyk, who was injured in Sunday's victory over the Washington Redskins and will be lost for the rest of the season, would undergo surgery Wednesday by Dr. John Marshall at New York's Hospital for Special Surgery.

To replace Mikolajczyk on the roster, the Giants signed veteran strong safety Maurice Tyler, a seven-year veteran released by the New York Jets on their final cut this season. Tyler, 6-foot-1 and 194 pounds, previously played with Detroit, San Diego, Buffalo and Denver.

Mikolajczyk was hurt with 7:30 left in the game when he was hit by Washington linebacker Brad Dusek on a running play. Rookie Gordon King, the Giants' No. 1 draft choice, will start at right tackle Sunday against the New Orleans Saints.

Bill Campbell

The Houston Rockets Tuesday activated guard Mike Newlin and said he could play against the New York Knicks Wednesday.

Newlin moved into a starting role this preseason after the departure of John Lucas, but he broke a bone in his right hand Sept. 17. He is returning to the team sooner than expected.

To make room on the roster, the Rockets placed forward Jackie Dorsey on the injured list. Dorsey recently underwent an operation on an infected lymph gland. He will be inactive at least five games.

A lineup of sports and political figures has agreed to attend the state's first Ski Ball, planned Nov. 4 to raise money to train Vermont's young competitive racers, who have traditionally dominated the U.S. and Olympic ski teams.

Officials say Olympic medalist Billy Kidd, Barbara Cochran and Bill Koch have confirmed they will attend, as have seven past and present cross-country stars and 10 alpine standouts — including skier-turned-TV personality Suzie Chaffee of Rutland.

Policlincians expected include Gov. Richard Snelling; Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., and Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., a spokesman said Tuesday.

Ron Guidry won pitching honors and Jim Rice was named player of the year in a poll of their American League teammates. The Sporting News said Tuesday.

Guidry posted a 25-5 record with a 1.74 ERA to lead the New York Yankees to the World Series and win the pitcher of the year award. Rice led the league with 214 hits, 46 homers and 139 runs batted in for the Boston Red Sox.

The 11-man All-Star squad included Rod Carew of Milwaukee at first base, Frank White of Kansas City at second, Craig Nettles of New York at third and Robin Young of Milwaukee at shortstop.

The outfield consisted of Rice, Larry Hise of Milwaukee and Fred Lynn of the Red Sox. Jimmy Slatberg of the Texas Rangers was the catcher chosen, Detroit's Rusty Staub was the designated hitter and Baltimore's Jim Palmer was the right-handed pitcher.

Atlanta Braves Manager Bobby Cox completed his reorganized coaching staff Tuesday by naming former Los Angeles Dodgers bullpen coach Mark Cresse to the same post with the Braves.

Cresse, 27 and a native of Seal Beach, Calif., is the third new coach hired by the Braves, who retained only pitching coach Cloyd Boyer from the staff of the 1978 Braves who finished last in the National League West for the third straight year.

Other new coaches are Tommy Aaron, younger brother of home run king Hank Aaron, who managed the Braves AAA Richmond (Va.) farm club to the International League championship, and Bobby Dews, who managed the Braves AA Savannah (Ga.) farm club that made it to the Southern League playoffs.

Giants know road to playoffs still bumpy

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI)

The euphoria of Sunday's big victory over Washington has begun to fade, leaving the New York Giants with some serious problems blocking the path to their first playoff berth since 1963.

At the season's halfway point, the Giants' 5-3 record is their best since 1972, the last time they finished with a winning record (8-6). If the season had ended Sunday, the Giants would have qualified for the playoffs as the NFC's second wild card team.

"I'm almost scared of our success," said veteran defensive end Jack Gregory after the Giants' 17-6 triumph over the Redskins. "It's been so long since our last winner. I get cold chills just thinking about what's happening to us."

"I'll tell you something," added Washington quarterback Joe Theismann, who was intercepted three times by the Giants, "this is a hell of a team... a damned good team."

It is also a team with serious injuries and five of its remaining eight games on the road, where the Giants often look like strangers in a strange land. They play the first of three straight road games Sunday in New Orleans. The Saints, coming off an upset victory at Los Angeles and usually tough at home, are 1-point favorites.

The Giants have been much more successful at home since moving into their new stadium in 1976. The one defeat this year that still gnaws at them was a 23-20 loss at Atlanta Oct. 1 in which the Giants led 14-0 at one point. The other two losses were to Dallas. Four of New York's victories have been at home.

"I don't know why, but we don't have that same enthusiasm on the road we have at home," said defensive tackle Gary Jeter. "We've got to start proving we can win on the road."

The silver lining in the Giants' remaining schedule is they play only one team — Los Angeles — which reached the playoffs last year. Besides New Orleans, the Giants take on St. Louis and Philadelphia twice each, Buffalo, Washington and the Rams.

Of more immediate consequence are the injuries suffered Sunday that put two starters out for the season. Strong safety Beasley Reece broke his left fibula in the first quarter against the Redskins. Right cornerback RAY RHOODES missed the Redskins game with a pinched nerve in his neck and still had his arm in a sling Monday. His status for the Saints is undetermined.

Unfortunately, the Giants have been looking to bolster their secondary and Tuesday signed strong safety Maurice Tyler, a seven-year veteran released by the New York Jets on the final cut this season. Tyler previously played for Detroit, San Diego, Buffalo and Denver before joining the Jets in 1977.

Another serious injury against the Redskins struck down offensive right tackle Ron Mikolajczyk, who was placed on injured reserve Tuesday with torn ligaments in his right knee and is out for the season. He was to undergo surgery Wednesday.

"It's a shame," said Giants Coach John McVay. "Mik was playing so well."

Mikolajczyk's injury opens a spot for No. 1 draft choice Gordon King, who's been unimpressive in the brief action he's seen so far.

Steelers feel loss might help

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — It's just possible that the Pittsburgh Steelers' first loss of the season was a blessing in disguise.

At least that's how Pittsburgh middle linebacker Jack Lambert and Coach Chuck Noll are trying to look at the Steelers' 24-17 loss Monday night to their toughest AFC National Division rival this season, the Houston Oilers.

"I never like to lose, I'll tell you," Lambert said after the Oilers stopped two Pittsburgh scoring drives deep in Houston territory in the last four minutes to gain the victory. "But some good may come out of this."

"I think some of us were starting to think we couldn't be beat. This really may be advantageous. The undefeated business is over with, that's for sure."

Noll echoed Lambert's statements. "As far as I'm concerned, I hope this works as a springboard for our football team," Noll said.

Pittsburgh was the last remaining unbeaten team in the NFL going into the nationally televised game at Three Rivers Stadium following Los Angeles' loss to New Orleans Sunday.

And the Steelers had been expected to retain that distinction since they went into the game playing virtually flawless football.

But their playoff Monday night was far from perfect; penalties against them gave the Oilers' rookie running back Earl Campbell the chance to score his third and winning touchdown. Botched communication on plays being sent in from the coaches cost the offense two timeouts that would have come in handy in their final two attempts to score game-tying touchdowns. Bradshaw failed to see running back Franco Harris standing alone in the end zone on the Steelers' final play of the game, when Bradshaw instead bounced a pass on the ground in front of Lynn Swann at the goal line.

Against other opponents, the Steelers might have been able to survive their errors and erratic offense, but the Oilers were too finely tuned to permit that. Their offense was perfectly balanced between passing (129 yards) by quarterback Dan Pastorini and 163 yards rushing, 83 of them by Campbell.

"Our whole football team played well," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips. "It takes a lot of character to play them. Pittsburgh has a great team. It's an honor to play them."

"I said it before — nobody (in the division) is going to catch them in the type of team they've got, but we're going to try like hell."

The win left the Oilers 4-4 on the season, keeping alive their hopes of either catching the Steelers or earning a wild-card berth to the playoffs.

NL chief demands apology

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charles Feeney, president of the National League, Tuesday called for an apology from George Steinbrenner over critical statements made by the New York Yankees' principal owner about the umpiring in the World Series.

After the Yankees won the World Series in six games over the Los Angeles Dodgers, Steinbrenner accused the National League umpires of intimidating the American League umpires and making favorable calls for the National League. Steinbrenner also said there should be a better method of selection devised in choosing World Series umpires.

Feeney took exception to Steinbrenner's remarks. "During the World Series last week, the umpiring was the subject of much criticism upon the integrity of National League umpires."

"These statements were patently irresponsible and to dignify them too much would be unnecessary credence. However, it should be noted that we feel the NL umpires are the very best officials in all of sport; and obviously the honesty of umpires, which has never been questioned in the long history of the game, is the very foundation of their profession.

To question this shows a surprising lack of understanding of the need and of baseball in general. It would seem that an apology is in order."

Record-breaking form

Wichita State kicker Joe Williams and holder Bryan Williams practice a soccer-style field goal form that was good last Saturday for a 67-yarder against Southern Illinois.

Williams, a junior college transfer from Mississippi Gulf Coast, nine for 16 in field goals this year.

Saints' defense spurs team

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — New Orleans Saints' coach Dick Nolan likes to say it is not his flex defense that has miraculously cured — at least temporarily — what once was the worst defense in the National Football League. Nolan, who created his mystical and often misunderstood defense in his system as a sharp understudy to Tom Landry at Dallas during the 1960s, has been smiling secretly the last two weeks while his defense held San Francisco and Los Angeles to a total of 10 points in two West Coast wins.

"When you get a little success with something it brings confidence," Nolan said Tuesday. "(Safety) Ray Brown is the only new face in our defense. All the guys are set in one spot."

"It's not the flex and it's not the flexers, what has brought the most recent success? "A lot of it has to do with the individuals," Nolan said. "There are great defensive teams who use the three-man front. The big thing is belief in a philosophy. If you have 15 men against 11, and if those 15 players don't believe in the system, the 11 could beat your brains out."

season when the Saints yielded more points than any other in the NFL — 336. At the news conference announcing Nolan's hiring, Saints' owner John Mecom, wagged his finger at former head coach Hank Stram and said he shunned Nolan aside, not allowing him to make defensive suggestions.

NFL players show 'shrinking' trend

NEW YORK (UPI) — Disproving the general assumption that pro football players are significantly bigger than their earlier counterparts, the NFL released figures Tuesday showing the average NFL player today is shorter and lighter than the average player 10 years ago.

In 1968 NFL pros averaged 6-0.88 and 209.84 pounds. The tallest teams this year on opening day were the Cleveland Browns and Seattle Seahawks, both averaging 6-2.6. The shortest team was St. Louis at 6-1.4. The heaviest club was Cincinnati at 225.09, the lightest Atlanta at 217.57.

Phillips enjoys win

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coach Bum Phillips Tuesday categorized his Houston Oilers' upset of the Pittsburgh Steelers as the most satisfying of his five-year tenure with the team.

Asked where the win ranked among his many victories, he said, "The all time, all time, number one. We played our best football game in the five years I've been here, and against the best football team in this time."

Bobcats stay No. 1

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Montana State retained its top rating in a weekly National Collegiate Athletic Association poll in Division I-AA while Winston-Salem (N.C.) stayed on top of Division II, and Minnesota-Morris kept its top position in Division III.

Asked where the win ranked among his many victories, he said, "The all time, all time, number one. We played our best football game in the five years I've been here, and against the best football team in this time."

Spurs run to 132-109 victory over Celtics

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — George Gervin scored 28 points and Larry Kenon added 22 to lead the San Antonio Spurs to a 132-109 NBA victory over the Boston Celtics Tuesday.

next 12 shots from the field to top all scorers with 28 points and spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 122-104 NBA victory over the New Orleans Jazz.

Kings down Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI) — Odis Birdsong scored 19 of his 24 points and Scottie MacLeod added 16 points Tuesday night to lead the Kansas City Kings to a comeback 123-117 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

Knicks top Hawks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ray Williams scored 23 points and Marvin Webster added 20 and some strong rebounding Tuesday night to lead the New York Knicks to a 113-109 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Utah gas bomb suit delayed

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Gov. Scott Matheson says he won't file a lawsuit to block the shipment of 896 Wetsys nerve gas bombs until Nov. 6 — a new deadline given him by the Army to comment on the move.

Matheson told a news conference Tuesday he considered the Army's proposal to fly the bombs from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver to the Tooele Army Depot in Utah a threat to the health and safety of the people of the state.

The governor had planned to file the suit earlier but held off until he received an additional report from the Army.

The report from Undersecretary of Defense Gerald P. Dinneen came Tuesday and Matheson said it contained nothing he hadn't already learned from information given him three weeks ago by Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano. But it did offer the governor an opportunity to make additional comment.

"I do not believe any effort I undertake or information I submit will change the outcome. But I feel it's important to follow the rules," the governor said.

He added that a suit aimed at obtaining a federal injunction against the move was already prepared and he was now in the process of contacting expert witnesses to testify about the dangers involved.

The governor said he will challenge the move on grounds that the Army had not prepared an adequate environmental impact statement.

He has repeatedly said it can transfer the bombs in complete safety from their present location.

More dams advocated

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — More dams must be built on the Columbia River system to avoid future water shortages, Brig. Gen. Richard M. Wells, division engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, says.

"If we had more storage capacity we could capture more of the spring runoff and slowly release it the rest of the year," said Wells, who three months ago became division engineer for the corps' North Pacific Division.

He said the governors in the states in his region will bear the greatest responsibility in future years because they will have to decide on how best to use water from the Columbia River system that must be shared.

"Everyone recognizes that water resources are limited and what you take I can't have," Wells said. The corps last year proposed 25 potential sites for constructing dams and reservoirs along the Columbia and its tributaries, including three in Oregon.

Wells said that while more dams are necessary, most of the choice sites have been taken and economic, social and environmental considerations must be balanced on any future dam sites.

"I see us as an honest broker who lays out all the facts so the people can make the decisions. We aren't in the business of being advocates. What we've done is to identify potential storage sites. The people will have the final solution."

Drug case probation given pair

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Roger Foley gave one-year unsupervised probation periods in lieu of sentences Monday to a personal physician of Howard Hughes and a former personal aide on drug conspiracy charges.

Dr. Norman F. Crane, 72, and John Morrison Holmes, 62, earlier pleaded no contest in a negotiated agreement with the government to aide the case against Dr. Wilbur Thain in Utah. As part of the plea bargaining, the U.S. attorney's office recommended probation.

Crane and Holmes were convicted, Sept. 12, following a March grand jury indictment on charges of conspiring to furnish codeine phosphate and emprin codeine to Hughes while he lived in Las Vegas and in California, England, Canada and the Bahamas.

Thain was acquitted recently of charges of supplying Hughes with illegal amounts of codeine from 1974, when he became Hughes' physician, until the billionaire died two years later.

Idaho based jets enter maneuvers

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — Twelve F111A twin-jet fighter-bombers from Mountain Home Air Force Base are taking part in land and sea simulated combat maneuvers at McDill AFB, Fla.

In addition, seven C141 transport planes flew 215 support personnel and equipment to McDill last week to maintain the F111A's. The maneuvers will involve about 25,000 members of the Air Force, Marine Corps, Army and Navy in several southeastern states Saturday through Nov. 13.

Ballet West offered chance at big grant

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Ballet West is in line for a $250,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts — but must raise $750,000 in donations to get it.

The Challenge Grant was awarded to the Salt Lake City company on a three-to-one matching fund basis, William N. Jones, president and chairman of the Ballet West board explained Tuesday.

He said a campaign to raise the $750,000 will be launched in the next few months.

New cookbook features 'country' dishes

By Nancy Newman
Chicago Sun-Times

"I've always thought of a recipe as a kind of road map. They tell how to get from here to there and mention any side roads, but don't say what you will meet or see along the way."

Thus, a recipe is more of a guide than anything else. Those who do a lot of cooking usually use them that way. We add our own touches as we go along, still coming up with the intended dish, but with some differences.

Shirley Sarvis has done this with her recipes in "Woman's Day Home Cooking Around the World," a collection of 150 economical dishes from home kitchens in almost every country.

Sarvis has traveled the world collecting recipes. The dishes are authentic when she got them. But she has done a bit of changing in some of them. The changes may have been made to make them usable in our kitchens, or because she found that another makes them taste better, or because some ingredient just isn't available here.

These changes have not detracted from any of the dishes she presents, and have made some better than the originals.

The recipes are for what are called peasant or country dishes. They are not always found in restaurants (although some, such as frittata, an Italian flat omelet, are featured in some very chic eateries, usually with lots of vegetables). The dishes are hearty, often spicy, not very expensive, and provide great gustatory rewards.

For example, in the book's first section, Sufficient Soups, the author presents those that can, with a salad, some fruit or a dessert, provide an ample one-dish meal. One such is potato, greens and sausage soup (caldo verde) from Portugal.

To make the soup, pierce 4 to 6 ounces of Polish sausage, linguica (a Portuguese sausage) or other smoked pork garlic sausage, in 3 places with a fork, cover with cold water, heat to boiling, simmer for 15 minutes, drain and cut into 1/2-inch slices.

Put 1 1/2 pounds peeled and sliced potatoes in 5 cups of water with about 1 1/2 teaspoons salt in a large kettle and cover, bring to a boil and cook gently until potatoes are tender. Remove potatoes, mash until smooth, and return to the kettle in which they were boiled. (Save the water.)

Add about 1/2 cup oil to the kettle, about 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground pepper, the sausages and heat to boiling. Add 5 ounces fresh spinach (very clean) or dark green lettuce or cabbage (heavy stems removed before weighing) which have been gathered together and cut into very fine strips. Boil, uncovered, until just tender, about 3 minutes. Add additional salt if necessary and serve to 4 as a main-course serving (to 8 as a first-course serving).

This dish would go well with some corn bread and a very dry red table wine.

As you can see, there is nothing very complicated about this soup. It doesn't even require a stock (although I tried it with beef broth and it tasted lovely that way.) All ingredients are available in most food stores.

However, lack of unusual ingredients does not mean the dishes aren't unusual. Most won't be found in most homes in this country, although they might be found in the average home in the country of origin. But some are from the United States, too.

The book has clever chapter headings, aside from the soup one: Salads of Plenty, Mostly Eggs, Mainly Vegetable Main Courses, Corn in Seven Aspects, All Manner of Pastas, A Little Shellfish Can Go a Long Way, Thrifty Chickens, Unlavish Lamb, Fork to Pleasure, Varjejd Meals: More Wondrous than Curious, Pancakes for Supper, and Desserts that Do for Dinner, to name a few.

Since the book is guided by the food, rather than the course, if you are in the mood for chicken, you'll find almost everything from appetizers to main courses under the chicken section (with a few in the salads).

The book ends with a general index and one that organizes recipes by nation of origin. It's a fine book for the eclectic cook, who will travel the recipe's route with his or her own detours.

Try these special dishes with an Oriental flair

You don't need a wok to make delicious Oriental dishes!

Oriental cooking is simple and can be done right on the stove top using a saute pan.

It is important to have a pan that heats up quickly and holds the heat so that the meats and vegetables are cooked quickly. A non-stick cooking surface is important, too, for easy cooking and clean-up.

Oriental cooking must be done quickly and at high temperatures. Cooking oil, usually vegetable oil, is used to a great extent to arrive at high temperatures and to seal in the flavor and color of foods, while preserving their crispness and vitamin content.

Stir-fry cooking has become very popular with people on-the-go because it's so quick. Those people concerned with nutrition love it, too, because it's very healthy and low calorie.

Vegetables rather than meat tend to predominate in Oriental cooking, and meat is usually preferred in small quantities, cut into small pieces and mixed with the vegetables. Fish and pork are more popular than beef in the Oriental diet.

Fall means apple picking time in Magic Valley

You're probably in no mood now to read about how apples help keep the doctor away, polish up the teacher, are fit for the eye, or how apple pie exemplifies order. You've been out apple-picking yourself, or found some terrific apple bargains in the markets or along roadsides. And you're wondering what to do with some of them right now, fresh with all nutrients intact, before they begin to lose them.

Besides being generally about 65 calories and a satisfying and nutritious way to stave off hunger pangs or a growling stomach, they are pretty to look at for table centerpieces along with some stalks of dried corn or wild flowers, and they make perfect competition game-pieces for Halloween.

Try putting fresh apples in a bowl of water for party guests to pick up on first or second try, with their teeth, and carry up and down at least a 10-step flight of stairs without handling, and deposit the apple in another bowl alongside the water-filled one. It's almost impossible to do! If weather is good for the party, do an apple-on-ruler relay around the block.

Now on to fresh ways to use apples besides eating them as they are.

APPLE SLICES POACHED IN SYRUP WITH PLAIN YOGURT

- 2 1/2 cups apple slices
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 cup water
- 1-inch piece cinnamon stick
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- plain yogurt
- nutmeg

In saucepan, combine apple slices, honey and water, cinnaom stick, lemon juice and grated lemon rind. Cover; simmer slowly 25 to 30 minutes, or until apples are transparent. Remove cinnamon stick. Serve over plain yogurt, sprinkled with nutmeg. Makes 6 servings.

APPLE MEAT ROLLUP (Glammorous Meat)

- 2 pounds ground chuck or round steak
- salt and pepper to season to taste
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 slices white bread, crumbled into small pieces
- 1 medium-sized onion, peeled and grated
- 2 cups finely chopped apples, peeled and cored
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In bowl, mix together ground meat with salt and pepper to taste, the beaten eggs, crumbled bread slices and grated onion. Blend very well. Pat meat mixture, on waxed paper, into an oblong 10 by 14-inch thick rectangle. Mix together chopped apples, bread crumbs, lemon juice, lemon rind, cinnamon and brown sugar. Spread mixture over meat rectangle. Using waxed paper, roll up as you would a jelly roll. Place into a greased oblong pan and bake for 1 hour. Slice into 1-inch slices and serve hot. Serves 6 to 8.

MW: You can use microwave temperature-control probe for this meat loaf. Form loaf into a doughnut-shape and cook in a microwave-proof container. Using probe set for internal temperature at 170 degrees, the loaf will cook properly. Let meat loaf stand for about 8 minutes to firm up before serving.

WALDORF SALAD

Dice tart apples with the skins left on and combine them with half as much chopped celery. Add enough salad dressing to moisten the apples. Add chopped walnuts just before serving, because if done sooner, they will soften and their skins may darken and make the apple slices slightly bitter. Serve on crisp lettuce or other salad greens. Quantity depends on mouths you are feeding. Figure half of a large apple per person.

SCALLOPED APPLES AND SWEET POTATOES

- 3 medium sweet potatoes
- 4 medium apples, pared and cored
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons margarine or butter

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cook sweet potatoes in boiling water until tender; cool and peel. Slice the sweet potatoes and apples and place in alternate layers in greased 7 1/2 to 2 quart baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with honey and salt, and dot with margarine or butter. Add a little water. Cover. Bake for 30 to 40 minutes, or until the apples are tender and the top layer is brown. Remove lid during the last 15 minutes of baking. Serve in baking dish. Makes 6 servings.

MW: Use Microwave-proof baking dish that is 1 1/2 to 2 quarts. Layer sweet potatoes and apple slices as above. Cover and microwave at high 17 to 19 minutes, stirring after 10 minutes. Remove from oven and let stand 5 minutes before serving. This dish makes ideal accompaniment to game roasting.

APPLE COCONUT STRIPS

- pastry for one 9-inch double-crust pie
- 5 apples, pared and thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 egg
- 1 1/2 cups moist coconut
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup milk

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Roll pastry lightly on floured board or pastry cloth into large rectangle 1/4-inch thick. Line bottom and sides of 15 1/2 by 10 1/2-inch jelly roll pan, with pastry. Arrange apples in rows on dough. Combine 1/2 cup sugar, cinnamon and salt and sprinkle over apples; dot with-margarine or butter. Bake 30 minutes. Beat egg until thick and lemon colored; add coconut, remaining 1/2 cup sugar and milk. Spread over apples. Then bake for 15 minutes longer. Cool. Cut into 2 by 5-inch strips. Makes 14 strips.

MW: This does not adapt well to microwave cookery because of thickened and slightly crunchy texture.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS:

The markets may be getting raisins now and then. You may see walnuts, but when you do, the prices will be blazing high soon. Bakers should try substituting other dried fruits such as apricots, pineapple or apples as well as different-than-walnut varieties of nuts in their recipes. Get these, too, because of the pressure; they will begin to jump in price.

Start watching for better pricing of grapefruit now that the first shipments have been accomplished. Poultry is not cheap, but it's still the best buy in the meat area. Turkey time is soon arriving with good turkey buys. Watch for instore canned goods specials now everywhere in preparation for Thanksgiving.

Health

They lost interest in sex

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb,

I am curious to know why men at 55 lose their manhood? I couldn't help reading your column about the woman complaining about her husband who is 62 and couldn't perform because he had high blood pressure.

My husband wasn't ill and didn't have high blood pressure. I was only 49 years old. Yes, I have a desire for sex life. The only pleasure I get is when I dream... I have been without sex for 18 years. I would appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER,

My first comment is that your honest, open letter points out that older people do not lose an interest in sex life. It's healthy and normal for older people to be interested in sex the same as any other age group.

I am sometimes struck that our society has a built-in prejudice against age, which may have something to do with the emphasis on youth. One of the ways of manifesting that prejudice is to decide that older people are beyond participating in the fundamentals of life; which include sex, decision making such as controlling your own finances and, until recently, at least, continuing to enjoy gainful employment in many instances.

There is no one reason why a man loses interest or capacity for sex in the middle years. About 50 percent of American men do by age 75. Often this is related to medical changes, some of which could be truly classed as aging.

Other times, it is related to fatty cholesterol deposits in the arteries and general decline from the state of optimal health. Diabetes, alcohol in excess and circulatory problems can all be factors in causing this to happen.

Depression and psychological attitudes are also important. Many middle-aged people do get depressed. One of the common symptoms of severe depression is loss of interest in sex or the capacity to perform.

Anyone who has a loss of interest in sex should regard it as a symptom and the possibility that an underlying depression exists must not be forgotten.

The only way to find out what causes a man to become impotent is to regard it as a symptom and then have a fairly comprehensive examination that looks into the numerous different causes that could be responsible. Simply "shrugging it off" as a matter of age doesn't really help anybody, particularly when the person involved is just in his middle 50s.

To give you more information about this problem, I am sending you The Health Letter number 32. Impotence. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Mrs. Satterwhite is attending the University of Nevada.

anned tuna considered valuable staple item since the first commercial tuna was successfully canned in 1903, Americans have been blessing those who produce delicious convenience food.

On the 75th anniversary of the industry, canned tuna is a staple about every kitchen in the country.

Environmental awareness has tuna — a complete protein with cholesterol — has come on, on its own! And there is an upswing in its use in hot main courses as well as cold. One reason is the increased involvement of women, as well as men, in the kitchen.

Less time for complicated routines. And canned tuna is the hectic pace of contemporary life as though developed eventually in mind.

Economists in the Tuna Foundation's test kitchens have come up with a basic formula for kitchen buffets. The basic for the meal is a copious, easy-to-make dish, served with appetizing accompaniments — in the style of an Indian curry presentation. The main dish takes a comparatively short time to prepare; the accompaniments, for the most part, come out of cans, packages or cartons.

The first buffet, pictured here, centers around a new version of that popular combo, tuna and noodles. The making is simply itself. The tuna, right out of the can, is combined with sautéed vegetables, olives and parsley in a Ligurian "white" sauce, then spooned over the noodles and gently tossed. With the Buffet Tuna and Noodles, comes a cascade of spritzles. Yes, spritzles! Chopped walnuts, grated cheese, sliced hard-cooked egg, crushed tortilla chips, cooked green peas. Now there's a tuna production for you!

To accompany this dish, a crisp salad of tossed greens or mixed fresh vegetables, or just-cooked broccoli, makes a good contrast of flavor and textures. Dessert is no problem. A basket of fruit or fixings for an à la mode treat should hit the spot.

A second buffet stars tuna in a double-quick, Polynesian-style stir-fry, with pineapple bits, celery, tomato wedges and almonds. Go together with this savory Tuna South Pacific can include hot rice, shrimp, main noodles or toasted coconut, green pepper "sticks" and orange slices or banana chunks.

And for a third buffet, there's superb Tuna-Vegetable Health Pie, a cornucopia of delicious components. (It takes a little longer to prepare than the other dishes but the pastry may be baked ahead of time and refrigerated.) This main dish pie comes with a special Cottage Cheese Topping and may be teamed with cole slaw, pickled beets, carrot sticks and banana chips.

BUFFET TUNA AND NOODLES

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 2 large cloves of garlic, minced
- 1 cup coarsely chopped red pepper (1 large)
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion (1 medium)
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth, or vegetable cooking liquid
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 1 can (5 3/4 ounces) pitted ripe olives, sliced
- 2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil, flaked
- 1 package (8 ounces) spinach-egg noodles

In large skillet melt butter over medium heat; stir in garlic. Add red pepper and onion; sauté until tender. Blend in flour; cook 1 minute. Add chicken broth, parsley and olives. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Stir in tuna. Cook noodles according to package directions, adding 1 tablespoon salad oil to cooking water. Drain noodles, turn into large heated serving dish. Spoon tuna sauce over noodles. Serve with all or several of the following spritzles: Chopped walnuts, crushed corn chips, grated Parmesan cheese, sliced hard-cooked egg, cooked green peas.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Precautions urged in food preparation

By SOPHIE LEAVITT
Chicago Sun-Times

over the ocean, when a says, "Let's have a party," the cook to see that the food is safe with foods means seeing if they are properly prepared, and if foods are kept hot and cold in the proper manner.

At interminable parties, the food often stands at room temperature. Of these dishes are very big — dairy foods d'oeuvres, eggs, dips, sour cream, yogurt spreads.

But these kinds of foods stand the refrigerator for hours.

your guests and you, too (if you take time to eat a bit now and then) may end up feeling ill. The symptoms of food poisoning can last several hours or days and are especially dangerous for children and elderly people.

So what should be done to prevent such disasters?

If you are serving foods that spoil easily — seafood, chicken, egg or cream dishes — cool them quickly and keep them cold until ready to serve. Cold means below 45 degrees F. Don't let cold foods stand in a warm room without surrounding them with ice.

If you are serving hot foods, especially dishes like chicken à la king, meat balls in cream gravy, or caloped tuna, keep them hot:

warmers than 140 degrees. Don't "hold" them for a long time over a low flame or heat.

Another solution — and this works for hot and cold foods — is to avoid using a huge serving dish that will stand a long time; instead, serve in smaller dishes and refill them more frequently.

Unless you have a large refrigerator, perhaps you should consider smaller parties instead of big ones. Big parties are fine if you have enough refrigerator or freezer space to keep quantities of prepared foods safe for everyone.

Incidentally, many people think it is safe to "leave" cheese out of the refrigerator. (That isn't even safe for mice!)

Speaking of cheeses, there are many good ones to choose among for a party — Jarlsberg, Swiss, Havarti, and wonderful Old Cheddar. Soft cream cheese can be made fancy with garlic or finely chopped parsley, or finely chopped scallions or shallots.

For guidelines on keeping foods safe, write for pamphlet HG-162, "Keeping Food Safe to Eat." You can get a single copy free, by writing to: Publications Division, Office of Government and Public Affairs, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20025.

Catalog convenience appeals to conservatives

By JOHN MOODY
UPI Men's Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-drawer conservative men's clothing used to mean just one place — Brooks Brothers.

But passing time and the spirit of free enterprise were bound to bring competitors and now there's even a way for the gent who likes to dress up in a downtown way to get his wardrobe by mail.

"I sell the kind of clothes I like to wear," says Roger Horchow, a 50-year-old Dallas entrepreneur who puts out the Chas. Pfeiffer & Co. catalog, a compendium of conservative clothes that can be mail-ordered from anywhere in the country.

"If you've never heard the name Pfeiffer and dread the intrusion of yet another designer's initials into your bedroom closet, relax: Pfeiffer is the maiden name of Horchow's wife, Carolyn.

"I'm not pushing any one designer," the Texas "mall man" says. "We offer a choice in our catalog; we're not doing commercials for any line, and we let the clothes speak for themselves.

"The only thing that's constant throughout the book is the taste of the clothes — they appeal to customers who like the conservative look."

The 33-page Fall '78 catalog is by no means a tribute to the granddaddy of gentlemen's wear. "Having shopped at Brooks and seeing their high prices, I decided the conservatively dressed man should have an alternative," Horchow says.

"We've gone to great pains to think of all the things that people complain about in stores and things we personally complain about: bad service, inconvenient hours; long lines. Stores are driving customers away for various reasons. We're going to be there waiting for them."

A test Pfeiffer catalog went out to one million persons in April and drew unexpectedly heavy orders considering it offers little designer-name clothing and no discount.

"We offered a madras jacket, nice, but nothing you couldn't buy in any store. We sold 600 of them.

"We're big where the conservative look is big — Grosse Pointe, the posh suburb of Chicago, places like that. To be truthful, we're not in much demand in California, but then neither is conservative clothing."

The average order was for 1.8 items at a cost of $77.

But expectations have been scaled down for the current product, Horchow says.

"We now hope for $850,000 in sales out of this catalog. We had hoped to do $1.2 million, but we're seeing a nationwide holdback by consumers now."

That would seem to go against the trend of freer spending in retail stores, and may mean that America isn't ready for mail-order luxury. But Horchow says as long as he has trouble getting waited on in Brooks Brothers, he'll keep looking for alternatives.

Reflects trend

Jean Castelbajac's spring-summer ready-to-wear fashion collection reflects the trend of Paris' more extreme designers with tight cigarette pants in shiny cloths worn under broad-shouldered brightly colored jackets cinched in tightly at the waistline.

SOPHISTICATED LADY

226 Eastland Drive next to the Bowladrome

Twin Falls woman named to Gem music club post

TWIN FALLS — Edna Thorson of Twin Falls was elected treasurer of the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs at their fall board meeting held in Boise on Oct. 7 in conjunction with the Governor's Conference on the Arts.

The IFMC gives emphasis to the funding of music scholarships awarded to outstanding young musicians throughout the state. Monies are raised by the 10 local clubs in the state and some funds have been granted this year by the Idaho Commission on the Arts. Auditions are held in the spring with scholarships awarded locally as well as through the state federation.

Assisting in the planning of the conference was Leona McCarroll of Payette, president of the Idaho Federation. Lucille Wilson of Nampa will continue to represent Idaho on the national board of directors.

The IFMC will participate in the convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs to be held in April at Portland, Ore. Future plans include hosting the national fall board meeting at Sun Valley in 1980.

Dear Abby

Parents should teach children facts of life

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 © Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: Your advice that mothers should give their daughters sex education is ludicrous! If a daughter confides to her mother that she is shoplifting to support a drug habit, would you then advise the mother to instruct her daughter on how to shoplift without getting caught?
 If not, may I say that sex-without marriage is just as morally wrong as shoplifting and drug use.
"RIGHT AGAIN IN FLORIDA"

DEAR RIGHT: Wrong! The crime of shoplifting cannot be equated with the "crime" of premarital sex. I hear from enough teen-agers to know that once they have gone all the way with someone they think they love, they will continue to have sex every chance they get. (The sex drive is one of the most powerful of all natural urges. Second only to the need for food!)

 It is the responsibility of every parent to teach their children ALL the facts in order to protect them from VD and accidental pregnancies.
 Uninformed kids who are sexually active (and face it, millions are!) not only ruin their own lives, but they place a heavy burden financially and socially on society with problems of VD and unwanted children.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and want to become a famous actress. I think I would be very good at it because ever since I was a little girl I have been very good at "pretending" and that is what acting is, isn't it? Do I have to finish high school to be an actress?
FUTURE ACTRESS

DEAR ACTRESS: Finish high school. And college, too, if you can. Being good at "pretending" might help a lot because there may be times when you have to "pretend" that you are eating.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that several years ago she falsified her birth date on her driver's license because she didn't want her husband to know how old she was, and now that she's eligible for Social Security she's afraid to apply for fear they will revoke her driver's license, fine her, or put her in jail!
 She asked what the penalty would be if she confessed, and you said all she had to do was send a copy of her birth certificate to the department of motor vehicles, and all would be forgiven and forgotten.
 It's not quite that simple. In most states (and certainly in Missouri) it is a misdemeanor to falsify one's driver's license. Minors have been known to do this in order to pass for legal age to buy alcoholic beverages.

 Perhaps the lady who falsified her driver's license by deducting a few years committed no serious offense, but minors who falsify their drivers' licenses should be made aware that this is a very serious offense which should not be taken lightly.

ST. LOUIS READER

DEAR READER: Thanks for making an important point which I overlooked.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

You can diet and still enjoy Italian food

Chicago Sun-Times
 "You just can't be on a diet and eat Italian food."
 Not true! You can diet and still enjoy many popular Italian dishes if you follow the recipes in "The Woman's Day Book of Thin Italian Cooking" by Carol Truax (Houghton Mifflin, $9.95).

Truax has put together a variety of recipes — 450 to be exact — which will make up enough menus of low-calorie good eating to satisfy the most demanding dieter.

For example, consider a dinner of mushrooms stuffed with chicken livers, broiled filets of beef, cauliflower with tomato sauce, mixed green salad and cold espresso mousse (510 calories) or baked oysters with Parmesan cheese, broiled lobster with brandy, cucumber salad and strawberry pudding (450 calories). These sound good enough for any diner, dieting or not.

If you are a pasta-lover, no need to cut it out completely. Cut the portion instead. One dinner includes minestrone "breath," vermicelli with basil and tomato sauce, fish filets in white vermouth, asparagus with lemon and coffee jelly for dessert. It is certainly substantial and possibly more than many of us would normally eat for dinner, but it has only 578 calories.

Truax, the author of 20 cookbooks, learned to cook Italian food while living in Italy. Her dishes are authentic, but with some changes. Oil and fats are cut to the minimum, as is salt and sugar per portion.

There are plenty of satisfying salads (popular in Italy) and all kinds of vegetable dishes, another Italian favorite, although not seen so often in Italian restaurants in this country.

The desserts are marvelous and no sugar substitutes are used in them. Sugar is cut but used when needed.

Here are samples of Truax' recipes for the Italian food-loving dieter (and anyone else who is interested in eating lighter and less fatty foods).
 A famous Italian dish is chicken hunter's style (which we know as chicken caecalatore and which is correctly called pollo alla caecalatora). This recipe serves six persons at about 300 calories per serving.

Cut up a 3/2-pound fryer into serving pieces, dry with paper towels if damp, and brown in 2 tablespoons olive oil, turning to brown evenly. Remove and set aside. Sauté in the same oil 2 medium sliced onions and 1 clove of garlic, crushed, until translucent. (Don't let the onions brown.) Add a 1-pound can of Italian plum tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper (freshly ground), a pinch of sugar, and a teaspoon of oregano (dried). Stir and return chicken to the pan. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Add 1/4 cup dry white wine and simmer, uncovered, until chicken is tender, about 25 minutes. Adjust seasonings and serve with the sauce.

JoAnn Pflug

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jo Ann Pflug is that rare performer currently appearing in two weekly television series, as hostess on "Candid Camera" and as the efficient Navy nurse in "Operation Petticoat."

As if two shows were not enough, Jo Ann is also a wife — married to game show host Charles (Wheel of Fortune) Whorley — and the mother of three-year-old Melissa. Happily for her home life, Jo Ann's stint on "Candid Camera" is one of the easiest gigs in show business. She flies to Nashville twice a year to knock off 13 segments in a week's time.

Juggling the two shows, however, has given the slender, 5-foot-10 beauty a slight case of split personality.

On "Candid Camera" she is her own bubbly, chatterbox self. On "Operation Petticoat" she is the somewhat starchy Lt. Katherine O'Hara in charge of nurses on a World War II U.S. submarine.

"Candid Camera" is a lot easier for me to do," Jo Ann said, taking time out from her busy schedule. "I majored in radio and TV communications at the University of Miami and I've done a lot of live television."

"I was hostess of 'Tempo T,' a talk show here in Hollywood for a year. And I was among the first women to do interview talk shows before female personalities were being used for news, sports and interview programs."

"So when I'm doing 'Candid Camera' I'm relaxed and at ease. I just sit back and enjoy myself. "It's altogether different on the set at Universal for 'Operation Petticoat.' I've got to get into the role of Katherine O'Hara. Until just recently I've thought of her in the third person. It's important that I think and behave automatically as the Navy nurse and not as Jo Ann Pflug."

"The two jobs require different disciplines and challenges, even though Nurse O'Hara is very much like me."

"The difficult thing about my part is that I'm playing a straight character in a situation comedy. The more real I play the character, the funnier everyone else in the cast is."

Jo Ann, along with Mindy Naud and Hillary Thompson, played the sex appeal in the series but Jo Ann is mightily pleased that "Operation Petticoat" does not fall into the jiggle show category.

"The women in the cast are mostly around for decorative purposes," she said. "But we're not being exploited as sex objects. The scripts don't go in for those kinds of jokes. We have to walk a fine line between realism and comedy."

"Operation Petticoat" began this season with almost an entirely new cast after it faltered in the ratings last season. Jo Ann had never seen the old show and has "a wish which to compare her to."

"I go to see the rushes at lunch every day to see if I'm playing O'Hara too realistically," she said.

"If so, I try to pull back a bit. I have no such problems with 'Candid Camera' because I know where Jo Ann Pflug is coming from."

"Some performers are at ease playing characters or simply appearing as themselves. Others are great actors who can disappear into a role but are uncomfortable just being themselves in public. Then there are personality stars who can't and don't try to act."

"I'd like to be at home in both worlds, and so far it's working out that way. But I'd prefer to stick to acting rather than personality shows."

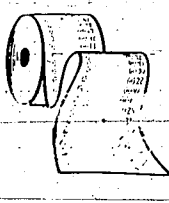

"I look 2½ years off to have Melissa and to spend time with her during infancy. Any actress taking that much time off is tempting fate. Hollywood has a short history."

"These days producers are looking for total unknowns or household names for television series and movie roles."

"I don't fit into either one of those categories when I started back. Doing the hostess bit for 'Candid Camera' was one of the smartest moves I ever made. As a result I'm better known to the public than in the industry."

"It proved to me that viewers remember a performer better for their personal appearances as themselves rather than in a dramatic or a comedy role."

"Operation Petticoat" and 'Candid Camera' are my first series. When I first started out I wanted to concentrate on movies. After doing the original 'M-A-S-H' I did get a lot of movie work."

HALLOWEEN SPECIALS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The visitor looked at Deborah Kerr and recalled her words from a famous play: "Years from now... when you think of this... and you will... be kind."

Miss Kerr, sitting on a sofa in her apartment, leaned forward and cooed to him with all the warmth and gentleness that she gave those lines spoken to the timid, lonely teen-aged boy in Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy."

"Years from now... when you talk of this... and you will... be kind."

Miss Kerr, now grandmother, reflective and eternally beautiful, was interviewed just before her touring play, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," finished a five-week run at the Kennedy Center on her 58th birthday.

But her attention was drawn back to "Tea and Sympathy."

"Those are the most marvelous, marvelous lines ever written," she said of her words to the young man about being kind.

"That role mirrors her own sense of who she is."

"I really am Laura Reynolds," the older woman in the play who helped the timid, lonely boy discover his manhood, she said.

As she talked, she was dressed in white jeans, a white blouse and jacket with a gold ring, bracelet and earrings.

"Life is full of problems," she said. "Everybody has family problems. People are born and people die, and one has to cope. One has to maintain — at least I have to, and I find it comes instinctively to me — when there is trouble I find myself calming everyone down and staying very cool and calm and collected."

"I find it helps other people as well as helping me."

As was Laura Reynolds, who violated her own marriage to the abusive coach to help the boy, Miss Kerr is aware of her own humanness: "Deep down I'm not as calm or serene — I always give the impression of being very serene, very cool, very calm and totally in control."

"I'm just as human as anybody else."

"I can't live in an unhappy atmosphere. I can't function, work or live. I couldn't, if my personal life and my family life were not... by serene I don't mean all roses and honeysuckle."

That inner calm, however, "can be jostled," she said. "I can be a great deal more frightened and nervous than people think I am."

"But if I say I am, I am admitting it to myself and I will get ahead of me," she said. "That's something I can't let it do. I am talking more about work. In private life one can let one's self go and say 'I'm petrified.'"

Her personal life is in order. Her two daughters are grown, and so is her husband and the joy of their younger daughter Francesca's two-year-old son.

Miss Kerr notices "a lack of quality" in the world in her journeys back and forth between her homes in Switzerland, southern France, London and the United States.

"There's less quality in the whole world. By quality I don't mean only material things, but quality in people in their attitudes toward each other as human beings," she said.

Her gentleness shows through in her current production, a 28-year-old play by Friedrich Schiller that her husband, Peter Viertel, rediscovered and recommended to her. The play moves on to St. Louis, Toronto, Boston, Orlando and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Baltimore, Denver and San Francisco.

Linseed oil handyman's aid

By HERB ALEXANDER

The manufacturers of linseed oil advertise the virtues of paint made with that ingredient as opposed to latex paints.

Without getting into the pros and cons of oil vs. latex paints, it is worth remembering that linseed oil is one of the oldest wood preservatives in the world. A container of linseed oil belongs among the supplies of every handyman. As a household aid it has many more uses than just mixing with paint.

When you buy linseed oil you will discover there are basically two types — raw and boiled. Linseed oil with added driers is used where boiled linseed oil is called for.

In its raw state linseed oil takes a long time to dry: from a few hours to a few days. Raw oil is recommended for some paints. Putty supply that has become hard can be made pliable again by kneading with raw linseed oil. Farmers use the raw oil to add to cattle feed during the winter.

The boiled oil, and oil with driers in it, is no longer edible, but it is still very useful. It dries more quickly, penetrates more deeply. Some paints specifically call for boiled linseed oil.

All natural wood surfaces can be preserved and their appearances enhanced by applying linseed oil.

Never paint a ladder or the handles of tools. Rub them down with linseed oil, and the wood will not dry out and will last longer. Fences and posts and outdoor furniture will last longer if treated with linseed oil.

New paint brushes will be more pliable, easier to use if soaked in linseed oil. Before you paint apply some oil to your hands to protect them from paint. When finished wash with soap and water.

You can make your own furniture polish by mixing two parts of linseed oil and one part of turpentine. Apply with a cloth and rub briskly.

Wipe off the surface until it is dry. Try this same mixture on the brick work around your fireplace. You will like the finish and will find it easy to dust.

Do you have a few antiques around? Use linseed oil to polish them and enhance their appearance without damaging them.

James Mason prefers the quiet life

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — James Mason is an enigmatic man whose understated screen roles reflect his personal idiosyncracies so much that he appears always to be giving a performance, which is not the case at all.

He is a man of casual grace and precise speech who seems to be thoroughly in command of himself.

So it was the other day in his suite at the luxurious Bel Air hotel. He was stopping briefly in Hollywood for the first showing of his new movie, "The Boys From Brazil," at 20th Century-Fox.

The actor and his ex-wife, Pamela Mason, once ranked high among party-givers and goes on the Beverly Hills circuit. Now remarried to Australian actress Clarissa Kaye, he lives quietly above Lake Geneva in Switzerland far from the hustle and bustle.

The quiet life, he says, suits him perfectly well.

"I live in Switzerland because I've always wanted a country home," he said, "and since, like all actors, I've become a world wanderer, the peace and solitude of Switzerland is a tonic."

"It's a place to go to catch up on reading and the tranquility of domestic life. The thought of attending parties never enters my mind."

"There is the inevitable question of taxes, of course. I pay taxes in Switzerland but they are not so great as in England. Following my divorce there were a number of financial obligations. I could not live in England and meet those obligations. It is simple as that."

"The truth is I don't really care where I live so long as it is a civilized country. One could easily make a home in England or France as well as Switzerland. And perhaps Italy, if one is well armed."

"It's been 17 years since I lived in Southern California and I had no intention of mentioning the area as a civilized place to live. New Orleans might fill the bill. It is a beautiful and interesting city."

"Having lived away from Hollywood all these years (he and Pamela were divorced in 1963) I've forgotten how frantic the pace of life is in the United States."

"I have a theory that things would cease to exist in America if they are not talked about or advertised on television."

"Nothing makes an impact in this country anymore unless it has an enormous advertising campaign. Movies are a good example."

"They are advertised on television. Newspapers run enormous ads about new films. On the street one is exposed to huge billboards chronicling the fact that a certain picture is currently playing."

"I suppose a saturation campaign makes the difference between success and failure for many films. But some low budget pictures, especially those of Woody Allen, do seem to sneak by on merit alone."

"In Europe, especially Switzerland, things are quite different. The ads aren't so strong or overwhelming, especially in countries where there is no commercial television at all and billboards are a rarity."

"The Swiss papers advertise motion pictures in small print. So far as I've been able to determine they are not trumpeted on TV or radio. I don't recall seeing any film billboard advertisements."
